$7 Million County Budget Shaping Up

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
If all goes well, the Board of County Commissioners will give final approval to the 1972-1973 county budget next Monday or soon thereafter.

Members of the board have for weeks been working on the list of expenditures. The board met yesterday afternoon and night in what its members hope will be one of the last sessions necessary to complete their work. And like skilled surgeons, they pared away at what they considered to be pockets of fat in what is planned to be a trim budget.

As it stands now—and without other cuts that might come during a Wednesday budget session—the proposed budget amounts to about $7 million as compared with last year's $6.52 million. And unless other cuts are made, the tax rate needed to fund the proposed expenditures—including a 10-cents per $100 valuation increase for debt service requirements due to the hospital bond issue—may run well over the present $1.52 rate.

Among the biggest changes proposed in the budget over the current spending level are a 4.75-per cent salary increase for county employees; a $10,000 increase in appropriations for solid waste disposal, an $8,000 addition to the county garage to provide more service space; county participation in hospitalization insurance for employees amounting to an estimated $29,000; $17,500 for reconditioning runways at the Pitt-Greenville Airport; $28,193 for extending water and sewer lines from the Ayden City limits to an industrial site; and a whopping $338,000 for interest and commission and retirement on the hospital bonds.

Last night, Commissioners took a hard look at General Fund expenditures and gave a tentative nod to a list amounting to more than $1.3 million as compared with a General Fund budget last year of $1.16 million.

Largest increases in that fund come in the areas of salaries and related expenses such as social security and retirement; hospitalization; $1,500 for additional air conditioning for the county's data processing center; $4,000 for parking lot improvements at the court house; and an estimated $9,000 increase in rent on new data processing equipment and expenditures for improvements at the airport and for the Ayden sewer and water extension.

Commissioners also reviewed the budget for the Department of Social Services, giving tentative approval to a $42,785 outside poor and relief budget ($40,745 last year), and a $1.18 million Public Assistance proposal (1.06 million for the 1971-1972 fiscal period).

Again the largest increases were in the area of salaries, with the purchase of four vehicles, increased postage and increases in some programs, accounting for the remainder of the increase. The budget for grants decreased about $7,000, reflecting cuts in projected requirements for aid for dependent children and in old age assistance. The total for the coming year now stands at $392,375.

Commissioners will face their biggest budget items Wednesday when they look at the list of appropriations for the city and county schools and for other county organizations.

McGovern On Brink Of Nomination

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Writer
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Sen. George McGovern, staging a dramatic demonstration of political power, swept to the brink of the Democratic presidential nomination today in a marathon opening session of his party's national convention that ended just before dawn.

McGovern's display of organizational muscle came when he recaptured 151 disputed California delegates at the peak of a tumultuous session.

The South Dakota senator claimed his long, uphill battle was near success and that victory in Wednesday night's nominating session is "within our grasp."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, leader of the coalition of McGovern rivals that lost the crucial California vote, declined to concede the nomination. But he admitted that McGovern "had quite a night" and promised to say more in the morning.

But with victory within reach in the convention's opening session, the McGovern camp failed in an effort to engineer a compromise to seat both Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley and a heavily pro-McGovern group of Illinois challengers.

The convention then voted to oust the powerful Chicago mayor in a move expected to have far-reaching consequences both throughout the party and in its fall campaign for the White House in the politically crucial state of Illinois.

Party leaders had feared the opening night session would run into the daylight hours.

But the showdown votes on California and Illinois were followed by a series of compromises that quickly brought the opening session to a close a few minutes before 5 a.m. EDT.

In terms of the party's presidential fight, the California vote was crucial, perhaps decisive.

According to an Associated Press count, addition of the 151 California votes brought McGovern within about 25 votes of a first-ballot nomination with other uncommitted delegates expected to move his way.

It took two votes, both decided by larger than expected margins, to settle the California credentials dispute.

First, the McGovern forces overturned by a vote of 1,618.28 to 1,238.22 the Credentials Committee's decision — which had been engineered by backers of Humphrey, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie and Gov. George C. Wallace — to deny McGovern all the California votes.

Then, by an even broader margin of 1,689.52 to 1,162.23, the McGovern forces defeated an attempt by a Florida backer of Wallace to challenge the parliamentary ground rules set by the presiding officer, Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien.

In the Chicago case, too, there were two votes as the McGovern side sought at the last moment to compromise — even though Daley's side said compromise was impossible.

Former Gov. Frank Morrison of Nebraska, a McGovern supporter, sought to suspend the rules and bring the compromise to the floor — a procedure requiring a two-thirds vote. But it failed to command even a ma-majority, losing 1,483.08 to 1,411.05.

Then, heeding the plea of fiery Rev. Jesse Jackson, who warned that "if one cancer remains in the body, the rest of the body politic will die," the convention voted 1,486.5 to 1,371.5 to reject Daley's bid to supplant the group led by Jackson and Chicago Alderman William Singer.

Then, speeding adjournment of the first of four scheduled sessions, the convention agreed to drop credentials cases affecting delegates from Michigan, Texas, Rhode Island, Washington, Connecticut and Oklahoma.

Earlier, it rejected a challenge seeking more women in the South Carolina delegation and the bid of a racially mixed group to supplant the pro-Wallace Alabama group.

As the convention opened in the brilliantly lit convention hall, roving groups of demonstrators who had broken away from a protest rally assembled outside. One group pulled down a section of a restraining fence.

Until the crucial California contest, most delegates appeared to show little interest in the proceedings, talking with friends and neighbors and milling in the aisles despite O'Brien's best efforts to keep the business moving.

But the 20-minute debate on California brought delegates to attention amid repeated rounds of applause and boos.

With addition of the 151 disputed California delegates, McGovern's committed first-ballot strength some 48 hours before presidential balloting begins Wednesday night reached 1,485.35 — just 23.65 short of the 1,509 needed to win.

The long opening-night session began half an hour late at 8 p.m. with welcoming speeches by Sen. Lawton B. Chiles, and Rep. Claude Pepper of Florida, Miami Beach Mayor Chuck Hall, and O'Brien.

All through the session, pro- and anti-McGovern forces maneuvered on the floor for the California showdown.

Withdrawal

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, his last hope of winning the Democratic presidential nomination gone, stepped aside today and withdrew from the race.

Humphrey said he will not let himself be nominated at the Democratic National Convention, and he released his delegates to vote as they wish.

Humphrey, reading from a brief statement at a news conference, dropped out of the race a few hours after Sen. George McGovern scored a striking triumph and reclaimed 151 contested California delegates in a floor fight at the convention.

"My withdrawal from the presidential race is a withdrawal of candidacy only," the Minnesota senator said. "It is not a withdrawal of spirit or of determination to continue the battle I have waged all my public life on behalf of those who had no voice."

Earlier Leaf Mart Sales

RALEIGH (AP) — Tobacco sales will begin on some Eastern North Carolina markets on Aug. 8 — earliest date in history.

This date was assured Monday when a July 25 opening was fixed for the Georgia-Florida Belt.

Buyers for the Eastern Belt are rotated out of the Georgia-Florida area. Since the Georgia-Florida Belt's sets of buyers will be reduced from 37 to 28 two weeks after its opening, this will make some buyers available for an early limited opening of the Eastern Belt.

Tobacco sales may begin on a limited basis as early as Aug. 22 on the Middle and Old Belts. South Carolina and North Carolina Border Markets are also scheduled to open July 25 under a plan approved by the industrywide Flue-Cured Tobacco Marketing Committee. However, much of the crop is late in that area making it uncertain whether markets will open that soon.

Some warehousemen in the Border and South Carolina areas are reported to favor Aug. 1 for their opening.

The South Carolina Warehouse Association is expected to decide on an opening date Wednesday during its annual meeting at Florence.

An opening date for the Border Belt will be set at a meeting of the Border Belt Warehouse Association at Lumberton next Monday afternoon. Association President Leroy Townsend of Lumberton said he was "pretty sure" the association would go along with the July 25 opening if South Carolina picks that date.

Martin Budget Estimate

WILLIAMSTON — Martin County's 1972-73 budget estimate and county tax rates have been approved. John L. House, chairman of the County Commissioners, has announced the total budget estimate at $4,800,000 and the tax rate at $1.43 per $100 property valuation.

The estimate, an increase of $875,000 over the total budget of $3,925,000 for the 1971-72 fiscal year, incorporates an anticipated tax levy of $2,146,000 as compared to $2,037,500 for 1971.

House pointed out that the $1.43 rate, a decrease of 20 cents from the $1.63 rate of 1971, does not represent a true overall decrease. This is because the valuation percentage has been changed from the 85 percent of valuation effective last year to a 100 percent valuation for the current fiscal year.

Landfill For Martin Moves A Step Nearer

WILLIAMSTON — Another step forward to secure an authorized landfill for Martin County was made Monday at the July meeting of the Martin County Commissioners.

At the brief meeting, commissioners approved the submission of an application to the Local Government Commission for a $75,000 loan and also submitted an application for a grant of $30,000 from FHA.

In other action, commissioners approved renewal of the Positive Action Program.

Three persons, Clay Kirkman, William B. Long and Monk Critcher were appointed to the Martin County Airport Commission.

Resume Hearing On Watershed Wednesday

NEW BERN — The hearing on the Chicod Creek Watershed project will resume Wednesday at 10 a.m. in U. S. Eastern District Court here.

Five environmental groups, including the Natural Resources Defense Council, the North Carolina Wildlife Federation, the Pamlico-Tar Conservation Coalition, the National Wildlife Federation and the Friends of the Earth, are attempting to block the channelization project for the stream.

The project, including about 66 miles of ditching, will cost approximately $1,503,831.

Snoopy Given Special Degree

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — The University of California at Berkeley has conferred an honorary degree on Snoopy, the intellectual beagle of Charles Schultz' comic strip, "Peanuts."

The honor came from Sanford Elberg, dean of the university's graduate division, after the pithy pooch complained in a strip that another June had gone by leaving him again bereft of a degree.

Snoopy was pronounced "Assistant Dean in Charge of Canine and Related Programs," and a certificate of appointment was sent to his creator, cartoonist Charles Schulz.

Delegate David Reid Pleased No 'Ugly Floor Fights' Developing

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. — Delegate from Pitt County Dave Reid and John Taylor, first alternate, grabbed a couple of hours' sleep this morning after having participated in the first session of the Democratic Convention which ended at 4:55 a.m. A caucus was to begin at 10 a.m.

"I think we have a good thing going," Taylor said, "in that there have been no ugly floor fights and that all the delegates seem to recognize the need for all positions to be presented."

Reid voted no on the California question. He voted for seating Mayor Richard Daley's Chicago delegation, saying that he felt these were the delegates elected by the voters. This was the only question that Taylor was able to vote on. "It came at about 4 a.m.," he said, "just after a delegate had called to tell me he was leaving because of exhaustion." As the first alternate from the N.C. First Congressional District, Taylor voted against seating Mayor Daley's delegation.

"I feel Larry O'Brien made a very positive keynote address, one that pleased the majority of persons hearing it," Taylor commented.

Interviewed by telephone yesterday, Reid said he and Taylor attended a breakfast yesterday morning given by Irwin Belk of Charlotte, a national committeeman. They heard Sen. Henry Jackson, former Governor Luther Hodges on behalf of Terry Sanford; Gov. John Curtis of Maine on behalf of

Sen. Edmund Muskie; and an aide of Gov. George Wallace. Reid said he will vote for Wallace on the first ballot, as he is pledged to do. If there is a second ballot, he said he probably will vote for Terry Sanford.

He predicted a second ballot North Carolina vote would be over 40 for Sanford, at least eight for McGovern, and one or two each for Wallace and Humphrey.

Brody's Launches $200,000 Expansion

Morris C. Brody, president and manager of Brody's Inc., announced today that a $200,000 expansion and improvement program is underway at Brody's in Pitt Plaza and downtown Greenville.

Brody said the Pitt Plaza store is undergoing a complete interior renovation including new fixtures and furniture and the addition of some 6,000 square feet of space at the rear of the store.

"All fixtures and the present layout of the store will be changed," the president reported, noting that the new store will offer several new departments and shopping advantages.

Brody said a new designers room will be incorporated in the store and enlargements of the shoe and lingerie departments, as well as the junior sportswear section, are planned.

A new missy sportswear department is also being added, he pointed out, and a gift wrapping room is among the improvements being made at the Pitt Plaza store. In addition, a completely new ladies lounge and a sales and training room is included, Brody said.

Brody said that the store will have a new back entrance for the convenience of the shopper and a large, paved parking area will be provided.

Where the Pitt Plaza facility is undergoing both remodeling and expansion, Brody reported that the downtown store will be redecorated on the interior with new carpets and color schemes and several new features will be added.

Male Secretaries: New Status Symbol

NEW YORK (WNS) — Hey, fellers, don't look down your noses at a secretarial job.

An ironic twist on the current move to bring about equalization of salaries between men and women finds men turning up more often in jobs previously dominated by women. These seem to be in the occupations where salaries are increasing at a better-than-average clip.

Among the job categories where it's no longer a cause for surprise to find men at work are telephone operators, nurses, and all types of secretaries. Beyond that, men are moving more into teaching ranks, while at least one airline points out that stewards are now doing much the same work as stewardesses, including serving meals.

At the same time, of course, women are beginning to fill jobs once considered the private provinces of men. The acting director of the FBI has ended the long-time ban against women as Special Agents. Women can now rise to the priesthood in the Episcopal Church, and the first female rabbi in U.S. history has just been ordained. Lady bartenders are being accepted everywhere — even in states that technically ban them. Pennsylvania is advertising for women as state troopers. The Army will be offering ROTC to women in a few colleges this fall. So it goes, with equality among the sexes increasing every day.

Recruitment
On the matter of male secretaries, the National Secretaries Association points out that having a male secretary has become something of a status symbol for status-conscious executives, much as was the case a few years back when British secretaries were the rage. As a result, some major corporations — AT&T and John Hancock Life Insurance among them — are stepping up their recruitment campaigns for male secretaries.

What's so great about a secretarial job? Here are some of the advantages — and they affect women as well as men, of course:

Salaries keep going up to the point where there seems to be no ceiling. Beginners in New York are getting up to $125 a week, with Los Angeles and Chicago not much below that. There's no such thing as a fee these days to an employment agency. With the current shortages, employers are happy to pay that.

You can start with virtually no experience, which means you no longer have the worry of getting started. Graduates of secretarial schools find prospective employers eager for their services. And even if you didn't take shorthand and typing at school, some companies are ready to train you — and to pay you while you learn.

You need never stay on in an unpleasant atmosphere. The fact that the secretarial shortage is almost universal means you probably can duplicate the circumstances of almost any job you get — without the unpleasantness that may be driving you away. This tends to keep the people with whom you have to deal from being uncivilized.

Less Drudgery
Working conditions generally continue to improve. Secretaries are no longer shy about asking for interesting things to do in addition to routine shorthand and typing. And part of the drudgery of the past has been eliminated through such devices as the dictating machine and the electric typewriter.

Fringe benefits are being increased as business seeks to hold on to its secretaries. Among such benefits are long vacations, annual bonuses, discounts on company products, tuition plans, options on company stock at below-market prices. Some industries have special attractions: brokerage houses help their secretaries to invest prudently, airlines offer out-rate travel.

For the ambitious guy or gal not content to remain at a typewriter all his or her business life, the secretary's job more than ever can be a stepping stone to something bigger and better. The secretary is often near the seat of power in a company, and gets to learn both the subject matter and the people who can help on the move upward.

Abby Needs The Address Of Reader

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My name is Annie and I am 12 years old. My mother died when I was eight, and I had no daddy either. No one wanted to give me a home, not a soul, except one lady who came to my mother's funeral. She was very nice to me and asked me to come and live with her.

I stayed with her for a year, and she treated me very mean. I had to wash clothes at night, and take care of six little kids all day. If I complained, she beat me with a leather strap. Once she got me ready to send me to an orphan's home, but I heard it was like a jail there so I got down on my hands and knees and begged her to keep me and raise me, so she let me stay.

This lady kept me out of school so much to help with the other kids, my teacher sent for her and said if I was absent one more time she would have to hold me back, so this lady said, "Leave her back," then she purposely made me stay home from school again, and now the teacher is going to leave me back.

Oh, Abby, by the help of the Lord Almighty, I don't know what I am going to do now. Please tell your readers if their mother and father die, don't pick the person who pretends to be the best person at the funeral to live with or else they will end up being treated like a dog. What shall I do?

ANNIE

DEAR ANNIE: I want to help you, but you did not sign your last name, neither did you give me an address. No child has to be treated like a dog. Please tell me how to get in touch with you.

DEAR ABBY: Have I got a problem? I am stunned. My wife went to another state to attend our great-granddaughter's graduation. I told her I'd stay home and keep myself busy dating some of the lonely widows in our church. She said it was okay with her.

Well, I called one up and asked her for a dinner date, and she said yes. The next morning she telephoned so early she woke me up to say she had changed her mind, and what kind of woman did I think she was, anyway?

Abby, she is a member of our Sisterhood, and I am a member of the Brotherhood, and there is certainly nothing wrong with a brother taking a sister out for dinner, is there?

She sounded scared to death! And at my age yet. I am over 80. I honestly wish she had something to be afraid of. I assure you she hasn't. She nor anybody else.

REBUKED IN SUN CITY

DEAR REBUKED: Never mind you. How old is SHE?

DEAR ABBY: While reading "DEAR ABBY" I came across the letter from NOT SO DUMB, who puts all her "white elephant" gifts in a box and gives them to others on gift-giving occasions.

Last Christmas, Abby, something very nice happened around our office. One of the girls heard of a sorority that collected body powder, colognes, wallets, scarves [wrong color] etc., things that people had received as gifts and couldn't use or didn't want. This sorority distributed these items to rest homes for the older residents who were forgotten by friends and family. The recipients LOVED each gift. Nice idea?

HAPPY DONOR

DEAR DONOR: Nicer than nice! I hope it's contagious.

DEAR ABBY: I have a beaut of a squelcher for people who ask me, "How come you aren't married?" I reply, "I'm just lucky, I guess." That stops them cold!

At Home With Mrs. McGovern

By MARIAN BURROS

WASHINGTON (WNS) — George and Eleanor McGovern bought their Japanese modern house lock, stock and barrel from the previous owners, selling their last home, where they were next-door neighbors of Hubert and Muriel Humphrey, the same way.

The house is attractive and utilitarian, with glass walls and the furniture is starkly simple, much of it done in the cool green of the rug patterned only by geometric black lines. All of it reflects the low-keyed personalities of the front runner for the Democratic presidential nomination and his under five-foot wife who insists she has never gone below 91 pounds, her current weight.

There is amazingly little in the way of personal or political mementoes around; just a few pictures of the five children and three grandchildren.

But the framed passage by Ralph Waldo Emerson that hangs in the kitchen probably reveals much about the occupants: It reads, in part: "To leave the world a bit better, whether by a healthy child, a garden path, or a redeemed social condition... This is to have succeeded."

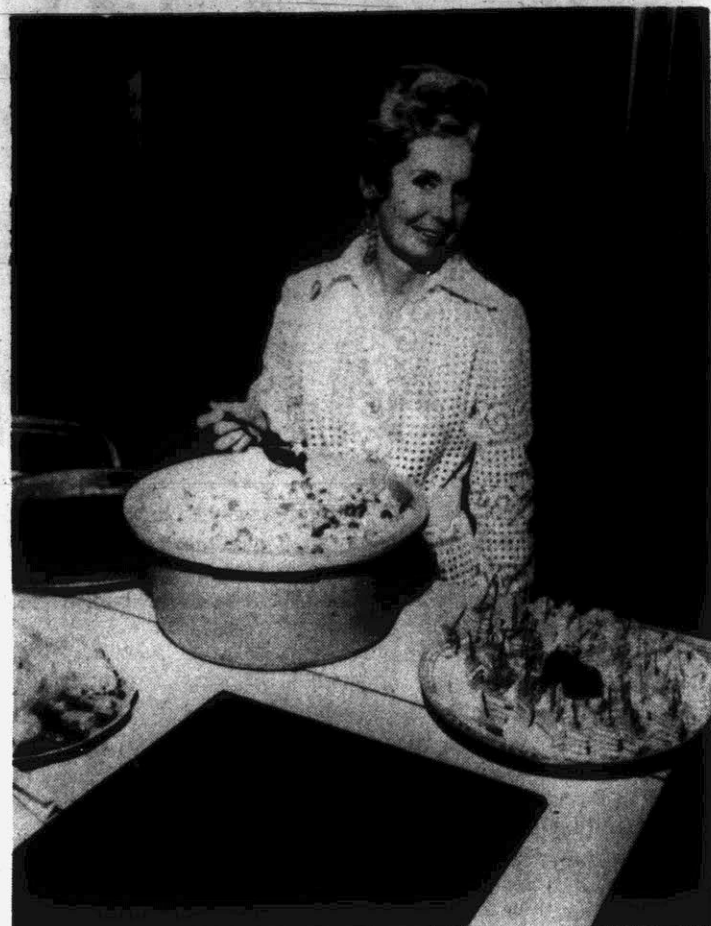

Buffet

A few days ago the McGoverns played host to 60 VICS (Very Important Contributors) at what was supposed to be a sit-down buffet under a pink tent in the side yard. Remnants of tropical storm Agnes forced those VICS, (who had paid $2,500 for dinner, a gala performance at Constitution Hall and a cast party after) to eat standing or sitting cross-legged on the floor elbow to elbow and knee to knee with such luminaries as Frank Church, Fred Harris and John Tunney, author Kurt Vonnegut who performed at the gala and Shirley McLaine who didn't.

Involved in one of the most exciting campaigns in years, Eleanor McGovern still thinks about her housewifely chores. As she walked through the kitchen before the guests arrived that evening, she noted that the electrician hadn't finished working on the lights. Only half jokingly she said, "The house is falling apart; we have no time to look after these things."

It wasn't too far from the truth, she admitted, that she hadn't been inside the kitchen in six months. Stopping to talk to the caterer, she looked longingly at the chicken salad and said: "I'm so hungry! I haven't eaten since this morning." And she proceeded to try several samples, inquiring about the homemade mayonnaise which is a specialty of the woman who made the food.

Later on, when the Senator

answered a phone call in the kitchen, he paused before the pile of cucumbers and marinated vegetables, took a spoon from the drawer and noted as he took his first bite: "It's really the only time I'll get to eat anything." Asked when he had last eaten, he said, "About three days ago."

According to Paula Locker, who travels with Mrs. McGovern, many a day goes by when there is no time to eat. She recalled her entire food consumption one hectic day was an ice cream cone and then only because the last stop on the schedule was an ice cream parlor.

It's rather ironical that the McGoverns aren't eating well these days. Mrs. McGovern was an authority on nutrition long before it became popular. In an interview several years ago she said, "Shortly after I started to have children, I began reading textbooks on nutrition. It's just been an interest of mine."

Breakfasts

A firm believer in good breakfasts; she thinks it is even more important to have a school breakfast program than a school lunch program. When her children were younger; she always slipped extra nourishment into her cooking: skim milk fortified with dried milk; wheat germ in the pancakes; margarine instead of butter; snacks only of dried fruits; nuts and dry cereal.

Whether George McGovern wins the nomination or not; he and Eleanor are off either to "a game lodge or to Sylvan Lake in South Dakota" after the convention. "If we get nominated, it will be with a lot of people, if we don't, it will be just family," Mrs. McGovern said matter-of-factly.

Hold Last Rites For Patriarch

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — Funeral services for Ecumenical Patriarch Athenagoras were held today before scores of officials representing many nations and the Protestant and Roman Catholic churches.

The election of a new spiritual leader for the 250-million member Eastern Orthodox Church gave the Turkish government increasing concern in the face of protests from the Greek government.

Black-robed Orthodox bishops with flowing white beards chanted the funeral service, presided over by Metropolitan Archbishop Meliton, a member of the patriarchal Holy Synod. Meliton is considered the leading candidate to succeed Athenagoras who died Friday at the age of 86.

The selection of a new patriarch became embroiled in controversy even before Athenagoras was buried.

Ambassador John Tsounis of Greece filed an official protest with Premier Ferit Melen Monday night over conditions set by the Istanbul governor for the election of a new patriarch. Gov. Vefa Poyraz has said that the elections must be held in the presence of a notary public and the outcome be subject to his final approval.

The patriarchate is considered a Turkish institution according to the 1922 Lausanne treaty despite its presence in a Moslem country.

A Foreign Ministry official denied that the Turkish government wanted to intervene in the election for a new patriarch.

Although Turkey's 37 million inhabitants are 99 per cent Moslem, the government does not impose restrictions on any faith.

Indict Seven In Shootout

DURHAM, N. C. (AP) — Seven members of a Durham Motorcycle gang known as the Storm Troopers were indicted by the Durham County Grand Jury today in the June 30 ambush slaying of two members of a Miami, Fla., gang, the Pagans.

The jury returned a total of 21 indictments charging each of the seven with murder in the killing of Lance A. Burger, 32, and Donald D. Scroggs, both of Miami.

In addition the seven were each charged with one count of conspiracy "to ambush, waylay and assault and injure and kill" the Floridians.

The seven men being held in the Durham County Jail without bond pending trial are Philip Lee Morris 31, William Gordon Lamm 31, Alton Hugh Mason 21, David Kenneth Winstead 23, William Douglas Johnson 29, Ted Lewis Cash and Red Herndon 35.

Burger and Scroggs were killed and six other persons were wounded in the shootout on Interstate 85 five miles north of Durham. Sheriff Marvin A. Davis has said he believed Storm Troopers' resentment over a stolen motorcycle caused the ambush and shooting.

Gift To ECU Is Gift To Area

The gift presented by Wilber Hardee, president of Little Mint, Inc., has met the goal for construction of a planetarium on the ECU campus.

Mr. Hardee last week gave 8,500 shares of Little Mint stock to the ECU Foundation. The stock at current market value has a worth of approximately $60,000.

The dream of a planetarium here was kindled by the donation of $100,000 by American Credit Co. to East Carolina contingent upon the ECU Foundation raising $200,000.

The gift was made at the time of the total sun eclipse in March, 1970 and since that time efforts had been underway to raise the additional funds.

Maverick Has Sharp Words

By BRYAN HAISLIP
CONCORD, N.C. — The maverick of the North Carolina Republican Party is kicking over the traces again.

James C. Johnson Jr., the outspoken and colorful GOP state legislator from Cabarrus County, said the party is trotting down a familiar track towards another defeat in the fall general election.

While the chiefs are saying the '72 chances are better than ever, Johnson said the party is trying to sell the same line of goods voters haven't been buying for 70 years.

As things look in July, he rated the prospects no better than 60-40 for Jim Holsouser against Democrat Hargrave (Skipper) Bowles for governor. He predicted Nick Galifianakis the Democratic candidate for U.S. Senate, will win handily over Jesse Helms, the GOP nominee.

Moreover, continued Johnson, without Gov. George Wallace of Alabama on a third party ticket President Nixon isn't likely to carry North Carolina again as he did in 1968.

Positive Image Needed

"There is an opportunity for Republicans this fall. If we capitalize on it between now and November we have to reverse our negative image and project positive programs," Johnson insisted.

Tar Heel voters today are too sophisticated to be wooed by platitudes and won by criticism of what the Democrats have done, he argued. They must be attracted by an affirmative Republican stand to do things better, he said.

He's out of step with the party and the party's out of step with the people, Johnson said.

North Carolina Republicans have taken a turn to the right at a time when the trend is to the moderate middle ground, he said. The party's state ticket leaders are of an ultra-conservative stripe consistently rejected at the polls, he contended.

Candidates Too Conservative?

Holsouser is "far more conservative" than Jim Gardner of Rocky Mount, the man he beat for the gubernatorial nomination, Johnson said.

Helms a switch-over from the Democrats and a Raleigh broadcast executive by self definition is an arch conservative, Johnson added.

"Conservative candidates such as I, Beverly Lake, Barry Goldwater and George Wallace have never won a statewide election in North Carolina," he observed.

Being on the outs with party leadership isn't new for Johnson, a 37-year-old attorney and former domestic relations court judge. During his three terms in the legislature he often bucked the party line, and he has been a persistent critic of the party's direction.

He has maintained that Republicans are saddled with an old guard leadership, while the barn door has been shut in the face of the younger, more moderate element such as himself. He fell from grace for refusings to go along quietly, he said.

Maverick Label Applied

"It got to the point where I was constantly under pressure to put party consideration over my own judgment," he said. "The started sticking the 'maverick' label on me. It has been a source of irritation for four years."

Some might think they detect a taste of sour grapes in Johnson's current observations. He was the loser in the U.S. Senate primary which gave the nomination to Helms.

Not so, he asserted. He came out of the race, he said, without rancor and still a Republican.

He assessed his loss in terms of a lack of financing and the fact that party leadership went with Helms. "Four years ago, I was one of the few legislators to support the 'old guard' candidate for governor. They seemed to forget that this time around," he said.

They experience did move him to a decision to restrict his political activity. "I will not in the future be a candidate but will devote more time to my family and business," he said.

He's not ready to say how he'll cast his personal vote in November. "I'm going to wait and see what the candidates offer," he explained. "My obligation as a citizen is not to vote my registration but for the man I feel will do the best job. I think most North Carolinians feel the same way."

He'll stay a Republican. He'll remain vocal.

"I speak it. Many Republicans think of it. It may have cost me my political career, but if I did not speak out I would burst," he said.

Now the dream is set to become a reality with the donation by Mr. Hardee, which meets the goal.

In many ways Wilber Hardee's rise as a successful businessman parallels that of the unprecedented growth of East Carolina University. He was building his enterprises while ECU was growing from a small teachers college to a major university. Thus it is especially gratifying that he has made a generous contribution to the institution.

Others also deserve credit for bringing the new planetarium so near to reality, including Sen. Herman Moore of Charlotte, and many who have contributed.

The planetarium will be of great benefit to our university and our area as an educational facility. We can foresee that it will be used in college level courses and also by school children and the general public.

It is the result of hard work and the generosity of a number of people, capped off by the Hardee gift.

Disruptors Have Real Problem Come August

The forces of violence and demonstration are only partially mobilized at Miami Beach this week. Their presence is token; their message is one of good spirits and cooperativeness with the Establishment.

It is widely reported, however, that in August they intend to display their talents that made Chicago 1968 a nightmare for the Democrats. In 1972, it's said, the Republicans will feel their wrath.

They have their work cut out for them. The causeways leading from Miami to Miami Beach should be easily closed to the invading mob; and unless the disruptors come prepared for an amphibious assault, they can be quite easily kept a respectable distance from the convention site.

Malfunctioned On Compromise

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
MIAMI BEACH — Sen. McGovern's campaign organization malfunctioned in high-level backroom politics again last week when it wisely decided on a desperate last effort to compromise the Chicago delegate mess but then did precious little to follow up the decision.

Although McGovernite delegates danced in the aisles when the credentials committee unseated Mayor Richard J. Daley and 58 other regular Chicago delegates, no hurrahs sounded from upper levels of the McGovern organization. Thoughtful McGovern advisers, contradicting notions of the New Politics, feared alienating Daley would lose Illinois—and the election—in November.

What's more, some McGovern advisers believe sending Frank Mankiewicz two weeks ago to negotiate a compromise with Daley was a blunder: for all his talents, Mankiewicz is not the old pol who might move Daley. But other top McGovern staffers have even less rapport than Mankiewicz with big city regulars.

So, McGovern advisers looked to his one prominent supporter with sufficient finesse and prestige to try bargaining with Daley: Gov. Patrick J. Lucey of Wisconsin. Indeed, Lucey has been a valuable backstage troubleshooter for McGovern the past month and has good contacts in Chicago with both regulars and reformers. One memorandum advised McGovern to dispatch Lucey to Chicago immediately, and Lucey was ready to go Wednesday or Thursday—in time to possibly avert disaster. But, incredibly, no marching orders had come by Thursday evening with Lucey prepared to leave for the Miami Beach convention Friday morning.

McGovern operatives last week were prodding leaders of the anti-Daley reform delegation. Alderman William Singer and the Rev. Jesse Jackson, to compromise. But they responded Daley had to give ground first.

And, with Lucey's mission still-born, there has been no McGovern contact with Daley as this is written. Meanwhile, the embittered Daley organization's mood has hardened against McGovern and the reformers. One Daley lieutenant reported to us that 35 of the 59 ousted regular delegates will not sit on the some convention floor with the reformers as part of a compromise.

The Anti-McGovern Coalition Agents of Gov. George C. Wallace collaborated with other Presidential candidates against Sen. McGovern's impending nomination the past two weeks but failed utterly in a grandiose scheme to build an anti-McGovern coalition around Wallace.

Charles Snider, Wallace's national campaign manager, and Gerald Wallace, the governor's brother, paid visits to all other candidates except McGovern. Of them, only Sen. Edmund Muskie was reluctant to join in anti-McGovern tactics because it might spill blood at Miami Beach. "Better we spill a little blood now than in November," commented Snider.

Wallace's operatives did not overtly promote Wallace as the coalition's rallying point but came close. "We're dead in the water," said Gerald Wallace at one meeting. "What we need is a headline. We've got to get some momentum up—now." His idea: all candidates should visit Wallace's hospital room June 30 for a

Strength For Today

THE WORDS WILL STAND FOREVER

Jesus declared that although heaven and earth would pass away his words would never pass away.

Think how utterly absurd this statement must have sounded to the people who first heard it. Here was an unknown, unofficial person in a remote corner of the world, member of a subject nation, declaring that his words would outlast heaven and earth. We can imagine a Roman soldier throwing back his head and laughing uproariously at such a statement. But where are the legions of Rome today? The high priest of Israel would have smiled cynically at such a statement. Yet within forty years after the death of Jesus the high priest and thousands of other persons in Jerusalem were hearded into the slave pens of Rome and sold on the auction block.

We have had only two thousand years in which to judge the validity of our Lord's statement that although heaven and earth would pass away his words would never pass away. But all indications at the present time are that on that occasion he was speaking the solemn truth. He had a brief three-year ministry. He was executed on a Judean hill. But time has been dated from his birth. Today even non-Christians confess that he was the wisest man that ever lived.

Capitol Saved For Now

It is not often in our town — perhaps especially in our town — that anybody beats City Hall. We are ordinarily captives of custom and precedent, and one such tradition is that on Capitol Hill, what the big Mules Want, the Big Mules get.

But on June 28 a notable event occurred. Under the urging of a little-known congressman from upstate New York, Samuel S. Stratton, former Mayor of Schenectady, the House rebelled against its leadership on the matter of a major extension of the Capitol building. For the time being, at least, this misguided project is suspended. Stratton, perhaps to his own amazement, has licked City Hall.

The upset victory would not have been possible, of course, if South Carolina's able and underestimated Ernest F. Hollings had not already won a key battle in the Senate. In an adroit maneuver, Hollings succeeded in nailing a blocking amendment to the legislative branch appropriations bill. His amendment provided that no funds could be spent either for final plans or for the initiation of construction "until specifically approved and appropriated therefor by the Congress." The question on the House side was whether the Hollings ban would survive.

Pulling the other way, against Hollings and Stratton, were all the top members of the Big Team. On the Senate side, the extension project had the support of Vice President Agnew, Majority Leader Mansfield and Minority Leader Scott. In the House, proponents included Speaker Albert, Majority Leader Boggs, Minority Leader Ford, and such barely less impressive potentates as Mahon, Poage, Patman, Hollifield, Hays, Staggers, Blatnick, Colmer, and Mills. These gentlemen hold the power to bind the loose, and 99 times out of a hundred their wishes prevail.

But on the 28th, when they called the roll up yonder, it was 197 for Stratton-Hollings and only 181 for the Big Mules. The majestic west front of the U.S. Capitol will be preserved. It will not be destroyed, transplanted, expanded and prettified with picture windows — not for a while, anyhow. At least $30 million, and more likely $50 million, will not be spent. Where Hollings comes from, such a triumph is known as a great day in the mawmin'.

The leadership richly deserved the rebuke. Its conduct was arrogant as its case was weak.

The controversy began some seven or eight years ago, when we first began to hear stories that the west front — the side that looks down the Mall toward the White House — was crumbling and "in danger of toppling." In the course of time the stories proved, if not wholly false, at least vastly overblown. The old wall indeed has cracked, but competent engineers say it can be restored and made permanently secure for perhaps $15 to $20 million.

The Jericho threats and warnings provided a brassy cover-up for elaborate plans then hatched by the leadership. In the name of

To The Editor

I feel compelled to offer a differing opinion of 'Fiddler.' Mr. Raynor appears so biased in certain areas that one gets the feeling he is much more interested in renewing acquaintances with several actors who have appeared with the theater previously, than he is in giving an unbiased opinion of the play as acted on July 5.

As opening nights usually do, this one began a bit slowly, but after the first fifteen minutes became thoroughly entertaining. Mr. Brinkley did an outstanding job as Teyve. There may have been a small problem, at times, with the audience's understanding of Jewish humor. However, the dairyman's discussions with God prompted me to laugh, out loud on numerous occasions. Miss Heit was quite adequate in her role, as she always is—but I certainly would hesitate to say that she "makes each moment her own in a wonderful way." Miss Hardy is the only other member of the cast worthy of mention, and she couldn't have been more "the matchmaker." As for the remaining actors, they were not bad, but definitely secondary.

As for the music, it was quite well done. However, it appeared to my ear to have much more of a hearty Russian flavor than what we, today, consider Oriental.

The play is well worth seeing; however, I do believe Mr. Raynor could have done a better job of covering it.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Ben Gardner

Prime Rate Said Poor Indicator

By LINDA RUBEY
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The prime lending rate, now going up, is generally overblown as an economic indicator or influence, bank economists say.

The prime rate is the interest banks charge on loans to their best corporate customers and it is always lower than the rate for longer and smaller consumer loans.

The prime rate, they say, really only confirms the trend of other rates involving much more money. And the current increase, they add, isn't likely to affect the economy or consumers' pocketbooks.

"The drama tied to changes in the prime rate has been really overplayed," says Leif H. Olsen, senior vice president and economist at New York's First National City Bank, whose own prime rate is now one of the highest in the country. "The prime rate by itself is just not that significant."

The prime rate grew to be closely watched in years past because it was changed fairly infrequently and the changes were direct decisions of bankers who presumably had tested the economic winds. But changes have come more frequently in recent years and some banks have even adopted "floating" rates which can adjust themselves automatically every week through formulas pegged to other interest rates.

First National City was the first to adopt a floating rate last year and its rate has signaled every more widespread change in the rate since then. It led banks in boosting the rate to 5 1/2 per cent last month and while other banks were still catching up, moved on to 5 3/4 per cent.

Pittsburgh's Mellon National Bank & Trust Co., which recently adopted a floating rate and moved with Citibank to 5 1/2 per cent, boosted its rate to 5 3/4 per cent starting this week. Bankers say other bigger banks will probably match that level before long.

The rate had bottomed out at many banks earlier this year at 4 1/2 per cent after generally declining from a record peak of 8 1/2 per cent in mid-1969.

"It is normal for the prime rate to rise in a healthy economy when credit demand from business, consumers and the government is strong, and that's what we're seeing now," says Olsen. "But what is really more significant is the rise in rates in the open market or short term rates because a much larger amount of credit is affected there."

The prime rate is of course a key rate to business borrowers, who have to consider the cost of

Always Losing Socks

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Some people on rainy afternoons like to go to the bank, take out their safe-deposit boxes and count their stocks and bonds. They come home pleased that nothing is missing.

I'd like to be able to do be able to do that with my socks. In fact, for some time I've been thinking of doing just that—renting a safe-deposit box at the bank to keep my supply of socks intact.

The only reason I don't rent the safe-deposit box is that I don't trust banks that much. I don't think they can build a bank vault big enough or strong enough to keep out the mysterious predator who has been preying on my socks for as long as I can remember.

The problem of vanishing socks has been bothering me since early childhood. As the sleepest of four staircase Irish sons, I was the last to get up—usually to find only one stock remaining to put on.

The culprit who made off with the missing sock was never apprehended, and the whole matter is a family mystery to this day. My older brother stoutly denies that he put on three socks just to confuse me. In any case I was known in the neighborhood as "Little One Sock," a nickname I came to despise.

One of the reasons I was glad to grow up and get a college degree was my thought that no one would dare try to steal socks from anyone that educated. But that proved to be an illusion.

Since then, through a major depression, a world war, a long boom, innumerable riots, and travel in some 67 countries, someone or something has been rustling my socks. I believe this is a world record of some kind. Do you know any other Members of the Board of County Commissioners were occupied with consideration of a budget here today and indications were that the session would continue until late in the afternoon. The tax rate last year was reduced over forty cents in keeping with action by the legislature of taking over operation of the six months school term and cutting land taxes fifteen cents.

Playing at the State Theatre this week is "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" with Ralph Bellamy and Marion Nixon.

The annual picnic of Memorial Baptist Sunday School will be held at Public Landing Wednesday afternoon, it was announced yesterday.

Decision To Use Force Is Carefully Weighed

By VERN HAUGLAND
AP Aviation Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Decisions to use force against a hijacker rather than submit to him are carefully weighed in advance, says John H. Shaffer, Federal Aviation Administrator.

The decisions by the air crews in consultation with federal authorities, including the FBI, are balanced against the risks involved before action is taken, he says.

In the case of the two hijackers shot to death aboard their commandeered plane at San Francisco, and the one killed in the attempted hijacking of a 747 at Saigon, the circumstances were carefully weighed and the response was appropriate, Shaffer said in an interview Monday.

"Our strengthened stand against hijacking does not necessarily mean we shoot first," he said.

"We are trying to head off killing. None of us is trying to take unnecessary risks when thinking what we will be able to do with minimum loss of life," he added.

Shaffer said those who would castigate the pilot of the 747 for his actions leading to the fatal shooting of the young hijacker at Saigon should consider the alternative of flying a large planeload of American military personnel into the North Vietnam capital.

As for the over-all hijack-extortion picture, Shaffer found encouragement in what he called steady improvement of security at airports and among airline personnel generally.

He noted that American Airlines, as an example, has ordered 136 advanced types of magnetometer detection devices so sensitive they react not only to ferrous metals but "can check the fillings in your teeth for gold and silver."

Airlines that operate shuttle services—Eastern and Pacific Southwest, particularly—are thorough about inspecting all passengers and baggage and demanding identifications, as ordered by President Nixon last Friday, Shaffer said.

"We have not been completely successful in denying boarding to people who are armed and have hijacking intent," Shaffer said, noting that

(Continued from page 4) serving the tourists, it was proposed to create whole acres of additional space — an auditorium, a cafeteria, other restaurants, galleries of bathrooms, truck platforms, bus loading facilities, suites of hideaway offices and meeting rooms. Preliminary plans went forward. The idea was to confront both chambers with a fait accompli.

Hollings and Stratton had nothing on their side but right. They made the point, reasonably, that the Capitol never was intended to serve as a convention and tourist center. It is a working, functional seat of our legislative branch. Visitors are welcome, but they cannot take the place over. They argued, with telling effect, that a valid need for meeting rooms could be met simply by a reallocation of existing space. They contended, perhaps with some exaggeration, that usable new space under the proponents' plan would come to a staggering $368 a square foot. Finally, they urged considerations of history and aesthetics.

It worked. Firmness, good tempers, and a reasoned case prevailed. The Big Mules probably will haul up their project again — they didn't get to be Big Mules by giving up — but for this much of a victory, the taxpayers owe Hollings and Stratton their thanks.

there have been seven successful hijackings of U.S. flights this year out of 24 attempts.

"But we have been successful in preventing hijacking from becoming a complete extortion," he added.

Of more than a dozen hijackers who collected ransom, all but two later were taken into custody and their loot re-claimed, FAA tallies showed.

For some time I thought the guilty party must be one-footed, as usually he took only one of a pair of socks, but I can't recall that my life has been dogged by any individual hopping along after me on a single foot. Anyway, his modus operandi has changed lately. Now he takes my socks haphazardly—sometimes just one, sometimes both.

The other rainy afternoon I spent a couple of hours inventorying my sock drawer.

It was with some satisfaction that I noted I had 45 matching pairs of socks. I could now wear a fresh change of socks every day for a whole month and a half without having to rush to the laundry. That may not be much of a claim to fame for a man my age, but looky here, smarty, you go and count how many pairs of socks you have in your socks drawer, and I'll bet you wipe that smirk off your face pretty fast.

What gave me some sorrow, however, was to note that in addition to the 45 pairs of socks I had left over seven single unmatched socks.

Some problems a man in this life simply has to face all alone.

Instead, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills' campaign manager, Patrick McGahn, proposed that all candidates greet Wallace on his arrival in Miami Beach July 7. The Wallace representatives reluctantly agreed.

Despite failing to put Wallace at its center, his operatives did construct an informal coalition of sorts. Though first reluctant, Mills did confer on convention tactics with Muskie over the telephone and with Sen. Hubert Humphrey on Capitol Hill.

During a June 28 meeting in Mills' office where Wallace's representatives were urging him to build an anti-McGovern coalition, Rep. Bill Alexander of Arkansas entered with preliminary results of a poll showing that Democratic Congressmen by almost 3-to-1 believe McGovern's nomination could end Democratic control of the House.

"Something has to be done," said Mills, who then finally agreed to the Wallaceites' request to ask Muskie to cooperate against McGovern. While not joining the coalition or publicly backing the challenge against McGovern's California delegates, Muskie did privately tell Mills he approved of the credentials committee's California vote.

A footnote: During his conversation with the Wallaceites, Mills declared that if the convention goes four ballots, "I figure Ted Kennedy will be the nominee." The Wallace operatives rolled their eyes a little before Gerald Wallace spoke: "That's been in the

Urge Delay In Bugging Trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Committee for the Re-election of the President is worried that a hearing on a suit involving the break-in and bugging attempt at Democratic headquarters here could cause "incalculable" damage to President Nixon's campaign.

For this reason, the committee asked U.S. District Court Monday to postpone the hearing on a $1 million damage suit against the committee until after the Nov. 7 election.

The suit was filed by Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien after it was revealed that one of the five men arrested in the May 15 break-in was James W. McCord Jr., the security coordinator for the re-election committee.

However, to hear the suit before the election, the committee said, could deter campaign workers and contributions, force disclosure of confidential campaign information and provide the Democrats with a reason to hold news conferences.

The concern expressed to the court contrasted with a statement by former Nixon campaign manager John N. Mitchell, who earlier had said the Democrats' suit was a "political stunt."

The suit claimed damages on grounds that the break-in interfered with rights of all Democrats. The five men allegedly were arrested inside the Democratic headquarters and were charged with burglary. Police also seized a quantity of electronic bugging equipment.

Kenneth W. Parkinson, attorney for the re-election committee, told the court that hearings prior to the Nov. 7 election would "allow Mr. O'Brien and the Democratic National Committee to utilize this lawsuit as a forum from which to accuse this committee of complicity in criminal conduct throughout the election campaign."

He denied the committee was involved in the break-in. But he said repeated mention of the "coincidental employment" of McCord by the committee would be particularly damaging.

Arrest Four In Drug Raid

Greenville Police, Alcoholic Beverage Control officers and members of the Pitt County Sheriff's Department yesterday arrested four men on charges of possessing heroin and marijuana following a raid on a Conley Street home.

The four men charged with possessing the illegal substances, according to Chief Glenn Cannon, were Jessie Junior Roberts, 23, of 412 Darden Dr.; Jasper Earl Carney, 25, of 1803A Conley St.; Elbert Lee Daniels, 23, of 1010 Pennsylvania Ave.; and Arthur Lee Woodard, 24, of 1803A Conley St.

A motion recommending that the city authorize the issuance of a building permit for the construction of a Kwik-Pik food store on Cotanche Street was approved Monday night by the Redevelopment Commission.

Collice Moore of Wheelless & Moore Inc., who owns the proposed site on the corner of Third and Cotanche Streets, told the commission that he negotiated a lease agreement with Kwik-Pik Markets of Henderson for use of the land.

The commission's role in the matter, it was explained, is advisory and a recommendation can only be made to the city that the permit be issued. Joe Laney, executive director, pointed out that the construction of the food store and self-service gas pumps is within the guidelines of the zoning regulations for the property.

Moore, who noted that Kwik-Pik has some 110 units in operation, said that the corporation cited the access of the northwest corner location as one of the main reasons for seeking the site as a store location.

He added that an attendant would be on duty whenever the gas pumps are in operation and the pumps would be closed at the same time the Kwik-Pik closes for the night. The attendant operates the pumps from a control point inside the store, Moore said.

Parking for the Kwik-Pik would be in front of the structure and additional spaces would be available on the Third Street side of the building. It would face Cotanche Street.

The property, which is zoned "Downtown Commercial Fringe," is currently being used as a parking lot. Zoning regulations permit the construction of a grocery store and service station in areas designated DCF.

Kwik-Pik Markets was granted a special use permit by the Greenville Board of Adjustments in June.

In other business, real estate officer Kirby Boyd reported that two parcels have been acquired in the Central Business District since last month's meeting. The BP Service Station on Greene Street has been purchased, he said, and also the severance on Georgetown Shoppes needed for the loop road construction has been secured.

Boyd said that he has been in touch with a marketing analyst in Atlanta and approval was needed from the commissioners to negotiate a contract with the analyst for a Land Use and Market Ability Study. Approval was given and the study will be made following a contract agreement.

Legion Rolls To Big Victory Over Sr. Babe Ruth All-Stars

Greenville's American Legion baseball team rolled to a 15-5 victory over the Senior Babe Ruth All-Stars in an exhibition game last night at Guy Smith Stadium.

Greenville pushed ahead in the first inning, scoring a run. Robert Brinkley singled and Robbie Cox reached on an error. A passed ball then scored Brinkley for a 1-0 Legion lead.

In the second, they added another run. Randy McKinney singled to center and John Barwick got a double up the left-center alley. That brought McKinney around for a 2-0 lead.

In the third, the Babe Ruth All-Stars finally broke the ice, getting a run. Johnnie Willis walked and stole second. A passed ball let him move to third and he scored when the ball was errored on the attempt to get him.

In the bottom of the third, however, the Legion came up with four runs to take a 6-1 lead. Stanley Cobb walked and Duncan Charlton singled to left. Bill Lee reached on a bunt single, loading them up. McKinney then singled, driving in both Cobb and Charlton. Barwick singled to drive in both Lee and McKinney.

They added seven more in the fourth, wrapping it up. Cox singled and stole second. He took third on a wild pitch and Phil Blount walked. The two worked the double steal, scoring Cox. Cobb also walked and Charlton singled to load the bases. Lee got a hit, driving in Blount and Cobb. McKinney followed with a two-run triple, and Barwick walked. Another double steal scored McKinney, and Locke Conrad singled to drive in Barwick.

Greenville picked up one more in the sixth and another in the seventh to finish off the scoring. The All-Stars got three runs in the fifth and one in the sixth to complete their scoring.

Lee and McKinney each had three hits to lead the Legion. (Continued on page 8)

Grace Captures Jaycees Get Church Victory Tournament Win

Grace captured an 8-2 victory over Presbyterian last night to stick close to National Church League leader Black Jack, but a 7-5 loss by Immanuel to Meadowbrook seriously hurt their title chances.

In the other games last night, Oakmont downed First Christian, 10-6, and Mt. Pleasant beat St. Gabriel's, 13-9.

In the first game, at Evans Field, Grace pushed over two runs in the first to take the lead. Presbyterian came back with one in the fourth and one in the fifth to tie it up.

Then, in the bottom of the fifth, Grace got two more to push back ahead, this time for good. K. Smith reached on a fielder's choice and R. Jones singled. R. Coggins doubled and B. Peede singled driving in Smith and Jones to give Grace a 4-2 lead.

They added four more in the sixth to wrap up the victory. In the second game, Meadowbrook pushed into the lead with three in the second, but Immanuel came up with four in the third to take a 4-3 lead. Meadowbrook came right back to tie it up, and then moved ahead in the fourth, 5-4.

What proved to be the winning run came in the fifth. C. Powell tripled and W. Nelson brought him home with a single.

Meadowbrook added one more in the sixth, while Immanuel got its final run in the seventh.

In the first game at Guy Smith, Mt. Pleasant pushed over four runs in the first, grabbing the lead. St. Gabriel came up with three in the second and then got three more in the third to move ahead, 6-4.

Mt. Pleasant came up with three more in the fourth, but St. Gabriel got three to home a 9-7 lead.

Then, in the sixth, Mt. Pleasant scored four times to take the lead and hold it. Joey Moore reached on an error and Ruel Stancil singled. Harold Barnes loaded them up with a walk and Poe Worthington homered for a 11-9 lead. Mt. Pleasant added two more in the seventh for their 13-run total.

In the final game Oakmont pushed over five in the first inning to take the lead, while Christian got one in the bottom of the inning.

In the second frame, Oakmont added four more to put the game out of reach. Danny Singleton doubled and scored on a two-bagger by Bobby Hall. Don Parrot walked and Red Cheely doubled in both runners. Pete Carraway singled and John Cheek reached on an error, scoring Cheely with the ninth Oakmont run.

They added one more in the seventh on a homer by Cheely. Christian got five more in the fifth with Sheron Bennett and Roger Riddick both getting homers.

Louisburg College knocked the East Carolina University Pirates off for the second straight night last night, downing the Bucs, 5-2, in an N.C. Summer Collegiate League game.

Louisburg struck for two runs in the first inning and then came back with three more in the sixth to take a 5-0 lead before the Pirates finally got on the board.

Mike Edwards, a former Kinston High School hurler, got the victory for Louisburg, bringing the Hurricane record to 11-9. East Carolina dropped its record to 13-7 for the year, and the loss was hung on Tommy Toms.

The Pirates got only seven scattered hits off Edwards, and just couldn't get men in scoring position very often. Louisburg made only two other threats in the game, scoring on half its opportunities.

In the first inning, they pushed over two to take the lead. Don Hatcher led off with a single and Mike Wilkerson followed that up with a drive into center. Wayne Ellington hit one back to first that was errored, loading the bases. A wild pitch then brought in Hatcher and Lynn Ethridge singled to bring Wilkerson over with the second run.

The Bucs did manage to put it together there, however, and retire the side without any more damage.

Louisburg didn't get another runner until the fourth when Townie Townsend reached on a fielder's choice. He stole second and moved to third when Sherwood Driver reached on an error, but again the Bucs were able to stop them.

Then, in the sixth, Louisburg cashed in, getting three more to end the scoring for them. Wayne Pyrtle led off with a single and Etheridge got another hit. Townsend attempted to sacrifice them up, but when Toms fielded his bunt, there was no one at first to throw to, and all hands were safe. Driver followed that up with a single, scoring both Pyrtle and Etheridge. The Bucs came up with two outs after that and then walked Don Hatcher to load the bases. Wilkerson hit back to Bradshaw behind second base, but he couldn't get the ball out in time to make a play anywhere, as Townsend scored. Driver kept coming to, but by then, Bradshaw had found the handle and fired home to nail Driver easily.

The Hurricanes had one more man to reach second base, in the seventh. Pyrtle doubled, but when Etheridge hit back to the mound, Pyrtle was caught off second and put out.

East Carolina had its troubles early in the game. Twice, in the first and third, double plays ended their hopes. In the third, Toms had led off with a hit and Bradshaw had walked before the twin killing ended the frame.

The next chance the Bucs had was in the sixth when Toms was hit by a pitch and moved to second on an out, only to die there.

Finally, in the seventh, the Bucs got their first run. That came when Larry Walters lofted a ball far out of Harrington Field in right center, some 385 feet from home. It was his fourth homer of the year.

The Bucs came up with the other run in the eighth. With one down, Bradshaw doubled and scored when Jimmy Paige singled. But the rally ended there and Louisburg hung on for the win.

The Bucs travel to Chapel Hill tonight to meet North Carolina, then return home Thursday to face Wilmington. That will be Ladies Night, sponsored by Brody's. Tickets for ladies are available at both of that store's locations.

Babe Ruth Stars Capture Opening Win

NEW BERN — Greenville's Babe Ruth All-Stars advanced into the winners bracket in the Babe Ruth District Tournament yesterday with a 2-1 victory over Cartaret County.

The 13-year-old stars, however, fell, 6-3, to Cartaret County and dropped into the losers bracket.

In the other games, Pitt County's 13-year-olds lost to New Bern, 4-3, and will meet Greenville in the losers' bracket game on Wednesday. New Bern advanced to face Havelock, while Cartaret takes on Seymour Johnson in games today.

Pitt County's All-Star team also fell, 7-1, to New Bern, and now meets Cartaret in the losers' bracket. Havelock and New Bern clash in one winners' bracket game, while Seymour Johnson and Greenville meet in the other.

In the 13-year-old game, Cartaret pushed into the lead in the first inning and never lost it.

Dean Barrow led off with a walk and moved up on an out. He scored when Mike Pagano singled.

In the second, Cartaret County came up with five more runs to put the game on ice with a 6-0 lead. With one down, Jerry Pittman reached on an error and Bobby Rawls singled. Both moved up on a passed ball and Dean Barrow singled to score Pittman and Rawls. Barrow took second on an error and moved on to third on a passed ball. Doug Henderson walked and Pagano doubled to drive in both runners. Billy Pittman then singled in Pagano with the final Cartaret run.

Cartaret offered only two more threats the rest of the way. In the fourth, Barrow walked and took second on a wild pitch, going to third on a fielder's choice. Then, in the sixth, Rawls reached on a fielder's choice, Donald Jones singled and both moved up on a passed ball. Rawls was cut down trying to make it home on Barrow's grounder, and a walk to Doug Henderson left the bases loaded as the inning ended.

Greenville had a chance to score in the first, but couldn't. With two outs, Mark Conway singled and Joey Cherry followed with a hit. A passed ball moved both up, but they died there.

The next threat came in the third. Billy Ellington walked and stole second. He gained third on an error, but was thrown out trying to make it home.

Greenville finally scored in the fourth. Henry Baker singled and came home on Jay Chenier's triple.

Another threat came in the fifth when Ellington singled and stole second, but got no further.

The last two came in the seventh. Guy Bradbury singled and Greg Lassiter walked. Sid Ashby reached on a fielder's choice and Ellington singled in both runners. The rally died there, however, and with it, Greenville's chances.

In the other Greenville-Cartaret game, Cartaret moved into the lead in the bottom of the first. Leadoff hitter Dalmon Lawrence cracked out a home-run, giving them a 1-0 lead.

But except for one chance in the sixth, it was the last time a Cartaret County runner got past first base. In the sixth, Joe Keeter doubled and moved to third on Jeff Shepard's single. Jay Garner walked, leading them up, but a strikeout and a popup ended the threat.

Greenville tied it up with one in the second. Curtis Lee walked and so did Bobby Dough. Lee stole third and was sacrificed home by Jack Jenkins, making it 1-1.

The Greenville All-Stars got a threat in the third, but couldn't make it pay off. Wesley Deal reached on a fielder's choice and stole second. Gil Whitford and Kelly Heath both walked, leading them up, but a fielder's choice ended the inning.

The winning run came over in the fourth inning. Jenkins singled and stole second. Griff Garner reached on an error, and that brought Jenkins around with the winning run. Greenville got off one more threat, in the fifth. Kiekie Johnson walked and stole both second and third before finally getting caught at it, trying for home.

Greenville got only two hits off Shepard in the game, but they proved to be enough.

The All-Stars return to action tonight at 9 p.m., while the 13-year-olds don't play again until Wednesday.

Does Perry Still Dig That Greasy Kid Stuff

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer
The rest of the nation may be into the "dry look," but as far as Chicago Manager Chuck Tanner is concerned, Gaylord Perry of the Cleveland Indians still digs greasy kid stuff.

"Listen, I respect any manager who's trying to win—and that's what Tanner is trying to do," Perry said after spinning a four-hitter for his 14th victory of the season, a 2-1 triumph over the White Sox Monday night which Tanner protested.

In other American League games, Kansas City edged Baltimore 3-2, Detroit defeated Texas 8-3, Minnesota blitzed Milwaukee 8-1, California nipped the New York Yankees 4-3 and Boston beat Oakland 4-2.

In the abbreviated National League schedule, San Francisco turned back the New York Mets 5-4, Montreal beat San Diego 6-3 and, in a twin-night doubleheader, Los Angeles beat Philadelphia 6-4 in 11 innings before the Phillies won the nightcap 9-1.

Perry, who tied Detroit's Mickey Lolich as the winningest pitcher in the majors this season—with a little help from Mickey's cousin, Ron—has never admitted to putting anything on the baseball except spit.

At one time or another, an awful lot of batters have said Perry's pitches have more spit than spin—or some other illegal substance. Tanner insists it's grease. And he was so sure of it Monday night that, after 2½ innings, he told plate umpire Bill Haller he was playing the game under protest.

"That's Tanner's privilege to protest if he wants, and that's what I told him on the field," Haller explained. "It's a matter of judgment—and in my judgment, Perry wasn't doing anything illegal."

But Tanner had different ideas. "If we don't win the protest," he fumed, "Perry will be allowed to use his grease ball all the time. And if he is, everybody else will be allowed to do the same. There'll be a rush on the market for the jelly he uses."

Graig Nettles' sacrifice fly gave the Indians their first run in the first inning, then Ron Lolich provided what proved to be the winner in the fourth with his first major league home run. The White Sox picked up an unearned run in the sixth.

Rookie Texas pitcher Don Stanhouse couldn't believe what happened to him. The Tigers, en route to taking over sole possession of first place in the East, pounded him for seven of their eight runs in the first three innings.

Was he that bad or was Detroit that good, someone asked. "I don't know," Stanhouse said, shaking his head in disbelief. "I just don't know."

Norm Cash belted two home runs and Jim Northrup added one for the Tigers while Don Mincher hit the 200th of his career and Hal King also had one for the Rangers.

Mike Cuellar, cruising along with a four-hitter, was just one out away from helping the Orioles to snap a four-game losing spin. But he yielded a bloop single to Richie Scheinblum, then Lou Piniella crashed his eighth home run of the year to power the Royals to victory.

Bob Darwin slammed the first grand slam of his career—his 10th homer of the season—to lead Minnesota's 12-hit assault against Milwaukee. Jim Perry and Dave LaRoche teamed to scatter seven Brewers hits.

Clyde Wright scattered eight hits while Ken McMullen smacked a homer and Ken Berry added a double and two singles to carry the Angels past the Yanks.

Rico Petrocelli's eighth homer of the year in the eighth inning and Dick Miller's insurance-run single in the ninth catapulted the Red Sox to their 10th victory in 13 games and kept the A's from widening their 5½-game West Division lead over the White Sox.

Bucs Hire New Cage Assistant

Art Tolis, chief recruiter for the Jacksonville University Dolphins, one of the top teams in the nation for the past several years, will join the staff of East Carolina University, it was announced yesterday.

Tolis, a New Britain, Connecticut, native, is rated by ECU basketball coach Tom Quinn as one of the "leading recruiters in the nation."

He will serve as an assistant coach for the Bucs, and will also handle the recruiting duties.

Tolis played basketball for two years at George Washington University, formerly of the Southern Conference, and was an All-Southern selection his sophomore year. He interrupted his career for a tour of duty during the Korean War, and then finished his undergraduate work at Central Connecticut State University.

He earned his masters from George Peabody in Nashville, Tenn.

For six years, Tolis coached at Titusville, Fla., in the high school ranks and then went to Indian River Junior College, also in Florida. While coaching there, he compiled a 92-93 record, and for two years had the leading junior college scoring team in the country.

He went to Jacksonville University in 1970 and among his recruits there were 7-0 Dave Brent, who recently signed a $300,000 pact with the Memphis Pros of the ABA after his sophomore year. He also is credited with the recruitment of this year's "Super Frosh" team of the Dolphins.

"We are basically a senior team," Quinn said of this coming year's Pirates. "If we don't get some good junior college and freshmen recruits this year, we are going to have to start from scratch next year. Art is the kind of super-recruiter we need to really get our program rolling."

Tolis is slated to begin his duties at East Carolina in September.

Pepsi-Cola In Title Victory

Pepsi-Cola, which won the regular season championship, outlasted the Graniters, 8-7, yesterday to win the Tar Heel Little League playoffs.

Pepsi will now meet the Optimists in the first of a best-of-three series for the City Championship. That gets underway this afternoon at 6 p.m. at Elm Street Park.

The Graniters, runners-up to Pepsi during the regular season, scored first, getting two in the top of the first. Kevin Haut reached on an error and Chris Moye on a fielder's choice. Mike Moye also reached on an error, loading the bases. Billy Coltrain walked, forcing in Haut and a walk to Sam Hardy brought in Chris Moye.

In the second, Pepsi came up with a pair to tie it. John Coffman singled and took second on a wild pitch. Danny Carmon reached on an error, but was cut down at second on a fielder's choice on David McClanahan's grounder. A passed ball scored Coffman and Mark Shank walked. MacDonald Avery reached on an error, scoring McClanahan with the tying run.

In the third, four Pepsi runs came over. Michael Shank doubled and Steve McClanahan reached on a fielder's choice. Timmy Eubanks doubled in both runners and he scored on David McClanahan's out after Danny Carmon reached on an error. Mark Shank reached on an error, scoring Carmon with the sixth Pepsi run.

In the fourth, they added another. Steve McClanahan walked and Coffman reached on a fielder's choice. Both advanced on a passed ball and Eubanks singled to score McClanahan.

The Graniters rallied with three in the fifth. Timmy Allen walked and Chris Moye reached on a fielder's choice. Mike Moye walked, loading them up, and Sam Hardee was hit by a pitch, scoring Allen. Passed balls allowed both of the Moyes to come around to cut the lead to 7-5.

They tied it up with two in the sixth. Wayne Stokes walked and Micah Dixon walked. Allen doubled to score Stokes and Dixon scored on an error to make it 7-7.

But Pepsi came back with a run in the bottom of the inning to win it. Michael Shank walked and stole second. He was sacrificed to third by Steve McClanahan, and then scored on a wild pitch to end the game.

Chicod Advances

GRIFTON — Chicod outlasted the Indians of Winterville, 14-12, last night to advance in the Southern Pitt Little League playoffs.

In the other game, the Hornets of Chicod beat the Winterville Giants.

The Indians took a 6-1 lead in the second inning and built that to a 12-1 lead before Chicod came up with four in the fifth and seven in the sixth to tie it up. Adams then hit a two-run homer in the seventh to win it.

He also was the winning pitcher, while Tyson took the loss. Adams led the Chicod hitting with five, including two singles, a double, triple and a homer. Daniels went three-for-four to lead the Indians.

Chicod now meets the winner of the First Citizens-Charles Sobelman game, while the Hornets next face regular season champ Piggly-Wiggly.

Lucchesi Ran Out Of Erasers

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
People make mistakes which, of course, is why they put erasers on the tops of lead pencils. Frank Lucchesi has run out of erasers in Philadelphia and Paul Owens has just scratched the surface of his first one.

Owens, already general manager of the Phillies, replaced Lucchesi as field manager on Monday and then piloted the club to a two-night doubleheader split against Los Angeles, losing the first game 6-4 in 11 innings but taking the nightcap 9-1.

Owens, obviously, is a slow starter. Unfortunately for him, so are the Phillies.

Elsewhere on an abbreviated National League schedule, San Francisco overtook slumping New York 5-4 and Montreal defeated San Diego 6-3 with two Padre players winding up in the hospital. All other NL clubs had the night off.

Lucchesi had admitted at his departing news conference that he would "have to take some of the blame for the team's performance." Owens was quick to do the same thing when the Phillies flopped in their first game under their new skipper.

The score was tied 3-3 in the seventh when Roger Freed singled and moved up on a sacrifice. Owens sent up pinch hitter Joe Lis who singled. Plus one for the new manager. But Freed, no gazelle on the basepaths, was thrown out trying to score. Owens hadn't bothered with a pinch runner. Minus one for the manager.

The Phillies almost got Owens off the hook when Greg Luzinski's RBI single gave them the lead in the eighth but Willie Davis tied it for the Dodgers with a homer in the ninth. Two innings later, LA loaded the bases with none out and broke the tie on Wes Parker's sacrifice fly and an RBI single by Bill Buckner.

Don Money had an early three-run homer for Philadelphia.

Willie Montanez took care of the nightcap, driving in five runs with a single, triple and homer. Woody Fryman tossed a six-hitter for the victory, disturbed only by Manny Mota's eighth-inning homer.

The Mets dropped their fifth game in the last six, bowing to San Francisco and slipping 4½ games behind idle Pittsburgh in the East Division race.

Dave Rader and Willie McCovey had homers for the Giants but it took a two-run single by Chris Speier in the eighth inning to turn the game around. Jim Fregosi, who had a two-run homer for the Mets, had singled home another run in the seventh for a 4-3 New York lead.

He Would Be Happy

By RONALD THOMSON
MURFIELD, Scotland (AP) — "I knew Bobby Jones well," said Jack Nicklaus, "and I like to think he would be very happy if I won the Grand Slam."

That remark from the American favored to win the British Open championship this week bridged a whole era of golf.

The late and much-loved Jones achieved what then was called the Grand Slam in 1930, when he won the amateur and open championships of both the United States and Britain.

His feat stands as one of the supreme acts of competitive golf.

Legion Rolls . . .

Blount, Charlton and Barwick each added two.

For the All-Stars, no one got more than one as pitchers Conrad and Lee Cherry scattered five hits. Cherry went the final three innings, allowing no hits.

Greenville is awaiting the outcome of the Rocky Mountain-Wilson playoff series, and will meet the winner. The Senior Babe Ruth All-Stars open play in the state tournament on Saturday here.

The Worry Clinic Try To Insure A Happy Choice

Rachel succumbed to a puppy love infatuation! For many teenagers fail to realize that you can become intoxicated in a torrid romance more than once. Don't rush into an unwise quickie wedding because you fear you'll never fall in love again!

By George W. Crane
Ph.D., M.D.

Case U-531: Rachel B., aged 23, is a rueful divorcee. "Dr. Crane," she began, "in my senior year of high school, I fell madly in love with a classmate. "And I wrote for your 'Tests for Sweethearts' at that time. "Although my boy friend rated 'Poor,' I felt I could change him after our wedding, so we got married as soon as we had graduated. "But within a year, we were quarreling and living a typical 'cat and dog' existence. "So we obtained a divorce by the time I was 20. "Now I am working as a model in New York, but I'd like to marry again. "However, I want my next husband to rate at least 'Superior' on those 'Sweethearts' Tests. "And I'd like for him to be familiar with some of your sex booklets, too!"

Newspaper Counseling Stress on marriage counseling is now the vogue. Seminars are placing special emphasis on the clergyman's role as a marriage adviser. But the newspaper has been offering you this same medicopsychological counsel for many years. Supplementing the printed page, this progressive daily thus gives you specific rules for picking mates and also for living with them happily through your Golden Wedding day. These booklets are widely used by clergymen and colleges where marriage courses are available to students. But you newspaper readers also have access to them, even if you never attended college. Smart people enshrine their brain as captain and refuse to let their emotions mutiny against 'Captain Brain.' But many inexperienced young people enter into a puppy love affair and then insist on getting married at once. If they are in the teens, 50 per cent of such weddings, will end in divorce, just like Rachel's, before the 5th wedding anniversary. So learn to play the bating averages, which means you should try to insure a permanent HAPPY marriage by means of these rules:

(1) Girls, don't marry till you have finished high school; then taken at least one-year diploma course at Business School, and have worked for a full year. Then you will have far more economic sense for operating your home on a budget.

(2) Men, don't marry till you have received your high school diploma and then acquired sufficient trade school or professional training to bring home an adequate pay check every month.

(3) Don't marry till you have at least 3 months' rent in the bank!

(4) Don't marry unless your prospective mate rates "Superior" or "Very Superior" on the "Sweethearts' Test" mentioned below. For it is folly to marry a

Fire Damage For Carrier

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Just about five years after being crippled by a fire that claimed the lives of 134 officers and men during operations off Vietnam, the aircraft carrier Forrestal has been hit by another major blaze and two minor fires. The Navy said there were no injuries to personnel in the series of fires early Monday. The biggest one broke out about 3 a. m. in the flag officers quarters of the carrier while it was berthed at the Norfolk Naval Station, its home port. Late Monday night, the Navy said there had been no assessment of damage and the cause of the fire remained undetermined. At the time, the Forrestal was taking on supplies preparatory to leaving next Monday for the Mediterranean to relieve the Norfolk-based aircraft carrier John F. Kennedy. There was no immediate indication whether the fire would cause a delay in the Forrestal's departure. One of Monday's smaller fires was caused by a cigarette falling on a mattress, which was dragged outside, a spokesman said. The other was caused by a piece of paper lying on a pilot light on a teletype machine. A sailor working in the area removed the paper.

Trial Of Bremer Is Postponed

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP)—The state trial of Arthur Bremer on charges stemming from the attempted assassination of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace has been postponed until July 31. The trial had been scheduled to begin Wednesday. Judge Ralph Powers of Prince Georges County Circuit Court granted a defense motion Monday for a continuance. The defense argued it needed more time to prepare its case.

The bidding:
South West North East
2 ♠ Pass 2 NT Pass
3 ♥ Pass 6 ♥ Dble.
Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Six of ♦
Altho a penalty double of a slam reached on an aggressive sequence is not recommended where highly useful information may be imparted to declarer in planning his campaign and East is chargeable with indiscreet action in today's auction, he could have redeemed himself during the play by making the correct decision when the crucial moment arose.

South's opening bid of two spades is the so-called "weak two bid" currently in vogue among a number of tournament players. It is a preemptive call based on a good suit, usually of six card length, and less than opening bid strength. North's response of two no trump is a one round force and requests further information. When South showed a second suit by bidding three hearts, North leaped to slam in that suit. East would have been better advised to pass and play for a small profit on the deal. His double did not rate to increase the toll by more than an additional 50 points.

West opened the six of diamonds and the king was played from dummy. South reasoned from East's double that the latter was clearly marked with all four missing trumps and that the only chance to succeed on the deal was to strip out his opponent's hand to set up a favorable end position. Prospects were admittedly not bright, and desperate measures were obviously the order of the day. The ace of diamonds was cashed on which East dropped the queen, as declarer discarded a club. South promptly abandoned the diamonds and played the ace and another club which he ruffed in his hand with the three of hearts. The ace of spades came next, followed by a small spade trumped by dummy. A small club brought forth the king from East and South ruffed with the seven of hearts. Another spade ruff put North in to lead the queen of clubs, at trick nine with the following distribution left:

♥ A 10 6

WEST EAST
♠ Void ♠ K
♥ Void ♥ K J 9 5
♦ J 8 7 6 ♦ Void
♣ J ♣ Void

On the queen of clubs, East pondered momentarily and then ruffed in with the nine of hearts. South overruffed with the queen and trumped a spade with the six of hearts to score his 10th trick as East followed suit with the king. A diamond was led and East ruffed up with the jack of hearts to prevent his opponent from scoring with the eight. The defender was left with the king-five of hearts and was obliged to surrender the last two tricks to dummy's ace-ten. In all, South lost only the one trump trick on the deal. East could have defeated the contract by ruffing up with the king of hearts when the queen of clubs was led from dummy at trick nine. He may then exit with the king of spades and South is unable to prevent the former from scoring a second heart to assure the defense a 100 point profit.

Marine Aircraft Wing Marks 31st Birthday

By L-Cpl James T. Crabtree
Public Information Specialist
CERRY POINT—Members of the 2nd Marine Aircraft Wing here briefly paused Monday in observance of the Wing's 31st birthday, then were back to their work as a force of readiness.

Now commanded by Brigadier General Thomas H. Miller, Jr., the wing was organized on July 10 and commissioned on July 19, 1941 at San Diego, California.

On the fateful day of December 7, 1941, two squadrons were at San Diego and four in Hawaii, with one detachment each at Midway and Wake Islands. The wing lost 47 aircraft at Hawaii and no marine aircraft made it off the ground that day.

The detachment on Wake Island lost seven of their 12 aircraft to Japanese bombers the next day in a surprise attack. At that time the wing's luck began to change. The "Wake Island Adventurers" of Fighter Squadron 211 sent four available aircraft against Japanese task forces with unbelievable results. The marine aircraft sank an enemy cruiser, a submarine and destroyed 12 enemy aircraft. This was December 11 and the island was under constant attack during this period.

Marine Aircraft Group 22 lofted fighters to defend Midway and dive bombers to attack Japanese ships during the Battle of Midway in June 1942. Called the turning point of the Pacific in the war, the U.S. forces won supremacy of the seas there as a result of this large scale air battle.

Christmas 1942 marked the landing of wing elements that helped capture and defend Guadalcanal Island and the Southern Solomon Islands. Moving through the British Solomons, wing elements landed at New Georgia in preparation for the move north beyond Bougainville. One of their triumphs occurred when the 1st Marine Division and 2nd Wing elements landed in the Palau Islands in September 1944. This was the first use of air units in World War II as ground assault forces.

This time wing elements supported attacking second Amphibious Corps elements on Saipan, Tinian, Guam and the Marianas. After 83 combat operations in the Pacific, the 2nd Wing took over occupation duty when the war ended.

On March 6, 1946, the wing returned to the United States with Cherry Point as its home base. In the years before the Korean conflict, the 2nd Wing carried on numerous exercises and participated in flight training operations.

In 1949, due to the heavy influx of jet aircraft to the unit, a jet school was established here to train Wing Marines to fly and maintain the new aircraft.

Activated reservists greatly increased the wing's strength in late 1960 at the outbreak of the Korean conflict. The 2nd Wing served as the training force to prepare pilots, air crews and ground crews as 1st Marine Aircraft Wing replacements for Korea.

After Korea, the wing went into operational and training status, taking part in maneuvers and deploying squadrons to the Mediterranean aboard aircraft carriers.

During the Lebanon crisis in 1958, 2nd Marine Aircraft carried troops and supplies to the Middle East. In the Cuban crisis, photographs taken by photo reconnaissance planes of Main Composite Reconnaissance Squadron 2, a wing unit of the 2nd MAF, convinced U.S. officials of trouble. Later, the 2nd Wing helped in the evacuation of Guantanamo Base, Cuba.

Wing elements have also participated in numerous NATO and joint service exercises, in the Dominican Republic crisis, and in the Peruvian earthquake relief operations.

The wing has provided large numbers of combat ready trained air crews and other air marine personnel to units in Viet Nam.

In the past year, 2nd Wing units operating from aircraft in the Gulf of Tonkin have flown missions over North Vietnam, demonstrating a high degree of skill and airmanship.

"Deep Furrow 71, Blue Az, Versatile Warrior, participation in Exotic Dancer and numerous small deployments have served to provide realistic training under all types of adverse conditions," Brigadier General Miller said. "The sacrifice by Wing Marines and the loyalty and understanding of their loved ones is deeply appreciated," he concluded.

Today the 2nd Marine Aircraft Wing here and its elements at MCASH's New River station and MCALF, Bogue, N.C. and Beaufort, S.C. remain ready to meet the needs of the nation as a force in readiness by providing air support when and where it is needed.

CALIFORNIAN EXULTS—John Burton, a co-chairman of the California delegation pledged to Sen. George McGovern, lets out a yell during the vote early today on the challenge to the credentials committee report which had denied McGovern 151 votes in the race for the Democratic presidential nomination. The convention voted to return the votes to McGovern. (AP Wirephoto)

Brody's . . .

A new sportswear department with stylish fixtures and decorations is planned as well as an enlargement of designers collection clothes.

In addition, he said, a career shop on the store's lower level with price points aimed at the career lady will be included in the downtown store's new interior scheme.

Brody's will also have a new sales and training lounge and new canopy treatments, it was noted, and other areas of the store will undergo various aspects of refurbishing.

Redecorating of the interior is the main objective of the downtown improvement program, it was explained, as well as the incorporation of a new, updated interior decor.

Brody said that the Pitt Plaza improvements are already underway and a late August completion is hoped for. He asserted that the completion of the expansion should make Brody's "one of the largest ladies fashion stores in North Carolina."

Farm Owners Urged Provide Food For Wildlife

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina wildlife officials are concerned that the state's increasing population and dwindling timberland will cut into the habitat and food supply of wildlife. To prevent this, officials are urging farm owners and sportsmen to increase private plantings of materials to provide a bountiful supply of food for small game, deer, wild turkeys and other wildlife.

Stuart Critcher, assistant chief in charge of game lands for the state Wildlife Resources Commission, said the years ahead could pose a problem for wildlife unless private land owners help provide food supplies.

He said North Carolina has two million acres either owned by the state or leased from commercial timber companies, private land owners and federal agencies as public hunting game lands.

About 80 per cent of the wildlife in North Carolina — rabbits, squirrels, quail, dove and other small game — are produced on privately owned lands.

The commission produces and distributes planting materials free of charge. These include shrub lespedeza seedlings, a perennial seed mixture, an annual seed mixture and sericea lespedeza seed.

Ted Mitchell, assistant chief of the game division, estimated it cost the state $120,000 to produce and distribute planting materials this year.

"These materials," he said, "can be grown in field borders and odd corners of farms near wooded areas where wildlife thrive. This type of land usually is not good for ordinary farming needs. In addition to providing food for wildlife, the planting materials help conserve the land and prevent erosion."

Mitchell added, "If a land owner or sportsman is in doubt about what to plant, the commission has nine district biologists throughout the state who will assist and provide this information."

The lespedeza seedlings and seed mixtures are produced on game lands in Caswell County and at the commission's large plant nursery near Hoffman in the Sandhills area.

"If necessary hand labor is available," Mitchell said, "planting shrub lespedeza seedling is the fastest way to establish a productive, permanent game good."

He noted that on sites where a suitable plant can be prepared, the perennial seed mixture will produce a permanent food plot and can be planted with farm machinery and minimum labor.

"The annual seed mixture," Mitchell said, "is designed to provide game food from early fall into the winter months."

Sericea seed are distributed for use in (1) planting turn-row strips between shrub lespedeza field borders and the cropland and (2) for seeding eroded areas and other small plots or land where there is specific need for game cover.

Missing Fliers In North Viet Hands

NEW YORK (AP) — Four recently captured U.S. Air Force captains, previously listed as missing, have delivered filmed messages to their families that they are being treated well by the North Vietnamese and are in good health.

Also seen in the film were a fifth captain seriously wounded, who was silent as he was shown in his hospital bed, and a sixth who gave only the minimal information outlined by the rules governing war.

The film was broadcast Monday on the "CBS Evening News with Walter Cronkite," which obtained it from the Denpa News Agency in Tokyo.

"Dearest Sue," said Capt. Charles Allen Jackson of Littleton, Colo., "the Vietnamese people are very kind in seeing to my injuries and are treating me very well. The bones in my arm should heal and I am in good health. I hope you will encourage others to speak up against this unjust war."

Capt. David Ryan Grant of Chattanooga, Tenn., said, "During my capture I was wounded in the right foot. The treatment has been satisfactory. I feel fine except for the foot. I love you and the boys very much." "Dear Linda," said Capt. David Dingee of Homestead, Fla., "I have been well treated. My health is good. Our shelter and clothes are adequate. Don't worry about me. I love you and the boys very much. I hope to get home to see you soon."

Capt. William David Beekman of Toledo, Ohio, said, "I have had enough food to eat. Please don't worry about me and just take care of yourself. Say hello to Tina and give her my everlasting love. Remember, I love you all and hope to return some day. Take care. All my love, Bill."

A CBS spokesman said the interviews were conducted in Hanoi on June 29. The film narrator said the officers were captured between April and June.

Capt. John Cerak of New Jersey gave only his name, rank, serial number and date of birth. He said he was shot down June 27.

The wounded man filmed at St. Paul's Hospital in Hanoi was identified as Capt. Richard Logan Francis of California. The home towns of Francis and Cerak were unavailable.
