$7.3 Million Operating Budget Approved For City's Utilities

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Members of the Greenville Utilities Commission last night approved a budget for the 1972-1973 fiscal year reflecting proposed expenditures totaling more than $7.3 million for operating expenses and a capital improvements budget earmarking more than $1.5 million for such things as purchase of equipment and construction of new services.

A break-down of the operating expense budget by departments shows that the budget for the water department, totaling $411,088 is an increase of 8.2 per cent over the previous year and includes $122,000 for operation of the plant, $44,000 for operation of the distribution system, $25,000 for maintenance of the distribution system, and $15,000 for maintenance of the plant.

Figures for the sanitary sewer department show the $338,188 budget is an 8.62 per cent increase over the current year, with $95,000 being allocated for operation of the plant, $25,000 for maintenance of the system, $27,000 for operation of the system, and $18,000 for maintenance of the plant among other expenditures.

Highests costs in the budget for the electric department (city) include $3.9 million for purchase of power, $150,000 for operation of the distribution system, $152,000 for office expense, and $67,000 for the operation of the plant.

The total electric department budget — a 16.24 per cent increase over the current year — amounts to $5,256,476.

The electric department (rural) budget, up 13.05 per cent and totaling $439,650, includes expenditures such as $90,000 for operation of the distribution system, $35,000 for maintenance of distribution, and $41,000 for office expense.

The large item in the $930,563 gas department budget is $600,000 for purchase of natural gas.

Other large items in the gas budget, which reflects a 16.08 per cent increase over the 1971-1972 list of expenditures, include $58,000 for operation of the distribution system, $35,000 for operation of plant, $20,000 for maintenance of distribution and $25,000 for administrative costs.

In all, the operations budget reflects an increase of 15.18 per cent over the current year.

Total operating revenue as estimated in the budget totals more than $8.5 million.

Largest items in the proposed $1.5 million-plus capital outlay budget include $148,000 for new rural overhead electric services. $116,900 for new primary electric lines within the city, $137,000 for electric plant and substation construction, $97,000 for rural residential under ground electric service, $88,000 for underground electric service for residential customers within the city, $156,000 for construction of

Alford To Recommend Dismissal

A.G. Cox School Principal Suspended

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Education at their monthly meeting yesterday suspended David Plummer Jr., principal of A. G. Cox Grammar School in Winterville.

According to Superintendent of Schools Arthur Alford, who recommended the suspension, Plummer was suspended for "neglect of duty and insubbordination."

And, Alford added, "I am going to proceed with notifying him of my intent to recommend to the board, his dismissal."

Plummer has been employed by the Pitt school board for the past two years as principal at Cox Grammer School. Prior to that he was employed in Cumberland County.

"He will have the choice of appealing any dismissal first to review panel appointed by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, or may bypass it and appeal directly to the County board of education," Alford explained.

Plummer is a resident of Kinston.

Board members discussed plans for an addition to the AG. Cox Grammar School, subject to the availability of funds.

Cameron Dudley of Dudley and Shoe Architects, Greenville, told the board the base bid of the facility would include eight classrooms, cafetorium kitchen and equipment. Alternate number one would be for two additional classrooms and alternate number two would be for two more classrooms.

Total base bid, including the two alternates, would run approximately $300,000 (does not include site improvement or architectural fees). No action was taken by the board.

A driver training budget for 1972-73, totaling $50,920, was approved by the board.

The program, financed through state funds, would involve about 1,150 students.

Assistant Superintendent J.L. Keeter told the board that the Fountain Development Corporation would like to lease the building formerly used as the Fountain Elementary School for a 10 year-period when its present lease of five years expires in June, 1974.

The facility is leased from the school board by the Fountain

At-A-Glance

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Here, in brief, are the major decisions made Tuesday night and today by the Democratic National Convention in approving the party's 1972 campaign platform.

—Accepted in general the stands proposed by the likely presidential candidate, George McGovern, by calling for immediate withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam, closing of tax loopholes, replacing the welfare system, the income grants and recognition of busing as one means of achieving quality education.

—Rejected pleas by Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and others for an antibusing plank.

—Rejected proposals favoring more liberal abortion policies, nondiscrimination against homosexuals, a constitutional amendment allowing prayer in public schools and authority for states to impose the death penalty.

—Rejected planks for a federally guaranteed $6,500 yearly income for a family of four, a rollback of rents and a government takeover and repair of substandard housing. Also defeated proposals calling for repeal of the income tax code to be replaced by lower rates and personal credits but allowing no deductions.

—Accepted a minority challenge to the Platform Committee's original report calling for allocation of federal surplus land to Indians on a first-priority basis.

Nomination Scheduled For Tonight

McGovern Gets His Desired Platform

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Writer

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Sen. George McGovern, assured of the platform he sought and a first-ballot victory tonight in the Democratic presidential balloting, considered a list of potential running mates today. Aides said he still plans to ask a reluctant Sen. Edward M. Kennedy to join the ticket.

Weary delegates had barely 12 hours off after the longest convention session in the history of either party before tonight's climactic meeting at which McGovern was scheduled to be the first candidate placed into nomination and, when the balloting took place, the party's nominee.

California planned to yield to Connecticut when the states were called for nominations so that Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff could nominate the 49-year-old South Dakota senator to head the Democratic ticket this November.

Speculation turned immediately to possible running mates after the withdrawal of Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey and Edmund S. Muskie on Tuesday assured McGovern's nomination.

Kennedy was clearly his top choice despite repeated statements he is unavailable.

A close personal friend of Kennedy, Sen. John V. Tunney of California, told reporters after talking with him by phone that he thinks it highly unlikely Kennedy would accept. He added he expects Kennedy to fly here from Hyannis Port, Mass., Thursday to appear at the convention with the nominee.

McGovern's aides said that others under consideration include: United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock; Sens. Thomas F. Eagleton of Missouri and Abraham A. Ribicoff of Connecticut and Florida Gov. Reubin Askew.

The Democratic National Convention, meanwhile, stayed in session until 6:22 a.m. EDT in the longest continuous session in history of either party before shouting its approval of a platform that mirrors McGovern's views in calling for total U.S. withdrawal from Indochina and supporting busing to eliminate segregation and to improve educational quality.

Lengthy, roll-call votes beat back proposals to establish a $6,500 guaranteed income for a family of four and to introduce an abortion plank. The delegates voted to add a proposal to grant Indians first priority in allocation of federal surplus lands and strengthen the provision supporting a U.S. military commitment in Europe and the Mediterranean to deter Soviet pressure against Israel.

The Democratic National Convention, meanwhile, headed toward approval of a platform that mirrors McGovern's views in calling for total U.S. withdrawal from Indochina and supporting busing to improve educational opportunities.

By voice vote, the convention shouted down eight proposals, ranging from endorsement of capital punishment and public-school prayers to a constitutional amendment barring busing, despite a plea by Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace.

As the convention deliberated through a second marathon night session Tuesday in a relaxed atmosphere after Monday night's sharp credentials battles, Wallace provided a dramatic highlight with an appeal for far-ranging tax reform and a denunciation of "the senseless asinine busing of little school children."

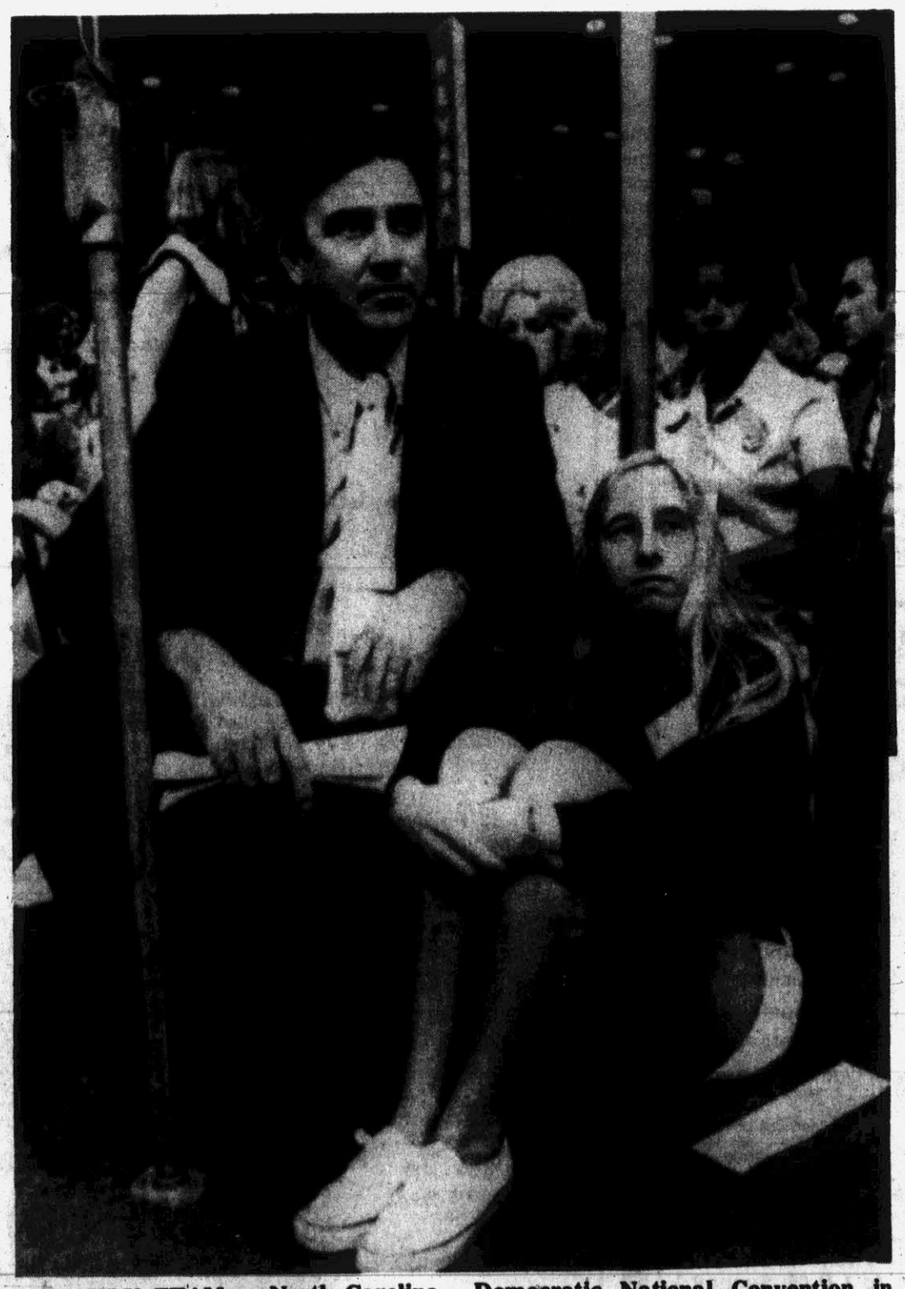

A mighty roar went up and red-white-and-blue placards waved from the pro-Wallace delegates as Wallace was carried in a wheelchair to the podium. Other delegates stood in respect to the governor, partially paralyzed when shot down while campaigning in Laurel, Md., May 15.

But Wallace's appeals were doomed to failure as the convention worked to approve a 26,000-word platform, tailored largely to the liberal views of McGovern.

Wallace, holding just a few hundred delegates, and Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, with under 100, vowed to stay in the presidential race although McGovern's assured first-ballot strength shot past the 1,509 votes needed to win.

Some labor leaders who had supported Humphrey, including President I. W. Abel of the United Steelworkers Union, threw their support to Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington.

Besides McGovern, Wallace and Jackson, supporters announced nominating speeches would be made for former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy; Reps. Wilbur D. Mills and Shirley Chisholm and former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford.

Martin County Approves Bonds

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

WILLIAMSTON — After three strikes out, voters in Martin County Tuesday made a home run in approving a county-wide school bond issue in the amount of four and one half million dollars.

Despite a day of intermittent rain, 3,892 voters turned out to cast their votes on the fourth public referendum in the last seven years for a county school bond.

Unofficial results of the voting shows 2,719 voters favoring the bond issue, with 1,173 against it.

"It was a very creditable turn out for a rainy day," Harcum Grimes, chairman of the Martin County Board of Elections commented. Grimes said "the size of the margin in favor of the bond issue surprised me. I had expected it to pass, but not by more than a two to one margin."

| TOWNSHIP | VOTES FOR | VOTES AGAINST |
|---|---|---|
| Jamesville | 394 | 74 |
| Willaims | 97 | 49 |
| Griffins | 137 | 60 |
| Bear Grass | 147 | 81 |
| Williamston I | 500 | 146 |
| Williamston 2 | 773 | 164 |
| Cross Roads | 49 | 77 |
| Robersonville 1 | 182 | 74 |
| Robersonville 2 | 198 | 151 |
| Poplar Point | 32 | 30 |
| Hamilton | 71 | 103 |
| Hassell | 37 | 40 |
| Goose Nest | 102 | 124 |
| TOTAL | 2,719 | 1,173 |

Only four of the county's 13 precincts had voters defeating the bond issue — three of these, Hamilton, Hassell and Goose Nest, are all in the northwestern end of the county.

Jamesville Township scored the highest percentage of voters favoring the bond issue, with 84 percent casting a yes vote. Williamston Township 1 and Township 2 both registered heavy in favor votes, at 77 and 82 percent respectively. These three townships, the most heavily populated in the county, virtually assured passage of the bond.

Previous referendums seeking approval of a school bond issue for Martin County were held in 1965, 1967, and 1969, with voters in the county defeating the issue each time.

Taylor Reports Sanford Pushed For VP Slot

MIAMI BEACH, FLA. — Members of the North Carolina delegation to the Democratic National Convention here have high hopes of getting former N.C. Gov. Terry Sanford nominated for the vice presidency, according to John Taylor, a local delegate.

Taylor said, "We are working toward this end and have found considerable good response from other states' delegations. If we can get a strong enough vote for Sanford as president, we hope we can prevail upon him to accept a draft for vice president if one is forthcoming."

Taylor said he doubts if Sen. Edward Kennedy, also speculated upon as vice presidential material, would accept the nomination on any terms.

A full voting delegate last night because of the wishes of Delegate E.V. Wilkens of Roper that the two work in tandem, Taylor said he was in agreement with all the overwhelming voice votes against Gov. George Wallace's minoity requests to change the majority planks on busing, prayer in the schools, the death penalty, and gun control. Gov. Wallace spoke out against busing, for reinstituting prayer in the school, for letting each state decide about the death penalty, and for dropping efforts to curb the sale of hand guns, ironically the kind used in the attack on him in Maryland.

Taylor said the entire convention was impressed with Gov. Wallace's determination to attend the convention and let his views be known.

"Working with various other delegations has been a pleasure," Taylor said. He expressed his delight that Yvonne Burke, Democratic nominee for Congress from California, was named convention vice chairman.

"Last night while some members of the N.C. Delegation were on the way to Convention Hall, our bus was stopped and we were forced to walk four blocks among the demonstrators. We were greatly impressed with the orderliness of the demonstrators. Each of us was approached with certain pleas, but no one was abused by word or deed."

The Convention's second session ended at 6:19 this morning, Taylor said.

Old Cannons At Hamilton Will Be Displayed

HAMILTON, N.C. (AP) — Those three old cannons raised from the Roanoke River last weekend will be put on public display at Fort Branch near Hamilton Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Martin County Sheriff Raymond Rawls said the public has exhibited such interest in the old weapons it had been decided to put them on public display.

Rawls had impounded the cannons and charged the seven men who raised them with doing so without a permit. They face a hearing in Superior Court at Williamston Aug. 7.

Ft. Branch played an important role in the defense of the Roanoke River area from Union forces during the Civil War. A number of other cannons are believed to be in the river near the fort.

Summer Classics Stay Cool, Crisp

CRISP CLASSICS — Summer calls for a versatile, comfortable wardrobe, and these, of Encron polyesters, should help fill the bill. From left to right, first is a pants suit with a belted dotted top over striped seersucker pants. The dress is sleeveless and takes a touch of ric rac on its diagonal hemline ruffle. Both are by Corinth St. Next is a one-piece playsuit that becomes a travel outfit with its add-on skirt. It's done in polka dots and solid, and is by Howard Wolf.

Ursula of Switzerland designed the next dress — a soft knit that can lead many lives. It can be worn as shown, or take on a new look for evening with pants as a tunic and pant ensemble. Last is another double-duty dress with a striped jacket that can also be worn with skirts or pants. It's styled by Wimzee.

Lessons To Learn From Friend

By Abigail Van Buren

[© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.]

DEAR ABBY: The names are fictitious but I am telling it like it is: My name is Debbie. I have been dating a fellow named John. I mentioned to John that Linda, a good friend of mine, is fantastically well put together. John calls Linda and asks her for a date. Linda accepts. She then tells Carol [who is also a friend of mine] about her date with John. Carol tells me. Naturally I am humiliated and angry.

I contend that when John called Linda, she should have refused him immediately saying she and I were good friends, and then hung up the phone. Furthermore, Linda shouldn't have told Carol or anyone else about her date with John because it made me look like a fool.

My friends contend that everything worked out for the best and I am lucky to have found out that John was bad news. What is your opinion?

DEBBIE

DEAR DEBBIE: Your friends are right. But there are several lessons to be learned here:

[1] Never "mention" to a boy friend that another girl is "fantastically well put together." [He may not be able to resist the challenge to "take her apart."]

[2] If a man is interesting, few girls, out of loyalty to a girl friend, will pass up a chance to date him.

[3] Your friend Linda talks too much.

[4] So does Carol.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow, 65 years old, and have no family. Do you think I am too old to learn to drive an automobile? Some of my friends laughed at me when I mentioned learning to drive at my age.

If I could drive I wouldn't have to wait for friends to take me shopping and to church and other places I might want to go.

Have any of your readers learned to drive at my age? If you think I'm too old, I'll sell the practically new car I have had in my garage ever since my husband died nearly a year ago. Thank you for any help you can give me.

MINNESOTA WIDOW

DEAR WIDOW: There is no age limit for learning to drive in your state. You will need a learning permit, however, which can be obtained by taking a written test. [Inquire at your Motor Vehicle Department.]

If you obtain the permit, driving lessons are available at the AAA and driver education schools, listed in your phone book. You will then be given a driver's test to determine whether you can become a licensed driver. Sixty-five is NOT old, my dear lady. Not if you have your health and good vision.

DEAR ABBY: My husband died nearly two years ago. My family has been wonderful to me. My immediate neighbors were very considerate the day of the funeral. They came with food, etc., but from that day until this I have not heard a word from any of them. [I am not complaining. I kept myself very busy, and didn't brood about my loss.]

Four weeks ago I slipped off and quietly married a very nice gentleman I had known for years. I had intended to invite my neighbors in and introduce him, but I guess I wasn't quick enough because I just got a call from a friend of mine telling me that I had better hurry up and announce my marriage because my neighbors were "talking."

It seems they just found out I had a man living with me and they think we are living in sin. I think it's rather funny. What are your thoughts on this, and what should I do?

LEGALLY MARRIED "SINNER"

DEAR "SINNER": Don't tell them anything. Let them "find out" you're married, just like they found out you had a man living with you.

DEAR ABBY: When an unmarried woman is asked by rude and insensitive women, "How come a gal like you isn't married?" tell her to come back with, "How come a gal like you IS married?"

"SAME BOAT"

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 69700, L. A., CALIF. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

What's for the hostess with the mostest who entertains at home or terrace or patio? Answer: The bare-backed, plunging neckline on pajamas in fabulous floral prints.

Biographer Tries To Bring Subject To Life

By PEACE MOFFAT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "Whether you're writing about poets or labor leaders, your approach to the subject has to be the same," says Jean Gould, biographer of both poetess Edna St. Vincent Millay and labor leader Walter Reuther. "It's the personality—your interpretation of that person's personality. And if you can bring somebody to life—that, to me, is your goal."

Miss Gould's latest biography is the one on Reuther, "Labor's Rugged Individualist." Some of her others have dealt with Jane Austen, Robert Frost, Winslow Homer, Emily Dickinson and William Makepeace Thackeray.

+'When you're writing a biography, especially about an author, the very first thing to do is to read all you can of their works," ays Miss Gould. "You must become immersed in the subject.

"I spend a certain amount of time just thinking about the person—what he must have been like," she goes on. "Once, I even dreamed I was talking to Winslow Homer.

"Next," she continues," you go to the letters they've written. When I was doing the biograqhy of Thackeray, it was so revealing to read his letters—and to realize this great writer's fears were just like anybody else's. And Jane Austen's letters read like another of her novels.

"If the person is alive—you need to interview him, and if not—you try to find someone now living who knew him."

Researching isn't always as easy as it might sound, Miss Gould cautions. She recalls several occasions when she has been threatened with law suits, and other times when members of the subject's family have been uncooperative. In one case, while writing about an early labor organizer, she learned she was competing with a union-sponsored book, but this time, Miss Gould recalls, the subject's family came to her rescue and her biography was published before the other one.

After the research is completed, the writer says she makes a "pretty careful outline. I do it chapter by chapter," she comments, "so that when I begin writing it's easier. I write a first draft, then I try to revise four or five times in my head. I would rather overwrite because you can always cut away, and my editor can suggest what needs pruning."

She says the most difficult part is "finding the angle—deciding what the approach is going to be. For instance," Miss Gould says, "when I started the Homer biography, I began when he was a child. But once that's over, the work more or less moves by itself."

Born and raised in Toledo, Ohio, Miss Gould says her family was in the "minor publishing business." That included, she explains, publishing theater programs and small magazines such as "What's Doing in Toledo," and "The Ohio Clubwoman." She attended the University of Michigan, but received her degree from the University of Toledo.

Laughing, Miss Gould recalls that in 1949 she came to New York to give herself "one year in the city." She's been here—living in Greenwich Village—ever since. She says she'd like to write fiction, having had one book of children's stories published, but that she still enjoys biographies.

"Often people will make a career writing about one person," she points out. "But I've written on so many subjects. They're all people I'm interested in.

"I wouldn't write about anyone to whom I objected, and I couldn't write about someone I felt antagonistic towards, but I will be objective about a person."

Woman Runner Says After 28-Mile Stint She Can Feel Refreshed, Solve Problems

By PEACE MOFFAT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — How would you like to run six miles? Or what about 16—or even 26, the official distance for a race to be classified as a marathon. At the end of one of those stints, a long-distance runner says it takes up to six weeks to recover physically.

But for some people running a marathon is a real groove. Take, for instance, Kathy Miller, a self-described "service brat," who was in town recently for the Crazylegs Marathon, a six-mile race for women only in Central Park, sponsored by S. C. Johnson & Son, and supervised by the Road Runners Club of New York.

Although she came in sixth, Miss Miller wasn't displeased. "I'm not much good at short runs; I've got a lot of stamina, and I'm mostly concerned about just getting there. This was more like a sprint for me," the long-legged runner admitted.

Miss Miller, a resident of Syracuse, N.Y., says she started running at Lynchburg College in Virginia. "I had been playing lacrosse and field hockey on the girls' teams and was recruited by the men's track coach, who needed team members. He said, 'gee—you won't win anything, but you can pick up some points for the team just being there'."

It turned out a little differently. In between being sports editor of the school paper and entering a local beauty pageant, Miss Miller became a good runner, and by the time she transferred to the University of Syracuse, she was working out with the men's cross-country team.

"I wanted to run a marathon, but the coach told me no woman in the world can run a marathon," she recounts. "Then one day I ran 28 miles, and since that was two miles over the official marathon distance, he changed his mind."

The next step was to enter Miss Miller in an actual race—the Boston Marathon. But since the rules of the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) forbade women from entering such events, this was a slight problem.

"I took my medical at Syracuse; entered under just my initials; the coach picked up my numbers and when we started the race, I had on a hooded sweatshirt," Miss Miller says.

But two miles down the road, the hood fell back, the officials saw there was a female competing in a race that was supposed to be just for men, and there was a ruckus. The result was Miss Miller's suspension from the AAU for six months.

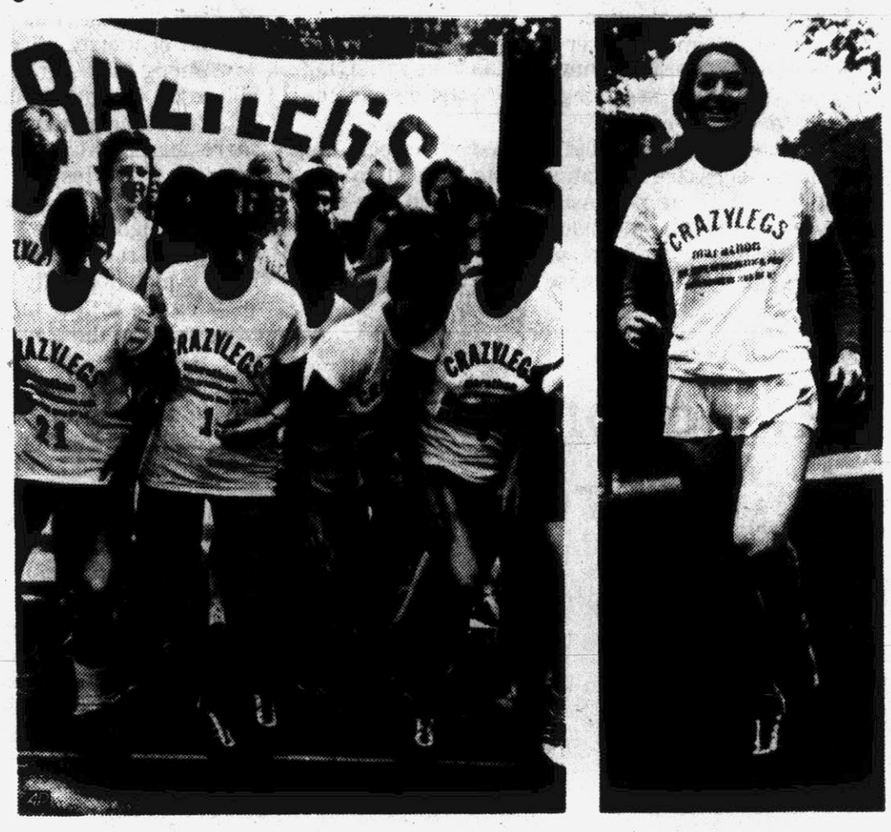

"Maybe they had a point in Boston—maybe I was interferring," she says, looking back. "But I had worked really hard, and become kind of good. So the next year I went back to Boston, crashed the race again, and did it an hour faster. Other girls crashed too in the following years, and all of a sudden, we were beating some of the men. The press got onto it, and finally this year, the AAU changed rules, and gave us official sanctions to run on an 'experimental' basis. That means we can run in the same races with men, but we can't compete against them, and have separate scoring, and separate starting lines."

Miss Miller, who also has made a film about racing, received a masters degree in public relations and likes to write, says she usually runs about 10 miles a day.

"When I run, I run how I feel," she says. "I can be exhausted before running, and then feel refreshed afterwards. Through running, you're an active part of the environment. You hear your heart beating, your feet hitting the ground. If you're in shape, it's great.

"I can sort out so many things in my mind when I'm running," she goes on. "After an 18 or 20 mile run, my problems are solved."

After 14 competitive marathons, Miss Miller says she wants to keep on running. "The competition is secondary," she says. "Most important is the enjoyment. Long after the running part is over, I'd just like to be able to go out and totter around the block."

"Pretzels are better for you than girls."

These are examples of what elementary school students in Berks County, Pa., came up with when asked, "What is a pretzel?"

The schools cooperated when Bachman Foods, Inc., a pretzel producer, set out to get a better idea of what youngsters think of pretzels.

Ten-year-old Steve showed signs of becoming a stand-up comedian. "A pretzel went to jail and when he got out he told the warden, 'I'm going straight'".

Caryn imagined, "A pretzel is coral in the middle, brown velvet on the outside, and on top of these are a million precious diamonds."

Alice, age 11, seemed to know how to quiet toddlers. "We lost the passifer (sic) so we gave my baby brother a pretzel, and we haven't heard a word from him since."

One 10-year-old, Darrell, wrote, "It is a piece of dough that was in the middle of a robbery and the men saw him so one said, 'Tie him up, Fred.' And he tied him up in this shape."

In other entries some youngsters credited pretzels with everything from getting better presents from Santa Claus at Christmas to causing a cat to have 11 kittens.

There are secret uses for pretzels too, which the children revealed. Eddie, age nine, claimed, "My grandmother dunks her pretzels in coffee when her teeth hurt, but I'm not supposed to tell that." And Mike, 10, thought, "A pretzel is something you stick in your school desk when nobody is looking."

Amy, another 10-year-old, wrote, "A pretzel is something good that is too loud to eat late at night." And, understandably, Joy (age eight) found, "A pretzel is something my goldfish did not like very much."

Budget Reflects City Growth

The best news in the 1972-73 fiscal year budget which won tentative approval from the City Council last week is that the property tax rate will be held to $1.54 per $100 evaluation.

In this time of ever increasing taxes and steadily rising cost-of-living this has to be satisfying to local citizens assuming the budget meets the city's needs.

Beyond that, the $3,082,653. budget reflects the steadily increased operating costs caused by inflation and rising personnel costs which the city government must face, along with all of us.

The city's revenue picture was improved somewhat by a big increase in Powell Bill funds, which come from the state and are to be used for street construction and maintenance. This fund went from $149,299.28 for 1972-72 to $314,500 for 1972-73. The increase was due to a hike in the total amount of money allocated by the state.

Among the bright spots in the budget was the allocation of $20,000 for resurfacing city streets outside redevelopment areas, $15,000 for a one-third share for operating the Moyewood Center Social Services activities, $13,250 for the city's share of right-of-way for state-improved streets. This last involves right-of-way on Tenth Street, which is under construction, and Charles Street and Airport Road, which hopefully will by under contract soon.

There is $61,842 in the budget for a part of the city's share of the Newtown redevelopment project and $86,370 on the city's share of the Central Business District cost. Much of these funds will be used for actual street construction for which the city will receive in-kind credit.

Also included are funds for a project which is dear to us; that is $30,000 for improvements to the Town Common on the river front at First Street.

A $5,000 fund was included in the budget to begin plans for relocating the West End Fire Station.

The tentative budget, which is open for public inspection for 20 days, does not include everything we would like to see and we are sure there are things which others would like to see in it.

It does, however, take some important steps on major improvement projects already underway in Greenville—and it does hold the line on taxes. Since porperty taxes affect everyone—owner, renter and customer—this is important to us in this inflation plagued age.

Extinction Of A 'Figurehead'

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — The figurehead lieutenant governor is marked for extinction in North Carolina.

None too soon, to suit the taste of Jim Hunt of Wilson. He wants the job transformed into a force for more effective state government, a vital linkage between executive and legislative branches, and a forum for dialogue with the public.

That's becuase he expects to fill the office. As Democratic nominee, Hunt looks forward confidently to being sworn in next January.

If the votes confirm his confidence in the fall general election, the youthful attorney will begin his first elective service in an office undergoing drastic transition.

His own concept of what the role should be is functional rather than ceremonial. "The lieutenant governor ought to do more than cut ribbons, extend greetings and present proclamations," he said. "Some of that must be done, certainly, but I do not relish it to any large extent."

Three Directions To Move

He marked out three areas within the scope of what the office has been and might become: as Senate President, to stimulate improvement of the legislative process; as a member of the state board of education, to speak to and for education; and as a leader in long range planning for the state.

Gov. Bob Scott will give Hunt an early start in the third area. When the governor named the new Council on State Goals and Policy last March, he left a vacant seat. The appointment of Hunt to fill it is imminent.

Presiding over the Senate and serving on the board of education already are duties of the lieutenant governor, although performance often has been more perfunctory than activist.

In the past, the state's number two official has been part-time, restricted in pay and power, with little to do other than be available for succession in the event of a governor's death or disability.

Full Pay, New Duties

Now, a Constitutional amemdment and legislative action has raised the salary to $30,000 and authorized assignment of additional duties by the governor and General Assembly.

Thus, Hunt's ideas on what he should do if elected are subject to the will of the next chief executive and legislature.

There may well be an inclination to keep the office subordinate in scope and authority. Both the governor and the legislature may have misgivings about building up a power base for the lieutenant governor.

Political considerations are involved. The last two lieutenant governors used the office as a stepping stone to run for governor; one won, one lost.

That Hunt might have similar ambitions have been the subject of conversation among politicians for many months.

He made his way up Democratic ranks, tabbed as a young man to watch. As state YDC president and a mover in the party's reorganization, he formed wide friendships. His campaign organization was anchored by influential party figures. He was the only statewide candidate who didn't have to go to a second primary to win nomination.

Governorship Future Question

Whether he'd run for governor in 1976 is a question in the future tense, replied Hunt. "In the uncertain politics of today, a man would be a fool to look that far ahead," he observed.

"Obviously, there always are other possibilities. I'm certainly not going to foreclose any options, but I am not looking byond trying to do the best possible job as lieutenant governor."

Lack of legislative experience may have some disadvantages in dealing with the Senate, he agreed. "By the same token, there is the real advantage of being able to take a fresh look at procedure. I am not bound by the argument that things should be done as they have been done in the past."

His intention is to come to the first day of the session with committee appointments prepared, and Senators alerted to introduce bills early and be ready for business. "I take a dim view of junkets, too many parties, and other things that interfere with the serious business of the legislature," he said.

Fresh vision and energy can make the office of lieutenant governor full-time in fact as well as salary, Hunt asserted, with benefits to the people of the state.

McGovern Has An Ax In Hand

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

MIAMI BEACH — The carefully calculated nature of Sen. George McGovern's threats to bolt the Democratic party if denied the nomination because of the California credentials challenge was emphasized by his repeating the threats even after the U.S. court of appeals ruled in his favor.

Although his campaign organization at that point was euphorically confident the Supreme Court would not overrule the appeals court's decision to return 151 delegates to him, McGovern was coolly intransigent in a remarkable interview last Thursday with the Ganett newspapers. "I don't want the people to be shocked or surprised, if this California steal were allowed to stand, if I were to leave the party," he declared.

"Obviously, I wouldn't have anything to do with a party that would permit that kind of injustice to stand."

In that Washington interview two days before his departure for Miami Beach, McGovern removed any doubt that his bitter reaction to the credentials committee decision was a mere emotionalal outburst. Rather, McGovern was evenly telling his foes in the party: no matter how bad you think my nomination will be, denying it to me will be worse for you.

Whether this unprecedented ultimatum wins or loses votes for McGovern cannot be accurately measured today. Without doubt, however, it heightened Democratic polarization as the party gathered for its strangest convention. By his own strategy, McGovern has made yet more difficult post-convention party unity.

McGovern's strategy is partly pragmatic. On the eve of the court of appeals decision, panicky McGovern aides feared the stop-McGovern movement might just succeed. The threat to bolt the party was intended to terrify his foes. With the court suit still in doubt at the time of McGovern's Gannott interview, he wanted to preserve the threat's credibility.

But a similar threat was issued by McGoven in his Life magazine interview, recorded before the credentials committee action. Thus, apart from the California challenge, McGovern was serving notice that it is too late for the old guard to stop him and his militant young cadres; the party must choose between him and chaos.

McGovern's top advisers were unanimous in advocating this hard line. His June 29 threat to bolt the party was not spontaneous anger but represented his entire staff's advice "to get rough with the party," as described by one lieutenant.

The get-tough policy has yielded some success. Two of Sen. Hubert Humphrey's leading liberal money men late last week urged him to avoid bloodshed by endorsing McGovern. Some avowed supporters of Sen. Edmund Muskie—most surprisingly, Gov. Kenneth Curtis of Maine— would like him to quit.

But in other instances, the strategy had an opposite effect — particularly on the Humphrey and Muskie staffs. Berl Benhard, Muskie's campaign director, was infuriated Friday by a published report that he and Muskie backed out on a deal for McGovern to pay Muskie's campaign debts in return for his endorsement; the Muskie staff is confident McGovern headquarters leaked the story.

Moreover, the Humphrey and Muskie organizations report a delegate backlash. One Western delegate serving on the credentials committee, for instance, two weeks ago was ready to bow to the inevitable and support

Strength For Today

PREACH THE WHOLE GOSPEL.

A minister was told recently by one of his angry parishioners that the should stop mentioning politics and social questions in his sermons and stick to the gospel.

It is not surprising of course that the minister was rebuked for even the prophet Amos was told to go easy on the sins of the people of Samaria and confine himself to pious generalities. The Pharisees would not have interfered with Jesus had his preaching not jeopardized entrenched interests.

The angry parishioner was right. The preacher should stick to preaching the gospel. But he should preach the whole gospel, and when he does he must denounce iniquity wherever he finds it—in politics, business, or in the social life of his comfortably living people.

Stick to the gospel. Yes, brother minister, stick to it and you will never go wrong. But read those twenty-seven books in the New Testament and along with them read the thirty-nine books in the Old, and you will find that the term "gospel" takes in a wide territory. It has a word to say to sinning kings, to dishonest merchants, to tyrants, as well as to adulterers, thieves and liars. It smites the comfortable as well as the indulgent. It has a mighty message which involves economics, sociology and politics, as well as theology.

Preach the gospel—but preach the whole gospel.

Pentagon's Rain-Making

WASHINGTON — The news that the United States has been secretly seeding clouds in Vietnam to increase and control the rainfall for military purposes has repercussions far beyond the war in Indochina.

For one thing, it opens up an entire new dimension in warfare and could cause all sorts of difficulties not covered by the Geneva Convention, the SALT talks or any treaties now in existence.

I went to the Pentagon to find out what it all meant. No one was willing to talk about the United States' rain-making abilities except my friend, Orlando. He was very defensive about it.

"I don't think there is anything wrong with dropping rain on the enemy. For years we've been raining bombs on them, and it didn't work. So now we've decided to bomb rain. If we can get them in a quagmire, we can win the war."

"But what about the international repercussions of bombing rain on people? Surely the Soviets, and even the Chinese, have rain-making machines which they could use against us."

We are not making rain against the Soviets and the Chinese. We are only making rain against the North Vietnamese. They know that in Moscow and Peking."

"But it could rain on Russian ships and Chinese advisers in Vietnam."

"We are using smart rain bombs," Orlando countered. "They are programmed to hit only military targets. We have a laser beam that zeros in on a target, and then the rain is released. It's possible that an occasional civian can be hit by the rain, but we are doing everything to see that no civilian gets wets."

"There is something wrong about this, Orlando," I said. "It seems to me that making rain in a war is a very serious thing."

Wouldn't you have us drop rain on the enemy rather than

Costs: Who Worries?

(Jacksonville Daily News)

Now that the $10-million question has gone all the way to the top — the President himself — and come back unanswered, we may very well have to go to the polls without knowing who were the big pre-April 1 contributors to Mr. Nixon's re-election fund.

After April 1, the new federal campaign spending law requires publication of the names of political contributors and amounts of contributions. The President's money raisers had put considerable effort into raising the bulk of his campaign money from the usual well-heeled but frequently publicity-shy sources in advance of the magic date.

The President's press conference "no comment" is not, however, likely to be the last word on the subject. The Democrats can recognize a good needling issue when it is handed to them.

But does it rally matter? Does the great mass of voters really care who contributes how much to Mr. Nixon's campaign, or to Senator McGovern's or Senator Humphrey's or Governor Wallace's?

The American public has become so accustomed over so many years to the big buck as an integral part of the political process that the question of where it comes from is usually of only incidental interest.

New disclosure law or not, we can be sure at this point that the fund rasiers will find the ways to set a new political spending record by November. Presidential elections always do.

The British, as with so many other aspects of our sympathetic but very different systems, provide a startling contrast to the American high cost of politics.

In their last national election, June of 1971, Prime Minister Edward Heath spent a grand total of $2,704 on his campaign, according to the Home Office breakdown of expenses for all parliamentary candidates. That covered only the campaign expenses for his own seat from a London suburb. But even on a national scale British political spending is nickles and dimes — or pence and farthings — by American standards.

For 1971, the grand total for all 1,837 parliamentary candidates of all parties was $3,518,252, which would scarcely see a major American presidential contender through a respectable primary.

Many indigenous factors contribute to the British situation, of course. Politics generally carry on in a much lower key than in the United States. Campaigns are much briefer— a few weeks as compared to almost a year. Free TV time on the state-operated BBC is available to the major parties to state their versions of the issues.

And a more homogenous, concentrated population makes a very low legal limit on campaign spending — $3,150 — more realistic than it would be in the continental-sized United States.

Nevertheless, the contrast with the extravagant American way is painful. Not so much so, however, that there is any real danger of our changing it.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

Poetry and passion aren't restricted to the young, but it is hard to name offhand three great sonnets or three immortal love affairs created by men after the onset of arthritis.

At least one out of every three detectives has a secret desire to be an actor.

The first thing to go in a veteran ballplayer is his legs. The first thing to go in a show business performer is his talent—the last thing to go, his ego.

It is usually pleasant to meet a pleasant-faced person, but one who invariably smiles can get to be a bigger annoyance than one who goes about invariably scowling. We can at least suspect the scowler of being a pessimist who has had a hard life and now no longer trusts his fortune to be any better.

But what about the guy who goes about with the grin that positively never will wear off?

How can we avoid coming to the conclusion that he is either too idiotic to care what happens to him or too punch drunk from disaster to recognize it any longer?

Symptoms Of An Ailing Dollar

By LAURANCE F. STUNTZ
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — If you think you have the flu, you take your temperature.

So what do you look for if you think the dollar is unhealthy overseas?

There are lots of symptoms. What to look for depends, like the symptoms in a human, on what ailment you suspect.

Another question, of course, is why you care if the dollar is unhealthy. The answer to that is that your job may depend on having the dollar respected overseas, the cost of imported gourmet foods and automobiles and radios also depends on it.

One principal symptom of a sick dollar is the balance of payments, how much the United States spends overseas compared to how much it earns. If the balance of payments is against the United States as it has been for a good many years now, it means that the dollar is weaker. A long unfavorable balance of payments, like continued loss of weight in a human, is a sign something is wrong.

However, don't confuse the balance of payments and the balance of trade. Payments are the total money involved in foreign trade, while the balance of trade is only exports matched against imports.

But the balance of payments symptom is not definite—it is a long-term one. Lack of balance for a quarter or even a year is not serious. What is something you can look for every day for a check on your country's health in international finance?

Perhaps the best daily check is the price of gold. The dollar used to be worth $35 an ounce, but as it weakened, the price of gold rose. Since economics is a seesaw—when something goes up, something else has to come down—that means the international value of the dollar is down. You can check how far down by watching the price of gold, now around $65 an ounce.

Another check is the price of foreign currencies, but this must be used with caution. If the price of the British pound goes down to $2.40 from its old level of $2.60, it doesn't necessarily mean the dollar is worth more. It could mean—as it does in the current money turmoil— just that the pound is weak.

In that case, check the price of the German mark, which is one of the world's stronger currencies just now. If the price of the pound goes down, but the price of the mark is going up at the same time, that means the dollar as well as the pound is weak.

Pounds, marks, and yen are the best currencies to watch. The French franc is so surrounded by regulations in its connection with the dollar that comparative prices can give a false reading. And the Italian lira is having its own troubles now—too many Italians selling the currency—so it is not a good barometer. Dutch guilders and Belgian francs are good indicators but it is sometimes hard to get a current price on them.

Of course, in addition to these symptoms of international ailments, there are as many more things to watch to check on the internal health of the U.S. economy. Most of these come out of Washington and their importance is explained when the figures are released.

McGovern; the threat to bolt changed his mind.

Whether fear or resentment counts for more will not be known until convention roll calls begin. But McGovern's strategy has heightened a polarization inside the party that far transcends habitual factional feuds.

By no means is this polarization all McGovern's responsibility. When black militants invaded a routine meeting of the convention arrangements committee Friday, national chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien was whisked out by worried security men, then returned to hear demands that "poor people" be given one-third of the seats on the convention floor. Unfair though it is, any invasion of the convention by black militants would hurt McGovern because, in the words of an Eastern governor, "those people are identified with McGovern."

But perhaps that would not be so had McGovern, during the weeks since his critical victory in the California primary, broadened his base and sought party unity as originally intended. Instead, his calculated toughness has made the mood of foreboding ever grimmer on the eve of the Democratic convention.

Warren Rich Is Soloist For Symphony Program

GREENSBORO– The Eastern Symphony Orchestra conducted by Robert Hause of Greenville with pianist Warren Rich as guest soloist will present an all-American program at 8:15 p.m. Thursday in Dana Auditorium at Guilford College.

Rich, chairman of Eastern Music Festival's piano department, received both B.M. and M.M. degrees from the Juilliard School of Music. He has won honors in piano competitions in Italy and Germany, has performed in North and South America and Europe, and performed as soloist on radio and television in Western Europe and Brazil. He currently heads the piano department at the School of Musical Education in New York City.

He will perform "Tarentella" by Gottschalk, a late 19th century composer whose works are presently undergoing a revival in the United States.

The remainder of the program will consist of "Nocturne" by Griffes, the "Symphonietta in D" of Chadwick, and Mailman's "Symphony No. 1."

At 7:15, p.m., one hour before the start of the ESO concert, members of the Guilford Chamber Players will present a prelude of chamber music. Rob Roy McGregor, trumpet, and David Watkins, piano, will play Paul Hindemith's "Trumpet Sonate" Warren Rich, pianist, Lorentz Ottzen, violinist, and Michael Stoughton, cellist, will perform the "Trio" by Shostakovitch. "Suite No. 2 for Cello in D minor" of J.S. Bach will be performed by Christopher Rex.

Individual tickets will be available at the door prior to the concert.

bombs?" he asked.

"But you've been dropping both bombs and rain, I protested.

"Next question," Orlando said angrily.

"Suppose the Russians decide to seed clouds over the United States during the World Series? Would we consider this an act of war?"

"The Russians wouldn't dare because we could seed clouds over Siberia. We could flood everything from Vladivostok to the Black Sea. They know it."

"Well let me ask you this. This has been the worst year for rain in the history of the United States. It coincides with the discovery that we are making rain in Indochina. Is it possible that some Air Force planes have been practicing on us?"

"That's absurd," Orlando said. "Our training flights have never used anything but dummy rain seeds. I can say unequivocally that the Pentagon is not responsible for any of the rain we've experienced in the United Staes."

"Suppose someone else has been seeding the clouds around the United States — let's say the French or the Canadians. What can we do about it?"

"We have no intelligence that any foreign power is behind this year's rainfall. Every story we checked out has been an act of God."

"And in Indochina?"

"In Indochina it's an Act of Congress."

"An Act of Congress?"

"Of course, stupid. Read the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution."

dulging business executive is about over. You hardly ever see anymore the picturesque, arm-waving big bosses of yesterday, who left echoes and a trail of storms and shattered underlings wherever they went.

The modern boss no longer roars or shouts orders. He merely purrs or sends incisive notes. He goes through life without any major sound effects. In any situation, above all, he prides himself on "keeping his cool," just as college sophomores do.

What is the difference in working for these vastly different types of employers?

"Well, life is a little easier from day to day under one of the new bosses," said one veteran office subordinate. "But at least with the old kind of dinosaur you always knew exactly where you stood. Today when you talk to a new boss he may silently hold out a large object to take as you leave, and it isn't until you are outside his office that you realize the object he put in your hands is your own head."

Mechanical 'Slave' Has Helpful Future

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (UPI)—Man has a new mechanical slave named NAT.

NAT is a mechanical arm so sensitive it can thread a small needle, assemble electronic circuit boards, or stack raw eggs.

It has shown that it can perform just as well underwater, too, in tests in a tank at Marineworld here.

Its builders call NAT the most dexterous, man-equivalent machine developed to date and the Navy predicts NAT will soon be used to handle and disarm explosives above and below the ocean's surface.

But in addition, its builders see the day when NAT will help the handicapped, aid in mining, conduct unmanned inspection duties, handle and detoxify chemical warfare and biological warfare weapons and help in medical examinations.

It was conceived under a joint program sponsored by MBAssociates of San Ramon, Calif., the Navy, the Atomic Energy Commission and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The arm works on a so-called "master-slave" system. The arm is the slave and is controlled by a "master" machine worn like a coat by its human operator.

NAT stands for Naval Anthropomorphic Teleoperator. The last words describes the remote control system which makes the difference from robots or computers which have controls within them.

NAT's design allows the operator to sense the weight of objects he or she handles with the remote slave, as well as to control its gripping force.

Democrats Said Light Spenders

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — To the cabbies and bellhops, there's no question about it — Democrats just don't spread around the cash that Republicans do.

"Just between you and me, lady, Republicans are much bigger spenders," cabbie William Previs said recently to a questioner. "You know, some have it and some don't."

Two veteran bellhops at the Fountainebleau Hotel, Democratic headquarters, agree.

Democrats aren't "high-rollers," they said, but they're not the worst tippers.

"Doctors are the worst tippers and teachers are second," one said.

Chicago got its name from the Indians who called the lakeside area Checagou because of its strong-smelling wild onions.

Local Moose Get Awards

TROPHY AND PLAQUE are presented Mayo Allen by Moose Governor James Harris.

Greenville Moose Lodge Governor James Harris reported on the recent International Convention of the fraternity at the local lodge's regular meeting Monday night.

The meeting was marked by presentation of the 2nd Place Civic Affairs trophy and the First Place plaque for contributions to the Mooseheart Endowment Fund for Class A lodges to Mayo Allen, Governor of the Greenville Lodge during the award-winning 1971-72 year.

Harris also announced that Secretary Edwin M. Baldree had been re-elected to the Board of Governors of Moosehaven.

Eleven new members were inducted into the Greenville lodge.

'Eckankar' Lecture Team To Underline A Different Belief

"We believe in one God, the same God of all other religions, but perhaps we look for Him in a different way," says Kathy Webb of Chapel Hill a teacher of Eckankar or Soul Travel.

She and Phyllis Roberson of Durham were here yesterday to arrange for a lecture Sunday at 8 p.m. in the East Carolina University Union, Room 206. They are volunteer workers in Eckankar and invite anyone to come hear about their beliefs, assuring that there is no charge and no pressure to stay or become part of the discussion group unless one wishes.

"Our basic belief," Miss Webb said, "Is that everybody is soul and that as soul we are able to experience God. What welearn is how to channel the Eck or life force or divine word which comes out of God. As we channel this force, we are spiritually unfolding, becoming more aware of why we are hear and what happens after death.

"We actually experience what it is like to die in that our souls leave our bodies, enabling us to travel to other worlds than this physical one. This takes away fear. Death becomes a normal thing and you know that you are not the body, but something immortal. Being part of God gives us infinite potential to know about everything."

Asked about the belief's seeming conflict with the Christian view of Christ as the Son of God, Miss Webb said, "We believe that Jesus was a great spiritual teacher, but we count ourselves fortunate that we have teachers living today from whom we can learn directly."

Paul Twitchell founded the Eck movement in 1965. He died in September of last year. The present Eckmaster is Darwin Gross, she said.

Asked about moral teachings, Miss Webb said that there are no set rules of Eckankar but that with spiritual unfolding comes integrity. "It's explained," she said, "that tobacco, alcohol, and drugs harm the body and that any weakness decreases concentration on the spiritual. People who have begun to unfold through Eckankar have found it very easy to give up these vices."

"Eckankar classes can be a lifetime thing," she said. "Or anyone can come at any time and sit in on a discussion. We hope the Greenville group will begin to meet every two weeks to study written lessons."

Quang Tri Sees Heavy Fighting

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — Heavy fighting was reported on three sides of Quang Tri City as tank-led North Vietnamese forces for the sixth straight day blocked a government drive to recapture the provincial capital.

The Saigon military command claimed 198 North Vietnamese soldiers were killed and four tanks destroyed in five battles north, east and south of Quang Tri City on Tuesday and today.

First reports said 29 South Vietnamese soldiers were killed and 69 wounded. Nearly all of the government casualties were reported in the helicopter landing of several hundred South Vietnamese marines a mile north of Quang Tri City at noon Tuesday. Three U.S. Marine helicopters were shot down, and two of the American crewmen were reported wounded.

The North Vietnamese launched one counterattack just before dawn today and seized hilltop positions from South Vietnamese paratroopers to the southwest, Associated Press correspondent Dennis Neeld reported from the front.

Neeld said several battalions of South Vietnamese paratroopers on the edges of Quang Tri City were being pounded by long-range North Vietnamese artillery fire.

Allied planes were striking at the city, field reports said, but they were hampered by windstorms whipping up sand and reducing the pilots' visibility.

Radio Hanoi announced today that a Communist Peoples' Revolutionary Committee was established last month to rule Quang Tri Province, which the North Vietnamese captured in May and are now defending against the South Vietnamese counterattack.

The broadcast quoted a communique by the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front dated July 5 but gave no reason why the announcement had been held up for a week.

The U.S. 7th Fleet in a delayed report announced that the destroyers Robison and Hull sank 13 barges off the coast of North Vietnam 30 miles northeast of Dong Hoi before dawn Monday. The barges were unloading supplies from a freighter, presumed to be Chinese, but the freighter was not attacked, sources said.

In the air war, U.S. fighter-bombers flew more than 290 strikes against North Vietnam on Tuesday, the U.S. Command said, and knocked out a 300-foot highway bridge 40 miles northeast of Hanoi with laser-guided bombs.

North Vietnam claimed that six U.S. planes were shot down during Tuesday's raids. The U.S. Command announced one loss, a Navy F4 Phantom downed about 30 miles northeast of Hanoi. The two crewmen were listed as missing.

The U.S. Command also disclosed the loss of a Marine A6 fighter-bomber that was shot down last Friday 33 miles southwest of Quang Tri City. It said the two crewmen were missing.

Nixon-Dobrynin Confer Today

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Just a day before Vietnam peace talks resume in Paris, President Nixon has scheduled an informal but serious meeting here with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin.

The ambassador and Mrs. Dobrynin, described as guests of Henry A. Kissinger, the president's principal foreign affairs advisor, were invited by their host to visit the Western White House today.

Ronald L. Ziegler, Nixon's press secretary, said the chief executive and the visiting Russian would meet at some point during the day.

In response to a question, Ziegler declared, "I don't want to describe it as a courtesy call." Asked if substantive matters would be discussed, he replied, "Yes."

Vietnam peace talks resume Thursday in Paris after a two-month hiatus occasioned by a United States withdrawal that preceded Nixon's order to mine North Vietnamese ports.

Dobrynin, according to Ziegler, just happened to be visiting a recently opened Soviet consulate in San Francisco and was invited to "drop by" Southern California.

Kissinger met the ambassador and Mrs. Dobrynin in Los Angeles Tuesday, took them on an escorted tour of the old-Hollywood-style Universal Studios, then was their host at dinner. Ziegler said a number of Kissinger friends, not identified, were present.

Fatal Fumes Suspected

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Authorities are trying to determine whether dry-cleaning fumes contributed to the death of a young woman.

Police said the cause of the death of Mrs. Donna L. Miller, 19, would be determined by an autopsy, but they would make lab tests on drapes taken from her apartment.

They quoted her husband, Stephen Miller, also 19, as giving this account:

He and his wife had dry-cleaned their drapes at a self-service laundry Tuesday, and returned to their apartment to hang them.

After they had hung some of the drapes in the living room, Miller left for work about 2:30 p.m. and told his wife not to hang the others because of the odor from the dry-cleaning fluid.

Miller's sister-in-law called him and told him she had gone to his home about 6:15 p.m. and could not get his wife to answer the door, but had heard a radio playing inside.

He found his wife unconscious across a bed when he arrived shortly after 6:30 p.m. He was giving her artificial respiration when police arrived. She was pronounced dead at a hospital about 7 p.m.

Police said there was a strong odor "like cleaning fluid" in the apartment.

Chicod Watershed 'Under Advisement'

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

NEW BERN — U.S. District Judge John Larkins this morning said he would take the Chicod Creek Watershed case under advisement and issue a ruling "in a short period of time."

Judge Larkins' comment came after the jurist heard comments from attornies for the plaintiffs and the defendants in U.S. Eastern District Court here this morning.

Environmentalist are trying to stop the watershed project, designed to drain a large area in Pitt and Beaufort Counties and prevent flooding of farm land in the area.

The environmentalists say the project would do more harm than good.

One of the attornies for the plaintiffs — requesting a reduction in bond ordered posted by the judge — said that since the court has found a violation of the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) that "only minimal security should be required."

Judge Larkins ordered the environmental groups to post a $75,000 bond while the plaintiff's attornies asked for a reduction to $100.

The federal jurist this morning said delaying the project is costing $7,650 per month, plus $7,500 for drawing up an environmental impact statement to comply with NEPA. Hs noted too, that more than $200,000 has already been spend on the project and of that amount, $130,000 of the expense was incurred by the interveanors (defendants).

The plaintiffs today, who said they were in no position topost a $75,000 bond, told the court that since the Chicod case was brought to court, the U.S Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service — which had aided in the design and implementation of the Chicod project — has required NEPA compliance for other projects it is associated with across the country.

The Chicod suit was filed in U.S. Eastern Distric Court in November and today's hearing was the latest in several court sessions dealing with the case.

Musical Group Tours Suspended

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Country Caravan, a country and western musical group at the Maryland House of Correction, likely won't go on the road any more.

Warden Ralph Williams said Tuesday that further outside appearances by the group have been suspended.

The reason: Eugene Stilling, a 25-year-old inmate serving eight years for breaking and entering and grand larceny, escaped Monday night as 12 musicians were entering WBAL-TV to tape a program.

Bumper Design In Good Taste

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The bumper that Dan Bell designed may not be the only one capable of protecting a car from a 5-mile-an-hour collision, but it probably tastes better than the others.

Bell, a mechanical engineering student at UCLA, designed the bumper for an experimental car the university is entering in the national Urban Vehicle Design competition in Detroit.

The hollow metal bumper is filled with a light, inexpensive, easily replaced impact-absorbing material: popcorn.

British Bolster Guard

By COLIN FROST
Associated Press Writer

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The British government ordered 32,000 troops, police and militiamen into the streets of Northern Ireland today to keep the province's warring religious factions apart while 100,000 Protestants of the Orange Order paraded.

Belfast was lit by scores of street bonfires during the night, marking the advent of the "Glorious Twelfth." It is the 282nd anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne, in which the Protestant armies of William of Orange defeated the Roman Catholic forces of James II.

Amid politicians' warnings that Northern Irleand is closer to civil war than at any time in the three years of communal violence, the militant Protestants of the Ulster Defense Association said their armed units would protect the marchers from attack by the Catholics of the Irish Republican Army.

Government forces cordoned the line of march in Belfast to block attacks by Catholics enraged by the display of Protestant dominance. Catholics of the Andersonstown, Ballymurphy and Ardoyne districts sealed off their sectors with barricades of concrete and steel to keep out Protestant raiders.

Trouble was feared in Portadown, a town of 13,000 population 25 miles southwest of Belfast. The route of the parade there ran through a Catholic section, and the IRA said it would not allow the marchers through. The UDA said it was prepared for a showdown.

The buildup to the parades was ominous. The Provisional wing of the IRA on Sunday night called off a truce it had ordered two weeks before, and the shooting and bombing since has been worse than ever.

At least 13 persons have been killed, bringing the recorded death toll to 417 in three years. The army said that in Belfast alone there had been 210 shooting incidents between 8 a.m. Tuesday and 4:30 a.m. today. It said soldiers were not involved in 83 of them, implying that they were attacks of Catholics on Protestants or vice versa.

Asks Probe Of Incident

RALEIGH (AP) — A Virginia man is asking North Carolina Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan to investigate the treatment he received at the June 29 meeting of the state Highway Commission.

Leonard Sutton, a Richmond, Va., elementary school principal, went to the commission seeking action on drainage problems affecting two secondary roads in Duplin County. Sutton is a native of the county and owns 250 acres there.

Highway Commission Chairman Lauch Faircloth told Sutton shortly before the meeting that he could not address the roads panel and if he did, he would be arrested.

Sutton, whose request was not on the agenda, intended to address the commission when "new business" came up, but Faircloth adjourned the meeting after one minor item was raised by a commissioner.

Sutton said the incident was a "major denial" of the right of free speech and "the abuse I received from Mr. Faircloth was...not becoming apublic official."

Power Bills Up July 21

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Residents of 23 North Carolina cities which buy electricity from the Duke Power Co. and but own their own distribution lines probably will start pay more on July 21.

That's the day Duke will increase its wholesale rates 7 or 8 per cent, based on the rising cost of coal and other fossil fuel. It will mean an extra $5.6 million the first year.

Duke's adjustment has been approved on a temporary basis by the Federal Power Commission. If the FPC decides after holding hearings in September or October that the adjustment isn't justified, Duke will refund the money with 7 per cent interest.

Gastonia has decided to tack Duke's increase on to customers bills. Kings Mountain has appointed a committee to study what to do.

Other cities affected are Dallas, Drexel, Forest City, Granite Falls, High Point, Huntersville, Landis, Lexington, Lincolnton, Maiden, Monroe, Newton, Pineville, Shelby, Statesville, Albemarle, Cherryville, Concord, Cornelius, Morganton and Bostic.

Two other power companies which sell to North Carolina cities with their own transmission systems have not yet asked a fossil-fuel adjustment. They are the Carolina Power & Light Co. and Virginia Power & Light.

Few Complaints On Centerfold

SAUGUS, Calif. (AP) — At 6 a.m. Cablevision's Channel 6 begins broadcasting automatically, the camera trained on weather gauges.

But last Saturday somebody broke into the studio before 6 and placed a Playboy nude centerfold in front of the gauges.

The broadcasters said they were surprised at how few people complained at the change in programming.

"Only one or two people called," station manager Craig Rahn said Tuesday. The centerfold was visible for 75 minutes.

Rahn said he was toying with idea of making it a regular Saturday feature.

Driver Charged After Mishap

William David Leudesdoff, 24, of 117B Stancill Dr. was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of an 11:10 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Third and Tyson Streets that injured one person.

Police reported Mrs. Violet Jordan Lautares of 2303 East Third St. was injured when the car she was driving collided with the Leudesdoff vehicle.

Damage was estimated at $600 to the Lautares car and $300 to the truck driven by Leudesdoff.

Keeter said members of the Fountain group feel the sewing firm, which employs about 75 workers, is a great asset to their community and all precautions to keep the plant in operation should be taken.

The Fountain Development Corporation is responsible for insurance and upkeep of the facility.

Several board members stated they did not want to lease the property for a 10-year period and felt a shorter leasing period should be negotiated. The possibility of selling the facility was also suggested as another solution.

Pattin Loses No-Hit Bid In Final Inning

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The "Pattin" story unfolded in dramatic fashion at the Oakland Coliseum.

Marty Pattin was the hero, firing bullets at the Oakland A's.

Two outs away from a no-hitter, the Boston Red Sox pitcher finally surrendered a single to Reggie Jackson before winning the battle 4-0 on a powerhouse one-hitter.

"I guess that's as close as I'll ever come to a no-hitter," said Pattin after Jackson's hit just eluded second baseman Doug Griffin in the ninth inning.

The pitch that Jackson caught was a high fast ball with "something on it." Pattin said he'd throw it again in the same situation.

In Tuesday's other American League contests, the Baltimore Orioles defeated the Kansas City Royals 2-1 in 10 innings; the Detroit Tigers nipped the Texas Rangers 6-5; the Chicago White Sox trimmed the Cleveland Indians 4-3; the New York Yankees stopped the California Angels 7-3 and the Milwaukee Brewers turned back the Minnesota Twins 5-4.

In the National League, it was Cincinnati 5, Pittsburgh 0; Atlanta 5, St. Louis 4 in 15 innings; Philadelphia 4, Los Angeles 1; San Francisco 6, New York 1; Montreal 6, San Diego 5 in 12 innings and Houston 6, Chicago 5 in the first game of a doubleheader and Chicago 9, Houston 5 in the second.

Using hard sliders and fastballs as his main weapons, Pattin cut down Oakland batters until the A's last stand. Joe Rudi went down for Pattin's seventh strikeout to open the ninth.

Then Jackson spoiled Pattin's no-hitter.

"I guess this is the best game I ever pitched," said Pattin, who received a standing ovation from the crowd of 5,539 when he came to bat in the ninth.

Pattin, obtained in a 10-player trade from Milwaukee during the off-season, won his fourth straight game and improved his record to 6-8 with the near-masterpiece, fashioned on 117 pitches.

Carlton Fisk's 11th homer of the season gave Pattin a 1-0 lead in the second inning. The Red Sox added another in the fourth on hits by Carl Yastrzemski, Rico Petrocelli, a walk and a forceout.

Hits by Yastrzemski, Petrocelli and Fisk produced another run in the eighth and Boston added its final run in the ninth when Juan Beniquez tripled and scored on a wild pitch.

Tom Shopay walked with the bases loaded in the 10th inning, forcing in the winning run as Baltimore halted a five-game losing streak. Reliever Ken Wright, the Royals' second pitcher of the inning, gave up the game-ending walk after the Orioles had filled the bases on a double by Brooks Robinson and walks to Bobby Grich and Boog Powell.

The Royals had taken a 1-0 lead in the first on singles by Amos Otis, Richie Scheinblum and Lou Piniella. The Orioles tied it in the sixth on pitcher Jim Palmer's run-scoring single. Palmer recorded his 12th victory with a seven-hitter.

Detroit kept its tenuous one-game lead over Baltimore in the East by beating Texas on Mickey Stanley's tie-breaking home run in the sixth inning. It was Stanley's third homer in the last three games and continued his game-breaking habits.

In Scotland It's The Open

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP) — Only in the United States is it called the British Open.

Elsewhere in the world it is simply The Open.

This is The Open. The others carry a demeaning prefix. Like the United States Open. Or the Canadian Open. Or the Tasmanian Open.

This is particularly true in Britain, where they blithely ignore the existence of any other open golf championship. It's more particularly true in Scotland. It's most particularly true around Muirfield, which has some considerable claims to being the birthplace of the game.

It was in this area, some 16 miles southeast of Edinburgh Castle which crouches on a hilltop in Scotland's capital, in 1744 that golf's first organization was formed, the honorable Company of Edinburgh golfers.

The company, which still conducts the affairs of Muirfield, was organized to play a four-hole course not far from the present site hard by the Firth of Forth on the East coast of Scotland.

And they drew up the game's first set of rules, 13 of them.

The first rule was: "The tee shall be not more than one club length from the hole."

The second rule was: "The tee shall be on the ground."

Joe Dey, a noted historian, former head of the USGA and now commissioner of the Tournament Players Division of the PGA, explained about rule No. 1.

"This, of course, was before there were wooden tees. The player would reach into the hole to get a handful of sand and pour it on the ground to form a tee. Now, there was no rule covering uniformity of the size of the hole. So as the day went on and more players went through, the hole got bigger and bigger.

"But, teeing it up one club length from the hole, can you imagine what the putting green looked like?"

Jack Nicklaus' drive for a Grand Slam has attracted world wide interest in the British Open, the third of four titles needed for the unprecedented sweep.

A total of 392 writers, reporters and photographers—excluding television personnel—were accredited for the 101st championship, the most ever.

Galleries in excess of 7,000 watched practice rounds Monday and Tuesday and officials expected record crowds for the tournament proper.

"I should think the total crowd for the tournament should be around 100,000," press officers George Simms said, and smiled, "If the weather and Jack Nicklaus both continue to be good."

The favored Nicklaus was assigned car sticker No. 1. His hotel room is No. 1. At dinner the other night, the captain showed him to his table.

Investigation revealed that it was table No. 4.

"Could I have table No. 1?" Jack asked politely.

It was arranged immediately.

Montreal, Atlanta In Extra Inning Victories

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Patience is a virtue to be admired. Everything comes, it has been said, to those who wait. The Montreal Expos and Atlanta Braves found out that the adage applies to baseball, too.

The Expos and Braves both struggled into extra innings Tuesday night and were rewarded with National League victories. Montreal trimmed San Diego 6-5 in 12 innings and Atlanta went 15 innings to beat St. Louis 5-4.

In other National League action, San Francisco defeated New York 6-1, Philadelphia tripped Los Angeles 4-1, Cincinnati shut out Pittsburgh 5-0 and Houston split a doubleheader with Chicago, winning the opener 6-5 but dropping the nightcap 9-5.

In the American League, Boston shut out Oakland 4-0, Detroit edged Texas 6-5, Milwaukee nipped Minnesota 5-4, Baltimore edged Kansas City 2-1 in 10 innings, Chicago topped Cleveland 4-3 and New York whipped California 7-3.

The Expos overcame home runs by Derrell Thomas and Clarence Gaston which staked San Diego to an early 5-3 lead. Ken Singleton had homered for Montreal.

The Expos tied it in the seventh on Tim Foli's two-run single.

It was still tied in the 12th when Singleton opened with a single. Bob Bailey was credited with a hit when his grounder struck Singleton, retiring the runner. But Clyde Mashore followed with a double, scoring Bailey from first with the deciding run.

Hank Aaron poled his 658th career homer for Atlanta but the Cardinals caught the Braves in the seventh inning, tying the score on Lou Brock's fourth hit, second stolen base, a throwing error by Earl Williams and Ted Sizemore's sacrifice fly.

They shouldn't have bothered.

The teams battled into the 15th when Atlanta finally pushed across the winning run with the help of two wild pitches by reliever Lowell Palmer.

Gil Garrido opened with a single, moved up on a wild pitch and long fly before scoring on Palmer's second wild pitch.

The Mets, who are losing ball players almost as frequently as ball games, dropped another of each. Outfielder John Milner was carried off the field after a collision with shortstop Bud Harrelson in the third inning of New York's game against San Francisco.

Milner suffered a neck injury and Chris Speier' popup fell for a double, scoring two runs for the Giants. The Mets, already missing three regular outfielders because of injuries, replaced Milner with catcher Duffy Dyer and in the seventh Speier hit another pop fly which Dyer let drop for an error and two more Giants' runs.

Ron Bryant pitched a two-hitter for the victory.

Steve Carlton tossed a five-hitter for his seventh straight victory, pitching Philadelphia past Los Angeles. Carlton struck out eight, running his major league lead in that department to 182.

Don Money drove in three runs for the Phillies with a bases-loaded double.

New Manager Paul Owens pointed to a second inning stolen base by Willie Montanez that set up a four-run rally as the key play of the game. It was the first steal of the year for the speedy Montanez.

Rain Halts Area Play

Rain wahed out all baseball and softball activity in Greenville yesterday.

The East Carolina University-University of North Carolina baseball game, scheduled for Chapel Hill, was postponed, and reset for Monday night in Chapel Hill.

The City Tournament in Little League was moved back one day, with Pepsi-Cola and the Optimists scheduled to play their first game in the best of three series today.

The Babe Ruth District Tournament in New Bern was also delayed a day. Greenville's 13-year-olds are scheduled to play Thursday, while the All-Stars are set to go tonight at 9 p.m. against Seymour Johnson.

The Ladies Softball Tournament, which was to have begun last night, was put off until Thursday night.

Two Church League games were rescheduled for later in the week, and the City Softball Tournament game of last night was also delayed.

The prospects for further rain today made it likely that additional postponments would be necessary for today's action.

Bulls Without A Home; Celts Have New Owner

By BERT ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The Chicago Bulls were without a home court today, while the Boston Celtics, Atlantic Division champions of the National Basketball Association, had only their second sole owner in their 26-year history.

The Bulls have played the last five seasons in Chicago Stadium, after playing in the Chicago Amphitheatre in 1966-67, their first season in the league.

At present, they have no lease for next season for either arena.

They could play in the Amphitheatre, which holds about 10,500 for basketball, if the league's Board of Governors reconsiders a $5.0 million offer to purchase the club by a nine-man group from Milwaukee and Chicago, headed by Marvin L. Fishman, a Milwaukee realtor.

The Board rejected Tuesday the Fishman group offer to buy the Bulls from Elmer Rich.

NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy indicated that the Governors did not approve the offer because the Bulls were unable to obtain a lease for the Stadium.

Tuesday, Fishman said his group had signed a three-year lease with the Amphitheatre, but the Board still turned down the offer.

"I'm disappointed by the temporary setback our group received," said Fishman. "I would like to emphasize the word temporary. We intend to pursue every legal action to assume our acquisition of the team."

Should the efforts of the Fishman group fail, the Bulls could be sold to a group including Arthur Wirtz, owner of the 19,500-seat Stadium. I thas been reported that with the rejection of Fishman, approval is expected to be given to the Wirtz group, which has a 10-year lease at favorable rental terms ready for the Bulls.

Meanwhile, the Board approved the sale of the Celtics for $5.1 million to Robert Schmertz, a 46-year-old realtor from Lakewood, N.J.

He will be sole owner of the club. The only other individual owner in the team's history was the late Walter Brown, who purchased the Celtics in their infancy in 1946. He died in 1964, but by that time was co-owner with Lou Pieri.

Schmertz, also part owner of the New England Whalers in the new World Hockey Association, is reported as saying he will keep the club in Boston, despite rumors to the contrary. He also is retaining Arnold "Red" Auerbach as president and general manager.

Isaac In Race Win

MALTA, N. Y. (AP) — Bobby Isaac of Catawba, N. C., came from behind to win the NASCAR Grand National Stock Car Race at the Albany-Saratoga Speedway..

Isaac trailed the leaders after two pit stops midway in the race Tuesday night but made up the difference on the four-tenths of a mile track in short order. He eventually gained a full lap lead on the other 13 finishers in the race.

Neil Castles of Charlotte, N. C., was second with a steady performance throughout the race, while James Hilton of Inman, S. C., finished third.

The only driver from north of the Mason Dixon Line to finish in the top eight was Phil Spiak of Troy.

Bobby Allison of Hueytown, Ala., bested 25 starters with a qualifying time of 17.54 seconds for one lap, or 74.3 miles an hour, to win the pole position in the $10,000 race.

Allison dropped out of the race, however, in the 147th lap after he blew an engine, which caused a caution flag to be held up for 10 laps. Isaac pitted twice at that point, giving the lead temporarily to Tiny Lund of Cross, S. C.

Other top finishers were Elmo Langley of Charleston, S. C., fourth; Tiny Lund, fifth; Jimmy Vaughn of Greenville, S. C., sixth; and Baxter Price of Monroe N. C., eighth.

Nicklaus Has Mind On Winning British Open

By RONALD THOMSON
Associated Press Writer

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP) — Jack Nicklaus went into one of the most vital golf tournaments of his illustrious career today with his mind fixed on winning the British Open title and consciously blocking out thoughts of achieving the Grand Slam.

Britain's legal bookies have made the 32-year-old American an overwhelming favorite to win his third British crown, over Muirfield's windy links beside the Firth of Forth.

After seven practice rounds on the 6,892-yard, par 36-35—71 layout, Nicklaus said: "My game is in reasonable shape. I have pretty much made up my mind what I will do when the chips are down."

Thousands of golf fans besieged the course southeast of Edinburgh as play began for the 101st championship with prize money totaling about $120,000.

The main focus was on Nicklaus, who needs the British title to complete the third leg of the Grand Slam—sweeping the four major pro tourneys. He already has won the of the Masters and U.S. Open. The British Open and the PGA at Birmingham, Mich., next month would complete the sweep.

On the eve of the British Open, Nicklaus mused: "The Grand Slam only becomes realistic if I win here. So I'm concentrating on that."

Nicklaus planned to sleep late because he was among the late starters.

Defending champion Lee Trevino had a much earlier starting time.

The bookies listed Nicklaus as 9-4 favorite, with Trevino second choice at 6-1 and Gary Player of South Africa third at 12-1.

Britain's Tony Jacklin, another former titleholder, was a 16-1 shot while Billy Casper and Arnold Palmer were 20-1.

Trevino played only two practice rounds, but was brimming with confidence. "Of course, I can win," he said. "I wouldn't bother coming here if I thought I couldn't."

LEADS FALCON CAGERS

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP) — Tom Blase, a 6-foot-1 junior from St. Louis, will captain next season's Air Force Academy basketball team. Blase led the Falcons in scoring last season, averaging 11.6 points a game.

Carolinas Postponed

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — The second round of the $16,000 Carolinas Open Golf Tournament, scheduled for today, has been moved up to Thursday because an all-night rain made the course unplayable. Bob Bruno of Pinehurst, N. C., has a three-stroke lead.

The third and final round also has been moved up a day, until Friday.

Black Heroes Find Profitable Market

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — In the current film "Shaft's Big Score," the black private detective hero scorns a New York police investigator, also black, "My mother told me to stay away from black honkies with big flat feet."

Five years ago, such a put-down of whites and blacks who work for the white establishment might have caused outrage.

Today such scenes are common. And not merely in low budget exploitation films. Films made by blacks and aimed primarily at the blacks' market are being financed on sizable budgets by major studios.

This is the result of a black revolution in the movie industry. Film companies have discovered belatedly that millions of dollars can be made by aiming movies primarily at the big city black audience. If the movies contain enough quality, they also will draw patronage from whites.

Hence, a bonanza such as MGM produced last year with "Shaft." The film reportedly grossed $18 million in the United States and Canada. It was MGM's only big hit in 1971.

The Negro's advent to film prominence was a long time coming.

During the earliest years of movies, the black was portrayed as either servile, as in various versions of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," or lazy, as in two 1910 series, "Rastus" and "Sambo."

The black as villain was exploited by D. W. Griffith in the 1915 "Birth of Nation." Griffith was so astonished by the outcy of prejudice that he made the epic "Intolerance" in his own defense.

The talkie period brought some all black films: "Hallelujah" by MGM in 1929: "Green Pastures," Warner Brothers, 1936: "Stormy Weather," 20th Fox, 1943; "Cabin in the Sky," MGM, 1943; "Carmen Jones," Preminger, 1954; "Porgy and Bess," Goldwyn, 1959; "Raisin in the Sun," Columbia, 1961.

None of these films was a financial success, and producers over the years adopted the maxim that "colored pictures don't sell."

There was scant work for black actors during the first 50 years of film history. a few became well known, largely in roles as menials: Clarence Muse, Louise Beavers, Bill Robinson, Ethel Waters, Eddie "Rochester" Anderson. Hattie McDaniel won an Oscar for her role as Mammy in "Gone with the Wind."

Others were relegated to roles in which they appeared incredibly lazy or frightened of ghosts, Stepin Fetchit, Willie Best, Farina of the Our Gang comedies, and an actor who was called "Sleep 'n' Eat."

Paul Robeson played a few leading roles in the 1930s, mostly in non-Hollywood films such as "The Emperor Jones," and "Sanders of the River." Lena Horne appeared in MGM musicals, but her songs were carefully isolated so they could be cut from showings in the South.

Sidney Poitier was the star who triggered the Black Revolution in films.

The Nassau-born actor had been in movies since 'No Way Out" in 1950, but he seemed destined for billing under such stars as Tony Curtis and Rock Hudson. Then in 1963 he starred in "Lilies of the Field," and won the Oscar as best actor.

Hollywood was quick to realize the value of the newfound star, and he appeared in such moneymakers as "A Patch of Blue," "To Sir with Love," "In the Heat of the Night" and "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner." Always he portrayed a successful black in the white world.

"The industry discovered something from Poitier's films," says Jim Brown, the pro footballer who became a black film star. "Over half the patronage came from blacks in the big cities.

"That pointed out two things to the producers: that the industry needed some blacks stars; and that dignity was needed in the portrayal of blacks on the screen."

Poitier's immense success helped create stardom for other black actors: Brown, Raymond St. Jacques, Richard Roundtree, Godfrey Cambridge, Calvin Lockhart, Yaphet Kotto.

Black pictures helped solve a crisis for theater owners. With whites moving to the suburbs, massive old theaters in the central cities seemed doomed to decay and destruction. The lure of black films began filling up those theaters with Negroes who remained in the cities.

Film companies began to see the need of black directors to interpret the black experience. Magazine photographer Gordon Parks was the pioneer with "The Learning Tree" in 1969. Last year he scored with "Shaft."

Melvin Van Peebles directed "Watermelon Man" for Columbia, then made "Sweet Sweetback" on his own for an immense profit. Other black directors include Mark Warren, ("Come Back, Charleston Blue"); Wendell Franklin, ("A Bus Is Coming"); Poitier, ("Buck and the Preacher"); Ivan Dixon, ("Trouble Man.")

Even with blacks directing blacks, critics have raised the question: "Do these films really reflect the black experience or are they merely white films done in blackface?"

Contact Lens Help 13-Month-Old Boy

By IVONNE BICUDO

SAO PAULO, Brazil (UPI)— Ricardo da Costa Villela, 13 months old, may be the youngest user of contact lenses in the world. He's been wearing them for two months.

Last April, Mrs. Maria da Costa Villela, 30, Ricardo's mother, discovered the infant had a problem with his right eye. An optometrist diagnosed myopia caused by atrophy of the optical nerve and advised that contact lenses might help the problem.

Ricardo started using the lenses one hour per day. Now he wears them up to eight hours daily. The doctor believes there is a chance of preserving the sight in the right eye.

Mrs. Villela, who has two other children, puts in the lenses and removes them. She says that Ricardo never fusses about them. But his brother and sister, Joao Francisco, 7, and Vera Cristina, 4, have had more difficulty adjusting to the situation. "They have been jealous of the extra attention given to Ricardo," their mother says.

However, there's a new game in the house, too, as Vera Cristina tells it:

"Suddenly, Mommy will call everyone in the house and say, 'Ricardo's lens fell down again. Let's see who will find it." Then there is a lot of fun, with Daddy, Mommy, the maids and everybody on their knees looking for the little piece of glass that is good for the eyes of the baby."

Cool Reaction To Bryce Canyon

PANGUITCH, Utah (UPI)— In 1875, Ebenezer Bryce, the first white man to homestead in the region of Bryce Canyon, now a national park, was asked what he thought of the two-mile-by-three-mile geological wonderland.

"Well, it's a hell of a place to lose a cow," he said.

Much Interest Seen In Coming Job Fair

RALEIGH — About 400 employers are expected to be represented at an eastern U.S. job fair to be held at Camp Lejune July 19.

Business has indicated great interest, according to W.P. Minette, development specialist at the Regional Development Institute of East Carolina University at Greenville, coordinator for the fair.

"A transport company in Illinois is sending six interviewers," Minette said. "We are getting a barrage of phone calls inquiring about the availability of various skills. This is the type of response we are getting from a wide spectrum of states."

Minette said the State of New Jersey is sending its state personnel director. He said federal government officials at Washington have expressed interest and plan to have representatives at the job fair.

The fair is a joint project of Governor Bob Scott and the Marine Corps. It is an effort to match the job needs of returning veterans with the skill and training requirements of industry and business in North Carolina and the eastern part of the nation.

Major General Carl A. Youngdale, Commanding General of Camp Lejeune, said 200 skills will be represented among an estimated 4,000 men leaving service at Lejeune during the summer.

Employers may still send representatives to the job fair by contacting Job Fair Coordinator, Post Office Box 2703, Greenville, North Carolina or telephone 919-758-6650.

Plan Course In Aerospace

A course in modern aviation and aerospace will be offered by East Carolina University July 17—28. The course, which may be audited by all interested persons, carries graduate study credit or certificate renewal credit for participating teachers.

The course is co-sponsored by the ECU School of Education, the Civil Air Patrol, the National Aerospace Association and the U. S. Air Force.

Dr. Douglas Jones, dean of the School of Education, said the course consists of demonstrations and lectures by experts in the field and a tour of Cape Kennedy. Course participants will be flown to the Cape in an Air Force prop jet.

He also noted the the course in interdisciplinary, involving subject matter relevant to social science, vocational counceling, language arts, human biology, and chemistry, as well as physics and mathematics.

Further information about the course is available from Dean Jones at the ECU School of Education.

Five Guests For Program

Five guest artists will appear with the Eastern Philharmonic Orchestra conducted by Sheldon Morgenstern Saturday, at 8:15 p.m. in Dana Auditorium at Guilford College.

Bela Bartok's "String Quartet No. 6" will comprise the first half of the program. Performing in the quartet will be violinists Derry Deane and Julia Kohl, violist Julia Moseley, and cellist Roger Drinkall.

The second half of the evening's concert will present internationally acclaimed German-born pianist Veronica Jochum in a performance of Brahms' "Piano Concerto No. 1."

Tickets for the concert will be available at the door at $2.00 for adults and $1.00 for students.

Says Public Must Learn

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Nick Galifianakis, D-N.C., says the public is going to have to be taught a "personal responsibility to the environment" or else the government will have to spend more and more of its recreational funds for the regulation of park users.

His comments came in a written statement presented Tuesday to a public form on a proposed National Outdoor Recreation Plan being prepared by the Interior Department's Bureau of Outdoor Recreation.

Galifinakis said the department ought to adopt a policy which would seek to "provide the greatest possible range of recreation oppportunities to all Americans" without sacrificing environmental quality.

He said one of the problems facing recreation facilities is "the lack of public understanding about the use of such facilities."

"Without personal comprehension of the environment and self-regulation, the government on all levels will be compelled to spend increasingly large portions of recreational funds for the regulation of users," he said.

He said he would also like to see more facilities designed specifically for the poor, the handicapped and the elderly.

'Paper College'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A "paper college" in the future? Looks possible. The National Endowment for the Humanities has awarded a grant to the University of California, San Diego, to develop a pilot program for college-level courses. If successful, the college courses will be made available to newspaper readers nationwide. Each article—er, lecture—will be 1,400 words.

Associated Press Writer

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Yippies, Zippies and Gays didn't join hands and dance in the streets when George McGovern clinched the Democratic presidential nomination.

In fact, many of the 1,500 counterculture demonstrators camped out at Flamingo Park scarcely seemed to notice what was going on at Convention Hall, what with all the pot, skinny dipping and good vibes to be had.

"What difference does it make?" asked David Cohen, a member of the Students for a Democratic Society from Chicago. "He isn't going to end racism. He isn't going to buy capitalism."

But if there was little celebrating that McGovern had won out in the preconvention maneuvering, it was easy to find a kind word for the South Dakota senator.

"Anything would make me happy if it means Nixon will no longer rule the country," said Kenneth Grogan, 26, of Tampa, Fla. "McGovern is about the best there is, but I don't think everyone is satisfied with him."

The prospect of McGovern as president was cheered some of the young people.

"I'm happy about it," said Bill Kohler, a beer-sipping former Army private who now belongs to Vietnam Veterans Against the War. "I'd like someone to stop the war right now, and he can't do that. But he's still our best hope."

Several nondelegates at Flamingo Park worried that McGovern might change some of his positions.

"I hope he doesn't back down on a lot of implied promises," said Ti Culver, a 23-year-old Minnesota volunteer for the People's Party. "He's already backed off on abortion, amnesty and drug laws."

An even stronger criticism came from the Zippies, a vocal group of dissidents who broke with the Youth International Party—Yippies.

"After some of the compromises he's made with conservative Democrats, I'm beginning to wonder," said Zippie Eddie Harper of Orlando, Fla. "He may turn out just like Tricky Dick if he keeps on like he's going."

But the skeptics were far outnumbered Tuesday night by the apathetic — demonstrators who grooved with their own thing under the huge banyan tree in Flamingo Park.

When Democrats wrangled over the crucial California delegation challenge early Tuesday morning, less than a hundred young protesters watched on a color television set perched on a table in the park. At the some time, nearly 200 jockeyed for a good seat at the swimming pool where skinny dippers frolicked.

When McGovern himself showed up to address a senior citizen's rally at the Flamingo Park stadium Sunday, only scattering of youths were intermingled with the oldsters.

Susan Wolf, a pretty blonde in a long dress, was asked how she liked the senator's speech as she walked back to the park.

"Actually, I didn't hear what he said," she answered with a thin smile. "I was too stoned."

Man Indicted In Shooting Case

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A man accused of firing at least eight shots into the crowded Raleigh Union Bus Station on June 24 was indicted Tuesday by the Wake County Grand Jury.

The jury indicted Warren G. Stphenson, 49, on charges of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill and firing into an unoccupied building.

No one was injured in the incident.

Claim Residents Stealing Water

GARNER, N.C. (AP) — The town of Garner has charged 30 residents of the Gatewood subdivision with stealing water.

Residents of the subdivision recently circulated a petition saying they would refuse to pay their water bills which are double rates charged persons who live inside the city limits.

When the town reacted by cutting off their water and taking out the meters, some of the residents allegedly used connector pipes to tap on the city water system.

Demo Reform Appears Doomed

By JOHN BECKLER
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A proposal to rebuild the Democratic party on the basis of the 1972 convention reforms appears doomed, victim of the California credentials fight, strong opposition from organized labor and party pros, and general apathy.

The plan, which would establish a national Democratic party with dues-paying members and run by grass-roots-controlled organizations, is unlikely even to come to a vote at the convention.

The proposed charter would extend into the party organization the open procedures and broadened representation that have been applied successfully to the national convention. The convention enthusiastically extended the reforms to the 1976 convention Tuesday night, but there is no such ready acceptance as yet for restructuring the party.

The proposed charter was drafted by two party-reform commissions set up by the 1968 convention, including one that Sen. George McGovern led before entering the presidential race. It was approved by the convention's Rules Committee, but has one more hurdle to clear before it can be presented to the convention for final approval.

It takes a special resolution from the Rules Committee to send it to the floor, and the committee was unable to act Sunday when it was supposed to because of a fight over California delegate seating.

With that opportunity gone, sponsors of the charter fear it will be lost in the convention's rush toward nominating McGovern and a running mate.

Most of the opposition to the charter by established party leaders is centered on proposals to triple the size of the Democratic National Committee — giving majority control to members elected in open district caucuses — and to set up a 3,900-delegate convention between presidential-nominating conventions to map party policy and elect the national chairman.

The influence of state and county party chairmen and national committee members would be greatly diluted under the charter and they have been actively opposing it at the convention. Organized labor has been lobbying against it for the same reason.

The most important aspect of the plan, from the viewpoint of its backers, is its proposal to sign up members in a national Democratic party and have them pay annual dues. They envision a steady flow of dues that would provide the operating funds for the party, ending its reliance on contributions and fund-raising drives.

To Offer Terry In Nomination

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Mississippi newspaper editor Hodding Carter III is scheduled to place the name of former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford in nomination for president at tonight's session of the Democratic National Convention, according to Sanford campaign aides.

Carter, 36, is editor of the Greenville Delta Democrat-Times and vice chairman of the Credentials Committee.

Set Repairs Of Giant Carrier

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Repair work is to begin Thursday on the aircraft carrier Forrestal, hit by an eight-hour fire Monday.

The giant vessel was scheduled to sail to the Mediterranean next week to relieve the carrier Kennedy, but a Navy board of inquiry investigating the fire indicated Tuesday the ship cannot leave by then.

The ship's electrical system was heavily damaged.

The fire began about 3 a.m. Monday as the Forrestal was tied to a pier at Norfolk Naval Station.

No one was injured.

Pitt Farmers Receive $1 Million In Program

Approximately 2,500 farmers in Pitt County have received farm set-aside program payments totaling $1,055,261.85 during the first week of July, according to Stacy J. Evans, county executive director for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS).

By the end of the month, the total will be about $1,250,000.00 to 3,200 farmers.

Nationwide, approximately 750,000 cotton, feed grain, and wheat producers were mailed a total of $850 million in expedited preliminary payments in time for the checks to arrive in producers' hands on July 1.

Payments under the set-aside programs are made to farmers who agree to set aside part of their land from production in order to meet a national objective of balancing supply and demand in certain commodities.

These payments help to off-set the loss of returns from cropland that otherwise would be used for income-yielding production, and on which the farmer is obliged to pay taxes and apply needed conservation steps, according to officials of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Payments to producers are limited to $55,000 per person for each of three crops — feed grain, wheat, and cotton — under the Agricultural Act of 1970.

Nationally, total payments are expected to be about 3.7 billion. Total 1972 farm set-aside program payments in Pitt County are expected to be about $1,276,800.00

Feed grain producers in the nation ultimately will receive about $1.9 billion, cotton producers about $825 million, and wheat producers about $1 billion.

Preliminary payments to wheat producers are limited by law to 75 percent of final payments. Final wheat certificate payments will be made after December 1.

Feed grain and cotton farmers may or may not get a final payment, depending on market conditions.

The expedited farm program payments are made possible be streamlined procedures inaugurated in 1970 by ASCS.

The action enabled farmers to receive the entire payment due them in the 1970 and 1971 programs six to eight weeks earlier than ever before.

These early payments help many producers reduce their need for long-term credit and cut the amount of interest paid.

Navajo Medical School Planned

By MIKE McCLOY
Associated Press Writer

WINDOW ROCK, Ariz. (AP) — Saying the white man doesn't understand their problems, Navajo tribal leaders are planning to build their own medical college, complete with medicine men and Indian healers, on this isolated reservation in northeastern Arizona.

Tribal Chairman Peter MacDonald said Navajo medicine men and tribal herbalists would be used to treat and teach about mental and physical illnesses in their own ways.

"Navajos do not go to psychiatrists for emotional or psychological illnesses," MacDonald said. "They have medicine men for that.

"Through chants and ceremonies, they are relieved of these tensions," he added. "This way is much better than the couch treatment."

While Public Health Service physicians scoffed at such Indian customs in past years, that situation has changed somewhat, MacDonald said.

"They thought the work of a medicine man was unsanitary and useless," he said. "They were separating the patient from the medicine man.

"Sometimes the patient simply left the hospital, saying 'If I can't be allowed to use my medicine man, I'm just going to go.'"

Now, MacDonald said, doctors in clinics on the reservation have begun allowing patien6s "one to four days leave so they can have a saying at the ceremonies they believe will help their ailment."

The idea of the medical school was approved by the Navajo Tribal Council recently.

By July, MacDonald said, "we will get the first preliminary costs of the school, its location, phases of the project that will be possible and possible sources of funding.

The proposal will be submitted to the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Water-Saving Theme Stressed

CHICAGO, Ill. (UPI)—"Better water management" is a term you'll be hearing a lot this year. It refers to the need for water conservation and pollution control. Even if your area doesn't have water shortages, you can save money by conserving water.

The National Association of Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Contractors says a thermostatic control on a shower saves $10 a year in water and fuel bills. Having a leaky faucet fixed can save $30 a year on the water bill. 1-16th-in leak wastes 3,000 gallons a month.

Eye Burns Call For Washing

NEW YORK (UPI)—First aid for eye burns, from flames or chemicals (acid, aerosol spray, caustic liquid, dye):

"Flood with water immediately," says the Society for Visual Care. "Hold the head under a faucet or pour cold water into the eye from a glass or other container." As quickly as possible after that, see a doctor.

FLOOD DEATHS

U.S. War Against Drugs Waged On Global Scale

By NICHOLAS DANILOFF

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Two of the 10,000 confidential diplomatic messages that pour daily through the State Department communications center recently were sorted out and forwarded to room 7328.

There, in his panelled office, a one-time Senate contender who has become a key figure in the Nixon administration's international fight against narcotics, read them with more than passing satisfaction.

The reports were from Ankara, Turkey, and Bangkok, Thailand.

They showed that the last legal harvest of opium gum in Turkey was expected to be down to a low figure of about 64 tons because of bad weather, and that on June 9 authorities in Thailand seized 3,520 pounds of illegal opium.

The man who received the reports was Nelson Gross, a soft-spoken, tough-minded lawyer turned diplomat. In an interview with UPI, he reflected on U.S. achievements in combatting narcotics production abroad since President Nixon declared on June 17, 1971, that he was assigning the problem a top priority. Gross said:

"I'm certainly satisfied that a major effort has been mounted to meet the President's instructions of June 17, 1971. Any intimation that we are not pressing mforward would be wrong.

Drug Fight Continues

"But I am not satisfied that we can now rest on our laurels or that we have finished anything. We are making serious inroads, and we are just beginning to stop production. Many narcotics plans are now in the early stages of implementation. Other plans are still under negotiation with foreign governments."

As a result of the President's decision, a cabinet Committee on International Narcotics Control was established under the Chairmanship of Secretary of State William P. Rogers. Within the committee, a working group was set up with White House assistant Egil Krogh as chairman.

Gross, who unsuccessfully challenged New Jersey Sen. Harrison Williams in 1970, was named by Nixon last August to serve on the working group as senior adviser from the State Department on narcotics matters.

At that point, the 500,000 addicts in the United States were consuming between 6 and 10 tons of heroin annually. Best available information showed that 80 per cent of the opium—from which heroin is refined—originated in Turkey. Another 15 per cent came from Mexico and approximately 5 per cent from Vietnam, Laos, Thailand and Burma.

As a result of U.S.-Turkish cooperation—some of which predated Gross's assignment—the Turkish government has decided to ban opium production entirely after 1972. The age-old cultivation of opium poppies is to be replaced in Turkey with other crops.

Mexico also has been moving with new energy against the illegal growers. Now the United States plans to give Mexico an additional grant for aircraft, land vehicles, and technical equipment valued at $1,300,000 to accelerate control operations.

Asian "Connection"

Nevertheless, the administration has been under attack in recent weeks for allegedly ignoring a South East Asian "connection" in the opium traffic.

Alfred W. McCoy, a candidate for a PhD. at Yale University, charged before a congressional subcommittee June 2 that high government officials in South Vietnam, Laos and Thailand were actively engaged in the drug traffic and that the United States had stood silently by.

Dr. Hans J. Spielmann of the University of Heidelberg claimed in an article published by the New York Times May 17 that the Central Intelligence Agency had been involved in drug trafficking in Southeast Asia. He said the aim was to retain the support of anti-Communist guerrillas who traditionally had grown opium.

Gross acknowledges that some Asian officials have been involved in the drug traffic in the past. He also concedes that Air America, the airline supported by the CIA, unknowingly may have carried some clandestine shipments of narcotics.

But more significant, he feels, is the fact that the United States has concluded agreements with 57 foreign countries to regulate and control the narcotics traffic. A number of offending officials have been punished.

Two deputies of the South Vietnamese legislature were arrested. One was acquitted; the other received a seven-year prison term. When the newly appointed Laotian ambassador to Paris, Prince Sopsaisana, was found to be carrying 132 pounds of heroin at Orly Airport, he was quickly recalled.

Laotian Gen. Ouan Rathikoun was reputed to be involved in the drug trade before it was outlawed by Laos in November, 1971, but Gross said the United States is not aware of any wrongdoing on his part now.

In testimony on June 9, Gross gave a rundown of achievements in Southeast Asia:

—In South Vietnam, the withdrawal of U.S. troops has "knocked the bottom out of the heroin market." Arrests on narcotics charges rose from 2,911 in 1969 to 6,464 in 1971. Heroin seizures rose from 12 pounds in 1969 to 271 pounds in 1971. Opium seizures rose from 11 pounds in 1969 to 1,071 pounds in 1971.

—In Laos, the government passed a narcotics control law in 1971 outlawing opium production for the first time.

Laotian Opium Slashed

"The production of opium in Laos, which may have been as high as 100 tons a year, has been sharply curtailed, and our intelligence indicates that the flow of opium and heroin through the country have also decreased considerably," Gross said.

On the other hand, there are difficulties:

—Thailand has been cooperating with the United States but mountainous terrain has afforded sanctuary for traffickers. "Enforcement efforts by the Thai government are hindered by the impossibility of controlling adequately a long and mountainous border and the complexities of controlling passenger traffic and commercial traffic inside Thailand," Gross reported.

—In Burma, U.S. intelligence sources have pinpointed Lo Hsing Han as a kingpin in the narcotics trade but he has consistently escaped arrest:

"His control of the area opium runs the gamut from opium poppy fields, along the smuggling routes, to his heroin refineries," Gross said. Lo has a virtual monopoly on heroin refining. Many of the refineries driven out of Laos and Thailand have come under Lo's control in Burma.

"We have discussed the urgent problem posed by Lo's operation with the Burmese. But Lo operates within insurgent-controlled territory and is beyond the control of the Burmese government."

Watch Middle East

The U.S. government is pleased with the Turkish decision to ban further opium growing. But Gross and his associates now are watching to see if production will spring up elsewhere in the Middle East to fill the vacuum.

Afghanistan now seems the most logical new source of opium for the narcotics trade. U.S. diplomats are quietly, but patiently, trying to impress the Afghan government with the American concern.

President Nixon's recent joint communique with the Shah of Iran, whom he visited after his Moscow summit meeting, pledges Iran to cease opium cultivation when its neighbors cease. The United States hopes to use this pledge to encourage the Afghan government to stop legal production.

Summing up, Gross said: "It would be at least another 12 months before we could claim success. But our international effort is beginning to tell."

He takes some satisfaction in the news that a "nickel bag" of heroin in the Washington area is now selling for $6-7, up from last year's price of $5, a reflection of its scarcity. Furthermore, its content—according to the latest analyses—has dropped from 10 per cent heroin last year to between 2 and 5 per cent heroin this year.

That, Gross believes, is partly due to his efforts.

Try Protecting 'Back-Country'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A trial program to protect some fragile back-country areas, by limiting each area's use to the number of persons it can accommodate without environmental damage, has been started in three national parks.

The three are Kings Canyon National Park in California, Rocky Mountain National Park in Colorado, and Great Smoky Mountains National Park in Tennessee and North Carolina.

The program applies only to the back-country of the three parks, not to normal visitor usage of developed areas within the parks.

Danes Prefer To Drink Milk

COPENHAGEN (UPI)—Consumption of hard liquor jumped 20 per cent in 1971, but milk still is the favorite drink among Danes, according to a recent report.

On average, the population of 4.9 million downed 28 gallons of milk per person last year while intake of whisky, gin and brandy totaled 1-6th gallon per capita.

Specific Needs In Psychology

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

Prof. Lawrence has the largest class enrolments of anybody in the Psychology Department. And it is because he understands how to motivate people! Hs appeals to their specific hunger for help in solving the practical problems of everyday life.

Case U-533: Lawrence H., aged 38, is a psychology professor.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "the enrolment in psychology has doubled at our university this year.

"And I think you popular newspaper column has been partly the cause.

"For during registration week, I personally met at least a dozen students who asked me if Dr. Crane's type of psychology was covered in our courses.

"What they meant, when I quizzed them further, was their desire to acquire specific strategy for winning friends, carrying on convensation, closing the sale, etc.

"Some of our colleagues may criticize your stress on short words and 'Horse Sense' when dealing with your office cases, but the general public certainly enjoys that approach.

"Indeed, I find that my students in 'Applied Psychology' retain your college textbook at the end of the course, instead of selling it back to the campus bookstore."

Consumer Surveys

One of the first rules of Applied Psychology is to slant your sales appeals toward the specific desires of the customer, student, parishioner or patient.

Which one of these book titles thus sold the most copies when both were run nationwide for an entire year in full page newspaper ads?

—The Art of Courtship
—The Art of Kissing

Think carefully before you make your choice!

For one title produced 17,500 sales in contrast to the other's 60,500.

And this pair of book titles holds the secret for success in public speaking, writing, salesmanship and teaching!

Analyze those titles again and you will find that "Courtship" is a general category, while "Kissing" is a specific subhead under "Courtship."

Since people routinely prefer specific answers to their problems, then it was the "Kissing" title which sold the 60,500 books!

Yet both titles recieved the same amount of nationwide advertising in leading newspapers, coast to coast.

In my college textbook, "Psychology Applied," I thus "motivate" beginning psychology by including 21 chapters on their specific practical needs.

So there are entire chapters on Salesmanship, Public Speaking, Winning Friends, Writing, Music, Education, Sex Differences, Marriage Problems, Religion, etc.

And the professors who use this textbook, constantly report that it "doubles and even trebles" enrolments for their advanced courses.

For this textbook offers a panoramic view of all the fields of activity in which the students can later earn a good salary by knowing practical psychology.

Yet some of the "ivory tower" professors still attack my textbook for its practical emphasis! Imagine!

If they'd learn the 5 basic laws of Motivation Psychology!

So send for my booklet "The New Psycholoby of Advertising and Selling," enclosing a long stamped, return envolope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Opening lead: Jack of ♡ South virtually catapulted his side into the six spade contract presented today, but once there, he delivered an unerring performance as the declarer to justify his aggressive course during the auction.

North opened the bidding with one no trump and South jumped to three spades, holding 16 points in high cards and distribution. When this response was raised to four by partner, a slam try is definitely in order. However, holding a worthless doubleton in hearts, a Blackwood inquiry is not advisable. With this type of holding it is better to tell than to ask. If South bids either five clubs or five diamonds [to show the ace], it gives North the opportunity to cue bid the ace of hearts and now South can carry on to six spades with the assurance that his side is not off the first two tricks in hearts.

West opened the jack of hearts, and after considerable deliberation, South decided to play East for the king. So reasoning, he put up the ace of hearts from dummy, crossed over to the ace of diamonds, and then reentered dummy with the ace of clubs to lead the queen of diamonds. East followed suit with the eight and declarer discarded his remaining heart. West was in with the king of diamonds and led back the ten of hearts which South ducked in dummy and trumped in his hand with the six of spades.

A club put North in with the queen to lead the nine of spades for a finesse. East followed with the deuce, South the seven and West the three. A small spade was led next and declarer covered East's five with the ten, on which West discarded a diamond.

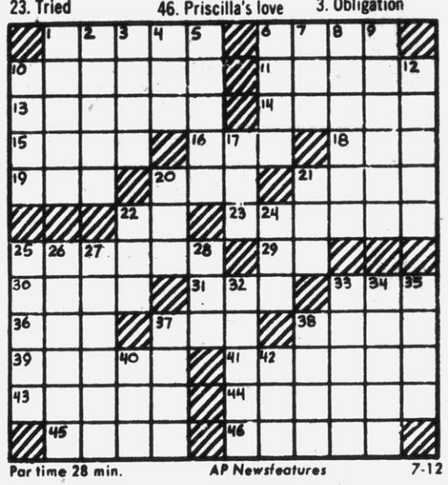

A club was ruffed with the jack of spades as East followed suit and tho North had no more trumps to repeat the finesse against East's king, South was in full charge of the situation. He led the established jack of diamonds on which East and he both discarded clubs. The ten of diamonds followed—East shedding his king of hearts and declarer the king of clubs, his remaining card in that suit.

At trick 12 dummy led a heart and East's king-eight of spades was hopelessly trapped under declarer's ace-queen. The only trick scored by the defense was West's king of diamonds.

Checking Up On The Gypsy Moth

LANSING, Mich. (URI)—Because the gypsy moth won't stand still for a head count, the Michigan Department of Agriculture has set out 4,000 traps throughout the lower peninsula to determine if there are any of the pests in the state.

Michigan has been free of gypsy moths since 1967 and wants to stay that way. The gypsy moth caterpillars strip the leaves from millions of acres of timber in other states. In 1970 nearly 800,000 acres of woodlands in eight northeastern states were destroyed by gypsy moth infestation.

Endurance Tests Banned By Law

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI)—Seattle has an old law against physical "endurance contests" held without city permission. And, in any event, no such permits can be issued for any event lasting more than one day.

The ordinance apparently was written in an effort to curtail old fashioned bare knuckle boxing matches a la John L. Sullivan. But it is just as illegal to stage other assaults on world records, such as continuous bowling, seesawing, pool playing, volleyball and rocking chair rocking.

Undergrads Try Role Of Reform

ATLANTA (UPI) — Unusual education students here won't teach school. They will take part in educational reform movements, serve on citizens' committees and local school boards, or serve as legislative aids in education. The they? Twenty undergrads in Emory University's new degree program aimed at developing informed citizen leadership of education. Offered for the first time in the fall of '71, the program is a departure from traditional university programs education.

Little Partying At Convention

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — "We're eating hot dogs this year, not filet mignon," says Liz Carpenter, summing up the doldrums of the social circuit at the Democratic National Convention.

"It's a different spread," added Mrs. Carpenter, a White House aide in the Johnson administration and always a favored guest on the Washington social circuit.

It appears that the hoopla and parties which sparked past Democratic conventions are passed this year.

Some Democrats speculate this is caused by the style of the convention — the new breed of delegates whose tastes run more to dungarees and peanut butter than to cocktails and caviar. Others figure the question is purely financial — another manifestation of the party's $9.3-million debt.

"I looked for invitations and you know, there weren't any," said Mary Hoyt, press secretary for Mrs. George McGovern. "And if there were, what would people think? That we're down here to party?"

Mrs. Terry Sanford, wife of the former North Carolina governor seeking the Democratic presidential nomination, said her social calendar isn't as full as she'd expected.

"I thought maybe I wasn't being invited to the parties, but it seems there aren't many," she said. "Other years we've received lots of invitations to receptions and teas and things, but this year there doesn't seem to be much going on."

The fat-cats are here all right. Sometimes they can be seen cabana-hopping along the stretch of hotel beaches, but few are throwing extravagant black-tie parties.

In a convention week usually studded with fashion shows, teas and staid "ladies' functions," there was only one fashion show. Tickets went for a record low $3. And some went begging.

"These things used to be command performances," said Mrs. Gilbert Hahn of Washington, who did attend. "But now they're absolutely passe. It's delicious that this aspect is over. Four years ago this kind of thing would have been packed every day. Now who cares?"

Hotel beauty parlors say business isn't as usual, that the increase in women delegates hasn't helped their business one bit. Slacks, halters and sandles are in, as acceptable on the convention platform as they are on the beach. Waxen, coiffed hair-dos are out.

"I don't know what you call it, but I call it grim," said a Washington social writer who came to the convention to describe the party scene. "If it keeps up like this, I could go out of business."

TOO MUCH

MANILA (UPI) — When teased about the elopement of her widowed, 65-year-old mother with a 20-year-old youth, Rosemarie Tabang tried to kill herself with poison. First aid treatment saved her life.

Taylor Proposes A Fall Primary

RALEIGH (AP) — An unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, Pat Taylor, says he believes the North Carolina primary should be changed from May to sometime in the fall, perhaps in late September.

The lieutenant governor said, "This would shorten the length of the campaign and it needs to be shortened."

Taylor was defeated by Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles in the June 3 runoff for the Democratic nomination. His comments came in a telephone interview Tuesday.

Admitting it would be difficult to do, Taylor said: "They ought to limit the time in which you campaign. I know it's hard to differentiate between what is campaign time and what is not."

He said, "I don't know of any effective way to limit the total spending for public office. But I would advocate limiting the amount spent on television and radio because that can be controlled."

Taylor reported earlier that he spent more than $600,000 in his campaign. Bowles said his expenditures amounted to about $875,000.

One of the chief methods used by Bowles in the campaign was television.

"Television is very effective," Taylor said. "That's why you have the Ronald Reagans, George Murphys and Shirley Temples running for office. They know how to get across to the public."

He added, "You can make a 10-page speech outlining specific programs, such as mental and public health and environmental control, but you don't get as much out of it as a 30-second spot on television."

Since the runoff, Taylor said he has been trying to do some letter writing, catching up with his law practice, puttering around the house and resting a little.

"After running for office, not having to travel is like getting a rest," he added.

He said he has no plans for public office after he steps down as lieutenant governor early in January.

But he said he plans to maintain an interest in politics "and I'll probably participate to some extent in the fall election. I'm going to try to do a little less speech making and make the talks a little more significant."

Daily Ice For Potted Mums

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — It happens every day near the heavily guarded speaker's platform at the Democratic National Convention:

Two Secret Service men escort a pair of middle-aged women to the platform who then proceed to pack 50 pounds of ice around the 134 gold-and-white potted mums arranged at the foot of the podium.

Some $428 Million Later, Dissatisfaction Rife

By LEE JAMES
Associated Press Writer

LIBBY, Mont. (AP) — The government has relocated a highway, a railroad and a town in building the Libby Dam and even conquered a mountain. Now, $428 million and a few wildlife areas later, some residents wonder if they didn't like it better the old way.

The gigantic Lake Koocanusa in rugged northwestern Montana, has begun filling to an ultimate length of 90 miles. Several events have put the project into increasing public controversy.

Fishermen are unhappy over the loss of a major portion of the Kootenai River, where cutthroat trout were a favorite prey. And anglers have been further upset by the unexpected emergence of nitrogen poisoning in fish below the dam.

Some businessmen say the dam will bring only water—not economic growth.

"From the recreational aspect, the Kootenai River was more valuable to us than the dam," says Stuart Swenson, an avid fisherman and real estate man at Libby, which is about 18 miles from the dam.

"And from the business standpoint, it was better before they started buidling the dam," Swenson added.

"Some investors didn't come in the area because of the booming atmosphere, afraid the influx of people would be too temporary," Swenson said, mentioning several retail chains which had discussed coming into the area.

The businessmen and residents of the Libby area talked in terms of the present influence of the dam, giving the impression that the future benefits are uncertain.

"It is hard to project what kind of lake we are going to have," Swenson said. "It potentially may be a great lake, in maybe a couple of years, but we'll lose our cutthroat trout fishing."

Agness Hafferman, a fisherwoman and a motel owner with her husband William, was more optimistic.

"If people get on the ball and try to advertise this place, I think it will be good for tourism," she said, adding: "I lost some good fishing spots, but I found new places."

"You have to have progress," Mrs. Hafferman said, "and the new highway will put the people of Lincoln County in better touch with each other."

Highway 37, to which Mrs. Hafferman referred, was only part of the massive undertaking the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers began after a treaty with Canada was signed in 1961. Construction began in 1966.

The primary objective of the dam was to alleviate the flooding in the Columbia River Basin, especially at Bonners Ferry, Idaho, and the Kootenai Flats in Canada.

To make way for the reservoir, named Lake Koocanusa, 52 miles of Highway 37 was moved to higher ground. Some 60 miles of a Burlington Northern railroad spur line was moved to a new location along the Fisher River.

The small town of Rexford, containing about 60 residents, was transplanted to higher ground. The Corps completely rebuilt the community structures, streets, sewer and water lines.

In September, 1971, a bridge over Lake Koocanusa was completed. The largest bridge in Montana, the structure spans 2,020 feet, is 290 feet high, and cost $4.7 million.

Nelson Morrow, administrator of the Libby Dam project, said the dam structure, about 81 per cent completed, would contain four million cubic yards of concrete, enough to lay the foundations of more than 128,000 two-bedroom homes.

Ultimate power provided by the dam five years after completion would be 800,000 kilowatts, he said.

"We are right on our schedule" Morrow said, adding the dam would be in full operation by June, 1973.

He said little has delayed the project except for a land slide in January, which delayed concrete work for one week.

The threat of slides at the dam site remains as the one constant problem, he said.

The tunnel through Elk Mountain, at seven miles long the second longest in the U.S., presented a time problem, Morrow said, but the engineers stayed within their schedule.

The completed structure will hold a lake of 4,965,000 acre feet, about four miles wide in its path along the Kootenai.

The effect on the area after the workers leave the structure behind is still under scrutiny, especially from sportsmen and environmentalists.

The Montana Fish and Game Department is negotiating with the Corps for enough money to replace two game ranges partially inundated by the water and made hazardous to wildlife with the location of the highway and railroad.

Jim Posewitz, director of the department's environmental resources division, said getting concessions for the ecology of the area was a long and painful process.

The nitrogen problem, totally unexpected, is another target of biologists for both the Corps and the state fish and game department.

The problem is caused when water drops from a height into the stilling basin, causing oxygen and nitrogen to go into solution, the experts say.

A common problem in the Columbia and Snake rivers, the phenomenon was discovered recently in fish below the dam, which exhibited symptoms of "gas bubble disease," caused by the solution entering through the gills.

Morrow said the problem was not expected because of the different type of stilling basin at Libby Dam.

Tutor From The Gridiron

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI)—In his football days at Stanford University, a lot of people thought Tom Massey would someday turn professional.

He has—only off the gridiron.

Massey, a fine defensive back, now directs a volunteer tutoring program aimed at children in the nearby black ghetto of East Palo Alto.

"We're attempting to teach them to read, but it's much more than that," said Massey, who heads the Stanford Black Student Volunteer Services Center.

"We want to show them it's fun to read and that school is a worthwhile activity," the 1969 Stanford graduate in psychology said. "We have to help make school a place where kids want to be."

The program, started in 1968, requires that students spend four hours a week teaching the youngsters. It's for credit and involves a three-hour class one night a week, with papers to write and examination to take.

"When it all began in 1968, we were striving for education and experiences more relevant to black students," said Massey, who is working toward a Ph. D. in the School of Education.

The Stanford students wanted to "do something for the community and to use our expertise without waiting for a teaching credential."

Lunch Program Becomes Model

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—A lunch program developed by Philadelphia Catholic schools a little more than a year ago has become a model for others faced with the need to provide hot meals in schools without kitchen facilities.

The program is designed around a line of individual-serving hot entrees in easy-open, pull-top cans and inexpensive electric oven-dispensers that use normal house current. The entrees, when supplemented with milk, fruit and other required foods, make up a lunch that qualifies for assistance under the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Type A lunch program.

Girls Now Use More Cosmetics

NEW YORK (UPI)—Add to contemporary paradoxes: The "natural look" is causing teenage girls to use more cosmetics than ever before. Lester Rand, president of the Rand Youth Poll, reporting this, said:

"In our interviews.. with teenage girls throughout the United States we have found an unusual upsurge in the use of...facial cleansers, foundation and blush. Many girls say these are necessary to achieve a natural, outdoors, healthy look."

TV Super Sleuths Know Their Plots Are Fantasy

By GENE HANDSAKER
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "'Columbo' is pure fantasy," says policeman-author Joseph Wambaugh. "Nothing's technically correct about the show. But what difference does that make? It's fun to watch."

The same goes, he says, for other police shows on television, where the revised maxim reads:

Crime and its detection do indeed pay.

Dennis Weaver, once Marshal Dillon's limping deputy, now prowls the big city in a crimp-brimmed Stetson. From his wheelchair, Raymond Burr helps San Francisco police solve crimes for a fifth season. Glenn Ford zips about in a Jeep as grim Sheriff Sam Cade.

Cannon, Mannix, McMillan, Longstreet, O'Hara, "Adam-12," "The Mod Squad," "The Persuaders"—are they different from TV policemen and private eyes of, say, 15 years ago?

"Then they were sub-human," says Wambaugh. "Now they're super-human."

"Acting styles change," says William Conrad, CBS' 250-pound but agile investigator Frank Cannon. "But no, basically it's the same thing. You play a human being, because detectives are human beings.

"In the old days, a TV private eye was a seedy, downbeaten character working on a shoestring. He was always in trouble with the law, just on the edge of it.

"Now he makes a comfortable living and has a rapport with the police department. He has a good friend there who helps him out."

Variations mingle with successful formulas. Dennis Weaver, as a New Mexico deputy U.S. marshal assigned to New York police, recently caught a fleeing pickpocket with his trusty lariat. Rock Hudson, playing a hip San Francisco police commissioner teamed with pretty Susan Saint James as "MacMillan and Wife," faintly recalls the jaunty old William Powell-Myrna Loy "Thin Man," movies.

James Franciscus, as blind insurance investigator Michael Longstreet, stands off aggressors and solves swindles with the help of his guide dog and an occasional sympathizer.

From the Mark VII police-drama factory where Jack Webb and Harry Morgan once portrayed actual though disguised Los Angeles police cases on "Dragnet" comes "Adam-12." For a fourth season Martin Milner and Kent McCord ride their patrol car in similarly low-key stories adapted from true incidents.

Two young men and a girl are swift-footed undercover agents for police, also for a fourth season, in "The Mod Squad." Jack Lord heads a special investigative unit in the "Hawaii Five-O" dramas filmed in the Hawaiian Islands.

Until they were canceled, James Garner was a sheriff who didn't want to be a sheriff on "Nichols," George Kennedy was a policeman-turned-priest on "Sarge," and Don Adams and Rupert Crosse were bumbling police detectives on "The Partners."

Surveying the surfeit of sleuth series, one critic asked, "What's next? 'Senior Citizen Detective,' a shamus in a retirement village finding out who stole the estrogen?"

No, but Frank Price, Universal Studio executive vice president, is offering ABC a trilogy-type series titaled "The Great Detedtives."

Three series within that heading would rotate in the manner of NBC's "The Bold Ones" and "Mystery Movie." Pilots for all have aired as TV movies: Stewart Granger as Sherlock Holmes, Robert Conrad as Nick Carter, and Eve Arden as a crime-solving schoolteachers.

"It gives us such flexibility," Price says of the concept. "We have the whole field of great detectives to deal with clear back to Edgar Allan Poe."

Detective Sgt. Joe Wambaugh, whose novel about the Los Angeles police, "The New Centurions," became a best seller, sees little attempt at realism on TV.

"TV is for mass consumption. Police shows are pure escapist fare, but why not? If people want realism they can read my books."

Here now, in their lairs, are some practitioners of TV crime detection:

—William Conrad, 50, CBS' plump "Cannon." A Baja California fisherman, British Columbia snowmobiler, San Moritz skier. "I'm strong as an ox and built like a peasant," he says, smiling. For 11 years he was heavy-voiced Marshal Matt Dillon in radio's "Gunsmoke."

Connors has been playing private eye Joe Mannix since 1967. In 1959-60, he starred as private eye Nick Stone in CBS' "Tightrope" series, still seen in reruns.

—Dick Levinson, 37, and Bill Link, 38, creators and executive producers of stooped, apologetic, cigar-smoking, bumbling but tenacious police Lt. Columbo, played by Peter Falk in a rumpled old raincoat. "Of all the shows that premiered last September, 'Columbo' is the front runner in the Nielsen ratings," said Levinson. "Every time it's on—every third week—it's in the top 10."

Levinson and Link have been writing together since they were economics majors at the University of Pennsylvania and sold a short story to Ellery Queen's Mystery Magazine.

In Hollywood the past 12 years, they created "Mannix" and wrote the scripts that launched "McCloud" and "The Lawyers" segment of "The Bold Ones."

Columbo evolved during a movie writers' strike in 1960. Levinson and Link, idle five months, decided to creat a mystery show and asked themselves what kind of detective would be fun. "We thought of one who tracks mud into the house on a rainy day," said Levinson.

Grain Sales May Hit $1 Billion

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz predicts that American grain sales to the Soviet Union may total $1 billion before the end of the three-year, $750 million export agreement recently announced by President Nixon.

Butz labeled his Monday forecast as "only speculation" but said Soviet officials have made no effort to conceal their need for feed grains.

PIGGLY WIGGLY — THE ORIGINAL SELF SERVICE

Chet Atkins Wants To Be Truly Great Guitarist

By NANCY SHIPLEY
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Chet Atkins, "Mr. Guitar" to most of the world, figures "the one talent I have is the ability to see talent in others."

"But," he mused, "I don't know if that's talent — most anybody can do that." Actually he said, he's still pursuing a boyhood ambition: "I would love to master the guitar."

Those strong, gently curving hands have mastered the instrument and Atkins has countless awards and honors to prove it. "But, after 30 years as an artist, his conversation keeps returning to what he really would like — "to be a great guitarist."

"You leave a guitar alone for three days and it doesn't know you when you pick it up," he says. "It's just a constant battle getting acquainted with it and staying acquainted."

"I want to be known as a guitar player," the taciturn star says, "because the guitar has brought me everything I've ever had and I don't want to ever neglect it."

"It's my security blanket," he laughed.

Chet Atkins sees Chet Atkins as a "mediocre guitarist ... and an introspective person."

"A lot of times, I would really like to see myself as other people see me," he said while absent-mindedly toying with a rubber band during an interview shortly after his 48th birthday.

"I wonder if I'm doing the right thing," he ponders aloud. "I try to see into me and see what my motivations are and what they should be, but it's very tough to do ... I don't see myself very well."

"I just try to express myself as best I know how in my music and do what I feel instinctively is right."

Sitting in the massive green velvet chair, his slightly stooped, tall, wiry frame makes him the picture of a man at peace — somewhat in the Abe Lincoln mold.

Atkins, who heads RCA Victor's operations in Nashville, tries not to let his job get to him. And he says the one thing that has changed during the past year — other than his new long hairstyle — is his newfound ability to delegate authority and let someone else do some of the time-consuming things he has been doing.

If things get too tense, he heads out to the golf course or goes home — the one place he relaxes — and secludes himself in a small studio with one of 23 guitars he keeps handy.

Like many men, Atkins falls asleep almost every night in front of the television. But he says he falls asleep with a guitar in his hands.

What does he consider his greatest achievement? He paused, then said he's proud of a lot of things: His annual festival for young guitarists; his guitar teaching course across the nation, and his 25-year association with RCA. He has been an executive with the company for 16 years.

"I've got a right to be proud of that because I got fired from every job I had before RCA," he said.

Between the ages of 18 and 22, he was "pretty green" and had what he called "personality problems" with other musicians with whom he worked.

"I could get a job anywhere (as an artist), but I just couldn't keep it."

Atkins produces records "just for fun." He has produced an untold number of gold records for other artists, but never one for himself.

"I'm sure my albums have probably sold enough to get a gold record," he said, "but I've never checked into it. I just sell enough to keep going, you know."

He says he rarely ever goes back to Luttrell, the little East Tennessee town where he was born, "because it's kind of depressing."

"It's hard to go back home — all those memories come back to you ... I was so poor when I was there ... hungry and poor in every way ..." and his voice trails off.

So sensitive as a boy that music made him cry, Atkins admits to being a bit partial when it comes to public appearances these days.

"I enjoy performing with symphonies more than anything else, I guess. I think because the audiences are more sincere in their applause and they seem to appreciate all kinds of music."

Even with symphonies such as in Boston, Dallas, Houston, Seattle, Atlanta and New Orleans, he plays country music and with an ochestral background, he said, "it works out well."

High U.S. Fire Rate Blamed On Several Factors

By PAUL ROBBINS

BOSTONS (UPI) — Fires killed 12,200 persons and maimed 330,000 others in the United States last year while causing property losses of $2.8 billion. There were 500,000 house fires in which about 6,600 persons — one-third of them children—died.

The statistics add up to making the United States one of the most fire-prone nations in the world — and authorities blame two major factors: carelessness and inattention to, or ignorance of, proven fire prevention methods.

The saddest factor in the high American toll of lives and property from fires, according to Charles S. Morgan, president of the Boston-based National Fire Protection Association (NFPA), is that "it is really unnecessary."

Howard Tipton, executive director of the National Commission on Fire Prevention and Control, in Washington, cites many factors for the high rate of fires in the United States, among them:

Law Enforcement Slack

—City and state fire codes are often inadequately enforced;

—City fire inspections cover industrial and commercial buildings but may omit residential dwellings, where most fire deaths occur;

—Houses are not required to have early fire-warning detection systems—not even in federally assisted construction:

—Fire departments do not conduct enough prevention and education programs to supplement their fire-fighting efforts;

—No national institution has been established to train firemen the way the National Police Academy trains policemen;

—Not enough research has been done on fire-safe construction and on the nature of fire itself, nor has any national information system been set up to facilitate such research.

On the personal level, NFPA's Morgan cites also the traditional American "land of plenty" concept that makes Americans wasteful of their resources.

"We are a profligate country in respect to our resources," he said in an interview. "We have lived for 300 years in an area that appeared to have boundless resources. Cut down a tree and two will grow. Burn down a house and you can build another."

The first secretary of the NFPA, Frank H. Wentworth, described the country's casual approach to fire safety as "a national disease."

Americans are great to express horror and provide sympathy when there is a fire tragedy, Morgan said. In other countries fire victims get sympathy, too, he said, but in the case of a home fire "they also get a speedy visit from a police or fire inspector to determine how much the homeowner was at fault."

Man At Fault

"That idea that a fire is 'an act of God,'" he said, "is for the birds. It's not—it's a human failure."

One problem today, Morgan said, is that home construction often tends to be more open inside and windows are not the larger, traditional kind.

Small windows which are high on a wall are a definite fire hazard, he said, which can be partially offset by having at least one lower and larger window in the room in case of fire. He also urged construction of some form of separation in various parts of a house to cut off—or slow down—any fire which might start.

"These aren't costly building changes," said Deuel Richardson, director of public service for the association. "At most, they might run a few hundred dollars, and at today's construction costs, that's not much; it's really inconsequential."

Older homes, Richardson said, are generally more fire-safe "because they were compartmented. You could shut off a room and possibly contain or slow a blaze, but the newer homes with their wide open interiors don't do that."

Morgan, who has been with NFPA since 1938, said home builders realize some of the fire safety techniques but skip them because they can still find a ready market for the home without installing them.

"The builders know the situation but correcting the problem has got to start with the buying public," he said.
