By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Saying he is relieved the story is now public, Democratic vice presidential nominee Thomas F. Eagleton hastily scheduled a news conference today to answer more questions about his medical history.

McGovern's temporary retreat in the Black Hills of South Dakota. Later he talked a little more with newsmen with him on a charter flight to Los Angeles.

felt relieved to have the story off his chest. "When you're in politics, you know, you're in a volatile field. You're in some kind of fish bowl. Thus it always goes through your mind 'When will I be asked?' 'When will somebody know?'"

When Eagleton arrived in Los Angeles, he clammed up on the subject and refused to answer any questions. "We're not going to replot the same ground," the Missouri senator said. "I've had the last thing to say about it I'm going to in this campaign."

Border Belt Sees $80.68 First Day

By The Associated Press
Carolina farmers, warehousemen, and auctioneers looked forward today to a repeat of the "history making" $80.68 average price flue cured leaf brought Tuesday.

The bulk of the opening day's sales were low primings and nondescript. The day's top price of $87 was for fair cutters -C4's.

good to very good," according to Marion Fowler of Lake City, secretary of the South Carolina Tobacco Warehouse Association.

Wait-And-See Attitude Taken By Sen. McGovern

CUSTER, S.D. (AP) — Rejecting Thomas F. Eagleton's offer to quit the Democratic ticket, Sen. George McGovern says he wants to "wait and see" the reaction to his running mate's revelation that he received psychiatric care and shock treatments. McGovern's top political adviser, Frank Mankiewicz, said the next three days will be "a little touchy," and that the incident can't be a plus for the could be a considerable backlash," he said. Eagleton told reporters on a flight to Los Angeles that "time will tell" how the public reacts to his disclosure that he voluntarily hospitalized himself in 1960, 1964 and 1966, because of "nervous exhaustion and fatigue."

Goals, Policies Shared At Regional Conference

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
WILLIAMSTON — About 125 officials and interested citizens from towns and counties in the state's Multi-County Planning Regions L, Q, and R met here today for the third in a series of five Governor's Regional Conferences.

The conferences are designed to offer an opportunity for the governor to hear, discuss, and exchange ideas with citizens of the state and, at the same time introduce the newly created North Carolina Council on State Goals and Policies.

planning, "Scott said, "is to provide equal opportunity for everyone in the state, so a person can do all he is capable of doing and be all he is capable of being, regardless of race, and be assured of justice in all phases of our society. "If we are to meet these issues more effectively," Scott said, "then we must be more deliberate in planning and coordinating the activities of all levels of government. I think it is important to keep in mind that the basic purpose of any planning effort is to prepare a better future for North Carolinians—those who call North Carolina home and those who will come here later."

Retail Food Prices See Sharp Increase In June

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retail food prices jumped 0.9 per cent in June, the biggest increase in four months, the government said today. Meat and fresh fruits and vegetables accounted for most of the boost.

supply of food for a family of four, cost an annual rate of $1,299 in June. The farmer's share of the June market basket was $528 and the middleman's $771 for transporting, processing and selling the food items.

Lettuce was 33.1 cents per head in June, up from 29.9 cents in May; tomatoes cost $4.7 cents a pound, up from 47.7 cents in May; eggs per dozen were 45.8 cents, down from 49.5 cents in May.

Day Of Mourning

BELFAST (AP) — Thousands of Protestant workers walked off their jobs this morning to observe "a day of mourning" for victims of Irish Republican Army violence in Northern Ireland.

The work stoppage shut many offices and factories but did not paralyze the city because it did not affect such essential services as electric power or public transport.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon today urgently called on Congress "in the economic interest of all American citizens" to enact a government spending ceiling of $250 billion for fiscal 1973 and threatened to veto any measures sent to him "calling for excessive spending which threatens the federal budget."

In a special message to Congress Nixon said he was making an "urgent appeal" for the legislators "to join with me to avoid higher taxes, higher prices and a cut in purchasing power for everyone in the nation."

In Washington, the White House and The Committee for the Re-Election of The President declined comment. Eagleton's disclosure was made to a newsmen after he met with McGovern Tuesday morning at the South Dakota senator's Sylvan Lake retreat in the Black Hills.

Skyjacker Fails In Jail Break

The June hike was the largest monthly increase since February's 1.9-per-cent boost, the department said. There was a 0.4-per-cent decrease in food prices in March, a 0.7-per-cent decrease in April and a 0.4-per-cent increase in May.

The June Agriculture report showed choice beef sold at an average retail price of $1.135 per pound. This was 2.3 cents less than the record high in February and March of nearly $1.16 per pound, but was 2.1 cents per pound more than $1.114 in May.

Officials confirmed Tuesday that McCoy made a bolt for freedom after joining fellow prisoners on their way to court Friday, but he was recaptured within three blocks.

Urgent Ceiling Appeal

Gov. Robert W. Scott, who opened today's session, said that the meeting had been structured around two broad objectives — "first, to share with you some of the results of state planning activities, and secondly and most important to provide you an opportunity to talk with your Council on State Goals and Policies."

Call Meeting

A special call meeting of the City Council has been set for 8:00 p.m. Thursday night. At this meeting, council members will consider final adoption of the city's budget.

Under state law, July 28 is the final date that official approval of budgets can be made. The meeting will take place in the mayor's office.

Gov. Scott said that the council, established by the 1971 General Assembly, "is designed to express the needs and aspirations of North Carolina citizens in the form of specific long-range and short-range goals; to identify the main issues facing state citizens in their government—both local and state—and inform them concerning these issues; and to recommend policies to deal with these issues in order to provide an improved quality of life for all the people of the state."

The immediate impetus for Eagleton's disclosure apparently came from the Knight Newspapers, who told a McGovern aide they planned to print on Wednesday a complete account of Eagleton's medical history. A copyright story by Robert S. Boyd and Clark Hoyt said Eagleton had first offered to withdraw as vice president over the weekend and quoted him as saying that he was tremendously relieved to "be unburdened" of the secret of the story.

School District Residents Face Special Taxes

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
While all county property owners will be paying taxes at the rate of $1.62 cents per $100 valuation for the 1972-1973 fiscal year — as approved by County Commissioners last week when the new budget was approved — residents of various school districts in the county will be paying special district taxes for school current expense.

The county-wide rate includes $1.52 per $100 valuation to finance expenditures in various funds such as the general fund, public assistance, Pitt Technical Institute, and the county-wide school current expense and capital outlay funds as well as 10-cents per $100 for debt service and repayment of bonds for the new Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Other taxes facing county residents are the special district taxes for school current expense. The special district tax rates, by district, include:

Belvoir-Falkland .20
Bethel .20
Chicod .20
Farmville .15
Fountain .15
Grifton .15
Grimesland .15
Pactolus .00
Stokes .20
Winterville .15
Greenville .25

Commissioners, in effect, reduced taxes for residents of the Arthur, Pactolus and Greenville school districts by trimming a 20 cent per $100 valuation special district school capital outlay rate from the proposed budget.

Arthur and Pactolus district residents last year were taxed at rate of 15-cents per $100 for capital outlay, while Greenville district residents paid 20-cents per $100 for school capital improvements.

According to County Manager Reginald Gray, the special district capital outlay tax has been levied under authority of a special act of the North Carolina General Assembly — based on the needs of the district.

The current expense levy, however, has been collected since residents of the various school districts approved of the tax in special elections. Currently, according to Gray, the special districts are paying the maximum allowed under the special elections — with the exception of the Fountain and Stokes districts.

She's The Pioneer Teacher Of 'Consumer Revolution'

By DOROTHY BROWN PHILADELPHIA (WNS) — Dr. Rosalind Schulman is not what Big Business would call an ideal consumer. Her center-city apartment is furnished with a heritage of antiques, her clothes are simple, functional, and a far cry from haute couture, her allergies make her wary of frozen prepared foods, and color TV makes her dizzy. But when Dr. Schulman takes time from academia to go shopping, she is a very special consumer. She knows what makes our economy tick.

Having devoted the last 35 years to understanding the American marketplace, Dr. Schulman (who holds a Ph.D. in economics from the University of Pennsylvania) sees the "consumer revolution" as something more than housewives picketing supermarkets, massive recalls of defective cars and Nader's Raiders. Professor of economics at Drexel University, 58-year-old Dr. Schulman sees the consumer revolution as a movement which is changing our entire economy.

Better Choices "People are getting wealthier and more educated. They're able to make better choices, and when they can't find what they want, they scream bloody murder," said Dr. Schulman in her throaty, outspoken way that has amused and intimidated Drexel students for the past seven years.

"People want what they want, when they want it, and where they want it—period."

Prisoners Take Side Of The Law

PARIS (WNS) — Colette Petigny, 53, watched too many TV crime shows while working as nurse to the 87-year-old mother-in-law of a wealthy music impresario at his apartment on the Champs Elysees. She planned a plot to hold her employers for ransom but needed three crooks to help her. Posing as an Italian plantation owner, she asked a judge to recommend reformed prisoners willing to work among the sugar cane. Unfortunately for Mme. Petigny, the ex-prisoners sent to her by the judge were so well reformed that they reported the planned crime to the judge and police. The French lady is in jail.

"And industry is going to have to learn to meet the consumer's demands. If they don't, they're going to get burned."

Having watched the birth and growth of the consumer movement while an economist with the War Production Board during World War II, as consultant on credit laws to the state of Pennsylvania during the '60s, and as a teacher, Dr. Schulman has some predictions about where the "revolution" is taking us. She envisions the future as:

—A credit card society where banks will automatically do our budgeting. ("This society's consumerism is already built on credit. If people couldn't buy their cars on credit, only two million cars would be sold each year.")

—Technology based on even greater automation. ("The only way to get the perfect goods that people are demanding is to automate industries and make fewer models better.")

—A society where people are willing to pay higher prices for "individuality, scarcity and diversity." ("The men's clothing industry is in trouble because they keep producing full lines.")

—A diet of instant, pop-in-the-oven foods. ("As more women go into the labor market, foods will become more of a service than a commodity.")

"Cookbook" Courses Universities have been fast to pick up on the latest intellectual rage, and one would expect them to be churning with experts in the consumer revolution. Not so, says Dr. Schulman. "No one else in the country, as far as I know, is giving a basic course in the economics of consumption, said Dr. Schulman. She developed the course at Drexel five years ago.

"Plenty of people are teaching what I call 'cookbook' courses—'how-to' courses that tell you how to budget your money, choose your clothes or buy your food. "But I don't think 'how-to' courses belong in an institution of higher learning.

You can get that information easily from government pamphlets. Besides, soon banks are going to balance our budgets automatically for us, so why should I teach someone to budget? "And I'm not going to teach someone how to buy clothes, because I'll be damned if I know what kind he's going to buy."

Weighing a heavy textbook by the head of Columbia University's economics department in one hand, and the inevitable cigaret in the other, Dr. Schulman continued.

"At the other extreme, some economists are teaching very theoretical courses—like Columbia's Kelvin Lancaster. Just look at his new book."

A glance at "Consumer Demand" with its pages of graphs, table and X equations was enough to scare off all but the most committed economist.

"There's nothing being taught between this and a cookbook."

In her "Economics of Consumption" course, Dr. Schulman teaches the economics behind consumer goods' — the types of demands that consumers are making, the methods by which they are buying, basic economic laws and future patterns of consumption.

Daughter's Foul Mouth Upsets Mother

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I have a 21-year-old daughter who will be a college freshman. She was raised in a moral and decent home. Lately she has begun to pepper her language with filthy four-letter words.

When I told her that I found her language offensive, she said everybody talks that way nowadays, and I should "get with it."

I am 50 years old and am not about to "get with" filthy language.

My daughter says, "They are only words, and it's a person's right to use the words he wants to use." I would like your opinion. OFFENDED MOM

DEAR MOM: The "right" to swing one's arms ends where the other fellow's nose begins. Tell your daughter to "get with" and laund her language in your presence. No one has the right to pollute the atmosphere with audible garbage.

DEAR ABBY: My wife is young, 25, and she is naturally big busted, and usually a little cleavage shows when she wears a dress with just a normal neckline.

My parents think this is in bad taste. They invited us for lunch at their country club, and told me to please tell my wife to wear something with no cleavage showing. They say nobody dresses that way at a country club.

Abby, if I were to tell my wife what they said, you would hear screaming from Los Angeles to New York, so I turned down the invitation.

I like the way she looks in these dresses. Most of the women in my family are flat-chested.

I don't know how they dress at country clubs, do you? J. IN MIRADA, CAL.

DEAR J.: I doubt if a woman wearing a dress with "a little cleavage" showing would be out of place in any country club.

DEAR ABBY: I wonder how many houseguests there are who think they are being helpful to their hostesses, but are actually making more work for them?

When a guest has slept in one of my beds and is leaving, why on earth would he carefully make up the bed—spread and all? I have to tear it apart in order to change the linen anyway.

Also, some guests will use towels, and then fold them so neatly I can't tell which towels have been used and which haven't. If they would leave the used towels a bit crumpled it would be so much easier for me.

Also, some people's idea of "washing" dishes is to run hot water over them. I'd prefer to have dirty dishes left in the sink for me to wash MY way.

Please rush this into print, Abby; I am expecting some "helpful" houseguests soon. NAMELESS BUT SERIOUS

DEAR NAMELESS: Consider it rushed.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "OLD TIMER:" He who takes but never gives may last for years but never lives.

Public Officials Should Know

Highway Commission Chairman Lauch Faircloth has said that future members of the commission should be briefed on laws governing their business conduct.

Mr. Faircloth said the "matter of conflict-of-interest hasn't received enough emphasis". He wrote in a copyrighted article published in "North Carolina" magazine.

"From now on I suggest that every new highway commission, when it is sworn into office, have a long meeting with the attorney general's staff and be intensively informed about the laws in question, and have a chance to ask questions," Mr. Faircloth wrote.

"I would say there's no foolproof way you can keep people from breaking the law. I suppose the best answer is to give commissioners the intensive briefing I mentioned and to remind them frequently of their obligations under the law."

Certain Mr. Faircloth's proposal has great merit. He was applying it to the highway commission which he heads, but the idea should be expanded to all new public officials, elected and appointed.

Conflict of interest is often difficult to define and at times men with wide business interest run into trouble before they even realize it.

It should be firm public policy, however, that all public officials are full briefed on conflict of interests laws. There should be no question that a public official had been exposed to the laws when an accusation of conflict of interest arises.

A Deposed Emperor Is Concerned Over Land

It is almost forgotten, but Vietnam has a deposed emperor, Bao Dai, who has been living in exile in France since 1955.

He has seldom been heard from in the long and bloody war of his homeland, but he recently issued a statement showing his concern.

"The hour has come to end this fratricidal war to permit our people to heal their wounds and suffering and to finally find peace in concord..." he stated.

He took no sides but pointed out that the "military situation remains worrying, but it is stabilizing in favor of the south."

Both sides in this long conflict should listen. It is time to settle the war through negotiation.

Drug Situation Is Worsening

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — A father, suspecting some of his junior high son's friends were using drugs, went to a school meeting for parents on the subject.

He heard the results of a survey in which 60 per cent of the students said they had now is largely urban, but it is moving out to the rural areas. Right now, it looks like the rural sections of the state will follow the pattern we have seen in the cities, but two or three years behind.

All Ages Involved

An interesting current aspect is that more older persons are being arrested for drug law violations, while the age of introduction to drugs is coming down. Two or three years ago, it was the college and military age that experimented with drugs. Now it has moved through high school to junior high.

Adolescence will be the age of decision on drugs.

Q: Drug use has risen at the time when more effort than ever before has been made to bring drug abuse under control. Does that mean program so far have failed?

A: No, just that what we have done has not been adequate to meet the challenge drugs have presented.

BRYAN HAISLIP

experimented with drugs.

"Why hadn't somebody told me?" he demanded indignantly.

Charles Dunn smiled ruefully as he related the incident.

"I had spoken three times in that community within the past year on drugs," said the director of the State Bureau of Investigation.

The point illustrated is one that bothers Dunn and others engaged in combatting the drug menace. "Too many people wait until there is a crisis to become concerned," he said. "Until it reaches them, they do not recognize there is a problem."

For those who will listen, Dunn said the drug situation in North Carolina today is worsening while resources to cope with it remain inadequate.

What has been done to date, he added, amounts to little more than "taking the bandaid off the cancer."

Reviewing Drug Status

Dunn reviewed the status of the state's war against drugs and discussed strategy for control in the following interview.

Question: Just how serious is illegal drug use in North Carolina?

Answer: We have entered a new phase. We are finding more movement of hard drugs. There is still plenty of marijuana, acid and pills. These don't seem to be falling off, but the percentage increase is greater for heroin than any other.

Our drug cases totaled 405 for the 1968-69 fiscal year. We had 2,112 cases during 1971-72. In other words, drug cases increased five times in three years.

Q: How widespread is the use of drugs?

A: We're finding drugs just about everywhere we look. We've had cases from all 100 counties. Apparently heroin

The SBI has 16 agents working drugs. Six others are in school before joining the force. We could easily use twice as many. We need laboratory personnel to analyze drugs for local law enforcement. We don't have enough money to buy drugs in order for undercover agents to break into drug distribution systems.

We are asking roughly $1 million in our next budget to strengthen the drug unit. I feel this is conservative.

Avenue Of Coordination

Q: There are a number of federal, state and local programs dealing with various approaches to drug abuse. Are these coordinated to make the most effective use of all resources?

A: We are beginning to. The North Carolina Drug Authority, created by the last legislature, provides a mechanism for coordination. It has been reasonably successful in encouraging coordination at the top.

The key now is in the community. Law enforcement is only one aspect. Every area of the community needs to be aware of its responsibility in dealing with the threat of drugs.

For example, speedy trail in the courts would help in limiting the drug traffic. In one case, a person arrested for pushing heroin a year ago is still out on bond. If he had been tried promptly, it might have kept some people off heroin.

We are not talking about abridging anyone's rights. Society has rights, too.

Does McGovern Run His Team?

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Sen. George McGovern's spectacular about-face in naming Lawrence F. O'Brien his campaign chairman was made without consultation with his own top campaign aides and was intended to serve notice that McGovern, not those aides, will be in charge.

Just after the announcement of O'Brien's appointment in a joint press conference Thursday, McGovern turned to Gary Hart, his coolly brilliant chief political organizer, and quietly said:

"I'm sorry I didn't have the time to discuss this (the O'Brien appointment) more fully with you."

Behind that comment were six days of secret, high-velocity negotiations between McGovern and O'Brien, displaced as Democratic national chairman by fast McGovern-staff footwork on July 14 without McGovern's knowledge.

O'Brien true influence and power in the campaign remain to be seen. Also in doubt is the effectiveness of the new Hydra-headed campaign organization — O'Brien operating independent of Hart, Frank Mankiewicz and the McGovern-controlled Democratic National Committee. But the manner in which it came into being reveals much about the Byzantine power struggles seething under the surface at Miami Beach the Friday O'Brien was ousted.

But Crangle couldn't get through to McGovern. Instead, he was forced to make his case to Jean Westwood, national committeewoman from Utah and a McGovern insider. What Crangle did not know was that McGovern staffers had privately informed Mrs. Westwood she would be the new national chairman. In short, she was a poor salesman for O'Brien.

Crangle then sought out Sen. Thomas Eagleton, McGovern's just-chosen running-mate. Dripping wet from a swim, Eagleton listened as Crangle urged him to telephone McGovern at one with the same message: keep O'Brien.

Eagleton agreed, but not even he could get through to McGovern. Instead, he left his urgent message with Mankiewicz — already committed to Mrs. Westwood. Thus, the Eagleton-Crangle effort was doomed.

With big labor, big city politicians and the party's establishment up in arms following O'Brien replacement, McGovern came secretly to O'Brien's apartment in Washington's Sheraton-Park Hotel McGovern's bridge to the hostile camps of big labor and the party's old guard?

But O'Brien, deeply disturbed by the apparent split between McGovern and his top lieutenants, declined to say yes. He wanted absolute assurance from McGovern that he would be free to operate on his own subject only to McGovern's personal orders.

O'Brien flatly refuses to discuss details of that two-hour conversation, but one intermediary told us that McGovern was genuinely angry and upset at clear signs that his staff had shielded him from such outside, high-level intercessions as those by Eagleton and Crangle.

Thus, in the nominee's own mind, arranging a campaign post for O'Brien without consulting Hart, Mankiewicz, et al. became a test of his own authority and a warning to Hart & Co. to keep their place.

The proof of this were at least a dozen long-distance phone calls between McGovern and O'Brien, starting only minutes after McGovern arrived at his Black Hills vacation cabin last Monday. O'Brien's campaign role was pinned down with McGovern staff in the dark. The only other person involved was Eagleton, a go-between in the

Strength For Today

FIRM FOUNDATIONS

Jesus ended his Sermon on the Mount by speaking about foundations. He declared that whoever heard his words and obeyed them was like a man who built his house upon the rock, and whoever heard and disobeyed was like a man who built his house upon the sand.

For there is rock foundation under this universe of ours — of that we can be sure. Every builder will tell you that when he goes down so far into the ground he encounters rock. And if he does not encounter it he must take some very decisive and desperate measures to make his house safe and steady by underpinning. We cannot build houses on air or sand. Superstructures must rise from foundations, and foundations must rest upon a substantial rock layer beneath.

Not only in the physical world but in the mental and spiritual also there is rock foundation underlying everything. There are certain intellectual verities upon which all reasoning must be built. There are moral truths upon which the life of individuals and nations must rest. If we try to build otherwise, we build to our ruin.

Get well settled in your mind what these fundamentals are. Build on them and on nothing else. There are established facts and verities throughout the universe and on these we must build.

Demonstrators Needed

WASHINGTON — The Republican convention planners are in a swivet. They have three nights of prime time on Aug. 21, 22 and 23 to fill, and not much to fill it with. At the moment there are no rules fights, no platform battles and no Stop-Nixon movements. The GOP could have one of the best-organized, well-run, rancorless conventions in modern political history, but who the hell wants to watch it on TV?

A close Republican friend, Hiram Stauchfield, who is head of the Committee to Re-Elect the President Without Boring the People to Death, told me that his group was hard at work trying to make an exciting political convention out of a sow's ear. "It's going to be very tough this year to keep up the excitement," he said. "On the first night we plan to attack McGovern and Eagleton. The second night will be devoted to attacking the media, and on the third night we'll put on

(Durham Herald)

The Supreme Court's ruling that free legal assistance must be offered to indigent defendants in all cases where they face possible jail sentences provides additional argument for establishment by the next General Assembly of a statewide public defender system.

With the ruling adding to the workload in courtrooms, such a system perhaps may be the only practical solution, when viewed in terms of expenditures involved and the availability of attorneys, to providing legal aid for all defendants who want the services of an attorney but are unable financially to employ counsel.

In proposing that the next legislature consider a statewide program, Warrace Harrelson, public defender for Guilford County, has described the public defender approach as the "most efficient and economical method of providing counsel to indigents."

He has noted that the cost of the public defender system in Guilford (one of the two judicial districts in the state using it; the other is the 12th Judicial District comprising Cumberland and Hoke counties) was 50 percent less in 1970 than the cost of the court appointive system the year before, and that the public defender office handled twice as many cases.

Also, Mr. Harrelson has offered an interesting comparison of costs in Guilford and Mecklenburg counties. In Guilford, the cost of the public defender system during the last fiscal year was $80,845. In Mecklenburg, where the courts appoint lawyers for indigent defendants, the cost of legal assistance was $175,000. And at that, fewer cases were handled in Mecklenburg than in Guilford.

Mr. Harrelson has presented valid argument for the public defender system. Efficiency and economy of operations are points to be emphasized in any event, as under the previous arrangement in which the state provided lawyers for indigent defendants liable to jail terms of six months or more in felony or serious misdemeanor cases.

Efficiency and economy of operations are points of still more importance now that the Supreme Court has expanded the scope of legal assistance to all indigent defendants who face possible jail sentences. It is evident that the state and the courts face a sizable problem. A statewide public defender system may provide the answer. In any event, a good case can be made for it.

Why People Save Is A Puzzler

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The answer to why people save has become not only one of the more puzzling aspects of consumer behavior but each year becomes a more important element in understanding the economy's immediate future.

In the second quarter of the year, for example, the rate of after-tax savings dropped to 6.8 per cent of income. It had achieved a nearly unprecedented rate of 8.6 per cent in the comparable three months of 1971.

As a result, money began flowing into consumer markets, such as for cars, houses and appliances, at the rate of an additional $15 billion a year, boosting the economy into vigorous recovery from 1971's recession.

Why do people save? Once we thought the answer was obvious. Classical economists, who liked precise, neat answers, believed that an increase in interest rates encouraged people to add to savings.

Sounds logical, but doesn't higher interest mean that the cost of living is higher also? And don't people tend to dig into their savings in order to maintain their life style?

John Maynard Keynes, the British economist of the 1930s who influenced to some degree almost every economist who followed, approached the question from another angle, stating instead why people spend. Said he:

"The fundamental psychological law, upon which we are entitled to depend with great confidence...is that men are disposed, as a rule and on the average, to increase their consumption as their income increases..."

Well, correct as he was on many issues, it now seems clear that Lord Keynes missed this one. The evidence of recent years, when income rose and so did savings, seems to provide doubt.

As industrial societies develop, individuals acquire discretionary income — income that they can either save or spend, income beyond immediate needs.

George Katona, who headed the Survey Research Center at the University of Michigan until recently, studied the phenomenon as closely as any man and developed several basic theories now widely accepted.

Katona found that people don't spend merely because they have the ability to spend. That's only one of the ingredients. They also must have willingness to spend, he found, and this willingness depends upon psychological as well as economic factors.

And people save for the future, of course — for a better home, to educate their children, to provide for their retirement. They save for security, as when they permit cash to accumulate in insurance policies.

People also seem to save

The Pitt Community Hospital, which was erected in 1923, is one of the most important institutions in the county. It was the first and only hospital yet to be erected in the county.

Like all other Greenville institutions, the Greenville City Schools have shown very rapid growth in the past twenty years. In 1912 the total enrollment was 747 and now in 1932 the enrollment is 2,974. In 1912 the physical plant was represented by one brick structure on Evans Street, one small one story building on Cotanche Street and a four room wooden structure. Today the physical plant consists of six large, modern, well-planned units.

"I hope for your sake they show up," I said to Staunfield. "But kids are funny these days. If they know you need them to make your convention, they might stay away. Don't you have any other plans in case the demonstrations don't take place?"

"Nothing that the networks would be interested in," Staunfield said.

"Have you thought about dumping Agnew during the convention, just to get a TV audience?"

"We've certainly talked about it," Staunfield replied. "But so far the President won't give us the green light. He announced his Vice Presidential candidate before the convention, which you'll have to admit is pretty lousy show business."

"Well, if all is lost, you still have Billy Graham," I said.

"And if that fails," Staunfield said, "Bob Hope has offered to tape his Christmas show in front of the troops guarding the Republican convention hall."

McGovern-O'Brien talks.

McGovern has now made the point that he will not tolerate staff interference, but whether the staff fully understands is unclear.

Minutes after the O'Brien announcement a McGovern staffer hinted O'Brien's "campaign chairman" title was largely honorary. Some neutral observers say O'Brien is on the shelf for display purposes.

If so, civil was within the campaign is probable. McGovern has privately assured O'Brien he will be no figurehead, a role O'Brien would never accept. The power struggle may be only beginning.

Migrant Housing Standards Bill May See Approval

By TOM WELLS
Associated Press Writer
WAYNESVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Several years ago the man who was city attorney for Waynesville, Zeb Alley, visited a migrant labor camp in Haywood County.

"The conditions were atrocious," Alley said in a recent interview. "They had people herded into small spaces. The camp was closed down because of poor sanitation."

Alley, D-Haywood, is now a state senator for a 10-county, western North Carolina district.

During the last General Assembly Alley discovered that a majority of the senators didn't share his concern about migrant laborers having garbage-strewn, urine-soaked, insect-infested camps.

His legislation to require such things as screens and windows to keep out flies and mosquitoes was clobbered by fellow legislators, led by Sen. George Wood, who owns a migrant labor camp in northeast North Carolina.

The opposition got an amendment passed which would have limited the effect of the bill to Haywood and Henderson counties, both in Alley's district.

"It was a silly amendment, a kind of joke," Alley said. "They do this sort of thing, sometimes." He withdrew the bill.

Wood was not available for comment.

The proposed housing and sanitation standards were not a joke to Alley, or to migrant workers who must live in shanties far from running water, sometimes even without a good roof to keep out the rain.

"I'll be introducing the bill on the first day of the next General Assembly," Alley says. "I think it will pass this time."

Alley noted that Wood and others who helped sidetrack Alley's bill are not running for reelection.

"We never had too much of this sort of thing (shoddy migrant labor camps) before we got in the tomato business in Haywood County," Alley said. "But it's a statewide problem."

He pointed out that most of the opposition came from the farm-rich eastern section of the state where farmers and senators claim that upgrading camp for workers who live there only five or six weeks would not pay off.

Alley said the need for the legislation goes beyond economics.

"It is needed because of human compassion," he said. "Some blueberry farmers and others say the expense of improving the camps would drive them out of business, but no one showed me any figures to back those statements up."

Farmers who hire migrants through the Employment Security Commission must maintain federal housing standards in their camps.

Farmers who do not go through the commission can do as they please if they have fewer than 10 workers. In these cases, workers sleeping on rotating mattresses and living in skeletal shanties are of no official concern to the state of North Carolina. Alley's bill would cover them.

Alley's legislation is patterned after federal housing regulations. Those rules prohibit cramming workers into small shacks and generally require sound and sanitary conditions.

The self-described progressive Democrat backed his bill with subcommittee testimony from Employment Security Commission officials and ministers during the last General Assembly.

Next time he plans to arrange testimony by former migrant workers who are employees of the North Carolina Council of Churches' Migrant Ministry project. "They'll be able to give vivid details of what it's like to live in these camps," Alley said.

The 43-year-old attorney is running for his second Senate term this November. Another Democrat and two Republicans are after the two seats in his district.

It has crossed Alley's mind that migrants cannot vote, but that tomato and peach growers can.

"Some of the orchard growers are up in arms about it," he said. "But it is something that has to be done."

Find Inflation Is Nothing New

APHRODISIAS, Turkey (UPI)—Archeologists have unearthed evidence in the ruins of this Greco-Roman metropolis that inflation is nothing new.

Dr. Kenan T. Erim, associate professor of classics at New York University, reported finding 300 pieces of inscribed stone that, when fitted together, turned out to be a table of fixed prices dating from 301 A.D. In that year Emperor Diocletian froze wages and prices to stem runaway inflation.

Texas won its independence from Mexico in the Battle of San Jacinto April 21, 1863.

then played the ace. When East showed out, it revealed that West's nine of hearts was established as a second trump trick for the defense and inasmuch as South could not avoid the loss of a spade as well, he was obliged to concede a one trick setback on the deal.

It would not have availed declarer to ruff in with the eight of hearts on the third round of clubs, since West would have overruffed with the nine. There was only one way to counter the defensive strategy. After South takes his club sluff on the queen of diamonds, he must lead a fourth round of the suit and discard his remaining club.

As it turns out, West is in with the jack of diamonds, but is unable to get his partner back in. If he switches to the king of spades, South merely ducks, wins the continuation with the ace and takes the heart finesse. West is in for the final time with the king, but whether he returns a spade or a club, declarer ruffs and draws trumps, losing one trick each in spades, hearts, and clubs.

If West shifts to a low spade when he is in with the jack of diamonds, declarer must rise with the ace and take the heart finesse. Thanks to the fortunate division in spades, West is unable to get East in again and South loses the same three tricks.

If East has the fourth diamond, declarer discards a club as before and West will presumably do the same. If East leads back the ace of clubs, South ruffs with the ten of hearts and West will presumably take a discard in order to develop a second trump trick. Declarer now plays the ace and another heart. West puts up the king to cover North's queen and presumably switches to the king of spades. The ace is played from dummy and the king of clubs is cashed on which South discards his remaining spade while West ruffs in. Declarer wins the return and draws the last trump with jack of hearts. His losses are restricted to one diamond and two heart tricks.

Opening lead: Ten of ♣.

A skillful defense combined with an adverse division in trumps led to the upset of South's four heart contract when the latter failed to take countermeasures to protect himself.

West opened the ten of clubs which proved to be an effective choice. The queen was played from dummy and East, after some thought, signaled encouragingly with the eight. If the lead were a singleton, he was surrendering an opportunity to give his partner a ruff by not going up with the ace and continuing the suit—but if that were the actual distribution, then he always had two natural club tricks by retaining the ace-jack behind North's king. If West has a doubleton club and a quick entry, however, it may prove vital to retain communications in the suit order to cash two club tricks subsequently.

South attempted to counter East's play by leading over to his king of diamonds and then back to dummy's ace and queen—on which he discarded one of his remaining clubs. The queen of hearts was now put thru for a finesse, losing to West's king. The latter returned the nine of clubs which East overtook with the jack, to continue the ace.

South ruffed with the ten of hearts in order to prevent a cheap overruff and West discarded a spade. Declarer

Six-Week Institute At ECU Said 'Forerunner'

A unique teacher instruction project, described as a forerunner of the state's Higher Education Restructuring Plan, ended six-week training session here last week.

The second annual Science Education Institute, sponsored by the National Science Foundation and jointly conducted by East Carolina University and Elizabeth City State University was attended by 40 North Carolina high school science teachers. The teachers spent three weeks at Elizabeth City State and three weeks at East Carolina. At each campus, the teachers were instructed on the latest developments and techniques of teaching science to ninth graders.

The co-director for the institute, Dr. Floyd Mattheis of ECU said, "the institute is a forerunner of the state's Restructuring Plan."

He explained that both ECU and ECSU provide adequate science education programs but on this project the two universities worked together by combining their resources.

"Participants were able to take advantage of the facilities and instructors at each of the institutions," Dr. Mattheis said.

Another important aspect of the Science Education Institute, according to Dr.

Louise Sutton, Co-Director from Elizabeth City State, is that it is the only project sponsored by the National Science Foundation with a predominately black institution working with a predominately white school.

The institute, which began on June 12 and ended July 21, was funded by a $61,000 grant from NSF and was designed for experienced high school teachers wishing to update their knowledge of the physical sciences.

A similar institute was conducted by the two universities last summer.

Still Favors Rate-Making

RALEIGH (AP) — John Ingram, Democratic nominee for North Carolina insurance commissioner, says the auto insurance industry "has not demonstrated that it merits the confidence of the people to set rates in the open market."

Ingram told a news conference Tuesday 65 per cent of the people in the assigned risk auto insurance pool have safe driving records.

"This," he said, "does not speak well for the automobile insurance industry in North Carolina."

Ingram said he favors retaining the present rate making system which requires prior approval of insurance rates by the state insurance commissioner.

"North Carolina," he added, "needs an insurance commissioner who will use the prior approval system of rate making to establish fair rates for safe drivers in North Carolina."

O'Berry Center Action Taken, Says Gov. Scott

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott says some corrective administrative action has been taken at the O'Berry Center for the Retarded as a result of an investigation into alleged child abuse.

Scott said Tuesday administrative action was taken "where it could be proven the incident did occur. The same will be true when and if other incidents are uncovered and are proved to be true."

The governor made the statement following disclosure by state Rep. Howard Twiggs, D-Wake, Monday night that the State Bureau of Investigation had documented instances of "deplorable" abuse at the Goldsboro center for children.

Scott said the SBI had submitted "to me an interim report of its findings on conditions at O'Berry Center." He refused to make public the report, saying disclosure of such reports are prohibited by state law.

Twiggs said reports by the SBI and FBI say children have been assaulted by hospital staff members, roaches have been allowed to flourish in patients' quarters and at least one child was given three times the normal tranquilizer dosage for adults.

Warn Of Lawsuits If Music Is Copied

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Gospel Music Publishers Association has served warning on churches and singing groups that they face lawsuits if they continue the old custom of copying sheet music.

John T. Benson III, a Nashville publisher and president of the new association, said composers and publishers are losing millions of dollars a year through bootleg recordings and unauthorized reprints of gospel sheet music.

"We will not hesitate to file suit against church organizations if they follow this practice," he said.

Benson explained that although it is illegal to reproduce printed or copyrighted musical compositions, many singing groups and churches buy one or two pieces of sheet music and copy them for distribution to their choirs.

David Ludwick, the Nashville lawyer hired by the association to handle the copyright suits, said the sheet music is more important to a gospel songwriter's income than it is in country music.

SPORTSMAN DIES

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — Lance Reventlow, 37, race driver, sportsman and son of Woolworth heiress Barbara Hutton and a Danish court, was killed in a Plane crash Monday near here.

Windows Pop

WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH, N.C. (AP) — A sudden change in the weather apparently caused automobile windows to pop like bubbles at this beach resort.

Police said the windows in about 40 cars parked at the Blockade Runner Hotel broke when a sudden thunderstorm settled a mass of cold air over the beach Monday.

Ken Lindsay, the hotel's manager, said all of the windows of the cars were closed because a slight rain had fallen the night before.

NOT RULED OUT

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Doctors apparently have not ruled out the possibility that former President Lyndon B. Johnson may have had another heart attack, but officials say there is no evidence that he suffered a major seizure.

Airport Tax To Begin Sept. 1

RALEIGH (AP) — Beginning Sept. 1, the Raleigh-Durham Airport Authority will begin collecting a $2 boarding tax on departing passengers on commercial flights.

The airport authority had favored collection of the tax by airlines personnel but agreed to the change following talks with representatives of the airlines industry. The airlines are opposed to the levy.

The tax is expected to provide over $1 million in revenue for the airport. The funds will be used to help finance an expansion program.

Another Nuclear Power Station Set For Carolinas

YORK, S. C. (AP) — Duke Power Company, which found that trying to hide plans for a new nuclear power station was like trying to conceal an elephant in a telephone booth, today confirmed that it will build $700 million nuclear facility in York County.

It will be Duke Power's third nuclear power station in the Carolinas in an ambitious program to more than double its generating capability over the next 18 years.

The announcement of the York County plant, made jointly by Duke Power and the South Carolina State Development Board, came at a luncheon in York.

The president of Duke Power, Carl Horn, Jr., said construction of the 2,360,000-kilowatt plant is expected to begin in 1974, with completion of its two nuclear units scheduled for 1979 and 1980.

The company first must win approval for the project from the Atomic Energy Commission.

Last week when Duke Power refused to confirm or deny news stories that the plant would be built in South Carolina, the company had not submitted an environmental impact study to the AEC, one of the initial steps required by the federal agency in such projects.

The proposed station, with two nuclear units, will be on Lake Wylie, 19 miles southwest of Charlotte near the South Carolina-North Carolina border.

The director of the South Carolina State Development Board, J. Bonner Manly, said the station will represent the largest investment ever in a single industrial facility in the Palmetto state.

According to a formula used by the Federal Power Commission, the company said, the

Town Documents Are Recorded

WINTERVILLE — The minimum housing code, zoning ordinances, and estraterritorial map for the town of Winterville have been recorded at the Pitt County register of deeds office.

According to Town Clerk Elwood Nobles, state law requires that these documents be recorded in the register of deeds office.

new facility will prouce about $16 million a year in local and state taxes and $19 million in federal tax revenue.

Much of the prepared announcement dealt with assurances that the nuclear plant would be safe.

The company has been under fire from established environmentalists and back-yard conservationists alike on alleged lack of safety factors for Duke's McGuire nuclear power station being constructed on Lake Norman north of Charlotte.

The York County facility, to be called the Catawba Station, and the McGuire Station will be identical in size and design, according to the company. Each of Catawba's two units will have a capability of 1,180 kilowatts, making them the largest electric generating units in South Carolina.

Duke Power's first nuclear plant, the Oconee Station in northwest South Carolina, is scheduled to begin commercial operation next year.

The company said construction employment for the six-year Catawba Station project was expected to average about 1,500 with total construction payroll estimated $85 million.

The company's senior vice president for engineering and construction, William S. Lee, said in the prepared announcement the facility will be designed for "highest reliability, safety and environmental protection."

He said the reactor building will have a double shell design consisting of a steel inner lining and a concrete outer shield, and would include additional redundant barriers to hold the release of radioactivity to "trace amounts."

Lee said the plant's radioactive effect on the environment will "be so small as to be practically immeasurable." he said a person living continuously at the edge of the plant site would receive no more radiation in one year than a passenger would receive on a single jet flight to California.

More than 2 million letters a month come into the post offices of the U.S. Capitol building and its related offices.

Cooler Hooked To Fire Water

ROEBLING, N.J. (AP) — Township engineers were called to this central New Jersey town's post office recently to check a water cooler that malfunctioned after six years of use.

They found the cooler wasn't hooked up to the municipal water system. It was tied into the fire hydrant network, which draws its supply directly from the Delaware River. Roebling is 10 miles down stream from the Trenton sewage plant, which discharges into the river.

Britain's Strike Wave Is Continuing To Swell

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — The growing strike wave against the Conservative government's new labor law hit the London bus system and Heathrow Airport today, taking most of the double-deck red buses off the city's streets and canceling many flights to the Continent. The Official Solicitor, an independent watchdog for the legal system or sort of ombudsman, was to appear before the Industrial Relations Court today to ask for the release of the five longshoremen whose imprisonment last Friday touched off the strike wave. But there was no indication whether the court would free the men, whom it held in contempt because they defied its order to stop illegal picketing. The five men are the first jailed under the antistrike law which Prime Minister Edward Heath's Conservatives pushed through Parliament last year, and the strike wave in support of them has turned into a drive to nullify the law. More than 300,000 workers were estimated on strike, and the engineering workers' union ordered its 1.5 million members to down their tools next Monday for 24 hours. The general council of the Trades Union Congress, the governing body of British trade unions, called a meeting to consider demands for a one-day general strike on Monday.

Improved Safety Needs At Intersection Talked

AYDEN — A group of local residents met with representatives of the North Carolina State Highway Commission here yesterday to discuss the possibilities of taking steps to improve the safety of the N.C. 11 By-pass - N.C. 102 intersection just west of the municipal limits.

According to Police Chief Tommy Burney, Ayden area residents expressed concern over the number of serious traffic collisions at the intersection and requested that traffic control lights — stop lights — be installed. Burney said flashing warning lights were installed at the intersection several months ago but apparently have not resulted in any significant reduction in the number of mishap at the intersection. It was reported at the meeting, Burney noted, that there have been 52 collisions at the intersection since traffic started moving on the new four-lane N.C. 11 By-pass more than a year ago. The most recent collision there Burney noted, was a July 17 crash which injured six persons.

Ayden Mayor R.L. Davis requested immediate action be taken to reduce accidents at the intersection and "was assured of such action," Chief Burney said. He added, state traffic engineers attending the meeting said traffic lights may not be the answer to the problem. The chief said no commitment was made as to what action would be taken, only that action to improve safety at the intersection would be taken. Among officials attending the meeting yesterday was Highway Commissioner Henry Oglesby of Grifton.

'Legislative Night' For Summer Theater Friday

A record attendance of special guests is expected on Friday night as the East Carolina University Summer Theater again sponsors Legislative Night, an annual event that has become a highlight of the summer theater season. As guests of ECU Chancellor Dr. Leo Jenkins and Mrs. Jenkins, a number of nominees for the 1973 General Assembly, their wives, and state officials have accepted invitations to attend the Friday evening performance of the current show, "1776."

$81.62 Average On Ga.-Fla. Opening

VALDOSTA, Ga. (AP) — Auctioneers on the Georgia-Florida Belt flue-cured tobacco markets have moved 8,911,030 pounds on the opening day of sales, and sellers received a record average price of $81.62 per hundred pounds. That average in Tuesday's sales exceeded the previous record, $80 per hundred pounds on last Aug. 16, and was far above last year's opening day average of $74.99. The Market News Service reported total sales of $7,273,494 for Tuesday's auctions on the 28 markets. Tobacco companies paid a high of $87 a hundredweight. Most sheets, weighing about 200 pounds each, brought $79 to $84. The service said quality was higher than last year, with a larger percentage of grades P3 and P4 and less nondescript. Orange leaf was predominant and more than 80 per cent of the tobacco offered was classified in the ripe grades. Grades X4F, P4L, P4F, P5L and P5F made up most of the sales.

Four Attend Annual Meet

Four members of the Greenville City Schools staff are attending the annual Leadership Conference of North Carolina Association of Educators and Association of Classroom Teachers being held at Mars Hill. Dr. Rexford E. Piner, principal of Wahl-Coates Elementary School and president, Greenville unit of NCAE; Mrs. Carolyn, a teacher at Wahl-Coates and president-elect of the Greenville unit of NCAE; and Mrs. Patricia Cheek, teacher in the South Greenville Elementary School and treasurer of the Greenville unit of ACT; will all be in attendance at the conference beginning today and continuing through Saturday at Mars Hill College. The leadership conference is focused on a series of ten minicourses, which include effective administration of a local unit; grievance procedure; evaluation, human relations; political action; and the 1973 legislative program of the NCAE.

Suicide Ruled In Gunshot Death

Pitt County Coroner and Medical Examiner E. W. Harvey has ruled suicide in the Tuesday morning death of a 41-year-old Greenville man. Harvey reported that Oscar Godwin Jr. of 1306 N. Pitt Street died at 11:30 a.m. of a gunshot wound in the head. The coroner, who ruled that the wound was self-inflicted, said that the .22 caliber rifle bullet entered the right temple and exited through the left side. Harvey added that Godwin lived about 45 minutes following the 10:45 a.m. shooting. He said that Godwin's daughter found him and called the rescue unit which took him to Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Suffers His Last Holdup

BOSTON (AP) — "I've had it," says Bob Sidelinger. "It's not worth staying in business at the risk of your life." Sidelinger, 40, a bachelor who operates a small dairy and grocery store in the Dorchester section, says that after eight years in business for himself he has suffered his last holdup. Monday, he was robbed by three men who forced him to lie on the floor while they emptied the cash register. "Let me shoot him," he heard one of the men say just before they left. "At least let me shoot him in the legs." "I don't know what I'll do, but by Saturday I'll burn the key and never return," Sidelinger said. "There's too many looks walking the street today who would just as soon shoot you as look at you." He opened the variety store in February. Earlier, he gave up a canteen truck serving industrial areas after being robbed several times, then shifted to industrial catering but was plagued by thefts.

Nationals Win All-Star Game In Tenth

Four Seasons Wins Crown

Four Seasons knocked off Huey's regular season champs twice last night to take the City League Tournament Championship. After taking the first game, 4-1, Four Seasons had a slightly harder time beating Huey's in the second game 12-11. The winner came over in the last inning but Huey's almost pulled off a win which would have given them the crown as they rallied for seven runs in the bottom of the frame. Four Seasons opened the scoring in the first with a run. They added three in the third to get the first win. Donnie Brewer led off with a hit and scored on a double by Ronald Vincent. Tommy Jordan singled to drive in Vincent and a hit by Gary Bostic scored Jordan. The only Huey's run came in the sixth. Huey's opened the scoring in the afterpiece with one in the first. Four Seasons rallied for four in the third to take the lead but Huey's cut it to 4-3 with two in the bottom of the third. Both teams scored runs in the fifth. Four Seasons got two in the sixth including a homer by Walter Stasavitch to make it 7-4. They got the winner in the seventh on singles by Brewer, Vincent, Charles Vincent, and Jordan. John Childers doubled to score Charles Vincent and Jordan with the ninth and tenth runs and Dick Douglas singled to drive in Childers. Huey's rallied for seven in the seventh but they fell a run short.

Charging Aaron

Atlanta Brave Henry Aaron runs toward first on his way to a round tripper watching pitcher Gaylord Perry. Aaron hit a home run in the sixth inning driving in an additional run to the the NL Stars ahead 2-1. The NL won 4-3. (AP Wirephoto)

Morgan Changes Script; Helps Nationals To Win

By TOM SALADINO Associated Press Sports Writer ATLANTA (AP) — Joe Morgan didn't like the way the script for the 43rd major league All-Star Game was going so the little Cincinnati Reds' infielder took things into his own hands. The extravaganza turned into a most happy event for Morgan, whose 10th inning run-scoring single gave the National League a 4-3 triumph Tuesday night before a record 53,107 crowd at Atlanta Stadium. But only two innings earlier, it appeared that Cookie Rojas would be the hero, after he put the American League ahead 3-2 on a two-run homer off Montreal's Bill Stoneman. Earlier Hank Aaron, pushing toward Babe Ruth's all-time home run mark of 714 with 659, stroked a two-run blow in the sixth inning, putting the Nationals up 2-1, and sending the home town crowd into a frenzy, giving the Atlanta slugger nearly a two-minute standing ovation. "When Aaron hit the homer it was like watching a Hollywood movie," Morgan said afterward in the winners dressing room "I thought he should be the hero. Then when Rojas hit it, I said, 'Gee, it's not supposed to be that way.'"

The little lefty swinging Morgan then won it for the NL in the 10th after Nate Colbert walked and was sacrificed to second by San Francisco's Chris Spier. Morgan crisply spanked a line drive single to right center and Colbert easily strolled home with the winner. Morgan was voted the games' Most Valuable Player, with Aaron second and winning reliever, Tug McGraw the third choice. Rojas was fourth. "This was one of the most dramatic home runs I ever hit," Aaron said. "I felt comfortable hitting against Perry. (Gaylord, formerly of San Francisco and this year a 16-game winner with Cleveland) "The pitch I hit off him was a spitter. It wasn't one of his best spitters, but it was a spitter." Little did it matter to the crowd, which loved it. The 38-year-old "Hammer" had drawn an earlier minute standing ovation and at 9:54 p.m.—the exact moment Aaron drilled his second All-Star homer—the crowd stood and cheered for nearly two minutes. He got another standing ovation when he was replaced in the seventh inning by Pittsburgh's Al Oliver. Danny Murtaugh, who retired after guiding the Pittsburgh Pirates to the World Championship last year, led the NL to its ninth victory in 10 games and put them ahead in the series which started in 1933, to 24-18-1. "It's games like these that sent me into retirement," the jovial Murtaugh said of his one-day triumphant return. Rojas was disappointed that the American League didn't win but was thrilled about his home run. The little Kansas City second baseman, who made it into the contest as a pinch hitter for starter Rod Carew only because the Minnesota infielder had a recurrence of a rib injury, said he hit "a dangling inside slider.

Little Mint Advances

Coca-Cola split a doubleheader last night and were eliminated from the Ladies League Tournament. Little Mint, who won the second game will meet Belton for the crown on Thursday night. Coke eliminated Piggly-Wiggly in the first game 6-3. Coke got two in the first and then added enough to win in the second. Gay Garris singled as did Ruth Weilder. Mary Warren singled in Garris. A double by Connie Summers drove in Warren. Piggly-Wiggly got one in the third, a homer by Gaye Nichols, and two in the fifth. Coke got its other two runs in the fourth. Little Mint annihilated Coke in the second game, however, 33-4. Little Mint got all it needed in the first and coasted the rest of the way. They jumped off to a 20-run lead in the opening frame including a homer by Laura Kilpatrick. They added eight in the second, one in the third, and four in the fourth. Coke got one in the first, a home run by Nancy Taylor, and three in the fifth.

By KEN RAPPOPORT Associated Press Sports Writer ATLANTA (AP) — Tug McGraw is awfully glad that he doesn't pitch in the American League. He'd probably never make the All-Star team if he did. "They don't recognize relief pitchers over there like they do in the National League," the New York Mets' bullpen star said Tuesday night after helping the Nationals win the 43rd midsummer classic with a tense 4-3 victory in 10 innings. As if his powerhouse pitching didn't speak eloquently enough for his argument, the left-hander had much more to say after winning his first All-Star game. "Relief pitching is an art," he said, "and only the National League recognizes that fact. Specialization is the National League way, the modern way. I'm glad that my league has underlined the importance of a relief pitcher. He's really the 10th man on the team." All of McGraw's remarks were, of course, directed at the American League—but mostly toward Manager Earl Weaver of the Baltimore Orioles. In three straight All-Star games, the American League field boss has never picked a relief pitcher for his staff. "Earl certainly doesn't recognize us," said McGraw. "But we have a kind of relief pitchers' union in my league. It's an important job and an inspiration to be recognized." McGraw was certainly recognized as one of the best pitchers on Atlanta Stadium's playing field Tuesday night, although there were several other standouts in one of the best-played All-Star games in recent years. McGraw held off the American League with shutout pitching in the last two innings, striking out four batters, before Cincinnati's Joe Morgan came through with the game-winning single in the 10th. "It was some kind of breaking ball, but I don't know if it was a slider or curve since I've never seen him before," Morgan said of the pitch he hit for a run-scoring single off Baltimore southpaw Dave McNally, the losing pitcher. Actually, the whole affair never would have gotten to the extra-inning stage except for

Three Golfers In Sudden Death Playoff Today

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — Two former champions and a young challenger figured in a three-way sudden death playoff this morning to determine the qualifying medalist of the Carolina Amateur golf tournament. Billy Joe Patton of Morganton, N.C., and Bill Harvey of Jamestown, N.C., and Charlotte's Lex Alexander, a Wake Forest University student, turned in one-under-par 71s Tuesday to lead the field of about 160 players seeking the 64 berths in the championship flight of the match play tournament. Eight players tied at 81 and faced off in another playoff for the 64th berth in play that was to start today. Patton won this event in 1947, 1958 and 1961, while Harvey won the crown two years in a row, 1964-65. Tied with 73s over the Chanticleer course of the Greenville Country Club were Bob Bryant of Charlotte, another former champion, and David Canipe of Fayetteville, Rennie Law of Greensboro, Terry Mauney of Charlotte and Jeff Thompson of Greenville. Grouped at 74 were Jim Adams of Fayetteville, Tom Case Jr. of Greensboro, David Strawn of Charlotte, Salte Tuttle of Winston-Salem and Jimmy Keever of High Point.

Bob Gibson, St. Louis, throws the first pitch for the National League Stars last night in Atlanta. Rod Carew, Minnesota, tried to bunt on the pitch but fouled it off. Catching is Johnny Bench, Cincinnati, and the Umpire is Stan Landis. A sellout crowd of 50,000 filled the stands. (AP Wirephoto)

Nicklaus In Hospital

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An infected finger has sent professional golfer Jack Nicklaus to the hospital, casting doubt on whether he will be able to play in the $200,000 PGA Team Championship Tournament at Ligonier, Pa., next weekend. Unless the infected index finger on the right hand heals quickly, it also could jeopardize Nicklaus' defense of his PGA title at Oakland Hills Country Club near Detroit Aug. 3. The infection was termed "not serious" by doctors at University Hospital, who added that professional golfer's leading money winner would remain there for 48 to 72 hours. The ailment kept Nicklaus from playing in an exhibition match Tuesday with Bob Hope at the new Jack Nicklaus Golf Center near Lebanon, Ohio. Lee Trevino substituted for him in the Hope House charity event. The finger reportedly became infected after Nicklaus received a manicure last week. It began to hurt him while he played in a pro-am event in Columbus Monday.

Barnhill-Eckford Win 4-Ball Match

ASHVILLE — Sandy Barnhill, of Greenville, N.C., and Kay Eckford of Orlando Fla., won the 4-ball Invitational last week at the Country Club of Asheville, here. The two ladies made the championship flight after having qualified with a 4-under par 70. In the first round matches they defeated Joy Culverhouse and Julie Madison of Jacksonville, Fla. The second round saw them defeat Nancy Holmes of Nashville, Tenn., and Patsy Johnson of Spartanburg, S.C. the defending champs. The Barnhill-Eckford team beat Eleanor Walker-Kieth Payne, Atlanta, Ga. for the Championship on Friday. Miss Barnhill is currently the N.C. Women's State Amateur Champion. After finishing fourth, in the Women's Eastern Amateur, she has been selected as an alternate for the Curtis Cup team which will play in England in June of 1973. Miss Eckford is a former Florida State Women's Amateur Champ.

All-Star Game Shines With Many Heroes

By ED SHEARER
Associated Press Sports Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Hammerin' Hank Aaron of the Atlanta Braves belted his "most dramatic" home run ever in Tuesday night's All-Star baseball game and later watched pint-sized Joe Morgan of Cincinnati grab the hero's trophy with a 10th-inning, game-winning single.

Morgan's line shot to right field scored San Diego's Nate Colbert, who had walked, with the winning run as the National League earned its ninth triumph in the last 10 midsummer classics, 4-3.

Morgan, clutching the Most Valuable Player trophy, expressed his glee at winning the award, but thought the night should have belonged to The Hammer.

"When Aaron hit that home run it was like watching a Hollywood movie," Morgan said. "He was the big hero and he was supposed to win it. I felt we would win the game 2-1."

Kansas City's Cookie Rojas changed that situation, however, with a two-run homer that gave the American League a 3-2 edge in the eighth. It took a ninth-inning rally by the Nationals to send the game into extra innings and cast a trio of its stars in hero roles, Morgan, Aaron, and relief pitcher Tug McGraw of the New York Mets.

McGraw claimed the victory after fanning four of the seven batters he faced in the ninth and tenth innings.

"I'm happy the National league has recognized the importance of relief pitching in modern day baseball," McGraw said. He was one of two bullpen workmen named to the NL staff. American League skipper Earl Weaver of Baltimore named only starting pitchers to his staff.

Morgan, a left-handed hitter, delivered the winning hit off Baltimore southpaw Dave McNally, whom he was facing for the first time.

"I didn't ask for any advice," Morgan said. "I just went up there to hit."

It was the only hit in the game for Morgan, one of four players who went the distance on the hot, muggy night. "The longer you play, the better chance you have of doing something," he said.

Still, Morgan wanted to talk about Aaron's 380-foot blast off Cleveland's Gaylord Perry, who last year yielded the Hammer's 600th home run.

"When Rojas hit that home run I said, 'Gee, it's not supposed to be that way,'" Morgan said.

Aaron, who needs 55 homers to equal Babe Ruth's all-time record of 714, said, "This has to be the most dramatic one. It made me feel good hitting it before the home folks because they came out to see me hit one. I felt like I owed them one."

Perry said Aaron hit an inside fast ball, but the Atlanta slugger disagreed.

"It was a spitter," Aaron said, breaking into a broad grin.

"It was not one of his best, but it was a spitter."

Winning Run

Joe Morgan of Cincinnati gets a hit, left, driving in the winning run with Nate Colbert, San Diego, crossing home plate to give the National League All Stars a 4-3 victory over the American League All-Stars last night in Atlanta. (AP Wirephoto)

Devaney Needs An Ace Up The Sleeve To Beat The Cowboys

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bob Devaney has a string of 23 coaching victories and 32 unbeaten games, but if he hopes to continue that streak, he had better have a few aces up his sleeve. Devaney, coach of the 1972 College All Stars, has been drilling his squad in preparation for Friday night's 39th All-Star Game against the Super Bowl champion Dallas Cowboys in Chicago.

The veteran Nebraska coach, whose teams have won two straight national football championships, told a Junior Chamber of Commerce luncheon in Chicago Tuesday he was well aware of what the National Football League champions could do.

"After a study of Cowboy game films, we decided to concentrate our game preparations on punting and kickoff returns," Devaney joked after introducing his squad.

In a more serious vein, he noted:

"With a group of guys like this, we feel that if we got any coaching to them at all, we would have a good chance. I know they're going to give it a great effort Friday night."

The All Stars will be led by quarterbacks Jerry Tagge and Van Bronson, both of Nebraska, and Pat Sullivan of Auburn, the Heisman Trophy winner.

The Cowboys are 16-to 17½-point favorites in the game, which the pros have won 27 times while losing nine and tying twice.

Elsewhere, the San Francisco 49ers reported that rookie wide receiver Terry Beasley has broken a bone in his right big toe. The former Auburn All-American had just returned from being out eight days with a pulled hamstring muscle.

Chuck Hixson, who set many national passing records at Southern Methodist, announced his retirement after the Kansas City Chiefs said he had been traded to Buffalo. He never played in a NFL game. He was the Chiefs' 13th draft choice in 1971.

Franco Harris, the Pittsburgh Steelers' No. 1 draft choice, signed a multi-year contract with the team. The terms for the former Penn State player were not announced. The Baltimore Colts signed veteran wide receivers Eddie Hinton, Ray Perkins, and Jim O'Brien who's also a placekicker, and defensive back Tom Curtis.

Close Slide For Score

Bill Freehan, Detroit, slides into home to score the first run for the AL All-Stars in the third inning. Catcher Johnny Bench waits for the ball as ump Stan Landis watches. Pitcher Steve Blass backs up the play. The AL Stars took a 1-0 lead over the NL Stars with the play but lost in the tenth inning. Freehan scored from second on a base hit by Rod Carew. (AP Wirephoto)

BARRIE, Ont. (AP) — Ron Stewart announced Sunday he has signed with the New York Rangers for his 21st National Hockey League season at a "very substantial raise." He did not reveal exact terms.

He has played most positions, but now serves the Rangers as a checking and penalty-killing specialist on right wing.

BOSTON (AP) — Manuel Orantes of Spain won the Swedish International Championships last week and increased his lead in the $375,000 Commercial Union Grand Prix tennis tournament.

Orantes now has 380 points, 60 more than second-place Ilie Nastase of Rumania. Stan Smith of Sea Pines, S.C., is in third place with 287 points.

Once Hated U.S. Military Base Now Rotting Relic

By ERROL PILGRIM
PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (UPI)—Five years after it came under Trinidad control, the Chaguaramas Peninsula—once a hated U.S. military base—is a rotting relic of the West Indian struggle for independence.

The 36,772 acres which were granted rent-free for 99 years to the United States by Britain in 1941 lie mostly idle and off-limits to the Trinidadians who used "Chaguaramas!" as a rallying cry in 1960 to end their colonial status. And got their land back seven years later.

Ironically, the leader of that successful independence movement, Dr. Eric Williams, is the man who, as Trinidad and Tobago prime minister, is now responsible for the disuse, or misuse, of the land, which lies northwest of Port-of-Spain overlooking the narrow strait known as the Dragon's Mouth, which separates Trinidad from Venezuela.

Scene Of Army Mutiny
Once destined to be the capital of the defunct West Indies Federation, and later achieving notoriety as the scene of the first mutiny in Trinidad's 10-year-old army, Chaguaramas has become merely the largest inaccessible plot of land in the nation.

The concrete and steel buildings and other military installations left behind by the Americans are falling apart among the high weeds and disintegrating roads.

Except for 600 acres being used for a joint agricultural project by the Trinidad and German governments, the lands and buildings occupied by the Trinidad defense force, and a government youth camp, nothing is happening in the northwest peninsula.

It is no less difficult now for the average Trinidadian to visit Chaguaramas than it was at the time of the American occupation. He still has to run the gamut of security measures, even to personal frisking.

Where once he was confronted by an abrupt gun-toting U.S. Marine, he is now at the mercy of an identical Trinidad soldier.

Because of the tight security and secrecy, rumors proliferate about what goes on in the peninsula. There are stories of pleasure dens and lush private beaches, of guerrilla camps and smugglers' havens.

Received In Ship Trade
The U.S. government turned over the last small section of the Chaguaramas base just one year ago. It marked the end of a story that began in 1941 when British Prime Minister Winston Churchill, with the Nazis poised across the English Channel, traded West Indian bases to U.S. President Franklin D. Roosevelt for 50 over-age destroyers.

Throughout the British colonies in the West Indies, the fact that the British government could give away their land without consulting them became the symbol of everything they hated about their dependent status. Through the 1950s Williams took leadership of an independence movement that ultimately led to the creation of four new nations—Jamaica, Barbados, Guyana and Trinidad and Tobago—and six internally self-governing islands in what was once England's private sugar domain.

With adamant Trinidadians finally permitted at the bargaining table, the U.S. government turned back most of Chaguaramas in 1967, 73 years ahead of schedule.

When the last remnant of U.S. control ended a year ago, Williams named his one-time minister of industry and commerce, John O'Halloran, to head a Chaguaramas Development Authority.

Command Slack
But while O'Halloran apparently still heads the authority, there is no evidence that the authority itself even exists: no office, no staff, and efforts to contact O'Halloran himself have proved fruitless.

Government sources say legislation is being drafted to spell out the functions and powers of the authority, but it has not yet come to light.

Meanwhile, the Chaguaramas dreams continue.

One of them envisions the city that Williams intended to build as the seat of the West Indies Federation, a nation of all the former British West Indian colonies that lasted just four years before it fell apart in 1962.

Another dream is that of Chamber of Commerce President Louis Rostant, who this month offered the assistance of the private sector if the government wanted to set up a joint development project. Rostant envisions parcels of land and business concessions being sold to the public, generating jobs and government revenues.

Proposals have been made to the government for businesses, industries, tourists projects, housing developments and agricultural schemes for the land, considered one of the potentially richest parts of this nation which faces serious unemployment, inadequate housing and substantial food shortages.

Recently, the first civilians to occupy houses in Chaguaramas since the Americans left moved in. They are four German technicians, working on the 600-acre agricultural project. One hotel, Chagacabana, was put up. It failed.

In another place, the government built a convention center out of an old U.S. Army building. It is almost never used.

McGovern Gets Muskie Office

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Edmund S. Muskie has lost something else to Sen. George McGovern—his office.

McGovern, who won the Democratic presidential nomination from Muskie, is moving his national campaign headquarters to the Washington offices the Muskies staff formerly occupied.

Muskie had a special address—1972 K St.—and the telephone number USA 1972. But McGovern has changed it to the original address, 1910 K St., and he's getting a new phone number.

Miss Stox On Dean's List

WILSON — Miss Stella Diane Stox was named to the dean's list for the spring semester at Atlantic Christian College here.

Miss Stox is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Stox Jr. of Roxboro, formerly of Greenville, and the granddaughter of the late Mrs. Minnie Baker of Greenville.

She did her student teaching at Rock Ridge Elementary School and has accepted a position with the Craven County Schools System as a second grade teacher at Havelock Elementary School.

Human Guinea Pigs In Syphilis Study Are No More

By JEAN HELLER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — For 40 years the U.S. Public Health Service has conducted a study in which human guinea pigs, denied proper medical treatment, have died of syphilis and its side effects.

The study was conducted to determine from autopsies what the disease does to the human body.

PHS officials responsible for initiating the experiment have long since retired. Current PHS officials, who say they have serious doubts about the morality of the study, also say it's too late to treat syphilis in any of the study's surviving participants.

But PHS doctors say they are rendering whatever other medical services they now can give to the survivors while the study of the disease's effects continues.

The experiment, called the Tuskegee Study, began in 1932 with about 600 Black men, mostly poor and uneducated, from Tuskegee, Ala., an area which had the highest syphilis rate in the nation at the time.

One-third of the group was free of syphilis; two-thirds showed evidence of the disease. In the syphilitic group, half were given the best treatment known at the time, but the other half, about 200 men, received no treatment at all for syphilis, PHS officials say.

As incentives to enter the program, the men were promised free transportation to and from hospitals, free hot lunches, free medicine for any disease other than syphilis and free burial after autopsies were performed.

The Tuskegee Study began 10 years before penicillin was discovered to be a cure for syphilis and 15 years before the drug became widely available. Yet even after penicillin became common, and while its use probably could have helped or saved a number of the experiment subjects, the drug was denied them, according to Dr. J.D. Millar.

He is chief of the general disease branch of the PHS' Center for Disease Control in Atlanta and is now in charge of what remains of the Tuskegee Study. Dr. Millar said in an interview he has serious doubts about the program.

"I think a definite moral problem existed when the study was undertaken, a more serious moral problem was overlooked in the post-war years when penicillin became available but was not given to these men, and a moral problem still exists," Dr. Millar said.

"But the study began when attitudes were much different on treatment and experimentation. At this point in time, with our current knowledge of treatment and the disease and the revolutionary change in approach to human experimentation, I don't believe the program would be undertaken," he said.

Syphilis, a highly contagious infection spread by sexual contact, can cause, if untreated, bone and dental deformations, deafness, blindness, heart disease and central nervous system deterioration.

No figures were available on when the last death occurred in the program. And one official said that apparently no conscious effort to halt the program was made after it got under way.

A 1969 CDC study of 278 treated and untreated syphilitics who participated in the Tuskegee Study showed that seven had died as a direct result of syphilis. Another 154 died of heart disease. CDC officials says they cannot determine at this late date how many of the heart disease deaths were caused by syphilis or how many additional deaths could be linked to the disease.

However, several years ago an American Medical Association study determined that untreated syphilis reduces life expectancy by 17 per cent in black men between the ages of 25 and 50, a precise description of the Tuskegee Study subjects.

Don Prince, another official in the general disease branch of CDC, said the Tuskegee Study had contributed some knowledge about syphilis, particularly that the morbidity and mortality rate among untreated syphilitics was not as high as previously believed.

Like Dr. Millar, Prince said he believes the study should have been concluded with penicillin treatment after World War II.

"I don't know why the decision was made in 1946 not to stop the program," Prince said. "I was unpleasantly surprised when I first came here and found out about it. It really puzzles me."

At the beginning of 1972, according to CDC data, 74 of the untreated syphilitics were still living. All of them, Dr. Millar said, were men who did not suffer any potentially fatal side effects from their bouts with the disease.

Some of them received penicillin and antibiotics in past years for other ailments, Prince said, but none has ever received treatment for syphilis. Now, both men agree, it's too late.

Recent reviews of the Tuskegee Study by CDC indicate that treatment now for survivors is medically questionable, Dr. Millar said. Their average age is 74 and massive penicillin therapy, with possible ill side effects, is deemed too great a risk to the individuals, particularly for those whose syphilis is now dormant.

However, Dr. Millar added, there was a point in time when survivors could have been treated with at least some measure of success.

"The most critical moral issue about this experiment arises in the post-war era, the years after the end of World War II when penicillin became widely available.

"I know some were treated with penicillin for other diseases and then dropped from the program because the drug had some positive effect on the primary disease (syphilis). Looking at it now, one cannot see any reason they could not have been treated at that time."

IN THE MIND
WINCHESTER, England
(AP) — A Hampshire schoolteacher reports that when she asked her class to describe "imagination" in brief style, one 11-year-old boy wrote: "A bee's stinger is only a fraction of an inch long. The rest of the 12 inches is imagination."

Restoration Of Old Cars Is Challenge

CAMBRIDGE, Md. (AP) — "I'll tackle anything that comes along," says Dale Price. "It's the challenge that's the biggest part."

Among the challenges that recently creaked into his workshop here on the Chesapeake Bay's eastern shore are a dilapidated 1934 Ford Model A roadster, a 1907 White Steamer and an 1899 Kelsey-Tilney.

Price takes his charges apart "down to the last bolt," then repairs and restores them, mostly for the Smithsonian Institution's highway collection.

"It generally takes about a year to restore the average antique automobile," Price explained. "I do it myself. I don't have anyone working for me, but once in a while I subcontract part of a job."

When he has cleared the current backlog, Price plans to start work on an 1868 velocipede (front-wheel drive bicycle) for the Smithsonian.

"They weren't very good record keepers," he says of the company that built the century-old bike. "I'll have to do some research."

Don Berkebile, the Smithsonian's highway collection specialist, has another "challenge" awaiting shipment to Price: A rare 1912 Knox tractor, forerunner of the modern tractor trailer.

"It took me five years to locate it and another three years to raise the money to buy it," Berkebile said. "I wouldn't entrust it to anyone but Price."

Price, 51, opened an auto repair business after a four-year stint in the Marines in World War II and became involved with antique cars as a hobby. He has been restoring pieces for the Smithsonian since the late 1950s.

"I prefer historical vehicles. The older and more ingenious the vehicle, the better," Price says.

Untroubled by the knowledge that most of the cars he restores will never run again, Price confesses that "sometimes I run them just for fun before shipping them to Washington."

"They aren't fit for the turnpike anyway. Now everything centers on turnpike driving."

Price owns two cars, a late model Buick and a 1940 Plymouth that "you can't really call an antique."

As for their care, he turns them over to mechanics downtown.

Modern cars, he says, have made the backyard auto mechanic obsolete.

"Modern cars don't need you," Price said.

Field Day Set Friday

The Greenville Recreation Department is holding its annual Track and Field Day on Friday at Guy Smith Park. The event is being run as a conclusion to the summer park and playground program which is in its final week. All children who have been registered and have participated in programs or activities at any of the Recreation parks or centers are eligible to take part.

There will be running events, jumping events, sack races, egg throwing, and tug-of-war contests. The children will compete in two age groups: 7-10 years olds and 11-14 year olds. Boys and girls will compete separately.

The first events will start at 10:00 a.m. and the activities will conclude at approximately 3:00 p.m. The children are asked to bring a bag lunch as there will be a one hour lunch break with Kool-Aid served by the Recreation Department.

If a child has not yet registered for the Track and Field Day at one of the parks or centers he may do so Thursday, at the Greenville Recreation Department Office on Elm Street.

An 'Alternative' School Is Result

NEW YORK (UPI) — The phrase to watch on the education scene: alternative school. There is a grass-roots movement to try different ways of getting public education to students. The alternative school is one result. These include open schools, street academies, schools without walls and schools to meet needs of special students, such as pregnant ones.

Gierik Made Polish Farms Move Again

By JOHN LAWTON
WARSAW (UPI)—It took an ex-miner and a profit motive to get Polish farms moving again. But the result is more food for all Poles and happier farmers. When Edward Gierik, 59, took over as leader of the Polish Communist party in December, 1970, the nation's agricultural economy was a shambles. Between 1966 and 1970 real income of Poland's 6.5 million private farmers had shrunk by 4 per cent.

State interference had made farming so unprofitable that farmers cared more for feeding themselves than the 32.7 million Poles, and food shortages coupled with government-imposed price hikes triggered riots in Poland's Baltic ports that swept Wladyslaw Gomulka from power.

Enter Gierik, who:
—Abolished the average 20 per cent food price increases decreed by Gomulka.

—Imposed a two-year price freeze on all food products.

—Made farming more profitable for the farmers.

"Gierik did more in 14 months to revive the agricultural economy than Gomulka did in 14 years," said a veteran observer of the Polish economic scene.

Ironically, Gomulka had been hailed by his contemporaries as the "Healer of Polish Agriculture." He began work as a cowherd, while Gierik began as a miner.

Although Gomulka ended forced collectivization, he never really let up on the private farmer.

Removed Profit Motive
"Gomulka tried to 'encourage' farmers towards collectivization by erosion," a Western diplomat said. He systematically siphoned off their profits through low-yield government contracts and compulsory deliveries to the state at below-production prices.

Farmers were forced to accept government contracts as the only means of getting state-controlled supplies of coal.

Gierik began by raising prices paid by the government for milk and livestock, making their production profitable again. On Jan. 1 he abolished compulsory deliveries, and on May 1 ended state control over sales of coal.

The Gierik regime also abandoned the dogma of self-sufficiency in grain. By importing more grain and fodder, the new leadership succeeded in first stopping the decrease in animal production, then stimulating it.

Farmers Own Land

As a result of parliamentary legislation, about one million farmers who cultivated farms without valid property rights are now legal owners. All private farmers and their families have been included in the national health service.

"Many of the changes are philosophically contrary to Communist economics," a U.S. official said. But according to government statistics, they have worked.

In January and February the government purchased from the farmers 45 per cent more livestock, 18 per cent more milk and 9 per cent more eggs than in the same months of 1971.

All this meant more money for the farmers—retail sales in rural areas have risen 21.5 per cent in 12 months—and more to eat for the city dweller.

Fear Temporary Relief
Many Poles remain skeptical. Some express fears that the present policy is a temporary one, forced upon the party by the food shortage that helped topple Gomulka.

"On past occasions it has seemed the situation would finally take a turn for the better and bring—if not an era of plenty—at least a period of sufficiency," said Prof. Stefan Pieniazek, one of Poland's agricultural experts. "But the hopes and enthusiasm of the nation slowly and gradually died."

Nor is the farming community itself unaware of possible reversals. Interviewed by the newspaper Polityka, a group of farmers "expressed the fear that the officials will again think out something that will slow down the good changes." One straw in the wind may be that while Gierik currently is concentrating on helping private farming, he continues to strengthen existing state farms, too.

SCS Plans 66 Miles Of Channels In Chicod Creek Watershed Role

In recent months the Soil Conservation Service has been charged by various individuals and groups with having plans to dig up to 150,000 miles of natural perennial flowing streams in the United States.

Ken Grant, SCS administrator, discussed the situation at the 19th National Watershed Congress held in San Diego, Calif., recently.

Grant reported the results of a recent study made by SCS of all planned and constructed projects on which SCS assists. The study included some 54 pilot projects, 1,057 PL-566 watersheds and 33 flood prevention subwatersheds.

"Stream channel modification is planned on a little over 3,000 miles of natural perennial flowing streams," Grant said. "That is just 14 percent of the total 21,000 miles of all kinds of channel improvement work covered in the study."

Grant said much of the improvement will be made to manmade ditches, previously modified channels and new channels.

"The 21,000 miles of planned and constructed improvements include streams that flow all the time, some of the time, or only after heavy rains," Grant explained.

Grant added, "A third of the modification work in all projects covered by this study is on channels that have flown only during surface runoff. Another third is on channels that have intermittent flow. Twenty-six percent is on perennial streams or manmade ditches, and the rest is clearing and debris removal or streambank and grade stabilization."

The Chicod Creek Watershed Environmental Statement filed by SCS on July 13, 1972, reports that 66 miles of channels will be installed.

The channels will consist of: —30 miles of new channels with continuous flow through some seasons of the year but little or no flow through other seasons;

—five miles of new channels with flow only during periods of surface runoff;

—15 miles of enlargement of existing previously modified channel with continuous flow through some seasons of the year but little or no flow through other seasons;

—10 miles of previously modified channels with flows only during periods of surface runoff;

—six miles of existing streams with practically no defined channel and with perennial flow, except during extreme drought.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JULY 27, 1972

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A changing situation requires that you keep up with new conditions. Remain friendly to others who are able to help you bring progressive action. You are now well aware what others are trying to do. Give them a push in the right direction.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Try to contact as many friends as you can right now since they hold the key to your success. Become a more progressive person. Know what it is you really want to accomplish in the future.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have to be more broadminded now to make greater progress than you have had in the past. Handle those public and career matters well. Have a better view of civic conditions.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Forget present routine and take advantage of new opportunities around you. Show that you wish to learn more about whatever is current. Make plans for a trip. Remove clutter around you.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You always work in a patient, quiet way, but you have to take fast action now for best results. Tell loved one how you want the situation to trend in the future. Avoid an argument.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Plan how you and associate can make your mutual relationship more profitable and pleasant in the days ahead. Once an agreement has been reached engage in recreation together.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have much work to do and can get it done well if you use new appliances. Try to understand what others are thinking and help them with their ideas and aims. Be cooperative.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Engage in new activities that will give you a feeling of accomplishment. Try to please the one you love. Work on those creative skills that mean so much to you. Relax at home tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Find out what is expected of you by associates. Stop being so opinionated. Make the improvements that are necessary. Arrive on time for an important appointment you have.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Use your good mind in right direction and make your associates happier. Show that you have a tremendous amount of skill. Be with congenials during spare time. Take it easy tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have fine ideas for adding to your present abundance so put them in operation early and make big headway. Use more modern systems to get the best results. Be wise.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You can be the gregarious Aquarius you are known to be and make big strides in business and in your social life. Use your fine charm and wit. Show that you have much wisdom.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) New activities are open to you through which you can show your finest skills and talents, so engage in them as quickly as you can. Dress charmingly and show that you have poise.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those delightful young people who is definitely a part of the modern era. ## Bulk Of Howard Johnson Estate For Foundation

BOSTON (AP) — Howard D. Johnson, 75, who started with a Quincy drug store in 1925 and created a restaurant-motel empire, left the bulk of his estate to the Howard Johnson Foundation, his will showed Monday when filed in Suffolk County Probate Court.

Johnson died June 20 in New York City.

The foundation, a charitable trust established in September 1961, was bequeathed all Johnson's stock in four corporations — Howard Johnson Co., Jon-Co Inc., The H.J. Shops Inc. and H.J. Mineola & Co.

The exact worth of the stock was not shown, but it was believed to be several million dollars.

Johnson left $600,000 in cash bequests to his family. The largest was $500,000 to his wife, Marjorie C. Johnson of Boston. He also left $1.1 million in trust funds for his family.

The 35-page document was dated Feb. 12, 1968.

The coldest temperature ever recorded in Brazil was 6.6 F. in the state of Rio Grande do Sul.

The Worry Clinic Motivated By Their Wants

Bob offers a grudging compliment to this column, but he is at least a scientist and admits facts. Alas, many clergymen and choir directors still try to force the wrong church music on the faithful congregations that are paying the bills. So check this case against last Wednesday's column!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
 Ph.D., M.D.

Case R-572: Bob W., aged 35, is Minister of Music in a large church. "Dr. Crane," he mused, "for many years you have accused us professional choir directors and clergymen of poor psychology in the choice of music. "Well, we have often criticized you at our clerical meetings. "But I guess I might as well make my personal apology. "For in a recent issue of the United Church Herald, a survey was reported. "Laymen were asked to name their favorite hymns. "Then the clergy and professional musicians were also polled. "And what a difference! "For the clergymen didn't seem to want hymns about Jesus while the laymen rated them tops! "Thus, the ministers didn't cast any votes for 'What a Friend We Have in Jesus' nor for 'In the Garden.' "As you have often warned, we church leaders may need to make consumer surveys, as it were, and pay closer attention to the parishioners in the pews. "This apology on my part is difficult to make, Dr. Crane, but I guess I might as well face the music!"

Church Music Musicians, much like editors, physicians and many industrialists, often think their likes and dislikes are a true yardstick for layment. Not so!

When people come to church, they are NOT primarily concerned with the melodic "pyrotechnics" of a fancy choir or chorus.

For the latter's choral lyrics are often unintelligible to the congregation. And the tune is usually unfamiliar, so no resurrected emotions of mother and childhood idealism occur.

Yet the real psychological purpose of church music is to bring back childhood memories of mother and the religious idealism typical of our teenage years!

Without such revival of our previous moral moods, we are left flat and uninspired, so the choir merely wastes an extra 5 or 10 minutes in the modern dull church hour!

And, lest you think I am wrong, look at the laymen's rating of their favorite church hymns:

- (1) "How Great Thou Art"
- (2) "The Old Rugged Cross"
- (3) "What a Friend We Have in Jesus"

(5) "Onward Christian Soldiers"
 (6) "Holy, Holy, Holy"
 (7) "In the Garden"
 Earlier I have mentioned that famous "Motivation Test" which showed 5 basic laws of Human Motivation. One of which was: "People are motivated by what THEY want rather than by what YOU like!"

Movie makers have long denied that fact, which is why they poo-pooed "The Sound of Music" though it became an all-time hit with movie-goers!

Editors have even killed magazines and newspapers by refusing to follow polls of reader interest and the mail input to columns, and the same error has bankrupted many great corporations!

Schools Feeling Test Pressures

NEW YORK (UPI)—Standardized testing found few fans among the 8000 principals at the convention of the National Association of Elementary School Principals. The principals feel schools are being deluged with tests. The association's executive secretary, William L. Pharis, called the testing syndrome "this education shell game."

The principals said such tests can be valuable when used as diagnostic or individual measuring tools. Otherwise, such tests puts terrific pressure on students.

Germans Still Hunt 980,000 MIA In War

By E. RANDALL FLOYD BONN (UPI)—When Adolf Hitler sent his war machine rolling into Poland in 1939, 1st Lt. Bernhard Rempe's cavalry regiment was one of the first called to the front. The 24-year-old officer packed his duffel bag, kissed his bride of three months goodbye, then joined his unit marching off to war. Before going, he promised his young wife he would take leave at Christmas to be home in time for the baby. He never made it.

The simple, black-bordered telegram Frau Rempe received six months later said her husband was "missing in action and presumed dead." He is still "missing."

Rempe's fate is similar to that of 980,000 other German soldiers lost in World War II. Out of 1,738,000 Wehrmacht soldiers officially declared missing at the end of the war, only 758,000 have been accounted for.

In Munich an organization called the Search Service Center for Missing German Soldiers has been searching for the remainder of the missing men for nearly 30 years.

Detail War Era The center, which works hand in hand with the West German and International Red Cross, maintains a storehouse of old Wehrmacht military records, including detailed descriptions of units, personnel and other Third Reich background information from 1939 to 1945.

"Our method of establishing the fates of individuals such as Lt. Rempe is to reconstruct incidents leading up to his disappearance," said Kurt W. Boehme, director of the center. "We do this chiefly through file research, although we have sent agents as far away as New York and Moscow in search of personnel documents."

FORMER GERMAN POWs examine volumes of books in the library of the Search Service Center for Missing German Soldiers, looking for pictures of missing comrades. (UPI Telephoto)

The bulk of information, Boehme said, consists of small index cards filled out by families of the missing men in 1950. At that time the government appealed to all relatives of the missing soldiers to turn in the cards, indicating among other things the last date they received mail from the missing man and where the letter was postmarked.

"This step is important in tracing the men because if a soldier was taken prisoner and the family never heard from him again, we can safely presume the man is dead," Boehme said.

Seek 35,000 Solutions Boehme, whose office is in Bonn, said that by the end of this year his agents would be able to shed new light on at least 35,000 more cases.

"But we don't want to raise too much artificial hope," the silver-haired Wehrmacht veteran said. "It's a touch-and-go operation and we don't like to make predictions."

Like Rempe, Boehme said many of the missing soldiers are believed to have died at the hands of their enemy and been buried in nameless graves scattered across Europe, Asia and Africa. Some are thought to have changed sides, never daring or caring to return to their divided homeland.

But most authorities believe the majority of missing men perished in concentration camps tucked away deep behind enemy lines in Russia, Poland and the Balkan countries.

He said "a few thousand" men were missing along the western front, but that most of those cases had long since been solved.

Toll Of Soviet Army "The majority of missing soldiers vanished in the wake of thousands of other seashells." A volute is a mollusk found primarily in the Philippines. It has a short-spined shell and is found in varying sizes and colors.

"I had my own collection. Then W. Clifton Weaver of Honolulu and I collected volutes together on the Great Barrier Reef. His collection came here, as did another from South Africa," he said.

Du Pont, 34, and Weaver co-authored the book "Volute," in which du Pont estimates 17 years of research were combined.

But du Pont's collection isn't limited to extraordinary shells.

"We want to concentrate on three fields," he said. "Seashells, birds and mammals."

Du Pont has his own theory as to why his is the first museum to open in the United States in the past 62 years.

"A lot of museums opened years ago with a tremendous number of fields. As time went on, and things became more expensive, their funds remained about the same," he said.

"Many museums found they were virtually running down hill," he said.

This museum boasts several unique features.

One is a spacious, semi-circular reproduction of the African watering hole. No glass separates the viewer.

Two snow geese, native to the Arctic tundra, hang suspended as if in flight in a rotating plexiglass globe.

Delaware's salt marshes are recreated in an extensive display on area birdlife. And the museum also boasts dozens of sets of bird eggs. Included is one mammoth elephant bird egg which dominates an entire display case.

For du Pont, who holds a bachelors degree in marine biology from the University of Miami (Fla.), along with two honorary doctor of science degrees from Villanova and Pennsylvania Military College, the museum is the fulfillment of years of work.

"I started collecting shells in 1950. I conceived the idea for the museum in 1957 when I was still in college."

Many of the thousands of shells on display were collected by du Pont himself.

"On an expedition to the Philippines in 1958 with the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia, we collected three tons of shells," he said.

It was then du Pont met Dr. R. Tucker Abbott, one of the world's leading malacologists and conchologists (shell studiers), and now the director of the museum's shell collection.

"I've gotten a great deal of self-satisfaction from watching the plans grow and take shape over the years," du Pont said.

"But it's somewhat like hatching a dinosaur egg—you never quite know what it is 'til it comes out," he said.

Shell Collection One Of Largest

By IRENE E. SHADOAN Associated Press Writer GREENVILLE, Del. (AP) — An elephant bird egg, bigger than a football.

A wild beast munching grass at a water hole on Mt. Kenya's slopes.

A collection of rare and beautiful seashells that may be unrivaled in any museum.

These are but three of the sky, land and sea exhibits at America's newest museum, the Delaware Museum of Natural History.

It is the first to open in the United States since 1910, according to John Eleuthere du Pont, originator of the museum.

The building appears a cold and somber beige, contrasted with its lush, green Brandywine Valley surroundings.

But inside it is warm, intimate and engrossing.

When the public entered for the first time this year, they discovered one of the world's largest shell collections.

"I'd say we have one of the most, if not the most, extensive collection of volute shells in the world," said du Pont. "And we have literally thousands and

Least-Known Of Vice Presidents

CHICAGO (UPI)—The 11th U.S. vice president has the distinction of being the least known statesman with one of the best known names.

Prior to the vice presidency, he had been minister to Russia and a U.S. senator. Later, at the outbreak of the Civil War, he was minister to Great Britain. But, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica, George Mifflin Dallas is best known because the settlers of a Texas hamlet named the town in his honor.

Britain has more than 2,000 qualified youth workers, mostly functioning part time and mostly unpaid.
