Not Worth 150 Casualties A Day

South Viets Abandon Fight For Citadel

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — Badly mauled South Vietnamese paratroopers retreated from the Quang Tri Citadel carrying their dead and wounded in rubber ponchos slung from poles, giving up the bloody fight for the 19th century fortress, field informants reported today.

"They were taking 150 casualties a day and it just wasn't worth hanging in there," one U.S. adviser told Associated Press correspondent Dennis Neeld in Quang Tri.

An official announcement from the Saigon command said the paratroopers in Quang Tri were being replaced by marines, who had occupied positions east of the provincial capital.

The official announcement gave no explanation.

Other sources in Saigon confirmed that the paratroopers had suffered heavy casualties and need time for refitting.

For the time being, the Citadel was left in North Vietnamese hands and indications from the field were that the marines would make no immediate attempt to storm it.

The Saigon command also disclosed that several hundred infantrymen had abandoned Fire Base Bastogne guarding the western approaches to Hue because it has been under heavy North Vietnamese shellfire. More than 3,000 rounds have hit the base and government positions around it in the past two days.

It was the second time Bastogne had been given up under enemy fire. It was abandoned April 28 and reoccupied May 15.

Military communiques and spokesmen have not reported any casualty figures for the recent heavy fighting in Quang Tri City, but one field report said it was "murderous."

Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, the chief spokesman for the Saigon command, reported only one major fight Thursday, about a mile northeast of Quang Tri City. He said 30 North Vietnamese troops were killed by the marines with support from air and artillery strikes. One marine was reported killed and eight wounded.

Hien said there was no major fighting in the Citadel.

A new outbreak of fighting was reported in the southern half of the country, both to the north of Saigon and in the Mekong Delta.

Small bands of 30 to 40 men invaded four hamlets in Hieu Thien district near the Cambodian border just off Highway 1, about 40 miles northwest of Saigon.

Several hundred South Vietnamese reinforcements were sent into the district to root out the invaders. Fighting was described as light.

Trend To Single Family Units Appear In Proposals

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Indications of a change in trend in housing development in Greenville from apartment complexes to single family units is manifest in two subdivision proposals. The proposals, for large developments totaling over 300 acres, won approval before planning and zoning boards meeting at City Hall Wednesday night.

The first to come up was William E. Dansey's request for rezoning 209 acres south of the Farmville highway (U.S. 264) from the current RA-20 (rural and residential zoning) to R-6 residential for all the area except an 800 foot strip along the highway to a depth of 400 feet, which Dansey requested as highway commercial.

When a first motion to deny the highway commercial portion rezoning failed to due to lack of a second, Mayor S. Eugene West took the opportunity to express his opinion on Dansey's proposed plan. "His idea for this type of zoning goes back to something that happened several months ago," the mayor said. "Dansey sought rezoning to place a convenience store in an apartment complex already developed and got turned down.

"Everybody said Dansey had established the apartments first and should have foreseen the necessity for a commercial establishment and set aside space for this before he started the project," Mayor West continued. "In this case tonight, he has done what he was criticized for not doing before. I feel Dansey's plan is as it should be, to plan commercial areas before getting started. Then people will know about it, if they don't like it, they won't move in."

Dansey's request was before the members of the Joint City-County Planning and Zoning Commission. A second motion, one for approval of Dansey's plan for the two separate zonings for the area, won the commissioners approval.

The second proposal dealing with plans for future single unit dwellings was one that came before the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission.

M.E. Cavendish, representing Hugh C. Winslow, introduced a request for rezoning Winslow's property, a farm of approximately 100 acres located on Hooker Road, from RA-15 and RA-20 to R-6 zoning.

Cavendish explained that the request was based on Winslow's plan to develop the area into a single dwelling unit subdivision. He noted that contact has already been established with a developer in Richmond, Virginia.

"My understanding is that the plans are to develop single unit dwellings," Cavendish stated, "as the developers feel that Greenville is already too saturated with apartments."

City Engineer C. A. Hilliday pointed out to Winslow that a projected road through his farm is on the thoroughfare plan, a road that would connect Red Bank Road with Hooker Road to tie in with Sedgefield Drive.

"This is an important part of the thoroughfare plan," Mayor West commented, "as it is another road to supplement the 264 by-pass." Cavendish said it was felt such a road would not be an obstacle to the proposed development.

In addition to the original proposal to rezone the farm land, which was recently taken into the city limits, the motion for rezoning was amended to include the Winslow home and grounds. This met with Winslow's approval, with the result that the city commissioners approved rezoning the entire area, some 100 plus acres from the Winslow property line on the south all the way north up to the flood plain along Green Mill Run.

In other business before the joint city-county meeting, three items were up for consideration.

The first, a request for rezoning John F. Moye property was taken in two sections. The first request was for rezoning a tract of land of approximately six acres across U.S. 264 by-pass from Red Oak Subdivision from shopping center to highway commercial. The city commissioners recommended approval of the request to the City Council.

The second tract of the Moye property, adjacent to

Gov. Scott Cites Need For Early Involvement In Planning Programs

AT GOVERNOR' REGIONAL CONFERENCE . . . held in Williamston yesterday, Gov. Scott listens to two of the more than 125 participants from Multi-County Planning Regions L, Q and R who attended the session. (Reflector Staff Photo)

WILLIAMSTON — "The need for early citizen involvement" in planning for the future development of North Carolina was the main purpose for a meeting between more than 125 area leaders and members of the Council on State Goals and Police here yesterday, according to Gov. Bob Scott.

The governor, who opened the conference said, "We are preparing a plan for the future development of North Carolina rather than stumbling into it. The overriding concern, is to provide equal opportunity for everyone in the state."

And the governor emphasized, "If we are to meet the issues more effectively, then we must be more deliverate in planning and coordinating the activities of all levels of government."

Eastern North Carolina leaders attending yesterday's conference were residents of state multi-county planning regions Lq and R which include 20 Northeastern counties.

The purpose of the 17 multi-county planning regions in the state is to plan on an area-wide basis to prevent overlapping and duplication of programs and to coordinate activities to improve living conditions, economic development and other areas of life in the regions.

Pitt is one of five counties in Planning Region Q, which also includes Beaufort, Martin, Bertie and Hertford Counties.

The Mid East Economic Development Commission, with offices in Washington, and supported by contributions from the five counties as well as from federal grants, has been designated as Lead Regional Organization for Region Q. It has the responsibility as a clearing house for projects requiring federal and-or state funding, and reviews other projects to insure they are compatable with an overall area development plan.

The commission is governed by representatives appointed by the Boards of County Commissioners and municipal boards in the five counties.

In order to provide an opportunity for the Council on State Goals and Policy to hear from residents of the three planning regions, workshop sessions were held during the afternoon.

At these sessions council staff members held open discussions with representatives from each of the resions.

Yesterday's metting was the third in a series of five Governor's Regional Conferences schduled. Monday a conference was held in Hendersonville while Mooresville was the site of Tuesday's session.

The final sessions are set for August 7 at Warsaw and August 8 in Burlington.

Withdrawal Door Open

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer

HONOLULU (AP) — Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton says he will withdraw from the Democratic ticket voluntarily if he gets a gut feeling that voters are edgy about him because of his past medical problems.

'If my visceral feeling is that my candidacy is untenable," the Democratic vice presidential nominee said Wednesday, "I won't wait for George McGovern. I'll get off myself."

Eagleton revealed Tuesday that he had been hospitalized for "nervous exhaustion and fatigue" in 1960, 1964 and 1966.

He offered then to withdraw from the ticket, but Democratic presidential nominee McGovern kept him on, refusing to even discuss a resignation.

After flying here from Los Angeles, Eagleton said for the first time that he might not wait for McGovern to take him up on his standing offer.

"It's hard to qualify what it would take for me to have that visceral feeling in my stomach," he said. "A part of politics is subjective, having a feel about a situation."

He said he would be able to detect if "I'm making people nervous or edgy" or "if people are troubled by my presence on the ticket."

If he does withdraw, the Missouri senator said, "I wouldn't be happy about it, but I'd understand. I'm a very pragmatic person." His replacement on the ticket would be selected by the Democratic National Committee if he should decide to step aside.

However, he talked of the presidential campaign with confidence. "I have a visceral feeling that we're going to win this election," he said.

Several hundred persons warmly greeted him at Honolulu International Airport. Many held hand-lettered placards reading "Vice President Eagleton."

Eagleton, designated by Sen. McGovern as his chief campaign ambassador to organized labor, was expected to leave here with endorsement of the Democratic ticket by the 600,000-member Retail Clerks International Association, fifth largest union in the AFL-CIO.

Elected Officers

Louis Clark was elected chairman of the Joint City-Council planning and Zoning Commission and the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission in elections held before the assembled boards Wednesday night.

After electing Clark chairman, members then elected Earl Howell to serve as vice-chairman of the two-commissions.

Elections took place immediately following convening of the Joint City-Council Planning and Zoning Commission, in order to give the commissions a chairman and vice-chairman.

Clark succeeds former chairman H.T. Chapin; Howell succeeds former vice-chairman Clarence Tugwell, both of whom have completed two terms of membership and were replaced by the City Council in its July meeting.

Hanoi Rejects 'Urgent' American Appeal For An Immediate Ceasefire

By MORRIS W. ROSENBERG
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam rejected today a renewed urgent American appeal for an immediate cease-fire in Vietnam.

Hanoi's chief negotiator told the 152nd session of the Vietnam peace conference that a cease-fire can take place "after agreement on all the military and political questions."

Xuan Thuy scoffed at President Nixon's May 8 plan, which included a call for a cease-fire, saying it contains "nothing new and constructive."

U.S. Ambassador William J. Porter had urged acceptance of the cease-fire, saying: "There seems to be no more compelling task for us than that of ending the killing and doing so as soon as we can. Cease-fire is the key."

Porter said an end to the shooting would enhance the prospects for political negotiation.

But Thuy said that if the United States really wants to negotiate seriously it should "put an immediate end to the mining and blockade of North Vietnamese ports, to its bombing raids—particularly to those against dikes and dams ... It should stop all its acts of genocidal war in South Vietnam."

The Communist side clung to the seven-point plan of the Viet Cong's revolutionary government, which calls for the United States to set a date for total and unconditional withdrawal of its forces and the replacement of the Saigon regime of Nguyen Van Thieu by a coalition government.

Porter also asked today "why arrangements cannot be planned now for the time when our men will return to their country?"

He also asked the Communists to start discussion of arrangements for eventual return of American prisoners of war.

The American negotiator asked the Communists to say, if they do not find the U.S. cease-fire proposal acceptable, what variation of it they would care to discuss.

"Has the issue of negotiations not been reduced to the simple matter of whether they are to take place in conditions of war or nonwar?" he asked.

"We see no valid reason," Porter continued, "why arrangements cannot be planned now for the time when our men will return to their country. What harm could it cause you to discuss with us arrangements for their eventual return, or the handling of their mail, or methods of checking their physical condition?"

"It is true that our proposal centers on the military situation," Porter said. "In the face of the retrogressive nature of your massive invasion of South Vietnam and your persistent refusal to consider our past proposals for a comprehensive settlement, we have responded appropriately — to permit both you and us to emerge from the situation which now exists."

South Vietnamese Ambassador Pham Dang Lam called on the Communists to abandon the preconditions of their seven-point peace plan and to begin serious negotiations. He said, without explaining, "The chances for a negotiated settlement will never be better than at the present time."

Assassins Kill Two In Belfast

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Assassins killed two more men in Belfast during the night, and the Irish Republican Army hit back at British troops who have invaded their strongholds.

The militant Protestant Ulster Defense Association said it would throw up a blockade today to stop all fuel oil deliveries to Londonderry's Bogside and Creggan districts, hoping to force the Catholic families to move out of the IRA strongholds. Their idea was that then the army would go in and round up the guerrillas.

The charred bodies of the two men were found in a burning car in a Protestant zone of North Belfast.

One, found at the wheel, was identified as a prominent Roman Catholic. The other, stuffed in the trunk, was not immediately identified, but both were shot in the head, the manner in which some 20 persons have been murdered in Belfast in the past month.

NEW YORK (AP) — Ruth McKenney, 60, whose short stories about "My Sister Eileen" became a best-silling book, a play and finally a musical, "Wonderful Town" died Tuesday after a long illness.

Airport Growth

KINSTON — A 208 acre farm has been acquired adjacent to Stallings Field—the Kinston-Lenoir County Airport—to provide space needed for improvements at the airport.

The purchase of the farm for $412,000 Tuesday almost completes acquisation of land and fly-over rights needed to complete the improvement project at the airport.

The farm purchase, according to Kinston and Lenoir County officials paves the way for installation of an instrument landing system for all-weather operation at the commercial airport. Other land acquisition of fly-over rights on other property will pave the way for future expansion of runways.

Installation of the instrument landing system is scheduled to begin in October and will be operational by the first of the year.

Warehouse War Hacks At Furniture Prices

By SIDNEY MARGOLIUS

NEW YORK (WNS) — Furniture is one item that has trailed behind other goods and services in the past five years of inflation. While living costs in general have jumped about 25 per cent, upholstered furniture has gone up 20 per cent, and bedroom and dining-room furniture, only about 5 per cent.

You might claim that's because people are sleeping and eating less. But what's really happened is that the proliferation of warehouse stores and clearance centers, and the increasing number of highly competitive warehouse sales staged by regular stores, have chopped away at the traditional retail markup on furniture. Too, factories are using new mass-production methods, and cheaper but still sturdy materials.

Furniture, by its nature, is a high-markup commodity because of the inevitable warehousing, shipping and damage expense. In the normal pricing system, which seems to be crumbling, if a piece of furniture costs $50 to manufacture (including labor and materials), the maker sells it to stores for $110. Thz rest goes to pay designers, salesmen, warehousing and showrooms.

Doubling

The store itself, if it takes the traditional markup, usually operates on a "number." If the store pays $110, it marks the item up a number and sells it for $220. Some stores even operate on a number plus 10 or 20 per cent, selling the item for $230 to $240.

But there are price differences among stores, and among manufactures, too. Makers of the highly-advertised national brands, designed by so-called "name" designers, often charge 20-25 per cent more than do lesser-known factories. Such manufactureres frequently change styles, or change them a little to produce something "now" for the wholesale markets. These more-frequent cuttings of different styles add to costs, which the customer pays.

Thus, sizable savings are available in both the brand you buy and where and when you buy. Warehouse cutlets and warehouse sales often now are sponsored by regular department and furniture stores as well as the chains of warehouse and clearance stores that have spread across the country in the past two years.

Cash And Carry

The new warehouse stores are something like supermarkets; really big self-service stores. You either cart the furniture away yourself or pay extra for delivery. This means, of course, that you do some of the work such as removing the furniture from the shipping cartons and attaching the hardware but you also save on some services offered by traditional stores which you may not really want, such as decorating service and installment credit. You can always arrange for a credit union or bank loan yourself at lower finance charges than the 18-22 per cent annual rate that stores usually charge for time payments.

But while most of the warehouses and clearance centers we have observed do sell for less, some of their claims (such as "direct to you") may need to be taken with a grain of salt. There have been several complaints by authorities and consumer groups that some warehouse stores give the impression they offer wholesale prices.

It is impossible, of course, to buy furniture at true wholesale prices because of the large expenses involved in handling and displaying furniture. My own observation is that such warehouses and clearance centers usually sell for 10 to 20 per cent less than full-service stores. The difference is even less when the full-service stores have sales.

As well as some savings, warehouse stores also have attracted consumer interest because of their wide selections and immediate availability of stock.

Quality Problems

But in an age of many mishaps and quality problems even among some of the most-famous brand names, one of the most important considerations in where to buy is whether the store will do anything if something is wrong. Some consumers say that they don't want to bother going back to the dealer if a purchase proves unsatisfactory. But is something important does go wrong, like an arm coming loose in a few months, you should give the dealer a chance to perform. Satisfaction in correcting complaints will be direct proportion too the dealer's reliability, not only in repairing defects but in replacing any piece not repaired to your satisfaction.

You yourself should inspect furniture thoroughly before accepting it or signing the delivery receipt. Some touchup of minor scratches is frequently needed and should not be upsetting. But more serious defects that may not be noticeable right away can be costly and controversial. In fact it is wise to ask the dealer about his followup policy after delivery, and nespecially useful if you can get a written guarantee that he will correct minor defects that may show up later. Finally, make certain before you buy that the items ordered will be factory-fresh pieces and not the floor samples which the salesman showed you — unless they are being sold as floor samples.

When you buy is important too. August and February are the big sale months for furniture, floor coverings, bedding and curtains and drapes.

Women Enter New Navy Field

PEARL HABOR, Hawaii (AP) — Women drivers are not unusual—except when the vehicle happens to be a Navy boat. The Navy recently assigned, on a trial basis, three women to the tour boats going to the USS Arizona Memorial.

"It's just like driving a car," said Seaman Apprentice Terry J. Schorsch, 19. She, Seaman Helen D. Sheppard, 23, and Seaman Apprentice Judy A. East, 19, are line-handlers and coxwains-in-training on the 64-foot passenger barges. They fasten the lines of the boats to the pier and steer the boats around the harbor.

None had prior experience in working with boats, and all three had trouble making a smooth docking at the pier. "I kept running into the pier," Miss Schorsch said. "I didn't bump into it, I crashed into it."

But their supervisor, Boatswain's Mate First Class Edward Smith said the women are "doing a good job and show a great deal of enthusiasm.

"The first day they got here, I told them I expected them to do everything, including running the boat," Smith said.

He admitted he didn't like the idea at first, but now wouldn't mind a female crew. "If they can do the job, I'm all for it," he said.

The three young women probably became the first women in the Navy to design their own uniforms. Miss East made the outfits of white blouses and navy blue culottes, which are worn with blue knee socks and white sneakers.

Designer Reverses The Usual Markets

By ALISON LERRICK

PARIS (AP) — In New York, Arnold Scaasi makes only made-to-order clothes. But in an unusual turnabout, he came, to Paris, home of the haute couture, to turn his hand to ready-to-wear.

"I thought it was a crazy idea at first. Why would anyone need another designer in Paris? It doesn't make sense," says Scaasi, all aflutter over his maiden mini-collection of 22 evening dresses for next winter.

Designed in America, the dresses are produced under the label of Maria Moutet, a chic boutique on the Faubourg Saint Honore. "It's a very economical situacion because I only use French fabrics anyway," explained Scaasi.

Eight years ago, Scaasi—the proud possessor of the Coty Award, the eiman Marcus Award and three Gold Coast Fashion Awards—renounced ready-to-wear, but the urge to return to it has been plaguing him for the past 18 months. "It's a part of modern living," shrugs Scaasi, spotless in his navy blazer, sweater vest and gold bracelet.

Why Paris? "Rome is much too decadent, and I found London very discouraging," he says. As for Germany, "it was only so-so, and I don't speak German." He does speak French—thanks to a childhood in Montreal and fashion studies in Paris—so he settled down at the Ritz to work out the details.

"I love the French," he admits. But whether it's nationality or pricetag, a Scaasi is a Scaasi. "My kind of woman is over 25, sophisticated and wants to look more attractive than she is. She can afford to go home from the office, take a bath and chanve. She's not a kid who dashes out to a bistro in blue jeans...or whatever she wears to the office," he says.

Among the women who have popped, at one time or another, into his "salon" on East 56th Street in New York City—as couture as they come in beige damask and silver swans—for a fitting or two are Sophia Loren, Dina Merrill, Arlene Francis, Polly Bergen, Joan Sutherland, Diahann Carroll and Barbra Streisand, whose costumes Scaasi also created for "On a Clear Day You Can See Forever."

"Of course," says Scaasi, "there will always be women who want made-to-order clothes. If you can afford them, there are certain advantages. They fit you."

As of next fall, the French—or the ones who don't care to cross the Atlantic for a couture dress—can snatch their own Scaasi off the rack. So can Americans, at stories including Marshal Fields and Saks Fifth Avenue, for $200-$500, complete with that famous French workmanship.

"Take my little black sequin dress," says Scaasi. "It's totally embroidered by hand and absolutely adorable. What a great shape!"

Everything in his collection is black, white or pink, or mutations thereon, because "I had to make a statement, so I thought I might as well do it by color." The pink—which he dabbled into shape on his palette—is a compromise between shocking and mauve.

There are no pants. "There's nothing wrong with them. It's just that you can camouflage things better with a dress. Liberation is a state of mind, not a pair of pants and an old shirt," says Scaasi. "It's certainly no coup for women's lib to have a lot of unattractive women running around."

Even men—including himself—"are sick of sweaters and casual clothes." he says. "I have a feelinv people want to look a little better than they've been looking for a while."

What they want is 'to dress up'."

Engagement Announced

No Time For Mom After Leaving Army

By Abigail Van Buren

[© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.]

DEAR ABBY: My son was in Viet Nam for over a year, and when I heard he was coming home I started counting the hours.

Well, he came home, and guess where he went? Straight to his girl friend's house! I was so hurt I cried all night.

Abby, if you had a son and he did this to you, tell me, truthfully, how would you feel? HURT MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I HAVE a son, and I can tell you truthfully, if my son had a girl waiting for him whom he couldn't wait to see, I'd not be hurt. I'd be grateful for his good fortune. [Many young men will not be coming home . . . and many others will not have girl friends waiting for them.]

DEAR ABBY: I am 21 and my husband is 23. We have been married for two years and have no children.

My husband and I have come to the decision that we married too young, our marriage was a mistake, and we should go our separate ways. We have both gone for counseling, and there is no hard feeling between us, and I think we could probably still be friends after the divorce.

Our problem is how to tell our families. They knew we had been having our problems and had seen a marriage counselor, but they will be shocked when we tell them we have decided to split up. In fact, I'm afraid they might try to talk us out of it. We have grandparents on both sides who I'm sure would never understand it. If they ask us what happened or why we can't make a go of our marriage, what can we tell them?

This is the hardest part of breaking up. Can you help us? HIS AND HERS

DEAR H AND H: The less explaining you try to do, the better. Simply tell them that you have decided to end your marriage. And if they press you for details, say, "We'd rather not discuss it." Period.

DEAR ABBY: I work in an office all day long and in the evenings I do income tax. I have a lot of calling to do in the evening, but I am on a four-party telephone line and I have a terrible time getting the line.

These other parties are home all day, so I think they should use the phone during the daytime and leave it free for me to use at night.

I tell them to get off the line so I can use it, but sometimes they don't do it. Don't you think I have the right to use the phone in the evenings since I am never here to use it during the day? WORK TO DO

DEAR WORK: I think you deserve special consideration in the evenings because you never use the telephone during the day. But if you were to ASK them, instead of TELL them to get off the line, you'd probably have more luck.

DEAR ABBY: We've had a lot of trouble with our teen-aged son, and my next door neighbor keeps saying, "If he were MY kid I'd kick him out of the house."

Maybe my neighbor is right, but I just can't see it. How should I answer him if he says it again?

HEARTBROKEN DAD IN KANSAS CITY

DEAR DAD: Say, "If he were YOUR kid I'd probably kick him out of the house, but he's not YOUR kid, he's MINE."

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 69700, L. A., CALIF. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

Garden Aspic Is A Go-Along

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Webster says an aspic is "a savory jelly made from fish or meat stock thickened with gelatin and seasoned and used cold to garnish meat or fish."

Here then is a new aspic made with condensed beef consomme plus tomato juice, unflavored gelatin, seasonings and garden-fresh vegetables. We served the aspic with cold baked ham when we were entertaining guests from England and they applauded it. We felt this was an accolade because British cooks are known for the delicious aspics they make.

MOLDED SALAD — It's an aspic made with beef consomme, unflavored gelatin, seasonings and garden-fresh vegetables.

GARDEN ASPIC

¾ cup tomato juice
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1 can (10½ ounces) condensed beef consomme, undiluated
1 teaspoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon Worchestershire sauce
4 drops hot pepper sauce
1 cup grated (medium-fine) carrot
¼ cup finely diced celery
2 tablespoons minced green pepper
2 tablespoons minced scallion (green onion)
Salad greens or parsley sprigs

Into a 1½-quart saucepan pour ½ cup of the tomato juice. Sprinkle gelatin over juice and allow to soften—about 5 minutes. Place over low heat and stir until gelatin dissolves.

Off heat stir in the remaining ¼ cup tomato juice, undiluted consomme, lemon juice, Worcestershire and hot pepper sauce. Chill in saucepan until slightly thickened. Fold in carrot, celery, green pepper and scallion.

Turn into a 1-quart mold. Chill until firm; cover. At serving time unmold and garnish with salad greens.

Makes 6 servings.

Exciting Things Are Happing At Brody's

Aired Too Late To Be Factor

The regrettable part of the disclosure of Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton's past illnesses is that once again the public has not had information it needed about a top political candidate as soon as it should have.

Sen. Eagleton, Democratic nominee for vice president, revealed at a press conference Tuesday that he had been hospitalized three times between 1960 and 1966 for "nervous exhaustion and fatigue." He said he underwent psychiatric treatment, including electric shock therapy for depression, on two of the occasions.

Sen. Eagleton appeared at a press conference with Sen. George McGovern to give details of his hospitalization. Sen. McGovern, the Democratic presidential nominee, declared that he was not fully aware of Sen. Eagleton's medical history prior to choosing him as vice presidential nominee.

The press conference was held after a long private conference between the two senators, which followed recent rumors and inquires about Sen. Eagleton's health.

Sen. Eagleton said he had decided previously to make the medical history public on his own initiative. It was decided, he said, "the risk of having to divulge these things was a risk we would have to face."

Well, it is a matter of record that, while Sen. Eagleton was hospitalized three times, he has also been able to function well in highly demanding public positions. Still, he has allowed the Democratic National Convention to go through the process of choosing him as vice presidential nominee without mentioning the previous problems.

It is possible that if the delegates had known they would have gone on with the nomination. It is also possible that Sen. McGovern, as he says, would have still chosen Sen. Eagleton as his running mate if he had known his full medical history. At this point, however, all this is conjecture. The delegates and Sen. McGovern did not have the full story on Sen. Eagleton, nor did the public. It illustrates once again that candidates for high public office, such as the vice presidency, should immediately make a full disclosure of anything in their personal lives which could possibly affect their performance in office.

Sub-Standard Care Reported

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — Another investigation of conditions inside one of the state's mental institutions has turned up instances of ill care and abuse of severely retarded young patients.

State Rep. Howard Twiggs of Wake, who made the disclosure, said investigations by the SBI and FBI at O'Berry Hospital at Goldsboro could well provide the basis for criminal prosecution.

"It is my own belief, and the thinking of people who know the situation, that the standard of care at O'Berry is the poorest of any facility in North Carolina," he declared.

Beating of patients, over dosage of tranquilizers, and infestation of roaches are among complaints brought to his attention by parents of inmates at the hospital for mentally retarded youngsters, Twiggs said.

Twiggs said the investigations, which he had a hand in initiating, were completed about six weeks ago. Findings were turned over to Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan.

The attorney general's office said the report had been wrapped up and delivered to Gov. Bob Scott.

No Public Report

The governor's office said a summary of the findings has been shared with Dr. Lennox Baker, secretary of human resources, and Dr. Eugene Hargrove, mental health commissioner. The confidential nature of an SBI investigation does not permit making the report public, a spokesman in the governor's office said.

Twiggs discussed care for the mentally ill on a news conference interview over WUNC-TV educational television.

A public aroused by revelations of poor treatment for the mentally ill will demand corrective action from the 1973 General Assembly, said Twiggs. "Mental health care will be the number one issue for the session," he forecast.

Twiggs, a Raleigh attorney, will have a role as legislative committee chairman for the N.C. Mental Health Association and also as a fourth-term House member (subject to the fall general election).

If the legislature shirks its responsibility, the battleground is likely to shift to the federal courts.

Court Action Possibility

Detailed minimum standards for mental health care already have been spelled out for the state of Alabama as the result of a court suit, Twiggs reminded. It could happen here, he added, unless the legislature acts voluntarily.

"The North Carolina system does not even approach the minimum standards of care set out in the Alabama case," he said.

Shortcomings in the state's mental hospitals system have been pointed up in a series of recent investigations. The mental health association conducted its own study which severely criticized the quality of patient care. Staff dismissals at Cherry Hospital at Goldsboro followed an SBI probe there.

In spite of mounting criticism, improvement has been slow in coming, Twiggs said.

Conditions Called 'Deplorable'

He described as "deplorable" the conditions in mental hospitals. "The general level of care has improved very little since a series of newspaper articles in 1968 laid out the many problems in the system," he asserted.

Twiggs said the state mental health department has estimated it would take $141 million in the next biennium to bring North Carolina up to the standards promulgated by the court in the Alabama case. His own view is that it could be done with $50—$60 million in new money.

There's nothing to prevent a private citizen from bringing a comparable suit in this state at any time, Twiggs noted. As far as the mental health association is concerned, he continued, his advice would be to wait and see what the '73 session will do. He implied the route to court will follow if the legislature falls short.

Changes other than increased appropriations must come in order to reform the system, he said. "We're top-heavy with administrative staff," he explained. "The emphasis must be placed on treating patients and not on administrators sitting around a table in Raleigh."

While the administrative budget rose 400 per cent in the past four years, expenditures for direct patient care increased only 30 per cent over the same period, he said.

Twiggs observed that a study commission created by the 1971 legislature to investigate the mental health department will be ready to report to the next session.

Border Belt's Opening Augurs Well For East

Hopefully the record $80.68 opening day average on the Border Belt bodes well for tobacco prices in this area.

The Border market opened with the average $6.32 cents higher than last year's opening.

Growers in our area have produced a good crop this year and it appears the Eastern Belt markets are headed for record openings next month.

Johnson Feels Out Of Place

By JOHN KILGO

Republican Party maverick Jimmy Johnson of Concord, who ran unsuccessfully against Jesse Helms in the U.S. Senate Primary, will not be actively supporting Helms or gubernatorial nominee Jim Holshouser in the fall election.

As a matter of fact, reports are making the Tar Heel political circuit that Johnson will support Nick Galifianakis for the Senate and Skipper Bowles for Governor — and soon change his registration to the Democratic Party.

Johnson isn't ready to go that far, at least he wasn't in an interview with me, but he does say candidly:

"The fathers of the North Carolina Republican Party have made it clear that they do not want me. (Jim) Holshouser had been to Concord four or five times and didn't even call me. He doesn't want me in a 10-acre field with him and that's all right. I guess I'm more of an Independent now than anything else."

Will Johnson support Jesse Helms in the Senate race?

"If Helms comes to Cabarrus County, I will introduce him around," Johnson said. "But if Galifianakis comes here, I'll introduce him around also."

Johnson believes the North Carolina Republican Party is about to package a conservative philosophy that Tar Heel voters won't buy in November.

The Democrats tried I. Beverly Lake and lost," Johnson said. "In 1964 we tried in-our-heart-we-know-he's-right Goldwater and got clobbered. Wallace lost here in 1968 and the only reason he won here this time was because the people were voting against Terry Sanford. And now the Republicans are running Jesse Helms, who is the most conservative candidate to ever come down the road."

Surprisingly, Johnson believes that defeated gubernatorial candidate Jim Gardner is a moderate compared to nominee Holshouser.

"Gardner was a sincere candidate this time," Johnson said, "and if he had not had the legacy of the 1968 campaign to live down, he'd have won."

Johnson says Tar Heel Democrats have been smart to move to the moderate viewpoint.

"Skipper Bowles is a dynamic individual," Johnson says. "He knocked heads with the internal part of his party and won. Pat Taylor ran a traditional campaign and lost.

"There's no doubt in my mind but that Galifianakis is in tune with the average North Carolina voter. (Jesse) Helms isn't going to get the labor vote, the Negro vote, the young vote, or the intellectual vote. I even think some big business people will look at some of his statements and turn away from his candidacy."

In his race for the Senate, Johnson was snubbed by many GOP regulars. He considered it a slap in the face and says he owes no more obligation to the Party.

For Heather, Age Two

Dear Heather:

What, two already? How did you manage to grow so old so soon? It seems only yesterday — as a matter of fact, it was only yesterday — that you vocabulary began with "more milk" and ended with "bye-bye." And now you are talking like Bella Abzug. The next thing we know, you will be registering to vote. Two, eh? It is an elegant age.

Until this moment, according to custom in these matters, we had been calculating your maturity in months — 17 months, or 19 months, or whatever — which is a pretty silly way of going at it, especially for people like your grandfather who have trouble remembering how many months are in a year and can't subtract 12 from 19 without sober thought. Now, when we ask, how old is Heather, you cry "two!" and give us a V-for-victory sign, just like, if your McGovern-loving mother will forgive the words. Nixon saluting the hippies.

Two is the beginning of whole years for you, and perhaps the beginning of something else: Memory. We were wondering about it the other afternoon. You were climbing in and out of the blue plastic wading pool, stomping at the water to make it go splash, and catching the diamond drops in your hands. You were trotting about the yard, down to the rail fence and back, and you were discovering sun and shadow. You were as naked as a Botticelli cherub and as light as the summer breeze.

Will you remember? Will you remember how it was when you came on weekends here to White Walnut Hill, or to your Grandfather Stone's farm a few miles away? Will you remember the great oaks, the dark mountains, the green meadows rolling toward the sky: Will you remember when first you chased a firefly: Maybe not. It is a marvelous thing to be two, but remembering may have to wait.

But this much is clear, my naked friend: Two is a great time for talking, and talking is what you do best. You are your father's own child; and we know where he got the trait. You know, because we wrote them down on a tablet, a whole long list of lovely words: Arm, balloon, baby, ball, bath, bear, bed, beer, bird, bicycle, bib, brush, book, boot, boy, box, boat, bug, bunny, button, buckle, blue, and boom-boom, which is what the drum says.

You know: Cat, catch, cow, cookie, chair, cracker, cup, cheese, clothes, circle, candy, car, card, chicken, cheek, and of course you know Cyrano, your collie. You know: Did, doll, dog, down, donkey, door, do, drum, duck, David, daddy,

Weakens Family

(The Wilson Times)

There is important legislation in the Congress which does not concern the election or carry political implications related to the campaigns. Such a bill is U.S. Senate 3617 passed on Tuesday, June 20, the "Comprehensive Headstart, Child Development and Family Services Act of 1972."

The bill will probably go to a conference committee and then be reported out to the House. The House may act in July, which is about gone, or August.

This bill is similar to the bill vetoed last year by President Nixon because of its "fiscal irresponsibility, administrative unworkability and family-weakening implications of the system it envisions."

Although this measure has been written about before, it should be continually written about until the implications and long-range effects are realized.

The bill is advertised as a welfare bill to enable poor mothers to work. The bill's objective is to put the opening wedge in a drive to place every child from birth to first grade in a state-controlled environment and to remove the child as much as possible from the influence of his family. The bill is a giant step forward in putting even more political and economic power in the hands of the federal government.

The major thrust of all totalitarian activity in the 20th century has been the attack on the family, an effort to break the link between child and parent, to assert the paramount interest of the state above the interest of the family unit, and to shape the child to patterns dictated by "social engineers" and "experts."

You are beginning, in this bill, to see the pattern unfolding. The initial approach is much milder than pursued in overly totalitarian nations but the ultimate direction is transparently the same.

Child development as described by the congressional backers means the provisions by a government agency, outside the family, for a child's mental, emotional and physical needs.

Parents—who cannot be considered trustworthy—are described in the legislation as "any person who has day-to-day parental responsibility for any child."

The day care program ministers to a child from six months to six years of age. There are 8,000 hours to teach him "values, fears, beliefs and behaviors". The literature on "child development" abounds with ideas of the need to inculcat attitudes and values.

The question is: whose values and whose beliefs?

Heard It All Before

NEW YORK (AP)—Remarks that a doctor gets tired of hearing:

"On a bill that size, you ought to at least throw in a free operation."

"I came to see you because I heard my daughter mention your name during a telephone conversation. Let's don't beat around the bush. Is she pregnant?"

"Is this bill your fee, or am I also endowing a hospital with it?"

"Just give me something that'll make me feel good. That's all I ask."

"I'm worn out with taking all these tests. Whatever happened to the doctors who could tell what was wrong with you simply by having you stick out your tongue and say 'ahh-h-h-h'?"

"I've never really been sick before in my life. That's what kind of has me worried now."

"Every doctor seems to be a specialist these days, Doc. What do you specialize in—the left side, the right side, inside or outside?"

"That sure was an interesting copy of the National Geographic magazine I read in your office waiting room, Doc. It was published in 1912, the same year I was born."

"No, I don't want to make an appointment with you. Put your secretary on the phone. I want to make a date with her."

"I don't think the medicine in these red capsules is doing me any good. I have a psychological aversion to red things. Do you have any in blue, pink or green capsules? Those colors don't depress me."

"Why do you want me to strip? I'm too old and fat to look interesting to a doctor your age."

"I know it isn't exactly cricket to ask you for medical advice while we're here playing golf, Doc, but frankly, you're so busy it's the only place where I feel I can get your full attention."

"Instead of paying your bill, Doc, why don't I just buy your wife the Taj Mahal and give it to her for Christmas?"

Strength For Today

OUR LONGING FOR ETERNITY

Man has been called a creature who takes care of his dead. The animals pay no attention to the carcasses of the other members of the herd or flock. But man looks after his dead.

It is also a proven fact that men in past ages built stone tombs for those who had died, while they continued to live in mud huts. What does this all mean? One thing it quite obviously means is that man stands in profound awe of death. He fears it, but he also has reverence for it. It is not only something incomprehensible to him but something he regards as sublime. It is not sublime in itself but in what it leads to.

And as it was for ancient man, so it is for us. We have a quite awesome regard for what lies beyond in the dim reach of what we call eternity. Where we came from we do not know. But what we do know is that we will go on to a realm which from the beginning man has believed has eternal significance.

The Bible expresses it in the statement that if the earthly house of this tabernacle be dissolved we have a building of God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

Business Said Fearful Of Debt

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — American businessmen still have a hangover from the days of the great depression and are reluctant to borrow the funds needed to finance their growth and help the United States remain competitive.

Very broadly, that's the contention of some financial analysts, including The Boston Consulting Group, one of several money management firms with a common parent in the Boston Company, a multibillion-dollar operation.

Fearing a liquidity crisis, in which money cannot be borrowed and lenders demand repayment of loans, these businessmen remain fearful of debt and thus must endure slow growth or even loss of markets.

In the United States, notes BCG, the amount of debt to stockholder equity rarely exceeds 50 per cent, although it contends that considerable higher ratios are safe if money managers are wise.

In Japan, by contrast, the average corporate borrower uses debt equal to five times or more of the stated equity. As a result, while their profit margins might be lower, they grow two or three times faster than their American counterparts and threaten to take their markets.

But what about relatively high interest rates? In a report on "Risk and Economic Growth," BCG states: "A high interest rate by no means chokes off growth anymore than a low interest rate accelerates growth."

The rate of interest in itself is relatively unimportant, it is claimed, and it can hardly be ignored that the lowest interest rates within memory occurred during the 1930s. More important, BCG contends, is whether the after-tax return exceeds the interest cost.

BCG believes a repetition of the 1930s, though possible, is highly unlikely. And at any rate, it feels that wise managers can protect themselves from disaster.

One method, ironically, is to avoid taking the lowest interest rate offered. Such a loan might turn out to have the harshest limitations and be the first called; a slightly higher rate might enable a company to remain liquid despite a long crisis.

The company that borrows wisely may have lower profits but it may be able to undersell its no-debt competitor. Thus, "the initially high cost company can erode its competitor's basic cost advantage," says BCG.

and west of Red Oak Subdivision, also requested for rezoning to highway commercial, was set for a Planning and Zoning public hearing on August 23 before commissioners make a recommendation to the City Council.

In the same general are, (along the by-pass from the Farmville Highway to the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Memorial Drive), commissioners also recommended for a Planning and Zoning public hearing in August the request by J.T. Manning Jr. to rezone his property to neighborhood commercial.

Although consideration of the request was not a public hearing, Chairman Louis Clark asked for comments from a group of interested persons attending the meeting. Dennis Sutton, who said he was spokesman for those present, expressed opposition to Manning's request.

The final item considered by the joint commission was that of a request by Mrs. J.T. Manning, Sr., for rezoning a tract of land of about 13 acres within the triangle formed by the Farmville highway (U.S. 264 west) and U.S. 264 by-pass. This request, for neighborhood commercial zoning, was recommended by the joint body for City Council consideration.

In addition to consideration of the Winslow request, the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission reported to the commission on a committee report on rezoning certain properties on East Tenth Street. Earlier, former chairman H.T. Chapin had asked a committee to look into property on East Tenth Street and to report their recommendation at the July meeting of the commission.

The committee's recommendation to rezone the north side of East Tenth Street from Cotanche to Charles Streets was recommended for approval to the City Council. The rezoning of this strip would be from the present office and institutional to downtown fringe commercial. Two other properties under rezoning consideration, not contingent to that recommended for rezoning, were recommended for remaining as office and institutional.

campaign contributions in his fight against Helms came from Democrats. He says:

"I know I'm in the wrong place. I've gone as far as I can possibly go in the Republican Party. The Repubican Party is controlled by the regulars. The general leadership of the Republican Party and I are not in the same dance hall."

All of this sounds as if Johnson has made up his mind to change to the Democratic Party. But he insists that he has not made that decision.

"I guess you can say I've decided to call it a day in politics," Johnson told me. "I'm an elder statesman at 37."

Some people will cheer that statement. Others will view it as a sad occurence. But few politicians will ignore it. Jimmy Johnson isn't the kind of man politicians ignore.

Tremors Felt In California

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An earthquake has rattled sections of Los Angeles and Ventura counties, causing no damage but prompting many anxious telephone calls to police.

The quake at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday measured 3.8 on the Richter scale and was centered about 80 miles north of the Los Angeles basin in a sparsely populated area near Gorman, a spokesman for the University of Southern California seismology laboratory said.

The tragic Southern California earthquake on Feb. 9, 1971, measured 6.5.

Sanctuary And Adoption Plan For Animals Urged

The Pitt County Humane Society, now about 50 members strong, is issuing an appeal to the public to join in efforts of the society to make it possible to establish a sanctuary and adoption program for animals, with particular emphasis on dogs and cats.

Mrs. Linda Clark, publicity chairman of the society which was formed in Pitt County in the early spring, says that at meetings held twice monthly, emphasis has been placed on formulating plans to move ahead with plans that will lead to the building and maintenance of an animal shelter in Pitt County.

"To do this," Mrs. Clark commented, "we need the help of the public. The main way this can be done is through membership, which we have set up at several different levels to make it possible for people of all ages to participate."

Membership fees have been established as $3.00 annually for individual adults, $5.00 annually for a family including any number of persons within the family, $1.00 for college students, 50 cents for junior and senior high school students, and 25 cents for elementary children.

"At this time, we have plans to become associated with the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals," Mrs. Clark said. The Pitt County Humane Society has been chartered and Mrs. Clark said it is authorized as a non-profit organization for which tax exemptions can be claimed for any contributions made.

"Our main goal," she stated, "is to acquire a tract of land to build shelters for stray animals. Here we would feed and protect them and arrange for their adoption."

But the ultimate goal, Mrs. Clark points out, is more than simply providing care and disposal of cast off animals. One of the stated purposes of the Pitt County Humane Scoeity is to work toward the elimination of over-breeding of dogs and cats. "It's something like population control," Mrs. Clark said, "and is very much needed in helping to control this growing problem."

Other purposes adopted by the society are: to keep the public informed of laws regarding registration and innoculation of animals; to streamline adoption requirements for pets; to protect animals from cruelty and abuse; and to help out in welfare cases.

"By welfare cases we mean giving assistance to people who want and can feed pets, but may not be able to provide the necessary money for licenses, shots and vet services."

Mrs. Clark stated that in their efforts to create more concern the veterinarians in Greenville have been most helpful.

"I'd also like to mention we will welcome any contributions, no matter how small, from persons who want to help but who may not be interested in becoming a member of the society," Mrs. Clark said.

Interested persons are also invited to attend the meetings of the society, which are held on the second and fourth Monday nights of each month at the Salvation Army citadel.

Membership or other contributions and information on the society can be obtained by writing the Pitt County Humane Society, P. O. Box 1155, Greenville.

Set Session For Administrators

A hospital supervisory management conference will be sponsored by East Carolina University Aug. 10-11 for executive administrators of eastern North Carolina hospitals.

The conference is conducted as a component of the North Carolina Regional Medical Program Continuing Education Project and is directed by Nelson Oldman of the ECU School of Allied Health and Social Professions.

Service Road Requirements Get Attention

A new idea for consideration relative to rezoning received the endorsement of both the Joint City-County Planning and Zoning Commission and the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission members at the two meetings last night.

In discussions of rezoning the idea of incorporating requirements for service roads parallel to by-passes received considerable attention.

Commission members expressed a concensus of opinion that provisions for right of ways for service roads should be part of the over-all rezoning planning, and requested that the city attorney be asked to look into the various legal aspects of such requirements.

It was noted that in some instances — where development has already taken place, that service roads could not now be established, but that in other areas it would be feasible and would provide a means of relieving pressure on major traffic arteries.

"We don't want to see a Fayetteville or Jacksonville develop in Greenville," commission member Earl Howell commented.

Also in both meetings, a more rigid rule regarding placement of items on the agenda received unanimous approval. Under the new rule adopted for both commissions, a person must take action to place an item on the agenda at least 15 days in advance of the meeting date of the commissions. Exceptions would be made in cases of dire emergency with the consent of two thirds of the commission membership, which would permit placement on the agenda with a minimum notice of five days.

McGovern Staff Displays 'Gaps' With Candidate

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Writer

CUSTER, S.D. (AP) — Questions about when, and how much, Sen. George McGovern knew about Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton's medical history result, in part, from the latest in a series of communications gaps with his staff that have plagued the Democratic presidential nominee.

McGovern says he knew very little until Eagleton's dramatic disclosure here Tuesday.

Some aides knew of reports Eagleton had been hospitalized for exhaustion and one, Gordon Weil, was assigned to check this point before the Missouri senator was picked as McGovern's running mate.

Weil's phone check, press secretary Richard Dougherty said Wednesday, produced nothing of substance. McGovern was never told about it and that night when he asked Eagleton if there were any problems in his background, he got and accepted a negative answer.

Even after Frank Mankiewicz, McGovern's top political adviser, contacted an Eagleton aide on the matter, McGovern never received enough detail to take the matter seriously.

This suggests that his staff has not always taken sufficient care in keeping him informed. And McGovern knows that ultimately any blame for staff mishaps will fall on him.

There were several communications lapses at the recent Democratic National Convention.

After McGovern met with relatives of U.S. prisoners of war, a statement was issued in his name that raised for the first time the possibility of maintaining U.S. troops in Thailand if an end to U.S. involvement failed to bring the prisoners home.

One top McGovern aide, Frederick G. Dutton, was astounded when shown the statement. The assistant who drafted it, John Holum, conceded it represented an elaboration of McGovern's position.

The next day, angry demonstrators filled the senator's hotel lobby to protest his statement. McGovern finally spoke to them and insisted his Southeast Asian policy hadn't changed.

As the convention opened, McGovern was quoted in an interview as saying he would accept the seating of Mayor Richard J. Daley's regular Illinois delegation—instead of a challenging group that included many McGovern supporters—once he won the crucial California challenge.

At the same time, floor managers were telling McGovern delegates to vote against Daley.

Earlier that evening, in the South Carolina credentials case, McGovern floor managers switched a number of votes against the proposal to add more women, seeking to avoid a result that could jeopardize his chances in the later California vote.

McGovern, who pledged his support for the South Carolina challenge to the National Women Political Caucus, said this week he did not know what was going on until he saw it on television.

There have been other instances of conflicting statements or positions.

On the morning after the convention, a curious drama occurred between McGovern and Lawrence F. O'Brien, chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

McGovern aides had already passed the word that Jean Westwood of Utah was his choice to succeed O'Brien, who had said he wanted to retire, while privately hoping to stay on.

McGovern sought to persuade O'Brien to remain. When the chairman said finally he'd reconsider, according to one source, McGovern then said he would have to reconsider too. And O'Brien stepped down.

A few days later, McGovern asked him to become national campaign chairman, a liaison job with party regulars in which O'Brien would have a voice in campaign strategy. At least two senior McGovern aides told reporters O'Brien's post was really just honorary.

This quickly appeared in print, and McGovern lectured his staff on the importance of keeping their mouths shut and working with party regulars.

Whipped Cream Orgy For Mick

By LARRY SIMONBERG
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The Rolling Stones ended their two-month tour of North America in Madison Square Garden with a whipped cream orgy to celebrate Mick Jagger's 29th birthday.

Banana cream pies were hurled playfully about the stage by and at the musicians Wednesday night, and 20,000 hopping, swaying fans joined in a downright sentimental rendition of "Happy Birthday."

Jagger, once the personification of youthful rebellion, has carefully controlled his frenetic act. The Stones have dropped from their program the provocative "Sympathy for the Devil," and fences kept overeager fans from the stage.

Not that all was kid stuff. In the last of four concerts in New York to conclude the tour that began in Vancouver June 3, the Stones produced their usual overpowering blast of infectious sound.

And Jagger once again displayed the secret of his and the Stones' success: high energy.

When the band launched into "Jumpin' Jack Flash," it was a if someone had pushed a button. The fans rose to their feet from the floor to the top row in waves, like pop-up targets.

When they were last in the United States 2½ years ago, the Stones were deep in Jagger's devil imagery. That tour ended in violence at Altamount, Calif., when a man with a gun was stabbed to death after an altercation with members of the Hell's Angels.

That seemed to give pause to the English group which followed the Beatles up the heights in the early 1960s. In 1972, they had a few problems, police clashing with would-be gatecrashers and an incident with a photographer. But mostly it was sheer, even light-hearted entertainment that attracted 750,000 persons and perhaps $3 million in profits.

And how did it end? Not with a bang, but with a large birthday cake being wheeled on stage, beachballs bouncing around the audience and confetti flung from the rafters.

No telling when the band many people call the greatest rock 'n' roll group alive will return to these shores.

One fan offered a fitting farewell, "Ah, the silence is killing me."

Wallace To Miss Meet

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace says his health will keep him from attending the national convention of the American party next week and that he will make known his "future plans" Saturday.

The announcement was made Wednesday by Charles Snider, Wallace's campaign manager.

Wallace, who made his third-party bid for the presidency in 1968 under the banner of the American party, has all but closed the door on going that route this year.

Saturday's announcement is expected to clarify his position.

Friends say Wallace has decided to leave the presidential battle to President Nixon and Sen. George McGovern.

They also say the governor is not likely to endorse either candidate.

Wallace, wounded by a gunman during an assassination attempt in Laurel, Md., on May 15, is undergoing physical therapy at the Spain Rehabilitation Center in Birmingham.

He underwent surgery last week to drain an abdominal abscess, and this was the reason given why he will not be at the convention, scheduled for Aug. 3-5 in Louisville, Ky.

No Evidence Of Severe Attack

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Former President Lyndon B. Johnson is progressing satisfactorily after a bout with chest pains that sent him to the Army's Brooke General Hospital, doctors say.

A diagnosis of the chest pains and nausea that struck Johnson Monday has not been released. But officials said Wednesday there is so far "no evidence of a major severe heart attack" of the sort he suffered in April.

A spokesman also said that Johnson, 63, was "making satisfactory progress from his recent illness."

Senator's Son Arrested Again

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Robin Cranston, son of Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., has been arrested again.

Police said Cranston, 24, was involved in an auto accident Wednesday. Officers arriving on the scene made a telephone check and found that Cranston had failed to appear after being cited on separate occasions for speeding, driving without a license and having an unregistered vehicle, a police spokesman skd.

He was freed on $190.50 bail.

The senator's son also faces trial on a separate charge Oct. 24 after being accused in an indictment last month of drugging a former Playboy bunny.

The first General Assembly of the United Nations opened in London Jan. 10, 1946.

Smoking

SINGAPORE (UPI) — The government has instructed all its medical staff to set a good example to the public by refraining from smoking in public. Smoking is banned in theaters and other public places and there is a prohibition against cigarettes ads in newspapers and on radio and television.

Desert Trip To Save A Life Was Made In Vain

WENDOVER, Utah (AP) — A futile and agonizing 100-mile ride across the scorching desert to save the life of little Jimmy Carlos was made in vain, possibly because of a flat tire.

Jimmy, 14, had just finished taking a shower and came out of the bathroom at his home gasping for breath.

When Deputy Sheriff Marion Carter and state Highway Patrolman Scott Sparks arrived at the home, they revived Jimmy but determined that he needed hospital care.

Two weeks earlier, Jimmy swallowed an accidental overdose of family prescription and was flown to a Salt Lake City hospital where doctors revived him.

Tuesday, however, Wendover's only ambulance driver was out of town, so the officers, with the boy's mother, put the gasping Jimmy in Carter's oxygen-equipped cruiser for the ride across the Great Salt Lake Desert to a hospital in Tooele, 100 miles away.

Four miles out of Wendover, a tire blew.

Carter called for help on his radio as the precious oxygen ran out.

Jimmy struggled for life. His mother was frantic watching him thrash about the cruiser's rear seat.

The car's spare tire had been used three days earlier after another tire blew out on the hot desert pavement.

Meanwhile, Sparks ran to a nearby potash plant for a bottle of industrial oxygen. He made the trip three times in temperatures believed more than 100 degrees.

Jimmy revived to a state of semiconsciousness as another cruiser arrived, and the ride to Tooele continued. But Sparks suffered a mild heart attack due to exhaustion, and he needed oxygen. He shared Jimmy's.

When they arrived at the hospital, Jimmy was dead.

Carter later said he was told by service station attendants that the car tire had been deliberately slashed with a sharp object.

Carter said Jimmy died because someone cut the tire on purpose, just enough to have it fail when he needed it the most.

"We don't always write tickets," Carter said. "We do sometimes try to save lives."

Scofflaw Finds 'Old Days' Gone

PITTSBURGH (AP) — "What happened to the good old days?" Charles Fragapane asked when he appeared in City Court for the worst unpaid parking ticket bill in the city's history.

City Magistrate Robert Dauer asked Fragapane on why he had accrued $1,640 in fines in the past year.

"Hell, up to a few years ago, I never worried about it," the defendant replied.

"What happened to the good old days when I could get this whole thing worked out for $40?" the 46-year-old Fragapane asked.

Dauer gave him a year to pay up, and Fragapane promised to pay $200 today — "Maybe more, depending on who wins the baseball game."

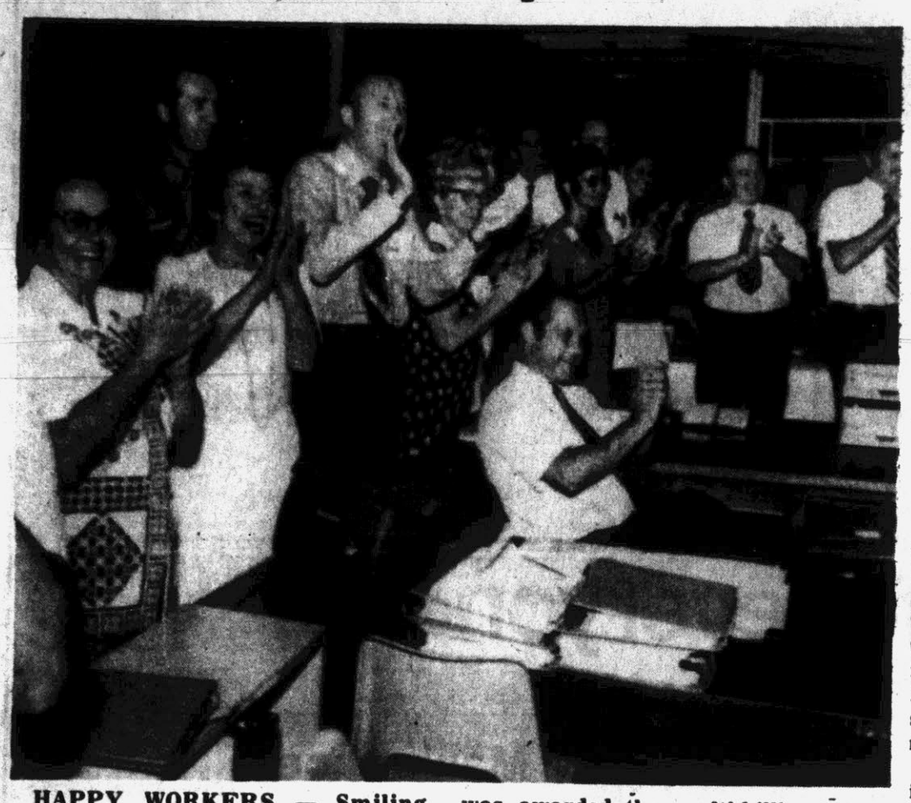
$2.6 Billion Contract For Space Shuttle Job Is Awarded By NASA



HAPPY WORKERS — Smiling workers at the North American Rockwell Corp. plant in Downey, Calif., applaud as they hear their company was awarded the multi-billion-dollar contract to develop the Space Shuttle. (AP Wirephoto)

By VERN HAUGLAND
AP Aviation Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — North American Rockwell Corp. has captured the $2.6-billion contract to build the Space Shuttle orbiter vehicle that will jet into orbit like a rocket and land on earth like an airplane.

North American's Space Division, at Downey, Calif., won over three rival bidders Wednesday to get the National Aeronautics and Space Administration contract to build five vehicles over a six-year period.

The delta-winged craft that will carry men and materiel between earth and orbiting satellites are expected to be a boon to the aerospace industry in California. Estimates range up to 60,000 more jobs over the next 10 years.

Under the initial payment of $530 million over two years, North American will build the first two orbiters—one to be used for static testing and the other for horizontal test flights staring in 1976.

Three operational vehicles are to be built for manned orbital missions, with test flights beginning in 1978.

The 120-foot-long craft with a 79-foot wing span are to be in full operation by 1980. They are to be used over and over again to carry men, satellites and equipment into earth orbit and to bring personnel and materials back to earth.

North American's Rocketdyne Division of Canoga Park, Calif., won the first big Space Shuttle plum about a year ago—a $500-million contract to develop 36 of the main engines for the three-engine orbiter.

Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., said California's participation in the $6.45-billion shuttle program "could create more than 60,000 jobs and add as much as $4 billion to the state's economy over the next 10 years."

The cargo compartment of the orbiter will be able to carry up to 65,000 pounds into an orbit 115 miles above the earth. The compartment may be used on some missions to carry as many as a dozen scientists and technicians.

For launching, the orbiter will be mounted piggyback on a large expendable propellant tank and two recoverable and reusable solid-propellant rockets.

The shuttle will be used to carry into space virtually all U.S. civilian and military payloads, to deploy and retrieve satellites, and to carry out manned orbital scientific missions.

Dr. James C. Fletcher, NASA administrator, said 30 to 50 shuttle missions will be launched each year throughout the 1980s.

Once the orbiter has completed its space mission, it will return to earth and land conventionally, like a rocket-powered airplane.

Migrants Provided Self-Help

By MELVIN LANG
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Self-help programs for migrants are available throughout North Carolina for workers who want a change from their transient existence.

Academically and economically, the migrant has the opportunity to find another way of life. The choice is his for himself or for his children.

The state, using federally financed programs, offers migrant children basic summer courses in reading, communication and science at levels ranging from kindergarten to high school.

Adults wishing to leave the migrant stream can qualify for admission to training schools, such as those in Bertie, Halifax, Hertford and Northampton counties.

Workers enrolled there attend classes in basic education and prevocational training, then move to Rich Square—with their families—for specialized instruction in a skill area. They receive a living allowance while enrolled.

When the instruction is completed, help is available for the worker attempting to find permanent employment.

The flow of migrants into and across North Carolina has diminished drastically in the last five years, but state and private sources estimate there will be 5,000 to 8,000 transient laborers moving across the state this calendar year.

In addition there are possibly 8,000 who remain in North Carolina year-round, moving with the crops from one section to another.

As the number of migrants declined, the number of agencies and programs offering help increased.

One of the largest agencies is the North Carolina Council of Churches, which offers a diversified program ranging from emergency financial aid to job placement.

The council's migrant project currently is sponsoring a cooperative in Hyde and Tyrell counties aimed at helping migrants and seasonal farm workers supplement their income.

Participants in the program are members of a canning-buying club through which they can food and obtain other foodstuff at reduced rates through bulk buying.

The council also is launching a new job training program for migrants in Johnston County and Sampson counties with the help of a $700,000 federal grant.

Future hope for migrants, however, is centered on the children.

Voluntary public education programs using federal funds are being offered in several counties this summer, providing basic instruction in reading, writing and oral communication for the younger ones and more advanced subjects for high school pupils.

Frances McNeil of Smithfield, director of the Johnston County migrant education program, said compulsion is not needed to keep the youngsters in school.

Miss McNeil said, "If we get them out (of the camps) one day, they are ready to come back."

Johnston County's current program has 50 children, ages 5 through 15, in classes. Other counties offer programs for individuals up to 21 years of age.

Miss McNeil said major emphasis is placed on reading and oral communication. "When we receive them we find these children rather shy and they don't like to talk too much," she said.

Migrant children also are provided clothing and medical care, if needed, through the school program.

Summary Of War Losses

SAIGON (AP) — American casualties in the Vietnam war last week included 10 killed in action, one dead from nonhostile causes and nine wounded, the U.S. Command announced in its weekly summary today. Another two were missing, presumably in an air crash due to nonhostile causes.

This compares to eight killed in action the previous week, five other dead, 14 missing or captured and 26 wounded.

The South Vietnamese command said its losses were put at 630 killed, compared to 837 the previous week, and 2,373 wounded, compared to 2,367. The number of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong killed dropped from 2,871 to 1,949, the Saigon command said, and 79 were captured.

The allied commands now have reported these total casualties for the war:

American—45,828 killed in action, 10,240 dead from nonhostile causes, 1,770 missing or captured, 303,244 wounded.

South Vietnamese—150,993 killed, 389,139 wounded.

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong—866,240 killed.

Local JCs Travel To N.C. Boys Home

Some 21 Greenville Jaycees and their families traveled to Boys Home at Lake Waccamaw Sunday for the chapter's annual visit to boys residing in Jaycee Cottage.

The trip is made by local Jaycees each year prior to the Boys Home All-Star Football Game at Ficklen Stadium. All proceeds of the game go toward support of activities at the home.

Boys Home was chartered in 1954. Currently there are six cottages housing boys with Jaycee Cottage constructed in 1962. Boys living at the home are subjected to a family-type environment, the Jaycees reported, with emphasis on religious, educational, mental and physical training. Among those visiting at Lake Waccamaw were Jaycee president Don Brady; Marvin Buck, chairman of the Boys Home game; Dave Gordon, past president and his wife, Etsil who serves as president of the Jay-C-Ettes.

Others attending were Mr. and Mrs. Ray Landon, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Manuel; Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Stroud, Mr. and Mrs. Marty Goldfarb, Mr. and Mrs. Hal Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Peters, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Collins; Mr. and Mrs. Jay Paul, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Meyers, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hargett, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Turner; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Broughton, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace West, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Kiernan, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Anthony, Mr. and Mrs. West Measamer and John Jernigan.

A New Kind Of Citation

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Police have begun giving motorists a new kind of citation — for good driving.

The citations, a project of the police and the local chapter of the American Automobile Association, read:

"On (date) a motor vehicle registered in your name was observed by an officer of the New Haven Police Department to be operating in a safe and courteous manner, thereby contributing to the cause of traffic safety.

"... This demonstration of good driving habits and the exercise of caution and courtesy on the road will set an example for other motorists to follow."

"Too often we fail to reward safe drivers," said Lt. Harold Berg, the police department's community relations officer.

He said the citations don't go to just any safe driver, but to one who does "something special" such as yielding the right of way when he doesn't have to.

Terror Child Of Black Panthers

By JAMES O. CLIFFORD

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A shadowy outgrowth of a split in the Black Panther party—the "Black Liberation Army"—is claiming responsibility for killing policemen, setting off bombs and committing other acts of terror across the nation.

Up to now, most police departments go along with the grim claims of the group, also known as the "Afro-American Liberation Army," but not much more information has been made public.

The most recent incidents in a long line of violence took place in San Francisco, and police here believe they smashed one of the organization's local units with the arrest of Anthony Bottom, 20, who they said volunteered a long list of local violence claimed by the "army."

Bottom, who was arrested with another man after a shot-punctuated chase, gave detailed accounts of the slaying of a policeman, the bombing of a slain police officer's funeral and assorted holdups. He also said the group made an abortive attempt at blasting a police station with an anti-tank gun.

When Bottom was arrested, police found a pistol in his car which belonged to a slain New York officer.

Claim Embassy Plot

In other cases here, the organization claimed credit for an abortive attempt to blow up the Portuguese Consulate, and hundreds of Black Liberation pamphlets were found along with enough dynamite to blow up a city block when police arrested David Jackson, 22, Jacksonville, Fla., wanted for a series of firebombings in Miami.

In New York City, Chief of Detectives Albert Seedman said the army is responsible for killing four officers. He said its activities have also been traced to St. Louis, Cleveland, Detroit and Atlanta.

"One of the basic aims of this group is, in addition to bombing government buildings and large department stores, killing police officers ... notwithstanding the fact that he (the officer) may be a black man," Seedman said. Two of the slain New York officers were black.

The Black Liberation Army (BLA) goes back to the split in the Black Panther party between Huey P. Newton and Eldridge Cleaver, now a fugitive living in Algiers.

Newton recently announced a policy of "working within the system" to accomplish the party's revolution but the Cleaver faction says it has not given up violence.

The BLA has been hailed by the Cleaver group's newspaper in New York.

No Command Structure

The paper described the units of the army as "entirely autonomous and decentralized" and said its members do not have to wait for orders from the high command. "There are no political commissars to these guerrilla units," the paper said.

Police officers agree.

"While they sometimes praise the Irish Republican Army in their propaganda, the Black Liberation Army's organizational structure is just the opposite of the IRA's," said one veteran law enforcement officer who did not want to be identified.

"The IRA is highly structured, with a chain of command. This group is very loose and is made up of individual, independent cells."

Some police officers place the membership of the BLA at about 100. Others won't even hazard a guess because there seems to be a difference of opinion on the army's mobility and logistics.

Most officers say the group's members move around a lot, like the "hit men" of organized crime.

Underground Network

"They appear to have a connection, an association with one another from one end of the country to the other," said Arthur Grubert, chief of intelligence for the New York Police Department.

"They have an ability to find assistance in other cities. They keep to themselves, use false names and evidence shows that they are not known by the general black community," he said.

None of the men who have been arrested in San Francisco was known locally and this seems to bear out the theory.

However, one veteran black intelligence officer says there are other factors involved. He claims much of the army is simply made up of "four or five guys who get together and decide to form a unit on their own." He thinks the liason between the units isn't very strong.

Added to this, he said, is "an increasing number of people who pull stickups and decide to call themselves BLA members in order to become instant heroes."

Would Overhaul Justice System

HOUSTON (AP) — Harris County Dist. Atty. Carol Vance urges major changes in the state's criminal justice system.

He said present "horse and buggy" procedures should be overhauled to meet today's society.

He called the Texas Penal Code "an illogical hodgepodge of 100 years of piecemeal legislation."

He noted that at present, possession of a marijuana cigarette carries a two-year to life sentence while murder without malice carries a two to five-year sentence.

Congress Hopes Block Rush For Airport Levy

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional committee is trying to stop a Supreme Court-approved tax rush to the airports before it becomes a stampede by revenue-hungry state and local officials.

Legislation imposing an 18-month moratorium on all state and local taxes on air passengers making interstate or foreign flights, and calling for a Civil Aeronautics Board investigation, was approved by the House Commerce Committee Wednesday.

This approach was taken by the committee in lieu of a tougher bill which would have outlawed state and local taxes on airplane passengers. The committee deleted a section that would have allowed continuation of any levy imposed before June 1.

In April, the Supreme Court upheld use and service charges imposed at airports in Evansville, Ind., and in New Hampshire. That prompted other cities to enact similar measures or to study proposals to use airports as new sources of revenue.

At congressional hearings, airline representatives protested that passengers "will increasingly become targets for undue and discriminatory taxes since the Supreme Court's decision has apparently opened a Pandora's box."

But a spokesman for state aviation officials said backers of the proposed ban on state and local taxes "have shed enough crocodile tears over the imagined difficulties involved in collecting these fees ... to float an offshore airport."

By a moratorium, said Whitney Gillilland of the CAB, Congress could prevent "the almost certain mushrooming of a new kind of tax, that would be extremely difficult to get rid of once the various states and localities adopted it and became dependent upon it."

The ban on such taxes would become effective upon enactment of the bill, which was sent to the House for action.

The legislation calls for the CAB to investigate the passenger-tax issue and to report to the president and Congress within a year.

Johnny Cash Urges U.S. Prison Reform

WASHINGTON (AP) — Singer Johnny Cash and two ex-convicts have appealed to Congress to do something about the savagery they have seen in prison life.

Cash said a 15-year-old boy arrested for car theft was placed with other inmates who raped him throughout one night. "He died the next day," Cash said in testimony Wednesday.

At a Virginia prison, he said, officials took a teenage boy's clothing away from him and "it so shamed him, he hanged himself."

"It's a society where your life isn't worth a pack of cigarettes," said Glen Sherley, who appeared with Cash and Harland Sanders before the Senate subcommittee on national penitentiaries in support of a prison reform bill sponsored by Sen. Bill Brock, R-Tenn.

The bill would establish a federal district offender board to supervise a prisoner's treatment from arrest through parole.

Cash, who preforms frequently for prison audiences and has spent brief periods confined in several city and county jails, urged that young offenders be separated from older prisoners.

He also recommended relaxation of marijuana laws to save many young people from becoming "well-trained, hardened criminals" in prison.

Cash later met with President Nixon at the White House and told Nixon he feels his testimony "really opened their eyes."

Cites Local Share In Bill

Nick Galifianakis said today that if the revenue sharing bill passed recently by the House of Representatives is adopted by the Senate and signed by the President, Greenville will receive approrimately $268,356 during its first year in operation.

The Fourth District Congressman, a member of the House Appropriations Committee, voted for revenue sharing when it was approved 274-124 by the House on June 22.

Galifianakis said that the bill, formally titled the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act of 1972, calls for the state government to receive some $36.3 million annually and county and municipal governments collectively about $76.8 million.

He added that approximately $113.1 million in federal revenues would be channeled in North Carolina.

Preliminary figures, the congressman reported, indicate that Pitt County governments will receive a total of $1,011,834.

"This bill is not perfect, but it is an improvement over the present state and local tax situation," Galifianakis said. "It will equalize some tax inequities and will breathe new life into many of our hard-pressed local governments."

Counteroffensive To Legalized Abortions Mounts

DIFFERENT SORT OF GRADING — Vicky Lanz, a schoolteacher during the winter, runs heavy construction equipment for a Milford (Conn.) company as a summer job. By JURATE KAZICKAS
Associated Press Writer

Just one year ago, advocates of legalized abortion were riding a favorable current of state legislation and court decisions that seemed to point to an irresistible trend.

Alaska, Hawaii, Washington and New York had greatly liberalized their laws, virtually providing abortion on request. Thirteen other states and the District of Columbia allowed abortions under certain circumstances. More than 30 other states were considering new abortion legislation.

But today, a full-fledged counteroffensive is gathering force in an election year that has politicians stepping warily on an emotional and politically sensitive issue.

Right to Life committees have formed in virtually every state, conducting mail campaigns, educational programs, protests and lobbying drives in legislatures. So successful were their efforts that only one state, Florida, has enacted abortion changes this year, and a liberal law in New York was retained only by Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's veto of the repeal act.

The Democratic National Convention's platform committee defeated a proposal for a legalized abortion plank. "We can't be known as the abortion party," one committee member commented.

Sen. George McGovern, the Democratic presidential nominee, has called abortion reform a "no win issue" and contends it should be left up to the states.

President Nixon said publicly he couldn't square "abortion on demand ... with my personal belief in the sanctity of human life, including the life of the yet unborn."

The strength of the opposition in New York came as a surprise to many reformers.

"We were really caught off guard. Back in 1970 we thought the abortion issue in New York was secure and that progress throughout the country would be automatic," said Linda Zimmerman, national coordinator for the Woman's National Abortion Action Coalition (WONAAC). "It came as a shock. I think abortion reform will be a long and difficult campaign, with some defeats ahead I'm sure."

In addition to New York, many other state legislatures have felt the pressures of organized opposition.

This past year, moves for liberalization were defeated in Georgia, Indiana, Rhode Island, Colorado, Delaware, Maine, Kansas, Iowa, Illinois, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Connecticut.

The National Committee for the Right to Life now has 250 affiliates throughout the nation, compared with about 100 two years ago. Groups such as Voice for the Unborn, Citizens Concerned for Life, and Mobilization for the Unnamed are lobbying and demonstrating effectively to stem further changes.

The Roman Catholic Church is the most powerful opponent of legalized abortion, and membership in the Right to Life groups tends to be heavily Catholic.

"There's no question where the opposition really comes from," says John A. Galbraith, an Ohio state representative who sponsored three futile efforts to liberalize Ohio's abortion law. "If it weren't for the Catholic Church, the law would have been changed years ago."

The core of the abortion debate is the right of the unborn child vs. the right of the woman to control her body, an issue that has gained momentum from the feminist movement.

Both sides have tried to keep arguments on legal and constitutional grounds. Both sides use polls and statistics to substantiate their arguments.

The Commission on Population Growth and the American Future, headed by John D. Rockefeller III, reported that one-half of Americans surveyed believe that abortion should be a decision between the mother and her physician, and that only six per cent were totally opposed to all abortions.

Another poll recently taken for Planned Parenthood indicated that 57 per cent, as opposed to 20 per cent six years ago, believed that "the decision to have an abortion should be made solely between a woman and her physician." Among Catholics surveyed, 54 per cent were said to concur.

Right to Life has its own polls, one indicating that 80 per cent of Americans are opposed to abortion on demand.

While reform through the legislature seems temporarily stymied, pro-abortion forces look to voters and the courts for the future.

In Michigan, Ohio and North Dakota, proposals for abortion on demand will be put to the electorate in referendums this November.

Often, supporters of liberalized laws are looking to the courts. More than 70 cases were decided in the past 2½ years, and the majority widened access to abortion. State abortion laws were invalidated on various grounds: that they violated a women's right to privacy and that the state could not interfere with a woman's right to terminate a pregnancy.

Opponents of legal abortion also are fighting in the courts.

A law professor at Fordham University, Robert M. Byrn, challenged the New York State law on the grounds that it violates the 14th Amendment, which holds that no state shall "deprive any person of life ... without due process of law." Byrn claimed that the unborn child is a "person."

The state Court of Appeals, however, ruled that the extent to which a fetus should be protected is a value judgment that should rest not in the courts, but in the legislature.

Byrn has said he will appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court, already expected to rule next year on cases from Texas and Georgia.

PHS Grants

The School of Nursing at East Carolina University has received two grants totaling $91,150 from the U.S. Public Health Service for operational expenses.

Dean of Nursing Evelyn Perry said the larger of the two grants a $60,150 Nursing Capitation Grant, is renewable yearly pending increased enrollment of first-year nursing students at ECU.

She said the funds will be used to purchase equipment and to pay salaries of additional faculty personnel.

Ice Cream Still A U.S. Favorite

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Ice cream, which was manufactured commercially here for the first time in 1851, is still America's favorite desert.

The average American eats 18 pounds of ice cream annually and vanila heads the list of favorite flavors. Far-out varieties include dill pickle, watermelon and blueberry cheesecake flavors but companies have lost money on such flavor concoctions as sauerkraut, prune, goody goody gumdrop, and chili con carne.

To Debate Solar System Queries

HOUSTON (AP) — The world's foremost authorities will debate questions on the dynamics of the origin and future of the solar system, the motion of the moon and the million-year behavior of our and other galaxies.

Dr. Victor Szebehely, professor of aerospace engineering and engineering mechanics at the University of Texas, has received a $25,000 grant from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to conduct an advanced study institute in dynamical astronomy in Europe.

The university's Center for Celestial Mechanics is cosponsoring the institute which will deal with the motion of natural and celestial objects such as planets, satellites and stars.

Reserve Tree, Not A Table, At Club

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — You reserve a tree, not a table, at the Jungle Night Club.

A barefoot waiter lays pillows and straw mats on the sand beneath the three. You stretch out and eat goat meat with your fingers, while someone nearby strums a guitar. A camel caravan ambles by.

The day is hot but the breeze is cool. The torn tree's branches spread to the ground. Privacy is complete.

You talk and drink and doze. When the bill comes several hours later, it's no shock — less than 40 shillings, or about $5.50.

It's the Somali version of the good life. Government ministers, Western diplomats, Soviet aid technicians and just plain tourists go to Ahmed Latte's restaurant on the outskirts of Mogadishu.

Latte's investment when he started in business nearly three years ago was a large field. He cleared the bushes, laid out trails and pruned 35 thorn trees into neat, inverted-cup shapes.

There's a restaurant building with bar, but customers for lunch and dinner prefer to drive under a tree, kick off their shoes and relax.

Latte's menu is simple and Somali — rice with raisins, a lettuce-tomato-onion salad in oil, and bananas.

Forks are provided for the fussy but the in-crowd uses fingers for all courses.

One hazard is the inch-long ants that stalk out of their holes when they smell the food. You shoo them away respectfully because they give off a powerful and unpleasant odor when squashed.

According to their new car manuals, every model listed above was designed to operate on a 91 octane gasoline.

Furthermore, most of the manuals recommend a low lead or no lead gasoline.

Today, several companies sell a gasoline that meets those requirements.

But of all the major companies, only Gulf has one that costs less than their regular. It's called Gulftane low lead.

At 91 octane, it's just right for most 1972 models as well as many 1971 and older models that we didn't have space enough to list.* And it's got the kind of additive package you'd expect from a major brand such as Gulf.

So check your manual. And try a tankful of Gulftane.

First Issue Of 'The New East' Is Now Available

The first issue of "The New East" magazine has been released.

The 32-page, four-color magazine was published by the East Carolina University Regional Development Institute in cooperation with Albermarle Area Development Association, Coastal Plain Development Association, and Neuse Development.

According to Tom Willis, director of the Regional Development Institute, this issue is a prototype. He said several publishers have shown interest in continuing the publication on a quarterly basis and several advertisers are requesting rights to republish this issue.

According to Doug Mewborn, editor of the first issue, "the magazine is dedicated to the progress of Eastern North Carolina and places Eastern North Carolina in competition with larger metropolitan area which for years have had their own community magazines."

He said the concept of the magazine was developed by the ECU Regional Development Institute to promote orderly growth and potential development of industry, agriculture, commerce, and tourism. It was funded by the Albermarle, Coastal Plain, and Neuse Development Associations, he said.

Some 15,000 copies are being distributed to motels, chambers of commerce, and local development commissions who in turn will make them available to visitors and business prospects. Distribution will also be accomplished through the County Agricultural Extension Chairmen and the Regional Development Institute.

Serving as the Editorial Board for "The New East" are chairman: Thomas W. Willis, East Carolina University Regional Development Institute; and members, Effie Raye Bateman, Belhaven, Gerald Butler, Halifax; George Johnson, Goldsboro; Dr. Hugh B. Johnston Jr., Wilson; and Loyal Phillips, Elizabeth City, assisted by Dough Mewborn, editor and R. T. Brinn, assistant to the Editorial Board. Mack B. ATTRIBUTED CAUSES

Movie Fare For Kiddies

One film is the fare scheduled for the end of this week and the first half of next week in the city's public libraries.

Mrs. Kay Taylor, in charge of the library film program, has announced a planned showing of "The Doughnuts." The story concerns Homer Price and the wild things that happen when his uncle leaves him in charge of a doughnut shop.

The machine will not shut off and the doughnuts roll on and on. A rich lady has lost her diamond bracelet while helping to prepare the doughnut mix. To sell the endless supply of doughnuts, Homer hits upon the idea of offering a reward for whoever finds the circlet of diamonds within the circle of a doughnut. (Of course nobody knows why a rich lady would be helping prepare doughnut mix!)

This fun filled film will last for 30 minutes and will be showing at East Branch Library at 4:00 p.m. Friday; at Carver Library at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday and in the Children's Room at Sheppard Memorial Library at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

All children in the city are invited to attend.

Appointed

RALEIGH (AP) — Former Highway Patrol Capt. Thomas R. Sandlin of Bryson City was named today to the state Highway Commission to succeed William T. Phillips, who resigned.

Sandlin's appointment was announced by Gov. Bob Scott. At the same time, Scott confirmed earlier reports that Phillips, a Robbinsville land-clearing contractor, had submitted a resignation.

Two other members of the commission, E. J. Whitmire of Franklin and Arthur Tripp of Greenville also have resigned in recent weeks.

Sandlin served with the Highway Patrol 34 years before his retirement. He currently is chairman of the board of aldermen in Bryson City.

Surgeon Says Pitcher Should Not Be Used

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — A Buffalo, N.Y. orthopedic surgeon recommended Wednesday the position of pitcher be eliminated in Little League baseball, saying the risks of elbow joint change are severe enough to warrant the move.

"The possibility of sustaining permanent elbow restrictions of motion or an abnormal area at the elbow may definitely stem from throwing overhand at an early age," said Dr. Joseph D. Godfrey, chief of orthopedic surgery at Children's Hospital in Buffalo.

The thrust of the arm and forearm puts a repetitious squeeze or compression on bone growth plates at the elbows of youngsters, he said. This causes change in the growth center.

"I don't believe in wrapping the kids in cotton," he said, "but this kind of prevention makes sense."

Godfrey spoke on the final day of a three-day program on Early Care of the Injured Athlete at the University of Oregon.

Godfrey, who also is team orthopedist for pro football's Buffalo Bills, said he "would recommend that methods such as an 'Iron Mike' pitching machine, a tee as in golf, or a toss-up mechanism be used to set the ball up to be hit in both practice sessions and games."

He said, "We don't know enough to say limiting pitchers to two or three innings per game is enough of a safety margin."

ABA Announces New Commissioner

By BERT ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — San Diego, a flop as the site of a National Basketball Association franchise, appeared the leading candidate today for an American Basketball Association team.

Bob Carlson, a New York attorney named the ABA's commissioner Wednesday succeeding Jack Dolph, said at a news conference that the young league would add one team for next season and become a 10-team group.

Only last month, the ABA dropped its Pittsburgh and Florida franchises because both were experiencing financial difficulties.

The 47-year-old Carlson did not say that San Diego would get the new franchise, ahead of Minneapolis, which also is in the bidding. But several sources indicated that San Diego would win out.

"I'm sure San Diego is in," said one team official not at the meeting. "But I guess they didn't want to detract from the announcement of Bob so they held off announcing it."

"We'll have an announcement on expansion soon, possibly within a week," said Carlson.

Asked about San Diego, he said, "I can't comment now. I don't want to pull a gaffer my first day on the jobs."

But Peter Graham, operator of the San Diego Sports Arena, was quoted as saying he had been told by ABA officials following a league meeting in Chicago Tuesday that the franchise was awarded to Leonard Bloom, a San Diego dentist.

San Diego was the home of the NBA's Rockets until last season, when the franchise was shifted to Houston.

Carlson, the unanimous choice of the league's Board of Trustees to replace Dolph, who quit last month for personal reasons, said he was resigned to the fact he would be a temporary commissioner.

"I am well aware that Walter Kennedy (NBA commissioner) will take over when the merger is affected," said Carlson. "I hope there will be a merger within a year, but maybe it won't be for three, four or 10 years.

"I will serve as long as the league needs me."

Carlson's salary was not disclosed, but it was learned that he will receive at least $100,000 a year.

A hearing on the merger bill is scheduled today before a House Judiciary Committee. "With the elections so close and the politicians so busy, it is unrealistic to hope for a merger vote before this season," said the new commissioner, a graduate of Harvard and the Harvard Law School.

Nicklaus Remains Hopeful For PGA

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Already out of one tournament because of an infected finger, professional golfer Jack Nicklaus remained hopeful that he would be able to defend his PGA national championship at Birmingham, Mich., next week.

Nicklaus, scheduled to be released from University hospital today, said he surely would have missed the PGA had he not agreed to surgery on the swollen right forefinger.

"The doctors told me that if I had not undergone the operation, I would have been out of action for at least two weeks," said the winner of the U.S. Open and Masters tournaments.

The infection forced Nicklaus to withdraw from the $200,000 PGA Team Championship Tournament starting today at Ligonier, Pa.

"I had hoped, right up to the last minute, that I could play with Arnold Palmer in the team championship," Nicklaus said.

He and Palmer have won the best-ball event three times, including the last two.

Palmer picked Jack Lewis, a 25-year-old pro from Florence, S.C., to replace Nicklaus as his partner in the tournament.

Playoff

Morehead City will be playing Seymour Johnson today at Elm Street Little League Field at 5:00.

Morehead City beat Swansboro 2-0 for the Area I championship and SJAFB edged Greenville's Tar Heels 6-3. The winner of today's game will play Fort Bragg American, who moved into these District playoffs with a 10-3 win over Fort Bragg National. tomorrow for the district crown.

Meadowbrook Wins Crown

Meadowbrook won the championship of the American Division last night with a 6-2 win over St. James.

St. James started the scoring off in the first with a run. Joe Babb tripled and scored on a hit by J.J. Harris.

Meadowbrook came back in their half of the frame to tie it up. Bob Harris doubled and John Huber slapped a double to drive him in.

Meadowbrook forged ahead in the third on three runs. Bucky Roebuck walked and so did Linwood Owens. Harris singled to bring in Roebuck and a hit by Huber got a hit scoring Owens and Harris.

St. James got one a run in the fourth as R.T. Harry singled and scored on a double by Guy Howell.

The final two Meadowbrook runs came over in the fifth.

Meadowbrook will now meet the winner of the National Division in a best of three series on Monday night. The National champ will be decided tonight as Black Jack takes on Oakmont.

Host Team To Be Decided On Pepsi Night

LOUISBURG — Jim Mallory, President of the Summer Collegiate Baseball League, announced today that the site of this year's playoff will be determined at the East Carolina-UNC baseball game set for tomorrow night in Harrington Field.

The board of Directors failed to come up with a fair solution as both Carolina and ECU wanted to host the playoffs. It was decided that the winner of Friday night's game would host the second and third rounds of the playoffs beginning on August 7. The first round will be played in the home town of the team that finishes highest in the league standings.

Any ties will be played off on Sunday, August 6th as the season ends on the fifth.

Tomorrow night will be "Pepsi night" with all who attend the game receiving a free Pepsi and being eligible for several prizes. Tickets are available from most Greenville merchants as well as the Pepsi-Cola bottling plant.

The Air Force Academy baseball team won 16 games and lost 19 during its 1972 season.

Three Musketeers Look For Free Agent Spots

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Just like the Three Musketeers of fiction, Gene Washington, Charlie West and Clint Jones have declared themselves to be One for All and All for One.

Washington is a wide receiver, West a defensive back and Jones a running back who helped the Minnesota Vikings win the Central Division title in the National Football Conference last season.

Now they are negotiating for new contracts as free agents and were missing Wednesday when the Vikings opened camp at Mankato, Minn.

Jim Finks, general manager of the Vikings, said he had rejected this new wrinkle in pro football by the trio and had started trade talks with the other NFL clubs.

"They informed me that none of them would sign until all three were satisfied with their contracts," Finks said. "If two out of the three were satisfied and the third wasn't then none of them would sign. They would not negotiate on an individual basis."

"I told them I couldn't accept those terms because I felt they were not good for the Vikings and I thought it was a very, very bad precedent to establish," Finks continued.

Another free agent, wide receiver John Henderson, also has not yet signed a contract with the Vikings, but he is negotiating on an individual basis.

While the Washington-West-Jones One for All and All for One method of negotiating is new to pro football, there is a precedent for it in major league baseball. In 1966, Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale, ace pitchers for the Los Angeles Dodgers, agreed not to sign until both were satisfied.

Elsewhere, Steve DeLong, for years a star defensive end for San Diego was traded by the Chargers to the Chicago Bears for an undisclosed draft choice next year. In other transactions the Houston Oilers traded tackle Sam Walton to Minnesota and an undisclosed draft choice and Atlanta picked up defensive back Leroy Charleton from Dallas on waivers.

The New York Jets will use rookie quarterback Mike Packer all the way, Coach Weeb Ewbank said, when the Jets played a controlled scrimmage Saturday against the semi-pro Long Island Chiefs.

And Bubba Smith, All-Pro defensive end with the Baltimore Colts, reported at the Colts' camp, still dissatisfied over the club's refusal to renegotiate his six-year contract, but ready to join the practice sessions.

Baseball Starts Back After All-Star Break

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

With the All-Star Game break completed, the regular major league baseball schedule resumes tonight.

Pittsburgh's defending champion Pirates will be trying to kayo the New York Mets in tonight's only showdown between a divisional leader and runner-up. And the Chicago Cubs, under new manager Whitey Lockman, will be trying to catch them both.

Meanwhile, Cesar Cedeno of Houston and Richie Scheinblum of Kansas City, the surprise pacesetters in the batting races, will try and retain their leads.

And Hank Aaron, who thrilled the hometown crowd in Atlanta Tuesday night with a two-run homer in the National League's 10-inning 4-3 All-Star victory over the Americans, will be resuming his relentless pursuit of Babe Ruth's home run record.

The regular-season action resumes tonight with 16 games, including four twi-night doubleheaders. One has the Mets at Pittsburgh, where the Pirates own a 5½-game lead in the National League East.

"They-re big games, but they're still not the kind you absolutely have to win," said Pirates Manager Bill Virdon. "Of course, if we do win, it's going to make things a hell of a lot easier."

The Mets, meanwhile, still plagued with injuries, have won three of their four games against Pittsburgh this year—but they lost eight of their 12 games prior to the All-Star break.

In the National League West, the Cincinnati Reds, having won 10 of their last 12 games, have a six-game lead over Houston, losers of seven of their last 10.

And in the American League, the Oakland A's hold a 6½-game edge over the Chicago White Sox in the West, while in the East, the Detroit Tigers are only one game ahead of the Baltimore Orioles, with the Boston Red Sox just four games further back.

In the National League East, behind the Pirates and Mets, tied with St. Louis for third, 10 games off the pace, are the Cubs, who lost Manager Leo Durocher during the All-Star break.

The fiery, opionated Durocher who had piloted the team since 1966 and had weathered waves of grumbling by some players last year and earlier this season, stepped down Monday night and was succeeded by the 46-year-old Lockman, who had played under Durocher of the old New York Giants.

"Our managing styles probably are different," Lockman said Wednesday in his first news conference, "but I played under him for 7½ years and I'm sure some of the things he incorporated, I'll use."

Does Not Like Getting On

By CARL HILLIARD
Associated Press Writer

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — "The thing I don't like about this bull riding," said Myrtis Dightman, buckling on a pair of mean-looking spurs, "is that first you have to get on that damned bull."

But getting aboard dangerous Brahma bulls in more than 80 rodeos this year is the only way Dightman can become the best bullrider in the world—instead of being just the best black bullrider.

"I admit it, I'm scared to death every time I get on," he said. "Some people love it. I dread it."

Dightman, 35, of Crockett, Tex., isn't the first black cowboy to hit the pro circuit.

In 1960, when he started, he was relatively unknown, but talented. Now, he's a real veteran since most riders are in their early 20s.

He's been inconsistent, finishing third in the 1967 world competition, totaling 16,014 points. He was fourth in 1968, then fell from the top five the next two years, and out of the top 15 last year.

But during the Cheynne Frontier Days Rodeo this week he showed signs of regaining his old form.

He carefully prepared for a ride, bandaging, testing and adjusting. Under his jeans he wore a woman's girdle to help ease an old hip injury. He wrapped his right knee and right elbow in elastic bandages, and taped his wrists.

When his bull came out, Dightman was ready, staying on even when the big animal hurled himself into the air and then tumbled to the ground. When the bull regained his feet, Dightman was spurring. He scored a fairly good 63 points. The judges could have given him a reride because the animal fell.

"I figure the odds were with me with the 63 points," he said.

"I could have taken a reride and bucked off—or scored lower. When I ride again this go-round, I might score a 70. That'll put me in the money.

"I ride bulls because I know them. It beats working because there's no 'boss man' except the bull. For a while, I was a rodeo clown and bullfighter.

"Since I've started I've never had a broken bone. But I figure my time's coming," Dightman said.

SeasonOpeningSet

RALEIGH — Dove hunters can fire their first shot of the dove season at noon on Saturday, September 2.

The dates for the coming dove season were announced Monday by the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission at its "Silver Anniversary" meeting here. As in past years, the season will be split into two parts, the first part opening at noon, September 2 and closing October 7, while the second half will open December 13 and close January 15.

The length and framework of the gunning seasons for migratory gamebirds, such as doves, rail, woodcock, gallinules and Wilson's snipe, are established by the U.S. Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife; however, the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission picks the exact dates for opening and closing.

The Wildlife Commission set the season for rails and gallinules from September 2 through November 10. The season on woodcock will begin December 9 and end on February 10, while the season on Wilson's snipe will begin November 18 and close January 20.

The bag limit for doves will be 12 daily, as it was last season. Daily bag limits for the other migratory birds listed will also remain the same as last year.

In other action, the Wildlife Commission voted to upgrade an existing program to help wild squirrels and wood ducks. The Commission will increase the payment to individuals, primarily members of youth groups, who construct and place squirrel and wood duck boxes in rural areas from $1 to $2.50 per box. Previously, wood duck boxes were not part of the program.

"We consider this not only a way to increase squirrels and wood ducks, but also as a valuable educational tool for teaching wildlife and environmental needs to youngsters," said a Commission spokesman.

The Wildlife Commission also voted to end trapping of raccoons for restocking purposes in Duplin County this coming season. In the past, raccoons for restocking in other parts of the state have been trapped in Duplin County. Also, hunt clubs that apply for raccoons for restocking will be limited to 40 raccoons per application (50 was the limit last year), and those clubs who restock raccoons must agree not to hunt them for at least one year as part of the cooperative programs with the Wildlife Commission.

At its meeting, the Wildlife Commission unveiled a large bronze plaque donated by the N.C. Wildlife Federation in memory of the late S.B. Coley of Raleigh, who was the first chairman of the Wildlife Commission in 1947. The unveiling was part of the Commission's 25th anniversary celebration.

Tagge's Reputation Goes On The Line In Chicago

By JOE MOOSHIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Jerry Tagge's reputation as a winning quarterback will be at stake Friday night when the College All-Stars face the Dallas Cowboys in Soldier Field.

Coach Bob Devaney Wednesday named Tagge, who guided Devaney's Nebraska team to two successive national championships, as the starting quarterback.

The All-Stars held controlled scrimmages against the Chicago Bears and the St. Louis Cardinals, and it was Tagge who directed them to two 6-0 victories.

Earlier in the week, Coach Bob Blackman of Illinois asked Coach Alex Agase of Northwestern how the All-Stars sized up since their training camp is at Northwestern.

"Don't sell them short," said Agase. "I never realized Tagge was such a good passer. In fact, I have yet to see him throw a bad pass. He's a winner."

Tagge will have to be a winner if the All-Stars, rated underdogs by at least 17 points, hope to upset the Cowboys in the nationally televised game (ABC-9:30 p.m. EDT).

While the collegians appear strong on offense, injuries have whittled down the defense which has the awesome task of stopping the National Football League's No. 1 offense.

Injuries will sideline defensive back Clarence Ellis of Notre Dame, while another defensive back, Craig Clemons of Iowa, has been hampered by muscle spasms in the back.

Up front, the All-Stars will have to play without injured Walt Patulski of Notre Dame and Herb Orvis of Colorado.

The All-Stars still have such standouts as linebacker Jeff Siemon of Stanford, defensive lineman Sherman White of California and Mike Kadish of Notre Dame, and defensive backs Willie Buchanon of San Diego State, Tommy Casanova of Louisiana State and Tom Darden of Michigan.

On offense they have Heisman Trophy winner Pat Sullivan of Auburn and Van Brownson of Nebraska behind Tagge, quarterback.

The top passing targets will be Bobby Moore of Oregon and Glenn Doughty of Michigan, with Franco Harris and Lydell Mitchell of Penn State, Bob Newhouse of Houston and Jim Bertelsen of Texas carrying the running game.

Discrepancies In Hanoi's Dike-Bombing Complaint

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Did U.S. bombers, deliberately or otherwise, bomb North Vietnam's dikes? If so, how extensively? A study of Hanoi's reports on the matter discloses puzzling discrepancies and raises a question about how much of the North Vietnamese complaint is propaganda.

Charges that the Americans deliberately bombed the dike areas have brought angry U.S. reaction. The State Department this week warned the secretary-general of the United Nations against spreading such reports.

Sustained aerial attacks on North Vietnam's dikes could have calamitous results for the population. But the record of Hanoi's own statements leaves serious questions unanswered.

It was not until early June that Hanoi openly accused the United States of such tactics. From what preceded and followed this charge, there is something about it suggesting afterthought, as if seeking to capitalize on the impact of such a charge.

The Red River Delta in Tonkin is one of Asia's most densely populated pieces of real estate. It is a triangle with a base of about 120 miles containing many thousands of villages. The soil is enormously fertile and ordinarily produces two rice crops a year. But annually between August and November the area is threatened by typhoons and torrential rains which can bring widespread catastrophe. Every year Hanoi warns the population about the possibility. It is warning about typhoons now.

Between September 1971 and March of this year, the North Vietnam press reported, many millions of cubic yards of earth had to be moved to shore up dikes against a threat of serious flooding. Army labor was used, as well as civilian, and this was a drain on the army's effectiveness in the South.

In January, the North Vietnamese army newspaper Quan Doi Nhan Dan reported an urgent need for "consolidating the dike networks and intensively dredging river mouths and portions of rivers necessary for effective control of flash floods." The same theme was stressed in the annual report of the country's planning commission.

In June, at Paris, the North Vietnamese accused the Americans of deliberately bombing the dikes. The United States denied it. The bombing was supposed, by North Vietnamese account, to have begun April 10 and continued unabated thereafter. But curiously there had been no mention of it in previous Hanoi press discussions of the danger of floods and other natural calamity.

In May, the official Communist newspaper Nhan Dan was saying that the United States was "threatening" to bomb the dikes and had actually hit some in one zone. If the June charge in Paris was correct, the Americans already would have been bombing the dikes for a month by that time.

Nhan Dan said May 12: " ... We must constantly and firmly ... strengthen dikes and other protective embankments and take precautionary measures against floods and typhoons with determination to triumph over natural calamities. ... The damned U.S. aggressors have openly threatened to strike our dikes and protective embankments and in fact they have struck at dikes in many areas of the 4th Military Zone."

If the objective was to destroy the dike system, the 4th Military Zone would be an unlikely target. The zone is all in the panhandle beginning about 40 miles south of Thanh Hoa. The vulnerable, heavily populated dike area is far to the north in the Red River Delta.

The day before Hanoi's Paris delegation accused the Americans of deliberately hitting the dikes, Nhan Dan was telling the North Vietnamese the real enemy, so far as agriculture was concerned, was Nature.

"We must not only cope with the enemy," it said June 5, "but also with sun, rain, storms, flash floods, large rivers, deep abysses and high hills."

Few doubt that U.S. interdiction of shipping and the heavy bombing of transport and communications have had a strong impact, physically and psychologically, in North Vietnam. Hanoi's claim that dikes have been hit, or at least damaged, by U.S. bombing, may have some substance, but it is also possible that U.S. and world opinion are targets of this campaign.

Opening lead: Six of ♠ A relatively unheralded team consisting of Paul Swanson, Morgantown, W. Va.; Jack Blair, Tulsa; Fred Hamilton, Berkley, Mich., and Howard Perlman, Bloomfield Hills, Mich., almost pulled the bridge upset of the year when they lost by a narrow margin in the finals of the Vanderbilts held this spring in Cincinnati to the Precision Team captained by Steve Altman, New York City.

In the semi-final round, Hamilton and Perlman executed an artistic display of deception to upset the three no trump contract which—tho thrust on South by an aggressive partner, appears to be unbeatable.

Hamilton, seated West, opened the six spades, the deuce was played from dummy and Perlman put in the seven to dislodge declarer's king. A diamond was led to the jack, losing to East's ace. The latter switched to a club which was ducked around to West's king and the latter continued the suit putting dummy in with the queen.

A small heart was led to declarer's jack which held—and the latter continued with the queen on which East played the ace. The latter returned the ten to dislodge the king and establish his eight, as West discarded the nine of spades.

The nine of diamonds was led to the queen and South cashed the ace and jack of clubs. On the last club, West discarded the jack of spades, to create the illusion that he had led originally from a suit consisting of the A-J-9-6. If this were the case, in fact, and he had already shown up with two hearts and three clubs, then it appeared that he must have begun with four diamonds headed by the ten—and therefore held a second stopper in that suit.

South was assured of eight tricks, three clubs, two diamonds, two hearts, and one spade. It appeared safe to lead a spade, for if West had the ace, he would be obliged to lead away from the 10-5 of diamonds on the return and thereby surrender the fulfilling trick to the declarer. There was the further consideration that East had passed in second position and inasmuch as he had already shown up with the ace of diamonds and the ace of hearts, it appeared most unlikely that he could also hold the ace of spades.

On the basis of the evidence, declarer innocently led a spade. To South's dismay, West produced the five and East won the trick with the ace and then cashed the eight of hearts for the setting trick.

In the absence of the fancy defensive footwork, declarer might have tried to split out the diamonds. When the ten falls under the king, South's long card in the suit becomes established for a ninth trick.

Involved In Land Development

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — Dr. David E. Herrick, assistant director of the Rocky Mountain Forest and Range Experiment Station, has signed a cooperative agreement which launches Texas Tech's research participation in the Eisenhower Consortium for Research on Forest and Related Land.

The project will analyze management problems and opportunities in eastern New Mexico and west Texas and be primarily concerned with natural resources, recreational opportunities and environmental management.

"In the West the problems of man and his interactions with the environment are most urgent in the southern Rocky Mountains and the adjacent high plains," he said.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, JULY 28, 1972

CARROLL RIGHTER'S horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when you need to be very careful not to allow yourself the luxury of having a chip on the shoulder. This would only alienate those who otherwise could be excellent friends and supporters. Instead of feeling sorry for yourself, back others in their projects

ARIES (Mar. to Apr. 19) Finish chores on hand instead of trying to push through new projects today, since you would meet with delays. One who is devoted to you has own worries today. Don't disturb.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Rely upon yourself today instead of a friend who has much to do. You are not certain just how to settle a business matter, so wait until the morning before making a decision.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Not a good day to engage in civic or career affairs, so postpone for awhile. Don't tell others what your true wishes are. Don't expect full cooperation from influential persons.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You want to go to new places and make new contacts but you need the rest. Spend time studying information you want instead. Avoid a newcomer who is not sincere. Be wise.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You have so much work to do you could get easily confused if you don't schedule your time and activities wisely. Show kindness to mate who is not feeling well. Think constructively.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be considerate of an associate who is preoccupied with own affairs and cannot give time or attention today. Talking over a problem now with another person only worsens it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) The work you have to do should be done with great care or you could get into trouble if you do it badly. Use extreme care in travel. Do not tear or spill anything by acting hastily.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Although you want to take part in an interesting recreation, be sure that you are not extravagant if you do. A more devoted attitude could help a friend through a personal crisis.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Try to put things in their right perspective at home instead of building them up to something they are not. An irksome problem can be handled quietly. Avoid an argument.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Any carelessness where usual tasks are concerned could be very costly. Think twice before you mail out a controversial letter you may have written. Show that you have wisdom.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Avoid trouble by making payment on an important bill. Plan how to make those repairs to property that are necesssary. Make sure you don't spend more money now than you can afford.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Take time to help those who are in trouble and thereby ease your own tensions. Don't try to stir up any trouble or there could be serious repercussions. Show that you are calm.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those fascinating young people who can find it easy to solve problems of others. Direct the education along humanitarian lines, where many will benefit from the fine understanding. The fields of psychology, sociology and personnel work are especially fine here. Give early training in ethics.

Ala. Law Requires Treatment Of Syphilis Victims

By REX THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Under Alabama law, anyone infected with syphilis is required to undergo treatment, and those who refuse can be put in jail.

That law was enacted in 1927. Sixteen years later the legislature passed another making it compulsory for everyone between the ages of 14 and 50 to take a blood test for syphilis at state expense and requiring treatment for those found to be infected.

Gov. George C. Wallace's office said today it is looking into possible violation of the state laws in light of a newly disclosed federal experiment, begun 40 years ago, in which some black men in Alabama died because they were denied proper treatment for syphilis and its side effects.

The Health, Education and Welfare Department in Washington also ordered an investigation.

The 1927 law directs county health departments to require all persons infected with any venereal disease to undergo treatment, at public expense if necessary.

Diseased persons who refuse can be sent to jail or committed to a venereal disease clinic "and kept there for treatment until no longer a source of danger to the public health."

Dr. Frederick S. Wolf, head of the Bureau of Preventable Diseases of the state Health Department, said it is seldom necessary to take anyone into custody. Uusually the threat of jail is enough, he said, to get an infected persons to seek treatment.

The Associated Press disclosed Tuesday in Washington that a 40-year study was undertaken by the U.S. Public Health Service in 1932 to determine, from autopsies, what syphilis does to the human body.

The experiment began with about 600 black men from Tuskegee. Public Health Service officials said one-third of the group was free from the disease but the other two-thirds were infected. Originally the PHS said half of those who showed evidence of syphilis were given the best treatment known at the time but the others received no treatment. Later, however, officials rechecked and said they found none of the 400 with syphilis had been treated.

During that time, Alabama law required treatment of known syphilis cases. Then in 1943, the legislature enacted another law requiring county-by-county blood testing for those from 14 to 50.

Whether any of the blacks involved in the federal government's Tuskegee experiment were examined under the state law is not known, Dr. Wolf said. And if they did not submit to the tests, he added, it could have been an individual decision and not necessarily part of any over-all plan.

Under the 1943 act, an intensive testing program was carried out in the mid 1940s, and, Health Department officials said, the syphilis rate dropped noticeably. In some counties which showed a high rate of infection, the tests were repeated.

To find out whether any of those in the Tuskegee experiment ever took the blood tests required by state law, Dr. Wolf said he would have to get the names form the Public Health Service and check them one by one against state records.

The compulsory testing law was sponsored by the late Bruce Henderson of Miller's Ferry, who was a member of the Senate. Henderson, a wealthy plantation owner, said he decided to introduce the legislation because he discovered syphilis was the predominant cause of absenteeism among his 500 black tenants.

The No. 2 problem was tuberculosis, Henderson said, and he later got through a similar law requiring chest Xrays for TB.

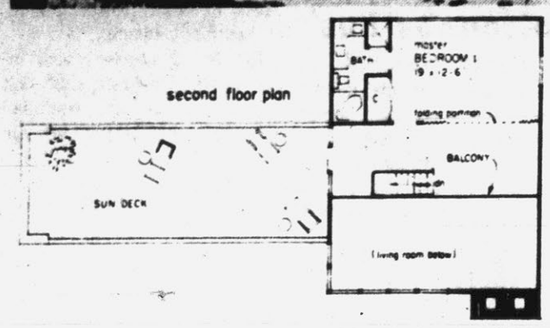
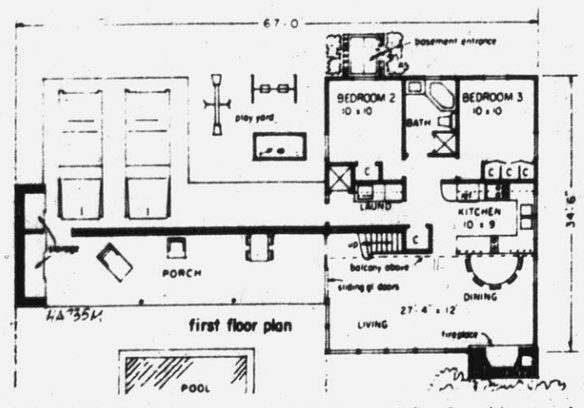
HOMES FOR AMERICANS





THE LUXURY LOOK — This is an example of architectural know-how being used to portray luxury in structure size when less than 1,000 square feet of ground is covered by the house. The use of a straight 33-foot stone wall, teed off by storage closets at the end, give the illusion of a much larger house. The wall is used as a separator of two bedrooms, bath, kitchen and 27-foot living-dining space. There is a full basement, which could be eliminated if desired. The second floor is a master suite. A 39-foot sun deck is directly off the balcony. It may be extravagant in size but is simple to construct over the stone wall below. Architect for Plan HA735M is Rudolph A. Matern. 89 E. Jericho Turnpike, Mineola, N. Y. 11501. He may be written about the plan.

Black Africa Tends Toward Its Own Ways

By JOHN PLATTER

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI)—There is an intellectual tide flowing in black Africa against "apedom"—aping the white man's ways.

One of its most articulate spokesmen is Okok p'Bitek, a lecturer at Nairobi University who laments, among other things, what he calls the passing of the African's gracious, unhurried way of life and the substitution of the white man's hurry-up.

P'Bitek quotes a Swahili proverb that goes, "haraka, haraka, hana baraka," meaning "to make haste is undignified."

"Why all the hurry?" p'Bitek asks. "To save time? What for? For doing business—the business of making toys faster, or manufacturing soft beverages?

Time Doesn't Stop

"Western civilization is utterly uncivilized as regards these questions. Here in Africa, time is seen as an endless cycle. The sun rises and falls, and rises and falls again."

What p'Bitek is talking about is the search for an African identity, for "Negritude," that is sweeping across Africa and—no less than elsewhere—prompting a rash of demonstrative things and slogans. A cry for "black power," for instance.

It is still a minority movement, mostly confined to academic debate, but it is beginning to show itself increasingly in criticism of Western customs, "imported values," and "the colonial hangover."

The movement attempts to identify traditional African cultures, and polish the finer aspects and adapt them to modern usage. There is heady talk of an "African renaissance" which will erase the dominance of foreign religions, music, morals, dances, literature, art and architecture.

Western Hypocrisy Seen

The traditionalists speak of how African societies were communal, before the arrival of Christian missionaries, and of how missionaries "told us to look at the Bible while they stole our land."

Before the intrusion of the white man, people like p'Bitek argue, Africans shared their workload and their reward. This was African socialism. "The competitiveness and individualism introduced by capitalist colonizers are unbecoming and unworthy of Africa," p'Bitek says.

There are manifestations of this. In Malawi, President Hastings Banda bans miniskirts and criticizes western permissiveness. In Kenya, "hippieism" is assailed by Vice President Daniel Arap Moi who warns it could "corrupt Kenya's youth." In Zaire (formerly the Congo) President Joseph Desire Mobutu sheds his Western names and becomes Mobuto-Sese-Seko. Towns and streets are renamed to sound African in what Mobutu calls "a return to authenticity."

There are Africans, perhaps the majority, who say this is nonsense, that in the modern world Africa must keep step, move ahead. One spokesman for this view is another lecturer at Nairobi University, Taban Lo Liyong.

$12,630 For Social Study

Funds to support students in the social work curriculum have been awarded the East Carolina University Department of Social Work and Correctional Services by the U.S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare.

A sum of $12,630, renewable yearly, has been approved to provide undergraduate tuition, fees and stipends for ECU students who elect to specialize in social work with the intention of working with agencies dealing with social problems.

Dr. John Ball, departmental chairman, said federal sponsorship of the ECU program indicates the "pressing need" for people who are trained in social work.

Students interested in this field may apply for support under the HEW grant. Further information about the curriculum is available from Dr. Ball at the Department of Social Work and Correctional Services, ECU School of Allied Health and Social Professions.

No-Nonsense In Houston Schools

NEW YORK (UPI)—The era of no-nonsense has dawned in the Houston Independent School District in Texas. School Supt. George G. Garver, via a directive, has ruled that any student who leaves class to participate in a boycott or otherwise failes to abide by rules and regulations and reasonable requests of school personnel shall be suspended at once—for three days.

He also reminded school workers they don't have to take verbal or physical abuse from any student.

Airline Adopts Usage Of 'Ms.'

NEW YORK (AP) — Eastern Airlines says it is including the Ms. designation in reservations computer records for women who prefer the title.

The airline says when a woman passenger phones for reservations she will be asked to give her last name, first initial and then indicate Mrs., Miss, Ms., or when applicable, Dr., Col., or any other recognized designation.

The Worry Clinic

Mind's Power Affects Body

Bill and Tom are doubly fascinating to us physicians. If you have anybody with cancer in your family, by all means mail them this Case Record.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

Case S-572: Bill and Tom are elderly brothers, aged 65 and 63 respectively.

"Dr. Crane," their grieving sister informed me, "they have both been diagnosed as having lung cancer.

"And it has spread in both cases to their liver, so the physicians told us they could not survive more than 3 months.

"When the doctors gave me their prognosis, they asked if I wished my brothers be informed of their impending death sentence.

"Well, I thought they ought to know, but maybe I made a mistake!

"Bill took a competitive attitude and said he would not die in the 3 months the medics had alloted to him.

"But Tom, the younger brother, reposed so much belief in the doctors that he immediately gave up.

"And he went downhill so fast that he was dead in just 2 weeks!

"But Bill is still alive and walking around, though his 3-month lifespan has now reached 6 months.

"How can you psychologists explain Bill's case?"

Mind Vs. Body

When Tom gave up, he lost his zest for food.

And he called for sleeping pills to offset his insomnia.

Besides, his adrenal glands didn't get into gear, as did those of his competitive brother.

So his system lacked the stimulating effect of the extra adrenaline that Bill indirectly poured into his own blood steam by his fighting spirit.

Bill thus ate more food than his dying younger brother.

And his greater physical exercise may have poured more muscle hormone into his blood.

For Dr. Andrew C. Ivy, exponent of the horse blood anti-cancer serum called Carcalon, says all body cells possess Carcalon.

As they wear out via exercise, they release their Carvalon into the blood or lymphatic vessels.

Besides, the power of the mind may add other therapeutic aids.

For I previously reported to you the experiment on white rats where two groups apparently were fed fatal doses of poison.

Yet only 20 percent of one group died in contrast to 80 percent of the second group.

The explanation?

Those in that 20 percent group were cared for by attendants who liked animals and who stroked the rats or petted them.

The other group had attendants who disliked rats and showed no affection for them.

So 4 times as many died of the same supposedly fatal doses of poison in the group with the disinterested or even hostile caretakers!

Affection, as revealed by the laying on of gentle hands and TLC (Tender Loving Care) furnish a great boon to physicians.

For love bolsters hope and both of these point your thinking forward into the tomorrows.

They are thus extrovertive in contrast to fear, which causes in involution and withdrawal from life.

If cancer is due to lack of some water-soluable chemical elements, then it is also possible that sea water could prevent or even slow down the raveages of such inoperable cancer as that of brain or liver.

So send for my booklet "The Ocean's 44 Trace Chemicals," enclosing a long stamped return, envelope, plus 25 cents.

People like Bill have nothing to lose thereby!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

British Canals For Recreation

LONDON (UPI)—Britain retains 2,500 miles of navigable inland waterways, mostly canals which are legacies from the 18th and 19th centuries.

Some 1,100 miles of canals are known as cruising waterways and are reserved for recreational use. There are still 340 miles of canals used for commercial purposes, mainly the movement of more than 6 million tons of cargo annually.

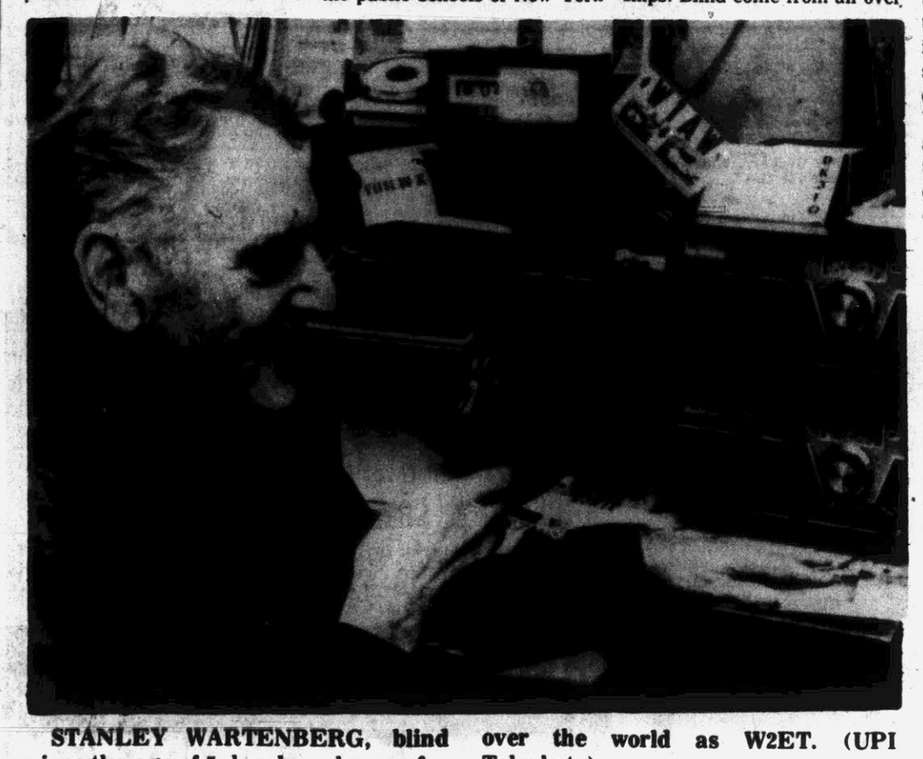
Trains Blind For Job Openings

NEW YORK (UPI)—When Stanley Wartenberg, blind since heas 5, went to work for the New York Association for the Blind ("The Lighthouse") in 1927, there were few blind persons trained to work and few jobs available to them.

Wartenberg, 65, has been a prime factor in changing this situation for the better.

Because of his efforts, 45 blind teachers are employed in the public schools of New York State, thousands of blind work in a spectrum of jobs ranging from automotive repair to insurance brokerage, and hundreds are working toward university degrees on scholarships. Blind come from all over the nation to participate in Lighthouse programs instituted by Wartenberg.



STANLEY WARTENBERG, blind since the age of 5, has been known for 42 years to ham radio operators all over the world as W2ET. (UPI Telephoto)

A bouyant, loquacious man, Wartenberg retired this month as the Lighthouse's administrator of employment and educational services and looks forward to devoting full time to sailing and a ham radio operation in his Brooklyn home. Whatever he has been able to accomplish in conjunction with the nation's most progressive organization for the blind is not enough, he admits.

Employers Reluctant

"Job placement is not a pushover for the blind even today," he said. "You run across a number of employers who do not employ the blind because they have not been educated as to how the blind can fill jobs usually held by the sighted. They also worry about insurance, transport, and absences."

Wartenberg lost his sight as a result of measles shortly after his parents brought him here from his native England. The parents, music hall artists, did not believe in sheltering him, but gave him wagons, erector sets, skates and a bike. He was a Boy Scout and went to camp with sighted children.

He was educated at the New York Institute for the Blind, studied music, worked as a piano tuner for manufacturers, stores and studios, and learned to be a dictaphone operator. He put together a dance band that played in Manhattan hotels and clubs for many years, taught organ, and is the organist for a Masonic lodge.

Wartenberg was working as a transcription typist for an insurance firm when he learned the Lighthouse had an opening for a home teacher for the blind. He got the job and guided his students into vocational subjects after they had mastered braille and basic home duties that make the blind more independent.

Filled War Shortage

In 1940 he became an instructor in the Lighthouse Industries Plant, which turns out products manufactured by the blind. He also took over training of newsstand and concessions operators and placed them all over the city, obtaining 60 newsstands for the blind in 1942 alone. The World War II labor shortage opened many jobs to the blind, and Wartenberg took charge of industrial placement in 1943.

"I was proudest of getting one blind person into the Norden bombsight plant," he recalls. "Only about 13 per cent of the blind we placed lost their jobs after the war because we had directed people into industries which had a good chance of peacetime conversion."

His experiences during the war years led Wartenberg to set up a psychological testing and appraising program for all blind—including blinded veterans and persons who had lost their sight after they had been graduated from college and established in jobs.

Once tested, candidates are given training for general industrial employment and some specific vocational training using the Lighthouse plant and outside vocational schools. Pre-vocational training in dialing telephones, eating in restaurants, grooming and getting about with a cane often are necessary.

Involved Colleges

Later, Wartenberg got into counselling and assisting blind persons to go to college and set up an advisory committee of college officials and top businessmen. In a three year period, more than 300 qualified individuals were placed in jobs. At present students are enrolled at several score universities ranging geographically from Harvard to Stanford.

The civil service has absorbed many blind as social workers, technicians, administrators, attorneys, and Medicare information personnel. There are more than 75 blind typists in the New York City government alone. Wartenberg led a successful Lighthouse battle for employment of the blind as teachers through three New York courts.

During his career, Wartenberg has seen nationwide innoculation of children against the disease which blinded him, refinement of braille to include a mathematical system, screening of children and adults in school and industry for vision problems, corneal transplants, glaucoma prevention, and magnification aids for nearly blind persons. Electronic equipment has become essential to the employment of many blind.

Fewer Totally Blind

"There are fewer totally blind people now—more people with what we call 'travelling vision'," he said. "And there's been a big change in philosophy about people with small amounts of vision. They used to be told to save their sight, now we encourage them to use it on the advice of opthamologists."

With the aid of his wife, Dorothy, and friends at the tiller, Wartenberg handles the sails and engine of his 27-foot sloop in Sheepshead Bay and other Long Island waters. He passed the U.S. Power Squadron test for handling smaller boats but a skipper's license was withheld because of his blindness.

"But I know these waters well and I give the directions," he said emphatically.

Wartenberg has been known for 42 years to ham radio operators all over the world as W2ET and has an extra class license for service in floods, hurricanes and tornados when power failures cause breakdown of ordinary communications. He has improved and modernized his station with an eye to retirement activities.

"I ran a NET control station for Civil Defense for several years, but I'm easing up as I get older," Wartenberg said. Then he added with a big smile, "Now I'm looking forward to a summer of cruising, fishing, snoozing and boozing."
