Eagleton Out, Eight Substitutes Weighed

McGovern Searching For Running Mate

IN DIFFERENT DIRECTIONS — Senators Thomas Eagleton and George McGovern head in different directions Monday night after McGovern announced Eagleton was stepping down as his vice presidential running mate. (AP Wirephoto)

By GREGG HERRINGTON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The search for a new Democratic vice-presidential candidate centers on eight men following Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton's precedent-setting withdrawal from the ticket.

Unable to convince presidential candidate George McGovern that the issue of Eagleton's history as a psychiatric patient would go away, the Missouri senator sadly stepped down Monday night and cleared the way for McGovern to look for a new running-mate.

Sen. Frank Church of Idaho, former Democratic National Committee Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien and Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine head most speculators' lists of likely replacements for Eagleton, who became the first man in American history to give up a major party's nomination for vice president.

But Florida Gov. Reubin Askew, R. Sargent Shriver, former director of the Peace Corps, and McGovern's close Senate friends Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut and Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin are also major possibilities.

And in Atlanta, Georgia State Rep. Julian Bond, a leader in the "Blacks for McGovern" campaign, quoted a high-placed McGovern aide as saying Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter is being considered to replace Eagleton.

McGovern's first choice to fill the vacancy may still be Edward M. Kennedy. The Massachusetts senator has steadfastly disavowed any interest in running for national office this year.

But, following Eagleton's dramatic withdrawal Monday, McGovern could well go to Kennedy and argue that his chances have been damaged by the Eagleton affair and only a Kennedy on the ticket could preserve the Democrats' chances of beating President Nixon in November.

McGovern has promised to make his preference known within a few days and conceivably could do it on a nationwide television broadcast he has scheduled tonight. However, McGovern aides say he will "talk about the campaign" and not discuss a replacement for Eagleton.

Whomever McGovern selects will require approval of the newly constituted 303-member Democratic National Committee.

Eagleton went before the hot lights of a Monday night news conference to grimly announce he was withdrawing his candidacy.

"My personal feelings are secondary to the necessity to unify the Democratic party and elect George McGovern," the Missouri senator said.

He added later that he and McGovern reached the historic occasion jointly "so as not to further divide the party that is already too much divided."

Democratic office-holders were slow to react to Eagleton's withdrawal.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said he was sorry at the turn of events but called it a "decision that had to be made." He reiterated his faith in Eagleton.

O'Brien, who is enlisting support of old-line Democrats in the McGovern cause, said he had talked with McGovern following Eagleton's announcement, but added that they did not discuss the choice of a new running-mate. He called Eagleton's resignation "a very difficult and courageous thing to do."

The boyish-looking, 42-year-old Eagleton appeared tense but controlled in the famous Caucus Room of the Old Senate Office Building as he stood beside McGovern. The South Dakota senator said Eagleton's presence on the ticket would mean "continued debate between" Democrats "who oppose his candidacy and those who favor it...."

"Therefore," McGovern continued, "we have jointly agreed that the best course is for Sen. Eagleton to step aside."

Grim-faced Eagleton staff members and supporters applauded almost defiantly as the Missouriian said: "This is definitely not my last press conference and Tom Eagleton is going to be around for a long, long time."

The announcement followed a nearly two-hour meeting in the Marble Room off the Senate floor where, in the presence of Sen. Nelson, Eagleton began with a 15-minute defense of his case.

He argued, he said later, that the issue of his three stints in the hospital for nervous exhaustion and fatigue—including electric-shock treatment twice—would die away. Then, he said, the issues and the Nixon administration's record would again assume the spotlight in the campaign for the White House.

McGovern disagreed. He said at the news conference: "It was not Sen. Eagleton's health that was the factor in this decision. It was the debate in the country, it was the furor in the country."

Power Loss After Storm

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

A severe thunder storm early last night caused interruptions in electric power service to some areas of the county and dumped 1.33 inches of rain on the Greenville area.

The Greenville Utilities Commission Weather station reported one and one-third inches of rain fell during the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. this morning. The high temperature yesterday reached 96 degrees while the low last night was 67 degrees, some four degrees lower than the previous night's 71 degree low.

The Tar River level stood at 2.7 feet and rising this morning as compared with a 2.1 feet reading yesterday.

Charles Horne, Utilities Commission director said power was out to a number of customers for a time in the wake of the storm. The outage, he said, resulted from lightning hitting a main transmission line at the intersection of Forrest Hills Drive and Greenville Boulevard.

It took about 30 minutes to isolate the damage Horne said. "We got all of the substations back on then, but had a number of calls throughout the county of trees on lines, fuses blown and breakers tripped. We got it all cleared up by nine or ten last night."

But more difficulties were in store for utilities crews. According to Horne, "about 2 (Continued on page 8)

Eagleton 'Not Bitter' After Withdrawal

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Thomas Eagleton said today he is "not bitter" after agreeing to Sen. George McGovern's wishes that he withdraw as the Democratic party's vice presidential candidate.

He announced, meantime, that he will seek re-election to the Senate from Missouri in 1974.

"I'm not bitter; I'm not going to get bitter," Eagleton said on a CBS television show. He made the comment when asked his reaction to his announcement Monday night that he was withdrawing as McGovern's running mate.

He said McGovern, the party's presidential candidate, "could not have been finer. But, Eagleton said, he was "troubled momentarily" by "one or two members of Sen. McGovern's staff who were doing more backgrounding than they should have been doing."

He said they were "too busy backgrounding reporters that Eagleton should get off the ticket." He did not name the staff members.

Asked whether he thought the controversy over his having been hospitalized three times in the past for nervous exhaustion and fatigue had hurt his political future, Eagleton said:

"I'm absolutely satisfied about my health ... the last six years I've been sound as a dollar. I have every confidence in my health and my capacity."

As for his political future, he said, "Time will only tell." Then he announced, "I'm going to run for re-election in 1974. I'll give you a scoop on that. I'm going to run."

He also said he had not been promised any position in the McGovern administration should the South Dakota senator defeat President Nixon in the November election.

Eagleton said he knew support for his position on the ticket was waning Saturday night when, in South Dakota, McGovern table-hopped, talking with newsmen about the "Eagleton issue, the Eagleton problem," whatever you wish to call it...."

Eagleton, 42, said he agreed to withdraw from the race only at the personal urging of McGovern.

McGovern Spending Cut Sees Senate Test Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate votes today on a $4-billion military-spending cut proposed by Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern who eventually wants to trim current Pentagon spending by nearly one-third.

Sen. McGovern proposed an amendment reducing Defense Department spending authorization from $81 billion to $77 billion for the next fiscal year. Passage would restrict the Pentagon to the level of funds authorized for the current fiscal year, but would not touch this year's military funds, McGovern said.

The Senate has rejected similar amendments in the past. McGovern said he seeks to maintain the current level "so the next administration will be better able to set its own military-spending priorities." He said the cut would free more money for such programs as health care, housing and jobs.

and hogs equaled the high mark of February 1970.

Last week the Agriculture Department reported that retail food costs rose 0.9 per cent in June with beef and pork strong factors in that increase. But those figures did not reflect the latest movement of farm prices.

Nixon administration price officials have insisted more meat is on its way to consumer's tables and that the price situation soon will ease.

A USDA report shows the number of cattle being fattened as of July 1 was up 14 per cent from a year earlier. Those animals, administration officials say, will soon be sold and help dampen prices.

But another report showed that in June meat output by packing houses actually was down 4 per cent from a year earlier, led by a 9 per cent cut-back for pork. Beef was reported at the same level of June last year.

Control-Exempt Farm Prices Go Up To Record

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new government report shows that farm prices exempt from price controls continue to dig deeper into consumer pocket-books, particularly at supermarket meat counters.

The Agriculture Department said Monday that average farm prices jumped 1.5 per cent last month to an all-time record, including a new high for beef cattle and a record-matching jump for hogs.

Increases also were reported for a number of other items, including eggs, potatoes, milk and onions. Compared with a year ago, prices farmers received in July were 13 per cent higher.

Meat animals, which provide nearly a third of the average family diet, rose 3 per cent from June.

Beef cattle edged past the previous record set in June,

Went Astray?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $25,000 check, apparently intended for President Nixon's re-election campaign, ended up in the account of one of five men accused in the break-in and bugging attempt at Democratic headquarters here, The Washington Post said today.

The check was made out by the First Bank and Trust Co., of Boca Raton, Fla., to Kenneth H. Dahlberg of Minneapolis, the Nixon campaign finance chairman for the Midwest, the newspaper said.

It later was deposited in the bank account of Bernard L. Barker, who was arrested with four other men inside the Democratic National headquarters on June 17, according to the newspaper. The five men were charged with burglary. Police also seized a quantity of electronic bugging equipment.

The Post said it confirmed the existence of the check with Dahlberg. It was deposited to the Barker account in April, although the exact route taken by the check after it left Dahlberg's hands was not known, the Post said.

It said the account was the same from which Barker drew out a large number of $100 bills, of which $3 were found when the men were arrested.

Former Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien has brought a $1 million damage suit against the Committee for Re-election of the President alleging it was responsible for the break-in and attempted bugging of the Democratic party offices.

Skyjacking Gang And $1 Million Arrive In Algiers

ALGIERS (AP) — A U.S. airliner landed safely in Algiers today with the hijackers who took it over and the $1 million ransom they collected.

Algerian officials questioned the hijackers for two hours at the airport, then took them away.

Police also questioned the eight crew members of the Delta Air Lines DC8. They were expected to leave later today with the plane for the United States and to make an overnight stop in Barcelona, Spain.

Eldridge Cleaver, Don Cox and Pete O'Neil, the Black Panthers who have taken refuge in Algiers, came to the airport but were not allowed to speak to the hijackers.

Allan Davis, acting head of the American diplomatic mission in Algiers, was on hand when the airliner landed.

The FBI said three men from Detroit took over the Delta airliner Monday on a flight from Detroit to Miami. The hijackers, reportedly armed, were accompanied by two women and three children.

The hijackers let the 87 other passengers get off at Miami and took aboard a suitcase containing the $1 million ransom, which had been collected from Miami banks. With a crew of seven, the DC8 flew to Boston, loaded fuel and food and took aboard an international navigator. Then it flew to Algeria.

The eight passengers, all from Detroit, who remained on the plane were identified by the FBI in Detroit as Larry Burgess, Jean McNair, Yahari and Ayona McNair, both children; Joyce Tillerson, a child named Kenya Tillerson, Melvin McNair, and Harry Singleton.

Burgess was listed on the Delta passenger list as Rev. L. Burgess.

There was speculation that the Algerian government would return the $1 million as well as the plane. In a similar case two months ago, an American couple hijacked a Western Airlines Boeing 720 to Algiers after collecting $500,000. The Algerians seized the ransom money and returned it to the United States, but the two hijackers are still in Algiers awaiting a decision on their request for political asylum.

One passenger who witnessed the hijacking over Florida described the leader of the gang as a "Negro male, dark, about 30, six-foot plus and weighing over 200 pounds."

The witness, Detroit attorney Samuel C. Gardner, said the man wore a black mohair suit and carried a Gideon Bible.

Education Specialist Says Children Should Be Prepared For School Beginning At Birth

By RENA PEDERSON
DALLAS (UPI)—The First Day at School should be a treasured event, along the lines of First Bicycle, First Date, First Kiss. But if the child is not adequately prepared, it can be his "First Traumatic Encounter with the Establishment."

abandonment," said Joe Pitts, a specialist in elementary education for the Dallas public school system.

"A lot of today's children are rather isolated due to apartment living—they're hothouse children. Some parents just take them right out of the nursery and plop them in school and it is traumatic for them," Pitts said.

Pitts said preparing children for school and pre-school should begin the day of the baby's birth as a part of proper child care. He suggested several key questions for parents with pre-school children to check their preparedness:

Suggested Indoctrination
—Has your child had school life pictured to him in a way that will make him think of it as a delightful adventure?

—Has he had enough association with other children that groups will appeal to him rather than startle him?

—Has he spent some time away from mother so that he has a feeling of independence?

—Has he learned acceptance of such responsibilities as dressing himself, handling small amounts of money and taking care of his personal property?

"It is very important for the child to understand the consideration of the rights and feelings of others, he will get along with fewer problems," Pitts said. "For example, he should understand taking turns, respecting the possessions of others or sharing his own."

Pitts said that many children are terrified when they are thrust into the school world and find they don't know how to eat in a cafeteria or use a public restroom.

"Some children do not even know how to get home or where their father works and feel abandoned at the end of the school day," Pitts said. "We suggest that parents take the child on outings to a cafeteria or to city parks or zoos to give him experience. And he should spend some time in the homes of relatives or friends to get used to the feeling of being left and to learn how to behave away from home."

Foster Independence

Then there are minor things to make a child independent: teaching him to tie his shoes, cover his mouth when sneezing, go to the bathroom alone and to take care of his money.

"We don't feel parents should try to teach the child to read and write at home so they can have a head start on classmates," Pitts said. "Often this teaching is faulty and it is harder to correct the faulty teaching than to just teach the child."

According to Pitts one of the most important things is not threatening the child with being dumped in school or telling him, "just wait until the teacher gets ahold of you"—for the child will fear both school and the teacher.

Pitts said the parent also should have given the child enough experience at visiting so that when he is dropped off at school the child will not feel deserted. The child should also know how he's getting home and what to do in case of a delay, like going to the office instead of wandering off.

"There are so many general things, like teaching the child how to handle a book...encouraging him to learn new words...having a quiet place for reading in the home...giving counting experience with beans, spoons and other simple objects," Pitts said. "And the parents should encourage the child to talk, to express his experiences."

"Getting ready for school begins when you take the child home from the nursery with the parents showing an interest in the child's training from the beginning," Pitts said.

"Ideally the welfare of the child should be the center of the parent's interests. If not, you're in trouble."

Trust Is Essential For Relationship

By SUSAN TAYLOR
CHICAGO (UPI)—Advice to parents comes freely from counselors, teachers, doctors, writers, in-laws, grandparents and neighbors. Sometimes from people you pass on the streets. But seldom from kids.

Perhaps, though, high school graduates would be most qualified to talk about raising children.

They are still young enough to have immediate contact with whatever problems exist in the relationship of parents to teenagers. But they are old enough to be thinking about how they will raise their own kids someday.

The topic came up when America's Junior Miss, Lydia Anne Hodson of Lexington, Ky., and five other state winners in the 1972 Junior Miss Pageant, held a freewheeling news conference here recently.

Good Kids

The girls—all but one a member of the National Honor Society—appeared to be the kind of kids most parents would be proud of. They were intelligent, happy, personable, articulate, talented and attractive young women.

They had some varying ideas about parents and parenthood. But all six agreed there is one ingredient essential in a good relationship between parents and their children.

Some called it trust. Some called it honesty. It was being able to level with each other, talk about anything and everything, with no communications gap.

Jody Walker, Iowa's Junior Miss, said, "I tell my mom everything. In fact, lots of my friends come to her to talk because their parents aren't like her."

Lydia said it was the same way in her home, adding that when she was going out with a boy her parents didn't like, they'd tell her—and tell her why—and leave the decision to her.

Another midwestern state winner said the problem of boyfriends unpopular with parents was a touchy one at her house. "My father was poor when he grew up," she said. "We're not wealthy now but we're comfortable. He makes a good living, but he's not honest with me. I'm going out with this boy now. My dad doesn't like him, but he always says the reason is that his family is poor. Why can't he just tell me what he doesn't like about the boy?"

Darlyn Thornberry, the state winner from Indiana, said a "policy of trust" is the most important thing parents and children can share. "Communication is an important factor," she said. "My parents tell me to use your own judgement, but sure, I need guidance."

Guidance Stressed
Barbara Jean Gorgol, Illinois, agreed that guidance was what she would hope to offer her children.

Diane Lynn Jole, from Wisconsin said the guidance should start when children are young. "Parents start too late," she said. "When you're little, they let you do what you want then when you become a teenager, they impose rules. That's where kids revolt."

The father of a college sophomore entered the conversation, telling of his daughter and the boyfriend, of whom he disapproved. The boyfriend had gone, unauthorized, to visit his daughter at college. What should he do? he asked.

"About the only thing you can do is hope you've raised her so she will be able to handle the situation," two of the girls said, almost in unison.

13-Year-Old Has Pen Pal In The Penitentiary

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: A girl friend got hold of an underground newspaper, and in it was an advertisement from three guys who were lonely and wanted to correspond with some girls. [The guys were in prison.]

I wrote to one named Johnny, and he wrote back, saying he was 29, and was in for armed robbery and possession of heroin. Johnny sent his picture and he's real cool. Then he asked me for mine and I sent him one. In his next letter he said they let the guys have any kind of pictures so I should send more.

I am only 13, Abby, and the one picture I sent makes me look much older. [I never told him my age.] My mother saw the letter from him asking for "any kind" of pictures and she took it to mean he wanted pornography, so she said I couldn't write to him any more.

I hate to quit writing to him because he seems so lonely. Should I write to him against my mother's wishes? I really think my letters have been a help to him.

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Write him one last letter, telling him your age and goodbye. I think your mother is right. You're not old enough to cope with that kind of "pen" pal.

DEAR ABBY: So many older parents write to you complaining about how mistreated and neglected they are by their children for whom they sacrificed so much.

I know it is sad because we have had that experience, but we refuse to let it get us down. In the first place, parents should not try to live thru their children. They should find other interests.

Get a part-time job, do volunteer work, develop some hobbies. Take art lessons or learn a craft. There are so many things to learn and do. Then to satisfy that grandparent instinct, seek out a younger couple whose parents live elsewhere, and babysit for them occasionally. [I did this, and I've never known such gratitude.]

If you are slighted on the holidays, [we were], make a lovely festive party and invite other folks who are in the same boat. Have a gay, gala affair and ban all talk of how your children have mistreated you.

The idea is to keep too busy to feel sorry for yourself.
BUSY AND HAPPY

DEAR BUSY: Good for you! Thanks for a sensible and inspiring letter.

DEAR ABBY: I am a German woman living in Pittsburgh, Pa. In your column I saw a letter saying seeing-eye dogs were color blind and couldn't differentiate between green and red lights to help their masters in traffic.

In my home town in Germany, [I suppose because of the war] we had many blind people, so when the green light went on for pedestrians, it was accompanied by a "beeping" so the blind would know the light was green. Maybe the cities over here could do the same.

MRS. H. W. F.

DEAR MRS. F.: It makes a lot of sense to me.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MUSICIAN'S WIFE: Don't judge all women by the ones who chase your husband. Musicians are constantly being pursued by women, but those who don't want to be bothered know how to ignore the overtures when they get the pitch.

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 69700, L. A., CALIF. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Watching A Political Disaster

As this is written we do not know how Monday night talks between Sen. McGovern and Sen. Eagleton will come out; however it is already clear that the American public is watching one of its greatest political disasters.

We have nothing but compassion for Sen. Eagleton, although it is obvious that his mental health record is a valid matter of discussion. He made a serious mistake in not revealing that record prior to his nomination, but there is a larger responsibility to be assumed for such a tremendous mess ever developing in the first place.

That responsibility clearly has to go on the shoulders of George McGovern, the man who is now leader of the Democratic party and who also chose his vice presidential running mate.

If we can believe what the top men on the ticket have said, Sen. Eagleton was chosen for the spot which could put him a heart beat away from the presidency in a telephone conversation that lasted only minutes. It is very likely that he was chosen after a number of other prominent party men had turned down the offer.

We can understand why Sen. Eagleton did not volunteer the information about his hospitalization. He felt that he is now doing well and the fact that he had been hospitalized was apparently no secret in Missouri. Any one of Sen. McGovern's staff could have checked it out with little difficulty.

Once the Eagleton history was dug out by enterprising reporters, Sen. McGovern hustled his candidate before television cameras for a quick revelation. There were "1,000 per cent support" statements from McGovern; and then he vacillated. During the weekend hints and outright calls for Sen. Eagleton's resignation came from the McGovern camp.

The problem now is not so much whether Sen. Eagleton will stay on the ticket or who will be on the ticket. It is simply a matter of how great a disaster will Sen. McGovern lead his party to? It would be easy enough for the old pros, who now look like party wise men, to allow McGovern to suffer his defeat in hopes of rebuilding later. However, the sad fact is that he is likely to carry a number of good Democrats in close races down with him.

Sen. McGovern must accept full responsibility for this Democratic party fiasco. The party may bear scars from what has happened this year for a number of years in the future.

"Okay, freeze! You bum... sir... after a fashion. in a manner of speaking... that is..."

You knew neighbors had bought a new television set when their house went dark at 8 p.m.

In the era of horse-drawn vehicles no streetsweeper had any trouble getting natural fertilizers for his backyard organic garden.

In the days when men wore hats, the polite ones would invariably tip them when they met a lady of their acquaintance.

You could win a reputation for being a dude by wearing a 50-cent clip-on bow tie.

The cheapest place to romance a girl was on a 15-cent boatride through the darkened waters of the "Tunnel of Love" in an amusement park. But just about the time she got interested, the ride ended.

When World War I ended, women wept openly, kids went around the neighborhood beating kettles and pots and pans strung around their necks, people set fire to brooms doused in kerosene and staged impromptu torchlight parades, and men went into their front yards and fired pistols, rifles and shotguns up into the echoing night. No Fourth of July celebration ever came anywhere near equating it.

Mental Health Care Changes?

By BRYAN HAISLIP

KINSTON — Money, and something more than money, is needed to assure high quality mental health services in North Carolina.

"There must be a strong public commitment to the cause of mental health," said State Sen. Charles H. Larkins Jr. of Lenoir.

"Our citizens must decide whether they are satisfied with the nation as a whole, he said, this state compares favorably in what it does for the mentally ill.

In fact, he added, the National Institute of Mental Health rates North Carolina in the top ten among the states. The NIMH has recommended aspects of the Tar Heel program, notably its regional distribution of services approach, as a model for other states to copy.

Problems Small By Comparison

"This is not to say we don't have problems," Larkins conceded. "Our problems are great, but they pale into insignificance in comparison with other states."

The ranking may be more an indictment of what other states don't do than a tribute to what North Carolina does. An observer could conclude, Larkins acknowledged, "if we're in the top ten, God help the other 40 states."

Problems the state has won't be solved by money alone, or a turn-over in personnel at the top, said Larkins.

Professional and other staff are hard to find, regardless of pay scales. The system now has open positions for which it cannot recruit qualified personnel, he noted.

The community design for delivery of mental health services, a trend which Larkins said offers great promise, calls for local resources in public support as well as facilities.

Money Is Ingredient

Money is an indispensable ingredient to a solution, and additional funding will be a part of the study commission's recommendations.

It will propose budget increases to move the state along to minimum care standards, comparable to those spelled out in an Alabama federal court case. Mental health officials have estimated it would take an extra $60 million per year to come up to those standards.

"We have given consideration to the possibility of a statewide bond issue," Larkins said. "We haven't come up with an amount. We're looking now to see if we can reach a ball-park figure."

The bond issue would make available capital improvement funds, and perhaps money to meet staffing needs.

Larkins said recommendations are not in final form, although the commission has completed its study. A report should be ready for the printer by Aug. 15 he added.

A two-term senator, Larkins chose not to run this year. He'll be around the '73 session from time to time in support of the study commission's recommendations.

with the short-comings of our system. If they are not satisfied, then they must be willing to help bring about improvements."

What may become a blueprint for change now is being drafted by a study commission headed by Larkins. Created by the 1971 legislature, it has worked since January on a broad review of the functions of the state mental health department.

Its report and recommendations could be the starting point for the '73 General Assembly in tackling the problems of treatment for the mentally ill, forecast as the overriding issue for the session.

A statewide bond issue for mental hospitals may be one of the recommendations. The study commission also will urge that the state beef up operating budgets, and pursue the concept of taking mental health services to the community level.

The state's mental institutions have been the target of a recent series of investigations, disclosing instances of ill care and abuse of patients and lack of staff and facilities. A report by the N. C. Mental Health Association severely criticized the system as top-heavy with administrators and short in the area of patient care.

Priority In Campaigns

Both candidates for governor, Democrat Hargrove (Skipper) Bowles and Republican Jim Holshouser, have pledged a high priority for better mental health programs.

Larkins said the probes have been valuable in arousing concern. "It is good for these things to be brought to public attention," he affirmed.

At the same time, he defended the present system as basically sound in concept and structure.

Reaction to revelations of dark spots in the picture should not obscure progress made in the past four or five years, he cautioned. Taking

Dixie Democrat Ranks Splitting

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — The inexorable division of Tennessee Democrats into a white party preoccupied with state politics and a black party representing the state in national politics, a trend accelerated by the McGovern takeover in Miami Beach, is typified by state treasurer Tom Wiseman.

Wiseman, 41 and a comer in state politics, is a Southern liberal with a progressive record and past ties with the late Sen. Estes Kefauver. As a loyalist, he will vote for Sen. George McGovern for President. But he has not yet formally endorsed him and may never do so. Instead, Wiseman is concentrating on reelecting a Democratic legislature.

That emphasis is prudent for reasons other than that Wiseman is elected by the legislature. Close association with the McGovern campaign would not help Wiseman's chances for governor in 1974. Indeed, other white liberal Democrats here show no enthusiasm for the national ticket. The McGovern campaign, therefore, must rely on the state's black minority, helped by a few white liberals new to politics.

Here is a situation cropping up throughout the old Confederacy: two Democratic parties in a state—one black, connected to the national party but impotent in the state; the other white, trying to stave off the Republicans within the state by ignoring national politics. This dual party system has reached full flower in Mississippi, is developing in Louisiana and has been hastened in Tennessee by McGovern's nomination.

Actually, Democratic nominees for President long have had trouble in Tennessee (with Lyndon B.

Johnson the only Democratic winner here the last five elections). Until the mid-1960s, however, Democrats—including liberals Estes Kefauver and Albert Gore—dominated below the Presidential level.

But Republicans today hold the governorship, both U.S. Senate seats (with Sen. Howard Baker sure for reelection this year) and four out of nine Congressional seats. Moreover, two liberal Democratic Congressmen—Richard Fulton and William Anderson—face Wallaceite challengers in Thursday's (Aug. 3) Democratic primary and, if they survive, serious Republican opposition in November. Understandably, each avoids the McGovern campaign.

Some realistic Democrats predict McGovern will lose all of Tennessee's 95 counties, but that is not the only reason Tennessee Democratic office seekers regard him as Typhoid Mary. Although Hubert Humphrey ran third in his district in 1968, Rep. Fulton campaigned hard for the national ticket. He will not this year.

The difference can be traced to Miami Beach. Leading Tennessee Democrats believe the convention on television—haggling all night, shouting denunciations of non-union lettuce, demands to stop bombing North Vietnam—produced cultural shock here.

Nor can the racial impact be ignored. High visibility of blacks in the Tennessee delegation and the convention at large excited racist prejudice. Outrage in Tennessee over 16 out of 49 Tennessee delegates violating state law by not voting for Gov. George Wallace, winner of the state primary, was escalated by the fact that 10 unfaithful

Postal Service Mandate

Forgive me if I wander into a column on the U. S. Postal Service by way of an occasion in Montgomery, Ala., on March 11, 1861. That was the day the Confederate States of America, alas, of beloved memory, adopted their Constitution.

It was the finest Constitution ever struck off by the brain and purpose of man. Patterned upon the U. S. version of 1787, it strengthened every weak point of the original model. Among its provisions was a vesting of authority in the Confederate Congress to establish post offices and post routes, with this proviso:

"But the expenses of the Post Office Department, after the first day of March in the year of our Lord 1863, shall be paid out of its own revenues."

That was the old sound doctrine, as Southerners are wont to say, and it remains sound doctrine today. Our contemporary Congress recognized the principle when it created the new U. S. Postal Service with a mandate to pay its own way by 1981. While some few subsidies may be justified beyond that time, perhaps for non-profit publications and for the smallest rural newspapers, there ought to be no retreat from the basic proposition: The cost of maintaining the Postal Service should be paid in full by those who use it.

Many of my friends in the publishing business do not accept that proposition. They argue that the national distribution and wide dissemination of newspapers and magazines are vital to a free society—that subsidies for this purpose are not truly subsidies, but rather should be viewed in a class with schools and libraries. They have therefore bitterly resisted the postal rate increases that became effective July 6.

Senator Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin has become the chief spokesman for the publishers' point of view. The rate increases, he says, "threaten to stifle the free flow of ideas and information and effectively silence some of the most important sources of competing independent journalism and opinions in the country."

Life magazine has sounded the same lament. It sees a "potentially ruinous effect." The proposed increases "could literally drive hundreds of marginal magazines and newspapers out of business." If the increases were passed on to subscribers, "a chain reaction might get under way in which falling circulation would lead to lower quality, thence to a further drop in circulation."

With deference to my apprehensive colleagues, I wonder if their cries of alarm do not drown out a certain lack of confidence in their ability to sell their own product to their own readers. In a maze of overgrown figures, comparing a magazine's net profit to the gross cost of postal increases, we tend to lose track of what we're talking about.

It now costs, on the average, 1.6 cents to mail each copy of the conservative journal, National Review; it publishes 26 times a year. It

Other Editors Say Layman's Guide

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Tar Heel Sen. Sam Ervin, chairman of the Constitutional Rights subcommittee, has announced publication of the third edition of the subcommittee's "Layman's Guide to Individual Rights Under the United States Constitution."

Sen. Ervin describes the guide as a "concise, easily understood explanation of the basic rights accorded all citizens." In addition to summarizing constitutional law, the new volume describes the effect of recent court decisions and legislation on individual rights, and liberties.

As the senator from North Carolina pointed out, it is essential to the continuing vitality of our rights that citizens are aware of them, exercise them and raise their voices when they find them jeopardized.

Judge Learned Hand once wrote: "I often wonder whether we do not rest our hopes too much upon constitutions, upon laws and upon courts. These are false hopes; believe me, these are false hopes. Liberty lies in the hearts of men and women; when it dies there, no constitution, no law, no court can save it; no constitution, no law, no court can even do much to help it. While it lies there, it needs no constitution, no law, no court to save it."

Preservation of personal liberties will be assured only through the efforts of ordinary citizens. The necessary first step is an understanding of the basic liberties which the subcommittee guide may help provide.

Despite the inherent nature of the rights of American citizenship, it should be emphasized that the rights guaranteed by the Constitution are not absolute rights in the sense that they entitle a citizen to act in any way he pleases. Rather, he must exercise his rights in such a way that the rights of others are not denied in order to gain the protections of the law. The "Layman's Guide" may be obtained for a nominal charge by writing to the U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402

Strength For Today

RELIGION IS PRACTICAL. Religion to have any value must be practical. No matter what we may think about God and his relationship to the world, it does us no good whatsoever unless we trust Him in our personal lives and adhere to his principles in our dealings with our fellows.

Some people keep their religion in a tight compartment separated from all the practical circumstances of their lives. They regard religion as one of life's embellishments. It is something to which they give their attention on Sunday. It is associated with a book written thousands of years ago and called the Bible. But it has nothing to do, apparently, with their business dealings, their social life, their friendships or their politics.

It was said of one great religious leader who organized the political and social life of his community that he was as much interested in plumbing as he was in preaching. He believed that religious pretension which did not eventuate in better living conditions for the people was a false and hollow shell. He was interested in plumbing as well as preaching, sanitation as well as spiritual culture, politics as well as prayer.

Sound and sincere Christianity makes a man a better citizen, a better neighbor, a better husband, father, friend, club member, employer or employee.

The object of all true religion is to honor God, and the fruit of this reverence is better life and a better world.

Cracked Barriers Of Hatch Act

By MIKE WATERS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A three-judge panel has cracked open the door to partisan politics by federal employees, but the workers have to wait for a Supreme Court ruling before they cross any campaign thresholds.

In the 2-1 ruling Monday, the panel held that provisions of the Hatch Act which ban partisan politics by federal workers are "impermissibly vague and over-broad," and violate the free-speech clause of the 1st Amendment.

And while the judges said the 2.7 million federal employees should be allowed to engage in partisan politics, they left open just what limits should exist. The court did not touch on the question of whether federal employees may seek elective office.

The court, composed of two federal district judges and an appeals court judge, ordered the U.S. Civil Service Commission to halt enforcement of the provisions. But the decision is being held in abeyance pending a review by the Supreme Court.

In writing the majority opinion, District Court Judge Gerhard A. Gesell said the section of the act challenged in the suit is "ambiguous and unsatisfactory."

Gesell said some kind of check is needed on political activity by federal employees. But of the present checks, he wrote: "There is no standard.

No one can read the act and ascertain what it prohibits."

He said the commission acted responsibly in attempting to apply the provisions of the act fairly, but that its efforts were thwarted because the commission "was given no authority under the act to accommodate rigidly incorporated prior rulings to the rapidly evolving court interpretations of the 1st Amendment."

Gesell suggested—but didn't order—that Congress state "with utmost clarity" which areas of political activity are permissible. He was joined in the opinion by Judge Barrington D. Parker. In dissent, U.S. Appeals Court Judge George E. MacKinnon found no impermissible vagueness and said "the reasonable federal employee is provided an ascertainable standard of conduct that does not impermissibly infringe on his 1st Amendment freedoms."

He said he would have ordered the commission to clarify its rulings. The suit was lodged against the commission by the National Association of Letter Carriers, a union of postal employees with about 200,000 members, several-District of Columbia political committees and a number of individuals.

Monday's ruling does not affect state employees covered by the Hatch Act.

Demo Committee Expected OK McGovern's Choice

By DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Echoes of once-settled procedural arguments loom before the Democratic National Committee as it sets out to choose a replacement for Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton as the vice-presidential nominee.

The solution, too, probably will have a familiar ring with the committee expected to ratify the choice made known by presidential candidate George McGovern.

Prior to the party's national convention, arguments droned on for days as competing delegations fought for the right to be seated, but in most disputes, McGovern's wishes prevailed.

Now, as the committee prepared to replay the convention in miniature, new rules governing selection of committee members have led to the same sort of seating challenges.

Adding to the sense of déjà vu, the number of members eligible to vote has surfaced as a key question in the committee as it was at one point during the convention.

Eagleton's withdrawal Monday night, an unprecedented move prompted by the pressure stemming from his disclosure of psychiatric treatment on three occasions between 1960 and 1966, left the task of filling out the ticket to the revamped and somewhat confused national committee.

The complications arise from the new national committee structure formulated by the convention last month in Miami Beach. Yet this new-style committee must function under earlier rules tailored to the old committee.

Convention rules provide that in the event of a vacancy, the national committee is authorized to select the replacement among others. Just as at the convention, all of the challenges must be settled before the proxy convention can replace Eagleton.

The new committee has at least four members from each state—a committeeman, committeewoman, state party chairman and next highest ranking officer of the opposite sex.

There are additional delegates apportioned among the states to reflect population and party strength, ranging from four for smaller states, to 12 each for New York and California.

Additionally, the committee Ten per cent of all homes in the United States will be heated electrically by the end of 1972.

Frank H. Roby, president of Sola Basic Industries, told electric heating representatives at a convention.

Joseph A. Califano Jr., the committee's general counsel, contends voting should be limited to the 150 members apportioned among the states by a formula roughly parallel to each state's convention strength.

The resignation of a candidate for national office was unprecedented in American history, although one potential nominee, Sen. Silas Wright of New York refused the vice-presidential nomination offered him by the 1844 Democratic convention.

Only one other vacancy has ever occurred on the ticket of a major political party.

James S. Sherman of New York, the incumbent vice president and Republican running-mate of William Howard Taft in 1912, died six days before the election.

The Republicans nominated Columbia University president Nicholas M. Butler to fill the vacancy.

do we blame the Postal Service? Or the editors? It now costs, on the average, 3.7 cents to mail Foreign Affairs Quarterly. Four years hence, it would cost 6.8 cents. An increase to the subscriber of 12.4 cents a year is not much.

The disseminator of ideas — the little publisher whose plight concerns us all — depends upon light, heat, water, and telephones also. These are services. No one has proposed they be subsidized. The Confederates had it just about right. As a general proposition, mail service shouldn't be subsidized either.

Kilpatrick . . . (Continued from page 4) costs the same thing for the liberal New Republic, which comes out 48 times a year. A year hence, under the new rates, the average cost will go to roughly 1.9 cents, then to 2.2 cents, by 1976 to 2.96 cents. We are talking about pennies.

It is hard to believe that thousands of subscribers to National Review would abandon my beloved friend, Mr. Buckley, rather than pay 35 cents a year more in postage. If New Republic's liberal subscribers would desert in droves, repelled by an increase of 65 cents a year,

Evans-Novak . . . (Continued from page 4) delegates were blacks who voted for Rep. Shirley Chisholm. "Putting it candidly," a Democratic state senator told us, "We're being labelled as the black man's party."

Ever since Miami Beach, Tennessee Republicans have been trying to exploit the convention, as in this newspaper advertisement in rural west Tennessee, once a Democratic stronghold:

"Concerned Democrats. Has your party left you? If you can't stomach: forced busing of our children, a guaranteed annual income, higher and higher taxes, drastically weakened national defense and all the other things the 'new' Democrats under George McGovern stand for, then let's do something about it. We need your help in the Republican party."

Such appeals help President Nixon and Sen. Baker but may not seep down to the local level. "It's pretty hard to convince the voters out in west Tennessee that the good ol' boy they elect to the legislature has anything to do with gay liberation or abortion or lettuce boycotts," a Republican strategist confided to us. Thanks to this (as well as reapportionment favoring incumbents), the legislature is expected to stay Democratic.

But the Democrats in Control of the legislature more than ever will be distinctly (SET ITAL) Tennessee (END ITAL) Democrats, without a visible umbilical cord to the national party. The split-level party in Tennessee and elsewhere in Dixie is both a result and a cause of a solid Republican South extending well into the future.

Gov. Scott Recalls Higher Education 'Civil War'

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — North Carolina Gov. Bob Scott told higher education officials from across the nation today that his state has recently gone through "a civil war in higher education."

Scott's comments came in a talk prepared for the 19th annual meeting of state higher education executive officers in St. Louis, Mo.

He noted that when he became governor, the state had 16 public senior institutions of higher education — four campuses of the University of North Carolina, 11 former teachers colleges and the North Carolina School of the Arts.

The 1969 legislature, he said added two campuses to the UNC system, gave all the senior institutions which didn't already have it the title of "university" and gave all the universities the power to grant doctoral degrees.

"You can understand why Alden Durham, in his book 'Colleges of the Forgotten Americans,' published in 1969, said that the situation in North Carolina would 'make an excellent book for a musical comedy,'" Scott said.

The governor said the legislators themselves "realized how ridiculous the situation had become."

"In the early summer of 1969, just before the legislature adjourned, I made a decision which may prove to have been the most farsighted decision I made as governor: 'I asked the legislature to make me chairman of the Board of Higher Education,'" he said.

Scott said this thrust him into the "hot seat" and gave him "an insight into higher education and a real understanding of the direction in which we were moving."

"A system under which every institution went individually to the legislature lobbying for what it wanted, jockeying with the other institutions, trading votes with other institutions or trading them on liquor-by-the-drink or any other current legislative issue — a system that in this way determined whether an institution would get a new music building or a new graduate program was obviously not

American Party Begins Preparing Its Platform

By SY RAMSEY
Associated Press Writer
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The American party's platform committee has elected John Couture of Muskego, Wis., as its chairman and drawn up the outline of domestic and foreign policy proposals.

Couture, a 48-year-old real estate broker who attended Harvard Law School, defeated William Shearer of La Mesa, Calif. Couture promptly offered to the 50 committee members a guide to their deliberations in the form of a document drawn up last year by a committee which he headed.

The position paper includes calls for revision of the 14th (equal rights) Amendment, abolition of election of U.S. senators by popular vote, an end economical for the state nor educationally sound," he said.

And, he said giving the same mandate and authority to all institutions "clearly meant the end of educational excellence and the beginning of bankruptcy."

He noted that after a "fierce battle" over the issue in the 1971 legislature, a special fall session was called and all 16 public universities were consolidated under a single governing board.

Scott called the reorganization bill "a remarkably good piece of legislation."

He said that Dr. J. L. Zwingle, executive secretary of the Association of Governing Boards, said recently that he felt the North Carolina plan was of "special significance nationally."

Scott said elsewhere the governing boards have been given so much power that they ended up being bogged down in trivia, or the institutional boards had been kept and given so much authority that the central board had been crippled.

North Carolina provided for separate local boards, but gave them the powers which the governing board saw fit to delegate to them.

"Dr. Zwingle went on to say that he, himself, was convinced that there was an ideal balance of authority between a statewide board and institutional boards and he thought with a little experimentation, that balance could be struck," Scott said.

"If, he concluded, we in North Carolina can do that," Scott added, "we will solve one of the major problems in American higher education."

Tobacco Sales To Red China Said Doubtful

WASHINGTON (AP) — There is little chance of U. S. tobacco sales to Red China at this time, to Agriculture Department analysts say.

Although U. S. wheat and cotton might appear attractive to the Chinese — and sales of those commodities are not imminent by any means — the once-lucrative tobacco trade with China appears to have dissolved, according to a Foreign Agricultural Service report.

In 1948-49, before relations were broken off, the United States sold 2,535 tons of leaf tobacco to China, the report said. But now, the report said, China has become an important exporter of tobacco.

"Thus, the prospects of sales of U. S. tobacco to China, at least in the foreseeable future, are not favorable," the report said.

to the one-man, one-vote concept and getting the United States out of the United Nations.

The party's national convention opens Thursday in Freedom Hall at the state Fairgrounds a few miles from downtown. About 2,000 delegates and alternates are expected.

Shearer, who had been a temporary platform committee chairman, drew heavy applause when during his nominating talk he denounced "freaks," "abortionists" and "homosexuals" whom he said had made millions of television viewers "retch" during the recent Democratic National Convention.

Shearer said the Republicans also would fail to tap the needs of the people in their coming convention, calling them "country club profiteers who milk America."

As for the American party, he said, "we are not a creature of a narrow ideological concept. The average man has no voice except us."

Couture spoke only briefly, agreeing in essence with Shearer. But in the roll call he won 27-23.

Couture acknowledged after his election there had been some controversy about his candidacy because of the paper adopted in November 1971.

As originally proposed by Couture, the domestic policy outline used terms such as "federal usurpation of power" and "taxation and economic freedom."

Demands arose to add school busing as a separate category among the general topics.

"If we don't go out of here with a major stand on busing, America will little remember what we did here," Arthur Cain, a Cleveland lawyer, commented.

When someone suggested busing could be grouped under federal "usurpation," A. Howard Freund of Roselle Park, N.J., said children were being bused in New Jersey by state decree.

The platform committee agreed to add busing as a separate topic of discussion.

Four Injured In 3 Wrecks

Three collisions investigated here yesterday injured four persons and resulted in an estimated $4,750 property damage according to Police Department investigators.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted when cars driven by Michael Ray Taylor of Kinston and Kenneth Haddock, 18, of Route 1, Greenville collided about 9:55 p.m. at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Hooker Road.

Damage was estimated at $2,000 to the Taylor car and $1,000 to the Haddock auto. Officers said Haddock, Taylor and two passengers in the Taylor vehicle were injured.

Haddock was charged with exceeding safe speed while Taylor was cited for failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

Simon Gerald Corbett, 21, of Route 6, Greenville was charged with failing to stop for a stop sign following investigation of a 7:25 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Farmville Boulevard and Bancroft Avenue.

Police reported the Corbett auto collided with a car driven by James Percy Artis, 47, of 1017 West Fourth St. causing an estimated $900 damage to the Corbett vehicle and $500 damage to the Artis car.

Investigators said cars driven by Nancy Hood McKeithan of Greenville and James Thomas Forrest, 23, of 101 North Harding St. collided about 12:20 p.m. on Cahrls Street 250 feet North of the Sanford Drive intersection causing an estimated $100 damage to the McKeithan car and $250 damage to the Forrest vehicle.

Police charged Forrest with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident.

Luzon Is Again Hit By Flooding

By FRANK N. HAWKINS JR.
Associated Press Writer
MANILA (AP) — Fed by incessant monsoon rains, flood waters swept back over much of Luzon Island and the greater Manila area today. It was the worst natural disaster in Philippine history.

Ninety per cent of Manila was reported flooded and about 80 per cent of the labor force did not report for work.

Three more deaths, including one from cholera in Pampanga Province, brought the unofficial toll to 308 since July 6. Much of 14 provinces was under water, and at least 2 million persons were affected.

The National Disaster Coordinating Center said the floods were worse than those last month; the waters had begun to recede when new monsoons came.

Persons in Pampanga, north of Manila, had to climb trees to escape drowning.

The Weather Bureau said a low pressure area 120 miles south of Guam threatened Luzon with more rain for the next 48 hours.

Officials appealed to the U.S. government not to withdraw 14 U.S. Marine helicopters from the carrier Tripoli which have been flying daily relief flights since July 22. The carrier and its helicopters had been scheduled to stay no more than a week, and the helicopters were reported overdue for maintenance in Okinawa.

The helicopters from the Tripoli together with U.S. Air Force and Navy helicopters from the Clark and Subic Bay bases have delivered more than 1,000 tons of goods to flood victims in the past 10 days, a spokesman said.

The Weather Bureau said the total rainfall in the greater Manila area in July — 68.6 inches — was the heaviest for any month since August, 1911, when 78.07 inches was recorded.

A Review Summer Theatre Has Happy, Pleasant Show

THE TWOSOME OF "I DO! I DO!"
Janet Hayes as Agnes and John Newton as Michael seem rather shy on their wedding night in the East Carolina University Summer

Theatre's fourth production. The play covers 50 years of marriage of Agnes and Michael with songs and some bits of married-life humor. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

"I Do! I Do!" East Carolina University Summer Theater's fourth of five musicals for the 1972 summer, almost suffered the same fate that befell "Once Upon A Mattress" two Monday nights ago.

Shortly before curtain time Monday night, an electrical storm moving in from the west once more plunged the university area into a state of power outage. Fortunately, technicians were able to get the damaged sound system back into operation in time for the show to go on, after a delay of about 20 minutes.

A near full house seemed to find much to be happy about in the play by Tom Jones (books and lyrics) and Harvey Schmidt (music) that is a running chronicle of highlight events in the course of a couple's 50 years of married life, stitched together with appropriate songs to indicating the milestones of passing years.

"I Do! I Do!" is an evening of pleasant entertainment, one that leaves a strong flavor of nostalgia for many levels of yesterdays without ever getting beneath the surface of things.

Within this context it provides adequate opportunities for any number of tuneful songs given winsome and polished performances by Janet Hayes as Agnes and John Newton as Michael.

Both have lovely voices well suited to the songs—songs that in their essence of happiness keep harking back to a marked degree to the golden heyday of American operetta (Herbert, Romberg, etc.).

The two performers (there are only these two on stage) also come across effectively in the spoken work. On opening night, there was a generous number of chuckles for some choice bits of typical married-life humor. Even the shop-worn subject of the helpless husband never being able to find anything manages to seem fresh in "I Do! I Do!"

As an aside, it would be nice to know why Michael gets the lion's share of disrobing scenes (he must have taken his trousers off or been caught in the act of putting them on half a dozen times) while Agnes remains fully gowned to her feet except in one delightful scene in which she threatens to do her middle-age thing as "Flaming Agnes"—which by the way is the liveliest point of the play.

Surely, Mr. Jones, with allowances for making the evening an exciting one for the ladies in the audience, you could have given us a little more of Agnes than ankles and elbows. Getting back to important

Four Die In Cite Minutes Of City Jail Blaze

STUART, Fla. (AP) — Four youthful inmates were killed when fire swept through a maximum security cellblock at Martin County Jail late Monday night, trapping the victims inside their locked cells, authorities reported today.

Sheriff Robert L. Crowder said preliminary investigation indicated that three of the victims apparently set magazines and mattresses ablaze, then screamed for help when the fire raged out of control.

The fourth victim, the only other prisoner in the upstairs cellblock, was confined in an adjacent cell, the sheriff said.

Crowder identified only one of the dead inmates, Robert Lasset, age 19 or 20, of Indiantown, Fla. Identity of the other three victims was withheld pending notification of relatives. All victims were in their late teens or early 20s, the sheriff said.

Lasset had been jailed on forgery charges, Crowder said. The sheriff said another victim was charged with auto theft and a third was serving a year's sentence for attempted forgery.

things — "I Do! I Do!" pays a lighthearted tribute to the institution of marriage. In its lighthearted way it leaves a feeling of reassurance that all can end well without being so serious about it in the process.

"I Do! I Do!" is good fun for the whole family—and provided there's no further problems with power, it will be on stage at McGinnis nightly through Saturday with a matinee at 2:15 p.m. Saturday.

Recreation Meeting

Recreation Commission Chairman Sydney Carraway and other members of the commission have cited the minutes of last Thursday night's meeting concerning their action on swimming pool proposals.

The minutes were cited in reference to The Daily Reflector's story about the meeting which appeared in Sunday's edition.

The minutes concerning the action read:

"After further discussion, it was the feeling of the Commission that the referendum should include facilities and improvements for a total recreation program and not just swimming pools. Mr. O'Brien moved that a vote be put before the people requesting a tax not only for swimming pools but for other recreational facilities for Senior Citizens, Teen-Agers and athletics as well. Seconded by Mrs. Burnette.

"Dr. Hadley thanked Mr. Dansey for his aggressive approach to the needs of swimming pools in Greenville and made an amendment to the above motion requesting that the Commission be given not more than 90 days to come forth with an overall program to be presented to the City Council for possible funding including the present needs for recreation facilities for senior citizens, teenagers, swimming pools, ballparks and other physical arrangement. Mr. Dansey then stated that he did not think a referendum for all recreation facilities and improvements would pass and moved that the Recreation Commission go on record to support the swimming pool facilities and the method of financing as outlined at the City Council meeting.

Seconded by Mr. Foreman with Mrs. Hagans, Mr. Pope, Mr. Foreman, and Mr. Dansey voting for this motion and Mrs. Burnette, Dr. Hadley, Mrs. Gaylord and Mr. O'Brien voting against it. Chairman Carraway in breaking the tie also voted against the motion.

"At this point Dr. Hadley's amendment to Mr. O'Brien's motion was voted on with Mrs. Gaylord, Mrs. Burnette, Mr. O'Brien and Dr. Hadley voting for it and Mrs. Hagans, Mr. Pope and Mr. Dansey voting against it with Mr. Foreman abstaining. The amendment was carried."

Postcard Was 60 Years Late

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — The Chamber of Commerce is puzzled over a penny postcard which apparently arrived some 60 years late — with 5 cents postage due to cover the accrued increases of three-score years in transit.

The postcard was postmarked last Tuesday in Palouse, Wash., but was addressed to the Huton Building which the chamber left some 60 years ago.

The message, written in pencil but still legible, was "A.A. In response to your query of the 13th, suggest we hold off for now — may be more favorable developments after crops is in. Max."

Market Robbed In Early Hours

Police investigators today are continuing their hunt for robbers who broke into Harris Super Market at 901 West Fifth St. early this morning and took cigarettes and small change from the building.

According to Chief of Police Glenn Cannon, the break-in occurred between 2 a.m. and 2:30 a.m. Entrance to the building, he said, was gained by breaking a glass front door.

Three cartons of cigarettes taken from the store were found a short time later several blocks from the scene of the break-in where the robbers apparently dropped them as they fled.

Lions Host Gov. Raynes

Selden H. Raynes, District Governor of Lions International, paid an official visit to the Greenville Lions Club last night.

In his remarks Governor Raynes, warned the Lions not to mistake activity for accomplishments. He complimented the Greenville club for its varied activities in the area of sight conservation and aid to the visual handicapped. He made special note of the screening clinic for pre-school children, the sale of blind-made products and the sponsorship of persons attending Camp Dogwood as outstanding local projects.

Raynes ask the local Lions to "Enlist more men to share the life of Lionism." He suggested that this could be accomplished by seeking new members and by establishing new clubs.

Accompanying Raynes on his visit, were Jim Boone, Cabinet Secretary and Horace Davis, Zone Chairman, both of Kinston.

Local Girl Scouts At Camp Hardee Day Camp

More than seventy Greenville Girl Scouts attended Day Camp at Camp Hardee July 24-28. Highlights of the camp included making special crafts that will be sent to the Juliette Low birthplace in Savannah, Ga., to be sold in the craft shop. The crafts included burlap flowers, miniature flower arrangements under glass, marble flower holders, lemon-spice sachets and tile trivets.

Sand candles were made by several units and the entire camp participated in an old-fashioned ice cream party Friday preceding closing activities.

Activities during the camp stay included: cookouts, overnight camping; hiking; nature study; first aid; waterfront activities and camp crafts.

Girls from Greenville, Ayden and Grimesland participated in the events. Adults and senior aides who assisted during the week were: Brownies (30 in attendance) — Mrs. J.J. McAllister, Mrs. Elliot Dixon, Mrs. Curtis Wagoner and Mrs. James Martin; senior aides: Hazel Hatem, Debbie Moseley, Martha Davenport, Ann Howard, and Susan

Strickland; Fly-Ups (22 attended) — Mrs. Margaret Smith, Mrs. Kay Davis and Mrs. John Weeden; Senior aides: Debbid Toler, Vickie Wilkerson, Josie Boyette and Selene Wheelers; Juniors (nine) — Mrs. Nimos Hatem, Mrs. Tanner; senior aides: Sheri Moseley and Ellen Crane; Cadettes (7): Mrs. Stephanie

Kissinger Said Again In Paris

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential assistant Henry Kissinger is meeting today in Paris with North Vietnamese negotiators, the White House said.

Like the 14 other meetings that President Nixon's assistant for national security affairs has held with Communist negotiators, today's session was arranged and conducted secretly.

The brief announcement by White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Kissinger was meeting with both Le Duc Tho, special adviser to North Vietnam's delegation at the Paris peace talks, and delegation minister, Xuan Thuy.

Substitute Car Bill To Reagan

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Auto builders would have to pay for the repair of safety-related defects — and furnish a substitute car while the work was being done — under a bill that has gone to Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, sponsor of the bill, said Monday that the substitute car would have to be furnished only if repairs take longer than one day.

Reventlow Ground Broken For New Church

DENVER (AP) — Philip G. Hooker, 27, a student pilot, apparently was at the controls of the light plane that crashed near Aspen last week, killing himself, millionaire Lance Reventlow, and two other Aspen residents, according to a National Transportation Safety Board official.

Lee Martin, an air safety inspector, said Monday that the man sitting in a secondary control seat alongside Hooker in the Cessna 206 was believed to have been Robert W. Wulf, 35. Reventlow and an Aspen resident, Barbara Baker, 45, were sitting in the rear of the four-place plane, Martin said.

Apparently there were rain showers in the region where the plane went down in a forested box canyon 17 miles northeast of Aspen, but the area probably wasn't obscured by mist, Martin said. Reventlow was the son of Barbara Hutton, one of the world's richest women, and the husband of former Disney Mouseketeer Cheryl Holdridge. He once was married to actress Jill St. John.

Chess Masters In Ninth Game

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — World chess champion Boris Spassky sits down at the chess board today for his ninth game against Bobby Fischer.

He not only has to battle Fischer, the American challenger, he also has to beat the crippling lack of self-confidence that has brought him almost to the brink of defeat. Spassky trails Fischer, 5-3, in the 24-game match for the world championship. A win is a point, a draw half a point. Fischer needs 12½ points to win the title. Spassky needs 12 to retain it.

Pleading a cold, Spassky postponed the ninth game Sunday. He had tripped up badly in Thursday's eighth game.

Chairman Named For Rep. Mizell

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Edward Armfield, 33, a Winston-Salem account executive, has been named campaign chairman for Congressman Wilmer Mizell, North Carolina Republican seeking his third consecutive term. Armfield is a member of the state Republican Executive Committee.

Groundbreaking services for the new Holy Trinity United Methodist Church were held Sunday at 10 a.m.

Organized through a series of meetings that began in the summer of 1966, the congregation first met in the Masonic Building on Charles Street as the Dellwood Methodist Church. In November 1966 the name was changed to the Holy Trinity Methodist Church and membership in the church has grown to its present 100 members. The congregation now meets at Aycock Junior High.

The Rev. Roy L. Turnage, pastor of the church since April 1970, said the thoughts that led to the formation of the new church were the outcome of "sincere belief that a smaller, family-type church fellowship was appropriate for the city." He noted that Holy Trinity gives its members the opportunity to "become involved in new and fresh ideas of Christian ministry, regardless of what may appear to be limited resources."

The new church home, to be located on Red Banks Road across from Aycock Junior High School will be a wood frame and brick facility costing about $67,500. Construction is expected to be complete in about 10 months.

Border Belt Up

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Prices for flue-cured tobacco rose to record levels on the South Carolina and Border North Carolina Belt Monday, with more than 90 per cent of the grades bringing $84 a hundred pounds or more.

The Federal-State Market News Service reported that in most instances price increases were $1 and $2 above the record $81.80 in last week's three-day opening week. The opening-week averaged was $7.34 more than in the similar period last season. Quality was better Monday in the opening week, with a sharp drop in low and fair primings and nonscript and an increase in leaf and cutters. Volume was heavy, with all markets having more tobacco than could be sold in the allotted time.

Sales for the opening week were 27,903,691 pounds, compared with 37,016,132 pounds in the corresponding time last year.

Only 2 per cent of the first-week sales were placed under government loan, compared to 5.2 per cent last year.

RECORD PRICES
VALDOSTA, Ga. (AP) — The Federal-State Market News Service reported Monday that 11,235,950 pounds of tobacco sold on the Georgia-Florida Belt went for an average of $85.04 per hundred, up $1.19 over Thursday's closing record.

Boys Home Teams Are Working Well

Joe Won't Play Without Contract

By EARL GERHEIM Associated Press Sports Writer HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — When he's not running drills and participating in scrimmages on the practice field, quarterback Joe Namath is huddling with New York Jets' management over his contract. With the Jets' first preseason National Football League game against San Francisco only four days away, Namath still is unsigned, although he has remained in camp. Broadway Joe has participated in the Jets' preseason training regimen but says he will not play in exhibition or regular season games without a contract. Asked about the negotiations, Jets President Phil Ilesin replied: "The hard part is over. We haven't agreed on the money, though." Several hours later, however, the Jets' public relations staff announced a noon press conference today, saying only, "It will be an item of major importance."

Locals In All-Star Game

Ayden-Grifton Johnny Hoover, playing for the South, poses as if ready to tackle Robersonville's Jesse Coppage of the North, as the two make ready for the 10th annual Boys Home All-Star Game, to be played Saturday night in Ficklen Stadium. The game annually benefits the Lake Waccamaw Boys Home, and is sponsored by the North Carolina Jaycees.

By CHIP LAMBETH Reflector Sports Writer After a day-and-a-half of workouts and practice both North and South team coaches are pleased with performances they have gotten so far. Both Frank Caimillo, head coach of the South, and Ray Boyles of the North were questioned at a banquet held by the Greenville Jaycees for members of the area press to meet the coaches and the Jaycees who are in charge of this year's proceedings. The two coaches were in agreement to the fact that they were ahead of the pace they had previously thought they would be setting after such a short time. Boyles stated, "We are pleased that we are further along after three practices. We still have two or three doubtful players, though," Caimillo said much the same as he commented. "We were rather pleased but we would like more size." The North squad is to have held a light scrimmage today while the South had already begun hitting. "We haven't had a good chance to work but the scrimmage will help a lot," Boyles said. Caimillo said that the South has had "some contact" and that his team looked really good. "Some of the boys had not hit much during the year." The South's early pick at quarterback is Tyrone Willingham of Jacksonville. Three boys are vying for the center position. The ends are shaping up well also but as Caimillo added, "They are not as smooth in their execution as we would like but that will be better at the end of the week." The North coaches were also pleased at the way the team was learning the system. There have been skull sessions for the past two days. "We are teaching things new to them and they have to learn these other systems." The South's members can execute both forms of Caimillo's offense and defense rather well. Looking ahead to the rest of the week, Boyles pointed out that things "might turn around and we may find that we are ahead of ourselves." Governor Bob Scott has proclaimed August 5th, the day of the game, as "Boys Home All Star Day". Game time is 8:00 Saturday night at Ficklen Stadium and tickets are available from any Greenville or state Jaycee.

Pepsi-Cola night, which was also scheduled for last night, will also be held on Thursday. Tickets to the game will be honored then.

Tanner: Allen Will Win The Triple Crown

By PAT THOMPSON Associated Press Sports Writer MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) — Dick Allen is racing to what Chicago White Sox Manager Chuck Tanner thinks will be the triple crown in the American League—most home runs and runs batted in and highest average. Tanner even alluded to horse racing's triple crown to make a point about his first baseman who ran his way into the major league record books Monday against the Minnesota Twins with two inside-the-park home runs. "He's better than Riva Ridge," Tanner boomed after Allen drove in five runs in an 8-1 White Sox romp. "I think we can win everything. If he gets better than two out of three, that's pretty good." Riva Ridge was this spring's top 3-year-old with two victories in the three big races—Kentucky Derby, Belmont and Preakness. "I'll take him running the bases over any guy in the American or National League. I'm not talking about being faster, but how he turns the bases. He makes a perfect square." Allen, obtained in an off-season deal with the Los Angeles Dodgers, made two perfect squares off pitcher Bert Blyleven, 9-14, in the first and fifth innings with the ball still bouncing around the outfield. The only other player in modern major league history to hit two inside-the-park homers in one game was Ben Chapman of the 1932 New York Yankees. He hit three homers off Detroit pitching in the second game of a doubleheader July 19, 1932, two in play. "I just swing ... and run," Allen said after his record-tying performance. "I hit some in the other league but I don't remember how many."

Tickets On Sale

Season tickets for East Carolina's five-game home football series this fall, went on public sale here today. Athletic Director Clarence Stasavich said the attractive home schedule — including a regionally televised game against The Citadel on October 14 — should attract a good season crowd. "Tickets will be sold on a 'best, first' basis," said Stasavich, "so the earlier you buy your ticket, the better seat you'll be getting." Season tickets are $25.00 per seat, and can be obtained by writing P. O. Box 2576, Greenville, N. C. They also are on sale at the ticket office in Minges Coliseum on the campus. The Pirate's home schedule includes: Southern Illinois on Sept. 16; Appalachian on Sept. 23; The Citadel Oct. 14 (ABC TV); Chattanooga on Nov. 4 (Homecoming); and Dayton on Nov. 18.

Manager Bill Virdon of the Pittsburgh Pirates compiled a .267 batting average for 1,583 major league games.

Thomas Goes To San Diego Team

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Controversial Duane Thomas, the silent Cowboy, was traded late Monday night by Dallas to the San Diego Chargers in a 2-for-1 National Football League player swap. The Chargers gave up second-year wide receiver Billy Parks and second-year running back Mike Montgomery. Thomas, 6-foot-1 and 205 pounds, missed two team meetings and a practice session Monday, and had been fined by the club earlier in the day. The trade, rumored for weeks, came about 11 p.m., Cowboy president and general manager Tex Schramm said.

The Worry Clinic Need Facts To Allay Worries

Lois is like most intelligent expectant mothers. So send such wives the booklet mentioned below. And help clear up their apprehensions by the specific facts herein. "The truth shall set you free," Jesus stated, and that's also true regarding medicine.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

Case U-550: Lois L., aged 23, is expecting her first baby.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "my husband and I are delighted with the prospect of having our first child.

"But I am uncertain on many points, for my doctor simply tells me not to worry, for everything will be all right.

"Yet I am a great believer in what you call 'specificity' or concrete answers.

"For example, can a mother's fears 'mark' her baby? If not, why not?
"Does the mother's blood circulate in the baby's vessels?
"How long is the usual duration of labor?
"And what can I expect when I arrive at the hospital?"
Maternal Worries
Unanswered questions like those of Lois can cause undue apprehension and thus enlarge the pain of any medical operation.
"Natural childbirth" has gained popularity the past few years.

The women who thus have had a thorough briefing in what to expect, actually need much less anesthesia.

For 35 years I have been answering your specific medical and psychological queries with definite answers, backed with logical facts so you can understand the whys and wherefores.
The unborn infant is fastened to the wall of its mother's womb by the umbilical cord.

But this cord contains no nerves at all!

Thus, any ideas or nervous impulses from the mother's brain cannot get across to the baby!

And if the reverse is obviously true!

The mother's blood also does NOT circulate in the baby's blood vessels, nor vice versa.

But viruses and germs are so tiny they can slip across from the mother's blood and thus ooze into the baby's circulation.

That's why a syphilitic mother can infect her unborn infant with venereal disease, unless she is rigorously treated at the start of her pregnancy.

German measles as well as tobacco toxins and many other chemical poisons, alas, can cross from the mother to the unborn child, sometimes causing deafness, blindness and other birth defects.
Regarding childbirth, the duration of labor with the first infant runs approximately 18 hours.

That may drip to 12 hours or less for Number 2. Why?

Because the first baby acts as a dilating wedge to enlarge the passage through the pelvic canal, so more time is required.

The second infant finds this birth canal already enlarged, so its delivery is usually faster.

When an expectant mother arrives at the hospital, the doctor on duty puts on a rubber glove and examines the neck (cervix) of her womb via the rectum (not the vagina).

For we don't wish to introduce any possible infection in the vagina.

This rectal examination shows how far the normally rigid cervix is dilated and thus indicates about how long it will be before the baby is extruded.

The nurses will also empty the mother's lower bowel via an enema to eliminate any unnecessary obstruction in the pelvic canal.

That's also why the urinary bladder is drained.

For additional data, send for my booklet "Facts About Pregnancy," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents. Send it to all expectant mothers.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, ad-

Opening lead: Ace of ♠
Italy's renowned Blue Team defeated the United States in the finals of the 1972 Bridge Olympiad, June 23-24, in Miami Beach to regain the World's Title which they had relinquished in 1969 when they retired undefeated after winning the championship for nine consecutive years.

After leading through the qualifying rounds which saw a record breaking entry of 39 nations in competition, Italy defeated France in one semi-final match while the United States ousted Canada in the other. In the 88 board final match, Italy got off to a substantial lead in the first half and then the Americans rallied to narrow the margin with only 24 hands remaining. The Italians then performed in a virtually flawless performance to pull away to a final victory margin of 203 International Match Points to 138.

The deal which ignited their final rally is presented today and the bidding is presented at the table where the United States, as represented by the defending World Champion Dallas Aces were seated North and South. South opened the bidding, after three passes with one diamond and Benito Garozzo overcalled as West for Italy with one spade.

North bid two hearts and Pietro Forquet, East, jumped to three spades—which invites partner to carry on but is not forcing.

Garozzo, who he held nothing to spare, persisted to four spades—perhaps expecting that by so doing, he would be placing North under pressure. Conditions of vulnerability did not favor further competition by a passed hand whose partner had failed to act freely over three spades. North was reluctant to sell out however, and his call of four no trump suggested that he had values in all the other suits. East doubled and when South doubled to five diamonds, West doubled as Italy pressed in for the kill.

The ace of spades was opened and ruffed in dummy. The only chance for declarer to make his contract was to find a lightly guarded king of clubs in the East hand. A club was led at trick two and South finessed the jack. West was in with the king and returned another spade which was trumped with the ten of diamonds.

The ace of trumps was led and declarer attempted to reenter his hand with the ace of clubs. East administered a rude jolt by ruffing with the seven of diamonds. He underled his ace of hearts to put West in with the king and obtained a second club ruff. The ace of hearts and king of spades completed the defensive damages. One spade, two hearts, one club, and two ruffs added up to an 1,100 point sting.

At the other table, the first three calls were identical, however the American East jumped directly to four spades and South who was looking at a sure trump trick, doubled. North abided by his partner's decision and against four spades, the defense took one spade, two diamonds and one club to register a 100 point profit.

The total swing on the deal to Italy was 1,200 points which amounted to 15 International Match Points.

Repair Funds For Cathedral

NEW YORK (UPI)—Banker Hoyt Ammidon recently announced that the U.S. campaign for restoration funds for London's St. Paul's Cathedral has raised more than $400,000.

The funds collected in 30 major cities throughout the country will be used to repair the west front of the cathedral, which is in the great danger of collapse because of World War II bombings, weathering, traffic vibrations and pollution.

AMISHMEN DISMANTLE BRIDGE — A Lancaster County (Pa.) contractor and his hired help start dismantling the Pinetown Covered Bridge. The bridge, near Lancaster, was one of several covered bridges swept down-stream by the June flood. The main pieces will be dismantled and marked so the bridge can be put together again where it once stood. (AP Wirephoto)

Suggests Safeguards For Marketing Cards

Stacy J. Evans, Pitt County executive director for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, today reminded farmers of a few ways to safeguard their tobacco marketing cards from misuse. To insure that flue-cured tobacco growers comply under the acreage-pounding program, county ASCS offices issue marketing cards to identify tobacco marketed from each farm. Farmers may file written requests for more than one card. The card shows the total amount of tobacco which the producer can market during that season without paying penalty. A producer must always present his card when he leaves his tobacco at the warehouse. The marketing card remains in the warehouse until the sale is made and the producer settles for his tobacco.

Each grower must make sure that his marketing card is returned to him as soon as he settles for the sale of his tobacco. A grower is also responsible for making sure that the pounds entered on the back of his sales ticket. The difference between the last two entries on the card is the amount of the pounds last sold. Any producer marketing flue-cured tobacco above 100 percent of his farm quota is subject to a marketing quota penalty. Growers should return their marketing cards to the County ASCS Office immediately upon the completion of their marketings, even though the markets may still be open. A marketing card is to be used only for tobacco grown on the farm for which the card was issued.

"When farmers have difficulty with their marketing cards, it's usually because they don't understand the correct procedure. In a small percentage of cases the trouble stems from an attempt to identify tobacco falsely by using someone else's card," Evans said.

TVA Announces Wage Increases

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tennessee Valley Authority wage increases totaling $14.3 million annually and covering 15,000 employees have been announced.

The National Pay Board said Monday pay increases for 5,300 regular operating and maintenance employees are being reduced from an average of 7.2 per cent to 7 per cent.

Earlier, a wage increase of 7.8 per cent for 10,130 construction workers was approved by the federal Construction Industry Stabilization Committee.

When violations do occur, the County ASC Committee is obliged to assess penalties prescribed by law and program regulations," he added. Penalties for tobacco falsely identified include a reduction in the next year's allotment and assessment of heavy marketing quota penalties. In addition, violators may be subject to criminal or civil fraud prosecution.

"Our main concern," Evans said, "is that farmers understand the rules so that they can market all the tobacco they're entitled to market." Any producer of flue-cured tobacco who has a question on use of tobacco marketing cards should call his County ASCS Office or get in touch with a member of his local County ASC Committee.

EX-CHANCELLOR DIES GRAZ, Austria (AP) — Dr. Alfons Gorbach, 74, Austrian chancellor from 1961 to 1964, died Monday after a prolonged illness. Gorbach spent most of the war years in concentration camps and was freed from Dachau by American troops in 1945.

Laird then told the hecklers: "I have a few remarks to make, and if you'll let me finish, then I would be glad to answer your questions." The shouting stopped for a few minutes, then started again. The secretary went on to finish his remarks over the shouting, but much of his speech could not be heard. Taking on questioners, Laird defended the Nixon administration's Vietnam policies and denied there has been intentional bombing of North Vietnam's dikes and dams.

His Guidebook Has Everything

By MICHAEL S. BARRETT
NEW YORK (UPI)—When Mark Altschuler took off on his 51-nation, four-continent tour nearly two years ago he had no idea he would return home to write a guidebook to end all guidebooks.

"Your Passport to Making It Abroad" begins with two brief sentences: "A guidebook for young Americans that goes beyond recommending food and lodging. Everything you need to know about travel in order to avoid social, political and economic hassles."

How do you cross the Laos-Thailand border when "trigger-happy" guards are present?

Sec. Laird Is Heckled

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — About 50 sign-carrying, shouting war protesters booed and heckled Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird at the former Clinton County Air Force Base. Officials identified the demonstrators as students from Wilmington and Antioch colleges who mixed with about 250 Wilmington area civic and business leaders attending a meeting Monday in an auditorium at the base.

Laird stopped here on a tour of defense installations in three states to be briefed on the progress of the conversion of the Clinton County base to a civilian facility. Most of the protesters booed when he was introduced.

The secretary had just started talking when the demonstrators began chanting "Vietnam for the Vietnamese!" and "Stop the bombing!" Others in the audience sought to drown out the shouting with applause, but failed.

Laird then told the hecklers: "I have a few remarks to make, and if you'll let me finish, then I would be glad to answer your questions." The shouting stopped for a few minutes, then started again.

The secretary went on to finish his remarks over the shouting, but much of his speech could not be heard. Taking on questioners, Laird defended the Nixon administration's Vietnam policies and denied there has been intentional bombing of North Vietnam's dikes and dams.

What are your rights if arrested on drug charges? How do you guard the stamp on your letter home from thieves? If you buy a size 10 shoe in America, what size do you ask for in Britain? These are but a few of the questions Altschuler's book tries to answer.

For instance, about stamps. In a section on the small Indonesian state of Bali, Altschuler says:

"Because the price of stamps equals that of a day's pay for many Indonesians, it is just a matter of luck if your mail gets through (because) stamps are usually peeled off the envelope and resold on the black market." The solution, he says, is to see personally that the stamp is canceled before leaving the post office.

Countries Anti-Hippie "The 'suppress-the-hippie' movement is on in most foreign countries," Altschuler says, and nearly all young Americans are suspect. "Almost every American has his own idea about what a hippie is," he writes. "But people throughout the rest of the world know only what Hollywood has told them. If an American 'traveler does not have a GI haircut, shirt and tie, Samsonite luggage and is not staying in the Hilton, he is automatically a hippie."

In an interview, Altschuler, a 26-year-old New Yorker, explained how the book came about.

"I sold everything I had, which wasn't much, and left," he said. "I went around the world backwards—that is to Asia first—and ran into people who were just finishing their journey. Talking to them I learned a lot. They indoctrinated me in that society of world travelers."

Altschuler, a thin, mustachioed man who gave up broadcasting school to travel, said that as he moved closer to Europe, he ran into a growing number of naive young people, many hitchhiking without more than a few dollars in their pockets, who were susceptible to the ways of con men and drug pushers.

"I really got annoyed with the fact that we're being taken as suckers, not only the young travelers but the tourists who filter into the tourist traps," he explained. "I had all this information in my diaries, which I had collected, and the rest was research. I felt there was a need for a real guidebook."

A Year's Research It took Altschuler better than a year to complete his journey through Asia, Australia, the Middle East, North Africa, Eastern Europe and Western Europe, but only a few months to write, sell and revise his book and see it published in time for the summer session. (Published by Robert Speller and Sons; $2.50).

"Altogether the whole trip cost me $3,500," he said. "But now that I know the ropes the trip would cost me $2,500." Charts for each individual country in the back part of the book include visa information, the address for the local tourist office, a recommended mailing address, a money conversion table—including black market rates—and the U.S. addresses for the embassy or mission of that country.

Several selections also include commentary on what hassles one might expect to find once inside the country. Notes on local laws and black-marketeering and sometimes even comment on the latest rumor, true or false.

Taken as a whole, the book would seem a good investment for young tourists—hippie or otherwise. Those in the $5-a-day class will not find a good restaurant or pension listed in Altschuler's manual, but it might keep them out of trouble and help them avoid some of the tiresome inconveniences that all travelers—especially the young-go through each year.

Reunion To Be In August

Former members of the 69th Infantry Division, the 661st Tank Destroyer Battalion and the 77th Tank Battalion of World War II will have their 25th reunion in August.

Loar L. Quickle, chairman of the board of the 69th Infantry Division Association, said that the reunion will be held Aug. 17, 18, 19 and 20 at the Lake Wright Motor Hotel in Virginia Beach, Va.

The four day meeting in Virginia Beach, Quickle reported, will begin with a family get together on Aug. 17 and an "Early Bird" dinner. On the 18th the group will tour the Fort Story Area in Norfolk and take a tour of the bay and ocean area aboard a troop carrier landing craft. Other activities are planned for the 19th and 20th.

Quickle said that the reunions are held annually for memorial services to buddies lost in action, to provide fellowship, and to provide scholarships for sons and daughters of former division members. He added that former members are urged to write to Clarence Marshall, 101 Stephen Street, New Kensington, Pa. 15068 for further details.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

THIS SPLIT-LEVEL HOME has a two-car garage compactly under the living room. The three bedrooms are on their own separate level, away from the noisy parts of the house. All bedroom closets are located to take up the least possible usable wall space. On the lower floor a spare room could be used as a hobby room or guest bedroom. The kitchen is conveniently between the large dining room and the dinette. There are 1,769 square feet on the two higher levels and 667 square feet on the lower. The architect is Herman H. York, 90-04 161 St. Jamaica, N. Y. 11432, and he may be contacted for information about the plan, HA731Y.

LAND FOR PARK CHARLOTTE (AP) — Mecklenburg County has been given 136 acres of land near the South Carolina border for development of a new Lake Wylie park.

The surprising Maverick.

It's a comfortable, 6-cylinder American compact that's actually priced below the Volkswagen 113.

If you can afford a Volkswagen 113 — or almost any little import — you can afford a Maverick. Look:

FORD MAVERICK	2-door	6-cylinder	$2,140.*
VW 113 (Super Beetle)	2-door	4-cylinder	$2,159.*
TOYOTA COROLLA 1600	2-door	4-cylinder	$2,109.*
DATSUN PL 510	2-door	4-cylinder	$2,306.*

*Manufacturer's suggested retail price for 2-door models. Excludes dealer preparation charges, if any, destination charges, title and taxes.

NOTE: People ask us how we can afford to offer a roomy, 6-cylinder compact at about the same price as the little imports. First, we've been making small cars since 1908. Experience helps. Second, we haven't changed Maverick — except for mechanical improvements — since we first introduced it. That kind of continuity helps to control costs. Third, recent currency revaluations and devaluations have helped restore the competitive stance of American manufacturers.

Most little imports give you 4-cylinder engines. Maverick gives you a 6-cylinder engine. It's smooth. It's reliable. It lets you accelerate into turnpike traffic with confidence and hold your own on steep hills. And it delivers surprisingly good gas mileage.

A good car for long trips. Maverick's rear track is 2.9" wider than Volkswagen's. Its wheelbase is 7.7" longer. There's a bit more weight, too. By themselves, these differences aren't very big — but they can add up to a big difference in the way Maverick drives and handles the open road. Better idea for safety... buckle up!

Ample room inside. Maverick's front seat, for example: over 8" more shoulder room than Volkswagen 113. There's no wasted space inside Maverick. At the same time, none of that small-car crowded feeling.

Maintenance: Even simpler, more convenient than the little imports.

VW, for example, recommends normal service every 3000 miles or three months, whichever comes first. On Maverick, it's 6000 miles or six months. So Maverick's recommended service interval is twice as long as Volkswagen's. We also designed Maverick to be a simple machine to care for. In fact, we've even prepared a manual which tells you how to do many maintenance jobs yourself. One more convenience: there are over 5,600 Ford dealers in the country. VW has about 1,100.

U.S. Army Cutback Concedes Soviet Large Lead

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has conceded Russia a wide lead in ground combat forces by cutting the U.S. Army to its smallest size in nearly a generation.

A drastic Army cutback results from two fundamental decisions by the Nixon administration to:

—Disengage from future overseas involvement of U.S. ground troops, except in defense of Western Europe.

—End the draft next year, if possible, and rely on volunteers to fill the ranks.

Both these Nixon policies, marking a turnaround from traditional post-World War II attitudes, were spurred by widespread reaction against the long Vietnam war.

Adding to concern at the Pentagon is growing Soviet naval and missile capability. The Soviets have been outbuilding the U.S. Navy by a margin of 2 to 1 in recent years and are reported on the verge of a new surge. The missile race also is continuing, despite the new agreement to limit strategic arms. The emphasis will shift to increased numbers of warheads and their improvement.

If the Democrats win the White House in November, slashes in U.S. combat power—land, sea and air—could bite even deeper.

Military leaders express concern that the pendulum may swing so far that the country might be caught dangerously short if a major emergency should arise.

The Army fell to about 801,000 men in May, lowest since the eve of the Korean War 22 years ago.

Adding the Marine Corps' 196,000 men, the total of U.S. ground combat troops reaches just under 1 million.

That is less than half the 2.2 million Russian soldiers assigned to ground fighting forces.

Because of severe cutbacks—about 340,000 men in the past year alone—only one of seven home-based U.S. Army divisions is in ready-to-go shape. These divisions form the strategic pool from which the United States would draw in a sudden international crisis.

Three of these divisions are earmarked to reinforce the 7th Army in Europe if the Russians should attack or seriously threaten, but it is doubtful they could meet the present requirement to deploy overseas within 30 days.

For the long haul, the Nixon administration is counting on about 700,000 National Guardsmen and Reserves to reinforce the shrinking regular Army and the Marine Corps in time of urgent need. But the Guard and Reserve are having trouble keeping up their strength.

Although Nixon policy is to avoid a further "policeman of the world" mission for U.S. forces, the United States maintains strong commitments to NATO and to South Korea. For that reason, the five U.S. Army divisions assigned to NATO and one division in South Korea have top priority in seasoned manpower and modern equipment.

Europe is the only place where U.S. ground troops directly face the Soviet Army. There, 185,000 of the U.S. 7th Army form the core of NATO's defense. American armed strength in Europe totals about 300,000, including Air Force, support and other elements.

The plan is for allied forces to join in defending Western Europe against any Soviet-Warsaw Pact thrust.

If all the allies lived up to their commitments, in a crunch they and the United States could muster about 780,000 men in about 26 divisions and equivalents in the first stage.

On the other side, according to U.S. analyses, Russia and her Warsaw pact allies — East Germany, Poland and Czechoslovakia — would have immediately available about 925,000 men in some 65 divisions. Western divisions are bigger than those in the Soviet bloc.

Stressing armor, the Russians and their allies can send about 14,000 tanks against Western Europe. NATO allies in the central region could counter with about 7,000 tanks, 1,500 of them American.

To offset somewhat the Russian edge in armor, the United States is equipping its units with the new TOW wire-guided antitank missile and will buy another tank-killing weapon called Dragon for its infantry platoons.

The United States is way ahead of the Russians in helicopters. The army has been experimenting with a new type of division that would combine tanks and missile-firing helicopters to duel Soviet armor.

But, while the Army scored impressively in Vietnam with helicopters as gunships and troop-carriers, there are skeptics who question whether the chopper can live in the European battlefield environment. These skeptics say the Russians would bring sophisticated anti-aircraft missiles into play.

As for tactical air power, it is the judgment of most American specialists that Soviet and Warsaw Pact air forces clearly surpass the NATO allies in the number of planes in the region where battle would be joined.

According to one estimate the Communist bloc enjoys about a 2,900-to-2,100 airplane advantage there.

Geography gives the Russians a huge plus, enabling them to bring major reinforcements from Western Russia.

According to U.S. Intelligence, the Soviets have 60 divisions in European Russia, 20 of them in full fighting readiness and the rest near it.

While mobilization could raise allied strength in the central region by several hundred thousand men, important reinforcements would come from the United States. These reinforcements, supplies and equipment would have to travel by air and sea across the Atlantic.

Therefore, a successful U.S. reinforcement would require that allied forces hold the line against Russian armor and motorized infantry until the flow of fresh American troops and materiel could arrive. It also would require that the U.S. and allied navies check the growing Soviet Navy, whose hundreds of submarines and missile-firing destroyers and cruisers would be going their utmost to sink American supply ships.

About 45 of the Soviet Union's 160 Army divisions have been concentrated along the Chinese border.

But, despite the feud between the Communist giants, Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird has said, "The capability of Soviet military forces opposite NATO has not been reduced."

Many U.S. military planners believe the only way the allies could stem a major onslaught into Western Europe would be to resort to tactical nuclear weapons.

The planners are far from happy at such a prospect, because they are aware that once tactical nuclear weapons start exploding, there is strong likelihood of escalation into all-out nuclear war.

In any event, the United States has positioned in Western Europe some 7,000 nuclear warheads which would be delivered by about 2,250 fighter bombers, bombardment missiles, and artillery.

The Russians also have formidable tactical nuclear power, including about 700 medium and intermediate-range ballistic missiles, some 850 tactical surface-to-surface missiles assigned to their ground forces, plus about 1,800 medium and light bombers and fighter-bombers.

Weighing the balance between U.S. and Soviet theater nuclear weapons, Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, has said, "I would judge that the U.S. is at least the equal of the Soviet Union and perhaps the superior."

The complex issue of curbing tactical nuclear weapons was sidestepped during the long U.S.-Soviet negotiations that led to a first-stage agreement to limit numbers of strategic arms. It may come up in follow-on talks.

Meanwhile, the United States is trying to overcome the Soviet conventional firepower bulge with better new weapons. And it is encouraging reluctant European allies to upgrade their forces.

Like the other U.S. armed services, the Army has had a rough time with Congress because of cost runaways.

After the Army failed to bring down the price of a proposed new main battle tank from about $650,000 per machine, Congress killed the project.

So the Army is improving its current best tanks, the M60, and it is buying a missile-firing version of the M60.

But the Russians are not standing still either. U.S. officials report they are developing two new tanks and working on new high fragmentation heavy artillery shells.

U.S. Air Force and Navy chiefs are urging the Pentagon to push hard for the new F14 and F15 fighters, which they argue are essential to controlling the air over land and sea battles.

Moorer claims both the F14 and F15 will be "distinctly superior to any tactical aircraft the Soviets are likely to deploy in the 1970s."

But, as in the case of other weapons, congressional resistance is stiffening because the prices are so high—about $10 million per F15 and $16.8 million for each F14.

Some senators insist that the tried and proven F4 Phantom will be adequate for many years to come and that more could be bought for only about $4 million apiece. But military leaders contend the F4 will be outclassed by advanced Russian fighters.

While this debate grows, the Russians are retiring their older MIG jet fighters and replacing them with new models.

As a result of the Vietnam air war, the United States has developed and proved revolutionary new weapons such as laser-guided bombs and perfected devices for foiling enemy radar defenses.

This probably puts the U.S. Air Force and Navy air arm ahead of the Russians in certain significant hardware areas.

The dog, owned by the Ronald Landers family, likes nothing better than to swim or jump to the platform for a zip along the Seneca River, but she's also fond of hitching rides on snowmobiles and farm tractors, too.
