Senate's End-The-War Vote Still Facing Tests

By JOHN LENGEL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has voted a second time to halt U.S. combat operations in Indochina, but the battle to make it stick is far from over. The amendment by Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., was passed Wednesday night in a series of eight intricate, hard-fought votes. The tally on the key test was 49 to 47.

Democratic Sen. Ernest F. Hollings voted for the amendment, and his colleague from South Carolina, Republican Strom Thurmond, voted against.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. voted against the amendment. His fellow Democrat from North Carolina, B. Everett Jordan, was not listed as voting.

Attached to a $20.5-billion Pentagon procurement bill, the amendment provides for U.S. withdrawal from Indochina, except Thailand, within four months if Hanoi releases American prisoners and accounts for GIs missing in action. The measure would cut off funds for all war operations except the amount required for withdrawal and the protection of withdrawing forces.

An amendment by Sen. George Aiken, R-Vt., to incorporate President Nixon's conditions for withdrawal from Vietnam was adopted at one point 51 to 47, but was replaced later with Brooke's measure.

Nixon announced support for Aiken's amendment in a telephone call to the senator Wednesday afternoon, marking the first outward endorsement by the White House of any end-the-war language. The bill itself eventually carried 92 to 5, unlike the foreign-military-aid bill which the Senate killed last week after a similar end-the-war amendment was attached to it.

However, the House version of the procurement bill has no end-the-war provision. A conference between the Armed Service committees of both chambers could kill it.

Sen. James Allen, D-Ala., raised another possibility: simply keeping the bill in conference without acting at all, to give Nixon more time to negotiate a settlement with the North Vietnamese.

For this reason, he said, "there is a good chance it won't be voted on finally until after the election."

The bill itself was largely a victory for the Pentagon in its requests for weaponry programs. "The old pattern is still alive," said Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield. "We're just acquiescing to the Defense Department in anything it wants. We're raising questions, but not accomplishing much."

In major floor votes over eight days of debate, the Senate declined to cut future Pentagon spending across the board by $4 billion, and declined to end the draft.

The Senate sustained the administration's requested speed-up in the $13.5-billion Trident submarine program, and voted a fourth nuclear-powered, $1-billion aircraft carrier for the Navy.

Unlimited military credit to Israel was put in the bill as was a program costing $10 billion over the years allowing retired servicemen to recompute their retirement pay.

Emergency Decree In British Strike

LONDON (AP) — The British government assumed emergency powers today to force open the nation's strike-bound ports and bring in urgently needed food supplies.

Queen Elizabeth II signed a proclamation of a state of national emergency aboard the royal yacht Britannia, cruising off the west coast of Scotland.

The state of emergency will go into effect at midnight. Prime Minister Edward Heath prepared to force the ports open after an assessment of the nation's dwindling supplies of food for both people and animals. The threat to farm animals appeared the most serious. The emergency powers will enable the administration to bring in troops to unload more than 500 freighters tied up in the ports.

Stocks of animal foodstuffs "are running very low and we're very worried," a spokesman for the National Farmers Union told newsmen.

Some farmers have only three days supply left, he said. "Poultry and pigs will be hit first—they depend on the highprotein feed" which is mainly imported. "But dairy cattle need it, too."

It is the fourth time the Conservative government declared a state of emergency because of labor troubles since taking office in June 1970.

South Viet Marines In House-To-House Fight

SAIGON (AP) — More than 2,000 South Vietnamese marines assaulted the western half of Quang Tri City today, but they ran into house to house fighting and heavy North Vietnamese artillery fire.

American jet pilots reported destroying an ammunition depot on the outskirts of the devastated town so big there were more than 300 secondary explosions and 14 fires.

"It looked like a big fireworks display," one pilot said. Associated Press correspondent Holger Jensen reported from Quang Tri that south Vietnamese tank fire leveled the last few buildings still standing outside the Citadel in the country's northernmost provincial capital, which the North Vietnamese captured on May 1.

Despite earlier claims by the South Vietnamese government that its forces had recaptured most of Quang Tri, the North Vietnamese still hold the western part and the 50-acre walled Citadel in the heart of the city. The Marines last week replaced a brigade of some 2,000 paratroopers who suffered heavy losses in an unsuccessful attempt to storm the Citadel. A U.S. adviser indicated that the marines would try to starve the North Vietnamese out of the Citadel.

Bowles, Holshouser To Discuss Spending Curbs

RALEIGH (AP) — Managers for gubernatorial candidates Jim Holshouser and Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles are expected to meet soon to negotiate a limitation on campaign spending.

Republican Holshouser cleared the way for the negotiations Wednesday when he agreed for Gene Anderson, his manager, to meet with Jake Froelich, Bowles' manager.

Such an agreement would be a first for North Carolina politics. Originally, Holshouser had proposed a limit of $440,000 for each candidate, coupled with efforts to obtain free television time for debates and provisions for disclosure of the candidates' personal financial status.

While declining to discuss any details, Bowles offered the "one-to-one" negotiations by managers Tuesday and insisted that the meeting be conducted in secret.

"I am confident that our campaign managers can work out the details within the next week, assuming that both parties are acting in good faith," Holshouser told a news conference Wednesday.

Holshouser pointed out, however, that Bowles did not respond to his proposals for financial disclosures and televised debates. "I feel confident that those can be worked out in the same framework," the Republican stated.

He also called on Bowles to name quickly two representatives to a proposed commission that would monitor campaign spending. Holshouser said Worth Coltrane, a former candidate for North Carolina attorney general, and Charlotte banking executive Hugh Morton Jr. would represent him.

Unlimited military credit to Israel was put in the bill as was a program costing $10 billion over the years allowing retired servicemen to recompute their retirement pay.

Leaders Of Egypt, Libya Agree To Unite Countries

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The leaders of Egypt and Libya announced plans Wednesday night to unite their adjoining countries and set Sept. 1, 1973, as the target date.

A joint communique was broadcast by Cairo and Benghazi radio stations following a three-day meeting in Libya between President Anwar Sadat of Egypt and Col. Muammar Kadafi, chairman of Libya's ruling Revolutionary Command Council. It said the two leaders reached "a historic decision" to establish a "unified political leadership" that will work out a plan for union.

Egypt and Libya already are linked in the seven-month-old Federation of Arab Republics, with Syria as the third partner. A Libyan-Egyptian delegation was sent to Damascus to inform President Hafez el Assad of the agreement by Sadat and Kadafi.

Assad said he was following the talks "with happiness and satisfaction." Egypt's Middle East News Agency reported. But the right-wing Beirut newspaper Hayat reported that the leftist Syrian regime was upset by Sadat's recent expulsion of Soviet advisers and did not want the Egyptians to worsen relations with the Russians by moving closer to Kadafi, a militant anticommunist.

In an earlier attempt at Arab unity, the late President Gamal Abdel Nasser founded the United Arab Republic with Syria in 1958. It collapsed in September 1961 after a coup in Syria.

The Sadat-Kadafi communique in its preamble underscored the Arab struggle with Israel. It said: "The imperialist and Zionist challenge, symbolized by the 1967 aggression and the attempts by U.S. imperialism and world Zionism to make it an accomplished fact, cannot be met, whatever help we get from our friends, unless Arabs unite behind Egypt, the spearhead of the confrontation."

Sadat and Kadafi agreed to set up seven joint committees to write a constitution.

Tobacco Prices Continue High

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — Prices continued to climb to new record highs in Wednesday's flue-cured tobacco auctions on the South Carolina and Border North Carolina Belt.

The Federal-State Market News Service report, prices by grades were steady to $1 higher than previous record averages set Tuesday.

The reporting service said three-fourths of Wednesday's offerings brought from $86 to $87 per hundred pounds. Volume continued heavy. South Carolina markets sold 5,248,081 pounds for an $85.75 average, while North Carolina markets sold 4,340,180 pounds for an average of $85.51.

Tuesday's record combines figures included 8.9 million pounds sold for an average of $85.26, up 53 cents from Monday's record. Season sales reached 46.4 million pounds for an average of $83.08.

Tuesday sales to the Stabilization Corp. under the government price support program dropped to 0.2 per cent of sales stabilization receipts for the season are a mere 1.8 per cent of sales.

Abandons Plan

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Linda Christine Jones, the pretty British bookkeeper who advertised for a husband so she could remain in the United States, said through an attorney today she has given up the plan.

Attorney Lacy Hair said Miss Jones has given up on the idea of a contrived marriage, but not on her desire to remain in this country. She did not appear when Hair made the statement, preferring the seclusion she has maintained since making her open marriage proposal.

Hair said it was possible she would return to England and make an effort to qualify for immigration under the U.S. quota system.

Miss Jones told a Fayetteville newspaper last week she would like to marry an American to avoid being returned to England when her visa expired this month. She said the marriage would be in name only, and that she would file for a divorce when her American status was assured.

N.C. Economy Moved Up On Broad Front In June

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's economy moved upward on a broad front during June, according to economists of Wachovia Bank and Trust Co.

The bank reported that its North Carolina Business Index rose at an annual rate of 7.2 per cent during the month to a record high level of 122.8 per cent in comparison to a 1967 base period.

Employment rises, construction activity, new car sales, manufacturing activity, consumer spending all combined "to reinforce the conclusion that the state's economy is now well launched on an expansionary course," the economists stated.

The developments, they said, "give rise to an optimistic forecast of continued economic growth expansion for the state's economy during the last half of the year."

The state's total non-farm employment registered the biggest jump since January with manufacturing employment rising for the eighth consecutive month. Jobs continued to increase in the furniture, chemical and paper industries while employment in tobacco, textiles and food products industries remained stable.

Employment in trade continued at a high level during the month while there were gains in jobs in the service industries and government.

North Carolina's unemployment rate was unchanged at 3.2 per cent during June and was "near the historically low levels achieved during the height of the business expansion of the 60's," the economists reported.

Man-hours worked rose at an annual rate of 7.2 per cent during the month and were 5.2 per cent ahead of last year's level. The average manufacturing workweek was unchanged at May's level of 40.6 hours.

As "major indicators of the restoration of economic wellbeing in the state," the economists cited recent advances in total personal income of between 7 and 8 per cent and an 8 per cent gain in manufacturing wages as compared with a year ago.

Wachovia reported that new car sales during June were at the highest level of any month on record except November of 1971.

MISS PRINCESS ANNE WILLIAMS

Miss Williams To Make Debut

DURHAM — Miss Princess Anne Williams, (Penny), daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edward Sutherland Williams of Darwin Road, Hope Valley, will make her debut at the Terpsichorean Ball on Sept. 8 in Raleigh.

Miss Williams is the granddaughter of Mrs. Novella Moye Williams of Greenville.

She is presently serving as a counselor at Tumbling Waters Camp for Girls near Clayton, Ga., where she is an instructor of horseback riding.

While a member of the Triangle Hunt Club during her junior and senior years in high school, her own horse won ribbons in various horse shows.

Miss Williams is looking forward to spending some of her vacation at the family cottage at Kerr Lake, where she will be boating, water skiing, swimming and fishing.

Her hobbies are painting, photography, tennis, music, dancing, ice skating and water skiing.

In September, she will be a member of the sophomore class at Stephens College, Missouri, where she is majoring in art and biology.

"The result was the biggest caviar party in any airport in the world," she said.

How Should Mother Sign Her Letters?

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were divorced six years ago. We had a son who now lives with his father and stepmother. [He is 8 years old.] I went to see the boy last summer, and his stepmother suggested that I write to him now that he is old enough to write.

I signed my first letter "Mom" altho he calls his stepmother that. They told him while I was visiting that I was his real mother.

Soon I received a very nasty letter from the boy's father telling me not to sign "Mom" to my letters anymore.

What should I do?

MOM

DEAR MOM: Since he knows that you are his real mother, I suggest that you sign your letters, "Mother." [Almost anything but "Mom" will do.]

DEAR ABBY: I am male, 46, married, and the father of four children. My wife and I have been married for 25 years, and we hope to be married for at least 25 more.

Abby, so often I read letters in your column from distraught wives and husbands [mostly wives] who have just learned that their spouse has been "unfaithful." Then they describe how "hurt" they are, and wonder if they can ever "forgive" him.

Abby, how stupid can these people be? I think I speak for 99.9 per cent of all red-blooded American men when I say I'd hate to be married for 50 years and never have sex with a woman other than my wife.

I am a devoted husband, I love my wife, and nothing will change that. And having sex away from home is not being "unfaithful" to her. It doesn't take anything away from our home life. If anything, it adds a little spice, and at our ages we can use some. My wife enjoys a change once in a while, too. We've even talked about it. It isn't the kind of sex which involves love. It's purely a physical desire satisfied. It's like a good game of golf or tennis.

I am good to my wife and family. I deprive them of nothing. I don't squander my money on other women. I don't rent them apartments or buy them gifts. If I see another woman it's because I enjoy her and she enjoys me. Now, Abby, you tell me, who is hurt?

HAPPY AT HOME

DEAR HAPPY: In your case, nobody. But not everyone shares your [and your wife's] attitude about sex. To some, sex without love is hollow, cheap, and meaningless. And what assurance have you that while you're gathering "a little spice" one of your playmates won't become emotionally involved with you? Or you with her? It's happened, you know, and there are a lot of broken hearts and broken homes to prove it. Better arrange a good game of golf or tennis. The stakes aren't as high.

DEAR ABBY: My sister-in-law recently invited me and some other women over to see her new home.

I had already sent her a very nice housegift, but I never like to go anywhere empty-handed, so I brought her a box of my favorite chocolates, which I know she likes, too.

When I arrived I handed it to her. She thanked me for it and put it aside. A while later I hinted that I wished she'd open the candy. She ignored the hint. Finally I said, "Why don't you open my candy and pass it around?"

She said, "I'm serving a nice snack. I'm saving the candy for later."

After the snack, I said, "Well, is it late enough to open my candy?"

She laughed and said, "It's not YOUR candy. It's MINE. And I prefer not to open it right now."

I let the matter drop. Tell me, was she rude or not? Wasn't the candy mine? I brought it.

ANNOYED

DEAR ANNOYED: The candy was yours until you gave it to her. Then it became hers. After she ignored your hints you should have given up.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "NOWHERE TO TURN": Yes, a 12-year-old girl most certainly CAN become pregnant. If you positively refuse to go to your parents, please call your local PLANNED PARENTHOOD office and tell them that ABBY promised they would counsel you.

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer
A delightful summer drink that can also double for dessert is the shurb, a 19th century concoction that won plaudits from author William Makepeace Thackeray.

This union of sweetened fruit juices and wine or liquors cooling, not filling and easy to make. It also is an excellent refresher to mix for yourself on the spur of the moment or to prepare in advance for a party. In fact the concoction that earned Thackeray's endorsement as "the best drink that ever was," should draw compliments from 20th century sippers.

In the early days shurb was aged in glass or wood containers, then strained and served on festive occasions. In the era before modern refrigeration, one of the advantages of shurb as a punch was that it kept well the year round because of its alcohol content.

An 1831 cookbook published in Virginia promised that its cherry shurb "will keep all summer in a dry, cool place, and is delicious mixed with water."

There has been speculation that the name shurb indicated that the drink was first consumed at garden parties or that the original fruit used was grown on the bush. But the most plausible explanation seems to be that it is derived from the Arab word Sharab meaning "drink." This is also the root of the word sherbert.

Almost and kind of fruit can be used to make shurb, and in the early days it was often made with a rum base. An 1836 recipe for shurb declared "The shurb is indifferent unless the rum is good."

In making shurb, one should pre-chill as many of the ingredients as possible. Put the fruit of your choice through a blender or juicer. If a blender is used, strain the juice to remove all solid fibers. As a sweetener you can use a simple syrup, fruit jellies or bottled syrups. Or you can drain the juice from frozen or canned fruits, if the flavor is compatible with the fresh fruit used. The ripeness of the fruit will determine the amount of sweetener that should be added.

Shurb should be served in a chilled pitcher, carafe or large brandy inhaler. Smother the drink in crushed ice like a mint julep. Clear glass shows off the bright hues of the strawberry, grape, plum cherry or other fruit juices, used. To round out the drink, fill each individual glass with carbonated water or champagne, also icy cold. Garnish the creation with mint sprigs, whole berries or fruit slices that go well with the drink.

Here is a shurb recipe that should brighten a drowsy summer afternoon:

RASPBERRY SHRUB
3 cups fresh raspberries
1 cup raspberry jelly
8 ounces raspberry liqueur
6 ounces cognac
6 ounces benedictine and brandy
Juice of 3 lemons

Remove stems from the fresh raspberries, put through blender with the jelly and strain. Return to blender, add other ingredients and blend well. Pour into large container and refrigerate until ready to serve. After pouring into individual glasses, add champagne at last minute to taste. Garnish with unstemmed raspberries. Serves 10 to 12 person

Barbara Eagleton Happy The Ordeal Has Ended

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — When it was all over, Secret Service men dismissed and vice-presidential campaign plans but a bittersweet memory, Barbara Ann Eagleton said she couldn't care less if her husband never runs for public office again.

"By Sunday I was a basket case," she said. "You lose so much privacy way up there."
Mrs. Eagleton, wife of Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton who saw his career peak and plummet in one short week, said in an interview that she was relieved when he and Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern announced Eagleton would withdraw from the ticket.

"He felt the same way I did," Mrs. Eagleton said of her husband's comments to her after the dramatic press conference Monday night. "I was on the phone when he got home. He came over and kissed me. He was sort of philosophical about it. He knew if George McGovern thought this was the best course to take, then it was fine with him."

Mrs. Eagleton said she was neither depressed nor disappointed by the decision that made her husband the only American ever to accept and then reject a major-party vice-presidential nomination.

"I was hoping this would be the decision they'd come to, frankly," she said. "I think a presidential election is too important to spend three months talking about what happened six years ago."
Curling her bare feet under her in an easy chair in the living room of their two-story colonial-style house in Chevy Chase, Md., Mrs. Eagleton said of the week's events: "It was kind of like a dream where I kept thinking, 'This is all going to be over with in a couple of weeks, I know.'"

Then, running a hand through her streaky blonde hair, she said with an ironic chuckle,

"Well, I was right ..."

"The reaction in California was great," she said, referring to the whirlwind campaign swing that reached from Missouri to Honolulu right after Eagleton disclosed July 25 that he had been hospitalized three times between 1960 and 1966 for psychiatric treatment, including electric-shock therapy.
"But when I got back and started reading the newspapers and saw what was going on the tube, I said, 'My God, this is bad, really bad.' I was surprised that it had become what I used to call lightly a 'cause celebre.'"

Mrs. Eagleton, 39, said she was worried about the reaction of their 13-year-old son Terry who was away at camp when the news broke. Before he had left, Mrs. Eagleton said, she explained to him that during an election year, politics can be rough on the people involved.

A day and a half after the final press conference, Mrs.

Eagleton said, he called her son to explain why his father was no longer the vice-presidential nominee.

"I said, 'Dad was sick, as you know and I told you about. It seems to have become somewhat of a cause celebre now. He said 'why?' and I said, 'well, I guess the American people are not willing to accept mental illness in their elected officials.'"

Christin, their lively, blonde 9-year-old dubbed "Dynamo II" by the Secret Service, "hasn't reacted at all," her mother said.

"Everyone asks how did I stand it. How was I so cool?" Mrs. Eagleton said. "My only response is that obviously I hadn't been sitting around being waited on all my life. We've all had problems to deal with. And every time you deal with one, and it's behind you, you're better able to cope."
"So the news of Tom's health that came as a shock to everyone was hardly a shock to me.

I've already been there. It was horrendous—in 1966, but it isn't now."

And their future?
"I would hope he would want to continue in the Senate. That's how I've always felt. In the Senate you can go up, up, up. You can go sideways. You can do lots of things, you know. To me, that's the greatest job in the world."
"But that's me. That's not Tom."

Club Sponsoring Carnegie Course

Les Garner, president of the newly chartered University City Kiwanis Club in Greenville, has announced that his Club will sponsor the Dale Carnegie Course now being formed for residents of the Greenville area.

A free demonstration meeting of the course is scheduled for Monday night, at 8:02 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church located in Downtown Greenville. The public is invited to attend.

The Dale Carnegie Course, since it was founded in 1912, has graduated over one and a half million people from all walks of life in 23 foreign countries and every State in the United States. At this time more than 80,000 students a year join Carnegie classes, making it the world's largest adult training organization for individuals and company personnel, who are looking for ways to gain additional self confidence, overcome the fear of speaking in public, controlling tension and worry, better human relations and other leadership traits which are important to more successful living in today's world.

The Free Demonstration Meeting Monday evening at Jarvis Methodist Church is designed to "show and tell" how Dale Carnegie training helps its participants get from where they are to where they want to be.

Hotels See Less Demand

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Hotelmen say there's plenty of room in the inns for delegates coming to the Republican National Convention.

Edwin Dean, executive director of the South Florida Hotel and Motel Association, said Wednesday the deadline for guests to pay $75-a-room deposits passed midnight Tuesday with only 7,500 rooms reserved. GOP officials put the figure closer to 8,500.

Hotelmen and party officials said 15,000 rooms had been requested.

The drop in hotel reservations was blamed in part on the predictability of the GOP gathering since President Nixon and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, his chosen running mate, have the nominations sewed up.

"We don't blame the Republicans," Dean said. "We're glad they chose Miami Beach and we hope they have a successful convention. But lacking a contest, there's no reason for many people to come who might have otherwise."

Reservists Die In Jeep Wreck

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Two Marine reservists on summer training at nearby Camp Lejeune were killed Wednesday when their Jeep collided with a tractor-trailer truck.

They were identified as Gunnery Sgt. Burton A. Robinson, 33, of Amsterdam, N.Y., and Maj. Raymond H. Bennett, 37, of Columbus, Ohio.

They had been returning to Camp Lejeune from a field exercise in the Croatan National Forest.

Care Assures Better Service

NEW YORK (UPI)—Care, cleaning and operation of heating pads or electric blankets include: keeping heating pad or blanket dry; not bending or folding more than necessary (can break heating elements); place heating pad in a pillow case or keep in cover provided to protect it; never put pins through heating pad or blanket as pins may short circuit the heating coils or break them; never store pad in folded position.

The advice is from Cornell University Extension Bulletin 1061, titled "The Care and Simple Repair of Household Equipment."

Some Would Shun Association

No doubt soon Sen. George McGovern will announce a new vice presidential running mate with a great flourish.

In the meantime, however, we can be sure a great deal of behind the scenes maneuvering is going on to persuade some prominent Democrat to take the place left vacant by the resignation of Sen. Tom Eagleton.

It is certain that Sen. Eagleton was not the first choice before he was nominated. We may never know, but probably other potential candidates turned the chance down.

At this point those who would make acceptable candidates to run with Sen. McGovern are going to be even more leery of associating themselves with him on the ticket.

After the party-shaking affair which led to the resignation of Sen. Eagleton, the McGovern forces are having to look for a powerful and popular Democrat to join him on the ticket. Since winning seems so remote at this point, their most persuasive point has to be that as a loyal Democrat the potential vice presidential candidate should join Sen. McGovern on the ticket.

Of course someone will accept the vice presidential nomination of the Democratic party and hopefully it will be a man or woman of high calibre. Certainly it is requiring all the persuasion that Sen. McGovern can muster to bring a suitable person on the ticket.

A Promise Of Change In Air

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — The winds of tomorrow are stirring in North Carolina's late summer weather.

As certain as autumn change is coming for the state. Shifting population patterns and evolving life styles are altering where people live and the services they demand. Government, at every level, is challenged vehicle for citizen involvement in shaping the future.

Its first report is due next November, setting forth its specific recommendations relating to economic, health, learning and environmental concerns of the state. What it has to say could have bearing on legislation proposed to the '73 General Assembly.

Local In-Put Invited
One objective of the current conferences is to stimulate the interest and in-put of counties and cities for the regional concept. Without their commitment and follow-through, the regional system could be ineffective at best and an impediment to progress at worst.

Regionalism is the last, best chance for local governments to cope with the climate of change, said John T. Morrissey, executive director of the N.C. Association of County Commissioners.

By joining hands, he explained, they can share the functions which must be performed to meet the needs of people in a society where rural and urban lines are blurring.

"Some people think we have too many counties," he observed. "They say some of them are too small to be efficient, and lack to resources to give adequate services."

Functional Consolidation
"We don't have to hazard the difficulties of political consolidation if we can band together for regional delivery of services and for planning to meet the problems we see ahead."

Not all county officials see the promise described by Morrissey. They fear the peril of a level of non-elective bureaucracy, moving government another step away from the voters.

It can happen, Morrissey agreed, but only if local officials pass up their opportunity for constructive involvement.

"Hopefully, regionalism can be instrument of local governments and not just a tool of the state," he added. Citizen vigilance is the certain preventive for unresponsive government, whether local or regional. Their involvement, through elected officials and on their own, also is essential for planning that can mean a better future.

"We cannot plan for people, as too many governmental bureaucrats are prone to do," said Gov. Scott.

"We must plan with people, so that their ideas and wishes become an integral part of the total process."

George Wallace Wise In Foregoing Contest

Following the tragic shooting at Laurel, Md., Gov. George C. Wallace has made a wise decision to forego an independent presidential race this year.

Gov. Wallace said the decision was being made on the advice of his physicians. It is likely that his energies in the next few months will be directed to the rehabilitation program he must undergo to live with his disability.

Following such a shattering personal experience, Gov. Wallace made a brave appearance before the Democratic National Convention. Now he has made another difficult decision and we believe he has followed the best course.

Peking Fears U.S. Pullback

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Communist China is privately but very forcefully expressing alarm to official American visitors that any unilateral U.S. decision to withdraw troops from Europe or reduce nuclear arms could condemn the world to the domination of the Soviet Union.

With the subtle indirection that marks Chinese diplomacy, Peking is frantically sending out signals designed to safeguard its huge investment in the reelection of Richard M. Nixon.

Those signals are heard loudest in Western Europe. A senior Chinese diplomat in the Paris embassy has spent six months travelling to European capitals warning that the Russians cannot be trusted on disarmament or troop reductions in Europe.

The staggering cost of Peking's investment in Mr. Nixon has only recently become clear with published reports (based on conversations with Mao Tse-tung himself) that Mao's late heir-apparent, Lin Piao, organized a 1971 assassination conspiracy against Mao. Lin Piao's purpose was not only to impose military rule over the world's most populous country and end the schism between Peking and Moscow but also to stop Peking's friendly overtures to President Nixon.

Despite Lin Piao's death, however, high officials here believe that the ability of Mao and Prime Minister Chou En-lai to keep control partly depends on how well the new detente with the U.S. works out.

The first test of that highly tentative detente, as seen by Chou's government, will come not in Asia—not even in Vietnam—but in Western Europe.

To Peking, any withdrawal of American power from Europe, as pledged by Sen.

George McGovern, would immediately free the Soviet Union from its own military commitment in Europe. That would result in immediate reinforcement of Moscow's awesome military machine along the 4,150-mile border between China and Russia.

Accordingly, McGovern's pledge to withdraw up to 170,000 U.S. troops from Nato means, to Peking, a drastically unfavorable shift in the military balance along its Russian border.

Even without a President McGovern, Chinese fears of future U.S. troop withdrawals from Europe under President Nixon are a subject for the anxious indoctrination of official American visitors in Peking. The Russians, according to the official Chinese line, can never be trusted to fulfill their part of any agreement with the Americans for a mutual troop pullout from Central Europe.

In short, the Nixon plan for "balanced" force reductions is also highly suspect. The real reason is not the one given—that the Soviet Union would fail to carry out such an agreement. In fact, the Chinese believe Moscow would carry it out, thus enabling it to reinforce the Chinese border.

The intensity of this Chinese line has amazed high-level American visitors. Henry A. Kissinger, who with four trips under his belt has spent more time in the Chinese capital than any other U.S. official, refuses to talk about his conversations with Chinese officials. But Reps. Hale Boggs of Louisiana and Gerald Ford of Michigan, after their six-hour dinner with Chou En-lai in July, reported the Chinese view as follows:

1. Moscow would "never" live up to any future U.S.-Soviet agreement to start scaling down nuclear arms—a future goal of the strategic arms limitation talks (SALT).

2. Moscow would "never" live up to any future U.S.-Soviet agreement to start scaling down nuclear arms—a future goal of the strategic arms limitation talks (SALT).

THROWING HIM A CURVE!

Boyle Views Life

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

One of the surest signs a man is growing old is the development in him of new small habits of thrift—such as the saving of string or paper bags, tossed into a drawer. Nature, the great conservator, has whispered in his ear that the time of life has come when he cannot afford to throw anything away but must cling desperately to everything he has.

HAL BOYLE

A majority of the working population of America seems to get its gears going in the morning with a cup of hot coffee and a piece of pastry or a doughnut.

How can a civilization endure if most of its people start each day with such a dietary disaster? Shades of our pioneer ancestors, who breakfasted on biscuits, butter, honey, eggs, bacon, ham or steak. But the good temper, digestion and endurance on the job of the average man would improve vastly if he did just one simple thing—replace the piece of pastry with a single hardboiled egg. Try this for two weeks yourself and see if you don't feel better.

A healthy mind is one that doesn't clutter itself with small animosities or waste its energy on trifles. Resentment drains your energy, just as too many small leaks will in time empty a reservoir. If you let yourself be eroded by petty concerns, you will inevitably wind up petty-minded.

The very poor and the very rich are alike in some ways. Utter poverty can make a man as selfish and egotistical and arrogant as wealth can make a man who feels it is a cushion against consequences. Both pauper and prince tend to have deplorable manners, the one because he is naughty, the other because he is haughty. Only members of the middle class consistently employ good manners—or hold each other in mutual respect.

If I were sitting on a jury, I doubt that I would vote for any verdict that would cost more than a year in jail for any man who robbed a bank in order to pay his own doctor bill or to buy a set of false teeth for his dear old gray-haired mother. It is essential at almost any price to keep up a good family appearance in this world.

You can't listen very long at a cocktail party to two people talk about their trip to Paris without one exclaiming, "And remember, on a bad morning, how well the strawberries went with the champagne?" And the other always murmurs assent and nods misty-eyed, and then a hushed reverent pauses ensues as if everyone was in church. For crying out loud, doesn't anyone ever go to Paris, wake up with a hangover, and reach out shakily for a handful of leftover peanuts and a bottle of cola?

who always goof things up." The movement sees the constant viewing of women in second-rate roles as particularly dangerous for children and also damaging to the psyche of American women.

An exception is the Barbara Walters show, "Not For Women Only." Here children have a good role model, a woman with a position, a woman whose talk show concerns itself with serious social problems and not 99 ways to use the cheese cutter.

In the wonderful world of commercials, the booby prizes go to National Airlines' "Fly me, I'm Barbara," "The Olivetti Girl (that's where the typewriter, not the secretary, has the brain) and the Geritol husband who tells his wife: "I think I'll keep you" in generally reserved for the tone "Good Dog" when the slippers arrive.

Joyce Snyder, ad conference coordinator for New York City's NOW chapter, criticizes the male fantasy figures—the White Knights, the Man from Glad, the Mr. Cleans.

"You'd think housewives sit around all day and wait for fantasy figures to brighten up their dull lives."

The newscasts, Ms. Kovacs says, are all terrible in terms of treatment of women.

"The few women on camera do the light items at the end of program usually and when important women, such as Shirley Chisholm or Bella Abzug say something of importance the newscaster simple reads it. If it were man of equal importance, he would be on camera."

Ms. Snyder reports that ad agencies are generally sympathetic when she goes to them with specific complaints about this or that. All but one, one of the biggest in New York.

"We don't need you ladies to tell us anything about commercials. We know all about the movement," an executive told her.

If you knew all about the movement, Ms. Snyder countered, you would know

All-Male 'Prime Time'

NEW YORK (AP) — Would you believe "Jockey Short Junction?" Or "The Farmer's Son." Or two men babbling over a back fence on the finer points of bright wash? Nope.

"In prime time it's an all-male world," says Midge Kovacs, coordinator of the Image of Women Committee for the New York City Chapter of the National Organization of Women. "You begin to see a terrific pattern of women in inferior roles. A very male's eye view of the world emerges."

The women's liberation movement sees programming, commercials, and news in drastic need of moving out of the 1950s and into the 1970s.

"During the day, there are very few news programs or serious programs. The networks seem to be saying we'll get the dumb housewife with the game shows and the soap operas. We won't give her anything to help her learn or grow or be informed," says Ms. Kovacs.

She nominates "The Dating Game," "The Newlywed Game" and "I Love Lucy" as the three shows most offensive to women.

"The Dating Game" she says, "is back in 1884 in terms of men-women's relations. In 'The Newlywed Game' the jokes are set up to make the women look ridiculous and 'I Love Lucy' is one of the many situations featuring female leads who are dumb-dumbs,

Other Editors Say Govm't Strikes

(The Wilson Times)

Strikes of government employees are on the increase. There were 10 times as many strikes of government workers in 1970 as there were 10 years earlier. This information comes from a new Tax Foundation study.

The number of strikes by government workers rose from 36 in 1960 to 412 in 1970 according to the study, "Unions and Government Employment."

In 1970 there were approximately four million government workers either in unions or what the study calls "quasi-unions" or employ associations. Of the total, 2.3 million were in unions, 1.8 million in associations. The total, noted the Foundation represents, so far, less than a third of government employees but the number is growing rapidly.

"The militancy of these unions is a factor in the sharp rise of government payrolls to $110 billion. Government unions have thus far successfully confronted their government employers because," said the study, "the employers tend to be inexperienced and therefore somewhat inept."

Because of the comparative weakness of the government position in a strike situation, anti-strike laws have been put on the books by the federal government as well as by 33 state governments. But according to the study, "Usually such laws have about as much effectiveness as a paper fence."

Bargaining sessions between government bosses and workers might be better balanced if government made its own demands and took a careful look at work rules to improve efficiency. Government employees are paid with tax money.

"When salary increases and benefits are warranted by legitimate services and skills, they should be granted cheerfully and with good grace. But to throw public money away through ineptitude or indifference makes no sense at all," the Foundation is a private, non-profit organization, founded in 1937 to engage in non-partisan research and public education on the fiscal and management aspects of government. Its purpose is to aid in the development of more efficient and economical government.

Strength For Today Electric Economizing Is Eyed

THREE REASONS FOR PEACE OF MIND

Jesus had much to say about anxiety. He warned men against it as the thing that could destroy their peace and wreck all the well-set purposes of their lives. Jesus regarded anxiety as foolish and also as sinful.

It is interesting to note that in one well-known passage on this matter in the Gospels Jesus uses the word "therefore" in connection with anxiety. Don't worry about money matters, he says. This variety of worry can tear you apart. God takes care of his creation—the birds of the air, the lilies of the field. If God does this for the lowly creatures will He not do much more for you? Therefore, be not anxious. And the same is true for all forms of anxiety. They are inconsistent with our belief and trust in a Heavenly Father. They are unworthy of citizens of the kingdom of heaven. And worry about the future—"The morrow will be anxious for the things of itself. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." In other words, the problems of tomorrow can only be settled tomorrow. Your problems will be disconcerting enough when you have to stand before them. Don't make them worse by anxious brooding.

Therefore, because you are children of a Heavenly Father, because you are citizens of a spiritual, heavenly kingdom, because you cannot solve tomorrow's problems until tomorrow comes—be not anxious. By Earl Douglass

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—Simple efficiencies in the use of electricity, mainly in lighting, could significantly reduce energy usage and reduce the impact of power shortages that exist in some regions and threaten elsewhere.

This is the considered judgment of many electrical engineers, who also claim that not only energy but many millions of dollars could be saved in operating costs.

At the recent annual meeting of the Illuminating Engineering Society, newly elected president Richard Dorsey of General Electric stated that 90 per cent of lighting systems produce only half as much light as possible for the energy consumed.

Other engineers claim that even those systems that deliver light efficiently still waste energy by generating so much heat that air-conditioning systems are forced to overwork.

The possible savings in energy and money have yet to be worked out, but it is estimated the buildings account for 20 per cent industrial-commercial energy consumption and that 20 per cent of that is for lighting.

George Clark, IES senior vice president and engineering manager for special projects of Sylvania Electric, estimates that better usage in these structures could reduce their energy consumption by 15 to 25 per cent.

The critical nature of such savings is made clear in the perspective of rising energy costs and recurring power shortages—even blackouts of increasing frequency and size—in some regions of the country.

The possible efficiencies about which Dorsey and Clark speak are possible not only through correction of wasteful practices of the past but through the use of relatively recent advances in producing more lumens from the same wattage.

An incandescent lamp, most widely recognized of all, produces only 10 lumens—a measure of light quantity—per watt. But more recently developed lamps produce 10 times as many lumens without color distortion.

Other efficiencies are possible, Clark said, through more frequent cleaning fixtures and a regular program of lamp replacement. Many lamps remain in use beyond their effective life, producing less light but using no less energy.

Additional savings, in money and energy, are possible through the utilization in winter of the heat from lights and through the use of available systems for draw off that heat in summer, he said.

Few buildings are so equipped today, but Clark and others believe that as an energy ethic develops—as builders realize that rising energy costs and availability is critical—waste will decrease.

Among other suggestions for conserving energy: Switches that permit lights to be turned on or off in part of a room rather than in a larger area; focusing light in work areas with less in circulation or conversation places.

Professor Named To Med School

The School of Medicine of East Carolina University today announced the appointment of Dr. Abdullah V. Fatteh as Professor of Pathology. Prior to joining the faculty of East Carolina University Dr. Fatteh was Associate Chief Medical Examiner of the State of North Carolina and Associate Professor of Pathology in the

DR. A. V. FATTEH

School of Medicine at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill.

Dr. Fatteh holds the M.D. degree from the Grant Medical College in Bombay, India; the Ph.D. degree in Pathology from the Queen's University in Belfast, Ireland, and the LL.B. degree from the Blackstone School of Law in Chicago, Illinois. He is a nationally and internationally noted expert in Forensic Pathology and Morbid Anatomy. Dr. Fatteh is a member of numerous learned societies both in this country and abroad.

Dr. Fatteh is the author of over 40 learned articles dealing with Pathology or Toxicology and is the author of a new book in Forensic Pathology due to be released in the next few months.

In addition to his teaching position at the University of North Carolina, Dr. Fatteh has held comparable positions at the Queen's University in Belfast and at the Medical College of Virginia in Richmond.

Dr. Wallace R. Wooles, dean of the ECU Medical School, said: "Dr. Fatteh's eminent qualifications and vast and diverse training will provide a valuable experience and ability in helping in the development of the School of Medicine. His unique abilities as a teacher will aid in the development and implementation of the teaching program. He will provide invaluable assistance to Dr. Sylvanus Nye in expanding and improving the ability of the Medical School to offer Pathology service to our area."

Some Negroes Added To Nat'l Guard, Reserves

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Although falling short of the announced goal to double the number of blacks, the National Guard and reserves added more than 6,000 Negroes to their rosters during the past year with the biggest gains coming in units in the South. According to the Pentagon, stepped-up recruiting efforts since last fall boosted black membership in the backup forces to 23,213 as of June 30. There were 16,792 blacks in the Army and Air National Guard and reserve forces of the four military services as of June 30, 1971.

At that stage, blacks represented about 1.7 per cent of the guardsmen and reservists. The latest figure represents 2.5 per cent of the million-man reserves.

Pentagon officials say they are encouraged by the black-recruiting effort so far because it represents "the only appreciable increase" in the number of blacks that ever has been registered.

"We're not proud in the sense of full accomplishment," says Dr. T. C. Mars, Pentagon manpower official overseeing the recruiting drive.

Most important, says Mars, the recruiting success thus far has laid the foundation for future increases as new members begin bringing in their friends.

Most of the effort has focused on the National Guard, traditionally a predominantly white organization. This was particularly true in the South where even "after segregation laws were dropped, only a few dozen blacks joined.

Mississippi, which had but eight black guardsmen in 1969 and 60 by last Dec. 31, now has 179, Pentagon officials say.

Louisiana more than doubled black membership in its units, from 106 at the end of 1971 to 277 by last May 31. They now account for 3.1 per cent of the state's 8,650 guardsmen.

South Carolina raised black membership in the Guard from 58 in December to 248 by the end of May.

During the same time period, the Tennessee Guard went from 152 blacks to 235, Texas from 153 to 255, Alabama from 86 to 207, Florida from 104 to 201, Georgia from 52 to 124 and North Carolina from 126 to 200.

In the North, Michigan added 51 blacks to its Guard rosters, while black membership in the New York Guard went from 549 to 591.

Illinois, the state with the highest percentage of blacks in the Guard, added 109 Negroes, raising black membership to 4.7 per cent of the state's 14,571 guardsmen.

Peril To Famed Horses Argued

By WILBORN HAMPTON
ROME (UPI)—They are either Greek or Roman. And they are either in dire peril of destruction or perfectly safe.

They have survived the great fire of Constantinople, a shipwreck at sea and centuries of thieves and looters, including Napoleon who took them to Paris as booty.

Whatever their origin or the state of their health or what dangers they have faced over the past two millennia, the bronze horses atop St. Mark's cathedral in Venice have rarely been the center of so much controversy as they are now.

For 10 years, debate has raged in Italy over whether polluted air is slowly destroying the magnificent animals and if so, what should be done to save them.

But it was only when the Minister of Public Instruction decided last October to remove the horses from atop St. Mark's basilica to inside the church that the argument really got going, and the horses still look out over the famed piazza.

Unknown Origin

No one knows the exact origins of the horses. Some specialists say they come from Chios and were forged on the Greek island around 200 B.C. Others say they were done by a Roman artist and cite an incision in the eyes which are of a particular Roman style.

The horses have seen a large part of the world. Some historians say they first came to glory as ornaments on the triumphal arches of Nero and Trajan in Rome.

They later went to Byzantium and adorned the entrance to the great circus there for centuries. They escaped destruction in the great fire of Constantinople in 1204 because they were mounted on giant marble pillars above the circus, out of reach of the flames.

The horse were later shipped back to Italy and one hoof on one of the horses was broken during a storm at sea. They ended up in Venice and rested for five centuries atop the basilica of St. Mark's until Napoleon decided they would look good in front of Tuileries in Paris and took them there.

Emperor Franz I of Austria was responsible for getting them back to Venice following Napoleon's fall but the ship carrying them was wrecked off the coast off Ravenna and the horses fell into the sea; volunteers rescued them.

Unsuccessful Thiefs
A history of attempted thefts never succeeded but one Greek thief, Stamati Crassioti, had the dubious distinction of being hanged with a golden noose because he at least had the good taste to try to steal such a magnificent work of art.

The latest enemy the horses face is pollution. Some scientists say salt from the lagoon waters and air pollution have given the horses an incurable case of "Metal cancer."

Others are not so sure, however. One of the most outspoken defenders of leaving the horses where they are is Prof. Bruno Beazzi of the University of Pisa.

"The horses can defend themselves," he said recently. "Bronze can always defend itself. Bronze produces various salts to defend itself such as sulphide, sulphite, carbonate and copper oxide.

Bearzi said in tests he did on the horses he observed a layer of crystalline salt and became convinced "we could do no better to conserve these sculptures" than nature had. He said French metallurgist Prof. France-Lanard and Prof. Harald J. Plenderleith of the British Museum agreed with his findings.

Sculptor Agrees

Artist Bearzi is also supported by Francesco Messina, an Italian sculptor who works mostly in bronze and who thinks the dangers involved in moving them again are greater than any from the elements outside.

"These poor horses have already run so many risks, why confront them with this which could be their last," he said. "Leave them alone where you find them and they will stay there forever."

2. The U.S. must continue full-scale development and production of nuclear weapons or risk falling behind Moscow, making the Soviet Union the undisputed No. 1 world power.

3. The prospect of all-out Japanese rearmament, coupled with Soviet arms shipments to India, threatens China with "encirclement."

4. Finally, the Russians must not become the dominant power in Southeast Asia. Behind these Chinese fears is concern with the deals Mr. Nixon made in Moscow in negotiations considerably more substantive and more important than his Peking talks. In contrast, the Chinese are absolutely terrified by the prospect of McGovern as president, advocating complete pullback from Europe and an immense cut in defense spending.

Even reelected Nixon, Peking confronts an uncertain future in the U.S., but Mr. Nixon is easily the less inscrutable American in the eyes of Peking.

California Welfare Rolls Down

REWORKING CROSSING — Workmen lay new rails along the Elm St. Norfolk Southern railroad crossing yesterday, causing traffic to be rerouted into the opposite lane of the four-lane street for a short time. Workmen on the scene said that the old rails are being replaced along with the ties and new paving that will be completed later. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

By BILL STALL
Associated Press Writer
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Sixteen months ago California's welfare rolls were growing by 40,000 a month and Gov. Ronald Reagan called public assistance "a monster" that threatened to bankrupt the Golden State.

Nearly 2.3 million persons or one out of every 10 were on welfare. The annual tab, including medical care, was consuming a third of the state's $6.5 billion budget.

Since then there has been a turnaround which Reagan points to as one of the major achievements of his 6-year-old administration.

Today, the state's welfare rolls are down by a net of 205,000 since March 1971 with drops in 13 of the past 15 months — through this past June. The June decline alone was 39,696, Reagan said.

"This dramatic decline has been achieved in the face of rising welfare costs and case-load increase elsewhere across the nation during the same period," the vacationing Reagan said in a news statement issued Wednesday.

Reagan made welfare reform his major goal of 1971 and achieved partial success in a compromise bill worked out with the legislature. Its provisions include tougher eligibility for getting on welfare, a program to track down absent fathers who won't support their families and a major effort at weeding out fraud.

About 18,000 of the June drop of 39,696 came in a category that is directly related to California's level of unemployment, which declined from 675,000 in March 1971 to 570,000 in June.

And the level of permanent recipients on Aid to Families with Dependent Children — not directly related to unemployment — was higher this June than June a year ago: 1,272,425 compared with 1,263,135.

Some critics say such things as the better economy, the rising number of abortions and the declining rate of immigration all are factors. There are 400,000 more Californians on the job now than in March 1971. State welfare chief Robert Carleson said indications show that fewer poor people are coming to California to get on welfare.

"The word is out through the grapevines that the welfare golden egg is no longer available out in California," Carleson said. Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post, the legislature's independent nonpartisan fiscal expert, frequently has been a critic of administration welfare case-loads and claims in welfare savings.

Post said in an interview that Reagan reforms have been "a significant factor" in the lower caseload. But he said general improvement in the economy must be counted, too.

Philippines See Downpour Ease

MANILA (AP) — The rains that have caused the worst natural disaster in Philippine history stopped today for the first time in a month, and flood waters continued to recede in some areas.

The sun shone over Luzon Island, providing visibility up to seven miles for American and Philippine helicopters carrying food and medicine to Pampanga, Pangasinan and Tarlac provinces and areas around Manila.

Marriage Plans Are Delayed By Baby's Arrival

STATELINE, Nev. (AP) — Singer-dancer Juliette Prowse came here to get married, but wound up giving birth to a 7-pound, 15-ounce boy, according to Sahara Tahoe publicist Ron Erickson.

Miss Prowse arrived Tuesday and made arrangements with him to marry singer John McCook at the club Wednesday, Erickson said, but began having labor pains although only 8½ months pregnant.

She postponed the wedding and entered Barton Memorial Hospital at South Lake Tahoe where the boy — named Seth — was born late Wednesday, Erickson said.

McCook, who obtained a divorce last month from his first wife, was vacationing here with Miss Prowse, whose marriage to choreographer Eddie James ended in divorce in November 1970.

Erickson said "if all goes well" they probably will be married late Friday.

The unofficial death toll in 36 days of rain and flood has reached 356, with 119 towns and hundreds of villages flooded.

"The second battle of Luzon in on ... and the water is the formidable enemy," said Col. Jerry M. King of Lehigh Acres, Fla., head of the U.S. Army relief effort.

King added that people are "on the verge of desperation. They are no longer rational. We have seen people fight over nutrients. The bag breaks, and the buns end up in the water."

The Philippine Daily Express warned in an editorial that the government "should be wary of President Nixon's offer of aid for the flood sufferers because it may harm the national sovereignty and dignity."

The editorial said the exact nature of the offer was not disclosed but the United States "has not always been selfless about its so-called assistance programs."

Depression Area Slowly Moving

MIAMI (AP) — A tropical depression in the Atlantic showed no significant change in strength as it edged towards the southern Bahamas, the National Hurricane Center reported today.

The center said a military plane which monitored the storm today reported it covered an area of more than 100 miles across and was about 425 miles east southeast of Nassau.

Highest sustained winds were reported reaching 30 to 35 miles an hour and the depression was moving west at 10 to 15 m.p.h., forecasters said.

ance from various quarters, we have been able to cope with the catastrophe," it said.

McGovern Choice Is Expected To Be Known Friday

By GREGG HERRINGTON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —
George McGovern, nominated for president under the new-politics banner, is picking his second vice-presidential candidate the same, traditional way he picked the first: lots of caucuses with party leaders and lots of names leaked by advisers.

But the suspense will end soon. Frank Mankiewicz, a top McGovern strategist said Wednesday night the announcement will come by Friday.

The newest addition to the putative list of potential McGovern running-mates is Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, whose credentials include four years' experience.

One close McGovern adviser said in an interview Wednesday night that "Hubert's got everything Muskie does, and in spades. He's liked by labor, blacks, Jews and the party regulars."

Twenty-four hours earlier the same source was touting Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine for the job of replacing Missouri Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton on the Democratic ticket.

Asked why the switch, he said: "Frankly, we never thought Hubert would take it. After all, he had the job once already" from 1964-1968 under President Lyndon B. Johnson. "But I heard today from a mutual friend that he was interested."

Other observers, who are admittedly not as close to McGovern, scoffed at reports that the Minnesota senator is a serious possibility.

"Somebody at McGovern headquarters must have realized Humphrey hadn't been mentioned all week and figured his feelings might be hurt," said an aide to one Democratic senator. "So now they're mentioning him."

Others considered in the running for the nomination are former Democratic National Committee Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien, Idaho Sen. Frank Church—who says he is too much like McGovern to offer any balance to the ticket—Boston Mayor Kevin White, former Peace Corps Director R. Sargent Shriver and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts.

Kennedy is presumably McGovern's first choice. But he has long said he is not interested in seeking national office this year.

McGovern, in the meantime, has been conducting meetings, conferring with congressional colleagues and telephoning party leaders.

"I'm not going to be hurried on it," the South Dakota senator said Wednesday. "I want to take my time. I want to confer with a number of people. I want to make a careful decision."

The Democratic National Committee is to meet in Washington Tuesday to act on McGovern's recommendation for a new vice-presidential nominee.

McGovern won the nomination largely without the help of the so-called party establishment, relying on a huge corps of mostly young volunteers to push doorbells and lick stamps.

But his deliberations on a successor to Eagleton have included seeking advice from party regulars. In the big, important states of Michigan, Texas and New York, party leaders have reported being queried by McGovern lieutenants.

Joseph Crangle, the New York State party chairman, said Wednesday he is urging McGovern to announce formally several possible running-mates and wait for public reaction before deciding.

McGovern met Wednesday with the black steering committee set up to advise his campaign. That group is headed by Rep. Walter E. Fauntroy of the District of Columbia, and includes Corretta Scott King, widow of slain civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., and Gary, Ind., Mayor Richard Hatcher.

McGovern said he also conferred with a number of Senate and House colleagues, but he refused to name them.

Bomb Threat Was Empty

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A man threatened to blow up the P. Lorillard Co. cigarette plant Monday unless he was given $50,000. The plant, which employs 1,700, was evacuated, and the money was placed at a road where the would-be extortionist had directed, but no bomb was found and he did not show up to get the cash.

Police made two thorough searches of the plant after a telephone call was received at 9:30 a.m. by Robert W. Newsom Jr., director of operations. Work was suspended for the balance of the first shift.

Newsom said he was told by the anonymous caller that bombs were hidden in the plant and would be exploded unless $50,000 in new bills of small denominations was delivered as directed.

Newsom said three more calls were received, and he told the caller the company was having difficulty coming up with the small bills demanded.

Newsom said that in accordance with instructions a bag containing $50,000 was placed beside a road sign at an intersection south of Greensboro.

The caller was quoted as saying the location of the bombs would be disclosed after he had safely collected the money.

However, the money was untouched at 4 p.m., and police returned it to a downtown bank. The caller was not heard from again, and second-shift employees came to work on schedule.

City Counts Two Wrecks

One person was reported injured and an estimated $1,650 property damage reported in two collisions investigated by police here yesterday.

Officers said Mary Massengill Jones of 1711 Rosewood Dr. was injured when the vehicle she was driving was involved in a collision with a truck driven by Jasper Ree Hodges, 57, of Simpson.

Police, who charged Hodges with failing to reduce speed enough to avoid an accident in connection with the 5:18 p.m. mishap, set damage to the car Mrs. Jones was operating at $900 and estimated damage to the Hodges vehicle at $300.

The mishap occurred at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Charles Street.

Danny Kay Conway, 20, of 1401B Dudley St. was charged with failing to yield the right of way following investigation of a 7:50 p.m. collision on Greenville Boulevard 300 feet east of the Arlington Street intersection.

Officers reported the Conway vehicle collided with a car driven by Louise Boswell Randolph of Greenville causing an estimated $250 damage to the Randolph auto and $200 damage to the Conway vehicle.

No injuries were reported in that mishap.

Three Robbery Suspects Caught In Car-Chase

ARAPAHOE, N. C. (AP) — A high speed chase across two counties ended Wednesday when the chased car wrecked and its three occupants were charged with taking money and 47 pistols from a Beaufort County store.

Charged with armed robbery were James Milteer, 25, of Durham, and Samuel D. McCotter and Jerry B. Conley, both of Durham.

Milteer suffered a broken neck and leg and was hospitalized in Greenville. McCotter and Conley were placed in the Beaufort County Jail.

Officers said three men armed with a sawed-off shotgun held up Ferrell's Store at Cox's Crossroads in Beaufort County Wednesday morning. After tying up three people, they got away with $180 and 47 pistols.

The balloon flight distance record of 1,719.21 miles is held by the Soviet Union.

Proxmire Cites Cost Overruns

WASHINGTON (AP)— Sen. William Proxmire said today that 45 Pentagon weapons systems have exceeded original cost estimates by $36.5 billion.

Proxmire said the figure would have been higher except that "seven of the 45 weapons programs were removed from the Pentagon's reporting system and figures for these programs can no longer be updated."

Most of the seven were dropped because they were canceled or completed, he said. Of the seven, Proxmire said the main battle tank, the Gamma Goat combat truck and the FB111 jet fighter were the most mismanaged.

As for other weapons systems, the Wisconsin Democrat said in a speech prepared for the Senate that the Pentagon should report a $1.5 billion overrun on the F-14 aircraft.

Proxmire said the Air Force's F-15 jet fighter's cost has been changed by "changing the cost base" and that "instead of a $1.8 billion cost overrun in this program, there is really an overrun of $2.7 billion," Proxmire said.

Other programs showing extremely large increases, Proxmire said, include the Safeguard antiballistic missile, $2.1 billion; the C5A aircraft, $1.8 billion; the B1 bomber, $2.2 billion; the F111 aircraft, $4.9 billion; and the SRAM missile, $1 billion.

Solar Flare Disruptions

BOULDER, Colo. (AP)— Disruption of radio communications in the polar regions and a magnetic storm expected to bombard the earth for the next two days were forecast today by scientists who monitored more than four hours of intense solar flaring Wednesday.

The flares were also expected to produce auroras, brilliant streamers of colored lights in the sky, visible over the southern United States tonight and Friday night, according to Robert Doeker, chief of the Space Environment Laboratory's forecast center. The center is part of the government's National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration headquarters here.

The flares began at 2:50 p.m. Wednesday and were accompanied by large bursts of radio waves from the sun, Doeker said. He termed them among the largest of the current 11-year solar cycle, which began in 1964.

Vandals Disrupt Phone Service

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)— A spokesman for the General Telephone Co. said today that vandals using axes and saws disrupted telephone service in Durham and three nearby communities Wednesday night.

The company spokesman said cables were intentionally cut during the night, resulting in a loss of service to several hundred customers in Durham, Butner, Creedmoor and Rougemont.

The spokesman said all of the damage was repaired within six hours.

General Telephone workers throughout the southeast have been on strike for a week.

Three Linked To Carolinas

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. (AP)— The FBI says three of the five avowed black militants from Detroit who hijacked a Delta Airlines plane to Algeria with $1 million ransom Monday had Carolina backgrounds.

It gave these descriptions: Mrs. Jean Carroll Allen McNair, 25, is a former resident of Winston-Salem, a graduate of Winston-Salem State University, and certified to teach English in North Carolina public schools. Her father works at the Reynolds Tobacco Co. factory in Winston-Salem.

Her husband, Melvin McNair, 24, nicknamed "Buzzy," is a graduate of Caldwell High School in Greensboro and attended Winston-Salem State.

The FBI said that of the three children with the hijackers, two were the McNairs'. The agency said Joyce Tillerston, 21, was born in Spartanburg, S. C., and is a graduate of a high school in Winston-Salem.

Blimp Hit By 5 Pistol Shots

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)— The Goodyear blimp America was hit by five pistol shots Wednesday night as it was parked at Timmerman Field, police said. The big airship was undamaged.

Officers said they were looking for two young men who drove to the edge of the small airport, fired the shots and fled.

Slow Start For N.C. McGovern Campaign Goal

CHAPEL HILL (AP)— A University of North Carolina physics professor says the goal of the North Carolina Citizens for McGovern is to raise $300,000 for the fall campaign.

Dr. Marvin Silver said the goal of the group which is now being formed is "a very conservative, realistic goal."

The campaign, he added, has gotten off to a slow start due to the furor over Sen. Thomas Eagleton who withdrew as the Democratic Party's nominee for vice president.

The campaign, he added, has gotten off to a slow start due to the furor over Sen. Thomas Eagleton who withdrew as the Democratic Party's nominee for vice president.

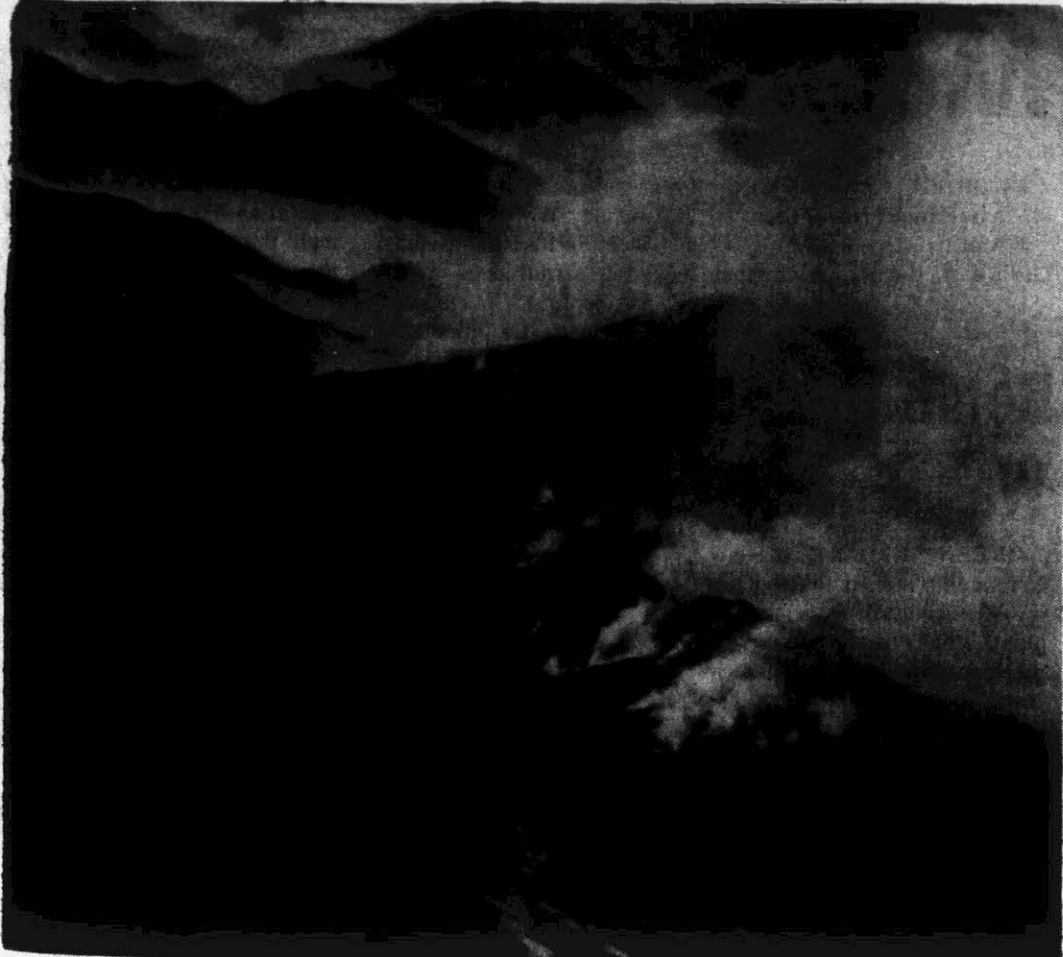

"We did lose two to three weeks of time and momentum," Silver said. "Campaign workers and supporters used up energy and emotion" during the controversy leading up to Eagleton's withdrawal from the ticket.

Chess Match To Resume Today

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP)— Bobby Fischer and Boris Spassky are scheduled to return to the chess board today for the 10th game of their world championship match and so far neither has indicated a postponement.

The American challenger leads the 24-game series 5 1/2-3 1/2 after the third draw Tuesday. A win counts one point and a draw half a point.

Fischer won four of the first nine games and the Russian one. Three ended in draws and Spassky was awarded a forfeit.

Eight KIA For Week

SAIGON (AP)— Eight American servicemen were killed in action in the Vietnam war last week and 17 were wounded, the U.S. Command announced today in its weekly casualty summary. It said three more Americans died from nonhostile causes and one was missing in action.

The total of South Vietnamese and enemy casualties continued a month-long decline, according to the report of the Saigon command.

It said 1,891 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were killed last week while government casualties were 587 killed, 2,563 wounded and 235 missing.

The week's U.S. casualties were slightly below the weekly average of about nine killed and 31 wounded during the past 18 weeks of the North Vietnamese offensive.

The allied commands now have announced these total casualty figures for the war: American—45,836 killed in action, 303,260 wounded in action, 10,243 dead from nonhostile causes.

South Vietnamese—151,580 killed in action, 391,701 wounded.

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong—868,131 killed.

Winds Fanning Big Sur Flames

BIG SUR, Calif. (AP)— A forest fire in the Ventana Wilderness Area which has forced the flight of more than a thousand vacationers, residents and hippies roared toward the Big Sur River today.

The fire, fanned by 40-mile-per-hour winds, had burned 3,500 acres in Los Padres National Forest, destroying some of the famed redwood trees of the rugged Big Sur Country.

The Big Sur is the home of hippie communes and is favored as a retreat by celebrities.

The blaze, started by an illegal campfire on private land Tuesday, consumed brush and timber sucked dry by hot temperatures and unseasonably low winter rainfall.

No dwellings or other buildings have been lost in the fire, but many have been threatened. There have been no reported deaths or injuries.

A force of 1,200 men fought the blaze, which was rated 35 per cent contained. A dozen aerial tankers, helicopters and bulldozers also were being used.

Forestry officials hoped to halt the fire at the Big Sur River. One section of the fire was within a half-mile of the river.

"If she jumps across the river, we'll have a tremendous task to control it," a spokesman said.

North Team For Boys Home All-Star Game

Rou Boyles of High Point Central High School and Noland Respass of Robersonville will be the head coaches for the North All-Star Team in the 10th annual Boys Home All-Star Game to be played Saturday night in Ficklen Stadium at 8 p.m. The game, sponsored annually by the North Carolina Junior Chamber of Commerce, benefits the Boys Home of Lake Waccamaw. The North leads the series, 6-3, but has lost the last two outings. (Reflector Photo)

South Has Some New Faces

South Coach Frank Ciamillo of Havelock had more to do than just coach the South team for Saturday's Boys Home All-Star Game. He nearly had to recruit a new team.

Eight new players had to be found after the initial roster was selected for the South team of 27 players. The eight original players were lost for various reasons, including accidents, injuries, and personal reasons. Among the eight were three quarterbacks.

Those new to the team include Tom Shipman of Breward, a tackle; Carl Cayton of New Bern, an end; Johnny Miller of Ellerbe, a tackle; Tobbie Gilmore of Siler City, an end; Andy Smith of Dunn, a tackle; Jim Darden of Havelock, a quarterback; Kevin Brooks of Camp Lejeune, a guard; and Billy Butler of Bladenboro, a fullback.

Aside from these problems,

Ciamillo says that things are going well.

"We've had our heavy workout now," he said. "We were fortunate in that no one was hurt seriously. I think we have been progressing real well to this point."

Ciamillo will have his South team running from the spread I formation Saturday night, also from a wide slot. Defensively, his team will use a six-one and a five-two formation. Inside the 10-yard line, anything goes defensively, otherwise the defense is limited to just two formations.

The South plans an air attack against the North, and Ciamillo feels that he has a good bombardier in quarterback Tyrone Willingham of Jacksonville. "He can throw the ball well," the coach said, "and we'll put the ball into the air right much."

Ciamillo says that he feels the fans like the air attack and that one of his aims in the game is to make the game enjoyable for the fans. "This is one of the ideas behind this type of attack, and one behind this game, too."

The coach added that he feels that the Boys Home game has become the most exciting of the All-Star games played in the state now. "The past two years, this game has had the most scoring, and has been more enjoyable for the fans to watch. I hope that this game will continue this tradition, but I don't think the past records will have much affect on the players. You have to play the game year-by-year, and it goes in streaks. Both teams are really equal at all times."

The game has gone in streaks, too. The South won the opening event, in 1963, but lost the next six in a row. It has won the last two.

Ciamillo listed several players whom he thought had been impressive in practice to this point. "Our quarterback, Willingham, has looked good, as had a couple of wide receivers, Eldon McDaniels of Fairmont and George Stephens of Wilmington."

He has also been impressed with Butler, receiver J. C. Barnes and defensive lineman Billy Rogers, both of Wilson, and center Louie King of Havelock. "There are several others who have looked good, too," he added.

Ciamillo also noted that the weather has been somewhat of a problem. "We've had two boys who've been affected by the heat, but not badly."

He's hoping that come Saturday night, the game will be a high-scoring one. "That's what the fans like."

But he also admits that he's worried about the size of the North team. "They are so much bigger than us. I'm particularly impressed with the offensive line. They are going to be able to give a lot of protection."

The game begins at 8 p.m. Saturday in Ficklen Stadium.

Meadowbrook Downs Black Jack For Title

Meadowbrook Presbyterian rolled to a 14-5 victory over Black Jack Free Baptist last night to capture the Church League Playoff championship.

Meadowbrook won two of the three games in the best of three series. They spotted Black Jack the first win, then came back to win the next two.

Meadowbrook got things going in the first inning scoring a pair of runs. John Huber tripled and scored on a triple by Bob Harris. Carl Powell brought in Harris with a sacrifice fly.

In the fourth, Meadowbrook added another run. Wayne

Nelson reached on a fielder's choice and moved up Dwight Foster's double. Gordon Bunting reached on another fielder's choice, scoring Nelson for a 3-0 lead.

Black Jack came up with a pair of runs in the bottom of the fourth. Philip Smith singled and scored on J.T. Mills' double. Mills scored when Tal Adams got a hit.

In the fifth, two more Meadowbrook runs came over, making it 5-2, but Black Jack came up with three runs in the bottom of the inning to pull into a 5-5 tie.

Then, in the sixth Meadowbrook scored six runs to put it out of reach. Nelson walked and Foster singled. Bunting followed with a three-run homer, moving Meadowbrook ahead for good. Bucky Roebuck reached on an error and Carson Heath singled, but went down on a fielder's choice as Victor Wade reached. John Huber singled in Roebuck and Carl Powell singled in Wade. A hit by Lynwood Owens brought in Huber with the sixth run of the inning. Meadowbrook added three more in the seventh for the final 14-run total and the championship.

Spitz Chasing Munich Trip

By H.F. WOLLENBERG IV
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Mark Spitz is acting like he wants to make sure he won't be overlooked at the 1972 Olympics in Munich.

Within hours of capturing the world record in the 200-meter butterfly Wednesday, the Carmichael, Calif., star roared back to break his own mark in the event.

And in the next three days, Spitz has chances at breaking world records he already owns in the 200-meter freestyle, 100-meter butterfly and 100-meter freestyle as qualifications continue for the U.S. Olympic swimming team.

Seven men and six women earned spots on the squad in five events Wednesday.

"I thought I would probably make the team," grinned Spitz, 22, winner of the 1972 Sullivan Award, presented annually to the person named amateur athlete of the year.

He clipped nearly 1/2 seconds off the world record, set by Hans Fassnacht of West Germany last year, with a 2:01.87 run in the 200 butterfly preliminary heat trials in the morning. Less than eight hours later, he covered the same distance in 2:01.53 in the finals.

The other berths in the 200 butterfly went to runner-up Robin Backhaus, a high school senior from Redlands, Calif., and to Gary Hall, Garden Grove, Calif., who swam on the Indiana University squad with Spitz the last few years.

Spitz, now a medical student, was able to gain only a silver medal in the 1968 games and remained noncommittal about his chances for the upcoming games.

Two other records were broken in the finals Wednesday.

John Hencken, an 18-year-old Stanford University freshman from Cupertino, Calif., was clocked in 1:05.99 in the 100-meter breaststroke.

This bettered the American record of 1:06.06 set earlier in the preliminaries by Thomas Bruce, UCLA's 1972 NCAA champion. Bruce won one of the 32 male Olympic berths with his runnerup time of 1:06.27 in the finals.

An American record was also fashioned in the women's 100-meter freestyle as Jennifer Kemp, 17, of Norwood, Ohio, won in 58.63.

Shirley Babashoff, 15, Huntington Beach, Calif., and Sandra Neilson, 16, El Monte, Calif., finished second and third to gain Olympic berths.

In the men's 100-meter breaststroke, the two Olympic qualifiers were Mitch Ivey, silver medal winner in the 200 backstroke in the 1968 Olympics, and Mike Stamm of San Diego, Calif.

And in the women's 200-meter individual medley, 1968 Olympic silver medal winner Lynn Vidali led three qualifiers for the 29-member female Munich squad with a winning time of 2:24.46.

Last Place Brewers Bubble Past Tigers

By TOM EMORY
Associated Press Sports Writer
The Milwaukee Brewers were working over the Detroit Tigers Tuesday night but the game was called after six innings because of rain. The Brewers finished the job Wednesday night.

Milwaukee, a city known for beer and a baseball team known for its hold on last place in the American League East, pounded Detroit for 16 hits and nine runs Tuesday night. Brewer pitcher Skip Lockwood also limited the East-leading Tigers to one hit.

The team returned to Tiger Stadium on Wednesday but didn't take the normal pregame batting practice. Manager Del Crandall believes this may have helped as the Brewers collected 18 hits and beat the Tigers 13-1.

"They must have decided to use the game as batting practice," said Crandall. "At least my players aren't clock watchers."

The Brewers got warmed up in the third inning and scored seven runs. Starter and winner Jim Lonborg, 10-5, singled twice in the rally while George Scott drove in two runs with a single.

In the fourth, the Brewers struck for three runs, then came back in the fifth for two more. Milwaukee stranded three runners in the sixth but Scott hit his 12th home run in the seventh before the Tiger pitching strengthened.

Detroit Manager Billy Martin used seven pitchers among the 20 players he put in the game. The Tigers only run came on Gates Brown's sacrifice fly in the fifth although Dick McAuliffe went 3-for-3.

Scott finished the game with three hits, three runs scored and four RBI. Mike Ferraro got three hits and two RBI and John Briggs had two hits and drove in two.

In other American League games, Chicago beat California 10-9, Texas topped Minnesota 4-1 and Oakland blanked Kansas City 5-0.

New York downed Boston 5-1 in the first game of a day-night doubleheader. The Red Sox took the second game 7-4.

Baltimore blanked Cleveland 7-0 in a twilight opener, then the Indians downed the Orioles 6-3 in the nightcap.

In the National League, it was Philadelphia 5, New York 3; San Diego 5, Atlanta 0; Houston 10, Cincinnati 1; St. Louis 10, Pittsburgh 5 in 6½ innings, rain; and Los Angeles 12, San Francisco 11. Chicago edged Montreal 5-4 in a six-inning, rain-shortened game. The second contest of the doubleheader was postponed.

Jim Palmer pitched a four-hitter for his 14th victory and Boog Powell, Bobby Grich and Johnny Oates hit homers for Baltimore in the first game at Cleveland. In the second game, Chris Chambliss blasted a three-run homer and Roy Foster hit a two-run shot for the Indians. Paul Blair homered for the Orioles in the nightcap.

Catfish Hunter pitched a five-hitter for Oakland. It extended the A's shutout string to 29 innings. Joe Rudi collected three hits, including his 12th homer.

He also scored two runs and drove in two. Kansas City produced a bases-loaded threat in the ninth with three singles but Hunter escaped with his shutout.

Bobby Murcer hit a three-run homer for the Yankees and Steve Kline won his 11th in the Boston day game. Rico Petrocelli homered for the Red Sox run.

In the nightcap, Ben Oglivie hit a two-run double in the fourth inning for Boston. Danny Cater also drove in two Red Sox runs while John Ellis blasted a three-run homer for the Yankees.

Pitcher Terry Forster's two out, two-run single in the seventh scored the decisive runs for the White Sox. California scored twice in the ninth on Vada Pinson's triple to cut Chicago's lead.

A two-base throwing error by Minnesota pitcher Ray Corbin paved the way for three Texas runs. Corbin's errant throw to first scored two runs and allowed another runner to reach third. Ted Ford hit his ninth home run for the Rangers' fourth run. Danny Thompson's RBI double drove in the Twins' run.

Cesar Cedeno continues to feed on National League pitching—and Wednesday night, had a feast at home plate.

"I wasn't thinking about hitting for the cycle, I was just trying to get a hit," said Cedeno after drilling a single, double, triple and home run to lead the Houston Astros past the Cincinnati Reds, 10-1.

Cedeno's splashy performance included a double in the first inning, a two-run homer in the third, an RBI single in the fifth and a run-scoring triple in the eighth and fattened his league-leading batting average to .353.

Don Wilson, the Houston pitcher who benefitted from Cedeno's one-man show, had to give the outfielder's performance some deep thought if Cedeno himself wasn't thinking about it.

"When you get 10 runs, it makes it a lot easier," said Wilson, who hasn't gotten that kind of support recently.

In the other National League games, the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 10-5 in a 6½-inning, rain-shortened affair; the Philadelphia Phillies trimmed the New York Mets 5-3; the San Diego Padres beat the Atlanta Braves 5-0; the Los Angeles Dodgers turned back the San Francisco Giants 12-11 and the Chicago Cubs downed the Montreal Expos 5-4 in a game cut short after six innings by rain. The contest was the scheduled opener of a two-night doubleheader.

American League results: Oakland 5, Kansas City 0; Chicago 10, California 9; Milwaukee 13, Detroit 1; Texas 4, Minnesota 1; New York 5, Boston 1 in the first game of a day-night doubleheader and Boston 7, New York 4 in the second; and Baltimore 7, Cleveland 0 in the opener of a two-night doubleheader and Cleveland 6, Baltimore 3 in the nightcap.

With Cedeno blasting his 15th homer of the year, the Astros came up with three runs in the third off Cincinnati ace Gary Nolan to give Wilson a comfortable working margin.

The big Houston right-hander then fashioned a six-hitter as the Astros trimmed the Reds for the first time in the Astrodome this year.

Bernie Carbo's three-run homer capped a 10-hit, nine-run rally in the fourth inning as St. Louis beat Pittsburgh. Carbo's home run was off the Pirates' home run man off the Pirates' Bob Johnson, who had come in to help starter Dock Ellis. Ellis started the inning with a 5-0 lead.

Bob Gibson, despite not pitching one of his better games, had the good fortune to stick around to the end and pick up his 12th victory in 18 decisions. The star Cardinal righthander lost his first five games this season, then turned around and won 12 of the next 13.

The Pirates, despite losing, maintained their 6½-game lead over New York in the East. The Mets had a chance to cut a game off that Pirate lead, but blew it when ace Tom Seaver lost a 3-2 lead going into the ninth against Philadelphia.

A single by Larry Bowa and run-scoring double by Tommy Hutton tied the game for the Phillies and then the visitors won it on Deron Johnson's pinch-hit, two-run homer.

Fred Norman pitched a seven-hitter and Garry Jesteadt drove in four runs with a homer and a double to lead San Diego over Atlanta.

Bill Russell crashed a two-out homer off reliever Jim Barr in the ninth inning to pull Los Angeles over San Francisco. Before Russell ended the contest with one, dramatic swing, the Giants had tied the game 11-11 on Ed Goodson's two-run homer in the top of the frame.

Willie Davis knocked in five runs for the Dodgers with a home run and two singles.

J. C. Martin's bouncer with the bases loaded produced the winning run in the fifth inning as the Cubs beat the Expos. Martin's RBI gave the Cubs a 5-0 lead and helped them withstand two-run bursts by Montreal in the fifth and sixth innings.

played and followed by millions.

"I still think I can win. There's nothing wrong with me physically. I just can't seem to make anything happen."

Victory has escaped him this season.

"I've had several chances to win. Greensboro I just threw away on a bad shot," he said. "I could have won the (Bob) Hope and I hit one out of bounds."

"I could have won the (U.S.) Open. I should have won it. There was another, where was it? The Byron Nelson? I should have won."

There's no question that middle age is upon this man who may have been the most popular figure the game has ever seen.

The sandy hair is graying, thinning and receding. There's the trace of a bulge around the beltline. He has a history of bursitis. He's experimented with eye-glasses to correct a near-sighted condition. He's subject to strange, unexpected aches and pains.

But he still exerts a magic effect on the gallery. They flock to him, the elderly citizens, the middle-aged salesmen, matrons and giggling teen-agers, clustering around him, seeking an autograph, trying for a peek at the broad, sloping shoulders, hoping to catch a glimpse of one of the world's most photographed faces.

But there are some deserters from Arnie's Army. It's still a vast, unruly mob, but the numbers aren't the same and the feeling isn't the same. They're more hopeful than confident. And when the hope wanes they drift away to Jack Nicklaus and Lee Trevino.

"Who's to beat?" he repeated the question concerning the PGA, the one major title he hasn't won. "Oh, it's just the same old mob."

And he went out to try it again.

Talladega Pole Battle Is Today

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer
TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — A six-man fight for the pole position appeared to be in prospect today as qualifying trials began for the Talladega 500 mile Stock Car race at Alabama International Speedway.

Some 45 of the more than 60 entries drew numbers out of a hat, indicating they planned to try for one of the 20 top spots available in the first round of qualifying.

Fifty cars will start Sunday's 135.025 race.

David Pearson, back in the Wood brothers Mercury that carried him to victory over the 2.66-mile trioval in the May Winston 500, turned in an unofficial practice speed of 185.531 miles per hour in Wednesday's warmup session.

Later in the afternoon, the Spartanburg, S.C., veteran hooked up with Buddy Baker's Dodge in a dazzling display of drafting techniques around the high-banked course and the pair tuned in a lap at 187.309 m.p.h.

Baker, the popular Charlotte, N.C., driver who mans an STP Dodge, earlier had recorded 183.909 without the benefit of a draft from another car.

Richard Petty, Baker's car owner and teammate, was clocked at 183.867 m.p.h. while fast-rising Joe Frasson posted 183.153 in a Dodge. Bobby Allison, 183.066 in a Chevrolet, and Bobby Isaac, 186.958 in a Dodge, joined Baker and Pearson in dominating the initial practice round.

Today's qualifying round begins at 1 p.m. to fill the first 10 rows in the richest race left on NASCAR's 1972 Winston Cup Grand National Calendar. The pole position carries a bonus of $1,000.

The talent-heavy lineup of qualifiers promised some surprises. Lurking in the wings were former winner Pete Hamilton with a Plymouth, Fred Lorenzen with a new Chevrolet, National Sportsman titleholder Red Farmer and surprisingly fast Clifton "Coo-Coo" Marlin, the ex-politician from Columbia, Tenn., who owns his own Chevrolet.

Qualifying will continue through Saturday, with Isaacs' 192.428 m.p.h. pole-winning speed for the spring race the prime target of the top runners.

Tired Palmer Still Hunting

By BOB GREEN

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — He's like an aging fight champion, going after the men who occupy the throne that once was his.

Week after weary week he musters his forces to make another challenge, looking for the knockout, seeking a return to lost glory — and week after frustrating week he absorbs his painful, ego-bruising beating.

"Sometimes," Arnold Palmer said with a tired sigh, "I feel like I'm fighting Cassius Clay every weekend."

He hasn't won this season, doesn't have any idea when he will and admits to being dead tired as he went into his fifth tournament in five weeks in three countries.

Still, his head was up, the adrenalin pumping through 42-year-old veins, the muscular forearms writing like tormented snakes as he clinched his huge, farmer fists in preparation for today's first round of the PGA national championship.

"I still want to win, as much or more than I ever did," said Palmer, the man generally acknowledged as being the guiding force behind golf's emergence from the private preserve of the idle rich to a game played and followed by millions.

"I still think I can win. There's nothing wrong with me physically. I just can't seem to make anything happen."

PLYMOUTH, N.H. (AP) — Al Spohrer, first string catcher for the old Boston Braves of the National League from 1929 to 1932, died Monday in Spaulding Memorial Hospital. He was 74.

Spohrer — off the diamond Alfred R. Spohrer — joined the Braves in 1928 in a trade with the New York Giants. His best year at bat was 1930 when he hit .317.

Spohrer leaves his widow, Thelma, and a brother, Fred, of Philadelphia.

Old Gridders Bringing Suit

PROVIDENCE (AP) — Pioneers of the National Football League have filed a federal court suit to win full NFL pension benefits for the league's charter members.

In an action brought in U.S. District Court in Rhode Island, the NFL Alumni Association asked Wednesday that its membership of more than 1,000 retired pro players be included in the league's pension plan, begun formally in 1962.

"This is a sad day for me," said Leon Hart, the president of the alumni group, as he jointly announced with an attorney the action against the NFL Players' Association and Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Hart, an end with the Detroit Lions in the 1950s and now a Detroit businessman, said step was taken "with great reluctance, but firm resolve" after repeated fruitless efforts to work out an "amicable solution" with the NFL and the Players' Association.

"After much soul searching and deliberation, the NFL Alumni have decided that the only way we can correct the injustice which has been done the oldtimers is to proceed in court," Hart said.

The suit asked that alumni members be included in the pension plan on the same terms as players already eligible for its benefits, or that the defendants set up a separate fund for the oldtimers on the same terms as the current plan.

The alumni group, representing players who retired prior to 1959, maintained that, with few exceptions, none of its members is included in the pension program.

"When this program was first funded," Hart said, "there wasn't enough money to go around so 1959 was used as a cut-off date for retired players. The understanding was that as additional funds came in, the cutoff date would be moved back to include our people."

As the years passed, however, the leadership of the Players' Association changed and the understanding was set aside according to Leonard Decof, the Providence attorney representing the alumni group.

While Hart maintained that Rozelle and the club owners are "sympathetic" to the old players' cause, Decof said the problem boils down to where the additional funds for oldtimers' pensions would come from.

Ring Of Desperation In Egypt-Libya Merger Effort

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent
The presidents of Libya and Egypt, announcing their intention to make their nations one, evidently mean to threaten the United States and the West with measures leading eventually to an oil crisis. But some may see a ring of desperation in their words more suggestive of frustration than of menace.

Both Anwar Sadat of Egypt and Muammar Kadafi of Libya are subject to home pressures and to infuriating contradictions on the world stage.

The two leaders seem frustrated because they are opposed not only by Arabs but by the powerful Russians to whom they have looked for help without a full measure of trust.

So the Egypt-Libya union has the sound of a defiant go-it-alone challenge to Israel, the United States, Europe and Russia, all at once. To hear the young and hot-headed Col. Kadafi tell it, as he did in a speech more than a year ago, Egypt and Libya will lead a legion of a million Arab men, an air armada of a thousand planes and a land fleet of 5,000 tanks in a Jihad—a holy war—to crush Israel and “liberate” Palestine once and for all.

Now he and Sadat have made what purports to be a step in this direction.

The proposition is that united Arabs will mobilize and arm for the final battle with the money they get from Arab oil. Meanwhile they could mortally wound their “imperialist” antagonists by shutting off the oil.

But Arab unity has invariably been more shadow than substance, however passionate Kadafi seems to be about it. The United Arab Republic combining Egypt and Syria crumbled in 1961 after three shaky years. An attempt to unite Sudan with Egypt and Libya has wound up nowhere. The “federation” of Syria, Libya and Egypt, formed a year ago, is opposed by a number of elements, including Russian-backed Syrian Communists.

The Sadat-Kadafi joint statement, an echo of a speech Sadat made last week, noted that the Arab world possesses a powerful weapon, oil, “which if used effectively and successfully would realize our goals, because Arab oil provides 60 percent of the world’s consumption.” The West knows this and thus tries to stop Arab unity, it said.

But Egypt and Libya have yet to convince the Arabian peninsula’s sheiks that they should shut off oil to the West. Libya gets $2.4 billion a year in oil revenue—in a nation of 2½ million people—but the Arab rulers cannot drink their oil. It’s no good to them until it is out of the ground and marketed. And for Kadafi it can be political dynamite if the Libyans get restless and demand a bigger share of the oil wealth.

Perhaps some day joint Arab action might jolt the West. At the rate the developed world uses oil, a crunch will come some day unless big new sources of energy can be tapped. But the day does not seem close at hand, and meantime Arabs must wrestle with their own baffling troubles.

Egypt got Russian help twice over, in the form of billions of rubles worth of arms, but it wasn’t enough to permit the risk of attacking Israel. Now the relationship is souring and Sadat has sent Soviet military advisers home, even though their services probably remain necessary.

Both Sadat and Kadafi—especially Kadafi—are devout Muslims who abhor atheistic Communism. Both fear Moscow. Both leaders were shaken when the Communists in Sudan, then overflowing with Soviet arms and advisers, tried to seize that Arab nation.

Neither Sadat nor Kadafi has looked secure in his position lately. Still, the two might be able to bring their project off, whereupon a year hence there will exist a combined nation of 35 million Egyptians and 2½ million Libyans equipped with Libya’s oil money and Egypt’s myriad of troubles. The new Egypt-Libya would still, however, be a long way from being in a position to launch their Jihad.

Singer's Assets Are Tied Up

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jack Jones’ assets will be under the control of a receiver until the singer’s dispute with his former business manager can be resolved in Superior Court.

Jones’ attorney, Harvey Strassman, said Wednesday two civil suits were filed against Walter Prince last month, charging Prince had failed to give Jones proper information about his holdings, which Strassman said totaled about $1 million.

Allan H. Liebert, Prince’s attorney, said he had advised Prince to put the singer’s funds into a trust account and estimated the total value at about $61,300.

GOP Convention Aimed At Early-To-Bed Crowd

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans are tuning their three-day national convention to the early-to-bed television audience, not to the insomniacs.

Those making the arrangements promise an “interesting and exciting” convention starting in Miami Beach on Aug. 21, despite the fact the outcome is assured.

“The American people will watch ours,” the GOP National Committee chairman, Sen. Robert J. Dole, predicted Wednesday at a news conference.

The five sessions, two afternoon gatherings of two hours each starting at 1 o’clock and three at night scheduled to end not later than 10:30, were arranged, Dole said, so every TV viewer wanting to can conveniently watch them. “Not just the insomniacs,” he added, referring to last month’s four-day Democratic convention in which all sessions ran past midnight and two ended at day-break.

The afternoon GOP sessions are booked for Monday and Tuesday, with the finale starting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday and ending at 10:30. At that final session the nominees will make their acceptance speeches.

The Monday and Tuesday night sessions will be two-hour affairs starting at 8:30. The nomination for president is set for Tuesday night, and for vice president Wednesday night.

To live up to the proceedings, Dole said, “spontaneous” victory demonstrations of about 15 minutes’ duration will follow each nomination. Democrats barred such merry-making from their convention. Five movies will be shown during the proceedings. None will exceed 15 minutes, Dole said. They will include tributes to former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and Mrs. Nixon, a review of Republican accomplishments, some scenes about “Nixon The Man,” and a visual keynote presentation.

The Republicans anticipate no squabbles such as the ones that split the Democrats over credentials, platform and party rules. Their Credentials Committee’s first and probably only meeting is scheduled the day the convention opens.

It took the Democrats more than a week to draft a credentials report and an all-night session for the convention to act on it.

Prisoner Says Life Is 'Better' Inside Art Museum Needs Cited

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Wayne D. Ledford broke out of prison a week ago and broke back in Wednesday.

He said sleeping in the woods after friends and relatives had refused to take him in had convinced him life was better on the inside than the outside.

The 27-year-old Charlotte resident could have walked into the prison camp at Huntersville, 15 miles north of Charlotte, from which he escaped last Thursday. But he preferred to show that he could break back in, and scaled two chain link fences to do so.

Bill McAllister, photographer for the Charlotte Observer, was on hand to take pictures. McAllister and reporter Ron Alridge has given Ledford a ride back to the prison camp after he telephoned the Observer and asked that someone do so.

They picked him up at an abandoned building in Charlotte. Alridge said that on the way he told them that he is not living with his wife, and his trouble started when the welfare department took his children.

Huntersville is a minimum-security prison camp whose guards do not carry guns.

But since it was Ledford’s third escape, he is to be given a court hearing on a charge of felonious escape. Conviction carries a sentence of six months to three years and could land him in a camp which has armed guards.

Ledford is serving 32 months for drunken driving, other traffic offenses, and for the two previous escapes.

James Hale of Gaston County, who escaped with him last Thursday, is still at large.

RALEIGH (AP) — Members of the North Carolina Art Society want a new state art museum building given “a central city location, near the other state government buildings.

The society said that in answer to a questionnaire, the members also said that regardless of the site selected they favored “some kind of landscaping for the building and sculpture garden including fountain or reflecting pool.”

In a report submitted Wednesday to the program committee of the Museum Building Commission, the museum staff recommended that the new building contain about three times as much gallery space, more office and storage space and such items as an auditorium, studios, sculpture gardens, a cafeteria and a conservation center.

The committee chairman, Gordon Hanes of Winston-Salem, called the staff report “a perfectly marvelous and a very fast job.”

Hair, Virility Not Connected

NEW YORK (UPI)—You’ve heard baldmen are more virile than hirsute ones? That point was nixed by Dr. Edward Krull, a dermatologist associated with Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit. He told a group of science writers attending a symposium in Chicago that there is no relationship between hair loss and virility. The symposium was sponsored by the National Program for Dermatology.

SALT Pact Didn't End The Nuclear Weapons Race

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The nuclear weapons race is far from over, despite the recent U.S.-Soviet strategic arms limitation agreement.

That pact does put a lid on the number of strategic offensive missile launchers and anti-missile defenses on both sides. But it does not curb the number of hydrogen warheads that may be carried by offensive missiles. Nor does it ban development of improved offensive weapons.

While this race continues, the United States has conceded the Soviets a wide lead in ground combat forces by cutting the U.S. Army to its smallest size in a generation. Further, the Soviets have been outbuilding the U.S. Navy by a margin of 2 to 1 in recent years and are reported on the verge of an even greater naval effort.

When the arms limitation pact was completed, Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's national security adviser, acknowledged that "technological change...is one of the great driving forces of the arms race at this particular point."

Kissinger has indicated that U.S. negotiators will try during the next round of U.S.-Soviet talks to settle this and other still unresolved issues of nuclear arms control.

It took about 2½ years for U.S. and Soviet diplomats to come to terms on a treaty to restrict antimissile defenses and on a parallel first step agreement to limit numbers of land-based intercontinental ballistic missiles and submarine-launched ballistic missiles. With that precedent, it is reasonable to expect years of wrangling before the United States and the Soviet Union can reach accord on ceilings for multiple warheads, bombers, and shorter-range missiles—if they ever do agree.

Meanwhile, Pentagon officials are certain the Russians will work hard to overcome a strong U.S. lead in deploying multiple independently targetable warheads—MIRVs.

MIRVs are warheads which launch in clusters aboard a single missile, then separate to hit targets up to several hundreds of miles apart. Since the arms limitation agreements were signed in late May, U.S. reconnaissance satellites have detected a new series of Soviet research and development tests of MIRV-type devices.

Analysis of the tests showed the Russians are making progress toward perfecting MIRV guidance technology and all-important accuracy which have eluded them in the past.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird told Congress June 20 that the Russians could move into the next stage, flight-testing of MIRV warheads, as early as six to nine months from now.

Over-all, it should take the Russians several more years before they can have a significant number of combat-ready MIRVs on their missiles. The U.S.-Soviet agreement assures the Russians of a 2,359 to 1,710 lead in ICBMs and submarine-launched ballistic missiles. This country's early mastery of MIRV technology is largely responsible for giving the United States a 5,700 to 2,500 margin in strategic nuclear warheads.

Both Air Force and Navy missile forces are well along in conversion to multiple warheads. Counting bomber loads, the United States will have an awesome 8,500 nuclear warheads in its strategic forces when the Minuteman and Poseidon conversions are finished within the next five years.

The Minuteman has a range of about 6,000 miles. The Polaris and Poseidon each range about 2,800 miles. Kissinger has projected that "We will have about three times as many warheads" as the Russians at the end of the five-year freeze on offensive missile launchers.

It is during this five-year period that the two sides pledge themselves to negotiate for more comprehensive limits on nuclear weaponry. But U.S. defense officials are doubtful the Russians will agree to any curbs on MIRV until they have caught up with the United States in multiple warheads.

Nixon administration leaders believe the first stage on limitation agreements came about because the United States bargained from a position of strength. Thus, they argue that the United States must push ahead with qualitative improvements in its offensive weaponry in order to maintain that strength.

Nixon said on June 22 that, unless Congress approves what he called a continuing offensive program, "the chance for a permanent agreement to limit such weapons would, in my opinion, be totally destroyed." But Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee told Laird June 21 that "it will destroy the whole spirit of the agreement if you persist... in seeking an advantage" with advanced strategic weapons.

The Nixon administration's plan for upgrading U.S. deterrent power contemplates replacing the oldest Polaris submarines, which cannot be converted to Poseidon, with 10 of the much bigger Trident subs. Each Trident would mount 24 missiles compared with 16 in the Polaris boats.

The Trident missile would have about twice the reach of the most advanced Polaris weapon. If Congress approves, the first Tridents could be in operation in 1978.

But congressional budget cutters are gagging at the $10-billion cost estimate for the Trident.

Another weapon the administration is proposing, although with a lower priority than the Trident sub, is the B1 bomber. This plane, intended to replace the elderly B52, is designed to penetrate the kind of sophisticated air defenses that Russia is likely to put up in the 1980s.

Among its other weapons, each B1 could hurl as many as 20 nuclear-tipped short-range missiles to knock out Soviet radar and antimissile sites and then attack Russian cities and military complexes.

Most U.S. bombers are B52s. The Air Force testified in March that 172 planes, nearly 40 per cent of the B52 force, may have structural defects. Affected are models built back in the 1950s.

Regardless of this, the administration is facing rough weather in Congress because the B1 prices out at about $46 million a copy for 241 proposed bombers.

The Russians never went in heavily for long-range bombers. They still have only about 140 compared with 511 in the American fleet.

But the Russians could be changing that strategy; they are known to have test flown a new supersonic swing-wing bomber code-named Breakfire.

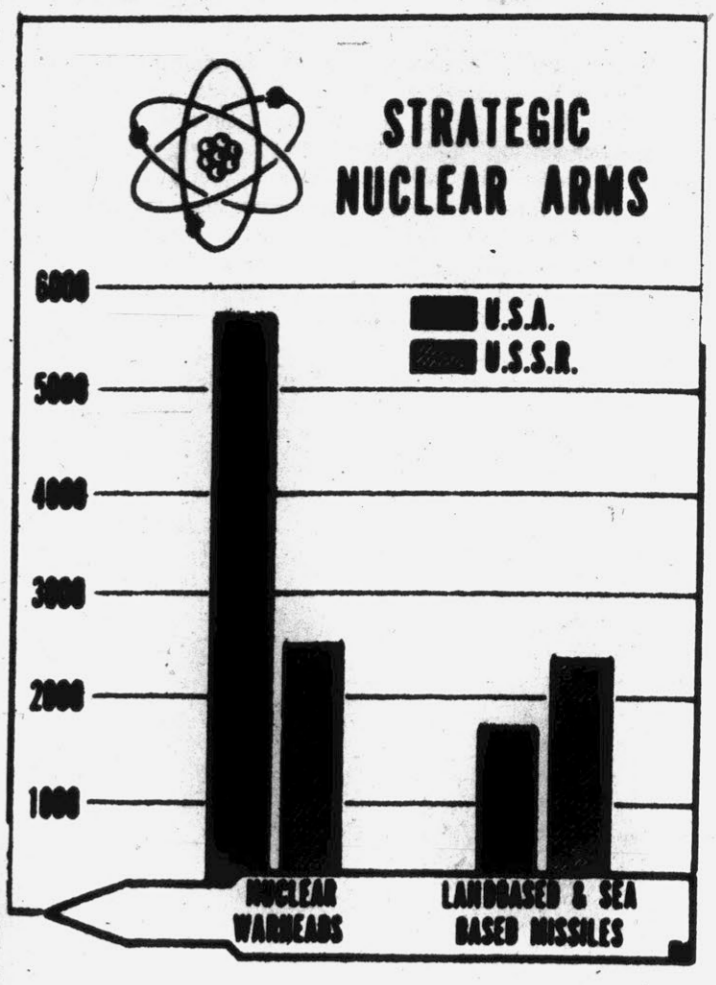

The antimissile treaty has aroused little controversy so far. In essence, it limits each side to one ABM site for defense of its national capital and one site for protection of a field of intercontinental ballistic missiles.

The pact stipulates a ceiling of 100 ABM interceptor missiles at each site, and restricts associated radars. The Russians have had an ABM complex with 64 launchers in place around Moscow for some time. The treaty would allow them to thicken that shield with 36 more defensive missiles.

The Soviet ICBM site to be protected under the treaty will be one located at least 300 miles from Moscow.

On the U.S. side, construction will continue on an ABM site to guard Minuteman missiles based in the area of Grand Forks, N.D. Work on the Washington site has not yet been authorized by Congress.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, AUGUST 4, 1972

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You find this day has so much activity in so many directions you have to stop and think now and then just what is happening to be able to bend your efforts with the tide of the day's events. Your best results come through using your fine mind and refusing to question charmers.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Ideal day to get together with partners and work out new and better arrangements, but do not fix your mate in any way. Regular routines can be made much more productive in the future. Adopt some modern ideas.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Think along lines of having far greater prosperity in the future and take the right steps now toward such end. Don't put your associate on the carpet. Get out and confer with bankers and business experts.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Concentrate on whatever is of a personal nature today and get such matters out of the way quickly and satisfactorily. A part of day spent on making your appearance more attractive is wise. A more sensible outlook on life is important now.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Analyze where it is best to direct your efforts and energy now so you can accomplish the most. Try to do something nice for one in trouble and something nice comes of this for you. Show you are a clever person.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Good friends are in the mood to do you big favors, so be sure you show you are appreciative. You have to tone down your temper, or you lose out on benefits. This can be a gala social evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Do whatever will improve your position with bigwigs and the public in general, and do not forget that civic work you handle so well. Take care of that credit matter that has been bugging you. Reach right decision early.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have wonderful and practical ideas now that should be put to use for your advancement. Being analytical is important. Show others that you are a most capable person. Dress well.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Being enthusiastic about the work you have to do brings the results you want and helps you be a perfectionist. Take the health treatments you need during spare time. Do not permit others to downgrade you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Take the bugs out of any association matters, or other dealings. Do not permit some public annoyance to disturb you, your equilibrium. Take time for real enjoyment with mate in p.m.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Know what bigwigs expect of you and try to please them now, and you get the support you want easily from them. Add that new item to your wardrobe that makes you more attractive. Think constructively.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You are able to get into the new kinds of recreations that appeal to you, so plan to do so with congenials, or make plans to do so later on. Show more affection for mate. This leads to far better understanding.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Listen to what others have to suggest so you can have more harmony and happiness at home, and you cut down on delays, deliberations. Add new pieces to home that make it more charming. Improve the decor.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those very active young people who will require much attention early to avoid mischief, getting hurt, etc. Guidance is needed to place the fine energy in this chart in right channels. The field of selling would be ideal here, whether male or female, and this can lead to great things, since there is much mental ability. Give as much education as your youngster will take.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

City Teachers Report Aug. 23

Greenville City School pupils will report for the 1972-73 school year for the first time August 25. But according to superintendent of schools Dr. C. C. Cleewood the first day of school for teachers will be August 23. August 23 and 24, (Wednesday and Thursday) the school official said, have been set at teacher work days, allowing instructors to prepare for the students arrival Friday, August 25.

The remainder of the city schools calendar for the year includes: Monday, August 28, begin first school month; Monday, September 4, Labor Day Holiday; Wednesday, November 1, student holiday — teacher work day; Friday, November 10, student holiday — NCAE District Meeting; Thursday and Friday, November 23 and 24, Thanksgiving Holidays; Thursday December 21 through January 1 (inclusive), Christmas Holidays; Friday January 19, student holiday — teacher work day; Thursday and Friday, April 19 and 20 Monday and Tuesday, April 23 and 24, Easter Holidays; Wednesday May 23, student holiday — teacher work day; Thursday, May 31, last day of school; Friday June 1, teacher work day.

In addition to the regular school calendar, Dr. Cleewood said school employees — as approved by the city Board of Education — will receive holidays that include September 4, Labor Day; November 23 and 24, Thanksgiving; December 22, 25, and 26, Christmas; January 1, New Years; and April 20 and 23, Easter.

MALE PRESIDENT BELMONT, N.C. (AP) — Dr. Jacob Fisher, a Catholic layman, has been chosen as the first male president of Sacred Heart College, an 80-year-old women's school operated by the Catholic Sisters of Mercy.

Excuses Don't Tell The Story

Here's a puzzle for you psychological detectives! Despite Fred Lowe's superb sales pressure and logical reasons, his superiors kept using "excuses." These meant they were not verbalizing their inner feelings. Why?

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

Case U-52: A few weeks before his sudden death, Fred Lowe and I had lunch in New York.

As Promotion Manager of the JOURNAL AMERICAN, Fred was keenly interested in zooming its circulation.

And he had a keen insight into what readers like.

"George," he grumbled, "your column could bring us almost 50,000 letters per year, for I've seen what it did at other big dailies.

"But I can't persuade the powers that be.

"For they think you are too

frank!"

Newspaper Hypocrisy "Fred," I protested, "how can they make such a charge against my educational column when right here on the front page they cite rape cases, homosexual orgies and other pornographic episodes?"

"What office case have I described that makes them claim I am too frank?"

Fred said when we got back to the JOURNAL AMERICAN office he'd show me the case on which they based their charges.

And can you readers guess what they objected to so strenuously?

It is to laugh!

For I simply answered the worries of a young, expectant mother, who had asked if she could "mark" her baby by her fears or thoughts.

She had also inquired if the mother's blood circulated in the vessels of her unborn child?

And if a mother could thus infect her infant prior to birth by diseases she might have at the time.

I had used the terms uterus (womb), as well as the other medical term placenta (afterbirth) and umbilical cord.

That case was almost a duplicate of this week's Case U-550.

The word "sex" wasn't even mentioned nor did I use such euphemistic terms as "erotic" and "erotic calories."

And I had no occasion in that simple medical explanation to employ the phrase "boudoir cheesecake."

So you readers may wonder why a large Hearst newspaper would act so squeamish?

Especially when William Randolph Hearst, Sr., who built up the great chain of Hearst newspapers, had sent a wire to his west coast dailies, urging all of them to use this "Worry Clinic" column.

So why should his New York newspaper suddenly grow so prudish?

And be so inconsistent as to spurge on Page One with rape, assault, homosexual cases, etc., while retching over an innocuous medical case of the sort we use in the schools to explain child birth.

Well, if you had been enrolled in my "Sales Psychology" courses at Northwestern University, you'd say: And you students in journalism colleges might be doubly interested in delving into the real explanation. For when star salesmen cite sound reasons to buy, but the prospect still offers illogical excuses, there is an underlying explanation which the prospect hasn't verbalized.

A cardinal rule in our college "Sales Psychology" courses is to urge a deeper analysis of the underlying, unexpressed "excuses."

Why do you readers think the JOURNAL AMERICAN thus called that simple medical case "a salacious piece of copy, unfit for a family newspaper?"

Send for my booklet "The Psychology of Advertising and Selling," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents when you send for one of his booklets.)

Pet Llamas Will Retire To Farm

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — Two pet South American llamas will be giving up city life for the farm, ending complaints from neighbors.

The owner of 3-year-old Dolly and Paco, Dr. E. H. Rentschler, a neurosurgeon, has been ordered by the San Mateo Planning Commission to get rid of the 400-pound animals.

"I got calls from Bowie, Texas, and Olympia, Wash., from people who would put them up," said Rentschler. "A woman in Woodside (Calif.)

drove up in the biggest Rolls Royce I ever saw and offered to let me keep the animals on 20 acres she owned."

The solution came when the owner of a large Mendocino County farm 90 miles north of San Francisco offered a haven for the furry creatures.

Rentschler formed a partnership with the owner to raise a little llama or two.

with the ace of clubs to force dummy again, although his partner's play of a low club at the first trick suggested that the latter did not have the queen.

South was now in full control of the proceedings. He led the king of hearts from dummy and East ducked. The ten was continued and East put up the ace to return a club. South played the queen on which he discarded North's jack of diamonds. The queen of hearts drew East's remaining trump. A diamond put dummy in to ruff out West's king of spades and establish the North hand to take the rest of the tricks. Declarer made five hearts, losing only one spade and the ace of hearts.

If West shifts to a diamond when he is in with the queen of spades, the king of diamonds is played and a small heart is led from dummy which, we will presume, East ducks. A heart is continued to the ten and if East plays the ace and returns a third round of trumps to North's king, South ruffs out the king of spades to establish dummy's suit. The ace of diamonds puts North in to run the spades for 10 tricks and a diamond is surrendered at the end.

At the other table, North chose to overcall in spades over West's third-seat opening bid and now a final contract of four spades was reached. Two spade losers and the ace of hearts were unavoidable and when the diamond finesse lost, North suffered a one-trick setback on the deal.

The Italians netted a profit of 50 points for defeating four spades at one table and 450 for making five hearts at the other for a total profit on the deal of 500 points, losing only one spade and the ace of hearts.

Italy gained ground in today's hand, taken from the final round in their 1972 World Bridge Olympiad victory over the United States, by uncovering a superior contract.

West opened the bidding after two passes with one club. Pietro Forquet, seated North for Italy, made a takeout double. Although he held a six-card spade suit, he also had good support for the other major which makes the double superior to a mere overcall. East's raise to two clubs was a mild preempt, but South with 10 high-card points was not to be shut out and he freely bid two hearts. West's jump to four clubs was an effort to continue the preempt. North persisted to four hearts which closed the auction.

The king of clubs was opened and trumped in dummy as East followed suit with the three. A spade was led to the ace, followed by the jack and West was in with the queen. He persisted

Libraries Will Show 3 Films For Children

Three short films for children will be shown during children's hour at East Branch, Carver, and Sheppard Libraries Friday, Tuesday, and Wednesday. The East Branch program is Friday at 4 p.m.; the Carver Branch, Tuesday at 3:30 p.m.; and the Sheppard Library Children's Room Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. The three films to be featured are "The Moods of Surfing," an artistic interpretation of riding the big wave; "Time of the Horn," the fantasy of a small boy who finds a discarded trumpet in an alley waste can; and "Toot, Whistle, Plunk, and Boom," an animated cartoon demonstrating the origin and development of musical instruments.

Relationship Is Rarely Seen

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI)—American high school students don't see much relationship between the things they do in school and the world of work most of them eventually will enter. This is one of the findings of the most recent Purdue Opinion Poll.

Air Pirates Said To Be 'Avowed Black Militants'

By TONY LEDWELL
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Five avowed black militants who commandeered a jetliner to Algeria with a $1 million ransom told the crew they were fleeing a "decadent America" to join other disgruntled blacks in the northern African country, the captain of the airliner said.

Want Free Education Of Retarded

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Association for Retarded children has asked a federal court to require the state of North Carolina to provide "free public education and habilitation" for school age retarded children.

Jere Annis of Raleigh, president of the association, said Wednesday a suit filed in federal court last May has been amended to include the demand.

Annis said the original suit was amended to "call the attention of the court specifically to the conditions in our four institutions for the retarded." He said these preclude education, training and normal lives for retarded children.

According to Annis there are 50,000 to 75,000 school-age children in North Carolina with some degree of mental retardation.

The suit as amended now asserts that "free public education, training and habilitation shall be made available to all school-age retardates without any basis of discrimination and regardless of whether they reside in the community or centers and institutions for the retarded."

The 1971 General Assembly approved spending up to $1,200 per child to pay tuition of some retarded children in private schools, but did not appropriate funds to finance the program.

At a news conference, Annis said that parents of mentally retarded children in the state centers must pay a fee for the children's care, according to their financial ability.

Won Degree In A Hurry

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A Drake University student has earned a bachelor of arts degree in a record time of one year, three months and seven days, university officials report.

They said Wednesday that Mark Willey, 19, Maquoketa, Iowa, set the Drake record principally by gaining 62 hours of courses at Drake after passing tests in the College Level Examination Program. He also went to summer school full time.

"I wanted to graduate as soon as possible," Willey said. "I don't like taking courses, and I don't like going to school just to get grades."

Willey began in the fall of 1970 at the University of Iowa as a psychology major. He transferred to Drake in the summer of 1971, changed his major to sociology and completed a 3.22 grade point average out of a possible 4 points.

After graduation, he volunteered for the draft and is now in the Army's Military Police school at Ft. Gordon, Ga.

At Convention In Honolulu

Mrs. Pennie J. Dunn of Greenville attended the 26th Retail Clerks International Convention in Honolulu, Hawaii recently.

Accompanied by her husband, Henry Dunn Jr., represented Retail Clerks Local No. 204 of Greenville, composed of employees of Big Star and Kroger's Stores. She was one of 38 North Carolina members who attended.

She was appointed by President James T. Housewright to be a member of the convention's resolutions committee. Some well-known speakers were former vice presidential nominee Thomas F. Eagleton Secretary of Labor, James Hodgson, Rep. Patsy Mink, Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, Hawaiian Gov. John A. Burns, and Hawaiian Senate Pres. David C. McClung.

said he asked the air pirates why they wanted to leave the United States when they hijacked his Delta Airlines DC-8 Detroit-to-Miami flight Monday.

"They said they were a Black Panther group and this (Algeria) is where their brothers live," May told newsmen Wednesday night several hours after the four-engine aircraft returned to Atlanta from the 11,500-mile trip. The crew had an overnight stay in Barcelona, Spain, after leaving Algiers.

"They said America is a decadent society and they didn't want to live here any more," May said.

The 41-year-old captain a 20-year Delta veteran, said the hijackers requested that exiled Black Panther leader Eldridge Cleaver meet the plane at Algiers but Black Panthers in the Algerian capital said they doubted the hijackers were members of their party.

The five adults and three small children who comprised the hijacking band were whisked off the plane while the four stewardesses and three Delta officers were ordered to remain in their seats, May said. The Algerian government is holding the group incommunicado and has seized the ransom money, apparently the highest amount ever paid in a skyjacking incident.

Meanwhile, the FBI in Atlanta announced that two of the hijackers were escaped prisoners—one convicted of murder who apparently was dressed as a priest when he boarded the aircraft.

Agents said George Wright, 29, of Detroit, who was using the name of Larry Burgess, was serving time for murder when he escaped from a state prison at Leesburg, N. J., on Aug. 22, 1970.

Another man identified as part of the hijacking band, George Brown, 28, alias Harry Singleton, also escaped from the New Jersey facility the same day while serving time for armed robbery, the FBI said.

Air piracy charges were filed in Miami against Wright, Brown, Joyce Tillerson, 21; Melvin McNair, 24, and Jean Carol Allen McNair, 25. All were residents of Detroit.

Several of the 86 passengers who boarded the plane in Detroit said the hijackers had three small children with them. The passengers were allowed to deplane in Miami when a single FBI agent clad, as ordered by the air pirates, in a swim suit delivered a 70-pound satchel stuffed with $50 and $100 bills totaling $1 million.

At the news conference, the captain said he realized the aircraft was being hijacked when he left the cockpit to go to the lavatory and noticed a man holding a gun on a stewardess.

One of the hijackers cocked his pistol at a stewardess, Jame J. Mays of Macon, Ga., while the plane was in Miami, May said. The stewardess has been with the airlines less than two months.

"They did it as a threat when they thought their instructions were not going to be carried out," the captain said.

May said he saw three guns, "pistols and automatics." He

Waldheim Plans To Visit China
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim is going to visit China.

A U.N. spokesman announced Wednesday that Waldheim will leave here Aug. 9 and fly to Shanghai by way of Paris. He will be in China until Aug. 15.

Since taking office Jan. 1, the former Austrian diplomat has visited the other four permanent members of the Security Council — Britain, France, the Soviet Union and the United States.

Two of the hijackers smoked marijuana "continuously" during the flight and strolled between the cockpit and the cabin frequently, May said. He said one of the men told him it was marijuana.

It was the first Delta aircraft ordered to fly to Algeria and the first hijacking experience for each of the seven members of the crew.

In addition to the million-dollar ransom, a Delta spokesman said it cost $21,600, including fuel and salaries for the crew, to fly the huge plane to Algeria and back.

It was not more specific during the hurried 10-minute news conference.
