Ghost Town

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent

CAM RANH BAY, Vietnam (AP) — The love letter, tumbling across the sands, was scrawled in girlish handwriting.

A few paragraphs of erotic description concluded: "Destroy this letter when you've read it, please." The boy friend instead had stuffed it into a garbage can, and the monsoon's breezes, the first in seven months, had scattered it.

Hanging on a line were a pair of shrunken socks. A sign nailed to the door of a massage parlor read "Open Now." Traffic lights at the main intersection bore the sign: "Times Square."

And marching off across the sand dunes, their aluminum roofs glinting in the sunshine, were the sprawling Army, Navy and Air Force installations of what some American officers once hoped would be a permanent U.S. presence in Vietnam, a Guantanamo in Asia.

No jeeps waited for the lights to change at Times Square. The vast supply warehouses and hangars were empty. The nearly 40,000 Americans who carved Cam Ranh base out of a desert wilderness, and manned it for six years, have gone home.

Yet the still, burning days seem to have suspended Cam Ranh base in time, like the old ghost towns in Nevada and Arizona.

The illusion of occupancy is strong, but a changing war and changing American policies combined to consign the $250-million base to the garbage pile.

A few Vietnamese troops have moved in. But the vast air bases and warehouses, handed over officially to the Saigon government June 1, are not likely to be used again. The base was an American dream, not a Vietnamese one.

Army authorities say many of the warehouses and camps had a life expectancy on only six to eight years, and most are expected to be dilapidated in a year or so.

The Vietnamese intend to establish some kind of logistics command here, and the wharves will be kept open. The vast installations, however, swallow up the few Vietnamese.

There's also a major security problem. There have been more sapper attacks in the past three months than at any previous time in the war.

The fate of Cam Ranh Bay seems more likely to be that experienced by the An Khe Valley base camp of the U.S. 1st Cavalry Division. That installation was torn down to its foundations by corrupt Vietnamese officers and entrepreneurs. The Dong Ba Tin helicopter base outside Cam Ranh has been partially razed in similar style.

Departure of the Americans has diminished hopes of making Cam Ranh an industrial region for private enterprise. The Vietnamese have always regarded the climate here as insufferable.

The few Americans left roam the peninsula like the last survivors of a doomed civilization, smiling at signs on empty roads that read, "Go slow, congested area." The shifting sands are already covering some of the back highways. The approaching monsoon with its torrential rain is expected to bring quick ruin. Cam Ranh seems headed on the same road to oblivion taken by such World War II bases as Guadalcanal and Saipan.

Clark Says American Prisoners Are Healthy

SAIGON (UPI)—Former U.S. Attorney General Ramsey Clark said in Hanoi Saturday the health of American prisoners of war in North Vietnam is "better than mine. And I am a healthy man."

Clark, on a two-week inspection tour of North Vietnam, made the remark in a speech later broadcast over Radio Hanoi. The broadcast, in Ramsey's voice, apparently carried the speech in full.

Clark said he was permitted to visit a U.S. prison camp.

"There, without any inhibition or restriction whatsoever, I was given an opportunity to talk with 10 prisoners for more than two hours on any subject any of us chose," he said.

"If you worry about their health, it's better than mine. And I am a healthy man."

Later in the day, Radio Hanoi broadcast a report of the speech and a subsequent question-and-answer session. To a question concerning the POW's living conditions, the radio quoted Clark as saying "they could not be better."

Clark, according to Radio Hanoi, said he was "particularly touched" by the hygienic conditions at the POW camp. He said U.S. pilots "have been given permanent medical and dental consultations."

During his stay, Clark said, "I have been afforded an unrestricted opportunity to talk freely, privately, with the leaders of your villages and cities and nation. I have been free to walk the streets of the cities where I wish to, to walk along the paths in the villages and the paths on the tops of the dikes.

Clark said he traveled more than 600 miles through North Vietnamese villages, cities and provinces. "There have been no efforts that I could detect to influence me or prejudice my judgment," he said. "I have been permitted to talk freely on any subject with any person."

The former Johnson administration attorney general reiterated his previous statements calling for an end to U.S. bombing in North Vietnam.

Clark is visiting North Vietnam with a group sponsored by the International Committee of Inquiry into U.S. Crimes in Indochina. The group is investigating alleged bombings of nonmilitary targets.

In The News
Phillips Says School Facilities Are 'Inadequate'

GREENSBORO (AP) — North Carolina School Supt. Craig Phillips, terming the state's school facilities "totally inadequate," says a statewide bond issue of $300-$500 million is needed to provide additional facilities.

Phillips proposed the bond issue in a prepared talk Friday to an occupational education conference.

He told the vocational teachers, "Too many of you are teaching in totally inadequate facilities and any expansion of programs will necessitate additional facilities."

Phillips said occupational education would benefit greatly from such a bond issue, "perhaps more than any other one phase of the total school program."

He added, "As the question of a school bond issue is considered, I hope you will share this need with your legislators and your patrons."

Phillips said that "in the nitty-gritty area of school finance, the pendulum is swinging back from a no-tax, no new money atmosphere. School bond issues and special school tax levies are being approved with more frequency."

Love Birds

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Two parakeets which apparently escaped from cages have met and fallen in love.

They are building a nest together. Bird watchers have photographed the nest in West Asheville, but won't say where it is lest curious people disturb the domestic tranquility.

Authorities say parakeets once flew wild in North Carolina, but were wiped out by man.

Total Defoliation

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The near-total defoliation of some 1,000 acres of rolling hillsides and bluffs reported in southwestern Wisconsin will come under investigation by the state next week.

Officials of the Department of Natural Resources and the Department of Agriculture said Friday they would look into the charges made by Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis.

Nelson claims a few Grant County landowners contracted with the Northair Helicopter Corp. of Rolla, Mo., to illegally spray 600 to 1,000 acres between Prairie du Chien and Lancaster with the defoliant 2,-4,5-T. The site is located near the Wisconsin River and the Mississippi River.

Nelson claims the area was sprayed "to convert the forest and marsh land to pasture land for beef cattle" of the landowners.

"The helicopter company, which guaranteed a kill rate of 90 per cent, did its damage on butternuts, walnuts, American elms, at least two varieties of oak, basswood and hard maples," he said.

'Scary'

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Sheriff's deputies were about to put David Mixon of Cleveland into a cell to begin serving time when they discovered he was carrying a loaded revolver.

When informed that Mixon had the gun with him during his courtroom hearing Friday, Common Pleas Judge Bernard Friedman remarked, "Scary, isn't it?"

Mixon was found guilty of assaulting his wife and had been free on bond prior to the hearing.

'Go Navy'

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — You're broke and stranded in Puerto Rico. What do you do?

Edward Curly, 20, of Newburyport, Mass., solved the problem by hitching a free ride back to the U.S. aboard a Navy frigate, the Josephus Daniels.

Curly was unmasked as a stowaway aboard the Navy ship when it docked here Friday, three days after sailing from from San Juan.

Red-faced Navy officials explained that Curly wasn't discovered until the ship reached port because 11 male civilians already were aboard as participants in a "Go Navy" cruise designed to attract enlistees.

An FBI spokesman said Friday night that the U.S. attorney's office declined to prosecute Curly and he was released.

Presumably, said the FBI agent, he's hitchhiking home.

UNC Speakers

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — Syndicated columnist Jack Anderson and Irish activist Bernadette Devlin are among five speakers booked by the Student Union at the University of North Carolina this fall.

Anderson will speak Dec. 1 and Miss Devlin Oct. 26.

Matilda And Milton

PEKING (AP) — Matilda and Milton are well and thriving.

The two musk oxen are President Nixon's gift to China. Both arrived ill, Matilda with a case of pneumonia and Milton with a stubborn skin rash.

Matilda recovered quickly, but Milton's rash was not cured until he was bathed several times in Chinese herb medicine, according to their keeper, Ou Wang Kan.

The two have their own house next to the pandas and are big attractions at the Peking Zoo. They also receive loving care from Mrs. Ou.

"Milton was a little shy at first," she said, "but he is all right now."

Organized Crime

RALEIGH (AP) — The director of the North Carolina Bureau of Investigation says his agency plans to spend "more time on domestic organized criminal activities" in its stepped-up drive against crime.

Charles Dunn said in an interview Friday his agency is also going to be trying to find out more about out-of-state organized criminal activities.

"Once we get into it, the direction will be determined by what we come up with," he said.

The U.S. Justice Department has approved a $182,000 grant which will enable the SBI to create a special task force to combat organized crime.

Dunn said there are highly mobile organized gangs who commit armed robberies, crack safes and engage in other crimes in North Carolina. He declined to name the cities in which the gangs are based.

Holshouser Sees Good Response

Republican gubernatorial hopeful Jim Holshouser was in town Friday afternoon, winding up a week-long campaign tour through Eastern North Carolina.

"I've been really excited about the response we have gotten," Holshouser said as he told newsmen, "We 'll be back a great deal" before the November elections.

At a news conference held before making a hand-shaking tour of downtown Greenville, the candidate said President Nixon is "running very strong in North Carolina, and more and more..' the people of the state are feeling that "George McGovern (the Democratic party's candidate) is not our kind of folks." He noted that "this growing feeling" is an aid to the Republican Party's chances to occupy the state capitol for the next four years.

The Democrats' difficulty with their vice-presidential candidate "is not a death blow to the party," Holshouser noted, but the people, he said, will be "voting to keep sane, stable government in Washington." He said, too, that Republicans, with Democratic help, will "try to bring about a real honest-to-goodness change in Raleigh."

Holshouser told newsmen that he has found "general frustration" among Eastern North Carolina residents because they are paying high gasoline taxes "but don't seem to be getting good road systems."

He said the people on the coast want to be able to travel good roads to inland area. People want to get to the beaches and farmers want to have good roads over which to move their produce to market" or to visit Aunt Sally."

"I have the feeling the road system is lagging far behind what we have a right to expect," he said.

Holshouser said road construction should be taken out of politics. "We need to get new faces and new blood in Raleigh."

He said many Democrats will be voting Republican in November because they feel their party has let them down.

The McGovern nomination "helped this feeling more than anything else," he said.

Holshouser expressed concern over the possible passage of a referendum to come before the voters in November on the question of giving 18-year-olds the right to vote, and suggested the measure be defeated.

"It is most ironic" he explained, that the wording of the amendment "would prohibit the same young people to have the chance to run for office," and suggested a more equitable measure could be adopted.

Heaviest Strikes Of War Made By B52 Bombers Saturday

By DONALD A. DAVIS

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. Air Force B52 bombers threw their heaviest one-day punch of the war in 43 strikes over North and South Vietnam Saturday as tank-led Communist troops mauled a government paratrooper company near Quang Tri.

Seven Americans and seven South Vietnamese were killed in two separate airplane crashes during attempted take-offs from bases in the South.

About 120 of the swept-wing Stratofortresses dumped an average of more than two tons of bombs a minute in attacks that ranged from the Mekong Delta in South Vietnam to North Vietnam's panhandle. Each of the eight-engine jets, which normally attack in flights of three planes each, is capable of carrying 30 tons of bombs.

The U.S. command said a record 13 missions were flown over the north and 30 more strikes hit targets in South Vietnam during the 24 hours ending at noon Saturday.

Thieu Champions Bombing

No strikes were closer than 180 miles to the Hanoi-Haiphong area in North Vietnam, the command said.

A command spokesman said the previous high number of B52 strikes was 36 missions flown last July 4. Never before had more than nine missions been flown over North VIetnam.

South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu urged in a radio broadcast Friday that the United States keep up the bombing pressure against North Vietnam. Thieu said the bombing halt in 1968, which he argued against, resulted in "700 North Vietnamese tanks and 15 divisions concentrated against South Vietnam."

More than 100 elite South Vietnamese paratroopers were killed or wounded in defeating the tank-led Communist assault as they protected the left flank of the drive to recapture Quang Tri City.

Two Planes Crash

The casualties suffered in the two-pronged attack on company elements three and four miles southwest of Quang Tri marked one of the largest South Vietnamese losses since the start of their counteroffensive June 28.

A spokesman for the Saigon command said 22 Communists were killed in the battle. He said no paratroopers were killed in the battle closest to Quang Tri and casualties in the other fight were unknown.

A U.S. Air Force C130 cargo plane carrying 38 passengers and a crew estimated at six crashed Saturday after sustaining engine trouble at takeoff from Soc Trang air base, 90 miles southwest of Saigon. The U.S. command said six Americans and seven Vietnamese were killed, and five Americans and an undetermined number of Vietnamese were injured.

At Da Nang, a small U.S. Army OV1 observation plane also crashed on takeoff, killing one crewman and injuring the other, the command said.

Soviets' First Aircraft Carrier

By WARREN L. NELSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt Jr., chief of Naval operations, has told Congress he believes the Soviet Union is building its first aircraft carrier —a move that would enable the Russians to project military might far from their shores for the first time in history.

Zumwalt, in testimony to a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee, said the Soviets "are in the process of constructing the largest ship ever built in the (Nikolayev) docks...a ship looks and feels like anaircr aft carrier." The testimony was made in March but not released until Saturday.

The United States Navy considers its 16 aircraft carriers to be its capital or principal warships. The carrier, expensive to build and operate, is a rarity in the world's navies and the United States owns two thirds of the world's total. Only six other countries have any — Britain and France each have two and Australia, India, Argentina and Brazil have one each.

Despite attempts by both the Czarist and communist regimes to make the Russian Navy an imposing force, it remained until the last decade little more than a glorified coast guard.

With mobile air power, military analysts say, the Soviet Union could intimidate smaller countries far from its shores and threaten military action in areas normally immune to the blandishments of the powerful but European land-oriented Russian military machine.

The Soviet Mediterranean fleet, which daily comes up against two U. S. aircraft carriers, would be a prime candidate to operate the new carrier. In the past the Russians have made up for their lack of carriers by using air bases in Egypt.

Those land-based claims pinpointed the locations of U. S. ships and protected their own surface ships from air attack. Now that the Russians appear to have lost those land bases, the carrier Zumwalt described takes on added significance for the Soviet fleet.

Reports that a Soviet carrier was under construction have circulated for several months but Zumwalt's statement was the first official confirmation. at Pentagon sources put the ship at about 30,000 tons which would make it twice as large as the biggest existing Soviet warship, but only the same size as the smallest American carrier and far from the equal of the 95,000-ton nuclear carrier Nimitz launched by the United States in April.

CHARGED WITH MURDER. . .Mrs. Celeste Van Landingham as she was led by her attorney, Ed Hollowell, after her arrival at Walk County Courthouse Friday to face charges of murder in pistol slaying of Dr. Alice Pugh McInnis. (AP Wirephoto)

Woman Charged With Murder

RALEIGH (AP) — A 50-year-old divorcee is in jail without privilege of bond pending a hearing Thursday on a charge of first degree murder in the pistol slaying of her employer, Dr. Alice Pugh McInnis.

Mrs. Celeste Van Landingham, a lieutenant colonel in the Army Reserve, was charged Friday by the Wake County sheriff's department.

Dr. McInnis, 48-year-old pediatrician, was found shot to death Thursday in a room at her stables on her 60-acre farm 10 miles north of Raleigh. She had been shot three times with a .38-caliber pistol.

Mrs. Van Landingham, who managed the McInnis farm, went with her attorney, Ed Hollowell, to the Wake courthouse where the warrant was read to her by Chief Deputy Lester Kelly.

Kelly declined to answer questions from newsmen concerning the motive for the shooting. He said, "We are under orders from the court not to reveal certain aspects of the case. You'll have to find that out at the trial."

He did say officers had two pistols that had been found on the McInnis farm.

Mrs. Van Lanindingham lived in a house on the McInnis estate.

Officers said one of the pistols was found late Thursday night in a search of the Van Landingham house.

Mrs. Van Landingham was on active duty at Ft. Bragg from July 23 until Aug. 5. She served in the Army from 1944 until 1948 and then went back on active duty again from June, 1960, until May, 1963, when she got married. She and Joseph M. Van Landingham were divorced in March, 1966. They had no children.

Mrs. Van Landingham was a physical therapist and served in that capacity with the United States Olympic team in 1956 and 1960.

Assistant Wake Coroner Truman Rhodes said an ambulance was summoned to the farm by a neighbor, Carole Caniford, who found the body.

Dr. McInnis a native of Mount Pleasant, Tenn., was in medical practice with her brother, Dr. V. Watson Pugh. She is survived by a 19-year-old son, Kirk.

Her family lived in Oklahoma before settling in Raleigh in 1936. She was educated at a high school and at North Carolina State University in Raleigh, and Wake Forest University and the Bowman Gray School of Medicine in Winston-Salem. After graduating from medical school in 1947 she interned in Raleigh and New Orleans, did her medical residency in New Orleans and Denver, Colo., and began her pediatric practice in Raleigh in 1951.

Columbia Gets $325,000 For Damage

W. E. Dansey, First District Republican Chairman, announced Friday that the Economic Development Administration has approved a $325,000 grant to the town of Columbia for repairs to the municipality's damaged sewage system.

Dansey reported that the grant, which originally rejected by EDA, was approved after a review of the Columbia sewage situation. The town has suffered a deterioration of its sewer system in the last two years and the problem was determined to rest with the system's sewer base.

The chairman, who noted that the Tyrrell County is in the first district, said that officials have pursued the grant for some time in an effort to fund the repair project.

Columbia Mayor Clarence Cohoon reported that the grant should be sufficient to correct the sewer problem.

Flea Market Is Scheduled

The Greenville Collectors Club will hold a flea market Oct. 15, according to plans made when the Club met Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. Bessie Ross.

The group toured Mrs. Ross' home, viewing her collections of books, bottles, and depression glass. Guests from the Kinston Collectors Club were welcomed.

Anyone having any kind of collection or wishing to start one is invited to join the club, Mrs. Ross said. The members learn from one another about different types of collections, she said.

Recognizing The Women

Little Creek FWB Church will give special recognition to the women of their church in services this morning beginning at 11 a.m. During this observance, held annually, women will be in charge of the entire morning service. Music will be presented by an all-woman choir.

Mrs. Loree M. Durham, a member of the Woods Chapel FWB Church in Goldsboro, will be the guest speaker.

At 2 p.m. this afternoon, pastor of the church, the Rev. Jesse L. Wilson's birthday will be observed. The program is being sponsored by the Little Creek FWB Church and the Grifton Chapel Church. The program will include readings of literary works, with a dinner to follow.

The public is invited to attend.

228 Million Pounds Sold

RALEIGH (AP) — The Flue-Cured Tobacco Stabilization Cooperative has sold 228 million pounds of old-crop leaf from loan stocks since Jan. 1 compared to a total of 225 million during all of 1971.

Fred G. Bond, general manager of Stabilization, said Friday stocks of tobacco acquired under the federal price support program have been reduced to 430 million pounds, the lowest level in more than 10 years.

During the first 11 days of this month sales totaled 61 million pounds.

Lon Nol Faces Setback

PHNOM PENH (AP) — A week of military and political setbacks has left the government of Marshal Lon Nol virtually isolated, and many foreign observers are convinced Cambodia's latest troubles will get worse.

Slashing attacks by North Vietnamese and Viet Cong infantry, backed for the first time in Cambodia by Soviet-built T54 tanks, imperils what remains of the government's hold on one bank of the Mekong River.

The Cambodians hold the ferry crossing of Neak Luong, 30 miles southeast of Phnom Penh on Highway 1, and are barricaded at Svay Rieng and Prey Veng, two provincial capitals east of the Mekong which have been surrounded by the North Vietnamese and their red Khmer allies since mid-April. In addition, Cambodians hold a shaky 12 miles of Highway 1, the main road to Saigon, east of Neak Luong and are battling to keep half of the ruined district town of Kompong Trabek.

Ironically, Cambodia gave the North Vietnamese a chance to recapture Kompong Trabek. The High Command withdrew a division-sized garrison from Kompong Trabek to enable its commander, Col. Ith Suong, to parade in triumph through Phnom Penh as the "victor" of Kompong Trabek.

Ith Suong's men actually had only a supporting role when Kompong Trabek was retaken last month by a combined Cambodian-South Vietnamese task force. But the colonel is one of Lon Nol's military proteges and the victory parade came a day before the opening of the election campaign for 126 National Assembly seats.

Rather than fight a hopeless battle under an electoral law rigged against them, Cambodia's two main opposition parties have withdrawn from the Sept. 3 poll.

Two Wrecks Here Friday

There were no charges in either of two wrecks in Greenville Friday.

A 1:35 p.m. rear-end collision on Dickinson Avenue near its intersection with Ninth Street involved drivers whom police identified as Albert Crumbley of Rt. 2, Bailey and Benjamin L. Gardner of Rt. 1, Fountain.

Damages were estimated at $125 to Gardner's car and $50 to Crumbley's. Police called the accident unavoidable.

A three-car accident occurring at 4:50 p.m. at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and Hooker Road did an estimated $1,125 damage, police said.

Drivers were identified as Gary Dotton Woods of 307 E. Eighth St.; Tony Grove Avery of 102 Berkshire Rd., and Landon Earl Corbett of Winterville.

Last Combat Soldier Wounded

By KEN WAGNER

DA NANG, VIETNAM (UPI) —"I could have done without it."

Jim McVicker, a 20-year-old rifleman from Cascade, Idaho, reflected from a hospital bed on his dubious distinction of being the last combat soldier to be wounded while fighting with a U.S. unit in Vietnam.

McVicker stepped on a boobytrap in the jungle southwest of here Wednesday night, just two days before his unit—the 3rd Battalion, 21st Infantry—was deactivated. It was the only U.S. ground battalion still in the field.

Bandages encase both McVicker's legs where jagged shrapnel caused multiple wounds. And pads are held across both eyes by a rubber band that stretches around his head. A piece of metal hit above his left eye, and he must undergo an operation to have it removed.

There is a question about his sight. He will be flown next week from the U.S. 95th Evacuation Hospital here to Okinawa for further treatment.

Saturday, some buddies from his Delta Company platoon visited him. They joked, pushed each other around in wheelchairs, and bought cold drinks for McVicker and the six other guys in his ward.

Someone asked how he felt about being the last "grunt"—slang for infantryman—to be wounded in Vietnam.

"I could have done without it," he said. "But I will be all right. I have always been proud to be a grunt. We had a mission to do and we did it. I don't particularly care to be the last grunt wounded, but someone had to be."

McVicker had worked in northern California's Lassen State Park before going into the Army for a tour in Germany and then serving 11 months in Vietnam. He had planned to become a policeman with the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department when he was discharged.

He recalled Saturday a letter he had written to a California editor, in which he said "lots of people are humping over here and getting hurt so that others will not have to come over later."

The last infantryman to be wounded in Vietnam said he still feels that way. "I'm a dedicated American and proud of it," he said.

Fire Near

By CHRISTOPHER OGDEN

MOSCOW (UPI)—An army of 16,500 Russian soldiers, firemen and civilians battled stubborn peat fires raging within 30 miles of Moscow Saturday. A milky blanket of smoke reduced visibility in the Soviet capital to 500 yards.

Firefighters used everything from helicopters to street-sprayers to combat the fires, started by spontaneous combustion about three weeks ago, which have scorched thousands of acres in a crescent 30 to 60 miles east of Moscow.

There were no reports of human injury or the extent of property damage, but the newspaper Moscow Pravda called the fires a "calamity."

Tens of thousands of women, children and old men in the fire zone were being moved from their homes to community centers, hospitals and tent cities.

Thick, white smoke enveloped Moscow for the sixth straight day. Visibility was reduced to about 500 yards during the morning, but increased slightly later.

City officials said the smoke presents no hazard to health, but extreme precautions were in effect.

Trucks were barred from entering the city and cars which emitted excessive exhaust fumes were ordered off the streets.

Muscovites seeking relief from the 95-degree heat of the hottest, driest summer in more than 100 years found beaches, parks and other recreational areas closed to prevent new fires being ignited by careless vacationers.

Moscow authorities sent 200 water-spraying street-cleaning trucks to the burning areas where 1,000 bulldozers, tractors and road scrapers already were ripping up the peat to get at the underground fires.

Collision Hurts One

A Raleigh girl was injured in a 1:30 p.m. collision at the intersection of Third and Pitt Streets here.

The driver of the car in which the injured Jacqueline Dare Honeycutt was riding, was identified by police as Susan Baskett Seymour of B-21 Glendale Court, and was charged with failure to stop for a stop sign.

The other driver was identified as Zenobia Forbes Hines of 1401 W. Third St., Greenville.

Damages to the cars were estimated at $600 to Miss Seymour's and $500 to Mrs. Hines'.

CONSTRUCTION BOSS. . .Though women continue to make headway into all types of formerly all-male professions, female contractors are still a rarity. One of the few members in their professional group is Susanna Susi. (AP Wirephoto)

Easy To Spot Contractor

MIAMI (AP) — It's easy to spot the contractor at a construction site in Miami. Just look for the leggy blonde who's drawing all the whistles.

Susanni Susi, a 36-year-old divorcee who is a vice president of Miramar Construction Co., says she is used to the experience of walking onto a site and finding the workers more interested in her construction than the building's.

"The people in construction are tough," she says in a soft Latin accent. "It's not a sophisticated business like banking. I keep it in mind always that I don't want to lose my feminity, so I handle them with a smile."

Miss Susi was born in Turkey and moved to Cuba as a child when her father went to that country to search for gold. Ten years ago, the family moved to Miami and her brother, Robert, started the construction firm.

She worked in a bank for five years before joining her brother, starting out in the bookkeeping department.

Today, she is the contractor on a large condominium project in South Miami and handles about 800 rental units, in addition to serving as the company's social director, decorating consultant and unofficial personnel director.

Miss Susi, who has a 14-year old daughter, Dania, said that when company employes have a problem, "they usually come to me to talk. When friction starts, you have to be able to cool the people and get the work done."

To become a contractor, she had to learn how steel girders are handled, how cement is used and dozens of other technical details, as well as how to finish a job with a profit.

"I told my father that he brought me up all wrong — you know, teaching me piano, sewing and how to be a lady," she smiles. "And here I end up in the construction business."

Average $86

RALEIGH (AP) — The opening week of sales on seven Eastern North Carolina Belt flue-cured tobacco markets brought a record price average of $86.26 per hundred pounds.

The Federal-State Market News Service reported this was an increase of $9.26 per hundred over the first three days of sales in 1971, when all 17 Eastern Belt markets were open.

Sales for opening week totaled 8,319,081 pounds, compared to the 30,386,755 pounds sold last year when all the markets in the belt opened together.

The percentage of sales placed under government loan was the smallest in the history of the belt. The Stabilization Corp. received only 3,270 pounds of tobacco. Last season, 5.1 per cent or 1,560,424 pounds were placed under loan the first three days of sales.

The belt will begin full operations Aug. 22.

On the South Carolina and Border North Carolina Belt markets, the demand for tobacco leveled off somewhat during the third week of auctions, but showed no other signs of weakening.

The news service said the weekly average rose to another record high of $86.26 per hundred—85 cents above the record set last week. Gross sales totaled 37,050,063 pounds.

The strong demand for tobacco brought averages closer to a one-price market of $87 per hundred for most grades. More than 85 per cent of the tobacco sold within a narrow range of $86 to $88 per hundred.

Stabilization Corp. receipts were the lightest of any week this season.

Wallace To Enter Alabama Mule

BENSON, N.C. (AP) — Gov. George Wallace of Alabama says he will enter a homegrown animal in the national governor's race at the 24th annual Mule Day Sept. 23. But North Dakota Gov. William I. Guy says there hasn't been a mule in his state since 1937, and therefore he has asked that a local animal be entered in his name.

Governors of the 50 states were invited to be sponsor entries, either sending along an animal of having a local mule entered in their name. Seventeen accepted.

Gov. Guy wrote: "We had a mule in North Dakota in 1937 and he appeared to be quite a curiosity. Crowds would gather wherever he went. We are fresh out of mules...and would like to enter one from Benson."

The grand champion mule and the pretties and ugliest animals also will be honored.

Interior Department Consultant Says

Morton Looks The Best

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interior Department officials hired a $121-a-day consultant to tell them, among other things, that Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton looks better in pictures than anyone else in the administration.

But they intended to keep that part secret.

The assessment of Morton's photogenic qualities was contained in a section censored out of a report prepared by Harry Treleaven, the media consultant Morton hired to tell the department how to improve its public image.

The censored section was made public by Sam J. Archibald, Washington representative of the University of Missouri's Freedom of Information Center.

In a letter to Morton, Archibald said he obtained the section from "an unimpeachable source."

According to Archibald, the censored section states, in part:

"A part of greater use of television should be a continuing effort to get the secretary visually involved in newsworthy events (which will provide good picture material for the print media, too).

"Secretary Morton is not only the most photogenic member of the administration—but he's also able to participate physically in all kinds of outdoor situations and look natural."

The report urged the department to "make full use of this, because it's a way of making sure that the secretary's statements get maximum exposure, as well as building valuable goodwill for the department and the administration."

The department was encouraged to require its information officers "to submit, on a regular basis, ideas for this kind of involvement."

"Arrangements for motion picture and still photography should be built into all personal appearance plans," the report suggested.

The Treleaven report was completed last year, but the department refused for some time to make it public.

After the issue was raised in congressional hearings, the department gave in somewhat and released 18 pages of the 85-page study, minus the censored paragraph.

Archibald said he insisted on seeing the censored section, but was told by the department that the deleted language "reflects Mr. Treleaven's views with respect to an official of this department and is deleted from the balance of the information disclosed because it could result in personal embarassment to the individual without serving any useful purpose."

In his recent letter to Morton, Archibald said, "The embarassing information is that you are the most photogenic member of the Nixon administration and should be used more often in television and other visual publicity gimmicks to help promote the Department of Interior and the administration."

Cairo Being Nudged Toward Mideast Peace

By NICHOLAS DANILOFF

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Now that Egypt has ousted most of the Soviet forces from its territory, the United States is again nudging Cairo to begin some form of discussions with Israel on a Mideast peace settlement.

There is some expectation in Washington that President Anwar Sadat may be receptive to such an idea, although the State Department is not certain. High officials said no definite response has yet arrived from Cairo.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers made his first public appeal to Egypt at a news conference Friday, during which he said peace discussions were going on in all the world's trouble spots except the Middle East.

"As you know, discussions are being undertaken in Korea, between the two Germanies, in Cypress, India-Pakistan, in Vietnam. So that the only area of the world which is left is the Middle East," he said.

"Now, I'm not necessarily at this stage talking about face to face negotiations —but negotiations, active negotiations. If progress is made in those negotiations, then the parties would have to negotiate eventually directly, because it makes sense if they are going to get along together, to negotiate directly.

"But in any event, we think it is vitally important now that active negotiations be undertaken," Rogers said.

Much of the diplomatic import of Rogers' remarks was obscured by his attack on Sargent Shriver, the Democratic vice presidential nominee. Rogers said Shriver was engaging in "political fantasy" when he said that President Nixon missed a historic opportunity in 1969 to negotiate peace in Vietnam.

The administration's Middle East policy has been in limbo since Washington failed to get Israel and Egypt into peace discussions. Now the administration is privately pleased with the departure of nearly 20,000 Soviet advisers and technicians from Egypt.

President Nixon in his state of the world message last Feb. 9 said the presence of so many Soviet troops was a matter of deep concern to the United States, a factor that could affect war or peace in the Mideast.

Administration spokesmen, however, are declining to comment on the removal of Soviet troops for fear their words might be misinterpreted and lead to further, unwanted competition in Middle East diplomacy.

Last week President Nixon and Sadat exchanged messages on the 20th anniversary of the revolution which ousted King Farouk. Sadat's response to Nixon was phrased in unusually warm terms:

"On behalf of the Arab Republic of Egypt and myself, I thank you deeply for your message of kind feelings and congratulations to the Egyptian people and to me on the 20th anniversary of the 23 July revolution. I send you best wishes of good health and happiness for you, and prosperity and progress for the people of the United States."

Some observers have interpreted the Sadat message as a "signal" from Cairo to the United States that Egypt may now be more receptive to a new American peace initiative.

Romney Said Quitting As HUD Secretary

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Romney says he's quitting as secretary of housing and urban development as soon as he cleans up some last-minute assignments from President Nixon.

Of Nixon's 12 original Cabinet appointees, eight have already quit, although some have taken other roles in the administration.

With Romney's departure, only Secretary of State William P. Rogers, Defense Secretary Melvin Laird and Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe will remain of the original Nixon Cabinet.

He decided to leave the government several months ago, Romney said Friday, but Nixon asked him to stay on.

Romney, a former Michigan governor and auto company executive, met with Nixon to discuss HUD's efforts to find housing for flood victims in Pennsylvania. He told a news conference later he also brought up his desire to leave the Cabinet.

"I discussed with the President months ago my desire to devote myself in the years just ahead in a private capacity rather than a public capacity," he said. "The President asked me to stay on and deal with the problems of housing and the cities. I have done so.

"He has asked me to help secure the federal leadership required to mount an effective effort in Luzerne County, Pa. I have agreed to do that."

Romney said he recommended that Nixon appoint a federal disaster director to supervise relief efforts in Luzerne County and other areas hard-hit by Tropical Storm Agnes this year. He said Nixon agreed to do so and asked him to help find the right man.

Romney gave no indication of when he planned to leave the administration or what type of job he is considering. He said only that the job under consideration is a public-service role in the private sector.

Romney indicated he and Nixon had had some policy differences but said he felt his personal relationship with the President had not deteriorated. He said he planned to campaign for Nixon's re-election.

The HUD secretary also said Nixon was not unhappy about statements Romney made in a verbal exchange with Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp earlier this week. The two men clashed over how much aid the federal government should provide to Pennsylvania flood victims and Romney accused Shapp, a Democrat, of using the disaster for political purposes.

To Kill Nixon

NEW YORK (AP) — Andrew B. Topping was held in $500,000 bail today on charges of threatening and attempting to kill President Nixon.

Topping, 27, was seized in Central Park Friday after allegedly paying $1,000 to a Secret Service agent posing as a killer for hire. Topping reportedly told the agent he hoped the assassination would come by early next week.

Federal officials said the charge of knowingly attempting to kill the President carries a maximum sentence of life imprisonment. Conviction for threatening the President's life can bring a sentence of up to five years and a $1,000 fine.

Asst. U.S. Atty. William B. Gray said Topping was under a routine investigation after requesting an appointment with Nixon when a man claiming to know Topping told the Secret Service that the suspect had tried to enlist his help in finding someone to kill the President.

Gray said an undercover agent, Stewart J. Henry, met with Topping Thursday night and then again Friday at the Central Park Boat Basin where Topping allegedly paid the money.

Topping described himself as a self-employed investment dealer.

Watch Whirlpool

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Scientists are watching a giant whirlpool of cold North Atlantic water which may affect the weather of the U. S. East Coast.

The whirlpool, or eddy, broke through the warmer Gulf Stream and is headed south at about two miles an hour. It is now 300 miles east of Savannah, Ga., and is expected to reach Cape Kennedy, Fla., around the end of the summer.

The eddy, 220 miles in circumference, is so huge that its volume is about equal to the amount of water in the Gulf Stream flowing past Cape Hatteras, N. C., in 10 days.

The Gulf Stream's flow of 100 billion tons of water an hour is equal to 2,000 Mississippis and 22 times as large as all the rivers on earth.

To keep watch on the eddy, one in what appears to be a series, oceanographers of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) tagged it with two orange-painted 55-gallon oil drums. This will help scientists in later surveys to identify and track the massive, slowly rotating whirlpool.

Dr. Alan E. Strong, NOAA oceanographer, said the eddy's surface temperature is about 65 degrees —eight degrees cooler than the surrounding sea. Because of such temperature differences, Strong said, "there is a possibility that these huge eddies affect the weather along the Eastern Seaboard."

"There are indications," he added, "that a number of these cold water eddies are coming south down the same general route. We don't know enough about them to tell whether this is so or, if it is, whether it's uncommon.

Death Call

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Taxi dispatcher Debbie Emery sat by her microphone Friday night and listened as her driver-husband was sent to meet a fare, unaware he was being sent to pick up his killer, police said.

Officers said Marvin Emery, 32, was found slumped over the wheel of his cab in the middle of an intersection, the transmission in neutral and his foot jamming the accelerator to the floor.

F. M. Williams, night cashier at Safety Cab Co., said one of Mrs. Emery's companion dispatchers took a call at about 9 p.m. and was asked that a cab be sent to a restaurant in a southwest suburban business section.

The call was relayed to her husband in Cab 19.

Mrs. Emery, about 25, learned that her husband had been shot when another cab passed the shooting scene and radioed that the driver in Cab 19 had been hurt, Williams said. Horror stricken, she rushed to the hospital.

Another dispatcher at the cab office reported originally that Mrs. Emery had personally taken the call for a cab that sent her husband to his death.

Williams said the couple met at the cab company several years ago when Emery joined the firm as a driver. Mrs. Emery, an attractive brunette, has worked for the company as a dispatcher and telephone operator for nearly 10 years, he said.

After being married two years ago, Williams said, "they arranged their schedule to be on at the same time. He drove and she worked the board."

They were the parents of a one-year-old son, he said.

Mistake Makes Shaky Nerves

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A Pensacola, Fla., woman wound up soaking wet with a shot-up car and shaky nerves after being mistaken for an accomplice in a holdup that never occurred.

The incident occurred Friday in Coweta County and Police Chief Hugh Brown admitted his men "were a little jumpy."

Brown said that earlier in the day "some guy threatened to shoot two of them and they weren't taking any chances."

Joyce Hudson said she and her 19-month-old son were driving to Atlanta from Pensacola when a heavy rain forced her to pull into a Coweta County service station, where she fell asleep in her car.

Upon awakening, she said, "I cranked up the car to leave and heard a loud bang. There were two more shots followed by some man yelling for me to come out with my hands up or he'd kill me.

"I got out and begged them not to shoot any more because my baby was on the front seat." Mrs. Hudson said she was then forced to stand in the rain under threat of a shotgun until police checked and found a mistake had been made.

According to Brown, the service station attendant decided to sleep in the garage. A patrol car spotted the man and notified the station owner, who thought his station was being burglarized.

The police thought Mrs. Hudson was an accomplice, Brown said.

"Now, I've got a shot-up car, a bad case of nerves and they didn't even say they were sorry," Mrs. Hudson said.

Mitchell Says Clark Conduct 'Outrageous'

By United Press International

Former Attorney General John N. Mitchell emerged from his self-imposed political exile Saturday to accuse Ramsey Clark of "outrageous conduct" and demand that Democratic nominee George S. McGovern repudiate him.

Mitchell, who resigned as President Nixon's campaign manager under pressure from his wife, Martha, said in a statement that McGovern had said more than a year ago that Clark would be "perfect" as a successor to FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover.

"What a travesty: to replace the great J. Edgar Hoover, foremost adversary of domestic subversion for half a century, with a man who has allowed himself to be manipulated by a Communist regime that has upon its hands the blood of 55,000 American servicemen," said Mitchell.

Clark, who was President Lyndon B. Johnson's attorney general, is on a two-week tour of North Vietnam and has been quoted almost daily by Hanoi Radio as criticizing Nixon's bombing campaign.

Asks for Apology

In a broadcast Saturday, Clark was reported to have attacked again the "massive inhumane bombing of cities, villages, churches, schools, hospitals, dikes, sluices, canals, the very water system which supports the culture and the life of this country." He also said he met with U. S. prisoners of war and that they were being treated well.

Mitchell said McGovern, who reportedly supported Clark for the FBI post in an Oct. 3, 1971 interview with the Miami Herald, "has an obligation to repudiate publicly the outrageous conduct of his senior adviser, fulltime supporter and prospective FBI director." Failure to do so, he said, "can only be construed as an endorsement of what Mr. Clark has done."

Further, he said, Clark owes the American people "a public apology and full explanation for his unprecedented and reprehensible behavior" as a former cabinet member.

McGovern meanwhile told newsmen at Woodstock, N.Y., that Nixon had assigned Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird to act as "frightmongers" in the election campaign.

Harriman Backs Shriver

He referred to their attacks on criticism of Nixon's Vietnam policies by McGovern and his running mate, Sargent Shriver. McGovern challenged Nixon to "make your own defense of your continued costly involvement in the Vietnam War..."

One day after Rogers ridiculed Shriver's statement that Nixon "blew" a historic chance to end the Vietnam War in early 1969, the Johnson administration's chief negotiators at the Paris peace talks publicly defended Shriver's position.

Former ambassadors W. Averell Harriman and Cyrus Vance, who led the U. S. negotiating team in Paris until Nixon was inaugurated, issued a statement saying in part:

"The new administration should have set a negotiated peace as its first goal. Instead it took as its first task the forging of a closer bond with President (Nguyen Van) Thieu. This meant nullifying the opportunity for a negotiated solution since compromise would inevitably have eliminated Thieu's power."

5D10 Deepens

As the Vietnam debate deepened and widened, McGovern —without commenting directly on Clark's remarks in North Vietnam —criticized Rogers for his companion attack Friday on the former attorney general.

Few Could Hide Their Delight

There must have never been another week like it.

We are referring to the opening of the Eastern Belt tobacco markets last Tuesday when Greenville, Farmville and several other markets began moving tobacco to the companies on a limited basis.

As was well known, it was the earliest opening of modern times and the change was finally brought about so that area tobacco producers would not be required to haul their tobacco to Georgia and Florida markets to take advantage of early sales.

However, observers on opening day astounded to see pile after pile of tobacco go in the $85 per hundredweight range. It took trashy tobacco, indeed, to fall much below this magic figure; thus it was not surprising at the end of each sales day to find all the markets with an average of $85-$86.

Farming interests were quick to point out that production costs have been the highest in history this year and thus the farmers are not getting rich even at these prices. Still, hardly anyone could hide his delight that tobacco was selling so well during the first week of this early opening.

The question keeps coming up as to why the companies were paying such uniform prices for even the lower tobacco grades.

Bill Humphries, the astute farm writer for the Raleigh News Observer saw it, after talking to the experts, as mainly a matter of supply and demand and dollars and cents.

"The bright leaf or flue-cured crop this year is smaller, because of slightly reduced quotas and an expected decrease in per-acre yield," he wrote. Rigid acreage poundage controls have kept production in line with needs and companies have bought conservatively in recent years because of uncertainties in the industry. Finally, Humphries pointed out, this is a "quality" crop. All these things combined created a sellers market in tobacco.

The demand for tobacco was demonstrated Wednesday when Stabilization Corp. take for the day was zero. Stabilization purchases tobacco at the support price and this unprecedented event meant that all the tobacco sold that day went above the support level.

We are seeing something unique in tobacco sales this year, first in the early opening and second in the high and uniform prices being paid. All of the problems which the tobacco industry has faced are still there, but for the tobacco grower the prospect fo high prices for this year's crop help push some of the long range worries in the background.

New Phase In N.C. Farming

By LOYAL PHILLIPS
(Elizabeth City Advance)

ELIZABETH CITY — A new phase in farming for northeastern North Carolina is illustrated on a 16,000-acre tract a few miles west of U.S. 168 in Camden County.

The gigantic Hales Lake operation belongs to the Weyerhaeuser Paper Company, and is supervised by Harold Cutler.

Two thousand deer and only 22 people live on the farm. A staff on 12 full-time employees is increased to 25 during the period from April to September. However, the same staff also handles the cultivation of additional Weyerhaeuser lands in Pasquotank, Perquimans, and Gates counties.

Like some other large farming operations in the state, Hales Lake is highly automated. Every step from the clearing of the ground to marketing the last product involves sophisticated equipment.

Problems Are Similar

Despite the size, some of the problems are the same as those facing any farmer. Cutler, North Carolina farm supervisor for Weyerhaeuser, holds the responsibility of directing the farm operation and formulating long range plans.

"Our general objective," Cutler explained, "is the highest and best land management. Wherever land is not particularly appropriate for tree growing, we adjust to other related purposes.

"Farming has not given us the highest return partly because we face some of the same difficulties of any ordinary farmer," he added.

"We are not in the processing business and must sell everything we grow. The problems of rising costs of supplies and equipment along with unsteady market prices trouble us just as they do the independent farmer," Cutler stated.

Mechanization Is Key

Mechanization is a key to the large-scale agricultural enterprise. There are 14 powerful tractors, each of which is capable of carrying eight-row equipment. Two company-owned monster bulldozers clear the new ground. There are seven trucks and a grain drying and storage facility capable of storing 60,000 bushels — and drying 13,000 bushels per day.

There are four combines capable of combining six rows of corn and with a harvesting capacity of 10,000 bushels per day. These machines can harvest eight rows of soybeans and in a day's time can harvest up to 6,000 bushels.

Records indicate that the maximum production per acre for corn was 169 bushels, for wheat 54 bushels, and 48 bushels per acre for soybeans. Top production records per acre for cabbage have reached eight tons and for potatoes 151 hundred-pound bags per acre.

Sophisticated Record Keeping

Hales Lake's methods of budgeting and achievement recordkeeping might well have been adapted from a modern factory. For budgeting purposes, projections are made on a quarterly basis. Achievement goals are posted for each day and charts show actual performance as compared to the budget projection. One large wall area is covered with pin-ups of budgetary performance. Charts show achievements for each crop and each unit.

Hales Lake's scientific and automated processes could be carried out only by management which if thoroughly familiar with the latest budgeting and accounting methods.

The 16,000-acre tract is in an uneven rectangular shape, five miles wide and about five miles long. There are 3,500 acres under cultivation and 500 additional acres are being cleared. The remaining 12,000 acres are devoted to growing trees.

There are approximately 35 miles of roads through the property.

In Pasquotank, Perquimans and Gates counties, Weyerhaeuser owns 20,000 acres, with about a thousand acres under cultivation. In the Albemarle region, the company owns 80,000 acres.

Air Of Tyranny On Capitol Hill

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — With the White House watching silently, Rep. Wright Patman of Texas is using his power as chairman of the House Banking Committee to strangle the $4 billion housing bill behind closed doors in the most tyrannical performance by a committee chairman in years.

The struggle between Democrat Patman, an old-style populist who turned 79 last week, and moderate committee Democrats goes back years. But the current episode carries glittering political dividends for President Nixon's reelection campaign.

If, as now seems highly probable, the housing bill is killed by Patman's personal filibuster, Mr. Nixon can pin the blame on the Democratic party. The committee is controlled by Patman's Democrats, 22 to 15.

Little wonder, then, that although Housing Secretary George Romney has appealed to committee Republicans to rescue the bill, the White House has kept in the background. Nor has Rep. William Widnall of New Jersey, the committee's senior Republican, lifted a finger against Patman's filibuster.

The chance for that came Tuesday (Aug. 8), when Rep. William A. Barrett of Pennsylvania, chairman of the Housing subcommittee, finally forced a vote on his motion demanding a full committee decision on the bill by Aug. 17, the day before the Congressional recess. That effort failed, 14 to 9, when not one Republican voted with Barrett.

Having won that key test, Patman now can continue the forced reading of every word in the 271-page bill. The Patman-controlled committee clerk started droning in mid-July, on the specious grounds that House rules require a bill to be read in its entirety before voted on by a committee. After three weeks, the clerk has reached page 50.

The bill-reading rule now being used as the underpinning of Patman's legislative tyranny is hardly ever followed. Patman himself, in fact, earlier this year whipped out the $5 billion emergency public works bill after a one-day hearing; it was marked up — that is, readied for a final vote — in a few minutes.

The apparent reason for Patman's dictatorial opposition to the housing bill is not so much the bill itself as Patman's lust for revenge against insurgent committee Democrats who reduced Patman's power five years ago, led by Reps. William Moorhead of Pennsylvania, Thomas L. Ashley of Ohio and Robert G. Stephens, Jr., of Georgia. Patman has never been reconciled to the independence of Barrett's Housing subcommittee. Alone of subcommittee chairmen, Barrett has power to hire staff on his own.

But neither Barrett nor the insurgents were prepared for the chairman's present display of raw power. For the first ten days of the enforced bill-reading, with the committee's 37 members sitting around the committee table trying to stay awake, tempers held.

Recently, however, tensions have risen. Last Thursday (Aug. 3), Patman flatly refused a routine request by three members—two Republicans and a Democrat—to reserve the right to amend portions of the bill covered during their absence to vote in state Congressional primaries.

Patman flatly opposed this normal Congressional courtesy. When it was forced to a test, he found himself alone on the 27 to 1 vote.

Democratic Rep. Frank Annunzio of Illinois, angry over Patman's performance, retaliated with a loud demand that Patman change his vote.

"I don't want to change my vote," Patman sanctimoniously replied. "We should stay on the job every minute."

Furious now, the gravel-voiced Annunzio shouted back: "That is so obvious that it didn't have to be said. I've never bull(blank) my colleagues in my life." Patman ignored Annunzio, but the incident came close to sparking a full-blown rebellion against the autocratic chairman.

Revolt-minded anti-Patman Democrats earlier sought help from Speaker Carl Albert to force Patman to convene the closed-door mark-up hearings in the first place. Patman had stalled the bill for two months following approval by the Barrett subcommittee.

But with all the high political stakes of an overwhelmingly Democratic

Female Bouncer On Job

By SUSAN EVERLY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Ellen Sigward is sexy and charming but thinks nothing of throwing a man over her shoulder and into the street.

The buxom brunette is women's lib's latest coup — a female bouncer.

She and two other aspiring bouncerettes showed up at the White Horse Inn Thursday to demonstrate how they could sweet talk or heave-ho a boisterous customer out of the tiny East side pub.

"We figured that a girl could get an unruly customer out in a nicer way," said the pub's bartender and co-owner, Peggy Doyle. Mrs. Doyle and her husband had advertised for a woman bouncer in local papers.

The pub, in nightly Sadie Hawkins style, has women bartenders and encourages women to pick up the tab for their dates.

"I'd attempt to use my feminine wiles at first, but I could turn to force because my father owned a gym and I know my way around judo and karate," said Miss Sigward.

Phyllis Seidman, 24, a tall brunette who said she favored brown leather pants for the sometimes rough job, explained her technique:

"I'd wink, throw them off guard, and then flip 'em."

She said she liked the new job opening because "I like to bounce — balls and men."

A friend taught her judo, Phyllis said, and she developed the technique by warding off men on the streets of New York.

"I know a little judo, but I'd like to stop short of that," said Liz Laurie, 25, an unemployed plump blonde in a purple tee shirt and jeans.

Although they were applying for jobs in the bar, which has a small theatre to showcase women in the arts, the girls were not ardent women's lib supporters.

"We need more strong men and fewer loud-mouthed women," Ellen said.

Jack McManus, a regular White Horse customer, who admitted to one too many the night before, peered cautiously into the bar as the interviews progressed.

"A girl bouncer?" he asked, scratching his head. "If you've got to be bounced, that's definately the way to go."

Sunday Morning Notes

The Daily Reflector's news editor Don Schlienz is carrying out some renovations at his home. The work included pouring concrete for a new drive, walks and a patio.

Everything went fine until the workmen had completed the job and left. Pretty soon a big German Sheppard came bounding across the lawn headed straight for the freshly poured concrete.

Then along came some kids on bicycles, who were detoured.

Don and his wife stood guard over the concrete and chased off a steady procession of dogs and children.

Alas, it remained for the Schlienz' youngest son to desecrate the new drive. David, age 6, took a running leap across it and barely missed clearing the concrete. So there was a heel mark to reckon with.

The Schlienz had won the battle, however. By that time the concrete had hardened sufficiently so the damage was not too severe.

Mrs. Jo Ann Leith writes that her son-in-law, Mike Aldridge, is playing baseball this summer with the Billings, Mont. Mustangs, a farm team of the Kansas City Royals.

Mike and his wife, Sue, were in Great Falls, Mont. recently for a game, and they stopped in a restaurant there after the game.

Even that far from Greenville there were two familiar faces. It was two Greenville girls, Sue Travathan and Sally Boyette—temporarily stranded there on a flight to Denver, Colo.

The four happily renewed acquaintances.

The quotation of the week came from N.L. Perkins, sales supervisor of the Smithfield tobacco market.

The Raleigh Times quoted him after the record breaking Eastern Belt opening: "If I ever have another child, I'm going to name her Agnes."

He was referring, of course, to the wandering hurricane which dumped just the right amount of rainfall in this area to break a dry spell and make the tobacco crop.

GOP Must Fight

(Henderson Dispatch)

McGovern now has an official running mate for vice-president on the Democratic ticket in the person of Sargent Shriver. The nominee for president is known as a good organizer, as he demonstrated during the primary challenges. Shriver may be expected to carry the ball much of the time in the actual campaign fighting.

McGovern was in hot water over Senator Eagleton, but he seems largely to have brushed that aside. If comment heard from leaders is reliable, selection of Shriver as a partner on the ticket is acceptable to all factions. It may be the start of the restoration of unity in the party, which is so desperately needed. Many of the disgruntled element will pay lip service to the theme of harmony, while still at heart cool and indifferent of lukewarm toward the ticket. On the surface they profess enthusiasm, but deep inside are indifferent and without the will to fight. This will not be true of heads of the ticket, but millions of others will be needed if the Democrats are to win.

So much for that. On the other hand, the Nixon organization simply cannot take anything for granted, not in the slightest. One of their greatest enemies is the possibility of overconfidence. In politics, there is little or nothing that can be set down as a certainty. The President will have to fight just as hard this year as he did back in 1968. He cannot afford to pin his faith in polls and a large element of public sentiment.

As the election draws nearer, sentiment might well change. It did four years ago in the final weeks, and some observers said that had the voting been a few weeks later Humphrey would have won. No one will ever know as to that.

In 1948, consensus was the Tom Dewey had it in the bag. He thought so, too, and may have relaxed too soon. The result was an overwhelming victory for President Truman. Nixon should not forget that, nor indeed the close call he had in 1968. He had best run scared, and the party organization must apply every ounce of energy at its command.

McGovern and Shriver will fight to the last ditch. They may not be as popular now as they would like, but changes that are unexpected can occur in the next two and a half months.

40 Years Ago Today

By GWYN COGHILL
August 13, 1932

Thieves who suffered from a shortage of cigarettes had enough today to last them for awhile following the robbery of a store on the Farmville Highway about three miles from Greenville. It was estimated that about $15 worth of cigarettes were taken by thieves who forced their way through the back door of the store.

The Greenville "good roads" delegation went to Scotland Neck yesterday and presented the petition for improvement of the road between Bethel and Oak City. Straightening and paving of this road will furnish this part of the state a direct paved route to northern cities and save motorists thousand of dollars annually.

Strength For Today

EXHILARATING EXPERIENCE

In a book published recently on juvenile delinquency there appeared the story of a chap sent to prison before he was twenty-one and kept there for about twenty-five years. At last he was paroled. Almost immediately he was in trouble again and returned to the institution. He told the officers that he had found it absolutely impossible to adjust himself to the outside world and he expressed great relief at being behind prison walls again. "I can't tell you," he said, "how glad I am to be back."

This is the story of an inverted kind of happiness. It is the happiness of the person who wants to avoid responsibility and who desires security and protection from the events of life above everything else. He was perfectly happy behind prison bars. To him nothing was so dreadful as facing life as it must be faced by most of us.

The weakness which this man manifested is more widespread than we are sometimes aware. Many people cannot face life as it is. Sometimes they just step aside and let life sweep by them. There are others who try to anesthetize themselves to life by the use of alcohol or dope. Probably the greatest number crawl down into the recesses of their own lives and there live timidly and quietly.

Face life. It is an exhilarating experience.

UNC-Charlotte Has Problems

By ED ROWLAND
Associated Press Writer

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The University of North Carolina at Charlotte, despite its pastoral setting, intends to be every bit as unban oriented as campuses located on subway lines.

At no other public institution in North Carolina, for instance, can students take courses in geography with an emphasis on today's and tomorrow's cities.

Officials of the school, set on nearly 1,000 acres 10 miles from downtown Charlotte, frankly aim at a different type of student from those who attend other state-supported universities in the state. But with the commuting students and their cars come problems faced by no other school in North Carolina.

One of the problems is space in which to teach them.

UNC-C officials have asked the state Advisory Budget Commission for more than $15.5 million in new construction over the coming two years, including nearly $8.5 million for a high-rise classroom and office building. The structure is in the planning stages, but unless the General Assembly appropriates money to build it, and a $4.6 million science building, the soaring enrollment may slow if not stop.

The school stopped taking applications for this fall in early summer, several weeks sooner than expected.

From its beginnings as two year Charlotte College shortly after World War II to its acceptance as the fourth campus of the University of North Carolina in 1965 to its current status as the seventh largest four-year school in the state system, UNC-C has had phenomenal growth. Its officials said that in 1969-70 it grew faster than any other state institution in the nation.

And its leaders say that by 1976 it will have increased enrollment by 168 per cent over 1970, more than double the rate for any other state university in North Carolina.

One reason for the explosive growth is the school's location. Mecklenburg County is within 50 miles of more than 1.3 million people in the state, and the region is one of the fastest growing in North Carolina.

Also, UNC-C officials point out the area has no other state university that might compete for students.

Despite its location almost at the South Carolina border, few Palmetto State residents attend UNC-C. "It's too expensive (for out-of-state, commuting students)," a school official said.

But commuters come daily from within a 50-mile radius, and only about a quarter of the currently enrolled 4,600 students live on campus. University officials point out that students can get all degrees by attending post-4 p.m. classes for four years, and many do.

Air Traffic Shepherds

By DALLAS LEE
Associated Press Writer

HAMPTON, Ga. (AP) — More than 3,500 airplanes a day come winging into the southeast, depending heavily on a battery of desk jockeys who don't see the sky all day to guide them safely through crowded airways.

Unlike airport control tower personnel, air traffic controllers at the Federal Aviation Administration's Atlanta Air Traffic Control Center shepherd more than 1.2 million plans a year along "highways in the sky" without seeing a plane while they do it.

They sit in a windowless, 185-foot by 60-foot room, monitor the progress of blips on greentinted radar screens and issue instructions to pilots as far away as Knoxville, Tenn., or Montgomery, Ala., through headsets.

"We control airplanes all day and never see one," said controller Fred Spike. "It's all voices and lights in the air."

While controllers at air terminals control takeoffs and landings, Spike and some 460 other controllers at the Atlanta center coordinate enroute traffic in 80,000 square miles of air space stretching across five states from northeast North Carolina to southeast Alabama.

Any commercial, military or private aircraft flying under instrument control in the area communicates with the Atlanta center. The thousands of lowflying private aircraft controlled by the pilot's visual reference are not included in the 3,500-a-day figure.

Twenty-one air traffic control centers blanket the nation with radar coverage and air-to-ground communication, and Atlanta is the fifth busiest behind Washington, New York, Cleveland and Chicago.

A plane bound for Atlanta out of New York, for example, is passed from the New York Air Traffic Control Center to the Washington center and finally to the Atlanta center over North Carolina. Atlanta center guides the plane to within 40 miles of the Atlanta airport and instructs the pilot to contact the FAA tower at an assigned frequency.

The controller, flanked by two assistants, sits at a complex-looking console equipped with a radar screen and assigns headings, altitudes and airspeeds to the pilots to keep traffic safely separated.

During a busy period, he may have as many as a dozen blips racing along in his assigned sector and his decisions crackle rapid-fire over the airwaves to the pilots.

"It looks complicated, but it's really not," said Spike, whose easygoing nature seems to characterize men who seek the high-tension profession. "You just don't let the little blips get together on the screen."

If the blips do merge on the screen, the controller's job is to see that the planes are separated vertically by at least 1,-000 feet.

A typical situation might involve a jet that has taken off from the Atlanta airport. As it departs southbound, the airport tower will transfer communication with the pilot to Spike at the Atlanta center.

The plane's ultimate altitude may be 29,000 feet, but Spike will assign altitudes on the climbout to avoid other planes in the congested area.

If a plane is bearing north on the same airway at an altitude of 18,000 feet, Spike must decide quickly if the departing plane can pass 18,000 feet before meeting the other aircraft.

If he decides it cannot, he will say something like, "Eastern 571, hold at an altitude of one-seven-zero-zero-zero (17,000 feet)," giving the northbound plane time to pass over at the regulation 1,000 feet vertical separation before clearing the Eastern flight to continue its climbout.

Faster aircraft, heavier traffic and the use of radar, which permits planes to fly closer together with control, has accelerated the pace—and thus the tension—of air traffic control.

"I don't know if the statistics will bear it out, but it seems that men like me, who have been doing this for 12 or 15 years, are feeling the pressure more," said Spike.

"Sometimes, during a hot period, you don't even want to go to lunch because when you come back you can't peak up or get your adrenalin flowing again."

His supervisor, Karl Trautmann, agreed.

"The pressure seems to be accumulative," he said. "A controller 12 years ago (prior to the extensive use of radar) had almost as many planes to control, but the pace is faster now.

"If you take a handoff from Jacksonville center (Florida) and the plane is at 35,000 feet bound for Atlanta, you've got about six minutes to get him down to 11,000 feet and line him up to land. Multiply that by six and you see how the pressure is magnified."

The 80,000 square miles of air space is divided into high-altitude, low-altitude control sectors, as well as about 40 geographic sectors of 50 to 100 miles across to give the controllers reasonable size areas to cover.

And all the sectors are not congested at the same time. If a controller's sector, outlined on his radar screen, gets overloaded, other controllers can be shifted to help him through the critical period.

But the pressure, apparently, is a constant factor.

"If you know that everything you say to those fast-moving targets has got to be exactly right—that's pressure," said chief supervisor Curt Clower.

The controllers undergo extensive training, however, spending four years before qualifying as journeymen controllers. Many are former pilots. They are updated by written exams annually, take physical examinations every year and spend two days a month in briefings on new procedures.

In recent years, increased staffing and more modern equipment have reduced the complaints of the controllers, who at one point went on strike to demand better working conditions.

The intense training and careful screening is reflected in the relaxed nature of most of the controllers at the Hampton facility.

A Mighty Struggle To Get Out The Youth Vote

By J. J. KILPATRICK

A marvelously gaudy poster turned up in the mail this week, courtesy of Young Voters for the President, 1701 Pennsylvania Avenue. This work of art, tricked out in eagles and scrollwork, depicts Our Leader talking not only to Brezhnev and Chou En-lai, but talking also to persons vastly more important to Mr. Nixon just now: Young persons.

A vast deal has been written about the potential importance of the youth vote in the November campaign, but with less than 60 days remaining before the close of registration books, both major parties suddenly have stepped up their youth appeals. Over the next several months, youth committees will be knocking themselves out to capture a vote that could be decisive.

The raw figures are impressive. An estimated 25 million young men and women between the ages of 18 and 25 will be eligible to cast their first presidential vote in November. Of these, 14 million are in the 21-25 bracket; they would have become eligible in any event. The other 11 million — the 18 through 20-year-olds — are the first to benefit from the 26th Amendment broadening the franchise.

The quick-and-easy image of the young voter is familiar: The long-haired peacenik of the college campus, bearded and beaded; he is anti-war, anti-pollution, and pro-pot; he despised Nixon and loves McGovern; his politics are New Left and he wants only to get out of college so he can live on food stamps, free love, and father's allowance.

If this carricature accurately depicted the youth vote, Nixon would be in serious trouble. Of course it does not. Seventy-five precent of the potential 25 million are not in college at all. Of the 6 million who are enrolled in institutions of higher learning, perhaps one-third are politically apathetic. Of the remaining 4 million, two-thirds may lean toward the Democratic liberal left, but Republican spokesmen insist that a surprising number of college students are not nearly as anti-Nixon as the conventional wisdom suggests.

The 6 million students (and another 900,000 still in high school) are important to the opposing camps for two reasons: They can be more easily reached for purposes of registration, and they are likely to provide more enthusiastic volunteers than the non-student group. But the greater numbers, and hence the greater potential, may be found among the 75 percent who are young housewives, wage-earners, members of the armed forces, or unemployed persons looking for a job.

How to reach them? Major labor unions, with their national political organization, will be working the beat for the Demmcrats. The Republicans may get some help from the Teamsters, but their first reliance is on the aggressive and well-heeled Young Voters for the President. The outfit is headed by Ken Rietz, a 30-year-old political prop from Oshkosh who broke into politics with Congressman William Steiger of Wisconsin and later managed William Brock's successful campaign for the Senate in Tennessee.

Rietz makes an effective pitch for Nixon. On the war issue, he argues that Nixon, after all, has brought 493,000 troops home from Vietnam, reduced casualties by 95 percent, and just about ended the draft. The President's record on environmental improvement should appeal to young people One-third of the White House staff, says Rietz, is under 30 and "no President has ever named more black and Spanish-speaking people to Federal jobs than President Nixon."

Upwards of 125,000 volunteers already have been recruited in 37 States for the Nixon youth effort. By the end of this month, Rietz expects to have the rest of the country organized. Understandably, he is concentrating on door-to-door registration drives in such States as California, Wisconsin, Florida, Illinois, Ohio and New Jersey. Nixon carried those six States by 880,000 in 1968, but collectively they have a potential 7.3 million first-time voters — and they will cast 135 electoral votes.

If surveys correctly predict that 42 percent of the young eligibles actually will get to the polls on election day, some 10 million first-time ballots will be cast. Suppose Nixon gets 4 million of these, McGovern 6 million. Given another close election, the 2 million difference could be just that: It could make all the difference in the political world.

Two N.C. Sisters Have Learned To Live With Rare Disease That Kills

By STEVE THOMPSON
Fayetteville Observer Writer
Written For The AP

BLADENBORO, N.C. (AP) — For the past 10 years, two sisters have been learning to live with death.

Martha Kinlaw, the oldest, has learned to face tomorrow, but Sarah Prevatte is frightened by what might lie ahead.

Their bond with death is a blood disorder known as hemocromatosis, or an excessive amount of iron in the blood. The disease is characterized by a discoloration of the skin and a breakdown of the body's vital organs. Doctors say the disease can be treated, but no cure is known.

Since they first learned of the disease, the two sisters have made almost weekly trips to hospitals in Lumberton, N.C. and Florence, S.C., to have blood drawn from their bodies.

The treatments helped at first. Now they are less and less effective.

Neither is able to do anything strenuous and neither is able to hold a fulltime job.

Martha, 34, a divorcee who lives in Florence, worked until last summer when she was forced to quit. "I wasn't able to hold out anymore," she said.

Sarah, 31, a widow, was a cosmetologist before she was forced to quit and stay home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sheppie Bryan of near Bladenboro.

The disease was first detected in Martha in November, 1961.

She had suffered severe headaches and cramps for sometime and finally went into Bladen Memorial Hospital in Elizabethtown for nine days.

She was transferred to the Baptist Hospital in Winston-Salem where the disease was diagnosed after three weeks of tests.

"I thought they were crazy when they first told me what I had," said Martha. "I had never heard of it. I really didn't believe it when they told me I'd have to give blood every week to control it."

The disease was detected in Sarah two months later, although she had suffered the same symptoms as Martha for five years.

"It scared me when they diagnosed my illness, because I had read it was fatal," Sarah said.

For two years, the two gave a pint of blood every week. Over the next six years the trips to the hospital were less frequent, but now Sarah gives a pint each week and Martha every two weeks.

The disease means a strict diet for both. All red meat is considered objectionable and certain leafy vegetables aren't allowed. Their primary diet consists of chicken and seafood.

Too much iron in the family water system even has forced their father to relocate his well four times. The iron content in the water is considered still too high, however.

The fact that Martha and Sarah even have the disease is rare in itself. About 80 per cent of all known hemochromatotics are males, usually in their advanced years.

Doctors disagree as to the nature and cause of the disease. Some say it is a hereditary disorder and others claim there is no implication that the disease is genetically determined.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Sunday, Aug. 13, the 226th day of 1972. There are 140 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1521, the Spanish conqueror, Hernando Cortez, captured Mexico City from the Aztecs.

On this date:

In 1688, King William's War began when Indians attacked North Yarmouth, Maine.

In 1848, the American flag was raised over Los Angeles for the first time.

In 1898, the Spanish surrendered Manila to American forces as the Spanish-American War ended.

In 1923, a record in the sheet music business was set, as sales of the hit, "Yes, We Have No Bananas," reached the half-million mark.

In 1937, the Japanese attacked the Chinese City of Shanghai.

In 1961, Communist East Germany sealed off the border between East and West Berlin to halt the flow of refugees to the West.

Ten years ago: Two Soviet cosmonauts in separate spacecraft traveled near each other as they orbited the earth.

Five years ago: American bombers pounding targets in North Vietnam struck a rail yard and highway bridge only 10 miles from the China border.

One year ago: East Germany celebrated the 10th anniversary of the Berlin Wall with a parade of the groups that built it.

Today's birthdays: Cuba's Fidel Castro is 46. Movie director Alfred Hitchcock is 73.

Jesse And Nick Leaving No Doubt: It's A Fight

By JOHN KILGO

RALEIGH — A couple of weeks ago we had a piece here about the prospects of a U.S. Senate race between Nick Galifianakis and Jesse Helms, and concluded that it would be a go-for-the-throat affair.

Supporters of both men wrote to ask: "Why did you say that?"

One well-known Republican wrote to say: "I think you're wrong. The Helms-Galifianakis race will be an intelligent discussion of the issues and personalities won't get involved, at least not on our side."

Well, Jesse and Nick met face-to-face for the first time last weekend—and proved without question that their race will be thunder and lightning, hail, and high winds.

Helms, the Republican, produced an affidavit from a Concord man, which purported to show that Galifianakis was "whispering" that Helms is a racist.

To make his point completely, Helms mailed out the affidavit to news media all over the State. The packet of information also included a "personal and confidential" letter Helms had written to Sen. B. Everett Jordan before the spring primaries, in which Mr. Helms said several nice things about the Senator.

Helms also mailed out a newspaper column from the Greensboro Daily News, which was lopsidedly slanted towards Galifianakis and highly critical of Helms. The column said Galifianakis "Detests" Helms and quoted Galifianakis as saying: "Helms gives people something to hate in his (WRAL-TV) editorials. Many folks turn their televisions on to watch him for that reason. They don't do it because they like him. They do it so they can hate with him."

Helms says he's amazed at such talk.

When Galifianakis finally got a chance to speak, he denied calling Helms a racist. He also said he wasn't quoted exactly right in that Greensboro piece.

"And if it makes you feel any better, Jesse," Nick G. said, "I do not detest you. I like you."

Galifianakis then took the opportunity to do a little accusing on his own. He charged that a reporter for Helms' Raleigh TV station "broadcast an interview with me that I didn't make."

WRAL-TV officials said they'd checked into this charge and get back to us.

Meanwhile, it's clear that Helms and Galifianakis will conduct this campaign by throwing punches that will paralyze rather than tingle. You can call it "press" talk if you wish, but the truth is these two candidates don't hold each other in very high regard.

They have already rolled up their sleeves and bared their knuckles. The voters are probably wondering if the two will save at least a little time to discuss the issues.

Schlessinger's Appraisal Forced To Rely On The Implausibles

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

Some of the hotter Democratic partisans are making a case that Senator McGovern will win the presidency in November. But it is tough for such hopefuls to conceal the strain they go through.

One such is Arthur Schlesinger, Jr., scholarly and widely known for his contributions to history on the Administrations of Presidents Jackson, Roosevelt and Kennedy. Schlesinger broke into print recently in the New York Times with a lengthy article under the title of "How McGovern Will Win."

It may be, as veteran Washington political correspondent Kenneth Crawford noted in The Washington Post, that the article's title might have reflected more conviction by a Times editor than Schlesinger wished to convey. Certainly, the historian laced his work with enough "ifs" to let him down easy when the votes are counted.

Schlesinger holds that the "conventional-minded political reporters" have missed the point when they relate the far left position of McGovern to the far right position of Goldwater in 1964 and conclude that the voter will go for the candidate nearer the middle, Nixon in this case. He says the "appropriate analogy would not be Goldwater in 1964 but Roosevelt in 1932."

This is where the Schlesinger "ifs" begin to fly. The following passage is key to the whole McGovern picture has the historian paints it:

"If, in 1972, as in 1932, voters demand a change from the system and men who have got the nation into deep trouble at home and abroad, if they want to see America realize itself as a 'a good and decent land,' George McGovern will win rather emphatically in November."

Going ahead with the 1932 line, Schlesinger recalls that "forty years ago, as today, the nation was in a state of political and economic frustration. Ordinary people in 1932 felt a profound distrust of the establishment and widespread estrangement from the political order."

What were the conditions in 1932? There was depression, worldwide. Unemployment, at near 13-million, was about 25 percent of the work force. Homes and farms were being foreclosed on all sides. Businesses were collapsing. Banks were failing. There were hunger lines. Such a thing as organized welfare was unknown.

A look at just a few facts today shows the length to which Schlesinger has drawn his bow. More than 80-million people are working. Income is the highest ever. Unemployment is about 5.5 percent, or near 5-million. The economy is approaching a boom pace, with all indications pointing to a continuing rise into 1973 at least.

It may be that Schlesinger sees something that is not seen by run-of-the-mill political and economic watchers. Otherwise, it is hard to understand his analogy, with its "ifs" except as the yearning of a partisan.

But such approaches to McGovern's problem do serve to point up the fact that the nation's economy is bound to be caught up in the controversy of this presidential election year. It does every time around, no matter its state.

The sort of frustration of 1932 that Schlesinger has dredged up to make his "if" case doesn't seem to exist, at least not on the scale which could put McGovern over "rather emphatically in November."

Certainly, there is nothing in the current political polls to indicate that McGovern will pull off against Nixon the sort of surprise he managed in the primaries ahead of the Democratic convention of last month. In fact, polls indicate that McGovern had more strength as an "unknown" than he has as a "known."

This week, the Harris survey showed President Nixon leading McGovern 57 percent to 34 percent. In July, the division was 55 percent to 35 percent. In fact, the statistics show that between May and August, while McGovern was "coming up" as a known political figure, he was losing ground in every region of the country and with all voting groups. The losses have been greatest where McGovern was supposed to be the strongest.

In the May-August period, Nixon has gained from his peace missions, especially those to China and Russia. Economic news has been especially good. But a big gain for Nixon was the decision by Geroge Wallace that his health did not permit a third party race. Harris figures the Wallace vote, which neared 10-million in 1968, is splitting two-to-one in Nixon's favor.

Of course, the August Harris survey came at a time when McGovern was in the depths of his running mate problem. It may well be that future polls will show the Democrat gaining. If McGovern doesn't come up from where he is today, statisticans may have to go behind Goldwater to, say, Landon in 1936, for comparisions.

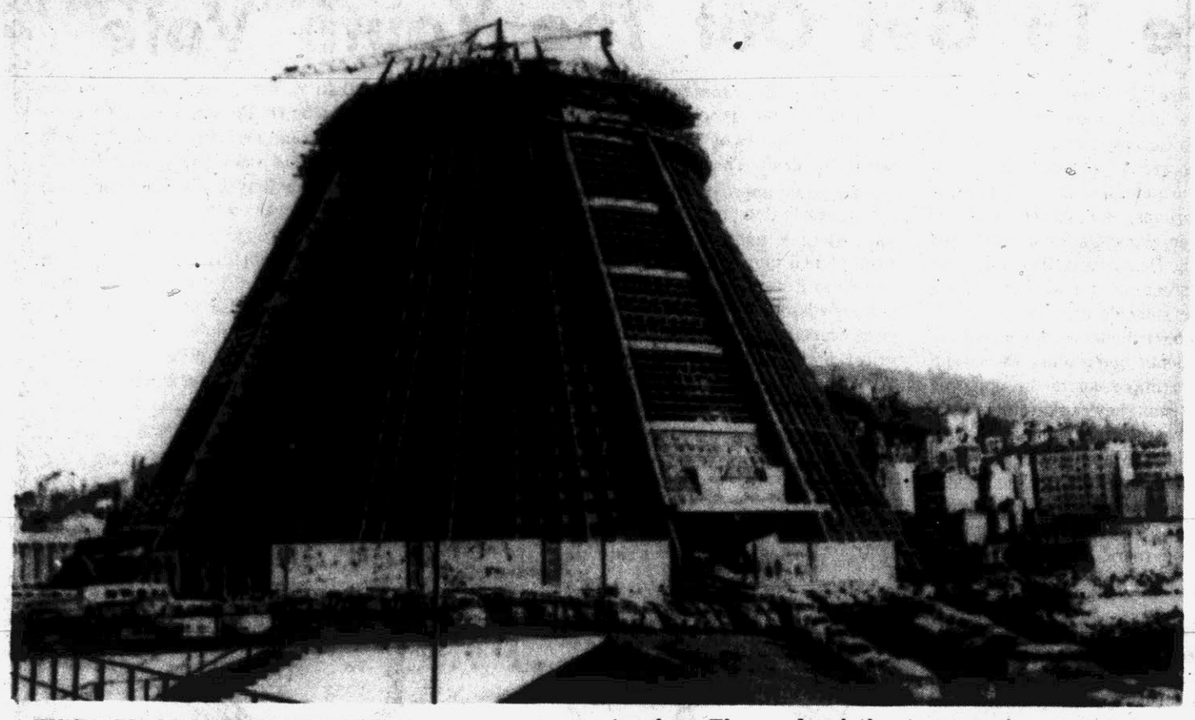
Whether Sargent Shriver is actually a stronger running mate than Senator Tom Eagleton would have been is a question that can never be answered. Shriver is attractive, aggressive and, as what might be called a Kennedy stand-in, will get some smart handling from his in-laws. He has long been ambitious to try elective politics.

There may be danger that Shriver, with access to some of the best political speach writers in the country, will begin to outshine McGovern. It was interesting that more party dignitaries were on hand for the Shriver VP nomination that turned out for the McGovern presidential nomination.

These things can cause trouble for candidates, especially at the staff level. McGovern's men have made it clear that they intend to be the "in crowd" during the campaign, just as they were in the race for the nomination. King-makers are a jealous lot, even when their man is an obvious long shot.

It's difficult when you look at a political map to pick places where it can be claimed that Shriver can supply the difference between losing and winning a state. He has no obvious appeal for the South, for example, where the Harris survey shows Nixon running 68 percent to 26 percent. He lacks the background which could help in the midwest, where the division is reported at 53 percent Nixon and 36 percent McGovern. That, too, is too much for a Vice President to overcome. There might be some importance in the big cities, where the poll gives Nixon only 50 percent to McGovern's 42 percent.

It's small wonder that partisans, even those of Schlesinger's statute, find it difficult to make a case for their man without resort to "ifs" which have no relevance to the here and now.



TWENTY-STORY CATHEDRAL, in Rio De Janeiro, rises skyward as workmen add finishing touches. The modernistic structure is scheduled for completion next year. (UPI Telephoto)

Rio's Modernistic Cathedral Will Hold Up To 40,000 People

By CHARLES E. PADILLA

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — A modernistic cathedral that will hold 40,000 persons and is so huge it has a posted speed limit inside it is nearing completion in Rio.

After eight years of work, the 20-story, cone-shaped cathedral is scheduled to be finished this December. It is located in the heart of downtown Rio.

"When completed, Rio can be proud that it will have the church with the most internal space in the world", the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Ivo Calliari, Rio archidecese administrator and project spokesman, said.

"In grandeur, it will be second only to St. Peter's Basilica in Rome."

The prelate said the cathedral will hold up to 40,000 persons standing. That is about the entire population of a city the size of Santa Fe, N.M. With chairs installed, it will have space for 6,800 worshipers.

The first religious ceremony in the massive, concrete structure, which looks like an upside down ice cream cone with the tip chopped off, will be a midnight Mass next Christmas Eve. But no official inauguration date has yet been set.

Cost of the imposing structure thus far has been about $1.3 million, all of which came from archdiocese funds and projects, the prelate said. Work on it began in 1964.

Built of Granite Slab

Constructed entirely of massive, gray concrete slabe, the spacious cathedral will have an inside diameter almost equal to the length of a football field-96 yards. There will be no columns inside to obstruct the view of the altar, which will be built on a raised podium in the center.

A visit to the cathedral revealed a large sign at one of the three huge entrances which said "speed limit 10 kilometers" 6 miles per hour. Parked inside were nearly 100 workmen's cars and a few large trucks. Twenty stories above a giant crane swung material and concrete to the workers.

Total internal space will be 8,000 square yards and from top to bottom, the structure will measure 215 feet.

Three entrances, each 60 feet wide, will allow 40,000 people to exit from the cathedral in five minutes, Msgr. Calliari said.

The cathedral will have four stained glass windows-one on each side of the cone-and each will have an area of almost 1,000 square yards, he said.

Dulcimer Music Is Now In Northwest

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — The dulcimer, like so much and so many before it, has come West and in a small way is bringing sweet sound to ears bludgeoned by today's series of bong bongs.

The dulcimer just tinkles like it did for the Appalachian mountain men generations ago.

Now it is being exposed to the Northwest thanks to the interest and ingenuity of two men who can make airplanes and all sorts of much noisier contributions to modern society.

The dulcimer is a three-stringed mountain zither and it gets its name from that gentle word "dulcet" which of course means "sweet to the ear".

That is what attracted Dick Hacker, an engineer at the Boeing Co., and he started to make the instruments. Carl Ulmschneider, a fellow engineer, joined in and they formed the Puget Sound Dulcimer Co.

Their work made its bow in the form of 15 various kinds of mandolin-like dulcimers put on display at a fair.

The partners strummed away and promptly sold five of them.

The instruments made of rosewood and spruce varied from the three to the five string variety and the makers varied the menu by occasionally making a Finnish lap harp.

They credit the early popularity to the simplicity of the Dulcimer. A tune is picked out on one of the strings while all the strings are strummed with a feather pick. The effect is that of a melody superimposed over a bagpipe-kind of sound.

Educator Predicts Major Changes In Years Ahead

By RICHARD M. HARNETT

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—The next few years will see more significant changs in American colleges and universities than anytime in the past century, predicts Dr. Clark Kerr, head of the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education.

"If the changes we are recommending come through...it would mean that education in the United States would be going through the second period of really fundamental change in the three-and-a-third centuries since Harvard was founded in 1636," Kerr said in an interview with United Press International.

The former president of the University of California believes the commission he heads has already had a "massive impact" in determining the direction of these changes.

One of its reports, on American health, became national policy, passed by Congress and signed by the President within a year after it was issued.

Timing Good

"It was one of those remarkable occurrences where a report came just at the right time and said the right things," says Kerr. The study called for a 50 per cent increase in the output of medical doctors and trimming the time it takes to become a doctor.

Kerr said his commission laid the groundwork for the new $21.3 billion federal School Act, winning out over the higher education "establishment" which favored a different approach.

Although debate on busing overshadowed the discussion, the law is "one of the two most important pieces of federal legislation affecting higher education in history—the other being the Land Grant Act of 1862," he said.

In it for the first time the nation sets as its public policy that "every young person ought to be entitled to enough money to go to college if his family can't afford it," says Kerr. "That's a new principle."

The measure provides that federal aid money will "follow the students, like the GI Bill—a sort of GI bill for low income students," says Kerr. This was his commission's recommendation, whereas most university administrators wanted federal aid to go directly to the institutions, for them to dole out to students.

Impact Powerful

Other Carnegie Commission ideas that have already had great impact on U.S. higher education, said Kerr, include:

—Cutting the normal college curriculum from four to three years. Kerr says this can be accomplished by eliminating a lot of time that is wasted in the senior year of high school and early college.

—The "stop out," a phrase coined by the commission to suggest that "sometimes it is a good thing for a student to stop out to get some work experience between high school and college, between lower division and upper division, or between upper division and graduate work.

One study which "fell by the wayside", says Kerr, was a report on how to prepare for and handle dissent and disruption on the campus. It came out "when dissent and disruption had pretty well disappeared.

"But I really wish it had gotten more attention. The time to get institutions ready with your rules and procedures is when you don't have trouble," said Kerr, who was in charge at Berkeley in 1964 when the nation's wave of unrest began there.

Budget Restrictions Predicted

Another report has shaken up many people in higher education. It warned professors and campus administrators that tighter budgets are here to stay, at least for the next 10 years.

It said higher education in the U.S. will have to live on $10 billion per year less than it might have had if the trend of the 60s continued.

"This is going to shock a lot of people," Kerr observed. "We suggest how it can be done without ruining the place, without ruining higher education."

Among economies the commission suggests are reducing the time a student spends in college, discouraging "unmotivated students" from staying in college, increasing the ratio of students to faculty and increasing the hours a professor teaches in certain cases. That report came out last month.

During the coming year the commission will publish results of a survey of 100,000 students and 60,000 faculty members. Kerr says the survey found "students and faculty members are a lot more satisfied with the campus than you'd be led to expect."

The Carnegie Commission was established in 1967 to take a look at higher education in the 1970s and looking ahead to the year 2000.

Outsiders Help

When it is finished, in about a year, it will have issued 20 reports prepared by the commission itself, as well as 50 studies done by outside experts. Kerr attributes much of its success to the fact that it is not composed entirely of educators.

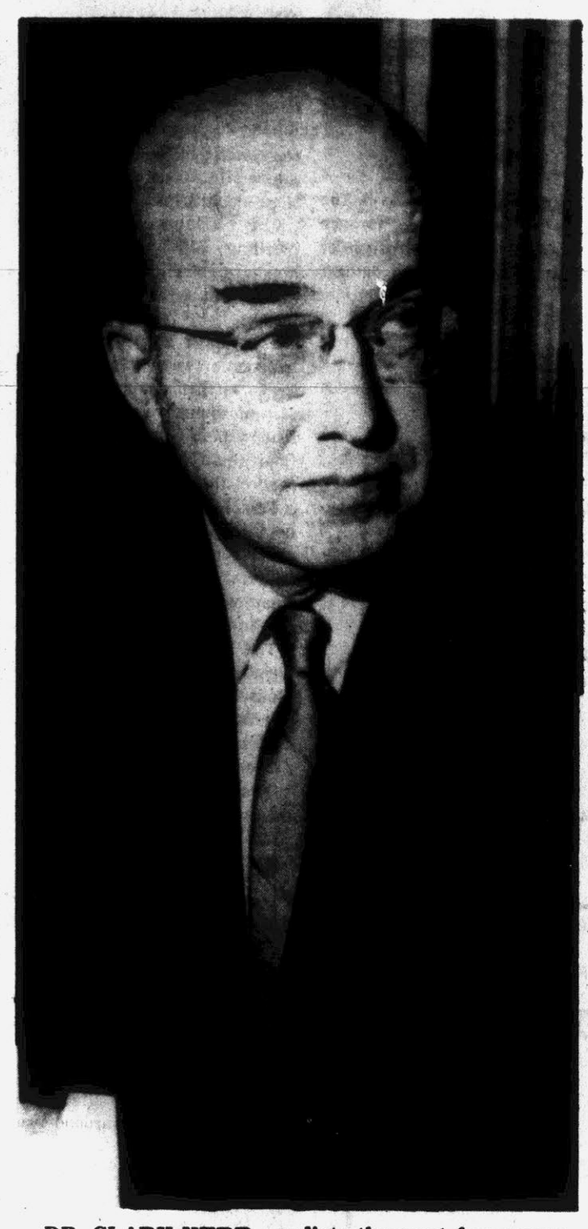
"Those who have been the most influential,the most helpful, are those from the outside because they bring in the new ideas," he said.

Kerr, 61, still teaches economics at Berkeley. He lost the presidency there in 1967, fired by the university regents in a reaction to the outbreak of student protest. Of that experience he says:

Police on Campus?

"There are a lot of things I regret about those days. But resisting the use of police, I'd absolutely do that again. Police aren't used because it gives rise to violence. I knew this from industrial relations. Once you brought in police you encouraged violence.

"As a matter of fact, nobody was injured while I was president. Not a single pane of glass was broken. No building was burned....When the get-tough policy was used later on, that's when the violence came."



DR. CLARK KERR predicts the next few years will see major changes in American colleges and universities. (UPI Telephoto)

The Old Treehouse Has New Underground Swank

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI) — Remember the old tree house? That primitive collection of old orange crates tacked together and perched on a big limb of a shade tree? Forget it.

Swanky. That's the way backyard dwellings come today. Witness the "Outhouse," a former tree house that's the pride and joy of Mark Cash, 14, and his chum Tom Powers, 15. Kings have lived worse.

It started last February when Mark's folks told him they were cutting down his tree to make way for a swimming pool in their backyard.

But Mark and Tom liked the upper floor of their two-story treehouse so much they sank it six inches under the ground in another part of the yard and it became the first room of what is now known in the neighborhood as the "Outhouse."

Took 6 Months Work

Six months of work, donated materials and ingenuity made the "Outhouse" into a three-room underground dwelling which would turn Tom Sawyer green with envy.

The bunker boasts wall-to-wall carpets, complete wall paneling, beam roof, central air conditioning, burglar alarm system, waterproof roofing and siding.

Central air conditioning? Well, the rooms are small—10 feet by 5, 5 by 6, and 4 by 5, and only 3½ feet tall, but they prove cozy for the boys and their friends.

Furnishings include a television set, stereo equipment, electric movie screen and projector, and in the near future, a telephone and running water.

The boys built the entire structure themselves with about $2,000 worth of materials donated by relatives in the building business and $200 they earned themselves by babysitting, pulling weeds and newspaper routes.

School Grades Slipped

Girlfriends were relegated to the swimming pool — male chauvinism is not dead—the last few months while the boys spent every spare minute working on their project.

They sleep in the underground dwelling at least three nights a week.

Mrs. Cash explained she let the boys build the "Outhouse" because it keeps them out of trouble and off the streets. Then too it keeps blaring rock music off her nerves.

The boys, who admit their grades slipped "just a little" because of the project, aren't ready to stop yet.

They have already started digging the "elegance room," a 12 foot by 20 foot room seven feet high which will feature carpets, paintings, couches and ceiling lamps.

Swiss Family Robinson, where are you?

Americans Are Big Travelers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans are probably the travelingest people on earth, with an estimated 8 per cent of the population traveling for business or pleasure on any given day. But according to the American Automobile Association (AAA), a goodly number also believe there's no place like home. The AAA says approximately 45 per cent of the U.S. population does not travel more than 100 miles from home during the year.

Oklahoma's first school for the blind was opened at Ft. Gibson in 1898.

STATE DIVIDED

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) — Kentucky has two state capitals for a brief period during the Civil War. Frankfort remained the seat of government for the Union, while Bowling Green was the Confederate capital.

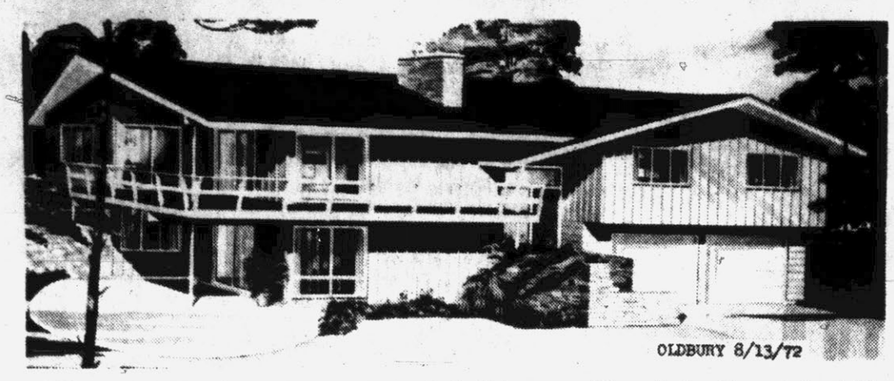
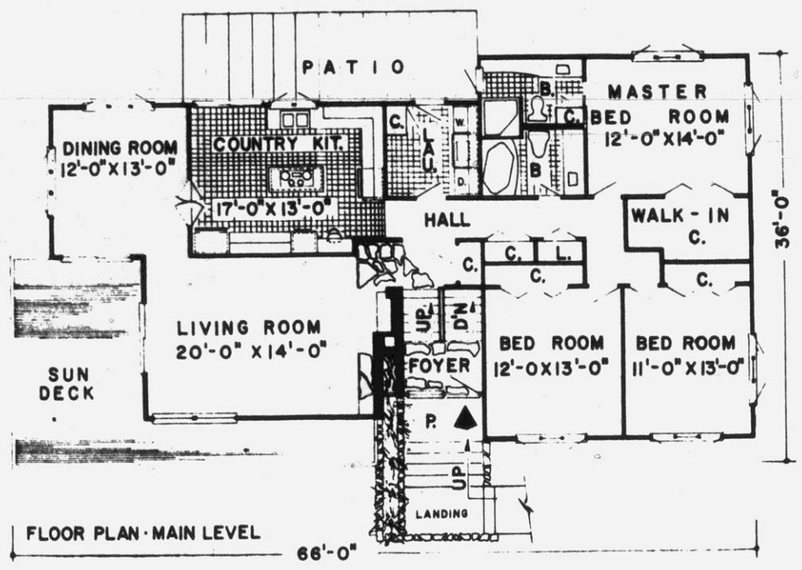
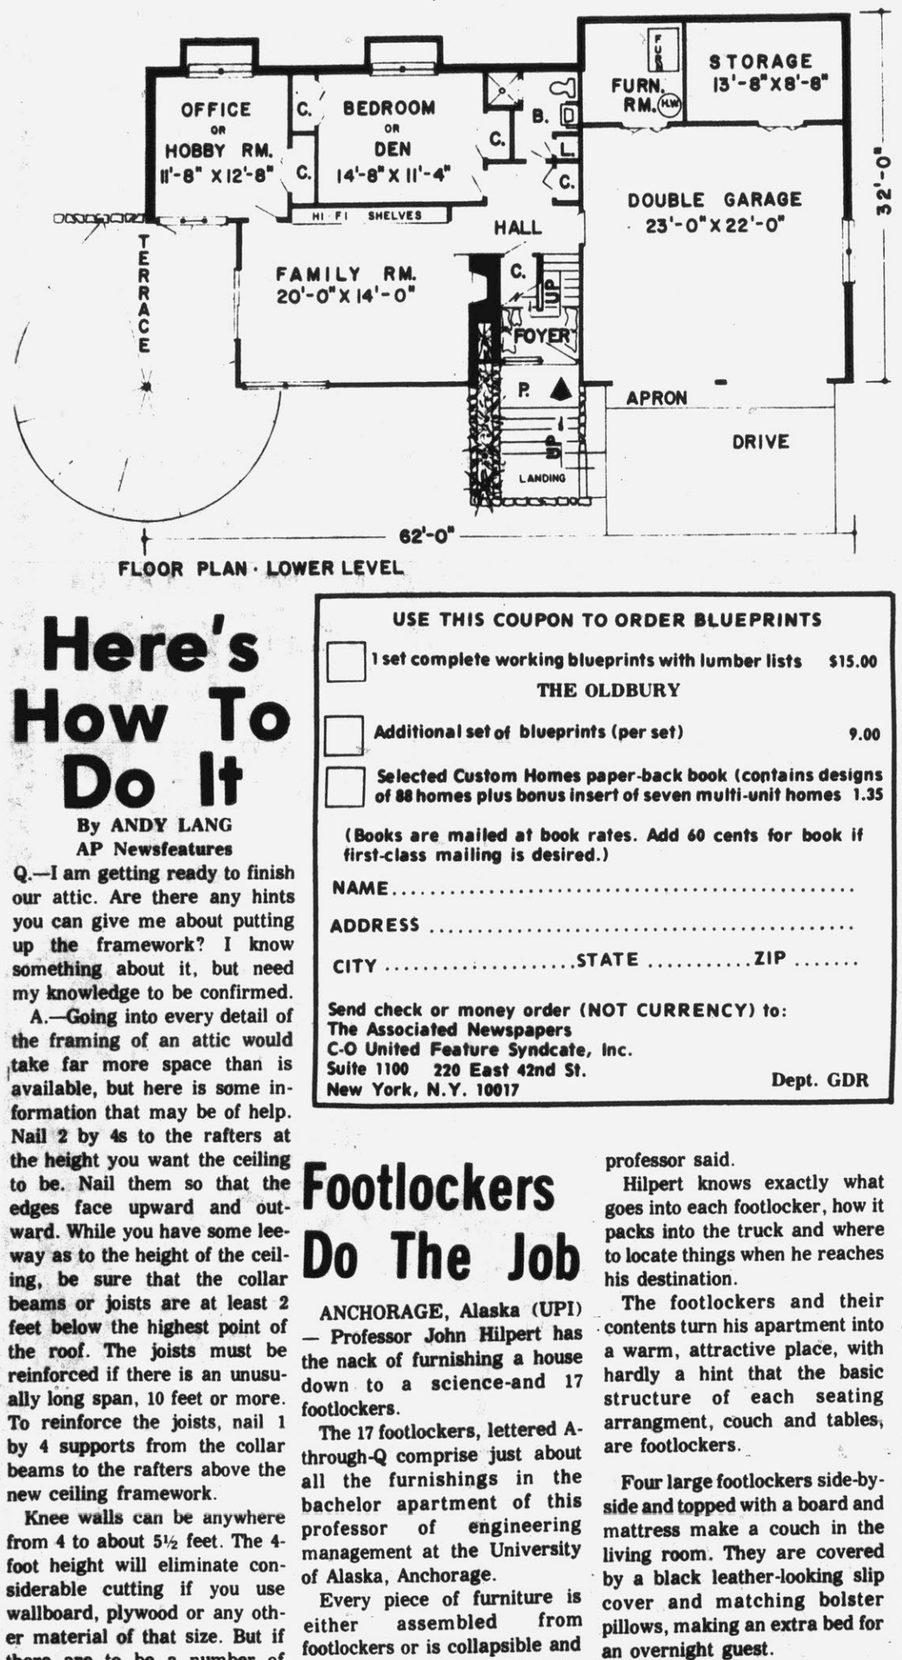
Home Is Tailored To Hilly Land



THE OLDBURY, designed by Associated House Plans, is a split-entry contemporary home which can be tailored to a sloping lot. There are three bedrooms, two baths, a laundry, country kitchen, living room with fireplace, formal dining room and sun deck on the main level. The lower level includes a double garage, furnace room, family room with fireplace, a bedroom or den, an office or hobby room, and an outdoor terrace.





By GERRY BISHOP

Fitting the structure to the terrain is always a key objective of architects.

This may pose a challenge in hilly countryside, especially when a lot slopes from back to front.

With this in mind, Associated House Plans designed the Oldbury, a contemporary split-foyer with a rustic exterior. The lot shown drops eight feet from rear to front but by making minor alterations a more gentle slope could be utilized.

The Oldbury is a large dwelling with many modern appointments. It would suit an active family with varied interests.

The upper level has three bedrooms, two baths, a country-style kitchen, laundry room, formal dining room and a 20-foot-by-14-foot living room. This floor would be on a level with the rear of the lot.

The lower floor includes a double garage, storage room, closet for the furnace and water heater, family room, powder room with shower, bedroom or den and an office or hobby room.

The living room has a wood-burning fireplace and sliding glass doors which open onto the sun deck.

The dining room also is connected to the sun deck.

The kitchen has sliding-glass doors which open onto a rear patio.

The plans call for frame construction with stone trim. The exterior is 12-inch vertical siding and 12-inch bevel siding. Red cedar shingles are used on the roof which has a 4-12 pitch.

One of the most appealing features is the sun deck which is made of two-by-fours spaced slightly apart to allow for drainage. It wraps around two sides of the house.

The split-foyer receives incoming traffic at a point midway between the two levels. A few steps up is the main level, which is comprised of the sleeping quarters in one wing and the main living area in another.

The master bedroom has a private bath with shower and a walk-in closet. The dimensions are 12 feet by 14 feet.

The other two bedrooms are approximately the same size — 12 feet by 13 feet — and each has a large closet.

The baths are back to back, a feature that reduces plumbing costs.

The living room — 20 feet by 14 feet — has a log-burning fireplace. Its connection with the sun deck enhances the facilities for entertaining.

The dining room — just larger than 12 feet square — is adjacent to the kitchen in a rear corner of the house.

The large kitchen — 17 feet by 13 feet — is sure to catch a homemaker's eye. Among its assets are an island-type built-in range, built-in desk, freezer and lots of dining space. The laundry room is conveniently located next door.

On the lower level, the large family room would be an ideal gathering place for teen-agers. It has a fireplace and adjoins an outdoor terrace.

Ther's also the powder room with shower, a possible fourth bedroom and an office which could be pressed into service as a fifth bedroom.

The plans specify drywall finish on the interior walls and ceilings.

The living area totals 1,748 square feet on the main level, 932 square feet on the lower level and 768 square feet in the garage. Exterior dimensions are 66 feet by 36 feet.

Most Homes Today Can Find Use For Office; You Don't Need A Room

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) —Whether for a full-fledged business at home, for the work Dad brings home in the evening, or just a bill paying-menu planning-or-respondence center for the family manager, most homes these days need office space.

Depending upon individual needs, this can be anything from a wing of the house to a niche under the stairs.

Leon Henry, who publishes a newsletter, Home Office Report, believes there are at least three million people who now work from home. He has a list of 91 occupations conducted at home and says it is growing steadily. These include not only the expected salesman-book-keeper-typist, but some less usual pursuits. A publisher of early American prints works from his home. So does a professional letter writer, a bottle topper, graphics designer and a lecture agent.

Home Office Ideas

Even if your home does not house an official business, it's a good bet that well planned, adequately equipped office space could benefit the whole family, says Jerry A. Pierson of 3M Co. which, in addition to its indispensible Scotch tapes, makes equipment for the home office such as tape recorders and a typewriter sized copier.

There's no reason, Pierson says, who the home office shouldn't have the conveniences of the business world. There are versions of just about any piece of equipment suitable for home use, from electric pencil sharpeners to calculating machines and, even, mini-computers.

Essential to any home office are a desk or work surface of proper height, the size varying with space available and the type of work to be done-a comfortable chair of the proper height, over-all illumination and a desk lamp, filing cabinets and storage space for stationery and supplies.

There should be a place, too, for a reference library. Contents will vary with individual needs and space, but dictionary, desk encyclopedia and atlas are fundamental.

Handy Equipment

Equipment should include a typewriter, an adding machine particularly useful at income tax time and for balancing checkbooks, perhaps a tape recorder-player good not only for at-home dictating, but for memos and instructions to the family, for taking notes and a host of other uses and possibly a copying machine invaluable for copying tax and business records, notes, passages from books and magazines, clippings, recipes, letters, children's art work and other family reports to be mailed out to relatives and family members away from home.

Where to put it all?

Take time to think out your family's needs' in light of the amount of work to be done, how many people will be using the space and equipment, the space that can be devoted to it, Pierson recommends.

Generally", he says, "family living will run more smoothly if everything from tax records to bills to greeting card lists to social correspondence can be dealt with in one location." However, the family member who conducts a business from home probably should have space set aside and equipped for his exclusive use and unless a room can be set aside for a family office-study, it probably is best for youngsters to have their own quiet corner for school work.

Combine Functions

Where space is available, Pierson suggests, a room set aside for study and home business is an ideal arrangement. It might be equipped with desks for various family members, a large work surface for projects, with shelves for books, magazines, collections, a bulletin board, space for hanging a changing display of family "art", maps and tother things of interest. There should be files and abundant storage cabinets for equipment and supplies and the inevitable accumulation of things that should be out of sight. In addition to work areas, comfortable, well-lighted seating should be provided for reading, possibly use of audio equipment, and slide or movie projectors.

Where space is at a premium, Pierson recommends use of a corner of the family room, kitchen, utility or laundry room. A large bedroom might provide quiet working space, or the end of a dead-end hallway. Even in the garage, attic or basement might provide a cozy office with some bright decorating.

An extra-large closet might be converted into an office, with folding doors to conceal it when not in use. Often there is space under a stairwell.

"If all else fails," Pierson says, "turn part of the living room into an office, planning the decor so that living and working areas are definitely separated. Room dividers or screens can be helpful here. Instead of a traditional desk, a dual purpose table might be used."

In furnishing an office, a "desk" can be just about anything from a massive antique to a simple plywood slab set on two file cabinets. There are ready-made home offices that contain desk space, storage compartments, room to use a typewriter, and doors that close the whole thing from view.

Wall Becomes Office

A wall can become an office, thanks to units encompassing desk, cabinets and shelves, with an important plus better use of vertical space.

The Garden Clinic

N.C. State University Answers Timely Gardening Questions

Q. Leaves on my azaleas are turning yellow and dropping off. The tops of the leaves are speckled and the bottoms have black, shiny spots and black, rough looking bugs. What are they and what can I do? (M.S., Winston-Salem)

A. They are azalea lace bugs, and you can control them with a number of insecticides. Either malathion 57 percent emulsifiable concentrate at the rate of two teaspoons per gallon of water or Meta-Systox R 25 percent emulsifiable concentrate at the rate of one teaspoon per gallon will give satisfactory control. Two or three applications at 10 days intervals will be needed to get all the insects in the egg stage. (H.E. Scott, extension entomologist)

Q. How is the best way to get rid of briars along a ditch bank and fence? (E.A., Raleigh)

A. Use 2, 4-D at double the rate suggested for lawn use. Mix a surfactant in the spray solution and spray only the briars. You may need a second spraying in six weeks. (Bill Lewis, extension agronomist)

Q. My husband got me a Zebra plant but I can't find any information on how to grow them. (Mrs. J.C., Wilmington)

A. The Zebra plant (Aphelandra) needs diffused light, such as that filtered through light curtains or a Venetian blind. Plants tend to become tall and leggy; therefore, a new plant should be started from a cttting about once a year. They grow best in a rich potting soil with ample water (but not overwatered). After blooming, the plant should be "rested" by keeping it a bit dry but not allowed to wilt or shrivel. (Henry Smith, extension horticulturist)

Q. You keep suggesting special chemicals for controlling weeds. Why don't you let people know that they can kill weeds with salt and clorox (Mrs. M.B., Golston)

A. Because salt and clorox can sterile the soil and kill desirable plants that have roots in the treated area. It's always better to use the proper chemical for the specific weed problem. (Bill Lewis, extension agronomist)

Here's How To Do It

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q.—I am getting ready to finish our attic. Are there any hints you can give me about putting up the framework? I know something about it, but need my knowledge to be confirmed.

A.—Going into every detail of the framing of an attic would take far more space than is available, but here is some information that may be of help. Nail 2 by 4s to the rafters at the height you want the ceiling to be. Nail them so that the edges face upward and outward. While you have some leeway as to the height of the ceiling, be sure that the collar beams or joists are at least 2 feet below the highest point of the roof. The joists must be reinforced if there is an unusually long span, 10 feet or more. To reinforce the joists, nail 1 by 4 supports from the collar beams to the rafters above the new ceiling framework.

Knee walls can be anywhere from 4 to about 5½ feet. The 4-foot height will eliminate considerable cutting if you use wallboard, plywood or any other material of that size. But if there are to be a number of built-ins and closets, more height is preferable.

There are several ways to attach the tops of 2 by 4 studs to the sides of the rafters at the desired height. One is to nail them to the sides of the rafters. Another is to attach 1 by 3s to the underside of the rafters to form top plates. In either case, sole plates are nailed to the floor where the bottom of the wall is to be. These sole plates, 2 by 4s, should be nailed through the subfloor into the joists below with 1-6 penny nails. The studs must be absolutely vertical, so use a level and plumb bob to be certain there is perfect alignment, otherwise you'll have to do a lot of shimming later. The studs should be 16 inches apart on center; that is, 16 inches from the center of one stud to the next. Where extra heavy and rigid material is to be used for the walls, you can get by with studs 24 inches apart on center.

Q.—I used some copper tubing recently and tried to bend it, but there was a kink at the center of the bend when I got finished. How can this tubing be bent without getting that kind of result?

A.—To make a smooth bend in flexible copper tubing, use a spring-type tubing bender, available at plumbing supply houses and some building supply dealers.

Footlockers Do The Job

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — Professor John Hilpert has the nack of furnishing a house down to a science-and 17 footlockers.

The 17 footlockers, lettered A-through-Q comprise just about all the furnishings in the bachelor apartment of this professor of engineering management at the University of Alaska, Anchorage.

Every piece of furniture is either assembled from footlockers or is collapsible and fits into a footlocker. That is, everything but an organ which requires a special crate.

When Hilpert decides to move, he simply packs up his footlockers and fits them into his pick-up truck along with the organ, two folding card tables and two mattresses. "There's little fuss and no expense the professor said.

Hilpert knows exactly what goes into each footlocker, how it packs into the truck and where to locate things when he reaches his destination.

The footlockers and their contents turn his apartment into a warm, attractive place, with hardly a hint that the basic structure of each seating arrangment, couch and tables, are footlockers.

Four large footlockers side-by-side and topped with a board and mattress make a couch in the living room. They are covered by a black leather-looking slip cover and matching bolster pillows, making an extra bed for an overnight guest.

In the livingroom, Hilpert arranges two footlockers end-to-end with a coffee table area, and a cushioned seating area, all along one wall, with a larger footlocker for a similar arrangement elsewhere in the room. Striped fabric in muted tones hides the footlockers.

If you happen to have one of the modern single-lever faucets in your kitchen or bathroom, you don't have to worry about changing washers, because it doesn't have one.

But the very large majority of houses still have the ordinary compression faucets, with separate hot and cold water taps. That means the washer in each faucet eventually wears down and needs replacing.

The days are gone when you could get a washer changed for a dollar or two. In fact, regardless of the charge, it's difficult even to get a plumber for such a small job. And there's no reason to do so. Changing a faucet washer is within the capability of anyone.

The first step is to turn off the water leading to the faucet. Most faucets have cut-off valves underneath the sink, one for the hot water, one for the cold. Turning the valve clockwise shuts off the water. If you have a very old sink with no such visible valves, the water to the line must be shut off or, if you don't know where it is (you should), the valve must be closed at the point where the water line enters the house.

After opening the faucet handle all the way, the stem can be lifted out or screwed out. Where there is a nut near the handle, it should be loosened with a wrench after covering it with adhesive tape to prevent scratches. At the bottom of the stem you will find a chewed-up washer held in place by a screw. Remove it. If the screw is so banged up that you can't get it out with a screwdriver, grip the top of it with pliers and turn it counterclockwise.

Replace the washer with one of the same size and put back everything in the reverse order in which it was removed.

Once in a great while the faucet will continue to drip after the washer has been replaced. When this occurs, it usually means that the seat of the faucet—the part the washer rests on—is uneven and in need of smoothing. For this you will need an inexpensive faucet seat dresser, which will come attached to a card that tells you how to use it. The seat dresser takes the place of steel wool or a file, either of which would be difficult to fit into the faucet opening.

Should you have to take the faucet apart again in order to use a seat dresser, remember that you again must turn off the water before the disassembling operation.

There Is A Way To Communicate With Very Young

Allow the restless visitor to decide how long he will play.

By DR. HAIM GINOTT

Note to readers: The encounters depicted in my column are designed to serve as a practical guide to improved communication. They are not to be taken literally. They should be adapted to individual situations and individual ways of speaking.

THIS EPISODE illustrates that even little children respond to sympathetic messages that respect their autonomy and freedom of choice.

Richard, 3, was invited to play at the home of his friend John. He was unsure and hesitant about going. One minute after he arrived, he said, "I want to go home."

John's mother put Richard on her lap and cuddled him, saying, "I think I know what you are feeling. Part of you wants to play with John and the other part of you wants to be in your own house where it's nice and secure."

Richard: Yes.

John's mother: I'm going to set my timer in the kitchen and when it goes off, you can decide whether or not you want to go home. Shall I set the timer for five minutes or ten minutes?

Richard: Ten minutes.

Ten minutes later the timer went off. Richard and John were playing happily.

John's mother: Richard, the timer just went off. Shall I set it for another ten minutes?

Richard: Yes.

This procedure went on for the next hour. Mother checked with him every ten minutes, and each time Richard said he would stay for another ten minutes. Finally, after lunch, he went home, very pleased with himself.

THERE IS a benign way to communicate with infants, as demonstrated in the following incident. The main message conveyed is: "What you feel and think counts very much with your parents."

After an hour in the park, Mother gave John, 2, the choice of "going home now" or in "10 minutes." He, of course, chose the latter and mother waited. When the time came to leave he began to protest. Mother picked up her crying child and started home. Over and over she repeated the following sentences:

"You would like to stay in the park."

"You would still enjoy playing in the sandbox."

"You would like to continue playing with your friends."

"You would like to play with your truck."

She kept walking and talking. The more she spoke the calmer she remained. John's crying diminished too. By the time they got home he had stopped crying.

Even we cannot fulfill a little child's request, we can avoid long explanations and harsh commands. We can do what is necessary while talking to heart.

NATHAN, 14 months old, hated mittens. He would wear them while playing, but not during his trip from the park to home. Mother decided to end the war over mittens by turning her usual "no" statement into a "yes" statement.

As he started to pull the mittens off yelling "Off, off," Mother replied: "Yes, just as soon as we get in the house, Nathan."

Nathan pointed in the direction of the house and said, "House, house." "Yes," said Mother. When they reached the lobby door, Nathan said: "Off, off," Mother said: "Fourteen months old, and you really know your own mind. Let's get those mittens off."

He took them off himself. Mother said: "How capably you do that."

"Yes," Nathan said firmly.

When a parent states clearly that he appreciates his child's effort and achievement, the child draws positive conclusions about himself. Especially with a young child we need to use every opportunity to help him enhance his self-image.

No 'Paperless' Society Likely

NEW YORK (AP) — Though a "paperless society" has been widely forecast by some authorities, at least one group of people very close to the problem don't believe it's a real possibility in the foreseeable future.

This is the conclusion of Arthur D. Little Inc. consultant Anthony Niskanen, based on a survey of a group of chief executives of the Business Forms Industry.

Eight-five per cent of the chief executives surveyed expressed the opinion that threats to increased use of paper forms from advanced technologies are "greatly exaggerated" and "at least 10 years away from having a significant effect."

Cites Coastal Plain As Potential Growth Area

The Atlantic coastal plain region of Georgia, South Carolina and North Carolina contain several well defined growth centers that could provide more opportunities for residents in the rural and economically deprived areas of the region.

This view was expressed Friday in a speech by Richard A. Stephenson, Associate Professor of Geography at East Carolina University, before the 22nd International Geographical Congress being held in Montreal, Quebec, Canada. Stephenson is representing ECU at the two week congress which convened August 9.

Stephenson cited the Savannah, Columbia, Augusta, Charleston, Columbus, Raleigh, Macon, Brunswick and Wilmington areas in the three state region as the strongest centers offering the most potential for future development of the coastal plain.

"By encouraging growth in and between these centers, more opportunities will be manifest for residents in rural areas," Stephenson said.

He described what is called a "growth pole theory" which in effect states that as the centers grow, prosperity will increase into the outlying or lagging areas to the extent that jobs become available for rural commuters, and demand for agricultural products, recreational facilities and rural non farm housing increases.

After a period of time, Stephenson explained that congestion, pollution and a high cost of living in the growth centers will make development more attractive in the rural areas.

He also stated that future interstate and state highway systems connecting the growth centers with outlying areas will contribute to a more pronounced development in the three state region.

The International Geographical Congress is held every four years to discuss the effects of geography throughout the world. The present session ends Friday, August 18.

Mark Birthday Of 'Big Julie'

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Even the high-rolling gamblers at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas have a sense of humor. July 12 was Julius Caesar's birthday, his 2072nd to be exact. A group of the boys interrupted their action pursuits long enough to have a sash wrapped about the chest of the hotel-casino's 10 foot statue of the Roman Emperor. The sash read, "Happy Birthday, Big Julie."

Trade Long Hair For 'Skinhead'

DUNEDIN, New Zealand (AP) — When two long-haired college students were ordered by their teachers to get their hair cut, they did just that.

Sixth-former Bevan Boyle swapped his neck-length locks for a skinhead style, and fourth-former Geoffrey Thomson settled for a Mohican cut.

Geoffrey also made $32 from classmates who bet he wouldn't do it.

Private Visit By Royal Couple

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department says Princess Margriete of the Netherlands and her husband Pieter plan a private visit to the United States next month.

Included on their itinerary is a stop in Holland, Mich., on Sept. 9 to take part in the celebration of the 125th anniversary of the founding of the city, the State Department said Thursday.

Novice Actor Gets Top Roles; 'Always Knew' He Would Act Someday

By WAKA TSUNODA

NEW YORK (AP) — How would you feel if you were a 21-year-old novice actor, and your first and second serious jobs turned out to be the the leads in the movie versions of two Broadway hits: "Butterflies Are Free" and "Forty Carats?"

"Good," grins Edward Albert, the son of Eddie Albert and the godson of Sir Laurence Olivier.

"I was not chosen for 'Butterflies' because I was a better actor. It's just because of the quality I had which the film needed—a certain innocence without being naive, the quality of a boy's youth who's becoming a man. I got 'Forty Carats,' because the producer of both films liked my work in 'Butterflies.'

"I worked hard for the role," said the tanned, 6-foot-1 actor. "It was important to me to do it right and not to make a caricature of a sightless person. I studied at the Braille Institute, and I also studied with a friend of mine who's blind. I learned from him that blindness is only as much handicap as you let it be—as any handicap is."

By friend he means Harold Krents, the blind graduate of Harvard Law School who was the inspiration for the Broadway play. Now a Washington lawyer, Krents traveled to Hollywood to help Albert at his request.

EDWARD ALBERT

"We went around town—I pretended to be blind to get the feel of having to deal with people, and have people deal with me as a blind person. We took buses, went to restaurants and to a tennis match."

Albert says he has always known he would act some day, and it was only the matter of the right time.

"It's a great life," he said of show business. "My parents love it. During the filming, they helped me, supported me and taught me, since I have no previous acting experience to speak of. My mother helped me through it."

His mother, Margo, an actress still remembered fondly by older movie fans, retired from her screen career when Albert was born to concentrate on bringing him up.

When he was 11, Albert appeared in a movie which, he said, was never really released. "I did it because I wanted to know what I was getting into. I knew I wouldn't go into an acting career immediately. I knew I had to grow up a lot before I could do that."

To grow up, he went to UCLA, majoring in psychology, studied Shakespeare on a scholarship at Oxford, worked as a writer and photographer for American and European publications, and also as a Spanish-American translator on the film, "Patton."

Now having finished "Butterflies" and waiting for "Forty Carats" to begin, he spends his spare time writing songs, playing the guitar and growing vegetables at home in Palisade, Calif.

It's Another Try For Bob Newhart

EDITOR'S NOTE—In the early 60s Bob Newhart was one of the funniest men to ever pick up a telephone. Then he got his own television series, collecting a bundle of awards—and was promptly canceled. After a decade of nightclubs, he's coming back with only one fear "...winning another award."

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Lorenzo Music and David Davis wrote a "Love American Style" sketch for Bob Newhart. Sid Caeser played the role.

They wrote a guest starring role for Newhart on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show." Paul Sands played the part.

Finally, they created a new series for CBS, "The Bob Newhart Show." He accepted.

The new situation comedy, in which Newhart plays a Chicago psychologist, will be his first regular appearance on television in a decade. It will be seen on Saturday nights in the fall.

His first series, a comedy variety show, collected a bundle of awards in the early 1960s—and was promptly canceled.

Newhart had turned down offers to do situation comedy over the years as he pursued his nightclub and movie career. "It just wasn't for me," he said. "The addled husband and the all-knowing wife, the kids, the dog. Dick Van Dyke broke that stereotype. Situation comedy has changed. It's realistic."

Newhart, who made his reputation and fortune as a monologuist, said, "I like the humor to come out of character. When you're going for a joke you're stuck out there if it doesn't work. There's nowhere to go. You've done the drum role and the cymbal clash and you're out on the end of the plank."

The show, besides having a superb supporting cast in Suzanne Pleshette, Peter Bonerz and Bill Dailey, has another plus going for it. It is filmed with three cameras in sequence like a play before an audience.

A growing number of comedies are adopting this technique because of the advantages it offers.

Unlike many comedy shows, which are filmed in bits and pieces, a three-camera show is rehearsed and polished for a week.

Dressed informally for the rehearsal in a white knit shirt and striped jeans, Newhart sat smoking a cigarette in the commissary at CBS Studio Center. "To me the laugh track killed TV for a while," he said. "People say TV is getting better. I think the reason is because the laugh track is going.

"Writers didn't have to stay up half the night working on a scene to make it better. They knew they'd get a laugh from the track whether it worked or not. Now, if it's not funny it doesn't get a laugh."

Newhart is 43 now, his brown hair is receding, his skills are honed, and he could still pass for the accountant he once was in Chicago. Or a psychologist, as he is in the series.

"The reason I'm a psychologist is based in part on my telephone routines," he said. "Much of my humor comes out of reaction to what other people are saying. A psychologist is a man who listens, who is sympathetic."

Does Newhart have any qualms about returning to television with a regular series. "Only the fear of winning another award," he laughed.

Hitchcock Is 73 Today, Still Tops In His Craft

By NORMAN GOLDSTEIN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — To Alfred Hitchcock, frightening people is fun.

He is the grand master of the macabre, an "artist of anxiety."

As he enjoys his 73rd birthday this Aug. 13, he remains ageless in the Age of the Director, a rare filmmaker who is the pudgy pet of both movie people and mass audiences; a technician and an entertainer. And with 53 films to his credit, he still is tops at both.

Books have been written about the chubby, red-faced cherub whose distinctive speech and paunchy profile have become familiar to both movie and television audiences. The volumes analyze his technique, his symbolism, his cinema psychology. Yet, mass audiences around the world may not have read a word about his style and still wouldn't miss a "Hitchcock film."

His is a reputation based on suspenseful murder mysteries dating back to the silent days, from "The Lodger," which established his movie style in 1926, through "The Man Who Knew Too Much," "Thirty-Nine Steps," "The Lady Vanishes," "Foreign Correspondent," "Spellbound," "Strangers on a Train," "Dial M For Murder," "North by Northwest," "Psycho" and the latest, "Frenzy."

"All my films are full of mayhem and what-have-you," smiled Hitchcock. "It's a cross I have to bear. I'm typed." It is a stereotype he obviously relishes, however. He wouldn't want it any other way.

"I got a letter once," he relates. "From a father who wrote that his daughter had been so frightened by the murder scene in the bathtub in 'Diabolique' (not a Hitchcock film) that she wouldn't take a bath. And then she had seen 'Psycho'—the murder takes place in the shower—and wouldn't take a shower.

"I wrote back and suggested he send her to the dry cleaners." The wry tale is typical of the man who has made a success out of combining horror and humor, and perhaps best exemplifies that English characteristic of macabre humor.

"You can't make a picture like 'Psycho' without laughing up your sleeve a little," he says. "People enjoy being frightened. A haunted house. A roller coaster. There's a fine line between screams of excitement people pay money to endure and the screams of real fear."

Despite the similarity of subject matter in nearly all of Hitchcock's films, his inventiveness has made each of them fresh and unconventional. The key, says Hitchcock, is to avoid the cliche.

There is what he describes as the cliche scene in the detective's office, where he and an assistant discuss the case and the clues in search of a solution. But, in "Frenzy" he and scenarist Anthony Shaffer decided to give the detective a wife and have the couple talk about the murders over "gourmet" dinners. The result is bright and witty scenes, avoiding the cliche.

Still thinking horror and humor, Hitchcock is looking for material to suit his somewhat macabre tastes. He has no thoughts of retirement.

TV Notes

NEW YORK (UPI)—It is amazing to me that anyone still can watch those late shows such as NBC's "Tonight" and the Dick Cavett program on ABC. The sameness, night after night, turned me off long ago. CBS sensibly gave up in this area by cancelling Merv Griffin and turning the time over to old movies. Which makes it easy to turn off the set at the conclusion of the 11 p.m. news.

The networks are still floundering around for good comedy entertainment. Why? Didn't they ever hear of Jackie Gleason, Sid Caesar, Red Skeleton?

If you remember how Carol Burnett, the best protean comedienne on television, began her video career, you have been around quite a while and have a remarkable memory. In the very early 1950's, she was sort of a stooge on a program that starred ventriloquist Paul Winchell. Followed quickly by a quick failure in a series entitled "Stanley," in which she was vis-a-vis comic Buddy Hackett.

Comedian Lily Tomlin has been signed as a guest star on three variety shows in the fall. She will appear Oct. 30 on "The Bill Cosby Show" on CBS, Carol Burnett's CBS hour on Nov. 6 and ABC's "The Julie Andrews Show" Dec. 13.

Lynn Klugman, a television associate director, is the niece of star Jack Klugman of "The Odd Couple" series.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —Ralph Edwards' "This Is Your Life" syndicated television series has been renewed for a third year in 100 major cities starting the week of Sept. 11.

British Jazz Leader Retires

LONDON (AP) — Ken Colyer, 45, one of Britain's most influential but old-fashioned jazz musicians, is retiring from the music business.

Colyer, a cornet player who leads a New Orleans-style band, says his health is failing and he doesn't feel well enough to go on playing the one-night stands that British jazz demands.

Colyer blew his way to prominence about 1950 with the Crane River Jazz Band.

Gift To Inmates From B.B. King

CHINO, Calif. (AP) — Blues guitarist B. B. King and the Sansui Corp. have donated a $2,000 am-fm stereo receiver to the inmates of the California Institution for Men here.

King presented a two-hour concert at Chino recently, his 20th prison show. His appearance was for the organization FAIRR, which raises funds for musical and cultural materials for inmates.

Craft Program Serving Eight County Carolina Area

Something wonderful is happening at SENC-Crafts (Southeast North Carolina Crafts, Incorporated) that operates from a spot on the grounds of Boys' Home at Lake Waccamaw in Columbus County.

The fact that SENC-Crafts is not yet a fully equipped, wholly established project does not lessen the impact it is having in a large, predominantly rural eight county area of the southeasternmost part of North Carolina.

Even the recent loss through fire of the pottery has not shaken the conviction of those who feel that SENC-Crafts is a project destined for far better and bigger things ahead. These people—and they are from many walks of life and from scattered towns and villages of the area—have exhibited the spirit of keeping at it despite a misfortune that for less determined people could have been a devastating blow.

This realistic faith that incorporates a large measure of hard work and willingness to keep going has impressed the North Carolina Arts Council.....to the extent the Council has approved a total of $9,625 in salary assistance grants to hire a program coordinator for two years.

SENC-Crafts originated in the spring of 1966 following a meeting of four persons to discuss the needs of the area and ways of meeting those needs with available resources. Tom Barrett, then dean of adult education for Southeastern Community College; Mrs. Keith Blake, home extension agent for Columbus County; Mrs. R.N. McCray, wife of the director of Boys' Home at Lake Waccamaw; and Miss Marjorie Shearin of Raleigh, home extension crafts specialist, were the original quartet organizing the project.

From there, the next step was to invite extension personnel from the eight counties — Bladen, Brunswick, Columbus, Cumberland, Duplin, New Hanover, Pender and Robeson to join in this effort. The response showed that people did indeed care, did feel that creative outlets could play a rejuvenating role in the lives of many people. From Southeastern Community College, Pembroke State University, the University of North Carolina at Wilmington help came in the most meaningful terms — people willing to give time, effort, and facilities for classes and courses. Individuals, too, such as druggist John McNeill and insurance agent Frank Gault, both of Whiteville, have been strong supporters.

And a place to start was made possible by the offer of space at the Boys' Home — space in its Country Store for the craft shop and the use of its multilith equipment.

Advocates of the program speak of both tangible and intangible benefits that are evident in the wide ranging program. In the first category is a Tabor City housewife who made $88 from the sale of macrame handbags while demonstrating macrame at the SENC-Crafts Festival; and an Elizabethtown housewife who sold $200 worth of rag dolls. For Mrs. Thelma Graham, the money she gained through teaching chair bottoming with corn shucks meant a bathroom for her small rural house.

Examples of intangible results are equally impressive — for William Bridges of Wilmington his hobby of welding through SENC-Crafts has brought a close relationship with young people in his retirement years, one woman, under physchiatric care, "bloomed" after she found an outlet in making functional, decorative pots; and another woman felt she became "somebody" after she had been to the State Fair to demonstrate in the Village of Yesteryear.

Perhaps one of the most vivid examples of the spirit of determination that prevails in this project is that exhibited by young Hugh Johnson, the pottery instructor of SENC-Crafts. The pottery burned on a Friday night. On the following Monday morning he and some students were glazing on a table near the charred ruins.

EAGER POTTERY STUDENTS ... at SENC-Crafts, Lake Waccamaw, carry on in the open following a fire that destroyed their pottery. Potter instructor Hugh Johnson devised an outdoor firing operation to keep the pottery operational. (Photo N.C. Museum of History)

The new clay that had arrived had not been ruined by the blaze. "We'll build an open pit and fire that way, the way the Indians did," Johnson outlined his plans. "Then I'll do raku for a couple of weeks and then we can try some salt glazes."

While crafts has been the focal point of SENC-Crafts to date, there are new ideas afloat to extend the project to encompass an ever-widening scope of service to the inhabitants of this largely rural area. It is hoped now to add the performing arts to the present activities in crafts.

In fact, a start has already been made in this direction. The annual festival, a two-day affair that this year drew some 5,000 people, in 1972 was the first to include a significant element in the performing arts. Drama groups from the University of North Carolina at Wilmington and the West Columbus High School presented one-act plays. A group from the Wilmington City Recreation Department gave a dance program; and students from Southeastern Community College presented a series of films.

All this, exciting as it may be, is in the eyes of those who envision greater things ahead, merely the opening of the door to endless opportunities ahead for thousand of people in the eight counties eager to explore the power of their own creativity.

In Some Foreign Field — The Story of Four British Graves on the Outer Banks. By L. Vanloan Naisawald. 1972. Winston-Salem, John F. Blair, Publisher. 80 pps (paperback), illustrated, $2.95.

Every now and then a writer will find a clue, some record of an isolated, almost forgotten tragedy that marks the beginning point of inspiration.

Such is the case of L. Vanloan Naisawald, author of In Some Foreign Field. A professional writer with the Office of the Chief of Research and Development, Department of the Army and a free-lance writer in his spare time, Naisawald explains his reaction on first visiting the small British cemetery in Ocracoke village on Ocracoke Island in 1968: "I felt a sudden kinship with the men buried there, since the plaques on their crosses told me they had been recovered on the very day I had entered the U.S. Army."

Piqued by curiosity to know more about the four British men buried in May 1942 in the sands of North Carolina's Outer Banks, far from their native England, Naisawald began research that after three years led to the publication of this book.

With commendable honesty, the author has written a straightforward, unadorned account of the known facts about the two identified men interred in the cemetery — Sub-Lieutenant Thomas Cunningham and Wireless Telegrapher Stanley R. Craig. (The other two graves are marked "Unknown.")

This small book is also the reconstructed history of the travels, activities and eventual fate of the H.M.S. Bedfordshire. Four officers and 33 sailors lost their lives some time soon following a last routine message from the ship at 3:12 on the afternoon of May 11, 1942.

With the aid of German records, Naisawald has established that the German submarine U-558, commanded by a young submarine ace, Gunther Krech, fired the fatal torpedo that immediately sent the small trawler beneath the surface of the Atlantic off the North Carolina coast. (Krech and his crew were to meet a similar fate 14 months later, when the U-558 was sunk on July 20, 1943 in the Bay of Biscay by Allied aircraft. There were no survivors).

In Some Foreign Field thus affords an informative capsule view of the mechanics of naval warfare as well as an insight into the toll in human lives that World War II inflicted.

But even in life and death games of war, there is always the brighter side. Naisawald reveals this in unfolding the chronicle of recollections recorded in his research — fond remembrances of brief but enduring friendships between islanders and coastal dwellers of North Carolina and the lonely young Britishers on foreign duty; the concern of warm-hearted people such as Aycock Brown and Miss Fannie Pearl Fulcher that these youthful dead should receive a decent burial and be honored after death in having their graves maintained properly.

In Some Foreign Field is absorbing human drama simply told. In its simplicity, it becomes a beautiful, direct statement of eloquence,.

Today the cemetery is maintained through "the sympathy, interest and respect of local citizens." On a home-made plaque fastened to the cemetery fence are three lines penned by another British youth, the poet Rupert Brooke who died in World War I a generation earlier:

"If I should die think only this of me-That there's some corner-Of a foreign field that is forever England."

"Owl And Pussycat" Set For New Bern Production

"The Owl and the Pussycat" is the play chosen for the next production of New Bern's Rooftop Dinner Theatre. Opening on Thursday, August 24, the play will run for a total of six performances. In addition to opening night, other performances will be on August 25, 26, 31 and September 1 and 2.

Bette Chambers of Havelock, award-winning actress who is a recipient of one of 18 state acting awards in the Carolina Dramatics Association competition held last spring, heads the cast as Doris Wilgus. A young New Bern actor, Michael Scardinale, will play the male lead, that of Felix Sherman.

H.C. Nash of New Bern is directing the three-act comedy—a bittersweet love affair that develops between a boy and a girl after the girl loses the lease on her apartment as a result of complaints made by the boy.

Mrs. Chambers made three appearances in 1971 with the Coastal Playhouse—as Doreen in "The Private Ear;" Belinda in "The Public Eye;" and Princess Number 12 in "Once Upon A Mattress."

The New Bern Rooftop Dinner Theater is located in the Ramada Inn. A theater-in-the-round experiment for New Bern, the theater is a combination of dinner and theater, with dinner at seven and curtain time at 8:15 p.m.

Tickets are priced at $7.00 per person ($7.50 on Saturday evening) and include the price of dinner and the performance. Tickets can be ordered in advance by telephone (638-3051) or by writing to: Ticket Office, Rooftop Dinner Theater, Ramada Inn, 921 Broad Street, New Bern, N.C. 28560. Patrons purchasing tickets by mail should include a self-addressed, stamped return envelope.

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By WILLIE MAE GIBBS

In several of the new publications at the library, various authors have addressed themselves to subjects that have greatly concerned the public.

WITHOUT PRESCRIPTION by Drs. Erwin Di Cyan and Lawrence Hessman is the first and only book of its kind. It is an unbiased, knowledgeable guide to the selection and use of medicines you can get over-the-counter without prescription, for safe self-medication. This book gives the facts on the brand names of certain drugs and the ingredients they contain, describes the beneficial and harmful effects of each drug, and points out that symptoms may stem from various causes. WITHOUT PRESCRIPTION will be of considerable benefit to the layman in helping him base his judgement about using specific medications on what he has learned about the ailment and the products available.

Bibi Wein, author of THE RUNAWAY GENERATION, has taken an approach that differs from the one taken by others who have written on the subject of young people and drugs. Whereas parents, teachers, and psychologists have been asking themselves and each other why numerous kids armed with drugs and radical ideas are literally and figuratively running away from home, Bibi Wein has asked the kids themselves. As a result, she has come up with real answers to essential questions about what it is like to be a child of today. How do they feel about parents, sex, religion, and school? The RUNAWAY GENERATION is its own words answers these questions and more with honesty, warmth and candor.

Every parent will appreciate the commonsense advice given by Dr. Lee Salk in WHAT EVERY CHILD WOULD LIKE HIS PARENTS TO KNOW. This book is invaluable for keeping normal problems from becoming serious, for easing communication between parents and their children, and for preserving children's emotional health. Dr. Salk tells exactly what to do about a problem such as explaining arguments between parents. He tells how to handle fights between siblings, playing doctor, stealing, and grandparents. He also explains how parents themselves can recognize serious emotional difficulties and help a child in trouble. Every child deserves parents who are able to help him with the emotional problems of his everyday life.

One of the most successful books ever published on the training and improvement of memory is STOP FORGETTING by Dr. Bruna Furst. This book has been the aid that thousands of men and women have needed to do their jobs better. Thousands have also used it to improve themselves socially and intellectually by learning to remember such things as the names of people they have met, cards they have played at bridge, and dates necessary to intelligent conversation about history or current events. Originally published in 1948, STOP FORGETTING has now been revised, updated, and expanded by Lotte Furst and Gerrit Storm. While it preserves Dr. Furst's basic principles and techniques, this new edition features the latest developments in memory training presented in simple, meaningful steps—with tests along the way to check progress. The average person, known to forget eighty per cent of all the information he receives during a lifetime, will find his memory and concentration greatly improved after using this book.

North Carolina Silverware Handbook Being Republished

RALEIGH — A search is on for hand-crafted silverware made in North Carolina prior to 1850.

It now has been documented that well over 200 silversmiths practiced their craft in North Carolina between 1739 and 1850, though until about 25 years ago the state was seldom mentioned in discussions of American silversmiths. The late Dr. George B. Cutten, in a study published in 1948 by the N.C. Department of Archives and History, refuted the notion that none existed in the state by documenting about 180 Tar Heel silversmiths.

The booklet, entitled "The Silversmiths of North Carolina," contained the names of all known silversmiths, a brief biography of each, a listing by the locality in which they worked, several photographs of silver pieces made in the state, and examples of the "touch-marks" by which the silversmiths signed or otherwise identified their work. Out of print since the mid 1950s, the booklet itself has become a relatively valuable collectors' item.

It is currently being revised with additions for reprinting this fall. Thirty-four additional silversmiths will be listed, but still more information is being sought. An attempt is being made to document the existence of as much North Carolina-made silverware as possible, and it is thought that the search might turn up the names of other silversmiths not yet identified.

For the benefit of anyone owning old unidentified pieces of handcrafted silverware who would like to satisfy their curiosity, a list of all known North Carolina silversmiths is avilable free on request from the publications division of the Office of Archives and History, Raleigh 27611.

Carolina Artist On Long Tour

Hubert Shuptrine's story is the kind of thing that artists dream about ... a chance to be a casual roving painter with the entire South for an assignment.

Beginning this summer, Shuptrine has embarked on a two-year travel period to "paint the South" in watercolors — travels that will take him from the Chesapeake Bay area of Virginia on to West Texas.

In late 1974, the results of his traveling-painting sojourn will be gathered together in a book tentatively planned under the title "The South of Humbert Shuptrine." Plans are being made to feature 75 paintings and 150 pencil sketches in a four color volume to be published by "Southern Living" magazine.

Lee Adams, director of Southern Living Books Division, has revealed that "a well-known Southern author will be employed to write the copy for the Shuptrine book."

Other plans for the book include a large 13 by 16 inch format to run a total of nearly 200 pages.

Initial plans also call for chapters on the Atlantic Coast, the Gulf Coast, the Colonial South, the Mountain Region, Old Man River (the Mississippi), the Horse County of Kentucky, the South R.F.D. and a section on Civil War landmarks from Richmond to Atlanta.

Shuptrine, a native of Tennessee, now makes his home in the mountain village of Highlands in far western North Carolina.

HUMPERDINCK'S TOUR

Tar Heel Writers Roundtable In Raleigh August 18-19

There is still time for writers, would be writers or persons merely fascinated by the idea of spending a couple of days in s creative atmosphere to make plans for attending the eighth annual Tar Heel Writers Roundtable.

This year, the round table will be held at the Sir Walter Raleigh Hotel in Raleigh on Friday and Saturday, August 18 and 19.

Ten well-known Southern writers, most of them North Carolinians, will be featured as speakers in the full day and half a second day time period scheduled for the roundtable.

Leading off at 9:30 a.m. Friday, Bernice Kelly Harris, novelist, short story writer, playwright and teacher will speak on "How to Plot." At 10:30 a.m., Agnes Thomas, Virginia poet and short story writer who won the 1971 National Story League short story award, will talk on "Selling Light Verse Today." The final speaker for Friday morning, at 11:15 a.m., will be Tom Collins, author of the syndicated columns "Senior Forum" and "The Golden Years" as well as several books. Collins' topic is "How To Write and Sell A Column."

Scheduled for Friday afternoon at 2:00 p.m. is Glen Rounds, artist and writer, author of over 40 books for juveniles and illustrator of many books for other authors. Rounds will talk about "Writing For Young People." At 3:15 p.m., Joel Harrington, Outdoor Editor, N.C. Department of Economic and Natural Resources and author of "Fishing in North Carolina," will give insights on "Outdoor and Travel Markets." His talk will be followed at 4:00 p.m. by Elizabeth Wilborn, who will speak on the subject "Write Around You." She holds the position of Resercher, Division of Historic Sites, N.C. Department of Art, History and Culture.

The final events for Friday are a "Publishers Night" at 8:00 p.m. to be concluded with a social hour at 9:15 p.m.

On Saturday, the day begins with a 7:45 a.m. poets breakfast. Hugh Zachory, author of "The Beachcomber's Handbook of Seafood Cookery" (A Book of the Month Club selection), and also the author of a dozen novels plus short stories and articles, opens Saturday's procession of speakers at 9:30 a.m. with a talk on "How To Cook Up A Book." At 10:30 a.m., Bill Johnson, Associate Editor of "The Progressive Farmer" will speak on "Agricultural Markets." Then at 11:15 a.m., "Selling Feature Articles" will be discussed by Betty Hodges, a feature writer, columnist and special assignment writer.

The final of ten speakers, to appear at 1:00 p.m. in conjunction with an awards luncheon, will be William Barnaby Faherty, S.J. Author of six books, including "Wall For San Sebastian," which was adapted by MGM for an Anthony Quinn movie. His talk will be on "How I Write."

The fee for the two day Roundtable is $32.50 for each person. This includes all tuition costs, and poets' breakfast and the luncheon award. It does not include hotel accommodations and other meals.

Interested persons can send a check to Tar Heel Writers Roundtable, Post Office Box 5393, Raleigh, N.C. 27607 or can enroll for the roundtable beginning at 8:30 a.m. Friday in the hotel lobby.

WE APPRECIATE THE EFFORTS OF NURSES

Some of our most favorite persons are the nurses. They never seem to feel they have done enough and are always trying to do something more. They never seem to tire or lose their cheerfulness.

In the broad category of nursing there are those with Ph.D's, college degrees, hospital diplomas, a greatly increasing number of licensed practical nurses and to further complicate things, more and more males are now in the nursing profession. One and all we greatly appreciate their efforts and feel privileged that a great many nurses have chosen us to be their personal pharmacy.

YOU OR YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a delivery. We will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people rely on us for their health needs. We welcome requests for delivery service and charge accounts.

Nicklaus Carves Out Westchester Lead

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus methodically overcame faltering Dwight Nevil with a two-under-par 70 and moved into the lead Saturday in the third round of the $250,000 Westchester Golf Classic.

The incredible Nicklaus, already the winner of the Masters, U.S. Open and two other titles and some $190,000 this season, posted a 54 hole total of 202, 14 under par on the 6,700 yard Westchester Country Club course.

Nevil, the obscure, 27-year-old former Dallas fireman who held a one stroke margin starting play on the cool, cloudy day, slipped from his opening rounds of 66-65 to one over par 73 and goes into Sunday's final 18 holes in the chase for a $50,000 first prize two strokes back at 204.

Graying Gay Brewer, who snapped a lengthy slump with a recent victory in the Canadian Open, closed up to take third position with a 68 for 206, six strokes back of the powerful Nicklaus.

Jim Colbert and veteran Charles Sifford, the first of the black players to compete regularly on the tour, were next at 208. Each had a third round 70.

George Archer and first-round leader DeWitt Weaver were next at 209. Archer had a 70 and Weaver had to birdie the final hole to match par 72.

South African Gary Player, winner of the PGA National Championship last week, managed a 69 for 213, 11 strokes back in what he plans to be his last regular-season appearance in the United States this year.

Arnold Palmer, the 42-year-old defending champion, failed to qualify for the final two rounds. Lee Trevino, the British Open titleholder, is not completing.

Nevil, winner of only $21,000 in two seasons on the tour, enjoyed a one-stroke margin when he started out and the stocky guy from Texas expanded it to three strokes at one stage.

That came when he birdied the second hole just about the time Nicklaus—who was in the twosome just in front of him—was making bogey from a bunker on the third hole.

But it didn't last long.

Nicklaus drove the green on the 327-yard, par four seventh hole and got down in two from some 90 feet for his first birdie of the day. It was the second time in as many days he had driven the green on a par four.

He reached the par five ninth in two big hits and just missed an eight-foot eagle putt, but tapped in for the birdie that cut the margin to one.

Nevil, now scrambling before a huge gallery of some 20,000, bogeyed the 11th about the same time Nicklaus chipped to four feet and for a bird on the 12th and it was a two-shot swing that put Jack in front to stay.

Nevil failed to birdie either of the relatively easy par fives on the back nine and dropped back to two strokes off the pace when he was short of the green and bogeyed the 15th.

"I wasn't looking over my shoulder at Jack," Nevil said. "I didn't look at a scoreboard all day."

Indians Scalp Lolich, Tigers

DETROIT (AP) — The Cleveland Indians tagged Mickey Lolich for 11 hits and six runs Saturday and defeated the Detroit Tigers 6-1 as Dick Tidrow scattered nine hits.

It was the fourth straight loss for the Tigers and the third time Lolich 18-9, has been unsuccessful in his bid for his 19th victory of the American League baseball season.

The Indians jumped on the ace Detroit lefthander for three runs on five hits in the first two innings, then tagged him for three more to send him to the showers in the seventh.

Buddy Bell and John Brohamer opened the Indian first with singles before Chris Chambliss hit a sacrifice fly and Graig Nettles singled in a run.

Frank Duffy's leadoff triple and a squeeze bunt by Tidrow, 10-10, in the second produced another Cleveland run.

Tom McCraw hit an inside the park homer in the seventh before singles by Tidrow and Bell, a double by Brohamer and a sacrifice fly by Chambliss accounted for two more runs.

A bases-loaded sacrifice fly by Ed Brinkman gave Detroit its lone run in the second.

Seeking 19th Victory

Gaylord Perry, ace of the Cleveland Indians' pitching staff, relaxes with a game on gin rummy in the clubhouse. The veteran right-hander, who came to the Indians from the Giants prior to the start of the season, is slated to go against Detroit today, seeking his 19th victory of the season. He has been foiled on his last two attempts to gain that number. (AP Wirephoto)

Homers Pace Montreal Win

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bob Bailey and Hal Breeden hit consecutive home runs with two out in the eighth inning Saturday, powering the Montreal Expos to a comeback 3-2 National League baseball victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

The home runs wiped out a 2-1 Philadelphia lead taken in the sixth and tagged Ken Reynolds with his ninth straight loss. He has yet to win. Reliever Mike Marshall, who came into the game in the seventh, notched his 11th victory in 14 decisions.

Montreal scored a run in the first when Ron Hunt walked moved up on a sacrifice bunt by Clyde Mashore and scored on Bailey's double to left.

The Phillies tied the game with Willie Montanez' 11th home run in the second off starter Carl Morton and took the lead in the sixth when Montanez doubled and scored on a single by Greg Luzinski.

Boycott Demand Again Renewed

By DAVID MINTHORN
Associated Press Writer

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — The two African teams residing at the Olympic Village expressed surprise Saturday that the Organization of African Unity has renewed demands for a Games boycott over the issue of Rhodesian participation.

"We heard nothing about the new announcement of the OAU," said a spokesman of the 47-member team of Uganda. "We are following the decision of the Supreme Council for Sports in Africa that all African nations should send their teams to Munich."

Kenya's 80-member delegation also intends to follow the Sports council's decision approving Rhodesia on condition it participate as a British colony.

"We had no word of the OAU decision when we left Nairobi Thursday night," said W.K. Martin a Kenyan official. "Our position has been that we have no objections to Rhodesia as long as they participate under the British flag."

A delegation of the Sports Council, representing about 30 African nations, had agreed to Rhodesian participation during talks with the Games organizers Wednesday.

The Sports Council said it received a firm commitment that the Rhodesians would fly the Union Jack, observe the British anthem and describe themselves as British subjects at the Games.

Rhodesia served its territorial ties with Britain in 1965 over the issue of White-minority rule.

Claiming the Salisbury government practices racial discrimination in sports, the OAU last week asked West Germany to refuse Rhodesians entry into the country for the Aug. 26 to Sept. 10 Games.

On Friday, the OAU again objected to Rhdoesian presence at the Games and called for an Olympic boycott by "all African teams and those of all friendly nations wishing to stand by Africa."

Games organizers said Saturday they could make no immediate comment on the OAU call for boycott. The Committee has emphasized many times that it is bound by IOC decisions sanctioning Rhodesian participation.

Highly placed Olympic sources expressed the opinion that the OAU may be attempting a face-saving maneuver now that the African Sports Council has accepted the Rhodesians.

The 45-member Rhodesian delegation, including eight black sportsmen, refused to comment on the issue after their arrival in Munich Friday night.

According to news reports, the African nations of Tanzania, Sierra Leone and Zambia have decided against sending teams to Munich because Rhodesia is sanctioned for the Games.

But the games organizers denied Saturday that word of official withdrawals had been received.

Wood Wins 20th Game As Chicago Grabs Lead

OAKLAND (AP) — Ed Spiezio hit a two-run homer in the 11th inning as the Chicago White Sox defeated the Oakland A's 3-1 Saturday and moved into first place in the American League West.

The A's lost undisputed possession of first place for the first time since May 20. The White Sox took over the top spot by one percentage point.

Spiezio's blast followed a walk to Carlos May by reliever Rollie Fingers, 5-5, and provided Wilbur Wood with his 20th victory of the season, tops in the majors. Wood, who has lost 11 games, pitched a two hitter.

Brant Alyea, who broke up Wood's no-hit bid with a two out single in the seventh inning, tied the game for the A's with a two-out home run in the ninth.

Wood and Oakland's John "Blue Moon" Odom were locked in a scoreless duel for eight innings before Chicago broke through for a go-ahead run in the top of the ninth.

Dick Allen opened with a triple and came home on May's sacrifice fly to give the White Sox a 1-0 lead going into the last half of the ninth.

Morgan St. Given Nod

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Football coaches from the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference Saturday revealed that their choice to take the 1971 league championship is Morgan State College.

In Greensboro for the annual Football Rules and Officiating Clinic, the coaches from the MEAC'S seven schools held a news conference and approved the following finish after secret balloting:

1. Morgan
2. N.C. Central
3. N.C. A&T
4. S.C. State
5. Howard
6. Delaware
7. Maryland-Eastern Shore.

According to the coaches, Morgan, Central, A&T and South Carolina will be the teams scrambling for the right to play the Southwest Athletic Conference champion in New Orleans at the end of the year. The SWAC includes such notables as Grambling and Jackson State.

The league also announced that Frank G. Burnett, a Durham native and former supervisor of officials for the Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association, would assume the same position for the MEAC.

Swimmers Dropped

LONDON (AP) — Three of Britain's top swimmers, including individual medley champion Ray Terrell, were dropped from the British Olympic team Saturday for disciplinary reasons.

The British Amateur Swimming Association announced the decision only three days before the British squad was scheduled to leave for Munich. Secretary Norman Sarsfield did not disclose reasons for the action.

Terrell, 19, is a world class individual medley specialist who spent a year under American coach Don Gambril at Long Beach, Calif.

JV's Asked To Report

All Rose High School sophomores interested in junior varsity football, including those who have not reported to date, are urged to attend practice Monday.

Coach Bud Phillips said that drills would begin Monday at 3:30 p.m. on the school's practice field.

Pirates Top Cards, Gibson

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Vic Davalillo's two-run triple highlighted a four-run fifth inning outburst Saturday, leading the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 6-5 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals and Bob Gibson.

The rally snapped a 1-1 tie in a game which was delayed in the third inning 69 minutes by rain. Pirate starter Bob Moose raised his record to 9-6 while Gibson dropped to 12-7.

Milt May opened the fifth with a single and Bob Robertson and Gene Alley walked. After Moose's sacrifice fly scored May, Davalillo tripled down the right field line, scoring Robertson and Alley. Davalillo scored when Ted Sizemore's relay throw was wild to the plate.

The Cards knocked out Moose in the eighth on singles by Sizemore, Bernie Carbo and Joe Torre and a two-base error by Davailillo. Dave Giusti replaced Moose and served up a two-run homer to Ted Simmons, his 11th of the year and the first earned run off Giusti in 23 appearances dating back to May 27.

Robertson hit his seventh homer, his first since July 9, for the Pirates in the sixth.

Callison Sparks Yankee Victory

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Callison cracked three hits, including a grand slam home run, and Sparky Lyle came on to register his 27th save of the baseball season as the New York Yankees beat the Milwaukee Brewers 10-6 in American League action Saturfday.

Callison's blast, his fifth home run of the year, highlighted a five-run Yankee outburst in the seventh inning which broke the game open.

Fritz Peterson, 13-11, got the victory for the Yankees. But with New York ahead 4-3, Mike Ferraro singled and Ellie Rodriguez doubled to lead off the seventh. Lyle then came in to retire Tommie Reynolds on a line drive and get Ron Theobold to hit into a double play with the bases filled.

The Brewers got three runs in the second inning, John Briggs' two-run triple being the big blow. But the Yankees came back with two runs in the second, tied the score in the third, and went ahead to stay on Celerino Sanchez' RBI triple in the sixth.

Milwaukee added a run in the eighth on a sacrifice fly by Ollie Brown. Bobby Murcer hit a solo homer, his 19th, for the yankees in the bottom of the eighth.

Agee's Homer Wins For Mets

CHICAGO (AP) — Tommie Agee rifled a leadoff home run in the 10th inning, giving the New York Mets and Tom Seaver a 2-1 triumph over the Chicago Cubs Saturday.

Agee's blast, No. 8 of the season, landed in the left center field bleachers and broke up a pitching duel between Seaver and Chicago's Burt Hooton.

Seaver, 13-9, gave up but six hits, and struck out nine before being relieved by Tug McGraw in the 10th. The victory stopped a four-game losing streak for the ace righthander. Hooton, 7-10, scattered seven hits over nine innings before giving up Agee's game-winning hit.

Hooton lost his shutout in the sixth when Willie Mays homered with the bases empty. It was Mays' No. 6 and the 652d of his major league career.

The Cubs tied the score with a run off Seaver in the bottom half of the inning. Jose Cardenal doubled to left center with no outs, took third on Billy Williams' grounder to the right side and scored on a two-out double by Ron Santo.

McGraw relieved after Paul Popovich had opened the Cubs' 10th with a triple. He retired Tommy Davis on a pop fly, Don Kessinger on a grounder and Jose Cardenal on a fly for the final out to preserve Seaver's triumph.

Ace Helps Smith To Lead In Pabst Golf

By GEORGE STRODE
Associated Press Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Marilynn Smith fired her second ace in 23 years on the Ladies Professional Golf association tour Saturday en route to a three-under-par 69 for the second round lead in the $30,000 Pabst Classic.

The 43-year-old star from Jupiter, Fla., winner of 19 LPGA tournaments, scored a hole-in-one on the 172-yard 12th hole with a three iron. That helped her to a 36-hole total of 140 and a four shot lead over five other players.

First day leader Beth Stone of Miami slipped to a 75 after an opening 69. She was among those tied for second at even par 144 over the 6,300-yard Riviera Country Club course.

Also matching par were Betty Burfeindt of Canaan, N.Y., who had a 74; Judy Rankin, Midland, Tex., who posted a 73; Clifford Ann Creed of Alexandria, La., with a 72; and Australian Margee Masters, who matched Miss Smith's 69 for the best rounds of the day.

Mary Dwyer of Geneva, N.Y., fired a 73 for a 145 total and was tied with Jocelyne Bourassa, a French Canadian from Quebec for seventh place.

Miss Bourassa, leading money winner among the LPGA rookies this year, matched par 72.

Defending champion Sandra Haynie of Fort Worth, Tex., struggled to a 75 and was seven shots off the pace at 147. Jane Blalock of Portsmouth, N.H., who has a chance to regain the money winning lead from Kathy Whitworth with a finish here in the top 15, was even in worse shape. She came in with 74 for a 151 total.

Miss Smith credited superb iron play for her round that included her ace, an eagle, three birdies and two bogies.

"My irons set up my putts," she said. "Putting is not one of the strong points of my game."

On the 12th hole, she hit her iron shot ten feet short of the pin. The ball took two bounces and settled in the hole for the ace.

Miss Smith survived bogies on the last two holes, capped by a 15-foot putt on the 375-yard 18th to salvage a bogie five.

Putting woes again crept into Miss Stone's game and cost her the lead. She took 36 strokes on the greens compared to 28 putts in the opening round. She did make a pair of birdie putts, but ran into three bogies and a double bogie six on the 440-yard sixth hole.

Woody's Ramblin's

By WOODY PEELE

A couple of things have happened recently that make the future of athletics at Rose High School look dark. Without some easement in the two, football and track may be in a lot of trouble.

Most people may have noted that a new track has been built on the grounds of E.B. Aycock Junior High School. Both the junior high and Rose are expected to use this facility this year.

While coaches and physical education teachers are glad to have this facility, it is not up to par by any means. The current rock and gravel surface is IT. There are no plans to surface this, and without a smooth surface on it, there may be few people who will want to compete in the running events. Lining the track off will be a problem in itself with this type of surface.

But the real problem will be when spills occur, as they do in nearly every meet. Falling on these rocks isn't going to be a nice feeling.

Reports are that there were original plans to surface the track with an asphalt surface, but that money for this was cut out of the new budget. Without this, the area track program in definitely lacking.

Football has also been hard hit, and lack of a facility may be the problem here too. East Carolina, for the past couple of years seems to be leaning a little harder on the high school each year to vacate Ficklen Stadium.

According to reports, East Carolina asked Rose to move its Wilson game, the first home contest in Division II to Thursday night. The university wanted extra time in order to prepare the field for Saturday's first Pirate home contest.

Moving that game to Thursday would have wrecked any gate the high school might expect. Wilson will be a good game for them, since the Titans are favored to win the title this year, and usually bring a good crowd with them.

So instead, Rose held to its contact for Friday night, and ECU asked them to pay an addition fee of several hundred dollars over the normal rent, to help pay for the extra work to be done on Saturday to get ready for the ECU game.

Then, word was passed along that Rose would have to schedule around East Carolina in the future if they wished to use Ficklen. This is almost an impossible request.

East Carolina's schedule doesn't follow any particular pattern. Most high school schedules do. The schedules are set up, and they just alternate fields from year to year from home and away games, never changing. To line up opposite ECU dates would make it necessary to disrupt the schedules of all of the football teams Rose plays. Am impossible task.

Several people, not high school coaches, but backers of the high school program, financially, have stated that the only reason they gave money to the ECU stadium drive some ten years ago was because they were assured that Rose would always be able to use it.

Athletes, who might be potential ECU recruits, are getting a bad taste in their mouths from the ECU administration from this, and it might be hard for any ECU coach to recruit them because of this.

After all, if high schools don't produce athletes, where are the colleges going to get them from.

Washington Romps To 41-0 Victory Friday

WASHINGTON (AP)—Before things hardly warmed up, the Denver Broncos probably were asking themselves, "Can't anybody here play this game?"

By the time the final gun sounded they knew the answer. It was the Washington Redskins.

Paced by a trio of quarterbacks which shredded the Denver defenses with pinpoint passes, Washington romped to a 41-0 National Football League exhibition victory over Denver Friday night. Starting quarterback Bill Kilmer fired a six-yard touchdown pass to Roy Jefferson in the first half and veteran Sonny Jurgensen, who suffered an arm ailment most of last season, started the second half with a 65-yard scoring pass to Tommy Mason. Mason, a 33-year-old, 12-year veteran receiver, had scored the Redskins' first touchdown in the first quarter with a five-yard run after Bob Brunet set up the play with a 27-yard carry.

Third-string quarterback Sam Wynch entered the game with little more than a minute remaining and rifled a 52-yard scoring bomb to Bill Marlinchak.

The Over The Hill Gang, Washington's aging but solid front line, gave the Broncos only one yard in the first quarter and only 25 by half time. With 14:27 remaining in the final quarter, Denver finally broke into Washington territory, only to have the drive upset by an interception.

A couple of rookie quarterbacks, Jerry Tagge of Green Bay and John Reaves of Philadelphia, are scheduled to start tonight as the NFL weekend exhibition action continues with eight games.

Tagge, former star for the Nebraska Cornhuskers, goes against the Miami Dolphins. Reaves, who starred at the University of Florida and was the Eagles' No. 1 draft choice, starts against the New England Patriots.

They will be opposed by two veteran QBs, Bob Griese of the Dolphins and Jim Plunkett of the Pats.

Another feature is the dedication of Kansas City's new Arrowhead Stadium in the Harry S. Truman Sports Complex. The Chiefs meet the St. Louis Cardinals before a capacity 78,000, the largest ever to view an athletic event in Kansas City.

In the other scheduled five games, Buffalo is at New Orleans, Detroit at Cincinnati, San Diego at Minnesota, Dallas at Los Angeles and the New York Jets vs. Pittsburgh at Seattle.

The weekend activity concludes with Cleveland at San Francisco on Sunday and with Baltimore at Oakland Monday night. Atlanta and the New York Giants are idle this week.

Castles Makes Apology To Slugged Newswriter

WINSTON-SALEM N.C. (AP) — Stock car driver Neil Castles swallowed his pride and made what could be a 10,000 dollar apology Saturday to a newsmen he struck during an arguement last month.

newsmen he struck during an argument last month.

The stocky Castles, dressed in a white racing uniform, met at a Winston-Salem restaurant with the reporter, Russ Devault of the Winston-Salem Journal and Sentinel, and others.

"Russ, I apologize," Casltes said as he stood up and extended his hand to the newsman.

"I accept," said Devault as he stood and shook hands with the driver.

Castles left the half-hour meeting and began completing preparations for Saturday night's race at Bowman Gray Stadium where he had a chance to strengthen his lead in the chase for $10,000 prize of the grand national east point standings.

Only one other race is left in the point standings competition, one at Coeburn, Va., Sunday night.

Saturday's meeting over iced tea and coffee was arranged by Bowman Gray track manager Joe Hawkins who had issued an ultimatum to Castles in a Friday telegram: Apologize or don't race.

Castles made it clear he was apologizing under pressure.

"You're the ones who brought me in here by the seat of the britches and the nape of the neck and said what I'd do and that's what I'm doing," Castles said at the meeting.

"I'm doing exactly what Mr. Hawkins said, because he's holding the ax," the driver said.

Castles received the telegram from Hawkins only Friday night, and when contacted at his home in Charlotte by telephone just after midnight still had not decided what he would do.

"I don't know if it's worth it," he said at that time in reference to his choice between an apology or a chance at $10,000.

"I don't think this Mickey Mouse thing is going to affect the way I RACE," he said, when asked Friday night if he was angry.

Hawkins said during Saturday's meeting, "Racing is my life. I've put 24 years in it. I don't think anybody feels any worse about this thing than I do."

Hawkins said he took the action "because somebody dropped the ball on this thing."

The National Association of Stock Car Auto Racing fined Castles $250. NASCAR took no other action against Castles.

Others at the Saturday meeting were the executive sports director of the Winston-Salem Journal and Sentinel, Mel Derrick, and the public relations man for Bowman Gray track, Hank Schoolfield.

Orioles Widen Eastern Lead

BALTIMORE (AP) — Merv Rettenmund, who figured in all three of Baltimore's runs, hit a run-scoring single with two out in the bottom of the ninth inning Saturday, giving the Orioles a 3-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox in the first game of a twi-night doubleheader.

Brooks Robinson led off the ninth with a single and Paul Blair came in as a pinch-runner. Ellie Hendricks sacrificed Blair to second and Rettenmund singled him home.

Roric Harrison, 1-4, got the victory in relief. Marty Pattin, 10-11, went all the way for Boston and gave up just four hits but was tagged with the loss.

The victory boosted Baltimore's lead in the American League East to 1½ games over the Detroit Tigers, who lost to Cleveland 6-1.

The Orioles took a 1-0 lead in the first when Rettenmund and Terry Crowley walked, Bobby Grich laid down a sacrifice bunt and Boog Powell hit a sacrifice fly. Boston tied it 1-1 in the second on Rico Petrocelli's 12th homer of the baseball season.

Boston moved ahead 2-1 in the seventh when Danny Cater doubled into the right field corner and John Kennedy hit a run-scoring single, but Baltimore tied it in the bottom of the seventh as Rettenmund hit his sixth homer of the year.

Women's Opens

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Seventeen-year-old Laura Baugh of Long Beach, Calif., will try and regain her form and head off three other former titleholders in the 72nd U.S. Women's Amateur Golf Tournament starting Monday at the St. Louis Country Club.

Miss Baugh, who a year ago became the youngest ever to win the event, was beaten 4 and 3 in the second round of the U.S. Golf Association's junior Girls' event this past week at Jefferson City, Mo.

A field of 135 is set for the six-day amateur tourney over the par 35-37-72 6,138-yard country club layout. Qualifying rounds Monday and Tuesday will trim the field to 32 for match play beginning Thursdy.

Miss Baugh, beaten by Janet Aulisi of West Caldwell, N.J., in the USGA junior girls' event, last year defeated Beth Barry of Dauphin Island, Ala., 1-up in the final of the women's Amateur.

Miss Barry is returning for the event, as are former champions Martha Kirouac, Mary Lou Dill and Barbara McIntire. Also entered is British champion Michelle Walker of England.

Miss Baugh, Miss Barry, Miss McIntire, Mrs. Kirouac, Hollis Stacy and Lany Smith are U.S. Curtis Cup team members in the competition.

ACC Grades Set A New Record

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The Atlantic Coast Conference, in danger of being forced to abandon minimum scholastic requirements for athletes, said Sunday that 354 ACC athletes, a record, maintained a "B" grade average last school year.

A federal judge in Columbia, S.C., has ordered the ACC to abandon a requirement that prospective conference athletes score at least 800 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test. The conference is appealing the order.

There is no connection between grade averages and the SAT scores, other than the fact that students who scored well on the SAT are likely to be the ones who do well in school.

Non-athletes are not required to score 800 on the SAT as a prerequisite for entering ACC schools.

The ACC commissioner, Bob James, said in a prepared announcement Sunday that Duke University led the list of ACC schools for a "B" average or better with 85 athletes.

Virginia was next with 74, and the North Carolina with 64, North Carolina State with 56, Clemson with 31, Maryland with 26 and Wake Forest with 18.

The report by James did not say how many athletes' grades were below a "B" average.

Maryland's basketball star Tom McMillen, a member of the Olympic basketball team and the Most Valuable Player in the National Invitation Tournament, had a 3.65 average as a pre-med student. A 3.0 average is a "B."

Three athletes among the 354 had perfect 4.0 averages. They were North Carolina State swimmer Francis O'Dell, North Carolina defensive end Bill Brafford and North Carolina State football player Craig John.

Goolagong, Evert In Net Advances

By STEVE HERMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Chris Evert stopped Australia's Margaret Court and Evonne Goolagong beat former champion Linda Tuero Saturday to advance to a showdown rematch in the finals of the $60,000 U.S. Clay Courts Tennis Tournament.

Jimmy Connors, meanwhile, advanced to Sunday's finals in men's singles, as did South Africa's Bob Hewitt. Both were straight set victors over semifinal opponents at Woodstock Country Club.

The top-seeded Miss Goolagong, 21, of Australia, outclassed Miss Tuero, No. 4 seed and 1970 champion from Metairie, La., to win easily, 6-3, 6-2.

Miss Evert, the 17-year-old No. 2 seed from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., beat third-seeded Mrs. Court, 6-3, in the first set, then eked out a 7-6 triumph on a tiebreaker in the second set.

Sunday's finals will be the third confrontation between the two prodigies.

Miss Goolagong won their first meeting at Wimbledon and Miss Evert came back to even the score at Cleveland two weeks ago.

Connors, 19, the No. 4 seed from Belleville, Ill., and the last American left in the men's field, edged Japan's Tashiro Sakai, 7-6, on a nine-point tiebreaker in the first set. He won the second set convincingly, 6-0.

Hewitt, the No. 8 seed from South Africa, had his normal slow start. He lost the first three games against countryman and doubles partner Frew McMillan, but bounced back to win the set 7-5. The unseeded McMillan fell apart in the second set and Hewitt coasted to a 6-0 victory.

N.C. Youths Top Field

DOTHAN, Ala. (AP) — Young golfers from Fayetteville, N.C., turned in fine 54-hole totals to win their two divisions in the 23 annual Future-Masters Golf Tournament completed Friday at the Dothan Country Club.

In addition to placing first in the 17-and 18-year-old division, David Canipe's five-under-par 211 earned him the title of overall winner.

Fellow Fayetteville golfer Charles Best bested his competition with a 218 for the 15- and 16-year-old division title.

In the older division, Bob Young of Atlanta, Ga., edged out Barry Flowers of Dothan for second with a sudden death victory. Both finished regulation play with 213.

There was also a playoff for second in the 15-16 division, with Birmingham's Bud Smith nosing out Terry Antone of Columbus, Ga. Their 54-hole score was 219.

Competing for 36 holes, the 13-and 14-year-old division leader was Kerry Davis of Orlando, Fla., by virtue of a first extra hole playoff win over Brit Harrison of Beaumont, Tex. They had been tied at 153. Third place went to Terry Collier of Ada, Okla., with a 156.

The 11-and 12-year-old division also competed for 36 holes. First went to David Abel of Ft. Pierce, Fla., who carded a 160. Darral Spelich of Warren, Ohio, turned in a 166 for second and third went to Joey Spraberry of Pensacola, Fla., for his 171.

A promising Deland, Fla., golfer by the name of Buster Hunt swept the honors in the 19;-and-under competition over 18 holes with an 84. Steve Underwood of Columbus, Ga., fired an 89 to finish second. And Harland Prater of Fayette carded a 91 for third spot.

NHL President Has No Comment

MONTREAL (AP) — Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, said Saturday it is premature to comment on plans announced Friday by the World Hockey Association to file a $48-million anti-trust suit against the NHL.

"They've had lots of plans," Campbell said.

"But the time to comment on litigation is when it happens."

Gary L. Davidson, president of the fledgling WHA, announced in Boston Friday that he is prepared to file suit asking a United States federal court to declare the NHL's reserve clause immoral, illegal and unenforceable.

He did not say when and where the suit will be filed.

Campbell, a lawyer, said if the WHA launches such an action "we will protect ourselves.

Davidson said the WHA was forced to act because of a suit filed in a Massachusetts court by the NHL Boston Bruins.

The Bruins contend that two of their stars, goalie Gerry Cheevers and center Derek Sanderson, signed with the WHA while bound to the NHL club by the league's reserve clause.

Cheevers signed with Cleveland Crusaders while Sanderson accepted a $2.6 million five year offer from the Philadelphia Blazers.

Top Horses To Face Each Other

STANTON, Del. (AP) — Numbered Account and Chou Croute, two of the leading ladies of thoroughbred racing, will face each other and run 1¼ miles for the first time Sunday in the Delaware Handicap.

Six other fillies and mares were set for the stakes on closing day at Delaware Park, and with eight starters the race will be worth a gross of $114,000.

Numbered Account, Ogden Phipps' 2-year-old filly champion of 1971, never has gone more than 1 1-16 miles in winning 10 of 13 career starts. The longest previous race for the 4-year-old Chou Croute, winner of 14 of 19 career outings for E.V. Benjamin III, was 1⅛-miles.

Numbered Account, sidelined by injury for nearly three months, has won two of three starts this year, including her last race, the Test at Saratoga July 31. She will carry 115 pounds, 11 less than the top-weighted Chou Croute, winner of five of nine 1972 starts including an eight-length victory in the Susquehanna Handicap at Liberty Bell Park Aug. 5.

Others entered were Sea Saga, 121; Alma North, 115; Sydneys Nurse, 114; Grafitti, 113; Blessing Angelica, 113, and Libro D Oro, 107.

Sea Saga has won at 1¼miles, taking the Ladies Handicap at Aqueduct last November, while Grafitti was second in the 1½-mile Coaching Club American Oaks at Belmont Park in 1971.

Senior center Don Thompson of Rexdale, Ont., led Michigan State's hockey team in scoring last season with 35 goals and 32 assists, both Spartan records.

Washington Likes New Hash Marks

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Quarterback John Brodie of the San Francisco 49ers may decide Sunday whether his favorite receiver Gene Washington, is right about the National Football League's newest rule change.

The passing combination will face the Cleveland Browns in both teams' second exhibition game of the season. It will be Brodie's first star.

Washington caught five passes for 66 yards last weekend in a 17-10 loss to the New York Jets, and said he was happy over the rule change that moved the has marks closer to the middle of the field.

"I noticed I could run either short or long patterns without too much trouble," said Washington. "Before, it was tough to run long patterns down the side because the linebackers and defensive backs could push me out of bounds before I could get started."

If lack of maneuvering space has hurt Washington in the past, it doesn't show in his statistics. He has caught 150 passes for 2,695 yards in three NFL seasons.

Coach Dick Nolan let No. 2 quarterback Steve Spurrier handle the passing in the preseason opener. This week, it's Brodie's turn.

Mike Phipps, the third-year pro from Purdue, is getting another opportunity to win Cleveland's starting quarterback job. The incumbent is player-coach Bill Nelsen.

The Browns opened the exhibition season with a 13-3 loss to the Los Angeles Rams, with Phipps passing for 134 yards but throwing three interceptions

The teams will play Sunday before probably the biggest home crowd in 49ers' history. Candlestick Park seated only 45,000 last year, but has been expanded to hold more than 61,000 fans.

RECORD BLUE MARLIN

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) — Big-game fisherman Alec Nicol broke a world record by catching an 823-pound Pacific blue marlin on a 80-pound test line. The man-fish fight in the Bay of Plenty lasted two-and-one-half hours.

Colts Keeping Talent Hidden

OAKLAND (AP) — So far in the National Football League exhibition season, the Baltimore Colts are doing a good job of keeping their talent hidden.

The Oakland Raiders, who play Baltimore here Monday night are not convinced that the real Colts lost 33-3 to the Washington Redskins last weekend. The Colts beat the Raiders 37-14 last season en route to the NFL playffs.

Oakland beat New England 31-24 last weekend in its exhibition opener. John Unitas, pro football's all-time leading passer, may make his first start of the season for the Colts. All-Time leading scoring leader George Blanda will be doing the place kicking for Oakland.

Coach John Madden will let Daryle Lamonica and Ken Stabler do the quarteracking for Oakland again. Each directed two touchdown drives in the victory over New England.

Baltimore's rookies include Oklahoma quarterback Jack Mildren, who was drafted as a defensive back. Colts' Coach Don McCafferty is considering using Mildren at quarterback. However, in what would be the NFL's first experiment with the Wishbone offense so popular in college football.

New York Met third base coach Eddie Yost played 2,109 baseball games in the major leagues. He never played minor league ball.

Sonny Randle Football Camp

Two Greenville boys were among some 300 attending the Sonny Randle Football Camp at Fork Union, Va., this summer, Henry Trevathan, Jr., and Phil Ragazzo. The camp, one of the largest in the nation, featured a number of pro football standouts from across the nation. It is held annually at Fork Union by the East Carolina University Football Coach.

Furman Suffers Heavy Losses From Offense

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(First of a series)

Not many years ago, Furman University's football team was known as the "Football for Fun Bench."

Some might still refer to them by this title, but if things continue as they have the past two years, the name won't hang around long.

Furman nearly won the Southern Conference championship two years ago when it posted an 8-3 record. It lost its opener to VMI then came back to beat the socks off everyone until East Carolina University's Pirates upset them and cost them the title. The other game they lost was to national small college power Wofford. This past year, the Paladins were again no pushovers, although they finished with a 5-5-1 record for the season.

"Our administration is in favor of a good strong program," Coach Bob King, the dean of the league's coaches said. Beginning his 15th year at the helm of Furman, he still feels that the Paladin program has a long way to go if it is to complete fully in the conference.

"Our finances are hurting, there is no doubt, but they are improving. We could spend as much as East Carolina and still have half as many football players. That's the difference in the costs between the two schools.

King notes that some schools he's playing are fielding nearly 120 scholarship athletes, while his school is working with about 50. "Some people say that you can only put 11 men on the field at a time, but if you've got 120 to pick from you've got a whole lot better chance of getting 11 pretty good ones to put on that field," he said.

King said that the Furman president, Dr. Gordon W. Blackwell, understands the value of a good athletic program. "And we definitely want to have one," the coach added.

While King claims to be an eternal optimist, he's a little pessimistic about the coming season. "We've increased our grants to 50, and when we started this improvement, our boys got excited about it and decided to try and win the title. The nearly did two years ago. Last year I got caught up in their enthusiasm, but we didn't do as well."

"But this year, I'm not as sure. I don't see how we can replace the backbone of our offensive football team. We lost one of the best blockers around in Peyton Barton, and I'm not sure we can replace him. We also lost a couple of other good linemen, including out center, and replacing a center is almost like replacing your quarterback," he said.

On top of that, King does have to replace his quarterback. John DeLeo, one of the best in the conference, is gone, along with back Steve Crislip.

"Our defense is ahead of our offense, and will continue to be for the first few games," King added.

The quarterback situation is the biggest problem, the coach said. "We have three men going for it, a senior, John Wolfrom; a junior, Mike Shelton, and a sophomore, Charles Elvington. We don't know who'll start, and maybe this is a good problem to have."

In the probable offensive starting lineup, King sports 10 lettermen, but like most coaches, notes that this could be misleading. He plans to start Mike Bartik at split end, and John Monferdini at tight end. The tackles will be David Couch and Dan Utley, while Keifer Calkins and Tom Scherich will be at the guards. James Howard will handle the snapping duties.

In the backfield, Wolfrom gets the pre-season nod at quarterback, while Rod Acker is at flanker. The running backs are Mike Johnson and Donny Griffin.

Johnson, Griffin and Wolfrom all has some experience last year. Johnson picked up 24 yards in 31 carries, while Griffin had 137 in 42. Wolfrom tried 84 times, getting a fine 429 yards, a 5.2 yard per carry average. He attempted only four passes, hitting one for 26 yards.

Acker caught only two passes, covering 50 yards. Hs ran twice for 18 more yards.

Defensively, David Shi, Furman's only All-Conference player last year, leads the pack. He'll hold down the left end position in the line. Opposite him will be George Harbin. The tackles will be Paul Wickswat and Don Haynie, while Bruce Crowe and Dan Bench will be at the guards in the 6-2 lineup. The linebackers will be Keith Dwoney and Ivey Stewart, while David Williamson and Jim Hagelthorn will handle the halfbacks. Wayne Wilson will be the safety.

As to what type of offense the Paladins will have, it depends on who gets the nod at quarterback. Wolfrom's selection would put more emphasis on running, while Shelton is a passer. If the offense can keep up with the defense, Furman could have another winning year. But the experience must come along.

King was also asked what effect, if any, a dropping of the 800 rule in the Atlantic Coast Confernece would have on recruiting in the Southern, and in particular, at Furman.

"Scoring 800 is ridiculous as far as we're concerned," he said, since this is below the Furman standards. "Some of the schools might be hurt where they're getting in boys below this who manage to predict 1.6, but for us, Davidson and William & Mary, it's a joke."

Furman's coach also admits that his program takes a back seat to basketball. "We aren't unhappy about it," he says, however. "Whenever one part of our athletic progam succeeds, it helps the rest. It's a stated policy of our school to play at a higher level in basketball than football. So far it hasn't hurt football, and I don't think it will."

The Furman schedule: Sept 9, at William & Mary; Sept. 16, Presbyterian; Sept. 23, Wofford; Sept. 30, at Appalachian; Oct. 7, at Western Carolina; Oct. 14, at Davidson; Oct. 21, Richmond; Oct. 28, East Carolina; Nov. 4, at VMI; Nov. 11, The Citadel; Nov. 18, at Carson-Newman.

Tom Seaver of the New York Mets had a 1971 earned-run average of 1.76, best in the National League, while Vida Blue of Oakland led the American League with 1.82.

Orioles Move Back Into First In AL's Eastern Race With Win As Tigers Fall

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Baltimore Orioles are in first place in the American League East, but Billy Martin says they shouldn't make themselves too comfortable.

"Tell 'em it's only temporary and tell 'em not to get used to it," says Detroit Tiger Manager Martin. "Tell 'em we'll be back."

Martin exuded confidence Friday night despite a 5-1 loss to the Cleveland Indians that dropped his Tigers out of the top spot for the first time since July 10. The Orioles moved in by a half-game after beating Boston 2-1.

The Tigers have lost nine of their last 12 games.

The New York Yankees were beaten 4-2 by the Milwaukee Brewers and dropped 2½ games behind the Orioles. Boston is in fourth, four games out and Cleveland in fifth, nine back.

In the West, the Oakland A's maintained an uneasy one-game lead over the Chicago White Sox after splitting two games. The A's defeated the White Sox 5-3 in the continuation of Thursday night's suspended game and the White Sox then took the second contest 1-0.

In Friday night's other American League games, the Kansas City Royals turned back the Texas Rangers 2-0 and the California Angels beat the Minnesota Twins 3-1.

National League results: Chicago 7, New York 2; Montreal 4, Philadelphia 1; Pittsburgh 10, St. Louis 5; Atlanta 7, Cincinnati 5; Houston 6, San Francisco 3 and Los Angeles 2, San Diego 1 in 10 innings.

Steve Dunning pitched a seven-hitter to tame the Tigers for the Indians. He pitched shutout ball until the ninth inning, when Mickey Stanley spoiled the scoreless string with a home run.

The Indians scored three unearned runs in the first inning as a result of a muffed line drive by Detroit left fielder Gates Brown.

Bobby Grich led off the ninth inning with a home run to power Baltimore and Mike Cuellar over Boston. Cuellar struck out 13 Red Sox, but yielded the tying run in the eighth on three singles. Grich then came through with his game-winning hit off Boston reliever Don Newhauser in the ninth.

George Scott drove in two runs with a triple and homer to lead Milwaukee over New York. Skip Lockwood, with ninth-inning relief help from Frank Linzy, improved his record to 6-9.

Oakland won Friday night's first game with Chicago when Joe Rudi spanked a two-run homer in the 19th inning. The game, halted by curfew with the score tied 3-3 after 17 innings Thursday night, was picked up prior to the scheduled game between the A's and White Sox.

Jim "Catfish" Hunter, who pitched the two innings of the first game to pick up the victory, started the second game and became the loser in that one. Dave Lemonds and Cy Acosta combined on a two-hitter and Carlos May knocked in the game's only run with a first-inning single.

Roger Nelson pitched a three-hitter and Richie Scheinblum and Amos Otis hit home runs to pace Kansas City over Texas. Clyde Wright pitched a five-hitter and drove in the winning run with a seventh-inning single to pull California past Minnesota.

Pretending Is Key To Power

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

"Just pretend it's me on the mound," Atlanta's Eddie Mathews told Jim Breazeale, "and pull your normal stunt."

So the rookie pinch-hitter did just that. Employing what almost has become his trademark this season, Breazeale jumped on Clay Carroll's first pitch for a three-run homer.

That triggered a five-run eighth inning which powered the Braves to a 7-5 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Elsewhere in the National League, Pittsburgh beat St. Louis 10-5, Houston defeated San Francisco 6-3, Montreal stopped Philadelphia 4-1, the Chicago Cubs drubbed the New York Mets 7-2 and Los Angeles slipped past San Diego 2-1 in 10 innings.

In the American League, Milwaukee tripped the New York Yankees 4-2, Baltimore edged Boston 2-1, Cleveland dumped Detroit 5-1, Kansas City silenced Texas 2-0, California checked Minnesota 3-1 and Oakland, after beating Chicago 5-3 in 19 innings to conclude a game suspended by curfew after 17 innings Thursday night, lost the regularly scheduled game to the White Sox 1-0.

The homer was Breazeale's third of the season. All of them have been in a pinch-hitting role and all of them have tied games in late innings.

The homer only tied the game. But the Braves weren't finished with Carroll. Ralph Garr singled, Hank Aaron walked, Earl Williams singled for the go-ahead run, the Dusty Baker put the finishing touches on the rally with a run-scoring single.

Richie Hebner of the Pirates batted in the cleanup position in place of Willie Stargell, who sat out the game against the Cardinals due to a recent tooth extraction. And Hebner picked up where Stargell left off, slugging a pair of homers.

Gene Clines knocked in three runs with a pair of singles to join Hebner in leading the 16-hit assault against six St. Louis pitchers.

Houston erupted for five runs in the second inning en route to trimming Cincinnati's lead in the West to 5½ games. Larry Dierker went the distance for his 11th victory.

Mike Torrez yielded just three Philadelphia hits—one of them Don Money's home run—and triggered a three-run rally in the eighth inning with a tie-breaking single that paved the way to his 13th victory of the year.

Milt Pappas scattered five New York hits and led Chicago's attack by driving in five runs with a homer, a double and a single to draw the Cubs within a game of the second-place Mets.

Wes Parker, who scored the Dodgers' first run, drove in the winner with a two-out single in the 10th inning that sent the Padres down to their fifth defeat in six games.

Tennis, Anyone?

DEEP AND TO THE BACKHAND

If there is one shot in the game of tennis which should be worked on and developed to the point of perfection, it is the deep shot to your opponent's backhand.

An almost necessity when attacking the net, this shot makes your opponent take his eyes off you momentarily which gives you an element of surprise at the net.

The shot need not be a hard stroke as long as it is hit deep in the corner. It is not intended to be a winning shot as much as a setup shot to allow you safe passage to the net.

Sandlin Named Most Valuable

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — Versatile Dave Sandlin, who starred as both a pitcher and hitter for UNC at Wimington, has been voted the Most Valuable Player in the North Carolina Collegiate Summer Baseball League.

Sandlin received 27 votes in a poll of league players and coaches. Louisburg's slugging first baseman Wayne Pyrtle was second in the balloting with 23 and Wilmington catcher Bruce Cavenaugh was third with 12.

No one was allowed to vote for a player on his own team.

Sandlin compiled a 6-4 record for the Seahawks, who finished fourth in the regular season standings. His earned run average was a fine 2.67. He struck out 66 batters in 84 innings.

He was sensational down the stretch. Sandlin allowed only 11 hits and five earned runs in his last 44 innings of the seasonn. In that span, he threw a no-hitter against Louisburg, the hardest hitting team in the league; a two-hitter; a three-hitter, and lost a one-hitter, 1-0.

The Seahawk lefthander was also a terror at the plate. He hit .341 for the year with 43 hits in 126 at-bats. He had seven doubles, one triple, three home runs and drove in 26 runs. He scored 18 himself.

Sandlin, in fact, was named to the league all-star team at two different positions. He made the first team as a pitcher and the second team as an outfielder. Sandlin was runner-up in the MVP voting last year to North Carolina pitcher Jim Chamberlain.

Despite his batting heroics, even Sandlin could not match the hitting feats of Pyrtle. The Louisburg slugger hit well over .300 for the season and led the league in home runs with 12 and runs-batted-in with 58.

His home run total equalled the league record set last season by another Louisburg first baseman, Rick Richardson. He easily broke the league RBI record of 28 held by Carolina's Bobby Guthrie and Mike Roberts.

Cavenaugh was one of the key figures in Wilmington's fight for the league championship. He led the team in home runs and runs-batted-in, while batting over .300.

Wife Proved To Be A Prophet

DENVER, N.C. (AP) — Bob Bruno's wife told him after he missed winning the Carolinas Open in Raleigh, "You'll do better next time," and Friday he made a prophet of her by claiming the Winston-Carolinas PGA golf championship.

Bruno, who played five years without much success on the pro tour before becoming director of golf for Pinehurst Country Club, fired a three-under par 68 Friday.

Bruno finished the 54-hole event over the 6,883-yard Wesport Golf Club course with a 208, three strokes ahead of Brad Anderson of Charlotte.

Defending champion Bob Galloway, the pro at the Denver course, shot a 69 Friday for a 212 total that left him tied for third with Buck Adams of Pinehurst (71), Gene Thompson of Salisbury (72) and Odell Massey of Burlington (212).

Massey needed a birdie on the last hole, a par 5, to force Bruno into a playoff, but he drove into the woods on the right, chipped out, and hit his third shot into the woods.

The Alamance County native took a triple bogie on the hole.

The 6-foot-6 Bruno, 37, had not been in the lead the first two days, but was only a shot behind a three-way tie after the first 36 holes.

He birdied the first two holes, took a bogie on the third, and then birdied number eight to make the turn at two-under-par 34. He parred the back nine, except for a birdie on the 16th.

Bruno won $2,200.

Randy Glover of Summerville, S.C., had a par total of 213 for fourth place after shooting a final round 71.

Tied for fifth with 216s were Sonny Ridenhour of Kernersville (72), George Smith of Havelock (72) and Dave Robinson of Chapel Hill (77).

With 218 and tied for sixth were Al Smith of Kernersville (74) and Roger Watson of Cary (75), Ronnie Reitz of Raleigh (72) was seventh with 219, and Keith Wright of Saluda, S.C. (73) was eighth with 220.

Boater With Less Than 500 Hours Is Most Likely To Be In Accident

By JACK WOLISTON

NEW YORK (UPI) — The small boat skipper most likely to become involved in an accident afloat is the one with more than 100 but less than 500 hours experience.

That's the opinion of Carl S. Cichon, director of marine services for State Farm Fire and Casualty Co., who says those 400 crucial hours are when the greatest number of boating fatalities occur.

As Cichon explains it: "When a new sailor has been at the helm less than 100 hours, he's naturally cautious getting the feel of the boat. Conversely, with more than 500 hours behind him, he has learned enough about boating to respect its dangers."

It's that in between period, Cichon says, where the skipper may develop a false confidence that can lead him into trouble.

Cichon estimates that it probably takes the average small boat owner four or five summers to pass the 500-hour operational mark, with boatmen in warmer climates enjoying extended or year-round seasons racking up the experience in a proportionately shorter time.

Careless Novices

Far too many persons cast off in their newly purchased boats without even the most elementary knowledge of proper safety practices or the rules of the "road," Cichon says.

"Boating often is deceptively easy until an emergency arises," he cautions.

Capsizings and falls overboard cause the most deaths in recreational boating—995 in 1971. Cichon believes this type of fatality results from sailing in dangerously rough waters or moving about a boat carelessly.

"Almost all such fatalities can be avoided, either by applying the principles of good seamanship, using common sense or wearing a lifesaving device," Cichon says.

He points out that a recent National Transportation Safety Board study revealed that two-thirds of the persons killed in small boat accidents had neglected to wear flotation gear, even though it was available to them in their boats.

On collisions, which claimed 83 lives in 1971, Cichon says the solution is simple — "Watch where you're going at all times, even—or perhaps especially—on seemingly clear stretches of open water."

Fire Hazard

Fire, which caused more than $8 million in property damage last year, is another of recreational boating's big hazards, and Cichon believes that safety in this category depends on two major factors.

"First, have the engine and fuel system installed and maintained properly," he says. "Second, observe safe fueling practices."

The U.S. Coast Guard's annual statistical report for 1971 released recently showed an increase in recreational boating accidents and fatalities for the year.

Wildlife Afield: Slades Creek Has Made Believer Out Of Fishermen

By JIM DEAN

Slades Creek is a fairly large creek on the Pungo River only a few miles southeast of Belhaven. This past weekend, it made a believer out of me, and sinners out of at least a dozen other fishermen.

I was fishing with my cousin Bill Dean of Washington (that's North Carolina) and Wayne Harrell of Tarboro. Both are excellent fishermen, and from about dawn until noon, we caught 42 speckled trout on Sting Ray Grubs. Actually, Bill and Wayne caught most of the fish. My excuse is that I was taking pictures, and I did snap the shutter once or twice.

It is only the second time this year that I have managed to beat the odds on what I call "Dean's Law." The law goes something like this:

If there are 10 boats fishing for speckled trout, one boat will catch most of the fish while the fishermen in the other nine boats will break the 10th Commandment.

In case you are a heathen, the 10th Commandment says that you should not covet your neighbor's speckled trout. Bill, Wayne and I must be righteous because we were in the right boat, in the right place at the right time.

No one really knows why speckled trout (actually spotted weakfish) are inclined to such prejudices, but any experienced speck fishermen will surely confirm this observation. These are curious fish.

I have seen the time—many times— when one boat would mop up while others went fishless. I have even seen the time when one fisherman in a boat would catch 90 percent of the fish while his partners slowly went nuts trying to copy the successful fisherman's style.

On one occasion, a few years back, I was suffering at the hands of a companion who could do no wrong. He was catching specks on just about every cast. I put on the same lure he was using. I cast to the same spot. I even matched his retrieve. Every time he turned his reel handle, I turned mine. Every time he twitched his rod, I twitched mine. He filled a cooler. I didn't catch enough to stick up a frying pan.

Recently, I read where some fishermen are thought to give off a strong odor that is distasteful to fish. If so, this would explain why some anglers catch fish all the time, while others go fishless. The article I read said that "stinky" fishermen might be able to improve their success by masking their odor with various concoctions, like oil of anise. One of my friends maintains that he merely soaks himself in bourbon before he goes fishing. It may work, but the last I heard of him, he had fallen tail over tincup out of a boat and nearly drowned.

At Slade's Creek, it seemed to be more a matter of timing, persistence and location than anything else. We arrived at the creek just after dawn. Bill and Wayne had caught trout there before, and knew exactly where to go. By the time any other boats got to the creek, we had already caught perhaps 20 trout. Although we moved twice to another nearby trout hole Wayne knew about, we generally stayed put. The other boats moved around more than we did.

Our fishing was not fast. Sometimes, we would go for 20 minutes without a strike, then we might catch three or four in a matter of minutes. Most of the fish were caught on white Sting Ray Grubs with red heads, although Bill picked up some on a florescent red grub. By midday, the fishing had deteriorated, and we left.

Summer fishing for speckled trout usually gets underway in June in the sounds, bays and coastal brackish-water rivers, and it lasts well into the fall. The early summer specks are usually small, but in September and October, they sometimes run three pounds or more unless a hurricane messes up the water and scatters the fish.

Big Brook Trout Hatchery Raised

On a trout fishing trip a couple of seasons back, I was a guest at a friend's cabin in the Pisgah National Forest near Lenoir. A neighbor of his came over late one afternoon to show off a brook trout he had caught from a mountain lake.

Catching a brook trout in a North Carolina mountain lake is no unusual feat, but this brook trout stretched a whopping 24 inches!

Brookies are the native "trout" of the southern Appalachians, rainbows and browns being introduced about the turn of the century. In their natural habitat, even under ideal conditions — which is extremely pure, cold streams — brook trout rarely exceed 14 inches.

How then do you explain a two-footer, and from what water did it come?

The fish was grown under unnatural conditions — to wit, a fish hatchery. It was one of many old brook trout that were released in Julian Price Lake after they had passed prime reproduction age.

That fortunate angler was one of several who caught giant brookies from Julian Price that spring, but fishermen did not get them all. On a recent visit to Julian Price Memorial Park on the Blue Ridge Parkway, a ranger told me that some of the large brook trout are still in the lake and that "fish up to 28 inches have been caught."

Julian Price is not under jurisdiction of the State Wildlife Commission. The National Park Service, which administers the Parkway, classifies the lake as "Native Trout Waters" and imposes a seven-inch size limit and a daily creel limit of five fish. Only single-hook artificial lures may be used.

Every two weeks, the lake is stocked with legal-sized brown and rainbow trout. The ranger said "most fishermen take their daily limit." The most common lures are artificial worms, grubs and single-hook spinners.

Swimming, ice skating, motor boats and sailboats are prohibited. You may launch a rowboat or canoe at a specified ramp and paddle or row over the lake, but you may not pull the boat up on the bank anywhere but at the ramp. Boats are subject to inspection for safety and they must be removed from the lake at night.

Most fishing is from the bank, however. When I walked the 2.3 mile loop trail around the lake, I saw several paths leading to the water's edge and a few fishermen, but none with fish.

Boone Fork, the stream leading from the lake, is also trout water, is under the same regulations as the lake and is also stocked regularly. It is a good spot for a novice fisherman to get experience with trout.

Price Park Campground is one of the largest along the Parkway, with 134 tent sites and 63 trailer sites. Each site has a table, fireplace, and garbage can.

SHORT-BILLED MARSH WREN

A tiny bird with a streaked head and back. It inhabits the wet sedge and long grass meadows surrounding marshes, often in areas of willow and low shrubs. The globe-shaped nest is built into coarse grass or sedge and has a side entrance. Several dummy nests may be built nearby. In Canada this Wren ranges from extreme southern Quebec and Ontario, south and central Manitoba and east-central Saskatchewan.

TALLADEGA, Alabama — You just knew it was going to happen. It was a feeling. Everybody had it. Like when all the numbers come right after one another on the bingo card. Ya know you got a winner.

James Harvey Hylton was out front and headin' home. The fans cheered and waved him on. The sound of encouraging obscenities were shouted from all along pit road only to be lost in the roar of engines from machines still in the race. His wife, Evelyn, crossed her fingers. Typewriters became silent in the press box, but the voices of the newsmen, the staid, oldguard of racing who have seen it all, rose in unison to help Hylton's car run faster. Brother Bill, the racing preacher, said a prayer.

James Harvey Hylton was leading the Talladega 500-mile race held last Sunday here at the Alabama International Motor Speedway. Ramo Stott was right on Hylton's rear bumper. It went that way lap after lap. But the fans knew, the press knew. Hylton had to win it. Fate couldn't be so cruel to snatch victory away from him now.

It was his first trip into a major speedway's victory lane. After eight years of frustration, of running to finish, of having to settle for less than first, he had made it. He had won one race before in his career, but that was several years ago on a short half-mile track in Virginia. This was the super-speedway, the big money. This was the one that counted.

Hylton is what is commonly referred to in the sport of automobile racing as an "independent." He owns and maintains his own automobile. When he's home in Inman, S.C. (pop. 1,700), between races, James has an 18 hour work day in his garage. He sees his wife and son, James Jr., only several hours a day.

"My son has grown up without a normal father-son relationship," said James. "My wife and I don't have a social life. The only time we get a chance to be together and relax is at the racetracks."

Hylton has been second in the NASCAR (National Assn. for Stock Car Auto Racing) point standings three times since he began racing in 1964. He finished high in the championship point battle even though he never won a race. James did this by conservative driving. He drove to finish a race, not necessarily win it. To win you have to drive hard all the way. That takes equipment and equipment takes money. Both items have been in short supply to Hylton over the years.

Several months ago the Pop Kola Company, bottlers of a soft drink in Atlanta, Ga., signed a contract to sponsor Hylton's automobiles. It was the extra money he needed to build surplus engines. The sponsor's money wasn't a huge sum, but at last he was able to make plans to charge for the lead in the stock car race instead of driving just to finish.

And that's exactly what he did here at Talladega. He drove to win, and he did. The guy who always finished back in the pack beat the best of them at their own game.

When James crawled from his car in victory lane, he was so happy he had to be told to take his helmet off. Here was the true jubilance of winning. He raced his wife, and tears of joy ran down both their cheeks. The thousnads of miles of travel, the sleepless nights, the missed meals, the endless hours of work — it was all forgotten in that victory embrace.

"Now I can walk a bit more proudly thru the garage area," said James. "I can hold my head up, 'cause I proved I can build and drive a race car as good as anyone else."

Amen!

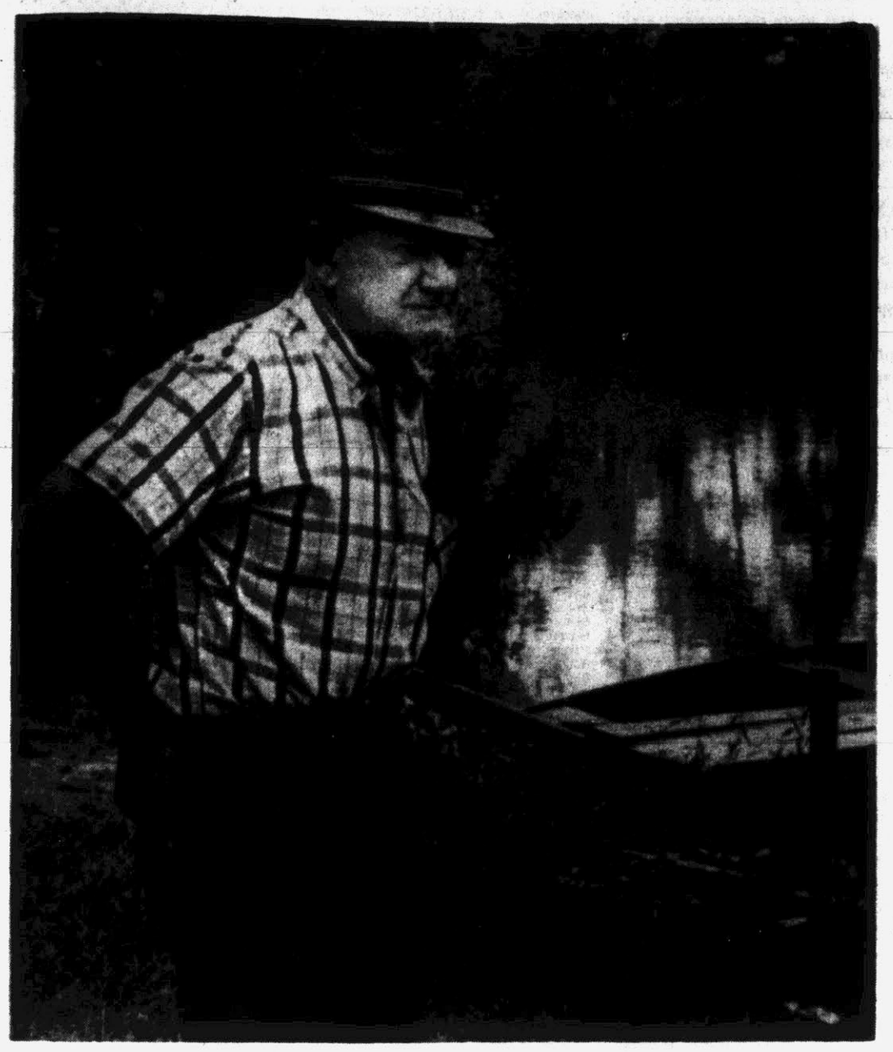
Viewpoints On The Chicod Creek Watershed

By Yvonne Baskin, Associated Press Writer



FISHING RUINED — J.C. Cox once owned a thriving business renting boats and selling bait and tackle to fishermen on Broad Creek south of Washington, N.C. But a channelization project upstream two years ago muddied the creek and ruined the fishing, he says, putting him out of business. (AP Wirephoto)

Chicod Creek is a sluggish eastern North Carolina stream, snaking for more than 60 miles under a canopy of cypress, maple, tupelo, beech and water oak.

It is clogged in spots by vines, water weeds and logs and flows almost imperceptibly across areas of flat, wooded wetlands and swamps.

In the past year the stream has become the focal point for one of the nation's major environmental controversies.

Lined up on one side are farmers, the U.S. Soil Conservation Service and agricultural interests. On the other are downstream landowners and virtually every wildlife, environmental and conservation agency in the country.

The battle is over the proposed channelization of 66 miles of Chicod Creek in Pitt and Beaufort counties.

The $1.5 million project, 10 years in the planning, has been stalled for 10 months in a court battle which both sides predict will eventually reach the Supreme Court.

The controversy involves differing views over the value and best use of the nation's coastal lowlands and tidal marshes; the plight of farmers; preservation of the remaining wetland wildlife habitat and hardwood timber stands; and the value of massive SCS and Corps of Engineers water projects.

Channelization involves the use of bulldozers and draglines to carve a meandering, natural stream bed into a deeper and straighter ditch for more efficient drainage of flood or rain water.

Since 1954, the SCS has channelized more than 6,000 miles of streams and rivers across the nation. Channelization is scheduled for another 12,000 miles of waterways in 1,059 "authorized and active" watershed projects.

Some 1,643 more projects are under study or planning. The current SCS budget for watershed projects is $130 million.

North Carolina has one of the most extensive SCS watershed programs in the country. Chicod is one of 39 projects finished or under way involving 1,474 miles of channelization. Nearly 60 other projects in the state are in the study or application stage.

Suit Filed

Last November, five organizations filed suit against the Chicod Creek project in hopes of setting a precedent that could be used in a nationwide battle against channelization.

The five are the Natural Resources Defense Council, the North Carolina Wildlife Federation, the National Wildlife Federation, Friends of the Earth and the Pamlico-Tar Conservation Coalition.

Chicod Creek rises in the swampy woodlands near Chocowinity six miles south of Grimesland, flows rougly parallel to the Tar River, then doubles back near Grimesland and empties into the Tar.

The SCS environmental impact statement on the project states that, once, the watershed was in equilibrium—the land surface was covered with wetland timber, erosion was minimal and the channel depth in the creek was sufficient for natural drainage.

But in the 1700s, farmers began cutting back the timber and clearing cropland. Accelerated erosion upset the balance, filling in the stream, raising the ground water level and sending more water out over the swamps and bottomlands in times of heavy rain.

Farmers in the area who support the project say crops planted in fields near the creek produce poorly because of the high soil moisture. Other crops are destroyed every few years by flooding.

The SCS and farmers see channelization as a way to make the land produce more efficiently, take some of the gamble out of farming and improve the farm income of the area.

Swamps Filling

"These swamps are filling up," said Frank Wooten, attorney for the Pitt County Drainage District. "The project is designed to restore the original channels and prevent erosion or else the creek will keep filling up and the swamp will keep spreading."

There are 3,000 persons in the watershed, and the SCS says that 55 per cent of the families have incomes of less than $3,000. Agriculture is the main enterprise although only 18 per cent of the work force in Pitt County is employed in agriculture.

The impact statement claims the project would increase the average annual income of each of the 250 farms in the watershed by $175 and thereby help to keep farmers on the land.

But opponents say this is a myth. They regard extensive ditching as an attempt to perpetuate a tobacco-based economy and increase the income of a few large farmers at taxpayer expense.

They say tobacco allotments kept small farmers on the land, and allotment acreage is continuing to decline. Allotments in the project area dropped from 2,156 acres in 1965 to 2,053 in 1971. They are projected to drop to 1,848 by 1976.

Ditch A Hoax

"People are believing this hoax that this ditch is going to raise income," said George Burdick, a farmer, wildlife biologist and professor from Robersonville. "But tobacco production is limited. We can produce all the tobacco allowed and never come near a stream."

Burdick and other opponents find it hard to justify a project which improves 10,000 acres of cropland when more than 30,000 acres of cropland in Pitt County alone was held out of production in 1971.

Government programs paid farmers in the county $38,577 not to plant corn, wheat, cotton and grain sorghum last year.

Opponents of the project say the most valuable asset of North Carolina's coastal lowlands is its recreation potential—its clean water, scenic swamps and wetlands, good hunting, fishing and boating and the shrimp, oysters and other products of the tidal marshes.

The opponents contend channelization scrapes away the holes in the stream bed, ruins the bottom habitat, removes the canopy of vegetation which shades the stream, cuts away a wide swath of forest habitat on the banks, drains the adjacent wetland habitat and encourages farmers to clear the streamside timberland to plant more crops.

Officially, the SCS is not allowed to undertake watershed projects for the purpose of putting more land into production—only to improve the quality and reduce the risks on existing lands.

Moving Plows

But nearly all the farmers interviewed indicated that if the project goes through, they will be moving their plows further and further into the flood plains of the creek.

Downstream landowners fear the increasing mud, silt and pesticides being washed down from upstream watershed projects will ruin their tourism and recreation-based economy as well as destroy fish and wildlife populations and wetlands timber stands in the project areas.

Farmers offered no direct answers to questions asked by opponents: Should the government be spending tax money to increase the income from federally subsidized crops such as tobacco and peanuts when it is already spending millions in soil banks and farm subsidy programs, when one-third of the nation's farmland is not in use and when farmers are already producing surpluses?

Should cropland be increased or made more productive at the expense of the aesthetic, recreational and commercial value of the coastal lowlands? Is the use of public money for channel projects in the best interests of the public as a whole?

Farmers in the watershed petitioned in 1963 for an SCS project to scrape out the stream. It was authorized in 1966 by congressional committees and the SCS. Planning and consulting with other agencies stalled the project for another five years.

Then, as contracts were ready to be let, conservationists selected Chicod as a test case.

The SCS refused to write an environmental impact statement, saying the project had been authorized before passage of the 1969 law requiring such statements. And the SCS claimed the project would have only minor impact on the environment.

Conservationists disagreed. On March 15, U.S. District Judge John D. Larkins ordered an impact statement prepared and issued a temporary injunction halting the project. The injunction was dissolved Aug. 3 when the environmental groups refused to post a $75,000 bond required by Larkins.

Opponents have now petitioned for an early hearing on the merits of the project. They contend that if the benefit-cost ratio included all adverse effects, the project could not be justified.

They say the impact statement does not fill the requirements of the law because it is an attempt to justify a previous commitment rather than to evaluate the real effects of the project.

According to the SCS impact statement, the watershed covers 35,100 acres in Pitt and Beaufort counties, including 15,-600 acres of cropland and 15,500 acres of woodlands.

The statement says that 10,000 acres of uplands have water problems. This land is used primarily for crops such as soybeans, corn and peanuts, the statement says, since farmers don't want to risk high value tobacco crops to moisture or flood damage.

The SCS says tobacco, the area's cash crop, is planted primarily on some 2,810 acres of well-drained cropland.

Land Erosion

This land is being eroded at the rate of 12 tons of soil per acre each year because of heavy row cropping. The SCS predicts that, if nothing is done to relieve this heavy use, the high land will be worn out and useless in 100 to 150 years.

Meanwhile, soil is washing into the creek, filling the channel, raising the water level and increasing the area's drainage problems.

Environmentalists say the best remedy for this situation is better conservation land treatment—crop rotation, contour tillage, field drains.

The SCS statement admits that, immediately after the project, sediment delivered into the Tar River from the Chicod watershed will be 730 tons annually instead of the present 50 tons. If and when the channel is stablized, the SCS said the sediment will drop to 250 tons annually.

The federal agency refused in its statement to consider the cumulative effects of sedimentation from all the projects planned on tributaries of the Tar River. It said it did not consider the downstream effects of the Chicod project itself a cause for major concern.

Other adverse effects of the project listed in the statement include loss of 76 acres of cropland, 140 acres of upland forests, 360 acres of hardwood timber and wildlife habitat; loss of carrying capacity on 657 acres of wetland wildlife habitat; reduction of fish populations in at least 14 miles of streams; reduced escape and sanctuary value of the wetland for deer; reduced habitat for mink, otter and muskrat; and increased flooding of two state roads downstream from the project.

Environmentalists are calling on the SCS to come up with some imaginative and far-sighted answers to help farmers and preserve the non-agricultural values of eastern North Carolina.

They suggest helping the farmers with land treatment; using federal crop insurance to protect against loss of tobacco, peanuts, corn and soybeans; some small-scale snagging and sediment removal in parts of the stream; conversion of the naturally wet lands to pasture and cattle production or growth of valuable hardwoods; lease of hunting and fishing rights to sportsmens groups; attraction of clean industry to the area; and use of the federal Water Bank Act to pay farmers to set aside wetlands from production.

Farmers Viewpoint

Grover Hodges remembers from his boyhood when Chicod Creek was deep enough to swim in.

Hodges, 67, can wade across the creek on his land now without getting his knees wet.

Robert Little remembers when his father and uncle used to operate a sawmill on the creek near their farm.

L. B. Combs, who bought a farm in the watershed 20 years ago, has seen the creek get shallower and more sedimentfilled in the years he has lived beside it. He has watched the ground water level in his low fields rise and flood waters sit longer on the land.

These men and other farmers in the Chicod Creek watershed view the creek as an increasing threat to their ability to make a go of farming. To them, the creek was meant to drain the land, and it no longer does that efficiently.

The farmers view a court battle iniated by environmentalists over their attempts to channelize the creek as another in a long series of blows being dealt the American farmer.

"We were just so disheartened by the suit," said Bob Stokes, chairman of the Pitt County Drainage District No. 9. "We had been working on it for so long and were all ready to dig when the suit came along."

Combs said he lost eight or nine acres of soybeans and three acres of peanuts last year because water from heavy rains "just sat there" in the fields.

Stokes said he and his brother used to farm 700 acres, much of it leased. Stokes now works for a bank and his brother runs the farm.

"I lost $7,000 farming the last year I farmed fulltime," he said.

Hodges said he planted 22 acres of tobacco on his 56 acre farm in 1962 and after heavy rains had only four acres still standing.

"I went $6,000 to $7,000 in the hole on that crop," he said.

If the channelization project is halted, Hodges said, "In just a few years we won't be able to farm this land, not to make a living."

A short distance from the Chicod watershed is Grindle Creek, another tributary of the Tar River which was channelized in 1962.

Eric Whichard, his father, his mother and his aunt own five farms along the creek. Before the channelization project, he said, the rising water caused him to abandon 20 acres of land for row cropping.

Another 30 acres were getting marginal.

"That was 15 per cent of our land," he said. "The channel was choked with debris and didn't drain well. It was either clear it or quit. The stream was meant to drain the land."

The federal government costshared 28 miles of channelization on the creek and now Whichard says he has better tobacco, cucumbers and corn than ever before cause of the well-drained fields.

Despite this improvement in his production, he has also taken a job in a bank to supplement his farm income.

All the farmers interviewed said they had not read the environmental impact statement. But they feel the pinch of low prices and rising production costs and the pressure to expand the volume of their production operations in order to make a profit.

Arch Flanagan of Farmville, 72, has been an agricultural leader and chairman of the Pitt Soil and Water Conservation District since 1942. He has retired from farming and passed along to his son the 192 acres he inherited from his parents.

Flanagan's farm is on Little Contentnea Creeek. A channel project for that watershed is one step behind and hanging on the outcome of the Chicod Creek project.

Flanagan was asked why the farmers stick it out, attempting to farm a swamp instead of trying something else.

"It's a way of life for these people. The majority don't know anything else to do. This is all good productive land if we can get it drained," he said.

"In five years you might lose two crops and have three years of fine crops," Flanagan said. "This is one of the best areas for crops—eastern North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia. Food and fiber is what we can produce so long as we can keep the root systems dry.

"There's not any family in Chicod Creek that wants to do anything to harm anyone. Environmental things are something we all have to be concerned about," he said.

But if the project is halted, he said, "It's going to hurt awful bad."

Opponents Speak

Half a dozen flat-bottom boats are tethered on a muddy creek south of Washington, below what used to be J. C. Cox's bait and tackle shop.

Cox had a thriving business until two years ago when farmers upstream on Broad Creek dredged the stream to improve drainage on their land.

Now, Cox says, the fish are gone and few people rent his boats. The tackle shop is boarded up.

"I can understand the folks up there. They need draining," he said. "But they done ruined me. Put me out of business.

"I've seen times in the past when this creek wouldn't get muddy twice a year. Now every little shower that comes it stays muddy a week," he said.

"It's too late for me. It's done," Cox said. "But maybe they can stop some of the others."

Cox and some others like him in the Tar-Pamlico River basin are worried because Broad Creek isn't the only one staked out by farmers and the U.S. Soil Conservation Service for channelization.

Virtually every major tributary of the Tar-Pamlico River-Pamlico Sound complex has an existing or a proposed channelization project.

The Pamlico-Tar Conservation Coalition joined four environmental groups last fall in a court test to try to halt a similar channelization project on Chicod Creek, which also empties into the Tar.

A leader of the coalition, W. B. Carter Jr. of Washington, said, "The water quality in the river is the main concern of the people in this area. The city has spent millions of dollars fixing up the waterfront. The recreation potential is booming.

"These channelization projects create gray muddy streams that leave big fans of muddy water at the mouths of the creeks where they drain into the Tar. After a rain the whole river is muddy.

"You wouldn't want to swim in it, put your boat in it, ski in it," he said.

George Burdick, a wildlife biologist, professor and farmer from near Robersonville said, "People are coming here for clean air, water and recreation. What are we going to offer — cornfields and ditches?"

He said, "We have surpluses of grain and so much tobacco there are limits on its production.

"Eastern North Carolina has another resource — our marine resources — that will outdistance any value agriculture will bring in," he said.

Carter said, "This is still a rural community, and we caught hell from the farmers for opposing this project. But we like farmers. They are caught in low prices and all they can think to do is try to raise production per acre.

"But drainage is a marginal try at best," he said, "and we think it does more harm than good. There has got to be some realignment of priority somewhere."

Burdick and other opponents say the SCS and those who benefit from SCS projects are trying to justify the agency's continued existence through a nationwide program of unneeded ditching.

"The SCS is just not doing any planning," Burdick said. "They should leave the natural streams alone.

"Let them be settling basins for pollution from croplands; let them recharge the ground water supplies; supply nutrients to the tidal marshes; provide shelter for wood duck nests and spawning waters for shad and herring; and leave the wetlands timber;" he said.

"The farmers should use the streamside land for pasture and locate their crops properly, away from the streams," Burdick said.

Thomas Barlow of the Natural Resources Defense Council said one problem in stopping or getting modification in channel projects in that they are never voted on separately by the entire Congress. The SCS present projects to the Agriculture and Public Works Committees for authorization, and then asks Congress for blanket approval and a lump sum appropriation for all projects.

"The congressmen don't really know what's going on in these projects," Barlow said. "Our values have changed. Twenty or 30 years ago when these people went to Congress, a swamp was wasteland. Agencies like the SCS don't shift with the times."

He also said local people who want drainage should do it with their own money.

"The private people won't bother the big swamps. There's not really enough return," he said. "It only looks worth it when the federal government pays 50 to 90 per cent."

Pou To Direct Seal Campaign

Dr. J. W. Pou, vice-president, Wachovia Bank and Trust Company, N.A. and Marketing Officer for the bank's 17 county Northeastern District, has accepted the chairmanship of the 1972 Christmas Seal Campaign for the 22 country area comprising the Eastern Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association of North Carolina.

An active civic and professional leader, Dr. Pou said he was happy to be asked to serve in this capacity and that he will "in the very near future announce selection of various area chairmen and plans for condicting the 1972 sale of Christman seals."

For the past 65 years, annual sale of Christmas seals has been the primary means of raising funds to carry on research and to provide active assistance to persons suffering from respiratory ailments.

"I feel this will be our best year ever," Mrs. Ruth Peterson, Director of the association with headquarters in Greenville commented. "We all know that when Dr. Pou is involved in something, the results are always outstanding."

A graduate of North Carolina State University, the University of Wisconsin and Cornel University, Dr. Pou had four years active duty in World War II in the Pacific Theater and is a retired lieutenant colonel in the Army Reserve.

Before becoming associated with Wachovia, he was professor and head of the Dairy Department at the University of Marlyand; professor and Head, Department of Animal Husbandry, N.C. State College; and Director, Agricultural Extension Service, the University of Arizona.

He currently serves as president, N.C. Society of Farm Managers and Rural Appraisers, and is on the Board of Trustees, N.C. Teachers and State Employees Retirement System.

Books Eligible For Competition

The North Carolina Literary and Historical Association has announced the preliminary list of books eligible for the 1971 literary competitions for outstanding works by North Carolina authors.

The four awards are the Mayflower (nonfiction), Sir Walter Raleigh (fiction), American Association of University Women (juvenile), and Raonoke-Chowan (poetry). Winners will be announced at the association's annual meeting traditionally held in Raleigh during Culture Week.

To be eligible for the current competitions, a work must have been published between July 1, 1972 and June 30, 1972, and the author must have maintained legal or physical residence (or combination of both) in the state during the past three years.

Dr. H.G. Jones, secretary of the association, welcomes information on any additional books that may be eligible. His address is 109 East Jones St., Raleigh 27611.

The preliminary list shows:

Marijuana, Car Seized

Pitt County deputies arrested two Greenville men Friday in Bethel on mairjuana possession charges, according to Sheriff Ralph Tyson.

The sheriff reported that State Bureau of Investigation agents, Pitt ABC men and the Greenville Police Department cooperated in the arrests of William Ray Ward, 24 of 908 Columbia Avenue, and James Franklin Yates, 32 of 730 W. Fifth Street.

Sheriff Tyson said that the arrests were made at the intersection of Highway 64 and N.C. 11.

Ward, he reported, was charged with possession of marijuana with intent to distribute and also transporting a controlled substance. Bond was set at $2,500 on each charge, the sheriff continued.

Yates was charged with possession of marijuana with intent to distribute and jailed under $2,500.

Authorities confiscated 65 bags of marijuana and also a 1968 automobile, Sheriff Tyson reported.

Reunion For Vets Slated

WINSTON-SALEM — The 26th annual reunion-convention of the Seventh Armored Division Association will be held at the Hilton Inn here Aug. 17-19.

Veterans and their families from many states are expected to attend this year's event, the second reunion of the World War II organization held in North Carolina. Special guests will be Division Commander, Maj. Gen. Robert Hasbrouck, U.S.A. retired, and Lt. Gen. William A. Knowlton, a former battalion commander of the Division who is now superintendent of the U.S. Military Academy, West Point, N.Y. Co-chairmen are Gene Jones of Ronda, editor of the Association's newspaper for the past 20 years, and Al Jenkins of Statesville, national president.

The Seventh Armored is famed for rapid spearhead drive of Gen. George Patton's Third Army drive across France and for their stand at St. Vith in December, 1944. They were the last out of St. Vith, after holding it for five days—three days longer than they had been ordered to hold—and the first to return to take St. Vith in January, 1945.

Auxiliary Will SponsorProgram

The Women's Auxiliary of Carson Memorial Pentecostal Church is sponsoring a program of music this afternoon at 2 p.m. Different groups from the area will participate in the program.

Pastor Frank Blaylock invites the public to attend.

George Krook is an inspector on the Portsmouth, N.H. police department.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, AUGUST 13, 1972

CARROLL RIGHTER'S horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You want to unite forces with another person and because of unusual circumstances you will not be able to do so. This situation could be just the nod needed to make you and someone of whom you are very fond closer and with mutual benefits.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You want to improve partnership affairs during your spare time today, so arrange a meeting with associates and do just that. Appreciate bluntness. Find right way to add to your popularity.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Ideal day to do something nice for one who has done favors for you in the past. Follow through with ideas for making your appearance more charming. Avoid a troublemaker.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Accepting an unexpected invitation now could lead to something very interesting. A sudden inspiration will also bring you closer to the one you love. Pay bills early in the day.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Ideal day to make conditions at home more harmonious and happy. Do some entertaining in the evening and graciously ask your friends to bring their friends. Be poised.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Go to that new site with persons who can help you to renew you philosophy of life of the past that proved so satisfying until you changed it. Later show more cooperation with all.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have fine ideas on how to add to present abundance, so put them in operation quickly. Practical problems can be solved quickly now. Your newspaper can be very helpful to you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You are now able to add to your life that which has been missing and derive greater happiness in the future. Dress fashionably and meet the right people when you go out socially.

SCORPIO (Oct 23 to Nov. 21) Quietly reflecting on your special goals now helps you to reach them in the near future. Your intuition is good now, so follow it. You can find the data you need at the right source.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Being active in the company of good friends could lead to greater advancement for you in the near future. You can now make up for lost time where your social life is concerned.

CARPICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be careful today you do nothing to jeopardize your fine reputation, but enhance it instead. You are anxious to add to present prestige and can do so easily.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Ideal day to start a new beginning in personal life and to make the new contacts that can lead to fine friendships. You can plan that trip you feel is necessary. Count the cost well.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Some time spent in meditation will help you get ideas now that can make the future much brighter for you. Control your temper and show the charming side of your nature.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those interesting young people who wants life to flow smoothly, but harsh reality may intervene. Teach early that these are challenges that can be overcome, thereby making your progeny a more capable person than most. Give as fine an education as you can afford. Sports are fine here.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, AUGUST 14, 1972

CARROLL RIGHTER'S horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You now have a fine chance to get people of good judgment or high office to become a part of your life. However, this is simply a possible opportunity, and you must take the lead and do something if the big benefits are to result for you.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Sitting down with an associate and working out better arrangements for the future is wise in a.m. Get into the activities that will make you more popular. Avoid one who depresses you.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A day to get much work done, so be very cooperative with others and pile up benefits. First schedule your time and make concrete plans so you can push right through. Be wise and take it easy tonight, though.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You deserve some light amusement now after all that hard work you have been doing, so get together with fun people and go-go-go. Relationship with attachment is particularly favored, so make the most of this, too. Dress well.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Concentrate energies on home and family now and do much to improve conditions and harmony in that important realm of life. Consult a good decorator so your home has the charm you desire.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Now you know what you want to accomplish in the business world, so get busy and make the right contacts to gain such ends. Put those special talents to work and make real money from them. Stop being so passive.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Find a better method for handling all your assets and liabilities so you become more successful. Get advice from an expert in business if you have any possible doubts. A happy evening with mate depends on your courtesy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You are particularly charitable and charming today and should contact those people who can help you and whom you can help. Social matters can prove most profitable and pleasant. Get to bed at a reasonable hour, though.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you find some new method, you can get your life operating on a much more efficient and profitable basis now. Don't neglect the romantic side of life, which can be very inspiring at this time. Avoid one who is a nuisance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Plan how to please good pals and add to prestige you now enjoy, get more savor out of life. Know what it is you really want in your personal life. Then make good plans to attain it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Ideal day to confer with bigwig about your activities and gain the support and approval you need before you go ahead with them. You can get back into that civic affair you started and finish it satisfactorily. You have the courage of your convictions now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Begin the week properly by planning the trip you have long wanted to take with the aid of an associate. Secure that data you have been procrastinating about getting. A kindlier attitude toward mate is important in p.m.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You can be very efficient at handling obligations today and make a fine impression on higher-ups as well as derive much pleasure from such. Try to please mate in some way. Show a greater willingness to go along with his or her ideas.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those charming young people who likes to cooperate with others and is very sociable.

Even Mice Have A Pill

MENLO PARK, Calif. (UPI) — Zero population growth is in the offering for mice who eat a newly developed "pill" conceived by scientists at Stanford Research Center.

The compound renders male rodents infertile for several weeks after ingestion, causes occasional slight weight loss, but leaves them unchanged in other ways, said Dr. W.A. Skinner.

Skinner, executive director of the insitutte's Life Sciences Divison, and bio-organic chemist Homer H. Tong, developed and patented the new drug.

After ingesting it the male mouse remains fertile for three or four days, then loses his power to procreate. The compound blocks devleopment of a rodent's immature sperm and the furry little pest will remain out of action for about 50 days, Skinner daid.

That's how long it takes a mouse to develop new sperm from the intitial stages of the spermatogenic cycle.

Mice are capable of reproducing every 21 days.

Continuous feeding, through baits or water would wipe out whole colonies of mice. But "the problem of sterilizing permanently is that other animals might ingest it also and you wouldn't want to have them sterilized permanently," Skinner said. "It has a built in safety factor."

Mice have "population explosions" at certain times of the year and the new compound can be used to control them, greatly protecting crops in the field, he said.

Installation Of Traffic Lights Said Completed

The installation of traffic lights at the wreck-plagued intersection of N.C. 11 By-pass and N.C. 102 near Ayden was completed last week, the Highway Commission reported.

J.C. Boyd of the Traffic Services Department here said that installation of lights at the intersection involved about seven days of work, including the removal of two concrete islands that were included in the original highway system.

Boyd explained that the lights are fully actuated by loop protectors with a protected, left turn green light included on N.C. 11 for motorists traveling north and south.

In using the protected left turn signals, Boyd said, traffic in the north and south lanes will be stopped when the left turn light is on. The loop protectors that activate the lights are installed just under the surface and respond to the weight of a vehicle passing over them by transmitting a signal to a control system.

Storage lanes, to prevent holding up straight-through traffic on N.C. 102 have also been included, Boyd said. Under the system, lights will remain green on N.C. 102 until actuated by cars on N.C. 11.

Advance flashers on N.C. 11 are in operation on the right shoulder and also in the median 750 feet in advance of the traffic signals, the official reported. The flashers, which use a yellow light, will warn travelers in both the north and south lanes of the upcoming signals.

Speed limits, it was noted, have been reduced to 50 miles per hour for three-tenths of a mile on each side of N.C. 102 on N.C. 11. Boyd said that the previous limit had been set at 60 miles per hour.

Approval for the installation of the lights was granted after a group residents met recently with representatives of the Highway Commission to discuss the possibilities of taking some action to improve safety at the intersection.

Some 52 collisions have been reported at the intersection since the new four-laned route was opened over a year ago. The most recent crash occurred on July 7 when six persons were injured.

Baggage Cart Service Charge

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — Copenhagen Airport and Scandinavian Airlines System (SAS) have introduced a 30 cent service charge for baggage carts.

An SAS spokesman said passengers had developed the bad habit of dumping the trolleys into their cars along with the luggage and so far this year SAS had lost 120 out of 210 of the baggage carts.

"We hope the new system will stop the pilfering. Only one out of ten passengers uses the trolleys, that is why we decided against including the charge in the ticket price," he said.

Free Festival At The Center

NEW YORK (UPI)—Lincoln Center for the performing Arts sponsors a Community Street Theater Fetival Aug. 17-27, in which street theater groups display their talents for audiences around the Lincoln Center fountain and on the steps of the Julliard School. The festival is open to the public and free.

The Forest of Sorry Red Pines is located on the AuSable River in Iosco County, near Tawas City, Mich. It is the site of the Lumberman's Monument, commenorating Michigan's lumbering days.

Miss Virginia Scales Is Bride

Miss Virginia Moye Scales and Oros Leo Hancock III were united in marriage in a double ring ceremony at 3:00 p.m. Saturday in the First Christian Church.

Officiating in the ceremony were the Rev. M. Dana Hunt, pastor of the bride, and the Rev. Oros Leo Hancock Jr., father of the bridegroom.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Waightstill Morehead Scales Jr. of Greenville and the Rev. and Mrs. Oros Leo Hancock Jr. of Midway.

Mrs. John Marvin Aldridge, of Greenville, organist, and Miss Linda Metz, of Cary, flutist, presented a program of wedding music.

The church was decorated with the traditional green and white. On the Communion table in the center of the background was a brass cross flanked by two single candleholders and pyramidal candelabra holding twenty candles and bouquets of white stock, snapdragons and alba lilies. In the choir loft were spiral candelabra and woodwardia ferns. On either side of the choir loft were fifteen semi-circle candelabra. At the altar was a prie-dieu where the bride and bridegroom knelt for the closing prayer and benediction. Pews were marked with white satin bows and sprays of greenery.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a formal gown of white silk organza and cluny lace. The gown had an empire lace bodice, Victorian neckline, lantern sleeves, fully gathered skirt and detachable cathedral length train trimmed in the cluny lace.

Her headpiece was a bonnet type with matching lace attached to full length cathedral veil of imported silk illusion. The bride carried a formal cascade bouquet of white phalaenopsis orchids, baby's breath and stephanotis with sprays of green English ivy tied with bridal satin.

Miss Margaret Scales, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Ruth Hancock and Miss Donna Hancock, sisters of the bridegroom, from Midway, Miss Margie Worthington of Windsor, Mrs. W.R. Denton of Fayetteville, Miss Jackie Minges, Miss Jane Flanagan, Miss Linda Branch and Miss Brenda Branch, all of Greenville.

The attendants were dressed alike in gowns of turquoise and pink print voile. The gowns had modified empire waistlines, scooped necklines, short sleeves and flared shirt. The shirred bodice was accented by a pink ribbon at the waistline.

The maid of honor carried a nosegay of hot and light pink, fuchsia, purple and lavender miniature carnations and baby's breath tied with purple velvet with long streamers. The bridesmaids bouquets were styled after the honor attendant's.

Oros Leo Hancock Sr., grandfather of the bridegroom, from Charlotte, served as best man. Groomsmen were Frank Hancock, brother of the bridegroom, from Midway, Wayman Hancock, cousin of the bridegroom, from Quakertown, Pa., Waighty Scales, brother of the bride, from Greenville, Bill Griffin of Chapel Hill, Dick Brandon of Lexington, Greg Nifong of Winston-Salem, Jerry McCrain of Raleigh, N.C. and Joe Hinkle of Welcome.

The wedding was under the direction of Mrs. Walter Cox.

Reception

The parents of the bride entertained guests at a reception immediately following the ceremony at the Candlewick Inn. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gaylord Jr., Col. and Mrs. Harry Hagerty and Col. and Mrs. Dean Painter.

Refreshment tables were covered with white satin cloths, garlanded with improved smilax, centered with massive bouquets of summer flowers in a variety of colors flanked with five branched candelabra. On the bride's table was a five tiered wedding cake encircled with smilax with a nosegay of miniature carnations and sweetheart roses with narrow streamers flowing from the top tier. Punch tables, with their white satin cloths, were garlanded with smilax.

Mrs. George Doughty and Miss Anne Doughty of Johnson City, Tenn., served the wedding cake to the guests while Mrs. Cecil Whitehurst of Durham, and Mrs. Richard Gaylord of Richmond, Va., poured punch.

Mrs. Hancock attended St. Mary's Junior College, Raleigh, and her husband attended North Carolina State University. The couple will reside in Jacksonville, Fla., where he will be stationed with the U.S. Navy.

The parents of the bridegroom entertained at a rehearsal dinner for members of the wedding party in the Presidents Room of the Greenville Golf and Country Club on Friday night.

The Hancock-Scales Hancock wedding party, family and out-of-town guests were entertained at a wedding breadfast Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gaylord Jr. Other hosts and hostesses included Mrs. Louis Gaylord, Sr., Col. and Mrs. Harry Hagerty, Col. and Mrs. Dean Painter, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gaylord, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Whitehurst, Mr. and Mrs. George Doughty, Mrs. Walter Hargrove and Mrs. Joseph Scales.

Other pre-nuptial events honoring the bridal couple was a cocktail-buffet Friday night given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Folger Jr.. Hosts and hostesses, were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Webb Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Ficklen, and Mr. and Mrs. James S. Ficklen, Jr.

Following the rehearsal dinner, a dance was given by friends of the bride's family at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

On Friday at noon, Mrs. David Evans, Mrs. David Evans Jr. and Mrs. Bill Brewer honored the bride at a bridesmaid's luncheon.

Mrs. Wooten Is Speaker At Club Picnic Thursday

The Business and Professional Women's Club annual picnic was held Thursday evening at Winday Oaks, home of Mrs. Joyce Jones.

Mrs. Phyllis Wooten, assistant home economics agent for Pitt County, presented the program on "Fall Fashions for the Businesswoman for 1972."

Miss Carolyn Fulghum, chairwoman of the Personal Development Committee, induced the speaker.

"Let's put more emphasis on us, our shapes and sizes. What looks good on the dressed mannequin in the window is not necessarily right for us. Merchants have learned that women buy what they want and are not influenced as much by stylists these days. We have minds of our own.

"Little country prints, lots of embroidery and the layered look are going to be popular. Women should buy separates,otherwise, we'll be dated," she said.

"The peasant look will be strong this winter. The little girl look and the waistline is here to stay, so we'll have to watch our diets still. Heels are slightly smaller and higher this year, so last year's shoes won't do.

"The length is to the knee, but mid-calf is still gaining in popularity. The younger set will be going shorter," added Mrs. Wooten.

In conclusion she said, "Go home and take another look at yourself and then your closet and see if you've been doing yourself justice. Stay together in combinations of prints and color — don't mix designs."

A report on the recent BPW International Convention was given by Mrs. Arlene Mallison.

Mrs. Naomi Edwards, president, presided at the meeting and welcomed approximately 40 members and their guests.

Jay-C-Ettes To Participate In Area Drive

At their August meeting, the Jay-C-Ettes voted to participate in a canister campaign in the area's Cerebral Palsy Drive.

Mrs. Nancy Higdon will be serving as chairman for the project which will begin in September.

Mrs. Arlene Hoot, candy sale co-chairman, reported that the group will be selling caramels this year in their annual candy sale and that the candy is scheduled to arrive Sept. 3. Proceeds are used to aid handicapped persons in Pitt County.

The club voted to assist the Greenville Jaycees at the Carolina Cougars-Kansas City Royals game by selling programs. The game is scheduled for Sept. 27 at Minges Coliseum.

Guests for the meeting, which was held at the Tar River Estates party room, were Mrs. Betsy Hungate and Mrs. Jean Hall.

Clinic volunteers for this month are Mrs. Sheri Carter and Mrs. Sylvia Measemer.

'One House' Would Be Big Problem

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for two years and have a new baby. We get along fine, but suddenly we have a problem. My husband makes very good money and says he will buy us a home on one condition—that his mother [a widow] and his unmarried sister, 33, live with us.

Both his mother and sister are working and are well able to support themselves, and they share a house right now, which they plan to sell so they can live with us.

Abby, I have always gotten along well with my mother in law and my sister in law, too, but I don't want to live in one house with them.

I've tried to explain this to my husband, but he doesn't want to understand. He keeps pointing out the advantages [his mother can baby-sit for us] but I still don't like the idea.

He says before he knew how strongly I felt about this he talked a lot to his mother and sister about the one big house idea, and now if he tells them he's changed his mind, it will cause big trouble. I know if I give in, I'll be sorry.

What do you suggest?

NEEDS ADVICE

DEAR NEEDS: DON'T give in. Tell your husband that you don't mind being the "heavy"—that he can tell his mother and sister that you feel the "one big house" idea won't work out. If it causes trouble, it will be acute and temporary, which is preferable to the endless, chronic problems living together would create.

DEAR ABBY: I have a 5-year-old daughter. My husband has many friends who visit him very often. Don't get me wrong, Abby, they are real nice guys for the most part, but their language is something else! I admit, I swear a little myself, but these men do worse than swear, their talk is downright filthy, and they also tell some pretty lusty stories.

I told my husband I didn't think his friends should talk like that in front of our little girl and he said, "Oh, she'll hear it soon enough anyway." She may, but she's at an age now where she repeats everything she hears, and I don't want her own home to be a bad influence on her. What advice have you for me?

A GOOD MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: If your husband's friends are "nice guys," they should respect a simple request to watch their language in the presence of a 5-year-old. So YOU make that request. And if they aren't as nice as you think they are, keep the child out of hearing range when the men come over.

DEAR ABBY: I am a member of a bridge club and each week we meet at the home of one of the members.

On several occasions I have noticed one woman "peeking" under the china to see what make it was. She examines the silverware very carefully, too. I consider this very nosy.

I am having the meeting next week and I shall have to have this woman in my home. I certainly don't want to buy new china just to make a good impression. So how do I keep this woman from snooping?

NEVER LOOKS

DEAR NEVER: You probably won't be able to. But tell her what your silver and china patterns are before she has a chance to look; that'll settle her hash!

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

Miss Betsy Peel, of 1714 Knollwood Dr., Greenville, has been awarded the gold wings of a flight attendant with Oakland-based World Airways.

A graduate of Rose High School, she graduated from East Carolina University with a degree in primary education. She was also a member of the Alpha Delta Pi sorority and was a member of the ECU Homecoming Court in 1970.

During last summer, Betsy worked at Yellowstone National Park at the Old Faithful Inn. After the season ended she went to South Lake Tahoe in Nevada and worked until this past May when she moved to San Francisco and started stewardess training.

As a stewardess, her recent trips have included flights to Amsterdam, Guam, Alaska, Hawaii and Japan.

As a flight attendant, Betsy will fly on World's jet flights to all parts of the world—Europe, the Orient, Africa, South America and the Caribbean, accompanying large charter groups from throughout the United States.

Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Alfred H. Peele.

The chairman of the Girls Committee for the 46th annual North Carolina Debutante Ball is Mrs. Benjamin Robert Williamson of Raleigh.

Mrs. Williamson is the former Blanche Spencer Robertson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julian Robertson of Salisbury. She was an assistant leader of the 1954 N. C. Debutante Ball. She is a graduate of Saint Mary's College and an active member of the Raleigh Junior League.

Her husband is a vice president of N.C. Equipment Co. They have three children, Robert Jr., 15, Blanche Spencer, 14, and Julian Robertson, 10.

The North Carolina Training Center for Infant-Toddler Care at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro will continue its operations during the coming year under a new grant from the State Department of Social Services.

The grant is for about $100,000 with UNC-G providing another $50,000 to finance the program.

The training center will be operating under a new project director, Mrs. Aurelia C. Mazyck, who served as director of the project's nursery center for the past three years.

The training program provided by the infant-toddler center features workshops focusing on various aspects of group care of infants and toddlers, "study visits" by individuals who want to observe at the center for a brief period and technical assistance to counties and child care facilities as follow-up to the workshops and study-visits.

Engagement Announced

The engagement of Lavonne Hall, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Bennett W. Hall of Washington, is announced to Charles R. Phillips, son of Mrs. Rossie Phillips of Cary, and the late Mr. C.G. Phillips. The wedding will take place Sept. 2.

Miss Jefferson Speaks Vows

Miss Myra Kay Jefferson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Jefferson, became the bride of Jerry Steven Vick, son of Mrs. Willie Vick and the late Mr. Vick of Washington, Saturday at 6:00 p.m., in the First Wesleyan Church.

The Rev. H. A. Lewis officiated at the double ring ceremony. A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. H. A. Lewis, pianist, and Mrs. Wayne Heath, soloist, who sang "More", "One Hand, One Heart" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The church was decorated with a background of bridal palms and seven branch candelabra holding lighted tapers. A massive floor basket of mixed summer flowers centered the altar where the couple knelt for their vows on a gold and white prie-dieu. Family pews were marked with bridal satin.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of organza and sculptured lace etched with seed pearls, with a sweeping train. The organza empire bodice featured a yoke neckline with full length bishop sleeves. Sculptured lace etched with seed pearls encircled the neckline and cuffs of the sleeves, fastened with bridal buttons. An organza full length A-line skirt with a butterfly bow accented the waist back.

Her three tiered veil of illusion was crowned with petals of seeded pearls. She carried a white Bible covered with lily-of-the-valley and centered with a white orchid with satin streamers.

Mrs. Trudy Briley of Winterville was her sister's matron of honor and wore a full length dress of green flowered dotted swiss over taffeta, designed with bell sleeves and an empire waist, accented by green velvet bow and streamers. She wore a matching bow head peice with a veil and carried two long-stemmed yellow roses tied with streamers of green and yellow satin.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Leah Roberson of Chocowinity, and Miss Angela Jefferson of Greenville, also sisters of the bride. They wore yellow dresses and veils styled identical to that of the honor attendant.

The attendants carried a single long stemmed yellow rose with green and yellow satin streamers.

Miss Dorothy Daw of Rt. 1, Bath, was flower girl. Her dress was identical to that of the honor attendant and she carried a miniature white wicker basket tied with ribbons and filled with rose petals.

Larry Vick of Kinston, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Ushers were Gilbert Jefferson of Greenville, brother of the bride, and Donald Vick of Chocowinity, brother of the bridegroom. Jeff Jones of Washington, cousin of the bridegroom was ring bearer.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Jefferson chose a mint green double knit dress featuring full length lace sleeves and white accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a pastel yellow double knit dress fashioned with a matching lace coat and matching accessories. Both mothers wore white mum corsages.

Mrs. Carrie Wynne, grandmother of the bridegroom, was also presented with a white mum corsage.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. H. A. Lewis.

The bride is a graduate of Chicod High School and Pitt Technical Institute and is presently employed at the Greenville Nursing Center as a licensed practical nurse. The bridegroom is a graudate of Chocowinity High School and is presently employed as manager of Smith Brothers Red and White, Williamston.

For a wedding trip to unannounced points, the bride changed into a navy blue and white knit dress with matching accessories and the orchid lifted from her bouquet.

The couple will reside in Williamston.

After-Rehearsal Party

The couple was honored at an after-rehearsal party Friday night given by Mrs. Willie Vick, mother of the bridegroom.

After the couple cut the first traditional piece of wedding cake, Mrs. Carolyn Jones served cake and Mrs. Eileen Jones poured punch.

The appointed table was covered with a white linen cloth with lace trim and centered with an arrangement of white carnations and pom pons.

The bride was presented with a white corsage.

Volunteer Group Fills Many Needs

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Poor people, troubled people, ill people, alcoholics, overburdened mothers and many other people with special problems are among those helped by the organization FISH, which consists of help-thy-neighbor groups manned by volunteers.

The organization which began in England and prides itself on a cloak of anonymity is spreading rapidly in the United States where it was introduced 11 years ago by the Rev. Robert Lee Howell at West Springfield, Mass. The movement also has spread to South Africa and Japan.

Although its symbol, the fish, is an early Christian symbol, and the idea was church-oriented, the organization assists anyone who needs help regardless of religious beliefs or lack of them.

In large cities 80 per cent of the needs might be for emergency welfare. But in small towns where needs are likely to be different —transportation, baby sitting services, emergency cooking —the organization is a loosely run society based on the idea of making help as personal as possible.

Typical of a small town FISH operation is the group operating in Wilton, Conn., for the last five years with more than a hundred men and women volunteers.

"Long term help wouldn't be necessary here anyway," observed Dorothy Wilson, who has been involved since its inception. "But many members become attached to people they assist and they are likely to help for longer periods."

Each volunteer is on duty a 24-hour day each month and responds to telephone calls. In five years there have been only two night calls—both from the police department—a mother had become ill when her husband was out of town, and another was for the stricken husband of an ill woman.

Meals, groceries and transportation are provided. Elderly people are taken to doctors or to see spouses in nursing homes. Snow has been shoveled for the indigent.

One member, Sue Seitz, commented that the group often has been blessed with the coincidence of enlisting a person who can perform unusual services, just before they receive a call for that kind of help.

"For example, just before we had to help a family burned out

Welcome Wagon Club Activities Are Announced

Forthcoming activities were announced at the luncheon meeting of the Welcome Wagon Club of Greenville held Wednesday.

Plans were discussed for a pool party to be held at the Candlewick Inn pool on Saturday evening, Aug. 19. Mrs. Eileen Huber told of an organizational meeting for a bowling league which is scheduled for Sept. 14 at 10 a.m. at Hillcrest Lanes.

She also told of tentative programs for club meetings beginning in the fall.

Mrs. Lisa Kannon, chairman of the Gad-a-Bouts interest group, told of planned visits to the beach for members and their children this month and to be tobacco market next month.

Mrs. Joyce Hastings, club president, welcomed the following guests and new members: Mrs. Fred Hamblen; Mrs. Troy Staton; Mrs. Thomas Edwards; Mrs. Clifford Frelke; Mrs. Eugene Smith; Mrs. Charles Collier, Mrs. James Montalbano; Mrs. David Martin; Mrs. Joseph Romita; and Mrs. John Trotman.

Couple Exchanges Vows In High Noon Ceremony

Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Katharine Tadlock Morton and Victor Nicholas Carnevale Saturday at high noon.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Zenas Morton Jr. of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Reynolds A. Carnevale of Fayetteville.

The Rev. Troy Barret officiated at the double ring ceremony. A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Paul Toll, organist, and Miss Jennifer Taylor of Warrenton, soloist, who sang "Because," "One, Hand, One Heart" and the "Wedding Prayer."

The church was decorated with tall standards of greenery and pyramidal candelabra holding twenty lighted chase candles. On the Communion table were arrangements of white mums and snapdragons. At the altar was a profile priedieu where the bride and bridegroom exchanged vows and knelt for the closing prayer and benediction. Pews were marked with white satin bows and greenery.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an imported organza gown fashioned with a high neckline, empire waistline and full bishop sleeves. The bodice was accented with Venise lace insertion. It had a bibbed front and back beaded with satin ribbon and lace panel front. The back was enchanced with a flowing built-in train of chapel length.

She used a matching lace Camelot headpiece attached to an elbow length illusion veil. The bride carried a cascading bouquet of white butterfly roses and phalaenopsis orchids with white satin streamers and a cattleya orchid in the center.

Miss Jamie White of Greenville was maid of honor. She was dressed in a formal dress of blue organza styled with a high neckline and long full sleeves. The bodice was accented with pin tucks and rows of Venise lace down the front waist and on the cuffs. She wore a matching vow with short veil and carried a nosegay of multicolored daisies and baby's breath tied with matching bows and long streamers.

Bridesmaids were Miss Mary Margaret Morton of Greenville, sister of the bride, Miss Pat Carnevale of Fayetteville, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Linda King of Greenville, Miss Chris Reeves of Fayetteville, and Miss Ellen Johnson of Greensboro. They wore identical styled dressed as the honor attendant in pastel shades with matching headpieces. They carried nosegays designed after that of the honor attendant.

Miss Mary Tad Carson of Bethel, niece of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. Her gown was fashioned after those of the bridesmaids and she carried a nosegay of multicolored daisies and baby's breath.

The flower girl was Miss Ashely Tripp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Tripp, of Greenville. She wore a green gown fashioned after that of the junior bridesmaid and carried a white basket tied with green vows and filled with rose petals.

Clay Carson of Bethel, nephew of the bride, served as acolyte.

The bridegroom's father served as best man. Ushers were Mike Morton, of Richmond, Va., brother of the bride, Tom Carson of Bethel, brother-in-law of the bride, Dr. W.C. Goodwin of Fayetteville, J.L. Tyner, Milford Jones, Donald Gregory, and Billy Myers, all of Goldsboro.

The mother of the bride selected a long dress of pastel blue chiffon over taffeta. It was styled with a high rolled chiffon collar, long shirred bodice with a satin cummerbund enhanced by a rhinestone buckle, blue jewels and long shirred sleeves. She wore matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

The mother of the bridegroom chose a long mint green chiffon over taffeta with long bishop sleeves. It had a tailored neckline and natural waistline shashed by a chiffon cummerbund. Venise lace in a grape pattern adorned the redingote front. She wore matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

For a wedding trip to Nassau and Freeport, the bride changed into a navy dress with matching coat and accessories. She wore an orchid corsage lifted from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will reside in Fayetteville.

The bride graduated from J.H. Rose High School and Wayne Community College, Dental Department. She is now employed in the office of Dr. W.C. Goodwin, Jr. The bridegroom graduated from Goldsboro High School and attended Wayne Community College. He served in Vietnam with the U.S. Army and is now attending Methodist College, Fayetteville.

Reception

The bride's parents entertained at a reception in the church parlor immediately following the ceremony. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. C.E. Baker and Mr. and Mrs. B.B. Sugg Jr.

Dr. and Mrs. George C. Martin presided at the guest register.

The reception table was covered with a white satin cloth. The centerpiece was an arrangement of yellow and white snapdragons and baby's breath designed in a five branch candelabra. Mrs. John S. King poured punch.

The bride's table was covered with a white satin cloth. After the four tiered wedding cake was cut by the bride and bridegroom, Mrs. Gretchen Goodwin and Mrs. Frank Meacham served the cake.

Good-byes were said to Judge and Mrs. J.W.H. Roberts and Dr. and Mrs. Sam T. White II.

Pre-nuptial events honoring Miss Katharine Morton and Victor Carnevale included an informal family breakfast Saturday morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C.E. Baker. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Thomas were assisting host and hostess.

Dr. William C. Goodwin Jr., Mrs. Gretchen Goodwin and Mrs. W.C. Goodwin entertained at an after-rehearsal patio dance for the Carnevale-Morton wedding party at the Brook Valley Country Club.

Dr. and Mrs. R.A. Carnevale entertained members of the wedding party and out-of-town guests at an after-rehearsal dinner party at the Brook Valley Country Club.

Mrs. B.B. Sugg Jr. and Miss Martha Sugg nonored Miss Morton at a bridesmaids luncheon Friday at their home.

Mrs. Harris Is WOTM Speaker On Thursday

Star Recorder Chapter Night was observed by the Women of the Moose Thursday night.

Mrs. Earline Coghill introduced Mrs. James Harris, who received the Star Recorder Degree at the International Convention in June, as the speaker.

"The Star Recorder Degree was established to honor recorders for outstanding work and to have available qualified co-workers to give assistance to chapters when asked or authorized by the Grand Recorder.

"The best advice I can give to aspiring recorders is to read everything from Mooseheart, not only that pertaining to her office but that which pertains to the chapter as well since just one little mistake on her part could keep the chapter from qualifying which is the basis not only for her honors but for the honors of anyone in the chapter," said Mrs. Harris.

Mrs. Harris also told of the requirements for a Star Recorder.

Mrs. Joseph Simonowich, Mrs. Clifford Frelke and Miss Phyllis Mas Lardie were enrolled into the chapter.

Ligon-Plodzik Vows Spoken In Ceremony Saturday

AUSTIN, Tex. — The First Baptist Church here was the scene of the wedding of Miss Jennie Ann Plodzik and John Drew Ligon of Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Walter Plodzik of Austin, Tex., and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stark Ligon of Phoenix, Ariz. The bridegroom is the grandson of Mrs. Raymond Tyson and the late Mr. Tyson.

The bride chose a gown fashioned with an empress bodice of English net styled with a Marchess neckline and galleon sleeves with a skirt of silk organza. Scallops and bouquets of alencon lace patterned the entire gown.

Her mantilla, with matching lace, extended over the dress train. She carried a bridal cluster of lily-of-the-valley, stephanotis, bouvardia and frost roses.

Maid of honor was Miss Mary Ann Middleton of Austin, Tex., and Mrs. Randall Ayers of Houston, Tex., sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Betsy Blocker, Miss Peggy Sandlin and Mrs. Weldon Holden, all of Austin, Tex., and Miss Sarah Davis of Wolfeboro, N.H., cousin of the bride.

The attendants wore floor length dresses of cornflower blue embossed cotton with smocked bodices and lantern sleeves. French ribbon defined the natural waistlines. They carried a melle of flowers in tints of agapanthus, bristol fairey, forget-me-nots and yellow roses.

Robert Blodgett of Austin, Tex., was best man. Ushers were Stark Ligon of Little Rock, Ark., and Ross Ligon of Crockett, Tex., brothers of the bridegroom, Joe Rampy of Odessa, Tex., Dana Curtis of Houston, Tex., and John Mastenbrook of Fort Worth, Tex.

Candlelightr was Grant Ligon of Phoenix, Ariz., brother of the bridegroom.

The bride is a graduate of Westlake High School and will attend the Jackie Nell Executive Secretary school this fall. The bridegroom is a graduate of Odessa High School. He attended Phoenix Junior College and is a senior at the University of Texas, where he as an accounting major.

After a wedding trip to New Orleans, La., the couple will reside in Austin, Tex.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Country Club of Austin.

Byrd Named Associate School Dean

Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, Chancellor of East Carolina University, announced today the appointment of William C. Byrd as Associate Dean of the School of Allied Health and Scoial Professions. Byrd is director of the office of Community Health Services of the school and chariman of the Coordinating Committee for Continuing Education of the division of Health Affiars.

Dr. Edwin W. Monroe, Vice Chancellor for Health Affairs at ECU, praised Byrd for his great contribution to the development of the school.

Byrd joined the faculty in June 1970 as Associate Professor and Director of Continuing Education. He has been instrumental in the development of the Mental Health Training Institute, the Alcoholism Training Project and the Regional Medical Program Project which constitute the Office of Community Health Services.

Dr. Ronald L. Thiele, Dean of the School of Allied Health and Social Professions, stated that Mr. Byrd's duties are vital to the process of making the skills and resources of the school available to the eastern region and the entire state.

Plan Expanding Rapid Transit

SEATTLE (AP) — The experimental Blue Streak rapid transit system here may be expanded.

An $80,000 preliminary project is under way toward setting up a second parking lot to add 1,000 cars to the 500 which daily fill the initial lot created with the year-old experiment.

Also under study is provision of additional special on and off freeway ramps for exclusive use by Blue Streak buses.

Volunteer . .

of their house, we enlisted a volunteer who headed up a Girl Scout troop. The troop was invaluable in helping the family, sorting clothes and so on. A member of Alcoholics Anonymous volunteered her services and shortly thereafter we had our first call from an alcoholic. And one volunteer mentioned she had worked with the mentally retarded. We soon could accommodate a family that needed the "patterning" therapy for their brain-damaged child. Our new member organized 16 volunteers to perform the therapy seven days a week."

Other volunteers often do what comes naturally. Public health nurse Eleanor Kollman says her first assignment was to spend a few nights with an elderly woman whose husband was worried about her being alone while he was in the hospital.

FISH can be a strain on budgets—one volunteer might drive 65 miles in a day or food might be required for eight people and costs are met by the volunteers. Occasionally several workers may share a large food bill. The organization operates on a small budget—a few dollars to the $350 needed for telephone answering service.

A flyer acquaints people with the organization, stating "call me when you need help." Most people applying are not aware of the individuals serving the organization. There are no meetings of members either.

"We'd really like to contact more lonely people who would like to talk to some one once in a while, but people are too embarrassed to ask. They feel they are imposing," observes Mrs. Wilson.

Indian Couple Need A Helping Hand

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Shaikh's fiancee is to arrive from India Aug. 27.

In anticipation of their Aug. 28 wedding date, the East Carolina University student has rented a $40-a-month apartment to be his and Avis's first home. He's not sure, though, where he is going to get such essentials as a range and a refrigerator for the unfurnished apartment.

Shahnawaz K. Shaikh's friends call him by his last name, pronounced Shake, because it's the only one they can say. He is a graduate student in the East Carolina University Department of Biology. A native of India, he plans to be in the United States for three or four more years until he earns his Ph. D. either at N. C. State or UNC at Chapel Hill. He will then go home with a knowledge of his specialty, parisitology, which he says will be of good use to India in her monumental problems with public health and sanitation.

Three or four years seems forever to a fellow who's in love and far from home, so he wrote to his fiancee's parents, asking that she be allowed to come to Greenville to marry him. They agreed and immigration authorities also yielded when Dr. James McDaniel, Shaikh's faculty advisor, agreed to be Avis's sponsor. She will come here on a tourist visa, but steps will be taken immediately once she becomes Shaikh's wife for her status to be changed to that of dependent of one here on a student visa.

Shaikh said he and Dr. McDaniel will meet Avis at Raleigh-Durham Airport Sunday night, Aug. 27. They will obtain their marriage license Monday morning and the wedding will be performed Monday evening.

"I have written to Avis's parents asking them whether they would prefer that we be married at Grace Free Will Baptist Church or St. Paul's Episcopal Church here," he said. "We are both members of the Assembly of God denomination, but since there is no church of this denomination here, these are my two choices. However, according to the custom of my country, I have asked my fiancee's parents to make the decision on the place the marriage will take place. Letters are eight days in going each eay, so I should have an answer this week."

Avis's full name is Avis Phyllis Nathaniel. She was given the English name by an American missionary who dedicated her as an infant. Only about one per cent of all Indians are Christians, but both Shaikh and his fiancee were brought up in the Christian faith and were educated in Christian schools. Shaikh said his father is "in railways," so the family moved from place to place. He graduated from St. Xavier's High School in Bombay, where all his classes were conducted in English. Both he and Avis earned undergraduate degrees from the University of Jabalpur, he in biology and she in philosophy. She has been working on her master's in philosophy there, but is leaving her studies to come here and marry Shaikh.

SHAIKH AND HIS FIANCEE . . .posed for this picture when they announced their engagement about 10 days before he left India to come to ECU to study.

Shaikh explained why he is in such financial straits. "First," he said, "there are strict currency exchange laws in India, so my father is not allowed to send me any money. I brought all that was allowed, $100, when I came here last September. Also my visa and Avis's stipulate that we do no work that will put us in competition with the American labor market. Therefore, we will have to live entirely on my teaching fellowship, and there won't be much of it left after I pay this year's increased out-of-state tuition fees.

"Our apartment is near the University, though, so we won't have any transportation problem. If we can just get the essential furnishing for our apartment — and friends and the Salvation Army have already begun to help — we will be able to live well enough."

Asked if he felt his education in the United States is worth the sacrifice, he said, "Of course, it's worth it. To do what I want to do later on, I have get the knowledge I need to take home. With Avis here, the time will go fast."

(Ed. Note: Anyone having a range or refrigerator or other household furnishing they would like to give the newlyweds may call the East Carolina Biology Department office, 758-6718.)

Coconuts In Hawaii Being Phased Out

HONOLULU (AP) — Coconuts once were a mainstay of the Hawaiian economy. They're still a source of income, but only to those who dispose of them.

"Coconuts in Hawaii are being phased out," says James A.H. Wilder.

He points out that while coconuts are cultivated as a cash crop through much of the South Pacific, the business of pulling coconuts off the trees and disposing of them is an equally large industry.

"The old Hawaiians used to say that coconuts have eyes, so that they can see where they are falling, and they never fall on anyone," Wilder said.

"It's a question of whether you're going to put your faith in a tree or in a law that says that you can be sued if a coconut from your tree falls and injures someone," he added.

Tree trimmers charge $6.50 per tree to remove the ripening coconuts, and that expense recurs every six months. Because they must be removed before they are completely mature, the coconuts have no commercial value.

"We import our coconuts from Fiji and the South Pacific," said Christine Mendonca, operator of a local candy-making company. "We can't use the ones that come from our local tree-trimmers. They are too green."

Ancestors of the old Hawaiians still use the coconuts—particularly for making haupia, a coconut pudding. But for the most part, the fruit goes unused.

Despite the nuisance of disposing of coconuts, plant nurseries still maintain a steady business in transplanting the trees to the sites of new buildings. The going rate is $300 per tree.

Gently-swaying coconut trees still are considered an essential part of any landscaping effort. But their fruit generally ends up in the city dump.

Burglars Enjoy Summer Boom

NEW YORK (AP) — Practically everybody relishes long weekends and lengthy summertime vacations away from home—including burglars.

According to ADT, the nation's leading supplier of electrical protection services to homes, businesses and institutions, the summer months afford the burglar a prime opportunity for attacks against residences.

For an experienced burglar, spotting an apartment or home that has been left temporarily vacant by a vacationing family is usually an easy matter. An accumulation of newspapers or milk bottles at a front or side door is one obvious clue, as are darkened windows during the evening hours, ADT reports.

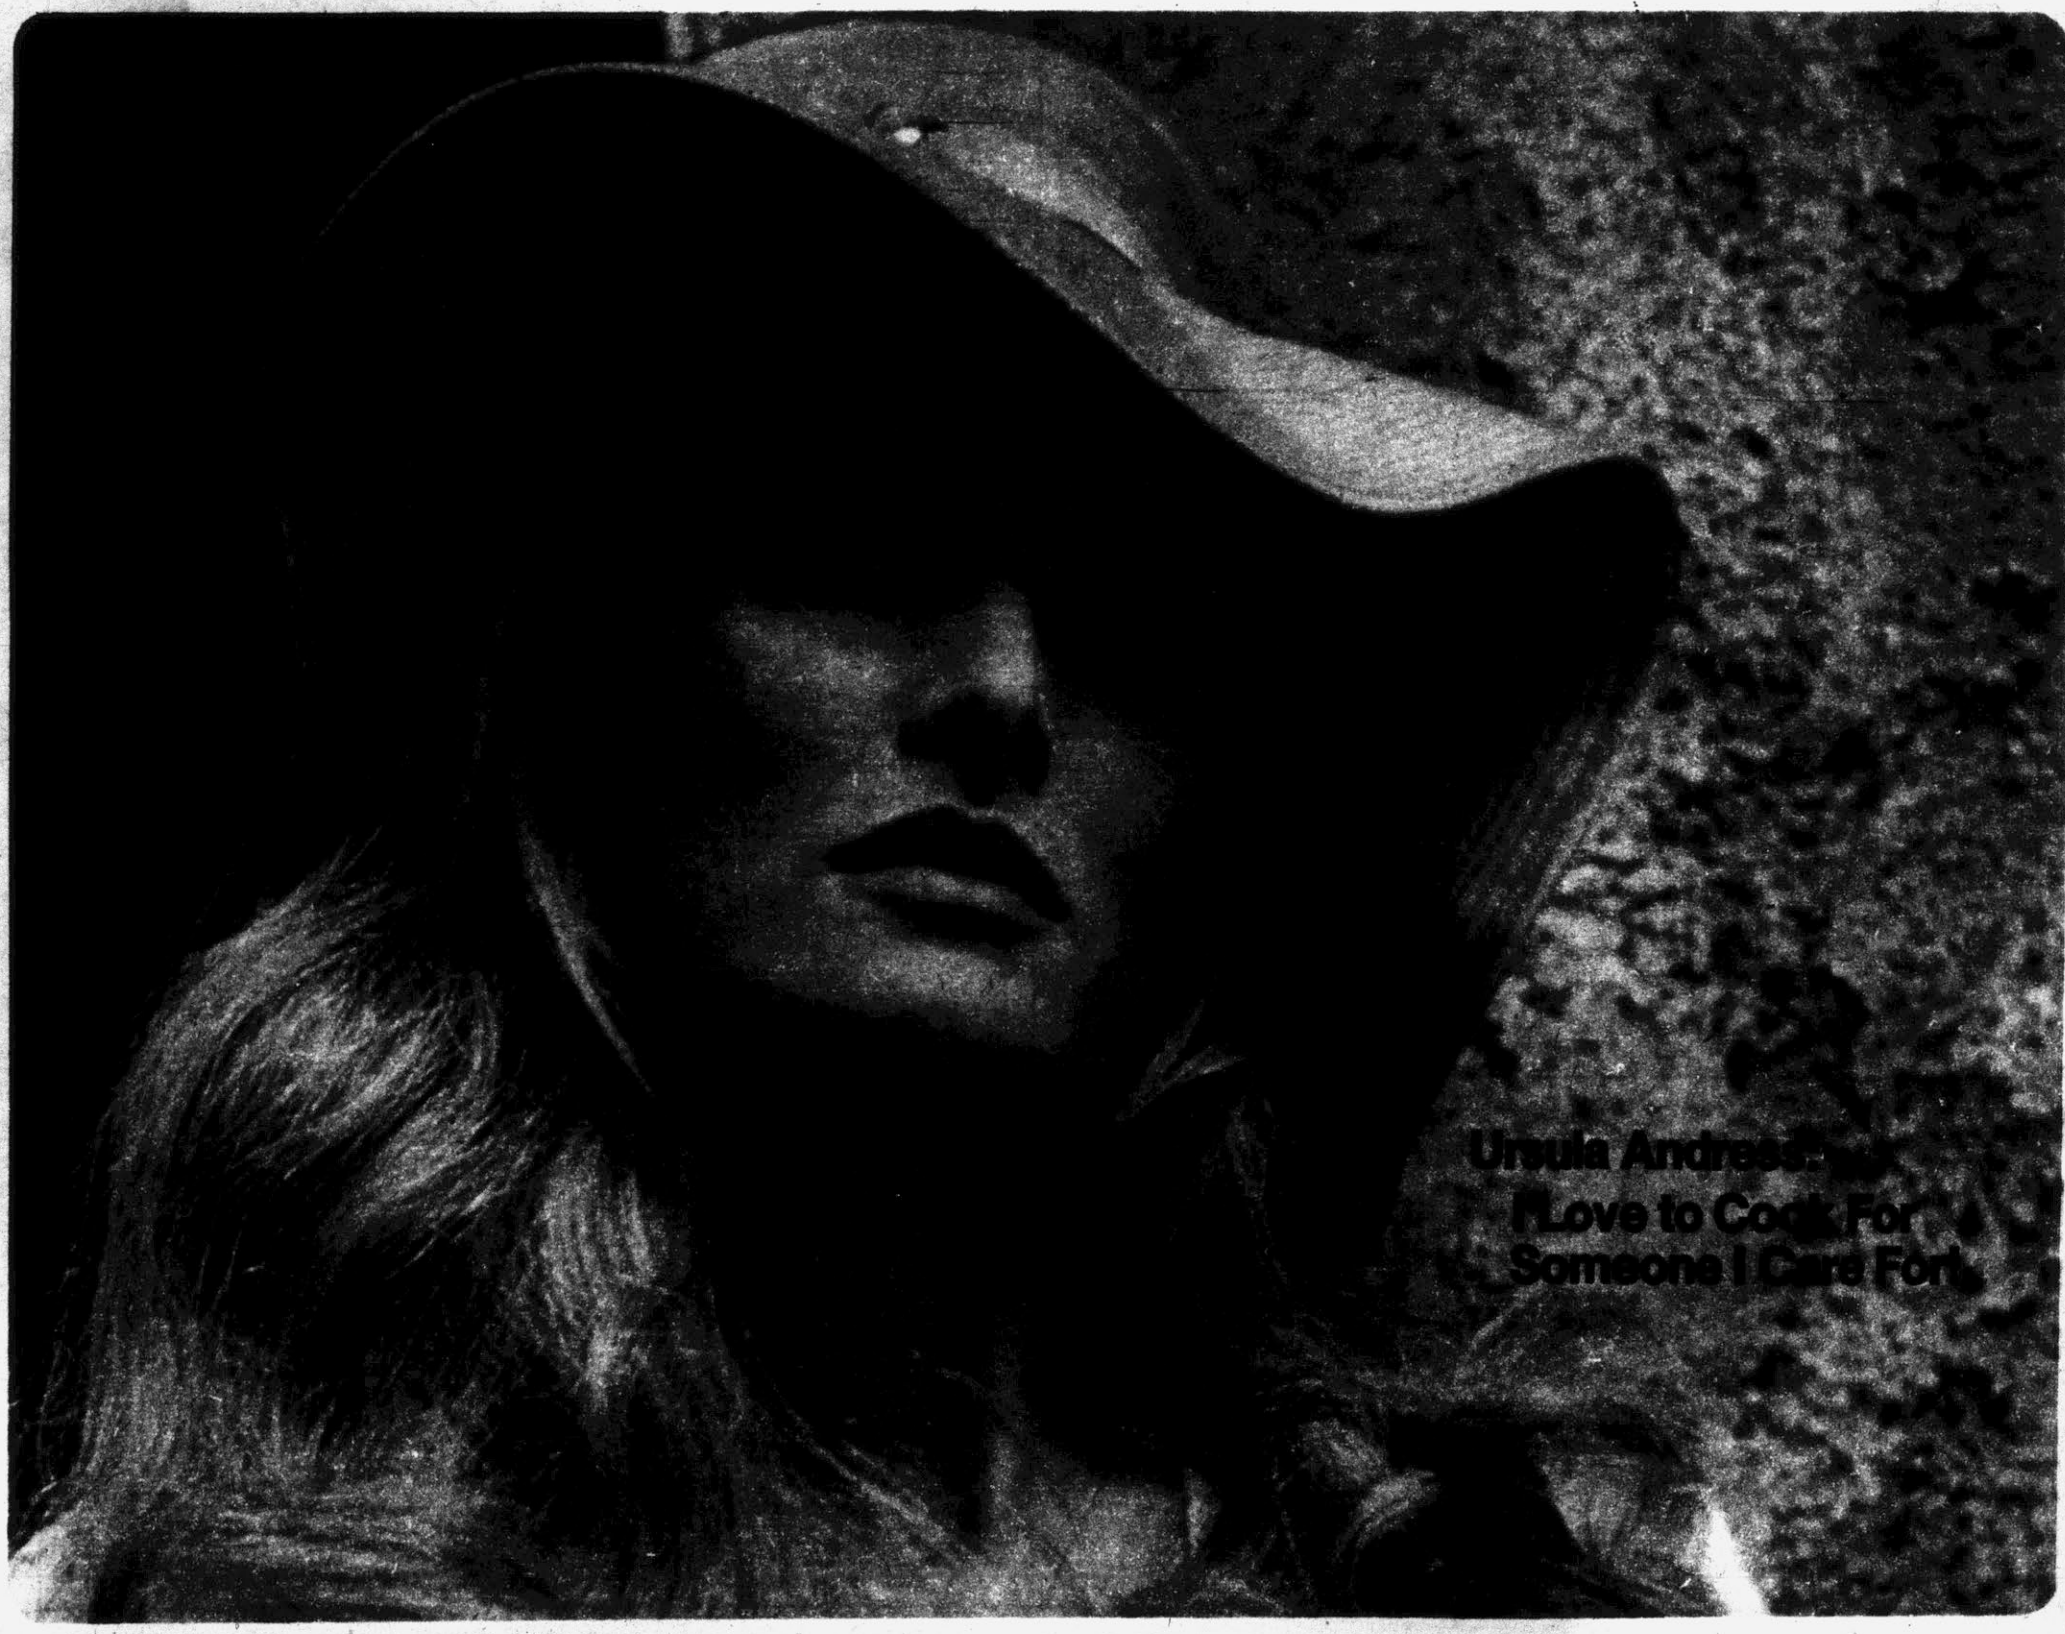
Quiz: If You Like Your Name, Do You Like Yourself?

Fishing Made Easy For Dads Who Don't Fish—Yet!

How Quickly Can Emotional Ills Be Cured?



Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

I always thought George Wallace was ugly, but my girl friend tells me he's very sexy. Can you explain?—J. R., Hayward, Calif.

● A lot of women think of George Wallace as sexy, and there is a good reason. My radio poll of American women showed that very high on their list is a man who knows what he's doing and does it well. Far more important than physical beauty for today's woman is a man's competence, intelligence and self-confidence. But don't forget that every woman is also responding to her own special set of conditioning factors—there may have been a George Wallace kind of person in your girl friend's past, perhaps in her family. There is, however, a feeling of strength in George Wallace, to which many women find it easy to respond.

FOR ENGELBERT HUMPERDINCK

Is it true that when you were a kid, you thought you were funny looking?—L. Carter, Rock Island, Ill.

● True. I thought my nose was too short and my teeth stuck out too far. In my teens, when I went to bed at night, I would constantly pull my nose so it wouldn't look so much like a pug nose, and I buried my face in my pillow so my teeth would get pushed in. I also thought I was too fat and short.

FOR ROGER STAUBACH, Dallas Cowboy quarterback

Do you feel any less a complete quarterback because your coach, Tom Landry, calls the plays?—E. F. Stevens, Ventura, Calif.

● Naturally, every quarterback would like to call his own plays. I'm no different. But we won the Super Bowl with Coach Landry calling the plays, and you can't argue with success. I have the option to change in the defense. I think eventually I'll call all the plays

FOR PAULA PRENTISS

How do you feel when you see your husband, Dick Benjamin, doing a love scene with some woman in the movies? —L. B., Cheyenne, Wyo.

● Jealous. Jealous that she's getting to work with him and I'm not. I'd love to work in a movie with my husband. But when I saw him with Karen Black in "Portnoy's Complaint," I just thought, "My gosh, there they are acting in movies, doing exactly what they wanted to do in college." Karen, Dick and I went to school together at Northwestern.

FOR LUCILLE BALL

I read that Desi, Jr., is going to marry Liza Minnelli, who is seven years older than he. Aren't you concerned? —J. P. C., Little Rock, Ark.

● First of all, Desi is old for his age. He wouldn't like a girl his own age. At least, not until he's over 40, when, like all men, he'll look for a young girl! As for marriage—who says they're going to get married? The kids are just having a ball.

FOR ELLIOTT GOULD, actor

I haven't read anything about you for over a year. What happened to you?—T. N., Manhattan Beach, Calif.

● I've been living in New York and in Malibu. I also went to Europe for ten days. What did I do? Well, I got to know myself, and I overcame a number of inhibitions I used to live with. There were so many things that I felt I couldn't do, and now I know I can do anything I set my mind to. I also lost 30 pounds.

FOR SEN. GEORGE McGOVERN

Since there's such a credibility gap emanating from Washington, wouldn't it be a good idea to change the name of the capital from Washington, D.C., to Washington, Deceit? —J. Lowell, New York, N.Y.

● It might be a good idea to change the name of the capital, but it would be an even better idea to change the name of the President.

FOR DR. H. L. P. RESNICK, chief of the Center for Study of Suicide Prevention

Where does suicide rank as a cause of death?—L. Rogers, Durham, N. C.

● Overall, it ranks eleventh. But remember that there is a ratio of almost ten attempts to one completed suicide. More females attempt suicide, but more males complete the act. When they do, alcoholism plays an important part.

FOR MIKE CONNORS of TV's "Mannix"

Do you do your own stunt work in the rough-action scenes? —Cecelia Vartigian, Watervliet, N.Y.

● I have a stunt man on the long shots, but I handle the close-up action myself. (I don't do as much stunt work as I used to.)

FOR TONY RANDALL

Who was the most overrated actress you ever worked with?—O. L. E., Santa Fe, N. M.

Tony Randall

Ethel Barrymore

● I hate to talk about the dead, but it was Ethel Barrymore. Thirty years ago I played a part in "The Corn Is Green," in which she was the star. Before I started to work, the stage manager gave me a lecture on how to behave around the "first lady." Like never to speak to her unless spoken to first, stand at attention when she approached, to tiptoe and whisper when passing her dressing room.

How Quickly Can Emotional Ills Be Cured?

A controversial new approach to psychotherapy that saves time, saves money, and that does not ask you to describe your childhood.

By Alan D. Haas

If you, or someone you know, has tried to call a psychiatrist's office lately, you already may have some understanding of the problem. The doctor is inevitably busy. His appointments are booked up weeks, sometimes months, in advance. The cost of a visit is outrageous, ranging from $20 to $50 an hour. By the time a patient has a chance to discuss what is troubling him, he may already have spent several hundred dollars. And by the time his problem is solved, he might have spent thousands.

Dr. Harry Garner

The result of all this, as one might predict, is that many people who desperately need psychiatric care, and want it, simply can't afford to have it. They can't afford it financially; they can't afford it in terms of time; they can't afford to find baby-sitters to care for their children while they visit the doctor.

Is the only answer for these people to go without care?

No, says Chicago psychiatrist Dr. Harry Garner, chief of psychiatry and neurology for the Chicago Medical School and Mt. Sinai Hospital. Dr. Garner has developed a new—but still controversial—way to help many troubled people back to normal living, and do it quickly and cheaply.

Dr. Garner's "psychiatric first aid" consists of simply confronting the patient sternly with the problems that are disabling him, prodding him to come up with workable solutions, and making him aware of "the absurdity of his self-image." A session may take as little as ten minutes. There are no long hours spent probing the roots of problems and delving into the patient's early years. No Freudian analysis in which the patient is encouraged to free associate about anything that comes into his mind.

How do Dr. Garner's ten-minute sessions work?

"Unlike conventional therapists," he explains, "we don't encourage patients to feel that the analyst is a God-like person capable of working magic. What we do is apply pressure on the patient to force him to explore and solve his problems. This is called 'confrontation problem-solving.' The key is to face the patient with a prohibitive statement: 'You must never, under any circumstances, do that'; or an expressive or permissive statement: 'It would be better if your husband died'; or an adaptive statement: 'I want you to continue to work at your job.' Then we ask, 'What do you think or feel about what I just told you?'

"By making such statements, we force the patient to see that the status quo is not acceptable, that a solution must be found by continuous searching. The therapist's words make the patient want to end his behavior and seek a new solution."

As an example of how first-aid therapy works, Dr. Garner relates the case of a married woman in her forties who was depressed and suicidal. "She felt hopeless, incompetent, inadequate. She saw herself as a deprived, unfairly treated daughter. Her older brother was a very successful doctor. She felt that her own success was in being an orderly, neat, effective housewife and mother. Her husband had disregarded her desire not to move to Chicago from a Western state, and had also failed to recognize that when she arrived at her new home—a much less roomy house than she was used to—she found it in a state of sad disorder. She reacted to all this with the feeling that her husband loved his business more than he loved her, and that there was nothing worth living for.

"In her first-aid session, I told her: 'Stop believing that you have nothing worth living for.' Then I said, 'What do you think about what I just said?'

"Her immediate reaction was to begin exploring all the reasons why

H. Armstrong Roberts

"In her first-aid session, I told her: 'Stop believing that you have nothing worth living for.' Then I said, 'What do you think about what I just said?' " life was worthwhile. She recognized that her feelings represented a response to a narcissistic hurt that was unwarranted and excessive. She chose to react on the basis of her assets rather than of her wounded pride."

As Dr. Garner explains it, a patient, in his headlong flight from reality, finds himself confronted by the therapist in a way that cuts off his line of retreat. If he still wants to evade reality, he must produce some reasons for wanting to do so. This forces the patient to evaluate his reasons and choose how to behave. These forced evaluations help reduce the patient's anxiety.

Whether Dr. Garner's methods work as well as conventional therapy or not, they at least come to grips with two big problems: (1) the expense of psychiatric treatment (ten-minute sessions are naturally much cheaper than 50-minute ones); and (2) the inability of psychiatrists to handle the swelling number of people who are nowadays seeking help.

One psychiatrist who lauds Dr. Garner's efforts, at least in theory, is Dr. Wilbert Sykes, of the American Foundation of Religion and Psychiatry in New York. "Provided you accept that the technique is essentially superficial, has limitations, and may require much repetition," asserts Dr. Sykes, "you can't quarrel with it. There are some patients who, despite limitations of time and money, need any help they can get."

Freudians, Dr. Sykes points out, might call it "giving a patient chicken soup," while other, more innovative therapists might say, "Well let's try it. What we have is not that good." Anything that seems to work, from a pragmatic standpoint, is certainly worth the effort. Nevertheless, Dr. Sykes feels it should be made clear that many patients would probably not respond to this type of treatment.

One psychiatrist who feels that there might actually be more disadvantages than benefits from Dr. Garner's methods is Dr. Richard Gardner, psychiatrist on the staff of Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons and the William Allison White Institute in New York. "The confrontation technique, which we all use to some degree, enhances the possibility of dependency on the analyst, since the patient is not encouraged to make independent judgments," Dr. Gardner claims.

"There is also the greater chance for error when the analyst does not give the patient time to free associate. Much may lie undiscovered when dealing only with the patient's immediate situation. Underlying motivations remain hidden. Some high-powered patients probably can tolerate a 15-minute session, others might even benefit from it, since they are unable to tolerate longer time periods. But a great many patients would probably feel that they are just getting started when their time is up, and this could lead to resentment of the therapist.

"On the whole," concludes Dr. Gardner, "I would say that the limitations outweigh the advantages. I couldn't endorse it. Yet, I would not say that Dr. Garner may not be helping at least some individuals in some cases."

Don't Let Summer Destroy Your Skin

Look at what summer is doing to your skin! The complexion you've pampered is being ravaged by summer weather and summer fun. You stay out too long in the blazing sun. You swim. You go from sun-baked streets to air-conditioned stores to wind-whipped car rides. You squint to cut down sun glare. You bathe and shower frequently to keep fresh and cool. And all these activities can add up to complexion dryness that accentuates lines and wrinkles.

Your skin becomes parched. Flaky. Decidedly older-looking. No wonder you're troubled about the way you look. But there is no reason to worry. Many youthful-looking women who face the ravages of summer weather have discovered the wonderful secret of Oil of Olay as a beautiful answer to the season's complexion damage. They know that summer skin like yours literally thirsts for Oil of Olay and its soothing ministrations. Oil of Olay quickly penetrates the surface layer of your skin, where the beauty blend can work most effectively. To help soften and smooth sun-and-wind-parched skin. To provide generous amounts of tropical moisturizing oils and natural moisture, needed to replenish the vital fluids that have been stolen by summer. To ease away wrinkle-accenting dryness that makes you look so much older. And to establish a protective barrier to keep your skin's own natural moisture from surrendering to the harsh heat and sudden temperature changes.

Ordinarily, youthful-looking women in countries around the world who care for their skin use Oil of Olay morning and night in a skin-cherishing ritual. But when summer robs extra amounts of youth-giving moisture and oil from your skin, your complexion responds favorably to pampering much more frequently than twice a day.

Lavish on the beauty fluid, available from druggists everywhere in the United States as Oil of Olay moisturizing lotion, as often as your skin signals the need. Whenever summer weather makes your complexion feel dry or tight or rough to the touch, nature is asking for and needs all the help it can get from soothing Oil of Olay.

No matter how often you use the beautifying blend during the day, however, don't neglect applying it generously to your face and throat before bedtime, so that it can do its good work during the quiet hours of sleep. And then, of course, first thing in the morning, to face the day beautifully. Oil of Olay penetrates so quickly that it leaves no greasy film, making it an ideal makeup base. Your cosmetics never streak or change color. And, if you let your face go bare of makeup in the summer, Oil of Olay imparts a lovely dewy glow as it protects and cherishes your complexion, day and night.

Summer Beauty Hints

Whenever you come in from the summer sun and heat, apply generous amounts of Oil of Olay on any areas that have been exposed to the skin-drying elements. People Quiz

Does Your Name Really Suit Your Personality?

True or False: The most popular children have the most popular names. (See number 4.)

By John E. Gibson

A name is to a person what a label is to a package. Hopefully, ideally, it gives an intimation of what's inside. Sometimes – with people as with packages – it does, and sometimes it doesn't. Whether you're one of the lucky people whose name fits you, or whether you're one of those who have always wished they'd been called something else, you'll have fun taking this True or False quiz.

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. The happier a person is with his name, the happier he is with himself.
2. Men prefer first names that show individuality and are "a cut above the ordinary."
3. Most people name their children after Uncle Whozis or Aunt What's-her-name.
4. The most popular children have the most popular names.
5. Many people never address their in-laws by name—even though they may live in the same house and face each other over the breakfast table every morning.

ANSWERS

1. True. If you're happy with your name, it's an indication that you approve of the kind of person you are, and are on good terms with yourself. People who dislike their names tend to express general dissatisfaction with themselves. In a university study, students who liked their names and those who didn't were interviewed by psychologists and given personality tests. Students who disliked their names gave themselves significantly lower self-ratings than the others, evidencing appreciably less self-esteem.
2. False. Surveys indicate that most men vastly prefer the more common names. Not so with women, however – they show a preference for names that stand out as being distinctive and uncommon, names that have a pleasing sound and suggest that the girl is someone special.
3. True—as indicated by the findings of a University of Chicago study, which surveyed a sample of 347 urban middle-class mothers and their 951 children. The majority of the children were named for some relative. This practice was found to be even more prevalent with boys than girls—and some extremely odd-ball names are inherited in this fashion. Indeed, the offspring who has a rich uncle with a name you wouldn't want to be caught dead with, runs the risk of being saddled with it for life.
4. True—according to the findings of a University of Miami study that polled schoolchildren on the degree to which they liked or disliked their classmates. After an interval of 30 days, the boys and girls were again polled on the degree of like or dislike for each of 49 different first names, which occurred among the children. Findings: The most popular children had the most popular names. There was a marked tendency for children with bizarre or unusual names to be regarded as "different" or "peculiar."
5. True. Studies show that many people are in something of a quandary as to what to call their helpmate's mother or father. One form of address may seem too formal, and another may suggest more affection than they are inclined to feel. It's not that they don't want to acknowledge them as human beings exactly. It's that they feel more comfortable keeping them at arm's length – name-wise at least. Since they can't think of anything to call them, they evade the issue by not calling them anything.

The sun's shone on many a carefully tended green garden row this summer. Some morning this month, why not pick some of the produce while the dew is still on it, and start the kitchen aglow with the simmering aromas of spice laced with vinegar? After all, preserving isn't a chore; it's a happy, rewarding experience!

Home canning can be a rewarding and enjoyable experience if one follows the basic rules of standard canning procedures. It is a good idea to go over these rules before starting your preserving this year.

Check over your canning jars and fittings. The sealing edges of jars should not be nicked, cracked or chipped. The sealing compound on the dome lids should be in good condition, if you are using this type of jar. It is a good idea to buy new dome lids every year. The jar bands may be used over if they are in good condition.

Check your steam-pressure and water-bath canners to be sure they are in perfect working order. In our recipes we have used the open-kettle method for the Elegant Peach Marmalade. It contains a lot of sugar, is made with liquid pectin and can be safely preserved this way. Each hot, sterilized jar is quickly filled and sealed before another one is filled.

The remaining recipes we have given use the water-bath method. A water-bath canner is a large kettle with a cover and a rack or metal basket to keep the jars from resting on the bottom. The kettle must also be deep enough so that the water will cover the tops of the jars for one or two inches without boiling over.

The water-bath method is a way of processing foods at a temperature of 212°F. This method is recommended for high-acid fruits, tomatoes and pickled vegetables.

In warm climates, or if storage conditions are poor, butters, conserves, jams and preserves should be processed at simmering (180°-185°F.) temperature for 10-12 minutes in a water-bath canner.

Before starting to can it is important to wash all fruits and vegetables thoroughly. Discard any that are not perfect. You will not get a quality finished product if you don't use quality produce when you start out.

Follow directions exactly for each step of the canning process. That includes time and temperature directions.

In our directions we have used canning jars with dome lids and separate bands. After food has been processed, let it cool 12 hours. If the dome (center of lid) is down, or stays down when pressed, the jar is properly sealed. Store jars without bands in a cool, dark, dry area. The cooler the storage space, the better your home-canned foods will keep.

If jars are improperly sealed, store in refrigerator. Or, if the recipe permits, reprocess, following all sterilizing, filling and processing steps.

We have not used the steam-pressure method, as we have given recipes for pickles and preserves that use either vinegar or sugar or both. In canning low-acid foods such as beans, corn and meats, the steam-pressure method of a pressure cooker is necessary, as this is the only kitchen utensil that supplies enough heat to destroy the spores of bacteria that cause flat-sour, botulism and other types of spoilage.

QUICK SWEET-DILL STICKS

- 1 jar (2 qts.) 3-4-inch high-quality fresh-pack dill pickles, drained
- 2 cloves garlic
- 1 teaspoon dill seed
- 1½ tablespoons mixed pickling spices
- 4 cups granulated sugar
- 1 cup light-brown sugar, packed
- 2½ cups cider vinegar

1. Cut pickles into quarters lengthwise, place in large bowl. Tie garlic, dill seed and pickling spices in piece of thin cloth.
2. In medium saucepan combine 2 cups granulated sugar, ½ cup light-brown sugar, vinegar and spice bag. Bring to boiling, reduce heat and simmer uncovered 10 minutes. Cool.
3. Pour syrup with spice bag over dill-pickle sticks. Let stand several hours or overnight.
4. Put dill-pickle sticks in hot sterilized jars. Leave ½ inch head space. Add remaining sugars to syrup and bring to boil. Remove spice bag and pour the syrup over pickles. Syrup should cover pickles ¼ inch.
5. Wipe tops and threads of jars with clean, damp cloth.
6. Follow steps 6-8 as in All-Seasons Corn Relish, below.

Makes 4 pints

If you buy the miracle pound you can spread 36 extra slices of bread.

With Miracle Brand Margarine you get 36 extra pats in every pound. Two more sticks than you get in a regular margarine. And every stick spreads smoother, too... because it's whipped. The miracle pound. From Kraft!

ALL-SEASONS CORN RELISH

- 6½ cups whole-kernel corn, yellow or white shoe-peg, or 4 cans (12-oz. size) corn, drained
- 1½ cups chopped celery
- 1 cup chopped green pepper
- 1 cup chopped white onion
- 1 jar or can (4 ozs.) pimiento, drained and chopped
- 2 teaspoons celery seed
- 2 teaspoons mustard seed
- ½ teaspoon crushed red pepper
- 2 teaspoons pure salt
- 1 large clove garlic
- 2 cups quality white vinegar
- 1¼ cups sugar
- 1½ tablespoons ground mustard
- 3½ tablespoons flour
- ¾ cup water

1. Put corn, celery, green pepper, onion, pimiento, celery seed, mustard seed, crushed red pepper, salt, garlic and vinegar in 6-qt. kettle or Dutch oven. Bring to a boil, stirring, then let boil 5 minutes, uncovered.
2. In 1-qt. saucepan blend sugar, mustard and flour, then slowly add ¾ cup water. Heat to boiling over moderate heat, stirring constantly. Stir into corn mixture.
3. Bring corn mixture to boiling and cook, stirring now and then, until celery, green pepper and onion are tender.
4. If mixture becomes too thick, add 2 or 3 tablespoons hot water or vinegar. Mixture should be moist, but not soupy. Taste for seasoning; add sugar, salt or vinegar if necessary.
5. Ladle boiling-hot relish to ⅛ inch of top of hot sterilized jars; wipe off anything spilled on tops or threads of jars with clean, damp cloth.
6. Put sterilized lids on jars, screw sterilized bands tight. As each jar is filled, stand it on rack in a canner full of hot, not boiling, water. Water should cover jars 1-2 inches.
7. Put cover on canner, bring water to a boil, process jars in boiling-water bath 15 minutes.
8. Remove jars from canner. Let cool for about 12 hours. Remove bands, test for seal. Label. Store without bands in cool place. Makes 4-5 pints

TO STERILIZE JARS

1. Check sealing surfaces of jars for nicks, cracks and sharp edges. Wash jars in hot soapy water. Rinse. Wash and rinse lids and bands.
2. Sterilize jars: Place jars in a very large kettle, cover them with hot water and put kettle on to heat. Bring water to a boil and boil jars for 10 minutes. Boil new dome lids and bands 5 minutes. Allow lids and bands to remain in hot water until ready to use.
3. Just before you are ready to use them, remove the jars, lids and bands from the hot water and let them drain briefly on a clean cloth.

CHICKEN 'N' RICE CAMP-STYLE

Make four 14-inch squares of double-thickness heavy-duty foil. Lightly oil 1 side. Place a chicken breast (¼-lb. each) on each oiled square. Or use chicken leg (approximately ¼-lb. each). Combine 1 can (10½ ozs.) cream of mushroom soup, undiluted, with 1 cup instant rice and ½ teaspoon thyme. Spoon rice mixture over the chicken breasts. Seal the packets with double folds. Place on grill 4 inches from hot gray coals. Cook about 40 minutes, or until done, turning once.

Makes 4 servings

ELEGANT PEACH MARMALADE

- 1 navel orange
- 2 lemons
- 1 cup water
- 2 lbs. ripe peaches
- ¼ cup chopped maraschino cherries, optional
- 7 cups sugar
- ½ of 6-oz. bottle liquid fruit pectin

1. Cut orange and 1 lemon in quarters, remove seeds. Grind, chop fine or blend in blender. Turn into 2-qt. saucepan.
2. Squeeze juice from second lemon. Measure 2 tablespoons into saucepan with the blended fruit. Add 1 cup water and simmer, covered, 20 minutes.
3. Peel and pit peaches. Chop very fine. Combine cooked citrus, peaches and cherries. Measure 4½ cups into a 6-qt. kettle or Dutch oven.
4. Stir in sugar. Place over high heat; bring to a roiling boil (a high boil that cannot be stirred down) and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly.
5. Remove from heat; stir in ½ bottle liquid fruit pectin. Skim off foam with metal spoon.
6. Stir and skim for 7 minutes, to cool slightly and prevent floating fruit.
7. Ladle into hot sterilized jars, filling jars to ⅛ inch from top. Wipe tops and threads of jars with clean, damp cloth.
8. Put sterilized lids on. Screw sterilized bands on tight. Invert jars for a few seconds, so hot marmalade can destroy mold or yeast that may have settled on lids. Then stand upright to cool.
9. When jars are cold, test for seal. Label. Store in cool, dry place. If seal is not tight, store in refrigerator. Makes 4 pints Zucchini and onions combine in this delicious recipe for Zucchini Pickles, reminiscent of an old-time recipe.

ZUCCHINI PICKLES

- 1 qt. quality white vinegar
- 2 cups sugar
- ¼ cup pure salt
- ¼ teaspoon crushed red pepper
- 2 teaspoons celery seed
- 2 teaspoons ground turmeric
- 1 teaspoon ground mustard
- 5 lbs. (5-6 inches) zucchini, unpeeled, cut into ¼-inch slices
- 1 qt. thinly sliced onions

1. Combine vinegar, sugar, salt, red pepper, celery seed, turmeric, mustard in 2-qt. saucepan. Bring to boil; stir till sugar dissolves.
2. Place zucchini and onions in 6-qt. Dutch oven, pour vinegar mixture over. Let stand 1 hour, stirring occasionally.
3. Bring zucchini-onion-vinegar combination to boiling, reduce heat and simmer 3 minutes. Stir occasionally.
4. Continue simmering while quickly packing one hot sterilized jar at a time. Fill to within ⅛ inch of top, making sure vinegar solution covers vegetables.
5. Wipe off anything spilled on tops or threads of jars.
6. Follow steps 6-8 as in All-Seasons Corn Relish, opposite. If, after testing for seal in step 8, the seal is not tight, open and empty jar. Resterilize jar, lid and band; boil contents, refill and reprocess. Makes 6-7 pints

Easy Summer Supper

A cool main course salad you make in minutes using SPAM, B in B Mushrooms, Kellogg's Croutettes, and dressing made with ReaLemon Reconstituted Lemon Juice.

- 2 quarts salad greens, torn into bite-size pieces (or medium-size head lettuce)
- 2 cups KELLOGG'S® CROUTETTES® Stuffing Herb Seasoned Croutons
- 2 (3-oz.) cans B in B® CHOPPED MUSHROOMS
- 3 tomatoes, peeled and cut in wedges
- 1 (12-oz.) can SPAM®, cut in julienne strips

EASY SUMMER DRESSING

- 1 cup salad or olive oil
- ½ cup REALEMON® Reconstituted Lemon Juice
- 1 clove garlic, pressed
- 2 teaspoons Italian seasoning
- ¼ cup butter broth from mushrooms

Place greens in large salad bowl. Add B in B Mushrooms, tomato wedges, SPAM strips and Croutettes. Combine oil, ReaLemon Reconstituted Lemon Juice, garlic, butter broth and Italian seasoning in a jar. Salt and pepper to taste. Cover jar and shake well. Makes 1¾ cups dressing. Pour over salad; toss lightly. Serve immediately in chilled salad bowls. Yield: 4 to 6 servings

Ursula Andress: "American Dining Is Wonderful... Especially When the Food Is Mexican!"

"The presentation of food is so important: how it's served on the plate. You have such beautiful napkins and place settings in America! A table looks so gay with flowers, napkins and the coloring all around."

By Ursula Andress
as told to Helen Dorsey

I adore good food! I really do! I don't mind being called a hedonist because to me that is someone who loves the best things in life: good food, beautiful paintings, wonderful antiques and good music. Perhaps I should have lived in another century. I'm very romantic and sentimental.

I always love to eat the food in the country where I travel. American food is fabulous: New York – steak, mashed potatoes with lots of butter and sour cream inside, or sweet potatoes, corn muffins, pork roast and turkey! I love all the basic American foods, but I prefer the simpler foods the most. What I'm really mad about and can't get in Europe is Mexican food. So whenever I come to America, I just wait for Mexican food: tacos, tamales, chilies rellenos, enchiladas, either beef or chicken. And most of all, guacamole! I acquired my taste for Mexican food when I lived in California.

The presentation of food is so important: how it's served on the plate. You have such beautiful napkins and place settings in America! A table looks so gay with flowers, napkins and the coloring all around.

I love to cook for someone I care for, but I couldn't cook every day. I also like someone to cook for me, too. I like to entertain in small groups because I love to be with people you know you can talk to. I can cook anything from goulash to pasta with beautiful sauces, especially Bolognese, made with fresh herbs and fresh tomatoes.

My kitchen in my new house on Ibiza [a tiny island off the coast of Spain] is so beautiful! The refrigerator and the stove just went out, and both are brand new. The generator burned them out. But the kitchen still looks gorgeous! It's all-white, with Mediterranean-blue tiles on the floor and counters.

The meat on Ibiza is not too good, but the lamb is fantastic. Though it really hurts me, because you see the lambs every day in front of you alive and wandering all over the place. The chickens are fresh from the farmers, and every day the fisherman brings the freshly caught fish into your house.

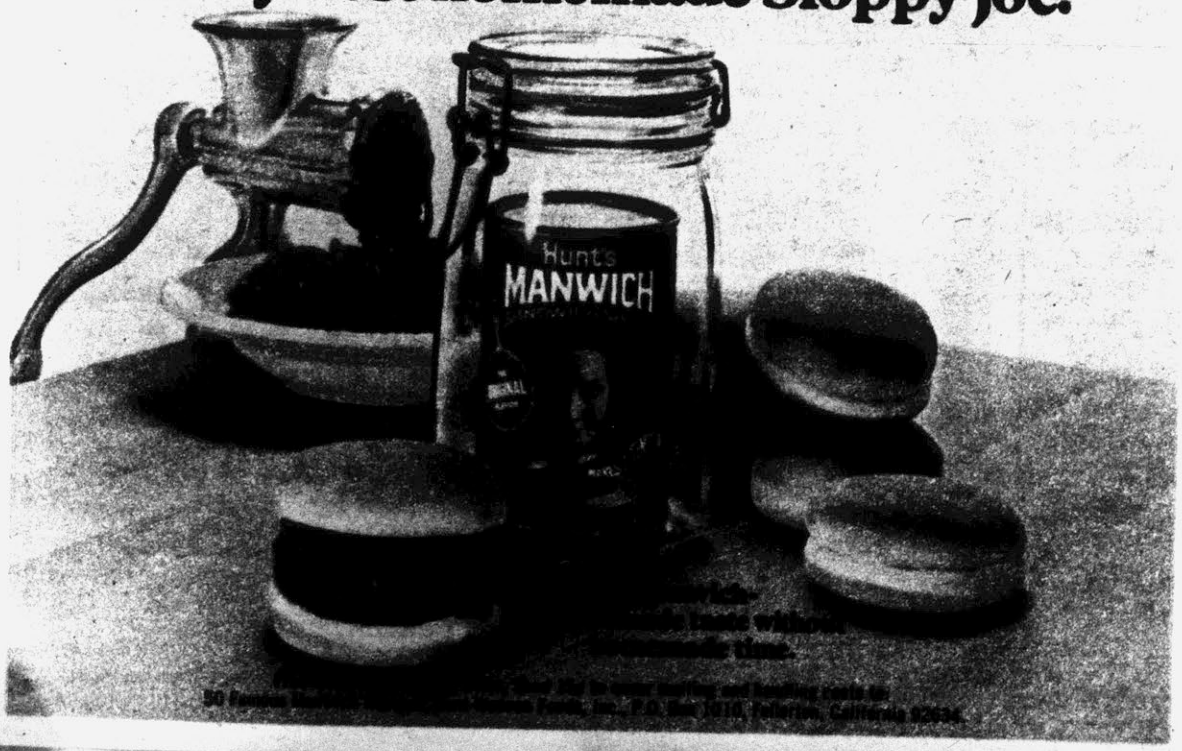
I spend a lot of time in the house on Ibiza because it's still being built and there's something going wrong every day. But I love that kitchen with all its copper pans everywhere.

The house is mostly for my family. My father's going to live there, and my sisters and my brother come down often to vacation. We're always cooking indoors or outdoors, whatever you want!

Chester Maydole

Ursula, whose latest movie is "Red Sun," presently lives on the island of Ibiza. Most of the island's meats get a poor rating, she feels – except for the lamb.

"MANWICH-the secret ingredient in my best homemade Sloppy Joe."



URSULA'S GUACAMOLE CON TOMATE
(Avocado Dip with Tomatoes)

- 4 fully ripe California avocados
- ½ cup mayonnaise
- ¼ cup minced onion
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 2 teaspoons chili powder
- 1 teaspoon garlic powder
- ½ teaspoon Tabasco
- 3 tablespoons lemon juice
- 2 medium tomatoes, peeled and chopped

1. Halve avocados lengthwise, twisting gently to separate halves. Lift pit out gently with fork. Peel avocado halves; then mash the meat (or blend a few seconds in electric blender).
2. Mix with mayonnaise, onion, seasonings and lemon juice. Chill thoroughly. Garnish with tomato. Makes 12 servings

BEEF TACOS

- 2 pkgs. (13½-oz. size) frozen heat-and-serve beef tacos
- 2 fully ripe California avocados
- 1 small head iceberg lettuce, shredded
- Additional lettuce for garnish

1. Prepare beef tacos according to the package directions for crisp tacos.

Three of Ursula's favorite dishes: guacamole, beef tacos and pork-and-bean pot.

2. Meanwhile, halve and peel avocados as directed in recipe for guacamole. Place peeled avocado halves cavity-side down and cut into fairly thick slices.

3. To serve: Open hot beef tacos gently and fill with the avocado slices and shredded lettuce. Arrange on platter and garnish with lettuce.

Makes 4-6 servings

PORK-AND-BEAN POT

3 cans (1-lb. size) pork and beans with tomato sauce

1. Add to taste: dark-brown sugar or molasses, lemon juice and good spicy catsup.

2. Place in heavy covered pot in preheated 250°F. oven for 1 hour. Garnish with crumbled bacon. Makes 6 servings

BEEF ENCHILADAS

2 large tomatoes, peeled and chopped
Dash of sugar
Small clove garlic, pressed
¼ cup shortening
1¼ teaspoons salt
Freshly ground black pepper to taste
12 tortillas, fresh, frozen or canned
1 large onion, minced
1 lb. ground lean beef chuck, cooked and crumbly
¼ cup grated mild cheese
Oregano to taste
Lettuce wedges
Tomato slices

1. Combine tomatoes, sugar, garlic; sauté over low flame in 2 tablespoons shortening for 5 minutes. Add salt, pepper.

2. In separate skillet, sauté tortillas in the remaining shortening (add more shortening if you need it), turning tacos to brown on both sides.

3. Drain; place about 1½ teaspoons tomato mixture in center of each tortilla with some minced onion and meat.

4. Roll each tortilla up, jelly-roll fashion; place in greased baking dish.

5. Top with grated cheese, oregano; place in hot oven to melt cheese. Serve with lettuce wedges and tomato slices.

Makes 12 servings

URSULA'S SPAGHETTI WITH BOLOGNESE SAUCE

2 tablespoons butter
¼ cup finely minced onion
½ lb. boneless sirloin, cut in ½-inch cubes
½ lb. mushrooms, peeled and chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
1 ripe tomato, peeled, diced
¼ cup sherry or cognac
Brown sauce (recipe below)
Salt
Freshly ground black pepper to taste
3 qts. boiling water
8 ozs. spaghetti or other pasta of your choosing
Grated Parmesan cheese

1. Melt butter in large saucepan over low heat; add onion, sauté 5 minutes. Add beef, brown well. Add mushrooms, garlic, tomato, sherry and brown sauce, mixing well.

2. Cook over low heat 35 minutes, or until meat is tender, stirring occasionally. Add salt, pepper to taste,

3. Meanwhile bring water to roiling boil, add 1 tablespoon salt; gradually add spaghetti so that water continues to boil. Cook spaghetti uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander.

4. Serve immediately with hot Bolognese sauce. If desired, sprinkle liberally with freshly grated Parmesan cheese.

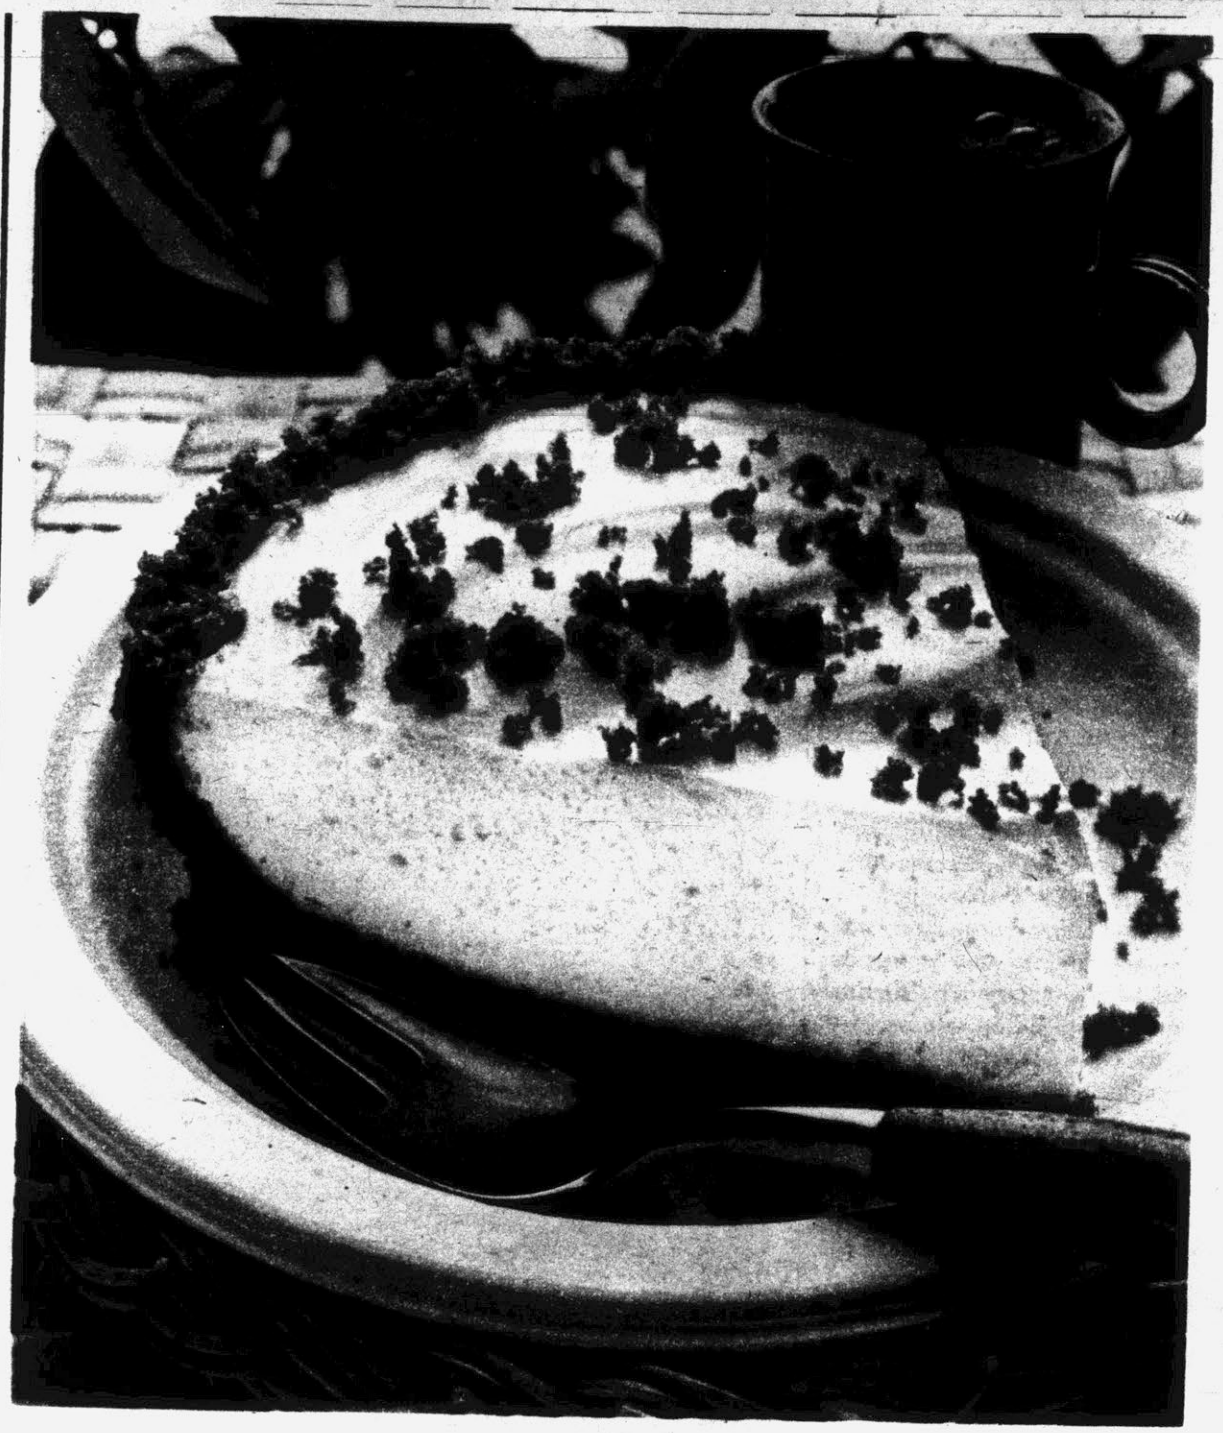
BROWN SAUCE

¼ cup butter
2 tablespoons minced white onion
2 tablespoons chopped carrots
1 tablespoon chopped celery leaves
4 sprigs parsley
Few leaves fresh thyme, cut up
¼ cup all-purpose flour
2 cups beef stock or bouillon

1. Melt butter in saucepan over low heat; add minced onion, carrots, celery leaves, parsley and thyme. Cook 5 minutes; add flour, blend.

2. Gradually add beef stock and continue cooking over low heat until thickened, stirring constantly.

3. Strain brown sauce through fine sieve.



Lemon Breeze

A breeze to make: No baking. Creamy, crunchy and cool. Here's the easy way:

¼ cup sugar
⅓ cup regular margarine or butter
½ teaspoon cinnamon (optional)
1 cup Kellogg's® Corn Flake Crumbs

* * * * * *

½ cup bottled lemon juice
1½ tsp. unflavored gelatin
2 eggs, separated
3 tablespoons sugar
1 can Borden Eagle® Brand Sweetened Condensed Milk (not evaporated milk)

1. Measure the ¼ cup sugar, margarine and cinnamon into small saucepan. Cook over medium heat until mixture begins to bubble, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Add Corn Flake Crumbs; mix well. Reserve 2 tablespoons for topping. With back of tablespoon press Crumbs mixture evenly and firmly in bottom and around sides of 9-inch pie pan to form crust. Chill.

2. In small saucepan, combine lemon juice and gelatin. Place over low heat and stir until gelatin is dissolved; cool.

3. In mixing bowl, beat egg whites until foamy; gradually add the 3 tablespoons sugar. Beat until stiff and glossy. Set aside.

4. Beat egg yolks in mixing bowl until thick and lemon colored. Stir in Sweetened Condensed Milk and gelatin mixture. Gently fold in egg white mixture. Spread evenly in Corn Flake Crumbs crust. Sprinkle top with reserved Crumbs. Refrigerate 2 hours or until firm. Cut into wedges. Yield: 8 servings.

Summer's Garden To Winter's Table

TOMATO MARMALADE

- 5 cups (1½ lbs.) ¼-½-inch pieces firm, red peeled tomatoes
- 1 large navel orange
- Juice of 1 lemon or lime
- 3½ cups sugar
- ½ teaspoon pure salt
- ½ teaspoon ground ginger
- ½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 1 stick cinnamon

1. Wash, scald, peel and chop tomatoes into ¼-½-inch pieces before measuring.
2. Slice orange into very thin slices. Cut slices into fourths.
3. Combine tomatoes and orange in 6-qt. kettle or Dutch oven. Cook over low heat until tomato juice runs freely; then increase heat and boil, uncovered, until orange peel is fork-tender. Takes 8-10 minutes.
4. Add lemon juice, sugar, salt, ginger, nutmeg and cinnamon stick and boil rapidly, stirring often, until liquid spreads very little when spoonful of hot marmalade is dropped onto a chilled saucer.
5. Begin testing after mixture has boiled 15 minutes. Do not overcook; 15-17 minutes should do it.
6. Quickly skim off foam and ladle boiling-hot marmalade to ⅛ inch of top of hot sterilized jars. Wipe off anything spilled on tops or threads of jars.
7. Put sterilized dome lids on jars; screw sterilized bands tight. As each jar is filled, stand it on rack in canner of hot, not boiling, water. Water should cover jars 1-2 inches.
8. Put cover on canner, bring water to a boil. Reduce heat and process jars 10 minutes in simmering (180°F. to 185°F.) water bath.
9. Remove jars from canner. Let cool for about 12 hours. Remove bands. Test for seal. Label. Store without bands in cool place.

Makes 2 pints or four ½ pints

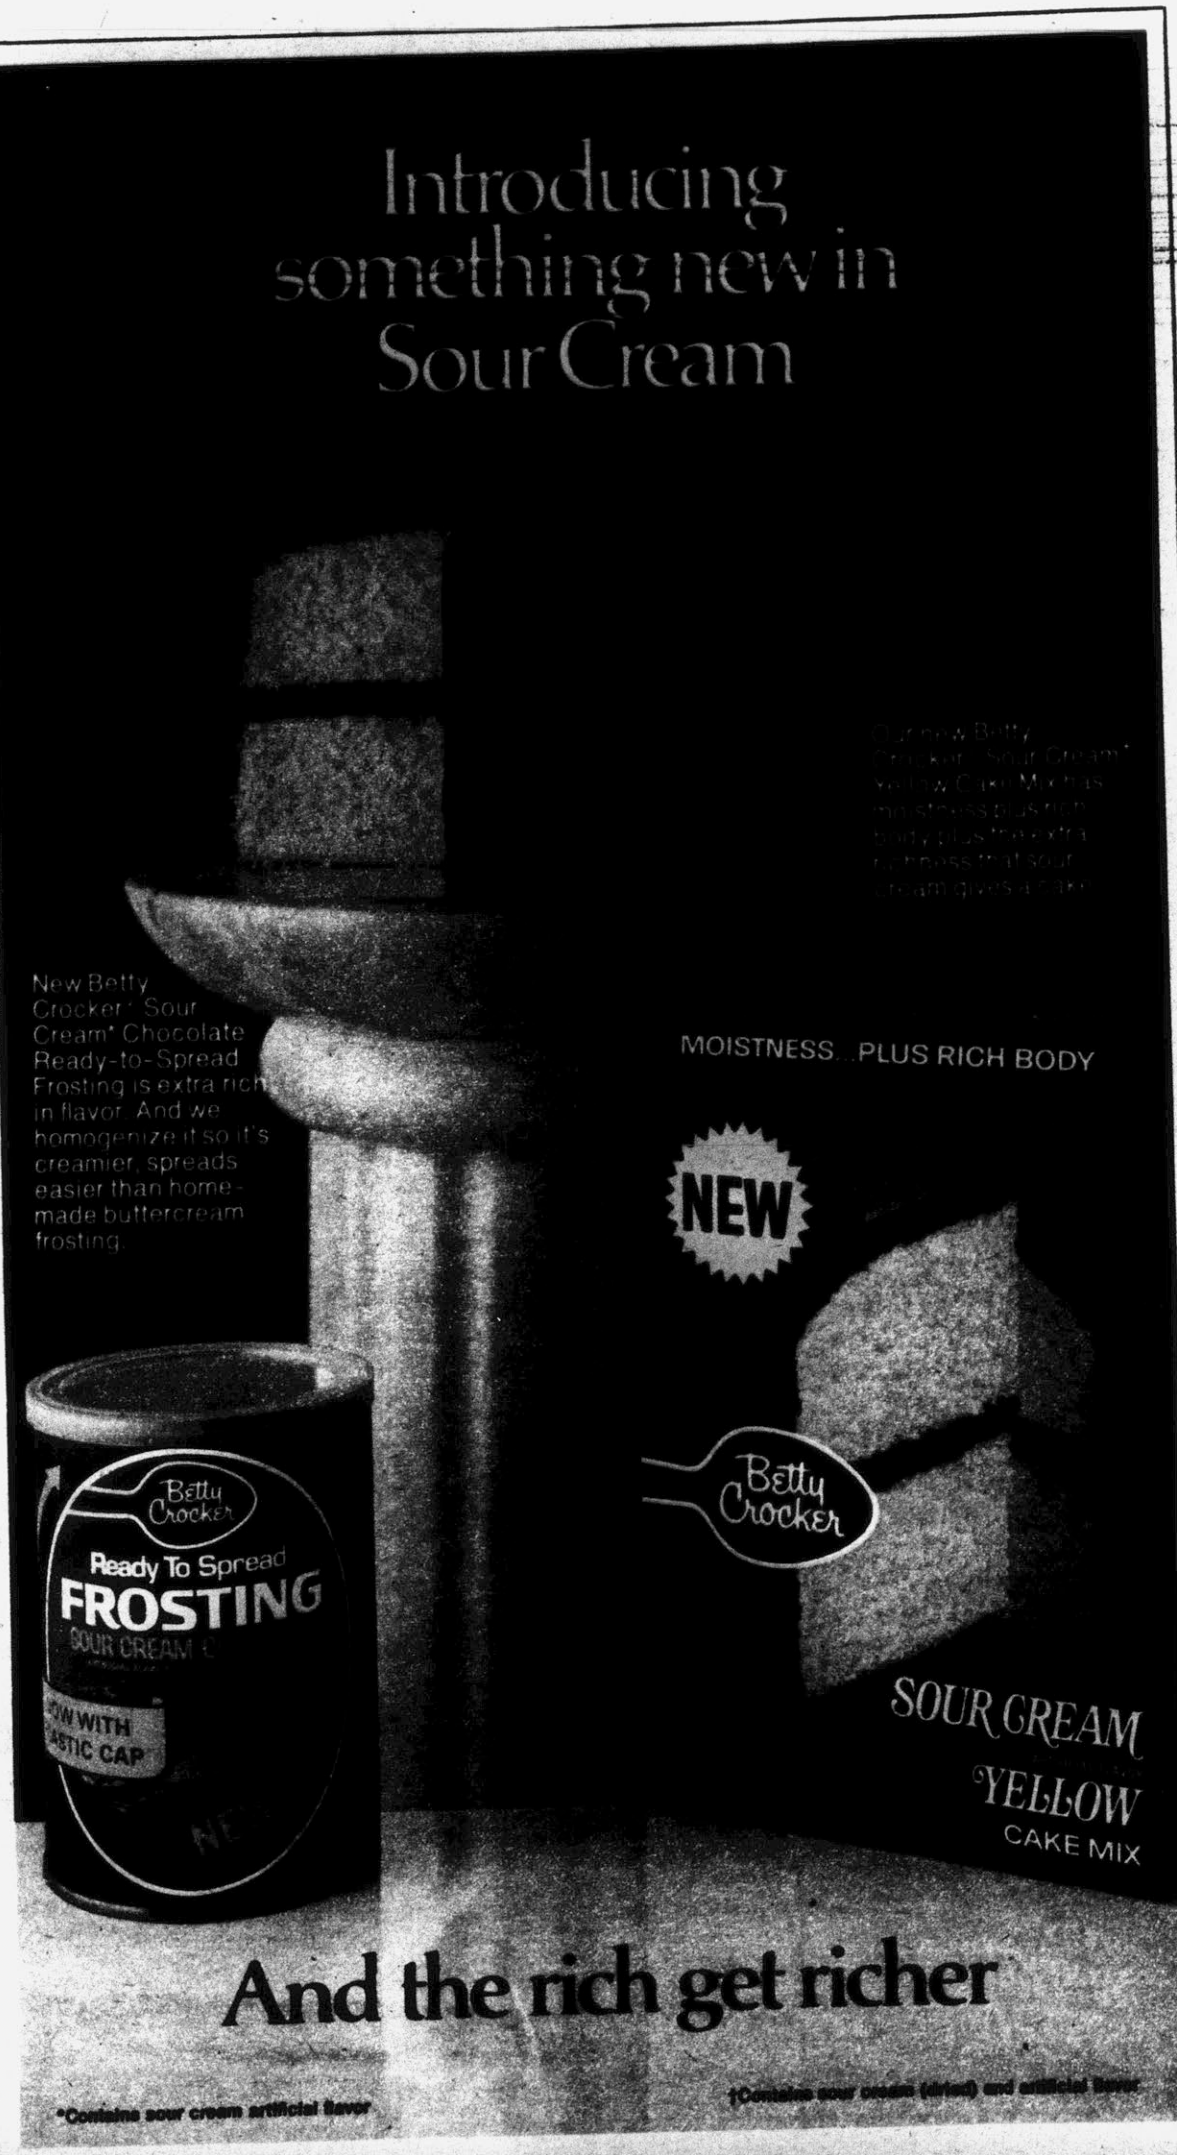
HODGEPODGE RELISH*

- 2 cups washed, ½-inch-thick sliced cucumbers
- 1 cup washed, trimmed, 1½-inch pieces green beans
- 1 cup washed, peeled, 1½-inch carrot sticks
- 1 cup washed, 1½-inch celery sticks
- 1 cup washed, quartered, small green tomatoes
- 2 cups washed, 2-inch cauliflowerets
- 2 cups chopped onions
- 2 cups coarsely chopped red peppers
- 1 hot red pepper
- 1 cup pure salt
- Water
- 3 tablespoons mustard seed
- 2 tablespoons celery seed
- 1 teaspoon ground mustard
- 1 teaspoon ground ginger
- 2 cups sugar
- 5 cups quality white vinegar

1. Turn vegetables into non-metal bowl. Add salt, mix well and cover with ice-cold water (takes about 4 qts.). Let stand 12-18 hours, refrigerated. Stir several times during first hour or two to be sure salt hasn't settled at bottom of bowl.
2. Drain vegetables. If too salty, rinse in cold water and drain again. Set aside.
3. Put all remaining ingredients into large kettle. Heat, stirring, for 3 minutes.
4. Add the drained vegetables; simmer vegetables until heated through. If more liquid is necessary, add mixture of boiling ½ vinegar and ½ water.
5. Spoon hot relish to ¼ inch of top of sterilized jars. Wipe tops and threads of jars with clean, damp cloth.
6. Put sterilized lids on jars; screw sterilized bands tight. As each jar is filled, stand it on rack in a canner full of hot, not boiling, water. Water should cover jars 1-2 inches.
7. Put cover on canner, bring water to a boil, and process jars in boiling-water bath for 15 minutes.
8. Remove jars from canner. Let cool for about 12 hours. Remove bands, test for seal. Label. Store without bands in cool place.

Makes 5-7 pints

*This type of relish is known by other names, such as End of the Garden and Odds and Ends.



APPLE CHUTNEY

- 2 qts. pealed, sliced, tart, hard-ripe apples
- 1 cup grated or finely chopped onion
- ¾ cup chopped crystallized ginger
- ½ cup chopped candied orange or grapefruit peel
- 1 pod chili pepper, seeded and chopped, or ½ teaspoon crushed red pepper
- 3 large cloves garlic, finely chopped
- 3 cups sugar
- ½ teaspoon ground ginger
- ½ teaspoon ground allspice
- 2 cups red wine vinegar or cider vinegar
- ¾ cup Worcestershire sauce
- 2 teaspoons pure salt
- 1¼ cups raisins
- 1½ cups lime juice

1. Cut apple slices into 2 or 3 crosswise pieces. Drop apples into a nonmetallic container of brine made by dissolving 3 tablespoons salt in 2½ qts. cool water. Cover container and refrigerate for 2 days. Apples will discolor and shrivel a bit.
2. Put all ingredients except brined apples into a large kettle. Bring to boiling and boil rapidly uncovered, stirring often, for 20 minutes.
3. Add well-drained apples and boil gently, uncovered, until mixture thickens; stir occasionally. Mixture should be neither dry nor soupy. Taste for seasoning, add sugar or salt if desired.
4. Keep chutney boiling as you fill hot sterilized jars. Pour boiling chutney to ⅛ inch of top of sterilized jars.
5. Wipe off anything that is spilled on tops or threads of jars with a clean, damp cloth.
6. Follow steps 6-8 as in Hodgepodge Relish, above. If, after testing for seal in step 8, seal is not tight, open and empty jar. Resterilize jar, lid and band; boil contents, refill and reprocess.

Collectors' Classic

Vichyssoise,
The Queen of Cold Soups

Vichyssoise originated from the creative hand of master chef Louis Diat. This recipe uses an up-to-date method of preparation, but retains the French nuances of flavor.

HINTS FOR SUCCESSFUL VICHYSSOISE

1. Slit side of leeks with point of knife and rinse under running water to remove all sand.
2. Cooking leeks, onions and potatoes in chicken broth improves the flavor.
3. Use fresh, cold cream and milk.
4. Refrigerate immediately after making.
5. Chilling thickens the soup. Be judicious when adding milk at the end, so soup remains on the thick side.
6. Always serve in chilled bowls.
7. The traditional garnish of chives adds a colorful, fresh flavor accent.

VICHYSSOISE

- 4 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 4 leeks, white part and 1 inch of green, washed and sliced
- 1 medium onion, sliced
- 5 medium-sized Idaho potatoes (6 cups peeled and sliced)
- 3 cans (13¾-oz. size) chicken broth
- Salt
- Ground white pepper
- 2 cups milk
- 2 cups heavy cream
- Chopped chives

1. In 6-qt. Dutch oven, heat butter until melted. Add leeks and onion, and sauté over medium heat, stirring frequently, for 10 minutes.
2. Add potatoes, chicken broth, 1 teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon white pepper. Bring to boiling, cover. Reduce heat slightly and allow to boil about 20 minutes, until potatoes are very tender.
3. Puree leek-potato broth mixture 2 cups at a time in blender until very smooth. Pour into 3-qt. bowl.
4. Stir in milk and cream, and beat with wire whisk. Cover, refrigerate several hours or overnight, until thoroughly chilled.
5. Beat with wire whisk just before serving. If too thick, beat in ½-1 cup cold milk. Taste for seasoning; add additional salt and white pepper if desired.
6. Ladle into chilled bowls. Sprinkle each serving with 2 teaspoons chopped chives. Serve cold. Makes about 2½ qts.

Sports Mini-Profile

"Daddy, What Sport Can I Play and Remain a Lady?"

Billie Jean: "This sport needs more pizzazz."

By Barry Abramson

Wimbledon champion Billie Jean King is known as the organizer of the "Women's Lob Movement." The outspoken, controversial, bespectacled Mrs. King had long criticized the moguls of U.S. tennis for downgrading the female matches in tennis tournaments and for awarding the women champions a much smaller share of the prize money than the men got. Largely as a result of her efforts, the women organized their own pro tour (under the sponsorship of Virginia Slims), and last year, Billie became the first female athlete to earn over $100,000 in a single year. She considers herself the world's best player and is frankly critical of any sportswriters' poll that gives the honor to anyone else.

At 28, she kiddingly refers to herself as "The Old Lady of Tennis," but proved there's still life in those "old veins" by defeating both Chris Evert and Evonne Goolagong, the two youngsters who have challenged her reign, in the recent Dallas tournament. She defeated Miss Goolagong again at Wimbledon.

Daughter of a Long Beach, Calif., fireman, Billie Jean grew up as a tomboy who could outrun and outthrow every boy in her grammar school. At 11, she asked her dad what sport she could play and still remain a lady. He told her to try tennis, and she learned the game on the public courts. She won her first tournament six months later and was soon on her way to world acclaim as U.S. champion at Forest Hills and as seven times finalist at Wimbledon.

As a graduate of the public courts, she has criticized the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association for stressing the country-club atmosphere in tennis and has been a leading force in "democratizing" the game. She's also called for more spectator displays in the sport. "We should encourage fans to scream or boo if they like, just like in baseball and football," she says. "This sport has had too much stuffiness and protocol. It needs more pizzazz."

Billie Jean helped put her husband, Larry, through law school, and saw him only infrequently when he was at school and she traveled the world. He now accompanies her often, however, as attorney for the women's tour group and attorney for Tennis America. . . . She and Larry are active in a program to set up free clinics for young tennis players in low-income areas. "They don't have to play in fancy shorts," she says. "Let them come in old jeans, but let them play and enjoy!"

ARTHRITIS

Plain Talk about a Painful Subject!

YOU undoubtedly have heard of many so-called "cures" for the pains, tenderness, and stiffness of arthritis and rheumatism. The plain truth is there is yet no known cure!

But now, there is something you can do to help you better live with your problem.

What Is Arthritis?

Whether it's called "arthritis" or "rheumatism," it means practically the same thing... "inflammation of joints or surrounding muscles and tendons."

Inflammation which can give you an aching back, stiff neck, sore knees, painful elbows, hands, or fingers; that can make it more difficult for you to move around freely, comfortably... that can interfere with your work, your sleep, your life.

Shoulders Often Hurt?

Anyone can get arthritis; regardless of age or sex. It can strike early in life; or later. It occurs among rich and poor. Among all races. In every climate. In all sorts of weather.

There are many types of arthritis and rheumatism; ranging from the mild aches and pains of "Fibrositis" to the more difficult "Rheumatoid-Arthritis" and "Osteo-Arthritis." The symptoms of each kind are different. The treatment for each must be different, too.

What To Do About It?

Only a doctor can diagnose your specific arthritic or rheumatic condition; as well as the proper treatment to control it. In certain cases, he may prescribe powerful drugs. For less acute cases, he usually recommends the regular use of simple analgesics (like aspirin).

But, for extra relief and soothing comfort, many doctors today recommend an external rub to supplement your regular internal medications. So, that you can lessen your feeling of pain; increase your range of motion.

Until recently all well-known liniment, ointment, and cream rubs contained merely an anti-inflammatory ingredient (like Methyl Salicylate) to help reduce the pains and discomforts resulting from tender, inflamed joints. These were all right as far as they went. But, they didn't go far enough!

Great News!

For years, science sought to develop an external rub that would not only help relieve pains caused by inflamed arthritic joints; but would also temporarily desensitize tender nerve endings that transmit pain. What's more, one that would be absorbed more effectively through the 7 layers of skin.

Finally, such a remarkable formula was created! A deep-penetrating spray-foam combining "Methyl Salicylate," the best-known external pain reliever; together with "Benzocaine" the quick-acting, medically-approved anesthetic. A famous New York hospital tested this formula...proved it most effective for 4 out of 5 who tried it!

Now, you can get this very same medicated foam formula. And you need no prescription.

It's called "EXOCAINE"!

In most cases, this remarkable extra-action medicated foam gives fast, dependable relief from discomforting muscular stiffness, and its cruel, nagging pains—up to hours at a time!

Relief At Your Fingertips

Painful Hands?

Today, thousands of grateful men and women agree that living with their arthritic flare-ups is no longer such a painful experience; that EXOCAINE's combined analgesic and anesthetic action gives them the extra relief and comfort needed to move around more freely, more comfortably; to work better, sleep better, feel better!

EXOCAINE is not a smelly liniment! Not a greasy cream! Not a messy ointment! Not a watery spray! But a greaseless, stainless, and fragrant aerosol foam. Convenient and easy-to-use. Day or night!

For fast "on-the-spot" relief, just spray and rub in EXOCAINE where it hurts. That's all!

While there is still no cure for painful joint inflammation of arthritis, EXOCAINE (together with your usual medications) can do a great deal to lessen your arthritis discomforts and pains...to increase your comfort and freedom of movement.

Of course, no medication works perfectly for all who use it. But in 4 out of 5 cases, EXOCAINE has proved its remarkable effectiveness in providing welcome relief and extra comfort for the transitory stiffness and pains caused by tender inflamed joints.

"What A Relief"

Everywhere EXOCAINE has been introduced, reports are enthusiastic..."Thanks to EXOCAINE, my husband and I now get hours of extra relief—move around more comfortably." "EXOCAINE sure is different than any ointment or lotion rub I ever used. What a joy!" "I've been taking aspirin for years, as my doctor told me. But now I find by also rubbing in EXOCAINE, whenever I get a flare-up, my shoulder pains start to subside much more quickly."

Aching Knees?

With such public acclaim and unsolicited testimonials, why let the discomforts and minor pains of arthritis joint inflammation needlessly interfere with your work, your sleep, your life.

Getting Started in Fishing—For You or Your Child

By Pete Czura

Panfish are fish too small to be considered game fish—but that doesn't mean they're any less fun to catch!

There's a simple fact fathers should now and then be reminded of: Kids love to fish. And despite all the stories you hear, and all the fancy equipment around, there's no fishing that's more fun—for child or adult—than simple, basic panfishing. Even if you're not an angler, so what? That just means you and your child can start off on an equal footing.

There are many different families of fish that fit into the panfish category, but the most sought after – and the most popular species – are bluegill, crappie (white and black), white and yellow perch, white bass, rock bass, yellow bass and bullhead. Bluegill, for example, are found in all states; crappie, likewise.

There isn't a state in this country—or an area near your home – that doesn't contain some fine panfishing waters. Here's a list of prime panfishing waters in the United States:

EAST: Lackawanna and Hopatcong lakes, Toms River, N.J., Lakes Champlain, Chautauqua and Oneida, N.Y.; Bowdish Reservoir, R. I.; Winthrop Lake, Maine; Chesapeake Bay, Md.

MIDWEST: Horseshoe, Quiver and Carlyle lakes (the latter is the hottest lake for crappie in Illinois); Wawasee and Monroe lakes, Ind.; Hubbard Lake, Mich.; Lake Mendota, Wis.; Toad Lake and Detroit Lakes area, Minn.; Tuttle Creek Reservoir, Kan.; Lake McConaughy, Neb.

SOUTH: Lake Texoma, Okla.; Table Rock Lake, Mo.; Dora and George lakes, Fla; Dale Hollow Reservoir and Dix River, Ky.; Reelfoot Lake, Tenn.; Lake Hamilton, Ark.

WEST: Bonny Reservoir, Colo.; Conchas Lake, N. M.; Tahkenitch Lake, Ore.; Lake De Smet, Wyo.

FOR BEGINNERS: Start with the simple cane-pole fishing technique. The investment is only a couple of dollars. Use a No. 8 hook, attach just a heavy enough sinker to your line to sink the bait gently, and use a small bobber to signal strikes.

FOR INTERMEDIATES: If you can handle more sophisticated tackle, use the spinning or fly-rodding techniques. One of the most exciting ways to panfish is with an ultra-light spinning rig—1½-ounce rod, 6-ounce reel and 4-pound test line. A one-pound panfish, caught on such an outfit, can provide some exciting moments before you land it.

FOR OLD HANDS: For the ultimate thrill, try light-action fly rods. Best bets for panfish, especially bluegill, are No. 10-size flies. But switch to No. 12's if your strikes are consistently short.

WHAT BAIT TO USE? Lures and baits for panfish range from marshmallows to delicate flies. Among live baits, the best bamboozlers are the worms – manure worms, night crawlers and earthworms. Other fine panfish enticers are minnows, grasshoppers, crickets, grubs, small frogs and crawfish (especially the tails for bullheads).

Among the best artificial lures are Mepps Spinners, No. 0, Tiny Ike, Baby Bombers, tiny Dardevle spoons, Abu Spinners, white and yellow jigs (⅛ ounce).

Best flies are Royal Coachman, Light Cahill, Black Gnat, Quill Gordon, White Moth, Professor, and such nymphs as Trueblood's Caddis, Beaver, Inch Worm, Gray and Brown.

IRINA MARKISH
The eternal triangle, 1970's-style

The story's beginning to have a familiar ring: Boy meets girl; boy falls in love with girl; callous Russian officials step in and do their darndest to mess things up. First it was Debbie Brackman and Valerie Kremniov, the American girl and her Russian husband who, after months of separation, were finally reunited and are now living on Long Island. Then followed a series of only slightly less celebrated "love stories"—including that of Irina Markish and her Russian husband David. Irina and David tried to get a visa to move to Israel. Russian officials gave Irina an okay, but refused to let David join her. Seven times they refused. Finally, after firing off a number of letters of appeal, including one to Mrs. Richard Nixon, Irina set up residence on the sidewalk outside London's Soviet Embassy. When last seen, she was still convinced that love could conquer all—even Communist bureaucracy.

If you think male pantyhose are a running joke, maybe you'd better take a closer look. One manufacturer who turned them out in quantity says they sold in a trice—women bought them for their husbands. (No one knows whether the men wore them.) They are a must, insists the manufacturer, because the new fall men's knit suits—marvelous for their good looks and for keeping their shape—let the breezes through. Conservative males may prefer old-fashioned long johns under knit trousers, to combat the cool, but pantyhose provide all the warmth with half the weight. Would it help you shy fellows if they renamed them he-hose?

REP. PAUL McCLOSKEY
"He looked honest and sincere"

"There is apathy in our democratic process, and ignorance. My most dismaying revelation came as a result of a poll we took after... the 1967 congressional election in San Mateo County, Calif. Of the cross section of some 52,000 souls who voted for me, the response indicated that five percent voted for me because of their agreement on issues; 11 percent disagreed with me on issues but voted for me because of personal friendship, my background, or persuasion by their friends; and 84 percent didn't know what my positions on issues were, or what my background was. When queried as to why they had voted for me, they responded either 'He had the best chance against Shirley Temple Black' or 'He looked honest and sincere on television.'" From "Truth and Untruth: Political Deceit in America" by Rep. Paul McCloskey, Jr. (Simon & Schuster, $2.95).

DATES: The U.S. Women's Amateur Golf Championship begins in St. Louis Monday. On Friday, the American Legion meets in Chicago and the VFW meets in Minneapolis.

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour

PRETTY AS A PICTURE

I note, as I turn through our scrapbook,
To the end from the very beginning,
That all of us seem to be cheerful,
And mostly we're clowning and grinning.

Yes, everyone's friendly and happy,
Contented and nicely adjusted.
Not once does a face have a frown on
Or a look that is pained or disgusted.

We all seem to love one another,
There's never an ill-tempered lapse.
It's a scrapbook—and yet not a photo
To help us remember our scraps.

Said the old pro to the two lady club members who approached him on the practice tee: "Do you want to learn to play golf, ladies?"

"She does," replied one of them. "I learned yesterday." —Eudora Sabo

Our smallest daughter learned to swim in neighborhood pools and had looked forward for months to her first trip to the beach.

The day came, and with it her first glimpse of the immense reaches of the Pacific Ocean. Speechless at first, when she found her voice, she whispered, "I think I'll swim in the shallow end." —Mrs. B. V. Quinn, Las Vegas, Nev.

A husband came home one day to find the house in a dreadful mess. "You're always wondering what I do all day," his wife said. "Well, here it is. I didn't do it." —Wade Andrews

"The greatest man that ever lived," Barton told a co-worker, "was a man named Spencer. He was broad-minded, tolerant, generous, temperate, witty and brilliant... yet he died with his talents unsuspected."

"Gosh," said his companion, "how did you manage to find out about him?"

"Oh," was Barton's gloomy response, "I married his widow." —F. G. Kernan

"To have and to hold...in sickness and in health..."

THAT'S A PLEDGE you can live up to when you have "Wide-Range" paycheck protection that pays you up to $1,200.00 A MONTH when you're sick or hurt and can't work... in or out of the hospital.

"To hold" is a fine and powerful promise, packed with many meanings—"to guard," "to keep," "to support." A world of promises in one—tough promises to hold to in sickness.

But you can have help. As the breadwinner, you can select the amount you qualify for (from $100.00 to $1,200.00 a month...more than $250.00 a week) to help replace your paychecks when you're sick or hurt and can't work. These monthly benefits are all yours to spend as you please for any purpose you choose... money you can use for every kind of bill.

They are payable over and above any benefits you receive for hospital and medical bills. And you are covered for disabilities that start before retirement or age 65 (whichever comes first), except those caused by war or military service; narcotics; childbirth, pregnancy or resulting complications.

THERE ARE SEVEN REASONS
WHY YOU SHOULD CONSIDER
THIS MUTUAL OF OMAHA PLAN:

1. You're paid up to $1,200.00 a month (more than $250.00 a week) to spend as you see fit when you're sick or hurt and can't work!
2. You're covered both IN and OUT of the hospital!
3. You're covered for both accidents that occur and sickness that is contracted after the policy date!
4. You're covered for mental disorders the same as any other sickness!
5. You're covered as a passenger in any kind of aircraft—even a private plane!
6. You're covered on and off the job. You're paid in addition to your Workmen's Compensation or Employer's Liability benefits!
7. You have this renewal agreement: Mutual of Omaha guarantees that no matter how much you may receive in benefits, you cannot be singled out for policy termination or for a premium increase. The only time your premium can be changed is when premiums for all policies of the same classification in your state are changed!

How much monthly income do you qualify for? Find out. READ ON NEXT PAGE WHAT LOW COST PROTECTION YOUR FAMILY MAY OBTAIN! ▶

Now you can insure yourself and your wife with a policy guaranteed renewable up to age 70...and even your children ages 15 days to 23 years can be covered and with the guaranteed right to convert at age 23. But you must send in application by midnight August 29th.

The Family Life Insurance Plan is so good and so inexpensive for the amounts of coverage you get, only $1.15 for each $5,000 up to age 30 and low rates thereafter, that you probably have some questions. We've put all the answers down here in black and white . . . for Family Weekly readers so you won't miss the enrollment deadline (See especially the Questions and Answers on pages 6 and 7 of this booklet).

The Family Life Insurance plan is a low cost, high protection insurance plan up to now offered only to association members and employees to add to their regular group life insurance and you can apply now without joining a group. This plan was designed to fill one and only one insurance need: To provide low cost, high protection for your loved ones. Insurance to be purchased by you, the breadwinner of the family, up to $20,000 to provide money for your survivors, not for yourself. The Family Life Insurance Plan does just this while it allows you to also insure your wife, up to $10,000 (up to ½ your coverage) and all your eligible children ($1,000 each, no matter how many, for one low premium), at rates so low for their coverage, you can't afford not to provide for them as well.

Why Term Insurance is Best For You!

It provides maximum coverage and the lowest possible cost to do the primary job that life insurance is intended to perform . . . protection for your loved ones in the event of the untimely passing of a primary family provider.

The Family Plan is Term Life Insurance so straightforward in concept and explained so fully in this booklet that it is the only type of life insurance we recommend buying this easy, low cost way, through the United States mail. And you can apply right from this Family Weekly booklet, but you must mail the application by August 29, 1972. Better yet, do it today!

10 DAY NO-RISK MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE

When your Family Life Insurance policy arrives, examine it in your home. Show it to one of your trusted advisors. And if for any reason you change your mind, just return your policy to us within 10 days and we'll refund your money at once.

During this limited enrollment period you the readers of Family Weekly can apply for yourself and all eligible members of your family. All you need to do is fill in and mail the short application form with your first month's premium by August 29th. It's that simple. And, there's no risk with our 10-day Money Back Guarantee! When you receive your policy you'll find it direct and easy to understand.

You're Eligible To Enroll Up To Age 60!

You and your wife up to age 60 are eligible to apply for up to $20,000 life insurance for yourself ($5,000—$10,000—$15,000 or $20,000), up to half as much coverage for your wife ($2,500—$5,000—$7,500—$10,000) but not more than half your coverage and $1,000 on each of your eligible children. And all your children from 15 days to 23 years old—no matter how many—can be included (for $1,000 coverage each) for one low additional premium of only 45 cents a month. When child coverage is in force, future children are covered automatically when they reach 15 days old at no increase in premium.

Guaranteed Convertible Without Proof Of Insurability!

You and your wife, anytime up to your age 65, can convert your Family Life Insurance Plan coverage to the same or smaller amount of Ordinary Life Insurance, without any proof of insurability whatsoever. Your children are guaranteed the right at age 23 to convert their coverage to as much as $5,000. Ordinary Life Insurance regardless of their health or occupation, without any physical examination nor proof of insurability!

Policy Cannot Be Cancelled Except By You

Once issued to you, your policy can never be cancelled except by you and your premium rates can never be changed. However, to keep your policy in force you must pay your premiums promptly when due. And you can continue to renew your policy until you're 70 years old without any proof of continued good health.

Premiums Waived If You're Disabled

If before age 60 you become totally disabled for six months or more, National-Ben Franklin will waive all your premium payments while your disability continues or until you reach age 70, and even though your premiums are waived, you still keep your right to convert your coverage to cash-value life insurance. In fact, this right may be extended up to age 70. However, intentionally self-inflicted injury, act of war, serving with military units or participating in riots or insurrections are not covered.

Only One Exclusion

Even the one exclusion, suicide, is temporary and is covered after your Family Life Insurance Plan is in effect for only two years.

Here's All You Do to Apply

Just complete the short, easy Application Form on the back page of this booklet and mail it with your first month's premium by August 29th. We'll process your application just as quickly as possible and issue your policy as soon as your Form is approved.

How Can Rates Be So Low?

The answer is simple. The Family Life Insurance Plan was created for association members and employees to supplement their regular group life insurance. And now for the first time, National-Ben Franklin is offering the same plan for mass enrollment of Family Weekly readers throughout the United States. Through mass enrollments, costs are kept very low and you get the most protection for the lowest possible rate.

NOW—JUST ASK YOURSELF THESE QUESTIONS

1. If you're self-employed, do you provide as much life insurance protection for yourself as you would expect if you worked for someone else?

   Your family protection needs may be even greater because of your higher standard of living. Our plan provides this added protection.

2. Will you still have coverage if you change jobs?

   You need to be sure you and your family are protected at all times. Our plan continues no matter what.

3. Have you increased your life insurance in the past two years?

   Prices of everything (as well as your standard of living) keep rising, and coverage adequate a few years ago, just isn't enough today.

4. Does your group life or other insurance also cover your wife?

   Money can't replace the love she gives to the family, of course, but money can help care for the children and your home if she isn't there.

5. Does your group life insurance also cover your children? Are you making sure your children will be able to get life insurance when they start out on their own?

   Conditions of health could change so that your children are no longer insurable. This way they're guaranteed protection.

If you answered "NO" to any of these questions, you and your family need the low-cost, high-protection Family Life Insurance Plan that covers you, and if you wish your wife and your children for one low monthly premium. To get these low family rates for your wife and children however, you must also be insured under the plan.

You Risk Nothing

Even if you change your mind after you receive your Family Life Insurance Plan, just return your policy to us within 10 days and we'll promptly refund the money you've paid.

So you risk nothing by applying today. But if you delay, conditions of health of you or a member of your family could change suddenly and make it difficult or impossible to get life insurance anywhere, at any price.

COMPARE THESE LOW MONTHLY RATES WITH ANY OTHERS— ON OR OFF THE JOB!

The Family Life Insurance Plan: Renewable Term Life Insurance To Age 70

Rates are determined by insured's age on the policy effective date and each renewal date.	For insured's coverage: Rate for each $5,000 (Maximum: $20,000)	For spouse's coverage: Rate for each $2,500 (Maximum: ½ of your insurance.)	$1,000 coverage for each child—no matter how many.
Under 30	$ 1.15	$ .50	45 cents
30-34	1.25	.55	45 cents
35-39	1.60	.65	45 cents
40-44	2.40	.95	45 cents
45-49	3.55	1.45	45 cents
50-54	5.55	2.20	45 cents
55-59	8.55	3.35	45 cents
60-64	12.85	5.05	45 cents
65-69*	20.00	7.80	45 cents

*Policies issued up to age 60. Coverages for children: age 15 days to 22 years.

NOTE: A small service charge of only 50¢ is added to your one, low, low, total family premium when paid other than annually. You save $6.00 when you pay by the year. When husband and wife are both covered, husband is the insured.

Mail Application Today

Please mail your application today so your protection can begin just as soon as possible.

When you receive your policy, you'll see that it is simple, direct and easy to understand. Read it carefully and show it to a trusted advisor to make sure it's exactly what you've wanted and needed. If you change your mind for any reason whatsoever, simply return the policy within 10 days of receipt and your money will be refunded promptly.

PLEASE REMEMBER: This is a Special Enrollment—the Company may open other enrollment periods at a later date but we can only accept this application form if it is postmarked before midnight August 29th. Please don't wait until the last moment. The sooner we receive your application form, the sooner you and your family can be protected by The Family Life Insurance Plan. With our money-back guarantee, you risk nothing by mailing your application today.

1. Who is eligible to apply?

Anyone 18 to 60 years of age who's in ordinary good health. Wives up to age 60 and children from 15 days to 23 years can also be included for very little additional cost. New additions to the family are covered automatically when they're 15 days old at no additional premium when child coverage is in force. However, you must be insured in order to cover your wife and children.

2. How much can I apply for? My wife? My children?

You can apply for up to $20,000 life insurance on yourself (in units of $5,000—that is a total of $5,000, $10,000, $15,000 or $20,000). You can add coverage for your wife in units of $2,500 ($2,500-$5,000, $7,500-$10,000) up to a maximum of one-half of your coverage. And you can add $1,000 protection for each of your eligible children—no matter how many—for one low premium.

3. Why such low rates?

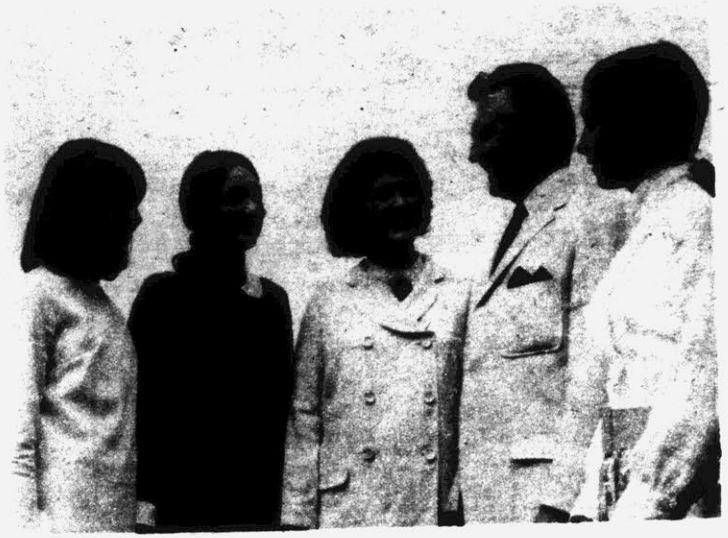
National-Ben Franklin is a leader in low cost group plans for veterans and others and by mass enrollment throughout the country, sales costs are held to the barest minimum with savings passed along to you in lower premiums.

4. Is there any red tape?

None at all. Just answer the few simple questions on the Application on the back page of this booklet and mail it with your first month's premium before the deadline. That's all there is to it.

5. Can I convert to Ordinary Life Insurance?

Yes—Ordinary life insurance accumulates cash value, but of course has higher premium costs. You may convert to the same or smaller amount of your coverage anytime up to 65 without proof of insurability whatsoever.



The Family Life Insurance Plan rates are so low to cover your wife and only 45¢ a month more to cover all your eligible children, that you can't afford not to provide for them as well.

6. Can my wife convert her coverage?

Yes—Anytime regardless of her health or occupation and without any physical examination, up to your (policyholder's) age 65.

7. Can my children convert their coverage?

Yes—Your children are guaranteed the right at age 23 to convert their coverage to as much as $5,000 Ordinary Life Insurance regardless of their health or occupation and without any physical examination.

8. Can my insurance policy ever be cancelled?

No—However, to keep your policy in force you must pay premiums when due. N-BF Life guarantees renewability up to age 70 without any proof of continued good health.

9. Can my rates be changed?

No—Absolutely not!

10. Why do I need this coverage if I have other insurance?

Ordinary life, annuity or other plans providing for retirement income are fine depending on what you want your insurance to accomplish. For pure protection however, this is the buy for you! And if your present insurance is group insurance, it probably doesn't cover your wife and children. Plus the fact that if you should leave your present job, your family might be caught without protection until you could join a new group plan in your new position.

11. How much does my first month cost? How much after that?

You pay only what is listed on the monthly rate chart for your age and coverage desired.

12. What if I become totally disabled for 6 months or more up to age 60 and can't make my payments?

National-Ben Franklin Life will waive all your premium payments while your disability continues or until you reach age 70. But even though your premiums are waived, you still keep your right to convert your coverage to cash-value life insurance. In fact, this right may be extended up to age 70. (Disability caused by self-inflicted injury, act of war, serving with military units or participating in riots or insurrections is not covered).

13. Will my beneficiaries receive their money promptly?

Yes—We act promptly, many are paid by return mail!

14. Will the money be all theirs? What about taxes?

All theirs! Lump sum life insurance death payments are not subject to income tax.

15. How do I apply?

It's very simple. Just fill in the Application Form on back page of this booklet and mail it with only one month's premium by the deadline. We'll process your application as quickly as possible so that your policy can go into force without delay.

16. Why should I apply now?

Because The Family Life Insurance Plan is only offered to the general public during limited mass enrollments. And this is your opportunity to get the additional protection you need at these low monthly rates offered before only to association members and employees. Besides, your health or the health of someone in your family could change without warning and make it impossible for you to get all the protection you need and want.

Since there's a full money-back guarantee if you change your mind within 10 days after you get your policy, you risk nothing by applying now. And your protection and your family's protection can begin as soon as possible.

17. Why should I select National-Ben Franklin for my Family Life Insurance Plan?

Because National-Ben Franklin, a 120 year old company, is licensed by your own state, regulated by your own state's insurance department and carries full legal reserves for the protection of all insured. And is a member of the Continental Corporation, one of the world's largest and most respected insurance groups.

18. What one exclusion is there?

Only suicide, and even this is covered after your policy has been in effect for only 2 years.*

19. Who should I list on the application form?

We recommend you include every eligible member of your family. The premium for family coverage is so low, you can't afford not to have the added protection.

*One year in Colorado, North Dakota & Louisiana
