

GOP Panel Considering Rules Moves

By JOHN BECKLER
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A Republican rules-making panel deliberated today on moves to change the way convention delegates are selected and allocated. Its decision will have a strong impact on the 1976 GOP convention's choice of a presidential nominee.

The 108-member Rules Committee of the Republican National Committee scheduled an afternoon session to consider the proposals which would open up the delegate selection process for the next convention and revise the method of allocating delegates to the states.

The Rules Committee's recommendations must clear both the national committee and the convention Rules Committee before they can be put to a vote at the convention next week. In past conventions they have been altered very little in the process.

The line was sharply drawn between liberals and conservatives Monday on the two major questions before the committee: how to bring more women, youths and blacks into the Republican party and how to fix the delegate strength of each state.

At a day long committee hearing, Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., John W. Gardner, chairman of Common Cause; Massachusetts Gov. Francis W. Sargent and others identified with the liberal wing of the party endorsed a proposed rule that would require state Republican parties to take positive action to assure that all segments of the voting population participated in party affairs.

The proposal was advanced as an alternative to setting quotas for youths, women and blacks. Quotas originally were recommended by a reform panel but were discarded when they came under heavy attack.

Sen. James Buckley of New York, a member of both the Conservative and Republican parties, and Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-Ill., a leading House conservative, attacked the alternate proposal as an attempt to set quotas indirectly.

Strong criticism also was directed by conservatives and delegates from small states at a variety of plans for allocating delegates among the states that would increase the influence of the large states in the 1976 convention.

David B. Kennedy, a delegate from Wyoming, said adoption of such a system "would destroy the Republican party as we know it."

The Republican party currently awards 90 per cent of its convention delegates on the basis of each state's electoral vote and the other 10 per cent on a bonus system that rewards states that went Republican in the last presidential election. The system recently was held unconstitutional by a federal district court because of the bonus awards. The decision has been appealed.

Man Charged With $571 Million Budget For Universities

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
WINTERVILLE — A Jamaica, N.Y. resident was taken into custody here by Pitt County Sheriff's deputies about 11:40 last night and charged with kidnapping and raping a 15-year-old Ayden girl about two hours earlier.

The man was also charged with attempting to rape a 19-year-old Route 2, Ayden girl even earlier in the evening.

Ayden Police Chief Tommy Burney identified the man as 28-year-old Fred Mabery.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said Mabrey and two other men and a 19-year-old girl left Ayden earlier in the night and went to Winterville where the two other men left the car.

On the return trip to Ayden the sheriff explained, Mabrey allegedly pulled into the yard of a deserted house on old N.C. 11 between Ayden and Winterville and attempted to rape the girl, but was unsuccessful.

Mabrey then drove to Ayden where he allegedly forced the 15-year-old girl — walking with a friend along Barwick Street — into his car at knife-point about 9 p.m.

Chief Burney said Mabrey first took the girl to a spot near the old South Ayden School where he allegedly attempted to assault her, then drove to a spot between Ayden and Grifton where the alleged rape took place.

Sheriff Tyson explained that as Mabrey was returning to Ayden with the younger victim, the girl's uncle began chasing the Mabrey car. The chase ended at the intersection of N.C. 11-U.S. 13 by-pass and old N.C. 11 north of Winterville, when the Mabrey car went out of control ran up on a traffic island.

Mabrey, leaving the young girl in his car, jumped out and ran into a near-by wooded area East of the old highway.

Roadblocks were set up in the area as members of the Sheriff's Department, the Ayden, Winterville and Greenville Police Departments, Pitt County ABC officers, Highway Patrolmen and blood hounds from the Greene County prison unit joined in the search for Mabrey.

According to the sheriff, Deputy David Garrison took Mabrey into custody after finding him in the South Winterville home of a cousin.

Mabrey was placed in the Pitt County jail without privilege of bond pending a hearing in District Court in Ayden August 24.

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — University of North Carolina President William Friday says the $571.6 million budget approved by the Board of Governors to operate the state's 16 public universities during the next biennium will provide "substantial progress."

However, the budget is $87.2 million less than the total requests submitted by the individual institutions, Friday said Monday in presenting the money requests to the board.

The budget is much larger than the $388 million appropriated to higher education by the 1971 General Assembly, but is $66.3 million less than the total requests presented by the 16 institutions to the legislature.

Friday said the budget "represents the giant step forward which the General Assembly directed that we take."

The 1971 legislature created the Board of Governors to supervise and control the 16 universities. In past bienniums each institution presented a separate budget to the legislature.

Under the new system, a lump sum approach is used for the 16 schools. Therefore, it is impossible to say just how much money is being requested for each institution.

"No one, including the president, got all he desired in the first priority," said Friday, "yet out of this process we have been able to develop this recommended budget in a spirit of cooperation and good will which is indeed reassuring and augurs well for the future of the new organization."

The board's budget committee had recommended total requests of $570.1 million. But $1.5 million in student aid was added at the urging of member Watts Hill Jr. of Chapel Hill to offset a requested $2.7 million proposed tuition increase for in-state students.

It was noted that the tuition increases will vary with each institution but will average out to a 10 per cent hike throughout the university system. The budget already included $300,000 requested for direct student aid.

The total budget includes a base budget of $310.9 million to continue current operations, $18.4 million for academic salary increases at

$86.54 Day For Greenville Leaf Mart Yesterday

The Greenville tobacco market averaged $86.54 per hundred pounds for leaf sold yesterday, a decrease of 26 cents per hundred from last Thursday's average of $86.80.

The market sold 479,506 pounds of tobacco yesterday for $414,953.

Wilson had the highest average of the seven markets now operating on the Eastern Belt. That market sold 453,454 pounds of leaf for $394,206, for an average of $86.93.

The Kinston market was next with an average of $86.87 per hundred pounds.

The Farmville tobacco market continued to sell full daily allotments yesterday.

According to Louis Williams, sales supervisor for the Farmville market, the volume of sales consisted mostly of primings and lugs with a slight increase in the volume of nondescript grades yesterday.

"Less cutters showed on the market yesterday than any previous sale day this year," Williams noted. "Bidding continued strong from all firms represented."

Williams said the top price of 87 cents is being paid for practically all grades of primings and lugs and approximately 95 per cent of all grades are bringing several cents above support price.

To date, the Stabilization Corporation has not received one pound of tobacco on the Farmville market. Receipts for the fourth sales day last year totaled 4.21 per cent of gross sales.

The Farmville market yesterday sold 248,956 pounds of tobacco for an average of $86.70 per hundred pounds.

A total of 2,679,428 pounds of leaf were sold on the Eastern Belt yesterday for an average of $86.74 per hundred pounds.

Season totals for the Eastern Belt include 10,998,059 pounds of leaf going for $9,500,590, for a season average of $86.38 per hundred pounds.

The other markets in the Eastern Belt are scheduled to begin sales on Aug. 22.

A tabulation of the various markets in the Eastern Belt, as compiled by the Federal-State Market News Service, includes:

MARKET	POUNDS	DOLLARS	AVERAGE
Farmville	248,956	$215,839	$86.70

McGovern Has Fresh Support Of Labor Group

By LEE BYRD
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Blessed with fresh union support, Sen. George McGovern begins a swing through the Midwest today amid indications he may soon temper his controversial tax-reform program.

The four-day tour calls for stops in Ohio, Wisconsin and downstate Illinois, and unofficially includes a not-so-coincidental crossing of paths with Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley.

The Democratic presidential nominee got a spirit-bolstering sendoff for the second major jaunt of his troubled campaign when 25 AFL-CIO unions announced Monday they had formed a "National Labor Committee" to back his candidacy.

At the same time, McGovern signed up two veteran economists, Charles Schultze and Walter Heller, as he began considering revisions of his tax, welfare and employment proposals.

Heller was chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, and Schultze was LBJ's budget director. Both are generally more conservative than other McGovern economists.

The pair met with the candidate for nearly an hour. Neither would comment specifically on what advice was offered, but Heller said McGovern is entertaining the idea of replacing his much-assailed proposal to supplement the income of every American with a $1,000 yearly cash grant.

McGovern later greeted a number of the union officials responsible for organizing the new labor coalition, including Joseph Kennan of The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Joseph Beirne of The Communications Workers, Floyd Smith of The International Association of Machinists and Paul Jennings of The International Union of Electrical Workers.

Meanwhile, McGovern's running-mate, Sargent Shriver, made a strong pitch for labor votes in West Virginia Monday.

"The working man's wages are frozen, but he is still paying higher prices," Shriver said at Wheeling. "At the other end of the scale, large corporations are getting special treatment."

Shriver is on a week's tour that includes stops in California, Denver and Houston.

McGovern's itinerary calls for a handshaking tour in Youngstown, Ohio, today, along with an address to Local 1112 of the United Auto Workers at nearby Lordstown.

Hope Missing Girl Just Scared, Hiding

WALNUT COVE, N.C. (AP) — Authorities are hoping that 9-year-old Brenda Lea Mabe is just "hid somewhere around here, scared to death."

They are afraid she may have been kidnapped by the same man or men who fatally stabbed her mother, Mrs. Betty Greene Mabe, 35, Walnut Cove widow, and a Winston-Salem man, William L. Ernst, 49.

Their mutilated, blood-spattered bodies were found in Mrs. Mabe's house by a neighbor Monday. Brenda Lea was not there, and a day-long search failed to find her or her dog.

Auto Makers Called To Talk '73 Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — At President Nixon's request, representatives of the Big Four auto manufacturers have been called to the White House to discuss their 1973 prices with Donald Rumsfeld, director of the Cost of Living Council.

While spokesmen for the White House and the Cost of Living Council would not say that "jawboning" was under way to keep the proposed auto price increases down, they did say that the discussion involved the impact of auto prices on the economy.

Rumsfeld arranged a meeting with Ford representatives at the White House today, a spokesman for the Cost of Living Council said. He had met there Monday with representatives of the Chrysler Corp., General Motors Corp. and American Motors Corp.

The Big Four have applied to the council for proposed price increases on 1973 cars. Chrysler, Ford and General Motors have asked for increases averaging $85 to $90 a car.

Navy Jets Hit In N. Vietnam

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command said Navy jets attacked seven targets in the Thanh Hoa area of North Vietnam Monday, but it denied charges by Hanoi that a business center and the cathedral area were bombed.

Asked about a North Vietnamese claim that 100 civilians were killed or wounded in the raid, a spokesman said: "I have nothing on it."

The command denied any strikes inside the city limits of Thanh Hoa, a port 80 miles south of Hanoi. It said the targets attacked were a highway bridge, a fuel storage depot and two anti-aircraft sites a mile north of Thanh Hoa, a gun site a mile to the northeast and an army barracks and another fuel storage depot a mile and a half southwest of the city.

The U.S. Command reported more than 190 strikes against the North Monday and said overcast skies forced cancellation of scores of others. But in South Vietnam more than a score of U.S. B52s made heavy raids against North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troop concentrations to the northwest and southwest of Saigon for the second successive night. At least 600 tons of bombs were dropped at points 24 to 35 miles from the capital.

The South Vietnamese command claimed 97 enemy troops were killed with no South Vietnamese losses in fighting near the Cambodian town of Kompong Rau, just across the border 50 miles west of Saigon. The Saigon command said its forces captured 19 weapons, including three Soviet Strela anti-aircraft missiles, and one ton of ammunition.

More heavy fighting was reported on the northern front between Quang Tri and Hue, 30 miles to the south. The Saigon command said 61 North Vietnamese and three South Vietnamese were killed Monday and 45 government troops were wounded.

Plans For Regional Development Center Approved

By TOM FOREMAN, JR.
Reflector Staff Writer
Tom Willis, director of the North Carolina Regional Development Institute, brought plans for a new Regional Development Center before the board of the Redevelopment Commission last night. The Commission approved the plans for the building.

Willis, who presented the architect's design, said that the building would cost in the area of $500,000. The building would contain a 196-seat auditorium, which Willis stated would be usable not only for the Regional Development Institute, but could be utilized by groups in the Greenville area.

J.C. Lamm, assistant director of the commission, gave a report on the budget control statements and the balance sheets. Lamm suggested that two resolutions be adopted. Both resolutions provide an amendatory contract for loan and grant contracts in two redevelopment projects, N.C. R-61 and N.C. R-66. The commission passed both resolutions.

Real Estate officer Kirby Boyd reported to the commission that two parcels of land in Newtown had received few bids since August 1. He said that the two parcels could be sold later and that they should wait until more offers were made.

Deputy Director Ty Wagner made a report on the status of the progress of CBD. Wagner stated that all land for the Loop Road right-of-way from Fifth Street around to Evans Street had been acquired. A total of 21 houses had been demolished in the process of clearing the land.

Boyd also proposed contract revisions in N.C.R-66 (central business district). The commission approved the revisions.

Wagner also commented that several stores in the CBD redevelopment expressed a desire to be re-located so that they could continue business operations in Greenville. He stated that land should be set aside so that these businesses would have reasonable space to relocate.

Wagner also reported that land had been cleared for a section of the Loop Road and that the Greenville Utilities Commission would soon be working to place storm

New Fall Television Show Should Interest Cooks And Chemists

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — A science education program scheduled for cable television this fall should interest cooks as well as chemists.

Vicki Cobb, its star, is a former secondary school teacher who sometimes uses food and recipes to demonstrate scientific principles.

But don't call her the Julia Child of the chemistry lab.

In a telephone interview from Croton-on-Hudson, N.Y., Mrs. Cobb said:

"I wouldn't describe (my recipes) as gourmet dining in any sense. We try to keep from making food too elaborate. But there's so much you can teach about science through food."

For instance, she uses salad dressing to demonstrate suspension of a liquid in a liquid; two kinds of syrup to show, respectively, how sugar decomposes and how some solutions don't crystallize.

She churns butter to demonstrate how fat coalesces from a suspension, and uses celery to show how water moves up stems.

Edible Experiments
All these experiments and more are in her recently published book, "Science Experiments You Can Eat" (Lippincott). She said she'll use some of them in her syndicated series, "The Science Game," which is due to start late in September on Teleprompter cable TV in 28 states and Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Can.

She added that the 39 experiments in the book cover several branches of science, including organic and inorganic chemistry, physiology, biochemistry, and physiological chemistry. They were tested with the help of several young neighbors who ranged in age from 13 to 17.

"They really were turned on by the title and the illustrations (drawings by Peter Lippman)," she said. Her age, 33, and her enthusiasm undoubtedly helped, too.

"Kids will eat everything they make, just because they made it," said Mrs. Cobb. Even yogurt, spinach and other vegetables.

Her spinach experiment demonstrates color changes in chlorophyll—but she also gets in a plug for good nutrition by pointing out that great chefs have created spinach dishes that are considered a rare treat.

Limp Spinach

She theorizes that children dislike spinach because poor preparation often turns it a limp, unappetizing gray-green.

Mrs. Cobb, whose husband, Edward, teaches experimental psychology at Barnard College here, said she chose to use food and cooking to teach science because young people already know how to use kitchen implements. They need no science background to learn the principles of it, and food provides great motivation for the junior high school age group she works with.

"I try to make every experiment open-ended so that it will lead to a bigger experiment," she said. "The (television) show will not be limited to food."

Nagging Is Good For Your Health

ROTTERDAM, Netherlands

— Joop Verdonck, who just celebrated his 100th birthday, reported at his ice-cream party that nagging wives are responsible for his long, healthy life. "I've had three of them, and they kept me alive by nagging me to drink and eat less, exercise more and take an easier job when the tensions of work spoiled my good temper," he said. Verdonck does not admire wives who are afraid to discipline their husbands. "That's what wives are for," he insisted. "Nag your mate onto the healthy track, and then love him to pieces."

She Wants Notice Of Visits

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-R. V. New York, Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: How should one handle relatives who travel thru several states to visit you without giving you any notice.

A couple of years ago, my husband's brother and his wife came unannounced to visit us for several days. We both work and I was inconvenienced. I asked them to please let us know when they were coming next time so I could make plans and be more prepared.

Well, they showed up again this year without preparing us, which made me angry. They said, "We don't like to promise to be anywhere on a specific date because we don't want to be a slave to a schedule on our vacation."

On this last visit of theirs I was sick and did not feel like cooking, entertaining or visiting. I was totally unprepared for this unexpected company.

When they left I told them if they could not give me a few days notice, not to come again. My husband thought I was rude. These people read "DEAR ABBY," so please print this.

ANGRY IN TEXAS

DEAR ANGRY: Here's your letter. I hope it helps.

DEAR ABBY: My neighbor has three very nice daughters, ages 9, 10 and 11. No sons. This lady stops and visits with me when I am out in the yard and she seems to be a patient and conscientious mother.

I have a four-year-old son and a 13-year-old daughter who play with the neighbor's children. Recently, when my two were at this neighbor's house, she said to my daughter, "I wish I had a son. Would you ask your mother if she would let you bring your little brother here so my daughters and I could give him a bath. Then my girls could see what a little boy looks like. That would help to satisfy their curiosity."

I really can't see any reason to refuse this request, Abby, but I'd like your opinion about it.

MASS. MOM

DEAR MOM: If the girls just happened to be around when you were bathing your son, their natural curiosity could be satisfied, and I see nothing wrong with it. But I wouldn't set up a bath at your neighbor's so the girls could "help," and thereby satisfy their curiosity.

DEAR ABBY: I could have written that letter from the teen-aged girl who was head over heels in love with an "older man" who was separated from his wife.

I know exactly how that girl felt. At 16 I was in her shoes. My dream man was divorced and the father of small children. I was inexperienced, and thrilled beyond words that an older man [of 26!] would even look at me. I lost my heart and my head to him, not realizing that what he saw in me was a free babysitter and a bed partner when he felt the need. And I didn't cost him a dime.

My love affair with him was my first. At the same time, it put me in social limbo. Boys my own age seemed like infants. I missed the school proms, and the fun of being 16. It made a liar out of me, a sneak, and it robbed me of my last carefree days of youth.

What did I get instead? The constant fear of unwanted pregnancy. (I was lucky, it never happened.) Alienation from my parents who really loved me, and two years devoted strictly to him. I also got the very real pain of losing my first love, for would you believe that right in the middle of our big love affair he married somebody else!

That was seven years ago. And it was the best thing

Laird Urges Rejection Of Planned U.S. Weakness

By STERLING F. GREEN
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird today called on the Republican party to "reject policies of planned weakness, of white-flag waving, of begging" and to give full endorsement to President Nixon's foreign strategy.

Youth Arrested By Ayden Police

AYDEN—Sammy C. Perkins, 18, of 413 Vance St., Greenville, was charged with possessing marijuana by Ayden Police here last night.

Chief Tommy Burney said Perkins was arrested in South Ayden about 7:20 p.m. after officers found 16 marijuana cigarettes and two small bags containing marijuana in his possession.

Perkins was placed in jail under $2,500 bond pending hearing in District Court in Ayden September 14.

The Pentagon chief told the GOP National Convention's Platform Committee the President has maintained the nation's strength while still moving toward meaningful relaxations of world tensions.

Laird did not mention Democratic presidential nominee Sen. George McGovern directly, but he made clear he was attacking the political opposition.

"Our progress could quickly evaporate if we allowed our military strength to wane and if we had leadership that was not firm, calm, realistic and experienced," Laird declared. "It is especially essential," he continued, "That the nation be led by a president and commander in chief who does not waver under pressure or articulate confusing, teeter-totter views.

"President Nixon has demonstrated the ability to devise sound policies and to successfully pursue them under the most strenuous kind of pressure."

Besides Laird, appearing at today's hearing were Nixon's top economic advisers, who told the committee that federal spending must be curbed and Phase 2 economic controls maintained to prevent a resurgence of inflation and higher taxes.

"Price and wage controls need to be continued and improved for the time being," the President's Council of Economic Advisers said. "But we need to look forward to getting rid of them."

"An important reason for great care in adhering to non-inflationary fiscal and monetary policy is to permit the controls to end without major disruption of the economy."

The economic advisers who appeared in addition to Laird before the 108-member Platform Committee were Herbert Stein, Ezra Solomon and Marina N. Whitman. The committee's draft platform goes to the Republican National Convention, which opens here Monday.

The council's statement was presented in advance of testimony before the 108-member GOP Platform Committee by the three council members, Chairman Herbert Stein, Ezra Solomon and Marina N. Whitman. The committee's draft platform goes to the Republican National Convention which opens here Monday.

The council's statement supported in effect President Nixon's call to Congress for a $250 billion ceiling on budget outlays for fiscal 1973 and his warning that he will veto programs that he considers to involve excessive spending.

"The key here is the federal budget," the council statement said, "and our effort must be to prevent an explosion of spending which will make inevitable both more inflation and more taxes."

The council painted a rosy picture of the economic outlook, declaring that the economy "is rising at an extraordinary rate — in the most recent quarter this was twice as fast as a normal." The gains promise a substantial further reduction in the 5.5 per cent rate of unemployment, the statement said.

"The economy is well on its way to a healthy combination of high employment and reasonable price stability. But we are not there yet ... The near-term task is to prevent a resurgence of inflationary pressure while keeping the economy rising steadily," the council added.

Services will start nightly at eight o'clock and the public is invited to attend.

Big Fish Kill On Mountain Fall Catawba River

BELMONT, N.C. (AP) — G. B. Raynor, Gaston County wildlife officer, says about 1,000 dead dead shad, bream and bass were picked up Saturday along a mile stretch of the Catawba River between Belmont and Mount Holly.

He has called in state biologists at Concord to test the water in the river and Lake Wylie. Raynor said he noticed that the water in the area of the fish kill was a blackish color, much darker than usual.

Mountain Fall Kills Tar Heel

MOOSE, Wyo. (AP) — Joe Hogsed, 19, of Kinston, N. C., died Sunday while climbing the jagged peaks of Grand Teton National Park.

The National Park Service said he and his climbing partner, Betty Lu, 21, of Ann Arbor, Mich., were about 250 feet below the summit of 10,546-foot Summery Spire when a storm struck. Hogsed tried to descend with ropes, and fell 500 feet.

Miss Lu spent the night on a narrow ledge before being rescued.

Soviet Trade Is Most Natural

The magnitude of the improvement in Soviet-American relations can be seen in the deal shaping up for the Soviets to purchase 250 to 400 million bushels of wheat from the U.S.

Officials say this is as much as a fourth of a year's U.S. crop. It would amount to nearly half of the present U.S. wheat surplus.

The deal, if it comes off, will be a boon for a number of private concerns which are involved in the transaction and it would open up a vast new market for our nation's wheat farmers.

There are those who feel that selling wheat to Russia is an unwise move for the United States in that it is helping an alien system. But what could be more in keeping with a capitalistic system than to find new markets for a product which we are producing beyond our needs?

It is likely that the Communist and Capitalistic worlds will have to co-exist for many years into the future. Neither can afford to do without half the world as a market for its products.

Russia has oil and gas we need to solve our energy shortages and we have wheat to meet its needs. It only makes sense that trade takes place between the two nations for the good of all.

U.S. Slowly Moving To An Inevitable Change

The United States is slow in moving nearer a change which is inevitable.

The Senate Commerce Committee has approved a bill establishing a National Metric Conversion Board. It will plan for switching to the metric system in this country.

Since the metric system is used throughout the world it is not a question of whether, but when, our country will switch.

In a few years we will no longer discuss measurements in present terms. The metric system will prevail.

Bowles Family Is Running Too

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — When Daddy's in the race for governor, it keeps the whole family on the run.

For Hargrove (Skipper) Bowles Jr., that means a campaign force of wife, a couple of daughters, and a son and daughter-in-law.

As a team, they licked a lot of stamps, shook a lot of hands, and traveled Seeing Dad As Governor They didn't grow up with the idea that Daddy would someday be governor, although they're now convinced he will be.

Bowles, a Greensboro businessman, got into active state politics about a dozen years ago. Terry Sanford, a friend and UNC roommate, ran for governor and Bowles helped out. That led to a post in the Sanford administration.

Once initiated, Bowles decided to run for office himself. He was elected to the legislature, one term in the House and two in the Senate.

In a family conversation, Holly recalled, he asked if he should involve them in the pressures of politics. "Mother told him he had an obligation to contribute, if he saw problems and had the time to give in trying to solve them," she said.

"He's always done things for people. I think he decided he could help the most people as governor. He asked what we thought. We said it was a great idea," Erskine said.

thousands of miles to help Bowles win the Democratic nomination. They're gearing up again now for the fall general election.

Paradoxically, a campaign sends the candidate's family off in different directions and draws them closer together. "We're working for a common goal," explained Erskine Bowles. "So if we don't see each other often, we know everybody's involved in the same thing."

He came home from New York and a job with an investment banking firm to be office manager for the Raleigh state headquarters, bringing his wife of a year, Crandall, to add to the staff. Sisters Holly (Mrs. John Geil) and Martha interrupted studies at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill to join the campaign.

The one who's missing the excitement is Hargrove III, a stock broker in Greenville, S.C. who couldn't get away from job and family (including a new son, Hargrove IV).

Campaigning, family style, is the trend in modern politics. The decorous 19th century candidate took to the stump alone, leaving his wife and children at home.

Nowadays, the mass media feeds the public curiosity about office seekers. Voters want to see the candidate's progeny as well as hear him speak on the issues.

What they see in the Bowles bunch is a crew as good looking and lively as the cast of a TV family series. They're sold on the candidate and eager to tell why he's the man for the job.

Holly and Martha told everybody who'd listen on a couple of crossstate tours last spring. They'll be traveling again this fall after getting registered for classes at Chapel Hill.

Others see the candidate; they see the man. They remember the warm, funny things between a father and his children. Like the eyes game; when they were kids he would cover his face except for the eyes and ask, "Am I happy or sad?"

"He says so much with his eyes. You can look at him and just know he's friendly and interested in you," said Holly.

Once, away at school and lonely, she got 36 Valentines all signed with different names but in a familiar handwriting. "Daddy always did things like that," she said.

"He's never too busy for us," added Martha. "He asked me if I didn't want him to help me paint my house in Chapel Hill. You know something? He would, too, if I asked him."

As a father, Bowles used discipline and reason. He taught the value of money and the worth of work, and encouraged the children to come to their own decisions.

"Dad always told us, 'If you have to wonder whether your Mother and I would think something you're going to do is right or wrong, it's probably wrong,'" said Erskine.

"He never promised us anything he couldn't deliver. If he couldn't do something, he'd say so and why. But if he said he'd do it, you could count on him."

That's the kind of governor he'll be, the son added.

Jesse's Story Hints Switch

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — The strange ways of the Rev. Jesse Jackson, the young black leader who has become the stormy petrel of Illinois Democratic politics, were demonstrated two weeks ago in a private telephone call he placed to a key supporter of Dan Walker, Democratic nominee for governor of Illinois.

This was Jackson's story: The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) had dispatched an investigating team to Chicago and were flinging unjust accusations at him. But the IRS agents offered to leave him alone if he endorsed Republican Gov. Richard Ogilvie's campaign for reelection. So, it was implied, don't be surprised if Jesse Jackson winds up supporting Ogilvie.

The story has spread quickly through Democratic and black circles in Chicago, and such is the tendency of Democrats to believe the worst about Federal investigative agencies under President Nixon that Jackson's story is accepted as the truth. But IRS officials firmly deny offering any such scandalous deal and their denials have some basis.

Although the IRS is prohibited by law from revealing individual cases, two separate sources in the Justice Department with a record for reliability told us there is no special investigative team in Chicago and there is absolutely no active tax investigation of Jackson in progress or any case against him pending. The IRS is probing a former close associate of Jackson in Chicago, but Jackson's relations with this man are now distant.

When we asked Jackson whether the IRS requested him to endorse Ogilvie, he replied: "That's nothing but character assassination." As to whether the IRS is investigating him, he told us: "I'm sure they are."

Jackson said he had not yet decided who to support for governor but had "far more contact" with Republican Ogilvie than Democrat Walker. Moreover, he described himself as "far more inclined" to Republican Sen. Charles H. Percy than to his Democratic opponent, Rep. Roman Pucinski. And, of course, Jackson opposes the reelection in Cook County (Chicago) of State's Atty. Edward Hanrahan, a law-and-order Democrat.

That means that Jackson, seated as a delegate at the Democratic national convention while Mayor Richard J. Daley was tossed out, is supporting only Sen. George McGovern for President among major candidates on the Democratic ticket in Chicago. Even there relations are strained, with McGovern's managers weary of Jackson's constant demands for campaign funds.

A footnote: Although he trails Walker badly, Ogilvie is not anxious for Jackson's endorsement. The governor's political lieutenants once cultivated Jackson as a way to break into the black vote but now feel he probably is a greater liability than an asset in Illinois.

A Congressional Defector The mushrooming defection of Jewish Democratic voters in New York has now reached the halls of Congress—specifically Rep. Bert Podell of Brooklyn.

At a recent reception held here by Ambassador Yitzhak Rabin of Israel, Podell stated flatly he planned to vote for President Nixon. Another New York Democratic Congressman, Rep. James Scheuer of the Bronx, was standing nearby and advised Podell to be more careful about what he said. Podell replied that he did not care who heard him.

Podell was considerably more discreet when we questioned him about the conversation at the Israeli embassy. Podell told us he had merely said many of his Democratic constituents in Brooklyn were defecting to Mr. Nixon, adding that he planned to vote for McGovern. But several eyewitnesses agree that Podell clearly affirmed his intention to vote for the Republican President.

During the June Democratic primary, Podell was outraged over campaign literature showing his reform opponent and McGovern photographed together and by McGovern palm cards passed out endorsing Podell's opponent. Podell could not even arrange a personal meeting with McGovern.

Strength For Today

COUNT THE COST There are few things in the world in which people put more stock, seek after more avidly, or appear to take more delight in once they have secured it, than social position. To be in the social register of a large city, to be the acknowledged social leader in some village or small town, to be bid for one of the best fraternities or sororities as soon as one sets foot on campus—these are things for which the heart, mind and even the bodies of many individuals seem to hunger.

There is no denying, of course, that social position has its advantages. Who would not prefer to be on the top of the heap than on the bottom? Yet if one has to pay too much to get on the top of the heap, than the whole enterprise is a dismal disappointment. People break their health trying to attain social standing. They lose their happiness when someone succeeds in crowding them out of line or stands brazenly and expansively at the head of the procession and will let no one pass.

If social position comes as the result of natural grace, of ability, of goodness, of character, then it is something ardently to be desired. But when it costs the burning pain of jealousy, or the relinquishment of honor, it is of the devil in all his devilishness.

Ask yourself the question: How much does social position cost? Is it worth the cost?

Stop Subsidizing Strikes

The Dow Chemical Company filed a lawsuit out in Detroit the other day that merits the support of businessmen and ordinary taxpayers across the country. If the company prevails, we may see an end to the lunatic proposition by which employees, in effect, are compelled to finance a strike against themselves.

Dow's immediate purpose is to halt payment of unemployment compensation to employees at its Bay City plant. The workers went on strike last February. According to the company's complaint, filed in United States District Court against the Michigan Employment Security Commission, 135 of the 166 strikers have managed to qualify themselves for payments averaging $79.07 a week.

If the Bay City strike is at all typical of the recent trend in such affairs, the $79.07 in unemployment compensation is merely one wheel on a gravy train. A striker who puts his mind to free-loading, and really works at his task, may also qualify for general assistance, medical assistance, food stamps, and aid to families with dependent children.

This maddening state of affairs is ably reported in a book-length study just published under auspices of the Industrial Research Unit of the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce. Prepared by Armand J. Thieblot, Jr., and Ronald M. Cowin, the report provides an eye-opening account of developments that, from a striker's point of view, have taken most of the sting from a strike.

Until a few years ago, a prolonged strike was regarded on both sides of the bargaining table as something close to calamity. The employer stood to lose profits, orders and customers while much of his overhead continued; the employee stood to lose his own earnings and his union's reserves. Economic hardships were roughly balanced one against the other.

As the Thieblot-Cowin study makes clear, that rough balance has been thrown completely out of kilter. The 71-day strike at General Motors, in the fall of 1970, saw a dramatic change in the force of economic pressures. In Michigan's Genesee County alone, 30,000 strikers instantly obtained food stamps. As the strike wore on, other thousands qualified for AFDC and general assistance benefits. In New York, more than $5 million in unemployment compensation went to striking GM workers.

Other Editors Say Through The Roof

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Toward the end of the session, the Senate has a tendency to add all manner of proposals as "riders" to some important bills. This year, a little earlier than usual, there is apparently a real danger that the House-passed Revenue Sharing bill (H.R. 14370) is the chosen vehicle. The result could be a real monstrosity, one that could send federal spending the rest of the way through the roof.

Consider the situation: First, the revenue-sharing bill itself proposes some $30 billion in spending over the next five years, under a plan that bypasses the normal appropriations review process, and includes other defects.

The Senate Finance Committee is writing its version of the bill and seems likely to make substantial changes, including the distribution formula under which the funds will be distributed. Committee Chairman Long has said the House formula reflected the composition of the House, and the Senate plan will reflect the composition of the Senate.

Presumably, this means more emphasis will be placed on state and rural aid at the expense of the cities. The Committee, too, seems ready to drop the block-grant approach in favor of a pure revenue-sharing, "no-string attached" approach, and to make other changes, none of which would correct basic weaknesses in the bill.

Long is now talking of other possibilities; for example attaching to the revenue-sharing bill about $4 billion in additional Social-Security benefits. These boosts would come on top of the 20 per cent benefit increase already voted by Congress.

Additionally, Sen. Long has suggested that provisions in H.R. 1 that would provide $26 billion in 1974 in fiscal relief for the states to help cover costs of welfare might be withdrawn from that bill and added to revenue-sharing.

These and other similar threats may not materialize. But there is certainly a danger that they will within the next week or so, since the goal of the Finance Committee is to get the bill to the Senate floor before the recess for Republican Convention begins Aug. 18.

Business Booms Under Controls

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — It is now one full year since President Nixon, faced with persistent inflation, joblessness and foreign payments deficits, devalued the dollar and imposed controls on the economy.

The President's action was a stunning defeat for the philosophy of laissez-faire.

The fact was that the American people were disturbed by theories that seemed not to work, by promises of economic turnarounds that led straight ahead—and down. Surveys showed public confidence waning.

The American economy was in trouble, domestically and internationally.

Practical measures, no matter how abhorrent to basic beliefs, seemed called for.

Have the results been worthwhile? Millions of words will be written in an attempt to demonstrate or deny that this is the case and, to a point, some evidence can be offered to suit either viewpoint. The rate of inflation has dropped to about 3.5 per cent, but that still is enough to cut the dollar in half in 20 years. Joblessness has decreased from near 6 per cent, but 5.5 per cent of the labor force is still unemployed.

Still, the domestic economy is expanding, corporations are making money, people are building their savings and a housing boom continues. The government still hasn't learned how to cut spending, and the continued budget deficits and trade imbalances conceivably could lead to a further dollar devaluation even before the word monetary system is rebuilt.

In broad summary, the evidence seems to indicate that the emergency decisions of a year ago have resulted in immediate practical gains for the administration.

The final evaluation of those moves, however, remains to be measured by both future events and future historians. The most important measurement will be of the long-term changes in the American way of life.

Will emergency regulations enacted under the great pressure of immediate problems become a permanent part of the American outlook, accepted as the new ethic, woven into the philosophy,

The death list mounted to twenty-two today as faming communities near the Gulf Coast surveyed widespread damage from the tropical hurricane that raked the vicinity of Houston and Galveston Saturday night.

The memory of the first white child born to English-speaking parents in the new world, whose fate is one of the unsolved mysteries of history, brought a distinguished gathering to old Fort Raleigh near Manteo today. The occasion was the annual tribute to Virginia Dare, who was born to a mother in Sir Walter Raleigh's Lost Colony of Roanoke Island. The date usually August 18, was advanced three days in order to permit the attendance of members of a congressional commission.

156 Killed In Tobacco Farmers Get No Extra Money Air Disaster

BERLIN (AP) — An East German jetliner carrying vacationers to the Black Sea crashed and burned shortly after taking off from East Berlin Monday night, and all 156 persons aboard were killed. It was the second worst disaster in the history of commercial aviation.

ADN, the East German news agency, did not identify the victims, but the Soviet-built Ilyushin 62 was on a charter flight operated by Interflug, the East German government airline, and there was no indication that any Westerners were aboard.

ADN said the plane was bound for Burgas, on the Bulgarian coast, and crashed near Koenigs-Wusterhausen, a suburb of East Berlin.

Otto Arndt was ordered to determine the cause of the crash, the brief dispatch said.

Travelers from East Germany said the red and silver jet exploded in the air. West Berlin police said they had an unconfirmed report that it developed engine trouble shortly after taking off from Schoenefeld, East Berlin's airport, and crashed while trying to return.

It was the worst commercial air disaster ever reported in Europe. Commercial aviation's worst crash occurred July 30, 1971, when 162 persons died in the collision over Japan of a Japanese airliner and a military jet.

RALEIGH (AP) — Offhand you'd think the grower of flue-cured tobacco never had it so good and is going to eat high off the hog.

Growers are getting better than $85.50 per hundred pounds for their leaf, or $8 per hundred better than they got last season.

Buyers are bidding so frantically that last Wednesday none of the leaf sold on the big North Carolina Eastern Belt went to the Stabilization Corp. under the government price support program. It was the first time in history that has occurred.

But the flue-cured grower may not be as well off as you think. If you multiply the $85.50 average he is currently receiving for his leaf by the 651 million pounds Tar Heel farmers are producing this year, you come up with a gross income of $553 million.

That's roughly the same as the $552 million gross the flue-cured farmers received last year and far below the $571 million they got in 1970.

"So far as what the farmer is realizing out of his crop, he is not going to wind up with any more spending money than he had last year and 'he's not as well off as a lot of people think he is,'" said John Cyrus, coordinator of crop services for the state Department of Agriculture.

Cyrus pointed out that the farmer's production costs, particularly labor, keep going up, and if he had not received a big price increase "he would have wound up with a deficit as far as net income is concerned."

What brought on the big increase in flue-cured tobacco prices? It's just a simple case of supply and demand, says Cyrus.

"We've got a situation where the supply is reducing and the demand is increasing," Cyrus explained. It has created a situation where the companies' stocks are on the low side and the demand is on the high side, and they're trying to get enough tobacco to fill the gap between supply and demand."

Cyrus also pointed out that the 1972 crop has been of unusually good quality so far. He noted that the primings which grow at the bottom of the tobacco stalk "are cleaner and contain less dead tobacco than you normally find. As a result there is very little spread between the tobacco so far as usability is concerned. As a result, there has been very little price spread between different grades of leaf."

Cyrus said that the cool dry weather which prevailed at the start of the 1972 growing season was "a blessing in disguise."

He said that as a result the top of the tobacco plants did not develop so fast as to prevent the sun from getting to the bottom leaves.

This permitted the bottom leaves to fill out and mature," he said. "That is why we are getting such good tobacco off the bottom leaves of the plants."

"Then tropical storm Agnes came along to break several weeks of drought and dropped enough rain to fill out the top of the plant," he said. "With plenty of moisture, the top filled out into what appears to be a real good smoking crop of tobacco."

Lansche Named To '72 Edition

Raleigh attorney John E. Lansche has been named to the 1972 volume of "Outstanding Young Men of America."

Son of Mrs. Virginia Lansche of Greenville and the late Dr. F.E. Lansche, he graduated from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and from Law School there.

He is an active member of the Raleigh Jaycees and is chairman of Young Republicans of North Carolina.

Lansche was named to the 1972 volume by the Board of Advisors of the well-known national sarrds volume.

Lansche has received an announcement of his award and a certificate in recognition of the honor.

Landon Directed First Of New Bonanza Shows

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It was the first day of shooting on the 14th season of "Bonanza," and the cast and crew were understandably tense.

The company had resumed shooting without the jovial presence of Dan Blocker, who had starred as Hoss Cartwright from the beginning of the television series. He died May 13 of a blood clot in his lungs.

"Nobody said anything at first, which was a mistake," co-star Michael Landon recalls. "You could feel the uneasiness all day."

"Finally at the end of the day, each of us made a speech, and we all broke down. That was good. It acted as a catharsis and allowed us to get on with our work."

Landon recently finished directing a two-hour segment of "Bonanza" which will open the new season on Sept. 12. The show is called "Forever," and it's a love story that Landon had written for Blocker.

After Blocker's death, Landon patterned the script to fit himself as Little Joe. It's a bit-sweet mixture of love, marriage and tragedy, with Bonnie Bedelia playing the Cartwright bride.

"The script is virtually the same as when I first wrote it for Dan," said Landon. "I added about three lines to tell about the death of Hoss. That's all that needs to be said. It's not necessary to discuss his death; you wouldn't do that in real life. The important things remain silent."

Mike Landon seems to be still in the process of adjusting to Blocker's death. They worked closely for 13 years, spending long days together on stages and locations.

"Our relationship was very close, although we seldom saw each other off the set," Landon remarked. "That was only natural. When you're together so much, you run out of jokes at the end of the day."

"We ran into real trouble about the seventh year; there were no more jokes to tell. Then we realized we had forgotten the ones we told each other seven years before, so we started all over again."

Both Landon and Blocker faced the problem of maintaining their enthusiasm for the series during its long run.

"I think Dan might have been bored until he found enough outside interests to occupy him," the actor added. Landon solved his problem by writing and directing several "Bonanza" segments each season.

wheelchair, or enough money to run away from home.

I wrote with some horror recently of a Manhattan store that charges $3.39 a pound for veal cutlets. A reader now tells me that he knows of a place where they charge $3.79. I told him to keep it a secret—and maybe they'll go out of business.

The other day I heard of a new and supposedly surefire way of stopping a girl who is sneezing or hiccuping. Have her sit down, look overhead fixedly at a light bulb and say aloud nine times: "Every day my sex life is getting more and more interesting, and I wonder who I'll have to thank tomorrow!"

Whatever happened to films that have happy endings? Most of them now seem to try to be so true-to-life they wind up worse than life. Your trip to the movies is incomplete unless you bring along a crying towel.

1971, some striking dock workers with a normal take-home pay of $176 were getting $338 in public benefits.

In the view of the two Wharton scholars, the effect of all this is seriously to imbalance the collective bargaining process. As long as a striking worker is taking in from 60 to 100 percent of his normal income, there is little financial incentive toward reaching agreement. Inflationary settlements tend to result, and everyone gets hurt in the end.

Union spokesmen, of course, eloquently defend their "right" to food stamps, AFDC benefits, and all the rest. They see nothing wrong in the process by which an employee goes on strike, and then soaks his employer for unemployment compensation. This may be logical in the union view, but some of the rest of us will be reminded of the child who slew his mother and father and then pleaded for mercy as an orphan. If Dow's suit results in breaking up even part of the racket, a measure of common sense may be restored.

Scott Urges Church Unity

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott told the predominantly black General Baptist Convention of North Carolina Monday night the modern-day church needs strength and unity.

"There has never been a greater need" for unity, Scott said in a prepared talk. "One of the best ways to generate this is to start with a spirit of cooperation among yourselves, within your own state convention."

He added, "Your meetings here this week indicate a concern and determination to do just that."

Scott told the delegates "you have gone even beyond Baptist unity, participating in organizations and activities which are interdenominational in nature. You have shown by your actions that you want to work with all people of all races and creeds who desire brotherhood among men."

The governor said, "We in state government continue to depend upon leaders of this convention for advice and help in providing the best possible government for North Carolina."

We're not just picking grain. We're growing men.

When you get the best grain, you get the best bourbon.

So we have Squire Johnson. If corn is too wet, if barley's not to specification, he leaves it for the next customer. He only buys Balboa Rye. Anything else is okay for breakfast. Not bourbon.

But Squire's 63. One of these days, he's going to retire. Just like Hugh Moody will. He mixes our bourbon. And Sam Tierney, our blender.

So we're growing men. Men to take over.

They're not ready now. Now, they're still growing. Not ready to pick.

But when it comes time to harvest, we're going to have a beautiful crop. $4.50 Fifth

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices simmered down today after two consecutive sessions of heated gains. Trading was fairly active.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 5.42 to 968.09. On the New York Stock Exchange declining issues moved into a small lead over advancing stocks.

The Dow average had gained 20.62 points in the two previous sessions, to reach a 1972 high of 973.51.

Auto issues were lower and brokers said investors seemed to be nervous over the move of the Cost of Living Council to persuade major car makers to withdraw their requests for price increases on 1973 models.

Chrysler was trading at 31, down 1/2, Ford was off 1/2 to 66 1/4, and General Motors off 1/2 to 76 3/4.

Oil stocks continued to be active, but prices were mixed. Royal Dutch Petroleum led the active list on the strength of blocks of 107,000 shares and 65,

Stickley Won't Leave Board Despite Rouse

RALEIGH (AP) — Charlotte businessman Jack Stickley says he has no intention of resigning from the state Board of Elections in the wake of criticism by State Republican Chairman Frank Rouse.

Stickley said this Monday after Rouse criticized Gov. Bob Scott for appointing Stickley, a Republican, without consulting the state GOP executive committee.

"I have no intention whatsoever of either resigning or reconsidering it unless the governor requests it," said Stickley.

Gov. Scott responded by saying, "Mr. Rouse generally doesn't consult with me on things he says and does and I didn't think I should consult with him."

Scott defended the choice of Stickley as a man of "great integrity."

Five Die In Car Collision Will Charge Bus Driver

BOLIVIA, N.C. (AP) — A mother and her three children from Norfolk, Va., and a man from Bolivia were killed Monday in the head-on collision of two cars.

They were Mrs. Sandra Hutto Matinshek, 33; and Nicolette, 10; Michael S., 8; and Christian B. Matinshek, 1, and Calvin Randolph, 41.

The accident occurred on U.S. 17 about two miles south of Bolivia, a town in Brunswick County in southeastern North Carolina 20 miles southwest of Wilmington.

State Highway Patrolman Lawrence Canipe reported that Mrs. Matinshek was driving one car and Randolph was a passenger in the other.

Three persons were injured, but their names were not available.

Hunt Proposes Rural Clinics

ASHEVILLE (AP) — The Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor, Jim Hunt, proposed Monday that a system of community clinics be established in rural areas.

Hunt told North Carolina fire chiefs at the opening session of their convention that the clinics would help provide adequate medical care for rural residents. He challenged the chiefs to consider how they could help get the clinics started in areas that do not have sufficient health care.

"It's going to take the same kind of spirit and the same kind of determination used to start and operate volunteer fire departments" to get such clinics going, Hunt said.

Wins Role In OSU Production

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Terry Tyson, grandson of Mrs. Leota Tyson of Greenville, N.C. has a lead role in the Ohio State University production of "The Mikado" by Gilbert and Sullivan.

Tyson was cast as the "Mikado" and is a junior at OSU majoring in voice. While attending school he was selected a member of the University Chorale, the smallest and most selective singing group of the School of Music here.

Tyson's voice range is baritone and he is being trained for opera performance by Paul Hickfang.

His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Joe Tyson of Henderson, N.C. Approximately 20 performances of the production are scheduled.

Mrs. Tyson has just returned home after viewing a performance of "The Mikado."

IRA Members Said Endangering Selves

BELFAST (AP) — A 19-year-old member of the Irish Republican Army is dying because the guerrillas are using a chemical for explosives that can be more dangerous than the bombers that the bombed, the British army said today.

The chemical is nitrobenzene, and IRA bomb factories have been stocking it for two months, a spokesman said. When the highly toxic substance is absorbed into the bloodstream, it produces symptoms of cancer, and "unfortunately there is no cure," he added.

The 19-year-old is critically ill in a Belfast hospital after handling the chemical. The spokesman said two others, a youth and a teen-age girl, were killed last week when a nitrobenzene bomb they were carrying in their car exploded prematurely.

The highly volatile compound is used in the manufacture—under strict precautions—of dyes, shoe polish and synthetic fibers. It gets into the system through a scratch, a cut or other break in the skin, but when exploded leaves no poisonous residue, the spokesman said.

The IRA was believed to have turned to nitrobenzene because army raids recently have been cutting off its regular explosives supplies. Some 13,000 pounds of blast substances have been seized in the two weeks since the army moved into the IRA areas of Belfast and Londonderry.

Commission Appointee

RALEIGH — A young Williamston lad, 14 year old James C. VanLandingham, has been appointed to the Governors Advocacy Commission on Children and Youth Monday.

VanLandingham, the only new appointee, replaces Joseph A. Collins of Fuquay-Varina.

The governor also reappointed three members—James W. Hargrove of Raleigh, Mrs. Henry M. Milgrom of Battleboro and Dr. J. Iverson Riddle of Morganton. Mrs. Milgrom and Dr. Riddle will serve four year terms ending July 1, 1976.

VanLandingham and Hargrove will serve two year terms ending July 1, 1974.

VanLandingham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. VanLandingham of Williamston, is a rising freshman in the Williamston High School.

"I received notice of the appointment on August 9," the youth stated, "and have not yet attended any of the meetings. I understand I will be working on the youth problems we have in the state."

Same Coverage For Convention

NEW YORK (AP) — The Republican National Convention in Miami Beach next week will get the same close attention from the three major television networks that they gave the Democrats' convention in that city last month.

NBC News and CBS News have announced plans to provide the same "gavel-to-gavel" coverage as they provided viewers when the Democrats met to pick their presidential and vice presidential nominees.

ABC has announced that it will once again employ the "unconventional coverage" format used for the Democratic convention. ABC shows highlights of the sessions and summaries are presented each convention evening.

Mitchell Again Assails Clark

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former U.S. Atty. Gen. John Mitchell delivered another blast at Ramsey Clark today, calling him "a naive American" who was "unwittingly duped into playing Hanoi's wretched game."

Clark, who was attorney general in the administration of President Johnson, returned from a two-week visit to North Vietnam with a plea to end the U.S. bombing.

"We are bombing the hell out of that little country and it has got to stop," Clark said at a news conference in San Francisco Monday. "There is no possible moral justification for it."

He also said he thought the North Vietnamese had become "disgusted" at continued emphasis by Americans on when U.S. prisoners would be released.

Mitchell, in a statement released by the Committee for the Re-election of the President, said "Mr. Clark's behavior while within the frontiers of a country waging war against an ally and the armed forces of the United States was inexcusable."

He called on Sen. George McGovern, the Democratic candidate for president, "to face up to this issue." McGovern, who has described Clark as being of Cabinet caliber, said Sunday that Clark is not the issue—the bombing is.

Mitchell was attorney general under President Nixon and recently resigned as the President's campaign manager.

Clark said he saw hospitals, schools and churches that had been bombed, as well as several dike installations that had been damaged, but did not witness any actual bombings.

"I believe in the basic goodness of the American people," he said. "If they know the truth, they'll do justice."

Mitchell, who criticized Clark for the second time in recent days, said, "Occasionally, a naive American has been unwittingly duped into playing Hanoi's wretched game, into serving as an American megaphone for Communist propaganda. Such a naive American is Mr. Ramsey Clark."

Clark also said Monday he was confident American prisoners will be released when there is a settlement of the war.

He said he pressed Foreign Minister Nguyen Duy Trinh on the question of when the prisoners would be released. "But my impression," he added, "was they are disgusted by the question, as if to say, 'You fool, what else do you think we're going to do. Of course we'd release them.'"

Clark said he visited with 10 American prisoners. He said he believed they were "not brainwashed" and were in good health. "They looked like good and strong men," he said.

Motorcyclist Said Injured

Greenville Police reported Phillip Wayne Martin, 21 of Route 1, Greenville was injured when the motorcycle he was riding overturned about 6 p.m. yesterday on N.C. 11 300 feet South of the Country Club Road intersection.

Investigators said the motorcycle went out of control and overturned when Martin swerved to miss a car making a turn in front of him.

Damage to the Martin vehicle was set at $15. No charges were made.

County Planning Board To Meet

The Pitt County Planning Board will meet at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Law Library at the Pitt County Courthouse.

Included on the agenda of the planning board are reports from county planner Phillip Michaels on mobile home ordinance amendments, a public hearing on extra territorial jurisdiction for Greenville and approval of water boundaries for Greenville.

New business to come before the board at the meeting includes discussion of a fire prevention code for Pitt County and a subdivision plot review.

Hunting Man In Alleged Assault

Greenville police today are looking for a man who allegedly assaulted a woman in her 300 Contentnea St. home about 10 p.m. yesterday.

According to Chief Glenn Cannon, Mrs. Hill Horne told officers that a man, who apparently gained entrance to her home through a rear door, threatened her with a knife, forced her to lie on the kitchen floor and removed portions of her clothing before running from the house.

We're Greenville's BUTLER BUILDER!

J. H. Hudson Inc. brings a new generation of buildings to Greenville, North Carolina

Today's buildings, like today's kids, are bigger, better looking, probably smarter, and certainly faster in growing up than in times past. They're a new generation, ready for today, planning for tomorrow.

Those last six words sum up our business philosophy. If's appropriate, therefore, that J.H. Hudson Inc. has been named the Butler Builder in this area. We're proud to be connected with the company that pioneered in pre-engineered buildings—Butler Manufacturing—and that consistently has been the leader with innovations.

As a Butler Builder, we can offer clients inter-related systems of structural, walls and roofs with hundreds of design possibilities. Contemporary low profiles, wide spans free of support columns, decorative fascia, even domed roofs are possible with Butler systems. Erection time is fast, component quality is high and uniform, and long-range economy of maintenance has swung many a decision in Butler's favor.

Manhandles Braves With Bat

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Johnny Bench swept the bases just for the hell of it, then swept around the bases for real.

The Atlanta Braves, who have joined the list of baseball clubs adding a bit of diversion to the game—mainly a shapely young lady who dusts off the bases midway in the game—found they had a new sweeper prior to their Monday night game with Cincinnati.

Before the regularly scheduled contest against the Reds, the Braves engaged in another growing ritual, a softball game against their wives. And halfway through the two-inning exhibition, out of the dugout, broom in hand, came ...

"Johnny the Sweeper!" His antics delighted the 15,318 Braves fans, who then watched the feminine mystique take its toll in an 8-0 victory over the Atlanta husbands.

But the fans were less than thrilled when the "real" game got under way. Bench, exploding out of a slump that had provided him with just two hits in 27 at-bats, manhandled the Braves by driving in five runs with a single, a double and his 26th home run, leading Cincinnati to a 12-2 romp.

In the only other National League game, Houston defeated San Francisco 7-5. In the night's tllamerican League games, Oakland beat Baltimore 5-2 and Kansas City silenced the New York Yankees 3-0.

The Reds' slugger took the place of the Braves' "Susie the Sweeper," who occasionally plants a kiss on the cheek of a player or umpire—or swats one with the broom.

He billed himself as "Bench the Basepath Beauty"—and he was, indeed, that, with his Cincinnati uniform shirt barely covering the white "hot pants" he wore for the occasion.

"I don't know too many guys of his stature who'd do it," said Reds Manager Sparky Anderson, "but I tell you, when he started over toward first base and I saw those wives standing over there on the sidelines. I said to myself: 'Oh, boy! Please don't grab one of them!'"

Bench didn't. He went one better. After finishing his housecleaning tour of the bases, he planted his kiss on the cheek of the home plate umpire—heavyweight boxer Jerry Quarry.

He kissed off the Braves pretty quickly with his two-run homer in the first inning, then singled to drive in the last of four Reds runs in the sixth and doubled to drive in two more in capping a four-run seventh. "I swept the cobwebs off or something," he said of the end of the slump.

Roger Metzger and Cesar Ceno drove in two runs apiece for the Astros, who remained 5½ games back of the front-running Reds in the NL East. But it was Jim Wynn who had the big RBI of the night, a tie-breaking single in a four-run seventh that propelled Houston past the Giants.

In the nationally televised battle of the American League's divisional leaders, Oakland widened its lead in the West to 1½ games over idle Chicago while the Orioles' margin over Detroit in the East was trimmed to one game.

Mike Epstein and Joe Rudi slugged homers for the A's and Bert Campaneris, dazzling Baltimore by stealing three bases, scored a pair of runs.

The Yanks, with a golden opportunity to move into second place in the AL East and cut the Orioles' lead to half a game, fell instead into third and remained 1½ games off the pace.

The Royals' three runs were unearned and Bruce Dal Canton didn't give New York much of a chance to do anything about it.

The Kansas City starter gave up a pair of first-inning singles, then set down 23 consecutive batters before being touched for two more hits in the ninth. But Norm Angelini came out of the bullpen to preserve the shutout.

Blind Bowler Takes It Serious

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — It started as a joke, but Bob Corbett is taking his bowling seriously now and is organizing a league for the blind.

The 52-year-old former Syracuse, N.Y., salesman started from scratch three years ago and now averages games in the 170s. His high total for one game is 262.

"It started as a joke," said Corbett. "I told Woody McDonald (then manager of Garden Lanes) I was going to come up here some night and bowl. One night I walked in and that's where the joke ended."

He said his "biggest aim in life is to beat people who can see" and he's spreading the gospel: "We've got 10 boys, girls, men and women trying to get competition set up."

Corbett is aided only by a portable wooden fence which he uses along with the ball return machine to line up his approach. He takes a few steps and fires—his accuracy proven recently by the conversion of a tricky 6-8-10 pin split.

Injured in World War II, Corbett said he became progressively blind until 5½ years ago when he totally lost his vision.

"The ones that are the hardest to work with are the ones that have been blind from birth," he said of his teaching. "They have no idea what the pin set up is. But we've got three now that are doing darn good."

Corbett readily admits a league of blind bowlers is a "tough proposition cause it's never been done."

"It took the wheelchair leagues about 10 years to get organized," he said. "I figure it will take us at least that long."

"Bowling has helped me more than anything. When I started I was aware that for awhile I would be a spectacle, people saying, 'look at the blind man bowling,' but I didn't care. "After I threw that first ball I knew I could do it and there was something I liked."

Player Heads Home For Rest

PINEHURST, N. C. (AP) — Gary Player of South Africa says he has been in the United States 18 weeks, hasn't seen his family in that time and is too exhausted to enter the $150,000 U. S. Professional Match Play golf championship this month.

It will be 72 holes, 36 each day on Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 26-27 as part of a double-header with the $100,000 Liggett & Myers Open Aug. 24-27.

The eight leaders of the open after the first two days will enter the match play along with eight exempt players. As winner of the Professional Golfers Association championship two weeks ago, Player was exempt.

His place will be taken by Jerry Heard, a leader in the 1971 exemption points list.

Also automatically qualifying for the match play are the U. S. and British Open champions, the Masters champion, the defending champion, and the three point exemption leaders from 1971 not otherwise exempt. They include Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Lee Trevino DeWitt Weaver, George Archer, Miller Barber and Frank Beard.

The tournament will be played on the 6,973-yard, par-72 Country Club of North Carolina course.

Stabler Caught

Oakland Raider quarterback Ken Stabler (12) is caught and downed behind the line in the fourth quarter by the Baltimore Colts defensive tackle Jim Bailey (79) at Oakland Monday

Raiders Snap Wishbone, Roll Over Colts, 16-0

By ERIC PREWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

OAKLAND (AP) — The Baltimore Colts gave pro football its first taste of the Wishbone Offense, all the rage on college gridirons, when nothing else seemed to work against the Oakland Raiders.

But the Raiders broke the Wishbone and won Monday night's National Football League preseason game 16-0.

George Blanda, who played college football when the Single Wing was still big on campus, kicked field goals of 24, 30 and 23 yards. He also added the extra point after Kenny Stabler's 8-yard touchdown pass to Fred Biletnikoff in the third period.

"It looks like George is kicking as good as ever. You could see that tonight," said Raiders Coach John Madden of the well-preserved star whose 45th birthday is on opening day of the NFL season.

Jack Mildren, who mastered the Wishbone as Oklahoma's quarterback, made it go 48 yards in the fourth quarter against Oakland.

Mildren rushed for more than 1,000 yards last year, but pitched out on every running play Monday night. He completed a 39-yard pass to former college teammate Willie Franklin but then gave up an interception which ended the drive and the night's Wishbone experiment.

Baltimore's No. 1 quarterback, Johnny Unitas, passed for 126 yards before leaving the game at halftime. But three field goal attempts by Jim O'Brien in the first half failed.

Stabler completed 8 of 12 tosses for 109 yards after relieving starter Daryle Lamonia.

In other NFL developments Monday, Dallas Coach Tom Landry moved backfield coach Dan Reeves into the backup quarterback spot behind Craig Morton and switched Sid Gilman from the research and development job into Reeves' post.

Olympians Test Cougars Tonight

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The U.S. Olympic basketball team will try to keep its unbeaten string going in an exhibition game tonight against the Carolina Cougars of the American Basketball Association.

The Olympians have won three games in the past five days against squads of pros and have another to go before leaving for Munich, Germany. They are down to 11 players with the loss of 6-8 forward John Brown of Missouri, who has a broken ankle.

At Greensboro they will go against 12 players, 11 of whom are or were Carolina Cougars. The exception is Julius Erving of the Virginia Squires, a second-year player who was the ABA's leading scorer last season.

Others on the pro team are Stew Johnson, drafted last week from Carolina by San Diego, and Cougars Joe Caldwell, Tom Owens, Ted McClain, Bob Warren, Ed Manning, Dennis Wuycik, David Brent, Jerry Crocker, Steve Previs and Mike Grosso. Grosso was acquired by Carolina from the disbanded Pittsburgh team, and Wuycik, Brent, Crocker and Previs are rookies.

Leading the Olympians in scoring in the three games is 6-yards in the fourth quarter against Oakland.

Mildren rushed for more than 1,000 yards last year, but pitched out on every running play Monday night. He completed a 39-yard pass to former college teammate Willie Franklin but then gave up an interception which ended the drive and the night's Wishbone experiment.

Baltimore's No. 1 quarterback, Johnny Unitas, passed for 126 yards before leaving the game at halftime. But three field goal attempts by Jim O'Brien in the first half failed.

In other NFL developments Monday, Dallas Coach Tom Landry moved backfield coach Dan Reeves into the backup quarterback spot behind Craig Morton and switched Sid Gilman from the research and development job into Reeves' post.

The shakeup followed a shoulder separation suffered by No. 1 quarterback, Roger Staubach, expected to be sidelined eight to 12 weeks.

Wide receiver Karl Noonon of the Miami Dolphins was reported in satisfactory condition at Mercy Hospital in Miami after suffering a shoulder separation. Doctors said they would decide within the next couple of days whether Noonon would require surgery.

Tackle Dan Yochum, Philadelphia's No. 2 draft choice, ended his holdout and agreed to a no-cut contract with the Eagles.

Wide receiver Jerome Barkum, the New York Jets' top draft pick, also agreed to terms and was expected to sign his contract today at the team's training camp in Hempstead, N.Y.

Bob Grim, veteran wide receiver obtained by the New York Giants from Minnesota in the Fran Tarkenton deal, reported to camp at West Long Branch, N.J. for the first time.

Agrees

HOUSTON (AP) — A spokesman for Elvin Hayes, traded last month from the Houston Rockets to Baltimore, said Thursday the former University of Houston All-American had agreed to terms with the Bullets.

"They've agreed to terms and both parties are happy," said Thomas McDade, representing Hayes in his contract talks with the Bullets.

After he was traded to the Bullets for forward Jack Marin, Hayes said he wanted to renegotiate his contract, and the Bullets started court action against the star.

Loss Of Key Players Could Hurt The Citadel

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)

"We have a real good chance to be bad," Coach Red Parker of The Citadel says. "This past year, it looked like we had everything going for us, and according to this spring, we still do."

But since this spring, a couple of things have happened, and they tend to make Parker just a little more than unhappy about the Bulldog prospects.

"There are a lot of things that we have to do to be a good team," Parker said. "I look for our defense to be improved," he added. "We have experience and we can't get a whole lot worse." Last year's team gave up 272 points, a Citadel record for a single season, so Parker may be right. "I'm not overly impressed with the corners, but our defensive ends, Neal Rumble and Allan Melton are the finest we've had. Nearly all of our defensive linemen are back and our down linemen should be better. We have a fine nose guard in Joe DeVor and (tackle) Norman Seabrooks has a chance to be real good."

Parker also feels that linebackers Jeff Martin and David Holt will do a good job. "We have some problems in our secondary we have to alleviate early," the coach said.

But the offense may be where the biggest problem could be. "I honestly thought after spring practice we would be superior offensively than we were last year." And last year's 366 points scored was also a Citadel record.

"But we're struggling now," Parker added. He's got fullback

Bob Carson back, and he feels he may be one of the best blocking backs in the south.

But Jon Hall, who set a new Citadel rushing record of 1,230 yards last year, is out of school now and Parker is very pessimistic about his chances of returning. That will put a big hole in the Citadel attack.

Also gone is split end Jeff Varnadoe who could well have stepped in where graduated Bryan Biama played. These two losses could be key ones for the Bulldogs.

But if there is a bright spot for the 'Dogs, it has to be the fact that Junior Harry Lynch is back at the quarterback slot. "He is a really, really good player," Parker said. "He is a battler, a good passer and a very good play caller at the line."

Lynch made the Citadel Veer offense, a brand of the triple option, work like a well-tuned instrument last year, and with Hall back, "The Citadel could have had one of the most potent offenses in the country."

Lynch, running the team last year, picked up 585 yards in 146 carries last year. He passed 177 times, hitting 81 for 1,507 yards, another new Citadel record. Eleven times he passed for scores, and 10 times he crossed the goal line himself, giving him 21 responsible for.

Carson had just under 900 yards and Parker feels he'll have to carry the load if Hall doesn't make it back. "We have no receivers back at all, but it looks as if Tom Skordal could be a good one, although we'd like to use him a flanker instead of split end."

Parker feels that it's a good possibility that a freshman could handle the punting duties for the team. "We've got a good kicker, but he's very, very slow," Parker allowed.

"We have the chance to be all right in the Southern, but we still have a lot of questions to be answered."

Parker picks Richmond and William & Mary as the teams to beat, but says he also worries about East Carolina, Appalachian and Furman. "I have to look at Richmond as Number One," he said, "but there are a lot of teams that will be rough to beat on any given day."

It could all revolve around Hall, if he's back. The Citadel might be the best in the league. Without him, they will still be tough, but it will be a much rougher battle to claim the Conference championship.

The Citadel schedule: Sept. 9, at Clemson; Sept. 16, at Appalachian; Sept. 23 Western Carolina; Sept. 30, at William & Mary; Oct. 7, VMI; Oct. 14, at East Carolina; Oct. 21, at Chattanooga; Oct. 28, Colgate; Nov. 4, Richmond; Nov. 11, at Furman; Nov. 18, Davidson.

New Names, But Strength Is Same

By DAN BERGER
Associated Press Sports Writer
MUNICH (AP) — America's shorter-distance runners, for years dominant in Olympic Games competition, again appear powerful but the names are not at all the same as in the past.

When the sprinters go to their marks, the U.S. names will include Eddie Hart, Larry Black, Chuck Smith, Rey Robinson and Larry Burton. Even in the 400-meter dash, normally a U.S.-dominated event, the names are not household words.

Still, America figures to do well, despite the youth of the team. (In the three shortest races, the oldest runner is 25 and the average age is 21.8 years.)

Hart, the oft-injured former University of California NCAA champ, took 1972 cautiously and wound up making the U.S. team with a world-record-tying 9.9 in the 100 meters. He was joined on the team and in the record books by the 20-year-old Robinson, a virtual unknown until mid-June.

The third sprinter, husky Robert Taylor, came along quickly at the end of the season, making the team over such better-known dashmen as Mel Pender, Ivory Crockett, Marshall Dill, Willie Deckard, Willie McGee and Gerald Tinker.

For the first time in years, the United States is in jeopardy in the 100 since Russia's Valeriy Borzov, a powerful, picture book sprinter from the Ukraine, is unbeaten in the last two years.

However, the 200 meters is the biggest question mark.

Smith is in his fourth year of sprinting, Burton his first and Black his fourth. Smith was the surprise winner of the National AAU title and was first in the U.S. trials in 20.4. Burton, with a 20.3 time to his credit for 220 yards, shocked the experts by making the team.

And Black ran two 20.0 times this year, showing a powerful kick.

Jamaica's world record-holding Don Quarrie, Kenya's Julius Sang and Borzov may be favored but the Americans proved unpredictable once this year.

Americans have won 11 of the 16 Olympic 400-meter gold medals awarded down through the

Coach Who Can't Stand Losing May Be On Wrong Club

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
Associated Press Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — Bill Peterson is a pleasant enough fellow until he loses at something—whether it be cards or football—and then he gets downright nasty.

That being the case, Peterson could be in the wrong position in 1972 as the rookie head coach of the Houston Oilers.

"I don't like to lose," the personable Peterson said. "I lost one of my best friends the other night in a card game. He beat me and I got mad. I went to him the next morning and apologized but I can't stand to be beaten. It's a terrible thing to be that way."

But unless the Oilers can piece together an offensive line decimated by poor trades last year and injuries this year, and bolster a sagging running attack, Peterson may have to weather through some losing hands.

The offensive line is the Oilers' No. 1 problem. It was further weakened as training camp started when guard Bob Young refused to report in a contract squabble, tackle Gene Ferguson walked out of camp, asking to be traded, and the other starting tackle, Sam Walton, walked out, too. Then Elbert Drungo, shifted from starting guard to tackle, was knocked out for the season by a training camp knee injury that required surgery.

"A starting line?" Madro repeats, almost laughing. "I truthfully can't say. 'We have one starter from last year in the lineup. Even studying a good veteran like (tackle) Walt Suggs is difficult because they jumped him around so much last year.' Madro had moved Drungo, a two-year starter at guard, to tackle to help fill the void. He put free agent Walter Highsmith at tackle to fill in behind Suggs and possibly serve as a swing man.

Another blow to the offensive line was the loss of free agent Robert Wells to knee surgery. Center will be manned by either second-year man Calvin Hunt or rookie Guy Murdock of Michigan. Tom Regner is a favorite at guard and Michigan State rookie Ron Saul also is being counted on for support.

Alvin Reed is solid at right end for the Oilers and Charlie Joiner gets raves from Peterson at wide receiver. With second-year quarterbacks Dan Pastorini and Lynn Dickey vying for the starting job and veteran Charley Johnson to back them up, the passing game could go.

But will take some help from the offensive line.

Running back is another problem area for the Oilers, who won their last three games last season to finish 4-9-1 under Ed Hughes.

Woody Campbell and Robert Holmes return at the two starting spots from last year's running attack that averaged just 79 yards per game. Holmes is a powerful runner but the Oilers lack speed.

Talking about the Oiler defense helps Peterson forget about his offensive problems. Houston usually comes up with a good defense and 1972 is no exception.

Ends Pat Holmes and Elvin Bethea are veterans and No. 1 draft choice Greg Sampson of Stanford will back them up. Mike Tilleman and Ron Billingsley are the tackles.

Linebacking is one of the strongest positions on the team, with Floyd Rice, Ron Pritchard and George Webster, from left to right.

Benny Johnson moved into a corner when Zeke Moore broke his arm in a freak dormitory accident. Willie Alexander is at the other corner.

Outstanding Ken Houston is at one safety and John Charles at the other.

If the Oilers could put together a competitive offensive line and get their running backs going to complement a passing attack, they could be stronger in 1972.

It certainly would help Bill Peterson's temper.

CHICAGO (AP) — Johnny Sain, the Chicago White Sox pitching coach, has one leg on his own personal triple crown.

Wherever Sain has been, he usually has had a 20-game winner, his team has won a championship and his manager has been manager of the year.

In this year of 1972, Sain has accomplished the fact that Wilbur Wood has won 20 games. Now he wants the Sox to win the pennant and Chuck Tanner be named the manager of the year.

You have to go back with Sain. In the late 1950's he was the pitching coach of the Kansas City A's.

"They were known as the farm team for the New York Yankees," said Sain. "They traded off Roger Maris, Ralph Terry and Hector Lopez to the Yankees. I figured they didn't want to win, so I left."

Sain went to the New York Yankees and White Ford won 25 games, the first time he had reached the 20-game plateau in his career.

The Yankees, under Ralph

Houk, also won flags in 1962 and 1963. Houk won manager of the year laurels.

Sain went from the Yankees to the Minnesota Twins. The Twins won the pennant in 1965 as Jim (Mudcat) Grant recorded 20 triumphs. The next year Jim Kaat was a 20-game winner.

Then it was to Detroit. In 1967 Earl Wilson won 20 games for the Tigers. The following year Denny McLain won 31 games and McLain again won 20 games in 1969.

Despite his success, Sain became a target of criticism.

"They said I built a wall between my pitchers and the rest of the ball club," said Sain. "It's not true. Pitchers need hitters to win ball games."

Sain is a teacher of no running by his pitchers and this has become a factor in his career.

"I'm not interested in pitchers running," says Sain. "All I want to know is can you get the next guy out. If they are in condition and can work, that will keep them in shape. Running is not the answer. Get them out that's what counts."

Greenville Swimmers Third In Title Meet

The Greenville swimming club finished third in the East Carolina Swim Association's championship meet held Saturday at Minges Coliseum.

The Greenville club came up with 594 points in the meet in the final activity of the summer for the club.

The fall activities will get underway in September.

Summary of Greenville wins: Eight and under boys: Mark Schmidt, sixth in backstroke in :26.0, fifth in butterfly in :25.0; Michael Tucker, third in backstroke in :21.7, second in butterfly in :21.0, and fourth in individual medley in 1:46.

Eight and under girls: Liza Taylor, third in backstroke in :25.8, fourth in butterfly in :25.8; Anne Richards, second in backstroke in :25.2, first in butterfly in :21.3, and first in individual medley in 1:47.9; Delia Taylor, fifth in backstroke in :27.2, and second in butterfly in :27.6.

Richmond Ups Lead

HAMLET, N.C. (AP) — Richmond County scored seven runs in the first inning and defeated Gastonia 9-4 Monday night to take a lead of three games to one in the best-of-seven series for the North Carolina title in American Legion Junior baseball.

The fifth and possibly deciding game also will be played in Hamlet tonight. The state champion will enter the Southeastern tournament beginning next Tuesday at West Palm Beach, Fla.

Richmond County batted around in the first inning, scoring on seven hits, a walk and a Gastonia error. In addition, their centerfielder Paul Faulk hit a homer in the seventh inning.

WINTHROP, Mass. (AP) — Mark Dolan, 11, may be the youngest skipper ever to win a sailing race.

Mark and his brother Greg, 9, of the Cottage Park Yacht Club in Winthrop captured the National Midget Turnabout Regatta Tuesday. The Dolan brothers placed first out of 44 nine-foot sailboats competing in the Monday-Tuesday event.

She Hoped It Was His Head

DALLAS (AP) — Marianne Staubach watched the collision of Ram middle linebacker Marlin McKeever and her husband, Roger, Saturday night on television, calmly turned to some friends and said: "I hope it's his head and not his arm."

A quarterback's wife would think like that. If the arm goes... the career could be over. "When he first got up, I thought it was his head," said Mrs. Staubach. "You can get over a headache in a couple of days. That heals faster than an arm."

But she knew when Dallas Cowboy trainer Larry Gardner held Staubach to the sidelines that her worst fears had been realized.

"I could tell it was his arm by the way he was holding it," she said of the shoulder separation which required surgery. She sighed and said "I guess Roger will never quit scrambling. That's him."

She said Staubach didn't feel like talking with the press Monday because "he's still coming around from surgery... you know still a little groggy."

"I told him the doctor said he would be playing in eight to 12 weeks. He got out a schedule and said 'Oh, that's when we play Washington, right in the heart of the season. I'll be in there for the long haul.'"

The 1973 American Bowling Congress tournament will be held in Syracuse, N.Y., starting next March 3.

Austin Is Top Seed

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y. (AP) — "I've never been seeded first in a championship tournament like this," explained 21-year-old John Austin. "Actually, I haven't won any tournaments this year."

Austin, a UCLA student from Rolling Hills, Calif., is America's prime hope to return the U.S. Amateur Grass Court tennis title to America and is the No. 1 seed in the tourney.

He defeated John Lowman of Darien, Conn., 7-6, 7-6 in first round competition Monday and today will face Billy Martin of Palos Verdes Estates, Calif. Martin, a 16-year-old ranked first in his age group last year, ousted Spencer Segura 6-3, 7-5 in first round play.

Austin, a pre-dental student, missed most of the amateur events because he was playing in open tournaments.

"I've had some good wins and I don't believe my losses were that bad. Last week I defeated Harold Solomon (U.S. Davis Cupper) and while I've been on the major circuit I lost to Clark Graebner and Pancho Gonzales."

The top three seeds are collegians. Dan Birchmore of Athens, Ga., U. of Georgia, is second. Alex Mayer Jr. of Wayne, N.J., a Stanford player, is third. Birchmore beat Bo Wade of New York, 6-4, 6-3, and today faces Ricky Meyer of Great Neck, N.Y., who beat Trey Watke, St. Louis, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2.

Australian John Gardner is the defender. Gardner won last year while attending Pan American University in Texas. He heads the foreign seeded list and is meeting Columbia U.'s Henry Bunis of Cincinnati. Gardner won twice yesterday, beating Audley Bell, Winston-Salem, N.C., 7-5, 6-4, and Jorge Ramirez of Mexico, 6-2, 6-3.

The Worry Clinic Odors Related To Ailments?

Prof. Nichols may be opening up a virgin field for psychological research. Alas, it has been almost overlooked by previous scientists. But empirical observation shows it may be a boon to medical diagnosis as well as to Cupid!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

Case U-562: Prof. David G. Nichols is the talented head of the psychology department at the University of Colorado.

"Dr. Crane," he asked, "have you a bibliography dealing with the relationship of odors to various human ailments?"

"For I was interested in your recent newspaper case about the dog that turned on its human friend after the latter had developed leukemia.

"I remember that physicians used to comment on the characteristic scent of typhoid fever patients.

"And schizophrenics seem to give off a certain odor, probably due to anxiety.

"But do you have any other scientific references on this subject?"

Olfactory Psychology

Prof. Nichols is pioneering in a very valuable field for human research.

When I was 16, I suffered from what pioneers termed "milk sick."

This ailment caused the death of Abraham Lincoln's mother and I had lost a cousin the summer before to the same malady.

For it apparently results from poison absorbed by cattle when pastures dry up and they are driven into the woods to forage for food.

There they eat white snake root, whose poison is secreted in their milk and thence can be fatal to human beings.

ultimately open up an entirely new field of medical diagnosis, as by training dogs to sniff out previously undiagnosed cases of diabetes or breast cancer vs. prostatic cancer, etc.

Alas, olfactory research has been largely overlooked in psychology, but the keen scent in dogs suggests human beings might profitably cultivate it.

Blind patients should make excellent observers.

Prof. Nichols merits a double salute for pioneering in this fertile realm!

The bidding:

Opening lead: King of ♠

A variety of results occurred when today's hand was dealt in a recent tournament. The best North-South score was obtained at the table where the bidding proceeded as presented in the above diagram.

South opened with a preemptive call of three hearts and West chose to overcall with three spades in preference to making a take-out double inasmuch as he held a good five card suit.

North's jump to five hearts was a premature save (there appeared little chance to buy the hand at a lower level) designed to inhibit communication between the opponents.

East contented himself with a competitive raise to five spades and when South carried on to six hearts, West doubled—deciding that his side had reached the limit of their offensive capabilities.

West opened the king of spades on which East played the five, which was the lowest outstanding card in the suit. He realized that another round of spades would not go thru and it appeared urgent for the defense to cash their diamond trick. West dutifully switched to the king of diamonds and when this held he reverted to the ace of spades which South ruffed.

The ace of hearts was cashed and when both opponents followed, it accounted for the outstanding trumps. A club was led to the ace and when only small cards appeared the closed hand was reentered with a heart to lead another club. West followed with the nine and South promptly played the jack from dummy. Declarer's decision was purely pragmatic, for if the clubs were divided two-two, then the decision to sacrifice at six hearts was a mistake, since two club tricks and one heart could have been taken against the opponents' five spade bid.

When East showed out on the second club, South's judgment was rewarded on the deal. He claimed the balance and suffered a modest loss of 100 points on the deal. Those Wests who were permitted to buy the hand at five spades experienced no difficulty in winning 11 tricks.

After North cashed the king of clubs, he was obliged to switch to a heart to get another trick in before the declarer took command of the situation.

At some tables, West made a takeout double over South's preemptive bid, and one East persisted to six diamonds. South opened the king of hearts and altho North's five pleaded for a shift and the appearance of the dummy strongly suggested that clubs offered the best hope for scoring another trick, South was apparently unaware that declarer's distribution matched his own—and that drastic measures were required. He switched to his singleton spade. After East drew trump, he ran West's spades, discarding his lone club on the fifth round. He lost only one heart trick to register the top East-West result on the deal.

Post Office Needs Chief

NEW LONDON, N.C. (UPI) — Leroy Shaver, a spry 77-year-old former Methodist missionary to Japan, is police chief of this tiny Piedmont crossroads town, thanks largely to the U.S. Postal Service.

Shaver explains that there is a federal regulation specifying that if an incorporated town has a policeman, it can keep the doors of its post office open at night, giving patrons access to boxes and stamp machines.

So, this friendly small town, not overly concerned about any vandalism at the post office, has always had a police chief without any staff or any duties. The Stanly County Sheriff's Department handles all its emergency calls in the area.

Shaver, who inherited the job when he and his wife took over tax collecting duties in New London, does have one problem however — trying to figure out what to do with all the wanted posters addressed to the town's police chief.

He says he considered putting them up at the post office, but it's too small — there just isn't enough room for all the posters.

Local Students Are Licensed

Three local medical student received their licenses to practice medicine from the North Carolina Board of Medical Examiners following its annual examination held June 13-15.

Thomas Grant Irons of Greenville, a graduate of the University of North Carolina School of Medicine led with the highest average of all applicants.

James Jay Jenkins and Richard Chesson Taft of Greenville also received their licenses by examination.

A total of 151 applicants received their licenses.

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Miss Jannette O. Dudley, 18, of 211 Westover Drive, Knightdale, N.C. has been awarded a $150 scholarship by The Order of United Commercial Travelers of America (UCT). She will use the grant at East Carolina University, to further her training in the education of retarded children.

A 1971 graduate of Vaiden Whitley High School, Miss Dudley is presently a sophomore at East Carolina University.

Careers Saw A Parallel

STEPHENVILLE, Tex. (AP) — The parallel careers of Bob Glasgow and Don Jones, young Stephenville law partners, reached a peak this year when both launched successful careers on their first venture into politics.

At 29, Jones is the youngest man ever elected mayor of Stephenville, and at 30 Glasgow is the youngest district attorney of the 29th Judicial District since Fred C. Chandler was elected in 1926 at 29.

Both Jones and Glasgow, who are cousins, graduated from Stephenville High School, and received bachelor's degrees from Tarleton State College. While attending Tarleton, Glasgow and Jones served as student body-president their respective senior years, and both graduated from the University of Texas School of Law with the Doctor of Jurisprudence degree.

Following graduation, Glasgow was appointed administrative assistant to Gov. Preston Smith and Jones became an assistant attorney general.

Jones is married to his college sweetheart, the former Nicki McAden, and Glasgow married his college sweetheart, the former Deanna Carr. Both now have two children.

The largest fish caught in Kentucky was a 100 pound blue catfish on the Tennessee River in 1970.

Pitt Student Is On Dean's List

Miss Dorenda Kaye Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albion L. Moore of Route 1, Greenville, was named on the Dean's List for superior scholarship at Southern Missionary College, Chattanooga, Tenn., for the semester just ended.

The Dean's List is composed of students who have maintained a 3.50 grade point average on a 4.00 scale for at least 12 semesters for the last two successive semesters at SMC.

Food Price Debate Heating Up Classified Ads Dial 752-6166

By G. DAVID WALLACE, Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's grocery bill is higher than ever this presidential-election year and the debate over who gets what share of the pie—and the blame—from rising food prices is heating up.

Candidates are farmers, middlemen and retailers, all of whom say they are caught in an economic crunch.

Some typical breakdowns of food prices:
A pound of choice beef cost an average of $1.14 the last time government shoppers checked the nation's food stores. Ranchers took 78 cents of that and the men who slaughter, ship, wrap and sell the meat the other 36 cents.

On lettuce the split was 22 cents a head for retailers and processors, 10 cents for farmers. Of the 25 cents for a loaf of bread, 4 cents went to farmers.

Altogether, marketers get an average 60 cents of every food dollar. The place to study the question of rising food prices, says Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz, "is in the processing and distribution system between the farmer's gate and the consumer's table."

What about farmers? There are more dollars to go around now than ever before, and farmers are getting two cents more of the food dollar than they did a year ago.

Retailers say they're not profiting from the rising food prices. Of criticism to this effect, economist S. Kent Christensen of The National Association of Food Chains said, "We think we're getting the brunt of this and we don't deserve it."

The reason: Retailer-profit margin, expressed as a percentage of sales, has dwindled to what Christensen now estimates at no more than seven-tenths of 1 per cent. Agriculture Department figures confirm the steep decline from a margin of 1.3 per cent in 1964.

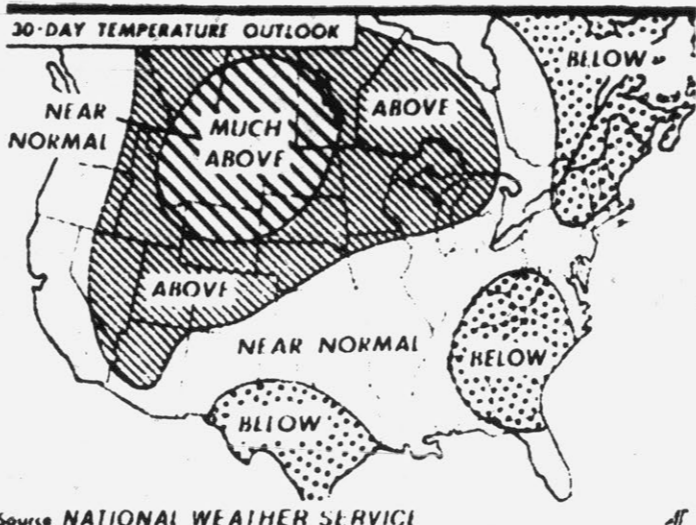

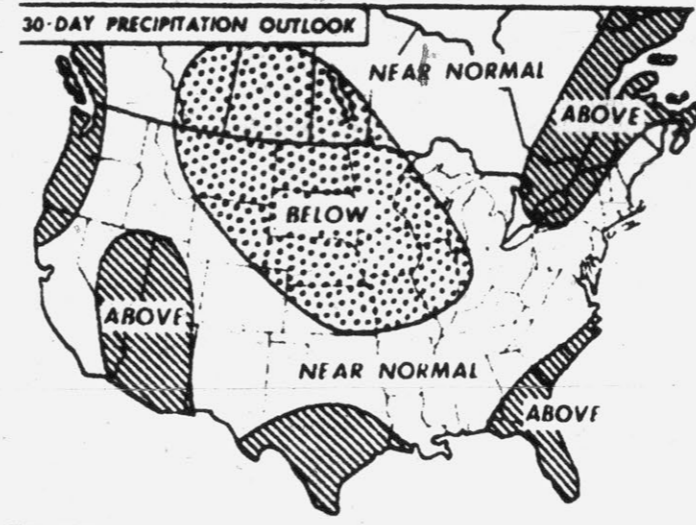

Still, Safeway Stores, which now claims to be the nation's largest food seller, recently reported record profits. The Price Commission has ordered four regional food chains to reduce prices to make up for what the commission considered excess profits.

Where supermarkets are concerned, the political and economic crunch on food prices came as they were already locked in what Christensen called "one of the most intense competitive struggles that we've seen in years and years."

The struggle was precipitated by the appearance across the nation of regional food chains undercutting the national giants.

Farmers, meanwhile, have been caught up in the same spiraling living costs that affect everyone else.

Farmers spend 5 per cent more to live now than they did

THIRTY-DAY OUTLOOK — This is the precipitation and temperature outlook for the next 30 days, according to the National Weather Service. (AP Wirephoto Map)

A year ago. The money they received increased 13 per cent in the same time. But the latest jump came in a 20-year period in which the prices farmers received increased 6 per cent.

The biggest cost increase in the farm-to-market journey has not been on either end, but in the middle.

Labor costs involved after food leaves the farm jumped 42 per cent over the last decade, until they ate up 29 cents of every dollar spent on food, according to Department of Agriculture figures.

Fueling the price rises have been shoppers with more money to spend. Agriculture Department figures show Americans spend 16 cents of every dollar they earn for food. In 1960 they spent 20 cents.

Another sign of plenty of money to spend is shopper response to price trends. As food prices have steadily risen, so has individual food consumption, at least until this year, when it is expected to show a slight drop.

Demand for beef, for example, remained strong even in the face of soaring prices.

Whatever the reason for food price increases, economists hold out hope for the debate over blame quieting down somewhat.

The 4 1/2 per cent food prices were expected to rise this year, compared to 2 1/2 last year. Now government economists expect the situation to level out for the rest of the year. Initial figures support their expectations.

Pitt Student Group In Drug Workshops

Pitt County Student Task Force members are currently participating in a series of drug education workshops conducted by Mrs. Sandra Saue, county alcohol educator, for Pitt County Schools.

Task Force students from Ayden-Grifton, D.H. Conley, Farmville Central and North Pitt High Schools have enrolled in their choice of the four nearly identical sessions. Each of the four sessions will last from 15 to 18 hours over several days.

The purpose of the workshops is to familiarize these students with the composition, medical treatment and legal complications of drugs. During the course of the sessions students will each report on a specific drug which has been assigned to them to be researched.

The Task Force students will also be addressed by Frank Hemingway of the Bethel Pharmacy on the pharmacology of drugs; Tom Britt of Coastal Plains Mental Health Center on the treatment of drug users and Ken Evans, deputy sheriff of Pitt County, on drugs and law enforcement. Each of these consultants will be made available for questions from the workshop participants.

Near the end of each of the sessions the students will decide what they would like to do about drugs and how they will do it in their respective high schools. Another goal of the workshops, according to Mrs. Saue, is to provide each high school with at least one student who has conducted research for each of the more common drugs. Mrs. Saue hopes that this will provide Pitt County students with a trusted source of information on drugs.

A trip to the Raleigh Drug Crisis Center is tentatively planned for all workshop participants on August 24.

The workshops will be held according to the following schedule: Workshop III on August 12, 19 and 26 from 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon and 1:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m.; Workshops IV on August 14-18 from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.; Workshop I on August 16-18 from 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon and 1:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m.; and Workshop II on August 21-23 from 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m. noon and 1:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m.

TV Breakfasts Not For British

LONDON (UPI)—Ward Thomas, managing director of Yorkshire Television, one of Britain's commercial television companies, says it will be another year before Britons can watch television at breakfast. Broadcasting in Britain now normally begins at noon. "I expect two or three of the larger ITV (independent television) companies will go in for breakfast television and start playing about with early morning programs (about) a year from now," Ward said.

U.S. Savings Bonds help keep today's plans from becoming tomorrow's broken dreams.

We all have plans. We plan for a vacation, plan to buy a boat, or a house; or send our children through college.

And, in order to keep those plans from becoming broken dreams, we need money.

That's where the Payroll Savings Plan comes in handy. When you join where you work, an amount you specify is set aside from your paycheck and used to buy U.S. Savings Bonds.

It's an easy way to save money and collect some interest at the same time.

Keep today's plans alive. Buy U.S. Savings Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan. You won't end up with a bunch of broken dreams tomorrow.

Now E Bonds pay 5 1/2% interest when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). Bonds are replaced if lost, stolen, or destroyed. When needed they can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Honors Won By 'Campers' Moved Out By Miami Police

HONORED — Wilbur Murphy and Carlton McCollom received the Moose Fellowship Degree at state convention.

By TERRY RYAN
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Helmeted policeman forced about 100 campers to leave Flamingo Park early today, eight hours after the City Council voted to allow demonstrators here for the Republican National Convention to use the shaded campsite.

Police Chief Rocky Pomerance, who led the non-violent operation involving 40 officers, said the city needed more time to prepare the 36-acre park for the thousands of protesters expected for the convention which opens Monday.

Police first were greeted by epithets and shouts of "Pig," but the campers, most of them followers of the Zippie movement, slowly cleared the fenced park after officers marched shoulder-to-shoulder toward the only available exit.

The protesters, their number thinning to between 50 to 75, then roamed the streets of Miami Beach's senior citizen community. Zippie leaders tried to organize a march on City Hall, but squad cars cut off the march and herded the demonstrators toward a church which had offered to house convention nondelegates.

No arrests were reported.

Two members of the Greenville Moose Lodge were awarded the Fellowship Degree (next-to-highest honorary degree in the fraternity) at the N.C. Moose Ass'n convention held in Asheville over the weekend.

Additionally, the Greenville lodge won first prize award in the field of civic affairs; and one of their members was named to the State Moose Ass'n executive board. These highlights of the recent convention were reported Monday night to the membership at the regular lodge meeting.

Carlton McCollom and Wilbur Murphy received the Fellowship Degree...presented only on the basis of extraordinary service to the fraternity.

The appointment to the executive board went to James

The protesters were finally directed to Miami Beach Community Church several blocks from Flamingo Park about 3 a.m., where some 40 protesters already were bedding down for the night. About 25 of the marchers refused to enter the church's parish house and slept in the street while officers pulled back and watched.

City Council voted 4 to 3 Monday to open the park for nondelegates. About 3,000 demonstrators used it as a campsite during last month's Democratic convention.

The council did not specify when protesters could set up campsites in the park, but Pomerance told Zippie leaders early today he thought the city could arrange for necessary sanitary, medical and other facilities by Thursday.

About 100 people, most of them Zippies, were there Monday night when police informed them the park was closed and everyone had to leave. Most of the people ignored the instruction.

The arrival of a small bag of what was said to be marijuana was greeted with shouts of approval, and many gathered in a circle to smoke it, observers said. Police had left the scene.

In a similar situation Sunday night, police arrived with 10 squad cars and gave people 15 minutes to leave. They left.

City Manager Clifford O'Key said police would use discretion to enforce laws in the park. He was instructed by the council to set up guidelines for use of the park by nondelegates.

"It may well be that some kid smokes pot in the bushes," said O'Key. "I am indicating to you that in some situations you don't enforce the literal letter of the law."

Pomerance said his officers "did not run into" anyone smoking marijuana in Flamingo Park during the Democratic convention and therefore no one was arrested.

Nevertheless, there were some complaints from Miami Beach residents about pot smoking at the park, located six blocks from Convention Hall. And there were at least two nights of nude swimming in the city pool.

"The chief knows what he is doing and will see that the law is not broken in any significant way," said Mayor Chuck Hall. "He will decide what is right or wrong in each individual case."

Repeat Denial Of Radiation

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The Virginia Department of Labor and Industry reports there was no radiation involved in the deaths of two technicians at Virginia Electric & Power Co.'s new nuclear power plant at Surry, Va.

The department's statement Monday backs up statements by Vepco and the Atomic Energy Commission that the facility's nuclear reactor was not involved in the July 27 deaths of Roger Wood, 28, and William Van Duyn, 31.

Vepco and the AEC have said previously, and reiterated Monday, that the men died of burns received when a steam vent malfunctioned, spraying them with superheated steam.

Edmond M. Boggs, commissioner of the state agency, said human error in the control room at the plant may have caused the accident.

Boggs said he suspected that someone in the control room "could have pushed the wrong control button," releasing 900 pounds of steam heated to 450 degrees. He said this was much more than the amount of steam normally released under such circumstances.

Boggs said the high-pressure steam may have caused a pipe carrying the steam to break loose from a sleeve in the area where the two men were working.

"What appeared to be a perfect setup isn't," Boggs said. He said adjustments will have to be made "to make it fool-proof." Boggs added, "We've got every reason to believe they (Vepco) should get different controls."

Boggs' statement and those by Vepco and the AEC came in the wake of a claim by the self-proclaimed president of an organization called "Environmental Action Center," Vern Stephens, that there was "reason to believe" the technicians died of radiation from a runaway nuclear reactor.

Stephens said his information came from employees "inside the plant."

He had told newsmen here Sunday that his group would seek a congressional investigation of the deaths and would challenge the safety of the Vepco plant in court.

However, a national group that lobbies for environmental protection measures—Environmental Action, with headquarters in Washington, D.C.—disassociated itself both from Stephens' charges and from the organization he said he heads.

Wallacites Will Gather Remember Surrender

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina supporters of George Wallace can now join an organization which promises to continue the political effort of the wounded Alabama governor.

Joe Brown of Greensboro told a news conference Monday he and a group of Wallace supporters were forming the "North Carolina Wallaceites," have adopted a conservative platform, and have scheduled a convention.

Brown said the group would be opposed to busing and to trade with Communist countries, and would support a "patriotic" America with a strong military.

Brown, badly beaten candidate for the Democratic Senate nomination this year, said his group would not run candidates of its own, but would endorse candidates from all three parties. He himself has said he hopes no Democrats will receive an endorsement.

He said the convention was scheduled for September 23 in either Raleigh or Greensboro and that presidential and vice presidential candidates of the three major parties had been invited to speak.

TOKYO (AP) — Emperor Hirohito led the Japanese today in observance of the 27th anniversary of Japan's surrender in World War II.

In a tone similar to that he used when he announced Japan's surrender 27 years ago, the emperor told a gathering of about 5,000 relatives of war dead that his heart still aches with pity when he thinks of those who died in the war.

Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka told the meeting at the Military Arts Hall in Tokyo that Japan's prosperity owes much to those who devoted their lives to the nation, and "it is our obligation to make relentless efforts toward a lasting world peace."

At noon, the hour of the emperor's broadcast on Aug. 14, 1945, bells tolled at shrines, temples and churches to signal a minute of silent prayer for the nearly 3 million Japanese soldiers and civilians who died in the war.

Memorial services were held at many places, and leftist youths demonstrated against the Vietnam war at rallies in Tokyo and other cities.
