SAIGON (AP) — U.S. presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger arrived in Saigon tonight and Le Duc Tho, his North Vietnamese adversary in secret peace talks, flew to Hanoi amid widespread speculation about a new move to end the war.

There was no official confirmation of the new peace move, and Tho contended there was no basis for it. But some diplomats in Washington and Paris surmised that Kissinger, who met with Tho in Paris Monday, would try to persuade President Nguyen Van Thieu to agree to a compromise formula approaching the enemy's demand that Thieu step down.

Others suggested that Kissinger and Tho would report a deadlock in their secret Paris sessions, with Kissinger reassuring the uneasy Thieu that President Nixon will not let him down.

Tho, leaving Paris today, told newsmen he wanted to emphasize that his trip was "a routine one and has no other meaning, ... is in the framework of my usual comings and goings." Tho, a member of North Vietnam's Politburo, said the speculation about his trip "in general ... does not correspond to reality" and "could lead to inexact conclusions."

There also had been speculation in Saigon that Kissinger might fly on to Hanoi after ending his visit here Friday. But informed sources said Kissinger would fly from here to Tokyo Friday en route back to Washington.

He will stop in Tokyo to make final plans for the forthcoming summit conference between Nixon and Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka scheduled for Honolulu at the end of this month, sources said. Plans call for him to leave Tokyo on Saturday.

Peak Electricity Use In Greenville Doubled During Past 4 Years

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector Managing Editor

If it appears that electric substations are getting bigger around Greenville, there's a reason.

Utilities Director Charles Horne pointed out to commissioners Tuesday night that peak kilowatt demand has doubled on the Greenville Utilities system during the past four years.

The peak demand during July was 87,600 KW. Four years ago the demand was approximately half that.

"What this means to me," Horne noted, "is that we added as much in four years as we added in the first 63 years of the plant. The system build-up is terrific."

Horne pointed out, however, that the doubling of demand did not mean that the number of customers has doubled in the four year period. The rapid increase in electrical consumption came in part because individual customers are using more electricity.

There has also been a major increase in water consumption, Horne noted.

The directors reported that a new well drilled by a contractor did not meet the 500 gallons per minute specification. It is rated at 239 gallons per minute. The contractor was given an alternate site to drill a second well, but the 239 gallon per minute well will be accepted on a pro rated cost basis.

Horne reported that Electricities, an organization of municipally owned electric systems, approved a resolution urging its members to adopt retail rate schedules comparable to neighboring systems. Greenville Utilities already follows the comparable retail rates of Veeco, its supplier.

Commissioners approved a resolution joining with Rocky Mount, Wilson, and Monroe in opposing an N.C. Natural Gas wholesale rate increase.

The commission wrote off as uncollectable $18,270 in 1966-67 accounts. This amounted to 45 percent of the revenue for that year. Commissioners discussed increasing the deposit required of new customers in order to offset some of this loss in the future.

Commissioners also began considering changes in water and sewer rates and policies. A workshop was planned for Aug. 24 for this purpose.

Rex Voorhees reported that the Utilities will rebuild a sewer outfall line in the vicinity of the new Reide Loop between Fifth and Cotanche. The old line is collapsing. Voorhees reported. The new line will be installed prior to construction of the street.

County Road To Be Closed

RALEIGH — State Road 1755 in Pitt County will be closed for about one month, starting Monday, so that a bridge can be replaced.

The road runs from Black Jack to N.C. 43. Traffic which ordinarily uses the road will be routed over a 3.3 mile detour.

Accord Opposed

LONDON (AP) — Leaders of Britain's 42,000 longshoremen called off the 20-day-old dock strike today. But militant stevedores charged a sellout, raising the possibility that they would not heed the back-to-work order in the major ports.

Unofficial sources said the dock workers' delegates voted 53-30 to accept the settlement worked out by a joint union-management committee.

But when the decision was announced outside the headquarters of the Transport Workers' Union, one longshoreman charged into the conference room and hurled a metal ashtray at Jack Jones, head of the TWU and the chief union negotiator. It missed.

Then the militants turned on the police security cordon around the building, and fights broke out.

Some pickets tried to chase the dispersing delegates. Mounted police were called in to separate the combatants.

Mrs. Cain Elected Chairman Special Board Of Elections

Mrs. Myra Cain has been elected chairman of the Special Board of Elections appointed by the City Council for the conduct of the October 17 municipal referendum.

Following action to reappoint Mrs. Cain, Bruce Koone and Rev. William B. Moore as the three election officials for the referendum, City Clerk William N. Moore administered the oath of office to the three, who met immediately afterward to elect their chairman. Rev. Moore was elected secretary.

At their meeting last night, the election board also set the dates of August 21 through September 15 for opening of the registration books.

Registration for the referendum, one to consider an increase in city property tax by four cents per $100 tax valuation to be used for a capital improvements fund for the Recreation Commission, will be conducted in the Municipal Building (City Hall) Monday through Friday from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. daily. (City Hall will be closed on Labor Day, September 4.)

Mrs. Cain commented that citizens who have not previously registered for city elections will need to register in order to be able to vote in the October 17 referendum. She noted that within a few days she will provide more complete details on registration requirements for this election.

River Recourse

QUITE A DAY FOR A DIP — These young lads found the Tar River a cool place to swim on a hot afternoon. Hot weather prevailed over Greenville yesterday, but with rain late yesterday evening, the weather began to cool off. An extended outlook for Friday through Sunday—chance of showers and thundershowers in the east portion Saturday, otherwise partly cloudy throughout the weekend. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

MIG Downed In N. Viet Raid By U.S. Planes

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. planes made their deepest and heaviest strikes in North Vietnam in a week Tuesday, renewed their attack on the northwest rail line to China and shot down one of three MIG21s that tried to intercept them, the U.S. Command announced today.

It was the 159th MIG reported downed by U.S. crews in the war and the 48th this year.

The U.S. Command said Air Force, Navy and Marine fighter-bombers flew more than 290 strikes against targets in North Vietnam. U.S. pilots had been averaging less than 200 a day in the north since Aug. 8 because of heavy clouds, but the weather improved Tuesday.

Area People Plan Attend Convention

Mrs. Eloise Howard of Greenville, R. Frank Everett of Hamilton and Kenneth H. Roberson of Robersonville will be attending the Republican National Convention next week in Miami Beach.

Mrs. Howard and Everett will be attending the convention as delegates from North Carolina while Roberson will be an alternate at the Republican gathering.

The North Carolina Republican delegation will be staying at the Allison Hotel.

The convention sessions are scheduled for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, with the nomination of the President scheduled for Tuesday evening and his acceptance speech set for Wednesday evening.

Tax Referendum Is Slated October 17 By City Councilmen

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Scheduling Tuesday, October 17 as the voting date for a public referendum on a tax increase of four cents per $100 valuation for capital improvements (including swimming pools) for the Recreation Commission; acceptance of the retirement of the City Manager Harry Hagerty to be effective September 8; and a report on action relative to damages on Crestline Boulevard formed the agenda for a special call meeting of the Greenville City Council on Tuesday night.

First dealing with the letter from City Manager Hagerty, dated August 7, requesting retirement due to health reasons, the council approved a motion accepting the date of August 7 stipulated in the manager's letter.

In discussions following the approved motion, a question of whether retirement or resignation was the appropriate wording arose. There was also difference in opinion on interpretation of eligibility of various benefits for purposes of payment from city funds.

After the arrival of City Attorney David Reid (who had been delayed in getting to the meeting), Reid noted that in the case of Hagerty, who had submitted a formal request for retirement, the possibility of extended sick leave could not, in his opinion, be considered as an alternative.

The idea of extended sick leave for Hagerty had been among several ideas discussed in the early part of the meeting. Such action has been applied occasionally to city employees in the past.

These instances, however, it was pointed out by John Taylor, have been approved by the Council only in cases where a sick employee had used up all his accrued vacation and sick leave time and still urgently needed an extension. This course could not apply in Hagerty's case, as he currently holds the maximum 30 days accrued vacation time. Resigning or retiring employees cannot be paid for accrued sick leave time nor for accumulated vacation time in excess of 30 days.

In view of the city attorney's recommendation, the original motion was withdrawn and in its place a new motion offered that Hagerty's retirement be accepted effective September 8. This date is based on the effective date of retirement requested by Hagerty, plus the legally permitted addition of 30 days accrued vacation time in accordance with ordinance 341.

Council members will meet in workshop sessions between now and the effective date of Hagerty's retirement to discuss dossiers of prospective replacements already received and those expected to be received in the near future.

On the matter of setting a date for the referendum on capital improvements for the Recreation Commission, Reid explained that the General Assembly of 1971 had "inadvertently provided that boards of elections could not be appointed until the 10th Friday before the general elections in November 1973."

As this has placed municipalities in an untenable situation relative to local elections such as that being sought in Greenville, Reid said

"the attorney general has ruled that the State Board of Elections has residual authority to permit the conduct of elections by municipalities."

Reid then informed council members that today he had received certification of temporary rules outlining procedures to be followed. Any board of elections formed prior to the ten Fridays before the general election in 1973 can be formed only for the purpose of conducting one specific election. He also added that it was recommended the three board members named at the August 10 regular council meeting be reappointed; and that because of state requirements of 30 days public notice plus a lapse of 21 days between registration of voters and the date of election, the date of September 30 stipulated in the August 10 motion could not be met.

As a result, the council approved a motion "to strike from the August 10 motion the date of September 30 and to substitute in lieu thereof the date of October 17."

Mention had been made of setting the election date on Saturday, October 21. Reid advised against the Saturday date, saying that although "legislation was vague on the point, my reading of the law is that there is no provision for any other day except Tuesday."

Council members then took action to reappoint Bruce Koone, Mrs. Myra Cain (incorrectly listed as Mrs. Myra Kane in last Friday's story), and Rev. William B. Moore as the three members of the election board for the October 17 referendum.

This is the second occasion within the past few months that an "inadvertent" omission in 1971 adopted state legislation has resulted in complications for municipalities. Some months ago, Greenville and other North

Bonds Voted By Farmville

FARMVILLE — Farmville voters yesterday approved the issuance of $150,000 in bonds to supplement federal and state grants for a water system improvement project.

The Farmville citizens voted 339 in favor of the proposal while only 29 votes were cast against the project.

The proposed project will include two new wells, a 500,000 gallon above-ground storage tank, and the extension of water mains to areas outside the corporate limits, including the Joyner's Cross Roads Section and near the Collins and Aikman plant.

The project will cost an estimated $388,300. The project, when completed, should handle the town's water supply for 10 years.

The town of Farmville has secured one half of the total amount from the Economic Development Agency. A 10 percent bonus (amounting to $38,830) is also available to the town because it is part of an approved regional planning area.

An additional 20 percent will come from the Clean Water Bonds which was approved last spring.

Local Tobacco Market Sees $86.55 Day

The Greenville Tobacco Market yesterday averaged $86.55 per hundred pounds when 505,533 pounds of tobacco was sold for $437,549.

The highest average on the Eastern Belt was received at the Wilson market when 500,636 pounds of tobacco sold for $435,249, giving an average of $86.94 per hundred pounds.

The Farmville market reported daily sales averaging approximately $9 per hundred pounds higher than the price received last year.

The Farmville market sold 248,834 pounds of tobacco for an average of $86.85 per hundred pounds.

To date, no tobacco on the Farmville market has gone to Stabilization. On the same number of sales days last year, Stabilization received approximately four percent of gross sales.

According to Louis Williams, sales supervisor on the Farmville market, the volume yesterday consisted mostly of lugs and primings and the volume of nondescript grades continued light.

To date, the Farmville market has sold 1,245,196 pounds of leaf for 1,087,302, for an average of $86.32 per hundred pounds.

The seven markets operating on the Eastern Belt yesterday sold 2,739,819 pounds of tobacco for an average of $86.68.

So far this season, the markets have sold 13,737,878 pounds of tobacco for $11,875,380, yielding a season's average of $86.44 per hundred pounds.

Hospital Bd. OKs Associate Degree Nurse Training Program

By TOM FOREMAN, JR.
Reflector Staff Writer

Approval was expressed for a recommendation to Pitt Technical Institute for an Associate Degree Nurse Training program at last night's Pitt Memorial Hospital board meeting.

After hearing a report from Miss Jean Owens, director of nursing at the hospital, chairman Woodrow Wooten suggested that a formal recommendation be made to Pitt Tech for the training program.

In her report, Miss Owens stated that the hospital was at an absolute standstill in terms of registered nurses hired. The number of nurses had fluctuated, she noted, between 63 and 68. However, the great majority of nurses that had been hired had come from PTI's LPN program.

Miss Owens commented that by hiring associate degree nurses, more RNs would be serving in roles of supervisors. She said that in six months, most of the nurses could handle their jobs efficiently.

Miss Owens also noted that the nearest Associate Degree program of the 18 in the state is in Beaufort County, and that the hospital is losing possible help from that program due to its remoteness.

Jack Richardson, hospital administrator, reported on the status of the emergency generator that the hospital uses in case of power failures.

Richardson, hospital administrator, reported on the status of the emergency generator that the hospital uses in case of power failures.

Richardson stated that in the spring, the hospital received a notification from the North Carolina Hospital Association and the American Hospital Association asking them to check on their backup power supply because of the possibility of power shortages during the summer.

Upon inspection of the system, Richardson said, problems were found with the automatic switch in the generator. Ironically, when repairs were scheduled to begin, an actual power failure occurred, delaying the restoration of power for nearly 30 minutes.

However, Richardson noted, the stand-by unit is now operative and on an automatic three-phase system.

In other business of the meeting, the trustees granted minor privileges to Dr. Amos Evans, psychiatrist, and Dr. Louis Patterson Moore, psychiatry. The board also approved a Minister Registration Listing plan.

Woodrow Wooten also expressed thanks to Burroughs-Wellcome for the $30,000 gift that the hospital received, and announced that a committee was being formed to handle such gifts from organizations in the future.

"We are very thankful to Burroughs-Wellcome for their gracious gift. With the purchase of the hemodialysis unit, we will be able to render services in a wide area. Burroughs-Wellcome is a great asset to our community."

Alarm Over Bike Toll Spurs Demands For Safety Standards

By SIDNEY MARGOLIUS
NEW YORK (WNS) — Not only has the number of bikes on the streets doubled in the past ten years but the frequent disregard of even elementary safety rules by the bikers, and the hazards in the design of some bikes, have alarmed the government as well as parents and car drivers.

When I served on the National Commission on Product Safety, I myself was shocked by the way some manufacturers had sacrificed safety to cash in on novel designs and fads such as high-rise bikes with small wheels; whellies (a small third wheel at the back of the bike allowing the rider to rear up); sissy bars; steering wheels instead of handlebars; and elongated "banana" seats which encourage double riding.

Even when bikes are designed with relative care, they often lack such basic safety aids as adequate light-reflecting materials. Sure, they may have front and back lights or reflectors. But one youngster was killed at an intersection one night by a driver approaching from the side who failed to see the bike.

Accidents
The tremendous increase in the sale of bikes has resulted in a corresponding increase in accidents. The U. S. Public Health Service has estimated that bikes are associated with almost one million injuries a year. The National Safety Council cites some 850 deaths a year — more than occur on railroads.

To its credit, the Food and Drug Administration is moving to issue a regulation, probably early in 1973, mandating at least some safety standards for bike design. The FDA previously had urged manufacturers to adopt voluntary standards but apparently the voluntary effort was not successful.

So the FDA Children's Hazards Division is developing mandatory standards under the authority granted by the Child Protection and Toy Safety Act of 1969. This is one of the first important fallouts, besides recently promulgated toy safety standards, from this law which the Product Safety Commission had recommended.

Recommendations
The Children's Hazard Division has made these eight design recommendations for greater safety:

1. — Additional light-reflecting materials or devices to make a bicycle not only visible in the dark but identifiable as a bike;
2. — Sufficient pedal friction to prevent footwear from slipping, even when wet;
3. — Placement and design of gear shifts or other devices located on the horizontal bars of boys' bikes so as to minimize risk of injury;
4. — Limitation of seat-post length to prevent raising the seat to a height that would hamper the rider's control of the bike;

5. — Consideration of eliminating the front wheel caliper brakes on bikes equipped with rear wheel coaster brakes, particularly those intended for use by younger riders;

6. — Designing caliper brake grips to accommodate the handspan capability of the intended for use by younger riders;

7. — Inclusion in the safety standard of two-wheeled sidewalk bikes and bikes equipped with training wheels;

8. — Elimination of raw, sharp, or rough metal edges on any parts including handle bars for which grips are provided.
The Children's Hazard Division, supervised by a veteran product-safety expert, Walter Johnson, also will propose a standard for the strength of the front fork, and for adequate braking ability. According to Carl Blechschmidt, the chief engineer, the Division is concerned about front-wheel caliper brakes for young children because of the pitch-over problem. Parents also should be interested to know that the FDA safety experts have identified some accidents resulting from slippage of the child's feet on the pedals.

Stability
The agency has not yet made a determination on what to do about the problems of bike stability. The Cornell Aeronautical Laboratory found in tests that shorter wheelbase and smaller wheel size adversely affected both lateral and vertical stability. The smaller front wheel of a high-rise bike also was found to hamper riding over curbs and sharp depressions.

On some models, oversized gear shifts are mounted on the panel between the seat and handlebars, increasing the risk of genital injury and requiring the user to remove a hand from the steering grip. A leading bike authority, Eugene Sloane, author of "The Complete Book of Bicycling," also advises against high-rise handlebars especially for younger children but for older ones too. Sloane warns that the high-rise handlebars are awkward and leading to unbalanced situations. Too, larger wheels always are more stable.

Sloane advises checking the condition of the bike as well as the design points discussed in this report. Especially make sure that the wheels are not "out of round," spokes are not loose, and the frame is not out of line. The tubes of the frame should be brazed into lugs at the joints and not merely inserted into each other.

Too, the bike should be fitted to the child, Sloane advises. Simplest way is to buy the largest-size frame a boy can straddle comfortably with both feet on the ground or that, in the case of a girl, will permit her to get on and off easily.

Gourmet Corner: In U.S., Beef Is Favorite Meat

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer
Ask almost any butcher in this country which is the most popular of our meats. Chances are he will tell you that beef wins by far, probably because the beef raised in America is rated the finest in the world.

But the tender, seasoned beef we enjoy today is a far cry from the tough, stringy cuts that graced our forefathers' tables.

The Texas Longhorn, once the best known of American cattle, was a lean, sturdy beast who thrived in the arid Texas plains. But his flesh was barely edible by modern standards.

Today we raise plumper breeds originally imported from Britain and developed over the years, such as the Black Angus, Durham and Hereford. These sleek animals produce the marbled beef you see in fine restaurants and butcher stores.

Back in the Middle Ages, England was the foremost western producer of beef, and a man's worth was often measured by the size of his herd.

During the last century American cattlemen set out to improve the quality of their livestock and by 1870 tons of fine beef were being shipped by railroad cars from the stockyards to cities throughout the nation.

By mid 19th century, New York was famous for its juicy porterhouse steaks, named after a waterfront restaurant that flourished at that time and served a short loin steak with a goblet of ale.

The barbecue is another American innovation and in the old days, western ranchers used to roast a whole side of beef over a pit of glowing coals. They served the meat with raw onions, hot chili peppers, and red beans.

The French and Italians have devised numerous ways of cooking beef that equal anything American cooks dreamed up. One of the most notable is the Italian specialty Beef Filet Picata.

This dish is a specialty at Mike Manuche's attractive restaurant in midtown New York. Manuche's, which has been operating in Manhattan for 21 years, has a wide variety of Italian specialties but our favorite was the beef filet. Here is the recipe:

BEEF FILET PICATA
12 slices beef filet mignon (1 inch thick)
12 tablespoons flour
12 tablespoons olive oil
1 1/2 cups beef consomme
12 patties butter
Several dashes salt, pepper, monosodium glutamate
Juice of 3 lemons
6 teaspoons chopped parsley
Pound beef filets to 1/2 inch thickness. Flour them and fry one minute on each side in hot olive oil. Drain off oil and add consomme, butter, lemon juice, salt, pepper, monosodium and parsley. Simmer 5 minutes. Serve with slice of lemon on each slice of beef. Serves 6. Good with a red Burgundy wine.

MRS. WILLIAM LOUIS PATMAN JR.

Couple Weds In Saturday Ceremony

CHAPEL HILL — The wedding of Miss Barbara Sue Taylor and William Louis Patman Jr. was solemnized Saturday afternoon at four o'clock on the grounds of the Community Church here.

The outdoor ceremony was written by the couple. The Rev. James Douglass Riddle officiated at the ceremony with only the immediate families present.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. James Athel Taylor of Hendersonville, formerly of Greenville, and Dr. and Mrs. William Louis Patman of Silver City.

Following the ceremony, guests were entertained by the bride's parents at the Carolina Inn.

The couple will make their home in Chapel Hill.

The bride is a graduate of Rose High School, Greenville, and attended Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Blacksburg, Va. The bridegroom is a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Lady And Hotel All Burned Up

RODTNAU, West Germany (WNS) — Margarete Ortlieb, 65, had spent her entire life making a success of her hotel in the Black Forest here. No wonder she was burned up when she learned that her son had sold the place without consulting her. She set fire to the building without warning the hotel staff or guests. Damages are estimated to be $120,000, and Frau Ortlieb faces an arson charge because of her fiery temper.

He Plants Seeds, Himself In Tomatoes

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Norm and I bought a little home in the suburbs, and last spring we planted a vegetable garden. We thought with the prices of everything going so high, it would save us money.

When our tomato plants got about half a foot high, Norm started singing to them! He'd take a sixpack of beer and a chair outside and plunk himself down right in the middle of the tomato plants and start to sing. The more beer he drank the louder he sang. (It's a wonder the neighbors didn't call the police).

Norm claims it's a scientific fact that plants that get music produce more than plants that don't. Is there any truth to this?

NORM'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: My agriculture experts say Yes! But a word of caution. Better buy your tomatoes. No matter how expensive they get, it's cheaper than drying out Norm.

DEAR ABBY: My problem may not seem important to some people, but it is a threat to my marriage. Howard and I have been married for two years. We were happy at first, living in a small apartment.

I am an average housekeeper and must do all my housecleaning and laundry on Saturdays because I work during the week.

Howard wants me to work as we have no children and the money helps a lot, but lately he has become demanding about my housekeeping.

We have terrible fights about it almost every night. Abby, I just can't help it. When I get home after work I have all I can do to get supper, and I am just too tired to start doing housework! And we both leave for work at 7:30 a. m. and I certainly can't do anything in the morning.

I love Howard and don't want to lose him, but he has threatened to walk out if I don't improve my housekeeping. Please help me.

DESPERATE IN THE BRONX

- DEAR DES: You have the following options:
1. Insist that Howard pitch in and help you. He lives there, too.
  2. Straighten up after yourself in the morning and you'll have less of a mess at night. Tidy up the place after dinner if it kills you.
  3. Quit your job, become a full-time housekeeper, and live on Howard's salary.
  4. Hire some help and tighten your belts.
  5. Continue as you are and risk a walkout.

DEAR ABBY: Now that the women are becoming so aggressive even to the point of asking strange men to dance with them, new problems have developed.

I have taken my wife to a club where couples dance, and have had strange women approach me with, "Care to dance?"

Not knowing what else to do, I get up and dance. Later my wife gives me "what for" for leaving her to sit alone while I dance with a woman I've never seen before. But what else can I do? I hate to hurt a strange woman's feelings.

DANCING WITH TEARS IN MY EYES

DEAR DANCING: You can screw up the courage to say, "Thank you, but I'd rather not leave my lady alone." And don't worry about hurting a strange woman's feelings. Women who ask men to dance have pretty tough hides.

The Smart Way To Inspect A Dress Is Inside Out

By SIDNEY MARGOLIUS
NEW YORK (WNS) — In recent years many women have complained that even medium-priced dresses often are finished poorly. My own comparison-shoppers report finding careless details such as crooked seams, dangling threads, missing buttons, tears, stains and even dirt spots.

If the dress basically is satisfactory, you can, of course, repair some of the minor defects yourself, such as weak seams or loose buttons.

In lower-priced dresses often the fabric is reasonably good quality, even at such remarkable prices at $15-$20 for polyester dresses at some of the large chains. But construction details need careful scrutiny. For example, we sometimes found defects that would defy any attempts to refinish at home, such as skimpy seams, quarter-inch hems, and side seams already puckering. Some dresses even lacked the legally required fiber-identification labels.

Since any no-iron or permanent-press garment needs to be sewn with long stitches to avoid puckering, be especially sure to look at the seams before you buy to observe whether there are puckers. See if the "care" label makes many exceptions to the "no-ironing." Also, make sure the color is even, with no streaks.

Shop Inside Out

The smart way to inspect a dress is inside out. The underside gives you clues as to whether, for example, there are dangling threads or clean finishing.

The seams. Cheap dresses have as few as seven stitches per inch of seam; good dresses about fifteen. Correctly adjusted, stitching looks the same on both sides and holds securely. If poorly adjusted, the stitches will seem on one side to be a straight thread stretched taut and held by little loops from the opposite side. Seams should be at least one-half inch, and pinked to avoid unraveling. On better dresses they are bent or bound. Synthetic fibers such as nylon and polyester, need especially generous seams with edges overcast, not merely pinked.

The hem. A deep hem (at least two inches is a sign of a well-made dress. In good dresses the hem is invisibly stitched to the dress. If the dress is to be dry cleaned, the edge should be finished with binding. In wash dresses, a satisfactory hem has the first fold stitched by machine and hemstitched to the dress.

Zippered openings. They should be secure at the ends neatly fitted and inconspicuous.

Buttonholes on blouses. They should be made on a double thickness material, lined up with buttons and evenly spaced.

Reinforcements. At pockets and points where buttons are sewed look for double stitching and tape on the underside. Diagonal stitching strengthens pocket corners; a detail you can add yourself.

In wash and wear dresses, set-in sleeves are preferable to raglan to avoid strain.

The grain and pattern. Accurate matching of pattern section is important if the dress is to hang properly. You can check such obvious patterns as plaid easily enough to see if the horizontal lines have been lined up at the seams. But when there is no obvious pattern look closely at the grain of the material. The lengthwise threads of the sleeves should fall from the shoulders. Cross threads should run straight across. Buttonholes should be at right angles to the vertical grain. Dresses with large prints, plaids or stripes require more fabric and care in manufacture, and often cost more for the same quality than those with small all-over prints.

The size. There are no standard sizes for dresses; each requires trying on. "Proportionate" sizes usually provide best fit.

Podiatrist Gives Warning On Platform Or 'Wedge' Shoes

NEW YORK (AP) — Those platform or wedge shoes in their dashing colors may be the fashion fad, but according to some people:

They're bad for the feet. "The foot can't function properly with this type of shoe," says Dr. Monroe Jacobs, president of the Podiatry Society of the State of New York.

"The foot is made up of a number of joints, requiring free movement, and must have a grasping-type shoe to function properly."

"This rigid, tall platform shoe—some with five-inch heels set on three-inch platforms—is changing walking habits of many women," Dr. Jacobs goes on. "It's forcing them to shuffle along or rely on a still-like-gait. It's the only way they can get around."

The shoe has a flat, immovable sole, he said, which prevents the free movement feet must have to function in a healthy manner.

Jacobs, who reports increased complaints directly related to the new shoes, also says persons wearing platform shoes expose themselves to "skiing-type accidents."

The high platform sole and heel with space in between is the most dangerous, he says, noting that persons wearing them can catch their foot walking stairs, and precipitate a fracture.

"If you caught your heel like that, you would have the same type accident as when skiing," says Jacobs. "You get the sudden jolt—and you could fracture or have a sudden displacement of a bone."

The shoe is not flexible, you can't move the sole—and the foot is in a foreign environment, he says, adding:

"Joints that should flex when a person walks cannot. As a result, if there's dormant condition in a joint, it will be stimulated and possibly develop other problems."

School Management magazine says the most popular hours for school lunches are 11 a.m.-1 p.m., but 43 food service directors out of 1,562 reached with a questionnaire said they opened their lunchrooms as early as 10 or 10:45 a.m.

New Board Off To A Good Start

The state's universities Board of Governors has recommended a $571.6 million budget to the Advisory Budget Commission for operations and improvements to the system during the 1973-75 biennium.

It is an historic higher education budget in that it is the first one prepared and submitted by the Board of Governors. The new Board of Governors was begun by the 1971 General Assembly which approved the plan for one central board following a bruising fight in a special legislative session. The board acted in a planning capacity until it took over officially July 1.

In past years the institutions presented their requests for operating and capital improvements funds to the Advisory Budget Commission which sent a recommended budget to the General Assembly. The Legislators could add individual buildings or funds to the budget if they could gain the necessary support.

Under the budget which the Board of Governors has proposed, funds for new programs, improvements of old ones and capital improvements would be appropriated in a lump sum. These funds would then be parceled out to the various institutions as the board sees fit.

Thus the real test of the new board's powers will be in how this proposed budget is treated in the months ahead. It will go to the Advisory Budget Commission which could, of course, reduce total funds requested to fit in with overall needs of the state. Then it will go to the 1973 Legislature where again cuts or increases could be made in the overall funds. Cuts or increases in the lump sums requested would be acceptable under the new system of governing the universities. If, however, a building or program were added for a specific institution by the Legislature without the Board's approval, the war for funds will be on again.

President William Friday described the budget approved by the Board as "the first unified request... presented for all the senior institutions since the early days when the University at Chapel Hill served as the only public institution of higher education in this state."

The Board of Governors is off to a good start in demonstrating that it can take a state-wide view in administering the affairs of the 16 institutions. The politicians will face a test of how much faith they place in the new board with their handling of this recommended budget. Then, once the budget is approved, the Board will face its test in how fairly it distributes the funds.

Women's Role To Be Greater

By BRYAN HAISLIP
CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — Woman, the sleeping beauty in politics, will be a lively force in the telling of the '72 campaign story.

Prince Charming didn't wake her with a kiss. She roused herself from sleep at the dawning realization that a happy ending to her quest for equal standing could come only by joining her sisters in the political process.

"We are just learning that we are going to have to stick together," said Mrs. Martha McKay.

The glue is the North Carolina Women's Political Caucus, which she helped great deal of the work in politics and getting few of the rewards," she asserted. "That's clear enough, particularly in this administration, if you look at state government. There is no woman at the top level, and practically none on the really critical boards and commissions."

Blacks had to stand together above party to gain ground in politics, she noted. Women may have to take the same route. "When there is a conflict on an important issue, I am a woman first and a Democrat second," she said.

Some women are prepared to cross party lines to vote for qualified women candidates, she said. "Probably more than people think," she said.

Change comes through politics and the law. In addition to rallying women to political activity, the Caucus plans to lobby at the '73 General Assembly for legislation aimed at equal status for women, Mrs. McKay said.

Setting Legislative Goals
It's second annual conference will come in January, just as the legislature convenes and will serve as a forum for goals for women.

The policy council now is sifting through goals to establish priorities. Certain to be high on the list in North Carolina's ratification of the equal rights amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Another objective may be a state fair employment practices commission to combat job discrimination against women. "It will depend on whether we can get one with teeth. One without teeth would be worse than none. It would simply add another layer of delay for employers," she said.

The times are exciting to be a woman, said Martha McKay. There are portents for change in woman's awakening consciousness that institutions and most males have not yet grasped, she said. "You see institutions called upon to change and they are not responding in a manner which indicates they understand what is happening," she said.

Free to be yourself without regard to sex or age is really free, she observed. "Men have been cast into roles equally as rigid as those for women," she said. "When women are freed, it also will free men."

That freedom prevails in the McKay household. Herbert McKay, an executive with a development company, allows his wife to do her own thing in politics.

"I'm very lucky," she said. "He allows me to do those things I have to do to be a whole, healthy, functioning human being. I couldn't do what I have done without him."

BRYAN HAISLIP

organize last fall and now serves as its top officer. "I don't object to chairman, but why not chairwoman?" she said.

At the start, the Caucus set its priorities for representation in the state's delegations to the Democratic and Republican national conventions and to get women candidates on the ballot.

The Democrats sent to Miami Beach a group that was 47 per cent female, with Mrs. McKay among them. Thirty-three per cent of the Tar Heel COP delegation will be women.

Women On The Ballot
More than 100 women ran for various offices in the state in the spring primary. That included at least 20 in races for the legislature, and approximately 10 of them won nomination. One woman, Mrs. Grace Rohrer of Winston-Salem, is on the state ticket as GOP candidate for secretary of state. She's a member of the Caucus' policy council.

"I think we have done very well on our first two goals," Mrs. McKay remarked.

Now, it will turn a spotlight on the woman issues in the general election campaign. Although the non-partisan Caucus won't endorse specific candidates, Mrs. McKay said, it will try to illuminate where they stand on matters affecting women.

She'll give a woman's platform of sorts at a news conference in Raleigh on August 25, a date chosen to coincide with the 52nd anniversary of ratification of the 19th amendment which gave women the right to vote.

What women are after today in exercising that right is some of the payoff as well as the in-put, Mrs. McKay said.

Much Work, Few Rewards

The Snakepit In New York

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

NEW YORK — Sen. George McGovern's decision, after weeks of temporizing, to pluck Robert F. Wagner from the obscurity of an ex-mayor to run his make-or-buy New York state Presidential campaign was a desperate compromise move to prevent the already dangerous split between party regulars and McGovernites from sinking the campaign before it had been launched.

Wagner, a Manhattan lawyer with political connections to both regular and reform Democratic politicians, has the blessing of acceptability from feuding occupants of the political snakepit that is the New York state Democratic party.

More important, he can be trusted to play a low-key campaign chairman's role unlikely to upset the delicate and hostile balance of power between powerful county chairmen, such as Pat Cunningham of the Bronx and Meade Esposito of Brooklyn, and the youthful, activist cadres who conquered New York in the June Presidential primary race last March and already working the New York scene as "coordinator" of McGovern's campaign here, raised the sharpest objections to Samuel's campaign blueprint.

The New York campaign, he argued, should be decentralized along the lines of McGovern's New York primary campaign. The Samuels blueprint, in sharp contrast, called for tight centralization under one-man control with one major objective: winning back the disaffected working middle class of Catholics and Jews. Grandmaison really wanted Prof. Richard C.

politician who drafted a 30-page blueprint on how McGovern could win New York one week after the June primary. He sent it on request to Gary Hart, McGovern's campaign manager.

Ten days ago, in an apparent first effort to clear Samuels for the New York chairmanship, Hart telephoned the Democratic state chairman Joseph Crangle, who raised immediate and obvious questions. With Samuels in all but certain gubernatorial candidate, putting him in charge of McGovern's Presidential campaign would be acutely embarrassing to every party leader and every other potential Democratic candidate for governor.

But Crangle's reservations, entirely understandable, were nothing as compared to the outraged objections of some of McGovern's own New York operatives.

Thus, in a private three-hour evening session in Hart's Washington office on Aug. 3, Joseph Grandmaison, architect of McGovern's strong New Hampshire primary race last March and already working the New York scene as "coordinator" of McGovern's campaign here, raised the sharpest objections to Samuel's campaign blueprint.

Costliest Bugging Case

WASHINGTON — One of the major issues of the presidential campaign will be the extraordinary amount of money that is being wasted by Washington.

A perfect example is the recent bugging incident at the Democratic national headquarters. I have it on the highest authority that the Democrats plan to make this not a moral issue, but an economic one.

Fielding Tagafly, chairman of the Democratic Committee to Get the Goods on the Committee to Re-Elect the President, told me, "So far, almost $114,000 has been traced to the people involved in the bugging. There are strong indications that most of this money came from the Committee to Re-Elect the President. We are appalled by this.

"You mean you are appalled that the Republicans would bug your offices?"

"No. We are appalled that they would need $114,000 to do it. Anyone in the business will tell you a bugging job like that doesn't cost more than $10,000. They had a cost overrun on the job of over $100,000. There's no excuse for this, and we maintain that if the Republicans are that wasteful with their own funds, you can imagine what they've been doing with the taxpayers' money for the past four years."

"I hadn't thought of that," I said.

"Not only was it the most expensive job in modern bugging history, but it was also screwed up," Tagafly said. "It is our feeling the job was botched because it had been contracted to friends of the Administration, rather than being opened up to competitive bidding.

"This is not the first time the Administration has been involved in hanky-panky on contracts, and we intend to make it an issue in the campaign."

"If you say the job should cost only $10,000, what was the rest of the money for?"

"High living for the people involved. Suites at the Watergate, expensive meals, chauffeured limousines, long-distance telephone calls, trips to Florida. I kid you not, when all the facts are in, you're going to discover very little of the money went for bugging, but a lot of it went into the pockets and bank accounts of

Other Editors Say To Tie Nixon's Hands

(Henderson Dispatch)

If Congress should pass the bill directing President Nixon to get all Americans out of Vietnam and order a cease fire not later than October 1, it would tie the President's hands in negotiations at the Paris peace talks and amount to abject surrender on the part of this country.

The House rejected such a proposal attached to an appropriations measure and sent the bill to the Senate. An amendment to that effect may be offered in the Senate, and it's even odds that it would be defeated there. At least the House would still have the prerogative to disagree.

If Hanoi's negotiators at Paris were told all Americans would get out of Vietnam by the specified date, they would promptly clam up with no semblance of any sort of accord, however one-sided. Actually there would be no need for them to enter into discussions at all. They would be getting all they want anyhow.

Release of all American prisoners by October 1 would be part of the proposal that was defeated in the House. But they would not even be compelled to free the prisoners. At least, no one would know whether they were liberating all the men held. Some could be kept back for further demands after the Americans left, possibly including some sort of indemnity. Hanoi, and communists generally, are just that unreliable. They cannot be depended upon to live up to agreements they do make. It would be characteristic of them to renege on any sort of terms reached, if any were.

The action in Congress is purely political in character. It is intended to benefit candidates in the November election, and at the same time to discredit the President as a handicap to his own bid for another term.

It is conceivable that the hemming and hawing on Capitol Hill could be done with profit to the country, if politics were left out and patriotic, honest-to-goodness action taken on important measures. Perhaps that is too much to expect of the honorables whose primary objective is their own reelection and defeat of the chief executive.

Bulls Charging Into Value Gap?

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Are the stock market bulls beginning to charge into Value Gap?

Judging by activity this week, it would seem so. And based on a mass of data, it's only natural that they should be attracted there, because that's where the good grazing is.

Value Gap is the extraordinary chasm that exists today between "the market's excessive price of major growth stocks and its parsimonious undervaluation of most established blue-chip investment values..."

The description comes from John Wright of Bridgeport, Conn., whose research, analysis and advice is highly influential in the decisions of hundreds of bank trust departments and many brokerage firms.

In short, he finds that many well known growth stocks are incredibly overpriced when matched against their prices of other years, and that many of the established companies who stand to benefit from the economic expansion are badly underpriced.

Wright, whose specialty is blue-chips and whose outlook is usually conservative, believes the bulls soon will find these opportunities and that they might foresake certain growth stocks.

He predicts that by January there will be a major market quake that will change its topography and even close the gap.

Wright's statisticians found that during the past year and a half, the price advances of 30 major growth stocks accounted for almost all the rise in the Standard & Poor's Industrial Average of 425 stocks.

From Jan. 1, 1971 to June

30, 1972, that average advanced 18.8 per cent. But take out the 30 key growth stocks and the remaining 395 show a gain of only 1.5 per cent. Much the same can also be shown for the Dow Jones Industrial Average.

"Too much money is going into too few stocks," he says. And those stocks, he adds, are greatly overpriced.

There seems to be some evidence in recent days that wise investors are aware of the underpricing. Many of the oldtime favorites seem to be drawing a following once again.

But what about those 30 wellknown growth stocks for which, Wright calculates, investors have been paying a 53 per cent higher price per dollar of current and future earnings than they were willing to pay for the past 10 years?

Silence Can Be Safer

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Nothing could improve the human race more than to have every baby born with a button in its lower lip and a buttonhole in its upper lip.

As it is now, the average in-

fant is born not with a silver spoon in its mouth — but one of its own feet. And throughout the rest of its life it keeps putting that foot back in its mouth.

If you want to live peacefully, learn to turn off the lip flow when you don't know what you're talking about. Silence is more than golden; silence is safety.

Here are a few remarks to avoid if you don't want to put your foot in your mouth, shoe and all:

"Why did you want to get a divorce from him, anyway? He always seemed like a pretty swell guy to me."

"What's a pretty girl like you doing in the women's liberation movement? You look intelligent."

"Before I tell you how I think it fits you, let me ask you one question. Can you still take the suit back?"

"You've got nobody to blame but yourself."

"Did you ever stop to think that if you didn't live the way you do, you wouldn't feel the way you do?"

"If I bail you out of this, it'll only get you into the habit of expecting someone else to solve your problems for you."

"Of course, I don't doubt your word, but if you've lost all that much weight, I don't understand why it doesn't show more."

"Are you sure you aren't just feeling sorry for yourself?"

"I'm not exactly sure I should tell an off-color joke like this to my own mother-in-law, but here goes—"

"Do you want me to tell you what I really think is wrong with you?"

Opening sales on the Border Belt brought some disappointment to growers who had expected better prices in view of the Department of Agriculture's estimates of a small crop. The first offerings brought from $9 to $11 per hundred with common grades higher.

The Wilson Kiwanis Club baseball team will seek revenge for the defeat handed them two weeks ago when they cross bats with the Greenville Kiwanis team on Wednesday afternoon at the Third Street School Park.

Strength For Today

TAKE THOUGHT AND KEEP GOING

There was an old saying among the western miners: Never abandon a mine shaft until you've gone fifty feet farther.

It's amazing how many fortunes were actually stumbled upon, or found, by some chance incident. A man who later became one of the richest men in the whole westland picked up a rock one day to hurl at a languid mule he was trying to drive into a corral. He noticed the stones unusual appearance. Sure enough, it was loaded with precious metal. Others staked out claims anywhere at all just to get one staked out, and sometimes—not always, by any means, but sometimes—they turned out to be valuable.

But many shafts were sunk and then abandoned. Frequently they were abandoned in too much haste, and later someone else came along and made a fortune out of what a less patient man could not stick with long enough to make it pay. As mining technique improved it was often found profitable to go to deserted mining areas and work over the "tailings" which years before had been discarded as waste.

Don't abandon a shaft until you have gone fifty feet farther. And herein lies a principle. Don't give up people, projects, ideals, religious convictions and a host of other precious things until you have gone fifty feet farther. It is in patience that we possess our souls.

State School-Financing Proposal Spurred In N.C.

COMPUTERIZED CHESS — Boston newsman Paul Langer tries his hand at programming a chess match at third annual United States Computer Chess Championship in Boston. (AP Wirephoto)

By MELVIN LANG
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Court cases in Texas and California have spurred North Carolina agencies into serious consideration of a state take-over of all public school financing.

A proposal for 100 per cent state financing has been made by the North Carolina Association of Educators, which claims membership of about 50,000 public school teachers.

The state Board of Education, in cooperation with several other agencies, is completing a comprehensive study of the over-all school spending program.

NCAE officials, using statistics supplied by the Institute of Government in Chapel Hill, predicted $300 million in additional state revenue would be needed. It could be raised, the NCAE said, by a sales tax levy, reform in the income tax or new taxes.

North Carolina's public schools now are financed by three different sources—68 per cent from the state, 20 per cent from the individual county and 12 per cent from the federal government.

In calling for development of a plan shifting the cost burden to the state, NCAE Executive Director A. C. Dawson said it "is becoming crystal clear that we can't justify spending school funds in a way that discriminates against a boy or girl just because he or she was born in a poor county."

North Carolina's counties devote one-half to two-thirds of their total budgets to public education, but the amount of money available depends on the county's tax base, assessment ratio and tax levy.

Citing an example, Dawson said Dare County "has $53,824 to tax for every child in school there, while Pamlico County has only $12,038 to tax for each of its school children."

"This disparity in wealth makes it possible for Dare County, with less effort, to spend $180.37 in local funds on each of its children in school while Pamlico must make a large effort to spend $57.03 in local funds on each of its children," Dawson said.

Interest in the state take-over was prompted by cases in California and Texas where courts established a principle that the quality of education must be determined "by the wealth of the state as a whole rather than the wealth of the individual school district."

The Texas case has been appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court. Consideration by the court is expected this fall.

NCAE President M. L. Barnes of Concord said a suit probably would be filed in North Carolina if the Supreme Court does not uphold the decision in the Texas case.

"Either way the outcome is expected to be the same. We'll have to have virtually equal funding of public schools for current expense, buildings, equipment and for debt service," Barnes said.

The concept of state financing is not popular with some public school officials.

"I have a lot of misgivings about money that's being doled out by the state because they would call the shots," said Dr. M. Cade Covington of Sanford, president of the North Carolina School Boards Association.

"My experience has been that he who controls the pur strings is going to call the shots. I would certainly be in favor of keeping control on the county level," he said.

Covington predicted that, regardless of the means used to equalize school money, eventually "you would get back to the thing we now have. They would not be equal all around."

"I foresee that, if this is done, there will be school districts who want more than just the average of what every one else is getting and are willing to tax themselves," Covington said.

The NCAE expressed doubt that local supplements would be retained if all of the public school cost is assumed by the state. Local supplements, which are optional, add to the unequal funding of school systems now.

John Morrissey, executive secretary of the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners, said his organization has not taken a stand on the question although his office is participating in the Board of Education study.

Morrissey said he does not foresee a wave of reductions in county tax levies even if the school burden is removed. Instead, he indicated most counties probably would divert the revenue now going to schools to other services.

The counties would fight any attempt to divert the local option sales tax to a statewide school fund, Morrissey said.

Airport Tax

RALEIGH (AP) — The Raleigh-Durham Airport Authority agreed unanimously Tuesday to begin Sept. 1 collecting a $2 tax on all passengers boarding aircraft at the airport.

The decision was something of a calculated risk since the U. S. House Rules Committee is scheduled to decide today whether to bring to the House floor a bill that would prohibit such taxes for 18 months. The Senate voted 83 to 2 last week to approve the bill.

The tax would raise about $1 million yearly for improvements at Raleigh-Durham Airport.

Nixon Pondering Budget Excesses

THURMONT, Md. (AP) — President Nixon is at his Camp David retreat pondering what is to him a crucial domestic issue, the tendency of Congress to exceed his budget.

There were indications the chief executive had decided to veto a $30.5 billion Health, Education, Welfare and Labor appropriation bill approved by Congress last week. The measure is nearly $2 billion more than Nixon wanted.

White House spokesmen said Nixon was reviewing economic and congressional matters at the mountaintop Maryland retreat where he flew on Monday for his third visit in a week.

Varied Causes In Levant's Death

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The coroner's office says Oscar Levant died from a heart attack, severe arteriosclerosis and pneumonia.

The 65-year-old pianist and humorist died at his Beverly Hills home Monday. The coroner reported autopsy results Tuesday.

Levant is survived by his widow and three daughters. Private funeral services were pending.

Computer Chess Title Holder Still Unbeaten

BOSTON (AP) — At speeds quicker than the eye can see, the third annual U.S. Computer Chess Championship flashed to a close with the perennial champion still on top.

Northwestern University's Control Data Corp. 6400 computer, undefeated in the three years of competition, overwhelmed Carnegie-Mellon University's Digital Equipment Corp. PDP-10 computer in the final game Tuesday night.

The event, part of the 25th annual conference of the Association for Computing Machinery, was played over three nights, with eight computers entered in the single-elimination tournament.

Each computer, backed up by 16 computer programmers, played one five-hour round each night.

Only one computer actually made it to the tournament, Columbia University's Data General Corp. Nova 800. The others were back home, linked to their programmers by telephone.

The computer tournament organizer, Prof. Monty Newborn of Columbia University, said that while any chess grandmaster can consistently defeat a computer now, "in possibly 15 years computers will be able to beat the likes of Bobby Fischer."

Newborn said computer chess is not all fun and games. "We use chess programs to study machine learning," he said.

"A computer can analyze possible chess outcomes six or seven moves in advance, but it doesn't plan a strategy it can use throughout the game. It only reacts to the other fellow's moves."

the contractors."

"But that's terrible," I said, "if you can't even find honest people to bug somebody's office."

"This thing smells worse than the Penn Central Railroad case," Tagafly said. "Not only were the people involved incompetent, but we have evidence that they used cheap and unsafe bugging equipment. Someone high in the Committee to Re-Elect the President okayed this equipment, and we're going to find out who it was."

"They could have started a fire in the Watergate," I said. "Or one of their own people could have been electrocuted," Tagafly added. "Naturally everyone wants the biggest bug for a buck, but not when you risk the lives of innocent people."

"What do you think will happen now?"

"Well, if they follow the Lockheed formula, the people who loused up the job will ask Congress for a loan to compensate them for their losses. They'll say just because their equipment didn't work is no reason why they should lose money out of the pocket. Also, if we win our million dollar lawsuit, they'll probably ask Congress to compensate them for that."

"One last question. Do you think John Mitchell knew anything about it?"

"We're not sure. But we think Martha could have bugged him about it."

"Tell me something, will you? Why is it when a guy like me takes a girl like you out to dinner, she always feels like she has to order the most expensive steak on the menu? Don't you girls ever get steak at home?"

Gas Rate Hike Requests Denied

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Utilities Commission has canceled rate increase requests of three natural gas companies which would have boosted bills for an average customer about $1 per year.

The commission acted in cases involving Public Service Co. of North Carolina, North Carolina Natural Gas Co., and Piedmont Natural Gas Co.

The cancellation came after the gas firms' supplier, Transcontinental Pipeline Co. withdrew a rate increase it had requested of the Federal Power Commission.

Evans-Novak . . .

Wade, McGovern's chairman during the primary campaign, to stay on. But when Wade quit (under quiet pressure from McGovern) to placate county chairmen antagonized by McGovernites during the primary, the last thing the New York McGovernites wanted was an aggressive politician like Samuels to take one-man control of the campaign.

Even before Wagner's appointment, in fact, McGovern's Washington headquarters had filled several key campaign spots with McGovern's primary leaders. Ethan Geto, for example, is "campaign spokesman." A protege of Bronx president Robert Abrams, the youthful and aggressive Geto tangled rudely and publicly with Cunningham, the Bronx political leader, during a McGovern speech just before the primary.

In addition, Edward Rogoff, a key, 20-year-old activist in the primary campaign, has been named "coordinator" of the New York metropolitan area — a vital command post. Rogoff antagonized many old line party leaders at the Miami Beach convention, including Mayor John V. Lindsay.

Whether Wagner, who enters the campaign innocent and largely ignorant of these fratricidal struggles, can now take command with real authority is doubtful. Yet on just such doubtful assumptions does McGovern's prospect depend in his make-or-break New York campaign.

From the peaceful chapel in a shaded grove to the magnificent hump of granite they call Half Dome, Yosemite's 1,199 square miles add up to a peerless sweep of dramatically beautiful scenery. As a visitor, you may find yourself pausing to watch the reflection of Mt. Watkins in Mirror Lake. The ruggedly buttressed mountainsides may challenge you to climb them—or a river like the Merced may draw you to it for the quieter joys of fishing. You may just want to stand and stare at a monumental and ancient tree growing from the sculptured rock, at the plunging water of the falls. And when you turn away from one pleasing prospect, there'll be another waiting to make you catch your breath again in new delight.

Few Voices Of Dissent In GOP Platform Hearings

By STERLING F. GREEN
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A few voices of dissent today jarred generally placid hearings of the Republican Platform Committee as GOP liberals called for an unqualified pullout from Vietnam, busing to aid desegregation and the legalized use of marijuana. The proposals were offered by Sen. Jacob K. Javits of New York and supported by a handful of other witnesses. The 108-member committee seemed certain to spurn them in drafting a platform to the liking of President Nixon for next week's GOP convention. The voices of 75 prominent Republican women, including U.N. delegate Shirley Temple Black, also were heard. They issued a statement late Tuesday demanding "more positions for women at every level of our party" and a strong women's rights plank. Javits told platform drafters he would not offer a formal Southeast Asia plank, "knowing well the position of the President on Vietnam," but he declared:

"I believe the time has come to terminate completely our active commitment to this war and to end all U.S. participation in it. It is time that the South Vietnamese carried on the war themselves and that we withdraw without qualifications." Javits urged the platform writers to "support the efforts of the courts to eliminate de jure (legally prescribed) segregation of the schools, including where necessary and reasonable, the remedy of busing."

His position closely approximates a Democratic platform plank which says busing must continue to be available "to eliminate legally imposed segregation and improve the quality of education." Javits proposed "a strong national effort to respond to the problem of drug abuse, prevention and rehabilitation."

But he said he agreed with the President's National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse that Congress should decriminalize the personal possession of marijuana.

He proposed the platform say, "We will support the decriminalization of marijuana where held in small quantities for personal use in private." The appeal of the GOP women for equality in the party as delegates, candidates, officeholders and administrators was organized by the bipartisan National Women's Political Caucus.

Its plea for equal representation in each state's convention delegation was headed by a subcommittee of the Rules Committee. It recommended a rules change requiring each state "to endeavor to have equal representation" at future GOP conventions. The full Rules Committee must act on the change.

The women called on the Platform Committee to endorse a strong plank backing equality for women and to urge immediate ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution.

Remote-Control Govm't By Gov. George Wallace

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace, shot by a would-be assassin three months ago, is guiding state business primarily by telephone. And his office staff now includes its first black employe.

Wallace is conducting affairs of state temporarily from the Spain Rehabilitation Center, where he is undergoing physical therapy for paralysis of both legs.

He began intensive treatment at the Spain Center, a part of the University of Alabama Medical School, immediately after returning to the state from the Democratic National Convention in Miami Beach, Fla., last month.

Members of his staff hurriedly set up an office at the hospital, and put in a call to the State Employment Service for temporary employes.

"It was on Friday and we had to have them at once," said assistant news secretary Elvin Stanton. "They sent us five people and we picked the three best qualified."

Among the top three was Linda Johnson, whose college studies were interrupted by the birth of a baby 10 months ago. She became the first black employe hired by the governor's office since a Negro chauffeur was laid off in 1959, before Wallace was elected.

The governor's office at the Spain Center will close when he returns to the state capitol at Montgomery.

Mrs. Johnson, whose husband works in Birmingham, plans to re-enter the University of Alabama where she had been a student for three and one-half years before she dropped out.

Her job on Wallace's staff is taking telephone calls, an important function because the governor carries on the state's business mostly by phone. In addition to the office phones, he has a private line in his suite which is connected to the switchboard at the Capitol 100 miles away.

"The governor transacts most of his business at noon and at night," says Stanton. He undergoes daily therapy exercises, usually from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. and from 1:30 to 4 p.m., and members of his staff interrupt him only if his immediate attention is required.

Wallace has summoned his cabinet twice for hospital room meetings; individual department heads can contact him through his security command post, but Stanton says they usually check with the office before doing that.

"They try to keep from interrupting him when he's busy," Stanton explained. "They'll call me, for instance, and ask what he's doing and should they talk to him about a particular problem."

The governor's executive secretary, Harry Pennington, and his No. 1 cabinet officer, Finance Director Taylor Hardin, drive to Birmingham to talk with Wallace usually once a week, sometimes more often.

There have been reports of a communications gap; that some state officials cannot get through. Stanton dismissed such rumors as "foolish. They're just not true."

Wallace reads several newspapers each day, some of them while standing erect in a device which Stanton says looks like "an enclosed lectern." Physical therapists get him on his feet at regular intervals to teach him the balance he will need if he is later able to walk with leg braces and crutches.

The governor had hoped to move back to Montgomery within a short time, but doctors are to operate on him again today to drain another abdominal abscess resulting from the gunshot wound.

Stanton says Wallace has gone through periods of depression since he was wounded at Laurel, Md., May 15 while campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination, but that he is in good spirits now and sometimes jokes about his misfortune.

He touched off a momentary outburst of excitement the other day when he cried "ouch" while a leg brace was being adjusted.

It didn't mean regained feeling in the leg. It was just a gag.

ABA Proposes States Step In

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The American Bar Association has proposed that all states provide "no-fault" automobile insurance — and that the federal government stay out.

The plan approved late Tuesday by the policy-setting House of Delegates would guarantee all injured drivers, passengers and pedestrians recovery of up to $2,000 in medical payments and lost wages without suing.

However, under a last-minute change, they would be free to sue for "pain and suffering." This provision weakened the "no-fault" proposal, although most of the accident suits that now clog the courts would become unnecessary.

The special ABA committee in charge of "no-fault" insurance had recommended that general damage suits be limited. If the injured person's medical and job losses were less than $500 he could recover only a matching amount by going to court. The Massachusetts "no-fault" law, first in the nation, is even tougher in blocking "pain and suffering" suits. There can be none unless medical expenses exceeded $500.

Last week, the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws proposed a model law that would eliminate most suits for general damages and would provide lifetime compensation for lost wages up to $200 a week as well as unlimited medical payments.

The 315-member House also approved an amendment opposing any federal law on auto insurance. "Any change which may be made in the so-called automobile accident reparations system should be by state action," according to the provision.

The Senate last week shelved a tough federal law backed by Sens. Philip Hart of Michigan and Warren Magnuson of Washington by a 49-46 vote.

Claims Right To 'Yell At Apes'

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Albert Richardson has been told by a judge that he is free to yell at apes in the Cincinnati Zoo, but only when other humans aren't around.

Richardson, 41, was arrested in the zoo's ape house Monday afternoon. A zoo security guard said Richardson "was using bad language to people and started drinking wine."

On Tuesday Richardson told Hamilton County Criminal Court Judge Peter Outcalt, however, that he was yelling at the apes, not people.

In dismissing the case, Outcalt said Richardson has a constitutional right to talk to the apes whenever he wishes as long as other humans aren't within earshot. "The statutes say you shall not conduct yourself in a disorderly manner in the presence of other people," Outcalt said of his ruling. "There's nothing about being in the presence of apes."

BUNKER HILL GOES CHICKEN.

There was a battle at Bunker Hill. It was the beef guys vs. the chickens. And when the smoke had cleared, the chickens had won. Management agreed it was time Bunker Hill became famous for more than its beef dinners alone. So, it created 2 delicious chicken dinners, called Dumplin's & Chicken and Rice & Chicken. Whole pieces of plump chicken in southern style gravy, in big 2 pound, family size cans for about 69¢.

It won't be long before everybody's buying them. But to speed things up, we're offering you a dollar to try them. Send a label from each of the dinners, with your name and address, to CHICKEN, Bunker Hill, Bedford, Virginia 24523, and we'll send you your dollar.

One deal per family, please. It took courage to go chicken. But now even the beef guys are happy we did.

WE'LL PAY YOU A DOLLAR TO TRY THEM.

NEW YORK (AP)— Mixed prices characterized the stock market today. Trading was sluggish.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 2.78 to 967.19 but gainers held a slim lead over losers on the

New York Stock Exchange. Auto stocks were under pressure for the second day in a row, following the government request that auto makers reconsider their planned price increases for 1973 models. General Motors lost 1/2 to 76 1/4, Ford was down 3/4 to 65 1/2, Chrysler was off 3/4 to 30 1/2 and American Motors dipped 1/4 to 10 1/4. The Big Board's most active issue was Fannie Mae, up 1 1/2 to 19 1/4, a gain of .85 per cent.

Magnavox also was active, off 7/8 to 34 1/4, the price at which a block of 99,000 shares was traded. An active issue at the American Stock Exchange was Dome Petroleum, ahead 1/2 to 41 1/4. The company reported higher first half earnings.

On a percentage basis, the Big Board's best gainer was Products Research, up 7/8 to 10 1/4 for a lift of 9.3 per cent.

Plan New Discount Department Store

ARCHITECTURAL DRAWING... of the proposed Nichols Discount Department Store to be located on U.S. 264 by-pass and Hooker Road, with an opening date planned for the spring of 1973.

A new 100,000 square foot discount department store has been announced for Greenville, with an opening date tentatively scheduled for the spring of 1973. Irving Rosenbaum, Chairman of the Board of S.E. Nichols Co., Inc. of New York City, has announced that construction of the Greenville store is progressing according to schedule.

Site for the store is a tract of 20 acres located on U.S. 264 by-pass at Hooker Road. Harit Developers Corporation, of Old Country Road, Garden City,

New York, developer of the shopping complex, has also announced that a reputable national supermarket chain will operate adjacent to the Nichols Department Store.

Initial plans call for floor space in excess of 155,000 square feet of retail selling space.

The Nichols store will be the anchor in this one-stop shopping plaza to consist of other stores. One major first planned is a controlled massive parking lot for over 1,000 cars, with entire parking lot area to be free of ice and snow during bad weather. In making the announcement, Rosenbaum noted that all construction work will be let out to local construction firms. In addition, sales, maintenance and supervisory personnel will be drawn from local labor sources. The Nichols store is expected to employ more than 300 people.

The Nichols department store will carry more than 100 fully stocked departments geared to household and personal needs. The store according to Rosenbaum, "is being designed to create and attractive atmosphere through judicious use of building materials and complementary gay colors."

Al Mittleman, General Merchandise Manager at Nichols, has said that "In coming to Greenville, Nichols shall endeavor to satisfy the family desire for fashion and quality at savings."

Chairman Rosenbaum declared that "Nichols is happy and proud to settle in a progressive town such as Greenville. Our research conclusively proves Greenville to be on the threshold of a commercial, industrial, population and retail explosion. Nichols not only wants to be a part of Greenville's growth, but will endeavor to earn the right to make an important contribution to that end."

The Greenville store will be the 28th in the Nichols chain of discount department stores.

Ayden Will Ask Planning Loan

AYDEN — The Ayden Board of Commissioners Monday night approved a resolution to file an application with the Department of Administration for a $10,000 planning loan for the consolidated sewer plant.

The board also authorized the Ayden Mayor, Larry Davis and town clerk, along with the mayors and clerks in the towns of Winterville and Grifton, to enter into a contract with the L.E. Wooten Company of Raleigh, to study the feasibility of a consolidated sewer plant.

The board authorized Robert Booth, town attorney, to file the necessary papers against property owners who have had houses condemned by the town building inspector. This is the final step in an attempt to have the houses repaired or torn down.

The board increased the reinstatement charges on electrical bills which remain unpaid after the 20th of the month from $1 to $5. The late charge on bills will remain $1. The new charges will become effective with the September billing.

A public hearing was set for Sept. 11 on proposed amendments of the zoning ordinance which allows special uses within B-1 district.

The town clerk was instructed to request to the Pitt County Commissioners to reappoint Bobby Johnson to the Planning Board for a three-year term. He will serve in the one-mile extraterritorial limits.

Pete Jones appeared before the commissioners seeking permission to place a mobile home on his residential lot. The matter will be handled at the September board meeting.

Ficklen Stadium: Both Sides Score

In Sunday's paper, we brought to your attention the fact that Rose High School's football program may have to move out of Ficklen Stadium.

East Carolina University, which owns Ficklen, feels that the column was unjust.

The information we used came from Rose High School Coach Dave Bumgarner. He told The Daily Reflector that East Carolina was requiring an additional $231 to allow Rose to play on Friday night prior to the opening Pirate game, and that beginning in 1973, Rose would be asked to schedule around East Carolina, playing only when the Pirates were not scheduled or were playing away. Bumgarner cited ECU business manager Cliff Moore as the source of this.

Bumgarner made these statements late last week, and early this week, Rose Athletic Director Bud Phillips said that he had received this word, and passed it along to Bumgarner. Phillips said Rose principal Bob Allgood was the initial recipient of the ECU ruling.

Allgood said yesterday that ECU Athletic Director Clarence Stasavich had passed the word along to him, and also cited Moore as the source.

But there the buck stops. Stasavich said that he did not categorically state that Rose would have to schedule around ECU in the future, only that it was a likelihood that the ECU Athletic Committee, which governs the athletic policies of the school, would pass such a ruling.

Asked if he had given Moore as the ultimate source of the proposed ruling, Stasavich said that it had been several weeks since his conversation with Allgood and that he did not remember the details.

Moore said that he has made no such ruling. His only desire was to provide East Carolina's football team with an excellent playing field for its first game.

For this reason, Moore says, East Carolina asked Rose to move its Wilson game back to Thursday to allow Friday for any repairs which might have to be done to the turf, and for the preparation of the field (lining, decorating the end zones, etc.). He also emphasized that Rose High School paid no rent whatsoever for the use of Ficklen Stadium. Stasavich also denied that rent was charged in any form.

However, all parties admit that Rose pays for the lights, the lining of the field prior to the games, the salaries for the public address announcer and the score board operator, and two off-duty ECU policemen. Rose also provides a clean-up service for the stadium following each home game.

Whether this could be classified as "rent" may be up for debate.

The additional money that is to be charged Rose is for the preparation of the field on Saturday morning, which includes overtime for employees who would otherwise do the work on Friday.

Rose High School officials: Allgood, Bumgarner and Phillips, feel they are being asked too much of, in being asked to schedule around East Carolina. They also feel that the program cannot financially support the extra money when a conflict occurs. But they also feel that they cannot move games to Thursday without severe financial loss at the gate.

East Carolina officials: Stasavich and Moore, feel that East Carolina has gone out of its way to help the high school program. They point out that few high schools in the state enjoy such a facility, and that if the stadium growth continues as planned, few high schools in the country can say that they have a 40,000 seat stadium. They feel the fees charged do not come close to the actual cost to Rose's use of the field.

Presently there is no written policy regarding the use of Ficklen Stadium by Rose High. Stasavich said that he proposed such a written contract several years ago, but the athletic committee turned it down, feeling it was not needed. In retrospect, they were wrong.

Certainly, East Carolina needs some sort of contract, since the stadium surely is theirs. While some people, including Moore, wonder if there ever was an official policy guaranteeing Rose's use of the stadium at the time the stadium was built, he feels a promise is a promise, as does Stasavich. (A member of the committee which raised the original funds for the stadium said that while there was NO official or written commitment to Rose, it was assumed by most of the Greenville businessmen who donated time and money to the project, and that a number did specifically question Rose's future in the use of the stadium prior to giving. The same member also said that Dr. Leo Jenkins, president of the university, while never denying Rose's use of the stadium, did say that the college and state did own the facility and had the right to control it. It was also assumed that while this right to play by Rose had no deadline, one could be imposed.)

One member of the ECU staff ventured to say that one reason Rose High's athletic program was having the varied troubles it is having is that it has no facilities and therefore no pride. We tend to agree.

Rose has no facilities except for its gym where basketball and wrestling are held. Swimming and football depend on ECU for facilities. Tennis and baseball depend on the city recreation department. Track has relied on both, but now has a second class facility of its own.

Each of the schools in Pitt County have their own football and baseball fields. Each is providing tracks and facilities for other sports. Farmville Central, for instance, is not fielding a tennis team until it has courts of its own.

This is not to say that these teams should be dropped at Rose until facilities can be provided. They should be continued.

But at the same time, the city's board of education must begin to make plans for a high school athletic complex.

It might be the most fortunate thing that can happen if East Carolina would set a deadline for Rose to cease using Ficklen Stadium. Perhaps this would spur the building of a field of its own. Some city school officials admit that they would welcome this.

But East Carolina appears reluctant to cut this final cord, whether from fear of the effect it might have on its own recruiting and solicitation, or from the goodness of their hearts, is uncertain.

Both sides have their points in the battle. ECU needs a nice looking facility, certainly. They have the right to make an equitable charge for its use. We feel there should be some leniency in forcing Rose to switch its schedule around; a task we still feel is impossible.

Rose feels that the majority of financial support in Greenville goes to East Carolina, and until the local people begin to support their own program, they need East Carolina help.

It would be better for Rose to have its own stadium. Then, a high school crowd would look like a crowd, instead of a pea in a barrel as some of them do now.

In the meantime, Rose officials should sit down with those from East Carolina and come to some sort of written understanding, one which sees the problems of both.

East Carolina feels that we acted in haste on Sunday—perhaps we did. But we desire to see a healthy program of athletics both at Rose High School and at East Carolina. Rose cannot have a healthy program trying to switch its schedule around to suit East Carolina. It would entail endless problems, both at Rose and at the schools involved.

But we will agree that East Carolina needs guarantees that its facilities will be ready for its use: their primary purpose. If a new stadium for Rose is what it takes to guarantee the success of both schools, then work should begin immediately on getting such a facility.

Gullett Returns To Form For Cincinnati

By BRUCE LOWITT

Associated Press Sports Writer

"That was about as close as he can get to himself without being there," Cincinnati catcher Johnny Bench said of batter-mate Don Gullett.

"I can't really tell if I'm back to myself just yet," Gullett added.

A little clarification, please.

Well, Gullett, who posted a 16-6 record last season, had been expected to be a major factor in the Reds' drive to the top of the National League's West Division this year.

But the 21-year-old left-hander contracted hepatitis in January—a condition the Reds didn't even discover until May—and had been virtually useless to the baseball club this season. For two innings he'd be able to blaze in his fast ball, then he'd get so weak he could barely wind up to pitch.

But on Tuesday night, outfielder Pete Rose said, "He looked like he used to." And Bench added: "His ball really jumped at times and when he reared back and wanted to throw it, he could do it."

Gullett got the call after just one inning in Philadelphia when Cincinnati starter Wayne Simpson was forced out of the game after reinjuring a calf muscle.

The 6-foot Kentuckian came out of the bullpen and, for the next eight innings, hurled four-hit shutout ball, striking out eight and walking just one to provide the Reds with a 3-0 victory over the Phillies.

Elsewhere in the National League, Los Angeles defeated Pittsburgh 8-6, the New York

Mets blanked Atlanta 5-0, San Francisco beat the Chicago Cubs 7-5, San Diego slugged St. Louis 7-1 and Montreal edged Houston 3-2 in 10 innings.

In the American League, the Chicago White Sox nipped Milwaukee 2-1, Kansas City slipped past the New York Yankees 7-6, Boston blanked Texas 3-0, Cleveland topped California 4-3 in 10 innings and Minnesota tripped Detroit 7-6 in 13. Baltimore and Oakland were idle.

Tony Perez singled home the only run the Reds needed in the first inning and they scored two more in the fifth on Bobby Tolan's RBI single and loser Wayne Twitchell's wild pickoff throw attempt that allowed Joe Morgan to scamper home from third.

The Dodgers, edging within two games of the second-place Astros in the West, used Willie Davis' two-run homer in the sixth inning, his third round-tripper in two games, to turn back the Pirates.

And the Mets, celebrating an anniversary of sorts, began dreaming of their glory season of 1969. It was just three years ago that New York, 9½ games behind first-place Chicago, began their incredible charge toward the top of the East Division.

Now they trail first-place Pittsburgh by nine games.

"Nothing is impossible," Jim McAndrew said before he and reliever Tug McGraw combined for a five-hit shutout against the Braves. "I think we're a better team than we were in '69. Of course, the Pirates are a better team than the Cubs were then ... but the Pirates haven't had a slump."

Ed Kranepool drove in two runs with a homer and a single and Tommie Agee hit a two-run homer to lead the Mets past Atlanta.

Rookie Garry Maddox of the Giants had one of the biggest days of his career by driving in six runs with a pair of homers, one of them his first major league grand-slam. It enabled Juan Marichal, 5-13, to post his first victory in more than a month although he needed relief help to beat the Cubs.

Clarence Gaston and Fred Kendall drove in two runs apiece and Mike Caldwell scattered six hits to carry the Padres past the Cardinals.

And Mike Jorgensen drove in two Expos runs, the latter a tie-breaking two-out single in the 10th inning that turned back the Astros.

Three More Join Rhodesia Protest

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — Three more black African nations—Liberia, Ghana and Ethiopia—have joined Tanzania, Sierra Leone and Zambia in withdrawing from the Olympics because of plans to allow Rhodesian athletes to compete in the Games, which begin Aug. 26.

And there are reports that the number of boycotting nations would increase. Cairo, Egypt, Sudan and Nigeria are expected to join the list, and possibly Uganda and Guyana.

Despite the announced withdrawals on Tuesday, a spokesman for the Olympic Organizing Committee said no official word had been received in Munich.

Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, said, "This is politics, pure politics. We are not concerned with politics. All sportsmen will be here."

"We made an agreement a year ago with all the National Olympic Committees concerned. Rhodesia was invited. Rhodesia will participate. We think for the moment that the question is settled."

A 44-member Rhodesian team arrived in Munich last week. It included seven black athletes and a black trainer.

The Organization of African Unity is against Rhodesia's participation in the Games, claiming there is sufficient evidence that discrimination in sports exists in the country.

Steelers Enter 1972 Season With New Kind Of Confidence

By GARY MIHOCS
 Associates Press Sports Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Despite a 39-year legacy of dashed hopes and faded optimism, the Pittsburgh Steelers enter this season with a new kind of confidence.

The division title that has eluded them throughout their pro football history is within reach—if they can shake their image as the "Same Old Steelers."

"It's been said 'This is the year' so many times before that it doesn't mean anything. So don't even quote me on it," said quarterback Terry Bradshaw, his eyes flashing.

"We want to do it, not talk about it," he added. "We'll prove ourselves when the season starts."

That's the attitude that seems to pervade the Steelers, in their fourth year under Coach Chuck Noll.

Noll, 40, took the job in 1969 after Bill Austin was fired, and he has led Pittsburgh to records of 1-13, 5-9 and 6-8.

One thing going for Pittsburgh is that it is in the Central Division of the American Conference with Cleveland, Houston and Cincinnati. It was the worst division in pro football record-wise in 1971, and Pittsburgh finished second to Cleveland, 9-5.

"I thought we should have won it in 1971," said Noll. "The team failed in the stretch when it counted most... Most of our young players have the experience now. I am very optimistic."

Noll has rebuilt the Steelers through drafts, and only seven players remain from the 1968 team.

Bradshaw, first player picked in the 1970 draft, came to Pittsburgh from Louisiana Tech. People expected superhuman things from him.

Blond-haired with boyish yet rugged features, he carries 215 pounds of hard muscle over a 6-foot-3 frame. A flick of his wrist sends a spiral 50 yards downfield.

Yet Bradshaw found in his rookie season that he couldn't drill passes into the teeth of sophisticated pro zones. His completion average was a sub-par 38 per cent and he threw for only six touchdowns.

Advise from Steeler quarterback coach Babe Parilli made a difference last season. Bradshaw completed 54 per cent of his passes for 13 touchdowns. He also rushed for 247 yards and five touchdowns.

Steeler receivers rank among the best. Ron Shanklin and Dave Smith were fourth and sixth respectively in the AFC last season in catches. Another threat is Frank Lewis, the club's No. 1 draft pick a year ago.

Incumbent tight end Bob Adams didn't catch a touchdown pass last season, and he is being pressed by Larry Brown and rookie John McMakin.

Returnees in the offensive line include tackles John Brown and Jon Kolb, guards Sam Davis and Bruce Van Dyke and center Ray Mansfield.

Mansfield has started 126 straight regular season games for Pittsburgh, but he is being pressed by Bobby Maples, acquired last year from Houston.

Running the football will be Preston Pearson and Frenchy Fuqua, a stubby breakout runner with a center of gravity like a manhole cover. Backup strength, a weakness in 1971, could be an asset.

The reasons: Franco Harris, the club's No. 1 draft choice; Steve Davis, who missed all of last season with a viral infection, and Rocky Bleier, who appears fully recovered from Vietnam shrapnel wounds.

On the other hand, the defense was last in the AFC against the pass last year.

Tentative starters in the secondary are Mel Blount and John Rowser at the corners and Chuck Beatty and Mike Wagner at safeties.

The front four, third best in the AFC against the rush in 1971, is led by "Mean Joe" Greene, 270 pounds of defensive tackle.

Dwight White and L.C. Greenwood man the ends, with Ben McGee and Lloyd Voss at the other tackle.

Linebacking is solid with veteran Chuck Allen in the middle and Jack Ham and Andy Russell on the flanks.

Some stability in the secondary and continued improvement from Bradshaw are the keys.

Landry: Don't Count Cowboys Out Of Race Because Of Losses

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
 Don't count the Dallas Cowboys out of the Super Bowl just because they've lost starting quarterback Roger Staubach with a shoulder separation and traded powerful running back Duane Thomas to San Diego.

That's what Coach Tom Landry says.

"Most people will write us off," Landry said Tuesday.

The Cowboy coach was quick to point out, however, that Craig Morton, the first-string quarterback before yielding the job to Staubach last season, was capable of directing the club, and running back Calvin Hill, National Football League offensive Rookie of the Year in 1969, was regaining his old form after being slowed by a knee injury last season.

Meanwhile, backfield coach Dan Reeves was reactivated to back up Morton, and Staubach was optimistic while recuperating in Baylor Hospital in Dallas.

"I'll be okay," said Staubach, who underwent surgery Sunday after being injured Saturday night in an exhibition game against Los Angeles.

"I'll come back stronger than ever."

Elsewhere, in the NFL, Miami wide receiver Karl Noonan, who also suffered a shoulder separation last Saturday in an exhibition against Green Bay, underwent surgery Tuesday. He will be sidelined 8-12 weeks.

The Dolphins lost defensive end Bob Heinz for at least two months with fractured vertebra. He also was hurt in the Green Bay game.

The Dolphins also announced they had traded defensive tackle Frank Cornish to Buffalo for a draft choice and the negotiating rights to center-tackle Howard Kindig if Kindig decides to come out of retirement.

Rookie wide receiver Jerome Barkum, the New York Jets' No. 1 draft choice from Jackson State, ended his holdout and signed his 1972 contract.

Offensive tackle Don Yochum, the Philadelphia Eagles' No. 2 draft pick from Syracuse University who had agreed to terms Monday, left the club Tuesday and signed with the Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League.

"Everything seemed to be in order," said Pete Retzlaff,

Eagles' general manager. "We sent him to Graduate Hospital to take his physical while I prepared the contract. He never came back."

Twenty-four Pittsburgh Steelers players and six coaches, including head coach Chuck Noll, were stricken with virus. But it didn't stop any of them from practicing Tuesday.

The Oakland Raiders said running back Clarence Davis would be out 10 weeks with a broken bone in his right shoulder, suffered in Monday night's exhibition game against Baltimore.

Ryun's 3rd Medal Try May Be Overshadowed

(Even in a series)
 By DAN BERGER
 Associated Press Sports Writer
MUNICH, Germany (AP) — Jim Ryun's third crack at a gold medal may be overshadowed this year by a race most consider potentially the greatest at the 20th Olympiad—the 5,000-meter run.

America has two fine entrants in Steve Prefontaine and George Young, the latter competing in his fourth Olympics, a record for an American distance runner. But the two, along with Leonard Hilton, face as many as 10 others who could break the Olympic record of 13 minutes 39.6 seconds.

In fact, the predictions are that it'll take at least 13:40 just to make the finals.

Meanwhile, Ryun appears a solid choice in the 1,500-meter run, the metric mile. In 1964, the teen-aged Ryun failed to make the finals. In 1968, at high-altitude Mexico City, he lost the gold to Kip Keino of Kenya and finished second.

Keino is back this year, reportedly planning to triple in the 1,500 the 5,000 and the steeplechase.

Ryun, 25, has not approached his world record 3:33.1 in years and even in winning the U.S. trials at Eugene, Ore., did only 3:41.5. But his form was good, his feet flashed as of old and experts said Ryun had returned.

His top competition could come from Francesco Aresse of Italy or a host of Englishmen. Bob Wheeler and Jerome Howe round out the American contingent with both having recorded sub-3:40 times this year.

The 5,000, however, is the race of the Games.

Prefontaine set the American record of 13:22.8 in winning the trials at Eugene with Young second in 13:29.4. Both times pale in light of Dave Bedford's 13:17.2, second best ever recorded and only six tenths off the world mark set by Ron Clarke in 1966.

Bedford, the brittle-tough Englishman, had not planned to run the 5,000 this year until he blazed the fast time at London.

Finland's one-two punch of Lasse Viren and Juha Vaatainen, with life bests of 13:18 and 13:32.6, England's Ian McCafferty and Ian Stewart and Russia's Rashid Sharafiyetdinov, as well as five East European runners make the race even tougher to predict.

One man who could win it all, however, is Ethiopia's Mirusifter, a virtual unknown last year who showed explosive power in the Pan-Africa Games at Durham, N.C.

The 10,000 is also talent-laden, with Bedford heading the list. His 27:52.8 earlier this year is the fourth best time in history, the same time in which Vaatainen won the European title in 1971.

Finland's Viren blazed 27:52.4 for No. 3 on the all-time list earlier this year and should be the favorite but the tactics of the race may be too much.

America's Frank Shorter has a shot if the former Yale and Florida Track Club star sets a hot pace and stays in front. Shorter doesn't have the late speed of the Europeans. In fact, Shorter's lifetime best of 28:12 was set earlier this year at the AAU championships as he ran second to late-kicking Greg Fredericks of Penn State.

Mike Manley is the top U.S. entrant in the 3,000-meter steeplechase and he has the best chance of winning the event of any American since Horace Ashenfelter did 20 years ago.

The 30-year-old Oregon school teacher is a true veteran of the event with a lifetime best of 8:27.6, second best ever by an American.

Unfortunately, more than a dozen men have run faster than that this year already, including world record holder Kerry O'Brien of Australia, whose mark of 8:22.0 could fall.

Bronislaw Malinowski of Poland has already done 8:22.2 this year with Anders Garderud of Sweden and Kazmierz Maranda of Poland recording fast times of 8:23.6 Bulgaria's Mikhail Zhelev has run 8:25.4.

Keino's 8:30.0 in his first attempt at the steeplechase shows he could surprise this good field.

The classic marathon, all 26 miles of it, is probably the least predictable race because of the hundreds of entrants, the lack of standardization in courses around the world and the few competitions held prior to the games.

Still, Shorter and Ken Moore, America's top two entrants, are real veterans of long, long distance running and could give the favorites—Ron Hill of England, Lutz Phillip of West Germany, Dave McKenzie of New Zealand and Derek Clayton of Australia—a run for the gold.

Boston Tops Texans; Yanks, Tigers Lose

By KEN RAPPOPORT
 Associated Press Sports Writer
 The Boston Red Sox pulled the curtain down on the Texas Rangers but it was nothing like the act they played in the dressing room afterwards.

After beating the Rangers 3-0 on John Curtis' three-hitter Tuesday night:

Tommy Harper helped play a joke on reporters. Reggie Smith, who hit two home runs, wouldn't talk to anybody. And Manager Eddie Kasko was extremely short of patience.

The Red Sox, who've reportedly had internal problems of late with players sparring verbally, appeared to level some of their frustrations at visitors after Tuesday night's game in Arlington, Tex.

Harper sat on Smith's stool while a Texas broadcaster mistakenly congratulated him on his two-homer night. The rest of the Red Sox laughed at the broadcaster's blunder.

Then, when Smith finally appeared at his locker, he refused to answer questions. Staring blankly while he was questioned, the Red Sox outfielder soon strolled away to shave.

Kasko, when later facing the same reporters, kept his comments short and sweet.

Said one writer: "He was surly. It seemed like he wished that we'd just go away as soon as possible."

Things were relatively tame around the rest of baseball's American League as the Minnesota Twins nipped the Detroit Tigers 7-6 in 13 innings; the Cleveland Indians beat the California Angels 4-3 in 10 innings; the Kansas City Royals turned back the New York Yankees 7-6 and the Chicago White Sox trimmed the Milwaukee Brewers 2-1.

National league results: Cincinnati 3, Philadelphia 0; Montreal 3, Houston 2 in 10 innings; New York 5, Atlanta 0; San Diego 7, St. Louis 1; Los Angeles 8, Pittsburgh 6 and San Francisco 7, Chicago 5.

The fourth-place Red Sox moved within four games of the front-running Baltimore Orioles in the tight American league East race. The Orioles were idle Tuesday night.

Jim Nettles and Rod Carew each singled in a run as Minnesota rallied to beat Detroit in the 13th inning. The burst broke a 5-5 tie and offset a run in the Tigers' half of the frame on Gates Brown's homer.

The second-place Tigers dropped 1 1/2 games behind the Orioles and maintained a half-game lead on the Yankees, who are in third place.

Cleveland, another team in that wild pennant chase, won with a two-run rally in the bottom of the 10th. Frank Duffy's bases-loaded single with two out capped the outburst.

California had taken a 3-2 lead in the top of the 10th on Bob Oliver's third RBI of the game before the fifth-place Indians came back to win and move within eight games of Baltimore.

Lou Piniella's run-scoring single capped a three-run rally in the bottom of the ninth that pulled Kansas City past New York. Steve Hovley's two-run single tied the score before Piniella came through.

The rally wiped out a 6-4 Yankee advantage taken in the top of the ninth on Bobby Murcer's two-run triple.

Environmentalists Question Replacing 'Skid Row'

By DUSTIN HARVEY
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Can the replacement of a decaying, wine-infested Skid Row with a $385 million convention center, sports arena and office complex harm San Francisco's environment? The question is asked with complete seriousness by the Sierra Club and other environmental groups. Failure of the federal bureaucracy to answer it has produced an order from U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas banning any further work on the gigantic Yerba Buena redevelopment project. The stay issued by Douglas from his summer retreat was the latest in a series of court orders which have stalled the project adjacent to the city's financial district for three years. The previous judicial bans have involved relocation of the area's residents. But the Sierra Club and its allies are now demanding a halt to all work on the project until an environmental impact report is made by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) or by the San Francisco Redevelopment Agency. "We have no intention of stopping or delaying Yerba Buena," said Rebecca Evans, administrator of the Sierra Club's San Francisco Bay Chapter. "But the National Environment Protection Act (NEPA) must be enforced." Planned Before Law HUD and the Redevelopment Agency both contend that the 1970 act, which requires environmental impact studies of federally funded projects, does not apply to the San Francisco project because all the significant government discussions and decisions took place in 1966. back at this late date," said Michael DiSanto, an attorney for the local agency. But J. Anthony Kline, who represents the Sierra Club, San Francisco Tomorrow and five other environmental groups in the suit, which also involves a redevelopment project in Berkeley, said that the courts

Built To Stand Hurricane Wind

NEW YORK (UPI)—An offshore drilling platform under construction at Brownsville, Tex., is being built to withstand hurricane force winds up to 138 miles an hour, accompanied by 50-foot seas. To maintain its mooring under the impact of these tremendous forces, the drilling rig will use eight 30,000-pound anchors, each equipped with 5,000 feet of steel chain 2 3/4 inches in diameter.

have repeatedly ruled that NEPA applies to pre-1970 projects. "All we're saying is make an Environmental Impact Statement," said Kline, who also represents the Yerba Buena area residents whose relocation has blocked work on the project for three years. "We're not saying stop the project. Make the statement that will disabuse us of our concerns or confirm our fears. That's all we're saying."

Kline suggested some of the possible ecological problems that the huge projects could cause. Cities Possible Danger They included earthquake dangers, air pollution from additional auto traffic generated by the project's parking garages, overburdening of the city sewage system, visual pollution, and overcrowding of recreation facilities. San Francisco Tomorrow, a local environmental group with 750 members which endorsed an anti-highrise measure in the last municipal election, said the project's "most objectionable feature stemmed from the enormous impact that its thousands of visiting users, to say nothing of their automobiles, would have upon the city." President E.R. Scrofani said S.F. Tomorrow's questions included, "Why should a resident of San Francisco tolerate the inevitable increase in traffic congestion, air pollution, and general crowding which will result from the Yerba Buena Center? How can this project help but contribute to the city's unseemly practice of polluting San Francisco Bay?" In a brief filed with a federal appellate court, Kline quotes earthquake experts who agree that the project is located in areas of San Francisco that would be subjected to the highest intensity ground motions if an earthquake occurred, and that there is "a virtual certainty of a large damaging earthquake in the San Francisco Bay Area" during the life of the project. Opponents are also concerned about plans for public and private garages adjacent to the Convention center and sports arena. They argue the 2,000 to 4,000 parking stalls will bring more cars into San Francisco and decrease reliance on the Bay Area Rapid Transit (BART) system, which will have two subway stations in the projects area. "Appellants do not claim that the environmental horrors they depict will necessarily result from the projects they challenge," the attorney wrote. "They do not know."

To which the Redevelopment Agency replies: See Environmental Pride "The center is not only environmentally sound, but environmentally proud. It was designed to be ecologically oriented—to be a place where people can walk, stroll, visit, shop, gaze. It has some highrise, but mostly it's low-rise and will preserve sun, and light, and vistas of the bay from the hills." Eleven acres of open space and malls will be included in the 25-acre convention center and sports arena complex, an agency spokesman said. He also rejected the garage-auto congestion argument, saying the plans call for a 20,000 seat sports arena and only 1,800 parking spaces, stating: "We're not bestowing blessings on the automobile, we're harnessing it. The key to the project is its linkage to BART. And finally, we're taking a slum—a visual and physical slum—and turning it into something designed for people." Douglas' stay will remain in effect until the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals rules on the environmentalists' appeal from a lower court decision tossing out the case. Lawyers for the government hope that arguments can be made sometime in September, with a ruling to follow soon thereafter. Olympic Team Will Be Guests WASHINGTON (AP)—First Lady Pat Nixon will play hostess to members of the U.S. Olympic team. Team members, trainers and coaches—a total of 600 guests—will be greeted by the President's wife Thursday at the White House. It was not immediately known whether the President, an avid sports fan, would be there. The team will be in Washington for the day and has several other events on its schedule before it leaves for Munich, Germany, the site of the forthcoming Olympics.

Cambodian Army Training Includes Magic Course

By ROBIN MANNOCK
Associated Press Writer
PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Capt. Mam Prom Mony is the officer in charge of magic for the Cambodian army's 54th Infantry Brigade. One of his jobs is to teach soldiers how to use charms and spells to ward off Communist bullets. The majority of Khmer soldiers wear necklaces of amulets, often wrapped inside a magical scarf blessed by a Buddhist monk. Another of the captain's jobs is soothsaying. Astrologers, palm readers and seers into the future abound here. They are consulted before decisions such as whether to embark on a journey or whether a business deal will turn a profit. Mam Prom Mony is, however, no ordinary fortune teller. He concentrates instead on what might be termed strategic prophecies. His predictions deal with peace and war and the fate of nations. He is in regular contact with Cambodia's rulers and has advised Marshal Lon Nol, who is both president of the Khmer Republic and chief of staff of the armed forces. Mam Prom Mony's latest forecast is that peace will not come to Cambodia before June, 1975, even though the war will begin to fade away next year in September. "This year the elephant and the tiger are changing their ways and are trying to stamp out the forest fire," he declared in a not-so-cryptic reference to efforts by President Nixon and Communist leaders of China and the Soviet Union to achieve an international detente. Prince Norodom Sihanouk, Cambodia's former head of state who was ousted by Lon Nol in 1970, faces a bleak future according to the captain. "Sihanouk will try to come back, but he will not succeed," he prophesied. "Sihanouk's political career here is at an end." Sihanouk fled to China. Mam Prom Mony, who spent 25 years wearing the saffron robes of a Buddhist monk, says he returned to Cambodia after Lon Nol appealed to all those who possessed supernatural powers to rally to the government. At the time, Mam Prom Mony said, he was in Thailand to avoid arrest by Cambodian police acting on Sihanouk's orders. This amalgam of statecraft and the occult is not new in Cambodia. Sayamon, or knowledge of the intentions of the stars, was an essential qualification for any high Khmer official. Cambodia's King Norodom told the French back in 1895. There is evidence that, under the marshal's guidance as chief of staff of Cambodia's armed forces, magical considerations play a significant role in Khmer strategic thinking. One example has been the decision to pin down several thousand Cambodian soldiers, including crack paratroopers, to besiege the 12th century temple of Angkor Wat, one of the world's most spectacular art treasures which has no military value whatsoever. Wrestling the temple from Communist hands would be a political victory to boost sagging Khmer morale. But what seems likely to have been more important is the fact that Angkor Wat, as centerpiece of the ancient cult of Khmer God-kings, contains powerful magical forces for those who possess the key. Two major offensives by the Khmers in northeastern Cambodia may have been prompted more by magic than by military needs, a Western officer with many years' experience here believes. Both Operation Tchenla in 1970 and Tchenla 2 the next year were essential preliminaries for a thrust against Communist forces occupying the city of Kratie, a much-publicized goal of the Khmers. Western military analysts rate the recapture of Kratie low on any list of priorities for the Khmers. They point out that the city, stretching in a narrow strip along the East bank of the Mekong River 100 miles from Phnom Penh, is virtually without any defense against an enemy holding the hinterland. What this analysis fails to take into account is that only 15 miles north of Kratie lies Sambaur, capital of the pre-Angkorean Kingdom of Tchenla. It is one of the most sacred spots in Cambodia. Sambaur's magical powers are reputed to be almost on a par with those of Angkor. The disastrous collapse of Tchenla 2, an operation advised by Lon Nol and carried out under his supervision, has not stilled the clamor for Kratie's liberation. Several of Lon Nol's closest army cronies, reliable informants say, have undergone minor surgery to have diamonds, sapphires and rubies as well as small gold pins implanted under their skin. Others wear diamond rings, believing that precious stones are powerful talismans against enemy bullets. Mam Prom Mony points out none of these magical shields is any good if the wearer fails to observe the five basic principles of Buddhism. To be protected, a Khmer soldier must not kill any living creature with the exception of Communists, not steal, not lie, not commit adultery or have adulterous thoughts or drink alcohol. Failure to obey these precepts invalidates all magic. "When this happens," Mam Prom Mony declared, "we say that a man has killed himself." In 1970, Lon Nol reacted angrily to what he evidently deemed a magical low blow by the enemy. The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong, Lon Nol charged in a speech to the nation, were placing naked Vietnamese girls in their front lines. Lon Nol did not say so, but the implication to any adept of local magic was clear: any red-blooded Khmer soldier who saw the girls would be stripped forthwith of all supernatural protection. Magic is used by the other side, especially by the anti-Lon Nol "Red Khmers" who fight alongside the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong in Cambodia. "The other side has recruited village witch doctors," Mam

From Mony declared scornfully. "But the Communists don't have any leading magicians in their ranks." The roots of Khmer magic reach back far beyond Angkor and Tchenla to the spirit worship of Indochina's earliest inhabitants. Hinduism, the religion of the early Angkorean kings, added a vast treasury of legends from India to the myths that were strictly of Khmer origin. Popular versions of Khmer history are long recitals of fact so mixed with fable that the average Khmer has difficulty telling them apart. Monsters and ogres are often as real to them as their neighbor's cow. White crocodiles, an ominous portent, are often the harbingers of a new regime. According to popular report, a white crocodile was spotted in the Tonle Sap River in 1970.

Seminar On Excavating Shipwrecks

By H. G. Jones
 Director N.C. Dept. of Archives and History
RALEIGH (AP) — Studying the material remains of past human life and activities on dry land is an involved undertaking, but a group meeting this weekend at Ft. Fisher does the same thing on the ocean floor — primarily with shipwrecks.

The two-day seminar devoted to both the theoretical and practical aspects of excavating and documenting marine archaeological sites will include a dive (by qualified participants) on a Civil War blockade runner sunk in 1864.

The event will be sponsored jointly by the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, the North Carolina Office of Archives and History and Underwater Archaeological Associates, Inc., the only organization currently holding a permit to conduct salvage on state-owned shipwrecks off the North Carolina coast.

Speakers will include Dr. George Bass, director of underwater archaeology for the University of Pennsylvania Museum; Dr. Andreas Rechnitzer, president of CEDAM International (a widely recognized diving and archaeological association); and Dr. William Still, associate professor of history at East Carolina University.

Also at the seminar will be representatives of the Office of Archives and History and Underwater Archaeological Associates, Inc. — Sam Townsend of Raleigh and Dr. Charles Peery, a native of Kinston now working in Washington, D.C.

Seminar students will come primarily from North Carolina and will represent a wide variety of backgrounds and occupations. Some are engaged professionally in underwater archaeology and others pursue it as an avocation.

The Ft. Fisher State Historic Site provides an appropriate setting for the seminar in underwater archaeology in that much research of this type takes place in the immediate area — and much remains to be done. Located at the mouth of the Cape Fear River below Wilmington, Ft. Fisher was the largest earthwork fort of the Confederacy, and it kept the port open to blockade runners until near the end of the war. Many Confederate blockade runners and federal gunboats were sunk in the waters of the fort, providing a rich hunting ground for underwater archaeologists.

One such wreck lies only a few hundred feet from the beach at Ft. Fisher, and relics from it and other ships are on display in the historic site's visitor center and adjoining underwater archaeology pavillion. A specially equipped artifact preservation laboratory on the site is staffed by a conservator and an underwater archaeologist.

High Rise Test Building Slated

WASHINGTON (AP) — An 11-story laboratory to test plumbing and waste vent systems will be built on the campus of Stevens Institute of Technology in Hoboken, N.J., the Department of Housing and Urban Development announced recently.

Particular attention will be given in the laboratory to venting for plumbing installations in high-rise apartment buildings. The building will be the only one of its kind in the United States and one of three such structures in the world devoted to similar research.

Weeds Invading Culture Center

WASHINGTON (AP) — The John F. Kennedy Center in the Nation's capital recently fell victim to a familiar blight: weeds.

Visitors' admiration for the performing arts center, with its foundations and terraces, was dimmed by the profusion of unsightly weeds bordering the building and filling its planters.

In an anti-weed crusade, the invaders were uprooted and replaced by crawling ivy.

WIDE-EYED LUTHERANS
HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI) — The theme of the All-Lutheran Youth Gathering scheduled here in August, 1973, will be "with Eyes Wide Open". The three largest Lutheran churches in America will be represented and 30,000 delegates are expected.

Polygraph Is Finding Use In Business

By ROD DAVIS
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Don't be surprised if the next time you're looking for a job, your prospective employer asks you to take a lie detector test. Experts in the field say more companies are using such tests. George Danish of the San Antonio Police Department said many firms have large polygraph—lie detector—staffs of their own.

Most businesses, however, rely on the services of the approximately 260 licensed examiners in Texas. One of the state's largest is Truth Verification Inc., a subsidiary of Smith Protection Services.

Jim Hamilton, acting chief examiner for the agency, said most of his clients are businesses with employes heavily involved in money and merchandising. "Grocery stores, service stations, nightclubs and restaurants come to us a lot," he said.

Hamilton recommends use of the polygraph to businesses to control loss—either outright theft or time wasted by hiring the wrong man for the job.

Hamilton said a polygraph examination normally costs the business less than $20, compared to $40 or $50 for a conventional investigation.

The typical polygraph test takes about 45 minutes to administer, Hamilton said. Most of that time is spent establishing a rapport with the subject and calming his fears of the machine. Only two or three minutes of actual attachment to the machine's sensing devices are required.

During the test, the subject is fitted with an elastic waistband, an arm wrap and tiny metal sensors on his hands to test his breathing pattern, heartbeat and sweat reaction.

The examiner runs through a series of questions concerning the subject's health, education, financial condition and medication usage.

"Most people admit to petty theft," Hamilton said. Also, most young applicants admit to having used marijuana.

Hamilton said the most damaging outcome of the polygraph test is the admission of an arrest record. Even if the arrest did not result in a conviction, he said, an employer frequently holds it against the applicant.

Some consider the tests an invasion of privacy.

The Texas Civil Liberties Union is "opposed on all levels (to the test) as a condition of employment," said Hank Albach, president of the Dallas chapter.

He said the TCLU has received numerous complaints concerning polygraph usage but has yet to initiate legal action.

Hamilton said examiners are aware of the need to keep the information gained from the tests confidential. "We are extremely limited on who we give our reports to," Hamilton said.

How reliable are the tests?

"In most cases," Hamilton said, "if conditions are under the proper controls and the examiner is qualified, the possibility of telling if the subject is telling the truth is 92 per cent."

"If he's lying, his chances are increased a little bit, but he'll get caught between 80 and 92 per cent of the time."

Noise Pollution In Homes, Too

NEW YORK (AP) — Noise pollution in your home? The American Wood Council suggests three steps to cut down on house noise. Installing double-glazed wood windows, wood paneling or boards on the walls and acoustical ceiling materials will provide enough sound barriers to block transmission and prevent reverberation of street noises as well as interior noises, the experts say.

Five Languages In British Isles

LONDON (UPI)—English is one of five languages spoken in the British Isles as a native tongue. Welsh is spoken by a quarter of the people in Wales. About 81,000 persons in Scotland speak a Scottish form of Gaelic, while some families in Northern Ireland speak Irish Gaelic. French is the official language of the island of Jersey, and a Norman-French patois is used throughout the Channel Islands. On the Isle of Man, certain official pronouncements are in Manx.

Scientists Search For Giant Sturgeon

LEWISTON, Idaho (AP) — John Coon and Rudy Ringe are spending the summer fishing part of the Snake River for prehistoric monsters.

Coon, of Moscow, Idaho, who is studying for his doctorate at the University of Idaho, and Ringe, a research assistant, are angling for giant white sturgeon in the cause of science.

The fish, reported to grow up to 20 feet and almost one ton, are found in the Columbia and Snake rivers and some other big streams emptying into tide-water along the coast.

Many are landlocked behind big dams on the Columbia and its principal tributary, the Snake, and that's where Coon and Ringe are concentrating their scientific efforts. Their summer abode is a base near Pittsburg Landing, in Hell's Canyon.

By tagging the fish along a 30-mile stretch of the Snake, they hope to study their movement, as a starter. They plan to use sonic or radio tags in the stomachs of several and hope for the cooperation of fishermen and river guides in reporting tag numbers, location and length of sturgeon caught in the area.

With special permission to use set lines, they are trying to lure the giants by dangling smelt or herring at the end of superheavy "cable" held on the bottom with sinkers weighing as much as one pound.

The bait must be close to the bottom, because that's where these creatures live, down where they can take on mollusks and crustaceans, besides small fish and eels.

Aside from unofficial reports, an official record shows one caught that weighed 1,285 pounds and measured 12½ feet.

Recently on the Columbia near Paterson, Wash., not far from the mouth of the Snake, three anglers landed white sturgeon that measured 5 feet 11, 5 feet 10 and 5 feet 4.

They say they turned loose caviar-producers of 8 feet 9 and 7 feet 10 to comply with Washington State game laws limiting fishermen to sturgeon more than 3 feet long but less than 6 feet.

Two types of the fish live in West Coast waters—green and white. Experts say they think the larger whites spend part of their lives in the size-producing sea—if they can find a way to it—and return to rivers to spawn.

They also say the whites, considered excellent table fare, don't reach spawning time until they are about six feet long, thence the ban against keeping any longer than that.

Some scientists say they think dams may lead to extinction of the giant whites, because their natural inclination is to migrate between sea and fresh water. This is a problem on the Columbia-Snake system, which has become a series of lakes because of many dams.

Because comparatively little is known about Pacific types of sturgeon, and because it's believed remnants behind dams may become extinct, this three-year study is under way.

Project Director Dr. Donald Chapman says, "No one knows even roughly how many sturgeon there are in the Snake, although we do know this unusual fish has declines in the Snake and Columbia."

Therefore Ringe and Coon, financed by funds from such diverse organizations as the Federal Office of Water Resources Research, the Pacific Northwest Power Co. and the Idaho Fish and Game Department, hope to find out how the people of the Northwest can keep their prehistoric monsters of the deep.

BIG FISH — The giant white sturgeon seen here were caught in the Columbia River near Paterson, Wash. The fish measure 5 feet 11, 5 feet 10, and 5 feet 4. The fishermen say they turned loose biggies of 8 feet 9 and 7 feet 10. Washington law allows anglers to keep sturgeon of more than 3 feet and less than 6 feet in length.

78-Year-Old Is Confirmed Flier

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI) — For as far back as he can remember, Reginald Sinclair wanted to fly.

"I remember watching birds when I was a young boy and thinking how wonderful it would be to fly," he said.

Sinclair fulfilled his wish more than half a century ago and now — at age 78 — still flies a plane. He is one of the few remaining survivors of France's Lafayette Flying Corps of World War I.

Sinclair, whose father, H. P. Sinclair Sr., was one of the founders of the Corning Glass Works at Corning, N. Y., said he used to ride a motorcycle 28 miles to the old Curtis aviation testing grounds to watch the planes, but never got a chance to fly.

Promised Mechanic's Job
Then in 1916, with Europe at war, he tried to enlist in the U.S. Army Air Service. All he got was a promise that he could sail to Europe as an aircraft mechanic, and he did.

Eager to become a pilot, Sinclair was accepted in the Lafayette Flying Corps — made up of 214 American volunteers who flew for France prior to and after the United States, entry into the war. Sinclair says possibly 20 of the volunteers still survive.

Following training, Sinclair was assigned to L'Escadrille Spad 68, the only American in the unit, and served with the French forces from April 1917, until Armistice Day.

Although the United States entered the war against Germany shortly after Sinclair joined the French air unit, he stayed with the French.

"I received my pilot training from France, was accustomed to the Spad aircraft and had many friends in my French squadron," he said. "So I decided not to transfer."

Three Victories in Air
During his service with the French, the Colorado Springs resident was credited officially with shooting down three German planes. He received three Croix de Guerre with palms and several citations for his action.

Sinclair said he encountered the red-nosed planes from the Red Baron's squad, but never saw the bright red aircraft of the famed German pilot himself — Baron Manfred von Richthofen.

In 1909 when the Colorado Aviation Hall of Fame was founded, Sinclair was among the first to be inducted. That same year he was presented the Prix de L'Couronne Francaise in Paris for the "exemplary manner" in which he served France during the first world war.

Despite the many years that have passed since he eagerly lapped into his first cockpit, Sinclair still is an avid and active flying man. He passed his Federal Aviation Administration physical for a license just a few months ago and flies a twin Beech 421 on trips around the country.

License Plate Reads MIG-ACE

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Navy Lt. Randy Cunningham was the first American pilot in Vietnam to shoot down five enemy MIGs and win rating as an ace.

Now stationed at Miramar Naval Air Station here, Cunningham had a special set of California license plates made for his car. They read: MIG-ACE.

Moral Advice

Needn't Be Dull

Preachers should delight in the clever satire of R. E. Zollinhofer! But faithful church attendance is a 50-50 matter. Early childhood training may start us but we deserve dramatic, fascinating sermons from the pulpit to add the other 50 per cent.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.
Case U-560: R. E. Zollinhofer of Collingdale, Pa., is superb in the use of satire.
You other clergymen might well quote his following remarks:
"Dear Mr. Bayer," he addressed the famous aspirin maker, "the mixture used in your tablets makes it possible for a person to get out of bed and fight off headaches, muscle spasms and bad nerves.

"I have noticed that these tablets work wonders on Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, Fridays — and especially on Saturdays.
"But people who take them on Sunday get no relief ... so they are not able to attend Church on Sunday School!
"Could you please examine your tablet and put an ingredient in it that will work on Sundays?"
Then Mr. Zollinhofer cleverly addresses a note to Mr. Firestone:
"Dear Mr. Firestone," he begins, "does the guarantee prevail on Sundays?"

"You go or we pay the tow", "Or perhaps the winter snow

The bidding:
South West North East

Pass Pass

Opening lead: Six of ♠
A resourceful declarer employed a simple but highly effective false card to produce a substantial profit for his side when today's hand was dealt in a recent team of four contest.

The bidding was the same at both tables. South opened the bidding with one no trump and North raised directly to three. Altho the latter is technically a point shy of the ten point requirement for a game commitment, the presence of an established five card suit, two tens plus the two aces more than compensate for the deficiency.

At the other table, declarer was looking ahead at the first trick, and, observing that he would still be short of his goal if the club finesse failed, he decided that a bit of deception might help his cause. When East played the ten of spades on West's lead of the six, South false carded and won the trick with the king—concealing the jack. A diamond put North in to attempt the club finesse, but when West went in with the king, he had a different picture from his counterpart at the other table.

It appeared to West that East held the jack of spades when the ten forced out the king. So reasoning, West led back the deuce of spades in the expectation that his partner would win the trick and then return the suit. To his consternation, it was South who showed up with the jack of spades and the latter quickly ran for cover with nine tricks—two spades, one heart, two diamonds and four clubs. The six hundred point profit he scored for making a vulnerable game on the deal added to the 200 points chalked up by his teammates at the other table swelled their gross swing to 800 points.

Engineering Prospect Up

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — A University of Kentucky civil engineering professor says that the job situation is coal mining is improving for engineers.
"Our civil engineering graduates with a mining option are being offered an average of $975 a month to start, or $11,700 annually," Ted Haley said.
Haley said more engineers with an interest in coal mining graduated from Kentucky in 1972 than any other school in the nation. UK had 15 graduating seniors in May and seven in December, 1971.
One student was offered a job by six different companies, and all graduates had at least two offers.
"The 1969 Federal mine safety law requires supervisors to have special knowledge and there is a shortage of people who are qualified in that area," Haley said. "Nine regulatory agencies have direct jurisdiction in the coal mining industry."

get to Church or Sunday School on Sunday because the roads are too clogged with snow or are too slippery.
"But when I call on Monday to ask how they are going to get to work, they have already gone — in the car — using your snow treads!"
As a parting shot, he then appends a third request:

"Dear Mr. Henry Ford III: If you ever manufacture a car that always starts easily on Sunday ..."

Dentists And Preachers
"Always be true to your teeth," runs a dental adage, "or they'll be false to you!"
But it requires conscious effort to overcome our usual inertia about the toothbrushing chore. Nobody writes love ballads about toothbrushes!
For we must prod ourselves to clean our teeth.
And this "prodding" should be started by parents when their kiddies are still toddlers.
Same goes for Church and Sunday School.
Parents need to instill this vital habit at the toddler age.
Habit will then push us onward from behind and help get us to church.
But that's only about 50 per cent of the problem.

For you clergymen need to interest and entertain us by dramatic, narrative sermons, like Christ's use of parables.
What did the preacher talk about today? "Mamma may ask Junior.
And Junior cannot remember very well unless the minister has couched his moral precepts in fascinating stories (parables).
For stories are more easily remembered!
And then repeated by word-of-mouth even if we had no books.
Jesus thus tied his moral advice into numerous illustrative stories, thereby insuring their retention and repetition for an entire generation until Matthew, Mark, Luke, John and St. Paul then placed them in manuscript form!

It takes a livewire in the pulpit to electrify a congregation!
And by a "livewire" we mean an orator who balances humor against pathos and keeps us awake by his rapid-fire delivery and dramatic examples.
So send for my booklet "Public Platform Strategy," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.
Stodgy preaching pleases the Devil but not God!
(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

"Light N Lacey"

by
TRIM-LINE

LONG LEG PANTY
2.99

THE BRA
1.99

Pick "Lacey Long Legs" — for soft curve control with the natural look.

The finer Power net of Lycra and Nylon — plus dainty lace leg bands give you a feminine look.

Flat seams everywhere — a must for knit fashions.

Small (25-26)	Medium (27-28)	Large (29-30)	X-Large (31-32)
------------------	-------------------	------------------	--------------------

Pick "Light 'N Lacey" bra — for a shapelier more natural you — cross-over adjustable elastic straps for snug fit, better separation — without strain.

Laminated fiber fill Nylon cups form a natural contour — keep their shape through repeated washing.
