

Right To Independence Ruled In UN

Puerto Rico Held 'Colony'

By SHIRLEY CHRISTIAN
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A U.N. committee on colonialism, pushed on by Communist nations, has decided that Puerto Rico has a right to independence from the United States.

The Special Committee on Colonialism voted 12-0 Monday to recognize "the inalienable right of the people of Puerto Rico to self-determination and independence." Ten nations on the 22-member group abstained. The committee asked a working group to study how to extend to Puerto Rico the provisions of the U.N. Declaration Against Colonialism. Puerto Ricans filling the visitors' gallery cheered and applauded the outcome. They had more applause for Cuban Ambassador Ricardo Alarcon, who has made a personal campaign out of branding the United States a colonial power occupying the Caribbean island. "The final stretch in the road of independence has begun," declared Juan Mari-Bras, a leader of the Puerto Rican independence movement. Mari-Bras said the action clearly classified Puerto Rico as a colony. But a U.S. spokesman said the wording of the resolution was ambiguous. He stressed that the matter was being referred to a working group and that no report was asked until 1973. Puerto Rico is a self-governing commonwealth of the United States; its people are U.S. citizens who vote for the U.S. president and are subject to the draft but pay no federal taxes. In the last referendum, in 1967, 425,081 voted in favor of continued commonwealth status, 273,315 for statehood and 4,205 for independence.

In Washington, State Department officials said the decision was "an insult to the people of Puerto Rico, who have chosen to live in a democracy under a constitution of their own choosing in free association with the United States."

China and the Soviet Union gave the Cuban ambassador support in the debate. Chang Yung-kuan, the Chinese delegate, said Puerto Rico "is, in fact, a colony of the United States and the Puerto Rican people's struggle for national independence is a just one ..."

The action applies only to the committee and not to the United Nations as a whole. A year ago Alarcon tried to bring the Puerto Rican question before the 132-nation General Assembly, but failed by a wide margin to get the necessary vote to put it on the agenda.

Tar Heel Fighter Pilot Shoots Down 5th MIG: 'Pinnacle' Of Career

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — Capt. Steve Ritchie, the fighter pilot son of a North Carolina tobacco man, says his fifth MIG kill that made him as the Air Force's first Vietnam ace was the pinnacle of his eight-year career.

Ritchie flew to Saigon from his base in Thailand in the same F4 Phantom in which he downed his fifth MIG Monday. He told a news conference that flying fighter planes is "probably the most rewarding and challenging and exciting job there is in the Air Force, without a doubt the greatest thrill that I know of."

"And, of course," he continued, "the air-to-air business, combat with an enemy airplane, I think is the ultimate in the fighter pilot business. So really yesterday was certainly the pinnacle of my career."

Ritchie, 30, is the son of Ned Ritchie, office manager for a tobacco plant in Reidsville, N.C. A graduate of the Air Force Academy in 1964, he was stationed in Vietnam in 1968 and last Jan. 20 returned to join the 555th Tactical Fighter Squadron of the 432nd Tactical Reconnaissance wing.

Ritchie's squadron flies in ahead of U.S. attack planes on raids over North Vietnam to prevent the Communist MIGs from intercepting them. He has close to 3,000 flying hours in his career and a total of 340 combat missions in Vietnam, 160 of them over North Vietnam. He downed his first MIG on May 10, another on May 31 and two on July 8.

While Ritchie is the Air Force's first ace of the Vietnam war, the Navy has two, Lt. Randy Cunningham, 30, of San Diego, Calif., and Lt. J. G. William Driscoll, 24, of Framingham, Mass.

The MIG kill Monday was the fourth for Ritchie's copilot, Capt. Charles B. DeBellevue, 27, of Lafayette, La., leaving him one more to go to become an ace. He told the news conference: "The day Steve got his second MIG I took off on leave. That's the reason I only got four. It's a very sore point."

Another Air Force MIG killer, Capt. Jeff F. Feinstein, 27, of East Troy, Wis., also has four MIGs to his credit and narrowly missed becoming an ace with Ritchie Monday.

Their wing commander, Col. Scott G. Smith, 41, of Tampa, Fla., said Feinstein had a radar lock-on for an attack against an enemy jet a mile and a half away. "But there were too many friendlies in the area," Smith continued, "and by the time we got a visual on the bandit, it was not possible to make an attack. I think we scared him. He ran home. The big thing, if they don't bother the strike force, we're delighted. Killing MIGs is a bonus."

We got a radio call that enemy planes were about to attack U.S. bombers in the region.

"After Chuck picked them up on radar," he continued, "we made hard turn to meet them head-on. The bandits were very high, approximately 4,000 feet above us as we climbed."

"I turned as hard as I could and I squeezed off two missiles," but one of the MIGs made a slight turn and evaded them. Ritchie fired two more. "He was pretty far away and it took quite a while for the missile to catch him," the pilot said. "Up there a minute seems like forever."

"The MIG went into a thin overcast, and when he came out one missile went by his left. He must have seen it because he immediately turned right and that's when the last missile got him. All I saw was a big fireball."

Pentagon Aims To Halt Draft Inductions Early

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon is aiming to stop draft inductions by December, about six months ahead of President Nixon's deadline for ending military conscription.

"Every effort will be made to minimize draft calls, if not avoid them entirely, between January and July, 1973, when the current induction authority expires," Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird pledged in a report to President Nixon.

The 51-page report was distributed by the California White House and the Pentagon Monday as Nixon announced in San Clemente he will make good on a 1968 campaign promise to end the draft and rely entirely on volunteers to fill the armed forces.

His stated goal is July 1 of next year but Laird's report showed a zero draft may be reached half a year early. Neither Nixon or Laird linked announcement of the report with the current presidential election but Laird agreed the statement could reap large benefits from the youth vote this November.

The Pentagon already this year has slashed planned inductions to a maximum of 50,000 young men—the lowest total in ten years and about 330,000 below the Vietnam war crest in 1966. Laird's report said "The dramatic decline in draft calls has been made possible by substantially reducing the size of the active force and by attracting more voluntary enlistees to military service."

U.S. military manpower now stands at slightly more than 2.3 million men. This is 1.2 million below the Vietnam war peak.

Student Orientation Program Begins Today In Pitt Schools

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

Although the Pitt County Schools will not officially open until Thursday, orientation began this morning for high school students and will be held Wednesday for elementary students.

The 1972-73 school year began Monday when more than 600 professional staff members, along with paraprofessional personnel, aides and others, reported for work.

Orientation was held this morning for high school seniors and this afternoon for high school juniors. Sophomores will have orientation Wednesday morning at 8:45 and freshmen will report for orientation Wednesday at 1 p.m.

Elementary students will report for the first time on Wednesday. Transportation will be provided for elementary students beginning Wednesday but high school students will not have transportation until Thursday.

School will be in operation for a half day through Friday and Monday will be observed as a holiday due to Labor Day. The first full day of school will be Tuesday, Sept. 5 and lunchrooms will open that day.

First graders will be dismissed each day at 2:15 p.m. for the entire school year but all other students will remain for the full day of school.

The principals and faculty of the four county high schools and 18 elementary schools have been at work this week preparing for the coming school year.

Arthur Alford, superintendent of Pitt County Schools, said he is looking for a good school year.

"The schools have all been placed in a state of readiness with more emphasis given this past summer to maintenance than in past years," Alford said. "In prior years, maintenance people were caught up in the mist of moving mobile units from one campus to another and the construction of temporary teaching spaces. This has now returned to normal."

An enrollment of about 12,350 students in grades kindergarten through twelve is expected for this school year.

Alford stated there are still three teaching vacancies in the county schools. They are: elementary teacher at Falkland Grammar; a special education teacher at H.B. Sugg, Farmville; and a math teacher at Ayden Grammar School.

"I encourage all parents to enroll their students the first day of school if they have not already done so. Often we find students reporting to school as late as Oct. 1," Alford noted.

Alford encouraged everyone to observe the school buses with caution.

"There will be 180 school buses in operation in the county this year," Alford emphasized.

"Further, people in the community are asked to notify the school principals or the central office if they observe any bus traveling in a reckless manner of speeding around corners, or doing anything that will endanger the lives of the students riding on the buses."

Alford asked that parents who have concerns about their children to contact the principals. "Give them a chance to see what can be done to solve the problem," he added.

Alford said the schools are operating with a countrywide staff ratio of approximately two white to each black.

"The court order under which we have operated in the past and HEW guidelines require that faculty at each school represent basically the same ratio which exists in the county as a whole," Alford explained.

Alford reported that the county has experienced approximately 10 percent turnover in the faculty this year.

"This represents the smallest turnover we have had recently," Alford noted. "Usually the turnover is between 15 and 18 percent."

Increase Denied

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Price Commission today denied requests by Ford and General Motors for price increases on their 1973 models.

Commissioner Chairman C. Jackson Grayson Jr. said the request of the two giant automakers was being denied because the commission has determined that the increases could push the profit margins of the two firms beyond permissible limits.

The decision meant that consumers could expect to avoid a price hike on GM and Ford cars at least until November. Grayson said that the two companies may resubmit requests after profit figures are in for the second quarter of their fiscal year.

Ford, in a request revised this week, had asked for a $59 or 1.79 per cent increase. The request covered safety equipment and emission controls.

General Motors had asked for a $54 or 1.53 per cent boost for the same purpose.

Chrysler Corp. and American Motors also have requests pending before the commission. Grayson said these requests would continue to be suspended until the commission can hold hearings on auto prices next month.

Claims Bowles 'Buying'

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Republican gubernatorial candidate Jim Holshouser, speaking from the steps of the Pitt County Court House this morning, charged that his Democratic opponent is trying to buy the Governorship.

According to the GOP candidate, "Hargrove Bowles is trying his best to buy the Governorship of our state — but I don't think you're going to let him get away with it."

Saying Bowles is already the biggest political spender in the history of North Carolina, Holshouser said "We tried to get Mr. Bowles to agree to a campaign spending limitation because he said he was in favor of it, too. But we found out it was just like a lot of other things Bowles says. He just didn't stand behind what he had said."

Holshouser told the spectators from the steps of the court house, "I'm here today because I want the people in every county to know that I care about you — that I care enough to come into your county and visit with you face to face. I'm here so that you'll know that I understand your problems and that I'm bound and determined to do something about them."

As an example, Holshouser said, "Don't you think it's time we had a road policy that's fair to everybody in the state? It's high time we had a governor who's interested in building roads on the basis of people's needs — not on the basis of politics."

"It's high time we had a governor who will see to it we get our money's worth for our tax dollars," the candidate noted.

Jones Is Briefed On Greenville Projects

First District Congressman Walter Jones received a first hand look at Greenville's urban renewal and housing situation Monday during a visit with local officials.

Jones met with Housing Authority and Redevelopment Commission executive director Joe Laney, Authority chairman Woody Crumpler, Redevelopment chairman Billy Laughinghouse, Mayor Eugene West, and Redevelopment commissioner Jack Whichard for a progress report on projects underway and planned in Greenville.

Laney, in briefing the congressman, reported that Greenville has four urban renewal projects with two of them virtually complete.

Completion is nearing on the $3.5 million Shore Drive Urban Renewal Project. Jones was told, which accomplished clearance of 236 dilapidated structures and resulted in restoring the Town Common. The program, in addition to providing a public facility, Laney continued, has generated over $1.5 million in new construction by private investment.

Also, East Carolina University has commenced soil testing for construction of a $500,000 Regional Development Institute and the university planning to place the University Administration Building in this area, it was noted.

The congressman was also briefed on the $1.1 million Newtown Urban Renewal Project. The program, designed to clear 157 substandard structures, is nearing completion with all property purchased. Land has been cleared and the Redevelopment Commission has transferred the property to the Housing Authority for construction of 78 public housing units.

The $8 million Central Business District effort is the only active program at this time, the officials reported, and is projected to modernize the 72-acre CBD provide adequate parking, beautify the area, and improve traffic flow.

Also included in the briefing was a report on the Southside Project, a $2 million program designed to renovate and rehabilitate a 180-acre residential area.

Laney reported that public housing in Greenville has resulted largely from the urban renewal effort in order to provide adequate housing for displaces from the renewal areas. Currently, Greenville has 530 units under management, he said.

Citizens in the Westside area have requested that they be included in a rehabilitation project under the Neighborhood Development Program and the application is in, it was pointed out. However, funds are apparently frozen in anticipation of a transition to the Community Development Program, Laney contended.

"This could mean a long delay, new applications, and

Greenville Leaf Market Had $87.37 Day Monday

The Greenville tobacco market Monday averaged $87.37 per hundred pounds when a total of 1,072,679 pounds of leaf sold for $937,213.

Wilson led the markets in the number of pounds sold and the highest average was also obtained on that market. The Wilson market averaged $88.53 per hundred pounds when 1,222,412 pounds of tobacco went for $1,082,192.

The Kinston market averaged $88.25 per hundred pounds while the average obtained on the Rocky Mount market was $87.98.

According to Louis Williams, sales supervisor of the Farmville market prices were stronger yesterday than any previous day this year.

"Leaf grades, cutters and some grades of lugs brought top prices of 88 cents and 89 cents per pound," Williams said. "Offerings consisted of a variety of grades with the volume of leaf grades increasing and primings and lugs decreasing."

Nondescript grades accounted for only a small volume of sales. For the 12th consecutive day, the Stabilization Corporation has not received a pound of tobacco on the Farmville market.

No Stabilization receipts were reported in the Eastern Belt yesterday. A total of 7,970,080 pounds of tobacco was sold on the Eastern market yesterday for $7,016,372, for an average of $88.03 per hundred pounds.

A tabulation of sales of the various markets in the Eastern Belt, as comprised by the Federal-State Market News Service, includes:

Navy Sinks Two N. Viet Torpedo Boats

By RICHARD PYLE
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — Two American Navy ships with an assist from a Navy plane sank two North Vietnamese torpedo boats off Haiphong Sunday night, U.S. officials reported today.

The action occurred during a raid on the North Vietnamese coast by the cruisers Newport News and Providence and the destroyers Rowan and Robison. Vice Adm. J. L. Holloway III, the commander of the 7th Fleet, was aboard the Newport News and termed the operation a "daring raid into strongly defended enemy territory."

The ships shelled a fuel depot two miles southeast of Haiphong, a barracks 11 miles to the southeast, and coastal defense installations.

The high-speed, 85-foot torpedo boats appeared as the Newport News and Rowan were withdrawing from the attack on a petroleum dump and other shore targets, the Navy said. The two American ships opened fire, and a direct hit from the Newport News destroyed one of the enemy craft. The Rowan's guns set the other afire, and a Navy A7 Corsair finished it off with bombs.

Meanwhile, the Robison duelled with North Vietnamese coastal batteries, its five-inch guns causing one secondary explosion on the shore. The destroyer took shrapnel on its bridge from a near miss but was not damaged, the Navy said.

The raid against the coastal installations was the second such foray carried out by the two cruisers and a pair of destroyers. The first was on May 9, the day U.S. mines were planted in North Vietnam's harbors and coastal inlets for the first time.

In the air war Monday, Navy and Air Force pilots flew 220 strikes against the North despite worsening weather caused by tropical storm Cora.

In South Vietnam, terrorists blasted two bridges on important highways in the Saigon region Monday night, one of them 12 miles from the city, and continued heavy fighting was reported around Quang Tri and in the Que Son Valley.

South Vietnamese spokesmen claimed more than 180 North Vietnamese killed, with government losses 18 killed and 47 wounded.

Caught Escapee Smith Named Consultant

An escapee from a North Carolina prison farm in Washington County was taken into custody by Greenville police last night after the stolen car he was allegedly driving wrecked during a high speed chase through town.

Johnny Lee Long, who escaped from the Creswell Prison Farm several weeks ago was charged by local officers with careless and reckless driving, no operators license, speeding, failing to stop for blue light and siren and auto larceny, according to Chief Glenn Cannon.

Police began the chase on Wade Street after first seeing the car driven by Long at the intersection of Dickinson and Raleigh Avenues.

The 1.7 mile chase ended when Long lost control of the car and struck a tree at the intersection of Elm Street and Treemont Drive.

Chief Cannon said Long ran from the scene of the crash but was found and taken into custody by officers in the backyard of 1610 Elm Street.

Damage to the car, owned by Lorraine Nobles of Ayden, was set at $500.

The chase began about 11:30 p.m. yesterday.

Smith Named Consultant

Kenneth W. Smith of Greenville, has been named consultant in distributive education with the North Carolina Department of Public Instruction.

Smith has served as distributive education teacher and coordinator at Farmville Central for the past four years.

According to Arthur Alford, superintendent of Pitt County Schools, "The state department's offer of this position is appropriate testimony to the outstanding job that Smith has done for us."

KENNETH W. SMITH
"Under his guidance last year, the Farmville Central DE Club won four first place awards and a third place award in eight categories of statewide competition," Alford added.

Smith attended Chowan College for two years and received a B.S.P. degree in business from East Carolina University. He minored in marketing at ECU.

He and his wife, Marilyn, have one daughter, Cynthia, who is four and one-half years old.

In the interim, the governor and Mrs. Scott will do a lot of commuting back and forth between Raleigh and Haw River. (AP Wirephoto)

Local Moose Heard Reports On Events

Greenville Moose Lodge civic affairs chairman Jim Fleming reported last night the "Family Day" program held Wednesday was well attended and the games, contests, entertainment and outdoor dinner were a success beyond expectation.

The fraternity also heard Cubmaster Claude R. Moore Jr. report on Pack 200's "Summer Olympics" event Saturday at Eastern Elementary School.

Moore reminded the Pack was sponsored by the Moose and that members having boys of the appropriate age were welcome to join.

Saturday's program included competition in running, jumping, the shot put, discus throw and javelin throw as well as the recently completed obstacle course. Refreshments were served.

Monday night's meeting was also marked by formal enrollment of 17 candidates into the fraternity. They were: Joseph D. Babb, Charles Beamon, Don Duff, Nolan W. Elkins, Linwood Ray Evans, Lloyd Faulkner, William T. Harris, W. Garrett Hume, Wilbur L. Jackson, C.R. Kernan Jr., Dennis W. Langley, Robert O. Murray, Jesse R. Oakley, Harold Priestley, Paul H. Rasberry, and Edward C. Windham. James E. Hannan served as Class Representative.

Judge Rouse Is Graduate

Superior Court Judge Robert D. Rouse Jr. of Farmville was recently graduated from a four-week program at the National College of the State Judiciary, Reno, Nevada.

The program is designed to bring to judges the most recent developments in the law along with other subjects of interest to the judiciary.

Included in the curriculum were courses in court administration, community relations, family law, civil proceedings, criminal and civil law, special problems in the judicial function, evidence, sentencing and probation.

Judge Rouse attended daily lectures and participated in discussion groups during the session. He was among 250 judges from 50 states who completed the course of study.

The National College of the State Judiciary was founded in 1964 for the purpose of providing continuing legal education for the nation's judges of general jurisdiction.

Having completed the basic program of the college this summer, the judge is now eligible to attend future graduate programs conducted by the college.

A Review Fun For Everyone By Barbra And Ryan

"What's Up, Doc," starring Barbra Streisand and Ryan O'Neal brings back a movie that just about everyone can see and enjoy. There's not a curse word in it, or a nude scene—a bathtub scene, granted, but not a nude scene. And it's strange that a movie lacking what nearly all lack now could be so successful.

But the screenplay of Buck Henry and the directing of Peter Bogdanovich, who also thought up the whole idea, blend with fine performances by Miss Streisand and O'Neal to put together a story that no one can sit through without a great deal of laughter.

The film tells the story of four red plaid travel bags. The first belongs to O'Neal, a professor of musicology, who comes to San Francisco with his fiancée in search of a grant to further his study of igneous rocks—which he believes the cave man first used for primitive music. His case is filled with these rocks.

The second bag belongs to Miss Streisand, a kookie college student, who inserts herself into O'Neal's life, pretends to be his fiancée at a fancy banquet, and gets him into most of the trouble he finds himself surrounded with. Her bag is filled with her clothes.

The third bag belongs to a rich matron staying at the same hotel. It also is loaded with rocks, the sparkly type and the house detective and desk man are out to make them their own.

The fourth is filled with top secret government documents stolen by a spy. Chasing him is a government agent with a golf bag.

Naturally the four get mixed up and eventually all end up with Miss Streisand and O'Neal, who lead the rest in a merry chase on a grocery cart and a stolen Volkswagen, and all end up in the San Francisco Bay. The case is the funniest since "It's A Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad, World," and may even top that.

All in all, it's a movie that you shouldn't miss.

It's playing currently at the Pitt Theater.

Miss Linda Crandall Is Bride Of Veldon White

Triumph Missionary Baptist Church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Linda Lou Crandall and Veldon Ray White Saturday at 3:00 p.m.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Claude Crandall Sr. of Rt. 3, Washington, and Mr. and Mrs. Veldon White of Rt. 3, Greenville.

The Rev. C. B. Grey performed the double ring ceremony. A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Ella Tyson Harris, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white satin designed with an organza skirt. The sheer lantern sleeves were banded with matching Venise lace. The gown had a sheer yoke, high neckline with appliques on the gown.

Her headpiece was an imported satin Camelot with beau de soie and Venise lace. She carried a bouquet of gardenias and baby's breath.

Maid of honor was Brenda Crandall, sister of the bride, and Hattie Burrell was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Carolyn and Laverna Crandall, sisters of the bride, Ella Telfaire, sister of the bridegroom, Gladys Crandall, Evon Rouse, Brenda Richardson, Annie Brown, Peggy Simpson, Rena Crandall and Mary Tyson.

The maid of honor was dressed in a yellow styled gown, the matron of honor wore a gown of pink voile appliqued with trim and carried a semi-colonial bouquet of yellow, pink and green mums with matching bows.

The bridesmaids wore gowns in princess style of green voile and they carried a yellow mums with matching bows.

Flower girls were Theresa Moore, Tracy Thomas, Bonita Crandall and Jacquelyn White. They were dressed in princess styled gowns in pink and white. They carried basket of flower balls. MaGail Crandall was ring bearer.

Lyman Teel of Greenville, cousin of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Claude Crandall Jr. and Michael Crandall, brothers of the bride, James Thomas, Donald Thomas, Hezekiah Thomas, Lonnie White, Jimmie Bamhill, Joseph Stevenson, Willie Mack and Donald Taylor.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride and bridegroom are both graduates of G. R. Whitfield. The bride attended High Park College, Detroit, Mich. The

She Won Husband, Outstanding Young Women Of Lost Beach House America Named In Greenville

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: We own a lovely beach home. It's quiet, free from noise and pollution, and an ideal place for vacationing with our children.

Last year my husband had a whirlwind affair with the woman next door. When I found out about it, there was a showdown, and John said if I would forgive and forget he would end it with her and stick with me. Because I really love him, I felt it would be foolish to throw away a 14-year marriage because of an affair that lasted only six months.

Now the woman next door says she cannot bear to live so close to the man she "loved and lost," so WE should put our house up for sale and move!

John says that since I am the "winner" it would be the kind thing to do.

Abby, I love this home. Why should I be the one to make the sacrifice just because that woman had an affair with my husband, and now she can't look at him?

Her husband doesn't care one way or the other, but he'd rather not be living next door to us. What is your opinion?

THE WINNER WHO IS LOSING

DEAR WINNER: There were two wrongdoers in that affair: Your husband was the other one. It's mighty gallant of John to want to do the kind thing by the lady, but since she's the one who can't bear living so close to John, SHE should do the moving. If she insists upon staying, rather than to make a sticky situation stickier, I suggest YOU move. Surely you can find a home with a better view.

DEAR ABBY: Re the bosom debate: If men who prefer large bosomed women are "little boys who are still looking for Mama" are we to then assume that men who like flat-chested women are "little boys still looking for Daddy?"

Phoey on that theory! Sign me,

34D IN ARLINGTON, TEXAS

DEAR 34D: You missed the point. Infants instinctively look for Mama's breast as a source of nourishment. Daddy's resources are flatly disappointing.

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Big is Burdensome" — the gal with the big bosoms and hated it: If you ever decide to have surgery to reduce your measurements, will you please send me what you don't want? I'd gladly pay the postage.

SMALL AND JEALOUS

DEAR ABBY: Busts ahmst! What's with all those "bust" letters? As a girlwatcher, and fairly representative of my New York brethren, big busts are nice, but so are little ones. Tell those babes to get with it, and not to sweat the small stuff. The sum is greater than its parts.

4 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons minced onion
2 tablespoons minced parsley
2 tablespoons dried tarragon
Paprika
1 tablespoon slivered orange rind

1 cup orange juice
6 tablespoons currant jelly
1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
2 tablespoons cold water
1 tablespoon cornstarch
Sprinkle inside of chicken breasts with 1 teaspoon of the salt. Cream together 2 tablespoons of the butter, onion, parsley and tarragon; spread on the inside of each breast.

Overlap the sides and fasten with wooden picks or poultry pins. Sprinkle the outside with remaining 1/2 teaspoon salt and paprika. Melt remaining 2 tablespoons butter in a large skillet; add chicken and brown on all sides over moderate heat. Add orange rind and juice, jelly and mustard. Cover and simmer until tender—about 20 minutes. Remove chicken and keep warm. Stir together water and cornstarch until smooth; add to skillet and cook, stirring constantly, until thickened and clear. Pour sauce over chicken. Makes 6 servings.

'She-Salts' Steering To Stormy Waters

By SUSAN JENKS
PHILADELPHIA (WNS) — Predictably, the old Navy salts sputtered and fumed at the idea of women on warships — especially in the more physically demanding jobs.

"It'll never work," was the bleak prediction of PO 1.C. Larry Miller, a nine-year veteran of the seas. "A woman just can't keep up with a man at sea."

"It's bad luck," muttered CPO Don Rodgers, with a laugh.

Naval tradition — at least aboard USS Charles S. Sperry, harbored here — will undoubtedly die a slow, wheezing death. "Man on the ship" interviews showed most of the oldtimers feel the presence of women sailors in the Navy will create too many waves to work.

Zumwalt

The generally crusty response was in reaction to an announcement by Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt Jr., Chief of Naval Operations, that women can now apply for sea duty in virtually all noncombatant shipboard jobs.

Although the order will have no immediate effect aboard the Sperry, which is a destroyer and therefore a combat ship, the proposed equal rights amendment is expected eventually to affect even the "tin can" Navy.

As to that eventuality, Chief Bob Logan snapped:

"Show me a woman who can hang by her knees in 14 inches of space, carrying a 16-pound hammer with a nine-inch handle for at least 18 hours, and I'll take her."

Or, more simply, in the words of another old seadog, "Women just aren't physically capable of doing the work."

Lid Lifted
Aside from this question of physical stamina, however, Cmdr. Hollis Robertson contended, the latest "Z-gram" (Zumwalt order) from Washington will undoubtedly lift the lid on such problems as separate facilities and psychological hang-ups.

"The seagoing male is going to have trouble looking at a woman as his equal," he said. "After all, most males are used to opening doors and lighting cigarettes for women."

Robertson also admitted he, personally, would have trouble reprimanding a "girl who turned the helm the wrong way."

Still, he indicated, having "she-salts" in the Navy will definitely alleviate the manpower problem and help pave the way for an all-volunteer defense force.

Practical

This practical perspective also overruled any personal protest on the part of Chief Ed Keyes. "If you have a manpower shortage and there's a job to be done," he argues, "it's not important whether a man or a woman fills that job."

Lt. (j.g.) Gordon Ragland couched his approval in similar terms.

"It's no secret the Navy's in the middle of a manpower shortage right now," Ragland remarked. "I think this was definitely a consideration in Zumwalt's decision, though beyond this, the movement for equal rights also played a part."

In sharp contrast to the old salts' distaste or their carefully modified approval, the younger seamen took the new equity ruling for women with a "wait and see" attitude.

Israel

"It's been proven in Israel that it can be done," observed PO 3.C. Cary Cozens. "I say give them a chance."

PO 2. C. Waldorf Smith, a radioman with five years remaining in the Navy, felt the women at least merited this consideration.

But on a ship as small as the

Candidates Could Advise Now

It is not really too surprising that the negotiations between gubernatorial candidates Jim Holshouser and Skipper Bowles to limit expenditures have fallen apart.

After all, campaign spending in itself is an issue in this campaign and we suspected that calls for a limitation were merely political maneuvers to bring attention to this issue.

It should not have been difficult for the two men seeking the state's highest office to make an agreement on how much money each would spend in the campaign, if they really wanted to. They did not, however, and we suppose that astronomical spending will continue.

In the meantime, it is painfully obvious that getting elected governor in North Carolina is becoming expensive to the point where it is prohibitive to many qualified people. Either a candidate has to be so wealthy that he can finance much of his own campaign, or else he has to become so indebted to special interests as to endanger his judgment upon election.

If the candidates this year cannot agree to limit their own expenditures, then they should be offering their plans for methods of limiting the cost in future gubernatorial campaigns.

Running for governor does not have to be such an expensive proposition. It is something that is going to have to be dealt with in our state and most probably the next governor will have to offer the key proposals for spending limitations.

The candidates for governor should be giving us their thoughts on how campaign expenditures can be limited. The electorate should have this information before the election.

A Monumental Job For Sugg

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — Knitting together the raveled garment of party unity is the task for a new team of North Carolina Democratic leadership.

Officers elected by the state executive committee, on recommendation of Hargrove (Skipper) Bowles Jr., will look for ways to stitch up differences from the primary, mend seams with supporters of Gov. George Wallace of Alabama and pivotal importance to the election outcome.

Initially, it had been expected the party reins would fall to Jake Froelich of High Point, a wheelhorse in the campaign which won Bowles the nomination as governor. He pleased the pressure of business in declining the post.

The conciliatory approach was shown in the selection of vice chairmen to serve with Sugg. Together, they represented women, the under-30 age group, blacks, and both Wallace and McGovern supporters.

The three are: Mrs. Alfreda Webb of Greensboro, a black presently a House member in the state legislature; Chestley Julian (C.J.) Hyatt of Winston-Salem, an area coordinator in Wallace's presidential primary campaign; and Susan Phifer, 28, of Morganton, a school teacher and volunteer worker for the Democratic national ticket.

Wallace Following Courted
On a third party ticket, Wallace ran just behind President Nixon in the 1968 campaign. He gathered a majority of votes cast last spring in the first Tar Heel presidential primary.

Thus, the Wallace following represents a sizeable bloc of voters. Keeping them inside the party, for the state ticket if not the presidential candidate is the strategy behind recognition in the party hierarchy.

Typical Democratic capacity for discord was demonstrated at the executive committee session. It began with complaints over short notice for the meeting, and ended in a flurry of charges that adjournment was being imposed to shut off discussion.

An early opportunity to display unity engendered by the new leadership will come for the party next month. The Vance-Aycock dinner will be held in Asheville to rouse spirits and raise cash for the fall campaign.

Co-chairmen Claude DeBruhl and Don Blackwood said they look for some 1,500 faithful at the $50-per-plate affair set for Sept. 29-30.

The speaker will be Dr. Eugene Poston, president of Gardner-Webb College and named by Bowles as North Carolina Democratic National Committeeman. His selection to address the dinner, rather than a prominent out-of-state Democrat, was another move to cultivate home-grown harmony.

"There are so many diverse interests in the party at this time, we thought it would do more to solidify the state party to choose a speaker from among our own ranks," DeBruhl explained.

The choice of Sugg, an easterner, was taken as Bowles' gesture to the Democratic strength of the region and its potentially

Agnew Warned To Prove Self

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
MIAMI BEACH — When a young Congressional aide helping conservative forces in the rules fight at the Republican National Convention turned up one morning wearing a "Spiro Is My Hero" button, Mississippi state chairman Clarke Reed ordered him to take it off and stick it in his pocket.

Reed, leading conservatives in the rules fight, did not want their cause to be confused with 1976 Agnew-for-President controversy. Beyond that, Reed, is by no means certain Vice President Spiro T. Agnew should succeed President Nixon four years hence. Nor are many other conservative leaders in Miami Beach.

In their successful fight for a 1976 delegate formula over-balanced for conservatives, they definitely were not regarding Agnew as their choice for the succession. On the contrary, they delivered this implicit message to Agnew: You will have to work your passage to 1976 by showing you can be elected; as of now, we doubt it.

In short, just being a conservative is no longer enough. As part of the Republican party's new self-confidence exhibited here, the conservatives insist on a winner. Agnew's serious obstacles in working his passage lie not with beleaguered Republican liberals, pessimistic about the prospective candidacy of Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois. His problems are in convincing his own conservatives.

Except for state chairman L. E. (Tommy) Thomas of Florida, party leaders on the convention floor were not committing themselves to Agnew now. An example is conservative state chairman Kent Shearer of Utah. He could end up for Agnew, Shearer told us. But today he prefers Percy to Agnew and would much rather have Sen. James Buckley of New York than Percy or Agnew.

Even more surprising is one plains state leader counted as a supporter by Agnew. An early advocate of Barry Goldwater, he is haunted by the 1964 catastrophe. "Never again!" he told us. "Agnew looks like another Goldwater." His choice: John B. Connally, conservative and electable. To shed the Goldwaterite label, Agnew must abandon his famous hatchet-man's role and, belatedly, build a political staff. His calm acceptance speech and press conference here (passing up chances to bait the media and dissenters) indicated his progress toward the former goal. But his Miami Beach operations revealed problems in achieving the latter.

While the President's own political operatives were keeping hands off the rules fight, Agnew quietly supported the conservatives. In so doing, Agnew's political aides pushed hard for a 1976 convention disproportionately controlled by Southern and Western states.

But conservative party leaders were not impressed by the political aides representing Agnew: Roy Goodearle, 41, Agnew's tour director since the 1968 campaign, and David Keene, 28, former president of the rightist Young Americans for Freedom (YAF). Goodearle, emerging as Agnew's top political aide, is considered a nuts-and-bolts man. Keene is a brainy young ideologue lacking practical political experience (save an unsuccessful 1969 race for the Wisconsin legislature).

Accordingly, Agnew's aides were little help to the conservatives in the rules fight. Even after it became obvious that enlargement of the 1976 convention was needed to win approval of the conservative delegate formula, Agnew's operatives argued against it on grounds it would add non-regular delegates — potential foes of Agnew. Conservative leaders finally ignored Agnew and supported an enlarged convention.

The most favorable portent of a more professional Agnew staff came midway through the rules fight when John Sears, Presidential political aide early in the Nixon administration, suddenly appeared here as an informal Agnew adviser. Sears was largely responsible for Mr. Nixon's successful preliminary delegate hunting in 1967, and his unsurpassed contacts in the Republican party would give Agnew a resource he seriously lacks.

Whether Sears takes enough time from his Washington law practice and whether Agnew (a notoriously bad listener) follows his advice are in doubt. But Agnew desperately needs a John Sears to build relationships

Today's Range Rider

By HAL BOYLE
MILES CITY, MONT. (AP) — The cowboy is known as a range rider here in "the biggest little cow town on earth," and he is far from a vanished figure.

He may ride to work in a pickup truck or, on occasion, a helicopter. Instead of $30 or $40 a month and found, he may now draw $300 or more, plus his cookies and a place to sling his bedroll.

But he is still at home on the back of a horse, the work can be every bit as dangerous as it was in the frontier past, and his shop talk is as colorful as that of any American occupation.

Some of these range rider's picturesque terms have been collected in "Cowboy Slang," by Edgar R. Potter, Montana historian.

It is a language marked by variety, vivid expletives and exaggerated comparisons.

For example, the range rider had at least 40 different words to characterize his horse. He called it everything from "bangtail," "boneyard" and "knothead," to "usin' horse" and "wringtail."

And to him a horse could be any of 38 different colors. They included albino, blue roan, flea-bitten grey, strawberry roan and zebra dun.

Saloon keepers called the stuff they pushed across the bars to cowboys whisky. What the cowboys called it, however, was "bug juice," "gut warmer," "nose paint," "red eye," "rotgut," "scamper juice," "snake poison" or "tonsil varnish."

When flaring tempers ended in flaming guns, the victim wasn't simply killed. Someone

In-put for all elements and the exclusion of none was promised by James R. Sugg of New Bern, successor to John T. Church of Henderson as party chairman.

"We have a monumental task ahead of us," Sugg told the committee members called to Raleigh for the session marking the takeover of party machinery by Bowles as the gubernatorial nominee.

"We need the help of every Democrat. There is much to do and little time to do it," he said.

Handicap At The Top
What Sugg, Bowles and others who spoke to the committee left unsaid was the concern many feel that the presidential ticket many handicaps Tar Heel Democrats on the general election ballot.

In fact, although there was mention of "McGovern people" and oblique reference to a bid for victory "from the courthouse to the White House," nobody went so far as to identify Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota as the Democratic candidate for president.

Sugg said the party has "a great state ticket," but he stopped short of extending the superlative to the national candidates.

He touched on the widespread disaffection within the ranks by telling the committee many of them might find things they do not like about the party. "There are some things I don't like, but I have never been so disenchanted that I ever considered leaving the party," he declared to applause.

Gesture To East

Strength For Today

AT THE VERY CENTER
People sometimes think that when they have changed a form they have changed a fact.

Let us look at this a little more closely. We can sometimes change things superficial without in the least changing things fundamental. In the realm of character, we can even reform our conduct without in any way having changed the drift of an inconsequential or evil life. Much reform throughout history has been a superficial matter. Men have changed the outside without changing the inside. They have changed the form without getting at the spirit and the content.

Getting right down to the world in which we live, we need always to ask ourselves what we are really working for. Are we trying to get something deep and significant accomplished, or are we simply interested in improving appearances? Are we, to us a Biblical figure, cleansing the outside of the cup and the platter and leaving the inside full of extortion and excess? Are we making a few adjustments in our behavior or are we really trying to bring about a change of heart? Are we changing our program or are we changing our mind?

Don't fall into the trap which Satan sets for the feet of many, namely, dallying with things superficial and letting things fundamental go undone.

It is our hearts which need to be changed — we ourselves, at the center of our lives.

'Practical Thing To Do'

It was, indeed, as the A.P.'s man in Munich observed, the practical thing to do. This was the Tuesday before the Olympics were to begin on Saturday, and a dozen African nations were threatening to summon their athletes home. They would not participate if Rhodesia were permitted to remain.

So the International Olympic Committee, composed of men who are nothing if not practical, did the practical thing. They gave the boot to Rhodesia.

Thus the games proceed, and for the next week or so we will be surfeited with runners, jumpers and hurdlers competing for the gold medals that mark supremacy in track and field. Sad to say, the most interesting competition will not be held.

There will be no hypocrisy contest, and more's the pity — for some of the greatest hypocrites in the human race are represented on the playing fields of Munich.

The cardinal sin of Rhodesia, it will be recalled, the sin that caused the United Nations to hurl her into ostracism like some branded heroine out of Hawthorne, was that Rhodesia was anti-democratic. Her rebel government was engaged in oppression. Rhodesia had stifled civil liberties and denied her people the priceless benefit of one man, one vote. No such nation, thus tainted, could be permitted to participate at Munich.

It was Ethiopia who led the objectors — Ethiopia, mind you, where the Emperor Haile Selassie rules in utter disdain of anything approaching democracy.

Zambia, once a co-member with Rhodesia in the old Federation, refused to be tainted by playing on the same fields with her sinful former sister. Virtuous Zambia! Her virtue was especially remarked in February, when Dr. Kenneth Kaunda, a true friend of civil liberties, jailed his opposition. More than 200 non-believers, including former Vice President Simon Kapwepwe, still are absorbing their lessons in democracy.

Tanzania joined the list of those who would recall their teams if hateful Rhodesia were permitted to compete. It might be useful to offer a short course in the history of free elections in Tanzania; but it would be an exceedingly short course. There are no free elections in Tanzania.

We heard from Ghana. The very idea of oppression is intolerable to Ghana, where an army junta in January seized the government, abolished the National Assembly, banned all political parties, and withdrew the constitution.

Letters submitted for public forum must be limited to 300 words

To the editor:
The AP's Hal Boyle, as usual, did not do much if any checking of the facts in his column of August 24, quoting the agnostic Irving Wallace and Wallace's so-called "meticulous research."

Certainly Boyle has not heard the last of this, and will retract it — which will make another of his columns. Anyone who knows even a little bit of the Bible could and should point out the errors in Wallace's so-called research. Briefly, in the sixth paragraph: Jesus of Nazareth, Matthew, 2:23; John 29:19; Matthew 21:11, Luke 2:51; Luke 1:26; Luke 2:29. The nails, John 21:25; the Acts, Calvary-Luke 24:33. There are many other references. Of course the sign of the fish was the first Christian symbol but Christ Himself said "Take up they Cross and follow Me." So He established that to start with.

Boyle says Wallace, while writing the book, became an agnostic. If he is no more objective in his research, I am not surprised that he has so little faith. I wonder why Boyle, with a nationwide audience, would bother to write about such fallacies without checking them himself. Or that you would print them.

Hope Eliminate Cash, Checks

By KENNETH L. DAVIS
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — City National Bank of Columbus has spent the last eight months trying to find out if people like you can be weaned away from checks and cash.

City National would give you a magnetized credit card instead.

Art Kelly, the young City National officer who is running the experiment says, "Something has to be done to cut both the cost of checking accounts to customers and to relieve the paperwork that is just about out of hand."

In the City National concept—machines, which would substitute for bank windows and tellers—would be scattered around something like soft drink machines, perhaps in parking lots of big industrial plants or in stores.

Two hundred sixty U.S. banks and financial institutions in Japan, France, Sweden, Denmark, England, Canada, Puerto Rico and West Germany also want to know the answers. All have sent representatives to find out what City National has been doing.

What City National did last October was to issue magnetized Bank-Americard cards in affluent Upper Arlington, a Columbus suburb of about 40,000. The magnetic stripe on the back tells a computer who owns it.

The bank also signed up 27 firms and installed card terminals at their cash registers. Card terminals essentially are push-button telephones hooked up to a central computer.

Then the bank made the computer talk back with a vocabulary of 24 words. You buy. A clerk pushes in the sales total. The computer voice repeats the charge. If it's correct, then a computer credits the business with the amount of the purchase and debits the customer's bank account with the same amount. In just 14 seconds, the seller has his money. The customer didn't have to handle cash or write a check, and the bank acquired an automatic record. The bank clearing house was relieved of paperwork.

In eight months of this experiment, $500,800 in 30,000 transactions have gone through the computer. Sixteen of the 27 firms already have said they would like to make the system permanent, six others gave favorable reactions and three said they were "marginal about the program."

Still to be heard from officially is the customer. That will come out of a report by Field Research Inc., of San Francisco. But some unofficial observations are possible.

"Customers just don't want to be bothered," said Kelly. "They just want to do their shopping without trouble one way or the other." Officials say they fear customer resistance. People are used to writing checks, charging now and paying later, and going to the bank to deposit pay checks. Then there's what the bankers call "float." You buy a television set on your department store credit card a day or so past your billing date. You know you won't be billed for a month and will have the usual 25 days for payment.

Or, perhaps, you write a check Friday afternoon, knowing it can't clear until Monday and by then you'll have deposited money to cover it. That's float.

City National figures it may break this habit with replacement benefits—perhaps interest on checking accounts, investing savings in mutual funds for greater interest above certain levels, and the like. The format hasn't been worked out.

So, the day may come when your firm will deposit your salary by computer transfer to your bank. In case of theft or loss of cards, said Kelly, the customer phones the bank and the "computer will refuse to okay any charge whatever for his card."

Pitt Employment Figures Saw Increase During July

An estimated 39,020 people either held jobs or were seeking employment in Pitt County during the month of July.

According to James E. Hannan, manager of the local Employment Security Commission office, the figure represents an employment gain of 5,450 — mostly in farming — and an increase of 100 in unemployment between May and July.

During the two-month period, the unemployment rate declined from 6.5 per cent to 5.8 per cent. Employment in July was estimated to be 950 above the corresponding period in 1971. During the 12-month period, the number of unemployed decreased 80

while the unemployment rate declined from 6.2 to 5.8

percent over the past year. "During July an estimated 36,740 workers in the Greenville area were employed," Hannan explained. "The seasonal addition of 5,300 agricultural workers provided most of the employment gain of 5,450 workers between May and July."

In the non-farm wage and salary sector increases of more than 50 each were recorded in construction, apparel, food and trade. However, government employment dropped about 220 because of the release of non-contract school personnel for the summer months.

All industry groups in the manufacturing sector experienced over-the-year employment increases, with the exception of textiles and "other" nondurables which remained unchanged.

Apparel, food and lumber and wood each added more than 100 workers. In the nonfactory category construction, government, and trade each added more than 100 employees.

The other four industry groups showed a total loss of 90.

All other nonagricultural employment, which includes self-employed workers, unpaid family workers and domestic workers in private households, increased by 130 over the year.

"Employment in Pitt County over the next few months is expected to show a substantial drop as agricultural activities are curtailed," Hannan noted. "However, nonagricultural wage and salary employment is anticipated to continue the steady growth that has been occurring in Pitt over the past several years."

Manufacturing employment anticipates a worker increase of over 1,000 by October and non-manufacturing industries expect about 300 more workers over the next three months.

During the midweek of July it was estimated that 2,280 available workers were unemployed in the Greenville area.

"This number is 80 fewer than during July, 1971, but 100 more than May, 1972," Hannan said. "The unemployed during July of this year represented 5.8 percent of the civilian work force."

Hannan added, "It is believed that the local economy is healthier than the unemployment during July were summer job seekers and will withdraw from the work force during August and September."

Key West Man Is Charged In Killing Of N.C. Teen-Ager

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — A 23-year-old Key West man has been accused of murdering a 15-year-old runaway from North Carolina who was on her way to Raiford State Prison to visit her father, serving 30 years for killing her mother.

Police said William Brader had been charged with first-degree murder in the death of Pearl "Pat" Elizabeth Kite, whose body was found in a beachfront grave nine days ago.

Broward County Sheriff Ed Stack said Brader had led officers to the spot where he buried the girl's blouse and purse some distance from where her nude body was discovered.

The girl's foster mother said in Winston-Salem, N.C., last week that Miss Kite ran away from a family camping trip at Myrtle Beach, S.C., after saying she was going to visit her father.

Police said the girl's father, Gernie Kite, was serving a 30-year term at Raiford for a 1967 second-degree murder conviction in the beating death of her mother, Sadie, in Orlando.

Police said an autopsy showed sand in Miss Kite's lungs, indicating she was still alive when she was buried in the sand near a beachfront apartment house.

FITS THE BILL

CIRENCESTER, England (AP) — The agricultural college in this Gloucestershire city figured it had the perfect casting for a German soldier in the production of R. C. Sherriff's World War I play, "Journey's End." Studying at the college is Prince Ernst of Hanver, 18-year-old grandson of Kaiser Wilhelm II.

Evans-Novak

(Continued from page 4) with the party he has cavalierly neglected as Vice President. Even if Human Events and the other right-wing ideologues eagerly accept Agnew solely because of what he says, the victory-oriented Republican leaders are demanding more than ideology.

Boyle . . .

(Continued from page 4) "made wolf meat out of him," "put a window in his skull," "hung up his hide," "curled him up," or "dabbled in his gore." At the very least he "bit the dust" or someone "blowed out his lamp."

A range rider's vocabulary was up to the task of describing excellence in his craft. A cowhand adept at finding lost dogies could, it was said by his admirers, "find a fly in a currant pie," "hunt a whisper in a big wind," or "track a bear through running water or bees in a blizzard."

But withering scorn awaited the hapless unhandy cowhand whom no one wanted to partner with. He wasn't "fit to shoot at when yuh want to unload yore gun. He was "as useless as putting a milk bucket under a bull," or as "useless as barking at a knot hole."

Just as of yore, a range rider at the end of a weary day in the saddle today feels so weak he "can't lick his upper lip" and "so puny he has to lean against a post to spit. Often he still is as "homeless as a poker chip."

But the cowboy also still is a free man in an imprisoned time, for he "wears his pants pockets high off the ground" and "it would take a steeplejack to look him in the eye."

Kilpatrick . . .

(Continued from page 4) Sierra Leone announced that she, too, would summon her athletes home, that is, to a land battered by repeated coups, jailings and detentions, a land in which democracy is unknown.

Kenya was the foremost objector. And what an irony it was to hear from Jomo Kenyatta that a rebel government, guilty of intolerable practices, could not field a team at the Olympics. Memories are short. But are memories so short that the Mau Mau are forgotten?

There was also Uganda, which demonstrates its hatred of racism by expelling Asians. And there were half a dozen others whose horror at Rhodesia's electoral plan is exceeded only by the pleasure they find in their own one-party states.

Rhodesia, let it be noted, had complied meticulously with every stipulation laid down by the International Olympic Committee. These were not easy stipulations: Her athletes were to appear as British subjects, honoring the British flag and anthem. Rhodesia swallowed her pride, agreed to the requirements, and sent a team of both black and white athletes to Munich. Ant there, because the IOC is composed of practical men, they got the boot.

This was a surrender to blackmail, a yielding to extortion. The decision may save the Olympics of 1972. It is bound to invite new blackmail in the future. But perhaps the committee members, adding ingenuity to practicality, will come up with a hypocrisy contest in the fashion of that Wonderland caucus race. Every nation will win, and when the gold medals are passed out, all must have prizes.

NO MATTER WHICH WACHOVIA SAVINGS PLAN MATCHES YOUR NEEDS,

IT PAYS THE HIGHEST INTEREST THE LAW ALLOWS.

Wachovia has a savings program to fit your plans and goals exactly.

Using the basic programs shown here, and any number of combinations of them, we will design a customized savings and investment program to provide you with the precise combination of access, return and timing you want.

In every category, your money will earn the maximum interest rate allowed by law.

In every case, your savings are insured up to $20,000 by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, and backed by the solidity and security of almost a century of continuous Wachovia service to North Carolina savers.

In every Wachovia office, you'll find helpful and knowledgeable people who will gladly work with you to arrange the plan or combination that suits you best. Stop in soon.

Wachovia Passbook Savings pay the 4½% maximum.

You earn 4½% annual interest, compounded and paid monthly. It's True Daily Interest, earned by every dollar, every day it's on deposit. Open your account with $1 or more. Deposit or withdraw any amount at any time at any Wachovia office. And you still get a passbook with Wachovia passbook savings.

Wachovia Blue Chip Savings pay the 5% maximum.

You earn 5% annual interest, compounded daily and paid quarterly. You can open your Blue Chip account with as little as $500, and add any amount at any time. After funds have been on deposit for at least 90 days, you can withdraw at the beginning of any calendar quarter or on 90 days notice.

Wachovia Certificates pay the 5½% and 5¾% maximum.

You earn 5¾% annual interest, compounded and paid quarterly on our Guaranteed Investment Certificates. The interest rate is guaranteed for two years, and your certificate is automatically renewable. The minimum amount is $500 and the term is 24 months. You have your choice of having the interest sent directly to you, or deposited automatically to your savings or checking account, or held for further compounding. On a 12-month term, you receive the same features, with a 5½% annual interest.

Wanted Man Is Captured Here

Joseph C. Hopkins, 27, of Washington, D.C. was taken into custody by Greenville police about 1:30 a.m. Sunday on charges of auto larceny which stemmed from the alleged theft of a car from the capital city.

According to Chief Glenn Cannon, Hopkins allegedly took the car he was driving from a Washington service station.

Cannon noted, too, that Hopkins was wanted in connection with an armed robbery in Greene County August 24.

Hopkins was taken into custody at a service station at the intersection of Fifth and Tyson Streets.

General Motors' announcement it might offer the Wankel rotary engine on some cars in two years sparked a rise by Curtiss-Wright, which owns North American rights to the Wankel. It was up 1/8 to 47 1/2 and was the Big Board's most-active issue.

GM itself was down 1/2 to 78 1/2 after news the Price Commission had refused to grant a $54-a-car price increase it had requested. Other autos were also down. Ford, whose $59-a-car price hike request was turned down, dipped 3/4 to 66 1/2. Chrysler was off 1/2 to 30 1/2, and American Motors lost 1/4 to 9 1/2.

National General, which announced plans to merge with Pennsylvania Eve, was up 2 1/2 to 33 1/4. Other actives were McDonald's, down 3/4 to 56 1/2; and NL Industries, up 1/8 to 15 1/4.

Common Cause Jones Is Briefed . Meeting Here

The first meeting of Common Cause members in the First Congressional District will be held Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church here.

Common Cause is a national citizen's lobby working at all levels of government in the public interest. It is non-partisan and seeks to work constructively on the issues within the system—to function as a movement of the people for a reordering of national priorities, against corruption in political and governmental institutions, and toward making legislators more responsive to the will of the people who put them in office. It has full-time lobbyists in Washington and when necessary, the organization participates in legal suits to bring about change the members feel is needed.

Common Cause was organized in September, 1971 with former Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare John Gardner as its chairman. It already has over 200,000 members and grows at a rate of thousands per month.

Any person not already a member who would like to attend the Wednesday meeting will be welcomed. It is hoped that an ad hoc steering committee can be organized to stimulate more activity and visibility on behalf of Common Cause in this area.

Holshouser . . .

"How in the world can anybody expect a city slicker like Hargrove Bowles to understand the problems of our working people?"

Holshouser, who said Bowles "says he's opposed to new taxes," emphasized, "Before the election, Bowles will tell you what you want to hear — but did you know that he's voted for every single tax that's come along?"

"Bowles says he's against new taxes. Yet Bowles has been part and parcel of a machine that has pushed through the tax on food, the tax on medicine, the tax on tobacco, the tax on soft drinks, and the higher tax on gasoline and just about everything else in sight."

One other thing, Holshouser said, "Hargrove Bowles has already said he is going to vote for George McGovern. Bowles is supporting a presidential candidate who is for amnesty for draft dodgers, who's for legalizing abortion, who's for legalizing marijuana, and who problem is gaining approval from the Department of Housing and Urban Development to advertise the 78 units for the Newtown area.

In addition to the briefings on the various projects and plans, the congressman accompanied officials on a tour of the project sites.

would virtually disarm America and turn us into one great big welfare state."

Holshouser said, "Everywhere I go, good people — some of them life-long Democrats — are telling me that they're fed up and can't take any more. The principals they believe in had been abandoned by people like George McGovern and Hargrove Bowles.

"It's time for a change. It's time we got government back where it belongs — back in the hands of the people.

"I'm counting on your help to see that we do just that in November."

PTA Seminar

A PTA Seminar will be held at Pitt Technical Institute Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in Room 207 of the new building.

Mrs. E.P. Mertz, district PTA coordinator, will be the speaker and discussion leader.

"This seminar is for sharing our ideas and so we can consider organizing a Pitt County PTA," Herbert Dail said.

Dail and others will appear on Carolina Today Thursday at 8 a.m. to talk about these plans.

Anyone interested in attending the Seminar should call 752-4163, Dail said.

Crumpler Not Among Dropouts

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
At the rate things are going, it may be just as well freshmen will be eligible to play football this fall in Southern Conference.

That may be stretching a point, because things haven't actually gotten that bad, but at least two schools have lost veteran personnel and the rumor factory is alive about other departures.

Junior quarterback John Gargano, the No. 2 man last season behind graduated senior Steve Regan, quit the William and Mary squad Monday for what a spokesman said were "personal reasons," leaving the scrap at that spot to junior Rip Scherer and sophomore Billy Deery.

At the same time, Coach Sonny Randle denied junior running back Carlester Crumpler had quit the East Carolina squad, but a spokesman said several players had left the Pirates because of the severity of practice sessions, including veteran placekicker Bob Kilbourne.

Crumpler was not suited up for East Carolina's first scrimmage last Saturday, but Randle said the 203-pounder—hurt much of last season—was back Monday after working out a personal problem.

The afternoon drill at East Carolina was wiped out by rain, just as was the morning session at Richmond. Randle said the washout had dropped the Pirates behind in their training schedule.

East Carolina opens Sept. 9 at Virginia Military, and Coach Bob Thalman expressed satisfaction with the Keydets' development in practice so far for that encounter.

Thalman was especially pleased with the passing attack Monday and praised the work of sophomore receivers Tony Farry and Ron Bongiovanni. Veteran runningback Mac Bowman was still out with a sprained ankle but is expected back before the end of the week.

It remains to be seen how much Gargano's departure will hurt William and Mary. Gargano accounted for 499 yards passing and 172 running last season and accounted for 399 yards in total offense in the Indians' 36-35 defeat at North Carolina.

Coach Jim Root, recovering from kidney stone surgery, still watched from a golf cart Monday as the Indians worked on goal line defense.

Quarterback continued to be a problem at Richmond, where Coach Frank Jones still is trying to pick a starter from among Phil Burkhalter, Harry Knight, Rich Muscarella and Dave Yount. The latter was impressive in last Saturday's scrimmage with one scoring pass.

Junior quarterback Harry Lynch, the conference's total offense leader last season, was held out of contact work Monday at The Citadel because of a groin injury as the Bulldogs had individual and small-group drills.

Despite The Lack Of Experience, Ayden-Grifton Could Challenge

By WOODY PEELE

(One of a series)

LITTLEFIELD — Ayden-Grifton's Chargers, under new coach Mike Overton, move into Eastern Carolina Conference play in their second game, and it might be the one that will win or lose the title for them.

Southern Wayne, their first opponent, is rated one of the favorites in the league. The Chargers may be the dark horse of the league, and they'll find out quickly.

But for it to happen, a lot of youth has got to mature quickly.

Ayden-Grifton has only 16 lettermen back from last year, and just seven of these are starters. Most are defensive end; Milton Brown, a split end and defensive back, Horace Tripp, a center; Eddie Hooker and Ernest Dixon, both defensive tackles, and Tom Craft, a fullback and linebacker. Another starter back from two years ago is Harry Kinlaw a defensive back and tight end.

Many of these went both ways, and Overton expects to have a lot of players going both ways this year too.

"We're going to depend on a lot of our young players up from the JV's," Overton said. "We have an average nucleus to build around and we have a lot of good ability. It just needs experience."

And if this experience comes quickly, the Chargers will be a contender, Overton feels.

The new coach didn't put in a new system, but instead simplified the multiple "T" system the Chargers will use.

"We should be able to move the ball on the ground," he said. "Last year, we were almost strictly a passing team, but this year's we'll probably run more."

The ability to pass will still be there, however, and Overton rates split end Brown as one of the best receivers in the state. "He's just a junior, but he's already attracting attention," the coach said. "If you get the ball near him, he'll get it. He's got a great pair of hands."

While the speed isn't great on the offense, there is good quickness. "We've worked a lot on our timing to get quicker and improve the running game. One of our quick backs up from the JV's is Tony Koonce, who scored 10 touchdowns for them."

Size is also good factor for the Chargers, who have it especially on defense. "Dixon will go 240, and he's got quickness to go with it. Hooker is 225 and Gary Gardner, a guard, hits 255. Leon Moye, another lineman, is about 220, so we're pretty big in the interior on defense."

The offensive line is a new one, with only one veteran returning. Currently, Overton has Kinlaw at tight end and Brown at split end. The tackles are Wilbert Jackson and Tripp; the guards are Ronnie Dixon and Terry Harper, with Mike Rose at center. "We're not as big in the line as last year, but we're quicker," Overton said.

In the backfield, there is plenty of quickness. Willie Stewart and Koonce will share the tailback duties, while Craft will be the fullback. "He's a good power runner and a good blocker," Overton added.

"We also got a surprise with Donnie Moore, who'll be at the slotback position. He'll carry the ball too at times, and has done a good job so far."

The quarterbacking position is up for grabs by two newcomers, both up from the junior varsity. They are Greg Nelson and Melvin Stewart.

"Our passing game is not going to be bad," the coach said. "It will be better because of the running game."

"The defense may be the better half of the Charger game. We've got more people back and we were the number one or two team in the league in defense last year. We may be stronger this year."

There is size in the line, as mentioned, but a good set of linebackers and secondary men. "The experience makes the difference here," the coach said. The ends will be Willie Stewart and Jesse Brown, while Hooker and Ernest Dixon are the tackles. Gardner and Moye will handle the guard positions. Donnie Moore and Craft will be the linebackers with Kinlaw, Melvin Stewart and Milton Brown in the backfield.

"We have a lot of people going both ways," Overton acknowledged, "but they're all in good shape, so it shouldn't be a big problem."

Overton rates the kicking game, both the boot and the return, as only average.

Looking at the conference, he picks Greene Central as the favorite. "They were 8-2 last year, and they've got a lot of their players back."

"We'll probably be around the middle unless our people come along quickly. We have some tough opening games, and this could knock us out before we get started."

Ayden-Grifton opens its season Friday, hosting Weldon.

White Sox Win; Oakland Rallies

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Chicago's Mike Andrews bedeviled the Boston Red Sox Monday night while Oakland's Angel Mangual lived up to his name and kept the A's on the heels of the White Sox in baseball's American League West.

Andrews drove in five runs with a home run and double to pace the White Sox to a 6-4 victory over Boston. They remained one-half game in front of Oakland when the A's rallied for five runs in the seventh inning, three on pinch hitter Mangual's tie-breaking homer, and edged Cleveland 5-4.

In the only other AL contest, Baltimore's Jim Palmer blanked Minnesota 2-0 on five hits, pulling the Orioles to within one game of idle Detroit in the East Division.

There were only three games in the National League. Cincinnati downed the New York Mets 5-2, Pittsburgh shaded San Diego 5-3 and St. Louis defeated San Francisco 4-2.

Andrews hit his seventh home run of the season in the fourth inning following Dick Allen's double and a hit batsman after Boston starter Sonny Siebert had mowed down the first 11 Chicago batters. Andrews doubled two more runs across in the sixth and pinch runner Luis Alvarado then scored on a single by Rich Morales.

Boston bounced back with three runs in the bottom of the sixth on Andy Kosco's solo homer and Carl Yastrzemski's two-run single but the White Sox hung on.

Cleveland's Roy Foster hit a two-run homer off Oakland's Vida Blue and Steve Dunning held the A's to one hit for six innings before the roof fell in.

Newly acquired Matty Alou led off the big seventh with a single, Reggie Jackson walked and the runners advanced on Mike Epstein's ground-out. After an intentional walk to Sal Bando filled the bases, Ted Kubiak's sacrifice fly delivered one run and Gene Tenace's game-tying single chased Dunning. Mangual then slammed an 0-2 pitch from Mike Kilekeny far over the left field fence, giving Oakland just enough runs to withstand a two-run homer by Graig Nettles in the ninth.

Baltimore's Palmer got the only run he needed when Don Baylor homered in the fifth inning off Dick Woodson. Boog Powell singled across an insurance tally in the eighth as Palmer breezed to his 18th triumph and stretched Minnesota's scoreless string to 24 innings.

The Twins just finished dropped a three-game series to Detroit and manager Frank Quilici called the East Division dogfight a tossup.

"Baltimore has some great players who haven't been hitting," he said. "They're liable to bounce back any time and start them off on a winning streak. They seldom make any mistakes and they have great pitching."

"Detroit, on the other hand, is starting to get great hitting. Also, Willie Horton is back in form after coming off the injury list and Al Kaline is just coming back strong."

Cincinnati's Gary Nolan, making his first start in 26 days after suffering from muscle irritation in his neck and shoulder, limited the Mets to one hit in the six innings he worked and picked up his first victory since July 13.

George Foster batted for Nolan in the sixth and doubled to ignite a four-run inning that broke up a scoreless duel against rookie Brent Strom. Pete Rose walked, Joe Morgan singled the first run across and Bobby Tolan homered. Cincy's Denis Menke and New York's John Milner hit solo homers later.

Willie Stargell walloped a pair of two-run homers to spark Pittsburgh past San Diego.

Conley Booster Club To Meet

Brown Feels Bengals Here

By RALPH BERNSTEIN

Associated Press Sports Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Coach Paul Brown believes his Cincinnati Bengals have arrived as a solid National Football League team, not one that makes the headlines every so often by upsetting an established team.

Brown's five-year-old Bengals rallied in the second half Tuesday to overcome the Philadelphia Eagles 34-20 in an exhibition game. Cincinnati trailed 17-10 at halftime, but scored three touchdowns and a field goal as the injury-riddled Eagles' defense came apart.

"This is our fifth year," said Brown, "and our plans were by this time to play every team right to the ground and not sneak in the back door and upset some established team. I think we are able to do that now."

Brown's Bengals, who were last in the NFC's Central Division last season with a 4-10 record, now are 2-2 in the pre-season schedule. Philadelphia is 1-3.

Brown was particularly pleased with the performance of Ken Anderson, the sophomore quarterback from Augustana (Ill.) College, who completed 12 of 17 passes for 155 yards and led the Bengals' second half comeback.

Veteran quarterback Pete Liske passed 24 yards to Gary Ballman to put Philadelphia on the scoreboard first. After Cincinnati's Horst Muhlmann kicked an 11-yard field goal, Liske slammed over from the one to cap an 80-yard drive. Al Beauchamp scored for the Bengals on a 7-yard pass interception and Tom Dempsey ended first-half scoring with a 30-yard field goal.

Running back Paul Robinson scored twice for the Bengals in the second half and Muhlmann and Dempsey exchanged field goals, Philadelphia's coming on a 52-yarder.

Elsewhere in pro football, Coach George Allen acquired another veteran for his "Over-the-Hill Gang" Washington Redskins when he picked up defensive lineman Jerry Rush from the Cleveland Browns.

Rush, 29, a seven-year player for the Detroit Lions, was traded to the Browns earlier this year.

Another veteran, defensive end Ben Davidson of Oakland, who was facing a tough fight for his job now has to contend with a pulled leg muscle he suffered in Saturday's game against Buffalo.

Davidson was hurt when he picked up a fumble and returned it 23 yards before falling on the last play of the game.

In NFL transactions Monday, quarterback Don Gault moved from Cleveland to San Diego on waivers; cornerback Art Hicks was picked up as a free agent after being dropped by Washington; and two-year taxi-squad quarterback Bob Leahy was put on waivers by the Pittsburgh Steelers along with four rookies.

Not Thinking Of Triple Win

BOSTON (AP) — Veteran slugger Dick Allen is bidding to become the first player in Chicago White Sox history to win the triple crown, but it's strictly a secondary objective for him.

"Triple crown, hell—the only thing I'm interested in is the club winning 95 games, which should be enough to win our division," Allen said Monday night before the White Sox beat the Red Sox 6-4 in a nationally televised baseball game.

The last player to win the Triple Crown was the Red Sox' Carl Yastrzemski in 1967, one year after Frank Robinson did it with Baltimore. Mickey Mantle performed the feat with the New York Yankees in 1956. Their teams won the AL pennant in those years.

"If I win the Triple Crown and we don't win, the Triple Crown will mean nothing," he added.

Allen played for Philadelphia, St. Louis and Los Angeles in the National League before being acquired by the White Sox after the 1971 season. He is leading the American League in batting (.317), homers (32) and runs batted in (92). He appears a shoo-in to win the homer and RBI titles, but is locked in a dogfight for the batting championship.

"There are a lot of things more important than average," he said while forego batting practice in his customary fashion. "If I go 0-for-4 in a game, but I move two men up and they score and we win 2-0, I feel that's as important as getting hits."

Spitz Leads U.S. To Three More Golds

By BOB JOHNSON
Associated Press Sports Editor
MUNICH (AP) — "I feel great!" Mark Spitz exulted. "I did my best tonight, I'll do my best tomorrow and the day after that—and the day after that."

If he does, the handsome, mustachioed California swimmer will be well on his way to garnering an unheard-of seven Olympic gold medals—and on his way to obliterating the memories of Mexico City.

He brought the United States its first two golds in the 20th Summer Games Monday, rocketing to an astounding triumph in the 200-meter butterfly, then anchoring the victorious 400-meter relay team.

It was also a day in which Air Force Capt. Micki King of Hermosa Beach, Calif., dazzled her way to a gold medal in the three-meter springboard diving. Vic Auer of North Hollywood, Calif., came within an eyelash of a gold in small bore riflery and the young Yank basketball team continued its winning ways.

Spitz can make it three in a row tonight with a victory in the 200-meter freestyle final. The women, meanwhile, still seeking to get out of the wake of Australian sensation Shane Gould, will be out to gain a gold in the 200-meter breaststroke.

"I remembered what happened in Mexico," said Spitz, who had brashly predicted he would personally win five golds, only to fall in all five attempts, winding up merely as one member of two winning relay teams in those games four years ago.

"I was a little nervous because of that," he said, recalling his thoughts as he stood on the starting block prior to the butterfly.

A scant two minutes later—a world record 2:00.70, to be exact—the 22-year-old Indiana University pre-dental graduate from Carmichael, Calif., had his first gold, leading a 1-2-3 sweep.

Gary Hall of Garden Grove, Calif., a surprisingly distant fifth in the early going, came on with a rush to win the silver medal, barely nosing out Robin Backhaus of Redlands, Calif.

Minutes after that, Spitz was back in the water, following Dave Edgar of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., John Murphy of Hinsdale, Ill., and Jerry Heidebreich of Dallas, the first three swimmers in the relay.

Again he churned along and again a world record was broken. This time the final clocking was 3:26.42, more than three full seconds ahead of the silver-winning Russian team and six in front of third-place East Germany.

"I've been diving for 18 years," said Miss King. "That's longer than the girl who came in second has been living."

Miss King, a 28-year-old Pontiac, Mich., native, virtually waited to her gold medal, beating 17-year-old Swedish high school student Ulrika Knape by almost 16 points. East Germany's Marina Janicke was third, about three points further back.

Auer, a 35-year-old technical and television writer, had a gold for nearly two hours. Then along came 26-year-old North Korean infantryman Li-Ho-jun to take it away from him.

"Naturally I was disappointed," said Auer, who had fired a world and Olympic record-tying 598 points out of a possible 600, only to have Li break them both with a 599 score. "For two hours I thought I won it and now it's a second place."

"But I'm still pleased," Auer added. "I think I represented my country well... This is the greatest event in my life."

Miss Gould, the 15-year-old Aussie schoolgirl, put her fourth world record on the books in swimming to a gold in the women's 200-meter individual relay.

"Now I'm looking forward to the freestyles," she said, clutching her stuffed toy kangaroo after clocking 2:23.07, a time that broke a four-year mark set by America's Claudia Kolb.

Miss Gould beat East Germany's Kornelia Ender by about half a second, with Lynn Vidali of San Francisco, finishing less than a tenth of a second further back to take the bronze.

"It took three games for us to become a team in Mexico City, and it probably will be the same this time," U.S. Coach Hank Iba said of his young basketball team.

If that's the case, they'll be a team tonight—and they'll have to be in order to defeat Cuba, which beat the Yanks in last year's Pan-American Games.

The Americans, stretching their unbeaten Olympic record to 57 games, recorded their second Munich victory by beating Australia 81-55.

Sloppy ball-handling by the U.S. team enabled the Aussies to maintain a 19-19 tie in the opening minutes. Then the Yanks clamped on a zone defense and ran away to a 56-24 halftime lead.

Ed Ratleff of Long Beach, Calif., scored 18 points and Jim Brewer of Maywood, Ill., grabbed 18 rebounds to lead the Yanks.

The only other American medalist Monday was a surprising one, as 20-year-old Jamie McEwan of Silver Spring, Md., picked up the bronze in the Canadian singles segment of the canoe slalom.

He had been in eighth place after the first of his two runs in the sport all but owned by Europeans. East Germans won both the Canadian and men's kayak singles.

The American women gymnasts finished fourth as Russia won its first gold of the Games and Hungary's Imre Foeldi won the bantamweight weightlifting competition. The U.S. water polo team defeated Cuba 7-6 as Bruce Bradley of Long Beach, Calif., scored three goals and Russell Webb of Hermosa Beach, Calif., added two.

China To Be Formidable Foe

By WES GALLAGHER
AP General Manager
SIAM, China (AP) — A glimpse of modern China at play indicates this country of 800 million will be a formidable competitor in world and Olympic competition in the future.

The Organization for Sports is probably the most comprehensive in the world today. The most popular sports in order are table tennis, basketball, various forms of shu (a centuries old sport once combative but now like gymnastics and scored on points), soccer, volleyball and then a number of other sports including track and field.

China and Japan lead the world in table tennis, and China should be among the leaders in volleyball, particularly girls' volleyball. Western style sports like basketball, track and field suffer from a lack of modern Western techniques.

The Organization of Sports, however, guarantees further and probably rapid progress. It goes like this:

Shensi province is of small to medium size with 21 million people. Sian is the capital. The province has 95 counties and three municipalities. These are under 21 districts.

Each sport is broken down for competitive purposes into juniors and seniors. Although the age differs, generally juniors are those below 17 years of age.

Each sport is again broken down between boys and girls.

Therefore each competitive sport will have four champions—boys, juniors and seniors, girls junior and seniors.

First there is a competition for the county championship. The winners then go on for the district championship. District champions go on to compete for the province (state) championship.

Once the state championship is decided, the best players on all the teams are selected to represent the state in the national championships.

They go into intensive six-week training sessions in the sports center here under the direction of 42 coaches. Juniors practice in the morning, seniors in the afternoon.

Training completed, they go on to Peking for the national championships where the process is repeated. The best players from all teams are again selected to represent China in international play.

They live in a large Peking sports center like the one here in Sian and stay until their international competition is over under new coaches. Teachers in the sports center keep students up with their studies while they train.

Teams on the state level are usually made up of three fourths students and one fourth workers.

The tallest man's basketball player in the country is over seven feet, according to a coach here, but generally speaking players practicing here seemed smaller than Western standards.

The junior girls volleyball team practicing did have two or three players well over six feet.

Track and field apparently is not among the more popular sports and they did not have particularly good times and distances at this province level. The best time in the 100 meters was 11 seconds, 200 meters 22.5 seconds, and 1,500 meters four minutes five seconds.

However, on the national level track and field makes a much better showing. Here's how it compares to world marks:

100 meter dash—Chinese record, 10 seconds; world record 9.9. 200-meter dash—Chinese record 20.8; world record 19.8. 1,500-meter run—Chinese record, 3 minutes, 49.5 seconds; world record 3:33.1. long jump—Chinese record 25 feet, 4 inches; world record, 29-2 1/4. hop, step, jump—Chinese record, 54-5; world record, 57-3/4. Pole vault—Chinese Record, 16-1; world record, 18-5 1/4.

Gymnastics were strong although much emphasis is put on a modern variation of the ancient Chinese versions which were used as a means of combat in centuries past. Today they are physical conditions. All are done with style with points counted for the best individual performances.

Physical training is given great priority and the Chinese may be the best conditioned people in the world. Each morning on rising millions flood the streets to do various forms of calisthenics. This is combined with periods of farm work as part of the political education program to keep everyone close to the peasant.

In Peking the care for national teams is long and strenuous. About 1,800 athletes live and train in the Peking complex which has a 100,000-seat workers stadium. There are gyms, an olympic size swimming pool and all that is needed to compete in most sports. Because the food from various parts of China is different, special cooks feed the athletes the food they are accustomed to. Nothing is spared although the athletes live in spartan quarters, several to a room.

They divide the day between athletics and learning.

With 29 provinces and three municipalities (like Shanghai), 800,000,000 people to draw from, and the most organized sports program in the world, China inevitably will be a top world and Olympic competitor.

Olympics Are Family Affair

MUNICH (AP) — Olympic swimming is a bit of a family affair as the Munich games have seven brother-sister, brother-brother or sister-sister constellations on the entry lists.

Some of the sisters and brothers are in the medal class, and there is an outside chance that one family may take home more than one medal.

The family line-up:

United States' Lynn and Rick Colella.

Australia's Neil and Gregory Rogers.

Mexico's diving sisters Bertha and Norma Baraldi.

West Germany's Angela and Klaus Steinbach, and Hans and Werner Lampe.

Italy's Novella and Mauro Calligaris.

Lebanon's Mireille and Bruno Bassoul.

Mireille Bassoul, 18, entered a record nine events, yet is not likely to survive the preliminaries in one. Same goes for brother Bruno.

Bertha Baraldi was 15th, her sister 18th in the springboard event.

Of the Calligaris, Novella is the brightest prospect. At 17, she holds three European freestyle records.

West Germany's Hans Lampe is European 100-meter butterfly champion, and brother Werner is a trusted member of West Germany's strong freestyle relays, as is Klaus Steinbach. His sister Angela has no serious medal hopes.

Australian Greg Rogers is a veteran from the Mexico City games where he won two medals, but no gold, and his younger brother Neil is a 100-meter butterfly hope.

In the Collella family from Seattle, sister Lynn is a medal prospect in the 200-meter butterfly.

Connolly Effort Is Frustrated

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
MUNICH (AP) — Olga Connolly's dark-brown eyes were afire with rage and indignation.

"They are ripping the petitions right off the walls," she said. "They warned one of the shops where I have friends that if one of my petitions showed up there they would have the shop closed."

"It is terrible. They are violating our constitutional rights."

The controversial, 39-year-old former Czechoslovakian, elected to carry the U.S. flag in last Saturday's Olympic Parade of Athletes, charged Tuesday that U.S. Olympic officials were striving to thwart her latest efforts to get Olympic athletes to call for a cease-fire in Vietnam.

Olga said she had posted a petition at various spots throughout the Olympic Village addressed to competitors and dealing with an appeal to President Nixon.

The petition was addressed to the U.S. Olympic delegation, and it said:

"Please read carefully the proposed telegram to President Nixon posted below. Those who agree with its message, please exercise your constitutional right of petition and sign the telegram so it may be sent off no later than tomorrow morning. Those who do not agree, please do not interfere with the constitutional rights of your fellow Americans, and leave the petition displayed as it is."

Below was the following telegram to President Nixon:

"Dear President Nixon:

"In deference to the highest ideal of the International Olympic movement, peace among all mankind, we, the undersigned members of the U.S. Olympic team, respectfully petition our President and Commander in Chief of the Armed Forces to call a halt to our bombing in Southeast Asia during the period of the 20th Olympic Games from August 26 to September 10, 1972."

"I don't know how many signatures we actually got," Olga said. "Friends told me they saw petitions with names on them—I know of one with seven names—but the petitions were ripped off the walls and destroyed. Olympic officials were seen doing it."

"The athletes were afraid to sign it. They were intimidated. They told me so. It is a very tragic thing, indeed."

Olga, who married hammerthrow champion Harold Connolly after the 1956 games in Melbourne and who is competing in her fifth Olympics, has been active in distributing buttons calling for the end of Vietnamese bombing.

Before flying to the United States a week ago, she criticized U.S. Olympic officials for imposing a gag on competitors, contending, "they treat us like children."

Fighting Afterwards

NEW YORK (AP) — Walter Seeley, outslugged Jose Fernandez to gain a 12-round majority decision at Madison Square Garden Monday night, but new combat started after the decision was announced.

The 127 1/2-pound Seeley fought toe-to-toe with Fernandez, 128 1/2, but appeared to be losing the fight. The Associated Press scored the match 8-3-1 in the Dominican's favor, and a number of writers at ringside thought Fernandez the winner. But when the outcome was announced for Seeley, numerous fights broke out in the crowd of approximately 5,000 and empty bottles littered the arena.

The fight was all action from the opening bell as each contestant answered combinations with flurries of his own. Seeley, now 21-1-3, suffered a cut over his left eye in the eighth round, but there were no knockdowns. The loss dropped Fernandez' record to 14-2-1 and stripped him of his American Junior Lightweight title.

Two people were treated at a nearby hospital for cuts from flying broken glass.

THE STRAIGHT-UP MARTINI DRINKER. AN ENDANGERED SPECIES.

It would be a shame for America to lose its last few devoted martini purists. We should all do what we can to save them.

That's why Canada Dry makes gin and vodka especially for this vanishing breed. Gin and vodka with the dry smoothness that a straight-up martini demands.

And remember, if they're good enough to please the Straight-Up Man they must be good enough to survive on the rocks.

We're doing our bit. Do yours.

The Worry Clinic Challenge For Imaginations

Like Prof. Howard, on a starry night, look heavenward. To indulge in Cosmic Calisthenics, consider the ideas discussed below. What did Jesus have in mind when he mentioned those "other sheep"? Did Christ ever suffer crucifixion on any other planet?

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

Case U-572: Howard T., aged 36, is a geology professor. "Dr. Crane," he began, "although I teach a Bible Class for high schoolers, I sometimes get an 'all gone' feeling when I view the stars at night."

For the vastness of this Cosmic Universe scares me! Why, I recently read a science report about the quasars that are speeding outward to the far edges of the Universe. And they are estimated to be 9 billion light years away! "How puny must be our own Solar System."

"So where is Heaven? "Are there any other inhabited planets circling distant suns? Is the Garden of Eden Bible account still plausible?"

Cosmic Calisthenics If you wish to widen your mental horizons, then just follow Prof. Howard in his Cosmic Calisthenics!

Prof. Shapley, former head of Harvard's Observatory, estimated there are 1,000,000 other inhabited (or inhabitable) planets out in space!

Earth is apparently the only one in our own Solar System, but there are billions of other stars (suns) with planets probably circling them.

And the Garden of Eden is still a plausible description of how mankind may have started here on this planet.

But Adam and Eve may not have been the first experimental pair that God placed on Earth!

Dr. Shapley's million planets being used as experimental "Nursery Schools" for mankind!

Jesus Himself (John 10; 16) made this unusual statement: "And other sheep I have, which are not of this fold; them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice..."

Did Christ thus refer to other inhabited planets in the Cosmic Universe?

As a mental challenge, also consider the tremendous scientific advances we have made within the past 100 years, culminating in the moon flights.

But suppose men like us had started on distant planets a billion or maybe a trillion years ago!

How far ahead of us would they be by now?

Maybe God picks a Cosmic "Faculty" of millions of the best brains on those earlier planets; then lets them "colonize" new planets, like our Earth.

Each botanist implants his special fruit or flower, etc.

Others concoct various germs and bacteria.

Then they may watch to see what the outcome will be!

Sponsor Activities Program For Young

Pitt Technical Institute will sponsor a program consisting of a series of courses on Activities for Young Children, beginning Sept. 12.

Art activities will be offered first, beginning at 7 p.m., Sept. 12, in room 103. There will be a minimum of three sessions and maximum of five sessions, depending upon the need and interest of the adult students. Each session will meet once weekly and will involve student participation with a minimum of lecture.

Sessions will be organized to allow the instructor and the students great flexibility in sharing constructive ideas and suggestions and to make practical and useful items for use with young children. Other activity areas that will be scheduled later include: play; making toys; music; math; science; and literature.

There is no charge for the series. Each adult will need to provide a minimum amount of instructional supplies.

Any person interested in working with groups of young children is invited to enroll in the program. No advance registration is necessary.

OLD BUILDING HALIFAX (AP) — The century-old Court House is being renovated for use by the Nova Scotia government's libraries and audio-visual services. Built in 1862, the court house was replaced recently by a modern structure on the harbor front. About $100,000 will be spent on repairs and alterations to the old stone building, which is valued in part for its architectural features.

Could Disrupt Phone Service

Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. has issued a plea for "careful shooting" by hunters near telephone cables and equipment this season. Don A. Collier, local manager for Carolina Telephone, pointed out that there have been several instances in the past of gunfire damage to telephone equipment in this area. He reminded that even the smallest shot can cut a wire, shatter an insulator, or otherwise disrupt service. Collier urged, "For the sake of your telephone service and that of others, please be careful when hunting near telephone facilities."

South opened the bidding with one heart, West overcalled two clubs and North freely bid two diamonds. East raised his partner to three clubs and South now jumped to four hearts, holding the equivalent of at least eight winners in his own hand. This bid is by no means a closeout in light of the fact that partner has shown a good hand himself when he competes aggressively at the two level.

Altho North held nothing much to spare in the way of high card values, the two red controls appeared to be significant values, and there was no way that South could know that his partner had the ace of hearts. North accordingly made a slam try by overbidding the game in hearts. Altho South was careless, he promptly accepted the invitation because of his black controls. West opened the ace of

Academic Bankruptcy Is Offered At Indiana U.

By VICKI GRAHAM
Associated Press Writer
BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Befuddled students with grade problems can declare "academic bankruptcy" at Indiana University and return to school without a grade point deficit hanging over their heads.

and helped "humanize" higher education. The actual marks cannot be expunged from a transcript. But the one "bankrupt semester" allowed per student for any reason is not figured in their grade point average. School officials say the experimental program, now in its second semester, is a step toward eliminating all Ds and Fs and making the transcript a record of proficiency — not failure.

Dean Kenneth Gros Louis, 34-year-old originator of the program, said it indicates "a greater awareness of students as persons and the difficulties of living when you're between 17 and 22. "If leniency means humanizing an institution, then I'm all for it," he said. Most academically bankrupt students are freshmen with traditional problems of identity and orientation at a school that could be larger than their home town.

One exasperated freshman dropped out after four weeks to hitchhike to California. Four months later he returned to "bankrupt" the lost semester and score straight A's. "I wish I'd declared bankruptcy," said one pretty English major. "I ruined my grades and my love life. Now it's too late to patch up either."

A typical case is that of Harold Stafford, news editor of the Daily Student. Stafford declared bankruptcy after he crammed in too much journalism and not enough studying. "I simply worked too hard and when I realized it, it was too late," said the senior from South Bend. "Bankruptcy saved my grade point and chances for graduate school."

Prof. Gates Agnew, chairman of a committee reviewing the system, said he does not yet have conclusive statistics on whether "bankruptcy" is supporting a lame duck or allowing its wing to heal so it can take off and fly. "We're trying to find a bureaucratic way to avoid victimization of students without nurturing idleness and opening Pandora's Box," he said.

Soil And Water Care Does Pay

When the first colonists settled in America they found a land of great natural wealth. The pioneers had no idea that good farm land, forest and wildlife would ever become scarce. Some of the early farmers did practice good farming methods, but most of the farmers moved on to new land when their farms wore out. Some of the leaders became concerned about what was happening to the natural resources. Thomas Jefferson favored contour plowing to hold soil in place. George Washington worried about soil erosion on his Mount Vernon Estate. His workers dug mud from the shore of the Potomac River and used it to fill in eroded fields.

Farmers become cooperators in Soil and Water Conservation Districts to get technical assistance and to work out efficient farm conservation plans. More than 2,700 Soil and Water Conservation Districts in the United States attack Soil Erosion and Water Management on a community-wide basis. Special purpose organizations are created for carrying out small Watershed Projects. In regions where land is to be drained for farming a number of farmers may unite to form drainage districts.

The Pitt Soil and Water Conservation District located on the second floor in the Federal Building in Greenville will assist land users with Soil and Water Conservation plans. Individuals can do much to promote conservation. Special organizations work for conservation and help educate citizens in preventing waste and destruction of natural resources. Schools also play an important part in conservation by teaching young people it's importance. Some of the responsibility for conservation rests on local communities — the county, city, town. Citizens often band together in conservation districts for various purposes. These districts are assisted by state and federal governments.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 30, 1972

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a day to think about your overall and biggest ambitions, and then consider just what you need to do to make such a plan workable and to have success. You find you instinctively know the right answers, methods if you listen to hunches. ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Talk over with experts in the monetary world what it is you have in mind of a practical nature and make arrangements for a more prosperous future. Get bills paid so you build up credit. Have fun socially in p.m. TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get busy and improve your appearance and then gad about socially and make right contacts, business or personal. Group affairs are particularly fine. Stop letting that individual curb your style. GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You are inquisitive by nature and can now ferret out the information you want and need. Take more interest in whatever is of a romantic nature. Remember that all work and little play can lead to frustrations. MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Put aside dull routines and get out and see good pals you have been neglecting for a long time. Enjoy personal fun that relieves tensions. Show others you have a fine sense of humor. LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) If you express your views too strongly with one in high position you may find it reverberates where it really hurts. Get into that civic work that is just your cup of tea. Make a good showing and advance. VRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Get busy and plan that little trip that will bring you the results you want, either of a personal or business nature. Secure the facts you need just at this time. Use diplomacy in doing so, though. LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Forget that annoying situation that takes too much of your time and get busy doing whatever will help you advance more quickly. Iron out conditions with your associate. Make everything around you more charming. SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) See how business and personal matters can be improved. Talk over with associates later how to improve arrangements between you. Give as much attention as you can to any minor children you may have. Know what they are doing. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You can handle all those tasks ahead of you with the aid of fellow workers very well today. Take the treatments you need that will make you more dynamic. Avoid one who likes to downgrade you. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Think out how to have freedom from worry today and forget all those problems you have and enjoy fun with congenials. Take mate along with you and be happy. Handle only whatever is important in a.m. AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) See what you can do to make those who live with you much happier and stop being so concerned with own affairs. Do whatever will make everything at home run more efficiently. Avoid one who bickers too much. PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) The one who means the most to you can be very helpful in making your daily existence happier and more pleasurable now. You have wise ways for putting across your ideas now. Keep active and all is fine. IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those clever young people who will realize early that a safe investment that draws a fair interest is good for a long period of time, so start the education along lines of banking, finances, business and the like for excellent results throughout the lifetime. Early training in ethics and morality is fine so your youngster will not be tempted to go the wrong way. A very affectionate mate in this chart, and one who loves children. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU! Carroll Righter's Individual Forecast for your sign for September is now ready. For your copy send your birthdate and $1 to Carroll Righter Forecast (name of newspaper), Box 629, Hollywood, Calif. 90028. (c) 1972, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)
