Search Party Finds Plane Wreck And Two Bodies

By TOMMY FORREST
Reflector Staff Writer

NEW BERN—The wreckage of a lost single engine aircraft in which three persons were killed was located yesterday afternoon by members of a Civil Air Patrol search party.

Major Tom Wallace Civil Air Patrol mission co-ordinator of Wilmington said that the search for the "Beachcraft" single engine plane started early Saturday morning, but searchers were hampered by bad weather.

The burned remains of the downed craft were spotted from the air at approximately 3:15 p.m. yesterday afternoon in Jones County about three miles off runway number four of the New Bern airport.

Upon arriving at the scene, rescue workers found in the wreckage two of the three bodies. The third body was not immediately found. The passengers, whose names were being withheld pending notification of next of kin, were burned beyond recognition.

May End Terror

BELFAST (AP) — The Irish Republican Army was reported ready today to call off its bombing campaign against civilian targets in Northern Ireland and wage wider warfare against the British Army.

The switch in tactics was reported by sources close to the IRA's militant Provisional wing. They also reported a shakeup in the Provos' Belfast command, with the local commander, Seamus Twomey, being replaced by his more moderate No. 2, Gerry Adams.

An IRA defector, Maria McGuire, told the London Observer there was growing dissatisfaction with the bombing among the guerrillas.

And though the Provos' Dublin headquarters termed Miss McGuire's report "completely false and without foundation," other sources said the guerrillas, instead of bombing urban centers, will now step up their shooting war with the 21,000 troops in the province.

The removal of the bodies was hampered by the heavy wooded area in which the plane crashed.

The craft left White Plains, New York Friday with three passengers. As the plane approached New Bern, communications were turned over to the New Bern control center from the Washington Center. This exchange of communications was at approximately 8 p.m. Friday evening in bad weather.

Home Destroyed By Fire Sunday

The home of Mr and Mrs. Clarence Ray Holland in Shady Knoll Mobile Home Estates was totally destroyed by fire Sunday morning.

Staton House Fire Department received the alarm at 10:48 a.m., but was too late to save the mobile home or any of the Hollands' belongings.

The Hollands and their young daughter were visiting neighbors in the trailer park when the fire started. The cause has not been determined.

Federal Aviation Agency control center said that communications was lost with the plane within six minutes after the exchange. The plane was preparing to land at the New Bern Airport.

Major Wallace said that 24 planes, Civil Air Patrol crafts and civilian crafts aided in the search, with approximately 110 persons. Wallace also said that the Craven County Rescue Squad and Jones County Rescue Squad members were on hand. The CAP also received special help from the Cherry Point Air

Reveal Further Withdrawals

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. troop withdrawals in August beat President Nixon's Sept. 1 deadline and reduced the total of U.S. forces by nearly 2,000 toward his Dec. 1 target, the U.S. Command announced today.

U.S. troop strength in Vietnam dropped by 600 men in the last week of August to a total of 37,100, the Command said. The target had been 39,000, and the President last week set 27,000 as the U.S. troop level by Dec. 1.

Edith Irving Is Arrested By Switzerland's Police

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — Edith Irving, fighting tears after she was separated from her children, was arrested at Zurich Airport today as she arrived from New York to face Swiss charges arising from her part in her writer husband's hoax autobiography of Howard Hughes.

"I surrender to Swiss authorities because I hope and believe that I will be given a fair trial," she told reporters in a broken voice after alighting from the airliner with her two sons. "I hope the whole thing will be over soon."

Looking haggard, she said she hoped the children would be well taken care of during the time she would have to spend in custody.

"The best thing would be if I could keep them with me in jail," she added.

The two boys, aged 4 and 2, and their nurse had left in a police minibus before she met the press. Her Swiss lawyer, Dr. Peter Widmer, joined her in the ride to the office of Zurich's district attorney, Peter Veleff.

She was arrested on a Swiss warrant charging her with fraud and forgery in cashing—as "Helga R. Hughes"—$650,000 in checks given her husband by New York publisher McGraw-Hill and intended for the reclusive billionaire. Swiss authorities announced last Friday that most of the money has been returned to McGraw-Hill.

Mrs. Irving, 37, already has served two months in jail in the United States, pleading guilty to charges of complicity. Her husband, Clifford Irving, started a 2½-year term in the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., a week ago today.

Court sources here said it might take six months to a year before a decision is made on an indictment in her case. But officials have indicated she might be freed pending trial after investigators are satisfied there is no more danger of "collusion."

Under the Swiss penal code, conviction on fraud and forgery carries prison terms of up to five years.

There was no word on where the children were taken. Relatives of Mrs. Irving are living in a village about 80 miles from here.

Stabilization operates the price support program for bright leaf growers in all five producing states — Georgia, Florida, North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia.

Bond said the remaining stocks of old-crop tobacco held under loan total 391 million pounds, the lowest since 1961 when the stocks dipped to 376 million pounds.

Selling Stocks

RALEIGH (AP) — The FlueCured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp. has sold 266 million pounds of old-crop tobacco from government loan stocks since Jan. 1.

Fred G. Bond, general manager, reported Saturday that this is the largest total for any calendar year since the co-op was organized 26 years ago. Sales during August totaled 101 million pounds.

Food was trucked in and extra toilet facilities were under construction as many of the young fans spread into surrounding towns in search of food and a place to sleep.

Promoters Robert Alexander and Andrew Duncan said the food situation "is getting better," but held open the possibility of dropping food from helicopters.

Two of the headline groups scheduled to play, Joe Cocker and the Black Sabbath, looked at the crowd, demanded more money and refused to play.

The site is a 900-acre former farm pasture that was surrounded by water when the river's course shifted. It is located in Illinois, but the only access is a Posey County, Ind., road.

Voter Registration Set

The Pitt County Board of Elections will be open on the first floor of the Pitt County Court House Saturday from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. for persons to register for the November general election and for persons wishing to transfer their registration for one precinct to another.

Board of Elections chairman J. B. Spilman said in addition to the September 9 opening, registration books will also be opened on Saturday September 16, 23 and 30 for new registrations and transfers.

The Saturday opening schedule, Spilman said, is in addition to the regular week-day hours maintained by the board.

The board's office on the third floor of the court house, he explained, is opened each week day from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. for registration and transfer.

He explained that persons having moved from one precinct to another in the county since the previous election are required to have their registrations transferred to the precinct in which they are now living in order to be eligible to vote in the November 7 election.

Southern Governors Caution McGovern

By WILLIAM L. CHAZE
Associated Press Writer

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Dixie governors have told Sen. George McGovern he faces a steep uphill fight to carry the South against President Nixon—and may count on some of them to do no more than vote for the South Dakotan.

The Democratic presidential candidate met Sunday night for almost three hours—an hour longer than he had planned—with 15 of the governors at a private dinner held on the eve of the opening session of the Southern Governors Conference. He said afterwards he did not seek endorsements and received none.

North Carolina Gov. Bob Scott, however, a vocal critic of McGovern at the Democratic National Convention, announced later that he would serve as chairman of McGovern's Tar Heel campaign.

South Carolina Gov. John West, previously a fence-sitter, said he would vote for the ticket. But, he added, "My recommendation is that each voter study the issues and the candidates and make his decision according to the dictates of his own conscience."

With his faint endorsement, West joined a growing list of Southern governors who say they could do no more for McGovern than cast a Democratic ballot. Making similar statements after the meeting were Govs. Warren Hearnes of Missouri, Jimmy Carter of Georgia, and Dale Bumbers of Arkansas.

Some of the Democratic governors interviewed after the meeting — Bill Waller of Mississippi, for one—said they had not yet made up their minds whether they could even vote for McGovern.

McGovern made no speech to the governors. Hearnes, who has bitterly criticized McGovern for dumping Sen. Thomas Eagleton of Missouri as his running mate, said no issues were discussed. He said the conversation focused on organization.

The senator's only public remarks of the evening came when he held a brief news conference before flying on to Akron and Dayton, Ohio, on his first post-convention campaign tour. He said he would not concede any states to Nixon and promised to return for more campaigning in the South.

Expected 50,000 Fans; 275,000 Showed Up For Three-Day Bash

BULL ISLAND, Ill. (AP) — Promoters of a rock music festival on this peninsula in the Wabash River wrestled with problems caused by a crowd five times larger than they had expected today and extended the three-day bash into tonight.

Indiana State Police estimated the crowd at 275,000. A spokesman for promoters said only 50,000 had been anticipated.

The spokesman said 25,000 advance tickets were sold at $20 each and about 5,000 tickets were sold at the gate for $25 each. The rest of the crowd was listed as gatecrashers, many of them swimming to the island.

Food was trucked in and extra toilet facilities were under construction as many of the young fans spread into surrounding towns in search of food and a place to sleep.

Promoters Robert Alexander and Andrew Duncan said the food situation "is getting better," but held open the possibility of dropping food from helicopters.

Two of the headline groups scheduled to play, Joe Cocker and the Black Sabbath, looked at the crowd, demanded more money and refused to play.

The site is a 900-acre former farm pasture that was surrounded by water when the river's course shifted. It is located in Illinois, but the only access is a Posey County, Ind., road.

The festival originally was to end about 6 p.m. EST, today, but the promoters promised Sunday night to continue at least two hours later "because more groups came and people wanted to play."

Jim Reis, owner of a catering service from nearby Evansville, Ind., said one of his eight vans here was wrecked by hungry crowds Sunday morning.

Meanwhile, the massive congregation was a financial boon to surrounding businessmen. A restaurant in neighboring Poseyville, Ind., stayed open all night to sell food, and Poseyville grocer J.L. Hirsch reported business up 25 per cent Sunday, when he's normally closed.

Indiana State Police said some 50 persons have been arrested for illegal possession of alcohol and narcotics while going to and from the site. State police from both Indiana and Illinois and sheriff's deputies have kept watch from the banks of the river, but have not patrolled the island itself.

Authorities said the crowd generally has been well-behaved, but said drug use was open.

Illinois State Police said the biggest problem was cars parked bumper-to-bumper along the only access road to the island and massive traffic congestion on Interstate 64 and U.S. 460.

Fischer And Spassky Get More Good News; Money Is Released

LONDON (AP) — Bobby Fischer and Boris Spassky got some more good news today. They are getting the $122,500 in prize money British financier James D. Slater is putting up in any currency they want.

Slater announced today that the Bank of England has granted permission to export the 50,000 pounds he offered when Fischer was balking at starting world chess championship match in Iceland. Because of Britain's current economic troubles, currency transfers abroad are tightly controlled.

Fischer's share from Slater is $76,562.50. He got $78,125 from the Icelandic Chess Federation, making his total purse as the winner and new world's chess champion $154,687.50.

Slater said Fischer had asked that his share be paid to his account in an Icelandic bank. Apparently he wants to keep it away from promoter Chester Fox, who is suing him in New York for $1.75 million because Fischer wouldn't let him film the match. Spassky gets $45,937.50 from Slater. With what the Icelanders paid him, the loser's purse came to $92,812.50.

The total prize money of $247,500 was more than 12 times the largest previous purse—$20,000 in 1921 for the match in Havana between Emanuel Lasker and Jose Raul Capablanca.

The chess event of the century ended Sunday night in Reykjavik with a Viking-style banquet for which Fischer arrived late and played chess. Spassky was all smiles, and guests in evening clothes ate their dinners on cafeteria trays.

Shouts and bravos from exuberant Icelanders resounded through the hall, and for once the new world champion didn't complain about the noise.

The $22-a-ticket party thrown for 1,200 persons by the Icelandic Chess Federation began with speeches and ended after midnight with dancing.

Fischer, as usual, was late—and the crowd had to wait 50 minutes for him to appear so they could start on grilled mountain lamb and barbecued suckling pig, cooked on spits over charcoal fires.

There was Viking Sauce, which turned out to be brown gravy, and Viking blood, which was red wine served in hornshaped glasses.

Fischer gte quickly signed some autographs, then whipped out a pocket chess set and spent the evening analyzing variations, while crowds around his table gaped.

He and Spassky spent half an hour dissecting the final position of their 21st and last game. Some of the other grandmasters had thought Spassky's resignation was premature, but the world's No. 1 player and its No. 2 player seemed to agree that it has been a Fischer win all along.

Fischer interrupted his chess long enough to go up to the stage where the games had been played and collect a laurel wreath, a gold medal and $78,125 for winning. He grinned shyly and looked uncomfortable.

Spassky, choking back smiles, got a bigger and more sympathetic hand from the crowd. He also collected a loser purse of $46,875 or $45,475 more than he got when he won the title three years ago.

Spassky left the party early. Shortly before midnight, Fischer put away his chess set and got up to dance with a lovely blonde.

Central Highland Camp Overrun By Assault

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese forces overran a ranger camp in the Central Highlands today, and about 150 of the defenders were reported missing.

The border camp was defended by an estimated 200 men, most of them Montagnard tribesmen trained by the U.S. Green Berets who once ran the camp. Field reports said 54 of the rangers had been accounted for, and it was believed a number of the others had escaped and would turn up at other government posts later.

The Plei Djering camp had been surrounded and under artillery siege since Saturday. Its only two 105mm howitzers were damaged in the initial attacks, and it could not return the artillery fire.

The local interviews will begin in the Greenville areas on September 5.

Hundreds of rounds of 130mm artillery shells, rockets and mortars hit the base before a ground assault before dawn finished it off.

The U.S. Command announced the loss of three helicopters in other areas of the Central Highlands and said two Americans were killed and 10 were injured in the crashes.

Hundreds of South Vietnamese rangers also began a new drive into southern Cambodia, seeking to block North Vietnamese infiltration into the western Mekong Delta. But only light, scattered fighting was reported.

Typhoon Elsie hit south Vietnam's northern coastline after bringing U.S. air operations to a virtual standstill on Sunday.

With gusts up to 80 miles an hour, Elsie moved inland more than 50 miles below Da Nang and began losing steam in the mountains to the west. It dumped several inches of rain on Da Nang and the coastal region. There were no immediate reports of casualties or damage.

The U.S. 7th Fleet as a precaution kept all its planes aboard the carriers in the Tonkin Gulf Sunday, and no missions were flown in North or South Vietnam for the first time in months, spokesmen said.

The Navy reported that air operations had resumed Monday but gave no details. A spokesman for the 7th Air Force said its operations also were seriously curtailed Sunday.

Air Force said that on Saturday its F4 Phantoms wrecked one of North Vietnam's biggest air bases, at Phuc Yen, 10 miles northwest of Hanoi, and shot down a MIG19 interceptor that challenged the raiders.

The storm did not affect the Air Force's high-altitude B52 bombers, which on Sunday and Monday flew 15 strikes against targets in the demilitarized zone and the southern part of North Vietnam and another 60 in South Vietnam around Quang Tri City, the Que Son Valley, in the central highlands and 30 to 40 miles north of Saigon.

Ground fighting was reported for the second day at Tien Phuoc, 10 miles south of the Que Son Valley. Viet Cong troops were trying to seize a hilltop strongpoint overlooking the town, and militiamen defending the town have been reinforced.

In the Que Son Valley, South Vietnamese forces occupied positions on two hills at Fire Base Ross, but the North Vietnamese still control Ross and are entrenched in well fortified positions, field reports said.

North of the Saigon area, South Vietnamese forces pushing toward the enemy held Quan Loi airfield east of An Loc clashed with an estimated 400 North Vietnamese and claimed 111 of them were killed, but only 14 weapons were reported captured. Six South Vietnamese were killed and 37 were wounded, the Saigon command said.

Area Survey Of Voting Attitudes

During the next few weeks, two University of Michigan political scientists will be conducting a study of the attitudes, opinions, and voting preferences of United States citizens in this area and elsewhere throughout the United States. This is the eleventh in a series of Presidential and Congressional election studies conducted since 1948 by the Survey Research Center, a research division of The University of Michigan.

Survey Research Center interviewers Mrs. Clara Moyer Shakell and Mrs. Virginia Lansche, both interviewers from the University of Michigan, will be asking questions about such current subjects as the Vietnam War, the cost of living, and perceptions and attitudes toward the political parties and their presidential candidates. Results of previous election studies have been published in books, in nationally distributed magazines, and in professional journals.

The Survey Research Center collects information on political, social, and economic opinions in 75 areas scattered throughout the United States. Interviewers will contact residents at about 2,600 addresses which are chosen scientifically to provide an accurate cross section of the American people. The overall planning and direction of the study are the responsibility of Professor Warren Miller of the University of Michigan's Center for Political Studies.

Results of the interviews will be analyzed and published in statistical form. Findings are never identified with any individual person or address. Such reports have proven of great value to government officials, businessmen, economists, and educators who seek a better understanding of the conditions and opinions existing in the United States today.

The local interviews will begin in the Greenville areas on September 5.

Lightning Causes Rash Of Brush, Timber Fires

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Thunderstorms in the Northern California mountains have raised the number of lightning-caused brush and timber fires in the state to more than 1,000 in the last seven days, forestry officials say.
More than 750 fires have occurred since last Monday in the 17 national forests, Jerry Gause, U.S. Forest Service information officer, said Sunday. The figure was increased by fires in state-guarded lands.
A new rash of small fires resulted from storms Sunday night, and weather forecasters said the electrical storms would continue through Tuesday night.

Upward of 200 lightning-caused fires—most of them small—occurred during the weekend in sparsely populated areas in Trinity, Shasta, Plumas, Siskiyou, Modoc and Lassen counties. Both Klamath National Forest and Plumas National Forest had more than 50 such fires going Sunday.
No structures were believed involved in any of the fires.
Gause said the worst national forest fires were in Klamath, west of Yreka, where one 70-acre blaze and five 20-acre fires still had not been controlled Sunday night.

Overhanging smoke made it difficult to get helicopter firefighters into otherwise inaccessible areas and to use air tanker planes effectively, Gause said.
Strong, erratic winds handicapped a Sunday night battle against a 20-acre forest fire in the Shasta range north of Eastman Lake.
A 30-acre blaze in Trinity National Forest near Weaverville resulted from a Sunday night storm.
At Susanville the Lassen-Modoc state Division of Forestry reported that fires in the White Horse Mountain area 20 miles northwest of Bieber Sunday night were too numerous to count.

At least 15 fires were being fought Sunday in the area near Bieber, the largest of which was brought under control in the Coyote Reservoir region after scorching 125 acres.

Town Swept By Flash Flood; Two Men Dead

HILLSBORO, N.M. (AP) — A flash flood which sent a destructive wall of water through this tiny village has left two persons dead and six missing.
Two other persons were injured when a house collapsed during the flood Sunday.
Guadalupe Terrazas, in his late 60s, died in his adobe home when the water tore out a wall and the roof fell in, burying him under debris. He lived alone in the house, near Percha Creek, which became a wild river fed by flood waters between midnight and 1 a.m. Sunday. The creek runs through the middle of town, near and parallel to the main street.

It had been raining in the area most of the week, and heavy rains fell Saturday night.
Ed Newton, 59, of nearby Truth or Consequences, the other victim, had been in Hillsboro, a community of about 300, to play for a Saturday night dance.
"We were just getting ready to go home," said his wife, Geneva. "He was across the street and had just started up the car, to go to the corner, turn around and get me. It was just barely sprinkling and then it came just in a flash."
"The cars in front of him and behind him were swept away. There were other cars on the opposite side of the street swept away, but I didn't see them. It was just pretty dark."

She watched her husband and car disappear in the water and darkness.
The car was found later in the day, about two miles east of Hillsboro, upside down in water and filled with sand. Newton's body was found six miles east of the village, along the path of the creek, by a National Guard helicopter crew.
Undersheriff Charlie Cox said, "There must have been a wall of water 15 to 20 feet high at its worst, from the evidence."
He said the six missing persons, whose identities were not immediately available, included "a couple of boys who came through and wanted a place to stay, so they put them up in the fire house. We couldn't find them. They might have gone outside when the water went into the fire house," which is on the main street that was under up to four feet of water during the crest of the flood.

The other four missing were in a family that had been camping near the creek.

Study Tour In October

About 40 eastern North Carolinians will leave Raleigh Oct. 7 for a week in New York and Washington.
While there, they will meet with representatives from the United Nations to study international problems, worship at the famed Riverside Church, attend at least one Broadway play meet with senators and congressmen concerning national and state concerns, and attend an event at the new John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts. Transportation will be by a chartered, rest-room equipped bus.
The Rev. Charles M. Smith, associate pastor of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, is leading the tour for the second year.

He announced that space is available for any interested adult or high school student, regardless of denomination. "An agency of the North Carolina Conference of The United Methodist Church is sponsoring this study tour," Smith said, "but the Church Center for the United Nations urges us to recruit groups that are were successful in achieving this mixture last fall and it contributed greatly to the success of that initial effort. We are anxious to attract Baptists, Presbyterians, Episcopalians, Christians and others as well as United Methodists again this year."
The complete cost of the study tour, excluding meals, tips, and incidentals, is $125. Registrations must be in by Sept. 15. For further information, contact Rev. Smith at Jarvis Memorial Church, 752-3101.

San Francisco Visit For Nixon

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — President Nixon is scheduled to fly here Tuesday to plug the Golden Gate National Recreation Area which his administration proposed eight months ago as part of its environmental program.
The precise time and place of his speech will not be announced until Tuesday morning, but a spokesman said it will be in the afternoon in or near the Presidio at the south end of the Golden Gate Bridge.
Separate bills are before the House and in Senate committee to create the area, which would gather federal, state, county and private lands into a coordinated system of recreational areas stretching from Pt. Reyes National Seashore down the coast to the Golden Gate.

Claims Klan Has Teen Campaign

ATLANTA Ga. (AP) — The head of the National Knights of the Ku Klux Klan says the group is holding a nationwide membership campaign aimed at teen-agers.
Imperial Wizard James Venable said efforts are being made to get "lots" of young people and that in Ohio recently more than 200 were signed up.
Venable told newsmen at the group's annual Labor Day rally at nearby Stone Mountain during the weekend that "we're trying to get them indoctrinated to Americanism."
Attending the rally were about 200 men and women from various parts of the country.

We Should Expect 'New Agnew'

However one feels about Vice President Spiro T. Agnew it is a certainty that he will project a new image during the next four years.

The vice president said as much following his nomination for re-election in Miami.

"I was distressed at the generalized identity that I received as a vice presidential candidate (1968) and as a campaigner in 1970," Agnew stated. "I'd like to obliterate that. And so to that extent, if I seem conciliatory, it's because I am."

Agnew even went so far as to term a mistake his use of the word "radlib", which inflamed the liberals and pleased the conservatives. He was conciliatory towards the press, which has often come in for criticism from the vice president. He said he had no desire to make his criticism of the mass media a "campaign issue . . . between the media and me."

It was virtually predictable that Agnew would project a new image at this point. He was given a definite role to play during the 1968 campaign and had the assignment of delivering the slashing attacks for the administration since that time.

Now with the 1972 campaign shaping up as it is, it appears that there will be no need for strong words and indeed, they would be a mistake in the Nixon campaign.

As vice president, Agnew will, of course, be a prime prospect for the Republican presidential nomination in 1976. Thus the administration will allow him more freedom in project his ideas so that he can make his own way in the four years ahead.

Agnew has won the hearts of the conservatives. During the four years ahead he will no doubt attempt to win over the moderates and some liberals in order to form a broad base of support for the 1976 nomination.

It will take quite a change in his image, but it has been done before in politics.

Post Office Liked 'Maggie'

By STEVE PRESSLEY
(The Waynesville Mountaineer)

MAGGIE, N.C. — A few years after the turn of the century, a letter came to the boarded log residence of 'Uncle Jack' Setzer addressed "Maggie, N.C."

Maggie Mae, Setzer's 12-year-old daughter, ran behind the rock chimney of the house and cried.

"Children get funny ideas," she relates today, "and I thought my first name — Maggie — was just awful. As a matter of fact, I just about had everybody trained to call me 'Mae,' when that letter with the horrible-sounding address came."

Maggie, now Mrs. Maggie Mae Setzer Pylant of Corpus Christi, Tex., said she had no idea her father had submitted her name to postal officials in Washington as a possible title for the little post office he was setting up in his home on upper Jonathan Creek — now Maggie Valley.

The valley, in the early 1900's, bore little resemblance to the almost unbroken strip of tourist attractions which bears Maggie's name today.

"Though we had a close neighbor," said Mrs. Pylant, "the valley as a whole was very thinly populated."

Their Own P. O. She added that when timber interests began to move into the community, 'Uncle Jack' — himself a timber estimator — decided that it was time folks had their own post office, convenient and accessible.

The Setzers and their neighbors had for years been trekking to the Plott community post office, but that was a five-mile walk or ride on horseback. And people only journeyed down to Plott about once a week.

So Setzer obtained permission to operate a post office in his home, and he submitted as his suggestions for the post office's name the names of his three daughters and the name of Jonathan Creek. Washington officials looked over the list of "Cora," "Mettie," "Maggie," and "Jonathan Creek," and they settled on "Maggie."

Maggie Mae's dismay at the use of the name she didn't like contrasted with the indifference of her classmates and friends. "Nobody was very excited about it; they just took it for granted," she said.

Settled In Texas At 16 years of age, Maggie Mae was the first postmistress of Maggie Post Office. Two years later she married Ira Moody Pylant, a millwright, and began a series of moves with him that took her into six states, finally settling in Corpus Christi. "All my children are Texans," she vowed.

Maggie Valley was never called that until Maggie Mae left home. By that time, Mrs. Pylant reasons, people had looked at their postmark long enough to feel comfortable calling their community by her name.

A lot has happened to the once peaceful little valley since Maggie left as the bride of Ira Pylant. There is, for example, a five-lane highway where once there was only a horse trail.

Two-lane US 19 makes travel to Cherokee a hop, skip, and jump, whereas travel to the Indian village was so difficult in the early days of the century that Maggie never went there before she was an adult.

"We'd see the Cherokees pass through with their baskets to sell in Waynesville and their babies on their backs," she remembered, "but I never went to the village."

And what the Setzers called "Buck Mountain" is now known all over the Southeast as "Ghost Mountain."

Maggie Guides Tourists The entire valley is now characterized by restaurants, gifts shops and motels and cottages. Everywhere there are signs that read, "Maggie Sez..." something about where to go or stay or eat.

The real-life Miss Maggie likes the looks of it. "I don't think the valley's beauty has been destroyed by all this development," she said. "I think it's been improved."

The Maggie Valley Chamber of Commerce thinks so, too, and recently the chamber honored the little woman whose face has for many years been hidden by the "Maggie Sez" sun-bonnets.

Coaxing by Mrs. Edith P. Alley, the chamber's secretary-treasurer, persuaded Mrs. Pylant, for the first time in a dozen years, to come home to her valley.

For the program at the Maggie Chamber of Commerce's annual banquet, Congressman Roy A. Taylor was the speaker and Miss Maggie told the story of "How Daddy Named Our Valley."

And the girl who wanted to be called Mae now is satisfied with Maggie. Sez Maggie, "I just think it's a beautiful name."

Strange Story Of G.G. Liddy

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — G. Gordon Liddy, a central figure in the squalid Watergate case, was fired by the Treasury Department in July 1971 for insubordinate, unauthorized conduct on gun controls—and immediately found a cozy haven in the White House.

The official Nixon administration version of this strange story, both then and now, is that this was nothing but a routine transfer.

In fact, however, high Treasury officials were flabbergasted and furious when they learned the man they had fired quickly landed a coveted staff job on the White House Domestic Council. From there, Liddy went to the Nixon reelection committee—and subsequent notoriety—without ever having his troubles at the Treasury aired.

This background points up two important facts about Liddy who was fired from the reelection committee June 28 when he refused to answer Federal agents' questions about the June 17 break-in at the plush Watergate's Democratic national headquarters:

First, Liddy has a record of free-wheeling without regard for the desires of his superiors; second, he has been protected and supported by senior officials at the White House and has their blessing to this day.

Liddy came to the Treasury in 1969 with a background in law enforcement and right-wing politics in upstate New York. As assistant district attorney in Dutchess County, ex-FBI agent Liddy ran for Congress in 1968 as a law-and-order candidate. Defeated in the Republican primary by Hamilton Fish, Liddy then ran an inactive campaign as a Conservative party nominee. His 9,000 votes nearly defeated Fish.

Nevertheless, freshman Rep. Fish endorsed Liddy's application for a job at the Treasury and so did other Republican politicians. Because of those endorsements and his 1968 role as Dutchess County chairman for Nixon-Agnew, Liddy was hired by Assistant Secretary Eugene Rossides as a special assistant.

Although Nixon administration sources now claim Rossides brought Liddy into the Treasury, the fact is they did not even meet until 1969.

Liddy quickly balked at taking orders, particularly when it came to politically volatile gun-control legislation. Rossides was trying to regulate the lethal "Saturday night special" pistols. But Liddy, an ardent gun fancier himself, was marching to a different drummer. High Treasury officials were angered when Liddy conferred privately and without authorization on gun controls with White House and Justice Department officials as well as anti-gun-control lobbyists from the National Rifle Assn. (NRA).

The last straw was the 100th anniversary convention of the NRA here April 4, 1971, when Liddy—without authorization or approval—delivered a speech praising NRA goals and indicating a helping hand against gun controls by the Nixon administration.

His Treasury superiors outraged, that was the end of Liddy there. But he suffered not a day of unemployment. While in the Treasury, Liddy had worked closely with Egil (Bud) Krogh, top aide to White House domestic policy chief John Ehrlichman. Without even checking the Treasury, the White House elevated Liddy on July 19, 1971, to the lofty reaches of Ehrlichman's office, working under Krogh.

Ehrlichman told us this week he was not aware of Liddy's problems at the Treasury. Krogh would not talk to us but relayed word that he, too, was unaware of the gun-control difficulty.

When the Nixon reelection committee opened up in late 1971, Krogh recommended Liddy as committee counsel. The campaign officials soon encountered the difficulties experienced by the Treasury: Liddy did not follow orders. Routine political assignments went undone.

But nobody in the Nixon campaign structure ever gets fired for such reasons. Liddy was shunted off to Nixon fund-raising operations headed by Marucci Stans, and there he found a happy home, establishing an intimate relationship with Stans which flourished until the Watergate caper.

But oddest of all in the strange case of G. Gordon Liddy are stubborn attempts WASHINGTON — The man who came into the office was dressed strangely, even by today's standards. He had on a dirty gray toga tied with a piece of rope, scuffed sandals and he was carrying a lamp.

"Are you crazy?" I asked. "This is an election year." "I was told it wouldn't be easy," he replied. "Have you any ideas?"

"Well, I guess you had better start at the White House. You never can tell what you'll find over there." He came back 15 minutes later. "They wouldn't let me in."

To The Editor: My wife and I were guests in the Holiday Inn at Greenville on the morning of August 23rd having previously arrived there the afternoon of August 22nd on a business trip.

At 4:00 A.M. she was awakened with severe chest pains and shortness of breath. Knowing her condition of high blood pressure, I rushed her to the emergency room of Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

We were met by the presiding staff who gave my wife immediate attention to make her more comfortable. The resident doctor ordered an E.K.G. and called in Doctor Rand for consultation and treatment.

Doctor Rand explained to us that further stay and treatment was necessary to her health. My wife was admitted to the I.C.U. for treatment and monitoring. She was made as comfortable as possible under the prevailing conditions.

Due to the efficiency of the hospital staff, this took less than two hours. We are glad to report that my wife's condition was not as serious as at first suspected, and two days later she was dismissed from the hospital.

We feel had she not been given the immediate treatment and care it would have resulted in a much worse situation. We shall always be grateful to the Pitt Memorial Hospital, and its staff; not only for its efficiency but for the courteous manner in which we, as strangers were treated.

This means to us that "Southern Hospitality" is very much still alive and that the people of Greenville should be proud of its fine Hospital, and its fine staff.

Our Thanks also go to the nice people at the Holiday Inn who were so concerned over our misfortune.

"I was afraid of that," I said. "Well, why don't you go to the Capitol? I'm sure among all the senators and congressmen, you'll find what you're looking for."

He came back the next day discouraged. "What happened?"

"When I told them at the door what I was doing, they made me check my lamp."

"Good heavens! You really are having a tough time of it. Why don't you go over to the Pentagon? Out of 20,000 employees they have to have one honest man."

He reported back in the afternoon. "I went to the Public Information Office and asked if they could direct me to an honest man, and they said that was classified information. When I protested that finding one couldn't harm anyone they said, 'There is nothing the enemy would like to know more than who the one honest man at the Pentagon is.'"

Game Needs Fischer

By MARIAN FOX
Associated Press Writer
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — "What the game of checkers needs is a controversial, temperamental, barnstorming guy like (Bobby) Fischer. Most people take this game tongue-in-cheek, but checkers is quite a deep game."

Burke Grandjean, American Federation of Checkers official, made those comments as the National Checker Championship ended Saturday with the crowning of its first grand slam winner, Walter Hellman, a 56-year-old steel worker from Gary, Ind.

The bespectacled Hellman may not be a "controversial, temperamental, barnstorming guy" but he is a consummate master of his game, and his pride in checkers is equal to Fischer's in chess.

Checkers "is a much more scientific and profound game" than chess, said Hellman, who defeated Everett Fuller of Springfield, Mo., for the crown.

"There are positions on the checker board no chess player can ever figure out," he said.

For his feat, the 40-year veteran of the game takes home a 3-foot trophy and a cash prize Bobby Fischer might wink at—$650.

Besides the U.S. Open at Memphis, which is considered the world title, Hellman won this year the Florida Open at St. Petersburg in February, the Southern States Open in Asheville, N.C., in July, and the Northern States Open in Lake-side, Ohio in August.

The total purse for the four tournaments is $1,500. Hellman said he also plays chess, but not in tournaments. Fuller's loss dropped him to third place. Elbert Lowder of Sanford, N.C., moved into the second slot.

Saturday's title match was played before about 30 persons and lasted approximately seven hours, ending at 1 p.m. George Parker, at 19 the youngest player in the AFC, won the minors championship and the $55 trophy that goes with it. Tony Bishop of Hickory Valley, Tenn., finished second.

Robert Butler of Knoxville, Tenn., won $210 and a trophy for winning the majors division, with Ed King of Graham, Tex., placing second in that division.

Strength For Today

THAT CERTAIN HARVEST Our Lord's Disciples were very much concerned — as we are — about the presence in the world of so much evil in the midst of a considerable amount of good. Why allow this evil to mar this good? Why not get tough? Why not use the knife or the ax or anything else necessary to rip things apart, tear out the evil and cast it aside?

When the disciples asked Jesus what to do about the problem of good and evil abiding side by side in the world he told them a parable of a man who had sowed good grain only to have it fouled by weed seeds strewn at night by a hateful enemy. Of course everyone advised pulling up the weeds at once. But the wise householder said, "Let both grow until the harvest."

Wide Impact From Korea Talks

By R. M. SORGE
UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The outcome of the talks between South and North Korean Red Cross delegations currently under way will have considerable influence on the U.N. General Assembly's attitude toward the Korean question, diplomatic sources say.

In its forthcoming 27th session, the Assembly will have to decide whether about 40,000 U.S. troops stationed in South Korea should remain under the United Nations flag or whether the world organization should scrap its entire involvement in the peninsula.

At present, the 132-member United Nations is expected to defer the issue for another year, as it did in its last session, in spite of a strong effort by African and Socialist nations to bring it to the floor.

Nevertheless, there will be a Korean debate, first in the Assembly's 25-member steering committee and then in the plenary, when the deferral is decided in the early stages of the session, which starts Sept. 19.

New Approach Proposed Only if both North and South Korea should indicate their desire to continue the status quo until their dialogue leads to agreement, could the assembly be expected not to touch on the Korean items on its agenda.

By the time the Assembly meets, it will be possible to judge how the two Korean Red Cross delegations can get along around the negotiating table in the talks which opened last Wednesday in the North Korean capital of Pyongyang. They will be continued on Sept. 13 in South Korea's capital of Seoul—only six days before the assembly convenes.

As far back as July a group—of 13 African nations led by Algeria proposed a new approach to the Korean question and placed a separate item on the Assembly's agenda under the title: "Creation of Favorable Conditions to Accelerate the Independent and Peaceful Reunification of Korea."

In a vaguely worded accompanying memorandum the group indicated that its main concern was the termination of the U.N.'s involvement in Korea and that the presence of U.S. troops in the South was secondary as long as the U.N. label is removed, the withdrawal of these troops from Korea remained, however, in the longrange demands of the Africans who acted with consent and encouragement of the North Korean government.

Moscow Backs Algerian Move China was first believed to be the main stimulant of the Algerian proposal. But last week, North Korean Foreign Minister Ho Dam had the Soviet Union circulate a statement on behalf of his government in the United Nations that expressly sanctioned the Algerian initiative and demanded that Pyongyang be allowed to participate in the Assembly's Korean debate.

Although the U.N. involvement in Korea is not likely to change in the impending Assembly session, the long-range outlook for maintaining the status quo is not favorable. In the view of informed diplomats here, the new detente in Asia created by the U.S. and Japanese approach with China coupled with the Korean dialogue will lead to a situation where U.N. decisions dating back to the 1950-53 Korean war can no longer be upheld.

Killed Mother 'Hallucinating'

INDIALANTIC, Fla. (AP) — "I forgive my son for what he did, and she would too," said Roy Styers, who returned home from a fishing trip and found the bloodsoaked body of his murdered wife.

Styers, whose 57-year-old wife Betty was killed when her head was battered with a claw hammer, added that his son "is a good man who didn't know what he was doing."

Officers said shortly after the killing Saturday, 26-year-old Arthur E. Styers rushed into the Indialantic police station on Florida's Atlantic coast and said he wanted to report an emergency.

"I may have killed my mother but I am not sure," the young Styers told dispatcher Neil Chancellor. "I am taking drugs and I think I am hallucinating."

Chancellor said the younger Styers burst into tears as he pleaded, "Please, call this number and find out for me if it is a hallucination."

The officer dialed the Styers' home and discovered it was no hallucination.

"He killed my wife, he's gone crazy," said the older Styers, who had just arrived home and found his wife's body.

Sgt. Nick Ball of the Brevard County Sheriff's Department said young Styers was transferred from County Jail Sunday to the psychiatric ward of the Florida Hospital in Orlando after he reportedly beat his head against the bars in his cell.

His father blamed the tragedy on an accident several months ago in which Arthur suffered serious head injuries.

He said his had been undergoing psychiatric treatment at the Wuesthoff Memorial Hospital in Rockledge, Fla.

"His mother finally talked him into taking the pills during the last three days," Styers said. "For some reason he became more despondent and we couldn't do much with him."

He said doctors wanted to have the son committed to a hospital but he and his wife objected. "We thought it was better to have him home with us."

The father added, "Arthur called me last night to say he was sorry. My son is a good man."

Sheriff's Sgt. George Ashlock said that the son was charged with first-degree murder.

Volpe Says World Must Close Doors To All Skyjackers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Delegates from 17 nations today heard U.S. Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe say that sky piracy will end "when the doors of welcome are universally slammed on hijackers across the world."

Speaking at the opening meeting of the legal subcommittee of the International Civil Aviation Organization—ICAO—Volpe stressed "the need for a treaty for international action against countries which fail to adequately discourage hijackings to their soil."

"The hijacker today is a man on the run," Volpe said. "It remains for you to give him no place to run, no place to hide."

"Piracy on the high seas came to an end when the ports of call were closed to countries plunderers of ships. Piracy on the skies will die the same death when the doors of welcome are universally slammed on hijackers across the world."

The United States, with Canadian backing, wants the subcommittee to consider an international airline boycott of countries which fail to prosecute or extradite hijackers, or which do not return hijacked passengers and crews.

A similar proposal was turned down by the ICAO last year. However, it called for a new treaty after a wave of hijackings last June prompted a one-day protest strike by pilots in several countries.

The ICAO is the United Nations agency with jurisdiction in civil aviation matters at the international level.

The United States argues a joint international suspension of air service to countries which do not discourage hijackings would have better results than boycotts by individual countries.

Some Arab states are in opposition to the U.S.-Canadian proposal, apparently because they believe it is aimed at them. The Soviet Union also has objected on grounds that international sanctions are a subject for the U.S. Security Council.

Work on the treaty is expected to take about two weeks, after which it would be submitted to the full legal committee and then to the ICAO Council itself in November.

Big Art Theft

MONTREAL (AP) — Eighteen paintings, including a Rembrandt worth about $1 million, some jewelry and some figurines were taken early today from the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts by three men.

A museum spokesman said the total value of the art treasures is $2 million to $3 million, although a full inventory of what was stolen had not been completed.

Police had earlier said the loot might have been worth up to $5 million.

The museum spokesman said the men entered the downtown museum through a skylight about 2 a.m. and overpowered a guard on the second floor. Two other watchmen heard the scuffling and rushed up to investigate.

They too were overpowered and all three guards were bound and gagged and put into a conference room.

The stolen Rembrandt was a 10-by 15-inch work entitled Landscape with Cottage.

Police were alerted to watch for a panel truck containing three men, described as very dangerous.

The watchmen described two of the three as long-haired men about 5 feet, 6 inches tall.

Another Speed Trap On River

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP) — Foggy-night speedsters on the St. Marys River beware! The U.S. Coast Guard is setting up another speed trap.

Water-watching Coast Guard traffic patrols are already using riflescopes to check the speed of freighters running during the day. Now they've got orders in for an infra-red one—similar to ones used to spot night snipers in Vietnam—to catch midnight skulkers floating faster than the posted limit.

Although the scopes currently being used work on bright nights, fast floating freighters occasionally manage to sneak through on foggy ones.

The speed limit varies from 8 to 17 miles per hour at various points along the river connecting Lake Huron and Lake Superior.

The Coast Guard said they've handed out 80 speeding tickets using the regular scope since the speed trap was set up in April.

Grandmother Helps Disarm A Gunman

DESTIN, Fla. (AP) — A 59-year-old grandmother says she helped disarm a gunman who walked into a crowded restaurant after allegedly shooting and wounding the owner.

"I grabbed the rifle and held it up in the air," Lil Shirah said Sunday. "He tried to take it out of my hands but I had a death grip on it."

An Okaloosa County Sheriff Department spokesman later identified the gunman as Albert E. Williams, 42, of Destin. The spokesman said Williams was charged with assault with intent to commit murder in connection with the shooting of businessman Bernarr Kelly Saturday night.

Kelly, 37, who owns several charter fishing boats, a construction firm and The Wharf restaurant in this Gulf Coast resort town, was listed in critical condition Sunday night in a Pensacola hospital. Police said he was shot in the head in a dispute over the firing of a first mate on one of his fishing boats.

Before entering the restaurant, police said Williams had fired two shots through the window of Kelly's nearby Boat Service office, then walked into the office and shot Kelly when he and another employe walked toward Williams to try to calm him.

Williams' son, Donny, 18, was fired several hours before the incident from the job he held as first mate aboard one of Kelly's fishing boats.

Mrs. Shirah, assistant manager of the restaurant, said she was standing in the middle of the floor looking for tables to seat a long line of patrons when the gunman walked in.

The grandmother of three said she asked if she could help him, and he replied he was "looking for Jack."

Then the man pointed the rifle down a row of occupied tables, she said.

Mrs. Shirah said she charged the gunman and grabbed the rifle.

She said she held onto the gun until Jimmy Trammel, a boat worker, rushed through the door and disarmed the man.

Before entering the restaurant, police said Williams had fired two shots through the window of Kelly's nearby Boat Service office, then walked into the office and shot Kelly when he and another employe walked toward Williams to try to calm him.

Williams' son, Donny, 18, was fired several hours before the incident from the job he held as first mate aboard one of Kelly's fishing boats.

Mark Spitz Wins His Sixth Gold Of Games

By BOB JOHNSON, Associated Press Sports Editor
MUNICH (AP) — "I guess nobody can win them all," sighed dejected Australian waterbug Shane Gould, "well, maybe nobody except Mark Spitz."

They're running out of adjectives here at these 20th Summer Games to describe the aquatic feats of the "California Torpedo," now officially the greatest swimmer in the history of the Olympics.

The Indiana University dental student from Carmichael, Calif., captured an unparalleled sixth gold medal here Sunday, ignoring an ailing back to zoom through the 100-meter freestyle in his sixth world record, clocking 51.22 seconds.

Six events—six golds. He has one more today. One more event, that is. But few people doubt that when he finishes anchoring the 400-meter medley relay he'll make it seven golds as well.

By taking six, he's already become the greatest Olympian ever—not just the greatest swimmer. Previously, the only man to win five had been Italian fencer Nedo Nadi back in 1920.

Miss Gould was aiming for her fourth gold Sunday in the 800-meter freestyle, hoping to surpass American Debbie Meyer's harvest of three in 1968. But the Aussie ace was ached out of it by another 15-year-old lass, Keena Rothhammer of Santa Clara, Calif.

"I swam the way I planned," Keena said after her world-record clocking of 8:53.68, adding: "I was aware of Shane all the way." Shane finished nearly three seconds later.

Gunnar Larsson won his second gold of the Games, sort of biting the hand that fed him.

The Swede had trained for two years at Long Beach State in California. "There's better competition in the United States than Sweden," Larsson explained. "That's why I went there."

So on Sunday, he went out and beat a pair of Americans with a world record 2:07.17 in the 200-meter individual medley. Tim McKee of Newton Square, Pa., was second and Steve Furniss of Santa Ana, Calif., was third.

U.S. girls, namely Melissa Belote of Springfield, Va., Cathy Carr of Albuquerque, N.M., Deena Deardruff of Cincinnati and Sandy Neilson of El Monte, Calif., collaborated for a gold in the 400-meter medley relay in a world-record time of 4:20.75.

America's basketball team, unbeaten now in seven games here and in 62 of them since the sport was introduced to the Olympics in 1936, had a ball at the expense of the Japanese, breezing to a 99-33 triumph. The U.S. squad goes into Wednesday's semifinals against Italy. It was "home town" day in track as West Germany won three golds, Germany's greatest single Olympic day since the 1936 Berlin Games. Even one of the American bronze medal winners shared in the glory.

He was Bill Schmidt, a U.S. Army lieutenant from Muse, Pa., throwing the javelin 276 feet 11 1/2 inches in an event in which an American had not won a medal in 20 years.

"The cheers I got made me feel like I was at home," Schmidt said after 80,000 fans gave him an ovation. "I was born just down the road in Garmisch-Partenkirchen."

He came in third behind West Germany's Klaus Wolfermann and Janis Lulis of Russia.

The only other U.S. track medalist of the day was bearded geology student Larry Young from Sibley, Mo., who repeated his performance of 1968 as winner of the bronze in the 50-kilometer walk. West Germany's other triumphs came in the women's 800-meter run, won by Hildegard Flack, and in the 50-kilometer, won by Bernd Kannenberg.

The day's activity boosted the United States back atop the medal standings, with a total of 60-21 golds, 21 silvers and 18 bronzes. The Soviet Union has 57 medals, 21 of them gold, and East Germany is third with 43 medals, 16 of them gold.

Duane Bobick, America's heavyweight boxer from Bowlus, Minn., made an impressive debut in the Games with a unanimous decision over Russia's Yuri Nestorov, a result that helped ease the pain of three U.S. losses in the ring.

The U.S. water polo team lost its chance for a gold or silver medal but retained its hopes for a bronze with a 6-6 tie against Russia, which managed the deadlock by scoring in the final minute.

Bosox May Have Way To Win The Pennant Race

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON, Associated Press Sports Writer
The Boston Red Sox may have come up with a way to win the pennant race that nobody wants in the wacky American League East—don't play.

The Red Sox were rained out of Sunday's scheduled baseball game with Kansas City but moved past Detroit and New York into second place when the Tigers lost to Oakland 3-1 and the Yankees were blanked by the Chicago White Sox 5-0.

Front-running Baltimore also lost—1-0 in 10 innings to California—and the four contenders labored into Labor Day with the Orioles one-half game in front of the other three contenders but three percentage points ahead of Boston and four over Detroit and New York.

Elsewhere, Cleveland downed Minnesota 4-1 and Texas turned back Milwaukee by the same score.

National League scores: Cincinnati 4, Montreal 3; New York Mets 2, Houston 1; Pittsburgh 2, San Francisco 1 in 10 innings; San Diego 3, Chicago Cubs 0; Los Angeles 6, St.

Louis 3 and Philadelphia 8, Atlanta 0.

Although the perennial champion Orioles have been shut out in their last two starts, Manager Earl Weaver remained unshaken.

"I still think we're gonna win it," he said. "I've felt that way all along and there's no reason to change now."

Andy Messersmith stopped the Orioles on five hits Sunday after Rudy May limited them to three safeties Saturday night. Baltimore's Mike Cuellar hurled nine shutout innings before giving way to a pinch hitter and the Angels promptly tagged Eddie Watt for the game's only run.

Jeff Torborg opened with a single to deep short and pinch runner Curt Motton took second on catcher Johnny Oates' passed ball. Messersmith popped up attempting to sacrifice and Sandy Alomar was purposely passed before Ken Berry singled to right and ex-Oriole Motton raced home.

Oakland defeated the Tigers as Sal Bando snapped an 0-for-24 slump with his 13th home run of the season, a tie-breaking shot in the fifth inning off Bill Slayback, and Catfish Hunter posted his 18th victory, allowing only four hits and retiring the last 15 batters.

Detroit scored first on a double by Bill Freehan and Tony Taylor's single in the second inning but the A's tied it in their half of the inning on a walk and Gene Tenace's double. They added an insurance run in the fifth following Bando's home run on singles by Dal Maxvill and Hunter and Bert Campaneris' bunt single.

The A's remained 2 1/2 games ahead of the White Sox in the West Division by winning their game while Chicago's Wilbur Wood blanked the Yankees on five singles.

Fourth-inning singles by Carlos May, Mike Andres and Ed Spezio accounted for Chicago's first run against new Yankee Casey Cox and they added two more runs before the inning was over on a bases-loaded walk to Wood and Pat Kelly's little pop fly which third baseman Hal Lanier lost in the sun.

Cleveland rookie Dick Tidrow spun a four-hitter to beat Minnesota, which committed six errors, three by catcher Glenn Borgmann.

Mike Paul scattered seven Milwaukee hits and Joe Lovitto's single capped a three-run second inning that carried Texas past the Brewers.

A New One

Mark Spitz, the mustachioed Californian from Carmichael, bends down to receive a gold medal, his sixth of the Olympic Games, from an official after his victory in the 100-meter freestyle event at the Munich swimming stadium last night. Spitz broke the world record with a time of 51.22 seconds. (AP Wirephoto)

Kansas City Snaps Cowboy Victory String

By TED MEIER, Associated Press Sports Writer
In what may have been a preview of the Super Bowl next January the Kansas City Chiefs snapped the 15-game winning streak of the Dallas Cowboys in pro football.

Coach Hank Stram has been saying right along that his Chiefs are the best team he ever had and their 20-10 exhibition triumph over the current Super Bowl Champions during the Labor Day holiday weekend convinced any doubters.

Aaron Brown intercepted a Craig Morton pass in the opening minutes and ran it back 53 yards for a touchdown. The Chiefs went on to take a commanding 20-3 lead before the Cowboys scored in the last quarter on a 45-yard pass from Morton to Billy Parks.

"We were thrilled we could beat them," Stram said. "We put a lot of pressure on them. We deflected four passes and those are big plays. I think Morton gets unjust criticism. He's a great quarterback."

The game was one of 10 National Football League exhibitions Sunday and Saturday. On Sunday San Francisco knocked Oakland from the unbeaten ranks 34-21, Cincinnati humbled Cleveland 27-21 while Chicago and Buffalo fought to a 24-24 tie.

In addition to Kansas City over Dallas, other Saturday results found St. Louis whipping Green Bay 31-10, San Diego shading Los Angeles 14-13, Pittsburgh walloping New Orleans 56-7, the New York Giants taking Philadelphia 27-12, Denver trouncing New England 49-24 and the New York Jets overcoming Atlanta 9-6.

Detroit downed Baltimore 24-17 Friday night. Washington edged Miami 27-24 Thursday night. Houston plays at Minnesota tonight to wind up the holiday weekend.

Buffalo appeared a sure winner over the Bears, but the Bills were called for pass interference on the last play as time ran out. Since NFL rules do not permit a game to end on a penalty, Chicago got another chance. Bobby Douglass plunged over from the two, then ran for the extra point that tied the score.

John Brodie's three touchdown passes led the 49ers over the previously unbeaten Raiders. Jess Phillips' one-yard touchdown plunge with 68 seconds left gave the Bengals their victory over the Browns before 84,816, the biggest crowd of the preseason.

It was the first pro game ever played in Ohio Stadium in Columbus, Ohio, home of the Ohio State collegiate Buckeyes.

Some Racers To Run On $1,500-A-Set Tires

By BOB CULLEN, Associated Press Writer
DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — With visions of Talladega dancing in their heads, the better-heeled racing teams for today's Southern 500 stock car race have equipped themselves with two different sets of tires—at $1,500 per set.

It was at the Talladega 500 last month that a new tire recommended for that race by Goodyear proved faulty and most of the frontrunners were forced to drop out, leaving James Hylton to win the race. Hylton had decided he couldn't afford the new tires and was running on 1971 models.

At Darlington, no one has yet decided how the new asphalt covering the first and second turns is going to affect tire temperatures and endurance in a 500-mile race.

Goodyear had no time to run extensive tests on the new surface, so it recommended that same tire used in the spring Rebel 400 at Darlington. But it also manufactured a completely new "back-up tire" that its engineers think will withstand heat a little better.

Only pole-sitter Bobby Allison tried the back-up tires before qualifying. "We had heard about them, so after we got the car set up I ran them a few laps and liked them. We decided to use them, not because of any temperature difference, but because they felt better to me," he said.

When word of Allison's tire strategy spread through the pits, it became suddenly imperative for the competitive cars to have both kinds of tires. Under the rules of the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing, a car must start the race with the same tires it qualified on.

So, the rest of the crews planned to watch carefully today until the first pit stop to see whether the back-up tire might be better suited to conditions on the track.

Glen Wood, for one, doesn't think Allison's ploy will give him much of an advantage over the Mercury driven by David Pearson. "There are usually a good number of caution flags in the early laps," he said. "We can stop and change during one of them if we have to."

Sifford Leads Hartford Open

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Curtis Sifford credits his leading third-round position in the $125,000 Greater Hartford Open to the fact that he's paying more attention to his play than his golf score.

Sifford, tied for the lead with two-year pro Ralph Johnston going into today's final round, had four birdies Sunday to come from behind and steal the top spot from second-round leaders Lee Trevino and Deane Beman.

"I'm not shooting for scores. I started out that way early in the year," Sifford said, "but I decided to stop" and pay more attention to the game. "I just go out and play," he said, beaming after his performance Sunday.

Sifford and Johnston go after the tourney's first prize of $25,000 and a new automobile today with 12 under par 2015.

Trevino and Beman were three strokes and one stroke off the pace, respectively, after Sunday's round.

Veteran Lee Elder, fighting to become the first black invited to the Masters tournament, finished Sunday with a two under par 69 and a three-round 202, one stroke off the pace. He was tied for the lead until the 54th hole which he bogeyed after overshooting the green from the trees off the right of the fairway.

Ken Still from Tacoma, Wash., was two strokes back Sunday after a third round 65, the day's best.

Keeping Trevino company three strokes off the pace were Paul Moran, Roy Pace and Rick Rhodes.

Elon Picked To Top Loop

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Carolina Conference coaches have picked Elon, the 1971 conference champ, to repeat in 1972.

The coaches, in balloting results released today, predict the Fighting Christians will finish the season ahead of Presbyterian and Newberry, in that order.

Catawba was picked to finish fourth, Lenoir Rhyne fifth, Guilford sixth, and Mars Hill last.

Elon returns 13 lettermen, 18 of them starters in 1971. Balloting for Coach Red Wilson's club as the top team was virtually unanimous.

Conference coaches indicated they expect a rugged battle between Newberry and Presbyterian, the two South Carolina members. Cally Gault's Presbyterian club returns 32 lettermen with 21 seniors.

Newberry, with 27 returning lettermen and a strong crop of freshman recruits, was tabbed an outside shot to take the league title. Fred Herren coaches the Indians.

Catawba is led by All-Carolina Conference quarterback Don Davis who led individual categories in total offense and passing for the league last season. Coach Harvey Stratton's club returns the offensive backfield and a strong line headed by all conference, All-NAIA District 26 choice David Taylor.

Lenoir Rhyne was picked for the fifth spot. Coach Hanley Painter has dropped the traditional LR single wing in favor of a multiple offense. The Bears have 18 returning lettermen.

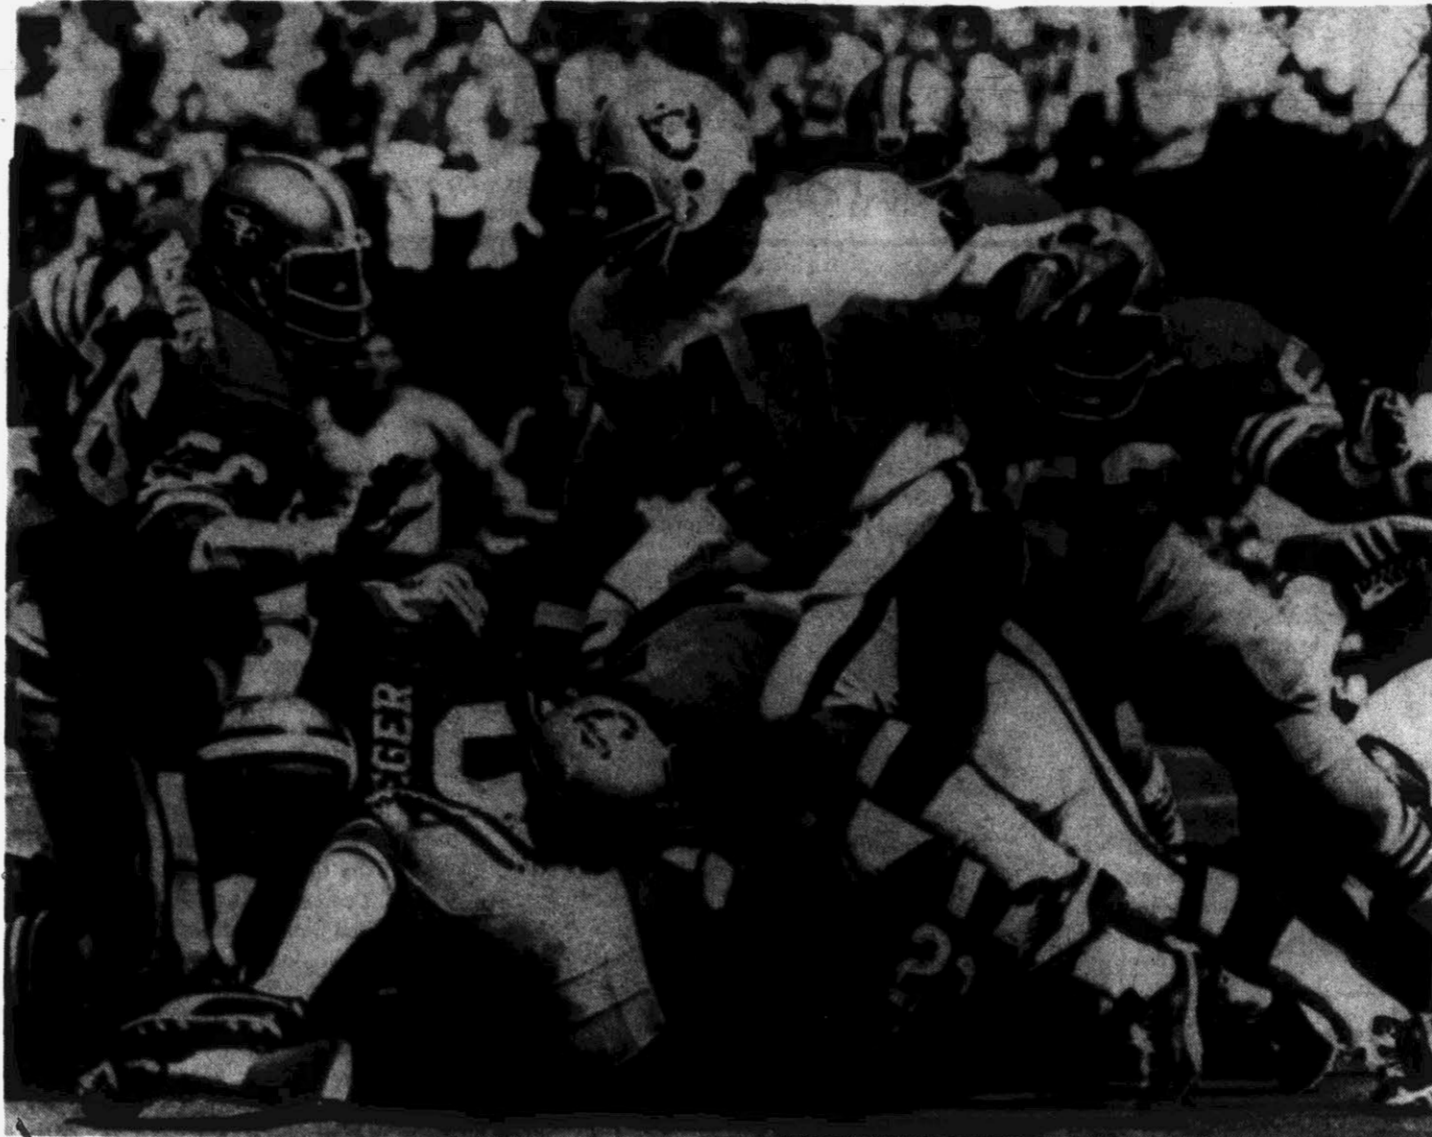

Guilford has 20 lettermen but will start new men at several positions. Coach Wilbur Johnson directs the Quakers.

Mars Hill, coached by Harold Taylor, enters its first Carolina Conference season with 41 lettermen and heralded Jeff Davis in the backfield. However, coaches felt that at season's end the Lions would be in last place.

Mars Hill is currently ineligible for the league title. The club plays Catawba, Presbyterian and Newberry, two games short of the required five. However, league officials at a Sept. 28 meeting could designate two of the five remaining games on the Lions' schedule as conference affairs.

The poll is identical to one taken prior to the 1971 season except that Newberry and Presbyterian have exchanged positions.

- Coaches poll:
1. Elon
 2. Presbyterian
 3. Newberry
 4. Catawba
 5. Lenoir Rhyne
 6. Guilford
 7. Mars Hill.

Carlton's Fastball Still Had Its Zip In The Ninth Inning

By KEN RAPPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer

There are fastballs ... and then there's Steve Carlton's fastball.

"He was still burning them in even in the ninth inning with all that heat," said catcher John Bateman after the Philadelphia Phillies' ultra-successful south-paw dominated the Atlanta Braves 8-0 with a five-hitter Sunday.

Carlton's velocity still had all its vitality in the late stages, working hand-in-hand beautifully with his curve and slider.

"Eight runs make a lot of difference, but you can't be content in the late innings," said Carlton after winning his 22nd game. "You've got to keep trying for the shutout, for when the other team gets even one run, they are that much nearer to beating you. You can't ever give in."

Carlton's success, of course, has been all the more spectacular because he's pitching with a last-place team. The Phillies' record is 47-81 in the East.

Both runaway division leaders improved their margins as the result of Sunday's National League play. The West-Leading Cincinnati Reds improved their margin to eight games after beating the Montreal Expos 4-3. The Pittsburgh Pirates nipped the San Francisco Giants 2-1 in 10 innings and moved up 12 games in the East.

In the other National League games, the San Diego Padres defeated the Cubs 3-0; the New York Mets beat the Houston Astros 2-1 and the Los Angeles Dodgers stopped the St. Louis Cardinals 6-3.

American League results: Chicago 5, New York 0; Cleveland 4, Minnesota 1; Texas 4, Milwaukee 1; Oakland 3, Detroit 1 and California 1, Baltimore 0. Rain washed out the game between Boston and Kansas City.

Bolstered by an eight-run third inning which included home runs by Joe Lis and Greg Luzinski, Carlton breezed past Atlanta despite sometimes-overwhelming hot weather.

"The heat bothered me at first but it got better," said Carlton. "It was a short game and that made it easier."

Hal McRae hit a two-run pinch-homer in the seventh inning to pull Cincinnati from behind. Montreal had taken a 3-2 lead in the fifth when winning pitcher Tom Hall gave up a bases-loaded walk to force in the go-ahead run.

Richie Hebner doubled home Bob Robertson from first base with one out in the 10th as Pittsburgh defeated San Francisco. San Francisco reliever Jerry Johnson gave up the winning hit.

Fred-Norman scattered seven hits to lead San Diego over Chicago after getting his "wish for a windless day at Wrigley Field."

"As a Cub in 1964, I pitched 32 innings in the ball park and gave up nine home runs," said Norman after recording his fifth shutout of the season.

Bud Harrelson singled home the tie-breaking run in the ninth inning as New York handed West pennant-contending Houston its second straight loss at home.

"We've got 24 games left . . . they aren't going to count this club out," said Houston Manager Leo Durocher, whose Astros are second to Cincinnati.

Wes Parker drove in four runs, two with a sixth-inning triple, to pace Los Angeles over St. Louis.

Furman Is 'On Schedule'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Furman's Paladins, heading into the final week of practice before Saturday's Southern Conference football opener at William and Mary, are—in the opinion of Coach Bob King—right on schedule despite a couple of key injuries.

The most notable loss has been that of quarterback John Wolfrom, who has been out of action with a knee injury.

"At this stage of the game, we have pretty well accomplished as much as we had hoped to," says King. "We've had excellent weather and the players have given us maximum effort."

King says the loss of Wolfrom has hurt the Paladins at this stage of practice but may turn out to be a blessing in disguise.

"It has given us a chance to look at the other two players who will be playing quarterback," says King, referring to junior Mike Shelton and sophomore Charles Elvington.

Neither player had taken command of the offense immediately as King had hoped. But Shelton may have muscled into the act Saturday when he teamed with split end Mike Bartik on a pair of touchdowns passes—44 and 42 yards—in the Paladins' final heavy scrimmage.

The coaching staff believed Wolfrom will be ready for the William and Mary game and also expects the return of offensive guard Tom Scherich, who missed most of practice with a badly bruised knee.

William and Mary had held its final heavy workout Friday, and the Indians wound up two-day drills Saturday. Coach Jim Root planned to begin specific preparations today for the Furman game.

Although the performances of both the varsity and junior varsity squads were spotty, Virginia Military coach Bob Thalman said he was not displeased with the Keydets' game-type scrimmage Saturday.

"The main objective was to find out who could play behind our starters," said Thalman, whose Keydets open at home Saturday in a league game against East Carolina. "We were especially anxious to find people to play behind Mac Bowman and Ronnie Norman at halfback."

Coach Frank Jones said Richmond's Spiders, who open at North Carolina, had their best scrimmage Saturday despite a steady rain.

Jones had particular praise for freshman running backs John Palazeti and Bob Allen and said "they look like they will see plenty of varsity action." All-Southern fullback Barty Smith missed the scrimmage because of a virus infection and a pulled muscle.

Other afternoon openers this Saturday for league teams have The Citadel at Clemson and Appalachian State at Western Kentucky. Davidson makes its debut Saturday night at Wake Forest.

Spitz Predicts Another Gold

By KAROL STONGER

Associated Press Sports Writer
MUNICH (AP)—Mark Spitz confidently predicts he will be 7-for-7 on the gold medals chart when eight days of Olympic swimming end today.

The indomitable Spitz had just won the 100-meter-freestyle Sunday for an unprecedented sixth gold medal when he said:

"I might be optimistic, but with the four boys we've chosen for the medley relay, the United States has a very good chance to do well."

Jerry Heidenreich of Dallas, who finished 43 of a second behind Spitz for a silver medal, was even more emphatic about the U.S. chances in the 400-medley relay. When asked if anything short of a disqualification could beat the team, he replied: "I seriously doubt it."

Spitz, who set a sixth world record in gaining his sixth gold with a 51.22 clocking in the 100 freestyle, will swim the butterfly in the medley while Heidenreich anchors with the freestyle. Mike Stamm of San Diego, who has two silver medals in the backstroke, will swim his specialty while gold medal winner John Hencken of Santa Clara, Calif., takes the breaststroke.

Sweden's Gunnar Larsson gained his second victory Sunday with a world record 2:07.17 in the 200 individual medley and U.S. women surpassed the Australians in the medals race when Keena Rothhammer upset Shane Gould in the 800 freestyle and Sandra Neilson anchored the 400 medley relay team to a world record.

Miss Gould, a 15-year-old Aussie trying for her fourth gold medal in this Olympiad, settled for silver when Miss Rothhammer, a 15-year-old from Santa Clara, set a world mark of 8:53.68 in the 800 freestyle. Novella Calligaris of Italy took the bronze.

So far, the four U.S. individual golds have gone to four girls and the team has six golds altogether, compared to five for Australia—three for Miss Gould and one each to Beverly Whitfield and Gail Neall.

Joining Miss Neilson of El Monte, Calif., on the 400 medley team which clocked a 4:20.75, were Melissa Belote of Springfield, Va.; Cathy Carr of Albuquerque, N.M., and Deena Deardruff of Cincinnati.

The Worry Clinic Subterfuge In Arguing Points

Rosalie's bizarre charge is merely a "red herring" bit of strategy. And it illustrated the "Ad Hominem" fallacy. Women are not as logical as men so when their vanity is hurt, they strike out with irrelevant arguments. So be sure to order the booklet below!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

Case U-579: Rosalie S., aged 39, is an angry housewife.

"Dear Editor," she wrote to the Indianapolis STAR, "do we have to have Dr. Crane around to pollute young minds?"

"Please remove him or balance him with enlightened, intelligent commentary!"

Cherchez La Femme

The French police have long employed the motto "Cherchez la Femme."

Translated literally that says "Seek the woman," which means "Find the motive."

Do you readers think I have polluted the minds of youth by showing them the folly of such bad habits as smoking, drinking and use of drugs?

Or is my constant veto of "trial marriage" and premarital promiscuity a form of pollution of young minds?

Obviously, Rosalie's criticism thus is not based on logic!

So what do you readers think really is the underlying motive for her attack? Could it be the same as that which made two Columbus, Ohio, housewives propagandize their local editor to cancel this "Worry Clinic?"

For I had addressed an afternoon "Marriage Clinic" in their church, at the invitation of their distinguished clergyman.

And they apparently enjoyed my 2-hour session.

But that night I repeated the same clinic for 1,000 husbands in the parish.

These women helped serve the dinner for those 1,000 men.

But they furtively turned on the kitchen loud speakers to the microphone I was using upstairs.

Thus, they and a dozen other wives, has a chance to eavesdrop on my advice to their husbands.

In both the afternoon, as well as night clinic, I had mentioned that even the supposedly innocent wives in a threatened divorce, are usually 50 per cent to blame.

"It is their sins of omission, not of commission," I added.

"That often drive their husbands into clandestine affairs with outside sirens."

And this was what infuriated these two wives.

For they had caught their mates having affairs and then had browbeaten those erring husbands ever since.

In fact, they had the men "under their thumb" and had created, the impression that those husbands were 100 per cent wrong while the two wives were 100 per cent innocent, aggrieved parties.

Now they suddenly realized my remarks had let their husbands out from under their thumbs!

So they upbraided the local pastor and transferred their membership to another church.

But that wasn't enough, so they fomented a campaign to coerce the editor to drop the column, too!

Obviously, they couldn't admit that their hostility to this "Worry Clinic" was my remark that wives are 50 per cent to blame for their straying husbands.

So they fabricated various other charges, such as Rosalie's bizarre remark that I "pollute young minds."

Usually, when I stop on the psychological "corns" of readers, they cry out in disguised protest against this column.

That's even more true of women, for they aren't as logical as men!

So send for my booklet "Common Fallacies in Logic," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

Rosalie illustrates the "Ad Hominem" fallacy!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.) Copyright 1972.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

BRIDGE QUIZ ANSWERS

Q. 1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

AK6 A952 AQ7 AJ108

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South
Pass Pass 1 A Dbles.
Pass 2 A Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—This is a close choice between two no trump and three clubs, but our own preference is three clubs. Two no trump appears to be a slightly drastic bid with only 18 points. If partner makes any move over your raise to three clubs, you are then in strategic position to contract for game.

Q. 2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

AK752 KJ83 K53 A2

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East
1 A Pass 1 NT Dbles.
Pass 2 A Pass Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—The partner has promised no great strength, he nevertheless is presumed to have an evenly balanced hand. You, therefore, have a splendid defense against the adverse contract, and a penalty double is recommended.

Q. 3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

AKQ1065432 75 84 AJ

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East
3 A Pass 4 A Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Pass. You have some support for hearts; partner may have none whatever for spades. He knows that you consider your hand of use only with spades as trump; nevertheless, he has chosen to bid four hearts. Without information to the contrary it is our practice to assume that partner knows what he is doing.

Q. 4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

AKQ92 A6 A7 952

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East
1 A Pass 1 NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—With a conservative partner you may bid six no trump. With an aggressive partner, four or five no trump.

Q. 5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

A10753 Q9742 A6 KJ

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West
1 A Pass 1 A 1 A
2 A 2 A ?

What do you bid now?

A—Four hearts. You must not place any further strain on partner. Your hand has a valuation of about 12 points. Since partner has opened and made a free raise, he can hardly have less than 15.

Q. 6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

AJ632 A9753 J2 A6 Q6

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South
1 A Dbles. ?

What do you bid?

A—An immediate bid of one heart is recommended. If you choose to pass, the bidding may become too involved for you to get into the auction subsequently.

Q. 7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

A1074 Q65 KQJ5 A92

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West
1 A Pass 1 A Pass
2 NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Make up your mind to bid a slam. The best bet is to bid three diamonds temporarily, just to allow for the case in which partner happens to have four of that suit. If he supports it, bid a slam in diamonds. If not, bid a slam for him in no trump.

Q. 8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

A962 AJ43 J6 AQ102

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

3 NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—With a conservative partner you may bid six no trump. With an aggressive partner, four or five no trump.

Five Slayers Given Life

Va. With them were two young women who had been beaten, cut and tied up. They recovered.

AIKEN, S.C. (AP) — The death sentences of five motorcycle club members convicted of murder in the slayings of two members of a rival motorcycle club have been reduced to life in prison.

Circuit Judge James Spruill Jr., who tried the case, refused in a weekend order to grant a new trial, but reduced the sentences in view of recent federal and state court decisions against the death penalty.

Sentenced were Gary V. Faust, 20, Monroe, Ore.; Dennis G. Davis, Osgood M. Leland, 32, and William R. Holland, 19, of the Charleston area, and Bruce G. Poe, 24, Cleveland, Ohio. Resentencing comes next month.

Richard L. Richards, 24, of Elkhart, Ind., a sixth man, drew a life sentence on pleading guilty in the deaths.

The convicted men were members of a Charleston area motorcycle club called "The Tribulators."

The slain men were found tied, beaten, gagged and stabbed last June 18 in a club house used by another motorcycle group at Belvedere near North Augusta. They were Thomas Bollin, 26, of Springfield, and William M. Wolfe Jr., 26, of Chesapeake.

Took Sheriff To His Own Jail

MUNISING, Mich. (AP) — When city police arrested Cluen Malone on a drunk driving charge Sunday, they took him to his own jail.

Malone has been Alger County sheriff for the past four years. He promised to show up in court Tuesday and was allowed to go home—to his apartment attached to the jail.

Witnesses told police in this Upper Michigan county seat that the sheriff, who is running for re-election in November, was driving in an erratic manner even before he hit a parked car and a barber pole.

As one of Malone's deputies put it: "Yeah. It's embarrassing."

APPLE QUEEN HENDERSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Donna Susan Colvin, a former Miss Gastonia, has been crowned North Carolina's Apple Queen of 1972.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: There is considerable confusion present in the early morning, so take nothing for granted. Later beneficial influences come into being that make it possible to take a long-standing condition and improve it. In addition, you can add various kinds of improved conditions and make it successful.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A perfect day for enjoying the company of friends and getting ahead socially. Do only the work that is necessary. Don't neglect to pay an important bill. Relax at home tonight.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Taking in out for the pleasures they enjoy can add to harmony within the home. Those creative ideas you have are good. Do some work on them instead of procrastinating.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Join with those who are talented and you can get the inspiration you need for advancement. Make new arrangements that will help you to produce more. Show you have ability.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can easily have new conditions working in your favor now so that you become more successful and "happy in the future. Others have good ideas that are helpful.

Peanut Field Day

The 20th Annual Peanut Field Day and Membership meeting of the North Carolina Peanut Growers Association will be held September 6, at the Peanut Belt Research Station, Lewiston, N.C. All growers should plan to attend this important meeting.

During the tour of the research station such items as varietal resistance to potato leaf hopper, pod rot control, and new varieties will be observed. There will also be a field demonstration of the various models of the inverter peanut plows.

Farmers will also be able to observe all the latest equipment in combining and digging at the field day.

Insect Control In Peanuts

The switch from copper-sulfur dust with Sevin mixed for insect control to Benlate, Bravo, and Duter has caused many of our growers to let insects build up in some fields to levels generally not seen in the past few years. Apparently many growers have not added an insecticide to their leafspot control programs. Without controlling insects, we have not made much progress in using new leafspot control materials. A good leafspot control program increases insect problems by providing good healthy tissue for the insects to feed. An insecticide should be applied at least every other trip across the field.

Is It Time To Dig Peanuts?

The early maturing peanut varieties will need the farmers attention during the next week. Growers should start pulling plants from the fields to determine maturity dates. Representative peanut samples should be gathered from the entire field, hand shelled, and each peanut should be placed in a representative maturity pile. This procedure should be done every week until 75-80 percent of the nuts are mature. Then it's time to dig. Good luck!

The same mentality that saved Liddy in 1971 and still works for him may well, through continuing official silence, balloon the Watergate caper into major political scandal.

State Department."

"I stopped there on my way back from the Pentagon, but when they found out I was Greek, they sent me to the Middle European Affairs Desk. They haven't had an honest man there since the military coup three years ago."

"There is no sense sending you over to the CIA," I said, "and I doubt if you'll have any luck at HEW, HUD, or USA. There has to be someone... Wait a minute! Wait a minute! Why didn't I think of it before? There are more than 2,000 newspapermen in this town. Surely you will find hundreds of honest men among them. Go to the National Press Club. It's lunch time now, and you'll have your pick of the crop."

Diogenes grabbed his lamp and dashed off excitedly to the National Press Club on 14th and F streets.

He was back an hour later in tears.

"What happened?" I asked.

They stole my lamp."

Talked Down A Non-Pilot

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP) — Two Hutchinson air controllers and an aircraft employe have been credited with successfully coaxing down a twin-engine plane Saturday after the pilot became ill and his wife had to land the craft.

The woman, who identified herself as Mrs. Jesse A. Dennis of Craig, Colo., called the Federal Aviation Administration tower here saying "I need help immediately."

Air traffic controllers Jerry Kershaw and Ray Reade said the woman explained her husband had become ill while flying in their Aero Commander over Hutchinson en route to Memphis, Tenn.

She told them she had done a little flying, but had never landed a twin-engine plane and had no idea how to do it.

The time was 3:35 p.m. Twenty-six minutes later the plane was on the ground, thanks to the efforts of the two controllers and Jim Hephner, an aircraft company service manager. The men called it "a beautiful landing."

Dennis was treated at a Hutchinson hospital, which did not disclose details of his illness.
