

Wholesale Price Climb Blamed On Exempted Items

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government said today wholesale prices rose faster in the first year of President Nixon's wage-price control than the year before and blamed it on stepped-up price hikes for farm products, some of which are exempt from controls.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said a broad range of wholesale prices for food, industrial raw materials and manufactured goods rose an average of two-tenths of one per cent in August, bringing the past year's rise to 4.4 per cent since Nixon first imposed economic controls.

"This compares with a rise of 4 per cent in the preceding 12-month period," it said. "The larger advance in the latest 12 months was due to an acceleration of prices of raw and processed agricultural products."

Raw farm products are exempt from the federal price controls.

The report added that by comparison, prices of industrial goods rose 3 per cent in the past year compared with 4.4 per cent in the previous year before price controls.

The report said that in August, the over-all rise in the Wholesale Price Index on a seasonally adjusted basis rose six-tenths of one per cent because food prices did not fall as much as they usually do for that month.

Farm products rose two-tenths of one per cent last month while processed foods and animal feeds declined four-tenths of one per cent.

The August rise brought the government's Wholesale Price Index up to 119.9 per cent of its 1967 base of 100. This means it cost wholesalers last month $119.90 on the average for wholesale purchases of food, raw materials and manufactured goods worth $100 five years ago.

Two Pitt Road Projects See Funding OK'd

Area Highway Commissioner Henry Oglesby of Grifton announced that funding for two Pitt County projects has been approved by the State Highway Commission.

Oglesby said today that the commission designated funds for 0.358 miles of improvement of State Road 1530, known as the Airport Road, from U.S. 13-N.C. 11 easterly to State Road 1531. The commissioner said the estimated cost of the project is some $157,000.

Funds were also approved for a project involving 2.514 miles of road improvements on U.S. 264 in and near Farmville, he reported. The two-part project includes improvements on U.S. 264 between SR1144 and a point approximately 1,410 feet southeast of U.S. 258 in and near the city, Oglesby said.

The out-of-town portion is estimated to cost $1,205,400 while the segment within the town limits is projected to cost some $188,600, the commissioner reported.

He said that bids have been advertised and will be opened on Sept. 26 in Raleigh. Project contracts should be left at the commission's October meeting.

Appointed

In appointments to board and commissions, members of Greenville City Council Thursday night took action to reappoint five members for three years terms to the Greenville Human Relations Council and to reappoint one member to the Permanent Building Codes Review Board.

Reappointed without opposition to an additional three year term to the Human Relations Council were Rev. O.J. Rooks, Tommy Payne, Howard Shearin, Mrs. Jean Darden and Miss Evalena Clark.

Harry Wilson, completing an unexpired term as a member of the Permanent Building Codes Review Board, was appointed for a new term.

The Council tabled until next month a recommendation for the expansion of the number of board members to serve on the Moyewood Social Service Center Advisory Council.

Bond Of $24,500

A Greenville man is in Pitt County Jail under a total of $24,500 bond following his arrest Wednesday night on breaking-and-larceny, receiving stolen goods, and forgery charges.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson reported that Willie Arthur Carney, 46, of 302 Hudson Street, was arrested by Pitt deputies, Greenville Police officers, and SBI agents.

The Sheriff's Department preferred five counts of breaking, entering and larceny and one charge of receiving stolen goods against Carney, the sheriff said. One of the break-ins occurred in Greene County, he added, and bond on that charge has been set at $5,000 while the other incidents occurred in the Stokes and Ballards Crossroads area.

Eight charges of forgery were preferred by the SBI and bond on those counts was set at $8,500, Sheriff Tyson said. Total bond for the break-in and receiving charges, including the Greene County incident, amounted to $16,000.

A hearing has been scheduled for District Court here on Sept. 25 and a hearing in Greene County has been set for Sept. 15.

City Council's Attention Focuses On W. Greenville

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

As has been the case in recent months, Thursday night's City Council meeting focused heavily of developments in West Greenville.

In five public hearings on requests for property rezoning, four of them ranging geographically from the eastern edge of Hooker Road to an area outside the western city limits of Greenville — with only one area east of Evans Street under consideration; the score was one denial, three approvals, and one request in which one of two separate portions was approved.

The first public hearing was a request by John F. Moye to rezone seven acres from a current shopping center zoning to highway commercial.

The property, located directly across U.S. 264 by-pass west from Red Oak Subdivision, had been recommended for approval of rezoning by the Special Committee of the Planning and Zoning Commission that had conducted a zoning study for U.S. 264 East-West by-pass areas.

Moye stated his basic reason for making the request was that the seven acre tract, he had come to realize, was too small to develop a shopping center, and that highway commercial development was the only reasonable use he could make of the tract of land.

James Cheatham III, attorney, spokesman for 31 inhabitants of Red Oak Subdivision, outlined several major points of objection. These points included a higher degree of noise, traffic, and heavy bulk types establishments permitted under a highway commercial zoning; an understanding from Moye (who originally developed the land for Red Oak Subdivision) and later from real estate agents, that the area would be a residential one; and the fact that Moye had already had the area rezoned in the past from RA-20 to a commercial (shopping center) zoning. Several residents at the meeting also voiced their personal objection.

Moye's request was denied by a unanimous vote by members of the City Council.

A second rezoning request, one by Mrs. J. T. Manning, Sr. for a tract of land west of and adjacent to the Moye property, for rezoning from RA-20 to neighborhood commercial, was unanimously approved.

This tract, about 600 feet in width along the northern shores of the by-pass extending back 400 feet, was, early in the hearing, the subject of opposition by the same contingent opposing the Moye request.

Following a statement by Mayor S. Eugene West that he could see no valid basis for their objection as the property was about 800 feet up the road from the area of the subdivision, Cheatham conferred briefly with his clients and then asked that the group's objection be withdrawn.

West noted that, in his opinion, the development of commercial areas at the western and eastern ends of the connecting by-pass was a desirable situation, one entirely different from commercial development in the immediate vicinity of residential areas.

William Dansey's request to rezone a 209 acre tract, the W. Z. Morton Farm, on the southern side of U.S. 264 west about one mile outside the city limits, was presented in separate request.

The first request, labeled Tract I, was a request to rezone a strip 1800 feet long and 400 feet deep along the highway from RA-20 to highway commercial. The second request covered the remainder of the 209 acres, one for rezoning from RA-20 to R-6 residential.

Opposition spokesmen, all residents living across the highway from the proposed site, centered their opposition on the commercial zoning. Council members acted to approve rezoning the main portion from RA-20 to R-6 residential, but did not consider the request for rezoning the smaller area to highway commercial.

During discussions, Dansey agreed to Councilman Percy Cox's suggestion that a request for rezoning to shopping center instead of highway commercial be made for the smaller tract. A separate motion was made to set a public hearing on this tract for the October meeting on October 5.

In response to a question from the opposition about a requirement to wait six months before making a new request, Councilwoman Mrs. Mildred McGrath pointed out that by not taking action on the commercial tract, the council had made it possible

Syria Fearful Of Retaliatory Blow

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli air force planes attacked 10 Arab guerrilla bases deep inside Syria and Lebanon today, hours after the government warned it would fight terrorism with all its strength after the Munich Olympic murders.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Syrian government has put its armed forces on maximum alert and canceled all leaves, fearing an Israeli attack in retaliation for the killings in Munich, travelers arriving in Beirut from Damascus reported today. Reports of a massive Israeli buildup along the Lebanese and Syrian borders came from Beirut and Damascus.

Israeli forces made an eight-hour raid into southern Lebanon Thursday, but no major fighting or casualties were reported. The Palestinian guerrillas in Beirut charged Israel with an "unprecedented buildup" along the Lebanese and Syrian borders and said they expected retaliation for the Arab attack on Israel's Olympic team.

But the Israelis said the raid

Thursday was in reply to a guerrilla incursion across the border Wednesday in which an Israeli soldier and two Arabs were killed.

The travelers said the Syrians think the Israelis will attack their international trade fair, now under way in Damascus. They said anti-aircraft guns were moved into position around the fair grounds and tanks were posted in groves of trees near the defense ministry and the radio and television stations all located near the fair.

Sources in Damascus, reached from Beirut by telephone, agreed with the reports of an Israeli buildup along the Syrian and Lebanese borders. One source said three Israeli armored brigades were massed on the Golan Heights, which Israel seized from Syria in the 1967 war.

The Israeli army refused to comment.

But Yigal Allon, Israel's deputy premier, issued a warning Thursday of trouble for Arab countries which harbor terrorists. They "will bear the responsibility for the terrorists' acts," Allon said at a memorial service for the 11 Olympic team members slain at Munich.

An Israeli spokesman said the raid into Lebanon Thursday was in search of the guerrillas who clashed with Israeli troops near the border settlement of Baram. He said the guerrillas had fled to Yaroun, a village over the border in Lebanon. The Israelis said they went a mile into Lebanon and stayed eight hours, but the spokesman did not mention any fighting.

A Lebanese army communiqué said the Israelis were in Yaroun for 10 minutes shortly after noon and returned again at dusk for two hours. It said explosions and machine-gun bursts were heard from the village.

The Lebanese Army has only nominal control of the border villages in southeast Lebanon, leaving them to the guerrillas. But the army said its troops challenged a guerrilla group carrying supplies to the border after the Israelis left and killed one man when the group failed to stop.

Arrest Four

Four area residents were arrested Thursday night on marijuana possession charges by the Pitt Sheriff's Department and agents of the State Bureau of Investigation.

Charged with possession of marijuana with intent to distribute were James Ray Modlin, 24, of Rt. 1, Box 461 Ayden; Kathy Jean Gallman, 20, of Rt. 1, Box 461 Ayden; Rebecca Jane Johnson, 22, of Rt. 1, Box 379-A, Winterville; and Robert Carl Johnson, 24, of Rt. 1, Box 379-A, Winterville.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that bond for Modlin, a teacher at E. B. Aycock Junior High School, and Kathy Gallman was set at $2,500. Bond was set at $5,000 each for Robert and Rebecca Jane Johnson. Both had been arrested previously on similar charges, the sheriff said.

He reported that deputies confiscated a car registered to Kathy Gallman and also confiscated a quantity of marijuana at the time of the 10:45 p.m. arrests.

A hearing on the possession charges has been scheduled for Sept. 26 in District Court here, the sheriff said.

DENY PRICE HIKE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Cost of Living Council today denied a request by the nation's bakers for a price increase for bread.

New Ordinance Curbs Weight Limits On Streets

A new ordinance, one governing weight limits on local and secondary streets in Greenville was adopted by the Greenville City Council on Thursday night.

The ordinance, Section 27-12.1 (Chapter 27, Section 12 of the Code of the City of Greenville), is an amendment whereby a section is added to set forth limitations of weight limits permissible on other than major highways and streets within Greenville.

Under the heading "Vehicle Weight Load Limits," the wording of the ordinance is: "It shall be unlawful for any person to operate a loaded truck or other vehicle on any local or secondary city street in any subdivision or development complex when such truck or vehicle is loaded beyond six thousand pounds per wheel."

The ordinance further delineates the limitations by clarifying technical applications: "Dual wheels shall be considered as one wheel load and one contact area, and any truck or vehicle using local or secondary streets shall be limited to four dual wheels (or two rear axles)."

In effect, the ordinance will give the city a legal means to enforce limiting loads on non-major streets to a total of 24,000 pounds per vehicle.

The ordinance was drafted by City Engineer C. A. Holliday at the direction of the City Council. The council's request resulted from a recent situation in which Crestline Boulevard in Belevedere Subdivision suffered extensive damage due to heavily loaded vehicles using the secondary street.

The Daily Reflector, in its continuing effort, to provide improved services to its readers, has a new addition to the sports department.

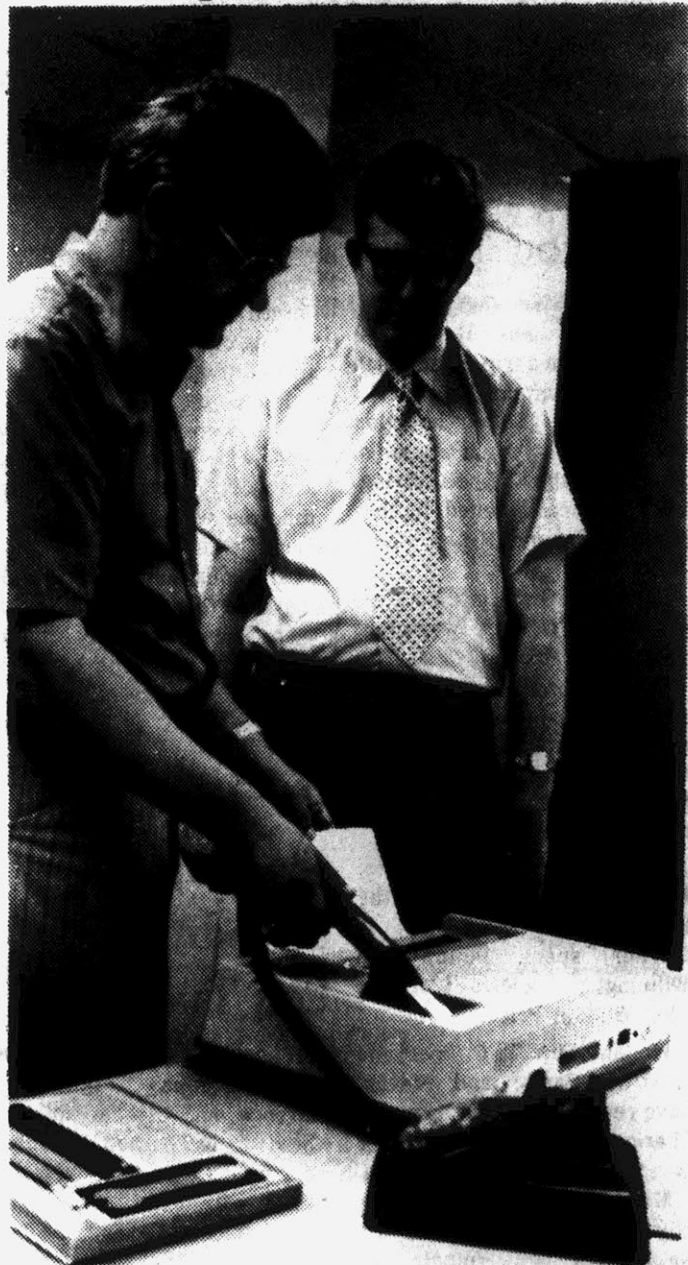

A Xerox 400 Telecopier has been installed in a Daily Reflector offices for the receipt of sports stories on out-of-town athletic events. The Telecopier, receiving from similar unit at the point of the event, receives a facsimile of the story prepared at the out-of-town point.

The unit is fed the story, in typed form, and transmitted over telephone lines much faster than the story could be dictated to another typist at the Daily Reflector offices, taking only four minutes per page. The story, as received in Greenville, has already been proofed and corrected and is ready for setting into type immediately.

The new method also cuts down on the possibility of misspelled names and the mixing of numbers, etc., due to misunderstanding.

The new Telecopier will receive its first use this weekend when East Carolina University opens its season against VMI in Lexington, Va.

Mrs. Tonya Bernard of Kingsport, Tenn., was matron of honor. She was attired in a formal length crepe dress with a floral empire waist and light orange skirt. She carried a colonial bouquet of green pom pons and orange carnations with orange and green ribbons.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Dianne Holifield of Flat River, Mo., and Miss Faye Harris of Greenville. They wore formal length crepe dresses with a floral empire waist and mint green skirt. They carried colonial bouquets of green pom pons and orange carnations with orange and green ribbons.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 27-year-old housewife with two small children. Now that my older child is in school all day I have time to watch some of the morning talk shows on television. Lately I have noticed that these shows have become a soapbox for Women's Libbers who tell me what an empty life I'm living. "The dull, dreary housewife, tied to dirty dishes, diapers and the family laundry." They say I have no chance to express myself or use my imagination.

I have never felt that I was "tied" to anything. I have a car in my driveway, and even if I didn't, I have two healthy legs to get me where I want to go.

As for expressing myself and using my imagination, I have done that in the best possible way. I've made my own draperies and curtains and I've even upholstered my own furniture. I dream up a different menu for nearly every meal, and I express myself plenty where my children are concerned.

I am happy as a homemaker, and I wish women who find fulfillment in other ways would quit downgrading me. Since this wonderful country of ours began, the source of its strength has been the family. The wife and mother has made the house a home and held the family together.

Sign me "HAPPY IN OLYMPIA"

DEAR HAPPY: I'll tell Gloria and Betty, and Germaine and Bella.

DEAR ABBY: When I was in my teens I gave birth to a baby boy which I gave up for adoption because I was not married. My husband knows all about it and has never held it against me.

We have two darling daughters and are considering adopting a baby boy. We don't want another child unless we are sure of getting a boy.

I keep thinking maybe the reason I want a boy is to replace the one I gave away. If this is true, it wouldn't be fair to the child. My husband is satisfied with our family, but I am the one who wants a boy. Please help me decide.

UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: If you have any doubts or misgivings about your reasons for wanting to adopt a child,

Junk Car Blight Can Be Removed

One of the good news matters to come out recently is an announcement by the governors of North and South Carolina that junked cars will be removed in a 13 county area of Appalachia.

Under the program more than 20,000 abandoned junked cars are to be cleared out.

Gov. Bob Scott of North Carolina and Gov. John West of South Carolina said that many tourists travel the area each year and "their impression of our states is, to a large degree, determined by what they see along our road sides."

Two man teams will map the junk car locations by driving all the roads in the area. Then plans will be made for collecting and disposing of the old vehicles.

An important tourist area of the two states will be much better in appearance because of this project. If the program works well it is something that can be expanded all over North Carolina. Such efforts are already underway here in Pitt County and there is no reason why all counties of our state cannot be free of this blight on our country side.

Where Theory Being Applied

By BRYAN HAISLIP
CANDOR, N.C. — The boy becomes a man as he learns responsible decision-making to meet his own needs and to live in harmony with the social group.

Carolina Boys' Camp puts the theory into practice with youngsters whose record of failure at home and in school has left them mad at the world.

"The boy who comes to us discovers that what he does and does not do has a bearing on what happens to him," explained Ronald Carroll, camp director.

When raindrops are falling on your bed because you didn't pitch the tent properly, you can't blame the rain or start complaining about adults. You can decide to do things right and stay dry.

That's the kind of attitude change which is the aim of the camp. It accepts emotionally disturbed boys in the 10-15 age range, guides them in setting goals for change, and involves parents in working out problems.

A leased 670-acre tract near Candor in Montgomery County is the camp setting where the boys live outdoors year-round, doing for themselves as much as possible. The campers live in autonomous groups of ten boys and two counselors. Each group builds and maintains a semi-permanent campsite, plans and cooks about half its meals, and plans and conducts its weekly and daily activities.

Growing In Body and Mind

The rugged life style promotes physical growth and fosters self-confidence Carroll said. "Most of the boys haven't been accustomed to this much exercise and a balanced diet," he observed.

Carolina Boys' Camp, in operation one year last July, is a project of the Learning Institute of North Carolina (LINC). Its annual budget of approximately $145,000 is funded with grants from the State Board of Education, the Law and Order division, and various foundations, plus tuition payments.

At present, the camp can take only 20 boys and serves 13 central counties. Most of the boys come from the cities of Charlotte and Greensboro. Carroll said plans are being made to double capacity and make the camp facilities available to a wider area.

The need for alternatives to public school or state training, schools for emotionally disturbed youth was recognized three years ago by Dr. Craig Phillips, state superintendent of public instruction. His initiative, Carroll said, led to the development of plans for the camp.

Texas Model Copied

Although it is unique in North Carolina, the camp is copied from a model pioneered in Texas more than 25 years ago.

Campbell Loughmiller is the father of the concept. He started the first such camp for boys in the Dallas area. He wrote a book on the subject, "Wilderness Road," in 1965 and it attracted wide attention. Similar camps have been established in other states, among them Florida and Georgia.

Loughmiller claimed that 70 per cent of the boys who went through the camp experience achieved success as men.

"That is," explained Carroll, "they become taxpayers instead of tax liabilities." He has faith in the approach.

It's early to judge the North Carolina experiment, but it has its success stories.

Back On The Track

Four boys left camp ready to go back into public schools. One of them, faced with repeating the seventh grade for the third time when he came to camp, now will enter the ninth grade.

There have been failures, too. In those cases, Carroll said, the boys weren't ready for the camp or it wasn't prepared for them.

Boys who come to the camp must do so voluntarily, with some readiness to face the need for change in their lives. They must have a parent or a caring adult who will be supportive.

Home visits are part of the program to try out problem-solving in the setting where the problems arose. After three months, a social worker has a conference with the boy and his parents to size up progress.

What the boys have in common when they arrive is a lack of self-esteem, Carroll said. Some may be belligerent and others withdrawn, but all are scarred by failure. "Even the bully doesn't have a very good feeling about himself," he remarked.

Self-confidence can be restored as the boy tries out making decisions, for himself and within the group. Boy-to-boy peer pressure can be effective in teaching that self interest must yield to the good of the whole.

"This isn't for every boy," Carroll conceded. "For those who can face up to the fact that something is wrong about the way things are going, we think we can give them the opportunity to set it straight."

Hopes Rise For Start Of Newtown Housing

It appears that, after some delay, the Newtown housing project will at last get underway.

Mayor Eugene West announced that difficulties have been ironed out by Congressman Walter Jones and bids should be taken soon for the project.

This project has been slower coming along than local officials would have liked; however with the assistance of Congressman Jones construction can soon get underway.

Rivalry Inside Nixon Campaign

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — On Saturday, Aug. 26, White House political aide Charles Colson telephoned the Committee to Reelect the President down the street on Pennsylvania Avenue, there by escalating the backstage tactical and personal dispute within President Nixon's campaign.

Colson explained the Sen. Robert Dole, Republican national chairman, was issuing a statement — inspired by Colson — bludgeoning Sen. George McGovern for his "willingness to condone" the violent demonstrators at the Republican National Convention "by his silence."

Colson wanted Clark MacGregor, campaign director at the Reelect Nixon committee, to assure a similar statement.

Unenthusiastic aides at the committee replied that MacGregor was on the road and they could issue no statement in his name.

Well, snapped Colson, the President himself personally wants this done. Suspicious, MacGregor's lieutenants called the office of White House major domo H. R. (Bob) Haldeman, who takes careful note of Richard M. Nixon's every desire. No, said a Haldeman deputy, we've never heard the President say that.

In the end, MacGregor was contacted and, belatedly, issued a toned-down version of Dole's statement. But the incident brewed more bad blood between the Reelection Committee and Colson at the White House.

Apart from personal rivalries, at issue here are tactics to protect Mr. Nixon's immense lead. Trying to connect the stumbling, bedraggled McGovern with the wild toughs disrupting the Republican convention is, say Colson's rivals, precisely the overkill the President must guard against. But it is precisely the politics that irresistibly attracts both Chuck Colson and Dick Nixon.

Indeed, Colson has grown so close to the President so quickly because he exudes qualities Mr. Nixon admires: toughness, quickness, intelligence — and a lust for personal combat. "Chuck says the things the President likes to hear," a campaign aide told us.

Tour Of Sister's House

By ARTBUCHWALD
(Mr. Buchwald was so exhausted from the excitement of the Republican National Convention that the doctor advised him to take a rest. He is leaving behind some of his doctor's all-time favorites.)

KEW GARDENS, N.Y. — Everyone I talked to was impressed by the recent television tour of the White House, and I believe it has made a great contribution to the American home because it has made people conscious of their own surroundings furniture.

Probably no one was more influenced by the program than my own sister who lives in Kew Gardens, Long Island. I went to her apartment on the Sunday after the White House tour, and my sister was waiting at the door to give me a guided tour.

"Thank you for coming," she said. "I'd like to show you around because I feel that's the only way people can understand our heritage."

"Well it's awfully kind of you to let us come here, Mrs. Jaffe. Where shall we begin?"

"I think we ought to start with the East Room," she said. "We call it the East Room because it overlooks the Eighth Ave. subway and Queens Boulevard — at least it did until someone built an apartment across from us and blocked the view. The East Room was originally intended as an audience room where we could meet our in-laws, our insurance agent and our son's teacher when he got in trouble at school.

"But now it's gradually become associated with other events. Our large receptions are held here because, as you can see, this room can hold as many as 12 people at one time."

"Would you describe some of the furniture to me?" I asked her.

"I'd be delighted. That couch over there, the one with the stuffing coming out of it, is an early Franklin D. Roosevelt period piece donated to us by Aunt Molly, who said she was going to throw it out anyway. Aunt Molly used it all during the depression and it has a great deal of historical interest."

"That lamp over there is a rare pre-Pearl Harbor Macy basement special. It was a wedding gift donated by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gordon of Forest Hills, N. Y., and there are only 65,900 of them left in the United States."

"Is that the oldest thing in the house?" I asked her.

"No, the hot-water heater is the oldest thing in our house, but that's in another room."

We walked into what my sister calls the Blue Room because this is the room in the house that depresses her the most.

"There are many things in this room that do have a historical interest," she said. "That bed there, for example, is an early Truman-Gimbel's four-poster which was donated to us by the Friendly Long Island Finance Co. It was given to us on the day that Mr. Truman had a fight with a Washington music critic over his daughter's voice, so naturally it has sentimental value. Actually, it's been taken away twice, but it has always turned up again after we made the payments."

"Those are lovely paintings on the wall," I said.

"Yes, they are," Mrs. Jaffe.

Other Editors Say Drove Into Prison

(Goldsboro News-Argus)

It took a Winston-Salem teenager one year behind the wheel to drive himself into the penitentiary.

In Johnston County District Court the other day, the young fellow was sentenced to a total of six years in prison for driving offenses.

Before one begins thinking that sounds excessive, we should add this: He was sentenced to two years on driving charges the previous day in Wake Superior Court.

The charges were not simply for speeding, of course, but the youngster's apparently insatiable thirst to speed began his troubles.

Before it was over he had run up a list of charges including hit and run involving personal injury, two counts of assault with a deadly weapon — an automobile — with intent to kill a police officer, speeding 110 miles per hour and failure to stop for a siren and blue light.

These were the cases heard in Johnston County.

The young man had been in a high speed chase and ran into two Clayton police cars and a Highway Patrol vehicle. Two police officers were injured.

It is not often any of us like seeing a teenager sent to prison. Thank goodness in this state we do have special centers stressing rehabilitation for youthful offenders.

But the youngster from Winston-Salem certainly got what he and a number of other youngsters who have more automobile than maturity have been asking for.

Lucky for the young fellow he is going to jail instead of to the cemetery. And lucky for many innocent drivers and their families the youngster did not meet them coming down the highway while he was travelling 110 miles per hour.

This has been the fate of too many people across the nation.

The case in Johnston County, perhaps, will open the door to a new approach to handling driving maniacs who happen to be very young.

His being sent to prison not only will keep the young Winston-Salem driver off the highways for at least a year and a half, it can serve as a lesson to many others who share his ideas about high speed and out-running law enforcement officers.

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Do you have "middle-age suspicion?"

If so, you are suffering from one of the commonest maladies of our times, but one which is rarely diagnosed, because it isn't ordinarily recognized by doctors as a medical entity any more than menopause in men is.

But the symptoms of "middle-age suspicion" are recognizable to most experienced personnel executives, marriage counsellors and others dealing in the problems of mental health. It is a condition insidious in itself that tends to be self-perpetuating and is quite difficult to isolate and combat.

It affects both men and women, although it is perhaps more often noticed in men.

What is "middle-age suspicion" and how can you tell if you have it?

"Middle-age suspicion" is a neurotic feeling of self-doubt and insufficiency shown by people in their middle years who begin to distrust and suspect the motives of others to a degree unjustified by the facts.

You should suspect yourself of being a victim of "middle-age suspicion" if many — or most — of the following things are true of you:

You are convinced that there is a conspiracy in the office to ease you out of your job or to keep your merit from being fully recognized.

You can't take criticism of any kind anymore without losing your temper.

Some of the younger men at the office, you feel, are poking fun at you behind your back.

You pick on other members of your family more than you used to.

You feel that every repairman you deal with is dishonest.

You may have lost one or more friends recently — or at least offended them — by impugning their loyalty.

More and more you mope about this being a "dog eat dog" world and that every man is determined to take advantage.

The Barnett Brothers' three-ring circus will exhibit at the Winslow lot on Wednesday, September 14th. The press agent stated that the show had such a successful business here last year that the management has put Greenville on the annual route.

Scarlet fever has been reported in the lower section of the county to health department workers and a warning has been sent out to keep further spread in check. With schools opening next week, the health department workers are doing everything possible to bring the people to a realization of the importance of reporting all cases of the illness so as to prevent an epidemic of any kind while the schools are in progress.

Strength For Today

HERE IS SOMETHING REAL

Are you an aristocrat?

You may be either surprised by such a question, or complimented, or offended. It all depends on the way you define the term "aristocrat."

Hereditary aristocracy is a pretty lame affair—giving credit for generations to unworthy people for something a worthy forebear did. Hereditary aristocracy is not popular in the world and indeed should not be. We like to think that there is a lot of democracy in the way God carries out His purpose.

But this, of course, does not preclude the emergence of aristocrats. Modern aristocracy is acquired, not inherited. Our modern idea of an aristocrat is one who reaches such a fine and elevated life, or performs such service to his fellow men, or makes such helpful discoveries that God is glorified and the welfare of man advanced. And do you mean to say that there are not tens of thousands of high-minded aristocrats today living lives of unselfish love, entertaining high ideals, serving fellow men and pressing toward goals of human betterment? Of course there are such people, and these are our aristocrats. We recognize them as such. We bless and honor them.

Don't be afraid to acknowledge aristocracy when you encounter it, and above all do not be afraid to aspire to it yourself.

Reconciliation Handed Setback

By ROON LEWALD
Associated Press Writer
BONN (AP) — The bullets that brought death to the 1972 Olympics may also have shattered Chancellor Willy Brandt's long-prepared reconciliation with the Arab world.

Three months ago, Egypt became the sixth country to pledge resumption of diplomatic ties with Bonn, seven years after the 10-nation Arab breakoff when West Germany recognized Israel in 1965.

Only five days before the Arab guerrilla operation that left 11 Israeli sportsmen dead in Munich, unofficial West German-Egyptian talks ended in the Olympic city with the announcement of a milestone visit to Bonn this month by Foreign Minister Mohammed Murad Ghalib.

Now the visit — the first such since the 1965 break — appears in doubt. "Nobody knows," a Foreign Ministry spokesman said when asked if Ghalib's visit was still on.

One newspaper called on the government to cancel the visit. The anti-Arab reaction in official circles was demonstrated by the resignation of Rudolf Werner from the co-chairmanship of an Arab-German friendship group in the Bundestag, the lower house of Parliament. Werner, a member of the opposition Christian Democratic party, said he would not rejoin the group until Arab governments clearly condemn terrorism.

Brandt himself was clearly angered by the lack of response from Arab leaders to his personal appeal for intervention to save the Israeli hostages. A spokesman for the chancellor told the television audience Bonn's relations with Cairo had been strained because President Anwar Sadat refused help when Brandt telephoned him to ask for safe passage for the Israelis should West Germany let the guerrillas fly their hostages to Cairo.

Even Hans-Juergen Wischewski, the leading expert on the Middle East in Brandt's Social Democratic party and the chief architect of Arab-German reconciliation, said in statement that the "murderous terrorism" had caused "irreparable harm" to the Arab name in West Germany and the rest of the world.

The disenchantment in the wake of Tuesday's tragedy was by no means one-sided. "The killing could have been avoided if the German police had not deceived the Palestinians," a columnist wrote in the semi-official Egyptian newspaper Al-Ahram.

The Palestine Arab delegation at the United Nations accused the German authorities of "dirty and inhuman treachery" in opening fire on the guerrillas after telling them they could take the hostages to Cairo.

Opposites Produced In Miss America Pageant

By G.G. LaBELLE
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—The second round of preliminary competition in the Miss America pageant produced a pair of opposites: a swimsuit winner who can't swim and a talent winner who's already proved her talent professionally.

Miss Indiana, 23-year-old Rebecca Sue Graham of Indianapolis won the swimsuit contest in the Thursday night preliminaries here, and Miss Wisconsin, Terry Anne Meeuwsen, took the talent prize.

Miss Meeuwsen, also 23 and a student at St. Norbert College, sang two years professionally with The New Christy Minstrels and has had her own nightclub act.

She received the heaviest applause of the evening when she belted out "He Touched Me," which was called "She Touched Me" in the short-lived Broadway musical, "Draught The Cat."

When asked backstage later

if she thought she had an advantage because of her experience over the other contestants, she said she might have been less nervous than the others, many of whom are in their teens and have had little performing experience.

"I think I have an advantage over girls who've never sung before a large audience," she said.

Miss Meeuwsen, who is 5-8, weighs 120 pounds and measures 36-25-36, was also asked if she thought the Miss America Pageant exploits women, a contention of women's liberation groups.

She said she had received $2,000 in scholarships and been given the opportunity to perform and express her ideas to newsmen through the pageant.

"Exploit me every day if that's what it is," she said.

Miss Indiana, whose victory was in a category that has also been a target of women's lib, said she was not embarrassed by appearing in a bathing suit in front of 4,700 persons because she was too worried about the way her legs looked.

"As an athlete my legs are muscular," the physical education major said. "I was thinking, 'What can I do with my legs?'"

Miss Indiana, who paraded her 37-25-37 figure in a red swimsuit, confessed her lack of swimming ability when asked if she also wore the suit while in the water.

"I don't know how to swim," she said.

tage of every other man.

Any fresh sign of the ravages of time — the thinning of your hair, the loss of a tooth, the appearance of a new wrinkle — causes you to become morose for days.

What can a man do if he recognizes these signs of "middle-age suspicion" in himself? Well, if he's still got any honesty and common sense left, he might look in the mirror and make himself a little speech:

"Listen, old-timer, there is nothing wrong with the world that wasn't wrong with it yesterday. What's really wrong with yourself is you. You're full of self-pity, just like a small boy who threatens to eat worms, then die, and make everybody sorry they picked on him. But acting like a coward won't make you any younger, so snap out of it — and go back to being a man again."

If you don't, "middle-age suspicion" will age you quicker and make you, as well as those around you, feel miserable beyond endurance. There is no cure for it but self-cure.

"I'd like to point out one more thing, and that is our President Monroe television set, which is probably the most valuable antique in the room. The television tube for the set was made by a French glass blower who died sometime around 1856. Every week we have someone come in to restore it. My husband believes if you have a piece of antique furniture you should never let it go."

"We're running out of time," I said. "Is there any other room you would like to show us?"

There is the Red Room where my 13-year-old son David holds his state receptions."

She led me toward it, but when she opened the door she slammed it closed immediately. "If I've told that damn kid once I've told him a million times to clean up his room!"

"Well, are there any other

She looked at me funny.

Local Army Reservists Adopt Clean-Up Project

The 398 Supply Co. (HM) (GS), Army Reserve unit based in Greenville, announced plans for a clean-up and restoration project of the football field formerly used by Eppes High School on Fifth Street.

Unit commander, Capt. Ivey C. Gentry of Kinston, reported that some 25 men of the 398th are planning to carry out an overall clean up of the athletic field Saturday in an effort to make the area suitable for usage by the city's youth football teams.

The Recreation Commission is coordinating with the unit, it was noted, and Reservist will furnish manpower for the clean-up effort. Plans depend on the weather, Gentry added.

The commanding officer said that the project will include cutting the grass on the field, conducting a general "policing" of the area, and repairing sideline bleachers. The project is expected to be completed Saturday, he said, and the city will handle the marking of the field for football.

The general purpose of the unit project, Gentry pointed out, is to "let the community know that the 398th, besides being a working part of the national defense, can also function as a working unit in the community."

Men from Greenville and surrounding communities make up the unit which has some 125 enlisted and officer personnel. The unit recently returned from its annual two weeks summer training at Tooele Army Depot, Utah where it received a commendation rating of excellent for work performed during the training period.

Smooth Opening Of N.C. Schools

RALEIGH (AP) — A top state school official says North Carolina's Public Schools have gotten off to a smooth start.

Bob Strother, assistant school superintendent for human relations, said the opening was the smoothest in four years and "the day of head knocking is over" in the state's schools.

"We're elated over the way things are going," Strother added. "I wouldn't change the climate in North Carolina for any in the southeast."

Several Tar Heel schools were plagued by violence and unrest in recent years, some of it following mass busing last fall.

"I haven't had a complain from a major civil rights group since schools opened," Strother added.

"The big difference has been that the leaders have decided, 'Let's take another look at our schools.'" The students come first. The major problems are no longer black and white. From now on it will be students on an individual basis."

Much of the credit, Strother added, should go to Gov. Bob Scott, State School Supt. Craig Phillips and the Governor's Task Force on School Unrest.

"They showed convincingly," he pointed out, "that a person really interested could have some effect in the local environment of the schools. Considerable work by community groups has helped improve the climate in the schools."

"Everybody has cooperated," he added. And the results were visible in the school openings this fall. There is a different atmosphere. I know because I work closely with the schools."

Architects For School Are Signed

WILLIAMSTON — Martin County's school construction program continues to forge ahead as members of the Martin County Board of Education Tuesday employed Boney Architectural Firm of Wilmington to prepare designs for the new Robersonville Primary School.

The firm is already working on plans for the new high school for the western portion of Martin County.

The architectural firm of Skinner-Lamb of Wilson also met with board to review plans for the new Jamesville Elementary School and the new Williamston Elementary School.

In other actions, the Martin County Board of Education approved a standardized school food services program. Lunches this year are being priced at 30 and 35 cents for elementary and secondary schools, respectively.

A number of requests by county students to attend schools in adjoining counties were all denied by the board.

Last minute school personnel were approved, and the board adopted a teacher tenure personnel policy, including a teacher evaluation report. Also approved were a few minor changes in student behavior policy.

Favor Mobile Voter Teams

The Pitt County Democratic Executive Committee, meeting this week, went on record as endorsing the use of mobile registration teams in an effort to increase voter registration and participation.

The committee, in the form of a resolution, went on record as being "... interested in the full participation of all of our citizens in the election process through voter registration."

The resolution continued, "Because many of our people have been unable to get to the office of the elections board during regular hours or to a given place at a specific time due to either distance or working hours, many find it difficult or impossible to register."

It further stated, "We therefore endorse the use of mobile registration teams made up of qualified volunteers of all races and political parties and commend the implementation of this procedure to the Pitt County Board of Elections in the manner prescribed by law."

Board of Elections chairman J. B. Spillman said this morning that the request of the executive committee would be considered by the board within the next two or three days. He noted that such an implementation of mobile teams would have to be accomplished at no cost to the county, in the event the idea is adopted.

Pirates Open Saturday Against Keydets

Last year, East Carolina University opened its football season against one of the toughest teams in the country, the University of Toledo. The Rockets won, 45-0, and went on to their third unbeaten season.

Saturday, the Pirates open the 1972 season, and while their opponent, Virginia Military Institute, isn't in the same boat with Toledo, the job of the Pirates is still going to be a tough one.

The Pirates are young. They will be starting four sophomores on defense, and one on offense. Of the offensive line, only two who start Saturday were on the traveling team last year, tackle Dan Killebrew and center Jimmy Creech.

But the Buc defense is improved, and there is a year of experience in the backfield for quarterback Carl Summerell and running back Carlester Crumpler.

Last year, Coach Sonny Randle, in his first year, was blessed with four fine running backs, including Crumpler and Les Strayhorn.

Now, Strayhorn is a senior looking for another fine year like the two he has already had. And there are two sophomores, Jimmy Howe and Don Schink whom Randle feels will battle the other two right down to the wire. It's so close, in fact, that the coach won't call the two starters at this time.

But going against the Pirates will be one of the big traditions of the Southern Conference. During the past 16 years for instance, VMI has lost opening game only four times. And that was against such fine teams as Tampa, William & Mary, George Washington and Villanova, whom they beat. During that same period, the Keydets posted only seven winning seasons, and have a 62-91-8 record. Their last winning season, coincidentally, was in 1967, when they went 6-4, and Vito Ragazzo, now the offensive coordinator, was the Keydet head coach then.

"This record, (12 of 16 openings) is remarkable when you think about it," Randle said. "We know they're going to be tough. They always are for this game. We're going to run into a real buzzsaw. They're going to be tough all year, but they'll be tougher against us."

The offense may build around Mac Bowmah, a 5-11, 190-pound running back. He was the offensive leader on the ground last year with 732 yards. He also led the scoring with 36 points.

But Randle is also concerned with the running ability of sophomore running back Ronnie Norman. "He has exceptional speed and quickness," Randle remarked. "Together with Bowman, they have a fine 1-2 punch."

The passing game at VMI is also expected to be improved. "They've got some receivers whom they think can catch the ball, but they're untested so far. But even then they'll be better than a year ago, and therefore will have a more balanced offense."

Randle also said that he's impressed with tight end Allen Morgan, a 6-2, 200-pound sophomore. "He's an outstanding player."

The coach feels that there are three men on the VMI team that are excellent athletes. They include Morgan and Bowman and a defensive linebacker, Gene Williams.

They call him "Mean Gene" at VMI, as he leads the defensive unit. "He's a great football player," Randle said. "He can also step into their offensive backfield and do the job too." He also is one of the leading return artists for VMI.

"We thought they were going to have a fine passer in their quarterback, Tom Schultze, but we understand that another is going to start, Burce Torbett," Randle said. "Torbett is a better runner and he has more speed and quickness."

The coach pointed out that VMI will come some 90 strong on the field, and that "they come at us from everywhere. If we take it to them, we'll be all right, I think."

But at the same time, he cautioned that the Pirates can't get down on the scoreboard quickly. "What we really need is to get up there first," he said. "We can't give them any daylight."

For the past week, Randle has tried to put the polish on the Pirate game, but admits that the week has been frustrating, but not because of anything the coaching staff or players could do.

"It was terribly hot on Monday, and we were hurt by this. Then, Tuesday it rained like it was never going to stop. Wednesday, I guess were all feeling sorry for ourselves wanting to get into the game, but Thursday, we finally got what we wanted. I just hope it wasn't too late."

The team is in good health, and only tackle Terry Cumberworth is a question mark, but Randle feels he could be ready.

The two upperclassmen running backs, Crumpler and Strayhorn, were both bothered by injuries last year, and Strayhorn had offseason surgery. Both now appear to be completely over this and are at 100 per cent.

One of the biggest improvements, however, is with Summerell at quarterback. A year older, the junior has shown great improvement during the past three weeks of drills. "There is just no comparison with him now and a year ago," Randle said.

The Buc defense, as noted is stronger this year, despite four sophomores in the starting lineup. "We have more speed and quickness," the coach said. And if there is to be a problem area, it may be the offensive line, where inexperience, is heavy.

The receiving ranks appear solid with Stan Eure, Wilbur Wilfore, Mike Shea and Tim Dameron.

If there is an advantage for either team, it is probably VMI's. It's their field, and the Keydet corps will be there. School spirit at a military school is practically a requirement rather than something that might occur.

Then there is also that first game tradition.

But it won't be quite like Toledo. "When you compare East Carolina and Toledo, you are not comparing apples with apples," Randle said. "When you talk about ECU and VMI, you are."

Game time is 1:30 p.m. Saturday. The Bucs left Greenville this morning for Lexington, and will work out there this afternoon.

The probable offensive starting lineup for ECU has Eure at tight end and Wilfore at split end. The tackles will be Cumberworth and Killebrew, while the guards are Fred Horeis and Greg Troupe. Creech will be at center. The backfield will have Summerell at quarterback and Dameron at flanker, and two of the four in the running back slots.

The defense will have Buddy Lowery and Robin Hogue at ends, Joe Tkach and Kirk Doll at tackles, Danny Kepley and Jim Post at inside linebackers, and Terry Stoughton, Rusty Markland and Mike Myrick in the secondary.

ACC Teams To Open Season

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
For Virginia it will be more than a football game of get-the-quarterback when the Cavaliers take on South Carolina at Columbia, S. C., Saturday night.

It will be a game of Cavalier defensive captain Billy Williams and other defenders trying to smear Bill Troup, the Virginia quarterback two years ago who bailed out and transferred to South Carolina after being demoted to the Cavaliers' second string.

Troup will be starting at quarterback for the Gamecocks in the season opener for both teams.

The game is one of five which finds Atlantic Coast Conference teams playing outside the conference. Clemson is at the Citadel, Duke goes to Birmingham, against Alabama, North Carolina hosts Richmond and Wake Forest entertains Davidson.

Maryland is at North Carolina State for the only ACC game.

At Columbia, Troup will not only be trying to assure South Carolina coach Paul Dietzel that he made the right choice for the quarterback slot. The 6-foot-5 junior will be trying to prove to his former Cavalier teammates that he has what it takes.

"I realized it wasn't that big," Troup remarked a few days ago about football at Virginia. "That wasn't the reason I wanted to leave. I had confidence I could go somewhere else and do a better job. Everything was stabilized down here (in Columbia)."

Two years ago Troup passed for 1,289 yards and 10 touchdowns at Virginia. He sat out the football season at South Carolina last year because he was a transfer student.

Of course there are other factors in the Virginia-South Carolina contest, the 34-14 drubbing the Gamecocks gave to the Cavaliers last year not the least among them.

South Carolina has a first-rate defensive line headed by 240-pound tackle John LeHeup.

But the Gamecocks are inexperienced in the backfield, with the exception of Troup. None of the top six prospects was even on the varsity a year ago.

The Cavaliers, 3-8 last year, have a long way to go. Their defensive unit gave up 272 points last year and must still use youth at tackle.

Runners Barred; DeMont Loses Medal

By BOB JOHNSON
Associated Press Sports Editor
MUNICH (AP) — The International Olympic Committee came down hard on the United States today, barring controversial quarter-milers Vince Matthews and Wayne Collett from future participation in these Games and rejecting an American appeal of its ruling to strip swimmer Rick DeMont of his gold medal.

The IOC ruled that because of their behavior on the victory stand following Thursday's 400-meter race, Matthews and Collett would not be allowed to compete again. They had been scheduled to go in Sunday's 1,600-meter relay race.

Then the Olympic ruling body confirmed its earlier decision to strip DeMont of his swimming gold because of positive results of a post-event drug test. U.S. officials had argued that DeMont's use of the drug for an asthma condition should not have eliminated him, but the IOC disagreed.

Meanwhile, the American basketball team and Coach Hank Iba prepared for its title showdown with Russia.

"We'll have a tough time keeping them off the backboards," Iba said of the Russians Thursday night after his kids demolished Italy 68-38 in the semifinal game which followed the Soviet Union's 67-61 triumph over Cuba. Both teams carry 8-0 records into Saturday night's gold-medal final.

Matthews and Rod Milburn highlighted the best day of the American track and field squad has had at these 20th Summer Olympic Games—but some of Matthews' and Collett's actions on the victory stand, somehow reminiscent of the black-gloved protest by U.S. athletes four years ago, angered some of the 80,000 Olympic Stadium spectators.

Milburn, from Opelouses, La., stood erect, facing the flag as the Star-Spangled Banner was played after he'd won the 110-meter hurdles in a world record-equalling 13.2 seconds. France's Guy Druet was second and Army Lt. Tom Hill of Knoxville, Tenn., got the bronze.

But after Matthews and Collett finished 1-2 in the 400-meter dash, Collett stepped up from his tier and joined Matthews on the No. 1 perch as the national anthem began. They stood sideways, facing away from the flag, Matthews with his arms folded and Collett with hands on hips, chatting occasionally as the music played on.

And when the ceremony ended, Matthews walked toward the stands, twirling the gold medal on its chain as the whistles and boos rolled down upon the field.

Was it a protest? "No way," replied Matthews, the speedster from Brooklyn, N.Y., who had been clocked in 44.66 seconds to the 44.80 by his silver-winning teammate from Santa Monica, Calif.

"The reason Collett came on the stand with me was not a protest," Matthews continued. "We consider ourselves the best quarter-milers in the world. If we wanted to protest we could do a better job than that."

But Collett wasn't as emphatic in his denial. When asked why he hadn't stood at attention during the national anthem, he said: "I couldn't do it with a clear conscience."

The other American medal of the day went to Kathy Hammond of Sacramento, Calif., who took the bronze in the women's 400 meters, setting a U.S. record with her clocking of 51.64 seconds. The gold went to East Germany's Monika Zehrt in an Olympic-record 51.08. West German Rita Wilden got the silver.

Steve Prefontaine of Oregon was the only American qualifier for the finals of the 5,000 meters, coming in second in his heat.

Russia also got two golds in track and field Thursday as Nadezhda Chizhova won the women's shot put and Anatoly Bondarchuk took the men's hammer throw. East Germany's other gold came in the women's 200 meters, won by Renate Stecher in a world record-equalling 22.4 seconds.

A defense that has become a trademark of the American basketball team here—it has allowed an average of just 43 points a game—destroyed Italy's hopes of an upset.

The United States, unbeaten in 63 games since the sport was introduced to the Olympics in the 1936 Berlin Games, broke it open in the first half, taking a 13-10 lead and running up to 33-16 by the intermission and 54-24 in the second half.

It was another dismal day for Americans in the circular ring and another successful one in the square one.

In Greco-Roman wrestling, eight of 10 U.S. entries were eliminated, including 400-pound Chris Taylor of Dowagiac, Mich., who found himself amazingly hoisted into the air, then pinned by Czechoslovakia's Patr Kment.

The only Americans in medal contention are Air Force Capt. Wayne Baughman of Universal City, Tex., despite a loss to West Germany's Guenter Kowalewski, and Jay Robinson of Spring Valley, Calif., who defeated Jesus Blanco of Argentina.

In boxing, middleweight Marvin Johnson and welterweight Ray Seales came back from first-round standing eight-counts—knockdowns according to Olympic standards—to score victories by decisions.

It puts four Americans—welterweight Jesse Valdez and bantamweight Ricardo Carreras are the others—into the semifinals and guarantees them medals.

Johnson, an 18-year-old left-hander from Indianapolis, recovered from a stunning straight right to the jaw by Alejandro Montoya in the first round, battering the Cuban with combinations in the second and outbrawling him in the third-round in-fighting to take a unanimous decision.

Seales, 22, from Tacoma, Wash., took a split decision over Cuba's Andres Molina despite taking a standing eight-count, in the first round. Molina lost an important point in that round when he was penalized for hitting with the heel of his glove. Seales recouped the rest of the way with accurate jabbing while the Cuban kept swinging wildly.

Bucs, Rampants Get First Nods

That time of year has finally rolled around again, and the footballs are flying through the air. Last week, the high schools of the area opened the door, and this week, the collegiates take center stage, playing their first games of the season.

And once again, our peerless panel of prognosticators will again be vying for world title (Greenville version) of the "Pick The Winner" championship.

Returning this year are five members of last year's panel. One member was unable to compete this year, so we have replaced her. Back again are Jack Whichard, representing management and advertising; John Trotman, representing advertising; George Holland, representing composing; Tom Baines, representing the news room; and myself, representing the sports department.

Our newest member is Sandra Spivey, our distaff panelist.

We'll try to present, as best we can, the winners in a dozen contests each week, and then see who the champ is at the end of the season. We hope, of course, to repeat as champion.

First off, however, we'll take a look at the high school action around the area.

Rose High School entertains Washington's Pam Pack in their first home game. The Rampants rolled over Farmville Central last week, while Washington also won, but in a more difficult manner.

The Rampants have a backfield that few can vie with. If their defense holds up as it did last week, it should be a good game.

We'll go with Rose here, along with four of the other five on the panel.

Robersonville goes to Chocowinity in its first conference test. The Eagles edged Williamston last week, and picked up their 13th straight victory. They should get number 14 this time out.

Farmville Central goes to Eastern Wayne. The Warriors have been off a week after an early opening against Goldsboro when they lost. The Jaguars have a long way to go before claiming a victory, so Eastern must be the favorite.

Conley goes to C. B. Aycock in another Eastern Carolina Conference game. The Vikings had it rough against tough Southern Wayne, while Aycock won easily last week. Conley could pull this one out, but we'll stick with Aycock.

North Lenoir visits North Pitt in another good game. The Hawks lost to South Lenoir last week, while North Pitt was tying West Craven. The Panthers are improved, and North Lenoir could be ripe for an upset, but we'll stick with the Hawks.

Southern Wayne is at Ayden-Grifton is a key game. The Saints already have one league win and will be out to solidify their hold on first. The Chargers have had only three days to prepare, and this could hurt them. I'll pick Southern.

Greene Central visits Southern Nash in another top contest. The Rams must win to hold onto the favorites role in the league. Southern Nash is vastly improved, but are they improved enough. We don't think so — Greene Central is our choice.

Northampton visits Williamston in the first Albemarle Conference chase for the Tigers. They lost in a surprise to Robersonville last week, but they should rebound and win this one.

Turning to the collegiate scene, East Carolina opens its season against VMI in Lexington, Va. The Keydets have the reputation for being tough in their opening contest, and the Pirates are on the receiving end of that game this year.

The Bucs have a backfield that is a dream, and a defense that, although somewhat young, is still rated as strong. The offensive line is the question mark, and how well it performs may tell the tale.

VMI is going to be improved over last year when it won only one game (its first).

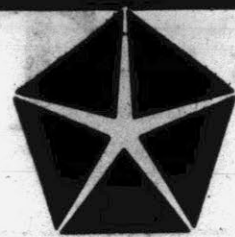

We, along with four others, will go with the Pirates to win this first game of the year.

Bowles Sees No Wrong Day Care Center In Soliciting For Funds Standards Set

DURHAM AP — Republican candidate for governor Jim Holshouser says trustees of community colleges in North Carolina are being solicited to contribute to the campaign of Democrat Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles, and Bowles says he sees nothing wrong with it.

Holshouser told a Durham civic club Thursday that trustees of eight community colleges had been asked to contribute $1,000 for each school to the Bowles campaign.

The GOP candidate released a copy of a letter ostensibly from J. F. Havens of Tarboro, a telephone company executive and a member of the State Advisory Council for Community Colleges and technical institutes, to support his allegation.

In confirming that requests for contributions were being made, Bowles said, "I see nothing at all wrong with their efforts."

"It is no different than in the primaries when my opponent was endorsed by the school teachers' organization and received a large sum of money from the group. I expect to promptly report any such money I might receive," said Bowles in a statement released in Raleigh.

"I am aware of the fact that many members of the boards of trustees of community colleges and technical institutes are trying to raise money for our campaign," Bowles added.

"I am delighted that they are," Bowles added. "It is absolutely proper that they should do that. It is perfectly true that their number one goal is my number one goal. Career education is their business and it will be the first priority of my administration."

The letter Holshouser identified as written by Havens said:

"Our goal for the campaign fund of Skipper is $1,000 per institute and I hope that you can, through your connections, have each of the eight institutions raise their quota not later than Sept. 15, 1972."

"It appears most appropriate that we assist this candidate Bowles in the November election in view of his stated position as to priority one during his prospective four years in office."

Holshouser pointed out that the state has 56 of the community institutions and commented:

"Until my opponent has adequately answered the questions surrounding this incident, we must presume that his price for a $125 million commitment to vocational education is $56,000."

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Board of Health has approved sanitation standards for day care centers. The action came at a board meeting Thursday.

The day care regulations, which still must be approved by the Child Day Care Licensing Board, covers such things as food services, toilet facilities, solid waste disposal and clean floors, walls, ceilings and storage spaces.

When the rules go into effect they will apply to all child care centers caring for more than four children.

In other action, the board approved regulations for the distribution of grants under the state Clean Water Bonds Act.

These regulations already have been approved by the Board of Water and Air Resources and still must pass through the Department of Administration and the Advisory Budget Commission before they are adopted.

The board made no changes in the draft submitted by the Water and Air Resources Board.

Voters approved the bonds in a referendum May 6. The money will be used to provide grants to cities and counties for clean water projects.

The state Board of Health is responsible for administering some $70 million of the $150 million bond money.

Golf Underpass Has Commission's Okay

JACKSONVILLE, N. C. (AP) — The North Carolina Highway Commission has approved a controversial golf cart tunnel that its forces built under a secondary road at the Zebulon Country Club.

The commission agreed that the state would pay half the cost of the project which is estimated at $7,200.

The project has been criticized by Republican gubernatorial nominee Jim Holshouser and by Jake Froelich, the campaign manager for Democratic candidate Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles.

Gov. Bob Scott defended the project as a needed safety measure, but he criticized the way in which highway commissioner Clifton L. Benson of Raleigh handled it.

Benson ordered the project built and charged to maintenance funds which do not have to have the approval of the full commission as construction projects do.

When the commission approved the use of construction funds for the project Thursday, Commissioner Charles Dawkins of Fayetteville abstained from voting.

Dawkins said he considered approving the Benson project would be bad precedent. He also noted that he had been unable to get the commission to consider a project he wanted in Bladen county calling for building access roads to a golf course.

It's A Boy For Zoo's Gorillas

NEW YORK (AP) — Mother and child are doing fine—and the father, as usual, is watching from the sidelines at the Central Park Zoo, new home of the first gorilla ever born here.

It's a boy, four a half pounds, and it arrived Sunday to the surprise of zookeepers who didn't know the 7-year-old mother, Lulu, was pregnant.

While Lulu fondles and kisses the baby, tentatively named Sunny Jim, the proud father, Kongo, also 7, watches from a neighboring cage. The keepers are afraid Kongo might inadvertently injure his son.

The family is sequestered in the lion house and will be there for about two weeks to afford them some privacy from well-wishers.

Survival

Medieval knights felt invincible when they strode forth to battle in a suit of armor. Unfortunately, more protection meant less mobility. Finally armor became so cumbersome that it was relegated to museums—the useless antique was discarded—not the man under the metal coverall. He had to adapt to the change!

How many of our ideas and customs have become useless? The world is not static and even some values change. What we cherish must be genuine. That goes for Faith, too. A shallow faith cannot survive the twentieth century—or any era for that matter. But the Christian faith is not superficial, or outmoded! It survives, and continues to reach millions each Sunday—proof that Christianity is not destined for the museum.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 NT Pass 2 NT Pass
3 NT Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Queen of ♠
A failure to count his tricks led declarer into a fatal misstep early in his campaign on a deal where nine tricks were already there for the taking.
Altho South ostensibly holds 16 high card points which constitutes the minimum requirement for an opening one no trump bid, his values were enhanced by three tens as well as an establishable five card suit. Therefore, when North invited him to carry on by raising to two no trump, South was warranted in contracting for game.
West opened the queen of diamonds and the trick was won by North's king. The queen of clubs was led and East put up the ace to return another diamond. South played the ten, losing to West's jack and another round cleared the suit as East discarded a heart.

South had only eight top tricks—four clubs, two diamonds, one heart, and one spade. The ten of clubs was overtaken by the jack to lead a heart. If East held both the king and queen, declarer could establish his fulfilling trick in that suit. When East followed with the five of hearts, South put in the ten. When West turned up with the king, he proceeded to cash three diamond tricks to set his opponent down by two.
Declarer started on the hearts too late. While he could not be certain which opponent had the ace of clubs, it was reasonable to assume that the heart honors were split. Inasmuch as a second heart trick is essential to South's quota of taking nine, he should play that suit first, for even if West wins the trick, he is not in position to continue the attack in diamonds himself.
Observe the effect, if declarer leads a heart from dummy at trick two and finesses the ten. West is in with the king, but if he returns a diamond—it is into the ace-ten. Assume that he finds the most effective shift, to a spade and North plays the eight, East the nine and South wins with the ace. A club now dislodges East's ace and the latter returns a diamond. Declarer can put up the ace, cross over to the dummy in clubs and repeat the heart finesse. When the jack wins the next trick, he is assured of nine tricks—one spade, two hearts, two diamonds, and four clubs.

Mining Policy Said Weighed

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers told Congress eight days after North Vietnamese harbors were mined that the possibility of Soviet retaliation had been weighed but "we decided that it was not that much of a risk."

Nor, said Rogers, did he believe the U.S. action would provoke future Soviet retaliation elsewhere, such as in the Middle East, or drive the Soviets and China closer together to continue getting arms to Hanoi.
"We said we do not think they will want a major confrontation with us," he told the House foreign operations appropriations subcommittee May 16. "So far we are right."
The United States began mining North Vietnamese harbors May 8.
The subcommittee today released a censored transcript of Rogers's testimony.
Rogers invited the congressmen to dissuade public concern at the time about a possible U.S.-Soviet crisis. But he asked them not to quote him.
"If I say it, then it will look as if I am trying to challenge the Soviet Union," he said.
Rogers discounted rumors that presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger gave the Soviets advance warning, to avoid a confrontation, of President Nixon's May 8 announcement of the bombing and mining. The U.S. move was aimed at cutting off arms shipments to Hanoi.

The secretary said the President and his advisers judged, rather, that good U.S. relations would be more important to the Soviets than would retaliation against the U.S. mining in North Vietnam.
He said the Soviets wanted the May 26 Moscow arms-limitation accords, trade, the Berlin agreement and detente in Europe so they could concentrate on their problems with China.

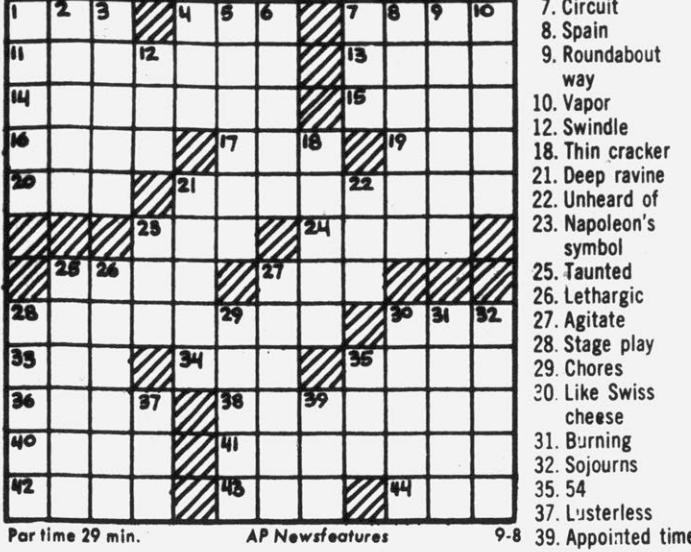

"So their whole foreign policy is wrapped up in this," Rogers said, "and, in order to carry it out, the summit and the relations with the United States are important."

Sea Lion Took To Jaywalking

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Startled motorists screeched to a stop as a 250-pound male sea lion wandered into the middle of a busy thoroughfare, police reported.
Officials from the animal shelter claimed the unusual jaywalker. They said he probably had waddled away from the Oakland Estuary, about a half-mile away.

Environmental Bill Of Rights Backers Here To Urge Public

State Sen. Herman Moore, Dr. Douglas Reid Sasser, and Jay Cornet flew into Greenville yesterday to call public attention to the Environmental Bill of Rights amendment which will be voted on in November.

Sen. Moore is cosponsor of the bill along with Sen. Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles, who introduced it in the 1971 Session of the General Assembly. A committee was formed yesterday to promote passage of the bill. Called the North Carolina Citizens Committee for Passage of the Environmental Bill of Rights, it is headed by Dr. Douglas Reid Sasser, president of Pfeiffer College, chairman, and Jay Cornet, host of the Carolina Conservationist radio and television program.

The Environmental Bill of Rights is designed to amend the state constitution to provide for the protection of our state's natural resources. If passed, it would provide the legal "teeth" for environmental protection in North Carolina. It also would provide for the preservation of lands which because of their natural beauty, wilderness character, or geological, ecological, or historical significance should be protected by the state.

"The beauty and grandeur that is North Carolina could be lost," Dr. Sasser said. "The responsibility for ecological preservation is in our hands. Let us not be the generation that lost the battle, but let us assure all future generations of North Carolinians the enjoyment of a good, clean, healthy environment. We urge everyone to vote for the Environmental Bill of Rights on Nov. 7."

The ballot will read: FOR constitutional amendment to conserve and protect North Carolina's natural resources or AGAINST constitutional amendment to conserve and protect North Carolina's natural resources.
