City Manager

William H. Carstarphen, 32-year-old native of Williamston and currently Assistant City Manager of Charlotte, was this morning named Greenville's new City Manager.

At a special call meeting of the City Council, Carstarphen was selected to fill the vacancy created by the retirement of former City Manager Colonel Harry E. Hagerty.

Carstarphen was chosen from a number of candidates for the office who have been considered by Mayor S. Eugene West and members of the City Council over the past several weeks.

A graduate of Duke University, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and the University of Kansas, where he received the Master of Public Administration in 1967; Carstarphen has been Assistant City Manager for Community Development in Charlotte since September, 1970.

He has served with the Charlotte City administration in various positions since July 1964.

Married and the father of three children, Carstarphen is expected to assume his duties in Greenville by October 9 and no later than October 16. The new city manager's salary will be $19,500 annually.

Big U.S. Wheat Sales To Communist China Aired

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department said today trade documents indicate that about 15 million bushels of U.S. wheat have been sold to China.

The department's export marketing service said export payment registrations it received under a special wheat export program, in effect from Aug. 25 to Sept. 1, indicate that quantity has been designated for delivery to the Communist nation.

The service said, however, that even though export payments on the grain have been certified, it doesn't necessarily mean that sales were made by U.S. exporters directly to China.

It said that sales made through third parties for re-export to China also quality for U.S. export subsidies.

The subsidies are paid exporters to make U.S. wheat more competitive on the world market.

The department's announcement was the first official word of the deal with China. Earlier, Washington sources indicated a 20-million-bushel order had been obtained from China.

At current wheat prices of around $1.65 a bushel, a 15-million-bushel order would be worth about $25 million.

The department issued its statement at about the time Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz went to the Capitol to face congressional quizzing about aspects of the U.S.-Soviet multimillion dollar wheat deal.

"The sale (to the Soviets) is good for all citizens," Butz said in testimony for a House Agriculture subcommittee. "It is a major contribution to better commercial and political relations between two powerful nations."

Butz, in his prepared testimony, made no reference to the sale of grain to China.

But Butz, after Washington sources said Wednesday that a U.S. grain firm had obtained a 20-million-bushel order from the People's Republic of China, said if a deal was pending or concluded he was unaware of it.

However, Butz said after a speech to a farm meeting: "Down the road sometime is a substantial trade agreement with China. I don't know how close it will be. The President opened the door a little bit with his China trip."

Washington sources, meantime, said they expect that payment for this first American grain sale to Communist China in more than 20 years would be made in cash.

Scott Says Time Has Come To Begin Medical Emergency Care Plan

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott said today "the time has come for North Carolina to devise and implement a statewide program of emergency medical care."

In a talk prepared for the Governor's Conference on Innovations in Health Care Delivery, Scott said that presently "emergency medical services represent one of the weakest aspects of our total health care delivery system."

Scott told the conference that the recommendation by the Legislative Research Commission for the creation of an Office of Emergency Medical Services within the state Department of Human Resources "is good," and "I hope that the budget requests for funding of the program will be favorably received by the 1973 General Assembly."

He said a statewide plan would include:

—Development of a communications network which would utilize existing facilities of hospitals, ambulance firms, highway patrol, highway department, civil defense and ham radio operators.

—Upgrading ambulance service equipment and sanitation requirements as well as upgrading the training requirements for ambulance attendants.

—Developing a regional system of classifying hospital emergency rooms according to their facilities and capabilities.

"We need a coordinated system that will take a stricken person quickly to a place where the particular type of attention he needs is available," Scott.

He said the Legislative Research Commission had "found that many of the emergency medical resources of our state are under-developed and ineffective" and that "there are wide variations in the availability of trained ambulance attendants, ready ambulance vehicles, reliable communications and capable hospital emergency room service."

20,000 Added

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twenty thousand persons were added to the nation's welfare rolls in May, but costs declined by $22 million, the government announced today.

The Department of Health Education and Welfare said the number of recipients in federal welfare programs rose by 40,000 to a total of 14.1 million while nonfederal general-assistance rolls declined by about 20,000 to 908,000.

Expenditures totaled $1.6 billion, representing a $1.4-million drop in cash payments and $20.6 million less for Medicaid.

Seventeen states and the Virgin Islands reported fewer persons receiving Aid for Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) while 36 state jurisdictions reported increases, HEW said in the monthly report.

The net increase of AFDC recipients was 20,000 or .2 per cent for the month, a total of 10.9 million.

HEW said payments to AFDC recipients were $7.5 million less in May, led by New York and California with drops of 7.4 and 4.8 per cent respectively.

Kissinger Bringing 'Options'

Broad Soviet Trade Pact Seen

By LEWIS GULICK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger is returning from Moscow with good prospects for signing of a broad U.S.-Soviet trade agreement within a month or less, administration sources say.

At the same time, the sources cautioned against a report from Moscow forecasting the pact would produce $4.9 billion worth of U.S.-Soviet trade by 1977.

Writer Victory Louis, a Soviet citizen who has had an inside track on some major Kremlin stories in the past, gave the multibillion-dollar figure in reporting on Kissinger's three days of talks with Soviet leaders.

Kissinger is due back Friday after brief stops in London and Paris.

The Administration sources said Kissinger is bringing President Nixon several options but reached no final agreements.

Stating that it is too early to place a dollar value on prospective U.S.-Soviet trade, the sources said the Moscow report apparently assumed agreement on some major projects in which the Soviets are interested.

Rating high among these is proposed joint U.S.-Soviet development of oil and gas deposits in the Soviet Union. The Soviets are interested in a joint venture in Siberia which would include Japanese and American companies, and also in one in Western Russia, the sources said.

But the United States was said to be taking a cautious, goslow approach because of financing and other problems involved.

Kissinger was reported to have made substantial progress toward final resolution of the lend-lease dispute which has stood in the way of expanding U.S.-Soviet trade.

Negotiations on settling the post-World War II Soviet I.O.U. for U.S. lend-lease shipments is said to be at a stage where both sides agree Moscow will pay $500 million over the next 30 years.

A lend-lease settlement in turn would open the way toward application of most-favored-nation tariff treatment by the United States towards the Soviet Union.

Progress also was made, the sources said, toward a U.S.-Soviet maritime agreement for ships of each country to carry trade to the other. This would apply particularly to the large Soviet purchases of U.S. grain.

Other matters on Kissinger's Moscow agenda were said to include the proposed European Security Conference, talks on mutual force cuts in Europe, and Vietnam. There was no immediate indication of any dramatic development in these areas.

Maurice Stans Strikes Back In 'Bugging' Case

By DICK BARNES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's chief fund-raiser, Maurice H. Stans, has struck back on two fronts at Democrats who he says are trying to make political capital out of Republican campaign-money controversies and the break-in at Democratic headquarters.

Stans accused the House Banking and Currency Committee of "partisan misbehavior and discourtesy" after its staff report questioned his denials of involvement in a transaction linked to the Democratic-headquarters-bugging affair.

And Wednesday Stans joined in filing a $2.5-million civil suit against Lawrence F. O'Brien, former Democratic chairman and now chairman of Sen. George McGovern's presidential campaign. The suit charged O'Brien with abusing the federal-court process in connection with O'Brien's $1-million suit stemming from the break-in and alleged bugging of Democratic national headquarters.

A spokesman for O'Brien said the GOP suit was frivolous and "an attempt to intimdate us from pursuing our own suit against the Republicans. We will not be intimidated by such desperate tactics."

The Democratic National Committee, meanwhile, said a small black gadget described as a listening device was found in a telephone Wednesday at party headquarters.

Committee officials said the device was removed by the FBI after a secretary reported that the phone line was not functioning properly. Newsmen were not allowed to see the device. The FBI would not comment on the incident.

Stans' attack on the House committee report and the GOP suit further escalated the political battle which has developed since five men, equipped with eavesdropping and photographic equipment, were arrested in the Democratic offices June 17.

Stans, former Commerce secretary, has been drawn into the controversy because $114,000 in Republican campaign funds was held for a time in the Miami bank account of one of the men charged in the break-in.

Recreation Commission Endorses Referendum

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Members of Greenville's Recreation Commission Wednesday night unanimously went on record to express the commission's support of the October 17 referendum for capital improvement facilities for the Recreation Department.

The motion, offered by Dr. Herbert Hadley, reads:

"In that the City Council has indicated by their majority vote at the August meeting they feel the best way to achieve additional recreation facilities is by a four cent per $100 valuation tax levy to be voted on at the October referendum, I would like for this commission to go on record as approving this referendum and pledge to work for its passing individually and collectively."

The adoption of the motion followed a lengthy discussion by commission members about misunderstandings that have cropped up recently about the intent of use of funds from the additional levy if the voters approve the increase.

It was pointed out in the discussions that misunderstanding centered on whether or not legally the city would be bound to construct three swimming pools before any other facilites could be constructed from tax revenues.

Wording on the ballot to be used by voters on October 17 reads (for or against) ... "a four cents per $100 tax valuation assessment to be used to construct and operate swimming pools and other recreational capital facilities."

The wording of the legal notice appearing in The Daily Reflector on August 18, however, states "the revenue proceeds from such assessment would be used solely to construct three swimming pools, pay the operating expenses of said pools, and the surplus, if any, made available to the Greenville

End Stalemate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate broke a month-long stalemate on the U.S.-Soviet arms limitation agreement today by voting to curb debate.

A leadership-sponsored motion to invoke cloture was adopted 76-15, 15 votes more than the two-thirds majority required.

With each senator limited to one hour for debate on the resolution approving the agreement, and all of the 16 pending amendments to it, Senate leaders foresaw a chance for final action by tonight.

Coordinates UF Campus Division

John S. Bell Jr. will coordinate United Fund activities on the East Carolina University campus this year as head of the ECU Division, Karl Faser, campaign chairman, announced today.

Bell, purchasing director at the university since 1970, served as business officer for the Division of Continuing Education at ECU from 1967 until he assumed his present post. Prior to his tenure with the Division of Continuing Education, Bell held the position of economics intern with the Southern Regional Education Board.

The division chairman earned his B.S. degree in business administration and masters of business administration from ECU.

A member of the Greenville Jaycees and the American Purchasing Society, Bell was listed in the 1970 edition of "Outstanding Young Men of America."

Viewing his appointment as chairman of the university division, Bell said that, "Naturally I am pleased to participate in the Pitt County United Fund campaign. The university community has traditionally been a major supporter of the United Fund. We trust that this year will be no exception."

The chairman and his wife, Judith, have a two-year-old child and currently reside on Crestline Blvd. They attend Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church.

Born in Newport in Carteret County, Bell is the son of Mr and Mrs. J. S. Bell Sr.

Five Pitt Semifinalists In Scholars Program

Three boys and two girls from Pitt County have been announced as semifinalists in the 18th annual National Merit Scholarship Program.

Four of the five are from Rose High School. One is a student at North Pitt High School.

Phyllis Robin McKee, a senior at North Pitt and daughter of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Robert F, McKee, is the semifinalist from the county school system. Phyllis attended Governor's School this past summer, is a marshal, a member of the Honor Society, was homeroom officer as a junior and belongs to the French Club and the F.H.A. Future plans include attendance at Duke University with a probable major in English. She has studied piano for nine years.

From Rose High, the one female student semifinalist in the National Merit Scholarship Program is Nancy Martin. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Martin, Nancy was born in Yonkers, New York, and has lived in Greenville two years. She is a member of the Math, Chess, Spanish Club, the Cercle Francais and the Science-Ecology Club. Nancy is undecided in the choice of a college, but her main interest is in the field of European languages and culture.

Steven M. Mitchell, a native of Atlanta, is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Mitchell. A co-editor of the yearbook, Steven is also vice-president of the Math Club, and is a member of the Chess and Science-Ecology Clubs, as well as treasurer for the National Honor Society. Active in Boy Scout work, he plans to attend the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and to major in math or science.

William P. Moore, III is the only Greenville native of the four Rose High students to achieve the semifinalist rating. Son of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Moore, Jr., William was a tackle on the football team last year. He is a member of the Chess, the Math, the Science and Ecology Clubs, is a member of the National Honor Society and is an active Boy Scout. William plans to major in pre-med studies at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill.

Fred E. Vultee, born in Washington, D. C. is the son of Dr. and Mrs. M. R. Schweisthal.

Ethel Waters, Who Sang On Broadway Stage, Sings With Billy Graham Now

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Ethel Waters, who has spent most of her life singing many different kinds of songs, these days is singing for the Lord.

Whenever she can, she sings with the Billy Graham Crusade. Her first singing jobs, starting as a teen-ager, were honkytonk, where the lyrics had double meanings. Since, she has sung in nightclubs, on the Broadway stage and on other stages across the country. She introduced "Dinah" in 1924 and "Stormy Weather" in 1933.

She was speaking in connection with her autobiography, "To Me It's Wonderful," which she wrote about her rededication to God, after a Billy Graham Crusade in New York in 1957. "It is not a Bible," she says. "There is nothing in the book to scare or annoy or embarrass you. You'll be able to laugh and smile. It is just a human story."

An earlier autobiography, "His Eye Is on the Sparrow," she says she wrote "to show what a person, regardless of status, can overcome."

Miss Waters, who seldom talks to the press, said, "When the crusade came to New York, I was doing summer stock. My weight was monstrous. I hated the world and everybody in it, including me.

"Hate is so cancerous. When you let your temper get the best of you, who has the headaches and high blood pressure? You. That's why I laugh so much now. I'm not going to let the Devil best me.

"I used to listen to Billy Graham on the radio. I had this inner something lacking in my life that I had once experienced when I was 12. I was lonely. I wanted to find that right relationship with God I had once experienced.

"I went to Madison Square Garden to hear Billy. You would have almost thought he was talking to me. What he said seemed to answer questions that I had in my mind.

"It was the first time I'd been to that kind of thing, though I'd worked in benefits and programs. The spirit don't always thrive but it was thriving with me then.

"After the first week, I asked if I could get a pass to get in. I was so big it was hard to stand in a crowd every night. They gave me a choir pass so I'd be able to sit in the choir. I didn't intend to sing; I just wanted to get in there.

"Then they asked me to sing a solo. I knew I had to make a decision. I knew if I sang 'His Eye Is on the Sparrow' there, I shouldn't sing 'Heat Wave' the next night. I prayed a lot about it. My only livelihood was the theater. I didn't know how I was going to earn a penny. I was thinking about days in the past when I had nothing. But I made my decision. It hasn't been a bed of roses. But if I had it all to do over again, I'd have done it sooner."

Miss Waters now sometimes will sing "Taking a Chance on Love," which she sang on Broadway in 1941 in "Cabin in the Sky," where she also did a can can choreographed for her by George Balanchine. She says, "I slip in 'His love' at the end. I'm tricky."

And she has recreated her role of Bernice in "Member of the Wedding" since 1957. "I reached my peak in 1971. I drew crowds of people at the Ivanhoe Theater in Chicago in a blizzard with an entirely amateur cast. What people sensed in that play is the genuine love between the girl and little Brandon and I in that kitchen. You don't find much real love in theaters. What audiences want is reality and honesty and heart."

Miss Waters recalls that she asked that "His Eye Is on the Sparrow" be sung in that play. As written, it called for Bernice to sing a Russian folk song.

Asked to reminisce some more, Miss Waters says, "I introduced 'Dinah' at the original Plantation Club.'Havin' a Heat Wave' was my signature song before 'Stormy Weather.' At the Cotton Club they spent a whole season trying to find somebody to sing 'Stormy Weather.' People kept rehearsing it. They were thinking of it as rain.

"To me it was inside; it was turmoil; it wasn't the elements. Herman Stark liked it and started putting it on at a certain time every night. We'd have standing room only just at that time. Harold Arlen was pulling his hair out, he was so elated.

"In 'As Thousands Cheer,' I sang 'Supper Time.' Irving Berlin was incensed over a lynching and he wanted this serious song in the play about it."

Miss Waters says she is 75 but records have her down as 72, which causes her to get lower Social Security payments. "But I get sick of hearing gripes. Life can be more pleasant than digging up something to beef about.

"My color never held me back, either. I've run into as many beat-up white people as I have colored. Many a rich woman has cried on my shoulder when I was a maid, because her husband was running around. There is no color to misery or joy or hate.

"At times I have hated a whole lot of people. I'm not going to be a doormat now. But you can't love the Lord and dislike people. When you get right with Him, you understand that."

SINGING FOR THE LORD — Ethel Waters, whose first singing jobs were honkytonk, and who went on to sing in nightclubs and on the Broadway stage, is singing with the Billy Graham Crusade as much as possible these days.

New England Offers Regional Delicacies

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

American cookery is notable mainly for its regional dishes, from the creamy "She-Crab" soup of South Carolina to the pungent reindeer salami of Alaska.

New England, with the abundance of seafood harvested from its coastal waters and the rich variety of vegetables grown on its rolling farmlands, is famed for clambakes, shore suppers and robust boiled dinners with a brisket of beef and half a dozen vegetables simmered together for hours.

Vermont maple syrup, Boston baked beans and rich brown bread are also famous all over America, but New England has delicacies that are little known outside the region.

For openers there is red flannel hash, an intriguing mixture of chopped corned beef, diced bacon, beets, potatoes and heavy cream. The hash, which gets its odd name from the vivid red color given off by the beets, is a holdover from the colonial days when frugal housewives chopped up the leftovers from the boiled dinner served the night before.

How many first-time visitors to New England have ever sampled broiled tripe with mustard sauce, pumpkin muffins or berry grunt, a wonderful pudding whose berry ingredients vary with the seasons?

I recently visited the venerable Massachusetts town of Sturbridge which was transformed into a rambling historical museum about a quarter century ago, and which leans heavily on the old dishes.

Demonstrations of the colonial crafts are held daily in the Old Village. You can watch them grind yellow cornmeal in the gristmill and demonstrate brock oven cooking in the Freeman Farmhouse. Visit the Bake House where the Cookie Baker's even yields such sweets as Raisin Hobnails, Walnut Patties and Grist mill Grahams.

Showplace of the community is the Publick House which was founded by Col. Ebenezar Crafts in 1771 and which still operates as an inn. Colonel Craft's tavern became a popular stepping-off point for travelers, including the Marquis de Lafayette, possibly because he served a heady brew known as Whistle-Belly Vengeance. It consisted of beer simmered in a kettle, sweetened with molasses, thickened with brown-bread crumbs and served piping hot.

Today the Publick House is managed by a personable young man named Richard Brams who has made a study of the early dishes and serves such delectable specialties as pheasant stuffed with wild rice, roast goose with apple dressing and a rich, creamy lobster pie. He also goes in for a variety of hot breads for breakfast including the delectable pumpkin muffins. Here is his muffin recipe.

PUMPKIN MUFFINS

1 cup cake flour
1 cup all purpose flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
½ cup sugar
1 egg
½ cup pumpkin
3 tablespoons vegetable oil
¾ cup milk

Sift flour, baking powder, salt, cinnamon, nutmeg, cloves and sugar. Add beaten egg. Blend in pumpkin, oil and milk. Bake in 400 degree oven 25 minutes. Yields 1 dozen muffins.

Children Play Art Game

By C. G. McDANIEL
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — "Good luck, Detectives!" And with that, they're off—not looking for the 10 most wanted criminals, but for works of art.

It's all part of a game called "I Spy," designed to introduce children to art and aesthetics at the Art Institute of Chicago.

Lois Raasch, supervisor of children's education, says the Junior Museum's purpose is "to give an introduction to looking."

"We try to stress aesthetics as opposed to art history," Miss Raasch said.

The facilities for children are as elaborate and well planned on a small scale as the Art Institute's galleries and other facilities for everyone.

Tree trunks rise up through benches in the court around which the little museum is built. In the center is a fountain built around a sculpture of animals, and there is a gift counter with games and toys and art books for children.

A picnic room is decorated with antique wooden carousel horses at one end, and the walls feature changing exhibits of children's art from foreign countries as well as the United States.

A library with low shelves has reading pits with a table in the center. The children sit around the carpeted edge to read.

Children playing the "I Spy" game sit in a small auditorium to hear a tape and see slides to give them hints. The auditorium also serves for movies and lectures.

In the main gallery for children, there is a revolving world globe, six feet in diameter, which features miniature photographs of the featured art works pinned on the countries where they originated.

The "I Spy" game takes children not only through the Junior Museum but introduces them to the main galleries as well.

There are five segments to the game, each about a different art medium, such as painting or sculpture. The children answer written questions which require them to find objects and detect major features about them.

About 125,000 children from a five-state area visit the Junior Museum on tours each year, and many others come alone or with parents.

Having a place of their own gives the children a feeling of security, Miss Raasch said, and makes them feel that they have a place to come back to. It also reduces the number of children in the main galleries, where adults might be disturbed by large groups of them, she said.

Report Was Erroneous

PELTON, Scotland (WNS)—Village women here are threatening to sue the Family Planning Association for noting in its annual report that the average 25-year-old mother in Pelton has six children. "People will think we are always having orgies," said Mrs. Christine McKinlay, 23. A Family Planning spokesman quickly apologized for the erroneous statistics.

Mother Watches Son, Then Back To Work

BRUSSELS, Belgium (WNS)—Lucienne Kempe, 79, watched her son's retirement ceremony as factory superintendent after his 40 years of faithful work. Then she went back to her own cleaning job in the factory's offices. "It's fine for the young generation to stop work, but not for us old folks," she explained. "I would die of boredom if I had to leave all my friends here."

How Do You Tell A Grown Man To Take A Bath?

By Abigail Van Buren

[© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.]

DEAR ABBY: I have read your column for years, and still can't believe I am actually writing a "Dear Abby" letter, but here goes: This is the second time around for my husband and myself. We are both middle-aged and lost our mates in death.

My question: How do you tell a full grown adult about personal hygiene? He bathes once a week, at which time he changes his socks and underwear. This came as a terrific shock to me as he always appeared to be so well-groomed and immaculate when we were dating.

I just don't know how to tell him that I find his personal habits extremely offensive. He douses himself with sweet smelling cologne between baths.

Believe me, Abby, he is a fine man otherwise. He is a faithful reader of your column and is always quoting you to me, so if you print this letter he will see it. I don't have the nerve to tell him. DISMAYED

DEAR DIS: Here's your letter, and I hope it helps. [P.S. Marriages in which both partners do not bathe and change underwear daily risk being all washed up.]

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I disagree on something and want you to settle it. My wife says it is perfectly all right to ask a man who is wearing a toupee where he bought it.

I say that if a toupee LOOKS like a toupee it is no compliment, so it's best not to ask such a question.

My wife insists that I am wrong—that the wearer would be complimented, and more than happy to share the information.

What do you say, Abby? CONSIDERING ONE

DEAR CONSIDERING: I wouldn't recommend "complimenting" a stranger with an inquiry concerning his toupee. However, if you were friendly with the man when his hair was thinner, and consider the toupee a perceptible improvement, go ahead and ask.

DEAR ABBY: Please help me, and please put the answer in the paper. It may help somebody else.

How does one discourage persistent invitations from somebody they do not want to have more than a business relationship with? I have been going to the same beauty shop for five years. The operator I have is a very nice, tho somewhat aggressive person. The hairdresser I go to does my hair exactly the way I like it, but she keeps suggesting that we go here and there and the next place together.

I don't care to socialize with her and have said I was busy, hoping she would get the hint, but she evidently hasn't. I don't know where she ever got the idea that I would want to become a "buddy" of hers.

She is a married woman with grown children. I am a widow, with grown children and grandchildren, too. . . I have a career, plenty of friends, and I am not lonely. Please tell me what to do. NAMELESS, NATURALLY

DEAR NAMELESS: Unless you want to get this woman "out of your hair" professionally, as well as socially, continue to be "busy" when she suggests you go out together.

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 69700, L. A., CALIF. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

Miss Divine Is Patient Circle Speaker Tuesday

Miss Mary Ruth Divine was guest speaker at the meeting of The Patient Circle of The King's Daughters and Sons held Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. L. L. Rives.

Director of adult service at Caswell Center, Kinston, Miss Divine pointed out that communities are now taking more responsiblitity of patients at Caswell by helping to return them to communities to board where they get more family care and are taught some skills.

She urged the women to visit the local Sheltered Workshop as well as Caswell School.

Mrs. Clara M. Shackell, president of the group, led in the Prayer of the Order and told of attending the 1972 International Convention, Columbus, Ohio. Mrs. T. I. Moore gave the devotional.

Mrs. R. C. Henry gave a financial report and various chairmen gave reports and made suggestions. It was announced that a wheelchair and walker have been returned and the items are available for use.

Assisting hostesses were Mrs. H. H. Settle, Mrs. Roy Lokken and Mrs. Milton White.

The New School Has A Future

Dr. Lennox Baker, secretary of the N.C. Department of Human Resources, expressed his support of a four-year medical school at the opening of ECU's one-year medical program here last week.

He described the occasion as a momentous one.

"Why am I here today?" he asked. "Because I like a new day and a new dawn! Certainly this is a new dawn in this great state's medical history. At long last an opportunity is born to have first-class medical care in this region with the richest land and the finest people in the world."

Dr. Baker, first student admitted to the Duke Medical School, commented, "I have been through it all before, and I can still get enthusiastic when I think of today and the future of this (ECU) school. The need for a medical school in Greenville and the East is far greater today than the need for the medical school in Durham some 43 years ago."

He continued, "To reach our goal of a complete medical school will not be easy. I will help, even though it may mean struggling against people with whom I have been associated over the years. But I will fight them to the last ditch to give our people what they have lacked for so many years — adequate numbers of doctors to provide for better health care."

With men of vision like Dr. Baker standing alongside East Carolina University, there is no doubt that the ECU School of Medicine will continue to grow and fill the pressing medical need of North Carolina.

The study and public debate which has gone on prior to the opening of the school has been unprecedented in North Carolina. There have been two studies done by teams unbiased medical experts from outside North Carolina, and the studies helped advance the development of the school. The last study by the accrediting committee found interim facilites, staff assembled to that point and projected funding for a two-year school to be adequate. Subsequently the Board of Higher Education and the Legislature approved the one year program which is now in operation.

The ECU School of Medicine has been founded on the best advice that top medical experts of the nation can offer. Its initiation came only after years of public debate, which proved that the need could be met through the development of the school.

There will continue to be opposition, of course, but it will be difficult, indeed, for the opposition to refute all the years of study and planning which have gone into the development of this school.

Some Private Colleges Aided

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH, N.C. — Private colleges in North Carolina, many of them struggling with money problems, are getting a measure of relief this fall from the state's coffers.

The 41 institutions are sharing in a $1,025,000 fund set up by the 1971 legislature to aid Tar Heel students enrolled in non-public higher education.

BRYAN HAISLIP

Although limited in outlay, the program has significance beyond the dollars involved. It represents the first time the state has spent money on a systematic basis to encourage further utilization of private resources in higher education.

"We're happy because of the psychological climate created," said Virgil L. McBride, executive director ot the North Carolina Association of Independent Colleges and Universities.

"What the passage and partial funding of the act said to us was that the people of North Carolina are both aware of the great role which private higher education plays in this state and are willing to assist those institutions at a time when so many of them find themselves in difficulty."

Hopes For The Future

On that commitment, the private institutions rest their hopes for a future expansion of the grants program.

They have been encouraged by the budget recommendations of the Board of Governors of the University of North Carolina, the new agency for restructured higher education, that the program be continued at its present level in the 1973-75 biennium.

That recommendation still has to pass muster with the Advisory Budget Commission. Final disposition will be up to the '73 General Assembly.

While heartened by the prospect of maintaining the program, what the private institutions really want to see is a substantial increase in the level of support.

An effort in this direction looks certain in the next legislature. How it will fare, in light of demands on the state budget, is an open question.

Asked $9.6 Million

McBride and the association of independent campuses lobbied last time for a $9.6 million appropriation over a two-year period. That envisioned annual grants of $200 for each Tar Heel student (based on 23,000, the total in-state private enrollment in 1970), plus an additional 1,000 grants of $600 each for enrollment over the 23,000 figure.

The legislature funded only one year, and on a scale allowing $25 grants under the first provision, and $400 under the second.

While the money is allocated among the institutions according to the proportion of resident enrollment, funds are paid to students as scholarship aid on the basis of need. The institution must match each grant with one of its own.

The thrust of the program is to reduce the disparity in cost between private and tax-supported colleges, encourage more students to choose an independent institution, and give some relief to the state's burden in higher education.

Operation costs alone run to more than $1,300 per year for each in-state student at North Carolina's public campuses. Capital expenses for buildings and facilities require another layer of tax dollars.

Aid For Taxpayers

Thus,every student who selects a private college does a favor for the burdened taxpayer.

The problem is that tuition at the tax-supported schools are so far below those at the independent campus that parents can ill-afford the choice.

From the state's point of view, aid to private colleges can be a far cheaper means of assuring higher education opportunity than building and operating the facilities to meet the damands.

More than half the state's have taken the route, with a variety of grant-in-aid programs.

"The independent institutions see their primary role as that of aiding North Carolina and its people," McBride said. "They hope, and the association hopes, that we can eventually provide the young people of the state an option of choosing the college they want to attend on the basis of academic programs, rather than economic factors alone."

A study a couple of years ago indicated there are 5,000 available spaces in private institutions, in contrast to the crush at state-supported colleges. Taking into account present capacity, out-of-state enrollment which could be shifted to Tar Heels, and possibilities for greater efficiency, McBride said, as many as 14,000 spaces could be opened up by 1975.

Highway Funds Said Top Issue

By JOHN KILGO

RALEIGH — The highly political nature of the State Highway Commission and the allocating of money for road building will soon boil over and become the number one issue of the gubernatorial campaign.

That's the opinion of veteran Tar Heel politicians—and evidence continues to stack up to indicate they're right.

Charles R. Dawkins of Fayetteville, a member of the 23-man Highway Commission told me in an interview:

"I have a story to tell but I'm not ready to tell it. Yes, there is too much politics involved in the Commission. I've opposed them several times in private. I've come close to blows with the chairman."

Another commissioner, who insisted that he not be named, told me: "It's a good thing the public doesn't know how much politics is involved in determining where money goes for roads. It's a mess."

Commissioner Cliff Benson of Raleigh recently ordered an underpass for golf carts be constructed at a Zebulon country club. The $7,300 cost of the project was approved by the Commission last week, but not before Dawkins kicked up a fuss in public and private.

"That item should have never been on our agenda," Dawkins told me. "That's why I didn't vote for it."

Benson was one of only two men on the Highway Commission who supported Skipper Bowles for Governor in the Democratic primary. Most of the commissioners actively supported Pat Taylor.

Reports leaked out from some sources that Bowles was planning to name Benson chairman of the next Highway Commission. But then word of the golf cart underpass got out and Bowles' office issued a statement saying Bowles had never considered naming Benson chairman of the commission.

Republican Jim Holshouser has criss-crossed the state, retelling the golf cart story and charging that Bowles and Benson are long-time close friends.

Says Commissioner Dawkins: "Some changes must be made in the next Highway Commission and the way it's set up. I've talked to Bowles about this. As a whole, this Highway Commission is a good one. But the system doesn't work. One man decides where the roads go."

Dawkins obviously has serious differences with Commission Chairman Lauch Faircloth but he absolutely refused to discuss them in public. However, when he says "one man decides where the roads go," he has to be talking about Faircloth. And he did say, as we quoted earlier, that he had almost come to blows with the chairman in private meetings of the Highway Commission.

Bowles said last week that the Highway Commission Chairman in his administration would be responsible to the secretary of transportation.

Says Commissioner Dawkins about that proposal: "That's the way it ought to be, if you put a man in who isn't getting a political payoff. Otherwise, the road money will still be decided by politics."

Dawkins says he would not consider being a Highway Commissioner again under the present set-up.

"My God," he said, "when it gets so bad you can't sleep at night, it's too much."

Coming on top of this controversy was a Raleigh News & Observer story saying Gov. Bob Scott had paved more than 100 miles of roads in his home county of Alamance. The newspaper said Scott had used the High-

Strength For Today

UNDERSTANDING OTHER PEOPLE

Every human being is so completely a unit in himself that we find it almost impossible to realize what other people are thinking about and, as Jacob Riis put it some decades ago, how the other half lives.

What do you know about the people who live along your street? Would you be amazed to discover poignant sorrow in some household? May there be a saint living near you or perhaps someone of demon nature and dimensions? What about the town three blocks over from your residence? What about people of other colors and races living in your community? What about the poor? And what is equally important what about the rich? For taken by and large they have even less happiness and peace that the people who have to squeeze every penny.

Once in a while we encounter a person who seems really to be understanding. He looks into the hearts of his fellows and sees there much good which the rest of the world has overlooked. He will tell you that there are capacities in certain people which are waiting and eager to be utilized. He will tell you about acres of diamonds right in your vicinity.

Who are the people who really know their fellows? Are they the cynical or the sympathetic? Almost always they are the sympathetic, the understanding. It is a great gift to be able to look into a human heart and understand.

Know A Born Loser

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Luck is like the weather. People complain but do nothing else about it.

Of course, it is hard to think what you can do about luck except to take it as it comes. You hear of up-and-at-em guys who say they make their own luck, but if you investigate these cases you find they did it on inherited money—or else, in its own good time, their bad luck finally came along and humbled their boasts.

Over his lifetime, the average man would probably say that his luck was fifty-fifty, and probably didn't tip the balance of his life unduly toward good or bad.

But some feel they were born under a curse and that luck never smiles but always frowns on them. They are born losers. How can you tell a born loser from one who only brags that he is?

Well, beyond doubt you're a born loser if—

Your shoestring breaks not once a year in an emergency but once a month.

The day after the firm you spent 30 years with finally names you a vice president it goes into bankruptcy.

You never got to show how smart you were in school because the teachers always called on the students to recite alphabetically—and your name would be Zimmerman.

You were too small to make the basketball team and too skinny to play football.

It was only after you had paid 87 traffic tickets for going through red lights that your doctor accidentally found out you were color blind.

You were the only kid in the neighborhood whose own dog bit him every day at feeding time.

Your first blind date not only got blind after one drink—she also got sick in your car. So has every blind date you've taken out since.

Looking At Women's Lib

Gloria Steinem came striding into the NBC studios this past Sunday morning, trying to look frowsy and failing badly in the self-conscious attempt. As Number One Lib of the Women's Liberation movement, she was on hand to defend reproductive freedom, among other things, before Meet the Press. She did her usual cool and competent job, but I dunno. The Mses leave me — not exactly cold, but acutely uncomfortable.

There is a kind of fanaticism here — an obsessiveness that goes beyond dedication. It works a catalytic effect upon a good and commendable movement, and transforms it into something approaching a cult. The self-consciousness intrudes in irrelevant ways.

Why is Ms. Steinem Ms. Steinem? It is because Miss and Mrs. have become contemptible titles: They identify women in terms of men, not in terms of their own selves, and this is taken as an insult. It surely is not intended as an insult — it is no more than custom, no more than civility — but there it is. So Larry Spivak is instructing the panel to address questions to out guest as Ms. Steinem, and Carl Rowan is amused because the Mis takes him back to his childhood in Tennessee when that was the way boys addressed married ladies.

Why is Ms. Steinem wearing blue work pants and a brown turtleneck sweater? She is so attired, one assumes, because this is show biz, it is role-playing: Fidel Castro in fatigues, Leo Durocher in a sports shirt, Bobby Fishcher in the suit that he slept in. It is a terrible thing to say — no insult is intended — but Ms. Steinem, at 38, is a most attractive woman: good level eyes, lovely mouth, trim figure, slim hands long-fingered. But the assumption seems to be that nonliberated women tend to dress up, out of some self-abasing desire to please men, so liberated women must dress down. Ms. Steinem is conspicously liberated this morning, and that is doubtless an admirable way to be, but it is as if a guy who were nuts about jogging came to high tea in his sweat suit.

The self-consciousness ripples out. All politicians and most male writers have gotten edgy about the very mention of man or men. There was a time when you tested a new typewriter ribbon by writing, "Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their country." Chauvinism! Now is the time for all good persons...

This absurdity attained a marvelous peak earlier this month in the September issue of "Grass Roots" national publication of the People's Party. Here we were solemnly advised that Dr. Finley C. Campbell of Indiana had been elected a co-spokesperson at the party's St. Louis convention. Indeed, he and Marge Buckley of California had become co-spokespeople.

It is too much. The Women's Liberation movement, as best I can understand it, deserves applause and support: Of course women should be free to find social and economic fulfillment in terms of their own humanness, but why the gimcrackery of blue jeans and spokespeople? Are we supposed to equate the

Other Editors Say Weighing The Deal

(Christian Science Monitor)

George McGovern is aiming his most stinging shots against Richard Nixon in the sensitive area of government probity. Much more so than he has been able to do in the bread-and-butter areas of social and economics reform. But whether or not he can reap meaningful political profit, charges of administration wheeling and dealing in the wheat and grain export market, of cloak-and-dagger hanky-panky in the Watergate bugging case, and of illegal use and secrecy in the matter of campaign funds, is a moot point.

Public opinion polls continue to show strong support of President Nixon, even among the supposedly restive younger voters. These soundings indicate that the bread-and-butter issues are where the voter's interest is largely centered. They seem to be saying that the American people at this point feel less inclined toward a new turning of the liberal social-economic wheel than toward a consolidation of the unsettled status quo.

Still, one of the great pluses of the presidential challenge that grips the United States quadrennially is the incentive it gives — not always out of pure motives, to be sure — to subject the incumbent regime to the most rigorous scrutiny. Many a hidden scandal has been unearthed through just this process.

The latest charges by Mr. McGovern that the Department of Agriculture has engaged in a large-scale scheme to enrich big grain dealers at the expense of the American consumer and the small farmer has enough circumstantial evidence to justify quick and thorough congressional investigation. If nothing else, the timing of the agreement to sell $750,000,000 in grains to Russia over three years, coincidental with a complicated shuffling of high officers from within the Department of Agriculture into jobs with large grain-dealing companies, and vice-versa, certainly is grounds for question. Those same grain dealers apparently made large profits from the purchase of grains and grain futures, at a low price, from farmers who were unaware that the Soviet Union would be making such huge purchases.

As the House subcommittee on livestock and grains looks into these charges this week, it has a responsibility to openly investigate whether the switching of personnel were based on passing of advance information to the grain dealers. And whether federal laws and Agriculture Department rules dealing with conflict of interest have been breached.

Smoke pouring from the front window of the second floor of the building occupied by Quinn-Miller and Company on Fifth Street early today probably saved that section of the business district from one of the heaviest fire losses in history. The building is located next to the police station which is in the same building with the fire department which enabled firemen to quickly bring the fire under control.

It was circus day in Greenville today and children and grown-ups alike greeted the early arrival this morning of the greatest motorized circus on earth. The great caravan of trucks arrived about six o'clock at Winslow's show grounds and immediately started work on erecting the big top.

'Better Off' Claim Questioned

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the administration's greatest tasks, a frustrating one to date, is to convince the American people that they are better off than a year ago.

Official government statistics tend to support this contention, and administration spokesmen have not forgotten to sprinkle the figures liberally throughout their statements. The effect, however, has been questionable.

In all levels of business and personal finance there can be found a feeling that the hard figures are artificial flavoring for an unappetizing mixture of inflation, unemployment and social unrest.

To a great degree, the administration itself is responsible for the rejection of the official statistics because it has used them defensively and sometimes without an understanding of the modern mood.

Expectations are higher today, part of the unfolding American dream of economic progress on every front, private and public. The idyll is displayed constantly before the public by media, public officials and others.

Moreover, government has more than ever committed itself to actively speeding the process. It promises more. More is expected.

As increasing numbers achieve some measure of financial success, the quality of life rises in their list of priorities. A clean environment, social justice, the dignity of life become elements of their broadened outlook.

Statistics do not measure these, and that appears to be a major reason for the credibility problem involved with those old sets of figures that are used to measure progress.

Gross National Product, unemployment, cost of living, and other statistical series fail to tell the complete story. They are not suspected of being adulterated; but they are considered to be incomplete measures.

The statistics show that in the past year people built their savings, reduced their debts, found more jobs. They bought new homes at a near-record rate. Their incomes rose in real dollars.

In every region and state and in the District of Columbia, it said, personal income gains exceeded the increase in consumer prices "at least moderately, so that real purchasing power of consumers increased in all areas."

Since then, the inflation rate has slowly receded, but in the period from November 1971 to July 1972 the increases in personal income, based on official figures, averaged more than last year — 9.5 per cent at an annual rate.

Does this mean that people are better off? The mind records the claim, but instinct questions it.

Mills Hopes For Major Tax Reform Bill 'Next Year'

By EDMOND LeBRETON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Wilbur D. Mills says he hopes to steer through the House next year a major tax-reform bill, probably including substantial revision of the capital-gains tax.

The Arkansas Democrat, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, also hopes for House passage next year of a national health-insurance bill and one on foreign trade.

But he said that if the Senate again fails to agree on a welfare-reform measure "I cannot ask the House to go up that mountain a third time."

In the last Congress the House passed a reform bill along lines proposed by President Nixon, only to see it die in the Senate. The House last year passed a similar bill which is still bogged down in the Senate Finance Committee as adjournment of the present Congress approaches.

Mills discussed the outlook in an interview as his committee began a series of executive sessions to trim its agenda for the remainder of the present Congress, which hopes to adjourn by about Oct. 14.

The only remaining major piece of legislation assured of committee action is an increase in the national-debt ceiling, on which hearings begin Monday. The committee also may act on tax credits for parents of children in nonpublic schools, but chances of final passage of such legislation at this session are slender.

Mills indicated he cannot support Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern's proposal to phase out the preferential tax treatment of capital gains in three years. Generally speaking, such gains are taxed at half the rate of ordinary income.

With a caution that "I am only thinking out loud," Mills said he is interested in proposals to establish a graduated scale for taxing the increased value of assets, so that those held longest would carry the lowest rate. The minimum period for which an asset must be held before the profit on its sale is taxed as a capital gain should be longer than the present six months, he said.

Tax reformers also should consider definition and classification of capital gains, Mills said.

Mills indicated agreement with Nixon that federal action is needed to relieve property taxation and enhance equality of educational opportunity between rich and poor states, as well as districts within states.

But he repeated his opposition to the value-added tax, a form of national sales tax that is under study by the administration. An increase in federal income taxes would be a better way, he said, with an offsetting reduction of property taxes.

Mills indicated he plans to tackle tax reforms directly, without pressing for enactment of a bill he introduced earlier to force a review of tax preferences by bringing most of them up for repeal.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1972

CARROLL RIGHTER'S horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day and evening when most everyone is apt to be depressed and to hang on to those things that have not proved helpful or satisfactory in the past and to be too articulate about stating unpleasant attitudes and prejudices. The evening however becomes fine for adopting new, cheerful and more modern views and principles.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You feel like setting aside present setup for something new and untried, which would be most unwise now. There can be deep disappointments if you do not maintain present poise, calm. Avoid one who does not appreciate you.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Instead of trying to get out of paying your obligations, this is a good day to plan just how to do so wisely. One you love may be in a nervous mood. Make sure you maintain poise and all is fine.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Do not blame your associates for whatever is not satisfying to you, but raise your own level of efficiency instead. Act in such a way that others may not criticize you. Show that you really like others.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You are not in the mood to get all that work ahead of you done, but if you change your attitude to one of enthusiasm, you accomplish much now. Use spare time to take the health treatments you need. Think constructively.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A day when you can lift others out of the slough of despondency with a smile and kindly word. Do it. Make sure you are not forceful with others. Maintain own equilibrium.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Whatever could start arguments at home should be carefully avoided now, and old scores should definitely not be brought up again. A smile can do much to lift the spirits of others. A more understanding attitude is good also.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be particularly careful not to involve yourself in anything of a risky nature and don't criticize anyone. Do not take too much money with you when you are shopping. Avoid buying what you don't need and take care money is not stolen from you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Take no risks where present security is concerned and cut down on expenses instead of adding to them. Go to see that expert recommended to you for the advice you need. Then put it to good use for big headway.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You have to exercise self-control if you are to avoid trouble that could come from the planets today. Avoid the social or you could criticize others unfairly. Do some reading that could be most helpful.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You think you have too many responsibilities now, but if you plow into all that work, you get it done easily and well. Don't gripe. A good friend may be in need and requires your good help. Give it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Others are not in a good mood today, so forget all that Aquarian gadding about you planned and concentrate on work that has to be done. Personal aims should be approached calmly and wisely. Forcefulness will gain you nothing.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't think that bigwigs are not favorable to you or you do not get the support you want from them now. Be sure of yourself and you won't make any mistakes. Sit quietly back and judge what is going on around you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY he or she will be one of those interesting young people who will have a nose for trouble, so teach early to handle little problems around the home to become an expert in troubleshooting, and then slant the education along such lines. A connection with the government is fine here, if possible, or in big business, corporations, etc. A certain amount of discipline is necessary, plus religious training. The chart of one who likes to work alone, but in top position.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

burning bra with the torch of freedom?

Humbug! I have lived 30 years this month with a fully liberated woman who is at one and the same time Miss Marie Pietri, sculptor, artist and teacher, and also Mrs. James J. Kilpatrick, wife, homemaker, mother and grandmother, and we would have thought it hilarious to draw up a pre-marital contract on washing the dishes or mowing the lawn. I worked ten happy years in Richmond with a woman who was wife, mother, and topnotch editorial writer. She would have found the "Ms." business pretty funny. Such relationships are legion.

Maybe the self-consciousness is a phase, like hiccups, that has to run its course. Perhaps all the emphasis on bi-sexuality serves a useful purpose, as anthropologist Elain Morgan makes clear in her recent book, in reminding us that the descent of man is also, of course, the descent of woman. But I wonder, all the same, if the rituals and trappings and the hypersensitivity of the professional libber may not have their counter-productive aspects: They may be making many women more conscious of the privileges they enjoy and more determined to hang onto them. The Equal Rights Amendment, which had been expected to weep to ratification in a hundred days, has been pending since March 22. Only 20 State legislatures have bought it. Ms. Steinem and her uptight cohorts have yet a way to go.

Again Leader Of China Delegates

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Deputy Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua will again lead the China delegation when the General Assembly convenes Tuesday.

Chinese Ambassador Huang Hua also said Wednesday that Chiao will meet with Secretary of State William P. Rogers, British Foreign Secretary Alex Douglas-Home and Foreign Ministers Andrei Gromyko of Russia and Maurice Schumann of France at a dinner Sept. 27 to be given by U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim.

Chiao headed the Chinese delegation during the 1971 General Assembly session after mainland China took over the Nationalist Chinese seat.

Abrams, Lavelle Stories Clash

By JOHN LENGEL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. Creighton W. Abrams and Gen. John D. Lavelle have told conflicting accounts of the circumstances surrounding air strikes ordered against North Vietnam, says the chairman of a Senate committee which has questioned both behind closed doors.

Armed Service Committee Chairman John Stennis said the conflict "concerns the knowledge and extent of knowledge each had about those raids."

"I'm not surprised, but it's inconclusive yet," Stennis said after the third day of the hearing Wednesday as details of the testimony continued to emerge piecemeal.

Sen. Peter Domnick, R-Colo., said Abrams was unaware of the exact character of 28 raids ordered by Lavelle last winter and spring before President Nixon renewed heavy bombing of North Vietnam.

Abrams himself had nothing to say to reporters as he strode briskly from the committee session after four hours' interrogation and explanation. His nomination as Army chief of staff has been held up for this inquiry.

"What he (Abrams) said was that, of course, he knew of the raids, but didn't know they were conducted outside the rules of engagement," Dominick said.

As to whether Abrams or others above Lavelle knew of the cimrcumstances, Dominick said, "nobody had the foggiest idea the strikes were outside the rules."

Sen. William Saxbe, R-Ohio, addressed the war-rules question involving the 28 protective-reaction raids ordered by Lavelle before he was relieved of his 7th Air Force command.

Air-war rules, Saxbe said, permitted retaliatory "protective-reaction" strikes, if a MIG fighter was in the air south of the 19th Parallel, if the U.S. reconnaissance aircraft was being fired at, or if the radar guiding antiaircraft missiles was focused on the enemy aircraft.

However, Saxbe said, Lavelle added to these rules, saying that pilots could strike also if a general sort of sky-scanning radar called GCI, for ground-controlled intercept, was turned on at the time.

The effect of this, Saxbe said, was to allow a much broader license for the attacks.

The senator quoted Lavelle as saying, "I interpreted the rules this way and I thought everybody did."

Referring to what Abrams may have known about the strikes and his frequent consultations with his subordinate, Saxbe said, "they did not know they disagreed."

Ordinances Adopted By Ayden Board At Meet

AYDEN — The Ayden Board of Commissioners Monday held a public hearing to discuss amendments to the zoning ordinance establishing permitted use and special restrictions within the B-1 central business district.

No opposition in the matter was voiced and the board adopted ordinances authorizing special uses within B-1 zones and also established duties and powers of the commissioners to either approve or disapprove applicants of special use permits within the zone.

The board set Oct. 9 as the date for a public hearing to consider amending the zoning ordinance to allow residential quarters to include mobile homes in the B-2 business district when necessitated by business.

Also scheduled to appear on the hearing agenda will be an application for a special use permit submitted by the owner and operator of Bonnie Sue Manufacturing Co. It was requested by the owner that he be allowed to expand his business in the building formerly used by the Free Will Baptist Press, located at the corner of East Avenue and Second Street.

T. H. Faulkner and Co. of Kinston was low bidder for installation of 10-inch water lines from Sixth Street to the Levi Worthington site on N.C. 11 for use by the proposed facility of U.S. Industries. The bid totaled $12,805.

The board recommended that Marvin Baldree Jr. be named to a three-year term on the Planning Board as an out-of-town member. The appointment will be made by the Pitt County Commissioners.

Robert Booth, town attorney, was asked to prepare a resolution to be sent to the State Board of Elections prior to Oct. 1 stating that the Town of Ayden intends to make provisions for a full-time registration office and appointment of members to serve on an election board. The new board would conduct the town's elections in accordance with the new election laws of the state which become effective Jan. 1, 1973.

The new law states all future municipal elections will be held on the first Tuesday of November.

The board passed a resolution endorsing North Carolina constitutional amendment number five which limits the incorporation of cities and towns. The board goes on record urging the voters of the Town of Ayden to vote for such an amendment in the November election.

ACCIDENT RATE

TOKYO (UPI) — About 40 persons die every day in traffic accidents in Japan. The National Police Agency, however, reports that the number of fatalities this year has been lower than last year.

Huge Pudding May Be A 'Time Bomb'

CARDIFF, Wales (AP) — For a while today, the biggest tapioca pudding in the world threatened to split the seams of a Swiss freighter, but a dock official said firemen and the ship's crew finally got things under control.

The official said dock workers were unloading the 12,165-ton Cassarate, which a fire chief had earlier called a "huge tapioca time bomb."

Firemen earlier controlled the fire which started in timber stacked in the upper holds 25 days ago at sea. The crew kept the smoldering timber dampened until the ship docked here late Tuesday.

But the water from the Cardiff's hoses seeped down to the lower holds where 1,500 tons of tapioca from Thailand were stored.

The water swelled the tapioca. Then the heat from the flames started to cook the sticky mess.

The swelling tapioca—enough to serve a million plates—could buckle the ship' steel plates, fire chiefs warned.

The plan is to load the gluey mess onto a fleet of trucks and dispose of it. One report said there was enough to fill 500 trucks.

But where do you dump 500 truckloads of tapioca pudding?

Ambassadors In Private Meeting

PARIS (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Arthur K. Watson and Chinese Ambassador Huang Chen have held another private meeting, their seventh since President Nixon and Chinese leaders agreed to periodic discussions here.

No details of the latest meeting on Wednesday were disclosed. It lasted about an hour.

Watson has submitted his resignation to Nixon, because of ill health, and it is believed he will leave his Paris post sometime late next month.

Files Suit Over Plate-Breaking

ATHENS (AP) — An Athens attorney has filed suit asking that Greek shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis be jailed for breaking plates at a seaside nightclub party last Friday.

Nicholas Galiadis said after filing the suit on Wednesday that the old Greek custom is now against the law, at least 20 persons are now serving time for plate-breaking and that Onassis should also be jailed or the law repealed. It calls for a fine and imprisonment of up to six months.

Onassis' wife Jacqueline was not present during the plate-breaking spree, which reportedly took place while actress Elsa Martinelli and Odile Rodin, widow of Porfiro Rubirosa, were attempting to learn a Greek dance.

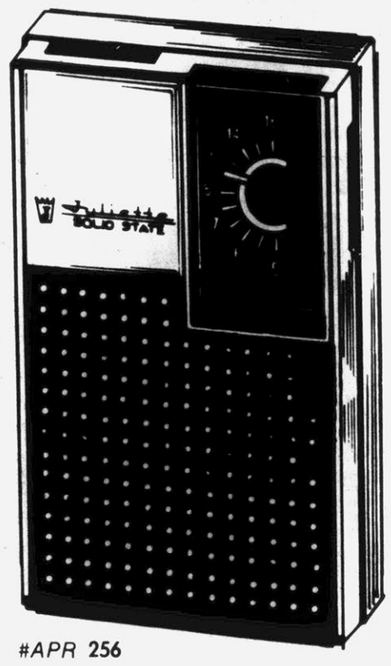

Recipes sometimes call for a tablespoon or so of dry onion soup mix. Shake the envelope of soup mix to blend the contents before opening and measuring.

Try Program To Rejuvenate Salmon Sport Fishing

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP)—A fisheries expert says a trace run of about 1,000 giant chinook may lead to a very special fishery of perhaps 30,000 tasty salmon in the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

"We want to make the straits the place you go for trophy chinook," says Pete Bergman. He is coordinator for the State Fisheries Department's program to rejuvenate sports salmon fishing in Puget Sound and the strait, its outlet to the Pacific.

Bergman says he believes the department has the nucleus of such a fishery in five miles of natural stream left between tidewater and the Elwha Dam, the first of two power dams built across it early in the 1900s. Neither had a fishway.

Ernie Brannon, for many years superintendent of the department's salmon hatchery near the Elwha, says the Elwha runs have become poor over the past 10 to 15 years.

Bergman, a fisheries biologist, says he believes "one of the primary reasons" may be increased ocean fishing.

"Fifteen years ago, there may have been several thousand chinook returning to the Elwha," he says, "but no one really knows. The local people and Ernie think that's true, though."

The interest in these chinook, which Bergman says average 40 pounds—"That's a whopping average"—began after the state imported milt recently from males of a 5,000-fish run of the giant king salmon from Rivers Inlet, B.C. The milt was used to fertilize hundreds of thousands of eggs from smaller Puget Sound chinook and provided bigger and "bitier" kings for sports fishermen.

"We're very fortunate a spawning area is still left in there," Bergman said. "When the dams were built, wham, they knocked out most of the river. We are losing small gravel and sand in the spawning beds that are left. High water is washing it out to sea. What's left is bigger and bigger stuff, less and less suitable for spawning. The dams are holding back anything to replace it."

The department has started crossing the milt of the huge Elwha fish with those of lesser chinook at a couple of hatcheries on the Olympic Peninsula. When they reach five to seven inches in length next spring, they will be released in peninsula streams.

"What we're trying to do," Berman says, "is increase the run by means of hatcheries."

Elwha salmon offspring also are being reared in hatcheries to be placed back only in the Elwha, because the department wants only those superior fish returning there.

Bergman and his colleagues plan to put a rearing channel in the Elwha, an imitation "mother stream" that will bring the purebreds back. Then fisheries men can use hatcheries to produce more to build a sport trophy fishery.

Ordinarily, by the time the fish reach 5 to 7 inches under natural conditions, only 5 of 100 are still alive. But Bergman says most of them still are living when they reach that size under scientific hatchery management. Their release at this size is expected to result in more mature fish returning because the large young ones are more able to cope with the risks to their lives.

The department, Bergman says, can "add a dimension nature can't—the probability of better survival."

The Rivers Inlet chinook are supposed to be a type that bites readily until it's almost ready to spawn.

Department biologist Frank Haw figured interbreeding might lead to a chinook that would bite all the way through the strait and the sound to the rivers where they were released and to which they were returning. That would supply more fun and food for the rapidly increasing horde of sports fishermen around the inland waters of western Washington.

The Elwha giants apparently aren't as eager to take the bait and lures of the sports fishermen, but Bergman says, "if they only bite as well as they have, a guy is going to be more willing to spend the time trying to catch a 40 to 60 pounder."

West Germans Driving People

STUTTGART, Germany (AP) — West Germans spent $16.5 billion on automobiles and their upkeep in 1971, a trade journal reported.

It said 20 per cent of this amount was spent on the purchase of cars, about 12 per cent on insurance and 28 per cent on taxes, gasoline and oil. The remaining 40 per cent went for repairs, servicing and accessories.

BRITISH TELEVIEWING

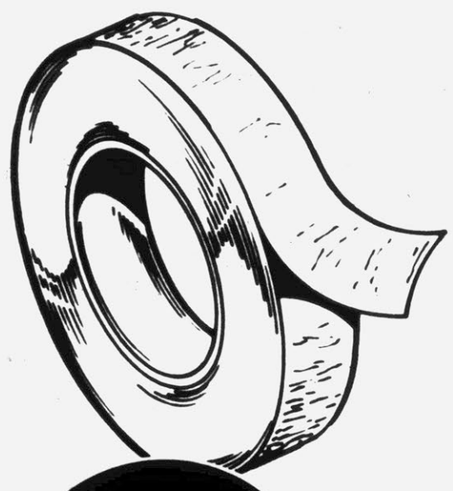

LONDON (AUP) — Most British television programs are in color, but most sets still are black and white. Government statistics showed 491,000 color sets delivered in the first four months of this year compared with 203,000 for the same period last year. Official figures show 15.6 million black and white sets.

Football Traffic Routed Just As For Last Season

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Football fans driving to Ficklen Stadium for East Carolina University's home football games this year will be routed into and out of the stadium just as they were last year, Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon said today.

Traffic coming to the stadium for the University's home games will be handled by members of the Greenville Police Department, ECU officers and members of the North Carolina State Highway Patrol.

For the first time this year Pinkerton guards will be handling parking within the University's parking lots.

In all, according to Chief Cannon, about 40 men stationed at various points in the federal area of the stadium and at other major intersections, are required to handle the flow of traffic created by local and out-of-town football fans.

Chief Cannon emphasized that 14th Street, from Elm to Charles Streets will be closed to through traffic from about 6 p.m. until game time for night games. For day games, the street will be closed from about 12:30 p.m. until game time.

Vehicles traveling Charles and 14th Streets will be routed into the stadium parking area off Ficklen Drive, while cars approaching from U.S. 264 West and N.C. 43 will be routed into the stadium's West parking lot on Charles Street.

Cars approaching the athletic facility from Elm Street, U.S. 264 East and 14th Street, will be funneled down 14th Street to West Berkly Road and on into the stadium parking area.

According to Chief Cannon, members of the Century Club should approach the stadium using Rosewood Drive. From there, the official said, Century Club members will be directed to the Century Club parking area.

The chief explained that 14th Street, after the game has begun, will be closed again about 9:45 p.m. (4:45 p.m. for day games) and remain closed to through traffic until the traffic has left the stadium.

Cars will move from the various parking areas just as they entered.

Chief Cannon cautioned motorists to drive carefully and observe all traffic rules.

He said drivers should be alert and avoid "tailgating" in heavy traffic.

Most of the accidents in heavy traffic, he said, are rear-end collisions caused by drivers following too closely.

The police official said all motorists should be courteous and not force the right of way, but instead, should yield to other motorists.

Ayden-Grifton School News

By VERA CLAYBROOK

Ayden-Grifton High School is in its third week of operation. The week of August 28 - September 1 consisted or orientation and organization. The week of September 4 - 8 was a full week with various activities taking place.

For example, one could see students standing in line at the doors of the Guidance Counselors, Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Noble, to make last minute changes in their schedules.

After a close look at the overcrowded 10th and 11th grade homerooms, Bill Wiggins, the principal, found it neceassary to create two more homerooms giving the 10th grade six sections and the 11th grade seven sections.

Also, the S.G.A., under the leadership of, Delano Wilson, began its activities by making plans for an election of ninth grade class officers. These elections will be culminated the week of September 11-15.

Friday, September 8, activity day schedule was begun and will continue each Friday of the school year. Activity day consists of seven periods with activity period coming immediately after homeroom. Clubs meet at this time. After club meetings, the regular school day schedule follows. Club activities are coordinated through the office of Mrs. Vera Claybrook, director of student activities.

The lunchroom is in full operation. According to Mrs. Worthington, the supervisor, approximately 650 students are fed daily. Hopefully, the number will increase.

On Thursday night September 7, at 8:00 p.m., the parents, teachers, and Advisory Council of Ayden-Grifton High School met in the school auditorium.

The purpose of this meeting was to organize and to make plans for a permanent organization. Harry Jarvis, chairman of the Advisory Council, appointed a committee consisting of Mrs. Ann Hughes, Chairman; Warren Kinlaw, Mrs. Hattie Hooks, Mrs. Ruth Staton and Mrs. Virgie McCarter. This committee will present a slate of officers to be voted upon at the next meeting.

Wiggins discussed school policies and regulations with the group. At the end of the program, a question - answer session was held.

Sports, a vital part of the school program, are well under way. The junior varisty football team under the leadership of William Moore, has played only one game and regretfully they lost. Cary Morris and Gary Overton, student teachers in the Physical Education department, are assisting him. The varisty football team is under the leadership of head coach, Mike Overton, and assistant coaches, Robert Murphrey, Johnny Daivs, and Claude Kennedy. The Chargers won their first two games of the season.

Next week, Ayden-Grifton High School will again greet you with the news of the week.

Conviction Overturned

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — An appeals court has overturned the conviction of Carl French Cox Jr. of robbing a bank at Goldsboro, N.C., and sent the case back to the U.S. District Court in Raleigh.

The U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals held in a decision disclosed Wednesday that a juvenile must have an attorney before a decision can be made to try him on a felony charge as an adult.

Cox was convicted in the court in Raleigh in July of 1968 of robbing the bank a month earlier, and was sentenced to 15 years in prison.

The appeals brief said he was 17 at the time of both the robbery and his trial. He is 21 now and still in prison.

Following his indictment, the U.S. attorney general granted permission for him to be tried as an adult. The U.S. attorney in Raleigh had contended that he was the ringleader of a five-man gang that robbed the bank, and it would be unfair for him to get a lesser sentence than his companions, all of whom were 18 or older.

The appeals court noted that if he had been tried as a juvenile, he could have been committed to a training school, a foster home, or some other rehabilitative facility. It also said his sentence would have been shorter, and he would not have "the stigma of a permanent criminal record."

New Threat For Peanuts

RALEIGH (AP) — A North Carolina State University plant disease specialist says that a relatively new disease poses "an extremely serious threat" to the state's $60 million peanut crop.

J. C. Wells, extension professor of plant pathology, said the disease is known as black root rot and has been found this season in all major peanut producing counties in the state.

An estimated 400 to 500 acres have already been reported as a complete loss.

"In fact, in the 24 years I've been on the staff here, this is potentially the most serious disease threat we've had to any crop," Wells said Wednesday.

He said the situation is serious because very little is known about how the disease is spread or about its control.

"Also, it's possible that it will attack other crops," he said. "A sample was found on soybeans in South Carolina."

The disease, caused by a fungus, was first found in the North Carolina-Virginia peanut producing region in 1970. That same year it showed up in Japan.

Wells suggested that spread of the disease may be minimized by killing and burning infected plants.

Homecoming At Church Sunday

Homecoming services will be held at Sycamore Chapel Church on Rt. 5, Greenville Sunday, beginning with an 11:30 a.m. service led by the pastor, the Rev. H. Wilson.

At 3 p.m., the Rev. J. L. Wilson of Ayden and his congregations of Little Creek and Grifton Chapel Free Will Baptist Churches will be in charge.

Pitt YDC Selects Delegates For Meet

The Young Democrats of Pitt County, at a meeting held Monday, elected eight delegates to represent Pitt County for the North Carolina Young Democratic Club Convention.

The convention is slated for September 22 and 23 at the Timme Plaza in Wilmington.

Delegates elected to represent Pitt County are — Carl Darden, Judy DeBoard, Cynthia Whisenant, Richard McLawhorn, Sonny McLawhorn, Bob Jackson, Tom Eamon and Roberta Jackson.

Registration begins at 12:00 noon on the 22nd. This will be followed by business sessions that will include the drafting of a new platform, revision of the constitution, and introduction of new resolutions. An entire slate of new state officers will also be one of the agenda items.

Darden, president of the Young Democrats of Pitt County, said that all Democratic candidates running for office in North Carolina are expected to be present. He also mentioned that a "surprise political figure will be the guest speaker."

Darden said that "a record breaking attendance is expected by young Democrats between the ages of 18 and 35 who will be coming from each county in North Carolina."

NEW YORK (AP) — Prices wavered and followed a mixed trend in today's stock market, coming off a small rally on Wednesday. Trading continued to be slow.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 1.28 to 948.60, but advancing issues on the New York Stock Exchange were leading decliners by 3 to 2.

The Big Board's volume leader was Occidental Petroleum, up ¼ to 15¼. The company reported it was making satisfactory progress in negotiating a series of trade agreements with the Soviet Union. A block of 41,500 shares of Oxy Pete moved at 15½.

In second place was Kellogg, off ⅛ to 25⅜. A block of 100,000 shares traded at the same price. Columbia Gas also was active, down ½ to 28¼, the price at which a block of 100,000 shares changed hands.

Hartz Mountain Pet Foods was the most-active issue on the American Stock Exchange, off ⅝ to 33. In second place was Technicolor, up ⅝ to 17⅜.

Miss Simmons was born and spent all her life in Stokes and Greenville. She attended the Pitt County Schools and East Carolina University, where she was employed until her retirement in 1966.

Surviving her are two sisters, Mrs. Pearl S. Crandell of Greenville and Mrs. Albert P. Morris of Goldsboro; and two brothers, Rufus N. Simons of Bethel and Hubert C. Simmons of Greenville.

The family will be at the home of Mrs. Pearl S. Crandell, 104 Rotary Avenue.

REAPPOINTED

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott reappointed Wednesday Dr. John W. Pou of Greenville to the board of trustees of the Teachers' and State Employes' Retirement System. His term will expire April 5, 1976.

Career May Be Finished

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A year ago, Ann-Margret was undergoing the effects of a show business career that had suddenly turned hot.

"I've been feeling so much tension, such pressure," the Swedish-born entertainer said.

"It's a definite signal. I'll work through the year because I've got commitments. Then I'll quit show business. At least for a year. Maybe forever."

Now, at 31, Ann-Margret may be forced to end her career.

On Sunday night she fell 22 feet from a scaffolding on which she was to make her entrance at a Lake Tahoe hotel-casino.

She suffered five facial fractures, a broken jaw and a broken left arm. She underwent facial surgery Wednesday at UCLA Medical Center.

Her doctor said the operation was a success. He predicted complete recovery, but he said he didn't know how long it would take.

The accident threatened a colorful career marked by early triumph, a downhill slide, then peak achievement with an Oscar nomination for a sex-charged role in "Carnal Knowledge."

The four Rose seniors have two interests in common. Each are members of the Chess Club and the Science and Ecology Club.

The five Pitt County students named as semifinalists are among about 15,000 U.S. high school seniors announced as semifinalists. The students represent all 50 states, U.S. territories, the District of Columbia, and foreign schools enrolling U.S. citizens.

The semifinalists will be competing in rigorous competition for about 1,000 one-time National Merit $1000 scholarships and about 2,000 four-year sponsored Merit Scholarships worth up to $1,500 per year. Winners will be notified during March and April and their names announced publicly in early May 1973.

Organizing

An organizational meeting of the Pitt County PTA Council will be held tonight at 8 p.m. in Room 220 0f Pitt Technical Institute's new building.

Anyone interested person may attend. Information may be obtained by calling 752-4164 and talking to Mrs. Barbara V. Cannon, County PTA director.

Recreation . . .

Recreation Commission for capital improvement funds to make improvements and constructions as outlined and indicated on a schedule adopted and made a part of the Resolutinn"...

At the August 10 City Council meeting in which the resolution for adoption of the referendum was made, Councilman Dr. Frank Fuller insisted that the resolution include wording that would permit the funds to be used for construction of facilities other than swimming pools. Because of his stated concern, the original motion by William Dansey was withdrawn, and the council adopted the entire report.

The adopted report, in turn, includes a paragraph which specifies construction of facilites recommended by the Recreation Commission such as a teen-age center, senior citizens facility, a health club and several other facilities as well as swimming pools. The entire report, as adopted, did not establish the construction of three swimming pools as a firm priority before construction of other facilites.

In their discussions, Recreation Commission members at the meeting last night again, as they had on past occasions, expressed full support for a referendum that would make possible added facilites for Greenville's recreation program. At the same time, however, they voiced disapproval of the manner in which Councilman Dansey had bypassed the Recreation Commission in making plans for the referendum.

Commissioners also spoke of their concern that the existing confusion be eliminated before the public goes to the polling stations on October 17.

In other matters, Recreation Director Boyd Lee gave a report to the commissioner on county participation. Asking them to study the statistics covering percentage of county participation in use of recreation facilities, Boyd noted "in the event of the passage of the capital improvements referendum, we will have to do something about this situation, as then the citizens of Greenville will be paying taxes. If they pay taxes for recreation facilities, they will have to have first priority in usage."

Locked Up

Sheriff's Deputy W.M. Forrest stopped by a local store yesterday and was approached by a man wanting a key made for his car. Forrest is a partime locksmith.

Forrest said that the man handed him the ignition switch and said that one key would fit everything. Knowing the make of car Forrest recognized that one key would not fit everything and asked the man to remove one of the door locks.

In the meantime Forrest checked the serial number of the auto and found it was stolen.

When Forrest returned to the car, the man was gone.

According to Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson, James Arthur Staton, of Rt. 3, Greenville, was apprehended minutes later and charged with possession of a stolen vehicle and larcency of parts from another. He was placed in Pitt County jail under $5,000 bond.

Award Given Williamston

Williamston — The City of Williamston has been presented a certificate today from the N. C. State Motor Club for not having a traffic fatality during 1971.

In briefest ceremonies at City Hall, the club's Traffic Safety Award was presented to Mayor N. C. Green and Police Chief John L. Swain by Dan Vaughn of Rocky Mount, division manager of the Charlotte-based motor club, and Milton Flythe, District Manager of Martin County.

Williamston, which last had a traffic fatility on Nov. 16, 1970, is one of 23 North Carolina cities and towns honored for having no traffic deaths during the year.

"Traffic safety is of utmost importance to us," Vaughn said, "and we are proud of Williamston's fine record. I hope you will receive this award for many years to come. Your achievement is outstanding."

Rampants Entertain Wilson In Key Game

All good things must come to an end.

The old question is what that good thing is — Rose High School's best start in over years or Wilson's strangle-hold on the Division II title.

It all might be decided come tomorrow night at 7:30 p.m. in Ficklen Stadium when the Rampants of Rose play host to Fike's Titans in the first Division II conference game of the season.

Fullback Reggie Perkins

Both teams come into the game with perfect 2-0 records. For Wilson, it is not unusual. The last time Rose won its first two games was in 1968, and their streak did not extend beyond that.

Oddly enough, however, these two aren't the only ones with perfect records. Goldsboro, Rocky Mount and New Bern are also unbeaten thus far this season, while Kinston, the other member of the division, has yet to post a victory. It may tend to show that this year's battle for the championship and the right to continue into the state 4-A playoffs will be the stiffest in this, the final year of the division as it now exists.

Rose, in its two opening games, downed Farmville Central, 25-0, and then beat Washington, 29-0, to remain unscored on. Wilson, meanwhile, beat Chapel Hill, 25-0, and then downed Hoggard of Wilmington, 24-7.

Thus the defense seems to be the key to the game, as only one touchdown has been scored by the four opponenets to the two so far.

The defense played a strong role in last week's Rose win over he Pam Pack. "They came up with some fortunate plays again," Coach Dave Bumgarner said. "The offense also moved the ball well — better than against Farmville Central," he added.

The coach feels that the two games have provided a lot of experience and confidence to the Rampant players. "We played everyone who was ready to play against Washington," he said. "We got good running again from Al Hunter and Reggie Perkins, and Mike Harris showed improvement. Our confidence is being built up by these decisive wins, and this helps a great deal."

Bumgarner also noted that he felt Washington is underrated and will be a threat in its conference before the year is over.

'It's hard to do things when you have one punt blocked and another partially blocked,' Bumgarner pointed out, referring to the Washington team against Rose. "We made it hard for them to pass too, and we contained them well on the ground."

Bumgarner did not single out any particular people on offense for their performance in the game, noting that he felt that it was a full team effort. "This is one of the reasons we've been successful so far. We can't credit any one back with doing all the running. All of them have been doing a good job. And the linemen have been doing their assignments, too."

Vince Atkinson

Henry Bunn

He did feel that the inside linebackers performed well against Washington. "No one has run up the middle on us yet," he said. "Our pass defense has also improved, but it'll get a real test this weekend against Wilson."

Dickie Johnson, one of the defensive halfbacks on the team, was selected as the Player of the Week for his work against Washington.

Rose is looking for one of its biggest crowds in recent history at this week's game. Wilson is expected to bring a large crowd along, and the Rampants should also attract a large follwoing.

"They are beyond doubt, the toughest team we've met so far," Bumgarner said. "We gave them a good game last year, and I don't see any reason why we can't again this year. Whether they're the toughest we'll meet all year, I don't know. The conference looks very well balanced."

The Titans return a large number of players from last year's championship team. "They have the same look on defense they had last year," Bumgarner said. "Offensively, they have a new backfield, and they may be a little stronger in the offensive line."

Bumgarner said that Aubrey Mitchell, a running back, handles most of the rushing duties, while Jon Wallace, the quarterback, is a good thrower. "The lefthander can also run with the ball," Bumgarner cautioned, "but he likes to put it in the air."

Tony Paroli, a 6-3, 225-pounder, and the son of head coach Bob Paroli, anchors the offensive line.

Top man in the defensive line appears to be Ronald Mindey, a tackle, according to Bumgarner.

"Their kicking game is also strong," Bumgarner said. "They have a good field goal kicker."

But Bumgarner looks for a defensive struggle. "We haven't been scored on and they've given up only one touchdown so far. I don't look for a lot of scoring, and I think it will be quite close. The passing game is probably their strong point, and they'll try to use it to their best advantage."

Healthwise, Rose is in fairly good shape, with only one player, Jose Baro, out of action. He's slated to miss several weeks with a knee injury.

The Rampants will start Ronnie Rasberry and Paul Lemmond at ends, John Calhoun and Maurice Sheppard at tackles, Lee Cherry and Dave Matheis at guards, Phil Ragazzo at center, Dean Phillips at quarterback, Reggie Perkins at fullback, and Mike Harris and Al Hunter at halfbacks.

On defense, Rose will have Charlie Tyson and Henry Bunn at the ends, Cherry and Calhoun at tackles, Harding Sugg and George Price at inside linebackers, Jackie Savage and Harris at outside linebackers, and Hunter, Calvin Moore and Dickie Johnson in the secondary.

Cougars Plan Local Contest

The 1972 Carolina Cougars may feel more at home in the blue and white uniforms of the University of N.C. Tarheels than the red and white of the Carolina Cougars.

With the lineup including former All-American Billy Cunningham and former All-Conference Dennis Wuycik and Steve Previs the University of North Carolina is well represented. The Tarheel look doesn't stop here though, as the Cougars are coached by former All ACC great Larry Brown. Coach Brown, an ABA All Star himself, plans to mold this year's Cougars around the solid nucleus of Billy Cunningham and Jumping Joe Caldwell.

Cunningham, affectionately referred to as the Kangaroo Kid, has been dazzling the fans in the Philadelphia area, his former home, as well as his NBA opponents with a variety of desceptive moves and deadly shooting for many years. He has been a perennial All Star and the type of clutch performer that the Cougars have needed in their drive for the ABA championship.

The Kangaroo Kid will be complimented by the likes of Joe Caldwell, a former NBA player himself. Caldwell returns to the Cougar lineup after a season during which he was plagued with injuries. 'Jumping Joe' and Cunningham are both known for their ability to skyrocket around the backboard and spear rebounds.

The cast supporting these two greats includes Dennis Wuycik a star in his own right and Steve Previs, his running mate. Tom Owens, a former South Carolina Center has joined the Cougars this season and he along with Mike Lewis also an ACC great from Duke promise to give the Cougars strong support around the basket.

As part of the Exhibition Schedule the Cougars will be playing the Kansas City—Omaha Kings (formerly the Cincinnati Royals) here in Greenville Wednesday, September 27, 1972, at Minges Coliseum. The Kings are coached by Bob Cousy, a living basketball legend. The Cougar starstudded coast and the fiery Cousy's Omaha Kings assures the fans that this game in Greenville will highly competitive.

Golfing Winners

Karl Faser, Christine Simpson, Mary Dale White and Pier Andresen came out as top winners in a Captain's Choice Golf Tournament held this past weekend at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

Second place went to the team of Walter Williams, Della Dayson, Alex White and Bill Brunner. Third place finishers were Mike DiLanciano, Chris Andresen, Joan Hooper and Herb Carter.

Joe Thurber won the closest to the pin contest for the third hole, while on the 15th hole, Harriette White was the winner.

Hole-In-One

W. B. Glenn recorded a hole-in-one at the Greenville Golf and Country Club recently.

The ace came on the 152-yard third hole at the club. Glenn used an eight-iron for the shot. He was playing with three out-of-town guests at the time of the shot.

City Golf Tourney

Registration is now underway for the annual Greenville City Golf Championships, to be played again this year at Greenville Golf and Country Club.

The tournamenet was to have been played at Brook Valley this year, but replanting of the greens at that club has forced the switch to Greenville. The tournament will be played the next two years at Brook Valley to return to alternation of sites to proper order.

The tournment is to be played September 22-23, with a registration deadline of Wednesday, Sept. 20, at 6 p.m. Any adult male member of either club may participate.

Those wishing to enter may do so by calling the pro shop at Greenville Golf and Country Club, 756-0504.

Hoping Kenney Has Good Year

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

This may be the year that North Carolina State's senior flanker Pat Kenney overcomes injuries and realizes his potential by making the All-Atlantic Coast Conference football team.

Last Saturday, playing his first game in almost a year, he caught four passes for 93 yards, one a 51-yard scoring strike, in the 24-24 tie with Maryland.

He is lucky that the season started for him at all. His football career was jeopardized for the second time when he fell from a horse. He was trying to ride the animal bareback on a farm where he was working near his his hometown of Crabtree, Pa.

"That horse dumped me harder than any pair of linebackers who ever hit me," he said. "I don't think I was ever really out cold, but it sure stunned me for a long time."

As a sophomore, he led the Wolfpack in rushing and in pass receiving. He appeared headed for stardom a year ago, but played only four games before suffering a broken jaw against North Carolina and missing the rest of the season.

Coach Lou Holtz says that Kerney would have been valuable in last week's game against Maryland even if he hadn't caught a pass.

"We want to run the ball a lot and it is critical that we get a man out wide who can accomplish the objectives of our running game, as well as catch the football and run with it," the coach said.

Holtz said tight end Pat Hovance, who played well against Maryland, probably will miss Saturday night's home game against Syracuse because of a rib injury. Bob Divens, defensive back, has recovered from a leg injury and is expected to start.

Improving Maryland next is home to North Carolina, which stressed pass offense Wednesday. The coaches said that sophomore quarterback Chris Kupec threw well.

At Virginia, offensive line coach Turnley Todd said blocking would tell the story in the home game against Virginia Tech. He said the offensive line is in good shape.

Duke worked in full pads for its game at the University of Washington. The status of running back Steve Jones is undetermined. He pulled a muscle before last week's Alabama game, but did play three quarters, gaining 82 yards on 20 carries. However, he had not practiced through Wednesday.

Wake Forest also is preparing for an away game against an intersectional opponent, Southern Methodist, which opens its season in the Saturday night game in Dallas. Southern Methodist runs from a multiple-set offense, with equal stress on the pass and the run.

It will be the first college game played in the new Texas Stadium, home of the Dallas Cowboys.

The Deacons are expected to use the same lineup that started in the season-opening 26-20 victory over Davidson. Chuck Ramsey will be at quarterback, Ed Campbell at running back and Steve Colavito at fullback. Wake Forest ran up 251 yards on the ground against Davidson.

Clemson has an open date, but the squad went through situation scrimmages, and coaches said they were pleased. The Tigers will be at Rice in a night game a week from Saturday. They opened last week with a 13-0 victory over The Citadel.

Redskins, Vikings And 49ers Given NFC Nods

By BEN THOMAS
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys are the big question mark again in the National Football League's National Conference.

Will the Cowboys go all the way again this year—despite the loss of No. 1 quarterback Roger Staubach?

Dallas will do quite well this year—probably making it to the playoffs as the No. 4 team from the NFC. But this pigskin prognosticator sees the Washington Redskins winning the East Division, with the Cowboys a close second.

Minnesota appears to be an easy winner in the Central Division but another tough race shapes up in the West between San Francisco and Los Angeles.

East Division
Washington Redskins
Dallas Cowboys
St. Louis Cardinals
Philadelphia Eagles
New York Giants

Central Division
Minnesota Vikings
Detroit Lions
Green Bay Packers
Chicago Bears

West Division
San Francisco 49ers
Los Angeles Rams
Atlanta Falcons
New Orleans Saints

There are a lot of reasons why Dallas should win the NFC East. And there are several reasons why they won't. One of the big ones is George Allen and the Washington Redskins.

Sure, Craig Morton quarterbacked the Cowboys to the Super Bowl two seasons ago. Staubach did it last year. With last year. With Staubach not likely to see any action until the end of this season, that's one minus for the Cowboys.

The Cowboys lost running back Duane Thomas in a trade with San Diego, but they still have Calvin Hill and Walt Garrison. But that won't be quite enough.

The Dallas Doomsday Defense has been one of the best in the game, but this may be the year that age starts to catch up with such stalwarts as Bob Lily, Chuck Howley, Cornell Green and Herb Adderly.

With Sonny Jurgensen rejoining the Redskins, who also have Billy Kilmer at quarterback, Allen's crew will be tough. The Redskins' "Over-the-Hill Gang" could falter some, but not enough to keep Washington from winning its first division crown since 1945.

St. Louis may contend in the East but not strongly enough to Cardinal offense could be potent with Jim Hart and Gary Cuozzo at quarterback, plus receivers Jackie Smith and Mel Gray and running backs Donny Anderson and Leon Burns. The St. Louis defense is suspect, however.

The Eagles and Giants will field teams this season. Not much else can be said for them.

Minnesota is the team that wll represent the NFC in the Super Bowl this year, according to this prognosticator. Fren Tarkenton returns to quarterback the Vikings, who already have such offensive stalwarts as Gene Washington, Jon Gilliam, Dave Osborn and Bill Brown.

And then there are the Purple People Eaters—Carl Eller, Alan Page, Jim Marshall, Gary Larsen and the rest of the defense.

The Detroit Lions can't be completely counted out, but defense—or the lack of it—will be the story of this team for 1972. Quarterbak Greg Landry can hold his own with anybody—but he doesn't play defense.

Green Bay will run the ball a lot with John Brockington and MacArthur Lane gaining considerable yardage. Scott Hunter is erratic at quarterback.

Tide Table

Tides for the 24-hour period beginning at midnight at Topsail Island:

Lows: 7:27 a.m., 8:23 p.m.
Highs: 1:08 a.m., 2:04 p.m.

Punt, Pass Kick Set

The annual Punt, Pass and Kick Competition signups are now underway, it was announced.

The competition, now in its 12 year, attracts boys eight through 13, and is expected to include over one million boys this year.

Sponsored locally by the Greenville Optimist Club and Hastings Ford, local winners can advance through further competition to the national finals, to be held at the half of the Pro Bowl Game in Dallas, Texas, on January 21, 1973.

Contestants participate only against youths their own age.

Registration is now underway at Hastings Ford, and the first practice session for the boys will be held Saturday, Sept. 23, at Elm Street Park at 10 a.m.

Final Month Is Rough On Losers

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "The last month is always tough," says the manager. "You're getting tired. It's hard to keep going."

"In this situation," says the player, "you've got to push yourself."

Reactions to the mounting pressure of a tight pennant race?

Nope. The manager is Ted Williams of the Texas Rangers. The player is Bobby Bonds of the San Francisco Giants. The baseball teams are bound for oblivion this season while, on the opposite end of the standings, other clubs rush headlong toward the playoffs and perhaps the World Series.

For the Pittsburgh Pirates, Cincinnati Reds, Houston Astros, Baltimore Orioles, Detroit Tigers, New York Yankees, Boston Red Sox, Chicago White Sox and Oakland A's, this is the time of year to turn on a drive that can carry a club to the glory of a championship.

But for the also-rans, as Nate Colbert of San Diego frankly admits: "This time of year is looked on more as a salary drive.

"When you're out of it," the Padres' powerhouse says, "you try for the best possible year as an individual in order to give you something with which to negotiate.

"As far as the team is concerned," Colbert adds, "you try to win more games than you won last year. That's the way it is with the Padres because it helps an individual to be able to negotiate when his team improves as well as himself."

And while the pressure of the pennant race—the make-or-break moment of a crucial home run or strikeout, the fielding gem or error—builds steadily on the contenders, there's another kind of pressure facing the guys on the nowhere clubs.

"The toughest problem is keeping myself up," says George Scott of the Milwaukee Brewers, the cellar-dwellers of the American League East.

"When you're losing so much, it's tough to come to the park because it gets tough to look at each other," Scott acknowledges. "Today I came to the park at 3:30 and hung around the locker room to try to get my mind on baseball," he said before a recent night game, "because if I wait until 4 or 5 I'm afraid I might not show up ...."

Ask the manager of a tail-ender how he feels and, more often than not, you'll get the usual stuff like the "play them one at a time and try to win every game we play," line from Charlie Fox of the Giants or the "I don't concede a thing to anyone until we're out of it mathematically," comeback from Bob Lemon of the Kansas City Royals.

But there are those who seem almost delighted to be facing the front-runners despite having no hope of catching them.

Del Rice of the California Angels is one such manager. "Extra incentive," he quipped when asked about impending games with the White Sox and A's. "You don't want them to back in. The name of the game is 'Beat everybody!'"

Then there's the realism offered by the Brewers' Del Crandall. "To me, the thing you have to guard against most is negativism," he said. "If you don't get negative or grouchy, if you don't think you're going to lose before the game is played, then the players have a chance to cope with it. The standings don't mean a thing as to how you manage."

For the most part, though, the next game isn't as important as the next season. And that usually means a focus on youth.

"Sure, this has been disappointing season for us," said Toby Harrah, the shortstop for the Rangers. "But in a way, it's been a very important season for us, too.

"A lot of young players gained experience ... All of us need experience. We need to play as often as possible. That's why no game is unimportant to us."

For taking advantage of things, there's been nobody better this season than Philadelphia pitcher Steve Carlton.

"Defeat? I never consider it. Pressure? It doesn't exist," said the phenomenal left-hander, who has compiled a remarkable 23-9 record with the Phillies, just about the worst club in the major leagues this year.

"I'm doing exactly what I was meant to do," he said, "throwing a baseball for a living."

And you can bet he'll be living a lot better next season, ironic when considering the fact that the St. Louis Cardinals traded him to Philadelphia prior to the season because he was a holdout.

Now, although he won't say so, he knows he's got a chance to become the Phillies' first $100,000 player. Says Paul Owens, manager and general manager of the club: "He can just about write his own ticket."

Boston Ups Lead With 7-2 Victory

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Boston Red Sox took over first place last week and still find themselves in that euphorious position. How's that for longevity?

It's not bad considering the unstable condition of the American League East pennant race. Especially the unstable condition of second place in the East.

Since the Red Sox took over the No. 1 spot on Sept. 7, the other three contenders—Detroit Tigers, New York Yankees and Baltimore Orioles—have all occupied the No. 2 spot.

They continued baseball's version of musical chairs Wednesday night while the Red Sox solidified their hold on first with a 7-2 victory over the Yankees. If you can call a one-game lead solid, that is.

"The biggest thing that this game did for us," said Boston Manager Eddie Kasko, "is that we left home in first place and we're going home in first place."

The Red Sox, who had a half-game lead Tuesday, now hold a one-game advantage over the Tigers, who beat the Orioles 6-5 Wednesday night. The night's events left the Orioles and Yankees tied for third, 1½ games back.

"It's no different than it probably was a week ago," said Kasko. "As far as trying to pick someone, or say that someone's got an advantage, well, it's all right to speculate ... but you'd better not predict."

Ralph Houk, the Yankee manager, still fears the defending league—champion Orioles.

"I still think that Baltimore's the team to beat," said Houk. "It's hard to lose that thought in my mind."

The Oakland A's remained the team to beat in the West, beating the Minnesota Twins 8-0 to grab a three-game lead over Chicago. The White Sox lost 6-4 on a decision to the Kansas City Royals.

The Milwaukee Brewers trimmed the Cleveland Indians 3-1 and the California Angels nipped the Texas Rangers 6-5 in the other American League games.

National League scores: Pittsburgh 6, Chicago 4; New York 11, Philadelphia 6; Cincinnati 8, Atlanta 6; St. Louis 5, Montreal 4 in 11 innings; Houston 6, San Diego 5 and San Francisco 7, Los Angeles 1.

The Red Sox, held hitless through four innings by Rob Gardner, broke open the game with a four-run fifth inning that sent the Yankee left-hander to an early shower.

After the Yankees chased Boston starter Lynn McGlothen on Felipe Alou's two-run double in the seventh, the Red Sox came up with three more runs in the eighth off reliever Ron Klimkowski.

Detroit rallied for five runs off Dave McNally in the fifth inning, three on a homer by Frank Howard and one on a balk by reliever Doyle Alexander, to overcome a four-run deficit and beat Baltimore.

"This is the first time that Howard has really ripped the ball since he's been here," said Detroit Manager Billy Martin, whose team acquired the slugger in a recent deal with Texas. "He was like the others on this team—over-trying."

Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver, looking at the pulsating pennant race, said "it doesn't look like anybody's got that much more talent than anyone else."

"But if we had two .300 hitters," he added, "we'd be eight games in front. For that matter, so would Detroit."

Oakland, getting six-hit pitching from John "Blue Moon" Odom, broke open a scoreless duel with five runs in the sixth inning to beat Minnesota.

Paul Schaal doubled home two runs in the eighth to power the Royals past the White Sox. Amos Otis opened the rally with a single and was sacrificed to second base. After Cookie Rojas bounced out for the second out, Carl Taylor drew a walk and set the stage for Schaal's double to left.

Joe Lahoud's 11th home run and Rick Auerbach's run-scoring triple powered Milwaukee over Cleveland. Leo Cardenas capped a two-run rally in the eighth inning with a run-scoring bunt, leading California past Texas.

Mackey Put On Waivers; Miami To Use All Three

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

John Mackey, voted the best tight end in pro football's first 50 years, now is up for grabs in the National Football League after being put on waivers by the Baltimore Colts.

The 30-year-old veteran had told the Colts he wanted to be traded or put on waivers if he would have to play behind Tom Mitchell, who was elevated to the starting tight end position last season.

The Colts announced Monday that Mackey had retired. He denied it and said he just wanted to go to another NFL team. So Coach Don McCafferty announced Wednesday that Mackey had been waived. If he is not claimed before 4 p.m., Friday he will become a free agent.

Elsewhere, Coach Don Shula said he would use a three running back rotation in the Miami Dolphins' season opener Sunday against Kansas City.

Shula said Mercury Morris, Jim Kiick and Larry Csonka are "all first stringers." Morris said after the Dolphins' 24-3 loss to Dallas in last year's Super Bowl that he wasn't getting enough playing time, and indicated he wanted to be traded unless his status changed. He has led the Miami rushing game in preseason action with a 6.9 yard per carry average.

Roster changes made by NFL teams Wednesday included the acqisition of running backs Charlie Pittman and Dave Kopay and wide receiver Jon Staggers by the Green Bay Packers. Staggers was claimed on waivers from Pittsburgh while Pittman and Kopay were free agents after having been released recently Baltimore and Oakland, respectively.

The New York Giants claimed running back Joe Orduna from San Francisco and placed running back Vin Clements on the taxi squad. Second-year quarterback Leo Hart was picked up by Los Angeles after being waived by Atlanta. Buffalo cut wide receiver Dennis Homan and New Orleans dropped linebacker Bob Grant.

Former Heisman Trophy winner John Huarte was acquired by the Chicago Bears. The one-time Notre Dame quarterback signed with the New York Jets for $200,000 when he ended his college career in 1964. His last club was the Kansas City Chiefs, who recently released him.

The Atlanta Falcons announced that fullback Harmon Wages would be out for the entire season because of a knee injury.

St. Louis said it has re-acquired defensive end Don Brumm from Philadelphia. The 10-year veteran was the Cardinals' first draft choice in 1963 but signed with the Eagles as a free agent in 1970.

STARS FROM JERSEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Someday Fordham may have a standout basketball team with four stars from New Jersey.

Among the fine freshman prospects entering Fordham in the fall are 6-foot-9 Kevin Collins of Manville, 6-foot-9 Kevin Fitzgerald of Edison, 6-foot-7 Bob Wimbs of Monmouth, and 6-foot-3 Kevin Carlesimo of Upper Montclair, N.J.

Also-Rans Are Putting On Show

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

It is September in the National League and with the division races all but clinched, this has become the silly season for the also-rans.

Take, for example the Philadelphia Phillies and New York Mets who put on quite a show Wednesday night.

The Phillies, befitting a team with the worst record in the Western Hemisphere, came out on the short end of the 11-6 score in a debacle that lasted three hours, 35 minutes—the longest nine innings of baseball this season.

The game featured 11 pitchers, 17 walks, 26 men left on base, two wild pitches, a passed ball and two errors. But none of that was as funny as the frantic contact lens search staged by rookie catcher Bob Boone of the Phillies.

Boone started pawing the ground around home plate in the seventh inning after losing his lens. Soon he was joined by plate umpire Doug Harvey, other players and coaches. Caught up in the emergency, Phillie pitcher Jim Nash rushed from the dugout with a head set over his ears and began scanning the ground with the jack end as if it were a geiger counter.

The fruitless search lasted four minutes, 10 seconds before the umpires ordered play resumed. Boone worked the rest of the way with a spare lens and after the game ended, the rookie and a couple of helpers showed up with flashlights to reume the search.

Perhaps they were looking for the end of this long, long season.

Elsewhere in the National League Wednesday, division leaders Cincinnati and Pittsburgh both reduced their magic numbers. The Reds got theirs down to nine with an 8-6 victory over Atlanta in 10 innings and the Pirates cut theirs to five by beating Chicago 6-4. Houston edged San Diego 6-5, St. Louis nipped Montreal 5-4 in 11 innings and San Francisco whipped Los Angeles 7-1.

In the American League, Boston dropped New York 7-2, Oakland shut out Minnesota 8-0, Kansas City edged Chicago 6-4, Detroit topped Baltimore 6-5, Milwaukee defeated Cleveland 3-1 and California topped Texas 6-5.

The Mets picked up 14 hits—four by Ken Boswell—and nine walks from seven Phillie pitchers. New York used four pitchers who surrendered eight walks. The Phillies left 15 men on base and he Mets stranded 11.

Johnny Bench's 33rd home run of the season broke a 10th inning tie and pushed Cincinnati past Atlanta and a bit closer to the West Crown. Tony Perez had a three-run homer for the Reds.

The Braves had bounced from behind to tie the score on solo home runs by Hank Aaron in the seventh and ninth innings. The two homers gave Aaron 30 for the year and 669 for his career. They also gave him 30 homers or more in 14 major league seasons, braking a record he shared with Babe Ruth.

Aaron sighed in the dressing room when the record was mentioned.

"It sure is tough trying to catch that man," said Aaron. "You gotta go through so many records."

Roberto Clemente cracked three hits including a tie-breaking home run to move the Pirates past the Cubs and closer to the East crown.

Clemente connected in the seventh inning against loser Fergy Jenkins, 20-11, as the Pirates registered their 14th victory in the last 16 games. Nellie Briles, 14-7, was the winner.

Pinch hitter Jorge Roque cracked an 11th-inning homer to give St. Louis its victory over Montreal. It was the first major league homer for the rookie, who was batting .083 before he connected.

Johnny Edwards delivered a pinch sacrifice fly in the eighth inning, breaking a tie and helping Houston down San Diego. Tom Griffin earned the victory in relief, striking out 10 batters in seven innings.

Jim Barr hurled a five-hitter and San Francisco tripped Los Angeles. Rookie Garry Matthews delivered a two-run triple in a five-run third inning for the Giants and Barr added a pair of timely hits.

Wife Worries About Ralph

By MARY V. GORDON

RIDGEWOOD, N.J. (AP) — As the New York Yankees battle for first place in the homestretch of the American League East pennant race the wife of the club's manager recalls it's just like old times.

"The players are all enlivened," says a smiling Mrs. Ralph Houk. "We've got pennant fever. We were used to all those pennants."

Not since 1964 have the Yankees won a championship. Before that, the Yanks consistently were champions.

But through it all, Bette Parker Houk has been a watching, cheering, listening, supporting part, because Ralph loves it.

"Ralph worries about the game, and I worry about the game and Ralph," she says.

Being a manager's wife means free box seats above the dugout when the team's at home, and day after day of feeling like a widow when it's on the road; it's having an inside track to what's going on in a seemingly glamorous world, but being a perpetual diplomat and saying only the right thing to team members.

It's a world she feels so at home in that she says "we" when referring to the Yankees."It's often a life of hurry up and wait," she says. "When we win, they take a long time coming out of the dressing room but when we lose, it's bad. Not just one game, but if there's a streak ... there's a lot of pressure."

When the Yanks are losing, Mrs. Houk has to know the right thing to say. Or not say.

"I don't mention baseball until Ralph does, and then I talk," she says.

Mrs. Houk says she has learned to adjust and keep busy and not feel sorry for herself when Ralph is on the road.

"I have to do a lot to keep busy," she says. "I play golf with an 18 handicap and I'm a substitute in bridge clubs. Whenever I can, I try to find a beach.

But when the team is home, her life centers around Yankee Stadium.

"I feel a lot of time I should take a bed out there and just stay," she says.

For Safer Hunting

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—All new hunters in California are required to take a safety course before they are allowed to kill game. The courses, which emphasize hunting safety, conservation and sportsmanship, have been taken by 578,083 persons applying for their first hunting license since 1955.

In that period, the incidence of hunting accidents has dropped from 3.1 per 10,000 license buyers to 0.93.

Man-Hating Is The New Angle

By JURATE KAZICKAS
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — And now there's a new topic of debate about women's liberation that's bound to make at least half of the population a bit uneasy — man-hating.

While more than 200 women cheered, several speakers gave their personal views Wednesday night on why hating men was an essential subject related to women's equality. The conference, closed to men, was organized by the Feminists of New York, who had a similar speakout on rape several months ago.

"We have a moral cause for hating men for they have taken away all our power," said Barbara Mirnoff of the Feminists, by way of introduction. "Men have imposed their minds and bodies on women and our hatred is a natural response, a rational and political hatred developing from centuries of male rule."

The women in the audience, mostly young, dressed in jeans and T-shirts, knitting or taking notes, had paid up to $2 to hear speakers like Robin Morgan, editor of an anthology of feminist writings, "Sisterhood Is Powerful."

She read some of her favorite man-hating poems from her new book, "The Monster."

"I want a woman's revolution like a lover. I lust for it. How I wish that my tears ... were bullets ... to kill what terrorizes in men."

Pat Mainardi, married, the author of "The Politics of Housework," and the editor of the Feminist Art Journal, said, "Man-hating marks a turning point in the movement. We have been defensive long enough."

"People often ask me how married women can be a man-hater," she added. "And I wonder, how can we be anything else." The women cheered.

"We sleep with the enemy to find out his secrets and we pass them onto our allies," she said, but the audience hissed.

"The only way to win liberation is to make men miserable so they will have no peace until women are free. Married women invented man-hating," she declared.

Face-Reddener

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A slip of the tongue momentarily put Sargent Shriver in the Republican camp here.

At a reception Wednesday for South Texas political leaders, he said California labor union officials had told him not to worry about their votes.

"They said, 'We will carry California for Nixon and Shriver,'" he told the crowd, which immediately whooped and laughed.

Shriver quickly corrected his mistake.

Political Motivations Denied By Commission

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Price Commission has denied accusations leveled by the United Auto Workers that public hearings on automobile price increases are a "political charade" designed to delay price boosts until after election day.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock, in a letter read to the commission Wednesday, said the hearings are a fraud called "to promote the re-election of President Nixon."

"I categorically deny that those (statements) are true," commission Chairman C. Jackson Grayson said in response to Woodcock's accusations.

Former Pennsylvania Gov. William Scranton added, "There has not been any action by the Price Commission that has been decided in political sequence."

Woodcock and UAW official Nat Weinberg maintained that the hearings were meaningless since price-increase requests by the two largest auto makers, General Motors and Ford, have been denied. For competitive reasons, they said, Chrysler Corp. and American Motors could not raise prices even if the commission approved them.

Commission member Robert Lanzillotti said the UAW was engaging in political rhetoric and "that raises the question whether you are running political interference for someone else."

The UAW said the public is in the dark about whether the increases are justified and added that the commision could demand more data from the companies than it is getting.

The commission has rejected price-increase proposals from Ford and General Motors on grounds that they are violating profit-margin restraints in the current quarter. Both companies said they plan to refile their proposals.

Chrysler and American Motors are seeking increases of $91 and $75 respectively to recover what they call the costs of federally required safety and antipollution equipment. American is seeking another $75-per-car increase for other costs.

But the commission has suspended the increases pending results of the public hearing.

Actor Who Portrayed 'Hopalong' Dies At 77

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "I'm not the man people remember as Hopalong Cassidy," actor William Boyd often said in turning down interviews after bouts with cancer and Parkinson's disease. "They'd be shocked at the difference."

Boyd, who achieved international fame as the silver-haired Hoppy in 92 motion picture and television films, died Tuesday night, a few months after he entered a South Laguna Beach, Calif., hospital.

He was 77.

Complications from Parkinson's disease and congestive heart failure were reported as the immediate cause of death.

Funeral services, which were expected to be private, were being arranged.

Boyd, who became interested in children, preached the homely virtues to them.

"They way I figure it," he said, "if it weren't for the kids I'd be a bum today. They're the ones who've made my success possible. They're the ones that should benefit from it."

Boyd donated part of his fortune to children's hospitals and homes. He founded a club called Hoppy's Troopers that had an idealistic code of conduct.

High ethics were a part of the Hopalong Cassidy characterization, which ran for 25 years in movies and on television and radio.

Hopalong pursued bad guys relentlessly, but he tried to bring them back alive. If forced into a showdown, he let the villain draw first. Smoking, drinking, swearing or romantic involvement were taboo for Hoppy.

This insistence on clean living came rather suddenly for Boyd, and he credited his fifth wife, Grace, whom he married in 1937, with reforming him.

Boyd, the son of a poor farm laborer in Hendrysburg, Ohio, had come to California "to see how things were on the rich side."

Growing up in Hollywood turned out to be wild spending, gambling, four marriages and divorces. His good looks and brashness made him a romantic idol, star of such films as "The Volga Boatman," "King of Kings" and "Two Arabian Nights."

But in the early 30's his name became linked with gambling and scandal. His career seemed doomed until a Paramount producer offered him a role in what became the Hopalong Cassidy series.

Boyd retired in 1953.

Will Launch New Church

CHOCOWINITY - A new United Methodist Church will be started here Sunday, with morning worship at 9:45 a.m. and Sunday School at 10:45.

The church is sponsored by the Greenville District United Methodist Society, with the Rev. H. M. McLamb as district superintendent. A site has been purchased on Highway 264 in Chocowinity and a trailer is being used for services temporarily.

The decision to start the church was made when the need was revealed by a religious census sponsored by the Greenville District Society and conducted by members of Washington and Methodist Churches.

Sunday the Rev. H. M. McLamb will preach, assisted by the Rev. Eddie a. Walder, the pastor. Judge J. W. H. Roberts will teach the Adult Sunday School class.

An invitation has been extended to the public to attend.

Teacher Classes Begin Monday

Linda Lee, missionary director for the Child Evangelism Fellowship of Pitt County, announced the beginning of weekly teacher training classes.

She reported that the classes will be held at Maranatha Free Will Baptist Church on E. 14th Street on Monday nights from 7:30 until 9 p.m. and on Wednesday mornings from 10 to 11:30. Nursery care will be provided, she added.

The director added that all Good News Club teachers, Sunday School teachers, and others interested in teaching boys and girls are urged to attend the classes. The first class will begin Sept. 18.

CRAFTS COURSE

A class in eggshell crafts will begin Monday night at 7 p.m. at Pitt Technical Institute.

The course is 15 hours in length and there is no tuition.

Bars Women From Formal Role

By EDWARD MAGRI
Associated Press Writer

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI barred women today from even the smallest formal role in the ministry of the Roman Catholic Church. He also restated celibacy rules for deacons and priests.

In a motu proprio—a decree by his own hand—the Pope extended the lower church ministries of Bible reading and altar service to lay Catholics provided they are men.

"In accordance with the venerable tradition of the Church, installation in the ministries of lector and acolyte is reserved to men," the 74-year-old pontiff declared.

The ruling does not actually prohibit women from Bible reading or from performing some altar services, but it bars them from formal investiture by a bishop to do so.

The ban was a setback to many in the Church, from cardinals to nuns, who had called for a role for women among Church "ministers" in keeping with the modern principle of equality of sexes.

The Pope said he made the decision after "having taken into account the views" of bishops around the world. However, he has not implemented a recommendation by the 1971 Synod of Bishops which urged the Vatican to set up a special commission to seek ways to enhance the role of women in the church and in society at large.

By his decree, the Pope denied Catholic women formal ministerial recognition of what they have been doing since the 1962-65 Ecumenical Council.

The decree radically revised the "minor and major orders," the traditional stages by which candidates were prepared for priesthood.

Saying he was removing "what is obsolete," the pontiff dropped the orders of porter, exorcist and subdeacon.

He retained two, those of lector and acolyte, and called them "ministries" rather than "minor orders." This was to indicate they also were being extended to laymen who did not intend to become members of the clergy as deacons or priests in the future. He also abolished the tonsure—the custom of shaving the crown of the head—for lectors and acolytes.

Lay lectors were given the functions of reading the Bible—except for the Gospel—and direct singing during mass. Acolytes are to assist priests at the altar and even give Communion to help the priest with large crowds or when priests and deacons are not available.

In recent years many bishops have allowed nuns to give Communion when there were no priests available.

The celibacy rules for deacons and priests were restated in a separate motu proprio. In it the Pope said the ceremony of ordination was being revised to include a vow of chastity for unmarried candidates.

The two decrees will come into effect Jan. 1.

Expenditures By Candidate Aired

J. Jordan Bonner, Republican candidate for the U. S. House of Representatives for the First Congressional District, has made public his campaign expenditures for the general election to be held November 7.

As of this date Bonner reports he has spent $4,842,61, including $269.85 for travel expenses, $571.12, for office expenses, $2,861.49 for production, $571.25 for direct mailing, and $565.00 in staff salaries.

Bonner said, "I am in favor campaign spending limitations and equal time on news media. This policy would give the average qualified citizen an opportunity to run for public office on an equal basis with rich bureacrats." Bonner noted, "my Democratic opponent, Walter B. Jones, voted against campaign spending limitations and spending reforms."

One of the things Bonner would like to see done when elected is the lowering of salaries for Senators and House members. He said, "the Democratic 91st Congress that continually complained about overspending, raised its own salaries by 41.67 per cent. I want to see salaries cut from $42,500 per year to $30,000 per year, and office expenses cut from $150,000 per year to $100,000 per year. "This would save American taxpayers $30.3 million dollars a year," Bonner stated.

Local Guardsman Earns Medallion

ALLEN HONORED . . . Maj. Gen. Ferd L. Davis, N.C. Adjutant General, pins the newly authorized National Guard recruiter medallion on 1st Sgt. Mayo Allen of Greenville.

A Greenville National Guardsman was one of 14 honored in Raleigh this week for their participation in an award-winning recruiting effort in North Carolina last year.

The National Guard reported that 1Sgt. Mayo E. Allen was among the Guardsmen receiving badges designating them as National Guard Recruiters.

Allen served as a member of a seven-man team who last year visited 38 integrated high schools throughout the state providing information on the creation of a multi-racial organization. The team, it was noted, consisted of four black and three white Guardsmen.

Only two of the medallions, authorized earlier this year by the National Guard Brueau, had previously been presented in North Carolina, both by Gov. Bob Scott, it was pointed out.

The Guard reported that during the period members of the biracial information team and the recruiting teams operated, black membership in the North Carolina National Guard was tripled, and total strength in the Guard went from 95 to 100 per cent of authorized positions.

Slain Child Given Grave

NEW YORK (AP) — They gave Shirley Robinson a decent funeral, a compassionate footnote added by neighbors who were touched by her suffering, shocked at her death and unwilling to let her go to a pauper's grave.

Shirley's unclaimed body lay for a week in the city morgue after it was discovered that the nine-year-old child had been beaten and then drowned in her East Harlem apartment bathtub.

A mortician donated his services and a gravesite and about $1,000 was raised toward the cost of the funeral for the girl who was victimized in life by mental retardation, crippling and poverty.

"Let not Shirley be buried without family and love," intoned the Rev. Dominick Bistella who conducted the funeral attended by 500 people Wednesday. "She is not without family and love, for she has a big family here."

Her only known family was her mother, 40-year-old Irene Robinson, who was charged with her daughter's homicide and placed under psychiatric observation.

Mrs. Robinson reportedly told police she drowned her daughter to save the child from starvation.

Program Today On Health Care

Physicians's assistant Stephen Joyner of Ayden is on the program of the Governor's Conference on Innovations in Health Care Delivery being held today in Raleigh.

Joyner is an assistant to Dr. J. Elliott Dixon, an Ayden family physician. He was one of the first graduates of the Duke University Physicians's Assistant program and is still one of the few in the state working in a family practice.

Affluent Youth TopicUnderlined

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Today's affluent teen-agers was Housing Secretary George Romney's subject during a talk with parents at a Portland high school, and it was underscored by an interruption.

While Romney was talking on Wednesday, the public address system came to life and Romney had to stop.

The PA announcement was that the lights of a pupil's car were on.

Empty Beds In TB Hospitals

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — Modern drugs and treatment have reduced the number of patients in North Carolina tuberculosis hospitals. About 450 of the state's 1,300 beds for tubercular are empty.

State health officials are studying new uses for empty beds at the TB sanatoriums at Wilson and Black Mountain.

Joseph Lennon, administrator of the state sanatorium system, says the two other state TB hospitals are fuller. The one at McCain in Hoke County is at about 70 per cent capacity, and Gravely Sanatorium at Chapel Hill has most of its 100 beds filled.

Jon and Marie Tessier: owners of the thin house, so narrow telephone pole's shadow nearly covers its front.

The Tessiers have coffee in quaint kitchen. Right, view thru thin house.

HOUSING SQUEEZE

Yes, it really is a house. Three stories high, 9 feet 6 inches wide. It seems that back in 1932 when the neighborhood, in Long Beach, Calif., was almost all built up there was this 10-foot lot left over, destined to become just a storage area. Then the owner, in the face of roars of laughter from his friends, decided to build a house on it. And there it stands, 40 years later, still a source of wonder for sightseers. The present occupants are a young couple, Jon and Marie Tessier, who happily accommodate to the house's peculiarities—and try to avoid the tourists.

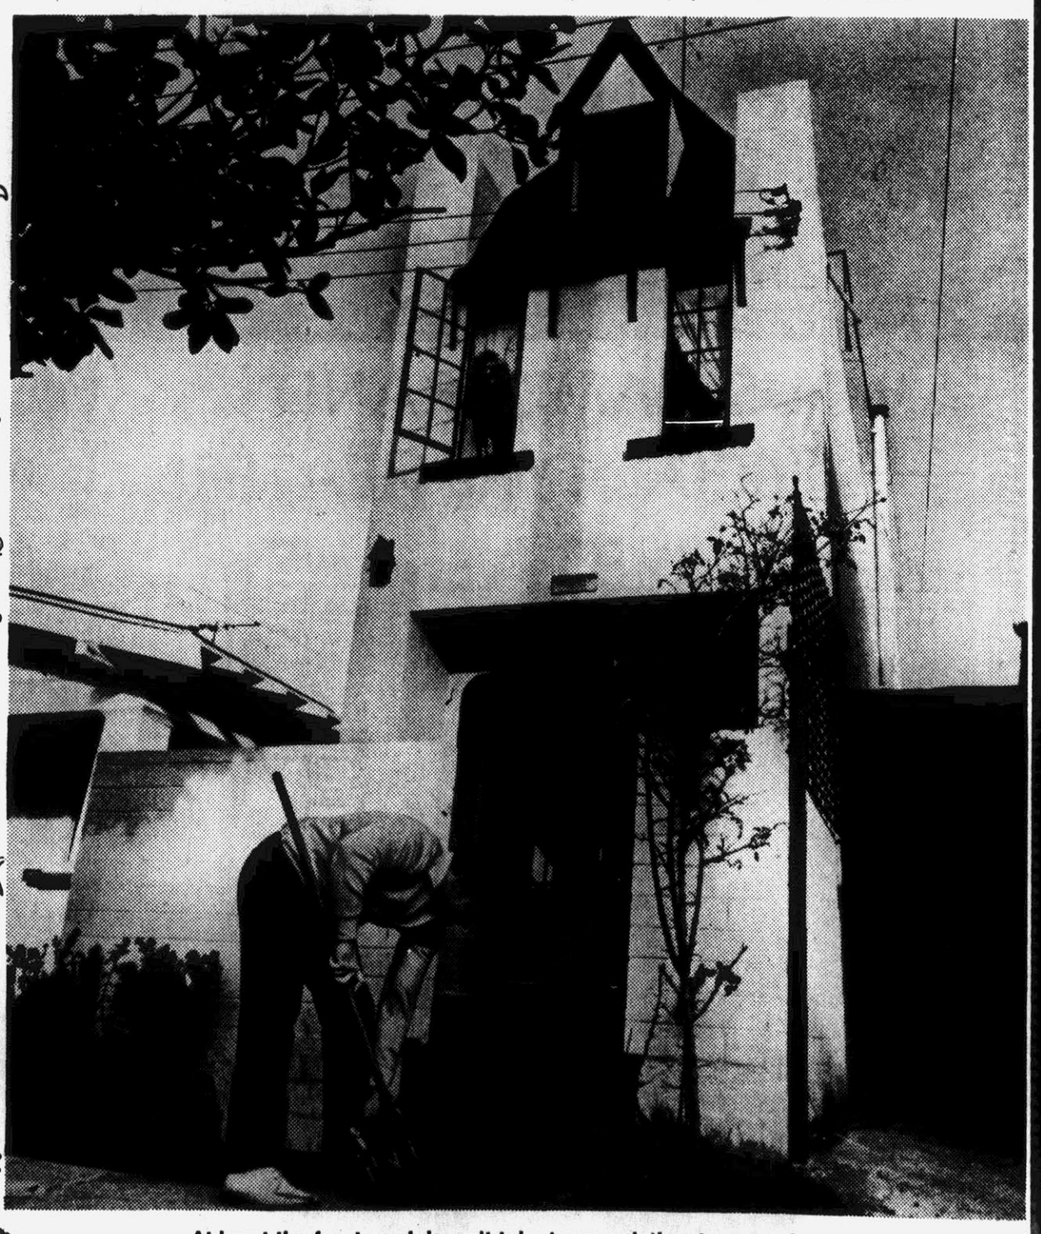

Roof top clothes-line-with-a-view gives room for an armful, or two, of washing.

Staircase from second to third floor, left, doubles as bookshelf and reading room. Right, Marie has just about room to open newspaper in third floor attic.

At least the front yard doesn't take too much time to sweep!

Three Reasons For TV Viewers To Climb Wall

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The 10 o'clock—Eastern time—hour on Wednesday nights this fall looks like one that'll leave viewers two options: griping at network competition or going in hock for second and third television sets.

There are three good reasons for this. They are CBS' "Cannon," NBC's "Search" and ABC's "The Julie Andrews Hour." They could provoke fistfights in the one-set family over who gets to watch which.

Cannon, shifted from Tuesday nights, is back for a second season with William Conrad starring in the tautly written, well-acted series about a pudgy private eye with a heart and hearth of gold.

He only used to have assorted villains to worry about. Now the opposition includes that Mary Poppins lady and a fine new gumshoe series resembling a cross between "Star Trek" and "Mission Impossible."

Miss Andrews may be the toughest foe. Her 60-minute debut may have been a videotape editor's nightmare, but from start to finish it was a delight to the eye and ear.

It traced her career from London music halls to Broadway and Hollywood, a path lined with the songs she made famous in "My Fair Lady," "Sound of Music" and, of course, "Mary Poppins."

She sang them all and sang them well. And at one point, though electronic wizardry, she even formed a singing trio consisting of Julie Andrews as Julie Andrews, Julie Andrews as the ragamuffin Liza Doolittle and Julie Andrews as the prim and proper Mary Poppins.

She put her best foot forward at the onset with a tap dance number that began as a soft-shoe solo and rapidly grew into a clattering crowd whose members ranged from a fat lady to a skin diver.

When it came time for comedy, she had excellent support from actor-impressionist Rich Little and comedienne Alice Ghostley, either of whom could make the phone book come out funny.

In short, the entire show was one of those rare television birds that gives you a mental lift and a vague curiousity as to where the time went.

NBC's "Search" does the same thing for those who like their detective shows crisp and full of high-voltage gadgetry.

The series revolves around the World Securities Corp., a private detective agency with scads of electronic and computer aids.

Its opening segment starred Hugh O'Brian as an upper-class private eye who is tuned in as no one ever has been tuned in before.

His head is wired for closed-circuit sound broadcast from afar. He has a miniature television and telemetry transmitter concealed in his ring and he often appears to go about talking to himself.

But he's actually talking with Burgess Meredith and other equally fine supporting actors back in the agency's Mission Control, which radios information only he can hear and receives telemetry data on both his vital life signs and those of the people he meets.

Oh yes, it also gives instant computer read-outs on the background of anyone who counts in the world of bad and good.

The plot of Wednesday's "Search" concerned a evil State Department bureaucrat in charge of hiring top-level consultants he ultimately blackmails—if they like gambling—into spilling top-level secrets to foreign agents who may be up to no good.

The show was well-written and moved briskly along. But the electronic tomfoolery was the most fascinating and chilling of all. If it's a look at the future, heaven help us all.

Girls' Haven Will Benefit From Sale

Girls' Haven will be the beneficiary when the members of the Greenville Woman's Club donate their treasures for their booth at the flea market at the Greenville Moose Lodge Saturday. The sale starts at 10 a.m.

Girls' Haven, located at Burnsville near Mount Mitchell in Yancey County, is a home open year-round to any girl who needs a home. It was founded by A. Peacock, director of Boys' Home of North Carolina from 1954-1958. He said he saw the need for such a home when he so often carried a boy to live at Boys' Home leaving his sisters behind.

The home is set up as a non-sectarian, non-profit, non-stock corporation. The plan is to have small cottage units with no more than eight girls living in a cottage and no more than three cottages in one location. It is hoped that eventually there will be units in various section of the state, so a girl can be placed near her home.

The girls will attend public schools and churches of their choice and will have Christian house parents. Ages may vary from 10 years to high school graduation age.

Mrs. Elaine Odenwald, the new president of the N.C. Federation of Woman's Clubs, is a director of Girls' Haven and the Federation has accepted contributions to the home as their project for 1972-74.

Opening lead: Five of ♣

When South responded with two diamonds to North's opening bid of one spade, the latter made a game forcing jump shift to three hearts inasmuch as his holding was worth 20 points. South temporized at this stage by giving a spade preference in order to observe North's next action. When diamonds were supported next, South checked for controls via Blackwood.

When the opening bidder showed three aces and one king, South decided to bid a grand slam. He assumed that trumps were solid and if North had a good enough spade suit, there would be 13 top tricks. At the worst, the contract might hinge on a finesse.

Had West made a neutral lead, such as a trump, South—after drawing the adverse diamonds—would in all probability have fallen back on a simple spade finesse. After cashing the king and leading a second round, the appearance of West's queen would have brought about a prompt resolution to declarer's problem.

West's apparent gift of a club lead away from the king, altered the situation. Assured of 12 tricks by the opening—six diamonds and two tricks in each of the other suits—South has alternative courses available other than a mere spade finesse. If the same opponent holds four hearts and three spades, for example, pressure can be brought to bear on him so that he is unable in the end position to retain his protection in both suits.

After winning the opening lead with the queen of clubs, South proceeded to draw trump by playing over to the ace of diamonds, overtaking the queen with the king and then cashing the jack on which a spade was discarded from dummy while West gave up a club. The ace and king of hearts came next and then a third heart was ruffed by declarer as the jack appeared from East.

The last two trumps were cashed on which both opponents discarded clubs and North gave up the eight and ten of spades. The ace of clubs was led next to produce the following end position at trick 11:

NORTH
♡ 10
◇ Void

WEST	EAST
♠ Q 9	♠ 7 3 2
♡ Q	♡ Void
◇ Void	◇ Void
♣ Void	♣ Void

SOUTH
♠ K 6 4
♡ Void
◇ Void
♣ Void

A spade was led to the ace and the jack was returned. South went up with the king to drop West's queen, however, East took the final trick with the seven of spades which he had carefully retained.

Even if South discards a heart from dummy on his last diamond to retain the A-J-10 of spades, the winning procedure in that suit is not clearly indicated. If a spade is led to to the ace, for example, and the nine appears from West's hand—it may be a true play from the queen-nine or a false card from the nine-small. Declarer is left with a guess whether to finesse thru East or to play for the drop. His problems would have been greatly simplified if West had not led a club originally.

Braille Menus Are Provided

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Braille menus now are carried by a Southern California coffee shop chain to help blind persons be more independent while dining out.

The seven-page version of Alphy's Coffee Shops' standard menus were conceived by Gary Stephens, manager of one of the 27 restaurants. A trial menu was prepared by the Braille Institute and the San Bernardino Valley Lighthouse for the Blind, then adopted for the entire chain.

The firm, a subsidiary of Alpha Beta Acme Markets Inc., estimates there are 20,000 blind persons in Southern California.

The United States Air Force Academy was established April 1, 1954, and is located on 17,900 acres at the foot of the Rocky Mountains in Colorado.

Sturdy Gurkhas Serve British Army With Legendary Courage

By DAVID J. PAINE
Associated Press Writer

HONG KONG (AP)—Charging along the narrow ravine as flashes of gunfire lit up the dark night sky, Subedar (Captain) Lalbahadur Thapa leaped into the enemy machine gun post and swung his kukri.

Twice the curved steel blade slashed viciously and each time a man died. Firing his revolver with his other hand, Labahadur shot and killed two more men.

He scrambled up the defile in the face of withering fire, eventually reaching the crest and killing two more men with his kukri. Two soldiers with him hacked to death another two defenders.

From the top of Rass-Ez-Zouai Ridge, Labahadur and his companions covered their company's advance up the precipitous path. Kukris were used freely in the hand-to-hand fighting which ensued before the whole area was captured.

For his bravery, Lalbahadur became the first Gurkha in World War II to win the Victoria Cross, Britain's highest battle honor.

The action took place at Wadi Akarit in North Africa in the pre-dawn hours of April 6, 1943, as the British Eighth Army, still flushed by victory at El Alamein, assaulted heavily defended German and Italian positions 200 miles south of Tunis.

The Wadi Akarit attack was typical of the type of fighting which has won the Gurkhas their almost legendary reputation. Like other fighters who storm their enemy's lines with bayonets or knives, they cause widespread fear and panic.

The sturdy squat hillmen from Nepal have a traditional fondness for fighting with their kukris. These are the heavy-bladed, all-purpose curved knives with the cutting edge on the inside of the curve.

Crossed kukris form the Gurkha symbol.

In combat, the Gurkhas are ruthless, highly disciplined and loyal warriors.

At leisure, they are fun-loving and happy, and are frugal savers.

The name Gurkha stems from the small principality of Gorkha whose king in the 18th century conquered most of what is now Nepal. British mispronunciation of Gorkha led to the present name.

The Gurkhas, in the words of one of their early British officers, are "the stubborn and indomitable peasants of Nepal." Since 1815, when their bravery in fighting against the British East India company led to their being recruited by their enemies, they have soldiered with distinction for Britain.

The cheery brown faces of these tough little fighters, often revealing their Mongolian descent, belie their fierce courage under fire. They have won 13 Victoria Crosses and many other awards for valor in two world wars and other battles.

Since World War II they have been troubleshooters for Britain in Asia, fighting communist guerrillas in Malaya and Indonesians in Borneo and standing firm against communist rioters in Hong Kong.

In 1972 they moved their home base from Sungei Patani, in Malaysia, to Sek Kong, in Hong Kong.

Hong Kong, Britain's last military outpost east of Suez, will remain their home for the foreseeable future.

Here they share with other British troops the task of patrolling this colony's 22-mile land frontier with China, watching across the border and gathering information on the activities of Chines soldiers and civilians. They are also ready to support Colonial authorities in any emergency, as they did in 1967.

In line with Britain's Far East and Near East cutback in military strength, they have been reduced from 15,000 at the time of the Malayan anti-guerrilla fighting to 6,700.

One battalion is in Britain, performing duties which include mounting the guard at Buckingham Palace. Its presence releases British troops for duty in Northern Ireland, but Gurkhas will not be sent to this trouble spot because it would be, as a senior officer said, a "politically unwise move."

Another battalion is serving in Borneo under a British defense agreement with the Sultan of Brunei.

The Gurkhas are commanded by British officers who have a tremendous admiration for them and display a deep loyalty for their men that is returned in full.

They rely heavily on the Queen's Gurkha Officers—Gurkhas who have come up through the ranks after usually 14 to 16 years service but whose commission is junior to the British officer.

The Gurkha motto is "kaphar hunnu bhanda marnu ramro"—it is better to die than to be a coward.

Tremendous endurance marks the sporting feats of the Gurkhas, who are used to arduous walking on the steep slopes of the greatest mountains in the world, the Himalayas.

An average height of about five feet four inches and a weight of 140 to 160 pounds are a handicap in many sports, but the short, muscular legs of the Gurkhas keep pounding away tirelessly. They often win because while their opponents are flagging at the finish they are going as strong as ever.

Compared to troops from Britain, the Gurkha is poorly paid. Even allowing for the fact that the Gurkha gets his quarters, food and clothing free while the British soldier must pay for his, he is far worse off.

His pay scale is restricted by agreements between Britain, India and Nepal in 1947, when colonial India was partitioned into independent India and Pakistan. The Gurkhas, who had been part of Britain's Indian Army, were divided between the British and Indians forces and Britain agreed not to pay them more than the Indians did.

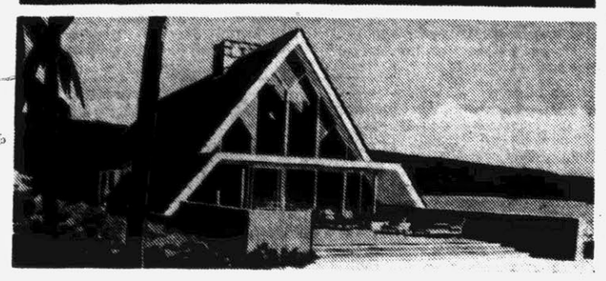

There are about 100,000 Gurkhas in the Indian Army and their pay is low. The British, under the pretext of meeting higher living costs, give their Gurkhas allowances which are more than their basic pay.

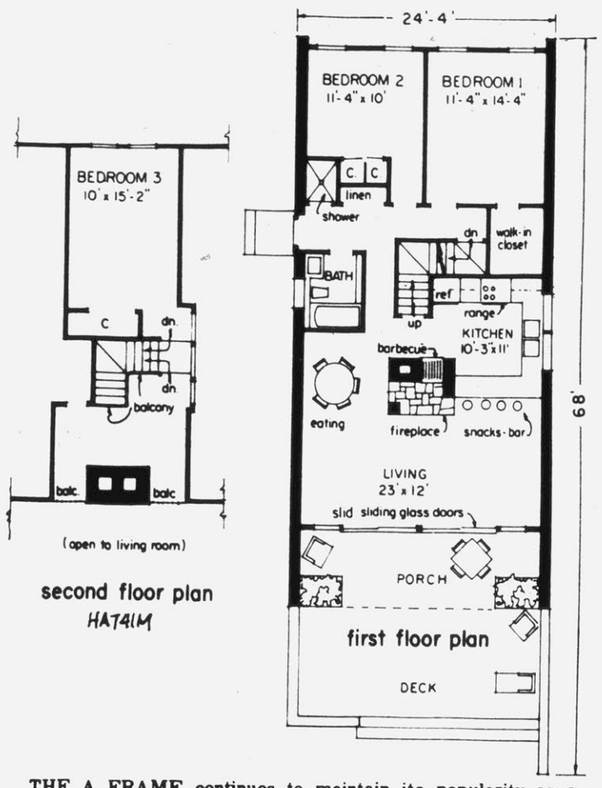

While this still leaves them below the rate for their English counterparts, it is a high wage for men used to scraping a hard living from rugged hillsides in Nepal. Remittances from Gurkas form one of Nepal's greatest sources of income.

But in a break with the past, some Gurkhas are being sent to Sandhurst and Mons military colleges in England and emerge with a full British commission, equal in status to that of a British officer with the same rank.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

THE A FRAME continues to maintain its popularity as a vacation home. In this plan, the rafters are held to sensible lengths and the living space is thus improved. A wide open front deck spreads up to the main entrance of two seven-foot-wide sliding glass doors. A seven foot-deep portion of this deck becomes a porch covered by a flat roof above. The shower is near the side door, for refreshing after sports. Two bedrooms are on the first floor, rear, and a third is on the upper floor, rear. The balcony could be used for game tables, study or overflow guest sleeping. This home has a full basement with central heating unit; air-conditioning could be included. Plan HA741M was designed by Rudolph A. Matern, 89 E. Jericho Turnpike, Mineola, N.Y. 11501. The architect may be contacted for information about cost of the plan.

Epilepsy May Be Responsible

NEW YORK (UPI)—Many juvenile delinquents and problem children may be suffering from forms of epilepsy which do not cause fits or convulsions and may occur undiagnosed in more than 10 million Americans.

Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, senior consultant of the Mayo Clinic, writes in Nerves in Collision, published by Pyramid House, that studies show 60 to 70 per cent of problem children produce abnormal reading on the electroencephalogram indicating non-convulsive epilepsy.
