Booby-Trap Mail Plot Is Discovered Widespread

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The plot to kill Israelis with booby-trapped mail parcels spread to Africa today after intensive police searches turned up bombs in North America and across Europe.

Israeli officials also reported they are getting tough with persons trying to inflict their own personal vengeance on Arab terrorists.

The Israeli foreign ministry said three of the envelopes containing the bombs were found today addressed to embassy officials in Kinshasa, the capital of Zaire, the former Belgium Congo.

They were discovered in the embassy's postal delivery box before any went off. A spokesman said the bombs were similar to those found earlier this week in Paris, London, Brussels, Geneva, Vienna, Tel Aviv, Montreal and New York. One of them killed a diplomat in London, but the others were found before they were detonated.

Meanwhile, Israeli police cracked down to prevent Jewish vengeance attacks in Europe. "We are not planning any illegal operations," one official said.

Israel's state radio reported that police were holding former Israeli underground fighter on suspicion of trying to ship arms to Europe for attacks on Arab terrorists or Arab interests.

The radio identified him as Amihai Paglin, once operations commander of the Irgun terrorist movement. The Irgun fought against the British army before Israel won independence.

Two days ago the militant Jewish Defense League announced that one of its members also was arrested for trying to smuggle weapons abroad for counter-terrorist operations following the Munich Olympic murders.

As the letter bomb scare mounted in Israel, police said 14 of the explosive-laden envelopes had been found in the country. Like all of the others, they were mailed from Amsterdam, officials said.

To Impede Flow Of Supplies

Vietnam Rivers, Canals Mined

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command disclosed today that American planes have placed mines in the rivers and canals of the northern sector of South Vietnam to slow the flow of war materials to North Vietnamese army units.

Spokesmen said that to their recollection it is the first reported time waterways inside South Vietnam have been mined.

"U.S. aircraft have placed mines in some rivers and canals in the northern part of Military Region 1 occupied by North Vietnamese forces to impede the flow of supplies to North Vietnamese army units," the Command said.

Northern Military Region 1 is Quang Tri province, South Vietnam's northernmost sector that borders the demilitarized zone to the North, Laos to the West and the South China Sea to the East. Although the South Vietnamese recaptured Quang Tri City Saturday, the North Vietnamese still control roughly a 20-mile stretch of Quang Tri province northward to the DMZ.

The Command said it is maintaining records of the locations of the mines.

"We know where they are," said a spokesman. "When the time comes that friendly forces are back, we can take care of them."

Overcast skies cut U.S. air strikes across North Vietnam to about 210 Wednesday, the Command reported.

The 101st U.S. jet was reported lost over the North since the resumption of full-scale bombing April 6. A Navy A7 developed engine trouble and the pilot, bailed out into the Tonkin Gulf 47 miles northeast of Thanh Hoa. He was rescued unhurt.

Most of Wednesday's raids were concentrated along North Vietnam's coast between Thanh Hoa and Vinh.

American Party's Platform Praised

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

"The American Party has the best political platform I think any party has ever come up with in this country," the party's vice presidential nominee contended here today.

Appearing here this morning during a three-day campaign tour of North Carolina, Tom Anderson of Tennessee referred to the party platform as being one of specifics. "On Vietnam we say that it is immoral, unforgivable, inexcusable, and unconstitutional to draft any man to fight an undeclared war you never intended to win and a war in which you've helped the enemy all the way."

He said that the American Party takes a firm stand on busing. Unlike President Nixon who didn't know what he was for until George Wallace polled that big vote in Florida, we are not only opposed to busing but what's at the end of the line. We are opposed to big brother forcing integration. We think that's a local job and should be decided on a local basis by the local people.

Speaking to newsmen at the airport, Anderson, who joins presidential nominee Rep. John Schmitz on the National American Party ticket, said that the party's main campaign thrust is aimed at President Nixon "because, number one, President Nixon is in and he's heavily favored to win. I don't think George McGovern is in it at all. I think if you were getting gambler's odds on it you could get I don't know how many to one against George McGovern."

Anderson reiterated Wallace's earlier claim that "there is not a dimes worth of difference" between the Republican and Democratic parties.

"We call them socialist party A and socialist party B, both of which are controlled from the top down by rich, international socialists; members of the Council on Foreign Relations, international bankers, owners of multi-national corporations who have forgotten where their loyalty and patriotism lies.

Both Nixon and Wallace, Anderson contended, have similar goals and are "for a one-world socialist government under the United Nations with the big boys having all the power. They think we are just a bunch of slobs who are not able to control our lives. This has happened under both parties for years."

The Turkey Trot, Tenn. resident said he expects the American Party to "poll a whole lot of votes" if the party can "break through this left-leaning antenna and the paper curtain that has us blacked out on the national level."

Anderson was accompanied this morning by Arlis G. Pettyjohn, the American Party candidate for governor in North Carolina. The vice presidential candidate was expected to make further stops in Washington, Elizabeth City, Ahoskie, Roanoke Rapids and Rocky Mount today.

General Fund Revenues Jump During August

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's general fund revenue collections during August jumped 23 per cent over collections for the same month last year.

State Revenue Commissioner Andrew Jones Jr. reported Wednesday that the August revenues totaled $119.9 million, compared with $97.5 million in August last year.

For the first two months of the fiscal year, collections amounted to $206.1 million, an increase of $35.2 million or 21 per cent over last fiscal year.

Jones said the highway fund took in $24.8 million, an increase of $1.4 million over August, 1971. Gasoline tax receipts were $22.9 million compared with $21.7 million last year.

Highway fund collections for the first two months of the fiscal year were $49.3 million, up $2.5 million. Gasoline tax revenues totaled $45.4 million, a gain of $2.2 million.

The sales tax, reflecting economic conditions, brought in $28.5 million in August, a gain of more than $3 million. The largest increase was registered by the income tax collections for the month, which totaled $66.5 million, up $15.8 million.

Nursing Career For Male More Readily Accepted

By DENISE LEDFORD
Goldsboro News-Argus
Written for The AP

GOLDSBORO, N. C. (AP) — Richard Lanier had always wanted to become a nurse, but there were many drawbacks for a young man.

"My friends would joke and kid me whenever I suggested it," Lanier said, "so I finally shook off the idea — for a while at least."

"I went ahead and graduated from Goldsboro High School, in 1969, and last year I earned my associate degree in livestock and poultry at Wayne Community College. But I still wasn't satisfied with myself."

His mother, a licensed practical nurse, kept him informed about the nursing programs offered at Wayne Community College, where she received her own degree. And Lanier soon was convinced that nursing was his intended profession.

So, bracing himself for the jokes and ridicule that were certain to come again from his friends, he entered the first class of associate degree nursing trainees at Wayne Community College.

With one year of training behind him and another nine months to go, he finds nursing very interesting, challenging and most important, satisfying.

"It's really amazing how the girls have accepted a male in the class," he said. "The younger ones treat me as a brother and the older women mother me." mother me."

Lanier said his most embarrassing — but funny — experiences were on the obstetrics ward. "The women there in the delivery room didn't quite know how to accept a male nurse, but they're beginning to now," he said.

"The patients in general react differently — the men, especially. Some of them favor male nurses, while some are disappointed if they don't have a pretty female nurse."

Lanier's favorite area of work is in the intensive care unit. "It's so interesting and challenging there — and I like challenges. And the patients there seem so grateful for everything you can do for them. The nurses are the best, too, and offer good influences for the less experienced trainees, like me," he said.

Lanier said male nurses are being more and more readily accepted in society. Wayne Community College has three more male nursing students enrolled as freshmen this year.

Lanier, who is married, works parttime at Wayne Memorial Hospital with the duties of a practical nurse. After next May he hopes to enter further training at Watts Hospital in Durham to become an anesthetist.

Pennsylvania Is 21st To Ratify

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — After four months of lobbying by various women's groups, the Pennsylvania Legislature has become the 21st state to ratify the proposed equal rights amendment to the U.S. Constitution."

Signed By Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has signed into law a $4.8-billion antipoverty bill after it was stripped of a provision freeing a program of legal services for the poor from direct government control.

The bill keeps the legal services program under the supervision of the Office of Economic Opportunity, where it has been from the start.

The bill also authorizes $2.4 billion each for the current and next fiscal years for such OEO activities as food and medical services, alcoholic counseling, the Community Action program.

New projects are authorized for environmental employment, rural housing, consumer action, community planning and youth recreation.

Nixon, who signed the bill Wednesday, originally expressed support for making Legal Services an independent corporation, but only if he retained the power to appoint all its directors.

Sidewalk Art Show Shelved For 1973; Alternative Plans Slated

When spring comes in 1973, the Greenville Art Center will be the scene of a giant Flea Market and Art Show. This will mark the first time in many years that there will be no annual Sidewalk Art Show. The market is being held in its place.

The decision was announced at a meeting of the board of directors of East Carolina Art Society held Wednesday night.

Mrs. William Fore, president of the society, in revealing tentative plans, said the market would be held perhaps during April or May. In addition to the regular items offered at such events, area artists will be encouraged to bring in works of art for sale.

Mrs. Edith Walker, director of the Art Center, received approval of board members to accept the position of vice-presidency of the North Carolina Watercolor Society. She was congratulated by board members for having been chosen for this office. Mrs. Walker and Claude Howell, chairman of the Department of Art, University of North Carolina at Wilmington, are the two chosen from eastern North Carolina to be board members of the newly formed society.

Miss Lucy Cherry Crisp and William Holley are to head efforts to make arrangments for art classes and art programs for students. Tentative plans call for afternoon or Saturday art classes and a program of art films and other activities for students of all ages.

It was announced for the first time the entire permanent collection at the Art Center is now fully insured. Previously, there had never been funds sufficient to cover the entire collection.

Mrs. Walker informed board members that she has received word of the possibility that the Art Center will lose its third class mail privileges. She said that a bill before Congress would remove art centers and art councils from the lower rates that now apply to certain institutions. She noted this would impose an additional burden on the already overstrained operating budget of the center.

This Pie Filling Can Go Into Freezer

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Here's an excellent way to use your freezer for have-on-hand desserts. Make up green grape filling for a couple of pies and stow the filling in your freezer. Then when company is coming or you want to give your family a treat, bake a green grape pie. The following recipe explains how.

When we followed these directions in our test kitchen, we found the grapes stayed pleasantly plump and the pie was deliciously different. We used the lowest amount of sugar given in the recipe and the filling had an agreeable flavor that was slightly tart.

Serve the pie warm, with cheddar cheese if you like, but don't top it with ice cream. We tried that and found the pie just wasn't made to be offered a la mode.

FREEZER GREEN GRAPE PIES

2 quarts green seedless grapes, about 3 pounds
1 to 1¼ cups sugar
¼ cup plus 1 tablespoon quick-cooking tapioca
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmet
Heavy duty foil or plastic freezer wrap
Pie pastry
Butter
Milk or cream

Cut 1 quart of the grapes in half. Mix with remaining grapes, the sugar, tapioca, salt, orange and lemon rind and spices. Let stand 15 to 20 minutes.

To freeze: Line two 8-inch pie plates with enough foil so that it extends about 6 inches beyond rim of plate. Measure 1 quart of grape mixture into each lined plate and lightly fold excess foil over filling. Freeze until firm. Then remove frozen grape mixture in foil from pan; bring ends of foil tightly over filling; make a drugstore fold and turn edges in to wrap tightly; label and return to freezer. Filling may be kept as long as 4 months.

To bake: For each pie to be baked, prepare pastry for a double-crust 9-inch pie. Roll out half the pastry on a prepared pastry cloth, using a stockinet-covered rolling pin, to a round that is 1½ inches larger than inverted 9-inch pie plate. Fit into 9-inch pie plate and trim edge. Unwrap grape filling and place, unthawed, in pastry-lined pan and dot with 1 tablespoon butter. Roll out remaining pastry to a 10-inch round and place over filling. Seal top and bottom crusts and flute edges. Cut slits in top crust and brush lightly with milk. Bake in a preheated 425-degree oven until juices bubble near center and crust is browned—1 hour. If edges start browning too quickly, cover with strips of foil.

Makes two 9-inch pies.

Note: Pie may be baked with grape filling that has not been frozen. Reduce baking time to 40 to 45 minutes.

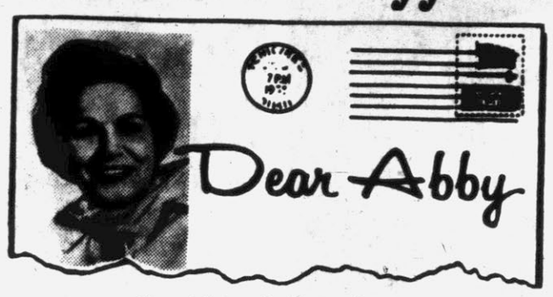
Need For Affection Not Inherited



By Abigail Van Buren

[© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.]

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of three children. A boy 9, and two daughters, 6 and 3. The two older ones are my natural children; Tammy, the youngest, we adopted when she was five days old. Believe me, when I tell you that I couldn't love Tammy more if she were my own flesh and blood. But she is my problem.

Tammy seems to be crazy about men! Any man. If a strange man smiles at her in the grocery store, Tammy will grab his hand and want to go with him. If a man comes to our home, whether she has ever seen him or not, Tammy wants to climb on his lap and kiss him. She makes a big hit with all the men because she is affectionate, but it worries me.

Do you think her real mother could have had this trait? We know that Tammy's mother was a runaway girl, and she had Tammy when she was 15. I can't help wondering if this aggressiveness with men could have been inherited from her mother? [Our older daughter, who is not adopted, is shy, and she won't go near a man unless she knows him very well.]

Please tell me what you think, Abby. Is there some way I can break Tammy of being so forward with men? Or is it hopeless because her mother may have had this problem? WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Stop worrying. Tammy's reaching out for male attention, affection and approval is NOT an inherited trait. [Such behavior is learned—not inherited.] Question: Is Tammy's father giving her enough attention and affection? If not, ask him to work on that. And you should train Tammy to be less forward and more reserved with men.

DEAR ABBY: Why do I not have the right to say to a fat person, "My, you're fatter, aren't you?" People seem to think it is all right to say to me, "My, you're thinner, aren't you?"

Not everyone who tells me I am thinner is fat, so I can't accuse them of being jealous, but I resent the remark anyway.

I am and always have been slender, but I look well in my carefully selected clothes and receive many compliments. Why do some people think a thin person doesn't mind being told he looks thin?

Can you explain the psychology back of this dumb kind of remark? It has bugged me for years.

THIN IN EL CERRITO

DEAR THIN: Most people equate fat with ugly, and thin with beauty. Of course excessive thinness is no more desirable than excessive obesity, but it has been said [humorously] that a woman can't be too rich or too thin. If you don't have to count your calories, count your blessings, lady.

DEAR ABBY: To the parents of "Twenty Six and Single": I didn't write that letter, but I could have. I know you love your daughter, but you will lose her if you don't accept the blessing that she is a happy, productive person even tho she isn't married and has no prospects yet.

She may not need you to look after her children, but she needs you in other ways. Would you rather that she had an unhappy marriage, or one that ended in divorce? Or that she just lived with her boy friend?

Making your daughter feel that she has "let you down" because she isn't married yet will give her feelings of guilt, worthlessness, and insecurity, which are bound to make her less attractive to any man she might meet.

Making her feel loved, worthwhile and secure will give her a glow that will attract the right kind of people to her.

Pray for the strength to avoid prying questions about boy friends and dates and prospects of marriage. If your daughter has any good news, you will be the first to know.

TWENTY SIX AND SINGLE, TOO.

DEAR ABBY: I was surprised in reading your column to note that you referred to a man who would not converse with his wife's parents as " a person who sits in company like a wart on a pickle." It brought back memories of my dear mother. She was the only one I ever heard use that expression. FLORENCE

DEAR FLORENCE: Your dear mother and mine must have gone to the same school. That's where I heard it.

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 69700, L. A., CALIF. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

His Discharge Has Backing

GILLINGHAM, England (WNS) — Susan Shipley's method of getting her husband a Navy discharge was to walk out on him and their three young children. The 24-year-old mother said that she suffers from a nervous disorder and cannot bear to be alone. "Life was bad enough during Raymond's two years of shore duty." The Navy quickly surrendered. Mrs. Shipley returned home after being informed that hubby's discharge application has official backing.

Attorney General Robert Morgan's assertion that North Carolina needs more Better Business Bureaus for protection of the buying public should not be misinterpeted as a slap at legitimate business firms throughout this state.

Obviously more better business bureaus would offer protection also for the legitimate businesses throughout the state who now find themselves competing for consumer dollars with shady operators.

As Morgan pointed out in his statement, "By and large a great majority of the merchants appreciate receiving a call form us when the public has a complaint."

More Better Business Bureaus in the state should protect both the consumer and the merchant who is doing his best every day to provide customers with the best quality merchandise at the best possible price. And this group includes the vast majority of business firms in this state.

While there are relatively few Better Business Bureaus as such in North Carolina — and those which do exist are mostly in the larger cities—most communities large and small have chambers of commerce or merchants associations which probably perform a useful function is this connection.

They may not be able to operate with the expertise of established better business bureaus and they may not have the resources to haul into court and prosecute those few operators who try to fleece consumers. Even so, with some effort, it would seem that in most communities some organization could take on the better business bureau function. At least it could provide a focal point for consumer complaints and serve to channel these complaints to the right places. It would provide better protection both for local consumers and for the legitimate businesses within the community as well.

Lawns Became Accepted Fact

By BRIAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — Thirty-five years ago the clean swept front yard was the status symbol for the well-kept home in rural and small town North Carolina.

"People fought grass in the field and garden. It didn't make sense to them to cultivate it around the house," recalled John H. Harris.

Now the lawn is an accepted part of landscaping on the Tar Hell scene. He had more to do with bringing about the change than any other individual.

BRYAN HAISLIP

He preached lawns and plantings to beautify the home setting in 32 years as an extension service horticulturist, 15 of tem as specialist in charge of horticulture. He wrote a newspaper column that made him "Mr. Tar Heel Gardener" to a statewide audience.

Harris likes the compliment, but he doesn't take all the credit. What really made the breakthrough, he said, was the advent of the power mower.

"It was pretty tough to persuade someone to put in a lawn when it meant pushing one of those old hand-mowers. The power mower came along and put in some fun and took out some of the work. That did ten times more than anything I did to promote the acceptance of lawns," he said.

Nation's Leading Hobby

A typical autumn weekend will find more folks, in North Carolina and across the country, working on their lawns and and yard than watching football, playing golf, or following any other hobby. Gardening is the national leisure time pursuit, and a $5 billion annual business.

There are about as many reasons why as there are people who do it, said Harris. Status is still a factor; everybody wants his place as attractive as the neighbors.

"It's good physical exercise, and it presents a challenge. And somtimes it's the wife's idea. You can't overlook that as a reason," he added.

"One of the terrific changes I've seen is the interest men take in the yard. I explain it this way. So many of us grew up on the farm, working with growing plants in the field. Now that we live in town, we find the outlet for that interest and energy in the yard."

Nature gives satisfaction to those who learn her ways. "Yes, I think you find spiritual values in growing things and the outdoors. I do," said Harris.

A Practical Career Choice

He came to Raleigh from a Chatham County farm in the Depression era as a student at North Carolina State University. He enrolled in a general agriculture. A very practical consideration switched his curriculum to landscape design.

"Like everybody else, I had to work my way through school. I got a job doing yard work. Unskilled labor got 10 cents an hour, but you could earn 30 to 35 cents if you were skilled," he remembered.

He changed his courses and after a year qualified for the higher pay as a specialist. By the time he graduated, he had a pickup truck and a crew of four college boys (at 10 cents an hour) in the operation of a thriving business.

After a little more than a year as city parks superintendent in Greensboro, he returned to Raleigh and joined the extension service. He retired in 1969 after 32 years. He now has a private practice as a landscape architect.

Harris continues a gardening radio show he's been doing for 30 years on a Raleigh station. He also is co-author with Dr. R. Gordon Halfacre, a NCSU horticulture professor, of "Keep 'Em Growing," a book of practical how-to advice on lawn and garden care published earlier this year.

Tar Heel Lawn Problems

Establishing and maintaining a lawn is a problem many Tar Heels struggle with year to year. The fall season is the time for the agonizing appraisal on when and how much to reseed and fertilize.

"In a way, it is tough to keep a good lawn in North Carolina," Harris conceded. "The state is sort of a twilight zone between the cool season grasses such as fescue and bluegrass, and warm season grasses such as bermuda, centipede and zoysia."

In general, cool season grasses do best from the mid-piedmont west to the mountain, while warm season varieties adapt better from the lower piedmont through the coastal plains.

A lawn may not be the best choice for all areas of the year, although the clean swept look is not the alternative, Harris noted.

"I don't use a lot of grass. I like ground covers, such as periwinkle and ivey, where there is moderate shade. I leave some areas natural, which can be very attractive," he explained.

Gardening is working with nature, not against it, he advised. "This is God's world, but it needs man's help. Nature makes things grow. Man can guide and control and the growth for a more beautiful environment."

Two Potential Heir-Apparents

By JOHN KILGO

RALEIGH — U. S. Senator Sam Ervin will be 76 years old next week and politicians in every nook and cranny of North Carolina insist the Senator has made a decision to retire when his present term is up in two years.

One politician who has close ties with Sen. Ervin and members of his family tells me: "Sen. Ervin is moving his furniture back to North Carolina. This is his last term in Washington, by his own choice."

Don't expect Sen. Ervin to confirm the retirement talk. When I asked him about it recently, he repliad: "Young man, I never plan a thing two years in advance of their happening. If I don't know the answer to your question, I doubt others do."

Nonetheless, the reports are widespread enough that speculation has begun as to what person will fall heir to Sen. Ervin's seat in Washington.

They are Attorney General Robert Morgan and 6th Dostrict Congressman L. Richardson Preyer.

It has been rumored for years that Morgan would love to run for the Senate. Even when he was considered a sure candidate for Governor just a few months ago, many of his close friends insisted that Morgan wanted to run for the Senate in 1974.

Speculation has increased in recent weels. A couple of weeks ago Dunn newspaperman Hoover Adams introduced Morgan to a group of Rotarians " as the man who will succeed Sam Ervin in the U. S. Senate in two years."

One of our reporters, Bruce Bowers, asked Morgan about any desires he might have for running for the U. S. Senate.

"I'm trying to get relected as attorney general at the present time," Morgan answered. "Later on as these programs that I'm working on become established and I feel like I've done what I can do, I might quite frankly be interested in the Senate. It's too early to make any decisions now."

If you believe in political pools, you'd have to conclude that Morgan has been popular attorney general. Nearly every poll conducted a year ago indicated strongly that Morgan would have been an odds — on choice to win the Democratic primary for Governor.

Political popularity is like a pretty spring day — it doesn't stay around forever and one must enjoy it while he can. Morgan knows this. Friends of his insist to this day that the reason he didn't run for Governor was because he had his eye on the '74 Senate race, a job he considers more attractive than the Governor's office.

Preyer, a Greensboro lawyer, has served two terms in the U. S. House, representing the counties of Alamance, Guilford, Caswell and Rockingham.

Preyer's first attempt at state-wide office came in 1964 when he ran for Governor and was defeated in a runoff by Dan K. Moore. He is a member of the so-called Sanford wing of the Tar Heel Democratic Party.

Preyer had been a strong vote-getter in his congressional district and has won wide respect in the House. He's not talking publicly about a race for the Senate but his name is prominently mentioned among politicians when the subject is brougt up, which is quite often indeed.

Once a man is elected to the Senate, it's hard to dislodge him. Morgan knows this. So does Preyer. If reports of Sen. Ervin's retirement are true, politics will be front page copy in the Tar Heel press in 1974.

THE GREEN-EYED MONSTER

I do not know who first called jealousy a "green-eyed monster." It is certainly an old expression, for Shakespeare used it in his great play "Othello." And it is a very apt and vivid expression as it suggests the frighteningly destructive effects of jealousy on our lives.

Perhaps nothing hurts our personal relationships with others more seriously than jealousy. It destroys respect for others. Admiration or esteem for someone who has done better than we have can be a fine thing, leading to emulation and our own eventual success. But the jealous man cannot admire for he only hates and envies.

Jealousy poisons friendship. If we are jealous of our friends then we resent their good fortune and rejoice at their failures, an attitude which soon puts an end to friendship. Jealousy shatters love. When we are jealous we can no longer trust, and when we cannot trust we cannot truly love.

But even worse than what jealousy does to our relations with others is what it does to ourselves. The jealous man is sour and bitter for he is always enviously conscious of whatever others have. The jealous man is sorry for himself. He hates others for getting ahead instead of blaming himself for falling behind and learning from his mistakes.

"O! beware, my Lord, of jealousy."

A Look That Refreshes

The two crooked tailors, so the fable goes, conned the emperor into believing they were vesting him in marvelous new robes, but everyone feared the emperor and no one dared to dispute him. Then one day he appeared before his subjects and a child cried out: "Look, mother! The emperor has no clothes."

Everyone knows the story. It remains a classic among fairy tales because it tells us so much of the real world. But it is exceedingly seldom, in our own realms of make believe, that a clear note of truth rises above the murmur of a docile throng. One such voice is now being heard. It is the voice of Christopher Jencks.

The gentleman is an associate professor of education at Harvard; but that should not discredit him absolutely. He startled his colleagues a couple of years ago by advocating a plan of tuition grants to promote greater diversity in education. It is an article of faith among professional educators that tuition grants are the work of the devil. They closed ranks at once, and the Jencksian heresy was promptly put down. Nothing remains of his tuition-grant scheme but a pitiful little experiment feebly sponsored by the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Now Professor Jencks, unrepentent, once more has committed truth. In collaboration with Mary Jo Bane, a research associate, he has published a study of some of the gaudiest myths of American education, especially the myth that by equalizing schools we will put an end to poverty. A four-year investigation has convinced him that in this case, at least, the emperor has no clothes.

An article based upon his findings appeared recently in the Saturday Review of Education. The full work will be published next month by Basic Books. This is apostasy on a grand scale, far surpassing the Jencksian heresy on tuition grants.

For the past 20 years, more or less, our entire educational system has been dominated by a series of observations and assumptions. It was observed that many persons, notably black persons, were poor; and it was observed that many schools were measurably unequal to other schools.

The assumption followed along like Mary's little lamb: It was assumed tht if the schools were made substantially equal, the poverty could be greatly reduced. In a frenzy of equalization, egged on by sympathetic judges, our educational masters hurled themselves into remedial efforts. Old schools were abandoned; new schools were built. Per pupil expenditures were scrutinized to the last penny. Madly we bused. The idea was to break the vicious circle by exposing the poor child to the same education provided the middle-income child.

Alas, says Professor Jencks, the assumption is erroneous. The quality of a child's education, equal or otherwise, has relatively little to do with his economic achievement as an adult. The effort expended on equalization is largely wasted effort. As for desegregation: At most it raises black elementary school students' test scores "by a couple of points." School reform, he implies, "is never likely to have any significant effect on the degree of inequality among adults."

Other factors, most of them beyond the reach of the state, have much more to do with failure or success. He is unflinchingly candid: "We have no idea what these factors are." Home environment is an obvious consideration, but there are

Public Forum

Letters submitted for public forum must be limited to 300 words

To The Editor:

One assumes that Congressman Galifinakis would have gained a certain amount of insight into the techniques of federal regulation during his House tenure. Thus, it is astonishing to read of Mr. Galifinakis's views on broadcasting and the alleged conspiracy of Secretary of Agriculture Butz and Senatorial condidate Jesse Helms against fair federal regulation of television station WRAL in Raleigh. How insane to think that the Secretary of Agriculture would trifle with the regulatory processes under the initiative of an investment that is perhaps worth $50,000.

If these allegations form the Galifinakis campaign are to be considered, then we must also contemplate the proportionately much greater influence peddling that must, therefore, have taken place during the Democratic administrations by such party power houses as J. Leonard Reinsch, perennial democratic party fund raiser and empresario. Mr. Reinsch is president of the Cox Broadcasting Companies which have a current market value in the vicinity of $425,000,000 and are licensees of three broadcast stations in North Carolina, among many other broadcasting interests. Or, consider the LBJ intetests that control nine broadcasting stations. Nor should we overlook our good Governor Bob Scott who has interest in several broadcasting stations. But, surely, these are also honorable men?

Perhaps it's too much to expect that the Galifinakis campaign will soon abandon such shallow mud-slinging tactics and get down to issues.

Sincerely yours,
Lawrence Behr

Siberia Doesn't Entice

By WELLINGTON LONG

MOSCOW (UPI)—Want to sniff lotus blossoms in exotic Asia? Hunt wolves on the frozen Taiga? Be assigned to the "front line of romance"?

Those are questions Communist propagandists are asking of Soviet school graduates this year, in a renewed attempt to recruit "young enthusiasts" to colonize the far reaches of Siberia and develop its treasure house of raw materials.

The campaign is only partly successful. A published sociological study reported that while Soviet citizens can be enticed to Siberia by such ticklers, many soon leave again to return to the comforts of European Russia.

Economic scientist E.D. Malinin's 40-page study of Siberian demography said that despite the national campaign to colonize it, Siberia lost 900,000 people between the census of 1959 and that of 1969.

Some years the turnover in Siberian communities was as high as 40 per cent, Malinin reported.

A typical appeal to "young enthusiasts" was made in the youth newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda by A. Gulchenko, secretary of the Communist party in Siberia's far eastern Primorskij region.

Gulchenko was the one who talked about lotus blossoms and the "front line of romance."

Primorskij region needs construction workers of all kinds, Gulchenko said. He promised travel allowances and huge wage differentials as well as separation pay for married men who left their wives in Russia.

Siberian enterprises advertise for help in newspapers throughout Russia, in much the same tone.

But Malinin said most of those who heed the call don't stay because Soviet planners insist on building factories instead of providing decent living quarters and decent services.

V. Dolgikh, secretary of the Communist party in Krasnoyarsk, told visiting Russian journalists the same story.

"Although we began to build up the Maklakovo-Yeniseisk area back in the 1950s, for example, no real city so far has emerged," Dolgikh said. "In fact, the area presents a sad example of how industrial centers should not be built and convinced us to build housing and social and cultural facilities at a faster pace than factories."

More Vinyl Shoes For Public

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — You might think that the shoe industry would have fewer problems than others, since all but a few of us are shod from infancy to finality and even beyond.

The $7 billion shoe industry has survived some serious assaults. And currently sales have never been higher. Twenty years ago a man probably bought one pair a year. Now the average is up to two for men, and close to five for women. Count all kinds of footwear, and sales total around 950 million.

But there are problems, and there always have been. With profit margins running under 3 per cent on sales, some threat seems always to lurk round the corner. Some originate in social change, some from lack of foresight.

The current situation, industry spokesmen say, results from factors that have no precedent. First, imports have taken about 38 per cent of the domestic market. Second, the price of hides has galloped 120 per cent in one year.

And so, the shoe people say, in another few months a man won't be able to buy a pair of leather shoes for under $20. He'll be able to buy a pair for less than that but they won't be leather. More likely they'll be vinyl.

The tendency to turn to manmade materials is unlikely to change, says Mark Richardson, president of the American Footwear Industries Association, at least until two government-involved decisions are made:

1. A decision for or against a quota on imports, being actively sought by manufacturers.

2. A resolution of "the hide problem," which now results in large bundles of American hides—this country is the only major supplier—being shipped to a growing foreign industry.

But whereas the industry has sometimes been accused of lacking initiative and with being inclined to seek low-wage areas rather than innovate, it seems now to be seizing the situation, changing it, adapting to it.

Now, forced ahead by young, fashion-conscious buyers, it has learned to enlarge its volume by changing styles, sometimes radically, even to the point of dismaying and offending some conventional shoe men.

In manufacturing, the industry has usually relied on human labor—average output is two pair per manhour—when other industries were learning to use machines and save. While this is partly the nature of the industry, changes are being made.

The use of manmade materials will likely permit greater use of automation, because plastics and vinyls and the polyurethanes, unlike nature's product, are consistent in quality and shape.

Injection molding, in which shoes are cast from fluids, is catching on. And, with the growing use of manmade materials, the one-step manufacture of soles—unit soles—is speeding production.

Relief is coming also from an entirely different source, the foreign worker. In Italy, wages and benefits per hour have risen from $1 five years ago to $1.51 now. The U.S. rate is $2.90, but the rate of gain much smaller.

McGovern Advisers Say Nixon Arms Goal Soar

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — George McGovern's defense advisers today accused President Nixon of speeding toward a $100-billion-a-year military budget that threatens to spiral the arms race and "bankrupt our ability to provide a decent life for our people at home."

Without repeating the Democratic presidential candidate's proposal for a $30-billion cut to put the defense budget at $58.4 billion by 1975, the advisory panel claimed McGovern would give the country a realistic defense balanced with meeting domestic priorities.

"We need more than just engines of war if we are to be truly secure," said the panel co-chaired by former Defense Secretary Clark M. Clifford.

Nixon's secretary of Defense, Melvin R. Laird, dismissed the panel's report as what he called a desperate attempt by McGovern "to escape the consequences of his own defense proposal."

The McGovern panel said a "shift from the current overblown defense establishment to a leaner, tougher system geared to today's needs and today's realities" should be made gradually so as not to be disruptive internationally or at home.

It said Nixon's defense policy "has been marked by failures" to end the Vietnam war, to slow the arms race, end wasteful spending for military weapons, and to use expensive military manpower effectively.

"Even worse," it said, "billions are squandered on weapons systems we should know to be useless with the feeble excuse that these will be valuable 'bargaining chips.'"

The McGovern panel said such new U.S. weapons as the Trident submarine and B1 bomber jeopardize arms control by upsetting the U.S.-Soviet nuclear balance and by "appearing as a threat to Soviet forces and as a U.S. escalation of the arms race."

The panel quoted the Brookings Institution as saying continued funding and expansion of present programs would bring a $100-billion defense budget by 1977.

"If the costs of our weapons, our troops and our wars are allowed to bankrupt our ability to provide a decent life for our people at home," the panel said, "then we have military power without national security."

Pesticide On Leaf Found

WASHINGTON (AP) — A residue of pesticides termed "unacceptable" by the U. S. Department of Agriculture has been found in 6 per cent of the flue-cured tobacco tested for chemicals in Georgia and four other Southern states.

The findings released Wednesday included DDT and a similar pesticide, TDE, both of which were banned by the USDA beginning with 1970's crop for growers receiving government payments.

Agriculture officials did not identify the growers or specify the amounts of pesticide concentrations by state. The states in question were Florida, Georgia, North and South Carolina and Virginia.

The department said 37 of 625 samples tested showed residues of more than three parts per million—the maximum allowed under price support qualification standards.

Spitz Signs Up With Agency

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Olympic Swimmer Mark Spitz has signed a contract with the William Morris Agency of Los Angeles.

Norman Brokaw, a partner in the agency, said Wednesday he hardly knows where to start in setting appearances for Spitz. He says Spitz has offers from movie companies, television and advertisers.

The swimmer's first appearance is set for Oct. 5 on television with Bob Hope. Spitz says he plans to give up his predental studies at Indiana University, at least for the time being.

Dry Weather Affecting Crops

RALEIGH (AP) — The Federal-State Crop Reporting Service says the condition of North Carolina crops declined slightly last week as dry weather prevailed, but no serious damage was reported.

Soybeans were in mostly good condition although insect infestations were heavy in some fields.

The agency said farmers were busy during the week preparing land for small grain and cover crop seeding, harvesting burley tobacco and fall vegetables and preparing flue-cured tobacco for market.

Jencks is ruthless. He demands that we look at the whole concept of "equality." What do we mean by it? Do we want it? What is poverty? If poverty may be defined as a living standard of less than half the national average, do we truly want to eliminate poverty? Are we prepared to pay the price of sweeping socialism to do so? If so, then "those with the most competence and luck must subsidize those with the least competence and luck to a far greater extent than they do today." This is plain speech. Bomb Letter Is Dismantled

NEW YORK (AP) — Police bomb squad experts have successfully dismantled one of three miniature explosive devices discovered in mail addressed to three members of Israel's United Nations delegation.

The devices found here Wednesday were similar to booby-trapped envelopes mailed from Amsterdam to Israeli officials in at least eight other countries and which killed an Israeli diplomat in London.

U.S. Customs personnel assigned to work at the General Post Office made the discovery during a routine check of incoming foreign mail, postal authorities said.

The letter-sized envelopes were addressed to Yosef Tekoah, permanent representative of Israel at the United Nations; Jacob Barmore, who holds the rank of ambassador, and Uri Gordon, minister plenipotentiary.

Bomb squad members removed the envelopes to a police demolition yard in a remote section of the Bronx. One was disassembled after fluroscopic inspection and the other two stored for later study.

At the offices of the Israeli U.N. mission, extra security was in effect. Locked doors were opened with a buzzer only after the caller was inspected via closed-circuit television.

Once inside, visitors were escorted to the office where they had business. A spokesman said mail arriving at the mission was being checked but, for security reasons, declined to say how.

Need Dogs For Training Class

More dogs are urgently needed to keep the current Dog Obedience Training Class that has just started underway. Unless additional canine candidates are registered for the classes, it will be necessary to discontinue classes.

The classes, at Elm Street Gymnasium, taught by Mrs. Helen Willis of Raleigh, are in two sections. Beginner classes are each Friday from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. with advance classes from 8:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Fees are $20.00 for beginner classes and $10.00 for advanced classes. The fees cover the cost of the entire ten week course of lessons. Registration or additional information can be obtained by calling the Recreation Department, 752-2355.

Underground Plant Urged

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A team of engineers suggests that nuclear power plants be built deep underground to minimize the possibilities of contamination in the event of accident.

The idea was advanced in a study released Wednesday by the Environmental Quality Laboratory of the California Institute of Technology.

Means of eliminating danger to people and the environment was the objective of the study made by engineers of Aerospace Corp. of San Bernardino, Calif., a nonprofit research organization.

In addition to lessening the danger of accidental contamination, "underground plants could be constructed closer to the population centers which not only use the power but which might be able to avail themselves of the waste heat for space heating, air conditioning and other industrial uses," said Dr. Martin Goldsmith, who directed the study.

The study said the additional cost of constructing a plant in a cavern of rock more than 150 feet deep would be less than 10 per cent of the total cost of the same plant built on the surface.

SUDDEN WEALTH

LITTLE FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — John Mizerak 76, and his 71-year-old wife had eight chances in 3,066,612 of winning New York State's special summer lottery. The grand prize ticket determined Wednesday was worth at least $1 million to them.

A dab of nail polish or a squirt of hairspray will keep a little run in hosiery from getting larger.

Urges More Financing

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Jim Hunt, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, has advocated further state financing of the North Carolina Housing Corporation.

The Wilson attorney told the Homebuilders Association of Charlotte Wednesday night, "No other state has forced its housing agency to operate solely on the point-spread principle."

Joe E. Eagles, who heads the agency, told a newsman in a telephone interview that the legislative act did not state that funds in addition to the initial appropriation of $500,000 would be granted. Eagles said the corporation was expected to finance itself on the difference in interest on the money it lent on mortgages and what it had to pay.

Eagles said that two years ago, when mortgage cash was scarce, the spread was 1½ per cent, which was adequate. How, he said, it is less, and $200,000 of the appropriation has been spent.

Writer To Open Lecture Series

The Iowa native who writes about the workings of the presidency from a close up view is launching the annual Lecture series for the 1972-73 season at East Carolina University.

On Tuesday, Hugh Sidey, currently bureau chief for Time, Inc. in Washington, D. C. and author of a weekly column for Life magazine, "The Presidency," will be on campus at ECU for a lecture at 8:00 p.m. in Wright Auditorium.

HUGH SIDEY

Sidey, born into a newspaper family, grew up in Greenfield, Iowa, where his father and his grandfather before him published Adair County Free Press, a weekly journal. He learned the newspaper business from the traditional floor sweeping stage as a grammar school student on through the mechanical, photographic and business phases.

After a hitch in the Army at the end of World War II, Sidey gradually worked east to New York, with a stint first on the Council Bluffs (Iowa) Nonpareil. For four years he was city hall reporter for the Omaha World-Herald and then on to New York for a two year tour with Life magazine.

From New York he went to Washington on assignment as White House correspondent and deupty bureau chief for Time, Inc.

Japanese Slain By U.S. Marine

NAHA, Japan (AP) — A U.S. Marine fatally shot a Japanese worker at Camp Hansen in central Okinawa Wednesday, and officials said they are holding the serviceman for questioning.

The U.S. military command identified the Marine as Lance Cpl. James S. Banjamin, 25, of Austin, Tex. The Japanese, Seiyu Enokawa, was an employe at the base.

Maj. Gen. Joseph Fegan, commanding general of the Third U.S. Marine Division on Okinawa, expressed his regret over the incident and extended condolences to the relatives of the dead man.

Newsmen Describe Ordeal In Ugandan 'Black Hole'

LONDON (AP) — Americans and Europeans rounded up by Ugandan troops and secret service agents were flung into a "black hole of Calcutta" jail cell with African prostitutes, thieves, thugs and two lunatics.

That was the tale of horror told today by seven British newsmen released by the Ugandans Wednesday after they were held several days in Kampala's central police headquarters as "British spies".

The British newsmen withheld their reports until they knew the other newsmen held by the Ugandans were freed. That group, including Associated Press correspondent Andrew Torchia, was released late Wednesday night and flown out to Manchester on a British airliner.

Daily Mail reporter Leslie Watkins, freed Tuesday night, was arrested in the Grand Hotel by seven Ugandan agents and marched to prison with a submachine gun jabbed in his back.

He was stripped and searched and found himself branded a spy because interrogators found a note from his five-year-old son in his case. It read: "Good luck daddy. Come back safe and soon. Love. Simon."

Watkins said his interrogator screamed at him: "This person knows you are on a dangerous mission."

Watkins was flung into the "foul-smelling dungeons of the central police sation"—which the Ugandan Africans christened "King Georgey Hotel" during British colonial days.

After more interrogations by screaming Ugandans, Watkins and other newsmen were thrown into a barracks room measuring 40 feet by 20 feet with about 50 other foreigners, including a pregnant English woman and two small boys aged four and two.

The foreigners still held by the Ugandans "are in a desperate situation," Watkins said. "They are in a cell complex in which 70 people exist with only four toilets. The smell is choking."

One man, he said, cracked under the strain and stumbled terrified around the crowded cell mumbling "they are going to shoot us". But he said most of the foreigners, even children and women forced to watch torturers batter an African with clubs for an hour, kept their heads.

Don Wise, roving correspondent for the Daily Mirror, said: "Everyone lived with the fear of being thrown to the crocodiles."

Women and children, he said, were held captive alongside prostitutes, drunks, thugs and thieves. Two lunatics, shouting and dancing hysterically, were in one cell, Wise said.

The captives slept on the bare urine-smeared concrete floors, without bedding. Drinking water came from a rubber hose lying in a drain running through the grimy cell block.

The greatest fear, Wise said, was the realization that "nobody outside knew where we were and there was no rule of law to protect us."

Mineral Collection Is Donated To ECU School

The mineral collection of the late Charles Mack Barnhardt of Concord has been donated to the East Carolina University Department of Geology by Barnhardt's mother, Mrs. Paul A. Barnhardt.

The collection consists of more than 3,000 rock specimens and is valued at approximately $9,000. It was assembled by Barnhardt over a period of 18 years.

The specimens were collected from various areas, including the Chubbs Mountain, Spruce Pine and Kings Mountain areas of North Carolina.

Dr. A. Ray Jennings, chairman of geology at ECU, said the collection will be kept intact and displayed as the Charles Mack Barnhardt Memorial Mineral Collection.

"The collection will serve many students through the years and will add greatly to our instructional program," he said.

"A continuing benefit to education will be an inherent part of this fitting and permanent memorial to Charles Mack Barnhardt."

Barnhardt was a member of the Southern Appalachian Mineral Society, the Charlotte Mineral Club and had served as regional vice president of the National Rolling Rock Club. He also was an organizing member and president of the Concrod Mineral Club.

Arrangements for donation of his collection to the ECU geology department were made by Richard Dayvault, a graduate student in geology at ECU and a longtime friend of Barnhardt.

Propose Ending Status Signs

LONDON (AP) — "The Director," journal of the Institute of Directors, says that unnecessary status divisions between office and factory workers must be broken down.

It says it is time the "landscaped office" with plants, acoustic screens, air-conditioning and subtle lighting and color was brought to the work bench.

AEROSPACE EXPORTS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. aerospace industry exports reached a new high of $4.2 billion during 1971, exceeding 1970 exports by 23 percent.

Disclaim Polls Influence Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — Polls have little to do with the way Americans vote, but they may influence the flow of cash to political candidates, a House subcommittee has been told.

A survey by the Opinion Research Corp. showed that people were "as likely to vote for one candidate as they were for the other" regardless of who was leading the polls, said Joseph T. Klapper, director of the Office of Social Research of Columbia Boradcasting System Inc.

Klapper testified Wednesday before a subcommittee looking into proposals for federal regulation of public opinion polls.

Klapper said the survey showed that "two-thirds of the supporters of each candidate didn't even remember what the polls said."

Persons surveyed, he said, were asked who the polls favored in the 1960 presidential contest between Richard Nixon and John F. Kennedy.

But the polls may exert a stronger influence over financial contributors to political campaigns, said another witness Albert H. Cantril.

He said the 1968 Democratic ticket "suffered a dollar deficiency early after the 1968 Democratic convention due in large part to poor showings in the polls."

No U.S. KIA During 7 Days

SAIGON (AP) — For the first time in more than seven years, weekly casualty figures for the Vietnam war listed no Americans killed in action.

But the U.S. Command, in announcing today the figures for last week, said five Americans died from nonhostile causes, seven were wounded and four were missing or captured.

It was the lowest combined casualty count since the Command began keeping records on Jan. 1, 1965, and the first time there had been no American combat deaths since March 1, 1965.

Current U.S. troop strength in Vietnam is about 36,000, compared to 29,100 in March 1965. There are no U.S. infantry units engaged in combat in Vietnam, but there are still American advisers attached to South Vietnamese combat troops.

South Vietnamese casualties were put at 409 killed and 1,710 wounded, a result of Hanoi's continuing offensive in South Vietnam which has lasted more than 5½ months.

The Saigon command claimed 4,625 enemy troops were killed last week, a significant increase over the previous week's 3,449 enemy dead.

The allied commands now have listed these total casualties for the war:

American—45,857 killed in action, 303,387 wounded, 1,675 missing or captured, 10,274 nonhostile deaths.

South Vietnamese—155,372 killed in action, 407,160 wounded.

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong—890,690 killed.

Family United In Tragic Death

CLINTON, Iowa (AP) — United in death by tragedy, the Utroska family comes home for burial today.

David Utroska, a 30-year-old father of three, died Tuesday night, an apparent suicide, authorities said.

His wife and children were killed Sunday when Utroska's plane crashed in Lake Michigan, shortly after takeoff from Chicago's Meigs Field.

A pistol and a note were found near Utroska's body in the family's new home near Davenport, Iowa. Police said he died of a single .22 caliber bullet through the heart.

"It was my fault ..." the note said. "... Sandra can't take care of the children alone ... I know they'll need me."

Utroska, his wife, Sandra, 30; and their children, Kimberly, 11, Kenneth, 10, and Kandice, 6, will be buried in their family plot at Clinton Memorial Park.

The crash came at the end of a weekend pleasure trip for the family of the one-time Clinton High School football star.

The family had stopped in Clinton Saturday so Kenneth could celebrate his birthday with his great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Utroska.

Sunday morning they left for Chicago to visit the Lincoln Park Zoo.

"David was a devoted young father, completely wrapped up in his family," said Mae Bentley, a niece.

Utroska, owner and manager of Midwest Aviation in Davenport, had flown planes for a dozen years, friends said.

Utroska said after the crash on Sunday that he tried the takeoff while severe thunderstorms gathered because he didn't want the children to be late for school the next day.

A shift in the wind caught the plane, and it slammed into Lake Michigan 100 yards off shore. Utroska escaped with facial cuts.

In the ambulance that took him to Mercy Hospital, he kept saying — "I could see Sandra and the kids trapped in there."

Hunt Parents Of Baby Traded For Automobile

IMMOKALEE, Fla. (AP) — Tiny Eugene Fire Jr., who sheriff's deputies say was traded by his parents for a 1971 Chevrolet, has been taken off the critical list at Naples Community Hospital following his admittance for malnutrition and dehydration.

Meanwhile, Collier County Sheriff Doug Hendry said warrants have been issued charging Eugene Fire and his wife Jennifer, both in their 20s, with selling the three-month-old infant for payment or something of value.

Authorities have issued a Southeastern states bulletin for them. They were believed to be headed for Alabama with their two other children in the green, late-model auto. The names and ages of the two other children were not immediately known.

The sheriff said Homer Vannoy, 34, and his wife Frances, 44, were being held in lieu of $5,000 bond in the Immokalee jail charged with receiving a child for payment or something of value. Mary Frances Hague, 33, also was in jail charged with assisting in receiving a child for payment or something of value.

Hendry said all five persons involved in the incident were residents of Padgett's Trailer Trailer Court in Immokalee. All were believed to be farmworkers. He said the trade occurred shortly before midnight Tuesday, and the Fires left town immediately after the alleged swap.

Sheriff's Deputy Gene Cooke said the Vannoys took the baby to the hospital after prodding from a community social worker. Authorities said the infant was near death from malnutrition, dehydration and diarrhea when he was admitted.

The Fires apparently arrived in Immokalee last week, Hendry said, but little else was known about them.

Late Wednesday juvenile welfare deputy John Rogers said arrangements had been made to place little Gene Fire Jr., in the custody of the state Division of Family Services while his parents were being sought.

Second Best In Collision

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's new five-ton armor-plated limousine has come out second best in a collision with a 10-speed bicycle. But the bike rider got a ticket.

President Nixon was not in his car at the time.

After the collision Wednesday, bicycle owner Orville Jackson, 32, of Washington reported no damage, while police said Nixon's Lincoln Continental limousine was damaged on the left rear fender and doors.

Police put total damage at over $100. Cost of the car has been estimated at $500,000.

Jackson, a student at Washington Technical Institute, was shaken up and examined at a hospital, but apparently was not seriously hurt.

The mishap occurred as both car and bicycle were turning into a service station. Police later went to the hospital to give Jackson a ticket for failure to keep in his proper lane of traffic, but Jackson says he's going to fight it in court.

Jackson said he was stunned by the impact, but quickly realized the car was occupied by Secret Service agents.

"You know," he said, "that car had four radios; and these guys had guns sticking out of their coats."

He said five policemen later appeared at the hospital to give him the ticket.

Richard Speck Wants Courses

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Richard Speck, convicted of the murder of eight nurses in 1966, wants to take courses in art and leatherwork now that he no longer faces the death penalty, his lawyer says.

The Illinois Supreme Court ruled Wednesday that Speck may not be put to death for the slayings in a South Side Chicago townhouse.

It ordered a new hearing to bring out facts about Speck's life and moral character that might help in determining a sentence.

The Illinois court based its two-page ruling on the June 29 decision of the U.S. Supreme Court that the death penalty is an unconstitutional "cruel and unusual punishment" as it is used generally in the United States today.

Speck's lawyer, Gerald Getty, said, "He just wanted to get off death row so that he would be able to attend classes both in art and leatherwork."

Several Leads In Casino Theft

STATELINE, Nev. (AP) — Authorities were reported working on several leads in the $178,500 robbery of a Lake Tahoe casino by a gunman in cowboy garb.

A bandit wearing a western hat, dark glasses and a false beard, caught five Harrah's Tahoe casino employes off guard late Tuesday and escaped with what was described as the largest haul ever in a Nevada casino robbery.

The thief scrambled out through a crowded casino and ran across the state line—just yards away—and leaped onto the back of a waiting motorcycle driven by an accomplice.

Authorities searched in Nevada and California for suspects. An FBI spokesman said no immediate developments were expected but that agents were working on a number of possible clues.

Worker Dies As Ditch Caves In

DALLAS, N.C.(AP)—A workman was killed in a ditch cave-in late Wednesday.

Two others were hospitalized and the fourth did not require hospitalization.

George Wynn of Charlotte was fatally injured in the cave-in of the 12-foot-deep ditch. He and the others were digging it to lay drainage pipe on U.S. 321 North in front of Gaston Community College, a mile south of Dallas.

Wilson Weeks was treated at Gaston Memorial Hospital and then transferred to Memorial Hospital in his hometown of Charlotte. He had head injuries.

Charlie Broughton of Saint Stephens, S.C., was taken to Gaston Memorial Hospital in Gastonia.

Willie McDonald did not require hospitalization.

Confirms Steering Problem In Freighter Collision

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — When two freighters collided in the Atlantic off the North Carolina coast last Thursday the captain of the Republican de Colombia says he was not on the bridge.

Capt. Gabriel Kleindl testified Wednesday at a Coast Guard inquiry that when his ship was struck by the American freighter Trans Hawaii he was standing atop the wheelhouse of the Colombian bulk cargo ship.

Kleindl, on his first voyage as master of the Republica de Colombia, said he heard a crewman shout an alarm and saw the TransHawaii closing on his ship.

He said he ran for the bridge but before he reached it the American ship's bow sliced into the Republica de Colombia's midships.

He said his ship's steering apparently malfunctioned, basing his testimony on log notes by the ship's first mate, who was on duty on the bridge when the ships collided. Kleindl said the log indicated a power failure had caused the steering mechanism to malfunction.

The log showed the mate's entry that there was "imminent danger of collision" with the TransHawaii, which the Republica de Colombia had just passed.

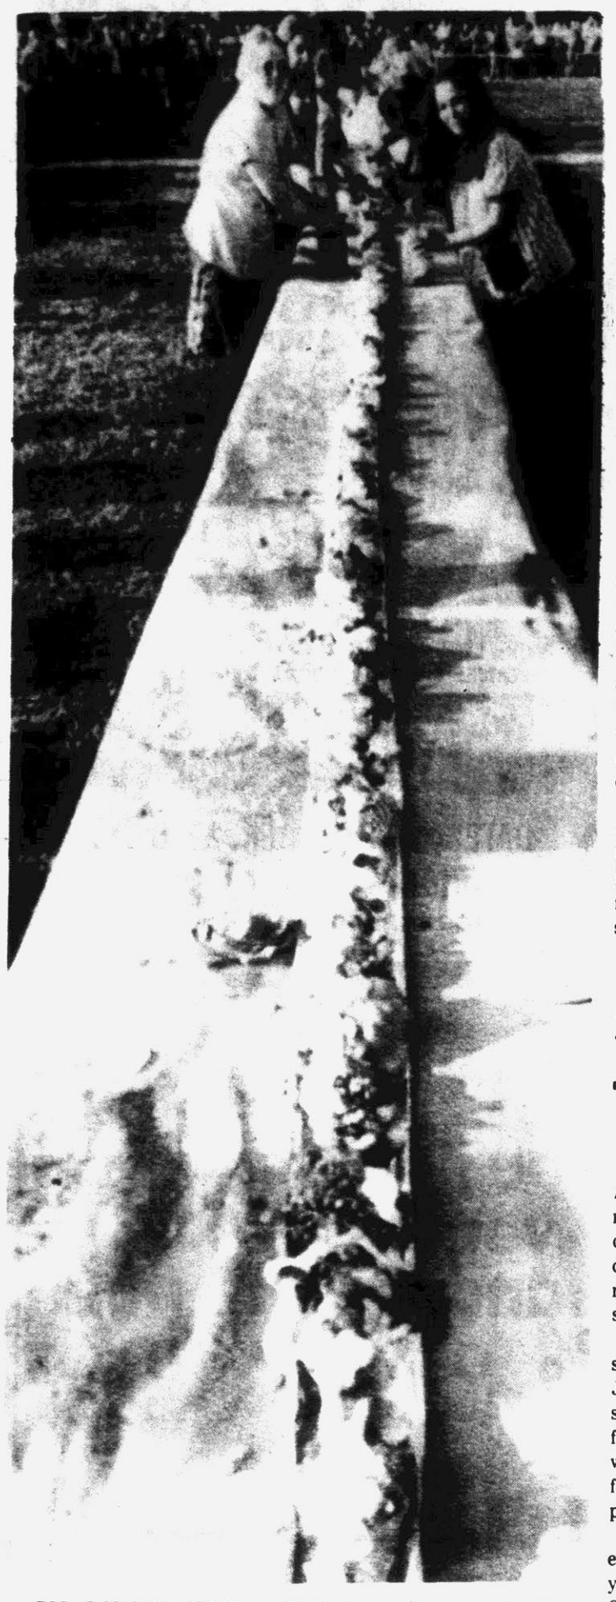
Both ships were bound for Baltimore.

Miguel Antonio Darrago, the assistant chief engineer, was lost in the collision and Kleindl said efforts to find Darrago after the collision failed. Four other crewmen were injured and evacuated by Coast Guard helicopter to a hospital at Elizabeth City, N.C.

The Republica de Colombia was listing badly and taking on water from the gouge in her midships when Kleindl ordered the crew to abandon ship and take refuge on the TransHawaii, which suffered less serious damage.

Kleindl and two crewmen stayed aboard for some time by themselves and attempted to find the missing man, who they feared was either overboard or buried under debris when the TransHawaii's bow punched through into the engine room.

The two ships remained linked together for more than 24 hours for fear the Republica de Colombia would sink if they were disengaged. With Coast Guard vessels and a commercial tug standing by the ships parted last Friday. The TransHawaii traveled under her own power to Baltimore while the crippled Colombian ship was towed to Newport News, Va.



BIG BANANA SPLIT — Students of Western Carolina University gathered Wednesday for the Banana Olympics. A 407.5-foot long banana, constructed of 200 pounds of bananas, 66 gallons of ice cream, four gallons of cherries and three gallons of walnuts plus syrup and toppings was put together on the long table and survived only 10 minutes after the signal for eating was given. Flag Removal Is Commended

SANDY, Ore. (AP) — A Sandy restaurant owner and the Clackamas County sheriff's office say they have received an overwhelmingly favorable response to the action of a deputy sheriff who removed two U.S. flags which were flying at night outside the restaurant.

Reserve Deputy Brad Kelly said he took the flags down Monday night because he felt it was disrespectful to allow them to fly at night in the rain without illumination.

The restaurant owner, Don Eklund, and Kelly's superior, Lt. Louis Olson, both asked Kelly to apologize and put the flags back up. Kelly refused, saying he'd rather lose his job.

The sheriff's office said it received about 25 calls Wednesday from persons commending Kelly's actions. Eklund said he received a similar number of calls condemning him for leaving the flags up.

The U.S. attorney's office in Portland said Eklund broke no laws in displaying the flags.

Eklund said he plans to raise the flags again today.

"I'm very emotional about the flag," he said. "I think it's proper to fly the flag at night and I believe there are a lot of flags in the Portland area that are flown at night."

He said he would not press for disciplinary action against Kelly.

Students Etitled To Lawyers, Hearing

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A new right for students—the right to have an attorney and a due process hearing before they can be expelled — has been recognized by the Charlotte school system.

Acting to comply with a decision last spring by U.S. District Judge James B. McMillan, the school system has changed from the old procedure, in which the superintendent ratified principals' requests for expulsion.

Last year, 108 students were expelled under that rule last year. One of them persuaded Charlotte Legal Aid Society attorney Shelley Blum to take his protest to McMillan, who ruled students were entitled to due process.

Under the new rules, the superintendent is to appoint a hearing officer when a request for expulsion reaches him. At the hearing, the principal confronts the youth and his attorney. The hearing officer's recommendation is then acted upon by the superintendent.

Blum said he thought the school system was making a good effort to comply with McMillan's extension of due process and several principals said they also welcomed the new rule.

But Blum added that he was preparing a new suit, this one challenging the school system's authority to expell a student under any circumstances.

No Serious Hurt In Wallenda Fall

DETROIT (AP) — High wire artist Karl Wallenda has escaped serious injury in a 20-foot fall, another incident in a series of tragedies that has stalked his troupe.

The 67-year-old Wallenda was descending a rope from the high wire, hand over hand, when he lost his grip and dropped to the floor Wednesday night.

Doctors said a preliminary examination disclosed no serious injury.

The accident occurred as Wallenda finished his high wire act on the opening night of his new show at the Detroit Olympia.

Ten years ago, two members of the Wallenda troupe died in a fall at Detroit. Two other Wallenda performers have been killed since that accident.

Queries Posed

PARIS (AP) — South Vietnam said today that the war may be "prolonged indefinitely" if the Communists do not give up their present demands.

Ambassador Pham Dang Lam told the 160th session of the Paris peace talks that whether the war will end soon or not depends on answers to two key questions:

—Will Hanoi leaders "let the South Vietnamese population live in peace under a regime of its choice, or will they obstinately seek to impose their will on this population at any cost?"

—Will the "so-called NLF—the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front—dare to place itself before the verdict of the South Vietnamese population in free elections together with other political forces in South Vietnam and pledge to conform itself with this verdict, or will it persist in asking for power prior to all electoral consultation and in maintaining its absurd and unreasonable preconditions?"

Rampants Test Jacksonville

Rose High School's Rampants, their winning streak halted at two, try to get going again this Friday night when they travel to Jacksonville for a non-conference game.

Rose fell to Wilson's Fike High School last week, 14-7, in a hard-fought game that many felt would decided the conference championship. But Coach Dave Bumgarner of Rose isn't sure that the race can be counted over this early.

"Rocky Mount and Goldsboro are still unbeaten, too, along with Wilson. But I don't think you can count us out, either. New Bern is improved, too, and Kinston has looked good. Anybody could beat one of the others." he said.

A two-way tied between Wilson and Rose would automatically give Wislon the playoff berth, however, so Rose must hope for a three-way deadlock, which would then be decided by a vote of the six conference coaches.

Refering to last Friday's game, Bumgarner felt that the Rampants played extremely well throughout most of the game. "We had one or two that went both ways and they got tired. I still think that we have an excellent football team, and that we're going to progress."

The coach felt that one or two plays meant the difference in the game. "We also lost two men defensively during the second half and this hurt us."

He spotlighted the play on the four yard line late in the second half when Rose had a second and three for a first down and fumbled, losing several yards. Wilson stopped them cold on the next play and a field goal just missed. Several plays later Wilson got off the 53-yard screen pass that tied it up. "If we had scored to make it 14-0, I don't think they would have come back like they did," Bumgarner said. "I had told the team before the game that we couldn't make mistakes and win it. We made mistakes and we didn't win."

Bumgarner also felt that losing George Price to an injury and Mike Harris to an expulsion hurt the defensive efforts in the second half.

One player, Calvin Moore, the defensive safety, is out of action with a kidney injury which showed up Sunday following the game. He is currently in Pitt Memorial Hospital, and will be there for some time, it is expected, possibly as long as a month.

Bumgarner noted that Reggie Perkins, the Rampant fullback, was selected as the Player of the Week for the team. Perkins picked up 116 yards in 22 carries against the Titans' tough defense. "John Calhoun and Henry Bun also played good games in the line," the coach said.

Rose had one last chance to score late in the game but another fumble killed their chances. If Rose had scored, however, to cut it to 14-13, Bumgarner said that he would not have hesitated, but would have gone for two. "A tie wouldn't have done us a bit of good," he said.

Jacksonville will be an opponent that is both young, but strong. They, too, lost their first game of the season last week, bowing to Wilmington New Hanover,28-18. They made a strong second half comeback, however, after trailing 28-0 at one time.

Earlier in the year, they beat White Oak, 12-0, and downed Kinston, 19-7.

But perhaps most of all, Bumgarner and the veterans on the Rampant team remember a 41-0 licking the Cardinals handed them last season.

"They just completely wore us out," Bumgarner said. "They beat us badly, and I hope that our boys remember that. We look for a very tough game from them"

Bumgarner said that the Cardinals have some good running backs and good speed. Their defense is also rated well, but he notes they can be scored on. "They are very fast overall and they come at you well," he added.

New Hanover got the jump on them last week, scoring on the first play from scrimmage, and then coming back on the next series to block a putt to set up their second score.

Game time in Jacksonville will be 8 p.m.

The probable starting lineup for Rose will have Ronnie Rasberry and Paul Lemmond at ends, Charles Tyson and Maurice Sheppard at tackles, John Calhoun and Dave Matheis at guards, Phil Ragazzo at center, Dean Phillips at quarterback, Reggie Perkins at fullback, and Mike Harris and Al Hunter at halfbacks.

On defense, the Rampants will field Henry Bunn and Lee Cherry at ends, Ronald Moore and Kenneth Creech at tackles, George Price and Harding Sugg at inside linebackers, Harris and Jackie Savage at outside linebackers, and Nat Perkins, Dickie Johnson and Hunter in the secondary.

New Bern captured four of the singles events, then sewed up the victory by winning two of the three doubles matches.

Rose will play host to Goldsboro on Monday in their next outing.

In addition, there are 500 miniature footballs to be given away free to the first 500 children under 12 years of age who are accompanied to the game by an adult.

East Carolina is on a two-game winning streak after taking VMI by a 30-3 score for the seasonopener and beating favored Southern Illinois University 16-0 in last week's game.

Thomas Leaves Chargers—Again

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Running back Duane Thomas' flirtation with the San Diego Chargers is stagnating—again.

The Chargers were hoping a romance was ready to blossom when the taciturn but talented athlete worked out with them for the first time Tuesday and told reporters he was ready to play.

But Thomas, who became San Diego property in a July 31 trade with Dallas, jilted them Wednesday. He skipped a player's meeting and the two-hour morning workout after a meeting with head Coach Harland Svare.

Thomas, who had visited the Chargers on three previous occasions without staying, said he was going back to Dallas. But as of Wednesday night he had not checked out of his motel.

Svare gave this account of what transpired at their meeting:

"Duane Thomas came into my office this morning and asked to talk about a contract. I told him I don't talk about contracts—Gene Klein and others do. He persisted and I said no. He said he was going home. I said I have a team of 40 men to worry about, not one player."

Wild Dogs Are Number One In The Nation

They call them the "Wild Dogs."

And right now, they've got a lot to howl about.

Yesterday, the National Collegiate Sports Services, the statistical branch of the NCAA, announced that the East Carolina University defense leads the nation in both total defense and rushing defense.

They also rank high in scoring defense and top two single game defensive categories thus far.

The Pirates, in two games, have allowed 199 yards, an average of 99.5 per contest. Auburn University is second with an average of 140 yards per game, but they've played only once. The only other team in the top 10 which has played two games is West Virginia which is allowing 180.5 yards per game.

In rushing defense, the Bucs have allowed only 14 yards in two contests, to rank far ahead of the second place team. The 7.0 yards per game average of the Bucs is well ahead of Miami of Ohio's, 52.0 in one game. Western Michigan is third, allowing 55.0 in two games.

The Bucs rank 10th in scoring defense, allowing only 1.5 points per game. Nine schools, all with only one game rank tied for first, unscored on. Of those with two games, however, the Bucs are first, followed by Washington, which is allowing 6.0 per game.

The 44 yards gained by Southern Illinois last Saturday night is the best single game mark in fewest rush-pass yards allowed, and the minus seven yards in rushing is the best in that category thus far.

Through the air, however, the Bucs have allowed 185 yards, or 92.5 per contest. Against VMI, however, when 134 came from, most was in the fourth quarter when the Bucs defenders relaxed and the second unit took the field.

While quite pleased with the 8-inch-per-carry mark the Pirates have extablished so far, defensive coordinator Carl Reese feels that the Bucs still have room for improvement, and he is worried about this week's meeting with Appalachian.

"They're a different type team than VMI and Southern Illinois," he said. So far, the Mountaineers have been a passing team, rushing only 97 times in two games. They have passed 34 times, only a quarter of the time, but their passing game has gotten the most yardage for them.

"But the can do both, and this has presented a problem for us," Reese said. Appalachian has rushed for 208 yards and passed for 310 so far in two games. "We look for them to give us a real test," Reese added.

"It's gratifying for us to be on top, although I'm surprised we're ahead in total defense," the coach said. "But we've got a long way to go yet. It would be nice to be up there at the end of the year but that's a long way off."

Detroit, Boston Win While Weaver Figures

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Earl Weaver, bless his optimistic soul, has finally figured out the American League East pennant scramble. All he needs to win it is a little help from his friends.

After his Baltimore Orioles absorbed a vital 9-1 and 4-0 doubleheader sweep at the hands of front-running Boston to tumble 2½ games off the Red Sox' pace Wednesday night, Weaver studied his handy, dandy baseball schedule and discovered that Boston spends the next four days playing second-place Detroit. Then the Baltimore boss offered his analysis.

"I'll be rooting for my good friend Billy Martin Thursday and Saturday," revealed Weaver. "And I'll be rooting for my good friend Eddie Kasko Friday and Sunday. If my good friends win, we'll get Boston three in a row and we'll be all even with three games to go."

Simple, huh.

Managers Martin of the Tigers and Kasko of the Red Sox are in infinitely better shape than Weaver today. Detroit trimmed Cleveland 4-1 Wednesday night and is second, one game behind the Sox with 12 to play compared to Boston's 13.

That's an awful lot better than Weaver's Orioles, now third, 2½ behind with only nine to play. Fourth place New York, rained out at Milwaukee, is 3½ behind with 12 games remaining.

Elsewhere in the American League Wednesday night, Oakland reduced its magic number in the West to seven by whipping Chicago 6-3, Minnesota topped Texas 3-1 and Kansas City defeated California 9-2.

In the National League, Pittsburgh's magic number for clinching the East remained at one as the Pirates lost 4-1 to New York and second place Chicago defeated Montreal 6-2. Cincinnati reduced its clinching number to two, beating San Francisco 8-6 while runnerup Houston was losing to Atlanta, 13-6. In other games, Philadelphia edged St. Louis 2-1 and Los Angeles topped San Diego 5-3.

Baltimore's slumbering bats ran into two hot pitchers in Boston and Marty Pattin and Luis Tiant simply proved to be too much for the Orioles.

Pattin surrendered five hits in the opener and had an easy time of it when Boston exploded for seven runs in the fourth inning. Carlton Fisk drove in three runs and Rico Petrocelli and Dwight Evans two apiece for the Red Sox.

The victory ran Pattin's record to 15-12 after a horrendous 2-9 start. He is 13-3 since June 12.

Tiant has been even hotter. The veteran right-hander with the herky-jerky motion, improved his record to 13-5 with a four-hitter in the nightcap. He has won nine of his last 10 games and six of his last seven victories have been shutouts.

Evans contributed a triple and homer to the second game victory.

Woody Fryman fired a six-hitter and drove in a pair of runs with a clutch single after Duke Sims, another NL refugee, had snapped a ninth inning tie with a double.

The victory gave Fryman an 8-2 record with the Tigers since coming over from Philadelphia in early August. Since his arrival, Fryman alone has won more games for the Tigers than Mickey Lolich, Tom Timmerman and Joe Coleman have won combined.

The Yankees were trailing 2-0 against Milwaukee before the rain washed out the deficit and the game. It will be replayed tonight.

After their five-hour, 15-inning marathon the night before, Oakland and Chicago played a relatively routine encore with the A's winning 6-3, restoring their West Division edge to five games over the slipping Sox.

Ken Holtzman won his 18th game—a career high—for Oakland while Wilbur Wood, 24-15, took the loss. Home runs by Reggie Jackson and Sal Bando in the second inning posted the A's towards the victory.

John Mayberry crashed a first-inning grand slam homer and pitcher Steve Busby drove in three runs with a double and two singles as Kansas City trimmed California. Busby limited the Angels to six hits and had what appeared to be a grand slam homer nullified in the first inning when Umpire John Rice ruled that time had been called before he swung the bat.

Minnesota rallied for three runs in the eighth inning, two of them on a bases-loaded single by Bob Darwin to overtake Texas. The Rangers, limited to only two hits in eight innings against Jim Perry, led 1-0 until the late Twins' comeback.

Won't Get Slaughtered

OSKALOOSA, Iowa (AP) — The football coach of Pillsbury College in Owatonna, Minn., confirmed Wednesday night that his team has forfeited Saturday's scheduled game with William Penn College here.

"We're afraid our kids were going to get slaughtered with that outfit—that's the main thing," said Pillsbury Coach Harold Hall.

Hall said William Penn's team was superior to his and added that his team has suffered many injuries.

William Penn has won its first two games of the season, including a 63-0 victory last week. Pillsbury has lost its two contests by scores of 64-14 and 44-6.

Coach Hall said he has 25 players while the William Penn team has 90. He said he has been trying to line up another game with an opponent that isn't quite as tough.

Columbia University baseball coach John Balquist is in his 21st season with the Lions.

Ali, After Five Round Dance, Smashes Floyd

By EARL GERHEIM
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammad Ali unleashed a flow of superlatives in praise of Floyd Patterson, offered him a rematch and then clamored for heavyweight champion Joe Frazier.

"Patterson is a great, great fighter. I thought he'd be nothing but he surprised me," Ali said after he hammered Patterson's left eye shut, sliced open a gash above the optic and stopped him after seven rounds of a scheduled 12-round fight Wednesday night at Madison Square Garden.

"I didn't knock him out. I didn't get him on a TKO. All I did was close his eye," Ali said.

Despite the loss, the 37-year-old Patterson said he would resume training and refused to entertain thoughts of retirement.

The bout between the two former heavyweight champions had few highlights for the first five rounds as Ali, 218 pounds and enjoying a nine-inch reach advantage, danced around Patterson and jabbed. Patterson, 188½ pounds, brought thunderous roars from the crowd of 17,378 that paid $512,361 when he landed several rights and left hooks and dug punches into Ali's midriff.

However, it was evident Ali was merely testing Patterson for the early part of the bout.

"Ali had to study Patterson's style for the first few rounds," Angelo Dundee, Ali's manager said. "Patterson was zigging and zagging and Ali had to figure him out."

In the sixth, Ali unloaded a flurry of lefts and rights, ripped open the cut and rocked Patterson with a right flush on the jaw shortly before the bell. He staggered Patterson again in the seventh with sharp combinations while the half-blinded Patterson—his eye swollen tight and blood streaming down his cheek—managed to land two good rights. The ringside physician halted the bout in between the seventh and eighth rounds.

Ali, who has been fighting regularly since being decisioned by Frazier in a 15-round title fight in March, 1971, said he was ready for the champion and berated Frazier for refusing to defend against a top contender.

"All he did was fight two nobodies and then retire to his chicken plantation," Ali said.

Seaver Delays Pirates' Party

By TOM EMORY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Question 1: Did Tom Seaver have a good fastball?

Question 2: Did the Pittsburgh Pirates clinch the National League East pennant?

If you know the answer to No. 1 is "yes," you can rest assured the answer to No. 2 is "no."

Seaver had his fastball and his hard slider and his curve Wednesday night and the result was the New York Mets temporarily beached the Pirates' flag-clinching party by beating them 4-1.

The Pirates need just one victory or a loss by the second-place Chicago Cubs, but the victory isn't coming easily.

Pittsburgh took a 1-0 lead in the first inning on Vic Davalillo's triple and Rennie Stennett's single but Seaver bore down.

The Mets scored three runs in the third, two of them on Duffy Dyer's triple. Jim Beauchamp added a run with a sacrifice fly. The fourth New York run was driven in by Jim Fregosi's single in the fourth.

Elsewhere in the National League, Cincinnati beat San Francisco 8-6, Atlanta thumped Houston 13-6, Philadelphia edged St. Louis 2-1, Chicago downed Montreal 6-2 and Los Angeles clipped San Diego 5-3.

In the American League Boston beat Baltimore 9-1-and 4-0, and it was Detroit 4, Cleveland 1; Minnesota 3, Texas 1; Oakland 6, Chicago 3; and Kansas City 9, California 2.

Cincinnati is another team with champagne on ice; the Reds' magic number is two. Pete Rose capped a four-run rally in the eighth with a two-run triple. Johnny Bench had hit his 36th homer to give the NL West-leading Reds a 1-0 lead and Bobby Tolan added two more with his eighth homer.

Atlanta scored all 13 runs in the second inning. Felix Millan drove in five with a triple and single and Dusty Baker hit a three-run homer. The Braves sent 19 batters to the plate against four Astro pitchers. Houston's Cesar Cedeno hit a two-run homer and Doug Rader hit a three-run shot.

Steve Carlton outpitched the man he was traded for and won his 25th for Philadelphia. Rick Wise of St. Louis was touched for a run in the first and another in the sixth. Tommy Hutton drove in the first Phils' run and scored the second.

Milt Pappas won his 200th career victory when the Cubs beat Montreal. He was backed by Glenn Beckert's two-run single and solo homers by Billy Williams and Ron Santo. Mike Jorgensen and Ron Fairly hit homers for the Expos.

Manny Mota's two-run pinch single in the eighth broke a tie for a Los Angeles victory.

Dreams Have Changed Some

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Saturday's football game between Wake Forest and Tennessee will be the fulfillment of a new dream for the Deacons' junior quarterback, Chuck Ramsey.

Since he was six years old, the Knoxville native says, he has dreamed of playing before one of the packed houses in the Volunteers' Neyland Stadium.

As a kid, Ramsey sold programs at Tennessee games, watching some of their great teams play. Later, he occasionally sneaked into the stadium for practice, dreaming that he was calling signals—but for Tennessee.

In his senior year in high school, though, Ramsey decided on Wake Forest. And his dreams have changed a bit now—they feature him leading a visiting team to an upset win before a packed house in Neyland Stadium.

Upsetting the fifth-ranked Vols may be a bit more than all the Deacons but Ramsey could hope for. Tennessee, conqueror of Georgia Tech and Penn State, now holds the nation's longest collegiate winning streak at nine games.

Wake Forest, by contrast, had trouble edging lowly Davidson, 26-20 in its opener, then was clobbered by Southern Methodist, 56-10 last Saturday.

"This game means more than any other game so far in my collegiate career to me," Ramsey says. Many of the Tennessee players are good friends of mine and we've talked about it for some time now."

One of the few areas in which the Deacons hold a statistical edge over the Vols is in Ramsey's forte—punting. He has an average in excess of 45 yards.

But given the crushing nature of the Tennessee defense, Ramsey may be doing more punting than he envisioned on Saturday afternoon.

Elsewhere in the Atlantic Coast Conference, the only encounters between conference schools finds North Carolina State traveling to North Carolina.

Coach Lou Holtz of N. C. State, known as an offense-minded coach, had a surprising prediction on the game at a luncheon Wednesday. He said he expects it to be low-scoring.

He said 17 points would probably be enough to win, because "when two good teams meet, it's usually a defensive battle. I know North Carolina is good, and I hope we are, too."

If comparative scores are any indication, N.C. State should be about a touchdown underdog in Chapel Hill. The Wolfpack tied Maryland 24-24 in Raleigh. North Carolina whipped the Terps in College Park 31-26.

In other games involving ACC teams Saturday, Virginia hosts West Virginia, Clemson visits Rice, Duke hosts Stanford and Maryland entertains VMI.

Soviet-Chinese Clash Expected In United Nations

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A Chinese-Soviet clash was expected in the General Assembly steering committee today over a Yugoslav move to revive the U.N. membership application of Bangladesh.

China vetoed the application in the Security Council Aug. 25. The proposal was sponsored by the Soviet Union, India, Yugoslavia and Britain. There were 11 votes in favor and three abstentions, and the United States voted with the majority.

Entrance into the world body is impossible without unanimous approval of the five big powers in the council, China, the Soviet Union, Britain and the United States and France. However, even then a move was reported underway to persuade the General Assembly to urge the council to reconsider.

Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim's personal prestige also was at stake as the steering committee, considering which of 101 proposed items to recommend for the assembly's agenda, neared a decision on his proposal for a debate on measures to prevent terrorism.

He laid his prestige on the line Wednesday night when, faced with backstage Arab and African opposition to his initiative, he expressed hope that members of the 25-nation steering committee and the 132-nation assembly "will understand my reasons and will support this proposal."

He spoke to the committee right after it decided to recommend that assembly debate on Korea be postponed to next year. The decision was a victory of West over East.

In a concession calculated to win over the doubtful, Waldheim has suggested that the subject of terrorism be debated first in the legal committee, instead of going straight to the assembly as he had asked earlier.

His original proposal for a debate had come Sept. 8, three days after the Palestinian massacre of 11 Israeli Olympic athletes in Munich.

But he now said that in making it, he "had the general problem in mind, and not any specific incident."

He also declared that the United Nations must face up to the "international aspects" of the problem posed by acts of violence increasingly "directed at national leaders, diplomatic envoys, international passengers and other innocent civilians."

The steering committee adopted a U.S.-supported British motion for postponement of the Korean debate over Communist and non-aligned opposition. The vote was 16 to 7 with France abstaining.

China, the Soviet Union and 26 others had proposed that the assembly debate "creation of favorable conditions to accelerate" reunification of Korea, and adopt a resolution suspending the activities of the U.N. Commission for the Unification and Rehabilitation of Korea and stating that U.S. troops should be withdrawn from South Korea.

Hits Biennial Legislature

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's biennial legislature belong to the days of the "surrey with the fringe on top" says former Health, Education and Welfare Secretary John W. Gardner.

Gardner said in Raleigh Wednesday that having the legislature meet every other year "is ridiculous in a modern state" and said "it's just as though a business were to close up for a year."

He was in Raleigh to meet with members of Common Cause, a national citizens lobbying group which he organized. It has some 200,000 members nationwide, 2,000 in North Carolina.

Gardner told a news conference that during the 1960s, the federal government dramatically increased the number of programs for states to handle, forcing them to accept additional responsibility.

A biennial legislature is just not capable of meeting these heightened responsibilities and keeping up with a fast-changing society, he said.

Set Putt-Putt Tournament For Children

The 1972 Putt Putt Tournament for Children will be held this Saturday at 9:30 a.m. at the Greenville Putt Putt Course.

Open to both boys and girls, the entries for the tournament will be divided into three age groups: seven and eight year olds; nine and ten year olds; and 11 and 12 year olds.

Trophies will be given in each age group and a trophy for the most holes in one.

The tournament is sponsored jointly by the Greenville Jaycees and the local Putt Putt. Children wishing to enter can sign up ahead of time at the Putt Putt Course or wait until Saturday morning just before tournament time.

Entry fee for the tournament is 75 cents per child.

Israeli Believe Erasing Guerrillas A Needed Step

Editor's Note — Events in the Middle East now seem to be centering on Israel's manhunt for Arab terrorists, and leaders in Jerusalem evidently have put peace efforts in abeyance. But, despite the Munich tragedy and Israeli reprisals, the Mideast belligerents seem to be inching toward peace rather than war. Here is the second of two dispatches on the situation.

By HARRY DUNPHY
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT (AP) — An angry and frustrated Israel has declared war to the bitter end against Arab terrorists and the governments that support them.

The violence which many in the area now think is inevitable may set back peace efforts but is unlikely to shatter them.

The Israeli manhunt against Arab terrorists may — while satisfying an emotional desire for revenge — actually improve peace prospects.

Israel believes Arab governments are unable or unwilling to tackle the Palestinian guerrilla movement and the small, hardcore terrorist element. Israeli leaders evidently believe it is better to stamp the guerrillas out now than let them run loose, lest one day they torpedo a possible peace agreement with Egypt or Jordan.

After the killing of 11 Israelis at the Munich Olympics, the Israeli government said in a statement: "Israel will persevere in its struggle agianst the terror organizations and will not absolve their accomplices from responsibility for terrorist actions."

Since then Israel has conducted a bombing raid in Syria and a military raid into southern Lebanon, saying both operations were aimed at wiping out guerrilla bases tolerated by the Syrians and Lebanese.

Israel's duty, Prime Minister Golda Meir has said, is "to fight the terrorist organizations to the very end ... to strike at the terrorist organizations wherever we can."

But she said this campaign would "not alter our peace policy." Israel had directed several barely concealed peace feelers at Egypt and Jordan before the Munich tragedy.

Foreign Minister Abba Eban said much the same thing, but his remarks underscored the Israelis' determination to wipe out the guerrillas.

Correspondents covering Eban's recent news conference could not remember his ever being so angry as when he said: "Peace isn't the question in my mind today. The question is how to eliminate this scourge (terrorism)."

He made it quite clear that the Munich killings had pushed the search for peace into the background, and he added that, in all future meetings with foreign government officials, "I would not talk to them about anything except this — terrorism."

In an apparent indication he shares the view that Israel eventually will have to redress Palestinian grievances in any peace settlement, Eban concluded: "Any legitimate aspiration in the Middle East can be achieved by peaceful means."

Eban later said Jordan was welcome to include Palestinians in any negotiating team it might send to talk peace, "representation that would reflect all the parties with whom we wish to reach peace."

However, in discussions before Munich, the Israeli Cabinet was divided over which Arab government to approach first — Egypt or Jordan.

The Israeli defense minister, Gen. Moshe Dayan, believes the first address should be to Egypt, "in whose hands is the key to peace."

Addressing himself obliquely to the Egyptians, Dayan in a speech Aug. 17 suggested a division of the Sinai Peninsula as a "compromise of the Egyptian-Israeli conflict. This line, temporary or permanent, could give the populated areas of both Egypt and Israel maximum security."

Israeli political observers called Dayan's statement a "significant shift in Israeli policy" and noted that Dayan once had said he would rather fight than pull out of occupied territory under a settlement less than full peace.

On the other side in the Israeli Cabinet discussions are those who favor approaching the Arab leader most willing to talk peace at the moment, Jordan's King Hussein. They include Deputy Prime Minister Yigal Allon, Eban and Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir.

Mrs. Meir appears to be fluctuating between these two lines, AP Correspondent Hal McClure reports from Tel Aviv.

Hussein has a plan for a Palestinian province under his authority. The guerrillas vehemently oppose this. Black September and other extremist groups have vowed to assassinate him if they can.

Thus Israelis believe it is in their interest to remove these groups from the Middle East stage if they can while remaining open to any peace proposals that emanate from Cairo or Amman.

Where does this leave the guerrillas and the many Palestinians outside Jordan and the occupied territories who support their cause and see Hussein and Egypt's President Anwar Sadat moving toward peace?

If Israel stiffens its terms, does not come up with a comprehensive plan for resettlement and compensation for refugees and engages in an indiscriminate manhunt for the terrorists, it is likely to stiffen Palestinian resolve and make recruiting easier for desperate groups.

This could lead to a long, virtually unstoppable string of Munichs, putting more roadblocks in the already tortuous path to peace.

But the basic realities remain. Egypt is emerging from Russian entanglement; Israel is militarily supreme; Hussein never has been in a stronger position, and the Palestinian guerrilla movement seems to be losing steam every day.

Thus the impetus is toward peace, and the ball may start rolling after the U.S. elections.

Two Violent TV Series Are Back On The Screen

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP TELEVISION WRITER

NEW YORK (AP) — Two television series that emphasize violence are back with us this fall. Viewers may protest, but the shows also appear to emphasize deceit, aerial thievery and the thrill of the chase.

Both arrived here Sunday afternoon for what the announcers called the start of the 1972 regular season. On NBC, the show was "The Jets vs. the Bills." At CBS, it was "The Giants vs. the Lions." Similar shows were seen elsewhere in the nation.

The CBS show, broadcast live from Detroit, began with a brisk rendition of "The Star-Spangled Banner," performed in 57 seconds by a 180-piece marching band. Then it got down to business.

The plot went this way:

A man in a blue jersey, flanked by 10 identically dressed men, ran up to a ball that resembled a big leather egg with stitches. He kicked it and this caught the attention of 11 other men in white.

They ran at each other and formed a big pile on something one of the narrators, Ray Scott, called the 31. Then they got up and talked to each other and decided to form a big pile again. A few scenes later, as they took sides, Scott said: "Let's see if the Lions decide to blitz Snead in what looks like a passing situation." He referred to Norm Snead, a star in Sunday's show.

Blitz must mean hurl to the ground and jump upon, because that's what the Lions did to Snead. A few minutes later, the Giants did the same to Greg Landry, a Lion star.

As the drama unfolded, someone in a striped shirt threw down his handkerchief as if in anger and Scott said: "We have our first marker of the game. Holding...It's against the Giants."

After this, other men in striped shirts showed no reluctance to hurl down their handkerchiefs, too. Scott explained this was because of things like illegal motion and offensive interference among the players.

The show's strong point wasn't dialogue. Landry and Snead spent most of the day in a crouch, muttering "hut-hut-hut" and silently fleeing for their lives when given the ball.

On the positive side, the action was fast and furious. Viewers who adjourned for a beer during the better parts didn't lose out; CBS replayed the dramatic highpoints 37 times and in slow motion at that.

And at the end, it gave the ratings for each cast. The Lions got a 30 rating and the Giants a 16.

The entire show lasted about three hours — five for those who switched over to the NBC drama in which the New York Jets got a 41 rating to the Buffalo Bills 24.

All things considered, both shows are fun and will do well in neighborhood saloons and household basements this fall.

They won't do well in homes where the average viewer is a bewhiskered bum who, upon assuming the prone position on the sofa, is immediately told by his wife to get up and let her vacuum it before it moults.

Smokey Named Heir To $5,000

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—A dog named Smokey was named heir Tuesday to a $5,000 portion of the estate of a Waunakee woman.

The money was left by Lola Trantin, who died May 8 at 83. She was the widow of a metallurgist.

Papers filed in probate court showed Mrs. Trantin left $5,000 of her nearly $1 million estate to pay for the dog's food, shelter and care.

Daily Lottery In New Jersey

TRENTON, N.J. (AP)—Gov. William T. Cahill says New Jersey will start operating a daily lottery Nov. 29. It will offer a top prize of $2,500. Tickets will be priced at 50 cents.

The state's weekly lottery, which began nearly two years ago, will continue to offer a top prize 000 for a 50-cent ticket.

The tickets will be sold by the 4,000 agents who now sell weekly tickets and through a network of coin-operated vending machines.

The Worry Clinic

The Parasites Increase Costs

Tom is the son of one of my former students who took my course in "Efficiency Engineering." That may be why his "horse sense" ideas will shock the bungling bureaucrats who keep raising the taxes of all us productive citizens. They need a DDT treatment!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, PHD., M.D.

Case U-594: Tom G., aged 32, is postmaster in a small city.

"Dr. Crane," he said, "many people are grumbling about the repeated increases in postal rates.

"And well they should!

"This may sound shocking, coming from a postmaster, but I know that the Oklahoma crowd of independent handlers of mail can beat us.

"They have pledged that they can distribute first class letters at less than 6 cents per ounce and still make money!

"Meanwhile, they will PAY taxes, like other private firms, instead of seeking constant subsidies from Congress to make up deficits.

"And I'll tell you why they can beat us.

"We are the wastebasket department of the federal government, for thousands of incompetents are forced upon us. Why?

"To pay off political debts of Congressmen and other candidates who finally win election.

"In many large cities, the illiteracy is terrific among postal employees.

"They can't even read! Some illiterates can decipher the Arabic numbers in the zip codes, which is partly why that zip code was enacted.

"And the slow mail delivery is not due to the efficient workers who are literate, but to this growing army of incompetents.

"I don't dare reveal my identity, of course, but I speak for a great many efficient members of the U.S. Postal Service who'd prefer to link up with Murray and his Oklahoma private postal system.

"Obviously, the elimination of our inefficient U.S. Postal Department would lead to the discharge of tens of thousands of the present unnecessary employees.

"And they'd howl loudly to the politicians who shoved them upon us as payoffs for their corraling minor ethnic voting blocs.

"But the mail service would improve and costs could actually be LOWERED, not RAISED!"

Government Bungling

Tom shows why bureaucracy makes taxes zoom.

And why private enterprise can offer better service at lower costs.

Remember, all private firms PAY taxes, instead of hounding our legislatures and Congress to RAISE taxes to erase bureaucratic red ink.

Alas, the government now anchors thousands of inefficient workers in federal jobs via Civil Service.

That's like the "tenure" system by which second-rate professors remain fixed in their high salaried teaching jobs, even though they are not lecturing more than 9 or 10 hours per week before their 3 classes, with maybe but 6 to 10 students in each.

Yet they expect taxpayers to ante up $30,000 per year for their salaries when the total tuition input of all their students wouldn't offset half their salaries, alone, not to mention heat, light, insurance and all the myriad other overhead expenses.

Since I have taught "Efficiency Engineering," you readers can understand why I am hostile to the bungling, blundering bureaucrats that are sapping their existence from us productive workers out on the real firing line of our "Free Enterprise" system.

They often contributue no more to the GNP (Gross National Product) than wood ticks do to the meat production of cattlemen!

It is thus high time to fumigate Washington, D.C., and get rid of at least 1,000,000 political parasites!

Before DDT is completely outlawed, lets give a double dose of it to Washington and also to most of our state capitals!

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Dble.	2 ♡	4 ♠
5 ♡	Dble.	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead: King of ◇

A stunning bit of deception by South at the opening gun lured West into a fatal misstep at the next trick which handed over to the former his five heart doubled contract.

South opened the bidding with one heart and West with distributed values in the other suits and 14 points, made a takeout double. North's raise to two hearts confirms the trump fit and designates a holding with modest values, for with a good hand, he would obviously have redoubled.

East's jump to four spades on a hand worth a mere nine points in high cards and distribution was based on the reasonable assumption that his own values would fit in well with a partner whose takeout double had invited him to show an unbid suit.

South, with his highly distributional holding, was reluctant to defend on the deal. Since partner had confirmed a fit in hearts, there appeared little to gain in showing his second suit. South merely persisted to five hearts. Altho West held minimum values for his original double and a relatively balanced holding, he realized that a pass at this point might be interpreted by partner as a willingness on his part to carry on to five spades. West felt constrained to double five hearts to prevent East from making a move which might result in a substantial loss on the deal.

West opened the king of diamonds and South paused to study the situation at length before playing from dummy. An opening lead in his side suit was an unexpected altho not unwelcome development, for if declarer has time to establish the diamonds a club can be discarded from dummy on one of his long cards. The only problem hinged on how the diamonds were divided.

If each opponent has a doubleton, then South can take 12 tricks. After he wins the ace of diamonds and pulls trump, a second round of diamonds splits the suit and declarer has the rest since a club can be discarded by North on the fourth diamond and South's small club is subsequently ruffed in dummy

If the adverse diamonds are three-one, however, the defense has time to find the club shift before the outstanding diamond stoppers are dislodged and they will end up taking two diamonds and one club.

South finally decided that his best chance to succeed was to enlist West's help by masking his own strength in the side suit. The three of diamonds was played from dummy and when East followed suit with the nine, declarer made the wily play of the eight — permitting West to hold the trick. By concealing all of his small diamonds, South made East's play of the nine look like a come-on urging West to continue the suit

West dutifully led back the queen of diamonds and now declarer was in charge of the situation. East discarded [It would not have helped to ruff in] and South played the ace. Trumps were drawn in two pulls and West was given his second diamond trick with the jack. A belated shift was made to a club, but South produced the ace and sluffed North's remaining club on the ten of diamonds. He ruffed a club and claimed the balance in his own hand with diamonds and hearts. In all South lost two diamond tricks on the deal.

If declarer had won the first trick and subsequently led a diamond, it would have given East the opportunity to discard a high club when West wins the jack of diamonds, and now a club shift establishes the setting trick in that suit while West still retains control of diamonds with the queen.

Charge General Reneged On Plea-Bargain Deal

CAMP LEJUNE, N. C. (AP) — The court-martial of Pvt. Tom Michaud, an AWOL Marine who surrendered to authorities during the Democratic National Convention, has ended with his attorneys claiming a Marine General reneged on a plea-bargain deal.

Michaud, 23, of Chester, Conn., who pleaded guilty to charges of unauthorized absence Tuesday was given the maximum sentence Wednesday. According to his attorneys, he had agreed with Brig. Gen. Robert L. Nichols to plead guilty on return for a lighter sentence.

The general is one of the three commanders at Camp Lejeune, and is head of the Force Troops, Fleet Marine Force, Atlantic. The Force Troops are about at division strength.

Michaud turned himself in to a television reporter at the convention in July, disclosing to a national audience that he had left his unit in Vietnam in 1969 and described himself as a "self-retired veteran." He said he had decided to "stop killing human beings."

A panel of eight officers entenced him to 12 months at hard labor, loss of pay and benefits, and a dishonorable discharge.

One of Michaud's civilian attorneys, Thomas Loflin of Durham, told reporters afterwards that Gen. Nichols had agreed to approve a sentence no harsher than six months imprisonment and a bad conduct discharge if Michaud pleaded guilty and did not call any of the 30 witnesses he had lined up to testify for him.

Gen. Nichols will review Michaud's sentence when he returns from the sea maneuvers he embarked on shortly before the court-martial started.

Tax Murder Charged Man

WEST COLUMBIA,S.C. (AP)—Coroner B. B. Shumpert says a Lexington County man has been charged with murder after the man's truck hit and killed a tax collector seeking $7 from him.

Shumpert said 64-year-old Thomas Teague, a collctor of taxes in adjoining Richland County, was trying to collect the $7 Wednesday from Wilton Inman of Lexington.

He said Inman has been jailed on a $30,000 bond on a murder charge.

The coroner said Inman, driving a rental truck preparing to move to Wwalterboro, was spotted by Teague as Inman stopped at an intersection.

The officer said the collector walked to the truck and an argument ensued, with Inman driving away while Teague was hanging to the side of the truck. The coroner said Teague then apparently was pushed from the side of the truck and fell under its wheels.

Shumpert said an off duty policeman witnessed the incident, pursued Inman and arrested him.

Says Award Is Helpful

HAMLET, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott says 32 of the 64 towns who have won his Governor's Award have experienced either a new plant location or the expansion of an existing industry since winning the award.

"I do not say that this is a result of their achieving the Governor's Award," Scott said. "But I certainly feel that the efforts on behalf of the citizens of these communities who achieved the award made these communities more attractive."

His comments came Wednesday night as he presented the 65th Governor's Award to the town of Hamlet for its efforts in making itself more attractive to industry.

Scott said more and more of North Carolina's "smaller towns and communities are pulling themselves up the economic ladder."
