

Believed To Be Talking Pres. Thieu

PARIS (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger scheduled another secret meeting in Paris today with the North Vietnamese, and the future of South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu appeared to be the chief issue under discussion.

President Nixon's national security adviser and his top assistant, Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., met Sunday with Le Duc Tho of the North Vietnamese Politburo and Xuan Thuy, chief of Hanoi's delegation to the Paris peace talks, the White House announced. It was Kissinger's 19th secret meeting with the North Vietnamese.

Presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said another session was planned today. He added there might be a third meeting on Tuesday.

Ziegler refused to disclose what was said at the meeting Sunday. But Associated Press correspondent Gaylord Shaw reported from the White House that there were clear indications the talks were focusing on the future of Thieu, whose resignation is one of the chief Communist demands.

Thieu again rejected the Communist demand Sunday that he quit and make way for a coalition government including the Communists. The White House also has termed news stories that Thieu would resign sheer speculation.

But the belief that Thieu's future was being discussed in Paris was heightened by the presence of Gen. Haig. It was his first appearance at the secret talks, and he returned on Wednesday from talks in Saigon with Thieu and other high-ranking officials.

Kissinger's last meeting with Le Duc Tho and Xuan Thuy was on Sept. 26-27.

Sentary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said Sunday toparis talks were in "a very serious, significant and sensitive stage" but there was nothing to indicate any early cease-fire in Vietnam.

He asserted, however, that Nixon's broad peace plans were a "near reality" and "there's no question that we are on the road to peace."

Sen. George McGovern, the Democratic presidential candidate, said in campaign appearances during the weekend that he does not find it accidental "that the peace rumors are flying as the campaign nears its showdown phase."

"I don't believe that Mr. Nixon is going to end the war," McGovern said. "I think the peace rumors are flying to coincide with the closing days of this campaign. If I become the president there isn't any doubt at all that the war will end quickly."

Millions Duped By Health Fads And 'Panaceas'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new generation of bottled panaceas—today's health-food fads, quack cures and false advertising—is duping millions of Americans, a government report says.

The report, released Sunday, concluded that: "The fallacy of do-it-yourself medication based on irrational concepts of trial and error, and of testimonial evidence influenced by unaided recovery and psychosomatic effects, seems a proper but neglected area for modern health education."

"It is probable that there is an enormous waste of money, not to mention adverse health effects, from misguided consumer experimentation with health products," said the report prepared by National Analysts Inc. of Philadelphia.

The 426-page report was based on interviews with 2,839 adults during the summer of 1969. It was funded with $157,000 from seven government agencies in response to a Senate committee's request in 1965.

The report found that even if people were told a medicine is worthless they probably wouldn't believe it. For example, the report said that 42 per cent of the adults surveyed said they would not believe almost unanimous expert opinion that a cancer "cure" was worthless.

And only 45 per cent said they would favor a ban on such medicine.

Other findings included: —Three-fourths of the persons interviewed said extra vitamins—which medical scientists say are wasteful and possibly harmful—give them extra energy.

—Two per cent also said they did something almost daily to aid bowel movements. Medical scientists say there is no universal standard of regularity.

—More than 10 per cent said they would try a treatment recommended by a friend, even if a doctor said it was worthless.

As for advertising of these products, many said they feel advertisers are so tightly regulated that they discount "the possibility of manufactured evidence, made-up testimonials and specific false claims of effectiveness."

Actress Miriam Hopkins Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Miriam Hopkins, the star of "Becky Sharp" and about 35 other movies, most of them in the 1930s, died Sunday night at the Hotel Alrai. She was 69.

Miss Hopkins had come to New York last July for a special presentation of her film "The Story of Temple Drake" (1933) at the Museum of Modern Art.

She became ill while here. Her death was tentatively attributed to a massive coronary attack.

Miss Hopkins was born in Bainbridge, Ga., on Oct. 18, 1902. She was married to Brandon Peters in 1926, to Austin Parker, in 1931, to Anatole Litvak in 1937, and to Raymond Black in 1939. She remained single after her divorce from Black in 1951.

Fire Prevention Week Observance Starts Today

Throughout America Fire Prevention Week is being observed this week following a proclamation by President Nixon establishing October 8-14 as the annual week of observances in fire prevention.

The timing of the annual national week of emphasis on prevention of fires is based on the anniversary date, October 8, 1871, of the famous Chicago fire in which 250 people died and property valued at nearly two hundred million was destroyed. Pitt County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner notes that in Pitt County a number of events to highlight Fire Prevention Week locally have been planned.

"Every night this week," Joyner said, "there will be a display of fire fighting equipment at Pitt Plaza Shopping Center." Joyner indicated the displays would be changed from time to time with various fire departments, having three or four pieces of equipment on hand.

Another activity at Pitt Plaza is a series of cartoons for children. "We're having these in a tent on the grass there," Joyner said. "Each cartoon has a message about fire protection for young children."

Within the county schools, the message of fire prevention is being aimed primarily at the younger children. "We are issuing a red fire helmet to each child in the county schools from kindergarten through the third grade," Joyner commented. "We're also sending literature home with the children."

In connection with information on local losses due to fires, Joyner provided statistics on number of fires and property losses recorded in Pitt County for the first six months of 1972. The listing shows a total of 148 fires (all prior to the tobacco harvest season with its annual heavy loss of tobacco barns).

Broken down by groups, the figures show:
Category Number of Fires
House fires 56
Buildings (other than houses) 15
Automobile fires 27
Grass or wood fires 35
Commercial fires 4

Greenville Rescue Team Again Places High In International Contests

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. — Competition teams from the Greenville Rescue Squad placed fifth in international first aid competition and sixth in the heavy duty rescue competition here last week, it was announced Saturday night.

The international championship competition was held here Friday in conjunction with the 25th annual conference of the International Rescue and First Aid Association.

The Greenville rescue team, which won the North Carolina state championship trophy September 23 in Wilson, took sixth place in the three and one-half hour long contest. First place in the contest was won by Fairlawn (N.J.) Rescue Squad while second in the competition was taken by the Lambertville (N.J.) squad. Third and fourth were taken by Trevese (Penn.) Fire Department and Bayway (N.J.) Rescue Squad, while fifth place was won by a West Virginia Pulp and Paper Co. team from Virginia.

The Greenville first aid team came in fifth behind first place, Upper Magnolia (Md.) Volunteer Fire Department, second place Newark (Ohio) Fire Department, third place Thames Valley Ambulance of Ontario, Canada, and an Upper Arlington Ohio first aid team.

In addition to the state rescue championship won in Wilson, the squad's first aid team placed third in state

Strike Closes Honolulu Docks

HONOLULU (AP) — A strike on Honolulu's waterfront may interfere with Santa Claus, but has generated little visible concern so far.

Activity at Honolulu's docks ground to a halt at 12:01 a.m. Sunday as 700 longshoremen refused to cross picket lines set up by 250 fellow members of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union Local 142.

Despite the walkout, negotiations continued while merchants fretted about the strike's impact on Christmas merchandising.

There was little evidence, however, that grocery shoppers were buying extra in anticipation of a long strike. "I don't think anyone's getting excited," one grocer said.

"This is a bad time for a strike, since merchants are just building up their Christmas inventories," said Doyle Alexander, executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of Hawaii.

Surface shipping accounts for 80 per cent of the goods reaching Hawaii.

On strike are 250 maintenance men, container freight workers and guards, who are negotiating a contract with four shipping companies.

Longshoremen will continue to handle passenger ship stores and baggage, mail and military cargo, said ILWU regional director Robert McElrath.

Two Promotions Are Confirmed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate today confirmed the promotion of two high-ranking officers who were questioned in a Senate committee probe of unauthorized bombings over North Vietnam.

The actions approved the advancement of Army Maj. Gen. Alexander Haig, an aide to presidential adviser Henry Kissinger, two steps to full general and the retirement promotion to be permanent admiral of Adm. John McCain, former head of U.S. forces in the Pacific.

Reduced Troops

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. troop strength in Vietnam dropped by 700 men to 35,200 last week, the U.S. Command announced today.

The Army cut its force by 500 and the Air Force cut its by 200. There was no reported change in the strength of the small U.S. Navy, Marine and Coast Guard contingents in South Vietnam.

President Nixon has announced he will reduce U.S. troop strength in Vietnam to 27,000 by Dec. 1.

The figures do not include some 100,000 American servicemen participating in the Indochina war from bases in Guam and Thailand and ships off the Vietnamese coast. The U.S. Command announced approximately 39,000 Navy personnel are assigned to 7th Fleet ships in the area.

In addition to the American forces, there are some 38,000 South Korean troops in South Vietnam. Their number decreased by 1,200 last week.

South Korea has announced all its troops will be out by June 1973.

Food Shortage?

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The food situation in the Soviet Union is so serious that Moscow reportedly is trying to buy huge amounts of potatoes and grain from Eastern Bloc countries in addition to the vast imports of wheat and feed from the United States, the Agriculture Department said today.

Citing a "number of sources," the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said drought and delays in harvesting 1972 crops have not only reduced grain supplies for food but have forced heavy sales of livestock because of dwindling feed supplies.

"Drought in certain areas is being called the worst since the 1930s; the slaughter of cattle is said to be taxing slaughterhouse facilities in some districts," the FAS said in a report.

Further, planting of winter grain for harvest next year is running behind schedule, the report noted. The USDA said last week in other reports that 1972-crop harvests had been delayed and that fall planting was about one-fourth behind schedule.

Today's report said Moscow may be planning to import more food from satellite countries because of the quickening seriousness of the situation.

"Poland has reportedly agreed to ship a sizable tonnage of potatoes, especially for the Moscow area—a highly unusual step, if the reports are true," the FAS said.

"Arrangements are reported to be in process, though not yet finalized, whereby as much as one million tons of wheat, rye and barley may be sold to the USSR by Germany," the report said.

Air Strikes Fail To Dislodge Reds

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — From 250 to 500 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong still held Huong Phuong village and three hamlets 15 to 20 miles north of Saigon today despite heavy air strikes.

The enemy force occupied the hamlets Friday and Huong Phuong on Saturday, cutting Highway 13 between Saigon and a big South Vietnamese military headquarters at Lai Khe, 30 miles north of the capital.

"I don't think anyone regards the threat to Saigon itself as significant because of the relative capabilities of the two sides," said one U.S. source.

"The South Vietnamese territorial forces and regular units have good defensive capabilities. The North Vietnamese units are still under strength from previous combat. They are still capable of terror, attacks by fire, sapper attacks and perhaps small infiltration efforts, but the likelihood of any main attack on Saigon is rather remote."

Other American and South Vietnamese officers thought the small-scale attacks might be designed to keep government troops busy while larger enemy forces slipped past to attack such important targets as the big base at Bien Hoa, Saigon and its Tan Son Nhut Air Base.

U.S. B52 bombers attacked troop positions, base camps and infiltration routes on all sides of Saigon. Some of the raids were only four miles east of Huong Phuong and of Highway 13.

Despite the secret Vietnam peace talks in Paris, the United States also kept up its heavy air strikes across North Vietnam, and the Communist forces showed no signs of pulling back from battlefields in South Vietnam.

"We are continuing to carry on the same operations as we have all along," said one American source. "We have had no directives to do anything different. There is no indication that any of the 14 North Vietnamese divisions in South Vietnam are pulling out, withdrawing or discontinuing offensive operations."

The B52s dropped nearly 3,000 tons of bombs Sunday and today on munitions stockpiles, troop positions and supply lines near the North Vietnamese cities of Vinh and Dong Hoi and around Saigon.

New Streamlining Of Command Structure In Army Signaled Today

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Army Robert F. Froehke today signaled an impending streamlining of the Army's command structure, the first in 10 years.

"In order to meet our readiness objectives in the future, there must be some reorganization in our Army structure," Froehke said in a speech prepared for the Army Association's 18th annual meeting.

"We need a concept which will improve the Army's capability to train individuals in tactics, techniques, and skills, while maintaining active, and especially reserve, forces in a state of high readiness."

Other officials said final decisions are expected by late this month.

The reorganization will affect the Army's command structure in the United States, but not overseas.

Froehke gave no details, but Army sources said the plan generally contemplates reducing the layers of command between Army headquarters in Washington and base commanders, with greater authority for base commanders.

Also likely, they said, is a reduction in the numbers of intermediate headquarters. The Army has been criticized for wasting personnel in headquarters staffs.

The main idea will be to provide one major headquarters supervising combat readiness of both the regular forces and the reserves and another in charge generally of training and development of doctrine.

Some consideration is being given to reducing the number of paper Army headquarters around the country from four to three, in the East, middle of the country and the West.

Gen. Creighton W. Abrams is expected to have a major say in the reorganization when he assumes the post of Army chief of staff. The Senate Armed Services Committee has recommended his confirmation.

McGovern Goes Coast-To-Coast

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. major U.S. city to mark the fourth anniversary of Nixon's 1968 statement that "those who have had a chance for four years and could not produce peace should not be given another chance."

McGovern taped Sunday the half-hour speech he has been working for the past week.

The speech is scheduled for showing at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, 6:30 in the Central Time Zone only on CBS stations.

Before his scheduled return to Washington a week from Friday, the Democratic presidential nominee will have made another round of the nation's eight largest states that constitute the base he needs to overhail President Nixon by Nov. 7.

With funds beginning to come in at a quicker pace, McGovern hopes to make increasing use of television in the last four weeks of the campaign, starting with Tuesday night's speech outlining his step-by-step plans for withdrawal from Indochina.

He said $1.4 million came into the campaign treasury last week.

To spread interest in that speech, an array of Democratic senators, congressmen, governors and mayors is speaking about Vietnam today in every PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Joseph M. Zimny, Republican candidate for the state legislature, will be able to speak from personal experience when he speaks against crime on the streets.

He suffered hand and wrist lacerations but was not hospitalized.

Forty-Mile Bicycle Race Saw Heated Competition

By JERRY RAYNOR

From the corner of First and Evans Street to Bear Grass in Martin County and back to the starting point was the route of a spirited 40 mile bike speed race held on Saturday.

Two groups of riders took part in the event. One group, consisting of 18 riders, represented entrants in the contest sponsored by Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company, under the auspices of Greenville representative Billy Hunt.

"We had entries from all parts of the state, as far away as Boone," Hunt noted. The insurance company competition was open to college and university students from Virginia, North and South Carolina.

A second, smaller group of racers, not an official part of the competition, joined in the Bear Grass Race. This group was led by Charles Bernier, head of the local Carolina Cycle Club.

The race got underway just as the courthouse clock struck nine o'clock Saturday morning under ragged skies with gusty winds and the threat of rain.

Shortly before eleven o'clock the fastest of the riders zipped back in to the finishing point. Finishing in top places in the Northwestern Mutual group were Robert E. Willis, Jr. of Durham, at one hour 48 minutes; followed by Robert Anderson of Chapel Hill, one hour 50 minutes; Jeffrey Barach, Raleigh, one hour 58 minutes; and Jim Edwards, East Carolina University, two hours three minutes. Willis received a check for $200 as top speeder in the event.

In the non-competitive group Don Helms and Charles Bernier came in almost neck and neck, with Helms getting in just a bit ahead of Bernier. Both clocked an average speed of 19.18 miles per hour for the 40 mile course.

"It was not an ideal day for racing," Bernier stated. "I think records would have been better if it had not been for the wet pavement. That can make for some pretty hazardous riding."

Hunt had arranged for road guards to be set up at two or three strategic points along the way. "We are planning other races at some date in the future," Hunt commented. "The racers like the conditions here and we hope to repeat this event again soon."

Bernier noted that ordinarily members of the local Cycle Club do not direct their attention to speed racing. "We are primarily a touring club," he said, "but a few of us decided to join in this race."

The Carolina Cycle Club takes riding tours beginning each Sunday at 9:00 a.m. from Wright Fountain on campus at East Carolina University. Persons interested in further information can write to the club at P. O. Box 2412, Greenville.

Additional information on forthcoming Northwestern Mutual sponsored competitions will be published prior to the next event.

Predicts Satellites To Revise Life Priorities

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — A U.S. scientist said today that "satellites are likely to change our value and social priorities in the future as much as the automobile did."

H. Guyford Stever, director of the U.S. National Science Foundation, told the 23rd International Astronautical Congress, that satellites would "play an ever-increasing role in the effort to maintain the natural systems on which we all depend."

Stever declared that the global communication satellites, had "more impact on world development than any other space activity."

He underlined possibilities inherent in the system of "remote sensing of earth's resources by satellites," explaining that the present experimental phase was marked by the recent launching of the Earth Resources Technology Satellite. Stever predicted that when satellite earth sensing systems join "the family of space applications for world development," the following can be expected:

"Developing countries which may be cautious about investing substantial scarce resources in space activities can in fact acquire the product or benefits from space activities at a very nominal cost.

"The nature and character of space satellites are such that very few of the data handling services can be efficiently provided on a purely national basis.

"Space capabilities, therefore, whether they relate to weather, communications, or resources will have to be applied and organized on an international cooperative basis."

The congress, whose main theme is "Space for World Development," opened in the large ceremony hall of the Vienna Hofburg Palace. President Franz Jonas of Austria, scientists from the Soviet Union, the United States and other nations concerned with space research are attending.

Display Artifacts From Bertie Area

Residents of northeastern North Carolina are getting the chance to glimpse into the area's pre-historical days, courtesy of the archaeology students at East Carolina University.

The department has assembled a display of early Indian artifacts which are being used in conjunction with Bertie county's 250th birthday celebration.

Dr. David Phelps, an ECU archaeologist, said the display of skulls, bones, weapons and utensils are the remains of early Indian cultures that once occupied what is now Bertie county.

"Some of the items date as far back as 600 A.D.," Dr. Phelps said.

The exhibit went on display for one day, Thursday in Colrain, N.C. It can be seen Oct. 11 - Dec. 1 at the Hope House, Plantation museum near Windsor.

The three excavation sites where the artifacts were recovered are located near the Sans Souci ferry, Smithwick and Jordan's landing in Bertie county. The sites have been under excavation by East Carolina University archaeologists for the past two years.

Spiro Proffers GOP Golfballs

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has something new: "Republican golf balls—guaranteed to go right down the middle."

Agnew, clad in purple shirt, lavender pants and white shoes, was joined for a round of golf Sunday at the El Dorado course by comedians Bob Hope, Jack Benny and his weekend host, Frank Sinatra.

Joking in the 90-degree desert sun, Agnew belted several accurate practice shots and said "I think I'll go home" while he was ahead.

Benny replied that "at my age, if I make the tee I'm happy."

Marcos 'Hopes' End Martial Law

NEW YORK (AP) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos of the Philippines says he hopes that elections can be held, a new constitution ratified and martial law ended in his country by the end of 1973.

Marcos, interviewed via satellite from Manila on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press," said Sunday that a full-scale Communist "rebellion" was under way in his country.

Martial law was imposed because of this threat, he said, but it will also enable the nation to implement needed land and tax reforms and community development to close the gap between the rich and poor.

Swallowed 'Gold' To See Friend

DELAWARE, Ohio (AP) — Francie Thompson swallowed some "gold" so she could get to see a friend perform in a play in her hometown, Chattanooga, Tenn.

The "gold" was 176 goldfish and the $100 prize will be just enough to cover the cost of the trip, said the 18-year-old Ohio Wesleyan University freshman. "I could've eaten more," said Miss Thompson, who beat out nine men contestants in 11 minutes Saturday night to win the contest sponsored by Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

But the fraternity's stock of 500 one-inch goldfish ran out before she could beat the world record of 210 fish.

Hot Information Could Save Your Life

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR READERS: Even if statistics bore you, please read this. I ran it last year and had hundreds of requests to repeat it. The information may come in handy if you're ever on a quiz show. It could even save your life:

Q. When was the Chicago fire?
A. Oct. 9, 1871. Exactly 101 years ago today!

But let's get more current, shall we? Did you know that last year more than half a million fires occurred in the United States? More than 12,500 lives were lost. Even more tragically, a large percentage of deaths were children, elderly persons and invalids who had been left alone for just a few minutes.

The chief causes of fires, in order of the toll taken, were:

1.] smoking, 2.] electrical wiring, 3.] heating and cooking equipment, 4.] children playing with matches, 5.] open flames and sparks, 6.] flammable liquids, 7.] suspicion of arson, 8.] chimneys and flues, 9.] lightning, 10.] spontaneous ignition.

The total fire loss in 1971 was an estimated $2.945 billion. (No misprint—that's two billion, eight hundred forty-five million dollars.)

Now for some tips that could save your life:

- Be sure your cigaret is out. Matches, too. And never leave matches or lighters within the reach of children.
- Don't overload electrical outlets with too many appliances.
- Don't run cords under rugs or over radiators where they may get damaged. And replace a cord if it is frayed.
- Never leave small children alone in the house. Not even for a few minutes.
- Have your wiring and electrical installations done by a professional.
- Store oily rags and paints in a cool place in tightly sealed metal containers.
- Never use flammable liquids for dry cleaning indoors.
- Never smoke in bed.
- Have a fire drill in your home to be sure everyone knows what to do in case of fire.
- Invest in a compact, easy-to-use fire extinguisher and keep it handy in your kitchen, or be a sport and buy one for your cottage, car, boat and the back bedroom, too.

NOW, in case of fire:

Most fires occur between midnight and 6 a.m., so always sleep with your bedroom door closed. If you suspect fire, feel the top of the door. If it's hot, don't open it. Escape thru the window. But first alert the rest of the household.

If you can't open the window, break it with a chair. Cover the rough edges with a blanket and sit on the window ledge with one leg hanging outside and one inside, and wait for help.

The phone number of your fire department should be taped on every telephone. If it isn't, don't fumble around trying to call them. Call from a neighbor's house.

If you live in an apartment building, use the stairway. Don't take a chance on the elevator. If it falls, you're trapped.

Once out, stay out. No treasure—not even the family pet—is worth risking a human life. It took less than three minutes to read this column. Was it worth it? I hope so. God bless. Have a good day!

Deaf-Blind Learn Photography

ROMNEY, W.Va. (AP) — Deaf and blind children in experimental joint classes at the West Virginia Schools for the Deaf and Blind here are being trained for photography-related jobs.

"Once this class proves to be the success we expect it to be, more and more classes will be integrated with both deaf and blind," predicts Dale Rawlings, a counselor for the deaf and blind.

"We think we're the first" with such integrated classes, instructor Charles Thompson said.

Thompson teaches the students, enrolled in the school from throughout West Virginia, skills in television photography, editing television tape, still photography and processing and printing of both black and white and color films.

Everyone gets a chance to try everything, but the deaf students concentrate on the visual aspects of the course such as film editing and picture taking, while the blind are setting up and operating equipment and performing darkroom work. The darkroom equipment has settings and numerals printed in braille.

"I think this will be very successful for both groups," Thompson said. "Once we get the program underway full-time, we will be able to place students in jobs. We already have people crying for these trained technicians."

He said that if he gets a student who is well-motivated and who has ability, he can train him in one year.

four-week summer session this year and will continue through the regular school year. Thompson, who credits school superintendent Eldon E. Shipman with being the main driving force behind the program, hopes to have two or three classes of six students each.

The deaf and those blind students with partial vision are sent to take photos. "Charles gives them cameras and says 'go take pictures,'" Rawlings said. "Then when they return he begins explaining the processes to them. After that they go out and take more pictures and they compare the first and second products."

Some new sign language symbols had to be devised for the course to allow the students to communicate. The sign for focusing a lens became a flattened hand moving from one eye to the other palm.

Long Process In Raleigh, Too

The City of Raleigh has unveiled a Greater Raleigh Central Area Plan which could potentially cost $120 million to execute.

The Capital City, plagued by business problems in its downtown area, went to work to develop a plan to halt the central district decline.

The result was a plan drawn up by Odell Associates, Inc., It includes:

- $10 million civic center and plaza.
- Three-and-a-half block mall on Fayetteville Street.
- Initial public investment to spur later private development.
- Emphasis on office development downtown.
- New downtown housing.
- Rapid action on two major downtown highways.

Fayetteville Street, main street of Raleigh, would be converted into a mall with broad sidewalks, trees and a gently curving two traffic lanes for local traffic.

Raleigh has come forth with a comprehensive plan for revitalizing its downtown and the city would certainly do well to move forward as rapidly as possible to implement the plan.

If some of what is being considered in Raleigh seems familiar to those of us in Greenville it may be because planning for a similar revitalization of downtown has been underway for some time.

With urban renewal funds, work has already begun on the loop street which will carry traffic around the north side of the downtown area. Plans call for a covered mall on Evans Street. Improvement to the structures will be made by the owners.

The Highway Commission is building major thoroughfares along Tenth Street and, soon on Charles Street to lead to the downtown area.

We can tell Raleigh that from planning to execution of a major downtown revitalization is a long, slow process. It can be done, however, as work here already shows. It was something that Greenville was wise to initiate and Raleigh would be wise to carry out.

Wallace Vote Factor In N.C.

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — Which way will the Wallace vote go when Tar Heels troop to the polls for the general election?

Candidates and politicians ponder the question in the final weeks of the '72 campaign. The answers they arrive at could modify stands on issues and initiate new strategy for office-seekers.

George Wallace, the Alabama governor, received some 500,000 votes in North Carolina when he ran for the presidency on the American party ticket in 1968. He got around 412,000, a majority, in the Democratic presidential primary last spring.

in Asheville.

These gestures of recognition are appreciated among the rank and file Wallace supporters, Hyatt said.

What they are waiting to hear, he went on, is some more positive word on issues close to the group. For example, they would like a pledge to work for an amendment to the federal constitution to prohibit busing to achieve racial integration of schools.

"We know a governor can't do much about it except use the influence and prestige of his office to bring the issue into the limelight," Hyatt acknowledged. What is important is not success achieved, he added, but the kind of commitment to the cause demonstrated by Wallace.

Is There a "Wallace Vote"? Some observers question whether there is a "Wallace vote" when George himself is not on the ballot. They regard his support as a protest coalition and personal following, likely to evaporate in his absence.

Whether or not there is the discipline to move them as a group, the rural, blue collar and middle class voters under the Wallace banner do exert pressure on the course of Tar Heel politics. They are a significant factor in the stand-off attitude taken by the state party to the national ticket.

The presidential race is the one place where the group will be cohesive, Hyatt agreed. The American party label worn by Wallace in 1968 won't lure many to John G. Schmitz, the California congressman, he added.

Based on contacts around the state, Hyatt said he expects better than 65 per cent of the Wallace vote will go for Nixon on the GOP ticket. As many as 15 per cent may not vote at all, and 10 to 15 percent just might vote for the Democratic candidate, he continued.

No more than 5 or 10 per cent will go for Schmitz and the American party, he predicted.

Hyatt said his advice to the Wallace following is to vote, being selective among the candidates they can accept.

Selectivity will be exercised in the Senate race, he said. Particularly in the East, many Wallace followers will choose Republican Jesse Helms over Democrat Nick Galifianakis, he reported.

No mention of supporting the whole ticket was made when he accepted the party vice chairmanship, Hyatt said. His assignment, he went on, is to "keep lines of communication open and bring to attention any fence-mending that needs to be done." He's doing that, without fanfare, among the Wallaces forces, he added.

BRYAN HAISLIP

If followers in those numbers march to the same beat this fall, they could make a victory margin in about any race.

Already it seems apparent they will be an important factor in carrying North Carolina for President Nixon a second time. Whether they will stick together to any degree in balloting for governor, U.S. Senator, or other state races is not certain.

Not Yet Turned On Wallace voters are turned off by George McGovern, the Democratic presidential nominee, but not yet fully turned on by the party's state ticket, said C. J. Hyatt of Winston-Salem.

Unless some development generates their enthusiasm, he added, the forces may well scatter or just stay home.

"There's going to be more ticket-splitting this fall than has ever been seen in North Carolina," he said. Some voters are going three ways, he predicted, picking individual candidates from the Democratic, Republican and American party columns.

Hyatt, a realtor and area coordinator for Wallace in the primary, serves as a vice chairman of the state Democratic party. He got the post on the recommendation of Hargrove (Skipper) Bowles Jr., the party's candidate for governor.

Bowles Makes Overtures Bowles has made overtures to the Wallace camp. He contacted Wallace before bringing Hyatt into the party's ruling circles. The candidate and his staff also lent support to the unsuccessful efforts to get the crippled Alabama chief executive to the recent Vance-Aycock party dinner

SERIOUS PROBLEM OF EROSION!

By ART BUCHWALD

Columnists Deserve It

WASHINGTON — Sen. Mike Mansfield and George Aiken have proposed one of the most revolutionary tax reforms in the history of this country. They have suggested that human beings be given a tax depletion allowance as generous as one provided for oil and minerals.

As most people know, the allowances are given to companies on the assumption that once you take the oil, gas or minerals out of the ground they cannot be replaced.

Sens. Mansfield and Aiken maintain that people deplete, too, and they have proposed a bill that would permit individuals to deduct from 10 percent to 23 percent of their earned income to compensate for running down.

The only thing I see wrong with the bill is the fight over what jobs or professions should get the highest depletion rate. There are very few people in this country who don't believe their jobs are the most depleting of all.

The guidelines to be used, according to the bill, state that the percentage of depletion would be based on "the physical, mental and emotional stress incurred in connection with the production of income during the year."

Now it is my personal opinion that if those guidelines are adhered to, columnists should be entitled to the highest tax breaks.

HAL BOYLE

No one, except possible a housewife, depletes faster than a columnist. His profession forces him to go to cocktail parties night after night which do untold damages to his liver.

He is constantly being threatened with violence by people who take exception to his articles. This not only takes its toll physically, but also emotionally.

Most columnists look 80 years old before they reach their 40th birthday. Wives of columnists will testify that their husbands are depleted every night, and are not much good for anything except watching Medical Center and All in the Family.

There is scientific evidence available that columnists have loss of memory very early in their careers, and forget that the column they wrote today takes the exact opposite position of the one they took only a week ago.

It is now known that mental strain of writing a column causes columnists' brains to deteriorate at twice the rate of policemen and football players.

Columnists are prone to ear trouble from having politicians scream at them over the phone.

All of them are overweight from lunching with the "compliments of the management."

This is why very few columnists can get health insurance after the age of 35.

If anyone in this country deserves a tax break, it's a columnist. Long before it is time for him to retire he is a vegetable — squeezed dry, washed up and mentally exhausted.

McG. Trails In Kennedy State

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

BOSTON — The amazing decline of Sen. George McGovern in this bastion of liberalism was exposed to an unbelieving Sen. Edward M. Kennedy recently with this warning from a trusted adviser: based on secret polls. President Nixon may well carry Massachusetts Nov. 7.

A Nixon victory in Ted Kennedy's front yard, the adviser continued, would not enhance Ted Kennedy's national prestige, so, he concluded, perhaps Kennedy should push harder for McGovern in Massachusetts.

Kennedy shrugged off the gloomy forecast, incredulous that Mr. Nixon should carry a state which thoroughly thrashed him in 1960 and 1968. Although he has solicited McGovern money contributions since then, Kennedy has not markedly intensified his efforts to sell McGovern to the state's voters.

The incident underscores the strange political scene in Massachusetts today. Though this is McGovern's strongest state, he trails today and, at best, can win it narrowly. What he needs is more aggressive vocal support not only from Kennedy but all the state's regular Democratic leaders. But McGovern's dedicated true believers, resenting the unenlightened regulars, want the campaign to themselves here as elsewhere.

All available polling evidence indicates that the situation today is much worse than the state's Democratic politicians can bring themselves to believe. A telephone poll last week in the Congressional district northeast of Boston represented by liberal Democratic Rep. Michael Harrington, carried against Mr. Nixon in 1968 by 24.5 percentage points, shows the President leading, 2 to 1.

Having long ago written off Massachusetts, the White House last week reversed course. A Nixon staff committee privately recommended that the President visit here in response to requests from Gov. Francis Sargent and Sen. Edward Brooke. That such liberal Republicans genuinely want Mr. Nixon reflects the state's new political reality (though Massachusetts Republicans are still apprehensive about Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's forthcoming visit).

How did McGovern slide so badly from his overwhelming victory in the April 25 Massachusetts Presidential primary? We reported from here April 20 that blue-collar workers supported McGovern despite basic disagreement with him on social issues but that the balloon might burst when these voters became aware of his views. With Mr. Nixon well ahead today in blue-collar areas, the balloon has burst.

Party regulars hope the enthusiastic, though disproportionately young, crowd of 40,000 that heard McGovern in Boston's Post Office Square Tuesday will somehow breathe public confidence into his candidacy. They also admit that is not enough. Reestablished confidence in him by working-class voters will require a joint effort by McGovern, sounding more like conventional Democratic politicians, and party leaders, reassuring constituents that McGovern is one of them.

But the regulars have encountered an icy reception from the young political unknowns who put together the McGovern campaign early this year and are still in charge. Since becoming a near-miss for Vice President, Mayor Kevin White of Boston offered his services to the McGovern campaign no less than seven times without an acceptance. Only last week was his help sought (in attracting a crowd for the Post Office Square rally).

Other regulars feel uncomfortable with the head of McGovern's state campaign.

Other Editors Say Those Poor Reds

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Americans can be thankful the U.S. Senate finally came to its senses and voted approval of the $74 billion defense spending bill while at the same time rejecting a provision to halt U.S. bombing in Indochina.

That some vestige of unreality remains in the minds of some senators was indicated by the fact that the Senate did adopt a warmed-over 1971 end-the-war amendment which, in practical terms, means nothing anyway.

Adoption of a strong defense budget is absolutely essential to the survival of this country. If the antiwar faction had its way, there would be no military establishment in the U.S. Instead, that faction would spend the funds for welfare schemes.

But, pray, what good are welfare programs if the nation, helpless from being stripped of its defenses, is destroyed by the Russians or the China Reds?

While the adoption of the defense bill by the Senate is good news, it is overshadowed by an appalling statement from ultraliberal Sen. William Proxmire, the man who urged the amendment to stop the bombing.

Said Proxmire: "A record of inhumanity against the yellow man has been riveted into the consciousness of Asians for generations."

That is a fantastic statement that screams the senator's ignorance of facts.

He talks about inhumanity to the yellow man (presumably the inhumanity is ours), while ignoring that the inhumanity belongs to the yellow Reds in the Orient.

The yellow Communists of China have deprived a conservatively estimated 60 million or more human beings of their lives. The North Vietnamese Communists (also yellow; have perpetrated crimes against civilians as heinous as any ever dreamed up by white Hitler and white Stalin.

The pro-Hanoi crowd bleats repeatedly about the brutal bombing of North Vietnam. The pro-Hanoi crowd conveniently ignores the atrocities committed (and are still being committed) by the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese against whole civilian populations in South Vietnam.

Where are the bleeding hearts for the South Vietnamese civilians? Where are the hand-wringers? Where are the crocodile tears?

It is documented fact; repeatedly borne out in news reports daily, that Communists invading south Vietnamese villages and cities have committed thousands of atrocities against unarmed men, women and children.

Isn't it odd, Sen. Proxmire, that the people "liberated" from the Reds always flee the Communist "liberators" since the Communists are such gentle, considerate and admirable types?

Index Calls For Understanding

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The jobless rate remained at 5.5 per cent in September, a level that drew praise from the President's advisers and criticism from labor leaders. Neither is the best response; understanding is what is needed.

In the context of the past 15 or 20 years, that percentage is neither high nor low, which leads to the presumption that there might be a reason for the rate sticking in that area. And there is.

The story of jobs in the American economy is not an isolated one, because if you speak of jobs you automatically speak also of prices. There is a delicate nip-and-tuck game between them, and it never ends.

Simplified, there is a tendency of prices to rise as the unemployment rate is pushed lower, mainly because the least productive skills are called into use, as are the least desirable units of plant and equipment.

The loss of efficiency is made up, therefore, in higher prices. The seller's unit costs are higher, and so he attempts to recover those extra costs through higher price tags.

The question of when a jobless rate is satisfactory really never can be answered. So long as people are forced onto welfare because they cannot sell their skills, minor as they are, the situation is unsatisfactory.

No economist has conclusively demonstrated to date how low the rate can be pushed without starting the inflation fires again. And so, a rate of 5 or 5.5 per cent is high or low depending largely upon a point of view.

There is no disagreement, however, that the U.S. federal government is committed to probing into this unknown area. It is committed to do so by law, the Employment Act of 1946, which calls for maximum use

Claims Alcohol Traits

By DUSTON HARVEY
BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Children who will become problem drinkers in later life can be identified by their personality traits in junior high school. A University of California researcher says so.

The traits center around unstable, unpredictable and impulsive behavior, according to Mary Cover Jones. She is a research associate at the Institute of Human Development at UC Berkeley.

Boys who tend to become problem drinkers are rebellious, extroverted, unable to maintain adequate interpersonal relationships and show too much emphasis on masculinity, possibly reflecting their concern about the male role.

Girls who will have drinking problems in adult life — and there are fewer of them — tend to be depressed, self-negating and distrustful.

Mrs. Jones, a professor emerita of education, based her findings on comparisons of personality tests given the subjects during their teen-age years and personal interviews with the volunteers, who are now in their 40s. They are part of a larger group which the Institute of Human Development has been following for more than 30 years.

Problem drinkers were defined as those who had created problems for themselves, their families or their employers by drinking excessively. Other adults were classified as heavy, moderate or light drinkers or abstainers.

Personality Tests Used Standard personality tests given the subjects during their youth were compared to determine if the personality traits associated with drinking problems were present before the drinking patterns began or if they resulted from compulsive drinking.

"We learned that the traits preceded the drinking," said Mrs. Jones.

She said the prediction of later drinking problems from personality characteristics may point the way to mental health approaches that would help reduce irresponsible use of alcohol.

"Among these would be the supervision of primary learning about alcohol so that drinking is divested of its glamour as a symbol of virility and rebellion," she said.

Mrs. Jones also suggested that efforts were needed to build personal strengths and increase self-understanding among the youngsters who are coping defensively and unrealistically with stress and tension.

Her research, published in the Journal of Consulting and Clinical Psychology, found that the drinking traits formed a consistent trend among men while problem drinkers and abstainers shared some traits among women.

"It is not surprising that the problem drinkers should emerge from among that group of boys whose behavior in school years was rated as undercontrolled, assertive, rebellious, pushing the limits and overtly hostile," she said.

"Teen-agers with such characteristics might be expected to satisfy their personal needs with those forbidden activities which symbolize the pleasures of mature status."

"Drinking in defiance of authority, in the pursuit of masculine camaraderie, or as a symbol of sophistication has frequently been linked to the later immoderate use of alcohol."

She said boys who became problem drinkers more often took their first drink away from home to prove manliness or express rebellion and tended more often to become drunk on the first occasion.

Women, on the other hand, more often reported taking their first drink at home with the family—one reason fewer of them become problem drinkers.

Women Protected

"In our culture, we tend to protect women from becoming problem drinkers," she said. "Those who do go overboard tend to be more disturbed."

One unexpected finding was that women problem drinkers and abstainers were more similar to each other as teenagers than to the normal drinkers of their sex in personality traits suggesting inadequate coping devices.

"They are self-defeating, vulnerable, pessimistic, withdrawn; they feel guilty, somatize, and project feelings," Mrs. Jones reported. "They are less productive, incisive, independent and self-satisfied, with fewer interests and with lower aspiration levels than normal drinkers."

Differences which may account for their radically diverging adult approaches to alcohol include responsibility, emotional control and acceptance of dependency relationships among future abstainers and a submissiveness which will turn to adult rebellion among future problem drinkers.

Mrs. Jones also found that women abstainers often were from families in which the father drank excessively, suggesting their abstinence was a specific response to drinking rather than part of an integrated personality pattern.

Mrs. Jones said heavy drinking women—defined as those who drink nearly every day and occasionally down three or more drinks at a time—tended to be self-assured, upwardly mobile members of the upper middle class.

In junior high, these women were found to have the highest ratings on such items as social skills, charm, poise, expressiveness, and interest in the opposite sex.

"Heavy drinkers tend to have low ratings on these items which characterize problem drinkers," she found. "They seem to use alcohol more for social than for compensatory purposes."

The researcher found that the predictive traits were best measured at about the eighth grade. At the high school level, where drinking may have begun, the traits show fewer correlations, possibly because behavior is less direct and harder to assess.

Twelve Deaths

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The North Carolina Highway Patrol reported today that the 12 weekend fatalities on the state's roads pushed the highway toll for the year to 1,484, an increase of 131 over the same period last year.

Terry Ashley, 14, of Columbus, died when the car she was riding ran off a rural road in Polk County near her home.

A Wilmington man, John Ma-readi, 52, walked into the path of traffic and died on U.S. 76 near Wrightsville Beach.

William Teague of Chapel Hill ran a stop sign and hit a car at the intersection of N.C. 54 and a rural road in Orange County.

Boyd Smith, 55, of Newton Grove died on a dirt road near Clinton when his car ran off the road and overturned. A similar fate befell David Woody on U.S. 221 near his home in Green Mountain.

A Whitakers man—20-year-old Roderick Hinton—died when his car hit a bridge abutment at high speed on Interstate 85 near Graham.

Hennie Beck, 61, of Morganton, died when he fell from a pickup on U.S. 64 and was run over by another car. John Carter of Selma died when struck by two cars as he walked along U.S. 301 near Kenly.

NEW YORK (UPI)—The U.S. Postal Service will install 56,000 data recorders in more than 35,000 post offices, military installations and aboard ships beginning early next year to help speed preparation of about 180 million orders a year.

The data recorders will help reduce issuance time while providing a modern paper-check order and an improved customer receipt, says Addressograph Multigraph Corp., which signed a $2.5 million contract for the equipment.

Howard Hughes Said Wearing Long Beard, Curtailed Toenails

MIAMI (AP)—Billionaire recluse Howard Hughes had a beard down to his waist and hair flowing over his shoulders when he made a secret trip from the Bahamas to Miami last February, according to the Miami Herald.

His toenails "were so long they curled up," the newspaper quoted a yacht captain as saying.

Capt. Bob Rehak, 55, former skipper of the yacht Cygnus, said in a copyright story published Sunday that he spent 22 hours with Hughes and his entourage on the trip.

Rehak and Donald Lawrence Hout, a 34-year-old Miami houseboat designer, served as dual captains on the yacht.

The mysterious 66-year-old Hughes left Nassau, where he had lived under a veil of secrecy in the posh Britannia Beach Hotel, and reached Miami Beach on Feb. 17 at 4:30 a.m. U. S. Customs officials confirmed Hughes' arrival in the predawn hours.

Hughes later left on a chartered Eastern Air Lines jet for Managua, Nicaragua—where he is now after a brief sojourn in Vancouver, British Columbia.

"He had this real stringy beard, real thin, and it came down to almost his waist," Rehak said. "His hair was real fine, too, down over his shoulders."

Rehak said Hughes, a private doctor and four aides made the trip. "Three or four of them carried Hughes out of a panel truck on a stretcher, one of those ambulance stretchers that straighten up," Rehak said.

Funds Grow For Family

ROXBORO, N. C. (AP)—The organizer of a memorial fund for the family of slain N. C. highway patrolman Joe Wright says more than $1,000 dollars has been collected thus far.

Wright was shot to death Sept. 27 in Person County as he attempted to question three persons in a car he stopped on a rural road.

W. A. Wilkins, reporter for the Courier-Times of Roxboro, said he and Sgt. E. B. Wood of the highway patrol started the Joe Wright memorial fund "to give the people of the state an opportunity to contribute to Wright's family in appreciation for his service to the state." He said the fund was begun at the insistence of friends who wanted to help Wright's family.

Wilkins said Republican candidate for lieutenant governor Johnny Walker of North Wilkesboro said he plans to set up a Joe Wright foundation and promised to give $5,000 if other contributions reached $20,000.

Wilson Thomas of radio station WSMI in Graham said a fund raising marathon for Wright's family will be held soon, and in Raleigh, highway patrol commander Col. Edwin Guy said he has received contributions collected by the Raleigh police department for Wright's family.

A Difficult Topic For Parents Probed On TV

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP TELEVISION WRITER
NEW YORK (AP) — We'll have trouble explaining this, but there's an entertainment show on tonight about venereal disease. It's on because VD is a topic most parents have trouble explaining to those who count—their kids.

The program is "VD Blues." It stars Dick Cavett and lasts an hour. It'll appear on most of the Public Broadcasting System's 223 stations at 8 p.m. and an hour earlier in Central Time states.

It'll be succeeded in at least 85 cities by follow-up shows that explain local VD problems and hopefully inform those who know or fear they have VD where to go and who to call for treatment.

The show makes a valiant try at combing good entertainment with sound information about VD. Its theory is that the straight approach usually falls on deaf ears and causes slumber.

And the message is aimed at the young, enticing them with brief guest appearances by members of music's youth establishment—Arlo Guthrie and scruffy Dr. Hook and the Medicine Show.

Cavett, who majors in wry comment each week night on ABC, stays in character for "Blues." And he's a fortunate choice as host.

He explains the "two biggies"—syphilis and gonorrhea—in the terms most people use, yet remains disarming enough to get the message under way before the "wash-your-mouth" cries commence.

"VD is the gift that keeps on giving," he warns. "VD is the disease of people who love people. And nowadays there evidently are a lot of young people loving young people because we've got a VD epidemic on our hands ... and other parts of our anatomy."

Cavett will attract the young viewers. Alas, the show's opening skit may drive them away immediately. It's a long, precious saga, written by Jules Feiffer, about a lady who learns from her doctor that she has syphilis. And that he gave it to her and doesn't want her to name him as the donor.

"You said you loved me once," the healer pleaded.

"That was the once," the lady explains.

It's Feiffer's way of illustrating what Cavett explains in a few sentences—that tracing VD carriers often is difficult because some doctors won't report them to public health officials. The usual given reason is that this violates the doctor-patient relationship.

The best segment, written by Clayton Riley, illustrates the real problem of getting VD treatment in the ghetto. Would that he had written the whole show. He has uncannily accurate eyes and ears. And taste.

And he has it all down—the clinic closed for lack of official care and funds, the black militants and stuffy bureaucrat arguing in tongues only television cameras understand, the of-fious nurse who turns away the scared, infected ghetto girl.

His contribution is well worth the wait. It's a shame that it arrived so late in "VD Blues," which as entertainment is composed of one-third brilliance and two-thirds crudity and boredom.

The show, produced by WNET here, will anger many. But despite its faults, it also may save thousands of young people from venereal disease.

TVA Hints New Boost In Rates

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—The Tennessee Valley Authority has raised the specter of another rate increase with a report that net power revenues have dropped almost $7 million this year.

The agency has said in the past that its power rates will be based on profits.

In a statement accompanying its annual report released Saturday, the TVA said "a continuing rise in costs offset increased revenues for the Tennessee Valley Authority electric power program in the fiscal year ended June 30."

The last time the TVA raised its power rates was in August 1970 when it boosted the cost of power to its distributors by almost 25 per cent. At that time, the seven-state agency cited rising coal costs as a prime factor in the rate increase.

The TVA operates 12 coal-burning power generating plants.

Net income for the fiscal year, the report said, was $112, down from the previous year's $119.

"Revenues for the year were sufficient to keep the power program financially sound. The agency is required to charge power rates that will produce sufficient revenue to meet all costs," the report said.

"Total power sales for the past year increased only slightly over the previous year, but growth in power requirements is now turning upward

Total revenues were $641.8 million, an increase of $43.8 million. At the same time, however, the operating costs increased by $31.8 million and production costs rose by $19.5 million.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Banks are very safe places — and not just for money.

Hanoi Gained With Offensive

By RICHARD PYLE

SAIGON (AP) — Although falling well short of the shattering victory that apparently was its ultimate goal, Hanoi's 1972 offensive in South Vietnam has greatly improved the Communist side's strategic position for a settlement—military or political.

Quiz Two In S.C. Slaying

MOUNT AIRY, N.C. (AP) — Police in Mount Airy said today they were questioning two men in the fatal shooting of a South Carolina highway patrolman late Sunday night near Orangeburg, S.C.

Authorities declined to identify the men being questioned.

Patrolman Roy O. Caffey was shot on Interstate 26, eight miles northeast of Orangeburg, and died on the way to a hospital.

A passing motorist found the wounded Caffey near his patrol car, Lieut. S. E. Taylor of the South Carolina patrol reported. The motorist, whose name is not known, notified the patrol station.

Caffey, a 25-year-veteran of the patrol, is survived by his widow and a 15-year-old son. Mount Airy, due north of Orangeburg, is a few miles from the Virginia border.

V.M. Mulholland In Rex Hospital

Dr. Vester M. Mulholland, former principal of Greenville High School, is in Rex Hospital, Raleigh, for treatment of injuries suffered in a Sept. 26 wreck near Goldsboro.

Mrs. Robert S. Smith of Durham, his sister, reported that he sustained a broken jaw, two broken ribs and injuries to his left hip in the head-on collision.

Mulholland, who is now with the State Department of Public Instruction in Raleigh, was in the intensive care ward at Rex for nine days but is now in Room 442, his sister said. His condition was listed as improved.

COPTER BUSINESS UP
NEW YORK (UPI) —The helicopter business is getting bigger, according to an aerospace industry survey showing an increase of 5 per cent in the number of helicopter operators and 8 per cent in the number of helicopters operated, compared with 1971. Currently there are 1,520 operators using 4,233 helicopters.

And while battlefield reverses have forged numerous changes in the original plan, there are no signs the North Vietnamese campaign is letting up. Instead it is moving into a new phase.

The lull that followed the recapture of Quang Tri City by the South Vietnamese last month has ended in a new surge of Communist attacks. The "center of gravity," as one senior American officer phrased it, has shifted south to the region around Saigon.

Military commanders expect a rising level of enemy attacks in the vicinity of Saigon and perhaps even on the capital itself, timed to coincide with the U.S. election in an attempt to embarrass President Nixon.

But officials say they find no indications that North Vietnamese regulars elsewhere in the country are pulling back from the areas which they have seized in the last six months.

"The Communist units are rebuilding their former base areas to maintain their presence and to declare, 'we're here,'" said one U.S. officer. "They are here to stay."

As soon as they are refitted and resupplied, the North Vietnamese could launch another major offensive push. This time they would have the advantage of starting from positions far forward of where they were when they launched their offensive last March 30.

Viewed politically, the control the Communists have won of large areas of South Vietnam and a sizable number of its people would be a crucial factor if current maneuvering produced a standstill cease-fire.

This apparently is why President Nguyen Van Thieu recently reemphasized that any cease-fire must cover all of Indochina, it must be internationally supervised, and the North Vietnamese must pull all of their forces back within their own borders.

Some 406,000 persons were officially listed under Communist control at the end of August, the most recent month for which such figures have been disclosed.

This is only 2.1 per cent of South Vietnam's total of 19 million, but it is 11 times more than were listed under enemy control when the offensive began. And U.S. experts say many areas where the South Vietnamese claim to have regained the edge are actually no man's land.

One official cited coastal Binh Dinh Province, where three heavily populated districts were lost in the early days of the Communist drive. He said government troops made a token recapture of one district headquarters and then pulled out.

"If anybody is there now, it's the other side," he said.

Elusive Campaign Donor Had 'Financial Problems'

By H. L. SCHWARTZ III and DICK BARNES
Associated Press Writers
BRYAN, Tex. (AP) — Four days after Walter T. Duncan wrote out a $200,000 check that helped make him the year's largest listed political donor, a 220-acre parcel of Texas land he owned was sold at a foreclosure auction because he failed to make the payments.

Two months later, as the little-known real estate speculator was handing out another $257,000 in campaign contributions, he was named defendant in a $2.27 million law suit brought partly on behalf of a federal corporation.

These are among the financial, legal and governmental problems faced by the elusive Duncan.

His difficulties were uncovered by The Associated Press in the wake of his massive contributions, first to Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey's unsuccessful Democratic primary campaign and then to President Nixon's re-election bid.

Duncan, whose only previously recorded national campaign contribution was $50 to Humphrey in 1968, gave $300,000 to the Minnesota senator in May and June.

He was listed in reports to the government Sept. 10 as distributing $257,000, mostly in $6,000 chunks, to dozens of Nixon committees.

Repeated efforts to put questions to Duncan about his contributions, by telephone, in writing and through associates, all failed. Duncan's lawyer said he didn't expect Duncan would respond.

The foreclosure and $2.27 million law suit, both outgrowths of a 1969 land deal, and other aspects of Duncan's affairs have been quietly looked into by the FBI, Internal Revenue Service, Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and federal and state grand juries.

He also is or has been involved in a number of civil court actions, chiefly involving alleged nonpayment of debts.

Amid his web of business dealings, Duncan lived in near-anonymity in this east Texas community for 10 years.

Soon after, Duncan sold his $90,000 home here and moved with his wife and son to San Antonio, headquarters for another of his ventures. His home phone and address aren't publicly listed, and relatives won't tell newsmen where he lives.

Duncan, 45, moved into land dealings on his own in the 1960s after supervising Gulf Oil Corp.'s Texas land affairs.

The deals which have drawn the most attention from investigators were begun in April 1969 with National Bankers Life Insurance Co. of Dallas.

Duncan borrowed $2.4 million and $1.1 million from the company, putting up as security two parcels of land near Austin. Appraisals made on Duncan's behalf and accepted by the insurance company were five times prices actually paid for the land or valuations later made by Texas state insurance examiners.

Little more than a year later, Duncan renegotiated the $2.4 million loan upward to $2.6 million and National Bankers Life sold a half-interest in the note to Sharpstown State Bank of Houston.

In January 1971, National Bankers Life and the Sharpstown bank were named in a stock fraud action by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Both went out of business. The resultant scandal toppled the three top Texas Democrats from state office and prompted a variety of legal and investigative proceedings.

Investigators found that Duncan had been the second-largest borrower from National Bankers. The state liquidator sold the $2.6 million note as part of a package to another insurance firm, Union Bankers Life of Dallas.

When Duncan had failed by May 15, 1972, to pay all of the $104,000 interest payment due the previous Dec. 31, Union Bankers launched foreclosure proceedings on the 220 acres of land securing the loan. He had paid $25,000 of the amount due.

The land was sold on the Travis County courthouse steps June 6—four days after Duncan wrote out a $200,000 check to a Humphrey fund raiser. The sale price was $500,000—a small fraction of the $4.4 million at which an appraisal submitted in Duncan's behalf three years earlier had valued the property.

Since the $500,000 knocked only a small portion off the $2.6 million Duncan owed on the note, Union Bankers brought suit in state court in August for the remaining $2.1 million plus interest and other costs. Duncan so far has not responded to the suit.

A party to the suit is the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., the receiver for the defunct Sharpstown bank, which is still owed half of the remaining amount due on the note.

Duncan's original $1.1 million loan from National Bankers was later sold to a savings and loan association and renegotiated for $1.3 million.

Even before Duncan made his political contributions, federal agents were looking into his involvement as borrower with National Bankers. After the contributions to Humphrey became public, the Internal Revenue Service took an interest in whether Duncan would have to pay gift taxes, according to one man who said he knew of contacts IRS had made.

The federal and state grand juries concerned with Duncan were investigating a kickback scheme involving some apartment buildings he had owned in the Houston area. A state prosecutor said Duncan came out of the local probe with a "clean bill of health."

Some of his other court dealings found in public records include:

—A suit against Duncan in federal court for alleged failure to pay a guarantee of a $150,000 promissory note to a now-bankrupt Indiana finance company. Duncan has admitted signing the guarantee, but says he doesn't owe the money.

—A suit settled out of court in 1970 on which Duncan is paying off a $205,000 note he signed for a leading contributor to Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind.

The lender in this case, a Milwaukee investor, says Duncan has made payments on schedule. But the investor, Armand S. McGregor, says he is "not happy" with Duncan's performance on a separate debt not involved in the suit.

Against this background of difficulties, there is no clear picture how Duncan was tapped for the contributions by either the Humphrey or Nixon camps.

David Marks, a Humphrey campaign fund-raiser who traveled to Bryan for three days to pick up the $200,000 check, said Paul Thatcher, Humphrey's campaign treasurer, had made the arrangements.

Thatcher, who works for Dwayne Andreas, another big Humphrey-then-Nixon contributor, wouldn't talk about it.

The Committee for the Re-election of the President wouldn't comment on Duncan.

And, though he is a past Democratic supporter who lives less than an hour from John Connally's Texas ranch, Duncan wasn't invited to the Democrats for Nixon social event with the President held there last month.

At that party, Leonard Marks, treasurer of Democrats for Nixon, told two reporters "I don't know the man."

BELFAST (AP)— The army and police are investigating the fatal shooting of a Protestant youth whose family said he was partially deaf and could not hear militiamen shouting at him to halt.

Alexander Moorehead, 17, of Newtonwards, County Tyrone, was one of two persons killed during the weekend in Northern Ireland as the three-year death toll from sectarian violence rose to at least 597.

Members of the Ulster Defense Regiment, the province's militia, said Moorehead was seen carrying an object and trying to scale a wall shortly after a bomb had been thrown at a military patrol.

The militiamen said they called for him to stop and then fired when he continued over the wall. No weapon was found near his body.

A 6-year-old boy was found seriously wounded Sunday with a bullet in the back of his head. The child, James Docherty, was found near his home in a Roman Catholic area.

The army said a gunman was hit Sunday in the Catholic Ardoyne section of Belfast. And more than 500 youths rampaged through Londonderry late Sunday, after breaking away from a parade commemorating the fourth anniversary of the civil rights campaign in Ulster.

The Catholics attacked an army post and tried to knock down its gates. But the troops drove them back with rubber bullets, officers said.

Fire Prevention Programs Set

As part of their observance of Fire Prevention Week this week, the Pitt County Fire Marshall's office and the Greenville Fire Department's Fire Prevention Bureau will show fire prevention films each night this week at Pitt Plaza.

Officials said the free movies will be shown in a tent at the shopping center from 7 p.m. until 9 p.m. each night through Saturday.

In addition to the movies, four fire trucks will be on display each night — representing various fire departments throughout the county.

An added attraction on Monday and Wednesday nights will be a demonstration of the Greenville Fire Department's 85-foot snorkel.

Thought A Lot Of His Rifle

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)— The Utah Division of Wildlife says a man who illegally shot a deer apparently thinks a lot of his gun.

Officials said they confiscated a rifle which cost $365 new from the unidentified man and a court fined him $250 and put him in jail for two days.

But officials said he showed up again when the department recently auctioned off confiscated items and was high bidder at $275 to get his own gun back.

FINISH CLEANUP

SALTILLO, Mexico (AP)— Rescue crews have finished their work at the site of Mexico's second worst rail disaster and authorities put the number of confirmed dead at 204, and injured at 1,098.

Tom Ellis, Helms' state campaign manager, said Sunday the offer is aimed at cutting down on "campaign pollution." "Political campaigns inevitably leave in their wake and in public view a variety of stickers, posters and discarded leaflets," Ellis said.

He added that every reasonable step was being taken "to arrange for a clean-up of all campaign materials after election day."

Ellis expressed hope that "other candidates will join us in this enterprise so that, in time, post-election litter can be entirely eliminated."

Ambitions And Hope Run High In ACC Title Race

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Atlantic Coast Conference's middle echelon, consisting of N.C. State, Maryland, Duke and Clemson at the moment, is filled with people who still think they have a shot at the conference title. Defending champion North Carolina, with a 2-0 league mark, is on top right now, with four league games yet to go. If the Tar Heels should crop one or more of those, the middle echelon people expect to be right there to catch up. Take N.C. State, for example. The Wolfpack thinks it finally got it all together. Saturday in a 17-0 mauling of Duke. The Blue Devils think they can finish the season without losing another conference battle.

Clemson coach Hootie Ingram has seen his club drop three in a row against nightly-regarded outside opposition after an opening win against the Citadel. He feels his team might be ready for a late-season run at the title, despite the aftertaste of Saturday's 31-9 loss to Georgia Tech.

Maryland, with a convincing 23-0 win over Wake Saturday, served notice that its young team of sophomores and juniors may have matured.

One of the few teams not talking title at this stage is Virginia, which dropped a close one to Vanderbilt Saturday night, 10-7.

The league standings look like this: North Carolina on top 2-0 in the ACC and 3-1 overall; N.C. State Maryland and Duke are next. The Wolfpack is 1-1-1 in the league and 2-2-1 overall.

as are the Terps; Duke is 1-1 and 1-4. Clemson, 1-3 overall but 0-0 in the league is in fifth; Virginia, 0-1 and 2-3, and Wake Forest, 0-1, 1-3, are tied for last.

But on one is more than a game behind in the loss column, and therein lies the tale.

N.C. State linebacker Bryan Wall, given a game ball after the win over Duke, said, "This was the first time in a long time we've been successful in stopping a team. It gave us a big lift." That lift, Wall figured, might be just enough to push the Pack to five or six wins in its remaining games.

Duke and Melvin Parker was just as determined. "We are not giving up," he said. "We can still finish 5-1 in the ACC. State's backs were tougher than Alabama's."

In Atlanta, Ingram said the missing ingredient for Clemson was desire. "We've got to have the desire to go out there and whip someone," he declared. "I know football is a team sport, but desire has to start with the individual."

Ingram praised the play of Wake Forest has the dubious distinction of hosting the powerful N.C. State backfield and its revitalized defense as the Deacs look for that first league win.

sophomore defensive back Jimmy Ness, whom he said "stuck out like a sore thumb. I assure you we'd win some."

The Tigers get a chance to find out whether that's true or not Saturday when they host Duke in their first league game.

North Carolina, with a week to recover from the bruising of the loss to Ohio State, will be taking on Kentucky of the Southeast Conference in Chapel Hill.

Oakland Anxious To End It All

By ERIC PREWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer
OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Athletics, with a zero popularity rating in Detroit, would like to end the American League playoffs in Tiger Stadium Tuesday and get out of town quickly.

They moved within one victory of a three-game sweep in the best-of-5 series Sunday when John "Blue Moon" Odom threw a three-hitter to beat the Tigers

5-0 here. The teams had today off, but American League President Joe Cronin had a decision to make—whether to take any disciplinary action against A's shortstop Bert Campaneris.

The Cuban infielder got the A's their first run Sunday and later got himself kicked out of the game for throwing his bat at Tigers' reliever Lerrin LaGrow. Cronin, one of the 30,000 spectators, said he would get full reports from the umpires "and then sleep on it" before deciding what action to take.

"That was the dirtiest thing I ever saw in the game of baseball," Tigers' Manager Billy Martin said. "He's got to be suspended for the rest of the playoffs."

Cronin said, "The way I feel personally, any time you swing your bat at another ballplayer, it's something that doesn't belong in baseball."

Campaneris was hit on the left ankle by a LaGrow pitch in the seventh inning. After picking himself out of the dirt, he flung his bat at the mound but missed the pitcher. The umpires prevented a fight between the teams and restrained Martin as he tried to reach Campaneris.

ONLY TWO

DETROIT (UPI)—Only two coaches in Michigan high school football history ever won more than 200 varsity games.

The late Ted Sowle won 209 and tied six in 236 decisions during a 26-year tenure at Grand Rapids Catholic Central.

Algoma and Grant high schools. Oscar "Okie" Johnson won 201 and tied 11 in 310 games over 39 years at Muskegon Heights and Mount Pleasant.

Williams said Campaneris will be replaced by Dal Maxvill and Oakland's batting lineup will be shifted but "I'm not sure yet exactly how I'll do it."

Williams said Campaneris accompanied the A's to Detroit but that the swelling of his ankle had worsened since leaving Oakland after Sunday's game.

825 first place check after 490 miles of racing. This $123,000, fall classic at Charlotte Motor Speedway had been a routine race most of the way, with five drivers exchanging the lead at times but with Allison and Baker dominating, until the blazing windup.

The stage was set when Richard Petty, stock car racing's all-time money and events winner, ran into his usual bad luck at Charlotte and wrecked his Dodge while chasing Allison from second place.

That brought out the seventh yellow light of the day and allowed the remaining runners to bunch up behind the pace car. Baker moved into second place and at the restart was a car length behind Allison.

During the next eight laps, Allison held the front spot three times for five laps and Baker held the lead twice for three circuits. But the final four laps were Allison's, though he never could get the 6-foot-3 Baker off his rear bumper.

Sunday's payoff boosted Allison's 29-race total to $238,025. Petty, credited with an 11th place finish, picked up only $1,375 and now stands at $185,155.

Two Glen Wood Mercurys started in the first three positions but could do no better than third and fourth place in the race. David Pearson had the lead Mercury and A.J. Foyt the fourth place car.

Fifth place went to Butch Hartman, winner of the last two United States Auto Club stock car titles, in a Ford.

Unbeaten, Unchallenged Dolphins Take Show Home

By HUBERT MIZELL
Associated Press Sports Writer
Miami's well-produced, well-directed Dolphins have wowed them on the road with four-star ratings before audiences in Kansas City, Minnesota and New York.

That was supposed to be the tough part.

But now, the Dolphins take their smash hit home to the Orange Bowl as the unbeaten and currently unchallenged sensations of the American Conference East in the National Football League.

"We think we can win every game," said Garo Yepremian, the balding field goal whiz of the Dolphins.

Sunday, Miami chopped down the New York Jets 27-17 to run its record to 4-0 and open a two-game division lead in the only early runaway among the six NFL races.

Dallas rallied to nudge Pittsburgh 17-13 and Washington blanked winless Philadelphia 14-0 as the Redskins and world champion Cowboys remained tied at 3-1 in the National Conference Eastern Division.

Detroit and Green Bay are deadlocked with 3-1 records in the NFL Central. The Lions outlasted Atlanta 26-23 and the Packers nudged the Chicago Bears 20-17.

The Los Angeles Rams squashed San Francisco 31-7 to snatch the NFC West top spot from the 49ers. San Francisco and Atlanta are a half game behind the Rams.

Cincinnati broke a tie with Cleveland in the AFC Central by belting Denver 21-10 while the Browns were bowing to Kansas City 31-7.

The Chiefs needed a victory to retain the Western Division lead over much-improved San Diego. The Chargers nipped the slumping Baltimore Colts 23-20 and trail Kansas City by a half game.

Oakland, 1-1-1, can tie San Diego for the runnerup spot in the American Conference West by downing Houston, 1-2, in tonight's nationally televised match in the Astrodome at 9 p.m., EDT.

In other Sunday games, Buffalo smashed New England 38-14, the New York Giants massacred mistake-prone and winless New Orleans 45-21 and St. Louis spilled struggling Minnesota 19-17.

Miami quarterback Bob Griese won a superstar showdown with Joe Namath of the Jets, picking apart a weak New York secondary to connect on 15 of 27 throws for 220 yards, including a 16-yard payoff toss to Howard Twilley.

Namath was bothered by a three-man Dolphin rush and an extra defender in the secondary, not to mention several dropped passes by his teammates. Joe was 12 of 25 for only 125 yards and didn't toss for a score.

Burly Larry Csonka rushed for 102 yards and sidekick Jim Kiick ran for two touchdowns for Coach Don Shula's wonder gang from the land of the sun.

Cincinnati Evens Game Series

ECU Soccer Team Wins

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer
CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson talks like all he has to worry about is who will represent the American League in baseball's World Series.

Anderson's Reds used a pair of first-inning two-run doubles by Bobby Tolan and Tony Perez and solid relief pitching by Tom Hall to beat Pittsburgh Sunday 5-3 and even the National League's best-of-5 playoff series at 1-1.

The third game will be played here today.

"I said if we won today (Sunday) we would win it (the National League pennant)," said Anderson, now a picture of confidence. "I still think it will go five games and we'll win it."

The Cincinnati boss added: "I'm not being smart about it or popping off. I just feel that way. We're going home and that gives us an advantage."

Pittsburgh Manager Bill Veirdon reacted predictably when informed of Anderson's words. "If they think they're home free, they've got another think coming," snapped the Pirates' skipper.

Anderson's biggest move in Sunday's victory at Pittsburgh was relieving starter Jack Billingham with two outs and runners at first and third in the fifth inning. Hall pitched 4 1-3 innings of two-hit, one-run baseball to earn the victory.

Yet, if you looked at the statistics, bringing in Hall could have been devastating to the Reds.

During the season, Hall had worked five innings against Pittsburgh and posted an ERA of 10.43. He almost blew a 7-1 lead in one game, and in another one served a three-run homer to Willie Stargell. It looked as if Anderson was feeding the Christians to the lions ... uh Pirates.

Would you believe that the first batter Hall had to face was Stargell?

Anderson said he never even thought about the last time Hall pitched to Stargell. "Tom Hall's record speaks for itself this year," said the Reds' manager. Hall was 10-1 with eight saves and a 2.61 ERA.

"Some managers keep cards on those things," Anderson said. "I ain't smart enough to keep cards."

Hall came in with a 2-0 count on Stargell and worked it to a full count.

Now came the big pitch, a slider down and away for a called strike three. Hall controlled the game the rest of the way.

Stargell said of the strike-three slider, "It might have been a ball, but it was a hell of a pitch. Even if I do swing at it, how the hell do I hit it? I guess my judgment was bad."

LEXINGTON, Va. — East Carolina's soccer team won its second conference match of the season Saturday as they beat VMI 3-1.

Tom O'Shea scored the first ECU goal after 7:23 minutes of play. David Derie tied it up with the only VMI goal after 13 minutes of play.

ECU moved ahead on a goal by Rick Johnson who got an assist from Danny O'Shea. The final score came on a goal by Jeff Kunkler, his first of his career.

Bob Poser and Brad Smith were singled out for their play along with golie Rick Lindsey.

The next game for the Pirates will be on Wednesday at Raleigh when they take on N.C. State.

ECU is now 2-0 in the loop and 22-overall.

Stewart Bows To Car, Crew

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — Jackie Stewart of Scotland sped to a record-breaking victory in the U.S. Grand Prix auto race Sunday, but he gave the credit to his crew and car.

"All I did was steer," Stewart said after his arrival at victory lane.

Stewart, who had the pole position, went in front at the start, and held the lead all the way in his Tyrrell-Ford.

He finished 32 seconds ahead of second-place Francois Cevert of France in another Tyrrell-Ford and 37 in front of third-place finisher Denis Hulme of New Zealand in a McLaren-Ford.

Stewart's average speed of 117.483 miles an hour was a new record for the Grand Prix here, bettering the mark of 115.092 set by Cevert last year.

The win also clinched second place in the World Championship of Drivers ratings for Stewart, who had begun the race only one point ahead of Hulme.

The world title was sewed up earlier this year by Emerson Fittipaldi of Brazil, who had a dismal day here Sunday and wound up in 30th place, next to last, after completing only 17 of the race's 59 laps.

Gay Brewer Wins All In Richest Tournament

INZAI, Japan (AP) — A short putt on a short hole in a sudden death playoff was Australian David Graham's undoing, and American Gay Brewer walked off with the $65,000 first prize after an even battle in golf's richest tournament.

Brewer took a one-stroke lead into the final round Sunday of the $300,000 Taiheiyō Pacific Masters Tournament and was two strokes ahead after nine holes.

But Graham caught up, firing a one-under-par 70 to Brewer's 70 and the two tied at 276, eight under par, after the regulation 72 holes.

In a three-hole playoff over the 16th, 17th and 18th holes, both were one over par.

Then it was back to the 16th, a 214-yard, par-three hole both had parred moments earlier, for sudden death. Brewer hit the green with his drive and two-putted.

Graham hit the left edge, chipped to within 4½ feet—and missed the putt.

"I was lucky," said the 40-year-old Brewer of Palm Springs, Calif. "Graham gave me one stroke. A combination of confidence and power gave me the victory."

Graham, who won $32,500 for second, said he didn't like sudden death playoffs, since they allow no chance to overcome a bad hole.

Charles Coody of Apopka,

Fla., surged into third place with a final round 67 which gave him a 278 total and won $20,000.

Hubert Green of Birmingham, Ala., and Homero Blancas of Houston each had 280. Green finished with 67 and Blancas with a 69.

Gene Littler, playing his first tournament in six months following a cancer operation on his left arm, shot a one-under-par 70 Sunday for a 82. He shared seventh place with Bob Murphy of Bartow, Fla., Graham Marsh of Australia and Takashi Murakami of Japan.

Pre-tournament favorite Lee Trevino shot a one-over-par 72 Sunday for a 284 and shared 12th place with six other players.

Fliers Say F-111 The Greatest

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — To its critics, the F111 is a fiasco. To the men who fly it, it's the greatest airplane ever built. Formerly known as the TFX, for tactical fighter-experimental, the F111 has been steeped in controversy—from its birth 10 years ago to its return to combat earlier this month. Robert S. McNamara, President John F. Kennedy's secretary of Defense, conceived it as the most sophisticated, flexible, economic airplane yet devised—a single weapons system capable of performing the most divergent missions of both Navy and Air Force. But in the past decade: —After spending more than $200 million, the Navy canceled its version of the F111, concluding it was impractical to use on aircraft carriers. —In six years of operations, 23 F111s crashed, killing 17 crewmen and leaving eight others missing. —The Air Force, finding it impractical as a "dogfighter" against enemy MIGs because of its wide turning radius, assigned it primarily as a low-level, all-weather attack bomber.

When the U.S. resumed bombing of North Vietnam last spring, the Air Force was anxious to return the planes to combat and prove their worth. Pentagon leaders, after some initial hesitation, ordered two squadrons to Thailand this month. Within hours of their arrival, three of the aircraft took off on night bombing runs over North Vietnam. One never came back, disappearing without a trace.

The Pentagon went to great pains last week to reaffirm its confidence in the plane. Pilots who have flown the F111 say it represents a technological advance over any plane now flying, and they say it will prove itself to be a good combat aircraft. "There's no other airplane in the world that can do what the F111 can," said one pilot. "You have to fly it to appreciate it. In my experience covering 20 years in fighters, this is the finest aircraft I've had my hands on." What's so special about the plane? For one thing, its movable wings extended at right angles enable it to take off and land at low speeds on short runways, or loiter in the sky for long periods. Perhaps the F111's most revolutionary feature is its terrain-following radar, enabling a computer to follow a map of the earth, at night or day, in any weather, and guide the aircraft without the pilot touching the controls.

Cool Trend From Canada

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The cool temperatures and dry conditions that made Sunday a day to enjoy all across North Carolina will be with us again today.

At daybreak, early risers found temperatures in the upper 40s and low 50s under clear skies. Some temperatures near the freezing mark were noted in the mountains, but these were at the higher elevations.

During the night, some scattered cloudiness was spotted over the state as a weak cold front approached from the north. Light westerly winds continued well after midnight so that temperatures were about the same as yesterday.

This fresh outbreak of cold air from Canada is expected to spread over the state during the day. Winds will shift to northerly and become rather strong and gusty as the front passes this afternoon.

Temperatures during the next 24 hours are expected to be quite a bit colder than they were during the weekend.

A "fiasco," declared the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee in a 1970 report on the TFX. The swing-wing F111s were given a brief combat test in Indochina in 1968. But after 55 missions they were brought home. Of six initially sent over, three crashed, including two which vanished mysteriously without a trace.

A number of mechanical and structural flaws forced the Air Force to ground the planes on a number of occasions since then. Despite the losses, the Air Force contends that on more than 200,000 hours of flight operations, the F111s have compiled a better safety record than any other American-built supersonic aircraft.

Eunice Shriver Won Tug Of War For Microphone

By JANET STAIHAR
Associated Press Writer
BALTIMORE (AP) — Eunice Shriver, plunging into a pro-Nixon Democratic gathering, indulged in a brief tug-of-war with a Maryland politician for control of the stage microphone.

She emerged shaken, but confident that "it's their loss."

Sargent Shriver's wife was campaigning Sunday for the McGovern-Shriver Democratic ticket in the Baltimore-Annapolis area when she ventured into a beer party for state Sen. Joseph Staszak.

Although he's a Democrat, Staszak recently announced he is backing President Nixon.

City Councilman Barbara Mikulski, a Democrat of Polish ancestry who often travels with Shriver to smooth the way into ethnic sections, had advised

Mrs. Shriver to "tell them to keep an open mind."

As the Shriver party entered the packed, noisy hall, Staszak greeted Miss Mikulski with "Hi, sweetheart," and shook Mrs. Shriver's outstretched hand.

Afterwards, Miss Mikulski said Staszak told her he'd "give them five minutes to remain."

Mrs. Shriver went straight to the stage where, she said, she barely uttered "Good afternoon" before the master of ceremonies, John Jakubik, a state central committeeman, "grabbed the microphone out of my hand."

Mrs. Shriver said she protested: "I haven't finished yet," and tried to get the microphone back. "I'd like to talk for 30 seconds, so give me back the mike."

Mrs. Shriver said she and Jakubik both gripped the mike, but with a firm tug she finally got her half minute. "I'm from a proud Irish family and I know you're proud of your heritage," she said over the embattled microphone. Her voice was barely audible in the hall.

"I came here to dance, not to listen to this garbage," shouted one man as he lifted a glass.

Mrs. Shriver smiling stiffly, fled to her campaign bus. "I wonder how we stayed alive in there," she sighed, slumping into the seat. "There were 50 places we could have gone today; we didn't have to go in there ... They were so rude about it ..."

Liz Abernathy, Mrs. Shriver's press aide, said she was particularly puzzled at what went on inside the hall because Jakubik himself had invited Mrs. Shriver.

Pleased Over An Early Rust

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — They haven't even finished building the new Communications complex on the University of Texas campus, and it's already starting to rust. The architects are pleased.

It's a fairly new construction process, using what's known as weathering steel. It starts out looking rather nondescript, begins to streak as the rusting starts, and within six months or a year becomes a uniform orange-brown.

But the architects promise it's not normal rust—it won't chip off or work its way through the steel until it crumbles.

They say the surface will harden, will require no maintenance and will last the life of the building.

Easy to understand information about no-fault insurance.

So you have an accident. You're not hurt but your car is demolished. Would you benefit from no-fault insurance? Maybe. Maybe not.

Some No-Fault automobile liability insurance plans provide for payment without regard to fault for property damage. Others don't.

The No-Fault plan in Massachusetts which resulted in such great cost reduction didn't pay a nickel for property damage when it first went into effect.

Most automobile crashes in North Carolina involve only vehicle damage. And people must be protected against the economic loss from such accidents.

In the Modified No-Fault insurance plan submitted to the Governor's Automobile Insurance Study Commission by the Independent Insurance Agents of North Carolina, there are three options to protect against property damage.

One way would be through a new optional coverage which we call Basic Property Protection. With this coverage, the motorist would be compensated by his own insurance company for any property damage loss resulting from contact with another vehicle—if the other driver was at fault.

A second option would be for the motorist to purchase collision insurance which would pay for any property damage resulting from a collision, regardless of who was at fault.

The third option would be no physical damage coverage for the vehicle. The motorist electing this option would be unable to recover for damages unless they exceed $500. If the damage did amount to more than $500, the injured party would then have the right to sue to collect all his loss.

We suggested these options in the plan we recommend because we know that you want to be able to have the protection you need and keep the costs of automobile liability insurance as low as possible.

Our Modified No-Fault plan offers another advantage, too. It will enable you to obtain better service when you have a claim because you will deal with the agent from whom you purchased your policy and it won't be necessary to prove the "other driver" was at fault.

Better service for the motorist is what No-Fault insurance is all about.

LEARNING with a FUTURE

They're learning English in a modern language laboratory, above. And the high schoolers at Francisco de Paula Santander school, near Bogota, Colombia, also study fine points of precision in the metal shop, or pound the keys in secretarial classes—to say nothing of making a splash watering lettuce in the gardening class! The school, laid out like a small college campus, aims to provide the teenagers with what is termed "learning for living." It's typical of a new development in secondary education in Colombia: there are 19 of these comprehensive high schools—similar to those of the U.S.—offering vocational skills as well as standard academic training, with the latest in classroom and laboratory equipment. The World Bank authorized loans for the construction of these schools, and technical assistance was provided by the universities of New Mexico, Oklahoma and California, under contract to the U.S. Agency for International Development.

The Worry Clinic
A Divine Spark
Is Gift Of God

Ruth wants to know what John Wesley meant by saying his heart grew strangely warm at Aldersgate. So read Descartes' explanation. Then take the test below and see if those "Divine Sparks" have burned out in you or are still able to glow?

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.
Case V-511: Ruth S., aged 19 is a coed who teaches Sunday School.
"Dr. Crane," she began, "at Aldersgate Church John Wesley says his heart became strangely warm."

"And when Jesus walked to Emmaus with two of His Disciples after His Resurrection, they later said, 'Did not our heart burn within us while He talked with us by the way?'"
"Dr. Crane what is this warning of the heart?"

Descartes' Explanation
The French philosopher Descartes says at birth we are much like other animals.
Except that God implants a few "Divine Sparks" in our human brain!

And they permit us to respond to idealism, unselfishness and courageous self-sacrifice.
God likewise made some metals, such as lead, which are inert to the appeal of an electromagnet.
But iron filings will quiver and finally jump across to meet the approach of such a magnet.

BRIDGE QUIZ ANSWERS
Q. 1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AQ10754 ♥KJ95 ♦752
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ 1 NT Dble. 3 ♦

What do you bid now?
A.—Pass. You have a minimum opening and despite the fact that partner has shown distinct values by doubling one no trump, it would be poor strategy on your part to take voluntary action which would show a hand with considerable excess values. Partner should have the next say.

Q. 2—As South, not vulnerable, you hold:
♠J10 ♥AQJ10 ♦Q8 ♣J10743
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
Pass Pass Pass 1 ♠
Pass 2 ♣ Pass 2 ♠
Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Two no trump. This hand contains 11 points in high cards and you should certainly make one more try since your values are distributed in all four suits. If partner bids three spades, call it a day.

Q. 3—As South, not vulnerable, you hold:
♠AK10 ♥AQ983 ♦842 ♣Q5
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ Pass 2 ♣ Pass
1 ♥ Pass 2 ♣ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—Your hand has little in the way of defensive values. As a matter of fact the only trick taking possibility you have is the ace of spades which may duplicate tricks your partner expected to win. It seems improbable.

Q. 4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠A962 ♥J10943 ♦1054 ♣J
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
Pass Pass Pass 1 ♠
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ 3 ♠
Dble. Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—With this hand you have but one story—hearts, and the suggested call at this point is four hearts. If partner wishes to go to five clubs he is at liberty to do so but, we would rather string along at this point with a seven card suit.

Q. 5—You are vulnerable, have a part score of 70 and hold:
♠AKQ9653 ♥A64 ♦K5 ♣4
What is your opening bid?
A.—I would be inclined to relax the standard requirements for two bids in this case. There is too much likelihood that partner even with definite values will take no action over a one spade bid which "put you out" and a slam may be missed. An opening bid of two spades is recommended, with the suggestion that you tread lightly after that.

Q. 6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠9853 ♥Q109 ♦AK3 ♣A5
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
3 ♣ Dble. Pass ?
What do you bid?
A.—Slam possibilities should not be overlooked with this powerful hand, and the way to start probing is by a cue bid of four clubs. Your next step will depend upon partner's action at this point.

Q. 7—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠♥KJ107432 ♦J3 ♣J52
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
3 ♣ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—With this hand you have but one story—hearts, and the suggested call at this point is four hearts. If partner wishes to go to five clubs he is at liberty to do so but, we would rather string along at this point with a seven card suit.

Q. 8—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AK875 ♥2 ♦QJ5 ♣K763
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
3 ♣ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—Your choice is for a temporarily bid of four clubs. That the hand will surely make at least six clubs there can be no doubt, but by proceeding slowly we may obtain sufficient information upon which to base a grand slam effort. Giving immediate club support is preferable to a rebid of the spades.

Parachute Flare A Rocket Decoy

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force has countered a worrisome anti-aircraft missile in Vietnam with a parachute flare device that decoys the heat-seeking weapon away from U.S. jets and helicopters.

The Russian-made Strella missile caused deep concern last spring when North Vietnamese soldiers used it to knock down a number of U.S. and South Vietnamese planes and helicopters.

After a couple of the bazooka-like Strellas were captured in South Vietnam, one of them was flown to the United States for study.

Nothing was said publicly about the countermeasure experts devised until Secretary of the Air Force Robert C. Seamans Jr. mentioned it briefly in a speech last week.

Seamans said, "We were able, in just 18 days, to develop and deploy to the field an infrared suppression kit to counter the heat-seeking Strella missile."

Asked for details, Air Force sources said the technicians modified an existing flare system for the decoy task.

The device is ejected from an aircraft. A timer opens the parachute when it is well clear, then fires the flare.

The Strella is attracted to the intensely burning flare instead of to the plane because the flare generates more heat than the plane's engines, sources explained.

There was no explanation why officials chose to disclose the Strella countermeasure now, but it appears likely they believe the North Vietnamese have caught on by this time.

Fall Leaves Begin Show

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Fall colors through the western North Carolina mountains as leaves turn to reds, yellows and violets, are expected to reach their peak between mid-October and early November.

Granville B. Liles, superintendent of the Blue Ridge Parkway, says the reds and scarlets of dogwood, sourwood, black gum and Virginia creeper, and the bright yellows and bronzes of ash, birch, hickory, locust and tulip trees are beginning to show along the scenic mountain top route.

The four major visitors centers will remain open through Oct. 31, according to Liles. He listed these as Humpback Rocks, Peaks of Otter, North Carolina Minerals Museum and Craggy Gardens.

Liles also said over the weekend the picnic and campgrounds and concession will remain open through Oct. 31 and limited camping facilities will be available through the winter at Price Park and Linville Falls campgrounds in North Carolina, and Otter Creek and Roanoke Mountain in Virginia.

WHAT IS HEDGING OR FUTURES MARKETING? A future market, as the name implies, is a market for products which will change ownership at some date in the future.

The live hog futures market was designed specifically for hog producers, feeders, processors and any others who hold inventories of hogs or means of producing hogs. It provides a means by which the risk of adverse price fluctuations may be shifted to the speculators. This process of risk shifting is known as hedging. Hedging in the futures market may mean protection of a good profit, avoiding a loss, or taking a loss smaller than expected without hedging. An important consideration in hedging is the relationship between the expected cash price at the time of delivery and the futures market price.

In the futures market for hogs, producers can sell hogs up to a year in advance of when the hogs would be sold if they went through regular marketing channels. Using the futures market, the producer promises to deliver a specific number and quality of hogs at a predetermined location and future date.

All the conditions of the delivery are specified in a futures contract. The futures contract is a legally binding commitment by both parties involved. The contract price being agreed upon by both parties at the time the contract is made. Although the price of a specific contract is determined by the buyer and seller, the price is negotiated in the trading "pits" of the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. The market is an open bidding type of market. Pricing is highly competitive. The market price is set by forces of supply and demand.

Motivated To Slay Babies

By C. G. McDANIEL

AP Science Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — An Ohio doctor reports new evidence about children who kill infants because they are jealous of them.

Dr. Lester Abelson of the Case Western Reserve University school of medicine in Cleveland took note of five such cases which came to the attention of the Cuyahoga (Ohio) County coroner's office in a 3½-year period.

Writing in the Oct. 9 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, Dr. Abelson said the victims ranged in age from 7 weeks to 8 months. Their aggressors, ranging from 2½ to 8 years of age, were a young aunt, the son of a baby-sitter, a cousin, sons of a neighbor, and a brother.

All of the babies died of head injuries resulting from being hit with a blunt instrument or dropped on the floor or both. Two of the victims also were bitten by their attackers.

Abelson wrote that "Although the tiny child is motivated to kill because killing represents the most thorough form of retaliation he knows and because it implies the complete removal of the unwanted person, it is paradoxical that small children either cannot grasp or have extreme difficulty in coping with the concept of the permanence of death."

He said it is probable that in many instances "the first blow is the result of the child's deep seated impulse" while the following blows or other injuries "either then continue blindly or represent an attempt to quiet the victim."

"This study indicates unmistakably that the frailty of the infant renders him mortally vulnerable to injuries inflicted by preschool children and provides yet additional examples of how childish jealousy can terminate in tragedy," he wrote.

"A sense of rejection and rivalry with a sibling, or resentment by the assailant of the presence of a younger child who threatened his sense of security or place or priority in the household" provides the provocation for the lethal assault," Abelson said.

High School Group Studies ECU Math

Twenty-five outstanding students from six high schools are studying advanced topics in mathematics at East Carolina University this fall.

The students are enrolled in a special program designed to provide selected high school students with a more sophisticated approach to mathematics. Selection of the students is made from high schools located within commuting distance of the Greenville campus and is based upon motivation and achievement in mathematics.

Beginning in the junior year of high school, the program is carried through to the end of the senior year, according to Nannie Lee Manning, ECU mathematics instructor, who directs the program.

The first year group meets on Saturday mornings for study of such topics as real numbers, recreational mathematics and finite and infinite mathematical systems.

The second year group, meeting Monday evenings, focuses on the theory of numbers. Both groups spend four sessions each in the study of computer-oriented topics.

Those participating from Rose High School include: Gregory Lyle Alexander, Charles Venable Barlow, Jonathan V. Caspar, Julia Ann Cleveland, William F. Pritchard, Jr., Michael Terrence Reilly, Kathleen Carey Waugh and David Stewart Walton.

Farm Tips

By Dr. J. W. Pou
Agricultural Specialist
Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., N.A.

A North Carolina State University tobacco specialist believes growers may be leaving an important factor out of the formula many of them use to measure success.

"It's the cost factor," commented S. N. Hawks. "Farmers, generally, measure success by their crop in terms of yield per acre and price per pound. But if you ask them how much it costs to produce the crop, I doubt that one in 10 could come within 20 percent of the true cost of production."

The NCSU extension specialist believes one of the surest routes to greater net profits is through better business management.

"Flue-cured and burley growers traditionally have been extremely production oriented, and they have become some of the best growers of tobacco in the world," Hawks believes. "Now, I think one of their greatest needs is to improve their bookkeeping skills and become as skilled at managing a tobacco enterprise as they are at growing the crop."

Hawks pointed out that spending decisions probably have become just as important as deciding what variety to grow, when to cultivate, how much fertilizer to apply or how to handle any of the other essential production chores. Each winter large numbers of growers wrestle with the decision of whether or not to lease additional acreage and, if so, how many acres and at what price.

"These kinds of decisions are very important for the grower," the specialist said. "Adding acreage may or may not increase the grower's profit, and unless he knows how much it will cost in terms of additional labor and more equipment, there is no way for him to determine whether he'll be better off leasing or not leasing more acreage."

Another general area where tobacco growers may be cheating themselves by their failure to keep accurate cost records is what Hawks calls the "five and 10-dollar" items.

"Tobacco being the high income crop that it is, many growers spend $5 here and $10 there without giving it much thought," Hawks observed. "Spending $10 per acre for fertilizer that isn't needed is an example of how these kinds of small item costs can mount up to sizeable deductions from net profit potential."

Growing small acreages of supplemental crops on tobacco farms represents another area where better management is needed. Hawks suggested that some of these enterprises may not be paying their own way and possibly even reducing total net farm income on many tobacco farms.

He concluded, "It is a matter of paying more attention to costs, and farmers being honest with themselves in figuring all costs." It would be good for our Tarheel tobacco economy if growers would become as proud of how little they have to spend to grow a pound of tobacco as they are of how much a pound brings at the market or how many pounds they produced on an acre.

Time To Think Of Lawn Cover

With the up coming cool seasons homeowners should not only be thinking about extra cover for one's bed but renovating the ground cover of his lawn also. According to M. Ed Yancey, County Extension Chairman, now is the time to either establish or renovate your lawn to cool season grasses. (Kentucky 31 Fescue, Kentucky Bluegrass, etc.). Yancey says the main factors one should consider in lawn preparation is lime and fertilizer applications. This point can not be over stressed, he said. High acidity or low pH has been the downfall of many lawns that otherwise would have been successful. Fertilizer applications without knowledge or correction of low pH levels will only complicate the problem.

Greenville or vocational agriculture instructors and fertilizer dealers within the county. The instructions on the boxes and information sheets are self-explanatory. It is very important to let each sample represent a uniform area. Low areas of the lawn, eroded spots on slopes and other distinct areas should be sampled separately. For new lawns sample to six inches, the depth lime would be incorporated if needed. Established lawns three inches will be sufficient to sample.

The Pitt County Extension office urged everyone to sample early and correctly so as to obtain the greatest possible benefit from lime and fertilizer that might be needed.

The International Youth Federation, which held its conference at Kyrkhult, near Boras, censured Dior for endangering several species of furred animals in this manner.

The conference also decided to open a worldwide campaign against the waste of natural resources.

BUSY?

You Bet He Is!

SUMMER'S OVER. Your newspaper carrier is back in school again. This year he's got a lot of new subjects. His homework is harder. He's in some new activities and is developing some new interests.

BECAUSE HE'S BUSY he doesn't have much time to spare. He's on a tight schedule so he makes his delivery fast. He also tries to schedule his collections. This can be his most difficult problem. It's tough on him when he must "come back" again and again to some homes to collect for the newspaper.

YOU CAN HELP this busy young man, and help us keep him interested in doing a good job by having your money ready the FIRST time he comes to collect.

HE THANKS YOU... and so do we.

Office Building's Plan Authorized By Commission

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
Plan approval for an office building at the corner of Fourth and Cotanche Streets, with Bank North Carolina as the primary tenant, was authorized last night by the Redevelopment Commission.

Commissioners, reconvening for a late business session after adjourning earlier with agenda items cleared, heard a presentation by Jack Stoughton detailing construction details for the office building.

Stoughton told commissioners at the building, proposed for construction on the northeast corner of Fourth and Cotanche, would offer in the neighborhood 3,000 square feet of net usable space. Construction plans include necessary parking facilities and setback requirements.

He indicated that he would maintain offices on the second floor of the building but Bank of North Carolina would be the major tenant. Stoughton, who appeared before the commission several months ago with preliminary plans for an office building, said that he would be ready to begin construction of the building following final commission approval.

The plans were approved last night, subject to staff study and review. Executive director Joe Laney said that the staff review would be completed today and the go-ahead for construction would be cleared.

Earlier in the regular business session, commissioners gave their approval to plans for an office building proposed for construction on the southeast corner of First and Evans Streets by Pitt-Greene Production Credit Association. J. B. Smith, Realtor, representing Production Credit, and architect George Shoe reported that the building will have principal accession First Street and will face Evans. The structure will have some 3,700 square feet with 2,900 square feet of that as net usable space. Designed with traditional accents, the one-story building will be of masonry construction, and conform to all codes of the fire district, they reported. In addition, offstreet parking requirements will be more than fulfilled with the inclusion of 26 spaces.

Shoe said that the building will be built, following commission approval, as soon as "it can be put on the market."

In other business, authorization was given for Laney to negotiate a contract with the appraisal firm of O. Germany for fixture appraisal services in the Central Business District area.

The appraisals, it was explained, will be made on 15 parcels prior to acquisition proposals and will legally designate what items on a parcel are movable or immovable.

Laney said that the question of what should be removed from a structure has arisen several times in the past following a purchase and the fixture appraisals will give the owner suitable compensation for immovable items left on the parcels.

By designating what can be moved and what can not, Laney continued, the owner will receive compensation for objects he leaves or if he decides to remove something that is considered part of the real estate, the value of the object will be deducted from the purchase price.

Authorization was also given for Laney to enter into a contract with Francis Scott Key of Atlanta, a market analyst, for rehabilitation feasibility studies on five "typical" structures in the N. C. R-134 Southside Project.

Key, it was pointed out, will make an appraisal on each structure as it now stand. Then an estimate will be made of what it will cost to rehabilitate the structure and Key will make another appraisal of what the structure would be worth following rehabilitation.

Laney said that the appraisals will indicate whether it will be feasible to undertake the rehabilitation of each structure and offer an idea of whether the structure will be worth enough following the effort to justify the cost of improvements.

Bar Reimbursing

WASHINGTON (AP) — On an 8-1 vote the Supreme Court ruled unconstitutional today an Ohio law providing tuition reimbursement to parents of private and parochial school students.

With Justice Byron R. White dissenting, the court affirmed the decision of a federal panel in Ohio invalidating the state law. White said a hearing should have been held by the high court.

The justices did not give their reasons for ruling against the state.

Last year, again with only White dissenting, the court declared unconstitutional a variety of state programs that reimbursed Roman Catholic and other church-related schools for instruction in nonreligious subjects.

In that decision the court held direct financial aid to parochial schools involved "excessive entanglement between government and religion."

Ohio officials had attempted to save the 1971 law by appealing to the Supreme Court. It provided for $90 payments to a child per year.

Campaigns For Insurance Post

Michael T. Murphy of Charlotte has been campaigning here for the insurance commissioner's office.

The 27-year-old Murphy says he is a candidate because of his strong feelings of the injustices of the present insurance situation.

"The insurance situation in this state is intolerable," he said. "You pay unreasonable premiums. You file a claim — you get hedging, defiance, the run-around, or court action with odds stacked overwhelmingly against you."

He promises, if elected, to work to abolish risk; to modify no-fault; to institute equal rates for drivers with equal driving records regardless of age, sex, marital status, location, or type of car; to provide larger discounts for safe drivers, and to require a two-week deadline for insurance companies to settle claims or litigate. He calls for the reduction of all insurance rates and for fair treatment of people by insurance companies, thereby reducing the necessity for attorneys and adjusters in settlements.

He cites a government survey which indicates that attorneys derive 25 per cent of their income from insurance settlements. Of the $6.6 billion motorists pay in bodily injury premiums, only $2.8 billion is returned in benefits. The rest — $3.8 billion — is eaten up by overhead, lawyers' fees, and insurance agencies' commission, he says.

Saying he receives no contributions from any business or special interest group, he contends he is the only candidate for the Commissioner's office who is not connected with the insurance industry. He is a member of the American Independent Party.

M. T. MURPHY

Major Item

A new round of discussions on the proposed and later cancelled referendum for an additional property tax to finance recreational facilities will be the major item on the agenda for the Recreation Commission this week.

At the monthly meeting to be held Wednesday night at 8:00 p.m., members of the commission will enter into discussions on the subject. Planning for a new proposal has been delegated back to the Recreation Commission following cancellation of the referendum by the City Council on September 25 of the referendum originally scheduled for October 17.

At the September meeting, the mayor and three members of the City Council voted approval of the cancellation and turning the issue back to the Recreation Commission for re-study and a new proposal.

A second agenda item will be a discussion on a name for the Police Club located at the site of the old Eppes Gymnasium.

Kissinger, Schumann Confer Secret Talks In 3rd Day

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger went into an unprecedented third day of talks with the North Vietnamese in Paris today, then took time out to call on the French foreign minister, Maurice Schumann.

The presidential adviser on national security affairs went to the foreign minister with Arthur K. Watson, the U.S. ambassador to France.

Reports in Paris said Kissinger is believed to have discussed Vietnam with Schumann.

Kissinger conferred with the North Vietnamese envoys to the Paris peace talks Sunday and Monday and decided to stay over for a third day to continue the meetings.

A Saigon newspaper, with links to President Nguyen Van Thieu's chief adviser, said there had been no major change in the U.S. and South Vietnamese positions in the secret Paris negotiations.

The Tin Song daily declared: "It is not true at all what some newspaper dispatches are saying, that the secret talks in Paris are discussing the political future of South Vietnam. The reports are aimed at dividing the United States and its allies in Indochina."

Tin Song said there were no changes in the allied peace proposal calling for withdrawal of U.S. forces within four months after a cease-fire and the release of all American prisoners of war, and a presidential election within six months of an agreement. Thieu would resign a month before the election.

U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker met for 45 minutes with Thieu in Saigon but the substance of the talks was kept secret. Tin Song, financed by presidential adviser Hoang Nha, said Thieu was being kept informed on the Paris talks.

Referring to the decision to extend the talks, White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Monday: "Apparently they have something to talk about."

Ziegler said the United States and North Vietnam had agreed not to discuss the substance of negotiations. But diplomatic observers read the extension as evidence that, if nothing else, Kissinger and the North Vietnamese have increased the pace of negotiations.

A flurry of reports in recent days that peace might be near has been dismissed by the White House and the North Vietnamese as speculation.

Kissinger is expected to return to Washington tonight, at about the same time that Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern goes on television to outline his plan for ending the war.

The extended Kissinger trip to Paris—his 19th over a three-year period—and Bunker's session with Thieu raised still more speculation.

Last Thursday, while Nixon was telling newsmen that the peace talks had reached a sensitive stage, the chief Viet Cong delegate to the Paris talks was saying that the two sides "remain very far apart on political and military questions."

The latest proposal for discussion at the Paris peace talks, which resume Thursday, was made by the Viet Cong. It calls for the Thieu government to resign in favor of a tripartite regime composed of representatives of Viet Cong forces, neutrals and the Saigon administration, minus personnel connected with Thieu.

The United States said such a plan would lead to "prolonged warfare and communist dictatorship by the North."

The Viet Cong also demands total U.S. withdrawal, a halt to bombing and mining of the North, and renunciation of support for Thieu.

McGovern To Reveal Plan

By CARL P. LEURSDORF
AP Political Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Sen. George McGovern outlines his step-by-step plan to end the Vietnam war tonight after declaring that rumors of an impending peace settlement are "just election-eve talk" fostered by the Nixon administration.

McGovern said in advance of his speech, which aides consider one of the most crucial of his uphill presidential campaign, that the war remains "the clearest and sharpest of all the issues between Richard Nixon and George McGovern on Nov. 7."

The half-hour program, taped Sunday, will be shown on the CBS network plus other stations at 7:30 p.m. (6:30 p.m. in the Central Time Zone only).

McGovern predicted in a speech Monday night to a $50-a-plate dinner in the Detroit suburb of Southfield that anyone who watches the telecast "will vote for the Democratic candidate for president on Nov. 7."

At the time it is shown, McGovern will be in Chicago for a speech to a $15-a-plate "people's dinner" planned for more than 7,000.

He scheduled speeches earlier in the day to a United Auto Workers rally in Detroit and another rally at Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo.

Although the specifics of McGovern's speech are being kept secret until just before air time, the Democratic nominee has indicated some of the points he will make.

He continued to dismiss the likelihood of an early Vietnam settlement while talking with reporters during an appearance at New York's Columbus Day parade, which drew cheers from his supporters and jeers from top Republican leaders.

"I hope they're true," he told a reporter who asked the candidate about the peace rumors during a pause in the parade. "But frankly I'm afraid it's just election-eve talk."

A statement issued by McGovern aides said that statistics about costs, casualties and extent of bombing show "that the war is not winding down," and listed a series of optimistic predictions from administration spokesmen which it said "reveal four years of bogus hopes."

"They are especially useful in providing a realistic context to view the current administration-initiated speculation about a breakthrough in Paris," the background sheet added.

McGovern spoke to what some Michigan Democrats said was their largest fund-raising dinner in history.

He told his audience that Monday was the fourth anniversary of Nixon's 1968 campaign statement that "those who have had a chance for four years and could not produce peace should not be given another chance."

Long Sentence For 17-Year-Old

CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — A 17-year-old Concord youth has been sentenced to 25 to 30 years in prison in the mutilation-slaying of Robert Wade, 49, in the girls' restroom of an abandoned Concord school last July 4.

The youth, Marcellus Stinson Jr., pleaded guilty Monday to second-degree murder.

Move Fails

WASHINGTON (AP) — A first move to cut off Senate debate on a House-passed antibusing bill failed today to win the necessary two-thirds majority.

The vote was 45 for and 37 against, or 10 short of the required margin.

Supporters of the bill had said they did not expect to prevail on this initial test of strength in the battle over sharply restricting busing for school desegregation.

Spending Limit Argued

WASHINGTON (AP) — A historic confrontation between President Nixon and Congress over control of the federal purse is shaping up in the debate on the $250-billion spending limit Nixon seeks.

The President personally led what a White House spokesman called an intensive weekend lobbying effort to win the initial House vote, scheduled late today, in a spending-limit fight that could delay the adjournment of Congress.

Nixon promised in a nationwide political radio broadcast Saturday that his "spending ceiling would be absolute insurance that no new taxes will be required."

He did not put that particular statement in a time reference, though at another point in the speech, he said, "My goal is not only no tax increase in 1973, but no tax increase in the next four years."

The spending ceiling Nixon has proposed would apply only to the present fiscal year which began last July 1.

House Speaker Carl Albert said it would be "the biggest mistake of this century" for Congress to approve Nixon's proposal to give him unrestricted authority to decide which federal programs to cut to meet the $250-billion limit.

House leaders support an alternative that would authorize the President to recommend program cuts for a $250-billion limit but leave the final decision on whether to approve them to Congress.

"This is the biggest assault a president has ever made in peacetime on the legislative authority of the Congress of the United States," Albert said.

The cuts would trim the $256 million already approved by Congress. Other appropriations measures for the current year are pending.

But Nixon's advisers argued during congressional hearings that Congress failed in past efforts to limit spending because its 535 members cannot agree on which programs to cut.

The President also personally urged congressional leaders at a regular meeting last week to accept his proposal, the White House aide told newsmen Monday.

Hamlets Remain In Red Control

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces held on to a string of hamlets 14 to 22 miles north of Saigon today, and the South Vietnamese command acknowledged that its troops were making no effort to drive them out.

In the air war, U.S. fighter-bombers hit North Vietnam with more than 300 strikes Monday for the fifth successive day. The U.S. Command said more than 330 strikes were flown.

The targets included the MIG base at Yen Bai, 80 miles northwest of Hanoi, where Air Force pilots reported several explosions, and the Thai Binh army barracks 37 miles southwest of Haiphong, where Navy pilots reported destroying 16 buildings.

Nearly 100 U.S. B52s attacked targets around the North Vietnamese port of Dong Hoi, 45 miles north of the demilitarized zone, and around the South Vietnamese cities of Saigon, Kontum, Quang Ngai, Da Nang, Hue and Quang Tri.

The U.S. Command said their targets were supply caches, troop positions and staging areas.

Associated Press correspondent Holger Jensen reported from the front north of Saigon that in five days Communist forces have occupied at least seven hamlets and one village.

Tau chapter of Phi Sigma Pi honor fraternity at East Carolina University has been selected most outstanding chapter in the nation for the sixth consecutive year.

Selection of the ECU chapter was made at the fraternity's annual convention in Washington, D. C. last weekend, at which ECU was represented by Dr. Richard C. Todd, faculty Chapters represented came to the capital from as far away as Maine, Illinois and the Dakotas.

Selection as most outstanding chapter was the seventh such distinction awarded the ECU chapter in eight years.

Phi Sigma Pi is the oldest active fraternal organization on the ECU campus. Chapter activities include annual fund-raising for the Richard and Claudia Todd Scholarship, annual awards to the most outstanding male and female ECU seniors, a Christmas party for local underprivileged children and presentation of an outstanding alumnus award.

Its three fold goal is the promotion of scholarship, leadership and fellowship among its members.

Diet Pills Said To Have Clinically Trivial Value

By JOHN STOWELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government-hired panel of consultants has concluded that diet pills are of "clinically trivial" value in weight loss and, with one exception, should be tightly controlled.

The recommendation, if accepted by regulatory agencies, would permanently crimp the profitable, multimillion-dollar antifat business by prohibiting refillable prescriptions and imposing manufacturing quotas.

After reviewing mountains of effectiveness data sorted in a pioneering computer project, the consultants said diet pills in general cause the loss of only a fraction of a pound per week in short-term use. The total impact of drug-induced weight loss over that of diet alone "must be considered clinically trivial," they said, especially in light of the high potential for abuse of the diet drugs.

The group of four physicians and two statisticians was headed by Dr. Thaddeus E. Prout, associate professor of medicine at Johns Hopkins University and a former member of the Food and Drug Administration's advisory committee on metabolic and endocrine drugs.

The FDA is undertaking an extensive review of all diet drugs in preparation for recommendations to the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs.

The lone exception to the panel's findings was fenfluramine, patented as Pondimin by A.H. Robbins Co. of Richmond, Va. Clinical trials have shown fenfluramine to be significantly effective in weight controls but with an apparent absence of the stimulant side-effects which make other diet pills popular among youths, truck drivers, athletes and other persons seeking a boost.

FDA officials are concerned, however, that the panel's recommendations would give the Robbins firm a virtual monopoly on the market for appetite-curbing pills. The drug is not yet approved for weight control.

"Everybody would like to treat them all equally," said Dr. Barrett Scoville, deputy director of FDA's division of neuropharmacological drug products. "But we are scientists and there are some facts we can't ignore."

Ginzburg Is Offering Course Being Freed In Modern Math

LEWISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Ralph Ginzburg, publisher of a magazine which claimed to be "the American heritage of the bedroom," was scheduled to be released from a federal prison farm today after serving eight months for a pornography conviction.

The 43-year-old New York publisher will be on parole for the remainder of his three-year sentence for sending obscene material through the mail.

The conviction in 1963 stemmed from the fourth and final editions of Eros, a $10 volume which carried the "American heritage" credit on its cover. The edition featured a photo essay of a nude black man and white woman together.

Ginzburg had treid and failed to get mailing privileges from the post office at Intercourse, Pa., in Lancaster County.

In hearing his appeal in 1968, the Supreme Court said Ginzburg's attempt to use that particular post office indicated he was "pandering to the widespread weakness for titillation by pornography."

Although his appeal was denied in a 5-4 decision, Ginzburg's original five-year sentence was reduced.

The initial trial was held in district court in Philadelphia in 1963. The judge, Ralph C. Bode, said Ginzburg could have been sentenced to 140 years if found guilty on 28 counts.

PTA Meeting To Be On Thursday

The South Greenville School PTA will have its first meeting of the school year on Thursday at 8:00 p.m. in the school auditorium.

Following the business meeting, parents will have an opportunity to visit their child's homeroom and from there follow his school day schedule. This will provide parents with a chance to meet teachers, see displays and school facilities and become acquainted with their child's school materials.

All parents are urged to attend this meeting.

Hold Soldier Sen. Proxmire Claims In Wounding Assassination Threats Of Deputy

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C. (AP) — A 27-year-old Ft. Bragg soldier has been charged with secret assault — ambush — in the shooting and wounding of a Cumberland County deputy sheriff.

Authorities said Pfc. Thomas Curie of Fayetteville, a paratrooper, was held on $15,000 bond at the county jail after the shooting Monday night.

He is accused of shooting Sgt. Frank Goggio, who was treated for superficial pellet wounds in the head and released from a hospital.

Authorities said Goggio had gone to a home in a residential subdivision south of Fayetteville to investigate a report that a man being sought was there.

Goggio said some children in the neighborhood alerted him that a man with a gun was in one of the houses.

Goggio said one of the children shouted, "There he is. He has a gun." The man then fired at the deputy and the deputy fired back three times as the man retreated into a house.

A number of deputies arrived at the house soon afterwards and surrounded it. They used tear gas to flush the man out, who then was arrested without resistance, authorities said.

Authorities said the shooting climaxed an incident in which there was a disturbance in downtown Fayetteville and a chase involving several hit-and-run accidents.

Deputies said they recovered a .16 gauge shotgun in the house where the assault took refuge. There were no other injuries reported.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire says he was threatened with assassination during the debate on the controversial Lockheed loan guarantee and changed the route of his morning jog to work to avoid "an easy sniper pickoff."

Proxmire, the Senate's most famous jogger, made the disclosure in a new book in which he criticizes alleged military and domestic federal waste and calls for an end to most secret hearings in Congress and the executive branch.

The Wisconsin Democrat had opposed the Nixon administration's ultimately successful bill to provide a $250 million loan guarantee to the Lockheed Aircraft Corp., the nation's largest defense contractor.

In his book, entitled "Uncle Sam, Last of the Bigtime Spenders," Proxmire said threats to his life ultimately proved groundless but were taken seriously at the time because of the heat aroused by congressional debate.

He gives this account:

"There were even threats on my life and that of Henry Durham, a brave and courageous Lockheed employee who had bucked the company's wasteful practices.

"We got the FBI to protect Durham around the clock and I had the FBI and the Secret Service check out in detail the threats I received.

"One of them, a threat to come to Washington to kill me, played in Georgia before a group was made by a Lockheed employee and his coworkers.

HER OWN SPEECH — Mrs. Eleanor McGovern calls for election of the Democratic ticket to end the war and "retrieve our soul" in a speech Monday in Hayward, Calif. to a student audience at Chabot Community College. She said she spoke on the anniversary (note button) of the day four years ago that then presidential candidate Richard Nixon declared; "Those who have had a chance for four years and could not produce peace do not deserve another chance." Doctor Developes Home Treatment that RINSES AWAY BLACKHEADS HELPS DRY UP ACNE-PIMPLES In 15 Minutes or Your Money Back!

Queen Helene Mint Julep Masque 15 Minute Treatment Must Show Immediate Improvement or — YOUR MONEY BACK!

A New York Doctor, working with a cosmetic laboratory, has developed a simple home-treatment that rinses away blackheads in a matter of minutes. It was demonstrated recently on five teen-age girls and three boys.

The results were breath-taking. Blackheads really rinsed away. In fact, many could be seen on the cloth used to wash off the Masque. But this wasn't all! Acne-pimples improved after one application, enlarged pores reduced, and rough complexion became cleaner, clearer and smoother looking. These results certainly indicate why teen-agers are now saying "this is one product that really works"... and why mothers of teen-agers have endorsed its use.

The Masque-Cream Treatment is indeed a remarkable discovery, not only for clear healthy skins, but also for the self-confidence, poise and self-esteem a fine complexion brings to teen-agers!

Anyone Can Use It

If you suffer the agony of teen-age blackheads, acne-pimples and rough unsightly complexions, give yourself this home treatment at our risk. Apply this delightfully Mint-Scented Cream and within 2 or 3 minutes an absorbing agent, called Argilla, dries and turns this cream into a plastic-like masque. You will now feel as though hundreds of "tiny fingers" were softly kneading the skin, loosening pore-caked dirt, blackheads and foreign impurities.

As it firms and hardens, its suction-action draws out waste matter from the pores... In 15 minutes you simply rinse the masque away with lukewarm water which dissolves it immediately. When you wipe your face, you can see that blackheads and other pore "filler" actually come off on your towel. And your skin feels clean... really clean... refreshed, smooth like velvet!

Start Now Improve Your Complexion

Don't take a back seat or be a wall-flower because of bad skin. If you want to get your full share of fun and parties... clear up your complexion and let Mint Julep Masque "Lead the Way"! You certainly owe it to yourself to try a single fifteen minute home treatment to convince yourself that this new Queen Helene masque-cream can work wonders for you.

Novelist Says: Best Sellers Began At 40

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — When Marilyn Durham decided to learn to paint she started right in doing portraits. When she decided to learn to sew she went out and got five yards of wool and a pattern and made a coat. And when she decided—at the age of 40—to write, she sat down at her typewriter and in two months turned out a novel, "The Man Who Loved Cat Dancing."

"If I'm going to do something I want to try to do it right and I don't want to start with little baby stuff," declared the Indiana housewife-turned-author as she lounged shoeless on the bed of her Manhattan hotel room.

Feet tucked under her and smoking one cigarette after another, she recalled the day a year ago when she was ironing shirts in her Evansville home. She still held the starch spray can in her hand as she went to answer the telephone.

"It was my agent calling from New York to say that the book had been sold," she remembers. "It took a while to get through to me. I hung up the phone and just stood there. Then I picked up a cigarette and put it in my mouth and tried to light it with the spray starch."

She had been sending the manuscript to one publisher after another for more than a year, meanwhile starting on another book "to keep from going crazy" while she waited. This second novel, "Dutch Uncle," will be published in 1973.

She admits she probably would have gone on sending "The Man Who Loved Cat Dancing" to every publisher in the business. "I didn't think it was great but I did think it was a story with action, love, a beginning and a middle and an end, and someone ought to buy it—I've read worse." After that the breaks came fast. The movie rights have been sold, the book has been chosen as an alternate Book-of-the-Month Club selection, paperback reprint and foreign rights have been sold and it has received critical acclaim.

"But by far the most exciting moment for me was opening the box of books and seeing 10 copies with my name on them," says Mrs. Durham, a soft-spoken woman who talks matter-of-factly about her first trip to New York, her television appearances and her new status as a celebrity.

So far, she says life hasn't changed much for the family, which includes husband Kilburn, Social Security Department field representative, and daughters Elaine, 17, and Jennifer, 14.

"Jennifer did get a horse out of it," her mother reports, "and I suppose eventually our life will change. I hate to cook and wash dishes and bake pies and wash and iron but I'm just not on to how to give the job to someone else yet. We are buying a larger house though—11 rooms—and we'll finally have an extra room for me to write in."

Up until now her writing room has been the bedroom, where she works regularly starting at 8:30 a.m. after the kids are in school and her husband at work. "I type until lunchtime, get up and run through the house, have lunch and sit down for another couple of hours, then get out whatever we're going to have for dinner and make a pass at a shirt with an iron."

Mrs. Durham explains of her decision to write a book, "The fact that I was going to be 40 pretty soon had really been bothering me. At 15 I gave myself until I was 23 to become an actress. In my 20s I gave myself a few years to do other things like learn to swim and ride a horse, but I never did any of them. I realized that when I was 50 I'd still be day-dreaming that next year I was going to do something."

Having made up her mind to write, she "cold-bloodedly began examining all the possibilities." She arrived at "Cat," as she fondly refers to her story set in Wyoming Territory in the 1800s, more or less through the process of elimination.

"I wanted to write an adventure story because I like to read them," she relates. "But I couldn't write a spy story because I didn't know enough about espionage. I hate murder mysteries, so that was out. I thought about a Gothic romance but I made a plot outline and it seemed utterly boring because I knew how it comes out."

"Then I made notes for a historical novel. I had a lot of facts but couldn't seem to get a story that came to anything. It couldn't be a contemporary chase novel because I know nothing about modern devices for chasing people. So I set the story back in time and that put the hero on a horse and suddenly I had a western."

Doing research, she came upon the state guidebooks written during the Works Progress Administration era of the 30s. "The one on Wyoming was the most detailed and exactly what I needed, so that state became the setting," she explains.

Once she gets in her new house Mrs. Durham plans to "shut myself up in one of the extra rooms, look through all the false starts I've made and see if they seem like they might go somewhere. If not I'll think up something else."

Swiss Apartment Hunters Stymied By Wohnungsnot

By LYN SHEPARD
BERNE, Switzerland (WNS) — "Wohnungsnot!" "Crise de logements!" "Miseria delle abitazioni!" Buy a newspaper at any Swiss kiosk and banner headlines will probably scream the same message at you, whatever the language.

Because no matter how you say it, the news is the same: a grave emergency for renters in cities here and throughout Europe.

In fact, the housing crisis in the Old World dates back to the end of World War II; the only "new" factor is inflation in rents. But cost has now combined with scarcity to make a bad situation desperate.

Tenants in the United States and Canada, by comparison, still enjoy a renter's paradise. Despite often justified American complaints against landlords, the housing is at least there to be leased.

But Europeans, except for the very rich, may search for months before finding family quarters they can afford. A few lucky ones will move in. The majority will fill space only on some really agent's waiting list.

No Place To Go
Switzerland is the classic example.

Basel, the great Rhine chemical center, reported recently that only 37 of its 88,000 apartments (9.4 per cent) were vacant. In Zurich the squeeze is even tighter: 17 empty units out of 161,500 — a 0.01 per cent rate. Lucerne also reports 0.01 per cent vacancy: two (that's all — two) empty flats.

So it is in all major Swiss cities. The five largest (Zurich, Basel, Geneva, Berne, and Lausanne) averaged 0.07 per cent vacancy last December.

The result: a scramble of apartment seekers sometimes quite literally expressed in life-and-death terms. No sooner has an obituary appeared in these cities than survivors are deluged with inquiries about the deceased person's apartment. The imbalance between apartment supply and demand is so great that even landlords see their monopoly as a mixed blessing.

Basel landlord Emil Tschudin, for example, tells of advertising a modest family flat and receiving 300 letters of inquiry overnight. Only one applicant could be chosen. And the unhappy Herr Tschudin had to spend $15 in postage alone to mail "so sorry" notices to the rest.

Today most realty agents inform the losers by printing a "so sorry" notice in the local newspaper.

But the Swiss, like most Europeans, are used to waiting. Their housing scarcity dates back to 1946 when the vacancy rate in the big cities first dipped below 1 per cent. Since 1956, in fact, this rate has hovered between 0.16 per cent and 0.04 per cent.

Costs
Yet even the long-suffering Swiss are grumbling openly today about the rising cost of new apartments. For, as a rule, the new semi-luxury units replace older middle-class housing.

Hardest hit by this trend are retired couples, students, and apprentices. In some cases, protest movements have formed to expose speculators and check the rising cost of renting.

In French-speaking Switzerland, for example, the Mouvement Populaire des Familles claims a membership of more than 20,000 tenants. It serves as a more effective political lobby than its counterpart in German-speaking Switzerland.

At the same time the left-wing apprentice group Hydra bombards the housing industry with complaints from its quarters in Basel, Zurich, Vienna, and Aachen.

So far, though, these pressure groups have been powerless to reverse the inflationary trend — in Switzerland or elsewhere in Europe.

The Swiss figures are especially startling. Government statistics based on 1939 to the present show rents holding stable until recent years. Then chaos.

The 1939 rate (100) had risen only to 108 by 1950, and by 1960 it was still manageable at 147. Then the curve starts to steepen: 1965 - 187; 1968 - 240; 1970 - 270. Last year was 293. Early this year it passed 300 and has been going up and up and up.

U.S. Has It Easy

United Nations data compiled in Geneva allows a comparison of rental increases in European countries and in the United States. By this standard Americans have little to gripe about.

These figures use 1963 as a base year with a value of 100. While the cost of living in the United States climbed to 127 by 1970, this scale shows rents rising only to 116 that year.

Again using Switzerland for contrast, the cost of living rose to 119 in 1970. But the rental rate soared to 162.

Nor is the picture much different in other European countries. The 1970 rental figures are 167 in Sweden, 154 in Austria, 176 in France, 155 in West Germany, 139 in Italy, and 155 in Spain.

Only in Spain, where rents still remain fairly low, have overall cost-of-living figures kept pace. Elsewhere rents not only lead living costs but appear to be the main factor in forcing them upward.

Curiously the most staggering rental spiral is seen in socialist Yugoslavia. Here rents rose from 100 in 1963 to a phenomenal 331 in 1970 — thanks largely to the bargain rents before tourists "discovered" summer resorts on the Adriatic Sea.

On the other hand, socialist Hungary took effective steps to control rents and the cost of living. The U.N. index shows these combined costs crept up to a mere 107 count by 1970 — the lowest rate in Europe.

Next time you fuss and fume over the monthly rates listed in your newspaper's Apartments for Rent ads, think of Switzerland — where there are none.

French Have Own Martha Mitchell

PARIS (WNS) — Gilberte Messmer, wife of Premier Pierre Messmer, keeps adding to her reputation as the Martha Mitchell of France. At the Hotel Matignon, the Premier's residence, she has been criticizing the modern decor, which was supervised by the son of former Premier Jacques Chaban-Delmas. At a banquet she pointed to the dining-room chandelier and asked, "Don't you find that it looks like a hair-drier? At a garden party she confessed that she was wearing a Chanel suit, then explained: "My husband gives me only pocket money, so I'm paying for the suit by installments. Pierre won't let me accept gifts from courtiers." Mme. Messmer is noted for serving excellent meals at the Matignon and for even keeping an eye on the attire of the waiters and maitre d'hotel. But she herself never cooks in the French premier's residence because "my specialties are Italian, not French."

Who Should Make First Phone Call?

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I am 31, single and female. I recently moved to this large city where I know practically no one. Grace, a college friend, called me long distance and gave me the number of an eligible gentleman who lives here. He's a friend of Grace's husband and is supposed to be super special.

They said they had already called the gentleman and told him to expect a call from me.

Question: Is it proper (and wise) for me to call him? Altho I am not very well acquainted here I don't want him to think I am desperate for a man and am chasing him.

I wish I had thought to tell Grace to give the gentleman MY number and have him call ME. Should I call Grace back and ask her to do that? I don't want to appear ungrateful, but I'm not accustomed to calling men. What should I do?

ON THE FENCE

DEAR ON: Since the arrangements have already been made, call the gentleman, and don't make a federal case out of it. And the next time a similar situation arises, ask the go-between to please have the gentleman call YOU.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a man who is 54 years old, weighs 240 pounds, has a belly that looks like a pregnant woman ready to deliver, and walks around the house naked as a newborn baby?

I think it's revolting! I don't mind that he sleeps in the nude, but walking around the house without a stitch is really too much! Yes, I know we have had a hot summer, but if I can stand it, he can stand it, and we do have fans in every room.

A woman once complained to you because her husband came to the table bare from the waist up. Well she doesn't know how lucky she is!

Print this in your column, Abby. Maybe "El Lardo" will get the hint.

DEAR TURNED: A hint won't help. Hand "El Lardo" a pair of shorts and tell him to put 'em on!

DEAR ABBY: I am 14 years old and receive an allowance each week for "spending money," as I cannot work yet.

I have saved up enough money to buy a record player. It is a small model with two speakers, and costs $39.95. Before I can buy anything with my own money I have to get permission from my parents. When I asked about the record player, my mother consented, but my father did not, because we already have two record players in the house. One is in the living room and I have to get permission from my parents to use it. Most of the time they say no. The other one belongs to my older sister and I was told not to touch it, so I don't.

Abby, do you see any reason why I shouldn't be able to purchase a record player with my own money for my own personal use?

DEAR STEREOLESS: Two questions: How are your grades? Are you taking music lessons? If your grades are above average, after you've finished your homework, (and if you're taking music lessons, after you've practiced) you should be allowed to listen to stereo music to your heart's content. And since you've saved your spending money, I see no reason why you shouldn't be permitted to buy your own stereo.

DEAR ABBY: Just read that a husband was granted a divorce because his wife hadn't taken a bath for three years.

I would like to exchange with him. My wife hasn't stopped talking and complaining for thirty years. I figure I could stand the smell a lot better than I can stand the noise. Sign me, POTATOES LYONNAISE — Sweet Spanish onions are combined with sliced potatoes to make this French specialty.

French Potato-Onion Dish

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

Associated Press Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: I've looked for a recipe for Potatoes Lyonnaise that gives detailed directions but haven't found one. Can you help me out?—TEXAS COOK.

DEAR TEXAS COOK: Yes. Recipes for Potatoes Lyonnaise, the French dish, are inclined to be a little vague. But here is one that gives every detail. It is authentic, too, because it is made according to one of the two methods outlined in Larousse Gastronomique, the famous French culinary encyclopedia.—C.B.

POTATOES LYONNAISE
2 pounds (6 medium) potatoes
Boiling water
½ cup butter
1½ cups thin strips sweet Spanish onion
1 teaspoon salt
¼ to ½ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons minced parsley
Scrub potatoes with cold water; place in a saucepan; cover with boiling water. Boil, covered, until just tender when pierced with a fork—30 to 40 minutes. Cool, peel and slice about ¼-inch thick.

In a 10- to 12-inch skillet melt ¼ cup of the butter; add the potatoes; over moderate heat cook, turning with a wide spatula as necessary, until golden brown. Remove potatoes and keep hot in a warm oven.

Melt remaining ¼ cup butter in skillet; add onion and cook over moderately low heat, stirring often, until golden.

Return potatoes to skillet. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and mix well. Let stand over low heat if necessary to hold or heat through until very hot. Turn into serving dish and sprinkle with parsley. Serve at once.

Makes 6 servings.

Women's Lid Hits Crime Racket

BRIGHTON, England (WNS)

— Security expert Peter Hamilton warned private detectives at the Council of International Investigators' convention here that women are gunning for the top jobs in crime and can be more ruthless in the rackets than men. "We can no longer assume that women are the gentler or weaker sex," he warned. "Just as women's lib has become a political force, so too are ladies playing a bigger part in muggings and violent gang activities." Hamilton called upon courts to end their bias and hand out heavier sentences to feminine criminals.

An 'Invitation' To Aggressors

Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern seems to want to lead voters down a primrose path insofar as national defense is concerned.

It makes no sense to us to hear the senator proclaim that he would maintain a force adequate to "defend our own land and to fill our vital defense commitments", while at the same time he would cut defense spending by $32 billion.

In a recent major address, Sen. McGovern said he would move from a base of influence that "does not convey to the world a kind of an obsession with military power, as though the only test of internationalism is the number of forces we have stationed in other people's back yards."

Sen. McGovern's military policies seem incongruous to us. How he expects to maintain our commitments to our allies—including Israel—and make wholesale cuts in military spending is most unclear. On top of this, the nation is facing an era when it will be maintaining an all-volunteer army which could prove enormously expensive.

Almost everyone recognizes that there is waste in the military. The proper approach for any candidate, it seems to us, would be a pledge to ferret out and eliminate this waste. This would be much preferable to a wholesale budget cut which would obviously leave us weakened in the face of potential enemies who are armed to the teeth.

Sen. McGovern's military spending plans appear unrealistic. We believe another world war has been averted in the past quarter century because the United States has remained strong militarily. We would not want to see a weakening of our defense structure which would make our enemies more aggressive and our friends more distrustful of us.

Assessment Of Rural-Use Land

By BRYAN HANSLIP
RALEIGH — Soaring tax values drive farmers out of the urban fringe, leaving their land to be gobbled by sprawling development.

How to halt the trend is a nationwide dilemma, now rising to confront North Carolina local government and state legislators.

BRYAN HANSLIP

It is making partners of farm interests and environmentalists on an issue that promises to be a prime debate topic in the '73 General Assembly.

The proposition is that farm land should be assessed only on its value for agricultural use, rather than taking into account its true market worth based on potential for non-farm purposes.

To do so might keep in operation some farmers in the suburbs, preserving desirable open space as the city approaches. On the other hand, the property tax relief granted in that quarter would mean a heavier burden to fall elsewhere.

That second point stirred a current of concern at a Raleigh gathering last week, sponsored by the N. C. Association of County Commissioners to explore the issue. Some 300 county officials and their guests heard Henry W. Lewis, Institute of Government tax expert, explain the theory and practice of use-value assessment of rural-use land.

Aspect Of Total Picture
County commissioners cannot study the subject in isolation, Lewis said. "They must consider the tax burdens on all property before they support or oppose relief for any one category," he reminded.

Cities have a vital interest in the matter, said Leigh Wilson, executive director of the N. C. League of Municipalities. They would view with caution any change in property tax policy which would tend to place a heavier load on the urban property owner, he said.

The escalation of taxes on farm property was documented in a report by Joseph W. Freeman, Institute of Government research assistant, distributed to the county commissioners.

From 1950 to 1970, it noted, the annual tax levy per acre of farmland in the nation has gone from 69 cents to $2.47. "While part of this increase is the result of an 18 per cent higher effective tax rate, by far the most important factor is the increase in the market value of farmland," the

Overload On Farmers
Farm property taxes paid in 1970 amounted to $2.5 billion, representing 12.6 per cent of the net income from farming operations in the United States. "As a national matter... it is probably safe to say that the oldest argument against the ad valorem tax—the improper correlation between property value and ability to pay—is today more persuasive in the case of farmland than in the case of any other kind of property," the report added.

By the mid '50s, many farmers, particularly in the urban fringe, began to complain they could not continue to farm without relief from oppressive property taxation. "Since that time, representatives of farming interests, together with environmentalists, have prevailed on the legislatures of roughly half the states to enact some form of preferential assessment of farmland," according to Freeman's study.

A concerted effort for a Tar Heel law was mounted by farm groups in the 1971 session, but it fell short before the opposition of the county commissioners association and the municipalities league.

Study Commission To Report
The legislature did create a study commission on property tax exemptions and classifications which will report in 1973. It was for this group that Freeman originally prepared his research report.

The county commissioners association now is in the process of determining the posture it will take on the bill certain to surface again in the legislature convening next January.

Tar Heel farmers fare well, in comparison with other states, in the percentage of net farm income paid for property taxes. For example, in 1970 the figure for this state was only 3.2 per cent in contrast to the 37.1 per cent for New Hampshire. Only in Alabama, Louisiana, and Mississippi did farmers pay a lower percentage of new farm income for property taxes than in North Carolina.

The fact is, said Lewis, that today most farmland in the state is under-valued for taxation regardless of its location, and in disregard of state laws. If use-value appraisal should be adopted, he added, it would mean a reduction of some size in every tax base in the state.

"Is it improbable to suppose that in that case there will be strong pressure to appraise all farmland more accurately?" he asked.

That would mean that, while farms in the urban fringe would get relief, those beyond the fringe would be subject to substantially higher taxes than at present, he concluded.

Agnew Didn't Get The Word

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON

President Nixon's cumbersome campaign bureaucracy totally broke down Wednesday when Vice President Spiro T. Agnew unleashed an emotional assault on Sen. George McGovern in violation of a high-level White House strategy decision to turn the other cheek.

That decision was made Tuesday morning at the daily meeting of "the attack group," a committee of key White House and Nixon campaign aides who determine strategy against McGovern. Discussing McGovern's attack Monday on the Nixon administration as the most corrupt in history and the adverse reaction to McGovern from his influential audience (the United Press International Editors meeting), the Nixon advisers decided to make no response at all. McGovern's shrillness was hurting only himself, they determined.

The word to turn the other cheek was to be relayed to Agnew on the campaign trail by a low-level Nixon political operative, who was first delayed by another task and then simply forgot his mission. Uninstructed, Agnew on Wednesday in Rapid City, S.D., permitted his emotions full reign for the first time in the current campaign and delivered an old-fashioned Agnewesque assault on McGovern.

But Agnew's aberration does not alter the basic judgment at the White House that McGovern's shrillness helps maintain Mr. Nixon's big lead and certainly should not be answered in kind. Even Presidential aide Charles Colson, the member of "the attack group" with the strongest instinct for bludgeoning the enemy, has come to agree with this policy of letting McGovern sink himself.

So confident of this theory are they that the daily Republican radio feed out of Washington to local stations will in the future contain not only the customary pronouncements by Republicans but, when possible, the shrillest attacks by Democrats. The first example of this came Sept. 28 when the Republican radio feed included a raucous attack on the President as "tricky Dicky" delivered by Sargent Shriver at Galveston, Texas.

Partly as a result of Sen. McGovern's total collapse in Illinois, Mayor Richard J. Daley has secretly committed at least $100,000 to anti-Daley Democrat Dan Walker's financially bankrupt campaign for governor.

Such an astonishing alliance between regular and reformer would have been unthinkable last March when Walker, excoriating Daley's "boss rule," dealt the Daley organization its most humiliating defeat ever by winning the Democratic primary for governor. Since then, Walker has stopped baiting Daley. But relations between them have remained icy cold.

Thawing them out, however, is the catastrophe of McGovern's Illinois campaign. McGovern is running so badly there, Daley's lieutenants fear, that he may drag to defeat the one candidate whose reelection the Daley organization feels most deeply about: law-and-order state's attorney Edward Hanrahan of Cook County (Chicago).

Although McGovern can help nobody in Illinois (including himself), Walker might yet pull in enough votes on the top of the ticket to help save Hanrahan down below. But Walker's lead over Republican Gov. Richard Ogilvie is fading, and he has scarcely a penny left for campaign financing.

The Daley-Walker entente was born some ten days ago when the two men lunched together at the Mid-American Club in downtown Chicago (Walker's club, Walker paying for lunch), surprisingly without attracting attention. They were together again last Tuesday night at the International Amphitheatre, attending the annual outing of Daley's 11th Ward organization at the circus, this time amazing bystanders with their "Dick" and "Dan" first-name cordiality.

Behind the social amenities, Daley has promised Walker desperately needed eleventh-hour financing. The amount is as secret as the existence of the deal itself, but Daley's first contribution is believed around $100,000 with the possibility of more to

Strength For Today

FRITION
Probably there is someone in your life with whom you don't get along very well. However pleasant your family, friends and business or professional associates are in general, there is nearly always at least one person who gets under your skin, so to speak. Often there are many such people.

Of course we all like the pleasant, amiable people who always do and say just what we want them to. The others who are not so pleasant, whose ideas clash with ours and whose actions irritate us, can make us very unhappy. And yet what a lot of good they often do us!

For rubbing shoulders with other people is a good thing.

By Earl Douglas

Folks who live by themselves often become very queer and eccentric, and those who always get their own way are not much better.

One method of polishing lenses is to place to lenses together with a little polishing compound between and just keep rubbing. In the end the rough spots on both lenses are gone and they are beautifully smooth and clear from the friction.

So just remember that the fellow at the office who always wants to do things his way when your way would be so much better may be helping to make you more tolerant and flexible. The friction from other people's rough spots can give you the polish you need.

Arrogance Cools Ardor

Once upon a time, as Plutarch tells the tale, Aristides the Just was running for re-election. He stopped a stranger on the streets of Athens to solicit his vote. No, said the citizen, who did not recognize the candidate, he could not support Aristides—and it was not as if he had anything against the statesman.

What, then, was the trouble? "I'm just sick and tired," said the citizen. "of hearing him call 'the Just.'"

Ralph Nader, the Great Crusader, might be well advised to meditate upon the story. Beyond question, this dedicated and zealous man has made significant contributions to the safety of American consumers and to the quality of our environment. But he is displaying in his current assault upon Congress a swell-headed arrogance that may cool the ardor of even his most devoted fans. The gentleman is insufferable. The gentleman, indeed, is a bore.

One is reminded not only of Aristides but also of Engine Charlie Wilson. The canard will not die that the great industrialist once avowed that what is good for General Motors is good for the U.S.A. Ralph Nader exhibits the same confusion. His newly-sponsored book, "Who Runs Congress?", grandly equates Ralph Nader with the "people" or with "the public interest." He alone, goes the implication, is qualified to proclaim what is good and wise and progressive. The possibility that he might be wrong—the possibility that decent men might take an opposite view out of pure motives and sound reasons—that possibility never crosses Nader's Olympian brow.

This vainglorious image emerges from the Nader book. The paperback is attributed to Mark J. Green, James M. Fallows, and David R. Zwick, but it bears the imprimatur of the Man Himself. Viewed simply as a book, the book is mostly a non-book. It reshapes every criticism of Congress made in recent years, but it adds little that is new or different. Evidently the work was produced in the mad haste that results in mental blocks. One is startled to learn, in a discussion of seniority, that "John McClellan of Arkansas was elected thirty years ago and went on the House Appropriations Committee," a bit of history that will come as news to the Senator.

What raises one's hackles is the lordly assumption of Nader's factotums that everyone else is vile, and only he is pure. The assumption recurs in a dozen forms. Unions no less than corporations find troublesome regulations "standing 'bet-

Other Editors Say Brain Damage?

(The Wilson Times)

What will be the final verdict on marijuana? Will it eventually be considered so harmful that the weed will be illegal to possess? It is illegal to sell now. With the government continuing the fight against tobacco, the time must come when a distinction is made between cigarettes and marijuana.

Today there is the distinction. Cigarette packages carry the warning, but it is not against the law to smoke tobacco and it never should be. As to marijuana, it has gone through, and continues to go through, different opinions as to the danger.

Two Philadelphia psychiatrists created the stir last year when they reported that frequent smoking of marijuana and hashish by adolescents could cause adverse psychological disturbances in adults and that these changes could mean that the brain has been damaged by the drug.

In a report in the Journal of the American Medical Association, the psychiatrists said that 13 adults between the ages of 20 and 41 who smoked marijuana three to 10 times a week showed a slowed sense of time, difficulty in remembering recent events, apathy, fatigue and sluggishness and confused mental and physical responses.

When patients stop using marijuana those who had smoked the drug for relatively short periods lost their symptoms within six months, while the symptoms abated more slowly in those who had used the drugs for several years, the reports said.

To make a long discussion short, the psychiatrists said their conclusion that chronic use of marijuana could cause brain damage was based entirely on observation patients' symptoms and not on laboratory tests.

The two doctors call for a "second look" at marijuana and to follow up on their research by seeking actual brain damage in marijuana users.

Prelude To The Year-End Rally

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The summer rally, Wall Streeters and State Streeters and LaSalle Streeters and Montgomery Streeters are saying, was cut short by the Indian summer slump.

No great surprise. Not only was this anticipated by many, but it was considered a necessary prelude to the year-end rally.

The securities industry loves labels such as these, because labels seem to explain while really doing little more than identifying the inexplicable, the difficult, the unknown or unbelievable.

Nixonomics and McGovernism are widely used to explain market behavior, although many brokers would find it more difficult to list five elements of either program than to list five reasons why you should buy from them.

But there may be another reason also for the labels, and that reason is the speed of change. Change is what everyone is betting on, change that will make the future better than the past. And each change must be identified.

Change has speeded up. In the late 1930s and early 1940s you could have played a softball game on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange if you didn't make so much noise as to rouse those who wished to rest instead.

Now a broker can't take his eyes off the tape without missing something. Phases that once blended gracefully now bump each other, flashing onto the scene like slides projected on a screen. And so, the wild days of the gunslingers is followed by the mudslingers, who gloried in revealing the corruption of the market place.

The 1960s not only were memorable; they were unforgettable in the sense that changes resulting from market excesses in that decade led to restrictions that every broker in America must live with every day.

Performance, the label which identified the derring-do, the hip-shooting of the gunslingers—brokers, trusts, funds that were concerned always with showing the greatest gains at any moment—has been replaced by restraint, by fundamentals, by the long-term view.

The quest for a quality market is a direct result of the failings of the gunslingers, most of whom went broke and whose em-

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks a secretary gets tired of hearing:

"Honey, if you want to get to the top in this outfit, you have to learn the right lap to sit on."

"Good heavens, I knew you probably couldn't spell. But can't you take dictation either?"

"What do you—I'm mumble, Miss Grant? It is impossible for a Harvard man to mumble."

"Give me a buzz the first time the boss is in a good humor, will you? I want to hit him up for a raise, and I don't want to try it when he's in a bad mood."

"I don't just want a girl Friday. I want a girl Monday. Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and sometimes weekends."

"I know it doesn't look right for an executive to borrow money from his secretary, Miss Grant. But can you let me have $20 until day after tomorrow?"

"If my wife calls, I'm in conference. If it's any other woman, put her on the line."

"Miss Grant, are you sure you spell sour apples the same way you spell sauerkraut?"

"You're always complaining that you never know where I am when there's an emergency in the office, Miss Grant. Hasn't it ever occurred to you, Miss Grant, that if there's an emergency, that is the precise time I don't want you to be able to reach me?"

"The trouble with secretaries is that they keep trying to act like their bosses. As soon as I started drinking a three-martini lunch, my secretary jumped from a one to a two-martini lunch."

Forty Years Ago Today

Saturday, October 15th, the Boy Scouts of Greenville will celebrate their annual charity Bundle Day by collecting clothing for the needy. Last year the Scouts of the East Carolina Council gathered thousands of garments in their home cities and towns and these were turned over to the welfare associations to be distributed during the winter.

A discarded steam roller and several confiscated moonshine stills were put to use in Lawrenceville, Georgia to save 60,000 cans of fruit and vegetables that otherwise might have been wasted. It was a cooperative project that enabled this Georgia county to see the possibilities in its surplus garden and orchard products.

The most humiliating, mudin-your-eye evidence against them was that no matter how good they looked one year, the odds against them repeating their performance year after year were of a kind a bookie wouldn't touch.

One survey after another showed that the swift, in-out trading, the rapid portfolio turnover, the gambles on highflying speculations might have helped temporarily, but never over the long run.

In fact, serious studies led many investors to conclude that an unmanaged portfolio of sound stocks would appreciate just as much over a 10-year period as one managed by a performer.

The board of directors of the Eastern Carolina Sheltered Workshop and Vocational Rehabilitation Center Wednesday, heard that approximately $17,000 in sub-contract work was done during the first quarter.

Dr. Sheldon Downes, president, presided at the meeting.

Eugene Prescott presented the annual audit report. Warren Whitehurst reported on the monthly financial position of the workshop.

Dr. William Fulford, chairman of the Advisory Committee, stated he hoped the committee will be a great asset to the board and its executive director. He expressed hope of developing a manual of guidelines of the committee. The purpose of the committee is to advise the board and executive director when needed.

Melvin Moore, chairman of the industrial committee, said the workshop now has an order for 30,000 nut cracker bases for Rancho Company of Smithfield. Some other companies that the workshop is doing sub-contract work for now are: Carolina Telephone Company, Empire Brush, Hamilton Beach, LaFrance Industries, Fieldcrest Mills, Rivers and Associates and Abbott Laboratories.

The possibility of organizing a committee for master planning of immediate and long range projects for the workshop. He stated the committee would be responsible for evaluating the programs now in progress at the facility and the potential need of the progress at the facility and the potential need of the rehabilitation of the community. Also, the need for additional buildings would be discussed. A committee was appointed to revise the administrative manual of the facility.

The workshop now has 20 clients in evaluation, 51 in training and 13 in work activity. A total of 41 clients are living in the dormitory facilities on campus.

Also during the first quarter, 15,130 meals were served; 19,800 miles traveled for clients; 48 referrals during the quarter and 13 clients placed in competitive employment.

ween them and the politicians they want to buy." The bad guys are trotted forth in semantic black hats. Congressman O'Neill of Massachusetts, a bad guy, is the "august" chairman of a sub-committee. A vice president of Texaco doesn't merely say: He "intones." It is angels on one side, demons on the other — the "people" arrayed against the "special interests."

The truth is vastly more complex. Are milkmen "people"? Are tobacco farmers "people"? Are the owners of service stations "people"? No, indeed. They are co-conspirators in dastardly plots to "milk the housewife," or they are "small businessmen who are different from you and me." By contrast, "public lobbies" are filled with virtue: "They may save the taxpayer billions." But the baddies, the business lobbies, are concerned only with making "the victims bear the cost of their anticonsumer political efforts."

What is the consumer's interest? The honest answer, in many difficult cases, is simply: It depends. The

Hold Suspect

In Break-In

James Earl Evans, 20, of 1505 West 14th St. was jailed by Greenville police on charges of breaking, entering and larceny and public drunk after he allegedly returned to the scene of a break-in at a local grocery store before dawn Monday.

Chief Glenn Cannon explained that Adams' Grocery at 1701 South Pitt St. was entered about 12:25 a.m. Monday by an intruder who broke a front window. Several bottles of wine and about $4 in pennies were reported taken.

Police were called by a witness to the break-in, Cannon noted, but the intruder fled before officers arrived.

Ernest Adams, owner of the store, was also called and elected to remain inside the building the rest of the night.

After officers left the scene, the store was entered again and the intruder scared off by shouts from Adams.

Evans was taken into custody a short time after the second incident and charged in connection with the store break-in.

Man Is Held In

Shooting Case

John Paradise Reaves, 27, of Route 1, Florence, S.C. was arrested by Greenville police early today after allegedly shooting a local man here last night.

Police Chief Glenn Cannon said Reaves allegedly shot Melvin Earl Brown, 20, of 1114 Ward St. in the groin with a .32 caliber pistol about 11:06 p.m. yesterday at the intersection of 12th and Washington Streets.

Taken into custody by officers about 12:20 a.m., Reaves was charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill in connection with the Brown shooting. He was also charged with assault by pointing a gun after allegedly pointing a pistol at Mary Chance of 310 Tyson St. about the same time as the shooting.

Offers Credits

To Retirement

Voluntary Training Unit (VTU-14) of the U.S. Marine Corps Reserves needs new members.

This is an excellent opportunity for non-commissioned officers and officers to earn their reserve retirement credits, according to Major Sheldon C. Downes, commanding officer of the Rehabilitation Counseling Program of East Carolina University. He said the meetings are held every two weeks on Wednesday evenings.

Two credits are earned each time with extra credit given for instructors. This system of earning credits makes it easy for reservists to earn 50 credits, which constitutes a satisfactory year. Members remain eligible for promotion along with their contemporaries on active duty, he said.

The Democratic nominee for U.S. Senate made the statement Monday in prepared remarks for a rally in Wilson. He pledged his support "to preserving and strengthening the programs which have benefited North Carolina's tobacco farmers for so many years."

Two Wrecks On Monday Moose Clothing Drive Will Begin Wednesday

An estimated $925 property damage resulted from two collisions investigated here yesterday police reported.

According to officers, Johnny Webster Warren, 25, of Route 5 Greenville was injured when the motorcycle he was riding collided with a car driven by John David Reece Jr., 23, of 1509 North Pitt St. about 10:10 a.m. at the intersection of Fifth and Jarvis Streets.

Investigators estimated damage to the motorcycle at $100 and to the Reece car at $75 and charged Reece with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

Cars driven by Harvey Lee Spell, 38, of 1204A South Pitt St. and Eva Creech Gaskins, 1308 Dickinson Ave. were involved in an 8:55 a.m. collision at the intersection of Dickinson and Raleigh Avenues.

Damage to the Spell auto was placed at $450 while officers estimated damage to the Gaskins vehicle at $300.

Mrs. Gaskins was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety.

Contributions By GMC And Sammy Davis

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Entertainer Sammy Davis Jr. and General Motors Corp. have pledged cash gifts toward the United Negro College Fund's $10 million goal this year.

At a UNCF luncheon here Monday, Davis was named chairman of the fund raising campaign. He responded by pledging $1,000 gifts to each of the 40 predominantly black colleges in the organization.

Richard C. Gerstenberg, chairman of General Motors, announced GM was increasing its gift to UNCF from 1971's $125,000 to $160,000.

"We can't continue to waste our black talent," said Gerstenberg, who shared the speaker's platform with Davis.

Dr. Herman Long, presiding over the three-day UNCF meeting, said there are 475,000 black students in higher education today, twice the number four years ago.

Claims British Press Inhibited

LONDON (AP)—Former Prime Minister Harold Wilson says owners and editors of British newspapers are inhibiting the free and fair publication of political news and views.

Wilson's remark Monday came after a long-smoldering hostility between followers of his opposition Labor party and the pro-Conservative press flared up at the windup of Labor's annual convention in Blackpool last week. Some Laborites accused the mass media—including television—of being biased.

"It is impossible to believe that the whole company of British journalists—many of whom are Labor party supporters—are so unanimous as a regular reading of the newspapers suggest or that they lacked courage," Wilson said.

He added that "in part, this inhibiting influence on the free expression of opinion reflects the still powerful voice of individual proprietors, in part the conviction of individual editors."

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Partly cloudy and warm Thursday. Fair Friday and Saturday with overnight lows in the 40s in the mountains to near 60 on Outer Banks.

The annual Moose Lodge Clothing bank collection will begin Wednesday evening.

Moose Civic Affairs committee chairman James Fleming said Monday night that teams of men assisted by Boy Scouts of Troop 362 will leave the Moose Home at 7:00 p.m. to pick up used articles of clothing that can be prepared for distribution among the county's needy families.

He reminded that such clothing as can be contributed need not be cleaned; that minor repairs and cleaning and sorting of the clothes will be undertaken at conclusion of the drive.

Fleming asked that local residents with clothing to be picked up, to turn on their front lights as a signal to collection crews.

Secretary Edwin Baldree said prospective donors could call the Moose Lodge office (PL6-4370) starting at 1:00 p.m. on Wednesday, and give their address, and a pick-up will be assured during the evening rounds. The office can also be called on subsequent days of the week for collection of clothing missed by Wednesday evening's rounds.

"This is not a one-night campaign", said Fleming. "We have learned from experience of other years that the help our Clothing Bank provides is needed by many families, and a one-night campaign simply cannot meet the needs. Last year literally hundreds of people were referred to the Clothing Bank for help."

Baldree pointed out that "at this time of the year most families are sorting clothes for the cold weather ahead, finding items that have been outgrown or are otherwise unwanted by the family. The Clothing Bank assures seeing that such clothing goes to the neediest of our people. There is always a call for children's clothing. We hope this year's contributions will prove as generous as in other years."

Sore-Armed Doc Ellis Goes To Mound To Try And Wrap It Up

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer
CINCINNATI (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates are going to steal a leaf from the book of the Cincinnati Reds and try to win the National League pennant today with the help of a sore-arm pitcher—Doc Ellis. The Pirates hope they have better luck than the Reds. Cincinnati pinned its hopes Monday on the ailing right arm of Gary Nolan, but the pressure going all-out against the power-packed Pittsburgh lineup took its toll. Nolan could manage only six innings. His arm stiffened and he left with a one-run lead that the Pirates overcame to take a 2-1 lead in the best-of-five pennant playoff. "I went as hard as I could for as long as I could," said the dejected Nolan, who had pitched 15 innings since the All-Star Game in July. "I just ran out of gas. I couldn't afford to continue."

Ellis' story is almost a carbon copy. The 27-year-old right-hander has a chronic pitching elbow condition. He went six innings Sept. 30 but it was his first start since Sept. 13.

The Pirates' 3-2 victory Monday was keyed by outfielder Rennie Stennett and catcher Manny Sanguillen and relief pitcher Bruce Kison. Ever-reliable Dave Giusti came on to check the Reds' big bats after Pittsburgh wiped out a 2-0 Cincinnati lead.

Stennett made the first big play. Cincinnati's Johnny Bench tripled leading off the fourth. The Reds already led 2-0 and it looked as if they were out to get another run.

Pirates' starter Nelson Briles got Tony Perez on a nice, running back-to-the plate catch in short left by shortstop Gene Alley. He then walked Denis Menke. The Reds now had runners at the corners with one out. Cesar Geronimo hit a fly ball to Stennett in left, and the outfielder gunned down Bench trying to score after the catch. It was a perfect one-bounce, on-the-money throw to Sanguillen.

"That beat us," said Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson, who still insisted the playoff would go five games. "I thought that was the turning point of the game, murmured Anderson. "Our report was that Stennett had a better-than-average arm, but wasn't that accurate."

Stennett's throw seemed to fire the Pirates. A half-inning later, Sanguillen socked a pitch over the left-centerfield fence for a home run to make it 2-1.

Houston Disaster Had To Be Seen To Be Believed; Oakland Winner

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
Associated Press Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — It's good that the Houston-Oakland pre football game was on national television Monday night—you'd have to see it to believe it.

Quarterback Daryle Lamoni finally got Oakland rolling with touchdown pass plays of 16 and 27 yards and George Blanda, a former Oiler, kicked two field goals in a 34-0 rout before 51,278 in the Astrodome.

But by the time the Raiders made it a runaway with three fourth quarter touchdowns—two of them set up by interceptions, more than half of the crowd had left in disgust at the performance.

The unhappy mood spread to the TV audience. The Astrodome stat crew estimated 75 calls came in from as far away as Canada, blasting everything from the Oilers to the television commentary.

The Oilers, getting their first chance at the Monday night spectacle since 1970, got a severe case of stage fright and stuttered to only 69 yards in total net offense—their worst offense showing in history.

The Oakland defense, ranked first in the AFC in pass defense, picked off five Oiler passes and dropped several other possible interceptions.

The Raiders, who lost four of four fumbles, kept plugging and finally got their offense started.

"I told them at the half all we have to do is settle down and something will come our way," Oakland Coach John Madden said. "On offense, so many untimely things happened to us. They had a good pass rush. They went all out."

Field goals of 46 and 35 yards by Blanda and a 16-yard touchdown pass to Fred Biletnikoff gave Oakland a 13-0 lead going into the fourth quarter when the bottom fell out on the Oilers.

Lamonica hit rookie Mike Siani for a 27-yard TD to open the last period and interceptions by Nemiah Wilson and Otis Sistrunk set up the final two TDs—a 14-yard run by Clarence Davis and a 2-yard pass from Ken Stabler to tight end Bob Moore.

The last two TDs were only 29 seconds apart.

Typical of the Oilers' performance was the second quarter when defensive end Greg Sampson fell on an Oakland fumble at the Raider two-yard line.

Oakland Aims For AL Sweep

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Right-hander Joe Coleman had the job of keeping Detroit's hopes alive as Oakland aimed for a sweep today in the American League playoffs.

The A's, who took the first two games in the best-of-five series, countered with left-hander Ken Holtzman. An Oakland victory would advance the A's into the World Series against the National League champion.

The Tigers, facing elimination, remained confident of a comeback.

"If we win tomorrow," said Manager Billy Martin at Monday's workout, "we'll win three in a row. We've always risen up to the situation before and we can do it again."

Martin and the Tigers got one piece of good news before their workout. They learned that Oakland shortstop Bert Campaneris had been suspended from the remainder of the playoffs and fined $500 for hurling his bat at Tiger pitcher Lerrin LaGrow in Sunday's game.

"Good," exclaimed Martin. "That's what he had coming."

Martin had led a Tiger charge out of the dugout after the A's speedy shortstop was hit by a pitch and responded by heaving his bat. It took three umpires to keep the Tiger skipper away from Campaneris.

Billy had cooled off considerably by the time the Tigers worked out Monday and suggested that Campy's explosion might end up helping Detroit.

"He might have done us a favor. I think it put a little fuel in there," said Martin. "I'll let you know after tomorrow."

Campaneris' suspension was good news for Coleman. Campy stole 52 bases during the regular season, leading the AL for the sixth time in eight years. He swiped two Sunday before the seventh inning rhabarb.

"I can go out and pitch my own ball game," said Coleman. "Unlike if Campaneris was out there on the bases. Campy and (Joe) Rudi are the two keys to their team."

Coleman, like Holtzman, a 19-game winner, said he felt relaxed and confident. "I felt more pressure in the Boston series than now," he said. "I think I've got my stuff together."

The Tigers, who won the East Division crown in an end-of-season showdown with Boston, have come back before. This is a veteran team and many of the players were with the 1968 Detroit club that erased a 3-1 deficit to take three straight games and the World Series from St. Louis.

Associated Press Sports Writer
Southern California and Oklahoma held onto the top spots in The Associated Press college football poll today while Alabama moved past Ohio State into third place and upset-minded Auburn cracked the Top Ten for the first time this season.

Southern Cal's Trojans received 34 first-place votes and 964 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters following their fifth consecutive triumph, a 30-21 victory over Stanford.

Oklahoma, which had a week off before this Saturday's annual war with Texas, pulled down 15 first-place votes and 912 points.

The only change among the first eight teams came in the 34 spots, where Alabama climbed from fourth to third with 677 points on the heels of a 25-7 trouncing of Georgia.

The Crimson Tide changed places with Ohio State, down from third to fourth after a come-from-behind 35-18 win over California. The Buckeyes received the remaining first-place vote and 625 points.

The 5-6-7-8 positions again went to Michigan, a 35-7 victor over Navy; idle Nebraska; Notre Dame, which blanked Michigan State 16-0, and Louisiana State, a 12-6 winner over Rice.

Williamston Stops Gates

GATESVILLE — Williamston High School's Tigers clawed their way to their fifth straight Albermarle Conference victory Monday night, downed Gates County, 34-12.

The Tigers held Gates scoreless until the third period, when they had completed all their scoring behind the running and passing of quarterback Mike Weaver.

Weaver scored the first touchdown to put Williamston into the lead. That came on a nine-yard run and made it 6-0.

In the second period, Weaver twice went to the air for scoring bombs. The first was a 42-yard pass to Mike Bundy. The second, of 15 yards, went to Dwight Ange. Weaver ran over the two-point conversion after the second score to make it 20-0.

In the third quarter, two more Williamston touchdowns were put on the board. Bundy picked up the first with a seven yard run and Ange got the other on a 25-yard pass from Weaver. Vann Andrews kicked the extra points after each to complete the 34-0 lead.

Defense Back In First Place

East Carolina University's defensive unit, the Wild Dogs, have moved into first place in the nation again in rushing and total defense, and are ranked high in scoring and passing defense too.

Unofficial figures received here today give the Pirates two firsts, a third and a 10th place standing in the defensive figures. Official figures are released on Wednesdays by the National Collegiate Sports Services.

The Pirates are now allowing an average of 129.3 yards per game, moving ahead of Columbia University in that category. Columbia has allowed 146.0 per game.

In rushing defense, the Bucs are allowing an average of 41.3 yards per game, as compared to 46.3 by Southern Methodist.

In passing, the Pirates are allowing 88.0 yards per game, good enough for 10th spot in the standing. In scoring defense, the Pirates rank third, allowing 2.5 points per game. Oklahoma is second giving up 2.0 while Columbia has yet to be scored on in two games and holds the lead.

The Pirates are the only team in the nation ranked in all four categories of defense.

DUNKEL COLLEGE FOOTBALL INDEX

ENDING

OCT. 15, 1972

EXPLANATION

The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0
team against opposition of identical strength.
Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

By DICK DUNKEL

TOP TEAM - Oklahoma leads with an average scoring margin of 54.3 over opposition index of 73.6 for the best total rating of ACCURACY - Higher rating teams have won in 74.9 percent of the 745 games covered to date.

QUESTION - Which states have the most teams rated over 60.0? Texas, 19; Ohio, 12; California, 10.

The Worry Clinic

The Blind Use Powers Better

Arlotta would probably have been called a witch in earlier generations. For she seemed to have magical powers. How would you also have diagnosed the precision of blind pupils who could reach out at the right moment to take hold of a doorknob?

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.
Case V-513: Arletta H., aged 16, was a blind girl.
She attended the State School for the Blind in Wisconsin.

"Dr. Crane," the superintendent began, "she seems to have a very unusual talent."

"For she can detect colors by smell!"
"Would you like to test her and try to explain how she does it?"
"And our other blind students also seem to have a 6th sense regarding space."

"For they will confidently walk across a room and then reach for the doorknob at exactly the right moment."
"They don't stretch out their hand too soon now bump into the door, so how can they know precisely when to touch that doorknob?"

Psychology Of Blind

We'll answer that second question first, for when we let the blind children walk in stocking feet, they'd miss the doorknob!

So they had subconsciously reacted to vague echoes of their leather shoe soles as they approached the closed door ahead of them.

Thus, they employed a form of radar, as it were, similar to that used by bats.

The latter can miss obstacles even when flying at top speed, though they are comparatively blind.

For bats thus rely on a form of "sound radar," in contrast to the "electrical" radar at our airports.

And Arletta's ability to detect colors by smell was apparently due to some faint difference in the chemical dyes.

For I accompanied Dr. Robert H. Gault, head of our Psychology Department at Northwestern University to test Arletta.

Even though she had been medically pronounced blind, I personally prepared black bandages which I taped over both of her eyes.

Yet Arletta still would go through the box of variously colored Holmgren yarns, which are used for colorblind testing.

And she'd accurately separate the reds from the greens, etc.

She couldn't always make precise distinctions between pink versus red, but would place them in the same pile.

And pale greens would be put with other darker shades of green.

Yellows and blues were also accurately sorted.

And she'd take a piece of fabric, smell it briefly; then call out its basic hue.

She could even do likewise with spoils of differently colored thread.

As a double check on her bandages, I had them placed over my eyes and I couldn't see a thing, yet my vision was normal.

So we knew she had been doubly isolated from any visual clues, since she was already blind before we taped her eyes.

Our explanation was based on the possible faint differences in odor that differently colored dyes must have furnished her.

For Arletta said she always

The bidding:

2 ♣ Pass 2 ♦ Pass

Opening lead: Four of ♦ Deliberate establishment of a trick for his opponent by West proved to be an essential ingredient for a successful defense against South's three no trump contract.

When South opened the bidding with one no trump, North held the values for a direct raise to three with 10 high card points. With four spades and a doubleton diamond, North decided to check back for a possible major suit fit first, by using the two club convention. When South rebid two diamonds, the conventional call that denies a four card major, North proceeded without further ado to game in no trump.

West opened the four of diamonds, East put up the king and South played the ace. In order to come to nine winners, declarer must take tricks in both black suits. Not knowing exactly where to start, South made the natural play of the deuce of clubs to dummy's ten.

East was in with the ace of clubs and returned the jack of diamonds. It is West's play at this point that determines the fate of the hand. If the jack of diamonds holds the trick, East has no more diamonds to lead and South retains a potential stopper in the suit with the nine-five. When declarer regains the lead, he drives out the ace of spades and now West must cash the queen of diamonds in order to hold his opponent to nine tricks.

West had been doing some thinking when his partner led back the jack of diamonds. He realized that if East had a third diamond, four tricks could be cashed out in the suit if West patiently waited for a continuation. If East had only a doubleton, then a passive role would kill off any chance for West to establish his long cards in the suit.

The only question was whether West was surrendering a vital trick if he let South in with the nine of diamonds. The bidding provided a valuable clue. South's rebid of two diamonds over two clubs denied a four card major. Since declarer cannot have four hearts, he is limited to three heart tricks and three clubs. If he is given a second trick in diamonds, it still leaves South one short of the required nine.

On the reasoning that he had much to gain and little to lose, West overtook East's jack of diamonds with the queen and then continued with the seven which dislodged declarer's nine. South needed a spade for his ninth trick and he casually led the five of spades from his hand. West was not about to slip on the verge of success, however, and he put up the ace of spades and proceeded to cash the six and deuce of diamonds to score a one trick set on the deal.

Glass Roadway To An Airport

NEW YORK (UPI)—Glassphalt, which substitutes for crushed stones in the paving which in other respects resembles asphalt, has made its first airport appearance.

An experimental strip of two-lane roadway has been covered with the "ecological pavement" at John F. Kennedy International Airport by the Port of New York Authority in cooperation with the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute. More than 90,000 glass bottles and jars recovered from litter and solid waste were crushed to manufacture the glassphalt.

Russia has made wider use of mines in sea warfare than any other nation.

Males Increase Working Force
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Married women no longer are the big cause of the annual increase in the U.S. working force as they were in the 1960s, Finance Facts reports. In the first two years of the 1970s, the increase in the size of the working force was overwhelmingly accounted for by single men, many returning from military service.

GoodNewsCaps Day Of Disaster

MURWILLUMBAH, Australia, (AP) — It was just one of those days for Eileen Piper, who lives in this town in northern New South Wales and works as a waitress.

Mrs. Piper was being driven to work when the auto was involved in a collision. She was unhurt but shaken.

Mrs. Piper asked a truck driver from a nearby sawmill to drive her home. The truck crashed through her front fence and damaged a corner of her house.

Mrs. Piper decided to clean the stove. It "exploded"—a blow-back that threw her against the wall.

Mrs. Piper decided it was time to lie down. While taking her rest, her son, aged 2½, pulled a cupboard over on himself and fractured a leg.

Then came the good news: Mrs. Piper's boss would give her normal pay for the day.

Newspaper Claims Strategy Of Political Sabotage

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — White House aide Ken W. Clawson has acknowledged fabricating a letter which damaged the presidential campaign of Democratic Sen. Edmund S. Muskie. The Washington Post reported today. Clawson now denies the statement.

The newspaper quotes law-enforcement sources as saying the Clawson letter is the best example of a Republican strategy of sabotage directed at Democratic presidential contenders as early as 1971, before the primary campaigns began. The Post said FBI agents have established that the break-in and alleged bugging of Democratic national headquarters also stemmed from the same sabotage campaign directed by officials of the White House and the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

Another example, the Post said, was alleged attempts by Donald Herbert Segretti to recruit GOP undercover agents to disrupt Democratic activities.

The Post said Segretti, a former Treasury Department lawyer who now maintains offices in Marina Del Rey, Calif., has been identified in FBI reports as an operative of the Nixon campaign.

A spokesman for the Nixon committee, DeVan L. Shumway, said, "The article in the Post is a piece of fiction."

The Post quoted investigators as saying the sabotage campaign included: "Following members of Democratic candidates' families; forging letters and distributing them under the candidates' letterheads; leaking false and manufactured items to the press; throwing campaign schedules into disarray; seizing confidential campaign files, and investigating the lives of dozens of Democratic campaign workers."

Clawson, deputy director of White House communications, could not be reached for comment Monday night. A spokesman who telephoned his home was told via the White House switchboard that he had retired for the night and that his wife did not wish to awaken him.

The document Clawson allegedly wrote was a letter to the editor of the Manchester (N.H.) Union Leader. It accused the Maine senator of condoning a racial slur against Americans of French-Canadian descent by referring to them as "Ca-nucks."

The letter and editorial attacks on Muskie by the Union Leader's publisher, William Loeb, prompted Muskie to make the now-famous tearful speech denouncing the newspaper and Loeb in front of the newspaper office.

Then the front-runner for the Democratic nomination, Muskie subsequently began to slip in the public-opinion polls and fared worse than expected in the New Hampshire primary in March.

The Post said information in the files of the FBI and Justice Department show that Republicans carried out a massive campaign of spying and sabotage during the primaries to throw their opponents into such disarray they could not mount a viable campaign against Nixon.

The newspaper quoted federal investigators as saying the GOP operation far surpasses the normal level of campaign intelligence-gathering.

The Post said three attorneys told of being promised "big jobs" in government if they would act as undercover agents for the Nixon campaign and carry out various maneuvers to disrupt Democratic activities.

The Post said all three refused the offer. It identified them as Alex B. Shipley Jr. of Nashville, Tenn., Roger Lee Nix of Dennison, Iowa, and Kenneth Griffiths of Atlanta, all of whom served with Segretti in Vietnam.

Shipley, 30, a Democrat and now an assistant attorney general of Tennessee, was questioned about the Post account in an interview in Nashville Monday night.

He confirmed that Segretti first contacted him in June 1971 in Washington.

Segretti attended a party at his apartment, and on the following day Shipley drove Segretti to Dulles International Airport. "He mentioned on the way to Dulles that we would do a little political espionage," Shipley said, but added that he did not take the offer seriously. Shipley said that on several other occasions in 1971 he was contacted by Segretti. "He'd tell me to do something. I'd say 'sure' and then I wouldn't do anything."

Shipley said he asked Segretti who would benefit from such espionage and Segretti replied, "Nixon."

Segretti could not be reached to respond to the Post story or to Shipley's statements.

Some Northwest Indians revered huckleberries, venison and salmon as sacred food, signifying nature's providence, says National Geographic.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1972

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Very surprising and startling events can occur today, largely because almost everyone gets an idea and has no patience or thought to think it out intelligently but wants action without necessary preparation. Take time to view all factors of this situation and to gain right perspective.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make an appointment to see that new contact instead of just barging in, or you meet with instant opposition. Study a new plan well if you want it to be a success. Don't take anything for granted — be sure.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Exercise self-control and study all those money and other matters well so you know just how to handle them successfully. Forcing mate to go along with your spontaneous ideas is not good. Use diplomacy.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Gentle prodding is best if you feel that associates are not carrying their fair share of workload, and then you find all improves. An outsider is going against you. Handle this matter diplomatically.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Although you are not in the mood to get all that work done that is important, take a little exercise and delve right into it. Then all works out successfully. Not a good day for making changes in wardrobe.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You need the right kind of recreation today but make sure it is not too expensive, then you raise lagging spirits. A word of encouragement to mate brings fine results. Show you are loyal, true.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Using your temper at home is not good, but doing something constructive about the situation there is fine. An opportunity presents itself to prove your ingenuity in the face of an emergency. Use good common sense, judgment.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't deliberate so much over shopping and appointments you want to make that you get nothing done at all. Attend to these early and all is fine. Show good friends, neighbors that you really appreciate them.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Stop worrying about what cannot be helped and get busy with that plan that will give you more of this world's goods. Study how one who is most successful did it and follow along such lines yourself. However, add an original touch of your own.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Know what your own hopes and desires are and be sure to weed out those that are unacceptable. Gad about in a social way and gain results thusly, in p.m. Forget long gabfests on the phone. Use time wisely.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have some wise plan in mind that needs only the advice of an expert to iron out the kinks, and then you can put in fine operation yourself. Don't come out with rash comments that could alienate good associates. Think before you speak.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Find a better way to gain own aims of a personal nature and get the cooperation of good pals by being cooperative yourself. Don't come out with rash comments that could alienate good associates. Think before you speak.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) If you are objective with higher-ups, you find you can accomplish much in your community later and have more harmony at home as well. Pay that bill about which you are being pressured. Show you are a cheerful person.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY he or she will be one of those delightful young people who will always have something to say and very likely will put the cart before the horse if not taught early to think well before coming out with comments of any kind, or to plan well before tackling any job. Be sure to teach this early and then send to right schools where this articulate youngster can make the most of the fine talents deep in the subconscious in this chart. Much work in foreign lands denoted.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Offshore Superports Proposed

By JAY PERKINS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Maritime Administration soon is expected to announce that offshore docking facilities—superports—are the best way for the United States to import the oil it needs to stave off an energy crisis.

Top priority, according to a preliminary report, will be given to a site off Delaware—near the oil-hungry refineries of the East Coast that depend on foreign crude-oil for more than 50 per cent of their production.

But the final report also is expected to recommend a site somewhere off the Gulf Coast.

And it could arouse environmentalists, who earlier were instrumental in getting Delaware to ban a deep-water transfer facility in Delaware Bay.

The maritime report will not settle the controversy. Reports also are being prepared by the Corps of Engineers, the Council on Environmental Quality, and by several states that are fighting for the facility.

A Maritime Administration spokesman says the White House probably will make the final decision on whether a superport should be built and where.

The superport would either float or sit on tall stilts in at least 100 feet of water and would be located from 3 to 50 miles offshore. The huge facility would handle the large ocean-going supertankers that cannot dock in most relatively shallow U.S. harbors.

The advantage of the huge tankers is economical. The Maritime Administration's preliminary report said the cost of shipping oil from the Persian Gulf to the United States—a 24,000-mile round trip—would drop from $9.93 per ton in conventional ships to $7.27 per ton in the supertankers.

The figures are based on a superport connected by pipelines to onshore storage tanks and doing 200 million tons of business a year.

The National Petroleum Council says the amount of oil imported by the United States is expected to rise from 3 million barrels per day in 1970 to 15 million barrels by 1985. Thus, superport backers contend, the need for a more economical way of shipping oil is great.

Studies done by several states indicate a superport would cost anywhere from $350 million upward—depending on whether it also was equipped to handle solid or containerized

Most backers feel it quickly would pay for itself. And several oil and pipeline companies have indicated they might be willing to foot the bill.

Environmental concerns also complicate the problem. But superport backers say floating skirts that would surround the supertankers while they unload would prevent any oil spills. And they claim an oil spill on the open seas is not nearly as devastating as a spill in a harbor.
