SAIGON (AP) — U.S. warplanes attacked Hanoi today and the French said their diplomatic mission was heavily damaged and their chief envoy wounded.

In response to a French protest, the U.S. Command said initial operational reports indicated that Navy planes hit military targets 2½ to 3 miles from the mission buildings. It promised an investigation of a French complaint.

"A number of enemy surface to air missiles were fired at the U.S. aircraft," the statement said. "No U.S. aircraft were lost, and the surface to air missiles, after missing the aircraft, could have impacted on the ground."

A spokesman agreed the statement might give the impression that the destruction of the mission headquarters was caused by the North Vietnamese missiles. The command refused, however, to rule out the possibility of U.S. bombs going astray and hitting the French compound.

The command said the military targets attacked included major railroad yards and transshipment points across the Red River north of the French delegation.

In Paris, President Georges Pompidou after a Cabinet meeting called the bombing "a deplorable act." The French protest was handed to U.S. Ambassador Arthur K. Watson.

A French government spokesman said the chief of the mission in the North Vietnamese capital, Delegate-General Pierre Susini, was "very seriously injured."

While his injuries were not fatal, Susini suffered from loss of blood and shock, the spokesman added. Three other diplomats and the mission's French secretaries were unhurt, but four Vietnamese employees were missing.

First to comment in Saigon on the bombing was Gen. John W. Vogt, deputy commander of the U.S. Command and chief of the 7th Air Force. He promised an investigation.

"Right now, I can honestly say I know nothing about it," he said. "I can't imagine how it could have happen. We'll just have to go into it and see what happened. We're going to take a good hard look at it. What we have to do is pick up the pieces and see what the allegations are and try to piece it together."

Local Electric Rate Hike Depends On VEPCO Plea

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector Managing Editor

Local electric users may be in for a 20.8 percent increase in rates, if a Virginia Electric and Power Co. request is approved.

Greenville Utilities Director Charles Horne reported to the commission Tuesday night that he had received a letter from Vepco notifying him that a request had been made of the Federal Power Commission for the increase in wholesale rates. Vepco supplies all of Greenville Utilities electric power and Greenville, in turn, sells power to Ayden and Winterville.

Vepco has also made a request to the N.C. Utilities Commission for a corresponding increase in retail rates. While this does not directly affect local customers, Greenville Utilities has, in practice, adopted Vepco's retail rate schedule. Vepco also serves northern Pitt County and areas of Martin County on a retail basis.

In addition to the 20 percent rate increase, the Vepco has also requested a fuel adjustment clause which would allow rates to fluctuate according to changing fuel costs.

The new rates will not become effective until hearings are held before the Federal Power commission and Greenville Utilities will be opposing the increases through its membership in Electricities.

"We will do everything humanly possible to oppose any rate that is not fully justified," Horne said.

"The cost of electricity is going up and our customers have been telling us this," Horne said. "Instead of being able to tell them it is going to be better next summer, it may be worse. The only way to combat it is to conserve."

Commissioners also approved a rate increase for natural gas because of an increase from N.C. Natural Gas. This increase came in turn because of an increase from N.C. Natural Gas' supplier. The increase is expected to be less than one percent on a typical bill. It will be effective Oct. 20, 1972. Contracts were awarded for construction of a 110 KV

Air Crash On Emerald Isle Claims Four Lives

EMERALD ISLE, N.C. (AP)—Four men were killed when a CH-46 Marine helicopter crashed and burned Tuesday night in a wooded area near Bogue Sound at the south end of Emerald Isle while on a "routine training flight."

Military spokesmen said an investigation of the accident would continue today. There were no survivors.

The names of the victims, all Marines, were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

M. Sgt. John McKay of the public affairs section at the Cherry Point Marine Station said the "Sea Knight" helicopter was from McCutcheon Field near Jacksonville. The crash occurred about 8 p.m.

McKay said the helicopter crashed in an unpopulated area of the island, which is located about 10 miles southwest of Morehead City.

The crash about one-half mile from the Emerald Isle Bridge touched off a traffic tie-up as hundreds of spectators gathered, state troopers said.

McKay said the helicopter was part of Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron 162, stationed at McCutcheon Field.

New City Manager Is Devoting Time Now To Learning The Ropes

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

"I'm very pleased to get the opportunity to work with a local government involved in as many impressive projects as the city of Greenville is," said William H. (Bill) Carstarphen, Greenville's new city manager.

Carstarphen, a native of Williamston and until this week Assistant City Manager for Community Development in Charlotte, took over the reins of his new post here on Monday.

This week and the next couple of weeks, Carstarphen stated, will be spent getting to know the city employees, talking with department heads and in general becoming familiar with the status of various programs and projects of Greenville.

Carstarphen, in his early thirties, is a young man who has grown up in city government work. As a professional in this field, he said there were two basic areas he considered in making a decision to come to Greenville.

"The first," he said, "is the fact that Greenville provides an opportunity to work with and for a community that is active and growing. The second, 'is the fact that that the community is the one my family is going to live in.'"

Carstarphen feels "pretty sure my wife and three daughters will love living in Greenville. My wife enjoys being involved in community work."

As Assistant City Manager for Community Development since September 1970, Carstarphen was responsible for the direction and coordination of intergovernmental programs, housing, urban renewal, parks and recreation, model cities, neighborhood centers system, and community relations programs in North Carolina's largest municipality.

The new city manager of Greenville served with the city of Charlotte for nearly eight years — beginning in July 1964. His first position was administrative intern. After six months in this apprentice slot he moved up to Administrative Assistant I, then later to Administrative Assistant II and III.

In September 1970 he was appointed Assistant City Manager.

A graduate of Duke University with an A.B. degree in 1962, Carstarphen took graduate courses in political science, city planning and public finance at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and received the Master of Public Administration degree from the University of Kansas in 1967.

He has also completed specialized courses in advanced management and top management briefing in the late sixties and early seventies.

His wife, the former Stephanie Highsmith, is also a Martin County native. She is from Robersonville. They are the parents of three young daughters, Lisa 7, Kristin 5, and

House Votes Nixon Authority To Confine Govm't Spending

By EDMOND LeBRETON
ASSOCIATED Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has voted to give President Nixon authority to hold back appropriations at his discretion and confine government spending through June 30 to $250 billion.

Nixon had pressed hard for the authority, saying it would ensure that no tax increase will be needed next year. But the bill faces possible trouble in the Senate.

Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., of the Senate Finance Committee, who set a tentative hearing on the measure this afternoon, opposes the broad authority it would give the President, as does Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield.

It was that question of authority over government spending which dominated the House debate and pitted some of its most prominent Democrats against each other.

House approval by a 221-163 vote Tuesday was a triumph for the President, who issued a statement saying, "The nation's taxpayers are the real winners in this action to provide insurance against any need for a tax increase."

The measure contains two sections. The disputed one authorizes the President to hold government spending for the current fiscal year to a maximum of $250 billion and gives him the power, regardless of any other laws, to choose where reductions will be made.

The cuts would range from $6 billion to $10 billion by present estimates.

The other section raises the present $450-billion debt ceiling to $465 billion through June 30. If Congress does not act on the debt ceiling, it drops automatically Oct. 31 to $400 billion, less than the current debt.

There must be some boost in the debt ceiling if Congress is to keep paying its bills after Oct. 31.

The House debate on the spending-ceiling provision found such Democratic leaders as Speaker Carl Albert and Appropriations Committee Chairman George H. Mahon opposing Ways and Means Committee Chairman Wilbur D. Mills.

Albert and other Democratic leaders favored a substitute offered by Mahon, D-Tex. It would have requested the President to submit recommendations for budget cuts, but would have left the ultimate decision to Congress.

The substitute lost, 215 to 167, and the House went on to final passage, with 79 Democrats and 142 Republicans voting yes, and 143 Democrats and 20 Republicans voting no.

Mills argued that inflationary pressures are increasing and Congress must begin to regain control over spending, even with a temporary grant of power to the chief executive.

He said the public demands such action and if the substitute was adopted, "kiss Democratic control of Congress goodbye."

McGovern Avers Peace Only Awaits His Plan

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Sen. George McGovern, outlining the steps he as president would take to end the Vietnam war, says the United States can have peace "any day that we put the saving of lives ahead of the saving of face."

The Democratic presidential nominee presented his seven-point plan in a nationally televised speech Tuesday night. He said he would suspend U.S. bombing, military action and aid to Vietnam on inauguration day, and dispatch his vice president to Hanoi.

Saying President Nixon's "decisive military action" has failed to bring peace to Indochina McGovern declared that his proposal is "a program that will work" and is similar to the method used by France in withdrawing from Indochina in 1954.

The South Dakota senator said there are two basic differences between his plan and Nixon's: the administration's effort to maintain the government of South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu, and the view that military action can successfully end the conflict.

McGovern said Nixon "has had his chance" and failed to produce peace, noting that "40 per cent of all the Americans lost in Vietnam have died in the last four years, died under the present administration."

"Now the answer to failure is not more of the same," he said. "And yet, I fear continued war is what the Nixon administration has in store if they stay in power."

Later in the evening, McGovern spoke to a crowd of aides said numbered 10,000 persons at a $15-a-plate fund-raising dinner.

He declared the choice in the Nov. 7 election is "between endless war in Indochina or the very distinct possibility—and I believe the absolute necessity—that we could have peace in Vietnam, and we could have it any day that we put the saving of lives ahead of the saving of face."

McGovern's Vietnam speech was considered by aides to be one of the most crucial of his entire campaign. It was taped Sunday and carried on the CBS network and other stations at an over-all cost of $170,000, including production costs and time, a McGovern spokesman said.

It followed closely the general proposals the candidate had made on Vietnam in the past, but attempted to fill in the gaps to counter a widespread impression reflected in some surveys that his withdrawal program would not work.

'Routine' Boost

WASHINGTON (AP) — Starting next year, congressmen will get more money for travel home and bigger allowances for stationery.

The House Administration Committee, which has jurisdiction over the allowances, has boosted from 26 to 38 the number of trips home for which a member may claim reimbursement during the two years of the 93rd Congress.

Members who don't visit their districts often, or who live nearby, may waive the allowance and take $2,250 in cash instead of the present $1,500 allowance for the two years.

The new arrangement also boosts from four to six the number of trips the House will pay for employees of each member during the two-year period.

The stationery allowance, which, like the travel allotment, may be drawn in cash if a member chooses, will be hiked next January from $3,500 to $4,250 for each year of the new Congress.

The increases were disclosed in a routine insertion in the Congressional Record.

Withdraw Invitation To Bid On Watershed Work

The Chicod Creek Watershed sponsors are withdrawing their invitation to bid, according to Larry K. Ticker, contracting officer for Pitt County Drainage District No. nine. The invitation issued September 25 called for a public opening of bids on October 26.

A temporary restraining order was issued by U. S. District Judge John D. Larkins, Jr. on Oct. 4, restraining the Drainage District and the U. S. Soil Conservation Service from awarding a contract and beginning construction of the controversial flood control and drainage project in Eastern North Carolina.

At the hearing held last week in New Bern Judge Larkins heard testimony from the Environmentalist organizations alleging that the Chicod Creek Watershed Environmental Statement prepared by the Soil Conservation Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture does not meet the requirements of the National Environmental Policy Act. Attorneys for the U. S. Government and attorneys for the local farmers, who have entered the case as intervenors, presented evidence to support their contention that the federal agency had met all requirements of the law in the preparation of the environmental statement.

Judge Larkins issued the temporary restraining order to maintain the status quo until he can issue a ruling on the sufficiency of the environmental statement.

The Chicod Creek Watershed environmental statement filed by Soil Conservation Service on July 13, states that 66 miles of improved channels will be installed. Only six miles of existing streams with perennial flow not previously channelized will be affected by the project. The other work involves 30 miles of previously channelized streams and 30 miles of new channels that flow only during wet seasons.

The environmental statement lists extensive fish and wildlife mitigation measures including a 12.4 acre fish pond and public access area; 11 rock structures providing 32 acre feet of stream fisheries to be shaded by planted trees; 73 acres of managed wildlife wetland preservation areas; 32 additional water-control structures; and 130 acres of special wildlife plantings paralleling the improved channels through wooded areas. Ten special sediment traps are to be constructed and maintained in the bottom of the channels along with daily seeding of vegetation behind construction equipment and construction from one side only aimed at reducing erosion and sedimentation caused by the project.

I enjoyed looking at the garments entered in our County Fair this year. Most of them — both adult and youth divisions — were quite lovely and well-constructed. However, I noticed that the judges frequently commented about hems, facings, and buttonholes.

Hems: Too bulky, too wide, too narrow, or turned-up portion not trimmed evenly. Check your guidesheet for the suggested hem depth. (2-1/2" is generally recommended for dresses.) Handstitching showed through on a number of the garments.

Facings: Should not be handstitched to the garment all around. If understitching is done as directed by the guidesheet, then tacking at seams and at neck openings is all that is required. Interfacings should be used to add stability and shape to garments.

Buttonholes: Machine-made buttonholes are fine on many garments, but bound buttonholes usually give a more tailored, better-finished garment.

Thursday, October 12, I'll be showing some slides and some samples of Decorative Details in Clothing Construction. Hems, facings, bound buttonholes, and "bulking the bulk" will also be discussed. The demonstration will be held in the Extension Office, corner of Third and Greene Streets (beside Planters National Bank) at 10:00 and then again at 12:15. The 12:15 is especially for the working women. Bring your lunch and join us (coffee and drinks will be available).

Pub Owner Wants Young Company

SOHAM, England (WNS) — Nadine Smith, 18-year-old landlady of the Carpenters Arms pub here, is leading the local campaign to change the law so that 16-year-olds will be permitted to drink in pubs. "I need some lively company while I'm on the job," she said. "It's no fun serving customers who are so much older than I am. It's incredible that 16-year-olds can marry and have children in England but can't drink in a public house." Romance, she added, is not her motive. "I'm just back from honeymoon in Blackpool with the handsomest, 21-year-old Brian in the world," she said.

Big, Little Ones Cost The Same

PAGUERA, Spain (WNS) — Grocer Margherita Puig had a hard time convincing customers that her melons really were a bargain. Her solution: she put a 25-cent price on her big melons and a 25-cent price on her little melons. When the customers pointed out at the little ones cost as much as the big one, Senora Puig replied, "Then the big ones are a bargain, aren't they? Hurry up and buy them!"

Ups And Downs On The Scales Of Justice

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Charles Tilton-H. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: "COOLVILLE, OHIO" was disgusted with jury duty and wanted to know if her experience was unique.

I had the same disgusting experience in San Diego. One juror said, "If we don't find this man guilty we will never be asked to serve on jury duty again, and that's the way I make a little extra money, so let's make it unanimous and go home."

My husband served on a jury in Tuscaloosa, Ala. He said a cafe owner was being tried for arson. Another juror, a salesman in one of the stores, said they should find the accused guilty because he had voted to keep the stores open on Thursday afternoons instead of closing them as was the custom during the summer months.

TWO FORMER JURORS

DEAR ABBY: I served on a jury in Columbus, Ohio, and I received the most valuable lesson on being an American in all my 52 years of life.

I used to sneer about the rich getting away with murder while the poor languished in prisons, but when we heard the case of a convict accused during the prison riots in Ohio you wouldn't have believed the way the judge, lawyers and jurors bent over backwards to weigh all the evidence and come to a fair conclusion. The accused was already a convict, he was black and uneducated, but we jurors tried to put ourselves in his place. We knew in our hearts that man was not guilty! And we judged him innocent!

FORMER CYNIC IN COLUMBUS

DEAR ABBY: After passing judgments on several cases, one of the women jurors told us she made all her decisions by following the horoscope!

I pray God I am never tried by a jury of my peers.

APPALLED IN L.A.

DEAR ABBY: When I was serving on a jury in New Mexico the foreman suggested that we give the "poor woman" who was suing in a personal injuries case everything she wanted because the insurance company had plenty of money. I had the feeling the "poor woman" was lying on the stand, but everyone else was for letting her sock it to them, and I'm ashamed to admit they talked me into it.

STILL ASHAMED

DEAR ABBY: I served on a jury with 10 honest sincere people who all agreed on a verdict of "Not Guilty." But a romance had developed between a married woman and a very stubborn, prejudiced, closed-minded man. We needed 11 "not guilty" votes, but the man held out and the woman refused to go against him, so the trial had to be rescheduled four months later.

WASTE OF TIME IN GEORGIA

DEAR ABBY: I served on a jury. One of the women jurors refused to believe the accused could be guilty of rape because he had such a nice-looking mother. Another juror (a man) said, "But his chin is so weak, he can't possibly have any character." Another one said, "Let's not come to a hasty decision. The county is paying for all the meals, and the food is sure good here."

LEARNED A LOT IN OKLAHOMA

DEAR ABBY: Re jury duty. Having recently served a month's jury duty [criminal cases, Detroit] I wish to praise the organization of the court, the consideration accorded the accused, and the common sense and courage of my fellow jurors. We thoroughly discussed each case and arrived at what we felt were fair and sound verdicts. My jury experience has strengthened my faith in our courts.

PROUD IN DETROIT

DEAR ABBY: I served on a jury once and was appalled by the ignorance of some so-called intelligent people. One woman [a professor's wife] voted "guilty" because of the way the defendant's jaw muscles moved when he talked. Another juror suggested we wrap it up as soon as possible because he had tickets to a football game and wanted to get there early. Imagine! One half hour of "deliberation" sent a man to prison from 8 to 12 years. I couldn't sleep for a week because I felt the accused wasn't given half a chance.

DISHEARTENED IN MASS.

DEAR ABBY: I served in L.A. Superior Court. Every day one of the male jurors brought a small bottle of bourbon. He and the other male jurors, plus a couple of ladies, would nip all day long. I could never understand how the bailiff never noticed or how he failed to smell it.

I shudder when I think that such people are deciding the "guilt" or "innocence" of others.

Many People Put It Together

This is National Newspaper Week. It is not our intention here to pat ourselves on the back and tell our readers what a great job we are doing. We make every effort to publish an outstanding newspaper, and if our readers find it informative and provocative then we feel we are fulfilling our mission.

We would like to point out that while our news staff, photographers editors, teletypes and other news gathering equipment are important to the publishing of The Daily Reflector, there are other

Basic Changes Facing Voters

By BRYAN HAILSIP
RALEIGH — North Carolina citizens doing their homework for the Nov. 7 general election could benefit from a course in constitutional law as well as political science.

Five significant changes in the state's basic document are before the voters, as well as a long list of aspirants for offices from the White House to the county courthouse.

BRYAN HAILSIP

In the nature of things, people generate more excitement than policy. Although the public may be surfeited with campaign rhetoric for candidates, relatively little has been said to help them make up their minds on the constitutional questions.

The inescapable prospect is that the larger body of voters will go into the polling booth with only a smattering of ignorance to guide them to a decision on the amendments.

Wide Ranging Issues
Issues at stake range from ecology to urban growth, the procedure to remove unfit judges from office, how old a judge should be and still remain on the bench, how young a candidate should be and still run for election.

All five have attracted some degree of championship and opposition. None has received public exposure and discussion comparable to that for hardly any candidate on the ballot.

How the proposition is stated doesn't always prepare the voter to give the "Yes" or "No" answer that is required. Necessarily, the ballot wording has to capsule the amendment as it will fit into the context of the constitution.

At best, what the voter reads is less than a full explanation of the end to be achieved. At worst, it can be misleading and create confusions.

Here is how the five amendments will appear on the Nov. 7 ballot:

- List of Amendments
1. For or Against state constitutional amendment reducing the voting age to 18 years and providing that only persons 21 years of age or older shall be eligible for elective office.
 2. For or Against constitutional amendment to require the General Assembly to prescribe maximum age limits for service as a justice or judge.
 3. For or Against constitutional amendment authorizing the General Assembly to prescribe procedures for the censure and removal of justices and judges of the General Court of Justice.

"4. For or Against constitutional amendment to conserve and protect North Carolina's natural resources.

"5. For or Against constitutional amendment limiting incorporation of cities and towns."

The amendment process requires that a proposed change in the state constitution be approved by a three-fifths majority in each house of the General Assembly before being placed on the ballot. It gains full force and effect only upon ratification at the polls.

While designed to discourage tampering with the state's basic law, the procedure manages to produce a spate of amendments almost every election. Seven were on the ticket two years ago.

Ironically, one of them was a rewrite of the whole stitution which advocates hoped would slow down the flow of amendments.

Three Have Opposition
The first three amendments have developed visible opposition. The fourth appears to enjoy widespread support, while the fifth is being actively promoted by municipal leaders.

Youth spokesmen are vocal for the defeat of the first, arguing that lowering the voting age to 18 should be accompanied by the right to run for elective office.

The sharpest controversy centers on the second and third amendments on the ballot. Drafted by the N.C. Courts Commission and endorsed by the bar, the proposals for mandatory judicial retirement and a censure and removal procedure have drawn fire from the judiciary.

The considerable political weight of U.S. Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., also is arraigned against the changes. Ervin, a former Superior Court judge and State Supreme Court justice and father of a present Superior Court judge, said the changes would rob the bench of experience and weaken its independence.

Hargrove (Skipper) Bowles Jr., Democratic candidate for governor, sponsored the fourth amendment as a state senator. Styled an environmental bill of rights, it would make protection of natural resources a part of basic state policy.

The N.C. League of Municipalities is campaigning for the fifth amendment. It would make difficult the incorporation of new towns within the fringe growth area of present cities, based on a population-mileage formula.

departments also which make the daily miracle of printing a newspaper possible.

The advertising and business personnel provide the revenues which are essential to keeping a vigorous newspaper alive.

All the local news and wire service copy go to a composing room where the material is set into type by the latest photo composition methods. The gleaming white strips of type are "pasted to layout pages, headlines and photos are added and soon a completed page takes shape.

From there the pages go to a camera which shoots a negative of the page from which metal plates are made. The plates are placed on the Goss Urbanite press that is capable of turning out 40,000 papers per hour. A conveyor carries the newspapers to the circulation department where one man works pretty hard just removing the papers from the conveyor, as the press spews them out. Then the papers are prepared for delivery. Sometimes additional sections are inserted. They are bundled up for the local newspaper carriers and delivered in bundles around the city. Motor route carriers pick up their bundles at the plant for rural delivery while papers for the mail are being stamped.

It has been said that newspapers are the only business which design and build a new product every day. This is possible because there are skilled people all along the line who perform their duties under the constant pressure of a deadline.

It is exciting and satisfying work and during this observance of National Newspaper Week we thought it fitting to pay tribute to those who do all the jobs which get the newspaper out each day.

Almost Hostile Tone Detected

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
BROOKLYN — Sen. George McGovern's increasingly harsh attacks on President Nixon, far from lifting his campaign out of the rut here, are being turned against him by working-class Catholics, many of them old-line Democrats, as one more reason to vote for Mr. Nixon.

That conclusion is inescapable from our talks with 104 lower middle-income Italian, Polish and Irish Catholic voters, half in the Williamsburg and Green Point sections of Brooklyn and half in suburban Mount Vernon.

"I just can't take the way McGovern is knocking his opponents," the pretty wife of a New York City fireman told us. A straight Democratic voter until she switched to George Wallace in 1968, she added: "I'm sure he didn't feel this way about Nixon before he started running for President."

The fireman's wife, a registered Democrat, was restrained compared to some others. A Republican with a lifetime union membership card angrily spat out: "That fellow's knocking below the belt."

Thus to the already lengthy litany of reasons given by voters here for opposing McGovern must now be added McGovern's escalating attacks on the President for running the "trickiest, most deceitful Administration in our entire national history" (as he told the New York Liberal party last week).

With the help of national pollster Oliver Quayle's expert field team, we screened out all but registered Catholic voters in a political scouting tour to learn whether McGovern's hardening line on law and order, drugs and high-level Republican corruption were swinging the blue-collar vote his way. For McGovern, our finds are depressing.

Thus, our voters' almost 2-to-1 Nixon margin over Hubert H. Humphrey in 1968 has turned into an almost 7-to-1 Nixon margin over McGovern: 81 for Nixon, 12 for McGovern, 11 not sure. Yet, old habits die hard.

These ethnic Catholics still show a strong Democratic registration: 49 Democrats and 36 Republicans (the balance either independent or couldn't remember).

The great Catholic swing to the Republicans during the Eisenhower years, arrested by John F. Kennedy in 1960 and the Goldwater debacle of 1964, now seems to be in flood tide. For McGovern, scorned by many of these blue-collar workers as the champion of long-haired kids, welfare, amnesty and defeat in Vietnam, the flight seems beyond stopping.

McGovern has been talking hard of late about the need for tough measures to deal with drugs and crime in the streets, but many of our voters don't believe him. Said a 23-year-old Green Point housewife: "He's always changing his position. He's suddenly come out against violence and crime in New York but he never mentioned it before."

That bitter complaint — that McGovern's campaign promises are not credible — was heard over and over: "He changes his mind too much"; "He changes what he says"; "He's like a teenager"; "Too many promises."

The single well-established McGovern position that showed some political promise for him is his pledge to cut defense spending, but even here the prospect seems severely limited. Thus, although our voters gave him a higher ranking on ability to handle that issue over any other, including the economy, 66 said the President would do better than he on defense and only 24 said he would do better than Mr. Nixon. Moreover, the defense issue ranked lowest in our voters' perception as a major problem. Far in the lead was drugs-crime, and on handling that 52 voters gave the nod to Mr. Nixon over 21 for McGovern.

Furthermore, a tone of hostility toward McGovern was clearly evident among many of these old-line Democrats on the Vietnam and amnesty questions. The crux: that McGovern would

Strength For Today

SOMETIMES A BRIGHT PATHWAY

Trouble is always hard to bear. When it comes upon us we weep and wring our hands. Yet very often what appears to be misfortune is a shining pathway down which our feet may walk to a place of great usefulness.

At the very height of his mental powers Dr. Monn, of Brighton, England, was stricken with blindness. At first he was plunged into despair. Within a few years, however, he could keep a record which enabled him by the sense of touch to recall all that he had heard. Finally he passed this on to the general public and it made reading possible for thousands of other blind people.

If Helen Keller had had all her faculties intact she might have become a great woman, but it is hard to think that she could have been more useful than she was all her life in spite of indescribable handicaps. In fact, these very handicaps dramatized her career in the eyes of multitudes and greatly increased her influence.

The Bible tells us that all these things work together for good to them that love God. A divine destiny shapes our ends, and that which often appears a misfortune may be really a blessing in disguise. The thing that restrains us today may be the means of releasing new powers within us tomorrow. Trouble is often an angel of light dressed in somber garments.

Adapt The Commercials

WASHINGTON — The political television commercials are now starting to appear on our television screens. Some of them are pretty boring; others are rather tough on the opponents.

It seems to me that the men in charge of making up advertising campaigns for our presidential candidates could do just as well if they would take the TV commercials that are now on the air and paraphrase them for their own use.

For example, I could see Pat Nixon cooking a steak over a campfire. She says to the audience, "I've been First Lady for almost four years and yet I feel younger now than when Dick first took the job as President. That's because I exercise, get eight hours sleep, eat right and take iron for my blood. Dick treats me better now than he did when I use to wear a cloth coat."

Just then we see Richard Nixon walking toward Pat. He's dressed in a plaid wool shirt and blue jeans. He comes behind her and kisses her on the neck. Then he says to the camera, "My wife, I think I'll keep her."

Another one could show Sen. George McGovern and his wife in their home.

McGovern says, "I don't feel like going out and campaigning today. I just seem so sluggish and tired these days."

Eleanor looks at him and asks, "Is it uh... irregularity?"

McGovern nods his head sheepishly.

"I have just the thing for it," She holds up a blue bottle. We cut to McGovern at a rally. He's smiling and happy. The crowds are cheering. He hugs Eleanor and says, "I feel great, thanks to you."

Eleanor giggles, "...and Snow White Formula 67."

Another commercial could show Spiro Agnew on the golf course playing with Arnie Palmer. Then the camera cuts to the country club locker room. "That was great fun," Agnew says as he takes off his shirt. "I wish I didn't have to go out now and face those rotten, miserable kids. They hate me. I can't understand why."

Arnie Palmer says, "Maybe it has something to do with underarm perspiration."

Agnew says, "But I use a deodorant."

"Yes," says Arnie, holding up a can, "but maybe you need a dry one that last all day. When you're out campaigning, most deodorants won't give you 24-hour protection." Agnew takes the can from Arnie.

We cut to Agnew on a college campus. A group of kids, all with beards and wearing beads, are crowded around him and they're laughing. "We want Spiro! We want Spiro!" they start chanting. Then Agnew turns to the camera and winks. "Arnie was right. All deodorants aren't alike."

The final commercial idea could show Sarge Shriver. First he's eating a pizza in an Italian neighborhood, then he's eating a frankfurter in a Jewish delicatessen, then he's eating Polish ham in a Polish restaurant, then he's eating an Idaho potato on a farm.

If You Look Back—

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Memory is the best monument. Time erodes it but little, air pollution does not stain it, storms do not chip it away, and the idle malice of empty minds cannot deface it with aimless scrawlings.

Yes, our memories endure, as few things do, comparatively changeless. If they do weather at all, it is for the better, as passion is replaced by compassion, and with the passage of the years the past wears a kinder aspect than when it first confronted us when our days were all still new.

HAL BOYLE

You are host to many memories yourself if you can look back and remember when—

Back in 1921, a forgotten group known as the Committee of Fourteen solemnly reported that New York City had less open crime than any other big city in the world.

That same year Warren G. Harding became the first president to put a radio in the White House.

You could write your congressman and get back a free packet of garden seeds.

One of the excuses a small boy could give his teacher for being tardy was the claim he couldn't find his shoe buttoner.

A heart patient was warned that, above all, he must avoid exercise. On the other hand, some doctors still thought that tuberculosis patients could benefit by going horseback riding in winter.

Every small town had at least one haunted house — and one haunted mind, known by all as the village idiot.

You had to guess what time it was if you were out of sight of the county courthouse clock.

It was hard to tell which was the best-dressed man in town during the work week — the banker or the undertaker.

More grownups than teenagers wore blue jeans.

Newlyweds bought twin beds and wondered how their parents had put up with sleeping in a double bed for a lifetime. Today they buy king-size beds so they can be alone while together.

One of the memorable shocks of a young boy's life was to stumble into the parental bedroom and see his red-faced father struggling to lace his mother into a tight corset before they went out to a fancy ball.

All the electric lights were in the towns and cities. All the kerosene lamps burned in farm windows.

Some old-fashioned communities, fearful of the traffic hazards created by that new-fangled monster, the motor car.

Price-Earnings Ratio Factor

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Which is the better investment: A company with a price-earnings ratio of 35 or one with a P-E of 7?

It could be either. A lot of factors other than P-E, which is the ratio of a stock's price to the company's earnings per share, determine the quality of an investment.

An understanding of the P-E ratio is especially pertinent today, now that it has been added to the stock market tables carried by many newspapers.

The P-E ratio, related to other information, offers a concise insight into the possible merits of an investment. It is an essential ingredient, a pointer. It is used by analysts, quoted by brokers.

All things are relative in the securities markets, however, and the P-E takes on significance mainly in relation to other factors within the company, the industry and the economy. It is, in effect, an invitation to further study.

A textbook used by brokerage houses in training employees states flatly: "A high and rising price-earnings ratio is a sign of strength."

But, as is demonstrated regularly, the truth might be found in precisely the opposite conclusion. The high P-E might result from a badly inflated opinion of the company's future. It is a common enough occurrence.

Some companies, for example, attract more attention than others. They may be glamorous; they make an exotic or essential product, publicize their achievements and grow swiftly.

Inspired by this aura, investors are willing to pay a higher price per share for a piece of a company with such bright prospects. They bid up the price — and with it, of course, the price-earnings ratio.

"This isn't the work only of individual investors. The big institutions — the pension and mutual funds, the trusts and insurance companies — sometimes have a tendency to share a high opinion of the same stock.

From time to time, however, there come reassessments. The company's profits might not grow as fast as had been anticipated. The product might be found to have flaws. Or it might simply be that the industry has fallen out of fashion.

As was learned in the price collapses of 1969-1970, P-E ratios can become badly distorted. And so, if unrelated to other facts and events, the ratio is not always a reliable guide.

Company A is a 40-year-old firm with sales of $500 million a year, growing at 4 to 5 per cent a year. It has always been profitable and, in fact, has been paying dividends at the rate of 6.8 per cent a year.

Company B is a seven-year-old firm with sales of $50 million a year, growing at a rate of 15 per cent a year. For three years it failed to return a profit, but has been in the black for the past five. It pays no dividends.

Company A conceivably could have a P-E ratio of 7 because, in effect, it attracts and rewards investors by its high dividend rather than great growth. Company B might have a 35 P-E, based solely on future expectations.

There is also a matter of perspective involved with the P-E. The current figure is based on past performance — it is the number of times earnings for the latest 12-month period, the most significant factual basis for the calculation.

That too calls for some explanation. The market always looks ahead. It projects rather than looks back. It is necessary, therefore, to relate that P-E to anticipations. If it appears that a company is having a banner year, a high P-E may be justified.

In summary, the P-E ratio, when related to other factual data and used in the manner of the professionals, is considered a valuable new addition to the tables, alongside such items as sales, high and low prices and dividends.

Police Community Relations Workshop 'Helpful'

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

"It's been one of the best schools we've had," Police Chief Glenn Cannon remarked. Cannon was speaking of the Police and Community Relations workshop school that has been going on for nearly a month in Greenville, and that will end on Thursday this week.

Since September 18, on Monday through Friday of each week beginning at 9:00 a.m. and lasting until noon, several leaders in the field of human relations and constitutional law have been discussing various topics and both police force members and young people of the community.

Sponsored jointly by the Greenville Police Department and the Community Relations Division of the North Carolina Human Relations Commission, the school was planned by Police Chief Cannon and Jesse Harris, director of Greenville Human Relations and Executive Secretary of the Human Relations Council.

"I hope this school provides better understanding between police and the community," Harris commented, "and that it will help open up better channels of communications between members of the Police Department and citizens of the community." Harris said he feels that a school such as this is vital in helping to "provide a greater degree of understanding for everybody involved."

"I think the men learned a great deal, talking and discussing various subjects with people giving the classes," Cannon observed. "I attended the school myself and got a great deal out of it."

Among those conducting the workshop school during the month were Pete Freeman, Boyce Medlin, Sid Hergi and John Synder. They dealt with subjects that covered constitutional law, methods of arrest, maintaining good community relations, ways in which police can do an efficient job without offending and other general topics of police-community relations.

Students from Aycock Junior High School and Rose High School attended several of the sessions. Like the police, students were encouraged to ask questions and to give their viewpoint on inter-relationships of policemen and citizens.

This type of workshop, the first held in Greenville, is a relatively new concept in North Carolina. Similar sessions have been held in several North Carolina towns — Charlotte, Winston-Salem, Greensboro, etc., and is expected to be used more and more in smaller cities and towns throughout the state.

Broughton In Nixon Camp

RALEIGH (AP) — The man who lost the Democratic gubernatorial nomination to Gov. Bob Scott four years ago, J. Melville Broughton Jr., is joining the Committee for the Re-Election of the President in North Carolina.

Broughton announced Tuesday that he would become a co-chairman of the state committee along with Charles R. Jonas Jr.

Broughton had earlier endorsed the candidacy of Republican Senate nominee Jesse Helms and had endorsed a Republican congressional candidate in 1970.

"President Nixon, during the past four years, has given to the country and to the world leadership of the highest caliber," Broughton told a news conference.

"While polls and other indicators show the president with a commanding lead in North Carolina as of now, nevertheless it should be the firm and determined responsibility of all citizens to work diligently and continuously to bring a majority vote in North Carolina," he added.

The next morning Sarge, refreshed and sparking, says to Eunice, "Well, I've got to go to a catfish fry at the All Souls Baptist Church this morning, so just give me some of your delicious scrambled eggs, bacon and an English muffin for breakfast."

Eunice puts her arms around Sarge's neck and smiles into the camera. "My husband, I think I'll keep him."

Milk Producers Ask For Increased Price

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina farmers say the cost of producing milk is going up, and they have asked for a 3 1/2 per cent increase in the price they get for milk used for drinking.

The request was made to the North Carolina Milk Commission at a public hearing Tuesday. The commission is not expected to make a decision on the request before its Oct. 24 meeting.

A 3 1/2 per cent boost would raise the price the farmers receive from $7.68 to $7.95 per hundred pounds. This is for Class 1, or fluid milk.

Such a price increase would lead to a hike of a penny a quart in the price of milk in retail stores.

Spokesmen for several farm organizations said the increase is urgently needed.

Charles D. Colvard of Greensboro, manager of the N.C. Milk Producers Federation, said unless Tar Heel farmers are paid more for their milk, they cannot compete in the labor market, borrow capital for expansion and meet other rising costs.

He noted that the last Class 1 producer price increase was in December, 1970.

Lloyd M. Massey of Wayne County, chairman of the state Grange dairy committee, said, "It is shocking that over 100 dairy farmers went out of business in the first seven months of this year." He said a producer price increase is needed to assure an adequate supply of milk.

James M. Parks of Union Grove, a dairy farmer and former commission member, said farmers "should not be timid" and should ask for a price hike of at least 5 per cent.

But Harold Anderson, manager of Durham Dairy Products, said that the increase should not be over 15 cents a hundred pounds.

Other distributors asked that several cream items such as half and half and eggnog be changed Class 1 to the non-fluid category, Class II. This would lower the blend price to farmers by two to three cents per 100 pounds.

Rotarians Count 4 Generations

Four generations of Smileys attended the meeting of the Rotary Club of Greenville at Monday evening's meeting.

Rotarian Wendell Smiley was accompanied by his father, A. L. Smiley, 86, of Asheville; his son, John Stevenson Smiley, and his 3-year-old grandson, Riddick Smiley, of Greenville.

Riddick Smiley is also the grandson of Dr. O. R. Pearce, Jr., who is a Greenville Rotarian.

Four 'Strange' Plants Uprooted

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Four "strange looking plants" growing amidst tomatoes and beans in a senior citizens housing complex were uprooted by police.

The plants were described by the narcotics squad Tuesday as "four very healthy, neatly kept marijuana plants over six feet tall."

Senior citizens at the apartment complex said they had been tending their garden all summer not knowing those "strange looking plants" were illegal.

One 76-year-old man said, "They looked pretty good in there with all the rest of the plants so we decided to keep them."

Police said no arrests were made because possession could not be proved.

Judge Declares It Irrelevant

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A Superior Court judge has ruled in favor of a woman who refused to disclose her weight when registering to vote.

Judge C. Kimball Rose agreed Tuesday with Florence Diego that knowledge of her weight "has nothing to do with voting."

Mandatory disclosure of weight is not a legal requirement when registering to vote in Arizona, the judge declared.

Mrs. Diego turned to the court after Maricopa County Recorder Paul Marston refused to register her Aug. 3 because she omitted her weight on voter registration forms.

Marston contended he was required by law to demand the information, useful in preventing voter fraud.

One 'Catch' In McGovern Plan

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — George McGovern's plan to end U.S. involvement in Vietnam has a catch that could leave him in the same position now held by President Nixon: bombing the North until prisoners are released.

Although the Democratic presidential nominee said Tuesday that he would order an immediate end to bombing and all acts of force in Indochina upon taking office, he apparently left himself a loophole.

"After all our prisoners have been returned, and we have received a satisfactory accounting of any missing men," McGovern told a national television audience, "I would order the secretary of Defense and the joint chiefs to close our bases in Thailand . . ."

He would indicate McGovern would keep a residual force available for use if the prisoners were not released. And, while he gave no indication he would expect any trouble from North Vietnam over the POWs, McGovern inserted a condition on a total disavowal of the use of force in Indochina. After outlining his plans for an immediate end to U.S. military acts and a 90-day limit for an American pullout from Indochina, McGovern said he would instruct U.S. negotiators in Paris to:

"Notify the representatives of the other side that we have taken these steps to end the hostilities, and that we now expect that they will accept their obligation under their own seven-point proposal of 1971 to return all prisoners of war and to account for all missing in action. We will expect that process to be completed within 90 days . . ."

$2.4 Million Suit Filed Against Rex Hospital

RALEIGH (AP) — A $2.4 million damage suit has been filed against Rex Hospital in Raleigh asking that the institution be permanently barred from "further unlawful interference with efforts to relocate and modernize Mary Elizabeth Hospital."

The suit was filed Tuesday in U.S. Eastern District Court by attorneys for Mary Elizabeth. It charges Rex with conspiring to "fix, maintain and allocate" the number of hospital beds in the Raleigh area and with conspiring to restrain trade in violation of federal anti-trust laws.

The defendants in the suit include the Rex trustees and George Stockbridge, executive director of the Health Planning Council for Central North Carolina.

Board Of Inquiry Studies Why Pilot Ejected From His F-4

MACDILL AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (AP) — A military board of inquiry is trying to figure out why Air Force Capt. Edwin M. Gibbons ejected from an F4 Phantom jet Tuesday and was found dead in the Gulf of Mexico a short time later.

Gibbons, 30, of Chapin, S.C., was an instructor pilot flying in the rear seat of the fighter piloted by Capt. Jessie Keith Beavers Tuesday morning when he suddenly bailed out over the Gulf about 50 miles southwest of the Tampa air base.

His body was recovered Tuesday afternoon by a Coast Guard cutter, and then transported back to the base via a Coast Guard helicopter. Taylor said Capt. Gibbons' wife lived at the base with her husband, and was standing by with squadron officers when her husband's fate became known.

The inquiry board, convened just minutes after word came from Beavers that his companion had ejected, will be headed by an Air Force colonel who is flying into MacDill from an out-of-State base. He is expected early today.

"The board will take testimony and look at all the evidence," Taylor said. "It hasn't wanted to release anything to me because the board hasn't made any real findings yet. At this point, everything is just speculation."

Greenlee Kiwanis, Rotary, Exchange and Civitan clubs were represented by Les Garner, Dr. James Butler, J. T. Manning and Halbert Lowder respectively.

Galifianakis Blasts Sec. Of Agriculture

RALEIGH (AP) — Democratic Senate nominee Nick Galifianakis has blasted Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz for what he called a "shocking lack of foresight and callous disregard" for the needs of North Carolina farmers.

The congressman said in a statement issued in Raleigh Tuesday that experts say North Carolina farmers should be receiving anywhere from $1.33 to $1.52 per bushel for their corn. But he said they are averaging only $1.22 — one cent above the national average.

"But surely USDA officials were aware of this situation before it became critical," he said. The failure to foresee the shortage and avert it, he said, "reflects a disturbing lack of concern about the plight of Tar Heel farmers."

He said the problem also involves the lack of adequate on-farm storage and drying facilities. With the Nixon administration's "policies of rationing credit and high interest rates, the small farmers of North Carolina simply cannot afford to provide these facilities," he said.

Galifianakis promised if elected to take "positive action" to solve problems of Tar Heel agriculture. Utah's state animal is the Rocky Mountain elk.

Scholars Are Selected For Weekend At ECU

More than a hundred of North Carolina's most brilliant high school seniors have accepted invitations to attend the Ninth Annual Scholarship Weekend, Oct. 14-16 at East Carolina University.

Dr. Donald Bailey, Dean of the general college and chairman of the "Scholarship Weekend Committee" says he expects that a total of 125-150 students, selected from among the National Merit Semifinalists and high scorers on the Scholastic Aptitude Test, will attend the event.

The program is designed to acquaint participants with the academic programs and student activities on campus. While attending, students will receive information and advice concerning ECU National Merit and Academic Scholarships.

Highlights planned for the visitors include the ECU-Citadel football game and the J. Geils Band concert on Saturday, a banquet Sunday night with ECU Chancellor Dr. Leo Jenkins as speaker, and class visitations on Monday. Also scheduled are interest group meetings, tours, a special honors class, films, panel discussions and a jazz concert.

Members of the "League of Scholars", all of whom are scholarship recipients, will serve as student hosts and hostesses.

Scholarship Weekend originated with the Gifted Student Committee in 1964 and has increased in popularity and effectiveness each year.

Homecoming On Oct. 15

BEAR GRASS — Homecoming Day of the Rehoboth Pentecostal Holiness Church in this Martin County community will be held Sunday, Oct. 15.

The annual homecoming program of this church will climax a five-day revival series, beginning Wednesday, Oct. 11, with the pastor, the Rev. Jimmy Cole Williams, preaching during the revival and also delivering the homecoming sermon at the request of the official board of the church.

Following the morning worship, an open-air dinner will be served on the church grounds at 12:30 p.m. During the afternoon there will be a gospel sing with several musical groups appearing on the program.

There will be no Sunday evening service following the homecoming day program.

Students Play Role In Clean-Up Effort

Ninth grade students at Aycock Junior High School are actively showing serious concern about ecology through studies, a clean-up program and project planning.

Currently, well over 150 ninth graders in three groups are enrolled in a new exploratory course in the school's curriculum, one entitled "Environmental and Occupational Education."

Miss Doris Hardy, Mrs. Betty Speight and Larry Dobbins are faculty members working with the group.

Miss Hardy spoke about some of the work being carried out and related other plans, including long-range ones.

"A group of students have taken the name 'STAG,'" Miss Hardy said, "and are involved in an operation clean up around the school STAG stands for 'Students Take Action Group.'"

Just now they are at work in a dual program to clean and beautify the area "between the athletic field and the school," Miss Hardy remarked. "It has been quite a job, there was much there to be cleaned up," she continued. "they have planted flower bulbs and are rooting flowers in the classroom."

According to Miss Hardy, personnel of the Maintenance Department of the Greenville City Schools were most helpful. "They hauled away at least five dump truck loads of trash and undergrowth," she stated.

Plan World Wildlife Animal Park

WINSTON, Ore. (AP) — Developers of World Wildlife Safari, a new 300-acre animal park here, plan a full recreational complex designed to attract 400,000 tourists annually to Southern Oregon.

Walker and Lee Real Estate, Anaheim, Calif., and South Umpqua Properties, a local company, say they will eventually add another 150 acres to the park, near Interstate 5—the major north-south highway on the West Coast.

After that, they plan motels, restaurants, gift shops, campgrounds, a golf course, condominiums, apartments and single family homes.

Completed, the development would cover 2,300 acres of wooded hills. Its permanent population would include about 225 Asian, African and North American animals and about 1,000 families.

Frank Hart, president of Walker and Lee, whose company is expected to supply 80 per cent of the financing, said development of the wildlife park will cost $1 million, including funds for roads, a visitors' center and fences to confine the animals to their park sections.

Work on the 400-acre housing area should begin next year, he said. Lots near an 18-hole golf course will be sold to those who want to build their own homes.

The developers have asked the Douglas County planning commission to approve the project as a planned unit development, defined as a subdivision designed to provide a recreation area for residents' use. Should the commission deny the request, the City of Winston—a town of 2,600—could annex the property to allow the project to proceed.

"The city would welcome them with open arms," said Al Hooten, Winston city manager.

Although the development could mean a boom in Winston's economy, it "is probably going to put an increased load on our facilities," Hooten said. The first hints of a boom have already been dropped. Hooten said several persons have called him about possible restaurant sites and two national motel chains have taken property options.

"We haven't been able to lure or beg anyone to come into this area in the past," he said.

Corporation Ombudsman

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI)—Robert H. Gudger is probably the first "ombudsman" employed by any major American corporation.

His official title is employee relations manager for the Xerox Corporation in Monroe County. But his unique duties have gained him the title of the functionary who for more than 100 years in Scandinavian countries has inquired into citizen complaints against administrative officials.

The company calls him its "conscience" in the area and he reports directly to James P. O'Neill, president of Xerox's Information Technology Group (ITG). But he is equally responsible to the rank and file employee when investigating their complaints and making recommendations.

Gudger also continuously reviews administrative practices, develops programs to correct deficiencies, and helps evaluate progress of the employee resources program in ITG and other Monroe County operations of the company.

Reconstructing A Sea Monster

DALLAS (AP) — Bob H. Slaughter, a paleontologist at Southern Methodist University, is in the process of mounting an 80 million-year-old sea monster found in early April near here.

Slaughter says the remains he is reconstructing are those of a plesiosaur, a sea creature which had fins instead of feet. He says the monster lived in a seaway which linked the Gulf of Mexico with the Pacific Northwest.

The 25-foot specimen was found in a drainage ditch excavation near the regional airport which is being built between here and Fort Worth.

No Opposition To Annexation

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville Board of Aldermen Monday night approved an ordinance for annexation of the Robinson Heights Subdivision No. 2 and Shamrock Terrace Subdivision.

Robinson Heights, located just behind the Robinson Union School, contains 22.75 acres, while Shamrock Terrace, located between Main and Cooper Streets, includes about 15 acres.

No oral or written opposition was voiced at the public hearing held Monday night. According to Elwood Nobles, town clerk, the property was annexed by petition of the owners.

In other business, the board appointed Raymond Cox to succeed George Cox on the Winterville Planning and Zoning Board. Board members accepted the resignation of Ralph Crawford from the board of adjustments. Crawford resigned due to business reasons.

William O. Carmen was named to fill the unexpired term of Crawford on the board of adjustments.

Local representatives for the Mid-East Commission were named municipal representative, E.C. Hines was named governmental representative, and W.C. Haislip, Winterville chief of police, the law enforcement representative on the commission.

The board purchased a half page advertisement in the D.H. Conley yearbook for $40.

Request Statewide Program On Drugs

The United Health Services Committee of Community Drug Programs has requested of the N. C. Drug Authority a $996,800 statewide drug education program called "You Choose."

The proposed education program is founded on the belief that if people are given the facts about the non-medical use of drugs and an opportunity to think about those facts in a structured environment, they will choose not to use drugs in seeking identity of escape.

According to the "You Choose" budget, $95,000 is earmarked to a city, a town, and a rural school system for a K-12 model drug-health education program. Some $12,500 is budgeted for the biennium for teacher-counselor, school nurse inservice drug training throughout the state. The largest amount, $640,000 is set aside for community-based program grants. According to the proposal, school systems, schools, police departments, sheriff departments, mental health centers, mini-grant teams, drug action committees, outreach program, treatment programs, Mental Health Associations, civic club, youth organizations, and the like would be eligible to receive grants so long as the group is competent, present a meritorious proposal, and agrees to the standard granting procedures.

Both the REAL House here and the East Carolina Regional Drug Program are named as supporters of the committee's proposals.

Questions relating to specific aims, including membership increase and cost-of-living benefits for retired personnel, were discussed following Dr. Carroll's presentation.

F. D. Duncan, retired Vice President of East Carolina University, Greenville, director of NCRGEA and member of the Association's executive committee, presided over the session and opened the meeting with a statement of the organization's objectives.

Society Seeks Add Members

The Eastern North Carolina Genealogical Society is seeking charter members.

The group meets the third Monday of each month at 7:30 p.m. at Craven Technical Institute. At the last meeting, Donald Taylor, curator of education at Tryon Palace, talked on restoration and showed slides of the John Wright Stanley Home before and after it was restored.

Anyone interested in history and learning about his ancestors is invited to join.

Ayden-Grifton Meets Rams In Key Game

After somewhat of a brief respite, the Greene Central Rams and the Ayden-Grifton Chargers are at it again — playing another key game in the Eastern Carolina Conference football race.

This time, however, the two are going against each other, and it is a must game for the Rams. A loss would knock them from about any hope of winning the title.

Southern Nash remained in a tie with Ayden-Grifton for the league lead, both posting 5-0 records with the season just over half completed. Greene Central is just a step back with a 4-1 mark and must hope that they go unbeaten from here on out.

Southern Nash, meanwhile, appears to have crossed all hurdles but one — Ayden-Grifton, and they meet next week.

That means that for the Chargers to do the job, they must win back-to-back games with their two leading contenders — and A-G Coach Mike Overton agrees that it's going to be a big job.

In other action this weekend, North Pitt will travel to C. B. Aycock in the battle that will probably decide the basement: Eastern Wayne meets Southern Nash.

Overton was pleased with his club's victory over Aycock last week. "Offensively, we executed the best we have all year," he said. "Our defense did another outstanding job; they kept us in the game until our offense got cranked up."

Tony Koonce again was the man for the Chargers, rolling up another 100-plus yard game. "He's really done a fine job for us," Overton said. "In the four games he's started in, he's picked up over 700 yards."

Overton also singled out the play of Greg Nelson and Milton Brown, who teamed for two aerial touchdowns, and praised the entire defensive unit's play.

"Greene Central will be one of our toughest games," Overton said. "The only way they can stay in the race is to beat us this week. I picked them as the favorite this year, and I've known all along they would be strong."

"They'll certainly be up for this game, and will be giving it all they've got. They have a real good balanced passing attack, and it should be a terrific game," he added.

Conley's Vikings may have something for them this weekend, if they can avoid mistakes. They killed them last week.

"We fumbled the first three times we had the ball," Coach Ken Treadway said, "and gave them great field position. We just made too many mistakes. Twice we were penalized for roughing the kicker."

Down 12-0 to North Lenoir at the half, the Vikings came back at the half and scored quickly. They held the Hawks after that and got the ball back, driving inside the 20 again. "But we dropped a pass that would have given us a score, and they held us on fourth down. We just lay down and died after that."

Willie Hawkins again drew the praise of Treadway. "Charlie Tyson also had a good game, as did Bobby Bryant and Norm Marable on defense."

This week, against Eastern Wayne, injuries may be a key to Conley success—injuries on the Warrior team. Their top man, Robbie Price, is lost for the year with a shoulder separation, and their second string quarterback was hurt on the first play against Southern Nash last week, as the Warriors bowed, 24-0.

"We don't know whether he'll be back, but if he is, they could be a problem," Treadway said. "They run a multiple offense, and that makes it hard to prepare for them. Their inexperience at quarterback may help us, however."

"They are big on defense, and they come at you hard, so we can't continue to make the same kind of mistakes we've been making," Treadway added.

Farmville Central, now with two straight wins, appears to be putting it all together now, and Coach Gene Brewer likes it.

"We did a lot better," he said of his team's play against Southern Wayne. "We did a real good job in the first half, but we started making mistakes in the second. Our passing has improved, and we're doing things we haven't been able to do before."

"We're slowly maturing with our young kids," Brewer added. Brewer didn't single out any one player but lauded the whole team for their play in the first half.

This week, against North Lenoir, the Jaguars will be shooting for three straight. "They have a well balanced team," Brewer said. "They have a heck of a good back in this Morris kid. They like to run him right much, especially off tackle. They're probably the best North Lenoir club we've seen since I've been here. They're real aggressive and they hit real well."

For North Pitt, it will be the battle for the basement at Pikeville with C. B. Aycock, and Coach Danny Wilmer feels that this might be the time for his Panthers to come around.

"We weren't out of the game with Greene Central until the last quarter," he said. "And they called time out with less than a minute left to score their final touchdown when it really didn't make that much difference."

Wilmer said he felt his team outplayed the Rams for the first 22 minutes of the game. "We fumbled deep and held them. They had to kick a field goal a couple of times on fourth and short yardage which shows we were doing a good defensive job."

North Pitt scored first in the game, but the touchdown was called back because of a penalty, and Greene Central took over after that. "We came back and scored again to cut the lead to 16-8, but we got a penalty on the kickoff that gave them good field position again and they scored from there," Wilmer said.

The coach praised Darrell Cogdell, making his first start for his play in both directions. He intercepted one pass, and caught a touchdown throw. He also singled out Charles Young (10 catches for 120 yards) and Ben Johnson (18 of 33 passes for 218 yards).

State Seen As Heavy Favorite

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The last three football games between the North Carolina State Wolfpack and the Wake Forest Deacons have been decided in the closing moments. But the Wolfpack is favored to show its superiority early in their Atlantic Coast Conference game at Wake Forest on Saturday.

Maryland defeated Wake Forest 23-0 last week, while the Wolfpack played a 24-24 tie with the Terps in the season opener.

In 1969, Wake Forest scored with only five seconds left and then made a two-point conversion to beat N.C. State 22-21.

In 1970, Wake Forest won again, 16-13, after trailing most of the way. The Deacons scored on a pass from Larry Russell to Ken Garrett with 2:47 left to take the lead. The Wolfpack tried to come back, but a pass interception by Ed Stetz sealed the Wake triumph.

Last year, with N.C. State leading 15-14, and time running out, Chuck Ramsey tried a 51-yard field goal for Wake Forest. The kick was partially blocked and recovered by State's Bill Miller. A State touchdown was ruled when Larry Russell came off the Wake sidelines to tackle Miller. The final score was N.C. State 21, Wake Forest 14.

Willie Burden, State's veteran running back who reinjured a shoulder in last week's 17-0 victory over Duke, participated in Tuesday's lengthy practice, which included a scrimmage.

Some ACC coaches warned of the caliber of next Saturday's opponents.

Coach Jerry Claiborne told Maryland that although Villanova has won only one of five games, the Wildcats have one of the best, if not the best, defenses the Terps will face all season. He said game films had particularly impressed him with the work of Villanova's defensive back Frank Polito, line-backer Kevin Reilly and sophomore tackle John Zimba.

The Wildcats have come into College Park the last two seasons and beaten Maryland. They play again at Maryland this time.

North Carolina Coach Bill Dooley said his Tar Heels will be facing the best Kentucky team he has seen since the early 1960s. He said Kentucky, also nicknamed the Wildcats, has a well-balanced attack which has averaged three touchdowns a game, and has a defense featuring a strong secondary anchored by safety Darryl Bishop.

Kentucky has won two and lost two, and defeated Mississippi State 17-13 last week. North Carolina is 3-1 after losing 29-14 to Ohio State.

Clemson, which will be at Duke, went through a 30-minute scrimmage which included work on passing and on goal-line situations. Coach Hootie Ingram said that Ken Pengitore, hit by 'flu last week, should be in condition to play. He participated in the practice.

The seventh ACC team, Virginia, will be home to Virginia Military Institute. Last week, Virginia limited Vanderbilt to 188 yards total offense, and made 294 yards itself, but Vanderbilt won 10-7. Senior Dave Sullivan caught six passes for 90 yds, including one for a touchdown, and now holds all of Virginia's career pass-catching records.

Hayes Paying Off For Bullets

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It can hardly be called conclusive yet, but so far the Big Experiment is working just fine for the Baltimore Bullets.

Elvin Hayes, acquired by Baltimore in the off-season, poured in 18 points, grabbed 23 rebounds and blocked six shots, leading the Bullets to a 102-90 victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers as the National Basketball Association opened its 27th season Tuesday night.

In other openers, the New York Knicks, Philadelphia 76ers 95-89 and the Atlanta Hawks topped the Buffalo Braves 120-109.

Hayes, playing ceter, dominated the backboards. Although he hit only five of 18 shots from the field, he moved well, played solid defense and blended in smoothly with the Bullets' play.

Unsed, meanwhile, did a strong job at forward, scoring 15 points and pulling down 15 rebounds.

The scoring punch for the Bullets came from the backcourt. Rich Rinildi, starting in place of holdout Archie Clark, tossed in a career-high 26 points, while Phil Chenier chipped in with 20.

The Knicks used a balanced scoring attack—topped by Bill Bradley's 26 points—and a tight zone press defense to whip Seattle and spoil Tom Nis-salke's debut as head coach of the Sonics.

Supreme Court To Decide On Jury-Size Standards

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has agreed to decide whether auto damage suits and other federal civil cases may be decided by juries smaller than the traditional 12.

A case from Montana, accepted for review this winter, could prove to be the springboard for still one more tradition-shattering decision by the court on juries.

Two years ago, the court held that a criminal trial by a jury of 12, which some have considered a bedrock of Anglo-American law, is not required by the Constitution.

By a 5-3 majority, the court said a jury of six or even fewer could satisfy the jury-trial standard in the Bill of Rights.

Then, last May, the court ruled 5 to 4 that defendants in state criminal trials may be convicted or found innocent by a less than unanimous jury.

A decision permitting juries smaller than 12 in civil cases could ease some of the burdens on the nation's federal courts. Chief Justice Warren E. Burger has called repeatedly for streamlining procedures and entering the "supermarket" age. He voted with the majority in the two jury decisions.

Specifically at issue is a rule adopted by the U.S. District Court for Montana last year establishing juries of six for civil trials. Many district courts have adopted similar rules.

On Tuesday, the court added 15 cases, in all, to the 99 it already has on its docket for hearing and decision by next June.

It struck down, 8 to 1, an Ohio law that provided reimbursements of up to $90 a year to parents of children attending church-run and other private schools.

The court declined to reconsider its decision of last June that capital punishment as generally carried out in the United States is unconstitutional.

It also turned down an appeal by Michigan challenging the proposed consolidation of Detroit's schools with those in 52 suburban districts as part of a massive busing plan. But the issue is certain to return when the U.S. Circuit Court in Cincinnati completes its current review.

One of the significant new cases is from Burbank, Calif., where local authorities barred all but emergency jet aircraft takeoffs and landings between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m.

The 1970 antinoise ordinance was subsequently ruled to be invalid by two federal courts in California. Burbank officials, backed by the state, are appealing the decision that the federal government's authority over air travel is supreme.

Urges Sturdier Nuclear Plant

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Dr. Julius Alker, a geology professor, says the $558 million nuclear plant which the Duke Power proposes to build on Lake Norman should be designed to withstand an earthquake more severe than is allowed for in the present design.

Dr. Alker, of the University of North Carolina at Charlotte, testified Tuesday at a hearing by the Atomic Safety and Licensing Board.

He called for stronger safeguards because of what he said was the lack of sufficient knowledge about earthquakes and the contention that present information about them is outdated.

He testified for the Carolina Environmental Study Group, local intervenors opposed to Duke's request for a permit to build the McGuire plant 17 miles from Charlotte.

Another witness for the study group, Jesse Riley of Charlotte, a research chemist, questioned the effectiveness of the proposed plant's emergency safety systems.

The founder of the study group, Mrs. Gayl Waller, a Charlotte housewife, testified that Duke was financially unqualified to build the plant, based on what she called the utility's financial crises in recent years. Duke has said its finances have been improved by rate increases.

Duke has opposed all witnesses for the study group on the grounds they either are unqualified or that their testimony challenges rules of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Explosion Kills 3 Bomb Makers

NEW OFFICER ... R. L. Ormond, a Maryland native who graduated from Princeton (N.C.) High School in 1969 has joined the Greenville Police Department according to Chief Glenn Cannon. Ormond worked for a Greenville auto parts distributor from 1969 until November 1971 when he joined the Selma Police Department. After seven months as an officer in Selma, Ormond returned to his Maryland home as a policeman. His wife, the former Darlene Salling of Princeton, is a senior at East Carolina University. The new officer is a graduate of the Coastal Plain Law Enforcement Academy basic school in Wilson and the jail and detention school at Beaufort Technical Institute and has attended schools in first aid, criminal investigation bomb disposal and human relations.

BELFAST (AP) — Three young IRA bomb makers blew themselves up late Tuesday night at the end of a day of violence in Northern Ireland that took five lives. Another man was seriously wounded.

Irish Republican Army sources said three members of their Provisional wing were mixing explosives in an abandoned Belfast house when the ingredients erupted in their faces.

The first relatively small blast ignited other bomb-making stores in the house. The second explosion lifted the roof off the building and turned it into an inferno.

Neighbors in the Roman Catholic Lower Falls district fled from their homes as the flames spread to six nearby houses. Seven children in the house next door to the explosion escaped from their beds.

British army headquarters said the dead were two teenagers and a man in his early twenties.

Earlier in the day a Roman Catholic member of the mostly Protestant militia was killed by a gunman and a 70-year-old man was crushed to death by a bus which overturned under a hail of rocks from rioting youngsters.

Northern Ireland's known death toll from three years of strife rose to 602.

Another Catholic who opened the door of his home in Ballyhackamore, a village in County Down, was shot in the chest. Police said he was married to a Protestant.

PTI Continues Emphasis On Occupational Courses

Occupational extension courses at Pitt Technical Institute continue to constitute a large segment of the Institute's total educational program.

"Even though 38 occupational courses are being conducted this quarter, on and off campus, there are other areas of vocational or occupational training that we hope to provide as soon as facilities are available," according to Ola Porter, extension director at PTI. "At the present time, approximately 700 adult citizens are enrolled in these courses."

"In an effort to fulfill one of our purposes at Pitt Tech, which is to provide programs of technical and vocational education for employed and under-employed adults who need training or retraining, or who can otherwise profit from the program, effort is being exerted to meet the training needs of our community," Porter remarked. "Our course offerings are basically divided into two distinct categories," explained Porter. In one category, the student enrollment consists entirely in industry, business, or government employees who are seeking to upgrade their job skills.

Examples of these courses include: training of nurses aides and orderlies who work for the Greenville Nursing Home; training, which is sponsored jointly with Pitt Memorial Hospital, for ward secretaries (hospital employees) and operating room technicians (students selected by hospital); power sewing, school food service (county and city school food personnel), and Insurance Adjusting.

Within this same category, specialty-type training is also being conducted. This includes:

Professional and voluntary firemen, county and city law enforcement officials, training and retraining for ambulance attendants, and industrial, business and government representatives in Management Development and first aid course.

The second category of courses now being offered by Pitt Tech include those for which students enroll either to learn new job skills or upgrade present skills.

Such courses now being taught which are open to all citizens of the community include data processing, architectural drafting, basic and advanced machine shop, auto mechanics, radio and TV, child care, heating and air conditioning, electrical installation and maintenance, real estate, cosmetology, and brick masonry.

Business administration and secretarial courses are a large part of these offerings. This area includes Typing I and II, Shorthand I and II, bookkeeping, business taxes, and business machines. Many of the course offerings are a part of evening certificate programs, or may be transferred with credit, to curriculum programs.

Plans are now being developed and coordinated with the Pitt County Public School system to continue to offer, at the high schools throughout the county, many of the courses already mentioned. Courses to be offered, dates and time for organizational meetings in the schools, are expected to be announced soon.

When other courses are added later this month, enrollment is expected to exceed 1,000 adult students in occupational courses in Pitt County.

Commenting on the Institute's extension occupational course, Dr. William E. Fulford, Jr., PTI president, said: "We are firmly committed to providing maximum opportunities for occupational education to Pitt County citizens."

"These courses not only contribute to the economic and social well-being of our citizenry, but also to the overall economic development of the Pitt County community. We are proud to be a part of this dynamic process which contributes so much to the enrichment of lives of the people of our area," stated Fulford.

Children's Concert On TV This Week

The East Carolina University Symphony Orchestra's children's concert is being shown on television this week.

The Fifth Annual Children's Concert, held in Wright Auditorium last March for grades four, five and six of the Greenville City Schools with Robert Hause, conductor, can be seen on WUNK-TV Channel 25 Friday beginning at 9:00 p.m.

The TV broadcast is a videotape of the annual children's concert, a joint effort of the orchestra and Greenville City Schools.

Viewers statewide will have an opportunity to hear and see the program on the University of North Carolina Television network as part of a series: North Carolina: The Arts. The show is produced and directed by Bill Hannah.

The main feature of the program is Saint-Saens' Carnival of the Animals with piano soloists Charles Bath and Paul Tardiff, and narration by James Rees. Other soloists are elementary and junior high school students who are members of the East Carolina University String Project, a continuing program under the direction of Rodney Schmidt.

Other music on the program features Debra Johnson singing a special arrangement of Carole King's song Home Again; and selections from The Music Man and Carmen Suite.

Burglar Picked A Wrong Town

TAYLORSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — A burglar picked the wrong town when he decided to break into a grocery in this southern Indian community.

The burglar was spotted by a passerby, who alerted others and several Taylorsville men got their rifles and shotguns and surrounded the store. They held the burglar until a state police trooper arrived and arrested the man.

TIRE PREDICTION

NEW YORK (AP) — By 1975 more tires will be belted with fiber glass than with any other material, according to Alan R. Kerivan, vice president, Owens-Corning Fiberglass Corp. Approximately 40 per cent of all tires—belted bias and radial—will be reinforced with fiber glass cord, he says.

McGovern, Nixon Sharply Clash On Peace Terms

By LEWIS GULICK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—
George McGovern's Vietnam plan clashes sharply with President Nixon's on big issues dividing the negotiators at Paris—terms for a cease-fire, a U.S. withdrawal and Saigon's political future.

The Democratic presidential nominee's blueprint, as set forth Tuesday night, appears much closer to conditions laid down by North Vietnamese-Viet Cong envoys, but there are differences.

However, McGovern's program could be carried out with relatively little negotiation at Paris, as he outlined it. Aside from the release of prisoners, most of his seven-point program could be accomplished by one-sided U.S. action.

What is going on in the secret missions between presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho has yet to be disclosed.

Here are the positions on major issues:

U.S. WITHDRAWAL.
McGovern says his first step would be to halt all bombing and acts of force throughout Indochina, stop "any shipments of military supplies that continue the war" and start a pullout of all U.S. forces from Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia to be completed in 90 days.

Nixon would withdraw all American forces from Vietnam within four months, but only after an Indochina-wide cease-fire and release of U.S. prisoners.

The Vietnamese communists call for an end to "the U.S. war of aggression in Vietnam, the bombing, mining and blockade of (North) Vietnam," a stop to "all U.S. military activities in South Vietnam" and a "rapid and complete withdrawal of all U.S. troops, advisers ..."

McGovern indicated he would halt U.S. arms aid to the regime of South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu. "Gen. Thieu is not worth one more American dollar," he said.

Nixon's terms allow for a curb on U.S. military assistance to South Vietnam, provided one is imposed on the outside aid Hanoi receives from Moscow and Peking.

The Vietnamese communists want to "completely cease the Vietnamization policy," under which the Nixon administration has been aiding Saigon's armed forces.

McGovern would not require a general cease-fire. A statement accompanying his speech said a limited, temporary cease-fire is implied in his plan because both sides at Paris have indicated the communist forces would not attack American troops carrying out an announced complete pullout.

For Nixon, an internationally supervised Indochina-wide cease-fire is a major condition both for military settlement and for a broader agreement including a political solution for South Vietnam. It is a prerequisite for a complete U.S.

military withdrawal and elections in South Vietnam.

The Vietnamese communists favor a general cease-fire in South Vietnam when their proposed new government in Saigon is formed.

SAIGON'S FUTURE.
McGovern, denouncing what he calls the U.S. policy of propping up of a venal Thieu regime, says the United States should "no longer interfere in the internal politics of Vietnam." He says "we will allow the Vietnamese people to work out their own settlement ... including a coalition government" if they choose.

Nixon stresses his goal that "the political future of South Vietnam will be left for the South Vietnamese people to decide for themselves, free from outside interference." He offers a "free and democratic presidential election ... run by an independent body." Thieu would step down one month before the election, but could run to succeed himself.

Hanoi demands Thieu's resignation, with his regime to be succeeded by a three-segment coalition government which would organize the new elections. The three components would include the Viet Cong, Saigon administration officials and "representatives of other political forces in South Vietnam."

PRISONERS.
McGovern would dispatch his running-mate, Sargent Shriver, to Hanoi "to speed the arrangements for the return of our prisoners." He would "expect" the enemy to free all U.S. captives in line with the July 1, 1971, Viet Cong offer to release prisoners upon total withdrawal of U.S. and other foreign forces from South Vietnam. He would keep U.S. forces in Thailand and off Vietnam's shores until the prisoners are returned.

Nixon would not stop U.S. acts of force throughout Indochina nor would he withdraw U.S. forces completely from South Vietnam until there is a cease-fire and the prisoners are released. Until the prisoners are freed, "Americans in significant numbers will remain in South Vietnam."

The Vietnamese communists would release prisoners at the same time as U.S. forces are carrying out a complete withdrawal. Their spokesmen, however, from time to time have linked the military issue with their terms for a political settlement.

State Fair Tradition In 119th Year

By H. G. Jones
Administrator Office of Archives and History
RALEIGH (AP) — The State Fair, a 119-year old North Carolina tradition, opens in Raleigh Friday and continuing through the 19th.

The first State Fair was held in 1853 following the General Assembly's passage the year before of "an act to encourage domestic manufacture and the mechanical arts." Much subsequent planning resulted in the first fair, a three-day event, held Oct. 18-22, 1853. A local paper reported that on opening day the streets were "thronged with immense and eager crowds" and that "nothing like the number of persons present had been seen here since the great Whig convention of 1840."

During the same week that the first fair was in progress, it was predicted that "each succeeding fair will grow in value and interest," and the third Tuesday in October, 1854, was established as the next year's opening date. With the exception of a period during the Civil War and reconstruction, the State Fair has been held every year since.

There have been many notable events during the fair's almost 120 years of operation, such as the staging of the 32-day "Great State Exposition" in 1884. The late 1800s were the heyday of the expositions which were similar to fairs, but were on a grander scale and were intended to appeal to a wider area than one state. A major attraction of the 1884 exposition was "the electric light show," and a prize of $100 went to Forsyth County for the best county exhibit.

Over the years two U. S. presidents have visited the fair. Theodore Roosevelt was there in 1905, and Harry S. Truman came campaigning in 1948. Truman also spoke at the dedication on Capitol Square of the memorial to the three presidents born in North Carolina.

Just one year short of the fair's 100th anniversary in 1952, one of the most unusual permanent pavilions in the world was completed on the fairgrounds west of Raleigh.

Named Dorton Arena in honor of long-time fair manager J. S. Dorton, the now familiar sight to fair goers was recently nominated for inclusion on the National Register of Historic Places, the only "modern" building in the state to be honored in this fashion.

The 1972 fair promises to continue the tradition of "growing in value and interest." In addition to all of the expected features of the fair, one attraction is described as "the exhibit that money couldn't buy."

Entitled "Returns from the Future," it will deal with space exploration and will include such items as the Apollo 12 command module, an astronaut suit which has been used on the moon's surface, and many other rare artifacts which according to officials of the National Aeronautics Space Administration could never be given a monetary value.

The current edition of the Tar Heel Junior Historian" magazine issued by the Office of Archives and History contains a variety of articles of interest to junior high school students and others on the fair's history and current plans.

Bike Patrols Scarcer Today

BROADWAY, England (AP) — Bobbies on bikes are getting scarcer in Britain, says a report by a Worcestershire constabulary. The two-wheeled transport is being replaced by patrol cars, the report says. "This may be a logical step in many urban areas but in places like this where the policeman has only to patrol small rural areas, bicycles should continue to be issued," it adds.

Ashes Instead Of Hashish Box

SKEGNESS, England (AP) — Lincolnshire police erred when five Indians were arrested on the suspicion of smuggling drugs into Britain. One constable thought he overheard the word "hashish" when the Indians tried to describe the contents of a box they were carrying. Later, however, it was found that the box contained ashes of a cremated relative and the Indians were escorted to a river to scatter them.

Samoa Uses Old Tool To Aid Economy

PAGO PAGO, American Samoa (UPI)—American Samoa, the only U.S. possession south of the equator, is easing into an era of economic development using a tool which has created hundreds of jobs in the past few years in Guam and the Virgin Islands.

Key to the movement is a portion of the U.S. Customs Code called Headnote Three-A, which provides that a local manufacturer can import foreign materials into American Samoa, enhance their value by spending on local labor and then send the finished product to the United States duty free.

It helps underdeveloped American territories compete with products from such low-wage countries as Hong Kong and Taiwan.

Headnote Three-A has accounted for the creation of about 140 jobs for local people here in the past 12 months. There is every indication that it is just getting off the ground. Pacific Time Inc. opened an assembly plant last year. With funds provided by the Manpower Development Training Act, about 50 Samoans were trained and are now assembling European-made watch movements.

Milk and Clothes
 Meadow Gold, a subsidiary of Beatrice Foods, followed with an imitation milk operation to serve the local market but may expand by importing New Zealand dairy products for processing before shipping to the United States. P.J. Brennan Manufacturing Company came next to make double-knit men's clothing for the American market.

A Hawaii jewelry firm is negotiating for a plant, and a U.S. meat processor is looking into using Australian and New Zealand meats for processing here.

New government policies welcoming outside investment under rigid controls are helping attract investors. So is a $1 million 88-acre industrial park.

The park also is expected to relieve growing congestion in the Pago Pago Bay area.

The territory this year is working with a record $30 million budget, with almost one-third for water, sewer, airport, highway and harbor projects.

"Government spending will remain high for the next four or five years as we build the things which have been needed too long," said John M. Haydon, governor for the past three years.

"But we are trying to look ahead and develop a viable civilian economy which will provide the jobs for our people after the government spending tapers off."

Tourism is hampered by a hotel room shortage. Work is now under way on a 90-room expansion of the major international hotel, and at least two other hotels are planned.

Dam, Dike To Cut Salinity

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Kerch Straits are to be closed by a dam and dike almost three miles long to prevent an excess of salt from the Black Sea destroying the rich fish life of the Sea of Azov.

Soviet scientists worked out the scheme after discovering a "catastrophical decline" in the stocks of commercial fish in the Sea of Azov, apparently because of a sharp rise in its salinity during the last 20 years, the Soviet news agency Tass reported.

Most of the Sea of Azov's fish migrate there from the Black Sea through the Kerch Straits, spawn and then return to the larger body of water. The dike and dam will have 200 ft. by 8 ft. openings allowing this cycle to be maintained.

But the dam and dike system, to include a ship lock, will make it possible to regulate the water exchange between the two seas.

The Sea of Azov's normal salinity should be restored within 10 or 15 years after the Kerch straits are dammed, Tass quoted scientists as saying.

A highway and railway carried atop the proposed dam and dike will link the Crimea and the Kuban Peninsula.

Streams in the United States carry an average of 1.2 billion gallons of water each day to the oceans.

Footnotes To History, By Chou

EDITOR'S NOTE: Robert M. White II, the editor and publisher of the Mexico, Mo., Ledger, is in China with a group of editors from the American Society of Newspaper Editors. Here is his report of some of the remarks Premier Chou En-lai made in an interview.

By ROBERT M. WHITE II
PEKING (AP) — Premier Chou En-lai gave some footnotes for history in his recent interview with American newspaper editors visiting China.

He told about Soviet leader Nikita S. Khrushchev once proposing a joint navy with China; about Mao Tse-tung once suggesting that Khrushchev lecture at Peking University; and he added details about how "a little Ping-Pong ball changed the world."

Wearing a black Mao jacket with a "serve the people" red badge, the No. 2 man in China's government said Khrushchev made his proposal for a joint Soviet-Chinese navy in 1958.

Chou said Chairman Mao answered: "There are two possibilities. You come and take over and we will get out; or don't come at all."

Khrushchev then said that all he was proposing was a joint fleet. And why would Mao say he would go?

"Mao answered that when you ask for a joint fleet you seek to control our navy so we will go back to the mountains and fight guerrilla warfare again," Chou said. "Khrushchev withdrew his offer."

Chou also smilingly reported that in 1965, after Khrushchev had been deposed, Premier Alexei N. Kosygin stopped in Peking to visit with Mao on his way home from Hanoi.

"Chairman Mao asked about Khrushchev, saying, 'Since you don't want him, suppose we invite him to lecture at Peking University.'"

"After all," Chou continued, "the Russians had claimed Khrushchev was outstanding in championing Marxism. Chairman Mao suggested that if Khrushchev came to Peking University, the Chinese could then learn what he had really done in Marxism and why the Russians had disposed of him."

Chou said the trail-blazing visit to China by the U.S. table tennis team in April 1971 developed in this way:

During the world table tennis tournament, some individual members of the U.S. team wanted to visit China.

The Chinese Foreign Ministry decided the requests should not be approved.

"I myself approved this decision and submitted it to Chairman Mao," the premier continued, but Chairman Mao did not agree.

He noted that a majority of the team wanted to come and that the time was ripe. "So on the last day of the Ping Pong tournament then being played in Japan," Chou said, "we telephoned inviting the American team. Your State Department could do nothing. Your President had said that contacts should be opened up.

"While we all knew the times was ripe, only Chairman Mao recognized that a little Ping Pong ball could change the world."

197th Anniversary Of Navy Comes On Friday

Friday marks the 197th anniversary of the U.S. Navy.

The Department of the Navy, announcing the observance, reported that this is the first time since 1922, when it was instituted by the Navy League, that the day has been celebrated on Oct. 13.

The anniversary has previously been on Oct. 27, the birthday of Theodore Roosevelt, who encouraged establishment of the Navy League in 1902, and the month the Continental Congress authorized the first ships for a Navy.

The department, emphasizing the anniversary, noted that changes in today's Navy are aimed at the individual with efforts aimed at keeping pace with today's society, by offering each person the chance to be more of an individual.

The Navy, it reported, can now guarantee a high school graduate his choice of an occupational specialty, if he qualifies. A graduate can enlist in one of 15 specialties and be guaranteed training and experience in that specialty, the Navy pointed out.

In the Navy's Nuclear Field Program a man receives training in one of four specialties. They are electronics technician, interior communications technician, electrician's mate or machinist's mate. Training also includes nuclear power theory and applying that theory to actual reactor operations.

If a man or woman has completed a two-year vocational school, the Vocational School Graduate Program gives them an advanced pay grade, it was noted.

The Navy said that it has a 180-day delay program for the person who wishes to delay his beginning active duty. A person who joins under this program builds seniority for pay and time toward a six year obligation before active duty begins.

The Navy also has a three year enlistment program. The seafarer-Airman program guarantees a man sea duty aboard a ship or in an aviation unit on the coast of his choice.

There is 20 job specialties available to women, the Navy reported, which includes weather forecasting.

oceanography, public relations, and photography, and women will soon see duty on board a few select ships.

The college graduate can apply to become a commissioned officer in the Navy. Naval officer occupations are distinguished by "line" or "staff" designations. Line officers are specifically trained for command afloat or in the air. Staff officers reflect specialized duties in such areas as supply, civil engineering, medical dental and chaplaincy.

As the Navy moves toward its birthday, it emphasized, policy will continue to be focused on a person's abilities and the opportunity to use his talents in whatever field he may choose.

Bowles Sees Giant Steps

RALEIGH (AP) — The Democratic nominee for governor, Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles, says the state could take "giant steps" toward more preschool programs by redirecting state and federal education funds.

Bowles, in a statement issued in Raleigh Tuesday, said "I fully support the goal of preschool training, early childhood education, for all North Carolina youngsters."

He said, "We can take giant steps, and the 1973 General Assembly can begin by putting in the extra money into state-backed programs."

Bowles said additional money might be found in federal funds now going to "compensatory education" classes for pupils needing special attention in the middle and upper grades.

The candidate has curtailed his campaigning because of what an aide said was an intestinal virus.

HOLLINGS IN N.C.
RALEIGH (AP) — South Carolina Sen. Ernest F. Hollings will speak in support of local, state and national Democratic candidates at a rally in Wilmington Oct. 23.

Viet Stance 'Unchanged'

By MORRIS W. ROSENBERG
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam and the Viet Cong stuck publicly today to their long-standing positions on the Vietnam war after the latest round of secret talks between presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi's negotiators. While not referring specifically to the secret meetings, North Vietnam told the 163rd session of the weekly peace talks that the position of the Nixon administration "only prolongs the deadlock of the Paris conference, prolongs the war."

The Viet Cong firmly reiterated its demands for a total U.S. pullout and the ouster of President Nguyen Van Thieu. U.S. Ambassador William J. Porter devoted his speech to the issue of North Vietnamese forces in South Vietnam. Porter said North Vietnam and the Viet Cong have been avoiding this problem. Porter referred to the Sept. 11 declaration of Viet Cong peace proposals. Under this plan, he asked what was the specific date for complete withdrawal of North Vietnamese forces, what activities were envisaged for them before withdrawal, what assurances were provided against infiltration of additional North Vietnamese units into South Vietnam and what forms of verification or supervision of these measures were proposed. The U.S. ambassador declared: "You can spare us as well as yourselves needless effort by avoiding ... ritualistic responses with which we are all too familiar."

Attacks On N. Vietnam Continue Hanoi Raids Under Restriction

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. warplanes kept up their attacks on North Vietnam today, but increased restrictions were reported placed on their operations in the Hanoi area following damage to three foreign missions during an American raid on the North Vietnamese capital Wednesday. A varying buffer zone was being declared around Hanoi, and all future targets in the area must be cleared first by the Nixon Administration, it was learned. Security regulations prevented disclosure of the precise details of the new restrictions.

During Wednesday's raid by 20 U.S. Navy planes from the carrier Midway, the residence of the French delegate-general was destroyed, the roof was blown off the Algerian Embassy, and minor damage was done to the headquarters of the Indian diplomatic mission, according to reports from Hanoi, Paris, Algiers and New Delhi. A Cambodian woman and five Vietnamese employed by the French mission were reported killed; Pierre Susini, the French delegate-general, was seriously injured and an Albanian diplomat who was calling on Susini received lesser injuries. No one was reported hurt at the Algerian or Indian buildings. The U.S. Navy said the target of the raid was the Gia Lam railroad yard and repair shop on the northeastern outskirts of Hanoi. Spokesmen said initial reports from the pilots from the carrier Midway indicated all bombs were on target. Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird and the U.S. Command in Saigon suggested that the damage might have been done by surface-to-air missiles that missed the American planes and detonated when they crashed to earth. But a Canadian television correspondent in Hanoi, Michael Maclear, said he saw at least three jets make repeated dives over the heart of Hanoi at the lunch hour. The Algerian Ambassador to North Vietnam, Aderazak Bouhara, said he was in the courtyard of his embassy and could "affirm that it was the American bombs" that hit the diplomatic quarter, North Vietnam's official news agency reported today.

Finance Chairman Doubts Acceptance Spending Limitation Test For Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee scheduled a vote today on the Nixon administration's request for unconditional authority to cut federal spending to stay within a $250 billion ceiling in the current fiscal year. But Committee Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., said he didn't think it would be approved, although the House has given its endorsement. Long said he didn't believe the Senate "will want to abdicate its responsibilities by giving the President a blank check on the budget." Other senators on the committee said it would mean giving up the congressional power to control spending. But Nixon administration officials pleaded for approval Wednesday.

Secretary of the Treasury George P. Shultz and Caspar W. Weinberger, Nixon's budget director, told the Senate committee the ceiling should be approved to head off the need for a tax increase next year and to prevent new inflation. Under questioning, however, they repeatedly declined to say where Nixon would make the cuts if he was given the authority. They also conceded that their estimate that a $6-billion reduction is needed could be too low. The idea that President Nixon could cut entire programs already approved by Congress seemed to be of greatest concern to the senators, especially Long, who said it would be the same as an item veto, which Congress has always opposed. Sen. Wallace F. Bennett, R-Utah, suggested the bill could be amended to limit the President's authority to cut any one program to 20 to 25 per cent.

Weinberger said, however, that would not give the President the flexibility he needs. Weinberger also said the administration could not go along with a proposal by Sen. Len B. Jordan, R-Idaho, to exempt several categories of programs from reductions and permit a proportionate cut of the remainder.

Sixteen Pitt Residents Indicted For Tobacco Marketing Violations

RALEIGH — Sixteen Pitt County residents were among 23 persons indicated by a federal grand jury in Raleigh Tuesday and yesterday on charges of violating tobacco marketing regulations. The indictments came as a result of an investigation by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and involved sales of 1971 flue-cured tobacco.

According to U.S. Attorney Thomas McNamara — who indicated other cases would be presented for federal grand jury sessions later — the cases involve the sale of about 75,000 pounds of tobacco that the farmers involved allegedly sold in excess of quotas. Each of the charges against the 23 men is a felony and carries a possible penalty of $10,000 fine or five years imprisonment or both. Under the current price support system a farmer may exceed his quota by 10 per cent. Sales above that are subject to a penalty equal to three-fourths of the previous year's average market price — a 54-cents per pound penalty in 1971. Largest sales involved in the indictments were 13,860 pounds allegedly sold by Cannon and 9,616 pounds allegedly sold by Avery. The tobacco was allegedly sold last spring.

NEW RIVER, N.C. (AP) — The Marine Corps today announced the final two names of the four crewmen killed in a helicopter crash Tuesday night on Emerald Isle. Victims announced today were: Copilot 1st Lt. Glenn W. McGhee, 25, son of Mr. and Mrs. Linwood McGhee of Rt. 1, Mechanicsville, Va.

Road Hearing Is Slated Tuesday

RALEIGH — A public hearing on the proposed improvement and extension of secondary road 1203 from the U. S. 13 and U. S. 264 bypass to N. C. 43 in Pitt County will be held Tuesday at 11 a.m. in the Greenville municipal building.

An alternate location beginning just west of the Norfolk and Southern Railroad and lying north of existing secondary road 1203 from this point to Stantonburg Road will also be presented.

R. W. McGowan, highway department assistant chief engineer for preconstruction, will conduct the hearing. The proposed bypass will be explained in detail. After the explanation, comments and questions from the public will be invited.

The proposed improvement is scheduled to follow the existing secondary road 1203 from the beginning to secondary road 1200 Stantonburg Road. From this point secondary road 1203 will be extended on new location to intersect N.C. 43 just north of the North Carolina Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center. Persons wishing to present additional material pertaining to the project may do so for 10 days after the hearing by filing it at McGowan's office in the Highway Building, Raleigh.

An aerial mosaic setting forth the above project is available for public review and copying at the division office of the Highway Commission, Greenville.

Narcotic Arrests

Pitt County deputies arrested three Rt. 6, Greenville residents Wednesday night on charges of possession of narcotics. Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that deputies arrested Jerome Lee, 23, on charges of possession of marijuana with intent to distribute, transporting marijuana, possession of cocaine, and failing to stop for a blue light. Total bond on the narcotics charges was set at $10,000, the sheriff added, with $2,500 set for each marijuana count and $5,000 for the cocaine charge.

Cathleen Smith Lee, 23, was charged with possession of marijuana with intent to distribute and possession of cocaine and bond was set at $7,500. Deputies also arrested and charged Rex Arthur Harrison, 23, with possession of marijuana for distribution and set his bond at $2,500. The sheriff reported that deputies confiscated 15 bags of cocaine, valued at $675, a 1966 model truck, scales, pipes and other paraphernalia at the time of the 11:30 p.m. arrests. A hearing has been set for Oct. 30 in District Court here.

Recreation Commission Maps New Bid For Public Support

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

"I feel it is on the right track as it should have been to start with," Sidney Carraway remarked, referring to the matter of capital improvement facilities for the Recreation Department.

Carraway, chairman of the Greenville Recreation Commission, at the Commission's October meeting Wednesday night at Elm Street Gym, led discussions on plans to reinstate a bid for public support for recreational facilities, following cancellation on September 25 by the City Council of a referendum that had been scheduled for October 17. The council, in cancelling the referendum, turned the matter back to the Recreation Commission.

Commission members set a special meeting for 3:00 p.m. Thursday, October 19. At that time the Areas and Facilities Committee of the commission will meet with City Manager Bill Carstarphen to begin detailed plans on means of financing additional recreation facilities. Jim O'Brien is chairman of the committee that also includes Mrs. Louis Gaylord, Jr. and Thomas Foreman.

"We'll take into consideration what we think all the people of Greenville need for a complete recreation program," Carraway said, "study these considerations and within two or three weeks have a special call meeting. At that time we should be able to let the City Council know what our recommendations are."

Dr. Herbert Hadley stressed the necessity of looking into all the various means available for funding a total recreation program — to give serious thought to whether the current course of non-tax sources (i.e. Greenville Utilities) or a proportional taxation system of funding would be preferable in recommendations to the City Council.

Carraway, expressing displeasure in the way the recently cancelled referendum was handled by Councilman William Dansey, said he wanted to go on record as emphatically asking the City Council in the future not to vote on any proposal for recreation matters unless the matter was presented by the chairman of the Recreation Commission. Commission members concurred in Carraway's expression.

Recreation Director Boyd Ledd reported to the commission on inquiries he had made with the Mid-East Commission on the possibility of changing the name of the Police Club at Epes Gym. Lee noted that Mid-East would be reluctant to provide funds for the program without retaining the Police Club name.

The report resulted from an earlier request by commission member Thomas Forman that the possibility of a name change be looked into. Forman said there was some hesitation on the part of some individuals of the community to use the facility, based on a feeling it was the choice of the Recreation Commission in giving the club that name.

Funds to operate the club are currently provided on a ratio of 60 percent from the Law and Order Division of Mid-East, with the city providing 40 percent. Lee noted that the next round of funding for continuation of the program, if approved by Mid-East, would result in an even better ratio of support, with the Mid-East Commission furnishing 81.25 percent of funding.

When Foreman revealed there was also some dissatisfaction over not adding more improvements in facilities, Lee explained

Payton-Clark Vows Said Q's And A's For In Ceremony On Sunday Adoptive Parents

Miss Wyna Ree Clark and William Payton Jr. were united in holy matrimony during a sunset ceremony Sunday at the home of the bride.

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Reverta Boyd Clark and Mr. and Mrs. William Payton Sr. of Greenville.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Bishop Wyoming Wells, minister of the couple. A program of wedding music was presented by Johnny A. Wooten.

The house was decorated with a standing basket of white mums and gladioli interspersed with a single candelabra holding a lighted taper.

Given in marriage by her god brother, Lyman Teele, of Greenville, the bride wore a gown of white bridal satin designed with an empire waist and bell skirt. The short puffed sleeves and Victorian collar were trimmed with sequins and rhinestones. The gown was designed by the bride's cousin, Mrs. Olivia Russell.

Her veil of French illusion, designed by the bride, was held in place with a white satin halo trimmed with sequins and rhinestones. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white pompons interspersed with greenery, tied with satin streamers.

Maid of honor was Miss Denise Speight, cousin of the bride. She wore a formal gown of peach knit trimmed identical to the bride's gown. The gown featured puffed sleeves and a square neckline.

The brother of the bridegroom, Pete Payton, served as best man.

The mother of the bride chose a white knit dress with matching accessories. The mother of the bridegroom selected a white knit dress trimmed with red and matching accessories.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the fellowship hall of Wells Chapel Church.

The refreshment table was centered with the wedding cake and greenery with white bows. After the bridal couple cut the traditional first slice of the three tiered cake, Charles Gatlin served cake and Miss Clara Boyd poured punch.

Miss Evelyn Boyd, Miss Mary Ann Russell, Mrs. Althea Wooten and Charles Gatlin were in charge of the reception.

Mrs. Velma Moore and Mrs. Josephine Gatlin greeted guests.

DEAR ABBY: A prospective adoptive mother asked you for help in replying to "dear, kindly, well-meaning" friends and relatives who ask personal questions about the adoption.

May I help? I have been thru it four times and have heard all comments and questions. Here are some tried and true responses:

Q. "Oh, isn't it a shame you can't have 'children of your own'?"

A. "Not really; there's a lot of insanity in both our families."

Q. "Do you know all about the parents?"

A. "Everything. One was male. The other was female."

Q. "Did the adoption agency try to match your features, coloring and personalities?"

A. "Good grief. I hope not!"

Q. "Aren't you worried about hereditary factors?"

A. "Heavens, no. Regardless of how bad their ancestors were, they've GOT to be better than ours!"

Best wishes!

BEEN THERE

DEAR ABBY: So much has been printed about alcoholism, but nothing is said about the problems of nondrinkers. For instance, when we go into a restaurant that serves liquor, the moment we sit down the waitress whips over to our table and asks, "What would you like to drink?"

When we say, "Nothing," she disappears and leaves us sitting there for what seems an eternity before she comes back to take our food order.

This happens to us all the time. My husband is no tightwad or sourpuss, quite the contrary, he is friendly, courteous and generous, but when this happens, he never leaves a tip!

So, the nondrinkers get a reputation for not tipping. Lately we have been complaining to the management, and we always get the feeble excuse, "She must have been busy." If so, how come she had the time to ask us if we wanted a drink, which would have been served immediately had we ordered one?

We try to avoid places that serve liquor for this reason. Any comment from you, waitresses, or the management?

NONDRINKER

DEAR NON: It's my guess that management instructs the waitresses to take the drink orders immediately to keep the customers happy (and "relaxed")—especially when they are busy. But there is no excuse for being ignored because no drinks were ordered. Next time, when the waitress asks for a drink order, say, "No drinks, thank you, but we would like to see a menu and place our food orders now, please." If that doesn't work, walk out, and tell the manager why.

DEAR ABBY: Where does privacy between the sexes begin and end? At our school, where I am a male teacher, there are two or three female teachers who like to hang around and visit in the men's lounge.

The other day, while I was sitting in the men's lounge eating my lunch, one of these female teachers came in to eat her lunch and visit with the men teachers. I said I didn't think it was such a good idea for her to come into our lounge for an extended visit, whereupon she became angry and left in a huff. Now, these women teachers ignore me when they see me on the campus or else resort to catcalls when I pass the men's lounge and they are sitting in there visiting.

Before I became a teacher, I worked in a private office, and I never once saw a woman go into a men's lounge, and never saw a man go into a women's lounge.

MALE TEACHER IN PHOENIX

DEAR TEACHER: I'm with you. But wait, you ain't seen nothin' yet!

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 69706, L. A., CALIF. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

Holiday Decorations Program Given At Meet

A "show and tell" program about Mexican holiday decorations was given at the meeting of the Lakewood Pines Garden Club held Tuesday morning at the home of Mrs. J. B. Williamson.

Mrs. R. S. Lowe presented Mrs. Williamson as speaker for the morning.

Arrangements using some materials native to the southwestern United States combined with greenery, artificial fruits and berries were shown to members with suggestions on how to start and how to change a design using an original frame.

Ornaments, handmade of balsa strips and colored wool yarn, decorated a small tree to be used on a coffee table. These ornaments were made in the form of a cross and called "Ojo de Dios," The Eye of God. They are popular among the Indians, Spanish and Mexican people who hang them over a doorway as an omen of good luck.

A door spray using green spruce and red chili peppers was shown. Several wreaths using cones of all sizes, sweet gum balls, nuts and nut pods and hells were displayed along with a wreath using artificial greens and small vegetables for use in a den or kitchen.

Mrs. Williamson lived and taught in New Mexico before coming to Greenville several years ago.

President Mrs. Fred Baumann conducted a business session. She reminded members of the District 12 meeting to be held in Greenville on Oct. 27. Mrs. W. C. Taylor Jr. will be acting hostess from the Lakewood Pines Club.

Mrs. Edward Reep distributed new yearbooks. Mrs. R. B. Starling was co-hostess for the meeting.

Dr. Daniels Is Speaker

Dr. Frances Daniels, associate professor in the East Carolina University School of Technology, was guest speaker when the Delta chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma met on Tuesday evening.

She reported on her attendance at the International convention of DKG held in Houston, Tex. during August.

Dr. Daniels, who is president of Beta Alpha chapter of DKG, did her undergraduate study at East Carolina University and received her doctorate from the University of Tennessee. She was introduced by Mrs. Tads Dewar, program chairman.

Mrs. Elizabeth Dowd, chairman of the Research Committee, explained the various types of retirement systems in the states and Mrs. Tennala A. Gross discussed the provisions of the Mobile Teachers' Retirement Assistance Act, which is now in committee in the House of Representatives.

Two new members of the chapter, Mrs. Rosalind P. Britt and Mrs. Elina L. Davenport, were present for their first regular meeting. Mrs. Millie McGrath was in charge of arrangements and was assisted by a committee.

Mrs. Humber Gives Program

Mrs. R. L. Humber presented the program at the meeting of the Fine Arts Department of the Woman's Club held Tuesday afternoon.

Art slides from the N.C. Museum of Art was shown with a description by Mrs. Humber. Mrs. Sylvester Green introduced the speaker.

Mrs. George Snyder, chairman of the department, presided at the meeting.

Hostesses were Mrs. Dick James, chairman, Mrs. R. E. Corbett, Mrs. Paul Davenport, Miss Agnes Fullilove, Mrs. Wellington Gray and Mrs. Etta Gill.

More Maids, More Marriages

LONDON (WNS) — Scotland Yard has come up with the startling news that English meter maids have their eyes out for British bobbies. "Recently there have been a surprising number of marriages between lady traffic wardens and members of the London police," revealed a spokesman for the Yard. He added that the romantic aspect may have something to do with the steady increase in meter-maid recruitment.

A center-cut smoked ham slice will serve three to four persons.

Dressmakers Wary of Watchful Eye

MUNICH, West Germany (WNS) — Two dozen lady workers in a dress factory here have threatened to strike unless the boss paints his office window that looks down on them. "He is always watching us," they complain. "Sometimes it can be embarrassing."

Quality Saves Money At Stores

By JEAN SHARP
TORONTO (AP) — If you'd like to save money food shopping, leave the children at home and eat before you go.

Judy Stang offers the suggestions as short-term ways to help you resist expensive impulse buys.

"All the things that appeal to children are at their eye level, and it's hard to tell a little fellow he can't have some cereal he wants."

On a longer-range basis, she suggests looking at your shopping habits. Miss Stang is director of consumer interests for the Ontario Food Council, a marketing arm of the provincial department of agriculture.

"People are very price conscious, but sometimes they don't look at the quality they're getting."

For instance, one store may offer steaks at a lower price than another, but the lower-priced ones may not match the others in aging or good trimming.

"Fruits and vegetables can be expensive at certain times of the year; we're all tempted by out-of-season, imported produce. Again, it's very important that you get quality for the money. Sometimes a local store or a roadside stand can get you better quality than a supermarket.

"Be familiar with when local produce comes on the market." There are times when canned or frozen fruits and vegetables can be a better buy than fresh produce.

"People sometimes make price comparisons that really aren't accurate."

For instance, people look at the price per pound of food rather than price for serving. A roast might have a ten-cent-a-pound difference between bone in and bone out, but the bone out could be less expensive per serving because you use more of it.

"If you buy frozen fillets of fish, you get four servings to the pound because there is no waste."

Miss Stang says it pays to know prices so that you know when a special really is a special, and even then, buy carefully.

"Buy what you need. If you can't store food properly or eat it fast enough, a special might not be special for you."

Learn enough about meats and produce to know what you're buying and how to use it, and consider how it's presented to you.

"Look at potatoes wrapped in a plastic bag or you might find when you get them home that you have green potatoes. Plastic bags let the light in; you may be better with a paper bag."

"When you buy foil-wrapped potatoes, you're paying 10 times as much as you pay when you buy a bag of baking potatoes. And foil is a bad thing to store potatoes in; you can get black rot inside because of the moisture."

"It's not always true that the larger the size the cheaper something is per unit. It depends partly on what is the most popular unit. Sometimes it's cheaper to buy the smaller size of instant coffee, because more people do so."

"Most people don't really read instructions or labels unless something goes wrong. Read the labels on frozen dinners, for instance, because they list ingredients in order of quantity. You can get a fair idea of how much meat is in it and how much you're paying for it."

But she says some cake mixes make a cheaper cake than you can make starting from scratch, and frozen french fries can be cheaper than home-made when you consider the cost of cooking oil.

"To be a good shopper today, you have to take it seriously because there are so many products available and so many sizes. It takes ability and some skill as a cook."

Electric Power Crunch Is Here

It was hardly startling that Virginia Electric and Power Co. has notified Greenville Utilities it is asking for a 20.8 percent increase in wholesale electric rates.

Vepco is also asking the State Utilities Commission to grant it a corresponding increase in retail rates for its North Carolina customers. This will affect Bethel, Robersonville, Williamston and other areas of Pitt and Martin County.

The retail rate increase will in all probability be adopted by Greenville Utilities to compensate for the wholesale increase, since Guco has been following Vepco's retail rate schedule. The wholesale rate increase will also affect Winterville and Ayden, since these two municipally owned systems purchase power from Greenville Utilities.

The electric power crunch across the nation is well known and with it has come a steady rise in the cost. Since costs are going up, usually some relief is granted in the form of a rate increase, although not always as much as the companies request.

Greenville, Ayden and Winterville municipally owned systems have no choice but to pass on the increases to their customers and, thus the poor consumer sees still another of his essential living expenses moving up ward.

What can be done? Well the municipal systems, through and an organization called Electricities opposes the increases and will do so in this case.

"We will do everything humanly possible to oppose any rate that is not fully justified," Greenville Utilities Director Charles Horne stated.

It is not expected that the Vepco rate increases will become effective before next spring, but at that time, they might come into effect just as the heavy summer usage begins.

For the domestic user the best defense is to plan on conserving electricity, particularly during the summer when rates are highest. On the big scale, hopefully Electricities will use all its efforts to see that any approved increase is minimal.

An Education In Newspapers

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH, N.C. — Imagine a classroom wide as the world where experts in every field can be called on as teachers.

You are the student. The textbook is your newspaper.

Who's running for office in your county or other countries, what science is finding on the moon or underseas, how to bake a new cake or seed an old lawn — you learn it in the newspaper.

National Newspaper Week, Oct. 8-14, is the occasion to reflect on the full range of information available through the medium of newspaper.

Every day a fresh edition serves up a curriculum of ideas, events and people. Politics and public affairs, health and medicine, sports and fashion are included in the college of human behavior, laughable and laudable, that comes to you in newsprint and ink.

The time is appropriate to remember that the framers of the First Amendment had you in mind when they gave constitutional status to a free press.

Responsibility Imposed

Somehow the impression persists that the concept confers some kind of privilege on those who report the news. Nothing could be wider of the mark. It imposes a solemn responsibility.

I know. Twenty-four years at the game hasn't lightened the challenge, or dimmed the resolve the try to meet it.

"Were it left to me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate for a moment to prefer the latter," said Thomas Jefferson. "But I should mean that every man should receive those papers and be capable of reading them"

Clearly, Jefferson and the founders thought of newspapers as a means of public education hardly second in importance to the schools.

I think it's worked that way. In North Carolina and the nation, great papers have built a heritage of informing and motivating citizens to govern themselves.

Newspaper readers do not earn academic degrees, but they learn about politics and the social sciences in practical operation. In changing times, they find in the local newspaper a forum to comprehend and adapt to changes for a better community.

Editors have maintained a tradition of exploring issues, speaking for worthy causes, and shaping public opinion towards desirable goals.

Friend At Court

No citizen so weak that he is without a friend at court is the ideal of a free press in a democratic society. Striving for its realization does not always promote friendship with those in power.

Even Jefferson felt the sting of the free press he advocated. Criticism of his administration brought bitter comments from him.

"Nothing can now be believed which is seen in a newspaper," he wrote in 1807. "Truth itself becomes suspicious by being put into that polluted vehicle. The real extent of this state of misinformation is known only to those who are in situations to confront facts within their knowledge with the lies of the day."

It's natural for press and public officials to watch each other closely.

"Creative tension" is the way one experienced reporter described it.

No newspaperman worth his salt minds digging for the news. He objects, on your behalf, when government retreats into secrecy.

New Access Vital

Access to information is a corollary to a free press. From Washington to the county seat, reporters encounter efforts to manage the news and feed only favorable reports into the stream of public information.

The North Carolina Press Association and its member papers throughout the state have exerted continuing pressure to keep the doors open. An access statute passed by the 1971 legislature, though far from perfect, laid down a basic legal ground for open meetings by government bodies.

Whether an effort will be made in 1973 to broaden the law, or to limit it, remains to be seen.

"I'm not much for special weeks. As a self-serving device to see a produce or promote an interest, they are little noticed and quickly forgotten.

Newspaper Week fills a purpose only as it makes you, as readers and citizens, aware of the indispensable place of a free press in a democratic society. You deserve to know, but only your will to know can assure freedom of information as a right.

The responsibility of the newspaper is vigilance to inform, whatever the handicaps in the way. That's our business. Every week of the year.

Real Brawl In Senate Race

By JOHN KILGO
RALEIGH — The campaign for the U.S. Senate has become so bitter and so hotly contested that it has all but overshadowed other political races in this election year.

Democrat Nick Galifianakis and Republican Jesse Helms are pulling out all the tricks to win the Senate seat in November.

In all candor, the two men running for the office do not like each other and as the campaign enters its final weeks, you can look for it to get meaner.

The two candidates have been going for each other's throat in the past two weeks. To comprehend what is happening in this campaign, we're called upon to examine the political polls that have been taken in North Carolina.

Some of the polls show Galifianakis with a wide lead over Helms, while others show the race to be very close with a large segment of the voting public still undecided as to its choice.

All of the polls available to this reporter, however, show President Nixon with a huge lead over Sen. McGovern in North Carolina. And it's this political fact that has made this campaign for the Senate assume the appearance of a brawl.

There have been other polls taken and available to the two candidates, which show that North Carolinians are concerned about crime, drug abuse, skyrocketing welfare costs, and the Vietnam war. The polls also indicate that North Carolinians prefer their politicians to be moderates, rather than liberals or staunch conservatives.

It can be safely reported that Helms and Galifianakis are reading the polls very closely.

Some Helms supporters tried to hit Galifianakis on the drug front, by running widespread newspaper ads saying the Congressman was a softie on the issue. The Galifianakis camp called it a great smear tactic. Helms later said he wasn't fully aware of what was in the ad and would personally clear all advertising from that point on.

Apparently drawing from President Nixon's position of strength in the polls, Helms ran other newspaper ads last week headlined, "McGovern Galifianakis."

The ad attempted to make McGovern and Galifianakis look like Siamese twins.

Galifianakis immediately summoned his staff together, told them to bring their files with them, and scheduled news conferences in Charlotte, Wilmington and Raleigh.

Galifianakis produced copies of editorials, written and read by Helms over WRAL-TV in Raleigh, some of which had been critical of the Nixon administration. The Congressman concluded that Helms had a "record of hostility" to many of President Nixon's policies. Galifianakis went on to say that his own records show strong support for much of the Nixon program.

Galifianakis said President Nixon considered himself a moderate and Galifianakis added: "My posture has been solidly moderate."

That gets back to those political polls again, in which some 80 percent of the North Carolinians questioned described themselves as political moderates.

On the same day that Galifianakis was holding his press conferences, Helms was speaking in the East, saying his opponent was fighting him with a campaign of rumors and misrepresentations. It's the same kind of campaign, Helms charged, that Galifianakis ran in the primary against Sen. R. Everett Jordan.

Most political observers feel the Senate campaign will be won or lost in the next three weeks. In the words of a famous philosopher, "You ain't seen nothing yet."

Strength For Today

GOD AND THY NEIGHBORS

What is prayer?

Someone has defined it as talking with God. But prayer involves repentance, confession, praise, and above all things, action as the result of certain emotions, decisions and impulses. Someone has said that the best prayer is what a man does when he is not praying. Our Lord spoke in contempt—if we may use that word to characterize any of his utterances—of the people who pray and pray believing that they will be heard for their much speaking. Also he condemned those who cried "Lord, Lord," on all occasions yet neglected to do the things which He commanded.

Prayer and action go together. A life full of action which does not have prayer as the source of its power has very little power at best, and what it has is not destined to last. On the other hand, a life that is full of much prayer yet without having the cultural background to use it properly, is a life in which very decided prayer and good acts do not match.

Let us ponder the definition already given: The best prayer is what a man does when he is not praying. In other words, prayer must eventuate in righteous acts and in love for one's fellow men.

Seapower And McGovern

PENSACOLA, Fla. — George McGovern released his formal recommendations as to national defense nine months ago. Except to acknowledge a few errors and omissions in his dollar calculations, he has stuck firmly to the ideas he expressed at that time. Among his ideas are his ideas for the United States Navy. These merit a look.

It is worth keeping in mind, as the election nears, that McGovern's views on taxes, welfare, health and education may be interesting—but they are not dispositive. In the end, the resolution of these issues will depend upon Congress. His views on the armed services are something else entirely. If the Senator confounds the pollsters and win this election, he becomes commander-in-chief. In this capacity, his decisions would be vital to the security of the nation.

A preliminary word: Much of what McGovern has said in his position paper is squarely on target. It is, indeed, both pointless and expensive to maintain armed services beyond a reasonable level. The people have a right to have the fat trimmed away. On such general propositions, few men will disagree.

But knowledgeable observers surely may disagree on the Senator's specifics, and here in this Navy-oriented city it is understandable that veteran officers would disagree strongly with McGovern's lukewarm view of seapower in the years ahead. The are professionals; they would serve him loyally; but they believe he is wrong.

Public Forum

Letters submitted for public forum must be limited to 300 words

To the editor:

Many politicians are wild dreamers, not slick deceivers. A striking example:

An August Republican speaker summarized four years, sensibly stressing five major issues where Democrats strongly differ. The Economy. Taxes-Welfare. Crime. Vietnam-Military. Foreign Affairs. Through 39 substantive statements, he seemed in a dream world. Checking my encyclopedia and yearbooks, I was confirmed. 10 statements were false; four debatable, and 25 interpretive as true — only 12 checking out as progress since 1968: seven on foreign affairs, five elsewhere. The rest were irrelevant as party issues.

Take the economy. Ten statements. If your references agree, four are false:

1. We have more freedom, more opportunity, more prosperity than any country . . .
2. . . highest rate of growth of any industrial nation.
3. . . more jobs at higher wages than . . . any country.
4. Our rate of inflation is less than that of any industrial nation.
5. . . lowest per cent of . . . family budget going to food of any country.
6. People on welfare in America would be rich in most . . . nations . . .
7. We have cut inflation in half.
8. For the first time in five years wage increases are not eaten up by price increases.
9. Unemployment today . . . less than peacetime average of the sixties.
10. Theirs is the politics of paternalism, where master planners in Washington make decisions for the people. Ours is (the opposite) . . .

Two practically reverse truth. Of six statements, only two reflect credit.

Politics of deceit? No. An old acquaintance of that speaker convinces me of his excellent intentions. Yet his wishful information, like deceit, misleads mischievously.

The Democrats? Dreaming confusion also — re Economy in planning federal money for certain problems and underestimating capitalist competence. References refute these illusions (though confirming that numerous domestic problems do require federal intervention, that four issues of five, Democrats replace fewer facts by dreams) So look out! Look it up! Politicians are prone to publicly expressing wild dreams.

Carroll Webber Jr.
Greenville.

At present, the United States maintain a Navy of some 605,000 men and 700 ships. McGovern would cut this to 471,000 men and 356 ships. Except for a limited program of converting Polaris submarines to the larger Poseidon missiles, he would halt naval construction altogether. He would abandon the F-14 fighter, and rely instead on an updated F-4. The heart of his program lies in reducing the present force of 15 aircraft carriers to six.

In McGovern's view, the carriers are highly vulnerable, and they are monstrously expensive. If one accepts his optimistic estimate of Soviet intentions, six carriers are plenty—four for European operations, two for the rest of the world. Naval officers dispute him on every point. In an all-out war, everything is vulnerable: carriers admittedly are costly, but they offer the priceless value of mobility. It is foolhardy, they submit, to calculate defense requirements upon subjective impressions of Soviet "intentions." Their concern goes to the Soviets' capability instead.

That capability has changed dramatically in the past ten years. Under certain circumstances, the Soviet Navy now has to be seen as Number One in the world. The Communists are building first-class vessels of war. Are their intentions benign? McGovern may be right: East and West may indeed be teetering on the brink of brotherhood. Why, then, the

See If You're Normal

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — If you're losing your marbles, you ought to be the first to know, shouldn't you?

Then maybe you can do something about it before the word gets around.

That's why it's a good idea to check up on yourself occasionally, just to see if you need a few screws tightened or to rearrange your prejudices. In this civilization, having the right mental attitude is an integral part of the game.

Fortunately for you, today we have a do-it-yourself test that will enable you to tell whether you're still an average heel on an even keel, or whether you need to be docked somewhere for an overhaul.

Here is the test. All you have to do is answer the following simple questions. Try to be as honest as your nature will allow.

During a long drought, does it seem to you that more rain falls on the lawn of the expensive home owned by the guy across the street than falls on your lawn?

If you saw three great big bullies beating up on a guy twice your size, you'd just walk right by and let them go on having their fun, wouldn't you?

Do you ask yourself at least a dozen times a month, "Where does all my money go," when you know darned well where your money goes?

Now and then don't you get the sneaking feeling that your favorite bartender is paying more attention to the woes of other guys at the bar than to your woes?

Doesn't it annoy you when your wife makes you sit still and snap beans for the dinner table while she is giving you a bawling out for your misdeeds?

No matter how understanding you try to be, don't you secretly feel that teen-agers of today are a bit dopier than when you were a teen-ager yourself?

This week has been declared Fire Prevention Week. On May 27, 1896, the town of Greenville took on the chore of fighting fires. Twenty-four white men plus twelve Rough and Ready's composed the new department. The new department applied for a charter on January 4, 1897 and on June 17 of the same year it was received.

The newly organized firefighters had a Constitution and By-laws and were known as the Hope Fire Company of Greenville. The first recorded meeting of the Hope Fire Company was held in the mayor's office in June 8, 1896. S. C. Hamilton was appointed to ask the town council to furnish the fire company with six lanterns, suction hose for the engine and one nozzle. At the July 13, 1896 meeting, twenty cents was collected for membership dues and the treasurer reported that the purchase of two rubber suits for pipemen.

Saigon Unlikely To Get Presley 'Global' Show

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Elvis Presley is doing a global television special in Hawaii on Jan. 14, according to NBC. The network will tape the show for a later broadcast in these United States. Now the real news.

NBC says two-thirds of the 90-minute show will be "transmitted live via satellite" to Asian points that include South Vietnam. It's an intriguing idea, but it may prove a false alarm for Saigon viewers.

It would be a first of sorts for that war-torn country, regardless of whether Elvis appeared on the U.S. military's Armed Forces Vietnam Network (AFVN) or on the government's television stations.

If the latter, it would mark a historic break in the government's usual television fare of Vietnamese soap operas, propaganda skits and occasional speeches by President Nguyen Van Thieu.

But there are two things that probably will prevent Elvis' live debut on anybody's television station in South Vietnam.

Thing number one is Congress. It's watching very carefully this election year how U.S. dollars are spent in Vietnam. It would get very surly if those dollars were spent building an earthbound facility capable of receiving Elvis Presley transmissions from space. There's a war on, you know.

Thing number two is that a spokesman for the Communications Satellite Corp. says no such earth station ever has been built in South Vietnam. Nor is it likely to be right now.

The cost of the stations range from a minimum of $3.5 million to a maximum of $8 million, he said.

COMSAT doesn't build the stations. When destined for commercial use, they're built by private contractors. Governments and private businesses foot the tab and make the decisions on which transmissions the stations accept.

The COMSAT spokesman said there now are two ways the show could get to South Vietnam: (1) by modifying military satellite receiving stations at much cost and bother, or (2) by taping the satellite transmission in Thailand or Japan and flying the tape to Saigon.

NBC, whose primary interest in the show is how well it does in the United States, referred

Investigate Inmate Death

RALEIGH (AP) — The State Bureau of Investigation is probing the cause of a fire which engulfed a cell at Central Prison Wednesday, killing an inmate.

The prisoner was Charles Richardson, 34, of Rt. 3, Albemarle. Richardson was serving eight to 10 years for assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill and 23 to 30 years for armed robbery. He had been in prison since Jan. 17.

Deputy Warden Sam Garrison said the fire started about 11:22 a.m. and guards became aware of it when inmates in neighboring cells began yelling. He said the guards were able to put the blaze out in about 10 minutes.

Garrison said Wednesday that he had no idea yet how the blaze started.

Reporters were permitted to inspect the one-man cell. They found the steel and concrete walls, floor and ceiling badly charred and the mattress and the inmate's personal effects destroyed.

Phil F. Icard, publication chairman, gave credit to alumni pharmacists for the house's financing.

WINTERVILLE — Annual homecoming will be observed Sunday at the Bethany Free Will Baptist Church beginning with Sunday School at 10 a.m.

The morning message will be delivered by the pastor, Rev. A.B. Chandler, at 11 a.m. A picnic lunch will be served on the church grounds during the noon hour.

A song service under the director of Tommy Manning, of the Free Will Baptist Press. Ayden, will begin at 1:30 p.m. Former pastors and friends of the church are invited to attend. A nursery service will be provided for young children.

transmissions to South Vietnam caused some confusion there, but after several tries there was an answer: "Nothing has been done in terms of the South Vietnamese telecast by satellite. In other words, nothing has been finalized."

Here, in Pensacola, professionals are not much concerned with "scenarios," or with the seat of McGovern's pants. They know—their history tells them—that control of the seas is vital to a maritime power. The United States, they remark, now is compelled to import 69 of 71 strategic materials. For the foreseeable future, we will be heavily dependent upon seagoing tankers for our oil. Does it seem unlikely that the Soviet Union, engaged in diplomatic maneuver, might one day throw a blockade against Middle Eastern sources? Yes, it seems unlikely. So did the Cuban missile crisis seem unlikely.

The Soviet Union plainly learned its lesson from that confrontation at sea. Have we forgotten that lesson so soon? Perhaps the Senator never learned it. But if we may respect the judgement of veteran officers who have no personal interest in the outcome—they are close to retirement, and have no more stars in their eyes—it would be disastrous for the U.S. to give up control of the seas.

These criticisms, based in the history of seapower have nothing to do with other predictable consequences of the McGovern cut-back plans. Pensacola, Norfolk, San Diego, Newport, Corpus Christi, Charleston and other Navy-oriented cities doubtless could readjust their economies eventually to half a fleet. They would survive. But in a showdown, would the nation survive?

Homecoming At Church Sunday

Homecoming services at Ballards Presbyterian Church will be held Sunday.

The pastor, the Rev. Russell R. Davis, will be the morning speaker and special music will be rendered by Mrs. Charles Flake. Friends and former members of the church are welcomed to participate. Dinner will be served immediately following the morning service.

Boyle . . .

Remember the officer you used to say you'd beat up as soon as you got out of the service? If you bumped into him now, would you have two or three drinks with him for old times' sake, particularly if you figure he'd pick up the check?

And before you paid off all your old bills, wouldn't you first run up a bunch of new ones?

When you start worrying about our own mental health, don't you first tell yourself that, well, everybody you know is a little bit off his rocker, anyway?

Now to the score:

If you answered yes to most of these questions, you're just the kind of normal misfit who makes life what it is.

If you answered no to most of these questions, take the test over. You must have misunderstood the questions.

CHILD RESCUED — Cein Dockery, 2, is comforted by his parents after falling down a 70-foot well Wednesday afternoon. (AP Wirephoto)

Baby Fell In Well, And Grandmother To Rescue

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP)—lapsed when he stepped on it. Mrs. Case said she "heard him cry out and I could tell kinda where he was." She ripped loose an electric cable her son had rigged for a light and tied it to a tree, called out to her daughter, Vrynda Davis, then went down the well. The cable was too short and she fell the final 15 feet. She said she found the boy against the well wall, clinging to the slender water pipe. She grabbed him, got a grip on the pipe, wedged her foot against the wall, and waited. "I was scared and did plenty of praying," she said. The daughter called firemen who lowered a ladder to the well bottom to give Mrs. Case something to stand on, then they pulled the boy and his grandmother up with ropes.

Betty Case was more matter-of-fact about her Wednesday effort, explaining: "Well, the baby fell in the well and I just had to go in after him."

Mrs. Case spent an hour in the well, clinging to a slender pipe with one hand and holding two-year-old Cein Dockery out of six feet of water with the other. Then rescuers from the North Greenville Fire Department got them both out.

Cein, who will be three in December, was hospitalized in fair condition with head cuts and possible head injuries from the fall.

Mrs. Case suffered hand and foot cuts sliding down the well and rested at home Wednesday night.

Fire Chief Robert M. Coleman, who praised Mrs. Case's rescue work, said child was visiting Mrs. Case at her home two miles east of Travelers Rest.

He strayed behind the house into the pump shed, where the wood and tin well cover collapsed when he stepped on it. Mrs. Case said she "heard him cry out and I could tell kinda where he was." She ripped loose an electric cable her son had rigged for a light and tied it to a tree, called out to her daughter, Vrynda Davis, then went down the well. The cable was too short and she fell the final 15 feet. She said she found the boy against the well wall, clinging to the slender water pipe. She grabbed him, got a grip on the pipe, wedged her foot against the wall, and waited. "I was scared and did plenty of praying," she said. The daughter called firemen who lowered a ladder to the well bottom to give Mrs. Case something to stand on, then they pulled the boy and his grandmother up with ropes.

McGovern Presses Criticism Of Vietnam Policies

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Writer
BOSTON (AP) — Responding to Republican criticism of his Vietnam peace proposals, Sen. George McGovern says the Nixon administration is "willing to surrender hundreds of American prisoners of war to another four years of captivity."

And he criticized the latest round of secret Paris peace talks, saying, "I am tired of secret negotiations that yield propaganda for the administration but do not yield peace for the people of America or the people of Indochina."

The Democratic nominee kept up his attack on President Nixon's Vietnam policies in a speech to a cheering crowd that filled Boston's 6,000-seat National Guard Armory for a $25-a-plate fund-raising dinner Wednesday night.

McGovern was joined by an array of Kennedys—Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, who introduced him; Jean Kennedy Smith, the senator's sister; Joseph P. Kennedy III, eldest son of the late Robert F. Kennedy; and Caroline Kennedy, the 14-year-old daughter of the late President John F. Kennedy.

It was Caroline's first appearance at a political gathering.

Continuing his campaigning in the Boston area, McGovern switched his fire to economic issues, saying the Nixon administration has fought improvements pushed by congressional Democrats in the areas of minimum wage, Social Security, and pension reform.

"These are things an administration that cared about workers would not do," he said in a speech prepared for a breakfast of labor leaders today.

McGovern contended that "this administration has loaded our public offices with big-business bosses," noting that the Secretary of Labor and media-communications head are former aerospace executives while "the public members" of the Pay Board "come from big steel," from big oil and from inside the Nixon administration."

After the Boston speech, the Democratic nominee planned to fly to Minneapolis for several appearances, including the first in a series of phone-in telethons, before going on to Fargo, N.D., and Seattle.

On Wednesday, McGovern appeared before Evangelical ministers and students in suburban Wheaton, Ill., and made a luncheon speech to some 1,000 of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley's precinct captains.

McGovern's speech to the Chicago luncheon followed appeals for support of the Democratic ticket from Daley and State's Attorney Edward Hanrahan, who is running for re-election while being tried for conspiracy to obstruct justice in connection with the 1969 shooting of two Black Panther leaders.

After a brief stop at a rally in Erie, Pa., third largest city of another crucial state where McGovern is reported running behind, he flew on to Boston for his second visit in eight days, starting with a fund-raising cocktail party hosted by Kennedy cousin Robert Fitzgerald.

That raised $100,000 for the campaign.

At the armory, he noted that Republican National Chairman Robert J. Dole had called his Vietnam withdrawal proposal a plan to surrender but said it is the Nixon administration whose policies are really "in favor of surrender."

"In order to keep a corrupt and unpopular dictatorship in power in Saigon," he said, "they are willing to surrender hundreds of American prisoners of war to another four years of captivity."

Helms Praises Butz' Action

LENOIR, N.C. (AP) — Jesse Helms, the Republican Senate nominee, has praised Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz for declaring a national emergency because of the spread of hog cholera.

"Not only does the hog farmer benefit from the secretary's action," he said in a written statement Wednesday, "the consumer does, too, through protection of the nation's pork supply."

He said, "This action by the USDA is good news all around, and I shall do all in my power to help by interceding with Secretary Butz' office wherever snags may develop in administering the new measures."

Helms urged farmers to lend full support to efforts to eradicate the disease.

Reporting Jump In Enrollments

RALEIGH (AP) — The Department of Community Colleges says enrollment in North Carolina's 56 technical institutes and two-year colleges jumped nearly 10 per cent this fall.

The department said Wednesday that fall quarter enrollment totaled more than 50,000 on the basis of preliminary reports from the institutions. Last fall enrollment stood at 45,675.

WAR REFRESHMENTS — A South Vietnamese Army search and destroy operation, top photo, is not without some of the trappings of a roadside sports event as civilians hawk food and drink for the troops. The soldiers were about to embark in helicopters on their mission when youngsters sold them ice cream (lower left) and beer (lower right). The troops were looking for Viet Cong who had conducted an ambush on road in the area. (AP Wirephoto)

New Soviet Super Bomber Believed In Production

By FRED HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Military intelligence sources say Russia may have started quantity production of a new super-sonic bomber believed capable of reaching the United States.

U.S. officials have been monitoring Soviet progress in testing the new swing-wing bomber, code-named Backfire, for about three years.

In a new assessment of Soviet aircraft production, U.S. intelligence experts indicated the Russians may have moved beyond the development phase and into production of the bomber.

They estimated the Russians have completed about 12 of the new bombers so far, but do not yet know how many the Russians plan to build.

Nor are American experts certain whether the Russians intend the 1,500-mile-an-hour bomber for use against possible enemies in Asia or Europe, or whether they are thinking of lengthier missions.

The Backfire is rated capable of operating against targets up to 3,000 miles from Russian bases and returning home without refueling. This, in the view of U.S. experts, means the Backfire could strike against the United States in the event of war.

There is nothing in the limited nuclear-arms-limitation agreement to bar the United States and Russia from pushing ahead with new bomber development and manufacture.

The United States is working on an advance bomber, called the B1, which is somewhat similar to the Soviet Backfire. But the new American bomber could not be ready for combat until 1977 at the earliest. The Pentagon has not yet decided whether to start production.

Over the past few years the Nixon administration has thinned out this country's anti-bomber defenses, in part because they have been growing obsolete and costly to operate.

Instead, the administration wants to install a new air-defense system equipped to deal with the most sophisticated bomber threat of the 1970s and 1980s. Such a system would cost up to $15 billion.

The Soviets now own about 195 aging long-range bombers and tankers to refuel them in flight.

The U.S. strategic-bomber fleet numbers about 400 B52s and 70 more-modern FB111s. Half the B52s are committed to the Southeast Asian war.

The Backfire is believed capable of penetrating enemy airspace at lower altitudes at relatively high speeds. It is likely to be armed with air-to-surface missiles and bombs and to be equipped with electronic devices for fooling defense radar and antiaircraft weapons.

Oldest Man Is Invited

BARTOW, Fla. (AP) — Bartow's ancient man, Charlie Smith, says he left his homeland of Liberia as a captive slave in 1842. And now the 130-year-old Smith, who claims to be the world's oldest living human being, has the opportunity to return as an honored guest of the Liberian government.

A press attache at the Liberian Embassy in Washington, D.C. said in a telephone interview he planned to travel to Bartow today to meet with Smith and try to persuade him to go home for a week's visit.

Smith could not be reached for comment on the offer, but Social Security officer Joe Scarmanack of Lakeland sent a man to break the word to Smith Wednesday.

"When he first was approached, he gave an emphatic 'no,'" said Scarmanack. "But then he said he might go, but in no way would he go by airplane. And he said he would like to have one of his friends go with him."

Missionary Will Speak Friday

The Rev. Milton H. Robinson, United Methodist missionary to the Aymara Indians of the Bolivian Andes for the past 14 years will speak in the Fellowship Hall of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church here Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Robinson and their family are on furlough from the mission field.

The Aymara Indians have a tradition bound agricultural society in the inhospitable land 12,000 feet high in the Andes. The Robinsons founded and have directed the Christian Vocation School of Ancoraimas and he also has done ministerial work, confronting pagan beliefs and practices older than the Incan Empire.

Police Ordered Return Passport

TEL AVIV (AP) — A district court here has ordered police to return the passport of Rabbi Meir Kahane of New York, head of the militant Jewish Defense League, to permit him to travel on a lecture tour.

Kahane's passport was confiscated after his arrest two weeks ago on suspicion of organizing a plot to smuggle arms to militants abroad for a terror campaign against Arab diplomats.

Kahane was released from jail last week on nearly $10,000 bail.

Philip Urges Adventure

LONDON (AP) — Prince Philip has urged parents to expose their children to adventure by encouraging them to seek new experiences.

The husband of Queen Elizabeth II, said Wednesday the opportunities for the space-age generation were limitless but the young had to discover them for themselves.

He said parents often are of little help in guiding their children because they are baffled by mind-stunning devices which the youngsters probably better understand.

Philip made his remarks in a magazine interview.

The last American ground combat unit in Vietnam was the 3rd Battalion, 21st Infantry Regiment, which was deactivated Aug. 10, 1972.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market hit an autumn slump today as high hopes for a Vietnam peace settlement fizzled when the semipublic Paris talks resumed on an angry note.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 8.21 to 938.21. Declines outnumbered advances about three to one in desultory trading.

The most-active on the Big Board was Aileen Inc., down 3/4 to 7 1/4. Trans World Airlines, which dropped 3/4 to 38 1/4, paced a general decline in airlines.

Another drop was recorded in steels after the Environmental Protection Agency said annual pollution abatement costs for the industry are expected to come to $1 billion in 1975. Bethlehem led the decline with 5/8 slide to 27 1/4.

Polaroid plummeted 3 1/4 to 104 1/4 after Berkey Photo Inc. introduced an instant film camera it said will be the first to compete with the Polaroid line.

International Business Machines Inc., which unsuccessfully sought a delay Wednesday in its antitrust suit, fell 2 1/4 to 388 1/2.

The New York Stock Exchange index at 11 a.m. was off .30 to 49.67. The price-change index on the American Stock Exchange was down .04 to 25.91.

SHOT AND KILLED

BEIRUT, (AP) — Hachem Jawad, the U. N. Development Program's resident representative for the Middle East, was shot and killed in his office here today. Police said his former driver fired seven bullets at Jawad and then turned the gun on himself.

Engagement

(Continued from page 1) that since the facility is owned by the Greenville City Schools and is leased to the Recreation Department, capital improvements of necessity had to be kept to a minimum as the lease is subject to withdrawal any time the city school system has a need of the property.

The commission approved Dr. Herbert Hadley's motion that the City Council be asked to bring to light again a study on the possibility of redesignating the Recreation Commission as the Recreation and Parks Commission. Earlier in the year, Dr. Hadley had proposed and the Recreation Commission had approved, a formal request that the City Council study the matter. The Council, in accepting the original request, noted the request would be tabled for a six months study. The six month period ended some months ago.

Approval was given, subject to payment of standard fees, for the use of recreational facilities by Pace Academy for basketball games. Mrs. Louis Gaylord's motion was that the academy be offered the choice of two sites (Elm Street or South Greenville Gyms) for a game in November and one in December, subject to payment of fees for out-of-city usage. The private school is seeking use of facilities for all five of its scheduled games, but Lee explained that due to the city's needs, it would be impossible to consider renting the facilities after Christmas.

The standard fee for private use is $50 plus a $10 clean-up fee.

William H. (Bill) Carstarphen, Greenville's new city manager, attended the meeting of the Recreation Commission last night and met commissioners, League of Women Voters representatives and others present for the meeting.

Gun Mishap Hiked Toll

SAIVON (AP) — The gun explosion aboard the heavy cruiser Newport News pushed U.S. combat casualties in Vietnam last week to their highest total in more than a year, the U.S. Command announced today.

The Command said 21 Americans were killed in action and 53 were wounded. This included 19 killed and 37 wounded on Oct. 1 when a shell exploded in one of the cruiser's big guns.

Although the Navy labeled the explosion an accident, a spokesman for the Command said the casualties were listed as combat losses because the ship at the time was firing on enemy positions in Quang Tri Province.

The combat toll was the highest since the week of Sept. 26-Oct. 2, 1971, when 21 GIs were killed in action and 117 were wounded. A month ago the U.S. Command announced the lowest weekly casualty total since such records were started in January 1965, seven American wounded and four missing or captured.

The nation's wild turkey population jumped from 97,000 in 1952 to 531,000 in 1958.
