

Occasional Humor Seen In Campaign

By DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON AP — There was the time when Democratic vice-presidential nominee Sargent Shriver thought he was driving home his point about the high cost of living by quoting the price of bacon-until he learned he was talking to the rabbi's wife.

And the time Vice President Spiro T. Agnew made a speech praising a Republican senatorial candidate, then couldn't remember the man's name at the crucial moment of introduction.

Or when a local Democrat was trying his best to give George McGovern a nice introduction but, memory failing him, he presented the Democratic presidential candidate as George Washington.

And those inevitable one-liners from the stump as politicians try to match Bob Hope or Morey Amsterdam.

Like Shriver fiddling with the microphone and quipping: "You know, we Democrats don't often get to talk into microphones you can see."

Or Agnew cutting at McGovern's proposed defense-spending cuts by telling an Oklahoma City crowd that cowboys had run the Democrat out of town for telling them they were overarmed with six-shooters and "three-shooters" would do as well.

These are the comic moments of a political campaign, which often aren't reported in the crush of heavy issues.

Richard Nixon, who told a lot of jokes in 1968, is less-given to campaign clowning as President. Agnew, also working on a new image, has dropped the glittering alliteration which helped make him famous, but not his quips.

When the candidates run out of something funny to say, others in the traveling entourage find a chuckle somewhere.

Take for example the time Agnew was playing golf with Frank Sinatra and Jack Benny. Agnew, whose golf drives are notorious, was having a good day, and Benny couldn't find the fairway. Finally, Agnew beamed a little too much, and Benny shamed him with: "Look, at my age I'm happy if I just make the tee."

When the politicians get funny on purpose, the comic lines usually are pointed to campaign issues.

There's a favorite McGovern theme that Nixon won't come out and campaign. When Nixon fans show up to heckle a McGovern rally, McGovern tells the crowd to let it pass. "This is as close as they'll ever get to a presidential campaign. It's obvious they're never going to see their candidate."

Some routines get pretty elaborate, like the one that started when Shriver compared the Republicans to a football squad with "Tricky Dicky at quarterback dancing around out there" behind a screen of blockers.

The Democrats thought it was a good line and distributed recordings to radio stations. The Republicans liked it too, and started putting it out themselves.

The GOP also found some real live football players to say they were offended by Shriver's remarks, but McGovern picked up the football analogy and carried it further.

"He has Spiro Agnew as offensive right end," McGovern said of Nixon's team. "He has Bob Dole as his kicking specialist. He has his chief fund-raiser, Maurice Stans, as the out-of-bounds receiver. John Mitchell, with Martha looking over his shoulder, is the up-tight end. John Connally is a roving back, and Mel Laird's specialty, I regret to say, is throwing the long bomb."

Agnew likes to jab at Shriver's affluent background. He once ascribed to Shriver this remark: "My father knows poverty first-hand. He had 10 mouths to feed—me, my mother and 10 polo ponies."

Several days later, when an Agnew staff member was asked the purpose of a particular staff meeting, he replied, "We're giving the vice president a crash course in math, like how to count polo ponies."

Marts Closing

Closing dates for several markets in the Eastern Tobacco Belt have been announced today.

The Greenville market has announced plans to have its final sale on Tuesday.

Closing after sales today will be Ahsokie, Dunn and Tarboro Markets planning their final sale for Thursday are Clinton, Kinston, Robersonville, Smithfield, Wendell and Williamston.

The Wallace market held its final sale yesterday while tobacco markets at Windsor and Washington ended the 1972 selling season on Oct. 19.

CANNON SALES UP

KANNAPOLIS, N.C. (AP) — Cannon Mills Co. chairman-president Don S. Holt said today that Cannon sales for the first nine months of 1972 exceeded sales for the same period of 1971 by about 12 per cent.

Benefits For Vets

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has signed into law a measure increasing college and high school benefits for veterans by more than 25 per cent.

Nixon told a group of 200 Vietnam veterans at a White House ceremony Tuesday that the best way the nation can repay veterans for their sacrifices "is to build a lasting peace in the world."

The new law boosts education benefit payments by 25.7 per cent for an unmarried veteran and 29 per cent for a married veteran with one child. The new rates for full-time college attendance are $220 a month without dependent, $261 with one, $298 with two and $18 for each additional dependent.

Nixon also signed a $525 million authorization aimed at expanding the Veterans Administration medical services.

Headway, But More Is Needed Peace Prospects Still Unsure

By LEWIS GULICK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu's tough-sounding speech and cautious words from the White House are sending out a similar signal about prospects for a halt to the Vietnam fighting.

It is: Headway has been made in secret negotiations but more is needed before there can be a firm deal to end the war. Peace could come soon, but it is not right around the corner.

Thieu's two-hour address Tuesday included what might be expected from a South Vietnamese president broadcasting to a home audience amidst a war, right after a conference with a peace-seeking ally and enemy-aided speculation that he is being pressured to step down.

He reaffirmed his opposition to a communist takeover of South Vietnam, denounced enemy proposals for a three-segment coalition government, demanded that North Vietnamese forces go home, and declared no one can sign a cease-fire agreement without Saigon's consent.

Thieu's public stand underlined the difficulties for presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger, shuttling from sessions in Paris to those in Saigon in quest of a deal acceptable to all.

It also pointed to the possibility of at least a military standstill while major political issues remain up for negotiation.

A cease-fire, Thieu said, "may take place before the U.S. presidential election" Nov. 7 or just a few months thereafter. "The final decision must be reached when we and the communists decide to sit down together."

The White House version Tuesday, following Kissinger's return from Saigon, was that there has "been some progress" toward a negotiated Vietnam peace. Officials privately counseled against expecting a war-ending agreement by election day or shortly thereafter.

It is recalled here, too, that Kissinger thought he was making progress in his secret sessions with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho last year. The negotiations broke down with an angry public exchange last January.

With Thieu setting forth his terms in explicit fashion, officials expect Kissinger will commute to Paris and perhaps to Saigon yet again. Presumably he sought to persuade Thieu to take an agreed position and next will try to convince the North Vietnamese to go along.

Nixon's publicized peace plan allows for an Indochina cease-fire, return of prisoners and U.S. withdrawal as a first step, with a political solution to be left to the South Vietnamese "free from outside interference."

The key issue right along has been political—who will rule South Vietnam. If Nixon could win agreement on military settlement terms, the United States would be out of the war when the shooting stopped.

North Vietnam's premier sounded the progress-in-negotiations theme in a Newsweek interview published Sunday, saying the secret talks are making a "positive evolution" toward a cease-fire and South Vietnamese political negotiations.

Premier Pham Van Dong was vague, however, on just what political conditions Hanoi is holding out as a price for a cease-fire. At one point, he said:

"Our iron will is being applied to bring about a three-sided coalition which will lead to national reconciliation and independence."

Thieu was equally firm in denouncing what he termed a deceitful enemy proposal aimed at giving control of South Vietnam to the communists. "I hold the three-segment formula to be absurd and baseless," he said. "How can we accept such a disguised coalition government after fighting for decades?"

Nixon Pledges Aid Nonpublic Schools

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon today pledged his help to maintain nonpublic schools in America, saying he is "irrevocably committed" to seek tax credits for them.

Nixon also said he will press the next session of Congress to end court-ordered busing of school children.

In the fifth of a series of paid political radio broadcasts, the President discussed his view of the federal government's responsibility to education.

He said under his administration, the federal contribution to education increased "by over 70 per cent, from $9 billion in fiscal year 1969 to $15.7 billion in fiscal year 1973."

Nixon said he had vetoed education legislation three times "because I believed the added tax burden would have far outweighed the benefits to be derived." In each case, he said, the amount Congress proposed was "more than the public could afford to pay."

On aid to nonpublic schools, the President said he believed parents should have the freedom to choose a religious-centered education for their children, "and I am determined to help guarantee that freedom of choice."

On the question of busing, Nixon praised the neighborhood school as fundamental to American education.

"No one profits by the confusion and resentment that is generated when whole school systems are disrupted by the forced busing of school children away from their neighborhoods," he said. "The answer to inequities in our educational system is to spend more money on learning and less money on busing."

In the 15-minute talk, broadcast live from the White House library on the major radio networks, the President expressed his belief that the people themselves should have the real decision-making power in education rather than appointed judges or Washington officials. He said his proposed Education Special Revenue Sharing Program would do this.

Hunt Affirms Support Youth Voice In Govm't

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Jim Hunt assured students here today that he feels young people should have a strong voice in state government and pledged to encourage as many youthful appointments to policy making positions as possible.

Hunt, the Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, met and talked with students at the East Carolina University Student Union and told them, "I think there ought to be young people on the boards and commissions in North Carolina that make policies that provide opportunities for the people of this state."

He added, "To the extent that I have an opportunity to make appointments, and I'll have some but not a great deal, I'm going to do that. I feel the same way with respect to women, with respect to minorities in North Carolina."

The Wilson attorney encouraged students to do as "much work as you can on the matter of this constitutional amendment which does not provide the vote for 18 to 21-year-olds as it proposes to do..." What the amendment will do, if it carries, he said, "is to prevent 18 to 21-year-olds from running for public office..." He said that he thinks passage of the amendment will "be a step backward."

Hunt said that young people, even though very few of them have won elections to a public office in the past, should have the opportunity to run "and if the people want to elect them then they ought to have that opportunity."

He also credited young citizens, particularly interns working in state government, with offering some of the "freshest, most imaginative and, I think productive, ideas that have come in recent years." Hunt said that young practice (Continued on page 12)

Voting 'Bonus'

MIAMI (AP) — Pupils at Shenandoah Junior High School think one way of getting voters to the polls Nov. 7 is to give out free kisses at the ballot box.

The students have other ideas for getting out the vote:

No tax refunds unless a person votes, church bells ringing every hour on election day, voting machines made to look like slot machines and entertainment at the polls and block parties with bingo and crap games.

The suggestions were part of a brainstorm session held by science teacher Morton Raisen.

Barge Explodes

CARTERET N.J. (AP) — A 348-foot barge exploded in flames today as it was being loaded with gasoline in a narrow waterway between New Jersey and Staten Island, N.Y.

Authorities said one man was reported missing in the blast and two others were hospitalized with injuries.

The fire quickly spread to a building, a pier and a fuel tank within the large industrial complex.

Share Prize

STOCKHOLM (AP) — An American and a Briton won the Nobel Prize in economics today for fundamental theories that have helped businessmen judge financial risks and aided governmental efforts to create economic stability and welfare policies.

The awarding of the $98,100 prize by the Swedish Academy of Science completed this year's distribution of Nobel Prizes which saw an American-Briton sweep in the scientific fields. The two men who won the economics prize will share the prize money.

Prof., Kenneth Arrow, a 50-year-old Harvard economist who explored applications of the economic theories of the 68-year-old cointerpreter, Prof. John R. Hicks of Oxford, became the eighth American Nobel winner this year. Six shared the physics and chemistry prizes in one day and earlier an American and a Briton shared the medicine prize. Heinrich Boll of West Germany won the literature accolade.

The prize in economic science was instituted four years ago and Americans have been honored the past three years. The prize was set up by the Swedish National Bank which celebrated its 300th anniversary as the world's oldest in 1968.

Helms Reported Spending Three Times As Much As Galifianakis

RALEIGH (AP) — Campaign spending reports show that Republican Senate nominee Jesse Helms has received more than three times as much in contributions and spent more than three times as much in the last six weeks as his Democratic opponent, Rep. Nick Galifianakis.

The reports were filed with

Secretary of State Thad Eure Tuesday.

They showed that Helms' committee listed expenditures totaling $265,117.97 from Sept. 1 through Oct. 16. Contributors received during that period totaled $245,924.50.

Galifianakis' committee reported expenses totaling $74,231.67 from Sept. 1 through Oct. 16. During that same period he reported receiving contributions of $78,449.65.

The Helms committee reported expenses for the year through Oct. 16 at $436,135.58. Galifianakis reported expenses for the same period of $268,673.33.

The Helms report showed that contributions for the year have totaled $435,683.31. Galifianakis' contributions for the year up to Oct. 16 total $254,083.06.

Major contributors listed on the Helms report for the year include: National Republican Senatorial Committee, $35,000; Hugh Chatham, Elkin, $6,550; Republican Congressional Boosters Club, $40,750; Roger Milliken, Spartanburg, S.C., textile executive, $5,000; Champion McDowell Davis, Rt. 1, Wilmington, $2,500; Earl F. Stick, Winston-Salem, $3,000;

Also, Cordelia S. May, Pittsburg, Pa., $3,000; J. M. Olin, St. Louis, Mo., $3,000; Richard M. Scaife, banker; Pittsburgh, $3,000; John B. Veach, lumber manufacturer, Asheville, $2,000;

MEDPAC of North Carolina, Pinehurst, $13,000; and Business Industry Political Action Committee, Washington, $10,000.

Those listed as contributing large sums for Galifianakis this year include: Gordon Hanes, Winston-Salem, $3,000; Margaret Drewry Hanes, Winston-Salem, $2,000; A. T. Finer, Morehead City, $1,400; Frank Daniels, Raleigh, $1,000; Dr. and Mrs. C. D. Jamouls, Wadsworth, Ohio, $5,000; Action Committee for Rural Electrification, $1,000; George E. Johnson, Sacramento, Calif., $1,150; Angelo K. Chicos, Sacramento, $1,000; National BiPartisan Employees Fund Committee, Winston-Salem, $1,000; George Chimples, Cleveland, Ohio, $2,000; Real Estate Political Education

Committee, Chicago, $2,000; Charles P. Thanos, Roanoke Rapids, $1,475;

Also, 1972 Campaign Fund, Washington, $5,000; Leonard Davis, New York, $2,500; Sophie Davis, New York, $2,500; Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee, $12,000; Russell Walker, Asheboro, $4,658.28; and J. B. Harris, Durham, $1,200.

Health, Beauty Cruise May Cure What Ails You

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

For some people the transition from ugly duckling to beautiful swan may be merely a matter of going beyond the three-mile limit.

Imagine, if you will, hair-dressers, makeup artists, a masseuse, skin specialist, an etiquette counselor and an obesity expert as captive performers on a ship at sea. For 12 days? It's enough to jiggle one's false teeth.

For more than a thousand people who are expected to embark on a beauty and health cruise to the Caribbean this fall, the idea will become a reality. Presumably, at docking time, all will be a bit handsomer, healthier, happier and wiser. With all those hours to wile away in togetherness with beauty and health experts, can the bloom fail to rub off.

Beauty treatments—facials, makeup, hair dye—will be dished out in the French manner with Madeleine Bretillard, head of the Paris Lanome Beauty Institute and three of her assistants, heading up the beauty seminar on the SS France when it leaves port. Massage will be the authentic Parisian one with ozone machines "that penetrate the first layer of the skin" opening pores for a mask treatment as they do in French salons. And there will be the latest in European hair fashions and hair dyeing techniques by the Technical Director of L'Oreal, James Viera.

In their quest for charm and elegance, passengers are slated to get the latest word from etiquette expert, Amy Vanderbilt, and there should be some new routines in exercises by Elaine LaLanne, who works with her physical fitness husband, Jack LaLanne, of television fame.

But two doctors are expected to get a real workout. One, a well-known dermatologist, Michael Kalman of New York, will give advice about skin, and Neil Solomon, Secretary of Health and Mental Hygiene for the State of Maryland, will advise on losing weight.

In a conversation the other day, Dr. Solomon revealed that he was anticipating the crush of enthusiastic passengers. Youthful Solomon's popularity has been furthered by publication of the best seller, "The Truth About Weight Control." His medical research has centered about endocrinology, metabolism and weight control.

"I expect to tell passengers how they can take off from 5 to 15 pounds using the most recent medical discoveries. There will be no gimmicks. They'll get real facts about weight control that they can incorporate into everyday eating and exercise." And dieting shouldn't spoil the trip for anyone, he explains.

Even the ship's gourmet cuisine—crepes, zettes or whatever—may be relished when he "tells them how to do it."

"As people grow older they lose one per cent of active metabolizing cells each year. Physical activity must be increased or food must be decreased to keep weight the same.

Metabolism changes also occur when one gives up cigarettes.

"Weight is gained because fewer calories are burned up when they stop smoking. After smoking is stopped, food must be decreased or exercise increased by 10 per cent to keep weight normal. And it must be done for about three months."

That research study was conducted by Temple University, he explains.

He is particularly anxious to catch up with dieters with the "yo-yo syndrome." Even though they are likely to diet avidly, their weight goes up and down, "like a yo-yo" he comments, and they are likely to become very discouraged. This condition may be caused by "abnormal fat in the system" that does not allow them to burn up the calories that should be burned up, even though they diet.

Dr. Solomon has a test diet and if they don't lose weight after being on it for a week, they fall into the yo-yo pattern. He will then give them 13 pointers to help "get the fat off their bodies." Once it is off, it should not be regained if they eat normally.

Some overweight types may need no more than daily exercise to lose a few pounds. This flagship of France has a big gymnasium, swimming pool and saunas, and being the longest ship in the world it offers opportunity for miles and miles of healthful walks at sea.

Women Managers Moving Into Fast Growing Industry Branch

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Ms.-managed stores are increasing in a fast-growing branch of the food industry.

Nearly 26 per cent of all company-owned convenience stores now have women managers, compared with less than 20 per cent two years ago. Fifty to 100 per cent of all store managers and operators are women in nearly 20 per cent of all convenience chains. These statistics were quoted by Progressive Grocer, a trade publication, in its second annual report on this type of store.

A convenience store is defined by its trade association as a self-service establishment with 1,000 to 3,200 square feet of space, parking for five to fifteen cars and longer hours than traditional supermarkets in its area. Primarily a food store, it also carries non-foods.

The magazine's reports on convenience stores and one woman supermarket manager should warm the hearts of feminists, even though supermarket management still is a man's world. Robert E. O'Neill, senior editor of Progressive Grocer, said there probably are no more than 10 to 20 women store managers among the big chains, although women are increasingly being promoted to department heads.

The convenience store report said there is "a growing conviction that women, in many instances, actually do a superior job of managing the store."

Women Friendlier

"They are much better housekeepers; they are generally more conscientious, and maintain a more friendly relationship with customers," one company executive told the magazine.

Said another:

"Women are more geared to working 'by the book.' They won't take as many risks with inventory and they refuse to be pushed over by aggressive route salesmen. We also find that shrinkage through pilferage and waste is halved under women managers."

The woman supermarket head is Carole Fried Bitter, who at 26 is the youngest individual and the first of her sex to hold such a position in the Stop & Shop chain. She is in charge of an 80-member staff at a shopping center market in the Boston suburb of Framingham, Mass.

Mrs. Bitter, who is not a member of the women's liberation movement, grew up in the retail grocery business. Her father has owned stores in western Pennsylvania for more than 30 years. As a child, she stocked shelves and did other simple chores and later worked part time as a dairy manager in a family store.

Education Hindered Her

Mrs. Bitter told the magazine that transition to full management responsibility was made more difficult not just by her youth and gender, but also her college education. She holds a B.A. in psychology and English literature from Western Reserve University and was the first woman to complete the Cornell University food marketing program. Colleagues who had come up through the ranks resented this, she said.

But some who seemed most sensitive during the management training program have since become her biggest boosters.

Even some customers were skeptical. One asked:

"Are you sure you're the manager of the whole store?"

Mrs. Bitter had planned major remodeling so the store "would make more sense from a woman's point of view." When prohibitive costs made that impossible, she substituted a scaled down program. Among other things, she moved drink mixes to the soda section from the snack area and began carrying charcoal the year round because shoppers in her area like to barbecue on their patios all year. She said redesigning will continue.

Some changes are sure to stem from shoppers' requests, via a "mini-consumers' panel." Members are chosen by their peers and Mrs. Bitter said the worst complainers often make the best panel members. "They know what they want and are willing to work to help achieve it."

She promotes customer relations by briefing the panel on management problems. She also talks with competitors about common problems such as losses from bad checks,

Soft Spring Dress Is Part Of Geoffrey Beene Boutique Collection

By ANN HENCKEN
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The soft spring dress is the best thing on the ticket at the Geoffrey Beene boutique collection.

For evening, weed through some old-looking cygaline ruffles, stiff organzas and the neck ruffles of a red and white polka dot creation.

Don't stop until you come to a group of short chiffons. Some are pastel, with dropped waists and shoulders. Others are printed with pleated skirts. If the short evening dress is indeed coming back, this is a good solution.

These look better than some dressy pants suits offered. They are newer than the long swirling print dresses shown.

They even outshine a couple of very pretty white shirt waists, shown full length, at the Monday presentation.

For day, riffle through the typical famous Beene styles: the crisp princess line dress and the useful dark blue with white collar.

Push on to a series of pastel jerseys, cut straight and narrow, often with matching turbans. Try pink or yellow or beige. They look great — neat, grown up and put-together.

These two groups of dresses, for day and evening are top choice at Beene. However, there are plenty of good chemise styles and some spanking fresh, checked daytime suits.

The sashed look predominates in coats and jackets, bringing more softness to the tailored trend — which is loosening up a bit for spring.

For women who worry about their cleaning bills, there are enough dark blue outfits and with white touches to go around.

This is the only drawback to the popular pale tones for spring.

The cleaning bills can be monstrous. One speck of spaghetti sauce is all it takes.

Prices of the collection run from $110 to $350. And the dress is the more effective offering from Beene.

Don't Nag If Flying Is Husband's Hobby

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are a young married couple with two children. We've been married for three years, but our marriage isn't the problem. The problem is that my husband has started taking flying lessons, and I am upset over it because we can't afford it.

The course is $800, which he doesn't have to pay for all at once. He pays for a lesson at a time.

He works eight hours a day, six days a week. Then he works for two or three hours every evening on our house, which we are building by ourselves. When Sunday comes he goes to the airport for two hours.

I say he should cut out the flying lessons because we can't afford it. My husband says, "Write to Abby and see whose side she's on."

I promised if you were on his side I wouldn't say another word about it.

RED BARON'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: From your letter, I suspect it's not the money you resent so much as the time and energy your husband spends on his flying. If he's laying out money that puts you in a bind, financially, of course he should quit flying. But if that's not the case, and his only hobby takes him away from home for two hours every Sunday, don't nag him about it.

DEAR ABBY: Re that woman who found a library book on which she owed a $60.50 fine [it was three and a half years overdue!]: She was foolish to worry about it. All she had to do was bring it back and explain the circumstances. I doubt if there is a librarian in the country who would have charged her more than the cost of the book—if that.

MODERN LIBRARY

DEAR ABBY: I am a happily married woman with two children. My problem is my 17-year-old sister. [I'll call her Brenda.] Brenda is a senior in high school.

Brenda asked me if I would get some birth control pills for her. I told her nothing doing, she should behave herself and she wouldn't have to worry.

To my amazement, Brenda asked Mother to get them for her, and as unbelievable as this may sound, Mother got them for her. When Brenda told me this, I couldn't believe it, so I went straight to Mother and asked her if she was out of her mind. Mother said, "I would prefer that Brenda save herself until she marries, but if she is going to have sex, I would rather have her safe than sorry."

Believe me, Abby, if I had asked my mother for the Pill when I was 17, she would have kicked me out of the house.

I don't know what's come over my mother. She is 50. Is it possible that she is going thru her change and has flipped her lid?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Your mother may be going through the change—but so is the world. I do not condone premarital sex, either, but when one considers the alternatives, your mother may have made a wise choice. Ask any mother whose daughter is about to become an unwed mother.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter recently attended a wedding. As the bride was leaving, she tossed her bridal bouquet and my daughter caught it, but it slipped thru her hands. The girl next to her FELL on it and claimed it was hers!

While my daughter and this other girl were arguing over who should have the bridal bouquet, the other girl's mother butted in and took her daughter's side.

In your opinion, who did the bridal bouquet belong to?

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: If baseball rules were applied, it would be an error on the part of your daughter. If football rules were applied, it would be a fumble. In this case, I'd say possession is nine points of the law, and the girl who possessed it should keep it.

Household Hints

In the cold season, don't leave a cold lying around in a used paper handkerchief. Dispose of the paper tissue instead of leaving it lying around — on a desk, an end table, in an ash tray. The germs that caused the infection usually are contained in the contents of the used tissue after a good nose-blow or sneeze.

That plastic shower curtain in the bathroom — do you wash it occasionally? Do. It will benefit from a brief washing machine trip. Warm water is recommended. It keeps the plastic pliable.

Sound Advice On Shared Funds

State Treasurer Edwin Gill has offered good advice to the state concerning the federal revenue sharing funds.

He has said that the state government should not undertake new programs, which would require additional local taxes if the federal funds were stopped in the future.

"It would be prudent for the General Assembly and our people to consider these funds somewhat in the nature of a windfall, and not regard them as part of the permanent revenue structure of the state," he said. "Under no circumstances should we initiate new programs that would require an increase in state taxes should revenue sharing program be discontinued in any significant manner."

Gill said he would advise county and municipal governments along the same lines.

It is almost impossible to predict where revenue sharing will go in the future. It may be that an historic new method of assisting the finances of state and local governments is underway; or it could be that Congress will eventually find the program just too expensive in the face of mounting federal deficits.

This first year, it strikes us that the Legislature would be wise to sue the funds for capital improvements projects. In this way it may take the place of the limited amount of bonds which the Legislature can issue without a vote of the people.

In two years the state will have a better idea of whether the revenue sharing program is going to be a continuing one and also whether it will replace other federal programs.

Only then will it be safe to incorporate the funds in the state's operating budget.

Right To Die Query Studied

By BRYAN HAISLIP
DURHAM, N.C. — When should a person be allowed to die?

In the not distant past, the simple answer would have been at the point where medical skill could no longer maintain life.

Modern medical technology, with the capability to sustain vital functions almost indefinitely, has destroyed the old simplicity and brought a new dilemma of moral and legal dimensions for doctors and the lay public alike.

Nor is it an abstract question removed from reality, agreed Dr. Harmon Smith of the Duke University Divinity School. Every practicing physician and every family sooner or later may have to face the painful decision on a practical level.

If a patient lies irreversibly ill, beyond medical and personal access, someone else has to say how far to go in applying the techniques that can continue the body's metabolizing processes.

That approaches the fine line between prolonging life — and deferring death, Dr. Smith suggested.

It also runs against another question of disturbing moral implications. "Ought we to do everything we are technically capable of doing?" he asked.

New Questions Raised
"Impressive new questions have been generated in the past three decades by the enormous strides of medicine and surgery," he said.

"Abortion, enlarging possibilities for controlling our genetic future, increased sensitivity toward human experimentation, organ transplantation, and the management of dying patients are only some of the profoundly perplexing as well as promising matters which urgently require sustained and serious attention from many competent people and a variety of perspectives."

In the first immediacy, control over the time and manner of human death is a moral question, he said. "We are not morally anxious about managing the death of animal and plant life. We do it all the time, as a means of providing our food supply," he explained.

Religion must assist the professions of medicine and law in the search for ethics to guide the exercise of the new technology, Dr. Smith said. Dialogue between the humane disciplines can inform and enlarge the competency of each in dealing with the issues, he said.

Focus On Human Values

"The ethicist's primary responsibility is not to provide answers, either gross or precise, but to help clarify and focus appropriate issues and problems," he said, in light of human values at stake in medical decisions made in the context of a Judeo-Christian culture and heritage.

An inter-disciplinary seminar to involve the schools of divinity, medicine and law at Duke now is in the planning stage. Not yet operational, the seminar will be a forum for the disciplines as collaborators to explore areas of mutual concern.

A Mississippi native and the grandson of a doctor, Harmon Smith had an early and crucial encounter with medicine.

As a boy, he had an operation for a ruptured appendix. The surgeon left the operating room to inform the family that the patient had died on the table — he had no pulse, no respiration, and dilated pupils. The doctor returned to discover that somehow the boy was breathing again.

Ethics And Medicine
However that early experience influence him, as a theologian Dr. Smith addressed himself to the subject of medical ethics.

He is the author of "Ethics and the New Medicine," a discussion of moral aspects of advanced medical technology. Research and writing for the book received supporting grants from the American Association of Theological Studies, the Cooper Foundation, The Duke Endowment, and the Mary Biddle Duke Foundation.

Life-and-death decisions for terminally ill patients unable to participate in the decision should be made by those nearest them, those who love them, Dr. Smith said.

He would not presume to decide for them, though he has an opinion. "When there is irreparable brain damage and the patient is beyond either medical or personal access, in my opinion, one is dealing with an unburied corpse," he asserted.

"Conscientia est consequentia" is an old moral aphorism to which he subscribes. He translates it as "conscience is always to be obeyed."

The minister and moralist, he said, must help people correlate belief with behavior, to establish coherence between conscience and conduct.

That applies not only to the dying, but to the living, he added. Life is more than biological process, mechanically maintained, and moral concern must reach the many who die needlessly, as well as the few who need to die in dignity.

District JC Support Is Encouraging Note

We are pleased to note that the Northeastern Jaycee district has offered its full support to the development of a four-year medical school at ECU.

Delegates attending the region meeting in Tarboro last weekend unanimously endorsed a resolution calling for immediate expansion of the school to two years and its eventual development to a four year school.

The Jaycees have recognized that development of the ECU medical school can solve the physician shortage in North Carolina.

Candidate Vs. 'McGovernism'

By ROLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
MORGANTOWN, W. Va. —

The extent to which the pervasive political disease of McGovernism now infects all Democratic candidates across the nation is astonishingly evident here where one of the brightest new Democratic stars is fighting for his political life.

Thus, while John D. (Jay) Rockefeller IV tries to keep his campaign for governor on the bread-and-butter issues of workmen's compensation, unemployment and inflation, he is peppered with pointed questions about abortion, amnesty, marijuana and other symptoms of the grave disease of McGovernism.

Typical was a question thrown at him in the clubhouse of the Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) here one evening last week. Monongalia County Democratic chairman Sam Angotti had pulled in an enthusiastic crowd of Rockefeller Democrats, and the tall, suave 35-year-old millionaire was in the midst of a highly effective, old-fashioned meat-and-potatoes stump speech.

"What's your stand on amnesty?" an aging World War II veteran suddenly shot out. With just a perceptible pause, Jay Rockefeller shot back: "I'm not for amnesty."

He was about to add a qualifying clause, but deafening applause cut him off, and the intrusion of an issue having not the remotest connection with West Virginia state politics ended as suddenly as it began.

It was more of the same when Rockefeller went before a thousand students at the University of West Virginia auditorium. Polite hecklers planted by backers of Republican Gov. Arch Moore, who is running for reelection, hit him with 20 minutes of questions about marijuana, homosexuals, amnesty and abortion.

McGovernism, in short, has become a major obstacle in the meteoric political career of the first of the Rockefeller Democrats. Its murderous drag can be perceived by the fact that McGovern himself now trails President Nixon in West Virginia by almost two-to-one. That is more than enough to write off any chance for McGovern, as of today, in a Democratic state still in love with Franklin Roosevelt and Jack Kennedy.

In heavily Democratic Monongalia County, for example, party canvassers are finding four anti-McGovern Democratic defections for each anti-Rockefeller defector. Straight-party voting with a single mark on the ballot is customary here, raising the possibility that pro-Nixon voters might vote the straight Republican ticket in unprecedented numbers.

Moreover, Rockefeller's opponent is not without rich resources of his own. Tough-minded and articulate, Moore is the first incumbent governor in history able to run for reelection here under a constitutional amendment overwhelmingly endorsed by the voters.

Voters may decide they want two-term continuity, particularly in view of Moore's careful stewardship that has given the state two years of fiscal surplus, with a third in view, and Moore's unprecedented ribbon-cutting exposure to celebrate the opening of hundreds of miles of highways.

In addition, the governor is making undoubted gains on two Rockefeller liabilities: his all-out campaign against surface (or strip) coal

Strength For Today

SECRETS
A house in a newly built development was struck by a truck recently and badly damaged. In the course of clearing away the wreckage and making repairs the carpenters stripped sections of the sheathing off the walls. The owner was horrified to see what poor quality, undersized lumber had been used inside the walls and now hastily and carelessly the studding had been tacked into place.

Of course, the contractor who built the house did not know that his secrets would ever be exposed. How many of us, like that contractor, do things we would be ashamed to have others know about, being certain in our minds that no one will ever know.

And how often, as it turns out, we are exposed!

The truth is that there is no real secrecy possible. We cannot be sure of hiding anything from the sight of others forever, and we can be sure that nothing is hidden from the sight of God. "There is nothing covered," the Bible tells us, "that shall not be revealed; and hid, that shall not be known."

The most successful kind of concealment is having nothing to conceal. The greatest peace of mind comes not from having the skeleton locked securely in the closet but from having no skeleton in the closet at all. Guilt is never as comfortable a state as innocence.

The Election Lesson

WASHINGTON — If and when there is ever a peace agreement on Vietnam there will be new elections. The United States is preparing for this eventuality and is now holding classes in Saigon for Vietnamese politicians.

The instructors are on loan from the Committee for the Re-Election of the President. "Now, gentlemen, these are materials absolutely essential for an open and free election. This is the Mark IV Bugging Device which can be placed in your opponent's office so you know what he is up to."

"Ah so, Instructor, but we have no money to buy such expensive equipment."

"Then you must find the money before the election." "It is very difficult to get money in South Vietnam for a presidential election."

"It depends on how you go about it Col. Tho. The first thing you do is set up committees with innocent names like the 'Viet Cong for Thieu,' or the 'Committee to Eliminate the Opposition.' Then you go to manufacturing groups, diarmen, importers-exporters, bankers and landowners and make them contribute $10 million to your party."

"That is good. Then we take the money and spend it on the election?"

"No, General, you do not take the money and spend it on the election. You have to protect the people who gave you the money. So you send your Minister of Commerce with a black satchel to pick up the money by hand. He takes the satchel by jeep to Da Nang where it is flown to Hue. In Hue it is taken by water buffalo to the Mekong Delta. There it is packed in bags of rice and shipped to Mexico. The money is put in a secret Mexican bank account and withdrawn a week later. It is flown back to Saigon and placed in the safe on the Minister of Commerce, and then, and only then, will it be disbursed for the campaign."

"Honorable Instructor, what do we spend the money on?" "Bugging equipment, tape machines, miniature cameras, disappearing ink, forged letterheads, pistols — the usual paraphernalia that anyone needs for a free and open election. Now once you have the equipment, you need volunteers to get your candidate elected. You have to be very selective. You want people with police and security experience, men who have worked in intelligence and espionage. They will be the key figures in the campaign. Yes, Maj. Ku?"

"Will these men go out and make speeches for the candidate?"

"No, dammit! They will remain undercover. You will use them to infiltrate the opposition. Their job will be to cause chaos in the enemy camp. They will report directly to the Palace on anything they hear. This

Iguanas On The Drapes

By BILLIE BROWN

Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Iguanas aren't the world's greatest pets, frankly, but when you live in a 19th-floor apartment in the city, Airedales are out of the question.

That's how my husband and I used to explain it to squeamish dinner guests after they asked what the green things clinging to the drapes were.

The drapes were their second home. The first was a terrarium, but they outgrew that in a year—when Hamm was four feet long and Clov was three.

They never actually learned their names. They barely knew who we were and took no pains to conceal their aversion to us. They were ugly. And they had the annoying habit of disappearing for days on end and turning up in one of David's suit jackets or under a heater.

On the other hand, we loved them. They were fascinating to watch, and many's the long winter eve we've spent mulling over the strange love-hate relationship between them.

Even so, we never discovered whether they were male or female, or one of each. But their personalities were different: Hamm was the placid earth-mother type, and Clov was inclined to feistiness. According to our lizard handbook, iguanas themselves have trouble distinguishing the sexes.

Our friends were considerably less fascinated by them than we, and our fascination began to pall as they continued to grow.

When we moved to a townhouse apartment in a suburb—with a lease stipulating No Pets—we farmed Hamm out with a bizarre relative in Birmingham. Clov we took along, intending to send him (her?) up to Knoxville, where a home had been promised her (him?) at the city zoo.

Meanwhile, we turned him loose in our patio garden, whence he promptly disappeared. We searched among the ivy, but in vain.

Several weeks later our landlady, who lives next door, approached me.

"You know," she said, "I'm really worried about poor Don across the street. He swears there's a lizard in his fig tree. He told me that last week, but I thought he'd had a couple of drinks."

"And the darndest thing is, that lizard has grown a foot since the last time he told it."

"That is the darndest thing."

Success Raises Own Problems

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) —

Japan, whose economy continues to grow at the fastest rate of any major industrial nation, is finding that success sometimes is hard to handle.

With its gross national product expanding at more than 10 per cent a year since the mid-1950s, compared with 3 to 6 per cent for most other nations, the Japanese are achieving domestic prosperity but creating antagonisms abroad.

The expansion has been enhanced by the enthusiasm with which the Japanese send their goods to the far corners of the earth, outselling and underbidding foreigners in markets they had thought to be theirs.

But that propensity for exporting has not been matched by a comparable interest in the products and investments of foreigners. It is considerably more difficult to sell to the Japanese than it is to buy from them.

The result is an enormous trade surplus, and an export momentum that the Japanese seem unable to stop. And if the situation isn't corrected, the marketplace itself might act to force a yen revaluation.

It could occur this way: So long as the trade surpluses continue, the yen remains strong and desirable. You don't have to take Japan's word for it; those surpluses testify to it. They amount to IOUs.

Other nations become upset at the situation. They insist that Japan open its markets to their goods in order to help redress the imbalance. And they insist that Japan artificially restrict exports.

Otherwise, they say, they will insist that Japan recognize what the market is telling the world, that the yen is really worth more than its face value. They might insist that a greater value be declared for it.

A revaluation would make Japanese goods more expensive abroad and, depending upon the method in which the revaluation is carried out, tend to make foreign goods less expensive in Japan. Thus, the imbalance would tend to diminish.

One proposal now being considered is to seek a 20 per cent reduction in certain tariffs, thus permitting freer access of other countries to Japan's domestic markets.

Quotas on imports also may be enlarged.

Some critics also suggest that now is the time for Japan to improve its domestic social services—to spend more time, money and effort toward improving living conditions and less in making goods for exports.

No matter how the trade surplus is brought down, it is going to be painful. Despite last year's revaluation, exports through September of this year still continued to exceed imports. They rose 17 per cent, imports 16 per cent.

Japan's surplus during this period climbed $1 billion to more than $6 billion. Compare this with a United States trade deficit during the same period of $4.3 billion and you understand some of today's international frictions.

Deputy Highway Commissioners Idea Is Criticized

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
 Jim Holshouser, Republican candidate for governor, has criticized a proposal for deputy highway commissioners in each county as leading to development of a "huge political machine" in North Carolina.

The proposal has been made by the Democratic candidate for governor, Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles.

Holshouser said while campaigning Tuesday that the deputy commissioners would become political bosses in their counties.

He said that as governor he would press for new roads to be built as part of a long-range statewide plan.

Holshouser continued his criticism of Bowles' proposal to give priority to a statewide vocational education program. The Republican candidate said he favored expansion of present vocational programs, but that the state does not now have enough information to launch a full-bloom career education program.

To his career education program, Bowles added increased support for state-funded kindergartens as top educational priorities. "Earlier, I backed the $10 million increase which was endorsed by various teacher organizations," he said Tuesday. "Now I believe we can do better. We can put up the $200 million asked by the state Board of Education. Twenty million dollars is all they say they can use right now."

The American party candidate for governor, Ariis Pettyjohn, said that attracting foreign industry is not the answer to North Carolina's economic problems. He noted that Gov. Bob Scott and other North Carolina officials have been courting Japanese industry. He said, "I think it's very interesting that we've built Japan up, and we're now turning to them for help. There's something very wrong when we have to turn to the people we have built up. I think we ought to develop our own industry."

The Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate, Nick Galifianakis, said his Republican opponent, Jesse Helms, had attacked Medicare as early as 1962. Galifianakis said he favors making available to the elderly the same minimum level of medical services available to the well-to-do. He said that Helms has labeled Medicare "socialized medicine or some similar phrase, and has fought its enactment or advocated its abolition" at least six times in televised editorials.

Helms was an editorialist for a Raleigh television station for 11 years before resigning to make the race.

Helms has said in recent weeks that he supports the concept of Social Security, including medical care for the poor. But he says he believes changes should be made to eliminate what he refers to as outright doles and handouts.

Helms said Tuesday that will do anything, to make a Galifianakis is misrepresenting including Social Security, Galifianakis "will say anything, point. He charged that his positions on several matters, Medicare, and aid to farmers.

Hunting WWII Soldier Holdout

By JESS TAN JR.
 Associated Press Writer
 LUBANG, Philippines (AP) — Task Force Onoda is searching a corner of this tropical island to find a Japanese guerrilla fighter who never surrendered after World War II.

Relatives of 2nd Lt. Hiroo Onoda, 50, have joined Japanese and Philippine officials in the search launched after Onoda and Pfc. Kinshichi Kozuka battled a Philippine constabulary patrol six days ago on a hillside near the village of Tilik, about 70 miles southwest of Manila.

Kozuka was killed and Onoda was believed wounded. The two men were sent to the island during the war as guerrillas. Onoda was assigned to an intelligence unit.

Onoda's older brother Toshio arrived Saturday to help in the search. His younger brother Shiego, 46, and Toshio's wife, arrived in Manila Tuesday.

Toshio Urabe, the Japanese ambassador to the Philippines, visited Lubang Tuesday. Constabulary officers described the search to him and he flew over the mountainous jungle area where Onoda is believed hiding.

The 22-man task force is divided into three teams, each equipped with a large Japanese flag and a megaphone, used to urge Onoda to surrender.

Lt. Col. Pedro Juachon Jr., commander of the search operation, said he believed Onoda probably had a permanent shelter "and that's what we're looking for now. He couldn't have survived all these years if he didn't have some kind of permanent hiding place." He said he did not believe Onoda was seriously wounded.

Mitsuo Ijima, a Japanese Embassy official, said there was little hope of finding Onoda because of the heavy jungle growth.

"The operation will only succeed if Onoda voluntarily surrenders," he said, but "Onoda is trained not to believe anybody except his commander, and this makes the search much more difficult."

Helicopters flew over the area broadcasting messages in Japanese urging Onoda to surrender. Thousands of leaflets with the same message have been dropped on the region.

Honored By Farm Bureau

Mrs. Charles S. Allen, secretary of the Pitt County Farm Bureau, was honored for 11 years of service with the organization at the board of directors meeting last night.

President David H. Smith presided during the business session.

The board approved plans for an addition to the Farm Bureau building.

W.A. Allen, member of the 20-man tobacco committee, gave facts and figures concerning an increase in tobacco poundage for 1973.

The board voted to recommend to the county membership, at the annual meeting Monday night, that Pitt County go on record as requesting the secretary of agriculture not to increase the tobacco poundage for next year.

A general resolutions committee named includes Mrs. Ruel Dilda, Mrs. Wilbur Worthington and Mrs. David H. Smith.

Mrs. Allen was presented a silver pitcher by the Farm Bureau president.

Killings Go On In Ulster

BELFAST (AP) — A chain of explosions rocked Londonderry Tuesday night, a sniper killed a British soldier and the bodies of two men who had been stabbed were found in a ditch and a cowshed near the border of the Irish Republic.

Another soldier died from wounds received when a booby trap went off during a house search last week. The death toll rose to at least 621 in more than three years of communal violence.

The explosions in Londonderry, Northern Ireland's second largest city, occurred within 15 minutes. Six blasts wrecked a rugby club pavilion, a post office, an electrical transformer and a store. There were no casualties.

The army said there was little guerrilla activity early today. A civilian in Belfast was wounded slightly by a sniper as he talked to some soldiers. The troops fired back and said they hit the gunman in the shoulder, but he escaped.

Board Told Of Aid Role

The Salvation Army Advisory Board, at its meeting yesterday, was told that 1,288 persons have been assisted through various programs conducted by Salvation Army in Pitt County over the past month.

Included in the list of aid was 12 food orders given; 86 pieces of furniture given; 467 pairs of shoes distributed; 8,178 garments distributed; three fuel orders filled; and three prescriptions orders given.

Salvation Army workers helped find jobs for five persons during the past month, one burned-out family was assisted, four light bills were paid, and 284 persons were interviewed.

A number of transients were assisted by the Salvation Army during the month, according to Capt. Al Smith. The Salvation Army officer noted that 16 transients were provided with lodging while 37 meals were given to transients. In addition, two transients were supplied with bus tickets.

The strip-mining issue is particularly hurtful because some deep-mine diggers in this coal state suspect that the next move will be against deep-mining. Although ridiculous on its face, a couple of coal miners complained about this to Rockefeller when he shook hands at a midnight shift-change at Humphrey Mine No. 7 in Mt. Morris, Pa., on the West Virginia border.

But Rockefeller's assets are also formidable, including his celebrated status as the richest man in West Virginia ("The one thing he don't need is money so he won't rob us blind," one miner told us).

Without McGovernism Rockefeller would be at least a 50-50. With it, his chances are a bit less than that at this writing.

 information will then be used against the opposition."

"Suppose they are discovered by the opposition?"

"Then the case will be taken over by your Minister of Justice, who will deal with it at the appropriate time."

"Before or after the election?"

"That's a stupid question, General. It will be dealt with (ital) after (unital) the election."

"Forgive me, Honorable Instructor, F was not thinking."

"It's all right. You people are new at holding democratic elections and I can't blame you if you don't know all the rules. Now are there any other questions?"

"Honorable Instructor, suppose the Saigon press discovers that we are involved in these things? Suppose they make a big stink about what we have been doing? What do we do then?"

"You deny it!"

"Class dismissed!"

Electricities Film Viewed At Dinner Meeting

Members of the City Council and Greenville Utilities Commission viewed a film on Electricities at a dinner meeting at the Greenville Golf and Country Club last night.

The film described the work of Electricities which represents the municipally owned systems of North Carolina.

All municipally owned systems now purchase all of their electric power on a wholesale basis from private electric companies. Electricities was formed by the municipally owned systems to oppose rate increase by supplying firms before the regulatory agencies.

Greenville's electric system is municipally owned and administered by a board of commissioners which is appointed by the City Council.

Volume Up At Farmville

FARMVILLE — The volume of sales was the heaviest of the 1972 auction season on the Farmville tobacco market yesterday.

Offerings consisted of a variety of grades. Leaf and smoking leaf grades accounted for most of the volume. According to Louis Williams, sales supervisor for the Farmville market, quality was unusually good yesterday for this late in the season.

Nondescript grades accounted for only a small percent of the volume. Grade for grade prices were stronger than the last sales day.

Quality leaf grades accounted for most of the top prices paid. The market sold 724,858 pounds of tobacco for $575,877, giving an average per hundred pounds of $79.31. To date, the market has sold 19,559,878 pounds of leaf for $17,242,272, giving an average of $88.15 per hundred pounds.

A closing date for the Farmville market has not been announced.

Identify Body As An Escapee

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—A body found in the Eno River Tuesday has been identified as that of an escapee from the Durham unit of the state Department of Corrections, according to a department spokesman.

The spokesman said the body was identified as that of William T. Hollingsworth, 42, of Pulaski, Va., who escaped Monday night. The spokesman said Hollingsworth had been serving 18 months on each of two counts of forcible trespassing. The spokesman added that the cause of death was not immediately determined.

EX-ACTRESS DIES
HOLLYWOOD (AP)— Silent screen star Claire Windsor, 74, who began her career as an extra and moved on to starring roles, died Tuesday. In 1933 she toured with the Al Jolson stage show.

Top Nixon Aide Said Linked To 'Espionage' Fund

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's chief of staff, H.R. Haldeman, was one of five close Nixon associates who controlled a secret campaign spying and sabotage fund, The Washington Post reported today.

The Post said it based the report on information from federal investigators and accounts of sworn testimony given to a grand jury investigating the June 17 break-in at Democratic national headquarters in the Watergate building.

The newspaper said it has been told that Haldeman, a Nixon aide for 16 years, and the four others authorized to make payments from the secret fund were identified in grand jury testimony by Hugh W. Sloan Jr., who quit as treasurer of the Nixon campaign organization shortly after the Watergate break-in.

Deputy White House press secretary Gerald L. Warren declined comment on the Post report. He referred newsmen to a White House statement issued to the Post, saying that "the reference to Bob Haldeman is untrue."

In today's account and in previous reports, the Post named these others as controllers of the fund:

—John N. Mitchell, former attorney general and the first director of the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

—Maurice H. Stans, former Commerce Secretary and now director of the Finance Committee to Re-elect the President.

—Jeb Stuart Magruder, one-time White House aide and now deputy director of the Nixon campaign committee.

—Herbert W. Kalmbach, described by the Post as Nixon's personal attorney. The White House disputes that description, but says Kalmbach has handled some personal legal matters for Nixon.

The sabotage fund, according to the Post, was a cache of as much as $700,000 held in Stans' office safe.

The Post said it has learned that all five men have been questioned by the FBI about disbursements from the fund.

Sloan, the ex-treasurer of the campaign, has told the grand jury that one who received money from the fund was G. Gordon Liddy, the Post said. Liddy is one of seven men under indictment in connection with the Watergate break-in, the incident which set off the disclosures of an alleged GOP sabotage ring.

The Post quoted federal investigators as saying that expenditures of hundreds of thousands of dollars—all approved by either Haldeman, Stans, Mitchell, Magruder or Kalmbach—were made from the fund to finance an undercover operation aimed at discrediting Democratic candidates.

Meantime, Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst told newsmen Tuesday that the Justice Department has no "credible evidence" that federal laws were violated by the alleged acts of sabotage and that he feels no probe of the allegations is warranted.

Kleindienst told newsmen: "Get the evidence to me that would indicate that a specific person has violated a specific criminal law, and my department will investigate it."

He was asked whether the department has questioned Donald H. Segretti, identified by the Post and other publications as one of the GOP sabotage agents. "I really don't know. I don't know if they should or not," the attorney general replied.

There were these other developments Tuesday:

—An aide to a Republican state legislative candidate in Florida said she was recruited by a Republican to spy on Democrats, the Tampa Times reported. Patricia Griffin said she was hired by Robert Benz, who has been linked with Segretti in published reports.

—Frank Mankiewicz, campaign coordinator for Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern, made public a letter to Kleindienst demanding an "immediate and comprehensive investigation and prosecution" of 13 charges of improper campaign fund solicitations and failure to disclose funds by Nixon's campaign organization. Kleindienst said he hadn't seen the letter, but said the department will investigate if there is evidence of wrongdoing.

—Sen. Robert Dole, GOP national chairman, in a speech to Maryland Republican leaders, criticized The Washington Post's reporting of the Watergate investigations. Dole said: "The goal of the Post operations is clear: to diminish so far as possible the enormous gap between Mr. McGovern and the President." A Post spokesman said they would have no immediate comment.

Frustration In Boggs' Search

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Hopes continue to turn into frustrations in the search for a light plane missing for nine days with House Democratic Leader Hale Boggs and three other persons aboard.

Four separate sightings were reported Tuesday, but all turned out to be dead-ends, as have all the leads so far in the search which has covered 148,000 square miles of rugged Alaska territory between Anchorage and Juneau, the path of the missing plane.

An electronically equipped HC130 aircraft was crisscrossing the search area throughout the night Wednesday, and two Coast Guard cutters plied the waters of the Alaska coastline.

Search officials were hopeful favorable weather would permit a "maximum search effort" over the northern half of the search area.

The plane has been missing since Oct. 16 with Boggs, 58; Alaska's lone House member, Nick Begich, 40; Begich aide Russell Brown, 37, and the pilot, Don E. Jonz, 38, of Fairbanks.

The exhaustive air, land and search has been expanded to cover a 120-mile-wide area and pilots have logged 1,060 hours in the air in the fruitless hunt.

Hopes were raised momentarily late Tuesday at the report of a debris sighting in the Gulf of Alaska. The crew of a Coast Guard helicopter reported that "pieces of something" sighted about 30 miles offshore near Yakutat, midway between Anchorage and Juneau, turned out to be logs, cardboard boxes and cargo pallets, apparently discarded by a passing ship.

The helicopter was dispatched after a HC130 reported the debris, part of it orange. The missing Cessna 310 was orange and white.

Maj. Henry Stocker, search coordinator, said more than 40 reported sightings have been investigated since the exhaustive search began. All have come to nothing.

Hobby Will Address Rally

A speech by state labor leader Wilbur Hobby will highlight a "Get Out the Vote" rally at East Carolina University Thursday.

Other attractions are performances by three local bluegrass bands: Sweet Thursday, the Flatland Family Band and Heartwood.

The Greenville Cloggers will perform square dances and other regional American folk dances.

The music will begin at 3 p.m. on the campus mall, with speeches by Hobby and local Democratic leaders between song sets. Hobby's address is scheduled for 4:30.

Hobby, primary gubernatorial candidate who was supported by the state's labor unions, has become a popular figure on campuses across the state despite his unsuccessful bid for the Democratic nomination for the governor's race.

The rally is sponsored by the ECU College Democrats and the Pitt County Citizens for McGovern.

Program By Mrs. Burrell

Mrs. Linda Burrell, of the Greenville Recreation Department, presented a program on "Gifts and Decorations That You Can Make At Home" at the Thursday night meeting of the Alpha Omega Chapter of ESA.

She brought several articles which she had made and explained how they were made.

Mrs. Barbara Zichermann presented a gift to Mrs. Burrell on behalf of the chapter at the conclusion of her program.

President Margaret Roberts conducted a business meeting and passed out yearbooks. The yearbook was dedicated to Mrs. Barbara Woods for her efforts on behalf of the sorority.

During the business meeting reports were received on sales of Tom Wat kits and Nov. 8 was set as the last day of sales for this project. Proceeds from the sale of the Tom Wat kits are used to assist in projects for the Eastern Carolina Sheltered Workshop.

Plans were made for a rush party to be held on Oct. 26 at the home of Mrs. Woods.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Zichermann.

Honor Retiring Postal Workers In Winterville

WINTERVILLE — Two retiring postal employees of the Winterville Post Office were honored at a dinner meeting last night by the Winterville Chamber of Commerce.

Mrs. Gertrude Speir, postmaster for more than 20 years in Winterville, retired after 30 years' service with the U.S. Postal Service. Mrs. Mamie Liverman, assistant postmaster, retired after working with the postal service for 26 years.

The honorees were presented red rose corsage by Mrs. Eloise Hunter. Sparky McCaskill paid special tribute to the two for their services to the community.

Scholarships To Nursing School

Six students in the East Carolina University School of Nursing have been awarded scholarships by the Auxiliary to the Wake County Hospital System, Inc.

The recipients, all of whom are residents of Wake County, were chosen by the ECU Scholarship Committee. Purpose of the scholarship program is to aid and encourage Wake County students who have chosen the nursing profession.

Scholarship winners are: Thelma Crockett, Brenda Harden, Lois Lewis and Deborah Rogers, all of Raleigh; Donna Bryant of Garner and Cathy Prince of Apex.

Ground Broken For New Church Sanctuary Here

A good-sized congregation joined in ground breaking exercises for the new sanctuary and education building of the First Pentecostal Holiness Church of Greenville on Sunday afternoon.

Lead by the Rev. M.D. McPherson, pastor, who read a scripture lesson, spoke the invocation, and turned the first shovel of dirt, the congregation participated in singing under the direction of J. Melvin Moore, chairman of the building and planning committee.

The benediction was spoken by Dr. James W. Butler.

The architectural firm of Smart, Woodall, Isley, Herring, Inc., which prepared plans for the church, and J.H. Hundson, Inc. general contractor for the construction, were represented at the ground breaking.

Site of the new church plant is at the intersection of Brinkley Road and Plaza Drive.

The members of the building committee are Chairman Moore, Pastor McPherson, Gerald Morris, H.L. Austin, Louis M. Jones, H. Marvin Gardner, Eugene Adams, and Kenneth O. Radford.

Assisting in implementing the building plans are Mrs. Louis M. Jones, Mrs. H.L. Austin, Mrs. D.L. LeRoux, and Mrs. David Wiseman.

Continental Crusade Program Talked By Ministers, Laymen

The Greenville-Pitt Evangelism Explosion for Key '73, local observance of a continental crusade being participated in by more than 150 denominations throughout 1973, was discussed by an assembly of clergy and lay persons from across Pitt county last Friday.

Co-chairmen for this activity elected at the meeting are the Rev. Howard M. McLamb, Greenville District Superintendent of the North Carolina United Methodist Conference, and John D. Grier, Greenville business man and Presbyterian layman.

Charimen McLamb and Grier are expected to announce committees to direct several phases of this Evangelism Explosion at an early date.

Initial phase of the project is the showing of a film titled "Like A Mighty Army," Sunday, at 3 p.m. at St. James United Methodist Church and at 7:30 p.m. at Black Jack Free Will Baptist Church. A third showing of the film is scheduled for Monday, at 7:30 p.m. at St. James United Methodist Church. Reservations of the film for further showings during November are being requested.

The program is patterned after the Coral Ridge Lay Evangelist Program and is being promoted all over the United States and other parts of the world. Leaders of the project

Career Guidance Is Marked This Week

"Tomorrow is Now". This the theme for National Career Guidance week to be observed across the nation October 22-28 and recently proclaimed in North Carolina by Governor Bob Scott.

Governor Scott said, "The structure of occupations and industries is changing so rapidly and radically that most individuals will make one or more occupational changes in their lifetime, and it is to the best interest of the nation that they achieve their economic and productive potentials.

Sponsored by the National Vocational Guidance Association, Career Guidance week highlights the work of vocational instructors and job counselors across the nation.

Extensive vocational and occupational guidance is given in the State's public and private schools. In addition, the statewide network of public offices provide employment counseling, testing and general aptitude test batteries to help job applicants choose the field of work in which they are most skilled.

The Employment Security Commission located 1002 South Evans Street offers employment counseling and testing services for interested individuals.

Two Purposes In Weekly Lottery

SAN JUAN (UPI)—Producing extra government revenues is one main purpose of Puerto Rico's 38-year-old weekly lottery. Another is to put extra cash into the pockets of thousands of needy persons who make commissions on the sale of tickets.

For fiscal year 1972, about 6,500 such lottery agents will take 15.25 per cent of the lottery's $172.2 million gross income.

Art Students' Work Exhibited

Two Tims are among the three senior art students of East Carolina School of Art who are having a one-week only exhibit of their work. Tim Sechler, Tim Gilland and Miss Sheila Bumgardner are the three seniors with exhibits on view this week as part of the undergraduate degree requirements. All three are North Carolinians. Miss Bumgardner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe T. Bumgardner of Stanley, is majoring in painting and is a candidate for the BFA degree. She shows several portraits and a couple of drawings. One unusual inclusion is a poster—in two parts, a drawing and a large sheet of text—she made as a first grader. Bringing her history up to date, the artist shows a series of recent black and white head and shoulders photographs of herself.

Tim Sechler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond R. Sechler of Concord, is also a painting major working for the BFA degree. He shares the third floor gallery of Rawl Hall with Miss Bumgardner. Portraits, including three or four self portraits, alone or in combination with other subjects, form an important part of his show. The young artist also shows landscape and non-representational paintings.

Tim Gilland is showing varied examples of commercial art and jewelry in cases on both sides of the ground floor hallway in Rawl Hall.

Included in Gilland's exhibit are designs for posters, page ads and lay outs, theater programs and similar commercial work incorporating text and illustration. He is also exhibiting several hand-crafted pieces of jewelry, mostly silver rings and pendants. Tim, the son of Mr. and Mrs. L.R. Gilland of Charlotte, is a candidate for the BFA degree in commercial art.

The three students shows can be seen any time during regular university hours, and the public is invited to visit these exhibits. Jerry Raynor

Seek Artifacts Of Minorities

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI)—A search is under way for interesting art and artifacts for the Minorities Cultural Center at the University of Texas at Arlington.

The collection of periodicals, brochures, books, paintings, photographs, sculpture and other works about minorities or prepared by minorities will be used in a special section of the university library.

The greater metropolitan area of Oklahoma City is larger than Rhode Island and New Hampshire combined.

week only at Rawl Hall. Gilland's work in the ground floor cases; that of Sechler and Miss Bumgardner can be seen in the third floor gallery. (Reflector Staff Photos)

If you're thinking about buying a house in the next few months, you're probably worried that interest rates may go up again. They may. But you don't have to worry.

In fact, if you have an Early Mortgage when interest rates go up you'll be far from worrying.

You'll be smiling.

You see, The Early Mortgage is a commitment from First Federal to give you a mortgage even before you start to look for a home. You find the house. The money will be there waiting.

And, should interest rates go up during the term of The Early Mortgage (three months), you're not affected at all. You get the exact interest rate we agreed upon when you first came to see us and we approved your Early Mortgage.

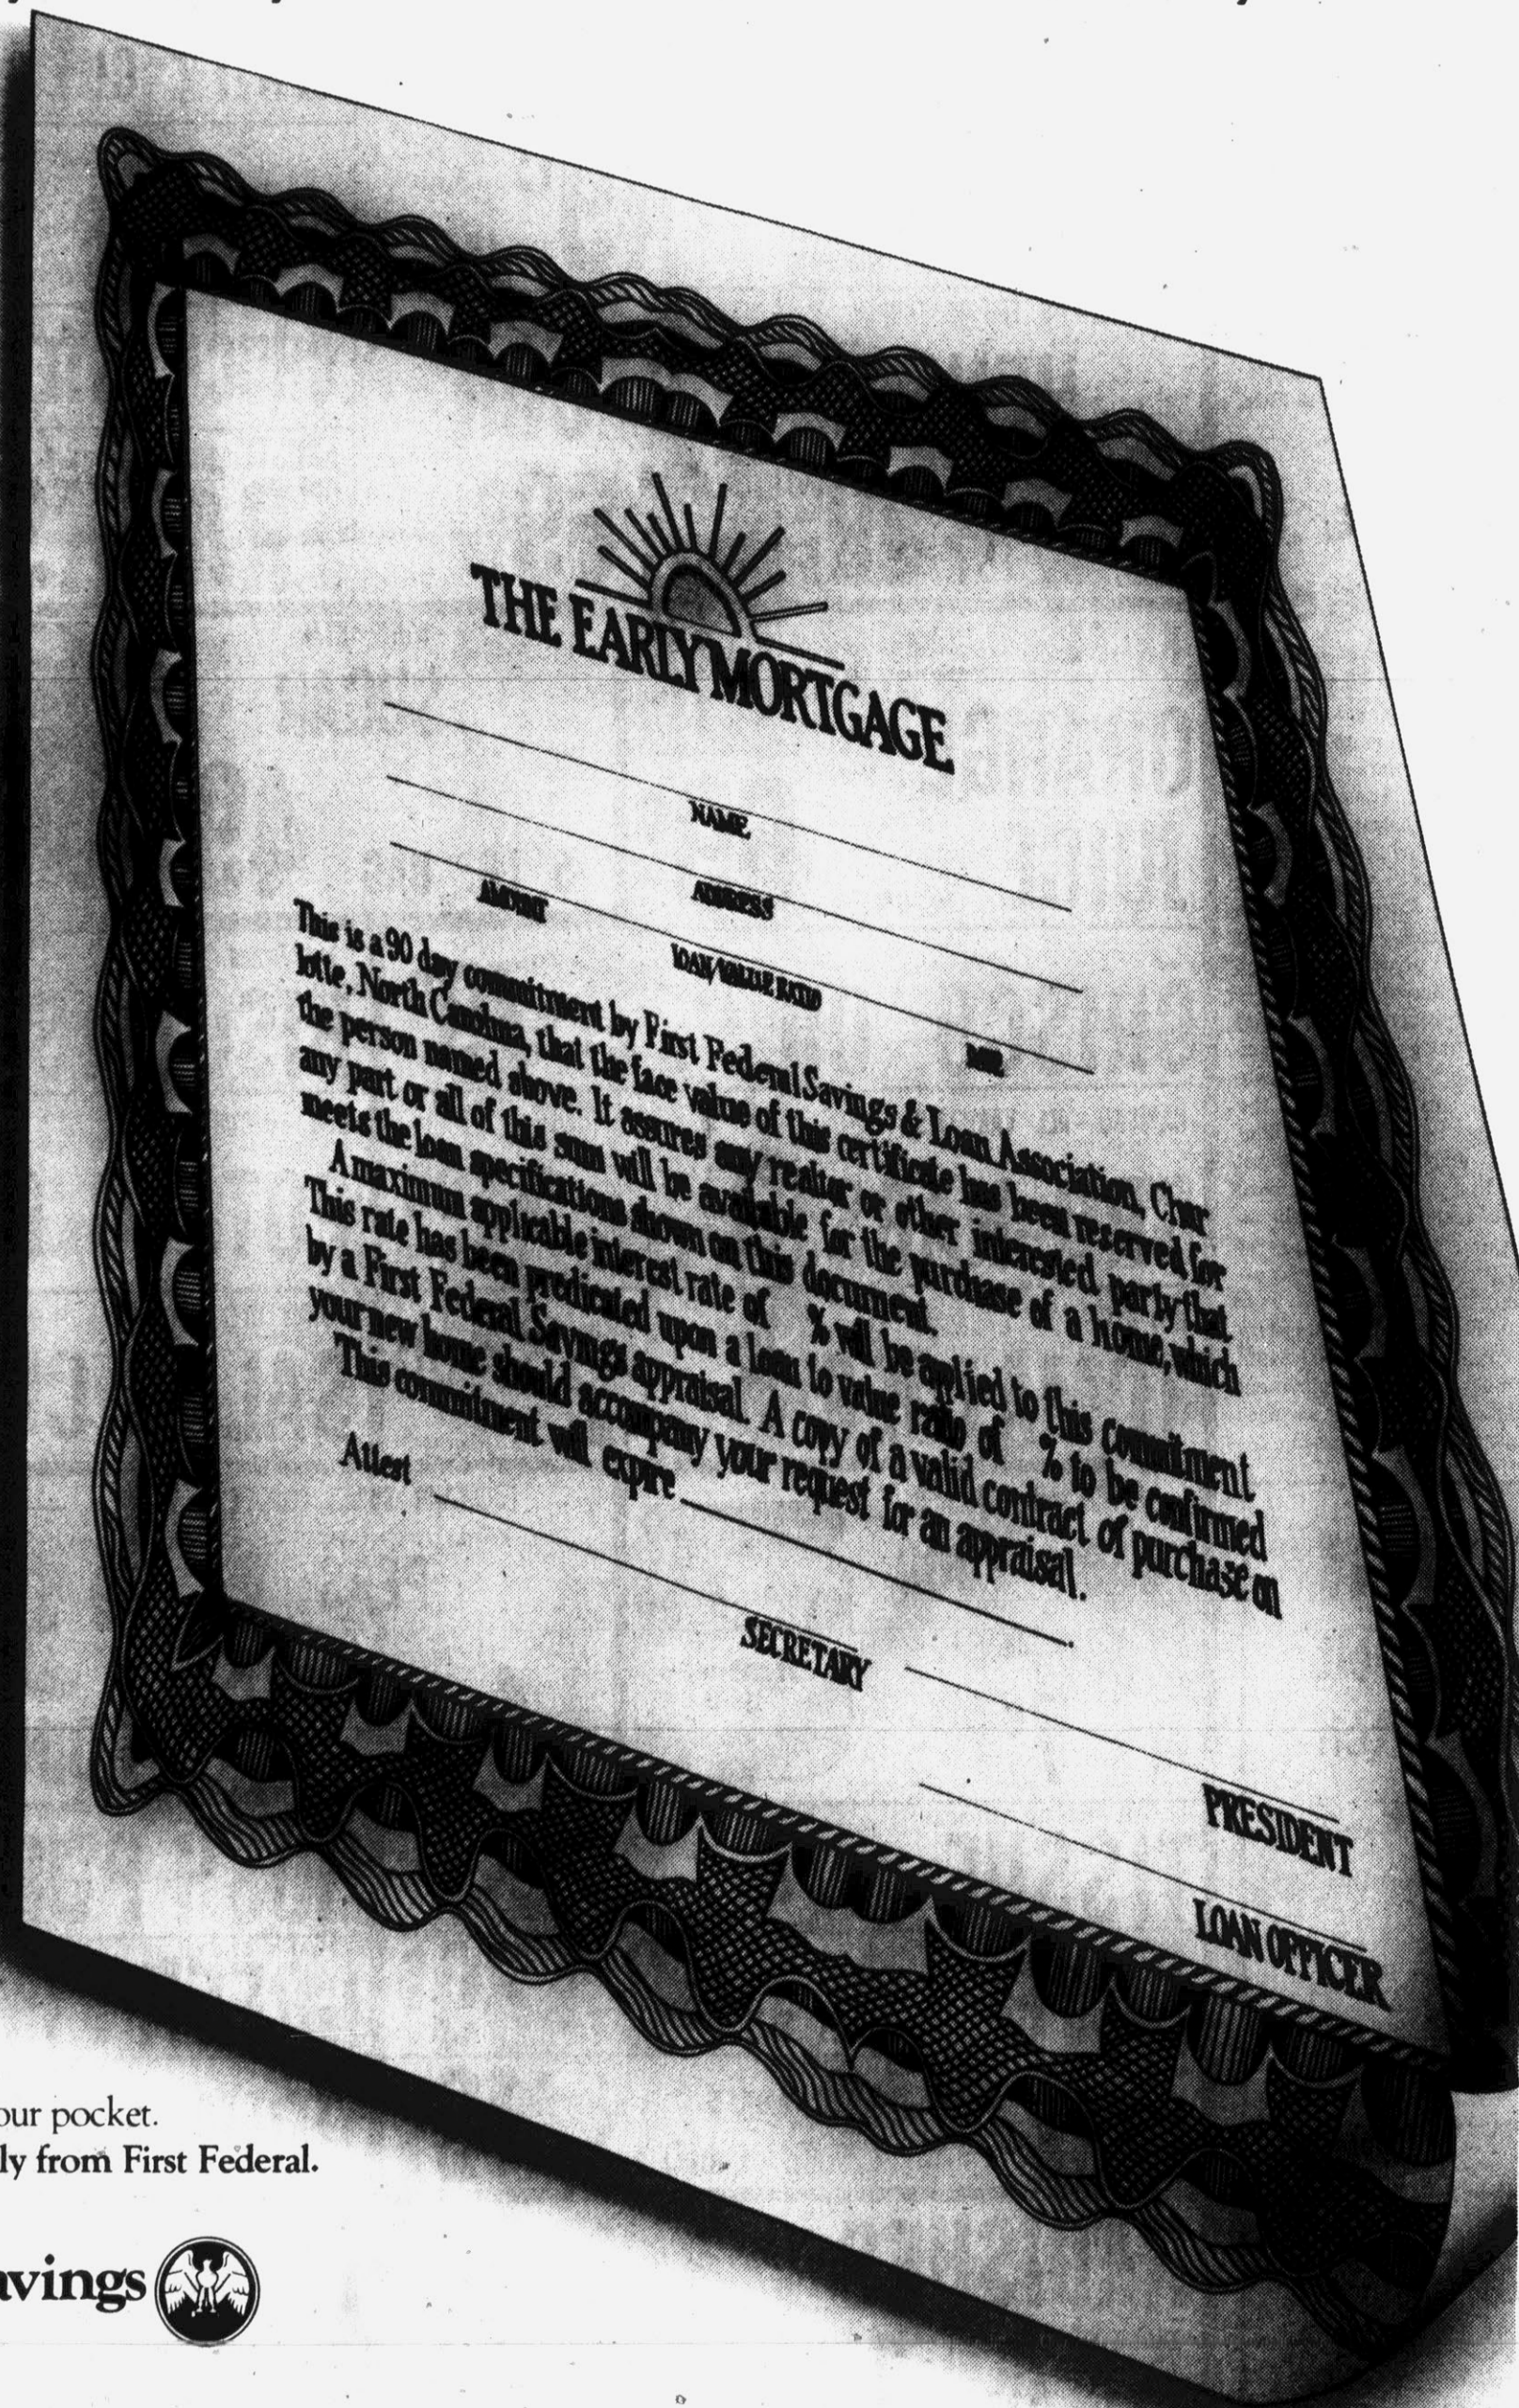

That's why you can smile. We're committed.

But you're not. You don't have to use all of the money we've reserved for you. You don't even have to use any of it. All we ask is that once you've found the house you want you'll let us look it over to be sure it justifies your investment. And that you pay the closing costs.

Now if that sounds good to you, you've got a treat in store.

Looking for a new home. With an Early Mortgage in your pocket.

The Early Mortgage. Only from First Federal.

a very slim lead over declines. National General up 1 1/4 at 30%, was trading at the top of the Big Board active list, chiefly on a block of 450,000 shares at 31. A group of former top executives of National General are selling their interest in the company to American Financial Corp., which reportedly planned to purchase almost 600,000 National General common shares.
Celanese, down 1 at 36 1/2, was the second-most-active issue. Volume included a block of 335,000 shares at 36.
Other large block trades included 113,600 share at 14, unchanged; and 170,600 shares of American Cyanamid at 33 1/4 up 1/2.
Rheingold up 4 1/2 to 21 1/2, was the biggest percentage gainer on the Big Board. PepsiCo Inc., announced a tender offer to purchase for cash 1.6 million shares or 51 per cent of common stock of the large Eastern Brewer, for $22 a share.

Draw Fines For Rebates

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Milk Commission has fined two dairies and acquitted a third on charges that the firms gave larger rebates to their customers than the law allows.
Biltmore Dairy Farms of Asheville was fined $3,000 in lieu of suspension of license and Sycamore Dairy Farms was fined $1,000 in lieu of license suspension.
The commission dismissed charges against Sunrise Dairy of Gastonia.
Hearings were held in two other cases, but no action was taken. One case involved charges that Sealtest Food Corp. refused to hand over records during a commission investigation.
A hearing was held for Carolina Dairy of Shelby on charges of granting excessive rebates and refusing to hand over records.
The commission made no decision on a hike requested by farmers in the wholesale price they get for milk.

Child Support Is Awarded Father

KINGSFORD, Tenn. (AP) — A Kingsport man has been awarded $100 monthly in child support from his wife.
Judge Dayton Phillips of Chancery Court granted a divorce requested by the man's wife. Phillips said that the man, who was not identified in the news media, had been jobless for seven years and had been "babysitter, housekeeper, chauffeur and servant" by mutual agreement with his wife.
The wife earns $4.44 hourly as a factory worker.
The man, who testified he is a writer and has written several books but has been unable to sell any of them, was given custody of the couple's two sons while the woman received custody of a daughter.

teachers, for example, help a great deal in making our education system more relevant.
There are approximately 20,000 college students in the state, Hunt said, including practice teachers, who are involved in service work in North Carolina. He said that he would like to see this encouraged where there would be one young person in a service learning situation for every 50 jobs in state government.
The candidate, asked if he would support George McGovern for president, said that he planned to support the Democratic ticket.

Ask Stiffer Drug Penalty

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina narcotics agents are recommending that the penalty for a first conviction of selling heroin be stiffened.
A representative of the Narcotic Agents Regional Conference, State Bureau of Investigation agent Steve Woodall, spoke before the North Carolina Drug Authority Tuesday.
He said the penalty for the first conviction of selling heroin should be mandatory sentence of five to 10 years in prison with no parole.
The penalty currently is five to 10 years, but it is not mandatory and the prisoner is eligible for parole.
Woodall also said the conference has made the following recommendations:
—Persons buying syringes be required to have some sort of official certification.
—That conviction for the sale of any drug, including marijuana, carry a minimum sentence of 60 days.
—Police should not be required to reveal the source of their information in court.
—SBI chemists should not be required to attend preliminary hearings in person.
—Sale of any substance represented as a drug should be made a misdemeanor.

assaulter until you have a chance to safely react or unless you are in danger of your life." So says Frederick Storaska, lecturer and researcher who headed the establishment of a clearinghouse for assaults in New York. He spoke in Wright Auditorium last night.
Storaska had several points concerning attacks on women. He said the best defenses against attacks are the martial arts, such as karate, jujitsu, and judo, but that very few women take the time to learn such defenses.
He said that there are many myths concerning attacks on women. About 50 percent of the time, an attacker will turn and run if a woman displays aggressive or violent behavior such as screaming. But Storaska emphasizes that the woman do have an alternative. Because in the other 50 percent, the women are often killed or more seriously injured because they acted this way.

Storaska demonstrated how a woman could help herself when being choked. She should pretend that she is going along with the attacker, and put her hands near his face. Then jab at his eyes. "It sounds gross, but compared to what I've seen it's the minor leagues."
Storaska said he got his start when he found a gang of boys raping an 11-year-old girl.
He said that the second best place to aim for to prevent rapes is the groin area.
Storaska emphasized that any move a girl makes should not be in the form of struggling. That would only make the attacker more aggressive.

He said that over one-half of all rapes are within the dating situation, and that less than one out of 500 to 1,000 rapes are reported.
Storaska said that sometimes defense depends on imagination. A Duke University coed said that she was involved in a situation with her fiancé that could be labeled an attack, but that she couldn't relate that to her fiancé.

She knew every defense in the book, but didn't want to hurt him. So, at one point, she turned her head, stuck her finger down her throat, and vomited on him. Needless to say, it stopped the attack.
Storaska said that his lectures take away the reasons for being raped, and emphasized that it also took away the excuses for being raped.
He told of several types of persons one might be confronted with. First, he said that the exhibitionist is harmless, but that peeping toms could be dangerous and that one should immediately call the police.

He said that one should hang up when she receives an obscene telephone call.
Then, concerning automobile assaults, he said that the driver whose car is pushed about by another should drive to the police station, up the sidewalk, and to the door of the station. "Do something weird" to get their attention.
"And, if you want to get raped, and I mean right now, just go out and hitchhike." Storaska said that that was the best way to do it.
To wind up his lecture, he said that if one is what you could call ambushed, the thing to do is dehumanize yourself with a strange cry (not a scream) and make some sort of face.

North Pitt Goes For Third Straight Win

As the saying goes, it's all over except for the shouting.

Unless, that is, a miracle occurs this Friday night. Southern Nash now has the 1972 Eastern Carolina Conference title within sight, and needs only a victory over lowly Charles B. Aycock to wrap things up.

A win by the Firebirds would boost their record to 8-0 on the year with only a game left. Since they already hold a victory over Greene Central, the Rams could not gain the playoff berth even if they eventually did gain a share of the league title.

Greene Central is the only team that can catch the Firebirds and pass them, and it would take two wins by the Rams and two losses by the Firebirds to accomplish it. Ayden-Grifton, now 5-2, could still tie the Firebirds by winning their last two also, but having already lost to them, a tie would not give them a chance at the conference's playoff berth.

Besides the Southern Nash-Aycock game, North Pitt goes to Ayden-Grifton, North Lenoir is at Greene Central, Farmville Central is at Conley, and Southern Wayne plays Eastern Wayne.

Upstart North Pitt, with two straight victories to their credit, will be going after their third and most prestigious this weekend against the Chargers. Ayden-Grifton, during the same period, has dropped two straight, mainly because of injuries.

"We made two mistakes," A-G's Mike Overton said. "We fumbled the ball away inside their 20 early in the game. If we could have scored then, I think it would have been a different game. Then, we let them go 53 yards on a play that gave them the winning touchdown."

Outside of these two times, Overton felt his injured Chargers did a good job. "Our defense played exceptionally well," he said. "But the offense was slowed because of injuries, and this hurt." Tony Koonce, picking up over 100 yards a game, missed because of injuries, and may not see action again this year, as only one more week remains after Friday. Sam Stewart, hurt earlier in the year, is back now, and did see action against Southern Nash, but wasn't at full speed. "We just didn't have the offense,"

Overton said.

He praised the defensive play of Tom Craft, Jesse Brown and Melvin Stewart, who picked off two interceptions. "I feel like if we'd have been healthy, we could have beaten them," Overton said. "We had the holes, we just didn't have the people to get through them. Greene Central is the best team we've met, and they really should be the champs."

Overton is worried over the momentum North Pitt has going for it. "We still don't know how effective Stewart is going to be," he said. "North Pitt has a good throwing quarterback, and their running back, Scooter Mooring, is a strong ball carrier. It could be a real tough game despite the records."

The Panthers' coach, Danny Wilmer, also feels that it will be a tough contest, and notes that he is proud of the way his team has been coming around.

"We didn't play real well until the fourth quarter against Conley," he said. "We made several mistakes and fumbles,

But we got some breaks and we hit well late in the game and got the ball back and won it. And it feels good to win."

Wilmer did say that he didn't think Conley played up to its potential. "They are as good as a lot of teams around," he said. "And Willie Hawkins is one of the most impressive backs I've seen."

Despite the victory, Wilmer didn't single out anyone for his play. "Nobody played exceptionally well, although the offensive line did give us good pass protection."

Wilmer feels that Ayden-Grifton is going to be very difficult to beat. "They're coming off two losses and they're going to want this one awfully bad," he said. "They have that big defensive line that's be hard to crack. We'll have to play our best game of the year to win it, and if we could win, it'd be great."

Farmville Central comes into its game with Conley with hopes still remaining of a break even season. Last week, however, the Jaguars fell to Greene Central.

"We played a good ball club, and we didn't play well," Coach Gene Brewer of Farmville Central said. But he wasn't anxious to compare Greene Central and Southern Nash. "Both are good, and they do a lot of things well. Both have strong defensive teams. I guess overall Greene Central may be the better team, since they pass and run well, and Southern doesn't throw much."

Brewer singled out Jeff Cobb for his play going in both directions as a flanker and defensive back.

Turning to Conley, Brewer said that it is hard to say what to expect from the Vikings. "I don't know a whole lot about them, but I know they gave North Pitt a good game. North Pitt impressed me when we played them, and I know Hawkins is a good back."

Across the county, Conley's Ken Treadway is still recovering from the loss to North Pitt. "We got it put to us," he said. "We fumbled the ball twice inside the 30, and it really hurt us. North Pitt did a good job against us."

Three of the Vikings drew praise from Treadway, Alton Nicholson, Charlie Tyson and Calvin Hawkins. "We didn't have a real good effort," Treadway added. "We're our own toughest opponent."

"Against Farmville, we're going to have to cut down on our mistakes. They're small, but they don't make mistakes, and Jimmy Langley and Lee Johnson are two fine running backs. They like to run the ball, and they're a real tough team. Gene (Brewer) does a great job of getting them ready for a game."

After this week's play, one final week of regular season play remains.

Karate Tourney

The 1972 Goju-Shorin Classics Karate Tournament will be held in Greenville on December 2, it has been announced.

Bill McDonald, a local black belt instructor, will host the tournament, the first ever held in Greenville.

The tournament will be held in the Rose High School Gymnasium. McDonald said that over 400 karate schools from across the country have been invited to attend, and that clubs from as far away as California and Hawaii have announced their intention to participate.

The tournament is a national one, and is open to college teams as well as professional and commercial clubs.

Man Of Courage: Jackie Robinson; And The World Mourns His Passing

By ALEX SACHARE Associated Press Sports Writer STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — A man of courage died Tuesday; the whole world mourns his passing.

Black or white, young or old, athlete, politician or plain old sports fan—all were saddened by the news that Jackie Robinson, 53, had died of heart disease.

President Nixon, who once called Robinson "the greatest athlete I ever saw," said in Washington, "His courage, his sense of brotherhood and his brilliance on the playing field brought a new human dimension—not only to the game of baseball, but to every area of American life where black and white people work side by side. His example will continue to inspire us for years to come."

"His entire life was courage," praised Bowie Kuhn, Commissioner of Baseball. "Courage as the black pioneer of the game, courage as a player, courage in the way he fought for what he believed, courage in the way he faced his final illness."

"I really hope the world will mourn the passing of a man, not just an athlete," said Joe Black, a teammate of Robinson on the Brooklyn Dodgers. "I don't want him to be a martyr—but I want people to know that they've lost a battler."

Jack Roosevelt Robinson was a man whose entire life was a battle, and a man who never gave in—not as a child, growing up in a fatherless home; not as a baseball player, where he broke the color barrier in 1947 by becoming the first black player in the major leagues; not after he retired from the sport, as he strove to accomplish something meaningful for blacks and whites alike, whether in business, sports, politics or civil rights, and not in the face of personal tragedy, whether it was the death of his son or his long, lingering illness.

Robinson, silver-haired and nearly blind, suffered an early morning attack at his home and was pronounced dead on arrival at Stamford Hospital at 7:10 a.m., EDT, Tuesday.

He had been plagued by ailments in recent years. He was felled by a heart seizure in 1968, and also was suffering from diabetes. He had lost his sight in one eye, and was rapidly going blind in the other eye.

When Robinson was invited to throw out the first ball for the second game of the 1972 World Series, he let it be known that if he was asked his opinions, he would not hide them.

And when he was presented with a plaque at home plate commemorating the 25th anniversary of his entrance into baseball, he said in his acceptance speech, "I am extremely proud and pleased, but I will be even more pleased the day I can look over at third base and see a black man as manager."

David Robinson, Jackie's 20-year-old son, noted that his father was a "black man in America, and every black man is trying to break down racial barriers—in baseball and everywhere."

Robinson will best be remembered for that day in April, 1947 when he played left field for the Brooklyn Dodgers, breaking the ancient color barrier which had blotted the record of the national pastime.

It was called "the noble experiment," and the two key figures were Robinson, the athlete, and Branch Rickey, boss of the Brooklyn Dodgers. Rickey had hand-picked Robinson to be the pioneer, because he knew it would take more than just athletic skill for the experiment to be a success.

"They'll taunt you and goad you," Rickey told Robinson. "They'll do anything to make you react. They'll try to pro-

Cougars Drop Third In Row

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Julius Erving's contract dispute isn't bothering him but it's causing all kinds of problems for opponents of the Virginia Squires.

"These hassles aren't bothering me," Erving said Tuesday night after he pumped in 35 points and led the Squires to a 123-111 American Basketball Association victory over the Memphis Tams.

"I'm just trying to keep up with what's going on in the game and I'm coming around now," he said.

Earlier Tuesday, a U. S. Court of Appeals upheld a lower court ruling that Erving must remain with the Squires until an arbitrator settles his contract dispute. Erving tried to jump from the Squires to the Atlanta Hawks of the National Basketball Association. The NBA then ruled if Erving plays in that league it must be with the Milwaukee Bucks.

The triumph over the Tams was Virginia's third since Erving joined the roster last Friday. Until then, the Squires had lost all four of their previous games.

In Tuesday's only other ABA contest, San Diego defeated Carolina 123-109.

In the NBA, Los Angeles whipped Kansas City-Omaha 114-94; Boston downed Buffalo 105-97; New York crushed Cleveland 123-90; Chicago edged Phoenix 107-106 and Atlanta beat Portland 118-110.

Virginia held a 109-105 lead with 3:18 remaining and center Jim Eakins then put it out of reach with a layup and foul shot. George Thompson and Randy Denton paced Memphis with 26 points each.

Ollie Taylor, Jerry Chambers and Larry Miller helped wipe out a 14-point deficit as the Conquistadors posted their fifth straight victory. Chambers scored 28 points and Miller posted 23 but it was Taylor's sharpshooting in the third period that helped San Diego build up an 86-67 lead.

Don Nelson and JoJo White displayed some clutch shooting in the final three minutes as the undefeated Celtics won their eighth straight game. White led all scorers with 28 points.

Jerry West bucketed 29 points as the Lakers spotted the Kings an early 10-9 lead and then ran away with the game. Wilt Chamberlain, who scored 15 points, dominated the boards with 19 rebounds.

Walt Frazier scored 22 points as the Knicks overwhelmed the Cavaliers in a game that resulted in injuries to New York centers Willis Reed and Jerry Lucas.

"Sometimes you pay the price even when you win easy," Knicks Coach Red Holzman said after Reed injured his knee and Lucas sustained a back injury.

Bob Love and Norm Van Lier sparked a fourth-quarter rally that erased a nine-point Phoenix advantage. Love, who led the Bulls with 29 points, combined with Van Lier for 20 points in the final-quarter splurge.

The Hawks raced to a 22-point lead and then withstood a second-half Portland rally, snapping a three-game losing streak. Sidney Wicks scored 22 of his game-high 31 points in the second half as the Blazers chipped away at the Atlanta lead. Lou Hudson led the Hawks with 27.

Bucs Still In National List

N. C. State University knocked East Carolina University's defense off the top in the nation, but failed to knock them out of the top teams in the country according to the latest statistics of the National Collegiate Sport Service.

The Pirates fell from first to third in total defense this week, allowing an average of 204.0 yards per game. Last year's national champions, Nebraska, moved into first place this week with an average of 168.7 yards per game, while Louisville is second at 183.2.

In rushing defense, the Pirates dropped to fourth with an average of 78.2 yards per game. Southern Methodist leads the pack with a 62.8 average, followed by Louisville, 67.2, and Southern California at 69.0.

In scoring defense, the Bucs fell from third to 13th, allowing 11.5 points per game. Michigan leads the nation now with a 5.0 average, followed by Oklahoma, 5.2 and Nebraska, 5.7.

The Pirates' Carlester Crumpler still stands in the elite of the nation in rushing, 21st on the list. He's averaging 99.8 yards per game.

A number of Pirate opponents are still in the top groups, too, with N. C. State in a number of positions.

For instance Bruce Shaw stands 24th in total offense with a 168.9 yards per game average. Stan Fritts is tied for eighth in scoring, averaging 9.7 points per game. Roland Hooks, who got off a long return against the Bucs, stands 12th in kickoff returns, averaging 24.4 yards per try.

State is still ninth in total offense, picking up 425.0 yards per game. They are 11th in passing offense, getting 218.9 yards per game.

And the Wolfpack is 13th in scoring with a 31.3 average.

Jay Jones of Richmonds 14th among the nation's punters with a 41.3 average, while Jim Hughes of The Citadel is tied for 17th with a 41.0 average.

Tom Schultze of VMI is 21st among passer, averaging 12.0 completions per game.

Dwight Mosley of Dayton is still first in the nation in pass interceptions, with one per game, while Paul Scolaro of William & Mary is sixth with 0.9 per game. East Carolina's Rusty Markland returned to this category, averaging 0.8 per game, good enough for a tie for eighth.

William & Mary stands 12th in the nation in rushing offense picking up 282.9 yards per game.

Ladies Golf

Dot Aldridge took first place in a Ladies Low Net Tournament held last weekend at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

Second place went to Joan Hooper, while Isabel Rivers finished in third place.

Hole-In-One

Dr. Tom Haigwood picked up a hole-in-one over the past weekend at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

The ace came on the 15th hole, a 210-yarder. Dr. Haigwood used a four-wood for the shot.

Trio Gets Another Chance At Upset Anderson Gets National Honors

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Missouri and Oregon, fresh from stunning upsets, and Oklahoma State, which pulled off one of its own four weeks ago, get a chance to do it again Saturday against three of the country's top seven college football teams.

—Missouri, which rebounded from a 62-0 whumping at the hands of Nebraska and shocked Notre Dame 30-26, is at home against seventh-ranked Colorado, which has been both an upset victim and victor, the latest a 20-14 triumph over second-ranked-at the time—Oklahoma.

—Oregon, which recovered four consecutive setbacks, including such whoppers as 68-3 and 65-20, to upset Stanford 15-13 last weekend, entertains top-rated Southern California.

—Oklahoma State, conqueror of Colorado back on Sept. 30, visits Nebraska for a game that will decide the Big Eight leader since both teams have 2-0 conference records.

What does the future hold in store? Read on, but be forewarned that last week's score was a mediocre .678.

Colorado at Missouri—Logic says the Buffs will be looking back to Oklahoma or ahead to Nebraska. Missouri has already had its upset. Colorado.

Southern Cal at Oregon—Ducks' Dan Fouts undoubtedly will fill the air with footballs, but USC is eighth nationally in total defense. Trojans lost to Oregon last season and comparative Stanford scores (USC 30-21, Oregon 15-13) indicate it should be close again. But this corner says it'll just be another romp for ... Southern Cal.

Oklahoma State at Nebraska—Huskers have bounced back from their opening loss to UCLA by routing five straight opponents, the last three by a combined 167-0 score. Soph quarterback Dave Humm has Bob Devaney's passing attack up among the leaders. Nebraska.

the big play for a long time." Poor Penn State. They're only 5-1 and haven't lost to the Mountaineers since 1955. Penn State.

Florida State at Auburn—Having been tested by the throwing arms of Louisiana State's Bert Jones and Georgia Tech's Eddie McAshan the last two weeks, Auburn now runs into Gary Huff, the Magic Dragon of ... Florida State.

Air Force at Arizona State—The only previous meeting turned into a wild 44-28 triumph last year for ... Arizona State.

Texas Tech at Southern Methodist—Tech ranks 10th in rushing but SMU leads the nation in rushing defense and has two fine runners of its own in Alvin Maxson and Wayne Morris. Hunch says the Mustangs might be looking ahead to Texas. Upset Special of the Week ... Texas Tech.

Hunter Honored

HERTFORD, N. C. (AP) — Nearly 3,000 people ignored a steady downpour to welcome Jim "Catfish" Hunter back to his hometown Tuesday.

The pitcher for the world champion Oakland Athletics received a hero's welcome complete with parade, fish fry and an awards ceremony at Perquimans County High School where he once was a star pitcher on the baseball team.

The signs on the stores read "Welcome Home Jimmy."

Before his triumphant ride through town in the parade, Hunter lingered on his father's farm, dressed in old clothes and boots, greeting old friends and talking baseball.

"Winning the Series was the best feeling I've ever had in my life," admitted Hunter.

"Yes, it meant more than the perfect game (1968)."

He said, "The first thing any pitcher wants to do is win 20 games, then get into the World Series, and win it too."

NEW YORK (AP) — George "Sparky" Anderson, molder of the Cincinnati Reds, today was named Manager of the Year in the National League.

Anderson's Reds won their second pennant in three seasons and he beat Pittsburgh skipper Bill Virdon in an Associated Press poll of sports writers and broadcasters for the Manager of the Year award.

The margin was 271-179 for Anderson, in balloting conducted prior to the National League playoffs and World Series. Montreal's Gene Mauch was a distant third with seven votes.

he heard the news. Anderson opened mail, mostly from Reds' fans who said they were behind the team all the way despite the loss to the American League champions.

After a few seasons managing in the minors, Anderson was appointed as a coach by the San Diego Padres in 1969. A year later, when Cincinnati fired Dave Bristol, he was hired to manage the Reds.

He took them to the NL pennant that year, then lost the World Series to Baltimore. In 1971, Cincinnati finished fourth in the Western Division.

Then came 1972, and another Cincinnati pennant.

Other than Mauch, the also-rans included New York Mets Manager Yogi Berra with six votes; Walter Alton, the 1971 Manager of the Year from Los Angeles, four; Whitey Lockman of Chicago and Harry Walker, who was fired at midseason by Houston, two apiece.

When Canonero II beat Riva Ridge in the Stymie Handicap the 1971 Kentucky Derby winner carried 18 pounds less than Riva Ridge—1972 Derby winner—on the scale of weights.

State Prepares For Gamecocks; Heels Rest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Two Atlantic Coast Conference teams, North Carolina State and North Carolina, got votes this week for the nation's top 20 college football teams, although they didn't make the list.

The N.C. State Wolfpack is preparing for a homecoming game Saturday against South Carolina, a former member of the conference and now independent.

The North Carolina Tar Heels have two open dates on their schedule this season, one of them this week. The other was three weeks ago, following the 29-14 loss to fourth-ranked Ohio State, the only loss against five victories.

a 14-10 lead at halftime, and scored the third State touchdown on a two-yard run.

Maryland has announced that two of its regular starting line-backers will miss the game at Virginia. They are Jim Santa who has a sprained knee, and Kevin Ward, who has a hip injury. A third player hurt in last week's 20-14 loss to Duke, offensive tackle Bart Pervis, is a doubtful starter because of an injury to his left hand.

Coach Jerry Claiborne said junior Mickey Riggleman would start at middle linebacker in place of Santa. Ward's spot at right linebacker will be filled by either sophomore Steve Zannoni or freshman Kevin Benson.

Freshman Andy Carlton and senior Jim Ryan alternated in running the Wake Forest attack in practice for the home game with the Clemson Tigers. Most of the workout was devoted to a scrimmage emphasizing running against the Clemson defense.

Another ACC team, Duke, will play Navy in the Oyster Bowl in Norfolk, Va., Saturday.

Ban On Women May Be Lifted

North Carolina beat N.C. State by only 34-33. State has won four, been tied 24-24 by Maryland, and has lost two, to North Carolina by the one point and to Georgia by four points.

Coach Lou Holtz said the Wolfpack missed numerous blocking assignments despite the 38-16 victory over previously undefeated East Carolina last week. He had the offense concentrating on blocking during practice Tuesday.

Freshman quarterback Dave Buckley, who gained 54 yards on 14 carries against East Carolina, and completed five of six passes, has been chosen as the ACC Rookie of the Week. He started some big plays that led to a pair of touchdowns and KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The 18-member council of the National Collegiate Athletic Association has voted to recommend to the NCAA convention that a ban be lifted against women athletes.

The policy-making body voted Tuesday to propose that women athletes be permitted to compete in NCAA meets and tournaments, providing they qualify for the events.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the council said some announcements may be made today regarding alleged rules violations by four member institutions.

The council spent most of its meeting Tuesday reviewing the alleged infractions, but officials declined to disclose the schools involved.

"Any action that is taken by the council will not be announced until the member school has been notified," Tom Hansen, NCAA assistant executive director, said.

The council also reaffirmed a previous decision to submit to the 1973 convention in Chicago next January a proposal to limit athletic related financial rewards to one year.

The council also reaffirmed previous decisions to submit to the convention recommendations to limit the number of financial aid awards which may be given by an institution, require that financial aid for all athletes be based on a recipient's need and establish a national letter of intent for signing athletes.

Robinson . . .

voke a race riot in the ball park.

"Robinson, I'm looking for a ballplayer with guts enough not to react."

And Jackie was that ballplayer—because he was an extraordinary man.

Robinson was born Jan. 31, 1919 in the south Georgia farm town of Cairo. His father deserted the five children and Jackie's mother a year later, and the family moved to Pasadena, Calif.

Jackie always was a standout athlete, even on the sandlots of Pasadena. He was so talented, other kids used to buy him drinks and sandwiches just to be on his team.

"You might say," Robinson once quipped, "that I turned pro at a very early age."

Robinson was a star athlete at Pasadena Junior College, then became a standout in football, baseball and track at UCLA.

After playing semi-pro football briefly and then serving in the army, Robinson signed in 1945 with the Kansas City Monarchs, a team in the Negro baseball league. On Aug. 28, 1945 Rickey brought Robinson to New York to lay the groundwork for the experiment.

Robinson, as always, accepted the challenge. He signed to play for Montreal, Brooklyn's farm club in the International League, and promptly led the league in batting in 1946 with a .349 average.

Finally, on April 9, 1947, came the historic declaration: "Brooklyn announces the purchase of the contract of Jack Roosevelt Robinson from Montreal. Signed, Branch Rickey."

One week later, Robinson, No. 42, a black man, played left field for the Brooklyn Dodgers of the National League.

After a slow start—he failed to get a hit in his first 20 times at bat—Robinson settled down and proved he belonged, both on and off the field. Surviving the coolness of some teammates and the taunts of many opposing players and fans, Robinson played in 151 games that rookie year, batting a solid .297. The next year he hit .296, then reached a career-high .342 in 1949. Robinson had proven he was the right man for Rickey's experiment.

Robinson left baseball in 1956 after 10 seasons, preferring to retire rather than report to the New York Giants, to whom he had been traded. Playing primarily at second base, Robinson compiled a career batting average of .311 and established himself as one of the game's greatest baserunners, with a total of 197 stolen bases.

After retiring from baseball, Robinson took an executive position with a restaurant chain, where his duties included working on the company's minority hiring. He was one of the founders of the Freedom National Bank in Harlem, and became increasingly involved in civil rights and political affairs.

In all his endeavors, Robinson's courage and strength of conviction won him the admiration of his colleagues.

"What can I say about Jackie?" asked Dodger teammate, Roy Campanella. "He was a great man. He accomplished so much in his lifetime. On and off the field, Jackie could do it all. He could do it all—he had to do it all."

"He was a great athlete, a trailblazer for all black people and a great spokesman for justice," said Vernon E. Jordan, executive director of the National Urban League. "His name will be remembered, and his accomplishments revered."

Robinson was elected to baseball's Hall of Fame in 1962, the first year he was eligible. After Robinson opened the door to the majors, many blacks walked through—including modern-day superstars Willie Mays, Frank Robinson, Bob Gibson and Hank Aaron.

Robinson is survived by his widow Rachel, daughter Sharon and son David. Another son, Jackie Jr., died in a car crash in June, 1971.

Robinson's funeral will be held at Riverside Church in New York Friday at 11 a.m. EDT.

Joe Black, a former pitcher with the Dodgers and a black man, described what Robinson meant to him at a recent testimonial for Jackie.

"I owe a lot to Jackie," he said. "I have a good job, a nice house. A lot of doors opened for me. If Jackie Robinson had failed, the doors would never have opened. When I look at my house, when I look at the grass around my house, I say, 'Thank God for Jackie Robinson.'"

Williams Re-Signed

OAKLAND (AP) — Along with his World Series cash, Oakland Athletics Manager Dick Williams now has his third pay raise in 10 weeks and he has the distinction of being the only manager owner Charlie Finley has kept for two consecutive seasons since he bought the American League baseball club in 1960.

Williams was signed to his second two-year contract Aug. 12 at "a substantial increase" then got another raise after the A's won the pennant. At a victory celebration party Monday night Finley announced—saying "Dick doesn't even know this"—that the manager's pay was being boosted again.

No figures were disclosed, but published reports have put Williams at about $90,000 a year with his latest raise.

Novice Sailors Safely Make 18,000-Mile Voyage

By JOSEPH D. KEEFER
BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI)—
In 1970 a young Alabama dentist and his wife, neither of whom had ever sailed the open sea, began an 18,000-mile voyage in a 31-foot sailboat.

They reached their destination safely a year and a half later and handled a midocean dental house call along the way.

John DeShazo, who has just set up a practice in Huntsville, Ala., said that he and his wife, Rosemary, had been gliding through the South Atlantic Ocean when their radio sounded a plea for help from a dentist on the island of St. Helena.

"He was the only dentist on the island," John said, "and he needed somebody to work on his own teeth. He heard we were coming to the island and sent a message."

"It worked out well for me, too, because I had lost a filling. We worked on each other's teeth and he turned out to be an excellent dentist."

Launched in Hong Kong, John, 30, and Rosemary, 25, launched their craft—a ketch auxiliary named "Whiffit"—at Hong Kong in December, 1970, destined for Birmingham, John's home town.

"Our route changed all the time," Rosemary said. "We planned as we went along. Whenever we got to the next port, we got help. We never got lost, though on the first leg of the trip we did get 200 miles off course."

Their route took them to Australia to South Africa to Brazil to Florida to Mobile, Ala., with stops at several small islands. They got from Mobile to Birmingham through Alabama's inland water system, completing their adventure this summer.

"Not being experienced, we were concerned to get the boat just right," John said.

Custom-Made Craft
They spent about $10,000 in savings having the boat custom made in Hong Kong, and Rosemary called it "one of the best-equipped boats we saw during the trip."

The fiberglass craft, which measures about nine feet wide with a mast going up 34 feet, had such cabin extras as portholes that opened for ventilation and handrails that gave the DeShazos mobility.

"The navigation worried me since I had never been in the open sea," said John, who, along with Rosemary, had taken some lessons in seamanship. But it wasn't long before both were doing well with navigation charts and instruments.

"Our greatest fear was ships," Rosemary said. "Ships just don't see you. You just have got to stay away. When we were in a shipping lane we kept watch day and night."

John and Rosemary agreed they got along well together despite long periods in close quarters with no one else around.

"We didn't get along perfectly," John said, "but we were able to work together. Now we're probably a lot closer than two people ordinarily get to be."

Ate Canned Foods
They said they always stocked a three months' supply of food and 70 gallons of fresh water, buying most supplies in Hong Kong, Australia and South Africa.

"We didn't have a refrigerator so we ate canned foods and meats and instant foods," Rosemary said.

Operating on "a very close budget," they took about $5,000 out of savings for food, boat repairs, dock fees and land sightseeing. They spent more than half the trip in port, though always living on the boat.

Sometimes averaging over 100 miles a day, they would stay at sea about two weeks at time. Their longest non-stop stint was a 20-day trip across the Indian Ocean covering 2,300 miles.

They stayed in the tropics on their voyage so the temperatures were mostly warm. John said they wore "old clothes—the least we could get by with" on board and put on good clothes in port.

He recalled the worst weather was winds of 50 to 60 knots in the Indian Ocean.

A Dream for Years
John and Rosemary met in Japan, where he was a dentist with the U.S. Air Force and she an airline stewardess. John said he first got the idea from a college roommate who talked often of wanting to sail the oceans.

Pets Abandoned Every Summer
ROME (UPI)—Italians abandon more than 1 million pets every summer when they leave the cities for vacations at mountains and beaches, says the Animal Protection League.

The league said this means death for many of the animals, unaccustomed to life outside the home. It estimated pets abandoned every June and July include 400,000 dogs, 350,000 cats, 150,000 birds, 100,000 fish and 50,000 or 60,000 other animals.

California Has Most Vehicles
DETROIT (UPI)—More than 112 million motor vehicles are now registered in the United States. California continues to lead the nation with 12.3 million of them, reports the Automobile Manufacturers Association.

Of the total, there are 92,082,000 cars—an increase of 3.1 per cent over 1970.

Farms Figures
BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—There are less than 3 million farms in the United States, averaging a little under 400 acres of land per farm, reports the California Farm Bureau.

Each Halloween Little Spooks Get In Trouble

By PATRICIA MC CORMACK
UPI Family News Editor
NEW YORK (UPI)—Witches on brooms take chances Halloween. Hobgoblins play tricks. Jack o'lanterns grin. And humans? Halloween's time for trick-or-treat mixed with plenty of safety.

Each year some merry-seeking little spooks run into trouble. Some are hit by cars. Some stoop close to a jack o'lantern illuminated by one candle power. Their clothing catches fire. Some eat candy containing lethal things. Past Halloweens, some have been stopped short of serious injury when their parents discovered a razor blade in an apple.

The National Safety Council and other accident fighters agree that the candy and fruit unhealthy to eat are the work of sick persons—child haters.

And the injuries, including occasional ones with fatal results? They're caused by carelessness and poor preparation for trick-or-treat rituals.

Some things to keep in mind as Halloween approaches:
—Use only costumes made of fire retardant materials. These will catch fire but not as quickly as untreated ones. To make homemade costumes fire retardant follow these directions (from the U.S. Department of Agriculture): seven ounces of borax, three ounces of boric acid, two quarts of hot water. Stir until solution clears. If it jells in the process, heat it again. Dip the dry costume into this. If the costume is wet it will dilute the solution and make it less effective. Press with warm iron. The solution will have the effect of a thin starch.

Avoid Dragging
—Make sure costume doesn't drag, causing the little spook or clown to trip. Avoid materials with a nap when making costumes on your own. Such materials include terrycloth, old towels, flannelette and cheesecloth.

—Put reflective tape on the costume, fore and aft, to make the wearer more visible to motorists. To heighten visibility, give the children flashlights. The light also will help them find their way through unfamiliar territory.

Pole-Climbing Is College Course

BIG RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI)—A college education doesn't hurt in learning how to climb a pole. In fact, there is a course at Ferris State College which teaches apprentices of electric companies how not to get hurt while shinnying up a pole. The primary objective is to teach safety to those involved with jobs on power lines and poles.

—Avoid masks. Frequently the eye holes are poorly placed or too small for safe seeing. The fit of many interferes with breathing. Preferable to masks is makeup. You can buy a kit of it for Halloween at the dime store for less than a dollar. Put cold cream on before the makeup. This makes removal easier.

—Light all jack o'lanterns with flashlights instead of candles. Also turn on all yard and porch and driveway lights if you expect children to find their way to your doorstep safely.

In some cities the town fathers and residents publicize a system for letting tricksters and treaters know they're welcome. Porch lights are turned on. If you don't want to be bothered by a trick or treat, simply don't turn on your porch light.

—Instruct children not to eat any treats until you've examined them at home. Anything wrapped and sealed by the manufacturer ought to be considered safe, although in one Ohio town a child-hater last Halloween stuck some packaged candy bars with needles. To be doubly sure, carefully examine the package treats when in doubt.

Travel in Pairs
—Children, including older ones, ought to go in pairs. Little children must be accompanied by an older teen-ager or adult. Caution all against being invited into homes of strangers, especially alone. Children have been molested under such circumstances.

—Check weather before hitting the trick or treat trail. Dress accordingly.

For motorists, the American Optometric Association suggests: drive much more slowly Halloweens. Use extreme caution. In their excitement, trick-or-treaters may dart into the street and the time to see, to brake, and to halt the car may not be sufficient to prevent tragedy.

Large Apples On Small Trees

LONG ASHTON, England (AP)—Scientists are developing apple trees little more than three feet high at the agricultural research station here.

The trees are single stems carrying clusters of fruit, like tomato plants, and can be machine-cropped. They are fed growth inhibitors to keep them small so that all their nourishment goes into the fruit. The apples are larger than normal and uniform in size, so there is no waste.

Nearly 30,000 single-stem trees can be grown on one acre.

"Even the most cautious motorist, driving at 20 miles per hour often cannot prevent a Halloween accident because there just is not enough time to stop when a child darts into the car's path," the Association said.

The Greater New York Safety Council's health educator, Mrs. Marjorie May, has an additional caution for motorists. That is—drive with windows up.

Some tricksters, in the past, delighted in standing at intersections or beside thoroughways and tossing bags of flour at cars. Others have sprayed cars with shaving cream or paint.

On the upbeat side of Halloween, there are UNICEF collections made by more than three million children across the nation last year. This year, if past is prologue, even more children will collect for the United Nation's Children's Fund.

Last year they collected $3.5 million for needy children around the world. That was up one-quarter of a million from the previous year. Each year the amount goes up.

A penny buys enough vaccine to protect one child against smallpox. Five cents buys enough antibiotic ointment to cure one child of trachoma. Fifteen cents buys a feeding bottle for a mother and child health center. Or 15 cents pays for 100 vitamin capsules for a mother or a child.

CRASH TOLL
—SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Collisions between trains and motor vehicles killed 1,530 persons in the United States during 1970, says the National Automobile Club.

The club urged drivers to treat railroad crossings as places of danger—since most of the accidents are caused by poor judgment.

Poland Sees An American Culture Tide

By HOWARD A. TYNER
WARSAW (UPI) — From "Love Story" to "The Odd Couple" and the New York City Ballet, Warsaw is enjoying its most Americanized cultural autumn in years.

Whether it is simply a coincidence in bookings, as some people claim, or a reflection of improved Polish-American relations following President Nixon's visit in May, as others say, is not clear.

But as one U.S. diplomat put it, "The trip certainly didn't hurt."

However it came about, the new season has something American for everyone, including jazz, classical and contemporary music, ballet, films and stage musicals.

"Warsaw Autumn," the capital's prestigious festival of contemporary music, opened Sept. 16 with American Mario di Bonaventura on the podium to lead Poland's National Philharmonic Orchestra in three modern Polish works.

Avant-Garde Jeered
 Two weeks, four American composers and six American performers later, the festival closed with a bang and the appearance of avant-garde choreographer Merce Cunningham and his dance group.

Students staged a near-riot outside Warsaw's Dramatic Theater trying to get into the sold-out performance. But inside, the crowd responded with whistles and jeers when the group put on a way-out modern ballet that included silver, helium-filled balloons floating in the audience.

Said a nonplussed Cunningham the next day, "Any reaction is better than none."

Late in October the New York City Ballet was scheduled to arrive from a tour of the Soviet Union for four performances and several days later Europe's oldest jazz festival opens in Warsaw featuring American names such as Charlie Mingus, Jimmy Smith, Elvin Jones and Cannonball Adderley.

"That sort of turn-out simply reflects the traditional close ties of Polish and American jazz circles," Roman Waschko, a leading Polish jazz critic, said.

Warmest Welcome Ever
 But other critics point out that it is unprecedented for four Americans to be invited—as is the case this year—to participate in the Wieniawski violin competition which takes place in Poznan in November.

On the stage, "Music Man" closed just as "Hello Dolly!" and "The Odd Couple" were opening—the latter complete with authentic American props such as U.S. brand beer cans and a New York skyline backdrop.

The film "Love Story" has proved enough of a hit since it opened in Warsaw last month that officials announced it would be put out in book form.

Poland has always prided itself on its ties with the West and American performers and works are not strangers here. But some guests from the United States detect an even warmer welcome this year than in the past.

Charles Treger, the boyish-looking violinist who 10 years ago became the first American to win the Wieniawski competition and who completed his fifth concert swing through Poland Oct. 1, called his reception fantastic.

"Nixon or not, we've been received this year better than ever before," he said after his final concert.

Education For Wives Stressed

SINGAPORE (UPI) — Singapore women have been urged to depart from the tradition that daughters should receive only enough education to read and write before they get married.

"It is equally, if not more important, that daughters are given an all-round education," Wawan Majid Khan, wife of Singapore's foreign minister, told a women's association of which she is president. "I would stress the importance of an educated mother to the nation."

Trees Resist Roadside Smog

TOKYO (UPI)—Tokyo government authorities maintain about 135,000 roadside trees in the capital, all of them chosen for their resistance to the city's heavy smog.

The varieties found most resistant were the plane, maple, ginkgo, willow, tulip, buckeye, Japanese pagoda and Chinese parasol.

Colorado Ski Resorts Are More Ready

By ERROL W. KING
DENVER (UPI)—The nation's skiers flock to Colorado resorts in increasing numbers each year, seeking the Rockies' famed powder but frequently encountering hour-long lift lines instead.

But after a summer of feverish construction around the state, the situation could be easier this winter.

Three brand new ski areas are awaiting the winter onslaught, and seven other major areas have constructed a total of eight new lifts. The grand total is 18 new lift facilities, most of them double chairlifts.

The new names to be added to the list of Colorado ski areas this winter are Copper Mountain, Telluride and Sunshine Peak.

Copper Mountain, less than two hours drive west of Denver, is a large new area with a 2,350-foot vertical drop, four chairlifts (including an enclosed double chairlift) and a poma.

Telluride is an equally promising area. Although a little more off the beaten track, it will open with five double chairlifts in operation. It is located in southwestern Colorado, five miles from the sleepy mining town of the same name where Butch Cassidy robbed his first bank.

Sunshine Peak is a new expansion area with two chairlifts located immediately next to the existing Steamboat ski area in northwestern Colorado.

Other areas which have added one or more new chairlifts over the summer are Vail Lionshead, Ski Cooper, Keystone, Steamboat, Crested Butte, Breckenridge and Purgatory.

Keystone, which was forced to close early last year because of bare spots at the base, also has invested in $350,000 worth of snowmaking equipment on the lower third of the mountain.

Thanksgiving is Colorado's traditional season opening, and eight areas are aiming for the Nov. 23 date again this year. They are Arapahoe Basin, Aspen Highlands, Mountain at Snowmass, Breckenridge, Purgatory, Steamboat and Winter Park.

Areas opening earlier or later than that are Aspen Buttermilk Dec. 16, Copper Mountain Nov. 15, Crested Butte Nov. 22, Keystone Nov. 10, Vail Nov. 17, Telluride Dec. 16, and Lake Eldora Nov. 11.

Perhaps the earliest-opening ski area in the nation this year is Loveland Basin. It scheduled an October opening.

Cleanest Air In The Southwest

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The cleanest air of the nation's 18 largest metropolitan areas belongs to the Southwest Metroplex, an eight-county 6,214 square-mile area around Dallas-Fort Worth in Texas.

This finding is part of a study made by the Urban Institute of Washington, D.C., which also says the Southwest Metroplex has 347 persons per square mile—third lowest among the nation's top 20 metropolitan areas.

Alcohol Deters A Pest Aphid

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—Like man, the plant world has its citizens who turn to alcohol to solve a problem.

Because of a minute quantity of alcohol present in certain varieties of barley, the grain has been able to ward off damage from greenbug, an aphid which has become a serious pest.

Scientists are trying to find out if this form of natural resistance can be incorporated into all grain varieties, says the California Farm Bureau Federation.

DECORATING IDEA
NEW YORK (UPI)—Shade cloth vertical blinds that run from wall to wall work equally well for the old-fashioned window wall and the contemporary one, say interior designers.

For the old-fashioned wall, they will camouflage the fact that the windows are dated or off center; hide poor plaster, and even take the window air conditioner in decorative stride. Since the vanes rotate 180 degrees, they do not interfere with air flow from out of doors, the air conditioner or the radiator.

Pollution Is Threatening Madrid Art

By BARRY WATERS
MADRID (UPI)—In 1819 mud brought in on visitors' shoes was the chief headache of officials at the newly opened Prado Museum. So the museum closed on rainy days.

Today the streets are asphalt and the big headache is sunlight.

Spain's hot sun aggravates the effects of air pollution on the 2,500 paintings displayed at one of the world's greatest galleries in the center of Madrid. The collection is estimated to be worth $1 billion. "I believe Madrid has the honor of being the most contaminated capital of Europe," said Xavier de Salas, the museum's director. "Apparently the sun here liberates certain gases and makes some of the pollutants more active."

Even without the sun, the problem would be bad enough. There is almost unchecked emission in Madrid's industrial belt, heating by open coal-fires in the city, and the exhaust fumes of thousands of old diesel-engined taxis.

Contamination has already caused serious damage to the delicate, centuries-old paint and varnish of the museum's masterworks by El Greco, Velasquez and Goya and paintings by early Flemish masters. The two best-known works are Francisco Goya's "Naked and Clothed Majas."

The acid content of the air attacks the varnish and eats its way through to the paint. Temperature variations also can cause cracks in the paint which speed up the work of the acids.

The answer—in the case of the Prado—is a $10 million scheme to install an air purification system to prevent damage that already has been done from becoming, in Salas' words, "drastic and irreparable."

A government decree three months ago ordered the emergency measures be taken. A committee of experts now has worked out a system for the total purification and humidity control of the air entering the sprawling 18th-century palace.

The experts plan to use some of the land belonging to the adjoining convent of San Jeronimo to house the necessary machinery and provide more space for the museum's administrative functions.

"The problem is," Salas said, "that this type of machinery is extremely bulky. At the moment it seems that it's going to take up two whole floors of the new buildings in San Jeronimo."

Trim Trees By Computer

NEW YORK (UPI)—"Not able to see the trees for the forest" was an appropriate cliché for the Bonneville Power Administration until a new conservation procedure was developed in Portland, Ore., and then accelerated by a minicomputer.

Nearby trees posed a threat to power lines, but calculating which of them should be cut couldn't be accurately done by earthbound survey teams, according to Wallace C. Wilson, head of photogrammetry at BPA. Their height and proximity to the future conductors often could not be determined in heavily wooded, rugged terrain. The end results were trees cut unnecessarily and wide swaths that damaged the landscape's beauty.

Now aerial surveys detect the dangerous trees, and a Honeywell minicomputer reduces the photo data to numerical listings for the preparation of line drawings. This allows BPA officials to be more selective in the removal of timber and to help preserve scenic areas.

U.S. Perch In Russia Thrive

MOSCOW (UPI)—Hundreds of perch imported from the United States two years ago are thriving in both the fresh water Dnieper River and the salt waters of the Black Sea, according to the newspaper Water Transport.

Experimental catches revealed that the fish had gained average weight since being placed in the waters in September, 1970. It gave no indication how the fish had adapted to the different types of water.

The Worry Clinic Psychopaths Self-Centered

Lulu is a dangerous sex case. She is a psychopathic personality. Such people have remained "fixated" at the baby's egocentric stage of emotional development. They are harder to change than dope addicts and gamblers!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.
Case V-527: Lulu X., aged 25, is a dangerous sex case. "Dr. Crane," her worried husband began, "Lulu and I were married 6 months ago. "It was the first time for me, but she had had two previous husbands. "Both those marriages soon ended in divorce. "But I felt attracted to Lulu and fell head over heels in love. "So I proposed and we got married. "But I am slowly and most reluctantly realizing that Lulu doesn't care about anybody except herself.

"She refuses to mingle with my friends or go to church. "And she seems resentful of her parents, plus the world in general. "Now she has left me, saying I should get a divorce since she wants to live her own life, which involves drinking parties with married men.

"So how would you diagnose Lulu?"
Psychopathic
From additional data, I learned that Lulu had a sister 3 years her senior.
That sister was beautiful, brilliant and popular.
So Lulu felt an early resentment toward her sister and thence toward her parents, plus other adults who focussed more attention on the older girl.
Lulu thus evolved a biased philosophy of life which made her believe that all the world was against her.
So she curbed the extroverted habits of sympathy of love for outsiders.
Instead, she decided to get all she could from the adults around her. Hers was the "gimme" philosophy.
This carried over to adult hood, which is why she really had no deep love for any of her 3 husbands.
Lulu is fixated at the baby's egocentric stage of emotional development.
She is a psychopathic personality.
Such people may be brilliant, college educated and smooth talkers yet remain basically self-centered and so intensely selfish that they have little concern for parents, mates or even their own children!

To illustrate the outlook of a typical psychopathic personality, consider the Chicago college graduate who bled his widowed mother of all her money.
Then he even forged her name to a deed to sell her home right out from under her!
When he was finally arraigned in Chicago court, the judge properly cut him down to size with a severe verbal lecture.
So he apologized profusely to the judge; then went over to his mother and put his arms around her, abjectly begging her forgiveness for taking her home away via the forged deed.

He vowed never to cause her any more heartache!
But before he had even left the courtroom, it was learned that this rotter had "lifted" his mother's gold watch at that very moment while he was hugging her and begging her forgiveness!
Psychopathic personalities thus are the most difficult people to change, even worse than chronic gamblers and dope addicts!

In fact, some psychiatrists regard them as human devils, so steeped in their intense selfishness that they would not even react to Christ's lofty sermonizing, even if Jesus were to reappear.
Alas, many splendid parents unwittingly permit people like Lulu to develop this early bias, due to jealousy of older siblings!
So send for my "Tests for Good Parents," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.
(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, ad-

Consumption Of Wine Increases

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Adult per capita consumption of wine in the United States increased 12.1 per cent in 1971 over the previous year, the Wine Institute reports.

On the basis of the entire population, every man, woman and child had an average intake of 1.48 gallons of wine, an increase of 12.8 per cent over the 1.31 gallons of the year before.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, OCTOBER 26, 1972

GENERAL TENDENCIES:

Although you now have the tendency to feel tired and as though your health actually is somewhat better. You are able to get an influential man to give you some essential backing, so you can achieve much that is of value to you in a project.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study your home well and see what can be done to make it more comfortable, functional and charming. Some way-out fun should be forgotten completely. Stick to proven and wise pleasures and people.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You are able to get shopping done and keep appointments of importance in fine condition today. Get any health problem attended to quickly. Talk over with a partner how to become more productive.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Use only the finest methods for gaining increased income and don't follow some ally who is desperate and gets peculiar ideas. Listen to what an objective thinking adviser has to suggest, also. Read some tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Do some tall thinking about whatever is of a social nature in a.m., and make better arrangements for such. Do not try to force kin to see things your own way. Use tact and you get right results.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Retire into the privacy of your study and plan the future better. Avoid possible danger in the outside world. Your intuitive perceptions are fine, so be sure to follow them. First think, then act.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You are in the right mood for being with groups socially, so do just that and get good results therefrom. Making new friends is wise, provided they more or less go along with your own ideas. Show you are a fine conversationalist.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Although you want to make radical changes it is better to improve your present setup. Then you add to present benefits. Studying into some new and more lucrative outlet that is surefire is fine, though. Contact dependable people; p.m. is best time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have personal worries that are best solved by going directly to those who are involved instead of talking to outsiders. Being more affectionate with kin brings fine results now. Take a more positive approach to life.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you exercise that ingenuity you possess, you find it will be easy to keep promises you have made now. It is possible to find a better site where you can express yourself more ideally. Take it easy in p.m.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You need not concentrate on work so much now as on pleasure that could become a part of your life in the near future. A higher-up appreciates your work and can now give you a big boost forward. Take heed of what mate has to suggest in p.m.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Forget frivolity today and get out with new contacts who have very fine ideas and methods to discuss with you for advancement. See to it that you are very alert so you get the fine benefits you want. Show willingness to cooperate.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan some time to listen to the ideas and advice of those who are well informed some time today. Do not lose your temper with those who disagree with you. They could be right, otherwise take under advisement. Grow.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those charming young people in whose lifetime many sudden and unexpected changes can occur, so teach early to be prepared and on the alert for such, since these can be steppingstones to greater success and happiness. Teach also not to be so emotional about cutting off old ties that are no longer very worthwhile. Any profession that requires an ingenious and resourceful mind like this is fine here. College, if possible. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Customhouse Is Now 'Historic'

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—The New Orleans customhouse, completed in 1881, was designated as an historic customhouse recently by U.S. Customs.

It took 33 years to build the structure, whose main marble hall is regarded as one of America's finest Greek Revival interiors. During the 1850s, construction work on the building was supervised by famed Confederate General P.T.G. Beauregard, who at that time was a major in the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Studies estimate that from 20 to 33 per cent of all boys acquire police or court records before their 18th birthday, says Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Altho an alert defender placed considerable pressure on South, the declarer at four hearts, the latter salvaged his contract by anticipating his opponent's intention and devising an effective strategy to eliminate a potential loser on the deal.

West opened the deuce of clubs and East won the trick with the king. The latter was in position to cash the ace and then continue with a third round, but he wanted a diamond lead thru to establish his king. If West could subsequently contribute a spade trick, the contract would be defeated.

In order to establish what might be a vital trick while the defense still retained the initiative, East boldly underled his club holding at trick two by returning the five. West was surprised to regain the lead with the eight of clubs, however his partner's daring lead clearly indicated that the latter de-

Elected To 'The Electric Company' Ass'n Post Said Well-Received By Classrooms In America

Henry Cox, Supervisor of Child Welfare, Pitt County Department of Social Services, has been elected first vice-president of the North Carolina Juvenile Correctional Association. In the fall meeting of the association held in Hickory, Cox, a Rockingham native who has been with the Pitt County department for the past seven years, was named vice-president for a one year period. William Windley, Director of the Cameron Morrison School in Hoffman, was elected president.

The city of Jackson, Miss., is named after Gen. Andrew Jackson.

CHAPEL HILL — Two nationwide studies of school use of "The Electric Company" have found that the new experimental TV series designed to teach basic reading skills has met with unprecedented acceptance in classrooms around the United States.

Researchers who conducted the studies concluded that the daily half-hour series recorded "a remarkable advancement over previous trends in school innovativeness."

Among other things, they found that within two months of its introduction last fall the program was being viewed in 45 percent of the elementary schools in the U.S. with full TV capability, and that toward the end of the first season 88 percent of the national sample of teachers reported their students had experienced an increase in reading interest as a result of viewing the series.

"If only in terms of the speed and scope of penetration of elementary schools of all kinds, The Electric Company must be considered a highly successful venture," concluded the authors of the reports, Dr. Robert E. Herriott and Dr. Roland J. Liebert of Florida State University. The Herriott-Liebert survey was conducted by North Carolina's Research Triangle Institute.

"The extent to which American Elementary Schools put this new teaching aid to classroom use is truly one of the remarkable events in the history of instructional television."

The Herriott-Liebert report highlighted the fact that many schools cannot yet take advantage of modern technological aids such as The Electric Company because of technical deficiencies. Nearly half of the schools in the U.S. were unable to adopt the series, most because they lacked TV sets, the researchers found. About 97 percent of all U.S. homes have TV. But only about 51 percent of all elementary schools had TV capability to see The Electric Company, the researchers reported.

Approximately two million pupils were viewing the series in school (and an estimated two million more saw it each week at home.)

A summary of the Herriott-Liebert studies, which were conducted during the show's first season for the Children's Television Workshop, creators and producers of the series, was released today and includes these findings:

Within two months of its appearance, the series was being used by 23 percent of the elementary schools in the U.S. Among schools having full TV viewing capabilities, that is schools with access to the broadcast and sets in sufficient quantity and quality to permit viewing, the percentage of viewing schools jumped to 45 percent.

In large cities, The Electric Company was being used by 70 percent of all schools having full TV capability.

In general, the series had greatest penetration in its target areas — in urbanized areas and among pupils who have had greater than average dif-facilities. By region, viewing was highest in the West and Southwest, and in the North Atlantic states.

Warm Response from Teachers and Pupils

In addition to their school survey in the fall of 1971, Drs. Herriott and Liebert also reported on a second survey, conducted near the end of the first season which found a warm response for the program from teachers and their pupils who had used the program. Findings included:

The teachers gave the series high marks for its effect on the reading skills of their pupils. More than 80 percent of the teachers reported some gains in specific reading skills which were directly attributable to the program.

Specifically, 28 percent of teachers noted a "great improvement" in the ability of their typical pupils to decode words as a result of watching the series. Some 21 percent noted "great improvement" in the ability of students to spell words. And 33 percent found "great improvement" in basic sight vocabulary.
