

North Vietnam Claims U.S. Agreed To Sign Peace Pact, Backed Off Due Thieu

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnam declared today that the United States agreed to sign a peace pact next Tuesday but then backed off and asked for further negotiations, saying it was having difficulty getting Saigon to go along.

An official North Vietnamese statement on the secret talks in Paris between Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi's peace negotiators apparently caught the United States and South Vietnam by surprise.

In the first Saigon reaction, the government's official radio said: "A separate agreement between North Vietnam and the United States does not concern us in any way."

"We in South Vietnam have the right of self-determination," said the commentator.
The White House declined comment.

The North Vietnamese also read the statement to the Paris peace talks. Afterward U.S. Ambassador William J. Porter said he thought it "preferable not to make a formal statement at this point."

President Nguyen Van Thieu met for an hour with U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, his first meeting with an American since Kissinger's visit ended Monday, when the President's national security adviser failed to get him to agree to new North Vietnamese peace terms.
In Paris, the Viet Cong urged the United States to sign the accord to "give proof of its good will and good faith. Mrs.

Nguyen Thi Binh, chief of the Viet Cong delegation, said a U.S. signature would bring the peace every one is waiting for.
The official Hanoi statement said Kissinger had agreed to the plan in his secret meetings in Paris.

calling it "simply an excuse which the U.S. side borrows to postpone the realization of those matters on which the United States has already given its promise."

This called for a cease-fire in Vietnam within 24 hours of the signing of a peace agreement. All prisoners of the war would be released and all American and foreign troops would be withdrawn within 60 days.

The North Vietnamese made no mention of the cease-fire applying to Cambodia and Laos as well as Vietnam. Thieu and President Nixon have demanded this in the past.

Negotiations would then begin between the Saigon government and the Viet Cong to arrange elections for a coalition government.

Instead, it said "all parties in the Vietnam war" would recognize the sovereignty and neutrality of the two other Indochinese nations, and the United States would end all military activities in the two countries, withdraw all troops and send no more troops or weapons there.

"The government of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam firmly demands that the U.S. government carry out exactly and correctly the agreed upon points and sign the agreement on Oct. 31 in order to end the war and restore peace in Vietnam," the statement said Hanoi ridiculed the "claim of so-called difficulties in Saigon."

Nixon and Thieu also demanded that any cease-fire be internationally supervised. The Hanoi plan provided for forming an international committee on military control and supervision as well as calling an international conference on Vietnam within 30 days.

Charge Violation Of Understanding

PARIS (AP) — The Paris peace talks today took up North Vietnam's charges that Washington is delaying a peace settlement and the United States denounced Hanoi for making public the substance of secret negotiations.

United States to "give proof of its good will and good faith by honoring the accords" that Hanoi said were reached in secret negotiations by Henry A. Kissinger, presidential national security adviser, and the North Vietnamese.

Emerging from the talks, William J. Porter, head of the U.S. delegation, declared: "It is an unfortunate violation of an understanding which they sought and to which we agreed that there would be no revelations on the private talks as they were continuing."

North Vietnam, in a broadcast statement that also was released in Paris, claimed the United States had agreed, to sign a cease-fire agreement before the end of October, then asked for more time because it was having difficulty getting Saigon to agree.
Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, chief

Viet Cong delegate, said if the United States would sign, it would bring the peace everyone is waiting for.

Mrs. Binh said the Viet Cong's provisional revolutionary government supports the declaration made by North Vietnam. She said the statement shows "the present state of negotiations and throws a glaring light on the attitude of the American side."

She made the statement to newsmen as she arrived for the 16th plenary session of the Paris peace talks.

Ordinance Is Dead Issue To Zoning Board

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Convenience commercial uses in multi-family complexes has become a dead issue so far as the Greenville Planning and Zoning Board is concerned.

For several months the matter of recommending wording for an ordinance that would establish a section dealing with regulations to cover commercial uses in multi-family complexes has been a bone of contention with members of the commission.

Initially involved through a request by members of the City Council that the commission draft a proposed ordinance, the commission's draft was later returned to the Planning and Zoning Commission for clarification on certain points.

In introducing the item, which had been tabled at the September 27 meeting, Chairman Louis Clark at Wednesday night's meeting commented: "I'm not in favor of discussing, or not discussing the matter. Do you have any questions?"

City Planner Dillon Watson reiterated the list of what an approved ordinance of the type under discussion would accomplish. "It would mean this group would not have to take any action on an individual basis. As long as a developer met the particular requirements he could establish a convenience commercial outlet.

"The way the ordinance stands now," Dillon added, "each request has to be considered for the purpose of rezoning."

Watson then declared he would "like to see this board dispose, dispense, approve, take some action, do something with it."

Mrs. Earl Travathan of ferred a motion that the Planning and Zoning Commission reject the issue. Her motion was expanded to include a blanket rejection of the entire ordinance. It was also recommended that the City Council be urged to consider not taking action on the matter.

A report on the progress of extension of Red Banks Road from State Highway 43 (Charles Street extended) northwestwardly to U.S. 284 bypass (Greenville Boulevard) was heard without action being taken by the commission.

In giving the report, City Engineer C. A. Holliday noted the Red Banks Road extension, which would pick up from the present Red Banks Road, cross N.C. 43 and continue behind Pitt Plaza to Greenville Boulevard, had for six years been on the planning board.

Mayor S. Eugene West mentioned that the overall road (which is proposed to eventually continue across Greenville Boulevard, on to Evans Street and then on to Memorial Drive near the Country Club area) had been approved by the highway commission in April of 1972.

Holliday revealed that applicable to the stretch of the proposed road running from N.C. 43 to Greenville Boulevard, developers were seeking indication of the "commissioners reaction to the idea of paving an area 22 feet wide without curb or gutter."

"This would be the same as the construction of highway 43," he commented. At this time too, Holliday revealed, "the Greenville Utilities Department has no idea where it will install any of its utilities along this road. By not having curb and gutter, later installation of

Inching To Goal

The Pitt County United Fund pledge and collection total is inching towards the fund goal but campaign chairman Karl Faser, noting that progress has been slow, reports there is still a ways to go.

Faser said the current status of the campaign, as of Wednesday, is that $74,446 has been collected or pledged. The figure, he said, represents approximately 47 per cent of the overall goal.

Commenting on progress so far, Faser said that it is recognized that there are some people who have not been contacted "but it is anticipated that members of the campaign will make every effort to see that everyone is afforded the opportunity to make a contribution."

Faser reported that local campaign division heads will meet on Nov. 3 at the Social Studies Building, East Carolina University to review and update campaign progress and "determine what must be done to successfully complete the campaign."

Former Greenville Man Dies In Double Shooting

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — A former Greenville, N.C. resident was killed and a wounded Greensboro N.C. man is under heavy guard in a hospital here, both victims of a double shooting which police believe occurred under the pretense of closing a drug deal, allegedly involving $10,000.

Police said they believe the men, who they say allegedly came to Delaware to buy a large quantity of drugs, were lured into an abandoned farm near Delaware City, Monday night and shot before they handed over an alleged $10,000 to three men.

parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lee Stokes formerly of Greenville, now live in Fort Myers, Fla.

Police said Stokes and Kirkman flew to Wilmington from North Carolina, rented a car and met the three men at a motel. Authorities would not identify the three alleged assailants who they said are from the Wilmington area, but alerts were issued to other police agencies on the three. They had not been taken into custody by late Thursday morning.

Investigators working on the case said Kirkman was under guard "for his own protection," they said "we need him to talk to."

Kirkman, a graduate student at the Greensboro campus of the University of North Carolina, is the son of the Selective Service director of Guilford County, N.C., and has no record of any criminal arrests.

Authorities said Stokes had been under investigation for alleged drug trafficking in the Chapel Hill, N.C. area. His October 28, has been selected as the date for the annual Forget-Me-Not campaign of Pitt County Chapter 37 of the Disabled American Veterans (DAV).

On that date Forget-Me-Not — small blue flowers of remembrance — will be offered by volunteers on street corners.

Johnnie Pearson, Commander of the DAV Chapter said "All contributions received for the flowers will be used in the chapter's program of assistance for the war handicapped in this community"

In addition, Pearson commented "these are the funds which the chapter uses to carry our program of bringing comfort and cheer to the veterans who are now in VA Hospitals.

"It is important to understand that the disabled veteran wants just what every other man wants — a chance to live a normal, productive life in his community," Pearson added. "He wants to use his remaining abilities to earn a living, so that he can bring up his family in the American way. He is not looking for a hand-out, but sometimes he needs a helping hand. That is our program."

Woodrow Boyd the Forget-Me-Not Chairman said he is pleased that the Panhellenic and Intrafraternal Councils of East Carolina University will be assisting in this drive.

Other persons in this area heading the Forget-Me-Not drive are: Noah Haislip of Robersonville; Walter Oakley, Winterville; Vernon Warren, Ayden; Olin Smithson, Grifton; and Bennett Heath, in Williamston.

Poll Showing McGovern Gain

PRINCETON, N.J., Oct. 25 — the latest nationwide trial heat, based on interviewing conducted Oct. 13-18, shows Nixon winning the support of 59 per cent of registered voters to 36 per cent for McGovern, 1 per cent for other candidates and 4 per cent undecided.

In the previous survey, conducted September 29-October 9, Nixon received the support of 60 per cent to 34 per cent for McGovern, 1 per cent for other candidates and 5 percent undecided.

The latest findings represent a gain of 6 percentage points for McGovern since his low point, recorded in late August following the Eagleton crisis and the Republican convention.

McGovern's gains can be explained in large measure by the fact that a large proportion of manual workers—a group which represents almost 40 per cent of the electorate—has shifted back to their traditional Democratic party allegiance. In the August survey, Nixon held a wide 63 to 28 per cent lead over McGovern among manual workers; in the latest survey Nixon's lead is marginal, 49 to 44 per cent.

McGovern has also picked up strength among Catholics and under 30 voters, but not to the same extent as among manual workers.

Despite McGovern's gains, President Nixon continues to hold the lead among all major population groups with the exception of Blacks and Jews.

organization's fund.
Guest members from several area towns were on hand for the session in addition to a number of new DU members who attended their first meeting from the Greenville area.

every dollar donated to DU is directed to the Canadian wetland projects, he added that none of the funds go for land purchase but for construction of waterfowl breeding grounds.

Continuing a successful effort that has, for years, resulted in substantial contributions to the national DU fund for work involving the immediate and long range welfare of waterfowl, the area chapter again enjoyed a productive fund raising session for Ducks Unlimited.

The auctioning of several items, which proved successful at last year's meeting, resulted in raising some $865 for Ducks Unlimited last night as members bid on four limited-edition waterfowl prints and a locally made duck decoy. Jimmy Hudson of Greenville was on hand to auction the items for the local chapter.

Ruffing urged members to continue their immediate work for Ducks Unlimited, cautioning that "the time is going to run out when we can get land for nothing" to continue the northern projects.

The Greenville chapter, which has grown to be the largest DU membership in the state, joins other chapters across North Carolina each year in bringing together old and new members for progress reports on the status of DU programs and annually does its part in promoting the conservation and propagation of waterfowl by channeling proceeds from the meeting into the national

E. J. "Buss" Ruffing, field operations supervisor on the national staff, reminded duck hunters that 80 per cent of the waterfowl population is raised in the Canadian wetlands and noted therefore that the overall goal of Ducks Unlimited is to raise funds "down here" to go towards maintaining and creating wetland breeding areas up north.

The DU official said that he has just returned from an inspection trip to Canada and reported that the annual migration has evidently begun. "They (ducks) aren't in Canada," he added. Ruffing noted that prospects appear good this year for improved early season hunting.
Members saw one of the new DU feature films, "Watching Wild Wings," which actually offered a full-color short course in field identification of waterfowl. The film, as are several others made for Ducks Unlimited, is narrated by Bing Crosby.

Shirt Dress Stars In Brook's Spring Collection

By ANN HENCKEN
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The Super Shirt Dress was a star of the Donald Brooks spring collection. This classic style has been trotted out for spring, and already several designers have shown some good looking versions.

However, Brooks has really given it the royal treatment. Long or short, his shirt styles are ultra luxurious.
What is there to say about a great shirt dress except that it is beautifully tailored and is done in sumptuous fabric?

At Brooks, there's a short one in pale creamy rose crepe and a long one in white silk, printed with vegetables.
The shirt look supreme was a black evening dress with wide white collar. The double supreme was in white chiffon, gathered, sprinkled with rhinestones, as if it belonged on a well-dressed Good Fairy.

The shirt dress was sashed or belted, punctuated with fake flowers or plunging v-necklines. It came out in Brooks' novelty prints for day — vegetables again, with matched wrap coats.
The two-piece dress, another coming style for spring was elegant in beige linen — or floral prints. These were shown with big, roll brimmed hats.
Brooks' best-looking clothes are tailored, but he also showed some one-shoulder dresses for evening and a group of black lace short cocktail styles.
He liked the cardigan in brilliant green paillettes with matching tops and dark skirts.
For some unknown reason, neck scarves are big for spring, too. Brooks showed long, dramatic Isadora Duncan chiffon scarves with the glitter cardigans — and shorter print versions for day.

The Wacky World Of A Postmaster

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have been a postmaster in a small town in South Carolina for the last 24 years, so I'm not exactly a rookie. I read with amusement the letter from the postmaster's wife who was annoyed because someone had called her husband in the middle of his supper to ask how much postage to put on an airmail postcard.

I would like to address a few questions to her and to wives of other postmasters:

1. Have you ever been wakened at midnight by irate, drunken duck hunters who have made all provisions for a hunting trip, including booze, except for a Migratory Bird hunting stamp? I have.

2. Have you ever been called at 10 p. m. on Sunday night and asked if a letter posted at 1 p. m. that day had left yet? I have.

3. Have you ever had to join the fire department in fighting a fire started in a mail box by someone who dropped a lighted cigaret in the slot? I have.

4. Have you ever retrieved broken eggs, melting ice cream bars, and the contents of an entire soda bottle from a collection box, hoping that the contents of letters had not been damaged? I have.

5. Have you ever been called by a patron, furious because the vending machine did not return one penny in change? I have.

6. Have you ever had anyone become angry with you because you did not have the time to supply a list of 100 to 150 zip codes in the middle of the Christmas rush? I have.

Cordially,
SOUTH CAROLINA POSTMASTER

DEAR POSTMASTER: I've always known that postmasters were postmasters at handling the public, but if you kept your cool thru these kooky requests, you deserve a medal!

DEAR ABBY: I am a single man and I live alone. There is a single man who lives in my apartment building who often visits me, and while he is here all he talks about is his sex life. He tells me one story after another along this line, and it is extremely boring. I have had some erotic experiences, too, but I wouldn't think of relating them the way this man does. To me, such things are personal and I prefer to keep them that way.

How can I politely tell this man that I am not interested in his erotic experiences? Frankly, I think he exaggerates a great deal and lies a lot.

BORED

DEAR BORED: Tell your neighbor to knock off the sex dialog or to quit knocking on your door.

DEAR ABBY: This is in regard to the bride who couldn't decide who should give her away at her wedding—her natural father or her stepfather.

My parents divorced when I was five. My mother remarried shortly after. I often wondered who would give me away when my "big day" came.

My stepfather was with me thru the measles, mumps and all the other bumps and bruises a girl suffers while growing up. He was always there when I came home on dates to talk if I felt like it, and to give me honest answers when I needed them.

Over the years my natural father remembered me with picture postcards from all of his trips.

When I planned my wedding I had no problem deciding who would give me away. My stepdad was my choice. My natural father "gave me away" years before — when I was five years old.

Special Meeting Scheduled For Wednesday

An information meeting concerning the forming of a local chapter of the American Business Woman's Association will be held at the Holiday Inn, Greenville, on Wednesday, Nov. 1, at 7:15 p.m.

Mrs. Phyllis Hughes, president of the Goldsboro Chapter, and Mrs. Barbara Darden, chairman of the Torchbearer Committee, Goldsboro Chapter, will be present.

The American Business Woman's Association is a national group specifically for business women. The first chapter in North Carolina was established in Wilmington and there are now 65 chapters in the state.

Interested women in the Greenville and Pitt County areas can telephone Mrs. Ruth Staton after 5 p.m. at 746-4340. Mrs. Jane Little of Farmville can be reached after 5:30 p.m. at 753-4620.

Wedding Invitation

Mrs. Lenora Moore requests the honor of your presence at the marriage of her daughter, Annie Louise, to Pervis Cohens, on Saturday, Oct. 28, at 3:00 p.m. in Holy Trinity Church. No invitations were mailed.

Moms Seem Not To Care About Kids

PARIS (WNS) — Only 26 per cent of city and suburban mothers accepted the invitation of medical experts to give their children free and complete physical check-ups approved by the Ministry of Health. More than 12 per cent (641) of the 5,000 youngsters who were examined turned out to have serious troubles that their parents were not aware of. These included malformations, anemia, epilepsy, heart trouble, profound deafness and eye injuries. Dr. Hazeman, director of the group, wishes that 850,000 French children could be examined each year. "as a realist, however, I must report that the examination costs $52 per child and that each team required a half-day to examine only six children."

Jackie Robinson Blazed A Trail

The death of Jackie Robinson is a sad occasion for the sports world and our entire society. After a brilliant athletic career, Robinson died aged prematurely. At the age of 53, he was silver haired and nearly blind and he died of a heart attack.

Robinson was the first Negro player in major league baseball, joining the old Brooklyn Dodgers in 1947, at Branch Rickey's request. In this age when black athletes are excelling in so many sports, this hardly seems to be momentous. At that time, however, it was a situation which was loaded with danger. Jackie Robinson faced much animosity as the first black in major league baseball. His superb skill soon won him his place in baseball. It was years, though, before he could attain the same place outside the baseball stadium.

Robinson's acceptance into baseball was far more significant for the American social structure than it even appeared at that time. It was one of the first moves which gradually toppled segregation laws and customs that at that time kept Negroes out of restaurants and hotels and other public places.

Jackie Robinson's major accomplishments were in the sports field. His brave decision to join the Brooklyn Dodgers as the first Negro major league player had a social impact that will be remembered as long as our country stands. It was certainly one of the things which has changed our society in the past 25 years.

RALEIGH. — Role stereotypes for women and men must be shattered before there is parity of career choice and employment opportunity.

Occupation Choice Limited Yet, half of them held jobs in only 21 of the more than 250 distinct occupations reviewed. One-fourth of all working women are in five occupations — secretary-stenographer, elementary school teacher, bookkeeper, waitress, and household worker. Most of these, Dr. Ellis observed, are relatively low-paying and dead-end jobs.

In comparison, male workers were widely dispersed with 50 per cent in 65 occupations.

Subtle discouragement for women to push ahead with careers is embedded in language and custom. Dr. Ellis said. Ambition is admired in a man, but the aggressive female is avoided. A husband calls his wife "the little woman," but he'd take it as insult if she called him a little man.

The thrust for feminine access to jobs traditionally reserved for males has gained ground, but overt or covert discrimination barriers remain, Dr. Ellis said.

An official for a major merchandising chain reported women never were considered for executive positions because "they don't like to travel." He'd never asked, he admitted, but he just knew they didn't.

Earnings Disparity Cited Disparity in earnings is a hard fact. The 1970 census said that a male with an eight-grade education earned an average of $7,140 a year, while a female of the same background earned only $3,970. The respective averages for high school graduates were $9,100 and $5,280, and for college graduates, $13,320 and $7,930.

Despite the handicaps, Dr. Ellis advised young women to set their sights where their aptitudes lie and buck the system to achieve goals.

Start early thinking about options, she recommended, and consider the whole field — electronics, drafting and design, the professions, technical education. "Not all need to go to college; 80 per cent of young people can benefit from vocational or career training, she said.

Mary Ellis grew up on an Oklahoma farm, roping in regard to spending money until her mother decided it wasn't ladylike. She went off to Oklahoma State on a home demonstration club scholarship and earned three degrees — the first woman in the country to receive a graduate degree in technical education.

She's been first for her sex a lot of places since, matching capability and wits with men on equal footing. Has it been worth the effort? "You bet," she responded. After all, she remarked, men are people, too, when you get to work with them.

Confidential Sources Part Of A Free Press

Newspaperman Peter Bridge was released from jail after staying 21 days for refusing to answer a grand jury's questions on a story which he prepared.

It shows us once again that something must be done to allow newsmen to protect their sources of information.

The founding fathers recognized the place of newspapers in our democratic society and they guaranteed that place with the freedom of the press amendment.

Free press is not going to mean much, however, if newsmen cannot cultivate confidential sources.

Alex Brock Is Ready For Test

By JOHN KILGO
RALEIGH — Alex Brock, the executive secretary of the North Carolina Board of Elections, tells us that about 1.7 million Tar Heels will go to the polls and cast ballots on Nov. 7.

And the counting of those votes is going to be a long and tedious process, probably more so than usual because of the large number of absentee ballots that have been requested.

Brock says it's a little early to estimate the voter turnout but he added: "At this time I'd estimate the vote to be 1.7 million, hopefully a little better."

Some of the election officials in the state's larger counties feel the large number of absentee ballots will delay the counting process of the returns until sometime the next morning. There will be a record number of absentee ballots cast in North Carolina this year.

"It is true that we have more absentee ballots out than ever before," Brock told us, "but I can't perceive of any precinct in the state having so many that it would hold up the vote count for very long."

Brock also adds that "absentee ballots are not usually cast in a quantity large enough to make a difference in a race, unless that race is very, very close."

William Culp, the secretary of the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Board of Elections, says his office has more than 5,000 absentee ballots out and that number will probably go to 6,000 before the deadline.

"It's going to present a problem for us having to count those ballots," Culp told us. "It'll probably delay the vote count in Mecklenburg by an hour or more."

The law on counting absentee ballots is very strict. The ballot must be taken to the person's home precinct and kept under lock and key until the polls shut for the day.

At that time, the absentee ballots are counted by hand before the count begins on the regular vote. Everyone who votes by absentee will have his or her name listed on a board at the precinct so people will know they voted absentee.

The biggest reason for the increase in absentee ballots, of course, is the right for 18-year-olds to vote, and many of these will be voting absentee from their college campuses.

"Taking everything into consideration," Brock says, "we don't foresee any major problems. This is a long ballot but we've had long ballots in this state before and managed okay."

Brock points out that the ballot during the spring primary was exceptionally long and fairly complicated. "The voting process and the counting process should be easier than during the primary," Brock said, "and we didn't have major problems during the primary."

Brock expects the youth vote to make itself known in this election he adds:

"It's not reasonable to expect that young people will vote as a group in higher

A complex mix of social attitudes, semantics, and institutional structure shapes what little girls and boys aspire to be, said Dr. Mary L. Ellis, director of the Technical Education Research Centers (TERC) of Washington.

"To say that education by itself can surmount the problem is a Pollyanna attitude," she asserted. "The home, school, church, and business all must begin to look at societal expectations for females and males."

The goal, though still in the future, is a society in which each person can find self identity and select an occupation without strictures based solely on sex, she said.

A step towards that objective is a national seminar-workshop series on Women in the World of Work, conducted by TERC under sponsorship of the U.S. Office of Education.

Top-Level Gathering The second of the three regional meetings was held in Raleigh this week. Sixty-three participants from eight states represented a cross-section of top level education, civic, business and industry leadership.

The roster included the chief education officer (all men) of North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida and Alabama.

"We want to get to the policy-makers, the movers and shakers in education and business," explained Dr. Ellis, "and involve them in a realistic examination of our values and attitudes about job functions for women."

Recommendations from the three seminar-workshops will be pooled for a report which will attempt to blueprint a revamping of the system to broaden work horizons for women.

Evaluation of career preparation for women takes its cue not only from the equal rights movement, but also from the rising strength of woman power in the nation's labor forces.

Two out of every five American workers are women, a total of some 31 million. During the 1970s, it is estimated that women will be entering the labor force at the rate of 500,000 per year.

In early 1970, Dr. Ellis noted, 42 per cent of all women 16 years old and over

If the only true purpose of a federal tax credit plan is to preserve the Catholic parochial schools, we may as well forget the proposal here and now. The plan won approval from the House Ways and Means Committee on October 3, but in the rush to adjournment the bill died on the cutting-room floor.

As a general proposition, courts will not look at the motive of a legislative body in passing a particular bill. But in the case of the several proposals for tuition grants and nonsectarian subsidies, the courts have plunged straight to the religious issue. The Constitution says that Congress shall make no law "respecting" an establishment of religion, and a great wall of separation has been erected on that word "respecting."

That wall, in all its essential characteristics, has to be preserved. The Constitution commands it; tradition supports it; the people overwhelmingly attest their conviction on this score. Our nation is badly enough divided on the politics of race; we cannot afford the further dissension that would flow from the politics of religion.

There is this also to be said on the matter of saving the Catholic schools: Money alone is not the problem. If the parochial schools could be kept alive and healthy simply by the injection of money, the Roman church itself has money in abundance. The problems are far more complex. Parochial schools have been closing in recent years at the rate of one a day for a variety of reasons unrelated to the operating budgets.

Suppose, for a moment, that we put aside all First Amendment questions. Can a valid public purpose be found to support the tax credit plan? I believe the answer is, yes. Wholly apart from its indirect benefit to Catholic education, the plan has merit on two counts — one pragmatic, the other philosophical.

Under the bill approved earlier this month, a credit would be granted against federal income taxes for half of the tuition paid by parents for the education of their children in non-public schools. The bill provides a limit of $200 per child, but the credit would diminish as family income rises. The program would affect some 5.1 million children.

If those 5.1 million children abruptly were transferred to public schools, local taxpayers would groan at the additional burden. Whatever else they may do, the private and parochial schools take a significant load off the public school systems.

The philosophical argument seems to me stronger. One of the great strengths of a free society lies in its diversity. Unlike the Soviet Union, we are not locked into a system of state monopoly — not so far. Within constitutional limits, we ought to promote diversity, competition, and variety; and this general truth applies with special force, it seems to me, in the matter of the education of our children.

What are the constitutional limits? On October 2, a three-judge federal court in New York handed down an excellent opinion defining the issues in terms of a state law adopted early this year. By a 2-1 vote, the court upheld the tax credit plan. Said District

To the editor:

We are writing in regard to the suggestion made by Chip Lambeth in his Oct. 8 article, "Green Central Skins Panthers 30-8." He opens his article by suggesting that "The Impossible Dream" rather than the National Anthem would be more suitably played before North Pitt's athletic events. Although we doubt the sincerity of his suggestion, we have found it worth considering.

Two years ago amid dust, mud, and workmen, the doors of North Pitt opened to over one thousand students with fierce, long-standing loyalties to four separate schools. Most challenging of obstacles was the county-wide belief that it would not work. The success of the past two years has discredited that belief.

Honors and achievements have been abundant at North Pitt. In our student body we have had two N.C. Governor's School students the Vice Chairman of the North Carolina Governor's Youth Advisory Board a member of the N.C. Department of Public Instruction's Task Force three first place winners in the Pitt County typing contest, a National winner of the Westinghouse Science Talent Search a National Merit Scholar a National Merit Semifinalist and of course, the State Girls Basketball Champions.

We are not making excuses for any losses that we have suffered; however, throughout the year, we have 200 students involved in athletic programs which not only keep them off the streets but also help them to better themselves both physically and mentally. These students are learning to be winners and to continue to strive 'no matter how hopeless...' it may seem.

We at North Pitt have never considered winning an impossible dream; rather we prefer Grantland Rice's viewpoint: When that one Great Scorer comes to write against your name He writes not if you won or lost but how you played the game.

Time To Do Things

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — All summer long there are more things to do than there is time to do them. But in winter it's the other way. Winter is to a grownup what a rainy day is to a child. Time hangs heavy on his hands.

HAL BOYLE

All this really indicates is a lack of imagination and responsibility. There are dozens of tasks and adventures to embark upon if you just think.

How about finally doing some of those odd chores and quaint deeds you've been mulling over for years?

You might — Walk barefoot across a bed of hot coals.

Paper your den with World War I Russian bonds. Become a pen pal of Raquel Welch.

Spend a night in a haunted house. Join a Polar Bear Club.

Break the bank at Monte Carlo with loaded dice. Vaccinate a big with a shot of tolerance.

Corner the breaded veal cutlet market. Rack your brains. Get stiff with an embalmer.

Grow a lemon tree in your fireplace. Adopt a baby giraffe and raise it in your basement. Count the number of different kinds of items your favorite supermarket stocks.

Make your own television commercials and show them during program breaks. There now. That should give you enough things to keep you occupied all winter. If it doesn't, mail me the cover of an old copy of Collier's magazine and a boxtop — any boxtop will do — and I'll send you a longer list.

Strength For Today

THE BEST IS YET TO BE

Sports writers often draw the picture of a worn-out old athlete. Perhaps he was prize fighter. Maybe he was a college football captain, or a great runner, a baseball player, or a tennis champion. But the time came when evil days seemed to fall upon him. It was more than the slowing down which comes with passing years. Something inside the man himself let up — or perhaps we should say let down. Anyway, the chap was left with nothing but memories. He liked to buttonhole people and tell them what a great guy he used to be. There is always something wistful in the gathering twilight of such a life. When all the glories we have lie in the past, we are in a bad way indeed. The present has little significance. The future has little hope.

But why should it be this way? Certainly not because God intends it so to be. For we can say with great confidence that He does not so intend it. We are meant to grow, not to stand still. We are meant to advance, not to retreat. Life is supposed to go on until it gets somewhere. God has provided all eternity for our fulfillment. When we stop before we get started, when we spend our days thinking about a career that was and is not now — then we are sick, we are unhappy, we are completely undone.

It is good to look back on life. It is better to look out on life — better still to look forward to life. If we want to, we can face the future with courage because God had made us not for defeat but for victory.

Securities Salesmen Sell Hope

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Since hope is the product sold by securities salesmen, there is seldom an absence of optimism on Wall Street or its equivalents in other financial centers.

Seldom has it been expressed with more spirit than by James Fullerton of the mutual fund industry, which has been beset by the compound woes of lagging sales, rising redemptions, poor performance, public criticism of charges, etc.

The list is long, but it was shrugged off by Fullerton at a fund conference here this week. Fullerton, who heads the Capital Group of funds, gave this report:

"Despite all the bad press that the mutual fund industry has received, and the gloomy statistics one reads about in the paper, and the even gloomier interpretation of those statistics, the mutual fund industry is currently faced with a magnificent and unique opportunity."

If sales are drooping, spirits apparently aren't. "Our industry is in an extraordinary position," Fullerton continued. "We have a product that fills an almost universal need and fills it at economic cost to the purchaser."

He summarized: "Far from being in a state of decline, mutual funds are in a condition where they have just siphoned off the surface oil."

His remarks were made as the industry announced plans to enlarge its institutional advertising budget from $400,000 a year to about $1 million to $1.5 million a year.

Robert H. Parks, the chief economist at Blyth Eastman Dillon & Co., not only produces some of the most detailed and reasoned economic perspectives that emanate from Wall Street, but he speaks clearly and often with literary verve.

One of his recent analyses is bound to give hope to the faint of heart.

"Assuming a more peaceful world and better stabilization policies by government," said Parks, "the chances are that the present expansion may turn out to be one of the most vigorous and one of the longest in U.S. history."

Parks went on to emphasize his conviction in firm words.

"The forward economic momentum of the United States is so strong, so clear and incontrovertible that the Atlantic Seaboard would have to fall into the Atlantic Ocean in order to dampen the pace of economic recovery," he said.

The economic momentum shows up, he said, in the leading indicators, in rising purchasing power, in a quickening of consumer buying plans, in the financial commitments of institutions, in the expansionary policies of government.

He concludes: "Reality suggests that the present economic recovery may turn out to be one of the longest and one of the most vigorous in U.S. history."

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, OCTOBER 27, 1972

CARROLL RICHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Richter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Surface matters indicate a considerable amount of emotionalism that could keep you from getting the benefit of some basically fine influences, so make a point to avoid being stirred up about surroundings and petty conditions and concentrate your efforts and activity upon gaining the big headway now possible for you.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Although you are worrying about family affairs, all works out well of itself if you handle that important business matter satisfactorily. Plan that trip that will help you expand. A proper accounting of cost is wise, necessary.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Find some new outlet to add to present one so you become a more interesting as well as more productive person. Avoid regular partners who are in a petty mood. Stick to your own guns and all is fine, figuratively speaking.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get busy and close those deals with experts but also listen to what they have to suggest for the future. A more lofty expression of thought brings more harmony with mate now. Do not try to press anything.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You are able to handle association matters very efficiently now, so do that instead of being so self-centered. Remember that the casual look is the most effective, so do not waste time with frumpiness, etc. Be yourself.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You can cement better relations with an associate or co-worker now, if you make the effort to cooperate more. Take the treatments you need to improve your health. Don't procrastinate where this is concerned.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Take the time for recreation you need so you get a mental lift and can work better tomorrow. You have a new idea of a creative nature to talk over with mate. Do just that and get fine results.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) If you are more objective, you can now work out those home affairs very well, and show you are truly devoted. Buy those items that will make your home more functional and comfortable. Think of your own comfort as well.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Investigate communications well, since it is via this channel you progress now. Forget about going off on some tangent that could be costly in many ways. Set up appointments to see influential persons later on. Do it now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you get together with a monetary expert, you can handle those financial affairs in a most wise and clever fashion. Repairs to property should be made early. Important bills must be paid now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study how to handle personal aims well with the aid of some good and experienced friend. Good pals hold the key to many a personal problem you may have. Avoid one who has led you in the wrong direction in the past.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Forget dull routines and concentrate on all ideas and pointers that will lead you to greater success in the very near future. Some time spent at aiding others will bring fine returns. Show you are a humanitarian.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You can look to an older and wiser friend for the assistance you need to become more successful in some venture that means a good deal to you. Join that group that has the answers to your perplexities. Evening is best for this.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those delightful young pell-mell type of people who can become most successful in life provided the accent is on business instead of the romantic from the earliest years, since there is quick thought and fast action in this nature. There will be early comprehension of what it is that the public needs the most and how to supply it. Send to the right modern-type schools for best results. Spiritual study early, too.

Bonner Lists $10,430 Outlay

J. Jordan Bonner, GOP candidate for the First Congressional District seat in the U.S. House of Representatives, has made public his campaign expenditures for the Nov. 7 general election. Bonner reported that, as of Monday, he had spent $10,430.06. Of that amount, he said, $409.25 went for travel expenses; $938.66 for office expenses; $2,947.50 for production; $571.25 was spent on direct mailings; $665 for staff salaries; $1,897 for radio and $2,997.50 for television.

The candidate said that he has traveled almost 20,000 miles in campaigning throughout the 21 counties in the First District. "People want to meet their candidates and that is the way it should be," he said. Bonner called the recently-

Brock's job of getting the election machinery in motion across the state is always a big job. . . but in years that we elect a President and a Governor, it's sort of the Super Bowl for the elections office.

"Everybody has problems," Brock says, "but we're most satisfied with the way things are going. We'll be ready for the voters on their day of election."

Election officials all over the state are asking voters to plan their day on Nov. 7 so they won't have to wait until the last minute to vote and then find themselves in a long line. Most officials believe early in the morning and mid-morning would be a good time to cast your ballot when the crowd at the precinct wouldn't be so heavy.

adjourned 92nd Congress a "do nothing" Congress. "The liberal Democratic Congress worked against President Nixon on every bill which would have benefited the people," he charged.

"My opponent voted for every over expenditure to the President's budget last year, an increase of $7 billion," Bonner continued. "This is not the kind of representation we need in Eastern North Carolina."

He charged his opponent, incumbent Walter B. Jones, with "playing politics, and when you do that, you are playing with people's lives."

Judge Murray I. Gurfein, speaking for the majority: "The benefit to the parochial schools, if any, is so remote as not to involve impermissible financial aid to church schools." In the court's view, a tax credit to a Catholic family (or to a Protestant family, for that matter) simply is not a law "respecting" an establishment of religion.

On October 10, to be sure, the U.S. Supreme Court struck down a similar Ohio law by an 8-1 vote, without even hearing argument, but the New York and Ohio statutes may contain significant differences. In any event, Judge Gurfein's opinion makes sense to me.

From the very beginning of the Republic, no constitutional objection has been found to the tax exemptions granted churches on their real property. If these exemptions are proper, surely the tax credits — benefiting parents of children in all non-public schools — would appear to do no violence to First Amendment principles. The bill ought to be revived, and passed, when a new Congress convenes next year.

'Love Minus One' Tells Story Despite Script

Have you ever daydreamed about what it would be like to be young and single and alone and embarking on a love affair in swinging Los Angeles? Here's a film that gives an amazingly convincing picture of how it goes. The picture is in the tradition of A Man and A Woman and Love Story, but not quite like either.

The plot concerns Julie (Jill Janssen, sister of star David Janssen) and David (Mark Bond), two young southern Californians. Neither one is the usual movie glamor material at all. She's blonde, he's rugged and dark, but they're not particularly good looking, or suave, or smart. She's a secretary, he's a part-time draftsman who wants to be an artist. Both are shy, rather lonely, not as "far out" as the swingers around them. You wouldn't notice either one in a crowd. But gradually their authenticity grows on you. The more you know them, the more you like them.

They meet at a party where both are turned off by the wild sexual freedom others enjoy. David woos Julie tenderly and romantically. Gradually he overcomes her fear of men — caused by a gang rape at the age of thirteen (put on screen in a series of brief flashbacks). Julie finds out he has a wife, from a loveless early marriage. Though he's separated from the woman he can't get a divorce. Unable to marry, Julie and David live from day to day enjoying the delights of being with each other under the California sun. Then she finds she is pregnant. Naively, agonizingly, they wonder what to do next. The only answer is an abortion over the border in Mexico. It goes all right. But their dream is shattered. The story ends with their return across the border, wondering what they have done to themselves and the baby they might have had. What will become of their love now it is "love minus one"?

The story is duplicated thousands of times a year in Los Angeles. What gives this movie distinction is the series of images of California life director Gabriel Gyorffy builds around the story's ordinariness. They are vivid and beautiful. We see it all — the ocean, the sunsets, the beaches, the freeways, the wild Sunset Strip, the posh restaurants, the tall office buildings, the lavish houses and tacky apartments, the cars everywhere. Through these images, intercut with many closeups of David and Julie's faces, Gyorffy lets us live from day to day with the young lovers. It's a good job of directing.

But be warned — Gyorffy directed from his own script. And as a writer, he has turned out some of the flattest, clunkiest, silliest dialogue ever heard on screen. He stops the story from time to time to put soapbox speeches and sermonettes in his characters' mouths, too. Whenever David and Julie open their faces it's a disaster. You may or may not think the screen images, the music, the beautiful color, all the film's "plusses", can offset those horrible words!

The reason he didn't get a better scriptwriter is that this is Gyorffy's first independent film production, done on a tiny budget by hocking everything he owned. Such shoestring films are a part of contemporary Los Angeles life too. The filmmaker gets a bit of money here, some more there. He shoots wherever he can, on the streets, in his friends' apartments, in the parks. He uses young unknowns. He pinch hits from everybody and does all jobs (Gyorffy even shows up as a Hungarian singer in the film's party scene). Results: realistic but often uneven. The wonder is that so many things are good about "Love Minus One" when it was made under such difficulties. One can't help applauding Gyorffy, whose colorful life story was told in last Sunday's Daily Reflector, for doing as well as he has.

But the fact remains — time after time the mood of slowly-unfolding romance, built up by the lush pictures of Los Angeles and the young couple, but the rippling musical score and the glittering color, is shattered by speeches that would be laughed out of a junior high school class play. Please, Mr. Gyorffy, next time don't shoot the film until you get a better script!

Rally May Have Actor Ron Ely

The accent will be on youth tonight when the young people of eastern North Carolina will receive an expression of appreciation for a job well done in their efforts to campaign for President Nixon.

Mrs. Jackie McAlpine, publicity manager for the Eastern North Carolina Youth Rally for President Nixon, revealed plans for what she terms "a festive event" beginning at 7:30 and lasting until midnight at the Music Factory on East 14th Street.

Although the rally is basically a means of expressing appreciation, Mrs. McAlpine said "we will be happy to have anyone of any age come. This will not be speech-making affair, although we do expect a number of local Republican candidates to be on hand."

Among the attractions planned for the youth rally is a scheduled appearance by Ron Ely. Most television viewers will remember Ely for his role as Tarzan on television series of the same name.

"We hope Ron will be here by nine o'clock," Mrs. McAlpine said, "as we have tentatively planned to present him to the audience at that time along with whichever candidates are present."

Ely is coming in by plane to Raleigh and then by car to Greenville, with an arrival time prior to nine o'clock hoped for. The Tarzan star is making the trip to Greenville on behalf of President Nixon.

"We're also going to have one of North Carolina's outstanding native Rock bands," Mrs. McAlpine disclosed, "the Natucket Sleigh Ride." She noted that dancing would be the order of the day with occasional breaks for Ely's and the candidates presentation.

Among other activities planned for the gala rally is the release of some 2,000 balloons at some point during the rally. "And the local Nixonettes, university girls, will sing Nixon Now," Mrs. McAlpine said. "This is the song performed during the Miami Convention. We have a recording of it and the Nixonettes will sing along with it and invite the audience to participate."

The program has been planned and coordinated by Mrs. McAlpine and Craig Sousa, director of the Eastern North Carolina Youth for Nixon. per person, which covers interested persons are invited to Admission to the rally is $1.00 refreshments and dancing. All attend.

False Alarm Charged Duo

Two juveniles — one 12 and the other 14 — were arrested yesterday on charges of turning in a false alarm after Greenville Fire Department officers saw the two turn in an alarm from Box 235 at the intersection of North and South Overlook Drives.

Greenville police department investigators reported the fire department received a false alarm from Box 236 at the intersection of Beaumont Road and Evergreen Drive about 8:50 a.m.

According to Police Chief Glenn Cannon, several false alarms have been received from various boxes in the area over the past several weeks, so Fire Department Fire Prevention Bureau inspectors began checking other alarm boxes in the area and saw two boys turning in an alarm from Box 235 about 8:55.

The fire officers gave chase one foot, Chief Cannon said, and caught the two juveniles about two blocks from the alarm box at North South Overlook Drive.

District Meet At Williamston

District No. 10 of the Prince Hall Masons will have their annual district meeting Friday in Williamston.

Caronation Lodge No. 151 will serve as the host lodge. All master masons, eastern star members, and their guests are invited to attend.

The group will meet at 7 p.m. on N. Sycamore Street and the fellowship banquet will begin at 9 p.m.

Firemen Holding Dinner Saturday

GARDNERVILLE — The Gardnerville Volunteer Fire Department will sponsor a barbecued chicken dinner Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The plates will sell for $1.25 for adults and 75 cents for children. A bonus will be entertainment by the Swingmasters Band from 2 to 4 p.m.

Firm Damaged In Evening Blaze

An early evening fire last night damaged an upstairs repair room at Harmony House South on Evans Street at the intersection of Fourth Street yesterday and resulted in water damage to an adjoining business, the House of Hats.

Fire officials said the 7:01 p.m. fire apparently started in a trash can and spread to the wall and ceiling of the second floor room.

Light damage was reported.

Two Charged In Drug Case

A Pitt County Grand Jury Tuesday returned true bills of indictment against two defendants charged in connection with drug possession charges following a September 7 raid on a Route 1, Winterville home.

James Ray Modlin, 24, and Kathy Jean Gallman, 20, appeared before Judge Robert Wheeler at a preliminary hearing September 27 in District Court. Judge Wheeler, after hearing evidence in the case ruled there was no probable cause to bind the case over to Superior Court, but the Grand Jury, after hearing testimony, returned the true bills, thus sending the cases to the higher court.

Modlin and Miss Gallman were among four persons charged when officers raided a Route 1, Winterville home and found between one and two pounds of marijuana in the dwelling.

The others charged were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Johnson of Route 1, Winterville, in whose home the illegal "grass" was allegedly found.

Knitting Class Starts Tuesday

A knitting class will start at the Moyewood Social Service Center here Tuesday.

The class will meet each Tuesday from 7 to 9 p.m. All interested persons may either call 758-5010 or visit the Center at 1710 W. Third Street.

WHEN YOU SELECT ELECTRIC HEAT, YOU MAKE LIFE A LITTLE MORE COMFORTABLE. FOR EVERYONE.

Not just your family. Though with clean, quiet, even, odorless electric heat, they're bound to be blissfully comfortable.

Everyone.

Because the more electricity we provide in the wintertime, the closer we come to balancing the demand for power. And the closer we come to balancing the demand for power year 'round, the better we're able to keep your rates down.

In summer, you see, when everybody's air conditioner is going like mad, the demand for electricity is at its peak. And we must have enough turbines and generators to meet all that demand.

Then, when winter rolls around, the demand for power drops. About 17%. Which means that a lot of that expensive equipment isn't being fully used.

But we still have to maintain that equipment, pay the operators, and pay the interest on the money we borrowed to buy it. And since our customers are our one and only source of operating income, you wind up paying for these things. And paying higher summer rates if you are a high summer-use customer.

That's why we encourage people to select electric heat through advertising. To help balance the demand for power. To keep that equipment busy all year 'round. To see that it pays for itself.

So next time you hear that someone's chosen electric heat, give him a loud and lusty cheer. He's doing your pocketbook a favor.

Not to mention his family.

IF MORE PEOPLE USED ELECTRIC HEAT, IT WOULD HELP KEEP RATES DOWN YEAR 'ROUND.

Road-Naming Questions Again At City Meet

Road naming (or in some instances un-naming) seems to crop up periodically as a lighthearted relief to more serious matters at some of Greenville's official meetings.

This time the question is "Who has first rights to Queen Anne?" And it came to surface as an aside from City Engineer C. A. Holliday at Wednesday night's Planning and Zoning Commission meeting.

In the midst of discussions on a plat for Section II of Oakhurst Subdivision, Holliday introduced the delicate point of first rights to the name.

"We discovered," he admitted, "that the subdivision includes a road named Queen Anne. We also have a Queen Anne's Road in Lynndale.

"There is a slight difference in the fine point of spelling," he declared. "In Lynndale, there's an apostrophe s in the name Anne. In the Oakhurst Subdivision, it's Anne without an apostrophe s. "I fear this is not enough difference to avoid confusion on the part of the post office and people seeking to find an address," he observed.

And what's to be done about Queen Anne (or Queen Anne's)? "I don't have the answer," Holliday concluded. "However, the folks out in Oakhurst, I understand, had their road named before those in Lynndale."

The second matter of road naming came a few minutes later when Mayor S. Eugene West brought up a non-agenda item about christening the outer stretches of pavement encircling or to encircle Greenville.

"The reason I rush into this affair," West began, "is that the boat works people plan to build a new plant. They need to know what the new by-pass extension will be named so they can tell people how to reach them, and so they can prepare stationery with an address."

Holliday added that one suggestion had been to divide Greenville into four separate areas, with a north-south axis formed by a combination of Evans and Greene Street; and an east-west axis formed by Tenth Street and Dickinson Avenue.

Such an arrangement could then lend itself to quartering the city with a subsequent pattern of naming the by-pass Greenville Boulevard with sub-divisions of names based on geographical direction.

Thus, there would be Greenville Boulevard Southeast; Greenville Boulevard Southwest; Greenville Boulevard Northeast; and Greenville Boulevard Northwest.

"The same as Atlanta,"

Holliday concluded. Commissioners agreed this suggestion had a practical ring, and recommended approval.

Mayor West had stated he was placing the matter on the agenda for the November City Council meeting.

Chairman Louis Clark asked for a "quick vote" on the non-agenda item, after telling Mayor West "it is our strict rule that no item be considered unless it is placed on the agenda ahead of time."

Orthopedic Ass'n To Install Wooten

Dr. John L. Wooten of Greenville will be installed as president of the North Carolina Orthopedic Association Friday night at the group's annual meeting in Charlotte.

A native of Greenville, Dr. Wooten was named the association's president-elect a year ago. He will succeed Dr. John Stuart Gaul of Charlotte at head of the 105 member group orthopedics.

Dr. Wooten received his undergraduate degree from Duke University before attending the Duke University Medical School. He furthered his education at the University of Maryland at Baltimore, Emory University in Atlanta and at Tulane University in New Orleans. He entered private practice in Greenville 17 years ago after serving two years in the U. S. Army.

In addition to the installation program Friday night, the orthopedic specialists attending the association meet will participate in a series of scientific seminars at Charlotte Memorial Hospital which will include presentation of papers by various orthopedists in the state and a program by Dr. Albert Swanson of the University of Michigan — an expert on reconstruction of ruminant hands.

Dr. Wooten is married to the former Harrett Husted of Northburg, N.J. and the couple has four sons.

Pet 'Adoption' Program Sunday

Another opportunity for area citizens interested in choosing animals for adoption at the Pitt County Dog Pound will be available Sunday at 9:00 a.m. Members of the Pitt County Humane Society will be on hand to assist in the choice of animals and to provide information relative to the health and care of the adoptive animals.

NCAE Unit Holds Meet

The Greenville unit of the North Carolina Association of Educators (NCAE) held its first meeting of the school year Wednesday at Aycock Junior High School beginning at 4:00 p.m.

Guests for the unit meeting included Mrs. Ruth Jones, Wofford Thomas and Dr. Joseph Congleton.

Mrs. Jones, a classroom teacher from the Rocky Mount schools, is immediate past president of the North Carolina Education Association (NCAE). She is currently serving as the southeastern regional director of the Association of Classroom Teachers (ACT).

Thomas is a field consultant for the NCAE District 15, and Dr. Congleton, an associate professor of Education at East Carolina University, is serving as NCAE Director for District 15.

Mrs. Carolyn Ferebee, president-elect of NCAE introduced Mrs. Jones, who spoke on the topic of the National Association's proposed constitution which will be up for ratification in November.

NO HOBGOBLIN — What appears to be a hobgoblin getting ready for Halloween is actually Dennis Montgomery, who was dismantling a midway ride at the State Fair of Texas in Dallas. The horned monster was part of the "Voyage a la Lune" ride which was brought in for the fair. (AP Wirephoto)

Classicists Try Nashville Sound

By ALAN WILSON
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — It's no wonder Arthur Whittemore and Jack Lowe nearly fell off their piano benches when asked to play country music with a classical flair.

After all, Whittemore and Lowe are one of the world's most brilliant classical pianist teams—and combining their talents with country music wasn't exactly a first class idea as they saw it.

"Jack, right off the bat, said 'No way.' We knew of the Nashville Sound and thought there's no way we could do that with our nine-foot grand pianos," recalled Whittemore.

But the game musicians gave it a whirl anyway. And after three weeks of backbreaking 15-hour-a-day work they tested their new product on one of country music's finest artists.

The occasion was a country music awards dinner by SESAC, a nationwide song licensing firm.

"The response has just been unbelievable," said Whittemore, who's been playing professionally alongside Lowe for more than a quarter century.

Alice Prager, head of SESAC, conceived the idea. She asked Whittemore and Lowe to interrupt their concert tour briefly and try it out. Actually, it wasn't the first time the famous piano duo had taken a nonclassical form of music and added classical flavor to it. Their first attempt at such a venture was in 1946 with pop music. And they've been doing that ever since.

But they concede that country music presented a much different challenge.

"In the first place," said Whittemore, "the audience might think, 'Oh God, this is going to be something ricky-ticky'."

"It was very difficult to work out, but not because the notes threw us," said Lowe.

"We have to try to convey the emotion—that's in the country song and because most country songs are based primarily on lyrics it became a real challenge," Whittemore added.

At that moment, Lowe chimed in: "That's what we like about the country music and bluegrass we've heard. It's very direct and emotional."

Emotional was the precise description of the SESAC performance. After the two played "Honey," "Crystal Chandeliers," and "He Touched Me," the audience was visibly moved to tears.

So, not to keep everyone in a flue funk too long, Whittemore and Lowe quickly embarked on a version of "Jackson" that had the crowd snapping fingers and tapping feet.

"These are melodious tunes," said Lowe. "They're appealing and it doesn't matter who you are playing for."

"We'll continue doing this with the ones that are audience-tested and the ones we like," he continued.

Asked why he is hesitant in the beginning, Lowe explained: "At first I said this is all off. I was embarrassed that 'we might put our stamp on something that one day we might be ashamed of. It was artistic pride.'"

"It was three weeks before we began to think this is all right," Whittemore interrupted. "But once we applied our techniques then we were on easy street," said Lowe.

"Not easy street," Whittemore quickly added. "But at least we were on our way."

The idea behind the entire venture was to make one album for the Country Music Hall of Fame archives in Nashville.

"But what started out to be a noncommercial venture has turned into something that's going to be quite big," said Mrs. Prager.

She said she was not in a position, at this time, to divulge what the future plans are for the album.

"We don't know either," said Whittemore, "we're dying to find out ourselves."

Cheap Lottery In Puerto Rico

SAN JUAN (UPI)—For 48 weeks a year residents of Puerto Rico can participate in the government-operated lottery for as little as 25 cents. This buys a fraction of a $20 full ticket that can win as much as $100,000. But for four weeks of the year the drawing is called "The Big One," with fractions costing $1 and a full ticket $80. The top prize is $400,000.

Strict View On Strip Mining

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Thomas Harris, the new state Natural Resources commissioner, says he will interpret strictly the 27-degree limit for land that can be strip mined.

State law prohibits stripping on slopes with greater angle, but Harris said the lack of standard measurements has prevented proper enforcement.

The oldest fish known to mankind is the coelacanth, which scientists say swam the oceans more than 300 million years ago.

By THE JOURNALISM CLASS Homecoming activities and various field trips highlighted the past two weeks at North Pitt. To heighten enthusiasm and to boost the spirits of the players, Panther fans met Friday afternoon on the football field for the first Pep Rally of the year. After a brief introduction of the players by Coach Wilmer, the cheerleaders led the crowd in several rousing cheers. Despite cold weather, North Pitt fans gathered again Friday night for the Homecoming game and crowning of the 1972-73 Homecoming Queens. Seniors Phyllis Jenkins and Ellen Heath were crowned by last year's representatives, Susan James and Bernadine Jordan. Class Princesses attending the Queens were Patricia Crandall, Debra Parker, Debra Crawford, and Carrie Lou Shelton-Seniors; Debra Benjamin, Sophia Knight, Vickie Coward, and Brenda Pollard-Sophomores; Jacqueline Ballinger, Phyllis Spencer, Kathy Manning and Jimmie Sue Spain-Freshmen. Another half-time winner, was Les Keeter who won the drawing for the rifle. The touchdown made by Charles Young during the final minutes of play cinched the game for North Pitt and put the finishing touches on the Homecoming activities.

Field Trips
Field trips added variety to the past weeks' activities for several North Pitt classes. Mr. Leggett's Technical Drafting and Architectural Drafting students visited a construction site near Coakley recently to view modern methods of residential construction. Miss McNeil's Speech and Drama students visited the East Carolina Playhouse recently see a production of the musical "Fiddler on the Roof." The visit provided an excellent opportunity for the students to observe all facets of theatrical production.

On Thursday, Oct. 20 Lunette Coburn, Darrell Cogdell, Danny Dixon, Faryce Goode, and Miss McNeil attended a drama workshop at East Carolina University. The workshop focused on techniques and special problems of producing musical comedies. Mrs. Laura Richardson, Special Needs Counselor, also had a day away from school on Oct. 12. As a representative for North Pitt, she attended the Pupil Personnel Services Conference in Williamston. Methods of providing better guidance, medical social and psychological services were the topics of discussion. Dinner for the County Board of Education and Advisory Council members will be at North Pitt, Tuesday at 6:30. Arthur S. Alford, superintendent of Pitt County Schools, said it is an acknowledgement dinner for the services rendered by the local advisory councils and the men who have served on the Pitt County Board of Education since 1965. All members are asked to respond to the invitation by calling Alford's office (752-6106). Seniors have spent the week enjoying the first of their Senior privileges, going to lunch three minutes early. The Senior Lounge, a second privilege, is expected to open in the near future. North Pitt roster of the Student Task Force for October 25:

Farmville Leaf Market Closing On November 2

FARMVILLE — The Farmville tobacco market will end its 1972 selling season at the close of sales on Thursday, Nov. 2.

The market yesterday averaged $77.56 per hundred pounds when 446,396 pounds of leaf sold for $346,212. To date the Farmville market has sold 20,600,274 pounds of tobacco for $17,588,484, for an average per hundred pounds of $87.91.

According to Louis Williams, sales supervisor, the volume of sales was much lighter yesterday than on Tuesday. Williams said the volume is expected to decrease as the season draws to a close.

Offerings yesterday consisted of mostly variegated leaf and primings.

Zoning Bd. . . .

Doubts about giving commission sanction to any plan to pave in this manner without curb and gutter were expressed by Commissioner Earl Howell. "It is my feeling," he said, "that if this land is worth developing, it is valuable enough to go on and put down what is needed. It should be worth developing right."

Mrs. Trevathan and Councilwoman Mrs. Mildred McGrath both voiced concern about a road coming into Greenville Boulevard at a point very near another traffic light and near the Lynndale Subdivision.

"There would still be 300 feet between a traffic light at that point and the nearest existing light," Holliday explained. "This is the length of a normal city block."

Mayor West retained the thought that the possibility existed that the State Highway Commission would want to redesignate that stretch as part of N.C. 43 to provide a by-pass to avoid the heavy traffic at the intersection of 43 and Greenville Boulevard.

The mayor added that even if that possibility did not materialize, "I believe we can get an assurance from the developers that they will take care of the curb and gutter."

Holliday made reference to a clause that can be used to get a developer to execute a performance agreement or post bond in the amount needed to take care of curb and gutter additions on a post-development basis.

Watson, in his remarks on the subject, cited the subdivision regulation which includes provisions for all land involving the dedication of new streets. "I can see a lot of problems," he commented. "As far as I'm concerned, this has to be administered in a way that would apply equally to all."

Chairman Clark concluded discussions on this subject by stating "I should say that we make note we have been informed, that Horne (Charles Horne, director of Greenville Utilities) has said he is not yet ready to put in any facilities, that the 22 foot paving proposed would not obstruct putting in utilities. I don't see a need to take action."

A request by D. G. Nichols for a final plat of Section II of Oakhurst Subdivision was recommended for approval.

Rampants Host Bears For Homecoming

Lineman John Calhoun

After you've beaten someone 61-13, rolled up over 600 yards in rushing and done just about everything right, what do you do for an encore?

That's what's troubling Rose High School Coach Dave Bumgarner this week. The Rampants manhandled Raleigh's Enloe High School last week on those terms, but Bumgarner is somewhat worried about the effects of the game this week.

Friday night, Rose High School plays host to Division II foe New Bern, and it's Homecoming for the Rampants. Game time in Ficklen Stadium is 7:30 p.m.

"We didn't figure we'd have a second half like we did," Bumgarner said of last week's game. Rose went into the second half with a 35-7 lead, and Bumgarner figured that his team would relax a bit.

Apparently, however, they still had the game of two weeks ago on their minds. They went into halftime after a relaxed first half trailing the winless Vikings, 6-0. But they came roaring back to score 35 points in the second half to take the victory.

"We've scored 96 points in the last three halves," Bumgarner said. "That's a lot of scoring and a lot of offense."

He gave credit for much of the Rampant success to the offensive line. "They are getting better each week," the coach said. "They are learning to adjust to the different defenses and are blocking much better. This helps the backs to gain that yardage."

But at the same time, he praised the tough running of Reggie Perkins (1,031 yards so far) and Al Hunter (983), who rank 1-2 in the Division II rushing standings. "They hit the holes so fast that they're beyond a lot of tacklers before they recover from the line blocks."

"We're doing a lot of things right that come by experience," he said. "The unfortunate thing is that we had to fact the opposition early in the season," Bumgarner was referring to Wilson and Rocky Mount, the only two teams to have beaten the Rampants thus far, and that cost them a shot at the divisional title.

The coach said that if he tried to single out one player from the game it would be impossible. "Al and Reggie ran like pros in the secondary, but I can't give all the credit to them because of the line play. Keith Joyner did a good job blocking the backfield and Dean Phillips called a fine game."

Bumgarner also said that the defense did a fine job. "They are learning to pick up things better now. They can spot the tendencies by picking up plays from the formation they line up in. They seem to know what to expect."

The coach added that with a game like Rose played against Enloe it was possible to take about it and the statistics forever.

"But we can't do that. We've got another game this weekend," he said, "and it's important to us."

Bumgarner said that New Bern would be tough since they are a "family" team. "Roger Thrift (the New Bern coach) said at the start of the season that their team was going to be improved, and they've done a good job so far."

One of the keystones in the Bear offense is running back Eli Smith. "He's one of the best in the league," Bumgarner said. New Bern runs out of a modified wishbone that splits out one of the backs into a flanker or slot position. "They usually use their wingman as a blocker," the coach said.

Their quarterback, Dennis Stillely, is also a good thrower, and he has some good receivers, Bumgarner noted. "They have a well-balanced attack," he said. Defensively, Bumgarner isn't sure what to expect. "We've seen two films of their game," he said, "and they ran different defenses in both of them. We really don't expect to see either one of them but another designed to try and cut off our inside game."

The Rampants will be closing out their home season with the game. Only one other contest remains, a road game against unbeaten Goldsboro. Goldsboro and Wilson play Friday night in Wilson in the contest that may settle the conference championship. The winner will be in first place all alone after this week, but it may mean that Rose could affect the title still.

The starting offensive lineup for the Rampants has Ronnie Rasberry and Fred Lemmond at ends, Charlie Tyson and Maurice Sheppard at tackles, John Calhoun and Dave Matheis at guards, Phil Ragazzo at center, Dean Phillips at quarterback, Reggie Perkins at fullback, and Al Hunter and Keith Joyner at halfbacks. On defense, the Rampants will have Henry Bunn, Ronnie Moore, Lee Cherry and Mike Bryant on the front line, with Jackie Savage, George Price, Doug Causey and Mike Harris behind the line. Dickie Johnson, Hunter and Lemmond will be in the secondary.

History Against U.S.'s Protest

By HUBERT MIZELL
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. Olympic officials are assembling a massive protest of Russia's controversial basketball victory at the Munich Games, but admit chances are slim of overturning the gold medal result.

"History is against us," Arthur Lentz, executive director of the U.S. Olympic Committee, said today. "But we hope to prove a point for the good of future competition."

The protest is to be ruled upon by the International Olympic Committee's executive committee. The Russians got a disputed extra chance to score in the closing seconds of the basketball final at Munich and scored at the final buzzer for a 51-50 victory.

However, the United States claims it was wronged and that the game should have ended with the Americans taking a 50-49 verdict for their ninth straight Olympic title.

"We have depositions from four officials who worked at the scorer's table," said Lentz, "and each one backs our claims. Now, the referee says Russia should not have been given that chance to win."

Renato, Righetto of Sao Paulo, Brazil, the referee, said in a statement prepared for the U.S. Olympic dossier that Russia's triumph was "completely irregular and outside the rules."

He added, "If interpreters had been put at the scorer's desk, the timekeeper could have told the referees what was going on."

Righetto blamed the setting back of the time clock to three seconds on William Jones, secretary of the International Amateur Basketball Federation (FIBA).

The U.S. Committee's main gripe was against FIBA, which governs international basketball play including in the Olympic and Pan-American Games.

Lentz claimed FIBA and its full-time administrator, Jones, should be suspended from such activity until it is proven that "all nations are getting a fair shake."

He said it was futile to appeal to FIBA, "since he will find no court there."

Lentz said FIBA and Jones, an Englishman, tried to "wear down the favored Americans" in the 1971 Pan Am Games in Cali, Colombia, by putting the best three teams in the same bracket.

He added that FIBA and United States amateur organizations had been battling for years over American claims that they were being short-changed in international play.

NCAA Hands State Year's Probation

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The University of California at Berkeley, California State University at Sacramento and North Carolina State have been put on probation by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

St. John's University of Jamaica, N. Y., was reprimanded. The action against all four was taken Wednesday by the 18-member NCAA council.

meeting in Knoxville, for violating recruiting and other rules.

California had a previous probationary period extended to Feb. 1, 1975. It had been placed on probation Aug. 1, 1971.

California State was put on probation for two years and North Carolina State for one year, both effective Tuesday.

California was penalized for a series of violations, the most serious of which was a charge that two former assistant football coaches had arranged for two prospective athletes to be given fraudulent grades from a junior college.

Other violations included free tickets to a professional contest for its football team and improper financial assistance to athletes.

California State was disciplined for using three ineligible athletes in the 1971 NCAA College Division track and field championships and for erroneously certifying 13 athletes as eligible under the 1.6 grade point eligibility rule.

North Carolina State was set down because an assistant basketball coach participated in at least one informal basketball game with five prospective athletes and two prospects were given financial assistance to attend a summer school session.

St. John's was reprimanded for having a press luncheon last April 19 to announce the signing of two athletes.

Hearings on the alleged violations were conducted in Knoxville Tuesday.

Meanwhile, the council also voted to submit a proposal to the NCAA convention in January calling for the NCAA to adopt a drug-testing program for college athletes.

The council also will recommend to the convention that the 1.6 grade point requirement for recruiting athletes be relaxed. The council proposed that schools be allowed to give financial aid to athletes who project scholastic grades below that level, though they would not be allowed to practice or play during their freshman year.

Three months ago the NCAA also placed another Atlantic Coast Conference school, Duke, under one-year probation in a violation concerning the recruiting of David Thompson, currently a sophomore at N. C. State and one of the athletes whose recruitment was under investigation.

Duke also was barred from post season play for one year, meaning that its season and that of N. C. State will end with the ACC championship basketball tournament at Greensboro, N. C., next March. The conference tournament is regarded as part of the regular season. Should either N. C. State or Duke win the tournament, it will not be allowed to accept the usual NCAA tournament bid or play in the National Invitation Tournament at New York.

Thompson, a 6-foot-5 black from Shelby, N. C., was highly recruited as a high school star. As an N. C. State freshman last season, he averaged 35.6 points and 13.6 rebounds in leading the team to a 15-1 record.

The NCAA listed numerous violations in its investigation of the N. C. State case, some dating back to the summer of 1970.

The NCAA said in August, 1971, an N. C. State assistant coach took part "in at least one informal basketball game with five prospective student athletes, during which these young men revealed, demonstrated and displayed their abilities in the sport of basketball."

The NCAA also said that in the summer of 1970 N. C. State awarded financial assistance to two prospective student athletes in order for them to attend the second session of the institution's summer school.

He also charged that in June, 1971, a prospect remained on the N. C. State campus five days, "staying cost free in a dormitory room which was utilized at the time to house counselors in a summer basketball camp operated by the head coach."

The NCAA commented that the "head coach (Norman Sloan) and an assistant basketball coach were in a position to prohibit or avoid several of these violations."

ACC Commissioner Bob James, who attended the hearing in Knoxville, had investigated the matter last summer, after which the NCAA launched its probe.

The NCAA said that before N. C. State's probationary period ends next Oct. 24, its Committee on infractions will review the school's athletic policies and practices.

Sloan had no comment on the decision.

N. C. State Chancellor John T. Caldwell issued this statement in Raleigh: "At this point in the whole sequence of events I am compelled to say that we are disappointed with the verdict and penalty, but not at all surprised with this outcome. We conceded that certain circumstances suggesting possible violations unfortunately were permitted to occur. But our own thorough investigation of the numerous allegations revealed no violations of NCAA regulations in spirit or intent or fact. This was our position."

"The NCAA Council concluded otherwise and their conclusions determine the outcome just announced. I have no other comments at this time."

The NCAA noted it received "excellent assistance and cooperation from the university and ACC Commissioner James."

Leagues Will Realign Soon

The North Carolina High School Athletic Association has decided on the realignment of schools in the Pitt-Martins-Greene area for next year, pending final approval and appeals.

Rose High School, along with the current other five members of Division II, will form a new 4-A conference which will include a total of 11 teams.

Joining Rose, Wilson, Rocky Mount, Goldsboro, Kinston and New Bern, will be Northern, Nash, Northeastern (Elizabeth City), Jacksonville, Bertie Central and New Hanover of Wilmington.

Teams have until November 6 to file an appeal. If no one objects, conferences will be formed as set up by the NCHSAA.

Rose Athletic Director Bud Phillips said today that a meeting of the new conference members would probably be held sometime in November to make plans for the future. These would include scheduling in all sports, Phillips said that in all probability, some form of play other than a round-robin, as currently used, would be set up, basing titles on percentages.

None of the area teams in the Eastern Carolina (3-A) Conference would be moved. That conference, which includes 10 teams, will remain as it is presently. Area members include Ayden-Grifton, D. H. Conley, Farmville Central, Greene Central and North Pitt.

Robersonville, in the Tobacco Belt 1-A Conference, would shift to a new 2-A conference which would also include Elm City, Lee Woodard, North, South and West Edgecombe, Rock Ridge, Lucama, Saratoga, and North Johnston.

Williamston, now a member of the Albemarle Conference (2-A) would join the 3-A Northeastern Conference, to be made up of Ahoskie, Roanoke Rapids, Tarboro, Washington, Edenton and Plymouth.

Base-Stealing Wills Is Placed On Waivers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Maury Wills, the baseball player who broke Ty Cobb's stolen base record, was put on waivers by the Los Angeles Dodgers Wednesday.

Wills is 40 years old. The Dodgers said they offered him an instructor's job with the team. He was used little during the 1972 season, playing in just 71 games and batting .129.

He started with the Dodgers in 1959 but was traded to Pittsburgh in 1967 and Montreal in 1969 before returning to Los Angeles. His career batting average was .284.

Wills was best known as a baserunner. In 1962, he stole 104 bases, breaking Cobb's mark of 96. He stole 586 bases in his career.

He is one of the veteran black ballplayers who is often mentioned as the possible first black manager in the major leagues.

Under the major league waiver rule, he can be claimed until Monday, after which he would be a free agent able to negotiate his own contract.

Julian Javier, another veteran infielder, was put on waivers by the Cincinnati Reds for the purpose of giving him his outright release.

Shaw Chasing Gabe's Record

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

North Carolina State quarterback Bruce Shaw needs only 54 yards in Saturday's homecoming game against South Carolina to set a single-season passing record for the school.

He has 1,129 yards against the 1,182 set by Roman Gabriel in the 1960 season. Shaw has completed 69 of 113 attempts, six of them for touchdowns.

In the 42-13 victory over Wake Forest two weeks ago he passed for 294 yards, erasing Gabriel's single-game record set in 1960.

Duke will be looking for a .600 record and revenge in the game against Navy in the Oyster Bowl in Norfolk, Va. The Blue Devils, now 3-4, were heavily favored last year and built up a 14-0 lead. However, Fred Sturvek picked holes in Duke's pass defense in the last quarter, and Navy won 15-14 at Annapolis.

Navy is 3-3 this season and upset Air Force 21-17 last week. Duke also is fresh from a victory, 20-14 over Maryland, another Atlantic Coast Conference team.

The Virginia coach, Don Lawrence, said that the homecoming opponent, Maryland, has as good personnel in the skilled positions as we have faced. As a sophomore, Bob-Wellini is an outstanding quarterback. And he has great talent to throw to in Don Bunn, Fred Russell, Don Ratliff and Jamie Franklin. They also have a definite breakaway threat in tailback Louis Carter."

At Wake Forest, quarterback Kit Basler returned to full gear for the first time since he suffered a shoulder separation in the opening game of the season. However, physicians have not yet cleared him for the home game against Clemson. In scrimmage Wednesday, he alternated at quarterback with freshman Andy Carlton and senior Jim Ryan.

Clemson's quarterback, Ken Pengitore, had his finest day last week in the 37-21 victory over Virginia. He engineered the triple option to perfection as the Tigers moved the ball for 379 yards.

The ACC leader and defending champion, North Carolina, has an open date this week.

Cougars Snap Losing Skein

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Philadelphia 76ers wanted to break their six-game losing streak, but the Cleveland Cavaliers, with a seven-game losing streak of their own, had other ideas.

Cleveland, filling last place in the National Basketball Association Central Division, had to stave off a comeback by the 76ers for a 113-108 victory, their first of the season.

The 76ers, in last place in the Atlantic Division, fought back from a 101-88 score to pull within three points at 109-106, but Austin Carr, who finished the game with 35 points, scored the Cavaliers' last four to beat winless Philadelphia.

Fred Carter led the 76ers with 39 points while Lenny Wilkens had 25 for the Cavaliers.

In other NBA games, Milwaukee beat Buffalo 109-92, Baltimore whipped Detroit 115-105, Los Angeles topped Houston 112-107 and Atlanta edged Seattle 118-115.

In the American Basketball Association, it was Carolina 118, Denver 112 and Kentucky 116, Dallas 108.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Mickey Davis led a Milwaukee comeback. The Bucks had led by 14 points at the half but trailed 74-73 in the third quarter. Jabbar scored a total of 25 points in the game while Davis hit six in the crucial surge. Rookie Bob McAdoo hit 16 for Buffalo.

Wes Unseld netted 10 points and Dave Stallworth and Mike Davis eight each in a fourth-period Baltimore rally. The Bullets had trailed by 85-79 after three periods. Detroit's Curtis Rowe led all players with 28 points and Mike Riordan led the Bullets with 24.

Los Angeles also had to come back in order to beat Houston. The Lakers trailed by 10 points with 4:36 left but outscored the Rockets 17-2 the rest of the way. Jerry West had 33 points for the Lakers while Don Smith as 23 and Jack Marin 22 for Houston.

A seven-point burst by Atlanta in 1½ minutes in the last four minutes contributed to its victory over Seattle. Lou Hudson, who led the Hawks with 34 points, got a three-point play in the brief rally. Seattle, which trailed by 12 in the first half, came back to lead by 11 in the final period before Atlanta's spree. Spencer Haywood hit 33 points and John Brisker 22 for the Sonics.

Carolina also used a seven-point burst in the last period to thwart Denver's comeback. The Rockets trailed most of the game before pulling to 97-96 before the Cougar rally. Marvin Roberts of Denver led all players with 25 points while Joe Caldwell had 24 for Carolina.

Walt Simon came of the bench to score 15 points in the second half and spark Kentucky after Dallas had gotten within three points. Dan Issel finished with 29 points for Kentucky while teammate Artis Gilmore had 15 points, 25 rebounds and seven blocked shots. Collis Jones had 31 points for the Chaps and Rich Jones had 26.

NOW HEAR THIS! PITT COUNTY FARMERS FOR HELMS

News release, Raleigh, October 19, 1972 . . . U. S. Senate Candidate Jesse Helms today wired Agriculture Secretary Edrl Butz, expressing his concern over declining tobacco prices and urging the Secretary "to see what can be done about this deplorable situation."

Helms also wired the Secretary as follows: "Recent conversations with North Carolina tobacco growers lead me to believe that growers here are greatly concerned over the possibility of an increase in allotments for 1973. I urge you to take no action on any proposed quota increase without full consultation and agreement with North Carolina tobacco growers."

Jesse Helms is a man of great faith and strength of character. He was born and raised in a rural community . . . contrary to Mr. Galifianakis. He understands farmers and their problems. Again and again he has expressed his support of the Federal tobacco and peanut programs . . . and we believe him because you can trust Jesse.

We, the following farmers of Pitt County, strongly support Jesse Helms. We urge all farmers, their friends, and other citizens of Pitt County to vote HELMS FOR UNITED STATES SENATE on November 7.

Pace Has Slackened In Selective Service Offices

By WARREN L. NELSON
WASHINGTON (UPI)—During the era of youthful opposition to the Vietnam war and attacks on the establishment, Selective Service was right up front taking a large share of the flak, having its offices sacked and its records drenched in cow's blood.

Now the draft is being phased out. The pace of business at Selective Service headquarters, just a block from the White House, has slipped into routine and a number of employees who signed on in the turbulent days of draft reform are looking for more interesting jobs elsewhere.

"Nobody really cares about us anymore," one official said, clearly longing for the days when Selective Service employees thought they deserved combat pay.

The 4,000 draft boards around the country will not fold up next June 30 when the draft officially ends. They will remain in business doing almost everything they have done in the past—except to draft men.

Eighteen-year-olds still will be required to register. There will still be an annual draft lottery, and thousands of men with low numbers—perhaps as many as 100,000 each year—will be given physical exams just in case the draft should be needed again.

All this will continue because the Selective Service law does not expire next summer. That law is permanent legislation. What does expire is the authority to order men into uniform.

Machinery Will Continue
Should something unforeseen happen to send U.S. troops off to war again, the draft machinery would still exist and could deliver men as soon as Congress passed the necessary legislation.

The remaining worry at Selective Service headquarters is that young men, figuring conscription is part of history, will neglect to take the time to see they are classified properly.

"Suppose a kid's the sole support of his mother and thereby eligible for deferment, but he doesn't tell his draft board about it," one official said.

"Then he could find himself in the trenches fighting in the Great Cucamonga War of 1974." "In other words," he said, "the problem we'll have is apathy. Guys may not even bother to register. And unless this system works, it's a waste of money—and it can affect national security if we are lulled into believing we have a workable standby draft."

In 1970, President Nixon tabbed Curtis W. Tarr to head Selective Service, shoving aside Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, the man who designed Selective Service as an Army major in the 1930s and then headed it from its inception in 1940.

Tarr came in with a band of young reformers and a mandate to give Selective Service a new image and a new substance.

The change has been substantial. The switch to a lottery system as a means of choosing those who must serve has been the most visible change, along with the end of deferments that often gave smarter and wealthier men a way out.

Back in 1966 almost a quarter of the 16,000 unsalaried men who served on local draft boards were over 70 and 12 were over 90. Now no one is over 70.

In 1966 no one was below 30 and only 5 per cent were in their 30s. As of July a quarter of the 20,000 board members were 39 or younger, including 656 aged 18 to 29.

Most Visits Not Real Emergency

NEW YORK (UPI)—Visits to hospital emergency departments have increased 312 per cent since 1954, but the nature of the visits has changed. Catherine O'Boyle, assistant director for adult emergency services at Bellevue Hospital Center here, says most emergency department visits today are not classified as real emergencies.

Reporting in the American Journal of Nursing, official publication of the American Nurses' Association, Ms. O'Boyle said more and more persons are using hospital emergency services for primary health care.

Church To Hold Singing Program

The Full Gospel Travelers of Elizabeth City will be featured at a singing at the United Church of God Sunday at 2 p.m. Other singing groups also will be heard. The public is invited.

In 1966 only 1.3 per cent of the board members were black. Now 10 per cent are black—close to the 11 per cent that Negroes form in the general population. Oriental, Indian and Spanish-speaking minorities have gone from 1.7 per cent to 5.6

per cent. And there are 874 women serving where there were none six years ago. The role of the local boards has diminished considerably now. The only real discretionary authority they have in determining who shall be granted conscientious objector status or declared free of any obligation because of personal hardship, such as being the sole support of one's mother. Local boards now must be prepared to give the registrant written reasons for turning down a request. In the past it was hard to appeal because the registrant did not even know why his request had been denied.

Pressures Schools To Include Contemporary Music

By ALAN WILSON
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The vast majority of the nation's schools stress a form of music which to many people is out of beat with what the masses enjoy.

There's Beethoven, Bach and that renowned old marcher, John Phillip Sousa—all being taught thoroughly in virtually every music education department in the nation.

Their music obviously has irreplaceable merits. But what about the merits of contemporary popular music? The rock, soul, country, gospel, modern folk and jazz? Is it worth teaching on a mass scale?

Most schools—from elementary through college—think not. But for the past year, Henry Romersa has been trying to bridge the gap between music education and commercial music.

As national coordinator of the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences Institute, Romersa is trying to educate college administrators to what's happening in the world of modern music. He says the music curriculum should be revamped to include commercial music.

"Commercial music has long been the black sheep as far as traditional music faculties are concerned," Romersa says. He adds, "The biggest problem is that 99 per cent of the traditional music faculties are in no way equipped to teach commercial music."

"What I'm saying is, don't eliminate the classical, but include the rock."

He's meeting strong disagreement, primarily from music educators who believe that music education is, indeed, changing and being modernized. They say it can't happen overnight.

There are two institutes that try to be guiding vehicles for music education. One of them, the Music Educators National Conference, has 60,000 members and is well established. The other, the NARAS Institute, is two years old and struggling.

The NARAS Institute is a nonprofit organization which seeks to plant certain music courses—many of them stressing modern music—in colleges. Charles Gary, 54, executive secretary of MENC, says that the conference has been promoting forms of commercial music for five years.

"It's illogical to have all this music activity going on that all these kids are interested in and not relate to it," Gary says. "But the people calling the shots are apt to be the traditional persons who haven't had contact with the younger kids."

Herb Henke, 41, chairman of the music education department of Oberlin in Ohio, said, "One problem is that if we educate future teachers from today's style of music, that isn't the music they'll be dealing with because music changes so rapidly. So we have to go a step further and teach them to deal with all kinds of music."

One of the nation's most renowned music educators, Irving Wolfe, who taught for 31 years at Peabody in Nashville and is now retired at 69, says he would like to see more commercial music in the curriculum "but not without including the great music of the past."

"I would like to have youngsters listen to rock music, learn its characteristics and choose what they like best in terms of their understanding of rock music," Wolfe says. A music sociologist from Vanderbilt in Nashville, Richard Peterson, 39, sides with Romersa and says the traditional music educators feel threatened by modern music. "They're supposed to be educators but the kids are rejecting formal teaching and want to learn from each other and records." Interviews with several students at Peabody, which has one of the nation's more progressive music schools and offers a commercial music course, evoked these comments:

"If I could make any one change in the college music education course, I would add being able to major in commercial music—something that would offer creative writing, music history, marketing, copyrighting, performance rights and production and studio techniques." "Some basic fundamentals can be learned by studying the traditional stuff." "I would put commercial music in the curriculum as part of the required courses because it's an area of music where professionals are involved."

"Commercial music courses are not designed to get someone in the commercial music field. And I don't think they should be or could be. But the commercial music course helps because it tells you some of the things that are out there and some of the things that will rip you off." Romersa flatly states: "Music education has not succeeded in this country. Music education is not geared to handle large masses of people because it's too expensive. When it deals with the masses it breaks down."

Vote Slated On Vietnam Bonus

LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—Michigan voters will decide whether to approve a $266 million bonding issue for Vietnam era veterans in November.

If approved, the plan would provide a one-time $500 bonus for all veterans who served in combat duty during the Vietnam war and would provide a bonus of $15 per month up to a ceiling of $360 for veterans who served in non-combat areas.

Tried To Honor Statesman

GRIFFIN, Ga. (UPI)—Georgia tried three times to honor Thomas Spalding, a framer of the Constitution and an early statesman.

First a lake was named for him, but it dried up and disappeared. Then a town bearing his name was started, but it soon died.

Finally, in 1851, Spalding County was created and named for him. It still bears his name.

Older Coeds Find Dramatic Impact In College Life

By LYNNE OLSON
Associated Press Writer
Growing numbers of women returning to the campus after marriage and children are finding that college means more than a return to tests and textbooks. It can often mean unsettling and dramatic changes in family life.

526,000 women were enrolled in classes. That compares with 238,000 in 1964 and 47,000 in 1950.

No figures are available for women ages 35 and over, but a Labor Department spokesman said she believed the growth rate was similar.

A variety of reasons for going back to school emerged in interviews on several college campuses around the country.

Many of the women are housewives with diminishing home responsibilities who want to start on or complete college degrees and embark on professional careers. Others go back for intellectual stimulation and self-enrichment.

"I think I'm quite a different person after coming back to college," said Carol Herman, a 37-year-old mother of three studying for her bachelor's degree at Sarah Lawrence College in Bronxville, N.Y. "My whole sense of values and priorities has changed."

"The average woman who gets married at an early age is limited in her intellectual and emotional growth. When she goes back to school, she often starts changing her ideas, becomes more independent and widens her experiences."

"It can be very painful and can create a strain on a marriage. You're not the same woman your husband married."

Counselors of returning women say most of them have encouraging, supportive husbands and that many develop closer ties with their families. But if a marriage is bad, the counselors agree, a woman is usually able to accept the fact and end it.

All the women interviewed said they had developed a greater sense of self-worth and independence as a result of returning to school.

"Coming to school is frightening to these women," said Elizabeth Minnich, director of the Sarah Lawrence Center for Continuing Education, which encourages older women to go back to school.

"They're afraid they're not going to do well. Some have told me, 'All my life, men have told me I'm dumb. So I must be.' Well, they find out they're not, and it can be a great shock for them as well as for their husbands."

Many of the women interviewed said their husbands had assumed a role separate from the family. Jean Campbell, director of the University of Michigan Center for Continuing Education of women, said, "Even supportive husbands don't feel quite as supportive in some circumstances, particularly when their wives have to study and don't seem to have time for them." Anne Truax, director of the University of Minnesota Women's Center and the mother of five children, said she got a di-voice as the direct result of going back to school to get her B.A. Now a doctoral student, she says, "My ex-husband was not able to accept anything but a traditional wife who did the housework and took care of him and the kids."

Mrs. Truax retained custody of the children, three of whom now attend the university with her.

Most of the women said once their husbands got used to the idea of their being back in school, they were delighted with the results.

The women said they developed closer relationships with their children, especially their teen-agers, as the result of the exposure to young students and the common denominator of being in the classroom.

"I've learned to accept my children as individuals and vice-versa. We have a lot in common as students," says Judith Kierstead, 34, a mother of four who is studying for her bachelor's degree in music at the University of Michigan.

Like most of the other women interviewed, Mrs. Kierstead said she had delegated many household responsibilities to her four children, ages 7-12, because of her lack of time.

Attending classes with younger students meant colliding head-on with such moral and social issues as sexual freedom, abortion, homosexuality, the Vietnam war and smoking marijuana, the women said.

Most said they could not accept for themselves what many termed the "new ideas," but they could accept the young people who were practicing them.

"The kids in my classes were very open about living together and smoking pot," said Nanelle Russ, mother of eight children. "That's not my moral code but I wasn't turned off. They're my friends."

"Some of my friends adopted the attitude of 'Going back to school is outrageous. How dare you?'" says Margot Silverman.

Old Salem Tour Slated By Historical Society

Arrangements have been completed for a tour by members and guests of the Pitt County Historical Society to Old Salem Saturday, Nov. 4. The chartered Carolina Trailways Bus will depart from the Greenville Bus Station at 7 a.m. and will return that evening at approximately 8 or 9 o'clock. Dr. Ralph Hardee Rives, program chairman of the Historical Society, said the cost of the tour will be $11 for the transportation, plus $2.50 for the two and one-half hour guided tour of the Old Salem buildings. Members will also pay for their lunch, which will be served in the Salem Tavern in which the Restored Salem area and which will feature traditional Salem menus.

In the afternoon, the tour members will have tea and light refreshments at the Tavern Arbor for which there will be a fee of 50 cents.

Also to be included on the tour, will be a visit to the Museum of Early Southern Decorative Arts which is located adjacent to the Old Salem Restoration. This museum, according to Dr. Rives, is a unique collection exhibiting the furniture, metalwork, textiles, ceramics and art of Maryland, Virginia, the Carolinas, Georgia, Kentucky and Tennessee from the 1600's to 1820. The museum, known by its initials—"MESDA"—was opened in 1965 so as to bring to light those arts and antiques produced in the South from the 17th to the early 19th centuries. The visit to the MESDA display of some 15 period settings will be an additional $3.50 and will be optional for the tour participants.

The tour is open to members of the Society and to non-members. In order to make a reservation, a check for $11 (to cover the transportation only) made out to "Ralph H. Rives, Tour Director," should be mailed to Dr. Rives at 309 Lewis Street, Greenville, before noon on Nov. 1. No reservations will be accepted after that date.

Eagles Converging On Montana

By ROBERT WELLER
WEST GLACIER, Mont. (UPI)—They are gathering now, one-tenth of the world's bald eagle population, to feast on the freshwater salmon heading upstream to spawn and die.

There is nothing else like it south of Alaska, with more than 300 eagles arriving annually like clockwork, eagle researcher Dave Shea says.

Shea is writing his master's thesis for the University of Montana on the eagles' fall migration to Glacier National Park.

Named the national bird in 1782, but unprotected by law until 1940, the bald eagle has found a haven in Glacier.

The relative safety may be one reason they come here, Shea says. The northern bald eagle, a rare and endangered species, has been decimated by bounty hunters reacting to the eagle's alleged threat to salmon fisheries elsewhere.

The eagles' suffering has even made it into protest music: "Sing to the following eagle, helicopter fly ... chase him round the mountain, chase him 'till he dies. They say that it's good sportin' shooting 'em on the wing, above the roaring clatter you can hear your rifle sing."

Protective Measures
But here the National Park Service is looking after the eagle. This year the NPS has come up with a management plan aimed at allowing park visitors to view the giant birds without disturbing them and without running into grizzly bears, also feeding on salmon.

Ancient Rhino Bones Uncovered

MOSCOW (UPI)—Archaeologists digging in the Republic of Kazakh have uncovered the jawbone of a rhinoceros that roamed the Central Asian steppes about a million years ago.

The jaw, the first part of this type of animal found, had eight well-preserved teeth out of 10, said the Soviet news agency Tass. Paleozoologists said the prehistoric animal was 15 feet long.

The Glacier eagle migration is relatively new. Shea says it started back in 1926 when salmon, not native to Glacier, were planted in Flathead Lake downstream from the park.

In 1935, 15 to 20 bald eagles, distinguished from more predatory golden eagles by their white head and tail and unfeathered legs, had arrived. "Bald" means white-headed, not bare-headed.

The number of eagles on hand for the salmon run has increased ever since 1935, although the park had always been home to a few bald eagles and some golden eagles. In 1970, the eagle migration reached a peak when 373 birds were identified in one day.

By early October nine eagles had been sighted in Shea's weekly canoe census. The bulk of the population doesn't arrive until November.

An Awesome Sight
With a wing span up to eight feet, the bald eagle is an awesome sight swooping down on its prey. Unlike the diving ducks who also feed on the salmon, the eagle picks up dead or dying fish on the surface.

getting only its talons wet. The eagles pick off a single one-pound salmon at a time. Many people believe eagles can fly off with deer or even humans in their talons, but the Audubon Society says they can lift only a few pounds.

This fall visitors, fishermen included, won't be allowed to walk the banks of salmon-filled Lower McDonald Creek and park and the normally snow-covered roads will be kept open until the eagle show ends late and they must throw all fish in November or early December. Fishermen disturb the eagles, Shea said, and their fishy litter can frighten eagles away and attract bears.

For park visitors who want to look at the eagles in safety, two observation posts on bridges will be set up. And a blind will be maintained for serious photographers.

Both eagle observation posts are a short distance inside the Lower McDonald Creek and park and the normally snow-covered roads will be kept open until the eagle show ends late and they must throw all fish in November or early December. Fishermen disturb the

N.C. Republican Ticket Receives Agnew Support

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — The North Carolina Republican ticket received the support of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew for the second time in a month, and caught the epithets of a band of noisy hecklers at a rally Wednesday.

Senate candidate Jesse Helms, gubernatorial candidate Jim Holshouser and more than half of the congressional candidates in the state beamed from the platform of Charlotte's Park Center as Agnew endorsed them one by one.

single out for special attention, coming to Agnew's side in the glare of the television lights to have their hands raised over the Vice President's head before a crowd of about 2,000 Republicans and a full complement of newsmen.

All the while, a group of about 60 hecklers tried to shout the speakers down. At times, young Republicans in the crowd responded with shouts and chants of their own giving the rally the atmosphere of a basketball game between bitter rivals.

Agnew's speech made clear that the visit was designed to boost Helms in particular. He included "a special word on the critical race for the United States Senate in this state," aimed at dispelling the contention of Democrat Nick Galianakis that Helms' record as a broadcast editorialist shows him to be anti-Nixon.

The President, Agnew said, could have used Helms' vote in the recent Senate battle to limit federal spending. "That issue will arise again," Agnew said. "And next time, my friends, I hope Jesse Helms will be in the Senate pitching for the President and the country."

Agnew, in the same words he used in Winston-Salem last month said Helms was a "sound thinker with a deep interest in national affairs." Galianakis, he said, was too liberal to "properly represent" North Carolina.

Holshouser, the Vice President said, "is going to do a great job as the next governor of North Carolina." He said the administration had "long valued Jim's public and political leadership."

Agnew also praised GOP congressional candidates Jim Martin and Jack Hawke. They are running in close races in the ninth and fourth congressional districts, respectively.

The Vice President was forced, however, to share the attention with the demonstrators. They were a vociferous minority whose shouts resounded in a hall with about 700 empty seats.

Angel Flight Is Marching Again On Saturday

The Drill Team from East Carolina University's General Chennault Squadron of Angel Flight participated in the Veterans Day Parade in Goldsboro Monday and is scheduled to march in an exhibition in Washington, N.C. Saturday.

The Angel Flight is an honorary service organization for college women and is an auxiliary of the Arnold Air Society — the Air Force ROTC cadet organization at ECU.

Angel Flight members participate in their own service projects and assist as hostesses at University, civic and Air Force ROTC functions. In addition, they participate in other patriotic, educational and charitable affairs.

The drill team consists of nine Angel Flight members.

Carrying signs saying "Nixon I don't Believe You," and "Young Voters for Death," the long-haired, dungaree-clad protesters shouted "What about Watergate?" and "Stop the killing," among other slogans.

One blew repeatedly on a whistle, the same tactic Agnew has used at other rallies to respond to heckling. This time, Agnew made few retorts and merely read his speech above the uproar.

The GOP countered with a singing group called the Sounds of America, which sang a song called "Hurrah, Hurrah, the U.S.A."

There were also about 100 young Republicans on hand, with the girls dressed in white straw bonnets wrapped in red, white and blue "Young Voters for the President" scarves.

This group tried to drown out the protesters, chanting "Four more years," and waving Nixon placards supplied them by the rally organizers.

After extolling the GOP slate in North Carolina, Agnew turned "parenthetically" to an attack on Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern and a recitation of some of the achievements of the Nixon administration.

True to the promise he made

Assault Report In Early Hours

Investigation is continuing in an assault reported about 2:20 a.m. today that occurred between Fifth and Ninth Streets on Cotanche, Chief Glenn Cannon reported.

According to the police official, Earl Elwood Penny, 22, of 405 South Village Dr. reported that someone struck him on the back of the head as he walked along Cotanche Street about 2:15 a.m.

Nothing was taken from Penny, Chief Cannon said. Penny was treated for head injuries at Pitt Memorial Hospital then released.

School To Hold Carnival Friday

FALKLAND — A Halloween carnival will be held at Falkland Elementary School Friday night.

Supper will be served at 6 p.m. Then the fun will be continued with bingo, dart-throwing, shopping at the country store, fortune-telling, fishing, and cake walks.

The school is located at Bruce.

last summer in Miami, Agnew's speech was devoid of alliteration and the rhetoric stuck mainly to issues.

He concentrated on comparisons between the Nixon and McGovern positions on busing and defense spending. "The President," he said, "believes in a strong national defense," while the military spending cuts proposed by McGovern would "leave us with nuclear retaliation as our only defense to a non-nuclear attack."

He said McGovern's position on busing was "What the hell difference does it make?" while the administration is "irrevocably opposed" to busing.

gains, particularly in the final days of the campaign.

Since 1940, with the exception of the presidential campaigns of 1956 and 1944, the candidate behind in mid-October subsequently gained anywhere from three to ten percentage points in the final two or three weeks of a campaign.

The following table shows the vote by groups in the latest survey, based on the choices of registered voters:

Less than one per cent. Today's results are based upon personal interviews conducted in approximately 350 scientifically selected localities with 1220 registered voters out of a total sample of 1516 respondents. Interviewing was conducted October 13-18.

This question was asked: If the presidential election were being held TODAY, which candidate would you vote for — McGovern, the Democrat, or Nixon, the Republican?

The trend in voter preference since the Democratic convention is revealed by the trial heat results reported below. The first measurement showed Nixon leading McGovern 56 to 37 per cent with 7 per cent undecided. McGovern lost strength following the Eagleton incident. The GOP convention gave Nixon a boost, while McGovern's strength remained about the same. In surveys since the GOP convention, however, McGovern has started to close the gap, as seen below:

Family fare.

Toyota Corona 4-Dr. Sedan

Families usually require more of everything. Including doors. And the Corona sedan gives you four. Plus a back seat that's really a back seat. When you add the optional automatic transmission, you also get a front seat that stretches the full width of the car. In all, you get a big-car feeling at a small Toyota price.
