

Wholesale Prices See Slight Drop

By NEIL GILBRIDE
AP Labor Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices of a broad range of industrial raw materials, food, and manufactured goods declined an average of two-tenths of one per cent last month, the first drop in 13 months, the government said today.

The wholesale price report, the last before Tuesday's presidential election, said farm products declined 2.4 per cent, largest drop since an equal decline in September 1971.

Industrial raw materials decreased an average of one-tenth of one per cent and prices of finished consumer goods ready for retail sale declined five-tenths of one per cent, the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics reported.

On a seasonally adjusted basis, the bureau said, over-all wholesale prices rose one-tenth of one per cent, smallest increase on that basis in eight months.

The decline in farm products on a seasonal basis was 1.5 per cent and the seasonal decline in finished consumer goods was figured at two-tenths of one per cent.

The over-all actual decline brought the wholesale price index down to 120.0 of its 1967 base of 100. This meant it cost wholesalers on the average $120 last month for every $100 worth of goods five years ago.

The report said the index was 4.9 per cent above a year earlier.

The decline, the report said, was largely due to a slow-down in the rise of wholesale food prices that peaked in July. In the past three months prices of farm products, processed foods and animal feeds slowed to an annual rate of 9.8 per cent compared with 13.1 per cent the previous three months.

The report said the over-all rise of 4.9 per cent in wholesale prices in the past year compared with a 5.2 per cent annual rate in the nine months before President Nixon first imposed a wage-price freeze and then followed it with less stringent economic controls.

In the 14 months since the beginning of the presidential controls, the bureau said, wholesale prices have risen at an annual rate of 4 per cent.

Rushing Gear To Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — The United States is rushing millions of dollars worth of military supplies to South Vietnam in a crash program to beat the signing of a cease-fire agreement.

For the first time the South Vietnamese are getting four-engine C130 transport planes.

Both the U.S. Command and the 7th Air Force refused to discuss the military aid program. But informed sources said it goes well beyond the equipment originally planned for in the Vietnamization schedule.

The draft peace agreement, which calls for withdrawal of all American troops from Vietnam within 60 days of signing, stipulates that the United States can replace existing military equipment only on a one-to-one basis with weapons of the same characteristics or of similar characteristics and properties, under international supervision.

Anticipating the agreement will be signed soon, the Pentagon is sending scores of transports into Saigon from bases in the United States carrying military equipment including armored personnel carriers and 1.3 million Chinook helicopters.

Five of the C130s, the work horse of the Vietnam war, arrived at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut Air Base Thursday. They were the first to be turned over to the South Vietnamese air force.

More C130s are scheduled to arrive soon for Saigon's air force, which has had only twin-engine C123 transports. They carry 24,000 pounds of cargo or 60 fully equipped troops; the C130s can handle more than 36,000 pounds or 92 fully equipped troops.

Viet Cong Bring Up Old Demand

PARIS (AP) — The Viet Cong today renewed an old Communist demand for the liquidation of all American military bases in South Vietnam.

There was no mention of U.S. bases in the summary of the proposed cease-fire agreement published by Hanoi two weeks ago, and it was assumed the Communists had dropped the demand in return for American abandonment of the demand for withdrawal of Hanoi's troops from South Vietnam.

Seven Students Injured As Car Failed On Curve

WINTERVILLE — Seven Rose High School students were injured in a one-car accident on the Old Tar Road south of here Tuesday at 10:04 p.m.

Trooper G. B. Russ, who investigated the accident, listed the injured as Ronnie Faulkner, 18, the driver; John R. Stanfield, 18; Gary Hall, 17; Susan Hall, 15; Alma Lee Hearndon, 14; Karen Smith, 14 and Julie Keeping, 14. As of this morning at 9 a.m., all except Stanfield and Miss Keeping were listed as patients at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Russ said Faulkner apparently lost control of the car when it ran off the road in a curve. The car overturned. No charges have been made and investigation is continuing, Trooper Russ said.

Would 'Accept' Drug Use On A Limited Basis

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federally financed private study describes the government's drug-abuse-prevention program as burdened with failure and scare tactics, and suggests official acceptance of limited narcotics use.

The three-volume study was compiled over a year's period by Macro Systems Inc., and cost $300,000. It has been kept under wraps since June by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The report said the "crisis atmosphere" surrounding prevention programs has resulted in "diffused objectives and goals, overlapping and duplication of effort, lack of consistent and long-range planning, and difficulty in assessing program effectiveness."

"In place of prevention as a reachable goal, drug use on the part of youth could be accepted—especially marijuana use."

The government, the report said, is "more likely to yield long-range positive results" by dropping its "failure-ridden quest for a youthful society free from drug use—a proposed idyllic island awash in a sea of alcohol, nicotine and legally prescribed drug-taking.

"A major finding supporting the adoption of this option relates to the fact that illegal drug use is endemic among the youth population and that the use of alcohol, tobacco and mood-altering drugs on the part of adults is also widespread," the report said.

"From a pragmatic point of view, a strong argument can be made stating that it is not within the capability of HEW or other drug education sources to reverse this tide," the report said.

About half the youth surveyed for the report confirmed that they used drugs, mostly in the form of marijuana, and they seemed to know more about drugs than the adults trying to discourage them.

The report suggested that "it might be more appropriate for drug-knowledgeable youths to be educating ill-informed and fearful adults rather than the reverse."

A spokesman for HEW said the study is "being critiqued" within the department, and no approval or rejection of the findings is expected before mid-November.

Galifianakis Has Ervin Support In Greenville Speech

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
The U.S. Senate campaign of Nick Galifianakis received a strong boost today as North Carolina's senior senator, Sam Ervin, offered his personal endorsement during a stop in Greenville.

Speaking on the courthouse grounds this morning, Ervin told a gathering that "I want you to elect Nick Galifianakis to the Senate for two reasons: one is sort of selfish, I don't want to lose my job as chairman of the Government Operations Committee; and the other is to keep Nixon from working his southern strategy."

"Nick has had 12 years of legislative experience. He has supported all of our crop programs for North Carolina. He has supported North Carolina industry and he will make a fine senator by reason of his experience," the veteran politician commented.

Ervin said that if President Nixon is reelected "then that's all the more reason why we should elect Democrats to the Senate and to the Congress because we have to have somebody up there to watch tricky Dick..."

The senator charged that Nixon "has been more opposed to the basic rights of individuals than any man who has been president of the United States since John Adams..."

"We used to look back upon the Warren J. Harding administration as the worst administration from the standpoint of public morality that this nation has ever known," he said. "But I'll tell you now, with the Watergate affair, with the wheat deal, with the raising of milk supports in return for $300,000 of campaign contributions, the people in charge of the Nixon administration make those in charge of the Warren Harding administration look like a bunch of pious Sunday School teachers in comparison."

Ervin contended that the Watergate affair needs to be aired, noting that "they caught five men redhanded burglarizing the Democratic National Headquarters. These men, or one of them received $114,000 that had been contributed to the reelection of President Nixon. And two White House aids have been indicted, making seven altogether."

SEN. SAM ERVIN

The senator continued, "I wrote the attorney general a letter and I said I don't understand why they don't try these five men caught redhanded in an act of burglary. I said, 'any lawyer who is capable of trying a case before a justice of the peace could prepare a case against those five men in not over 30 minutes and yet they won't bring those people to trial until after the election.'"

He said, "There is certainly something wrong in the administration in Washington and it's time for the people of the United States to see to it that enough Democratic senators and congressmen are elected...to see that Nixon does not continue the kind of administration and the kind of shenanigans that have been going on in Washington lately..."

Ervin said that Galifianakis' opponent, Jesse Helms is a good friend of his (Ervin's) but it would be foolish to vote for a man who would in turn vote for taking the chairmanships of several important committees away from southern Democrats and give them to people who live in Maine, North Dakota, Utah and Iowa under Nixon's "southern strategy."

Accompanying Ervin to Greenville this morning was Galifianakis' brother, Harry, who was campaigning in the congressman's behalf. Marcus Braswell of Battletown, who is heading the Farmers for Nick committee, was also on hand and made brief remarks to the courthouse gathering.

One Stop By Nixon

GREENSBORO (AP) — President Richard Nixon will make his stop at Greensboro at 2:15 p.m. Saturday, GOP gubernatorial nominee Jim Holshouser said today at a news conference.

Holshouser said he had contacted the White House this morning. He said Nixon's stop would last about 30 minutes and would be limited to the Greensboro-High Point-Winston-Salem Airport. The stop will precede a trip by Nixon to the West Coast. "It is particularly gratifying to me to see the President coming three days before the election," Holshouser said. "I know how and why last minute visits are made."

Holshouser, noting that Nixon's time was limited, said the President stops only where last minute effort can make the difference in a campaign.

Demo Chairman Avers Helms Trying Mislead Voters By Old Quotes

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina Democratic Chairman Jim Sugg says Republican Senate nominee Jesse Helms is using old statements from Democratic office holders "in an apparent attempt to mislead the voters into believing they are supporting the Helms candidacy."

Sugg told a news conference in Raleigh Wednesday that Helms is using "deceptive campaign tactics." Sugg also held press conferences in Greenville and Wilmington.

The Democrat accused Helms of using the names, words and photographs of Democratic office holders without their prior knowledge or consent.

He said "most of the comments Mr. Helms is using in his campaign literature were solicited in his behalf for a testimonial six years ago."

Sugg said Helms "renounced the Democratic party two years ago, but now that he has become a candidate, he is making widespread use of the names of our good Democratic office holders to promote his candidacy as a Republican."

"These earlier statements by Democratic office holders," Sugg said, "have no connection whatsoever with the Helms campaign for Senate—nor were they ever intended to."

Sugg said, "Even though Mr. Helms knows full well that these office holders are supporting Nick Galifianakis, he continues to use their out-of-context statements in an apparent attempt to mislead the voters into believing they are supporting the Helms candidacy."

He added, "I think Mr. Helms' flagrant use of these misleading campaign tactics raises serious questions as to his credibility as a candidate for the highest legislative office in our nation."

Helms said in response: "On this campaign literature it is clearly stated these statements should not be construed as political endorsements...I understand they meant them then and I assume they do now."

Tobacco Marts Moving Into Their Final Days

The final sales day for the Wilson tobacco market will be held Thursday, Nov. 9.

The Farmville market held its final sale today and the Rocky Mount market will end the 1972 season after Monday's sale.

The Wilson market yesterday averaged $78.56 per hundred pounds after selling 339,570 pounds of tobacco for $266,780.

The Rocky Mount market sold 115,771 pounds of leaf for $88,242 for an average of $76.22 per hundred pounds.

The volume of sales yesterday was heavier on the Farmville market than on Tuesday.

According to Louis Williams, sales supervisor, the offerings on the Farmville market consisted of more poor grades and damaged tobacco than any other day this year.

An unusually large volume of quality lugs was reported for this late in the season.

The Farmville market sold

116,133 pounds of leaf for $88,114, giving an average of $75.87 per hundred pounds.

To date, the Farmville market has sold 20,746,831 pounds of tobacco for an average per hundred pounds of $87.56.

To date, the markets in the Eastern Belt have sold 320,444,936 pounds of tobacco for $279,908,617, for a seasons average per hundred pounds of $87.35.

Blue Collar Vote Said Key To Senator McGovern's Problems

By GEORGE GALLUP
Copyright, 1972, Field Enterprises, Inc. All rights reserved. Reproduction in whole or part strictly prohibited, except with written consent of the copyright holders.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 1 — The nation's blue collar workers — representing 40 per cent of the electorate and the core vote for all Democratic presidential aspirants — are largely responsible for the fact that Senator McGovern trails Nixon by the current wide margin of 59 to 36 per cent. But the blue collar group also represents McGovern's best hope for narrowing the gap in the final days of the campaign.

At this late stage in the race, McGovern is receiving a smaller percentage of the vote of manual workers than any other Democratic presidential candidate since 1936, when scientific polling was first introduced. Only in the Eisenhower landslide of 1956 did manual workers fail to give the Democratic candidate a majority of their vote.

If McGovern were to receive what has been the average vote accorded Democratic candidates by manual workers in elections during the last four decades, the current presidential race would be much closer — approximately 54 per cent for Nixon to 46 per cent for McGovern.

Blue Collar Vote Is Fluid

Despite McGovern's trouble in attracting blue collar workers, the vote of this group has been more fluid than the vote of most other groups and McGovern had managed to win back many blue collar people since the start of the campaign in early September. The final days of the campaign could see a continued return to the fold of these traditionally Democratic voters, who represent the largest voting bloc in the electorate.

Actually McGovern's success in narrowing the gap nationally — by six points since the start of the campaign — has been largely due to his winning back manual workers to their more traditional Democratic voting pattern. In a late August survey, conducted at the start of the campaign, Nixon held a wide 63 to 28 per cent lead over McGovern among manual workers. In the latest survey, Nixon's lead is 49 to 44 per cent with this group.

While manual workers as a whole favor Nixon, certain important population segments within this group favor McGovern. For example, a major difference is seen between the preferences of skilled and unskilled manual workers, with each group representing approximately half of the total blue collar group. The skilled workers include electricians, plumbers, mechanics, machinists, etc. Unskilled workers include assembly line workers, construction laborers, longshoremen, etc.

Skilled workers as a group are 5-to-3 on Nixon's side at the current stage of the race — to the same degree, in fact, as such traditionally Republican groups as business and professional people.

The Nixon orientation of the skilled worker group is explained in part by the fact that many in this group are in the higher income brackets, and, in fact, are becoming a segment of the "affluent society." The latest survey indicates that almost four in ten skilled workers have a yearly income of $10,000 or over.

In contrast, unskilled workers prefer McGovern over Nixon by a fairly wide margin. This preference for McGovern among the unskilled is due in large measure to the high percentage of blacks in the unskilled worker population. Black manual workers, like the total black population, favor McGovern overwhelmingly.

The following table shows the vote for the total blue collar groups and by skilled and unskilled workers:

	Nixon	McG.	Undec.
Total blue collar	49	44	7
Skilled	60	34	6
Unskilled	41	51	8
Membership in labor unions has little influence on the candidate preferences of the nations blue collar workers, with those belonging to unions no more in favor of McGovern than non-

Should Young Girl Marry Older Man?

By Abigail Van Buren

(c 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I am a 19-year-old girl and everyone tells me I have a beautiful face, but I am very, very heavy, and I've been this way all my life. I've tried every kind of diet imaginable, but have never lost more than 20 pounds, which I always put right back on, so I've decided to give up dieting.

I've never dated much, but I didn't let it make me miserable. I have a good bookkeeping job, read a lot and do beautiful needlework.

My problem: I am going with a 54-year-old man who wants to marry me. Before you say he is too old for me, please finish this. He's a widower with married children who think I'm the greatest. He loves me and says he likes me just the way I am. He would be a good provider, and I wouldn't have to work, but he says I could if I wanted to. We like the same things [we're both homebodies] and I know we could be happy together.

My parents are against him because he's older than my father. Abby, if being treated well can make a girl love a man, I know I could learn to love him. We have never been intimate. [He hasn't even tried.]

Should I marry him? Who else would want a girl who is 100 pounds overweight?

UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: A girl who marries a man, hoping to "learn to love him" is risking a lot. That is not to say that only couples who are wildly in love can be happy. [Many are.] But your reason for wanting a 54-year-old man at age 19, ["who else would want me?"] is a weak one. I vote with your parents. Don't rush into marriage. I urge you to make a sincere effort to lose that weight—then consider marriage. You have a lot to lose—but everything to gain.

DEAR ABBY: I hate getting chain letters, and wonder if you can tell me how to handle them. Someone once told me that chain letters involving money are illegal and I certainly don't want to get mixed up in anything like that!

Chain letters that don't involve money, but request a recipe, and make you feel guilty if you break the chain give me a pain-in-the-neck! I don't like to bother with them, and I certainly don't want to bother six more people with something I consider pointless and annoying. On the other hand, I don't want to hurt the feelings of the one who sent it to me.

UNCHAINED

DEAR UNCHAINED: I return it to the sender with a friendly note asking him to please include me out!

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 69700, L. A., CALIF. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

Cheese Torte Goes To Holiday Fair

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

Associated Press Food Editor

Milwaukee's annual Holiday Folk Fair is coming up (November 17 to 19) and we've just had a preview of one of the good dishes that will be offered there. This Folk Fair—the largest of the many Folk Fairs held throughout the country—is sponsored by Milwaukee's International Institute with the cooperation of 45 nationality groups and each group designs its own booth and decides which foods it will serve at the Fair.

We borrowed the Fair's recipe for Bavarian Cheese Torte and made it in our own kitchen. It is a delightful dessert but, if you try it, don't expect it to have the satin-smooth texture of a cheese cake made with cream cheese. This torte has the texture characteristic of the cottage cheese that goes into it.

BAVARIAN COTTAGE CHEESE TORTE

14 pieces (from a 6-ounce package) zwieback
2 tablespoons butter, soft
2 tablespoons sugar
1 pound dry cottage (pot) cheese, sieved
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 eggs
1 container (8 ounces) heavy cream
Rind and juice of 1/2 lemon

Household Hints

Putting bread in the refrigerator during humid weather will keep it fresh longer.

Put a little sugar in the boiling water before dropping in ears of corn.

Computer Keeps An Eye On Grammar To Assist Elementary School Pupils

By NADY LIPPMAN
Associated Press Writer
TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — About 100 fourth, fifth and sixth grade students at Tucson's Elvira Elementary School might as well forget about bringing apples to the teacher.

The teacher in this case is a computer, which has been assigned to teach them English grammar.

At the beginning of the program students will be given comprehensive grammar tests, which will be corrected by the computer. Depending on their scores children will begin working on lessons that Barbara Burrows is developing.

The students will work through a lesson, and then their answers will be fed daily into the computer which will provide the answer as to what the next step in the student's instruction should be.

"This is the first time computer managed instruction has gone on in Arizona," said Mrs. Burrows, who will help direct the program. "It will give the teacher a look at a child's specific problem, where we used to get only a general impression."

Mrs. Burrows said the children's daily work will be programmed into the computer which will then recommend either that a child go ahead to another skill level, be given an alternative way of approaching the same skill, or be started at a lower level.

The computer can also suggest various alternatives for the student to take in approaching this problem.

"This is a way of teaching skills that saves time for the student as well as the teacher," Mrs. Burrows said. "It will show if a student doesn't have to sit through something he already knows, and conversely, be puzzled by something day after day."

"It will give the student time to pursue specialized interests," she continued. "and that's why we believe it's not a cold way of teaching. Actually, it's making teaching more individualized."

The project will cost $30,000 for this first year and is federally funded.

"Although this is a pilot program using a University of Arizona computer, Mrs. Burrows said smaller towns may someday be connected to a central computer by means of a terminal. She said such plans are already in the planning stages in Tucson District One.

Other subjects are also being worked on for computer programming. Mrs. Burrows said mathematics will be next, and all skill areas and all grade levels are possible.

This year's experimental group was picked from what Mrs. Burrows called "average kids." They will be divided into fourth, fifth and sixth grades for administrative purposes.

But for the most part, they will be grouped according to skill levels, fluctuating according to the dictates of the computer.

"We're a traditional school here, with each grade having its own classroom," Mrs. Burrows said. "Using this system, we turn into an open school. We're getting away from the fixed classroom and into an atmosphere where students can move at their own pace."

Rallying To A Fellow Democrat

One might not think it, to read some of the political advertising, but Sen. Sam Ervin does support Nick Galifianakis for U. S. Senate. So does Sen. Herman Talmadge of Georgia.

So far as we know, most all of the true Democratic leaders in North Carolina and outside the state are in favor of Democratic nominee Nick Galifianakis' election to the U. S. Senate.

Sen Ervin, Sen. Talmadge and Congressman Wilber Mills are among outstanding southern Democrats who have publicly offered their unhesitating support.

Brock Expects Heavy Turnout

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH. — The voice at the polls on Nov. 7 may come closer than ever before to expressing the majority sentiments of North Carolinians.

Heightened participation is indicated by a heavy new registration and a high level of campaign activity, said Executive Secretary Alex Brock of the state board of elections.

Brock forecast a general election turnout of 1,768,233, a projection based on the assumption that 75 per cent of those registered will go to the polls.

"That may seem bold to many people," Brock conceded. "I believe it is a reasonable prospect, if it is logical to assume that those who took the trouble to register did so in order to vote."

The prediction, if realized, would compare with the previous record vote for the state of 1,587,493 in the 1968 presidential year.

From Jan. 1 until books closed on Oct. 10 in advance of the election, 374,709 citizens registered to vote. "It topped the record for any two previous years put together," Brock reported.

Young Voter Influx
A major reason for the influx was the lowered voting age. The newly enfranchised 18-to-20 year-olds accounted for 150,000 of the registration. Brock said. That represented slightly less than half the estimated 314,000 potential for the age group.

Parties and candidates mounted registration drives which swelled the number, although less than goals set.

Year-round registration, in effect statewide since 1970, also began paying off, Brock noted.

What the voter will find at the polling booth is a lengthy ballot, from White House to courthouse. At the top of the ticket is the race between President Nixon and Democrat George McGovern. The major state contests match Democrat Hargrove (Skipper) Bowles Jr. and Republican Jim Holshouser for governor, and Democrat Nick Galifianakis and Republican Jesse Helms for U.S. Senate, plus lieutenant governor and Council of State offices.

Congressional seats, state legislative membership, and county offices fatten the list of candidates.

Amendments On Ballot
In addition, voters will be called upon to decide five amendments to the state Constitution, and a number of local propositions. Bond issues or other proposals will be on the ballot in 15 of 100 counties, Brock said.

If that seems confusing for the Tar Heel electorate, it's nothing compared to the situation in some other states. California, for example, requires the printing in full of constitutional amendments on the ballot. "Their ballot looks like the Sunday newspaper," Brock remarked.

The Tar Heel vote will be tallied through 2,263 precincts, open from 6:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. That provides an extra hour of voting time from four years ago, Brock said, and should be a factor in encouraging a higher ballot total.

Sixty per cent of the voting will be by machines in 26 of the 100 counties, including major population centers. The election process will be operated through the efforts of some 10,615 workers, most of whom will put in a 16-hour day.

Unregistered Have Access
The unregistered and those away from home have access to the ballot box.

A provision of federal law permits citizens who neglected to register to vote for president, though not state offices. The North Carolina procedure required an application in person or by mail to the county board of elections by Nov. 1. The ballots will be cast and counted through the county elections office, to avoid confusion at precinct polling places.

The youth vote, including students away at college, is expected to increase the number of absentee ballots. Most counties have reported absentee activity up 20 per cent or more over the last general election, Brock said.

Who will benefit from the higher registration is the question to be answered in the voting.

Democrats outnumber Republicans by 1,729,436 to 541,900, but rampant ticket-splitting will dissipate that advantage. American Party registration number 7,164, while 79,129 Tar Heels are registered as independents or "no party."

The election is crucial for the American party, which won its standing four years ago with Gov. George Wallace of Alabama as its presidential candidate. It must poll at least 10 per cent of the vote for president of governor to keep a place on the ballot.

They do this because they recognize that Nick Galifianakis is thoroughly in tune with the moderate thinking that has for so long characterized the people of North Carolina. He has the interest of the people of North Carolina and the people of the South at heart as he seeks to serve them as a U. S. Senator.

At this difficult campaign for U. S. Senate draws to a close, there should be no question that outstanding Democratic senators and congressmen of the South are clearly supporting their fellow Democrat, Nick Galifianakis. No matter how much their names are picked up and used by the opposition, this fact will not change.

An Unfair Tax Needs Review By Congress

It is regrettable that a $2 boarding tax has been reinstated at Raleigh-Durham Airport.

No doubt similar taxes will be introduced at other airports. The way was cleared when President Nixon vetoed a bill that would have outlawed the tax.

This is an unfair tax and we sincerely hope that Congress will take another look at it next year.

N.C. Picture Gets Cloudier

By JOHN KILGO
RALEIGH — Politicians are heading down the home stretch in North Carolina with the outcome of many major races in grave doubt and the picture getting cloudier day by day.

Across the state politicians are arguing about how long and wide President Nixon's coattails will be in the Tar Heel state.

Charles Jonas Jr., who heads President Nixon's North Carolina effort, told me he feels Nixon is doing extremely well in the state and will be able to help other candidates like Jesse Helms and Jim Holshouser.

But a crusty Democratic politician, running for reelection himself, told me: "Nixon's going to win in North Carolina but he won't carry people with him. It's going to be the damndest ticket-splitting you've ever seen."

People are now beginning to argue just how big Nixon's expected victory will be in North Carolina. Some McGovern people say their man has made the race close in the state and stands to poll about 47 per cent of the vote.

If the race for President gets anything like that close in North Carolina, then you can bet the President's coattails won't have room for another soul.

But if Nixon should get around 60 percent of the vote in North Carolina, there are those in the Republican ranks who feel he'll take Helms with him to the Senate and Holshouser to the Governor's mansion.

Most politicians I've talked with in recent days seem to feel the gubernatorial campaign between Holshouser and Skipper Bowles has become a very rugged contest, too close to call at this point.

Holshouser seems to be getting momentum from unexpected places as the campaign swings into its last week. The Charlotte Observer, the largest newspaper in the state, surprised many people last Sunday when they gave Holshouser a strong editorial endorsement.

The endorsement itself won't mean whole lot. But the surprise of it makes the Republican seem even more like a possible winner and that could put people on his bandwagon.

Holshouser says he's pulled even with Bowles and will win.

The Bowles camp is not making a lot of noise about what the polls say. They claim to be happy with them and say they're still ahead.

You also must remember that Bowles didn't have much to say about the polls in his primary victory over Pat Taylor. Many people took that to mean Bowles was in trouble — but he kept his mouth shut to keep his supporters from taking a siesta. Sometimes when you have a lead it's better for your supporters to think you're in a little trouble. It keeps the sleeves rolled up.

If President Nixon is able to take anyone to office with him, it would seem logical that that person would be Jesse Helms, who is seeking the Senate seat of B. Everett Jordan.

A Nixon landslide in North by close because the Helms. Almost everyone agrees with that.

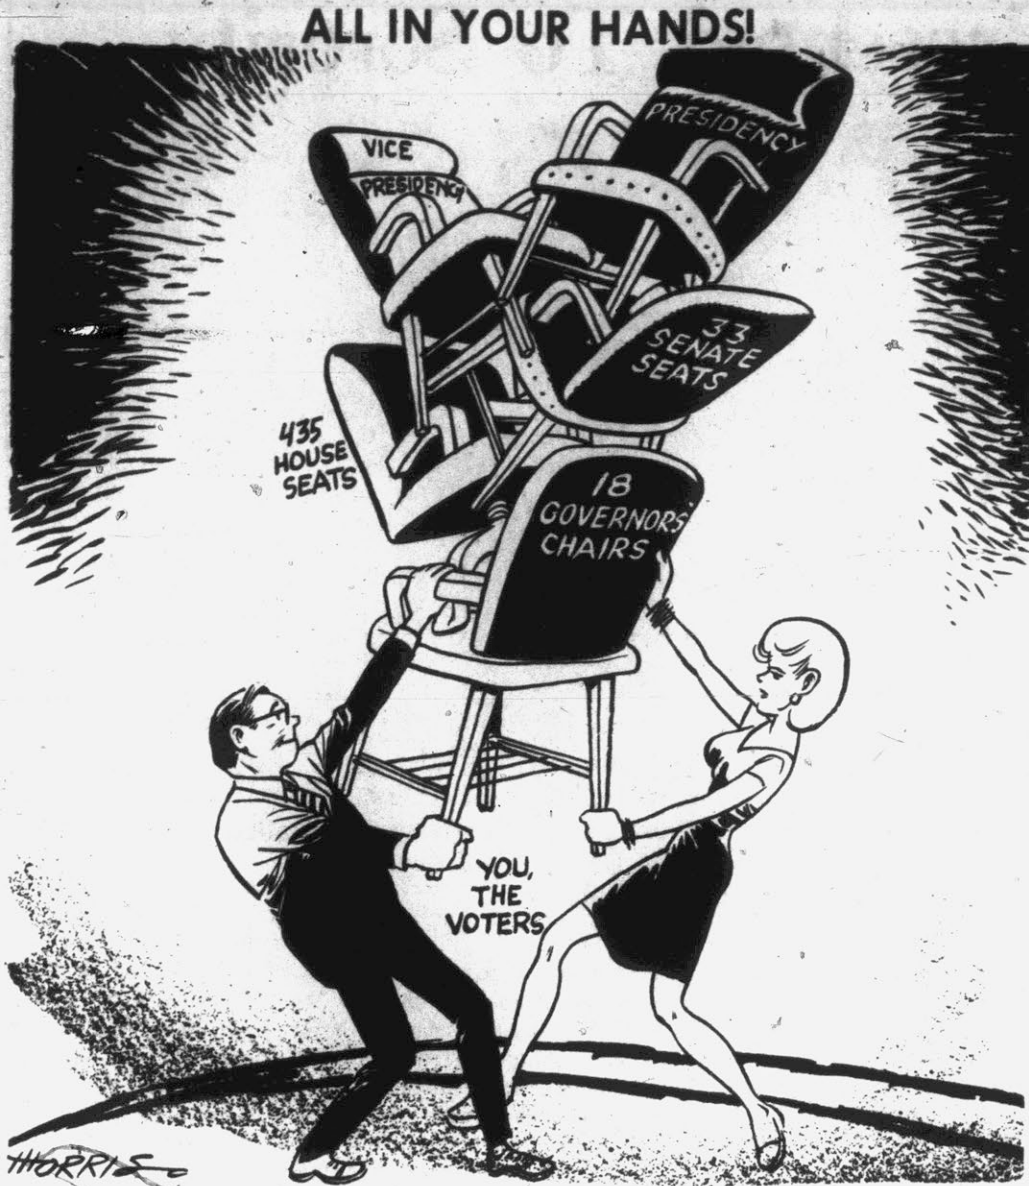

It's also hard to get a handle on this campaign between Helms and Democrat Nick Galifianakis. Helms seems to be doing very well in the East where he's well known, but some of his supporters fear he hasn't spent enough time in the Piedmont where the big city vote can smash a man's hopes of winning a political office.

Said one Democrat: "All of the major races are going to be close because the Republican Party is getting stronger in North Carolina year by year. But I doubt that Nixon's so well liked here that he'll be able to help any other candidate, including Helms, in any large way."

Anti-Porno Bill's Flaw

LOS ANGELES — If conservatives have a favorite movie actor, it probably is John Wayne, Duke of the untamed West, who pursues in his personal life the same rugged virtues he portrays on the screen. The Duke if the walking, talking, hulking, straight-shooting embodiment of all that is pure and manly. Right?

Well, Wayne never displayed in a movie more true grit than he displayed here a couple of weeks ago, when he went publicly on record against Proposition 18. In the over-simplified view of many Americans who are appalled by pornography, the action might be twisted into a phony charge that John Wayne is in favor of smut. No such thing. The Duke is in favor of freedom.

Proposition 18 is a 6,000-word statute intended to provide an entirely new structure for combatting pornography in California. The measure would make one significant change in existing law. At present, the definition of "obscenity" is qualified in California by the requirement that such material be "utterly without redeeming social importance." Contrary to widespread belief, a majority of the Supreme Court never had required any such language, but no matter:

Other Editors Say Gracious Living

(The Chapel Hill Newspaper)

There is a chance that in its efforts to lure new industry, North Carolina has been neglecting a powerful pitch.

The latest trade mission to Japan, for instance, emphasized the traditional offerings: moderate climate, the rural-urban mix, good roads, a higher education system productive of highly trained personnel, available labor pool, the Research Park, a statewide attitude warm to industrialization, Variety Vacationland, reasonable corporate tax structure, and so on. These are telling arguments and they have brought the state its share of new industry.

But, consider Walter DeVries, who as a political pollster is an industry in himself.

Mr DeVries got the first touch of tar on his heels last spring doing polling duty for one of the candidates for governor. At the time, in addition to serving as a campaign consultant he was a political science professor at the University of Michigan.

The North Carolina experience so enchanted him that he and his family pulled up roots in Michigan and settled at Wrightsville Beach, a relocation of some magnitude.

Why such an impulsive and radical move, from Michigan to the North Carolin coast?

"I like a place where folks say 'yes sir' and 'thank you, ma'am,' he explained.

It's true that North Carolina is one of the few remaining areas where the social graces have not been entirely leaned-out of day-to-day life. Those of unaccustomed to hearing "yes sir" and "thank you, ma'am" are not at all struck by it and pay little attention to it, accepting such routine niceties as a regular thing. But to someone from up North, say New York City, where person-to-person communication often takes place in the form of a snarl if any takes place at all, and "thank you, sir" falls on the ear like a soft rain on parched earth.

Admittedly it is a small thing and probably inappropriate for a Wall Street Journal aimed at a captain of industry, but it is one of those things that helps to make North Carolina "the goodliest land." Mr. DeVries' testimonial that such small things count with outlanders is encouraging. Thank you, sir.

News Is Bad On Nerves

By RENA PEDERSON
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Sometimes a reporter has to talk to the people who don't read newspapers to find out what the world is all about.

Frances, for instance, is a waitress in a Chinese restaurant that has prided itself on its egg foo yung sandwiches and chop suey to go for some 20 years.

But it is Frances who holds the "China Clipper" together with her strength and good cheer, padding around on crepe sole shoes, opening a beer as she goes from booth to booth.

"I don't know how you write for newspapers, I can't stand to read 'em myself," says Frances. (Frances has no last name or background because she never talks about it — "Just call me Frances, that's all I am.")

"You're going to make yourself nervous reading about politics and hijacks and wars. I don't mess with world affairs myself. That's here today and gone tomorrow!" Frances always speaks with a sureness and volume that draws nods from everyone at the counter.

Frances is a stocky woman in her 40s, who wears different costume jewelry to match her nylon uniform and apron. Her cat-eye glasses, which she puts on to read Gothic novels in slow hours, also match her jewelry.

She carries on a constant battle with Joe, the restaurant owner, over her Hawaiian music. She brings her own tape cassette and plays Hawaiian recordings. Joe turns it off. Frances turns it back on when Joe is in the kitchen.

"Been to Hawaii? Me? Oh honey, I'd like to, but there ain't that much money these days. I just like to listen to it. It kinda makes the place seem nicer."

To Frances, the only thing that counts is "getting into the kingdom." "This stuff around her don't matter," she says. The way she looks at it, some 144,000 will get in the kingdom, runners-up will be "the great multitude" ruling on earth and the remnant will be just stuck on earth doing nothing in particular.

Frances doesn't come out and say it, but reporters and politicians are not particularly favored for the kingdom crowd.

And politics?

Strength For Today

CAN'T BEAT THE RAP
Some time ago I complimented an employer on the fine group of workmen with which he had surrounded himself. "Not a loafer in the crowd," I said. The employer smiled and answered, "The loafers were all fired long ago."

There is something of a pattern about a situation of this sort. Whether the loafers are actually fired or not, they are in reality, fired for their contribution, if they ever made any in the first place. At last they become so small as to be negligible and they are really no factor in the success of any project.

Nature has a way of getting rid of its loafers. Successful business houses get rid of their loafers fast and so build up a strong personnel. All through life this type of quiet elimination of the willfully unfit is going on. Here is one place where it is not possible to beat the rap. The time comes when the loafer, be he in a household, an office, a mill or on the broad acres of a great farm, sinks to the place where he is a nonentity. The loafer in the natural course of events finally gets fired.

We live in a universe the basic reality of which is continual action. Jesus said, "My heavenly father worketh until now and I work." God mad the world and looked on his creation and called it good. Life throughout His universe is a great work enterprise. The loafer gets fired.

Shopping Is More Than Buying

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — "Why do people shop?" the storekeeper was asked. "To buy things," he snapped, irritated by the "dumb" question.

"How simplistic," thought the questioner, wondering how this clod ever managed any degree of success at all, considering his inability to comprehend either human psychology or modern marketing methods.

The shopping motive, says Edward M. Tauber, a marketing authority, is hardly a simple function of the buying motive. People have many reasons for shopping that have little to do with buying.

Writing in the Journal of Marketing, Tauber, an assistant professor at the University of California at Los Angeles, lists a bagful of other possible motives for shopping, other than to buy a product.

Role Playing — Many activities are learned behaviors, traditionally accepted or expected as part of a certain position or role in society — mother, housewife, husband, or student.

"Grocery shopping is a customary activity of the housewife. Attempts to eliminate 'food shopping' through home delivery and telephone order have to date been relatively unsuccessful."

Diversion — Shopping, says Tauber, can offer an opportunity for diversion from the routine of daily life and thus represents a form of recreation.

Self-gratification — "A person may go to a store in search of diversion when he is bored or go in search of social contact when he feels lonely. Likewise, he may go to a store to buy 'something nice' for himself when he is depressed."

Physical Activity — Shopping can provide people with a considerable amount of exercise otherwise denied to them by an urban environment, says Tauber, adding that a lot of stores mistakenly try to minimize walking distance.

Sensory Stimulation — Customers are stimulated by each other, by handling the merchandise, by listening to the sounds, inhaling the scents.

Social Experience — "In general," says Tauber, "shopping can provide the opportunity for a social experience outside the home, that is, seeking new acquaintances or meeting those of the opposite sex.

Peer Group Attraction — "The patronage of a store sometimes reflects a desire to be with one's peer group or a reference group to which one aspires to belong."

Status and Authority — Many shopping experiences, says Tauber, provide an opportunity for an individual to command attention and respect.

There are other reasons too, including the pleasure of bargaining, says Tauber. Enough, he suggests, for any storekeeper to wonder what's going on in his emporium, enough for a spouse to ponder the implications of that seemingly "innocent" explanation, "Just going shopping for a while."

Galifianakis And Helms Buoyed By Fresh Support

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
There was good news in today's newspapers for both of North Carolina's candidates for the U.S. Senate.

Democratic Rep. Nick Galifianakis, campaigning Wednesday in Wake County, picked up strong editorial endorsements from today's editions of The Charlotte Observer and the Raleigh News and Observer. Republican Jesse Helms meanwhile was buoyed by news that President Nixon will campaign for him and other GOP candidates in North Carolina on Saturday.

The Charlotte Observer described Galifianakis as a "moderate" who, in three terms in Congress, has contributed to "common sense programs." The same editorial described Helms as "an extremist who has opposed much of the forward movement of this state and region over the past 12 years."

The News and Observer called Galifianakis "a positive, credible candidate and a potentially excellent U.S. senator." It said Helms was "a divisive man, an extremist at times."

Helms, however, could look past today and think about Saturday when he is scheduled to bask in the limelight with President Nixon. The White House confirmed Wednesday the President will stop Saturday at the Greensboro-High Point-Winston-Salem Regional Airport.

Helms, whose campaign theme is "No more Helms," already has received strong outside support from the GOP this year, including two trips to the state by Vice President Spiro Agnew and a list of incumbent Republican senators.

The President's campaign visit also will focus attention on Republican gubernatorial candidate Jim Holshouser, who Wednesday aimed the brunt of his campaign attack at the career education proposals of Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles, his Democratic opponent.

At a Charlotte news conference, Holshouser said many questions need to be answered by Bowles about his career education program. A major question, he said, is who will decide what career education courses children will take. He likened that to a "Big Brother" decision and termed the proposal "reckless."

Bowles, meanwhile, defended the career education proposal as he campaigned Wednesday across the state's midsection. He said career education will not decrease the emphasis on reading, writing and arithmetic in the lower grades.

"It simply would bring the modern world into the classroom," he said. He said the program would not mean "sending one group to college and the other group to a production line or a cotton loom."

In Raleigh, Bowles said he intends to make the establishment of a minimum wage scale for state employees his "first priority" if elected.

American Party gubernatorial candidate Arlis Pettyjohn said Wednesday he is confident the American Party will maintain its ballot status even if he loses. In an interview while campaigning in Greenville, Pettyjohn said that despite polls which show him running far behind Bowles and Holshouser, "there's no way to judge" the outcome of the Tuesday election.

it, the language would appear to ban even a photograph of the Michelangelo David.

Under this statute, it would be made a misdemeanor even to sing a song "depicting sexual conduct." The paintings of Renoir and Titian could not be offered for sale to minors under Section 313.21(b). Neither could minors buy any book or magazine containing "obscenities," by which is meant slang words used to refer to genitals, buttocks, female breasts, or excretory functions or products.

The proposition trends too far on First Amendment grounds. In the name of stamping out one evil, it would create another. Striking at pornographers, the law would hit serious writers and artists as well. In Justice Frankfurter's phrase, the act would burn down the house in order to roast a pig. I have great sympathy and respect for the Californians who drafted this bill. They are searching earnestly for an answer. Sad to say, this isn't it.

Now, for the first time ever, you can get a mortgage commitment before you even look for a home.

We're not saying we were the first to come up with the idea. No, anyone who's ever looked for a house has wished such a thing existed.

What we're saying is that we're the first financial institution around here with the courage to actually do it.

Give you a mortgage ahead of time.

That mortgage, The Early Mortgage, is our commitment on paper to reserve a certain sum for you. You don't have to use all the money. You don't even have to use any. But for three months, the term of The Early Mortgage, you have the certainty that if you need that money to buy a house, it's going to be there.

And, if interest rates should go up during that period, you are not affected at all. You get the exact rate of interest that we agreed upon when we first approved your Early Mortgage.

When you do find a house you want, we'll look it over and make sure it justifies your investment. That works for you, and is something we have to do on every mortgage in any case. And there'll still be "closing costs." We haven't found a way to do away with them yet. But that's about it.

House hunting just became a lot simpler.

N.C. Math Teachers To Convene At Charlotte

The second annual convention of the North Carolina Council of Teachers of Mathematics will be held at UNC-Charlotte this weekend, Nov. 3-4, according to announcement by Dr. Kayte O. Sowell, of East Carolina University.

More than 600 teachers of mathematics from all levels (kindergarten through college) are expected to attend the sessions on the Charlotte campus.

Dr. Sowell released the names of officers, speakers, workshop leaders and presidents. Dr. Sowell is president of the Eastern Region NCTM and chairman of the publicity committee.

The convention will feature speakers such as Dr. Howard Eves, Professor of Mathematics at the University of Maine and Dr. John Wagner from Michigan State University. Dr. Eves, the banquet speaker, is internationally known for his work in the history of mathematics and in geometry. He is the author of many textbooks and his lectures are delightful including many colorful anecdotes about mathematics and mathematicians. Dr. Wagner, an outstanding mathematics educator, will speak at the luncheon on Saturday.

Chuck Allen, from the Los Angeles Public Schools and currently a director of the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics, has worked extensively with disadvantaged children and with slow learners. He will share his experiences with elementary and junior high teachers on both days of the convention. Dr. Mary Dolciani, author of several high school mathematics textbooks currently used in North Carolina, will speak on the subject of individualized instruction. Seven other out-of-state speakers and leaders will also be present at the convention.

There will be nine workshops held throughout the meeting. Several of these workshops are designed specifically for the primary teacher and will provide an opportunity for them to learn how to make mathematics both fun and meaningful for their students. Informative lectures in mathematics will interest college teachers and enable them to become acquainted with research being conducted at various colleges throughout the state. An informal reception is to be held Friday night following the banquet. The teachers will be able to talk informally with each other and with many of the speakers and leaders. Films and filmstrips will be shown continuously throughout the meeting. Student exhibits will also be on display from which teachers may gain new ideas. Many book companies will also have their material available for teachers to see and compare. The general business meeting of the NCTM is to be held at 8 a.m. on Saturday morning.

Many educators throughout the state have been involved in planning and preparing for the meeting.

Diem Death Remembered

SAIGON (AP) — More than 5,000 persons attended mass today, marched in a procession and paid homage at the graves of President Ngo Dinh Diem and his adviser-brother, Ngo Dinh Nhu.

It was believed to be the largest gathering ever to honor the memory of the dictator who was overthrown and slain by military leaders nine years ago in a coup backed by the United States.

Sponsors of a two-day memorial program that began Wednesday predicted that more than 150,000 persons would participate throughout the country.

Following a mass at the Saigon Cathedral, at which the archbishop of Saigon officiated, the marchers moved to the Mac Dinh Chi Cemetery where Diem and Nhu, who was murdered with him, were buried in unmarked graves in 1964.

Extensive police security was in effect and there were no disturbances during the mile-long march. The marchers, who carried a huge portrait of Diem and banners praising him, included some Buddhists as well as the Roman Catholics who were his strongest supporters.

Some of the participants in the coup, including President Nguyen Van Thieu, still hold office, but the government has taken an increasingly tolerant attitude toward the Diemists in recent years.

Communities Said Unhealthy

LONDON (AP) — Prince Philip says the modern industrial society is producing unhealthy communities in which mugging, drug-taking and child-bashing are rampant.

"Somehow or other we must find the causes and the cures for these diseases," the prince said Wednesday in an address to the Royal College of Medical Practitioners after being installed as president.

Prince Philip, the husband of Queen Elizabeth II, said the industrial society is creating a new type of community, "completely different from anything in previous human experience. Its body, in the shape of dense housing, vertically and horizontally, is different."

"Symptoms of unhealthy communities are becoming increasingly obvious."

He cited petty crime, mugging, drug abuse, gang warfare, vandalism, child abuse and a growing disregard for the law.

South capitalized on a favorable distributional feature in today's hand to rescue his four heart contract from the very brink of defeat.

West opened the five of spades and East won the first two tricks with the queen and king. East continued with a small spade and, since South had nothing to gain by taking a discard, he ruffed with the queen of hearts. West discarded the nine of diamonds to inform his partner that he was well heeled in that suit.

Declarer obtained only a momentary gratification at West's inability to overruff for, with the king of hearts clearly marked in East's hand, it appeared that South must lose a heart trick as well as a diamond. Declarer's only legitimate chance apparently was to lead over to the ace of hearts in an attempt to drop a singleton king. South observed an additional prospect which, tho somewhat remote, could be tested at no extra cost.

He began by cashing three rounds of clubs, discarding a diamond from dummy as both opponents followed suit. Now a heart was led to the ace and, when East's king held firm, South proceeded to develop his alternate plan. The remaining spade was led from dummy and ruffed with the jack of hearts as West parted with another diamond.

A diamond was led to the ace and with both hands stripped of black cards, North exited with a heart. East was in with the king, and since he was out of diamonds, his forced return of either a spade or a club permitted South to ruff in his hand as the dummy disposed of his last diamond. Declarer had restricted his losses to two spades and one heart.

Despite the fortunate division in diamonds which found East with only a singleton in that suit, West was in position to nullify South's astute performance.

When the third round of spades is led and declarer ruffs with the queen of hearts, West can foil the stripping operation by discarding a club instead of a high diamond. When South plays three rounds of clubs, West ruffs the third round forcing North to overruff and thereby preventing the diamond sluff from dummy. In the end dummy is left with a losing diamond.

Four Hell's Angels In Custody

UKIAH, Calif. (AP) — Four Hell's Angels have been taken into custody and authorities say more arrests are possible in connection with the discovery of three bodies on a remote ranch rumored to be a burial ground for the motorcycle gang.

Those arrested Wednesday were identified as William Mark "Zorro" Mitten, 32, Alameda; Edward Junior Carter, 24, Richmond; Chester M. "Festus" Green, 29, Richmond; and William John Moran, 38, Richmond.

Contra Costa County officials said the four were being held in that San Francisco Bay area county for investigation of murder.

"We have good cause to believe the suspects in the Contra Costa jail are linked with the Mendocino investigation and there is good cause to believe the crimes occurred in Contra Costa County," said Contra Costa Dist. Atty. William A. O'Malley. "More arrests are possible."

Meanwhile, George Wethern, 33, and his wife Helen, 29, owners of the 153-acre ranch where the bodies of two men and a woman were unearthed from old well holes, rejected on Wednesday an offer of immunity from further prosecution if they would provide information concerning Hell's Angels activities in the area.

"It wasn't broad enough — they didn't offer what we feel was sufficient," said public defender Joseph Allen of the offer by Mendocino County authorities.

Wethern, a burly 260-pounder with a heavy beard and his wife — both former Hell's Angels — were arrested on charges of possession and sale of drugs Monday when deputies went to their ranch to dig, reportedly on a tip. Wethern additionally was charged with possessing stolen property. Bail has been set at $100,000 each.

Allen said authorities particularly want information from the Wetherns on Hell's Angels leader Sonny Barger, 34, and others who currently are on trial with Barger in Oakland on charges of killing a suspected narcotics dealer last May.

Six witnesses are said to be missing in the trial.

Mendocino County Sheriff Reno Bartolome issued a brief statement late Wednesday tentatively identifying two of the bodies as Thomas S. Shull, 24, and Charles Baker, 30, both of Georgia. The woman unearthed has not been identified. "At the present time," said the sheriff, "we are not continuing our search for additional bodies."

A sheriff's spokesman in San Joaquin County said Shull was reported missing last Feb. 20 by his mother, Mrs. K. W. Shull of Augusta, Ga.

Allen said the Wetherns had tried to sever their connection with the motorcycle gang, and 12, who were placed in foster homes after the couple's arrest with their two children, ages 10 and 12.

Evacuated In Explosions

ROMULUS, Mich. (AP) — Hundreds of families in Romulus and nearby Taylor were evacuated from an area surrounding a propane gas storage field following a series of explosions which rocked the two Detroit suburbs.

It took two hours before firemen could bring a series of fires in the field under control Wednesday night following the more than 100 explosions in the storage area, which separates the two towns.

No immediate damage estimate was available.

One injury was reported.

"It sounded like a small war when I got here," said a policeman.

Employees estimated that 500 to 800 small propane tanks, the kind which hook onto house trailers, were being stored at Propane Services, Inc.

The only injury reported was that of David E. Copley, a workman who was burned in a storage shed where a fire of unknown origin started, triggering the first explosion. He was reported in good condition at a local hospital.

Eight other employees working in the area escaped harm.

A 15,000-gallon storage tank several hundred feet from where many of the explosions occurred did not explode.

Peace Group Hanoi Bound

NEW YORK (AP) — A delegation of American peace activists left Wednesday night for Hanoi saying they did not know what their mission there would entail because of the question mark over a Vietnam peace settlement.

Five of the activists headed by Tom Hayden of the Indochina Peace Campaign departed from Kennedy Airport on a Scandinavian jet to Copenhagen. Two others planned to fly separately on a Soviet Union Aeroflot flight leaving early today.

Hayden said the group had been invited in mid-October when "the peace settlement had been privately agreed to by both sides and we were to help in carrying out some tasks, including, but not limited to, help in returning prisoners of war."

He continued: "But now that the agreement hasn't been signed, everything is in doubt. We will have to find out what's going on when we get there."

Declaring "peace is in doubt in Vietnam," Hayden said his group would try "to clarify the question raging whether or not a peace settlement is about to be signed."

They expect to arrive in Hanoi Friday.

Nick Galifianakis will help the South keep control of the United States Senate.

Southern Democrats currently control the key committees—and the key to power—in the United States Senate.

National Republicans are spending hundreds of thousands of dollars in several states—including NORTH CAROLINA—in a frantic attempt to wrest control from Southern Democrats and put it into the hands of Republicans from the North and West.

If the scheme should succeed, the voice of the South would be hushed in the Senate. Here's where the key chairmanships would go:

Current Chairman:

Senator Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C.
Government Operations Committee

Senator Herman Talmadge, D-Georgia
Agriculture & Forestry Committee

Senator Russell Long, D-Louisiana
Finance Committee

Senator James Eastland, D-Mississippi
Judiciary Committee

Senator John Sparkman, D-Alabama
Banking Committee

Senator J.W. Fulbright, D-Arkansas
Foreign Relations Committee

Senator John Stennis, D-Mississippi
Armed Services Committee

Senator John McClellan, D-Arkansas
Appropriations Committee

Would be replaced by:

Senator Charles Percy, R-Illinois

Senator Jack Miller, R-Iowa

Senator Wallace Bennett, R-Utah

Senator Roman Hruska, R-Nebraska

Senator John Tower, R-Texas

Senator George Aiken, R-Vermont

Senator Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine

Senator Milton Young, R-North Dakota

Nick Galifianakis will provide moderate representation in the U.S. Senate that is in the true tradition of the South. Senator Ervin wants Nick beside him in the Senate. The people of North Carolina need Nick to provide positive leadership for all our people.

And the South needs Nick to keep the Voice of the South alive and active in the United States Senate.

Let's send Nick to the Senate.
Action speaks louder than words.

Rampants Close Season Against Cougars

Division II's leading offense goes up against Division II's toughest defense this weekend, and the result might mean the conference championship.

Goldsboro will be playing host to Rose High School Friday at 8 p.m., and the Cougars must win if they are to have a chance at the Division II title.

A tie last week between Goldsboro and Wilson left the top of the league in a jumble. Goldsboro and Wilson are both 4-0-1 in league play, while Rocky Mount is 4-1-0. Wilson is meeting Rocky Mount in the other key game.

It all works out like this. A Goldsboro victory would give them at least a share of first place, regardless of who wins in Rocky Mount. A Wilson win coupled with a Goldsboro victory would tie the two, and a vote of the conference coaches would decide the playoff representative. A Rocky Mount victory would give the title to Goldsboro.

Likewise, the same is true should Wilson win and Goldsboro lose. That would put the shoe on Wilson's foot and give them the title.

But if both Rose and Rocky Mount win, that would give the title to Rocky Mount.

Unfortunately for the Rampant fans, there is no way they can win it, although they are definitely a factor in who does win.

Goldsboro comes into the game allowing only 33 points against it this season, tops in Division II. Rose comes in with 254 points scored, tops in the Division, so the sparks will be flying when the two collide.

Goldsboro probably remembers the last time Greenville came to visit them, two years ago. At the time, the Cougars had already wrapped up the playoff berth, and were unbeaten in the league, but the Rampants pulled off an upset to give them their only loss of the regular season.

Four of the top five running backs in the conference will also be taking the field. Rose's Al Hunter and Reggie Perkins stand 1-2 in the league. Hunter has ripped off 1,264 yards, while Perkins has 1,112.

Goldsboro's Devon Ford is the third leading rusher with 1,028 yards, while teammate Emmitt Hamilton is right behind him with a 706 yard total.

But Goldsboro also has a passing attack, something the Rampants haven't been able to put together. Earl Crumpler has hit on 30 of 84 passes for 291 yards, enough to keep the defense honest.

Rose Coach Dave Bumgarner wasn't too happy with his team's effort in the last game against New Bern. "We should have beaten them by several more touchdowns," he said of the 26-6 victory. "We made a lot of mental mistakes, and we had some bad play selections. When you have a first and goal on the four yard line and can't score, you're in trouble," he said.

Bumgarner also swiped at the officials from the game, saying he felt they did not call a good game. "Many times, on judgement calls," he said, "we felt they did a poor job. This hurts the morale of the team when they see these things aren't being called."

Bumgarner pointed out the play that Reggie Perkins suffered a knee injury on. The films of the game showed that Perkins was tripped up several yards beyond the line of scrimmage, and then tumbled head-over-heels for several more yards with no one around him except one down-field defender. Perkins hopped up after the official had signaled the play dead, and was hit from behind by the lone Bear defender. No penalty was called despite the clear lateness of the hit.

"The official told me that it was Reggie's fault for getting up too soon after the whistle," Bumgarner said. "I just couldn't believe it."

The coach added that the Rampants couldn't afford to get one of their star backs hurt, and that the play did help to stop some of the Rampant spirit.

Perkins is expected to be ready for this week's game however, along with Harding Sugg, who's expected to return for full duty after seeing only limited action last week.

Bumgarner noted that quarterback Dean Phillips was this week's Player of the Week. The coach lauded him for his play calling throughout the season.

"We've got our hands full this week, but we believe we can win," Bumgarner said. "Goldsboro is a very strong, quick team, and they're very aggressive both offensively and defensively. They've got those two good running backs and Crumpler is a good quarterback. We expect to see a wide open football game."

Bumgarner added that Goldsboro, with the championship on the line will be coming at the Rampants hard. "But we're pretty loose," he said. "We have nothing to lose in the game, so there is a lot less pressure on us."

A large group of Rampants will be playing their last game this week, as seniors. They include Dean Phillips, Reggie Perkins, Mike Harris, George Price, Kenneth Randolph, Al Hunter, Matthew Clark, Calvin Moore, Donald Bell Harding Sugg, Henry Bunn, John Calhoun, Lee Cherry, Robert Baker, Maurice Sheppard, Kenneth Creech, Charles Tyson, Ronald Moore, Mike Reilly, Jimmy Sutton and Fred Lemmond.

The probable starting lineup on offense will have Lemmond and Ronnie Rasberry at ends, Tyson and Sheppard at the tackles, Calhoun and David Matheis at guards, Phil Ragazzo at center, Phillips at quarterback, Perkins at fullback, and Hunter and Keith Joyner at halfbacks.

Defensively, the Rampant front four will be Cherry, Tyson, Calhoun and Bunn. The linebackers will be Jackie Savage, Price, Sugg and Harris. Lemmond, Al Heath and Dickie Johnson will be in the secondary.

Wells In Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers of the National Football League went about getting acquainted with controversial Warren Wells today after the former Oakland Raider player's probation was modified by a California judge.

Superior Court Judge William J. McGuiness modified Wells' probation in Oakland Wednesday stemming from a 1969 attempted rape conviction so he could leave the Alameda County area in California.

Wells wasted little time in boarding a plane for Texas. He was met at the airport Wednesday night by Oilers' executive assistant Tom Williams and was to undergo a physical examination today.

If he passes the exam, he will be on Houston's 40-man roster for Sunday's game against Cleveland.

The Oilers picked Wells up for the $100 waiver price last week but Wells' return to Texas had been delayed because McGuiness would not accept an oral report from Wells' probation officers as to his progress.

Some of our best friends are our best customers. And vice versa.

When folks come in to look at our new cars the first thing we do is listen. That way we know their needs and can match them up with just the right Ford for them. With the right kind of financing. With the right standard and optional equipment.

Say, for instance, you want a little luxury without spending a lot of money. We'd say Galaxie 500. Maybe with a vinyl roof and interior trim, with an AM/FM stereo radio. And all that standard Ford quiet. That would be our suggestion—or you might have one of your own. So we'd listen again until you were happy. After all, if you can't trust your friends, who can you trust? And vice versa.

Carlton Takes NL's Cy Young Number 63 Brightens Key West Football

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — To the surprise of absolutely no one, Philadelphia's Steve Carlton has won the Cy Young Award as the best pitcher in the National League.

Carlton was the unanimous choice of the 24-man committee of baseball writers—two from each NL city—for the honor after turning in a remarkable 27-10 record for the last-place Phillies.

The lean left-hander, who accounted for 46 per cent of Philadelphia's 59 victories last season, is only the sixth unanimous selection in the 16-year history of the balloting and the first Phillie ever to win the award. He also is the first man to win the award while pitching for a last-place team.

Carlton polled 120 points for his ballot sweep—five points for each first place vote. Runnerup was Pittsburgh's Steve Blass, who had 35 points. Ferguson Jenkins of Chicago, last year's Cy Young winner, was third with 23 points.

Cleveland's Gaylord Perry was named the American League winner Wednesday.

Carlton's 27 victories topped the majors and tied the National League record for a left-hander set by Hall of Famer Sandy Koufax. Koufax in 1963, 1965 and 1966, and Bob Gibson and Denny McLain, both in 1968, were the only previous unanimous Cy Young winners.

Whenever Carlton pitched, he filled Philadelphia's Veterans Stadium, providing the lone bright spot in an otherwise bleak season for the Phillies. And, ironically, they almost didn't have him.

It was a contract squabble between Carlton and St. Louis owner Gussie Busch that caused the Cardinals to trade the lefty to Philadelphia for pitcher Rick Wise during spring training.

Carlton responded with his greatest season, pacing the league in starts (41); complete games (30); victories (27); innings pitched (346); strikeouts (310); and earned run average (1.98).

And he capped it all off with today's award.

Key West Football

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — No. 63, the placekicker on Mary Immaculate High School's football team, missed one of the games this fall.

She—that's right, No. 63 is a girl—didn't play at homecoming. The shapely kicking specialist was crowned homecoming princess.

Theresa Dion, known around the locker room as Good 'Ole 63, is not only the football team's placekicker, she is also president of her senior class, an honor student and a beauty queen.

That makes her the only girl on a high school varsity team in Florida, says Floyd Lay, director of the state's High School Activities Association.

Theresa, 5-foot-2 with eyes of blue, fills her helmet with masses of blonde curls. She also fills her regulation-size uniform with a trim 120 pounds and proper padding in the appropriate places.

"I'm not even the lightest member of the team," she says with a giggle, "but my hair is a little longer."

Mariners Coach Bill Zumberis says, "She's not only the best we've got, but she's just about as good as anybody's got."

The wisp of a girl who runs the 40-yard dash in 4.6 seconds didn't grow up a tomboy among her five sisters and a younger brother. She stumbled into her gridiron career by accident.

"It just kind of happened a year ago," she said. "There was this powder puff game we had here—girls, you know—and I liked it. Besides, I found out that I could kick good."

Turning out for fall practice, she found she was "leg weary." But her male teammates gallantly offered to give her some booting pointers and she soon developed a soccer style punch. Zumberis says Theresa asks no favors and receives none—except she doesn't scrimmage and she dresses with the cheerleaders. "And the no scrimmage rule is mine, not hers," he adds.

But there are still four games this season and Theresa hopes to atone for last Saturday, when the Mariners lost 14-12 to Melbourne.

After warming the bench for five games, Theresa was sent in to try for the extra point. She missed—twice.

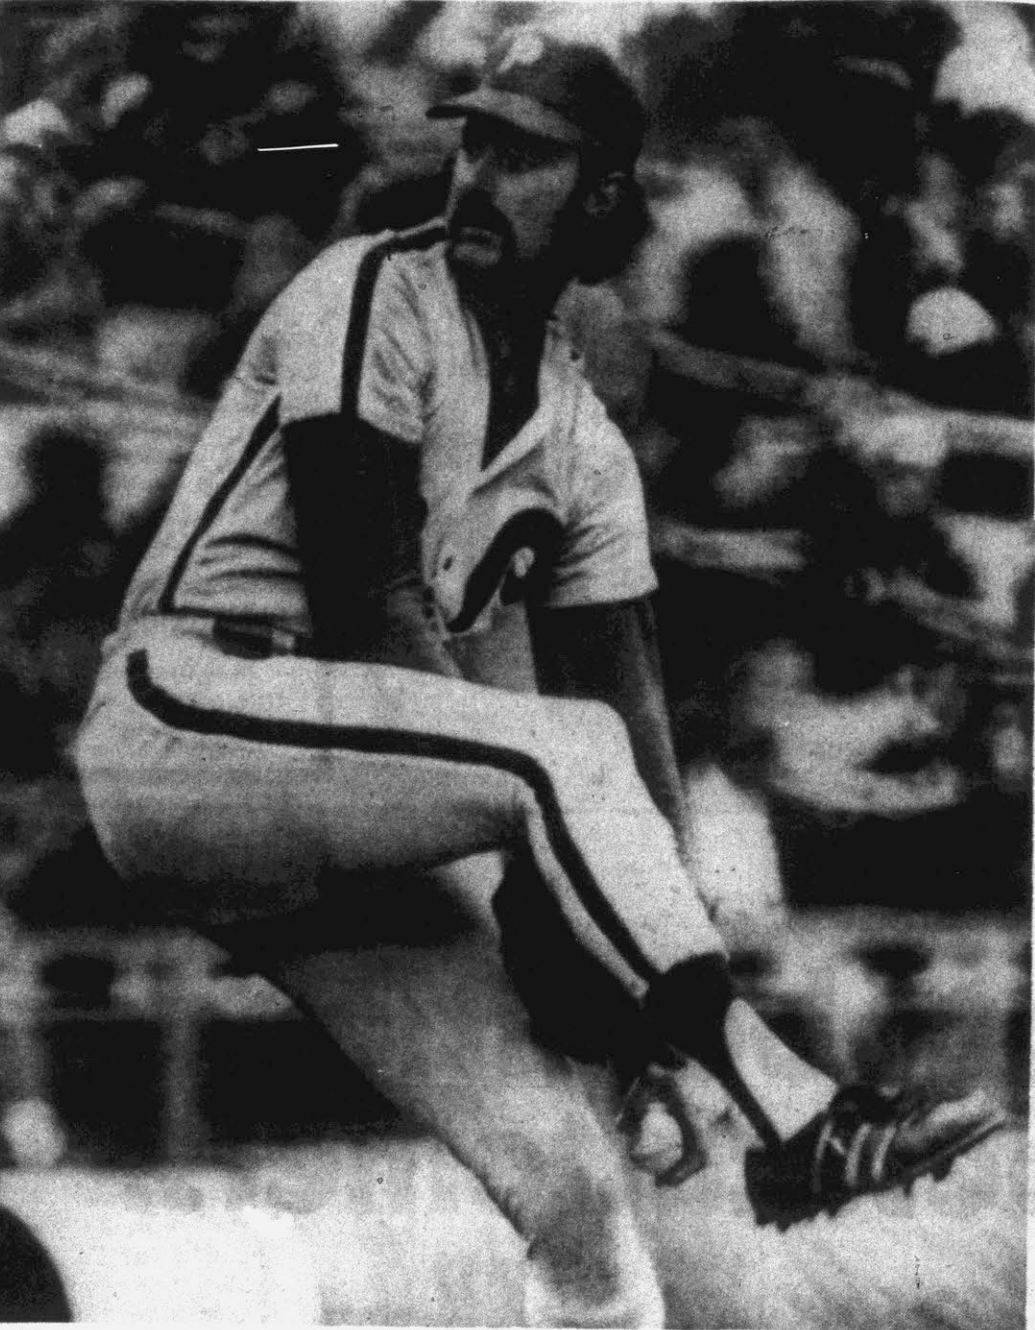

"I just hardly ever miss, but I did," she said ruefully at Tuesday's practice.

To prove it, she promptly booted seven footballs through the uprights.

It Was A Bad Day For Charlie Finley's Five

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Charles O. Finley was fined $2,500 Wednesday and then had more bad news Wednesday night when his Memphis Tams lost a game in the American Basketball Association.

Finley, hit with the fine for giving increased compensation to some of his Oakland players during baseball's recent World Series, made it an imperfect day after his ABA club was spanked 107-101 by the San Diego Conquistadors. Ollie Taylor scored 22 points to lead San Diego and hand the Tams their sixth straight defeat.

In Wednesday's other ABA games, the Indiana Pacers smashed the Virginia Squires 120-109 and the Utah Stars trimmed the Denver Rockets 122-113.

The Conquistadors rallied from a 79-69 deficit midway through the third period as they beat the Tams for the third straight time.

George Thompson of Memphis led all scorers with 37 points.

George McGinnis scored 30 points and hauled down a career-high 27 rebounds to power Indiana's victory.

Julius Erving had a game-high 39 points for Virginia, although the Squires were never in the game once the Pacers pulled away in the second quarter.

Bill Keller came off the bench to give the Indiana offense a big lift, scoring 13 of his 24 points in that second quarter when the Pacers pulled into a 10-point halftime lead.

Willie Wise scored 31 points to help Utah come from behind and beat Denver. The Stars missed several lay-ups in the early going and fell behind by seven points.

Warren Jabali scored 29 points and Ralph Simpson had 22 for the losers.

Phillies Pick Ozark Manager

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Danny Ozark, the surprise sweepstakes winner in the Philadelphia Phillies managerial derby, says there's nothing wrong with the perennial last-place baseball team that proper attitude and fundamentals can't cure.

The 48-year-old Ozark, handed a two-year contract to manage the Phillies, said the team was lax in fundamentals and had a losing attitude. He told his first news conference here Wednesday night that the 1972 Phillies threw too many times to the wrong base, made many wrong plays and stood at the plate taking too many third strikes.

Before Ozark described the Phillies as a team loaded with young talent that needs proper instruction to become a National League pennant contender, General Manager Paul Owens told how the veteran Los Angeles Dodgers' minor league manager and coach got the job.

Owens said Ozark did not apply until last week. He said the report was correct that he had decided to hire Dave Bristol, the former Cincinnati and Milwaukee manager.

"I did not know at that time that Danny Ozark would be available. He was not under consideration at the time of the World Series."

Ozark signed with the Dodgers in 1942, as a minor league first baseman. He never made the majors and later became a manager in the Dodgers' farm system. He was promoted to the Los Angeles coaching staff in 1965, and since has coached at first and third base.

Georgia Tech, Duke Renew Old Rivalry

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

When Duke University and Georgia Tech collided Saturday at Wallace Wade Stadium in Durham, N.C., it will mark the renewal of one of the oldest consecutive matchups in college football.

The Blue Devils and Tech first clashed in 1933 with Tech coming out on top 6-0. The loss was Duke's only of the season and kept the Blue Devils from the Rose Bowl. Duke dominated the series in the early years, but in 1955 things began to change.

Duke has beaten Tech only three times since 1954 and only once since 1960. Tech leads the series now 22-16-1.

Elsewhere in the ACC, things aren't getting any better for Wake Forest, which carries a 1-6 record against South Carolina this week.

Coach Tom Harper confirmed Wednesday that two of his players, a starter and a former starter, have quit the Deacon football team.

He said the starter, sophomore defensive tackle David Bartholomew of San Diego, Calif., and the former starter, senior end Randy Cox of Monroe, N.C., had not been out for practice this week.

Harper quoted Cox as saying he was tired of playing football and that Bartholomew indicated he was homesick.

Eight players have quit the Wake Forest team since the start of fall practice.

In this weekend's only other non-conference game, Maryland travels to Penn State.

The weekend's premier conference clash sends league-leading North Carolina to Clemson's "Death Valley."

Clemson, now 2-1 in ACC play, could grab a share of lead by beating North Carolina, 3-0 in conference games. Duke, 3-1, would also be put in a tie for first by a Clemson victory.

Clemson Coach Hootie Ingram, who says his team has "jelled," Wednesday praised the practice work of senior full-back Wade Hughes. The Mechanicsville, Va., player will be a main cog in the Tigers' offense when they tackle the Tar Heels.

North Carolina State Coach Lou Holtz told his weekly news conference Wednesday he's concerned the Wolfpack might not be ready for Virginia on Saturday.

A main reason, he said, is injuries. Holtz said punter Mark Cassidy is out for the rest of the season with calcium deposits on his leg. Defensive end

Jim Nelson has a back injury and flanker Mike Hardy pulled a hamstring in practice. Defensive back Mike Stultz has injured his knee, Holtz said.

A win over Virginia would keep the Wolfpack in contention for the conference crown with a 3-1-1 ACC record.

Virginia's Cavaliers worked indoors Wednesday after an all-day rain soaked the practice field. Virginia has beaten N.C. State only once in the last 24 years.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Sporting News Wednesday named the following National and American League All-Star teams.

American League:

First base, Dick Allen of Chicago; second base, Rod Carew of Minnesota; third base, Brooks Robinson of Baltimore; shortstop Luis Aparicio of Boston; outfielders, Joe Rudi of Oakland, Bobby Murcer of New York and Richie Scheinblum of Kansas City; catcher, Carlton Fisk of Boston, and pitchers, Gaylord Perry of Cleveland and Wilbur Wood of Chicago.

National League:

First base, Willie Stargell of Pittsburgh; second base, Joe Morgan of Cincinnati; third base Ron Santo of Chicago; shortstop Chris Speier of San Francisco; outfielders, Billy Williams of Chicago, Cesar Cedeño of Houston and Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh; catcher Johnny Bench of Cincinnati, and pitchers, Steve Carlton of Philadelphia and Ferguson Jenkins of Chicago.

The paper named Williams as the NL Player of the Year and Carlton as Pitcher of the Year.

In the American League, Allen was named Player of the Year and Wood was the Pitcher of the Year.

Asks For Inquiry

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jack Kelly Jr., president of the Amateur Athletic Union, has called for a congressional investigation into the activities and function of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Kelly, a former Olympic oarsman, said Wednesday he will ask that a special commission be formed to determine the legitimate scope of the NCAA's activities, including methods of enforcement employed by the NCAA's executive offices under Executive Director Walter Byers.

In a prepared statement, triggered by the announcement last week that the NCAA intends to withdraw from the Olympic movement, Kelly said, "There is intrinsic evil in Mr. Byers and his lieutenants. It is the blatant intimidation and harassment of these athletes and their schools that strikes at the very core of their personal freedoms."

Kelly charged that Byers had been thwarted in his attempt to gain control of the U.S. Olympic Committee and had "in a characteristic fit of pique, decided to remove the organization he so tightly controls from further cooperation."

Matmen Get Out

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — The U.S. Wrestling Federation has become the third amateur athletic association to withdraw its support from the U.S. Olympic Committee.

The decision was voted by the federation's governing council and announced Wednesday by Myron Roderick, executive director. Similar action was announced last week by the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the U.S. Track and Field Federation.

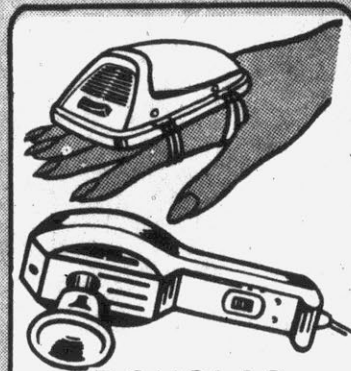

The wrestling federation also urged Congress to speed an investigation of USOC policies and practices.

Roderick said the Olympic committee "and its subcommittee on wrestling are puppets of the Amateur Athletic Union and have been for years."

Gallup Poll

union workers.
Age also has a direct bearing on manual worker's presidential preferences with new voters (18 to 24 year olds) favoring McGovern by a 5-to-4 ratio, while their older counterparts, including the 25 to 29 year olds, vote heavily for Nixon.
Following is the vote by age groups among blue collar workers:

	Nixon	McG.	Undec.
18-24 years	43	53	4
Under 30	50	47	3
30-49 years	51	41	8
50 & older	58	35	7

Catholics Evenly Divided in Vote
Other factors which bear directly on the presidential preferences of manual workers are religion and ethnic background. Protestant manual workers lean heavily to Nixon whereas Catholics are about evenly divided between the two presidential candidates.

In terms of ethnic background, Nixon holds a wide lead over McGovern among those manual workers who trace their ancestry to what are sometimes termed the "old" immigrant groups — persons from the United Kingdom (England, Scotland, Wales, Northern Ireland), from Germany and Austria, from the Scandinavian countries, and from Ireland.

Among these groups Nixon's lead is particularly pronounced among so-called WASP — Anglo-Saxon Protestants from the United Kingdom, Scandinavians, Germans, etc. Irish Americans, while favoring Nixon over McGovern, give the President a somewhat smaller lead than do the WASP groups.

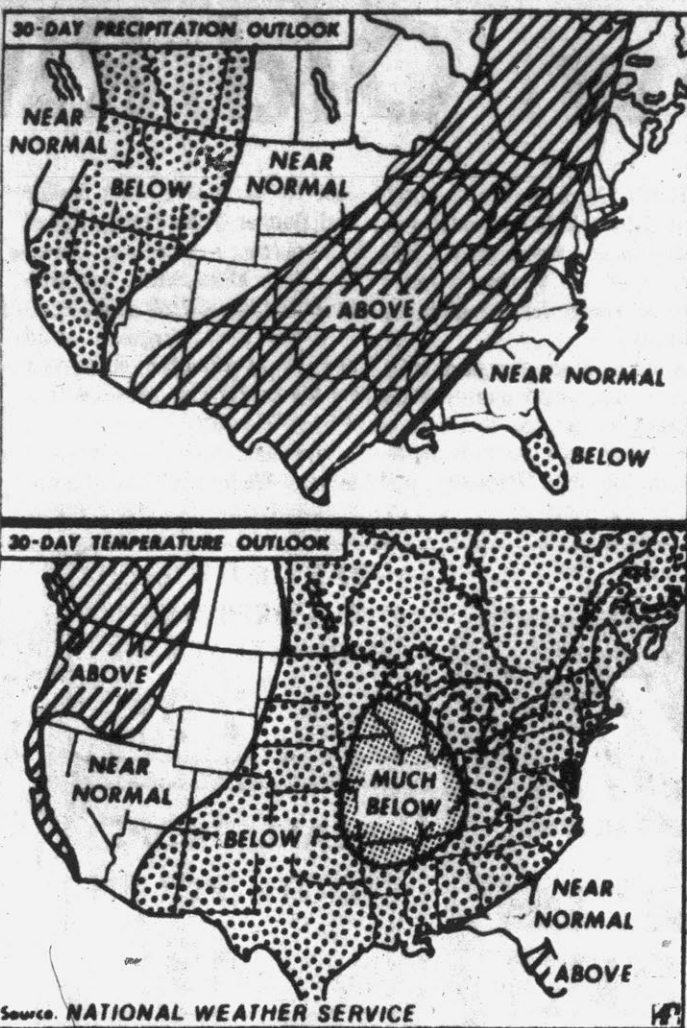

In the case of manual workers who trace their forebears to immigrant groups who came to this country relatively recently — the Italians, Middle and Eastern Europeans and those from Latin countries, such as Puerto Rico, Mexico, etc. — McGovern is preferred over Nixon. Differences can be noted among the main groups comprising what is frequently labeled the "ethnic" vote, however. Whereas Italians lean marginally to Nixon, workers with a Latin background represent one of McGovern's most solid voting bloc, and give the South Dakota Senator nearly as large a vote as do blacks.

The following tables show the vote by religion and ethnic background among blue collar workers:

	Nixon	McG.	Undec.
	%	%	%
Protestants	57	37	6
Catholics	48	46	6

	Nixon	McG.	Undec.
	%	%	%
'Old' Immigrant Groups	69	26	5
WASPs	72	5	3
Irish	58	34	8
Recent Immigrant Groups	44	49	7
Italians	51	41	8
Middle East Europeans	49	44	7
Latins	25	71	4
Blacks	16	81	3

McGovern Leads In Largest Cities
Presidential preferences vary markedly depending on where manual workers live. For example, in cities with over

Bishops Endorse Women Priests

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The Episcopal House of Bishops has decided that women should be admitted into the priesthood.

They voted 74-61 Wednesday in favor of it. Five did not vote. The resolution must be approved by both the House of Bishops and the House of Deputies.

50,000 inhabitants, McGovern has a slight edge over Nixon. In communities under 50,000 inhabitants Nixon holds a wide lead over the South Dakota Senator.

Similarly, the trial heat vote differs depending on the section of the country in which manual workers reside. Nixon holds wide leads over McGovern in the East, Midwest and the South. In the 13 states comprising the Western region of the country, however, McGovern is preferred over Nixon by a margin to 48 per cent to 43 per cent.

The following tables show the blue collar vote by city size and region of the nation:

	Nixon	McG.	Undec.
	%	%	%
50,000 & over	39	48	13
2,500-49,999	52	41	7
Under 2,500	67	26	7
East	55	38	7
Midwest	51	43	6
South	58	38	4
West	43	48	9

The survey findings reported today are based on interviews with a total of 3,870 registered voters out of a total sample of 4,855 adults, 18 and older. Survey respondents were interviewed in person in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation during the first three weeks of October.

Blame Duke Power For Fish Disease

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Duke Power Co.'s Marshall Steam Station has caused an unusual fish disease at Lake Norman north off Charlotte and the Atomic Energy Commission thinks the firm's proposed McGuire Nuclear Station would cause similar problems.
A Duke Power spokesman says documented cases of the gas-bubble disease, which occurs in winter months, have so far been limited to "hundreds" of fish.
The disease was discussed Wednesday at Atomic Safety & Licensing Board hearings on the McGuire plant's environmental impact.
The Duke spokesman said further studies are in progress to determine what role the disease plays in winter month fish kills at the firm's Marshall Station.
The three-man federal licensing board must decide whether to grant Duke permission to build its proposed McGuire Nuclear Station.
According to an Atomic Energy Commission environmental report, a sampling at Marshall's discharge canal and "hot hole" fishing area during the 1970-71 winter showed gas-bubble symptoms in 13 species of warm-water fish. Lake Norman is stocked with 37 species. The gas-bubble disease "apparently has been caused by the great change—as much as 28 degrees—in the temperature of lake water as it passes through Marshall's steam condensers, officials said.

The temperature change creates oxygen and nitrogen gas bubbles in the lake water a Duke spokesman said.

MUST GO ON WELFARE TO LIVE — Kevin Marshall, 12, a hemophiliac victim, gets an assist from his mother in their Camp Hill, Pa. home after the state said the Marshall family must go on welfare to get medicine to keep Kevin alive, as Mr. Marshall makes too much money — $7,800 a year. Governor Shapp interceded and Kevin will be sent to Philadelphia Children Hospital for treatment. Mrs. Marshall said her drug payments kept the family broke. (AP Wirephoto)

Offer A Compilation Of Constitution Amendments

As a public service, the Pitt County-Greenville League of Women Voters has made available a compilation of the five amendments to the Constitution of the State of North Carolina that will be voted on in the forthcoming November 7 elections.

For the benefit of voters unfamiliar with the amendments, the league has provided arguments both for and against each amendment. These are:

—For or Against the amendment reducing the voting age to 18 years and providing that only persons 21 years of age or older shall be eligible for elective office.

For (in favor of passing the amendment)

1. These persons are not mature.
2. They have not completed their educations.
3. The constitution has already set age 30 for Governor and Lt. Governor, and 25 for State Senator.
4. These persons could take over college town council elections.

Against (against passing the amendment)

1. The constitution defines office holders as any eligible voter except Governor, Lt. Governor and State Senator.

2. If qualified to vote, persons should not be barred from seeking office.

3. 18 year olds are legally of age for purposes of marriage, contracts, and debts.

—For or Against the amendment to require the General Assembly to prescribe maximum age limits for service as a justice or judge.

For (in favor of passing the amendment)

1. Mandatory retirement principle has been practiced by industry and other state agencies.
2. The General Assembly has determined retirement ages as 72 for appellate judges and 70 for all other justices and judges, well over the peak of a man's productivity.
3. The use of judges over retirement age could still be possible under the emergency use of capable men as it is now.

Against (against passing the amendment)

1. A judge's ability to serve should not be measured by his age, but by his handling of the job.
2. With the crowded court dockets, it is not wise to reduce the ranks of qualified judges.

—For or Against the amendment authorizing the General Assembly to prescribe procedures for the censure and removal of Justices and Judges of the General Court of Justice.

For (in favor of passing the amendment)

1. This method would allow objective inquiry into legitimate complaints of mental or physical disability or misconduct in office.

2. Impeachment proceedings are expensive, cumbersome and are subject of political considerations.

3. Experience of other states with this method indicates most judges resign or retire early if bona fide charges are brought against them.

4. The traditional independence of the judiciary would not be endangered since individual decisions could not be part of the inquiry.

5. The commission procedure is nothing more than an inquiry into whether the judge is fit to continue to hold public trust.

6. It is difficult to be informed about judges since they serve in districts, but are elected on a state-wide basis.

Against (against passing the amendment)

1. Impeachment proceedings can now under the law be instituted against any serious misconduct.
2. The Commission would be predominantly judges and lawyers and they would not expose any wrongdoing of a fellow professional.

3. Justices and judges are elected by the people and if they are unfit to serve, the electorate will not re-elect them.

—For or Against amendment to conserve and protect N. C.'s natural resources.

For (in favor of the amendment)

1. The amendment may serve as a constitutional basis for future state and local action on air and water pollution.
2. The State Nature and Historic Preserve will admit property on a 3-5 vote of the General Assembly and it could not be removed without a 3-5 vote in favor.

Against (against passing the amendment)

1. Too much of the state's resources are being set aside into nontaxable categories, increasing taxes on other taxable private property.
2. The state already has enough statutory basis for controlling pollution and conserving resources.

—For or Against amendment limiting incorporation of cities and towns.

For (in favor of the amendment)

1. Small towns that incorporate on the fringes of larger cities cause an unnecessary duplication of services and taxing agencies.

2. Within the set distances, incorporation could occur only on a 3-5 vote of the General Assembly.

3. Fringe areas use and benefit from services of larger cities, but do not contribute to the tax base, so annexation is sometimes preferable.

Against (against the amendment)

1. The people adjacent to larger cities should be able to determine their own course of action.

2. Smaller governmental units are sometimes more responsive to citizen demands.

Plan Saturday Bicycling Race

On Saturday morning, the East Carolina University Campus Union is sponsoring a multiple bicycle race around the mall on the ECU campus. The races will start at 10:00, beginning with 10-speed bikes and working on down to the old fashioned coaster-brake bikes. There will even be a special category for tandem bikes.

Although the races are mainly for the staff, students, and alumni of ECU, the Carolina Cycle Club will register all residents of Pitt County without charge.

There will perhaps be man cyclists who will average about 25 mph around the mall. However, no one expects any world records to be established.

The world record for bicycle speed was set on July 19, 1962 by Frenchman Jose Meiffret. He reached the incredible speed of 127.243 mph under his own power on a bicycle.

Tentative schedule for the various races are: 10:00 a.m., promenade to precede the races; 10:05 a.m. one lap, 10 speed bikes, girls; 10:15 a.m. one lap, 10 speed, boys; 10:25 a.m., one lap, five speed, girls; 10:35 a.m., one lap, five speed, boys; 10:45 a.m. one lap, three speed, girls; 10:55 a.m., one lap, three speed, boys; 11:05 a.m., three laps, mono speed, girls; 11:15 a.m., five laps, mono speed, boys; 11:25 a.m., five laps, mono speed, open; 11:45 a.m., two laps, tandem; 11:55 a.m., one lap, multi speed; and 12:00 noon, three laps, mono speed.

At 12:15 the style and design event will be the final event of the homecoming bicycle events.

For the tandem event at 11:45 a.m., any combination will be permitted in this event. It can be girl, boy; boy, boy; girl, girl; alumni, student; student, staff, etc.

All entries in the events who are not staff, student, or alumni must be sponsored by a student.

State DECA Conference To Be Held Here

Two North Carolina state-wide high school youth organizations, Vocational-Industrial Clubs of America (VICA) and Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA) will be holding district leadership training conferences during November.

Greenville will be the site of one of the ten DECA conferences being held in the state in the first half of November.

On Tuesday, November 14, a DECA conference will be held at J. H. Rose High School.

At the conference, district officers will be elected and competitive activities will be held. The main purpose of the conference is to help students become more effective leaders in their local organization.

Flight Ban Will Permit Sleeping

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — A ban on late night takeoffs and landings at the Geneva, Zurich and Basel airports went into effect today so the neighbors can sleep better.

Scheduled airline flights are prohibited between 12:30 a.m. and 5 a.m. and charter flights from 11 p.m. to 6 a.m.

A government spokesman said the ban was imposed because the interests of persons living near the airports can no longer be ignored. The airlines claim air traffic now will be denser and louder during the remaining operating hours, and residents' associations asked for a ban of at least eight hours.

Named To Head C-of-C Work

WASHINGTON (AP) — William G. Van Meter has been named executive manager of the United States Chamber of Commerce, succeeding the late Charles W. Harbaugh.

Van Meter, an attorney who was appointed to the post Wednesday, has been a member of the chamber staff for 21 years. He will have charge of the programs and projects as well as much of the internal administration of the business federation.

Both Parties Claim Black Vote To Go Their Way

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

Black men in both of North Carolina's political camps are predicting that black voters will swing their way in statewide elections this fall.

But the best estimates appear to be that the black vote will be small and that it will be mostly Democratic, as it has in the past.

Republican Senate candidate Jesse Helms' aides say he has no organizers working strictly in the black community to win him votes. But the rest of the statewide candidates — Democrat Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles and Republican Jim Holshouser for governor and Democratic Senate candidate Nick Galifianakis — have black men stumping for them at meetings across the state.

Holshouser recently announced the formation of a 15-member committee of blacks in support of his campaign. One of its members, Raleigh broadcasting executive James Delaney, said they key to the Republican effort was a change in the attitudes of black voters.

"We feel the black citizen is intelligent and is not going to be bought and made a political prostitute anymore," Delaney said.

Delaney referred to the widespread practice in past campaigns in which black political leaders were paid by white candidates to get out the vote in their areas — most often for Democrats.

If such money is being spread around this year — and some of the candidates will admit off the record that it is — it is being done under the table.

Chapel Hill Mayor Howard Lee, a black who has been stumping extensively for Bowles, said, "as far as I know, there has been no money coming in from the candidates," but he added that it has been spent in past elections and might be in this one.

Lee, an unsuccessful congressional candidate in the Democratic primary this year, said, in general, "money is still important to get the vote out."

In most instances, he explained, party leaders gather the money from the candidates, then give it to black political leaders. The candidates who contribute are placed on a "slate."

The precinct leaders pass some of the money to "haulers" who provide the cars that transport the voters to the polls. On the way, they are handed the "slate" and urged to vote for it.

"If there's a fellow who's going to use his car to get people to the polls, he should get maybe $10 or $15," or about half the going rate in most cities, Lee said. "The rest of the work should be done by volunteers."

Lee said he would like to see black community organizations raise the money needed to get out the vote, but he has seen only a "glimmer" of that type of effort in his travels around the state.

Without independent funds, he said, the black vote's impact is lost after the election. "Is it more important to take the money now," he asked, "or to have the candidate owing you something after he's elected?"

Most black politicians discount the prospect of either a significant swing to the Republican column by blacks or an organized effort to "go fishing" on election day.

Eric Michaux, a black staff member of Democratic Senate candidate Nick Galifianakis, says he finds a "great deal of sentiment for Galifianakis."

Michaux said the Galifianakis support is shored by a lot of anti-Helms feeling.

Michaux does not stress Galifianakis' record on civil rights. "He doesn't have an outstanding civil rights record. But he has done some things along the lines of OEO programs which have put federal funds into the hands of minority groups."

Helms' campaign manager, Tom Ellis, said "Everytime Galifianakis has run in the past, he's had the black vote.

Whether there's going to be any change on the part of the colored community, I couldn't tell you."

Delaney, the black broadcaster working for Helms, threw out a prediction that Holshouser would carry the black vote, but he was not backed up by Hugh Barnes, the Holshouser aide who monitors the effort to get it.

"I think we'll get about 15 per cent of the black vote," Barnes said. "It could go as high as 25 per cent if we do really well."

Lee agreed, in general, with that prediction. He said he thinks Bowles will carry the black vote but he is not certain it will be by enough to insure his victory.

Lee said he thinks Republican inroads might be made on the national ticket.

Whatever the percentage, on one seems to think there will be a large black turnout. "People are still waiting in some places for the candidates to bring them money," Lee said.

"I wish I knew why there's so much apathy," he said.

"People just aren't interested," their voting strength is general. Blacks make up 22 per cent of the state's population, but 15 per cent in recent years.

The Worry Clinic Aura Of Crises Can Fool Many

Robert Burrow is a versatile Gannett newspaper publisher. So I relished dining with him at the testimonial banquet for Leslie Arends. And I enjoyed my son David's terse dissection of the "Invisible Pollution" via "crisis strategy."

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

Case V-534: Robert Burrow is the talented Gannett publisher at Danville, Illinois.

"Dr. Crane," he telephoned, "we are having a testimonial banquet for Leslie Arends, who has represented us in Congress for 22 years."

"Since the 1970 Census has taken our county out of his district, we wish to salute his splendid, statesmanlike service in this farewell gathering."

"We have invited your son, Dr. David G. Crane, to deliver the main address, so I'd be glad to have you and Mrs. Crane come to the banquet as my guests."

Invisible Pollution

It was a real delight to visit. Bob Burrow again and congratulate Congressman Arends on having set the world's record for length of time as Minority Whip in the U.S. House of Representatives.

Besides, I enjoy hearing my sons orate, as you parents can well understand.

David spoke on the "Invisible Pollution" that is poisoning the minds of Americans.

He mentioned that we are in an age where many politicians try to keep us agitated by screaming about the population crisis, or education crisis, or ecological crisis, or water crisis, etc.

Then he quoted an analysis of the air in 1910, compared with a current survey that proved the air we breathe has the very same amount of oxygen nowadays as was true 60 years ago!

And our drinking water is also purer today than was true a generation ago!

"As regards the population crisis," David added, "we could put all the 209,000,000 people of the U.S.A. into the state of Illinois, with each family of 3 people having a lot 100 feet wide and 200 feet deep!

"That would leave all the other 49 states for recreation or food production!"

(Actually, we could even place all the world's population in Texas alone, with an ample city lot for every family of 4, and still leave two recreation parks as large as the state of Rhode Island!)

David likewise demolished the attempt to scare voters via the educational crisis.

For he showed that thousands of school rooms are becoming vacant, due to the reduction in birth rate in America.

So this "crisis strategy" is merely a convenient political stunt for stampeding voters into casting their ballots for con- vinning candidates!

For there is an age-old law of Applied Psychology that it is far easier to stampede sheep and cattle when they are excitedly milling around and scared!

Same goes for "human sheep," too!

For emotional excitement checkmates logical thinking and renders the audience (or herd) vulnerable to mob leaders.

A recent governmental report also mentioned that there is LESS dust pollution nowadays than a generation ago!

Obviously, it is wise to start protecting the fish in streams by curtailing the dumped manufacturing waste materials into rivers and lakes.

But "horse sense" is needed, even in such vital areas.

Alas, some TV newscasters delight in "shockeroo" broad- casts, for then they can slant news till the video audience

Filmed Animal Misuse Censored

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The American Broadcasting Co. has cut from two Paramount pictures all animal footage that the American Humane Association has objected to, the AHA says.

The films, "A Gunfight" and "Waterloo," are scheduled for network telecasts.

Both the films had been classified "unacceptable" when they were released theatrically because of the animal se- quences, said Harold Melniker.

INSECT WAR

NEW YORK (UPI) —The New York Academy of Sciences sponsored a conference titled "Regulation of Insect Popu- lation by Micro-organisms." The idea of turning the microorgan- isms on insects is gaining in appeal with the decreasing use of sometimes harmful chemical pesticides, the Academy reported. Microorganisms which are harmful to insects might stop the insects from gaining on humans.

TWELFTH ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

in Greenville this

FRIDAY, SATURDAY & SUNDAY

Nov. 3, 4 & 5, 1972

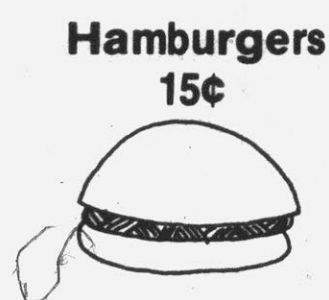

From 1 restaurant in 1960 to 640 in 1972.
Now 3 in Greenville.

Greenville is where it started for Hardee's back in 1960. And since then the Hardee's name and charco-broiled Hamburgers have spread to 640 restaurants in 34 states. But no matter where Hardee's goes, it still remembers where it all started. So this weekend Hardee's is having a super 12th Anniversary Celebration and the Grand Opening of its third Greenville restaurant just to thank you . . . the people of Greenville.

Hardee's has rolled back its prices to 1960 on these menu items...

To celebrate, Hardee's is selling its charco-broiled hamburgers, cheeseburgers, french fries and soft drinks all at their original 1960 prices.
