New Rounds of Peace Talks Slated In Paris Today

By United Press International
President Nixon unexpectedly returned to the White House Saturday for a final talk with Henry A. Kissinger, who leaves Sunday morning for a climactic round of negotiations in Paris aimed at achieving Vietnam peace within weeks.

five hours, apparently to discuss the proposed peace settlement. The Security Council meeting was the longest in recent history.

Kissinger, President Nixon's chief adviser on foreign policy, leaves Washington Sunday for the trip to Paris, where he will meet with North Vietnamese negotiator Le Duc Tho on Monday. Tho arrived in Paris Friday and expressed the hope that a peace agreement would be rapidly signed.

More Consultations
There were indications from the White House, however, that a final peace agreement would not officially be completed for some time.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said that after the Kissinger-Tho talks, which were expected to last "several days or more," there would be a need for consultations with the South Vietnamese and perhaps also the North Vietnamese.

But the administration remained firm in stating that the upcoming talks would be the last and would produce a peace settlement within a matter of weeks.

In Saigon sources close to the South Vietnamese president said Saturday's gathering there was told in strong terms that Thieu was not eager to shift his position on the nine-point peace plan, on which he has expressed serious reservations about several points. These include questions on what will happen to about 145,000 North Vietnamese troops holding positions in the South.

Waldheim Optimistic
Present at the meeting were Vice President Tran Van Huong, Premier Tran Thien Kiem, Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam, Gen. Cao Van Vien, chairman of the joint general staff, Foreign Affairs Adviser Nguyen Phu Duc and presidential press secretary Hoang Duc Nha.

At the United Nations in New York, Secretary General Kurt Waldheim welcomed the resumption of the Paris talks.

A spokesman said Waldheim hoped the outcome "will be peace in Vietnam and that efforts for the reconstruction and rehabilitation of the country can begin as soon as possible."

Coincidental with the resumption of the talks, peace groups across the United States gathered in protest to force the signing of a cease-fire agreement. The demonstrations were announced before the U.S. presidential election and had no connection to the White House announcement Friday that the talks in Paris would continue Monday.

Differences Remain
The meeting in Paris was requested by the Nixon Administration to iron out the differences remaining from two sessions in Paris during October. The North Vietnamese had demanded that a cease-fire agreement be signed on Oct. 31, but they relented to U.S. insistence and named Monday as the date for the next meeting.

Kissinger will be accompanied on the trip by his chief deputy, Brig. Gen. Alexander M. Haig, and five members of the national security staff.

Xuan Thuy, leader of North Vietnam's delegation to the semipublic Paris talks, will take part in the negotiations with Le Duc Tho, who is a member of the Hanoi politburo.

Close Vote Expected In West German Elections

By WELLINGTON LONG
BONN (UPI) — West German Chancellor Willy Brandt and his Christian Democratic rival, Rainer Barzel, were reported running neck-and-neck by public opinion polls Saturday on the eve of parliamentary elections they hoped would break the parliamentary deadlock that has paralyzed public business since May.

the good neighbor treaty he has concluded with East Germany if he wins the election. He told a West Berlin rally he is "quietly confident" of victory.

Policies Contested
Barzel said that if he wins, he will reopen talks with East Germany in an attempt to win more concessions than did Brandt.

The major issues are Brandt's policies of reconciliation with the Communist governments in Eastern Europe and his government's failure to prevent price rises averaging between six and seven per cent this year.

Brandt, Germany's first Social Democratic government chief in 40 years, came to power in 1969, but only with the help of Walter Scheel's tiny Free Democratic Party.

When they took office, Brandt and Scheel had a majority of only 12 seats in the 496-member Bundestag (lower house of parliament.)

Budget Measure Fails
Defections quickly whittled that down until their majority was wiped out during the debates over treaties with the Soviet Union and Poland.

As a result of the deadlock, the government was unable to put through its budget and other controversial legislation. The pact was approved only because the opposition Christian Democrats agreed to abstain.

Ten days ago, Brandt concluded another treaty with East Germany. But under opposition pressure, he agreed to let the voters decide whether he should sign it.

Brandt said he had negotiated with East Germany because that was the only way he could lower the barriers raised between the two German states.

Barzel said in all of his 100 speeches that Brandt tolerates inflation as an excuse to replace West Germany's market economy with Socialist regulation.

Brandt denied this and West Germany is the victim of world-wide inflation, and that his government had prevented unemployment.

Welfare Crackdown Planned

CHARLOTTE (AP)—North Carolina's commissioner of social services, Clifton Craig says a crackdown on cheating welfare recipients is planned across North Carolina.

Craig told The Charlotte Observer Saturday, "I place a high priority on weeding out people who don't deserve what they are getting. I don't know of anyone who says we shouldn't help people who are in need and give them what they need."

"But there are a lot of cheaters on the rolls and I intend to do something about it," he added.

The commissioner said his staff has compiled a list of all persons on welfare who, according to the state Employment Security Commission, have worked while receiving benefits. If those persons have not reported earnings correctly, they may be prosecuted.

Eight Charlotte women were given suspended sentences last week for not reporting earnings while on welfare, and two more Mecklenburg County cases are scheduled for court action this week.

Craig said his staff first checked a sampling of welfare recipients in the Charlotte and Raleigh areas. He said a check is being made of all recipients in Durham, Guilford, Forsyth and Cumberland counties—the other large areas in the state.

Two Adrift 38 Days On Plank

TOKYO (AP) — Two Indonesians who had been adrift 38 days in the Pacific on a small wooden plank arrived at Yaizu, central Japan, today aboard a Japanese fishing boat that picked them up Nov. 8.

Port officials identified them as Moniko Pusurumang, 42, and Belemon Kanalung, 20, mango sellers. They were quoted as saying they left their home island of Siau on Oct. 2 and their small boat capsized in a heavy squall. Two other persons aboard the boat were lost.

The 285-ton No. 1 Oasu Maru picked up the survivors about 450 miles southeast of the Palau Islands, the officials said. They were hospitalized for exhaustion at Yaizu.

Monsoon Cuts Air Strikes

By KENNETH F. ENGLADE
SAIGON (UPI) — Pounding monsoon rains and low lying clouds cut American air strikes over North Vietnam to one-tenth of their record-setting level of three days ago, the U.S. command said Saturday.

"The weather is really soaked in. It's solid clouds, rain and thunderstorms," a command spokesman said. The Communists were expected to take advantage of the bad weather to step up their supply shipments to the South.

Both sides are rushing to stockpile equipment in the South in anticipation of an expected cease-fire.

Two Air Force pilots were shot down while on a reconnaissance mission over the North before the storm front moved in. They were rescued uninjured 36 hours later.

However, two other Americans were wounded by small arms fire in separate incidents in South Vietnam.

The bad weather, which extended well into South Vietnam, cut fighter-bomber strikes over the North to only 30. On Tuesday they soared to more than 300—the heaviest of the war over North Vietnam's southern panhandle.

Most of Friday's strikes were made by F111's, which have a sophisticated radar system which allows the planes to attack in weather that grounds most other strikes. The B52 bombers, which fly above the weather, also flew reduced strikes over the North but continued pounding the South.

Ten May Have Died In Kentucky Crash

MADISONVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A twin-engine chartered plane believed to be carrying 10 passengers returning from a high school football game crashed on a farm near here early Saturday, gouging a fiery crater in the ground.

No survivors were found in the widely scattered wreckage, state police said.

Federal Aviation Administration officials and local authorities worked at the crash scene through the morning, but by shortly before noon had been unable to confirm the identities of bodies at the scene or make an accurate count.

The Beech aircraft, chartered from Metro Air Systems Inc. of Bardonia, was reportedly returning to Lexington from the Richmond-Madison-Trigg County High School football game at northern bombing boundary, the 20th parallel.

It was the first F105 shot down since Sept. 29 and the first American fighter-bomber downed by a SAM since Oct. 28.

Bad weather also stopped air strikes farther to the north, near Quang Tri City, but Communists kept up their artillery and mortar attacks against government troops, which have been hit by an average of more than 1,000 shells a day for the last week.

The occupants of the plane were all believed to have been from Richmond, and the Richmond Daily Register said two of its staff members were believed to have been aboard.

State police said the plane refueled at Hopkinsville's Memorial Airfield before departing.

The plane crashed at about midnight on the farm of Mrs. Richard Simons between Allegre and Britmart, about nine miles north of Elkton.

Mrs. Simons was awakened, she said, by "a huge blast or explosion—something—and it woke me up."

"And I looked out the window, which happened to be in the direction it was in, and there was a huge light just filling the sky, and I knew it was something burning."

The trophy was first presented to Dr. Leo Jenkins, chancellor of the university, who then handed it to Co-Captains Jim Post and Jimmy Creech. They in turn passed it along to Randle. The Bucs went 6-0 in the Southern this year to win their first uncontested title. (Reflector Photo)

South Carolina Teacher Fired— Doesn't Believe In Heaven or Hell

CLOVER, S.C. (AP)—A Clover, S.C., high school teacher said Friday she was fired because she told her ninth-grade science class she didn't believe in heaven or hell.

Mary Karen Burns, 23, a graduate of Mary Washington College in Fredericksburg, Va., said she made her statement during a discussion of evolution. She said she was sent home from her classes around noon Friday by Clover High School principal Chester Floyd.

Mrs. Burns said she told the students she doesn't believe in heaven or hell, but that those were her own religious beliefs, and that such beliefs are "a very personal thing."

The dismissal occurred, Mrs. Burns added, shortly after Colver Superintendent of Schools Martin Ramsey received a call from a parent requesting that her child be removed from Mrs. Burns' class because of the statements.

However, Ramsey denied Friday that Mrs. Burns was fired simply because she had expressed personal religious beliefs to her students. He said he had written a letter to Mrs. Burns explaining the action, but refused further comment.

Fogel said these might include: interdisciplinary approaches to education in the news and legal professions; continued discussion of problems with lawyers and judges;

Journalism Society Condemns Judicial Repression of Media

DALLAS (UPI) — Sigma Delta Chi, the professional journalism society, Saturday condemned what it called "judicial repression" of the media and other government attempts to impede the flow of information to the public.

The society's annual report on freedom of information, submitted to the convention of the 25,000-member organization, outlined battles for the right to know in 37 states and at the United Nations.

The report cited the Pentagon Papers case, the imprisonment of reporter Peter Bridge and the Defense Department's suppression of the Peers Report on My Lai as examples of government-media conflicts that showed the importance of the "continuing fight for access to news information."

"The power to know is the only means by which the people may govern themselves effectively," it said.

Conflict Analyzed
"When courts coerce the media with contempt orders they assume power which they should not. When petty, despotic bureaucrats withhold news, when executive privilege is asserted, when legislators confer in secret, all are usurping power from the citizens and all are lessening the public's ability to make effective collective judgments and decisions."

The report said the primacy of the First Amendment, providing freedom of the press, "ought by now to be recognized as a realization of the sovereignty of the people."

In a section of the report entitled "Newsmen vs. Courts—A Case for the People," William J. Small of CBS News in Washington analyzed the growing conflict between the media and the judiciary.

"There is no doubt in most newsmen's minds that they are rowing against a rising tide of judicial repression," Small said. "They have persuasive evidence—the mounting number of restrictive orders, contempt actions, scoldings, fines and threats of punishment."

Reardon Report Cited
Small, who served for several years on California's Bench-Bar-Media Committee and helped draft that state's Joint Declaration Regarding News

Coverage of Criminal Proceedings, cited the basic conflict between what the courts call "publicity" and reporters call "news."

He cited a report by Justice Paul C. Reardon of the Massachusetts Supreme Court to the American Bar Association, which urged "clinical insulation of juries, muzzling of trial participants and extensions of the contempt power," as a major factor in stirring up the storm between the courts and the media.

Small said far too few people in either the legal or news professions realize the courts and the media are mutually supportive and interdependent.

Dick Fogel, of the Oakland (Calif.) Tribune and chairman of the SDX Advancement of Freedom of Information Committee, suggested several means to overcome the problems between the media and the courts.

Fogel's Suggestions
Fogel said these might include: interdisciplinary approaches to education in the news and legal professions; continued discussion of problems with lawyers and judges;

improving journalistic standards and accuracy and responding to criticism; accepting and supporting applications of the contempt power limited to physical environs of the courtroom and aimed at disturbances therein and rejecting and fighting all arbitrary limitations on access to news information.

"Finally, take the case to the people," Fogel said. "It is only through them that the clashing interests of institution which serve them can be resolved."

Grant Dillman, of United Press International's Washington bureau and one of three vice-chairmen of the committee, reported that "one of the most vigorous fights for free access to information in 1972 centers on the Peers Report on the official investigation of the My Lai massacre."

Officers Could Have Fired Shots, Louisiana Governor Claims

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Gov. Edwin Edwards says law officers may have mistakenly fired buckshot instead of tear-gas cartridges at strife-torn Southern University, where two young men were killed during a campus disturbance.

"It's perfectly logical and reasonable," Edwards said Friday, "that one of the officers could have, in all the excitement, fired the wrong kind of ammunition. He may know it now and not be willing to tell."

Shotgun shells and tear-gas cartridges, Edwards added, are similar in appearance. State police and sheriff's office spokesmen, however, stuck to their contention that officers at the scene fired nothing but tear-gas cartridges.

Three weeks of campus unrest climaxed Thursday morning when a force of sheriff's deputies and state police moved to flush occupying students from the predominantly black school's administration building. The two young black men died in the confrontation that followed.

Two days after the clash, only one of the victims, Denver Smith, 20, of New Roads, La., had been identified. Local, state and federal authorities said they were trying to identify the other dead man. Autopsies by East Baton Rouge Parish Coroner Hypolite Landry showed both men, who fell at the same time and about three feet apart, had died of buckshot wounds in the head. Edwards ordered 500 National Guard troops onto the campus, closed it and said school would re-open after Thanksgiving.

Students on both of Southern's campuses, in New Orleans and Baton Rouge, have boycotted classes since Oct. 24. They demanded the firing of university President Dr. G. Leon Netterville and Dean Emmett Bashful, head of the New Orleans campus, both of whom are black.

In addition, the boycotting students said they wanted more voice in the school's administrative affairs.

Pakistan Claims Border Fire

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (AP) — A Pakistani government spokesman said Friday that Pakistani and Indian troops have exchanged fire along their borders and claimed the Indians were stepping up cease-fire violations to artificially build up tension.

An Indian government spokesman in New Delhi said the Pakistani allegations were "totally false and incorrect."

The Pakistani spokesman said Indian troops fired Thursday at Pakistani forward posts in the Sulaimanki sector along the international border and they had committed "numerous violations" in the Hajira sector of Kashmir Thursday and Friday.

The spokesman said violations started early in November, apparently after Pakistani and Indian military representatives failed to sign an agreement on the delineation of the line of control between their forces in Jammu and Kashmir.

67 Cars Derailed In Seaboard Wreck

CHESAPEAKE, Va. (AP) — Residents of several homes here were awakened shortly before midnight Friday by the shattering crash of a Seaboard Coast Line Railroad Co. freight train in their backyards.

The train wreck ruptured at least one of the four water mains serving Portsmouth, resulting in low water pressure throughout that city Saturday. City spokesmen said Portsmouth would not be without water, but the supply would be distributed lightly.

Three of the water mains run parallel to the track where the wreck occurred.

Sixty-seven cars of the 140-car train were derailed, destroying about a mile of track.

Wreckage was scattered throughout the area and in the backyards of several homes. Peanuts and soybeans were dumped by several wrecked cars.

There were no human injuries reported, but two of four beagles in a backyard dog house at the Tony Yates' residence were killed and another was seriously hurt as a truck trailer load on a flat car crashed through a fence and flattened the plywood structure.

The large metal section flew into the kitchen of the Charles E. Moore home, pushing an electric stove into the center of the room and knocking out a utility room wall. The five residents escaped without injury.

To Grow Turnips Try Some Noise

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Here's a quiz for the person who claims to know all about turnips:

A turnip will grow best and fastest if it is (a) in a noisy room, (b) in a quiet room, (c) wet, (d) dry or (e) any or none of the above.

The answers, say a botanist, physicist and chemist on the faculty of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, are a and c.

Dr. Vivian Toole, the botanist, explains, "The effect of noise on these seeds is most interesting. If the sound is applied before the seeds are wet, it has no effect; but when the seeds are wet, the sound really goes to work on them."

Dr. Toole, physicist Gaylord T. Hegetsch and chemist Irena Morrison are experimenting with turnips in a special sound chamber at UNC-G. Dr. Toole says, "We couldn't stand it otherwise. Listening to that constant noise would be exhausting." The noise comes from an electronic oscillator that subjects the seeds to sound at a 130-decibel level.

The scientists found that when the sound was stopped, germination of turnip seeds slowed. Once when the campus was hit by a sonic boom, germination increased.

Obesity Can Be Inherited Trait

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A child whose both parents are overweight stands an 80 per cent chance of having an obesity problem, according to the University of California Medical Center's obesity clinic.

With one overweight parent, the child's problem is cut in half to 40 per cent and if neither parent is overweight the chance is 15 per cent.

Ramsey Elected House Speaker

RALEIGH (AP) — Democrats who will make up the majority in the 1973 state House of Representatives unanimously elected Rep. James E. Ramsey Friday night as their speaker.

Ramsey will be formally elected when the General Assembly convenes in January.

The Democrats also nominated Rep. William T. Watkins, D-Granville, as speaker pro tem.

James E. Ramsey

Ramsey, a tall heavy-set attorney who has served in the House since 1963, sought to set the tone for the 1973 session in his acceptance remarks.

"I have seen the time in the past when our legislative branch of government has been subservient to the executive branch," Ramsey said. "We as Democrats have a challenge to restore and maintain the integrity of the legislative branch."

He said, however, that he did not want "petty politics" to play a part in the difference in "opinion, philosophy and policy" he foresaw between the Democratic legislative majority and Gov.-elect Jim Holshouser.

Ramsey told newsmen that Watkins will have an expanded role in the 1973 session, working to move legislation through the committee and to the House floor.

Koala, the name given the Australian bear, means "the animal which does not drink."

Missing Cigarettes Searched For

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — State and federal agents are looking for an estimated $100,000 worth of cigarettes missing from a trailer stolen from a Kernersville truck terminal.

The Forsyth County Sheriff's Department says the empty trailer and tractor were found early Saturday morning near Lexington.

The rig belonged to Roadway Express Inc. A company official said whoever stole the truck apparently selected a tractor at the Kernersville terminal, hooked it to the trailer and pulled away.

The cargo of 34,000 pounds of cigarettes was to have gone to Cincinnati.

An FBI spokesman said that such thefts happen "all the time." The spokesman, an agent in Charlotte, said he can recall two or three such thefts in the Forsyth County area in the last 10 months.

Both the FBI and the State Bureau of Investigation keep files on a loose-knit organization of criminals in North Carolina known to be part of the so-called Dixie-Mafia.

Drive To Save Tigers

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The Indian Board for Wildlife adopted the tiger today as India's national animal and announced a massive drive to save the animal from extinction.

Dr. Karan Singh, the minister for tourism, said the drive will begin next April and will cost $6.7 million.

The national animal has been the lion since 1967. Singh told Ramsey told newsmen in answer to questions he hopes to get the House working more efficiently.

"We are going to have the committees appointed by Dec. 15," he said. "And everyone will have his office key over the holidays so that when they get here, we can start working on the first day."

When asked about annual legislative sessions, Ramsey said he opposes them because they would lead to the rise of the "professional legislator."

But, he said, there are strong arguments in favor of yearly meetings.

Jordan To NATO Session

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lame-duck Sen. Everett B. Jordan, D-N.C., is in Bonn, Germany to represent the Senate at the 18th annual session of the North Atlantic Assembly.

Jordan is one of 21 senators and 13 House members delegated to attend the NATO session in behalf of the U.S. Congress.

Jordan, 76, of Saxapahaw, N.C. was beaten in the primary in his bid for re-election.

The NATO conference begins Sunday and ends Nov. 24.

An aide to the senator said Mrs. Jordan, but none of his staff, will accompany Jordan on the trip. The aide said Jordan will pay his wife's travel expenses. Jordan's own expenses will be paid by the Senate.

Afterwards the Jordans plan to go to the Soviet Union with others from the congressional delegation to confer with Russians leaders in Moscow.

the board the number of lions in the country had dwindled to 177 and that the king of beasts is found in only one state, Gujarat.

Singh said there were 50,000 tigers in India in 1900. Now there are only a few more than 2,000 scattered over 10 of the 21 states.

Shooting of tigers has been forbidden since last year.

THIS ATOMIC

NCSU NUCLEAR LESSON... Robert Fleming, N.C. State University engineer, illustrates lessons in nuclear energy with the use of plastic ball tagged with tracer atoms.

How tiny is an atom? If every person and every car in the United States were reduced to the size of an atom and placed on the sharpened end of a pencil, there would still be wide open spaces on the point and no traffic jams.

Robert Fleming, a North Carolina State University engineer, uses this illustration to introduce North Carolina high school students to the wonders of "This Atomic World."

Fleming is taking the lecture-demonstration program, sponsored by the NCSU School of Engineering, into 150 public schools across the State this academic year.

A native of Greenville, Fleming will travel some 30,000 miles in a panel truck loaded with atomic equipment, including models of a particle accelerator and a nuclear reactor.

He is carrying the story of nuclear energy and its peaceful uses and an account of the opportunities for careers in engineering to approximately 100,000 students and their teachers.

The traveling exhibit is co-sponsored by the North Carolina Engineering Foundation, the Atomic Energy Commission, and the Oak Ridge Associated Universities.

Fleming divides his program into two segments: lecture-demonstrations during the assembly program and detailed discussions in science classes and counseling sessions.

He uses specially designed equipment to show sources of radiation, the harnessing of nuclear energy to generate electricity and the use of radioisotopes in medicine, agriculture and industry.

In career discussions, he details the branches of engineering and the functions of the engineer in today's technological endeavors. From design and development to operations, management and research, he points to engineering challenges in improving the environment and solving society's problems.

He also notes that the average starting salary for B.S. graduates from NCSU's engineering school last year was approximately $850 per month. Fleming will conduct "This Atomic World" program at a number of schools in North Carolina, including North Pitt High School, Bethel, on Dec. 7.

Revival Services Announced

Revival services will be held at Friendship FWB Church, Snow Hill, Monday through Friday, Nov. 20-24.

Special speakers and choirs will be on hand each night at 8 p.m. to bring the message. Guest evangelists include: The Rev. Joe Anna Garis; the Rev. Elizabeth Banks, Evangelist Betty Gardner; and Evangelist Vanestine Banks.

Prayer for the sick will be given each night.

Strike Effects Price Of Food In Hawaii

HONOLULU (AP) — Hawaii's food prices, already among the highest in the United States, are rising again — because of a strike more than 2,000 miles away.

Shoppers are paying 33 cents a pound for potatoes for which they paid 23 cents a few weeks ago. 59 cents for tomatoes that used to cost 49 and $1.33 for round steak that was $1.29.

The price hikes are due to a new disruption of the island state's vital shipping links to the U.S. mainland, the fourth in the past 1 1/2 years.

The strike by the Masters, Mates and Pilots Union against the Pacific Maritime Association, now in its fourth week, has left only two shipping companies, Seatrain and U.S. Lines, operating normally to Hawaii. The association is headquartered on the West Coast.

Food merchants, finding themselves unable to get space aboard ships for their supplies, are turning to air cargo, a considerably more expensive delivery system.

P.Y. Chang, operator of the Times supermarket chain, said he spent $6.76 per carton to fly in a load of 50-pound cartons of select potatoes that cost only $5.90 per carton.

Excavations

PARIS (AP) — The general conference of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization today called on Israel to stop archeological excavations in Jerusalem.

The demand was made in a resolution approved by a 54-3 vote, with 20 abstentions.

Now, for the first time ever, you can get a mortgage commitment before you even look for a home.

We're not saying we were the first to come up with the idea. No, anyone who's ever looked for a house has wished such a thing existed.

What we're saying is that we're the first financial institution around here with the courage to actually do it.

Give you a mortgage ahead of time.

That mortgage, The Early Mortgage, is our commitment on paper to reserve a certain sum for you. You don't have to use all the money. You don't even have to use any. But for three months, the term of The Early Mortgage, you have the certainty that if you need that money to buy a house, it's going to be there.

And, if interest rates should go up during that period, you are not affected at all. You get the exact rate of interest that we agreed upon when we first approved your Early Mortgage.

When you do find a house you want, we'll look it over and make sure it justifies your investment. That works for you, and is something we have to do on every mortgage in any case. And there'll still be "closing costs." We haven't found a way to do away with them yet. But that's about it.

House hunting just became a lot simpler. 🏠

Nixon, As Never-Before Seen

Richard M. Nixon begins his final term as president and, almost certainly, his final service in an elective office.

He becomes a second term president with one of the greatest landrises in history and the big vote follows a remarkable record for the president during the past four years.

It was a time when the Vietnam war was wound down insofar as U. S. involvement was concerned, and there is the strong likelihood that a cease fire agreement in Southeast Asia will be signed shortly. It was a time when new eras of cooperation were opened between the United States and the Soviet Union and also mainland China.

Support From The Ground Up

By CLINT FARRIS
(The Wilson Daily Times)
WILSON, N.C. — Community support for the Lee Woodard School in the Black Creek area of Wilson County begins at the ground level—and that's more than a figure of speech.

They pitched in this year to operate a farm with the profits going to benefit the school and other youth programs.

"Good people in a good community" is the way Principal William Lewis summed up the story of the cooperative venture.

Results will include the purchase of a $8,927 school activities bus, and improved lighting at the school athletic field, he said.

By way of background, Lewis observed that Mr. and Mrs. P.L. Woodard, who gave the land for the school, later willed it a farm of approximately 80 acres with income earmarked to aid vocational home economics and agricultural courses. The farm has been an asset of the unit since the early 1920s.

Members of the Wilson County Board of Education have served as trustees of the farm through the years. It has been leased until this year, with monies designated for use of the two departments under the supervision of the school's advisory council.

Farming Project Proposed
"In the fall of 1971," Lewis continued, "patrons of the school, following the suggestion of one man, came up with the idea of leasing the farm from the trustees and enlisting aid of people in the community-at-large in cultivating the crops. Profits made could be used to help additional school and community projects."

The plan was approved, and farming operations began last January.

"Men and women have shared equally in the laboring duties," Lewis pointed out, "and the same is true of students—both boys and girls."

Lewis said supplies have been purchased—"at cost and below from local merchants. Some companies, seed firms and the like, have given rebates on portions of the purchases."

Everybody Pitched In
During the season, men tilled the earth, planted and cultivated the crops. Insecticides and herbicides were donated as the situation demanded.

"When the tobacco crop was ready," the principal continued, "a group of 60 people worked six Saturday mornings gathering the harvest. The crop was housed without any expense being involved—and the set-up not only worked well—but the group had a great feeling of fellowship and was offered the opportunity of knowing each individual involved in the task a great deal better."

With the exception of the last sale, which was carried to town by member of the Black Creek Volunteer Fire Department, the tobacco was marketed by parents and students. The Lee Woodard School tobacco crop was amounted to 8,828 pounds, and the price received averaged about $90 per hundred pounds.

In similar manner, the farm's 20 acres of corn was harvested. One man is giving the proceeds from three acres of soybeans off his own farm to the special school fund.

Plans To Continue
People of the Black Creek community plan to carry on the same operations next year," Lewis said. "We should point out that no individual has received pay for work on the project. The task has been done by work and donations of people in the community. The lease money will, of course, be used as in the past as stipulated in the will."

The new school activity bus will be delivered early in December. Another step will be to improve lighting at the school athletic field.

"This facility will be available for use by any authorized community group—and that includes parents as well as the children in grades one through 12," Lewis explained.

The principal paid tribute to community support for the school's football program, initiated only last year. "We know that in starting from scratch to begin a new sport we would have a rocky time on the scoreboard," he said. "However, the community spirit has not wavered—the people are behind the team and grimly determined to make the project successful."

"The story just goes on and on," Lewis added. "The assistant principal, W.L. Woodard, and I just can't praise the people of the Black Creek area too much. Frankly, we just don't know of a comparable situation."

"There is a spirit of real cooperation here—and it is not confined only to those people with children enrolled in the school. Both men and women without a direct interest in the school, in several cases, are helping just because they are good people in a good community."

Domestically, social programs have continued to grow, although not always with strong direction by the president. Things have been far less turbulent within the United States and there is every reason to feel that our people are once again taking pride in their great nation.

Nixon through his long career has more than anything else been unpredictable so it would not be entirely safe to make predictions on the courses he will follow during the next four years.

One thing is certain, though. Nixon watchers have been searching for the real Richard Nixon during all of his long career. During the next four years they are likely to see a Nixon behaving as his deepest instincts direct him. This is true because he enjoys a huge personal mandate and, also because he, at long last, no longer has to consider the consequences of his actions on his own political career.

That does not mean that Nixon will be high handed during his final term. A Democratic Congress will help hold him back and in addition he will be interested in doing all he can to help his party win in future elections. In addition because of the two term limitation, second term presidents immediately attain somewhat of a lame duck status which has some effect on their influence.

During these next four years however, President Nixon will be able to draw on a quarter of a century of being privy to the deepest secrets of government. Based on experience, there is really no one in the nation more qualified to be president. Thus these can be years of great accomplishment in international relations; they can be years bringing true quality to our living standards and they can be years of further protecting our individual rights.

So much of what our nation becomes now rests with a man who does not have a worry about being reelected. We have a feeling we will see Richard M. Nixon as we have never seen him before.

director and a blooded veteran of New York's Democratic reform wars, in secretly drawing up the cowpasture list two years ago. Convinced that Congressional barons are invulnerable in general elections, Hemenway concluded they must be assaulted in their own primaries.

Hemenway's operation was at its best in purging right-wing Rep. John McMillan of South Carolina, impregnable barrier to home rule for the preponderantly black District of Columbia. NCEC helped recruit, advise and finance the Democratic primary campaign against him by state Rep. John Jenrette—all covertly.

Had Jenrette's alliance with a New York-based liberal action group been disclosed, he would have been doomed in his rural tobacco-growing district.

After a stunning primary upset over McMillan, Jenrette was defeated by a conservative Republican Nov. 7. That same fate awaited NCEC-subsidized primary victors over two Western conservative Democrats, Reps. Wayne Aspinall of Colorado and Walter Baring of Nevada. But that does not disturb Hemenway who feels the liberal cause has considerably less to fear from three powerless freshman Republicans than the entrenched trio of McMillan, Aspinall and Baring.

NCEC also contributed to Democratic primary defeats of cowpasture list Reps. James Byrne in Pennsylvania, James Kee in West Virginia and George Miller in California. When Hemenway started brandishing a $20,000 contribution check around Baltimore, another designated purge victim—

This was precisely the intention of Russell Hemenway, NCEC's national

With the election over only a few final words remain to be said.

Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Maxwell brought in a yellowed old clipping. The unattributed piece no doubt was written after some election long gone by. It concerned a man talking to his mule and it read in part:

"All Fall and most of the Winter the whole family from Granny to the baby, picks cotton to help raise money to pay taxes and buy a new harness and pay the interest on the mortgage on you. And—what do you care about the mortgage? Not a damn—you ornery cuss. I even have to do the worry about the mortgage on your tough, ungrateful hide."

"About the only time I am better than you is on election day, for I can vote and you can't. And after election I realize I was fully as great a jackass as your papa. Verily I am prone to wonder if politics were made for men or jackasses, or to make jackasses of men."

Well the sentiments fit after any election.

Mr. Maxwell is a retired manager of Williams variety store.

Bill Shires, news bureau director at ECU, sent an old clipping whereby a defeated politician toted up the costs:

"Lost four months and 20 days of electioneering. Lost 1,360 hours of sleep thinking about the election. Lost 40 acres of corn planting. Lost two front teeth, and a lot of hair in a fight with an opponent."

"I donated one beef, four shoats, and five sheep to barbeques. Gave away two pairs of suspenders, five gingham dresses, five dolls and 13 baby rattles. Kissed 126 babies, put up eight stoves, chopped cords of stovewood, carried 24 buckets of water, walked 400 miles, shook hands 980 times, told 10,000 lies and talked enough to fill 1,000 volumes."

"I attended 24 revival meetings, was baptized four times by immersion, and twice by sprinkling. I contributed more than $100 to foreign missions, made love to nine grass widows, got dog bitten 19 times. And then I got defeated."

Even at that, any modern day politician will tell you the cost of campaigning has gone up.

Our News Editor Don Schlienz noted that election day was his wedding anniversary.

Someone asked him where he and his wife, Dot, planned to celebrate.

"We aren't," he said. "We're going to sit home and watch election returns."

Free government is a blessing that mankind has enjoyed only in recent centuries. There are vast areas in which even today free government is unknown. One of the greatest blessings in life under a free government is that its institution not only gives us an opportunity to express our opinions but demand whatever rights are coming to us.

We cannot imagine living under any other system than that of a liberal democracy. We differ with about half of our contemporaries in matters of policy but we are united in our devotion to free government under elected representatives of our own free choice.

Our governments are anything but perfect but they are an attempt on the part of an honest people to get the most out of life not only for themselves but for everyone else. We wonder at times how we can make such silly mistakes as we do, but that does not alter the fact that we would not give up our form of free government for anything else the world has to offer.

We make mistakes, we stagger along and wobble—but the point is that we are free. If we make mistakes they come back to haunt us and perhaps shock us into doing better the next time. When once in a while we encounter criminality we come down on it like a ton of bricks. We turn over in our minds with infinite satisfaction the words of Patrick Henry: "Give me liberty or give me death."

The experiment and its sponsor, American Humanics, were born out of the frustrations experienced by the Hon. Dr. H. Roe Bartle of Kansas City and a group of his friends and associates, youth leaders and businessmen from coast to coast.

Bartle is regarded as one of the greatest youth leaders of all time. But he and his associates were frustrated because youth leaders were trained for a variety of professions except youth leadership.

All of the youth movements in American were being manned by individuals who were embedded with consecrated ignorance. They were consecrated, they were dedicated to the ideals of the youth movement," Bartle says, "but they were wholly without the capacity and the training to interpret, administer and direct the programs except on a hit or miss basis."

Bartle an attorney and specialist in financial and banking law, became a Scout executive in 1922 in Wyoming and was chief of the Kansas City area Council from 1928 to 1955 when he became mayor of the city. He brought the Kansas City Scout organization from a membership of 2,300 and a debt of $40,000 to 32,000 members a $260,000 annual budget and an endowed surplus of about

"I used to say, 'my God, if you have a bellyache you wouldn't send for a lawyer. If you were indicted by a grand jury you wouldn't send for an engineer to represent you. Youth leadership is a profession. You ought to train these people,' Bartle bellows. "You ought to give them the background so they can intelligently and effectively serve the youth of America by counseling and inspiring and directing and giving the leadership to the great army of volunteers who serve the various programs."

It was in 1946 that Bartle and his 15 associates "agreed to meet every 60 days or so

Writer Knows China

By GARY LUHR

Associated Press Writer
GEORGETOWN, Ky. (AP) — "It is a shock to enter China for the first time and an even greater shock to return to our country after visiting there," says the author of a new book about the long forbidden country.

"To judge it by Western standards leaves one totally at a loss," Lois Wheeler Snow told an audience recently at Georgetown College.

The widow of the late American journalist Edgar Snow, who spent a lifetime writing about China, recently completed a book of her own—"China on Stage"—in which she focuses on the country's new, revolutionary opera, theater and ballet.

"China has set an extraordinary example of decency, outrage and self-reliance for the rest of us," she said.

Among the things she said do not exist there are starvation, inflation, pornography, venereal disease, prostitution, alcoholism and racial prejudice.

"Socialism ('It is not yet communism,' she insists) has made an enormous difference in China and it is a lot different than what people think it to be," Mrs. Snow said.

She said the Chinese people were "moral to a degree many of us would be hard put to emulate."

Mrs. Snow accompanied her husband to China for the first time in 1970, "when U.S. visitors were of extreme rarity and before 'ping-pong' became a politically significant word."

She returned to the country last spring following her husband's death.

The Chinese have come far in achieving an egalitarian society, she said. In fact, she added, the main purpose of the so-called cultural revolution of the mid-1960s was to stop those bent on forming an elite class and moving the country from "proletarian socialism" to "Soviet revisionism."

"Everyone in China does manual labor," she pointed out, including even some of the ballet dancers she wrote about, who spend part of their time working in factories.

"From kindergarten on there is a stress on ideology. Children are taught that labor is dignified and honorable. They learn what life was like before the revolution and how much better things are now."

Family life remains close, she noted, possibly even closer than before the revolution because many of the hardships that often split families have been eliminated.

Observations From Editorial Columns

Looking Ahead

A Chicago urbanologist is forecasting the shape of things to come by reading newspapers. Lots of them.

Some 200 dailies are scanned by his research staff to detect trends in education, health, employment, welfare and poverty, housing and urban renewal, environment, transportation, government, political development... And what does he foresee by tracing developments around the nation and in other countries?

—Cars will be banned from many urban centers by the end of this decade and public transit in such places will be free.

—The big hospitals "with their bewildered outpatient staffs will be replaced by an array of alternatives that will make health care more accessible—especially community and neighborhood clinics, which will be linked by means of telecommunications to the larger regional health centers." Prepaid health plans will cover everyone. And health-care will emphasize prevention of disease.

—He sees the long trend toward big government reversing and predicts reduction of prison population by 40 per cent (smaller penal facilities for 400-500 inmates will be common) and the education of children and adults in schools "without walls"—entrepreneurial areas will serve as classrooms.

You have a crystal ball in your hands.—Norfolk (Va.) Virginia-Pilot

Getting Richer Every Year

You may not have noticed it, but according to the Census Bureau you're richer today than a year ago.

Well, not everybody. But 41 per cent of the households in the U.S. reported higher incomes in October than in the previous year. Only 12 percent reported a year-to-year decline.

With all this extra money in their pockets, American consumers said they plan to buy new cars and houses as well as furniture and household appliances.

The only problem with this report of higher income, however, is the fact, unmentioned in the Census report, that the cost of practically everything has gone up correspondingly.

It sort of takes the thrill out of earning more money to know you have to spend more in return. Payday would be a much happier day if the old demon, the wage-price spiral, didn't rear its ugly head so often.—Montgomery (Ala.) Advertiser

Papa Prof Can Baby-Sit

When it comes to equality as demanded by the social reformers and advocated by the liberal politicians, you got to go whole hog.

One would suppose that is the explanation why City University of New York has offered male faculty members 20 days of paid paternity leave, and up to 10 months of unpaid leave without the loss of tenure, so they may baby-sit while their liberated wives go back to work.

Women Libbers and radical professors are bug-eyed with glee over the idea, for they see this as a great breakthrough in equality for the sexes. Where will all this silly nonsense end?—Jackson (Miss.) Clarion-Ledger and Daily News

The Greening of America

By his own admission, Lee Trevino made a mistake in walking off the course midway through the third round of a recent golf tournament in Las Vegas and subsequently criticizing the officials for the slow pace. And because he was wrong, he said that he deserved to be fined or suspended from the PGA tour.

It's not unusual for someone to admit having broken the rules. But over the last few years it's been practically unheard of that anyone would expect to be punished for his violation. What he usually has expected—that is, demanded—is amnesty. Yet times may be changing. Some sages see reason to believe that greening is now being left to Mr. Trevino and the other PGA pros, and that the rest of America is squaring.

So it's just possible that Mr. Trevino's upright attitude may become contagious, and expectation of punishment for lawlessness may even become par for the course. In which case history, which already notes that the battle of Waterloo was won on the playing fields of Eton, may well record that that the Shootout at Probity Pass was won on the back nine of the Sahara Invitational.—Wall Street Journal

A Conservative View Old Parties Are 'Dead'—But Won't Lie Down

By J.J. KILPATRICK

The Democrats have been picking at each other all week, like the sullen combatants in a bad divorce. Who gets the silver? Who gets the china? Who keeps Mrs. Westwood? The main fight is for custody of the sulky, squalling party. Who wants it?

Obviously a great many persons want the Democratic party. The poor creature may be rumpiled, red-nosed and tear-stained today, but she is heir to a paper fortune. An orphan, yes, this ill-favored thing, but she remains the ward of Oliver Warbucks.

It is no bad idea, in this post-hurricane calm, to consider what this astonishing election may have told us of the Democrats, and of the Republicans, too. In theory, at least, and in terms of all the conventional nomenclature, we have spent the past twelve months in a struggle between the forces of (D) and (R). The great prize, of course, was the White House, which was in a breeze by (R)—won so easily, in truth, that the story passed from the news the next day. The Democratic challenge now is seen as a small embarrassment, like a spilled cup of soup at a formal dinner. The Republicans have politely looked the other way.

Who are these parties? It is hard to make them out. The Republican party emerges from the long campaign to be met by oxymorons—this was a triumphant debacle, a disastrous success.

No political architect, in his wildest dreams, would have conceived that grotesque Wednesday morning when the Republicans claimed a landslide in the White House—and then lost on governorship, four state legislatures and two seats in the United States Senate. Back to the drawing board! This was a glorious fizzle.

The paradox lies in a confusion of terms. There is a natural tendency to treat Nixon victory as a Republican victory. The tendency ought to be resisted. This phenomenal mandate, if it was a mandate, may have been a mile wide, but it was barely two inches deep. Whatever it was, it was no mandate to the Republican party as a party.

This whole concept of "party," as the keystone of American politics, has to be examined anew. It ought to be taken apart and remodeled. The trouble is, we don't know how.

Our political institutions and our political thinking are geared absolutely to the two-party system. We have in the Congress majority leaders and minority leaders; the committees are constituted by party label; all our statistics are kept in terms of the changing number of (R) and (D). Temporarily, at least, we are incapable of adjusting to machinery that looks the same, but isn't. It is as if our factory had gone to the metric system overnight: None of the old nuts will fit the new bolts.

The presidential election was only nominally, but not actually, a contest between the institution we still tend to think of as the Democratic party and the Republican part. It was a contest between a McGovern party and an anti-McGovern party.

Margaret Smith in Maine and Caleb Boggs in Delaware reportedly were defeated by candidates of the Democratic party. The record books will tell us so. More to the point, they were ousted by candidates of the It's Time For a Change party. It is an ancient institution, this ITFC party, dating at least from 1824, if not from 1800, but we have no symbol for it. Its number is not listed. Are Mississippi and Georgia Republican states? Bosh! But analysts will go to their graves proclaiming that both states "went Republican" in 1972.

The old parties are dead. I say—dead but they won't lie down. The fictions of viability must be maintained, simply because we have no other fictions—or facts, either—that might conveniently take their place. Thus the struggle for the orphaned heiress. Thus the growing apprehension for the GOP.

We are stuck with the two-party machinery, and stuck with the two party labels. The machinery doesn't work and the labels have lost most of their meaning, yet we stumble along with a President (R) and a Congress (D), chosen by Voters (D). We have come almost 200 years from Independence, and politically speaking, that's what we have this November.

Hemenway cannot claim all 14 purge victims. He never found suitable opponents against four on the copasture list who retired anyway—Democratic Reps. Alton Lennon of North Carolina and Republican Reps. Frank Bow of Ohio, Jackson Betts of Ohio and Page Belcher of Oklahoma.

Five others on the copasture list—Republican Reps. Les Arends of Illinois, Charles Chamberlain of Michigan and William Maillard of California and Democratic Reps. John Kluczynski of Illinois and Otto Passman of Louisiana—won easily when Hemenway could not recruit an opponent. NCEC heavily financed primary campaigns against two immensely powerful New York Democrats, Rep. John J. Rooney ($15,000) and James J. Delaney ($10,000), but could not defeat either.

Total cost of Operation Copasture: $135,000. Seldom has so much priceless conservative power been driven off Capitol Hill for so little money. What's more, the survivors—particularly Rooney and Delaney in New York—must face another challenge in 1974. In undermining the safe one-party district, Hemenway and the NCEC are cutting away a basic foundation of the Congressional power structure.

— Evidence that American society is becoming more tolerant—at least in terms of expressed attitudes on interracial and interfaith marriages—is found in a comparison of the results of a recent Gallup survey with findings from a survey conducted four years ago.

Approval among the nation's adults regarding marriages between white and blacks has increased from 20 per cent in 1968 to 29 per cent in the latest survey.

Approval of marriages between Jews and non-Jews over this period of time has climbed from 59 to 67 per cent.

And finally, approval of marriages between Protestants and Catholics has grown from 63 per cent in 1968 to 72 per cent today.

Increased Tolerance Seen In All Levels of Society

Increased tolerance since 1968 regarding both interracial and interfaith marriages is found in all levels of society and in the South as well as outside the South.

The 1968 survey was undertaken in conjunction with Gallup affiliates in 12 foreign nations and showed Americans to be the most opposed—and Swedes least opposed—to marriages between whites and blacks.

In regard to marriage between Catholics and Protestants, seven nations expressed a greater level of approval than the U.S., while five showed less tolerance regarding Catholic-Protestant marriages.

Americans were found to be more tolerant regarding marriages between Jews and non-Jews than citizens in most other nations included in the 1968 survey. Only the Swedes, Finns and the French were more tolerant, while people in nine other nations were less tolerant than Americans.

Approval Greatest Among College-Educated, Youth

In the current survey, approval is greatest regarding both interracial and interfaith marriages among young adults, persons with college training and among Roman Catholics (the views of Jews were not included in this report since there were two few in the sample to provide adequately reliable data).

The following questions were asked in a survey conducted October 13 through 16 in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation. A total of 1516 adults, 18 and older, were interviewed in person.

Do you approve or disapprove of marriage between: a. whites and blacks? b. Catholics and Protestants? c. Jews and non-Jews?

Here are the public's attitudes on interracial marriages by key groups:

	Marriage Between Whites and Blacks?
	Ap- prove	Disap- prove
NATIONAL	29	60
Men	32	58
Women	26	63
Whites	25	65
Blacks	58	21
18-30 years	44	44
30-49 years	28	60
50& over	19	72
College	45	46
High School	24	64
Grade School	20	68
Protestants	26	64
Roman Catholics	29	58

The latest results represent a dramatic 21-point increase in the percentage of whites who approve of marriages between whites and blacks—from 4 per cent in 1968 to 25 per cent today. (The question in the 1968 survey was asked of whites only.)

The views of blacks in the latest survey are nearly opposite those of whites, with six in ten blacks (58 per cent) approving of interracial marriages and 21 per cent expressing disapproval of such marriages.

The following tables show attitudes toward interfaith marriages by major groups in the population:

	Marriages Between Jews and Non-Jews

Thad Eure Will Appoint Elections Bd. Secretary

By JOHN KILGO

RALEIGH — Even though Republicans — thanks to Jim Holshouser's victory — are on the verge of taking over the election machinery at the county election board level, State Elections Board Secretary Alex Brock seems to be in safe hands.

And for that, Mr. Brock can thank the "oldest rat in the Democratic barn."

Under state reorganization, the Secretary of State appoints the executive secretary of the State Elections Board and his staff.

What's Brock's future? "I have no plans at present to make any changes," says the bow-tied Thad Eure, who won reelection as Secretary of State.

Holshouser's claim to the Governor's mansion presents an interesting dilemma for Attorney General Robert Morgan.

It's absolutely no secret that Morgan would like to run for the U.S. Senate in 1974. But if he resigned his present post to seek that office, Governor-elect Holshouser could name the new attorney general.

Could Morgan afford to do that, knowing for certain that Holshouser would name a Republican to head the Justice Department?

Time will tell but Morgan has a problem today he wouldn't have had if Skipper Bowles had been elected.

Walter DeVries, the pollster used by Skipper Bowles, says it was very clear in his interviews with North Carolina voters that a change was wanted in Raleigh.

Holshouser played on this very effectively down the stretch.

And you have to wonder how much President Nixon's airport stop in Greensboro three days before the election helped Holshouser and Jesse Helms.

"One thing's for sure," said DeVries. "It didn't hurt them any."

Republican Jack Hawke, who lost to Ike Andrews by fewer than 1,000 votes in the 4th Congressional District, hasn't quit swinging. A court order has been obtained to impound the Durham votes on that day until the matter can be thrashed out before a judge...Mecklenburg County is going through a seizure trying to elect a chairman for its delegation to the Legislature. Voters sent six Republicans and six Democrats to Raleigh from Mecklenburg. The best bet now is that Sen. Eddie Know will get the chairman's position.

How will the Mecklenburg delegation, so heavily populated with Republicans, be treated by Democratic legislature?

"You're gonna have to see it to believe it," said Democratic Rep Craig Lawing. "But I think you can say they ain't gonna greet us with open arms and I doubt they give us a parade or anything."

Public Forum

To the editor:

Most of us are tired of election talk and ready now to get on with other business. However, I would like to express my deep gratitude to those who worked so willingly and tirelessly for Democratic candidate Skipper Bowles. Though we lost the election, we can all be justly proud of the fact that the campaign waged was a fair and clean one. I personally am indebted to each worker for proving your sincerity in Skipper and what he stands for, by giving so generously of your time and effort. And I'm sure that each of you will continue to feel as I do, proud to have been associated with this man and his family.

The people of North Carolina have spoken out for a change, and our Republican Govern-elect, Jim Holshouser, is a good man. It is my sincere wish that his tenure of office will be highly beneficial for our beloved state.

Nixon Defying Congress And History In His War On Bureaucracy

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

President Nixon has been quoted by an unnamed speechwriter as using the term "the damned government" — when he talks critically of the bloated and expensive Washington bureaucracy.

Whether the quote is exact is of no great importance. If the President did use the term, he no doubt was in step with a lot of the public sentiment expressed November 7 in the unprecedented landslide vote.

The significance is that it was used to emphasize that the President is "serious" when he talks of "thinning" the government. It's now clear that holding spending at a level which will require no increase in the tax burden will be Nixon's top home front objective during his second term.

The goal is attainable. But it is going to require some changed attitudes in Congress and among a number of politically powerful lobbies. Critics see "welfare state" programs threatened.

And these programs are bound to come under fire. The war in Vietnam has tended to confuse what has been happening to spending in the past several years. Defense spending has declined $7-billion from its 1969 peak of $81.2-billion. In the same period, total government spending has jumped $66-billion, rising from $184.5-billion in 1969 to $250-billion.

Inflation has played a part, of course. But the big item has been that the bills for the Johnson Administration's Great Society have been falling due. They aren't all in; not by any means.

Nixon's job, if he is to hold the tax line, will be to keep spending within the limits which can be supported by the rising national economy. If he can do it, he will add a tall feather to his cap. Historically, government spending has a way of running ahead of what the national income can support at any given tax rate.

Some figures from a recent issue of The Wall Street Journal throw light on this race between income and taxes. The Journal figures covered each 10-year interval from 1940, when total individual income was $78.3-billion and taxes (federal, state and local) took $14.2-billion, to 1970, when income was a lofty $803.6-billion and taxes totaled $275.5-billion.

From 1940 to 1970, the figures show individual income gained 928 per cent, while taxes rose 1,840 per cent. For the 10 years 1960 to 1970, the income rise was 100 per cent and the tax rise 117 per cent. And in the years from 1940 to 1970, war years and peace years, budget balances, especially at the federal level, were few and far between.

Obviously, the job Nixon has cut out for himself is a mean one. And if what he has had to say during the campaign and in a few interviews are any indication, the President is well aware of this, but feels he, has public backing to go through with it.

His critics are talking about a "negative" administration, meaning four years in which no new great new social spending programs are advanced. Nixon told Washington Star-News reporter Garnett Horner that he will "trim" social programs of the 1960s that he considers "massive failures", because they simply "throw money at the problem", and that there will be "no new programs which require tax increases.

This will set the stage for major controversy with Congress, where the Democrats hold commanding majorities in both the House and the Senate. Members of Congress can't help but be impressed by Nixon's victory this month. But this won't deter them from their old ways of handing out money to win reelection. The veto will still have to be brought into play. And if Nixon can hold his own party in line, these can be made to stick.

Congress refused Nixon the authority he sought to reorganize the government. Whether he can bring enough pressure to get action next year is in question. But he can bring on a shrinkage of the huge federal payroll simply by ordering agencies not to fill vacancies when they occur. This "attrition route" is awkward.

Many of Nixon's critics are saying the President will concentrate on foreign affairs, part of his quest for peace, at the expense of domestic problems which revolve around the spending-tax issue. But they may be well off the mark. They have misjudged Nixon in the past — his tenacity and astuteness.

Pupil Contest Is Climax To Children's Book Week

Elmhurst Elementary School students competed Friday morning to best portray their favorite storybook characters. The contest was a climax to Children's Book Week, observed last week.

Winners were as follows: fourth grade — Bill Saunders as Bozo the Clown, first; Grayson Castellow as the scarecrow in The Wizard of Oz, second; Beth Congleton as Cinderella, third; and William Edge as Peter Pan, honorable mention. Fifth grade — Ted Gartman Jr. and Jimmy Campbell as Laurel and Hardy, first; Laurie Smith and Mary Beth Ferrell as Henry and Ramona, second; Jeffrey Atkinson as Buckwheat, third; Mark Barber as Huckleberry Finn and Rebecca Croom as Mary Poppins, honorable mentions: Sixth grade — Joey Mattheis as Mrs. Piggie Wiggle, first; Jill Allen as Mary Poppins, second; and Chuck Brown, Craig King, and Cliff Fearington as Charlie Brown, Linus, and Snoopy, third; Margaret McGlohon and Jennifer Woolees as Hansel and Gretel, honorable mention.

Judges for the contest were Charles Ross, director of elementary instruction for the Greenville City Schools; Miss Helen Parker, children's librarian at Sheppard Memorial Library; and Mrs. Mary Rose, librarian at Eastern Elementary School.

Following the contest, an auction of used books the children brought from home was held. Proceeds were used for the library.

Machine Has No-Church Preference Among Own Voice ECU Students Shows Increase

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet engineers have designed a machine that can speak with its own voice and not with a voice recorded on tape, the Tass news agency said.

Tass said the machine, which synthesizes sound oscillations, has been developed at the Institute of Cybernetics of the Estonian Academy of Sciences in Tallin.

The device, called a synthesizer of speech signals, imitates acoustical waves of various length made by separate sounds.

Tass said for the machine to do this, all it needs is the mathematical model based on the parameters of a given sound—frequency of oscillations, amplitude and the phase between them.

The mathematical model so far is compiled manually, the agency said, but scientists are working on a controlling device which will help the synthesizer "create" separate words and sentences and pronounce them in a human voice.

Puritans Lost In Yule Observance

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stern Puritans of New England banned the use of decorated Yule trees and made any and all secular observance of Christmas a penal offense. At the same time, the Dutch in New Amsterdam and the German colonists in Pennsylvania were bringing Christmas celebrations and the tree very much to life. Luckily, their spirit prevailed.

More than one in 10 students at East Carolina University have no specific denominational preference for church membership, according to a campus religious activities survey.

The number of "no preference" students has increased steadily during the past five years — from only 196 in 1967-68 when 9,360 students were surveyed to 1,223 this year when 10,165 students responded.

Baptist and Methodist maintained their lead as the most prevalent choices among the students surveyed. A total of 3,136 chose Baptist and 2,204 Methodist according to the listing compiled by Dawyer D. Gross, ECU director of Religious Activities. Presbyterian ranked third among denominations with 996 and Roman Catholic 798.

Other denominational choice totals included: Episcopal 552, Christian 425, Lutheran 236, and Judaism 64. All others numbered 531, Gross said.

Gross pointed out that the figures are cumulative based on freshmen who elect to complete religious information cards. These names and designations are repeated annually as long as the student remains. It is dropped when the student graduates or leaves.

for a weekend session. I would bring in educators and professionals and we began hammering out an undergraduate curriculum that we believed, based on our long experience, could produce men and women professionally equipped to provide the skilled leadership needed by youth organizations.

"Finally, I thought we had what it took to sell the program. We also had an agreement from the college accrediting force that the program would be approved if we found an institution to accept us."

None would. "This material should be offered for a master's degree, not as undergraduate work," they told Bartle and his friends.

Bartle, still serving as the Scout executive in Kansas City, also was the non-salaried president and chairman of the board of Missouri Valley College, a private liberal arts institution in west central Missouri nationally recognized for its high scholastic standards.

Reluctantly, Bartle went to his board. "Now you know me down here. All I'm asking is for a two year trial. We propose to bring in three people among the faculty and I would want them to be recognized fully by the administration and faculty and to cooperate where you have to teach some subjects related to this experiment, this is not duress."

"The program," he continued, "is completely underwritten. Bartle had decided to personally underwrite the estimated $100,000 cost for the first two years. It isn't going to sap the assets of the institution in any way. Now, I'm going outside to await your answer."

The answer was affirmative.

Bartle returned to Kansas City and shortly he and his coinventors put together the articles of organization for an educational corporation to be known as "The American Humics Foundation." They selected the word "Humics," Bartle said, "because it was interpreted to mean a study of the human equation, or, giving of one's self to those that need him."

The experiment began with 40 young women and one young woman. The curriculum, based on a strong liberal arts program, was supplemented by courses in group dynamics, social group work and psychology, financing and administration of social agencies, together with weekly workshops, field trips, seminars, summer field experiences and other practical techniques.

"I'll have to say to you that in the first semester anyone who was a part of the Humics program paid a terrific price," said Bartle. "They called them bead stringers, basket weavers and a lot of similar things, but, by the end of the semester the other students were tipping their hats to them. . . . It's been that way ever since."

Three other colleges, Salem of West Virginia, High Point of North Carolina, and Indiana Central of Indianapolis, now share in the American Humics endowed program. Together with Missouri Valley they have turned out nearly 800 graduates who today hold top staff or executive positions in 38 states in youth organizations such as Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Catholic Youth Organizations, Jewish Community Centers, Boys Clubs, YMCA, YWCA, Camp Fire Girls, and various city, county, state and national agencies involved in juvenile counseling or recreational programs.

Beginning with the third year of American Humanics, the original founders resigned, as previously agreed, and turned the program over to a board that today numbers more than 50 persons from business, industry, the professions, and includes several Humanics graduates. The program is supported by contributions ranging from a few dollars to thousands from interested individuals and organizations.

Jo S. Stong, a lawyer from Keosauqua, Iowa, and president of the American Humanics board of trustees, said "a long range plan, contingent upon the establishment of a $6 million endowment fund, hopefully will launch new Humanics units for 50 to 60 students each at eight more colleges ranging geographically from the southwest, far west, northwest, north, northeast, southeast and Rocky Mountain area."

Humanics founder Bartle, whose spectacular career has ranged from that of reporter from the Chattanooga, Tenn., Times to two-term mayor of Kansas City with stops in between as an attorney, youth leader, investment counselor, and lecturer or "commercial windjammer," now has resigned as a director from more than a dozen corporations to devote more of his energy and talent to help see that American Humanics achieves its long-range goal.

A Split Foyer Assures Privacy

FINISTERE 11/19/72

PRIVACY ON THREE LEVELS — The Finistere, designed by Associated House Plans, is a split-foyer with a contemporary design. Four bedrooms and two baths comprise one level. There are a living room, family room, kitchen, laundry room, powder room, dining room, screened porch and sundeck on another level. And the lower level has a recreation room, den or bedroom, bathroom, storage room, utility room and a two-car garage with a boat-storage section. There are fireplaces in the recreation room, living room and family room.

By GERRY BISHOP
One of the key advantages of a split-foyer design is the way it zones the living areas into well-defined sections. It's a beautiful way to achieve privacy within a house. The Finistere, designed by Associated House Plans, realizes this advantage, of course.

It is a split-foyer that features contemporary styling. There are three spacious levels that provide plenty of living area for a large, active family.

Four bedrooms and two baths comprise the sleeping quarters. The master bedroom is a standout, with a sitting room and private bath.

A living room, family room, kitchen, laundry room, powder room, dining room and screened porch are included in the main living level. There's also a sundeck and balcony. Recreation facilities dominate the lower level which also has a den or bedroom, bathroom with shower, storage room, utility room, and large two-car garage with a boat-storage section.

Construction is frame with stone trim used on various areas of the facade. Siding includes shake shingles on the steep roof sections and batted redwood plywood on the vertical exterior walls.

The flat-roof areas use gravel. The over-all exterior effect is rustic.

The living-room level is delightful. The adjoining living room and family room would be ideal for entertaining as well as relaxed family activities. Each has a fireplace and sweeping dimensions. The living room is 15 feet by 23 feet and the family room measures 23 feet by 12 feet.

The family room connects with the screened porch, which would extend the entertaining area in good weather.

A fine job has been done with the kitchen. Not only does it have room for a table, but the built-in cabinets and appliances are arranged in a U-shape. The corner double sink is an eye-catcher.

The dining room, conveniently located between the kitchen and living room, is 12 feet by 14 feet. A large window assures plenty of natural light.

In addition to the sitting room, the master bedroom has a large walk-in closet and a compartmented private bath which includes a built-in lavatory cabinet, stool, bidet and square bathtub.

The other three bedrooms are served by a large bathroom, which balks up to the private bath for maximum plumbing economy.

The lower-level recreation room also has a fireplace. It would be perfect for teen gatherings.

The upper levels contain 2,565 square feet, the recreation level has 1,389 square feet and the garage includes 1,176 square feet. The exterior dimensions are 86 feet by 38 feet.

Because hardboard has a dense surface, is without grain and has no knots or other natural imperfections, it is often assumed that it does not require a primer coat preliminary to painting.

Good sealing by a primer is necessary to prevent uneven absorption of the top coat. Shellac is often used as the primer. So are latex paints. Many enamel undercoaters and varnish or alkyd-base primers and sealers also are satisfactory. Flat paints, semi-gloss and gloss enamels and similar types of top coats should not be used as primers even though they do have some sealing properties.

With the standard type of hardboard, used indoors where strong moisture resistance is not required, a single top coat over the primer usually will suffice. But with tempered hardboard, used outdoors and where moisture resistance and extra hardness are desired, two coats of regular paint should be used over the primer.

In some cases, hardboard is factory-primed. You'll know it because the dealer tells you so; it is marked that way, and it will cost a little more than the nonprimed material. When factory-primed hardboard is delivered to your home, inspect it carefully to see whether any of the primer has been damaged in handling.

If so, spot prime it with a suitable sealer before applying the finishing coat. The same thing goes if you should mar the hardboard when putting it up or otherwise working on it.

When there are any irregularities in the primer coat (run your fingers over it after it has dried), sand it lightly before applying the top coat. This is especially important when the final coat is to be gloss enamel.

Some persons like the appearance of hardboard and do not wish to change its color. Others, using it in laundry rooms or as workbench tops, feel that painting is not necessary. Both groups are advised that the application of a penetrating wood sealer will seal the hardboard for protection against dirt and grease. The penetrating sealer is good because it does not build up a surface film which could be scratched or worn away.

When repainting hardboard, follow the same practices as with natural wood. That is, if the original paint surface is in good condition, all that is necessary is to remove all dirt and grease. No primer is required. But if the paint is peeling in spots, remove all loose material, sanding the edges to form a smooth surface with the good areas. Prime, then paint. Remember that peeling paint is a sign of moisture. The source of this moisture should be located and eliminated before repainting, otherwise you'll have to do the job all over again in a few months.

Here's How To Do It

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures
Q.—I am planning on using plastic laminate on our kitchen counter tops and I have been shopping around for the material. Our local lumber yard has a number of different-size sheets on display. They are all made by the same manufacturer, but one sheet, 2 feet by 5 feet, costs more than any sheet of exactly the same size. The thickness appears to be the same. Why the difference in price? What kind of cement should I use?

A.—Your eyes are deceiving you. One of the sheets probably is one-sixteenth of an inch thick, the other one-thirty second of an inch, a difference that may not be readily noticed but nevertheless means that one sheet is twice as thick as the other. For a counter top application, choose the thicker kind. The thin type is satisfactory for drawer fronts and other vertical applications.

Use a contact cement for bonding the plastic laminate to the plywood, composition board or whatever is being used as the base. Since, as the name implies, this cement grips instantly upon contact, it is important that the plastic be positioned carefully over the base before the two parts are put together.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Jack L. Warner, who produced his first motion picture in 1913, is back in the Hollywood harness again with two new films just released and several more in incubation.

The last of the pioneer film moguls who still is active in the business, 80-year-old Warner carries his years dapperly. His Menjou-style moustache bristles with enthusiasm as he discusses his Columbia Pictures version of the three-year-run Broadway musical, "1776". He provided one-third of the financing for the $6 million film directed by Peter H. Hunt.

"1776", which opened here recently at Radio City Hall and soon will be showing around the country, is Warner's "happy birthday" to the nation a little in advance of the U.S. Bicentennial. It tells the story of the Declaration of Independence through warmly human and humorous portraits of the signers.

"I am prouder of this picture than any other of my career," said Warner, who relinquished control at Warner Brothers studio five years ago and recently became a free-lancer. "My father left Poland in 1875 to come to America to find freedom. Many Americans have similar family backgrounds."

JACK L. WARNER, 80, last of the pioneer film moguls still active in the business is shown with actress Joan Fontain at world premier of "1776" in New York. (UPI Telephoto)

Gregory Peck Frankly Likes Western Movies

By HAL MCCLURE
SARCO, Israel (AP) — Gregory Peck stands on location on the dusty street of this Israeli movie town and says his favorite Western was "The Gunfighter," which he made in 1950 and which is still described as the first adult Western.

But this is a grizzled Gregory Peck, looking somewhat like Gabby Hayes the younger and taller. Now 56, Peck admits, "Sure I like to do Westerns. I guess I made about 10 or so beginning with 'Duel In The Sun,' in 1946."

He wears his wide-brim hat Pony Express style, and smooths his black beard flecked with white, and thinks about Westerns and the life they describe.

"Westerns go back to our roots, our heritage if you will. The Western is easy to tell. You can say so much with the camera alone, without much dialogue. Of course they didn't say much in those days."

Peck walks to the end of Sarco's dusty street and enters the film company's air-conditioned motor home, brought all the way from California.

He recalls his boyhood in La Jolla, Calif., in the 1920s, of seeing tottering Civil War veterans parading down a dirt street.

And he remembers with fondness his Western grandfather who owned a livery stable "and had a white beard longer than mine. I can still see the yellow tobacco stain in it."

He pauses: "Those were the last days of a fading era and I was lucky to see and remember it. We're still telling their story in films."

This brings Peck to the business at hand, starring in "Billy Two Hats" with Desi Arnaz Jr. and Jack Warden.

The picture gets its name from a half-breed played by young Amaz. "His father had two hats, Billy's mother recalls, hence the name," explains Peck. "It's a nice straightforward story and it's told simply."

"Billy Two Hats," budgeted for 1.1 million, is the first big Western to be shot in Israel. Norman Jewison's Algonquin Films is making it for United Artists.

"The kids, young film students, ask about pictures I made 20-odd years ago," Peck says, turning from the window. "They know more about them than I do. They read the footnotes."

"Maybe the kids concentrate too much on the footnotes of movie-making. I don't know what many of them are doing in film classes. Some don't even want to make films."

Peck is impressed by the Israeli youth. "I see young people everywhere I go in Israel. Young security men meet us at the airport. Young people come over to the set from a kibbutz nearby."

"They're all involved, committed."

Peck, the actor, turned Peck, the committed producer, last year when he made "The Trial of the Catonsville Nine." The experience was sobering.

"We got some wonderful critical reviews, but the picture is not doing well at the box office. People don't want to know about the Vietnam war. They just want it to go away."

He plans to concentrate more on production in the future. His Melville Productions, Inc., will start shooting the true story of a young Southern California youth who sailed alone around the world in a 24-foot sloop. The movie will be called "Dove."

"The first time I saw '1776' on Broadway, I visualized a motion picture for Americans and all the world to see how our nation came into being. I really think '1776' is going to have more appeal than 'My Fair Lady' (Warner's most successful production). It's about something very important—about mankind's behavior under law and order."

A Proud Patriot

Warner has never felt it unfashionable to be patriotic and is proud of his contribution of 100 short recruitment, training and home-front information films to the nation's World War II effort. Scattered among the 1,800 Warner Brothers productions with which he was associated were films indicting totalitarianism, militarism and racial discrimination. His documentary, "Hitler Lives?" won him one of his three Academy Awards.

"I hope there are more Bicentennial-type pictures, but I doubt it," predicted Warner in an interview in his tower-top apartment commanding a spectacular view of Central Park. "The Revolutionary War pictures that have been successful have been few and far between. And now there's this overflowing tide of improper pictures." Warner has nothing but scorn for the current glut of films capitalizing on sex and sadism. Warner Brothers had a reputation for good clean entertainment that kept violence in its place and sex mostly in the come-on titles it gave its films. Warner's personal life, by Hollywood standards, is remarkable—contented marriage to the same wife for four decades.

"It's very easy and not costly to make dirty pictures," Warner pointed out. "I don't think the pendulum will swing the other way until the public stops buying tickets to see undesirable pictures. But maybe it is swinging. My other new film has opened in Indianapolis and is doing the same business as 'Clockwork Orange' did there."

Realism Favored

He referred to "Dirty Little Billy," another Columbia Pictures production that portrays Billy the Kid as he really was, a punk who killed 21 men. Warner and director Stan Dragoti achieved a period authenticity similar to that of "Bonnie and Clyde," using a ghost town near Benson, Ariz., for their filming location.

TV Notes

NEW YORK (UPI)—After a five-year lapse, "CBS Sports Spectacular" will return to the air next Jan. 23 for a series of 90-minute Sunday programs through May 13. The opening program will feature boxing teams of the United States and Russia and the Moscow Invitational Figure Skating Championships. CBS first presented the series on Jan. 3, 1960, and it ended March 30, 1967, after seven seasons.

NBC will repeat its Christmas season musical special, "The Little Drummer Boy," on Dec. 10 at 7:30 p.m. This will be the fifth consecutive year for the animated story about a drummer boy who brings an unusual gift to the Christ Child in Bethlehem. It features the singing of the Vienna Choir Boys.

"The Waltons," a family nighttime series that most television reviewers have been praising since it began on CBS this fall has been extended for the entire season. There had been fear that its less than robust rating would see it vanish after 13 episodes.

Robert Young, star of the "Marcus Welby, M.D." series, will star in a one-hour special entertainment to be telecast in the spring of 1973 on ABC. Titled "Robert Young ... with the Young," the show will be a combination of music, comedy and inventiveness, and various top performers will appear, as well as a group of youngsters aged four to 11. The singing Carpenters and comedian Arte Johnson have been set for the show so far.

Co-hosts for NBC's telecast on the 37th annual King Orange Jamboree Parade in Miami, Fla., Dec. 30 will be Joe Garagiola and Anita Bryant.

Exploring the Mountains of North Carolina. By Faris Jane Corey. With drawings by Philip Moose, illustrations by Jeanette Shirley. 1972. Raleigh, The Provincial Press, 80 pps. $5.95.

Some of the loveliest mountains in America, those of western North Carolina, are the subject of Faris Jane Corey's second slim book on exploring North Carolina. (The first dealt with exploring the seacoast).

Again, Jeanette Shirley provides helpful illustrated detailed area maps, one for each of the 20 areas outlined in the book.

Philip Moose, a talented painter of the mountains (and winner of the Pulitzer Prize in painting) has contributed 51 black and white line drawings. These range in subject matter from an isolated winter tree to old barns, to mountain homesteads to the newest in Tarheel mountain sports, skiing.

Beginning at the Virginia border at Sparta, the mountains are divided into 20 areas in a series of zones that run south to Murphy and then continues east to Tryon. Each zone is thoroughly covered relative to scenic wonders, historic sights and cultural events.

Exploring the Mountains of North Carolina has the greatest advantage to persons needing a guide to the area with concision, no wasted words type of description of places and things to see or visit. It is not a travel book for the armchair explorer.

Ideally suited for traveling with the traveler as a convenient, functional and informative book, it is also a fine gift thought for someone you know who may be planning a trip in the mountains

ECU Wind Ensemble Concert Today

TODAY'S SOLOISTS... in the ECU Wind Ensemble concert at Wright Auditorium is Miss Ellen Reithmaier, pianist. She will play Stravinsky's "Concerto for Piano and Wind Instruments."

A nineteenth century original overture for band and two contemporary works of a contrasting nature are slated for the program of the East Carolina University Wind Ensemble today at 3:15 p.m. in Wright Auditorium.

Herbert L. Carter will conduct The Wind Ensemble in performances of Mendelssohn's Overture for Band; Igor Stravinsky's Concerto for Piano and Wind Instruments; and Karel Husa's Apotheosis of This Earth.

Miss Ellen Reithmaier of the School of Music piano faculty will be soloist in the Stravinsky composition. This piece was composed by Stravinsky during the winter of 1923-23 when he was living in France and touring as a concert pianist. Stravinsky was himself soloist in the first performance at the Paris Opera House conducted by Serge Koussevitzky.

Apotheosis of This Earth, a new work in three movements, is the 1969 winner of the Pulitzer Prize by a Czechoslovakian composer now living in the U.S. Musically, it is motivated by the present problems of mankind. The use of lights and slide projections will be included in the performance.

Today's performance marks the Wind Ensemble's first appearance on campus this fall. Last spring the group performed in Atlanta for the Music Educators National Conference.

Miss Reithmaier holds degrees in piano from Alverno College and the University of Michigan. She has taught at the University of Michigan and also attended the Yale Summer School of Music and Art under a full scholarship.

Today's program is without charge and the public is invited to attend.

CRC Production For Farmville Tuesday

North Carolina's touring Farmville Central High School Auditorium and will be sponsored by the Farmville Central High School Student Council. Tickets for the 8:00 p.m. performance will be priced at $1.50 and are available in advance.

The Skin of Our Teeth was written in 1942, six years after Wilder had surprised New York theatre audiences with the bare stage of Our Town. It is the wild and wacky stage fable of the Antrobus family, a modern-day Adam and Eve, and their five thousand year struggle against flood, fire, pestilence, war and depression. The Antrobus reach ultimate survival only by "the skin of their teeth." The play employs slides, multi-colored lights, moving sets, a pet dinosaur and numerous dialogues between characters and the audience to create a mood which shifts rapidly from the comic to the serious.

The Farmville performance will begin the fifth week of Carolina Repertory Company's ten-week fall tour of The Skin of Our Teeth and William Shakespeare's Twelfth Night. The company's repertory also includes The Wonderful O, an original musical adaptation of James Thurber's book.

Last spring's first ten-week tour of The Wonderful O covered 7,100 miles of North Carolina highways and produced seventy-four performances, including twenty-nine in public schools and three in state correctional institutions. CRC brought family entertainment to over 35,000 North Carolinians, many of whom had never seen professional theatre.

The company has enlarged its staff, tripled its repertory and added a guest director of the 1972-73 season. CRC Artistic Director John Haber will direct The Skin of Our Teeth. Approximately half of the members of the cast are North Carolina natives or have received theatrical training in the state.

N.C. Culture Week Coming

RALEIGH—"Culture Week," North Carolina's unique annual gathering of its 13 major cultural and historical organizations, is set for the week of November 28 through December 2 at the Sir Walter Hotel.

The tradition of meeting together annually during the first week in December, though the organizations retain their individual identities was begun in 1913. Features of the week are business meetings, programs of mutual interest to members, and awards to outstanding North Carolinians for their work in art, literature, history, and music.

Among scheduled speakers this year are Clement E. Conger, Curator of the White House; Richard F. Brown, director of the Kimball Art Museum in Fort Worth, Texas; Dr. Louis D. Rubin, Jr., Professor of English, UNC-Chapel Hill; Richard F. Gibbs, director of the N.C. American Revolution Bicentennial Commission; and John G. Zehmer, Jr., director of the Historic Sites and Museum Division of the Office of Archives and History.

Except for a few board and committee meetings, all events are open to the public, though tickets for meal functions should be purchased in advance from the sponsoring organization's registration desk in the hotel.

Participating organizations are the North Carolina Literary and Historical Association, the Society for the Preservation of Antiquities, the Floklore Society, the Art Society, the Society of Mayflower Descendants, the Roanoke Island Historical Association, the Society of County and Local Historians, the Historical Book Club, the Symphony Society, the Federation of Music Clubs, the Poetry Society, the Museums Council, and the Arts Council.

Illiacc IV May Be Too Fast

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI)—"Illiacc IV" is claimed to be the world's fastest computer and, for its human operators, that may be too fast.

"I think it is going to be a challenge to computer engineers, programmers and users alike to take advantage of the Illiacc system's full potential," said William P. Jones, a computer scientist at the NASA-Ames Research Laboratory where Illiacc works.

For example, he said, a medium-sized computer takes about 55 hours to process a viscous-flow aircraft design problem and the cost would be about $14,000. Illiacc could knock over the same problem in 15 minutes for $250.

Set in London, Paris, Hong King, and Bordeaux, ARIGATO by Richard Condon is all about the adventures of Captain Colin Hutington, Royal Navy (retired), a man who has everything, including one fatal flaw: he has a terrible compulsion to gamble. Continuing to gamble at a fantastic rate he has reached a point of no return. He has run up debts of a million dollars and in an attempt to pay off these debts he undertakes one of the most extravagant, outrageous robberies ever attempted: the theft of 18,000 cases of classic French wine worth 2 million dollars from a cellar in Bordeaux. "Assisting him in this beautifully complex hijack is his own gorgeous French mistress; the chief of the greatest international Think Tank; a Marseilles Mafia chief; an arsonist; an electronics wizard; twenty-six men, three ships, 914 dislocated vacationers, and one of the ten most celebrated cooks in France." Will the Captain manage to steal the wine? If so, how will he be able to dispose of it? Is it possible that crime really does pay? Is it possible that a charming and clever thief can get away with it—all even if it is not in the way he expected? Read ARIGATO and find out.

The Aswan Dam in Egypt is crumbling, ready to collapse and flood the land with 1,800 billion cubic feet of water. It threatens disaster to not only Egypt but Spain, Italy—every country on the Mediterranean. A nuclear blast is needed to seal the leaks. The Egyptians are frantic and beg the world for help. The atomic powers—America, Russia, China—spend their time conferring, conducting studies, weighing political contingencies, and analyzing the cost of rescue plans. Only one nation responds to Egypt's call for help, and only in secret—Israel. Then the waters begin to rise... ASWAN! by Michael Heim will make exciting reading for anyone.

In A KILLER FOR THE CHAIRMAN by Mark Hebdon, a British Intelligence agent named Harry Dempsey is sent to Red China posing as a journalist. His assignment is not to gather information but to liquidate one of his fellow agents who has become obsessed with hatred for China and is set on assassinating Mao, Chairman of the Chinese Communist Party. Since relations between the East and West have slowly been improving, such an assassination would be an international disaster. It is, therefore, up to Harry Dempsey to stop the assassin in any way possible—no matter how extreme.

THE TREE WHERE MAN WAS BORN: THE AFRICAN EXPERIENCE by Peter Matthiessen and Eliot Porter is a fascinating portrayal of Africa from the upper Nile in the Sudan, through Tanzania; and northwest to remote Lake Rudolf in Kenya. These two American naturalists "portray the daily lives of wild herds and stone-age aborigines, rural Africans, elephant behaviour, as well as the drama of a cheetah kill, and a record of the many fascinating animals and landscapes of East Africa." The adventures of the field scientists who pursue and investigate the behaviour of the wild animals and the anthropologists who try to unravel the mysteries concerning the origins of man are also observed first hand. The book contains more than one hundred full-color photographs taken by Eliot Porter, one of America's best color photographers. Other beautifully photographed books by Eliot Porter include APALACHIAN WILDERNESS, GALAPAGOS: THE FLOW OF WILDERNESS; and FOREVER WILD: THE ADIRONDACKS.

Compiles Candle Ideas

Anybody looking for a colorful, easy to follow how-to-do-it candle book for making your own this Christmas?

A Pitt County native now resident in New York City has assembled a whole variety of candle making ideas—from traditional long tapers to fantastic creations resembling lost landscapes of wax—into a magazine. Home Hobby Craft Series No. 1.

Miss Gladys Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Linwood Harris of Route 6, Greenville, was back home in Pitt County last weekend and talked about the material she assembled for Communications Properties, Inc. of New York City, an affiliate of Home Magazine, publisher of the magazine.

"This first of a series is entirely on candle making," Miss Harris said. "It covers many different ways of making candles with complete how to do it yourself instructions. For me, the most exciting methods are the water sculpture and sand sculpture methods."

The magazine is lavishly illustrated full color and is available locally at $1.00 per copy.

Miss Harris revealed another of the magazines, based on knit-crochet-sewing ideas is due to be published in January 1973. And after that she hopes to get "an even larger issue that will touch on all types of specialized crafts, especially ways of using thread, needle or paint in decorative home made items."

Recently, Miss Harris has ventured into business on her own by opening Harris Enterprise in New York City. She has been with Home Fashions Industry with headquarters in New York.

Miss Harris, who attended East Carolina University, studied at the Fashion Institute in New York City for three and one half years; has studied at New York University of Interior Design.

She plans to be returning to Greenville fairly soon, and would like to hear from anyone who might want to talk to her about any unusual craft. Her sister, Mrs. Marjorie Harris, 108 Wilshire Drive, Greenville (phone 758-4532), will accept calls or letters of inquiries.

Indian Notes

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (UPI)—Kalamazoo received its name from the Indian word meaning "place where the water boils." And if Kalamazoo sounds funny, the Indians who named it were the Potawatomies.

Between 1850-60, more than 150,000 white settlers pushed into Santee Sioux territory west of the Minnesota River.

Flat Bucs Outscore Dayton By 24-22

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

"It's the mark of a good team when you can play badly and win," Sonny Randle, coach of the East Carolina University Pirates said late Saturday afternoon.

And the Pirates of East did just that, they looked bad, but they won, 24-22 over a fired-up Dayton University team.

It was all the Pirates could do to hang onto the victory after they had built up a 24-7 lead late in the third period. But the Flyers, frustrated all year in their quest for a winning season, kept the pressure on with a near-point passing game that nearly pulled it out.

While the Bucs didn't play to their abilities, Carlester Crumpler ground out another ECU season record, rushing for 160 yards to bring his total for the year to 1,174, breaking Butch Colson's 1967 mark of 1,135. Crumpler is now 111 yards short of the Southern Conference mark of Phil Mosser of William & Mary.

The big back scored two of the three Pirate touchdowns, one from a yard out and the other from the three, bringing his totals for the year to 15 and 90 points. He needs two more TD's to snap the school and conference scoring records for a season.

The other Pirate score was a two-yard toss from Carl Summerell to Vic Wilfore. The tally was the 12th for Summerell, tying the school mark set by Bill Cline in 1964.

Ricky McLester added the six points with three PAT's and a 36 yard field goal.

Dayton's scoring came on two passes from Ken Polke and a one yard run by Denny Whitehead. Polke passed once to fullback Ed Zink for 11 yards and the other went to his favorite receiver Larry Nickels, for 16 yards.

Overall, Nickels caught 10 passes for 186 yards, a school record. Polke hit on 16 of 26 passes for 284 yards. Dayton finished the game with 368 total yards, while the Bucs had just 273.

But the Pirates had the advantage on the scoreboard, and that is what it's all about as they raised their record to 9-1.

The Bucs scored the second time they had the ball. After a Pirate punt, Whitehead, fumbled the ball and Gary Niklason recovered on the Dayton 19 for 5 yards. They began a comedy of errors that finally resulted in the first score.

Crumpler hit for 13 yards on the first play down the Dayton six. On the next play, Dayton was penalized for being off sides to the 3. Crumpler gained to the one, but on the next play, the Bucs drew a five yard penalty back to the six. Summerell had a pass picked off in the end zone, but Dayton was again off sides, giving the ball back to the Bucs at the three. This time, Crumpler went over left tackle for the score as everyone searched for red flags. There were none, and the Bucs held a 7-0 lead after McLester's kick with less than five minutes gone.

East Carolina came right back on their next possession as Tim Dameron nearly went all the way on a punt return. He took the ball on his own 16 and cut down the right sidelines. He broke several tackles and finally got into the clear but stumbled and fell finally at the Dayton 24 after a 60-yard return.

Crumpler hit three times but could only pick up four yards, and McLester stepped in with his 36 yard kick, making it 10-0 with 6:53 left.

Dayton, frustrated on its first two attempts after the Bucs tallied, finally got moving. Their first series after the 7-0 deficit, saw them move to the Buc 42 before Danny Kopley and Cary Godette dumped Polke for an 11 yard loss and forced a punt. Their next possession, with a 50-yard kickoff return by Jim West, put the ball on the 38, but they couldn't gain.

Then, after a Pirate punt, Dayton took over on their own 41. Zink went up the middle for seven and Whitehead got five in two lugs. John Lucius ended the quarter with a four yarder. After another yard gain, Polk went the air, hitting Nickels at the Buc 28. Don Keeling and Whitehead in two carries got 13 more and Zink added two more to the 13. Polke fumbled on the next play but recovered it at the 16, then threw on the next play to Nickels for the score. Greg Schlarb kicked the extra point.

The United Press International reported last night that East Carolina and Kent State would meet in the Tangerine Bowl to be held in Orlando, Fla., in December.

East Carolina officials said that the Tangerine Bowl team would be their choice to face Kent, the Mid-American Conference titlist, and that any other word was unofficial.

A source in Orlando said that no decision had been made yet. It will be Monday or Tuesday before the choice is made. East Carolina and Tampa were the top candidates, the source said.

warber kicked the extra point to make it 10-7 with 10:45 left in the half.

That ended the scoring in the half, but both teams had further opportunities. East Carolina drove to the 37 before an interception stopped them, then got down to the 35 later in the half. Dayton moved to the Buc 42 and the 39 before losing it on downs.

East Carolina moved on the first series of the second half to score again. From the 33, Crumpler hit three straight times to the 49 before Les Strayhorn gained four. After a Buc penalty, Summerell hit Wilfore for 14 to the Dayton 37, and then Crumpler burst through the middle and rolled to the two before being knocked out of bounds. It took three plays from there before Crumpler leaped over from the one to make it 17-7 with 11:04 left in the quarter.

Dayton came back with a drive, but it finally was stalled at the 20, where a field goal attempt was short. East Carolina drove back to the Dayton 46 before a holding penalty stopped them.

Early in the final period, the Bucs got the ball at the Dayton 33 when Tim Hightower recovered another flyer fumble. Crumpler got three yards, then Summerell got a first down at the 23. After another two yard carry by Crumpler, Summerell hit Wilfore at the three. Crump went into the line for a yard, then Summerell went to Wilfore again, this time for the two-yard scoring toss. McLester kicked for the third time to make 24-7 with 11:15 left.

Dayton came alive with its passing attack after that, scoring two quick ones. From the 41, Polke hit Nickels at the Buc 32, then went to Ralph Bierdeman at the 11. From there, he hit Zink for the score, cutting the lead to 24-14 with 10:18 to go.

The Bucs couldn't move it and kicked it away to the Dayton 22. On the second play, Polke hit Nickels on the sidelines and he raced to the end zone for an apparent touchdown, but an official noted that he had stepped out of bounds at the ECU 49. Polke then went to Bierdeman at the 12, and after three more yards, Billy Hibbs picked off the ball to save the score.

Dayton got it back after another punt, however, and moved for the score this time. Polke hit Bierdeman for 10, then went to Nickels at the Buc 20. Whitehead picked up nine on a draw and on fourth down, Polke had to sneak for the first down at the nine. Dayton was then penalized back to the 24 for offensive interference, but a defensive interference call on fourth gave them a first down at the one. Whitehead went over left tackle for the score, and Dayton went for two to pull within winning distance with a field goal. Polke hit Keeling for the two points and it was 24-22 with 2:51 left.

They didn't get their chance however, as the Bucs recovered the on-side try and ran out the clock.

East Carolina will wind up the regular season Saturday, traveling to Chapel Hill to meet the once-beaten and Atlantic Coast Conference champion Tar Heels of the University of North Carolina.

THE DEADLY DUO — Carlester Crumpler (32), East Carolina University's all time leading rusher in a single season, moves for yardage behind the man largely responsible for much of it, Les Strayhorn (40), a top candidate for the Southern Conference's Jacobs Blocking Trophy, during Saturday's game with Dayton. Crumpler scored two touchdowns and rushed for 169 yards in the 24-22 Pirate victory. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Monday: Day Of Decision

And now the waiting begins. East Carolina University will have to wait until Monday to find out if they are to receive a bid to the Tangerine Bowl in Orlando, Fla., in late December.

The bowl is supposed to announce its selections then. It is expected that the Mid-American champion, Kent State, will receive one of the berths. Although there is reported controversy over future contracts, the Bowl currently has a pact with the Mid-American Conference for its champion to automatically enter the game.

Two other schools are reportedly in the running with East Carolina, Louisville and Tampa.

It was said earlier that the outcome of the Dayton-East Carolina game (whether the Bucs won or not) would go a long way toward deciding if the Bucs would be invited.

They won, but they didn't do it in style.

"I know all week it would happen," Coach Sonny Randle said afterwards, referring to the fact that the Bucs were "down" for the game. "I've been frightened, tense, and upset all week, and the men knew it and it was bound to affect them."

"Everybody's been talking about a letdown, Carolina and the Tangerine Bowl all week," he said, "and it's affected us."

Randle praised the Dayton effort in the game. "They played a heck of a game," he said. "They were inspired. They had dedicated the game to (Matt) Dahlinghaus, and they played to the hilt." Dahlinghaus, a defensive tackle suffered a broken neck in the Bowling Green game last week, and is paralyzed from the neck down.

"They'll say Carolina will pass us out of the park," Randle continued. "Ninety per cent of our defensive problems was mistakes. You're just not going to see another receiver as good as you saw today," he said in reference to Larry Nickels.

"Whenever you have a great passer and a great receiver, you'll put a lot of yards up," Randle said that East Carolina is no more vulnerable to the pass than they are to rush, "but the mistakes you make on pass defense show up so much more. Your mistakes are glaring. We were not as sharp as we should have been in the first half, and we knew we had our backs to the wall."

"The Bucs had been presented with the Southern Conference Championship Trophy, which they won last week, prior to the game. "We told them at half-time that if they didn't want to tarnish that trophy, they'd have to suck it up," Randle said.

"And it's the mark of a good team when you can play badly and win."—WOODY PEELE

Late Touchdown Passes Pull Tar Heels Past Blue Devils By 14-0

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer
CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Quarterback Nick Vidnovic threw two fourth-period touchdown passes to end Ken Taylor as North Carolina's Tar Heels defeated rival Duke 14-0 Saturday.

A crowd of 47,000 and a regional television audience saw the Sun Bowl-bound Tar Heels score their 15th straight Atlantic Coast Conference victory and run their season record to 8-1.

Six pass interceptions and a fumble proved costly to Duke, which ended its season with a 5-6 record.

North Carolina, frustrated for three and a half quarters by a tough Duke defense, finally capitalized on a break in the fourth quarter. Mike DiCarlo intercepted Mark Johnson's pass and ran it back 19 yards to the Duke 23. Three plays later Vidnovic hit Taylor on a 17-yard scoring pass.

Later in the quarter, Phil Lamm intercepted another Johnson pass and returned it 26 yards to Duke's 20. Vidnovic fired another pass to Taylor, this one for 16 yards and a touchdown.

Duke moved to the North Carolina 31, 27, 24 and 20 yard lines in the first half and to the 34 and 31 in the second half.

A penalty cost North Carolina a possible first period touchdown. The Tar Heels rolled from their 37 to the Duke 1 but on fourth down, North Carolina was offside and Duke declined the penalty, taking over there.

The Duke defense was so effective the first half that the Tar Heels got only eight yards rushing, but wound up with a game total of 105.

North Carolina was in Duke territory only twice in the first half, moving to the one and the 30. The Tar Heels' Greg Ward intercepted a Johnson pass late in the second quarter and raced 58 yards to the Duke 30. But

Virginia Nips Deacons, 15-12

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP)—Harrison Davis came off the bench to throw two touchdowns passes as Virginia beat Wake Forest, 15-12, in a battle of last-place Atlantic Coast Conference football teams Saturday.

The Deacons led 6-0 on two field goals when Davis came in early in the second quarter. Chuck Ramsey had kicked three-pointers from 40 and 32 yards out for Wake Forest.

With Davis at the helm, the Cavaliers began to move following an exchange of fumbles. After the Deacons' Kit Basler gave up the ball on his own 30 and Kevin Michaels recovered, it took Davis only four plays to get the Cavaliers on the scoreboard. He passed nine yards to Mike Lacika in the end zone.

In the third period Wake Forest came back on an 80-yard drive in nine plays with Basler going in from the 23. That put the Deacons ahead 12-7.

On the following series Virginia marched to paydirt with Davis passing to slotback Chuck Belic for 19 yards on fourth down and seven. The TD with just under 13 minutes to play and a two-point conversion ended the scoring.

The Deacons, however, threatened late in the game with a drive that ended on downs at the Virginia 39 when a fourth down pass went incomplete.

Each team was bothered by turnovers, but Virginia had the most trouble—losing four fumbles and two passes to the Deacons. Wake Forest picked off two Virginia passes, which was about the only success it had in the aerial department. It tried eight passes and completed none of them.

Wolfpack Bites Clemson, 42-17

By MELVIN LANG
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—North Carolina State's Willie Burden and Charley Young exploded for four touchdowns in the second quarter Saturday as the Wolfpack cleared the way for a Peach Bowl bid by crushing Clemson, 42-17.

Burden and Young spearheaded N.C. State's smoothly operating offense as the Wolfpack set Atlantic Coast Conference records for total offense, total first downs and points scored in the season. N.C. State now has a 7-3-1 record.

Clemson, now 3-7, showed life only in the third period when it dominated the play by keeping possession for nearly 11 minutes, but the Tigers never could match the explosive Wolfpack offense.

Wade Hughes scored both Tiger touchdowns on one-yard runs.

Burden and Young each scored twice in N.C. State's big second period, with three of the touchdowns coming on one-yard slaps through the middle and the other on an 11-yard run by Young.

The Wolfpack scored touchdowns on five of the first six times it got possession as it ran up more than 480 yards total offense against the out-classed Tigers.

Peach Bowl spokesmen had indicated prior to the game a

COLUMBIA (AP)—Sophomore quarterback Doby Grossman passed for three touchdowns and Freshman Bobby Marino kicked a 37-yard field goal with 1:28 left to lead South Carolina to a stunning 24-21 collegiate football victory over Florida State Saturday night.

South Carolina, hampered all year by a stumbling, bumbling offense, found the spark with Grossman's passing and the slashing running of backs Jay Lynn Hodgin and Mike Cregar.

Spiders Win 'Losers Bowl'

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Richmond's Spiders, rolling relentlessly on the ground in the final quarter behind record-setting Billy Meyers, smashed William & Mary's Indians 20-3 Saturday and clinched second place in the Southern Conference football race.

Meyers, a 205-pound senior, carried 25 times for 139 yards and scored twice. He set school season records with 763 yards rushing and 10 touchdowns.

The victory boosted Richmond to 5-1 in the conference and 6-4 over-all, while the Indians—who never were able to mount a sustained offense with their top two runners on the sidelines with injuries—wound up 4-2 in league play and 5-6 against all opposition.

All-Southern flanker David Knight of William & Mary caught five passes 56 yards, leaving him five short of the 2,000-yard mark for his career.

Richmond went 73 yards in 13 plays in the second period for the first score, Mike Mahoney taking a 7-yard pass from Harry Knight. Except for the touchdown play, all the yardage was on the running of Meyers, Bobby Allen and Barty Smith.

The Indians, who had been stymied to that point, moved 68 yards—mostly on the passing of Bill Deery—but the drive bogged down at the Richmond 10 and Terry Regan kicked a 27-yard field goal, his ninth in 11 attempts this season.

It was still 7-3 late in the third period when William & Mary's Russell Brown unloaded a 77-yard punt to the Richmond 19.

The Spiders promptly put the game out of reach with an 81-yard march in 17 plays, every yard coming on the ground, and Meyers ran nine yards for the score.

The Indians, with top runners Todd Bushnell and Doug Gerhart sitting out the entire game, came back to the Richmond 25 on the passing of Rip Scherer. But the Spiders, aided by a penalty and a fierce pass rush, pushed them back to the 49 and took over.

Richmond then moved 51 yards in five plays with Meyers getting his second touchdown from three yards out.

Allen finished with 80 yards on 19 carries and Smith had 54 on 12 carries as the Spiders ran

UCLA (Who Else) Tops Cage Poll

By The Associated Press
UCLA's powerful Bruins, winners of an unprecedented six consecutive NCAA titles and eight of the last nine, and led by Player of the Year Bill Walton, were unanimous choices Saturday to repeat as college basketball champions for the 1972-73 season, in The Associated Press poll.

The Bruins, unbeaten in 45 straight games since their last loss, an 89-82 decision to Notre Dame at South Bend, Ind. Jan. 23, 1971, received all 36 first-place votes for a total of 720 points in the pre-season poll of sports writers and broadcasters.

Florida State, 81-76 losers in last season's NCAA final, was second in the poll with 520 points, edging Maryland, which finished third with 509 points. Both teams received 13 second-place votes and eight thirds, but Florida State was given seven fourths to only three for Maryland. Florida State had a 27-6 record last season and wound up 10th in the final AP poll. Maryland was 27-5 and 14th.

Minnesota was a distant fourth in the pre-season balloting, with 349 points, and was followed by Marquette, Long Beach State, Southwestern Louisiana, North Carolina State, Penn and Ohio State.

Memphis State headed the second 10. Then came Brigham Young, Kentucky, Tennessee, Houston, South Carolina, Kansas State, Oral Roberts, Michigan, and Louisville and Southern California, tied for 20th.

The 6-foot-11 Walton heads a group of four returning starters, two reserves and three highly touted freshmen on Coach John Wooden's perennially strong team. "They've got to be stronger than they were last year," said Louisville Coach Denny Crum, a former assistant to Wooden at UCLA and loser to the Bruins in last season's semifinals. "It shows the strength they have when 6-11 Swen Nater makes the Olympic team and is the leading scorer in the trials, but doesn't even play at UCLA until Walton is hurt. They've got to be considered favorites."

Wooden, however, would make no predictions. "I never start thinking and I won't be quoted about the national scene," he said. "Yes, I think we will be respectable. There is no question but that we will have a fine team."

UCLA also finished first in last year's pre-season poll, but was far from a unanimous choice, receiving only 11 of the 36 first-place votes. North Carolina was runner-up, followed by Southern Cal, Marquette, Ohio State, Maryland, Houston, Long Beach State, Louisville and Kentucky in the Top Ten.

Dolphins Due To Get Toughest Workout As They Take On Jets

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer
The New England Patriots are getting tough. Not against the rest of the National Football League. Just with their own players.

Phil Bengtson, who makes his debut Sunday against Buffalo as head coach of the oncoming, now-disintegrating Patriots, will be doing it without the Pats' No. 1 running back, Carl Garrett, suspended by the club for the remainder of the season because he missed a workout.

The Miami Dolphins may get one of their toughest workouts of the season Sunday when they face the New York Jets.

The Dolphins are aiming for their 10th straight victory of the season and, if they pick it up, they'll not only clinch the American Conference East championship—the first playoff berth to be locked up—but will take a giant step toward the first perfect record attained by an NFL team in 30 years.

But the Jets in general and quarterback Joe Namath in particular have a few scores to settle. They lost 27-17 to Miami last month when Bob Griese was quarterbacking the Dolphins. Now that he's injured, Earl Morrall is calling the signals. And earlier this week, Morrall made a few calls which could have Namath aching for more than mere victory.

Sunday's other games have Pittsburgh at Cleveland in an AFC Central showdown, Minnesota at Los Angeles, Oakland at Denver, San Diego at Kansas City, Dallas at Philadelphia, Green Bay at Houston, New Orleans at Detroit, San Francisco at Chicago, the New York Giants at St. Louis and Baltimore at Cincinnati. On Monday night, Washington hosts Atlanta.

Morrall is apparently so confident he'll guide the Dolphins to victory that he's offered a few opinions about Namath, ignoring the unwritten rule that it's not smart to say things which could arouse the opposition.

Morrall acknowledges Namath's talent but, speaking of his lifestyle, says: "I don't want to be like him. And I hope my kids, and the younger generation, don't grow up to be like him."

The Steelers have been waiting 40 years for a championship of any kind. Now they think they've finally got one. But they have to get past the Browns first—not only on Sunday but again in two weeks. Cleveland, which came from behind in the closing minutes to beat San Diego last Monday night, trails Pittsburgh by a game.

It's a collision of defenses in Los Angeles. The Vikings have the best one in the National Conference, the Rams' the second-best. The Vikings are tied with Detroit for second place in the NFC Central race, the Rams lead in the West by half a game.

The Raiders, back atop the AFC West by half a game, will be out to avenge the 30-23 upset the Broncos handed them earlier this season. And the Chiefs, having already beaten San Diego once this year, must do it again to at least keep pace with Oakland.

Billy C. Steals Cougar Victory

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The pressure defensive tactics used by North Carolina Coach Dean Smith and adopted by his pupil, Larry Brown, for the professional Carolina Cougars overcame Indiana Friday night when the Pacers had erased a 17-point deficit.

The Cougars and Indiana were tied, 102-102, in the final period of their American Basketball Association game, when Billy Cunningham stole the ball three times in a row. The resulting baskets sent Carolina ahead by seven, the margin they eventually won by, 127-120.

With the triumph, Carolina's second in as many games over the ABA West Division leaders, the Cougars remained 2 1/2 games in front in the ABA East. Indiana's margin over Denver fell to a lone game. Cunningham finished the night with 26 points. The top Cougar, however, was Joe Caldwell with 27 points. Tom Owens had his season high of 23, a figure also turned in by Mack Calvin.

George McGinnis scored 39 points to lead the Pacers. After the game Owens said, "Lately I've been getting a lot of bad press about not scoring. Points are not necessarily the vital part of a game." He added, "I thought I had a good game."

Oink!
EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Spectators at Sunday's second annual Pig Bowl have been promised "real police brutality" by a least one prospective player.

And admission is free.

The Pig Bowl was given its name by members of the Eugene Police Department's Blue Blazers and the Green Tie of the Lane County Sheriff's Office.

The game to be played is flag football, a cross between touch and tackle football which is sure to produce some moments of "brutality."

The Blue Blazers hold a 1-0 edge after their 20-6 win last year.

Foster Wants Smaller Ring
By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
STATELINE, Nev. (AP) — Bob Foster charges the Muhammad Ali camp is trying to whip him before their fight starts by agreeing to a 20-foot ring.

"I'm not going to fight him with so much space," declared the 175-pound king, who approaches each of his fights with a deadly seriousness unlike the clowning of Ali.

"I want the 16-foot ring where I can catch him," Foster said. "The bigger ring is all to his advantage."

Foster believes he can hit harder than Ali and the large ring would force him to chase his heavyweight foe.

The 20-foot or 16-foot description refers to each side of the square.

Both Foster, the world light heavyweight champion, and Ali, former heavy king, have been working out in a 20-foot ring at the Sahara Tahoe Hotel and Casino, the scene of their 12-round bout Tuesday night.

"This is a great ring," observed Angelo Dundee, who trains Ali.

"The employes of the hotel built it themselves and the hotel should be proud of such an accomplishment."

Dundee's solicitous comment drew nothing from the Foster camp.

Foster can knock out an opponent with either hand and his managers and trainers don't want the fancy-dancing Ali to have much boxing room.

Both fighters passed preliminary physical examinations and Dr. John R. Hollingsworth of the Nevada State Athletic Commission said, "Both are in excellent physical shape and I can see no anxiety on the part of either."

Mounties Stunned

CULLOWHEE, N.C. (AP)—Western Carolina bolted to a 27-0 lead in the first half Saturday and then fought off an Appalachian State comeback bid on the three-touchdown performance of Clanton Bradshaw to take a 35-21 nonconference victory.

The passing of quarterback Hal Mote to split end Jerry Gaines provided most of the Catamount fireworks. Mote hit 14 of 18 for 195 yards and Gaines pulled in 10 of those for 148 yards and a touchdown.

But Bradshaw sparked Appalachian in the second half. He reached paydirt from the two and the five and caught a six-yard touchdown pass from Steve Loflin.

The victory was Western Carolina's first on its home field over its archrival from the Southern Conference since 1958. The independent Catamounts finished their season with a 7-2-1 record, while Appalachian ended with a 5-5-1 mark.

New Facility Sparks Spider Cagers rebounds well, but the best thing is his defense when he puts his mind to it." Mills is optimistic about the season. "We're going to be a better team, but we have a tougher schedule to get through. "Playing on our campus is going to be a big help," he added.

By WOODY PEELE
(One of a series)
The University of Richmond has something going for it that no other school in the Southern Conference can claim, and Coach Lou Mills is hoping that it will help to pull the Spiders out of the doldrums of the league. This year, the Spiders will be moving into the new Robins

Center on the campus of the University of Richmond. It marks the first time in ages that the Richmond team has had a facility of its very own. In the past, they've played their games in the Richmond Arena, at least until last year, when the new Richmond Coliseum was opened. But through this period, the Spiders practiced in a small gym on campus and only played on their "home" court when they actually played. To Mills, this was a disadvantage almost like playing every home game away. "We have the finest facility in the Southern Conference," Mills grinned. "And possibly maybe the best in the South or in the country. This is the first time in my entire coaching career (13 years) that I've been able to practice on the same court I'll be playing on."

The facility is so new that it was just yesterday that the Spiders, already five weeks into practice, were able to hold their first workout on their new court. The new arena will seat 10,000 and Mills is hopeful that his team will generate enough enthusiasm to fill it up a few times this year. "We're enthusiastic about it," he said, referring to the players and coaches. "It's going to add a lot to our program and should increase student support since they'll be able to walk to the games instead of going downtown." Mills also feels that the Spiders play an outstanding schedule. "No one played a tougher one," he said. "We have to play it because we feel the people will support these teams." Among home games for the Spiders are Maryland, West Virginia, Villanova, George Washington, Duke and Virginia Tech, plus the Southern Conference rivals.

"Southern Conference play is getting better, too," Mills said. "We're getting the better players back in the league now." Mills feels that a couple of new faces are going to go a long way toward helping the Spiders. One of these is 6-5, 190 pound sophomore Steve Catlett. "He's a very fine player. He penetrates well, but he's also got range and is an excellent shooter. He keeps coming at you, and he's got good quickness. He's very mature for a sophomore." Returning in the middle will be Jeff Snider, a 6-10, 220 pound senior. "We'll go with a single man in the middle this year, and he'll be a good one for us. Few are quicker than he is."

Another junior to see a lot of action will be Gus Collier, a 6-7, 220-pounder. "He's got great hands and has the knack of getting the ball in the basket. He's not pretty to watch, but he does a lot of things well."

Joe Dausies, a 6-8, 240-pound senior, will be a back up man up front as will Ray Amann, a 6-9, 190-pound senior.

"Catlett has to do a good job for us at one of the guard positions," Mills said. "The other man in the backcourt will be Mike Anastasio, a 6-1, 185-pound senior, who as All-Conference as a sophomore. "We know he'll perform well. Defensively, he's as quick as any guard around. He stays after the ball, and we just hope we get the leadership from him we need."

Another man counted on is Bobby Jacobs, a 6-3, 185-pound junior who didn't play last year. "He's aggressive and a good shooter but he has to prove himself on defense." Another backup man is 6-1, 170-pound Calvin Mack.

But perhaps the ace-in-the-hole will be Aron Stewart, a 6-5, 200-pound junior transfer student, who will for ineligible for the first six games of the season. "He's going to be one of the real fine players in the league. He's the best player at Richmond, but we're not putting any pressure on him. He's quick.

Bear Grass In Second Victory

BEAR GRASS — Bear Grass celebrated its Homecoming Friday night and took a pair of games from Lucama to help the celebration along. The boys won, 66-57, to even their record at 2-2, while the girls were taking a 44-39 victory, their first of the year.

In the girls' game, it didn't look too bright for the Lady Bears during the first period, as they were outlasted, 10-1. Things got a little better during the second frame, as the Bears pushed in 11, but their defense still allowed Lucama to lead them trailing 28-12.

But in the third period, the Bear Grass defense went to work, limiting Lucama to just four points. The Bears, in the meantime, pushed through 12 points and cut the lead back to 32-24. They continued their rally through the final period, dumping in 20 points, while holding Lucama to just seven. That was enough to let the Bears move ahead by five and win it.

Gloria Wobbleton led Bear Grass with 19 points.

In the boys game, the Bears didn't have to work quite as hard, grabbing an early lead, then holding on to it. They pushed ahead by six in the first period, taking a 19-13 lead.

In the second stanza, the Bears continued to pull away, outshooting Lucama, 14-6. That powered them into a 33-19 lead at intermission.

The Bears continued to roll along through the third period, dumping in 20 points to just half as many for the Lucama five. That boosted the score to 53-29 lead. They relaxed a little in the final quarter and Lucama put on a 28-13 rally, but it wasn't enough to pull it out.

Time For Deer Hunts

RALEIGH — Mark your calendar for Monday, December 4. That's when most of the either-sex deer seasons across North Carolina open for gun hunting.

In two areas — part of Moore County and the Butner section of Granville, Durham and Person counties — the either-sex deer season is only one day, while in some other areas — parts of Beaufort, Bladen and Wilkes counties — the season is from December 4 through December 9. In all or parts of Bertie, Buncombe, Edgecombe, Gates, Halifax, Hertford, Martin, Northampton and Perquimans counties, the season is from December 4 through December 16. Exceptions are at the Cherry Point Marine Air Station in Craven County and the northern part of Hertford County which will be open December 4 through January 1. In the western part of Gates County, the either-sex season opened November 15 and will close January 1.

Hunters can get the full details on the dates, area boundaries for the seasons, and special antlerless check stations by checking with their local hunting and fishing license agent or local wildlife cooperators agent. These agents have been furnished copies of this information. Hunters who want their own personal free copy of the either-sex deer information can write for it at the Division of Education, N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission, 325 N. Salisbury Street, Raleigh, North Carolina 27611.

"Hunters are reminded that although both buck and doe deer may be shot during the either-sex season on these areas, they must have any antlerless deer they kill tagged at one of the specially designated check stations," said a Wildlife Commission spokesman. "These special check stations are listed in the free publication which also gives dates and boundary details."

Hunters will also need a special big game license in addition to their regular hunting license in order to hunt deer. If you plan to hunt on one of the Wildlife Commission's Game Lands, a $6 Game Lands Use Permit will also be necessary.

CINCINNATI (AP) — University of Cincinnati football Coach Ray Callahan, who surprised the school with his resignation Friday, said he is looking for another coaching job because he wants to stay in football.

Callahan said he will remain at Cincinnati for the game today with Miami of Ohio and the final contest next week at the University of Houston.

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — The weatherman predicted only a 30 per cent chance of rain for the National Hot Rod Association's Supernational drag races.

Sixteen men in each of four categories will qualify this afternoon—if the skies don't open up—and then the 16 will collide Sunday for the $200,000 in prizes.

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A $25,000 loan default suit filed in U. S. District Court here in behalf of the Small Business Administration (SBA) names tennis star Arthur R. Ashe of Richmond as a defendant.

According to the suit filed Friday, Ashe was a cosigner of a note guaranteeing payment of a $25,000 loan to Safari Limited, described by the SBA as a clothing firm in Danville, Va.

The SBA, which is the holder of the note, said it guaranteed the loan, made by the First State Bank of Danville. Also named a defendant was Thomas D. Williamson of Richmond, listed as a second cosigner of the note.

Make Sure Shot Deer Is Dead

By JIM DEAN

With the deer season in the Piedmont and western parts of North Carolina opening Monday, November 20, there are two things that will be foremost in the minds of hunters.

Obviously, one of them is bagging a deer. The other is the avoidance of a similar fate. Actually, hunting is a safe sport, and you are far more likely to "buy the farm" while driving to your hunting area than you are getting shot after you get there.

Even so, here are a couple of admittedly loosely related tips that could help you achieve both your goals.

First, unless you are an experienced deer hunter, you may be surprised at what happens when you shoot a deer. A deer that's been hit rarely collapses like a gut-shot movie cowboy. In fact, in many cases, there is little initial indication that you have even hit the deer at all.

How many times have you heard the following remark:

"The buck was real close. He couldn't have been 25 yards away when I shot, and I thought I made a good shot. But instead of falling, he high-tailed it out of there and I never saw him again. I just blew it. I suppose I got buck fever."

Experienced deer hunters never assume that they missed just because the deer ran away like a scared rabbit. Very few deer drop in their tracks. More often, a mortally wounded deer will run off without showing any sign at all that he's been hit. He may run a couple of hundred yards and drop dead while the hunter bemoans his bad aim.

Just to be sure, hunters should always follow up on a shot, even when everything points to a miss. Experts also say that sometimes a wounded deer will give you a clue as he heads into the brush. One that staggers around is, of course, obviously hit. But if the deer has been hit in the chest cavity, he may "hop" a couple of times as he leaves. Sometimes, particularly if the deer has been gut-shot, he will hunch up for a couple of jumps before running off.

Strangely enough, a deer that has been hit in the heart or liver may not give you any clues. He just races away apparently unhurt.

An expert deer hunter always marks the animal's position when the shot was fired, then searches the area for signs of blood, hair, or flesh. Even if nothing is found, it pays to follow the deer's trail as far as possible until you are absolutely sure you missed. More than one hunter—convinced he missed—has walked up on his dead deer as scant few hundred yards from where he shot him.

While following your deer,

NAMED STATE DIRECTOR — Bill McDonald, center, has been named North Carolina State director by the Southeast Karate Association. McDonald was appointed by Chuck

Norris, left, president of the U.S. Karate Congress, and Joe Corley of Atlanta, Ga. McDonald, instructor of the East Carolina Karate team, was named to the post last weekend.

McDonald Named To State Karate Post

Bill McDonald, karate instructor of the East Carolina Karate team, has been appointed Southeast Karate Association State Director for North Carolina, it has been announced.

McDonald was appointed last weekend in Atlanta, Ga., by Church Norris and Joe Corley, two officials of the S.E.K.A., which is affiliated with the United State Karate Congress, one of the largest associations in the world.

McDonald said the purpose of the association is to prevent poney karate instructors from operating fake schools, and to unite people interested in karate, and set up standards for tournament rules that will apply to all competitive events.

Karate has also been approved for the 1976 Olympics, McDonald noted and part of his duties as director will be to screen North Carolina athletes as prospective members for the U.S. team.

McDonald and the East Carolina Club will also play host to the "Goju-Shorin Classics" Karate Tournament on Saturday, December 2, at Rose High School. This tournament is expected to draw karate enthusiasts from across the country.

Select Field Seeking Outboard World Title

By JACK WOLISTON

LAKE HAVASU CITY, Ariz. (UPI) — A select field of almost 100 sleek racing boats will roar away from the starting line on Lake Havasu on Saturday, Nov. 25, in quest of the world outboard title and $65,000 in prizes.

The ninth annual renewal of this richest of all boat races, newly named the Pepsi-Cola Outboard World Championship, has drawn entries from such distant points as England, Italy, South Africa, Holland, Peru and Tahiti.

For the first time, the Thanksgiving weekend classic will be limited to tunnel-type hulls mounting single engines, a stipulation which race director Robert P. McCulloch Jr., believes will provide more of a "man-to-man test."

Since the inaugural event in 1964, winners each year have been powered by multiple engines, mostly twins, although a three-engine craft took the title in 1967. At the same time, single engine craft have turned in good performances, finishing well up with the leaders each year.

In its truest sense, the event is an endurance test for driver, boat and engine, with four hours of racing Saturday and four more on Sunday and top prize of $18,000 going to the driver who covers the most distance.

The record for the four-mile boomerang-shaped course on Lake Havasu—660 miles at an average speed of 82.5 miles per hour—was set last year by Bill Sirois of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., in a Molinari tunnel hull powered by twin Mercury Twister I engines.

The big question this year that is expected to draw more than 40,000 spectators to this Colorado River town is whether the single engines, capable of more than 100 miles per hour on the long backstretch of the Havasu course, can better Sirois' record.

No Size Restrictions
According to race director McCulloch, there are no restrictions on the size or horsepower of the single engines to be used this year.

"An engine must be a production model to start with, but modification of any kind will be permitted," he said.

When this modification takes place, some engines may well exceed 100 cubic inches and 200 horsepower.

The favorites, of course, usually are members of the teams sponsored by the Big Three manufacturers — Mercury, Johnson and Evinrude. Factory experts tune these engines razor-sharp and add refinements that are fresh off the drawing board.

At the same time, the Big Three mechanics lend a hand to the independents who use their engines and, with good racing luck, an independent could easily grab top money.

At any rate, a driver finishing among the first 45 will get some part of the $65,000 purse, with awards ranging from the winner's share of $18,000 down to $200 for 45th spot.

McCulloch Properties, Inc., sponsor of the event, provides $40,000 of the prize money and Ralph Evinrude, board chairman of Outboard Marine Corp., contributes $25,000. This year, the Pepsi-Cola company is contributing money to assist with the cost of race-site facilities and with promotion of the race.

It Rises To The Occasion.

Introducing AIR LEVELIZER™ — the new air adjustable, Extra Heavy Duty shock absorber from Columbus.

It can make your car ride level when you are pulling a heavy trailer or hauling an overload.

AIR LEVELIZERS are installed on the rear of the car, and can be inflated with air (just like a tire) to shoulder the extra weight of a camper, a house trailer, a boat trailer or other load.

Then they can be deflated when the situation is back to normal.

AIR LEVELIZERS enable you to hold proper headlight aim and bumper height (Federal regulations are coming on these) and at the same time, you can enjoy the remarkable ride control that Columbus Extra Heavy Duty shock absorbers provide.

There's an optional power air fill kit that gives you dashboard control of inflation and deflation.

Under the conditions of our guarantee, we will replace any AIR LEVELIZER that fails in normal use within two years or 24,000 miles, whichever comes first.

You can buy Columbus AIR LEVELIZERS at your favorite service station or car repair shop. Just ask for them by name.

Ducks Unlimited

WIDGEON — Commonly called baldpate (from the white crown feathers of the male) the widgeon is a common dabbling duck found on marshes across the west. Ranging north into the Northwest Territories, Yukon and Alaska, it is rare east of Manitoba. The widgeon is an early spring migrant, arriving with the vanguard of pintail and mallard. The male is readily identified by his white crown and large white shoulder wing patches. Females are dull brown and grey with a much reduced, dull white wing patch. The nest is built in grasses or other cover on dry land usually, but not always, near water.

Business Notes

SALE ANNOUNCED

Lee B. Thomas Jr., president of Vermont American Corp., Louisville-based manufacturer of cutting tools, announced that the company has sold for cash its Industrial Supply Company division located in Aurora, Ill.

The division, accounting for approximately three per cent of the company's revenues, was purchased in September of 1969 for the purpose of developing information, experience, and sales programs that could be offered to Vermont American's industrial distributor customers to make its product lines more attractive and profitable to them.

With this work completed over the past three years, Vermont American reported, the division was sold to provide working capital for other programs.

TRIPS WON

Four Greenville representatives of Pilot Life Insurance Company's Combination Division won expense paid trips to the Carolina-Duke football game Saturday in Chapel Hill.

The company announced that H.H. Howard, district manager; G.A. Jordan, staff manager; and representatives R.G. Harris and D.H. Gordon won the trips as a result of outstanding district, staff and personal sales during the October.

ADVANCED SEMINAR

Some 55 Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co. agents from Georgia, North Carolina, and Tennessee attended a special advanced underwriters seminar in Atlanta, Ga. on Monday and Tuesday.

The seminar was designed to provide experienced agents with training in recent developments in special fields of advanced underwriting work. It also covered the use of life insurance in business and estate planning.

Attending from this area was district agent Bill L. Hunt, C.L.U., who maintains an office in Greenville. He is associated with the Arthur S. DeBerry, C.L.U. general agency in Chapel Hill.

GIVEN NEW TERM

George D. Cox of Winterville, a veteran member of the board of directors of FCX Inc., has been reelected to a new three-year term. Cox has served as a director of the two-state farmer cooperative since 1957.

FCX, which was founded in 1934, is a farm supply and marketing organization with approximately 50,000 farmers as active members. It has outlets in the principal cities and towns of North and South Carolina, including Greenville, Farmville, and other Eastern Carolina points.

Total purchasing and marketing volume of the cooperative in the fiscal year ended June 30 was $133,000,000.

DELAY CITED

P.H. Henson, president of United Telecommunications Inc., announced that the anticipated fourth quarter 1972 extraordinary gain from the sale of United's American Television common stock to United and certain stockholders will be delayed until after consummation of its proposed merger with Cox Cable Communications Inc.

United had announced in its third quarter report to stockholders that an extraordinary gain approximating five cents per share was anticipated in the fourth quarter of 1972 arising from the contemplated sale of the American Television common stock received for its Jefferson-Carolina CATV properties.

HARTFORD SEMINAR

Edward Eugene Turbeville Jr. of Greenville recently completed a seminar at the Hartford Insurance Group's advanced center in Hartford, Conn. The company announced, Turbeville, Hartford reported, was one of 16 participants selected to take part in the seminar which provided updated information on current industry trends and job-related skills.

A claim manager at the Hartford's Charlotte regional office, he joined the company in 1969.

DU PONT TRANSFERS

Du Pont announced that Kenneth C. McAlpine, a Process Supervisor at the Kinston "Dacron" Plant, was transferred to the company's Engineering Department in Wilmington, Del., effective Nov. 1.

Charles E. Dusenbury, Senior Research Engineer at the Kinston Facility, will transfer to the Wilmington Cape Fear Plant, effective Dec. 1, it was reported.

McAlpine joined Du Pont at Clinton, Iowa and came to Kinston in 1961. Dusenbury joined the company at Kinston in 1957.

ASSISTANT MANAGER

L.A. Bailey, executive vice president of Belk Tyler stores, announced that Wilbur L. Jackson, assistant manager of Belk Tyler of Greenville, has been named assistant group merchandise manager.

In his new capacity, Jackson will be responsible for purchase and distribution of stock for the 15-store retail group, Bailey reported.

Jackson, a native of Williamston, joined Belk Tyler in 1945 as a salesman in the Williamston store. Following 13 years retail experience with other companies he joined Belk Tyler in 1963 as manager of the men's department in the Greenville store. In 1966 he was named assistant manager and general merchandise manager.

icates that college degrees are no longer guarantees of landing a job and graduates hardest to place are those who have "non-marketable" degrees, demand excessive salaries, or have inflated opinions of the value of their particular degree.

Lynn Harris, manager of the Greenville office, noted that personnel departments in business and industry are beginning to be more specific in their job requirements and now want business degrees for business positions. The survey, she said, indicates that the most marketable degrees are business-related, such as accounting, business administration or marketing.

She reported that while graduates and educators still maintain the importance of a degree, management is starting to question the quality of higher education. Publicity about "degree mills," relaxed entrance requirements, and students rebelling against authority and discipline contribute to the devaluation of a college degree in the minds of employers, she said.

RECORD SALES

Leon Levine, president of Family Dollar Stores Inc., announced record sales and earnings for the fiscal year ended Aug. 31. Sales were $37,135,138, up from $27,453,198., in the 1971 fiscal year, an increase of $9,681,940., or 35 per cent.

Net earnings rose approximately 35 per cent to $2,238,415 or 56 cents per common share compared with $1,661,810 or 42 cents per share for the fiscal year 1971.

The company, with a store in Greenville, announced that sales for September and October 1972, the first two months of the first quarter of fiscal 1973, were approximately $7,237,000, up from $5,495,000 for the same two-month period of fiscal 1972, an increase of approximately 32 per cent.

Phelps Among Group Attending Duke U. Medical Center Seminar

DURHAM — Manfred E. Phelps of Greenville was among 15 licensed embalmers from across the state who completed a two-day sight restoration seminar at Duke University Medical Center here recently.

Phelps received training in eye education enucleation—a procedure which qualifies him, as a licensed embalmer, to remove the eyes, when no doctors are available, when eyes have been willed to the North Carolina Eye and Human Tissue

Bank for use in restoring the sight of others.

Dr. John W. Reed, director of the seminar, said "Blindness one of the most tragic and terrifying of all human misfortunes, as well as one of the most costly for the individual and society. It is doubly tragic when there is a chance to prevent it, or alleviate it, and the chance is lost due to the inability to get the eyes enucleated when a donor is available."

According to Dr. Reed, "Much blindness can be prevented or cured by the relatively simple surgical procedure of replacing a diseased or damaged cornea with a bit of tissue—about the size of a lead pencil—from the eye or a recently deceased person."

Unfortunately, Dr. Reed said, "The number of donors' eyes available for this type of surgery is grossly inadequate to meet the need.

"In many instances," the physician emphasized, "this is not because of the lack of donors, but because of the shortage of enucleating doctors. In many areas there are no doctors who are available to remove the eyes within the critical four hour period following death."

According to Dr. Reed, by learning the intricate procedure by which eyes are made available to the eye-banks, the embalmer provides an indispensable service to the public and to the family of the deceased.

And he noted, the service is provided by the embalmers without any charge or cost whatsoever," but solely as the result of their sincere interest in this humanitarian project."

The North Carolina Eye and Human Tissue Bank, which sponsored the seminar, is sponsored by the Lions Clubs in the state. N.C. Lions have secured approximately 80,000 donor pledges since 1963.

Persons interested in learning more about the donor program may contact any local Lion Club member, write directly to the N.C. Eye and Human Tissue Bank, 3195 Maplewood Ave., Winston-Salem, or Phelps.

Phelps is an embalmer at S.G. Wilkerson and Sons Funeral Homes.

Stone History Is Deciphered

MOSCOW (UPI)—Leningrad scholars have deciphered a 1,000-year-old message carved into a 1,760 pound rock from Tuva in southeast Siberia, according to the Tass news agency.

The stone describes the death of a 20-year-old warrior, killed by a spear in battle and the sorrow of his relatives.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1972

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The oncoming Full Moon brings much stimulated activity and you would be wise to get into all of the practical problems that are facing you. Handle them in a different manner than you have in the past. Take the time to gain the goodwill of a detail-conscious person.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A higher-up approves of the way you are taking care of practical matters and gives benefits. Plan to have more money in the bank so that you can make definite plans for the future.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You are most interested in the social now and can make big headway since you are dynamic. Putting a new project in operation can bring fine benefits. Happiness can be yours if you seek it.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Complete those tasks for which you have had little time lately and this gives you more time for bigger and better things ahead. Get in touch with experts who can be of greater service to you.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You are able to join forces with good friends who can be of great help to you in your personal projects. Practical systems are the most profitable. Avoid one with an inflated ego.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A good day to follow through with orders from higher-ups who have some control over your life. Rules and regulations are very important right now. Show finest capabilities with right people.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have the benefit of fine ideas from higher-ups, though you may not agree with them at first, so accept. You can make some interesting new contacts now. Attend the social tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) If you spend some time in meditation, you get excellent intuitive perceptions that will be helpful in solving current problems. Conditions are arising that can make mate happy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A good day to discuss with associates any changes you feel should be made in present arrangements. Come to a better understanding. Engage in social activities and get the backing you need.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You have important work to do today, so attend to it without delay and forget the recreational for awhile. Take the time to make yourself more attractive. Take health treatments.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Good pals can make this a most delightful day for you, so get together early with them. Enjoy the recreations that you really enjoy. Show mate you are devoted and get excellent results.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) There are some changes needed at home and you can figure out exactly how they should be made now. Find the right articles to make it more comfortable and charming. Avoid clutter.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) First attend the spiritual meetings you enjoy, then get together with good friends and have a delightful time. Engage in your favorite hobby. This can improve your health and your figure.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those methodical young people who could get on the nerves of others because of the deliberation and concernment with details. But once the mind of your progeny is made up, nobody can dissuade it. The field of banking, business, or politics would be especially fine here, although law or medicine could be just as fine. Send to college by all means. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Carroll Righter's Individual Forecast for your sign for December is now ready. For your copy send your birthdate and $1 to Carroll Righter Forecast (name of newspaper), P.O. Box 629, Hollywood, Calif. 90028.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1972

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today's Full Moon finds you able to handle matters which may not be glamorous, but have to do with insurance, trust deeds, wills of the deceased, financial deals of all kinds and especially mortgages. It also touches off your emotional nature so be sure it is placed in right directions.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Any responsibilities of any kind can be handled efficiently today and will gain the approval of bigwigs. Reach a better understanding with attachment. Show you are a kind and generous person.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You want to make certain changes in agreements with associates, but it behooves you to discuss the matter well with them first. This will lead to a far better understanding. A public affair can color your thinking.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You can arrange new deals with others, but be sure you do not confide in anyone for best results. You can be most happy where intimate matters are concerned. Show the sweet side of your nature that is so charming.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Listen to what a clever friend has to say that will help you attain your finest aims more readily. The social can be very pleasant if you are not demanding of others. Do some work on that special hobby, too.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Impress bigwigs with the fact that you are an A-1 citizen and you gain much thereby. Being willing to do some civic work is wise. Study to get the right answers to whatever has been puzzling in the past.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Plan that trip with a new friend that can be most pleasant and even profitable. Handle correspondence that will bring quick and excellent results. Avoid one who has a bad tongue.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan just how to keep those promises you have made that are important and exactly how to be more successful with finances. Listen to advice which mate gives you. Don't take things for granted.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you are objective, you find you can handle that problem with an associate well that has been difficult to do before. Cement better relations. Take care of civic duties better and stop being so reticent about them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Begin week properly by rolling up your sleeves and doing all that work that has piled up over the weekend. Handle voluminous correspondence first. Take time to find right articles to add to wardrobe for busy weeks ahead.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Contact good friends early who like the same things you do and make appointments to get together at the right time. You have fine skills that require some work on them so they operate more efficiently. Keep busy and you won't be bored.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Do early whatever will bring more harmony at home, and then tonight you can certainly have a wonderful time there. Extend invitations to good friends you like. You need to repay social obligations, anyway.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Good day for communications, keeping appointments, paying bills, making the collections that are due, etc. Find out how to make your particular business operate better, too. Have a fast talk with a fast expert.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those people who is what is known as a soldier of fortune who will always be making changes of one sort or another, although seemingly against own will, so teach early that life is like that for some. Prepare your youngster well by giving as fine an education as you can, or that will be accepted. Many talents here and success in almost anything tackled, at least temporarily. The affections are constant, lasting, though. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Carroll Righter's Individual Forecast for your sign for December is now ready. For your copy send your birthdate and $1 to Carroll Righter Forecast (name of newspaper), Box 629, Hollywood, Calif. 90028.

Warm Water For Indoor Plants

NEW YORK (UPI)—Here's a tip from the American Water Works Association for people who have indoor plants or flowers. According to those experts, few house plants should be watered with cold water. This is why many indoor plants fail to bloom. To keep house plants in the best conditions they say, let the water warm to room temperature before watering. You'll get better results.

The Water Association is a scientific, non-profit, educational organization dedicated to improving water service for the 200 million people served by community water supplies in North America.

Israeli Kibbutz Played Part In Romance

ARAM'S ENJOYMENT . . . is obvious as Lu kisses his toes. She visited kibbutznik families nearly every afternoon and said Aram and his parents were among her favorites.

By Carol Tyer
Reflector Staff Writer
FARMVILLE — Kibbutzniks respect hard work. If you're willing to work, you are accepted. If not, you're kicked out," Lu Dixon said, relating her experiences during six months spent in a work-study program at Kibbutz Gaaton in Israel.

"These people have hewn their communal home out of wilderness and they welcome anyone who is willing to work and accept their ideas. When I was there, about 50 persons from all over the world came to Gaaton. Only about 17 were allowed to stay.

"Besides laziness, another thing kibbutzniks will not tolerate is any use of drugs. They do not approve of it and they do not want their children exposed to it, so if there is any hint, out you go." What was life like for Lu in the kibbutz? "It was good," she said. "I was an ulpan—student—and was there for a relatively long stay, so I was given a room shared with one other person. People there for only a week or so may have had to live in tents, depending on the accommodations available at the time.

"One week I would be in class from 6 to 11 a.m., then work from noon to 4 p.m.; the next week the routine would be reversed.

"I was studying Hebrew in Hebrew. The teacher knew little English, but he was undoubtedly the best teacher I have ever had. He was so dynamic, so warm and expressive, and used audio-visual aids so well that I had little trouble figuring out what the words meant.

"Hebrew is more logical than English. For instance, every word concerned with bigness or largeness would have the same root, so it would be easy to associate one with the other and remember it. There are difficulties, however. Everything is written from right to left and the alphabet consists only of consonants. For instance, the word for big has only three letters, the equivalents of our letters, g d l, yet is pronounced gadol. You just have to remember pronunciations—there are no vowels to help out."

"I was lucky to be able to work outside the whole time," Lu said. "I worked in the noie—translated panorama—an area with trees, flowers, and other natural beauty. I did everything from felling trees to weeding flowers and was put in charge of the swimming pool, keeping it clean, which was a big job because it did not have a filter.

People Were Kind
"Because I did work hard both at my studies and outdoors, I was accepted completely and was wonderfully treated," Lu said. "I spent all my free time with the kibbutznik families and will never forget how kind they were to me."

She also spoke of the kindness of people she met on the way and elsewhere in Israel. A Parisian family, Francoise and Pascal Aubier and their infant daughter, Julie, welcomed her to their home and showed her the sights of Paris for two weeks.

The Yehudi Faust family made her at home in their home in Tel Aviv when she arrived in Israel Friday night, the Sabbath, when no buses run and every store is closed. Besides giving her first view of many of the sites around Tel Aviv, they even visited her at the kibbutz "just to see how she was." She had met Aubier on the plane from New York and Faust on the flight from Paris to Tel Aviv. "When you can trust, you meet kind and generous people everywhere you go," she said.

She told of an adventure in the Judean Desert last April when she and three friends hiked the 40 miles from Jerusalem to Eingedi. Because of mined roads, they were forced to detour and became lost while going around sheer cliffs, wadis (dried river beds) and other roads possibly mined. A trip that was supposed to last a day and a half took two days and caused searching parties to be sent out on their account. Their water supply became low, but one of their party who could speak Arabic was able to bargain with some Bedouin tribesmen for enough additional water for them to make it to Eingedi.

She and another friend encountered sharks while skin diving at Dehab in the Red Sea, another close call, but she saw the prettiest coral in the world there, she said.

Studied Judaism
What prompted a Farmville, N.C., girl to live and work in a kibbutz in faraway Israel? "About the time I was to graduate from Carolina in 1970, I dated a Jewish guy from Baltimore," she said. "Because I could see how deeply he felt about his faith, I became interested in Judaism. When I went to Palo Alto, Calif., to work as a recreation director, I started to go to a rabbi and began taking classes on different aspects of Judaism. I became fascinated with this ancient faith which puts so much emphasis on the individual. Bob, the fellow who had introduced me to Judaism, was then in law school in Baltimore, but he went out to visit me during a break.

"I loved my work at Palo Alto. I had a marvelous salary and lived in a rose-covered cottage—literally—within bike-riding distance of the recreation center. It was all too perfect, though, and I began to think about wanting to visit Israel and find out for myself why Israel is so significant to every Jew. So after Christmas vacation with my family last year, I set out. I had to use my savings for the trip, but everything at the kibbutz is paid for through your own work."

LU DIXON . . . a Farmville High School and UNC graduate and former debutante found her six months of living in a kibbutz in Israel the most meaningful of her life.

While Lu was at Gaaton, she said she realized she was in love with Bob Manekin, the Baltimore law student who had started her on the aliya (visit to Israel). A call to him in Baltimore told him so, and within a few weeks he had joined her at Gaaton. They spent a month there together before coming home.

Lu now has a job at the Jewish Community Center in Baltimore as sports director and is in conversion classes. She and Bob will be married in April in the back yard of her family home here.

"It was not because of Bob that I chose Judaism, though he did start it all," she said. "And it's not for him that I'm becoming a Jew. He would love me and marry me even if I remained within the Christian faith. It's a personal choice, but one that makes me happy about our future as a family. Jews believe the children should be of the same faith as their mother, so I am, in a way, determining the probable faith of our children.

"The importance of children and the family in Jewish thought is one thing that attracted me to Judaism in the first place," Lu said "perhaps because of the closeness of my own family."

Bob and Lu's family will be much like his family in their keeping of the Jewish faith, she said. They will begin the Sabbath on Friday night with a family gathering and will spend the rest of the Sabbath—all day Saturday—either at the synagogue or in some activity not part of the usual week's work. They will not keep kosher in their food preparation—"Bob loves barbecue," she said laughing. They will, of course, keep the Jewish holidays, leaving off Christian ones like Christmas and Easter.

THE HADER-OCHEL . . . or dining room is seen in the background as kibbutz children play on the lawn. The designs on the building are by Smeuli Katz, the Kibbutz Gaaton artist.

Sisters Speak Vows In Double Wedding Saturday Afternoon

The marriages of Miss Cindy Jo Ellington to Dennis Wayne Watson and Miss Jan Bridget Ellington to Milton Rudolph Phillips Jr. were solemnized Saturday, November 18 at 3:00 p.m. in the First Christian Church in Greenville.

The brides are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. William Edward Ellington III of Greenville. The bridegrooms are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. James Howard Watson of near Mount Airy and Mr. and Mrs. Milton Rudolph Phillips of Goldsboro.

The double ring ceremonies were performed by the Rev. M. Dana Hunt. A program of wedding music was presented by Miss Melinda Daniels, organist, and Miss Mary Lee Wilgers who sang, "We've Only Just Begun" and "The Lord's Prayer" as the benediction.

The church was decorated with the traditional green and white. In the background were tall standards of greenery, semicircle and spiral candelabra. The Communion table was centered with a brass cross flanked with single candleholders. In the choir loft were pyramidal candelabra overflowing with white snapdragons, chrysanthemums and pom poms.

In the chancel of the church were two decorated prie-dieus where the two couples exchanged vows and knelt for the benediction. Pews were marked with satin bows and sprays of harvest fruit.

Given in marriage by their father, the brides wore identical gowns of ivory peau de soie designed with a sheer yoke of silk organza accentuated by a deep band of Venise lace. A miniature border of lace encircled the high neckline and edged the cuffs of the long sleeves. Alternating rows of the laces were featured on the skirt front which extended to an attached chapel train.

The wore identical headpieces of ivory Venise lace petals with ivory bouffant illusion veils.

The brides carried formal loose cascade bouquets complementary to their gowns of ivory cymbidium orchids interspersed with sunset yellow sweetheart roses, tins of greenery, stephanotis, and miniature fruit tied with ivory and yellow satin.

Attending Miss Cindy Jo Ellington as matron of honor was Mrs. Wenona Watson Westmoreland, sister of the bridegroom. Miss Jane Flanagan served as maid of honor to Miss Jan Bridget Ellington.

The honor attendants wore identical formal length moss crepe dresses designed with an open collar of ivory crepe edged with ivory crocheted lace. The cuffs of the long sleeves were also of ivory crepe edged in lace. The natural waistline was enhanced by a self-tie with long streamers.

The honor attendants carried decorative baskets filled with various shades of yellow, shrimp, fuchsia, purple and gold miniature carnations featuring seasonal wheat and fruit tied with green and purple velvet with long streamers.

Bridesmaids serving Miss Cindy Ellington were Mrs. Connie Palmer, Miss Fran Jones, and Miss Susan Currie. Those attending Miss Jan Ellington were Miss Brenda Bond, Miss Jean Trevathan and Miss Gwen Rogers. They were dressed in formal length moss crepe gowns designed like those of the honor attendants. They each carried baskets identical to the honor attendants.

Tommy Watson served his brother as best man. Ushers were Wallace Watson, brother of the bridegroom, Billy Ellington, brother of the brides, and Kyle Hodges, cousin of the brides.

Milton Rudolph Phillips attended his son as best man. Ushers were Bob McBride, Bill May, Barry Johnson, and Kim Hodges, cousin of the brides.

The mother of the brides was attired in a long sleeve aqua crepe dress. She wore matching accessories and a gold orchid corsage.

The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Watson, wore a pink dress with black accessories and a purple orchid corsage. Mr. Phillips' mother was attired in a short sleeve hot pink crepe dress. She wore matching accessories and a light pick orchid corsage.

The maternal grandmother of the brides, Mrs. R.H. Galloway, wore a two-piece knit dress with tones of purple and grey. She wore matching accessories and a light purple orchid corsage.

The paternal grandmother of the brides, Mrs. W.E. Ellington Jr., wore a red suit with black accessories and a corsage of mint green orchid.

Mr. Phillips' maternal grandmother, Mrs. Mable Keen, wore an ice blue dress with matching accessories and a white soft ivory orchid corsage. Mrs. Ray Herring, step-grandmother of the bridegroom, chose a mint green dress, matching accessories and a harvest gold orchid corsage.

For a wedding trip to Canada, Mrs. Watson chose a pantsuit in tones of orange and beige and matching accessories. She lifted an orchid corsage from her wedding bouquet. The couple will reside in Winston-Salem.

For a wedding trip to the mountains of North Carolina, Mrs. Phillips changed into a pantsuit with a light pink coat, burgandy sweater and pants of burgandy and pink tones. She used matching accessories and her corsage was also lifted from her wedding bouquet. The couple will make their home in Greenville.

The brides attended J.R. Rose High School and Hardbarger Business College, Raleigh. Mrs. Phillips is employed at The Daily Reflector.

Mr. Watson is employed as a sales manager with Combined Insurance Company. Mr. Phillips attended Goldsboro High School and East Carolina University. He will be leaving for the U.S. Air Force in the near future.

reception in the church parlor. The brides' portraits were displayed on the guest register where the brides' aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Elmore Hodges, presided.

Pouring punch was Mrs. Jack Marsh, aunt of the brides, and Mrs. Bill Wilkens served the wedding cake.

The brides' table was garlanded with springerli greenery and wedding bells. The refreshment table was centered with a massive arrangement of snapdragons, miniature carnations and decorative fruit.

Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Mac Whitehurst.

On the double register table was a tall arrangement of flowers in mixed colors featuring sheaves of wheat and fruit.

On Friday night, the bridal couples were honored at an after-rehearsal dinner party for the wedding party, relatives and out-of-town guests at the Candlewick Inn. The dinner party was given by the parents of the bridegrooms-elect.

The bridesmaids luncheon was given at the home of Mrs. Louis Gaylord Jr., assisted by Mrs. Mac Whitehurst and Mrs. Travis Flanagan.

Trimming The Christmas Giving List

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Last year you had the perfect solution for people who wanted to cut their Christmas gift list. It was a diplomatic way to advise certain friends and relatives not to send you anything because you weren't sending them anything. It made such good sense to me I cut it out, intending to follow your suggestion, and now I can't find it. Will you please print it again? Thank you.

CUTTING DOWN IN BOSTON

DEAR CUTTING: Many others asked for a repeat of that letter, and here it is:

DEAR ABBY: This is a tough one. How do you suddenly take someone off your Christmas gift list? And let them know in advance, so they will take you off theirs?

We have many friends and relatives with whom we have been exchanging Christmas gifts for years. It started when our children were young. We used to give inexpensive toys, elaborately wrapped, so they would have something under their tree, and the kids would have the excitement of unwrapping them on Christmas morning.

The kids aren't kids any more. We almost never see most of them. Many have moved out of town. Christmas shopping is not only a big bore, it has become costly. I am sure these people feel the same way about it, but we don't know how to break this vicious circle. So we keep buying the same people Christmas presents every year because we know they'll buy us something.

If you have a solution for this universal problem, Abby, you're a genius. SICK OF CHRISTMAS

DEAR SICK: I'm no genius, but here's a suggestion: Around Thanksgiving, send them a note saying you are thankful for friends with whom you can be perfectly candid. Then tell them you are trimming your Christmas gift list, and do not plan to send their children (or them, if that's the case) a gift, so to please do likewise. I promise you, it will be the best Christmas gift you could give them.

DEAR ABBY: I have a girl friend I'll call Gwen. She has never been married, but she has a 2-year-old son. Gwen is being married soon and she wants to take her kid along on her honeymoon. Gwen's mother has looked after the little boy a lot and says she is willing to keep the boy while Gwen and her bridegroom go off on their honeymoon.

Gwen insists on taking the kid along. She says it will be a nice vacation for him, and there is no better way for her future husband to learn what being a father is like. [Her fiancé has never been married.]

I told her she was making a big mistake, but she

WOTM Plan Coming Events

Forthcoming Women of the Moose activities were discussed at the business meeting of the organization held Thursday night.

Senior Regent Mrs. A.W. Diehl announced that a bake sale will be held at the Moose Lodge on Wednesday, Nov. 22, headed by Mrs. John Thompson.

The WOTM Christmas party will be held on Saturday, Dec. 16, at the Moose Lodge.

During the business session, the food service, a major fund-raising project of the group, was discussed. All chapter members were encouraged to help serve meals during the coming holiday season.

Pins were presented to Mrs. Donald Baker and Mrs. William Brantley for attending five consecutive meetings.

Refreshments were served following the meeting.

insists she's right. What do you think? GWEN'S FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: How does Gwen's fiancé feel about it? If he WANTS to take the child along on his honeymoon, he's an unusually generous man, and I assure you he will get a crash course in what "being a father is like." If he doesn't want to take the boy, I'd be inclined to agree with you.

DEAR ABBY: Three years ago I married a wonderful man who adopted Ross, my illegitimate son. He loves and accepts this boy as our son, and treats him exactly like the son we later had together the following year.

The problem is my husband's mother. She takes all of her grandchildren on trips, except Ross. She buys presents for her other grandchildren's birthdays and at Christmas and Easter, but she simply ignores this child's existence. Ross is 4 now and he is beginning to wonder why she is so cold to him.

When she was here last, my husband asked her why she behaved this way, and she simply got up and walked out of the room.

Her own children are less than saints themselves. Two were forced to marry, and her daughter had an illegitimate child, too, so why should she resent me and my son?

Should I talk to her or have my husband talk to her? Or should I write her off completely, and tell her she is not welcome in my home? HURT IN ANDERSON

DEAR HURT: Are you sure the woman is well? It's difficult to believe a rational woman can be so incredibly cruel. If she's just plain mean, you and your husband should tell her together that unless she treats Ross the same as the others, she is not welcome in your home. [P. S.: And if your husband wants to see his mother, tell him to visit her at her house.]

Couple Speaks Vows In Double Ring Ceremony

WILSON — In a double ring ceremony Saturday at 2:00 p.m., Miss Vernon Gail Murray became the bride of Kenneth Brown Harrell in the Westview Christian Church here.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Ralph G. Messick. A program of wedding music was presented by Bobby Bennett, organist, and Miss Linda Bass who sang the "Wedding Prayer," "We've Only Just Begun" and "One Hand, One Heart."

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Clinton Murray of Wilson, and was given in marriage by her father. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Perry Harrell of Rt. 2, Colerain.

The bride wore a gown of silk chiffon and Venise lace trimmed with velvet. The Venise lace bodice featured a high neck with a mandarin collar and full length chiffon puff sleeves. Venise lace encircled the cuffs of the sleeves and velvet ribbon banded the high rise waist. The gathered chiffon skirt flowed to a full length.

She chose a fingertip length mantilla of silk illusion and Venise lace attached to an open crown Juliet cap edged with lace. She carried a nosegay of white mums and yellow roses centered with two yellow orchids.

Mrs. Sue Toler of Greenville was matron of honor and Mrs. Jane Murray, sister-in-law of the bride, was her bridesmaid.

They were attired in formal length dresses which featured a green, gold, aqua, and tangerine high rise bodice fashioned with a scoop neckline and lantern sleeves and a gathered chiffon over taffeta almond green skirt. Their headpieces matched the bodice. The matron of honor carried two yellow mums with ribbon streamers and the bridesmaid carried one yellow mum with ribbon streamers.

The bridegroom's father served as his son's best man. Ushers were George C. Murray Jr., the bride's brother of Greenville, and Mike Harrell, cousin of the bridegroom, of Colerain.

After a wedding trip to Nags Head, the couple will reside in Greenville.

MRS. KENNETH BROWN HARRELL

The bride graduated from Ralph L. Fike High School in Wilson, attended East Carolina University, and is now attending King's Business College, Raleigh.

The bridegroom graduated from Bertie High School, Windsor, received his A.A. degree from Chowan College, and attended Atlantic Christian College. He is now manager of Big Value Discount Store, Greenville.

Following the wedding rehearsal at the church Friday night, the bride's parents entertained the couple at a cake cutting at their home.

Covered with a hand-cut maderia cloth, the serving table was centered with a cut glass compote of fall flowers and burning yellow candles.

Punch and a three-tier wedding cake, were served from silver appointments.

Long blunt cut hair has a soft look when it is center-parted and waved on each side. To do it, section wet hair into one-and-a-half inch squares and blow-dry, turning it under. Shorter chin-level hair on either side of the part is dried last, held with a comb behind each ear.

Miss Mary Anne Peele Weds Saturday Afternoon

MRS. EVERETT HAYES PETTEWAY

FOUNTAIN — The Fountain Presbyterian Church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Mary Anne Peele and Everett Hayes PetteWAY Saturday at 5:00 p.m.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Peele of Fountain, and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Norwood PetteWAY of Farmville.

The Rev. William Gordon performed the double ring ceremony and a program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. W. C. Mercer, organist, and Mrs. Ernest N. PetteWAY Jr., soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of silk peau de soie featuring a fitted bodice and traditional sleeves. Re-embroidered alencon lace accented the gown with pearls and crystals featured on the sleeves and bodice. The semi-fitted skirt extended into a chapel train which ended in a deep border of scalloped lace.

Her cathedral mantilla of English net had a deep matching alencon lace border and motifs.

Mrs. George Lewis Deichmann III of New Bern, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Joel Keith Johnson of Smithfield, Mrs. Clarence Hardy Moyer II of Farmville, and Miss Linda Joyce Peele of Fountain, all cousins of the bride.

The attendant wore formal gowns featuring an empire bodice with moss green velvet weskit effect design defined with ivory braid. The gowns had fitted sleeves and shirt waist collars with a gathered skirt of kelly green crepe. They wore matching velvet Camelot hats with veils and carried colonial nosegays of white pom poms tied with green ribbon.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers were Ernest Norwood PetteWAY Jr. of Glen Riddle, Pa., Carl Jesse Robertson Jr., Gerald Ellis Hodnett and Dan Thomas, all of Greenville.

Following a wedding trip to Nassau, the couple will reside in Elizabethtown.

The bride is a graduate of Louisburg College. The bridegroom is a graduate of East Carolina University and is a management trainee at the Bank of North Carolina, N.A.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was given by the bride's parents in the fellowship hall of the church.

Pre-nuptial events honoring the PetteWAY-Peele wedding party included a rehearsal dinner Friday held at the Candlewick Inn given by the parents of the bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest N. PetteWAY.

A cocktail party was held prior to the rehearsal dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Vance B. Taylor, Farmville. Assisting were Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Mercer, Mr. and Mrs. Reul M. Dilda and Mrs. Rawdon Garrett.

On The Local Scene by Rosalie Trotman

A young lady from Williamston has been selected to be a finalist in the 1973 Miss North Carolina Teen-ager Pageant.

Paula Ruth Godard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond S. Cherry, of 120 Williams St., is the finalist.

The pageant will be held at the White House Inn, Charlotte, April 6-8. The Miss N. C. Teen-ager Pageant is the official state finals to the Miss National Teen-ager Pageant to be held in Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 1.

There will be contestants from all over the state competing for the title of Miss N. C. Teen-ager. The reigning titleholder is Teresa Rivera of Havelock.

Contestants will be judged on scholastic achievement-leadership, poise-personality and beauty. There is no swimsuit or talent competition.

Each contestant will recite an essay on the subject "What's Right About America."

Paula is a sophomore at Williamston High School where she is a member of the varsity basketball squad, tennis team, annual staff and band. Her other hobbies include singing, dancing, swimming and baton twirling.

Mrs. Mae Cannon Mills Linsey has been appointed early childhood education consultant for the Georgia Department of Education.

A native of Greenville, she graduated from Knoxville College, Tenn. Her master's degree in education is from the University of Georgia. While studying for her master's degree, she served as a graduate intern in the Bethune Elementary School in Atlanta.

Her professional career includes public school teaching in Knoxville and Atlanta. From 1962-66, Mrs. Linsey was employed by the Birmingham, Ala., Housing Authority to oversee social welfare programs. In 1969, she entered the early childhood education field with the Atlanta Model Cities Educational Component, during which time she served as a consultant for numerous early childhood projects within Metro Atlanta.

She is a Delta Sigma Theta national sorority member and is listed in "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges." Mrs. Linsey and her husband, Nathaniel, a Methodist minister, and their four children reside in Atlanta.

Wheel Keeps Spinning In Arkansas

EUREKA SPRINGS, ARK. (AP) — At "Spinoaks," home of Lee and Virginia Ericson, things are in a spin.

Mrs. Ericson is among the Americans practicing the ancient art of spinning.

Virginia held weekend teaching sessions at "Spinoaks" this past summer and also presided at a workshop in Little Rock.

She says one of the "fun" things about working with the spinning wheel is selecting the sheep from which one wants wool for spinning.

Making vegetable dyes from weeds is another entertaining aspect, Mrs. Ericson said. At times, she gets her plants from the roadside, under the eyes of curious passing motorists.

"I suppose they think I'm out gathering my supper," she said. "And in a sense, I am, of course."

She says in spinning a spinner "tunes up—tensions—a wheel much as a musician tunes his instrument."

"Wheels tell many interesting secrets," Mrs. Ericson said. "By their wear marks one can tell what kind of yarn was spun, whether the spinner was lefthanded or righthanded, and whether the wheel was treadled with the spinner's right or left foot—or both."

"It's funny to say this, but we feel a certain sympathy with the wheels," she said. "They are almost like living things because they are a part of history, coming as they do from a time when people had to use them to make a living, or to make the things they needed in their homes."

Her husband, a metallurgist, is expert in making and reconditioning spinning wheels and their parts, she said.

Marriage Announced

Mrs. Helen Lewis Partin of Enfield announces the marriage of her daughter, Alice Partin Frye, to Capt. Robert Neal Kingrey, U.S. Marine Corp. Quantico, Va., son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Eckert of Norfolk, Va., on Saturday in the St. James Chapel, Greenville.

Meter Reader's Job Is Good For Her Figure

WILLOUGHBY, Ohio (AP)—Sam Hall became a meter reader for Ohio Water Service Co. for the money but enjoys the work, even though the boss thought it was a joke at first.

That's Mrs. Hall—Charlotte Hall, whose nickname is Sam and who is the water company's first female meter reader in Lake County.

Her boss, Ray Handler, says she does her work as well as any man, and he has been a reader for 15 years.

"I applied for the job because it pays $1.11 an hour more than what I was making as a billing clerk," the 5-foot-11 blonde from Mentor says. "They asked me about two days after I applied for the job if the joke was over, but I was serious."

Mrs. Hall, who says she enjoys working outdoors, reads about 12 meters a day and walks three to four miles doing it.

The exercise, she says, helps keep her figure trim.

She is also a professional model and sings professionally at night clubs in the Cleveland area, both on a part-time basis.

"Women should have equal pay for comparable jobs that men perform," she says, adding that "women should have the opportunity to get those jobs."

Even so, she says, "I still like to have a man open the door for me or buy me a cocktail."

On the job, she says, "I still have a little trouble getting lids off of water meter vaults, and pumping them out to read the meter can be strenuous."

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Norman P. Swain of Greenville announce the engagement of their daughter, Ada Lorraine, to Donald McRae Harris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Alston Harris of Halifax. The wedding will take place in December.

Walters-Carroll Vows Solemnized On Saturday

WINTERVILLE — On Sunday at three p.m. in the Winterville Missionary Baptist Church here, Miss Frances Ann Carroll became the bride of Stephen Franklin Walters Jr. The Rev. Horace G. Thompson of Winterville assisted by the Rev. Richard T. Davis of Rocky Mount, conducted the double ring ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald E. Carroll of Winterville are the parents of the bride. The parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Franklin Walters of Greenville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of traditional white in sata peau and English Nottingham lace with a chapel train of Victorian design. The tucked bodice featured a bib effect trimmed with covered buttons with a ruffled lace edge, high mandarin collar and full length sleeves cuffed at the wrist edged with ruffled lace and trimmed with covered buttons. A full length demi-dirndl skirt flowed from the modified waist.

Matching the bodice, a wide border of tucks and lace edged with a ruffle encircled the hemline of the gown and the bouffant tubular chapel length train attached at the waist back. The bride chose a three tiered veil of illusion attached to a Victorian cap of Nottingham lace trimmed with sata peau loops and seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white pixie carnations and lily-of-the-valley with accents of gold, tied with streamers of matching velvet and tulle.

Mrs. Paul Edward Truiskil of Winston-Salem, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Thomas David Haigwood of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. Larry Gene Vincent of Winterville, and Mrs. Thomas Alexander Slate of Driver, Va.

They wore full length dresses with bodices of gold velvet. The skirts of cut velvet in autumn colors were slightly gathered at a high waistline. Their headpieces were gold velvet Juliet caps. They carried colonial nosegays of gold and bronze pom poms with streamers of matching velvet.

Miss Susan Mumford, of Greenville, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl. She wore a full length dress of gold velvet styled with an empire waist and trimmed with cut velvet in autumn shades. She carried a miniature arm basket of flower petals trimmed with gold and bronze pom poms and streamers.

Michael Mumford, nephew of the bridegroom, was ring bearer.

Stephen F. Walters was his son's best man. Ushers were John Daniel Langley of Greenville, cousin of the bridegroom, John R. Carroll, brother of the bride, of Greenville, Ronald Earl Carroll Jr., brother of the bride, of Winterville, Larry Gene Vincent of Winterville and Robert Michael Adams of Greenville.

Mrs. Paul S. Braxton was the organist. Soloist was Jerry Cribbs, who sang "O Lord Most Holy" and "The Lord's Prayer." Linda Metz, flutist, played "Greensleeves" in a duet with the organist.

The mother of the bride wore a street length dress of blue shantung polyester with accessories to match. The mother of the bridegroom wore a street length dress of raspberry crepe accented with pearls around the neckline and sleeves, and accessories to match. Both mothers wore white Georgiana orchids.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given the couple by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald E. Carroll, and Mr. and Mrs. J. D. McArthur, Mrs. Haywood McLawhorn, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Forrest, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Sadler, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon White, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Haddock.

Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Tyson, Mr. and Mrs. Mack Ray Haddock, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Mobley, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Dews, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Hunsucker, Mrs. Vernon Cox, and Mrs. Roy T. Cox.

A dinner was given following rehearsal by the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen F. Walters. The other hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Langley, Dr. and Mrs. Larry Mumford, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Haigwood, Mr. and Mrs. Connie Hines, and Mrs. Bertha Tripp.

Following a wedding trip to Washington, D.C., the couple will reside in Greenville.

The bridegroom is employed with Moore's Building Supplies

Rundown Village Blames Washington Indecision

MAYOR ROBERT HOLCOMB, standing on the main road through North Bonneville complains rundown condition of the town is due to a decade of indecision by Uncle Sam. (UPI Telephoto)

By CLARENCE ZAITZ
NORTH BONNEVILLE, Wash. (UPI)—This little community, nestled in the scenic Columbia River Gorge, is one of the most rundown towns in the United States.

And everyone in the town of 470 persons readily admits the fact. They all say it's the fault of the U.S. government.

There's a sign at the edge of town proclaiming "we need a doctor." But what North Bonneville needs even more desperately, say town leaders, is a decision from Uncle Sam.

The town was created in 1932 to house the construction workers building Bonneville Dam. Now the town is stagnant, rundown, and faces an uncertain future.

The government wants to add a second powerhouse to the dam. The site selected out of seven possibilities is right where the town is.

No one knows for certain when construction will begin because Congress has not appropriated the money. Mike Almasi, who bought the Evergreen Tavern in 1960, said three months later "the town was full of rumors that the government was going to buy the whole town."

Rumor became fact in 1971 when the expansion plans were finally confirmed. Fiscal 1974 is the earliest money could be appropriated for the project, and construction wouldn't be completed until 1981.

No Investing
In the meantime no one wants to invest in a town that's going to be demolished, and some hope to profit when the government buys.

That's what gripes Mayor Robert Holcomb, his entire town council, and many businessmen.

Almasi said he owns two houses "right across the street. My wife wants a new bathroom and kitchen...look at this boar's nest here, this tavern...I'm not going to get a nickel more for investing in it."

An estimated three-fourths of the town's septic tanks don't work properly and the town desperately needs a sewer system. But federal grants are not available for a temporary system.

A five-man selection committee has picked a site near the river just west-of town where they'd like to build a new city. A survey of townspeople shows 74 per cent want to relocate. But the government plans a large park where the new town would be.

No Money Available
City Manager David Hessel said there is no money available for planning a new city. North Bonneville, with an annual budget of $65,000, cannot afford to do it.

The town's lone real estate salesman, Frank Voorhees, said he's had no business for a long while. He said many people are holding onto property in hopes of making a killing when the government buys up the town. In the meantime, they don't want to invest a dollar in the buildings.

Geraldine Miller, who's been running Jeffrey's Cafe for 20 years, said she plans to rebuild in a new city of North Bonneville. But many of the town's 32 businesses are run by people near retirement age, and many say they would not start all over again.

Two Added To Ranks Of Greenville Police Dept.

Two new employees have joined the ranks of the Greenville Police Department this week, according to Chief Glenn Cannon.

Although new Police Department members, Mrs. Nadine Harper Bowen who joined the department's secretarial staff; and James Earl Allen, a Farmville native who has joined the department's uniformed division as a patrol officer have been employed by the City of Greenville in other capacities for several years.

Allen, who graduated from Farmville High School in 1969 and attended Pitt Technical Institute enrolled in an electronics course for one year, was a Greenville fireman from November 1970 until November 15, 1972 when he became a policeman.

In addition to his full-time employment by the city, Allen has been a member of the Greenville Rescue Squad and worked with the Pitt Ambulance Service on a part-time basis for the past two years.

He is the son of Mrs. Paul Allen Jr. and the late Mr. Allen of Farmville.

A Greenville native, Mrs. Bowen is the daughter of Mrs.

Maggie V. Bowen and the late Charlie William Harper and a 1966 graduate of J. H. Rose High School.

She was employed from June 1966 to May 1968 by the City of Greenville as a secretary in the City Managers office then employed by the U.S. Air Force at Grissom AFB, Indiana, from 1968 until 1970. Mrs. Bowen returned to Greenville in March 1970 and since that time has served as secretary to the city planner, city engineer and codes enforcement officer.

She is married to Donald Bowen, a Greenville fireman, and the couple has one child.

Revival Will Be Launched

BELVOIR — A Thanksgiving revival will begin Monday night at the Belvoir Free Will Baptist Church, located six miles west of Greenville on the Belvoir Highway.

Bobby Jackson will be the guest evangelist for the 7:30 p.m. services which will continue through Sunday, Nov. 26.

BOBBY JACKSON

A native of Wilson, Jackson graduated summa cum laude from Free Will Baptist Bible College, Nashville, Tenn., and received his M.A. degree from Bob Jones University, Greenville S.C.

Jackson has released three record albums and contributes frequently to religious publications.

A nursery will be provided at the church for the services.

Dave Nobles, pastor of the Belvoir Church, extends an invitation to the public to attend.

A bottle carried by the Gulf Stream can give five knots and cover more than 100 miles a day, says National Geographic.

The Queen is coming this winter.

Queen Elizabeth 2 will again be cruising to the Caribbean. From New York, Norfolk and Port Everglades.

Here is your chance to cruise with The Greatest Ship in the World. She's 13 stories high, longer than three football fields, 65,000 tons. They'll never build another ship like her.

Starting this November, Queen Elizabeth 2 will make 11 island-hopping cruises from New York, 4 from Norfolk and 4 from Port Everglades.

Now, A 'Let-Burn' Forest Fire Policy

EDITOR'S NOTE — The U.S. Forest Service has disclosed a new "let-burn" policy on forest fires. Scientists found that suppression of nature's fires has interfered with the renewal of forests and made them poorer places for wildlife. But the policy will hardly put Smokey the Bear out of work. They still don't want people starting fires.

By C.G. MCDANIEL
AP Science Writer
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP)—Smokey the Bear has a problem. He has to find a way to continue telling people they should not be responsible for starting forest fires while foresters allow some naturally caused fires to burn—and deliberately start a few of their own. Smokey, with his broad-brimmed ranger's hat, has been a familiar figure on posters for 30 years or so. Against a background of tall trees he delivers such messages as: "Only you can prevent forest fires."

ation and study, the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Forest Service has adopted a new policy under which some lightning-caused fires will be allowed to burn themselves out. But the conditions have to be right so the fires will not spread over too vast areas, and preparations are made to contain them should they appear to be getting out of hand.

There are two major reasons for this new policy: A half-century of official fire suppression has allowed the buildup of fuel — dead trees, fallen limbs, leaves and the like — so that when fire does occur it burns hotter and is harder to put out. This same policy has also interfered with the renewal of forests and has made them poorer places for animals to live. In seeking to protect nature, man has violated nature. The need and reasons for such a policy were discussed by National Park Service, Forest Service and university researchers at a recent meeting of the American Institute of Biological Sciences in Minneapolis. And officials discussed the policy in interviews in Washington. There are in the United States, under jurisdiction of the Forest Service, 9.1 million acres designated officially as wilderness and 5.5 million acres designated as primitive areas, which are being studied for conversion to the wilderness class.

In addition, the Park Service, part of the Department of Interior, has an estimated 12 million acres of forests. Craig Chandler of the Forest Service's division of forest fire research in Washington said the "let-burn" policy was approved about a year and a half ago. But each region within the forest service system must seek individual approval for areas where the policy is to be in effect. So far, one area has been accepted. That is the 60,000-acre White Cap Wilderness area in Montana. Others, Craig said, are under consideration. The National Park Service has had such a policy, also applied selectively, since 1968. In a four-year period in the 867,000-acre Sequoia and Kings Canyon National Parks in California, there were 53 lightning fires. All but four burned less than 10 acres. The other four, a report states, "did not burn beyond expected boundaries and created no unacceptable damage." Bruce Kilgore, a biologist with the Park Service in San Francisco, has pointed out that the disastrous effect of a policy of fire suppression was dramatically illustrated in 1955 when wildfire swept from the McGee Ranch into Kings Canyon National Park. Within a few hours intense fire devastated 13,000 acres of brush and forest where fuels had accumulated and threatened a large stand of sequoias. Chandler, and others, emphasized that no fire will ever be allowed to burn to the point that human life and property are endangered. Chandler said he personally would prefer the practice of prescribed burns to the "let-burn" policy. "The good thing about prescribed fire," he said, "is that the decision can be made rationally instead of waiting for nature. She doesn't always cooperate."

Prescribed burns can be timed to occur when wind and moisture conditions are right to insure that the fire will not get out of hand. Were it not for these deliberately set forest fires, fuel levels would soon build up, creating conditions for fires such as those which have spread from forests in Southern California periodically and destroyed homes in adjoining populated areas. Until late in the 19th century, Indians, with apparently more knowledge about the forests than their European successors

Bank Jobs For Off-Duty Cops

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—an off-duty policeman will be stationed at almost all 120 banks and savings and loan associations in Charlotte and Mecklenburg County in an effort to stop a record rate of bank robberies.

There have been 63 bank robberies in North Carolina this year, 23 of them in Charlotte and Mecklenburg County.

The employment of off-duty policemen, beginning Monday, was agreed to Thursday at a meeting of representatives of major banks in the Charlotte area. Representatives of other banks and of savings and loan associations attended previous meetings which discussed security measures.

on the land, set fires in the forests. Mature trees withstand low intensity fires. Hotter, more destructive fires result with heavy fuel buildup and dry conditions. In what has been taken to be a public desire to have wilderness areas preserved, the government instituted a policy of fire prevention and millions of dollars a year have been spent in suppressing forest fires. Ironically, though, fire suppression has been responsible for alteration of the nature of wildernesses.

"If we are going to keep an area the way people are used to seeing it and like it, we will have to do some managing," Chandler said. This means the use of fire. Chandler and others emphasize that they still want no help from the public in starting fires. Professional foresters should decide when and where fires are to burn.

SAFETY
CHICAGO (UPI)—In spite of federal regulations, proposed local laws and industry self regulation, providing safe toys this year will depend primarily on the wisdom and judgment of parents, the National Safety Council says.

OUR HEATING SYSTEM OFFERS EQUAL RIGHTS TO EVERYONE.

Where heating comfort is concerned, all people are not created equal. They're as different inside as they are outside. So the thermostat setting that's warm for one may be hot — or cold — for another.

But there's one heating system that lets you please all of the people all of the time. Electric baseboard heat. Because it offers the one thing that guarantees everyone's comfort: a thermostat in every room.

With multi-thermostats, you can warm the bath and baby's room without overheating the rest of the house. You can lower the heat in the kitchen when you're cooking, or cut it way down in unused rooms to save electricity. And money.

But this room-by-room heat control isn't the only advantage. Electric baseboards give you clean, dependable, long-lived, trouble-free heating with no cold drafts or hot spots. And because they use electricity in the winter, when there's power to spare, they help you to hold down electric rates by balancing the demand for power throughout the year.

So if you're looking for a new house, or building one, ask the contractor about this flexible system. Or call your local Vepco office. They'll be happy to work with you and your builder to help you plan for electric baseboard heat.

Then all your relatives can be comfortable at once. Even though comfort is relative.

ELECTRIC BASEBOARD HEATING IS FOR "TURN IT UP!" "TURN IT DOWN!" AND "LEAVE IT WHERE IT IS!" PEOPLE. ALL AT ONCE.

Santa's Workshop Turning Out Mixed Bag In '72

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK
UPI Family News Editor
NORTH POLE (UPI) —In Santa's workshop here sounds of toy-making fill the air around the clock. The elves are on three shifts. Christmas, 1972, is coming!

The sounds are irritating and pleasant. The banging hammers can't be avoided. That is, if boys and girls are to have all the wooden toys they expect Santa to bring. Doll houses, wooden trains, boats, pull toys.

Pleasant sounds come when the elves test bells on fire engines, toy trumpets, music boxes and all sort of chimes.

The elves assigned to turning out toys for good boys and girls in the United States are presided over by Dr. Walter L. Ross.

Back in the United States he is president of Toy Manufacturers of America. He helps Santa keep tuned to the toy tastes of American boys and girls. A big part of Santa's business each Christmas is in America. It runs into more than $2 billion a year — counting games and decorations.

That's a lot of toys to be made. That's also why the elves are on three shifts, working very hard to fill all the orders for dolls, bikes, balls, kites, baseball bats, footballs, jump ropes, little cars, science sets, play dishes, teddy bears, yo-yos, paint sets, paint books, candy canes, and everything nice.

Ecology Kick
Trends in toyland:
—The toy-makers are on an ecology kick. There are ecology kits with all the paraphernalia and materials needed to test air and water for pollutants. There is an ecology book, and there are Smokey Bear sets with toy campers, forest patrol cars and helpful guides for living in the outdoors without ruining it. Some toy makers are telling the elves to make a game with an ecological motif. It involves transferring toy fish from an "ocean" into separate aquariums.

—The most pronounced trend is in toy vehicles: the trikes and choppers. A chopper is a vehicle with a sort of prehensile front wheel. It can be either two wheel or three wheel. A trike nowadays is a motorized three-wheel vehicle particularly adapted to off the road travel. Some trikes and choppers are battery-operated; others, pedal driven. There are so many trikes and choppers this year that there is even competition for names that suggest roaring engines and rates of travel approaching the speed of light. Examples: blown torch, trident wildcat, super chopper, hot seat, dragonfire, scat cat.

And —Unicycles
—All manner of transportation is represented in toyland. Rockets, autos, airplanes, submarines, baby carriages, wagons, sleds, skates, bikes, unicycles and boats. A new houseboat suitable for seaside play or the bathtub has furniture that floats. That includes the barbecue grill.

—Toys keyed to nursery rhymes include a modernized version of "The Old Woman in a Shoe." Child presses buttons and children pop out of windows and doors, making lots of noise. When the Old Woman button is pushed, the toe of the giant shoe opens and the woman comes racing down the ramp in a sporty red car. The toy also has an educational side. Real shoe laces. Child may practice lacing and tying.

—Gasoline powered cars. Intended for small fry and for trips up and down the driveway and out to the back fence, they have three horsepower engines and get up a speed of 12 miles an hour.

Safety message doll
New on the doll front this Santa season is a doll with a safety message. Child pulls a string and the doll's tape instructs—sample: "never play with matches."

Also new: a roll-up toboggan. This one passenger toboggan from the Leisure Group in Los Angeles has handles for gripping and steering. It is made of polyethylene.

For the family tuned in to the hockey boom, Santa's readying a play hockey rink for backyards. It is a steel frame with a plastic line.

Also new is "the smallest electric railroad in the world." From Marklin, the German toy maker, it is a portable model railroad. About a 12-by-20 inch oval is the track area. And the engine is small enough to fit on a smoker's pipe stem. Many of the cars are just an inch long. Yet—Santa's helpers say the little train and cars are exact to the smallest detail.

Dragster Sled
Some of the old things still much in demand and being turned out in great quantities include bird house kits. And there are also many wooden toys, including wooden toy trains, dump trucks and such.

For snow fun, if you get snow where you live, there is a dragster style sled. And there is something called a snow bee—a combination of snowmobile, toboggan and bobsled.

Bound to put the water gun into a second place fun spot is the water wienie. It squirts water 30 feet!

Teddy bears are being turned out in large numbers under a sign that reads: "In this cold cruel world, everybody needs a teddy bear."

Plenty of pandas also are on the assembly line in the North Pole, too. Since President Nixon went to visit the People's Republic of China and the Chinese sent America two pandas, lots of children are putting "panda" on their Santa list.

Also seen in Santa's workshop: A jumping rope that hums, a ladybug big enough to ride (it is betterly operated); balloons with flowers painted on them; a new wagon with bigger tires at the rear than in the front—giving it real sportscar looks; tandem kites (kites that hitch together).

Between Us Children Comforted By Reflection Of Feelings

By DR. HAIM GINOTT
Note to readers: The encounters depicted in my column are designed to serve as a practical guide to improved communication. They are not to be taken literally. They should be adapted to individual situations and individual ways of speaking.

WHEN AN INFANT is disappointed, he deserves a respectful reflection of his feelings. When we voice his anguish sympathetically, he finds consolation and comfort.

Example:
Jonathan, 2, has discovered moving vehicles. He recites, "Car, bus, truck, cycle," at the appropriate times. One morning, a motorcycle policeman stopped in front of the house. "Cycle," Jonathan screamed, overjoyed. He ran to the policeman and said politely, "Off. Me."

The policeman smiled and drove off. Jonathan cried bitterly. Mother picked him up and said, "You wanted to ride the motorcycle?" (Yes.) "You asked the policeman so politely if you could ride, and he rode off." (Yes.)

Jonathan stopped crying and said, "Cycle." Mother started to make the sound of a motorcycle. Jonathan joined her, and they continued their walk.

TO INCREASE frustration tolerance in a young child, state what he feels and experiences, not what he should feel and experience. Example:

Clara, 5, found it difficult to keep her doll on a seesaw. It kept falling down.

Clara: I'm trying to get the dolly to sit on the seesaw and she simply won't.

Mother: That's a very difficult thing you're attempting—an experiment in balance.

Clara: Yes.
She kept on experimenting and commenting but stopped complaining.

Mother intentionally did not offer suggestions, advice, or explanations. Instead, she voiced appreciatively the difficulty of the task. Her daughter gathered the courage to go on experimenting.

OFTEN, PROBLEMS can be de-escalated or avoided by giving a child clear-cut choice. Example:

Al, 3, was playing with a large sized car swinging it over his head. "That's not what the car is for," Mother said. "The car is for pulling on the ground, not swinging." "O.K.," he said. But shortly he was swinging it again. "The car is for pulling on the ground," Mother said, "and you have a choice: 1) you can play with it on the ground, 2) you can give up the car."

"Here," he said, "I was tired of it anyway." He gave Mother the car.

The problem was solved, peacefully.

NICOLE, AGE 5, comes into Mother's bed several times during the night. Mother was at a loss: She threatened and punished. She read stories at midnight. She gave long explanations on the need for sleep. Nothing helped.

Finally, Mother learned to acknowledge Nicole's feelings: It's not easy to stay in your bed all night...You get lonesome...You wish you could be with Mommy...It's hard to wait until the morning...I know, honey. It's not easy for you.

This approach diminished Nicole's need for nocturnal wandering. She found consolation and comfort in Mother's understanding of her needs.

CHILDREN RESPOND more willingly to an authentic (brief) statement of Mother's mood and feelings than to a long series of explanations, threats and commands. Example:

Carlos, 4, resisted wearing slippers or socks in the house. He liked to wander about barefoot. Mother explained, pleaded, threatened, punished. Nothing worked. One cold morning, mother said, "I'm so tired of telling you to put on your socks. I'm sick of it. It's so boring!" "O.K., O.K.," Carlos replied, and he put on his socks.

Concerned Over Snake Scarcity

MOSCOW (UPI)—Tadzhikistan used to have a lot of snakes in the grass. But since the grass was plowed under and the so-called "Virgin Lands" of Central Asia were planted in wheat, the snakes have disappeared.

Officials of the Institute of Zoology and Parasitology of the Tadzhik Academy of Sciences recently expressed concern at the disappearance particularly of poisonous snakes, which they said must be preserved so that their venom can be milked for use in medicines and serums.

Institute leaders suggested hunting of snakes be restricted to venom collectors, the newspaper Kommunist Tadzhikistanya reported.

There are about 1,900 species of milkweed throughout the world.

 GREENSBORO, NORTH CAROLINA, 27407

Dear Sir:

We, of the A & A Discount Center have the honor and pleasure of introducing to you folks an entirely new product which we feel sure will revolutionize the siding industry.

The new DuPont Vinyl Coated Dymalar Aluminum House Siding is not to be confused with any other type of siding, aluminum or otherwise. It is entirely new and you owe it to yourself, as a conscientious home owner, to investigate its possibilities and what it may do for you. However, what we must do is to set up a few jobs, so that the people can see exactly what a finished job looks like, and have the right for inspection opened to them. The company would like to know, and wondered, if you would be interested in an offer that we are going to make to someone in your community . . . it includes Aluminum Shutters or Storm Windows or Gutters & Downspouts for your house absolutely Free!

We are trying to introduce to a few home owners in your community who are interested in fixing up the outside of their homes, and would be willing to let us demonstrate our product and who would pass on to others who might inquire, the information and experience you have gained.

In consideration for your cooperation in letting us demonstrate this excellent siding—a siding which will eliminate painting and outside repair, insulate your home and increase the value of your property — the company is offering you the chance to purchase at a very, very low price a DuPont Vinyl Coated Dymalar aluminum siding job. We will make you terms to fit your pocketbook.

If you, Mr. and Mrs., would be interested in learning more about this fine opportunity, please mail the enclosed card immediately. This card must be returned within five days after receipt to enable you to take advantage of the offer.

How to Make the Days Fly By Until Christmas!

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR MIKE DOUGLAS

I remember your saying on your show that you were beginning to be a believer in ESP. Why?—P. Lewis, Bluefield, W. Va.

● I've had several telepathic encounters that tended to convince me. The most recent occurred a few weeks ago when my wife Gen asked if I would be playing golf the next day, and suggested I call a golf buddy, Harold Sorensen. Now, this man had never called me at home nor had I ever called him at his home. We always made up our games at the club. But on this particular evening, I put my hand on the receiver to call him—and the phone rang. I answered and a man said, "Mike, this is Harold Sorensen. I wondered if you would like to play a game with me tomorrow morning." Now, that is scary! To Gen and me, it was clearly much more than coincidence. It was a direct telepathic hit.

FOR TONY RANDALL

Were you ever at a loss for words?—B. K., Reading, Ohio

● Never. But I don't always choose the right ones. You see, it is not necessary for me to think when I talk. Garry Moore once said of me that I start my mouth and just leave it running. I remember a time when I was a witness in a lawsuit and I figured the courtroom was like a talk show. Only the lawyer would have none of it. But my side won out anyway.

FOR DORIS DAY

One of your shows last season had to do with Women's Liberation. How do you actually feel about Women's Lib?—L. P., Waco, Texas

● I think that any woman who wants to be liberated can liberate herself now and doesn't need a Women's Libber to do it for her. My feeling about the Women's Lib movement is that it's OK but unnecessary.

FOR CAROL BURNETT

If you had to be stranded on a desert island with only one other person, who would it be? (Recently on TV, I heard a handsome actor say that he'd pick you!)—Mrs. Alex Wyckoff, Trenton, N.J.

● Besides my husband, Joe Hamilton, I'd say Peter Ustinov.

FOR ARNOLD PALMER

When did you first learn to fly? Is it true you once piloted and landed a 747 that you were a passenger on?—Dale Carr, Clearwater, Fla.

● I took my first flying lessons in 1956, when I was 25 years old. Thanks to the Boeing Company and friends of mine in the aviation industry, I had the opportunity to pilot a 747 during a visit to the Boeing plant in Seattle a few years ago.

FOR "DEACON" JONES, ex-San Diego Charger

After you got traded to the Chargers (by the Los Angeles Rams), you said you didn't like the way you were traded. Why?—T. Nelson, Los Alamos, N.M.

● I was informed of the trade by a TV announcer at Roman Gabriel's wedding. A man expects to be dismissed from a ball club privately. I was hired in private. I expected to be fired in private. In this business you're susceptible to being traded—I know that—but you should get a reason. I believe in what's right. I was traded and I wasn't told.

FOR JERRY LEWIS

I certainly admire you for your work in Muscular Dystrophy. I would like to know how many of the poster children are still alive.—John Jamieson, Sacramento, Calif.

● Four of the 20 children are still alive.

Are you still married to Richard Brown?—F. L., Monterey, Calif.

● I've been separated since last November (1971) and one of these days I am going to get a divorce. My husband still calls me every day from London. You see, the trouble is he wants to live in Europe and I want to live in the United States. It's not very easy to have a marriage that way.

FOR PERRY COMO

Will the accident that crushed your knee last year keep you from ever playing golf again?—L. Hanson, Mobile, Ala.

● I already play golf. I have a gadget on my leg that keeps it from twisting if I move too fast—it hurts like blazes at times—but my game wasn't that bad and I hope that in a few weeks I will be perfectly all right again. I sure would hate to give up golf!

FOR DONALD O'CONNOR, movie star

Do you think Hollywood will ever again give us family movies like your "Francis" (the talking-mule) pictures?—Mrs. N. B. McClellan, Niagara Falls, N.Y.

● Movie executives began running scared when TV entered the picture, and they've been running scared ever since. They'll put just about anything on the screen that will make a buck. But I have a feeling that the situation will change in the next few years. We've been living in an age of anxiety and violence, and people are getting tired of seeing violence on the screen all the time. Pretty soon they will begin looking for lighter movies—movies that make them stop and think, but that do it gently. Maybe movies like "Francis."

A Shari Lewis Story for Parents and Kids:

How to Make the Days Fly By Until Christmas

By Shari Lewis

Shari Lewis—ventriloquist, puppeteer, entertainer and writer—has thrilled millions of youngsters (young and old) on TV, onstage, on records and in books. Although she is a mother in real life, too (her daughter Mallory is a Girl Scout), she is perhaps better known for her puppet “youngsters,” Lamb Chop, Hush Puppy and Charlie Horse. The following story about Shari and her “family” is being published in Shari Lewis’ new book, “The Tell It-Make It Book” (Hawthorn/Tarcher, $4.95).

Shari with two of her mischievous “youngsters,” Baby and Lamb Chop. For a child—even a puppet child—Christmas just doesn’t come soon enough.

The last shreds of the Thanksgiving turkey were still showing up in lunch boxes when Shari began to hear it. “How many days ‘til Christmas?” asked Lamb Chop.

“Oh, yeaah, ole Shari,” drawled Hush Puppy, “how many days is there ‘til Christmas?”

Shari corrected him, “are—how many days are there!” And, ignoring the question, she hurried about her work. But that didn’t make the question go away.

Even Baby babbled from her crib, “How many—Tismas?”

The question hopped around in the air for a few days, until one morning Shari said, “Well, tomorrow is the first of December. Christmas Eve is the twenty-fourth. How many days do you think there are ‘til Christmas?”

Hush Puppy looked casually up at the ceiling, and whistled a few choruses of “Jingle Bells” so Shari wouldn’t notice how hard he was figuring. Finally, he turned to her and shouted, “Twenty-four days, right?”

Shari said, “Right,” and turned to leave the room.

But Lamb Chop pulled at her skirt. “How long is twenty-four days?”

Shari was stumped. She really didn’t know how to answer. “Twenty-four days is twenty-four days long—I guess. What do you mean, how long?”

Now Baby got in on the fun. “Honong?” she asked insistently.

Shari grinned and started rummaging in the drawer that contained the gift-wrapping materials. Finally she found what she was looking for. It was a roll of red ribbon. In Lamb Chop’s bedroom, Shari tied the loose end of the ribbon to one of the poles holding up the bookshelves. Then, walking backward along the wall, she unrolled the ribbon until she had reached the foot of Lamb Chop’s bed. There she tied the other end of the ribbon to the bedpost. The long ribbon ran along the wall.

“Is twenty-four days as long as that ribbon?” asked Lamb Chop.

“No, darling,” Shari laughed, “but I’m going to leave you twenty-five secret messages on that ribbon. You may open one every morning, and when you’ve opened the last one, it will be Christmas morning.”

Then Shari went to her desk, took out a small pad, and she wrote and wrote and wrote. Sometimes she seemed to be drawing a squiggly little picture on the piece of paper. Sometimes she just scribbled a few sentences. She folded each sheet of paper in half, and then tucked it into its own tiny envelope. On the back of each envelope she wrote a number, starting with “1” and ending with “25.”

Charlie Horse, who kept trying to peek over Shari’s shoulder, saw her write “25” on the back of the last envelope, and he yelled, “But you said there were twenty-four days ‘til Christmas.”

“‘Til Christmas,” Shari said. “But December twenty-fifth is Christmas Day. Each one of these envelopes contains a Christmas activity or game or craft that you will enjoy doing. Number 25 will tell you what you can do on Christmas Day as well.”

Shari hooked the flap of each envelope over the ribbon, so that the ribbon lay in the crease that connected the flap to the rest of the envelope. She then moistened the glue on the flap and fastened the envelope closed. Soon all the envelopes hung from the ribbon, with their numbers facing into the room.

Early the next morning Lamb Chop won the argument about who was to open the first envelope. (“The rule,” she said, “is ladies first!”)

The youngsters were busy ‘til noon, following the instructions in the first envelope. They made lots of Christmas decorations for the front hall.

The next day Charlie Horse opened envelope Number 2. (“After all,” he reminded them, “I’m the oldest!”) And they spent a happy hour playing a game Shari made up for them.

Lamb Chop, Charlie Horse and Hush Puppy argued over who would open envelope Number 3. (Hush Puppy reminded them, “After all, dog is man’s best friend. That means," he said angrily as he snatched the envelope, "that I'm the friendliest!") And they made fat and funny marshmallow snowmen and trees.

Then they let Baby open one, too, but she couldn't read it. Of course, she tried to eat it—and as they snatched the wet paper from her chubby fingers, the youngsters all shouted, "No, you're not supposed to eat this!"

Charlie Horse looked at the crumpled sheet and laughed, "Oh yes, we are!" For the instructions on Number 4 told them how to make delicious Christmas candy. They didn't have to cook this candy, so they made it all by themselves—and they ate it all by themselves, too!

For the rest of the month Shari didn't hear it once. No "How-many-days-'til-Christmas?" She didn't even hear any "What-shall-we-do-now?"s or "I-haven't-got-anything-to-play-with"s. She hardly heard the TV set, because all the youngsters had better things to do. Each afternoon they raced home from school. Sometimes they even brought a friend. They all scurried into Lamb Chop's room, and by the time dinner was ready, they had made or done something that was fun.

As the days went by, Lamb Chop commented that her room was shrinking. It certainly seemed smaller as it began to fill up with Christmas decorations and the many gifts and packages they had wrapped, pasted, sewn, tied, painted, twisted, cut, dyed—Oh! What a jumble!

Whenever Shari suggested that they put away the paints, paste, scissors, brushes or bits of paper with which they were working, they would protest, all speaking at once, "We'll need them again tomorrow," "Mine isn't dry yet," "It'll get all squished."

The only neat spot in the room was the length of red ribbon. Each day another envelope disappeared, and before they knew it, it was Christmas Eve.

Only one envelope remained on the ribbon, hanging near the foot of Lamb Chop's bed.

"Oh, it looks so lonely," said Lamb Chop. "I'll bet Number 25 doesn't like being the only one on the line." Lamb Chop didn't like to think of anything being "the only one." She even felt bad about the single sock

"Shari went to her desk, took out a small pad, and she wrote and wrote and wrote. Sometimes she seemed to be drawing a squiggly little picture on the piece of paper. Sometimes she just scribbled a few sentences. She folded each sheet of paper in half, and then tucked it into its own tiny envelope."

she sometimes found in her sock drawer. "What do you say—let's open the envelope," she suggested, since nobody else had suggested it.

The others turned to see Shari's reaction. They had understood the "one-a-day" rule of this ribbon game, and all month long had been careful to stick to it. Now they expected Shari to say no to Lamb Chop's proposal.

But Shari just shrugged, "As you wish."

The youngsters all headed for the last envelope, and stopped only when Shari called, "Hold it—the rule is, if you open the envelope, you have to promise to do the activity described in it—right?"

"Right," they echoed, and since they all reached envelope Number 25 at the same time, they agreed that Lamb Chop would open it, and Charlie Horse and Hush Puppy would each get to read half of the message inside.

Hush Puppy read, "Merry Christmas—I hope you have enjoyed each of these ways to count the days 'til Christmas—" He turned to Shari, "Oh, yeaah, Shari, you sure done it good—it was—"

But Charlie Horse couldn't wait. "C'mon, c'mon," he said brusquely, and he snatched the paper from Hush Puppy's hands, "my turn to be the reader." And he read, "Your activity for this last day is—" His smile disappeared, and he looked up at Shari.

Now she was grinning. "Read on, reader."

Charlie slowly continued reading, "—activity for this last day is to clean up all the mess you've collected over the past twenty-four!"

"Oh," groaned Lamb Chop, "do we have to do it tonight? That'll ruin our Christmas Eve."

Shari interrupted, laughing, "No, of course you don't have to do it tonight, honey." She started to take down the ribbon. "Tomorrow we'll clean up together. It won't take long if we all dig in—and then Lamb Chop will have a clean room to play in!"

"Oh, yeaah, ole Shari," drawled Hush Puppy, "how many days is there left 'til Christmas?"

FOR NEARLY 200 YEARS, the White House has symbolized the very essence of American democracy. It is the home of our Presidents, but it belongs to all Americans.

The White House Historical Association is the non-profit, bipartisan association dedicated to preserving the White House as a shrine of American history.

The association was formed through the initiative of President and Mrs. Kennedy and has been supported enthusiastically by each succeeding first family.

Under the guidance of President and Mrs. Johnson, and subsequently President and Mrs. Nixon, the association has been steadily enhancing the White House as a place where all Americans, as well as foreign dignitaries, can come to appreciate historic objects and works of art identified with our Presidents. All of these acquisitions are made without the expenditure of public funds.

Authenticated Presidential Medals in the Tradition of American Craftsmanship

To further its acquisition program, the White House Historical Association is pleased to announce its first series of commemorative medals honoring the Presidents of the United States.

This may well become the most important series of Presidential medals ever minted.

Gilroy Roberts, our country's greatest living medallist, was commissioned to personally sculpt each Presidential portrait. And our country's foremost private mint, The Franklin Mint, was appointed to produce the medals.

Mr. Roberts devoted the better part of two years to researching and sculpting portraits of each of the 36 men who have served in our nation's highest office.

As the work progressed, every detail was reviewed and authenticated by Clement Conger, Curator of the White House.

The result is a series of individual medallic masterpieces that will serve as a standard for generations to come.

The Opportunity to Acquire a First Edition Proof Set

As is traditional for major medallic programs, the first edition of this historic series will be a limited proof edition.

For this first edition, each of the 36 Presidential medals will be struck with a gem proof finish, representing the highest achievement of the minter's art. Each Presidential portrait is minted in extremely fine detail on a background so flawless it gleams like a mirror.

The proof-quality medals measure 45mm (1 3/4") in diameter and each contains a minimum of 600 grains of sterling silver.

The medals will be edgemarked to attest to their status as official White House Historical Association medals. And each will be individually hallmarked to permanently certify that it is a first edition proof. Future editions will not have this special hallmarking, since they will not be proofs.

The total number of proof sets minted will be limited to those subscriptions entered by the closing date, plus the small number of proof sets minted for official presentations.

The closing date for ordering proof sets is November 30, 1972. There is a limit of one proof set per person. Quantity orders cannot be accepted.

Minted in Solid Sterling Silver and in 24KT Gold on Sterling

Each proof set will be minted in the subscriber's choice of solid sterling silver or 24KT gold on sterling.

The gold on sterling medals are first struck in solid sterling silver, then heavily electroplated with a layer of pure gold. The Franklin Mint has certified to the White House Historical Association that this gold layer will be at least fourteen times heavier than the minimum government standards for gold plating on jewelry.

Traditionally, only medals of exceptional significance are issued in gold on sterling. It is noteworthy that these will be the first gold on sterling Presidential medals—as well as the largest Presidential medals—ever minted by The Franklin Mint.

The medals will be sent to subscribers at the rate of one per month. The cost will be $12.50 per medal in solid sterling silver or $17.50 in gold on sterling. The Franklin Mint has agreed to mint first edition proofs of all 36 medals at this guaranteed cost, regardless of any increases in the market prices of silver and gold over the next three years.

An Invitation

The White House Historical Association extends its invitation to you to acquire one of these limited edition proof sets. This is a collection you can be justly proud to own and display in your home—a family heirloom that will be valued by your children and grandchildren in the years to come.

Please note that this is the only time that proof sets of The White House Historical Association Presidential Medals can be offered. To take advantage of this opportunity, be sure to mail the subscription application below by November 30, 1972. Applications postmarked after that date must be regretfully declined and returned.

Each proof set will be accompanied by a matching set of three framed plaques in a deluxe library case, and a specially bound edition of the White House Historical Association reference book, "The Presidents of the United States of America."

GILROY ROBERTS: SCULPTOR OF PRESIDENTS

Gilroy Roberts is known throughout the world as the dean of American medallic sculptors.

For the past eight years, Mr. Roberts has been Chief Sculptor of The Franklin Mint. He previously served as Chief Sculptor-Engraver of the U.S. Mint—only the ninth man in history to have held that post.

He is deservedly famous for many great works of medallic art. Among them is his portrait of President Kennedy on the Kennedy half-dollar—the most popular coin in the world. He has placed his personal signature mark (R) on each of the Presidential medals, just as it appears on his other great medallic masterpieces.

Andrew and Edward:

All too often, when Prince Charles and Princess Anne were babies, Britain's Queen Elizabeth II was forced to leave them to the care of others while she served as the royal deputy of her sick father. She toured Canada for him because he was too ill to go himself. She was flying out to Australia and New Zealand to undertake another royal tour on his behalf when news of his death brought her back to London.

With her father's death, the pressure was really on. There was little time to play mother, or even wife. She was called upon to be Queen—full time.

There was a seemingly endless round of royal chores to be undertaken, a non-stop succession of official callers. There were portraits to be sat for and state documents to be signed. There were all the preparations for her own coronation—plus a six-month world tour soon afterward. There were visits to other countries, to see and be seen—to France, Denmark, Portugal, Canada and the United States.

There was certainly no time in those early years of monarchy to think of having further children.

Elizabeth, a mere 25 when she succeeded to the throne, was a mature 33 when the pressure eased sufficiently for her to remember that she was a woman, wife and mother as well as a queen. Even so, she found herself carrying out yet another tour of Canada at the same time that she was carrying her third child.

Andrew was born in February, 1960—almost ten years after Anne. Elizabeth was overjoyed.

"We'll have to see about a little playmate for him," she confided, happily.

And a playmate there was to be—Edward, born four years later when the Queen was nearly 38. Now, at last, she could fulfill her cherished ambition to play mother.

Because Charles, who is now 24, was born to be King, he was trained along the narrow path toward monarchy almost from the day he could first toddle.

Andrew and Edward were to have a very different upbringing. They were the children the Queen had for herself and could bring up in her own fashion.

It was, by royal standards, an extremely relaxed fashion. Well experienced by now in her role as Queen, Elizabeth cheerfully combined monarchy and motherhood, a combination with which she had not dared experiment during her earlier years on the throne.

Official callers at Buckingham Palace found the Queen more interested in talking about babies than monarchy. Baby Andrew, for instance, was brought down to sit on his mother's lap when she entertained former President Eisenhower at lunch, and Andrew promptly proceeded to help himself to chubby handfuls of sugar when the coffee came.

The Children the Queen Had for Herself

"A visitor, entering the room on one occasion, was surprised to find the Queen on all fours. She and Andrew were rolling a ball from one to the other while the yelping royal corgis did their best to intercept."

By Graham and Heather Fisher

Charles and Anne, as small children, were never permitted to enter their mother's study during the 10-5 spell she regarded as her working hours. But with Andrew and Edward, things were very different.

They were always in and out of the room while their mother was working. The bottom drawer of the bureau just across from the Queen's desk quickly became a storehouse for playthings: toy soldiers, building blocks, pull-along trains.

While mother worked at her desk in the recess of the big bay window overlooking the palace gardens, the children played happily—and not always quietly —on the beige-colored carpet. Nor was it entirely unknown for the Queen to leave her work and join in their games.

A visitor, entering the room on one occasion, was surprised to find the Queen on all fours. She and Andrew were rolling a ball from one to the other while the yelping royal corgis did their best to intercept.

There was another occasion when a royal page, walking in to announce a visitor, failed to pick his way carefully enough through the litter of children's toys on the floor. His foot skidded on a rubber ball, causing him to perform an involuntary ballet movement that nearly deposited him in the Queen's lap.

Elizabeth could not keep herself from smiling. "You really must try to keep your things a little more tidy," she reproved Andrew and Edward.

Because Charles was the future King, the spotlight of publicity dogged him from birth. He found himself written up, interviewed, stalked by photographers wherever he went. Anne, too, because she was brought up with him, found herself inextricably caught in the same royal limelight.

But not Andrew and Edward. From the start, the Queen was firmly determined that they should not become public property, as Charles and Anne had. Little information was issued about them and photographers were given fewer opportunities. They are, she insists, two "ordinary little boys" whom she is trying to bring up in as ordinary a fashion as her regal background will permit.

But because they are the children she had for herself, she has also, perhaps, been inclined to spoil them as Charles was never spoiled. And this has worked both ways.

"At least, Andrew isn't a bit shy," the Queen has said.

Her delight in this is understandable. Shyness runs in the Windsors. Her father was painfully shy. So is she. Charles, too, is shy, but "working on it," he says. And Anne's sometimes seeming snobbishness is often a cover for the shyness she feels, even at a mature 22 years old.

But Andrew is not at all shy. On the contrary, now 12, he is a high-spirited, outgoing, sometimes headstrong youngster.

His cousin, Lord Linley, Princess Margaret's son, is cast in much the same mold. When the pair of them get together, the sparks sometimes fly, and it is not unknown for their boyhood encounters to end in an impromptu wrestling match or a bout of fisticuffs.

For his age, young Andrew packs a fairly hefty wallop—as his father can well testify. A chance swing as father and son sparred playfully together one evening resulted in Philip being treated for a black eye.

Edward shows every sign of growing up to be the quiet, steady one of the family. Andrew is the opposite—volatile and independent. Far more independent even than Charles. He already seems to know what he wants from life and how to go about getting it.

Take the Sunday morning when the family was getting ready for church. Charles and his father were to walk to church. The Queen and Anne would go by car. Andrew would go with them.

"I want to walk—like Papa," he insisted.

And, in the end, walk he did—hands clasped behind his back in imitation of his father and big brother Charles.

If your cat's bored with his food, he needs to try something he's never tasted before.

Do You Know How the Weather Makes You Behave?

By John E. Gibson

True or False: How well you remember anything depends on the weather. (See number 2.)

It may be true that nobody can do much about the weather, but the weather can do plenty about you. The extent to which people's actions, moods and destinies are influenced by the weather is something science has yet to completely explore, but this True or False quiz gives you a chance to find out weather your opinions jibe with the findings of the experts.

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Sudden changes in the weather can cause Doctor-Jekyll-and-Mr.-Hyde changes in people's behavior.
2. How well you remember anything depends on the weather.
3. Large men suffer more when exposed to chilly weather conditions than small men, because there is more of them to feel cold.
4. People are most likely to be late for work when the day dawns dark and gloomy.
5. Weather that's sticky and humid is something that most men take in their stride, but it gets women down, makes them feel oppressed and like climbing the walls.
6. The thermometer tells you when you're most likely to break a leg or get fired.

ANSWERS

1. True. Swift changes in the weather bring out the worst qualities in some people, making them irascible and difficult to deal with. One study of the effect of weather on human behavior has shown that "a sudden rise in the temperature within a low-pressure area stimulates aggressive actions in people who would be incapable of them in favorable weather." It's also noted that older people tend to be the most strongly

2. True. In U.S. Air Force Laboratory studies, subjects were given memory tests after being exposed for one hour to different temperatures—72°, 90° and 95°. Findings: As the temperature went up, the ability to remember went down. The sharpest decline in recall ability occurred between 90° and 95°—the effect on the memory processes being described by the investigators as "significant." This would seem to provide an ironclad alibi for husbands who forget to mail letters, etc.—at least in the summertime. To phrase it succinctly: Your memory isn't too hot when the weather is.

3. False. In studies where men of various weights and sizes were subjected to cold, it was found that "larger men [in terms of body-surface area and/or fat-free weight] feel warmer in a given temperature than do small men. No relationship was found between feelings of warmth and body fat, indicating that the popular belief that fat people feel warmer than thin people is questionable."

4. False—according to a study of the arrival-at-work times of a cross section of men and women over a three-month period. Contrary to expectations, workers showed up at their jobs most punctually on mornings when the sky was overcast and the weather gloomy. The majority of men and women were the least punctual on bright, sunny days, when the weather was at its balmiest. The reason? It was suggested that on such days, workers tended to take their time getting to work, tarrying a bit to enjoy the warm sunshine and azure skies; whereas dull, overcast days offered little to distract them from finishing their coffee and going straight to the office.

5. False. Humid weather affects men far more than it does women. Humidity that makes the male of the species uncomfortable has to get appreciably worse before the average woman is bothered by it. As studies at Kansas State University have demonstrated, "humidity plays a significantly more important role in how men feel than in how women feel."

6. True. A weather-and-human-behavior survey sponsored by the National Science Foundation cites studies showing that workers are most likely to injure themselves on the job whenever the temperature soars above 75° or plummets below 55°. It was also found that when the thermometer pushes 90°, both office and industrial workers are most likely to make costly errors or turn out shoddy work performances that cause the boss to blow his top and toy with the idea of chopping off a few heads.

Do You Know How the Weather Makes You Behave?

By John E. Gibson

True or False: How well you remember anything depends on the weather. (See number 2.)

It may be true that nobody can do much about the weather, but the weather can do plenty about you. The extent to which people's actions, moods and destinies are influenced by the weather is something science has yet to completely explore, but this True or False quiz gives you a chance to find out weather your opinions jibe with the findings of the experts.

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Sudden changes in the weather can cause Doctor-Jekyll-and-Mr.-Hyde changes in people's behavior.
2. How well you remember anything depends on the weather.
3. Large men suffer more when exposed to chilly weather conditions than small men, because there is more of them to feel cold.
4. People are most likely to be late for work when the day dawns dark and gloomy.
5. Weather that's sticky and humid is something that most men take in their stride, but it gets women down, makes them feel oppressed and like climbing the walls.
6. The thermometer tells you when you're most likely to break a leg or get fired.

ANSWERS

1. True. Swift changes in the weather bring out the worst qualities in some people, making them irascible and difficult to deal with. One study of the effect of weather on human behavior has shown that "a sudden rise in the temperature within a low-pressure area stimulates aggressive actions in people who would be incapable of them in favorable weather." It's also noted that older people tend to be the most strongly affected by such atmospheric conditions.

2. True. In U.S. Air Force Laboratory studies, subjects were given memory tests after being exposed for one hour to different temperatures—72°, 90° and 95°. Findings: As the temperature went up, the ability to remember went down. The sharpest decline in recall ability occurred between 90° and 95°—the effect on the memory processes being described by the investigators as "significant." This would seem to provide an ironclad alibi for husbands who forget to mail letters, etc.—at least in the summertime. To phrase it succinctly: Your memory isn't too hot when the weather is.

3. False. In studies where men of various weights and sizes were subjected to cold, it was found that "larger men [in terms of body-surface area and/or fat-free weight] feel warmer in a given temperature than do small men. No relationship was found between feelings of warmth and body fat, indicating that the popular belief that fat people feel warmer than thin people is questionable."

4. False—according to a study of the arrival-at-work times of a cross section of men and women over a three-month period. Contrary to expectations, workers showed up at their jobs most punctually on mornings when the sky was overcast and the weather gloomy. The majority of men and women were the least punctual on bright, sunny days, when the weather was at its balmy. The reason? It was suggested that on such days, workers tended to take their time getting to work, tarrying a bit to enjoy the warm sunshine and azure skies; whereas dull, overcast days offered little to distract them from finishing their coffee and going straight to the office.

5. False. Humid weather affects men far more than it does women. Humidity that makes the male of the species uncomfortable has to get appreciably worse before the average woman is bothered by it. As studies at Kansas State University have demonstrated, "humidity plays a significantly more important role in how men feel than in how women feel."

6. True. A weather-and-human-behavior survey sponsored by the National Science Foundation cites studies showing that workers are most likely to injure themselves on the job whenever the temperature soars above 75° or plummets below 55°. It was also found that when the thermometer pushes 90°, both office and industrial workers are most likely to make costly errors or turn out shoddy work performances that cause the boss to blow his top and toy with the idea of chopping off a few heads.

Have your wife put up with a lot less trash this Christmas. And Frigidaire will give her a Poinsettia as a gift.

Frigidaire has a brand new way to control trash. The Frigidaire trash compactor. It can take four bagful of wrappings, boxes, soda cans and food scrapings and squash them down to a one-bag size.

One neat, disposable bag made especially for the Frigidaire trash compactor.

If she already has a compactor, she might like one of our other time-saving gift ideas. Like Frigidaire's microwave oven, mobile dishwasher or compact refrigerator.

NEW DUSTLESS TYPE

A huge assortment of pastels with no two colors the same. These professional dustless pastels can be mixed and blended but never make a mess. They are as convenient as pastels yet have the brilliance and color depth of oil paints. Sticks will not crumble or break easily and can be used on paper, board, cloth, stone or plaster. They are excellent for quick sketches as well as finished drawings and paintings. You may also use turpentine to blend colors and heighten the oil effect. Completed oil pastel paintings do not require fixing and can be framed like a water color painting. Non-toxic composition makes them perfect for adults or young "Picassos"! Great for portraits, landscapes, anything at all. A great gift and a great buy for only $2.98. Artist's canvas boards and pastel art paper pads are available (see coupon).

By George Carpozi, Jr.

The Day John Wayne Almost Flattened Me

In his new biography, "The John Wayne Story," George Carpozi, Jr., writes, "Frankly, I don't care what the reviewers say. Nor, for that matter, what the readers think. My only concern is what John 'Duke' Wayne himself thinks. He's the guy I'm most scared of because I ain't in any hurry, nohow, to have him get mad at me agin...." The following anecdote is reprinted from the book.

It was during the 1966 Photoplay Magazine Awards at the Hotel Manhattan. "I want you to meet John Wayne," said Mary Fiore, the editor of "Photoplay."

At five-feet-eight, I was eye-level with his tie clip. I looked up and squinted for a glimpse of his face, which was towering above me like the observation roof of the Empire State Building.

"Glad to meet you, George," Wayne drawled, gripping my hand. He was clutching a Scotch on the rocks in his left hand, and even as he held onto my hand he sipped from the glass, wiped his lips with his tongue, and asked me what else I did besides serve as contributing editor to "Photoplay."

"I'm a reporter for the New York 'Post,'" I said.

"For the what!" Wayne growled, grimacing like Sergeant Stryker when he was shouting orders to his platoon to take the beach in "Sands of Iwo Jima." It was not a question. It was a demand for an explanation.

No reply was necessary. Trying to tell Wayne why I worked for the "Post," not only the nation's largest-circulation evening newspaper but the oldest continuously published daily in the country, would have been wasted on deaf ears.

"That's nothin' but a left-wing pinko rag," he thundered. "Anyone gets himself tied up with a crummy paper like that must be a stinkin' punk. I got no use for anybody who works for a no-good sheet like that. I wouldn't trust you for nothin', workin' for that Commie rag."

His hand went to my throat as he ranted and raved about my newspaper. He tightened his fingers around my collar and shook me back and forth.

"I'm going to walk away from you now," he said, taking another slug of Scotch, "and I don't ever want to see ya again, ya crum...."

Then, after one final back-and-forth thrust, he relinquished his hold on my throat, turned on his heels, strutted away—on the bias—and headed back to the bar.

For the next couple of hours, I sat at "Photoplay's" table chatting with other Hollywood celebrities.

Along about midnight, Wayne—he had passed my table several times during the evening, always with a drink in hand and always glaring at me, his lips mumbling taunting phrases—finally returned. He put his hand on my shoulder, took a fistful of my jacket into his catcher's-mitt grip, and yanked me out of my chair.

"You're on the wrong set," I trembled. "We're not shooting the

FLAME GUN
WITH TUNE-A-FLAME INSTANT ACTION
Lightweight, Easy-Handling

An engineering marvel! $7.99 JN Insta-Jet Propane Flame Gun is loaded from handle to barrel with important years-ahead features. Features to be found in expensive kerosene guns and burners that sell for as much as $39.95. Like Tune-A-Flame that lets you dial precisely the right size flame for the job you want to do. And the extra-long feeder tube that lets you reach pesky out-of-the-way places without straining or bending. Plus the easy-to-hold grip and amazingly lightweight design. (Less than three pounds complete.) So light, almost anyone can use the JN Insta-Jet, with only one hand, and never get tired!

The Four Seasons Flame Gun

You'll use the JN Insta-Jet right through winter, spring, summer and fall. And it will do your heart good! Because it takes the work right out of dozens of clean-up chores around your house. In winter, the adjustable instant-action flame clears away ice and snow faster than you'd believe possible. Whips right through even the heaviest drifts. Cleans walks and driveways. Routs clogged gutters of ice and old leaves. Thaws frozen pipes. No straining, no stooping, no bending. And you can say a final farewell to shoveling!

In summer, your JN Insta-Jet Flame Gun burns out weeds so fast, it's downright amazing! Destroys insect nests at a safe distance. Edges walks, paths, lawns and flower beds. Burns out unsightly grass between bricks or flagstones on the patio. Removes old paint from hard-to-reach places. All without exertion. And without staining your clothes.

Outperforms The Others!

This remarkable gun produces a clean, hot flame for up to 14 hours on a single standard cylinder of propane gas—easily obtainable at most hardware, paint and department stores. Compare

---	---	---

When the Apollo 11 headed for the moon it carried millions of pounds of oxygen. Why? Because outer space is an airless vacuum and without air the Apollo engines had no fuel. Your car engine, like the Apollo 11, burns a vapor. In the Apollo it's a mixture of oxygen and kerosene. In your car, it's a mixture of air and gasoline. Your car could no more run on gas alone than it could run on air alone. AND THE MORE AIR YOU BURN THE LESS GAS YOU BUY! Since air is still free and gas keeps getting more expensive, it's just your hard luck that most of the time your car is NOT GETTING ENOUGH AIR to give it the high-powered fuel it must have for maximum efficiency! That means WASTE! Waste of money! Waste of power! Waste of speed! It means dirty points, plugs, valves, cylinders and pistons. It means unnecessary replacements, breakdowns, repairs, tune-ups and servings!

NO POWER WITHOUT OXYGEN

If you started vigorous exercise right now you would need extra energy. Your heart would start to pump faster to supply extra fuel for that extra energy. BUT YOU WOULD ALSO BEGIN TO BREATHE FASTER TO SUPPLY THE EXTRA OXYGEN THAT EXTRA FUEL NEEDS! Your car is no different. It needs FIFTEEN parts of air to ONE part of gasoline. Yes, FIFTEEN TO ONE. But when you put your foot down on the gas, going through the gears, or at highway speeds, BECAUSE YOUR CARBURETOR IS A "STEEL LUNG," it cannot breathe deeper to supply the extra air that the extra gas needs. Instead of that FIFTEEN TO ONE mixture, you could be down to EIGHT TO ONE! Now you are getting HALF AS MUCH FUEL THAT IS TWICE TOO RICH! YOUR CAR IS SUFFERING FROM "OXYGEN DEFICIENCY"! Isn't that why racing cars have a carburetor for every cylinder?

But your car has four, six or eight cylinders and only ONE carburetor! That's why when you "step on it" you put enough gas into your engine for 100 H.P. BUT THERE'S ONLY ENOUGH AIR FOR 60 H.P. That WASTED 40 H.P. not only costs you money, but it fouls plugs, points, pistons, valves and cylinders up to five times as fast, and poisons the air you breathe! POLLUTION IS GASOLINE THAT IS NOT BURNED UP BECAUSE IT LACKED ENOUGH AIR FOR COMPLETE COMBUSTION!

I CAN PROVE ALL THIS IN YOUR KITCHEN!

Look under the burners of your gas stove. You will find a screw that controls the air supply. Light the gas. If you are getting the right amount of AIR you will see a clear, clean, hot blue flame. Now, with a screwdriver, turn the screw back to reduce the amount of air. THE EFFICIENT BLUE FLAME INSTANTLY TURNS WEAK AND YELLOW! Hold a plate over that flame and because it is NOT GETTING ENOUGH AIR for complete combustion, it will cover that plate with the same carbon soot that gums up your engine! YOU HAVE JUST SEEN WITH YOUR OWN EYES, WASTED GAS, WASTED POWER, because that gas burner suffered from the same condition as your car, "OXYGEN DEFICIENCY"!

WHY DOESN'T THE ENGINE IN YOUR MODERN CAR GET ENOUGH AIR?

Certainly not because the Detroit car manufacturers hate you or are in a conspiracy with the fuel companies. Cars are mass-produced for mass

FOR MAXIMUM POWER - SPEED - ECONOMY... FOR MINIMUM WEAR - SERVICING - PARTS REPLACEMENT - BREAKDOWN... every internal combustion engine - car, boat or truck - needs a VARIABLE AIR SUPPLY that will react instantly to the demand your engine makes at all speeds and under any condition. Now, with a dimestore screwdriver and two minutes to spare, you can make your carburetor "breathe deeper" and supply enough air to give you all the power and performance you pay for but don't get!

market. Your carburetor is basically the same today as it was fifty years ago. It can be adjusted just like the one on your gas stove. But it has the same problem. Once you have set it THAT'S WHERE IT STAYS! If you set it for enough air for high RPM driving, then at low RPMs the mixture would be so "lean" your car could not "idle" or even start.

YOUR CAR, BOAT OR TRUCK WAS DESIGNED TO BURN MORE AIR . . . LESS GAS
But your carburetor doesn't let it!

Your engine has a variable gas supply. From just a touch of the gas pedal all the way down to the floorboard. But the air supply is FIXED by the carburetor. In your car it is fixed to provide enough air at about 2500 RPM (that's about 35-40 MPH) in HIGH GEAR—ON A LEVEL ROAD—WITHOUT A HEAD WIND. That's the way the oil companies drive their cars on "Economy Runs". That's what the U.S. Government told drivers to do during the second World War when gas was scarce and drivers found that they could practically double their gas mileage, triple the life of their cars, and cut tune-up and servicing to almost nothing! But you would have to be a 90-year-old lady to sit in a modern car on a modern highway and stick to 35 MPH. So you put up with a wasteful, inefficient car that's always "short of breath."

HERE'S WHAT ALL THIS MEANS TO YOU!

Right now you are driving a car that's like a man who can't breathe deep. He is okay when sitting down, but the moment he exerts himself, he's out of breath. If he thinks that's the way he's supposed to be, he's wrong! And if you think your car is supposed to get "out of breath" and hesitate when you put your foot down in high . . . if you think it is supposed to "pick up speed" on the getaway and lose up to 15 seconds getting up to 60 MPH . . . if you think you are supposed to baby your car along like an invalid by treating the plugs, points, carburetor, oil, etc. every few thousand miles, you've got another think coming. The minute you install the H.P. AIR INJECTOR in your car, it's like giving air to a drowning man.

The H.P. AIR INJECTOR is the first high-induction, fully-automatic air demand valve that can be added to any car. And no matter what car you drive, we guarantee to supply everything you need (except a screwdriver) to install the H.P. AIR INJECTOR, or to remove it if you change cars. And if you happen to be driving a VW, get prepared for the shock of your life. Your engine is so air-starved that when you put in the H.P. AIR INJECTOR, you're going to think it's a Porsche!

The H.P. Air Injector

FITS SIMPLY AND EASILY ON EVERY CAR EVER MADE!

SPECIAL OFFER! We have just started distributing the H. P. AIR INJECTOR and are mass producing it for the first time. Previously, thousands of units of this high-precision, high-induction automatic air demand valve have been sold for $24.00 each. Now, mass production brings the H.P. Hungarian Goulash with Poppy Seed Noodles Hungarian Goulash and Poppy-Seed Noodles—a pleasing entrée for a family dinner.

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen makes Hungarian Beef Goulash with Poppy-Seed Noodles because: "It's fun to cook with different spices and herbs, getting the family acquainted with new flavor combinations. And with food prices nowadays, you just can't beat these recipes which cut meat costs."

HUNGARIAN GOULASH

- 1 cup instant minced onion or onion flakes
- Water
- 5 tablespoons vegetable oil or bacon fat
- 2½ lbs. lean chuck or stew meat cut into 1½-inch cubes
- 2 tablespoons paprika
- 1¼ teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
- ¼ teaspoon ground marjoram or marjoram leaves
- 1 can (10¼ ozs.) condensed beef bouillon, diluted
- ¾ cup dry white wine*
- ¼ cup sweet-pepper flakes, optional
- ¼ cup flour
- ½ cup sour cream
- 1 lb. wide noodles
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 2 teaspoons poppy seeds

1. Rehydrate onion in ¾ cup water for 10 minutes.
2. In a large Dutch oven or heavy skillet heat 2 tablespoons vegetable oil, add rehydrated onion; sauté 5 minutes, stirring frequently. Remove onion; set aside.
3. Add remaining 3 tablespoons vegetable oil to Dutch oven. Add meat and brown well on all sides over high heat.
4. Sprinkle meat with paprika, salt, black pepper and marjoram. Add bouillon, wine, pepper flakes and reserved sautéed onion. Bring to boiling point. Reduce heat; cover and simmer 2 hours, or until meat is tender. Remove meat to serving platter, keep warm.
5. Strain gravy; return to Dutch oven. Mix flour with ½ cup water. Gradually add to gravy,

- ¼ cup granulated sugar
- ½ cup unsulphured molasses
- 1 can (1 lb. 14 ozs.) sliced peaches, drained
- 2 tablespoons peach syrup
- ½ cup chopped walnuts
- 1 pkg. (18½ or 19 ozs.) yellow-cake mix
- 1 Aerosol can (7 ozs.) whipped topping

1. Melt butter over low heat in 13x9x2-inch metal baking pan. Add sugar and molasses, stir until blended.
2. Arrange peach slices over molasses mixture. Sprinkle with 2 tablespoons reserved peach syrup and nuts.
3. Preheat oven to 350° F. Prepare cake mix according to package directions. Pour cake batter carefully over fruit mixture in pan. Bake in 350° F. oven about 50 minutes, or until cake tests done.
4. Cool cake 5 minutes on rack; loosen sides with spatula, then invert on serving plate. (To make an impromptu large serving plate, cover a sheet of heavy cardboard with aluminum foil.)
5. Cut into squares, garnish with whipped topping.

MOUSE TRAPS

are the best way to kill mice. Right?

WRONG!

It's a fact, that mouse traps can cause more problems than they solve. If a trap does not accomplish a quick, clean kill, the job of "finishing off" the injured mouse is up to you. Or—if the trap happens to hit the mouse's tail or leg, he may hobble off, dragging the trap into the wall. But not with d-Con® MOUSE-PRUFE®...

MOUSE-PRUFE IS CLEANER. No disease-carrying, messy mouse traps around the house... no handling mice. And no disposal problems.

MOUSE-PRUFE IS EASIER. Just pull tab on the package and bait feeds automatically. Mice eat 'til they've had enough—and disappear from sight!

MOUSE-PRUFE IS SURER. Because mice always come in family groups, one trap is not enough. But one package of MOUSE-PRUFE can do the job of two, three, or more traps.

MOUSE-PRUFE does not contain violent poisons, so it's safe when used as directed—even around children and pets.

Does More Than Help Shrink Swelling Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues Due To Infection

Also Gives Prompt, Temporary Relief in Many Cases from Pain and Itching in Such Tissues.

When hemorrhoidal tissues swell, become inflamed and infected—it can be very painful for the sufferer. But doctors have found a remarkably successful medication which is so effective that it actually helps shrink swelling of such tissues. And it does more. In many cases, it also gives prompt relief for hours from the pain and itching in hemorrhoidal tissues.

This medication is obtainable without a prescription under the name—Preparation H®. Tests by leading doctors on hundreds of patients in New York, Washington, D.C. and at a large medical center verified Preparation H gave similar successful results in many cases.

When you consider Preparation H offers so many benefits—it's no wonder millions of sufferers buy it each year to obtain this relief. See if it doesn't help you.

There's no other formula like Preparation H. Ointment or suppositories.

saloon fight until tomorrow."

"Awww, come on," Wayne drawled. "I'm not sore at you."

He wrapped his arm around me, cuddled me against his barrel chest, and held me there until I began to experience asphyxia. "Come on, pal," he smiled, "have a drink with me."

He forced me to swallow a mouthful of Scotch and then said: "You know somethin'? I got nothin' against you... it's just that I don't like the paper you work for." He shook my hand. "We're friends, right?" he asked.

"Yup," I said, sounding like a vest-pocket Gary Cooper.

"Awright, pal," Wayne came back, his arm around me again. "You're going with me to the bar because I'm buyin' ya a drink...."

People who witnessed the scene between Wayne and me that night, and others who heard about it, have asked why I would want to write his biography and add to the John Wayne legend. "Why not," I've been asked, "target on someone who respects you (and your newspaper) more?"

My answer is simple. Since I couldn't punch him in the nose—because it was so far out of my reach—I've chosen writing about him as my way to get back.

When I was fat, I had to "act" happy. But at 128 pounds, I can be myself.

By Lorraine Marks—as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

IT'S A kind of self-defense, laughing at your own fat. Like the water ballet I once took part in at the Country Club. At 260 pounds, it was impossible for me to sink or swim. If I dove under water, I bounced right back up again. So I finally rolled over on my back, stuck a rose in my mouth, a tray of drinks in my hand and floated to stardom amid a bevy of slender beauties.

Believe it or not, I weighed only 110 pounds at my wedding. But in less than a year after the birth of my daughter, I had gained 50 pounds. And it was up, up and away after that.

As the years rolled on, my family could see what was happening to me, but not how it happened. That's because I was a secret eater. I'd buy a chocolate cake for dinner but never take a piece in front of anyone. Then, when everyone was in bed, I'd get up and, if half the cake was left, I'd eat it. Next day, before my family got home, I'd buy another cake just like it, eat half and they'd all think I hadn't touched a crumb.

Here I am, mimicking Sophie Tucker. In one way, I had a lot more to offer my audience: 260 pounds.

I attribute my eating to my parents' never allowing me to have sweets as a child. When I married, I decided to eat what I wanted. Nerves and emotions, of course, compounded the situation. Yet my husband never insulted me. Once, however, he did proposition me. "Lose some weight and I'll buy you a mink stole." I took him up on it and took off 50 pounds. But no sooner did I have the stole than I started to sneak eat again. I knew better, too, because I'm a Registered Nurse. I just continued to lie to myself and cover up with funny acts.

Isn't it great I look like this for my 25th wedding anniversary? It's the best gift I could give my husband.

The only place my clowning around didn't take was the golf course. Good thing, too, for in the end that's where I finally learned my lesson. You see, when the men were playing for fun, they wanted only slender girls as partners. When they were out to win, they took me on. I'd broken 100 more than once. Unfortunately, I won my reputation in men's golf shorts. Nothing else fit. That's what finally brought me down on the scale. I wanted to wear a skirt on the green.

Thank heavens I'd seen those Ayds® ads. Since everything else had failed, I thought maybe those reducing-plan candies might help kill my craving for sweets. When I bought my first box at the drugstore—the chocolate fudge kind—I learned from the list of ingredients on the outside of the package that Ayds contains vitamins and minerals, but no "filler" substances, like cellulose, and no drugs.

I started taking Ayds as directed: one or two before breakfast, then juice and an egg. Mid-morning, I'd have Ayds and bouillon. That was my own idea. At lunch, Ayds, soup and salad. And at dinner, Ayds, then probably chicken, salad and milk. And Ayds anytime I woke up hungry in the middle of the night.

It took a lot of losing before people began to notice. But the Ayds plan worked, and I went down and down on the scale. The first 50 pounds actually took me six months to lose. After that, it came off faster because I think my stomach had shrunk.

Of course, I lost my fat roles in the Club's shows—like playing Tessie O'Shea and Sophie Tucker. But, thanks to the Ayds plan, I got my applause other ways—from my son, daughter, husband and a lot of new golf partners.

Incidentally, I'm not a new loser. My weight's been off a few years, but I still remember Ayds in case my scale and I have a showdown. After all, I don't want to have to go back to "acting" happy when it's so much nicer to be myself.

ANNOUNCING—An exciting new way to lose weight with

"Miracle FAT-BURNING Foods"

Now—see how the high-powered nutrients in these delicious foods
CHASE FAT OUT OF THE BODY quickly . . . easily . . . painlessly . . . permanently!

Dear Friend:

This may well be the greatest weight-loss breakthrough of the century!

Sidney Petrie, a clinical obesiologist, has now completed his report on MIRACLE FAT-BURNING FOODS—foods packed with high-powered nutrients that chase fat out of the body like magic!

He states in no uncertain terms that you can lose 20...50...100 lbs. and more by eating these foods—and they're delicious!

You eat them as supplements to your regular meals—and enjoy more variety than you have been gaining weight on. ONLY NOW YOU WILL LOSE WEIGHT!

How can this be? Petrie explains it this way:

"Fat is lost when energy is being produced by the body. It follows that weight cannot be lost unless fat is effectively burned, a process requiring many vital nutrients."

This is the secret, says Petrie!

The nutrients in these foods are, in his words, "high-powered...bursting with vitality." They "nourish the cell structure of the body without adding to blood sugar."

Fat-Burning... Safe, Easy, Fast!

Petrie uses the phrase "FAT-BURNING" to illustrate how these nutrients turn fat into energy. Rest assured that it won't cause you the slightest discomfort whatsoever...because it's exactly the same kind of energy-burning process that takes place when you lift your arm, or blink your eyes!

The only way you'll know it's working is when you look in the mirror and see pounds and inches gone all over your body!

Yes, it sounds incredible—that you can lose 100 lbs. and more by such food intake—but this is Petrie's promise to you. And he backs it up with proof!

Many So-Called "Hopeless" Cases Helped!

Sidney Petrie's practice consists of so-called "hopeless" obesity cases referred to him by physicians and other medical specialists. Most of them had practically given up hope of ever being able to trim down!

BUT HERE'S WHAT HAPPENED! Even though they had known only failure with every kind of diet in the past...even though they had tried pills, exercises, and contraptions to no avail...as soon as they started eating the MIRACLE FAT-BURNING FOODS, mountains of fat literally burned away from arms, legs, waist, hips, neck and face.

"For many," says Petrie, "It has been not only a miracle, but a dream come true!"

Here's Why He States That This Method Is Superior To Any Known Dieting Technique:

"The diet—as it is commonly known—is an error."

"The error of 'diet' lies in its basic precept—temporary deprivation of nourishment...One cannot get this by temporary deprivation, no matter how long or how short the time. You cannot get thin by depriving your body over a period of weeks or months. You make it up as soon as the period ends."

Petrie reports how one woman was unable to lose weight until she started consuming the MIRACLE FAT-BURNING FOODS. They provide more nutrients per calorie than other foods, thus increasing the metabolic rate of the body so that "with metabolism at a higher clip, more energy is utilized and more fat burned off."

Approved By Physicians!

Of course, this method seems unorthodox. Not every authority in the field of dieting has heard of it yet—and many will doubtless find it incredible. Some may even disapprove. But it has been recommended by others, including physicians. For instance, Milton C. Kemp, M.D. says it "not only provides a safe, medically approved method of weight reduction but also a way of preventing the recurrence of excess poundage."

Hundreds of Successful Weight-Loss Cases Tell The Story!

Petrie refused to release the facts about MIRACLE FAT-BURNING FOODS until he felt absolutely certain that they worked, safely and surely. As the evidence accumulated in his files, the conclusion became unmistakable! Petrie found that even people who had always experienced extreme difficulty trying to lose weight, like teen-agers and diabetics, scored striking successes with this method!

PEOPLE LIKE—

Mrs. H. C.—who had been on-and-off so many diets in the past, she had lost count! The most she had ever been able to lose was 6 lbs. over a 3-week period. Then she consulted Mr. Petrie, and was told to begin eating MIRACLE FAT-BURNING FOODS.

The Result: 35 lbs. lost the very first month! 103 total lbs. gone just 6 months after that!

• Mrs. M.—who would go on a "sweets kick" two or three times a week. She simply had no resistance against rich creamy cakes and pastries! In desperation, she turned to Petrie and immediately was put on the MIRACLE FAT-BURNING FOODS plan.

The Result: 62 lbs. quickly BURNED OFF, and the craving for cakes and pastries completely eliminated!

• Mrs. G.—a diabetic, who (because of her condition) found it extremely difficult to diet. She always would suffer nagging hunger throughout the evening. After her doctor had recommended her to Petrie, he started her on MIRACLE FAT-BURNING FOODS.

The Result: 5 lbs. lost the first week, remarkable for such a person. She immediately wrote back, saying she was recommending this method to other diabetics!

Mrs. M.—who put on weight after giving birth, and found herself 32 lbs. too heavy. She had never tried to lose weight before, and felt tense and uneasy about having to do it. With the MIRACLE FAT-BURNING FOOD plan, however, these feelings were calmed immediately.

The Result: all 32 lbs. vanished in 11 short weeks! "It was a breeze!" she said.

Mr. R.—who had to eat and drink heavily at business lunches because his job depended on it. At 250 lbs., he looked 15 years older than he was! Unquestionably, the MIRACLE FAT-BURNING FOODS was a godsend.

The Result: 80 lbs. melted off his frame in just 4 months! And he was still able to go on lunching with clients!

Mrs. M.—who entertained at home a lot, and ate so much of the sweets served to guests that she ended up 40 lbs. overweight. The idea of MIRACLE FAT-BURNING FOODS seemed incredible to her, but she agreed to try them.

The Result: 40 lbs. BURNED OFF in just 16 weeks! Her guests were so impressed, they started eating the same MIRACLE FOODS too!

Letters From Former Patients Keep Pouring In!

Day after day, letters come pouring into Petrie's office from former patients, expressing their joy and gratitude to him for his help. One writes:

"I've been on and off diets for 20 years...this is a miracle."

Another says:

"I find (eating these foods) one of the easiest ways to lose weight. There is no battling."

MR. AND MRS. ALLEN FUNT
About those contestants. . .

What "Candid Camera" doesn't see: Allen Funt suspects he misses the funniest part of his dealings with people. He's photographed more than 200,000 people in humorous situations for "Candid Camera" TV programs and movies in the last 25 years. But there's one husband-wife conversation he's never heard—the one between a wife he's filmed and the husband who's just torpedoed her TV "career." "Candid Camera" pays unsuspecting participants the going rate for a professional performance, $100 with sound and $50 for a silent sequence. "Somehow the husband always feels that he could have made a better deal than his wife made," Funt chuckles, "so he'll call and say, 'You're talking about $50 or $100 for my wife's part on your show. Well, she won't be on for less than $1,000.' So I'll say, 'Oh, we're sorry. We did want to use her, but we won't if that's the worried because he wouldn't see newsmen. John recounts: "I thought maybe he was sick. But then he said, 'John, I'll tell you what it is. You know Concord, my little dog? That Bobby Parker of the Concord gave it to me. He was killed this morning.' They say only strong men can cry, and I believe it. Joe Frazier said, 'He was run over . . . right outside the house, right out in the front.' He realized that the newspapermen were outside, clamoring to get at him, and that the greatest fight promotion in history, with a record stake for himself, was what was there, and so he saw the newspapermen—he finally agreed—but it was nothing. They didn't get anything. He was at least three or four days in a row, just that way. BLONDIE

by CHIC YOUNG

OUR WIVES HAD A QUARREL AND AREN'T SPEAKING

YEH... I JUST HEARD THE BAD NEWS

RING

BLONDIE AND TOOTSIE HAVE BEEN DEVOTED TO EACH OTHER FOR YEARS

YES... THE DEAREST OF FRIENDS -- IT'S TOO BAD

HELLO, BLONDIE... THIS IS TOOTSIE

YES, TOOTSIE... I WAS JUST GOING TO CALL YOU WHEN MY PHONE RANG

OUR WIVES ARE JUST BEING STUBBORN AND CHILDISH!

YOU'RE RIGHT, DAGWOOD... WE'VE GOT TO GET THEM BACK TOGETHER

BLONDIE, DEAR... I WANT TO APOLOGIZE FOR THE WAY I ACTED

NO, TOOTSIE... I'M THE ONE WHO SHOULD APOLOGIZE

SINCE BLONDIE STARTED ALL THIS, HOW ABOUT HAVING HER APOLOGIZE TO TOOTSIE?

YOU MUST BE KIDDING.

BLONDIE, I LOVE YOU TO PIECES AND LET'S NEVER QUARREL AGAIN

TOOTSIE, DARLING, THAT'S THE WAY I FEEL, TOO

NOW, DON'T BE A SMART ALECK!

LISTEN, BIRD-BRAIN--IT WAS YOUR WIFE'S FAULT--SHE SHOULD APOLOGIZE

TOOTSIE

I'VE TAKEN ENOUGH OF YOUR GUFF

OH, YEH--WELL TRY THAT!

WHAT'S THAT ALL ABOUT?

I CAN'T IMAGINE

CRIMESTOPPERS TEXTBOOK

HOLIDAY SHOPPERS! HELP FIGHT CRIME! REPORT ACTS OF SHOP-LIFTING TO NEAREST Dick Tract SALES PERSON.

FINALLY THE COPTER INVOLVED IN THE ARMORED CAR SHOOT-OUT IS GROUNDED AND THE PILOT CAPTURED.

"BUT THE HALF-MILLION-DOLLAR BAG OF LOOT THAT FELL IS STILL AMONG THE MISSING."

YES, THE SPACE COUPE CAMERAS SHOWED THE BAG FALLING, BUT IT FELL OUT OF OUR PICTURE.

THAT AREA IS THE NEW FEDERAL PROJECT SITE FOR A BIG WATER RESERVOIR.

"THE FARMS HAVE ALL BEEN BOUGHT UP BY THE GOVERNMENT AND THE INHABITANTS MOVED."

HALF HOUR LATER

YES, THE AREA LOOKS ABANDONED. A LOT OF PEOPLE MUST HAVE LOST THEIR HOMES.

"SEEMS TO ME THAT AS THE BAG FELL, I SAW AN OLD ABANDONED WINDMILL," SAYS LIZZ.

2-WAY WRIST TV

ASK THE CHIEF WHAT HE HEARS FROM THE ARMORED CAR CHASE.

THE THUGS PUT A CARBINE SLUG THROUGH THE SQUAD'S ENGINE BLOCK," EXPLAINS THE CHIEF.

"THEN UP THE ROAD THEY FOUND THE ABANDONED ARMORED CAR, MINUS FEMALE DRIVER AND PAL."

AND THE PIRATES

by GEORGE WUNDER

TERRY DETERMINES THAT MRS. BARB'S EMPLOYER MUST BE WARNED.

THEN YOU ALREADY SUSPECTED HER, SIR?

LEE, MRS. BARB'S THE THIRD ONE I'VE HAD THIS YEAR. CAUGHT THE FIRST TWO DIGGING INTO MY PRIVATE FILES. SUSPECTING MY SECRETARY'S BECOME A HABIT.

ESPECIALLY SINCE ALL THREE WERE HIRED FOR ME BY THE SAME ODD DUCK IN COLLEGE PERSONNEL! HE SURE PICKS LULUS.

PROBABLY NOT BY CHANCE! YOU'RE RIGHT TO SUSPECT MRS. BARB.

PROFESSOR CALYF, I'M AFRAID SHE'S BEEN, AH, INDUCED TO TRY TO MAKE MICRO-COPIES OF SOME SORT OF SECRET MATERIAL IN YOUR FILES.

OF COURSE. BY WHOM?

I DON'T KNOW HIS NAME, BUT HE'S THE HIGH GURU OF A DEVIL-WORSHIP CULT. HE PROMISED TO PRODUCE MRS. BARB'S MISSING HUSBAND FROM VIET NAM.

DARN! I SHOULD HAVE GUESSED SOMETHING LIKE THAT.

WHEN SHE BALKED AT WHAT HE WANTED IN RETURN, HE THREATENED THAT HIS "OLD GODS" WOULD HARM HER DAUGHTER.

POOR DAME! AND IT'S ALL MY FAULT. ME AND MY BIG MOUTH!

MEANING, SIR?

MY DISCIPLINE IS CHEMISTRY, LEE. I MADE AN ACCIDENTAL DISCOVERY A WHILE BACK.

A SYNTHETIC COMPOUND WITH SPECTACULAR SIDE EFFECTS. I MADE THE MISTAKE OF MENTIONING IT DURING A PANEL DISCUSSION.

AND WHO WOULD BE MORE INTERESTED IN FOLLOWING IN THE FOOTSTEPS OF THE CULT OF ASSASSINS THAN A PRESENT DAY PRACTITIONER?

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR
BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: A TAVERN BRAWL, SWORDS ARE DRAWN, BLOOD IS SPILLED, AND PRINCE VALIANT AND HIS COMPANIONS BOARD THEIR SHIP A STEP AHEAD OF THE NIGHT WATCH. THEY CAST OFF AND THE CREW MAN THE SWEEPS.

DAWN IS BREAKING AS THEY REACH THE HARBOR MOUTH AND MEET THE TOSSEING SEA.

JOAN NURSES HER SURVIVING BROTHER, BUT AS THE LONG HOURS DRAG BY HE GROWS WEAKER.

AT LAST THE END COMES AND HE IS BURIED AT SEA, AND JOAN, AT SEVENTEEN, IS ALONE WITH NO ONE TO PROTECT HER.

HOW FINE LIFE HAD BEEN. TRAVELLING THE HIGH ROADS AT WILL AND TO ENTERTAIN AT FAIRS AND TOURNAMENTS. EVEN IN THE ROUGH TAVERNS SHE HAD NO FEARS, FOR HER MIGHTY BROTHERS WERE ALWAYS READY TO PROTECT HER.

JACQUES HAS BECOME FOND OF THE LITTLE SINGER AND WOULD HAVE MADE LOVE TO HER, AS HE DID TO ALL PRETTY WOMEN, BUT AT PRESENT HE IS SEASICK. VERY.

JOAN KNOWS BUT ONE WAY TO EXPRESS HERSELF. SHE POURS OUT ALL HER LONELINESS IN SONG. AND WHILE THE SONG LASTS NO WORD IS SPOKEN.

EVEN JACQUES, THE MASTER MUSICIAN, RAISES HIS HAGGARD FACE AND HOPES HE WILL LIVE AFTER ALL.
NEXT WEEK—The Music Master

“I REGRET OFTEN THAT I HAVE SPOKEN; NEVER THAT I HAVE BEEN SILENT”

THE CHILD OF WARBUCKS AND HER MAN SERVANT ARE IMPRISONED IN THE TOMB, ATROPA! HOW LONG CAN THEY SURVIVE?

LONG ENOUGH TO LURE THE QUARRY—AND BRING TO FRUITION THE CURSE OF MANDRAGORA!

SEALED IN AN ANCIENT TOMB, ANNIE AND PUNJAB MAKE A STARTLING DISCOVERY!

THESE HIEROGLYPHS ESTABLISH THIS AS THE FINAL RESTING PLACE OF A KING WHO DIED MANY THOUSANDS OF YEARS AGO—MANDRAGORA!

O.K., SO NOW WE KNOW! BUT WHAT STILL BUGS ME IS WHY SOME GUY WHO AIN'T BEEN AROUND FOR A LONG LONG TIME WORKS UP A CONNECTION WITH “DADDY”!

COULD THE “CONNECTION” BE THE MISSING SARCOPHAGUS OF MANDRAGORA?

SOMETHIN’ GOTTA MAKE SENSE—EVEN A SHOT-IN-THE-DARK GUESS LIKE THAT!

THE DOOR TO OUR CONFUSION CAN ONLY BE UNLOCKED BY ATROPA!

I GO TO COMMUNICATE WITH WARBUCKS, SAHARA! I AM NOT TO BE DISTURBED!

YOUR PRIVACY IS SACRED, ATROPA! ALL WHO ATTEND YOU KNOW THAT!

CLUTCHING A MANDRAGORA PRAYERFULLY, ATROPA INTONES A HAUNTING CHANT...

HALF A WORLD AWAY FROM ATROPA’S DESERT SHRINE—THE STRANGELY LETHARGIC WARBUCKS SUDDENLY SITS BOLT UPRIGHT IN BED...

QUICKLY, ASP! PREPARE FOR A TRIP—A LONG ONE...

FORGIVE ME, SAHIB—BUT DO YOU HAVE THE STRENGTH FOR AN EXTENDED JOURNEY—TO—WHERE?

WARBUCKS WILL SOON BE ON HIS WAY, SAHARA! NECESSARY PREPARATIONS?

YES—I CAN HEAR—YOU...

YOU SPOKE TO ME, SAHIB?

WARBUCKS WILL SOON BE ON HIS WAY, SAHARA! NECESSARY PREPARATIONS?
