

Tampa Chosen Over ECU No Bowl Bid

ORLANDA, Fla.—The University of Tampa was chosen today to meet Kent State University in the Tangerine Bowl here on December 29.

The Spartans of Tampa had been in contention with East Carolina University for the berth, along with the University of Louisville. Louisville was eliminated from contention since it had earlier beaten Kent State.

Tampa, with one game to go, has an 8-2 record. They play Vanderbilt Saturday in their final game of the season. The Pirates, who won the Southern Conference title, have a 9-1 record with one game left, against the University of North Carolina.

N.C. Employment Shows Big Hike

RALEIGH (AP) — State Labor Commissioner Frank Crane reported today a big rise in North Carolina's non-farm employment during October.

Crane said the number working on nonfarm jobs gained 10,700 in October from September and was 53,000 higher than a year ago at 1,867,600.

Factory jobs totaled 742,500 in October and were up 21,500 from September and 19,400 from a year ago. Nonmanufacturing jobs at 1,125,000 in October, were 8,200 above the September level and 33,600 higher than a year ago.

Crane reported that average hourly earnings of manufacturing workers was unchanged at $2.80. The factory workweek was up fractionally to a 40.9-hour average. Weekly earnings rose 28 cents in October to a $114.52 average.

Employment increases during October included 2,400 in schools, 2,200 in services, 1,600 in retail trade, 1,000 in textiles, 800 in furniture manufacturing and 700 in wholesale trade. The only large decline was 1,000 in tobacco stemmeries.

$16,431 Pledged Pitt United Fund By B-W

Burroughs Wellcome Co. and its employees have pledged $16,431 to the 1973 Pitt County United Fund campaign.

Results of the plant-wide solicitation were announced by G. Henry Leslie, plant manager, who commented, "Once again Burroughs Wellcome Co. employees have demonstrated their continuing awareness of the needs of those in their community who lack many of life's more common advantages."

He added, "Two-thirds of our employees represents a new high, both in participation and in total contributions raised. It pleases us to know that other counties will also benefit from their efforts."

Combined company and employee gifts were made to Beaufort County, $921; Martin County, $516; Craven County, $187; and Edgecombe County, $135, it was noted.

Joe Tripp, Pitt UF executive director, accepted the check from Leslie during a visit by United Fund officials to the Greenville Plant.

Burroughs Wellcome Co., one of the nation's leading manufacturers of pharmaceutical products, has its corporate headquarters and research laboratories in Research Triangle Park and its complete production facilities in Greenville.

Bank Robbed

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) — An armed man robbed a Peoples Bank and Trust Co. branch in Rocky Mount today and escaped on foot with an undetermined amount of money, but within a half hour of the robbery police reported the arrest of a man in the case.

Kissinger, Le Duc Tho Begin Peace Meetings

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger resumed his secret peace negotiations with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho in Paris today amid indications that their governments are determined to seek a quick settlement.

The chief obstacle appeared to be the South Vietnamese government's insistent demand for withdrawal of all North Vietnamese troops from South Vietnam. But Kissinger gave no indication how strongly he would insist on this point.

President Nixon's chief foreign policy adviser said on his arrival Sunday that if Tho and his associate Xuan Thuy showed "the same spirit of understanding and flexibility which characterized our meetings in October, a rapid settlement of the war is probable."

Kissinger and Tho drafted an agreement last month calling for an on-the-spot cease-fire throughout South Vietnam, followed by withdrawal of all American forces, release of all prisoners of war and elections in South Vietnam under international supervision.

North Vietnam set an Oct. 31 deadline for signing the agreement, but the United States refused to be rushed. Kissinger told a news conference in Washington on Oct. 26 some details still needed clarification but added:

"We have given a commitment that a text that will be agreed to at the next session will be the final text and that no new changes will be proposed."

While publicly accusing the United States of stalling, North Vietnamese officials in Paris contended privately that this was a commitment to finalize the text at the current session. These officials expressed concern over reports from Washington that Kissinger will seek Saigon's approval of the "final" draft and may ask for still another negotiating session with Tho to make the agreement acceptable to Saigon.

"In this way, it may never end," one Hanoi official said.

President Nguyen Van Thieu's South Vietnamese openly described the October draft as a sellout, and the Viet Cong said it represented the "absolute maximum" of concessions the Communists could make.

Thieu's major objection is that the draft does not explicitly require the withdrawal of all North Vietnamese troops from South Vietnam. Hanoi spokesmen have repeatedly said North Vietnam will not even discuss the withdrawal of its troops, asserting that this would "put the American aggressor on the same level as the victims of aggression."

Thieu has insisted that negotiations between his government and the Viet Cong provided for in the draft should take place before — not after — signing of the agreement.

"The Communists want us to sign first and then negotiate," a Saigon spokesman said. "We want to negotiate first and then sign what we have agreed to."

Complete 5-Laning Of 10th St.

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

The five-laning project of Tenth Street from Cotanche Street to the U.S. 264 bypass has been completed.

According to Henry Oglesby, area highway commissioner, the project was completed Thursday except for the installation of two traffic signals.

The project 2.378 miles of construction, includes 64-foot pavement with curb and gutter. The project also includes a pedestrian median in front of the East Carolina University property from the railroad crossing on Tenth Street to the intersection with college Hill Drive.

The median is for ECU students and other pedestrians to use at times when crossing the entire width of the street is not possible.

"Bids were advertised for the project on March 2, 1971, and open on March 23, 1971," Oglesby said. "The contract for the project was awarded to Barrus Construction Company of Kinston on April 1, 1971."

The bid submitted by Barrus totaled $1,877,200.

New traffic signals have been placed at the intersection of Tenth and Cotanche Streets, Tenth and Charles Streets and Tenth and Elm Streets, and

Tenth and College Hill Drive. Proposed new signals will be installed this week at the intersection of Tenth Street and Fifth Street and at the intersection of Tenth Street and U.S. 264 bypass next week, according to Oglesby.

"This project will tie in with the Eastern bypass projects, now under construction," Oglesby explained.

Oglesby said the street markings, have been completed and that all street signs have been put up.

TENTH STREET PROJECT . . . The five-laning improvement on Tenth Street from Cotanche Street to the U.S. 264 bypass has been completed. Traffic signals have been installed and a pedestrian crossing to aid students and others in crossing the new five-lane facility. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Whole New Generation Of Instruments For The Moon On Apollo 17

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Can gravity waves, zipping across oceans of space from an early epoch of the universe, tell us when time began? Can these waves be harnessed to create an unlimited source of pollution-free energy?

Is the moon slowly fashioning an atmosphere and interacting with the solar winds to create the building blocks of future life? Beneath the bleak lunar surface are there layers of ice or permafrost that man can tap to make air and water for permanent bases on the moon?

Armed with a new generation of instruments designed specifically for the moon, Apollo 17, scheduled for launching Dec. 6, will try to answer these and other questions which man has long asked.

"The scientific payload on Apollo 17 is greater and more ambitious than on any other flight," said astronaut Eugene A. Cernan, who will command this final Apollo mission. He will fly with Dr. Harrison H. Schmitt, a geologist, and Ronald E. Evans.

Cernan and Schmitt will deploy on the surface six experiments never before flown. Evans will operate three new ones from lunar orbit.

Both Evans and the moon walkers will operate water detection devices. Evans' is called a lunar sounder and will transmit three electronic beams to examine the moon to a depth of nearly three-quarters of a mile. Besides searching for water in the form of ice, the beams will map metallic deposits, determine geological composition and locate subterranean caverns or hollows.

Cernan and Schmitt will work with an instrument designed to measure electrical and mechanical properties of the subsurface to a depth of more than half a mile. It will be able to detect ice or permanently frozen soil.

The three astronauts and most lunar scientists feel the chance of finding water on the moon is remote.

However, an Apollo 12 instrument detected what might have been a cloud of water vapor, and the Apollo 17 experiments were designed to take a more thorough look.

"With our experiments, we're going to get a good idea whether there is water on the moon," Cernan stated. "The probability is pretty low, but we can't discount the possibility."

The experiment that excites scientists most is called a tidal gravimeter. On the surface of the quiet moon, it may detect waves of gravity that may have traveled across eons of time from the birthplace of the universe.

The existence of such waves was predicted in Einstein's theory of relativity. And for the first time, instruments devised by Dr. Joseph Weber, a University of Maryland physicist, have recorded evidence that they are being emitted in bursts from the direction of the center of the earth's galaxy but originated outside the solar system.

The background noises of the earth, resulting from seismic and meteorological disturbances, complicated the experiment and Weber developed an instrument to operate on the moon where the slightest wave through an atmosphere 1,000 times more quiet than earth's will trigger a signal.

"The origin of the observed gravitational radiation has not been determined, only the direction of its arrival," Weber said. "It is conceivable that the mass at the galactic center is acting as a giant lens, focusing gravitational radiation from an earlier epoch of the universe.

"It should have been accumulating since the beginning of time," he added. "The relatively large intensity apparently being observed may be telling us when time began."

Physicists know that matter exists as both particles and waves. Gravity is a force field just like electricity and Einstein advanced a theory that there are gravity waves, just as there are radio waves and light waves.

Engagement Announced

MISS MARLEEN E. WATERS... is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl H. Waters of Rt. 3, Washington, who announced her engagement to Jackie R. Watters, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Watters of Rt. 1, Washington. The wedding will take place Dec. 26.

Christmas Gift Suggestions For A Favorite Sports Buff

By STEVE WILSTEIN
UPI Sports Writer

The problem is what to give your favorite sports freak for Christmas.

If he happens to be inclined toward reclining in the big, black leather chair opposite the game of the week, Saturday, Sunday and Monday night—the answer is easy. Buy him 26 fluid ounces of his favorite gin mill spirits or perhaps a decent burgundy or brandy and watch him call the signals when the teams go back to the huddle.

If, however, he or she is somewhat more active in his or her athletic pursuits, you may want to lavish upon them some of the more familiar sports accessories.

We therefore offer to you the following gift suggestions with prices quoted from the shelves of three well-known and well-equipped sports centers.

For Football Buff
For the football buff, you can do no better than to give either a Spalding J5V or MacGregor X7 bomb football ($19.99). Wilson makes an NFL model ($24.99), which is excellent but seems no different than the first two except for Commissioner Pete Rozelle's signature. Lighter and rubber footballs are available down to $3.99.

There are dozens of items to please the golf nut, not the least of which is a box of balls. Among the best balls are Maxfli and Spalding DOT ($12.50-doz.). A little extravagant, especially for the duffer who always manages to find the water trap on the sixth hole, is a golf ball monogramming device by ASAM ($6.50). Another bit of inexpensive extravagance is the Score Caddie Wristwatch by Butchart-Nicholls ($2.89). More practical are an Eagle Electric Putt Return ($12.00), Golf shirts by Munsingwear ($4.99) and an excellent book, "Practical Golf," by John Jacobs (8.95).

For Ski Bums
Ski bums are even easier to please. Just point them toward a mountain. But if your particular ski bum is in need of new gear, you could do worse than a pair of Hart Competition Fiberglass Skis ($175), K2 Fiberglass Skis ($95-$135) or Formula 1 ($70-100), all of which should be about two-three inches taller than the skier.

Another goodie for the skier, who must be fitted exactly and expertly for boots, is a Garcia Allsop "boot-in" bootcarrier—red-narrow, black-medium, blue-wide—($6.00). Steel (especially for beginners) or aluminum ski poles (measure from toe to armpit) are a good gift from $10-$25 as are Duofold fishnet undershirts ($6) and Duofold long underpants ($7). But the underwear a size larger than regular.

And, naturally, any ski bum needs a different sweater ($12-60) for every slope and caps, masks and gloves ($3-20) for every sweater.

Tips for Bowling Gifts
You can score high with your favorite bowler with High Skore's Bowler's Accessory Kit, which contains ball cleaner and polish, grip cream, resin bag, shoe spray and crying towel ($6.99).

For those who would like to lose a little weight, and who wouldn't? Dynamics Classics makes a deluxe slim wheel which promises to "remove stomach bulge." Slant boards for exercising or mediating on can be built at home or purchased for about $20. Manual exercise bicycles are available from CCM ($94.50).

The Rise And Fall Of Nannies For Children

By JOAN GRAHAM
LONDON (WNS—Baltimore Sun)—An entirely new concept of history could be written on the basis of the British nanny, that indomitable being who ruled Britain's upper-class nurseries from the mid-nineteenth century to the early 1930's.

Certainly her influence in her charges—and thus ultimately on Britain itself—was supreme.

Such children saw little of their parents. Once a day Mama and Papa might visit the nursery. Or perhaps Nanny would take her charge, immaculately turned out, quiet and somewhat awed, into the presence of its parents at a prescribing time each day—usually between nursery tea and bed-time.

Jonathan Gathorne-Hardy, who has just published a mammoth book, "The Rise and Fall of the British Nanny," has said:

"Our leaders were brought up by nannies, and not their mothers. Therefore, the most important influence on them has been their nannies and not their mothers. This is a factor which the historians have ignored."

Were it not for Nanny

Everest, Sir Winston Churchill's childhood probably would have been a lonely and neglected hell.

His father, Lord Randolph, was a politician absorbed in the machinations of power, and his mother was extremely young, stunningly beautiful and caught up in the whirl of fashionable society.

Secure Childhood
But far from being neglected, says the author, Sir Winston's early years were remarkable for the security and love provided by the only important figure in the first years of his life—his nanny.

For his first eight years he was rarely separated from her, and she was his principal confidante until her death in 1895, when Churchill was 20.

Thus, the formidable will and dominance which developed early in life probably sprang from a completely secure background, rather than from a childhood of neglect, as propounded by psychologists.

Not all were as lucky in their nannies as Churchill. Lord Curzon, Viceroy of India, says the author, was dominated by his nanny, who was sometimes exceptionally cruel and difficult in late life in keeping his friends can be traced to the stresses he endured in his early days.

We are told that Robert Louis Stevenson had a Scottish nurse who recited gloomy religious stories to him and took him for walks to the cemetery, implanting at an early age his profound interest in the supernatural and macabre.

Rudyard Kipling was brought up by a foster mother who was extremely cruel and in my view this came out in the occasional sadistic streaks in his prose," writes Mrs. Gathorne-Hardy.

Introduce Sex
Some nannies, like Byron's, introduced their charges to sex, or were themselves seduced by the master of the house.

Others could frighten their children half to death with tales of what would happen to them if they misbehaved. But by and large nanny was a loving, protective character who was always around, and the source of sayings which have passed down the years—"There's no such word as can't," and "Children should be seen and not heard."

Mrs. Gathorne-Hardy says that the old British nanny was usually working class, unlike the governess who was a distressed gentle-lady. He also implies that only the rich and idle could afford a governess, whereas servants were so cheap up to about 1930 that almost everybody had a nanny except the class from which she came.

And if she did come from the lower working class, as he says, how did she acquire the meticulous manners which she dinned into her charges, or lose her "common" accent, which would otherwise have been adopted by them? The author does not explain, but it is probable she started as a nursery maid and learned as she climbed the ladder.

Certainly the nanny of today is quite different. She is usually young, comes from a good background, and has to have achieved considerable educational success before being accepted at Nursery Training College, such as Norland, where the 21-month course will cost her parents about $2,000.

Why Become A Nanny?

With nanny in the nursery responsible for all the deadly and row-involving chores, such as enforcing good manners, "eat it up," and "bedtime!" it is not surprising that the Victorian mother was held in rare esteem as a gently, indulgent, loving and angelic person.

What made a woman become a nanny? In many cases, of course, it was a genuine love of children. Sometimes the motive may have been social snobbery, but often it was a simple desire for security.

Normally they were fated, simply by the nature of their professions, to move from one family to another as the children grew up, but the source was unending for the good nanny and for a lucky few there were pensions or cottages at the very end.

It is rare for a nanny these days to adopt the name of the family for whom she works, but until the Second World War, it was quite customary and was the final submission to security. Nurse to the Smith family was known as "Nanny Smith."

Although few Britons reputedly can afford nannies these days, there still seems to be a thriving pram life of uniformed nurses in Hyde Park and Kensington Gardens—a closed shop into which no mere "au pair" girl would ever be admitted.

Perhaps a suitable epitaph for that past era of the old-fashioned British nanny is in the words of one of them, who said:

"Over my grave they should put an upturned potty."

Count on a medium lemon to supply two tablespoons of grated rind and three tablespoons of lemon juice.

A New Version Of Pecan Pie

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
Pecan pie fanciers are always interested in new versions of that famous American specialty.

So what have we for you today? An ingenious cook originated an up-to-the-minute formula for the filling, using sour cream. We promptly tested it in our own kitchen and the recipe follows.

We found this pie as delicious as it should be but not quite so sweet as usual. That's because less corn syrup is used than in the standard recipe, and sour cream substitutes. However, this is still a rich pie so you should be able to get eight servings out of it.

SOUR CREAM PECAN PIE

3 eggs
½ cup commercial sour cream
½ cup dark corn syrup
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter, melted
1¼ cups pecan halves
1 unbaked 9-inch pastry shell
In a medium mixing bowl beat eggs well; stir in sour cream. Add corn syrup, vanilla, sugar, salt and butter, mixing well. Stir in pecans. Pour into pastry shell.

Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until crust is brown and filling is slightly puffy—30 to 35 minutes. Place pie on wire cake rack and cool before cutting.

Department Officers Are Named

New officers of the Fine Arts Department of the Greenville Woman's Club were named last week during a meeting held at the club building.

Mrs. George Clapp, was named president. Others include: Mrs. Eunice Rogers, vice president; Mrs. Tom Cole, treasurer; and Mrs. R.E. Corbitt, secretary.

Mrs. L.L. Alexander presented the program for the meeting. She reviewed "I've Got To Talk To Somebody, God" by Marjorie Holmes. Her talk centered around faith and prayer.

She quoted Mrs. Holmes as saying that in this day it is very difficult to find any place that is quiet and serene and conducive to meditation.

Mrs. W.E. Avery presided at the meeting and explained the annual art competition, both local and district. She encourages members present to actively participate.

Miss Nancy Porter Weds Baby Sitter Can't Afford To Give Discount Rates

In a candlelight ceremony Sunday afternoon at three o'clock Miss Nancy Lou Porter became the bride of Ted Clayton Johnston in the Salem United Methodist Church, Simpson.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Richard Arno. Mrs. Becky Sue Overton, cousin of the bride, organist, and Mrs. Mary Frances Fornes, soloist, presented a program of wedding music. Mrs. Fornes sang "Whither Thou Goest" "One Hand, One Heart" and the "Wedding Prayer" as the benediction.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Lindeburgh Porter of Greenville, the bride was given in marriage by her father. The bride wore a formal length white Schiffl embroidered silk organza gown designed with a high neckline encircled with scalloped embroidered fabric in a lattice pattern. Matching floral lattice embroidery formed a double panel over the empire bodice. The deep cuffs of the bishop sleeves were also of the lattice pattern finished with scallops. The floral Schiffl embroidered skirt and the attached cathedral train featured tiers of the lattice patterned embroidered organza.

She wore an elbow length illusion veil attached to a cluster of Venise lace petals and satin loops centered with pearls. The bride carried a full cascade of phalaenopsis and cattleya orchids framed with tips of greenery tied with white satin. The parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Steve Johnston of Greenville.

The church was decorated with all brass wedding accessories. In back of the altar was a background of white chrysanthemums, gladioli and tall standards of bridal greenery. At the altar was a profile pierdieu where the bride and bridegroom knelt facing each other for the closing prayer and benediction. Pews were marked with nosegays of miniature carnations and pom poms.

Mrs. Connie Bostrom of Greenville was matron of honor and maid of honor was Miss Kathy Wester of Winston-Salem. Bridesmaids were Miss Anne Brown and Miss Jan Flanagan both of Greenville and Mrs. Barbara Johnston of Pensacola, Fla., sister-in-law of the bridegroom.

Miss Kristy Johnston of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom, was junior bridesmaid and Miss Lisa Mills also of Greenville, cousin of the bride, was flower girl.

The attendants wore formal length orange chiffon gowns designed with high necklines encircled with ivory Venise lace threaded with orange satin ribbon. Matching lace and ribbon formed a panel over the bodice fronts. Bands of the beribboned lace accentuated the empire waistlines and cuffs of the long sheer sleeves.

MRS. TED CLAYTON JOHNSTON

They wore bandeau headpieces featuring ecru lace threaded with orange satin ribbon with an orange elbow length illusion veil.

The honor attendants carried century bouquets designed after those of the honor attendants. The flower girl carried a white basket filled with orange petals tied with a green bow.

Robbie Moye of Greenville was ring bearer and carried a white satin pillow with a spray of miniature flowers tied with a green bow.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers were Ronnie Johnston of Pensacola, Fla., brother of the bridegroom, Willie Pollard, Ricky Switzer, cousin of the bridegroom, and Bill Quiggins, all of Greenville. For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Porter chose a kelly green coat-dress ensemble with matching accessories. The mother of the bridegroom wore a carnation pink dress of polyester doubleknit with matching accessories. Both mothers wore white orchid corsages.

Mrs. Cassie Cox, maternal grandmother of the bridegroom, wore a red two-piece suit with tan accessories. She wore a corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Donna P. Mayo presided at the guest register at the church. The bride and bridegroom and wedding party received in the vestibule of the church following the ceremony.

For a wedding trip to unannounced points, the bride changed into a two-piece dress and coat ensemble of red, white and blue with navy blue accessories. She wore an orchid corsage lifted from her bridal bouquet.

The bride is a graduate of J. H. Rose High School and attended East Carolina University, where she is now employed. The bridegroom graduated from Rose High School and is employed by Texfi Industries, New Bern.

The couple will reside in Greenville.

After-Rehearsal Party
Mr. and Mrs. Steve Johnston, parents of the bridegroom and Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Warren entertained the Johnston, Porter wedding party and guests at an after-rehearsal party Saturday night in the Oakmont Square Apartments recreation room. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Johnston.

The refreshment table was covered with a white cloth and centered with an arrangement of mums. The three tiered wedding cake was at one end of the table while two punch bowls were used on the other end.

Mrs. Leland Porter, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Dora Davenport, aunt of the bridegroom, poured punch and Mrs. Peggy Gray served wedding cake. They were each presented a corsage.

The bride was remembered with a corsage of chrysanthemums.

Pre-nuptial events honoring Miss Porter included a bridesmaids luncheon Saturday at the home of Mrs. Charles Flanagan.

Miss Jan Flanagan was assisting hostess.

The luncheon table was covered with a white linen cloth and centered with wedding bells and lily-of-the-valley. Place cards of white and silver wedding bells with rice bag favors marked the places of guests.

Special guests were Mrs. Earl Porter and Mrs. Steve Johnston, mothers of the bride-elect and bridegroom-elect respectively. Miss Porter presented her attendants gifts of jewelry.

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I baby-sit five days a week for eight preschool children in my own home. I love children and need the money. I am a widow and am helping to get my own children thru college.

All the children I baby-sit with are given excellent care and attention, and I charge a nominal fee for the service I render.

Recently, a woman with two children asked me if I would give her a reduced rate. Abby, it's no easier to take care of two children from the same family than from different families. If anything, it's more difficult, because sisters and brothers are more likely to quarrel or gang up together against the other children.

Doctors, dentists, amusement parks don't give discounts for children from the same family. Why should baby sitters? How can I explain it to this mother?

CONSCIENTIOUS SITTER

DEAR SITTER: Simple. The same way you explained it to me.

DEAR ABBY: Do you know a doctor who will perform a hysterectomy on me? I live in Chicago, but I'll go anywhere. I've been to three doctors and they all refused me.

I am 33 years old, married, and have three children, which is all I want. My husband is 44, and he doesn't want any more either.

Birth control pills are out. They gave me all the symptoms of pregnancy and I felt rotten all the time I took them. And the other methods are too much trouble. The only safe way I know of closing down the baby factory is to have a hysterectomy and get it over with.

Rush me the name of a doctor I can go to and say, "Abby sent me." Thank you. NO MORE BABIES

DEAR NO MORE: Sorry, but I don't know a doctor who will remove healthy organs. Since both you and your husband agree that your family is complete, why doesn't he consider a vasectomy? It's a relatively simple, inexpensive operation which changes a working model into a sports model.

DEAR ABBY: I have a 35-year-old daughter who has been married for 14 years to a man who is the most overbearing, foul-mouthed bully who ever lived.

He yells at her in front of people and he orders her around like she was his servant. Agnes has worked to help support the family [they have four children] and between her job and her home she has her hands full. Her husband has never lifted a hand to help her at home. Every weekend this bum is either playing golf or at some kind of sports event.

Agnes is a gentle person who never stands up for herself. She just lets him push her around.

I contend that as her father, I have the right to demand that he treat her with the respect she deserves.

I would like your opinion. SON IN LAW PROBLEMS

DEAR PROBLEMS: I realize it hurts you to see your daughter abused, but you have no "right" to demand anything. Agnes is an adult, and if she allows herself to be pushed around and treated like a servant, it's her problem, not yours. And until she makes a few demands and stands up to him, she can expect more of the same.

CONFIDENTIAL TO THOSE WHO DON'T KNOW WHAT TO GIVE THE CHILD WHO HAS EVERYTHING FOR CHRISTMAS: I highly recommend a subscription to the monthly magazine Highlights for Children. There are stories for adults to read to youngsters not yet able to read, as well as articles for children from 6 to 12 years old. There are pictures, things to do, riddles and puzzles which teach children to think! All entirely wholesome. No guns or violence. Fashion Is New, Name Is Old

NEW YORK (AP) — Jeans, in case you were wondering, were not named for a girl named Jean.

The word for this very American fashion has a very European ancestry. "Jeans" comes from the word "Genoa" and was part of the phrase "jean fustian," according to Webster's Seventh New Collegiate Dictionary.

Fustian was a very strong cotton fabric used for clothing and bedding which came, in the old days, from Genoa. In Middle English, according to the dictionary, "Genoa" was "Gene" or "Jene," which in turn came from the Middle French "Genes." So "Jene Fustian" was an Italian cotton fabric. We've dropped the "fustian" but kept the "jene."

Maybe it's good we dropped "fustian" because that word now means bombast, pretentious speech or an inflated style. Elizabethan actors used fustian fabric in making their costumes, and their melodramatic style of acting gave fustian a bad name. The Elizabethan playwright Heywood talks of "some scurvy quaint collection of fustian phrases."

Jeans are also called denims or Levi's. The word "denim," according to the dictionary, comes from "serge de Nimes," serge being another name for twilled cotton fabrics and Nimes the town in France where it was made.

The trademark "Levi's" came from Levi Strauss who went west in the Gold Rush days with a wagon full of denim fabric, couldn't sell it and decided to make durable pants for the miners. He put copper rivets on to strengthen them so miners could put their ore samples in their pockets.

Americans Are Putting More Spice In Lives

NEW YORK (UPI)—Americans are putting more spice in their lives.

The American Spice Trade Assn. says consumption of spices, herbs and seasoning vegetables totaled 386 million pounds in 1971, an increase of nearly 42 per cent in less than 10 years.

Figuring in the growth are two new to most United States consumers and two old-fashioned ones whose distribution is increasing.

Growing interest in Chinese cookery has created a market for star anise, available largely in specialty stores and food departments of large department stores. It comes from a type of magnolia tree and resembles a small brown star with many points. Its licorice-like flavor is stronger than that of regular anise, which is the seed of an herb related to parsley and dill.

Whole green peppercorns, or unripe Piper nigrum, also are increasingly available in a wine vinegar pack in fancy food stores. They're suggested for seasoning dips and cocktail snacks, meat, fish and poultry sauces, stuffings and salad dressings.

Juniper berries and gumbo file are the old-timers more in demand. The berries traditionally are used for game seasoning, especially venison and rabbit. They're also good in chicken salad, braised pork and sauerkraut.

Lemon juice helps prevent pared apples and pears from browning; it does the same job for peeled bananas. Either dip the cut-up fruit in the juice or pour the juice over the fruit.

Each Is Dependent Upon Other

This is Farm-City Week and in our area where farming is so much a part of our way of life, the observance should have special emphasis.

Farming now is a business which is essential to the people who live in the big cities of the nation. Thus the urban dwellers and those who live on the farms should have a better understanding of each others problems.

In our area we have fallen heir to the best of two worlds. Our municipalities are small enough so that none of us are very far from the countryside. Many people who live in the cities are connected to the farm and, interestingly, many who live in the rural areas make their livings in the industries and businesses of the cities.

Dr. Joe Pou is chairman of Farm-City Week observance in Pitt County and Farm Agent Ed Yancy is co-chairman. They are emphasizing the theme this year of Quality of Life. The thought is that both rural and urban dwellers must work together toward the quality of life that we all want to achieve. Thus more than ever the lives of farm people and city people are interrelated. It will take the best cooperative efforts of both to protect our environment and preserve our landscapes for future generations.

In our area, few have to be reminded that farm and city life are entirely dependent on each other. And, as we look at the mounting problems of the big cities, we come to realize that our unique blend has created a way of life which is better than that found in some areas.

We have a good thing going and it is something that we should continue to cultivate. Farm-City Week makes us aware of what a good life we have.

No Paucity Of Party Leaders

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH, N.C. — Will the real leader of the Democratic Party in North Carolina please stand up?

That question asked today would either leave everybody seated or bring a half dozen or more to their feet.

BRYAN HAISLIP

The victory of Republican James E. Holshouser Jr. for governor thrust Democrats out of power after 72 years in control of state administration and created a vacuum at the top for the party.

Technically, Hargrove (Skipper) Bowles Jr. remains titular head of the party. He won that position in the hierarchy along with the gubernatorial nomination in the spring primary.

James I. Sugg of New Bern still holds the office of state Democratic chairman. Bowles picked him for the job in advance of the fall campaign.

The general election changed nothing and changed everything. It left Bowles and Sugg in the place of leadership, but defeats for the party cast a shadow over their ability to lead.

It also set the stage for a period of maneuvering and regrouping within the party. The months ahead are certain to see some quiet jockeying, if not overt struggle, for the driver's seat in the party machine.

Leaders And Followers

In politics as elsewhere, a leader is one who attracts followers. The measure is at the ballot box, since the objective of a political party is to win elections.

Tar Heel Democrats, unaccustomed out of power, now must identify someone who can rally forces and define issues in a way to secure public support for future campaign.

In the forefront of prospects is James B. Hunt Jr., youthful, versed in Democratic politics, and a winner at the polls.

He was elected lieutenant governor by a handsome margin while the ticket-splitting tide engulfed Bowles and Nick Galifianakis, the party's candidate for the U. S. Senate.

Platform To Speak

As the state's second-ranked official, Hunt will have the platform and prestige to speak up for the party in the next four years. As a mover in the General Assembly, where he will preside over the Senate, he can have a major in shaping a Democratic record.

Circumstances give Hunt the opportunity for leadership, but the party's mantle won't fall on him by default. Other strong figures within the party can be expected to exert themselves in setting its direction.

Rep. James E. Ramsey of Person, as House Speaker, will have a guiding hand on legislation that comes out of the 1973 session. He has made it clear that Democratic lawmakers, in dealing with a GOP chief executive, will show initiative in meeting issues before the state.

Ramsey's role is likely to give him an influential voice in party conclaves.

Some Democrats insist the general election did not leave the party leaderless, but with a group of leaders. Rather than competition among personalities, they say the challenge is to develop consensus and concerted action for the good of the party.

List of Leaders

Names on the roster of leaders would include:

Gov. Bob Scott, ending his term with the dubious distinction as the last in line of 18 consecutive Democratic Governors. While his position will entitle Scott to respectful attention, few observers look for him to have a decisive voice in party affairs in the immediate future.

Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan has a wide following within the party. He considered running for governor, but chose instead another term in his present office. Many see him as a potential candidate for U.S. Senate in 1974.

Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor, although the loser to Bowles in the primary, retains high standing in the party. He has told friends he does not intend ending his career in defeat, hinting a future political interest.

Numbered among elder statesmen are Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., and Luther H. Hodges, former governor. Duke President Terry Sanford, also a former Governor, still has a following among Democrats.

Together, these men all will have something to say in the strategy to get the Democratic show back on the road.

Bowles has yet to indicate how active he will remain in politics. During his campaign, he often said he would seek nor accept no public office beyond the governorship. Whether defeat has changed his mind remains to be seen.

Revelation In Warsaw Accord

By ROWLAND EVANS

and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The extraordinary speed with which the new U. S. trade pact with Poland was signed here last week, after only four days of negotiations, dramatized the gravity of the economic crisis in the Soviet empire that U.S. officials are only beginning to understand.

Unable to deal with this from Moscow, it now seems certain that the Kremlin has given Communist East Europe full rein to make economic and commercial deals with the U.S. which would have been profoundly heretical a few years ago.

Thus, the new trade pact with Warsaw opens up Poland to "shared ownership" of plants and equipment that can be built there with private American capital. These production plants would be operated with "shared" management for profits also to be "shared" by the American enterprise and the Polish government.

Asked to reconcile this free enterprise-Communist partnership in the production of goods for profit, one Polish negotiator replied laconically: "We are too poor to stick to Marxist orthodoxy."

Hidden beneath that comment, in the view of Nixon administration experts, is the candid admission that Moscow's planned economy for its Eastern European allies — no longer 100-proof satellites — has come to the end of the road. In short, Moscow is saying to Poland: Stick with us on foreign policy but go your own way in everything else.

The way the negotiations came about reveals the passion for speed. The Polish government was prepared to send its top-level trade team here early next year to hammer out the new agreement after a preliminary session in Warsaw with Secretary of Commerce Peter G. Peterson last August.

But White House political operatives, eyeing the huge Polish-American vote, saw a marginal plus in starting the negotiations before the election. A cable went to Warsaw proposing the talks for the first week of November. Thadeusz Olechowski, Polish minister of trade, was at that moment in Moscow for a meeting of COMECON, the Communist economic bloc. He immediately rearranged his schedule and flew to Washington. After four days face-to-face, Peterson and Olechowski, a skillful, Westernized Pole who speaks five languages, signed the new agreement Nov. 8.

Preceding the signing, U.S. negotiators were amazed how fast one potential problem after another disappeared.

Thus, the question of Poland obtaining new American licensing for advanced technology, potentially a source of grave trouble, was swiftly bypassed. The licensing question is critical, because once a relatively backward nation obtains the license for new productive techniques it no longer needs a Western partner. Thus, Poland's agreement to finesse licensing proves Warsaw is thinking in long terms indeed about new industrial cooperation with the U.S.

Likewise, the agreement guarantees a direct relationship between American companies and Polish citizens, without having to go through a Communist bureaucracy. This should mean that an American enterprise will be able to hire Polish labor, contract directly with Polish suppliers for telephones and office equipment and, with its Polish industrial partner, buy raw materials and sell finished products.

These agreements are on top of more routine arrangements finally settling the pre-war Polish bond indebtedness and giving Poland access to U.S. Export-Import Bank credits. The Poles also agreed — for the first time with the U.S. — on third-country arbitration to settle disputes that inevitably will arise out of the new pact.

In strictly commercial terms, far too much is expected from the new agreements. In fact, American companies are going to think long and hard before they invest stockowners' money in "shared" control of industrial enterprises in a Communist country.

The real point is not short-run economics, but long-run politics. However Moscow explains it away, COMECON has failed to fulfill the needs of Eastern European economies.

With Moscow itself leading the way with Washington, these Communist countries can wheel and deal on their own with the towering U.S. economy. Judging from the new Warsaw pact, the part-

The White House Purge

WASHINGTON — It's been a grim week in the White House. After his landslide election, instead of getting even with the Democrats, President Nixon surprised everyone by announcing that he was purging the Republicans who helped him get elected. Everyone with a high Administration job has been asked to hand in his resignation.

Who goes and who stays is still very much up in the air, and it's very hard for one to do his job when the black cloud of unemployment hangs over his head.

One source in the White House told exactly what kind of week it's been:

Pat Nixon came into the President's office.

"Look what someone just gave me," she said angrily. "What is it, Pat?" the President asked.

"It's a resignation form to fill out. Are you asking me to resign?"

"It's just a formality," President Nixon said. "I've asked everyone in the White House to resign so I can get rid of the people I don't want."

"But that's unfair," Pat protested. "I worked very hard for you during the campaign."

"Of course you did, Pat, and I told Haldeman and Ehrlichman to take that into consideration. I said, 'When we go over the list of the people we're dropping, keep in mind that Pat was at my side during the three times I left the White House to campaign."

Mrs. Nixon held the resignation in her hand and said tearfully, "You would think after all these years there would be no question about my staying with you for your second term."

"Now don't get upset, Pat," the President said. "I owe you a lot, but I have to do what's best for America. I can't give special favors to any group nor can I as President favor one person in the White House family over another. I assure you we will take a close look at your record before we make any definite decision."

"Dick, don't you remember the Checkers speech, the stoning in South American, your defeat in 1960 and 1962? I was the only one who didn't turn her back on you. Doesn't that count for something?"

"It does, Pat. We've not only got all those facts but we have your FBI record as well. On the basis of all this I would guess you have a better than 50-50 chance of staying in the White House. But it isn't my decision alone. The purge staff has to look at the big picture. How much money is it costing us? Is the person doing more than his share of the work he is assigned? Was he involved in the Watergate bugging affair? And finally, is the job worth not eliminating altogether?"

Hear It Every Time

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that a movie actress gets tired of hearing:

HAL BOYLE

"If you don't want to be a sex symbol, what kind of symbol do you want to be — a geriatric symbol?"

"It's only a small part, but it fits your mind."

"If the studio decided your name should be Eartha Garbo, who are you to object? How many movie marquee do you think you'd light up if you stuck to your own name — Harriett Pumpernickel?"

"What do you movie stars do with all your money?"

"Remember one thing about the film industry — another pretty actress is no more important than another side of beef in a packing house."

"No, I'm not the producer. I'm the guy who's lending him the money to make this picture. I'm tied up tonight. How about tomorrow night?"

"Harriet, if you think the name Eartha Garbo doesn't fit your personality, how about Clara Gable? I think the studio might buy that."

"If you're sure you're really important, please sign my autograph book. I really only want genuine celebrities though."

"Honey, don't whine about the measly 10 per cent you have to pay me. Ten per cent of you isn't enough to keep a guy like me in cigars."

"Doesn't the empty glamor and false excitement of Hollywood sometimes pall on your secret heart, Miss?"

"What's wrong with appearing in an X picture? Wouldn't you rather appear in a good X picture than be upstaged by a horse in a B grade western? Besides, this is a different kind of X picture. Part of the time the camera shows your face."

"I guess a movie star like you is pretty hard for a plain little old boy from the country like me to get a date with. Right or wrong?"

"All right, all right — so you

Strength For Today

NATURE OF HAPPINESS

"The world is so full of a number of things, I think we should all be as happy as kings." Robert Louis Stevenson, who wrote these words, had to fight bad health most of his life and died at a comparatively early age.

"The wonderful things" are usually things that we make wonderful by the way we handle them. There have never been so many wealthy people in the world as right now, yet the world is in a state of rather terrifying chaos. Redistribution might help, but certainly it would not solve the problem. The conquering of certain diseases would help, but even a cure for cancer would not eliminate all health hazards. If we want to be happy the responsibility for this happiness is largely up to us. We are not only as happy as we make up our minds to be—we are as happy as we try to be.

But why all this talk about happiness? There is a lot more to life than happiness. Service to others may make us happy or it may be at the cost of sacrifice that in itself produces unhappiness. Holding high public office is thought to be something to grasp at but few people who hold high public office would say that this is true.

The people who forget all about happiness usually end up happier than the people that spend most of their time trying to find happiness.

Duty. Responsibility. Unselfishness. These are the things out of which true happiness is fashioned.

Savings And Loan League Test

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) —

Richard Gilbert, the new president of the U.S. Savings and Loan League, expects one of his biggest challenges will be to block the threat of a commercial bank monopoly in certain consumer finance services.

If that sounds odd to you it should be remembered that savings and loan associations are not banks. Their services are limited to savings accounts and loans, mainly for housing.

Their essential purpose is to channel the savings of ordinary Americans into housing. They are the biggest home mortgage lenders in a nation of 63 per cent home ownership.

But they are beginning to balk at the restraints, which they feel could place them at a distinct disadvantage in this electronic world.

They cannot, for example, offer third-party transfer of funds. In its simplest form, a third-party transfer would be the use of a check written by you to transfer funds out of your account into that of another.

This is done 23 million times a day by holders of checking accounts, every one of which is at a commercial bank. Savings and loans cannot offer them.

Now the fund transfer system is about to become more complex, and the associations worry that, while they could live without such powers in the past, they may not be able to in the future.

The reason is that banks are developing plans to join into groups that would transfer funds electronically. Your paycheck, for example, would be deposited directly into your bank, and the bank then would pay certain bills. Moreover, it is now generally agreed that the shopper of the future will use a plastic card with a magnetic strip that will permit the store to deduct instantly the purchase price from your account and transfer it to theirs.

If the savings and loans are excluded from such systems it could mean disaster. The added convenience of such commercial bank services would likely be more than the S&Ls could offset with their higher interest on savings.

"A monopoly wasn't granted to the banks from Mt. Sinai," said Gilbert in an interview at the S&L convention in Miami Beach.

He indicated that he and other S&L officials intend to use every legal means to prevent a monopoly of fund transfer services.

"The nation will be better served by two systems," he said. "Banks to take care of commerce and industry, and we family financial centers to serve people."

Gilbert, who is president of Citizens Savings Association, Canton, Ohio, also faces the legislative matter of converting savings and loan associations, which are mutually owned by depositors, into stock companies.

Many association leaders have proposed conversion as the answer to continued growth. It would mean that S&Ls would attract investor money in the same way as General Motors.

This conceivably would mean a windfall for existing passbook holders who, in addition to their savings accounts, would most likely have to be given stock also.

Gilbert expects an "active legislative year." Congress also is interested in tax revisions. And controls on interest rates expire June 1, and in all likelihood must be replaced, perhaps with some changes.

SALT Negotiator Knows Goal

By LEWIS GULICK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A stern countenance peers down at employees of the U.S. Disarmament Agency from the official picture on the wall. It is that of their chief, Gerard C. Smith, a no-nonsense fellow who insists on trying to subdue the threat of nuclear war.

Smith headed the U.S. team which negotiated the first-of-its-kind U.S.-Soviet strategic arms-limitation talks (SALT) agreement for a first step in holding down the superpower weapons race.

Now President Nixon is sending the 58-year-old New Yorker to Geneva for a second SALT round starting Tuesday which promises to be as arduous as the first, three-year session.

"The Soviets seem to like his down-to-earth approach," says one U.S. veteran of many a meeting between Smith's team and the Russians headed by Vladimir S. Semenov. "They don't like levity in these negotiations."

For Smith, broad-shouldered, graying and conventional-mannered, the life of a negotiator in a European capital is no rest cure. He figures he spent 450 nights in hotel rooms during lengthy SALT Phase I sessions in Helsinki and Vienna.

Smith's impeccable capitalist-family credentials (his father was a vice president and chief lawyer for General Motors) has proved no barrier to dealing with the communist Russians.

"It does, Pat. The boys were very impressed with those trips and it's a big plus. At the same time, the next four years are going to be the most important in the history of the United States. I can't afford to make any mistakes if I want my rightful place in history. That is why I asked for everyone's resignation. There is too much deadwood in my Administration."

"Suppose I refuse to resign?"

"Pat, please don't put me in that position. You've meant a lot to me during all these years, and I would hate our relationship to end on a bitter note. I assure you that when your name comes up in the meeting, I'll be fighting for you to stay, on, even if we have to change your job designation."

"Thank you, Dick," Pat said. "I appreciate that."

Just then the door flew open and Julie Nixon Eisenhower and Tricia Nixon Cox burst in.

"Daddy!" cried Tricia. "They've asked us to resign!"

"Good grief," the President said exasperatedly. "I can't save everybody."

Greenfield Next Univ. Prexy

CHARLOTTE (AP)—North Carolina native Wilbert Greenfield, currently dean of academic affairs at Jackson State University in Mississippi, will become the 10th president of Charlotte's Johnson C. Smith University Jan. 1.

Dr. Greenfield was selected by trustees of the 1,000-student, private institution Saturday to succeed Dr. Lionel H. Newsom, who has become president of Central State University in Ohio. The three schools have predominantly black enrollments.

The 39-year-old Greenfield is a graduate of North Carolina A & T State University at Greensboro and earned master's and doctor's degrees at the University of Iowa. He has been dean at Jackson State since 1967.

"I write for a religious paper. Tell me the truth. Is life in Hollywood really as wild and immoral as everybody knows it is?"

School Sports, Racial Issues In TV Spotlight

(CHAPEL HILL). . . The state's public television network will explore the emotionally volatile issue of race and school athletics in a special two-part program this month.

The report on school integration's affect on sports will be broadcast in two parts, Wednesday, November 22 and 29 at 7:30 p.m. over the seven-station UNC-TV Network.

The programs will be part of UNC-TV's project, "Thursday's Child," a fourteen-program series funded by the Emergency School Assistance Program, U.S. Office of Education and the University of North Carolina.

Coaches and athletic directors from Moore, Montgomery, Chatham, Alamance, Cumberland, Wayne and Robeson County Schools were filmed or interviewed for the series, along with student athletes from each school.

The main issues to be dealt with in the programs are "crowd control," pressures on coaches from their communities and administrators; stereotypes that exist among black and white players about their cultures; the training, if any, coaches receive to deal with integrated team situations; and the status of girls' athletic programs.

"The issues of sports integration are complex and often subtle," explains producer Holly Bruner. "Many coaches believe that athletics are the solution to school integration; a few believe sports have caused more trouble than anything else. It's clear to me that integration in sports is still being worked out. Just putting black and white players side by side on the same team doesn't insure that those players are going to understand or appreciate each other automatically. But it's a first step. What comes next is what we'd like to look at now."

Among those who will give their views will be former Moore County basketball coach, Roger Paschal, who resigned his job because of community pressure as the coach of an almost all-black team.

Jack Hussey, coach at North Moore High School will tell about his experiences with his black athletes not being allowed to eat at certain restaurants when the team was traveling.

Simon Terrell, head of the North Carolina High School Athletic Association will discuss with Bruner the new "strict conduct codes" for football games and his assistant, Charles Adams, will explain the conscious use of both black and white officials to avoid trouble at school sports events.

The reinforcement of stereotypes about black and white athletes is one of the major issues to be dealt with in the "Thursday's Child" programs.

"Although many coaches say 'I treat everybody the same,' some of these same coaches believe only white people can play offense in football," Bruner said. She found that not only are there stereotypes about the people but about the sports as well. Certain schools still have problems with sports that become all-white or all-black, due to lack of early exposure by one race or the other to the sport caused by the stereotypes surrounding these sports, e.g. golf, tennis.

Bruner also visited schools where coaches made a conscious effort to bring about mutual appreciation of the two cultures by providing outside social activities and doing a little "homework" on their own to be prepared to deal with students of another cultural background.

Dr. Richard Coop of the Education Department, UNC-Chapel Hill, will describe the training future physical education teachers are now receiving to help them handle racial situations.

In a segment concerning girls' athletics and integration, Bruner will talk with two successful female coaches, Ann Maynard of Graham and Bobbie Miles of Mt. Gilead, about the "double" discrimination problems they face. Not only is there friction among the races but also between the boys' and girls' sports programs.

"Although some people are beginning to catch on to the existence of discrimination against girls in the sports area," Bruner explained, "there was nowhere that I visited where a female coach was paid as much as a male coach despite the fact they both worked the same hours and invested the same energy."

These two programs on sports and integration are part of five "Thursday's Child" programs broadcast this fall. The final programs will be a look at how curriculum methods have changed due to integration (Dec. 6) and a humorous drama performed by the Stage 73 troupe of Raleigh (Dec. 13).

The "Thursday's Child" project was designed to report on the major points of friction in the school desegregation process and show how these problems are being solved at schools throughout North Carolina. Nine series programs were broadcast earlier this year.

Finger-biting excitement for spectators: Manila's international cockfight derby, Philippines' largest of year.

Winning rooster does dance of triumph over defeated opponent huddled on cockpit floor.

COCKFIGHT DERBY

Feathers fill the air, money flutters everywhere, and the crowd screams its excitement. The Philippines is a country that takes its cockfighting seriously. So, it's natural that the grandest rooster show of the year is an international competition called a derby, drawing at least 15,000 spectators to the country's largest enclosed arena, in Manila. Over 200 fighting birds compete, their intense contest accompanied by the frenzied activity of bookmakers and bettors.

Cockfighting has been a favorite sport in the Philippines since before the Spaniards arrived in the 16th century. It's even been called the true national sport, although that's a controversial viewpoint. But there's no doubt about its widespread popularity. Unlike the derby, most fights take place in small cockpits in thousands of towns and villages throughout the islands. American fighting cocks are the most highly esteemed—large numbers of them are imported every year from the southern United States.

Waves Of B52 Bombers Strike Despite Storms

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — Flying at 35,000 feet above monsoon thunderstorms, waves of U.S. B52 bombers dropped 1,200 tons of radar-guided bombs on North Vietnamese positions just below the demilitarized zone, military spokesmen reported today.

Some 40 of the Stratofortresses struck in support of South Vietnamese marines in Quang Tri province who were hit by 3,500-round artillery and mortar barrage over the weekend.

At least 44 North Vietnamese troops were killed in the fighting Saturday and Sunday, while government losses were at least 12 killed and 78 wounded, according to communiques from the Saigon command and field reports.

Despite the stiff resistance and heavy rains, field reports said the marines, backed by an armored column, had advanced about two miles and expanded their area of operations to a coastal strip of land 8 miles north-northeast of Quang Tri city.

It was the stiffest resistance encountered by the marines since they recaptured Quang Tri City Sept. 16. The North Vietnamese still control most of the province, and the South Vietnamese are trying to get back what they can before a cease-fire.

U.S. military sources disclosed that war materials were still flowing southward through the DMZ to enemy troops, despite the monsoon-swollen Ben Hai river which is the dividing line through the six-mile-wide buffer zone. Some troop replacements also are moving in, but no new units are crossing, the sources said.

Elsewhere in South Vietnam, Communist forces killed at least 14 South Vietnamese and wounded 22 in ambushes and mortar and grenade attacks near Saigon, Da Nang and Pleiku, and in Long My, a district town in the Mekong Delta.

Military sources reported another three government troops were killed and 66 were wounded when a grenade carried by a South Vietnamese soldier accidentally went off at a helicopter pickup point near An Loc.

Radio Hanoi claimed that two U.S. F4 phantom jets were shot down Saturday in Thanh Hoa province, just below the 20th parallel bombing restriction line. It made no mention of the fate of the pilots. The U.S. Command did not report any losses, but it has a policy of not disclosing downed aircraft if rescue operations are still in progress. The U.S. Command reported that American fighter-bombers flew only 40 strikes in the southern panhandle of North Vietnam Sunday, the third successive day the number fell below 50. Officials again attributed the curtailment to the weather. The U.S. Command also reported that American troop strength in Vietnam dropped another 1,800 men last week to 29,300.

Probe Case Of Intruders

Greenville police today are investigating a bizarre incident that occurred at a Drexel Lane home last night that began when two masked and armed young men entered the dwelling about 9 p.m.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Dr. W. F. Durham, his wife and son, were at home about 9 p.m. when two young men, one wearing a ski mask and the other's face covered by a bandanna, entered the back door of the Durham home.

One of the intruders, Durham told officers, was armed with a sawed-off shotgun while the other was armed with a knife.

Durham was quoted by Chief Cannon as saying one of the masked intruders said he was looking for someone who raped and shot his sister.

The Durham family was told by the two men to go upstairs which they did, then the intruders left and drove away from the home in a car.

Chief Cannon said that although the intruders looked over the house, apparently nothing was taken from the Durham home.

Brandt Used Adenauer's Style

By ROON LEWALD
Associated Press Writer
BONN (AP) — Like Chancellor Konrad Adenauer in years gone by, Willy Brandt bet heavily on the popularity of his own leader image and won a massive Adenauer-style election victory on Sunday.

Brandt's Christian Democratic opponents, who still revere Adenauer as their grand old man, had powerful domestic issues going for them. But observers said their party leader, Rainer Barzel, couldn't match either Brandt or Adenauer in projecting the kind of statesmanlike appeal that leader-conscious West Germans respond to.

Brandt and his Socialist-Liberal coalition often seemed in deep trouble before the election, which Brandt was forced to call a year ahead of schedule after defecting lawmakers took away his slim parliamentary majority. He faced record price rises which aroused memories of galloping inflation and economic misery in the wake of the two world wars.

But his personalized campaign style under the slogan "Willy Brandt must remain Chancellor" focused attention on his Nobel Prize-winning role as a mediator between East and West. This was aided by the skillful timing of his historic normalization treaty with East Germany only 11 days before the voting.

By contrast, the Christian Democrats were saddled with a far less popular, younger and less authoritative-seeming candidate whom they were forced to portray as member of a leadership team rather than an unquestioned leader in his own right. "We build progress on stability," Christian Democratic campaign posters proclaimed, showing Barzel together with three top party figures.

Barzel at times also seemed overshadowed by powerful Franz-Josef Strauss, the bull-necked firebrand who leads the opposition's Christian Social Union sister party in Bavaria. Brandt's men built Strauss up as a right-wing bogeyman they claimed was the "secret chancellor" behind Barzel.

One big factor in Brandt's victory was believed to have been the 2 million voters added to the rolls by lowering the voting age from 21 to 18.

But Brandt obviously gained ground over a wide social spectrum. He disproved several West German election adages — among them, that a high voter turnout favors the conservatives, and that women prefer to vote conservative. Brandt's coalition increased its share of the vote from 48.5 per cent in 1969 to 58.3 per cent despite an unusually high turnout of 91.2 per cent and although eligible women voters outnumbered men 21.8 million to 19 million.

The victory means Brandt will no longer have to worry about governing with a shaky parliamentary majority. He upped his coalition's lead over the opposition in the 496-member Bundestag from 12 to 48 seats, giving him a secure legislative margin.

Secret Probe Is Begun Into Southern U. Clash

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — The state attorney general's office begins a full-scale inquiry today into last Thursday's clash at Southern University in which two students were shot to death.

Atty. Gen. William Guste said late Sunday he had assigned two assistants, one black, one white, to conduct the inquiry requested by Gov. Edwin Edwards.

Guste said the investigation would be conducted in secret.

University administrators, meanwhile, were moving quickly to fire faculty members they said had encouraged student protests, and Edwards was branding as "totally inaccurate" a newspaper story that he had blamed a deputy sheriff for the deaths.

The students, Denver A. Smith of New Roads, La., and Leonard Douglas Brown of Gilbert, La., both 20, were struck in the head and shoulders by buckshot as state police and sheriff's deputies scattered a crowd gathered in front of the university's administration building.

The violence climaxed three weeks of student protests at the nation's largest predominantly black college, and led to the closing of the school at least through the Thanksgiving holidays.

Southern's branch at New Orleans, the scene of similar campus turmoil in recent weeks, was closed through the coming week, too. But administrators reported the faculty and students there had reached accord on some of the differences separating them.

Focus of the attorney general's investigation apparently will be the 30-minute-long explosion of violence that left the two students dead.

Authorities have said their men used nothing but tear gas to disperse students. But Edwards, talking with newsmen, acknowledged a deputy sheriff might have mistakenly fired live ammunition at the crowd.

A Los Angeles Times report from Baton Rouge that quoted the governor as saying "I have no doubt it was a deputy sheriff who fired" brought an angry response from Edwards.

Edwards labeled the story irresponsible and inaccurate.

The university's 65-year-old president, Dr. G. Leon Netterville, Friday dispatched notices of dismissal to two faculty members, including the head of the school's physics department, Dr. Joseph Johnson.

Johnson called the action "a grotesque and perverted attempt to deflect blame from this massacre"

Undressed At Gunpoint During Club Robbery

GARNER, N.C. (AP) — About six men at the Garner Country Club were forced to undress Sunday night by four hold up men who got away with the men's personal effects and an undetermined amount of money.

Wake County Deputy Sheriff B. M. Holt said three of the robbers hid their faces with ski masks while the fourth remained outside the club.

"They made them undress," the deputy related.

Another officer said the hold-up men got away with about $700.

The holdup men made their getaway in a Ford Torino or Mercury Cougar, the officer added.

Garner is a small town located just east of Raleigh.

Attend Session Of Farm Bureau

David H. Smith, president of the Pitt County Farm Bureau, is one of 100 Farm Bureau presidents attending the annual resolution committee meeting at the Durham Hotel and Motel.

The farm Bureau presidents are recommending an extension of the present farm program.

Also attending from Pitt County is Mrs. Wilbur Worthington, a member of the N.C. Farm Bureau women's advisory committee.

Resolutions from 90 counties are being studied and discussed for future adoption or rejection.

The convention opened with a Vesper Service Sunday night. Commissioner Jim Graham and Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz were the principal speakers.

The regular business session of the convention will be held Tuesday and Wednesday.

Farm Bureau Meet Opens

DURHAM (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz will speak at the closing session Wednesday of the 37th annual North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation Convention.

Other speakers at the convention, which got under way Sunday, will include State Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham and Dr. John Caldwell, chancellor of North Carolina State University, who will address the Tuesday morning session, and Allen Grant, president of the California Farm Bureau Federation and vice president of the American Farm Bureau, who will appear on the Monday afternoon program.

B. C. Mangum, president of the state farm bureau, will make his annual report this afternoon.

A record attendance of farm bureau members is expected to attend and participate in the drafting of official bureau policies on environmental problems, farm labor, taxes, marketing, and recommendations concerning specific farm commodities.

Win Honors At Bonner

The Fall fellowship of the Order of the Arrow was held at Camp Bonner near Washington over the weekend with chapters from all over Eastern North Carolina participating in the annual scouting event.

Pitt District's Natsih Chapter, with 20 scouts and six leaders in attendance, won the team dance competition. Team members were Gary Butts, Billy Billica, Walter Gray, Richard Gray, John Miller and Tommy Manning. The chapter also placed first in display competition.

Other activities included an Indian Lore seminar and open discussion on Indian crafts and costumes.

Frankford Johnson of Scout Troop 205 earned the Brotherhood honor, while Hugh Benson and Thomas Butts received the Vigil honor. Benson is the Pitt District Scout Executive and Butts serves as Pitt District Commissioner. Pratt Williamson is the Natsih Chapter advisor.

Falling Short In Food Production

ROME (AP) — The underdeveloped regions of the world have failed for the second successive year to meet their targets for increased food production, Dr. Addeke H. Boerma, director general of the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization, said today.

Yields actually declined in the Far East, Boerma told the opening session of the FAO governing council meeting.

He said that after the failures of 1971-72 the whole food production schedule of the decade might be wrecked.

City Counts 2 Collisions

Two traffic accidents Friday afternoon caused an estimated $1,350 in damages, according to police. No injuries were reported.

No charges were made in an accident at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and E. Tenth Street at 1:30. Police reported that a car being driven by Dallas Avery Manning of Grimesland collided with a vehicle operated by Hilda Hamilton Bray of 113 W. 12th St.

Damage to the Manning auto totaled $250, while damage to the Bray car totaled $100.

The second accident occurred at the intersection of Dickinson and 14th Street at 5:45 p.m. Police charged Kenneth Leslie Haddock of 118 N. Eastern Street with failure to see safe movement when the vehicle he was driving collided with an auto being driven by Paul Lehman Sasser of 305 Lindell Rd.

Damage to the Haddock auto totaled $400, while damage to the Sasser car was $600.

Cigarettes And Candy Stolen

Police are continuing their investigation in a break-in reported at 2:10 a.m. today at B and B Food Lane at 1006 Bancroft Ave.

According to Chief Glenn Cannon, robbers broke open a glass door to gain entrance to the store and took a small quantity of cigarettes and candy from the building.

Pedestrian Fatally Hit

A pedestrian was killed last night when struck by a car on N.C. 33 just inside the Pitt County-Beaufort County line, according to Highway Patrolman W. A. Basnight.

Trooper Basnight said the pedestrian, whose identity had not been confirmed at mid-morning today, was struck by a car driven by Moyer Timothy Waters of Route 2, Washington.

The patrolman said Waters, headed East on N.C. 33, was in the process of passing another car when he struck the pedestrian who was walking in the west-bound lane of the highway.

Pitt County Coroner E. W. Harvey, who ruled the death as accidental, said the victim, a Negro, was apparently from the Smithfield area, but had been living in Beaufort County for a time. He said efforts were continuing this morning to positively identify the body.

The fatal mishap occurred about 8:30 p.m.

Charge Driver In Sunday Wreck

Evelyn Hadanick Krol, 22, of 1809 East Fifth St. was charged with failing to reduce her speed enough to avoid an accident following investigation of a 6:08 a.m. mishap here yesterday on Fifth Street, 20 feet West of the Cadillac Street intersection.

Police said the Krol auto collided with a car driven by Ester Moyes Sparkman, 27, of 603 Contentnea St., causing an estimated $300 damage to the Krol vehicle, $200 damage to the Sparkman car and $100 damage to a utility pole.

Mrs. Sparkman was reported injured in the collision.

Arrest Suspect In Fountain Hold-Up

The Federal Bureau of Investigation said today that Frank Gorham, 41, was arrested in Washington, D.C. yesterday on charges he robbed the Edgecombe Bank and Trust Co. office at Fountain on November 10.

Spokesman for the FBI said Gorham was arrested by Washington D.C. police yesterday on charges of robbing a motel clerk of $84 at gun point. He was then arrested by federal agents on a warrant issued November 16, on connection with the November 10 bank robbery.

A former Washington resident, Gorham reportedly escaped from St. Elizabeth's Mental Hospital there in October.

Two men held up the Fountain bank about 10:50 a.m., taking cash from the tellers booths and taking the bank manager, Douglas Moore, with them as a hostage.

Moore was released at the edge of town, unharmed. The getaway car was found just outside Fountain on U.S. 258 North. It had been stolen from a Snow Hill residence earlier in the day.

Coast Guard Is Hunting Two In Capsized Boat

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — Coast Guard searched today for two Lynchburg, Va., men missing since their 19-foot outboard was found capsized Saturday at Oregon Inlet.

A Coast Guard spokesman said the search for Julius Weaver and Kendall Miller was temporarily halted Sunday night after the Oregon Inlet area of North Carolina's Outer Banks was raked by heavy rains.

Searchers were looking both in the Atlantic Ocean and in Pamlico Sound, since it was uncertain where the outboard had capsized. The boat was found in the surf on the ocean side of the inlet.

Life jackets believed to have come from the boat were found Saturday, the Coast Guard said.

Involved in the search today were an 82-foot cutter, two helicopters and several smaller craft.

Woody's Ramblin's

By WOODY PEELE

(Eds. Note: Announcement was made at 11:15 a.m. today, the Univ. of Tampa was chosen to meet Kent State in the Tangerine Bowl.)

By the time you read this it may be all over. Either East Carolina University or the University of Tampa will have been offered a bid into the Tangerine Bowl to meet Kent State University on December 29.

Saturday night, United Press International and the American Broadcasting Company both said that East Carolina would be the team to be in the game, but sources in Orlando, site of the game, denied that it was settled, and apparently that was the case.

The Pirates have much in their favor. They have one of the top defenses in the country, despite what happened Saturday. Every team should be entitled to a bad week. As Coach Sonny Randle said, "It's the mark of a good team when you can play badly and still win."

The Bucs have been to the Tangerine Bowl before and have always drawn well. Both years the Bucs went they carried a trainload of students along with other supporters who went with them in other ways. At nearly every game this year the Pirates have played, they have attracted a large following. At William & Mary, nearly a third of those there were Pirate fans. At N.C. State, the Bucs helped to draw the third-biggest crowd in history.

East Carolina's only loss so far came at the hands of Peach Bowl bound N.C. State, probably one of the most underrated teams in the nation. Why they haven't broken into the Top Twenty is a mystery. They certainly deserve it. They have a 7-3-1 record, but those losses came at the hands of top ranked teams.

The Pirates are also an exciting team to watch. With the running and passing of Carl Summerell, a definite candidate for Southern Conference Player of the Year, and the running of Carlester Crumpler, the Bucs have a good offense. Although it doesn't show, they are among the top 25 in the country in offense.

Their defense has drawn applause all year ranking among the nation's top teams.

Tampa, too, has much to offer. They finished the year 8-2 with a 29-22 win over Bowling Green, the runner-up in the Mid-American Conference to Kent State. But perhaps the biggest thing they have in their favor is that they are in Orlando's back yard, and backers of the game are after attendance. They may feel that Tampa, instead of the Bucs would bring the larger crowd.

Last year, when Tampa played East Carolina for the Spartans' Homecoming, they attracted 17,000, not bad, but then not good either.

Perhaps though the mileage situation, some 600 miles for the Pirate fans to travel as opposed to a tenth of that for Tampa will be the guiding light for the Tangerine officials.

I hope this is not the case.

Best Game Of Season For SC

COLUMBIA (AP)—The South Carolina Gamecocks played their best game of the season Saturday night and whipped Florida State, 24-21. It brought USC's record for the year to 4-6 and knocked the Seminoles out of a bid to the Peach Bowl.

The entire contest, in which South Carolina battled back from a 14-0 first quarter deficit, boiled down to the final 1:28 in the game. With the score tied, 21-21, freshman kicking specialist Bobby Marino, in his first varsity appearance, kicked a 38-yard field goal to clinch the victory.

"It was bad enough for Bobby to have to go in there with all that pressure on him," said USC Coach Paul Dietzel, "but Florida State called timeout and he had to stand there for another minute and look at those goal posts and think about it."

"He was so emotionally upset after the field goal, that he couldn't go in and kick off for us," Dietzel said. "He said he was so excited he couldn't see the ball."

The coach said of his team's effort, "We did what I said we could do all year long. I've maintained all along that we had a good football team. Very few other people believe it, but I never gave up on this team."

"We started six sophomores on offense and four juniors. For them to fall behind, 14-0, and come back and win it makes this undoubtedly one of the greatest wins in Carolina football history."

Larry Jones, FSU's Coach and former Dietzel assistant at USC, said, "We just ran out of people. (Howard) Jacobi apparently broke his leg and we just didn't have any tackles left."

"We ran into a hot ball club," said Jones. "You sure have to give them credit. They took advantage of our mistakes and they won. Our secondary is not back together again."

'Super Bowl Or Bust' For Don Shula

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

After intercepting a swarm of Jets, the Miami Dolphins are taking off into the National Football League's wild, blue yonder.

It's Super Bowl or bust, says Coach Don Shula.

"We've got to get this football team ready to start the playoffs," said Shula after his tough guys won the American Football Conference's Eastern Division title with a 28-24 decision over the New York Jets Sunday.

Shula made it plain that he wouldn't take anything less than a return-trip ticket to the NFL's championship game. The Dolphins were humiliated in the Big One last year by the Dallas Cowboys.

"Sure, winning a division championship is important," said Shula, "But now we've got the second season to think about."

In winning the division title over their closest pursuers, the Dolphins grabbed their 10th straight decision this year. With four more games to go, they threaten to become only the third team in NFL history to finish a regular season undefeated.

While Miami ran away and hid from its opponents in the AFC East, the NFL's remaining division titles were still up for grabs after Sunday's action.

The Cleveland Browns bounced the Pittsburgh Steelers 26-24 and threw their AFC Central race into a tie; Oakland crushed Denver 37-20 and moved 1 1/2 games up on the Kansas City Chiefs in the AFC West. The Chiefs were beaten 27-17 by the San Diego Chargers.

In the National Football Conference, the Dallas Cowboys smashed the Philadelphia Eagles 28-7 and moved within a half-game of front-running Washington in the East. The Redskins play a game tonight against the Atlanta Falcons, who are tied for first in the West.

Los Angeles fell into a tie with Atlanta after dropping a 45-41 decision to the Minnesota Vikings. Green Bay held onto first in the Central by one game after beating the Houston Oilers 23-10.

In the other games Sunday, it was: Baltimore 20, Cincinnati 19; Buffalo 27, New England 24; Detroit 27, New Orleans 14; New York 13, St. Louis 7 and San Francisco 34, Chicago 21.

Safety Dick Anderson set up two Miami touchdowns with a pass interception and fumble recovery as the Dolphins beat the Jets in a heart-stopping game decided in the closing quarter.

With the Jets leading 24-21 in the last period, Anderson fell on a fumble by the Jets' Cliff McLain at the New York 27.

Four plays later, Mercury Morris ran 14 yards around the left side for the winning touchdown.

Don Cockroft kicked a 26-yard field goal with eight seconds left in the game to lift Cleveland over Pittsburgh. The Steelers rallied to win it after blowing a 17-point lead.

"They refused to settle for anything but a victory," said Cleveland Coach Nick Skorich.

Oakland's Charlie Smith and Marv Hubbard combined for 185 yards rushing and scored a touchdown apiece to lead Oakland over Denver. George Blanda kicked three field goals and also kicked four extra points for Oakland to become the NFL's all-time leader in career conversions with 812.

Quarterback John Hadl and running star Cid Edwards clicked on several key pass plays that gave San Diego a comfortable 24-7 advantage after two quarters and Kansas City never could recover.

Dallas' famed Doozday 'Defense frustrated Philadelphia's ground and air attack in soundly beating the Eagles Sunday. The rugged Cowboys held the Eagles to 120 yards rushing and 85 passing.

Minnesota's Fran Tarkenton threw TD bombs of 76, 70 and 66 yards to spark the Vikings over Los Angeles.

Green Bay punter Ron Widby completed a 68-yard touchdown pass play to Dave Davis on a fake punt and John Staggers returned a punt 85 yards for another score as Green Bay whipped Houston.

Jim O'Brien kicked the second of his two field goals as the final gun sounded to lead Baltimore over Cincinnati. Buffalo scored 10 points in the final minute of play on a Dennis Shaw TD pass and a 45-yard field goal by John Leypoldt.

Greg Landry fired two TD passes in the first half and rolled up 207 aerial yards overall as Detroit beat New Orleans; Ron Johnson scored the winning touchdown in the New York Giants' triumph over St. Louis and San Francisco clubbed Chicago behind Steve Spurrier's five TD passes.

Rigsby Chosen All-Conference

ECU's Ed Rigsby

Ed Rigsby, a sophomore on East Carolina's cross country team, has been named All-Conference and All-State.

Rigsby, who was named honorable mention All-Conference a year ago, finished eighth individually and led East Carolina to fourth place team finish in the Southern Conference Meet at Davidson.

Prior to that meet, the Weldon, N. C. native had finished seventh in the State Meet held in Raleigh.

"Rigsby has shown steady improvement and should be one of the top cross country runners in the Southern Conference his junior and senior years," said his coach Bill Carson.

Another Rebuilding Year For The Citadel's Coach

By WOODY PEELE
(One of a series)
For Coach George Hill of The Citadel, starting his second year, 1972-73 will be a rebuilding year.

"We have only two of our first six players returning," he said.

"And we're going to have to fill in somewhat with freshmen." New rules, in effect for the first time this year, permit the play of freshmen on varsity teams, and Hill intends to take advantage of it.

"We have two good players back to build around," Hill added. "Steve Fischel and Oscar Scott."

Fischel, a 6-1, 187-pound senior, was the team's leading scorer last year with a 14.9 average. Scott, a 6-3, 179-pound senior, average 12.4 points.

"Fischel is a fine all around player," Hill said. "He'll help a lot with our floor leadership, an area we fell down in last year. Scott is a jumping jack type. He had a problem adjusting last year, but we feel he's ready now."

The biggest loss The Citadel had was John Sutor, the team's center. "We must replace him from the bench or from the freshmen. We can't bring in a junior college kid unless he's a veteran, so we do very little recruiting in this area." The center position will probably go, at least in the early season to 6-7, 225-pound senior Mike Morris. "He's been our back up man for two years, and has some experience in relief. But he didn't get a whole lot of it."

A good-looking freshman Hill feels will challenge for the position is 6-7, 205-pound freshman Richard Johnson. "We're going to play him more and more as the season goes along." Hill feels that filling the other two spots will be more difficult. Sam Adams, a 6-1, 170-pound freshman and Scott Odom, a 5-10, 150-pound freshman, are battling for the point guard position. "We're going to try and fill this spot with them, sharing duties. The man we thought would take over, Calvin Haislip, didn't come back this year. It was a grade situation in reverse for him," Hill said. "He was accepted into med school a year early." Robin Sera, another candidate for the job, failed in his battle with the books, however.

"It's tough to have to play a freshman at this position because of the lack of poise and experience," Hill added.

The other wing position will probably go to Greg Weber, a 6-4, 199-pound junior. "He could be a bright spot for us. He's improved every year, and we hope he'll give us a real good season." Hill looks for his top reserves to come off the bench of last year. These include Chuck Cordell, a 6-0, 199-pounder, who probably will be the top reserve. "He got out of shape last year, but he's come back well. He's an outstanding shooter, and can play either the wing or the point, and may start a lot."

After that, Hill finds that the players are relatively inexperienced. Al Edgington, 6-5, 207, will be the backup man up front, and is rated as a strong rebounder.

"I'm a strong believer in defense first," Hill said. "I like to play man-to-man, but last year we were forced to play the zone. I feel we can play more man this year, but we'll still do some zone and trap pressing." The Citadel opens the year on December 1 against Rollins College.

Terps Favored Over Pack In ACC Race

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Coaches of Atlantic Coast Conference basketball teams and sportswriters and sportscasters who cover league teams regularly agree that Maryland will probably win the ACC championship this year.

Polls of the seven coaches and 63 sportswriters at Greensboro Sunday gave the Terps of Coach Lefty Driesell a narrow edge over N.C. State for the crown. All thought North Carolina would finish third.

The balloting took place at the 11th annual Operation Basketball meeting, during which the coaches are interviewed on their outlooks for the season. Most begin play next week, although North Carolina opens at home Saturday against Biscayne, Fla.

In the coaches' poll—in which no one could vote for his team—Maryland received three first-place ballots and three for second. N.C. State had two firsts, three seconds and a third. North Carolina got the only other first place votes.

Sportswriters gave Maryland

44 first place votes, N.C. State 16 and North Carolina three.

That's the order the teams are ranked in The Associated Press' national preseason poll. Maryland is third, N.C. State eighth and North Carolina listed as receiving some votes.

The second division in both polls was held up by Wake Forest. The coaches selected Duke fourth, followed by Virginia and Clemson; the sportswriters picked Virginia, then Duke and Clemson.

Maryland's strong team features U.S. Olympic player Tom McMillen and most of the other players back who won the National Invitational Tournament last year.

N.C. State, ineligible for postseason play because of a penalty for an irregularity in recruiting handed down by the National Collegiate Athletic Association, also has an Olympic player: 7-foot-2 Tom Burleson. In addition, Coach Norman Sloan has a quicksilver sophomore guard, David Thompson, who averaged 35 points for the freshmen.

North Carolina's Dean Smith is counting on still another Olympic player, Bobby Jones, to lead the Tar Heels to the league crown again.

Whether the restrictions placed on Sloan's team and the Duke squad of Bucky Waters will affect the conference race was debated by the coaches. The ACC selects its champion on the basis of a postseason tournament, and the schools are allowed to compete in it.

Smith observed, "It will be interesting to see what psychological effect it has on the teams involved. Duke and State could go all out to finish their seasons in a blaze of glory or they could play poorly without the incentive of an NCAA berth to spur them."

"By the same token, the rest of us might be so worried about losing to one of them that it could be a real psychological stumbling block," he said.

Sloan said the suspension "was an embarrassing thing to happen, but I feel certain it won't effect our team's morale or its record."

Driesell, in a lighthearted mood, said, "I wish they'd kick Duke and N.C. State out of the tournament. And while they're at it, I wish they'd kick North Carolina out, too."

"I need all the help I can get."

Falcon-Redskin Match Can Be Decisive Game

By BOB GREENE
Associated Press Sports Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Atlanta Falcons and Washington Redskins clash tonight in a National Football League game that may go a long way in deciding two conference races.

The game will be seen nationally on ABC-TV, starting at 9 p.m. (EST).

Atlanta can take over the National Conference's Western Division with a victory. The Los Angeles Rams and San Francisco 49ers are tied with 5-4 records while the Falcons are 5-4.

In the National Conference East, Washington is one-half game ahead of the Dallas Cowboys, who rolled easily over the Philadelphia Eagles Sunday. Dallas is 8-2 and the Redskins are 8-1.

"We better be ready," said Redskins' quarterback Billy Kilmer of the Atlanta contest. "That's the most physical team we've played all year long. They come out and hit."

"Besides, the Falcons are in a title fight, just like we are, and they're playing as good football now as I've ever seen them play."

The Falcon offense centers around two of the best running backs in the NFL—Dave Hampton, a touchdown threat any time he touches the ball, and Art Malone. Washington will counter with the NFL's best running back, Larry Brown, who needs only five more yards to gain 1,000 yards rushing this season.

Kilmer said he is amazed by the Falcons' pass-defense statistics. The Atlanta secondary has allowed only 39.3 per cent completions of the passes thrown against it, the best record in pro football.

"They read their keys real well," Kilmer said. "And they get the benefit of a strong pass rush. Their pass rush intimidates a lot of teams into running and throwing short passes because you know you're not going to have any longer than three seconds to throw the ball."

Atlanta is as quick to compliment Washington.

"When people talk about the Redskins, all you hear is about is their experience and talent," said Falcon linebacker Don Hansen. "They leave out aggressiveness. The Redskins are very aggressive."

Chris Evert 'Too Young'

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — "I'll still be only 18 this summer and that is too young to be playing entirely for money," tennis star Chris Evert said in announcing her decision this weekend to remain with the United States Lawn Tennis Association (USLTA).

The decision of the high school senior from Fort Lauderdale not to join the Women's International Tennis Federation (WITF) may mean even more money than the rich Virginia Slims tour of the WITF could offer her.

Walter Elcock, president of the USLTA, said he will offer a summer and winter tour for women netters with minimum prize money of $25,000 an event.

Miss Evert, who will turn 18 and professional on Dec. 21, faces little name competition outside of Evonne Goellagong of Australia in the USLTA tour, but would be faced with weekly confrontation with the likes of Billie Jean King and Margaret Court in the WITF.

Wolfpack Home Games Sold Out

RALEIGH (AP) — Athletic Director Willis Casey of North Carolina State University announced Saturday that the 12,400 seats in Reynolds Coliseum has been sold out for all 12 Wolfpack home basketball games this season.

It was the first season sellout in history for the Wolfpack. Casey said a large number of ticket orders were being returned.

State opens its home season Nov. 27 against Appalachian State.

Farm Tips

By Dr. J. W. Pou
Agricultural Specialist
Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., N.A.

Throughout North Carolina's flue-cured tobacco-growing country, the word is spreading that mechanization has finally arrived and is here to stay states Woody Upchurch, agricultural information specialist at North Carolina State University.

Although some will claim that mechanical harvesting "arrived" last year, it has taken full-season operation of the harvesters by more than a token number of growers to establish the fact that the harvesters do, indeed, work.

Farms where the harvesters were used during the past season have been focal points of interest. Literally hundreds of farmers visited some sites to see the machines at work.

Some of the demonstrations exceeded the expectations of even the most optimistic. For example, a Sampson County farmer harvested 60 acres mechanically with a crew of nine.

This farmer not only demonstrated that the harvester is practical, but he has been able to harvest more acreage with it than even the manufacturer predicted.

Another grower, demonstrating a high degree of labor efficiency, harvested 32 acres with a crew of six. Only five workers were used early in the season.

In addition to its successful field operation, the harvester apparently is acceptable to the buying trade. During the recent marketing season, mechanically harvested tobacco — which means tangled leaves — brought approximately the same prices as hand-harvested tobacco.

If this show of acceptance continues, the experts predict there will be a fairly rapid increase in numbers of machines in use during the next few years.

The success of mechanization may seem sudden, but it has been coming for a long time. North Carolina State University engineers began work on the fundamentals in the 1950's. At that time, hardly anyone could conceive of a system of mechanically breaking leaves from the tobacco stalk.

Dr. Charles Suggs and his fellow NCSU engineers worked out the leaf removal mechanism years ago, and commercial firms such as Harrington Manufacturing Co., Powell Manufacturing Co. and Reynolds Tobacco Co., more recently have made refinements and come up with a complete system.

Dr. F. J. Hassler, head of NCSU's Department of Biological and Agricultural Engineering, demonstrated the workability of bulk curing — a new concept in curing and prerequisite to mechanical harvesting — on a farm in 1960.

"We felt at the time and we have felt all along that bulk curing and mechanical harvesting would not be adopted on a large scale until the time was right," Dr. Hassler said. "Apparently, the time is now."

The demand for bulk barns grew slowly in the late 1960's and didn't take off until last year. Mechanical harvesters were accepted on a token basis in 1971, picked up slightly this year and should rise sharply next year, Dr. Hassler believes.

A successful program of mechanically harvesting and bulk curing tobacco means many things to the grower. He doesn't have to get up at 4 A.M. to help empty a barn and refill it the same day. The work day can start at a more reasonable time. He also doesn't have to worry about locating and keeping seasonal labor to get the crop harvested. And it provides the opportunity for him to double or triple the acreage he was able to grow a few years ago.

Six Pedestrians In Traffic Toll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Six of nine persons killed in North Carolina Highway traffic accidents over the weekend were pedestrians. The nine deaths bring the toll for the year to 1,718, compared with 1,590 for this time last year.

Harold Smith, 22, of Hampstead was killed when he was hit by a car near his home.

Willie Lee West, 58, of Rt. 1, of Rose Hill, was killed when he was struck by a vehicle on U.S. 421 near Harrells.

Jeffery Donovan Hefner, 17, of Hendersonville, was killed when he was struck by a hit-and-run vehicle on U.S. 176 less than a mile from Hendersonville.

Charles Henry Pysock, 69, of Rt. 1, of Connelly Springs, was killed when he was hit by a car in Burke County.

Shirley White, 35, of Midway Park, was killed when she walked into the path of a vehicle in Onslow County.

Lenna Morine Thomas, 58, died when she was hit by a vehicle in Raleigh.

William Joseph Guyette, 45, of Rt. 3 Arden, was killed when his car skidded on wet pavement on Interstate 40, about four miles east of Old Fort and overturned.

Larry Moody, 20, of Mount Olive, died when his car overturned after running off U.S. 117 five miles south of Goldsboro.

Mrs. Essie Miller, 40, of Riegelwood, was killed in a wreck at the intersection of U.S. 421 and N.C. 210 about 10 miles west of Burgaw.

The Associated Press count for weekend fatalities began at 6 p.m. Friday and ended at midnight Sunday.

Welcome Is There, Not Always Visible

CHICAGO (UPI) —The nations of the world have spread a welcome mat for immigrants, but sometimes it's difficult to find.

Many countries, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica, do not follow the pledge of the United Nations Universal Declaration of Human Rights to treat individuals without discrimination.

The UN declaration, at least in theory, bans restrictions concerning race, color, sex, language, religion, political or other opinion, national or social origin, property, birth or other status.

This apparently conflicts, however, with a nation's sovereign right to select those aliens whom it desires to admit. Thus, consideration still is given to such factors as race, literacy and political views.

For example, some nations discriminate in varying degrees against the immigration of persons of Asian or Negro ancestry. Among these are Australia, Canada, Argentina, the United States and the Philippine Republic.

A number of countries have established educational qualifications for entry. Also financial qualifications are set forth in many immigration laws. The Republic of South Africa excludes those whose occupations are not needed.

Physical and mental conditions are grounds of inadmissibility under the laws of many nations. This includes persons with physical or mental defects.

Persons with criminal records may be denied permission to cross borders and anyone determined to be "immoral" is banned from the United States, the Philippine Republic and Canada.

An alien still may have problems once admitted, for nations still maintain deportation laws. These vary widely but it has been estimated there are 700 different grounds for deporting or expelling aliens from the United States.

Absorbing More Lead In Bodies

PHILADELPHIA (AP) —Americans may be absorbing 100 times more lead than the ancient Egyptians.

Tests conducted on a 2,800-year-old Egyptian mummy at the University of Pennsylvania Museum reveal Americans also may be absorbing 25 times more cadmium, a heavy metal used in industry.

Carbon tests indicate the mummy is the remains of a male in his mid-40s who lived around the time King Solomon reigned in Israel.

Miners Blocked By Tons Of Rock

FARMINGTON, W. Va. (AP) —A massive roof fall inside Consolidation Coal Co.'s No. 9 mine here has delayed recovery of 47 bodies still trapped in the shaft from explosions four years ago.

Crews have been blocked by tons of fallen rock from entering the South area of the mine, one of three major areas left to be inspected.

Bodies of only 31 of the 78 victims have been recovered to date.

Will Expand Fraud Probe

RALEIGH (AP) — State Social Services Commissioner Clifton Craig says his office has expanded a probe of welfare fraud into Durham, Forsyth, Guilford and Cumberland counties.

"And very soon we will expand our efforts to include all 100 counties in the state," Craig said in an interview during the weekend.

Craig's office already has checked for fraud in Wake and Mecklenburg counties. In Charlotte eight women have pleaded guilty to misrepresenting their income in order to receive higher welfare payments, and the Wake County solicitor's office announced last Thursday that it will file warrants this week for the arrest of seven persons in Wake County as a result of the investigation.

The failure of a welfare recipient to report a job is a misdemeanor under state law.

"We began with a random sample of names in the Charlotte and Raleigh area," Craig said of the investigation. "Now we are checking all recipients in Durham, Forsyth, Guilford and Cumberland counties."

Organist Hires An Orchestra

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Organist Carlo Annibale says he's always wanted to play with a symphony orchestra and he will — at a cost of $4,000.

Annibale, 41, and blind since early childhood, has hired the Buffalo Symphony Orchestra for a concert with himself and a fellow artist on Nov. 27 in Kleinhan's Music Hall.

"I know it's the biggest gamble of my life," said Annibale, an organ teacher and club performer. "But if I go in hock, I go into hock."

"I've had a lifelong desire to appear with a symphony orchestra, in my own arrangements of pop and popular classics. And I figure, if not now, when?"

"Well, what can happen? The worst is that I'll have to work a few years to pay for a dead horse."

A dozen eggs... a loaf of bread... a tender pork chop... a chilled fresh fryer... a carton of milk... We can buy them and hundreds of other items at almost any food store... at almost any time... and at comparative reasonable cost.

What makes this so? Abundance, efficient production and modern know-how in production, processing and marketing.

From field to factory to family use... food and fiber are the basis of a part of our economy that furnished jobs and income for a third or more of America's working force.

Together, food and fiber production, transportation, processing, packaging, storing, advertising, distribution and other activities associated with feeding, clothing and, to some extent, housing America's 200 million people constitute Agribusiness.

And because 'round the clock, day in and day out, year in and year out, no matter where you live, who you are, or what you do, you are first and foremost a consumer. AGRIBUSINESS IS YOUR BUSINESS.

Farm-City Week (November 17-23) is a nationwide effort to help you as a consumer and city dweller, or you as a farmer, to gain a clearer image of each other. As population grows larger and more urban, the need for a strong and healthy agricultural industry becomes critical. As farms and farmers become a smaller segment of this population (presently 4 percent of the total; the net increases for understanding and support of programs and policies that encourage strength and vitality in Agriculture.

Pitt County's more than 1800 farm families provide the basis for an agricultural industry that will gross around $60 million in 1972. Through their purchase of supplies, services and capital inputs, they contribute to the community's economic vitality. In Pitt County, Farm and City are truly interdependent.

Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The promotional brochures spoke of Nashville's tourist attractions but there was no time for some 150 pilots signed up for a weekend training course to act like tourists.

"If you've got anything you think is more important to do this weekend, then you're in the wrong place," was the warning issued as the weekend students filed into the airport-side motel where the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association was conducting another of its weekend flight training clinics.

From Friday to Sunday, pilots—most of them non-professional aviators with licenses ranging from student through flight instructor—spent almost 30 hours in the classrooms. Mealtimes and evenings were spent in study and a tough-four-to-six hour examination awaited most of the pilots on Monday.

The AOPA, a 166,000-member Washington-based general aviation organization, has been running the clinics through its Air Safety Foundation since 1960.

Bob Sweazey, AOPA's assistant director of flight training operations, recalled that the courses began as the result of a rash of weather-related aircraft accidents.

Pilots, with little or no instrument flying experience, would run into steadily lowering clouds, become disoriented and lose control of their planes.

At that time, the Federal Aviation Administration required no instrument training for its private pilot's certificate.

The AOPA, which is comprised of pilots of all experience levels, came up with what was dubbed the 180-degree course.

The short course was designed to teach the pilot without instrument training how to fly solely by reference to his instruments long enough to perform what most pilots consider the smartest maneuver when encountering trouble—the 180-degree turn.

Sweazey, a one-time newspaper photographer with an airline transport pilot's rating (ATR) and a wallet-full of instructors' certificates, recalled that the 180-degree course was so successful that it shortly became outdated.

The Federal Aviation Administration, seeing the success of the AOPA's training, picked up the curriculum and inserted it in the required training for embryo private pilots. Now, all newly licensed pilots have at least a few hours of instrument training, and the number of weather-related accidents have decreased, the FAA says.

The weekend training was so popular, Sweazey said, that the AOPA added new courses. The offerings now include five ground school and six flight courses.

The ground school training is frankly aimed at cramming enough knowledge into the pilots' brains to enable them to pass the FAA's tough written tests required for most grades of licenses.

"This is no hit-or-miss program," Sweazey said, "we're pretty picky about our staff. At least half of them have an ATR and some are either ex-military or active or retired airline pilots."

On 20 or 30 weekends a year, the instructors come from the all points on the compass to the site chosen for the latest flight training clinic.

A typical clinic might bring a retired TWA 747 captain, a pair of Ohio Force colonel together among some 20 or 25 other weekend faculty members.

The ground school classes begin at 8 a. m. on Friday.

"If you're not here until 8:03 or 8:05, you're going to miss a lot," warned Dick Taylor, an Ohio State University faculty member who is the author of a book on instrument flying.

"It may be the very thing you need to pass the examination," he added.

Once the initial warnings are delivered, the instruction comes with almost blinding speed. The students, who pay from $110 to $150 for the privilege, spend 12 hours a day in the classroom while the instructors work in relays.

A morning's session may begin with radio navigation, work through aircraft instruments and begin an attack on meteorology before the instructors order a break for lunch. The same material might be covered in two weeks at more conventional ground schools.

Little time is wasted and the staff brooks no interruptions for bull sessions.

A pilot with a yen to tell of a personal experience that does not relate to the subject at hand—or to the upcoming examination—finds himself politely put down with "How about asking me that at the next break—now your magnetic compass has the greatest turning error..."

The faculty makes liberal use of "reminders"—acronyms or other devices to help their students remember important points.

Despite the speed and the mountain of material thrown at the pilots' from what seems like all directions during the weekend, the idea works, Sweazey declared.

About three out of every four students in the instrument course pass the FAA examination on the first attempt. The test—considered the toughest in the FAA library—defeats four out of five first-time applicants on a national average.

How much knowledge is retained by the pilots during the cram course depends on how active they are as pilots, the staff members say.

One instructor said a student who attended the course, passed the FAA examination the following day and then failed to fly for two months would find that he had retained little of what he had learned.

"But if he goes out and continues his training on a regular basis, by the time he takes his checkride he'll have it locked in for good," the instructor said.

TRAVELING MUSICIAN
NEW YORK (UPI) —Frank Sinatra, Jr., and his orchestra travel an average of 140,000 miles each year, covering all 50 states, the Canadian provinces and more than 34 other countries.

Sand Dredges To Build New 'Country' In Pacific

ORANGE, Calif. (AP) — The president of the Republic of Minerva (current population: zero; elevation: 3 at high tide) says the world will soon sit up and take notice of the "newest and smallest nation on earth."

But for now, Morris C. "Bud" Davis, 46, conducts Minerva affairs of state from the provisional capital — his living room in this Los Angeles suburb.

He has never seen Minerva, which consists of two coral reefs lying near the Tropic of Capricorn, underwater most of the time. Minerva, named after the Greek goddess, is 900 miles north of Auckland, New Zealand and 260 miles south of the capital of Tonga.

Davis says he plans to visit Minerva next summer, but right now he is concentrating on averting a war with neighboring Tonga, which claims the territory.

North Minerva is a circular atoll 4½ miles in diameter. South Minerva, which is 17 miles away, is a coral outcropping in the shape of a figure eight, about 3½ miles wide and eight miles long. At low tide, the reefs thrust three feet above the water. At high tide, they disappear.

Davis, who formerly was an electronic engineer, is president of a company called Caribbean-Pacific Enterprises, which was formed for the specific purpose of establishing a new nation somewhere.

There are seven stockholders with a total investment of $250,000 in the project, Davis said in an interview. "The bulk of the money is from the president of a pharmaceutical firm who wishes, at this time, not to be identified," he said.

Then he explained why the company was started.

"We figured we really couldn't straighten out our own country," so we would start over someplace new," Davis said.

Name Officers In Sunday Meet

About 20 parents turned out Sunday night at the Meadowbrook Day Care Center and elected officers of a New Parent Involvement Program for the Center.

Elected as officers were Alton Harris, president; Wade Johnson, vice president; Charles Whitaker, treasurer; and Mrs. Albert Keys, secretary.

According to Mrs. Fannie P. Jackson, the Center's founder and operator, the program is designed to encourage maximum parent participation in all the Center's activities, from repairing toys and equipment to providing books and paper.

said. "We searched through history books, libraries and nautical charts for anyplace in the world that was unclaimed."

Minerva was surveyed by Capt. H.M. Denham of the Royal Navy in 1854. But the reefs apparently were unclaimed.

On Jan. 16 of this year, two members of Caribbean-Pacific Enterprises and three crewmen set sail from Fiji for a two-day, 380-mile voyage to the reefs.

Once there, they laid claim to the reefs in the name of the Republic of Minerva and raised the Minervan flag — a gold torch of liberty on a blue (for the sea) background which was designed by Davis.

But King Tupou IV of Tonga, general of the 100-man Tonga Defense Force, led an expeditionary band accompanied by Tonga police in June and declared Tongan sovereignty over the reefs.

"We researched the reefs thoroughly," Davis said. "Tonga's boundaries of all rocks, reefs, foreshores and waters have been spelled out in royal proclamations ever since 1887. Minerva is missed by 100 miles."

Davis said the Republic of Minerva plans to negotiate with the king. "We certainly don't want to go to war over it," Davis would not say however, if he is prepared to go to war if necessary.

Meanwhile, Caribbean-Pacific Enterprises plans to start work on a major landfill operation next April.

"We hope to dredge sand in the lagoons and build a 1,000-to 2,000-foot-wide, 10-to 15-foot high surface on which to locate our country," Davis said.

He said Minerva could hold a population of 250,000 using the concept of a "sea city" — a large outer shell built on pilings — although the president admits that "it would be rather cramped."

Using more conventional construction, Minerva probably will hold a population of from 30,000 to 50,000 persons, Davis said. He would not estimate, however, how much money Caribbean-Pacific Enterprises expects to make through the sale of land.

"The whole world will soon sit up and take notice of Minerva," Davis said. "Within five years at least 1,000 ships will be flying the Minervan flag."

Minerva's 19-page constitution, which Davis wrote, says in part:

"We're firm believers in a minimum of government. The government to our way of thinking has one function — to protect its citizens from force and fraud."

"There will be no taxes in Minerva. People will be free to do as they damn please without government interference. The government will provide no guarantees for the welfare of its citizens. That will be left to the citizens ...

"Nothing will be illegal as long as it does not infringe on the rights of others."

Blanton Named LLHE Prexy

DURHAM (AP) — The Board of Directors of the National Laboratory for Higher Education has announced the appointment of Dr. Harry S. Blanton as NLHE president.

Dr. Blanton, a former Tennessee resident who joined the NLHE staff in 1970, has been serving as acting president since June.

Blanton said the research organization will continue to focus its attention on small colleges, black colleges and junior colleges in the South.

Movie Was Big Winner

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Lady Sings the Blues," the motion picture story of Billie Holiday, was the big winner at the sixth annual presentation of "Image" entertainment awards by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

"Lady Sings the Blues" won the best picture award, and its stars, Diana Ross and Billy Dee Williams, won the awards for movie acting.

The "Images," presented Saturday night, are given for "propagating the image of the dignity of all men."

The television comedy series "All in the Family" won awards for its producer John Rich and costar Jean Stapleton. Other winners in the television category were Billy Dee Williams and Cicely Tyson for performances in "Brian's Song" and "Neighbors," and Redd Foxx for "Sanford and Son."

In recording, Aretha Franklin and Bill Withers were best singers; the Jackson Five, the Staple Singers and the Supremes were best singing groups; and best gospel album was "Amazing Grace."

All nine awards for legitimate theater went to "Dont Bother Me, I Cant Cope," described as a soul jazz gospel musical.

Pres. Allende To Visit N.Y. In 2-Week Trip

SANTIAGO (AP) — President Salvador Allende will visit New York next month on a two-week foreign trip, but he says he won't be meeting President Nixon.

The Marxist president told newsmen Saturday that he will be in New York only 24 hours to address the U.N. General Assembly.

Allende's trip will include visits to Mexico, Moscow and Havana. He is expected to leave Chile Nov. 30.

Allende is visiting Mexico to repay a visit to Chile earlier this year by President Luis Echeverria. After Mexico, Allende goes to New York to speak to the General Assembly Dec. 4.

The following day he will fly to Moscow for a four-day visit and from there travel to Cuba for three days to repay his personal friend Fidel Castro for a 1971 visit to Chile.

DISNEY SANTA CLAUS HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —Walt Disney Productions will play Santa Claus this Christmas with the release of "Snowball Express," starring Dean Jones, and a featurette, "The Magic of Walt Disney World."

A.—Two spades. West has been trying to "psych" you out of your suit, but North's double of the one spade bid combined with West's escape to two hearts has exposed him. North has let West's runout come around to you for appropriate action and it is now incumbent on you to complete the exposure.

A.—Obviously partner is unwilling to concede a part score effort to the opposition and is asking you to select one of the red suits. You must try to get as well as possible with a three card suit. Whether you bid two hearts or two diamonds is a matter of temperament. Our own taste runs to two hearts.

Q. 4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠A84 ♥A75 ♦AK92 ♣A106

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♦ 2 ♣ 2 ♦ Pass

2 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—This is a very powerful hand facing a partner who is able to make a free bid and the possibilities are unlimited. A leap to three no trump would be ultraconservative and the recomended procedure is to make a cue bid of three clubs, postponing further aggressive action until partner is heard from again. Needless to say, you will not settle for anything less than game.

Q. 5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠K32 ♥AK1093 ♦103 ♣A6

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♥ Pass Pass 1 ♠

Pass Pass 2 ♥ Pass

Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. Partner has admitted possession of a trickless hand by failing to keep your opening bid alive, and no effort should be made to improve the contract. In fact, every inducement should be given the opposition to carry on the contest.

Q. 6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠K52 ♥43 ♦95 ♣J109875

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

1 ♥ Pass 1 NT Pass

Pass Dbie. Pass 2 ♣

Pass 2 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. Obviously, partner has the hearts, which accounts for his pass over the opening bid. With two trumps and a doubton, your hand may be regarded as tolerant of hearts.

Q. 7—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AJ1083 ♥76543 ♦109 ♣9

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South

1 ♥ 1 ♠ ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Two hearts. A direct and simple raise seems to us the most appropriate action, although we would raise no strong objection to an immediate bid of four hearts. The preemptive bid might serve to inhibit the enemy's finding a minor suit fit which they would surely do if you were ingenious enough to double's one spade.

Q. 8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠Q106 ♥AQ7642 ♦QJ3 ♣K

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♥ Pass 2 ♣ Pass

2 ♥ Pass 3 ♣ Pass

3 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Three no trump. Although partner's rebid is not forcing, it is semi-encouraging, since he is at liberty to pass two hearts. The king of clubs looms as a highly important card.

The Worry Clinic Psychology Is For Everyone

Ira Apple's vast radio audience asked the very same questions about practical psychology as do you newspaper readers. Yet many college teachers keep psychology "up in the clouds." This "Worry Clinic" brings it down to earth, to help you avoid unhappiness.

By GEORGE W. CRANE

Ph.D., M.D.

CASE V-549: Ira Apple conducts a 2-hour daily radio show in Pittsburgh.

"Dr. Crane," he asked, "could you join us for an hour via long distance telephone hookup?"

"After a few preliminary remarks, then you would receive telephone questions from the listeners."

"They'll cover a wide variety of 'Human Interest' topics."

Human Interest

For many years our college psychology departments have been flooded by heavy enrollments.

The students are vitally interested in how to get along with people; win friends and sweethearts; carry on easy conversation, etc.

But the first course they would meet (Introductory Psychology) was so far removed from what they had expected, that they were often sadly disappointed.

"Dr. Crane," hundreds of eager high school seniors still inform me, "I have read your 'Worry Clinic' ever since I was a freshman."

"So I am going to major in psychology at the university!"

That pleases me, of course, but I mildly warn them: "Don't expect too much from your first semester, for it may not cover the practical interests that I discuss in my daily column!"

Instead, in former years, that first course involved memorizing the neurological terms for the brain. It was dull!

Ira Apple's vast radio audience thus shows what even married adults and other mature oldsters prefer. Note these typical queries to me:

"Is homosexuality due to one's genes (heredity) or to the environment?"

"How can I deftly inform a adopted child that I am not his flesh-and-blood mother?"

"My 5-year-old little granddaughter stays glued to the TV most of the time."

"And seems abnormally excited whenever she sees advertisements for woman's bra or observes lovers kiss!"

"Nude women are to appear on a late TV show here in Pittsburgh."

"Is that pandering to pornographic lust or is it true art?"

Why do teen-agers so readily stampede and become drug addicts or cigarette smokers?"

"Why are there so many different dieting methods to help people lose weight?"

"Why does the Food and Drug Administration still oppose Dr. Ivy's use of horse blood hormone in treating cancer?"

Oscar, 7, Has Chess On Mind

By JOHN LUMPKIN
Associated Press Writer
SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — His dark eyes did not show sadness after losing four consecutive games to opponents sometimes 50 years his elder, and chess remains the most important pursuit in the budding life of little Oscar.

Indeed, 7-year-old Oscar Alejandro Mass of Juarez, Mexico, will be back for more chess tournament competition, possibly next month, his sponsor says. "He's a little innocent in the traps," says Filiberto Terrazas, a lawyer and teacher who took an interest in Oscar's career in "el ajedrez" — Spanish for chess.

Oscar "can calculate very well. He needs experience," said Terrazas during the open tournament in which Oscar participated here in conjunction with an invitational match held for 16 international chess masters.

Grandmaster Bent Larsen of Denmark, a player in the invitational, called Oscar "brilliant" and predicted a great future for him. Terrazas said, Little Oscar and Larsen sparred several moves after a lunch the two had together Sunday.

In one game during what was Oscar's first formal tournament he played a man in his 60s, fighting off the opponent for almost 40 moves before being checkmated. "I lost the attack," explained Oscar.

Oscar said he learned chess at 5 after watching one of his older brothers play. Now he beats his five brothers and his father, an engineer. His mother and sister don't play.

"I do not want that he becomes so unilateral that the whole universe becomes a chess board," said Terrazas, who also is a chess player.

Little Oscar, asked what else besides chess he like to do, said "jugar con la pelota" — play with the ball.
