

Med School Up To Board: Holshouser

RALEIGH (AP) — As far as Gov.-Elect Jim Holshouser is concerned, the question of a four-year medical school at East Carolina University will be decided by the Board of Governors of the University of North Carolina system.

This became apparent Monday when the governor-elect was asked at his news conference if he would support the move for a four-year med school at ECU.

Holshouser said the medical school question should be judged on the basis of the board of governors' priorities.

"I would oppose changing the priorities in the budget requests," said Holshouser who worked for restructuring of higher education while serving in the legislature.

He described restructuring as an "amazingly sound program on paper" and said it should be of "great benefit" to the state.

"We are going to have to quit playing politics" with higher education, the governor-elect declared. He said he was not accusing ECU supporters of dabbling in politics.

Holshouser said he could not support a career education program along the lines proposed during the recent campaign by his Democratic opponent Hargrave "Skipper" Bowles who proposed spending as much as $125 million on expansion of vocational training in the schools.

Holshouser did reiterate his support for pilot programs in career education. He spoke of the "embryo nature" of career education programs and said, "You don't want a cure that's worse than the disease."

The governor-elect said he feels "there is some justification" for proposals for more state aid to school construction, but he said the state Department of Public Instruction should have gathered data to support a request for a $300 million bond issue for school construction before the request was made.

Holshouser said he "will move cautiously" in making changes in the administration of state mental health programs because professional expertise is "so vital."

One Dead In 9-Vehicle Crash

AYDEN — One person was killed and four others injured as nine vehicles collided on a smoke-and-fog shrouded section of N.C. 11 between Winterville and Ayden this morning.

In terms of the number of vehicles involved, it was the worst wreck scene several veteran officers in the county could remember.

Investigation into the series of collisions was continuing late this morning according to Highway Patrolman A. Wright and Pitt County Coroner and Medical Examiner E.W. Harvey, but the coroner identified the dead man as Allen G. Sutton 44, of 806 West Fifth St.,

Ayden. He suffered multiple injuries in the crash and was dead on arrival at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Trooper Wright said a contributing factor to the 6:10 a.m. series of collisions could have been low hanging smoke and accompanying fog which settled over the four-lane N.C. 11 by-pass.

G.N. Thomas of Kinston told investigators he was traveling northward when he ran into the shrouded highway and pulled to the side of the road because he was unable to see. He said the first collision occurred just after he stopped.

Thomas told Wright he heard calls for help but was struck "by a door or something" as he started to get out of his car. He said he heard other crashes, then returned to his car and drove to Winterville to get help.

James Henry Hodges, an Ayden auxiliary policeman may have been the driver of the third vehicle involved. Hodges was quoted by Ayden Chief of Police Tommy Burney as saying he drove his truck into the bank of smoke and fog and collided with another vehicle before he realized what was happening.

Burney said Hodges truck was then hit by another vehicle and forced off the roadway and into a roadside (Continued on page 8)

U.S. Bombs Hit Civilians

SAIGON (AP) — Half a dozen American planes supporting South Vietnamese troops accidentally dropped several 500-pound bombs on a populated area south of Da Nang Monday, killing 19 civilians and wounding 29, the U.S. Command announced today.

Field reports said about 10 bombs fell in the area 2½ miles west of the provincial capital of Hoi An and about 15 miles south of Da Nang.

"The cause of the accident is not known at this time," the U.S. Command said. "An investigation is being conducted."

The Command said two U.S. Air Force F4 Phantoms and four Corsairs from the 7th Fleet carriers were involved.

It was one of the worst such incidents reported in several months.

The Command said it had no other details immediately available.

Meanwhile, North Vietnamese forces kept up their heavy artillery attacks on South Vietnamese troops trying to broaden their area of control in Quang Tri province, just below the demilitarized zone.

The Saigon command reported another 600-round barrage against South Vietnamese marines who have advanced to within a mile of the Cua Viet Estuary. The command said 31 marines have been killed and 161 wounded, most of them by artillery barrages, during the past four days of the drive.

U.S. B52 bombers retaliated with nearly 50 strikes between noon Monday and noon Tuesday, dropping more than 1,200 tons of explosives to the north, northeast, northwest and southwest of Quang Tri city.

The giant Stratofortresses made another 30 strikes in the southern panhandle of North Vietnam in the campaign to keep war supplies from moving southward.

Sunk In Sound

PLYMOUTH, N.C. (AP) — Plans were being made today to pump 378,000 gallons of oil from a barge that sank Monday in Albemarle Sound.

The Coast Guard said there has been "very minor leakage" from the barge which sank in 20 feet of water about five miles east of the Albemarle Sound bridge, some 20 miles south of Elizabeth City.

The barge was en route with its cargo of bunker oil to the Weyerhaeuser Co.'s paper and pulp mill at Plymouth. The oil was destined to operate the company's power plant at the pulp and paper mill.

The Coast Guard said the paper company has contracted with a Norfolk, Va., firm to pump the remaining oil from the barge.

A Coast Guard spokesman said the leaking oil had formed a slick about half a mile long and 20 feet wide. He said the company is prepared to surround the slick with a boom to trap the oil.

An early morning fire destroyed the old Growers Warehouse on 14th Street here today. The fire was reported at 3:30 a.m. by police officers who discovered the fire at the rear of the building.

The blaze—typical of tobacco warehouse fires—spread quickly and the entire building was engulfed in flames by the time fire units arrived at the scene.

The 93,600 square foot wood and metal building was leased by Greenville Tobacco Co. as a storage facility. Company officials, who said at one time this year 1½ million pounds of tobacco had been stored in the facility, explained that there was no tobacco in the building when it burned.

However, they said a large quantity of tobacco sheets, tools, seven company-owned trucks and one other truck were in the building and were destroyed by the fire. No estimate of tobacco company's loss was available, although Greenville Tobacco spokesmen said their loss was insured.

Value of the building and lot, according to Pitt County Tax Department records, was set at $75,100. The structure was owned by the Williams Estate.

Fire officers reported several windows in the Phillips Brothers Mortuary near the warehouse were broken out by the heat of the blaze and a station wagon parked beside the warehouse was damaged.

Four rural fire departments—including Staton House, Winterville, Ayden and Eastern Pines sent trucks to Greenville when it was feared that flying sparks would ignite other fires in the area. Firemen in Bethel and Farmville were alerted and were standing by in case they were needed.

Efforts were being made late this morning to determine the cause of the fire.

New PTI Classroom Building Named For Robert Lee Humber

The Board of Trustees of Pitt Technical Institute voted unanimously last night to name the new classroom building "The Robert Lee Humber Building."

R. E. Davenport, Jr., chairman of the Committee on dedication and naming of the new building, and speaking for the Committee, said: "As the committee sought to accomplish its task, one name was preeminent, Dr. Robert Lee Humber. Our committee unanimously recommends that the new PTI Classroom Building be named, the Robert Lee Humber Building."

"Dr. Humber was held in highest esteem and admired by all of us. He had a profound impact on the planning and direction of Pitt Tech. With his dynamic leadership, he took the idea of establishment of this institution and brought it to life. His idea of education was the enrichment of lives and furthering of individual skills. He was eager to see that all people had an opportunity for education," stated Davenport.

Summing up his statements about Dr. Humber, Davenport said, "Dr. Humber always gave his best and his all; he stood for excellence."

The formal dedication and naming of the new building will be held early in April, 1973. More complete plans for the ceremony will be announced later.

In reporting to the Board of Trustees on the self-study for reaffirmation of accreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, Willard Finch, PTI assistant dean of instruction, stated, "A good self-study not only reveals strengths but it also uncovers weaknesses." He presented to the Board a list of major recommendations of each of the 10 self-study committees, studying the standards of the South Association.

Commenting on the PTI self-study, Finch remarked that the committees felt that Pitt Tech was, generally speaking, in accordance with, or exceeding, the standards of excellence prescribed by the Association, but that the list of recommendations were needed to make necessary improvements in the total Pitt Tech program.

Other reports to the trustees included the current status of the installation of the elevator in the classroom building, budget transfers, and the state audit report for the fiscal year, 1971.

The board approved an increase from $10.00 to $12.00 for the graduation fee assessed students who graduate. The increased cost of diplomas the cost of caps and gowns made this action necessary.

James W. Brewer, chairman of the personnel committee, informed the board that Mrs. Janice Leggett, Pitt Tech's practical nurse education coordinator, has been employed by East Carolina University. The personnel committee recommended, and the board approved, the employment of Mrs. Linda Roberts as an instructor in the nursing program.

"Pitt Technical Institute continues to experience a tremendous growth and maintain a high utilization rate of space," PTI President, Dr. William E. Fulford Jr., told the board. "Citizens of Pitt County continue to respond to the educational opportunities and programs of the Institute."

"We are at a crossroads, however," remarked Fulford, "If we are to continue our task of enriching the lives of our citizenry and develop individual skills, additional buildings are necessary."

According to Fulford, James Young has been employed as administrative assistant at PTI. He was seek federal and private funds to complement a building program.

After outlining several alternatives, relative to meeting building needs, to the board, Fulford said that this problem will be given further study.

"Pitt Tech ranks 10th among the 56 community colleges and technical institutes in terms of number of people being served," the PTI president told the Trustees. Central Piedmont, in Charlotte, ranks number one.

'Walk For Development' Raised More Than $3,200

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
An official report received at the Baptist Student Center in Greenville last week has revealed the Greenville 'Walk For Development' project held last April was a big success. David M. Landry, Domestic Project Director for the American Freedom From Hunger Foundation, has notified Bob Clyde, chaplain of the Baptist Student Center, East Carolina University, that a little more than $3,200 was raised in Greenville by the approximately 165 walkers, young and old, taking part in the 25 mile Saturday walk event.

In the traditional manner of distributing proceeds from such projects, Landry revealed that $1,276.70 was earmarked for donation to a local project, the Meadowbrook Day Care Center, designated by the Baptist Student Center.

An additional $1,276.70 was given to a 25 village self-help project in the African Country of Ghana, one of the projects sponsored by the international Freedom From Hunger program.

The remaining amount, approximately $650, goes into an administrative fund that provides all administrative and programming costs for the many-faceted program.

For the 1972 Walk for Development Program, ECU student Charlotte Lynch headed up the program, assisted by the Baptist chaplain and others.

Mark Carpenter of Durham, an ECU sophomore in the School of Business Administration, has been appointed to head the 1973 Walk For Development, tentatively scheduled in the spring before May 1.

On Monday, Mark visited Mrs. Fanny Jackson, founder and director of the Meadowbrook Day Care Center.

Mrs. Jackson and her assistants were getting the happily exhausted three and four year olds, 37 of them, tucked in for their afternoon nap after an hour of vigorous playground activity.

"You cannot imagine what a blessing that money is for us," Mrs. Jackson told Mark. She said "the $1,200 has been turned over to our treasurer, Mrs. H.H. Bryant.

"With this, we can increase the salaries of our teachers," Mrs. Jackson said. "I don't draw any salary myself, but there are eight others who are on salary, and this wonderful gift means we can pay them just a little more now."

Mrs. Jackson remarked that the only money the day care center receives on a regular basis is $2.00 per day for 22 of the 44 children enrolled in the center. This comes from the Pitt County Department of Social Services.

The day care center, which provides services to three and four year old children from needy homes, was founded by Mrs. Jackson 12 years ago, and is located in a sturdy cinder block building built by students from the former Epps High School.

Mrs. Jackson, then a teacher at Sadie Sauter Elementary School conceived the idea of getting support to use the building as a day care needy for needy black children. She retired last year after 40 years of teaching.

"Let me just say I plan to be out there walking next spring then the walk comes along," Mrs. Jackson smiled. "It doesn't matter whether this center will be the project or not, it's such a fine idea and I'm hoping lots of people will be joining in."

Mrs. Jackson was one of the walkers in last year's walk, the first ever held in Greenville. The Rev. Norman Bennett, Pastor of Greenville's Memorial Baptist Church, chalked up the record individual contribution, making the entire 25 miles with a pledge of $10 per mile for a total of $250 for his successful completion of the walk.

Mark told about attending an orientation program at Girl Scout Camp located in the village of Sunshine, west of Charlotte, during the Thanksgiving vacation.

"The meeting of leaders of the Youth World Development program," Mark commented, "was attended by about 35 young people from various states in the southeastern district. We also had speakers from Nigeria, India and other countries to explain the projects and work being done in their countries."

Mark said this spring the goal is "to get 500 people walking in Greenville. With the success the program had last year in its first year, I believe we'll have that many people turn out," he commented.

"And let's make sure we get a lot of young people and children out," Mrs. Jackson said. "Our young folks need to do a lot more walking anyway."

Paper Asserts Bormann Paid Peron For Refuge

LONDON (AP) — The Daily Express reported today that Martin Bormann found refuge in Argentina in 1948 by paying $200 million to then-dictator Juan D. Peron. But a spokesman for Peron said earlier that Argentina's former ruler knew nothing about Hitler's wartime deputy.

The Express published the second of a five-part series of articles by spy expert Ladislav Farago, who in the first article claimed Bormann is still alive at the age of 72 and has been living since early October on a ranch in northern Argentina owned by the Krupp family of West Germany.

Bormann was seen in Berlin in the final days of the war, and afterward there were unconfirmed reports that he died in the fighting, died a prisoner in Russia and escaped to South America.

Periodically he is reported seen in one South American country or another, but so far there has been no proof that he is still alive.

Farago in today's article in the Express reported:

Bormann, realizing World War II would eventually be lost, secretly arranged for German ships and a submarine to deliver a huge treasure to Argentina in the final stages of the war in Europe.

The treasure — currency, jewels, platinum, art works and gold that was mostly taken from the teeth of Nazi concentration camp victims — was deposited in four Argentine banks under the name of Eva Duarte Ibaraguren, Peron's mistress who became his wife in 1945.

Mrs. Peron made a trip to Europe in 1947, met Bormann in Rome and helped arrange his flight to Argentina. He arrived in Argentina by ship on May 17, 1948, with a passport issued to Eliezer Goldstein by the Vatican office for stateless persons.

By the end of 1948, Peron surrendered a fourth of the treasure to Bormann, retaining nearly $200 million for himself and his wife.

The Argentine federal police said Monday they are checking out Farago's reports, but they expressed doubt that they were true. The West German justice ministry also expressed "extreme reservations" about the stories. But a spokesman said the ministry would investigate the possibilities of extraditing Bormann if he was found.

Flood Relief Said 'Error'

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The federal government says it is trying to recover a $7,500 flood-relief loan mistakenly approved for an Elks lodge which restricts membership to whites.

The 1964 Civil Rights Act prohibits federal financial aid to organizations discriminating by race, color or national origin. But on Oct. 3, the Small Business Administration forwarded $7,500 to the Elks' Lock Haven chapter.

It was the first installment on a $19,000 loan approved by the SBA's Williamsport office.

H. L. Reinhard, regional spokesman for the SBA, acknowledged the error Monday but noted that the office has approved $59 million in loans and is processing another $62 million worth of applications emanating from last summer's floods.

"With a load like that, sure, even the government can make mistakes," Reinhard said.

Harold Pfaff, the chapter secretary, said the Elks haven't received notification of any problems with the loan.

Jail Is Better Than Expected

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Samuel L. Popkin, the Harvard professor jailed for refusing to answer questions in the Pentagon Papers case, says the Norfolk County House of Correction is "better than our worst horrible fantasies about jail."

Popkin's wife Susan reported that her husband found jail isn't as bad as expected. She quoted him as saying it is "clean and warm. There is no danger of illness, rapes or killings as in some other jails."

Mrs. Popkin, in an interview with the Harvard Crimson, said her husband found jail "a whole new weird experience."

Popkin, 30, was jailed last Wednesday for contempt of court for refusing to answer three questions before a federal grand jury investigating the release of the once-secret Pentagon Papers.

Disorder In Court By Accused Killer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Convict Ruchell Magee, accused with Angela Davis in the Marin County Courthouse shoot-out of 1970, was twice removed from the courtroom on the first day of his murder trial after slugging his court-appointed lawyer and calling the judge a "stupid dog."

Magee spent half the day Monday in a holding cell listening to proceedings by loudspeaker. He was first ousted after repeatedly refusing Superior Court Judge Morton Colvin's request to remain quiet and not interrupt. As bailiffs led him away, he called the judge a "stupid dog."

At one point Magee leaped with an outstretched right fist at his lawyer, Robert Carrow, shouting for his arrest.

Carrow was knocked over in his chair but assured the judge he was not hurt by Magee's body blow. As Carrow picked up papers that had scattered in the melee, the judge instructed the prospective panel of jurors to disregard the incident.

Magee requested Carrow be fired on grounds the defense lawyer told him "to tell a lie" that county prosecutor Gary Thomas "shot Judge Harold Haley" during a gun battle outside the Marin County Courthouse. Magee is accused of killing the judge in a burst of gunfire that also left three others dead.

Carrow himself then asked to be removed from the case, but both requests were denied.

Angela Davis, Magee's original codefendant who was accused of helping plot the crime, was found innocent in a separate trial last June.

Contributes To Grove Of Trees

TEL AVIV (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger has contributed money to help plant a grove of trees in memory of a schoolmate.

Reuven Assor, spokesman for the Jewish National Fund, said Monday that the grove of 300 trees in the Judean hills near Jerusalem will be planted in memory of Kurth Fleischman, a schoolmate of Kissinger's in his native town of Furth, Germany.

'Guided By God' On Martial Law

MANILA (AP) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos said today that he was "guided by God" when he proclaimed martial law in the Philippines to prevent a right wing coup against his government.

Addressing some 300 members of the Philippine Historical Society at the presidential palace, Marcos disclosed for the first time that he signed the martial law proclamation on Sept. 17, five days before it was put into effect.

Previously it was believed he signed the decree Sept. 21.

Marcos said he needed "the period to commune with myself and with God. I asked God for signs. He gave me several signs." It was "as if I was guided by some strange greater mind."

HEADY GLAMOUR — Hat designer Frank Olive sketches his newest designs, which he says offer something for everyone. Glamour comes to white felt hat with flip brim, wrapped with a super pheasant feather jeweled in crystal stones, top left. The Cavalier is vanilla felt, swagged and feathered and styled for the flamboyant in fashion. The cuffed cap, bottom left, in felt or jerseys is a great understatement in fashion, designed by Olive for the John Anthony Collection. Center is the new cloche, in natural felts wrapped with jersey and trimmed with a feather pom-pom, designed for the Jim Baldwin Collection. The draped turban, bottom right, has either open or closed crown in wool jersey, satin or leather. Designed in crepe pastels, it was featured in the Ole Borden collection.

Designer Builds Hats For The Aware Woman

By EVE SHARBUTT

AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Fashion today is a life style, a state of mind for active, aware, contemporary women.

That's the opinion of millinery designer Frank Olive, a handsome, mustachioed man who might as easily be a playwright as a designer of ladies' hats. In fashionable tweedy jacket and argyle sweater, Olive discussed his youthful approach to a business formerly dominated by older men.

"This is an interesting time for the designer. There is no one way to look anymore.

"I came in at a time of new attitudes toward hats, a difficult time (nine years ago) when no one wanted my product. But now I've disproved something many designers held as law—that the masses had no taste.

"Older designers said ordinary people had to have a lot of ostentatious gadgetry on hats—lots of feathers, extra buttons. I believed the masses were knowledgeable, and I still believe it. I think you should get the same good style whether you pay $13 or $40," Olive said.

As a designer, he believes in quality and value. Today's best all around hat value is a felt hat, he said, because it can be worn all year.

"We used to design summer merchandise to be sold in February and winter merchandise that was sold in July. That's no longer true. A woman wants to buy a hat in season, when she's in the mood for it. Most buying is impulse buying and we must have what they want when they want it."

Fashion used to take six months to cross the country, Olive said. Now it takes six minutes. The one segment of the population that has not benefited from the communications explosion is the average salesperson in a store.

"Often they do not know or have any interest in hats. They don't know how to satisfy a customer," he said.

Olive has traveled around the country for 15 years, talking with women in shops and at home, discussing fashion and hats.

"I'm overwhelmed with the amount of good taste one sees around the nation and where one sees it. The pendulum has definitely turned and women are going to look beautiful again. Of course, I'm happy they're wearing hats because I'm delighted to see something where it belongs."

New York is no longer the pinnacle of high fashion in America, the designer added. It is still exciting and creative, but Olive is happy he is able to travel, that he does not live in New York 12 months each year.

"New York has a vitality that contributes to your creative forces. The technical expertise is here. The competition is here. When you have molded a hat like a sculpture or an architectural design, as I try to do, you must find new ways to bring that creation to the fashion consumer."

Olive says he was "frankly thrilled" with a tour that took him across the Midwest and South.

"Before the tour, I didn't care if I had another season. I felt perhaps my work wasn't wanted anyway. But something is wanted. Women are interested and where there is that desire, there will be a way."

The turbulent era of the '60s are labeled a "revolution" by the designer.

"Young people got out of the lack of individuality and humdrum taste and into romantic styles—Elvira Madigan, Romeo and Juliet. It saved them. This was true of style in other turbulent eras in history, the French revolution, for example," said the man who majored in history as well as art in college.

"Today people are searching for their identity in different ways. They are reaching into different reasons for being, looking backward, reading biographies."

The return of fashion classics means a heyday for the designer, Olive said.

Luxurious fabrics can be simply cut and more conservative fabric can be intricately cut.

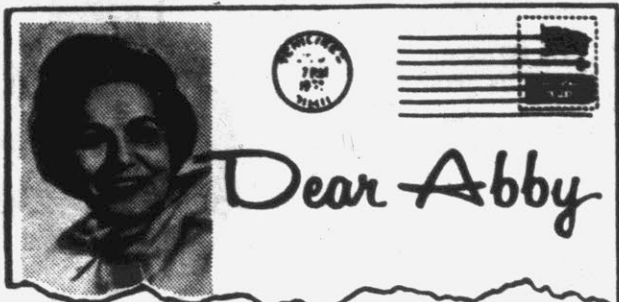

"Today's customer has knowledge of accessories to incorporate into that classic look. She likes the way new shoes look, as well as new hats. When she buys something, she asks, 'Will I wear it more than once?'"

The rise of the new black middle class is important in fashion, Olive believes. The new affluence of these women has brought them into fashion as never before, and new looks, dramatic looks, will be created for black women.

"Women don't feel they must wear only beige any more," Olive said. "That's good news for designers as well as for fashion."

Designer Chester Weinberg likes opera length necklaces of baroque cultured pearls with the many suede costumes in his collection, playing one subtle texture against another.

Widower Wants To Take Widow On Holiday Cruise

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Widowed five years after a long and happy marriage, I've found a widow I desperately want to marry. And that's my problem. She refuses to marry me.

I am about average in all respects except one. Financially, I am very well off, but that doesn't seem to influence her. We both have married children who are independent. I never knew this lady's husband, but understand theirs was a good marriage, so I know she's not soured on marriage.

She says she wants her "freedom." I have tried everything to change her mind. My last attempt was a two-carat diamond, which she refused to wear, even on her right hand because of the "implications" (whatever that means).

I want to take her on a cruise in December. She said she would go—sans marriage, but how proud and happy she would make me if she would accompany me as my wife.

How can I persuade her to marry me by December? If any of your ideas are successful, I will send you a postcard from Rome—the first stop on the cruise. HOPING

DEAR HOPING: My advice to you is to go on the cruise alone. Send me a postcard anyway, if you have time to write one, which I'll bet against. No man should have to beg or bribe a woman to marry him, so get off your knees and survey the market. Your only chance for winning this woman is to play the field and show some dignified independence. And if that fails, you could be lucky.

DEAR ABBY: Is there any way a woman can buy insurance on her husband's life without letting him know about it?

I know he would have to take a physical and there's no way of tricking him into doing it.

My husband has a real hangup on this score and we can't even discuss the matter intelligently.

I can't shop around in my hometown for an insurance company that might have an angle on how to accomplish this as I have too much pride to admit to the world that my husband doesn't want to provide for his wife and children in the event of his death.

Please answer this in your column as I'm sure other wives must have the same problem.

ASHAMED AND NOT PROTECTED

DEAR ASHAMED: There is no way you can accomplish this without your husband's signature. Discuss this with your own insurance agent and ask him to suggest an approach that will be effective and inoffensive to your husband.

DEAR ABBY: I have a suggestion for "Out of Excuses" who recently wrote of her concern for her 69-year-old father who continues to drive even though he has failing eyesight.

My staff in the Department of Motor Vehicles handles hundreds of these cases each year, so we understand what "Out of Excuses" and her father are going thru. Since he refuses to go for a visual examination, you can arrange for him to take a test of his driving ability and knowledge.

Write to your State Department of Motor Vehicles outlining the problem and in most cases that department will send him a letter requiring him to appear for a re-examination of his driving ability. If it appears necessary, a visual examination by competent authorities will also be required. Your communication will be held in confidence.

Party Given Miss Avery

Miss Patsy Avery, bride-elect of Dec. 17, was honored by her bridesmaids at an informal party Friday night at the home of Mrs. Kathy Moore.

Co-hostesses were Miss Myra Brock, Miss Kay Gooding and Mrs. Linda Thurston.

The honoree wore a gold and red reeple pants ensemble accented by a yellow mum, a gift of the hostesses, who also presented her a gift of china.

The refreshment table was covered with a cloth of white embroidered linen over yellow. A bouquet of yellow and white mums enhanced with candles on either side centered the table.

Mrs. Laddie Avery, mother of the honoree, was special guest.

Articles For Preparing Food Featured At Museum Showing

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—It's often hard to tell old articles from new ones in the current exhibit at the Museum for Contemporary Crafts here.

Among the display of nearly 500 objects for preparing food are many whose designs have survived virtually unchanged for about a century or more. In some cases, only the materials are different.

A wood lemon squeezer dating from the mid-19th Century works on the same principle as ultra-modern metal and plastic juice extractors displayed with it.

An icebox nearly a century old has a water faucet on one side, as do some electric refrigerators. A tin and wood ice cream freezer patented in 1910 has resurfaced as a plastic and metal one for use in electric refrigerators.

This changelessness in design came as no surprise to Mimi Sheraton and Sandra Zimmerman, who helped set up the show.

Shapes persist because they do a job well, said Miss Sheraton in an interview. But materials change to suit new fuel sources, life styles and the decreasing size of families.

Thermal glass—flame and-or ovenproof—utensils were developed to use with gas and electric stoves and ovens, but they're also ideal for microwave ovens which would be damaged by metal containers.

Miss Sheraton said utensils and appliances that are quick and easy to clean were developed to offset the absence of servants in contemporary homes. Smaller pots are being made than in the past because families are smaller. Cook-and-serve vessels meet the needs of increasingly informal life styles.

She pointed out an exquisitely simple heavy aluminum covered casserole from Italy whose shape resembles iron pots that date back many centuries.

Not Much Change
"Fruit juicer designs haven't changed much, but neither have oranges and lemons," she added.

With Miss Zimmerman, curator of the exhibit, Miss Sheraton examined an old Egyptian terracotta grater shaped like a crocodile and a modern Swedish grater of stainless steel and plastic. Both work on the same principle.

Miss Sheraton is a free lance food writer who was consultant on cooking processes and functions for the exhibit. She worked with Miss Zimmerman in assembling the show with modern objects from craftsmen and manufacturers and historic ones from the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D.C., and other museums and Hebrew University, Jerusalem, Israel. About half the objects are on loan from the Smithsonian. Some will be shown at the Institution's Renwick Gallery, Feb. 9-April 19, before going on tour to six other American cities.

It would be easy for a visitor to mistake the show for a department or housewares store display. The objects are spread out on butcher block tables and hung on walls. Those that serve identical or similar purposes are grouped together—regrettably, with sparse information about their functions.

Miss Zimmerman said the objects were chosen to reflect life styles and cultures of their periods. Both visual design and function were considered.

Some of the most attractive are the least practical. Such as a handblown narrow glass measure that lacks a pouring lip and a hand-made modern chopping knife with cradle-shaped blade and an ornate handle. It would be hard to chop with and to sharpen, and also difficult to wash, because of the decorated handle.

A few historic objects are equally impractical, and even harder to identify. One tiny metal box-like device, dating from about 1910, was designed to toast marshmallows—one at a time! A metal, porcelain and glass object that resembles a laboratory instrument with test tubes is an electric hot-dog cooker made about the same time.

Fringe benefits of the exhibition include a slide presentation featuring public broadcast television star Julia Child, author Craig Claiborne and some other well-known cooks in their kitchens, a slide series on the history of diners, and photo murals of food-preparing environments from tribal cooking fires to futuristic electronic designs.

The show will run through Dec. 31.

The Details Take More Time

While it is likely that the Vietnam peace talks will still bring about a cease-fire, the most recent delay is unsettling.

A recess was called in the Paris talks. Why the recess came and what has been talked about is a matter of conjecture. Most observers seem to feel that Henry Kissinger had run into a stone wall in efforts to get North Vietnam to pull some troops out.

It is believed that the delay is to give United States negotiators time to tell President Thieu that there will be no further concessions on the part of North Vietnam.

What this will mean remains to be seen. If Thieu continues to insist on troop withdrawals, the U.S. may be in the position of telling Thieu that he must agree to the cease-fire terms or risk losing U.S. support. A collapse of the South Vietnam regime under these conditions would have to prove most embarrassing to our nation. Thus it is likely that rather than issuing ultimatums to Thieu, the United

Working For Their Miracle

By NANCY BROWER
The Asheville Times
BALSAM GROVE, N.C. —
"We've tackled a miracle."
Bonnie Bowman shivered in the cold, dark shell of the unfinished building as she summed up the goal of three adventurous couples in this mountain community 11 miles west of Rosman.

The miracle they're working towards is the completion of the Albert E. Schweitzer Memorial Hospital.

The hospital was the dream of the late Dr. Gaine Cannon, general practitioner whose work with the people of Balsam Grove is the subject of the book, "Mountain Doctor," by LeGette Blythe.

The exterior walls were built with stones local people brought to the physician in payment for his services, but Dr. Cannon died in 1966 with his dream yet unrealized. The building, filled with donated equipment, stood locked until early this year when some powerful coincidences began to shape its future.

Dr. J.T. Wheeler, formerly of Asheville, was operating a nursing home in Charlotte. He was urged to go to Balsam Grove and look at the hospital. Because he built a country hospital in Kentucky and operated it successfully for 24 years, his family knew he would see the unfinished little hospital as a challenge.

God Asked for Helpers

The doctor talked with Balsam Grove people and agreed to take over the hospital as it stood, complete and staff it. Then, the 77-year-old physician felt overwhelmed by the task. "I prayed for help. I asked God to relieve me of this burden," Dr. Wheeler said.

About that time, Bob and Thelma Eilea, both X-ray technicians at a Wytheville, Va., hospital got the urge to forsake city life for a mountain farm. They came to Transylvania County to find a place where their two young children and the foster children for whom they provide a home could grow up happily.

On impulse, a realtor took the Rileas to a mountaintop and pointed out the hospital. They showed mild interest. He told them a Seventh Day Adventist doctor already has leased the hospital and hoped to open it.

The Rileas, also Seventh Day Adventists, contacted Dr. Wheeler in Charlotte. His reply was direct: "Meet me in Fletcher."

After the first meeting far into the night, the young couple decided to join the doctor and his wife in the attempt to open the hospital.

Friends Joined Venture

Kenneth and Bonnie Bowman, also of Wytheville and Seventh Day Adventists, planned to buy a farm near Fletcher. When they heard of the Balsam Grove venture, Ken quit his well-paid job with IBM, sold their modern home, and moved his family to the remote mountain community.

The three couples, who describe themselves as self-supporting missionaries, live on the hospital grounds. Everyone works at getting the outbuildings and the hospital in shape. Each person has assigned responsibilities.

Even Dr. Wheeler's 89-year-old father-in-law, Austin Pender, does his bit. He circles the hospital on his knees clipping the grass by the rock walls. "I used to be a masseur," he volunteered, "and I've got strong hands."

The group has set a goal of offering nursing home type care for five patients by the first of the year. In their need for funds to accomplish this and open the hospital, they recently sold at auction things they very much wanted to keep — treasured personal effects of the late Dr. Cannon. He didn't leave much. "He was a wonderful humanitarian," said Mrs. Bowman, "but not much of a businessman."

Needs Are Many

"We need everything," said Dr. Wheeler. "We need funds, we need people, and we need things."

The people, at least, are beginning to come. Dr. Wheeler's sons have agreed to join him. Dr. Gerald L. Wheeler will become medical director when he finishes his residency in cardiology at a Wheeling, W. Va., hospital. Oliver Wheeler will become hospital administrator at the end of his internship at Highland Farms, a nursing home complex near Black Mountain.

In the meantime, the band of missionaries are engaged in the hard, dirty work of clearing the barn to store equipment so the gigantic task of finishing the hospital interior can be started.

It takes a lot of work to bring off a miracle.

States will use all its persuasiveness to get him to agree to the cease fire. That is probably why the recess was called.

All signs still point to a settlement of the Vietnam war. The details are taking longer than anticipated and, of course, the talks could collapse at any point. We continue to believe, however, that the world is ready for a settlement of this cruel war, and because the time is right the settlement will come.

More Street Lighting Is Certainly In Order

If Greenville seems brighter these days, it is because a street lighting modernization program has resulted in the replacement of incandescent fixtures with mercury vapor lights.

The work has been carried out by the Utilities Commission and represents a great improvement in street lighting.

We should not forget though, that there is still much to be done to provide better lighting. The city's boulevard system needs more lights to make the wide thoroughfares safer for heavy traffic. There are also areas of night time pedestrian traffic where more lighting is needed.

The street lighting improvement program should not stop now. Traffic accident and crime rates are lowered when better lighting is provided.

Some Lean To Media 'Feud'

By ROWLANDE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — In the surprisingly glum aftermath of President Nixon's landslide reelection, sentiment is building within the White House staff for a partial resumption of the abandoned anti-media campaign with CBS News as a special target.

This stems from bitter White House resentment over the nationally televised exposes by CBS of alleged windfalls for giant grain companies in the U.S.-Soviet wheat deal and charges of Nixon campaign espionage and sabotage growing out of the Watergate scandal.

Bitterly disappointed by the poor Republican showing below the presidential level, key presidential aides — with questionable logic — blame CBS. While conceding some merit in the network's wheat deal expose, they claim CBS did a hatchet job on the Watergate affair.

These same aides are not nearly so exercised over the Washington Post's much more exhaustive investigative reporting of Watergate. The reason: TV-wise Nixon men believe the prime time CBS programs had far more national impact.

Hence, they want the anti-media campaign resumed with the sights on CBS — perhaps not with a resumption of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's rhetoric but with the far more menacing threat of government action against news program content.

This resumes an internal struggle within the White House over media policy. Two former newsmen on the White House staff — Ken Clawson (ex-Washington Post) and John Scali (ex-ABC) last summer talked Mr. Nixon into calling off the anti-media campaign in his own best political interests. Some White House aides never fully accepted that policy shift and now want to reverse it.

Just what course Mr. Nixon will take is uncertain. But it is significant that the President's exclusive interview was granted the Washington Star-News (admitted at the White House as an intentional slap at the Post) without consulting his staff's public relations and press experts.

A footnote: White House speechwriter William Safire, a sometime speech collaborator with Agnew, is considering journalism when he leaves the White House (probably in late January). A serious possibility: becoming a writer for the Washington Post, where he presented Administration viewpoints during the presidential campaign.

M-GRAMS FROM MILLS

For the first time ever, rank-and-file Democrats elected to the House Nov. 7 received enthusiastic telegrams from none other than Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas, the canny chairman of the Ways and Means Committee who might yet wind up running for Speaker of the House in January.

One Eastern liberal, a veteran Congressman, was astonished when his telegram arrived — the first he had received from Mills. The obvious point: Mills, who campaigned for scores of Democratic Congressmen across the country, is carefully laying the groundwork for the speakership — if Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma decides not to seek reelection.

Some House Democrats, impatient with Albert's gentle leadership of the Democratic majority, are urging Mills to oppose him. However, Mills replies he will run only if Albert steps down. That is remotely possible in January 1973; a bit more likely in January 1975. In any event, Mills is politicking his colleagues.

Not long ago, in one of those weak moments that overwhelm a man on sunny mornings or moonlit nights, I agreed to go on a Board. It is against my principles. But this was the Board of the Fund for Investigative Journalism, and thereby hang these lamentations.

The Fund exists to award modest stipends to professional journalists who have stories that are temporarily beyond their grasp. These are the potentially Big Stories that a good reporter loves to get his hands on. "If only I had time to dig it out," he says. "If only I could pull it all together." Other Editors Say Now Cure This

(The Raleigh Times)

Can you guess what is the fifth major health problem facing the people of America?

Dr. Bernard C. Greenberg, dean of the University of North Carolina School of Public Health, answered that question in a recent address on American health problems. He said our fifth major problem is: Trying to get from one place to another in this country without sacrificing your life or health.

Dr. Greenberg added: "Believe it or not, motor vehicle deaths account for nearly one-fourth of all deaths of persons under 45 years of age. In the five-to-35 age group the automobile becomes the primary cause of death. And in the age group 15-24 years almost one-half of all deaths are caused by automobile accidents. Every year the automobile takes many more lives among our youth than Vietnam ever did. Would it not be an achievement in public health if we could mount demonstrations among college students to protest this form of slaughter?"

It would be even more of an achievement if such demonstrations could be mounted in the legislature. Everyone knows that scores of people are killed every month on North Carolina highways, yet it is still difficult to secure passage of highway safety legislation.

Our drunken-driving laws still have many holes in them. North Carolina needs a really tough law requiring that persons suspected of drunken driving have to take alcohol-content tests, or lost their licenses for a period of time. North Carolina needs laws which would make jail sentences automatic for persons convicted more than once of drunken driving.

Speed is a great killer on the highways. We could use laws taking driving licenses away for exceeding a certain speed. We could also use laws making jail sentences mandatory for drivers who exceed a certain speed.

Our vehicle safety inspection laws could be tightened, with more equipment included in the inspection.

Such highway safety laws wouldn't eliminate death on the roads. But, they would help reduce the number of wrecks, and that would reduce the number of deaths.

existence, to help such reporters land their fish.

The Board, it appeared, had half a dozen liberals on its letterhead, and needed one conservative for balance; so what the hell. I was like Byron's lissome maiden, who saying she would ne'er consent, consented. Whereupon the Secretary sent along the eight or ten applications that were up for a vote in November, and one evening last week, after dinner, I reluctantly pulled my nose out of a novel, and bent to the task of review.

Now, it is important to understand, for purposes of the plaintive point I want to make, that these letters of application were from professional journalists; that these were formal papers, prepared with care; and that the applicants, in the nature of such competitions, presumably were seeking to make the best impression they could make.

The first paper came from a young gentleman in New Jersey. He never had learned the difference between farther and further.

The second came from a free lancer who had underestimated the time required "to adequately investigate" his topic. He spoke of victims who regularly fall prey to crooks "like Mr. A.," and he wrote of organizations that go wrong, "like the National Foundation for B." He didn't mean "like." He meant "such as."

A third paper came from an application who managed, in three pages, to come up with similar, knowingly, favoritism, in-laid, and effecting (for affecting.). He advised the Board, in a reassuring paragraph, that other in-

Strength For Today

A PROBLEM INDEED

Marriage is a problem. It always has been and it always will be. If we can solve it, we are fortunate indeed. If we fail to solve it, we are in for a lot of trouble. Most marriage difficulties can be solved if people will set themselves to solve them. The person who insists on marriage difficulties being solved his way or hers is not likely to contribute much to a successful marriage. Give and take are the key words. The person to think about is the other person—not ourselves.

We have had occasion to remind ourselves frequently that marriage problems have to be solved—they do not solve themselves. They can dissolve happiness if we let them go on without paying much attention to them. They can rise up to curse us if we do not go to any length required to bring out their true blessedness.

A man goes to his office, his store, his shop and then comes home not to find peace and quiet but to find turmoil and dissension. The woman of the household works hard every day and the return home of her husband after working hours frequently precipitates argument and every variety of quarrel.

Life lived under such conditions is to say the least—unsatisfactory. Husbands and wives can get along with each other if they will. It may not always be easy—in fact, it is almost sure never to be easy. But it is possible.

If we have made a success of marriage we have usually made a success of life. It can be done.

See More Business Restraints

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Just a bit more than one year ago the nation was forced to swallow a drastic tonic in order to jolt itself out of the economy lethargy that had settled into its bones.

Confidence was low. Retailers complained that consumers saved rather than spent on clothing, furniture and appliances. Consumers said they did so because prices were too high.

The nation's business leaders, fearful that the trend would continue, postponed expansion plans. Many jobseekers were said to have stopped looking, recognizing intuitively that if the economy was going nowhere, they were, too.

These were only a few signs of malaise when President Nixon shocked the world by effectively devaluing the dollar, imposing wage and price controls and reassuring the public that he would do everything to push expansion.

The assurance that the country would not be left to float or drift out of inflation but would be given a boost, changed the spirits of millions.

The Federal Reserve Board, which controls the money supply and which, therefore, has almost as much to say about the economy as the President, participated in the new spirit.

Consumers resumed their buying. Business began expansion plans. Retail sales, at least for some items, boomed. Consumer credit, which had been shrinking, rose sharply. Stocks moved higher. The jobless rate fell. So did inflation.

And now, in testimony to the fact that the business cycle of ups and downs is the nature of things, a growing number of business and money men are concerned that restraints soon must be applied again.

This suggestion touches off a heated response from others, as it always has and will. The very idea is to some highly respected economists, an abomination, a narrow-minded, nearsighted, insensitive interpretation of options.

They point out that the nation has a long way to go before achieving its productive capacity and that, meanwhile, expansion should be encouraged. Inflation, they say, is not a current danger.

Those who are talking up restraint note, however, that there is a lead time of at least six months before definite changes can be brought about by monetary and fiscal policy.

They maintain that the inspiration given to spending during the past year must be watched closely lest it lead to a resumption of the inflation psychology during mid or late 1973.

So far, the Fed and the administration are mainly talking or warning rather than acting, but the concern is there.

The Fed, for example, has already begun slowing the rate of monetary growth, which means that in recent weeks there has been less money to use, to borrow, to lend, to make plans with.

As a result, pressure is building beneath interest rates. The mortgage rate to homebuyers is up slightly. And many bankers expect the prime lending rate to break upward from 5.75 per cent toward the 6 per cent of August 1971.

Brokers are becoming fearful that the slowing of monetary growth will abort the current stock market rise. It will mean less money for investing.

Heavy Damage Results In Laundromat Blast

An explosive mixture of gasoline and air ignited and caused an estimated $4,000 property damage to the One Hour Martinizing laundromat and cleaners on Dickinson Avenue here yesterday afternoon.

According to Fire Department investigators, Mrs. Mark Tripp of 1103 Myrtle Ave. placed gasoline in a washing machine at the laundromat to remove grease from clothes she was washing. Something caused the explosive mixture of gas to explode and Mrs. Tripp suffered first and second degree burns from the flash that resulted. She was reported hospitalized for treatment.

The force of the blast damaged several machines in the laundromat, damaged a wall inside the building and blew several large glass windows out of the

Blames Campus Troublemakers

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Gov. Edwin W. Edwards has assured a black investigating committee that police officers would be prosecuted if it were found that they deliberately shot and killed two students at Southern University.

But he emphasized that, in his opinion, student "troublemakers" were primarily to blame for the Nov. 16 campus confrontation in which the two young blacks died of buckshot wounds at the predominantly black university.

"These were troublemakers. They didn't want to have peace and quiet," Edwards said on the opening day of hearings by a special Black People's Committee of Inquiry, working in competition with an official investigating body headed by state Atty. Gen. William Guste. The FBI also is investigating.

Guste's committee spent its first day viewing television films of the violence, interviewing newsmen who were witnesses and hearing testimony from Coroner Hypolite Landry, who said Denver Smith and Douglas Brown, both 20, died of wounds from lead pellets the size of No. 3 or No. 4 buckshot.

Officers called to Southern's Baton Rouge campus to remove students from the administration building have said they fired only tear-gas cartridges from their shotguns.

But Edwards told the black committee an officer might have loaded and fired buckshot accidentally in the confusion, thinking it was tear gas. The two types of cartridges are similar in appearance.

Southern's branch campus in

New Orleans opened Monday for the first time in 10 days, but students held a rally and called for continued boycotting of classes.

The main campus at Baton Rouge, scene of the two deaths, is closed for the rest of the calendar year.

Probe Lenoir Shooting Case

KINSTON, N.C. (AP)—A shooting that hospitalized three men Sunday afternoon continued under investigation today by the Lenoir County sheriff's department and the SBI.

ABC officer Marvin Hardison of LaGrange and Mike Taylor were wounded in what the sheriff's department said was an exchange of gunfire in a store operated by Taylor just outside the Kinston city limits.

Taylor was reported in critical condition and Hardison in good condition at a Kinston hospital today.

Joseph Ray Meadows of Kinston, who was in the store at the time of the shooting, was wounded and hospitalized in satisfactory condition.

Details of the incident were not available, pending completion of the investigation. The sheriff's department said no charges have been filed.

Judge's Son Is Arrested

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — U.S. Customs agents report they have seized 350 pounds of hashish and arrested a Superior Court judge's 30-year-old son on charges of illegal importation of the narcotic.

Agents disclosed Monday that Jonathan L. Cook was arrested after he picked up an air shipment of Indian moon bells at the San Francisco International Airport and took them to Santa Rosa.

Cook, son of Alameda County Superior Court Judge Lyle E. Cook, was released on his own recognizance after being arraigned before U.S. Magistrate Owen E. Woodruff. A further hearing will be held Dec. 8.

Customs agents estimated the hashish would be worth $15 million if sold on the street. They said trained detector dogs sniffed out the drug hidden in the 25 cartons of brass bells and the cartons were sealed to await a pickup.

The fourth came from a gentleman who had not learned, or had forgotten, that "none" is singular. He was doing a paper on medicine, and did not know that the National Institutes of Health are plural.

The fifth was from a reporter in the field of education. He wrote of comperability, of things that are comperable, of things, indeed, that are numberous. He spelled the State Louisana.

A young woman provided the sixth—a bright girl, from a fine college. She delivered herself of elegible, jockeying, supercede, thru, and franchise—fourteen times she spelled it franchise. She thought the Senator from Minnesota is named Modale, and she never had learned the placing of "only."

A seventh, to cut this short, hazarded a guess that the past tense of pay is payed. An eighth impressed us with publically, casulty, confidental, and competion. The ninth had real problems: After his foreward, he went to voluntary, commodotes, Curruption, independance, subistance, figure, dependance, occured, Hawaiiin, inadvertantly, and deculturised. He spoke of a country in Africa "surrounded on all sides." He did not know that a plural subject demands a plural verb.

What the hell, I am minded to ask, goes on here? If these are the best and brightest, what, pray, of the poorest and dumbest? There was a time when the humble art of spelling was not regarded as an occult science: If you couldn't spell, you had no business writing for a living. The elements of sentence structure once were taught routinely. Has this been abandoned while my back was turned?

I don't mean to pick nits. The man, woman or child who is writing not for publication can be forgiven anything short of incoherence. When it comes to their looks, animals are judged even more unfairly than are men. Take the male wolf and male ostrich, for example. Each is a good husband and family man, when it comes to taking care of the kids. Yet, in an animal beauty contest, each would be passed over in favor of the kingly appearing lion. But the male lion is a measly, flea-scratching, lazy husband who lets his more active wife do most of the family hunting—and then insists upon dining first at the kill. Only when his royal appetite is gorged do his lioness and cubs get to take a bite.

Surprised? Most people are. But if you measure milk by weight, it comes out to only pennies per pound. And that's not a very heavy price to pay for a single food that gives your family refreshment at every

Offer No Evidence To Support Charge

BURNSVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Eleven of 24 young men and women from Clearwater, Fla., accused of disorderly conduct at a public campground in the North Carolina mountains last July 3 were acquitted Monday after the state offered no evidence against them. They were arrested during a raid by Yancey County sheriff's deputies in which another young man from Clearwater, Stanley William Altland, 23, died of a chest wound which the State Bureau of Investigation later reported was inflicted by a Deputy Erwin Higgins. The sheriff's department has said the shooting was an accident which occurred when seven deputies, answering calls for help in dealing with disorderly campers, scuffled with young people who resisted arrest. The young people with Altland admitted some of them were drinking, and some fireworks had been exploded, but denied they resisted arrest. No action has been taken against Higgins.

The state consented to dismissing charges against 11 of the defendants when the defense rested its case Monday. Four of the defendants did not appear for trial and forfeited bond. The remaining nine are to be tried today in state District Court. The 24 defendants were mostly in their late teens, and 11 of them were women. TEACHING IMPROVEMENT WASHINGTON (UPI)—The summer of '73 for more than 1,350 teachers from colleges and universities will involve hitting books in programs

Says Americans Refuse To 'Die'

By JACK ALEY
Associated Press Writer
LEWISTON, Maine (AP) —
Americans deny the inevitability of death and consider it to be similar to going to sleep in a comfortable bed, a sociologist says.

It is something to be ignored, sent packing off to a nursing home to slip away and die off-stage, says Richard C. Dumont of Bates College, who recently coauthored a book, "The American View of Death: Acceptance or Denial."

"The American apparently does not die," he said.
ers and businessmen seeking profit have combined to project the American corpse as alive as possible, and going to sleep in a casket which is often explicitly advertised as a comfortable bed.

Dumont said he still personally denies death "at the gut level. Although I am more conscious now of the ambivalence surrounding death, it's no more comprehensible than it ever was."

He added that he personally hasn't "solved any better the notion that I'll die."

"It's good for the individual to know that ambivalent or confusing feelings about death are natural," Dumont said. "It's helpful in view of individual adaptation."

Dumont said his observations indicate that Americans, diverted by an affluent culture, deny the inevitability of their death.

And he credited the American tendency to "run, hide and seek refuge in group norms and actuarial statistics ... that blur the individual face of death" with a kind of national delusion of invulnerability to it.

Planning Light Draft Call-Up

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN

AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said today that fewer than 10,000 men will be drafted in the next six months before Selective Service is phased out June 30 and the military shifts to an all-volunteer force.

Laird said there would be no draft calls in January and that inductions will be spread out between February and June 30.

At an unscheduled news conference, the secretary said he was confident of a smooth transition to an all-volunteer Army but he said he still expected some difficulties in recruiting enough men for the National Guard and Reserves once the pressure of the draft is ended.

The secretary said the armed forces had hoped to begin offering enlistment bonuses for Feb. 1 but Congress' failure to approve this program will not make this possible.

Unless the enlistment bonus is enacted, he said, Congress may have to authorize a limited draft for the Reserves after June 30 to insure they are kept up to strength.

Since the Pentagon began winding draft calls down, enlistments in the reserve forces have fallen drastically.

Laird recommended last year that Congress enact a bonus incentive program for the Reserves totaling $200 million for fiscal 1974. Under this program, a young man or woman signing up for a six-year enlistment in the Guard or Reserves would receive an $1,100 bonus.

Laird would not reveal who his successor would be, saying that would be announced by the President. However, he joked that while he may be a lame-duck secretary, he is "not a limping secretary of Defense."

His final 53 days in office will be busy ones as he prepares the new budget which he said would show a slight increase over the current $76.5 billion Pentagon budget.

Crash . . .

The force of that impact was so great that Hodges was thrown from his vehicle and knocked unconscious momentarily.

When Hodges regained consciousness, Burney said, the man ran down the roadway in an effort to stop oncoming cars.

All of this time, Burney said, Hodges "could hear other collisions, hear people hollering, screaming...could hear cars just hitting all in there...but couldn't see."

Trooper Wright said the smoke which settled over the roadway may have come from burning refuse at the old Ayden municipal dump.

Commenting on the possibility, Chief Burney said the dump, no longer in use since the county landfill at Littlefield opened, caught fire last week from "spontaneous combustion." Repeated efforts by Ayden firemen to extinguish the deep smoldering fire have met with little success, he noted.

Injured in the mass collision were Mr. and Mrs. Imogene Cannon of Ayden and their 5-year-old son, and Miss Connie Summers of Ayden.

Drivers involved in the collision in the North-bound lane, in addition to Mrs. Cannon, Miss Summers and Sutton, were identified by Ptl. Wright as Hodges, Timothy Glenn Register, 20 of Clinton; Hosea Coley, 57 of Ayden; and Ronald Haywood Riggs, 57 of Dover.

Drivers of the two vehicles that collided in the South-bound lane were listed as William Michael Cole, 21, of Clarkston and Jacquelin L. Saunders, 24 of Greenville.

At least three of the vehicles, those driven by Sutton, Mrs. Cannon and Summers, were listed as total losses. No estimate was available late this morning on damage to the other vehicles involved.

Robbers Entered Greenville Home

Greenville police are investigating the theft of money and property from a 208 North Longmeadow Rd. home early Sunday morning.

According to Chief Glenn Cannon, robbers entered the home of Dr. S.R. Bartlett sometime after midnight Saturday and while six members of the family slept, took $10 in cash, a black ski cap and other items.

In addition to the items stolen from the dwelling, telephone wires at the home were cut.

Trudeau Makes Cabinet Changes

OTTAWA (AP)—Responding to last month's election setback, Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau has made sweeping changes in his Cabinet, bringing in 8 new persons and shifting 10 others. Among the 11 ministers retaining their posts Monday was Foreign Secretary Mitchell Sharp. Jeanne Sauve, 50, a journalist from Montreal, was named minister of science, the first woman in the Cabinet in four years.

Trudeau said the changes reflected the lessons learned in the Oct. 30 elections when his Liberal party lost nearly 40 seats in the House of Commons, including those held by four Cabinet members. Three others did not run for re-election. The lineup in the House when it meets Jan. 4 will be 109 Liberals, 107 Conservatives, 31 New Democrats, 15 Social Credit members and two independents.

McDonald's Is Coming

McDonald's Corp., operators of some 2,250 fast food restaurants nationwide and 40 outside the United States, announced plans to open a McDonald's on Greenville Boulevard here.

According to McDonald's Atlanta regional office, ground breaking for the new restaurant at 210 Greenville Blvd. is scheduled for sometime in December and, depending on weather conditions, construction should be completed in approximately three months.

The new McDonald's Family Restaurant, the first of the Oakbrook, Ill. based chain to locate here, will offer seating accommodations for customers as well as other features found in all McDonald's facilities, it was noted.

Full details concerning the new structure will be announced following ground breaking, the Atlanta office reported. Land negotiations and building permit applications have been finalized, McDonald's said.

McDonald's report that it hopes to have approximately 2,300 restaurants in operation in the United States by the end of the year.

Tong said Harper told him it was his way of getting even for his domestic situation and that he had done it often, primarily in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Murders Better Risk

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Murderers are better parole risks than the general run of criminals, the National Council on Crime and Delinquency has reported.

The council, sponsoring a two-day conference of 55 parole agencies, said Monday that its team which conducted a five-year research program now has a national research population of 6,903 paroled killers on which to base its parole findings.

Dr. Don Gottfredson, research director for the council, said the paroled slayers were compared with 72,192 other criminals placed on parole during the research period.

"Approximately 9.03 per cent of the other offenders were returned to prison in the first year, while the percentage of murderers returned—for all offenses—was only 1.77 per cent," he said.

It takes the sun about 25 days to make a complete turn.

Bank Requests Branch In City

WILSON—Branch Bank and Trust Co. announced that it has filed a formal application with the State Banking Commission to locate a branch office in Greenville.

Gordon Stewart, senior vice president in Wilson, said that the commission is expected to act on the application Wednesday afternoon in Raleigh. Approval by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation would also be necessary, he reported, following affirmative state action.

Branch Bank currently operates 60 branches in 35 North Carolina cities and communities and recently opened new offices in Charlotte.

Appalachian Year Will Probably See Press Chewing Lot Of Towels

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)

When Press Maravich took over the reigns at Appalachian State University, he noted that it would be a great challenge to him.

The University promptly upped the towel budget at the Boone school, recalling Maravich's habit of chewing them during the course of the ball games.

Last night, Appalachian opened, and Maravich probably went through a stack of them. By the time it was over, the Mountaineers had fallen, 130-53, to N.C. State.

"The Southern has been called a 'Marshmallow League,'" Maravich said earlier. "But this isn't true. It has come good teams, and it has good scheduling. When recruiting gets better overall it will be a very good league."

But Maravich feels that one of the teams that has a ways to go is his own. "We have lettermen back, but they are weak somewhat in basketball genes. We are stressing ball handling, rebounding, defense and good shot selection," he said.

Maravich said that he is a fast break man at heart, but when he doesn't have the height and board power to trigger it, his team must use some other gimmick.

"I don't even know who our five starters will be," he said during interviews. "But freshmen are going to have a tough time breaking into the lineup."

The coach said that of all the teams he's had, this one is the hardest working. "They haven't complained a bit," he said. "But we are still far behind in meeting our target date."

That date was last night, and apparently, the Mountaineers didn't catch up.

"We have create an image," Maravich said. "There are a number of people who don't even know we're in the conference yet." He pointed out that one leading pre-season magazine left Appalachian out of its Southern Conference round up. "And I know the editor of the magazine, and I'm going to tell him a thing or two," Maravich added.

"We've got to recruit one or two above average players for the next two or three years. We need some big men too if possible."

Key men in the lineup appear to be John Rutt, 6-6, 215, at center, Stan Davis, 6-2, 170, and Charles Barnes, 5-11, 160, at guards, and Erwin Hill, 6-4, 205, and Kinney Baughman, 6-7, 175, at forwards.

Larry Dudas, 6-7, 235, has been moved to the forward spot, but Maravich notes that he's experimenting to try and find the best five he can put on the floor.

"If we decide to be a fast team, we're going to be hurting in height," Maravich said. "If we decide to try and get on the boards, we're going to be slow, and I just can't stand this. I'd rather be 0-26 and fast than be slow, although there are times you have to play at different speeds."

Maravich has the whole year ahead of him, his first at Appalachian, and he's probably glad that N.C. State only appears once, and that once is now history.

Miller Glad Names Absent

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — The absence of Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino and Arnold Palmer made it easier for Johnny Miller to win the $125,000 Heritage Golf Classic on Monday.

Miller said so himself. "Coming into the last couple of holes, you know, anything can happen," he said.

"But I felt I could handle those guys around me (the challengers), except maybe Tom Weiskopf. You know, most of them are young guys and I figured I could beat them."

"But it would be something else if you're coming into the last few holes and Arnold or Jack or Lee is there."

"Those guys—they're the best players in the world—they put the pressure on you."

But they weren't playing in this one, and Miller casually sauntered off with a front-running victory, his second on the pro golf tour and also his second, unofficially, in as many weeks.

He won an unofficial title in New Zealand just a week ago, a victory that the 25-year-old Miller said set him up for the triumph on the 6,555-yard Harbour Town Golf Links, one of the toughest courses the touring pros play all year.

"Winning in New Zealand gave me the confidence I needed," he said.

Miami Runs Over St. Louis As Fans Go Nuts, Write To Cosell

By HUBERT MIZELL
Associated Press Sports Writer
MIAMI (AP) — Young Otto Stowe streaked out of Paul Warfield's shadow to catch two touchdown passes for Miami's all-winning Dolphins and vowed not to remain backstage much longer.

"I love playing in Miami and winning is wonderful," said the sophomore pro from Iowa State, "but I'm not planning to sit on the bench for another season."

With the incomparable Warfield resting an injured leg, Stowe ran past befuddled St. Louis cornerback Norm Thompson to catch a 37-yard bomb from Earl Morrall and a 27-yarder from Jim Del Gaizo.

Miami bullied the Cardinals 31-10 in Monday night's laughable National Football League mismatch. It ended in a circus atmosphere with fans running amid players during the closing minutes while ABC-TV cameras worked at avoiding the exhibitionists.

"These fans are crazy," said sportscaster Howard Cosell, who turned a threatening letter from a Miami follower over to the FBI earlier in the weekend. "It took cops and police dogs to handle them. This town has gone mad, but we didn't show those nuts on TV. We don't want this to start all over the country."

The Dolphins are 11-0, three games from becoming the NFL's first undefeated regular season team since the 1942 Chicago Bears. Ahead on the schedule are New England, the

New York Giants and Baltimore.

Stowe blazed past the napping Thompson and was as lonely as a hermit for the first touchdown shot from Morrall. Thompson later was carried bodily into the end zone from five yards out as Jim Kiick smashed for another score.

Then, with the second-year defenseman from Utah on the ropes, Stowe hit him again as backup quarterback Del Gaizo arched the football into his uncontended arms.

Morrall hit 12 of 19 passes for 210 yards against the 2-8-

Cards. The Dolphins, who began operations in 1966, reached a milestone Monday night. They hit the .500 mark at 46-46-1 in their seventh season, the earliest an expansion team has ever made it.

Shula, in his third season at Miami, is an incredible 31-7-1.

Shula admitted Monday night's effort "wasn't very artistic at the start, but the defense kept the offense in the game until we got our running game going in the second half."

Larry Csonka pounded for 114 yards in 16 carries, Mercury Morris made 55 in 16 and Kiick chipped in with 25 in eight as the three-back running offense mauled the Cardinals.

ABA Will 'Protect'

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The owner of the San Diego Conquistadors says American Basketball Association owners will meet in Louisville Dec. 11 and may hold a special draft of college underclassmen.

Leonard Bloom said Monday his first-year team would have the first pick in such a draft, as well as the No. 1 choice in the regular year-end draft of college seniors.

Two months ago ABA owners voted against a special draft of underclassmen. "But things were different then," Bloom said.

"It looked as though a merger with the NBA was right around the corner, and the league was willing to go along, to avoid anything that might strain the issue. The way the situation is right now, who knows? We might have a merger in January, or we might not. In any case we have to protect ourselves, we have to remain competitive."

Bucs Are Opening

East Carolina University will open its 1972-73 basketball season tonight, playing host to the University of Baltimore.

The Pirates, defending champions in the Southern Conference, will be seeking to start the year on a bright note. Tipoff is set for 8 p.m.

The ECU junior varsity will be after its first victory, going against Mt. Olive Junior College. The Baby Bucs bowed to North Carolina Saturday night by one point in their first outing of the year. Game time for the JV's is 5:45 p.m.

Yankees Spark Trades As 18 Change Teams

By KEN RAPPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer HONOLULU (AP) — The New York Yankees made a big hit and the New York Mets completed a double play in the trading game at baseball's winter meetings.

Before the last man was out Monday, 18 players including such big names as Tommie Agee and Craig Nettles had changed teams as the free-winging officials got the 71st annual session off to a rip-roaring start.

Even before the Major League draft led off official business Monday, the Yankees dropped an early-morning bombshell announcement involving Nettles and five others.

The Yanks, badly in need of a slugger, snapped the power-hitting Nettles from the Cleveland Indians along with catcher Jerry Moses for a covey of young hopefuls—catcher-first baseman John Ellis, outfielders Charlie Spikes and Rusty Torres and infielder Jerry Kenney.

"We traded tomorrow for today," New York General Manager Lee MacPhail said. "The fans have waited long enough for a pennant. We want to win it next year—Yankee Stadium's 50th anniversary.

Taking a cue from their cross-town neighbor, the Mets pulled off a double-barreled swap Monday with the Houston

Astros and the Indians.

The National Leaguers shipped center fielder Agee to the Astros for outfielder Rich Chiles and pitcher Buddy Harris. The Mets then completed their day's business with the announcement that relief pitcher Phil Hennigan had been obtained from the Indians for minor league pitchers Brent Strom and Bob Rauch.

The Pittsburgh Pirates and Detroit Tigers got into the act with a four-player deal only a few hours later. The Pirates obtained two minor league pitchers, left-hander Jim Foor and right-hander Norm McRae, for outfielder Dick Sharon and an undisclosed minor leaguer.

The trade-happy baseball people weren't finished, however. The Cincinnati Reds then dealt outfielder Bill Voss to the St. Louis Cardinals for pitcher Pat Jacquez.

There was other business Monday, although anyone hardly noticed. The hierarchy of the major and minor leagues held several administrative huddles, including the draft of players from baseball's massive farm system.

The major league draft, as usual, didn't produce much. Only six players were picked in a breezy, half-hour session, including the Philadelphia Phillies' No. 1 selection of pitcher Mike Bruhart from the Mets' Tidewater club in the International League.

The Los Angeles Dodgers also made news during the hectic day with the announcement that Tom Lasorda and Marty Basgall had been added to their coaching staff. They replace Danny Ozark, now the manager of the Philadelphia Phillies, and Roy Hartsfield, who left the Dodgers for a coaching job with the Atlanta Braves.

Injuries Don't Stop S.C. Star

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Robert Scott of Clinton High School, a linebacker on the South Carolina Shrine Bowl football squad, says his mother used to beg him not to play because he might get hurt. But, "Now I don't stop for any kind of injury."

"If I'm sick or hurt I don't tell the coach. I've never missed a day of practice in any sport. You can't stop just because of some nagging injury."

Also on the South Carolina squad is Scott's buddy, Charles Norman, who helped lead Clinton to the Upper State 3-A title and its first unbeaten season since 1939.

Norman says that when he was a little lad—he is 6 feet and 210 pounds now—"I was so slow-footed I'd fall when I tried to run. They said I couldn't play. Anytime anybody played football I had to be the center. I even got my nose broke when I fell on a rock out in the field. "Once you start you can't quit. If you hear of a game up the street, you want to be in it."

Scott, 5 feet 10 and 190 pounds, says, "I'm glad for whoever invented football. I'd probably be in jail if it wasn't for that. It keeps a lot of boys out of trouble."

Scott says he and Norman once tried lifting weights but it didn't work. He says they got muscle by eating beans, potatoes and corn bread.

He adds that Clinton is a serene town where everybody gets along, and the South Carolina squad also "gets along. We don't know each other's names yet, but that's no matter."

The South Carolina squad of selected high school seniors will play a similar North Carolina squad in Charlotte Saturday. The annual game benefits the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children in Greenville, S.C.

On the North Carolina squad is Russ Conley, a back and safety man regarded as the best player on the Canton Pisgah High School team which won 24 games in a row before losing recently to Waynesville Tuscola in the second round of the state 3-A playoffs.

He says Pisgah was successful because, "We out-drilled and out prepared just about every team we played." He says Pisgah, coached by Joe Compton, didn't do anything fancy, "just the things that worked. We ran the T and the old Notre Dame box (a type of single-wing formation) and we just drilled on everything until we got it right."

Conley, 6 feet 1 and 160 pounds, does the 40-yard dash in 4.7 seconds. "All our backs did the 40 at least as fast as me," he says. "And our linemen were averaged sized guys who believed in that thing about drilling."

Conley scored 17 touchdowns this season, five of them on punt returns.

"I like to be the man who handles the ball and gets the play started," he says. "But Coach Compton got us to believing that a block is better than a TD. And when backs block consistently for each other, you really develop unity. That was out trademark."

Buckeyes, Wolfpack In Opening Game Victories

By TED MEIER

Associated Press Sports Writer

Ohio State's red-hot sophomores of 1971 hope to get the chance this season that they missed out on last season—that of dethroning UCLA as the national collegiate basketball champion.

A year ago the Scarlet and Gray, led by Luke Witte and Alan Hornyak, were given an excellent chance of ending UCLA's reign. They failed to qualify for the NCAA national championship postseason tournament when Minnesota beat them out for the Big Ten title.

Now seniors, Witte and Hornyak combined for 47 points Tuesday night in leading Ohio State to a 92-81 opening game victory over Wisconsin-Milwaukee. The 7-foot Witte scored 24 points and 15 rebounds for the Buckeyes, 10th-ranked in the pre-season Associated Press poll. Hornyak hit for 23 points.

"We did some things reasonably well, like play about 15 minutes without an error, but it was a sometime thing," commented Ohio State Coach Fred Taylor. "Part of that might have been because of their zone. It destroyed our tempo."

'Cats To Dump Ray

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The University of Kentucky Athletic Board voted Monday night not to renew the contract of head football Coach John Ray.

UK President Otis Singletary said that he will appoint a screening committee "right away" to begin looking for Ray's successor. He indicated the committee would be headed by Athletic Director Harry Lancaster.

No target date has been set to name a new coach, according to Singletary. "My view is that we ought to move as rapidly as possible on this, though," he said.

Ray's four-year contract is due to expire Dec. 12. During his career at Kentucky his teams compiled a 10-33 record. His 3-8 showings this season and last were his best.

Reviewing his four-year struggle Monday night, Ray said, "It's been a very trying experience and an educational one."

Oglesby, Pratt Receive Honors

GREENSBORO, N. C. (AP) — Running back Ike Oglesby and tackle Robert Pratt, two of the leaders in North Carolina's 42-19 win over East Carolina, are the Atlantic Coast Conference's offensive Players of the Week.

The selections were made by a committee of the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association. It was the final poll of the season.

Oglesby was selected after rushing for 119 yards and scoring three times against the Pirates while Pratt was cited for his upfront blocking which enabled the Tar Heels' runners to rush for 295 yards against a defense which has ranked among the national leaders all season.

A senior from Greensboro, Oglesby enjoyed his finest performance of the season. He carried the ball 21 times and scored three consecutive touchdowns on runs of one, seven and three yards. His one-yard blast in the second quarter was his first touchdown of the season.

"That first touchdown meant a lot to me," Oglesby said after the game. "I knew it was the first time I had scored since early last season."

The 119 yard performance enabled Oglesby to move into second place in the ACC rushing statistics with an average of 71.1 yards per game.

Pratt, a 253-pound junior from Richmond, Va., had the key blocks on the left side of the line on two of Oglesby's touchdowns.

Earlier, two Clemson players, linebacker Jimmy Williamson and cornerback Jeff Siepe, were picked as the defensive players for their performance in the Tigers' 7-6 win over South Carolina.

The last ten seasons were very smooth.

Police Hunt Assailant In Shooting At School

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Police continued to search today for an unidentified assailant who pulled a gun during a scuffle and wounded five students, one seriously, at Pontiac Central High School.

Witnesses said the shooting Monday occurred after an apparent confrontation between black and white students. It was the first outbreak this year in the once-troubled inner city school with a 30 per cent black student population.

School and police officials, however, tended to dismiss racial tensions as the cause of the incident, viewing it as an isolated flareup. Sophomore student Timothy Williams, 15, who had been hospitalized in serious condition after being shot in the back, was described in fair condition by Monday night after undergoing surgery.

The other four — two boys and two girls — were released from hospitals later Monday. One girl is black, the other four pupils are white, school officials said.

Lt. James Lafnear, school police counselor, said the scuffling occurred as classes changed. Police said the trouble apparently began when a student identified as Dale Miller, 16, was kicked and shoved by other students in the courtyard.

Authorities said a black youth, believed to be a student, suddenly pulled a .22 or .25 caliber pistol and began shooting in an open courtyard between school buildings.

Police said 30 to 50 youths were on hand when the shooting started.

MIGRATES AT JET SPEED — This black skimmer migrated from Huntington, N.Y. to Jacksonville, Fla. at 500 miles an hour Monday—with the help of a jet plane. Mrs. J.R. She will release the young bird with the flock on Fort George Island, near Jacksonville, Fla. (AP Wirephoto)

Newsman Is Back In Jail

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A newsman who refused to tell a judge the source of a news story is back in jail for the second time in two weeks.

Before William Farr was led away Monday after a hearing, Superior Court Judge Charles Older said, "It appears to the court at this time that Mr. Farr has a strong desire to become a martyr and that he wants to go to jail."

The 37-year-old reporter said, "It is a problem of personal conscience and professional ethics, not for the purpose of martyring. I'm the one who knows, and you do not."

Farr faces an indefinite sentence for contempt of court. The case hinges on a story by Farr that appeared in the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner on Oct. 9, 1970, during the Charles Manson murder trial. Farr wrote about Manson clan plans to kill Hollywood celebrities.

Farr was jailed briefly last week after refusing to obey Older's order to disclose the source of the story.

MATERNITY STAYS CUT CHICAGO (UPI) — Good news! Maternity stays are being cut by two days at Loyola University Hospital in Chicago, reducing the costs of childbirth more than 50 per cent for middle-income couples.

Dr. James A. O'Leary, head of obstetrics and gynecology, says the total average obstetric cost of $900 to $1000 is decreased to nearly $400. What the hospital's doing: discharging women who experience a normal delivery after 48 hours.

For Heroism

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — A Carnegie medal for heroism was awarded today to Rudy Lee Morrison, a Raleigh, N.C., policeman who rescued three persons from a burning automobile last Dec. 13.

Rudy Lee Morrison was off duty when he came on the scene where a wrecked station wagon was burning, its three occupants injured and knocked unconscious.

Morrison succeeded in dragging Eugene V. Scurggs, 28, Frances A. Hill, 25, and Charles A. Cunningham, 47 from the burning car at risk of his own safety.

Scurggs died of his injuries, but Mrs. Hill and Cunningham recovered.

Guillotined For Escape Slayings

PARIS (AP) — Two convicts who cut the throats of two hostages in an attempted prison break were guillotined at dawn today in Sante Prison after President Georges Pompidou for the first time refused to commute death sentences.

Claude Buffet and Roger Bon-tempts were the first persons to be executed in France since March 1960. Pompidou, who opposes the death penalty, took

Obscenity Law Is Upheld

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Court of Appeals has ruled that the state's obscenity law is constitutional.

The ruling came in the court's action in upholding the district court conviction of two Charlotte men, Joe Bryan and Raymond Mitchell.

Charlotte police arrested the two men after two officers viewed "peep show" films at the Adult Book Store.

Lawyers for the two men argued that the 1971 law is vague, too broad and omits any requirements of knowledge that something is obscene.

Chief Judge Raymond, who wrote the opinion for a three-judge panel that included

Judges Walter Brock and David Britt, said:

"We hold that any citizen who desires to obey the law will have no difficulty in understanding the conduct proscribed by this statute."

The 1971 law basically incorporates U.S. Supreme Court tests for determining whether material is obscene.

Mallard said the peep show films at the bookstore violated all the tests by:

—Affronting "contemporary national community standards."

—Being "utterly without redeeming social value."

—Having as their dominant theme an appeal "to a prurient interest in sex."

For this reason, the films were not protected by the state and federal constitutions, Mallard wrote.

Mallard also said the law does not require tendering of expert witnesses in obscenity trials. The defendants had objected to the use of a Charlotte news movie reviewer as an expert witness. Four other witnesses tendered as experts were not challenged.

"There was ample evidence," Mallard wrote, "in the evidence upon which to base a finding that each of the state's witnesses who were permitted to give their opinions was an expert (by education, or travel, or experience, or all combined) in the area of life relating to factors entering into the determination of the issue of obscenity."

The films, Mallard said, were "incontrovertibly obscene" and without any entertainment or educational value.

Dream Boat

Building a concrete boat in a Hackettstown, N. J., backyard, to sail around the world in, isn't a fantasy. It may have started as a dream, but it's on its way to becoming reality for Leo "Red" Grogan. He's building himself a 64-foot staysail schooner, Serpent Queen, at home in Hackettstown, and he's been planning for over seven years to sail away with his family on a permanent voyage of discovery "to see what the rest of the world is like." The family numbers six: Grogan, his wife, Andrea, and their four children. With his fiery red beard and one gold earring hanging from his left ear, Grogan already has the air of a sea adventurer. He has a four-year hitch with the Navy behind him. Once at sea, he expects to keep the enterprise solvent by picking up work wherever he goes: he can turn his hand to various kinds of industrial maintenance, mining, construction and engineering work. The pictures on this page show him at work on his boat's metal frame—the next step was to shape the outer shell using a simplified plastering technique with ferro cement.

The Worry Clinic Early Trauma Changes Lives

Notice how this cute coed shocked young Edward into remaining a lifelong bachelor! His subconscious fear of another traumatic experience has thus made him "crawfish" out of literally hundreds of possible romantic unions. So use the Rating Scales below!

By George W. Crane.
Ph.D., M.D.
CASE V-556: Edward F., aged

21, was a brilliant college senior. He was attracted to a pretty girl who impressed him as being of a cultured, moral background.

It was late in May when many college couples were renting canoes for romantic rides on the placid lagoon.

So Edward asked this coed for a canoe date. They returned from their 2-hour trip about 15 minutes early. Frugal Edward ran the prow upon the shore about 100 yards from the dock where he was to return the craft.

Then he moved close to her in the prow of the canoe so they could hold hands.

was still so irate she wouldn't talk to me, even when I left her at her sorority house."

PSYCHIC TRAUMA
My purpose in citing this canoe accident, is to illustrate the indelible influence on personality of an early traumatic experience.

For Edward became an engineering expert and made a fortune by the time he was 33.

And he dated literally hundreds of beautiful debutantes at their "coming out" parties in Boston, New York and Philadelphia.

In fact, he was the most attractive bachelor you could imagine.

For he was not only handsome, wealthy and superb ski addict.

But he also was a champion dancer and "waltz king."

Now, at the age of 70, he is still a bachelor, though he consciously professes a great desire to marry.

But he always "crawfishes" when he meets charming women who seem compatible and congenial.

For he manages to find some little flaw in every eligible woman he dates.

Like many old bachelors, he thus professes a "conscious" desire for marriage but then "subconsciously" shies away via fabricated excuses.

For Edward is subconsciously a victim of the "psychiatric trauma" that dates back to that disastrous canoe upset.

He still subconsciously fears that any future "dream girl"

But when it came time to paddle over to the dock, he started back to his end of the craft.

Alas, the canoe turned over! Both of them plunged into the water, fully clothed in their best apparel.

"Dr. Crane," Edward confessed to me years later, "I never was so shocked in all my life."

"And I don't refer to the cold water."

"For this girl started swearing and cursing at me like a drunken sailor on the wharf at San Francisco!"

"I never had dreamed she even knew such 4-letter words, for I had idolized her as my 'dream girl.'"

"Well, I never asked her for another date."

"And I doubt if she would ever have accepted, anyway, for she

Try A Spray To Fireproof Tree

NEW YORK (UPI) —There are sprays on the market for fireproofing a Christmas tree.

If you use one, don't let that lead you into a false sense of security, say accident fighters.

The old rules still apply: keep the tree's base moist; don't smoke cigarettes or stand lighted candles near the tree; avoid overloading the tree with lights which create heat. Also:

make sure your tree lights bear the Underwriters Laboratories (UL) label.

Tree Needn't Be Up 12 Days

NEW YORK (UPI) —Never mind about keeping your tree up all the 12 days of Christmas.

It's time to take the tree down when the needles begin to fall—be that the fifth, sixth or some other day short of the magic 12.

The advice from Metropolitan Life is based on accident prevention. A tree dry enough to lose its needles is a tinder box.

Garbage To Pay Own Way

LOWELL, Mass. (UPI) —Garbage a natural resource? Well, that concept becomes reality in Lowell where plans call for the nation's first, full-scale operating plant to recover reusable metals and minerals from solid waste.

The garbage into resource project, costing $2.2 million, will be ready to operate in two years. The plant is expected to pay its own way once functioning.

I left the theater shaken by the film's demolishing portrayal of an incredibly subtle battle of the sexes between Eastwood as a Southern school's pre-occupied, more shaken than when I staggered out of "Rosemary's Baby" a couple of years ago.

Produced by Michael Winner. Directed by Clint Eastwood. Screenplay by William Goldman. Music by Elmer Bernstein. Cast: Clint Eastwood, Faye Dunaway, John Wood, George E. Stone, John D'Leo, John F. Kennedy, John F. Kennedy, John F. Kennedy.

Opening lead: King of ♦

In order to bring his four spade contract safely home, South was obliged to revise his plan of campaign twice during the course of the play.

West opened the king of diamonds and continued with the ace as East echoed by playing first the five and then the deuce to show a doubleton. West accordingly continued with the jack of diamonds. Declarer cautiously discarded a club from dummy to avoid an over-err and East did the same. It was South's intention eventually to trump his losing club, which appeared to be the safer course.

Having apparently located his opponent's weak spot, West continued with a fourth round of diamonds. Dummy discarded a heart, East ruffed in with the jack of spades and South overruffed with the king. The ace of trumps was led next, and when East showed out—discarding a heart, declarer realized that he must abandon his design for ruffing a club in dummy inasmuch as it had now become necessary to use North's spades for the purpose of pulling West's trumps.

A small spade was led and when West followed with the eight, North covered with the nine and East parted with a club. The ace of hearts was cashed followed by a heart ruff. A trump was led to the queen felling West's ten and on this play, East—who was left with the king-jack of hearts and the Q-10-8 of clubs—found the pressure unbearable. This was the position confronting East as it was his turn to play:

NORTH

If East discarded the jack of hearts, it would enable declarer to establish North's ten of hearts by ruffing away the king. East, therefore, chose to throw a club. South now cashed the king of clubs and led a small one to his ace, dropping the outstanding cards in that suit. His four of clubs took the final trick.

Charge Two In Pitt Break-In

Two men are in Pitt County Jail following their arrests early Friday morning on charges of breaking, entering and larceny of a Fountain service station.

Pitt Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that Saratoga police arrested Marvin Earl Williams, 35, of Rt.

2, Stantonburg, and Lonnie Jones Jr., 40, of Box 202, Fountain on public drunkenness charges and they were later charged with entering Ellis' Esso at Fountain.

The sheriff noted that the station break-in was reported early Friday and the owner listed some $177 in merchandise missing from the business.

Entry was gained, it was determined, after a glass pane was broken out of a rear door.

There are nearly 200,000 different species of plants that bloom in the world.

Store damage was estimated at approximately $25, he added.

Sheriff Tyson said that after the two men were arrested in Saratoga, Pitt deputies charged them in connection with the Fountain break-in and jailed them here under $4,000 bond each. A hearing was scheduled for Dec. 13 in District Court.

He reported that a portion of the merchandise was recovered. Assisting in the investigation and arrests were the Wilson County Sheriff's Department, and Fountain and Saratoga police.

There are nearly 200,000 different species of plants that bloom in the world.

Social Drinking With A Jolt

NEW YORK (UPI)—At the Mendota State Hospital Alcoholism Treatment Center history's being made. Alcoholics are taught social drinking—but with a difference.

The California experiment, conducted under the direction of Dr. G. Alan Marlatt, included a bar on hospital grounds. But it's only big enough for one customer who periodically is jarred by an electrical shock applied to his hand. This aversion treatment, as it is known, has been pretty successful in reducing the amount a relapsed patient will drink, a recent issue of Psychiatric News, publication of the American Psychiatric Association, says.

Highway Commission Changes Set By Holshouser

RALEIGH (AP) — You can expect some changes to be made in North Carolina's State Highway Commission after Jim Holshouser takes over as governor next January.

Holshouser told a news conference Monday the highway commission is one agency where the people are expecting changes.

"It's hard to say how fast the change will come, but it will come," he added.

"There is every indication at least from the state auditor on down that nobody on the outside really knows very much about what's going on" in the highway department, the governor-elect added.

He said he does not want to "start throwing stones unnecessarily right now" at state agencies, but the Highway Commission "stands out so that it's easy to point that one out."

Holshouser later told the Associated Press in answer to a question that he plans to follow through on charges he made during the 1971 General Assembly that some state workers were using state cars for their own personal use.

"You better believe we are," he said. "Private use of state cars is going to come to a halt as near as possible."

Holshouser had stated previously he plans to place his own appointees in top-level state jobs.

California Work Rule Trims Welfare Ranks

By CHARLES McFADDEN
Associated Press Writer
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California's able-bodied welfare recipients are beginning to trade welfare grants for pay checks under a mandatory work program, state officials say.

One-time recipients are working as auto mechanics, busboys, sheet metal workers, barbers, warehousemen and in other fields, says Bill Lawson of the Department of Human Resources Development.

In the six counties where the 4-month-old program is operating, 2,707 welfare recipients have been classified as employable, Lawson said. Of that total, 1,127 — or 42 per cent — are on regular jobs in private industry, 230 others are in training and 184 have been given "work experience assignments," he reported.

An additional 371 have been kicked off welfare rolls for refusing to take a job or training, Lawson added Monday.

Those for whom the state's unemployment office can't find a job immediately in the private sector are working for local governments in various jobs such as school crossing guards and parking lot attendants, Lawson said. Their only pay is their welfare checks.

"They're not just raking leaves," Lawson said. "It's work that needs to be done but otherwise wouldn't be done without raising taxes. And it gives them work experience, don't forget that."

The department claims more than 50 per cent of the recipients have moved into private jobs or job training and only about 7 per cent are in public service work.

Mandatory work assignments are limited to 80 hours monthly in the public service sector. Recipients who fail to accept "suitable" job offers or quit looking for private employment lose their welfare benefits, Lawson said. Gov. Ronald Reagan's administration estimates some 30,000 persons will eventually be included in the program as it is expanded to other counties.

The job-finding program is run jointly by the state's employment office, state welfare office and county welfare offices.

The program exempts persons under 16 years of age and those over 65. Mothers who take care of children aged 6 or under also exempted.

For Safety, Use No Real Candles
NEW YORK (UPI) — Candles look nice in windows at Christmas time, provided they are electric. Not for an instant entertain the idea of putting a real candle in a window—even a window that seems a safe place for a lighted candle. Even with electric candles keep curtains and other flammable material pulled back.

Also for a safe Christmas: turn off all Christmas lights at night when everyone is out of the house. The accident prevention tips are from fire fighters.

Academy Elects 2 Physicians
Two Greenville family physicians, Dr. Quentin A. Mewborn Jr. and Dr. Harry H. McLean III, have been elected to active membership in the American Academy of Family Physicians.

As members of AAFP, Dr. Mewborn and Dr. McLean will be required to complete 150 hours of continuing medical study every three years. The program, unique among national medical association requirements, is designed to help member physicians keep abreast of the latest scientific developments in medicine. The Academy was instrumental in the establishment of a new primary specialty in family practice in 1969.

He favors giving the governor the veto power but "to place it in proper perspective, I would recommend it for my successor."

—He does not think the state is prepared to fully implement the state kindergarten program yet because of the difficulty of getting qualified teachers.

—He plans to have some specific comment shortly on the drug abuse problem in North Carolina.

—He feels the General Assembly should have a little more independence and should "get away from the rubber stamp that has been over there."

He also feels he can get along with a Democratic-controlled legislature, adding, "I've never felt it would be a six-month honeymoon."

—He has not made up his mind on a liaison man to represent him in dealings with the General Assembly. He pointed out, "it will have to be some one who has served in the legislature and one who can work effectively on a personality basis."

—He has not yet seen the detailed budget recommendations of the Advisory Budget Commission.

Disillusionment In AMA Ranks
By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Writer
CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The American Medical Association is in trouble because of "far too much defection from our ranks" by disillusioned members, a doctor says.

Dr. Jack Schreiber of Canfield, Ohio, a delegate to the organization's biannual national convention, declared in an address Monday to the AMA's Council on Long-Range Planning (CLRP):

FDA Has List Of Banned Toys

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Food and Drug Administration's (FDA) Bureau of Product Safety has published a compilation of all toys it has banned up to Aug. 31. The Child Protection and Toy Safety Act of 1969 authorized the FDA to ban toys and other children's products with electrical, mechanical or heat hazards.

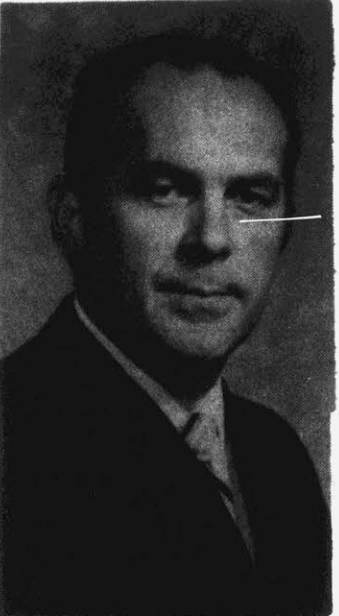

Each entry in the 43-page booklet, Banned Toys, has the name and location of the manufacturer, means of identifying the banned article, date of banning and hazard that caused the ban. Banned Toys is free to consumers. For a copy, write to the Bureau of Product Safety, Food and Drug Administration, 5401 Westbard Ave., Bethesda, Md., 20016.
