Gird For Traffic Jam

COCOA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Police are bracing for a last-minute assault of moon-shot watchers numbering more than a half-million who are arriving in campers, cars and yachts to view the Apollo 17 launch Wednesday night.

Hundreds of police throughout a five-county area will work through their days off and extra shifts to handle the crowds jamming U.S. Highway 1 and other major roadways.

"It's going to be a helluva pileup," said Lt. Len Brady of the Florida Highway Patrol.

"This is our first nighttime experience and we expect trouble primarily with pedestrians who wander onto the highways."

Floodlights attached to portable generators will illuminate dark intersections in key areas around Cocoa Beach which will also be manned by traffic cops decked out in fluorescent orange clothing.

Civil Defense, Red Cross, Salvation Army, civilian volunteers and various police and fire agencies have combined to draw up a master plan for people control.

Checks Being Mailed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal revenue-sharing checks go into the mail this week and the Treasury Department advises cities and states not to be surprised if they get less than expected.

Charles E. Walker, deputy Treasury secretary, said Monday that the complex formula under which state and local government allotments are figured will not be updated until early next year.

The local governments, Walker said, should be patient until the department publishes the full information on which the checks were based.

Some 39,000 governmental jurisdictions should receive federal payments under the revenue-sharing plan, approved by Congress and President Nixon this year.

The first checks will total about $2.7 billion. The present authorization is for a $30-billion program over five years.

The Treasury Department says it will make adjustments in payments where necessary once new statistics are compiled early next year.

Identify Lost Fliers

CHERRY POINT, N.C. (AP) — Two Cherry Point Marine crewmen whose A6 Intruder aircraft crashed in Pamlico Sound Monday morning have been identified by military authorities.

Missing and presumed dead are Capt. Robert E. Baurle, 33, the bombardier-navigator, of Waukegan, Ill., and 1st Lt. Michael A. Rohrer, 25, the pilot, of Homestead, Fla.

Both men lived with their wives at Havelock, N.C. The search continues in an area 30 miles northeast of Morehead City. Pieces of personal equipment and aircraft wreckage have been sighted. However, there have been no reported signs of life.

An investigation of the crash is being conducted by military investigators.

The two took off from Cherry Point Marine Air Station early Monday morning. The crash occurred at 9:50 a.m.

Told To Remove Pier

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — The Army Corps of Engineers has given Carolina Cape Fear Corp., developers of Bald Head Island, until January 1 to remove the pier they constructed without a permit in Bald Head Creek.

Col. Albert C. Costanzo said the Corps would sue in federal court if the developers failed to comply with the order.

Last month, the Secretary of the Army denied the required permit for the pier, which Carolina Cape Fear had built in 1971. In his decision, Robert Froehke said the plan to develop the island was "contrary to the public interest" for environmental reasons.

Costanzo also Monday denied Carolina Cape Fear a permit to build a second pier, this one in the Cape Fear River. He said he had done so on the same grounds as Froehke in the earlier decision.

Costanzo said he would not accept further pier applications for Bald Head Island unless they were associated with a new concept for use of the island.

Midwest Crops Hurt

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (AP) — An unusually wet autumn in the Midwest has bogged down the harvest schedule and may cost farmers millions of dollars.

The storms have left fields too wet to harvest and unable to bear the weight of heavy farm equipment.

Especially hard hit are grain and soybean farmers in the Wabash Valley of Indiana.

Pitt School Bd. Agrees Will Ask Extending Of ESAP

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Education Monday afternoon agreed to file an application seeking an extension of the Emergency School Assistance Program for the remainder of the school year.

John Taylor, administrative assistant to the superintendent of Pitt County Schools, told the board that the ESAP project will be funded through January 31 only.

The school system fills 45 positions with ESAP money, including librarian aides for the elementary schools, high school aides, high school teachers, music teachers, clerical aides, guidance counselors and a public relations person.

In addition to seeking an extension on the project through the current school year, board members voted to request funds for the 1973 school year.

Taylor said he has been led to believe that the Pitt County Schools would receive ESAP funds through the current year but was told at a regional meeting in Atlanta, Ga., on Nov. 21 that the funds would not extend beyond Jan. 31.

Douglas R. Jones was welcomed as a new member of the board of education. He replaces Richard Worsley of Greenville who did not seek re-election in the May primary.

A native of Farmville, Jones received his education from the Farmville public schools and East Carolina University where he received the A.B. and M.A. degrees in mathematics. Later, he received the Ed.D. degree in elementary administration at George Peabody College for Teachers in Nashville, Tenn. He has served as dean of the School of Education at ECU since 1963. Jones served as a navigator in the Army Air Corps from 1943 until 1945.

He is presently serving as chairman of the Early Childhood Education Committee on the state level and as chairman of the State Committee on Teachers Aides. He is listed in Who's Who in American Education and Who's Who in America.

He is married to the former Mary Massengill of Danville, Va., and they have one son, Douglas Jr. They reside at 1711 Rosewood Dr.

Board members Robert D. Stokes and William Earl House are beginning new six year terms on the board and Kenneth Dews was elected in the May primary to serve the last two years of A.D. McLawhorn's term.

Lack Federal Funds

Newtown Construction Bids Rejected

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

A lack of Federal funds has resulted in the rejection of construction bids for the Newtown Project by the Housing Authority and has necessitated another delay in the execution of the long awaited housing endeavor. Commissioners gave their approval to a package of four base bids last month subject to successful negotiations with HUD for additional funds to bring the Authority's budget more in line in construction costs.

With the bids exceeding project prototype costs and the unavailability of the needed funds, commissioners voted to reject the contract offers Monday night and readvertise for construction bids.

Commissioners authorized architect Cameron Dudley of Dudley & Shoe to proceed with revisions and modifications of the Newtown plans and readvertise as soon as possible.

Dudley said that he felt he could make changes in the plans that would cut costs and not be detrimental to the project and he will hopefully begin advertising by the end of this week or the first of next. He added that he hopes to open the bids sometime early in January and therefore not have much more than a month's delay in the project.

Construction bids approved last month amounted collectively to a project cost of $1,210,993, a figure that was roughly $75,000 over the Newtown budget. Commissioners were told then that the figure exceeded the budget because of miscalculations on grading and landscaping costs. Funds from HUD were counted on to favorably adjust the budget.

A brief occupancy report, submitted by Mrs. Sallye C. Streeter, director of tenant affairs, revealed that all 453 units operated by the Authority were in use at the end of November.

The 65 units in N.C. 22-1 (Meadowbrook) were rented and residents there paid an average of $36.91 in rent. All 160 units in N.C. 22-2 (Kearney Park) were occupied, she reported, and rent averaged $37.01.

In N.C. 22-3 (Moyewood) the 188 units were occupied with rent averaging $38.80 and in N.C. 22-4 (Moyewood), rent averaged $34.98 and all 40 units were occupied.

In other business, commissioners voted to retain Ralph Hall as clerk-of-the-works or job inspector, during the readvertising period for the Newtown construction bids. Hall, who will be responsible to the architect for on-the-job inspection during the Newtown construction, is on the Authority payroll.

Approval for executive director Joe Laney and Mrs. Streeter to attend a relocation workshop Sunday through Tuesday in Goldsboro was given.

Preparations Move Smoothly On Final Apollo Voyage To The Moon

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Preparations for Wednesday's last Apollo flight to the moon are "the smoothest we've had in some time," a space agency official said today as the pace accelerated on the launch pad for the 9:53 p.m. liftoff.

Astronauts Eugene A. Cernan, Ronald E. Evans and Harrison H. Schmitt slept late to adjust their biological time clocks, and expected to do some pleasure-flying in jet trainers and last-minute cramming for the flight of Apollo 17.

At 7 a.m. the downward-ticking clock reached the 28-hour mark — the official start of the terminal phase when the spacecraft and its systems receive final checks and fuel.

At 1 a.m. Wednesday, the 402-foot-high service structure will be rolled away and the Saturn 5 will stand alone, poised for the half-million mile, 13-day journey.

All systems — human, hardware, weather and rodent — were ready for America's first night launching of humans into space — and the last moon landing in the foreseeable future.

The launch crew ran into the usual number of minor and easily fixable problems — hose connections that sprung leaks, an air filter that didn't fit, a piece of scientific equipment that wasn't working right.

None of it was important enough to disrupt the minute-by-minute schedule as electronic clocks tick downward for the liftoff.

"The weather outlook continues to be favorable," the space agency said. "The forecast calls for partly cloudy skies with winds from 8-12 m.p.h. out of the south. The temperature in the vicinity of the launch pad should be in the 60s."

That should be good news for the 500,000 space buffs expected in the Cape Kennedy area in central Florida and millions of others in a 500-mile radius who will see the Saturn 5's 2,200-foot-long tail of fire if skies are clear.

And the rodents — five tiny mice who'll give their lives for science — come aboard today in individual tubes inside a sealed aluminum canister. They'll ride in the command ship America with Evans round-and-round the moon while Cernan and Schmitt explore the combination highland-lowland area of Taurus-Littrow on the surface.

Experimenters implanted wafer-like cosmic ray detectors under the skulls of the mice. Back on earth, the tiny natives of the California desert will be killed and their pea-sized brains examined to determine how cosmic radiation has affected brain tissue.

That experiment looks to the future when humans hope to make extended space flights, but another lunar landing by Americans is not in plans for the rest of the century except perhaps as a joint Russian-American venture.

Lynn To Succeed Romney

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has selected Undersecretary of Commerce James T. Lynn to succeed George Romney as secretary of Housing and Urban Development in his second-term Cabinet, sources reported today.

The disclosure came as it was learned that Secretary of Commerce Peter G. Peterson will leave his current position some time in January to head a new government council in charge of all U.S. international economic policy.

The soon-to-be announced nomination of Lynn continues his rapid climb up the government ladder. He joined the Commerce department in 1969 as general counsel and was named to his present position in March 1971.

Romney announced two weeks ago he was leaving the Cabinet post he has held for four years to head up a new citizens action organization.

'Cancel' Session

PARIS (AP) — The negotiating session today between Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho was canceled this morning, but U.S. and North Vietnamese spokesmen said they would meet again Wednesday.

No explanation was given for cancellation of today's meeting. There was speculation that the announcement was a ruse to mislead newsmen, and that President Nixon's national security adviser and the Hanoi Politburo member were planning a secret rendezvous.

Eleven days ago during the last round of Kissinger-Tho negotiations, the North Vietnamese announced that the two men would not meet that day. But they slipped off to a suburban site and conferred for an hour.

Kissinger and Tho resumed negotiations Monday after a nine-day recess. They met for a total of five hours amid a complete news blackout.

Birth Rate In U.S. Slowing

NEW YORK (AP) — For the first time, the nation's fertility rate has dropped below the "replacement" level of 2.1 children per family that is needed to achieve zero population growth, the New York Times reports.

While the nation's population is still growing, it appears that the annual rate of increase this year will be about 0.7 per cent, little more than half the annual rate of 1.3 per cent averaged during the 1960s, the Times said today.

The Times gave this account, based on new figures in the federal Monthly Vital Statistics Report:

For 19 consecutive months both the birth rate and the number of actual births each month has been lower than in the same month the year before.

Figures for the first nine months of this year showed the estimated fertility rate was 2.08 children per family. This compares to 2.39 children per family for the same period of 1971.

Analysts say the significance of the new rate is that the country has broken through the "2.1 barrier" for the first time.

The 2.1 children-per-family figure is what the nation would need to eventually stabilize its population, assuming no immigration, and this is the goal of the zero population growth movement.

The figure is 2.1 rather than 2 to account for girls who die before reaching child-bearing age.

If the 2.1 fertility rate were maintained for 70 years the population would stabilize at about 320 million. It is now about 209.3 million.

The fertility rate decline is attributed by population experts to a variety of factors, including the desire of women to have smaller families.

New Martin Hospital To Open In Few Weeks

WILLIAMSTON — The new Martin County Hospital, dedicated Sunday in ceremonies attended by more than 300 interested persons, is expected to receive its first patient by the first of the year.

The $3 million plus structure, a three story one, will initially have two floors in operations. The third floor is roughed in and will require only partitioning to be ready for use.

The modern building was designed to accommodate an additional two stories, to make it into a five story hospital with more than 200 beds when the need for expansion arises. When the doors to Martin County's first hospital opens in a few weeks, the facility will be prepared to serve a total of 50 patients.

The staff of the hospital will consist of 17 doctors, including five dentists. Staff doctors are from Williamston, Robersonville and Washington.

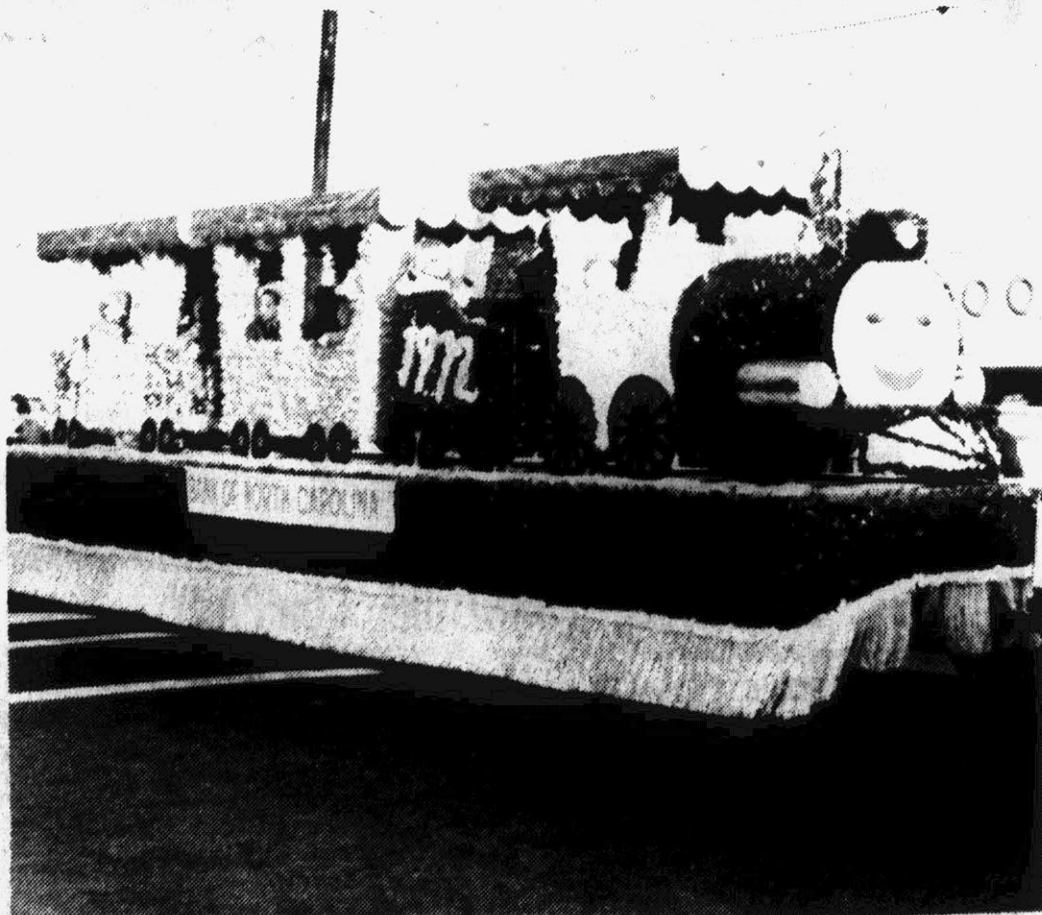

Congressman Walter Jones, guest speaker at the dedication on Sunday, noted that under the Hill-Burton Act, assistance to construction of hospitals in North Carolina now amounted to some $430 million in 495 different projects providing 17,672 hospital beds.

He pointed out that there is still a future need for 13,000 additional hospital beds in North Carolina and that about 4,000 obsolete ones need to be replaced.

In addition to Jones, others participating in dedication ceremonies included Wade Avant of Raleigh, Hospital Consultant for the N.C. Medical Care Association; David Boyd, chairman of the Hospital Building Committee and attorney Clarence Grifton.

Christmas Parade Held In Farmville Yesterday

By CAROL TYER

Reflector Staff Writer
FARMVILLE — The balloon vendors converged on Farmville yesterday for one of the few remaining Christmas parades in Eastern North Carolina.

Their cries of "just one quarter" and "Let the kiddie have a balloon" blended with the aura of antique cars straddling the center line of Main Street and candy-colored floats and regally outfitted bands playing yuletide melodies.

Even if the weather was unseasonably warm, the motifs of the floats were Christmasy and so were the smiling faces of the pretty girls and the children obviously thrilled to be riding a float or skating in the parade. The drivers of the old cars and their passengers seemed to be enjoying it, too.

Chamber of Commerce President Rom Webber and Mayor Will Joyner rode the lead car. Bands from Farmville Central, Robersonville, and Greene Central High Schools and H.B. Sugg Middle School and Farmville Junior High School took part.

Among others equally as appealing, the spectators saw a toyland float with a ferris wheel that actually gave its teddy bear riders a whirl, a train full of preschool riders, and a real house that proclaimed "Home is the Place To Be At Christmas."

Only unobtrusive signs on the sides of the floats indicated the merchants who paid for each. Santa Claus's appearance was, of course, the climax. However, the crowds didn't seem quite as jubilant to see him, perhaps because they weren't caught up in a rush to catch penny candy he has thrown in years past.

Parties Before Apollo Launching

By ANN HELLMUTH
Associated Press Writer
COCOA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Barbara Cernan and Jan Evans are the two most popular women in town.

Every hostess worth her salt is trying to get the wives of the two married Apollo 17 astronauts to attend her party.

And for the last Apollo flight, just like the ones that went before, there are parties and parties. On land, sea and air the hostesses are hard at work making sure Apollo 17 gets a send off worthy of the last scheduled U.S. manned moon mission.

The most elaborate and expensive party is being given Tuesday night by Time-Life. More than 500 people, including Mrs. Cernan and Mrs. Evans, have been invited to a luau in a circus tent, pitched in the parking lot of a Cocoa Beach hotel.

Journalist Mary Bubb, who organized the party, said Monday she had ordered 200 pounds of pork, 200 pounds of beef, 200 pounds of shrimp and more than $1,000 worth of liquor.

"I worked on this party for two months," Mrs. Bubb said. "It isn't just a party for the big names in the space industry, but for the backroom people as well."

Mrs. Bubb had to organize a heliport, complete with flares and police guard, for guests arriving by chopper.

No one will say how much the Time-Life Apollo party will cost, but conservative estimates run around $6,000.

Mrs. Cernan and Mrs. Evans also hit the party circuit Monday night when they were guests of honor at a luncheon held by local auto dealer Bob Bryce.

On launch day Mrs. Cernan and Mrs. Evans will be the guests of honor at a luncheon given by two French journalists.

Boats of all shapes and sizes have been chartered for the Wednesday night launch. Many are already anchored along the Banana and Indian Rivers and the champagne is expected to flow.

A Texas millionaire, Dr. J. R. Maxfield of Dallas, Tex., is flying in more than 200 guests in his private plane while his son, Morgan Maxfield of Kansas City, has gone one better and chartered a 747.

School, and Col. Allen Applewhite appeared before the board to briefly acquaint the members with the Junior ROTC program which has been in operation at Conley since September.

There are a total of 133 Conley students enrolled in the program, including 27 seniors, 24 juniors, 49 sophomores and 33 freshmen.

One of the reasons for the program, according to Carraway, is to establish leadership and self discipline among the student body.

The cadets participating in the program can work toward an appointment to a military academy, may receive ROTC scholarships, and will be advanced in the ROTC program if they enroll in ROTC on the college level.

Also, if a student enters the army after completing his high school requirements, he will enter with a rank no lower than private first class or E3.

DOUGLAS R. JONES
New Member

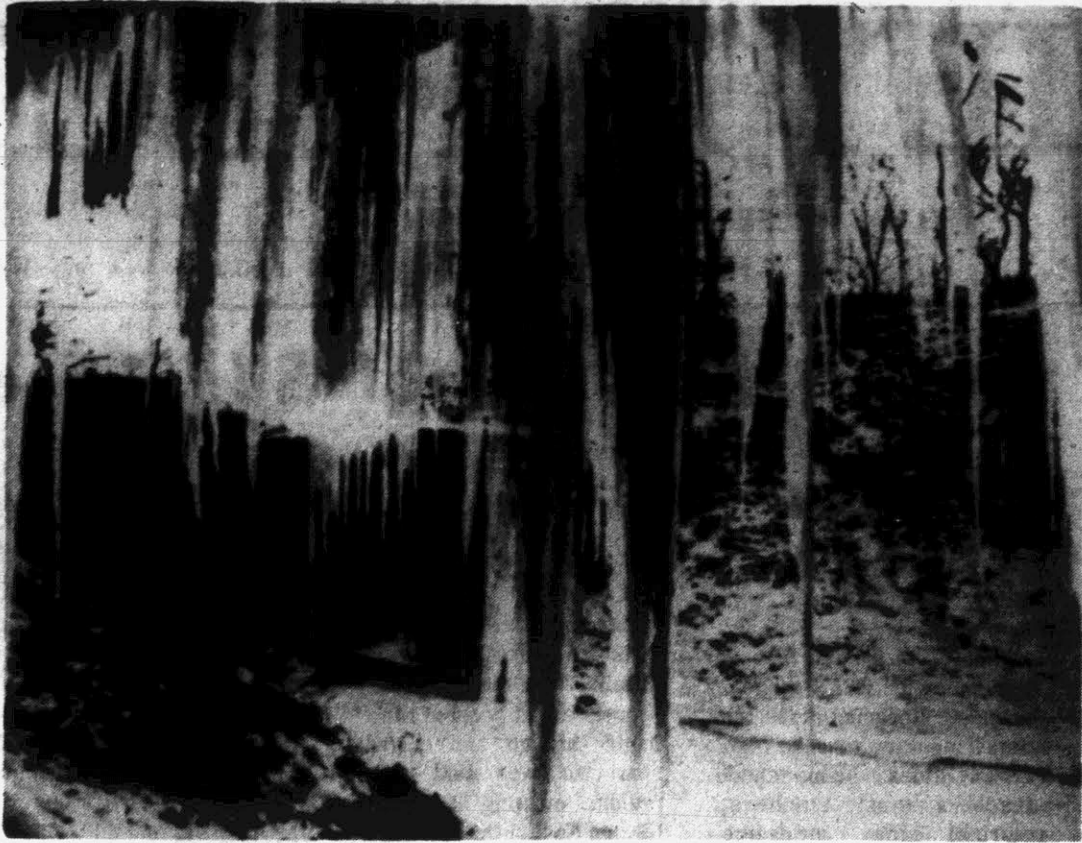

The program, which is a voluntary one, costs the high school about $10,000 (mostly used to pay the instructors salaries), while the U.S. Army is spending more than $75,000 on the program.

Uniforms, weapons, telescopes, binoculars, other equipment, and administrative supplies are furnished by the Army.

The program is offered at no cost to the students.

Carraway said the program will be open to female students during the next school year. They will receive the same type instruction offered the male participants except for drill which will be optional to the females.

Equivalency Tests Scheduled At PTI

The GED or High School Equivalency Tests for adults who wish to receive a N.C. High School Equivalency Certificate are given on the first two Wednesdays of each month from 12:00 noon until 5:00 p.m. at Pitt Technical Institute. This month, the tests will be given December 6 and 13. It takes both Wednesdays to complete the test.

Any persons 19 years of age or older and not a high school graduate may take the test. An 18 year old may take the tests provided he has been out of regular high school program for at least six months.

Upon successful completion of the five general tests, which make up the GED tests, a person is issued the Equivalency Certificate by the N.C. State Board of Education.

The cost of taking the entire five tests is $3.00.

Individuals desiring to take refresher work in preparation for the GED tests may do so at Pitt Technical Institute's Learning Center in Greenville, or Farmville, or in the evening High School Equivalency classes at Pitt Tech, the Ayden-Grifton High School, or D.H. Conley High School.

For further information relative to classes or the GED tests, individuals should contact George McRorie at Pitt Tech, telephone 756-3130.

Applications to take the tests may be made at the city or county schools superintendent's office, or at Pitt Technical Institute.

MORE WHEELS

SAN JUAN (UPI) —Little more than 20 years ago Puerto Rico had 61,000 registered motor vehicles. By the end of fiscal year 1971 motor vehicle registration had increased more than 10 times—up to 687,000 cars and trucks, according to the Puerto Rico planning board.

School. The program is the only one of its kind in the state of North Carolina.

Thomas Craft, associate superintendent of Pitt County Schools, told the board that a recent survey on out-of-district students has been completed. He reported that 221 students living in the Greenville school district are attending county schools while 76 county students are attending the Greenville city schools.

Permission to use the South Ayden athletic field was given to the Ayden Youth Club. The field will be used for a mini-bike track.

The town of Ayden will be responsible for maintaining the property and the school board will not be responsible for any accidents that occur on the property.

The board agreed that no trespassing signs should be erected at several of the county school plants and campuses that are no longer being used and that law enforcement agencies will be informed of the situation.

The action was taken after the vacated schools, including South Ayden, North Fountain, Falkland Elementary, Bethel Union, and Grimesland Elementary, had been abused and defaced by vandals.

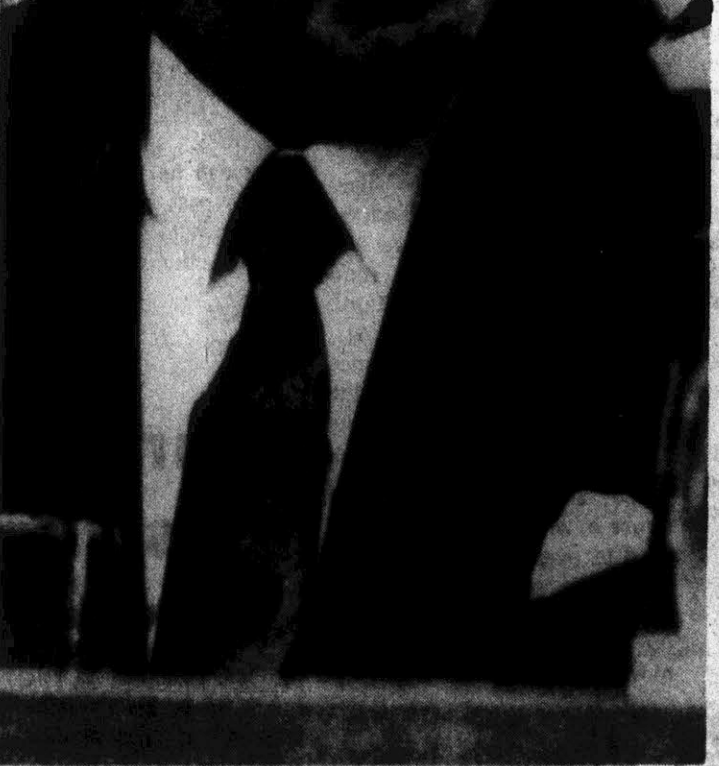

The properties will be off limits to all persons without approval of the board of education of chairman of the local advisory council.

Board members approved a survey of the county lunchroom program by the State Departmentas recommended by Mrs. Edna Holder, area supervisor.

The survey will be made as soon as a survey team is available.

Board members Kenneth Dews, William McLawhorn and Robert Stokes were named to meet with the Greenville City Board of Education on Jan. 9. The meeting will be held at the Candlewick Inn.

Board members were invited to visit the mathematics laboratory at North Pitt High

Life Without Love—The Only Real Tragedy

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I get so riled when I read what some women write to you and complain about. Let me give you a sample of what my life has been like:

When I was a year old, my mother ran off with another man. My father boarded me out, and when I was 12 he remarried again and I went to live with him and my stepmother. That marriage was no good, either. My father was a big drinker and used me sexually so I got married at 14 just to get away from home. I had three miscarriages and one live child from that marriage, then my husband left me for another woman. I was only 21. Then I married again and I thought my luck had changed, but no sooner did we have a decent house and nice furniture than we got burned out and lost everything. No insurance.

Last March, I was raped by two men on my way home from work and they broke my glasses. Then my husband got laid off from work, and on the way to pick up his unemployment check some kid in a jalopy hit him and totaled our car.

Right now I am in the hospital having a hysterectomy. Every word of this is true, but there are plenty of people who are worse off than I am because I have a man who loves me and I love him.

LUCKY IN OHIO

DEAR LUCKY: Bless you. Matching your experiences in one lifetime would be a job for Job.

DEAR ABBY: I thoroly enjoyed reading your column concerning what some nurses in various hospitals around the country prefer to be called. However, there is a group among registered nurses that prefers to be recognized by a title not reflected in your column. We are known to family, friends, professional peers, and patients as "Mr."

And we represent about two per cent of the R. N. population of the nation.

Preserving Holiday Flowers

NEW YORK (UPI)—Be kind to cut flowers sent to your house for the holidays. Heed the following tips.

—Place stems in deep warm water. Pour warm water into the container in which they will be arranged. Cut stem ends diagonally with a sharp knife. Remove all foliage below the water level. Add a commercial flower preservative to the water.

—Poinsettias have a milky substance or juice which should be sealed into the stem by quickly dipping stem ends one to two inches into boiling water.

—When stem ends get soft or decayed, recut the stems to remove the bad portion.

—When the flowers wilt, recut stems and place in warm water.

Take advantage of specials at the grocery market. It trims the food bill.

Parties Before Apollo Launching

By ANN HELLMUTH
Associated Press Writer
COCOA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Barbara Cernan and Jan Evans are the two most popular women in town.

Every hostess worth her salt is trying to get the wives of the two married Apollo 17 astronauts to attend her party.

And for the last Apollo flight, just like the ones that went before, there are parties and parties. On land, sea and air the hostesses are hard at work making sure Apollo 17 gets a send off worthy of the last scheduled U.S. manned moon mission.

The most elaborate and expensive party is being given Tuesday night by Time-Life. More than 500 people, including Mrs. Cernan and Mrs. Evans, have been invited to a luau in a circus tent, pitched in the parking lot of a Cocoa Beach hotel.

Journalist Mary Bubb, who organized the party, said Monday she had ordered 200 pounds of pork, 200 pounds of beef, 200 pounds of shrimp and more than $1,000 worth of liquor.

"I worked on this party for two months," Mrs. Bubb said. "It isn't just a party for the big names in the space industry, but for the backroom people as well."

Mrs. Bubb had to organize a heliport, complete with flares and police guard, for guests arriving by chopper.

No one will say how much the Time-Life Apollo party will cost, but conservative estimates run around $6,000.

Mrs. Cernan and Mrs. Evans also hit the party circuit Monday night when they were guests of honor at a luncheon held by local auto dealer Bob Bryce.

On launch day Mrs. Cernan and Mrs. Evans will be the guests of honor at a luncheon given by two French journalists.

Boats of all shapes and sizes have been chartered for the Wednesday night launch. Many are already anchored along the Banana and Indian Rivers and the champagne is expected to flow.

A Texas millionaire, Dr. J. R. Maxfield of Dallas, Tex., is flying in more than 200 guests in his private plane while his son, Morgan Maxfield of Kansas City, has gone one better and chartered a 747.

School Bd. . . .

School, and Col. Allen Applewhite appeared before the board to briefly acquaint the members with the Junior ROTC program which has been in operation at Conley since September.

There are a total of 133 Conley students enrolled in the program, including 27 seniors, 24 juniors, 49 sophomores and 33 freshmen. One of the reasons for the program, according to Carraway, is to establish leadership and self discipline among the student body.

The cadets participating in the program can work toward an appointment to a military academy, may receive ROTC scholarships, and will be advanced in the ROTC program if they enroll in ROTC on the college level.

Also, if a student enters the army after completing his high school requirements, he will enter with a rank no lower than private first class or E3.

DOUGLAS R. JONES
New Member

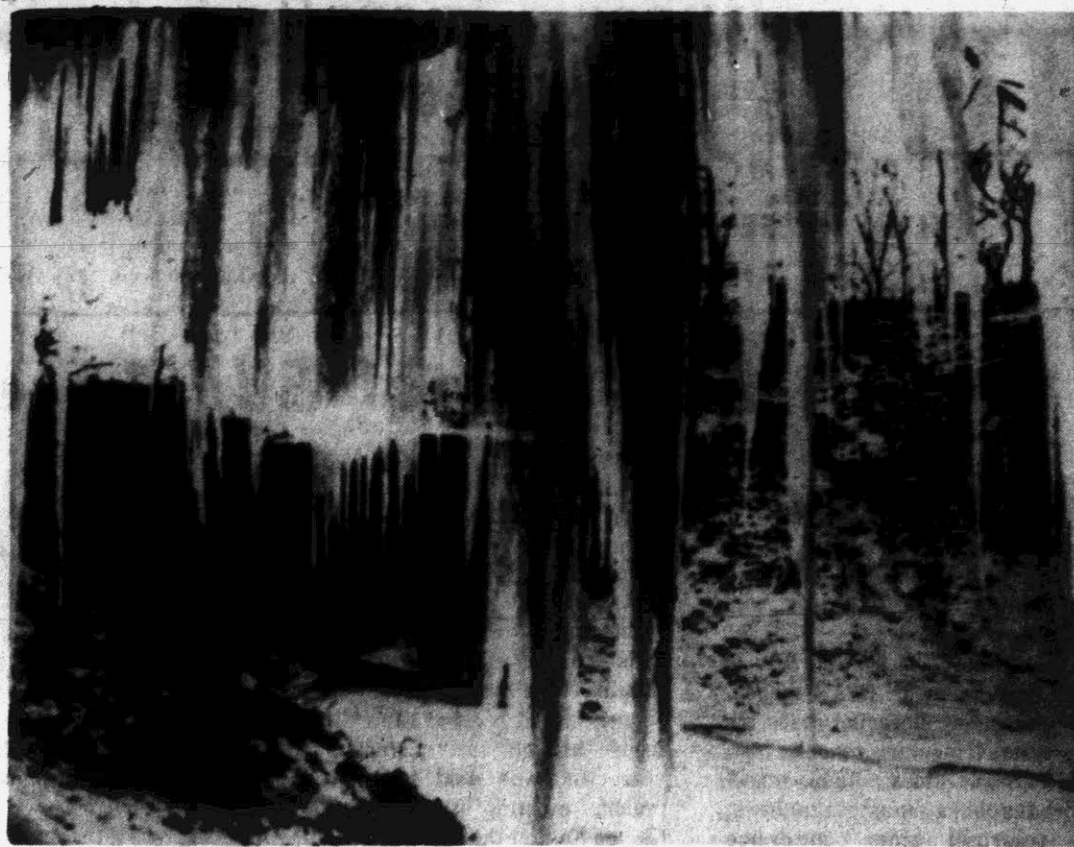

The program, which is a voluntary one, costs the high school about $10,000 (mostly used to pay the instructors salaries), while the U.S. Army is spending more than $75,000 on the program.

Uniforms, weapons, telescopes, binoculars, other equipment, and administrative supplies are furnished by the Army.

The program is offered at no cost to the students.

Carraway said the program will be open to female students during the next school year. They will receive the same type instruction offered the male participants except for drill which will be optional to the females.

Resolution Passed
The board adopted a resolution to be sent to the family of Herbert H. Forrest, a member of the Winterville and D.H. Conley Advisory Councils, who died recently.

James Cobb was named to replace Forrest on the Conley Advisory Council. Mrs. Phil W. White, a resident of the Red Oak Subdivision, and William McClure of the Cherry Oaks Subdivision, were named to serve on the Winterville Advisory Council so that these two areas would have representation on the council.

A William Price Appreciation Dinner will be held Friday, Dec. 29, at Conley High School. Price is retiring after serving as maintenance supervisor with the board of education for 27 years.

Carl Heath, an employee in the maintenance department for 16 years, was named acting supervisor of maintenance to replace Price.

New personnel employed by the board included: Mrs. Donna Ware, school food service supervisor; Mrs. Ann T. Edmundson; Mrs. Lois J. Parker; Miss Barbara Mills; Mrs. Harriett A. Barnhill; Robert A. Avery; Patricia Reynolds; Andrea Decuzzi; and Roger Ingalls.

The board agreed that no trespassing signs should be erected at several of the county school plants and campuses that are no longer being used and that law enforcement agencies will be informed of the situation.

The action was taken after the vacated schools, including South Ayden, North Fountain, Falkland Elementary, Bethel Union, and Grimesland Elementary, had been abused and defaced by vandals.

The properties will be off limits to all persons without approval of the board of education of chairman of the local advisory council.

Board members approved a survey of the county lunchroom program by the State Departmentas recommended by Mrs. Edna Holder, area supervisor.

The survey will be made as soon as a survey team is available.

Board members Kenneth Dews, William McLawhorn and Robert Stokes were named to meet with the Greenville City Board of Education on Jan. 9. The meeting will be held at the Candlewick Inn.

Board members were invited to visit the mathematics laboratory at North Pitt High

Life Without Love—The Only Real Tragedy

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I get so riled when I read what some women write to you and complain about. Let me give you a sample of what my life has been like:

When I was a year old, my mother ran off with another man. My father boarded me out, and when I was 12 he remarried again and I went to live with him and my stepmother. That marriage was no good, either. My father was a big drinker and used me sexually so I got married at 14 just to get away from home. I had three miscarriages and one live child from that marriage, then my husband left me for another woman. I was only 21. Then I married again and I thought my luck had changed, but no sooner did we have a decent house and nice furniture than we got burned out and lost everything. No insurance.

Last March, I was raped by two men on my way home from work and they broke my glasses. Then my husband got laid off from work, and on the way to pick up his unemployment check some kid in a jalopy hit him and totaled our car.

Right now I am in the hospital having a hysterectomy. Every word of this is true, but there are plenty of people who are worse off than I am because I have a man who loves me and I love him.

LUCKY IN OHIO

DEAR LUCKY: Bless you. Matching your experiences in one lifetime would be a job for Job.

DEAR ABBY: I thoroly enjoyed reading your column concerning what some nurses in various hospitals around the country prefer to be called. However, there is a group among registered nurses that prefers to be recognized by a title not reflected in your column. We are known to family, friends, professional peers, and patients as "Mr."

And we represent about two per cent of the R. N. population of the nation.

RALPH A. GEORGE, R. N.

DEAR RALPH: You mean that two per cent of all the registered nurses in the U. S. A. are MALE? Good night, Nurse!

Preserving Holiday Flowers

NEW YORK (UPI)—Be kind to cut flowers sent to your house for the holidays. Heed the following tips.

—Place stems in deep warm water. Pour warm water into the container in which they will be arranged. Cut stem ends diagonally with a sharp knife. Remove all foliage below the water level. Add a commercial flower preservative to the water.

—Poinsettias have a milky substance or juice which should be sealed into the stem by quickly dipping stem ends one to two inches into boiling water.

—When stem ends get soft or decayed, recut the stems to remove the bad portion.

—When the flowers wilt, recut stems and place in warm water.

It appears at this writing that the final flight to the moon in the current series will take place Wednesday night.

A strike by technical writers had for a time threatened the launching of the moon rocket, but Monday a union spokesman announced that there would be no strike.

Don't Count On Reduced Taxes

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — Tar Heel taxpayers take note: don't count any tax reduction chickens before they hatch.

The word from men who will wield influence in the next legislature is that hard budget scrutiny and thorough debate will come before enactment of any tax cuts.

Some frankly discount the probability of revenue changes that will be felt in the average pocketbook. The consensus generally is that unmet needs must take precedence over downward adjustment in taxes.

In any case, lawmakers caution it is too early to raise the promise of any tax relief. They are keenly aware it can excite public expectations which will make harder their work in putting together the state's budget.

Talk of significant tax reductions is at best premature, said Sen. Kenneth Royall of Durham.

"I don't think anybody can reach a justification for reducing taxes until they understand where the money comes from and see the total picture," said Royall, a member of the Advisory Budget Commission.

Federal revenue sharing is an uncertain anchor in the long pull, he suggested. Short-range economic conditions have fattened state coffers, but easily could turn the other way, he warned.

Scott Initiated Discussion
Gov. Bob Scott lofted the tax relief balloon a couple of weeks ago. He said the state's revenue prospects are bright enough to adequately fund services, and leave money over to lower taxes.

Some current of resentment has stirred among legislators, who must deal with the nitty-gritty of fiscal matters in the session which convenes next month.

"It borders on irresponsibility," said Sen. Tom Strickland of Wayne, to raise tax relief hopes that are unfounded.

"We better take a good look at the many services people have been demanding for years before we even think about eroding the tax base," he argued. To illustrate, he ticked off areas of unmet needs — mental health, public education, state parks, minimum salaries for law enforcement officers medical care, capital improvements.

"North Carolina has a good tax base and we must preserve it. I am opposed to any erosion of it," insisted the four-term legislator.

School Case Cited

Rep. Herschel Harkins of Buncombe said it is idle to discuss tax reductions until there is an answer from the U.S. Supreme Court on the dilemma of public school financing. If the case comes out as many lawyers expect, he said, "We'll be in a whole new ballgame on taxes and budget."

Harkins referred to a challenge to school financing with local property taxes, which creates disparity among counties in school support. Suits from Texas, California and other states aim for a "one scholar, one dollar" concept.

There is a good chance, said Harkins, that the high court's ruling will come while the 1973 General Assembly is in session. Although North Carolina provides the bulk of school money from the state level, the impact still could be great, he observed. Until that crisis is met, he added, "all talk of tax relief is showboating and academic."

Sen. Phil Godwin of Gates advised that legislators listen to the people in reaching a decision. "I don't hear people grumbling about taxes so much as I hear them yelling for services," he remarked.

Godwin, a freshman senator but veteran lawmaker, served six straight terms in the House and was its Speaker in 1971. Encouragement To Lobbyists

Talk of cutting taxes can't help but fuel lobbying efforts to remove the soft drink and cigarette taxes imposed in 1969, he observed. His own view, he said, is that the taxes were enacted as a package and repeal for one should not be considered without the other.

As a cautionary note, he asked what the chances might be that taking off the soft drink and cigarette taxes would benefit consumers. Very slim, he speculated. Vending machines aren't likely to be adjusted to return one or two cents on the purchase of a drink or pack of cigarettes, he said.

"If we get to Raleigh and see we have more money than we can spend wisely, then we should give relief to individual taxpayers as a one-shot proposition without altering the tax structure," Godwin said. That could be done, for example, by allowing a credit on the individual income tax, he explained.

The change many lawmakers see in the budget-making process is annual budgeting. It is widely anticipated that the General Assembly will go to yearly sessions, adjourning to meet again in 1974. That would mean the next budget would cover one fiscal year rather than two.

That step, said Sen. Royall, would add realism to budget preparation and enhance economy and efficiency in spending tax dollars.

It is perhaps unique to our society that a strike could threaten even a journey to another body of the solar system. Happily, however, that prospect has now been eliminated.

If all goes well Astronauts Eugene A. Cernan, Ronald E. Evans and Harrison N. Schmitt will blast off for the moon at 9:53 tomorrow night. As with all astronauts they have gone through long months of training and practicing to make this final scheduled trip to the moon successful.

Cernan and Schmitt will land their craft, Challenger, on the moon Monday, while Evans circles the moon with the command craft conducting experiments.

Scientists will wait anxiously on Earth as the astronauts carry out exploration and scientific experiments on the surface of the moon. All concerned will want to make the most of this voyage. It is the last in the planned series of lunar trips and it will be important that everything go well so that the best results can be obtained.

All the world will be wishing these three astronauts well as they head for the moon.

Government Should Be Open To The People

Gov.-Elect Jim Holshouser has promised an open door policy for his administration.

Speaking last weekend he said he plans to have public visits twice a month beginning in February. He also promised regular news conferences to keep the public informed of his administration's activities.

We certainly hope that Gov. Holshouser adheres to this plan. Government should be open if it is to serve the needs of the people.

Wonder Over Pete Peterson

By ROWLAND EVANS and
ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The puzzling decision by President Nixon, virtually certain though not yet announced at this writing, to remove Peter G. Peterson as Secretary of Commerce and make him a high-level international economic negotiator has built this Washington mystery:

Is Peterson being promoted or demoted? Does Mr. Nixon really intend to give Peterson a master-bureaucrat role in world economics approaching Dr. Henry Kissinger's in world politics? Or have his critics on the White House staff succeeded in shunting Peterson aside?

The truth, known fully only to Mr. Nixon, probably lies between the two extremes. Nevertheless, the imminent shift of Peterson after only seven months at Commerce is by far the most surprising development in Mr. Nixon's unfolding Cabinet shakeup. Peterson has emerged as a bright light in a dull Cabinet; even his critics within the administration who viewed the former Bell & Howell camera executive as a huckster concede his skill in recent economic negotiations with Communist Poland.

Peterson might end up succeeding David Kennedy as ambassador to NATO with greatly enhanced powers. More likely, he will be a master bureaucrat stationed at the White House. In secret talks at Camp David, the President, Kissinger and Peterson have sketched out a new post embracing powers now held by the State, Treasury and Commerce Departments. That, indeed, would be a step (SET ITAL) up (END ITAL) from Secretary of Commerce.

But some knowledgeable officials in the administration regard this as eyewash to cover Peterson's demotion. They point out that Peterson certainly did not seek to leave Commerce.

If they are right, this would be a triumph for high White House aides who disliked Peterson's dynamic style as presidential assistant for international economic matters before going to the Commerce Department. Since then, these aides have complained privately about favorable publicity in the national media (describing Peterson as the most powerful Secretary of Commerce since Herbert Hoover) violating their concept of the faceless, anonymous, perfect servant.

A footnote: Contrary to published reports, Under Secretary James T. Lynn is not likely to succeed Peterson. George Bush, ambassador to the United Nations, now anxiously awaiting a niche in the reshaped administration, would be content at Commerce. But some presidential aides would rather reward a Republican business executive.

McGovern Budget Balancing
Veterans of the McGovern campaign are boiling mad about finance chairman Henry Kissinger's decision to balance Sen. George McGovern's campaign books by docking rank-and-file workers while paying off to the last penny loans from fat cats.

McGovern's campaign workers were warned in an Oct. 1 form letter that the axe was coming. It fell when their last paycheck, covering wages for only two of the last five weeks, contained this memorandum from campaign director Gary Hart: "With your assistance, we are on the eve of successfully completing the most dramatic presidential

A Conservative View

In their current issue, the editors of National Review grapple with the matter of marijuana, but with deference to my conservative colleagues, I think they let the main conservative questions slip away.

The principal articles, urging that marijuana be legalized, comes from Richard C. Cowan. Editors James Burnham and Jeffrey Hart take a generally opposing view. William F. Buckley, Jr., editor-in-chief, flatly supports Cowan: "I for one find his arguments not merely plausible, but overwhelming."

On the face of it, this is an astonishing position to be taken by the nation's leading journal of conservative opinion. Yet if we are prepared to accept the validity of certain assumptions advanced by the proponents of pot, the position is not astonishing at all.

The question is deeply troubling, but it is not unusual. The same issues are involved in such matters as homosexuality and pornography. And if the problem is turned upside down, one finds the same principles, applied in reverse, in such diverse matters as the automobile air bag and the fluoridation of public water supplies. The problem is to define the proper role of government in a free society.

The conservative philosophy holds, if I understand it correctly, that within certain limitations, a free people should be just that: free. What are these limitations? They are the limitations fixed by the impact of my conduct on your rights. As a general proposition, conservatives hold that no human conduct should be prohibited by law unless that conduct causes positive harm to the innocent bystander or to society as a whole.

We see this proposition at work in a thousand ways. In theory, a man is free to build a glue factory; but he is not free to build it where it causes offense to his neighbors. The citizen is free to play his stereo; but he is not free to play it at full volume at 2 o'clock in the morning. A motorist is free to travel where he pleases, but he has to stop at the stop lines. An activist is free to harangue a crowd, but he cannot provoke a riot. And so on. In every instance, the test is simply the harm that is done.

When homosexuality was held to be nearly universal abhorrence, a valid case could be made against the employment of homosexuals in sensitive government positions: They were subject to blackmail. The argument is of doubtful validity now. The justification for laws against pornography lies in the belief (a belief not susceptible to easy proof) that pornography corrupts society as a whole.

The other side of the proposition, as I say, lies in conservatives' hostility to laws that do not undertake to prohibit evil, but seek to compel good: the requirement for air bags, the

Of course, you could hire a team of efficiency and psychological experts to go over you and make an estimate. But that would take weeks of time and thousands of dollars. But you can make your own judgement of your prestige by taking a small inventory of your recent achievements and failures.

How? Well, here are a few suggestions.

Strength For Today

STRIKES

Strikes are a source of worry to the population in general, but without strikes there would be no progress. Most people have nothing to sell but their services. These may be one-hundred-thousand-dollars-a-year services and we practically never get a strike among such people. It is those on the under side of life that strike. Few dollars a week will make a great difference. Day in and day out at the same job—this can become a bore and a source of growing irritation.

Some of us can remember when the industrial worker in the United States was a slave with an iron collar about his neck. Now he has won liberties and he is ready to go to any lengths to maintain these liberties. He is right provided he is not violent or illegal in the means he adopts to maintain his rights.

There are even strikes among teachers today. Next thing we know we will have strikes among preachers and maybe that would be good for all of us regardless of the religious faith we adhere to.

The more complex our life becomes, the more strikes we are bound to have. Some will be all to the good, some will be neutral, some will be bad. It depends on two things: first, the value of the thing over which strikes are being held, and two, the way a strike is carried on. No real advantage is gained by violence or unlawful behavior. A little on this side, a little on that.

Santa May Require A 747 Jet

By JOHN CUNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) — As if he didn't have problems before, Santa Claus is facing the most serious logistics challenge of his life this year, and observers of serious mien and limited vision say he must trade his sleigh for a 747 jet.

It strains credulity, they say, to believe that anything less than that can transport the avalanche of gifts that are expected to tumble out of fireplaces on Christmas Eve.

Rising personal incomes, booming retail sales and surveys of buyer intentions indicate that more money will be spent this Christmas than ever before in history.

Retailers already are reporting sales between 8 and 9 per cent higher than a year ago, when the country was beginning to emerge from a recession, and they expect the percentage to be even higher in pre-Christmas weeks.

During the Thanksgiving week, traditional kickoff for the Christmas selling season, retail stores sold $8.88 billion of merchandise, about 8 per cent higher than in 1971, although one per cent lower than in the preceding week.

Fueling the surge is a resumption of growth in personal incomes, which had been swamped by inflation for several years. While inflation continues on an abating scale, incomes have grown strongly through the year.

In addition, and despite a 5.5 per cent jobless rate, more people are at work today than at any time in the nation's history.

Surveys indicate that the buying mood is strong almost everywhere, despite the irregular geographical pattern of prosperity that is often disguised by the national statistics.

A study by Sindlinger & Co. of Swarthmore, Pa., indicates that the country's total gift list will be enlarged by 25 per cent. More people will give more gifts to more people this year than ever before, said Albert Sindlinger, president.

Sindlinger, whose staff asks thousands of questions by telephone seven days a week, claims to have found good news for aunts, uncles and cousins.

It was this tier of relatives, he said, who were cut from gift lists during the past three years of budget-pinching. Now they are being restored. "This gift might not be as big but more people will receive them," said Sindlinger.

Some retailers would be inclined to differ with Sindlinger on the size of gifts because many of them feel big and exotic items have again caught the eye of shoppers. They are being heavily promoted.

In the previous three years some retailers made little attempt to attract interest in very expensive items, feeling they were ill-suited to both the mood and the pocketbook of consumers.

Now, both mood and pocketbook have changed, and the retailers, advertising media, aunts, uncles, cousins and kids are likely to benefit. The problems belong mainly to Old Nick—and probably to some parents who bought on credit.

Most recently she has been working as an intern in her specialized area of therapeutic recreation at East Carolina University's Remedial Education and Activity Program.

But Hart's memo did not disclose that Kimelman has repaid some $5.5 million in loans from rich McGovernites and has plans to repay as soon as possible and additional $700,000 in pending loans. The salary cuts, plus unreimbursed expenses from McGovern staffers since Oct. 1, are estimated at not much over $100,000.

To bitter McGovernites, this was a dismal distillation of human priorities. Whereas the 1968 Humphrey campaign paid all staffers in full but, in effect, defaulted on loans from fat cats, Kimelman took the opposite course. His critics feel that Kimelman, a Virgin Islands real estate millionaire and McGovern intimate, wants to keep on good terms with Democratic liberal fat cats to win their support as the party's next national treasurer.

A footnote: Kimelman told us that McGovern staffers earning less than $100 a week were not affected by the final payout. Other "hardship" cases, he added, will be considered on an individual basis.

Similarities In Slayings

BOSTON (AP) — The deaths of four young women and the disappearance of another in the Boston area have prompted comparisons with the Boston Strangler murders of 10 years ago.

But "there's nothing to indicate these cases are all related," Boston Det. Lt. Edward F. Sherry said Monday.

Capt. John V. Silk of the Lynn police echoed the investigators' views, saying, "So far we haven't come up with anything — except that three of them went to the same school."

Sherry said a number of girls in Boston have been accosted recently while hitchhiking — a thread believed common in at least some of the five cases. They have talked to police, but the descriptions of their assailants were different in each case, he said.

However, police departments in Lynn, Brockton and Nashua, N.H., are keeping in close touch with Boston as they investigate the deaths of women in their areas in recent months.

All five girls were between 18 and 22, all residents of Boston or Cambridge, all white, all middle class and all attractive. Autopsies indicated that three of them were strangled and the fourth was strangled and stabbed. Rape was established in two cases, but the two other bodies were not found immediately after death, and the time lag complicated autopsy findings.

your Electric investment

Chances are, you never thought about the value of the electric distribution system that serves you. How much do you suppose is invested in the electric meter, service connection, poles and wires just to serve you? And how about the miles of line that bring electricity to your property — what's your share of that? And the transformers? And the trucks and the line equipment, and the electric utility property and building? What's your guess?

■ Nationally, America's public power systems have an average investment of more than $1,000 for each customer served — $1,034 to be exact. And this figure is growing rapidly. Ten years ago the investment for each customer was $596 — about half that of today. In 1971 we estimate that an average of nearly $150 will be spent in electric system additions or improvements for each customer served.

■ Your electric utility investment is a sizeable and growing amount. As your local, publicly owned electric utility, it is our responsibility to use and maintain this investment wisely. As a citizen-owner, you should know that we value your electric utility investment.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON, DECEMBER 5, 1972

Bucs, Wildcats Open Southern Battle

The preliminaries are over. They didn't last long.

Now the business of deciding a Southern Conference basketball champion (at least for the regular season) get underway. Tonight, the defending regular season runner-up, meets the regular season fourth place and the tournament champion, as Davidson hosts East Carolina University.

Johnston Gym is to be the site of the clash where the two teams, both with 2-0 records meet in their Southern Conference openers.

"Our scouts saw them defeat Clemson," East Carolina Coach Tom Quinn said. "And they were very much impressed. There were two head coaches from the conference there, and they said Davidson already was at mid-season form as compared to last year. They are running and pressing more than every. They are quick and extremely physical."

Quinn said that the closeness of the score, some eight points, was not really the story of the game. "They built up a 15-point lead at halftime and just toyed with them in the second half," he said of the Wildcats.

For these reasons, plus the fact that Quinn doesn't expect his Pirates to hit their stride until mid-January, the coach looks for a very tough game.

"It's our first real test," he said, "even though we had a tough game with the Athletics in Action. I felt we could have ended that one earlier and not had to have gone into an overtime, but there were a lot of factors involved. We learned some things."

This game, however, will be the road, the first for the Bucs, and it will also be in one of "the worst playing situations" in the country, Quinn says of Johnston Gym.

It has proved to be a killer guy to the opposition. Davidson has lost only once in the arena to a Southern Conference team during the last five years, and that was to Furman last season.

"Davidson and East Carolina should be playing in a play were a lot of people could see it," Quinn said, obviously referring to Davidson's other "home" court, the Charlotte Coliseum. "It could be played there as a game should be played."

The big guns for the Wildcats are two juniors, Mike Sorrientino and John and T. J. "T. J. didn't score like he's capable of scoring against Clemson," Quinn said, "but we know he is a very dangerous player."

If Davidson has a problem, it might be height. They don't have a big man, and board control may be a problem if they can't block out the board-minded Bucs. Their quick pressure defense and their running ability, however, are figured by Terry Holland, their coach, as more than an evening factor.

"After yesterday's practice," Quinn said, "we appear to be in excellent shape (except for injured Tom Marsh, who'll miss at least this game before coming back off a sprained knee). We're also in an excellent frame of mind. I was extremely impressed by the way we played in the overtime and never had the slightest doubt that we would not win it, although I did wonder a few times during the regulation time."

Quinn said that he feels that experienced players are down to business now and that they want to take up in the Southern where they left off last March. "Davidson has to prove something; we don't," Quinn said. "We won two of three from them last year. It's not a do-or-die effort for us in this game. The season is young."

Southern Conference Coach of the Year Sonny Randle watches from the sidelines along with players during action this fall.

Randle: Southern Coach Of The Year

Last August, during the Southern Conference's annual football rouser, East Carolina University's head football coach, Sonny Randle, said he had learned a lot during the last year, his first as the head coach.

"The jury's still out on Sonny Randle as a coach," he frankly admitted.

Today, however, the jury's decision is in, and there was really no doubt about it after November 11. It was on that day that Randle's Pirates beat William & Mary to win their sixth Southern Conference game of the season, clinching the school's first undisputed championship in football.

And from then on, Randle had Southern Conference Coach of the Year honors in a single-hold. Last night, the formal announcement was made. Randle had beaten out William & Mary coach Jim Root by a four-to-one margin in balloting by the Southern Conference Sportswriters Association.

Following an opening year 4-6 record, Randle's Pirates, by his own admission, were in a rebuilding program after losing 23 seniors, 17 or them starters. But the rebuilding effort got underway quickly, and the Pirates won their first game. Then they won their second, and their third and the steamroller was gaining speed.

It slowed only twice during the season, as the Pirates bowed to North Carolina State and the University of North Carolina, the two best teams in the Atlantic Coast Conference, both bowl-bound.

The only disappointment besides the two losses was the fact that Randle's team was overlooked in the bowl scramble, and he, along with many others, felt this was unjustified.

Although the writers and coaches took Randle to heart at the start of the season, he took issue with writers all through the year after the wins begin to pile up that the Bucs were being underrated by the press. But he did admit after the championship was a reality that "A guy couldn't have been in his right mind if he thought we'd win the Southern Conference championship (back in for the honor."

The naming of Randle completed the sweep of post-season honors for the Bucs. Earlier running back Carlester Crumpler was named as the conference's Player of the Year. Six Pirates were also named to the All-Conference team.

But despite the honors, perhaps the best thing about it all is that next year, Randle loses only eight seniors, six of them starters. It won't be quite as hard to rebuild.

The Rampants, still seeking their first victory, return home on Thursday, playing host to the Jacksonville Cardinals.

Gabe's Magic, Prothro's Trickery Are Too Much

By ERIC PREWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Roman Gabriel's third-down magic, aided by some of Coach Tommy Prothro's trickery, was just too much for the San Francisco 49ers to handle.

"We would hold them for two downs, and on the third they'd get it," 49ers middle linebacker

Ed Beard said. That told the story of the Los Angeles Rams' 26-16 victory over San Francisco Monday night that made the Atlanta Falcons, 7-5, the new leaders in the National Football League's wildest race.

The 49ers fell from first in the National Conference West standings and into a second-place tie with the Rams at 6-5-1.

Things are sure to be shaken up again Sunday, when the Falcons meet the 49ers here and the Rams go to St. Louis to play the Cardinals on the next-to-last weekend of the season.

"I can't see us letting down the last two games," said Gabriel, who helped the Rams snap a three-game losing streak by throwing a pair of touchdown passes on third down plays.

The Rams made first downs on seven of 16 third-down situations. Four of the times they missed, David Ray followed with field goals, ranging from 12 to 42 yards.

Gabriel scrambled away from 49ers' rushers in the second period to fire a 26-yard touchdown pass on third-and-13 to tight end Bob Klein, sending the Rams ahead 10-9.

He sent running back Willie Ellison downfield on a third-and-five play in the third quarter that resulted in a 39-yard scoring play and a 23-9 Rams' lead.

Panthers Claw A-G Grapplers

LITTLEFIELD — Ayden-Grifton High School bowed in its opening wrestling match of the season, as the strong North Pitt Panthers clawed them, 60-9.

Ayden-Grifton managed only two victories over the strong North Pitt team, which is now 2-0 on the season. The Panthers won the remaining 11 events, taking nine of them by pins. One of the two Charger wins came via a pin.

North Pitt will play host to Northern Nash on Thursday while Ayden-Grifton entertains Conley on Wednesday.

Summary:
98: Nelson (NP) pinned Wingate, 0:40.
105: Pritchard (NP) decision Wagstaff, 15-8.

Farmville In Wrestling Win

DUDLEY — Farmville Central High School rolled to a 48-21 victory over the Southern Wayne wrestling team yesterday. It was the second victory of the season for the unbeaten Jaguars.

Southern captured the first weight class, but then didn't win again until Farmville Central had piled up an unbeatable margin. Overall, the Saints won only four of the 13 matches, and one of them came by forfeit.

Of the nine Farmville victories, seven of them came by pins.

The Jaguars, now 2-0, will play host to Ahoskie on Wednesday.

Eagle Shooting Must Get Better

By Chip Lambeth
Reflector Sports Writer
(one of a series)

ROBERSONVILLE — Unless the Robersonville boys basketball team can start waiting for shots and then making them, this could turn out to be a long season for the Golden Eagles.

Robersonville coach, Nolan Respass, feels the key to his team's success this year will have to come from getting the offense together. After three games, the Eagles have yet to hit on 30 per cent of their shots at the goal. This is a source of displeasure to the coach. "We are supposed to be better," he pointed out, "We just have been shooting really bad."

The Eagles have only a pair of starters back from last year's team and two more that are back played off-and-on last season. The only starters back are Ernest Crandall, who Coach Respass calls the best all around player on the team and Clarence Wilson. Respass will have to rely on these two quite a bit along with Masonic Stokes who is "looking pretty good," and Fred Matthewson.

One thing that is hurting the offense, besides shooting, is the lack of good ball handling. Respass will be looking to Matt Wilson for help here. This is Wilson's first year of basketball and along with three other players was on the football team that won its conference title. These four will have to come around, also. Says Respass, "The football players are still a little bit stiff."

Respass likes to run a pattern type of offense but his team likes to "free lance it and want to play a pattern so that I can know where everybody is and what each player can do." But this is something he has not been able to get across, yet.

One physical weakpoint the Eagles have is the lack of height. At 6-2, William Rhodes and Kenneth Spruill are the tallest Robersonville players. Rhodes, however, is in the coach's opinion, a little too foul prone. Spruill is not patient and shoots hastily. He has connected on about one out of every fifteen shots he has taken.

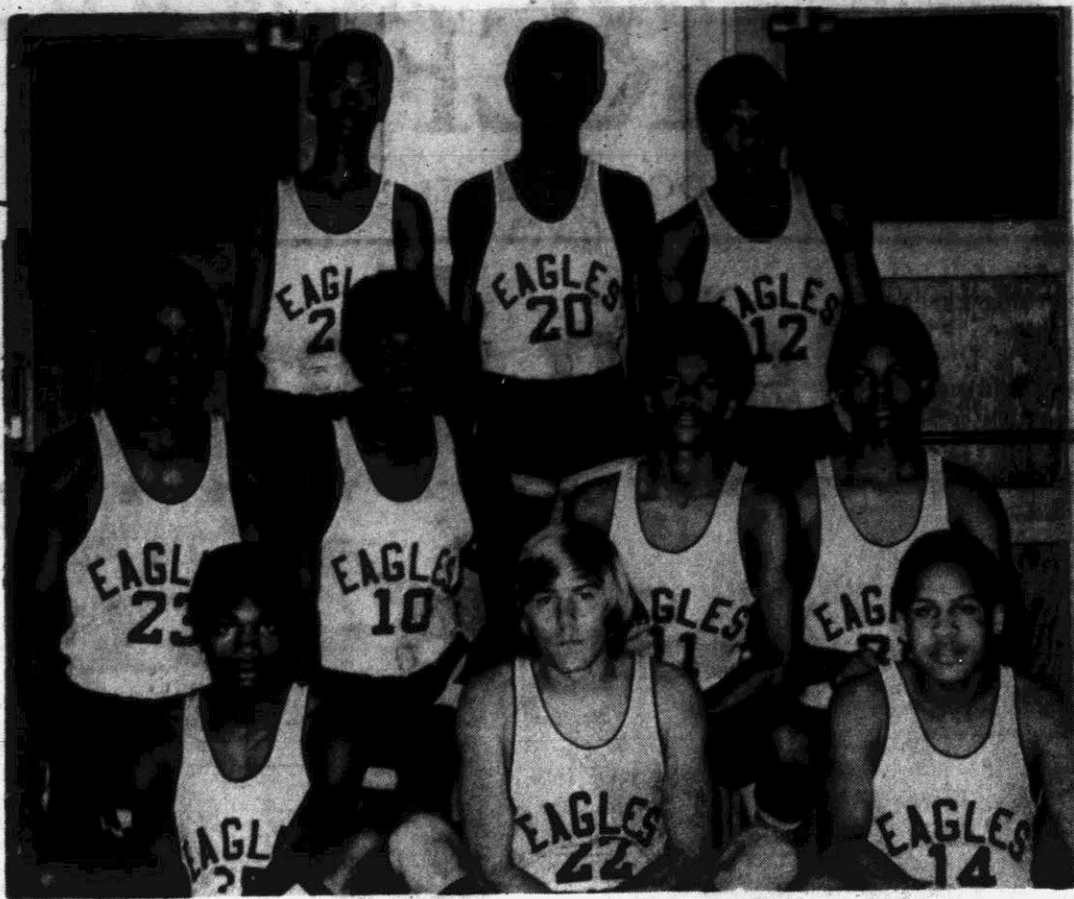

One important part of basketball, free throw shooting, is "terrible."

The defense, on the other hand, is the bright spot of the Eagle game. "If the defense can stay the way it is, and the offense can come around, we can win at least half of our games," Respass observed. The rebounding is not the best that Respass hoped for. "We're getting beaten off the boards. We have to be more aggressive. We want to control the ball. By January, we'll be doing better." Respass also thinks the Eagles will upset some people. One of these may be Jamesville, the team that Respass thinks will be the best in the conference this year.

All players on the team have seen action in the first three games and it will take time for the Eagles to get it together. They only had five or six days to work out before the season started and they will have to play out the kinks.

Looking ahead to next year, Robersonville has a resource of talent in their undefeated J. V. team. Only the four Respass singled out have had any Varsity experience and the Eagles will have to do a lot of work or start looking to next season.

The Eagles will have to change because as Respass puts it, "I don't like to lose." And anyone who knows Respass knows how true that statement is.

Southern Cal Gets All Votes In Finale

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Mighty Southern California, the only unbeaten team in the nation, was a unanimous No. 1 choice today in the final Associated Press college football ratings for the regular season.

The Trojans, who trounced Notre Dame 45-23 to finish 11-0, have only a Rose Bowl date with third-ranked Ohio State standing between them and their third national championship in 11 years. The final poll will be taken after the New Year's Day bowl games.

In the wake of Alabama's 17-16 loss to Auburn, Southern Cal received all 50 first-place votes and a perfect 1,000 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Oklahoma, which finished behind national champion Nebraska a year ago, trimmed Oklahoma State 38-15 and moved up from third to second with 878 points while Ohio State, which wound up its regular season a week earlier, climbed from fourth to third with 666 points.

The stunning fourth-period loss to Auburn dropped previously unbeaten Alabama from second to fourth with 606 points, followed by idle Penn State with 554 points.

Cinderella Auburn's miracle rally against Alabama vaulted the Tigers from ninth to sixth while Texas, Michigan and Nebraska, all idle, slipped one spot apiece to seventh, eighth and ninth, respectively.

Perry Shares Pitching Honors

BOSTON (AP) — Luis Tiant of the Boston Red Sox, Gaylord Perry of the Cleveland Indians and Wilbur Wood of the Chicago White Sox shared honors today in official, American League records announced by President Joe Cronin.

Tiant, a right-hander picked up by the Red Sox after many considered his career ended because of arm trouble in 1971, won the earned run average for the second time with a 1.91 mark.

Tiant, who led the league with a 1.60 ERA with the Cleveland Indians in 1968, had a 4-4 mark until promoted to a regular starting job last August. He came close to pitching the Red Sox to the East Division title, compiling a 15-6 record with six shutouts.

Perry, acquired from the San Francisco Giants after the 1971 season, had a spectacular year for Cleveland. He compiled a 24-16 record, sharing the most-victories honor with Wood, who topped the league with 29 complete games and compiled a 1.92 earned run average.

Wood, the White Sox' knuckleball artist, had a 24-17 record. He led the league in most starts (49), most innings (377) since Ed Walsh's 393 in 1912, hits allowed (325), most batters faced (1,384), runs surrendered (119) and earned runs given (105).

Reliever Paul Lindblad of the Texas Rangers was the American League's busiest pitcher, making 66 appearances. However, Sparky Lyle of the New York Yankees was the bullpen standout with 35 saves, breaking the record of 34 set by Minnesota's Ron Perranoski in 1970.

Nolan Ryan of the California Angels was the league's strikeout king with 329, the most since Bob Fellers' 348 in 1946. Ryan also set a record by fanning eight Boston batters in a row July 9, and led the league with nine shutouts.

Oakland's Jim Hunter had the best percentage, .750 with a 21-7 record. Other 20-game winners were Baltimore's Jim Palmer (21-10), Detroit's Mickey Lolich (22-14), and Chicago's Stan Bahnsen (21-16).

There were 193 shutouts, breaking the record of 164 set in 1971.

Baltimore led the team earned run average with a mark of 2.53. Oakland's champion Athletics were second with 2.58, followed by Minnesota with 2.84.

Thompson Hits 40 As Wolfpack Wins Again

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
"I'd pay to see a guy like him play," said Coach J. E. Rowe after watching sophomore star David Thompson score 40 points in leading sixth-ranked North Carolina State to a 144-100 victory over his Georgia Southern basketball team.

"He is absolutely super. There is absolutely no way I would have believed how great he is unless I had seen it myself," Rowe added. His Eagles stayed close for most of the first half in the game at Raleigh, N.C., Monday night, but then saw the Wolfpack run away on superior depth.

The N.C. State coach, Norm Sloan, said that Thompson, who is averaging 35 points a game, "is really amazing. He just keeps doing those incredible things time after time after time."

"The only thing we had on Georgia Southern was depth.

They have a tremendous starting five. I feel very good over our ability to stay with these guys," I had talked with Hugh Durham of Florida State (which beat Georgia Southern 109-87 on Friday) and he said they were in the game until the last three minutes."

Rowe said he would have to agree with Sloan that depth was the difference. "They just ran us down."

N.C. State broke three school records: for points in a game, points scored by both teams, and field goals on a game with 60.

Tommy Burleson, 7-foot-4 center, scored 21 points and had 16 rebounds for the Wolfpack. Georgia Southern had no starter taller than 6-foot-5.

Perry Warbington paced the Eagles with 31 points. The Eagles now are 1-2. The Wolfpack is 3-0, and has scored more than 100 points in each game.

N.C. State was the only Atlantic Coast Conference team to play Monday night, and only one, North Carolina, is scheduled tonight. The Tar Heels will meet Dartmouth at the Greensboro, N.C. Coliseum.

Swimmers Top Seyboro Club

The Greenville Swim Club rolled to a 251-201 victory over the Seyboro Swim Club of Goldsboro Saturday at Minges Coliseum.

There were five Greenville swimmers scoring 15 individual points each. They included Amy Lawler, Denise Tobin, Mark Schmidt, Lance Timmons and Don McGlohon. Laurie Walton and Liza Taylor each contributed 13 points, while Cathy Collier and Lynn Gant each had 11.

Greenville also had eight winning relay entries.

Retired Rupp Sees Cats Lose

By ALEX SACHARE
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Baron, Adolph Rupp, had an unfamiliar view of Monday night's Kentucky-Iowa college basketball game, and he was not particularly pleased by what he saw.

Kentucky, ranked eighth nationally, was upset on its own home court by unranked Iowa 79-66 as Rupp watched from a seat in the stands at Lexington's Memorial Coliseum.

Rupp, the winningest coach in college basketball history in his 42-year tenure at Kentucky, was forced to retire following last season, after he reached the school's mandatory retirement age of 70. Joe Hall, Rupp's top assistant, inherited the Wildcats coaching post.

"Mistakes by the dozen," noted Rupp, as the two teams combined for 29 turnovers. Kentucky sank just 29 of 70 shots from the field for a meager 41.4 per cent, while Iowa shot at a rate of 56.9 per cent.

The game was tied 42-42 early in the second half, but Neil Fegebank scored 12 points in the second half and directed the surprising Hawkeyes to a lead which was as high as 15 points.

Iowa got balanced scoring, with Kevin Kunnert hitting 17 points, Rick Williams 15, Fegebank 14, Jim Collins 13 and Candy LaPrince 12. Kentucky was topped by Jim Andrews' 14 points, although he was in foul trouble much of the game.

Rupp, who is now serving as president of the Memphis Tams of the American Basketball Association, steadily refused to comment on the play of the Kentucky team.

Dressed in his familiar brown suit, he found it uncomfortable sitting six rows up.

"It's not necessarily for the reason you think," he said while being hounded throughout the game by autograph seekers. Although he persistently avoided requests for autographs in his coaching days, Rupp said this time he had "autographed every piece of paper in this audience, and that's a fact."

Other teams in the AP top ten fared better than the Wildcats. No. 2 Florida State overpowered Eastern Kentucky 87-70; fourth-ranked Minnesota whipped Wisconsin-Milwaukee 79-60, and North Carolina State, rated sixth, romped to a 144-100 decision over Georgia Southern. Among the second ten, No. 12 Oral Roberts opened its season by beating Wisconsin 90-76; No. 15 Ohio State nipped Notre Dame 81-75 in overtime; No. 16

Kansas State got past Utah 65-59; No. 18 Michigan defeated Oregon State 68-57, and No. 20 Houston edged Colorado 77-72.

In the nationwide poll of basketball writers and broadcasters released today, UCLA's defending national champions garnered all 35 first place votes for the maximum total of 700 points.

Trailing the Bruins in the top ten are Florida State, Maryland, Minnesota, Marquette, North Carolina State, Long Beach State, Kentucky, Penn and Southwestern Louisiana.

Good Parents Train Children

Hal says that doting mammas and indulgent papas help produce the litterbug teen-agers on our highways. They also are accessories to the murder, rape and arson crimes of their children! So ignore Dr. Spoof's malarky and play the parental game properly!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE V-562: Hal D., aged 29, is a highway police officer.

"Dr. Crane," he protested, "will you please warn American mothers about litterbugs?"

"For we find our beautiful highways polluted with empty beer cans as well as other debris discarded from automobiles by thoughtless teen-agers.

"And it is our experience that these same careless litterbugs are a by-product of the failure by mothers to make their children clean up their rooms or even put their toys away, while toddlers.

"In former days, we posted signs threatening to fine men for spitting on the sidewalks.

"Their mothers should have taught them better in their own homes!

"And we police officers can't be 'wet nurses' to the millions of litterbugs unless the mothers help out."

Litterbugs

Hal is quite correct.

Dr. Spoof's lax doctrines of child training are malarky!

You parents (especially you mothers) must turn your toddlers in approved social habits long before they reach kindergarten.

See that they put their toys in a convenient toy box or the shelves of a bookcase in the nursery.

Praise them for their good deeds but also punish them for the bad!

That's an inexorable rule of animal trainers, who can often make seals, dogs and even elephants behave far better than many American children!

Even our schools are being invaded by this same Dr. Spoof permissive ideology.

Good parents should always imitate animal trainers, whose motto is:

"Always reward the good but also always penalize the bad action and permit no exceptions to occur!" Even the school teachers are now being graduated from our Colleges of Education with the idea that children should be allowed to "do their thing."

That's obviously a wrong doctrine.

For the older generation have far more wisdom than the inexperience of youth. So it is our obligation to safeguard them by a rigid set of rules, just like those in baseball or other fields of sport.

Unless we modified their juvenile action, they'd light matches around gasoline or turn on gas jets, thus asphyxiating the household.

So it is nonsense to let youngsters "do their thing" without stringent adult regulation, supervision and punishment.

God placed more pain receptor cells in our skin than touch, cold or hot sense organs.

Why?

Because pain is the swiftest, most efficient and the longest lasting type of teacher!

In all animals below man, including lions, dogs or even house cats, the mothers make their offspring hew to the line, otherwise they get nipped or batted by mama's claws.

The young that violate mama's precepts then may also more likely be devoured by other 4-legged foes or jungle snakes or be shot by human poachers.

So you young mothers MUST prepare your kiddies for safe and lawful human behavior, or you will be accessories to their later crimes!

Send for my "Tests for Good Parents," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents, and cooperate with our police officers!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Anthology Is In Braille

The Pitt County Department of Social Services has received five copies of Expectations, a 124-page anthology of current children's literature embossed in Grade II Braille.

Published by the Braille Institute of American, Inc., the reading of the book incorporates the senses of touch and smell. Two pages of embossed pictures depict items and characters in the book and there is a page of "micro-fragrance labels" which, when scratched, release the essence of a scent related to the reading experience. Included in the year's edition are eight complete books, two original stories, and five original poems.

Contributions from individuals, service clubs, literary and civic groups underwrite the $5 publication cost of each volume.

Parents of blind children, libraries, or agencies for the blind requesting further information about Expectations should write to Mrs. Betty Kalagian, editor; Braille Institute of American, Inc.; 741 N. Vermont Ave., Los Angeles, Calif. 90029.

Two Survive Ride In A Drainage Ditch

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — "I kept thinking I wouldn't be living the next day," says Eddie Smith of his bumpy, frightening one-mile ride down a rain-swollen drainage ditch.

The 14-year-old boy and 11-year-old Diane Huston escaped with only bruises from their ordeal, according to a hospital nurse.

Eddie said he, three younger brothers and Diane went to the edge of the ditch after school Monday "to watch the running water."

Tommy Smith, 9, fell into the ditch and the other four climbed down to hoist him out. While trying to pull themselves back up again, Eddie and

As the younger boys ran alongside the ditch trying to keep the pair in sight, the two clung to each other, occasionally sinking completely under water. Twice they were swept through culverts beneath roadways. The second time, Eddie said, Diane was torn out of his arms.

Tommy Smith, 9, fell into the ditch and the other four climbed down to hoist him out. While trying to pull themselves back up again, Eddie and

Survivor To Resume 'Long Walk' Reflector Ads

By HENRIETTA LEITH
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Two Minnesota brothers set out 2½ years ago to walk around the world in behalf of UNICEF. They were more than halfway to their goal—having covered 8,000 land miles—last month and might still be going if a gang of murdering bandits hadn't jumped them near Kabul, Afghanistan.

Now the survivor, David Kunst, is making plans here to pick up again where he and his slain brother John left off.

David keeps with him a handwritten note on yellow lined paper that John wrote as they trekked into eastern Turkey a year ago.

The brothers from Waseca, Minn., had been warned by officials about the dangers of the area in winter—danger from wolves and possibly from people—and John had jotted down his thoughts about their decision to go ahead:

"It's like a play," he wrote, "with all the actors playing their parts right up to the tragic ending."

Last Oct. 22, nearly a year after he penned the note, 25-year-old John Kunst played his part to the tragic ending and died in the dust along a road in a rugged gorge in Afghanistan.

But Dave, 33, back in New York and still recuperating from his own bullet wound from the bandit attack, is determined it will not be the end. He is busy in a United Nations Association office making plans to resume the march at the very spot where the bandits attacked to go on through Pakistan, India and China and then back to Minnesota.

He's even going to try to persuade another brother, Peter, to circle the second half of the globe with him on foot.

Dave and John originally started out in June 1970 just to do something for "education, experience, adventure," something that had never been done, the surviving brother recalls, but soon decided to give more meaning to their walk around the world by doing it to promote UNICEF—the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund.

"We thought about the peace movement," he said, "but then we thought if we walk for children, not too many people are going to say something against children. One lady in Ohio told us 'I've read about you guys. It's a great adventure, but you're walking for the wrong organization—it helps Communist countries.' We just said 'We're walking for children, not Communists.'"

A woman in Minneapolis gave them the idea of walking with a mule, not only to carry their provisions and call attention to their project, but also to ward off people thinking they were hitchhikers. So "Willie Make It" the mule joined them as far as New York, where they sent the mule home, got a plane to Lisbon and acquired "Willie Make It II" with the help of Portuguese tourist officials.

In Ankara, Turkey, they acquired "the greatest thing that happened to us in a year and a half," a wagon for the mule to pull, supplied by Turkish tourist officials. At an American Air force base 50 miles from Istanbul, officers provided them a cover for the wagon so they would have shelter when they stopped to eat or sleep.

"But we never rode in the cart," says Dave. "We have scrolls from every mayor of every town, stamped and signed, and everyone from truck drivers to tourist bureaus, testifying that we walked."

In western Yugoslavia, they had acquired a mongrel dog and named it "Drifter," but it was killed by Turkish sheep dogs trained to kill wolves. A newfound American friend in Ankara gave them another dog, and an embassy official arranged to have a little dog house built under the wagon, so the little dog could jump in and ride when it got tired.

Across most of Afghanistan, the American walkers had Afghan police protection, Dave says, and "John and I agreed that Afghanistan was one of the best countries we'd been through, as far as officials were concerned."

"They met us at the border, and sent police to check on us as we walked. At Hurat they gave us breakfast, put us up at a hotel, and the governor gave us an official banquet."

"The police followed us almost to Kabul, but we thought we had got through the dangerous part. We could have called for police protection through the gorge, but we never really wanted police. I can't explain it, but you want to do it yourself."

About 6 o'clock the night of Oct. 22, Dave suggested they pull the wagon off the road for the night. They were cooking dinner in the wagon when the dog began barking.

"John said there were six Afghans walking down the road," Dave recalls, "and I said 'Watch 'em.' We finished eating, and were sitting there talking when we saw headlights up the road quite a ways, and I said 'It's probably a truck broken down.'"

"About 9 or 9:30 I looked out a little peekhole and the truck had parked about 200 feet from the wagon, and I said 'It must be the same truck in trouble again.' Three guys got out and looked under the hood."

"Then John said the same six Afghans were coming back. I had a shotgun they had given us in Ankara for the wolves the winter before and I loaded it."

"When the six Afghans got by the truck, they seemed to rush over and grab the driver and his helper and I said 'I think they're robbing the truck.' They took the driver across the road and I asked John if I should jump out and shoot up in the air, and he said 'No, you're not in the United States.'"

As five of the men came toward the wagon, Dave argued with his brother over whether to shoot first, and after shouting the Afghan word for "Go Away," Dave fired the gun in the air.

"They jumped back and spread out," he said. "A shot was fired—I don't know why, I think it was a signal shot, and I said we should get under the wagon but John said no, we should walk up the mountain."

But before they could do either, more shots rang out and both brothers were wounded. The bandits yanked Dave's wristwatch and belt off, and threw a mattress over him.

"I could hear them going through the wagon," Dave recalls, "Then the truck started up and it must have scared them—they took off. I went to my brother and tried to feel a pulse, but I had a feeling he was dead. I told myself I had to get help and I tried to stop several trucks, but they wouldn't stop. I thought of the mule and went back to the wagon and untied the mule, then stood on a water jug and tried to mount, but the mule wouldn't cooperate."

"I remembered we had gasoline, and I thought I'd spread it across the road and ignite it—then they'd stop. But in the wagon everything was scattered all over and I couldn't find the gasoline. So I went back to the road and went down on my knees, holding my side. I was really bleeding by then."

It was 3:30 in the morning before a jeepful of Afghan soldiers rescued Dave and took him back to Kabul to a hospital.

The bandits had taken clothing, a Persian rug given them by Iranian tourist officials, a gift bag from the Afghans, three glasses, a tape player, field cameras, and "of course, the shotgun."

They left behind the food, despite Afghanistan's drought and famine, because, Dave says, "They don't trust canned goods."

But the next day the wagon was still there and the mule was nearby, munching on the sparse grass. Willie Make It II is now in an Afghan stable and a UNICEF official in Kabul is paying out of his own pocket to take care of the mule and wagon until Dave can start the second half of the trip.

His greatest pleasure on returning to the United States was to find out that his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Al Kunst of Clear Lake, Iowa, approve of his plan to go on.

Asked why he wants to, Dave pulls out another scrap of yellow paper on which John had written that there were many reasons for the trip.

"But of them all," John wrote, "The search is the most important."

Sec. Randall Dies At Duke Hospital In Night

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina's Secretary of Social Rehabilitation and Control, George W. Randall, died of kidney failure Monday night at the age of 62.

Randall's deputy secretary, Ralph Edwards, said Randall had been stricken with a recurrence of a kidney ailment Monday morning and was taken to Duke University Hospital, where he died at 8:50 p.m.

In the nearly 20 years since he first joined North Carolina state government, George W. Randall developed a reputation as a prison director who believed that prison was not necessarily the best place to rehabilitate criminals.

He recently told the state Advisory Budget Commission that the state should place more emphasis on community-based programs for rehabilitation rather than imprisonment.

"Please don't misunderstand me," he said then. "We will always need some prisons to house dangerous offenders." And, he added, handling offenders in community based programs is not coddling. "It is a hard-nosed approach requiring the offender to work to support his family, to pay taxes, and to obey the law."

Randall, a former FBI agent, was born in West Blocton, Ala. and graduated from the University of Alabama.

He became associated with a textile firm in Iredell County and was elected state representative from that county in 1953 and 1955.

Gov. Luther Hodges tapped him as a consultant to study the prison system and in 1956, appointed him chairman of the state Board of Paroles.

In 1960, Hodges named him director of the state prison system. He held that job until 1965, when he took a similar post with the state of Oregon.

He later resigned that post under fire after a prison rebellion. He rejoined the North Carolina prison system and in March of this year was appointed to the cabinet level position he held at his death.

Under the state government reorganization plan, Randall was responsible for the Department of Correction, the Board of Paroles, the Probations Commission, and the Department of Youth Development.

Funeral arrangements Monday night were incomplete.

Dignitaries At Launching

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, actress Eva Gabor, comedian Bob Hope and 130-year-old Charlie Smith, who still doubts man can walk on the moon, top a list of space agency VIP's who will watch the Apollo 17 launch in person.

A record 42,000 people will watch the launch Wednesday night as guests of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the White House, State Department and other government agencies.

Among them are 200 congressmen, 59 foreign dignitaries, 81 ambassadors, 2,400 newsmen, dozens of Hollywood stars and social luminaries who have reserved seating for the liftoff.

Smith, who retired as an orange picker in the central Florida town of Bartow at the age of 113, will be chauffeured to the moonport where he has a grandstand seat.

"He doesn't fully understand just what the rocket launch is all about," said Frank Duerr, a social security worker who knows Smith well. "He still doesn't think people can go to the moon and walk on it."

Utah's elevation ranges from 2,600 feet above sea level in the southwest to 13,000 feet-plus in the mountain ranges.

Holshouser Impact Will Be Through Appointments

RALEIGH (AP) — The way in which Gov.-Elect Jim Holshouser will make his biggest impact on North Carolina government will be in the exercise of the appointive power.

During the four years he will serve as governor Holshouser will name a host of state officials. He also will appoint a majority of the approximately 5,000 persons who serve on state boards and commissions.

These range from the 11 secretaries the new governor will name to head major state departments to the three members he will appoint to the state Board of Cosmetic Art Examiners.

Among the first appointments Holshouser is expected to make will be the members of the state Highway Commission where he has stated in no uncertain terms he expects some changes to be made.

The 23 members and chairman of the Highway Commission serve at the pleasure of the governor. So the new governor will be able to name a completely new board the first day he is in office if he wishes.

Holshouser will be able to replace the 27 members of the state Board of Conservation and Development and the three members of the State Board of Alcoholic Control just as quickly if he likes. Members of both these agencies serve at the pleasure of the governor.

The new governor will be able to place his own men in two of the six places on the powerful Advisory Budget Commission. These two members serve at the pleasure of the governor but the other four are ex officio—the chairman of the Senate and House finance and appropriations committees.

Holshouser will have a chance to appoint eight Republicans as special Superior Court judges when terms of incumbents expire in 1975.

Terms of most of the members of the 200-odd boards and commissions to which Holshouser will have the opportunity to appoint members are staggered, so that he will not be able to appoint them all during his first year in office. As a matter of fact, terms of some board members will not expire until after Holshouser steps down.

For example, terms of the 11 members of the state Board of Education are staggered, so that three will be appointed next year, two in 1975, three in 1977 and three in 1979. Holshouser has not yet indicated whether he will name only Republicans to these state boards and commissions. If he follows the example of Gov. Bob Scott and other Democratic governors, he will appoint few members of the opposite party to serve during his administration.

One board to which Holshouser will have to name a couple of Democrats is the state Board of Elections. The law says that at last two of its five members must come from another political party.

Holshouser will not be able to place a majority on the Utilities Comi Commission during his term unless some of the present members resign.

Terms of two of the give members expire in 1973, two in 1977, and one in 1979.

But he will be able to place a majority on the state Banking Commission rather early in his term. Eight of its 12 members' terms expire next year and four in 1975.

Of the five members of the state Board of Health appointed by the governor, terms of three members will expire in 1973 and two in 1975.

On the board of Mental Health, terms of five of the 15 members expired in 1973, five more in 1975 and five in 1977.

The Social Services Board has seven members with three to be appointed in 1973, two in 1975 and two in 1977.

The term of one of three members of the Paroles Board expires next year, one in 1974 and one in 1975.

In the case of the Board of Water and Air Resources, terms of four members expire next year, four more in 1975 and five in 1977.

The Industrial Commission has three members with one term expiring in each of the next five years.

Terms of four members of the Correction Commission expire next year and three others in 1975.

The Milk Commission is made up of seven members. Two terms expire in 1973, two in 1974, two in 1975 and one in 1976.

Terms of three of nine members of the state Ports Authority expire next year, three in 1975 and three in 1977.

The Department of Archives and History Executive Board has seven members. Terms of two expire in 1973, two in 1975 and three in 1977.

There are 10 members of the state Board of Agriculture with terms of four members expiring in 1973, three in 1975 and three in 1977.

Owner Of Possum Trot Line Ready To Sell Out

By GUY COATES
Associated Press Writer
SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — "It goes no place to nowhere, but it sure has been a lot of fun," says the owner of the tiny Possum Trot Line in announcing he's selling out.

One of the last operating steam-run railroads in the nation, the Possum Trot Line chugs through only 23 miles of rural Arkansas, with stops at, of south Arkansas since 1925, such points as Goose Ankle and Terrapin Neck.

The Possum Trot boasts rolling stock that includes three gleaming steam engines, one of them 52 years old, and it's a genuine Interstate Commerce Commission-sanctioned railroad.

But owner T.W.M. Long of Shreveport, La., said Tuesday he's quitting the rail business because the Possum Trot doesn't make any money. He is asking $500,000 for the whole shebang.

The train has been swaying along through the piney woods from Reader to Waterloo.

Long says he bought the line in 1956 as a "normal American investment. I wanted to make a little money."

He hasn't.

"The straw that broke the camel's back came with the closing of Berry Petroleum Company's refinery at Waterloo since about 93 per cent of the freight revenue came from this source," Long says.

Somewhere, he feels there is a buyer.

The Shreveport businessman believes a governmental agency or some private group should take it over as a tourist attraction.

The train made its final scheduled run last week.

"The sun came out," Long said. "It was a nice day for the funeral."
