Haiphong Harbor Is Re-Mined

Military Pressure On N. Viets

SAIGON (AP) — The United States has resumed some military activities above the 20th Parallel of North Vietnam, including the remining of Haiphong harbor, in efforts to put pressure on Hanoi to sign a peace agreement, U.S. sources said today.

North Vietnam said earlier that U.S. planes had dropped mines into the harbor at Haiphong and strafed its suburbs with rockets on Sunday.

The sources said U.S. planes apparently did fire some rockets or missiles at North Vietnamese antiaircraft installations to protect the planes dropping mines.

The informants added that they knew of no American planes being hit.

The sources said that bombing of North Vietnam above the 20th Parallel has not been resumed, but such a move is under consideration.

The 20th Parallel restriction, which went into effect in October as a gesture of good will, put Hanoi and Haiphong off limits to U.S. air attacks.

The U.S. Command said only that there are no American bombing operations being conducted above the 20th Parallel as of now.

But on the question of the remining of Haiphong and the firing of rockets into the suburbs, it refused comment.

There had been reports in Saigon that in view of the failure to conclude the agreement after nearly two months, President Nixon might order a resumption of military activity above the 20th Parallel.

The White House and the Pentagon in Washington declined to comment on the Hanoi broadcast concerning the mining and rocket attacks.

North Vietnam also announced that the Viet Cong would observe a unilateral cease-fire of limited but unspecified duration in South Vietnam for Christmas and New Year's, as it has in past years.

But Hanoi again rejected the peace package proposed by South Vietnam President Nguyen Van Thieu, who called for an indefinite Christmas truce, the release of American and North Vietnamese prisoners of war and direct negotiations between Saigon and the Communists.

Last year, the South Vietnamese observed 24-hour cease-fire periods at Christmas and New Year's, and the Communists specified 72 hours each. As usual, there were scores of violations.

Renewal of the air war on Haiphong and Hanoi in an attempt to force North Vietnam to accept U.S. peace terms had been predicted after Henry A. Kissinger's announcement Saturday that his negotiations with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho had broken down. President Nixon had halted all bombing, naval gunfire and mining above the 20th parallel on Oct. 22 to improve the climate for the negotiations.

The North Vietnamese also charged that, on Sunday, many U.S. planes and warships "savagely bombarded" numerous population centers in the southern third of North Vietnam below the 20th parallel. Hanoi charged that the bombing killed or wounded many persons "and created heavy damage."

Disagreements Holding Up Ceasefire In Vietnam Make Early Peace Unlikely

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The disagreements Henry A. Kissinger says are holding up a Vietnam settlement are more than problems of semantics. They go to the heart of what the war is about and make it unlikely there will be peace any time soon.

For the remaining two issues concern the political control of the South. In other words, should South Vietnam be guaranteed the right of an existence independent of North Vietnam.

Kissinger, in his first public discussion of the negotiations with the North Vietnamese since his Oct. 26 statement that "peace is at hand," refused to discuss the substance of the troublesome details.

But he inched close on several occasions in his Saturday news conference. "We wanted," he said, "some reference in the agreement, somehow, however elusive, however indirect, which would make clear that the two parts of Vietnam would live in peace with each other and that neither side would impose its solution on the other by force."

North Vietnam has always insisted there is only one Vietnam and the Saigon regime has subverted the Geneva agreement ending the war with France by insisting on a separate life.

In Hanoi's eyes, the demilitarized zone at the 17th parallel is not a permanent international boundary but only a temporary truce marker.

In the first of the nine points outlined in the tentative agreement, the United States agreed to language that seemed to support this view:

"The United States respects the independence, sovereignty, unity and territorial integrity of Vietnam as recognized by the 1954 Geneva agreements."

Both sides say the October agreement was final on this point, and now each accuses the other of recanting.

Who changed position is uncertain. What is clear is that neither Kissinger nor his Hanoi counterpart, Le Duc Tho, had the same concept about the meaning of the tentative accord.

The United States is seeking a settlement with enough political stability to provide a "decent interval" between the end of the fighting and any resumption of conflict.

This decent interval would give South Vietnam time to establish itself in the countryside and the United States time to escape blame for a sellout of its ally if and when the conflict resumes.

Hanoi wants a cease-fire with a loose understanding of the political agreement so it can continue its military support of its Viet Cong ally.

Thus, when Kissinger said, "We have an agreement that is 99 per cent completed ... we are only one decision away from a settlement," he was talking only of quantity.

For Hanoi to give Kissinger what he wants on this point would remove any claim it would have for legitimately intervening in the South if Saigon and the Viet Cong start fighting again.

Splashdown On Tuesday

By PAUL RECER
AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — With the major space exploits behind them, the Apollo 17 astronauts performed last-minute packing and housekeeping chores today in preparation for their homecoming.

Astronauts Eugene A. Cernan, Harrison H. Schmitt and Ronald E. Evans were right on course for a splashdown in the South Pacific at 2:24 p.m. EST Tuesday. Their ship America was operating perfectly.

Apollo 17 passes the halfway mark in its journey from the moon to earth at 3:26 p.m. EST today. At that time, the last planned mission to the moon will be 120,138 miles from both earth and moon.

Ahead of the astronauts, on their last full day in space and after a night's rest, was the task of stowing equipment, reviewing checklists and cleaning up the command ship.

The spacemen also had to secure their record cargo of moon rocks, three cannisters of film and other science treasure gathered during the 13-day mission to the moon.

In the last major exploit of the mission, Evans made a 44-minute walk in deep space Sunday to retrieve the film cannisters from a part of the ship which won't return to earth and bring them to the safety of America's cabin.

"Hey, there's the earth right out the hatch!" said Evans as he glided into space at the end of a 25-foot lifeline. "Beautiful. Hey, that sun is bright. That's a beautiful moon down there. A full moon."

Bundled in a white space suit and a helmet, Evans moved with hesitant grace and obvious relish. He laughed and sang and called out to his family on earth 180,000 miles away who watched the space walk by television.

"Hi, Jan. Hi, Jaime. Hi, Jon," he said, waving with one hand while holding to a rail with the other.

His wife, Janet, shouted back to the television set she was watching at home: "Hey, honey, don't fall!"

The astronaut moved slowly, his spacesuit glowing in the bright sunlight. He hummed and sang and noted, "Hey, this is great. Talk about being a spaceman, this is it."

He made three trips between the spaceship hatch and the instrument bay, returning each time with a cannister which he handed to his crewmates, who were also suited against the vacuum of space.

Two of the cannisters Evans recovered contained about two miles of film from two cameras which mapped and photographed the moon. The third cannister contained film exposed by a lunar sounder, a device which plotted the layers beneath the moon's surface by shooting out X rays and recording their echo.

Dad, There's A Horse Upstairs

GRANDVIEW, Mo. (AP) — Roy Scroggins was asleep when his 3-year-old son shook him awake and said:

"Dad, there's a horse upstairs."

Mirazah, an 800-pound Arabian gelding, somehow had climbed the stairs of the house that Scroggins had converted into a barn in the front yard and stood staring out a paneless window.

"We made two stalls in the living room and two in the kitchen. Our horses eat out of the kitchen sink," explained Mrs. Scroggins. "Upstairs were the bedrooms, and we stored hay up there."

No one knew how Mirazah had managed to turn a sharp corner in the living room and climb the 12 steep, narrow steps. And no one knew how to get him down.

Several neighbors and the Scroggins family trooped to the barn and discussed ways of luring the 17-year-old animal down.

But Mirazah had one more surprise. As Scroggins attached a rope to his halter, the horse gingerly backed downstairs.

"They're more trouble than the kids," Mrs. Scroggins said of the family's seven horses. "I think I'd rather have a houseful of children."

Then everyone went back to bed.

The Greenville Board of Education's position on the proposed rate increase by VEPCO is one of the items on the agenda of the board for its December meeting to be held at 8:00 o'clock tonight.

Other agenda items will include a look at a committee report-recommendation for an athletic track proposal to serve Rose High and Aycock Junior high; land acquisition adjacent to Sadie Saulter Elementary School; status of the site condemnation of the Evans property, the proposed site of the new middle junior high school; construction financing of the proposed school; and the multiple-step PERT program for the school.

Other agenda items include budget preparation, a calendar review and progress report; pupil instruction fee collection; resignations from the school staff and election of new staff members, a progress report on legal counsel; a status of the schools report; and a request by parents and patrons for the board's reconsideration of the proposed Aycock Junior High field trip; and reports from various agencies such as the Citizens Advisory Committee.

$80 Fine On Dollar

NASHUA, N.H. (AP) — Arthur Hoff didn't bother to file a state business tax return when his wife made just one dollar selling pots and pans. But the state found out and is fining him $80.

Mrs. Hoff staged utensil-selling parties at other people's homes and grossed $132. But her expenses were $131. Her husband included the dollar profit on the couple's federal income tax return.

The state saw his federal form and told Hoff he was being fined $10 for each 30 days his return was overdue — a total of $80.

"I guess I can see paying a penalty, because I obviously was wrong in not filing a statement to the Business Profits Tax Division," Hoff said.

"But I can't see being fined $80 for failing to file on what amounted to a one dollar business."

There would not have been any tax on an amount that small, anyway. Hoff's only offense was not filing the return.

Five Arrested For Sabotaging

YORK, Pa. (AP) — State police arrested five antiwar activists today for allegedly sabotaging a railroad siding leading into a factory of a major defense contractor.

The three men and two women, all from New Jersey, were identified as members of the East Coast Conspiracy to Save Lives, an antiwar group. The group first became known in 1970 when then-FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said it was led by antiwar Roman Catholic priests Daniel and Philip Berrigan.

The five were charged with malicious injury to railroads, after allegedly pouring concrete into a railroad switch at a point where the main line of the Penn Central meets a siding owned by American Machine and Foundry Corp. of York.

The company supplies material needed for the air war in Southeast Asia.

The five alleged saboteurs were committed to York County Prison in lieu of $25,000 bail after arraignment before a district justice in Emigsville.

The five were identified as Eugene William Daniel Galvin Jr., 23, of Newark; Thomas Edward Korkames, 21, of New Brunswick; Rollin D. Kirk, 25, and his wife Patricia, 26, of Princeton; and Monica McKig, 25, of the Princeton Theological Seminary.

Seek Trio For Questioning In Murder Of Benson Housewife

BENSON, N.C. (AP)—Three "hippie-type males" were sought today for questioning in connection with the brutal slaying of an attractive Benson housewife whose body was found in a vacant migrant labor dormitory on a potato farm near this rural community.

The fully-clothed body of Mrs. Bonnie W. Neighbors was found Sunday. She had been missing from her home since last Thursday and authorities had feared foul play. Her 4-month-old son, Arthur Glenn, was found alive with her.

Johnston County Deputy Lemay Penny said Mrs. Neighbors' feet were tied together, her arms bound and her mouth gagged. She had been blindfolded and shot twice through the head.

Two empty .25-caliber cartridges were found next to her body, which was lying on a metal cot inside the building.

Penny estimated she had been killed sometime Saturday night or early Sunday morning.

The body was taken to Chapel Hill where an autopsy was to be performed today by the state medical examiner. It was not known whether the woman had been sexually assaulted.

BONNIE NEIGHBORS

Penny said the three "hippie-type males" being sought were last seen in a blue automobile with flowered decals on N.C. 50 close to the farm where Mrs. Neighbors' body was found about 1 p.m.

Authorities said other leads also were being checked out but they declined to give any details.

There was no known motive for the slaying, Penny said.

Sherwood Lee, about 40, whose father owns the farm about six miles south of Benson on N.C. 50, said he heard a radio broadcast urging farmers to check their outbuildings and barns as part of the search for the missing woman and her son.

Penny said Lee was checking his father's buildings and while passing one of them, heard the cries of the infant. Inside, he found Mrs. Neighbors in the bunk. Her son was lying next to her, crying.

Penny said the infant was clad only in diapers and a sweater. He was taken to Besty Johnson Memorial Hospital in Dunn and was reported in satisfactory condition and "getting along very well" Sunday night.

The deputy estimated the temperature in the dormitory building Saturday night to 18 degrees or lower. A window was open and a door to the building was ajar.

Lee told authorities that the cement block building had been unoccupied since October when the last harvest was completed.

An estimated 400 volunteers along with six helicopters from Ft. Bragg and the Highway Patrol had aided in the search in Johnston and parts of Harnett County in the eastern part of the state.

Mrs. Neighbors disappeared Thursday afternoon when she failed to pick up her older son at school. She was last seen about 1:30 p.m. getting into her station wagon that afternoon to go to the school, police said.

Her station wagon was found Friday at the end of a Benson street. Her purse and keys were on the front seat. Officers had reported that no clothes were missing from the Neighbors' house in Benson and that the woman did not appear to be carrying any with her when she left her house.

The dead woman's husband, Kenneth Neighbors, is a certified public accountant with offices at Atlantic Beach, Durham and Benson.

HOBUCKEN — A 20-year-old Greenville man, Stan Coates, was drowned in Jones Bay near here Saturday morning when a 14-feet long aluminum boat in which he was riding overturned, the U.S. Coast Guard reported.

Sopkesman at the Hobucken Coast Guard Station said Coates and two other Greenville residents, Bucky Foell and Gary Smith, were duck hunting in the bay when their 14-feet aluminum boat overturned about 8 a.m. some 100 yards from the South shore.

Officials said Coates drowned and the other two remained in the water for an hour before assistance arrived.

Searches, including members of the U.S. Coast Guard and the Coast Guard Auxillary and members of the Pamlico County Resuce Squad search Saturday and Sunday for Coates' body but had not recovered it before the search was discontinued at dusk.

Passengers Are Calling It The 'Stowaway Cruise'

By HOLGER JENSEN
Associated Press Writer

ABOARD RMS PENDENNIS CASTLE (AP) — The American girl did it for adventure. The family of four did it out of desperation.

There were so many stowaways aboard the Royal Mail Ship Pendennis Castle as she neared Southampton today that passengers were calling it the "stowaway cruise."

"There's enough of us to form a club," said James White, 35, of Glasgow, who was caught with his wife and two small sons in the crew's quarters 10 hours after the ship left Cape Town Dec. 6.

"We were desperate," said Mrs. White. "We'd emigrated to South Africa, but my husband could not find work and wages were too low.

"We tried for six months. I sold off all my rings and jewelry, but we couldn't even afford school uniforms for the two boys so they ran around the beach all day."

White planned their departure carefully, obtaining baggage labels for the suitcases and boarding passes from the Union Castle Co. in Cape Town.

"I expected to be caught," he said. "But I knew they wouldn't turn back for just me and the family. We might have some trouble with the authorities in England, but they'll have a hard time getting me up any gangplanks again."

Christina Lee Shea, 22, of Albany, N.Y., stowed away on the spur of the moment.

"I was seeing off a friend in Las Palmas, and suddenly I thought it would be a kicky thing to do," she said. "I mean I had no money but it would be an adventure. I expected to get caught."

Miss Shea made three trips ashore to fetch her 3-year-old son and her baggage, reboarding the vessel each time without being challenged. She was caught, she said, "because I made the mistake of going down to the dining room for lunch. I forgot they had seating patterns and all that jazz."

Miss Shea is a sociology graduate from the State University of New York at Albany. She was doing graduate work at the University of Stockholm before she went to the Canary Islands for a vacation and ran out of money.

Relatives of the White family promised the company they would pay their passage, and the for were given cabins and free run of the ship. Miss Shea couldn't come up with any relatives or money, and she and her child were confined to the hospital isolation ward.

There were other stowaways, but Capt. H. Charnley refused to say how many: "That would not be in the interests of my company."

Miss Phyllis Vincent Weds Sunday Afternoon

The marriage of Miss Phyllis Lynne Vincent and Dennis Michael Langston was solemnized Sunday at 2:00 p.m. in the Saint James United Methodist Church.

The Rev. Christian White performed the double ring ceremony. A program of organ music was presented by Frances Cain of Greenville. Robert C. Lanston of Temple Hills, Md., brother of the bridegroom, sang "All The Time," "We've Only Just Begun," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Couple Exchanges Vows Sunday

MRS. TROY ALAN KITTRELL

WINTERVILLE — In a double ring ceremony on Sunday at three o'clock in the afternoon, Miss Patsy Gertrude Avery became the bride of Troy Alan Kittrell. The Rev. Willis Wilson officiated at the ceremony at Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Laddie Avery of Rt. 1, Winterville. The bridegroom's parents are Mrs. Margaret Walston of Wilson and the late Lloyd Allen Kittrell.

The church was decorated with a 17 crescent candelabra flanked by two miniature tree candelabra centered with a large arrangement of bridal flowers. A profile kneeling bench was flanked by two hogarth arrangements of bridal flowers. Family pews were marked by white satin ribbon holding bridal flowers.

Mrs. Paul Braxton of Winterville was organist. Mrs. Carroll McLawhorn of Winterville, soloist, sang "More" and "The Wedding Prayer." The wedding was directed by Mrs. Clifton Brock, aunt of the bride.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length white organza gown styled with a demi-bell silhouette skirt. The high neckline and empire waistline were encircled with tiny bands of Venise lace. The bodice featured a bib effect edged in lace with small buttons extending down the center. Appliques of chantilly lace with pearls also enhanced the bodice. Panels of chantilly lace accented the full bishop sleeves with rows of tiny Venise lace banding the deep cuffs. Appliques of chantilly lace with pearls flowed over the skirt front and three bands of Venise lace edged the hemline and continued around the attached chapel train, which also featured appliques of chantilly lace.

She wore an elbow length illusion mantilla edged in chantilly lace attached to a Camelot cap of lace with pearl design. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white butterfly roses centered with a white hybrid orchid tied with streamers of white satin and tulle.

Mrs. Kenneth Moore of Winterville, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a formal length flame red velvet gown designed with a mock shirtwaist bodice of white satin organza. The tucked bib was edged in a red embroidered trim with miniature red velvet buttons extending from the high rolled neckline. Matching trim banded the cuffs of the long sheer sleeves. She wore a flame red Juliet cap with a red illusion veil and carried a white fur muff.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Richard Thurston, sister of the bride, of Chapel Hill, Mrs. Myra Brock of Winterville, cousin of the bride, Miss Kay Gooding of Winterville, and Mrs. L. T. Baker, of Murfreesboro, Tenn. Miss Lisa Kittrell of Greenville, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl. They wore dresses identical to that of the matron of honor.

Keith Evans of Mt. Olive was best man. Ushers were Malcolm Jackson of Greenville, Donald Avery of Greenville, cousin of the bride, Jerry Cox and James Ernest Langston, both of Winterville.

The mother of the bride wore a green knit dress styled with an open collar and long sleeves. A wide panel at the waistline featured embroidered jewel flowers. She wore a matching green headpiece of silk flowers. She wore a white orchid and matching accessories.

Reception

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church fellowship hall. Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Laddie Avery, parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Brock, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Brock, Jr., aunts and uncles of the bride, and Mrs. Raymond Brock Sr., grandmother of the bride.

The guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Brock Jr. and were received by the bride and bridegroom.

They were directed to the refreshment table, which was decorated with white snapdragons flanked by candles on either side. Wedding bells decorated the corners of the table. The bride's table was centered with a four-tier wedding cake which was served to the guests by Mrs. Malcolm Jackson. Mrs. Bobby Hazelton poured punch. Mrs. Eldrige Avery presided over the register.

For a wedding trip to the mountains of North Carolina, the bride wore a street length knit dress of red and navy checks with a matching short jacket trimmed in navy. Navy accessories complimented the dress and she wore an orchid lifted from her bouquet.

The bride is a graduate of Winterville High School is a junior at East Carolina University majoring in education. The bridegroom graduated from Winterville High School and is associated with University Auto Sales, Greenville.

An after-rehearsal party was held at the church fellowship hall Saturday night. Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ray Walston, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Little.

A red and white color scheme was carried out and the table was centered with white flowers.

Pre-nuptial events honoring Miss Avery included a bridesmaids luncheon Saturday at the Three Steers. Hostesses were Mrs. Charles McLawhorn, Mrs. Eldridge Avery, Mrs. Kelly Nobles and Mrs. Hilda Avery.

A Christmas arrangement accented the center of the table and the hostesses remembered Miss Avery with a gift. The bride-elect presented gifts to her attendants.

On Friday night, a kitchen shower was held at the home of Mrs. William L. Nobles of Winterville. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. Floyd Aevery and Mrs. Bobby Hazelton.

The bride's table was centered with a Christmas arrangement on a background of a Maltatensian lace cloth with a green lining.

Mr. and Mrs. Stacy Evans and Mr. and Mrs. Keith Evans were hosts and hostesses at a pre-nuptial luncheon given in honor of Miss Patsy Avery and Troy Kittrell.

Magazine Field Far From Dead

Last week Life magazine editor Ralph Graves announced to his staff. "I thank you all for that gift which we gave to each other. There is nothing I can do to soften this sad blow."

Then came the announcement that Life would cease publication Dec. 29. The announcement ended an era of 36 flamboyant years for Life and it also seemed to close an era of the mass circulation magazines. Life had been preceeded in death by Colliers, Saturday Evening Post and Look magazines.

The post mortems indicate that Life was the victim of head-on competition with television for advertising dollars and soaring production and distrubution cost including a huge increase in postal rates.

No one really knows exactly where to place the blame. Certainly the magazine's readers were loayal and new ones were gained until a decision was made to actually cut circulation in order to find a circulation base which would appeal to advertisers. If this was a good idea, it came too late to save the magazine. Things were better this year but the publishers saw nothing but red ink ahead.

Ironically, things are not bad at all for the magazine field; it is just that the specialty magazines have taken over. Only recently Wall Street Journal reported that though 160 magazines have folded in the past decade, 753 new magazines were born, a trend that is expected to continue. During the first ten months of this year, magazines had billings of about $1 billion. That is a record and it is an increase of nearly $88 million from the first ten months of 1971.

It seems that individual magazines become dinosaurs who are trapped in their own mire of organization and general expenses. Apparently they must often die to be replaced by one of their species higher up the evolutionary ladder.

Old magazines die while new ones prosper and some familiar publishing names have disappeared from the scene. Life did what it did better than anybody. Perhaps its format was outmoded, or possibly some other publication will find a more efficient way to fill the same need. Regardless, Life magazine will be missed.

Psychologists Get In The Act

By A. C. SNOW
The Raleigh Times

RALEIGH — The seven-year-old came home from school and said, "I'm not discussing anything with Santa this year. I'm not sure there is a Santa." We knew she'd had the word from someone.

"Is too, a Santa," insisted the four-year-old.

"Those who do not believe in Santa are apt not to receive presents from Santa," observed Mama Bear from the Mt. Olympus of sugarplum trees and gingerbread fairies.

"I don't believe in forcing the myth," growled Papa Bear a few moments later. "Let her believe what she likes."

"But I hate for the little one to give it up so soon. Childhood is too fleeting at best," sighed Mama Bear.

Ah, would that it could be handled as easily as the reasoning of a friend's child who remarked: "There has to be a Santa Claus. My Daddy's too poor to buy those kinds of presents."

And so the dilemma. Yes, Virginia; no, Virginia. There is and there isn't . . .

Now the psychologists have gotten into the act.

To Tell of Not To Tell

"Tell 'em early," says one, "or it could cause your child to view Christmas in an irrational way all his life."

"Let them find out for themselves," warns another. "Tell them you don't really know, they'll have to find out for themselves."

And a third expert says the child should be told the truth from the beginning "or it might create a credibility gap between parent and child."

At our house, the credibility gap is widening. The four-year-old is incredibly turned on by Santa. The seven-year-old suffers in that painful gulf between a child's love of fantasy and her inbred respect for truth.

A visit to the shopping center Santa didn't enhance the glow of Christmas to any degree. Yes, even Santa has to ring the cash registers.

He sprawls in a big chair before a cheerful fireplace of cardboard and artificial snow. Weary at the end of the day, his "Ho! Ho!" is as real as the fold-up aluminum trees sold at the big department store down the mall.

An Uneasy Encounter

Their eyes shining with innocence, their hands perspiring with awe and fear, the little ones line up for a place on the big man's lap. But just as the child is about to whisper to the dear old man, a flash bulb goes off. The child is jolted back to the reality of the commercial Christmas.

As if by cue, Santa slides the child off his lap and Daddy marches over to pay the piper -- or rather, the photographer.

"Daddy," whispers the older child as she emerges from the trauma, "his beard is held on with a rubber band. And I could see his pants rolled up under his Santa suit."

"Did you tell him what you wanted for Christmas?"

"He didn't even ask," the least one said through tears. "All he talked 'bout was being good all year. He doesn't even know what I want him to bring."

"Don't worry, honey, I'll get the word to him," I promised.

But that night, she got out her crayons and knelt by the coffee table in front of the fire to get a letter off to Santa.

A Simple Message

It was a simple message, for the printing comes easier than the spelling for four-year-olds. And it merely said: "Santa, I love you. Katherine."

The next morning, she insisted on walking with me to the mailbox and I held her up so she could drop in the letter.

Larry, the postman, came by later in the day and took the letter -- even without a postage stamp.

Thanks, Larry. I don't know what you did with the letter. And with the way the mail service is these days it may not reach the North Pole until next summer. But thanks for helping keep the stars in place and the world in orbit.

Christmas is many things: a mail truck bearing letters to Make Believe, one child's growing and groping and another's trust in the living, if tarnished, legend. It is a nightwatch against greed, a greening of the spirit of giving.

Christmas is for the world. But children have locks on it. Selah.

Unbridgeable Political Gap

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—The unbridgeable gap in the political goals between Republican politicians and the White House was dramatized by one particularly embarrassing moment during the generally uncomfortable Nov. 29 meeting at Camp David between President Nixon and Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas.

Mr. Nixon had decided weeks earlier to sack Dole as Republican national chairman and replace him with George Bush, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, at the Jan. 19 National Committee meeting. But, as is his habit when trying to fire somebody, the President meandered. He asked Dole to consider when he should quit in order to better prepare his 1974 Senate reelection campaign and also to think about who should succeed him as national chairman when that time soon or distant arrived.

Dole delayed setting a date but quickly suggested a successor: Melvin R. Laird voluntarily retiring as Secretary of Defense. A brilliant political thinker and tireless organizer, Laird commands unmatched respect among party leaders.

But the President hurriedly passed over Dole's suggestion without comment. Laird's relations with White House major domo H.R.(Bob) Haldeman deteriorated progressively the last four years, and he would be the last man desired as chairman by Haldeman's palace guard. Laird would exercise the same independence at Republican headquarters that he did at the Pentagon. The palace guard believes Bush, though a public figure of wide accomplishment, will take orders.

That's precisely why Republican politicians are morose about the Bush selection. "George won't go to the bathroom without asking the White House," one bitter party leader told us. Such Republicans believe Bush as chairman marries the party to the White House staff. The upshot: deepening pessimism about the Republican future particularly the next presidential election.

Ironically, both politicians and White House staff agreed Dole should go. Their widely divergent reasons, however, show the gap between their political goals.

The palace guard long ago tired of Dole's irrepressible bluntness. Presidential staffers were infuriated by his post-election criticism of Mr. Nixon's non-involvement in Senate races. In characteristically heavyhanded style, the White House leaked reports about Dole's departure before he was told—no help for Dole's 1974 reelection campaign.

But state party leaders gave Dole no backing either, preferring a full-tie professional to rebuild a Republican party exposed by 1972 state races in dilapidated condition almost everywhere They want the new national chairman to provide not speeches but financial aid and varied technical assistance, particularly in candidate selection.

To perform that role, many state chairmen wanted state chairman John Andrews of Ohio, an effective full-time professional of 18 years experience with well-defined ideas about what a national chairman should and should not be. A more controversial possibility was national committeeman Keith Bulen of Indiana, an innovative campaign strategist and organizer. But the Haldeman inner circle regarded Andrews as an outsider and Bulen, far worse, as an incorrigible individualist.

Moreover, the White House job description for national chairman fits Bush much better than Andrews or Bulen: an articulate spokesman to travel the country recruiting candidates and settling local disputes. Mr. Nixon's top political advisers want the national committee's budget radically pruned, obviating the technical assistance desired by state leaders.

This prospect can scarcely be appetizing to Bush, who would be a possibility for President in 1976 had he won his 1970 Texas race for the Senate. He would have preferred a Cabinet post, but Mr. Nixon and his Cabinet-makers preferred faceless businessmen to politicians in filling vacancies. When first approached by the President two weeks ago to become national chairman, Bush was negative. When he finally accepted this week, the act

Play-Off vs. Christmas

WASHINGTON — Santa Claus was sitting in front of his television set on Christmas Eve watching the Redskin-Green Bay Packers play-off game when Mrs. Claus came in.

"Are you going to sit there all day watching that idiotic football game?"

"Will you get out of here and leave me alone," Santa Claus said.

"But you've got to go to work. The sleigh is piled high with toys and the reindeer are getting very impatient."

"Listen, this play-off means a lot to me. If the reindeer are cold, they can come in and watch the game with me."

"How can you behave that way? Children all over the world are waiting for you to come down their chimneys tonight. You'll never make it if you don't start now," Mrs. Claus said.

Santa opened another can of beer. "For heaven's sake, woman, can't I relax for a few hours without your yakking at me?"

"If you don't deliver those toys, they're going to find a new Santa Claus and you're going to be out of job."

Santa took a swallow. "How did I know they were going to have a play-off on Christmas Eve? Answer me that! If I had known it, I would have made my deliveries yesterday."

ART BUCHWALD

"Yesterday was not Christmas Eve!" Mrs. Claus screamed. "Look at you sitting there in your undershirt, swilling beer, with your fat stomach sticking out. You certainly have the holiday spirit."

"There goes Larry Brown!" Santa yelled. "A 12-yard gain. Now there's a football player."

"You're not even listening to me. Will you get dressed and get on that stupid sled and go to work?"

"Not until the game is over," Santa asid. "I can work any day, but how often do the Redskins get into a play-off game? Do you have any more potato chips to go with this beer?"

"Don't you understand Christmas won't be Christmas if you don't get those toys distributed? Just think--tomorrow morning millions and millions of children will come downstairs with their hearts beating fast, excitement glistening in their eyes, knees trembling--and what will they find? Nothing. Why? Because Santa Claus was sitting on his fat butt watching a football game."

"That's easy for you to say," Santa said. "But I've been sitting here Sunday after Sunday, not to mention Monday nights, rooting for the Redskins. and now that they've made it and are in a play-off for the Super Bowl, you want me to leave them in

Other Editors Say

Elvis In Peking?

(Greensboro Daily News)

Elvis Presley is going on television in January to do a benefit performance, and he is hardly thinking small. His people say the show is to be broadcast in 34 countries, with a potential audience of one and a half billion people. They also say thay are negotiating to have it shown in Russia and China.

The Russians are used to our strange American music, and even have developed something of a taste for it, but the Chinese are another matter entirely. The first Chinese visitors to this country have been unfailingly perplexed by almost everything they see, from quick-food joints to motorcycle freaks. What in the world would 800 million Chinese think should Elvis Presley suddenly appear on their television screens?

Elvis, after all, is a special breed of cat. He wears suits designed by heaven only knows whom, great glittering affairs with tassels and trinkets all over them. He is given to wriggles and shakes of titanic proportions. He sings songs with such titles as "Lawdy Miss Clawdy" and "Don't You Step on My Blue Suede Shoes." He has the most accomplished leer we have ever seen.

The Chinese, on the other hand, all wear little blue suits designed, we assume, by Mrs. Chairman Mao. They regard the very slightest wriggle or shake as a violation of decorum. They sing songs with such titles as "O Hail the Glorious Day When Chairman Mao Swam the Mighty Yangtze River" and "Workers of the World Unite in Labor to the Greater Glory of All Mankind." They wouldn't know how to leer if Chairman Mao told them to.

If they are exposed to Elvis Presley, they may never recover from the shock. Americans have, we think, exposed them to more than enough of the mysterious in such personages as Henry Kissinger and Joseph Alsop. Surely we can spare them Elvis Presley.

Boyle Views Life

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Sidewalk comments by a Pavement Plato:

Which has a better life under civilization, a man or a dog or a cat?

HAL BOYLE

While there are certain advantages as well as disadvantages in any one of these, on the whole the life of a man seems to be the worst, the life of a cat the best.

The life of a man is the worst because it is the most unnatural. His normal instincts are more repressed, his personal freedoms are more confined or denied.

Almost everything a man who lives in a city does is against his nature. He has to breathe foul air and try to sleep in noisy places. He has to work for 40 hours, more or less, in office or factory at tasks that often don't interest him greatly and yield him few satisfactions of body, mind or spirit.

Most of his pleasures are fruitless and give him little real joy. They tear him down rather than build him up. He eats too much, drinks too much, thinks too little and spends too many dull hours in hypnotized inertia watching television programs that would bore a mindless mole.

During the average day he doesn't perform enough physical activity to keep Tom Thumb properly exercised.

His attitude toward sex is pretty much like his attitude toward the weather. He spends far more time talking about it than doing anything about it.

But the biggest sources of dismay to man under civilization is his thralldom to money. Almost everything he does or doesn't do is determined by whether he has enough or too little money. Everything in his life has a price tag, and he sweats his life away pawing through them for the things he can afford.

Therein lies the superiority of the life of a cat or a dog over the life of a man. Neither cats nor dogs have to carry pocketbooks or ca h checks. Man does that for them.

A dog also has it over a man in that he doesn't have to wear clothing, work for a living, drive an automobile through traffic, or try to please the whim-whams of a vexing wife. He also doesn't have to bear up under the strain of raising snooty teen-age children.

While most dogs aren't overly fond of the canned foods they get, nutritionists say their menu is often more nourishing than the things people put in their stomachs.

But on the whole, the life of a cat is superior to that of either man or dog. Unlike a man or a dog, it doesn't have to perform tricks or sit up and beg for its vittles. It doesn't even feel it necessary to please its master, or wag its tail in loyal gratitude, because a cat recognizes no power superior to its self.

A cat is prisoner to no grace or majesty other than its own. It fawns on neither friend nor foe. It performs no menial tasks, is slave to no vices, and is free to daydream for 24 hours a day if it chooses.

A cat makes its own manners and can lick its furry sides in

Strength For Today

NARROW PATHWAY OF FAITH

Our Lord spoke about two highways—one a broad highway which leads to destruction, the other a narrow, straightened pathway which leads to life.

Our Lord in this case was talking about human behavior. Many people take the broad highway of loose living and go over the precipice. A comparatively few take the narrow pathway and achieve sainthood and spiritual triumph.

What our Lord said in this connection about conduct might be said also about religious faith. The people who have no faith travel a broad highway. It is easy—you don't have to believe anything. You can write books on the basis of your doubts and you may be regarded as a great objective scholar. If you remain silent when the eternal varities are being discussed and raise your eyebrows and shrug your shoulders, you may build up for yourself a vast reputation for wisdom.

But say a word in behalf of good old-fashioned religion and most people will smile indulgently. Simple faith is tremendously hard to achieve and extremely annoying to defend. Yet the Man from whom time is dated was himself a simple, elemental person. For his enterprise to conquer the world he chose twelve men as simple and elemental as himself.

The acquisition of a simple religious faith is the simplest of all spiritual achievements, and the most difficult.

New Emphasis On Productivity

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In the years 1950 to 1970, the average hours worked per employe declined by about one-half per cent a year, yet the output of workers rose 2.5 per cent a year. Less work, more output.

As a result of this greater production, the standard of living rose in the same period by about 2 per cent a year. And the rise would have been greater except that employers and employes opted for more leisure time.

Despite this evidence showing productivity as the key to the materially fuller life, a great deal of misunderstanding exists. Some people have even inverted the meaning: They think it means more work for no greater reward.

This might seem surprising until you learn that even some of the experts aren't as thoroughly informed as they would like to be. Even the Commerce Department calls it "one of the economy's most perplexing subjects."

It is also one of the most important, because not only does it contain the formula for modern creature comforts but it is the key to maintenance of the country's international competitive position.

In the years 1965-1970, the increase in manufacturing productivity, or output per man-hour, began slipping and averaged out to only 1.9 per cent, compared with up to 14 per cent in Japan and triple the U.S. rate in some other countries.

Stated another way: While the United States still produced more per worker and received greater output for its investment dollar, foreign competitors made enormous strides in closing the gap.

It is for reasons such as these that Americans are going to hear a lot about productivity in 1973, especially if the Advertising Council goes through with a contemplated $10-million ad campaign.

Among the projects to be tackled by the National Commission on Productivity is the compiling of a summary of the entire subject.

The commission is now probing into some of the mysteries of that characteristic we call American know-how, with the added notion that, if it is understood, it can be better applied.

What makes one man work harder, more creatively, more responsibly than another? What is the relationship between job satisfaction and productivity? What roles, pro and con, do unions play? Management? Capital?

Lest anyone harbor the notion that productivity is raised by pushing the worker harder, let him know that it produces the opposite: a lowering. The answer lies in properly relating man and capital to technology.

Hanoi Prepared To Use 'Peace' To Fight Anew

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Peace negotiator Henry A. Kissinger's report that North Vietnam wants weak international supervisory machinery reinforces U.S. intelligence reports of enemy military preparations to burrow in and fight after the cease-fire.

All during the weeks that Kissinger and North Vietnam's top diplomats discussed peace formulas in Paris, a stream of intelligence reports based on captured documents and prisoner interrogations gradually filled in a pattern of enemy plans to exploit the situation over the long haul.

U.S. intelligence men say that a theme running through the documents and accounts of enemy command briefings is that the military effort to win control of South Vietnam will resume sometime after the cease-fire, which will end all American air operations in Indochina and lead to final departure of all American military forces from South Vietnam.

Accounts indicate that most large North Vietnamese army units will be broken up into small elements more difficult to trace. Headquarters of present North Vietnamese divisions and regiments likely would move into remote areas.

The North Vietnamese currently are trying to push fresh supplies into South Vietnam before a cease-fire, and orders have gone out to North Vietnamese and Viet Cong units to cache as much ammunition and equipment as possible.

According to documents, the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong are thinking ahead to sources of food supplies to maintain communist military forces in the field after a cease-fire becomes effective.

Thousands of North Vietnamese reinforcements, including tanks, have been detected entering South Vietnam ever since negotiations appeared to be heading for conclusion.

These and other similar reports have made American military men increasingly anxious that any international supervisory force be given the men and the tools to function effectively, in contrast to the impotent International Control Commission which failed in a similar task after the 1954 Geneva accords were supposed to have ended the Indochina war.

But Kissinger's report of the stalled negotiations portrayed the North Vietnamese position as far apart from the American idea of effective machinery.

"The North Vietnam perception is that the total force should be no more than 250," he said.

Wagon Train To Be At Inaugural

SYLVA, N.C. (AP)—When Jim Holshouser is inaugurated governor of North Carolina next month, a group of North Carolina mountaineers plan to be there with a wagon train.

Roy Burnett, an organizer of the wagon train, says residents of five western counties will participate. Each person is paying his own way to Raleigh for the Jan. 5 inauguration, he said.

One difference between this wagon train and ones which likely appeared at the inauguration of the last Republican governor of North Carolina before the turn of the century is that the 1973 version will be hauled to the capital in trucks.

[c 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.]

DEAR ABBY: A woman wrote that she sold kisses at a carnival last summer to raise money for a local charity, and she couldn't forget the way one stranger had kissed her. [She said, "He wasn't much to look at, but wow, could that man kiss!"] Then she wanted to know if it was possible for a man to thrill a woman so much without feeling anything himself.

You replied, "I hate to destroy your illusions, but it is possible for a kiss to be a one-way proposition."

As one who has played the male lead in more movies than you would believe, I can verify your statement. I have "thrilled" many beautiful—but foul smelling movie actresses with my kisses, and have gotten nothing out of it but nauseated. Some were chronic garlic and onion eaters. Others seldom bathed, but used great quantities of perfume instead.

If you print this, please withhold my name. I am up in years now, but am still remembered by many.

AGING ACTOR IN MALIBU

DEAR ACTOR: Your secret is safe with me. The only thing worse than a man who kisses and tells is a woman who kisses and smells!

DEAR ABBY: I am a 30-year-old married man. I've been married for 10 years and have two children. My wife and I have very little in common other than our children.

My problem is my sex life. [Or perhaps I should say the lack of it.] My wife doesn't care for it, except on special occasions. She uses it as a reward for my doing chores around the house. We have relations about once every three or four weeks. I feel cheated and frustrated, and that the best years of my life are slipping away.

Don't suggest a marriage counselor. We spent two years going to one once a week. It solved nothing. I have considered divorce, but I don't want to give my children up because they are all I have that makes my life worth living. I accept the fact that I am a martyr for them now, but what else can I do?

DEPRESSED UP NORTH

DEAR DEPRESSED: I suggest you see a therapist. You must either learn to live with your situation without feeling like a "martyr" or extricate yourself from it. Parents who "sacrifice" their lives for their children usually wind up alone and bitter, and the children oftentimes sense the "martyrdom" and feel guilty.

DEAR ABBY: The couple who think they are "in the right" by not paying the $3 they were undercharged by a teen-ager helping at his parents' business are teaching the boy a lesson. A lesson in "Do unto others before they can do unto you."

I wonder if the boy is being docked the $3 from his pay? I also wonder if the couple would feel that the boy was "in the right" if they later discovered that he had accidentally OVERCHARGED them $3?

Legal rights are one thing. Human kindness and understanding are others.

Which do you think the boy will remember most?

DISAPPOINTED IN YOU

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: I'm disappointed in myself. You are right. I should have advised them to pay the additional $3.

Safety Glass In Doors Advised

PITTSBURGH (ULI) — Among the major accidental injury producers in the home are storm doors with ordinary glass panes, according to a leading safety glass maker.

Use of tempered safety glass, which is up to five times stronger and breaks into small particles rather than sharp fragments, is recommended by PPG Industries. Tempered glass is among the safety glazing materials specified for hazardous locations in new laws enacted by 20 states.

Teens Try To Cope With Their Drinking Parents

By JURATE KAZICKAS
Associated Press Writer

MOUNT KISCO, N.Y. (AP) — "My mother drinks all night and sleeps all day. She knows she has a problem but just won't do anything for herself. I thought by coming here I could help her."

Janet, with long blonde hair framing her round, freckled face, knew that the 12 teenagers grouped around her understood. Each one of them had a parent who is an alcoholic.

"But you can't help her. She'll have to hit bottom and find her own way," said Linda, twisting her school ring around her nail-bitten finger. "This meeting is for us. We have to learn about the disease of alcohol and learn about ourselves."

The teen-agers belonged to a group called Alateen, the youth counterpart of Al-Anon, the organization of family and friends of an alcoholic, which works closely with Alcoholics Anonymous. More than 1,000 Alateen groups in the United States and Canada have been meeting since Alateen's inception in 1957.

The AA estimates there are about nine million alcoholics in the country, whose problems affect more than 45 million family members, including children.

In this suburban New York town, an Alateen group has been meeting for two years. Under the direction of one or two adults, usually Al-Anon members, the youngsters, between the ages of 12 and 20, hold informal rap sessions weekly to discuss not only the difficulties of living with an alcoholic parent, but also those anxieties that afflict all adolescents.

"We try to show the kids that they're powerless over alcohol, they can't fight the bottle, that some of their problems are not always related to the parents' drinking," said Carl, the adult leader whose wife is a member of AA. "By sharing their experiences, they learn to help themselves and to develop into healthy and mature adults."

This night, the kids sat around a table in the basement of a local church. They munched cookies, drank fruit punch and smoked. They call each other by their first names to guard their anonymity. There was Ralph, wearing a Mickey Mouse T-shirt; Barbara, with dangling silver earrings and granny glasses. Most of the kids were still in high school. One blond boy was only 12.

"It's hard to talk to friends who don't have the same problem in their family. Sure, they can sympathize, but no one knows what it's really like," said Agnes, a group member for two years. "This is our home away from home."

The Alateen groups start off their meetings with the AA serenity prayer — "God grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change, courage to change the things I can, and wisdom to know the difference." They follow the 12 steps of the AA as they apply to them, and close with the Lord's Prayer said with joined hands.

Besides the 12 steps of AA, Alateen has its own set of do's and don't's and slogans, many spiritual in tone, that it encourages its members to follow.

Kids are advised to learn about alcoholism as a family disease, to be honest and forgiving of themselves and others, and to confide in other members of Alateen. The kids often exchange phone numbers for help in a panic situation.

Children of alcoholics are cautioned not to argue with an active alcoholic or throw out his liquor. They are told not to judge or criticize the sick person, and not to expect things to get better overnight.

The Alateen slogans, often repeated during a night's meeting are, Live and let live, First things first, Think, Easy does it, Let go and let God, One day at a time, Listen and learn.

Some nights the kids talk around a theme — violence, fear, serenity. There's a strict rule that the kids must not talk about their parents, but sometimes it's hard to talk about anything else. There were stories of drunken beatings, nighttime shouting matches, the hostility the kids felt and, most of all, their feelings of loneliness, rejection and despondency.

"I could never talk to my mother about my problems because she was drunk in bed all day," said Barbara. "Some people withdraw, but I went out begging for attention, really making a fool of myself. Coming here really calmed me down."

Many parents of these youngsters are enrolled in AA and no longer drink, but others are still heavy drinkers and have not yet sought help. Some parents deride their children for attending the meetings.

"My father used to say, 'When are you going to that idiot drunk's meeting,' but I went anyway," said one girl, "I needed it for myself."

One girl said she left AA literature lying around the house, hoping her father would take the hint. He did, as many do.

Even though these youngsters have lived with alcoholism as daily problem, many said they do drink themselves, even though they often worry that alcoholism might be hereditary. And most still cannot understand why their parent's drinking problem began in the first place.

The importance of love and respect for the sick parent was stressed countless times during the meeting. Linda said it took a while, but now she sees that her father loved her, despite the terrible things that happened when he was drinking.

"I see now that I have to reach out to him and meet him more than half way."

Using Waste To Cool And Heat

NEW YORK (UPI) —The city of Nashville, Tenn., is building an incineration heating-air conditioning complex that will use municipal wastes to heat and cool a loop of downtown office buildings.

The project, when completed in 1974, will provide central heating and air-conditioning to 24 office buildings in downtown Nashville, and will be capable of consuming more than 700 tons of municipal waste each day. Babcock & Wilcox has a $2.5 million contract for the project.

2 MILLION YEAR OLD SKULL IS FOUND

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The Rand Daily Mail reported that "scientists working in the Sterkfontein Caves near Krugersdorp have unearthed the fossilised skull of a young woman believed to be more than two-million-years old."

Solar Energy To Serve Residents

MOSCOW (UPI) —A neighborhood of apartments using solar energy for air conditioning is being built in Ashkhabad, capital of Turkmenia, the Tass news agency said.

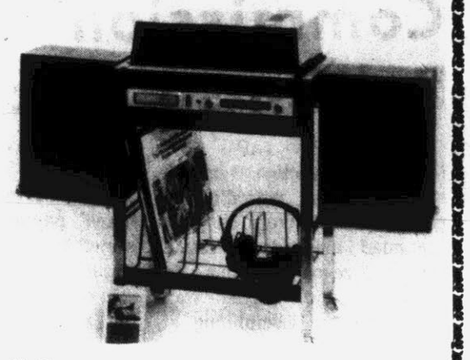

Turkmenia, in Soviet central Asia, is the nation's hottest republic. Summer temperatures reach 115 F in the towns and 175 F in the desert.

The first three-story building, containing nine apartments, has been completed. The machine section of the absorption unit is installed in the basement. The roof serves as the generatore-vaporator.

Furniture Industry Crisis: OverwhelmingDemand

By ED ROWLAND
Associated Press Writer

HICKORY, N.C. (AP) — American affluence is causing a crisis — of too much demand — for North Carolina's furniture industry.

Bill Karslake, sales manager of Hickory Chair Co., says, "There's a shortage of good quality furniture. As demand increases, manufacturers are not able to keep up."

The managing director of the Southern Furniture Exposition Building in High Point, Robert Gruenberg, explains, "The furniture industry can in many cases acts as a braometer of what's going to happen to the economy in general. Furniture is an item that can be put off."

Gruenberg added that overwhelming orders for more expensive, specially made goods are "one of the first things to happen" as personal wealth increases. He quoted conversations with representatives from the North Carolina firms which sell tables, chairs and other products across the nation and around the world to illustrate his point.

"Manufacturers reported their largest volume of business ever," he said during the recent showing of new lines in the huge building. Gruenberg said the market "was the largest we've ever had."

One company executive in Hickory which with High Point is the center of the industry that ranks with tobacco and textiles as North Carolina's largest, said "the demand for furniture has outstripped the capacity of plants to produce. Manufacturers are planning to expand, but they have not done so yet."

The same official, who did not want to be named, said other problems contributing to backed-up orders include "an extremely tight" market for fabrics. He said that means material for upholstery ordered now may be delivered next summer.

Wood is also in short supply.

And he cited a labor shortage. He said published unemployment figures in Hickory range from half per cent to 1½ per cent. "It's not at all uncomming to see half and full-page ads in the newspaper, concerns begging for help," he added.

Workers in furniture factories make from $2.50 to $5 an hour. Turnover in the skilled, higher-paying positions is low, but in the low-wage jobs the executive says 87 persons have filled his 50 available jobs in the past year.

"Manufacturers are saying 'I could do this or that if I could get the help.' They can't get enough to run a first shift, let alone a second," he said.

A Charlotte store carrying expensive lines has a sign in its window: "Out of stock wood goods 14 weeks or longer. (Sorry about that.)"

But in another Charlotte store that sells goods from its jammed display floor promises immediate delivery of anything it has in stock. A customer, however, must take what is available.

Karslake says those mass merchandising practices also are a problem for the industry in that persons who would buy a more costly piece are settling for something more readibly available and stores with huge orders keep factories busy supply them.

To a question about profits in the boom, a High Point firm's executive scoffed. He said profits are so low plants can't modernize and they can't pay more in wages "because they can't afford to do so."

Another official pointed out his company has not been able to raise prices in two years. "We're not making as much profit as we were six months ago, much less a year ago," he said.

The effect of federal regulations outlawing excess noise and dust has been to boost costs. Traditionally, furniture factories have been dirty, loud places to work; but plant officials maintain they are changing that image. "The industry is becoming more attractive...the big companies are doing a whale of a job on it," one said.

Another said, "It isn't just money that turns people on, it's other things. All manufacturers are spending time trying to motivate employes, get people excited."

He expects when they succeed, the crisis of American affluence in the furniture industry may be over.

Commission Seeks Relicense Doctors

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal malpractice commission has urged periodic relicensing of all doctors based on continued medical education, periodic re-examinations for specialists and tougher state procedures for disciplining incompetents.

The 21-member commission, named by Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Elliot Richardson in August 1971, ended 16 months of study with a three-day session concluding Sunday.

The group, headed by Pittsburgh lawyer Wendell G. Freeland, said state licensing boards should include lay members, and their disciplinary hearings should be open to the public.

The commission concluded that the chief cause of a growing number of medical malpractice suits is injury to patients—not, as some doctors say, fee-seeking lawyers. It recommended public legal assistance for patients with small malpractice claims.

The commission urged steps to make malpractice insurance more effective. It suggested more states encourage arbitration and explore "non-fault-based" payment to the injured, something like no-fault auto insurance.

It called for steps to prevent the many real or imagined patient injuries, such as improved treatment and better communication between doctors and patients.

The commission urged "bills of right" for patients. It told doctors that they must give patients and relatives frank and full explanations of planned treatment and possible complications to lessen misunderstanding.

The commission accepted for inclusion in its final report a partial dissent by Dr. Charles A. Hoffman, president of the American Medical Association and a commission member.

Hoffman saw "the zealous performance" of lawyers as the root cause for the increasing number and cost of malpractice claims.

'Brutality' Protested

Between 30 and 40 persons protesting "police brutality" gathered on the steps of the Pitt County House yesterday afternoon to listen to several speakers denounce police actions, then left a half-dozen funeral wreathes and several signs on the steps as silent witnesses to their feelings.

The protest yesterday was sparked by the shooting of a black man by a police officer here December 6.

Chief of Police Glenn Cannon issued a permit for the demonstration and a march which preceeded the Court House gathering.

In all 14 blacks marched from the intersection of Fifth and Hudson Streets — where the December 6 shooting occured — to the Court House, while about 20 followed in cars.

One of the speakers yesterday was Golden Frinks, a field secretary for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

Barnard, Wife In Intensive Care

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Famed heart surgeon Christiann Barnard and his wife remain in the intensive-care section of Groote Schuur hospital with injuries suffered in an encounter with a hit-run driver.

Doctors at the hospital said Sunday that Barnard and his wife, Barbara, are making satisfactory progress in their recovery from back and chest injuries suffered when they were knocked down by a truck.

They said the pregnancy of Mrs. Barnard, who is expecting the couple's second child, was not endangered.

North Carolina f.o.b. dock broilers: Market steady. Supplies adequate and demand fair to good. Weights desirable. Estimated slaughter 1,140,000 head.

NEW YORK (AP) — The high flying stock market plunged like a wounded bird today in reaction to presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger's weekend announcement that serious obstacles still exist in the Vietnam peace talks.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down 12.11 to 1015.13. The average had recovered a bit after plunging more than 17 points in the first half-hour of trading.

Declines outnumbered advances on the Big Board by a stunning margin of nearly 10 to 1. Of some 1,562 issues exchanged in heavy trading, 1,201 were down and only 131 were up.

The decline was broad and touched every industry group. Among steels, U.S. Steel was off ¾ to 31¾; Bethlehem was off ¾ to 29½; and Republic was down ⅞ to 25⅞.

Among oil issues, Exxon was off ¾ to 86¼; Royal Dutch Shell, off ½ to 40; Standard of California, down 1⅛ to 79⅜; and Texaco off ⅝ to 37.

Stiffer Penalties For Litterbugging

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — A new policy that will permit stiffer punishment in flagrant cases of litterbugging has been adopted by North Carolina's district court judges.

Judge J. Phil Carlton of Pinetops, retiring president of the judges group, said Saturday that at a recent meeting Chapel Hill they agreed on a policy that will require persons charged with litterburgging to come court and explain it to a judge.

He said that under present policy, litterbugging defendants are permitted to go before a magistrate or court clerk and pay a fine of $15 and costs.

"Under the new policy, effective Jan. 1, 1973, these defendants have to come to court and the punishment will be in the discretion of the judge according to the severeity of the offense," Carlton said.

"We simply felt that it made no sense to let these defendants off so lightly when the same charge might result from a person who threw a Kleenex on the highway as one who dumped a truck load of beer cans," he said. "Under the present policy either defendant could pay the small fine and costs and go free."

Carlton noted that the 1971 General Assembly boosted the maximum fine for litterbugging to $200, but "this does no good unless the defendant has to come to court where the higher fine or jail sentence may be imposed."

The judges also agreed to ask the 1973 General Assembly to toughen laws against traffic offenders who fail to appear in court when cited.

New officers elected by the judges were: Robert T. Gash of Brevard, President; Tom H. Matthews of Rocky Mount, vice president; and John Clifford of Winston-Salem, secretary-treasurer.

Woody's Ramblin's

By WOODY PEELL

The lack of success by East Carolina this weekend is sure to bring comments from the fans, wondering what has happened to the Bucs after their fine finish last year.

Coach Tom Quinn said before the grind started that the Bucs wanted to win all three of their games, but he'd consider it a successful week if the Pirates won two of the three.

Tuesday night, they fell to Duke--and it couldn't be called anything but a poor showing by the Pirates. There were no bright spots for the Bucs throughout the game.

And they still have the prospect of facing N. C. State later this year. Hopefully, they'll have a little better luck then.

Against St. Francis on Thursday, the Bucs, leading by 13 just before halftime, had to struggle to hold onto a three-point victory. Then, Saturday night, The Citadel made it three in a row in Charleston handing the Bucs a 55-54 defeat.

The loss was the second in three Southern Conference starts, and it came against a team that Coach George Hill said would be lucky to finish above last place.

With only one player gone off last year's starting five, the Bucs were figured to be tougher than they have been so far. But they seem to have a tradition for slow starts. In the Southern Conference, its season really begins on March 1.

The Pirates will be taking a few days off for the holidays, but will return to action in the Northeast Louisiana Tournament on December 28 and 29. At one point, they might have beeen considered the team to beat in the field. That might be questionable now.

For certain, a lot of hard work must be done in the coming days by the Pirates if they are to live up to their pre-season ratings.

East Carolina's loss to Duke again points out the difference recruiting makes. The Blue Devils, with a much more sound financial program can afford to go after the blue chip players along with State, Carolina, Maryland and the like.

Right now, it's difficult for the Bucs to do so because of their limited budget. Things have improved over the last couple of years, without doubt. But there is still a great gap between the Pirates and the schools they are expected to play--and beat.

Worth Waiting For, Says Rooney

Steelers Take Their First NFL Title

Associated Press Sports Writer

"It took a long time, but we finally did it," said Art Rooney, only owner the Pittsburgh Steelers have ever had.

The Steelers finally have won their first National Football League title in the team's 40-year history.

"It (the wait) was worth it," the white-haired, 71-year-old Rooney said Sunday after the Steelers captured the American Football Conference's Central Division title with a 24-2 victory over the San Diego Chargers.

The triumph gave the Steelers an 11-3 record, their best ever, and the home-field advantage in the playoffs, which begin next weekend.

The Steelers will entertain Oakland's AFC West champions in the opening playoff game Saturday, at 1 P.M. EST. Three hours later, the San Francisco 49ers, champions of the National Football Conference West, will be host to the defending Super Bowl champion Dallas Cowboys, the NFC's wild-card qualifier.

The opening round of the playoffs will be completed next Sunday, with Green Bay, winner in the NFC Central, at Washington, champion of the NFC East, starting at noon EST, and Cleveland, the AFC's wild-card entry, at Miami, the AFC East winner, beginning at 3 P.M. EST.

In other regular-season finales Sunday, Cleveland downed the New York Jets 26-10, the New York Giants thrashed Dallas 23-3, Buffalo surprised Washington 24-17, Green Bay upended New Orleans 30-20, Oakland topped Chicago 28-21, Detroit beat Los Angeles 34-17, Kansas City edged Atlanta 17-14, Cincinnati overwhelmed Houston 61-17, Denver battered New England 45-21, and St. Louis nipped Philadelphia 24-23.

On Saturday, Miami completed a perfect season, blanking Baltimore 16-0, and San Francisco nipped Minnesota 20-17.

Franco Harris and John Fuqua scored for the Steelers on two-yard runs, and Terry Bradshaw passed 17 yards to Ron Shanklin for another touchdown.

Cleveland's Mike Phipps hurled two touchdown passes, both to Frank Pitts, including a tie-breaking 80-yarder, in the Browns' victory over the Jets.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry, whose Cowboys were completely outplayed by the Giants, concluded that his team was not ready to defend its Super Bowl championship. "We are going to have to make a real turnabout in six days to stay with San Francisco," he said. "We just were not ready and the Giants snowballed us."

The Giants gained 174 yards on the ground to Dallas' 47, totaled 175 yards passing to the Cowboys' 85 and sacked Dallas quarterbacks five times. Norm Snead passed for two New York touchdowns and Pete Gogolak kicked three field goals.

Green Bay Coach Dan Devine used his regulars sparingly, but was satisfied with his team's victory over New Orleans in an unusual game in which the first three touchdowns resulted either directly or indirectly from blocked field goals annd a blocked punt.

Washington, losing its second in a row after winning 11 of 12, was beaten when Buffalo's Jim Braxton scored from the four with 43 seconds remaining. The Bills' O.J. Simpson captured the NFL rushing title by gaining 101 yards for a season total of 1,251 yards. Washington's Larry Brown, sidelined by an injury for the second straight week, finished with 1,216 yards.

Oakland, getting ready for its playoff game against Pittsburgh, won its sixth straight, stopping Chicago on Clarence Davis' 46-yard scoring run in the final period. Bears' quarterback Bobby Douglass gained 127 rushing, giving him 968 for the season—a record for quarterbacks.

Detroit's triumph over Los Angeles left the Rams with a 5-7-1 mark, their worst since 1965, and increased speculation that LA Coach Tommy Prothro might not be back for 1973.

Detroit's Greg Landry hit tight end Charlie Sanders with two second-half scoring passes after the score had been tied 17-17.

St. Louis' Jim Hart connected on 19 on 30 passes for 334 yards.

North Pitt Cagers Are Sporadic But Promising

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer
(One of a series)

BETHEL — If the North Pitt Panthers expect to be heard from in the Eastern Carolina Conference this year, the team will have to jell pretty soon or they will just be an also ran.

Still, head Coach Cobby Deans feels that his team will "...have a lot to say about who goes on to post season games." But right now, however, the Panthers are sporadic on their play.

The Panthers are have a couple of starters back from last year that have not come around yet and this has hurt. "We've been erratic (in the scoring) at times and our defense is behind," points out Deans. "We have a few individuals that score in spurts. We have four or five on the team that can score though".

The one player the Panthers look to most probably is Phillip Brown. At guard, Brown, in Deans' opinion, does his fair share of rebounding, scoring and just good team directing.

At the other guard the Panthers have used Calvin Carmack but he will be sidelined for an undetermined length of time as he will have to have knee surgery. He is being replaced by Ben Johnson. The guards are scoring fairly well together.

North Pitt also has three tall boys that give them good under-the-boards strength. Led by 6-6 Joe Wright, the rest of the trio is made up of Herbert Wright, 6-5, and Ulice Jordan, 6-5. David Brown, also 6-5, has seen some duty coming off the bench. All four have good quickness although they are not "fast". Despite the height, the offensive rebounding department has not been up to Dean's hopes. "We are not hitting the boards as we should. The defense is good, though," Deans pointed out. "We are averaging about 40 rebounds a game."

Other defensive points are not as good. Deans feels it may be one of the Panthers' weak spots. "We are improving with each game," he notes. This may be because of the failure of the Panther height to come around. They may measure 6-5 across but Deans feels his men are not up to it yet. He still feels that "its not how tall you are, but how tall you play."

One advantage he feels he has is depth. Although the Panthers may be hurting at guard, the four big men on the base line make up for it.

Looking at the conference race, Deans feels that the team to take it all this year will turn out to be Farmville Central. "Ayden-Grifton will have a hard time defending their championship. I saw Farmville the other night and was really impressed. They gave the game away, they started giving them (A-G) points and you can't do that and win." The Jaguars got up ended by the Chargers in their first meeting, 60-53. The coach also feels that D. H. Conley has a good team. The Panthers are looking to keep somebody out of post season play and Deans thinks that his chargers can beat anybody they play. Right now his pick is Farmville Central.

The key to the Panthers having a good season lies in more consistancy. If the Panthers can get together a more stable attack they could be in trouble for any team in the conference.

Threaten Picketing Liberty Bowl Game

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Two teams with rather mediocre records, Iowa State, 5-5-1, and Georgia Tech, 6-4-1, scrap tonight in the nationally televised Liberty Bowl amid threats by blacks to picket the college football postseason event.

Kickoff is at 9:05 p.m., EST, with leaders of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) vowing to picket Memphis Memorial Stadium over the suspension of Tech senior quarterback Eddie McAshan, the first black quarterback at a major college in the deep South.

The suspension of McAshan, a passing whiz, has helped vault Iowa State into the favorite's role.

McAshan was suspended by Coach Bill Fulcher for missing practice before Tech's regular season finale with Georgia, which Tech lost 27-7.

McAshan, who holds 17 Tech passing records, says he missed practice because Fulcher would not give him six tickets to the Georgia game.

Local NAACP leaders say the picket will be "of the most effective and disruptive sort" at the 14th annual postseason classic.

Wolfpack Is Again Champ Of Big Four Tournament

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

North Carolina State is again champion of the three-year-old Big Four Tournament, the two-night affair at Greensboro that matches the four North Carolina basketball teams of the Atlantic Coast Conference, and one reason is the performance of 5-foot-7 Wolfpack sophomore Monty Towe.

"He was outstanding," said N.C. State Coach Norm Sloan of Towe's floor play that was instrumental in the team's come-from-behind, 68 61 win over North Carolina Saturday night. Towe helped break down the North Carolina pressing attack, and prompted Tar Heel playmaker George Karl into making four fouls by the time the second half was a minute old.

Karl's loss for much of the second half hurt. Dean Smith, the Tar Heel coach, said, "We had hoped to have a lead to protect at the end, and Karl means so much to our delay game."

Instead, the Wolfpack had a two-point margin with just under a minute to play and kept adding to it. Tommy Burleson hit a field goal with 1½ minutes to go—two of his 15 points during the game—and five free throws in the final 37 seconds clinched the victory.

Burleson said afterward, "Carolina has a great reputation for winning, and when you play them, you've got to gut it out. I'd say this is our team's best game."

Sloan observed, "With the hustle and determination that went into this one, you'd have guessed that the score would be 150-149 or something like that. North Carolina is a great team. I didn't know if we could contend with them on the boards."

His players grabbed 32 rebounds to the Tar Heels' 42. They hit one less field goal, but their 12-fot-16 free throw accuracy more than made up the difference.

North Carolina sank three of six from the line, getting fewer opportunities under this year's rules despite the fact it committed only one more foul than State.

The Tar Heels, ranked 11th, have a 6-1 mark to State's 6-0. The only other unbeaten ACC team is Maryland, ranked third with a 4-0 record. The Terps did not play Saturday.

In other games involving league teams, Duke beat Wake Forest, 80-67, for the Big Four consolation crown; Virginia beat William and Mary, 90-80; and Clemson fell to Villanova, 63-60.

A light slate of games comes up this week. No games are scheduled today. The only one Tuesday sends N.C. State to Charlotte to face Davidson.

None are planned Wednesday and Thursday.

Duke's nonconference triumph came largely because in two surges in the second half it outscored Wake Forest 17-2 and 12-0. The Blue Devil lead soared from three at the half to 24 midway in the second half, but Wake Forest pulled back within three at 69-66 with a little less than five minutes to play.

Gary Melchionni hit a layup on a drive that built the margin to five and the Deacons never threatened again. He was the game's high scorer with 20 points, followed by Chris Redding's 18. For Wake Forest, Eddie Payne was top man with 14 points.

The game was raggedly played with both teams turning the ball over often and shooting poorly. The Blue Devils hit only 41.5 per cent to Wake Forest's 33.8 per cent.

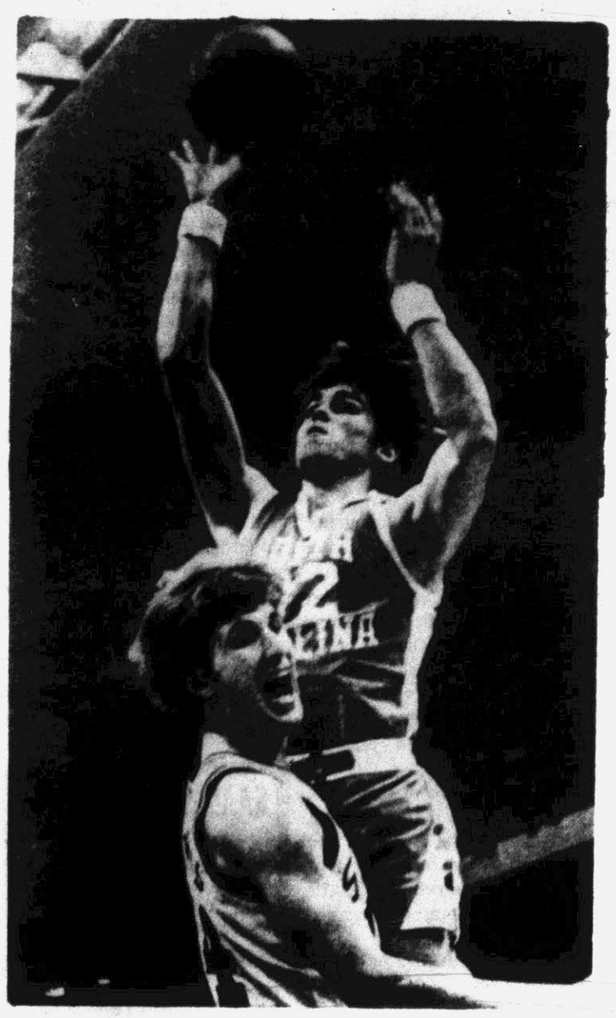

The win was Duke's fourth in six games. Wake Forest has a 3-3 mark.

Wally Walker, a freshman starting his first game, scored 20 points as Virginia broke out of a 39-39 halftime tie with five straight points to beat the Indians. It was William and Mary's seventh loss in eight outings, while Virginia's record went to 4-1.

Virginia was troubled by inaccuracy from the floor in the first half but took advantage of 20 turnovers to stay even with William and Mary. Jim Hobgood was second high scorer for the Cavaliers, while the Indians were paced by freshman Mike Arizin with 18 points.

Meanwhile, Villanova pulled ahead of Clemson in their close game with 2:49 to play and remained in front. It was Villanova's fifth win in as many games. Clemson has a 2-3 record.

Terrell Suit and Van Gregg had 18 points apiece for the Tigers, while Tom Inglesby was high for Villanova with 17 points. But the big gun for the winners was Ed Hastings, who scored 16 points—12 of them on six field goals in a row in the second half.

ELSTON SHOOTS — Greg Hawkins of North Carolina State lets out a yell as he collides with goal-shooting Derrell Elston of North Carolina in the final game of the Big Four Basketball Tournament Satruday night. State won 68-61. (AP Wirephoto)

ThompsonPaces 'All-Tourney'

GREENSBORO (AP)—Sophomore David Thompson of champion North Carolina State led the voting of 45 newsmen for the Big Four all-tournament basketball star team announced today.

He was named to the first five by all 45 for a maximum 90 points to 85 for Bobby Jones of North Carolina; 83 for Gary Melchionni of Duke; 75 for Ed Stahl of North Carolina and 66 for Monte Towe of N. C. State.

Tommy Burleson of N. C. State headed the second team, which includes George Karl of North Carolina, Tony Byers of Wake Forest, Eddie Payne of Wake Forest and Chris Redding of Duke.

Mike Epstein of the Oakland A's was given the hit sign twice on three balls and no strikes and each time the first baseman grounded out.

Tired Indians Are Entertaining Ga. Tech Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

William and Mary's Indians entertain Georgia Tech's Yellow Jackets tonight for their ninth basketball game in 24 days since the season opened, and Coach Ed Ashnault admits his youngsters may be a little tired.

"They haven't had a day off in the last 15 days," Ashnault observed after the Indians, who start two freshmen and one sophomore, dropped a 90-80 decision Saturday night to Virginia's Cavaliers.

"There hasn't been one day that they haven't been on the floor for a game or practicing for a game," said Ashnault. The Indians have lost seven of their first eight starts, but Ashnault says that within three years "they will be talking to us as winners."

It might come sooner than that, if William and Mary's performance against highly regarded Virginia is any indication, and it might come sooner, too, for Richmond's Spiders, who finally broke into the victory column in their sixth game by upending Canisius 75-73.

William and Mary and Richmond somewhat stole the Saturday night show from a pair of conference games that saw Furman's Paladins trounce Appalachian State's Mountaineers 96-80 and The Citadel's Bulldogs surprise East Carolina's defending champion Pirates 55-54.

Virginia Military Institute's Keydets had the night off, but they return to action tonight, beginning a week long road trip by playing at Corpus Christi.

As a result of the triumphs by Furmun and The Citacel, there's now a three-way tie f5-a8ng65 conference lead at 2-0 among Furman, The Citadel and Davidson with VMI trailing at 1-0. East Carolina and William and Mary are 1-2, Appalachian 1-3 and Richmond 0-3.

William and Mary hit 15 of 24 shots from the floor in the first half at Virginia but earned only a 39-39 halftime deadlock because of 20 turnovers. The Cavaliers scored the first five points of the second half, hit 18 to 27 floor shots and stayed in front to the end.

The Indians' chances were dimmed when 6-foot-11 freshman Matt Courage fouled out with 11:11 left after scoring a game-high 21 points. Another freshman, Mike Arizin, had 18 for the Indians.

Freshman Wally Walker hit nine of 13 from the floor and scored 20 points for Virginia, while senior Jim Hobgood came off the bench to hit eight of 11 shots for 17 points.

"If the shots had gone in, it might have been over early," said Coach Bill Gibson of Virginia, whoss team hit only 17 of 48 in the first half. "We forced the turnovers, but wencouldn't capitalize on them." He called William and Mary a "real fine ball team."

The sudden turnabout for Richmond may have come in the person of 6-foot-5 junior college transfer Aron Stewart, who Coach Lewis Mills said before the season started may be one of the best players the Spiders have ever had.

Stewart just became eligible, and he played just 29 minutes against Canisius. But he scored 26 points, grabbed 11 rebounds and came up with a jump ball on which he fired a court-length pass to Bob Jacobs for the winning basket with two seconds left.

Jacobs had 18 points and Jeff Snider 17 for the Spiders, who shot 50 per cent from the floor, their best of the season. The Spiders were down by 11 points at halftime and took the lead for the first time at 72-71 with only 1:45 left. Canisius regained the lead, Richmond tied it and Jacobs then hit the game-winner.

Stan Davis poured in 21 of his game-high 36 points in the first half as Appalachian stayed even with Furman at 40-40, but the Mountaineers couldn't cope with the Paladins' two big sophomores, 7-foot-1 Fessor "Moose" Leonard and 6-foot-9 Clyde Mayes.

Leonard and Mayes cut off the Mountaineers' inside attack after intermission and helped carry the scoring attack which saw Furman put five players in double figures. Sophomore Baron Hill had 20, senior Roy Simpson 18 and Leonard and Mayes 16 each.

There were 12 lead changes and nine ties in the first half at The Citadel with the Bulldogs clinging to a 31-30 advantage. East Carolina moved back in front in the second half, but The Citadel went ahead to stay when Steve Fishel scored after a steal with 9:01 left.

Chuck Cordell led the Bulldogs with 20 points and clinched the victory with a pair of free throws with seven seconds left that offset a final layup by the Pirates' Earl Quash. Fishel finished with 15 points. Al Faber had 13 and Quash and Dave Franklin 12 for ECU.

Davidson, once down by 10 points, pulled to within a point of Cincinnati at the half but couldn't stay with the Bearcats after intermission as Lloyd Batts scored 24 points and Derreck Dickey 20. Greg Dunn had 20 and T. J. Pecorak 19 for the Wildcats.

Wealth And Adventure In Paraguay

By ROBERT D. OHMAN

ASUNCION, Paraguay (AP)— In 1929, when the stock market crashed and the United States plunged into depression, a young American packed his bags and headed south for wealth and adventure.

Robert J. Eaton, now 63, found both in Paraguay's wild Chaco district near the Bolivian border. He has one of the country's big cattle ranches.

"It was a great struggle, and I plowed everything back in," Eaton said, recalling his early pioneer years in the Lengua Indian territory.

Eaton is tall and lean and speaks with the easy drawl of a frontiersman, but he was born in South Royalton, Vt.

"When I finished high school I went to the Southwest, working cattle in New Mexico and Arizona, but I really didn't know much," he said.

At the age of 20 he went to New York and took a job with a U.S. firm in the beef and meat-packing industry here. "I wanted to go to South America, but I didn't even know where Paraguay was," he says. "I sold myself as a cattle foreman, but not for much—my salary was $50 a month."

Eaton stayed with the firm 11 years and was caught up in the Chaco border war fought between Bolivia and Paraguay in 1932-35. "Our company fort was bombed and we saw the disagreeable part," he recalls. "It was a very bitter fight."

By 1940 Eaton had saved $6,000 and with this he leased 40,000 acres of scrub-brush land in the Chaco and bought 1,000 head of cattle. Now he owns 272,000 acres and 20,000 Herefords and still is increasing the herd. "We have cattle and real estate but no money," he says with a smile—but he is considered one of the wealthier foreigners here.

Eaton met and married his Paraguayan wife, Dorothy, in 1932 and the couple had two sons and a daughter, all living in the United States.

The Eatons now have their home and office in Asuncion "but Dorothy spent 20 years out with the Indians," Eaton said. His stately, gray-haired wife said she would much prefer to go back and live in the Chaco and had no fear of the Indians. "They were my guardian angels, they took care of me," she said.

Eaton employs about 60 Indians on his ranch 200 miles northwest of Asuncion. "They are still pretty wild people," he observed, "but we've been successful in hiring them although they have never worked for anyone. Even the 12-year-old boys want to be horsemen."

One of Eaton's proudest achievements was a study he made in 1968 in South Vietnam at the request of the University of Minnesota. "We examined the feasibility of the Montonero tribesmen raising cattle in the central highlands," he said. "There is beautiful pastureland and they have everything they need but no security."

He makes frequent visits to the United States and has flown his own plane back and forth on several of the journeys. "I'm a bush pilot but I don't have my U.S. instrument rating yet. That's my next goal."

Position Key To Ladder Safety

LINCOL, Neb. (PUPI) —The ladder, a year-round "tool" around the house, gets special uses during the holidays.

To prevent accidents, have a ladder with non-slip threads on the steps and ladder feet wide enough not to sink into soft ground. The University of Nebraska Extension Service advises positioning the ladder this way—one fourth of its length from the foundation. This means that for a ladder 12 feet tall, the proper position would be three feet from the foundation, to help insure against slipping and tipping.

Geared To Meet Indian Needs

ROCKVILLE, Md. (UPI) — Five schools of social work plan training programs geared to the needs of American Indian communities.

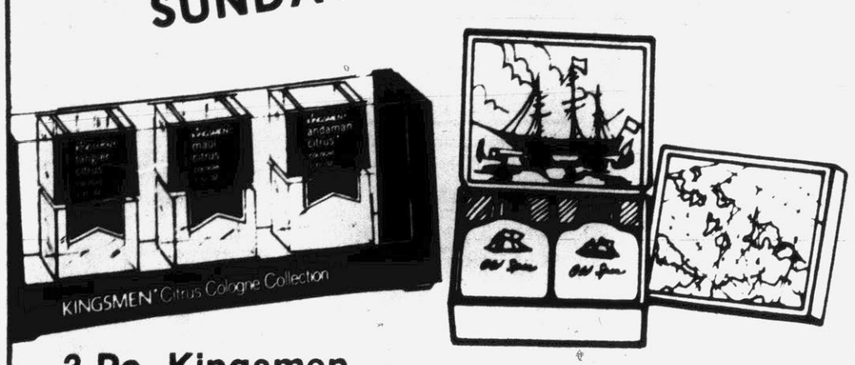

The programs are made possible through grants totalling $347,304 from the National Institute of Mental Health.

Schools are: Arizona State University, Tempe; Barry College, of Miami Shores, Fla.; University of Oklahoma, at Norman; the Portland, Oreg., State University, and the University of Denver, Colo.

'Fairness' Time Asked Over Maude

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Tonight's "Maude" show on CBS probably won't cause many protests. It isn't about abortion. Maude's over that now. She had her abortion in an episode broadcast last Nov. 21.

But the uproar from that show is far from over. It's still simmering and could lead to a unique court test of whether "fairness" is required of a television comedy show—or any entertainment show—when it deals with controversial issues.

The possibility first arose when a formal complaint about the way Maude's abortion was presented was mailed to CBS. The complaint came from the Holy Name Union of Rockville Centre, a local Catholic group to which lawyer Eugene McMahon belongs.

It gained impetus Dec. 1 when McMahon and three members of an anti-abortion group called the Long Island Coalition for Life met privately with Dr. Frank Stanton, CBS' vice-chairman.

Stanton had agreed to hear their complaints after coalition members picketing the CBS building here buttonholed him as he walked to his office the previous week.

They registered their protest, then asked him to present their group's views in the context of the "Maude" show on two successive Tuesdays, since she had talked about getting an abortion on one show and actually gotten it on the next.

As an alternative, McMahon said, they sought two half-hours of prime evening time on CBS to present their stand against abortion. He said the Holy Name Union complaint had asked for the same things.

Both complaints, he said, cited the "fairness" provision of the Federal Communications Commission act, as opposed to the FCC's "equal time" provision that applies only to political issues.

He said the letter from the Holy Name Union, the first step in a possible appeal to the FCC, cited the fairness doctrine "on the grounds that abortion is a controversial issue and that they (the producers of "Maude") had represented only one side."

The letter also cited a federal regulation that, according to McMahon, "That if you make any attack on any identifiable group or person, then that group or person has a right to fairness time.

He said Stanton promised the coalition group a reply in several weeks. The Holy Name Union, he said, still is waiting for a reply to its formal letter of complaint.

CBS declined to comment on the matter.

If CBS turns down either group, McMahon said, the next step is a "fairness time" petition to the FCC. If that is turned down, the next move may be an appeal to the federal courts, he said.

Gave Speech To Wrong Audience

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Joe Hopper wondered why his speech prepared for a group of West Tennessee mayors was getting a lukewarm reception.

An administrative aide to Tennessee Gov. Winfield Dunn, Hopper was in Memphis recently to welcome the mayors to a conference. Arriving at the original conference site, he was told it had been moved to a vocational school in the suburbs.

"I remember thinking that a lot of mayors must have gotten beat since I talked to them last year," said Hopper. "I didn't recognize anybody, and they all looked pretty blank."

Hopper later learned he had delivered his speech to a class of plumbing students.

Pants Replaced But Lost Arm

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — When an irate woman caller told police "it's downright indecent" that a bottomless female Santa's helper was in the city's Christmas display, an officer was dispatched to the scene.

Saturday night, the officer found that the pants had been pulled off a three-foot statue of a female helper in this Miami suburb's display.

The policeman replaced the pants; but, as he turned to leave, he accidently knocked off one of the statue's arms.

NCNB Adds New Office

NEW BERN — The Bank of New Bern merged into North Carolina National Bank at the close of business Friday, according to an announcement by NCNB.

With the merger, NCNB will be represented in Craven County for the first time, it was pointed out.

The addition of the New Bern office gives NCNB 133 offices in 44 North Carolina communities, in addition to foreign branches in London, England, and Nassau, the Bahamas.

The $11.2 million Bank of New Bern and the $1.8 billion NCNB first proposed to merge last August. Federal approval of the merger was received in November, the bank reported.

NCNB announced that J. Richard Futrell, Jr., former NCNB city executive in Durham, has been promoted to senior vice president and will become area executive and New Bern city executive, effective today.

In addition to New Bern, Futrell's area will include NCNB offices in Greenville, Tarboro, Washington and the proposed Goldsboro office.

BRIDGE QUIZ ANSWERS

Q. 1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠7 4 3 ♡AK 8 ◇A10 9 ♣8 6 5 2

The bidding has proceeded:

East	South

What do you bid?

A.—Pass. This hand is not of the type that lends itself conveniently to a takeout double. You need only visualize that your hand will be the future dummy and that it will have very little trick taking power for partner. There is the further disadvantage that you will be forcing your partner to bid at the level of two.

Q. 2—Partner opens with one heart and you hold:

♠KQ 7 5 ♡A 7 6 ◇6 5 4 2 ♣7 2

What is your response?

A.—Two hearts. This is superior to a bid of one spade, because you have only a fair hand and cannot afford to bid both spades and hearts.

Q. 3—Both vulnerable, opponent opens with one diamond and you hold:

♠AKJ10 5 ♡A10 5 3 ◇K 3 2 ♣5

What do you bid?

A.—Double. If partner responds with two clubs, you are strong enough to bid two spades with reasonable safety. If your answer was one spade, stay after school.

Q. 4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠J10 7 6 5 4 ♡K 9 7 5 ◇4 2 ♣4

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
1 ♢	Dble.	?

What do you bid?

A.—One spade. With this distribution including so many cards in the major suits, surely you will wish to take some action. If you wait, the bidding may get too complicated for you to enter the conversation conveniently, and you will thus be shut out.

Q. 5—You are South, vulnerable with a 90 part score and you hold:

♠AJ 6 ♡A 9 5 ◇K 8 4 3 2 ♣7 2

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
1 ♠	Pass	?

What do you bid?

A.—Two spades. With the advanced part score you are not in position to temporize, since a two diamond response would not be considered forcing. The bid least likely to complicate matters is a simple raise. Since it is a bid over score, partner will recognize that you have more than a normal raise so that, if he has excess values, he will be in position to proceed.

Q. 6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠AK ♡A 4 ◇8 5 2 ♣A 9 8 6 5 3

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♡	1 ♠
2 ♣	Pass	2 ♡	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Two spades. A cue bid forcing to game. Now that partner has rebid hearts, you can safely prepare to play for a game in that suit or it might lead to a sound contract of three no trump.

Q. 7—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AK 6 ♡AQ 8 2 ◇AQ 7 ♣J 8 3

The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	?

What do you bid?

A.—Double. This hand, containing 20 points, is too big for a one no trump overcall. It is necessary, therefore, to double and bid two no trump over partner's response of two in a suit.

Q. 8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠Q 7 5 2 ♡AK 7 5 4 ◇KJ ♣9 3

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ◇	Pass	4 ♡	Pass
5 ♣	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—There is little doubt that your partnership will reach at least a small slam in spades, but, the better to investigate grand slam possibilities, bid five diamonds at this point to show possession of the king. If partner makes a further drastic try by bidding something like six clubs to show the king, we would then bid six hearts to show the second round control of that suit.

The Worry Clinic
Unintelligible 'Selling' Fails

Joe is puzzled by the modern stress on speaking "in tongues." He says it is spreading in such large cities as Indianapolis and causing schisms. Do you think Jesus urged this kind of "tongues?" He never once spoke "in toungues." St. Paul vetoes it, too! Read below!

By GOERGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE V-572: Joe C., aged 56, has been a devout lifelong churchman.

"But, Dr. Crane," he began, "down here at Indianapolis we are finding a schism in several leading churches.

"For some distinguished members of these congragations insist that you should speak 'in toungues' if the Holy Ghost has really descended upon you.

"This idea seems to be spreading, so how do you psychiatrists explain the Bible's comment about speaking in tongues?"

Biblical "Tongues"

Jesus never spoke in tongues!

He realized vividly the truism of sales psychology which states that your prospects must understand what you say!

Jesus was a great advocate of "Horse Sense," so he address his large crowds in their own tongue (Aramaic).

To be certain they'd remember his moral precepts, he also coached them in stories (parables).

For parables are an excellent memory device to insure the retention of ideas.

And also their word-of-mouth dissemination from one person to another.

Thus, if the lad wih the loaves and fishes didn't have his parents with him when Jesus started that famous first church picnic, the boy could easily recount Christ's major points just by reciting the stories Jesus told that afternoon.

Modern clergymen would thus obtain far more word-of-mouth talk about their sermons if they'd also imitate Christ's superb use of Applied Psychology!

"But, Dr. Crane," some of you Bible scholars may exclaim, "didn't Jesus predict his followers would speak in tongues?"

Christ's only prediction about "toungues" was in Mark 16:17. "..they shall speak with new tongues."

Did this refer to the unintelligible vocalizing by excited Americans to their fellow parishioners?

Or to the fact our seminaries now specifically train missionaries in the "new tongues" of the people of foreign continents to whome they wish to take the Gospel Story?

practical salesman's gumption when he stated (I Corinthians 14:6):

"..if I come unto you speaking with tongues, what shall I profit you.."

In Acts 2:4, we read, "And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and began to speak with other tongues, as the Spirit gave them utterance."

Since Jerusalem was on the main trade routes between Egypt and Arabia, obviously there were many men in that Pentecost group whose native tongues were Arabian, Egyptian, Roman, Greek and even Chinese.

But they also spoke Aramaic, so they were probably converted to Christianity in Aramaic; then fell back upon their native tongues to exhort more freely.

If Jesus had wanted us modern followers in our homogeneous American congregations to mystify our associates by a medley of unintelligible languages, he'd doubtless have urged such study of foreign tongues.

But he didn't!

For he believed in speaking the language of the customer!

Alas, far too many modern clerics aren't even doing that, thought they ostensibly employ English!

So send for my booklet "Putblic Platform Strategy," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Bejeweled Cup Stolen

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The theft of a gem-encrusted silver cup from the Minnesota Museum of Art was reported early today by Malcolm E. Lein, executive director of the museum.

Lein said the 14-inch treasure titled "National Cup" was taken about 10 p.m. Sunday. It was studded with 129 emeralds, 162 diamonds, 13 rubies and 6 sapphires, he said.

The museum director declined to put a monetary value on the cup, designed by John Flaxman in 1826 as a commemorative piece for the king of England. Lein said only that it was priceless.

"The National Cup is a unique work, its greatest value being in its historic and artistic importance," said Lein. "Even minor damage to the piece would be a severe loss to the world of art."

Lein said there was no guard in the building when the thief or thieves gained access to the building by drilling the lock out of the front door.

The break-in triggered an electronic alarm system but, although police arrived within minutes, the cup was gone, Lein said.

Reach Rome In European Trip

ROME (AP) — Tricia Nixon Cox and her husband, Edward, have arrived in Rome on another leg of a European trip which also will take them to Moscow and Athens.

Airport officials kept newsmen and photographers at a distance when the President's daughter and her husband arrived at Rome's Leonardo da Vinci Airport Sunday after a flight from London.

Repatriation A Rare Provision

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Only once before in the history of American warfare has a formal prisoner exchange at war's end been a key to the negotiated settlement.

That was in 1953 when the allied and communist sides repatriated thousands of soldiers and airmen captured during three years of bitter fighting in Korea.

In previous wars the United States liberated the prison camps of its defeated enemies. In some cases exchanges of sick and wounded prisoners took place even before a cessation of hostilities. But in Korea and now Vietnam where there is no decisive victor, the POW release has become a part of the negotiated settlement.

Although the finishing touches remain for the Vietnam cease-fire agreement, the arrangement for the prisoner release is likely to resemble that of the Korean experience.

A total of 4,428 American fighting men were recovered from enemy prison camps in Korea in exchange for 74,000 North Korean and Chinese prisoners.

The initial exchange, Operation Little Switch, began in April 1953, three months before the cease-fire, and involved only a small group of sick and wounded men—about 680 allied prisoners including 149 Americans for some 6,670 Communists.

But it wasn't until Operation Big Switch at Panmunjom in August of that year that the trade took place.

The armistice agreement called for the prisoners to be repatriated within 60 days but it took only 33. A similar 60-day timetable is part of the draft agreement for ending the Vietnam war, but Pentagon officials predict the exchange will be speeded up once it gets under way, probably in Vientiane, Laos.

As of Dec. 2, the Pentagon listed 552 U.S. captives in Indochina.

In Korea, the allied prisoners were loaded aboard trains at the prison camps in the North and brought south to Panmunjom. Communists held in the South were trucked north for the trade that began Aug. 5, 1953, with the release of 70 happy, shouting American GIs who marched across Freedom Bridge under the protective eyes of the Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission.

Once in American hands, the GIs were trucked to nearby Freedom Village for quick medical checks and debriefings by intelligence officers searching for clues to the whereabouts of the missing. Within a few days they were loaded aboard troop ships for the long journey home.

More than 2,700 of the 7,200 captured Americans died in the Korean prison camps. The toll—38 per cent of the total captured—was the worst since the American Revolution.

Twenty-one other American POWs voluntarily stayed behind, but most eventually came home.

In World War II, nearly 11 per cent or 14,090 of the 129,701 Americans captured died in enemy prison camps.

Allied forces liberated the camps as they overran the German lines, freeing the POWs as they went. In the Pacific, the surrendering Japanese located scores of camps for the occupation forces which went in an brought the POWs out.

A major problem facing the United States at the end of the Vietnam war will be the fate of 1,266 Americans listed as missing in action.

The Pentagon hopes that the International Red Cross will be permitted to inspect the communist prison camps. But it is expected that after all the evidence is examined a presumptive finding of death will be issued in many cases.

Such was the problem in the Korean war which left 389 Americans unaccounted for even now.

Under terms of the Korean armistice agreement, each side agreed to repatriate or otherwise account for all POWs and deceased combatants of the other side if it knew their fate.

After completing the prisoner exchange September 1953, the United Nations Command handed the Communists a list of 944 American servicemen and 2,460 other allied personnel believed to have been in communist hands during the war.

After efforts by Army Graves Registration Units plus the sifting of thousands of reports from prisoners who were repatriated, the number of unaccounted-for Americans was reduced to 389.

To this day, when asked about the missing 389, the U.S. government's response is:

"The Departments of Defense and State have endeavored to obtain a satisfactory accounting from the Communists....

"The Communists, however, consistently ignore or reject the demands and maintain they have no further information.

"Countless investigations of tips, leads and rumors relating to the servicemen have been made by government intelligence agencies without developing any significant evidence to indicate that they survived the period of hostilities."

Farm Scene

By EDWIN L. YANCEY

The following prayer was delivered by Miss Margaret Decker at the spring of 1971 Farm-City Week observance in North Carolina. It seems particularly appropriate for repeating at this Christmas season. (Miss Decker is a former president of the North Carolina Extension Homemakers Association.)

Prayer

Infinite and Eternal God of us all, we acknowledge Thy presence with us here today as we gather in this meeting, a prelude to our observance of Farm-City Week.

We are thankful, God, for the bounties with which You have endowed this earth and which are ours, real and potential, in the judicious acceptance and use of them.

We have mistreated this great gift through ignorance and shortsightedness and greed. Now we pray that You will help us to be better stewards, that we may use more wisdom, and greater foresight and less selfishness in the use of the resources that make up our environment.

Help us to realize that this earth belongs to us all and that its keeping is in our hands whether we live in the city or in the countryside, that we are dependent upon it, that everything we have and use and are begins with the earth and the air and the water which surround and cover it.

And help us to be more aware of our dependence upon each other as farm and city dwellers that we may see that only in working together can bring about greater economic, social and political well-being for us all, that we must understand each other's problems and our joint responsiblity in their solution.

If we are to survive on this planet we must know that "no man is an island unto himself," that he is a part of the whole, the family of mankind, but that, also, he is an individual and deserves the recognition and the respect which is his due as a member of that family, one of Thy children.

God, as we work to humanize our society make us less concerned with status in our lives and more concerned with stature, less with the quantity of our possessions and more with the quality of our living.

Help us to remember the words of the great Teacher of Nazareth who bade us love our neighbors — and we are all neighbors. Grant us then the discovery of the wonder of that love. Open our eyes and our minds to greater tolerance and appreciation of each other in our diversities; open our hearts to greater understanding of and love for one another, for this good and beautiful earth we share and for You, God, its divine creator.

We ask Thy blessing upon this food, upon the hands which have prepared it, upon the homes represented here today, and upon homes everywhere the wide world around — in peace and love.

Amen

The entire staff of the Agricultural Extension Service in Pitt County wishes for your Christmas and the New Year to be filled with happiness.

More than 1.8 million persons died in motor vehicle accidents in the United States from 1900 to 1970, says the National Automobile Club.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, DECEMBER 19, 1972

CARROLL RIGHTER'S horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day and evening when much of value can take place for you after the early hours, which are likely to see delayed action. Today's oncoming Full Moon brings swift results, so use your most logical reasoning powers to take advantage of these vibrations. A fine day for discussions, shopping and planning the coming holidays wisely

ARIES (Mar 21 to Apr. 19) Handle business and correspondence early so you can go out afterward and buy holiday gifts that are important. Don't forget accessories for wardrobe. Discuss with partners how to be more productive, successful

TAURUS (Apr 20 to May 20) Impress others with your excellent ability at handling business affairs, finances in particular. An expert gives you fine ideas that should be listened to and put in operation. Take it easy tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have fine new ideas and can get the backing for them you need from right sources so that they bring you more success. The social can be much fun in p.m. Dress simply but elegantly.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get into the personal duties that are important early and free time for vital business affairs later in the day. The evening can be romantically happy with mate. Affection is the keynote.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) The social can bring about much that is good for you and give you great pleasure as well today or tonight. Some person you meet today could become an important part of your life. Do not give vent to your temper.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Keep active at business and career affairs as well as shopping for the holidays, wrapping gifts, etc. Get involved in some civic work that can be very helpful to others as well as yourself. Show your fine talent.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have ideas that need to be tested for practicality before they are put into operation. Make the acquaintance of those who are experts in the new fields you want to enter. Gain through their experience.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be more understanding with those who owe you money and vice versa and get financial affairs in right order. Do not pressure attachment and all is fine. Try not to be so extravagant in the future.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You have to take the initiative with others if you want to make satisfactory deals, etc. An opponent can be quite ruthless, so steer clear of this person. Avoid trouble in the future also CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) If you keep busy at work ahead of you, you find that you stay out of possible trouble today when the planets are not very favorable for the social side of life. Don't state your ideas to co-workers. They are not in a receptive mood

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Take care you do not spend too much money for the pleasure you want to have today. Get your important business matters well handled first. Do not forget to pay that big bill that is pressing.

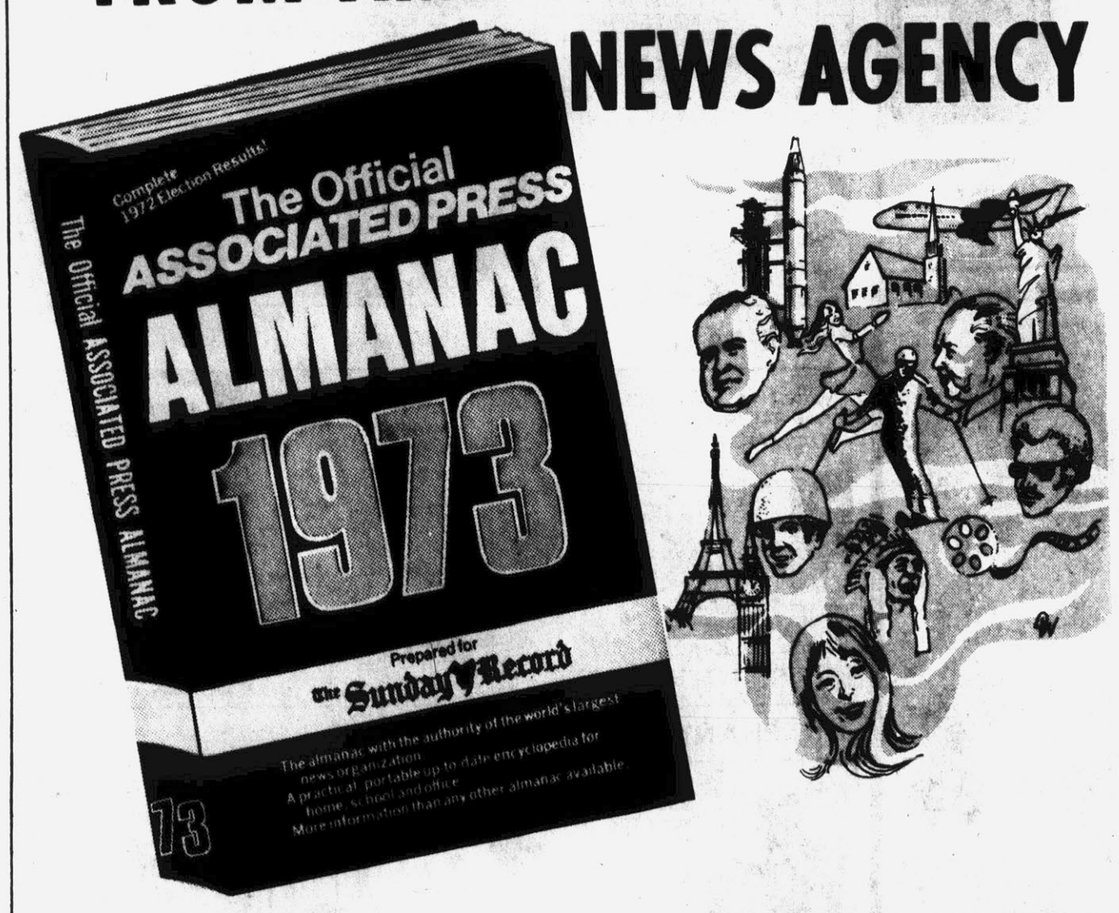

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study basic matters in your life and see what can be done to get them on a more sensible and practical foundation. Give your home more attention, since you have been neglecting it of late. Show you are an active, happy person

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . he or she will be one of those highly sensitive young people who should have activities well supervised early in life, then will become constructive instead of destructive, which would be easy for your youngster, depending upon chosen playmates. Give as fine an education as you can since there is much ability in this chart, particularly where the field of selling is concerned. Religion is a must early and sports are fine.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Highways Claim Highest Number

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A record number of persons have been killed on North Carolina highways this year—1,871.

At least 11 persons died during the weekend, the state Highway Patrol said early today.

Two weeks, including two holiday travel periods, remain in the year.

The 1,871 total exceeds the previous high of 1,869 killed in 1968.

The toll for this year is also 113 more than were killed in the same period last year, troopers said.

Victims from 6 p.m. Friday through midnight Sunday included:

Sammie Coy Brown, 31, of Rt. 1, Ruffin, killed Sunday when his car ran off a rural road seven miles north of Yanceyville in Caswell County, hit a pole and overturned.

Wilcher Leak Goins, 27, of Mt. Airy, killed Sunday when the car he was driving went out of its lane on U.S. 601 and collided with another vehicle about 3½ miles south of Mt. Airy in Surry County.

Eugene Robert Greene, 34, of Cleveland, died when he apparently fell asleep at the wheel of his car on U.S. 70 about five miles west of Salisbury in Rowan County. Troopers said the car ran off the road and struck a boulder.

Louis Earl Williams, 25, of Fayetteville, killed when the car he was driving ran off a Fayetteville street and smashed into a tree.

Arthur Field Matthews, 24, of Rt. 1, Wade, killed when the car he was in went out of control, struck a bridge rail and plunged into water on a rural road 13 miles north of Fayetteville in Cumberland County.

Bruce Graham, 20, of Rt. 1, Raeford, killed when the car he was driving at high speed skidded out of its lane and collided with vehicle in the opposite lane on a rural road seven miles south of Fayetteville.

George Washington Swarner, 19, of Ft. Bragg, killed when his speeding car crashed into the rear of another vehicle on a rural road five miles west of Fayetteville.

Everett Oliver Smith, 74, of Kernersville, killed in a two-car collision on N.C. 150 two miles north of Winston-Salem.

Roger J. Baller, 18, of Milltown, N.J., killed when the car in which he was riding struck a bridge, went down an embankment and overturned on a railroad track on I-95 nine miles south of Lumberton.

Callie Earley Green, 60, of Rt. 1, Deep Gap, killed when struck by a vehicle five miles south of Jonesville in Yadkin County.

Joseph Carroll Holloman, 23, of Colerain, died when his speeding car went out of control, left the road and struck several trees several miles south of Ahoskie.

Increased Giving To University

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP)—Gifts and Grants to Wake Forest University in 1972 totaled $5,765,134, according to J. William Straugnan Jr., university director of development.

Straughan said Saturday that the figure represents an increase of almost $1.5 million over 1971.

Patrolman Fired Upon

SMITHFIELD, N.C. (AP) — Highway Patrolmen and Johnston County officers searched woods near Wilson's Mills Sunday for a man charged with firing at a highway patrolman who had pursued him for driving without a license.

Patrolman H. M. Bullock said he attempted to stop David Bruce Lassiter "because I knew his license had been revoked." He said he man also appeared to have been drinking.

Bullock said he chased Lassiter at speeds up to 60 miles an hour until the man pulled into the yard of his home. He said Lassiter got out of his truck with a shotgun and fired at him but "the shot went about a foot over my head."

"I shot at him once and scrambled to get behind the patrol car," Bullock related. He said after another exchange of shots, Lassiter ran off into the woods "and I shot twice more."

"We both missed, but it was real close," Bullock related.

He said Lassiter was charged with assault on a police officer with intent to kill, drunken driving and driving without a license.

The shooting came only three weeks after the fatal shooting of a Clayton policeman, allegedly by one of three persons he had arrested for drunken driving.

The city of Shreveport, La., has been issuing building permits since 1914.
