Pounding Of North Vietnam Unabated

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — The United States kept up the war's heaviest bombardment of the HanoiHaiphong heartland of North Vietnam today and the U.S. Command reported the loss of another B52 heavy bomber, an A7 fighter-bomber and seven more fliers.

A report from Warsaw said three Polish sailors were killed when U.S. bombers hit a Polish cargo ship in Haiphong harbor.

The admitted U.S. losses since the bombings began Monday rose to three B52s, two fighter-bombers, including one of the Air Force's $15-million swept-wing F111s, and 15 fliers missing.

Hanoi asserted two more B52s and four more fighter-bombers were shot down Tuesday night and early today in the second night of the attack. Earlier it announced the names of six B52 crewmen it said were captured Monday night and Tuesday.

The U.S. Command reported that two U.S. sailors were killed when a North Vietnamese shore battery put a fivefoot hole in an upper deck of the destroyer Goldsborough on Tuesday. Three crewmen were wounded and a crew berthing area was heavily damaged but the Navy said the destroyer kept on firing.

The North Vietnamese radio said the Polish ship Joseph Conrad was hit by U.S. bombers in Haiphong harbor Tuesday morning, damaging the loading cranes on the stern, blasting a big hole in a lifeboat and wounding four crew members.

The ship's owners said in Warsaw, however, that three sailors were killed. A spokesman for Poland's state-run Ocean Lines said the Joseph Conrad had been held in Haiphong since the harbor was mined by the United States several months ago and only a maintenance crew was aboard.

The Command gave no details on the second night of attacks on the Hanoi-Haiphong region, maintaining one of the densest news blackouts of the war. But U.S. officials said scores of B52s pounded the Hanoi-Haiphong corridor during the night, and there appeared to be no letup in the raids. Hundreds of fighter-bombers also are taking part.

Radio Hanoi said U.S. bombers "again bombed several densely populated areas of Hanoi and Haiphong."

Hanoi reiterated that the bombing, despite its devastation, would not force it to accept President Nixon's peace terms.

While the U.S. Command has refused to disclose any of the targets being attacked, other sources indicated they included radio transmitters, power stations and the two rail lines between Hanoi and China.

Some of the targets had never been attacked before, U.S. officials said.

The Goldsborough was hit as it was bombarding the coast just south of the 20th parallel. A spokesman said the ship "continued its combat mission" despite the casualties and damage.

Meanwhile, the South Vietnamese command reported more heavy fighting in Quang Tri Province below the demilitarized zone. A communique claimed South Vietnamese marines and paratroopers and U.S. fighter-bombers supporting them killed 154 North Vietnamese in two battles north and south of Quang Tri City. Eight South Vietnamese were killed and 48 wounded, the communique said.

At Board Meet

Trevathan Talks Hospital Costs

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt Memorial Hospital Board of Trustees last night heard farewell remarks by outgoing Chief of the Medical Staff Earl Trevathan and expressed their pleasure at welcoming Dr. John Wooten as the new Chief of Staff.

Dr. Trevathan commended the other doctors on the hospital staff and its administrator, Jack Richardson, with whom he has worked closely during his two years as chief. He told of plans for a new medical staff-nursing committee, of plastic surgery service which will be here in July, and of the new Department of Family Medicine recently established here.

He said there is some dissension among the medical staff members as to whether the staff lounge and ibrary should be turned into an outpatient surgery area. No progress has come our of the tentative approval of a liason between the University of North Carolina School of Medicine and Pitt Memorial, he said.

His talk also touched on the "phenomenal rise in the cost of medical care." He offered no solutions, but said he feels the hospital should be sure as nearly as possible that each service is priced according to its cost to the hospital, rather than letting one service support another. He mentioned as examples the relatively small cost of private lab service as opposed to hospital outpatient lab service and of certain x-ray procedures that can be done less expensively in doctors' offices.

Woodrow Wooten, chairman, on behalf of the Board, expressed appreciation to Dr. Trevathan for his comments then and in the past two years. "His suggestions have saved the hospital thousands of dollars," Wooten said.

The Board concurred with approval by the medical staff in granting courtesy privileges to Dr. Judith Yongue in the practice of family medicine and major privileges to Dr. James Carter in the practice of thoracic surgery.

Richardson reported that the hospital has been exempted from payment of unemployment compensation through Dec. 31, 1973. An extension on the current financing payment of a Blue Cross refund has been received, he said.

At the suggestion of the N.C. Department of Human Resources and with the approval of the medical staff, the Board approved changing from 30 to 21 the number of days a patient may stay at Pitt Memorial Hospital before his case is reviewed by the Utilization Review Board. A group of doctors reviews each case after this amount of time has passed. If there is reasonable hope that the patient's condition can be improved by his staying, he, of course, may do so. If not, the family is asked to make arrangements to care for him elsewhere rather than in an expensive hospital bed that is badly needed for other patients. Pitt Memorial Hospital's average number of days of care for patients over 65 is now 11 days, many fewer than it was before the review system began.

Apollo 17 Crew Sails To Reunion With Families

By VERN HAUGLAND
AP Aviation Writer

ABOARD USS TICONDEROGA (AP) — Back from the moon, their adventure behind them and history made, the men of the last Apollo are sailing toward home and a reunion with their familes four days before Christmas.

The flight of the last, most perfect Apollo mission is over, after a space journey of 13 days.

Apollo 17 astronauts Eugene A. Cernan, Ronald E. Evans and Harrison H. Schmitt rode the command ship America through a fiery entry into the earth's atmosphere Tuesday and a bobbing parachute fall to a perfect landing within sight of recovery ships.

Plucked from a life raft and whisked to this carrier by helicopter for a bands-and-speeches welcome, the astronauts spent their first hours back on earth undergoing physical examinations by a team of space agency doctors.

After a quick check, Dr. Charles K. LaPinta, the medical team leader, said, "I am very pleased with their condition — they look fine."

Navy chefs aboard the Ticonderoga prepared a huge welcome-aboard cake and dinner in the officers' mess for the astronauts, the ship's officers and Navy brass and congressmen and senators on hand to watch the return of Apollo 17.

After a day and a night aboard the Ticonderoga, the astronauts will fly from the carrier to Pago Pago, in American Samoa. There they will board another plane for a flight to Ellington Air Force Base, near the Manned Spacecraft Center outside of Houston, Tex., where their families await them.

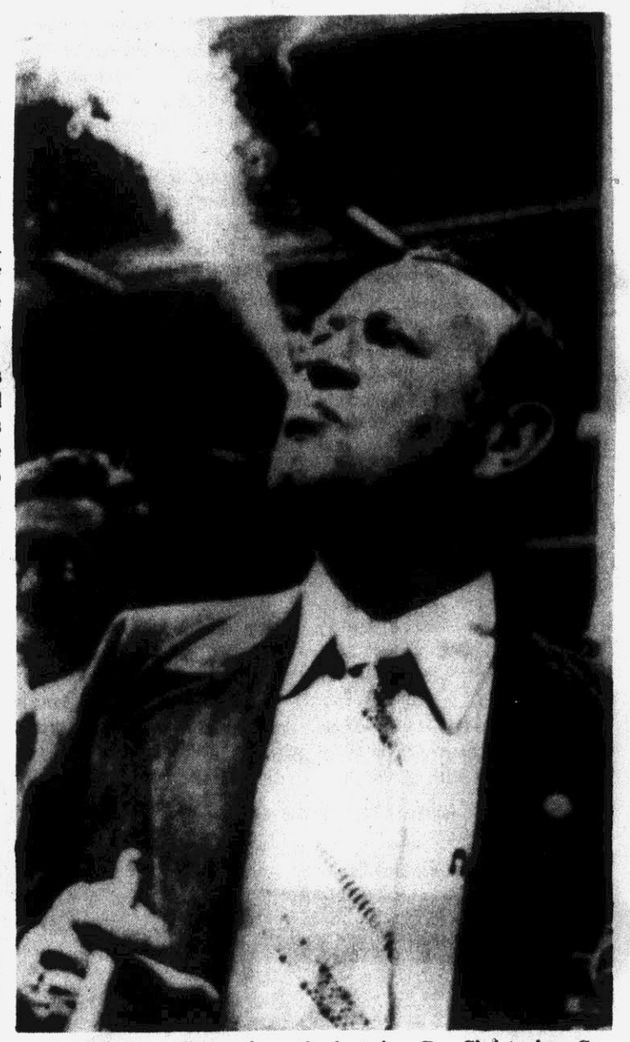
While the astronauts continued the cruise toward home, officials at the space center in Texas praised the flight as the most perfect of America's six moon landings.

"I've never seen a more perfect mission than was flown on this flight," said Dr. Christopher C. Kraft, director of the Manned Spacecraft Center. "Certainly that crew was the best crew we've ever flown."

In a statement on the completion of Apollo, President Nixon said the flight "marks the end of one of the most significant chapters in the history of human endeavor."

Apollo 17's landing in the Pacific 400 miles southeast of Samoa was like the rest of the mission since launch — flawless.

A team of recovery experts helped to unload the command ship America after it too was hoisted aboard the Ticonderoga. Among its cargo were 259 pounds of moon rock — more than returned on any previous lunar mission — and about 3,000 photos taken on the moon by Cernan and Schmitt.



THE END — For perhaps the last time Dr. Christopher C. Kraft, director of the Manned Spacecraft Center, Houston, sends a billowing cloud of smoke in the air as the Apollo 17 mission was completed. It has been a custom for NASA officials at Mission Control to light up the stogies after the space crews successfully completed their missions. With Apollo 17 closing moon exploration flights, this celebration could well not be seen again. (AP Wirephoto)

Scott Begins A New Job On February 1

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina Gov. Bob Scott, whose term ends Jan. 5, begins a new job Feb. 1 as executive vice president of the North Carolina Agribusiness Council Inc.

Wayne Corpening, president of the council, announced Tuesday that Scott has accepted the position and will maintain an office in Raleigh.

"Gov. Scott's background as an agriculture leader and public official will provide a new dimension to the work of the council," Corpening said in a prepared statment.

"We believe there is no other man in North Carolina at this time as eminently qualified for the position," he added. "Only a man of his broad experience and abilities can bring the needed leadership to the vital job of all segments of agriculture and industry for the benefit of all the people of North Carolina."

In his new position, Scott will work very closely with North Carolina State University, the state Department of Agriculture, the state Department of Natural and Economic Resources, farm organizations and businesses, Corpening said.

The agribusiness council a non-profit corporation, was founded in 1969. One of its goals is to increase public awareness of North Carolina's agribusiness industry and its vital importance to the overall economic well-being of the state and nation.

"Several projects are being considered for early implementation," Corpening said. "We see a tremendous potential for developing expanded markets, both domestic and foreign, for many of North Carolina's agricultural and industrial products and believe that our coastal location gives North Carolina many advantages not available to many other states for developing foreign markets particularly."

"We also see the need," he added, "for leadership on behalf of agribusiness in matters such as land use planning, ecological standards and regulations and other factors important to the health of North Carolina agribusiness."

Poison In Blood

KANSAS CITY (AP) — More poison is entering former President Harry S. Truman's blood stream, even though his kidney output is greater, doctors said today. He remains in very serious condition.

At a 10 a.m. EST briefing, the hospital reported Truman was somewhat less responsive during the night but that around 9:45 a.m. he became more alert. Doctors said his over-all condition was unchanged from Tuesday and that he remained very serious.

A spokesman said Truman's kidney output for the past 24 hours was 645cc. A hospital spokesman quoted Dr. Wallace Graham, Truman's personal physician, as saying that more poison is entering the blood stream even though kidney output is greater.

His doctors have said that he cannot last indefinitely with his kidneys performing inadequately.

Airport Shooting

NEW YORK (AP) — A young man, taken aside after an airport X-ray machine spotted a "questionable object" in his briefcase, shot a sky marshal and a customs agent today and then was captured in a chase onto the Kennedy Airport field, an airport spokesman said.

An examination later showed the attache case contained a spiral notebook, according to police.

The sky marshal and the customs security man were reported in satisfactory condition at Peninsula General Hospital in Queens. They were shot when the man grabbed one of their guns, the spokesman said.

The hospital identified the sky marshal as Anthony Petrucci Jr., 34, of Bloomfield, N.J., and the customs man as Gerald T. McCarthy, 41, of Commack, N.Y.

The young man was identified tentatively as Robert J. Dobbelaer.

The airport spokesman said Dobbelaer was preparing at 7:55 a.m. to board a flight for San Juan at Gate 4 of the Pan American World Airways passenger terminal when an X-ray machine spotted what "appeared to have a questionable object inside."

Electricities Plan To Build

RALEIGH (AP) — Electric Power In Carolina (EPIC), which represents 44 municipalities and 29 rural electric cooperatives, plans to build its own statewide generation and transmission system.

Directors of EPIC voted Tuesday to take all necessary steps to implement the project after approving a feasibility study. They set 1983 as the target date to begin operation of the estimated $1.75 billion project.

Muncipal members of EPIC now purchase their electricity from three investor-owned power companies serving North Carolina.

Gary Tabak, EPIC executive vice president, said the consumers receiving electric power from the system could save as much as $2 billion over 13 years because "we are a nonprofit system—we charge them what it costs us."

EPIC has received a preliminary permit from the Federal Power Commission to construct a pumped storage hydroelectric plant in Henderson County.

Present Compensatory Education Project Plan

Greenville City School officials presented their proposals for compensatory education program to patrons and member of the advisory council at South Greenville School Tuesday Night.

Charles Dickens, who serves as coordinator for the Emergency School Aid Act, (ESAA) and Glenn L. Cox, Associate Superintendent, outlined the proposal for the group. Persons present were asked to comment on the project as presented and to make suggestions that might be incorporated into it prior to submission on December 26.

The proposed project included, programs for remedial reading and math for students in the Greenville City Schools. Funds are also being requested to provide inservice training for local professional staff members. Other sections of the project would provide teachers aides to assist in the individualized classroom instructional organization and a school-community relations consultant.

Dickens informed the assembled group that the project, if approved in full, would call for an expenditure of approximately $100,000 under the ESAA. The program is scheduled to begin on February 1, 1973.

The ESAA is a new federal program that supercedes the Emergency School Assistance Program (ESAP) under which the local schools have been receiving fund during the past two years.

Mallory Reportedly To Reassume Coaching Role

Jim Mallory, former baseball coach at East Carolina University, will reassume those duties, the Daily Reflector has learned.

Currently the Dean of Men at the university, Mallory led the Pirates to an NAIA national championship during the close of his coaching career.

Earl Smith, who took over the coaching duties when Mallory turned his attention to the Dean's office, has guided the Pirates since then, but announced this fall that he wished to be relieved of those duties immediately. Smith will continue to teach at the university.

Clarence Stasavich, Athletic Director at East Carolina, would not confirm the appointment of Mallory." We have taken no final action on the position at this time," Stasavich said. "We expect to shortly."

A well-informed source however, reported that Mallory has agreed to take on the job. It was uncertain whether he would serve as acting coach just for this coming year, or whether he intends to return to full-time service with the baseball team.

Consumer Advisor Counsels Shoppers

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) —A modern supermarket may have as many as nine different brands of pancake mix in 16 sizes with 23 prices. How do you find the best buy?

Mrs. Virginia Knauer, the president's consumer affairs adviser, thinks she's found an answer—shop like a professional who buys in quantity.

She outlined her views in a series of articles distributed to food editors. They're based on talks with food experts, officials of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, food editors, writers and housewives.

She recommends comparison shopping, using unit pricing if available, or figuring the prices per market unit yourself if the store hasn't posted them.

Mrs. Knauer said a study by a New York bank showed that a shopper who compared prices on 36 basic food items saved more than $11 over the shopper who bought the same items without first comparing prices.

Consumer Groups

Not everyone has time to comparison shop at two or more stores, but some volunteer organizations and consumer groups are starting to do so for their members, she added.

She warned against using unit pricing alone as a measure of economy. Some products with low unit prices are inferior in quality or quantity to higher-priced ones.

For instance, the cost per can of fruits and vegetables is not always a good guide to the cost per serving, because some packers use more water or syrup than others. Mrs. Knauer suggests buying several different brands of a product at one time to compare contents before establishing a buying pattern.

Questioning shoppers in supermarkets, Mrs. Knauer found one woman paying $1.55 per pound for presliced pizza in an aluminum pan when she could have bought an unsliced one without the pan for 75 cents to $1.04 per pound. She found another shopper who saved money by adding sausage to plain pizza instead of buying the ready-made suasage variety.

Convenience Foods

Some convenience foods are inexpensive time savers and some are not, she said. If a casserole calls for cream of mushroom soup, it's cheaper to open a 15 cent can than it is to epend time and money making the soup from scratch.

But premixed cinnamon sugar costs about five times as much as the homemade variety that can be made in a minute or two from less than three cents worth of bulk sugar and a few cents more of cinnamon.

Some convenience foods don't even save time, she said. One brand of boil-in-bag corn with butter sauce that sells for 53 cents a pound takes 11-15 minutes to cook. Plain frozen corn at less than 40 cents a pound cooks in 2-4 minutes, and a comparable sauce of butter, salt, starch, sugar, cheese and seasonings wouldn't take 15 minutes to prepare.

Her meat buying suggestions included:

Choose on a basis of cost per serving, not cost per pound.

"A relatively high-priced meat with little or no waste may be more economical per serving than a low-priced cut with a great deal of bone, gristle or fat."

Do some of your own meat cutting. A whole round steak bought as a special can be cut along its three natural sections to yield top round for broiling or roasting, bottom round for pot roast and eye of round for pan broiling. It's cheaper than paying three different prices for each cut bought separately.

Remember in buying a beef carcass that cutting loss can add up to 20 to 30 per cent or more. Carcass beef generally yields 25 per cent each of waste, ground beef and stew meat, steaks and roasts.

Least Expensive

Poultry is one of the least expensive meats if it's bought whole. But boneless chicken breasts are high-ticket items and even cut-up chickens usually cost more than whole ones.

Mrs. Knauer also recommended buying seasonal specials among fruits and vegetables if you have time to process them for freezing and plenty of home freezer space for storage.

Turn off tree lights when leaving house.

Instant cocoa mix is sweetened and dissolves easily in milk or water. Unsweetened cocoa powder does not dissolve in this way.

Holiday Hair Styles Glow

CASUAL, DELUXE — Cut, color and care are watchwords of fashionable hair designs from Paris. Jacques Dessagne rolls hair into a tiny chignon "en escargot" and fastens it at the crown with tortoise shell pins. Wisps of fine tendrils fall from the hairline to frame the face. For evening, hair is all sophistication and feminity. Smooth hairstyles end in a braided chignon at the nape of the neck, fastened with a braid. Shorter hair is news for the future, especially cut round as a ball to accent the cheekbones and flatter the face with a long fringe of bangs that sweep to the side. Husband Gives Wife Brush-Off

By Abigail Van Buren

(c 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday morning a brush salesman rang my bell and I invited him in because I wanted to see his catalog. [I have done business with this company for years, and they always gave me excellent service.]

During dinner, my husband asked me what my day was like and when I told him that I had invited this brush salesman into the house, he hit the roof, yelling and shouting that I was "no good" and had no right to have "other men" in our home while he was at work. He asked me how many other men I had let into the house and he went on and on like a madman. He even swore at me and called me terrible names.

I was so nervous and upset, I slept on the couch last night. My husband was angry and kept coming out, trying to get me to come to bed and have sex with him, but I was so upset, I just wanted to be left alone. Then he accused me of having sex with this brush salesman, and after that I just couldn't bring myself to give in to him.

Abby, I am a good, clean woman. I love the Lord and read my Bible every day. I pray and ask God's help in all I do, but I do not feel that God wants me to live this way. My husband is so jealous he has forbidden me to visit with my neighbors, and he wants no company in our home. I am 34 and he is 49 and we've been married for 10 years. We have no children because he has wanted none. What shall I do? TORMENTED IN ALBUQUERQUE

DEAR TORMENTED: Your husband is a sick man. No rational man behaves this way. Insist that he see a doctor. If he refuses, go to your pastor and tell him your story. There is no reason for you to tolerate such abuse.

DEAR ABBY: I have lived with my daughter and her husband and their children for more than 20 years. [I am a widow.] Whenever they are invited to a dinner given by her inlaws, and my name is not mentioned in the conversation over the phone, I do not go. These inlaws insist that I am part of the family, and I don't require a special invitation, but I feel if it's too much effort for them to say, "Bring Sarah," I am really not wanted.

A neighbor sent a graduation invitation to my daughter and her husband, addressed "Mr. and Mrs. —— and Family." I didn't go. My daughter insisted that the "and family" included me. I say it meant her children, as my name is entirely different from theirs, and if it was too much trouble to write my name on the envelope below my daughter's, I stay home.

Do you think I am right or not? HAVE FEELINGS, TOO

DEAR HAVE: I think you are right. Merely sharing a home with your daughter does not automatically include you in her invitations. I hope you are doing all you can to develop a social life of your own. You will be much happier, and so will your daughter and son in law.

DEAR ABBY: I am a piano teacher and would like to know what I should say when people ask me how many pupils I have. It's a business with me, and I feel it is nobody's business but my own how many pupils I have.

I don't want to seem rude, yet we teachers never ask that of each other. Thank you. PIANO TEACHER

DEAR TEACHER: Simply smile and say, "Oh, that's classified information." [You can get away with almost anything if you're pleasant and good-humored about it.]

DEAR ABBY: I am a bald bachelor who is considering having a hair transplant because I think it will make me more appealing to women. Several of my male friends have told me that baldness is now considered a sign of virility and the baldheaded men get all the girls.

What is your understanding on this subject? M. K. A.

DEAR M. K. A.: The hairier the man, the more virile he appears, but hair has absolutely nothing to do with a man's sexual performance. There are plenty of men who have a head full of hair—and all they get is dandruff.

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 69700, L. A., CALIF. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

Industries To Bear Extra Cost

As the cost of treating sewage becomes more expensive, Greenville Utilities is tightening regulations concerning taking sewage into the system.

New regulations are being initiated which will require industries to bear extra cost of sewage treatment if the wastes from the industries exceeds certain specifications.

A monthly bill will be required to cover the city's entire cost for wastes having a Biochemical Oxygen Demand in excess of 250 parts per million and suspended solids in excess of 350 parts per million.

For industries with wastes below these minimums the normal sewer charge is considered enough to cover the treatment costs.

The regulations provide that the Utilities Commission will determine the monthly billing for industries which exceed the specified minimums.

In another measure designed to reduce costs of treating sewage, the commission provided that holding tanks must be provided by users with a lolume of more than 75,000 gallons per day. The plan here is to equalize the flow of wastes so that some of it can be treated during hours when waste flow is low. The tanks would have a capacity of at least 80 percent of the normal volume of one 24 hour period of waste.

The Utilities Commission is now doubling its plant capacity from four to eight million gallons per day. The work will cost $900,000 giving a total investment of approximately $1.7 million in treatment business in 1963 when the present facility was opened. Prior to that the raw sewage was dumped into the Tar River.

How long the additional capacity will last dpeneds on local growth, but planning is already underway for another treatment plant north of the Tar River.

The point is that treating waste is an expensive matter and the Utilities Commission has made a proper move to see that big users of the facilities bear their proportionate costs.

Medicaid Sees Large Increase

By CLIFTON M. CRAIG
N.C. Commissioner of Social Services

RALEIGH — The Medicaid program in North Carolina is growing in cost and numbers of eligible recipients.

When the state implemented this comprehensive health care program for the poor in 1970, there were 230,000 eligible recipients. This number has increased to 306,000 in 1972.

This significant increase in the number of eligible recipients and the high cost increase in health care have caused expenditures for the program to rise from $94 million in 1970-71 to an estimated $124 million for the 1972-73 fiscal year.

With no drastic change in services the State Board of Social Servives has already requested $145 million for 1973-74 and $172 million for 1974-75 in its budget request to the next session of the General Asembly.

Recent action by the State Board will cause this amount to be even larger. In its meeting this month the Board voted to ask the General Assembly to restore the dental services and the 100 per cent of payments to all providers of health services that the 1971 legislature cut.

Recipient Payment Required

The Board also took action that will help save some of this increase by requiring that recipients pay a small co-payment for the services convered by Medicaid.

North Carolina provides more health services under Medicaid than most states. It covers people who are classified as "medically needy only" in addition to all welfare recipients. We are the only southeastern state that covers this group of marginal income people. Throughout the nation there are only 25 states that cover this group as well as welfare recipients.

The "medically needy" are people who are either blind, disabled, elderly or one parent families who have income too high to be eligible for welfare but not high enought to handle expensive medical care.

Services provided under North Carolina's Medicaid program include in patient and outpatient hospital care, laboratory and X-ray fees outside of a hospital, nursing home care, physician services, limited dental services, chiropractic services, podiatrist services, home health care, drugs, eyeglasses and services to aged patients in the state mental hospitals.

Counties Decide Eligibility

The county department of social services determine who is eligible for the Medicaid program based on state and federal eligibility requirements. Health care providers from througout the state provide the services and the State Department of Social Services pays the bills.

Payments are currently being made to approximately 5,300 physicians, 1,150 dentists, 1,200 pharmacies, 145 hospitals, 100 nursing homes and 31 home health agencies.

During this past 71-72 fiscal year, inpatient hospital services required $37.4 million, nursing home $15.8 million; pharmacies, $18.1 million and physicians were paid $15.8 million.

The federal government pays 72.84 per cent of the costs and the state pays 85 per cent of the remainder with counties paying the other 15 per cent.

When the program first started the counties and state shared the non-federal portion equally. Many counties during the first year of the program were experiencing difficulty in adequately funding their portion. County commissioners wrote letters to the Governor asking him to curtail the rising costs of the program.

State Take Over Proposed

Governor Scott in his budget request to the 1971 General Assembly asked that they find ways to curtail these costs and the state assume the total non-federal share relieving the counties of any financial responsibility for Medicaid.

The legislature did not go along with the Governor's request to take over the total counties share but did relieve the counties by allowing the state to pay most of the non-federal costs.

The 1971 legislature also reduced payments to providers to 90 per cent of usual and customary fees, limited the dental services and placed as $18.50 per day limit on nursing home care. The "medically needy" group was eliminated from nursing home coverage.

In its budget request to the 1973 General Assembly, the State Board is requesting funds for several new services in addition to asking for funds to resotre some of the cuts made by the previous legislature.

These new services are emergency ambulance services, payment for oxygen used in the home and early periodic screening, diagnosis, and treatment for children under 21 years of age in the aid to dependent children welfare category.

The new program of early periodic screening, diagnosis and treatment of health defects will begin on July 1, 1973. This is a new program required by the federal government.

This program should be one of the best moves made to improve the future health of the low-income people of our state.

The State Department of Scoial Services will be contracting with health departments to provide the screening service for an estimate 150,000 children during each of the next two years.

Contradicting Greek Linkage

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Hidden in an unnoticed report to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is a revelation demolishing President Nixon's public rationale for military aid to the Greek military dictatorship: a frank admission from Israel's military high command that U.S. naval bases in Greece are not essential to Israeli security.

The report, submitted by Sen. Frank Church of Idaho following a trip to the Middle East, quotes "high military officials" in Israel as contradicting Nixon's linkage of U.S. military aid to Greece with Israel's safety. Nor was Church quoting bureaucratic underlings or street rumors. In Tel Aviv, he conferred with two of Israel's top generals.

Thus, Israel for the first time has conceded semi-officially that Greece, apprehensive about 60,000 Greek nationals in the Arab world, would never permit its naval bases to be used against Arab powers no matter what the form of government in Athens. Heretofore, the Israelis have refrained from admitting the obvious for fear of antagonizing the Nixon administration. The reason they have broken this reticence stems from a series of domestic American political maneuvers last summer.

The chain of events began July 17 when Sen. George McGovern, the new Democratic presidential nominee, wrote Greek exile leader Elias P. Demetracplous in Washington promising, if elected, to halt all U.S. aid to the Greek dictatorship.

The release of McGovern's letter July 22 generated an orchestrated Republican response based on this hoary political tactic: tie an unpopular cause (the Greek dictators) to a popular one (Israel's survival).

On NBC's Meet the Press July 23, Nixon intimate John B. Connally claimed eliminating Greek aid would destroy "the very foundation of any secruity . . . in the Middle East." On July 24, Sens. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, Senate minority leader, and Robert Dole of Kansas, Republican national chairman, delivered similar pronouncements.

On July 27, Mr. Nixon himself waded in. At an infrequent press conference, the President brought up Greek aid, though no question was asked. "Without aid to Greece. . ." he said, "you have no viable policy to save Israel."

In Athens, the colonels were apoplectic, fearful the Republican campaign barrage would undermine their relations with the Arabs. Greek newspapers, which had routinely received a wire service dispatch on Mr. Nixon's statement, were sent this frantic message from the government's Athens News Agency at 5:45 a.m., July 28: "To the editors: Please ignore cable from Washington concerning Nixon." The controlled Greek press obediently killed the story.

On Aug. 5, the Greek government officially repudiated Mr. Nixon by declaring, quite unmistakably, that Greek bases could never be used aginst the Arabs. Pressed by Athens to patch up Greek-Arab relations, the White House on Aug. 7 backed away from Mr. Nixon's remarks. Deputy press secretary Gerald Warren indicated that the President (SET ITAL) meant (END ITAL) to say Greek bases would help all allies, not just Israel. That modification, intended to placate the Greeks, was ignored by the U.S. press.

Nearly three weeks later, Sen. Church arrived in Israel to find officials irritated over

Solve It With A Warce

WASHINGTON — It is obvious from the recent Kissinger talks in Paris that we have been unable to work out a true peace treaty in Vietnam.

Hallaby Hegelstein, a political science professor, maintains the most we can get out of Indochina is a "warce."

"What is a warce?" I asked him.

"It is neither peace nor war; it is actually a combination of both. For some time now the world has needed a new word to describe the situation many countries are in. In the Middle East you do not have peace, nor do you have a fighting war. The English language has no word for this predicament so I invented one which I call "warce."

"How would warce apply to Vietnam?"

"If the United States signs a treaty with Hanoi which the South Vietnamese refuse to ratify, you will have a state of warce. President Nixon may call it a peace, but he would only be kidding himself and the American people."

"What would the warce consist of?" I asked.

"You would probably have a cease-fire with some fighting on both sides. The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong will continue sporadic probing of the South Vietnamese defenses, and the South Vietnamese will probably make occasional attacks on Viet Cong strongholds. But both sides will probably be stalemated and the warce could continue for years."

ART BUCHWALD

"Well, I guess a warce in Indochina is better than nothing," I said

"It might be the coming thing. Since peace treaties are so hard to come by, I would advocate that nations sign warce treaties instead. It could save face on both sides. Many of our world leaders consider the signing of a peace pact a sign of weakness. But no one could criticize them at home if they said they had agreed to a warce."

"I imagine if he couldn't have it any other way, President Nixon would settle for a generation of warce," I said.

"The advantage of warce," Hegelstein said, "is that Congress wouldn't have to declare it. If the President decided he wanted to involve the country in a warce, he could do it on his own."

"And if he succeeded," I said, "He could be nominated for the Nobel Warce Prize."

"I believe the nation would thrive on a warce footing," Haglestein said. "You wouldn't have to shut down your defense plants and put a lot of people out of work, and at the same time you would use very little of the stuff to kill people."

"And you could sell warce bonds to finance it," I added.

"It would also solve the military problem. In a period of peace, the armed forces find themselves in disrepute. But if we were at warce, our men in uniform would still be respected and there would be plenty of opportunity for promotion," Heglestein said.

He added, "The world is not ready for peace and may

Other Editors Say
In Slavering Pursuit

(Chapel Hill Newspaper)

The $200 million or so surplus the state will be sitting on next year is like a bell ringing for Pavlov's dogs: nearly everybody is slavering.

There can hardly be a bureaucrat alive and reasonably quick in Raleigh who doesn't have some kind of design on part of the surplus. If there's a legislator about without a notion for lightening the state's money load, he ought to be sainted.

The taxpayers—the ones who piled up the delightful surplus—also can be counted among the pack in full cry. Some want tax cuts, some want tax credits, some want tax rebates, and some will accept hard cash regardless of the nomenclature.

Not least or last among those hungering after the surplus are the lobbyists, those public-spirited souls who session after session help guide the Legislature through the labyrinths of lawmaking a tobacco lobby hasn't officially positioned itself yet, but as sure as a chaw makes juice, an end to the cigarette tax will be respectfully requested. The North Carolina Bottlers Association hasn't been all that reserved. Sam Whitehurst, the bottlers' lobbyist, thumb-sighted the surplus and right off the mark began his litany about the evils of the soft drink tax. His clout for tax repeal is heavier than the tobacco lobby's because just about everybody uses soft drinks, those who don't aren't particularly incensed about those who do or about soft drinks as such, and so far nobody has accused a big orange of causing cancer. Besides that, most folks in Raleigh like old Sam and would gladly do him a favor, everything else being equal.

Like everybody else, we too have grand plans for spending the state's surplus, but they don't call for repealing taxes. We favor such things as improving mental health care, creating a statewide kindergarten program, and channeling some of the money into "career education," even though that notion has fallen into disrepute in some parts.

If tax relief is rammed home as a means of relieving the state of the surplus—and that possibility shouldn't be discounted—it ought not to come as manna for the tobacco industry or bottlers. It would be unconscionable and politically immoral to lift the tax from cigarettes or soft drinks while leaving it on medicine, bread and potatoes.

Success is often merely a matter of salesmanship. One of two candy stores in a shopping center consistently had more customers than the other. It has been seriously suggested by oceanographers that the fresh water shortage in Southern California might sometime be helped by towing icebergs there from the South Pole. MIXED MARRIAGES

Ministers are constantly confronted with the problem of mixed marriages. Are such marriages advantageous?

Clergymen of practically all religious faiths would answer "No." And with good reason. There is a vast difference between the way different groups of people have decided to worship, and what is infinitely more important, there is a vast difference between the views they hold regarding eternal realities. If these things mean very little to two people confronting marriages, then they are indeed to be pitied. Trouble will assail them, sorrow and misfortune will come down upon them like a cloudburst on a July day. What will they have to comfort themselves with if they have no religious faith?

But if the marriage is mixed and both the man and the woman surrender whatever religion they have in the interest of family peace, the greatest insurance against eventual calamity has been cancelled out. If, on the other hand, each holds to his religion or hers and refuses to make it all one thing or all the other, then a divided home with divided allegiances is the result.

There have been some very successful mixed marriages. But young people thinking of marriage had better regard mixed marriages as fraught with the possibility of much unhappiness.

For You, Good And Bad News

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The outlook for your personal financial situation over the next few weeks contains some good news and bad. First the bad:

—We are accustomed to hearing that Social Security benefits keep rising. During 1973 we will learn the reason why this is possible. Your contribution, and that of your boss, will rise to $631.80 from $468.

Not only will the percentage of tax increase, but the tax base goes up also. In 1972, you paid at the rate of 5.2 per cent of the first $9,000 earned. In 1973 the rate goes to 5.85 per cent and the base is $10,800.

There is a double dose of bad news in this for workers who earned, let us say, at least $12,-000 in 1972. Such workers ceased having money deducted for Social Security some time last fall.

Now, suddenly, the deductions resume with the first paycheck of 1973 — and at a higher rate.

—As never before, credit cards are helping make this a bountiful Christmas for millions of families. Buyers have gone wild, and when the figures are all in they'll likely show that records of various sorts were set.

While the Christmas buying surge is consistent with the trend toward freer use of household money that set in earlier in the year, it probably has been abetted by the feeling that peace in Vietnam was imminent.

The problem now is paying off the bills. Some merchants feel that when the tab is added up it will produce a reaction in which the big Christmas spenders will return to their abstemious ways in the new year.

—Some good news is coming also. From February to June the Internal Revenue Service will be passing out refund checks to reimburse taxpayers for over withholding during 72.

How much this will amount to for particular individuals is difficult to ascertain, but estimates of the grand total range from a low of $7 billion to more than $10 billion.

What is clear is that thousands of Americans decided to use Uncle Sam as a bank in 1972 and thus declined to change the amount withheld for their paychecks even though the income surtax had been removed.

The question that concerns government officials and private economists now is what will happen to those checks. Will they be used to pay off bills, and thus help restrain price rises, or will they be dissipated?

One high-ranking government official has suggested that the money be returned in the form of government bonds, thus inducing people into investing rather than spending.

For those who found automatic, forced savings to their liking, there is always the opportunity to purchase bonds directly through the payroll savings plan and earn 5.5 per cent interest in the bargain.

UN Session Quietly Concluded

By GENE KRAMER
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The 27th U.N. General Assembly is history, remembered by some as the "Assembly on Terrorism," and by others as a session of negotiation instead of confrontation, detente instead of tension.

The three-month annual assembly finished at 9:03 p.m. EST Tuesday with the traditional one minute of silent meditation by the envoys of the 132 countries.

At the end, only 14 spectators were in the 150-seat public gallery and one of those appeared to be asleep.

The last delegate seen leaving the assembly chamber, just as guards locked the doors, was America's George Bush.

He had stayed behind to sign autographs, shake hands with fellow diplomats and thank them for the "fantastic" way he had been received during two years as top U.S. delegate.

Bush is leaving for Washington to become chairman of the Republican National Committee. John Scali, White House foreign policy consultant and former Associated Press and American Broadcasting Co. reporter, has been named to succeed him.

In his farewell speech to the Assembly, Bush said perhaps the 27th assembly was dull but probably this was because it "moved forward along the road that leads away from the sensational politics of confrontation and rhetoric toward the kind of mature diplomacy that seeks practical solutions to the problems of mankind."

The retiring president of the assembly, Deputy Foreign Minister Stanislaw Trepczynski of Poland, said it was "thanks to the new climate of detente" in the world that the sharp political, ideological and other differences among U.N. members were not able to hamper U.N. efforts to strengthen international cooperation.

While the Middle East dispute remained stalemated, some U.N. diplomats said it was a triumph of negotiations over confrontation that the assembly had not worsened it.

Through efforts of many Western, nonaligned and moderate Arab countries, the final Middle East resolution was toned down from its original draft version to the point that Israel dropped threats to renounce the 1967 U.N. formula for eventual settlement.

Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoah was one of those who called the session the "Assembly on Terrorism" because terrorism was the major new issue, prompted by the massacre of Israeli athletes at the Munich Olympics in September.

The United States and other Western powers were critical of the assembly for voting to limit antiterrorist efforts during the coming year to a study and rejecting treaty proposals.

Awaits Drug Abuse Plan

RALEIGH (AP) — The acting director of the North Carolina Drug Authority says he expects a state plan for drug abuse prevention to be completed by April or May.

Roy Eps said Tuesday federal funding will begin 30 days after the plan is approved by the federal government.

The drug authority approved guidelines for selection of an 18-member committee that will draw up the plan. The committee will be nominated by Rep. Chris Barker, D-Craven, chairman of the drug authority, and will be presented to the authority at its meeting next month.

The council will be composed of one representative from the 11 congressional districts and seven at-large members.

About $100,000 in federal funds will be made available to the committee by mid-January for development of the plan. After the federal government approves the plan, the state is scheduled to receive an additional $553,000 for its implementation.

Retired Bishop Dies In Geneva

RALEIGH (AP)—Paul Neff Garber, retired Methodist bishop in North Carolina and Virginia, died in Geneva, Switzerland, Monday following surgery. He was 73.

Garber presided over the Virginia and North Carolina Conference of the United Methodist Church from 1951 to 1964. When the area was divided in 1964, he served another four-year-term as bishop of the North Carolina Methodist Conference before retiring to Switzerland.

A funeral service will be held in the Cremation Chapel of Geneva on Friday.

Plan Christmas At Fla. Home

WASHINGTON (AP) — President and Mrs. Nixon will fly to their Key Biscayne, Fla., home late today for the Christmas holidays. The visit will mark the first time the Nixons have spent Christmas Day away from the White House.

Press secretary Ronald Ziegler said Tuesday he did not know when the Nixons would return to the capital. Normally, the chief executive resumes work after the New Year's celebrations.

The conversations were off the record. But in his September report to the Foreign Relations Committee, Chruch quoted "High military officials" as follows: "It was made clear that, contrary to a recent statment by President Nixon. . .the crucial factor for Israel is only the maintenance of a strong U.S. 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean. They do not consider U.S. bases in Greece as essential to their security."

U.S. policy-makers were unaware of Church's report. But Church informed Demetracopolous of the Israeli military appraisal in an Oct. 30 letter. Fully appreciating its political importance, Demetracopolous travelled to Europe last month to brief top Greek exile leaders.

With the Israeli contradiction, Mr. Nixon is running out of reasons for continuing to support the Greek dictatorship. As we reported earlier, the Navy selected Greece for 6th Fleet home ports without investigating alternative possibilities. Now, the Israeli military has ruined the argument absurd from the start that the 6th Fleet can come to Israel's rescue only if based in Greece.

Big Reforesting Task For N.C. Is Discussed

"If the people of North Carolina are going to have the trees to meet their needs for wood and wood products 30 years from now, 1.3 million acres of trees will have to be planted in this state during the next decade," stated Pitt County Forest Ranger Ben Hardison.

"Since it take 20 to 30 years of growing before a pine forest can be harvested, it doesn't take much reasoning to figure that North Carolina will have to plant 130,000 acres of tress every year between now and 1983.

This was the goal set for North Carolina at the recent National Tree Planting Conference in New Orleans. The ever increasing demand and use of wood in the United States and the nation's growing population indicated that 50 million acres of trees will have to be planted during the next 10 years.

Hardison stated the the N.C. Forest Service is helping to fill this need by assisting landowners reforest their woodlands and restock the woodlands which are not growing the number of trees they could.

"There are 8.5 million acres of forest in North Carolina which are growing only about 40 percent of the trees they could produce," Hardison said.

Hardison has applications for forest tree seedlings and is available to help landowners obtain seedlings from the N.C. Forest Service.

"We can help the landowner manage his forest, prepare his land for tree planting, plant the trees, and even find a buyer for the wood when it is ready for harvest.

Hardison's office is located in Winterville. His phone number is 756-0414.

Unload U.S. Grain Ship

ODESSA (AP) — Russian stevedores climbed aboard the American grain ship Ogden Willamette before dawn today and began unloading 36,000 tons of U.S. wheat bound for Soviet bakeries.

As a light snow fell on this Black Sea port, workmen connected 16 huge, pneumatic "evacuators" to the ship's holds. The American-made machines began blowing the wheat out of the ship's 15 compartments and into boxcars lined up on sidings.

"I'm very impressed; they're very efficient," said Edward Long of the 40 Russian workmen. Long is a representative of Ogden Marine Inc. of New York City, which owns the Ogden Willamette.

The tanker eased into her berth shortly after midnight after a 7,000-mile, 20-day trip from Houston, Tex. She is the first U.S. ship to arrive with part of the $1 billion worth of American grain purchased this year by the Soviet government.

Three more U.S. wheat ships are due in Odessa within the next few days.

Some of the American grain has already arrived on ships of other countries.

The United States and the Soviet Union signed a three-year pact in October opening 40 ports in each country to easier access by the other's merchant vessels. The Ogden Willamette's arrival marked the beginning of what Washington officials hope will be vastly expanded trade between the two nations.

Christmas Eve Program Set

A Christmas eve musical program will be presented at York Memorial AME Zion Church Sunday afternoon at five o'clock.

Johnny A. Wooten, minister of music York Memorial, has composed, arranged and will conduct the program of sacred and gospel music.

Wooten has transformed to music the second chapter of St. Luke, verses 1-20. This will represent a more solemn aspect of the program--the coming of the Christ Child. Following this segment, the rhythmic gospel selections will represent a time of rejoicing.

Performers for the program will include The Voices of Zion. They will perform as a group as well as soloists.

Persons attending the program are asked to wear formal or semi-formal dress.

A reception will follow the program. At this time, the church's new minister, the Rev. J. J. Reese and his wife, Mrs. Reese, will be introduced.

Mrs. Clara Scott, program hostess, has extended an invitation to all religious, municipal, civic and educational organizations. The program is open to the public and there is no admission fee.

Chile And U.S. Begin Economic Negotiations

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. and Chilean envoys start negotiations today on economic issues that have soured relations between the Nixon administration and Santiago's Marxist regime.

An agreement could help open the way for a warming of the U.S.-Chilean atmosphere in the future, but Washington officials caution that an immediate dramatic improvement is unlikely.

Prime items for the negotiators are Chile's seizure of large U.S. holdings, her big foreign debt and U.S. blockage of credits to Chile.

The talks stem from last April's meeting of Chile's foreign crecitors in Paris at which the creditor nations—owned more than $3 billion—decided each would hold separate discussions with Chile on her requests for debt repayment renegotiation.

By U.S. estimates, Chile owes the United States more than $1.7 billion—more than $1.1 billion in U.S. government loans and over $600 million in the book value of U.S. commercial properties, mainly copper, taken over by the Chilean government.

The United States rates Chile's refusal to pay for the nationalizing of copper mines as a roadblock to successful debt renegotiation. President Nixon last January said Washington would oppose loans by international banks to any country expropriating U.S. holdings without fair payment.

Chile's Marxist president, Salvador Allende, who took office two years ago on a socialist platform, has been blaming "imperialists"—the United States—for his country's worsening economic status.

In a reecent speech to the United Nations, Allende also attacked multinational corporations for what he termed an invisible blockade against Chile's economy.

U.S. officials maintain that Chile's troubles in getting foreign credit are due to her own lack of credit worthiness. They say Allende's policies have damaged his own country's economy.

Martial Law Is Relaxed

MANILA (AP) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos today suspended some of his martial law restrictions until Jan. 15 to encourage "free and open" public debate on the new constitution he is sponsoring, Information Secretary Francisco S. Tatad announced.

Tatad said there will be "no censorship of any kind" and presses now permitted to operate will be "allowed to print all forms of propaganda whether for or against the constitution." Rallies, meetings and public debates on the constitution will also be allowed, he said.

However, newspapers and broadcasting stations closed by the government during the martial law period cannot reopen. The midnight-to-4 a.m. curfew also remains in effect.

The new constitution, which was adopted by a convention recently, will be submitted to a plebiscite on Jan. 15. It replaces the present American-type system of an executive branch separate from the legislative with a parliamentary system on the order of Britain's in which the majority in the legislature will elect a prime minister to head the government.

The old constitution barred Marcos from running for a third term as president. His foes charge that the constitutional revision is a device for him to hold on to the government.

Joy After 13-Days' Wait

By ROD DAVIS
Associated Press Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — For 13 days there was strain behind the smiles of the wives and children of the men of Apollo 17. Then a splash in the Pacific thousands of miles away brought unbridled joy.

Come into the home of Ronald E. Evans as his wife and two children watched the last Apollo flight carry him and two fellow astronauts back from a voyage to the moon.

The eyes of Jon, 11, were rimmed with tears. Thirteen-year-old Jaime, the big sister, gripped the hem of her slacks. Their mother, Jan, stood close by, glancing alternately at the screen and her kids.

The television picture showed daddy coming home. Orange and white parachutes drifted toward the water and beneath them swinging gently was the spaceship America.

"Nine hundred feet and looking good," came the voice on the TV. "Five hundred, 200, looking great. 100 ...

"Yea!" Jan Evans and her children shouted in unison. They were quickly drowned out by relatives and friends who packed the living room of the Evans home for the celebration.

"Oh, how many times I've met that ship," Mrs. Evans said as her husband and his Apollo crewmates were landed by helicopter on the deck of the aircraft carrier Ticonderoga. Evans had previously served aboard the ship while a fighter pilot in Vietnam.

"Look, there's Daddy," exclaimed Jon as his father followed Harrison H. Schmitt and preceded Eugene A. Cernan out of the spacecraft.

"How do you know?" someone in the room asked.

"Because you can tell," Jon assured them. "It's Daddy."

"Don't they look great!" Mrs. Evans said. "I hope America is proud. I know Ron is proud of America."

Someone broke out a round of champagne.

"Here's to them," Jan Evans said.

Across town, at the Cernan home, Barbara Cernan led the cheers of friends.

"The last has been my man and I couldn't be happier," she said amid the hubbub of a party at her home.

Neither of the wives think the space program has come to an end with 17, the last scheduled mission to the moon.

"I think we've learned a great deal from Apollo and the other programs, and I think we're not the kind of people to stop here," said Mrs. Cernan.

The celebration spread from the homes of the Apollo 17 astronauts through the string of residential communities which have sprouted around the Manned Space Center.

Wanted Music, Not Politics

MILAN (AP) — Maurizio Pollini, one of Italy's leading young pianists, tried to read a statement condemning the renewal of American bombing in North Vietnam before a concert Tuesday, but hundreds in the audience booed, whistled and shouted, "We want music, not politics!"

Pollini said he would not perform unless he could read out the statement, which a group of Milanese artists had prepared. The organizers of the concert called it off, and the 1,000 members of the audience left.

Cite Violating Of No-Strike Pledge

ANDREWS, N.C. (AP) — Production has been disrupted at the Magnoavox stereo and TV plant in Andrews because of what the company terms an illegal strike local 5339 of the International Woodworkers of America.

The manager of communications for Magnavox at Johnson City, Tenn., Bruce Handsu, said the contract contains a no-strike pledge and "Any work stoppage was contrary to both the letter and intent of that pledge."

The company spokesman said a court injunction has been obtained requiring the local to call off the strike and advise its members to return to work. He said many employes have continued to work during the strike.

The president of the local, Keith Wilson, was out of town Tuesday and could not be reached for comment. Another officer, who declined to be identified, said the action is a protest and not a strike.

He said wages are not an issue. "The employes have got fed with the way supervisors are treating people," he said.

He said the union has more than 400 members of between 500 and 700 persons employed at the plant. The protest began Friday and was on in earnest Monday, he declared.

Panama's Drug Traffic Cited

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional report on a "Latin connection" for drug traffic cites Panama as "one of the more glaring examples of official corruption," and says the State Department is soft-pedaling discussions of drug matters with friendly nations.

The State Department "has put a higher priority on placating an increasingly hostile and demanding regime in Panama than it has on taking a firm stand against a government that is a major factor in allowing the international flow of heroin and cocaine presently inundating the United States," said Rep. John M. Murphy, D-N.Y., in a report to Congress on the probe of his Panama Canal subcommittee. The report will be submitted to the 93rd Congress.

Murphy said the State Department "has had a historic policy of ignoring or denying the involvement in the narcotics traffic ... of high-ranking officials of friendly foreign governments.

"While the department has taken a 'soft' approach to the narcotics problem generally, in Panama it has reached an absurd extreme."

Murphy said U.S. narcotics officials testified that Panamanians were "only paying lip service to narcotic drug enforcement and that the big trafficking was going on full tilt with the knowledge, sanction and even involvement of certain Panamanian officials" and members of the Panamanian National Guard.

Murphy said his panel was briefed by U.S. customs agents concerning major seizure cases covering mid-1970 through 1971, including a case which he said officials had concluded "reached into the highest levels of Panamanian officialdom and included Moises Torrijos, the brother of Gen. Omar Torrijos, and the Panamanian foreign minister Juan Tack."

Petty Cash For Public's Use

LAWRENCEBURG, Ind. (AP) — An anonymous resident plans to fund a public petty cash box in the city's Newtown Park.

The city council has approved placing the box, called the "Faith in Mankind Money Box," in the park.

The resident, who said he wanted to do "something extra" for the community, will give $2,000 to newspaper publisher Gene McCann for deposit in a bank account. McCann will withdraw $10 from the account each day and place it in the box.

Anyone who needs money can take it with no strings attached, and, hopefully, repay it later.

The anonymous donor will re-evaluate the project in six months, McCann told the council.

Dismisses Federal Suit

RALEIGH (AP) — U.S. Atty. Thomas P. McNamara says a lawsuit against Treasure Cove has been dismissed because developers have agreed to abide by federal regulations on environmental protection of the property.

Federal Judge John Larkins Jr. signed an order Tuesday dismissing a $1.2 million suit brought by the federal government against developers of the recreational property at New Bern.

However, the order permanently enjoins Treasure Cove from further construction activity in wetland areas under federal jursidction without appropriate permits from the Army Corps of Engineers.

"They are not paying us any monetary damages," McNamara said. "They have simply agreed to abide by federal regulations pertaining to environmental protection of this property."

J. Troy Smith Jr., attorney Treasure Cove, said the company is continuing with construction at the recreational development site. He added that terms of the federal order whould not slow completion of the project.

Losing Faith In System Of Acquiring Weaponry

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — An outspoken Navy procurement official says he's losing faith in the free enterprise system after nine years of watching the nation's largest defense contractors.

Gordon Rule says nationalization of key segments of the defense industry may eventually be an answer.

Testifying Tuesday at a congressional hearing without the usual printed statement, (he said he feared the Navy wouldn't clear one if he had written it,) Rule said President Nixon made a mistake in appointing Roy Ash, former head of Litton Industries, the nation's 11th ranking defense contractor, to direct the federal budget.

The director of the Navy Material command said former President Dwight Eisenhower would be "twitching in his grave," if he could see the way weaponry is purchased now. The military-industrial complex Eisenhower warned of nearly two decades ago, Rule said, has given way to a "military-industry-executive department complex."

In a series of rapid-fire accusations about procurement practices Rule testified before the joint Congressional Economic Committee:

—If Litton's huge shipbuilding contracts for five new helicopter assault ships continues to show insufficient progress by a Feb. 28 deadline, it should be "terminated for default."

—The management of Grumman Aircraft deliberately underbid the competition by $500 million to get the F14 jet fighter contract, then sought a "bail out" for nearly that much when it began losing money.

Rule, 65, a former Navy captain and Washington attorney said he reviews up to $8 billion in procurement each year.

"Sitting where I sit at Navy procurement, I think we've got to get away from the syndrome of 'get the contract and Uncle Sugar will someway bail is out,'" he said.

"As I see it, we have already moved to a quasi-welfare system for a few defense contractors without having the guts to tell the taxpayers we have moved to socialism," he said.

UN Lottery?

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The General Assembly decided at its closing session Tuesday night to study the possibility of a global lottery to raise money for the United Nations. 8s

The vote was 94-3 for the U.N. secretariat to look into the matter during the coming year. Thirty nations abstained, including the United States, China and the entire Soviet bloc.

Cuba, the Dominican Republic and Spain were opposed.

Lit Match, Hair Flared

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)— Mrs. Joan McDaniel was drinking tea at the breakfast table when she struck a match to light a cigarette.

A piece of the match head popped off and flew into her hair, which went up in flames.

"I heard a sizzling noise and felt it burning, and I just went into shock," Mrs. McDaniel said Tuesday, resting at home a day after the accident.

"I guess the first thing I did was throw up my hands, but my three children were sitting at the table with me, and they threw me to the floor," she recalls.

Her 16-year old daughter Donna Joan wrapped a scatter rug around her mother's head to snuff the flames.

Donna Joan said her mother's hair flared up "like gasoline" and McDaniel said his wife's hair spray may have contributed to the speed with which her hair caught fire.

A hospital spokesman said Mrs. McDaniel suffered first and second degree burns on her forehead and face.

She said her hair is "completely ruined" and she will have to wear a wig for a while.

Israel Built On Debris Of Bygone Civilizations

By RICHARD C. GROSS

JERUSALEM (UPI) —Israel is built on a scrap heap of the relics of bygone civilizations.

Shards of crusty pottery, figurines of gods and goddesses of a pagan age, the remnants of statues to the exalted, and whole cities lie buried beneath Israel's southern sandy wastes, midcountry stretches of farmland and the high green hills and deep valleys of the north.

Parts of some of today's cities rest on the shoulders of ancient supports. The thick columns and stone walls of a 100-acre fortress city built by the crusaders 800 years ago prop up the old section of Acre, for example.

Dozens of archeologists flock to Israel to chip, chisel and shovel gently into its crust like gardeners gingerly tending their roses. They have mapped about 800 sites.

Recently Unearthed

The most common finds date to the Roman and Byzantine periods. But nearly 200 prehistoric sites have been surveyed. French archeologists recently unearthed an 8,000-year-old village under the dried bed of an artificial fishpond in the Hula Valley.

At Caesarea, the magnificent city built by the Jewish King Herod to honor Augustus Caesar, a sandy mound rises from the oil-stained beach covering the series of arches that support a Roman aqueduct.

On the mound are stretches of pottery remains, pieces of marble and square tiles that once floored a house. They are ripe for picking by amateur archeologists in a nation where archeology ranks as one of the national pastimes.

Indicative of the ready availability of the past was the find of two Roman sarcophagi (stone coffins) by construction workers digging a foundation for a house in Ashkelon, a name nearly as old as written history. They were in good condition.

Prohibit Work

Such accidental finds have prompted the Department of Antiquities and Museums to prohibit further work on a construction project until archeologists can scramble to the scene.

"We are legally permitted to stop work," Mrs. Inna Pomerantz, a department official said. "This happens nearly every day and we have more than 50 such emergency digs every year."

But most of the big digs are purposeful, not the result of accidents.

Ol Walled City

One is the unearthing of civilizations that had lived alongside what had been the second temple of the Jews in the old walled city of Jerusalem, off limits to Israeli archeologists until Israel seized it from Jordan in the 1967 Middle East war.

Titus and his Roman legions destroyed the temple in 70 A.D., but the lower part of the walls Herod built to enclose it —one of them is Judaism's holiest shrine —still survive. Excavators found a paved Herodian street at its base, uncovering temple remnants along the way.

Headed by Prof. Benjamin Mazar of Hebrew University, the expedition removed tons of rubble that had hugged the wall and filled a shallow valley. It dug through Arab, Byzantine and Roman eras to find Jewish tombs of the first temple period, six centuries before Christ entered the Holy City.

Worked Five Years

"The wall is not important," Mazar said. "We're interested in the history of Jerusalem through the ages, and the wall is only a geographical location. We've worked here for five years and will probably work for another five."

The removal of centuries of accumulated rubble at the base of the wall led to fears that it and the Moslem museum resting on top of it would buckle outwards and topple because of lack of support.

Modern science was called in. Engineers from the Technion Haifa molded thick concrete buttresses to brace the wall.

Hope For Data On Recent Solar Flare

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (AP)—Scientists at the Oak Ridge National Laboratory say they hope to learn more about a recent solar flare from moon rocks being brought to earth by the Appollo 17 astronauts.

An ORNL chemist, James Etheridge, will go to the Manned Space Center at Houston, Tex., to escort some of the rocks to Oak Ridge for study.

The lunar samples picked up by astronauts Eugene Cernan and Harrison Schmitt are packed in special containers developed by ORNL scientists.

Etheridge said the first sample the Oak Ridge installation will receive will probably be a two-pound rock which will be tested for potassium, thorium and uranium.

In past experiments wih lunar rocks at the laboratory these three elements have always been found.

The recent solar flare which interfered with radio communications around the world, Etheridge said, is almost sure to have affected lunar rocks by producing certain radioisotopes.

"If we find these, we can draw some conclusions about the magnitude of the solar flare," he said.

Oak Ridge scientists studied about 25 samples from the Apollo 16 mission.

Youngsters Find Urban Forest Fun

By KENNETH FRANCKLING

BALTIMORE (UPI) —When youngsters in one local inner city neighborhood say, "C'mon, let's play," they don't head for an asphalt-paved lot covered with swings, slides and seesaws.

The attraction, day-long in some cases, is a unique "urban forest" specially designed and tested for its relation to the needs of the area. It accommodates children from pre-school to adolescence.

The complex, adjacent to an elementary school, uses mammoth natural tree trunks, industrial steel equipment converted to a module play system with maze-like openings, and giant rubber tires. One special feature praised by teachers is a stage for the childrens' dramatic improvisations.

Garry Cerrone, who built the playground with fellow sculptor designer Stan Edmister, calls it "functional and meaningful to city children." In fact, the kids helped design and build it.

Asked Kids

"Before the construction phase, we asked the kids to make drawings of what they thought a playground should be," Cerrone said. "From then on, during the year and a half of work, we never chased them away, unlike most other construction projects.

"We kept it as safe as possible and watched the kids while working, then made modifications from their suggestions. It tapped a previously unused source—feedback from the youngsters. Their ideas were converted into safe situations."

The youngsters were put to work—painting panels and ends of tree trunks, tightening nuts and bolts. "They got the idea that it is their playground and it brought out the peer pressure concept," Cerrone said. "Any child with thoughts of defacing or damaging the area knows he'll have to answer to the regular, constant users."

Cerrone and Edmister also gleaned advice from psychiatrist Stephen Cohen, other adults in the community and teachers.

Easily Moved

One feature built into the playground is flexibility. The steel structure is not attached to the ground, but anchored down by its own weight. If the youth-to-adult ratio of the neighborhood changes or the school is relocated, the playground could be easily moved.

It was built on a long-vacant lot, financed with federal, city and private funds.

Blame Drugs And Judges In Wave Of Bank Holdups

By RICK SCOTT
Associated Press Writer

Bank and law enforcement official in the Carolinas blame lenient judges, permissiveness and drugs for the spectacular rise in robberies that have taken more than $1 million this year from banks in the states.

Robbers have taken more than $750,000 in 68 North Carolina bank robberies in 1972. The Tar Heel state had 42 bank robberies in 1971.

In South Carolina, where the number of bank robberies has more than doubled from 15 last year to 32 in 1972, another $250,000 has been taken.

A bank is robbed somewhere in the Carolinas about every four days on the average and the FBI says only about one-fourth of the money is ever recovered.

Almost all the robbers are eventually caught—80 per cent in South Carolina holdups and 85 per cent in North Carolina. The conviction rates on those apprehended is almost 100 per cent, the FBI says.

The penalties for bank robbery, a federal crime, are tough. Armed bank robbers can be sentenced to up to 25 years in prison and fined $10,000. If anyone is kidnapped or killed in the robbery, the robber can be sentenced to life, and no less than 10 years, in prison.

But the robberies go on in the two states...and on, and on.

FBI officials see the bank robberies as just one facet of the overall increase in violent crimes of all types. Burglaries, car thefts and larceny are increasing at a faster rate than bank robberies, statistics indicate.

"It's hard to pinpoint the exact reason for the increase in bank robberies," Thomas W. Leavitt, special FBI agent in charge at Columbia, S.C., told The Associated Press, "In more and more robberies, drugs are involved...people trying to get money to support their habits."

The increasing number of branch banks, located in rural areas and suburbs, also was cited as a reason for more robberies. Leavitt said robbers consider them easier targets.

Small branch banks scattered over wide areas are prohibited in many states, but not in the Carolinas. Other states just have more individual banks instead of branches.

Ralph Rampton, special FBI agent in charge at Charlotte, said the branch banks often appear to robbers as less secure. They are further from law enforcement protection, usually offer easier access to getaway roads and often are manned by mostly women employes.

Rampton also said longer banking hours apparently have contributed to the increase in robberies in North Carolina. He said about 25 per cent of this year's holdups occurred after 3 p.m. In bygone years, banks usually closed for the day at 2 p.m.

A sore spot with both bank and law enforcement officials is the sentences metted out to convicted bank robbers. "The penalties are tough enough," said Rampton, "but the judges should give greater sentences."

Rampton said his figures showed the average convicted bank robber in North Carolina has received a 12½-year sentence. This year, the average is closer to 10 years. In one federal judicial district in North Carolina, the average bank robbery sentence is about six years, Rampton said.

With parole, a convicted robber could be out again in several years and federal statistics show that 75 per cent of all robberies are committed by "repeaters," or people who have been in trouble before.

One North Carolina bank official complained that "the federal judiciary sometimes seems to be on the criminal's side."

"The average sentence for bank robbery has been too low," Rampton said.

Rampton said drug use is not a "major factor" in bank robberies in North Carolina's rural areas. In Charlotte and Mecklenburg county, however, he said many of the robberies often are drug-oriented. Charlotte has had 21 bank robberies this year and another four have occurred in the surrounding county area.

Even though bank robberies are not the biggest financial loss suffered by banks the FBI says more than five times more money is embezzled annually than taken in robberies on a national level) banks and police are moving quickly to try to curb the increase.

In Charlotte, for example, off-duty, uniformed policemen view patrol banks. Tellers are advised to keep as little "working money" in their cash drawers as possible and more intricate electronic alarm and monitoring equipment is being installed.

At some point, one bank official noted, the cure becomes more expensive than the sickness, however. Banks and taxpayers simply won't be willing to pay several million dollars to prevent $1 million from being stolen.

Bank robberies are already an expensive proposition for law enforcement men. Rampton complained of having to commit many agents to bank robbery investigations.

Banks are concerned, too. Most often bank robbery insurance is $75,000 deductible. That means a bank has to absorb the first $75,000 loss and most robberies, especially at branch banks, don't net that much.

Roger P. Schad, a vice president of North Carolina National Bank, said the increasing number of robberies also is making it harder for banks to employe tellers and other personnel.

"Some of our people have been very gallant," Schad said, "but after two or three times of having a gun poked at them, they're ready to find a new job." Husbands may be skeptical about their wives working as branch bank tellers, he said.

Both bank officials and law officers are hesitant to give details of security plans to prevent bank robberies. Many are in effect now. The FBI in both North Carolina and South Carolina works with banks on security details and holds conferences and seminars on the subject.

To publicize the security plans, said Rampton, would be to aid the cause of the criminals.

What should a customer do if he is caught in a bank during a robbery?

"Obey the bandits," advises Rampton, "and observe him very carefully. Notice everything about him you can.

"Most of all, be a witness not a victim," he said.

No one has been killed in a bank robbery in North Carolina or South Carolina this year. Several hostages have been taken, however.

Sees 'Brash' Power Play

RALEIGH (AP) — The executive director of the North Carolina Wildlife Federation says the ouster of Clyde Patton as executive director of the state Wildlife Resources Commission was "a rather brash political power play."

Turner Battle, Rocky Mount attorney, said Tuesday he through a philosophy "has crept into the commission that individual members can set up their own private little kingdowms" concerning hiring, promotions and so forth within the agency.

He added, "At least part of Patton's downfall is explained by the fact that he saw this stuff going on and bucked some of it."

Battle said he was disappointed to see the commission action "because it means the commission has decided to take a political approach to wildlife rather than the scientific one it had up until" Monday.

The wildlife commission voted 5 to 3 Monday to remove Patton, effective Dec. 31, He has held the post since 1948. The members delayed until Jan. 3 a related proposal that commission member Orville Woodhouse of Granby be named to replace Patton.

The wildlife federation is a non-government association of sportsmen created in 1945 to keep politics out of the state's wildlife programs. It has about 20,000 members.

Premier Coming To Inauguration

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Prime Minister Eisaku Sato of Japan is planning a private visit to the capital and will attend the inauguration of President Nixon on Jan. 20.

Deputy press secretary Gerald Warren said on Tuesday that Nixon wants to meet with Sato while he is here. Reports from Tokyo indicated the meeting will take place on Jan. 17.

Zsa Zsa Sues Over Dialogue

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Zsa Zsa Gabor has filed a $1.5 million breach of contract suit, saying she was "scandalized" by the "racy" dialogue written for her in the movie "How to Seduce a Woman."

Miss Gabor said in her suit she agreed to take the part if the script were redone. She said that after she had appeared in a few scenes she received a final version of the script in which the dialogue was "improper, lurid, profane, objectionable and vulgar."

Attorneys who filed the suit Tuesday for the actress said it stopped filming by producer Charles Martin and Forward Films, Inc. However, a spokesman for Martin said, "We didn't lose five minutes of filming."

Miss Gabor seeks $5,000 for alleged breach of contract, $500,000 in general damages and $1 million for alleged conspiracy to defraud.

Most Trouble-Free Apollo Flight Following Launch

By PAUL RECER
AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — It stuttered at the start, but once it left earth Apollo 17 was the smoothest, the most trouble-free of all the moon landings.

A computer-driven device halted the Apollo 17 countdown and stalled the launch for two hours, 40 minutes. It got off finally, at 12:33 a.m. EST, Dec. 7, and rose on a tail of fire which cut through the black Florida sky and turned midnight into dawn.

From then on it was smooth space sailing — with only minor irritations — for the two Navy men and the civilian scientist of the last Apollo flight.

Every other moon landing mission had at least one major problem, and an incident on one flight nearly cost the lives of three spacemen.

On Apollo 11, the first moon landing, an overloaded computer aboard the lunar module gave false abort signals, but Mission Control overruled the computer and the landing was a success.

On Apollo 12, the lunar module was targeted toward a large crater and the astronauts had to overfly it to land, and plans for television scanning of the lunar surface went awry when the astronauts pointed the camera at the sun and ruined the lens.

On Apollo 13, an oxygen tank exploded 200,000 miles from earth on the flight toward the moon. The astronauts were forced to board the attached lunar module to survive long enough to return to earth. The mission is considered the only Apollo failure.

On Apollo 14, the astronauts had trouble docking the command and lunar modules shortly after leaving earth orbit. They went on to accomplish a successful moon landing.

On Apollo 15, they had difficulty separating the command module and the lunar module while in moon orbit prior to landing. Plumbing aboard the craft leaked, the astronauts suffered cardiac irregularities on the moon and a parachute collapsed just before splashdown.

Apollo 16 had to be cut short when a part of the command ship's main rocket engine failed to work properly in lunar orbit. It prevented an orbit-changing firing which was necessary for safety's sake before a landing could be permitted. The problem was subsequently solved and the landing was allowed to proceed, but the astronauts returned to earth sooner than planned.

Beside such problems, the Apollo 17 difficulties seem small. A fender on the moon car broke off and the astronauts improvised another. All three astronauts suffered from minor gastric distress. And some of the scientific instruments did not operate precisely as planned.

Additionally, a pair of scissors were lost. They were never found. And the wiring in a headset used to communicate with earth broke. It was repaired.

Dr. Christopher C. Kraft, the director of the Manned Spacecraft Center at Houston, summed it all up: "I've never seen a more perfect space flight than this."

Newsprint Price Boost

NEW YORK (AP) — Bowater Inc., one of the largest newsprint manufacturers in the world, announced today it will increase the price of newsprint by $5 a ton, effective Feb. 1, 1973.

Robert G. Linkins, Northeast sales manager, said the price hike, which will bring the price of newsprint to $170 per ton, was necessitated by the rising costs of raw materials.

The prices of Bowater's specialty grade, groundwood and lightweight papers also will be raised by $5 per ton Feb. 1. The increases are subject to approval by the Price Commission, the company said.

Earlier today British Columbia's three newsprint producers announced they will increase their selling prices by $5 a ton, effective next March.

The increase follows price boosts by Eastern Canadian and United States manufacturers.

MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. notified its customers that prices for standard newsprint would increase March 1 to $164 a ton in the lower mainland and on Vancouver Island. Prices for the B. C. interior and Alberta will be $166 a ton.

The MacMillan Bloedel notification was followed by those of B.C. Forest Products Ltd. and Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd., both of whom set identical rates but made the effective date March 15.

Ruined When Sewer Failed

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) — A woman has asked the city to reimburse her for damages to 10 hippos, eight alligators, eight dogs and a half dozen rabbits.

Margaret Kunde asked the City Council for $176 for damages to the stuffed animals she makes that were in her basement and ruined by water when a plugged city sewer backed up.

The City Council turned the matter over to its attorney.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market recovered a bit today from the gloomy mood which had affected it since last weekend's shattering of hopes for quick peace settlement in Vietnam.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 1.81 to 1010.99. But declining issues still held a 638-to-477 lead over gainers on the Big Board, with 1,536 issues exchanged in moderate trading.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,400 common stocks was up 0.06 to 63.69. At the American Stock Exchange, the price change index was unchanged at 26.33.

National Union Electric was up 2⅜ to 21⅝. The company had said it would stop distributing Emerson and Dumont television sets because the distribution operation had proved unprofitable.

Virginia Electric Power was the Big Board's most-active issue, down ⅜ to 22½ following a block trade of 100,000 shares at 22⅜.

Susquehanna Corp. was the subject of two big-block trades—one of 663,000 shares in the Over-the-Counter market at 10½, up ⅞, and one of 292,000 shares at the American Stock Exchange at the same price. Afterwards the stock's price on the Amex sank back to 10, up E.

Kennedy Warns Of New Effort

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., says Congress will renew efforts to end the Vietnam war if peace is not achieved by "early 1973."

Kennedy said Tuesday night that the latest American bombing raids in North Vietnam give the "deep and despairing sense that these events mark a return to the war of old."

He said the Nixon administration had "every incentive to agree that the war must end, that our fundamental social pledges must be redeemed," in a speech to the B'nai B'rith Wall Street Division.

New Zealand To Export Water

Timaru, New Zealand (AP) — A company has been formed here to export fresh water from New Zealand's South Island.

The company, Resources Development Ltd., has lodged an application for water rights and plans to start exporting the water within two years in petroleum-type tankers. Company chairman John E. Fletcher said: "As a source of supply it is one of the few places in the world which has a deep natural sea harbor and a constant flow of pure water which, by the time we collect it, will have been filtered through two lakes which act as natural settling ponds."

Fletcher said many countrie in Europe and in the Mediterranean area were short of good drinking water.

Santa Claus Had A Badge

HAYWARD, Calif. (AP) — Richard K. Hughes cheerfully invited the Santa Claus who had rung his doorbell into his home.

He was stunned when St. Nick produced a badge and a search warrant and was joined by several other police officers.

The gentleman in the red and white suit was Detective John Evaneski who came to Hughes' residence here Monday night to look for narcotics rather than hand out gifts.

Evaneski said he used the Santa disguise to prevent Hughes from disposing of any narcotics before the officers could gain entry into the house.

Officers found a half-pound of marijuana, hashish, LSD, barbiturates and other drugs, Evaneski said.

Hughes was booked for investigation of possession of drugs.

Evaneski said he borrowed the costume from another officer who uses it to portray Santa at the annual Hayward Police Association Christmas party for officers' children.

China Urges End Of War

TOKYO (AP) — China demanded today that the United States stop "all its bombing raids, mining, blockading and other acts of war" against North Vietnam and "speedily sign the agreement on ending the war and restoring peace in Vietnam."

A statement by the Foreign Ministry broadcast by the official Hsinhua news agency delcared that "should the U.S. government disregard the desire of the people of Vietnam ... the Chinese people will, as always, resolutely perform their internationalist duty and give all-out support and assistance to the Vietnamese people.

Peking said the dispatching of large numbers of aircraft Monday and Tuesday "to carry out massive bombing raids against Hanoi, Haiphong and other areas of North Vietnam and Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird's ordering the lifting of restrictions on air operations above the 20th Parallel were a most serious step taken by U.S. imperialism to prolong and intensify its war of aggression.

Won't Relax Game Blackout

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pro football Commissioner Pete Rozelle today refused a request by President Nixon to televise locally all playoff games that were sold out 48 hours in advance of kickoff, Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst announced.

In a statement released by the Justice Department, Kleindienst said the Nixon administration would strongly urge the new Congress to re-examine the pro football's anti-trust exemption and would seek legislation which he said "is more in keeping with the public interest."

BigDemand For Steel In Tires

NEW YORK (UPI) —Behind the popularity of steel-belted radial tires is the same technique used in weaving the steel cables that support the largest suspension bridges. Steel threads 1,100th of an inch in diameter are woven into rugged belts imbedded in the rubber, virtually doubling tire life.

American Iron and Steel Institute reports that 3 million pounds of steel wire were used in tires in 1970, compared with 40 million pounds estimated for 1972, a more than 13-fold rise. The forecast for 1973 is 70 to 80 million pounds and 1975 anywhere between 100 million and 200 million pounds.

Antidote For Metallic Poison

MONTREAL (AP) — Dr. Yukio Tanaka, a McGill University chemistry professor, says he has discovered that molecular compounds occurring naturally in citrus fruits and seaweed are a simple, inexpensive antidote for metallic poisoning. He says the compounds combine with excess metal, prevent their absorption in the body and are excreted harmlessly.

America's pet population includes 32.6 million dogs, 2 million cats and 26 million caged birds, says National Geographic.

William Dansey Named Celebration Chairman

Greenville Republican William E. Dansey has been named chairman of the Victory 72 celebration planned for Raleigh the day governor-elect Jim Holshouser is inaugurated in January.

The State Republican Executive Committee directed that a celebration be held and Dansey was named as chairman of the project by Republican state chairman Frank Rouse.

According to Dansey, the Victory 72 celebration will take the form of dancing, cocktails and hors d'oeuvres at five different locations in Raleigh... and will entertain some 5,000 Republicans on hand for the January 5 inauguration.

Dansey said the celebration parties will begin at 9 p.m. January 5 and run unti 1 a.m. Saturday. Cost for the victory 72 Celebration will be $10 each, according to the chairman.

"We'll have bands at each location, Dansey said, and a congressman or other elected official will be hosting each location.

He noted, too, that Gov. Holshouser and Sen. Jessie Helms "will stop by each location and say hello to the guests."

Dansey explained that the celebration would "give Republicans a place to go" and "provide entertainment on Friday night," following the swearing in of the state's first Republican Governor this century.

He noted, too, that the Victory '72 Celbration would raise funds for the state Republican party.

Propose Insurance Rates Commission

RALEIGH (AP) — A three-man insurance rates commission that would take over the rate-making powers held by North Carolina's insurance commissioner is proposed in a bill pending before a study committee.

The proposal was presented Tuesday to the Governor's Study Commission on Automobile Insurance and rates, but no action was taken on it.

The commission also received a proposed bill that would change the present prior approval method of insurance rate making in North Carolina to one embodying a mixture of open competition and prior approval. Action also was delayed on this measure.

The bill calling for a three-man insurance rates commission was drawn up by Banks Finger of Boone, a staff adviser to the commission. The proposal to change the prior approval method was drafted by Dr. J. Finley Lee, a professor of business administration at UNC-Chapel Hill and staff adviser to the commission.

Lee's proposal would exclude large commercial premiums of more than $2,500 from prior approval, but retain it in a slightly modified form for personal insurance coverage on an automobile.

After the first rate approval under the bill, insurance companies would be allowed to make automatic premium adjustments to compensate for losses.

The commission indicated strongly it believes the issue of rate making needs more thorough study before it makes any firm proposals for the legislature.

The proposal to create a rates commission would strip the insurance commissioner of his rate-making powers and attempt to turn him into a public advocate.

Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan has advocated such a move. He said the present system makes the insurance commission both "judge and jury" where auto insurance rates are concerned.

The three members of the commission would be appointed by the governor, lieutenant governpr and insurance commissioner to staggered six-year terms.

Employment Up In November

RALEIGH (AP) — Labor Commissioner Frank Crane said today nonfarm employment increased 12,600 in North Carolina last month, pushing the total to 1.8 million jobs.

The total represented an increase of 57,400 jobs over the same level last year at this time, Crane said.

Employment in November was up in 21 major job groups. Decreases were noted in six categories.

The November increases were led by a jump of 5,800 in retail trade and 3,300 in school employment.

Bertie Eases Past Rampants By 66-50

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

WINDSOR — Bertie High School had little trouble in handing Rose High School's Rampants their seventh straight loss of the season last night, 66-50.

The Falcons, who never were in trouble after the opening minutes, had trouble breaking it open, however, although they finally built up as much as a 21-point lead before it was all over.

Rose led only once, in the opening seconds, after scoring the first basket. After that Bertie came back to push out by eight points, a margin they held for a most of the first half.

Bertie didn't shoot well, but when they weren't hitting, they didn't have much of a problem either, since they were able to pretty well control both boards.

During the early part of the game, the Bertie press kept the Rampants from having many opportunities to cut into the lead, but Bertie's mistakes kept them from making it a run-away until late in the half.

Rose grabbed the opening lead when Harvey Tucker hit on a drive off the opening tipoff, but Bertie quickly came back to tie it up on a shot from underneath by John Heckstall. After the Rampants missed the opportunity to go back into the lead, Heckstall hit again, this time with a jumper from the top of the key, and Bertie was ahead, 4-2. They never lost the lead.

Harold Butler and Heckstall followed with a pair of baskets to run the lead out to six, 8-2. Rose finally hit again, on a fast break by Tuncker, but a steal by William Heckstall and a jumper from the corner by Butler ran the margin out to eight, 12-4.

Rose came back to cut that to four again, as Herb Byrum connected on a turnaround jumper and Dennis Taylor hit from the corner.

But two free throws, one each by John Heckstall and William Heckstall pushed it back to six and Alphonso Ruffin canned one from the corner to make it eight again, 16-8.

Rose was unable to do more than swap for the remaining seconds of the quarter, and trailed, 18-10 at the horn.

For most of the second period, it was the same time. Then, with just under four minutes left, John Heckstall hit on a pair of free throws to run the lead out to 10, 26-16. After an exchange of baskets, he hit two more from the line, and ran the margin out to 12, 30-18 with just over a minute left. William Heckstall hit a free throw and when he missed the second, Ricky Miller put in the rebound and that ran the lead out to 15, 33-18 with 40 seconds left. Each team got a basket in the remaining time to leave Bertie with a 35-20 margin at halftime.

In the third period, Bertie was never able to push out by more than 19, despite controlling the game for the quarter. Rose trimmed it back to 13 right after the period opened, but A jumper by Ruffin and two free throws by John Heckstall ran it out to 17, 39-22.

Then, at the midpoint of the period, Donald Sumner hit to make it 19, 45-26 after steal, but Bertie couldn't make it any more. Rose was able to put on a rally, getting a basket from Phil Ragazzo, another from Bynum and one final one from Taylor to trim it back to 13 again, 47-34. But two quick baskets by Ruffin ran it back to 17 at the end of the quarter, 53-36.

Finally, Bertie was able to push the margin over 20 points. Butler hit a jump to make it 57-38, and after a steal, a fast break feed to Ruffin hit and made it 59-38 with 5:02 left to play.

After that, the Falcons began to go to their bench, and Rose was able to trim it back to the final 14-point spread.

John Heckstall led the Bertie rush with 25 points, while Butler had 12 and Ruffin had 10. For the Rampants, Bynum had 13 Taylor had 10.

Bertie's junior varsity rallied in the final period to take a 36-35 victory over the Rampant Cubs to start the sweep.

Rose led throughout the first period, but held only an 11-9 edge at the first horn. In the second period, Bertie pushed ahead briefly, but Rose came back and outhit them, 8-7, and went into the dressing room with a 19-16 lead.

In the third frame, Rose continued to hold the lead, again holding an 8-7 advantage, and led, 27-23 as the last quarter opened. But they couldn't hold onto it, and Bertie slowly chipped the few points away, finally outscoring Rose, 12-8, and that proved to be just enough. Rose was unable to hit in the final seconds of the game when they had the opportunity to win it.

Lindberg Morris was the game's only scorer in double figures, hitting 16 points for the Cubs.

Rose has completed its pre-holiday play, and will return to action on January 2, playing host to Rocky Mount in a Division II conference game.

Washington In Win Over N. Pitt

BETHEL — Washington High School slipped to a 41-37 victory over North Pitt High School here last night.

North Pitt's Panthers eased into the lead in the first period of the game, taking a slim 8-7 advantage. Washington came back in the second quarter, however, to score 11 points, while holding North Pitt to a duplication of its first period, eight. That left the Pam Pack in the lead, 18-16 at intermission.

North Pitt wouldn't let them pull away, however, and came back to hit seven in the third quarter while Washington was getting six. That left the Pack with just a 24-23 lead as the last quarter got underway.

Washington and North Pitt both began to find the range more consistantly during the last frame, but again the Pam Pack held the advantage, hitting 17, while the Panthers got only 14. And that was just enough for the win.

Mark Gray led Washington with 17 points, while Eddie Wilder had 14.

For the Panthers, David Brown had 16 points and Joe Wright had 10.

North Pitt's action is on January 2, when the Panthers travel to Farmville Central for an Eastern Carolina Conference engagement.

Farmville Pops North Lenoir

WHEAT SWAMP — Farmville Central split a pair of games with North Lenoir High School last night in the Eastern Carolina Conference.

The Jaguars won the boys' game, 67-59, while bowing to the Lady Hawks, 35-31, in the girls'.

In the opener, both Farmville Central Central and North Lenoir pushed through 10 points during the first period. In the second quarter, Farmville matched its opening total, while North Lenoir fell off to nine. That left the Lady Jags ahead, 20-19 at intermission.

But Farmville's output shrank in the third period, and North Lenoir outhit them by one, 5-4, to tie it again, 24-24, going into the final period. The Hawks then outscored Farmville again, 11-7, to take the victory.

Nedra Burney had 11 points to lead North Lenoir, while Farmville's period, holding a 16-12 advantage. They again outhit the Hawks in the second frame, but by only two, 14-12. That left the Jaguars ahead, however, 30-24, at halftime.

Farmville dumped in 20 more points in the third period, while North Lenoir got 12 for the third straight quarter. That was enough for Farmville to stretch its lead out to 50-36. The Hawks finally got up enough steam to outpoint Farmville, 23-17, but it wasn't enough.

Melvin Bunch led Farmville with 20 points, while Willie Jones had 17, Phil Lewis had 14 and McCoy Williams had just 10. Roy Jones led Lenoir with 18, while Mike Miller had 17.

The Jaguars next entertain North Pitt on January 2.

Goldsboro Nips EBA

Missed free throws helped Goldsboro Junior High School to a 61-60 victory over E. B. Aycock's Phantoms here yesterday.

It marked the second straight loss for the Aycock five, who have yet to post their first victory.

"We played well enough to win except for free throws," Coach Wilson McDowell said. The Phantoms missed 19 free throw attempts, hitting on 15 of 34, and that was the story of the game.

Goldsboro inched out into an 11-10 lead after the first period of play, than pulled away with a 15-10 advantage in the second frame. That left the Burros on top, 26-20 at intermission.

In the third frame, Goldsboro added two more points to their margin, 19-17, and led, 45-37. Aycock put on a rally in the final frame, closing to within one, but their final shot, just before the end bounced off the rim of the basket, and that was it.

Donnie Shields led Aycock with 19 points, while Norman Matthews and Dennis Walston each had 10. Pacing Goldsboro were Morrisey with 18 and Hinnant with 10.

Aycock's next game will be January 5 when they travel to Rocky Mount to meet the Thunderbirds.

Chargers Hold Off Greene Central

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

LITTLEFIELD — Danny Garris scored on a lay-up to put the Ayden-Grifton Chargers out of reach of Greene Central's Rams last night and give the Chargers their eighth win in a row.

Garris's bucket did not overshadow the antics of Ram guard, Stevie Williamson who swished, yes swished, a basket from almost 55 feet out with one second left in the third quarter to pull his team within two points of A-G. He could not do it again as the Rams lost, 51-48.

The Chargerettes won their sixth against two defeats as they trounced the Ewes by 50-21. The Greene Central J. V.'s won easily over the Charger juniors, 60-47.

Greene Central opened the scoring in the girls' game as Patricia Gray hit from outside to give the Ewes their only lead of the ball game. Decia Little tied it up for the Chargerettes scoring from the lane and a bucket by Maude Babington put A-G ahead, 4-2, with half the period gone by.

A-G added to their lead in the next period as they outscored the Ewes 13-9 for a 25-11 halftime gap of 14 points.

The third quarter was carried mostly by the bench as they accounted for 14 points and held Greene Central to six. Greene Central got even less in the last frame, four points, as the Chargerettes slipped 11 through.

Little wound up as the games' high scorer with 12 points.

The Greene Central boys may have lost but not before they had almost given Charger coach Bob Murphrey several near heart attacks. Jessie Brown put the Chargers on the boards first as he scored from underneath in the first minute of play. Williamson canned a long jumper to tie it up, 2-2, but a free throw by Brown gave the lead right back to A-G. Jackie Sherrill slipped one through from the corner to put Greene Central back on top as the lead continued to see-saw back and forth.

Brown made it 5-4 hitting in the lane and after Melvin Stewart scored on a steal, he netted another two points from under the basket making it 9-4. Greene Central fought back, however, and a bucket by Erwin Spivey and two by Moses Barrow let the Rams inch back in front, 10-9.

Stewart sank a free shot to tie it but Curtis Bryant gave the lead right back to the Rams on a jumper with 1:31 to go in the period. Buckets by Stewart and Sam Stewart turned the lead around one more time. With :31 left, Barrow scored to tie it up as the quarter ended.

Greene Central grabbed the advantage as the second quarter started on Spivey's outside shot. Williamson connected to make it 18-14 but A-G cut it down by three as Melvin Stewart made a basket from 20 feet and Milton Brown added a free throw. The Rams quickly moved out again on buckets by Bryant, who made a pair, and Williamson. That made it 24-17 left in the half.

The Chargers roared back and put through nine points as the Rams hit a cold streak. Sam Stewart got the bucket that put the Chargers ahead at intermission hitting from the corner with one second on the clock. A-G had a slim lead, 26-24.

Jessie Brown made the lead four, 28-24, as he took the third quarter jump and laid it in for the 28th point. Sherrill got a three-point play for the Rams to put them ahead, 29-28, briefly. Brown was fouled a half minute latter and made one of two shots to tie the game. Spivey hit two to boost Greene Central out by four with 5:30 left in the frame but Melvin Stewart canned a long jumper and Jessie Brown scored tapping in a rebound to knot the score again, at 33-33. The Chargers forged in front as Milton Brown hit a flat shot from the corner making it 35-33 but Williamson scored also to retie the game. The lead changed hands twice more in the next minute and the Chargers got it for the rest of the period on a Jessie Brown's tap-in making it 39-37. Melvin Stewart added a charity shot, and Milton Brown a jumper for 43-38 lead with :02 on the clock. The ball went in to Williamson. Someone yelled shoot and that is what he did. He made it from 55 feet away as everyone in the A-G gym fell off their seats. That cut the Charger lead to two, 42-40 as the period ended.

Jessie Brown got the two points right back on a lay-up but Spivey hit from the stripe keeping the Rams right on the Charger's heels, 44-42. Sam Stewart missed a free throw and the rebound was pulled down by Greene Central. Williamson canned a bucket on a back-hand lay-up to tie it up again, 44-44, with 4:27 to play.

Milton Brown got the lead back for A-G on a charity shot 45-44 but it was not held long as Kenny Williams scored on a baseline drive to put the Rams ahead, 46-45. Travis Wood hit for A-G as the lead continued to change hands, 47-46. Greene Central was rapidly running out of time and were behind by a point with :44 to go. Williamson

Jamesville came back with 22 points in the third period, as compared to 17 for Belhaven, and that saw the two knotted, 47-47. Plymouth Takes Win Over Williamston

PLYMOUTH — Plymouth and Williamston high schools split a pair of basketball games last night in Albermarle Conference play. Williamston took the opening girls' game, 45-39, while the boys of Plymouth won by an almost identical score. 45-38.

In the opener, Williamston had trouble getting started and Plymouth took advantage of that to roll up an 8-2 lead. The Tigerettes finally got moving in the second period, outhitting Plymouth, 9-7. But they still trailed, 15-11 at the half.

During the third period, Williamston again outhit Plymouth, 14-11, and cut the lead back to 26-25. Then, in the final frame, they outdistanced their hosts, 20-13, to complete the rally and take the victory.

Sissy Taylor led Williamston with 13 points, while Bett Brandon had 12. Elaine Cox had 14 to pace Plymouth.

In the boy's game, it was a different tale, however, as Plymouth took the victory. They built up a 12-6 lead in the first period, and led throughout the first half of play. Both teams pushed through nine in the second period to build the score to 21-15 at halftime.

During the third quarter, the Tigers put on a rally, outscoring Plymouth, 14-10. That cut the margin to only 31-29, but they couldn't push ahead to stay. Plymouth came back with a 14-9 advantage in the final frame, holding off the Tigers for the win.

Dwight Ange led Williamston with 18 points, whild Ruffin had 14 and Bell had 13 to pace Plymouth.

Williamston's next game is with Scotland Neck on January 2.

Chargers Win . . .

gave the lead back to the Rams as he dumped one in to make it 48-47. Melvin Stewart, however, scored with 27 seconds left to put the Chargers ahead and a foul on the Rams as they were bringing the ball downcourt gave A-G another chance to add to their score. Garris missed and the rebound was pulled down by the Rams. Garris, mad about missing the free shot, stole the ball from Williamson and went in untouched for the score. That made it 51-48 with five seconds left and the Rams could not do anything.

Williamson paced his team with 14 points and Bryant added 10. Melvin Stewart was high for the game with 17, Jessie Brown had 12 and Milton Brown made 10.

The two teams will take a break for the holidays and will start back as school reopens in January.

Bear Grass Looking For Balanced Scoring

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer
(One of a series)

BEAR GRASS — At the outset of the season Bear Grass Basketball Coach Clayton Mobley told his team that to be effective this year, they would have to hold their opponents to less than 50 points. So far they have not been able to.

The Bears dropped their first pair of games then won two and things started to look better for them. Then they lost their next six in a row. They have not been run out of the gym, but have been beaten soundly.

One of the big problems Mobley feels in limiting his team is his two important men, Vann Rogerson and Nathaniel Armstrong, have not been scoring equally on any night. Says Mobley, "My best two haven't gotten together. They are capable of scoring 20 points any night but can't get together."

The defense is not what the coach had hoped for either. The Bears do not have exceptional height. At 6-2, Rogerson is one of the team's better rebounders. Hilton Armstrong also plays under the boards. "if they can get position they can jump," notes Mobley. The Bears outrebounded Pantego 43-42 and Pantego had almost two inches per man in height over Bear Grass.

Hilton Armstrong had been averaging 10 rebounds in the first three games but recently he has fallen off. Here, the coach blames this on Armstrong's being just a sophomore and his lack of experience. Mobley thinks that his team can hold their own against most teams on the boards unless they are too tall.

The two Bear Grass guards are Gary Shaw and Mark Gardner. Shaw is team leader and the ball handler. Mobley feels he has not been getting what he had hoped for out of his guards. "They haven't been giving us the points we need. They lead in turnovers and presses have increased them." The Bears' shooting percentage also "leaves a lot to be desired." They have been hitting close to 34 percent of their shots. The shotting from the free throw line has not been up to par either. Mobley feels that some of his chargers are poorer from the free throw stripe than the floor.

One factor in the Bears' success hinges on the ability of the two Armstrongs and Rick Harrison. "They will determine how the season comes off," said Mobley. "Rick has right much promise and I may start him before too long. He has the hustle and desire I like to see. If a boy can't give me 100 percent, I don't want him on the floor," Mobley pointed out.

Bear Grass is lacking in overall depth. Six layers are "fair" but the team needs height as well as a win, if only for morale. Their two seniors are Andrews and Nat Armstrong. They also have two more back from last year's crew and experience is at a premium. Mobley has already started looking ahead to next year.

Mobley thinks that his teams' lack of experience is causing them to play out of position. "One man not doing his job can wreck it and the other team will find the weak spot and work on it."

The Bears don't have exceptional speed either. "Speed can make up for losses in height but we are weak on both areas," noted Mobley.

As far as the conference is concerned, Mobley is looking to Jamesville to wind up as being the team to beat this season on. He also feels that Bear Grass can beat Jamesville on a good night.

But with the season almost half over, Bear Grass will have to bring it together if they want to make any thing out of this year.

Actor And Director Ossie Davis Likes Writing Role Best

MANY TALENTS — Ossie Davis, actor and writer, is the director of "Black Girl." It is his third film directing job.

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Ossie Davis is best-known as an actor but he prefers to think of himself as a writer — even though his latest effort was directing a movie.

"I always wanted to write plays," the multitalented Davis says with a laugh. "But when I was young a teacher suggested that if I really was serious about playwriting I ought to get in the theater and get experience in all departments, including acting.

"That was the beginning of my downfall as a writer. Acting came easy to me. I got jobs easily, and I used this as an excuse not to write."

The tall, graying, 50-year-old Davis has, however, written a number of things, among them some plays that have been produced as well as "quite a few that haven't been produced," collaborated on movie scripts, and also written a number of television scripts. His best-known produced play, perhaps, is "Purlie Victorious," which ran on Broadway some eight months with Davis playing the lead.

Davis, who has been seen in a number of films such as "The Cardinal" and "The Hill," recently completed a stint on the other side of the cameras — directing the film "Black Girl." The movie, about a young girl who wants to become a dancer, was Davis' third film directing job.

"Black Girl'" he says, "was an opportunity to deal realistically with a black family without sacrificing excellence or entertainment. Even a sermon to me has to be entertaining, if it's not I don't buy it. I don't care how noble it is.

"Directing," the deep-voiced Davis continues, "is not difficult, but it is different from acting. Directing is very fulfilling because it absorbs all of your creative energies.

"The feeling of being in control of all of the elements that make up a movie is very satisfying and it is a feeling that an actor does not get."

As for film and stage acting, Davis prefers the theater "because it offers actors two things that film does not. One is that on stage the actor is in charge of his performance unless you actually drag him off the stage. In film he is not. The other is that it takes a long time to get to know a character and do him justice. The theater gives you time to choose and to select, enabling you to grow in the part. This is very difficult to do in movies."

Davis says he currently is working on a "number of possibilities." One he says is a movie which would star his wife, actress Ruby Dee, and which he would direct.

Uses Hair Dye To Mark Cattle

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP) — Dr. Kenneth L. Macmillan, a scientist, has evolved a new method of marking cattle by adapting a women's beauty treatment.

Watching his wife tinting her hair, Dr. MacMillan decided to apply the same principle to chemical branding cattle at the breeding center where he works. Beauty parlor dyes were not entirely satisfactory, so he produced his own preparation of modified hair dye and peroxide bleach.

When the concoction is painted on cattle, it provides a semi-permanent branding.

Umbrella Hooks Loot In Bank

GLASGOW (AP) — A daring raider dressed as a "City gent" — a businessman in the financial district — hooked a money bag containing $720 from behind a bank counter using his rolled umbrella. Three accomplices chatted with the teller while the raid was carried out. The gang strolled out of the building before the theft was discovered.

New Generation Meets Earl Scruggs

By ALAN WILSON
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — More than a quarter century ago, Earl Scruggs began doing things with a banjo that astonished the world of country-bluegrass music.

In 1972, he's still doing the same. Only this time, his dazzling impact no longer is confined solely to country musicdom.

It's turning on an entire generation of young people who, through sophistication or sheer inevitability, realize that the fingers on Scruggs' right hand can perform musical miracles.

But the surge hasn't come without a rebel-like attitude by Scruggs himself, who in his younger days cracked a musical barrier with his renowned three-finger picking style.

About three years ago, Scruggs broke off ties with traditional hillbilly music and formed the Earl Scruggs Revue. His decision spelled death for the famous team of Scruggs and Lester Flatt.

More than anything else, perhaps, Scruggs realized he had a lot to offer to non-country people as well. At the same time, he also was aware that the song of the young provided an endless musical playground for him. Importantly, it was one which he respected highly.

A look at his album "I Saw The Light, With a Little Help From My Friends" tells much of the Scruggs story. On it is the talent of Arlo Guthrie, Linda Rondstadt, The Nitty Gritty Dirt Band, Tracy Nelson and the Earl Scruggs Revue.

Today, at least three members of the Revue are being hailed by critics as the greatest with their instruments. There's Scruggs on banjo, Vassar Clements on the fiddle and Randy Scruggs on the flattop guitar. The other members have few musical peers: Gary Scruggs on vocals, electric guitar and harmonica; Stevie Scruggs, 14, on rhythm guitar; Josh Graves on dobro; and young Jody Maphis on drums.

Together, their talent spans everything from downhome country music to contemporary-folk to rock. The flexibility of the group's style is unequaled at present, yet it always maintains a basic link with country-folk.

During an interview at Scruggs' suburban Nashville home, Earl, 49, recalled a jam session in 1960 with King Curtis:

"That session really turned me on to playing different types of music. It was really the turning point with my music."

It wasn't until 1967, however, that Scruggs change in attitude left the dormant stage. At the suggestion of Columbia Records, Scruggs got together with Bob Dylan, the cryptic folk songwriter.

The suggestion was like a springboard to versatility for Scuggs. No longer was he just country music, now he was blending his bag with the styles of Dylan, The Beatles, The Byrds, Joan Baez and others.

Scruggs, an impeccably modest and quiet man, chatted about the days when he believed he was confining his talents.

"I'd repeated myself over and over so many times," he said. "It grew pretty stale to say the least." He's been picking a banjo since age 4.

"That's why I like working with the boys. They know a wide variety of music," he said of his three sons.

Randy, 19, said, "After they (Scruggs and Flatt) split up, we began furthering the type of music that Gary and me were playing and that daddy was getting into." At that point in their lives, Randy and Gary, 23, were into folk-rock music.

"At least we were headed in that direction," said Gary, who sought to explain the group's broad appeal like this:

"It's because we play things we like. We don't compromise. If the situation calls for rock and roll, we play it. If it's blues, we play it too."

The decision to change his music mode, said Scruggs, was difficult. "I wanted to further the span of the banjo and get it out of the rural bag and into different types of music."

"As long as I've been playing the banjo, I've wanted more people to play it all the time. At the same time, I wanted to learn more myself," said Scruggs.

"I just do what I feel," he said. "I always know when you make a change, you're going to get some feedback from people."

If the Revue has gotten any feedback, it isn't noticeable. Their audiences have been highly receptive and of mixed generations, whether it be on college campuses or review clubs.

They went over so big at a concert last March at Kansas State University that the school has invited them back on Jan. 19-20 for a billing entitled, "Earl Scruggs, His Family and Friends." Performing with the Revue, will be Baez, The Byrds and Doc Watson, among others.

JFK's Friends Write A Book

By TERRY RYAN
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — John Kennedy barking vocal exercises in the bathtub, seeking companionship on lonely evenings in the White House, pausing to write a note of encouragement to the mother of a badly burned child on the day his infant son died — these are the images of the late president in a new book written by two close friends.

David F. Powers and Kenneth P. O'Donnell, beer-drinking political buddies of long standing and White House confidants of John F. Kennedy, spent eight months after his assassination recording on tape their memories of Kennedy.

Those tapes are now a book, "Johnny, We Hardly Knew Ye," an affectionate, personal remembrance produced with the help of writer Joe McCarthy.

O'Donnell reports one conversation, occasioned by the doubts he voiced concerning Kennedy's choice of Lyndon B. Johnson as his running mate in 1960.

"He said something to me that I am always going to remember: 'Get one thing clear, Kenny, I'm 43 years old, and I'm the healthiest candidate for president in the country, and I'm not going to die in office."

During the 1960 presidential campaign, the authors report, Kennedy did vocal exercises to preserve his voice. One of those exercises called for him to bark like a dog for 30 minutes every morning. Kennedy took to doing this in the bathtub.

"The first time that we heard the strange animal sounds coming from the bathroom, Dave (Powers) opened the door to see what was happening. Kennedy looked at him from the tub, embarrassed. 'I heard a funny noise,' Dave said, 'and I thought there was a seal in the tub.' For the next few weeks we had to make up excuses when an early morning visitor at our hotel room asked what was going on in the bathroom."

What the authors add to the already considerable Kennedy literature is a personal view only close pals could have. He cursed occasionally, liked sports, was entranced by celebrities, and remembered others even at moments of personal travail.

When Patrick Bouvier Kennedy was born prematurely in August 1963, Kennedy stayed at the Boston hospital where the baby was taken.

Awakened early one morning because the baby's condition was worse, Kennedy, while waiting for an elevator, saw a child who had been severely burned. He asked the mother's name, Powers said, then wrote a note of sympathy and encouragement to her.

Two hours later, the Kennedy baby died. Powers was with the president. "He went upstairs to the room where he had been sleeping, sat on the bed and wept."

Powers, now 60 and administrative officer of the Kennedy Memorial Library, met Kennedy when Kennedy first ran for public office in a 1946 congressional contest. Although he never held an official title, Powers was a man Kennedy liked to have near him. He swam with Kennedy almost daily in the White House pool and stayed with the president on evenings when Jacqueline Kennedy was away from the White House.

"Dave was accustomed to being summoned for night duty at the White House when Jackie was absent," the book relates. "He called himself 'John's other wife.' The president hated to be alone in the evening.

New Court Of Appeals Proposed

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Supreme court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg says he is opposed to the creation of a new National Court of Appeals and has "grave doubts about its constitutionality."

The proposal came Tuesday from a panel of law experts. "The court is now at the saturation point, if not actually overwhelmed," said the chairman, Prof. Paul Freund of Harvard.

As a result, the committee recommended that Congress set up the new court to screen virtually all of the appeals that now go to the Supreme Court—more than 3,500 a year.

Goldberg, who sat on the court from 1962 to 1965, said in an Associated Press interview that he disagrees with the idea.

"The Constitution of the United States says there shall be a Supreme Court," he said. "It does not contemplate in my opinion that there should be a Supreme Court and a subordinate Supreme Court."

The former justice said his second reason for opposing the proposal is that the court "has adequate means within the existing law to screen out frivolous cases." He went on:

"While the number seems very great to the layman, the court is well-schooled in dealing with such a problem."

Goldberg said he read every petition filed in the court during his years there. "I made my own decisions, not my clerks," he added. "I did not find it burdensome."

In its report, the committee said: "It is satisfying to believe that the most untutored and poorest prisoner can have his complaints or petitions considered by a federal judge, and ultimately by the Supreme Court of the United States."

However, it added, "We are, in truth, fostering an illusion. What the prisoner really has access to is the necessarily fleeting attention of a judge or a law clerk."

More than 3,650 cases reached the court last year. Under the committee plan, all except the half-dozen or so that are strictly disputes between two states would go instead to the new National Court of Appeals, to be set up by Congress.

Most would be rejected. Some, particularly cases involving conflicting decisions by the federal appeals courts, would be decided by the new court and its rulings would be final. The appeals considered to be most important, some 400 to 450 a year, would be sent up to the Supreme Court for decision.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, particularly, has suggested that the court is overloaded and steps should be taken to ease its burdens.

Justice William O. Douglas, on the other hand, has said the court actually is underworked—that while the number of cases filed has gone up the number of cases accepted for decision by written opinion has not increased.

The new court would have seven members, drawn by rotation for staggered three-year terms from the 11 federal appeals courts.

Another Newsman Runs Into Demands By Judge

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chief of the Los Angeles Times Washington bureau, jailed briefly for refusing to surrender tapes he said were confidential, goes before a federal appeals court today in a test of First Amendment freedoms.

The Times' John F. Lawrence was held in contempt of court Tuesday by U.S. Dist. Judge John J. Sirica who ordered the newsman jailed "until he purges himself of contempt" by turning over the subpoenaed tapes.

Lawrence was held for about two hours until the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ordered him released pending today's hearing.

In Los Angeles, Times publisher Otis Chandler told newsmen his paper would press the appeal on constitutional issues he said are "of utmost importance to the future of our profession."

The material Lawrence acknowledged possessing but refused to turn over to the court is a tape recording of two Times reporters' interviews with Alfred C. Baldwin III, a key figure in the allged bugging of Democratic National Committee headquarters earlier this year.

The defense wants to compare Baldwin's interviews with what he says in the trial of seven men charged with the June 17 break-in and alleged bugging of the DNC offices at the Watergate apartment-hotel complex here. One of the defendants was at the time chief security officer for the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

On Oct. 5, the Times published a first-person account by Baldwin, as told to reporters Jack Nelson and Ronald J. Ostrow, detailing how he monitored telephone conversations at Democratic headquarters from a motel across the street and later delivered information to Nixon campaign headquarters.

Nelson and Ostrow agreed to keep secret certain material from the interviews as a condition for Baldwin granting the interview, the reporters said. The Times contends the confidential information is protected by the First Amendment's guarantee of press freedom.

Lame Ducks Facing Transition

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some congressional veterans deposed by their constituents in the 1972 elections are finding it difficult to make the transition from public to private life.

The election defeats caught many with their plans down. Some will go back home to practice law or just take it easy. Others will stay around Washington as consultants, lobbyists or perhaps employes of some other branch of government.

That's especially true of those who served several terms and still have considerable influence in Congress and the government in general.

None of the lame duck legislators is likely to go hungry. Some are eligible for the maximum pension of about $34,000 a year, based on length of service including up to five years of military duty.

The oldest of the lame-ducks, both in age and seniority, is Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., who at 84, was defeated in his party primary by 30-year-old Elizabeth Holtzman. He is chairman of the House Judiciary Committee and has been in the House 50 years. He plans to open a Washington branch of his New York law firm.

Another old-timer, George P. Miller, D-Calif., isn't certain what he will do when his term ends next month. The 81-year-old veteran of 27 years of service lost his bid for renomination. He is chairman of the House Science and Astronautics Committee.

Miller said he has received several offers to serve as a consultant but hasn't decided whether to accept them because "I'm not a damned bit interested in a 9 to 5 job."

Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, is 75 years old and served as a representative and senator for 32 years until her defeat. If she has any plans for the future, she has kept them to herself.

Wayne N. Aspinall, 76-year-old Colorado Democrat defeated in a primary election after 24 years of service, plans to stay around Washington until spring.

He is chairman of the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee and may do part-time work as a consultant.

"I am going to get in some fishing and do some of the things I haven't had time to do," he said. "I'm going to build a home on the Colorado River in my home town of Palisade."

Rep. Fred Schwengel, 65, R-Iowa, has past experience in making the transition to another job. He served 10 years in the House before being defeated in 1964. He made a comeback two years later and was defeated again this year. Schwengel, an American history buff, will forego another comeback try to instead become executive head of the U.S. Capitol Historical Society.

Runaways Injured InWreck

MARION, N. C. (AP)—Two 15-year-olds, identified as runaways from the Juvenile Evaluation Center at Swannanoa, were injured Tuesday when their car wrecked as they tried to outrun a pursuing highway patrolman.

Trooper J. M. Waldrop said the youngsters were driving a stolen car. He said the car turned up speeds in excess of 100 miles per hour along Interstate 40. He said the chase covered about 10 miles.

The two boys were taken to an Asheville hospital, Waldrop said.

Egg Production Seeing Cutback

WASHINGTON (AP) — Egg production last month was down six per cent from November 1971, reflecting a similar cutback in laying hens, says the Agriculture Department.

Production was nearly 5.6 billion eggs in November, and laying hens averaged 306.8 million during the month, the Crop Reporting Board said.

WOMEN WILL PATROL RAILS

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The South African Railway has decided to hire women as railroad police for the first time.

Fines Ordered For Dairy Distributors

RALEIGH (AP) — Several North Carolina dairy distributors must pay fines before Feb. 15 or face suspension of their licenses on charges of violating fair trade regulations.

The North Carolina Milk Commission voted Tuesday to suspend the licenses but said it would accept payment of fines in lieu of suspension.

The biggest fine, $5,000, was placed on Sealtest Foods, Asheville, for refusal to make records available and granting unauthorized or excessive rebates to retailers.

Other firms, the charges and the amount of fines were:

Sealtest Foods, Charlotte, unauthorized rebates, $3,000; Sealtest Foods, Charlotte, and Cleveland Dairy Products, Shelby, selling milk at prices not on file, $100; Arcadia Dairy, Arden, price filing infraction, $100; Sealtest Foods, Wilson and Winston-Salem, unauthorized rebates, $3,000 each; and Carolina Dairy, Shelby, unauthorized rebates, $1,000.

The commission held a hearing but announced no decisions on allegations that Pet Inc. at Charlotte and Waynesville, and Maola Milk & Icre Cream, New Bern, had granted unauthorized rebates.

In other action, the commission voted that producers of North Carolina-bottled milk sold in South Carolina must be paid $7.74½ a hundred pounds, up from $7.60½, because of a recent increase in the price of Class I milk in South Carolina. This is in accordance with a court-imposed formulam

Producers of North Carolina milk going into the Middle Atlantic federal market order areas must be paid $8.03 a hundred, up from $7.95. The increases go into effect Jan. 1.

Found Stabbed In The Throat

The search for his assailant continues.

Spring Hope is 20 miles west of Rocky Mount.

Thievery No. 1 Campus Crime

By TERRY RYAN
Associated Press Writer

Campus police say thievery has surplanted student militancy as the No. 1 security problem at colleges and universities across the country.

"They steal everything, even if it is nailed down," said Roberta Doran, detective sergeant at the University of California at Los Angeles. "They take bulletin boards off the walls. They take office equipment that is chained or bolted down."

In a recent survey by the Burns Security Institute, 58 campus police chiefs said they were more concerned with combating thievery than demonstrations and bomb threats.

A sampling of campus police chiefs by The Associated Press indicated disagreement on whether students or outsiders were responsible for the upsurge in stealing and on how much campus drug use contributes to the problem. Open campuses, coed dormitories and the tendency of students not to lock their dormitory doors were cited as major causes of the thievery.

There are no national statistics on the increase in campus thefts, but reports from around the country indicated the extent of the problem:

—Incidents of larceny have increased from 134 in 1969 to 239 so far this year at Tufts University in Medford, Mass.

—Bicycle thefts at Florida State University in Tallahassee went from 361 in 1968 to 907 last year.

—Personal property worth $103,600 was reported stolen in the first 11 months of last year at the University of Michigan. During the same period this year, thefts totaling $150,121 were reported.

College officials have responded to the plundering in a variety of ways. Locks were put on the doors of the residence houses in the Harvard Yard this year. Campus police now patrol inside the dormitories at Indiana University. Ultrasonic alarms have been installed in the academic buildings at Stanford University.

Wallets and watches are the ever-popular standbys of the campus thief, but stereos and cameras are increasingly popular targets in dormitory rooms. Typewriters and adding machines are stolen from administrative and classroom buildings. The snatching of expensive 10-speed bicycles has reached epidemic proportion at some schools.

One item seems immune from theft. Textbooks.

"I don't know when I last heard of someone loosing a book," said Earnest Quinton, chief of security at San Jose State College.

Most campus police officials blamed outsiders for the rocketing theft rates first noted in 1970. A few, however, said students have always stolen from each other and are just doing more of it now.

Some security officers said drug users who steal to support their habits are responsible for the increase in stealing. Others, arguing on the basis of arrests they have made, said drugs played little part in pilfering on their campuses.

Dormitory students have borne the brunt of the increase in stealing.

The free access granted everyone on the open campuses and in the coed dormitories of today was cited by many campus security chiefs as a significant factor in the upsurge of thefts.

"When you have doors open around the clock, when you have men and women living in the same dorm, it is no longer easy to tell who belongs in there," said Marvin Herrington, director of public safety at Stanford University. "It is a simple thing for an outsider to go through them now."

Underlying all explanations for the increase in stealing, according to many campus officials, is the persistent notion that the campus is an ivory-towered fortress isolated from the world at large.

"It is naive, but there are many students who feel the campus does provide a sanctuary," said L.B. Kankowski, deputy director of public safety at the College Park campus of the University of Maryland. "The students have a tendency to trust everyone. As a result they get taken."

To Reinforce City's Cable Facilities

Beginning in March of 1973, construction forces of Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company will begin reinforcing aerial and underground cable facilities along West Fifth Street and the Old Statonsburg Road to Bell Arthur in the western section of Greenville.

The new facilities are being placed to provide additional service to existing subscribers and new service to future applicants in this area. The work should be completed in August of 1973.

The need for these additional facilities has been caused by the recent rapid growth in the western part of Greenville and also the plans for a new 350 bed county hospital.

These new facilities should provide adequate service for this section of Greenville for at least ten years.

Don A. Collier, local manager for Carolina Telephone, said that the company will spend approximately $206,408 on this undertaking.

Cold Snap Sees Surge Of Fires In The County

A flare up in the number of fires in the county has occurred during the recent cold snap, according to Pitt County Fire Marshall Bobby Joyner.

Reporting on the rash of fires, particularly grass and house fires in the past three days, Joyner has called on county citizens to be aware of the dangers of defective heating equipment and dry grass.

"Parents need to be careful during the holiday season about childen playing with sparklers and fire-crackers," he commented. "Actually, they are illegal."

Fires for the three day period reported by Joyner are:

Saturday, December 16

—11:34 a.m., Farmville Fire Department. A tree fire behind the Highland Trailer Park, with no damage except to the tree.

TV Network News Faces More Ulcers

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A bill the Nixon Administration has drafted is causing new ulcers along Broadcast Row here because it directly involves the three networks' 589 affiliated television stations.

It could markedly affect whether those affiliates carry network news and entertainment programs when the subject matter is controversial.

It would require all stations at license renewal time to show they offered "reasonable, realistic and practical opportunities for the presentation and discussion of conflicting views on controversial issues."

And it would make individual stations specifically responsible for the balance and taste of a network program they aired. They couldn't offer a defense simply by saying they referred all complaints to the network's headquarters.

"God, is that going to cause a wave," said one stunned network executive who asked that he not be identified.

The ABC, CBS and NBC networks each own and operate five television stations in major U.S. cities. NBC also has 218 affiliated TV stations, CBS 196 and ABC 175, according to network spokesmen.

All must have their broadcast licenses renewed every three years by the Federal Communications Commission, although the proposed administration bill would extend this period to five years.

The measure was outlined in a speech Monday by Clay T. Whitehead, director of the White House Office of Telecommunications Policy. He said it wasn't a vindictive assault on the networks.

But Sig Mickelson, who headed CBS News for seven years, said the draft bill was dangerous in that it appeared to use affiliate stations "as a club to hold over the heads of the networks.

"And secondly, of course, it seems to be taking the first long step towards direct control of the news," said Mickelson, now a journalism professor at Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill.

Mickelson, head of CBS News from 1954 through 1961, currently is heading a 12-month private study of the relation of the media and the government.

He was asked what effect he felt the proposed legislation would have on network news coverage.

"I think it would have, to use that famous phrase, a 'chilling effect' on news," he said. "It would force such careful consideration of the news that I think it would force news personnel to be excessively conservative.

"In covering the news, you have to take a gamble once in a while. You can't play everything safe. And I think they (network news divisions) would have to play almost everything safe."

What effect would the measure have on investigative reporting?

"I'm afraid it would make it almost impossible to do investigative reporting," Mickelson said. "Because you can't do investigative reporting without getting into controversy."

Art Challenges Wall Graffitti

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (AP) — High school art students are cooperating with the New Zealand Railways Department in an experiment to clean up graffitti covered walls.

Students at Porirua, near here, painted attractive pictures and designs over smutty pictures and poetry in a pedestrian subway.

Rail commuters have praised the school art designs.

The department says it will examine the walls after two months to see if the graffiti artists have been discouraged.

Has 'Detector' For Two-Timing

LONDON (AP) — Housewife Sylvia Simnett reckons suspicious wives ought to know the truth about two-timing husbands. She has invented a "truth detector," a plastic pendulum which swings towards the area where the husband is.

"If he says he's working late and the pendulum swings towards the other side of town, you know he's two-timing," claims Sylvia, 51, who plans to market the device at $6.70.

The Worry Clinic

Deception Can Be Very Costly

Mrs. Crane and hundreds of other bargain hunters blamed this fiasco on the braintrueter son of the man who had built up this large department store. He affronted his favored charge account customers! And thus ruined his next day's big sale!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M.D.

CASE V-573: Cora Crane is my wife.

Recently she recieved a letter from a department store, saying she could join other favored charge account customers and come a day early to its "closing out" sale.

Being a typical bargain hunter, she marked the date on the calendar.

She was to bring this letter with her as her admission ticket.

Eagerly she bade me goodbye that morning.

"I ought to be able to find some special bargains," she added, "for this big store is going out of business."

"So it will doubtless cut its prices way down."

She was gone till late afternoon.

Then she wearily entered the front door, with merely a small shopping bag in her hand.

"Where are all your bargains?" I asked, in disbelief.

"There weren't any," she replied.

"The son of the former owner had taken over this store and he doesn't know the usual modern sales etiquette.

"For he had attracted a mommoth crowd of women, but they all were grumbling at his having deceived us with the idea he was really cutting prices to the bone.

"When I had joined a line waiting to get inside the store, some women came out, angrily protesting being tricked.

"They said, 'Reducing the price of $35 dresses by just ONE dollar certainly is no bargain!'

"I had hoped to find some overalls for Nathaniel and John to wear at the farm (they are just walking).

"But there was none to fit them.

"And those they had were reduced by only 50 cents and that is no bargain price!"

Newspaper Ads

You readers know that American women are usually well informed on prices of competitive merchandise.

For they follow the newspaper advertisements.

And smart wives also shop around among various stores to seek special bargains.

They realize that stores may tempt them to enter, by offering an unusually reduced price on a well known brand.

Thus, they may even sell it at cost, as a "leader" to bring in the customers.

For such a store figures that women will then load up on other merchandise at standard prices.

This, it charges off its lack of profit on that "leader" as a form of advertising.

But shrewd housewives travel around from one store to another, taking advantage of those lowpriced "leaders."

Be grateful to your newspaper for thus conducting a daily "business seminar" for millions of alert women nowadays.

You wives make far more than the entire year's subscription price of this newspaper just by the bargains you will find advertised here in!

So be doubly grateful to out "free enterprise" system that permits competitive advertising, which it taboo in England and Russia!

For British Socialism and Russian Communism stifle competition!

Send for my booklet "The New Psychology of Advertising and Selling," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

New Antihijack Device Tested

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Delta Air Lines has begun testing a new electronic antihijack weapon.

The device is designed to detect weapons and explosives and went into operation temporarily at the airline's terminal at New York's Kennedy Airport on Monday.

The 3,000-pound X-ray and fluroscope instrument will be used to inspect hand luggage without opening it. It will not replace metal detectors now in use, but will be used in conjunction with them.

Moose Look To Holidays

The Greenville Moose briefly went over their holiday plans at their regular Monday night meeting.

Lodge Governor James Harris reminded there would be no meetings on the nights of Dec. 23 and Jan. 1.

On Wednesday, members will deliver poinsettias to widows of Moose who have died during the past year.

A free Christmas dance is being held for the members on December 23, and the dining room will be open from 6:00 to 10:00 p.m.

The customary Sunday buffet (Dec. 24) is being cancelled to allow preparation for the Santa party for children of the Moose at 6:30 p.m.

Secretary Edwin M. Baldree reminded only a limited number of tickets would be sold for the Moose New Years Eve Dance and advised members to obtain them early. Music will be by the Four Keys. Favors and breakfast for two are included in the night's program.

Opening lead: King of ♠ Adverse distribution in a side suit cost South his slam contract in hearts today, when he discovered the bad news too late.

South's simple raise of North's two diamond response was, admittedly, somewhat of an underbid, but he did not want to go beyond the three no trump level until matters were clarified. When his partner showed support for hearts, South cue bid the ace of spades and when North reciprocated in clubs, the opening bidder proceeded without further ado to six hearts.

West opened the king of spades and South won the trick with the ace. Trumps were drawn with three pulls and then declarer cashed the three top clubs in order to discard his spade loser.

Now South was ready to play the diamond suit. He led a small diamond from dummy and put up the ace. This was a safety play to protect against a singleton king in the West hand. If the diamonds are divided three-two, declarer's contract is safe, for he can afford to give up one trick in the suit. When West showed out—discarding a club—South could not avoid the loss of two diamonds, and he conceded defeat.

Altho we have no criticism to make of declarer's handling of the diamonds, his timing on the deal was faulty. If he had tested the suit earlier, he would have learned of the adverse distribution in time to take measures to overcome the unkind fate.

After trumps are drawn, it is suggested that declarer cash the ace of diamonds before he plays the clubs. If only small diamonds appear, he may cash the high clubs to discard his spade loser, and then turn his attention back to diamonds.

When West shows out on the ace of diamonds, however, it becomes apparent that one discard in clubs will not be sufficient. In order to salvage the contract, South requires two sluffs. His best chance is to cash the queen of clubs, and on the next round, finesse North's ten. When this play succeeds, declarer can dispose of two losers on dummy's ace and king. He concedes one trick to the opposition and claims his slam.

Early Bird Club Is Repudiated

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The Cleveland-based "Early Birds for Agnew" are apparently a little too early for Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

His office has repudiated as unsanctioned the group's fundraising efforts toward an Agnew presidential candidacy in 1976.

Sleep Measured With Polygraph

By LEE LINDER
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — An insomnia researcher is using a lie detector to tell how much sleep a person really needs. And if the polygraph readings are correct, people are being shortchanged in rest.

"Eight hours, more or less, has been universally accepted as the normal sleep pattern for an adult," reports Dr. Eugene Aserinsky, professor of physiology at Jefferson Medical College.

"But our studies indicate eight hours may be short, and that 10 hours might be more satisfying — and maybe even more healthful."

Aserinsky, who says he's been sleep testing since 1951, believes the research now under way may uncover a b'dy chemical that provokes wakefulness.

"If this is true, and if the chemical can be isolated, it is possible that we might be able to shorten or lengthen sleep when necessary, he said.

"Abnormally, such a chemical would produce long wakefulness which is insomnia. It is not simply a matter of hunger or a full bladder which terminates sleep."

In his experiments, volunteer subjects, most of them medical students, enter Aserinsky's sleep lab for 56 straight hours of in-bed isolation.

They are hooked by tiny electrodes to a polygraph which checks rapid eye movements, or REM, a measure of sleep Aserinsky says he discovered two decades ago.

"When the REM frequency reaches a peak, sleep has reached the saturation level," Aserinsky explains. "The time required to reach that point spells the maximum number of hours a person needs each night without disturbing his next night's sleep."

The Jefferson physiologist says no matter how hard one tries, the supersaturation point of sleep in one 24-hour day without drugs is 16 hours, or just what a newborn infant gets.

He says he thinks the research could be useful in determining that the physiological need for waking is as urgent as the need for sleep — that insomnia may not really be so bad.

Berrigan Is Being Freed

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — Hundreds of friends and supporters of the Rev. Philip Berrigan plan to greet the antiwar priest today when he leaves the Federal Correctional Institution here on parole.

The gray-haired, 49-year-old Josephite Priest has served some three years of a six-year sentence for destroying draft records at Catonsville, Md., in 1968.

He was also serving concurrent sentences for a raid on draft records at Baltimore and for smuggling letters in and out of the federal prison at Lewisburg, Pa., while confined there.

Berrigan, who spent part of his three years in prison with his Jesuit brother, the Rev. Daniel Berrigan, 51, was granted parole Nov. 29. His term was to expire Feb. 25, 1974.

Daniel Berrigan, who was sentenced to three years in prison for his part in the draft office raid at Catonsville, was released from the correctional facility here last Feb. 24. He had been in failing health with ulcers and a hernia.

Kept In Jail By Police Mistake

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Two and a half months ago, the case charging Paul Garrett with stealing a pack of cigarettes was dismissed. Tuesday, he was released from Metropolitan jail.

Police officials said fouled up paper work wrongly indicated Garrett as out on bond at the time of the dismissal. So Garrett was not told he was free to go.

Turks Uncover And Light Two Underground Cities

By EMEL ANIL

KAYMAKLI, Turkey (AP) — The Turkish Tourism Ministry has uncovered and partially lighted and charted two large underground cities built here more than 1,000 years ago by Christians fearing fierce Moslem invaders.

One lies under this drab village and another six miles away, under the village of Derinkuyu.

Both cities have eight underground layers and are estimated to have been unable to house 10,000 persons each.

The cities had their own water supplies, elaborate ventilation systems, churches and food storage facilities to withstand long sieges by Arab and Persian marauders who swept through this area — called Cappadocia — in the 6th and 7th centuries.

This area, near the city of Nevsehir, is better known to tourists as the location of churches and monasteries carved above ground in cone-like formations of eroded volcanic tuff.

Habib Cetin, director of the museum in Nevsehir, said absence of hills in this section of the Anatolian steppes made castles unfeasible. The local defense solution was excavation of subterranean cities.

He said other villages in the vicinity are believed to be sitting on similar underground hideouts.

Huts of present-day Turkish villagers stand on top of the underground cities. The peasants have opened private corridors to the tunnels and rooms which they use for storage or as animal shelters.

"The underground city is an ideal storage place because it remains at the same cool temperature all year around," said Necati Dolgun, keeper of the underground city at Derinkuyu.

One of the larger rooms in the Kaymakli city has been converted into a discotheque. Gay peasant rugs and pillows cover the stone floors. Tourists sit at low wooden coffee tables. Green, yellow and red lightbulbs shaded by straw lanterns illuminate the main room and small private cubicles which probably were burial vaults.

Only beer and soft drinks are served and it closes at 6 p.m. Tourism officials say it would be dangerous to allow hard liquor because intoxicated guests could wander off and get lost in the maze of tunnels. Officials also cited the problem of handling disturbances since the city was designed to keep security forces out.

Tourists are warned not to deviate from the official lighted course while touring the city and are advised to remain with experienced guides. It can be a problem to get back to daylight from the intricate pattern of passages, staircases, sloping corridors and intertwined rooms.

Both cities have chapels. Derinkuyu's is seven stories down and is shaped like a cross. Kaymakli's is four floors underground.

There is a kitchen at Kaymakli with a huge pit in the middle used for cooking. At one corner stands a big round stone with egg-size indentations on it, an instrument for grinding food. All around the kitchen are jar-shaped holes dug into the ground and lined with a glaze to store wine and other foods.

Different levels of the cities are connected by narrow corridors which can be closed off by huge wheel-shaped stones stored in alcoves off the corridors.

Ventilation shafts 150 meters tall rise like chimneys through all layers of the two cities with openings at every floor. At the bottom of the shafts was a well.

The cities were built and enlarged by generations over three or four centuries.

The lack of any wall painting or carved figures in the interior, except for a rough cross in Kaymakli's chapel, leads archeologists to speculate that the residents may have been iconoclasts hiding from rival Byzantine Christian groups, who advocated use of icon worship.

There is believed to be a 9-kilometer long underground tunnel connecting the two cities. People have tried crawling from both directions but have failed to prove the connection because the tunnel is caved in at some spots, local officials said.

Chimp Throws Circus Switch

LONDON (AP) — Minutes before a circus show was due to be staged at a concert hall, all the lights in the auditorium went out. Frantic electricians located the fault.

A chimpanzee had thrown the master switch.

Inventor Makes Pilot Calculator

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP) — Airline technician William H. Dunn has invented a calculator to replace the performance manual used by commercial airline jet pilots. The calculator weighs only 4¾ ounces compared with the manual's 6 pounds 7 ounces.

The device is being tested in the United States for DC-10s and Dunn intends adapting it for new model DC-10s ordered by Air New Zealand, for which he works.

Dunn says the invention will enable pilots to discard flight deck manuals and read the required information off a simple circular slide rule.

Cheyenne, Wyo., reports more hailstorms over a 40-year period than any other weather station in the country.

Retiring Last Of Its Vampires

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (AP) — The Royal New Zealand Air Force is retiring the last of its 21-year-old Vampire jet fighters.

The Vampires made up the country's first jet squadron in 1951 and were the mainstay of the Air Force strike force until Canberra light bombers were introduced in 1959.

Vampires remained in an operations role until the Air Force acquired Skyhawks in 1970. They will be completely phased out on arrival of new Strikemaster jet training aircraft.
