Pitt's Tax Value Raised By $78 Million

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
Pitt County tax officials, reporting on revaluation of property in the county in progress over the past months, told County Commissioners this morning that the increase in property values totals some $78 million dollars.

property, car and inventory values remain about the same," Harding Sugg said, "the increase represents a 32.62 per cent increase in real and personal property over last year."

and personal property value to about $318 million in the county as compared with a total of $240 million last year. Board chairman B. Alton Gardner, commenting on the revaluation report said taxes to be paid by property owners "will not necessarily be increased," adding that "in fact, in view of the increased valuation, the rate to determine the taxes to be paid will be adjusted in accordance with the new valuation."

in the county is required by state law each eight years. Commissioners employed Associated Surveys Inc. of Greensboro, in March of 1971 to handle the reappraisal of property.

property in the county. They are also required to be in a position to defend their valuation through the courts. Among other things, property values are based on what similar property has sold for in the county, location, zoning, and past and probably future income. The low bidder for the revaluation work, Associated

Surveys, in being paid $175,000. Although the revaluation, has increased the valuation of taxable property in the county, the tax rate is the governing factor in how much taxes an individual will pay. With the substantial increase in property values, it is likely that the tax rate to be set by commissioners in July will be reduced. The current tax rate in $1.52 per $100 valuation. However, in a notice to property owners giving the new value for their property, Tax Supervisor R.S. Moye warns, "you cannot figure your 1973 taxes by using the 1972 tax rate. The rate for 1973," Moye emphasizes, "will not be set until July."

Real Peace Difficulties Remain, Says Pompidou

PARIS (AP) — U.S. and North Vietnamese technical experts sat down together today for the first time since Dec. 23 to work out details of an eventual Vietnamese cease-fire. The technical meetings had been suspended because of North Vietnamese protests over American bombing of the North. Their resumption marked the first step in resuming the suspended full-scale secret negotiations, due to begin again next Monday after a three-week hiatus. The technical meetings are an offshoot of the top-level peace negotiations led by Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho, a member of the Hanoi Politburo. President Georges Pompidou said "real precise difficulties, hard to overcome" remain to be faced in the negotiations. But the French president added that he hoped this time the talks will succeed. Speaking to representatives of journalists' associations greeting him for the new year, Pompidou said: "The simple fact that negotiations resume is very important." Asked about France's role in the resumption of talks, the president said there had been an exchange of letters between President Nixon and himself "in addition to the usual contact with both sides." He did not divulge the contents of the letters. Pompidou said he did not believe the United States will negotiate "at any price" and added that he did not think the bombing of North Vietnam "incited the North Vietnamese to much gratitude or concessions." In a move to bolster his position in the new round of talks, President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam is sending a pair of envoys to several world capitals, including Paris and Washington.

Will Reconsider State Standards
ROSE HILL, N.C. (AP) — the objection of Herring and several other members. But State Treasurer Edwin Gill, who was unable to attend, asked that the matter be reconsidered and it was put on Thursday's agenda. Herring suggested Monday that a compromise solution might be worked out allowing local boards to get their own teacher qualification standards. The dispute surrounds the National Teachers Examinations, an objective test which all teachers in the state must take—and before now had to pass—before getting their certificate. The board had made that decision on December 7th, over

Air Operations Over N. Vietnam Resume

SAIGON AP — American warplanes resumed attacks on North Vietnam's southern panhandle below the 20th parallel today after a 36-hour halt for New Year's, the U. S. Command announced. The bombing halt above the 20th parallel, which includes Hanoi and Haiphong, remained in effect. It was ordered by President Nixon on Saturday in preparation for the resumption of secret peace negotiations in Paris next Monday. A communique said air operations over North Vietnam resumed at 1 p.m. It gave no details, but U. S. officials said the bombers were attacking supply routes below the 20th parallel to slow the annual dry-season push of war material across the demilitarized zone and through Laos into South Vietnam. The U. S. Command also reported that bombing operations were resumed in South Vietnam at dusk Monday after a 24-hour holiday halt. The pattern was the same during the Christmas ceasefire, and again there was no explanation why the halt in North Vietnam lasted 12 hours longer. The Command said that, from dusk Monday until dawn today,

U. S. planes made 44 strikes in South Vietnam, but two of them in the northern quarter of the country below the DMZ. During the bombing cessation in South and North Vietnam, U. S. air attacks shifted to the Ho Chi Minh Trail in eastern Laos, Hanoi's main supply lines and base camps in Cambodia, the Command said.

Eure Is Back In Capitol

RALEIGH (AP) — Much like a proud warrior, returning to his homeland, Secretary of State Thad Eure occupied his office in the state Capitol today for the first time in 11 months. Eure ignored still-fresh paint, ladders and dust that had accumulated while workmen renovated the Capitol. He observed the occasion by proclaiming: "Having been the last to leave, I am the first to return."

Eure, along with Gov. Bob Scott, moved his offices to the state Administration Building last January to clear the way for work on the Capitol. The copper dome of the Capitol was replaced along with other improvements to the building, but plans to restore the Capitol to its original condition were scrapped because of the high cost. Eure said the $525,000 appropriated by the legislature was insufficient for full restoration. Instead, he said, it decided to repaint the interior rather than removing the old layers of finish. The building apparently will be used primarily as a ceremonial structure in the future. Gov.-Elect Jim Holshouser, who takes office Friday, has announced plans to keep his man office in the Administration Building. Eure said today he also will keep his "working office" at the Administration Building, using the Capitol space for ceremonial functions such as registration of lobbyists and acceptance of ratified acts and resolutions from the General Assembly.

Israeli, Syrian Planes Tangle Over Tel Aviv

TEL AVIV AP — Israeli and Syrian warplanes battled today, and the Israeli military command said its pilots shot down one Syrian MIG21 jet. A Lebanese military source reported two Syrian MIG jets downed over the Lebanese mountains northeast of Beirut. An English schoolmaster said he witnessed the downing of one of the planes. The Israelis said the dogfight occurred about 1 p.m. when Syrian planes attempted to intercept Israeli planes on patrol. The Israelis said all their planes returned safely. It was the first Israeli-Syrian air battle since Nov. 21, when the Israelis claimed they downed six Syrian MIG21s. The Lebanese source said 25 to 27 Israeli planes were sighted on Lebanese radar screens. "We were nearly blown out of our seats by a series of explosions," said the Rev. Ronald Roberts, who runs a school for handicapped children in the Lebanese town of Ajaltoun, on the road to the ski resort of Faraya.

"We rushed out and saw one plane trailing black smoke heading toward the ground. There were three other planes that looked as though they were heading to Syria." The Syrian-Israeli cease-fire line has been at flashpoint since Nov. 21, when the heaviest fighting in more than two years erupted. Arab guerrillas slipped into Israeli-held territory from Syria on three occasions at Christmas time, the Israelis claimed, and Israel retaliated with an air raid on Syria last Wednesday. The Syrians responded with an air raid on Syria last Wednesday.

Eight Held Up

The investigation of a Saturday morning robbery in which eight persons were held up at gun point at a pool room near Greenville is continuing by the Pitt Sheriff's Department. According to Sheriff Ralph Tyson, the eight persons, which included the two operators of the pool room located approximately eight miles south of the city on N.C. 43, were robbed collectively of some $350. A pistol was also taken during the incident, he noted. Sheriff Tyson said that the robbery victims reported that two white men entered the establishment around 2:50 Saturday morning and told the two operators and customers to line up and place their wallets on a pool table. The sheriff said that one of the men carried a shotgun while the other had a pistol. Both men wore masks, he added. No one was injured in the robbery and no money was taken from the cash register, the sheriff said.

Record Crowds

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina Republicans, who haven't inaugurated a governor in 75 years, are expected to descend in heavy numbers Thursday to attend two days of festivities surrounding the installation of James E. Holshouser Jr. as the state's 39th elected governor. Holshouser will be sworn into office at noon Friday on the steps of the state capitol building. For the first time ever, the ceremony will be telecast live and in color over a statewide hookup. Planners of the inauguration are expecting record crowds for the events which kick off Thursday night with the Inaugural Ball at Raleigh's Reynolds Coliseum. "Republicans have been waiting for this a long time," said Todd Reece, executive secretary of the state GOP. The last Republican to be sworn in as governor was Donald Russell of Brunswick County on Jan. 12, 1897. Officials said the 2,300 motel rooms in Raleigh have been booked for a month. The Republican Party has reserved 851 of those rooms. The inaugural will not be a strictly Republican affair, however. Democratic Lt. Gov.-elect Jim Hunt will be sworn in along with the eight Democratic members of the Council of State.

Claim POWs Want Congress To Step In

TOKYO (AP) — North Vietnam said today that 30 American prisoners of war, including 20 crewmen from B52 bombers downed recently, have issued a joint statement urging the U.S. Congress to try to help end the Vietnam war. The official Vietnam News Agency broadcast the text of the statement and the names of the 30 POWs. Hanoi had reported the capture of all them previously. The statement recalled the remark made in late October by Henry Kissinger, President Nixon's chief adviser for national security, that "peace is at hand" in Vietnam. "But," the statement continued, "now the war is more fierce than ever before, and American lives are in grave jeopardy from the round-the-clock attacks. This contradiction compels us to add our voices to the public opinion in our country. Whether we have been detained for a few days or several years, it is important that you hear us. "We strongly appeal to the members of Congress to exercise all your legal and moral power to bring about peace. "This statement is made by those who know that more delay can only increase the suffering, lengthen our confinement and aggravate the wellbeing of the country which we serve." The broadcast said the 30 prisoners were: Cmdr. Walter E. Wilber, Virginia Beach, Va.; Lt. Richard J. Fulton, Mesa,

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Speaker-designate James Ramsey of the North Carolina House has appointed every House member except himself to one of the two money committees in the lower chamber. Ramsey announced Monday that Rep. Carl Stewart of Gastonia will chair the 60-member Appropriations Committee for the 1973 session; Rep. Liston B. Ramsey of Marshall will chair the Finance Committee, with 59 members. Ramsey said he did not attempt to include Republicans in leadership positions on the two committees in proportion to their numbers in the House — 35 of 120 members. Appropriations has five subcommittees chairmen, all Democrats; two of the two subcommittee vice chairmen are Republicans; Finance, with no subcommittees, has four vice chairmen, one of whom is a Republican. Ramsey said, however, that he would make it a practice to put one GOP member in a vice chairman's slot on committees with four vice chairmen. The Appropriations subcommittee chairmen are: Clyde Auman of West End, Health Welfare and Institutional Care; Charles Phillips of Greensboro, Education; Roberts Jernigan of Ahoskie, General Government and Transportation; W. S. Harris of Graham, Personnel and Long Range Planning; and Horton Rountree of Greenville, Base Budget. The vice chairmen of the Finance Committee are Democrats Sneed High of Fayetteville, David Bumgarner of Belmont, and James Green of Clarkton; and Republican Laurence Cobb of Charlotte.

Jigsaw Puzzle Can Help Youngsters Learn Math

Editor's Note: This is the last of three articles describing easy-to make, inexpensive games that are fun—and instructive—for preschool children. The series, prepared by the Learning Institute of North Carolina (LINC), is based on experimental work at the LINC Children's Center in Greensboro.)

DURHAM — It's been a well-kept secret for generations, but three- to five-year-old children can learn a lot about math, especially if it comes in the form of a game.

Number Match-Up is the name of the game at the Children's Center — a Greensboro preschool operated by the Durham-based Learning Institute of North Carolina (LINC).

And the game is really a jigsaw puzzle. It lures youngsters into matching numerals and pictures and words that all mean the same thing, mathematically. Perhaps the easiest way to explain Number Match-Up is to tell how to make the game.

First, take five rectangles of masonite—each 3½ inches by 5 inches—and paint the surfaces a solid color. On the left side of the first rectangle, glue a card with the numeral "1" appearing in both the upper left and lower right corners and a picture of an animal —Walt Disney's Pluto, for example—in the center.

On the right side of the same rectangle, spell out the word "One" in bright-colored paint that contrasts sharply with the background. Now use a jigsaw to divide the rectangle into two irregular parts, separating the card from the word.

Next, repeat this process with the second rectangle, substituting "2" for "1", two pictures of the animal for one, and the word "Two" for the word "One." Then do the same with the other three rectangles, using the numerals "3", "4" and "5", each with the equivalent number of animal pictures and the appropriate spelled-out word.

It's especially important to cut the rectangles so that, as in any jigsaw puzzle, only the matching pieces will fit together. To make sure each rectangle is different, lines should be drawn on them before they are sawed.

To play the game, all the pieces are mixed haphazardly. Then the children, whether individually or in groups, search for the matching pieces.

Teachers at the LINC Children's Center point out that a three-year-old first tackling the game probably will not be able to read the numerals or count the number of pictures. And he or she is almost certain not to recognize the word.

So, for this child, the first thing to learn from Number Match-Up is how to fit the pieces together. Doing this helps develop what he teachers call "eye-hand coordination."

That simply means the child, with no other clues to help, will see what pieces fit together and learn to jockey them into place with his hands.

As he works the jigsaw puzzle, the youngster becomes increasingly familiar with the symbols—that is, numerals, numbers of pictures, and words. Four-year-olds frequently recognize the numerals and the number of pictures. Five-year-olds are quick to recognize those symbols, and some are able to read the words, too.

Teachers at the Children's Center say that, for three-year-olds, a simpler form of Number Match-Up is really better. This version leaves out the word altogether.

Home Cooking's Out Of Style

By CHARLES McFADDEN
Associated Press Writer
DAVIS, Calif. (AP) — Home cooking isn't what it used to be, says a university researcher. In fact, he adds, it's rapidly going out of style and America may be better off for it.

One out of every three food dollars spent in America goes for food prepared outside the home — ranging from restaurants to TV Dinners — and that will rise to at least half the national food budget by 1980, says agricultural economist Leon Garoian of the University of California's Davis campus.

More and more, a "home cooked" meal will be assembled by the housewife from pre-packaged dishes prepared in a factory hundreds of miles away from her kitchen, Garoian adds.

"There are an awful lot of factors involved," Garoian said in an interview. "One is that our styles are changing. People have more real income that they can spend.

"Secondly, they value their time more. Housewives have things they'd rather do than spend time in their kitchen. A lot of them are working," he said.

"A third factor is that kids have more money. Kids have a hell of a lot of money and they spend it.

"The fourth factor is just plain availability of these establishments. They're creating a demand of their own. We now have more restaurants than we have retail food stores."

Will the new home eating style mean a national diet of bland, standardized foods?

"No, I don't think so," Garoian said. "It may even be an improvement.

"TV dinners were just a start. You can pick up entrees at the supermarket right now. You'll be buying meal components and you'll be assembling meals in the kitchen. You might even buy your charcoal broiled steak that way — they'll have them running on assembly lines."

When the housewife of the near future gets home to her kitchen — or "food preparation area" — there's no stirring or tasting, Garoian said.

She just pops the pre-packaged entree and pre-packaged side dishes into an oven or pot of water and assembles the meal when all the parts heat up. If she feels like it, she may toss in a homemade salad. Old family recipes could become as rare as kitchen coffee grinders.

The technique was pioneered by restaurants, Garoian says.

"They're the ones who are taking advantage of it. It's a lot cheaper to assemble all these things in one central commissary, on an assembly line."

Whether they mix and taste or merely assemble, housewives are still interested in kitchens, says Roy Brophy, a large volume homebuilder based in Sacramento.

"Our salesmen tell us that when they let the couple in the front door of a new house, the first thing the woman wants to see is the kitchen," he says.

Garoian says the new way of doing things has stirred up some concerns.

"One is that the food service industry is being controlled by fewer and fewer firms. I'm concerned about the degree of competition that is going to exist."

Prize Winners Sew A Fine Seam At Young Age Of 12

By AP Newsfeatures
At the ripe age of 12, four prize winning sewers had collectively created hundreds of items on their sewing machines—bikini bathing suits, Eisenhower jackets, pants suits and gifts for relatives—before they became regional sewing contest winners capping their prowess in the grand finale in New York where they were accompanied by their mothers.

Diminutive Betsy Goldsmith, 4 feet 8, of Marion, Ind., was crowned Queen of Sewing in the Junior Miss (10 to 12-year) division of the Singer World Stylemaker contest, an annual event that had 65,000 entrants in three sewing categories. Her $3000 prize money was earmarked for college to be added to the $1000 already won by her and the other girls—semi-finalists Nancy Cavallaro of Elmhurst, Ill., Linda Gorski of Chicopee, Mass., and Virginia Stehlin of Pompano Beach, Fla.

You can take it from all four—basting is the key to a successful garment.

But why do they sew? The consensus is they can have prettier clothes for less money.

Betsy has been sewing up a storm since she was 9, and the little chimp had really planned to make a spring coat for the contest, but instead she had made the winning red and white pants outfit with the elephant motif at a cost of $20. She likes to make her own things because she can pick out fabrics she likes.

Nancy began sewing because "my mother didn't and I was growing so fast I just couldn't find anything to fit me," she said. "Last summer I grew three inches." Since Nancy's regional triumph her mother has become so enthusiastic—and a little embarrassed, maybe—that she, herself, will begin sewing lessons next month. Nancy had made 30 garments before she tackled the floor-length flocked nylon over a lavender lining that won in the regional event.

The tallest girl, Linda, had learned to sew "by fooling around with material" and she sews to keep herself in stitches—"at this age boys couldn't care less what you wear," she says. But she needs clothes and they can be made cheaper at home. Her multicolor acrylic jumper with matching pants and pink turtleneck blouse cost $23, although she has made lots of garments for Houses filled with accumulations of paper and junk are hard to clean and also fire traps. Get rid of the stuff regularly.

Instead, the numeral is placed on the left side of the rectangle and the corresponding number of animal pictures on the right. This approach makes it easier for the child to connect the numeral with the number of pictures and learn that these are two ways to say the same thing.

At the Children's Center, all children are given a chance to explore the game independently before they try it. Three-year-olds are less likely to enjoy it in groups than older children who understand more of the clues.

Like many other games used at the Children's Center, Number Match-Up is easy for parents to make at home, either to help their stay-at-home youngsters learn or to share the learning excitement of children who play the game in preschool.

Of course, parents usually don't have a supply of masonite on hand, and few own jigsaws. But stiff cardboard is a good substitute for masonite, and a sharp knife can be used to cut the rectangles into jigsaw puzzles.

Teachers warn that parents should "keep it light." If their preschooler is three, they should start with just one rectangle. Whatever the child's age, solving the puzzle should never be made an assignment or a chore.

Helping the child with questions and suggestions is fine, but solving the problem for him is a no-no. It will turn off the fun—and the learning. The key thing to remember is that every step the child takes toward learning Number Match-Up will put him that much ahead of the game when he hits first grade.

So making the game as attractive, colorful, and fun-filled as possible should be the parent's main concern. Along the way, parent and child will share a pleasant, positive experience, and that may be more important than the game, anyway.

"The 25 largest food service firms — the guys that are preparing these meals — did as much business in 1971 as the 400 largest ones did in 1964. What I'm concerned about is that we're developing the same type of concentration of power that the chain stores have. A few firms control the bulk of our sales there.

"A second concern is that a restaurant consumer won't have as much choice as these firms take over. You don't have much choice other than the entree of what's going to go with that meal. Look at the airlines which use the prepackaged concept for passenger feeding. You really don't have that much of a choice.

"A third concern is that it's so very difficult to determine what a real price is" for manufacturers of prepackaged foods.

"Unless we have real competition they can take a live-and-let-live attitude towards each other in terms of pricing."

If it boils down to fewer and fewer people deciding what Americans eat, farmers also have reason to worry, Garoian added.

"Somebody is going to make a decision on when his product is going to be exposed to the consumer, in what form, how frequently and in what quantity. And unless this is done really well, there's a chance that producers might lose consumer preference."

DEAR ABBY: I am concerned about the relationship between my sister and her 8-year-old son. To be frank, I wonder if it could cause homosexual tendencies in the boy.

Altho she dresses him in male clothing, she selects such babyish styles—minus zippers. His favorite pastime is "playing house." And he doesn't appear to be at ease with boys.

There seems to be an unusual physical attraction between the mother and son. He is not allowed to use the men's restrooms. She always takes him into the ladies' restrooms. He doesn't seem to be embarrassed by it either.

My sister is an intelligent, educated person. And her husband is no dummy. I cannot understand why he doesn't put his foot down.

Is it normal for the boy to accept his mother's way of training him without protesting?

We don't feel that we can discuss this with her, but she is an avid reader of your column, so perhaps she will see this and recognize herself, and do something about a potential problem.

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: Your sister's behavior toward her son is not normal, but his responses are indeed what one could expect. Yes, she could be sowing the seeds of homosexuality. Don't wait for her to "recognize" herself. TELL her what is obvious to you and others.

DEAR ABBY: Why is it that when people are trying to watch their calories, their friends say: "Oh, come on . . . have a piece of candy, or another helping. It can't hurt you."

I always end up eating it just to shut them up or to get on with the bridge game or what ever the case may be.

When I quit smoking, I didn't have people telling me that one cigarett wouldn't hurt me. And if a person has joined A. A., nobody would tell him that one little drink wouldn't hurt him.

People who are dieting should be given the same help as those who have given up smoking or alcohol. After all, a weight problem is harmful to one's health, too. ON A DIET

DEAR ON: I agree. Dieters need all the help they can get, but don't blame those who tempt you if you can't resist temptation.

DEAR ABBY: We are having trouble with some friends we have known a long time.

As our invited guests they feel free to change the dates of their visits with no regard to our planning.

They have even failed to tell us they were not coming until the day they were expected. The last time they did this we had borrowed beds and bought food for their weekend visit. We had also invited others in for a party.

There never seems to be a reason, such as an emergency that keeps them from following thru on a planned trip. They just call at the last minute and cancel.

How would you handle friends like these?

PITTSBURGERS

DEAR PITTSBURGERS: If you invite these "friends" to be your guests again, you deserve what you get.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "NO LEFTOVERS": Why didn't you come right out and ask for some of the leftover turkey? Since you brought the bird to the family dinner you were entitled to take some of the leftovers home with you. You need more "backbone" and less "wishbone!"

Parallels In Medical Schools

A New York Times story on the opening of the New York Medical College campus in Westchester County made interesting reading in light of the ECU Medical School which got underway here last year. The story noted that the Westchester County campus was working to establish formal ties with the county's 13 community hospitals. This arrangement, although standard with major hospitals in New York, will be new to Westchester County which has not had a medical school in the past. The article pointed out that the advantages of affiliation are mutual. The college will need several thousand Westchester hospital beds for teaching purposes when the campus is fully operational. It was noted that Westchester hospitals had been unable to attract graduates of American medical schools to take available positions as interns and residents. The American Medical Association has indicated that after 1975 it may no longer approve residency programs in hospitals which are not affiliated with medical schools.

The 13 community hospitals in Westchester range in size from 50 beds to 350 for a total of nearly 3,000 beds. The college and Westchester County are jointly building a new 500-bed hospital for completion in 1975.

The story noted that an affiliated hospital retains its independence in patient care but also becomes, in effect, an extension of a medical school campus.

Dr. Richard M. Friendenberg, chairman of the affiliation committee and of the college's department of radiology, was quoted as saying the desire for affiliation came not only from the need for beds but from the "enormous opportunity of starting afresh in a new area to combine education and health-care delivery."

Sylvia Holsberg, a public health specialist on the committee, said, "Westchester is a microcosm of all of American's health problems. You find them all here—distribution of services, urban health problems, even rural problems. But at least they're of a size you feel you can deal with."

We quoted extensively from The New York Times story because the parallel with what is being done at East Carolina University is so striking.

Shift the emphasis from urban to rural health problems and spread the participating hospitals over several adjacent counties, instead of just one, and you have a blueprint for what is planned by the ECU Medical School.

One major difference is that New York is attacking its own health care problems without a lot of footdragging on the part of obstructionists. Here in North Carolina we could easily take a lesson from this.

Agriculture Had Good Year In '72

By JAMES A. GRAHAM
N.C. Commissioner of Agriculture

RALEIGH—Another good year for North Carolina agriculture was recorded in 1972, and the state agriculture department acted to strengthen its programs of service to farmers and consumers.

The major internal change for the department during the year was the realignment of its 19 divisions. To implement the change, three new offices were created.

These are the office of agribusiness and public service, the office of fiscal management, and the office of consumer services.

The first of these will oversee the work of Food Distribution, Markets, the Museum of Natural History, Research Stations, Soil Testing, Statistics and Warehouse.

Grouped under the second are Administrative Services, the Farmers Market, the N.C. Rehabilitation Corp. and the State Fair. The third new office directs activity of Analytical, Dairy, Entomology, Seed Testing, Structural Pest Control, Veterinary, Weights and Measures, Gasoline and Oil.

Scope Is Broad

By itself, the listing of these divisions indicates the broad scope of the department's work. It also makes clear that the department exists to serve every North Carolina citizen, not just those who live on farms or engage in agriculture. The new organization assures greater efficiency in the deployment of resources and the functions of the department.

Markets is the largest N.C.A. division. Its work is highly diversified and therefore broken down into several sub-sections. Of particular importance is foreign trade. Contacts are constantly made around the world to develop and improve N.C. exports.

In field crops, tobacco continues as the unchallenged leader. Sales data was compiled from 200 tobacco auction warehouses. Efforts are continuing to improve marketing and crop improvement. Extensive work was done with other agencies to reduce DDT and TDE residues on tobacco.

Grain and seed marketing inspection provided assistance to more than 600 firms and individuals in the industry in storage, handling, drying, sanitation, safety, quality control, air emission control and other technical help.

Livestock Gains Noted
Gains in livestock production and marketing were recorded. Despite hog cholera, North Carolina continues to be the fastest growing swine producing state. Nearly 200,000 feeder pigs were sold on 209 sales. A marketing specialist has been assigned to assist the state's house industry and serve as an ex-officio director of the N.C. Horse Council. This section helped plan and conduct the most comprehensive horse science conference ever held in the state, and the first Southern States Morgan Horse Show held at the State Fairgrounds.

The State Farmers Market serves more than 14,000 producers and gains retail customers every year. The market provides fresh produce to the consumer at economical prices, while permitting the farmer to make more money. Although summer is the time of greatest activity, winter also allows customers to buy fresh commodities of the season such as pumpkins and Christmas trees. The market also is a wholesale outlet for several companies. The most pressing need at present is additional space.

The 1972 State Fair had a total attendance of 581,715. Major exhibits highlights peanuts and returns from space research and exploration.

Benefits For Housewife

From the housewife's point of view, the division of analytical chemistry probably is the most meaningful. Of prime concern during 1972 was misbranded foods.

The division has continued its surveillance for PCB's, a toxic compound found in chicken feed and releasable lead found in some pottery. Both of these situations were detected in 1971. So far, during 1972, there have been no problems with these chemicals. Presently the division is working to insure that meat products are properly labeled so as not to be misleading.

Along with the normal function of the Entomology division in regulation and control of plant pests and diseases, a new problem is on the horizon and possibly may have crossed it: the Gypsy Moth. In the caterpillar state, the insect defoliates hundreds of thousands of acres of forest land in the Northeast annually. Male adults have been captured in North Carolina and adjoining states. To combat the impending menace the Council of State has appropriated funds to develop and integrated program of control. This involves natural predators, parasites and chemicals.

Many other activities could be included in a review of the year. This brief summary is sufficient to show the significant role the department continues to play in the lives of North Carolinians.

Stacked Deck For Strauss

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—No sooner had Robert Strauss won his fight for the Democratic national chairmanship three weeks ago than he confronted unpleasant reality; the reformers had stacked the deck against him.

To his astonishment, Strauss inherited machinery rigged to perpetuate the party reforms—including some variation of the noxious quota system—which contributed heavily to the McGovern debacle last November. The reformers are bluntly warning Strauss that he risks fratricide if he tampers with that machinery. Indeed, tampering will be no easy task even if Strauss risks the consequences.

So, the election of pragmatist Strauss as national chairman by no means ended the war over whether the Democratic party reverts to its past pragmatic function of winning elections or continues as an exotic platform for leftist ideologues. Having failed to stop Strauss himself, the reformers are now trying to prevent him from moderating the reforms.

The deck-stacking operation began in September when the McGovernite staff of national chairman Jean Westwood drew up a list of names, tilted well left of center and headed by United Auto Workers president Leonard Woodcock to succeed the old McGovern Reform Commission.

Apart from leading the Woodcock Commission with an overwhelming leftist majority, Mrs. Westwood's staff caused a quantitative mismatch. The commission includes Kenneth Bode, chief architect of the McGovern reforms, and Phyllis Segal, wife of new politics theoretician Eli Segal and herself an ardent reformer. State-level reform. State-level reform activists named include Sara Kovner of New York, Marvin Shapiro of California and William Hart of New Jersey.

These are left activists, imbued with detailed knowledge of the reforms and prepared to sit through interminable sessions of the Woodcock Commission. In contrast, the commission's minority of old-line politicians includes such figures as regular Democratic leader Meade Esposito of Brooklyn and executive vice president Michael Johnson of the Pennsylvania AFL-CIO—unacquainted with the intricacies of reform and busy with other duties.

Mrs. Westwood's staff considered a place on the Woodcock Commission for Ben F. Wattenberg, co-author of "The Real Majority" and political adviser to Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, but he was rejected on grounds he had not endorsed the McGovern-Shriver ticket. In fact, Wattenberg was blackballed because he had the time and talent to battle the Bodes and the Segals.

Strength For Today

STICKING TO THE END

King Nebuchadnezzar in a dream saw a great image, the head of which was fine gold, the breast and arms of which were silver, the lower part of which was brass, the feet of which were part iron and part clay.

Someone has compared our undertakings and purposes to this image. Very often our plans are like the head of this image, of fine gold, but after a time—a week or so after New Year's Day—our desire begins to slacken. We have less exalted ideas of what we are supposed to do, the gold blends into silver and later into brass. Finally, by February first, we give up our ideals altogether either because we find them difficult to attain or because we are tired or disillusioned. That which started with a head of gold ends up with feet of clay. It is the picture of how we often start good things in a spirit of exaltation and at last renounce them in great discouragement.

Paul in writing to the Galatians, said, "Let us not be weary in well-doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not." It is easy indeed for us to become weary, to go from golden dreams to silver efforts, and at last to renounce even those efforts and confess ourselves exhausted and defeated. We need to remind ourselves that in due season we shall reap if we faint not. We were made for triumph, not for defeat. The only condition is that we faint not.

Peril To People's Right

WASHINGTON—It is a curious thing: Those of us who spend our lives in communication are finding it tough to communicate effectively with the public, and more especially with judges, on a problem that seems to us vital. It is the problem of the investigative reporter and his confidential sources.

We seem not to have this difficulty with other people's problems. We can translate, for example, the serious danger to our political process that lies in uncontrolled campaign spending. We can marshal support for judicial reform, by telling the people of the injustice that results when courts are overburdened. But we cannot get through on the mounting threat that is beginning to imperil a free press—the threat of judicial intimidation of working reporters.

The problem is this: At a certain level of investigative journalism, a reporter is utterly dependent upon his ability to assure his sources that their identity will be kept in confidence. Without such assurance, he will not get the story. The sources will not talk.

CBS discovered this, for example, when it started digging into a welfare scandal in Atlanta. Producer Ike Kleinerman lined up a welfare mother who was willing to talk about cheating, provided her voice was disguised and her face was not shown. But when she asked for a guarantee of protection—a guarantee that Kleinerman would never give her name to a grand jury—Kleinerman could not give it. CBS counsel advised against it. The woman then called the whole thing off, and news of significant public interest was lost.

Such examples are legion. Newsmen across the country, at considerable personal danger, are undertaking to report on the extent of the traffic in marijuana and narcotic drugs. It is a big story. This is news the people are entitled to have if they are to make wise policy decisions on a major social problem. But the story cannot be reported fully. Subjects who might have cooperated a couple of years ago have clammed up now. They have read the papers, and they know that investigative reporters are being jailed or hard-pressed to reveal their sources. The process is known at law as "the chilling effect."

Spokesmen for the press sought earnestly a year ago to convince the Supreme Court that this condition constitutes a growing danger to press freedom. We failed. A majority of the Court simply did not believe us. In an opinion by Justice White, the Court dismissed our

To the Editor:

Never let it be said that the citizens of Greenville neglect or forget the sick and shut-ins in Greenville, and specifically at the Greenville Nursing and Convalescent Home. It has been overwhelming to observe the love and concern and attention given the residents there during this Christmas season. There have been groups giving parties, gifts, caroling, spiritual messages, and flowers. One could just feel the spirit and joy of Christmas upon entering there.

Among those participating that happen to know about were members of the Ada Cherry Sunday School Class of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, Black Jack Free Will Baptist Sunday School, Moose Lodge, Choir of Holy Trinity Methodist Church, and Burroughs Welcome. There are groups who minister to these patients year-round on a weekly basis—the Salvation Army, the Episcopal Church, the First Christian Church, and the Church of God. I know I have not included everyone, but please accept this as a public and heart felt "thank you" for all that is done for the residents there, including my mother who has been a patient there since July.

A New Facet To Old Problems

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—What are the pocketbook issues you'll be reading about in 1973? The same, dear weary consumer, as in 1972: wages and prices and taxes and jobs. But, while the issues are the same, you'll be seeing a different facet.

To begin with, some of the newest news this spring will be tax rebates, not tax demands, to workers who failed to lower their withholdings to adjust for lower taxes. At least $7 billion is expected to be refunded.

In 1972, the real news about prices was that their growth rate slowed. But, in 1973, there's a chance that prices might rise more swiftly. As 1972 ended, momentum was being built; food prices especially were headed higher.

The sad fact is that the country failed in its goal of 3 per cent inflation by the end of 1972. In the past six months, wholesale prices have risen 5.7 per cent; consumer prices, 3.6 per cent.

An aspect of food problems that bears watching is what the big chain stores are going to protect their interests. Last year, difficult as it is to believe, they got into a price-cutting war with The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. leading the way.

As one supermarket executive put it: "A&P is like an airplane in a power dive. They're losing millions of dollars, but they're still cutting prices in order to capture more of the market. They can't keep it up."

You'll be reading all year long about wages. It's going to be a very active year for major labor contracts—in construction, electrical equipment, railroads, trucking, autos and rubber and plastics.

Much pressure will be put on labor to keep its demands noninflationary. Last year, they rose about 6 per cent. This year, the same is expected. But, if food prices keep rising, there could develop some dramatic confrontations.

With the wage versus cost-of-living conflict reheating, it seems highly unlikely that wage-price controls will be lifted. Statements pro and con will be issued all spring, but the consequences are too great to drop them altogether.

In an address last week, Dr. Arthur Burns, Federal Reserve Board chairman, warned that, if inflation increases in 1973, "the nation's economic future may be adversely affected for a long time to come." Watch federal spending, he said.

What seems to be understood more in recent months is that the federal government is playing a huge role in inflation: no, not simply in restraining upward pressures with controls, but in creating the pressure.

Over-spending, as expressed in budget deficits of $71 billion over the past five years, is producing the pressure. The Chamber of Commerce of the United States claims that federal spending controls will be "the House Democrats gearing up for renewed battles with President Nixon face divisive struggles of their own today as they meet to organize for the 93rd Congress opening Wednesday.

An effort to formulate a party position on the best means of bringing the Vietnam war to an end is the major problem to be resolved at a pre-session caucus of all House Democrats.

New attacks on the seniority system and other proposed rules changes are also on the agenda, but may be put off until a later meeting.

The Democrats will elect their leaders for the new Congress, but Speaker Carl Albert faces only token opposition and Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill of Massachusetts is unchallenged for majority leader.

A hot fight is developing, however, over a proposal to make the third job in the party hierarchy—that of Democratic whip—elective rather than appointive, as it is now. If the move succeeds, a wide-open battle for the job is in prospect.

House Republicans, with fewer problems, will hold their organizing meeting Wednesday morning before the noon opening of Congress. So will Senate Republicans, who have two leadership positions to fill.

Sens. Norris Cotton of New Hampshire and Wallace F. Bennett of Utah are vying for the chairmanship of the Senate Republican Conference. John G. Tower of Texas and Robert Taft Jr. of Ohio are seeking the chairmanship of the Senate GOP Policy Committee.

The abrupt halt in the bombing of North Vietnam ordered over the weekend by Nixon may have undercut plans by many House Democrats to seek adoption of a strong antiwar resolution by the caucus at Watchnight services were held at Jarvis Memorial Methodist, St. Paul's Episcopal and Immanuel Baptist Church on New Year's Eve. The socially minded attended a dance at the Country Club as the highlight of the New Year's observance and the usual ringing of bells and blowing of whistles notified the sleeping citizens of the change of the year.

During the year 1932, Hollywood's brand of heaven on earth was a deliberate and enormously successful effort to provide escape. Some 85 million people a week across the nation, seized on it paying 25 cents for a ticket. Greenville theaters enhanced the appeal of a night at the movies by offering double and ever triple features and by giving away door prizes that ranged from coupons for free hairdos to shiny new automobiles.

CARROLL RICHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Richter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: During the day it is difficult for you to organize your affairs for the future, but later you find you can study them more objectively and get some answers that are just what you have been looking for. Wind up incomplete matters.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Show that you handle your activities intelligently and make big headway with the goodwill of higher-ups. Use wisdom in handling civic matters. Change tactics with mate and get better results.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Those new ideas you have need more study before putting into action, or you can get yourself in trouble through them. Contact out-of-towners for the data you require. Save time for one who needs your help.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have responsibilities left over from last year that require your full attention right now so they are handled properly. Show more affection for mate and come to a better understanding, harmony.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take care you do and say nothing that could start arguments with close ties, associates, any who mean much to your well-being. Although others do something you do not agree with, await a better time to talk it over with them.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Study well what your duties are and then roll up your sleeves and get right to work on them, put them behind you quickly. Take more of those health treatments that have been helpful in the past. Show you are a logical thinker.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Although you want to have fun, be sure to get into proven activities that bring real pleasure. Don't take risks where your devotions are concerned. Avoid one who likes to argue too much.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Being more cheerful and kind with those who dwell with you brings about more harmony at home now. Do work that is necessary. Get rid of obsolete articles around you and replace with the new.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Plan your daily duties more efficiently so you have more spare time for other activities, pleasure. State clearly what your motives are with associates. Then you get the right kind of cooperation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If the financial side of your life is not going well, analyze where the trouble is and do something about it. Get information from an expert in business if you have any doubts about something. Help one who is ill.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Analyze whether you are making the right contacts, bringing the right interests into your life, otherwise make them now. Get into some new group gathering that can be just what you need. Avoid one who has a bad temper.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Closet yourself with an expert and put your affairs in better order instead of gadding about so gregariously. A good friend has a problem that you can help with, so do just that. A wise person gives good advice, too.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have a good friend who has fine ideas for you, but some of which are not good, so pick out the best and follow through on them. Not a very good day for social matters. Look into practical affairs more intelligently.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those young people who needs much cheering up early, since the attitude will be rather morose. Encouragement will also bring out the fine organizing ability latent in this chart, which can lead to big success in almost any field of endeavor. Take good care of the diet and teach to smile early. Give sports that are helpful. A slow starter here, but one who soon catches up and then goes ahead of others.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Would Abandon Highway Board

GREENSBORO (AP) — North Carolina Gov.-elect Jim Holshouser has proposed abolishment of the controversy-ridden State Highway Commission or at least reducing the membership of the 23-member agency.

Holshouser, who will be inaugurated as the first Republican governor of this century Friday, said he would transfer the commission's function to a professional staff within the State Department of Transportation.

His remarks came in a taped television interview broadcast on WFMY TV Sunday night.

Holshouser said elimination of the agency is his first choice, but if the legislature declined to abolish the commission it should be trimmed to at least 14 members or to "five or seven members the way it was under Gov. Hodges."

"The challenge is not just a change in numbers but a new concept, a new approach. I think we ought to take a real hard look at a professional staff and abandon the part time approach," Holshouser said.

Currently, private citizens are appointed by the governor and serve indefinite terms. For year, an appointment was considered a political reward. When asked about this, Holshouser replied "We have tested the waters" and have found people want an efficient and professional department rather than having an attitude of "it's our turn."

Holshouser said management studies on the commission are underway and there are plans for more. He also said he had discussed efficiency methods with representatives from other states and officials of the U.S. Transportation Department.

Holshouser said he hopes to meet with legislative leaders and discuss his reorganization proposals.

Football Widow Advice By Pat

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Pat Nixon has this bit of advice for the nation's football widows:

"Get in there and join your husband; that's what I do."

Mrs. Nixon took part in the Tournament of Roses parade here Monday before attending the Rose Bowl game in which the University of Southern California beat Ohio State University 42-17.

She told newsmen that, when the President, who is an avid football fan, is prevented by his busy schedule from seeing a game, "I make it a practice to try to keep up with what is happening so I may fill him in."

today's caucus.

The bombing-halt order came after a group of about 60 Democrats had agreed to support a resolution stating that it would be Democratic party policy to seek an immediate end both to the bombing and the war by having Congress cut off all funds for U.S. military operations in Indochina.

Whatever the caucus does will have no legislative effect, however, and the real antiwar drive in Congress will start with the opening of the 93rd session Wednesday. Dozens of bills calling for a variety of actions, including cutting off war funds, are ready to be introduced.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee, jumping the gun, scheduled a meeting for this afternoon and invited Secretary of State William P. Rogers and presidential adviser Henry Kissinger to brief it on the war.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee has extended a similar invitation to Rogers and Kissinger for later in the week, and a subcommittee headed by Rep. Ben Rosenthal, D-N.Y., will start hearings Thursday on effects of the Vietnam bombing policy on U.S. diplomacy in Europe.

arguments with a pat and a wave.

Neither have we had much luck with the public at large. Individual newsmen and newspapers may be held in high esteem, but the press as a whole is not well regarded.

The very concept of freedom of the press — a concept we see as precious — is a concept not wholly understood. The people resent special privilege, and when they hear reporters asking for "shield laws," they react in indignation. If the people have a right to know the news, why don't they have a right to know the source of the news? Well, we say, it can't always work that way. This is true: those of us in the business know it is true; but the argument has left judges unimpressed.

One of our difficulties may be that the press itself is divided in its view of particular cases, and in its view of proposed remedies. I myself happen to oppose the shield laws proposed in Congress. To the extent that these bills propose an absolute privilege, they are certainly unconstitutional: They could result in intolerable violations of the rights of a defendant under the Fifth and Sixth Amendments. To the extent that the proposed laws and qualified, they leave us no better off, and probably worse off, than the Supreme Court left us in June.

The hardest thing to get over, because it sounds so infernally noble, is that this truly isn't our fight as newsmen. What we are struggling to defend, in this important area of investigative reporting, is the public's right to know. That right is in danger; and surely good judges, if they try, will see the danger as clearly as we do.

slipped through the national convention last July makes the woodcock Commission not only a stacked but a frozen deck. It is subject neither to approval by the full Democratic National Committee nor to addition or subtraction by Chairman Strauss.

Although less blatantly loaded, the party's new Charter Commission—to plan the potentially lethal 1974 midterm convention—is nevertheless dominated by reformers. The anti-new politics Coalition for a Democratic Majority (CDM) submitted four prominent names (including Patricia Roberts Harris, chairman of the 1972 Democratic credentials committee). All were rejected, without explanation.

In sum, the reformers are warning Strauss: stick to money raising and similar non-ideological pursuits and let the Woodcock and Chapter Commissions handle reforms. If you don't, we'll make you sorry.

This threatening note appeared in the statement by the leftist New Democratic Coalition (NDC) following its meeting with Strauss the day after his election. Strauss, attempting to be conciliatory, delivered some vaguely pro-reform pronouncements. The NDC responded by declaring it "planned to watch Mr. Strauss's initial moves . . . carefully, as indications whether his strong stand on non-ideological alignment will be supported by his actions."

But reformers who think the stacked deck, backed by threats, will stop Strauss don't know their man. He plans to enlarge the Charter Commission against the reformers' wishes. The Charter Commission chairman, president Terry Sanford of Duke University, plans to consult Strauss on the important commission staff. Although he cannot touch the Woodcock Commission, Strauss will appoint 25 additional members to the National Committee, which has ultimate authority over the commission's recommendations. The battle is just beginning.

Little Fanfare As Three Join The Common Market

By CARL HARTMAN
Associated Press Writer
BRUSSELS (AP) — Nine flags flew outside the headquarters of the European Common Market today after Britain, Ireland and Denmark joined the world's richest trading club.

There was little fanfare to mark the enlargement of the European Economic Community on New Year's Day.

Prime Minister Edward Heath called Britain's entry into the EEC a "tremendous opportunity" and predicted that enthusiasm over membership would increase as the advantages became clearer.

Queen Margrethe told her Danes of great expectations but warned that membership would make great demands on them. The conservative Danish newspaper Jyllands-Posten cautioned: "What we will see is a gradual process of change and adaptation which many will feel murderously slow."

The Irish government issued a special stamp, and Prime Minister Jack Lynch declared:

"It is my belief that many of the economic and social differences which exist between North and South Ireland will rapidly disappear when we have fully adapted to Community membership."

In the immediate future, Danish and Irish farmers stand to gain from high food prices. Britain, with only a small farm population, is seeking new opportunities for its industry that could increase production and jobs.

All the Common Market countries, including the original six — France, West Germany, Italy, Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg — have given up some of their independence.

The basic arrangement is that of a customs union. All members let in each other's goods without duty and charge the same import taxes on goods from outside the trading bloc.

On Monday, Ewen Ferguson, a senior official of the British Mission to the EEC, delivered two letters dealing with routine protocol to the Executive Commission. They were Britain's first official acts as a Common Market member.

The first significant event of Britain's membership will be next weekend's meetings of the new 13-member Executive Commission. It will include two British members: Sir Christopher Soames, former ambassador to Paris, and George Thomson, who negotiated unsuccessfully for British membership in the EEC during the last Labor government.

The latest public-opinion poll in Britain showed the country almost evenly divided on the wisdom of surrendering economic independence for a role in a united Europe.

Concord Store Gutted By Fire

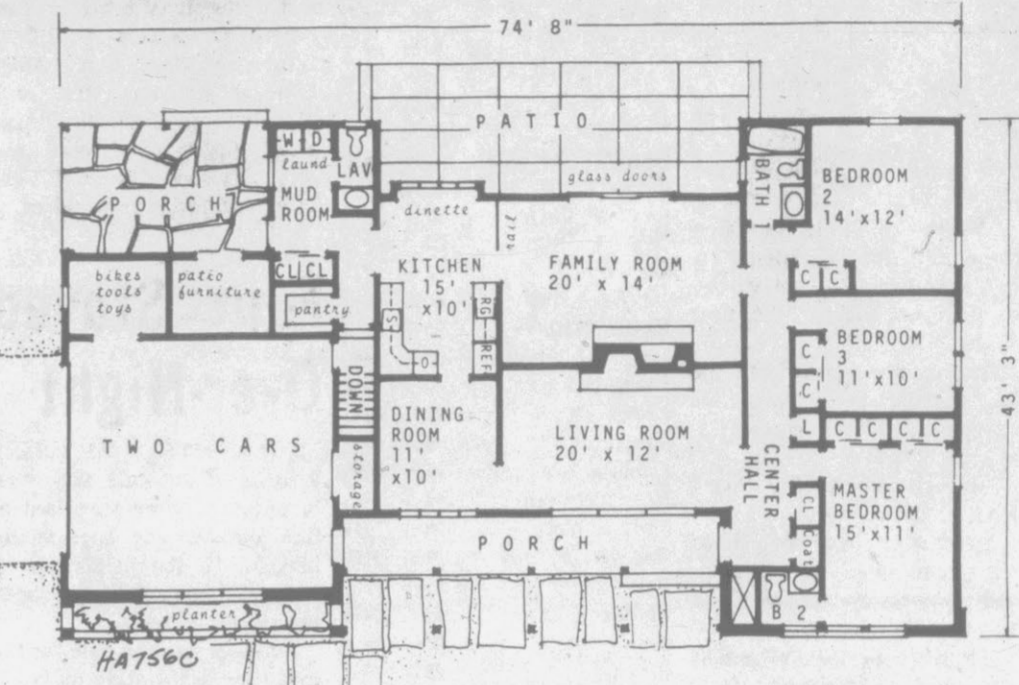

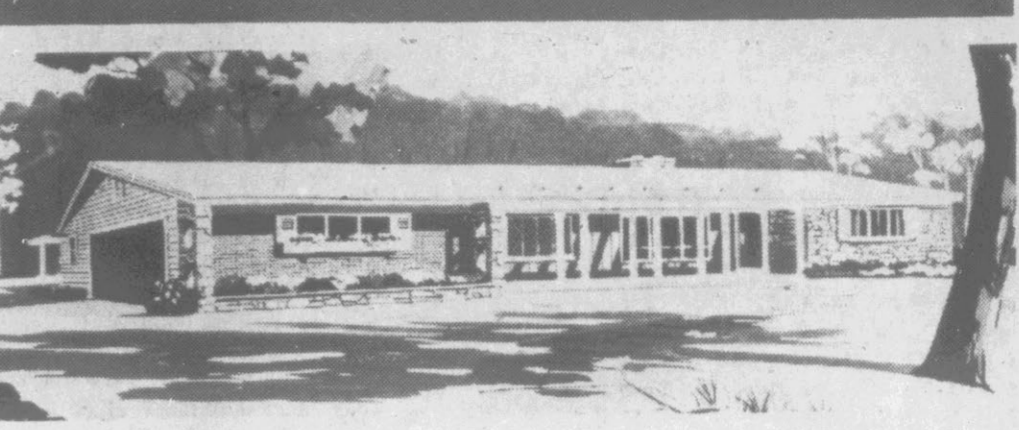

CONCORD, N.C. (AP)—Preliminary investigation indicates a $100,000 blaze at Pike Drug Store in a Concord shopping center may have started in the area of a sandwich grill Sunday night, Concord Fire Chief J.A. Fisher said.

The damage estimate was made by owner Jesse Pike, Sr., who operates six drug stores in the Charlotte-Concord area.

The New Year's Eve fire gutted the drug store. A variety store and a stamp redemption center received heavy smoke damage.

N.C. Counts Thirteen Holiday Traffic Dead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
North Carolina counted at least 13 traffic deaths during the New Year's holiday weekend and the 13th victim was the first for 1973.

The total fell far short of the 21 fatalities predicted by N.C. State Motor Club for the 78-hour period, which ended at Midnight Monday.

Charles Anthony Jones, 25, of Rt. 2, Norlina, was killed Monday night when his speeding car ran off a rural paved road 3 1/2 miles east of Henderson and struck a tree, the Highway patrol said.

Four persons were killed on New Year's day of last year patrol records showed.

Lula Hawkins, 40, of High Point, died Sunday when the car in which she was a passenger swerved to avoid a vehicle entering U.S. 311 near Archdale, hit a parked car and overturned.

Cathy Elizabeth Darnell, 14, of Pilot Mountain, died when the speeding car in which she was a passenger ran off a Pilot Mountain Road and overturned.

A pedestrian, Linwood J. Garner, 24, of Garysburg, was killed on a rural paved road in Northampton County when he walked into the path of a vehicle.

Charles Wesley Wright, 60, of Rt. 4, Laurinburg, died Sunday when his car ran off U.S. 74 and hit a tree five miles east of Laurinburg.

Nineteen-year-old Helen Louise Baker of Midway Park was killed when her car ran off a rural paved road near Jacksonville and swerved back across the road into the path of another vehicle.

Richard Lynn Williams, 19, of Maiden, was killed south of Newton when the car in which he was riding ran off N.C. 16, veered back into the opposite lane and was hit in the side by an oncoming vehicle.

The highway patrol reported eighteen-year-old Gary Lee Matthews, of Faison, was killed when a speeding car left N.C. 403 and hit a tree just east of Faison in Duplin County.

Darlene James, 23, of Baltimore, Md., was killed in a two-car crash a half mile east of Wake Forest.

Two Brooklyn, N.Y., residents, Egbert Lindo, 30, and Ada Louis, died when a car left I-95 three miles north of Lumberton and hit a signpost.

Stanley Batts, 18, of Rt. 1, Scotland, was killed in Scotland Neck when a car left the road and hit a tree stump.

James Douglas Burneite, 14, of Charlotte, was fatally injured when he ran in front of a car near his home.

Fort Lauderdale Quiet After Monday's Melee

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Police said Monday night was "normal" as they made between 25 and 30 separate arrests in a beachfront area where 36 persons were arrested in a riot involving 5,000 youths earlier in the day.

About 150 police and sheriff's deputies clashed with about 5,000 young people before dawn Monday in a melee touched off by a barroom arrest. Police termed the clash a "general riot" that produced 27 injuries.

Brady said those involved in the riot were mostly tourists and New Year's revelers. Monday night's crowd was mostly local youths, he said.

"It's a normal Monday night — no way, shape or form in comparison to last night," said Police Capt. William Brady, the commander of the police substation on the beach. "Everybody's pretty well decided that this is our beach and we've got the situation in hand."

Brady said the arrests during the night were for "minor infractions" such as public drunkenness and narcotics possession. He said about 700 persons were in the beachfront area Monday night.

Capt. Jack Cannon said no extra officers had to be called during the night and there were "no incidents of an unusual nature" in the area.

One of the youths charged with aggravated assault in Monday morning's violence was spotted and arrested last night, Brady said. He said police were keeping an eye out in the area for other youths believed to have been involved in the morning incident.

Charles Stover, administrative assistant to the Fort Lauderdale police operations chief, said the incident Monday morning "was just one of those spontaneous things that erupted into quite a hassle."

The disorders early New Year's Day spread along a stretch of Atlantic Boulevard featuring bars and restaurants patronized by many college students on vacation, according to police.

Four Stayed Over-Night

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Early arrivals at the auto tag office in Charlotte were surprised to find four sleeping bags neatly lined up at the front door — with four teen-aged boys inside the zipped up bags.

1973 tags went on sale for the first time in the state today.

For years, zealous tag-buyers waited outside tag offices across the state to get a low number. But a few years ago, the Motor Vehicles Department changed the policy of issuing the one and two digit numbers first and this reduced the long vigils.

But around eight Monday night, the four Charlotte youths showed up at the downtown office, equipped with sleeping gear, hamburgers and other items to add to their comfort.

One said he had to wait in a long line last year and the four didn't have "anything better to do."

Ironically, only one of the four had a car.

Unemployment Near Constant

SAN JUAN (UPI)—Despite a highly successful industrial development program that is creating thousands of new manufacturing jobs each year, Puerto Rico's unemployment rate has remained at 10 to 12 per cent of the labor force for more than a decade, the Department of Labor reports. Two important reasons for this are increased population and a steady decline in the sugar industry.

Undergoes Hospital Tests

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor Edward G. Robinson, 79, is reported in satisfactory condition Monday at Mt. Sinai Hospital, where he was admitted Saturday night for a series of tests.

Robinson, famed for his movie tough-guy roles, had not been feeling well for some time, according to a hospital spokesman. But the nature of his illness has not been determined, the spokesman said Monday.

Only One

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP)—Only one person admitted to the Gaston County Rural Police Department here had a little to much to drink New Year's Eve and called for a police car to take him home.

A department spokesman also said Monday no one was arrested in the county for driving under the influence as 1973 began.

The experimental program aimed at curbing drunk driving offered rides from 10 p.m. Sunday to 1 a.m. New Year's day.

Pres. Nixon Found Self Locked Out

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon, a surprise visitor to the White House on New Year's Day, is said to have found himself locked out of his own Oval Office Monday morning.

Nixon, once expected to spend the entire holiday weekend at Camp David, Md., apparently upset security duty rosters—and other things—by returning from his mountaintop lodge Sunday night.

Although there is evidence that a few aides anticipated the quick return from Camp David, one White House official reported that when Nixon appeared at his Oval Office at 7:30 a.m. on New Year's Day he discovered, after futile wrestling with the doorknob, that routine security precautions were keeping him out of his own inner sanctum.

By all accounts, it did not take Nixon long to find a White House policeman—a uniformed member of the Executive Protection Service—who came up with a passkey.

The chief executive, who seems more apt to alter apparent plans the longer he remains in office—a point noted with some of his predecessors—gave no explanation for his helicopter return to the White House on one of the nation's traditional live-it-up holiday evenings.

True, Mrs. Nixon had left earlier in the day for Southern California to take part in Pasadena's Rose Bowl festivities where her old school, the University of Southern California, defeated Ohio State University's football team.

By all accounts, Nixon's only activity on New Year's Eve was to place a congratulatory phone call to Coach George Allen of the Washington Redskins, winners of the National Football Conference Championship. Allen, his wife, four children and two in-laws turned up at the White House at 10 a.m. Monday to enjoy Nixon's hospitality.

But that still does not explain why the President was jiggling the doorknob of his private office 2½ hours earlier, or what he did in the interim before entertaining the Allen clan.

Newsmen and photographers summoned to the White House to record a portion of the meeting between winning coach and winning 1972 presidential candidate noted that almost immediately thereafter, Nixon had deserted his Oval Office for hideaway quarters in the neighboring Executive Office Building. There and at Camp David, Nixon has said, he does his best thinking.

Acting Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said he had no idea what was occupying the President's attention during much of the holiday. Like policemen and others, Warren's observance of New Year's Day was amended to conform to the perhaps-mysterious working habits of his boss.

Peking Apparently Will Continue U.S. Contacts

By JOHN RODERICK
Associated Press Writer
TOKYO (AP) — Despite the Vietnam war, Communist China apparently plans to continue in 1973 its policy of contacts with the United States and other non-Community powers.

This is the between-the-lines meaning of a long, long New Year's message carried by the three most important publications in China: the Peking People's Daily, the Liberation Army Daily and the theoretical organ, Red Flag.

The way the papers put it, Communist Chairman Mao Tse-tung's "revolutionary line in foreign affairs"—the liberal approach begun with the Ping-Pong diplomacy of 1971—will be continued in this way.

The decision appears to have been reached while U.S. bombers were striking massively at the vitals of North Vietnam.

Though it condemned the bombing and promised, if it persisted, to give "usual" all-out support and aid to the Vietnamese Communists, the 'New Year message gave no hint that it would affect the improvement Chinese-American relations dating from President Nixon's visit to Peking last February.

The message made the usual attack on the "power politics" of the United States and the Soviet Union, but the harsh words were reserved for the Russians, described as guilty of the heinous Marxist sin of social-imperialism.

The message painted a black picture of Chinese who have fallen for the Soviet heresy, revisionism. It named fallen Chief of State Liu Shao-chi and, by implication, the late Defense Minister Lin Biao.

They not only betrayed the party and the country and became "renegades and traitors" but plotted to institute a fascist dictatorship made up of landlords, rich peasants, counter-revolutionaries, "bad elements" and rightists, it said.

Internationally, it said, they planned to join the Russians "to oppose China, Communism and the revolution." First priority in 1973, it said, must be the criticism and unmasking of this Soviet-inspired line.

The message said nothing about continuing tension on the Chinese-Soviet borders but emphasized the need to be ready for conflict.

USC, Rodgers Shine In Bowls

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Southern California's top-ranked Trojans, unleashing a seemingly unstoppable attack, and Heisman Trophy winner Johnny Rodgers of Nebraska, displaying the superb form that garnered him the honor emblematic of the nation's finest college player, have left no doubt they deserve their honors.

The Trojans, bolstered by Sam Cunningham's four touchdowns, forged a 42-17 Rose Bowl victory over Ohio State Monday and clinched the national college football championship.

Rodgers, although weakened by the flu, bolted for four touchdowns and passed for another as the Cornhuskers crushed Notre Dame 40-6 in the Orange Bowl. Texas upset Alabama 17-13 in the Cotton Bowl, rounding out New Year's Days' slate of bowl games.

"I tried hard tonight to prove I deserved it," Rodgers said of his Heisman selection. I think that's the longest game of my life. I've had the flu all week. I was really fatigued."

Rodgers, the 5-foot-9 speedster, scored on runs of eight, four and five yards, scored on a 50-yard pass play and rifled a 52-yard pass play and rifled a 52-yard TD bomb to Frosty Anderson.

"I threw a lot in high school," Rodgers said. "I knew that if we were able to fool them a little bit, I could get it to him." Rodgers took a lateral pass on the play and then lofted the ball to Anderson.

USC's Cunningham surged over from inside the two on all four of his touchdowns and sophomore Anthony Davis rushed for 157 yards as the Trojans erupted from a 7-7 halftime deadlock and overwhelmed the Buckeyes. Cunningham's efforts established a Rose Bowl scoring record.

"We didn't make any changes in strategy," explained USC Coach John McKay. "We just kicked the pants off them."

Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes said he felt the 1972 Southern California team was the best he had ever faced.

"You can run on them some—as we proved—but in the second half they passed us out of the park."

In the Sugar Bowl Sunday, Oklahoma blanked Penn State 14-0. In Bowl games Saturday, Auburn bombed Colorado 24-3 in the Gator Bowl, North Carolina beat Texas Tech 32-28 in the Sun Bowl, the East defeated the West 9-3 in the Shrine game and Tennessee beat Louisiana State 24-18 in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl.

Texas quarterback Alan Lowry scampered 34 yards for a touchdown on a bootleg play as the Longhorns upset Alabama and maintained Coach Darrell Royal's record of never having lost to a Bear Bryant-coached team.

Tinker Owens, a 17-year-old freshman, caught five passes for 132 yards and one touchdown as Oklahoma downed Penn State.

"I didn't think I'd be playing varsity ball this year," said Owens, brother of Oklahoma's Heisman Trophy winner Steve Owens. "I really can't believe it."

Trojans Have Sewn Up National Championship

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Even before the ballots are counted, the University of Southern California has overwhelmingly won the national collegiate football championship and convincingly continued the recent Rose Bowl superiority of the Pacific-8 over the Big Ten.

With a five-touchdown explosion in the second half, the Trojans battered Ohio State 42-17 Monday for their 12th victory in an undefeated season.

"I'm very tickled, but I've got to wait until they vote," said Trojan Coach John McKay of The Associated Press poll which he knew full well his team would capture with the same ease it handled Ohio State in the third and fourth quarters. Members of the AP selection board of newsmen and sportscasters vote this week after the bowl games.

No other coach has won three national championships — and McKay's Trojans won top honors in 1962 and 1967. Still he rates this 1972 aggregation as the best he has ever coached and some of those in the past included Heisman Trophy winners Mike Garrett and O. J. Simpson.

Senior fullback Sam "Bam" Cunningham, a 218-pound blocking star from Santa Barbara, Calif., set a Rose Bowl scoring record with four touchdowns — all on battering ram dives over the Ohio State goal line from inside the two-yard line.

He was voted the game's outstanding player from among challengers that included speedy sophomore halfback Anthony Davis, quarterback Mike Rae and defensive back Charles Phillips.

David carried 23 times for 157 yards and scored on one 20-yard dash. Rae hit 18 passes for 25 yards including a 10-yard touchdown pitch to Lynn Swann.

Phillips recovered a fumble by Ohio State's Archie Griffin on the Buckeye 38 in the opening period and set up the first touchdown. In the third stanza he intercepted a pass and ran it back 48 yards thwarting a Buckeye threat.

"You can run on them some," commented Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes. "We proved that. And then they passed us right out of the park."

A record Rose Bowl crowd of 106,869 saw the teams battle to a 7-7 halftime deadlock on a sunny but blustery afternoon. Then Southern California exploded.

The 42 points were the most ever scored against Hayes in his 22 years at Ohio State, the previous high total was 41 by Purdue, which won 41-6 in 1967.

Hayes left his post-game interview in a state of high dudgeon when a newsman asked him about an altercation with a photographer before the game.

Art Rogers, veteran photographer of the Los Angeles Times, said Hayes pushed his camera in his face when he tried to get a close-up shot of the coach. Rogers said he suffered double vision while trying to film the first half and then had to leave for treatment.

Ref Says Did Right

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — The Sun Bowl official whose personal foul call cost Texas Tech an apparent touchdown Saturday, says, "You either have a call to make or you haven't" and maintains that he did the right thing.

J. William "Bill" Davis called a 15-yard infraction on Tech for having a coach on the field. The penalty nullified a touchdown scored by Tech after blocking a point. North Carolina went on to win the game, 32-28.

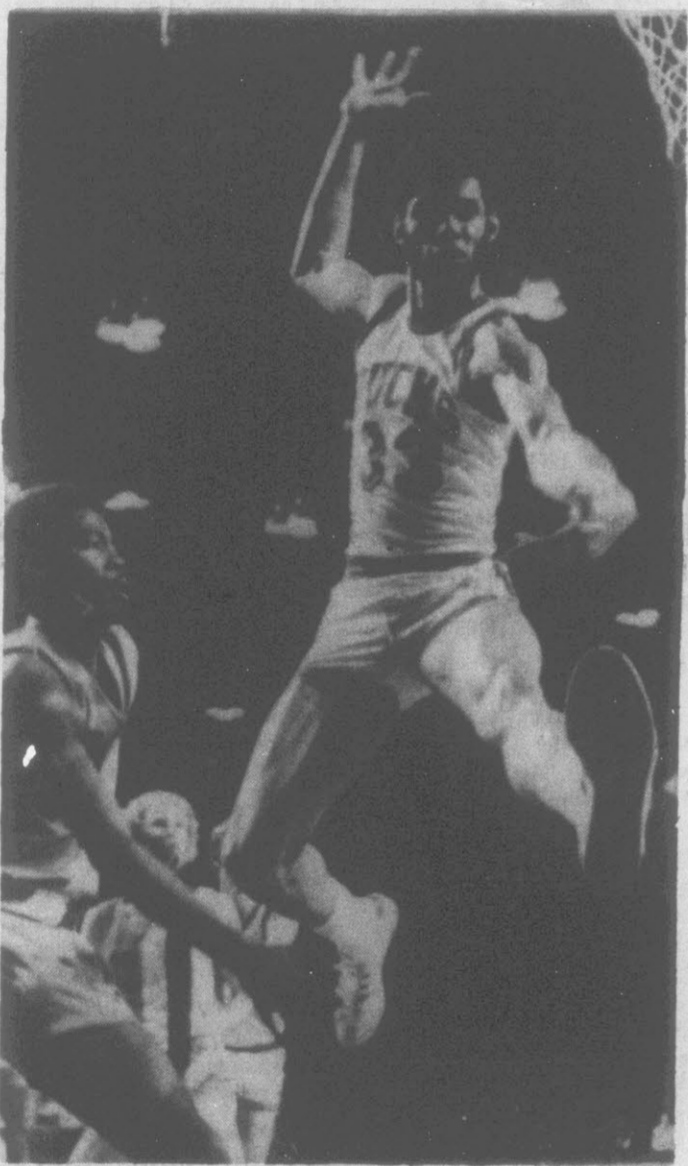

Adding to the controversy was the fact that Davis is an Atlantic Coast Conference official and lives about 70 miles from the UNC Chapel Hill campus.

Davis, in a telephone interview with the Raleigh News and Observer, said he was following the play when an unidentified man in red — Texas Tech's colors — stepped from the Tech bench area onto the field and into Davis's way.

"Not knowing their personnel, I don't know who it was. But he was impeding my progress and blocked my view and I immediately dropped my flag," Davis said, pinpointing the penalty call at a time before the touchdown was actually scored.

Davis said he has seen the same penalty enforced numerous times, and said he was "quite surprised" at the comments made by the referee after the game, who said the call was "a shame" and a "new one on me."

"I explained to the crew that I hated to make the call, but it was there. They had nothing to say at the time," Davis said.

Speeding Bullets Shoot Down Bucks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
What's faster than a speeding Bullet?

The Milwaukee Bucks didn't have the answer Monday night and as a result, lost an 88-87 National Basketball Association decision to the Baltimore Bullets.

Mike Riordan sped through the Milwaukee defense and delivered a jump shot with 57 seconds left to provide the Bullets with their triumph.

Riordan scored 23 points, overall as the Bullets beat the Bucks for the first time in 14 games. Milwaukee had taken Baltimore 13 straight times since Dec. 14, 1970.

The defeat, Milwaukee's second straight, cut the Bucks' lead in the Midwest Division to 2½ games over idle Chicago. The Bullets took a half-game advantage over Atlanta in the Central Division.

In the night's only other NBA game, the Los Angeles Lakers stopped the Seattle SuperSonics 108-103. No games were played in the American Basketball Association Monday and neither league had any scheduled Sunday.

Denver 136, New York 98; Virginia 120, Memphis 104; Carolina 104, Kentucky 91; Indiana 109, Dallas 101 and Utah 111, San Diego 89.

Riordan's decisive basket was a long jumper over Jon McGlockin. But it wasn't the play that was set up originally, said Riordan.

"We tried to get Elvin Hayes inside," Riordan explained. "But we had to inbound the ball with 10 seconds on the shot clock. I don't know how much time was left, but I knew there wasn't much. So I just tried to get some sort of shot up there and maybe Elvin or Wes Unseld could get the rebound."

Gail Goodrich and Jerry West provided the spark to power Los Angeles over Seattle.

Goodrich scored 17 points in a red-hot second quarter and West fired in 16 in the third period. Goodrich wound up with 35 points and West had 31.

Jim Hunter of the Oakland A's came closest to pitching a complete game in the 1972 World Series. Rollie Fingers was called on to get the last out in Hunter's 2-1 victory in the second game.

Now the Lobos are pointing for the championship in the Western Athletic Conference, in which Brigham Young is favored. The Lobos' first WAC games are Friday against Arizona State and Saturday against Arizona.

Davis Sparks Scoring In Southern League

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Stan Davis of Appalachian State, who finished third last year in his school's probationary season in the league, has taken a comfortable lead in the Southern Conference basketball scoring race.

The 6-foot-2 junior, one of the few bright spots in what has been a 1-8 season so far for the Mountaineers, has scored 221 points in nine games for a 24.6-point average.

Trailing Davis in the scoring race at this stage is a newcomer to the conference scene, 7-foot-1 sophomore Fessor Leonard of Furman, who has 163 points in eight games for a 20.4-point average.

In third place with a 17.9 average on 161 points in nine games is the player who finished fourth in last year's scoring derby, 6-foot-5 junior John Falconi of Davidson.

A freshman, 6-foot-5 Mike Arizin of William and Mary, is fourth. The son of former Villanova and National Basketball Association star Paul Arizin has 194 points in 11 games for a 17.6-point average.

Clyde Mayes, a 6-foot-9 sophomore who has teamed with Leonard to give Furman the biggest front line in the conference, is fifth with a 16.6 average on 133 points in eight games.

Sixth is Steve Fishel of The Citadel, one of only three seniors among the league's top 10 pointmakers. Fishel has 91 points in six games for a 15.2 average, just a shade ahead of Bulldog teammate Chuck Cordell, a junior who has 90 points in six games for a 15-point mark.

Rounding out the top 10 are junior Jeff Snider of Richmond, 104 points in seven games, 14.9; senior Earl Quash of East Carolina, 118 points in eight games, 14.8; and senior Roy Simpson of Furman, 114 points in eight games, 14.3.

Six of last year's top nine scorers are back, including the top four, but Davis and Falconi are the only ones in contention at the moment. Fishel is one notch ahead of his seventh-place finish.

Furman senior Russ Hunt, who won the scoring crown a year ago, has been overshadowed by Leonard and Mayes and has just 46 points in eight games for a 5.8-point average. His senior teammate, Simpson, was second last year but eight spots below that so far this season.

Another senior, Jeff Trammell of William and Mary, who finished sixth last season, has been playing with an injury and has scored 90 points in 11 games for an 8.2-point average.

On Saturday in the NBA, it was New York 100, Baltimore 98; Atlanta 120, Bullalo 110; Chicago 99, Milwaukee 92; Phoenix 107, Portland 104; Golden State 113, Kansas City-Omaha 107 and Boston 117, Philadelphia 107.

Allen Waited For Picture

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — "I'll tell you about this team," Washington defensive tackle Diron Talbert was saying. "We haven't even taken a team picture yet. The coach kept saying that we'd take it in Los Angeles. That's how confident he was."

George Allen's confidence paid off handsomely. His Redskins will have a chance to grin into the camera lens any time after next Sunday, when they arrive in California for the National Football League's Jan. 14 earthquake-Super Bowl VII.

Allen, so intensely involved in watching Washington dismantle Dallas' Doomsday defense, didn't even know who the 'Skins would be facing in the Super Bowl until running back Calvin Hill of the Cowboys "came up to me after the game and said, 'Good luck against Miami.'"

The Dolphins turned back the Pittsburgh Steelers 21-17 to win their second straight American Conference championship.

Then the Redskins, behind Billy Kilmer-to-Charley Taylor aerobatics, Curt Knight's radar kicking and a ferocious defense, throttled Dallas 26-3 for the National Conference title and their first trip to an NFL championship game since 1945.

On New Year's Day, the Washington coach savored the victory with some very select company—President Nixon. Allen and members of his family spent some time in the White House rose garden with the President, who commented: "I always root for the home team, and my home now is Washington."

If Allen had been confident in waiting to take the team picture, Nixon was downright prophetic.

"We are proud of our Redskins...and we will be even more proud when we wish them bon voyage for their trip to Los Angeles and the Super Bowl," the President had written to Allen way back in early September.

"A lot of people wrote us off as too old, too slow and too heavy," said Allen, who rebuilt a perennial loser into a champion with an 11-3 regular-season record in just two years. "Nobody wanted them. I just want to say they're a great group. You know, I kind of like that phrase, 'Over-the-Hill Gang.'"

Kilmer, who threw at the Dallas defense as though it wasn't even there, completed 14 of 18 passes for 194 yards. Two of them covering 15 and 45 yards, went to Taylor for the game's only touchdowns.

Knight established an NFL playoff mark with his four field goals, kicking three pointers from 18, 39, 46 and 45 yards out, amking him seven-for-seven in post-season play.

ANOTHER TOUCHDOWN FOR CUNNINGHAM — Fullback Sam (Bam) Cunningham (39) of Southern California dives into the end zone for his fourth touchdown against Ohio State past the outstretched arms of linebacker Arnie Jones, left. Cunningham fumbled the ball after he hit the ground, but he had already scored. In the background is quarterback Pat Hayden who fed the handoff to Cunningham. USC walloped the Big Ten co-champions, 42-17. (AP Wirephoto)

Clemente's Death Saddens Baseball

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Danny Murtaugh, a tobacco chewing traditionalist, and Dick Williams, the mod manager of the Oakland A's, each said they had the highest respect for baseball superstar Roberto Clemente, who died because he wanted to help someone else.

"Roberto was the greatest player I've ever seen," declared Murtaugh, who once managed Clemente with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"He was the greatest ballplayer I ever watched," Williams echoed Monday, upon learning of the 38-year-old Pirate right-fielder's death.

Clemente was killed in a plane which crashed in the choppy Atlantic Sunday night while en route from Puerto Rico to Nicaragua with supplies for earthquake victims.

Players, dignitaries and the fans Clemente loved best joined in mourning the loss of far more than just a ballplayer.

Clemente's fellow Pirates, most of whom planned to charter a plane to Puerto Rico later this week, were numbed by the loss.

"Pittsburgh lost a heck of a man," said brawny Willie Stargell, reduced to tears. "His work with the relief effort was typical. He was always trying to help someone."

Pitcher Steve Blass, who often aimed friendly jibes at Clemente, remembered him as a sometimes misunderstood person whose character was hidden from the public.

"He went about helping others in an unspectacular way," Blass said haltingly. "I don't think we as teammates knew him as well as we could have, but I think we knew him better than some of the fans."

Pirate General Manager Joe L. Brown flew to Puerto Rico to console Clemente's wife and three young sons.

"I'm really not thinking of the ball club. I'm thinking of Roberto and his family," Brown said. "He was a wonderful, wonderful person. It's a personal loss, a loss to baseball and a loss to all the world."

Pirate Manager Bill Virdon was at his home in Springfield, Mo., when he learned of the crash.

"When you think of baseball and Pittsburgh you think of Clemente," Virdon said. "There will be a definite void."

Clemente had loyal fans of all ages, and most heard news of his death over the radio when they awoke New Year's Day.

"He was never too busy to sign autographs for kids. For him it was a pleasure to do it," said Mrs. Henry Kantrowitz, who along with her husband was a personal friend of the Clemente family.

They visited Clemente's Puerto Rican home recently, but left because he was so engrossed in the relief work.

"He was putting in 14 hours a day," said Mr. Kantrowitz. "As a matter of fact, when I brought him food to eat he wouldn't even eat it."

Meanwhile, words of praise were heard from ballplayers from around the major league. Cincinnati Reds' pitcher Gary Nolan recalled talking to Clemente after a National League playoff game last season.

"It was the day after I pitched and he told me I struck him out on a great curve ball," Nolan said.

"He said he'd be waiting on it the next time," Nolan added. "I guess there won't be a next time. Will there?"

Wilbur Wood, Chicago White Sox pitcher who once played for Pittsburgh, said "He was always a gentleman, a fine fellow at all times."

"He didn't act like a superstar," he added, "just like another ballplayer. He was in a class by himself."

Johnny Pesky, former Boston Red Sox star who once coached at Pittsburgh, said, "It's just terrible."

"I used to tell him he was the best hitter I had since Ted Williams," Pesky noted. "And he'd beam. He has to be one of the greatest who ever lived, in a class with Williams, DiMaggio, Aaron and Mays."

Dick Williams manager of the A's, recalled how one of his young outfielders said last season that he would try to emulate Clemente.

"I told him that if he could become one-third the ballplayer Clemente was, he'd make me very happy," said Williams.

Jones Named Player Of Week

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Junior Bobby Jones, who scored 49 points and hauled down 27 rebounds in leading ninth-ranked North Carolina to the championship in the Rainbow Classic at Honolulu, has been selected the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball player of the week.

The 6-foot-9 Charlotte, N.C., native—one of three ACC players in the U.S. Olympic basketball team last summer—had his top scoring performance in the championship game against Louisville with 24 points. The Tar Heels won the game and the tournament, 89-86.

Coach Dean Smith called Jones' performance in the tournament "amazing."

Jones' selection was made by a committee of the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association, who earlier named Wake Forest's Tony Byers as the ACC rookie of the week. Byers was voted the most valuable player in last week's Palmetto Classic, won by Deacons.

Two of the conference's three nationally-ranked teams are in action tonight, although fourth-ranked North Carolina State's home game against Athletes in Action is only an exhibition.

In tonight's only other action, Kent State is at College Park to play Maryland's second-ranked Terps. Maryland is 7-0.

Action picks up Wednesday when Duke is at Virginia for a conference game and Niagara will be at Clemson. Virginia Military plays Furman at Charlotte Thursday. Three conference games are on tap for Saturday, with Maryland going to Clemson, Duke visiting Wake Forest and N.C. State playing at Virginia. In another Saturday game, North Carolina tangles with Nebraska at Greensboro.

Complex Man Known As Clemente Died As He Lived, Giving Aid

By GARY MIHOSES
Associated Press Sports Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Those who were close to Roberto Clemente say it was almost as tough to know him as it was to strike him out.

His untimely death not only cut short one of the greatest careers in baseball history, but the life of a complex man whose personality was misunderstood by some, over-simplified by others.

He had a public image as baseball's leading hypochondriac, yet he ran out every infield grounder in his career as if the World Series were at stake.

He was proud of his skills and often berated reporters for what he believed was unfair press treatment of Latinos. Yet he never forgot his teammates, the fans or the little people.

He was a staunch believer in the Players' Association, and also gave freely of his time and money to charity work that often went unnoticed, just like he wanted it.

When he was killed Sunday night in a plane crash off the coast of his native Puerto Rico, he was on a mission of mercy to deliver supplies to survivors of the Nicaraguan earthquake.

He had been working 14 hours a day since Christmas in heading the Puerto Rican relief effort, and he rarely ate while consuming his passion to help others.

Roberto Clemente the baseball player was a perfectly constructed 185-pounder, who did so many things so well in his 18-year career that he is assured a niche in the baseball Hall of Fame.

The records books show that Clemente recorded his 3,000th hit on Sept. 30 of last season against the Mets. That was something only 10 other players had ever done.

He also had more hits and more runs batted in while wearing a Pirate uniform than any other player, and he won four National League batting titles in compiling a .319 lifetime average.

Yet the record books cannot mirror the real Roberto Clemente, the man in uniform No. 21, whose wizardry in right field, at the plate and on the basepaths made him Mr. Pirate.

His style was unorthodox and a Little League manager might have benched him for it, yet any pitch he could reach could be a line single or a towering homerun.

He had speed on the basepaths, and he could run down seemingly unreachable shots in the rightfield gap. His basket catches made routine plays look hard, and his great catches made hard plays look easy.

Despite his unmistakable skills, Clemente always believed that baseball writers never fully recognized his ability.

In 1960, for example, the Pirates won the World Series, but Dick Groat was the National League MVP, not Clemente.

He was hurt deeply by the choice and would not wear his World Series ring. Instead, he wore his All-Star ring, which he believed was the true measure of his skills.

Perhaps his greatest individual recognition came in 1971 when he led Pittsburgh to victory over Baltimore in the World Series.

Last season, about with the virus and sore ankle tendons left him sub-par physically, but he still hit .312 in 102 games and helped Pittsburgh to the National League East Title.

He was selected to 12 All-Star games after coming to Pittsburgh in 1954 from the Los Angeles Dodger organization for the bargain draft price of $4,000.

Many baseball observers link the coup in acquiring Clemente to the quota system which once restricted entry of blacks into the big leagues.

The 38-year-old son a sugar cane plantation foreman was signed by the Dodgers seven years after Jackie Robinson broke baseball's color barrier.

There were five black players on the Dodgers' parent club that year, and Clemente was signed to a minor league contract even though it meant the risk of losing him in the draft.

Pittsburgh finished last that season and promptly drafted the man who would become the greatest player in the club's history.

Clemente's private life centered around his humanitarian work and his wife, Vera, and three young sons. He reportedly was paid about $150,000 per year and expected to play another four or five years.

Dolphins Want Win This Time

PITTSBURGH AP — After a stopover in Pittsburgh, the Miami Dolphins are taking the high road to the Super Bowl. It's Los Angeles or bust. "We've been to the Super Bowl already but we want to get there and win for a change," says Miami Coach Don Shula.

The Dolphins, who lost last year's National Football League championship game to the Dallas Cowboys, earned a return trip this year by beating the Pittsburgh Steelers 21-17 Sunday for the American Conference title.

The Dolphins will play the Washington Redskins Jan. 14 for the world title. The Redskins walloped the Cowboys Sunday for the National Conference championship.

"The Steelers are a young team and a tough team and you'll hear a lot from them in the next few years," said Shula.

Miami's heroics were provided by punter Larry Seiple, who ran a fake punt 37 yards to set up the tying score in the second quarter, and quarter back Bob Griese, who led the Dolphins to a pair of second-half TDs after taking over for starter Earl Morrall.

"It has to be the most exciting thing in my career," said Seiple, a former running back in college. "I knew by the films that the Steelers run two guys from the outside and leave the middle open. Most of the time, their guys have their backs to the ball."

Seiple, therefore, took advantage of the Steelers' inattention and ran off the key play. "It was a very alert play," said Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll.

Despite the loss, Noll's Steelers weren't down. "We are going to go all the way next season," declared defensive end Dwight White.

"Say, I'm ready to go to camp right now."

Most other Steelers expressed similar sentiments, but at the same time, many conceded the end of the season, even though it came two weeks earlier than they had hoped, was a welcome relief.

"Of course I wish the season would have lasted two weeks longer," said defensive tackle Joe Green. "But this is the longest season I've ever played and I'm read for a rest."

Stan Bahnsen, traded by the New York Yankees to the Chicago White Sox for Rich McKinney—now in the minors—won his 11th game of the season on July 8. He beat Detroit 5-2.

PROFIT SQUEEZE

MANY BUSINESSMEN ARE CAUGHT in a "profit squeeze" these days. The cost of operating a business is going up. Credit and collection problems may actually mean a loss in earnings.

ONE LOCAL BUSINESSMAN who operates his (or her) own business in your neighborhood is affected by the profit squeeze. The young carrier-salesman who delivers your newspaper every day can have collection problems too.

IT'S IMPORTANT TO your carrier to collect in full from every customer. When a customer is slow in paying, or asks the carrier to come back time after time, there's that much less profit for the carrier.

YOU CAN HELP these young businessmen avoid the "profit squeeze" by having your payment ready for your carrier on the very first call.

THANKS FOR HELPING.

A Review

Vivid Lesson In Billie's Tragedy

Someone said of Billie Holiday's death, "She died of everything." After seeing the movie biography of the great blues singer in Lady Sings The Blues, one can understand the truth of that statement.

"Lady Day" as she was known, was born Eleanora Fagan in Baltimore in 1915. Born out of wedlock, she suffered abuse from her family and ridicule from others. Billie spent two days in jail after being raped. She was ten years old when that happened. Later, she was sent to jail for prostitution.

Billie got her first opportunity to sing in a night club. Eventually, she travelled around the country with a white band. One of the band members introduced her to dope, the beginning of her downfall. A plea to give up drugs from her boyfriend failed, and she was sent to a rehabilitation home.

Here, however, the long arm of the law caught up with her.

She was arrested and sent to prison. After release from jail, she attempted a comeback which hopefully could earn her permission to perform in New York.

The desire for drugs is a strong one, and Billie fell victim again while performing in California. Her piano player got her the drugs, and later he was beaten to death.

Miss Holiday reached the height of her career in a memorable performance in New York's Carnegie Hall. Success, however, was brief. Unable to break the drug habit, Billie died at the age of 44 in the middle of a great career.

Diana Ross is fantastic in the role of Billie Holiday's tragic life. She does not merely emulate the sound of Miss Holiday, but gives meaning and life to the type of music that Miss Holiday sang.

Supporting Miss Ross, Billy Dee Williams (Brian's Song) in the role of Billie's only boy friend who later became her husband, plays his part with conviction. Richard Pryor is the piano player who recognized Billie's talent. He is believable as the friend who remained faithful to Billie until his untimely death.

Lady Sings the Blues is more than the story of a singer. It's a graphic example of what drugs can lead to. The movie pinpoints the crippling effects of drugs. It also brings back vivid memories of the talents of Miss Holiday, one of the great singers of her time.

Lady Sings The Blues is showing until Thursday at the Park Theater.

FARM AUCTION

Treasure hunting through the offerings. If you're going to buy something, you'd better look it over real good.

What d'you bid?
If the flavor of real country life appeals to you, catch it at one of those old-time farm auctions now disappearing from the American scene, but still turning up here and there away from the beaten track.
This one was held in Oklahoma's Frisco Community, to settle the estate of a longtime county resident. For sale were modern equipment, furniture and chattels—and items dating back to prestatehood days. Bows for a covered wagon; a set of points and wrenches for a Model T Ford; an iron-wheeled wagon that had been stored in a barn since the 1930s and had never got wet.
Any auction has its economic function. But a sale of this kind has far more meaning than that. There's always a faint overtone of sadness, yet the entire affair is pure holiday, too.

Photographed by J. Don Cook.

There's something at the sale for everyone—and a strong flavor of nostalgia.

"What am I bid?" Auctioneer Donald Meeks holds up a silver tray for prospective buyers to see.

The weather is fine, the crowds roll in. The sale has a social function, too, and there's the traditional "dinner on the grounds."

Now's the time to tool up.

The Worry Clinic Horse Sense Can Hold Audience

Gen. Hershey, at 79, runs circles around most of our clergymen in public speaking. For he watches his audience; mixes relevant humor adroitly with his serious pronouncements; then ends with a punchy terminal statement.

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

CASE V-584: Gen Lewis, B. Hershey, now aged 79, should really be called the world's foremost personnel psychologist.

For he helped devise and later directed our Selective Service System through World War II and later conflicts.

Like George Washington, he retired from active military service as a Major General in 1946.

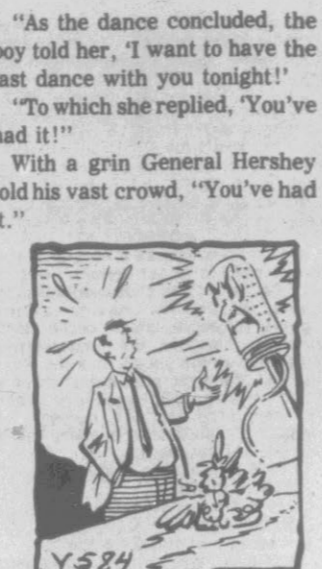

But President Truman again made him Director of Selective Service in 1947.

Earlier this year we shared the platform for a splendid Flag Day celebration.

As a preliminary introduction for Gen. Hershey, I lauded his Hoosier "Horse Sense."

For he started life as a country school teacher in Northern Indiana, and then became a school principal.

He is still a dynamo of energy and a snappy public speaker who mixes humor and witticisms with his pungent oratory.

"I'd rather see a teenager trying to imitate those much older than his years," the General declaimed, "Then witness and older man trying to act kiddish."

He delivered a punchy 18-minute address, well interspersed with appropriate jokes.

And he got a standing ovation for his abrupt conclusion, wherein he said:

"An awkward, inexperienced high school boy was dancing with a cute coed classmate.

"She winced several times when he would step on her toes.

Then he left the microphone and sat down, amid vociferous applause.

Many laymen tend to think a General may deliver a dry, documentary address.

But Generals and Admirals, as well as college presidents, usually obtain a vast amount of public speaking experience.

For they are called upon to face literally hundreds of audiences.

So they usually become very adept in the use of public platform psychology.

For a man who becomes a top military officer, or church bishop, college president of eminent politician, must have a very high I.Q.

If he then fortifies his clever mind with practical experience ("Horse Sense") he can hold an audience captivated.

For there are very definite rules of public speaking but, alas, many clergymen ignore them.

Any smart person, aspiring to reach the top in his field, whether that be athletics, business or oratory, should analyze the leaders in his specialty and imitate their technique.

Yet many clergymen are

Opening lead: Deuce of clubs
When South overcalled East's opening one club bid, North felt that his partnership had the assets for a game undertaking inasmuch as he had 15 high card points himself. There was no adequate direct call available to him since he had no club stopper. He therefore made a false cue bid of two clubs in order to gain more information from his partner. When South merely re-bid two spades, North proceeded directly to game in that suit.

West opened the deuce of clubs and East won the first trick with the queen. He cashed the king and continued with the ace which declarer ruffed.

The situation was desperate for South. The defense had two tricks in, and the only apparent way to avoid losing more than one trump was to find West with specifically the ace and another spade. By leading up to dummy's king and then ducking on the return, he could tell the ace without using up an honor, provided, of course, that West has a doubleton.

The nine of clubs was led and East realized that if he ruffed with the eight of spades, declarer would merely overruff inasmuch as West was obliged to follow suit. East, therefore, ruffed with the ten, obliging South to top him with the queen.

The nine of spades was put thru and West alertly covered with the jack. North played the king and East the ace. The latter's eight of spades scored the setting trick since South was left with the six.

New Airport Is A First Choice

GRAPEVINE, Tex. (UPI) — The new Dallas-Fort Worth airport will be one of the first choices of Lufthansa when the German airline wins service rights to additional gateway cities in the United States, says Hans Suessenguth, Lufthansa's chief executive for traffic and sales. He says the airport "is not only a new airport, but one for the future," and would make it easier to serve passengers.

Find Couple Fatally Shot

CONCORD, N.C. (AP)—Lawmen in Cabarrus County tentatively have ruled murder-suicide in the rifle deaths of a retired chicken farmer and his elderly sister.

The bodies of Ralph Wilson Seaford, 61, and Miss Eshter Seaford were found in their Odell Community home Sunday morning by Seaford's wife, Nannette, and a 9-year-old nephew who lived with the Seafords.

Police said both had been shot in the head.

Autopsy reports revealed that Miss Seaford had been shot at least four times in the head, once at close range, and her brother also had been wounded in the head at close range.

A .22-caliber rifle was found near Seaford's body. Sheriff's deputies said there was nothing to indicate foul play.

Seaford worked as a newspaper carrier for The Concord Tribune following his retirement from poultry farming.
