Newtown Bid Opening To Be Jan. 11

Bid openings for the Newtown Project have been scheduled again for Jan. 11 at 2 p.m., according to Cameron Dudley of the architectural firm of Dudley & Shoe.

Dudley told Housing Authority commissioners Tuesday night that he made a trip to Greensboro recently to discuss the project with Department of Housing and Urban Development officials and they suggested a schedule of changed in the unit specifications that should cut project costs.

Changes involve various aspects of the unit makeup, as well as some areas of design, he said.

The first bids received for the project were rejected last month by commissioners because they exceeded project prototype costs and funds expected by the Authority from HUD that would have adjusted the budget were not released.

Dudley said that the changed offered by HUD, as well as some alterations he has proposed, should bring the project costs down to a level where bids should be more in line with the budget.

In one other item on a brief business agenda, the tenant occupancy report submitted by Mrs. Sallye C. Streeter, director of tenant affairs, indicated that all 453 units operated by the Authority were rented during December.

She reported that the 65 units in N.C. 22-1 (Meadowbrook) were occupied and rent averaged $36.23. All 160 units in N.C. 22-2 (Kearny Park) were rented during December and resident paid an average of $36.49 in rent.

In N.C. 22-3 (Moyewood) the 188 units were occupied and rent averaged $38.49 while all 40 units in N.C. 22-4 (Moyewood) were rented during the month and resident paid an average rent of $33.68.

Urges Senate Take Steps On War

Mansfield For Disinvolvement

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield called on the Senate today to take whatever steps are necessary to end the Vietnam war as mounting foreign and domestic challenges to President Nixon's policies marked the start of the 93rd Congress.

In the wake of Tuesday's House Democratic vote in favor of an immediate cutoff of funds for the war, Mansfield told Democratic senators that Congress has "no choice" but to seek total U.S. disinvolvement because of the executive branch's failure to do so.

He also declared that the November election gave the Senate a mandate "to exercise our separate and distinct constitutional role in the operation of the federal government.

"The people have not chosen to be governed by one branch of government alone," Mansfield told the closed party caucus. "They have not asked for government by a single party. Rather, they have called for reinforcement of the Constitution's checks and balances."

Both Senate Democrats and Republicans met to re-elect their leaders and settle other party issues before the noon scheduled opening of a Congress controlled, as have been the last 10, by the Democrats.

Neither Mansfield nor Senate GOP Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania had any announced opposition.

Similarly, House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford was expected to be chosen again by acclamation at his party's caucus.

House Democrats met Tuesday and voted 154 to 75 to support legislation to cut off war funds at once, subject only to provisions for the return of U.S. prisoners and safe conduct for withdrawing American forces.

Meanwhile, top Senate Democrats joined in a court effort to force the Nixon administration to spend highway money that Congress voted.

To Get First Aid Kits, Extinguishers

Board Plans Act On School Bus Needs

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

Thomas Craft, associate superintendent of Pitt County Schools, Tuesday advised Pitt Board of Education members of the State Board of Education's policy on placing fire extinguishers and first aid kits on school buses.

Craft, instructed to check on the matter at the last board meeting, said the Transportation Division indicated the items should be placed on all buses. However, the state department has not pushed the use of these items because of their misuse in the past.

Craft said the state department will furnish fire extinguishers and first aid kits for buses that have not previously had them.

Craft suggested that a meeting with the county school principals be held to see what steps could be taken to keep the kits and extinguishers on the buses in good condition. He was asked to report to the board after the meeting to see what recommendations had been made.

A certificate was presented to Mrs. Doris Murphy who is retiring after teaching for 25 and one-half years. Retiring teacher, Mrs. Tureatha Burge, who was unable to attend the meeting, was also recognized for her services as a teacher for 34 and one half years. Mrs. Burge taught at Sam D. Bundy, Farmville, while Mrs. Murphy was a member of the Grifton School faculty.

Board members adopted a resolution of respect for Richard K. Worsley, a former member of the board. Worsley served on the board for seven years, from December, 1965 until December, 1972.

According to the resolution, Worsley was diligent and faithful in attending the board meetings and working on special committees of the board; he always placed uppermost in his mind consideration for that which was felt to be in the best interest of the students being served in all of Pitt County; and he strove constantly to maintain open lines of communications between the Pitt County Board of Education and the Greenville City Board of Education.

During his term on the board, Worsley served as vice chairman from

To Renovate ABC Offices

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Commissioners yesterday gave tentative approval to a plan to renovate offices used by the Pitt County ABC Board at the intersection of Second and Cotanche Streets for use by other county agencies.

The ABC Board has plans to move its present offices to the site of their West End Circle store and warehouse in order to consolidate the warehouse and administrative office operations.

The proposal includes housing the Pitt County Board of Elections, the county electrical inspector and the county fire marshall — all now located in the Court House in the ABC building on Second Street. In addition, the offices of the Pitt County Development Commission, now located in rental space near the court house, would be moved into the ABC facility.

Included in the proposal is the renovation of the present offices and construction of a storage room, lobby and three additional rooms.

The ABC store now housed in the building will not be affected by the use of the office space by the county. The new construction would provide an entrance on Second Street for use by the Development Commission and Board of Elections, while the Fire Marshall and Electrical Inspector would use the present ABC Board office entrance.

Cost of the project is expected to be about $18,000.

Committees were appointed yesterday to consider a plant to dispose of junked cars throughout the county and to consider the sale of the Tucker Building — used by the county to house offices of the County Farm and Home Econnomics Agents — to the Greenville Redevelopment Commission.

Charles Gaskins, who served as board chairman last year, was presented with a certificate of appreciation by other members of the board for his service as head of the board.

Preparations Underway For Resuming Peace Negotiations In Paris

PARIS (AP) — Preparations were under way today for resumption of both sets of Vietnam peace talks in Paris.

North Vietnam's chief peace negotiator, Le Duc Tho, left Hanoi for Paris and more sessions next week with Henry A. Kissinger.

U.S. sources said the North Vietnamese also agreed to the American proposal for a meeting Thursday of the weekly four-party, semipublic talks. The North Vietnamese walked out of the meeting Dec. 21 in protest against the bombing of Hanoi and Haiphong.

Teams of American and North Vietnamese technical experts met again this morning at St. Nom la Breteche, a Paris suburb.

Their nuts-and-bolts negotiations — cleaning up details according to decisions from high-level talks — have remained secret. Observers look to Thursday's semipublic talks for first hints at the respective positions going into the top-level secret talks set to resume Monday.

Tho conferred in Peking with Premier Chou En-lai, the official Hsinhua news agency reported, and was expected to make a second stopover in Moscow on his way to Paris for the new round of talks with Kissinger.

Their negotiations have been recessed since Dec. 13, but they scheduled further meetings after the United States called off its aerial blitz of the Hanoi-Haiphong area.

A delegation of Pitt Republicans will be among those gathering in Raleigh tomorrow and Friday for activities highlighted by the inauguration of the state's first GOP governor in 72 years.

According to Dick Greene, chairman of the Pitt County Republican Executive Committee, the county will be well represented at the two days of inaugural events that begin tomorrow officially at 4 p.m. and continue through Friday night's reception at the Legislative Building.

Greene said that many Pitt Republicans indicated that they will attend only the inauguration, scheduled for 12 noon Friday, although other members of the county GOP delegation plan to remain in Raleigh for the full round of activities.

Among those from Pitt County expected to be on hand for the inauguration of James E. Holshouser Jr. are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Steinbeck, their daughter Jensina and her escort Maurice Sheppard, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Browning, Herb Lee, Dr. and Mrs. Ira Hardy, Dr. and Mrs. Allen Taylor, Dr. and Mrs. Sellers Crisp, Dr. and Mrs. William Monroe, Dr. and Mrs. William McConnell;

Breakout Leader Captured

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Authorities reported today that John King, who led 14 felons in escaping Tuesday night, has been captured in his home county of Henderson. They said the handgun used in the escape was taken from him.

Another prisoner, Jimmy Wooten, was captured in Greene County, Tenn., after a Mustang car, one of three vehicles the prisoners took at the Craggy prison unit near Asheville, was recovered in Greene County.

The escapees, described by officials as dangerous, also brandished three knives and took the night duty sergeant, Jerry McMillan, as hostage temporarily during the well-planned breakout.

No shots were fired and no one was injured in the unusually calm break — the biggest in recent memory at the N.C. Department of Corrections unit on State Highway 191. It is a maximum-security unit.

"I was in my office doing nightly reports when I looked up and saw inmate John King standing about three feet away from me with a .32 caliber revolver pointed at me," McMillan said.

"I guess you know what this is," McMillan quoted King.

"No, John, I don't," McMillan said he answered.

McMillan said he looked out into the lobby and saw if "full of inmates. They were holding knives to three officers' throats."

McMillan quoted King as saying, "We're going out the front gate and we're taking you with us."

Holshouser Fills More Positions

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Gov.-elect Jim Holshouser today filled three more cabinet-level positions in North Carolina state government, which he will head after Friday's inauguration ceremonies.

The new appointments are:

—Mrs. Grace J. Rohrer of Winston-Salem, secretary of the Department of Art, History and Culture.

—David L. Jones of Fayetteville, secretary of the Department of Social Rehabilitation and Control.

—And, Tenney I. Deane Jr. of Raleigh, secretary of the Department of Commerce.

Meters To Go

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP)— The Burlington City Council voted unanimously Tuesday night to remove the 636 parking meters which dot the city's downtown streets.

The meters will be replaced, effective immediately, with free two hour parking. The council's action followed a five month trial program of free downtown parking.

The Tuesday night meeting was jammed with business and professional men who supported the free parking program. They said it would make the downtown business area more competitive with outlying shopping centers which provide free parking.

Public Works Department employes were to begin this morning removing the parking meters.

Reinstated

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Wildlife Commission voted 5-3 today to reinstate Clyde Patton as its executive director, a post from which he was fired Dec. 18.

The vote to reinstate Patton was identical to the one which ousted him from the post he had held since 1948.

Face Loss Of Their Hospital

ROBERSONVILLE, N.C. (AP)—This northeastern North Carolina farming and industrial town of 1,600 population is faced with the loss of its hospital unless it can find four registered nurses.

At present the 13-bed hospital has only one, Mrs. Otha Dixon, who was born and raised in the community.

The hospital board says it has been advised by the Social Security Administration that unless the hospital can provide the services of registered nurses around theclock, it will forfeit its participation in the Medicare and Medicaid programs. The board says it will need four more nurses to meet the requirement. It also says that without the Medicare and Medicaid payments the hospital cannot continue in operation.

Mrs. Jesse Robinson, a saleswoman who has been chosen to try to recruit nurses, says, "We offer adequate pay, equivalent to the larger hospitals around us. Most of the time people are asking for money. We're not. We're asking for people. We can pay their salaries."

If the hospital closes, residents will have to travel 12 miles on a heavily traffic highway to a new 50-bed facility in Williamston, the Martin County seat.

Farmville Board Turns Attention To Recreation In Jan. Meet

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE — Recreation received much attention from the Farmville Board of Commissioners who met last night.

A Department of Recreation and Parks was created, with John Roberson, hired Dec. 1, named director of recreation and parks.

Town attorney Jack Lewis was asked to look into the legalities of how best to preserve parkland in the town. He had suggested that perhaps the matter should be put to the voters before any land already designated as parkland could be used for another purpose, however worthy.

The Commissioners agreed to pay the Farmville Schoo· Advisory Council $20 a night for use of the Farmville Junior High School gymnasium.

Roberson reported that practice by several adult basketball teams will start right away and karati classes are scheduled to begin Jan. 23. The midget league is to be expanded to include "farm teams," he said.

The Board acknowledged with appreciation a letter from Principal John H. McKnight thanking the Farmville Police Department for showing a film on law enforcement at the Sam D. Bundy Primary School.

A letter from Carolina Power and Light Company was read. It gave notice of the company's intentions to institute a 13 to 14 per cent rate increase that would necessitate the raising of the town's electric rates.

The need to reopen a ditch that should drain the section of town where Pine Grove Apartments is located was discussed. The cost will be about 30 cents per foot for almost 5,000 feet, Town Engineer Jack McDavid. He suggested that the town try to get a 20-foot wide easement, since it will be its permanent responsibility to keep this vital drainage channel open.

Town Administrator Andy Martin was asked to check with Street Department director E. P. Freuler about making a priority list for ditches that the town needs to tile.

The Town Attorney was asked to check on the provisions of a contract with the Powell Brothers Building Contractor concerning a request for paving of Martha Loop in the Powell subdivision.

A low bid of $3,009.83 was accepted from Deal's Auto and Tire Service for a new police car.

Martin was asked to have someone at the February meeting to discuss the bonding of town employees.

Someone from the League of Municipalities will be here within the next few weeks to discuss revenue sharing in detail, Martin said. He promised to notify all the commissioners when the talk will take place.

The Police Information Network equipment will be installed within the next two or three weeks, Martin said he has been informed.

Martin said he will seek to invest at the best possible rate $100,000 of the town's money for 90 days.

Town representatives have been asked to meet, along with officials from the Collins and Aikman Plant near here, with members of the Water and Air Resources staff in Raleigh, Martin said. The date of the meeting is Jan. 11.

The possibility of buying land on the Chinquapin Road for a site for a new sewage treatment plant was discussed, but no action was taken.

Class Studies Loneliness

By JACK ALEY
Associated Press Writer

LEWISTON, Maine (AP) — "My husband died three years ago and I can't stand it in the evenings."

The widow is sick of loneliness. In a search for help she recently joined 40 other persons in a darkened classroom at Bates College to take a look at this premise:

"To love is to experience loneliness, to be human is to be lonely and to be human is to die."

That unflinching logic belongs to Dr. William Sadler Jr., the architect of an unusual series of workshops at Bates called "Loneliness in America."

The widow, to Sadler, experiences "personal" loneliness. He identifies three other kinds of the malaise: cosmic, cultural and social. The personal kind, caused mainly by separation from a loved one, is the toughest to take.

"If you get hit with all four kinds of loneliness at once, watch out," Sadler tells the group. The cumulative result can be rage, collapse or suicide.

Sadler, a 41-year-old sociology professor at Bates, considers loneliness a subtle and dangerous social disease that has been evaded and misunderstood too long.

"In these workshop sessions we hope to learn from others," Sadler says. "By working together we can come to a better understanding of loneliness and discover ways of responding to it creatively."

Sadler arrived at his present notions of loneliness through the improbable back doors of love and friendship. "I gave a course at Bates entitled 'The Patterns of Love and Friendship' and found the discussion inevitably came around to loneliness," he said.

His subsequent studies led to the workshop and a book in the works on loneliness, a subject Sadler feels has been sadly ignored by the social sciences.

But it hasn't been ignored by the province of fine arts and the workshop the widow entered deftly uses them to explore the problems of loneliness.

First, she sits for 30 minutes listening to folk music suggestive of the kinds of loneliness Sadler will define — John Lennon's "Isolation" and Simon and Garfunkel's "Sounds of Silence," musical portraits of personal and social estrangement.

Meanwhile, in the darkened classroom, slides of paintings are being projected to complement the music. Picasso's "Guitar Player" from his blue period does nicely.

Sadler then moves to the lecturn. But to keep the participants' "gut" awareness awake, he keeps coming back to projected paintings to illustrate his point.

"We have designed a life style that guarantees every time we turn a corner we bump into loneliness," the soft-spoken sociologist tells the group.

Then he points out the central paradox responsible for much of the estrangement in America. Loneliness is the "surprise spinoff" of something most Americans have viewed as very desirable — wealth. Just as money buys our anonymous motels, single-room dormitories and private automobiles — in short, privacy — it also buys loneliness, he says.

All too often, Sadler says, that wealth has brought us away from nature, that isolation being a part of cosmic loneliness.

"Note how the girl in Andrew Wyeth's 'Christina's World' is depicted as somehow remote from the field she lies in," Sadler says pointing to the picture flashed on the screen behind him. "And see how a similar situation is treated by a French impressionist painter in a different, perhaps less lonely culture. Claude Monet's girl is painted as a part of, almost merging with, the field and flowers around her.

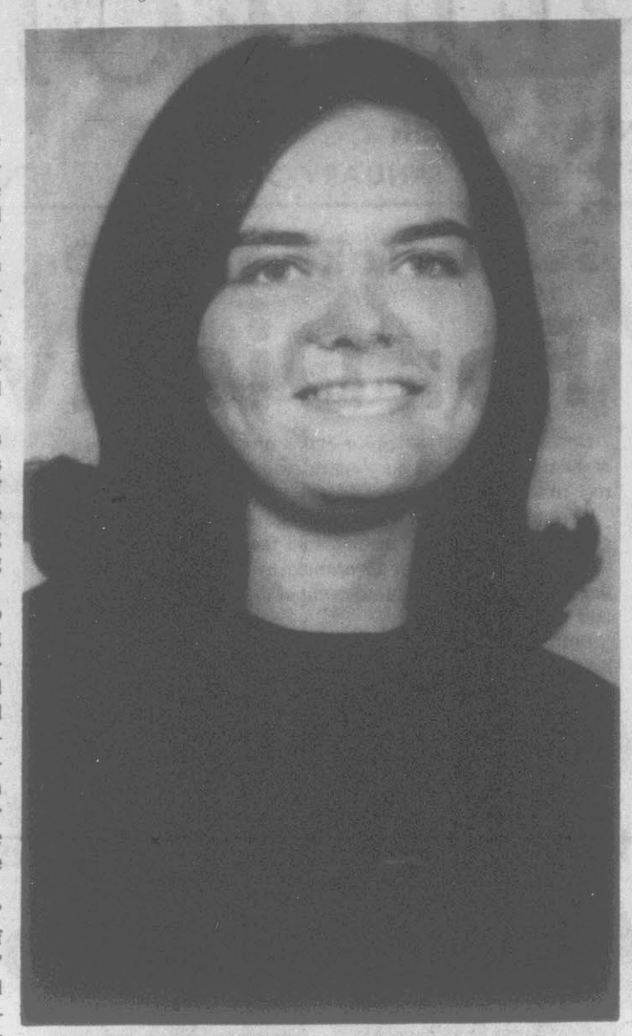

"Certainly cultural loneliness stems in part from America's trend to nuclear families of parents and children and the lack of communal meeting places," Sadler says, returning to his lecturn.

Cultural estrangement also stems from the dehumanizing process of working in an automated and industrialized society. Sadler turns his head to an 18th century Dutch portrait of a gentle woman's communion with her sewing. Then he points to the white plaster figure by American George Segal — the man stands before a machine. He has no face.

"Going to hell in a group" captures Sadler's notion of America's "herd mentality," which contributes to social loneliness. This kind of estrangement is characterized by a feeling of individual impotence when confronted with all the red tape in a bureaucratic system. A modern painting is beamed on the wall . . . six clerks with the same face, the room filled with anonymous faces vacantly staring.

The professor has a virtual checklist of symptoms of loneliness in our culture ranging from the American fetish for "joining" and the pick-up in "pop" evangelical religion, to the push back to the communal life.

The sociologist has been trying to help the lonely widow discover the dimensions of the disease that plagues her. She must realize that her malaise is, in a sense, incurable simply because it is "human to be lonely." But she also must realize, Sadler submits, that identifying her problem is the first step to "coping with it creatively."

No Work, No Hugs

GLASGOW, Scotland (WNS) — Julia Henderson, 26, is opposed to strikes. When her husband Tom went on strike at a local factory, she went on strike herself and said that there would be no hugging and kissing until he went back to work. "We had four days of full negotiations" reported Mrs. Henderson. "Then I surrendered. Any wife in love would do the same."

Homemaker's Haven

By Evelyn Spangler
Pitt Home Agent

Graying and yellowing of fabrics could well be the most common laundering problems and the ones about which people have more misconceptions. Overall grayness is caused when an insufficient amount of washing product is used over a period of several washings and soil settles back on clothes. Yellowing is most often a build-up of body oils. There are many factors that could cause graying and yellowing, and there are several ways to prevent the problem and cure it, if it has occurred.

Proper sorting is essential; whites should only be washed with whites. Mix both large and small items. Do not overload, since articles should move freely through the washer. Follow the washer's use and care booklet for guidelines as to the size of a load.

Water temperature is critical for good results — authorities recommend that water heaters be set at 160 degrees which will allow hot water to vary between 140 degrees F and 160 degrees F by the time it reaches the washer. This temperature is generally best for white and colorfast cottons and linens. Be certain the water heater has a large enough capacity to provide enough hot water. Be aware of the heater's capacity and do not wash more loads in succession than the heater can handle.

Use enough soap or detergent for the amount of soil on clothes and hardness of the water. Follow package directions carefully. Graying and yelloiwing are most often caused by soil and oils embedded in the fibers through underuse of the washing product. Enough must be used not only to remove soil and oils but also to hold them in the wash water through the wash cycle.

Too short a wash time may also be a cause of discoloration. Select the correct time as recommended by the washer manufacturer.

In extremely hard water areas, add a water conditioner to the wash and rinse waters.

Excessively dirty or grimy clothes should be pre-soaked or pre-washed using soap, detergent or pre-soaking product. It is important to add a laundry product during pre-soak or pre-wash to help remove soils and prevent them from redepositing on the fabrics. Thoroughly dissolve the product before adding clothes to the soak water.

When laundry has already become yellow or gray, the cure recommended by one appliance manufacturer is an overnight or 12 hour soak, preferably in the washer. Fill the washer half full of hot water (but do not add clothes yet). Add 3 to 4 cups soap or detergent, water conditioner and 1 cup oxygen bleach. Agitate until dissolved, then load clothes into the washer. As the water cools overnight, the solution will form almost a gel. The next day, drain and spin out the soak solution. Wash the load on full cycle with hot water, adding more water conditioner and chlorine bleach, but no detergent this time.

There are three other particular reasons for yellowing involving certain fabric finishes, certain fibers, and several water conditions.

1. Some resin-treated cottons will turn yellow when a chlorine bleach is used. To remove yellowing, soak garments as long as necessary in a solution of 2 tablespoons sodium sulfite or hyposulfite, available in pharmacies and photographic supply stores, plus ½ cup white vinegar per gallon of water. Then only use an oxygen bleach.

2. Certain fibers such as polyester have a tendency to yellow. Polyester itself has a natural affinity for oils which cause yellowing. To restore whiteness, try a package home dye color remover. In the future, wash polyester frequently. Pretreat stains and soil lines on collars and cuffs by dampening the area and rubbing in a liquid detergent or paste of detergent and water. Yellowing of spandex, an inherent quality, can not be reversed, but home dyeing to cover it up may be a pleasant solution.

3. Brown or yellow discolorations may be caused by iron or manganese in the water supply. To remove such stains, carefully use a commercial rust remover intended for use on fabrics, followed by a thorough laundering. For subsequent launderings, use a non-precipitating water conditioner to hold the iron in suspension, especially when using a cholorine bleach. The iron may come from the water pipes. If so, run water to clear the lines. As a last measure when all else fails, or for a severe problem, install an iron filter.

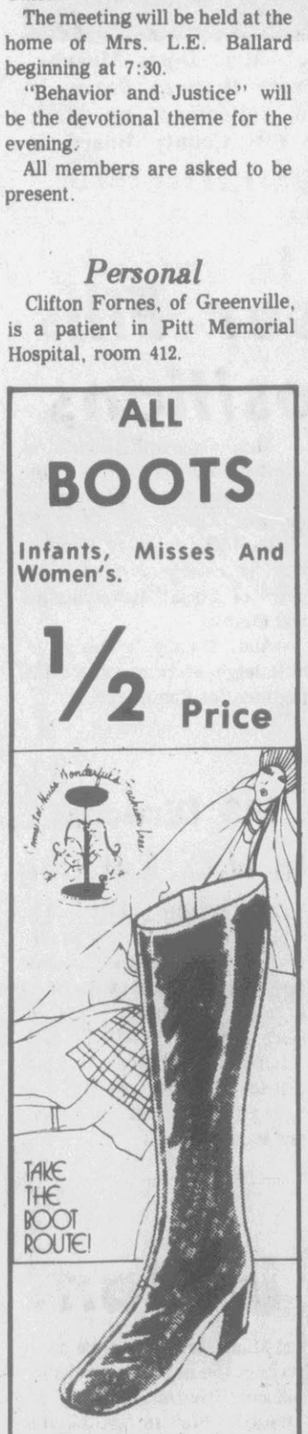

English Girl Gets 52 Surprizes

LONDON (WNS) — Joan Rippa, an English girl who went to America to work 18 years ago, got 52 surprises when she flew into Heathrow Airport for her first vacation at home since 1954. The 52 surprises were all her relatives, who had hired a bus to drive them to the airport from their distant homes in Loverpool. "The hullaballoo rather startled my American husband," said Joan. "I had briefed him in advance that the English are not very demonstrative."

Century Of Fashion Shown At Ball

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

You can really have a ball in a museum.

It may even be the best place to have such an event, said Charlotte Ford as she tied up some loose ends of a Firemen's Ball which highlighted a "Century of New York Fashion" at the Museum of the City of New York. Miss Ford is on the museum's board of directors.

People feel closer to museums than other things, and it really is fairly easy to plan a fund-raising function in one — once you get it off the ground."

Her co-chairman, Mrs. Bennet Cerf, has made the "whole thing easier because she has so many good ideas," said Miss Ford, who considers herself "a museum person." She grew up with the famed Ford Museum, and in any strange city she "looks up museums" before she does anything else.

In planning a museum party, choose a ball theme with built-in museum backgrounds that provide charm, nostalgia or whatever, she advises. Their ball would have significance because the museum has a great display of old fire equipment. It also would provide the color scheme — ladies were asked to wear red, black, white and men were to carry red handkerchiefs.

"We did not send out invitations. Each member of the committee, and some others, were asked to take a table of ten for $1,000. It is harder in the beginning to do it this way because you must find people to take the tables, but we are sure of the money even if the 33 tables aren't filled."

A very active committee is necessary for such an event, she advised, and "unfortunately it is always the same story, the same willing people do the work. When somebody finds out you are a good worker, you've had it." She is no longer active on other committees.

It helps if you begin such a party with a fashion show tied into the museum, she said. Their show, "A Century of Fashion," interspersed old costumes with new gowns designed by top designers. Du Pont staged the show and underwrote the cost of the gowns, and everyone connected with the show, even the professional models who wore the old costumes, volunteered their services.

Her dress for the show complemented her peaches-and-cream complexion and red-gold hair. The brilliant green, orange, white, blue and yellow abstract print of Qiana, the fiber that resembles silk, was chosen because it represented the newest as against the oldest fabrics of silk and cotton costumes in the show.

Rehearsing her role on the beautiful winding staircase in the rotunda of the museum, which was set up like a French fashion house for the show, she commented that it is a good idea to have the show at the start of the evening "so we will not have to leave the tables to do it."

"The Committee doesn't like to model anyway. When they are asked to do it, they all say 'No, I'm too nervous,' but I tell them 'Everybody is nervous.' It is only by devotion to the museum that I am doing it."

She is a shy type, Miss Ford explained, one who prefers to sit in back of a room. She doesn't enjoy the small talk one must indulge in at cocktail parties — she doesn't drink anyway — so she avoids them as well as the typical society fund-raising party.

Her sister, Ann Uzielli, Mrs. Peter Duchin and Betsy Bloomingdale were among those who modeled the new fashions. The old costumes included the stylish garments worn at the turn of the century by Carnegies, Vanderbilts and Astors.

What's In A Name Over Telephone?

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Offended in Houston" who doesn't like to give a secretary his name on the phone. I am a secretary and could not follow my bosses' instructions without asking names:

"Don't interrupt my conference unless Mr. X calls from New York. Don't accept any calls from Mr. Y in Seattle. He expects quotes on a contract for which I don't have the figures, and I don't want him to waste a call. If Mr. Z calls from Kansas City, tell him I'm in Europe. I'm tired of fooling with that character. If Mr. B calls from Chicago, tell him it's a deal."

My grandfather, who came over from Scotland, always said, "Never trust a man who will not proudly tell you his name." ANOTHER SECRETARY

DEAR ABBY: "Offended in Houston" would be less offended if his secretary knew how to place a telephone call.

She should say, "Mr. Draykaup of Draykaup Nuts and Bolts would like to speak to Mr. Yourboss, please." That way Mr. Yourboss' secretary wouldn't have to ask who was calling.

But what really burns me is when Mr. Bigshot's secretary telephones and asks me to get my boss on the line, and then my boss has to wait forever until Mr. Bigshot finally gets on the line.

I now have a sure cure for that. When a secretary who makes a practice of doing this calls and says, "Mr. Bigshot wants to talk to Mr. Yourboss," I say, "Then please have Mr. Bigshot call him!" and I hang up.
ST. LOUIS SECRETARY

DEAR ABBY: Doesn't that idiot signed "Offended in Houston" realize that a busy executive doesn't have time to talk to everybody who calls him?

When I'm in a meeting or on another telephone call, I don't want to be disturbed, so I ask my secretary to find out who's calling so I can return the calls when I am free. Some calls I don't return at all because the caller is a pest and a time waster.

People who solicit funds on the telephone are a pain in the neck. I rarely return their calls, but I do give consideration to those who write letters. BUSY EXECUTIVE

DEAR ABBY: I don't mind being asked by a secretary, "May I tell him who is calling?" But what really bugs me is having a child answer the telephone, and in a whining voice ask, "Who is this?"
NO PATIENCE IN MILWAUKEE

DEAR ABBY: When I make a telephone call, I say, "Hello, my name is Nicky Thompson." This establishes every thing from the start. And when I pronounce my name, I say it clearly. I am so annoyed when a person mumbles his name as tho he were ashamed of it. I don't mean to sound smug, but it is so simple to identify oneself and thus relieve the other party of asking who you are.
MRS. NICKY THOMPSON

DEAR ABBY: My daughter's husband thinks he is Van Gogh and insists upon hanging his less than mediocre "works of art" all over their lovely home.

He is a self-taught artist, and his painting is very bad. They look worse than homemade "paint-by-numbers" work.

How can my daughter tactfully tell her husband she doesn't want her walls covered with his hideous pictures?

Granted, there are worse hobbies. Don't tell her to have him take art lessons; he thinks he knows enough about painting to teach others. Thank you.
DISGUSTED IN DULUTH

DEAR DISGUSTED: If your daughter were to ask me how to tactfully tell her husband she doesn't want her walls covered with his "hideous pictures," I'd try to help her. In the meantime, it's HER house and HER problem.

DEAR ABBY: Re the husband who never called his wife by her real name:

My fine and devoted husband of 50 years was the funniest [not corniest] man I ever knew. My name is Eleanor, but shortly after we were married, he started calling me any name he could think of. When I asked him why, he said with a twinkle in his eye, "In case I talk in my sleep." So all my married life he called me Hazel, Gretchen, or "Pansy." The result is that everyone in the family called me "Pansy," which was a wonderful out for inlaws and grandchildren.

In good-natured retaliation, I never called my husband by his real name, either. I called him Joe—a far cry from Lionel. It's not what you call a person, but the tone of voice that makes the difference. ELEANOR

Pop Singer Really Has 'Smash' Hit

LONDON (WNS) — Garry Margetta, 18, was such a success as pop singer when he opened here at a theatre on Mile End Road that he was taken to the hospital with a fractured skull. According to the management, "Dozens of girls in the audience screamed their appreciation of his work, jumped onto the stage, ripped off his clothes and dragged him off. The poor fellow couldn't defend himself against such onslaught." Margette was appearing with a group named Spontaneous Combustion.

EPIC Can Mean Big Savings

Electric Power In Carolina (EPIC) is an organization of publically owned electric systems.

It is composed of 44 municipalities and 29 rural electric cooperatives and it includes Greenville and other municipally owned systems in the area.

At present these various systems purchase their power on a wholesale basis from the private companies which serve this area.

In years gone by municipalities such as Greenville and Farmville generated their own power with steam operated plants. As electric use began to rise, however, the plants became inadequate and it was obvious that it was too expensive to attempt to expand and continue to operate them.

Thus, the municipalities turned to the private companies and, so far as we know, all of the municipalities' generating plants have been closed down.

The municipal systems, joined by many rural systems which also purchase their power, came to recognize that as a group, they used enough power to justify the construction of one major plant and they felt that they could operate such a plant and distribute the power at a lower cost to their customers. And in this time of rising electric costs,

Recently the board of directors of EPIC took steps toward building the generation plant and transmission system following consideration of a feasibility study.

The board set 1983 as the target date to begin operation of the estimated $1.75 billion project.

Officials of EPIC believe the system could save as much as $2 billion over 13 years since it is a non-profit system.

Some observers among the private power sector think the whole thing is insane.

It is quite a project to take on the construction of the giant generation facilities which are necessary to operate efficiently today. A major step has been made by EPIC, however.

In ten years, Greenville, Farmville, Ayden and Winterville and some rural cooperatives in our area could be served by power from the EPIC plant.

It is a bold undertaking, but if it can mean savings to the individual electric customer, we say full speed ahead.

Stubborn Man Leaving Post

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — Did you ever hear of the fellow so avid for profit he'd skin a flea for his tallow?

BRYAN HAISLIP

Have you seen a fence that was built horse high, bull strong and hog tight?

Those pungent phrases are from the vocabulary of Edwin S. Lanier, North Carolina's skinny and scrappy Commissioner of Insurance.

He applied the first one to some of the companies which have been before him asking to raise insurance rates. The second describes the kind of protection he has tried to give Tar Heels against insurance frauds and rates that are more fair and reasonable.

Lanier is a Georgia poor boy who made good by hard work and the help of friends. Once up the ladder, he reversed roles to boost thousands of young people in their quest for an education.

Now 71, he retires this week after 10½ years as insurance commissioner, another 40 years as teacher, university student aid officer, and elected positions of mayor, county commissioner and state senator.

The reputation that long career earned him is one of a tenacious public servant with firm convictions fervently expressed and an intense feeling for people and their needs. The problems he grappled with haven't always been solved, but they felt the dent of the Lanier personality and persistence.

A Stubborn Streak

Back on that south Georgia farm, young Lanier plowed an intractable gray mule he called Old Bill. Some of the animal's stubborn ways passed on to the boy.

What guided him as insurance commissioner, he said, was a daily talking-to he gave himself before sitting down to his desk.

"Ed Lanier," he would say, "the people of North Carolina chose you to work for them. They, and only they, are your bosses. Do your utmost to serve them well and faithfully."$

Tar Heels would be wise, he counseled, to keep the ballot box link with the office. He gave a negative vote the suggestion that the office be made appointive rather than elective.

"I hope the people will always hang onto their Constitutional right to elect their insurance commissioner," he said. "They hire him. They sure can fire him if they don't like what he does."

Three Times Elected

Three times voters gave occupancy to Lanier, a Democrat. He announced his decision not to run again last spring. John Ingram, 33, an attorney and House member from Randolph County, won the Democratic primary and the general election as Lanier's successor.

Ingram will take his oath on Jan. 5 in the ceremonies highlighted by the inauguration of Jim Holshouser as governor.

The outgoing and incoming commissioners see eye-to-eye on a study group's proposal that insurance rate-making be placed with a commission rather than remaining in the hands of the commissioner.

"I do not like it," said Lanier, pounding the table for emphasis. It would spare the commissioner some headaches, but it would dilute public in-put for the process, he contended. As the officials responsible to the public, he argued, the commissioner should bear the rate-making responsibility.

Rate Deviations Proposed

Lanier has an idea he thinks worth trying to moderate the upward spiral of auto liability insurance rates. Why not, he asked, allow companies which show they can profitably do so to sell at lower rates?

State law now permits downward deviations of fire insurance rates, for example, but requires uniformity for auto liability rates.

As he made the suggestion, Lanier agreed it would stir opposition in the industry. Likely to object would be independent agents and companies apprehensive of selective competition from the few firms dominationg the field.

Lanier came to the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in search of a law degree, an unachieved goal. Skimpy finances recessed academic study. He taught six years at the Baptist Orphanage at Thomasville. He returned to Chapel Hill as student financial aid officer, a job he filled for 31 years.

One of the students he helped was Terry Sanford. Years later, as governor, Sanford called Lanier into state government, first as state personnel director, then by appointment to succeed Insurance Commissioner Charles F. Gold who died in 1962.

Retirement will give Ed and Nancy Lanier the chance to do together some things they've missed in 38 years of marriage. Fishing, puttering at golf, visiting friends are items on the agenda.

He plans a spring pilgrimage to south Georgia. He wants to walk barefooted in the fields with his younger brother. Maybe he'll plow a row or two, if he can find a mule less aggravating than Old Bill.

Israel Looks To Partnership

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

TEL AVIV — A subtle, potentially dangerous shift in their relationship with Washington is under quiet discussion by high-level officials here who glimpse a much closer, exciting U.S.-Israeli "partnership of interest" going far beyond Israel's intractable dispute with the Arabs.

The danger of any such shift is obvious. Ever since the creation of Israel, Arab nationalists have accused the West of setting up the new state, dominated by Europeans, as an extension of Western-style colonialism in the heart of the Arab world. To counteract this, the U.S. has always been careful to define the limits of American aid to Israel in narrow terms of Israeli survival, never in strategic terms of oil, geography or the world ideological conflict.

But Israel's growing military power is beginning to change Israel's own perception of how the U.S. should be viewing its Israeli connection.

Ever since President Nixon one year ago lifted the embargo on Phantoms and other advanced equipment for Israel, U.S. weapons have been pouring in at a rate that, coupled with Israel's huge advantage in motivation and technology, has now given this small country military hegemony over vast areas filled with millions of Israeli-hating Arabs.

That preeminence, in addition, has been greatly fortified by President Sadat's expulsion of the Soviet Union from Egypt. Tiny Israel today is the paradoxical colossus astride half a dozen Arab states with close to 100 million people.

Some Israeli specialists in both military power can be useful to the U.S. in terms of the strategic balance in the Middle East and the Red Sea.

Israel, in their view, fits into the "Nixon doctrine," the rationale of President Nixon's overall foreign policy as a strong, independent state capable of using American arms and dependable as a U.S. ally.

For example, Israel's well-known intention to hold on to Sharm el-Sheikh, the southern tip of the Egyptian Sinai Peninsula, is now being explained not just in terms of protecting that entrance to the Gulf of Aqaba and the Israeli port of Eilat. Equally important, it is being said, is the fact that Israeli control of southern Sinai offers the U.S. a strategic counterbalance to Egyptian control of the Suez Canal. With southern Sinai in Israeli hands, the Red Sea can be blocked to hostile naval vessels — or oil tankers — as easily as Egypt could control the Red Sea by blocking the Suez Canal.

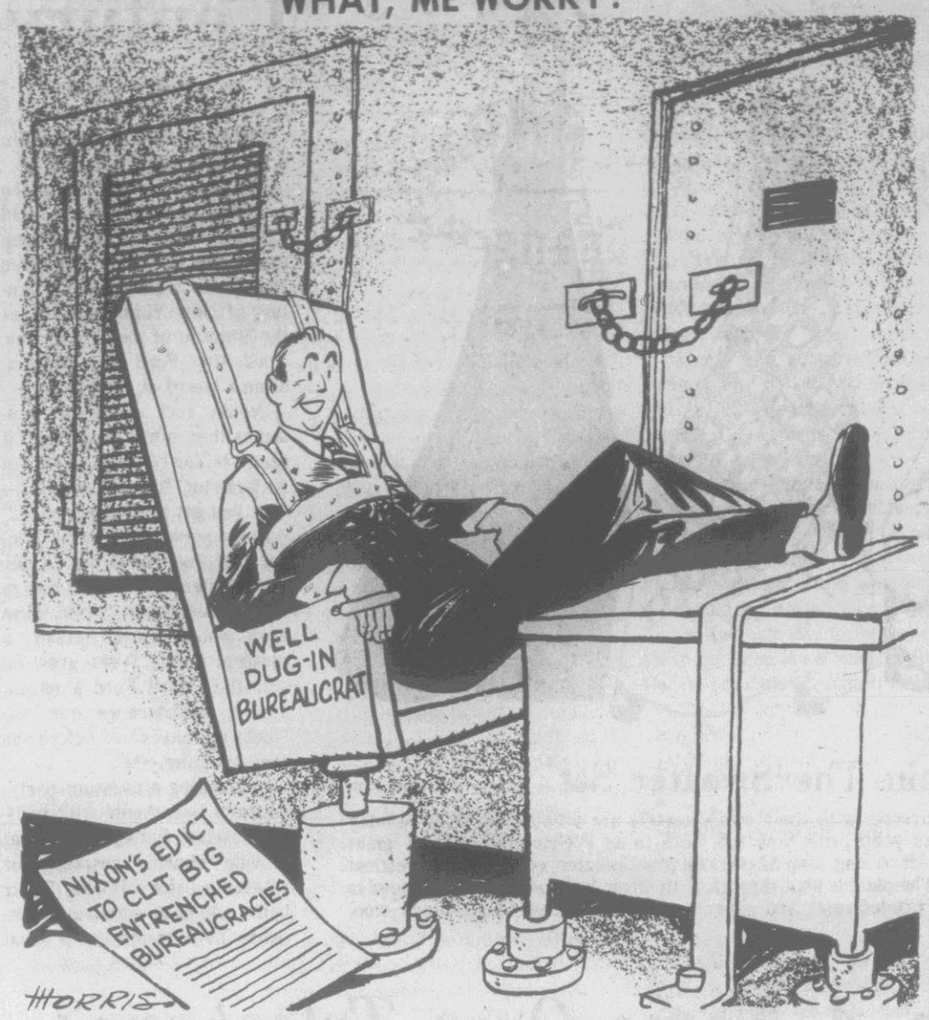

As seen by some leading strategists here, Israeli control of access to the Red Sea and control by another U.S. ally, Iran, of access to the Persian Gulf would safeguard perhaps one-half of the entire world's oil reserves.

"Our victory in the 1967 war saved American oil," one leading strategist told us. He meant that if Israel had lost the six-day war, Arab nationalists might have celebrated by nationalizing American oil concessions throughout the Middle East.

Couched in similar strategic terms were veiled prophecies that Israel could be America's savior if, for example, Saudi Arabia

WHAT, ME WORRY?

The Nobel Peace Prize

WASHINGTON — "The Nobel Peace Prize Committee will come to order. We will now start examining the list of candidates. Who is first, Mr. Secretary?"

"Richard M. Nixon. His name has been submitted by U.S. Sen. Hugh Scott."

"We can't have Nixon, not after the bombing attacks he ordered on North Vietnam last week."

"Au contraire, Mr. President. I think Richard Nixon is a very suitable candidate for the peace prize. He is eliminating the B-52 from the United States' arsenal of weapons."

"How is he doing that?"

"He is having them shot down by the enemy. The United States had only 100 B-52s. So far 12 have been shot down. At the rate they are going, they will all disappear in three months. What better gesture can one make toward peace?"

"It's out of the question, gentlemen. Nixon has bombed hospitals and schools and killed thousands of innocent civilians. We cannot give him the peace prize for this."

ART BUCHWALD

"But wait a minute. Does he not get credit for restraint? After all, he hasn't used atomic weapons against the North Vietnamese. A man who has the hydrogen bomb and doesn't use it against an enemy should certainly get the prize or least an honorable mention."

"I do not dispute that, but the Nobel Peace Prize has certain stipulations to it, and one is you do not award it to a man who has dropped more bombs on North Vietnam than have been dropped in all of World War II."

"Yes, Mr. President, but we must remember the only reason Nixon is bombing the North Vietnamese is to achieve a generation of peace for all mankind. If this bombing were punitive then I would say scratch him off the list. But Nixon is trying to find peace through bombing and he should be honored for it."

"I object. Nixon has been trying to achieve peace through bombing for four years. It hasn't worked and it will not work. If we award the prize to a man who believes the only solution to peace is destroying the other side, we will be the laughingstock of the world."

"What does the world know? Nixon has said he will stop the bombing any time the North Vietnamese come to the negotiating table and agree to a fair and just settlement of the war. I say a man who talks that way has gone the extra mile."

"But what is a fair and just settlement of the war?"

"That is not for this committee to decide, Mr. President. For years now, we

Other Editors Say Amendment Fits

(Raleigh Times)

The First Amendment to the Constitution forbids Congress from abridging the freedom of the press — and that same amendment applies to the Nixon administration.

The Nixon administration's feud with the TV commentators and newspaper editors is well known. There have been threats during the Nixon years about possibility of action against TV commentators. And, now, apparently, the threats have been written down in the form of legislation that would make local stations responsible for the objectivity of network news shows.

In a speech in Indianapolis, Dr. Clay T. Whitehead, director of the office of telecommunications policy, said the proposed law would amend the TV station license renewal provisions. He said:

"When there are only a few sources of national news on television as we now have, editorial responsibility must be exercised more effectively by local broadcasters and by network management. Station managers and network officails who fail to correct imbalance or consistent bias in the networks — or who acquiesce by silence — can only be considered willing participants, to be held fully accountable. . . at license renewal time."

There is nothing veiled about that threat. It just says plainly that if you keep broadcasting things that the Nixon administration like, you'll probably lose your license.

Who would define "imbalance?" Or "consistent bias?" Of course, the definitions would come from the Nixon appointees who will be hearing the applications for renewal of broadcast licenses. And, those appointees will have no difficulty in knowing how the Nixon administration feels about some of the commentators. They can remember, for example, that the Nixon administration began an investigation of Daniel Schorr, a CBS reporter who had handled stories criticizing the administration. When this probe became known, the administration said the investigation was in connection with a job which was to be offered to Schorr. But, no job ever was offered, and Schorr had never been told that one might be offered.

It is true that the airwaves belong to the public and that the broadcast stations are given government permission to use those airwaves. But, that fact doesn't give the government, in the guise of the Nixon administration or any other administration, to censor the news which goes out over those airwaves.

The freedom of the press means that the people shall have the unalterable right to read, and hear, news which isn't censored by any government official.

Learn It All By Mail

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Most of the world's supply of ice is concentrated in the polar regions. Antarctica is the larger ice cube. If the antarctic ice cap were melted at a steady rate, it would yield enough water to keep all the rivers on earth flowing for 750 years.

HAL BOYLE

Mountain pioneers often turned to weeds and other plants for medicines. They thought jewelweed took the itch out of poison ivy, poke berries helped rheumatism, mullein was good for colds. Science now believes many of these home remedies really are helpful. A survey in 1962 found that, of the 328 million new prescription, written in the United States, 25 per cent were for drugs derived from plants.

Sign on the door of a pro basketball coach's office: "I'm busy; but, if you can look over the transom, come in."

Quotable notables: "Only one thing has been lent to youth and age in common — discontent." — Matthew Arnold.

How it began: Louis Braille, the blind musician who developed the raised-dot system that has enabled millions of blind persons to learn to read, got his idea from an army captain. The captain had invented a set of night-writing symbols for use on the battlefield, one dot meaning to advance, two dots to retreat and so on. Hearing of this, Braille developed the idea into his system for rapid reading by the sightless.

Executive signs: From the desk of Jules Podell, owner of the Copacabana night club: "The world changes so fast that a man could't be wrong all the time if he tried."

Folklore: It's unlucky to wear a black dress to a wedding. If you send a girl a blue ribbon, it's a sign you love her; if you send her a green ribbon, that you hate her. Chinese copyists used to make period marks at the end of a sentence in red ink to keep evil spirits away from themselves and their readers.

Longevity: Man is the longest-lived mammal, and the only one known to live 100 or more years. It was once thought that elephants did, but none actually has been known to exceed 70 years, and most wild elephants are probably dead by the age of 35. The horse has a record span of 62 years; a zoo hippopotamus made it to 49; bears, lions and cattle live into their thirties. Smaller animals tend to have shorter lives. A meadow mouse may live to be a year and a half, but his actual life expectancy in the wild is less than a month.

It was Anton Chekhov who observed, "People must never be humiliated — that is the chief thing."

Strength For Today

POPULARITY

We like to have people say nice things about us and we should. Popularity is a precious possession provided we do not have to pay too high to achieve it. If we have to sacrifice moral principle to be popular, cut corners here and there and thus win the plaudits of our contemporaries, then the price is too high. But it is pleasant indeed to be well-liked, highly spoken of and popular.

Someone has said that popularity is all right if you don't inhale. When popularity becomes the objective of living, the thing to be sought for above all others, then the desire for popularity is a vice. Many people have learned the art of being popular without sacrificing moral principles. They are tolerant of the weaknesses of their fellowmen without agreeing with these weaknesses. they are openhearted and cheerful. They make no distinction between persons of high station and persons of low station.

There is a way in which being all things to all men is a fine attitude. Some people pay too high a price for popularity and in the end they lose the respect of the people whose respect they really covet.

Nobody likes the ingrown, sour-faced type of person and on the whole one's judgment of such a person is usually right. If to be popular we have to be critical of our fellows, the chances are that we ourselves are not right at the center of our lives.

Popularity is all right if we don't inhale.

Factors Behind The Optimism

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — As January begins, a multitude of factors lend support to stock market prices and so, quite characteristically, Wall Street observers, forecasters and their tribe are optimistic.

First, of course, there is the expanding U.S. economy and the prospect that corporate profits will increase somewhere between 12 and 18 per cent. This offers probably the most substantial support of all.

The past year ended with such a surge of activity at both wholesale and retail levels that many of the negative forecasts of a slowdown by midyear have been shredded and recycled more positively.

Foreign investors are expected to support the market as the U.S. economy, relative to their own, becomes stronger. Europeans now are undergoing a siege of inflation, and so their money is migrating to safety in America.

The big institutions, mutual funds excepted, also seem to be in pretty sound shape, and institutions, such as pension funds, bank trusts and insurers are of steadily growing importance to stock prices.

One characteristic that buoys the hopes of other investors is that as long as the money comes in, through individual and corporate contributions to pensions, for example, it must be turned out.

The most popular medium for investing these funds is in the stock market, of course. And so, even when prospects aren't very bright, some institutions may be forced to buy stocks so as not to leave their cash idle.

The mutual funds are not so fortunate. In fact, their fate in the past year has been precisely opposite to that of other institutions. They are being bled of investment power by 10 straight months of net redemptions.

A net redemption occurs when money paid out for shares turned in exceeds money received. In November, the latest month for which figures are available, redemptions exceeded sales by $258.3 million.

Most funds can survive these cash-ins for many months, and the industry in its entirety can also because it now has assets of nearly $60 billion. But redemptions cramp styles. They deny a fund the freedom to take advantage of good investment opportunities.

Mutual funds, in fact, were net sellers of stocks during November, a result that no doubt can be related to the need to reimburse those fund holders who choose to redeem for cash.

But there are other factors brightening the outlook. Ordinary working Americans continue to build financial assets, despite inflation, and maybe they'll decide soon to return to the market. There is the prospect, anyway.

One of the big clouds in the forecast is Vietnam, although it has been a question for many months as to how much sustained impact an actual peace will have — or if much of the impact has already been discounted.

Drummer Buddy Rich At ECU For Monday Show

Buddy Rich, known as the "world's greatest drummer" is coming to East Carolina University for a special performance at Wright Auditorium on Monday at 8:00 p.m.

Literally a life-long musician, Buddy first broke into the world of making music when he played an infant version of Stars and Stripes Forever.

At the age of three Buddy became a permanent part of his parents' act and when he was seven he opened his own act, touring with Keith, Pantages and The Balaban and Katz Vaudeville Circuits in the U. S. and Australia.

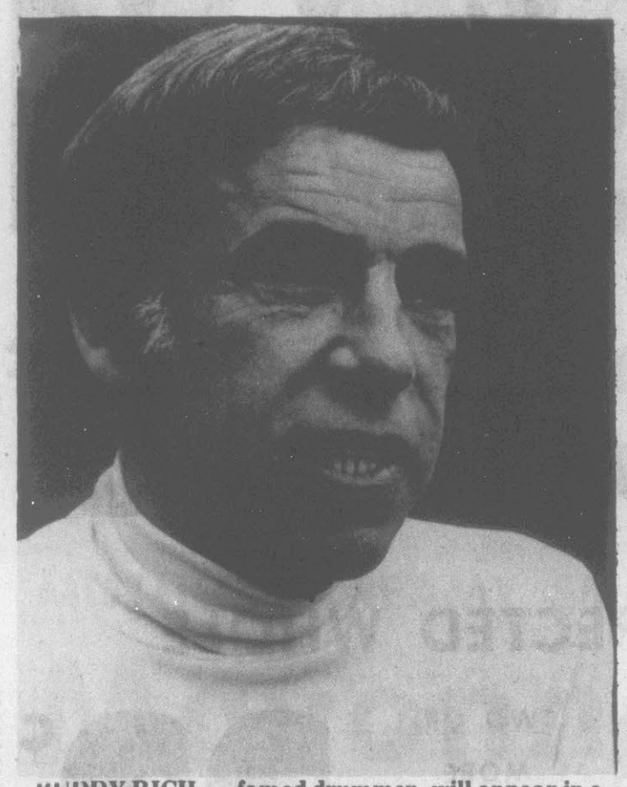

In the "boy-wonder" years Buddy was featured on Broadway in The Pin Wheel Review and The Greenwich Village Follies.

With the passing of time, Buddy went next to the Bunny Berigan Band, then to the Artie Shaw Band for two years, and from there to the Tommy Dorsey Orchestra.

In 1954, Buddy formed a jazz group and toured the entire jazz world. In the early 60's, Harry James asked Buddy to join him in his new band. Despite the acclaim he received with the James Band, Buddy still fostered a dream of having his own band. In 1966 he once more formed his own group. In the years since, 1966 Buddy and his colleagues have been playing colleges, clubs and concert halls throughout the U. S., in Europe and in Asia.

Currently making the circuit with Rich are Pat Labarbera, Cathy Rich, Lin Biviano, Rick Culver and Joe Romano.

The Buddy Rich concert at Wright on Monday night is sponsored by the ECU Student Union Artist Series Committee as a special added attraction for this season. Tickets are now on sale at $2.00 at the Central Ticket Office, and will also be available at the door prior to performance if not sold out earlier.

BUDDY RICH . . . famed drummer, will appear in a special concert with his orchestra Monday at 8:00 p.m. at Wright Auditorium. Tickets for the concert are now on sale at the Central Box Office.

Changes For HumaneSoc.

Members of the Pitt County Humane Society voted to change their meetings to a monthly basis and to hold them on the second Monday of each month. These meetings will begin at 8 p.m. and be held at the downtown branch of the Planters National Bank at 3rd and Washington Streets. The public is invited to attend and voice their opinions on animal care in Pitt County. The January meeting will be held on Monday, January 8th.

The Humane Society is a voluntary organization operation on donations and membership fees without assistance from any City or State organization. It has active committees for animal adoptions, investigations of cruelty, promotion of protective laws for animals and a reduced-fee spaying program available to all owners of mixed breeds of dogs and cats. Anyone interested in having their animal spayed should phone 752-5794.

The Society is also interested in the operation of an animal shelter for Greenville and contacts are underway with Greenville City officials towards this end.

Shaw Univ. Prof Is Found Slain

DURHAM, N. C. (AP) — Dr. Mark Marvel Atkinson, 52, chairman of the department of education at Shaw University in Raleigh, was found shot to death in his mobile home in Durham County Tuesday.

Deputies said a man and woman taken into custody after they were seen riding in Atkinson's car were questioned in the death.

Atkinson, 52, also was director of teacher education.

A Durham County medical examiner said he had been shot with a small-caliber weapon and apparently had been dead about 48 hours when his body was found.

He lived in the Research Triangle Park area.

He had been at Shaw since 1966.

"He was a tremendous man, quite a scholar," said Dr. J. Archie Hagraves, president of Shaw.

Arrest Pair For Slaying

BEAUFORT, N. C. (AP) — Two young Cherry Point Marines were held without bond in the Carteret County jail today on a murder charge in the slaying of a fellow Marine.

Sheriff Ralph Thomas identified them as William Moore, 19, and Curtis Riggles, 22.

The sheriff said they were charged in the shooting death of Cpl. William G. Casey, 22, of Gulfport, Miss. Like the two accused men, Casey was stationed at the Cherry Point Marine Air Station.

His body was found Monday morning in a car at an auto junk yard near Newport, between the base and nearby Morehead City.

Thomas said he took the men into custody Tuesday night at the base, where they had been held for questioning. The sheriff said a preliminary hearing has been set for Jan. 19.

An investigation is continuing, the sheriff said, on a possible link between the two men and an alleged kidnaping on the base Sunday night.

Another Marine, whose identity was withheld, told officers he was kidnaped by two hitchhikers who left him tied in a car at the same junk yard where Casey's body was found.

The Marine said he managed to free himself Monday morning and he reported the incident to Carteret County authorities.

The sheriff said Casey's body was found by Vernon Parish, who leases the junk yard. Thomas said Parish found the body about 10 a. m. Monday when he went to the junk yard to look for an auto part.

W.O. Price Is Honored For Service To Schools

An appreciation dinner for William O. Price, retiring maintenance supervisor of the Pitt County Schools, was held Friday night at D.H. Conley School.

Mark Owens Jr., chairman of the Pitt County Board of Education, presented Price a plaque in recognition of his 27 years of service. Two former chairmen of the Board under whom Price worked, G.E. Trevathan of Fountain and T.G. Worthington of Ayden, paid tribute to Price for "his tireless efforts in seeking to get the very most for each dollar available in the maintenance budget."

Mrs. Ethel Tucker, former Supt. D.H. Conley's secretary during the time that Price served as supervisor, commended Price and his wife, who worked with him for the past 15 years. Mrs. Tucker presented Mrs. Price with an engraved silver tray on behalf of the Board of Education, and with an orchid corsage and a flower arrangement.

Associate Supt. Thomas L. Craft Jr. presented Price with a plaque on behalf of the Belvoir community schools in recognition of his service to these two schools during the past 27 years.

Supt. Ott Alford , under whom Price has served since 1965, described him as "a giant of a man with a heart of gold which is responsive to the needs of others. He never complained nor did he make excuses, but rather he considered it an honor to be able to put in a full day's work in behalf of the Board of Education and those whom he served." On behalf of former and present administrative staff personnel, members of the Board of Commissioners, and others who have known William Price, Alford presented him a check for $700.

Sepcial guests at the dinner were Kenneth Price of Grifton; Mr. and Mrs. Harvey D. McLawhorn of New Bern; Carsie Denning, director of the Division of Plant Operations of the State Board of Education; and Godfrey Beasley, editor of the Maintenance Beacon.

Price is a Grifton native who was educated in Fayetteville and at N.C. State University. He and his wife, the former Ethel McLawhorn, live one Rt. 1, Grifton.

(alone possessing almost one-third of the world's known oil reserves) were the sudden victim of a left-wing coup.

Just how Israel, with or without the U.S, could control the future of Saudi Arabian politics is left unclear. Not unclear at all is the implication of a U.S.-Israeli partnership far transcending the existing guarantee of Israeli secrity against the Arabs.

Arab reaction to any such "partnership" is quite predictable, particularly in the oil states that already have formed an oil-exporting organization which is forcing an inexorable price rise in Western Europe. That reaction would be one of virulent hatred where now, at least in the case of oil-rich Saudi Arabia, there still exists a fairly stable relationship.

Israeli military power may have a place in America's future, as indeed it did in the 1970 Jordanian civil war. But if that place becomes not merely peripheral but central, the entire West could suffer terribly in the future.

What has he done?"

"He has shown everyone that he is dead serious about peace, even if he has to commit his entire Air Force and Navy to bring it about."

"That's true, Olav. But at the same time wouldn't it be better to wait until the bombing stops before we give Nixon the peace prize?"

"By then it could be too late, particularly if he hasn't achieved peace in time. Don't you see what a fine gesture it would be if we gave the prize to a man who was working for peace but hadn't quite made it."

"We could be at this all day, gentlemen. Let's go on to the next candidate for the peace prize. Mr. Secretary, what is the second name on the list?"

"Henry Kissinger."

"Oh, Boy."

Indict 9 In Drug Probe

BALTIMORE (AP)—Nine charges of counterfeiting military papers have been placed against a man arrested during an investigation of an alleged plot to smuggle heroin into this country inside Vietnam war dead.

Thomas E. Sutherland was indicted by a federal grand jury Tuesday for counterfeiting and using false papers to board Air Force flights from Vietnam to the United States.

Although the indictment did not mention dope smuggling, Sutherland, a civilian, was arrested Dec. 11 during a search of a military plane believed used in the smuggling operation, according to Asst. U.S. Atty. Michael Marr. Sutherland was wearing a sergeant's uniform at the time.

His arrest at Andrews Air Force Base near Washington came after agents, acting on a tip, found no heroin in the C121 military transport en route from Thailand to Dover, Del.

Sutherland, now held in lieu of $50,000 bail, is to be arraigned Friday on the charges, which carry a maximum penalty of 45 years in prison and $26,000 in fines.

State 'Fiscal Watchdog' Says Title Is In Error

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Mercer M. Doty doesn't consider the title of "fiscal watchdog" given his office by newspapermen to be entirely accurate.

"The 'watch' is appropriate, but the 'dog' is not," said Doty, director of fiscal research for the General Assembly. "We do the watching, but it's the General Assembly that does the biting."

"'Watchdog' implies authority in our own right," he said. "We are solely a staff agency of the General Assembly."

Doty, a 49-year-old former Army lieutenant colonel, was appointed last year to keep tab on state spending for the legislature.

His stern attitude toward public employment was exemplified in 1971 when Gov. Bob Scott ordered him transferred out of the job of director of state government reorganization because Doty declined to hire as his assistant director a Raleigh insurance man recommended by the governor.

"I was convinced then, and I am convinced now that you don't do the taxpayer any favor if you employ people for reasons other than their qualifications to do the work," Doty said in a recent interview.

Doty and his staff of 10 persons have been busy the last few months gathering the information needed to answer questions from the legislature about the state's budget. Already it has answered some questions posed by individual legislators.

"Essentially," he said, "we have been guessing what the General Assembly expects of us. We are going to find out in about a week that we have been right in some of our guesses and dead wrong in others.

"We have collected some information about subjects we feel are candidates for controversy," Doty stated.

He said these included federal revenue sharing, the state's revenue and expenditures picture, tax reduction proposals and the five areas of state government that account for the lion's share of state appropriations—education, transportation, human resources, correction and natural and economic resources.

Doty recalls that in preparing to set up the legislative fiscal office, he and members of the Legislative Services Commission visited three states having similar offices. They found it very useful to see how the job was done in other states.

He said they also learned some things that he hopes can be avoided in North Carolina. For example, some states had purely partisan research agencies which necessitated duplicate staffs—one for each major political party.

In New York, he said, partisanship had gone so far that the General Assembly had duplicate mail services—one to deliver mail for the Democrats and another for the Republicans.

"I hope that doesn't happen here," he said.

Doty said this convinced him "we should try to play it straight regardless of the political position" of those requesting information.

"We try to give him correct information regardless of whether it supports his position or somebody else's position," he added.

He said the Legislative Services Commission had ordered him to keep the requests of legislators for information strictly confidential.

In addition, Doty said, he feels "we have an obligation to answer the question according to what the facts dictate. We don't feel it useful to tell a man what he wants to know."

Asked if he had found where the "fat" in the state's budget is located, Doty said:

"I think we know where some of it is. I don't think we know where all of it is. Obviously it is not possible to have complete knowledge of state government in six months."

Doty is an Alabama native, a West Point graduate, and a former infantry officer who settled down here because "I just thought North Carolina was a nice place to live."

Revamping Of Wildlife Commission Is Talked

RALEIGH (AP) — The 1973 General Assembly is expected to receive legislation which would revamp the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission and give sportsmen a voice in selecting its members.

A source close to Gov.-elect Jim Holshouser said Tuesday Holshouser will recommend the changes possibly in his "State of the State" message to the legislature which convenes Jan. 10.

"The governor-elect feels that legislation now being prepared would take the wildlife commission out of politics and put it back in the hands of the sportsmen," the spokesman said.

The proposal calls for the wildlife commission to have 19 members. The present commission has nine. The state would have 18 districts with one commissioner from each. The 19th member would be on an at-large basis appointed by the governor.

The spokesman said that sportsmen in the 18 districts would get together and select three nominees from each district. The names would be submitted to the governor who would make the appointments. The commission would name its chairman.

"With a revamped and enlarged commission consisting of sportsmen, you might see some substantial changes in the operations of the commission," the spokesman said.

The terms of three of the present nine members expire this spring. Under the proposed legislation, the remaining members of the present commission would continue until their terms expire. This would call for the apointment of 13 members this year, including replacements for three whose terms expire.

New Tobacco Varieties Released For '73 Crop

Three new tobacco varieties have been released for the 1973 crop, according to Raymond D. Coltrain, assistant agricultural extension agent for Pitt County.

Coltrain said that the new varieties are N. C. 88, S. C. 72, and Speight G-140. N. C. 88, he reported, is resistant to root knot nematode, but has a low level of resistance to black shank. It grows with a yellowish cast and in wet weather conditions it is susceptible to weather fleck.

The agent noted that S. C. 72 is a variety with resistance to mosaic, but it also has a low level of resistance to black shank. It is resistant to root knot nematode and is sensitive to brown spot, he continued.

Speight G-140 has a moderate level of resistance to black shank, Coltrain explained, is susceptible to root knot nematode and is sensitive to brown spot.

The agent said that farmers and others interested are invited to learn more about the varieties at a Tobacco Talk scheduled for Friday at 1 p.m. at the American Legion Building, located behind the Farm Bureau office on the U. S. 264 Bypass.

Celebrate With Prices Of 1868

NEW YORK (AP) — The food was prepared in century-old fashion, but even better were the antiquated prices charged by the Old Homestead restaurant to celebrate its 105th anniversary.

A "regular dinner" of sausages, liver, soup, half a pie and coffee cost 19 cents. Roast beef or mutton was 6 cents.

The restaurant, which claims to be the oldest steak house in New York, estimated that it served 1,700 customers and lost $7,000 to $10,000 Tuesday night.

Herman Firks, the head waiter, said he saw at least two parties slip out the door without shelling out their 19 cents.

Name Their Son 'Crazy Horse'

LONDON (AP) — Model Jane Von Haag and her American husband, Michael, are naming their new son Crazy Horse.

"Plenty of people have named their children after American Army generals," said Von Haag, a 29-year-old writer who came to live in Britain eight years ago. "I decided to call my son after a great Indian chief.

Chief Crazy Horse of the Oglala Sioux aided Sitting Bull against Gen. George Custer and was killed in 1877.

Illegal Divorce Decrees Said 'Tip Of Iceberg'

By BILL ROBERTS
Associated Press Writer

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A Phoenix attorney says the 200 or so divorce decrees her uncle failed to make legal during his lifetime "are just the tip of an iceberg" which spreads into other states.

Virginia Hash, the late V. L. Hash's niece, said she has found that her uncle was following a legal practice common in many states when he refused to file decrees until he was paid.

Miss Hash found the unfiled divorces while going through her uncle's estate after his death six years ago. The state Supreme Court accepted jurisdiction in the case Tuesday but said it would take some time to decide what should be done.

"I'm not sure exactly what all other states do about divorces," Miss Hash said in an interview Tuesday, "but Arizona certainly is no exception.

"From letters we have received from attorneys in other states, we have found this case is just the tip of an iceberg. The problem exists today in other states."

She named Florida, Kansas and Illinois as examples.

Only a few of the couples involved in the Phoenix divorces have been located. Meanwhile, the questions of bigamy, estates left by deceased mates, Social Security benefits and the legitimacy of offspring must be answered.

Miss Hash asked the Supreme Court to allow the unfiled decrees to be lodged in Superior Court. The decrees would not become legal by such action, but, Miss Hash said, any of the couples involved then could ask the court to file their decree nunc pro tunc — doing what already should have been done.

"The problem is a simple one to present to you, but a difficult one to decide," Miss Hash told the court.

Add One More To Community

TIN CUP, Ind. (AP) — This southern Indiana community apparently has not jumped on the zero population growth bandwagon.

The roadside identification sign which originally read, "Population 14" has been altered and a "15" painted in.

You won't find Tin Cup on the state highway map, but a state highway official says it's near Bedford.

Mark Owens was re-elected chairman of the board yesterday while Sam Nelson was named vice chairman.

Superintendent Arthur Alford presented the board with some statistical rankings of the Pitt County Schools' transportation operation.

A total of 177 buses are operated daily and the Pitt system has the 10th largest fleet in the state.

Other rankings, out of a total 100 programs in the state, include: average number of pupils transported daily 1971-72, 16th; cost per mile of gasoline, oil, grease, anti-freeze, repair parts, tires and tubes, 23rd; average miles per gallon of gasoline per vehicle during 1971-72, 31st; average miles per gallon of gasoline for five years average, 32nd; inventory value of repair parts per vehicle for five years average, third; inventory value of tires and tube per vehicle for five years average, 20th.

A proposal entitled "Broadening Responsibilities in Developing Gainful Employment" has been prepared and submitted to the U.S. Commissioner of Education for consideration as an exemplary project in vocational education.

The project was developed by Mrs. Katheryn Lewis and Carl Toot of the Pitt County Schools central office. If approved, the project will be held in the Ayden-Grifton area for the first year, the second year at D.H. Conley, the third year at Farmville Central, and the fourth years at North Pitt.

The total project would cost 1989,603, all federal money.

One project will be awarded in the state of North Carolina. A total of 12 proposals have been presented for approval by school systems throughout the state.

A dutch luncheon will be held January 16 at 12 noon at Parkers Restaurant with high school principals. The meeting will be held to discuss the cost of operating athletic and activities programs within the individual schools.

Charles E. Barber, chairman of the Child Evangelism Fellowship of Pitt County, was given permission to work in the schools. He plans to help develop religious concepts without getting into denominational matters.

The program will be a voluntary one and the school principals must be in agreement.

Maternity leave was approved for three county teachers and several personnel changes were accepted.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You can add much to prestige you now enjoy by gadding about socially in right circles, stating your aims to key persons. Get on the good side of experts, bigwigs. Avoid one who is antagonistic to your best interests.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Contacting those who have the facts you require to make your dreams materialize is wise now. Your intuitive faculties are working well, so follow their promptings. Get on the right track to reach your destination.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) It is wise now to make contacts that are helpful in your career, and to be active and enthusiastic. Social affairs can be most worthwhile in the evening. Avoid one who never fails to raise your ire.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those unusual young people who thinks big and wants to become big, especially where public life is concerned. The ability to make a fine impression on the masses, the public in general is present in this chart. Slant the education along political, sales, entertainment lines, and give every opportunity for public speaking, acting, etc. Give good spiritual and humanitarian training early, also, otherwise your child could become a mere automaton.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Proposes Grand Jury For State

RALEIGH (AP) — State Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan says North Carolina needs a statewide investigative grand jury to compel persons who have knowledge of criminal wrongdoings to answer questions.

He said in an interview Tuesday he will ask the 1973 General Assembly to enact legislation to create such a grand jury. The convening judge would be given authority, on recommendation of the attorney general, to grant criminal immunity to some witnesses.

The power to grand immunity to some witnesses, is needed, Morgan said, to "get to the heart of the real corruption."

He said he hates to use the word corruption, "but I believe that in state government, as in every other government, that there are activities which are improper. . . .that cannot be rooted out or brought out without some type of investigative authority."

While details have not been worked out, Morgan said his present thinking is that the grand jury "ought to be rather restrictive in order to prevent the abuses of individual rights that could result from it."

Under the proposal, the RAND JURY "could be convened only upon the motion of the attorney general or by a resident judge or the judge holding court here (in Wake County)," Morgan stated.

"In other words," he added, "that would assure the public that I would have to have some pretty good grounds for convening it, that I couldn't just run out and find me a judge."

Morgan said he would propose that the power to grant immunity be combined in the office of the attorney general and the office of a superior court judge holding court in Wake County.

The attorney general cited several reasons why he could not seek the help of the Wake County Grand Jury.

"In the first place," he said, "it is not an investigative grand jury, as such. No prosecuting attorney can go into the grand jury room. In other words, my representative could not call witnesses and present their testimony an orderly fashion."

Sunday Program To Involve The Heart

"I Am Joe's Heart" is a new television program that has nothing to do with the status of the romance of a guy named Joe. But the Burroughs-Wellcome Company sponsored program deals with a subject as serious as romance — that of the prevention of and realization of the symptoms of a heart attack.

Scheduled for local showing at 7:00 p.m. Sunday over WNCT-TV, I Am Joe's Heart is a half hour show, combining live actors and animation to tell viewers personally and graphically about the heart.

Endorsed by the American Heart Association as being "medically correct," the television film presents statistics about the function of the heart in its daily routine, the effects of blood pressure, sudden shocks, extra fat, smoking on the healthiness of the heart.

In addition, I Am Joe's Heart touches on what is involved when a person suffers a heart attack, and stresses the changes in life style necessary for those who have been the victim of a heart attack.

Lanier's Order Back To Courts

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina Insurance Commissioner Edwin Lanier's recent order reaffirming a 7.4 per cent rate increase in auto liability insurance rates is headed back to the State Court of Appeals.

Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan announced Tuesday that his office is appealing Lanier's order of Dec. 4.

On Oct. 26 the appeals court remanded the case to Lanier with instructions to be more specific in considering evidence based on underwriting experience in North Carolina.

After hearing further evidence, Lanier reaffirmed his decision authorizing the rate hike.

Allen Sworn In ASC Post

Pitt Coutny farmer Jarvis Allen was sworn in Monday to serve a three-year term on the ASC County Committee.

Allen, elected by the ASC county convention in December, replaces J. Elbert Mills who was ineligible for re-election because he has served three consecutive terms.

Allen has served on the ASC community committee for 15 years.

The newly-elected county committee, which held its first meeting Tuesday, consists of W.F. Tyson chairman; Robert A. Halstead; and Allen. Halstead serves as vice chairman.

The county convention is composed of the three farmer-elected committeemen from the 22 ASC communities in the county.

In addition to electing a county committee each year for a three-year term, they assist the county committee in local administration of the farm programs assigned to ASC.

The county ASC committee is responsible for the local administration of government farm programs such as tobacco and peanut acreage allotments; cotton, feed grain and wheat set-aside programs; commodity loan programs; and others assigned by the Secreatry of Agriculture.

Settle Union Pension Suit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Up to 20,000 retired miners or their widows will receive annual pensions this year of at least $1,000 according to terms of a settlement in a 3-year-old suit agnir the United Mine Workers Welfare and Retirement Fund.

Estimates are that between 9,000 and 20,000 miners and widows will receive benefits under the settlement, which revises eligibility requirements for retired miners who had not previously been eligible for benefits.

Annual pensions will be a minimum of $1,800 for the ex-miners and $1,000 for widows. There will be retroactive benefits of one year for those who had applied unsuccessfully for pensions in the past.

The settlement, announced Tuesday in U.S. District Court, stems from two separate class-action suits on behalf of the miners and widows against the UMW Welfare and Retirement Fund.

The most astounding thing that happened last night was that Rocky Mount's highly touted Phil Ford didn't score his usual 34 points. He got only 15.

But then, it didn't really make any difference.

For by the time the Gryphons had finished drawing and quartering the Rose High School Rampants, Rocky Mount was on its way home with a 115-56 rout behind it.

Rocky Mount out-everythinged the Rampants. They out-hustled, out-ran, out-shot, out-rebounded, out-played AND out-scored them. It was a completed and utter devistation of the winless Rampants. There is no other way to put it.

The Gryphons came into the game unbeaten, and after only minutes it was quite clear that they had nothing to fear from the Rampants. The closest Rose came was during the first 30 seconds when Rocky Mount failed to score.

At no time during the game did the Rampants lead, and only in the first minute of play were they even close.

Rocky Mount spun off the first 11 points of the game while Rose was still trying to find the range. During that same period, the defense of the Gryphons allowed Rose only three shots.

Rocky Mount pressed much of the way, trapping when possible, forcing the Rampants into turnover after turnover. And when Rose did make it to their basket, they usually had only one shot since the Gryphons swept the board continually.

For the Rampants, it was their eighth straight loss, and their second against Division II competition.

The Gryphons took the lead for good after 39 seconds when James Hart took a rebound and tossed it back in. Ford followed that up with a three point play and then hit on a jumper from the circle. Cleveland Howard got two free throws and John Dinan followed with a couple of others, and the Rocky Mount five held an 11-0 lead.

Finally, with 5:48 left, Rose got on the board when Phil Ragazzo hit from underneath. Rocky Mount came quickly back to score two more baskets, by Dinan and Randy Warrick. They got another from the corner by Howard, running their lead to 17-2 with 4:10 left. Robert Brinkley finally hit another for Rose, and for most of the remainder of the period the two swapped points, although Rocky Mount did raise its lead to 16, 23-7, at one point. Rose cut it back, however, and trailed 25-11 at the end of the frame.

From there on out, it was just a question of what the margin would be. Rocky Mount played its first string about half of each period, then cleared them out for the reserves, who also continued to gain ground on the Rampants, except in the third period.

The Gryphons through the period, hitting 10 of their 30 points, while Joe Jones added eight.

In the third quarter, it was just as bad for the Rampants. Rocky Mount moved out by 44 points, 74-30 with 4:05 left, but Rose was able to work against the reserves and traim it to 77-44 before the quarter finally ended. Hart again was the spark, hitting eight of the 22 points.

Then, in the last period, Rocky Mount was just unstoppable, banging them in from everywhere. They cracked the century mark on a jumper by Jones with 3:10 left, making it 101-51, and continued to pull away, twice leading by margins of 61 points, the last at 115-54, but Brinkley's basket just before the horn made the final 59-point spread.

Hart led the Rocky Mount scoring with 26 points, while Howard had 17, Ford had 15, Thomas Lancaster had 11, and Jones and Dinan each had 10. The lone Rampant to break into double figures was Herb Bynum, who had 14.

The Rampant Cubs also bowed in their game, 70-65, after leading most of the way.

They built up an 18-14 lead in the first period, and increased that to 32-26 at halftime.

In the third period, however, Rocky Mount began its comeback, outhitting the Cubs, 21-19. That left Rose with a 51-47 lead as tha last period got underway.

Rocky Mount then tied it up and after swapping several baskets, they finally took the lead at 60-59, never trailing again after than outhitting Rose, 23-24, in the last period to win.

Earl Lawrence led Rocky Mount with 18, while Doug Henley had 13, Wayne Alston had 11 and Jarvis Moore had 10.

Rose Swimmers Open Season This Weekend

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)

Rose High School's swimming team, with boosted participation this year, including girls for the first time, opens its season with a trip to the Washington, D.C., area to swim Fort Hunt in their opening meet.

This year's Rampants are being coached by Bob St. Clair, a junior at East Carolina University. There are 18 members of this year's squad, including four girls.

The girls became eligible under a new ruling by the State High School Athletic Association which allows girls to participate on the same teams as boys in non-contact sports.

"I hope they'll do some good for us," St. Clair said. "They've already improved morale quite a bit."

St. Clair feels it's hard to say how the Rampants are going to do this year, since he's coaching the team for the first time. "I'm not familiar with the competition in North Carolina," he said. "If we are swimming in Virginia, I'd have a better idea since I'm more familiar with that area. But I do feel we have a few who can place in the state meet at the end of the year."

Those include Mont Wooten and Tom Adams in the swimming events and Harding Sugg and Herb Wilkerson in the diving.

"Wooten could place in the 400-yard freestyle," St. Clair said, "while Adams could be good in about any event. He's a good all-around swimmer." The two divers, beging coached by former ECU diver Paul Donohue, are both expected to place among state competitors.

In the sprint freestyle, St. Clair looks to Adams to lead the way, but notes that a newcomer, Art Klose, is coming on strong. "He's improved a great deal in the last month." the coach said.

In the medium distances, Wooten is the top man. "He should also do well in the backstroke," st. Clair added.

In the butterfly, Adams again is the top man, while St. Clair is unsure about who will be the top person in the breaststroke. "We have about six who are all event" he said.

Adams and Billy Billica are the top people in the individual medley.

The girls are led by Laurie Walton, who does the freestyle and butterfly, and Helen Waldrop, who handles the backstroke.

"If both teams have enough girls, then they'll have separate events," St. Clair said. "If not, they'll swim right along with the boys. And some of the girls can outswim some of the boys."

The other two girls on the team include Laura Clark and Carrie Condra.

Other boys, and their events include Jack Jones, freestyle and backstroke; Matt Miller, backstroke; Jim McMillian, middle freestyle; Sturgis Payne, breaststroke; and Randy Woodard, middle freestyles.

Wrestlers Shine In Tournament

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. — East Carolina University's Southern Conference champion wrestling team finished in fourth place in the prestigeous Wilkes Tournament here last weekend.

The Bucs, however, out did everyone in having two individual champions in the event, something no other team managed.

Dan Monroe downed Bob Robert of Wilkes College to take the 126-pound class with an 8-6 decision. The victory was the fourth straight tournament win for Monroe this year. He has already won championships in the Thanksgiving Open in Norfolk, Va.; the N.C. Collegiate title, and the title of the Maryland Federation Tournament a week earlier.

At 134, Jim McCloe downed Stuart Pruzansky of the New York Athletic Club, 10-1. Pruzansky is a former national champion.

"We didn't enter a full team," Coach John Welborn said. "This tournament is the Rose Bowl of Wrestling, and we didn't expect to do this well. Perhaps if we had carried a full team we might have won it."

First place instead went to Clarion State with 49 points. Hosting Wilkes had 45, while the New York Athletic Club had 43½. East Carolina was fourth with 40½. They were followed by Asheland with 27, Slippery Rock with 26, Buffaloe with 23 and William & Mary with 19.

"It was our best finish ever in this fine tournament," Welborn said. "And I'm really elated by it."

The Pirates play host to Connecticut here Saturday in their second dual meet of the season.

Belhaven Rips Oak City, 83-39

BELHAVEN — Belhaven High School gained revenge for an earlier loss to Oak City by thumping the Trojans, 83-39 here last night. The Oak City girls, however, came away with a 35-31 win.

In the opening game, Oak City rushed away to a 10-point lead, outscoring Belhaven, 12-2. They continued to hold sway in the second quarter, holding a 10-8 scoring advantage and a 22-10 halftime lead.

Belhaven bagan to rally in the third period, outhitting the Trojanettes, 12-6, and cutting the lead back to 28-22. They did it again, 9-7 in the final period, but never were able to close the gap completely.

Sylvia Jones led all scorers with 21 points for Oak City.

In the boys' contest, Belhaven outpointed Oak City, 18-10, in the first period. But it was the second frame that really meant the difference. In that, the Trojans were held to only four points, while Balhaven ripped the nets for 26. That rushed them out into a 44-14 lead at the half.

In the third period, Oak City came back with a 14-7 score and cut the lead back slightly, to 51-28, still far behind. Then, in the last quarter, Belhaven burned the nets for 32 points while Oak City got 11 to set the final wide margin.

Carl Hogan led Balhaven with 25 points, while Eddie Arthur had 14, Raymond Gibbs had 12 and Donald Jinette had 10. For Oak City, Russell Cotten had 11 and Shelton Jones had 10.

Charger Second Half Sinks Aycock

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

LITTLEFIELD — Ayden-Grifton's Chargers overcame a ten-point halftime deficit to completely throttle the Falcons of C.B. Aycock by 76-47 last night. The Chargerettes had a hair raiser as they won over the Lady Falcons, 45-44, in overtime on a free throw by Debra Barfield that came with :31 on the clock.

The Aycock J.V. won easily, 56-46.

The first quarter of the girl's game was a typical Chargerette first period. Aycock got the first basket but the A-G put through a pair of free throws and two buckets to take the lead. The teams swapped baskets for the remaining minutes and at the end of the period, A-G had a four point spread, 10-6.

The Lady Falcons roared back in the next frame, scoring 16 points and holding A-G to two free shots and one field goal. That boosted Aycock into the lead at the half, 27-17.

Decia Little started the A-G girls back in the third quarter as she sank a couple of field goals to cut the lead down to 27-21 and Wanda Wheless knocked off another point as she canned a free shot. Terry Wooten scored from the lane with 5:24 left in the quarter to chop the gap down to two points, 27-25.

Nancy Sugg connected on a pair of charity shots to tie the game and Wooten scored again to put the Chargerettes ahead for the first time in the second half. It was tied right back up on a jumper by Aycock's Jeanie Kearny, 29-29. Phyllis Parnell put the Lady Falcons back in command on a free throw but a pair by Wooten gave the advantage back to A-G. The lead changed hands four more times with the A-G girls getting it on Sugg's bucket on a drive down the lane with 1:39 left in the frame. At the end of the period, the Chargerettes had a slim two-point gap, 36-34.

In the fourth quarter, the Lady Falcons, after getting a free shot from Jan Aycock and a basket by Jean Evans, inched ahead on a steal that resulted in a basket by Annette Dickenson making it 39-38.

Another free shot made the lead two and set the stage for Little's score-tying hook shot with just under three minutes to go. Aycock got the lead right back for the Lady Falcons on a baseline drive but that was it as Sugg dumped one in with :27 left in the game to force it into overtime.

The only point scored in the extra frame was Barfield and that was all A-G needed to win.

Kearney led the scoring for the losers with 12 and Parnell had 11 before fouling out. Little was high for the game with 15, and both Wooten and Sugg each dumped in 10.

In the boys' game, the Chargers were out of it until the last part of the second quarter. Aycock had scored first on a jumper by Donnie Howell and then added three more for a 8-0 lead before the Chargers had even gotten going. Melvin Stewart finally broke the ice for A-G on a long strike from the corner but his teammates were all still cold and at the end of the quarter, A-G was down by seven, 15-8.

In the second period, The Falcons moved out to a seven point lead again, 20-13 but A-G cut it to 21-17. Phillip Brown scored for the Chargers as did Travis Woods putting the Chargers in front for the first time.

The lead was short lived as Thurmond Hobbs hit from the corner getting the lead back and Arthur Stafford added three free throws to put A-G in the unusual position of being behind at intermission.

But the Chargers came out of the dressing room looking like a different team and proceeded to dump in 24 points in the third period to ease out to a 47-34 tally. The Falcons could only get eight in the period.

In the fourth quarter, the second A-G team came and continued to humiliate Aycock as the Chargers poured through 29 points moing out by as much as 18, 69-43.

There was no way the Falcons could recover.

Terry Durham had 10 points for Aycock. Brown had 28 for A-G, Willie Stewart added 15 and Melvin Stewart popped in 14.

It was the ninth straight win for the Chargers, who travel to Eastern Wayne on Friday.

Tigers Claw Scotland Neck

WILLIAMSTON — Williamston High School swept a pair of Albemarle Conference games from Scotland Neck last night. The Tigers took the boys' game, 45-38, while the Tigerettes won theirs, 42-13.

In the opener, Williamston's girls rush away to a 15-2 lead in the first period of play. They continued to outgun the Scots, 10-4 in the second quarter, extending their lead out to 25-6.

The third quarter saw things get no better for the visiting team as Williamston again hit the nets for 10 points, while limiting Scotland Neck to just three. That made it 35-9. They finished things off with a 7-4 advantage to wrap up the victory.

Sissy Taylor led the scoring hitting 17 points to pace Williamston.

In the boys' game, the results were no different. Williamston gained the lead during the first period and held a 10-6 advantage at the first horn. They weren't able to pull away in the second quarter, however, as the two matched basket-for-basket and ended with the score 20-16, still the four-point spread.

Scotland Neck put on a rally in the third period and outscored the Tigers, 14-6, charging into a 30-26 lead. But the Tigers responded to that by coming back with a 19-8 advantage in the final period to erase the lead and push back ahead and win it.

Dwight Ange led the Tiger scoring with 20 points, while Henry Wiggins added 10. Larry Whitaker had 12 to lead Scotland Neck.

Southern California's unbeaten Trojans capped a season-long stay in first place today when they were named college football's national champions for the third time in 11 years. The vote was unanimous.

Southern Cal, only undefeated team in the country, capped a 12-0 season and nailed down The Associated Press Trophy and with it the 1972 national crown Monday with a 42-17 rout of Ohio State in the Rose Bowl.

The Trojans received all 50 first-place votes and a perfect score of 1,000 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters in The AP poll as they officially dethroned Nebraska's 1970-71 champs, who were seeking an unprecedented third consecutive title.

Southern Cal, eighth in the preseason ratings, shot to the No. 1 spot following an opening 31-10 rout of Arkansas while top-ranked Nebraska was losing to UCLA 20-17. They were never headed as Colorado, Oklahoma and Alabama all took turns as the main challenger.

Oklahoma, unanimous runner-up to Nebraska last season, again finished second. The Sooners, who blanked Penn State 14-0 in the Sugar Bowl, were the second choice of 43 voters and received 872 points.

Texas, a come-from-behind 17-13 winner over Alabama in the Cotton Bowl, finished third with 667 points, barely edging defending champion Nebraska. The Cornhuskers demolished Notre Dame 40-6 in the Orange Bowl and wound up fourth in the rankings with 665 points.

Auburn's Cinderella Tigers, who weren't ranked in the preseason poll, climaxed a magnificent 10-1 season with a 24-3 trimming of Colorado in the Gator Bowl and finished No. 5 with 631 points.

Rounding out the Top Ten were Michigan, Alabama, Tennessee, Ohio State and Penn State. Michigan did not play in a postseason game while Tennessee outlasted Louisiana State 24-17 in the Bluebonnet Bowl.

LSU finished 11th, followed by North Carolina, Arizona State, Notre Dame, UCLA, Colorado, North Carolina State, Louisville, Washington State and Georgia Tech.

The preseason poll predicted that Nebraska would win the national championship, followed by Colorado, Ohio State, Arkansas, Penn State, Oklahoma, Alabama, Southern Cal, Washington and Michigan.

The Top Twenty, with first-place votes in parentheses, season records and total points. Points tabulated on basis of 20-18-16-14-12-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1:

1. USC (50)	12-0-0	1000
2. Oklahoma	11-1-0	872
3. Texas	10-1-0	667
4. Nebraska	9-2-1	665

Yanks Sold

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees have been sold by the Columbia Broadcasting System to a group that will retain president Mike Burke and general manager Lee MacPhail to run the organization, an informed source told The Associated Press today.

The Yankees have scheduled what they caled "a major news conference" for noon EST today at Yankee Stadium.

The identity of the new owners was not immediately known. Burke was believed to be a part of the new group.

CBS bought 80 per cent of the Yankees in 1964 and completed 100 per cent purchase of the club in 1966 for an over-all total of $16 million.

Burke, a CBS vice president, was named president and chairman of the board of the Yankees.

CBS bought the famed team after the Yanks had won their 29th American League pennant in 1964.

The Yankees haven't won a title since then. Last season the club, a contender in the AL East Division in the final month, finally finished fourth. The team drew only 966,328, its first year under a million attendance since 1945.

Greene Central Downs N. Lenoir

SNOW HILL — Greene Central High School outhit North Lenoir in the first and third periods and built up enough cushion to take a 58-48 victory over the Hawks last night. The Lady Hawks, however, took a 31-29 win in the girls' game.

Greene Central pushed into the lead early in the first period and built up an 18-12 lead. North Lenoir put on a rally in the second period, however, and outhit them, 16-11. That trimmed the Ram lead back to just one, 29-28 at halftime.

But in the third period, Greene shot away again, dumping in 18 points while holding the Hawks to just eight points. That built up an 11-point spread, 47-36, and North Lenoir could cut only one away from that, 12-11, in the final quarter of play.

Stevie Williamson and Moses Barron each dropped through 12 points to lead the Rams, while Jackie Sherrill and Ervin Spivey added 10 each. For North Lenoir, Mile Miller had 15, Gary Battle had 14 and John Cannon had 11.

In the girls' contest, North Lenoir moved into the lead at the end of the first period, 8-4. They had to fight to hold onto it however, as Greene came back with an 11-8 advantage in the second quarter. That cut the Lady Hawk lead back to 16-15 at intermission.

That slim lead also disappeared in the third period as Greene got one more point than did North Lenoir, 8-7, and tied it up at 23-23 as the final frame opened. But the Ewes weren't able to keep it up, as North Lenoir got one more basket, 8-6, to take the win.

Doris Lee led North Lenoir with 10, but Greene's Keith Gay led all scorers with 13.

The Rams travel to Southern Nash on Friday night.

Odd Rulings By Judges And Courts

—World Horizons for release Sunday Dec. 24 or thereafter —

Editor's Note: The Mississippi Supreme Court ruled Dec. 11 that it is a criminal act for a man to be a "Peeping Tom" but the law does not apply to women peepers. If you think that's an oddball ruling, read on. Here are some others culled from a new book "Cockeyed Americana," by Dick Hyman, published by The Stephen Greene Press.

By DICK HYMAN
Distributed by United Press Internaitonal

Ever since the Pilgrims established a permanent settlement on our shores in 1620, judges and justices from the lowest to the highest courts in the land have been handing down decisions on American shenanigans. And some of them are very dizzy indeed...

A Georgia Superior Court ruled: Those who shoot their friends for amusement ought to warn them first that it is mere sport.

A New Jersey court ruled that a man who breaks his leg in a three-legged race during a company picnic is not entitled to Workmen's Compensation.

A Detroit municipal judge ruled that a "friendly kiss" from the boss is assault and battery.

The New Jersey State Supreme Court ruled that a woman who does housework for her fiance cannot collect for it if the man backs out of the marriage.

A Texas judge decreed in 1911: It is extremely difficult to draw the line on a drunk. There are various stages such as quarter drunk, half drunk and dead drunk. There are stages of being vivacious, foxy, tipsy, and on a "high lonesome." It is about as difficult to determine when a young lady gets to be an old maid as to tell when a man has taken enough alcoholic stimulant to become "jolly sober" or "gentlemanly drunk."

No Secret With Women

A New York court ruled: There is no such thing as a secret when known by a woman.

Ruled a judge in Los Angeles: No man nor any ordinance promulgated by man can inhibit the habits of rabbits.

The Kentucky Court of Appeals stated that a wife may pour castor oil in her husband's whisky because it is a wife's right to try to reform her husband.

A California court decided a drunken man has as much right to a good sidewalk as a sober man, and he needs one a good deal more.

An Attorney General in Connecticut ruled that if you are a beaver you have a legal right to build dams.

A municipal court in Pontiac, Mich., ruled that it is unconstitutional, discriminatory and unreasonable for police to ticket ice cream vendors for ringing bells.

An Iowa court ruled that a man has a right to keep his mother-in-law out of his house.

A Michigan judge ruled that a woman's hair belongs to her husband.

The Oklahoma State Supreme Court ruled that gin is intoxicating.

And a Georgia district court ruled that love matches exist only in the imagination of novelists.

Life Expectancy Cut By Autos

LONDON (AP) — Road accidents cut a year from the life expectancy of males, compared with only a month for all infectious diseases, says Dr. John Havard, undersecretary of the British Medical Association.

He told a Royal Society of Health congress that nearly half the male deaths in countries where the auto is common were among drivers in the 15 to 24 age group.

Girls Can Look To Longer Life

LONDON (AP) — Girls born today are likely to outlive their brothers by six years, according to the Registrar-General's quarterly report issued here.

Life expectancy for boys in Britain is less than 69, compared with over 75 for girls.

About 13 million pet turtles are produced and sold annually in the United States.

Europeans Just Don't Take To Dice

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) —Europeans tend to pick up American ideas but there is one they have been resisting for nearly 40 years—the game of dice.

Monte Carlo sent a team over before the war to study this American phenomenon as a possible tourist lure. But the mystic words "snake eyes"—or "snek ice," as the French croupiers tended to pronounce it—excited only the curiosity of Europeans, not their wagering instincts.

Now that London has become the gambling capital of Europe still another big effort is under way to persuade Britons and Continentals that dice is just as pleasant a way of winning (or losing) as roulette, blackjack, baccarat and the rest.

They're Not Unhappy

"We're not unhappy with the results—we get enough Americans to keep our dice tables busy," said Alex Alexander. "It's simply that we feel Europeans would like it just as much if they gave it a chance."

Alexander runs the biggest dice table in Europe at the Hertford Club and one of the biggest baccarat games at the Ladbroke Club, two of the lush casinos that are keeping the British—among the bettingest in Europe—at home.

He is an official of Ladbroke's, a huge gambling combine which controls casinos and hundreds of legal betting shops in Britain and has diversified into hotels and leisure activities in several countries.

"Most of the gambling in Britain is now social gambling," Alexander said. "Less than two per cent of our players are hard core. For the rest it's an evening out. The casinos are strictly supervised under the Gaming Act, food is good, the surroundings pleasant.

Bets Are Graduated

"And the bets are graduated for all purses. You can play in most places for as little as 25 pence (60 cents) on the roulette wheel or blackjack table and wager as high as 1,000 pounds ($2,400) on, say, baccarat."

Alexander said the biggest gamblers in British casinos are Americans and Arabs, with the Italians, French, Germans and dutch some distance behind. The Greeks are good gamblers but tend to frequent Greek-run clubs. "We rarely see Latin-Americans or Spaniards," he said.

Alexander conceded that the French casinos on the Riviera still have a somewhat more elegant approach to gambling than the British.

"But we are catching up quickly," he said. "And we have the advantage of no tipping—by law."

Fibber Insists His Right Age Is Only 76

NEW YORK (AP) — Fibber McGee came out of retirement at a press conference held by Johnson Wax, which has sponsored "Fibber McGee and Molly" on radio throughout its existence, 1935-52. Fibber will do commercials for the company.

Fibber McGee, whose name is Jim Jordan, and Throckmorton P. Gildersleeve, whose real name is Hal Perry, did a skit for reporters and 18 actors and actresses from radio days. Manny Segal, who did sound effects for the show when it started at the Merchandise Mart in Chicago, did sound effects.

A representative from the city government gave Fibber McGee a key to the city and Fibber gave him a key to his closet. Somebody announced that Fibber is now 78. "Hold the phone!" interrupted Fibber McGee. He insisted that the truth is 76.

Clean Air Kills The Plane Tree

LONDON (AP) — London's clean air means death to hundreds of the city's plane trees. They're dying of sunstroke.

Said David Burdekin of the Forestry Commission research laboratory: "For some reason the plane is particularly susceptible to early morning sunlight after a night of hard frost. Until recently, because of air pollution, it never saw any early sun. But now we are getting both hard frost and strong morning sunlight. The effect is to kill off the planes."

Despite Many Efforts, India Keeps Caste System

By LEON DANIEL

NEW DELHI (UPI)—The late Mahatma Gandhi called them Harijans, which in Hindi means "Children of God." But the term does nothing at all to describe the ugly plight of India's more than 100 million Untouchables.

Intervening in a debate in Parliament's lower house last month, Prime Minister Indira Gandhi told lawmakers that the caste system causes India "incalculable damage."

"This system has to be demolished or this country is not going to move ahead," Mrs. Gandhi said. "Few things make such painful reading as the reports of Harijans being burned alive or of being subjected to some other equally heinous tyranny."

The lawmakers, many of whom won their seats by courting the votes of the Untouchables, cheered. But it is not likely that life will improve soon for more than 100 million Indians who are persecuted because of their "scheduled caste," as the law calls it.

Exists Despite Law

Although outlawed in 1955, Untouchability perists. There still are frequent investigations of caste-based murders of Harijans. Their huts often are burned by mobs and in many villages Harijans are not allowed to use wells, shops and temples used by other Indians. A very few have achieved success despite their low caste.

Defense Minister Jagjivan Ram, 63, is one of India's most powerful politicans. He also is an Untouchable.

Ram's career is proof that Harijans represent a powerful and perhaps pivotal political bloc.

When Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri died in 1966, Ram swung his bloc of more than 50 Harijan parliamentary votes behind Mrs. Gandhi, assuring her election as Prime Minister.

But Ram's story is atypical. During the past year there have been news reports that Harijans' hands were chopped off because they voted wrong, that others have been beaten or threatened for the same reason. The great majority of Harijans must do what many caste Hindus consider dirty work. They clean lavatories, dispose of dead cattle, sweep streets and make shoes. Despite the promises of the politicians most Untouchables still are locked in poverty and ignorance.

Gandhi warned that if love and legislation could not overcome Untouchability, the only alternative might be revolution. Despite the passing of the years, the warning still is valid.

A Revolutionary Alternative

Kalicharan Vikia, 49, a Harijan, has an address in Calcutta that is the envy of his fellow Untouchables. He lives at Raj Bhavan, the govern r's residence, where he has been a sweeper for 24 years.

"My friends think that I must be very happy to live in the staff quarters at Raj Bhavan and to have a government job," Vikia said, "but they do not know, and I never tell them, that I am sad because of something that is not my fault —my caste."

Vikia earns 215 rupees (about $28) a month as a sweeper at the posh Raj Bhavan and another 105 rupees ($13.65) monthly for sweeping at nearby commercial buildings at night. Those are not, relatively speaking, bad wages in a nation where many people do hard manual labor for as little as a couple of rupees a day.

"Even though the government has abolished Untouchability, and legally I am not an Untouchable, socially I am still low caste," Vikia told UPI Calcutta correspondent Ajit K. Das in an interview.

"The stink of the caste into which I was born remains," he said bitterly.

"I have lived in Calcutta for a quarter of a century and the people here are very liberal. When I am well-dressed, I am accepted by men of higher caste, but the moment I tell the truth —that sweeping is my job —the warmth goes away."

Vikia went to the heart of the problem, searching for words to describe his feelings about caste:

"Mrs. Gandhi has made a good beginning in giving us Harijans a feeling of equality. But what we feel about ourselves is not important. What others feel about us is what is important. It will take a long time before the law becomes the habit. I do not think I can live that long. I was born a Harijan, I will die a Harijan."

Krishnarao Gangurde, 35, is a lawyer in Bombay. He also is an Untouchable. Married and a father of five he lives in a joint family of 15 which includes his parents, brothers and sisters, Harijans all.

Gangurde turned from Hinduism to Buddhism, which recognizes no castes, as have thousands of other Harijans in India.

Government Fails

Gangurde, far more educated than most Harijans, believes his government has let him down.

"Like thousands of others, I expected that whatever was stated in the constitution would be implemented, but very little has been done so far," he told UPI Bombay correspondent Olga Tellis.

"As a lawyer, most of my clients are from the Harijan community," he said. "The reason is caste prejudice. Many times people of higher caste have come to me with cases, only to take them away when they discover I am a Harijan.

"In every sphere of life Harijans experience discrimination."

He said buildings declared by the government to be unfit for habitation have been rented to Harijan families. He said Harijans fortunate enough to get government jobs are discriminated against in promotions.

Sees Lot Improving

Madhav Ram, 29, a Harijan sweeper at Calcuta College and a bachelor, thinks things are getting better for Untouchables.

"It is true that some high caste Hindus still consider us Untouchable," Ram said, "but there are also many who are liberal enough to eat with us.

"I am an optimist. I am also not a very well-behaved man. If someone treats me as an Untouchable I will give him a lesson he will not forget."

In late November in the village of Sarnat, where Lord Buddha preached his first sermon more than 2,000 years ago, about 850 Untouchables who claimed they had been humiliated and persecuted too long by high caste Hindus embraced Buddhism in a roadside ceremony.

But conversio to Buddhism is not the answer for most Harjians. In their villages they still are saddled with the restrictions of their caste.

The Hindu doctrine of Karma teaches outcastes that their present misery is the result of sin committed in a previous incarnation. For centuries that doctrine has helped ensure that Untouchables would accept their luckless lot in life.

When Mrs. Gandhi spoke in Parliament of Harijans being "burned alive," she said. "I simply have no words to express my distress and revulsion at the occurrence of such incidents."

Laboratory Is Interested In Abnormal Fish

MONTAUK, N.Y. (AP) — If you catch an ocean fish with missing fins or an abnormal head, don't throw it away; call or write the New York Ocean Science Laboratory here.

Scientists want to know why more and more abnormal fish are being reported, and they want sports and commercial fishermen to help.

"If it is not possible to save the specimen, or the fisherman is out of the Long Island area, we would like a photo of the fish, arranged alongside a ruler or yardstick, and data as to the date, method of capture, location and comments," said Dr. Herbert M. Austin.

Austin said, "There are many types of abnormalities, but the most common and easily detected are pugheadedness, wavy backs and anomalies of the fins, such as reduced or additional number of fin rays, shortened or stubby rays, partial or complete loss of the pelvic complex and missing fins."

The Worry Clinic

What It Takes To Be Success

Clyde wonders why some people win success while their brothers remain failures! Use the "Lucky 7" formula below if you wish to climb faster up the ladder to success. And if you want a better job, send for the booklet below.

By GEORGE W. CRANE Ph. D., M. D.

CASE V-585: Clyde B., aged 17, is worried.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "why do some people succeed while others of the very same family are failures?

"Is it due to their genes and heredity?

"If not, what is the formula for getting to the top?"

Success Formula

Heredity does exert some influence on how far you can climb on the ladder to success.

For people who have such a low I. Q. as to be classified as idiots, imbeciles or morons, obviously can't go far.

But most of the failures in life have a good I. Q. and look about as attractive as those who succeed famously.

So the formula for success involves these 7 vital factors:

(1) Ambition to reach a higher goal in life.

Abraham Lincoln's mother (and later his splendid stepmother) must have nurtured and nourished his ambition.

For his father was rather shiftless and a "rolling stone."

Many a dedicated school teacher has also instilled ambition in the minds of boys and girls whose home life was mediocre.

Scout leaders, clergymen, YMCA workers—these have often planted the seed of ambition in otherwise indolent kiddies.

(2) Perseverence, coupled with a fighting spirit.

Dr. Freud once explained his success, despite the opposition of the 4 leading psychologists of the world.

"I just outlived my foes," he added, "for one after another passed away until I had the last word!"

And by a "fighting spirit," we don't mean you pick on others, as a bully, or deliberately try to start trouble.

No; we refer to your refusal to give up!

People who carry grudges thus have the "makings" for success, since they can prod themselves emotionally.

But "grudge carriers" usually lack a constructive goal, otherwise their emotional "self-starter" mechanism could lead them to glory.

(3) Health and longevity.

If you adopt nuisance habits like drinking whiskey or smoking cigarettes, you may die at 45 or 50. That may be old enough to become a vice-president.

But most presidents don't attain that goal till after 50.

Thus, if you die as a vice-president, you will NEVER be the head of your firm or top man on the totem pole of success!

(4) Technical training, PLUS.

In this competitive society, you can't "stumble" into leadership, for you'll need specialized professional or trade schooling.

And that big "PLUS," means a keen understanding of practical psychology.

A ready smile, plus a spoken compliment to your associates, will zoom you ahead of equally educated competitors who lack this psychological skill.

(5) Elbow grease, meaning, longer hours and diligence to duty.

(6) Horse Sense, which is based on wide experience and a sense of humor.

(7) Partnership with God.

Play the game according to the "Golden Rule" and learn to lay your workaday problems down when the quitting whistle blows.

Then you can relax at home, enjoy your family and ward off peptic ulcer, high blood pressure, spastic colitis, insomnia, etc.

So salute your Senior Partner each night in prayer, asking the Lord to take over the night shift so you can get 8 hours of sound slumber.

Send for my "Vocational Guidance Kit," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents. It also shows you how to apply for a better job.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	2 ◇	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Three of ♠

A clever false card by a defender induced South, the declarer at three no trump into making a fatal change of plans.

West opened the three of spades, East played the king and South permitted him to hold the trick. East continued with the ten which was also ducked, however, declarer won the third round with the ace.

Declarer was in position to count eight running tricks—five hearts and an ace in each of the other suits. He had a choice of taking the club finesse or working on the diamonds to develop his ninth trick. He decided to work on the diamonds, in an effort to keep West out of the lead for, if the latter ever got in—he would surely cash enough spades to defeat the contract.

The deuce of diamonds was led from the closed hand at trick six. West had been doing some thinking of his own, however, and he decided to take measures to throw South off the track. He put up the queen of diamonds to dislodge dummy's ace.

West's play provided declarer with some second thoughts. If his opponent held the king-queen of diamonds which appeared to be a distinct possibility, then it would be fatal to surrender the lead in that suit, for West would cash out. There was an alternative available, however, and that was to play East for the king of clubs.

So reasoning, declarer led the queen of clubs from dummy and took the finesse. Unfortunately, West produced the king and cashed his spades to score the setting trick.

Observe that, if West had played a low diamond when South led that suit, the ten will presumably dislodge East's king. The latter presumably returns a club and if declarer goes up with the ace and repeats the diamond finesse, he has more than enough tricks to land his game.
