Hanoi Demands U.S. Sign October Draft

By MORRIS W. ROSENBERG
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — The semi-public Vietnam peace talks resumed today with a sharp clash between the Communists and the South Vietnamese over the peace agreement Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho drafted in October.

Hanoi called for the United States to sign the agreement "promptly," but Saigon denounced the draft as a "disguised victory" for North Vietnam.

Saigon's representative renewed its demand that Hanoi recognize the existence of two sovereign states in Vietnam. Dinh Ba Thi of the Viet Cong said this was "utterly absurd" and a "U.S. maneuver to deny the fact that there now exists in South Vietnam two administrations, two armies and three political forces."

The chief U.S. delegate, Ambassador William J. Porter, called on the negotiators to lay aside the bitterness that has marked past sessions and turn toward reconciliation in what he called the concluding phase of the war.

Deputy negotiator Nguyen Minh Vy of North Vietnam issued a sharp retort at the end of the session, telling newsmen:

"While B52s continue carpet-bombing on the territory of our country, provoking mourning and devastation, today at this conference the American delegate tells us this is not the moment for rancor but is the moment to heal the wounds."

"We told the American delegate that if the United States wants to close the gap between its acts and its words, it must renounce its aggressive aims and acts of war and immediately proceed to sign without delay the agreement to which it has given its consent."

Saigon Ambassador Pham Dang Lam told the 172nd session of the semipublic Paris peace talks: "Unless they admit that their design is to achieve the reunification of Vietnam their way and to place the whole of Vietnam under their domination, the Hanoi authorities cannot fail to acknowledge that there are two distinct states of Vietnam."

He said both are "internationally recognized, each having its own political regime and exercising its sovereignty on its own territory, as in the cases of the two Germanys and the two Koreas."

The four-party talks resumed today after a two-week suspension. Their renewal was a preliminary to the resumption Monday of peace negotiations between U.S. presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho of the North Vietnamese Politburo.

Better Than Last Year, But Area Employment Sees Seasonal Decline

The civilian work force in Pitt County, estimated at 33,340 in November, decreased by 170 persons since September, 1972.

"The employment picture in the Greenville area has been influenced by seasonal factors, especially in tobacco processing," stated James E. Hannan, manager of the local Employment Security Commission.

Nonagricultural wage and salary employment experienced mixed trends over the past two months as a worker gain of 560 was noted in nonmanufacturing while a worker loss of 870 was recorded in the manufacturing segment.

"The unemployment rate for Pitt County in November was 4.6 which is 1.8 percentage points above the September rate, but is .6 percentage points below the one year ago rate," Hannan said. "A worker loss is expected in all categories of employment in the Greenville area over the next three months."

Total employment in the Greenville area experienced a decline of 760 during the past 60 days.

"This decline places the current employment figure at 31,820," Hannan noted. "The primary factors contributing to the decline were seasonal tobacco jobs and decreased agricultural activity."

Payroll additions at East Carolina University accounted for a large percentage of the nonfactory increase.

All other nonagricultural employment which includes nonfarm self-employed, unpaid family, and domestic workers in private households decreased by 320, while agriculture decreased by 130.

In comparing figures for November, 1972, with figures for November, 1971, there is an increase of 50 workers. Although nonmanufacturing employment increased by 460 over the past year, this increase was overshadowed by worker losses of 220 in manufacturing and 200 in all other nonagricultural employment.

Unemployment insurance claims increased 217 since September, 1972, and increased by 11 since November, 1971, to the current figure of 336, or 2.3 percent of the insured work force.

"By February, the total employment in the Greenville area may be approximately 30,500, a loss of about 1,300 below the November, 1972, estimate," Hannan said. "Seasonal cutbacks in agriculture, tobacco processing and apparel should account for the majority of these anticipated employment declines."

Agriculture alone is expected to lose about 800 workers.

Unemployment by mid-February is expected to be above six percent, as the mid-winter months are historically the highest months of unemployment in Pitt County, according to Hannan.

Another B52 Is Lost In Air War

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command today announced the loss of another B52 heavy bomber and another F111 fighter-bomber in the air war against North Vietnam.

It also reported that the recent air blitz on Hanoi and Haiphong pushed the total number of Americans killed, missing or captured during the last two weeks of 1972 to 109, the greatest number of American war casualties in two years.

The South Vietnamese Command reported 116 enemy attacks across the country during the past 24 hours, including 82 rocket and mortar attacks. It was the highest 24-hour total in two months; but most, apparently, were small. First reports from the Saigon command said four civilians were killed and 43 wounded; no American casualties were reported.

The U.S. Command said the B52 crashed today after being hit during a mission over the southern panhandle of North Vietnam. All six crewmen parachuted into the Tonkin Gulf and were rescued. It was the 16th of the eight-jet Stratofortresses to be shot down since Dec. 18, when President Nixon shifted most of the B52 force to the attack on North Vietnam.

The command also belatedly announced the loss west of Hanoi of another $15-million F111 fighter-bomber on Dec. 22, during the air blitz on the Hanoi and Haiphong area that ended last weekend. The command said the two crewmen were missing. Other sources said they were known to have parachuted before their plane crashed and were believed to have been captured.

This raised to 30 the number of U.S. aircraft lost to North Vietnamese fire since Dec. 18.

Killed In Pile-Up

WILSON, N.C. (AP)—A 59-year-old Farmville woman was killed and three other persons were injured in a six-car wreck on U.S. 301 near Wilson that blocked traffic for about 90 minutes Wednesday night.

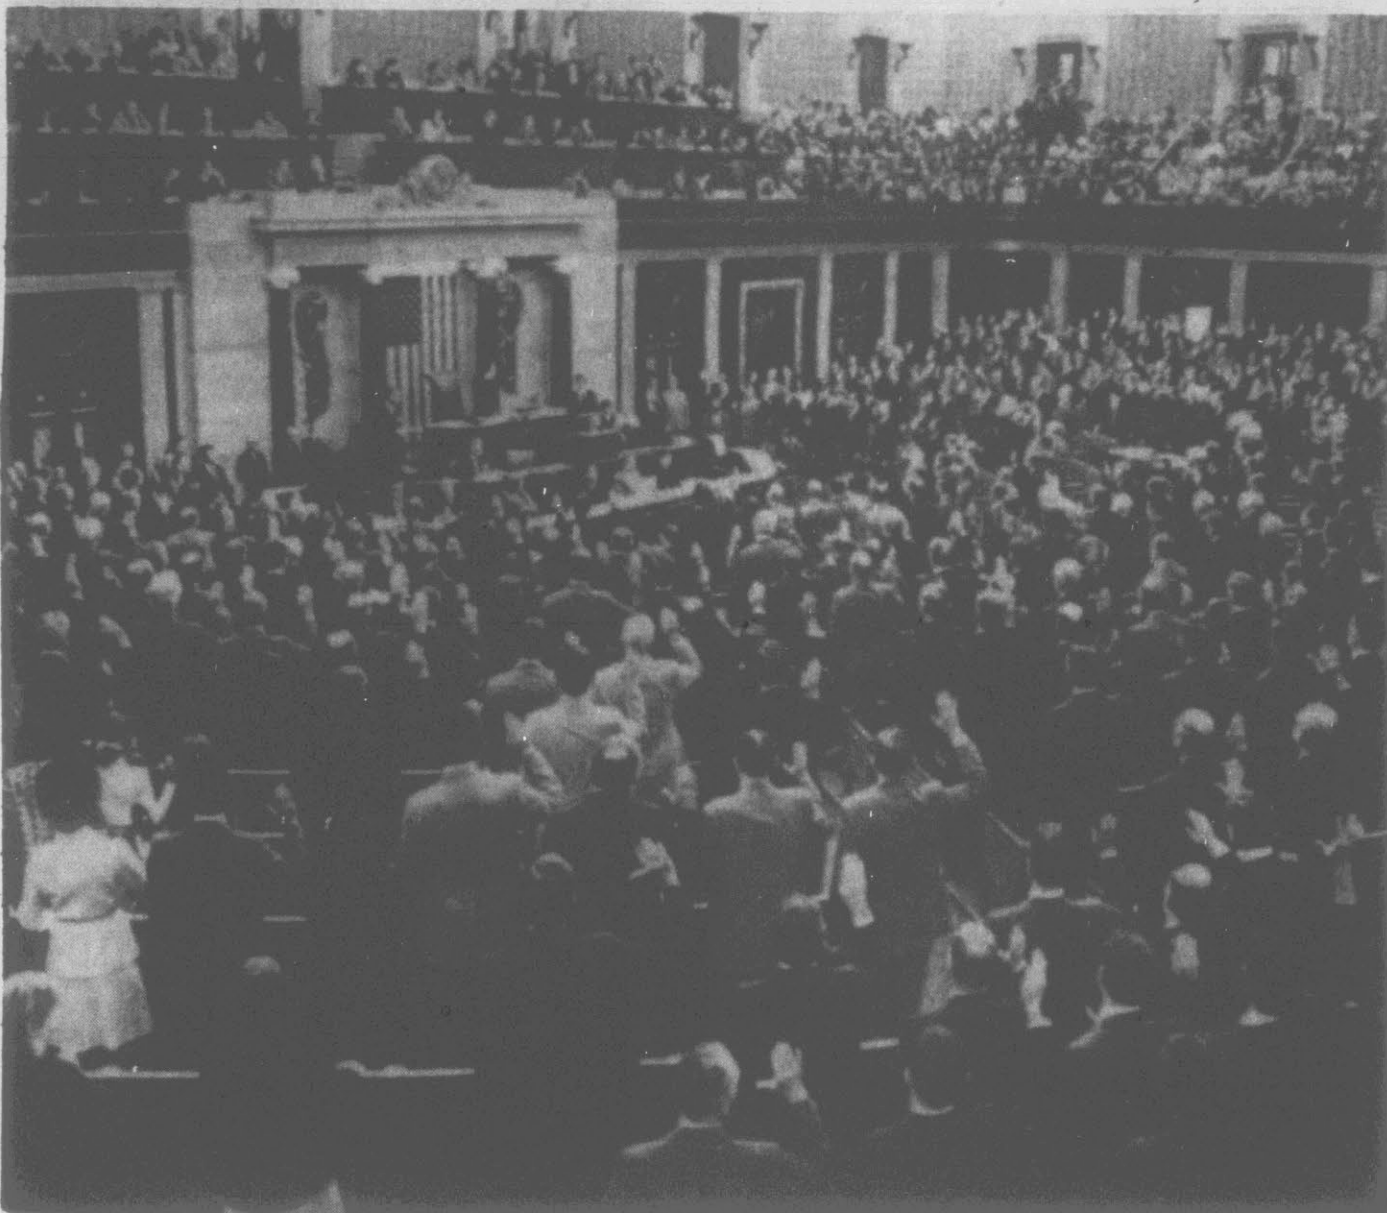

Highway Patrolman R.V. Davis identified the victim as Mrs. Hazel York Baldree. He said she was alone in her car and was traveling south in a northbound lane of the four-lane highway.

Davis said her car first struck two oncoming vehicles, which continued a short distance and stopped. The Baldree car continued, struck another vehicle and then collided head-on with a car driven by Judy Robbins of Elm City in Wilson County. Another car then collided with the Robbins vehicle, Davis said.

Mrs. Robbins was hospitalized in the intensive care unit of Wilson Memorial Hospital and her two children were reported in fair condition at the same hospital today.

Trooper Davis said traffic was backed up about 1½ to 2 miles while authorities worked to clear the highway following the accident.

Mrs. Baldree was the wife of Thurmon O. Baldree, formerly of Greenville.

Senate Demos Generally Agree—Move To End War

By HARRISON HUMPHRIES

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a White House suggestion that congressional intervention might prolong the war, Senate Democrats are in general agreement that Congress should try to end U.S. involvement in Vietnam if President Nixon does not.

There is increasing sentiment that Congress should act unless a settlement is negotiated by Jan. 20, when Nixon begins his second term.

Democratic senators planned to consider today a proposal by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy that would make it the policy of Congress to cut off all money for the Vietnam war immediately.

The only conditions on the cutoff, which was adopted by House Democrats Tuesday, would be release of U.S. war prisoners and safe conduct for withdrawing American forces.

Senate Republicans, meanwhile, with 17 of their number absent, voted 16 to 10 to support "the efforts of the President to end the tragic conflict in Indochina now through a negotiated settlements."

With the war the prime topic of conversation at the opening of the 93rd Congress, White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler told newsmen: "Members of Congress should ask themselves if they want to be responsible for raising doubts in the enemy's mind about the United States position and therefore possibly prolonging the negotiations."

In organizing for the 1973-74 session, Senate Republicans chose conservatives for two leadership jobs. William Brock of Tennessee defeated Edward M. Brooke of Massachusetts to become chairman of the Senate Republican Campaign Committee. And John Tower of Texas won over Robert Taft Jr. of Ohio for chairmanship of the policy committee.

Antiwar sentiment was not confined to the Senate Wednesday.

Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., introduced a bill calling for a prompt peace agreement and, if not, a cutoff of all money for the war.

Rep. Michael J. Herrington, D-Mass., offered a resolution of inquiry calling for the President and defense secretary to report on the number of bombs dropped, shells fired, planes lost, and men killed, wounded, captured and missing since the bombing of North Vietnam was intensified Dec. 18.

Tighter Security Steps For Inauguration Rites Friday Outside Capitol

RALEIGH (AP) — Tight security measures are being taken to provide protection for Gov. Bob Scott, Gov-elect Jim Holshouser and dignitaries who will attend the inauguration of Holshouser Friday outside the Capitol.

Director Charles Dunn of the State Bureau of Investigation said Wednesday "we're doing everything possible to provide protection."

"We are more security-conscious this year than in the past because in the last few years there have been more threats and overt acts against public officials," he said.

This marks the first time since 1933 that the inauguration has not been held indoors. Holshouser, first Republican elected governor of North Carolina this century, will take the oath on the east lawn of the Capitol.

"Distance is a problem in an outside event like this one, plus the usual concerns any time you have a crowd of several thousand, such as traffic," Dunn said.

He added that he knew of no threats against Holshouser or any other official involved in Friday's ceremonies.

Taking part in the security will be SBI agents, Raleigh policemen, Wake County officers, the Capitol Police and National Guard.

The Highway Building across the street from the inauguration site will be emptied of its employees and locked two hours before the noon inauguration. It will reopen at 3 p.m. The parking decks behind the Highway Building will be chained off from Thursday night until Friday at 3 p.m.

The inauguration ball will be held Thursday night in Reynolds Coliseum on the North Carolina State campus.

The inaugural parade will be held following the inauguration ceremony. More than 120 bands, floats, marching units and special attractions will take part in it.

Lawrence Crockett, chairman of the Inaugural Committee, said every area of the state will be represented in the parade.

A new feature of this year's parade will be the appearance of floats sponsored by Republican organizations from across the state.

New President Of Heart Ass'n

Miss Evelyn L. Perry, Dean of the East Carolina University School of Nursing has been named President of the Pitt County Heart Association, it was announced by Dr. Robert N. Headley of Winston-Salem, President of the N.C. Heart Association.

J. Curtis Hendrix of Greenville will serve as treasurer; Mrs. Barbara Oyler is secretary and George Threewitts is public information chairman.

Prior to joining ECU in 1962, Miss Perry was nursing instructor at Watts Hospital in Durham and an educational consultant with the N.C. Board of Nursing. She is a graduate of UNC-Chapel Hill where she obtained a bachelor and master's degree in nursing. Her home is in Washington, N.C.

According to Miss Perry this is the first year that Pitt County has organized its fund raising efforts under a single county association.

She explained that last year the counties of Pitt, Martin, Edgecombe, Nash, and Halifax were members of the Coastal Plain Heart Association and the five counties contributed a total of $41,418 to the American Heart Association.

"This year's goal for Pitt County alone is $19,000," Miss Perry said.

Abby Agrees With Changing Son's Name

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I named our son John Allen Jones II after my husband. We used "the second" because we didn't want to call the baby "Junior." We were later told that "the second" should not be used when a boy is named after his father. It is used only when a boy is named after another relative bearing the same name. We know several people who have used "the second" when naming a son after his father. Have all these people made a mistake or has the rule changed?

In this state [Tennessee] we have one year in which to make a change in a name without any difficulties. Please tell us whether we should change "the second" to "Junior."

NEEDS TO KNOW

DEAR NEEDS: Change your son's name from "the second" to "Junior." A child bearing the same name as his father is Junior. If a child bears his grandfather's name, which is different from his father's name, he is "the second." If grandfather, son and grandson all have the same name, the father of course is "Junior" and the grandson is "the third."

The use of "the second" indicates that the bearer of the name is a cousin, nephew, or grandson of the original holder of it.

DEAR ABBY: We are two girls who are having a big argument. She's 17 and I'm 18. She's a virgin and I'm not, and she says a guy can tell whether a girl is a virgin or not by the way she walks.

I say a girl doesn't walk any differently after she's gone all the way with a guy than she did before. We'll be looking for your answer.

WAITING IN COLORADO

DEAR WAITING: You can't tell if a girl is a virgin by the way she walks. But you can sometimes tell by the way she TALKS.

DEAR ABBY: The other day I was with a young friend who told me [with no shame whatsoever] that she was using her husband's telephone credit card given to him by his firm to be used for business calls only. She bragged that she made long distance telephone calls to her parents and friends all over the United States and thinks nothing of it. And she said her husband said it was okay.

This young woman has four children and she would be furious if one of her children "stole" anything. Yet that is exactly what she is doing. I can't understand some parents. No wonder their children don't respect them.

I am sure her husband would lose his job if his firm ever caught on. Or do all businesses expect a certain amount of chiseling?

NO NAME, NATURALLY

DEAR NO NAME: I'm sure they don't. Your friend is not only dishonest, she's stupid. Somebody should tell her husband to wise up, get his credit card back and go straight. Companies check up on that sort of thing.

CONFIDENTIAL TO WORRIED IN CEDAR RAPIDS: My doctor said: "Tell the 49-year-old lady with the 52-year-old husband to keep her guard up. She is not beyond the age of child-bearing."

Playground Uses Cast-Off Treasure

By LARRY REIBSTEIN

Associated Press Writer

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) —

It looks more like an abandoned construction company lot than a playground. But don't argue with the kids who use it — to them it is a playground.

And don't argue with community officials — to them, it's cheap.

The brainchild of Paul Hogan, a suburban Philadelphia ex-contractor, the "re-cycled playground" relies on the theme that "One man's junk is another man's child's treasure."

Hogan, under a contract with the state, utilizes such "junk" as empty cable spools, logs, concrete pipes, inner tubes, wheel barrows, pulleys and rope. He piles them, inserts them, twists them, carves them, or swings them to come up with playground devices that conspicuously lack the gleaming steel so noticeable in normal playgrounds.

Hogan has set up about 25 of these playgrounds across the state, several near temporary mobile home parks in flood-battered Wilkes-Barre.

Personal

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey R. Taylor of Bethel and daughter, Glenda Williams, visited during the holidays. Mrs. David L. Taylor and children and Mr. and Mrs. John Mayne in Key West, Fla., and Mr. and Mrs. James K. Taylor in Ameradale, Fla.

But aside from obtaining the cast-off material, Hogan tries to stay away from actual construction. That's for the children, which is apparently the key to the playground's popularity, as witnessed recently in a demonstration for Gov. Milton Shapp.

Asked why he liked the playground, 11-year-old Michael Sanders of Phoenixville, said: "You can build it yourself. You can take it apart and then build it again. It's better to do it yourself. You can do it with your own ideas rather than someone else."

"The philosophy," says Secretary William Wilcox of the Community Affairs Department, "is that process is more important than results. The kids get more out of building playgrounds than just using a facility. It's a way to build creativity. It's better than an antiseptic concrete turtle."

Hogan, who has nine children, notes, "An over-designed, maintenance-free playground is quite often shunned by the children it was made for."

For grownups, especially the taxpaying type, the future of these playgrounds lies in their virtually cost-free aspect.

Hogan tells of the Franklin

City, Venango County, Housing Authority; which budgeted $8,500 for a playground.

"We went in there and built one for $100," he said. "I told them, 'Take the $8,500 and hire a human being to work with the children and the playground to build things. Don't buy ready-made things.'"

Hogan says both wealthy suburban communities and hard-pressed inner cities are using his playgrounds. He adds, however, there appears to exist some opposition from the poor.

"There's a general psychological resentment against second-hand stuff," he said.

For the Inaugural Ball, Mrs. Holshouser will be wearing a full length, sleeveless gown fashioned of silver brocade with a portrait V neckline. The skirt has an inverted pleat at the waistline and flaring to the floor.

A white sleeveless gown of French illusion over peay do soie fashioned from designs by Mike Benet will be worn by Miss Aycock. The empire bodice with embroidered lace appliques features a scooped neckline with seed pearls, iridescent sequins and crystal beads. Her semifull skirt forms a sweeping back ending in a short train.

Changing Restaurant Scene Hits U. S.

By JEANNE LESEM

UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — People who scorn cafeteria service are flocking to tablecloth restaurants where they serve themselves everything but the entree and beverage.

French food, long regarded as the epitome of fine dining, is losing ground to Chinese, Japanese and Italian fare.

The changing restaurant scene may even revive the night club—not in cities, but in suburbs where growing numbers of diners take their evening meal out.

Consumerism also has its impact, says Robert D. Flickinger, president of the National Restaurant Association, a trade organization.

In an interview here, he predicted smoking and no smoking sections for restaurants within 10 years.

"The public is going to ask for it and smart restaurant operators will provide it," he said.

On the sanitation and health question, Flickinger expects restaurateurs to draw up their own code and train their own staffs to inspect premises and enforce rules. He said the association was instrumental in trying to get a uniform sanitation code throughout the country and uniform enforcement. He added that a code has been written and it has been adopted by the U. S. Public Health Service.

He favors putting hairnets on men and women employees who handle food and snoods on beards.

"Inflation is hurting business in more expensive restaurants throughout the country, but customers are still eating out," he said.

"They go either to a fast food operation or to a restaurant that's almost self-service. It has a limited menu and asks guests to make their own salad and get their own bread."

While they're doing this, a restaurant employee grills steak or lobster tail for the main course in view of the dining room and, sometimes, right in it.

Flickinger said total eating away from home has risen about eight per cent over the past year. He doesn't anticipate any downtrend in restaurant business or inflation.

He expects food costs to rise even for employees who eat in a company cafeteria or dining room.

"They're not subsidized as much as they used to be."

He said several factors are involved in the declining popularity of French restaurants—they require a great deal of service, a chef who's an expert at sauce-making and a lot of very expensive ingredients: sweet butter, cream, brandies and wine.

Flickinger also thinks people are trying to avoid sauces for nutritional reasons. He said he wouldn't be surprised if restaurants started indicating nutritional content of food on their menus.

"If the consumer movement becomes an educational process, I think consumers will improve their eating habits," he added.

"We as an industry have to respond to what the customer wants, and the man on a cafeteria line still wants mashed potatoes, spaghetti, a piece of pie."

"It's amazing how many people refuse vegetables, even asparagus, cauliflower and beets."

He said the time is ripe for a revival of restaurant entertainment, including music, dancing and one-act plays staged on the dance floor. Theater dining already has been revived in Buffalo, N. Y., Kansas City and Denver. A package deal in these restaurants includes dinner and the show.

He Gave Something In Return

All too often we think of sports personalities, entertainers and other famous people in terms of fast and loose living, as they rapidly pile up riches while they are young.

It is news, of course, when a football hero brags of his female conquests or a movie personality changes wives. It is duly reported and read by the public, as it should be. That is the price of fame, and certainly without the avid public interest there would be no fame and thus no money pouring in.

As we read of the sensational doings, it is easy to forget that people of national fame give their names and their personal efforts to many worthwhile endeavors. Public figures serve various philanthropic causes and, because they are famous, they help draw the public's attention to needs that must be filled.

Roberto Clemente was filling such a role when he lost his life in a plane crash in the Atlantic Ocean Sunday night.

Clemente, star outfielder for the Pittsburgh Pirates, was chairman of Puerto Rico's relief effort for the earthquake victims in Nicaragua. He had been named to this position on Christmas Eve.

Probably as one of Puerto Rico's most famous citizens it would have been enough if he had only lent his name to the relief efforts, but to show his compassion he chose to fly on the plane which was taking the Puerto Rican relief supplies to Nicaragua. As is well known, the plane crashed shortly after take off and the famous baseball player and the crew are presumed dead.

We have found that more often than not, those who gain fame in the sports and entertainment world are more than willing to return something to mankind by lending their efforts to good causes. Roberto Clemente was doing this on that fateful night when the plane he was riding crashed. He gave his life attempting to help earthquake-stricken fellow men.

History Sees Turning Point

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — Daniel Lindsay Russell, brilliant and hot-tempered, dreamed of becoming governor of North Carolina.

BRYAN HAISLIP

Republican though he was, the strange circumstances of politics at the close of the 19th century allowed him to achieve his ambition.

His own personality and the turbulent times combined to return the Democrats to power at the end of his term. To Russell fell the dubious distinction of being the last of his party label to serve as governor for the next 72 years.

History comes to a turning point with the inauguration this week of James E. Holshouser Jr. The Boone attorney, a Republican by heritage and a party leader by experience, interrupts a string of Democratic governors reaching back to 1900.

Whether the change signals a two-party system coming of age or simply a break in traditional Democratic dominance is the question to be answered by the future.

Few GOP Governors

Of the 29 Tar Heel governors elected since the Civil War, Holshouser is only the fourth Republican. In addition to Russell, the others were William W. Holden (1886-70), who was impeached, and Tod R. Caldwell (1870-74), who died in office.

A fifth Republican, Curtis H. Brogden, succeeded to the office upon Caldwell's death and served until 1877 but was not elected.

Unlike Holshouser, who must work with a Democratic General Assembly and Council of State, Russell was elected in a fusion of Republicans and Populists that took control of the legislature and state offices.

That 1896 victory at the polls proved short-lived. Racial turmoil, including riots at Wilmington, marred the Russell administration. Democrats regained the legislature in 1898, and partisan strife set the political tone.

Fair Judgment Awaited

A fair assessment of Russell as governor must wait a closer study of the period, said Dr. H.G. Jones, administrator of the Archives and History department.

"The picture which comes down to us is not a very flattering one," he conceded.

"But then, it has been difficult for early historians close to the scene to look at it dispassionately."

That Russell was ambitious, possessed of a keen mind, and fervent in loyalty to his friends seems evident. He also was a schemer attracted by the prospect of economic gain, and had an easily provoked temper.

He was described as a Tar Heel combination of Machiavelli and Falstaff by Dr. Robert F. Durden, Duke University history professor and author of "Reconstruction Bonds and Twentieth-Century Politics."

"Some of Russell's troubles as governor were, of course, of his own making. His hot temper was as notorious as his stubborn loyalty to his friends; the former led him into rash, ill-advised actions and the latter characteristic caused him to stand beside certain of his appointees who hardly deserved such steadfastness," wrote Durden.

"But aside from his personal shortcomings, which were, after all, counterbalanced by intelligence and courageous independence, Russell's political difficulties sprang from more deep-seated impersonal circumstances..."

Race Caused Woe

"The most fundamental source of Governor Russell's political woe lay in the Democratic party's strategy of resorting to a calculated policy of exploiting racial fears and passions to enable the 'White Supremacy' party to regain power in the anti-Negro campaigns of 1898 and 1900."

The darker shadow on Russell's record, as related in Durden's book, was his involvement in a scheme to cash in on Reconstruction railroad bonds issued by the state.

Russell, born to wealth, died a pauper eight years after leaving the governor's office. An only child, he had no children.

He came of a Brunswick County family active in politics. His parents died while he was a boy and he was reared by his grandparents in Onslow County.

He abandoned his studies at the University of North Carolina to serve in the Confederate Army. He was elected to the legislature before he was 20, and to the bench before he was 22. He also served a term in Congress before his election as governor at 51.

Advances in education, creation of the state insurance department, and election by the people of an agriculture commissioner are on the plus side of his administration.

N.Y. Politicos See The Light

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

NEW YORK — The extent to which even the most radical reformers in this city were stunned by the McGovernite debacle was demonstrated recently when Rep. Herman Badillo, a leftist Congressman from the Bronx and a beau ideal of the reformers, secretly visited a conservative-minded regular Democratic leader.

To the regular's surprise, Badillo asked his support for mayor in 1973. To his utter astonishment, Badillo then suggested a running-mate for president of the City Council, second spot on the ticket: Rep. Mario Biaggi, Badillo's fellow Bronx Congressman and apostle of law-and-order, publicly reviled by Badillo-style reformers.

Badillo totally failed to convince the regular leader, who believes Biaggi has an infinitely better chance in the Democratic primary than Badillo or any other reformer. What's significant is that Badillo was willing to swallow his scruples sufficiently to move rightward. He is not alone. The whole army of would-be mayors is dashing madly toward the center.

Indeed, following a decade-long liberal domination over politics and government in New York City, a conservative Thermidor has set in. The fact that Sen. George McGovern was badly beaten in the former Democratic stronghold of Brooklyn and barely carried the entire city against conservative Republican Richard M. Nixon has brought home the new facts of life to Democratic politicians.

New York City is no longer the capital of liberal America. Seven years of Mayor John V. Lindsay, the liberal-Republican-turned-liberal-Democratic, have equated liberalism here with runaway spending at city hall, ever-rising taxes and coddling of street crime.

"Fear and survival are the key words for the voters," a Brooklyn Democratic politician told us. Thus, the city's white majority (including Jews, traditionally staunch civil libertarians; are not interested in ideology or chrisma but in a mayor who could make the streets a little safer.

So it is that many politicians now believe that Mario Biaggi, a police detective with 23 years service and the city's medal of honor for bravery, would win a Democratic mayoral primary today, a city wracked by fear and outraged by permissiveness could well turn to the police hero. In fact, Biaggi might become mayor through the combination, unthinkable just a few years ago, of nominations from the Democratic and Conservative parties.

But the city's regular Democratic leaders, in unannounced meetings about the mayoral situation, have pronounced Biaggi non-electable ("Too exotic," says one borough leader). The regulars feel that Jewish voters ultimately could not vote for a tough Italian cop. Moreover, although Biaggi's police career has been probed endlessly without uncovering major scandal, smears from

To the editor:

The ending of the holiday season will doubtlessly find many homes with new dogs, cats, kittens and puppies. Many animal owners are completely unaware that there are specific laws relating to the care of animals, whether they be indoor or outdoor pets.

For the benefit of all concerned we have available sections of these laws relating to feeding, outdoor shelters, cruelty, sanitation, abandonment and unnecessary killing of domestic animals, plus indoor care requirements.

Anyone interested in any facet of the N.C. law under Article 47 may phone or write to me requesting the particular item they wish to check and it will be mailed or delivered to them free of charge. My phone number is 752-5794.

An Apostle Of Sanity

WASHINGTON — If there is one flower in our Washington gardens more hardy than all the rest, it is the sturdy rose of congressional reform. It blooms magnificently in the snows of January; it wilts, alas, by Lincoln's birthday. The plant is blooming now; and we should examine these rosebuds while we may.

As usual, the talk is of discarding the seniority system, but nothing will come of that. There is talk, somewhat less than usual, of changing the filibuster rule; nothing will come of that either. There is much talk of enlarging the committee staffs, the better to wage battle with White House troops, and we likely will see useful action here.

But very little is heard of the one reform that could mean more than all the rest — reform of the lunatic system by which the Congress goes at its task of taxing and spending. Now comes Bill Brock, a Senator from Tennessee, with a bill to accomplish such reform. His proposal cries out for public discussion and understanding.

Suppose, to be supposing, that you are the head of a far-flung family. In this first week of January, you know generally, but not precisely, what you expect to earn in the next twelve months — maybe $23,000, maybe $25,000. You then give credit cards, but you forget how many, to a dozen sons, daughters, and in-laws. You buy a couple of cars on a three-year payment plan. You enter into a long-range contract for a summer home, with a small payment down and larger payments later. In December you hear a knock on the door: It is the man from the marshal's office, bankruptcy papers in hand.

In roughly this reckless fashion, the Congress year after year goes at the task of spending the public's money.

Later this month, the White House will transmit a proposed budget, indicating revenues for the 12 months ending June 30, 1974, in the neighborhood of $240 billion. The appropriations committees, having divided themselves into subcommittees, will fall upon the budget like a pride of lions on a herd of gazelles. Nothing much will be heard for months. Back in their caves, or wherever subcommittees digest their prey, the congressional lions will go to work.

No subcommittee knows very much, or cares very much, about what goes on in the next cave. To each his own gazelle. One by one the appropriations bills will stagger to the floor. It will be October or November, well into the fiscal year, before the last of the separate bills is passed. Together they may total $260 billion or $265 billion. Because no limits have been fixed, and because the tax structure itself may change, the appropriations will bear only a coincidental relation to the revenues.

The United States Government, even with a debt approaching half a trillion dollars, is not going bankrupt. But the deficits for 1970-73 will exceed $80 billion, and additional massive deficits are certain to materialize over the next several years. Built-in increases in spending will exceed built-in increases in revenue.

This is folly. In urging sensible reform, Brock is not urging anything new. The late Harry F. Byrd of Virginia labored valiantly, if unsuccessfully, for essentially the same changes Brock is asking. He wants a joint committee on the budget, with responsibility for the total picture. He wants a system by which the costs of a given program will be realistically projected over a five-year period. He wants a fresh evaluation of every program every three years. And he wants to see a rule adopted by which every new

Trouble To Be Avoided

NEW YORK (AP) — They say that what you don't know can't hurt you. If that is true, then it must also be true that what you don't do can't harm you.

HAL BOYLE

Acting on that theory, I plan to stay out of trouble, because in 1973 I'm not going to — Get in a dogfight with Lassie. Snap Mae West's garter. Ask my landlord to repaint my apartment. Steal the keys to Ft. Knox. Mark graffiti on the walls of the Taj Majal. Become a munitions salesman in Indochina. Become a tree surgeon and perform an appendectomy on an oak tree. Tweak the muscles of a 90-pound weakling at the beach. Drag a red, white or blue herring across anybody's trail. Rub out a mobster. Pick a fight with City Hall. Entice away any gangster's moll. Denounce in print motherhood of the federal highway program. Buy a pig in a poke. Plant weeds in any man's garden. Patronize any second-floor massage parlor unless it has been given a seal of approval by the king of Sweden. Bear false witness against my neighbor who, after all, outweighs me by 30 pounds, is 20 years younger, and also had a longer reach and used to box in college. Why would I want to lie about a nice guy like him?

Weigh a butcher's thumb in the balance and find it wanting? Make any blind dates at cocktail parties where everybody gets blind. Kite a check. Run off with any other guys' wife. For a man over 40, that would be like snitching rhinestones from a dime store jewelry counter.

Strength For Today One Can Become A Millionaire

TRUE SUCCESS

In one of his epistles to his young friend Timothy, Paul declared: "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith: henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing" (II Timothy 4:7-8).

If we can come to the end of our lives and utter such words with confidence we have truly lived victoriously. Every day we are tempted to forsake goodness and cling to evil. In the whole of history we believe that there was never but one Perfect Man, and he suffered a violent and cruel death. A clear conscience at the end of life is something indeed to be coveted and sought after. We may be rich as Croesus, have standing among our fellows, hold an important office and yet be a moral failure. The requirements of God are at one and the same time easy and difficult. They are easy in that they involve only one thing, namely, fidelity to his laws. They are difficult because living a life of such fidelity involves continual sacrifice. Happy the person who can make the sacrifice and do so willingly.

True success in life means the conquering of self, the triumph of our higher nature over the sins that so easily beset us. To fight the good fight and keep the faith means the only victory in life worth achievement.

NEW YORK (AP) — It is at this time of year, when the mail brings bills rather than greetings, when reality closes in upon the spirit, that the working stiff takes pause to brood upon his financial plight.

The postholiday letdown may be responsible for the mood or probably it has something to do with early dusk and the realization that winter has just begun and that vacation time is months away and that junior needs his tuition money now and Uncle Sam wants his by April 15.

Whatever, it is a time when everyone needs relief from bleak reality, when the spirit craves an infusion of hope to nourish dreams. And so, here it is.

Would you like to become a million ire? While you consider your question, here is some factual information on how it might be done, depending upon your age.

If you are young enough, say 25, you might accomplish this goal if you can invest $100 a month for 40 years, and never dip into it except for taxes.

If you're middle-age you may have to settle for less, something ranging from a half-million dollars down. But your approach would be the same — to set aside $100 a month every month and never vary from that schedule.

The advice comes from a noted stock market authority, a conservative investor with a fascination for slide rules and the magic of compounding, a man who began his own advisory service because Wall Street gave him opinion rather than fact.

John Winthrop Wright describes the plan in his book, "Q-V-T, The Three Keys to Stock Market Profits." "Q-V-T," or quality, value, timing, is the basis of his investment philosophy.

"In the stock market," says Wright, "the competent investor can expect an average total return — dividends and capital appreciation — of from 8 per cent to 10 per cent a year." This from blue-chips, not speculations.

"By following sound, proven, professional investment methods he can increase that return to as much as 15 per cent a year. At that rate, he can double his money every five years if he compounds his profit. "With an investment of as little as $100 a month and immediate reinvestment of all dividends and capital gains, a 25-year-old person can be worth just about $1 million by retirement at age 65.

"His total investment from personal savings will be only $48,000; the $1 million will be net, after payment for all income taxes!"

This is how your money would grow, assuming you achieve that 8 per cent or 15 per cent return each year and reinvested all dividends and capital gains. Brokerage commissions are deducted, but taxes are not.

At an average annual return of 8 per cent, compounded quarterly, your original investment after 20

Holshouser Adds Distinctions To Long Story

By H. G. JONES,
Administrator Archives and History

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's 132-year-old state Capitol, freshly cleaned and sporting a new copper roof, will provide the backdrop for the inauguration Friday of Jim Holshouser Jr., as the state's youngest governor in more than a century and the first Republican since 1901.

Gov. Holshouser will add a number of other distinctions to the record books. He will be the first native of Watauga County and the first resident from northwest North Carolina to hold the position since Tod R. Caldwell of Burke County died in office in 1874.

Holshouser was the first man to be elected governor while serving in the state House of Representatives since Richard Dobbs Spaight Jr., who went out of office in 1836.

The youngest men ever to be elected governor were David L. Swain, 31, in 1832; and Zebulon B. Vance, 32, in 1862. They, like Holshouser, were mountaineers.

The new governor was determined to return to a tradition discontinued early this century by holding the inaugural ceremony on the grounds of the historic Capitol. Workmen are putting the finishing touches to the platform on which outgoing Gov. Bob Scott, previously the youngest governor since Vance, will watch his record being broken.

Looking over their shoulders will be the statue to three North Carolinians who went on to become president of the United States — Andrew Jackson, James K. Polk, and Andrew Johnson.

After the public inauguration, the two principals will slip quietly into the Greek Revival Capitol, where Scott, the dairy farmer from Haw River, will hand over the great seal of the state, formally transferring the chief executive's authority to the attorney from Boone. It will be only a fleeting glimpse of his office for the new governor, however, because he will go to work in the temporary executive office in the State Administration Building until the restoration of the Capitol is completed.

The completion, hopefully, will come about late in 1973. Additional funds are being requested from the 1973 General Assembly to allow the finishing of the restoration of the office areas of the first floor and the entire second and third floors. Gov. Scott, who made the restoration of the building his pet project, will not be in office to see its completion.

Much, though, has already been done. The replacement of the ancient copper roof, whose pinholes had allowed water to damage the interior ornamental work, has been replaced. The exterior walls have been cleaned, the windows have been repaired, and a new air circulation system has been installed. The only inside work accomplished has been the cleaning, repairing, and repainting of the rotunda.

Among the thousands of persons watching the history-making ceremonies and comparing the old and the new will be a bearded historian, a former teacher, who remembers a bright young student at Appalachian High School 23 years ago. On Friday that young man will have conferred upon him the highest honor that North Carolinians can bestow upon a fellow citizen. I—and the other AHS teachers—will be proud.

Set SCUBA Course For January 25

A non-credit evening course in SCUBA diving will be offered by the East Carolina University Division of Continuing Education beginning January 25.

The course consists of eight three-hour sessions, meeting Tuesday and Thursday nights from 7 to 10 o'clock in Room 144 of Minges Coliseum. The 27-hour course is designed to train the student in the sport of skin and SCUBA (self-contained underwater breathing apparatus) diving to react favorably under both normal and adverse conditions, on the surface and under water.

Students completing the classes will be certified under the Los Angeles County basic SCUBA certification program.

The first session will be an introductory session, with students being given details on equipment arrangements for the course, medical examination forms and the objectives of the course will be outlined. A swimming test will also be administered during the first class meeting.

The ninth or final session will consist of a deep dive test to be arranged by the student and the instructor. Most deep dives will take place in the Morehead City area.

Students must supply their own flippers, mask and snorkel. The remainder of the equipment needed, including air, may be rented from the instructor for $25 for the duration of the course.

Tuition for the course is $40 ($1.47 per instructional hour), plus equipment if needed. Participants who fail the swimming requirements will have their money refunded.

Persons wishing to apply for the course should contact the Division of Continuing Education at ECU by writing P.O. Box 2727 or calling 758-6321.

Class size is limited to 20 students and interested persons should apply for the course and pay the tuition fee by January 22.

Governor Scott Urges Flood Insurance Plan

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott says a survey shows that out of 200,000 potentially flood prone dwellings and businesses in North Carolina, only 2,600 are insured against flood damage.

Scott said in a prepared statement Wednesday low cost flood insurance is available to all federally certified communities in North Carolina. It can be obtained through a program set up by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and the National Flood Insurers Association.

"Despite the fact that flood insurance rates are one-tenth of what they would be if they were not federally subsidized, hundreds of flood prone areas in North Carolina have failed to qualify for eligibility," Scott said.

He noted that a recent survey by the Army Corps of Engineers revealed there are approximately 800 flood prone areas in the state. Only 20 are eligible for flood insurance.

In establishing the flood insurance program which subsidizes the cost of this insurance, Congress required communities to adopt land use and control measures in order to limit construction in flood prone areas and thus reduce loss of life and property in any future flooding. The rule was imposed, Scott said, because some local officials were unwilling to restrict construction.

Scott urged every Tar Heel community not eligible for flood insurance to contact Richard Krimm, assistant federal insurance administrator in Washington, for information on how to satisfy federal land use requirements necessary for eligibility.

"We must be willing to pay the price of better zoning, better building codes and other control measures," Scott said.

Wrong Season To Investigate

TRENTON (AP) — The New Jersey Division on Civil Rights temporarily has suspended its investigation into charges that a Mays Landing nudist camp practices sex discrimination.

"It's a little difficult to investigate a nudist camp in the winter," a spokesman said Wednesday.

The complaint had been filed by Ralph Bellafonte of Paterson, who contended that the Sunshine Parks Nudist Colony charged men higher rates than woman and tried to discourage single males from attending.

The case will be pursued with the advent of warmer weather, the spokesman said.

Bethel 'For' Med School

BETHEL — The town of Bethel has been added to the growing list of North Carolina eastern municipalities endorsing the concept of expanding the East Carolina University School of Medicine.

At a town board meeting in December, Mayor James Dupree and members of the Town Board approved a resolution, representing the citizens of Bethel, urging "that the necessary steps be taken, and funds be made available, to expand the School of Medicine at East Carolina University."

"We support to request of East Carolina University to add the second year to its School of Medicine during the 1973-75 Biennium as the next logical step in the development of the School of Medicine," the resolution states, "and, also, urge that the additional steps required in the development of a four-year medical school be taken in subsequent biennia."

For the past several months, many towns and communities in the eastern part of the state, including Greenville, have endorsed similar resolutions. These are being sent to members of the 1973 North Carolina Legislature.

Artificial Blood Tried

BOSTON (AP) — A team of Harvard medical researchers, who successfully transplanted 35 rats' blood with a totally artificial substance, now plan to use the same experiment on monkeys.

It was the first successful transplant using an artificial substance for blood, Dr. Robert Geyer, head of the researchers at Harvard School of Public Health, said Tuesday.

Geyer said the rats survived without any apparent ill effects a 100 per cent blood replacement with a milky white substance described as a class of compounds called fluorocarbons.

Geyer said it is hoped that the substance, or one like it, will be able to keep various human organs alive for days and weeks.

"There are differences between monkeys and rats that require testing," Geyer said.

"The monkey is more susceptible to infection. ... In addition, the monkey replaces his red blood cells more slowly than the rat."

The artificial blood used fluorocarbon compounds to replace the oxygen-carrying function of the red blood cells. It uses a number of other components to give it the proper flow and other characteristics.

Less Than Half Of New Young Voters At Polls

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Census Bureau reports that less than half of the newly enfranchised voters from ages 18 to 21 cast ballots in the 1972 presidential election.

A report Wednesday showed 5.3 million youths in the 18-21 age bracket voted, which was 48.3 per cent of those eligible. It compared with a turnout of 71 per cent in the 45-64 age bracket, which had the best showing.

The over-all voter turnout was smaller in percentage terms in 1972 than in the 1968 presidential contest. The bureau said 63 per cent of the 132.3 million who were eligible actually voted in 1972, compared with a 67.8 per cent turnout in 1968.

Although Census Bureau officials and politicians consider the first voting performance by sub-21 voters as dismal, they said it was indicated by previous census surveys and was not surprising.

The bureau by law is prohibited from gathering figures on how the sub-21 age bracket, or any other voting group, cast its ballots. It did not offer any speculation on the reason for the low turnout in the sub-21 bracket.

The voting age was lowered from 21 to 18 by a constitutional amendment in time for the 1972 elections.

Voter participation was highest in the 45-64 age bracket with a 71 per cent turnout among the 42.3 million who were eligible to vote. There was a 51 per cent turnout out of 13.6 million eligibles in the 21-24 age bracket, many of whom also were first-time voters.

The report said that 64.5 per cent of whites cast ballots, 52.1 per cent of blacks and 37.5 per cent of Spanish origin. It was the first time the Spanish origin category had been reported by the Census Bureau. It speculated some of those in this category might not have been U.S. citizens.

A bureau official said registration percentages were highest among persons over age 25.

In the sub-21 bracket, the total registration was 6.4 million, which meant that 1.1 million of those registered did not vote. It was pointed out that one-third of the sub-21s are college students who were more likely to be away from voting locales on election day than persons in other age groups.

Remove Pier At Baldhead Island

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)—The Carolina Cape Fear Corp., which is developing Baldhead Island off Southport into a residential and golfing area, has complied with an order from the Army Corps of Engineers to tear down a small access pier.

This forestalls for the present any court battle with the Engineers over development of the island. Charles Hollis, chief of permits in the Army Engineers' Wilmington District, said he inspected the mouth of Bald Head Creek on Tuesday and found the pier removed.

Hollis said that he expected a new application for a permit. He said he based this view on informal conversations with employees of the company.

Consumer Bill Re-Introduced

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saying their bill has the best chance of passage, the Democratic chairman and top Republican on the House Government Operations Committee have re-introduced consumer-protection legislation which died last session in the Senate.

The new House was handed a basic consumer-protection bill Wednesday by Chairman Chet Holifield, D-Calif., and Rep. Frank Horton, R-N.Y., ranking GOP member of the committee.

When the last bill passed the House in 1971, some including Ralph Nader termed it too weak while some business interests called it too strong. Efforts to compromise carried over to the Senate, where it eventually was talked to death.

Holifield and Horton re-introduced the bill exactly as it had passed the House in the 92nd Congress.

"We believe the House-passed bill will provide the best basis for our consideration of con-

ABC Board Said Probed

RALEIGH (AP) — State Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan says "various actions and activities" of North Carolina's Alcoholic Beverage Control Board have been under investigation for eight to 10 months.

Morgan said in a statement Wednesday the probe is being conducted by the State Bureau of Investigation, but he did not specify what the activities involve.

He did say the probe included matters discussed in a series of articles by The News and Observer of Raleigh "concerning alleged improper or, perhaps, illegal activities by various persons employed in the ABC system."

Morgan added, "As a result of our investigation, two employees of the ABC Board have been indicted and information concerning another employee has been turned over to the appropriate solicitor for his consideration and presentment to the grand jury."

He did not elaborate. Later, in response to a newsman's query, Morgan refused to specify the allegations being investigated.

Stuntman Unhurt In Cycle Mishap

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Stuntman Evel Knievel has escaped injury in an accident that caused some $6,000 in damage to his $200,000 jet-powered motorcycle.

Knievel was sitting on the vehicle while it was being refueled Wednesday when there was an explosion and fire.

He is here for a week-end motorcycle show at the Convention Center.

Congress 'Tough' On Ending War

By WALTER R. MEARS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is talking tough about ending the war. The weeks ahead will tell whether Senate and House are prepared to match the words with action if President Nixon does not gain a settlement.

Congresses past have heard speeches, adopted resolutions, approved amendments, all aimed at ending U.S. involvement in Vietnam. But always they have stopped short of seeking to legislate peace by denying the administration the money to finance American participation.

That is what Democrats on both sides of the Capitol are talking about now, in the opening days of the 93rd Congress.

During its 1972 election-year session, the Senate twice approved, once rejected, amendments to cut off Vietnam appropriations. The House voted down such legislation.

Earlier, the Senate three times had adopted measures to set deadlines for U.S. withdrawal, contingent on the release of American prisoners. Those failed in the House.

The one amendment on which Congress did agree was attached to a weapons-procurement bill in 1971 and sent to Nixon. It was a compromise which asked Nixon to set a final withdrawal date as soon as possible, again, subject to prisoner release. The President signed the bill but said the Vietnam-policy rider was not going to affect his position. He said it was "without binding force and effect."

An appropriations cutoff would be a different matter, although the Pentagon once suggested that money already voted and committed would be enough to keep Vietnam operations going for a time.

House Democrats have adopted a resolution calling for an end to U.S. spending on the Indochina war, subject to arrangements for safe withdrawal of American troops and release of POWs. That action came in party caucus and has no binding effect, although the 154-75 vote signals roughly the lineup on the majority side of the aisle when and if legislation on that issue comes to a vote.

Democrats in the Senate are discussing a similar resolution.

But with peace talks resuming Monday, the next real moves in Congress may await Inauguration Day, Jan. 20. Before the new Congress convened, Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott said its attitude on legislation involving the war likely would depend on the status of the peace effort when Nixon formally begins his second term.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and Sen. J. W. Fulbright, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, both spoke of pressing for action in Congress if peace does not come by Inauguration Day.

House Speaker Carl Albert said he thinks Congress would vote to cut off war funds in its first appropriations bill if the conflict is not over.

That first bill almost certainly will be a measure to continue foreign-aid spending, now due to lapse on Feb. 28.

Publishers Call For Law Guarding News Sources

WASHINGTON (AP) — Newspaper publishers have asked Congress to pass a law to protect newsmen against compulsory disclosure of news sources and of unpublished notes and other materials.

A measure proposed by the American Newspaper Publishers Association on Wednesday would grant newsmen unqualified privilege from subpoena and would apply to any state or federal investigation or proceeding.

"Only legislation which grants an unqualified privilege from subpoena will achieve the fundamental purpose of assuring a free flow of information to the public," ANPA President Stanford Smith said in letters to the Senate and House judiciary subcommittee chairmen expected to handle the measure.

Smith said the measure was drafted by the ANPA to cover both federal and state proceedings "because most of the controversies have arisen at the state and local level."

Davis Taylor, publisher of the Boston Globe and chairman of the ANPA board, said in an accompanying statement that "under our concept of a free press, newspaper publishers bear the ultimate responsibility to the public to preserve a free flow of information."

"This means publishers must protect the rights of their reporters and editors under all circumstances to gather, edit and disseminate information," he said.

"Our reporters have already reported a drying up of sources because of fears stemming from the recent wave of subpoenas of newsmen and their materials," Taylor said.

President Julian Goodman of the National Broadcasting Company said NBC "enthusiastically" supports the measure.

"To insure the free flow of information to the public, newsmen must have absolute protection in maintaining the confidentiality of their sources," he said, adding the proposed law would grant such protection.

Malcolm Howard Is Sworn In At Raleigh

Malcolm J. Howard was sworn in as Assistant United States Attorney for the Eastern District by United States Judge F.T. Dupree, Jr. in ceremonies in Raleigh on Tuesday.

Howard, a former Greenville attorney, was an unsuccessful 1972 candidate for the 1st District U.S. Congressional Seat. He was graduated from West Point in 1962 and received his Law Degree from Wake Forest Law School. Howard currently resides with his wife and daughter at 417 Rose Haven Drive in Raleigh.

In announcing the appointment, United States Attorney Thomas P. McNamara stated: "I am exceedingly pleased to have on my staff a man of Mack Howard's qualifications and ability. He has a broad background of government experience and is exceedingly well versed in the issues facing Eastern North Carolina. I am confident my office as well as the people of Eastern North Carolina will benefit from his accepting this appointment."

Bishop Will Speak Here

Bishop Robert M. Blackburn, new bishop of the Raleigh area, will preach at the 11 a.m. service Sunday at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church.

His topic will be "Where There Is Hope, There Is Life."

A Greenville District reception will honor Bishop and Mrs. Blackburn Sunday afternoon from two until four o'clock in the church parlor at Jarvis Memorial Church.

A native of Bartow, Fla., Bishop Blackburn received his B.A. degree from Florida Southern College, Bachelor of Divinity Degree from Chandler School of Theology, Emory University and the Doctor of Divinity Degree (honorary) from LaGrange College, LaGrange, Ga.

He served as a chaplain in the U. S. Army, with the rank of captain, from 1944-46, in the European Theater.

The Blackburns are the parents of three children.

FARMVILLE — The Town of Farmville has been notified that it has been given the number one, on a priority list concerning Clean Water Bond funds.

The town has applied for a $117,881 grant to enable them to install a new water supply system. The application was made Nov. 21, 1972.

Singing Program Slated Saturday

A singing program will be held Saturday at 7:30 p.m. at Grindle Creek Church of God, Rt. 5, Greenville.

The program will feature the Apostolic Echoes of Wilson.

The Rev. Wilbur Franks is pastor of the church.

Art Museum Site Okayed

RALEIGH (AP) — Plans to build the North Carolina art museum on the Polk Youth Center site west of Raleigh cleared two hurdles Wednesday.

The State Capital Planning Commission and the Council of State approved the site. It already has been approved by the Museum Building Commission.

The 1973 General Assembly will be asked to appropriate funds to (1) pay the Correction Commission for the Polk Youth Center site; (2) construct a replacement center for the youthful offenders camp, and (3) add to the $4 million already appropriated for building the museum.

The Correction Commission voted last week to transfer 112 acres of the site to the museum group but withheld transfer of the 45 acres actually within the confines of the camp until a desirable replacement camp has been built and is in operation.

Decisions Postponed At Williamston Bd. Meet

WILLIAMSTON — Postponement of decisions marked the action taken by members of the Williamston Town Board at their January meeting held Wednesday night.

In considering a request by a group from Virginia Beach, Virginia to open a coin operated recreation center in the old Margolis Store building on Main Street, a motion was approved to delay until next Thursday a decision. Prior to that time, the Chief of Police and one board member will travel to Virginia Beach to view a similar center and make a recommendation for issuing or denying a permit to operate. The recreation center offered by the group features pin-ball and other coin operated amusement devices.

Two public hearings on rezoning also resulted in no decision, with board members to make a final determination at the February meeting. The first was a request to rezone from R-15 residential to highway commercial property on U. S. 17 south of Williamston. A delegation with a petition appeared at the meeting to register their opposition to the proposed change in zoning. The second request was for property on North Horton Street, also a request from residential to a non-residential zoning.

Zoning Administrator Edward Beach reported to the town board that D. G. (Cooney) Manning, a contractor for the new high school building, had not purchased the required building permit at a fee of $1,500. The matter is being turned over to town attorney D. A. Manning to determine appropriate action to be taken.

An offer by Kenneth Perry to pay the town a rental fee of $850 to farm the old town cemetery land was tentatively accepted pending advertising of a legal notice. Perry's offer will be accepted provided no higher bids for the rental are received within ten days.

In a report made by attorney Edgar Gurganus, representing the Peninsula Broadcasting Corporation of Hampton, Virginia, Gurganus revealed the corporation no longer wants to maintain a franchise for cable TV for the town of Williamston. He noted that due to FCC regulations curtailing the company's expansion, the corporation can no longer be certain of being permitted to make further expansion. The town board will now seek another firm to negotiate with for a new franchise.

Town tax collector reported that as of December 31, a total of $321,898.96 had been collected, a good level for this time of year, according to the collector.

North Pitt Wrestlers Feel They Can Challenge For League Title

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)

BETHEL — The North Pitt High School wrestling team has a new coach this year, and he has hopes of making the school the Eastern Carolina Conference champion this year.

The new coach is Roger Ingalls, a former East Carolina University wrestler. He is the first coach with a wrestling background at the school, but he heaps praise on the first mat coach, Clem Williams, for the groundwork he laid in the program.

"Clem did a fine job of getting wrestling started at North Pitt," Ingalls said. "The basics have been well learned and are well established both here and at feeder schools. This really helps with the experience."

Seven returnees are on the varsity team this year, and this gives Ingalls a solid foundation to build on this year. "We are starting two freshmen and five sophomores, with the remaining six as juniors and seniors. So you can see that our experience is pretty good."

Ingalls said he is looking for a successful year. "We have a strong team and we have all the potential to win the conference championship."

But he does have a problem, the lack of a heavyweight since the poundage has gone up over the holidays. "This is a normal weight shift as provided by the state." The lack of a man at six points will mean a gift of six points to all opponents unless someone is found to fill the position.

"We look for a real tough battle with both Conley and Farmville Central," Ingalls said. "It should be a three-way race for the league title."

The coach feels he has two to three wrestlers who are sectional championship material. "Linwood and David Brown are both contenders, along with Wesley Manning. All of them could go to the state and do well," Ingalls said.

Another with potential is Carlos Barnes, who hasn't been eligible as yet, coming on later this month. "He just might make it too."

Currently at the 100-pound level, Ingalls is using sophomore John Pritchard, who has a 3-2 record prior to last night's match with Farmville Central. He's backed up by three freshmen.

At 107 is David Brown, who is 4-1 currently. A sophomore, he was runner-up in the conference meet last year.

Wesley Manning, a junior, is the 114-pound man. He's 4-1 now, and Ingalls expects him to be along the best.

At 121 is Lonnie Sharpe, a freshman, who has put together a 3-1 record so far.

The best record on the team belongs to the 128-pounder, senior Linwood Brown, who is 5-0. "He's a defending conference champion and we look for him to go a long ways," Ingalls said.

At 134 is Ronnie Howell, a junior who is also a defending league champ. He's 4-1 so far and will do well, Ingalls feels. Barnes is his back-up man.

At 140 is freshman Gerald Smith, who is 3-0. "I definitely feel he can win the conference title," the coach said.

Johnny Dixon, a senior, is at 147. He's 3-1, and the coach feels that he, too, could win the league title.

At 157 is another senior, James Boone, who is 4-1. "He's going to do real well for us."

Steve Fuchs, a junior, is at 167, and currently has a 2-1 record. Jerry Howell, a junior is at 187 and is 3-2 on the year. And rounding out the team is the 197-pounder, Johnny Griggs, who is 2-3 so far.

Going into last night's match with Farmville, a team they've already beaten once, the Panthers held a 4-1 record, losing only a 4-A Wilson Pike.

Jamesville In 55-54 Victory

BATH — Jamesville High School nipped Bath High School, 55-54 here last night. The Bath girls, however, took their game, 54-23.

In the girls' contest, Bath rolled up a 20-3 lead in the first period and was never in trouble after the opening minutes of the game. They outthit the Lady Bullets, 11-10, in the second period and held a 31-13 lead at intermission.

In the third period, Bath again held the advantage, 14-6, and upped the lead to 45-19. They finished it off with a 9-4 scoring lead in the final period to complete the rout.

Velma Thomas led Bath with 17, while Joan Leggett added 12 and April Ross had 10. Donna Williams had nine to lead Jamesville.

In the boys' contest, it was a different story, however. Jamesville eased out into a 12-10 lead in the first period, but had to struggle to hold onto it. They outthit Bath, 14-13, in the second quarter for a 26-23 halftime lead.

Jamesville went to its bench throughout the third period, and Bath stormed back for a 15-5 advantage, taking the lead at 38-32. But the regulars returned, and tied it up at 46-46, regaining the lead after that and holding it. Bath was never quite able to head them again.

Horace Hall led the Bullets with 12 points, while Tommy Mizelle and Larry Modlin each had 10. For Bath, Anthony Singleton had 24 and Dick Woolard had 16.

Jamesville goes to Bear Grass on Friday for Martin County Conference action.

WE CATER TO PRIVATE PARTIES

East Carolina University returns closer to home, but still not to home, tonight when the Pirates invade Richmond's new Robbins Center to meet the Spiders of the Southern Conference.

The game will be the first of three straight Southern Conference games for the Bucs, including one at home. Following the game tonight, the Pirates will entertain Virginia Military Institute on Saturday evening, then go to meet tough Furman University on the following Saturday.

The Bucs, 4-4 on the year, will be out to even their league record, currently 1-2, with a victory over the Spiders, who have yet to win in three starts in their new facility.

But their record is deceptive. The Richmond five is 1-6 overall, but only once have they been badly beaten. That was in their opening game by number three ranked Maryland. The Terapins took an 82-50 win over the Spiders. They lost to West Virginia by seven, to Appalachian in Boone by two, to VMI by 11 and to Davidson by just eight.

Their lone win came against Canisius, 75-73, a team that downed Wake Forest by 20 points. Their last outing was 71-61 loss to tough Virginia Tech.

East Carolina, in the meantime hasn't lost to any team that could be called a patsy. They lost to Davidson, 100-80, then fell to Duke and unbeaten Mississippi State. The lone team to beat them in what could really be called an upset was The Citadel, which has a three-game winning streak against the Pirates in Charleston. That two-point loss left the Bulldogs unbeaten in the league.

The series between the two is noted for its toughness. The two teams are nearly break-even over the years, with Richmond holding a 12-11 edge. Last year, Richmond rallied from 12 down to win, 68-67 in Greenville, and nearly did the same in Richmond before finally bowing 80-74.

The Spiders are led by junior-college transfer Aron Stewart, who has only recently joined the team. In his two games, he's averaged 24 points a game, along with pulling down 11.5 rebounds a game.

Jeff Snider, a 6-10 middle man, is hitting at a 14.9 clip with 11.3 rebounds, while Bob Jacobs, a guard, has a 12.1 average. Ray Amann, also 6-10, is getting 10.9 points a game, and 9.0 rebounds. Rounding out the starting five is Mike Anastasio, with an 8.7 verage.

"Richmond's record is not outstanding," East Carolina's Tom Quinn said. "But they are a very good team. Getting Stewart on the team makes them a much stronger team. They are a little quicker than in the past and more offensively oriented. They have better discipline and I expect them to use a zone defense against us, and play somewhat conservative." Quinn feels that the Bucs have been playing very well, despite their 4-4 record. "I'm pleased with the outcome of the tournament we were in, despite the fact that we wanted to win. When you're 1,500 miles from home playing against a school from the area, you have a lot more to overcome."

Quinn feels that the play of Earl Quash has been one of the big pluses for the team. At the start of the season, it was uncertain whether he'd be able to grab a starting position, and he's led the scoring most of the year. Dave Franklin is also beginning to come along, and Al Faber is "in stride." Jerome Owens hasn't really "Gotten into form yet," according to Quinn, but Nicky White is getting stronger with each game.

"I hated the loss of Tom Marsh," Quinn said. The sophomore suffered a knee injury in the opening game and didn't play again until Thursday when he reinjured his knee. He had surgery Tuesday and will be lost for the remainder of the season.

Quinn feels that the Pirates are going to have to come up with a way to get the ball inside against Richmond or else improve their outside shooting. "We're going to have to press on defense and get the ball. We're not too quick ourselves and we've got to look for ways to combat their assets."

VMI, Saturday's opponents will also be no pushover, despite the fact that the game is in Greenville. The Keydets are greatly improved over last year, and expect to move out of the cellar in the league. "They've beaten Richmond and Xavier, and finished third in the Roadrunner Classic out in the West."

The Keydets are paced by their little guard, David Lester, and forward Charlie Tyler.

A Big Weekend

It's big weekend for Pirate sports fans this Saturday.

It all gets underway at 11 a.m. in Minges Coliseum, when the outstanding East Carolina wrestling team plays host to the University of Connecticut.

Following that, at 2 p.m., the Buc swimming team will host a double-dual meet with Connecticut and Marshall University.

Then, at 5:45 p.m., Frederick Military Academy will meet the East Carolina University junior varsity.

Rounding out the evening at 8 p.m. will be a varsity encounter between the Pirates and Southern Conference rival, Virginia Military Institute.

Between halves of the varsity game, a gymnastics demonstration will be given, and varsity football prospects will be introduced.

Besides all that, the ECU-VMI game will be Ladies Night. All women will be admitted free to the game.

Nixon Donates To Relief Fund

PITTSBURGH (AP) — President Nixon has donated a personal check for $1,000 to the charitable causes of baseball star Roberto Clemente, missing and presumed dead in a plane crash.

The money will go to relieve survivors of the Nicaraguan earthquake and to fulfill Clemente's dream of a sports camp for boys in his native Puerto Rico.

Clemente was believed killed last Sunday while accompanying a plane load of supplies from Puerto Rico to Nicaragua.

Recognized as one of baseball's all-time greats in his 18 seasons with the Pittsburgh Pirates, Clemente is survived by his wife, Vera, and three sons: Roberto Jr., 8; Luis, 7, and Enrique, 4.

A group of 70 Pirate officials, players and front office workers were to fly today from Pittsburgh to Puerto Rico to console the family.

"I know it will be a struggle for them to continue without him," teammate Willie Stargell said earlier this week. "I hope there is something we can do."

Pirate President Dan Galbreath and players Steve Blass and Dave Giusti met Wednesday in Washington with President Nixon, who later made his personal donation to the Nicaraguan embassy.

Meanwhile, checks were pouring in Wednesday to various charitable funds established in Pittsburgh in Clemente's honor.

"It's just unbelievable," said Ruth Orhman, who opened the first batch of mail at the office of the Pittsburgh Jaycees, sponsor of the Clemente-Nicaraguan Fund.

"I would guess this morning we've received about 300 letters," she said. "They're mostly checks from adults. I just opened one envelope with a check for $1,000."

Donations were also being accepted by the Nicaraguan Relief Fund, established here last week at Clemente's personal request.

In addition, the Pirate baseball club had set up another fund to build a sports camp for boys in Puerto Rico, one of Clemente's longtime goals.

Meanwhile, the Allegheny County commissioners had declared today a day of mourning and a memorial service for Clemente was scheduled in the county courthouse.

"I felt all along that we would either be No. 1 or No. 2," said the Cougars' rookie coach.

The Cougars, not picked to finish high this season by many pre-season prognosticators, currently are riding a seven-game winning streak following Wednesday night's 110-107 American Basketball Association victory over the New York Nets.

The streak has pushed them into first place in the East Division. It's not surprising at all, emphasized Brown.

"We have two fantastic players—Joe Caldwell and Billy Cunningham," said Brown. "And even when we get a guy hurt, there are others on this club good enough to pick up the slack."

Caldwell scored 24 points and Cunningham hit for 23, while Carolina got a key three-point play by Ted McClain in the closing minutes, clinching the victory.

In the other ABA games Wednesday night, the Kentucky Colonels topped the Indiana Pacers 109-107; the Memphis Tams ripped the San Diego Conquistadors 123-110, and the Utah Stars downed the Denver Rockets 108-103.

Kentucky's Artis Gilmore set a club record of 33 rebounds and also made two free throws with 33 seconds left, giving the Colonels their victory over Indiana.

The 7-foot-2 center's rebound total was only two shy of the ABA record set by Manny Leaks of the Dallas Chaparrals in 1970. Gilmore's two free throws came with the score tied 106-106 and capped a Kentucky comeback in the final minutes.

Randy Denton pumped in 29 points as Memphis ripped San Diego. The expansionist Q's lost their 19th game in 22 decisions.

Clutch shooting by Gerald Govan and James Jones gave Utah a tense triumph over Denver. Govan sank four straight free throws in the last two minutes and Jones added two more as the Stars held off a late Rocket rally.

Warren Jabali of Denver scored 30 points for a game-high total.

Unranked Virginia In Atlantic Coast Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Maryland is No. 2, North Carolina State is No. 4 and North Carolina is No. 9 Nationally, but guess who's leading the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball race today.

Virginia, that's who.

Only two ACC games have been played this season and the Cavaliers have won both.

But two ACC games have been played this season and the Cavaliers have won both.

But their latest test was a squeaker, 80-74 in overtime at home Wednesday night against Duke.

It gave Coach Bill Gibson's team a cushion for the next three conference tests — against N. C. State at home Saturday afternoon and at Maryland and North Carolina later in the month.

Wake Forest, Virginia's other conference victim, trimmed Virginia Military of the Southern Conference 71-57 and Clemson downed Niagara 75-68 in other games Wednesday night. Both winners played at home.

Only one game is scheduled tonight, but it is an interesting one, sending Southern Conference power Furman against North Carolina at Charlotte, N. C.

Furman has designs on national ranking and could advance its cause at the expense of the Tar Heels, who are 10-1 against Furman's 6-2.

North Carolina's only loss was by a 68-61 score to N. C. State three weeks ago in the finals of the Big Four tournament at Greensboro, N. C., in a game that does not count in ACC standings.

Duke led Virginia 15-4 early in the game and 40-29 at halftime, but the Cavaliers started catching up early in the second period. Freshman Wally Walker and Junior Al Drummond scored 22 of the Cavalier's first 24 second-half points to bring Virginia to within 54-53. It looked like Barry Parkhill had won another game for Virginia when he hit a jumper with three seconds left for a 68-66 lead. But Duke sank two foul shots to tie the game and force the overtime.

Virginia dominated the overtime. It scored 12 points to 6, and hit on eight of 10 foul shots. Duke turned the ball over five times.

Virginia now is 6-2 and Duke is 5-5.

The Wake Forest and Clemson victories brought the ACC record against outside competition this season to 42-10.

Wake Forest, now 6-4, cruised to an early 14-point lead against VMI, then led by only two with 12 minutes to play before pulling away again. Tony Byers paced the Deacons with 21 points, while VMI was led by Alan Hensen's 11. Wake Forest hit only 43 per cent to 44 for VMI, but the Deacons held a 45-36 rebound edge.

Clemson made its record 5-4 with a balanced attack that offset a career high 35 points by Niagara's Bob Miller. Mike Browning scored 16 points to lead five Clemson double figure scorers.

Clemson held a 42-40 halftime lead after 16 lead changes and seven ties, but opened up a 56-46 lead after seven minutes of the last half and the Purple Eagles could not soar from behind.

Panthers Nail Jaguar Matmen

FARMVILLE — North Pitt High School gained a 29-17 victory over Farmville Central's wrestling team here last night.

The win left North Pitt unbeaten against Eastern Carolina Conference competition, while it was the third loss for the Jaguars, who had already bowed once to the Panthers and once to Conley.

North Pitt won seven matches, while Farmville Central took four; one ended in a double forfeit, and another in a draw.

North Pitt won two of its matches by pins, while Farmville took one fall victory.

Summary:

107: Tony Jordan (FC) decided Joey Nelson, 9-1.

114: Wesley Manning (NP) decided Ricky Bundy, 6-1.

Brown, Greene Named Players Of The Year

By BRUCE LOWITT

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Larry Brown of the Washington Redskins, who ran around and over waves of tacklers, and Mean Joe Greene, who made waves of tackles, were named today The Associated Press Players of the Year in the National Football League.

Brown, the running back who rolled up 1,216 yards to lead the National Conference and helped carry the Redskins to the NFC championship, amassed 41 of the 67 votes for NFL Offensive Player of the Year cast by a nationwide panel of pro football writers.

And Greene, the tackle who anchored the Steelers' line which had opposition quarterbacks running for their lives and running backs looking for places to hide, garnered 32 of the 67 votes cast to easily take NFL Defensive Player of the Year honors.

There was a three-way tie for runnerup in the offensive category as O.J. Simpson of Buffalo and Earl Morrall and Larry Csonka of Miami received five votes apiece.

Simpson provided the Bills with most of their offense and, surpassing the injured Brown in the regular season's final game, won the league rushing title with 1,251 yards.

Morrall replaced injured quarterback Bob Griese in the fifth game of the season and proceeded to direct the Dolphins the rest of the way to a perfect 14-0 season and to the American Conference East championship. Csonka was the mainstay of Miami's record-setting ground attack as he bulled for 1,117 yards, second only to Simpson in the AFC.

Closest to Greene's 37 votes in the defensive balloting were linebackers Nick Buoniconti of Miami with eight and Chris Hanburger of Washington with seven, followed by defensive tackles Bob Lilly of Dallas with four and Merlin Olsen of Los Angeles with three.

Only a minor leg injury—which forced Coach George Allen to bench Brown for the final two games of the season in preparation for the playoffs—kept Brown from winning the NFL rushing title.

Still, Brown won plenty of recognition on his own.

And when the fourth-year pro from Kansas State heard himself compared to other brilliant running backs like Jim Brown and Gale Sayers, he replied: "Let me be myself. Let me succeed or fail on my face as Larry Brown without being compared to others. I just want to be my own man."

Greene, who led a defense that helped bring Pittsburgh its first divisional title—the American Conference Central crown—in 40 years, literally overwhelmed opposition ballcarriers.

He finished the season with 42 unassisted tackles, 34 assists, six pass blocks, 11 quarterback sacks and a fumble recovery.

City League In Opening Round

Piggly Wiggly, The Skillet, Proctor's and the Pizza Hut picked up opening round victories as the City Basketball League opened its season last night.

Piggly Wiggly beat Coca-Cola, 56-53, while Skillet took a 69-50 win over the Exchange. The Happy Store was Proctor's victim, 80-42, while Pizza Hut won by forfeit over Rouse.

Proctor's wasted little time in moving out in their game with the Happy Store. They built up a 10-point spread in the first half, 34-24. In the second half, they turned the win into a rout with a 46-18 scoring advantage as they rolled away.

Bruce Tucker led Proctor's with 20, while Wayne King had 18, Tom Cooper had 17 and Gene Rackley had 12. For the Happy Store, Charles Meeks had 12 and Lester Wells had 10.

The Skillet rolled up a nine-point lead in the first half of their game, outthitting the Book Exchange, 31-22. They added to that with a 38-28 margin in the final period to chalk up the win.

Charlie Harris led the Skillet with 24 points, while Calvin Gatlin had 13. For the Exchange, David Stephenson had 13 points.

In the final game, the first half was a nip-and-tuck affair with the two teams battling to the wire. The half ended in a 26-26 deadlock. Then, in the second half, Piggly Wiggly outhit Coca-Cola, 30-27, and gained the victory.

Robert Pettus led Piggly Wiggly with 14 points, while Bobby Short and Dallas Station each had 10. For Coke, Jim Modlin had 22 and Jack Warner had 14.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, JANUARY 5, 1973

CARROLL RIGHTER'S horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Although there is some friction on the surface, much can be achieved by sticking close to ideals by which you govern your life. Make today's activities forward worthwhile plans. If you want others to go along with your views, be pleasant and sociable with them.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Important you are tactful when dealing with higher-ups; take care you are not smart-alecky, if you want right results. Show perseverance to make big headway. Avoid one who has strange ideas.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Do more study on that plan you have, or it could go awry at the wrong moment. Get all that knowledge you need from newcomers who have the answers. Avoid one who makes you feel inadequate.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Show you are practical in handling all those obligations ahead of you. Your mate may be in a rather sad mood, so do your utmost to cheer this person. The evening can then be very pleasant.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Feel your partners out on moot points, but don't get into any arguments, then you know just where you stand. Use diplomacy with one who opposes you. Losing your temper could be bad.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Become more energetic where your work is concerned and get better results, but don't expect others to do likewise. Not a good day to buy that new wardrobe, but fine for window shopping. Think and act constructively.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Show you are a perfectionist and get more benefits, better results in the future. Being encouraging toward one who is in trouble can be very helpful and your duty as a humanitarian. Instill new confidence.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Getting home fixed up and establishing greater harmony with those who dwell with you is best today. First get business matters well handled, though. Attend some party in the evening that is a delight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have many errands, jobs to do and should not waste a moment of today, so get busy early and get them all out of the way. If you need advice from associates, secure it. Show you're an efficient, capable person.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Fine day for making improvements to your home so it becomes more comfortable and valuable as well. Look to experts for the advice you need on how to progress faster in your field of activity. Relax in p.m.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You know exactly what you want where personal and business matters are concerned, so be sure to get the cooperation of key persons. Improve your appearance so that others are more impressed with you. Do some entertaining at home in p.m.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) First get those plans worked out that you want to place before bigwigs soon, then enjoy some recreation. Being practical is very important right now. Show you know what it is you really want.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Broaden your thinking so you know exactly how to attain advancement both in the business and the social world. Go out to gatherings with a real purpose in mind. Recreation should be secondary.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those strong-willed young people who will study any course of action while young and choose the best, then plow through it tenaciously and in a practical way until it is mastered and success ensues. Permit to have many playmates early, otherwise your youngster will develop an overly serious attitude that could cause others to avoid him or her later, and thus lessen the success and happiness possible in this interesting chart.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

PRINCETON, N.J., Jan. 3 — President Nixon will begin his second term in office with the economic outlook of Americans brighter than at any other time since he began his first term in 1969.

The outlook of the public was bleakest at the beginning of 1971. Since that time the proportion of Americans who predict "economic prosperity" for the year ahead has shot up from 19 percent to 40 percent, the proportion predicting "full employment" has increased from 16 to 42 percent, while the proportion who foresee a year of industrial peace, free of strikes, has climbed from 25 at the start of 1971 to 38 per cent today.

But Considerable Uncertainty Remains
While the economic outlook of Americans has brightened in these three important respects—prosperity, employment and industrial peace—a great deal of uncertainty about the future remains.

For example, a slightly greater proportion of Americans at the present time predict "economic difficulty" for 1973 than foresee "economic prosperity."

The views of men and women differ sharply in their outlook on prosperity, with 49 per cent of men predicting prosperity ahead, compared to only 32 per cent among women. A key factor may be the particular concern of women over certain items on their grocery bills.

As for the employment outlook, current national opinion is about evenly divided, with 42 per cent predicting a year of "full employment" and 43 per cent saying "rising unemployment."

Regarding the issue of strikes, a considerably greater number of Americans think 1973 will be a year of strikes than say this will be a year of industrial peace." The division of opinion is 48 to 38 per cent.

Members of labor union households are more likely to predict strikes for this year (a majority of 56 per cent do so) than are members of non-union households (45 per cent).

Brazilians Most Inclined To See Prosperity Ahead
Brazilians are the most optimistic about economic prosperity in 1973, as determined by a 10-nation Gallup International survey in which the same questions were asked as in the United States.

Two thirds of Brazilians (68 percent) predict prosperity for their country which is currently enjoying an economic boom.

Next most optimistic are the Greeks, Finns and Americans. The Greeks and Brazilians are the most optimistic about the employment outlook in 1973, while the Americans are next.

As for the strike outlook, the Brazilians and Greeks are again the most optimistic. The most pessimistic about the prospects for industrial peace this year are the British.

At the start of 1971, in a multinational survey covering many of the same nations included in the latest survey, the outlook of Americans was among the more pessimistic—in sharp contrast to the views of the U.S. public today.

Details Of Survey
During the last weeks of 1972, Gallup-affiliated organizations in 10 nations assigned their interviewers to question representative samples of people in each country about their economic outlook for 1973. In the U.S. a total of 1,008 adults 18 and older were interviewed in more than 300 scientifically selected localities around the nation.

Following were the questions asked:

1. Looking ahead to 1973—which of these do you think is likely to be true of 1973: A year of economic prosperity or a year of economic difficulty?
2. A year of increasing employment or a year of rising unemployment?

3. A year of strikes and industrial disputes or a year of industrial peace?

Following are the results from the multi-nation Gallup International survey:

The Worry Clinic

Strike Subsidy Fairness Issue

Dr. Jason wonders if you coerced taxpayers actually approve of subsidizing strikers with free Welfare Aid? Yet in Michigan, during the UAW strike against General Motors, American taxpayers paid $30 million in food stamps and other aid to the strikers!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE V-586: Dr. Jason lives in Michigan.

"Dr. Crane," he began,

"Uncle Sam frets about the unemployment rate.

"But he is partly responsible.

"For anybody able to walk under his own power could easily be earning his own pay check for there's plenty of work to be done.

"But it would demand that Congress and politicians quit dabbling in the labor market.

"For example, millions of workers can do tasks at 75 cents to $1.00 per hour but they definitely aren't worth the minimum wages of $1.80 to $2.00 per hour that Congress demands.

"Furthermore, thousands of people would be glad to hire gardeners, laundresses, window washers, and other handy men, but they are afraid to do so now. Why?

"Because they don't want to be legally liable for injuries suffered by such unskilled workers while on the job!

"Moreover, they resent having to do the tedious paper work now required.

"For if their handyman earns even $50 in any 3-months' time, then they must deduct for Social Security, state and federal income taxes, etc.

"If they didn't expect their handy man to stay with them till he earned $50 and thus failed to deduct from his weekly wages, they must now go back and try to collect from him for his share of the Social Security contributions.

"Then they must match his deductions from his pay check by the usual employer's contribution.

"If he meanwhile moved onward, they are stuck with all deductions and legally liable!

"Thus, millions of jobs are now denied workers because of the nuisance red tape and legal complications involved in hiring these present unemployed workers.

"Yet those workers could regain pride and go off Welfare if prospective employers weren't handicapped as I have stated.

"Dr. Crane, you might also remind you millions of readers of the new book by Thibolt & Cowin, published by the Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania.

"It is called 'Welfare and Strikes.'

"And it exposes the labor unions' strategy of now using taxes to maintain strikes, without tapping their own lush treasury funds for a red cent!

"To be specific, here in my State of Michigan, during the UAW strike against General Motors, an estimated $30 million was spent in public welfare benefits to strikers.

"With food stamps and other tax-furnished aid, the strikers are being subsidized by the long suffering taxpayers.

"This is obviously wrong, unjust and unfair, yet politicians fear to deal with this misuse of taxes lest they lost at the next election!"

Fair Play

Do you taxpayers in Alabama or California wish to be coerced to furnish food and other aid to strikers in Detroit?

Or do you stockholders in corporations feel it is fair to be forced to subsidize the strikers who are reducing your dividends by stopping production in those same corporations?

The famous 5th Amendment says we are not to be coerced into aiding our courtroom enemies in proving ourselves guilty.

By the same logic, should we taxpayers be forced to support strikers, who are now increasing the demands upon us for more welfare aid during their voluntary refusal to work?

It is time the Golden Rule was invoked by unions, as well as management.

But because there are more voters among labor than on the side of management, Congress automatically favors labor, right or wrong!

Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♥

South's two heart response to North's one no trump bid is a signoff. If he has as many as eight high card points, he would first bid two clubs which is artificial and requests the no trump to show a four card major suit.

Altho South's response ostenibly requests the opening bidder to pass, North held a maximum no trump.

18 points in high-cards, plus a fit for his partner. He, therefore, made one more try by raising to three hearts. South accepted the invitation and carried on to game.

West opened the queen of hearts which proved to be an effective choice. Observe that, in the absence of the trump lead, declarer has time to give up a diamond trick and then ruff out a small diamond in dummy.

He thereby restricts his losses on the deal to two hearts and one diamond.

The heart lead and continuation prevents South from obtaining the diamond ruff for, if he plays a round of diamonds himself, the defense has the opportunity to draw North's trumps. Declarer pondered the situation for a moment and then uncovered an alternative plan of campaign.

He ducked the opening lead, and when hearts were continued, he put up dummy's ace, leaving only the king outstanding. The ace of spades was cashed followed by a spade ruff. Dummy was reentered twice in clubs to trump out two more spades with the seven and eight of hearts, as both defenders followed suit.

All the spades were gone

were the dummy's nine and

to lead clubs and East ruffed in. A small diamond was returned, declarer played the deuce and West's ten dislodged North's queen.

The ace of diamonds and the nine of hearts took the last two tricks.

Declarer's stripping operation resulted in the scoring up of an overtrick when East found himself endplayed late in the deal, however, this was not essential to South's success. The principle behind his line of play was to develop an extra trick in the trump suit once he was deprived of the diamond ruff.

This he accomplished by reversing the dummy.

The count is simple: The ace of hearts, the ace of spades, the ace of diamonds, four club tricks and finally,

three spade ruffs in the closed hand.

Just Short Of A Record Rain

QUINAULT, Wash. A(P)—The next time you get that rainy day feeling, consider the situation in this rain capital of America. The total rainfall for 1972 recorded at the Quinalt ranger station was 174.28 inches, or about 15 feet, for an average of nearly one-half inch per day.

That figure, officials said Tuesday, as just short of the all-time record of 175.45 inches set in this rain forest community in 1968.

THE BEST OF DEAR ABBY

Abigail Van Buren is the wise Auntie Mame, the witty pen-pal confidante, the beautiful Dutch aunt to a host of readers. Some of the letters are sassy, some are tragic; they all spring from the vibrant core of human relationships. Abby responds with generous applications of horse liniment and horse sense.

A sampling of the more entertaining letters in "Dear Abby" during 1972 is an appropriate reminder of some sound human values, including the grace of laughter, that endure at the start of the new year.

DEAR ABBY: Please, no names or cities on this. I am a 51-year-old widow. I'm considered attractive. I have no family responsibilities as my only child is married.

I have dated a number of eligible men, but there is one I care for above all the others. He's 57, but looks much younger. We've been dating for about six months, and I know he cares for me, too. He has been an absolute angel and a perfect gentleman. Last night he told me he loved me, but would not propose marriage because he had had surgery a few years ago, which terminated his sex life.

I told him it didn't matter to me because I never placed much importance on sex anyway, which is the God's honest truth!

He said I was only being "kind," and in a few years I would feel "cheated." I swore to him on a stack of Bibles that I meant what I said. How can I convince this wonderful man that I want to marry him?

WILLING WIDOW

DEAR WILLING: Get a higher stack of Bibles.

DEAR ABBY: Your comment to "Lady Dreamer" reminded me of a cute saying I'd like to share.

"The neurotic BUILDS dream castles. The psychotic LIVES in them, and the psychiatrist collects the rent."

MRS. L. P.

DEAR MRS. L. P.: A competent psychiatrist doesn't "collect the rent" for anyone's dream castles. Instead he helps his patient to find a dwelling he can actually LIVE in. And his fee is more appropriately the cost of moving.

DEAR ABBY: I have just returned from an interview for a secretarial position. The boss himself interviewed me, and I must say, I was surprised at some of the questions he asked me.

He wanted to know if I was on "the Pill." (I had already told him I was recently divorced.)

Then he asked, "Do you drink?" I told him I didn't. Then he smiled and added, "Not even a little social drinking once in a while?" I said "No. I just don't care for it." Then he looked at me like I was some kind of oddball.

He also asked me if I ever "turned on" with drugs. By that time I had had it, and replied, "Good grief, no!"

I doubt if that interview will result in a job offer. But if it does, I shall turn it down.

Not having sought employment for 10 years, perhaps I am out of touch with today's scene. But I'd like to know if these questions are routine in an interview today? Or did this particular man have something else in mind?

SHOCKED IN MANHATTAN

DEAR SHOCKED: The questions you were asked were not routine, and I suspect the man who interviewed you had fringe benefits in mind. For HIM—not you.

DEAR ABBY: Last weekend I was falsely accused of having an affair with the wife of a fellow worker. This fellow telephoned me at 7 a. m. and informed me that he had some good news and some bad news. The bad news was that I wouldn't be able to spend the weekend with his wife. The good news was that instead of doing me physical harm for having fooled around with his wife (which I never did), he had thrown a brick thru the windshield of my automobile!

I thought it was all a joke. Now comes the problem: Later that morning, I found a $100 check in my car and a note from this fellow stating, "After contemplating my rash behavior, I realized how foolishly I behaved, so this $100 will cover the damages to your car."

I replaced the windshield, which amounted to $30. What should I do with the remaining $70? "ON THE LEVEL"

DEAR ON: Buy yourself a bulletproof vest. You never know what a nut like that will do next.

DEAR ABBY: May I give your readers the benefit of my very valuable experience? I address this to any woman who is "in love" with a married man:

Never expect to see him on Sundays or holidays.

Never call him at home.

Don't ever expect him to take you out in public, but be prepared to entertain him at your place. He may bring a bottle or the steaks occasionally, but in actual dollars and cents you will spend more on him than he'll spend on you.

Never depend on him in times of personal crisis. Don't believe him when he tells you his wife is a shrew, cold, homely, too fat, or too thin, and she hasn't slept with him for 10 years.

Don't ever expect his wife to divorce him—even if she catches him. She knows that you are not his first and won't be his last. Also, she is not about to give up her social status, financial security and retirement income because of you. However, her discovery will probably terminate his affair with you, so be prepared to get some new clothes, circulate, and find another married man whose wife is a shrew, cold, homely, too fat (or too thin) and hasn't slept with him for 10 years. Sign me

HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Bravo! Thanks for sharing.

DEAR ABBY: I hope you won't think this is too dumb to answer. Can a girl get pregnant from kissing?

DALLAS

DEAR DALLAS: No. But it's a good beginning.

DEAR ABBY: My husband sleeps in his underwear. He wears the long woolen kind, and he sleeps in the same underwear he has worn all day. The problem is getting him to change it. Abby, there are four suits of clean underwear in his drawer, but he won't put on a clean pair without a fight. I can't even get his underwear away from him to put in the wash. Don't tell me to grab it when he's in the bathtub. He doesn't bathe much either. Please help me. He is getting pretty ripe.

FARGO, N. D.

DEAR FARGO: Look at it this way. You don't have to worry about another woman stealing him. And he's easy to find in the dark. But if you want action, try begging, bribing, nagging, and leaving! And in that order.

DEAR ABBY: I know a man who took his wife and recently widowed sister in law to a baseball game. No sooner had the three of them sat down in their reserved seats when in came a gentleman and his young son, and sat right beside them. The man who had brought the two ladies happened to know the late entry, so he introduced him to the women.

The gentleman, who happened to be a widower, had the seat right next to the widowed sister in law. The two of them hit it off very well. Six months later they were making wedding plans!

Not until then did the widow learn that her brother in law had bought ALL FIVE TICKETS, and seated her right next to his friend.

Wouldn't you say this was a lot better than trying to arrange a blind date?

IT HAPPENED IN HOUSTON

DEAR HAPPENED: Much! Had the brother in law asked his friend if he wanted to meet a nice widow, the friend would probably have said, "No thanks, I know enough widows."

And if he had asked his sister in law if she wanted to go out with a nice gentleman, she probably would have asked, "How tall is he?"

CONFIDENTIAL TO "FROM THE OLD SCHOOL": Welcome to the club. Very few of us who had "old world" parents were told "the facts of life" by our mothers. All my mother told me, God bless her, was never to put bananas in the refrigerator.

DEAR ABBY: What has happened to you? You used to encourage married couples to do everything within their power to save their marriages. Lately, you give the impression that divorce could be the answer for some couples. Why?

FAITHFUL READER

DEAR READER: Because I think it's more important to save people than marriages. And in some cases, in an effort to save the marriage, people have destroyed themselves.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell me, am I an old fashioned, prissy, 52-year-old wife, mother, and grandmother because I don't enjoy going to X-rated movies? My husband thinks I am.

He asked me to go to one of those movies with him and I did, and I didn't care for it at all. To me sex is something beautiful between a husband and wife, and I don't like to see it exploited before my eyes on a movie screen.

My husband says it turns him on. Well, it turns me OFF! Do you think I should go to sexy movies with him just to keep him company? I find them humiliating.

OLD FASHIONED

DEAR OLD: If your husband needs an X-rated film to turn him on, let him go alone. And tell him to hurry straight home before you turn IN, or he's turned OFF!

DEAR ABBY: How do you feel about women using the title "Ms." in order to keep their marital status confidential? All men are called "Mr." which gives no one a clue as to whether they are married or single, which in some cases could be to their advantage. Don't you think women should demand equal privacy in their marital status?

MS. SCHWARTZ

DEAR MS. SCHWARTZ: If it's equality women want, instead of adopting "Ms." to conceal their marital status, they should insist that all men be identified according to THEIR marital status. [After all, a woman has a right to know whether a man is a bachelor, married, divorced, a widower, or just swinging.]

Example: Joe Blow, M. M. [Married Man]; Moe Schmo, BR. [Bachelor]; WR. for widower; AV for available, or T. O. L. for Temporarily on the Loose. Girls?

DEAR ABBY: Now that women have demanded equal rights, particularly in the area of employment, I wonder how many females will apply for jobs as ditch diggers, plumbers, coal miners, garbage collectors and slaughterhouse butchers?

I am aware that not all women in the world are pushing for equality, but those who have made so much noise about it that I can no longer give up my seat on a bus to a lady. And I will never stand back and let a lady go first, unless, of course, she wants to jump out of a window, or off a bridge.

Sincerely Yours,
JOHN IN OREGON

DEAR JOHN: After you, sir!

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who is about my age, 55. Adele lost her husband last year, so she went to California for the winter to visit her sister. When Adele came back, nobody recognized her. She looked like a 25-year-old girl. And beautiful! She had a whole new face and a new figure. It was unbelievable! Adele admitted to having her face lifted, which was obvious, but she said she also had her bust and behind lifted!

Now I have heard of silicone implants to lift and fill out sagging breasts, but I have never heard of anyone having her behind lifted, have you?

What kind of doctor does this work? I would really like to know because if it can be done I might want to have mine lifted.

LOW SLUNG IN BROOKLYN

DEAR LOW: Yes, it can be done. Some plastic surgeons do it. Since Adele appears to speak so frankly about it, ask her who lifted her behind. She'll probably be glad to tell you unless she intends to sit on it forever.

DEAR ABBY: About four months ago, the house across the street was sold to a "father and son"—or so we thought. We later learned it was an older man about 50 and a young fellow about 24.

This was a respectable neighborhood before this "odd couple" moved in. They have all sorts of strange looking company. Men who look like women, and women who look like men, blacks, whites, Indians, and yesterday I even saw two nuns go in there.

They must be running some sort of business, or a club. There are motorcycles, expensive sports cars, and even bicycles parked in front and on the lawn. They keep their shades drawn so you can't see what's going on inside but they must be up to no good, or why the secrecy?

We called the police department and they asked if we wanted to press charges! They said unless the neighbors were breaking some law there was nothing they could do.

Abby, these weirdos are wrecking our property values! How can we improve the quality of this once-respectable neighborhood?

UP IN ARMS

DEAR UP: You could move.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has one brother and one sister. The brother married a very rich girl and he has no money worries. The sister married a professional man who does very well, and they are also on easy street. They both have lovely large homes, help in the house, etc. My husband is barely making it.

Twelve years ago my father in law lost his wife and didn't want to live alone. The others couldn't take Grandpa because they traveled too much, etc., so he came to live with us.

We gave up our bedroom and moved into a dinky guest room so Grandpa could have the best. For 12 years this selfish, complaining, demanding old man lived with us. Two years ago he suffered a stroke and I had to care for him 24 hours a day, bathing, feeding, everything! He could have afforded to go to a nursing home because he had money socked away and plenty, but he wouldn't hear of it.

I put up with his cursing, complaining and demanding, and so did my children. All the while, he never gave us one penny for his keep! Well, Grandpa died two weeks ago, and his will read:

"All my children shall share and share alike."

Would you care to comment? A COUPLE OF CHUMPS

DEAR CHUMPS: It seems inequitable, to put it delicately, but I'm reminded of an old Yiddish saying, "If you come for the inheritance you might have to pay for the funeral."

DEAR ABBY: I hope LOW-SLUNG IN BROOKLYN got a lift from your letter telling her that plastic surgeons can actually lift a person's behind. I know I did.

And while we are in that general area, I wonder if your readers know that there are false fannies on the market for women who are flat in back? I should know; I've been wearing one for years.

If you use my letter please don't use my real name. Make up one.

MRS. X

DEAR MRS. X: How about "SITTING PRETTY?" Or "MRS. BUTTINSKY?" [Sorry, but you really backed into that one.]

DEAR ABBY: Ralph and I have been married for two years, and we are still very much in love, but here's our problem: Ralph is "scheduling" what used to be our most beautiful and romantic moments, and I don't like it. He says, "No romance until after Johnny Carson."

Abby, sometimes I don't want to stay up that late, because I have to be up at 6 a. m. sharp every day, but Ralph stays up to watch the whole show no matter who's on.

I think he's being selfish, and he thinks I'm being stubborn. I'd like your opinion. And in case you think this is a gag, I'm signing my full name, but please don't use it. Sign me . . .

SLEEPY TIME GAL IN MPLS.

DEAR GAL: If your husband isn't turned ON until Carson is turned off, you need more help than I can give you in a letter. I'm afraid the honeymoon is over when the boob beside you ignores you for the tube.

DEAR ABBY: I think I can top the story about the couple who announced at their 25th wedding anniversary party that they were getting a divorce:

On Sunday, March 5th of this year, our minister announced from the pulpit that he was leaving in June for a new assignment. He said that he and his wife were being divorced, after which he would marry a local medical doctor's wife, who was going with him to his new assignment.

He also announced that the doctor, who was standing beside him in the pulpit, would marry HIS wife. [There were five children involved.]

The minister and his wife had sung a duet that day, and the doctor, who was a church official, had read the scriptures for the service.

The above is absolutely true. I witnessed it, and am enclosing the names of all the parties involved if you wish to check it out. Being unable to stay in such a church, I left it immediately and joined another one.

"TOPPER" IN TAFT, CAL.

DEAR TOPPER: I am frequently accused of making up letters, but I have neither the talent nor the imagination to come up with anything as fantastic as some of the real life situations that readers send me. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ABBY: I am a young, single career girl who lives alone. I use "Ms." before my name as a form of protection. With the present high crime rate I am not about to advertise the fact that I am unmarried and therefore am alone during the night. There are just too many looks running around.

I realize that using "Ms." isn't foolproof, but every little bit helps. I don't want to be equal. I only want to be SAFE!

Ms. L. J.

DEAR MS. L. J.: I'll say it's not foolproof. Some married women spend more time alone at night than the unmarried ones.

DEAR ABBY: Everybody keeps talking about how dirty the movies are nowadays, but nobody does anything about it. I think that every time we see an "X" or "R" rated movie advertised, we should write to the president of the studio that made that movie and tell him that this is one movie our family will not be seeing. And when they start making clean movies, we will be glad to see them.

If you printed this letter, Abby, and people all across the country started writing letters, do you think it might help to get all this raw sex out of the movies?

DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: It might. But how do we get the "raw sex" out of the balconies and drive-ins?

DEAR ABBY: A friend and I have been sharing a mistress for the last year. It's been a good arrangement for all of us as I am there [another city] Monday morning thru Wednesday noon, and my friend is there from Wednesday noon thru Friday. [Then she has the weekend off.]

We pay all the expenses and give her spending money. The cost is about $400 a month from each of us. We are both salesmen and we save on hotel and meals.

The problem: She wants to report this for income tax. It comes to $1,518 per year, and we will have to give her extra money to pay it. We are both on salary and pay the full rate and can't deduct her or any of our expenses as they are paid in cash and we have no receipts. Besides, our wives would find out.

What do you advise?

HONEST TAXPAYER

DEAR HONEST: Since you travel for business, you'd be ahead to stay in hotels and eat out. Business expenses are deductible. But NOT monkey business.

DEAR ABBY: I wanted to call up my postmaster and tell him a thing or two because I knew he ate my pension check, but I couldn't find his telephone number in the book. I called information and that's when I found out he had an unlisted number! That really made me mad, so since I knew where he lived, I drove over to his house and told his wife off.

Abby, as a taxpayer, I would like to know why a public servant like a postmaster would have an unlisted telephone number?

TAXPAYER

DEAR TAXPAYER: Probably to protect him from people who "know" he ate their pension checks.

DEAR ABBY: Stevie and I went together for about four months, and he gave me his peace ring, which I wore all the time.

Last Friday we had a big fight, and I tried to give Stevie's peace ring back to him, but he refused to take it. I finally threw it at him.

He said he didn't want it, so I picked it up and stuck it in his pocket. That's when he SWALLOWED it!

I told my mother about it, and she said she didn't want me to ever go out with that lunatic Stevie again. Abby, I still care for him, and I'd like to go back with him, but now my mother won't let me. Now I'm sorry I told my mother anything. What should I do?

LINDA

DEAR LINDA: Bide your time, Honey. Things have a way of working themselves out.

Rate Increase Pact For Co-Ops New Prexy For Branch Banking

RICHMOND (AP)—A three-step, 24 per cent rate increase agreement has been reached between 19 electric cooperatives in Virginia and North Carolina and Virginia Electric & Power Co.

Thirteen of the cooperatives serve more than 100,000 rural Virginians, and the other six cooperatives are in North Carolina.

A similar increase also may be in store for six towns and two cities in Virginia who, as do the cooperatives, buy their electricity at wholesale rates from Vepco. Negotiations are continuing between the localities and the utility company.

The agreement with the cooperatives was announced Wednesday.

It provides for rate increases over each of the next three years, according to J. R. Allin of Warsaw, manager of the Northern Neck Electric Cooperative. He was chief negotiator for the Virginia Association of Electric Cooperatives.

Played Host At U.S. Embassy

MOSCOW (AP) — Tricia Nixon Cox and her husband Edward have played host at a U.S. Embassy reception to the son and daughter of Soviet Communist party boss Leonid Brezhnev.

Among the guests Wednesday night were Gaiina Brezhnev, daughter of the Soviet leader; her husband, and Brezhnev's son Yuri.

During the reception, President Nixon's daughter and her husband also talked with Yekaterina Furtseva, the Soviet minister of culture, and Vladimir Promyslov, Moscow's mayor.

Mr. and Mrs. Cox are in the Soviet Union on a private trip which has taken them to Britain, Italy and Greece. They arrived in Moscow Saturday and are to remain in the Soviet capital about a week.

A Vepco spokesman said the rate hikes would cost the six North Carolina cooperative an additional $360,000 over the three years.

The rate figures Allin announced are averages, he said, adding that the specific rate hikes will vary widely from cooperative to cooperative.

The increases are subject to Federal Power Commission approval, but Allin added, "The FPC has never been known to turn down an application to which both sides agree."

Allin said Vepco cited higher fuel costs and overall operating cost rises for the rate hikes.

He said he would not be surprised to see Vepco ask the State Corporation Commission for a retail rate increase within two years.

The cooperatives will have to pass on the increase to their customers, and Allin said his cooperative plans to file with the SCC an application to increase rates to its customers by 12 per cent.

The negotiations now underway between Vepco and its town and city wholesale power buyers will affect the cities of Harrisonburg and Franklin, and the towns of Blackstone, Culpeper, Elkton, Iron Gate, Manassas and Wakefield.

Thirteen towns and one local utility in North Carolina also come under the negotiations, according to Blackstone Town Manager E. T. Freed, who is involved in the negotiations.

Trio Of Baby Bear Cubs Die

VENICE, Fla. (AP) — Despite the milk of human kindness and the milk of Sady May the bird dog, three tiny grizzly bear cubs born Christmas morning are dead.

The cubs were born at the winter quarters of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus here. The natural mother lacked necessary milk to nourish the cubs, so Sady May took over.

But all three cubs died. The cause of death was not immediately determined Wednesday.

WILSON — Thorne Gregory became president of Branch Banking and Trust Co. on Jan. 1, succeeding J. L. Satchwell who has been company president since 1964.

Gregory was named by the board, meeting in Wilson in April, to assume the post held by Satchwell, who has spent some 46 years in the banking profession.

Satchwell, BB&T announced, will continue to serve on the executive and trust committees of the bank and as a member of the board.

Prior to his move to Wilson last summer, Gregory was senior vice president in charge of the bank's office in the Raleigh area.

He joined the staff of the Bank of Halifax in 1956 and when that bank merged into Branch Banking and Trust Co. in 1968, he was named a vice president, elected to the board, and assigned to the Wilson office for several months. In 1969 he was transferred to Raleigh and named officer in charge there in 1970.

Gregory, a native of Halifax, is married to the former Hester Lockett of Brenham, Tex. and they reside in Wilson with their four children.

Satchwell began his banking career in Washington in 1926 and joined the BB&T Goldsboro staff in 1932. He remained there six years until the bank assumed the deposit liabilities of the Bank of Fremont. Satchwell was sent there to manage the Fremont office and to liquidate the remaining assets for the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

In 1950 he was transferred to the home office in Wilson as a vice president and was elected to the board a year later. In 1957 he was promoted to senior vice president and cashier of the Wilson office.

BB&T, established in Wilson in 1872, operates 60 offices in 35 North Carolina cities and towns and has total assets in excess of $340,000,000.

Queen, Prime Minister Boored

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth and Prime Minister Edward Heath were the objects of boos and jeers as they attended the opening of a month-long festival to celebrate Britain's entry into the European Common Market.

Some 200 antimarketees who gathered about the entrance to the Covent Garden Opera House also threw some stink bombs during the demonstration Wednesday night.

The protestors carried placards condemning Common Market membership for Britain and boored and chanted when the Queen arrived at the opera house for "Fanfare for Europe."

When Heath greeted the Queen, the crowd chanted, "Heath out."

Inside the opera house, decorated with an estimated 10 million flowers, more than 200 singers, state trumpeters, opera musicians and top stage personalities performed.

DALE ANDERSON
SERVICE MANAGER
PHELPS CHEVROLET
Memorial Drive 756-2150

"Nobody likes to come back to have his car fixed over. We try our best to do it right the first time."

"If you're like most Americans, you're pretty dependent on your car. You need it for work. For shopping. For most everything, in fact. So if you have to bring your car back for service that should have been done right the first time, you're not only inconvenienced, but also, chances are you're going to resent it.

"Well, we know if you're not satisfied with our service, you may not come back at all. And we want you as a satisfied customer.

"So look. We're going to do our level best to see that you don't have to come back.

"Unless you want to."

We don't want you back because the job was done wrong.

We want you back because the job was done right.
