Nixon Is Inaugurated

Self-Reliance Is Presidential Promise

By ROBERT M. ANDREWS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon, looking past Vietnam to a new era of world peace, took the presidential oath for a second term Saturday and promised to substitute stern self-reliance for the government's "condescending policies of paternalism" at home and abroad.

Federal troops and police kept thousands of antiwar protesters under strict guard throughout Washington as Nixon, standing coatless in a chill north wind on the Capitol steps, delivered a spartan inaugural prescription of hard work, pride in country and oldfashioned individualism for the next four years.

The President drew the loudest applause from the shivering crowd when he declared that "America was built not by government, but by people —not by welfare, but by work —not by shirking responsibility, but by seeking responsibility."

Nixon mentioned Vietnam only in passing and without any reference to White House adviser Henry A. Kissinger's new negotiating session in Paris next Tuesday with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho. He said at one point that "America's longest and most difficult war" was drawing to a close.

He declared "we stand on the threshold of a new era of peace in the world" in which the United States would bring on its new relations with the Soviet Union and China but would "expect others to do their share" in defense of their freedom.

Domestically, the President paraphrased a line from John F. Kennedy's inaugural address of 1960 when he said: "Let each of us ask —not just what will government do for me, but what can I do for myself?" He promised to transfer more responsibility from the government to the people.

A couple of demonstrators shouted: "Killer! Killer!" when Nixon, his left hand resting on two family Bibles, repeated the 35-word oath to "protect and defend the Constitution" after Chief Justice Warren E. Burger at one minute past noon.

Someone yelled "stop the war!" after Vice President Spiro T. Agnew was sworn in. Both outbursts were clearly audible in the midst of the throng jamming the East Plaza of the Capitol, but neither Nixon nor Agnew gave any sign of noticing.

Later, during Nixon's triumphant ride down Pennsylvania Avenue to the White House at the head of the inaugural parade, about 100 jeering protesters massed at an intersection a block away from the Treasury and tossed apples, oranges and other debris in the direction of the President's limousine.

Nixon, standing alongside his wife through the open roof of the car, turned toward the demonstrators, raised both arms in a "V" sign and halfway lunged for some passing fruit that fell wide of its mark. The limousine was never hit as Secret Service agents scrambled to intercept the flying debris.

A similar incident occurred at the same intersection during Nixon's 1968 inauguration, when his limousine was actually struck even though it accelerated for half a block. This time, Nixon's car maintained its steady pace, and the President and his wife refused to duck back down to their seats.

The U.S. Park Police estimated that the bulk of the demonstrators —60,000 or more —were a few blocks away at the time, attending counterinaugural activities between the Lincoln Memorial and the Washington Monument.

Helicopters clattered overhead, and police were stationed at intersections, alleys and rooftops. A Secret Service agent rode an auto mechanic's trolley on his stomach down the parade route, searching under the stands with a flashlight. Mailboxes were wired shut as a precaution against bombs. Riot-trained Army paratroopers stood by in an underground subway on Capitol Hill.

A red-coated Colonial fife and drum corps from Connecticut led the nearly two-hour Inaugural parade, which Nixon and Agnew and their families viewed from a heated, bulletproof stand in front of the White House. Among the dignitaries in the VIP stands was Kissinger, whose companion was New York socialite Nancy McGinnis.

Nixon borrowed a topcoat from Secret Service agent Bob Taylor for the ride down the "Avenue of the Presidents" in the 40-degree chill under gray skies.

The traditional parade, with the "Spirit of '76" as its theme, featured 55 bands, 35 floats, 14 equestrian units and other marching units depicting American history from Plymouth Rock to the Apollo moon landing missions.

Nixon's big day closed with not one but five inaugural balls around town in his honor —the last major event in the threeday extravaganza now estimated to cost $3.5 million, the most expensive Inauguration in history.

In his address, the President set the tone for his second term when he said that "abroad and at home, the time has come to turn away from the condescending policies of paternalism —of 'Washington knows best.'"

In foreign affairs, he said, the United States will honor its treaty commitments, oppose efforts by any country to impose its will on another by force, work for nuclear arms curbs and "do our share in defending peace and freedom in the world."

But, said Nixon, "the time has passed when America will make every other nation's conflict our own, or make every other nation's future our responsibility, or presume to tell the people of other nations how to manage their own affairs."

Flags at the Capitol were still flying at half-staff in memory of Harry S. Truman, who was President when Nixon began his political career as a staunch anti-Communist. In his speech Saturday, a quarter-century later, the President dedicated his second term to a world of peace in which "each respects the right of the other to live by a different system."

Nixon said he would "encourage individuals at home and nations abroad to do more for themselves and decide more for themselves." Domestically, he said, this means "government must learn to take less from people, so people can do more for themselves."

Saying it was time "for all Americans to renew our faith in ourselves," the President — perhaps mindful of the demonstrators in town to protest his Vietnam policies —criticized "those who find everything wrong with America and very little right with it".

Said Nixon: "Let us be proud that in each of the four wars in which we have been engaged, including the one we are now bringing to an end, we have fought not for the selfish advantage but to help others resist aggression."

Nixon, who sat by a roaring fire in the Lincoln Room of the White House until well past midnight making personal changes in his speech, departed from the text at the end Saturday to deliver what he called a private prayer.

Pausing a moment and lifting his eyes, Nixon said, "As I stand in this place so hallowed by history I think of others who stood here before me. I think of the dreams of America.

"Each one recognized he needed help far beyond himself to make these dreams come true. I ask your prayers in getting God's help in making these dreams come true, and that together we may be worthy of our task."

With Peace Agreement?

Agnew May Fly To Saigon Soon

By United Press International

South Vietnamese government sources said Saturday Vice President Spiro Agnew may fly to Saigon Jan. 28, possibly with a copy of Vietnam peace agreement for signing by President Nguyen Van Thieu.

In Washington, President Nixon said "we stand on the threshold of a new era of peace."

The Saigon sources said plans for Agnew's trip are tentative, depending on whether a final agreement is reached between Henry A. Kissinger and the North Vietnamese in Paris negotiations resuming Tuesday.

The White House refused to comment on the Agnew report.

President Nixon's deputy peace envoy, Gen. Alexander Haig, held another meeting with Thieu in Saigon Saturday, then left for Korea en route back to Washington. Haig had three meetings with Thieu totaling four hours and five minutes over five days. He also conferred with leaders of Cambodia, Laos and Thailand.

In Paris, U.S. and North Vietnamese legal and language experts held another session Saturday to work out details for use in the event a peace agreement for Vietnam is signed, the American spokesman to the peace talks said.

In his inaugural addresss in Washington, Nixon made only passing reference to the Vietnam war, giving no indication when the cease-fire being forecast in a matter of weeks or days would come. But at the outset of the comparatively short speech, he said:

"As we meet here today, we stand on the threshold of a new era of peace in the world."

In Saigon South Vietnamese government sources said the North Vietnamese are insisting that the final treaty be signed by heads of state. The plans could be altered by events at the upcoming Paris negotiations, they said.

The newspaper Tin Song (Live News), financed by Hoang Duc Nha, Thieu's nephew and closest personal adviser, said Gen. Haig's half-hour meeting with Thieu Saturday was "the last meeting between the American representative and the Republic of Vietnam to solve the last differences in the draft treaty." Tin Song also said Agnew would visit Saigon.

In Da Nang, South Vietnamese military sources told UPI correspondent Barney Seibert that a cease-fire would come next week. They also said 70 military officers from the four nations scheduled to supervise the cease-fire would be stationed in the five provinces of northernmost I Corps.

Gunmen Hold Hostages In A New York Store

By RICHARD SISK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Four desperate gunmen holed up with 10 hostages in a sporting goods store in Brooklyn's "French Connection" district Saturday withstood a police siege that stretched into its second day.

One policeman was killed and two were wounded in the early hours of the siege Friday night. The store was heavily stocked with guns and ammunition, and survival kits containing emergency rations also were available.

Two hostages were freed during the night.

Police wearing helmets and bullet-proof vests ringed the area but did not try to storm the store, apparently out of concern for the seven men and three women held captive by the gunmen.

An armored car was moved in and a police helicopter hovered overhead. Sharpshooters from a sniper squad sighted in on the store from elevated subway tracks nearby.

One gunman and a hostage were believed to be wounded. The gunmen called for a doctor. Police replied that the gunmen could have food and immediate medical attention— as soon as they are ready to come out with their hands up.

The trouble started when the gunmen held up the John and Al Sporting Goods store about 5:30 p.m. Friday. The store is in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn, a district used as a location for the film "The French Connection."

Different Tax Views For Gov. Holshouser And Legislator Holshouser

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Holshouser isn't paying much attention to legislator Jim Holshouser when it comes to taxes.

When the governor came out Wednesday in opposition to tax cuts recommended by the Advisory Budget Commission—including repeal of the cigarette and soft drink taxes, it did not take a long memory to recall that back in 1969 legislator Holshouser led the battle against enactment of those tax increases.

In recommending that the General Assembly add $313 million to the $5.3 billion budget proposed by the budget commission, Holshouser told the General Assembly he had "taken a long, hard look at our people's needs and have turned away from the temptation to propose a broad attack upon our tax base."

The only tax cut proposed by the governor Wednesday was to remove the sales tax from medicine—which would cost the state $8 million. He said if the state's revenue picture brightens further, some other limited tax cuts may be possible.

But back in 1969, legislator Holshouser appealed to the people in a statewide broadcast to rally to the Republican position that no major new state taxes were needed. He said a freeze on filling vacant state jobs could produce the money needed.

"I'm conviced the governor's programs can be achieved without additional major taxes," Holshouser said in his appeal. "Only the voice of the people can save the day at this point."

A few weeks later, Holshouser, then speaking as state GOP chairman, told Teen-Age Republicans that his party would attempt to ride reaction to Scott's tax increases into gains in the 1971 General Assembly.

"The responsible Republican position in opposition to the extravagant taxation program of the Democratic governor and the Democratic General Assembly is finding widespread support among voters across the state—Republicans, Democrats and Independents alike," Holshouser said.

A little over a year later, in November 1971, Holshouser, asserted that the state has not yet "spent one dime" of the cigarette and soft drink taxes levied by the 1969 General Assembly.

He said the tax money is "just sitting there in the state treasury as part of that $118 million surplus.

"Since the new taxes were expected to bring in about $45 million per year, it is clear they've simply helped to make even higher that big pile of money sitting in the state treasury," he said.

Holshouser continued to hammer away at the tax issue. He told newsmen that the state could repeal half the 1969 gas tax increase and all the soft drink tax without cutting state services.

He told an audience at Louisburg that in enacting the 1969 tax increases the Democrats were "bleeding the little people" in North Carolina.

Plan For Health Costs Is To Be Unveiled

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Cost of Living Council hopes to unveil within 30 to 60 days a new plan to keep health costs under control, including ways to make the government's medical-care programs work more efficiently.

Sources said the council is taking a close look at current price standards affecting the health industry to see how they have worked and whether they should be continued in their present form in the Phase 3 economic program.

The council is leaving the door open for significant changes in these price standards. Unlike those applied to most of the economy, the Phase 3 standards for the health industry are mandatory, as they are in the food and construction industries.

The new plan will be worked out by two committees of the council, one composed of industry officials and the other made up of top administration officials, including the Treasury secretary and the secretary of health, education and welfare.

Bringing the HEW secretary into the price-control process should provide a broader picture in controlling health costs, council sources said. In addition, they said, the advisory committee of private health officials will be making sure that HEW's health programs don't artificially push up prices.

"They're going to be making sure that HEW is moving," one source said. "We've got a watchdog outfit."

One angle that has not received much attention is that the government, through its Medicare and Medicaid programs, is the biggest purchaser of health services, council officials said.

They said the new plan could focus on speeding up newly adopted programs to make health programs more efficient, such as incentives to reduce waste in Medicare and Medicaid.

"We're going to take a very quick, hard look at the problems" involved in enforcing the current price standards, the sources said.

The big difference now is that the council has the machinery to look at all the reasons behind rising health costs, one informant added. He said a more comprehensive government approach to reducing them probably will emerge after the study is completed.

Current price standards require doctors and dentists fees be held to an increase of 2.5 per cent a year. Hospitals, nursing homes and other institutional health providers may increase revenues by six per cent a year if the increases are justified by costs. No additional increase is allowed without a government exemption.

S.C. Medical Report To Be Issued Soon

COLUMBIA (AP) — A report expected soon from a committee studying South Carolina's medical education needs may not make an outright recommendation on the need for a second medical college.

Dr. R. Cathcart Smith of Conway, the chairman, was asked about the medical school angle in an interview Friday.

"While I don't recall the specific wording, I think we allude to it, but I don't know that we come out and make a flatfooted recommendation," he said.

Smith said the nine-member committee met earlier this week to finalize the report and will review its wording before it goes to the printers. He said the printed report will then be released simultaneously to the legislature, the governor, the press and the public.

Asked if he expected the committee's findings and recommendations to draw controversy, Smith replied "I hope not, but I am not so naive as to say we won't have it."

Smith was also chairman of another committee which in December of 1971 recommended several steps for increasing the output of doctors in South Carolina. That report said:

"If after a reasonable period of time it is detemined that the programs outlined herein will not meet the medical needs of South Carolina, consideration of a second medical school will be reopened."

Subsequent to that report, Gov. John West kicked off a storm of controversy and criticism by joining sides with those who favor establishing a medical school in Columbia in connection with the University of South Carolina.

Officials of the Medical University, located in Charleston, and legislators from the low-country area oppose establishment of a second state-supported school because they fear it would downgrade the Medical University.

As a compromise of sorts, West and his legislative opponents on the medical school issue agreed to establish a second committee to study South Carolina's health education needs.

Dr. Smith said the latest study goes into much more depth than the first one.

Skylab Launch Is Postponed

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The launch of America's first space station, Skylab, has been postponed from April 30 until "sometime in May" because of delays in checking out the complex new vehicle.

In making the announcement Friday, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said a firm launch date would not be set until late March after testing has been completed on the station, which is as big as a medium-size house.

A NASA spokesman said the test program here is about two weeks behind schedule. One source indicated the launch would be postponed at least two weeks and possibly longer.

"The current posture cannot be attributed to any one item but is a result of the first-time testing of the modules and the new experiments," NASA said.

Once ready, the two-story Skylab is to be launched unmanned into orbit 270 miles high by a Saturn 5 rocket. The next day, a smaller Saturn 1B rocket is to launch three astronauts in a modified Apollo moonship to rendezvous with the laboratory.

The astronauts are to remain aboard 28 days to conduct scientific, engineering and medical experiments.

Later this year, two more three-man crews will be rocketed to the same Skylab station. Each team will remain in orbit for 56 days.

WITN-TV Service Is Restored

Broadcasting was resumed from WITN-TV in Washington Saturday afternoon, following a disruption in the services.

The problem arose from the Grifton transmitter and crewmen worked around the clock to repair the damaged lines, a spokesman said. More than 200 feet of the line had to be moved from the transmitting tower for repairs.

Some of the parts needed to repair the transmitter had to be flown in from New Jersey and service was restored at 2:37 p.m. Saturday.

The station broadcast on low power about four hours Saturday but returned to normal power at 6 p.m.

Much of the repair work had to be done in dry condition, and rain Friday hampered progress slightly.

Inaugural 'Platform' Object Of Splendor

By LEE BYRD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the highly placed, there were inaugural seats within viewing distance. Folks with a friend of a friend had a faraway place to stand. And for those without a ticket, there was the television set.

As in 1969, the general public was barred from attending the nation's inauguration ritual, a quadrennial moment of pageantry that cost the taxpayers $410,000 just to give Richard Nixon a place to stand to take the oath of office.

And that, even for a man extending his lease on the splendid misery of the presidency, is standing in style. To call the structural giant that protrudes skyward beyond the east steps of the Capitol a mere platform is like dismissing Westminster Abbey as a chapel, or the Taj Mahal as a crypt.

It took eight Corinthian columns, a graceful, sweeping balustrade and a huge canopy to ready the President's spot of honor. Aside from the steel frame that has been used in every inauguration since 1921, it was fashioned of Southern pine and Douglas fir, soon to be sold for scrap. As usual, the Skinker & Garrett Construction Co. has succeeded in making it resemble the marble and limestone of the Capitol, which itself sported an inaugural coat of fresh paint on its dome.

For the President's comfort, there was an electric heater powerful enough to fend off the chilliest gusts. And for his safety, there was a bullet-resistant window with flanking panes spread back at an angle to deflect shots from any direction.

But unlike Nixon, the invited throng expected to fill the Capitol grounds could claim few benefits—other than the simple prestige of being there—over the television viewers at home.

An open-air platform, larger than a football field, lay so far below the presidential stand that it required many of its 20,000 seated dignitaries to strain their necks, and others would get no view at all.

Another 50,000 ticketed standees were likely to find themselves closer to the Library of Congress than to the President, or, as an alternative, with an uninterrupted panorama of the backside of the press stand.

Production Target Set By Boat-Building Firm

Merrimack Marine Inc., which relocated its boat manufacturing operations here from Newport News, Va. earlier this month, announced plans to be in full production by the first of February.

Lawrence Good, the corporation's secretary-treasurer, said that Merrimack Marine will begin limited production schedule on Monday. So far, he said, the firm has hired 15 local employees out of an eventual staff of about 40. Those hired will be assembly and lay-up personnel, he noted.

The corporation, which builds 12 to 21-foot fiberglass boats in fishing, pleasure and high performance classes, began production in Newport News in 1971 and last year built around 300 boats there, Good pointed out. He said the plant expects to produce from 800 to 1,000 boats here by the end of the year.

With the move of Merrimack Marine operations to Greenville, the firm increasd its plant size from 9,600 square feet in Newport News to over 74,000 square feet here. New spray booths, lay-up rooms and storage areas are being added at the plant, the official reported.

Located at 714 Albermarle Avenue, the plant will build boats for dealers in six states, Good said. He noted that Merrimack Marine hopes to expand dealer sales beyond the North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware territory where the company's boats are now available.

"We are very glad to be in Greenville," Good commented, adding that five of the key personnel from Newport News made the move to Greenville and have relocated their families here. "We are looking forward to our association with the people of Greenville."

He mentioned the "overwhelming support shown by local people in helping Merrimack Marine make the relocation to Greenville."

Joseph Hull is president of the corporation and Dale M. Sawyer, a Greenville man, is vice president and sales manager. Three others who moved here from Newport News are W.R. Carroll, lay-up man; Dewey Carroll, gel-coat man; and Dennis Halsey, tooling engineer.

Epidemic Is Seen

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The National Center for Disease Control says deaths due to pneumonia and influenza have reached epidemic proportions in the Middle Atlantic and Pacific regions.

A CDC official said Friday that a check of 122 cities revealed a total of 825 deaths for the week ending Jan. 13.

Outbreaks of London flu have now been reported in 23 states, the CDC said.

The latest report by the center added five states—Louisiana, Michigan, Utah, Virginia, Ohio—to the previously listed states of California, New York, Iowa, Maryland, Hawaii, Arizona, Colorado, Kansas, Texas, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Tennessee, Illinois, Washington, New Jersey, Georgia and North Carolina.

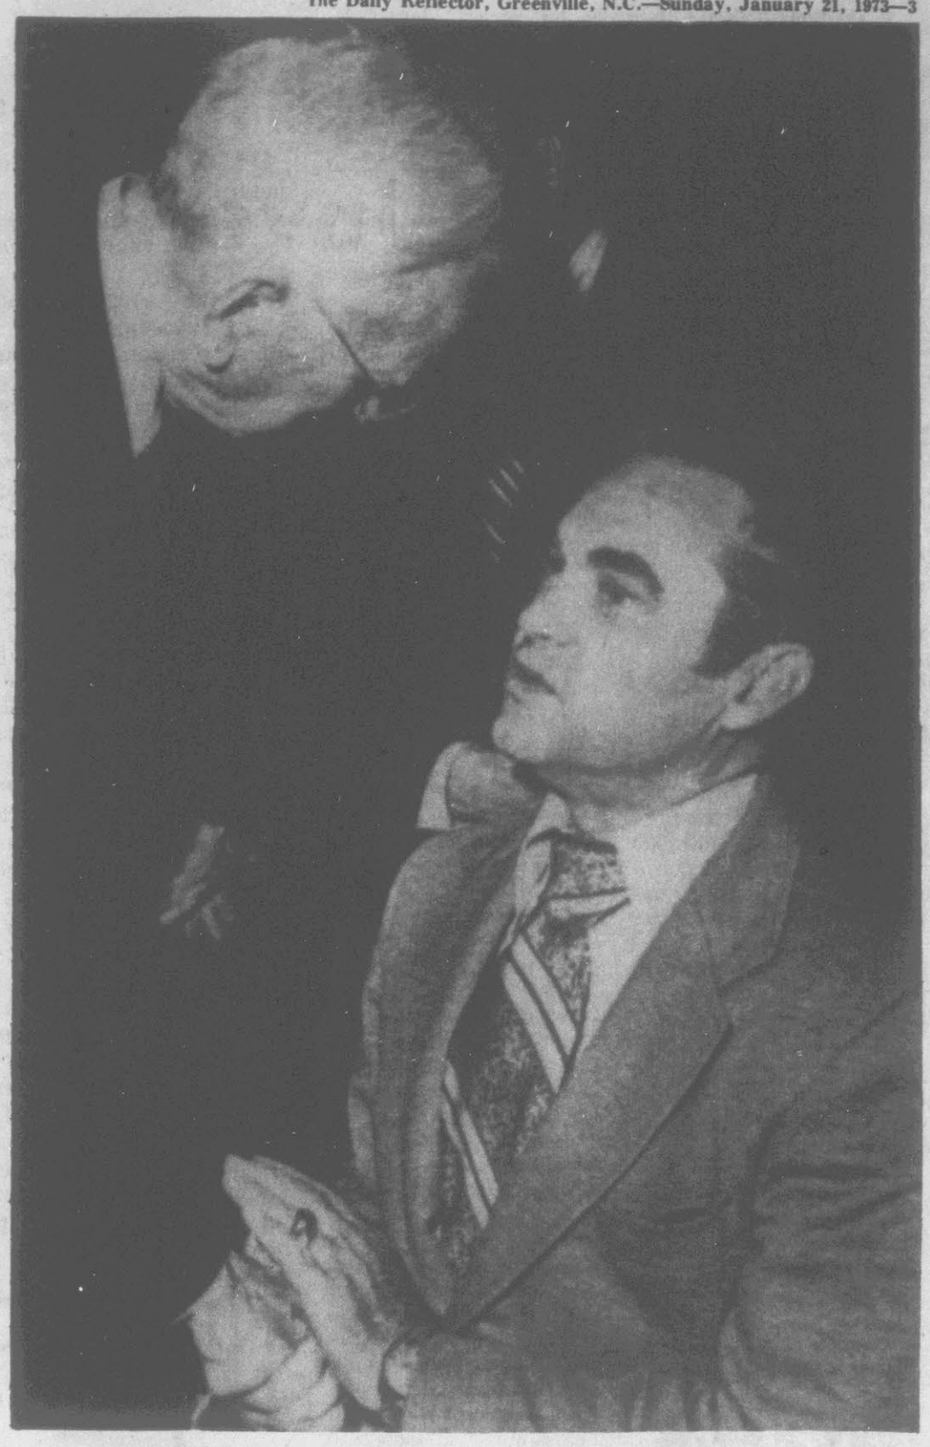

Egg Larceny Charge Made

The Pitt County Sheriff's Department has arrested four Greenville men in connection with the Tuesday night larceny of 120 dozen eggs from the Sunnyside Egg Farm near here.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson reported that deputies charge Alexander Baker, 33, of 508 W. 15th Street; Larry Darnell Taft, 20, of 1700 Evans Street; Paul Ray Nobles, 18, of 1700 Evans Street; and James Lewis McIntyre, 33, of 1215 Battle Street, with larceny of the eggs, valued at $147.

Baker was charged with two counts of larceny and jailed under $1,000 bond, the sheriff said, while the other three were placed under $500 bond each on one charge of larceny per man.

Hearings have been set for Feb. 7 in District Court here.

Armed Robbery Is Charged

A Greenville man has been arrested and charged with the Aug. 22 armed robbery of a Rt. 3, Greenville store.

Pitt Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that Arden Dow Hardison, 29, of 111 Chestnut Street was charged with the robbery of Mrs. J.T. Maye's store at Galloway's Crossroads.

Sheriff Tyson said that some $400 was taken from the store's cash register and a billfold belonging to Mrs. Maye, in addition to a small number of food stamps.

Hardison has been jailed under $2,500 bond and a hearing has been scheduled for Feb. 7 in District Court here.

Inaugural Address States Nixon Aims

By NORMAN KEMPSTER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's second inaugural address clearly states his vision of his nation and his countrymen: a land of hard-working, independent and self-reliant people.

The recurrent theme was each man should do things for himself, without relying either on government or his neighbors.

"Let each of us ask —not just what will government do for me, but what can I do for myself?" Nixon said.

The cadence and the words were reminiscent of John F. Kennedy's inaugural demand: "Ask not what your country can do for you, Ask what you can do for your country." But the meaning appears to be different. In Nixon's world, the emphasis is on the individual.

Although the President promised better education, better health, better housing, better transportation and a cleaner environment, he intentionally proposed no new government programs to bring these about.

It will be up to each American to make the next four years "the best four years in America's history," the President indicated.

On foreign policy, Nixon assumed the Vietnam War would end soon. He concentrated on post-Vietnam issues, restating his familiar "Nixon Doctrine" of international self-reliance.

It was almost as if he had applied the work ethic to international affairs.

"The time has passed when America will make every other nation's conflict our own, or make every other nation's future our responsibility, or presume to tell the people of other nations how to manage their own affairs," he said.

But at the same time, Nixon seemed to reserve for the United States a special role.

Jaycee Week Marks Anniversaries Of Local Jaycees And Jaycettes

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Jaycee Week, marking the 35th anniversary of the Greenville chapter and the 20th birthday of the local Jaycettes, begins today with a full slate of events planned through Friday.

This year, emphasis is being placed on a joint observance of both Jaycee and Jaycette anniversaries and appropriate activities have been scheduled to coincide with the service-related purpose of the two organizations.

On Monday night, an orientation meeting will be held for new Jaycees. A noon prayer luncheon at the Holiday Inn has been scheduled for Tuesday and the Rev. Dana Hunt, pastor of First Christian Church, will be the speaker.

Also on Tuesday, according to Etsil Gordon of the Jaycettes, a tea honoring outstanding club members of the past 20 years, past presidents and this year's Jaycette membership will be held at the home of Mrs. Gene Prescott.

On Thursday night, the annual Distinguished Service Award and Bosses Night banquet will take place at the Elks Lodge. This year, it was pointed out by DSA and Jaycee Week chairman David Gordon, the club is underlining the importance of bosses and business associates and their role in Jaycee work. Many will be on hand for the banquet, Gordon said, and they will be recognized.

The DSA winner will appear on WNCT-TV's Carolina Today program Friday morning, it was noted.

According to Gordon, the DSA will go to the young Greenville man, between the ages of 21 and 35 who, in the opinion of a panel of local judges, has contributed the most to the general community welfare and shown evidence of leadership ability and personal or business progress.

Friday's agenda for the Jaycettes, Mrs. Gordon reported, will include the observance of March of Dimes Coffee Day in Greenville. She explained that on Coffee Day merchants who serve coffee, or soft drinks if coffee is not on the menu, are asked to contribute proceeds from coffee sales that day to the March of Dimes.

"Instead of customers paying for their coffee," she continued, "they will be asked to put the money in a March of Dimes canister. We will pick the canisters up on Saturday." This is the fourth year the Jaycettes, who originated Coffee Day here, have undertaken the project, Mrs. Gordon added, noting that it has been a success in the past.

Also during the week, the Jaycettes are planning to make a contribution to the city to help fund the landscaping of the Town Commons. This money was collected within the membership of the club, it was pointed out.

Jaycee Week here coincides with the 53rd anniversary of the U.S. Jaycee organization and the 36th birthday of the state chapter. The week marks the anniversary of the founding of the Jaycee movement in St. Louis, Mo.. in 1915. The national organization has grown from a small nucleus to over 300,000 members in 6,400 communities today.

The work of the Jaycees, according to Gordon, falls into three main areas: Internal, External and Ways and Means.

"Through the Internal area we attempt to improve ourselves through programs that are designed to educate and provide motivation, organization ability and fellowship," he explained.

Among the programs that "are the beginning force in starting young men in community service work" are : leadership in action, Speak-Up, Spoke and Sparkplug programs, freedom guard, installation and laides night, orientation and induction programs, chapter management, membership (activation and retention), newsletter, visitation to other clubs, the Jaycee softball team, state and regional meetings, and prayer breakfast.

The chairman explained that approximately 31 committees are required to keep the Internal area of Jaycee work functioning.

The External area of the club involves the community service work and usually requires some 40 committees to function properly, it was pointed out.

Some of the External projects during the year included: Outstanding Young Educator, Farmer and Layman Awards, DSA, Jaycee Picnic Shelter at Elm Street Park, Christmas Parade, cystic fibrosis branch, Real Gold Revue, Flynn Home Christmas Party, March of Dimes Telethon, Tenth Annual Boys Home All Star Game, 1972 Northeast Spring Regional meeting for Jaycees hosted by Greenville chapter, clean air-water bond issue, putt-putt tournament, junior tennis, Christmas with boys from Boys Home, donation to Salvation Army, Recreation-swimming pool referendum, Jaycee Week, Sheltered Workshop physical improvements, social service-individual case, endorsement of Medical School program at East Carolina University, picnic for the blind, and pitch-hit-throw competition.

The Ways and Means area of the Jaycees, Gordon continued, "concerns itself with projects that provide enjoyment for our citizens as well as revenue for our club to carry on its external programming."

Approximately ten committees are required to carry on this work, he said. Projects included: Fourth of July celebration for city, Boys Club wrestling matches, light bulb sale for chairty, booth at Pitt County Fair, Jaycee Fun Festival, country-western show, circus at fair grounds, Carolina Cougar exhibition game; and ushering at ECU.

The Jaycees are "completing 35 years of service to this community," Gordon said. "Service that includes not only community projects but improvement of the young men who are a part of the organization. This club is seeking the young man who is interested in improving himself while working for his community."

Jaycee officers currently serving are Don Brady, president; Roger Collins, internal vice president; Jack Cox, external vice president; and Mark Meltzer, third vice president.

Commenting on the role of Jaycettes, Mrs. Gordon said that the club was organized by a group of wives of the Jaycees, who felt they could better serve the Jaycees and the community through a more structured organization.

They met in 1953 and elected Kay Whichard (Mrs. David Whichard II) as the first local president. The first year was spent setting up the mechanics of the organization and recruiting members, it was explained.

The purpose established 20 years ago remains the same today, she said, with Jaycettes striving "to aid the local Jaycees and to promote social and civic consciousness among the membership."

"Through these 20 years the Jaycettes have grown in its membership and its scope of community involvement," the chairman said. "During its second year, work in the Orthepedic Clinic at the Health Department was started..."

"For 19 years, once a month, we have served milk and cookies to the children attending the clinic—for many of them this is their only breakfast. We've also given a Christmas party at the clinic, complete with toys, refreshments, and stockings..." She added that, "through the years we've bought scores of braces, shoes, wheelchairs, exercisers, and other related equipment for these children."

Mrs. Gordon continued, "By the third year, it was realized that the needy cripples of Pitt County was a tremendous area of service opportunity, but money would have to be raised, somehow, to even begin to be effective." The Halloween Candy Sale was initiated and for 17 years Jaycettes have been knocking on doors selling candy as a means of helping the handicapped and crippled of Pitt County.

The Jaycettes have become involved in dozens of service projects. "Our husbands work hard to make Greenville a better place to live. We want to be a part of this service. We try to be available to help in any way possible," Mrs. Gordon emphasized.

The Greenville chapter, currently the fourth largest Jaycette organization in the state and the eighth oldest, has 58 members with ages ranging from 20 to 34.

"Our busy young women always find time to help someone else. Most of us are not natives, but we love Greenville and her people."

Mrs. Gordon is serving as Jaycette president and Sheri Carter is vice president. Dot Fisher is currently recording secretary while Nikki Adams is corresponding secretary, Melba Hargett is treasurer, Sara Nell DeLoach is reporter, and Ann Reese is immediate past president.

N.C. To Get A Blended Budget

Gov. Holshouser had some enlightened proposals for changes in the recommended state budget in his inaugural address.

The Advisory Budget Commission from Gov. Scott's term had recommended extensive tax cuts, but Holshouser feels that these surplus funds have uses in our growing state.

He recommended only a repeal of the tax on medicine. The surplus would go for pay raises of five percent the first year and 10 percent the second year for teachers and other state employees;

—extension of employment period for teachers to 200 working days;

—$50 million to local school districts for new construction;

—extending public kindergarten to 20 percent of kindergarten age children;

—salary review in the education field;

—salary adjustments for employes of the mental health system;

—improvements in the correctional system;

—additional funds for purchase of state park lands;

—funds for construction in the community college system;

The recommendations for increased spending would use up most of the expected surplus. Much of what the governor recommended was commendable. We are sold on any efforts to improve public education and certainly our state is far behind in providing adequate state parks.

The governor did not touch on medical education and this was not unexpected. A small group of power brokers appear bent on tearing the Democratic party apart by opposing the ECU Medical School to the last ditch; thus at this stage it would seem politically wise for the Republican governor to allow the carnage to proceed.

This Legislature will be the most independent one which this state has seen in many a year. The law makers are not likely to accept all of the recommendations of Gov. Scott's Advisory Budget Commission, nor are they going to accept all of what Gov. Holshouser has recommended.

More than likely the legislators will blend a budget which embraces some of all the recommendations before. They just might reinforce their sound judgment of previous years by including funds for expansion of the ECU Medical School.

This is the year when North Carolina can at last catch up on some of its most pressing needs. Some of what Gov. Holshouser has recommended should, indeed, be included in the budget which the Legislature will finally adopt. Certainly the Legislature should continue what it started, based on the soundest of advice, by expanding the ECU medical school. After these needs have been met, then we should look at tax reductions.

A New World In Involvement

By HENRY BOSTIC
(The Charlotte News)

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Student involvement has opened a whole new world for Rufus Washington Jr.

It has taken him from modest circumstances in one of Charlotte's black communities to the nation's capital and meetings with some of the country's most important leaders.

The accomplishments came for the 17-year-old senior at Independence High School, until last year a typical uninvolved student, as he learned through working within the system.

Now he's thoroughly convinced that when more students become involved in their schools and the world, many of the schools' problems can be minimized.

"Students need something to be responsible for, something to work for," said Rufus. "Students need to feel a part of their school and realize they have a responsibility they must assume or the majority will never like school."

Involvement Changed Attitudes

His attitudes about involvement began to change last school year when, because of changes in the pupil assignment plans, he moved from West Charlotte High to Independence. "I made a lot of friends who got me interested," he said. "After that, one thing sorta led to another."

He was elected president of the Independence student council last spring He was appointed representative to the N.C. State Department of Public Instruction's Task Force on Student Involvement. This summer he spent two weeks in Atlanta for a student involvement workshop sponsored by the Southern Regional Council in which students from 14 Southern States participated.

Young Washington was chosen as one of the students to present the recommendations to Health, Education and Welfare officials in Washington.

He will go back to Washington next month as one of the 102 high school students from across the nation participating in the U.S. Senate Youth Program.

Rufus is looking forward to the week as one which will provide "a total cultural experience." He will serve as an intern in the office of Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr.

Sees Better Race Relations

One of the first groups of Mecklenburg students to experience the results of court-ordered desegregation, Rufus said he has seen vast improvement in race relations in the past three years.

He now sees evidence of the beginnings of white and black students working together to earn an active voice and participate in determining school policy.

Again, he sees the lack of responsible participation by students as a threat to building stronger schools. "Involvement is necessary for good schools," said the bespectacled Washington who sports a neatly-clipped natural hair cut.

His experience in the past two years has helped his self-development in every aspect, he said. He has learned to meet important individuals and engage in discussion on vital topics.

Speak Up For Others

One of the hard things he learned was to speak for those he represents and voice their opinions. "It was difficult to learn not to speak what I feel. But it is my responsibility to represent them," he explained.

Another lesson he learned is that more can be accomplished by working through proper channels. "I had to learn to discipline myself to respect others' opinions, to keep my composure," said Washington. "The tactful, political way works best.

"Many kids don't know this, don't know how to get what they want and it hurts them" he continued. "It learned it through working within the system."

A big threat to effective student involvement is economics, Rufus believes. "As more and more students work after school, they can't get involve and can't participate.

Distance is an obstacle he had to overcome. He doesn't have a car and the school is 22 miles from his home. "Going to school for classes, then back for extra-curricular activites equals 88 miles or more, about the same as a trip to Greensboro," he said.

He relies heavily on friends and public transportation and on occasion his feet and his thumb.

Rufus hopes to stay in North Carolina and to some day become involved in politics. As for career ambitions, law now gets the first nod. Next year he plans to attend either North Carolina Central University in Durham or Guilford College, then aim for Wake Forest University Law School.

Nixon Gamble Pays Dividend

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Whatever the political cost at home, and with U.S. allies abroad, President Nixon's cold-blooded gamble in the bombing of Hanoi and Haiphong has now paid dividends of possibly historic proportions in the postwar settlement of Vietnam.

For what Mr. Nixon and his Vietnam negotiator, Henry Kissinger, have now achieved in the new agreement with Hanoi expected to be initialed in a few days in Paris, is a "decent chance" for South Vietnam to survive as an independent country.

The original October agreement — the Kissinger-Le Duc Tho ceasefire package which South Vietnam's President Nguyen Van Thieu refused to accept — contained provisions that sharply reduced the prospect of a "decent chance" for Thieu to survive as head of an independent state.

Instead, the October agreement was hinged to a subtly lesser goal: the goal of giving Thieu, South Vietnam and the U.S. a "decent interval" between the time of total U.S. withdrawl and the collapse of South Vietnam.

President Nixon had hoped that the momentum of peace, backed by the entire world including the two superpowers and Peking, would be sufficient to convert that "decent interval" into more lasting security for Thieu. He was prepared to take that gamble — but Thieu's refusal to go along forced a reappraisal.

But working under the new constraints imposed by Thieu, the President enlarged his objective from a "decent interval" to a "decent chance" — and sent Kissinger back to Paris in December to tighten the agreement. Hanoi's refusal to change the October package — understandable in view of what Hanoi had regarded as a hard agreement — brought on the pressure-bombing campaing.

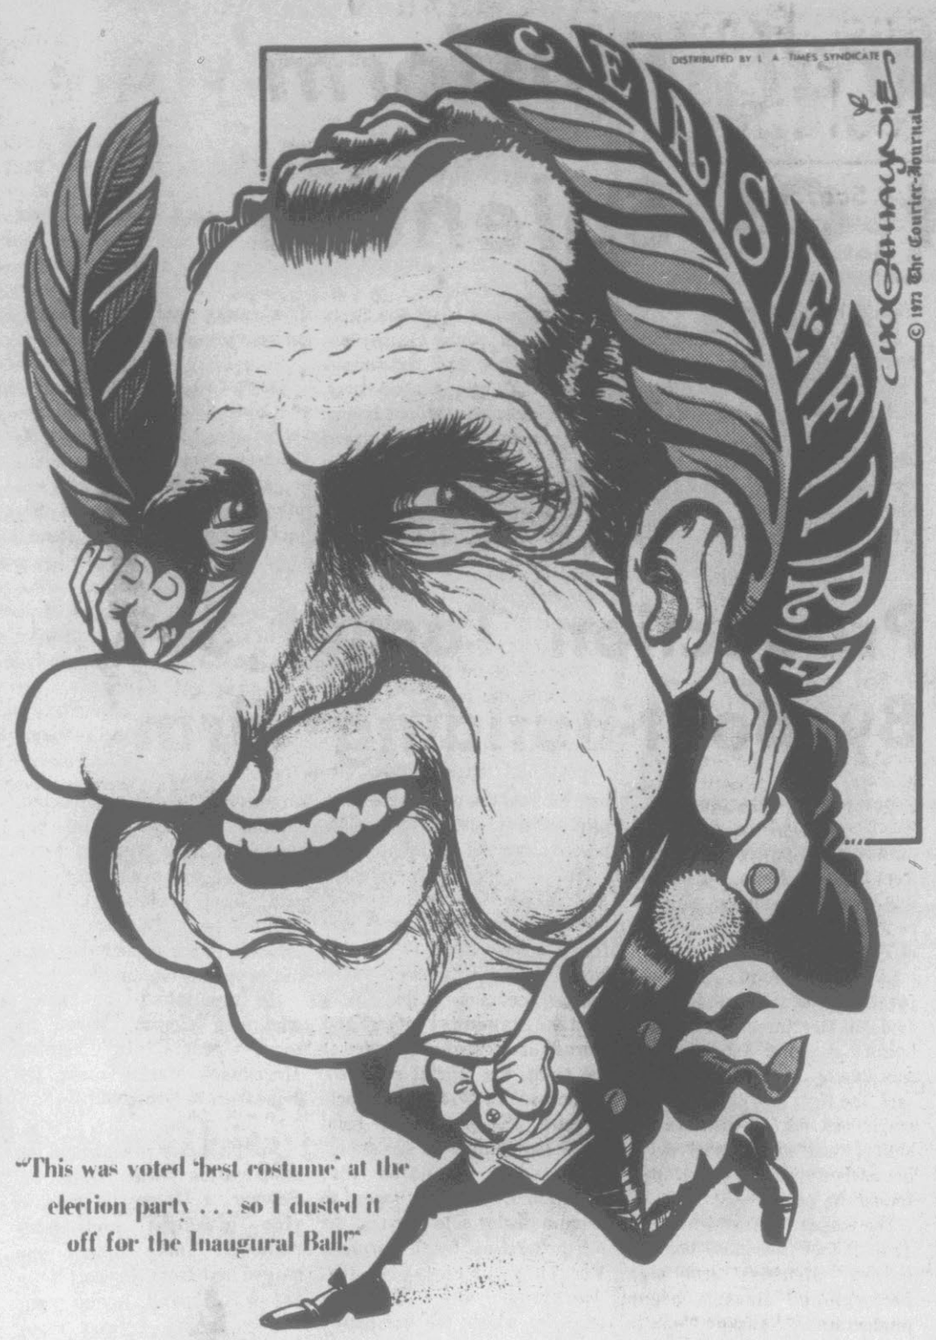

That bombing, which made a virtual villain of the President all over the world, had precisely the impace he wanted. Consider, for example, deeply significant changes in the new agreement as contrasted to the old.

The role of the four-power police force — Canada, Poland, Indonesia and Hungary — has now been defined in the kind of detail that Hanoi refused to consider in the earlier agreement.

Instead, Hanoi agreed to supervision in principle but then, in a separate protocol, insisted on a force of less than 250 men from the four policing countries, with rigid limitations on their mobility and rights. Even Poland and Hungary were unwilling to go down that obstacle path.

The new agreement, although still secret at this writing, is understood to go far toward the U.S. demand of a 5,000-man force with wide-ranging powers. The force itself will be at least 1,000 strong, four times Hanoi's earlier ceiling, with the right to carry out independent inspections of suspected violations. Likewise, the old agreement was loose and highly imprecise on the question of Hanoi sending new equipment (to replace "damaged" and "destroyed" arms) into South Vietnam. It left open the strong probability that new arms could be moved south directly over the demilitarized zone.

Student Influx Effect

By CHRIS ANGELO

CHOLULA, Mex. (AP) — Indian boys here are wearing their hair longer, girls are raising their hemlines, but most important for students at the University of the Americas, "the prejudice is almost gone."

When construction of the school's luxurious campus about a mile from here started "the Cholulans were excited about it," said Logran Wagner, a Mexican among the 55 per cent American population at the school. It was when the long-haired, bearded students began to arrive in the summer of 1970 that the people of Cholula "backed up a little, became a little more cautious," Wagner, a 21-year-old sophomore from Monterrey, said.

School administrators expected the strongest reaction to the invasion by U.S. youth to come from this town of 15,000 whose main attraction was an unexcavated pre-Colombian pyramid with a church on top. However, it was from Puebla, an industrial city seven miles away and ten times the size of Cholula, that the problems came.

Students and professors who were at the school in the fall of 1970 recall more than two months of intensive local newspaper campaigns against the school, a police raid on a student party and the fear of slashed tires when foreign students parked cars on Puebla streets.

"They thought the campus was Druglane U.S.A.," said Kevin Giles, 23, a senior and editor of the school newspaper. "The papers published headlines calling students drug addicts, homos, hippies and perverts," Giles, a U.S. citizen of Caracas, Venezuela, said.

Giles complained that no groundwork was laid to prepare anyone for the cultural shock of the arrival of hundreds of barefoot youths in blue jeans or shorts on the people of Puebla, known as one of Mexico's most conservative cities. Fall enrollment this year was 1,659.

Both students and townspeople largely have adjusted to the situation. "The hostility in Puebla has died down a lot," Giles said. "No more tires are slashed. They have overcome

"How are you?" a man asked a lady in a local drug store.

"Fine," the lady answered, then frowned. "I say I'm fine and I just left the doctor."

The man laughed. "Well, you are fine," he declared. "You're walking."

There's logic that's hard to dispute.

The Edgecombe-Martin County Electric Membership Corp. publication includes jokes to fill holes at the end of its columns.

Thus one ran recently.

"What do you want me to buy you on your birthday, son?"

"Gosh, Dad, I don't want you to buy me a gift. I'd rather you give me something you made yourself."

"That's nice son. Just name it."

"Sure, Dad. Money."

Meanwhile, Dr. Leo Jenkins sent us a clipping from Louisiana last week, where he was iced in by an unusual winter storm.

The clipping came from a newspaper whose name wasn't enclosed. It was a column by Sam Stewart of Copley News Service who attributed it to L. T. Anderson, city editor of the Charleston, W. Va. Gazette. If that isn't confusing enough, we will get on with it. It was entitled "Phrases most frequently heard around a city room" and here are some, with interpretations.

"Here's the material I talked to you about yesterday." (My job depends on the number of clippings I send to the main office.)

"Hiya pal!" (I am a press agent for a circus).

(Christian Science Monitor)

If the Watergate political espionage case were only a matter of the individual guilt of seven men, the guilty pleas of the defendants might seem to put an end to it.

But the spying incident involves more than the individual guilt of a few men. The entire psychological climate in which government operates is affected by the case. Such matters as why the defendants took on the assignment, how high up the Republican campaign staff and White House staff knowledge of the crime reached, are not yet cleared up. Until they are, the forces of cynicism about the American electoral process will be strengthened.

Thus while one must accede to the defendants the right to plead however they wish to protect their individual rights, one must regret that their so doing will cut short a full court investigation of the case.

Fortunately, if the trial in federal court sputters in a fog of guilty pleas, the public can still hope for a thorough explication of the events through another avenue.

Sen. Sam Ervin of North Carolina will head a congressional investigation into the incident. Paradoxically, the motives behind the guilty pleas in federal court will become yet another topic of inquiry before Congress.

One could say, at one level, that the admission of guilt by most of the defendants settles the public record. Yet several questions nag. What happened to the nearly $900,000 in Republican campaign funds that have not been accounted for?

Are the defendants, in pleading guilty merely acting in the tradition of espionage profession in taking the rap when caught out and not implicating the hirers? And who are the guarantors?

The problem with the guilty pleas is that they seem part of a consistent effort to contain the ramifications of the case. Whereas the only real way to settle the matters is to let the investigation run a full course so that all suspicions are confirmed or disproved. If the federal court does not perform this service, tied as it is in protecting the rights of the defendants, then hopefully Congress will.

Strength For Today

WHY ALL THE ARGUMENT?

The place of women in national life is a reality we should note and take into all our considerations. After women got the vote a half century or more ago people smiled and shook their heads and asked "What is the world coming to?"

Well, it will come to something vastly better than we have ever known before if women's rights are effectively employed. Most of a woman's life is of course lived in the home. She makes the home and in so doing performs an unselfish service. She sustains her husband and guides her children. Occasionally she may hold public office. Whether that is good or bad depends upon whether she is a woman of sound judgment or a mere seeker after power and notorietv.

A woman president? That would be okay for most of us provided a woman of presidential stature held the office. Some women have the gift of money-making and stand high in the business world. Some women are good teachers and some are not. If we are wise we will give women their rights by letting them do the things they can do best whether that be in the field of education, industry, housekeeping or governmental office.

It takes a man and a woman to make a happy home. The Queen of England is a notable person governmentally and domestically. Queen Elizabeth I turned back the Spanish Armada — the Lord helping considerably with a violent hurricane.

Women's rights? We are all for them provided the ladies themselves are right.

Not Fired Up For New Battle

By JIM CARR
Associated Press Writer

While tobacco manufacturers are gearing up to battle a move to ban the advertising of little cigars from the airwaves, an old ally is showing less enthusiasm for the fray than might be expected.

The battle-scarred broadcast industry, still licking its wounds from the showdown over cigarette commercials, will be in tobacco's corner when the fight begins. But an official of the North Carolina Association of Broadcasters (NCAB) says many television and radio executives don't consider the matter to be of extreme importance, "either as a matter of principle or a matter of money."

Sen. Frank Moss, D-Utah, announced in Washington last week that he would introduce legislation to ban broadcast advertising of little cigars, which are being vigorously promoted on television. Public interest groups which helped force cigarettes off the air two years ago also are mounting efforts against little cigars.

Broadcasters in North Carolina, a major tobacco state, played an active role in fighting the cigarette commercial ban, to which they remain vehemently opposed. They are also expected to speak out against the Moss bill, but the extent of their opposition may be limited.

"It hasn't come before our board yet, but I can't conceive of anyone in the industry not being opposed to it," said the NCAB official, who asked not to be identified. "The association will likely oppose the bill, and I don't believe a single member of the North Carolina delegation would vote for it."

However, he said, the opposition may not involve much more than "a formal protest" from Tar Heel broadcasters.

"Congress will be considering several issues vitally important to broadcasting, and my guess is that most broadcasters would rather save their energy and their 'green stamps' for these," the NCAB official said.

"Broadcasters just find it (the little cigar issue) a continuation of their frustrations," he said. "Many of them don't consider it to be of extreme importance, either as a matter of principle or a matter of money."

As far as principle is concerned, he said, "I think most people have a defeatist attitude about it. The principle was established when they prohibited cigarette advertising. Most broadcasters feel the Congress has already put the knife in their backs. This is just a little twisting of the knife."

Financially, the loss of little cigar advertising revenues would be minor compared to what the networks and stations once took in from cigarette commercials. "It would hurt, but you couldn't call it a fatal blow," the NCAB official said. "It would have an adverse economic effect on some of the larger broadcast stations, but many of the smaller stations would hardly feel it."

Observations From Editorial Columns

Young Voters Scarce

Remember that host of rebellious young Americans who were supposed to use their newly-won franchise last November to remake American at the ballot box?

We already knew, of course, that they didn't stage much of a revolution. Now it turns out that most of them didn't even show up. The U.S Census Bureau says less than half of the new voters, age 18-21, cast ballots in the 1972 presidential election.

Census officials characterized the turnout of new voters as "dismal." But in the matter of ignoring their Election Day responsibilities, the youngsters didn't do too much worse than their elders.

Only 48.3 per cent of the newly eligible electors showed up at the polls. But only 63 per cent of all voters bothered to cast ballots. It was a victory for apathy at all age levels.

Who said there was a generation gap? Our young people acted with the same indifference as Mom and Dad, only a little more so. — Tulsa (Okla.) World

Chemical Harvest Ahead

Perhaps this generation thinks it is having it pretty tough, but it should save a little pity for those who will come along later. According to a college professor, this generation is eating up the world's natural resources, and those who people the earth in the not-too-distant future will be compelled to turn to chemistry.

It is hardly the golden age the professor forecasts, when there will be no more hot dogs and ice cream, no beefsteak or corn on the cob. Instead, the mainstay of the human diet will be leaves from the trees, after chemistry has converted them into food.

Chemistry will produce all materials for clothing. If times become hard, men will be able to eat their shirts. Main sources of entertainment will be music and the dance. — Monroe (La.) Morning World

Good American Story

The simplicity and dignity which marked last rites for former President Harry Truman, as well as the composure and graciousness of the Truman women before and after his death, appealed mightily to the American people. It's all so befitting a family which has strong and enduring roots in the nation's great heartland.

For all his forthrightness — sometimes exercised with cutting edges — Harry Truman was a man of deep humility and appreciation of heritage — one whose wish was to be remembered above all as the "people's president." His wife, Bess Wallace Truman, never pretended that home could be anywhere but her beloved Independence.

It all adds up to a good American story — a breath of fresh air in a world too beset by sham and the synthetic doings of those who inhabit it. — Beaumont (Tex.) Journal

Sweet And Sour Notes

Citizens are now receiving their W-2 statements and recoiling on reading the aggregate totals of income taxes paid. They might get some comfort from a recently published report. It shows total tax collections in the United States make up a smaller proportion of the gross national product than in any other industrial nation except Japan and Switzerland.

This intelligence comes from the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development in Paris. However, before he begins to feel too good about this withholding statement, the taxpayer might wish to ponder another portion of the Paris report. The United States ranks second to Sweden in the percentage of total taxes raised through the income tax. — Columbia (S.C.) Sate

Tooling Along

Machine tools lack glamor. They are latches, punches and the like, often huge and power-driven, which shape components for automobiles, refrigerators and other factory products. Orders for machine tools thus foreshadow expansion of industry and its output.

Therfore Americans should note with satisfaction that machine tool orders in November soared by 15.4 per cent above the October level to $163.7 million, the highest monthly total in three and a half years. The outlook is encouraging. — Miami (Fla.) Herald

Shut Up And Vend

A new dimension has been added to the coff break in the Washington, D.C., area. A container company is decorating its vending machine paper cups with five-card poker hands, ranging in value from nothing up to four aces or even a royal flush. The cups also carry a printed warning that using them to gamble may be against local law.

Up to now, we suppose, all that people could bet on during coffee breaks was whether the cup would come down from the vending machine before the coffee did, or whether one bean or two would be used in making the brew. We pass. Life is to chancy as it is. — Roanoke (Va.) Times

Where We Are Today In 'The Welfare Mess'

By J.J. KILPATRICK

For more than three years, ever since President Nixon forwarded to Congress his message on welfare reform, we have been hearing talk of "the welfare mess." Ten thousand politicians have denounced this mess. The description encounters no challenge.

But it wasn't until three weeks ago, when the Joint Economic Committee published a staff study on welfare administration, that the magnitude of this mess began to take shape. Hercules, ordered to clean the Augean stables, faced no more than an afternoon's work. Cleaning up the welfare mess will take much longer, if indeed the task can be done at all.

And the gloomy conclusion emerges from this study: Probably it can't be done at all. The nation's programs of public welfare, especially the program of Aid to Families with Dependent Children, are so mired in complicated regulations that no Hercules could tug them loose. Even the most dedicated caseworkers are stuck in the flypaper coils of red tape. In this administrative paralysis no one can move; and the mess goes on.

This nightmare has resulted, as the staff study makes clear, from the very finest principles and the very best motives.

It is a fine principle, for example that no person should be deprived of his property without due process of law. A welfare grant, once awarded, becomes a form of property. The Supreme Court has said so. It follows that no recipient can be deprived of his grant without a full-scale termination hearing. The requirement can result in months of notices, hearings, appeals, the appointment of counsel, the preparation of records. The termination process has now become so complex that it is far easier to leave an ineligible mother on the rolls than to try to get her off.

It is a fine motive that lies behind the infinte regulations governing the expenditure of public funds. Money should be spent, after all, according to law. It is unlawful to spend it otherwise. But the laws, rules and regulations governing eligibility now fill a four-foot shelf, and these requirements are constantly changing. No administrator can keep up with them.

As a nation, we are wedded to the work ethic. Those who can work, should work; welfare funds should not be paid to persons capable of supporting themselves. The principle is admirable. But the present welfare system postively discourages work. In effect, it penalizes work. And it fosters fraud.

Still another excellent principle is that fathers should support their children. The welfare laws require this. But a typical welfare mother, receiving perhaps $150 a month from the government, faces this cheerless prospect: If she cooperates with the welfare people, helps them to track down an absent father, and manages to obtain a court order compelling the man to pay, say, $50 a month, her welfare check is reduced dollar for dollar by the same amount. She is no better off; she is indeed worse off, for the government is more reliable than her wandering lover. So why cooperate?

The present system, says the staff study, "guarantees inaccuracy in distributing welfare payments." Of necessity, welfare administrators "rely heavily on chance to discover error and fraud." At least a fourth of all public assistance cases involve fraud, but it is next to impossible to recover over-payments by administrative action, and criminal prosecutions are rare.

In an effort to prevent fraud, to promote accountability, to permit audits and to provide basic information, the welfare program understandably relies upon forms. Forms! To process a welfare applicant in Atlanta, the staff found, requires 27 different forms. Detroit food stamp administrators must use about 40 forms. In New York, five separate files must be maintained on each recipient. And the mess goes on.

This staff study is a diagnosis, not prescription. Hercules, it will be recalled, washed out the king's stables by rechanneling a couple of rivers. It was a fine, dramatic solution. Something along these lines will be required to clean up the welfare mess, but neither Congress nor the White House has mastered the Herculean touch.

KEEPING HIM ALIVE!

A Whole New Game In Sight After Southeast Asian Peace Is Signed

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

As the United States gets closer and closer to pulling out of the Indochina quicksand, the relief felt by leaders around the world is going to be mixed with apprehension in some areas.

The whole outlook for Southeast Asian leaders is about to change radically. They will be looking at a new and unfamiliar sort of ball game.

The Nixon Doctrine assumes that the United States will avoid future military involvement on Asian soil. Southeast Asian nations are on notice that their defense is primarily their own problem, and that they enjoy only the sort of protection that is implicit in U.S. power and influence.

Their fingers crossed, these leaders are hoping that China's quarrel with the Soviet Union and the need of each of the two Communist giants to develop new relations with the Americans will provide a measure of insurance while they prepare for a painfully uncertain future. Guerrilla movements, revolutionary pressure and outside encouragement of violence still plague the area as it uneasily prepares to make its peace with Peking.

Once a Vietnam cease-fire seemed near, Thailand, Malaysia, Indonesia and Singapore began comparing notes. All had been accustomed to the comfort of the U.S. presence on the continent. Now some of these leaders sound like boys whistling their way past the graveyard.

Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew of Singapore visited Thailand recently and noted that the period immediately after U.S. disengagement in Vietnam "may not necessarily be characterized by peace and stability." That could turn out to be the understatement of the year.

Despite all that has happened, however, Southeast Asian leaders prefer to trust the United States rather than the Russians or Chinese. Sinnathamby Rajaratnam, Lee's foreign minister, told the Thais: "I am suspicious of all big powers, just as sheep must be suspicious of tigers, but the United States has been acceptable to us."

Rajaratnam considers it possible that the United States, the Soviet Union, China and the European Common Market will, by their built-in conflicts of interests, create a situation canceling out pressures on Southeast Asia. But meantime, he says, the area "should use the time given to us by the American presence to consolidate our domestic systems and cooperate with their fear and anxiety period. More Poblanos (people from Puebla) are interested in coming to the school."

The students' dress, although more conservative than on some U.S. campuses, still is a factor in the Mexicans' attitude toward them, especially the girls. American girls generally are considered morally loose by Mexican men who are prone to try to pick them up on the street or at least make comments on their appearance. Current fashions only intensify the situation.

"Women from the United States have more freedom," said a taxi driver. "They walk around alone and here hardly any women do that."

"Many people think all the students smoke marijuana," he said. "Well, some do, but a lot of the problem is because they wear beards. People here are not used to seeing beards. But they don't bother anyone."

The taxi driver's statements were typical of the "live and let live" attitude toward the students as a group. On a personal basis many students have formed strong ties with their landlords, families they live with or Mexicans they deal with daily.

The new agreement is understood to set up inspection points along the DMZ, at which new arms can be examined and counted. Obviously, the opportunity for clandestine arms shipments down the Ho Chi Minh trail still exists, but tightened language in the new agreement minimizes chances for cheating.

The inspection points along the DMZ also continue the principle that this dividing line between North and South, established in the 1954 Geneva agreements, has a legal significance.

Beyond this, moreover, the fact that Mr. Nixon decided to bomb military targets in the most heavily populated cities of the north despite universal world condemnation is likely to have major impact on whether Hanoi lives up to the new agreement. Wholesale violations, in short, may not be treated tenderly by Richard Nixon.

These are vital ingredients of the thesis now held by experts here that the new agreement, and the events between October and January, do in fact offer Thieu and South Vietnam a "decent chance," as apposed to the "decent interval" held forth in the October draft.

Understands The Price Of Partisan Politicking

By JOHN KILGO

RALEIGH — If anyone understands the price you pay for being a partisan politician, it is Buddy Rose of Wilmington, who served on the State ABC Board for seven and a half years.

Rose was removed from the job by Republican Gov. Jim Holshouser. I asked Rose if that bothered him.

"Goodness, no," Rose said. "I fully expected it. 'I'm a 100 per cent, full-blooded Democrat. I worked very hard for Gov. Holshouser's competition in the election, and announced it to the public.

"That's politics. My man, my party lost, and I got booted out with them. That's the way the game is played. It's the way it should be played. Why should Holshouser leave somebody on an important board that worked against him?"

Attorney General Robert Morgan, by the way, is still investigating some matters pertaining to the State ABC Board. One source told me: "It might take another year, but if there's anything there, Bobby won't turn loose until he gets hold of it."

The liquor-by-the-drink bill introduced in the House, which would call for a statewide referendum on the subject, has been advocated by many drys in the past. Many people feel strongly that the question would be defeated statewide.

Mecklenburg Rep. Larry Cobb, however, says recent polls indicate the measure would pass a statewide vote and he therefore supports the bill.

Marse Grant, the Biblical Recorder man, says the '73 Legislature is drier than the Sahara desert. Grant claims his side has plenty of votes in the House and Senate to defeat whisky by the drink legislation.

The Charlotte City Council recently voted to ask the Mecklenburg Legislative delegation to try to amend the Open Meetings Law passed in 1971, to make it possible for governing bodies to meet more often in private.

The Charlotte Council is now under a court injunction not to violate the Open Meeting provision.

Gov. Jim Holshouser made it clear in his Inaurgural Address that those wanting to weaken the law can't call on his office for help. Holshouser says the law should remain strong and as the Governor put it: "Open government has nothing to hide."

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Sunday, Jan. 21, the 21st day of 1973. There are 344 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date, 1954, in the first atomic-powered submarine, the USS Nautilus, was launched at Groton, Conn.

On this date:

In 1793, King Louis XVI of France was beheaded.

In 1824, the Confederate general, Thomas "Stonewall" Jackson, was born in Clarksburg, Va.

In 1861, Mississippi Sen. Jefferson Davis resigned from the Senate, 12 days after his state had seceded from the Union.

In 1903, the London Naval Conference opened.

In 1924, the Russian revolutionary leader, Nikolai Lenin, died at the age of 54 after suffering a stroke.

In 1950, a federal jury in New York found former State Department aide Alger Hiss guilty of perjury.

Ten years ago: France's President Charles de Gaulle and West Germany's Chancellor Konrad Adenauer concluded a treaty of reconciliation between their two countries.

Farm Subsidy Programs Couldn't Have Worse Time For Renewal

By GOERGE BRYANT, JR.

The multi-billion dollar farm subsidy program could hardly have picked a worse time than this year to come before Congress for renewal.

Food prices threaten a spectacular display on the inflation front. Production control, "pain for without tax money", is bound to become a center of controversy. And consumer political power in Washington is still on the rise.

The farmer-producer, on the other hand, finds his political muscle at its softest. He is fewer in number than ever. Many members of the House and Senate he could count on in years past have been replaced with members who owe their seats to urban-suburban voters.

Farm income is at a relatively high level. Those who feel that overhaul of the costly subsidy program is long overdue see now as the time to get on with the job. Financially, producers are strong enough to "face a transition." Farm land values, especailly "allotment" land, have never been higher.

Overhanging is the basic struggle to bring federal spending tax revenues into line and get away from the deficits which underwrite inflation. Key to this controversy is the question of how approved spending is to be divided. In the socio-economic jungle of welfare there is no end of claimants.

There is little liklihood that the coming controvsery in Congress will end up by letting the farm subsidy program die. If this is threatened, the farmer-producer, whether a true family operator or a big commercial enterprise, will find a lot of powerful allies. Financial institutions, for example, have a great deal at stake. Any sudden killing of allotment systems would deal land values a tremendous shock.

The end result will be some sort of compromise to provide a gradual relaxation of production controls and reduction of subsidy payments. But there might well be a target date for restoring agriculture to its old free enterprise bass.

The Nixon Administration has made a start in the direction of easing production restraints. This might save upwards of $1-billion and cut subsidies to around $3-billion.

For perspective on the upcoming farm subsidy controversy, it might be well to look back 40 years to what might be called the granddaddy of today's program — the Agricultural Adjustment Act, triple-A, of 1933.

This was one of the key "emergency" measures driven through Congress during the famous "first 100-days" of the Roosevelt New Deal. When World War I ended, Agriculture didn't wait until the stock market break of Black Friday in 1929 to "bust". Its plunge came in the 20's.

By 1933, the Hoover cart was a familiar sight in Eastern North Carolina, where the economy of tobacco and cotton was in shambles. And things were not much different in other agriculture areas, including the breadbasket of the midwest.

Armed with the new law, Agriculture Secretary Wallace moved rapidly in the summer of 1933. Standing crops were ploughed down. Payments were made to farmers and price-supporting crop loans were arranged.

Armed with the new law, Agriculture Secretary Wallace moved rapidly in the summer of 1933. Standing crops were ploughed down. Payments were made to farmers and price-supporting crop loans were arranged.

Surpluses were seen as the basic farm problem. The program was intended to cut production and provide emergency assistance so that the small family farmer could get off the land and turn his hand to other things. This reporter well remembers the time. He was fresh out of school and fresh off a North Carolina cotton farm. His first assignment with The Wall Street Journal was covering the big new experiment which was to help the little farmer make the transition off the farm.

The change in farming since then has been tremendous. The one-gallused fellow following a mule has long since been replaced by highly mechanized operations. There has been a transition.

But, in the meantime, the farm program based on controls and subsidies, has remained. Figures indicate that it has cost the taxpayers upwards of $52-billion in subsidies, with a great deal of that money going to big agribusiness. The old term "farm relief" is seldom heard. "Conservation" has a much better sound.

As noted above, Congress at this time probably will do no more than relax the program and make it less constly. But for those in the farm business, it probably is time to think a bit about what an acre of allotment land would be worth if there was no allotment.

New Game...

each other."

In the Middle East:

Probably the No. 1 foreign policy priority for Washington after Vietnam is the Middle East, where a lot of dynamite waits for a detonator. That situation is even more sticky for Americans because the U.S. energy crisis puts greater emphasis all the time on Middle East oil.

The Soviet leadership at the moment appears both to want and to fear continued turmoil in the area, and puts on an oddlooking show. It denies Egypt the wherewithal that might tempt Cairo to bow to domestic pressures and forget about a possible settlement, but at the same time seems to encourage Syria in calculated provocations of Israel.

Egypt's President Anwar Sadat, brooding about the Soviet attitude, seems even more hurt by his rich Arab brethren in the oil nations who go on reaping golden dollar harvests when they could just as well be creating an oil crisis. What kind of Arab unity is it when Arab rules fail to take advantage of such an obviously promising gamblit.

There's no real insurance that some day the crisis mightn't come anyway, touched off by new hostilities provoked, for example, by Syrian belligerence. Damascus has been openly challenging the Egyptians to engage in a new bout with Israel.

In Europe:

President Nixon wanted to get back into the European picture as soon as possible, to make 1973 a "year of Europe" for U.S. policy. With Americans out of Indochina, he will have a better chance of getting that project on the road.

In spite of new developments in Soviet-American relations, a contest is still going on — so far as Moscow is concerned, anyway. The detente is not so thoroughgoing as to mean that the Kremlin might want more peace than it can handle. There are dangers in too much peace for the Soviet bloc in the relaxation it could bring, in the contamination it could mean through less restriction on contacts, in possible erosion of Communist authority in the bloc and perhaps even in the Soviet Union itself. A peace within bounds would be better — one that could bring some of the economic benefits without danger of political cost.

Moscow hammers on the theme of needed results from the preliminary meeting in Helsinki. The Russians want it to produce, this year, a full-dress all-Europe security conference, on their terms. That is, they refuse to make any concessions that would involve free exchanges of people, information and ideas across ideological boundaries. They make it seem that what they really want is a neutralized Europe resigned to a dominating continental influence implied by the military might of its Soviet neighbor.

They are in a hurry, too, because they do not relish possible developments in Western Europe centering about an expanded Common Market whose economic muscle, already considerable, might be complemented some day by some measure of political integration.

Republican Phone Service Discussed

Discussion on the proposed use of a telephone information service highlighted Thursday night's meeting of the Pitt County Republican Executive Committee here.

According to Herb Lee, committee member, the phone service, which would be listed in the directory under Republican Information and Inquiries, would tape questions and comments or opinions called in by the general public and "serve as a meter of how the people feel on various issues."

Lee said that the service, open to the public at all hours, would be a source of information to the public as questions asked would be forwared to appropriate parties for answers and a letter of response would be mailed to the caller.

He added that the service would be used in lieu of a full time secretary. Tapes would be deciphered of information each day. Cost of the service would be handled by the county Republican Party, he said.

The committee agreed to give the phone service a trial basis, Lee continued, noting that it will take approximately two weeks to have the phone installed and working. "We hope to have it working by Feb. 1," he said.

Lee pointed out that the party will advertise the number to call. He added that the service, as far as he knows, has not been tried in this area before.

In other matters, vice chairman Nelson Crisp, presiding in the absence of Dick Greene, chairman, announced that Gov. Jim Holshouser has notified district chairmen that Lincoln Day Dinners will be held in each district and that either he or Sen. Jesse Helms will speak at the dinners.

PTI Plans Begin 2 Tobacco Courses

Pitt Technical Institute is planning to conduct both an 80 hour tobacco auctioneering course and an 80 hour tobacco ticket marking course. The two courses will run simultaneously beginning, Monday, Feb. 12, and ending March 9.

The classes will meet Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

After the first week the two courses will be combined a part of each day for actual practice in conducting a mock tobacco sale. This will give both the auctioneering student and the ticket marking student experience in conducting tobacco sales.

A student may register for only one of the courses. There will be no instructional cost for the course.

For the students who have to room and board in Greenville while attending the course; Pitt Tech can assist in locating appropriate places. The student must pay for his own room and board.

Ray Oglesby will be the instructor for the tobacco auctioneering course and Julian Edwards will handle instruction for the ticket marking course.

For further information; interested persons may call or visit Pitt Tech.

New Mexico Developers Find Ready Victims

By P. BRADLEY SMITH

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — Mr. and Mrs. George Pafundi, who had had enough of New York City, moved to New Mexico last year hoping to build a new life in the wide open spaces of the Great Southwest.

They found the wide open spaces, but little else. Now they're going to move again.

The Pafundis are one family among thousands of Easterners drawn to the Southwest by developers.

Developments, some large but mostly small, have sprung up across arid New Mexico in the past 10 years. Most are hardly regulated.

No one knows exactly how many subdividers there are in New Mexico because of loopholes in the state law. The state lists 102 developments, while the environmentalist Central Clearing House of Santa Fe lists more than 280.

There are two kinds of developers in New Mexico: the fly-by-nighter selling little but paper and the more respected, and more publicized, permanent subdividers.

Two of the most widely known in the state are Rio Communities of Horizon Corp., and Rio Rancho of AMREP, both near Albuquerque, the state's largest city.

Painted Pretty Picture

It is from Horizon that the Pafundis bought their $32,000 home last year. Horizon maintains a sizeable marketing operation in New York.

"They painted a very, very pretty picture," Mrs. Pafundi said. "We bought the land for investment purposes and then we decided to heck with that, we've been wanting to move out anyhow so let's do it."

Mrs. Pafundi thinks the land was misrepresented to them.

"When I first moved into my house and I turned on my faucet the following day, I couldn't get any water out of it. I thought there was something wrong with the pipes. But they said, 'oh, I'm sorry, they had to build a new addition to the water supply.'"

The Pafundis moved into their home in July, five months after it had been promised, and immediately began objecting to the way it was constructed.

Pafundi, a builder himself, said the house was sliding and this was producing cracks in the walls and roof.

They posted a sign in their front yard: "Const. by Horizon Not Fit to Live in 10 months of Lies."

The sign came down shortly before Christmas "in the holiday spirit," Mrs. Pafundi says, and they have now reached an agreement with Horizon to buy the house back.

Rapped Rio Rancho

Rio Rancho, which has a population of 3,500 transplants, has been the target of the Albuquerque Environmental Center but there have been few official complaints.

Rio Rancho has keyed its marketing program toward potential buyers from out of state, bringing visitors in on special flights for tours and sales sessions.

The Environmental Center has been meeting flights at the airport and trying to talk buyers out of coming to New Mexico.

"We've been able to ascertain that when we met them at the airport and then we met them at different parts around New Mexico, that they'd had almost a complete loss of sales," said Terry Lamm of the center.

"It is very clear why. According to their HUD statement filed in 1971, 98 per cent of their sales were to out of staters. The point that we make to out of staters is that the resale market for Rio Rancho or Horizon particularly is flooded."

He pulled out an advertisement in the Sept. 26, 1972, issue of the New York Times by AMREP which says, "Rio Rancho is built in one of the most breathtaking areas in New Mexico ... with nearly three miles of frontage on the Rio Grand River ... awe-inspiring views of the Sandia Mountains ... golden mesas and canyons that sweep the horizon in almost every direction."

According to James Colegrove, public affairs director for Rio Rancho, the development does own three miles of frontage on the river but does not intend to sell it. The closest portion of the present development is about three miles from the river, which is but a trickle during parts of the year.

Running Rio Right

Colegrove sees Rio Rancho as "an alternative to just making Albuquerque larger and getting more of the urban area problems like crime." (Albuquerque had the nation's highest crime rate in 1972.)

He also says AMREP is concerned about growth. "It must be healthy growth. Rio Rancho is a well-rounded community with clean industry. If a place has to grow, let it grow right. Many cities are growing without any kind of planning, but that's not the case in Rio Rancho."

Charmaine Crown, head of the State Consumer Protection Division, says her office has few complaints about subdivisions.

"In view of the amount of land sold here there aren't that many complaints," she said. "We get a heck of a lot of inquiries asking if they are actually building here and that sort of thing."

Most of the complaints come from people who think the land was misrepresented, especially about how much water was present.

"I'm not really clear in my mind if that is the land people's fault or people who live in more lush areas than ours and come out and find a desert," she said.

Flighty Fly-by-Nighters

Mrs. Crown says her agency's biggest problem is with the fly-by-nighters. "The problem there is to find the people once they've hit because they don't stay around very long."

In 1972, the state legislature killed a bill designed to give more control over subdivisions. This year, a new bill will be offered. It places most of the control in the hands of county governments. Another bill will be considered to create a land use commission, similar to ones established in other states.

During the 1972 legislative hearings on the subdivision bill, one legislator, Albuquerque Sen. Eddie Barboa, summed up some of the legislator's feelings:

"Why should we worry about these people who come in from New York or California and spend $1,000 for some worthless land? Developers bring in these people by the planeload, wine and dine them and whip them back. Besides, some of the hostesses tell me these people don't even drink water. So we don't have anything to worry about."

'Ona' People Almost Gone

CHICAGO (UPI) — A people that survived thousands of years in one of the world's most hostile environments today may be down to its last member, or perhaps just recently became extinct.

They are—or were—the Ona Indians, the original inhabitants of Tierra del Fuego, at the tip of South America, a region as cold and damp as it is remote.

The Ona world was discovered 352 years ago by Ferdinand Magellan. They knew no agriculture, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica, continually migrating in small hunting groups. They had fur robes and hide dwellings.

They had practically no government and no chiefs and only the most simple tools and weapons. But archaeological data indicates the Ona subsistence organization endured for millenniums.

In the last century, however, they were almost destroyed through European depredations and, according to Britannica, a few years ago there were less than 50 Ona known to be surviving.

'Nurse of the Year' Is Diabetics' Friend

AN INSULIN INJECTION. . . is prepared by Mrs. Charles McCallister of Greenville under Mrs. Holloman's eye. Mrs. McCallister and her husband's aunt, Mrs. Annie Mae Johnson (right) are being taught the technique in order to give the injections to Mrs. McCallister's husband, who has just been diagnosed as a diabetic patient.

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

"You'd need roller skates to keep up with Laurel," Dr. Howard Gradis said of Mrs. Laurel Holloman, Pitt Memorial Hospital's diabetics teaching nurse who recently was named "Pitt County Nurse of the Year."

The petite blond nurse is difficult to keep up with as she scoots all over the hospital, the county, and even into neighboring counties visiting diabetic patients and their families who need instruction and assistance and teaching classes on care of the diabetic patient.

"As much as Laurel teaches, she reassures," said Dr. William Fore, who was instrumental in getting the Diabetics Consultation and Education Program started in this area with funds from the Regional Medical Program. "Now the funding has run out, but Pitt Memorial has continued to pay for Mrs. Holloman's services."

Mrs. Holloman is paid for approximately 20 hours a week. About half of these are spent at the hospital. Once she has contacted a patient, that patient is free to call upon her at any time for assistance and she periodically checks on patients from whom she does not hear.

Personal Visit

Every person who is diagnosed as having diabetes while a patient at Pitt Memorial is visited by Mrs. Holloman in the hospital. She helps them understand the diets prescribed by their doctors and written up by the hospital dietician. To do this, she tries to thoroughly familiarize them with the reasons it is important to stick to their diets and why they should eat at regular hours the types of foods and the amounts suggested by their physicians.

If the patient must have insulin injections, she teaches him or a member of his family or whoever agrees to be responsible how to give the "shots." Proper dosage and care of the needle must be stressed.

She also shows the patient how to test his own urine for glucose content and how to take special care of his feet and legs to prevent infection, since poor blood circulation in this area is prone to cause problems for the diabetic patient.

The person is taught what to do when he realizes his diabetes is "out of control," i.e. that his blood sugar level has gone too high or too low.

Mrs. Holloman visits the patient in his home soon after he goes home to make sure he understands and is doing everything possible to take care of himself. She also visits patients not hospitalized that doctors refer to her. For these, she often does considerable diet counseling. Anyone not referred to her who wishes to have her services may contact her for a visit.

A half a day each month she visits the Family Clinic in Farmville, the Dixon Clinic in Ayden, and the Bethel Clinic. The doctors at each of these clinics schedule their diabetics' checkups on these days so their patients can benefit from Mrs. Holloman's services.

In-service education is also her responsibility and she often is called upon to conduct classes on some phase of diabetic care for hospital personnel, as well as for nearby medical and paramedical education courses like those of the East Carolina University School of Nursing and LPN and Associate Nursing degree programs in the area.

"Her Baby"

The Eastern North Carolina Diabetes Association has become "her baby," one of which she is quite proud. "Our group meets regularly and the members and visitors say they really benefit by talking to one another about their mutual experiences with diabetes," she said. "This past November we had a 'Thanksgiving dinner' of 'legal foods,' and Mrs. Lorraine Nobles, the Pitt Memorial dietician, helped each person choose a meal that would fit his or her individual calorie quota."

"I love my work," Mrs. Holloman said. "I'm free to schedule my visits according to my family's needs, as well as those of my patients, so it's ideal for me as a mother."

The wife of Wayne Holloman, she has two sons, Andy, eight, and Stephen, seven, and a daughter, Lisa, four. She was born in Ayr, Ontario, Canada, and was educated at Victoria Hospital School of Nursing in London, Ontario. It was during her second year of nurse's training that she met Wilson native, Wayne Holloman while both were vacationing at Virginia Beach. As soon as her education was finished, they were married and have lived in Greenville since. She has worked on the obstetrics and gynecology floor of the hospital and at the Pitt County Health department prior to taking the diabetics teaching job.

"The Pitt County Medical Association's choice of Laurel as their 'nurse of the year' is comment enough on Laurel's value to Pitt County diabetics and their doctors," Dr. Fore said. "Her compassion and patience and her willingness to help have made her well-suited for this pioneering effort. We just can't imagine how we ever got along without her."

FOOT CARE. . . is stressed with each of Mrs. Holloman's patients. Here she assists Mrs. Earline Golette of Pactolus with soaking her feet. Dry skin and nails on the feet are a problem with most diabetic patients, and soaking is one way to combat the condition, which could lead to dangerous infection.

TIME FOR HER CHILDREN. . . is one thing Mrs. Holloman likes about her part-time job. They are Andy, 8, Lisa, 4 and Stephen (right), 7.

Living In Saigon Is Termed 'Hardship Post'

EDITOR'S NOTE — The woman followed her husband to war and hasn't washed a dish or made a bed since arriving in Saigon. She has golf courses, swimming pools and tennis courts at her disposal. Yet she can't wait to get out. She's learned why Saigon is classified "a hardship post."

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — "My first impression" of this seedy war capital," said Pat Marzolf, "was, oh my, what am I letting myself in for?"

The first jolt came, she said, when the plane landed at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airport and taxied down the runway past rows of green-and brown-camouflaged warplanes, protected by steel and cement antirocket walls.

And she had mixed feelings, she said, about that first drive from the airport into Saigon, past scores of tin-roofed shacks jutting out over a sewage canal, the barbed-wire coils stretched along the sidewalks, the sandbag bunkers that are as numerous on street corners here as stop signs in America.

Like most of the 148 American women who live in Vietnam with their government-employed husbands, 28-year-old Mrs. Marzolf of New York found that after the initial shock, the privileges that go with her husband's job with the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) make her living seem almost easy.

Because Vietnam has the potential of being a low morale post — the State Department classifies it a "hardship area" — the women often go out of their way to keep busy.

"It's a hardship post in the sense that you don't really know what those noises at night will mean," explained Mrs. Josiah W. Bennett, wife of an embassy political official. "For some people it's harder than others."

"My definition of a hardship post is how much more worry, how much more danger there is than at a normal post. Here, for people who bring their children, it has to be a real personal decision."

However, the most pervasive disadvantage of life for American women in Vietnam is not the threat of sudden fiery death. It is a host of little difficulties that accompany every venture outside the U.S.-made shell.

The woman who leaves that shell must steel herself against hostilities that range from subdued dark glances to open attacks, against shopkeepers and cab drivers who consider it a right to bilk an American for all they can.

"We're not exactly treated like when we entered Paris in 1945," one American said.

For Mrs. Bennett, a Chinese-American who was born in Peking, life in Vietnam "is almost like home. I speak Chinese and that makes it easier to meet Vietnamese."

The Bennetts live in a large, two-story villa surrounded by flowering bushes and towering palm trees. The door to their living room opens onto a patio and one of the three swimming pools reserved for Saigon's official American community.

"In all posts, life is made easier for higher positions than lower ones," Mrs. Bennett said. "This is the first post since we joined the foreign service in 1946 that I haven't had the children around to keep me busy.

"Here, since we're supposed to keep a low profile, it seems like a marvelous occasion to sit home and practice the recorder and learn typing and shorthand." Mrs. Bennett said she also takes Chinese shadow-boxing lessons three times a week.

Mrs. Thomas Thorsen, whose husband works for USAID, has been in Vietnam for the last 13 months of her 16 years as a foreign service wife. She has no time, she said, to sit around brooding about the war.

Mrs. Thorsen said that like many of her colleagues, her days are scheduled between the American Red Cross, meetings of the American Woman's Association and Chinese brush painting lessons. She said she also does volunteer work in orphanages and a hospital for burned children.

Unlike Mrs. Thorsen, however, some of the dozen women interviewed said they find work in the hospitals and refugee centers upsetting.

Recreational activities — golf, swimming, tennis, riding and bridge — are readily accessible to families of U.S. government employes. Many of the American women said they have free time for such activities because servants are inexpensive by American standards, between $20 and $40 a month. That's more, however, than a junior officer in the Vietnamese army makes.

"What we lack in consumer goods — dishwashers, blenders and vacuum cleaners — we make up with personal servants," one woman said.

In Saigon there is no clean, quiet grassy place like that to which most folks in the United States can repair. The only place a family can approximate a middle-class American life is in the enclave.

And for many, Saigon's in-town country club, the Cercle Sportif, offers a tranquil oasis where the only reminder of war is an occasional military helicopter overhead.

"The conversation often runs from the price of jade to the problems of getting reliable servants," one American explained, "but it is an escape. And here, you need it."

The high, whitewashed walls that surround the pools, villas and clubs provide only tentative escape, however. But once an American ventures outside the cloistered havens to a meeting, to shop, or even to meet a friend for lunch, the hassle begins all over again.

In the central market places, for example, one must take precautions against theft.

"I like the central market," said Carolyn Meuller of Port Angeles, Wash., whose husband works for USAID. "But I know to take off my watch, not carry a handbag and wear covered shoes."

And even in the most expensive restaurants, their hearts and handbags are not safe from the 4-and-5-year-olds who sneak in to beg, carrying naked babies in their arms.

"I see little children begging in the streets and restaurants, and I want to give them something," said Juanita Cunningham of San Francisco, whose husband works for the U.S. Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs. "But if you do, 10 more rob you from behind.

The wife of an American journalist who has spent two years in Vietnam said she is often harassed when she walks through the streets. Children poke at her and pull her blonde hair. An old man once beat her with a cane.

"I came over here with such a great outlook," she said. "I've really tried to get to know the people, volunteer work and all that. But I've had it.

"My husband tells me not to go out on the street, but I can't do that. I'd go bananas. Sometimes I go into my shell and stay in the apartment for a week, sewing and cooking, but you go crazy.

"In a way, we've never had it so good. I haven't washed a dish or made a bed in two years. We've collected porcelain and I wouldn't trade the art we've bought for anything.

"But it's also been a rough experience. The tough times have been very tough. When our tour is up, I'll be glad to get out of here."

Look Out, This Guy Isn't Your Style

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am an 18-year-old girl who has never had a real date. I have been fixed up a few times, but it's never panned out.

Well, this one guy started to come over and hang around. He's sort of weird. He's 24, not bad looking, and does construction work. He comes here and keeps looking at my mother. She is a widow, 39 years old, and is a nice looking woman, but she has her own friends and isn't interested in this kid. He keeps making cracks, like, "Older women are more experienced."

I don't know what to make of him. My mother says I should encourage him a little, but I don't believe in leading a guy on unless I intend to put out, which I will not do because I believe in God and virtue and I don't want to be shopworn by the time I'm married.

So what do you suggest? INEXPERIENCED

DEAR INEXPERIENCED: The kind of "experience" this weirdo is looking for is definitely not your style. Stick to your principles and don't waste any more time with the likes of him. You're more apt to find your type of fellow hanging around church. Seek, and ye shall find!

DEAR ABBY: My life is a nightmare with my jealous husband. We have tried everything from marriage counselors to psychiatry, but to no avail.

He does not trust me out of his sight and it is all so foolish because I have no interest in any other man and never have had.

My only hope seems to be a chastity belt. Can you please tell me where to send for one? I am 53 and my husband is 70 and he has been like this for the last three years.

This is a serious request. Please rush your answer. Whatever the price, it will be worth it. Thank you.

GOING CRAZY IN BLUE EARTH, MINN.

DEAR GOING: The only chastity belts I have ever seen are in museums.

DEAR ABBY: I am a single girl, 24 years old, and people are always telling me how beautiful I am, mainly because I have a good figure. [I'm 36-25-36]. No single girl wants to pal around with me because if a guy is anywhere around, I'm the one who gets the attention. Married women don't trust me either altho I've never dated a married man in my life.

Abby, what I need is a man, but a guy takes one look at me and figures with all I've got going for me I must have been with lots of guys. [I've been with a few, but not that many].

I am so lonesome, you wouldn't believe it. So where do I look for friends? Not at work. The females are so jealous they would tear me apart like wolves. Not at bars because men get the impression that I'm good for a one-night stand, and that's not what I want. I'm going crazy, I need friends! Sign me. . . THE LONELIEST GAL IN TOWN

DEAR LONELY: You seem much too preoccupied with your looks. Beauty has never been a liability, so if girls mistrust you and men misjudge you, you'd better take a good long look at your packaging. If you look, dress and act like a lady with all you have going for you, you will be the busiest gal in town, not the loneliest.

DEAR ABBY: Please print this for the nurses who work in obstetrics. I just had my fourth baby, and all four times I was fully conscious. The only time a nurse spoke to me was to give me an order, "Mother, drink this! Mother, turn over! Mother, bear down!" Meanwhile, the nurses are talking to each other. They babble endlessly about the cute new intern, what they did last weekend and the latest hospital gossip. No one bothered to say a kind word to me, and needless to say I kept praying that my doctor would arrive before my baby did.

Women in labor are not deaf, and at a time like that they desperately need a few comforting words and some friendly conversation.

I hope you will print my letter because many of my friends have told me that the same thing happened to them. NEW MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Consider it done. All right, nurses: Talk to the mother, not to each other!

Handicapped Girl Codes For Laboratories

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Not only does Jane Denton know what infrared curves are, but she is eager to tell all they've done for her.

The telling isn't easy. Slowly and carefully the young Buffalo woman "talks" by pointing to words and letters on the language board that is always with her, at bedside and in her wheelchair.

Chemistry was to be her field when she was graduated from the State University at Buffalo in January, 1966. Between the time she finished her exams and graduation ceremonies, she was stricken with encephalitis.

Jane became bedridden. She couldn't talk. She had trouble eating.

Her strength began to leave her. Thoughts of how she was going to live and how pointless her existence was haunted her.

But Sharon Bailey, a college friend, had other thoughts.

Sharon was working as an industrial chemist with Eastman Kodak. She told her supervisor, George Covert, that Jane might be able to do some coding of data for member laboratories on infrared spectra compounds.

Covert worked out a program with the American Society for Testing and Materials in which Jane could code curves. Then he arranged with Jane's family to teach her the coding procedures on weekends.

"When I first saw her, I was amazed. I didn't realize the seriousness of her condition. But I learned that she certainly knew her chemistry," Covert said.

Jane's work was done at home, primarily with pencils, paper, reference books and her dad's willing assistance.

Then Jane's battles really began. She had several relapses. It became increasingly difficult for her to do her work, and for her mom and dad to take care of her.

So Jane moved to the Erie County, N.Y., Home and Infirmary, for weekdays and spent her weekends at home.

A new corps of friends replaced George Covert. They were rehabilitation counselor Doris Martin, physical therapist Marion Kerr and sociologist and computer instructor Dr. Robert Cabral.

"When she first came to us," one of her friends remembers, "she was so frustrated. You know, not being able to talk, she just can't get rid of the pressure and tension."

Because of her friend's encouragement, Jane took a basic computer programing course at Rosary Hill College.

She was loaned a computer for several weeks and a dictionary was developed by Dr. Cabral so that she could talk by using the teletype terminal.

Recently Jane returned to Kodak to see how her coding work was used. She observed the infrared spectrophotometer from her wheelchair. It was a special event for Jane, forging a final link in the chain she has had with her chosen profession for the last six and a half years.

And the company has decided to try other innovative ways to utilize Jane's capabilities.

Victorian Laws Govern Wives

BONN, Germany (AP) — Harking back to when the good German hausfrau minded "kitchen, church and children" and left the rest to hubby, West Germany still permits a husband to divorce his wife if she takes a job without his permission.

Even the conservative West Germans regard such notions as antiquated leftovers from Kaiser Wilhelm II's day.

Chancellor Willy Brandt's government has drafted sweeping reforms of his country's marriage and divorce laws, not yet implemented. Senior Justice Ministry offical Alfons Baerl says the present laws are 'highly unsatisfactory," pointing out that "views on marriage and family life and the position of women in wedlock and society have changed without constructively influencing legislation."

Present laws reflect the Victorian idea that the man's task is to earn money while his wife stays meekly at home. The draft amendments to West Germany's "family and marriage law," already approved by Brandt's cabinet, are based on the principles of equal rights and responsibilities for marriage partners and protection of the economically weaker partner—who in this country is mostly the woman.

Though the amendments met little serious objection from lawmakers, they were jostled aside by more pressing issues in parliament, which next meets some time in 1973—perhaps under a different government placing less priority than Brandt on social reform.

One unprecedented provision would let a bride keep her maiden name by adding it to her husband's surname—or even allow the husband to take his wife's surname if he wishes.

Most sweeping of all is a proposed divorce reform doing away with the old principle of the "guilty party," who is made to bear the major financial burden in present divorces

Instead of hunting for a culprit, a judge would decide only whether the marriage partners have drifted too far apart to allow reconciliation. If both partners want a divorce, a one-year separation would be grounds for the judge to declare a "failure" of the marriage. If only one partner consents, three years of separation would constitute a legal basis for divorce—unless the unwilling partner can show concrete evidence that the marriage has not irrevocably "failed."

Instead of determining who is to blame for the break-up and fixing alimony accordingly, the judge would base the payments only on the financial situation of the two partners. Alimony would be temporary only, ending once the economically weaker partner receiving it is able to support himself or herself.

As it is now, once a woman is divorced she forfeits the right to the payout from the family pension scheme she may have contributed to from her earnings while married.

The draft law would give divorced women greater security in their old age by sharing pension benefits between both partners after a divorce.

Bureaucracy is one complicating factor at present. A whole series of courts on different levels has to decide separately on the divorce decree itself, alimony, apportionment of the house and household goods, division of other property and custody of the children.

The legal tangle often drags on for years after the divorce itself has been made final.

The draft proposes to establish an entirely new "family court" qualified to deal with all aspects of divorce and marriage. So that there is no aftermath of unsolved legal issues once the divorce decree is granted, the law would require proof that alimony, separation of house and property and child custody have been settled before divorce becomes final.

COOKING IS FUN!

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Ingenious cooks team chicken salad with fruit. And here's the latest version of this recipe we've tested.

Diced Bartlett pears are added to the chicken mixture and it is moistened, most appropriately, with curried mayonnaise and served on pear halves. Salted peanuts make the topping.

The amount of curry powder called for in the recipe gives distinct flavor; if you want a milder combination, add less of the curry.

CURRIED CHICKEN AND PEAR SALAD

7 Bartlett pears
2 cups diced cooked chicken
¼ cup diced green pepper
½ cup thinly sliced celery
2-3rd cup mayonnaise
1 teaspoon curry powder ½ teaspoon salt
Dash of white pepper
Lemon juice
Salad greens
½ cup salted peanuts

Halve, core and dice one of the pears; mix with chicken, green pepper and celery.

In a small mixing bowl, with a spoon or fork, blend the mayonnaise, curry powder, salt and pepper; toss with chicken-pear mixture. Cover and chill.

Shortly before serving time, halve and core the remaining six pears. Brush cut surfaces with lemon juice to prevent darkening. Cover and chill.

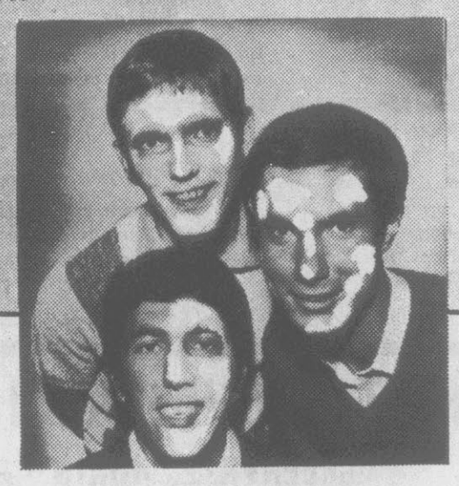

At serving time, line individual salad plates with salad greens; place two pear halves on each plate. Top with chicken-pear salad. Sprinkle with peanuts. Serve at once.

Makes 6 servings.

Doctor Developes Home Treatment that
RINSES AWAY BLACKHEADS HELPS DRY UP ACNE-PIMPLES
In 15 Minutes or Your Money Back!

Queen Helene Mint Julep Masque 15 Minute Treatment
Must Show Immediate Improvement or — YOUR MONEY BACK!

A New York Doctor, working with a cosmetic laboratory, has developed a simple home-treatment that rinses away blackheads in a matter of minutes. It was demonstrated recently on five teen-age girls and three boys.

The results were breath-taking. Blackheads really rinsed away. In fact, many could be seen on the cloth used to wash off the Masque. But this wasn't all! Acne-pimples improved after one application, enlarged pores reduced, and rough complexions became cleaner, clearer and smoother looking. These results certainly indicate why teen-agers are now saying "this is one product that really works"... and why mothers of teen-agers have endorsed its use.

The Masque-Cream Treatment is indeed a remarkable discovery, not only for clear healthy skins, but also for the self-confidence, poise and self-esteem a fine complexion brings to teen-agers!

Anyone Can Use It

If you suffer the agony of teen-age blackheads, acne-pimples and rough unsightly complexions, give yourself this home treatment at our risk. Apply this delightfully Mint-Scented Cream and within 2 or 3 minutes an absorbing agent, called Argilla, dries and turns this cream into a plastic-like masque. You will now feel as though hundreds of "tiny fingers" were softly kneading the skin, loosening pore-caked dirt, blackheads and foreign impurities.

As it firms and hardens, its suction-action draws out waste matter from the pores... In 15 minutes you simply rinse the masque away with lukewarm water which dissolves it immediately. When you wipe your face, you can see that blackheads and other pore "filler" actually come off on your towel. And your skin feels clean... really clean... refreshed, smooth like velvet!

Improve Your Complexion

Don't take a back seat or be a wall-flower because of bad skin. If you want to get your full share of fun and parties... clear up your complexion and let Mint Julep Masque "Lead the Way"! You certainly owe it to yourself to try a single fifteen minute home treatment to convince yourself that this new Queen Helene masque-cream can work wonders for you.

Miss Vida Blackley Weds In Saturday Ceremony

MRS. DAVID MICHAEL MCLAWHORN

FARMVILLE — The wedding of Miss Vida Lynn Blackley and David Michael McLawhorn was solemnized Saturday at 3:30 p.m. in the First Baptist Church here.

The church was decorated with arrangements of greenery on either side of the altar and a kneeling bench was placed in front of the altar. A program of wedding music was presented by Miss Donna Potts of Snow Hill, pianist, and Miss Vickie Moye sang the "Wedding Prayer."

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Blackley of Farmville, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a floor length gown of white bridal lace over taffeta. The gown was fashioned with a mandarin collar and long lace sleeves cuffed with a lace ruffle. The empire waist featured a self-bow and the hemline was finished in a wide lace ruffle.

Her two tiered veil was attached to a wide white velvet bow accented with rows of pearls. She carried a bridal bouquet of white mums.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Marion Lark, pastor of the First Baptist Church. The Rev. Linwood Kilpatrick, of the Bell Arthur Christian Church, served Communion to the couple after they were pronounced husband and wife.

Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. R.A. McLawhorn Jr. of Rt. 1, Greenville.

Ushers were Simon Cox and Randy Erwin, both of Farmville.

The mother of the bride selected a pink wool dress with matching accessories. The mother of the bridegroom wore a blue princess style dress with matching accessories.

For a wedding trip to unannounced points, the bride changed into a dusty pink wool pants suit with matching accessories.

The couple will reside in Farmville.

The bride is a graduate of Farmville High School and attended Atlantic Christian College. She is now associated with her father in business at the S. & H Cleaners Farmville.

The bridegroom is in his second year of architectural drafting at Pitt Technical Institute and will graduate in June. He works part-time at the ECU Regional Development Institute.

After-Rehearsal Party

The bride's parents entertained at an after-rehearsal party at their home Friday night honoring the bridal couple, relatives and close friends.

Guests were greeted by the host and hostess.

The refreshment table was covered with a white linen cloth edged in lace and centered with an arrangement of white bridal flowers and greenery.

Miss Lynne Minette poured punch and Miss Vickie Moye of Ormondsville served the wedding cake.

Miss Cindy McLawhorn, sister of the bridegroom and Miss Janice Blackley, sister of the bride, presided at the guest register.

Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. William Minette.

AKRON-CANTON AIRPORT, Ohio (AP) — One of aviation's First Ladies has spent the equivalent of eight full weeks in the air. Another says she always has had her eye on the future.

They are Mrs. Henry H. Timken Jr. of Canton, chairman of the Federal Aviation Administration's Women's Advisory Committee on Aviation, and Mrs. James J. Mensching of Akron, vice chairman.

Their committee meets twice a year in Washington, D.C. "The whole thing is an educational campaign for more air safety," says Mrs. Timken, whose late husband was chief of Timken Roller Bearing Co.

She became a flyer because "I married one," she says. Now she has logged nearly 1,500 hours of flying time without harrowing incidents, she says.

But if there had been any, she wouldn't discuss them. "I'm superstitious," she says.

Mrs. Mensching recalls reading Buck Rogers books and thinking "the author's imagination was fantastic."

Yet she sees those futuristic ideas taking shape gradually now, she says, adding: "I can't imagine what's in the future — but I want to be there."

Mrs. Timken loves big game hunting and says that since English is the universal language of the skies, "going to Europe is no more involved than flying from Akron to Columbus."

She is critical of the news display given to hijackings and plane crashes.

"Do you know that 25 people have been sentenced for hijackings?" she asks. "One got up to 50 years. You don't see those stories on the front page, but you should. That kind of publicity would stop a lot of this."

Plane crashes are caused by the same things that cause car accidents, she says: carelessness, drinking, forgetfulness. "Air accidents can be prevented," she says.

She also says she prefers wings to wheels. "Pilots always say the dangerous part of any journey begins when you land and have to get in a car," she says. "I'm always nervous in a car.

"Fifty-nine thousand people are killed each year in auto accidents," she says, "while plane crashes, responsible for much fewer deaths, get all the headlines."

Mrs. Mensching reversed Mrs. Timken's learning sequence: she taught her husband to fly about 10 years ago. Now he is an engineer with Goodyear Aerospace Corp. And she has about 60 weeks' of airtime in her history, 10,000 hours spread over 33 years and including military air ferry work during World War II as a member of the Women's Air Force Service Pilots.

Today the Civil Air Patrol captain trains young people in communications and aerospace education and for rescue and search missions. She also runs a flight school and, with her husband, a plane repair and storage business.

She expects the number of women in aviation will have increased considerably by 1975.

"Women's liberation came to women in aviation at a natural, gradual pace," she says. She approves of many of the positions taken by advocates of women's rights but adds that men and women must never lose sight of the differences between them.

"Women set the moral tone for the country," she says. "I hope we won't lose it with all this horsing around."

The women who have found success in aviation "are the ones who are well-adjusted and at home in the world," she says. "Those who fell by the wayside didn't have the stamina."

In her office she keeps a pair of chocks, the wooden stops placed behind planes' wheels to keep them from rolling. The chocks are flowered. "They should be pretty," she says.

She recalls something less pretty, an incident before World War II. She had run out of fuel and had to land in pitch dark on what she thought was a smooth field. After doing so, she got out of the plane, walked 50 feet — and fell into a river.

She also recalls getting lost in a P51 during a storm. Navigational equipment was primitive in those days, she says. By the time her distress signal was picked up, she had flown across three states out of her way.

The engine quit just after she landed.

Winter Board Meeting Set For Raleigh

The meeting will be held Feb. 17 at the Hilton Inn. Mrs. Jim O'Brien, president, read a letter from N. C. Governor Faye Cardinal concerning the meeting.

During the business session, reports were given by Mrs. Stuart Buchanan on the Christmas party held at Operation Sunshine, Mrs. Joe Johnson, ways and means, and Mrs. Trotman, membership.

Mrs. Wade Trask was named as the club's new secretary-treasurer.

The president welcomed Mrs. George Russ as a new member and Mrs. Ola Porter was recognized as a guest for the meeting.

Forthcoming fund-raising projects were planned by the group.

A dinner meeting will be held by the membership in February.

Household Hints

Flammable or explosive cleaning fluids are dangerous. For that reason, dry cleaning at home is not recommended.

When you clean a room run a hand vacuum over heavy drapes. Work from the top of the drapes down.

Bleaches are chemical agents used to whiten any material.

Bonded fabrics consist of two or more joined layers of material, at least one of which is a textile.

Clean the exterior of your washer and dryer. Wipe it with a cloth or sponge dipped in warm suds and squeezed.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Ferguson of Washington, announce the engagement of their daughter, Ella Mae, to Frank Eli Coburn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frankie Coburn of Rt. 5, Greenville. The wedding will take place April 21.

Household Hints

Use a silent butler during parties. This is a handy gadget that looks like a little dustpan with a lid. Into it go the contents of ashtrays for quick cleanup.

Plastics and fabrics made of silk, wool and synthetic fibers tend to accumulate static electricity, especially during cold, dry weather.

If your diamond is to "flash fire" you must keep it clean. Diamond-cleaning preparations are sold by jewelers. A synthetic detergent or soap and water, plus a little ammonia, also will make a diamond come clean. Use a little brush to get into the small places. Rinse. Dry with soft tissue.

Odors from kerosene, naphthalene flakes and camphor repel ants.

Peruvian Chef Prefers Kitchen To Courtroom

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

A handsome young Peruvian, who set out to be a lawyer but preferred the kitchen to the courtroom, has become a celebrity in the world of cookery.

Felipe Rojas-Lombardi, 25-year-old food columnist, lecturer, cookbook author and culinary teacher, has been hailed by such established luminaries as Julia Child and James Beard, with whom he is associated.

"He's the greatest natural cook for his age I've ever met," Beard recently said of his young colleague who already has two cookbooks under his belt.

Felipe became interested in cooking when he was hardly old enough to walk. He used to sit in the big family kitchen and watch with fascination as the chef prepared elaborate dinners for his father, who was the head of an import-export house and entertained on a lavish scale.

At the age of 5 Felipe notified his parents that he intended to become a chef in his own right. They brushed it aside as a childish fantasy but when he kept drumming at the theme, he was finally told he could work as an assistant to the family cook, provided it did not interfere with his schoolwork.

At the age of 8, Felipe was turning out a dazzling assortment of soups, salads, roasts and pastries. Four years later, the chef told his parents that Felipe was qualified to work as a professional cook.

Felipe bowed to paternal pressure, however, and embarked on a law career. But by the time he was in his third year at law school, his father died and Felipe felt he could return to his culinary endeavors.

When he was 21, Felipe traveled to New York and began apprenticeship under noted cooking experts. Soon he was lecturing in schools and made a discovery. Nutritional deficiency, he found, was not limited to poor children. It also applied to offspring of the affluent.

Felipe's interest in the young and their diets prompted him to turn out the "Everyone Can Cook Book" which was aimed at teen-agers and young adults. It contained more than 200 recipes, and served in effect as a simplified guide to gourmet cooking.

Several months ago Felipe came forth with his second book, called the "A to Z No-Cook Cookbook.." Which is precisely what it is.

Men Look At Faces, Not Clothing

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

In 1973 "you can walk into a party in your 1972 dress and it will be a whole new fashion look" predicts vivacious, blonde Estee Lauder, who is celebrating her 26th year in the beauty business.

A beautiful social entrance will reflect the conversational themes of the day — ecological and environmental. A glowing face, unteased hair and a serene naturalness are all part of it.

"But," she added, "men do not look at dresses, anyway; they look at faces."

"Fashion is changing faster in makeup than in clothes. We must think in a contemporary way of five-minute makeups that are applied in the morning to last until night. Women are too busy to pamper their faces all day.

"And there should be no need for creams for various hours," she continued. "How does a night cream know it is dark outside? Why must one use certain shampoos? Soap used on the hands should be good enough for the scalp. Cleansers, moisturizers and color are all the average woman might need in basic makeup for her whole life," she advised, although she has 157 items in her line.

Mrs. Lauder was explaining how it all comes together — laboratory, packaging, advertising, trips abroad that have turned her into a "makeup watcher." A certain look begins to develop and she tries to fill in the gaps — right now it is makeup to make the face glow, such as gold eye sheen for evening.

"We are not going to have a navy and white spring. Pastels were shown at the recent European fashion collections, and flashy makeup cannot be worn with pastels or white. It will be toned-down makeup all the way, the softest worn in a long time.

"Being attractive in any era, however, is knowing how to keep it subtle. It is a question of common sense — you wouldn't wear a flowered hat when you play tennis. Why would you wear a floral perfume when you engage in sports?"

Advertising will stress the outdoor look, she said showing a photograph of a "fresh air girl" in a turtleneck sweater and pants.

Wearing a red felt brimmed hat and red dress — "always wear a touch of green at the eyelids with red" — Mrs. Lauder explained her own unlined skin.

"Women worry about what to put on their skins, but then they diet which helps lose the elasticity of the skin. I believe one pat of butter (for Vitamin A) is necessary each day to keep the skin and body correct, and I always fortify myself by eating something at 11 o'clock and 3 o'clock and by resting during the day."

To look "in the pink" she rubs cream tint all over her face in the morning, but advises that women should experiment to find their own beauty regimen and get more mileage out of their beauty product investment. She illustrated showing how two lipsticks — copper and strawberry — can be used together to provide a third color.

"It gives women a sense of security to be admired so they should look pretty even when they go to the grocery store," she observed.

A fast pick-up mask may be useful, occasionally, because "it can do for the face what exercise does for the body," she explained.

Fifteen years ago she introduced a milk bath, and she had an iced-milk pack that is popular, but as for other organic cosmetics, she doesn't really see the need. All cosmetics should be good enough to eat. Lipsticks are colored with vegetable dyes — the government doesn't permit chemical dyes anyway, she explained.

And for those who are trying to feed their own skins — "A person might experiment by putting lard or chicken fat on her skin, but she should know what the skin will absorb," she commented. "Oil of avocado may be used, but the whole fruit is of no benefit to the face."

To help achieve restful and relaxed sleep of a beautifying nature there is now available something called the sleep-inducing tranquility herbal pillow. The manufacturer says it was developed after years of research on the calming and relaxing effects of the aroma of herbs. Research connected with development of this product ranged from the Bible where, in Ezekiel 47-12, it is written that "and the fruit thereof shall be for meat and the leaf thereof for medicine," to a study of English history. The latter pointed to the insomnia suffered by Charles II and alleviated by herbalists who placed a pillow of mixed herbs on his bed nightly.

Mrs. Joyce Jackson, March of Dimes co-chairman, discussed plans for the March of Dimes Coffee Day to be held Friday, Jan. 26. She announced that a poster party and planning meeting would be held Monday, Jan. 22, to prepare for the event.

Mrs. Etsil Gordon, president, announced that the wheel chair donated to the Pitt County Health Department by the club had been delivered and is now in use.

A report was given on plans for the annual Valentine dance to be held Feb. 10 at the Elks Lodge. Each year, the Jay-C-Ettes hold the dinner-dance in honor of their husbands.

Members discussed plans for the celebration of Jaycee Week and the Jay-C-Ette 20th anniversary. On Jan. 23, an open house for all club members and their husbands will be held at the home of Mrs. Adell Prescott, a past president.

Mrs. Gordon announced, that in honor of this occasion, the Jay-C-Ettes will donate funds to the City of Greenville for trees and shrubbery to be planted at the Town Common site.

Guests for the meeting were Mrs. Rufus Keel, Mrs. Gene Carson and Mrs. Wilton Rivenbark.

Clinic volunteers for January are Mrs. Ann Stroud and Mrs. Prescott.

Some Stolen Car Rings Found Giant Operation

By MARC ADAMS

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — "Now, here's a real cream puff," the auctioneer shouted.

The late model Chevrolet rolled out of the shadows into the glare of the floodlights on the clearinghouse floor.

Shirt-sleeved used car dealers began wrangling over the price. But the bidding stopped when a salesman opened the car door and a tiny chunk of metal clinked to the concrete floor.

The vehicle identification plate, which had been glued to the door post instead of welded, had come loose —a good indication that the car was hotter than the summer night.

FBI investigators traced the Chevy to a used car dealer in a nearby state. The dealer was "sifting" cars for a firm in a major eastern city that fronted for a salvage racket. Further investigation found 60 stolen autos in seven states.

From Louisville, Ky., to Lebanon in the Middle East, FBI records indicate that no less than 120 clandestine, sophisticated operations do an annual business of $250 million in interstate and international motor vehicle theft rings.

Steal Two a Minute

The Chevy auction case is documented in a special supplement to the FBI Law Enforcement Bulletin citing auto theft as the third most frequently committed felony in the United States and abroad.

Last March, J. Edgar Hoover estimated that an average of one million cars on the nation's highways are stolen. A theft is reported every 34 seconds, and auto theft has increased about 18 per cent a year since 1960.

"The additional expense of police, courts and correctional agencies involved in auto theft cases pushes the cost per year to more than $500 million," said Thomas A. Williams Sr., former president of the National Automobile Dealers Association. "And a substantial portion is borne by you and me through higher taxes and increased insurance rates."

Many theft rings use the auction block to get rid of "hot" cars with minimum effort. Some advertise in newspapers, and the "must sell" phrase in classified ads often attracts FBI interest.

Sold In Lebanon

Federal agents are turning up clues to at least two giant operations.

"One, we believe, is centered in Louisville, Ky., and involves about five states," an FBI spokesman said. "The FBI cited another ring headquartered in New York City and extending snake-like through the Middle East.

"About 195 cars are under investigation," the spokesman said, "all stolen from the street. One hundred of these cars have been shipped overseas, mostly to Lebanon.

"Our agents have gone there and identified 50 of them, all high priced cars, predominantly Cadillacs. They are actually in possession of the wealthier people there. In past years, sheiks and rulers have bought some of these things."

Car thefts range from street robberies to string men for big operators who case new cars right on the showroom floor.

Recover Most Quickly

"Then you've got the guy who walks into a dealership and takes a car for a test drive, only he doesn't stop until he gets to another city," the FBI spokesman said. "He'll leave it with a contact man, go into another dealer and do the same thing. By the time we've caught up with him, he's left cars all over the country."

The FBI man said "lax law is the biggest problem," and added, "It sure would be a good idea if these states would crack down on their junk dealers."

West Virginia was the first state to require junk dealers to turn over all titles and serial numbers of scrapped cars. A few states have followed suit.

Through the National Crime Information Center (NCIC) computer system, enforcement has been fast and effective. Eighty-five to 90 per cent of all stolen vehicles are recovered, half of them within the first 48 hours.

Teachers Steal Too

Federal officials said some ringleaders have eluded arrest for as long as 10 years. Underlings are caught—as were the 71 persons indicted in Brooklyn, N.Y., last year in a case involving a multimillion dollar ring. Those charged included four school teachers, a policeman, a fireman, a state employe, a garage owner, a tavern operator and two morticians.

More than 60 per cent of those arrested for auto theft each year are under 18. Agents said "middle men" pay youths in ghetto areas to deliver a car to a designated location, or to a nameless "contact."

And it is the customer who pays—not just the buyer of a "hot" car, but also the average man on the road who pays in taxes, spiraling insurance costs and in money being spent by the auto industry to develop theft proof cars.

Dr. Riddick Is Chairman

Dr. David Riddick, a local physician, has accepted the post of City Chairman for the 1973 Heart Fund for Greenville, Evelyn Perry, President of the Pitt County Heart Association announced today.

As chairman of Greenville's Heart Fund campaign, Dr. Riddick will direct the activities of volunteer workers who will take part in the drive during February, Heart Month, the Heart Association President said.

"During the first nine months of 1972, 318 persons died in Pitt County as a result of heart disease and many more were disabled by it. Support of Heart Association reserach is out best hope of reducing this grim toll," said the Heart Association President.

A native of Lynchburg, Va., Dr. Riddick is a graduate of Randolph Macon College and the University of Virginia Medical School. He specializes in internal medicine and is a member of the AMA, the Pitt County Medical Society and the American Hematology Society.

Engraving Plan Aimed At Thefts

BRUSH BUGGY — Valley Grove, W.Va., Fire Chief Carl Philabaum stands behind the novel firefighting creation made with local talent and money from a wrecked automobile.

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

"Stop Thief."

That could be the cry heard from a local resident who has just become the victim of a lawbreaker, but in this case it's the name given to a program designed to reduce the crime rate in Greenville.

Don Brady, president of the Greenville Jaycees, Friday presented Chief of Police Glenn Cannon with a dozen electric engraving pencils to be used by local resident to mark their possessions. Such marking has atwo-fold purpose; first to act as a deterrent to thieves and secondly to help police in recovery of stolen goods.

According to Chief Cannon, the engraving pencils can be checked out for a period of time from the department's Records and Identification office, and are to be returned to the Police Department when valuables have been marked.

An individual's social security number or driver's license number or other identifying marks should be engraved on all valuables, such as silver trays, tape players, televisions or car hubcaps.

The chief suggested a record of the valuables should be kept, along with the numbers that you engrave on them. "This will enable law enforcement agencies and you to recover your property and properly identify it," he emphasized.

"Report all thiefs to the police department and inform us that you are a participant in the 'Stop Thief' program and give us all the details as to the description and number that you engraved on them," he explained.

Brady, in making the presentation this morning, said it is the hope of the local Jaycees that the program will be "a big factor in cutting down on larcenies."

Both Brady and Chief Cannon said the program will continue "as long as people come in..." to check out the engravers and mark their property.

The electric pencil engravers can be plugged into any standard 110 volt outlet. When running, the engravers can be used just as a pencil, to write your name or a number on metal or plastic surfaces.

Chief Cannon noted that in many instances, valuable property has no serial number or otherwise identifying mark on it. And in other cases, he said, persons stealing items with serial numbers will remove them.

He explained that identifying numbers can be engraved on items in places where thieves might not look, thus permitting officers to properly identify the rightful owner of stolen property.

Have Homemade Rural Firetruck

VALLEY GROVE, W. Va. (AP) — Volunteer firemen in this Ohio County community have thrown cold water on the threat of rural fires, with construction of a "brush buggy" fire truck.

Thirty local men have transformed a wrecked 1966 Volkswagen into a pint-sized truck with a 55-gallon water tank capable of supplying 15 full minutes of firefighting power.

Designed to help douse brush fires in the rural areas of this Northern Panhandle area, the bright red buggy will be used in places where Fire Chief Carl Philabaum doesn't dare take the department's $30,000 full-sized fire truck.

Chief Philabaum says the buggy has maneuvered well during test runs in almost inaccessible areas of the county. He calls it a "mountain goat capable of handling just about every kind of ground."

The little machine has retained its sloped VW hood, frame and running gear,, but little else. The doors were removed, fenders shaved, roll bar mounted and the rear bodywork replaced with a water tank and tools.

It carries hand tools, a first-aid kit and two back packs, plus room to transport at least four firemen to the scene of hillside blazes.

A mobile radio unit is also mounted on the buggy so fire crews can keep in touch with those at the station or receive first-aid instructions from local physicians.

Philabaum sees the buggy as a valuable tool. Much of the cleared farmland that years ago was not susceptible to fire has now grown up into brushland and poses a fire threat in dry wather.

The miniature firefighting machine has stirred up some interest around the state. While many areas have equipped four-wheel-drive vehicles with water tanks and pumping units to tackle rugged terrain, the little red brush buggy may be the first miniaturized unit built with local talent and money.

School Lunch Menu

Lunchroom menus for the coming week at A.G. Cox and W. H. Robinson Schools have been announced as follows:

Monday — tuna salad, french fries, carrots and peas, french bread, chocolate pudding and topping, milk;

Tuesday — pizza, tossed salad, seasoned green beans, apple, milk;

Wednesday — beans and franks or chile con carne, cole slaw, carrot sticks, hot rolls, pineapple tidbits, milk;

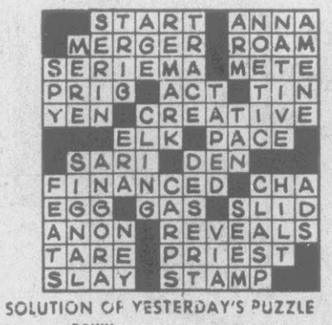

Thursday — ham pattie on bun, sliced tomato on lettuce, pickled beets, fruit crisp, milk;

Friday — fish stick, boiled potatoes, steamed cabbage hush puppies, iced cake, milk.

Exhibit Of Black Arts Of Africa Will Go On Tour

By FREDERICK M. WINSHIP
UPI Senior Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The exhibition of the black arts of Africa which has attracted throngs to New York's Museum of Modern Art for more than three months will soon go on tour to give Americans a better appreciation of what was once put down as primitive art.

The 250-item show, a dazzlement of textiles, apparel and body ornaments from 26 sub-Saharan nations, will end its run here Jan. 31 and will reopen at the Los Angeles County Museum March 20. It will be shown later in the year at the De Young Memorial Museum in San Francisco and the Cleveland Museum.

Some 350,000 persons are expected to have visited the exhibition here by the end of the month. Attendance figures at the museum have been 30 per cent higher since the African show opened than during the same period last year. This figure does not include the nearly 400 public school groups—more than 50 per cent black—that have come from a 250-mile radius to see the show and to take home thousands of posters and color slides.

"The show really had African spirit, real African vibrations," a spokesman for the Black Students Alliance of Newark, N.J., wrote in a thank you note to the museum. Unlike other attempts at black art shows in New York, this exhibition drew not one word of dissent or criticism from the black community.

Traveled to Tap Treasures

Mrs. Katherine White Reswick of Los Angeles traveled 75,000 miles in the United States, visiting 23 museums and universities and 57 private collectors to photograph 3,000 objects from which the exhibition items were selected. She described seeking out the "layers" of collecting sources—Peace Corps types, anthropologists, missionaries and museum personnel—as "a really great adventure."

"I think we hit almost all the top level stuff in the country and it's all new to the public," she said. "There have been so many African sculpture shows but the crafts have been neglected. The show's been a real sleeper, too beautiful to be believed and so stimulating."

Tribal art has traditionally been relegated to natural history museums in the United States. Only a few art museums have ever incorporated into their collections more than the wooden ceremonial sculptures and masks (which inspired such modern artists as Picasso, Modigliani and Matisse) and the superbly cast Benin bronzes.

Balances Design and Utility

The current show eschews sculpture, concentrating instead on costume and jewelry—the African tribesman's chief status symbol. Almost 80 per cent of the displays represent arts that are practiced in Africa today—weaving, tie-dyeing, textile painting, and working in gold, brass, copper, wood, ivory, rattan, straw and leather. Every item shows a highly sophisticated balance of design and utility.

Ramps walled by slowing tubular showcases and racks for the textiles lead the visitor through the exhibition to the haunting beat of native music. Comparisons are unavoidable. Feathered hats from Cameroon might have been the creation of pre-World War I Paris modistes. Some woven designs from Guinea are reminiscent of modernist Piet Mondrian's checkerboard canvasses. Felt appliques from Ghana appear to have come from the hand of master symbolist painter Joan Miro. Here, is a hint of Europe's influence; there, a touch of Islam.

Almost everything has a mardi gras flamboyance to the Western eye—gold mounted royal fly whisks, ostrich feather fans, 14-pound ankle bangles, a helmet of cowrie shells topped by a wild boar tusk, war smocks covered with amulets called gri gris, graceful ivory hairpins and combs to heighten the fantasy of elaborate coiffeurs.

"As a show that has the visual exploitation of the African body as a focus, it is a landmark event," said Dr. Roy Sieber, professor of art at Indiana University and guest director of the exhibition. "There has been nothing like it anywhere in the world."

Saving Traditions

Textiles are made in Africa chiefly from fragile beaten bark, tough palm fiber (raffia) and cotton, since there is little wool in Black Africa. Cotton fabric from the looms of non-professional housewives and professional male weavers is the highlight of the show, especially the examples of brocading and over-weave techniques that reflect 1,000 years of expertise.

"The textiles represent a living tradition in Africa," said Sieber, who has lived in Ghana and Nigeria. "So many traditions are beginning to disappear there that it is important for us to collect and record all we can. All these things have had their moment of glory and are on the way out. Governments are beginning to sponsor weaving schools to keep that art alive in the face of cheap imported cloth."

The exhibit, which reportedly cost $100,000, is sponsored by the National Endowment of the Arts and Standard Oil of New Jersey.

Voiced Concerns On Environment

Constructive comments and questions were aired Thursday night during the Redevelopment Commission's public hearing on the Southside Project, according to executive director Joe Laney.

Laney reported that the main item of public concern at the hearing related to environmental questions about the project area and the status of existing industrial plants along the railroad.

He noted that the question was raised as to whether industry should be removed for the railroad area and the land developed for residential use. He explained that the area has been designated for industrial usage and not residential adding that areas bordering railroads generally are not suitable for housing and residential use.

Concern over possible health hazards as caused by existing industry was indicated, the director pointed out, and the commission assured these attending that it would work with the Department of Natural and Economic Resources in making sure that the industries were within required standards.

Project planning should result in improvements in many areas involving environmental questions, it was noted.

He added that many of those attending were residents of the area and some announced that they were anxious to see the project begin. There were some 25 to 30 attending.

Give $200 Toward Athletics At PTI

Two hundred dollars has been donated by the Greenville Jaycees to Pitt Technical Institute to provide financial assistance to the PTI athletic program.

According to local Jaycee President, Don Brady, Pitt Tech has rendered valuable assistance to the Jaycees in providing meeting facilities and making other arrangements for the club's leadership training conferences.

In making the announcement, Brady said, "For PTI's contributions to our leadership efforts, we are very appreciative and hope that the $200 will aid their athletic endeavors.

Dr. William E. Fulford Jr., PTI President, commended the Jaycees for their efforts in encouraging the development of leadership and character in the young men of Greenville and for their efforts to make Greenville a better place in which to live.

"We are proud that Pitt Tech can play a small part in the Jaycees' pursuit of these goals, and pledge to them our continued support and assistance," stated Fulford.

"For the Jaycees' financial generosity, we are grateful. The donation will be used to help defray part of the costs of Pitt Tech's athletic program," Fulford added.

The check was presented to Dr. Fulford today by Jaycee member, Bob Turner, who is also coach of the Pitt Tech basketball team.

Dear Mr. Whitley:

Thank you for an excellent decorating job which your firm did in my home.

The team of Katharine Warren, Billy Davis, Bernice Allen and Garr Jones carried out its tasks courteously, with dispatch, and most efficiently. I am impressed with the advantage of utilizing the services of an organization, such as yours, which is capable of rendering a complete decorating function.

In this last regard, had I not had the guidance of Katharine Warren I would have been most hesitant to even begin; color and design to provide an end result I find baffling. In common with many home-owners, I know what I like but not how to achieve it. This fine lady deserves a special accolade.

You are to be congratulated on the calibre of these good people, a scarce commodity in this age. John Gardner tells us that:

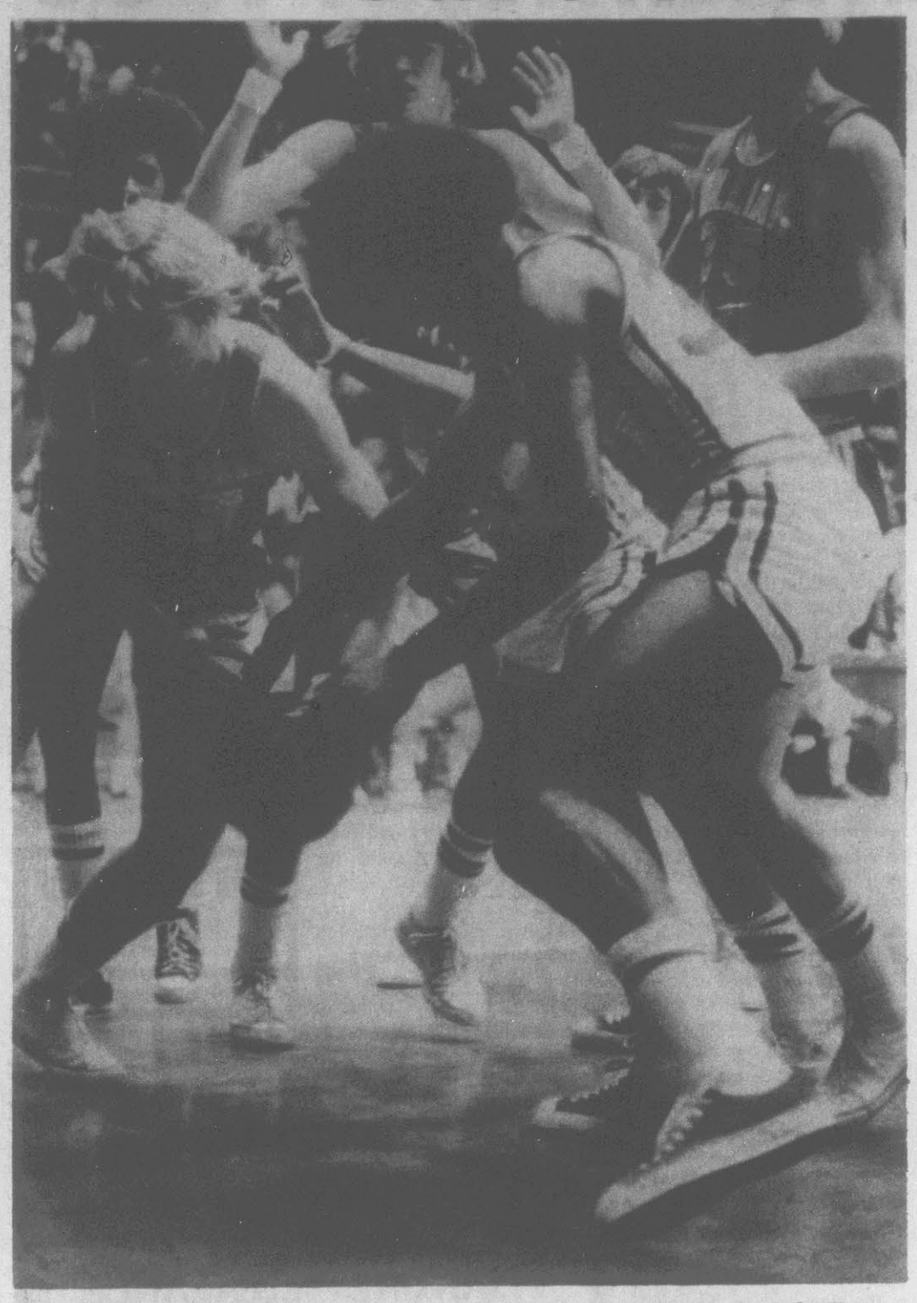

Unless our philosophers and plumbers are committed to excellence, neither our pipes nor our arguments will hold water.

Sincerely,
Martin Merson

Mr. Merson, we sincerely appreciate your thoughtfulness.

East Carolina Rallies To Down Indians

Roger Atkinson came into the game with eight minutes to play and popped in a point-a-minute from there on to spark East Carolina University to a tense 73-68 victory over William & Mary last night.

The win boosted the Pirates over the .500 mark overall, their seventh victory in 13 starts. They now stand 3-4 in the Southern Conference while the Indians fall off to 1-5 in the league and 4-10 overall.

The talented but young Indians burned the Pirates in the first half shooting a fine 64.5 per cent of their shots into the basket. That helped them to run out to as much as a 10 point lead in the half de spite being outrebounded 27-18. They also had two more turnovers in the half than did the Bucs 9-7.

East Carolina, meanwhile suffered through one of its worst halves of the year, getting only 34.1 per cent of their shots, but since they took 13 more than did the William & Mary youngsters, they were down only six at the half.

They fell by as much as seven in the second half, but fought back to finally tie it up and take the lead on a pair of free throws by Ernie Pope. It was still nip-and-tuck from there with the lead changing hands six times before Jerome Owens put the Bucs ahead for good, 64-63, with 5:08 left.

Atkinson, however, came up with some key rebounds in the waining minutes, along with his points, twice putting the Bucs into three-point margins, the last time with 29 seconds to go, wrapping it up.

He pulled down a total of eight rebounds during the same period of time.

The Indians were also cooled off by the improved defense of the Pirates, who several times in the closing minutes worked too deliberately in defense for the likes of the Indians, drawing applause from the crowd.

The Bucs shooting improved to 46.7 in the second half, while the Indians cooled off to 40.7. And by game's end, the Pirates held a 47-37 edge in rebounds.

Both benches complained throughout the game over the officiating but William & Mary Coach Ed Ashnault claimed after the game that his team had been robbed. "They blew three key plays and that was the ball game for us," he said. Twice in the opening minutes of the second half, when the Indians could have run out by 11, players were called with charging and baskets were declared no good. Ashnault said that both should have been good and claimed that the officials admitted later that they had blown the calls.

East Carolina actually won it on the line, hitting 15 of 19 while the Indians made only six of 14. And the Indians went into the game with the second best free throw shooting average in the county, 79.1 per cent.

During the early minutes of the game, the two teams swapped baskets after a free throw by Steve Seward put the Indians into the first lead, 1-0. Nicky White hit from underneath to put the Bucs ahead, and from there until Mark Ritter hit a free throw to give the Indians a 10-8 lead the lead swapped hands on each basket. East Carolina twice tied it, at 10-10 and 12-12 before Jeff Trammell hit on a drive with 12:57 left to give the Indians a 14-12 lead. From there, they upped it to four on a jumper by Tom Pfingst.

It held there until Matt Courage hit on a hook to raise it to 22-16 with 9:45 left. Seward later stole the ball and scored to up the margin to eight, 26-18. Then, after another swap of scores, Rod Musselman hit from the circle to make it 30-20 with 7:14 showing.

East Carolina came up with a pair of free throws by Earl Quash and a rebound by Dave Franklin to cut it back to six, and then Franklin hit again to trim it to four. After another Indian score, White got a three-point play to cut it to three, 32-29, but the Pirates could come no closer in the half.

The Indians pushed out by six on a baseline jumper with one second left by Ritter and held a 42-36 lead.

In the opening minutes of the second half, they upped it to as much as seven, at 46-39, but the Pirates hung on and wouldn't let them pull away any further. Finally, trailing, 55-48 they began to make their move.

A three-point play by Quash cut it to four, and Al Faber tapped in a rebound to cut it to 55-53 with 12:02 left.

Finally, with 9:53 left, Pope hit on two foul shots to put the Pirates into the lead, 58-57. William & Mary got it back, but the two continued to swap baskets until Owens hit a baseline jumper with 5:08 showing to make it 64-63. Atkinson followed with a jumper with 3:28 and that upped it to three.

The Indians cut it back to one twice, at 67-66, and again at 69-68, but Atkinson hit on a rebound with 29 seconds left to sew it up for the Pirates. White added a final basket at the horn to give the Bucs their five-point advantage.

White finsihed high with 20 points, while Franklin had 13 and Faber and Atkinson both had 10. For the Indians, Ritter led with 17, with Mike Arizin getting 11 and Pfingst hitting 10.

The Bucs next travel to Jacksonville, Fla., to meet the Dolphins on Monday.

JV's Whip Graduates

East Carolina University's junior varsity gained a 78-56 victory over a team of graduate students from the university last night.

The game was played as a preliminary to the ECU-William & Mary varsity action.

The game was tight much of the first half, but the Baby Bucs led most of the way. They took the lead for good on a fast break basket by Randy McCullen with 15:12 left at 9-8.

From there, Al Edwards added two free throws, and they were never caught again.

During the first half, the Baby Bucs moved out to as much as a nine point lead, at 30-21, but the Graduates cut it back to as little as five before they finally settled for a 36-28 junior varsity lead at halftime.

During the second half, the Pirates slowly continued to pull away, running the lead to 10 at 44-34. They continued on and finally reached 20 at 58-38. After that it was just a case of setting the margin as the two mostly swapped shots after that.

Neither team played well, however. The Baby Bucs hit only 40.5 per cent of their first half shots, but came roaring back with much better selection in the second half to can 61.8 per cent. They made 50.7 for the game. The graduates hit only 27.3 per cnet, taking advantage of 26 turnovers by the jv's to get in 17 extra shots.

McCullen finished high for the Baby Bucs with 20, while Chuck Mohn had 17, Edwards has 16 and Fred Stone had 11. Chris Dominick led the graduates with 20,w while John Marshbanks had 16.

Conley Upsets Eastern Wayne

HOLLYWOOD — Kervin Hawkins scored a lay-up with 27 seconds to go in overtime last night to give the Vikings of D.H. Conley a 59-57 win over Eastern Wayne. The loss puts the Warriors back into a tie for first place in the Eastern Carolina Conference with the Chargers of Ayden-Grifton.

The Warriors had tied it up with 10 seconds to go in regulation time and a last chance for the win by Conley was missed forcing the game into the extra period.

Conley jumped in front in the opening period, 16-7 and built it up in the second quarter as they bested the Warriors, 19-15. That gave the Vikings a 35-22 halftime lead.

Then in the second half, Eastern Wayne began to chisle away at the Conley advantage and cut it by four in the third quarter, 16-12 to trail by 47-38. They came on strong in the last period getting 19 to Conley's 10 to go into overtime.

The Warriors controlled the tap but could not get a shot off as Conley contained them with a 2-1-2 zone. Hawkins stole the ball with 27 seconds on the clock and scored on the fast break to put the Vikings in front, 59-57. Eastern Wayne brought it down and after a time out, tried for a shot but the Warriors were caught in the lane too long. A foul was also called on the play but Clennel Streeter missed a chance to put the Vikes out by four. That was all she wrote as Eastern Wayne missed a shot with :02 to go and they were beaten.

Conley's Buddy Phillips had 18 points to lead the Vikings, Mike Sutton had 15, and Larry Daniels had 10. Lynn Best had 27 for EW.

The Squaws took the second game of the night after the Eastern Wayne J.V.'s won 53-40. Eastern Wayne's girls took the lead in the first quarter and were never in trouble as they went on to win by the same score as did the J.V.'s, 53-40.

Crampton's 66 Sends Him Into Tucson Lead

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Australian veteran Bruce Crampton, seeking a rare second consecutive victory, blazed into the third-round lead of the $150,000 Dean Martin-Tucson Open Golf Tournament Saturday with a brilliant six-under-par 66.

The 37-year-old Crampton came from two strokes off the pace in the cold, cloudy, windy weather that swept the 7,200-yard Tucson National Golf Club course and posted a 54-hole total of 206—10 under par.

Rod Funseth, the only other winner on the pro tour this season, was in second place at 209, three strokes away going into the final round of the chase for a $30,000 first prize. Funseth had a third-round 70.

George Archer and Bobby Nichols, coleaders at the end of 36 holes and partners on a former national team championship duo, couldn't keep pace in the raw weather.

Archer dropped back to a tie for third with a 72. He was tied at 210 with little-known Richie Karl. Karl, whose greatest claim to fame is a pair of Alaska State Amateur championships, found the adverse weather to his liking as he forged a 67.

Nichols, a former PGA champion now a club pro at Akron, Ohio, slipped to a 73 and was tied at 211 with Marty Fleckman. Fleckman had a 69.

Two of the game's bigger names, British Open champion Lee Trevino and England's Tony Jacklin, had their difficulties, however.

Trevino bogeyed the first two holes he played and managed only a 73. At 215, he was a distant nine strokes away with 18 holes to play in the event he has won twice.

Jacklin, closing out a brief American swing, failed to fill in a score for the last hole he played and was disqualified for returning an incomplete scorecard. Jacklin actually shot a 75 but will not compete in Sunday's final round.

Crampton appeared on the verge of a fantastic round as he played the front nine in 31 strokes, then chipped in from 90 feet for an eagle three on the 11th hole.

He was less than spectacular, however, after the national television cameras picked him up on the 15th hole. He missed a six-foot birdie putt there, then bogeyed the 16th from a bunker and managed only par on the last two holes.

"It could have been a really great round," Crampton said. "But it's like John Brodie said after the 49ers-Cowboys game: 'Hindsight is always 20-20.'"

Crampton, winner of $100,000 or more each of the last five seasons, birdied the par-five second when he reached the green with a 3-wood second shot, punched an eight-iron to within eight feet for a birdie on the next hole and scored a deuce on the next with a 20-foot putt.

He got another two-putt birdie on the par-five sixth, scored from 15 feet on the next hole and went four under par on the par fives with his eagle chip on the 11th.

Foreman, Frazier Go At It Monday

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — They have christened it "The Sunshine Showdown," which is only one of the incongruities of the heavyweight title fight here Monday night between Joe Frazier and George Foreman.

The bout is scheduled to start at 10:15 p.m. EST and may not be over until well after 11 p.m. You don't see much sun at that time of night, not even in sunny Jamaica.

The site is a combination soccer field and cycling track. Sea gulls soar overhead. Horned goats placidly eat much grass outside the gates.

It could rain—this is tropical country. But the gladiators won't get wet. The ring in the center of the open National Stadium is covered by a native roof.

Nobody can recall when there's been an outdoor ring for a big fight with a roof over it.

But it's all in keeping with the tenor of the occasion.

The Jamaican government is footing the bill and probably will take a financial bath, but the government can write it off to the promotion of tourism.

"We probably will lose money over-all," says Lucien H. Chen, "but the fight will be worth $10 million to our country in tourism. How else could we get so many writers from so many countries?"

Chen is the nearest thing to the promoter of the fight. He is a modish, 38-year-old Chinaman born in the Kingston slums. He was a second grade dropout who worked as a waiter in a Hempstead, N.Y., restaurant, sold insurance and did other odd jobs before he hit it big and came back to his native land.

He owns 120 Kingston betting parlors, which do a multi-million dollar business, has race horses, is proprietor of one of the city's fanciest restaurants and is Kingston's top sports promoter.

State Shakes Clemson Loose

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP)—Unbeaten and second-ranked N.C. State struggled past Clemson 86-76 Saturday night to win its 13th straight basketball game.

The Wolfpack, trailing 56-53 with about 12 minutes left, went ahead to stay at 59-58 on a basket by 7-foot-4 Tommy Burleson, with about nine minutes to play.

But Clemson stayed close until the final two minutes when N.C. State added nine points to hand the Tigers their fifth loss in a row, four to nationally ranked teams.

Sophomore David Thompson scored 24 points and Burleson 15 to lead N.C. State, now leading the Atlantic Coast Conference at 4-0. Clemson is last at 0-4 and is 5-9 overall.

Rick Holdt scored 10 of his 14 points in the last half to give N.C. State a big lift.

Clemson's zone defense and 55 per cent shooting combined to hold N.C. State to a 41-39 lead at the intermission. Sophomore Van Gregg scored 20 of his 24 points in the first half for Clemson and 6-foot 10 Dave Angel, averaging six points, hit 25 for the Tigers, 14 in the first half.

Hunter Among Five To Be Honored By Group

CHARLOTTE — Four football players, all of whom played in the Shrine Bowl Game, and a basketball-tennis star have been selected the most outstanding high school athletes in the Carolinas.

The five, Ken Callicutt of Chester, S. C.; Al Hunter of Greenville, N. C.; John Lucas of Durham; Stanley Morgan of Easley; and Robert Scott of Clinton, S. C., will be honored at the Charlotte Athletic Club's annual awards banquet Monday, January 29. One of the five will receive the "Carolinas' High School Athlete of the Year" award, it was announced Friday by committee chairman, Larry Harding.

Additionally, the Charlotte Athletic Club will recognize the "Carolinas' Athlete of the Year" from the top men — selected by sportswriters and sportcasters in the two states: Billy Cunningham, Jim "Catfish" Hunter, Kevin Joyce, Gaylord Perry and Lanny Wadkins.

Woody Hayes, head football coach at Ohio State University, will be guest speaker.

The five high school athletes, three from South Carolina and two from North Carolina, have posted outstanding records:

— Callicutt, an outstanding running back who gained more than 1,000 yards his senior year, starred in the 1972 Shrine Bowl Game — leading the Sandlappers in both yards gained and number of times carried.

— Hunter, from J. H. Rose High, rushed for 1,211 yards, an average of 121 yards per game. In the Shrine Bowl, he led the team in yards gained and times carried. During the season, he averaged 121 yards rushing per game.

— Lucas, from Durham's Hillside High, was state tennis champion last spring, and this year is a starter on Coach Lefty Driesell's third-ranked Maryland University basketball team.

— Morgan, who led powerful Easley to the State 4-A title, rushed for more than 1,000 yards. In the Shrine Bowl Game, he played offense and defense, in addition to returning points and kickoffs.

— Scott, a rugged 190-pounder who anchored the Clinton, S. C. line all season, kicked a 30-yard field goal to win the Shrine Bowl Game and also played an outstanding game at defensive guard.

Other athletes who finished high in the voting are Jeff Compton of Burlington - Williams High, Johnny Stratton of Salisbury, Danny Rhino of Charlotte Olympic, Greg Corpening of Newton-Conover and Tim Robinson of Hickory.

Carolina Comes Back To Get Win

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — John O'Donnell and Bobby Jones led the way as fourth-ranked North Carolina came from behind in the second half and went on to defeat Duke 82-71 Saturday in an Atlantic Coast Conference game.

A crowd of 8,800 and a regional television audience saw the Tar Heels score their ninth victory in a row and run their overall record to 15-1. They are 3-0 in the conference. Duke is 7-8 overall and 1-4 in the ACC.

North Carolina regained the lead 43-42 in the second half on a basket by Jones and stayed out front. O'Donnell scored 20 points, the highest of his career. Jones got 14 points and 21 rebounds.

Redding paced Duke with 27 points. The Blue Devils lead the nation in free throws with 79.5 per cent.

Csonka will receive his trophy today from the Miami-based Bryna Cosmetic Co.

NCNB Honoring ECU Gridders

North Carolina National Bank will entertain the East Carolina University Football team Monday night at the Candlewick Inn.

The salute to the 1972 Southern Conference champions is being directed by N.C.N.B. president Curtis Hendrix.

A special guest of the evening will be Washington Redskins linebacker Jack Pardee, who recently announced his retirement following the Super Bowl.

Members of the ECU football team will be feted at the banquet, which is open to special guests by invitation only. No public tickets will be issued.

The affair will get underway at 6 p.m. with a cocktail hour for the special guests, with supper following for them and the team.

The Pirates rolled to a 9-2 season this year and went through the Southern Conference undefeated after being picked for a middle-of-the-pack finish prior to the season. Even in their final league game, against William & Mary, the Bucs were underdgos, but came through with fine first half to wrap up the victor and preserve their conference winning streak.

Following the season, Coach Sonny Randle was named Southern Conference Coach of the Year, and Carlester Crumpler, who broke all league rushing and scoring records, was named Player of the Year.

Goldsboro Holds Off Rampants, 77-65

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Rose High School battled Goldsboro nearly to the wire Friday night before finally bowing, 77-65, in a Division II battle.

The Rampants, although behind over three-quarters of the game, remained within striking distance most of the evening. They were never able to quite put it all together to get back into the lead.

Goldsboro, winning its second league game in four starts, used its quicker speed and rebounding power, coupled with a tough zone defense, to outfox the Rampants. Seldom when they were needed, did Rose get a second shot. And Goldsboro was able to work the ball in for the high percentage shots, and if they missed to get the rebounds to put back up.

The game was very close, however, until the Cougars finally broke it open in the final period, running out to as much as a 13-point lead with 3:31 to go. They had only led by six at the start of the period and Rose had pulled to within four just before that.

The first period was a basket-swapping affair until just before the end of the frame when Goldsboro finally grabbed the lead for good.

Phil Ragazzo hit the first basket of the evening, giving Rose the lead, but Michael Edwards tied it up for Goldsboro. For the next few minutes the two teams swapped points until Randy Tilley hit a jumper to give the Cougars their first lead at 8-6.

Rose tied it up again and regained the lead on baskets by Robert Brinkley and Dennis Taylor, but they couldn't pull away from the quick Goldsboro five.

Mike Evans tiedd it up and then Rozzell Barnes stole the ball and put them into a 14-12 lead. Rose tied it twice more at 14-all and 16-16 before finally slipping out of it.

Barnes hit a drive to put Goldsboro out, 18-16 with about a minute left in the period, and was fouled on the play. He missed the free throw, but Edwards was there to tap it back in for a four-point play. Barnes followed seconds later with a couple of free throws, and ran the Goldsboro lead to six, 22-16. Rose got back to within four on a jumper by Matthew Ward just before the quarter ended.

In the third period, Goldsboro went back out, this time by eight before Rose could hit again. Barnes canned a rebound and Evans hit from the corner. Rose finally scored, and after a Goldsboro free throw, got a basket from Jackie Savage to trim the lead to five, 27-22.

But a three-point play by Evans with 5:36 left ran the margin back out to eight, and he hit a jumper at the 4:15 mark to up it to 10, 32-22.

Rose came back to cut it to six on a jumper by Harvey Tucker and two free throws by Savage, but Goldsboro pushed out again, finally moving out by 11, 40-29 on a steal by Barnes. The Rampants came back, however, getting baskets by Al Hunter and Savage, along with two free throws to cut it to 40-35. A basket and a free throw by Stanley Melvin ran it back to eight, 43-35, at halftime, however.

In the third period, Rose wasn't able to get anything going until late. They cut it back to six at the start by two baskets by Bruce McCoy and Edwards ran it back to 10, 47-37, and it stayed right around there until Taylor hit with 2:20 left. Savage then drove in for another basket 20 seconds later and Hunter got a basket after 10 more seconds after Rose stole the inbounds play. That cut the lead to 55-51 and gave hope to the Rampant fans.

But it was just not to be. Edwards and Barnes both came up with baskets to run it back to eight, and a shot by Hunter cut it to 59-53 at the end of the period.

In the final frame, Goldsboro slowly pulled away as the Rampants finally ran out of steam. A fast break by Evans ran it back to 10 and Edwards followed with a shot from underneath to make it 69-57 with 4:57 left. That put the game away.

They finally ran it to 13, at 72-59 on a free throw by Weldon Artis with 3:31 to go, and again held that with 1:29 showing. Rose cut it back to as little as nine with 42 seconds to go, but three straight free throws by Barnes ran it out to the final margin.

Evans led the Goldsboro scoring with 21 points, while Barnes had 20 and Edwards had 18. For the Rampants, Ragazzo and Hunter each had 14, while Savage added 12 and Taylor had 10.

In the junior varsity game, Rose held off Goldsboro to take a 56-48 victory.

Rose slipped out into a 10-8 lead in the first period after leading 6-0. In the second frame, they were able to extend that, dumping in 14 to eight for Goldsboro. That made it 24-16 at the half.

Goldsboro tried to come back in the third period, but wasn't able to keep it going and the Cubs added two more points to their margin, 12-10 and led 36-26 as the final quarter got underway. Goldsboro began to move harder in the final period, but just weren't able to sustain it, as they outhit the Rampants, 22-20, but fell short of catching up.

William Taylor and Tyrone Taft each had 16 to lead the Cubs, while Lindberg Morris had 10. For Goldsboro, Ben Uzzell had 20, while Tommy Hall had 10.

Rose travels to Wilson on Wednesday in its next outing.

Eastern Wayne took the third period by a slim 11-10 margin for a 39-38 lead but Farmville Central turned the same score around in the last quarter of regulation play to tie it up at 49 apiece.

Eastern Wayne then doubled the Jaguar points in the overtime period, 8-4 to take the win.

It did little to affect the score as Eastern Wayne came back with eight in the last period as Farmville Central got five.

Pat Smith led all the scorers with 20 points. Gwen Scott had 10. For Farmville Central Linda Anderson scored 13.

The Farmville Central boys are now 6-6 while the girls drop off to 1-9.

Jamesville Sweeps Two From Oak City Cagers

OAK CITY — Jamesville swiped three games from the Oak City Trojans last night on their home court. The boys won, 57-54, the J.V.'s took a 39-21 victory and the girls won in overtime, 30-29.

In the girls' game, Jamesville took a 6-4 lead in the first quarter and padded it with five points as they took the second period, 10-5.

Both teams got six points in the third quarter but Oak City rallied to tie it up with 12 points to Jamesville's five in the last regular quarter for a 27-27 score. Jamesville took the win on a free throw after both teams had gotten a bucket apiece.

Donna Williams led the Jamesville girls with 19 points and Sylvia Jones paced Oak City with 17.

The first half of the boys' game was nip-and-tuck through the first half but Jamesville opened it up in the third quarter only to see the Trojans rally in the fourth. The Bullets managed to hang on for the win.

Jamesville took a two-point, 14-12 edge in the opening frame. Oak City took the second quarter, however, by the same score tieing it at the half, 26-26.

Then in the third quarter, Jamesville streaked out to a 45-34 lead as they dumped in 19 points. The Trojans fought back and bested the Bullets 20-12 in the last period but the rally fell three points short as Jamesville won it, 57-54.

Robert James was the high scorer for Jamesville with 15, Tommy Mizell had 14, Modlin 11, and Alvin Grimes added 10. For Oak City, Billy Ross dumped in 16 and Shelton James scored 10.

Williamston In 47-37 Victory

WILLIAMSTON — Williamston High School took a pair of games from Northampton High School last night. The Tigers took the girls game, 40-29, and won the boys affair, 47-37.

In the girls' game, Williamston broke out into a 13-9 lead in the first period and was never caught again. They outscored Northampton, 16-5, in the second quarter and boosted their lead to 29-14 at halftime.

The action slowed in the third period, but Williamston still maintained a 6-4 scoring edge. That increased the lead to 35-18. Northampton managed to outhit the Tigerettes, 11-5, in the final period, but was too far back for it to make any difference.

Sissy Taylor led Williamston with 16 points, while Debbie Allen was high for Northampton with 10.

The Tigers found themselves behind by a point after a low scoring first quarter, 8-7, vut they pulled ahead by a similar margin in the second period. They outhit their foes, 12-10, to gain a 19-18 halftime advantage.

Then, in the second half, Williamston continued to find the going tough. They outhit Northampton, 11-9, in the third period to hold just a 30-27 lead as the last quarter opened. But the Tigers outhit them 17-10 going down the stretch to gain the victory.

Dwight Ange led the Williamston scoring with 14 points, while Joe Savage had 10. Melvin Forrest led the Northampton scoring with 13.

BETHEL — North Pitt's David Brown sank a 20-foot jump shot with 12 seconds to go to give the Panthers an apparent 48-47 victory over Southern Wayne Friday night but Saint Erthel Loftin stole the ball and scored on a fast break with three seconds left giving the Saints the win instead, 49-48.

The Pant-HERS won of course. They knocked off the Lady Saints very easily, 55-23.

The Southern J.V.'s won also as they had a close game that was decided on Brad Hook's bucket on a fast break with :53 to go. He added a three-point play with less than ten left giving his team a 29-24 decision.

The Big Orange got its first 24 points from the floor before going to the free throw line. After seeing Jaxie Bryan get the first Southern Wayne basket, Joy James came back with a pair of buckets from the lane to put the Pant-HERS in command, 4-2 with 6:25 on the first period clock.

Wanda Whichard followed with her first points with a jumper from the corner and Minnie Hollis got two more on a base-line drive to make it 8-2.

North Pitt added six to its total as James scored from the lane and Hollis scored twice from the same place while the Lady Saints added a bucket by Bryan for a 14-4 first quarter score.

North Pitt stretched out their lead to 19 with a 13-4 second period. At intermission it was 27-8.

The Big Orange continued to purr along in the third period with 16 points to Southern Wayne's six for an even bigger gap of 43-14.

North Pitt finished out the scoring with 12 points in the final frame. The Lady Saints added nine as they took their second loss of the year. The first had been to the Pant-HERS also.

Hollis had her second straight 16 point night while Whichard slipped in 11.

In the boys' game, neither team had control of the game at any point in the proceedings. The lead changed hands seven times in the second period, five in the third, and seven times in the last.

James Murray put up the first Saint points but they were quickly matched by Brown's swish from the stripe. Leonard Pearsall put the Saints back in front hitting from outside, 4-2, and Murray struck again for a four point margin. Herbert Wright scored for North Pitt cutting it to 6-4. Loftin blasted one in from outside only to see it erased by Brown's bucket.

The teams continued to swap points as the quarter ran out with Southern holding a slim 13-12 edge.

Ken Mack inched the Saints back out to three, 15-12. However, Billy Perkins lofted one through from 20 feet and Brown stole the ball and laid it in giving the Panthers their first lead of the game, 16-15 with 7:03 in the half. Pearsall was fouled moments later by Perkins as Pearsall went up for a shot. He made both free throws to lift the Saints back into the lead, 17-15 with 5:55 left. Phillip Brown got the advantage back for North Pitt with a pair of free shots of his own.

Again the lead went back to Southern Wayne as Pearsall canned two charity shots for a 19-18 score. Loftin scored giving the Saints a three point margin but Ben Johnson hit for the Panthers bringing the score down to a one-point gap. Murray burned a basket through from outside just to see North Pitt get two quick tallies on baskets by David Brown and Phillip Brown that put the Panthers back in front, 24-23, with :43 showing.

Pearsall scored from the lane with 25 seconds left in the half. That put Southern Wayne back in front, 25-24. Joe Wright picked the ball off and passed to David Brown who put it in with 15 seconds left giving the Panthers the lead again. Brown scored again, with :02 to go for a three-point half time lead, 28-25.

After a slow start in the third quarter, David Brown finally scored to give the Panthers a five point lead, 30-25. But Southern Wayne rallied and put in six straight points to slip in front, 31-30. Phillip Brown laced a score through from underneath to put North Pitt back in front and that started the lead flopping back and forth again. At the end of the frame, however, it was the Saints that had the advantage, 36-34.

Southern Wayne added another two points on Mack's bucket. David Brown countered with two baskets to put the Panthers in a 38-38 tie. Southern got it back at 40-38 but North Pitt tied it again at 40-all. They got the lead on a jumper by Johnson at the stripe only to have the Saints tie it again, 42-42.

The Panthers got it back 44-42 but Southern Wayne hung on and reknotted the score at 44-44. The lead went back to North Pitt on David Brown's jump shot from outside. That came with 1:56 to play. A few seconds later, Perkins drew his fourth foul and

Conley Rips Greene Central

SNOW HILL — Greene Central's girls snapped their losing streak Saturday night with a 19-14 victory over surprised Conley. The Conley boys, however, gained revenge behind the play of Larry Daniels, gaining a 59-39 decision.

The Ewes jumped off to an 8-2 lead in the first period of play, and then outscored the Valkyries, 9-4, in the second quarter. That left the Greene Central lassies in front 17-6 at the half.

Conley just couldn't get going in the third period, hitting two points, but Greene Central didn't score at all. That left it at 17-8 as the final frame got going. Conley had its best performance of the evening in that period, but still got only six to two for the Ewes, who then wrapped up their first victory of the year.

Robin McLawhorn led the Ewes with 11 points.

In the boys' game, Greene Central edged into a 6-4 lead in a slow first period, and then came back to outscore Conley, 15-12 in the second quarter. That left the Rams in the lead, 21-16, at the break.

But in the second half, Daniels began to hit. With only nine points in the first half, he went to the boards with a vengance, pulling down 24 rebounds, a Conley record, and dumping in 17 more points. His play sparked an 18-8 advantage for Conley during the third period and pushed them into a 34-29 lead. He led the Vikings to a 19-10 margin in the final period, giving the Vikes the victory.

He finished with 28 points, while Kervin Hawkins had 10. Ervin Spivey had 13 to lead the Rams.

Greene Central travels to North Pitt on Monday, while Conley plays host to C.B. Aycock on Tuesday.

Marsh World

Ducks Unlimited (Canada)

WATER SUPPLY — Surplus water from some Ducks Unlimited projects is utilized to keep downstream creek channels alive. By use of lengths of plastic or metal pipes, water is siphoned over the earth-fill dam and into the creek channel which may meander for a mile or more. Such creeks, which normally dry up by mid-summer continue to provide valuable water for nesting habitat and other uses.

Wildlife Afield: Jacks And Jerks

By JIM DEAN

The whole world, or at least that part of it I could see, was covered with snow and the temperature at mid-morning was hovering around 16 degrees. Naturally, it seemed like a good time to go fishing.

"I believe we can catch a few jacks this afternoon even though the weather is not ideal," I told Joel Arrington over the phone. He agreed that the weather was not ideal, but said he'd go anyway.

It is common knowledge that jacks (or chain pickerel as they are more accurately called) will hit plugs even during the coldest weather. Of course, it helps if you can get your plug in the water. It is also true—as any football coach will point out—that hindsight is 20-20. Both of those factors were overlooked as we made arrangements to spend the afternoon on a millpond where it is rumored that jack fishing is often good.

After driving 20 miles over frozen roads, we arrived at the pond to find that most of it was covered with ice.

"That ice looks thin," I remarked. "I'll bet our plugs will go right through it."

Puffing great clouds of steam, we loaded the boat and headed up a narrow ice-free channel in the middle of the lake. Joel sailed a cast toward the ice to test its thickness. The plug bounced and he skittered it back to the boat.

"Maybe you could heat the plug with your lighter so that it would sizzle through the layer, then your could fish it back under the ice," I suggested.

"Tell you what, you try that," said Joel. "I think I'll get a cup of coffee out of the thermos."

While Joel drank his coffee, I made a couple of tentative casts (with an unheated lure) to see if the ice was uniformly thick. It was. My plug merely bounced and slid acrossthe ice when I retrieved it.

"Has anyone ever documented a case where a hungry jack broke through the ice to get a plug?" I asked. Joel's reply was a disgusted grunt.

We finally fished about a 100 yards off shore which was largely free of ice. In the 60-acre pond, it was the only stretch of unfrozen shoreline. Even so, ice formed in our guides between each cast. We had no strikes, although one small 12-inch jack followed Joel's plug, probably only to see what kind of jerks would be out on a day like this.

After spending a total of perhaps 45 minutes on the lake, we headed for the barn.

Winter chain pickerel fishing is not always so frustrating. During the warmer spells, fishermen frequently make good catches of these fish, usully on minnows. Several acquaintances of mine regularly combine winter jack and crappie fishing, and they catch some amazing strings of fish. Chain pickerel will also take plugs and spinners in the winter. Crappie will even take small jigs, and one or two occsions, I have caught them on flied while using a fast-sinking fly line. Fly fishing in the winter, however, is not much fun unless you enjoy cracking ice off your knuckles.

A big largemouth bass is also a possiblity when jack or crappie fishing in the winter. Some of the biggest lunkers I've ever seen were taken on minnows and less frequently on plugs during the dead of winter.

When the weather warms back up, I plan to give it another whirl, but I may have trouble getting Joel to go with me. On the way back to town, I remarked that is was one of the shortest fishing trips I'd ever taken.

"That's funny," he said between chattering teeth. "I thought it was one of my longest."

Canoes Grow In Popularity

By JACK WOLISTON

NEW YORK (UPI) — There is no accurate count, but there are probably more than a half million canoes gliding around the nation's waters and this facet of recreational boating is growing steadily.

So much so that several states have established canoe trails for these devotees to the sport of paddling.

Prominent among them are Florida and Texas.

The former has recently published a highly informative 40-page booklet, "Florida Canoe Trail Guide," which sketches the attractions of the 16 river canoe trails now in the state's Canoe Trail System. Difficulties to be encountered as well as the pleasures are described.

From Texas comes "Texas Rivers and Rapids," an all-encompassing, 64-page magazine that describes eight rivers in detail. It also includes checklist tips on canoe clothing, first aid equipment, utility items and personal articles to consider packing. There's even an article on canoe cooking, and 13 safety "Rules of the River."

Among the recommended trips in the Florida booklet is the 66 ½-mile journey on the Peace River from just east of Fort Meade downstream to a point near Arcadia.

"The Peace is an ideal river for canoeing," the booklet states. "Dense forest borders the waterway along most of the trail with the only mark of civilization being an occasional bridge, power lines and some pasture land. Rarely, a house is visible from the river.

"The floodplain abounds in wildlife of all kinds from field mice to wild hogs."

Black Creek Trail

For those seeking more excitement there is the Black Creek trail which begins near Green Cove Springs and winds through 17 miles of river swampland and sand hills to its terminus at the St. Johns River.

"The trail offers many challenges to the canoeist," the booklet says. "Near the beginning a set of small rapids will be encountered, as well as numerous logs and submerged stumps that will require negotiating.

"The scenic beauty of the stream is complemented by the presence of alligators and numerous wading birds. Fishing is good all along the way for bass and bream."

Among the interesting trips described in "Texas Rivers and Rapids" is one along the Guadalupe, although the magazine warns: "Anyone running the Guadalupe should have previous canoeing experience. If the water is less than a foot under Specht's Crossing Bridge, the rapids downstream are going to be mean and fast."

Another is a 17-mile stretch of the Colorado from Bend to Post Oak Creek "where towering bluffs, scenic canyons, and beautiful water make this trip enjoyable for any canoeist."

Or try the 39-mile paddle along the Brazos River from Highway 16 through craggy cliffs and boulders to Highway 180.

A copy of "Florida Canoe Trail Guide" may be obtained free of charge by writing: State of Florida, Department of Natural Resources, Division of Recreation and Parks, Larson Building, Tallahassee, Fla. 32304.

"Texas Rivers and Rapids" is available for $3 by addressing the magazine at Box 673, Humble, Texas, 77338.

Panthers . . .

Murray went to the line. He made one of two shots bringing his team up to being a point down, 46-45. He vindicated himself for missing the tieing free throw by stealing the ball and going in for the score to put the Saints on top, 47-46, with 47 seconds to play.

The Panthers brought the ball downcourt and gave it to David Brown who canned a long jumper giving the Panters what they thought would win it. With :27 they led, 48-47. But it was not to be so. North Pitt stole the ball as the Saints brought it down and called a timeout. When play resumed, the Panthers had just gotten the ball past midcourt when Loftin stuck out a hand and knocked the ball away from Johnson. Loftin picked it up and went the rest of the way scoring on a straight in lay-up as the horn sounded ending the game.

Although the Panthers played one of their better games, they were beaten on the steal.

Which Color TV has the best picture?

People from all over America looked at the six leading big-screen color TV's

They voted ZENITH® SUPER CHROMACOLOR the best picture by more than 2 to 1!

How the test was made

The entire test was conducted by a leading independent research organization, Opinion Research Corporation, of Princeton, New Jersey.

Opinion Research purchased six new color television sets directly from retail stores. All sets were 25-inch (diagonal measurement) solid-state, full-featured models representing the six largest-selling brands in the United States.

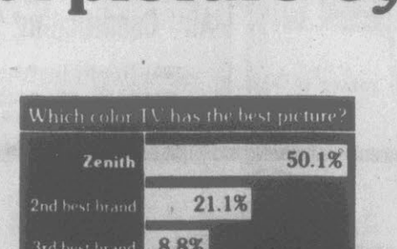

The test was set up in the lobby of America's largest hotel, the Conrad Hilton in Chicago, to reach people from all over the country.

All six sets were masked so they couldn't be identified. Only the pictures were visible. Each picture had a number above it. Viewers were asked to vote, by number, for the best picture. At the end of each day of voting, the sets were rotated to new positions. Different independent TV servicemen, selected by Opinion Research, were brought in each day to readjust the sets after they were rotated. These servicemen, who monitored the performance of all sets continually, had authority to replace components or make any alteration necessary to maintain all sets at peak performance.

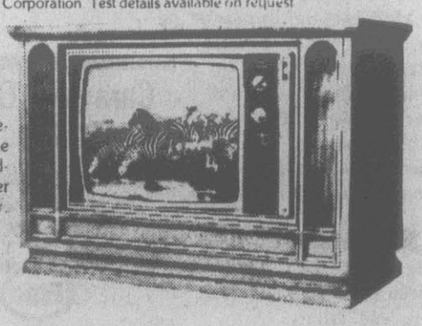

By the end of the test, 2,707 people had voted. The ballots were compiled and tabulated by Opinion Research.

As shown in the table at left, Zenith was picked by more than 2 to 1 over the next best brand.

See the difference for yourself. Stop in today!

St. Malo, A Place Of Beauty And Simplicity

Text and Photographs by Jerry Raynor

. . . .weathered mounds of rocks surround a beach front hotel

. . . .July 14, Bastille Day, is a time for parades.

Every country has places that manage to escape the full stampede of tourism despite possessing the essential ingredients that usually lures throngs of sightseers.

The harbor town of St. Malo in the French province of Brittany, with its cluster of small villages nearby — Parame, Rotheneuf and Cancale, is the kind of town that offers a full share of scenic beauty and historic interest without the frustration of people clutter encountered in better known tourist meccas.

Facing both the English Channel and Rance River , St. Malo for centuries has been the home of sailors and fishermen. One native son, Jacques Cartier, born here the year before Columbus set forth for his voyage of discovery, is well known in history books. Cartier, in 1534 and again in 1535, explored the St. Lawrence River, opening Canada to the French.

Today, local seafarers in trawlers come and go without fanfare to the fishing grounds of Greenland and Newfoundland.

Surrounded by massive ramparts cut from huge granite blocks, the harbor town of about 20,000 population is now fully restored after suffering massive destruction in 1944 during World War II.

Along the beach at Rotheneuf, where the rock is more yielding than St. Malo's granite, an old priest has left an unusual legacy . . . primitive figures, some solemn, some comic. carved in the softer rock.

From St. Malo to Cancale, the coastline alternates between wide stretches of sand and weathered mounds of ragged rocks. Behind the rocks, small hills are covered with wild flowers in spring and summer, and tall gold grasses in autumn and winter.

A short distance inland behind the coastal strip, springtime brings the fragrance of apple blossoms. Apples and potatoes, along with fish, form the staple products of this area.

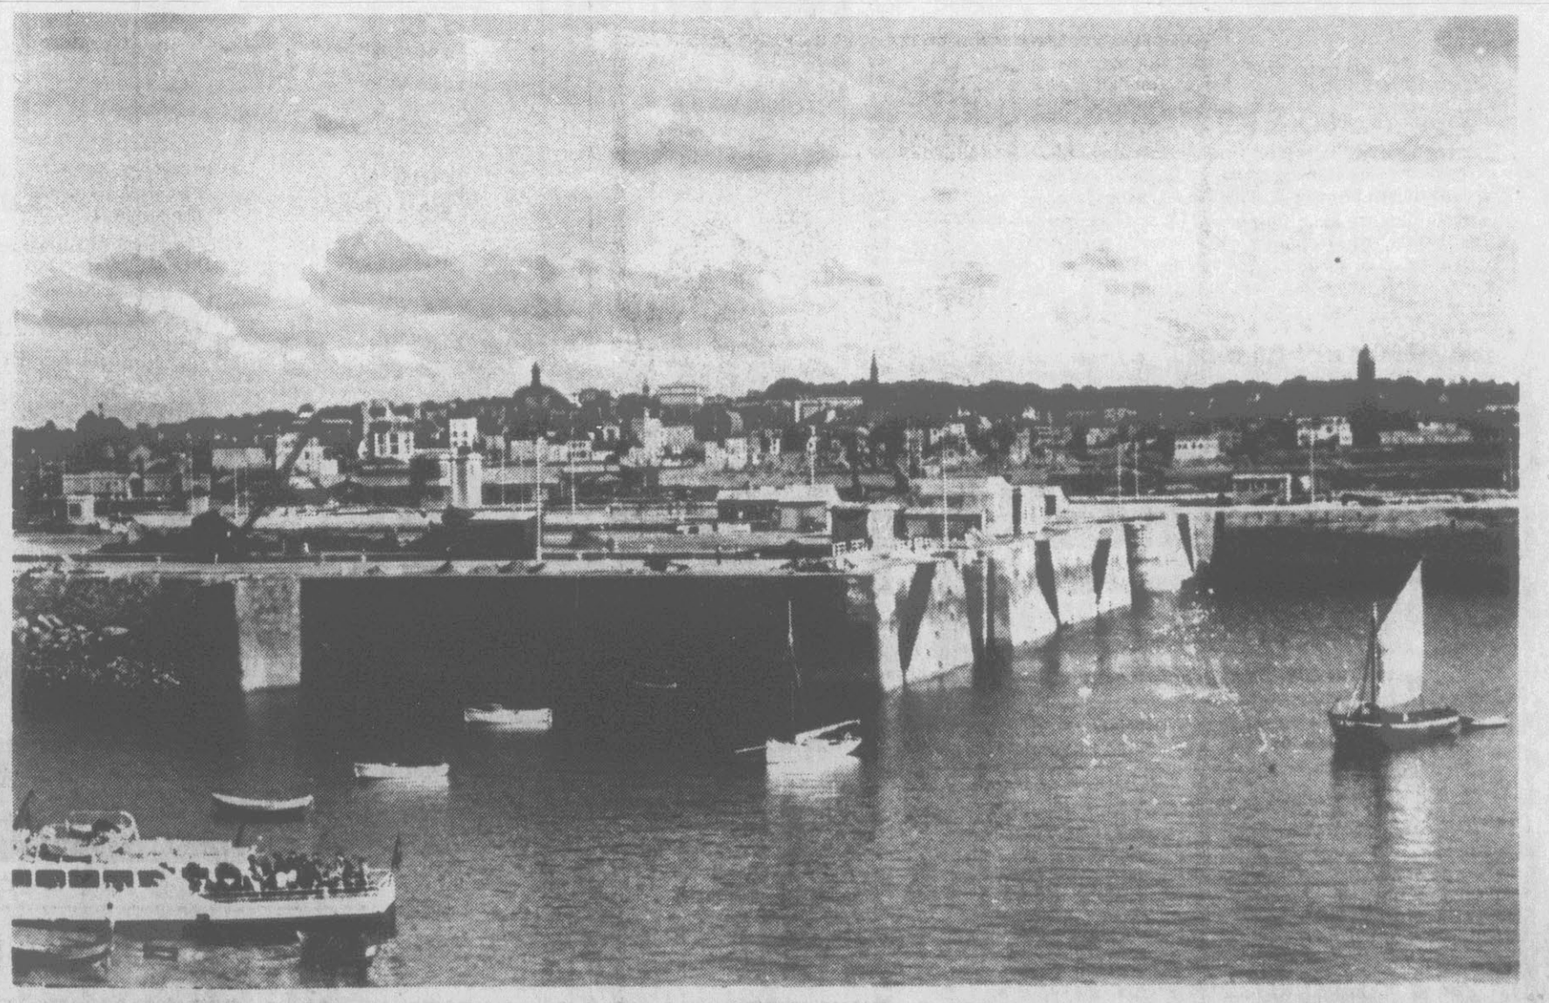

On almost any day, whatever the season, the area is blessed with marvelous cloudscapes of gray and pastel tinted clounds streaming by overhead.

St. Malo and its neighboring villages have nothing to match the splendor of nearby Mont St. Michele, a few miles to the east in Normandy. Neither will the traveler encounter the glitter of the jet set watering spots, nor find here the excitement of Paris

For those, however, who seek the simple beauty of sand, rock, sea and sky in an atmosphere of simplicity, St. Malo offers a gentle haven of refuge to the traveler, native or foreign.

CARROLL RIGHTER'S horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early morning brings a considerable amount of confusion so be sure to remain silent and not get involved in any controversy. Be careful what you eat. However, the rest of the day and evening are fine for social matters, buying or wearing new clothing and for letting your attachment see you are sold on the alliance.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) If you take better care of your health and appearance, you can wow mate in p.m. Get out together to some charming place and have true understanding to make the future much happier. Drive with care.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A family matter can be puzzling in a.m., but by evening all clears up and you can have a delightful time at your home with kin. Do some light entertaining. Repairs should be taken care of now.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make sure you get that bill paid so you do not ruin your credit, then keep appointments on time for whatever is important. Attend those services that are inspiring.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A good day to investigate ways to increase present income so you will have an abundance for your needs. Get repairs made around your home. Not a good day for social side of life.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Analyze your aims well and then go after those that are right and practical for you. The social side of life is very good since you can make headway via such avenues of expression. Drive with utmost care.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Take care of those dull Sunday routines early and then find right methods for adding charm and attractiveness to your home. Meet with good friends quietly for best results. Plan the future more wisely.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Good friends can easily be persuaded to help you with monetary and personal affairs with which you are having some trouble. Listen to what a close chum has to advise about a social matter that interests you. Early to bed tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Handle outside affairs conscientiously and forget that wayward urge that is pecking away at you. Make out that check that will get you into the good graces of one important in your life. Stop procrastinating.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Forget that petty worry and look into some new project that could bring in the bacon nicely. Study your advertisements well. Plan a trip soon that will bring you the advancement, expansion you desire. Count your blessings.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You have fine intuitive perception today and should use it to real advantage early in the day. Improve your relations with others thereby, also. You are able to clear up some confusion by p.m.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan just how to improve your relations with partners in the privacy of your study and forget outside involvements at this time that could get you into trouble. Talk over basic matters with mate. Forget that troublemaker.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those charming young people who will see the world through rose-colored glasses, which is fine from the imaginative point of view, but teach early to be more realistic and keep feet firmly on the ground, otherwise your youngster could get hurt because of lack of practicality. A good diet, sports, public school training are fine here, and then there can be much success in highly detailed work. Religion important.

This Ranch Geared For Comfort

By GERRY BISHOP

If one-story living fits your life style, take a long look at the Palmetto.

This western ranch, designed by Associated House Plans, has a lot of built-in pleasers.

Sloped ceilings are used in several rooms to add spaciousness.

Double front doors lend charm to the main entrance.

The foyer has a niche on one wall where an attractive piece of furniture, such as a chest or settee, could be displayed.

There are three bedroons and two baths clustered into one wing. The main living area includes a family roon, dining room, living room, utility room, kitchen with breakfast area. A double garage and unfinished basement complete with the plans.

Brick veneer and board and batten wood siding are used on the exterior. A center panel of the bedroom wing features a basket-weave design of brick.

Wood posts with brackets set off the covered front porch. Rafters are exposed in this area to emphasize the ranch styling.

The main entrance is sheltered by the porch which offers protection as well as beauty. The foyer also is a practical as well as aesthetic arrangement. It has a sloped ceiling and a coat closet, making it an ideal reception area.

A center hall connects the sleeping wing with the rest of the house. To the left is the family room which has a sloped ceinling with beams, a fireplace and built-in bookcases. This is a charming place for entertaining. Sliding-glass doors make the patio accessible in good weather.

Wood posts separate the center hall from the living room which also would be ideal for entertaining. It adjoins the dining room and both rooms have sloped ceilings with beams.

The kitchen has a breakfast area and an efficient arrangement of appliances and cabinets. Included are a trash-masher, garbage disposer and dishwasher. A U-shaped layout is convenient and step-saving.

The breakfast area adjoins the patio through glass doors. Stairs lead to the basement.

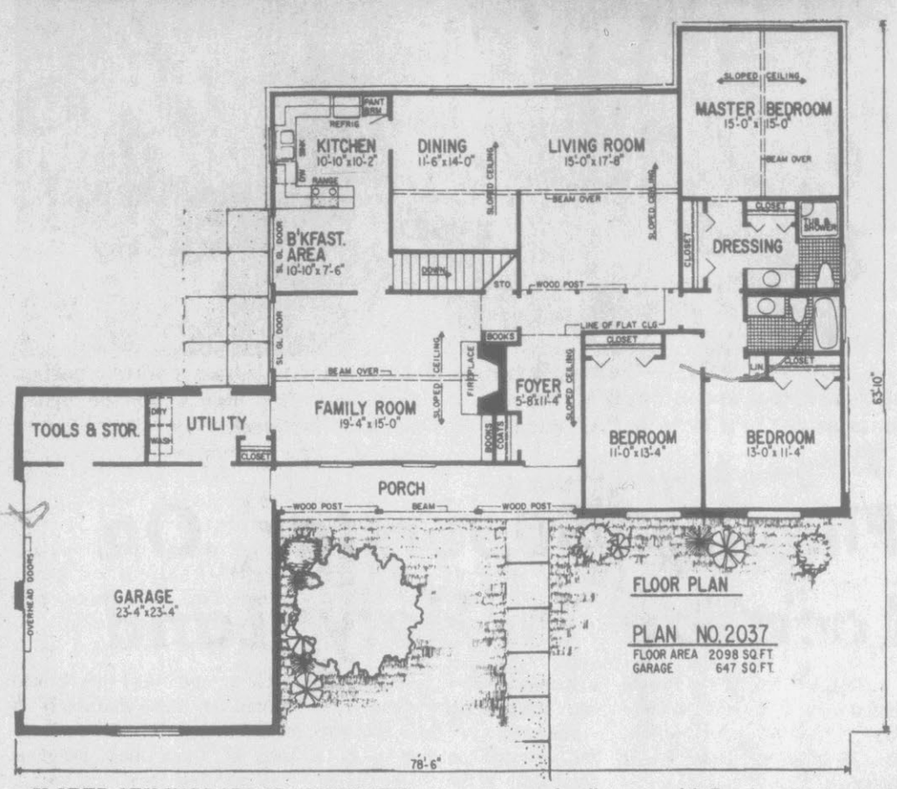

There is a utility room connecting the family room with the garage. It has space for a washer, dryer and closet. The garage has a tool-storage closet.

A sloped ceiling with beams enhances the master bedroom. It also has a dressing area with a large closet and compartmented bath.

The second bath, which serves the other two bedrooms, is adjacent to the master bath, providing maximun plumbing economy.

The Pametto, whose exterior dimensions are approximately 64 feet by 78 feet, contains 2,092 square feet. There are 647 square feet in the garage.

SLOPED CEILINGS ADD SPACIOUSNESS — The Palmetto, designed by Associated House Plans, has sloped ceilings in several rooms to add spaciousness. There are three bedrooms, two baths, an adjoining living room and dining room, a family room with fireplace, kitchen with breakfast area, patio connected to the house by sliding-glass doors, a foyer, utility room, double garage and unfinished basement.

Houses Of The Future Will Be 'Flexible' In Engineer's Viewpoint

By MIKE SILVERMAN
Associated Press Writer

MENLO PARK, Calif. (AP) — The house of the future will be a flexible, do-it-yourself dwelling that can grow, shrink, or even swap rooms at its owner's whim, an engineering researcher says.

The house would consist of a central steel frame with standardized components fastened to it, such as wells, floors, roofs, wiring and plumbing. Starting with the same basic frame, builders could devise homes of almost any size, architectural style and price by varying the components.

The new type of home — potentially far more individualized than today's factory housing — could be in common use within 20 years, says Richard L. Martin, senior housing economist at the Stanford Research Institute here.

Martin, who with other SRI engineers developed and is studying the concept of component housing, is reluctant to put a pricetag on the technique. But he said he is confident the method eventually could be used to mass produce homes at prices competitive with standard housing.

"When somebody wants to build a house, he might go to a factory to select his components — just like a housewife today goes to the supermarket to buy food when she wants to cook a meal," Martin said in an interview.

"All the ingredients are there, and depending on your budget and your tastes you could put together any kind of home you wanted," he said.

Because everything but the central frame is a detachable component, Martin said, the new style home would offer its occupants and urban planners some striking advantages over present housing.

"Nowadays if a wife tires of the furniture arrangement in her living room she can switch it around. With our housing, she could do the same with whole rooms — switch the living room with the bedroom, or put the bathroom where the kitchen was," Martin said.

He estimated a man and wife could move an entire room — walls, floor and all — in half a day.

A family could even add a second story to their home, with the aid of a contractor, in a few days by "taking off the roof like a hat from your head," and stacking a new steel frame on the old one.

Perhaps most important, Martin said, the new building concept would revolutionize urban renewal. Buildings that now deteriorate until they have to be condemned and torn down, could be quickly and inexpensively remodeled and refurbished, or even moved to a new location.

Martin said the construction principle could be used for other buildings besides homes — even highrise apartments and offices — and the structures would be at least as safe as conventional buildings from earthquakes or other disasters.

Martin said SRI researchers initially began looking for new housing concepts because they felt conventional methods were fast becoming outmoded.

"Homebuilding today is still pretty much of a craft operation," he said. "It's very expensive because of the labor involved. We took a look at what would be the most efficient way for the industry to build homes — to fit the needs of all segments of th population and how they could maintain their vitality over time."

He sees the new technique as ideal for low-cost housing, which he said now frequently is put together so cheaply it deteriorates into slums as bad as those it replaces.

Martin said fears in the building trades of lost jobs are unfounded, although he admits homeowners and amateur craftsmen could do much more of their own building and repair work.

"We don't build enough houses today to meet anywhere near the demand," he said. "And modernizing and remodeling would open up a fantastic market for the labor trade."

Widespread use of the technique still is a generation away, Martin believes, mainly because until the components can be mass-produced they would be prohibitively expensive.

However, a less-flexible version of the homes designed by SRI engineers is being used in the new town of Jonathan, Minn., he said, and a gasoline company plans to use the concept in its new service stations. Martin said the technique could be used right now in building mobile homes and portable.

Use All Spaces Including Foyer

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Consider the foyer as a place to provide space for eating, sleeping and storage, especially in emergencies. If it is not needed for such practical purposes, it should look as if it belonged to the home decorative plan.

A small foyer can be a mood swinger that sets the pace for conversation with guests or callers, but often it is a dreary dark entranceway with the traditional setting of table and mirror.

One family used a large foyer for an elderly relative who came unexpectedly to live with them. It was large enough for a sofa bed with a small storage chest and lamp. It was next to a closet that was expendable and adjacent to a bathroom, an ideal setup for emergency use. (A single easy-to-make day bed may even make more sense for an elderly person.)

A foyer can be pressed into service as a child's sleeping area while the family seeks another apartment or house.

It also can be useful with bookcases, and a table that might swing down for game playing or study. One family has decided it is the coziest niche in the house.

A large opening between a foyer and living room makes an ideal reason to utilize the foyer as a storage wall with piano, organ or television that might be viewed from the adjacent area.

Some people like a mirrored look in small foyers whether or not the room is used for dining. But a foyer can also be made to look larger by using a light wallpaper or paint to provide greater light reflection. The same color should be used on woodwork.

Shiny wall coverings are being used in foyers because they provide instant brightness. These may be more expensive than other coverings, but if one is doing the job oneself, cutting corners on labor costs, one may be willing to splurge.

When putting a good sum into such a project, don't go way out in color or pattern in selecting the covering. You will not want to change an expensive wallcovering every time you redo your slipcovers in the next room. Choose a muted design with agelessness that can be lived with.

San Francisco designer David Winfield Willson has a new gold leaf collection that was handmade in the traditional Japanese method of "floating" particles of metal onto designs. Willson has adapted his own contemporary style, well-known in murals, to Oriental subjects producing striking effects in silver, copper, brass and pewter that do not overwhelm an area where they are used.

The leaf is treated with a process that forces oxidation to a desired stage of tarnish from faint pink to deep purple, a delicate art. Small squares of tarnished leaf are applied over the surface of a design with tweezers and it is then coated with an acrylic moisture-resister.

For compatibility with modern furniture in an adjoining room, one might prefer striped or flowered walls. Horizontal striping may even make a foyer appear larger. Stripes may be painted on walls by applying masking tape over the background color and painting another color in between tapes. One well-known actress used varied-colored vinyl strips in a horizontal fashion, but she doesn't recommend it. It is a time-consuming project that can be pretty frustrating. And if you must pay to have someone do it, as she did, it is very expensive.

One should not become overly ambitious in giving a foyer a new look, but it should be well thought out — a little plan on paper might help. In this day of big mortgages and high rents, the important thing is to make good use of all the floor space you have.

Nevada and California have experienced approximately 5,000 earthquakes each year since 1769.

Ever made the mistake of hammering a nail or driving a screw into an inside wall in your house for the purpose of hanging something?

Unless the nail or screw just happens to go into a stud in the wall, it's only a question of time before it works itself loose. And down comes whatever was hanging on the fastener.

There are two reasons for the failure of the nail or screw to retain its holding power, assuming the wall, as most are, is either plaster or gypsum board. One is that the wall is hollow and so has only a limited grip on the fastener. The other is that the plaster or gypsum around the nail or screw begins to crumble when weight is applied.

If the object to be hung is light in weight, such as a small picture, you can get by with one of the adhesive-backed hangers which do not require that any hole be made in the wall. The strength of the wallpaper or paint on the wall determines the strength of the hanger, since if either pulls away it will take the hanger with it.

Regular picture hangers — the kind in which a nail is driven into the wall at an angle — will hold varying weights. Most of them come with a label or other notation telling how much weight they will carry. When they don't, ask the dealer if he believes that the one you have selected will be strong enough. If he doesn't know, skip it unless the weight will be only a few pounds.

When much weight must be supported, such as cabinets, wide shelves, mirrors and the like, it is imperative to use fasteners which will not give way. You will find various types of plastic, lead and fiber anchors which are placed into drilled holes in the wall. Screws are then driven into the anchors, a procedure which expands the anchors inside the wall, setting them firmly. The anchors come in different sizes; obviously, the larger sizes are meant for supporting heavier weights.

For anything weighing 200 pounds or more (or for lighter weights if desired), the standbys are toggle bolts or any of the molly-type expansion bolt screw anchors. A toggle bolt has wings which are folded back when the unit is pushed into the wall through a drilled hole. As the wings reach the hollow area, they open up and spread against the back part of the wall. With an expansion bolt screw anchor, the principle is roughly the same. But in this case, the sleeve of the anchor expands and anchors itself behind the wall. The difference is that, with a toggle bolt, the bolt must go through the fixture first, then into wall. If you remove the fixture at some later time, loosening the bolt also loosens the wings, rendering the toggle bolt inoperative for future use. With the expansion type, you can take down the fixture, remove the bolt and use the same setup again whenever you wish.

Sometimes it is necessary to know exactly how thick the wall is. Drill a hole in the wall where it won't be seen. Take a piece of wire and bend up one end to form a small hook. Insert the hooked end through the hole and jiggle it around until the hooked part catches the back of the wall. Hold it there and place a mark on the part of the wire that is even with the front of the wall. When you remove the wire, the distance from the point of the hook to the mark will tell you how wide the wall is.

Here's How To Do It

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — I received a jack plane as a gift. No instructions came with it. I have used a regular plane for years. This one looks very much the same but is a bit shorter. Is there a special use for it?

A. — Presumably, the "regular" plane you have is a bench plane, usually used for all-purpose work. The jack plane is actually one of the several varieties of bench planes except that it has a slightly rounded blade to avoid ragged edges. It is excellent for removing rough surfaces preparatory to smooth finishing.

Q. — Our basement walls are often dripping with water. At first I thought it was some kind of leak, but I have now determined that it is only condensation. The walls are of poured concrete and have never been painted. Will painting the walls stop the condensation?

A. — Not very likely. The condensation occurs because the warm, moist air in the house is hitting the cooler surface of the concrete. If the walls are painted, the paint surface also will be cool and you will still have condensation. You have to trap some of the moist air with a dehumidifier or move some of the air out of the basement, using an exhaust fan at one end that need be turned on only periodically, and a slightly open window at the other end. In mild cases, opening a basement window two or three times a day for about half an hour at a time will be sufficient to eliminate the condensation. Still another solution is the installation of several vents, perhaps in the wood portion just above the foundation. The vents must, of course, be above the surface of the ground.

Q. — I guess I'm old fashioned, but I have no portable electric drill and still use a twist drill that has been in the family for more than 40 years. Lately the drill has begun to squeak when it is being used. What causes this?

A. — You are probably turning the handle too fast. When this happens, the drill bit moves so rapidly that the chips are not cleared from the flutes or twisted portion of the bit. Try drilling more slowly. And occassionally lift the bit out of the hole to clear the chips.

Gardening Questions

Q. Several of our trees and shrubs have branches broken by the weight of snow. Should these branches be pruned away? (Mrs. W.C., Greenville)

A. You should prune away all branches that were broken by the weight of snow and ice. Make cuts back at the main trunk or major stems. After a few weeks, if other damage becomes evident, prune again. (Henry J. Smith, extension horticulturist)

Q. Are plants of the new Titan strawberry variety available? (F. L., Elizabethtown)

A. The supply of Titan plants is limited. Try Lewis Strawberry Nursery, Rocky Point, or John Goodson, Rt. 1, Mount Olive. If you can't find Titan plants, we have many other good varieties, including Atlas, Apollo, and Earlibelle Albritton is also a good variety and Tennessee Beauty is a good variety in the West. (Joe Brooks, extension horticulturist)

Q. We have an unsightly view on one side of our front yard. Just beyond this side of the yard is my husband's vegetable and flower garden. I am anxious to plant a hedge of photinia or ligustrum to screen out the view. My husband thinks it will damage the vegetables and flowers he plans to plant next to the hedge. Do you think it would? (Mrs. E.C., Cameron)

A. If it is kept pruned back so that it doesn't spread, the only damage the hedge will do is in shading the flower and vegetables plants. Should the hedge be so located that it will no shade the crops, then it will do no damage. (Henry J. Smith, extension horticulturist)

Q. Cold weather split the bark on two of my muscadine grape vines last winter. One of the vines sprouted from the roots last spring and the other one didn't. Will the new vine that sprouted be the same as the old vine? (Mrs. G.P., Roanoke Rapids)

A. Yes. Muscadine grapes are not grafted. (Joe Brooks, extension horticulturist)

BIBLES HUNTED UP

LONDON (AP) — When a prisoner asked for a Bible to read in his cell, a search of the police station at Maldon, Essex, revealed there was not a copy on the premises.

A Bible was borrowed from the vicar, and when it became known that Bibles were wanted at the police station, 17 more arrived, including two huge, 100-year-old family Bibles.

Now there is a small Bible in every cell.

Using New Technology

FRANKLIN, Ohio (UPI) — Space Age technology is being lined up here to speed the chore of separating waste glass from garbage and processing it for recycling.

Such highly sophisticated techniques as high-intensity magnetism, air classification and optical sorting will be used in a new facility being constructed here that will be the first of its kind in the world. It not only will separate the glass out of the garbage, but also will separate it into three colors—clear, green and amber. All operations will be mechanized.

The demonstration project is jointly funded by the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute and the federal Environmental Protection Agency. It will be located next to a demonstration solid waste proccessing plant.

Leif Oxaal, GCMI president, said the new facility will process about four tons of glass daily for shipment to nearby bottle plants for recycling.

"Addition of the glass reclamation system to the Franklin resource recovery plant is a major step in the glass container industry's long-range goal of mechanically separating and processing the components of solid waste for reuse," Oxaal said.

Issuing Patent Wasn't Easy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When the U.S. Patent Office approved Patent No. 3,400,371 Sept. 3, 1969, it was after the patent examiners had reviewed 495 sheets of drawings and 469 pages of specifications, the biggest job of reviewing in the history of the Patent Office.

The 16 joint inventors assigned their patent to International Business Machines Corp.

Shirley Booth Is Back In TV Series

A NEW TWOSOME — Shirley Booth stars as Grace and J. Pat O'Malley co-stars as her best beau in "A Touch of Grace", new half-hour comedy series airing Saturday nights on the ABC Television Network.

"A Touch of Grace" is more than just the title for her new series; it is a perfect description of its star Shirley Booth, who returns to the television screen in a new comedy series.

Miss Booth, who captivated audiences for six years as "Hazel", has a new family, but this time she doesn't work for them, she lives with them, and she's more a part of the family then ever. There's her daughter Myra, played by Marian Mercer and her son-in-law, Walter, protrayed by Warren Berlinger. But there is no problem — until Grace meets a gravedigger, Herbert, played by J. Pat O'Malley, while she is placing flowers on her late husband's grave. Instant rapport!

You already know what happens when parents don't approve of what their children are doing. Watch what happens when the children don't approve of what the parent is doing.

Miss Booth has won an Oscar, an Emmy and three Tony Awards, and is the only actress in television today to hold this triple honor.

She was born in New York City and gave her first public performance at the age of three, singing "In The Good Old Sunmertime" at her Sunday school in Brooklyn. She remembers that experience as "heady" and quite enough to send her on her way. After many arduous years in stock ("You get your cue and come out acting"), she made her Broadway debut playing opposite Humphrey Bogart in "hell's Bells."

Play followed play in New York but it was George Abbott's now legendary production of "Three Men on a Horse" that first put Miss Booth's name in lights. There followed a long series of dramatic, comic and musical successes.

She made her film debut repeating her stage role of Lola Delaney in "Come Back, Little Sheba" and promptly won the Academy Award for Best Actress.

J.Pat O'Malley Shirley's co-star, is one of the most recognizable faces on television today.

He started his entertainment career while attending Christ College in London by launching his own dance band. He subsequently joined Jcak Hilton as featured vocalist and comedian. When Hilton brought his musicians to America, Pat came with them and they performed for many years in this country.

There followd several years as a solo performer in the British equivalent of vaudeville. Hollywood discovered him in 1937 and he appeard in many filmd; then it was Broadway for a period of performing.

Filmed television for Pat has included starring and featured roles in most of the major series including "My Three Sons", "Gunsmoke", "Bonanza", "I Love Lucy", "Maverick" and "The Beverly Hillbillies".

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Bourbon Street, home of New Orleans night life, was named after the House of Bourbon, rulers of France during the founding of New Orleans.

Filming 'Superstar' On Location In Holy Land

EDITOR'S NOTE — People demand more in movies these days — and Norman Jewison, film director of "Jesus Christ Superstar," says shooting on location gives them more. It's worth it, he says, despite the climate on the Judean Desert near the Dead Sea.

By DAVID LANCASHIRE
Associated Press Writer

EN BOQUEQ, Israel (AP) — "Hollywood isn't finished as a film center, but people demand more in pictures these days and shooting on location in another country gives more — even the actors behave differently."

That's Norman Jewison, the Hollywood movie director who made "Fiddler on the Roof" in Yugoslavia and came to Israel to film "Jesus Christ Superstar."

"Hollywood still has some of the greatest technicians in the world, but you can't shoot a film just to keep the stagehands employed," said Jewison, standing in the Judean Desert near the Dead Sea.

Jesus — a 29-year-old Texas rock singer named Ted Neeley — was sleeping on a goat hair rug nearby, and the music of the London Philharmonic Orchestra wafted across the gravel hills.

"Making the film here gives it a mood you'd never get if you were shooting on Tujunga Boulevard.

"Sure, there are problems about working on location. Some days the temperature has been 115 or 120 degrees. And the other day down at the Dead Sea it started to rain and we couldn't work. Someone said it hadn't rained there for three years and someone else said it hadn't rained for 150 years, but we got rain.

"Like when we were doing a winter scene in Fiddler in a part of Yugoslavia where they had had snow for 50 years. We went there in February and the crocuses were in bloom — there wasn't a flake of snow in sight."

Despite the problems, Jewison finished shooting the location scenes for the rock opera in late November. For a musical, it was quiet work. The sound track — nonstop music with no dialogue — was taped in London and the singers did their thing in pantomime.

The smash hit Jesus epic stirred church controversy as a stage play in the United States, but one problem the movie didn't encounter was religous opposition from Israeli rabbis.

"There were no religious problems whatsoever" in the Jewish state, said Jewison, a 46-year-old Canadian who is a Methodist.

"The only people who asked for changes were the Anti-Defamation League of the B'nai B'rith, Los Angeles chapter, but that was over the stage production, not the film. And we had a little bit of concern from the New York Jewish Congress, but nothing here.

"After all, Jesus Christ Superstar doesn't pretend to be historically accurate.

"These two boys — Andrew Lloyd Webber and Tim Rice — wrote an opera and they looked around for some characters in conflict to write about. Since both of them had religious training when they were young, they chose Biblical characters.

"Their intention was to write some good songs and an exciting opera, which I think they've done. It certainly doesn't pretend to be authentic.

"After all, though, it probably is the greatest story ever told and I think it's interesting the way they've brought Christ down off a stained glass window into the street."

The result, Jewison's Universal-Robert Stigwood $3.5 million production, is probably the biggest thing shot in the sands of the Middle East since "Lawrence of Arabia" in 1961.

"I don't want to make a Cecil B. DeMille Biblical epic, though," said Jewison. "This is a modern piece."

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mary Martin will be seen again in the musical version of "Peter Pan" on the NBC network from 8 to 10 p.m. March 2. This is a repeat of the color tape production first aired in 1960 and repeated in 1963 and 1966. Previously, the star had appeared in two live colorcasts of the notable James Barrie play in 1955 and 1956.

ABC plans a two-hour sports special for the afternoon of Feb. 25 in which 10 of the world's outstanding athletes will compete in a series of events other than their specialties. A weekly series of 90-minute contemporary musical specials will be introduced on NBC Feb. 3. Titled "Midnight Special," the shows will begin at 1 a.m., immediately following conclusion of "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson." About 10 musical acts will appear each week, with a major recording artist or group acting as host.

A musical salute to Broadway composer Harold Arlen is the theme of "Jack Lemmon—Get Happy," a one-hour special on NBC at 9:30 p.m. Feb. 25. Arlen himself is among those who will help present his songs as actor Jack Lemmon plays host. Diahann Carroll, Cass Elliot, Johnny Mathis and Doc Severinsen will appear.

Ed Sullivan is host for a pair of CBS specials coming up in February and March. The first is "TV Comedy Years," a salute to past and present television comedians and their programs. Henry Kissinger is more of a houseworld word today than Spiro Agnew. He has been involved in America's foreign policy for a long time. "Today, as special assistant to Richard Nixon, he is the President's private ambassador to China, the Soviet Union, and the Vietnam negotiations in Paris. He is also the most influential formulator of Nixon's thinking on world affairs. No American has ever voted for him, yet he wields more power than any elected official short of the President himself." As a boy refugee from Hitler's Germany he came to New York. He rose from Harvard undergraduate to noted professor of government and from that position to one of the most active and powerful men in the world. KISSINGER by David Landau is recommended reading for those interested in American politics.

No other family name in history has compelled such visions of intrigue, foul deeds, passion, and dark adventures as that of the Borgias. "They were a group of brilliant men and women whose spectacular rise from obscure origins in Spain to unimaginable heights in Renaissance Italy aroused so much envy and hatred among their contemporaries that there grew a need to explain away the family's gifts through legends of epic monstrosity." THE BORGIAS by Clemente Fusero tells the rich and colorful story of the family from its beginnings in the early 12 century through the 16th century. The book focuses mainly on the family's three most eminent personalities: Rodrigo Borgia, who became Pope Alexander, and his notorious children, Cesare and Lucrezia.

Coco Chanel once said, "There is only one Mademoiselle in the world, and that is I; one Madame, and that is Rubenstein; and one Miss, and that is Arden." Elizabeth Arden was born Florence Nightengale Graham, the daughter of a Canadian truck farmer. Early in life she decided that only the rich were happy and she planned to get rich by making women pay to be beautiful. Beginning with a jar of cleansing cream, she created a multimillion-dollar business. "This complex, interesting, infuriating woman covered a lot of territory, from New York to Paris to London to Palm Beach to Phoenix and beyond. She eventually knew Everyone from the influential Elisabeth Marbury to the Queen of England." MISS ELIZABETH ARDEN by Alfred Allan Lewis and Constance Woodworth is packed with anecdotes of her high-handed ways.

THE MAKING OF A PSYCHIATRIST by David S. Viscott is a personal account of his training from medical school through his own analysis, as well as the attitudes and techniques he uses in his own practice. He also tells what really goes on in a therapy session between patient and doctor and how a psychiatrist is exposed to new challenges through his patients. "In addition, Dr. Viscott gives forthright advice to patients in psychotherapy—spelling out what they are entitled to expect from their doctors; how to tell if they are making progress; how to know if their therapist is wrong for them and, if necessary, when and how to change." THE MAKING OF A PSYCHIATRIST is certainly fascinating reading for these cold winter evenings.

New Eyes For Old: Nonfiction Writings. By Richard McKenna. Selected and Edited by Eva Grice McKenna and Shirley Graves Cochrane. 1972. Winston-Salem. John F. Blair, Publisher. 143 pps., $5.95.

Readers who found pleasure in Richard McKenna's superb novel, The Sand Pebbles, will find the nine speeches and one magazine article collected in New Eyes For Old a totally engrossing revelation of McKenna as writer, man, thinker, sailor, and philosopher.

After retiring from the Navy at the age of 40, McKenna attended the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, then scored a national success with The Sand Pebbles, a long novel about the American gun-boat era in China in the 1920s.

The speeches gathered in New Eyes For Old were ones McKenna gave over a period from late 1962 to early 1964 in Greenville, Raleigh, Chapel Hill, Durham, Washington, D.C. and New York.

A far remove from the usual fare of speech-making, the speeches are in essence essays that reflect the mature vision and compassion of a man totally committed to a personal concern for the individual that is the ultimate reality of love.

And it is no accident that McKenna's speeches are works of eloquence. He was too skilled a craftsman, too deeply dedicated to the art of lucid expression to be satisfied with anything less than his best effort—even though, as he candidly admits, the demands of sudden fame posed an unwelcome intrusion in his private and professional life.

As an ensemble, the speeches provide a biographical sketch of facts and relevant insights into the forces of destiny and circumstance that shaped the course of his life. Like a refrain, a secondary thread of unity underlines these speeches—an irresistable attraction to books and the printed word.

In writing about writers who influenced his thoughts and indirectly, his own style of writing, McKenna opens a whole new range of interpretations on the writings of Wordsworth, Hemingway, Melville, Maugham and Kipling.

Perhaps the finest tribute ever paid to the late Josephus Daniels is a speech McKenna made at Chapel Hill. "The Wreck of Uncle Josephus" is a revealing statement on the once prevalent attitude that the American sailor was a creature of contempt, beyond the pale of normal human existence. McKenna credits Daniels, in his years as Secretary of the Navy, with victory in a battle in which a 19th century sailor-writer, Herman Melville, opened the first salvo. This perceptive work could only have been written by an old Navy hand.

New Eyes For Old abounds in lines and phrases that soar and sing in unexpected beauty...."ideas are still more like birds in flight, with a life and will of their own"...."The world of the mind would be a pretty dull place if it were only one great flowery meadow; build yourself also cliffs and chasms, tawny deserts and polar wastes."

McKenna's concern that free rein be given to the inspiration of man's imagination; and his challenge to do battle with those who would perpetuate mediocre uniformity as the mainspring of American culture surfaces time and again. He strikes out at pre-digested literature for readers; and scorns the expert who labels literature "good" or "bad" according to his own smug criteria.

New Eyes For Old has the added virtue of conveying the excitement and pleasure found in all good story telling. McKenna's Navy adventures, his years in China, the fascinating research for his novel, and his life-long adventures with books and libraries—are all woven into the speeches with a skill that only a gifted writer could successfully manage.

This slim book is a treasure to have and to hold. It's one of those rare books that will certainly become soiled and worn through continual usage by any reader fortunate enough to have it on his bookshelf.

The Mushroom Shows Photographs By Veillette

"I consider myself more a photographer than a printmaker," Leonard Veillette said in speaking about his one-man show of photographs and silk-screen prints now on view at The Mushroom in the Georgetown Shopping Center downtown Greenville.

Now teaching commercial art and graphic design at Pitt Technical Institute, Veillette is also working on his master's at East Carolina University, where he received the BFA degree in Commercial Art in 1968.

"I plan to work my thesis into a study of infra-red film as an illustrative media," he said. Veillette pointed this out as one of the many methods for which photography can be used in innovative techniques.

A Greenville native, Veillette spent his childhood in Rocky Mount, then returned to Greenville to attend ECU. After graduation, the Army stepped in with a winning draft call number. "I spent 14 months of my military tour in Korea," Veillette said. "I really liked it. Although I'd been trained as a mortar man, I ended up in the personnel section of a large administrative unit, a divisional administrative office. It was good work and we had a fine group of men there."

"We were stationed at Tong Du Chon, about 50 miles north of Seoul. I did lots of walking in the area, taking pictures, especially landscapes," he noted.

One photograph Veillette took in Korea of a flower shop, he has used as the subject of a series of variation in silk-screen prints in the current show. One is a large print, and three are smaller ones utilizing various color combinations. "These are experiments in color to see how color can change the mood of one particular subject," Veillette said.

A t Pitt Tech, he teaches the advanced group of students taking the institute's commercial art course. "I really enjoy teaching," he said. "We have a total of about 30 students in the course."

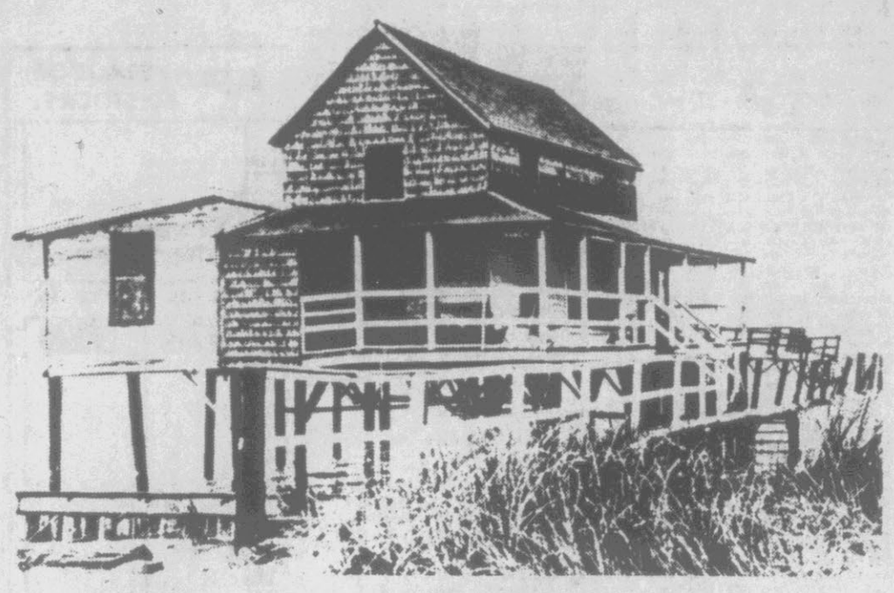

Veillette has shown his photographs and prints in a number of local and state shows. In the 1971 North Carolina State University exhibit he took first place in black and white photography. He is also the recipient of a purchase award in the 1972 Greenville Sidewalk Art Show. "In the 1972 Rocky Mount Sidewalk Art Show," he commented, "I won a first place, but not for photography. It was for a piece of ceramics I had in the show."

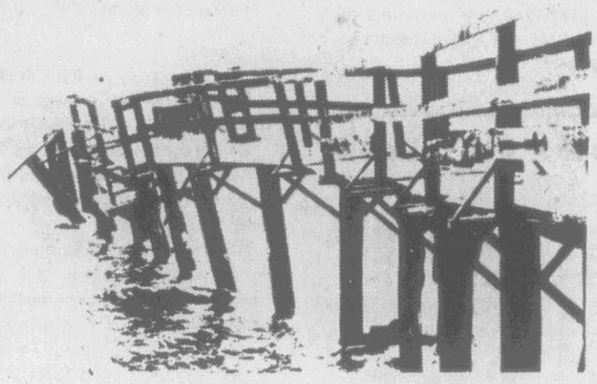

The small group of large black and white photographs, with a few also in color, now on view at The Mushroom mostly are of scenes from beaches on North Carolin's coastline. "These are examples of photographs in high contrast," Veillette remarked, "in which the gray areas are eliminated, leaving only blacks and whites.

In this group, the design inherent in the subjects have been emphasized by Veillette. This makes for some extremely handsome photographs, highlighting the sharp play of blacks against the pure white areas.

Veillette's show will be on view for several weeks.

Student Composer Larry Bell Honored

Larry Bell, a rising Junior in the East Carolina University School of Music has received special recognition from the Southern Division of the Music Teachers National Association (MTNA). A special board was appointed by the president of the MTNA to review compositions which previously won State-wide notice throughout the Southern Division.

Bell's composition, Mirage for Flute and Piano, was selected to represent the Southern Division in national compeition later this spring. "Mirage is a fine work; both instruments used in a professional manner. The composition displays a mature musical imagination of the composer who handles color, contrast, and climax well;" the judges wrote about Bell's composition.

Bell is a student of Dr. Gregory Kosteck, ECU Composer-in-Residence, who performed Bell's composition with Nancy Neidlinger, graduate fellow of the School of Music, on campus and also at Salem College last October.

Youth Concert Today

The Youth Symphony of the Carolinas, under the direction of Robert Maddox, will present a Sunday afternoon concert today at 3:00 p.m. in Dana Auditorium at Queens College.

The program of the young musicians, who number over 50, will be varied and include the second and third movements of Brahms' Symphony No. 4; the Overture to Von Flotow's Stradulla; the selection Summerland from William Grant Still's Three Visions; Frescobaldi's The Barque String Suite; and Leonard Bernstein's Overture to West Side Story.

Music On Campus

The pace this coming week of music on campus is a bit slower than the previous week, with two recials and one concert scheduled.

The three events are all slated for 8:15 p.m. performances in the Recital Hall of the School of Music on campus. They are: — Wednesday — Linda Frayman, cello and Ellen Reithmaier, piano, joint faculty recital — The two faculty musicians have announced two major works for their program, Shostakovich's Sonata, Opus 40 in D Minor; and Chopin's Sonata, Opus 65, in G Minor.

Each of the two performers wrote only one sonata for the oboepiano instrumental combination. Both are important for their harmonic innovations and beauty of materials and construction. Chopin wrote his sonata in 1845. The Shostakovich sonata was composed in 1934 and represents the characteristic Russian sound of the composer.

Both performers have appeared in numerous on campus and off campus recitals and concerts. Mrs. Fryman has been featured in the Kreisler Museum Artist Series in Norfolk. Miss Reithmaier recently was soloist with the ECU Symophonic Wind Ensemble.

— Thursday — Phi Mu Alpha Concert — No information available.

— Friday — Rebecca Poling — Senior piano recital — Miss Poling, a native of Carlisle, Pennsylvania, will include on her program one work by a ECU student composer, Robert Conger. She will play his composition, Ballade. Other selections listed are: Scarlotti's Cat's Fugue; Rhapsody in B Minor, Opus 79, No. 1, by Brahms; Poulenc's Toccata from Trois Pieces; Satie's Trois Gymnopedies; and Tcherephine's Bagatelles, Opus 5.

All events listed are free of charge and the public is invited to attend.

Purchases A Bellows Painting

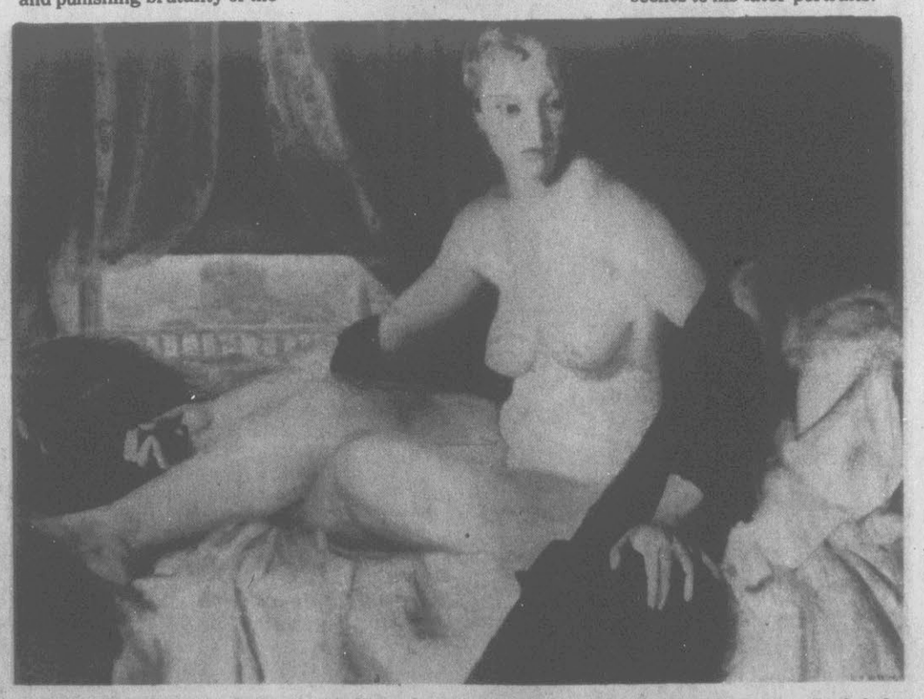

Nude With Fan, a painting by American artist George Bellows, has been purchased by the North Carolina Museum of Art (NCMA) in Raleigh.

Bellows, most famous for his paintings of athletes, is familiar to millions of Americans as the painter of prizefight scenes such as Stag at Sharkey's and Both Members of This Club. In his paintings on boxers, Bellows has shown the animal vigor and punishing brutality of the ring with strength and energy not matched by any other painter.

A native of Columbus, Ohio, he died in his early 40s in 1925 after having spent most of his adult life in New York City, combing the streets and parks of the city for subject matter.

The NCMA acquisition shows a sturdy nude woman, seated on a bed in a darkened room. She is partially draped with a red and black robe and holds a large feather fan. Through a partially opened window there is a small view of the countryside.

"The acquistition of the Bellows adds still another dimension to our rapidly-growing collection of modern American art," Charles W. Stanford, NCMA director, said. "The painting has the realismand power that charcterize Bellows' work from his early prizefight scenes to his later portraits."

ECU Music Graduate Signs Contract With German Opera House

Robert Christesen, a graduate of the East Carolina University School of Music with both a BS and AB degree, and a 1972 graduate of Manhattan School of Music in New York City with a Masters Degree in voice and Opera Theater, has recently won three international music competitions.

Christesen is the recipient of two first prizes—the 19th International Competition of Vocalists in S'-Hertogenbosch, Netherlands in the category of basses-baritones; and the 19th International Singing Competition in Toulouse, France. He placed second in the 21st International Music Competition held in Germany.

The young singer will make his European operatic debut as Valentine in Faust in Toulouse, France in October 1973. He has also signed a two year contract as lead baritone at the opera house in Frankfurt-am-Main, Germany. Christesen is now scheduled to sing in a number of orchestral performances in France, Germany and the Netherlands.

As a result of winning the Victoria Riskin Award from the Concert Artists Guild, Christesen made his New York City debut last year in a recital at Carnegie Hall.

Since graduating from ECU, the baritone singer has appeared in the American premiere of Smetana's opera, The Kiss; in the New York premiere of Henze's opera, Boulevard Solitude; and in other opera and concert performances.

Pitched Battles Ease Tensions

By KENNETH L. WHITING
Associated Press Writer

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Tension starts building when a call to battle echoes from a hollow ox horn. Livestock is herded to a neutral kraal as a precaution against defeat. Cooking pots, blankets, clothing, transistor radios and other valuables are also stored in a safe place.

Traditional war songs, homemade beer and much foot-stomping help create the mood. Children and the aged are moved to a spot where they can watch the promised battle, but retreat farther if necessary. Enemy tribesmen slowly gather to face each other from opposing hilltops, their blankets concealing weapons until the proper moment.

The men may try to psych their opponents by moving toward them menacingly, then shuffling back. The speed at which they advance from the hilltop is a ploy designed to intimidate the enemy.

Finally, when it's clear to leaders of both units that the time has come, they charge for a few moments of fierce hand-to-hand combat before retreating to regroup and re-enter the fray.

This is a faction fight, Africa's version of feuding between rival groups. The weapons are less sophisticated than the guns of New York mobsters, but embattled tribesmen are no less vicious when they feel their honor is at stake.

During a single August weekend near Libode more than 50 men were killed in last year's bloodiest encounter. It was weeks before a fragile peace was established and terrified survivors and their relatives slipped back from hiding in dense undergrowth.

Faction fights often occur on Christmas and other holidays when would-be warriors relax with a calabash of beer and contemplate revenge for real or imaginary wrongs.

The scene of much faction fighting is the Transkei, homeland of the Xhosa and other smaller tribes.

From June 1971 to last March police reported 36 pitched battles in 16 of the Transkei's 29 districts. Almost 200 persons died, some with their skulls crushed, others dismembered, eviscerated or horribly mutilated. Official statistics recorded only 39 wounded.

Police rush reinforcements, including a reconnaissance helicopter and a mobile charge office, to areas rumored to be ripe for a fight. Tribesmen usually cool it until the cops depart and then pick up their weapons.

These vary from tribe to tribe. A broad-bladed wooden spear called the assegai is a favorite.

Xhosa warriors prefer two sticks. A rod weighted with metal is used to fell an opponent. A plain staff discourages the loser from rejoining the fracas. Fatalities are comparatively rare in an intramural Xhosa battle, but broken bones and concussions are common.

The Bomvana tribe is the "heavy mob." They like to go on the warpath with firearms.

The Pondo equips himself with assegais, axes and knives. Fatalities are often heavy.

A breakdown in tribal authority makes faction fights dangerous in the Transkei. A tribal location is a scattering of rural huts over a wide area under the jurisdiction of a single headman.

This Transkei version of the "Godfather" often has an unofficial rival, usually a subheadman. The supporters of each man split away and young men do not associate with others of their age across the tribal divide.

Alliances are forged with neighboring locations where similar divisions may exist.

A senior police officer in the Transkei summed it up: "Such fights are a common thing in these parts and are nothing to get perturbed about."

Fla. Citrus Acres Down

LAKELAND, Fla. (UPI) — Citrus grove acreage in Florida dropped 6.8 per cent during the two years ending in December, 1971, figures just released by the Florida Crop and Livestock Reporting Service revealed.

The service said citrus acreage dropped from 941,471 acres in 1969 to 877,470 acres by the end of 1971.

But the service said the decrease in acreage did not seem to affect production as record-breaking crops continue to be harvested.

Cold weather that hit the state during the 1970-71 season was blamed for most of the loss with Hillsborough County (Tampa, Fla.) hardest hit with a loss of 16,884 acres.

But the reporting service said not all losses were caused by freezes and reported tree mortality had also tacen its toll.

The report indicated every major citrus variety except seedless grapefruit had shown a loss in acreage with the largest loss on late season oranges.

But despite the drop in acreage, Florida continued as the nation's largest citrus producing state.

Attended Nat'l Ruritan Meet

WINTERVILLE — Ruritan Club members Gurvass M. Vincent and J. L. Keeter of Winterville and Harroll D. Weaver of Greenville attended the 42nd Ruritan National Convention held in Atlanta, Georgia, January 14, 15, and 16.

The three Winterville Ruritan members were among 1,600 Ruritans from 32 states east of the Rockies at the three-day meet.

Ruritan is the largest rural civic organization in America.

News commentator Paul Harvey delivered the keynote address Monday afternoon.

Applaud Hiding Dirty Dishes

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) — Hiding dirty dishes in the kitchen so they won't have to be washed and hiding clothes that they don't like so they can wear items they like better are just a few tricks six girls have been caught doing.

Garry L. Martin, associate professor of psychology at the University of Manitoba (Canada) is delighted with the tricks. These were considered normal behavior for the girls not given to exhibiting such behavior—and a good sign. Usually the girls are very withdrawn. They are severely to profoundly retarded. Before therapy they pulled no tricks.

Quiz: What Makes A Driver Reckless —Or "Wreckless"?

An Eye-Opening Look at What War Really Costs Us

How You Can Make A Great Cake—And A Walnut Cheese Log

By Arlene Dahl:
What the Zodiac Says
About You and Your Looks

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR DAVE BRUBECK, jazz pianist

I've heard that you're very anti-war. Would you call yourself a conscientious objector?—B. Williams, Hackensack, N.J.

● I read an account by a Navy chaplain who said that during the course of his duties every man who came to him for counseling was, in his heart of hearts, a conscientious objector. Perhaps we all are. I served four years during World War II. Even then, I couldn't reconcile my moral conscience with the demands of citizenship. Fortunately, I was never put into a position where I had to take another man's life. Greater minds than mine have struggled with this problem. One of the most striking comments I ever read came from Gen. Omar Bradley: "We have grasped the mystery of the atom and rejected the Sermon on the Mount. The world has achieved brilliance without wisdom, power without conscience. Ours is a world of nuclear giants and ethical infants. We know more about war than we know about peace, more about killing than we know about living."

FOR CONNIE STEVENS

You used to have a clothing factory and a hair-dressing salon. Do you still have them?—N. Taylor, Dayton, Ohio

● No. I gave up both because I learned it was better to concentrate on what I know best—show business. I learned that you can only concentrate on one thing at a time, or something will suffer. At least that holds true for me.

FOR JAMES WHITMORE, of TV's "Temperatures Rising"

In working on "Temperatures Rising," did you find out what hospitals and doctors are really like?—C. N. L., Joliet, Ill.

● I sure did. Hospital people talk outrageously! You ought to sit in a surgeon's locker room sometime, as I did, and listen to those guys talk. It's like going into the kitchen of one of our better restaurants—you'd never eat there again!

FOR SANDY DUNCAN

Is there any chance that you might regain the vision in your bad eye?—M. Lansing, Pontiac, Mich.

● I am told it is still possible, but I'm not counting on it. Frankly, I think the chances are very, very slim.

FOR JEAN STAPLETON of "All in the Family"

You seldom talk about religion on the show. Are the Bunkers of any faith?—Latrissa Neiworth, Aberdeen, Wash.

● The Bunkers are Protestants, but Archie rarely goes to church. Edith, however, attends church every Sunday without fail.

FOR NINA VAN PALLANDT, starring in "The Long Goodbye"

You've had a strange entry into the limelight. Now that you're there, what do you want out of life?—R. E. D., Berkeley, Calif.

● Simplicity. To have people accept me for what I am, and for myself to accept what happens. Most of all, to make people around me happy. Especially my three children [Ana Maria, six; Kirsa, nine; and Nicholas, eleven].

FOR GENE HACKMAN, actor

Did you learn anything about what police work is like by playing a policeman in "The French Connection"?—P. Davis, Waterbury, Conn.

● Like most people who don't know what the police force is all about, I was very naïve about their methods, what they do and how they do it. I learned a lot about the grubbiness of their work. The boredom. And the danger.

FOR ART LINKLETTER

Have you retired from show business, or will you have your own show again?—Olivia Lenconi, Martinez, Calif.

● I haven't retired. I am now working on a show to be seen in 1973 entitled "America—The Men Who Made Her Great." I am also taping a show, "It's Your World," which is devoted to good living.

FOR DYAN CANNON

I understand you plan to go into nightclub entertaining. Are you giving up movies?—F. N., El Dorado, Ark.

● I'd like to make one picture a year. The rest of the time I'd like to sing in nightclubs in places like Las Vegas and Reno. In club performances there isn't so much bull—no one can cut and edit what you do, or direct you in some impossible way. And I feel singing is my real medium anyway.

FOR SEN. JAMES O. EASTLAND, chairman of the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee

A couple of years ago, you were complaining about a group of young Americans who visited Cuba, ostensibly to cut sugarcane. What happened to this group?—A. H. Lawrence, Nyack, N.Y.

● The group called itself the "Venceremos Brigade." It has grown from an initial membership of 213 to nearly 2,000. Brigade members have been arrested in Massachusetts, California and elsewhere for possession of explosives and manufacturing of bombs. Others have infiltrated the computer-data centers of oil companies and have been found in possession of maps of pipelines with strategic locations marked in red pencil. The danger is by no means past.

My Advice for Staying Fit & Trim?

Follow the Signs Of the Zodiac!

If keeping fit is more of a problem than a pleasure, perhaps it's time to reevaluate your life-style. Did you know you have a basic element and that it's determined by your birth sign? Each of the 12 Zodiac signs is ruled by one of four elements—Fire, Air, Earth and Water—and this small, seemingly insignificant, fact can often make all the difference between success and failure. Check your own sign to find its element, and see how the characteristics apply to you.

"When it comes to exercise, Fire people do best in groups—the more the merrier. They love semiweekly sessions at a gym class, somersaulting over high bars or swinging on rings."

By Arlene Dahl

Debbie Reynolds

Jill St. John

Pictorial Parade

FIRE SIGNS
(Aries, Leo, Sagittarius)

Fire people are dynamic, enthusiastic and gregarious. They always have several projects going at once, much like a juggler doing his act. Highly competitive, they love to excel. Winning means a lot, but basically, what they enjoy most is having an audience. Notoriously impatient, they tend to lose interest in projects if they don't show results immediately.

They're the first to try out new ideas and adapt them to suit their individual needs and life-styles. They are pacesetters who thrive on challenges. They love people, parties and adventure. (Of the group, Sagittarians are the most opinionated and outspoken; Aries, the most determined and energetic; and Leos, the most flamboyant and dramatic.)

Fire people who want to be gloriously trim and attractive need a program that won't occupy too much of their precious time—something that will be fun and easily incorporated into their daily activities. For these reasons long-term, regimented diets are not likely to appeal to them. They do better on a one- or two-day liquid diet each week. Debbie Reynolds, a dynamo Aries who combines a busy career with running a household, maintains her trim figure by consuming nothing but bouillon or fruit juices on Mondays. When she wants to lose a few pounds, she liquid-diets on Wednesdays as well. On the other hand, Jill St. John, a Leo, keeps her weight down by substituting yogurt or cottage cheese for lunch each day. "And," she says, "between-meal snacking is taboo."

When it comes to exercise, Fire people do best in groups—the more the merrier. They love semiweekly sessions at a gym class, somersaulting over high bars or swinging on rings. They show up in the slickest bodysuits and quickly turn these sessions into social occasions. Tennis, horseback riding and skiing are also fast moving and give these people a chance to show off their agility. Lee Remick, a supercharged Sagittarius, prefers bicycling to driving. "Instead of taking the car to do errands in town or visit friends, I hop on my bike," she told me. "Not only does it eliminate parking problems, but I get a good workout besides."

Angela Lansbury

Mia Farrow

Pictorial Parade

AIR SIGNS
(Aquarius, Gemini, Libra)

Air is Fire's opposite on the Zodiac spectrum. But this doesn't mean that Air people are necessarily opposite in their characteristics. There is, however, a certain languor in airy natures that tends to show up in a variety of ways. Some are inclined to be shameless procrastinators or aggravating slowpokes. They often appear to be lazy, but don't be fooled—they only seem to be dawdling away their time. When these people move, they accomplish twice as much in half the time as others might.

They are really intellectuals under the surface. If something appeals to their minds, common sense or reasoning, they'll try it and like it. Since they enjoy their own company, they're not as easily bored as Fire people nor do they need companionship in everything they do. (Aquarians are individualists who adore a zany prank or an adventure with a surprise ending; Geminis are great conversationalists who love to gossip, joke and exchange ideas; Librans are diplomats who are happiest when all is in harmony with their world.)

When Air people want to lose weight, they usually try the latest fad diet if it's presented attractively and persuasively. But fad diets never work for them because they know they need a balanced, regulated diet in order to function properly. They know it makes much more sense to eat less each meal until the undesired weight is lost.

When Angela Lansbury, a Libran, started preparing for "Mame," she needed to lose ten pounds. "Popular diets never worked for me," she told me after a performance one night. "I'd regain the lost weight almost immediately. My trick now: I eat right along with the rest of the family—only I use smaller-size plates for myself."

Air people enjoy the outdoors. They love to walk, and even enjoy strenuous activity. For the most part, however, they prefer spectator sports. They believe in physical fitness, but often find it difficult to maintain a program compatible with their stamina. For this reason, yoga has proved most popular and successful with natives of these signs, as it combines exercises for both the mind and the body. The rhythmic breathing that accompanies the postures is especially beneficial, and the postures themselves exercise the muscles and keep the body supple. Mia Farrow, an Aquarian, swears by yoga for both health and beauty and spends 20 minutes a day on yoga routines. Isometrics also help Air people because they expend little energy, and most of them can be done anytime, anyplace. Gemini Nancy Sinatra's favorite beauty trick: "When I make phone calls I tighten my stomach muscles hard several times while I'm dialing. It's become an automatic reflex now and helps keep me flat in the right place."

"Because of their temperament," says Arlene, "Water people most easily fall into bad eating habits."

(Capricorn, Taurus, Virgo)

Of all the groups, Earth people keep the lowest profile. They are inclined to be cautious, conservative and conventional. Their famous good taste is characterized by understatement, reserve and elegance. They start their projects slowly and gradually build momentum. Determination, discipline and drive are their hallmarks. They are content with slow, steady progress because they know they can eventually conquer all obstacles.

Their very strengths are often their weaknesses because, improperly motivated, Earth people sometimes miss opportunities and often fail to "strike when the iron is hot." They're inclined to mull too long over ventures that require spontaneous decisions, and they have a tendency toward pessimism that can often be self-defeating. They are, however, the most dependable in a crisis and never fail to extend a helping hand when the chips are down. (Capricorns are the most reliable; Taurus, the most practical; and Virgo, the most fastidious.)

All three appreciate the good and bountiful things in life—and their table is no exception. They are the gourmets of the Zodiac—a characteristic that often gets them into trouble. Taking off unwanted pounds can present special problems, however. Those who are chronically overweight can lose best by scrupulously counting calories. Since many of them are also health-food enthusiasts, they find that nibbling high-protein wafers before meals helps take the edge off their appetite.

Capricorn Marlene Dietrich, a very well-organized lady, writes out weekly menus on paper and tailors them to fit her special caloric and nutritional requirements. This can work like a charm, for once Earth people have set their target, they follow a straight course and rarely miss their aim.

The same is true for exercise. These people need a regular regimen of 15 or 20 minutes each day. It could be in the morning before breakfast or at night before bed. When Taurus Ann-Margret is between engagements, she mounts pictures of specific exercises on a chart and hangs it on her closet door to serve as a useful reminder and spark incentive. Virgo Raquel Welch, a meticulous homebody at heart, does bending and stretching exercises while she does housework, which she finds relaxing. Wearing a special bodysuit can help shave off unwanted inches—and, when used with a good body moisturizer, can give the skin a beauty treat as well.

WATER SIGNS
(Cancer, Scorpio, Pisces)

Of all the signs in the Zodiac, Water people are the most mysterious. Often they are a mystery to themselves, for they can be plagued by sudden shifts of mood that can gladden or sadden them. They can be wild and stormy one moment, and then, like an unfathomable ocean, serene and tranquil the next.

Because of their temperament, Water people most easily fall into bad eating habits. It's quite common for them to skip meals, and wonder why they can't stabilize their weight. They often need vitamins and health-food supplements. Their body tissues tend to hold water, so they should avoid liquid diets and liquids with their meals. Similarly, they do not react well to chemicals or drugs, which can often give them allergic reactions. Like Earth people, preplanned meals and menus work most successfully. Even though they don't possess the discipline of Earth people, they do acquire habits easily—and by getting into good habits, they can turn this characteristic to their advantage.

Gina Lollobrigida was born under the sign of Cancer and is an excellent example of how this can be done. "As a youngster," she once told me, "I loved two things passionately—pasta and clothes. I was also quite disorganized and self-indulgent by nature. One day—I must have been about 15 at the time—I was looking through a fashion magazine. I suddenly realized that if I ever wanted to look like the ladies on those pages, I would have to change my way of living. That very afternoon I bought a little notebook and took an inventory of myself—my clothes, my measurements, my good points, bad points, and particularly my eating habits. From that day on I planned how much of certain types of food I would have each day, and because I make sure my diet is balanced, I almost never have to diet."

Because Water people readily respond to all the aesthetic things in life, their best exercises should appeal to their imagination or senses. Dancing, of course, does both, and it also keeps the body marvelously trim and supple—it doesn't matter whether it's ballroom dancing, belly dancing or ballet. Since Water people are often shy, they can have fun joining a dance class or a square-dance group. Swimming is another fabulous form of exercise and especially beneficial for these people. Princess Grace, a Scorpio who swims every day, does a series of calisthenics in her pool, which she finds easy and extremely effective. For those who haven't easy access to a pool or beach, a good substitute can be a jet-propelled water massage used in the tub. Piscian Elizabeth Taylor's favorite: a semi-sauna—a steaming bath, followed by a cool shower, followed by a friction rubdown.

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

Know What Makes A Reckless Driver?

True or False: Men and women drivers have different ways of driving recklessly and causing accidents. (See number 5.)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. How good a driver you are depends largely on the speed of your reactions—how quick your reflexes are when a danger situation confronts you.

2. Neither sex gives women drivers an even break.

3. It's better not to drive when you've got the blues.

4. Many car accidents aren't really accidental.

5. Men and women drivers have different ways of driving recklessly and causing accidents.

ANSWERS

1. False. In a study conducted by Britain's Medical Research Council model cars were used in simulated danger situations. Tests were made on a cross section of more than 500 drivers. Conclusion of the investigators: "Simple reaction time appears to be a poor index of safe driving." How well an individual behaves in the presence of danger is likely to be based on his appraisal of the situation, how quickly he perceives the threat of danger and the kind of action he consequently takes. Another study of bus drivers' aptitudes revealed that "accident" drivers reacted more quickly in driving tasks but made more errors than "non-accident" drivers.

2. True. Psychological studies at Purdue University have shown that the stereotype of the "damn woman driver" is widely accepted by both men and women. The attitude of both sexes toward women drivers was found to be aggressive, impatient—and even downright hostile.

3. True. When you feel down in the dumps, it's better to take a cab, train, or bus, or let someone else drive. A study of a cross section of drivers responsible for fatal accidents revealed that better than 30 percent showed evidence of depression.

4. True. Consensus of studies shows that an appreciable number of accidents are deliberate in that the idea is at least vaguely premeditated or toyed with beforehand, and serve as dramatic expression of the driver's feelings, motives, or desires. The accident may be, as one team of psychiatrists pointed out in summing up their findings, a means of escaping or avoiding something, or of gaining sympathy. Or, in the case of an old car—or one for which the owner is tired of making payments—it's pointed out that "the temptation is especially strong when there is a possibility of getting something better if the depreciated possession (in this case the car) is destroyed."

5. True. A study of 147,984 drivers cited for traffic violations showed marked differences in the way men and women drivers conduct themselves on the highway. Males had a higher rate of violation for speeding; for driving a car in unsafe mechanical condition (faulty brakes, bad tires, etc.); for passing another vehicle with scant clearance; for tailgating, and similar violations. But women drivers, on the other hand, had a higher rate for ignoring stop signs (deliberately or absentmindedly); going the wrong way on one-way streets; and all sorts of right-of-way violations (such as attempting a U-turn in heavy traffic, failing to yield to other drivers in accordance with the rules of the road, etc.).

Will Your Job be Next to Go?

A million jobs have disappeared since 1960. Shouldn't you start your own business NOW... while still employed?

Before more jobs disappear through mergers, automation, and mechanization, shouldn't you at least investigate the way in which so many men have become owners of profitable businesses—starting in spare time—and independent of jobs, bosses, strikes, layoff and automation? All that's needed is your name on the coupon. Facts mailed free. No salesman will call.

Here are the facts: With a little ambition and energy and little over $1000 cash you can start your own Duraclean business in your spare time, without risking your present job or paycheck! This is a nationally known, nationally advertised business.

It does not require special skills, more than average education, or any traits except ambition, and the willingness to work.

What is this business that offers so much opportunity for so little? It is a service by which YOU supply homeowners, offices, stores and shops 7 superior services including an improved method of cleaning carpets and upholstered furniture right on the customer's premises—the EXCLUSIVE DURACLEAN SYSTEM!

Do-it-yourself methods simply drive much or ALL of the soil deeper to breed germs, impair the fibers and seep back to resoil the surface. The ordinary machine scrubbing leaves much of the dirt deeper in the pile, soaks the carpet or upholstery and treats the fibers harshly.

The exclusive DURACLEAN ABSORPTION PROCESS lifts out dirt and greasy soil with a gentle, almost dry foam. Laboratory tests show that it removes twice as much dirt as other methods and restores the resiliency of the carpet fibers. Because there is no soaking, carpets and furniture can be used again in a few hours! This is vitally important to stores, shops, offices and motels.

Although in time you will wish to buy a truck from your profits, no truck or office is needed to start. You or servicemen can carry all equipment in the car trunk—and your customer phone calls can be received at home. No shop is needed as work is done at the customer's premises.

As a DURACLEAN Dealer you are the sole owner of an independent business and your own boss. You keep all the net profits for yourself. However, the franchise we supply gives you instant recognition in your area. You operate under a nationally known name—use a process recommended by the nation's big carpet manufacturers and guaranteed by Parents Magazine. You get training BEFORE YOU BEGIN. You receive guidance and help from your headquarters.

Your training shows you how to perform the cleaning service—plus six other services which bring extra profits. You also are trained in all phases of running your business, including how to get customers, how to control your expenses, and how to make the maximum profit.

From your first job, you can start earning far more each hour than most men earn. As you add servicemen or servicewomen, we pay for your additional equipment, so you can expand rapidly with no further capital investment . . . and each helper you add can increase your yearly net profit by several thousand dollars.

Here is a business that can pay you far more per week than the average man now earns—with only the talent and ambition you now possess. Here is a business you can operate in any one of three ways—or progress from one to another. Some men operate permanently in spare time for the extra money they need. Some start in spare time and quit their jobs only after they see that they can make a lot more money than their present pay by putting in full time as a Duraclean Specialist. Others render the service with servicemen while they expand their list of customers. This business can be kept small or it can be expanded to fulfill your ambitions. Starting with no experience and only 1 or 2 servicemen, men can and do take in $30,000, $35,000, and more yearly. There is no limit on annual income for an ambitious man who will follow our proven plans.

We are about to appoint a limited number of men who are truly ambitious, and anxious to do something about their futures. We want men who are willing to follow our proven plans for success and who want—with our help—their own independent, successful businesses.

If this opportunity interests you, please send your name, on the coupon at the right, for a FREE 24 page booklet which gives complete details on the Duraclean business and shows how you can start in spare time for little over $1000. No salesman will call on you, now or ever. After you've read the facts, decide in the privacy of your own home if you wish to take the next step toward starting a business.

WE SWITCHED!

"For the first time in 20 years I've got security —without fear of losing my job." H. E., Ohio

"I took in $2880 in April. I worked from my home. My wife handles all telephone calls. We both enjoy our new-found independence and the compliments we get from satisfied customers." J. F. A., Texas

"When I was 40 I decided to retire before I was 50 years old. With Duraclean I gained financial security in only 8 years—then sold my business at a big profit." J. H., Ill.

"Duraclean brought security and an education for my daughters. We've done as much as $3000 on a single job." Mrs. B. B., Mass.

"Life is happier and more prosperous for my family and me. Without Duraclean I'd still be going from layoff to layoff. Now moving to new 5-bedroom home." R. J. B., Mich.

THESE ARE JUST A FEW OF THE LETTERS IN OUR FILES FROM MEN AND WOMEN WHO HAVE FOUND SUCCESS AS DURACLEAN DEALERS. (IN ANOTHER YEAR YOUR STATEMENT COULD BE HERE, TOO)

Instead of telling us not to smoke, maybe they should tell us what to smoke.

For years, a lot of people have been telling the smoking public not to smoke cigarettes, especially cigarettes with high 'tar' and nicotine.

But the simple fact is that now more Americans are smoking than ever before. Evidently many people like to smoke and will keep on liking to smoke no matter what anyone says or how many times they say it.

Since the cigarette critics are concerned about high 'tar' and nicotine, we would like to offer a constructive proposal.

Perhaps, instead of telling us not to smoke cigarettes, they can tell us what to smoke.

For instance, perhaps they ought to recommend that the American public smoke Vantage cigarettes.

Vantage has a unique filter that allows rich flavor to come through it yet substantially cuts down on 'tar' and nicotine.

We want to be straightforward. Vantage is not the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette.

But it well may be the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette a smoker will enjoy smoking. It has only 12 milligrams 'tar' and 0.9 milligrams nicotine.

The truth is that smoke has to come through a filter if taste is to come through a filter. And where there is taste there has to be some 'tar.'

But what good is a low 'tar' cigarette if the smoker has to work so hard trying to pull the flavor through, he feels like he's sucking on a pencil?

Vantage gives the smoker flavor like a full-flavor cigarette. But it's the only cigarette that gives him so much flavor with so little 'tar' and nicotine.

A statement of simple fact we believe all of us can endorse. And that you can experience in your next pack of cigarettes.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

Filter and Menthol: 12 mg. "tar", 0.9 mg. nicotine—av. per cigarette, FTC Report Aug. 72.

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen prepares a Walnut Cheese Log and a Sour-Cream Walnut Pound Cake. "Every Christmas, somebody gives me walnuts," says Marilyn, "and they sit on the coffee table for weeks until we find enough energy to crack them all. So this year I'm using them in recipes instead. They're great with cheese, and they do wonders for baked goods."

Nut Cheese Log, Walnut Pound Cake

CALIFORNIA WALNUT CHEESE LOG

- 2 cups chopped California walnuts
- ½ cup soft butter or margarine
- 1 teaspoon curry powder
- 4 cups grated sharp Cheddar cheese

3. Beat remaining butter, cheeses and seasonings together in electric mixer until well blended. Stir in the 1 cup finely chopped walnuts.
4. Divide cheese mixture in half. Turn each half onto sheet of foil and shape into 2 logs.
5. Roll logs in remaining walnuts until well coated. Wrap rolls in foil. Refrigerate until firm and ready to use. May be made up to 2 days before serving.
6. To serve: Remove from foil, place on attractive cutting board. Serve with crackers or party-rye bread. Makes 2 (1¼-lb. size) rolls

The answer to the signs that alarm every woman...

MINK OIL AND BEAUTY

By Billie Ann Bender

About five years ago I was shocked when I discovered in my mirror those dreaded signs of dryness—little lines that were certain to deepen, if neglected—lines that take away from your beauty and make you look older than you are. It seems that the awful changes in climate, temperature, humidity—even soaps and detergents are the causes of this condition.

I had always pampered my skin. Special creams, lotions, costly astringent rinses—I used them faithfully.

So I tried different brands, even more expensive, but nothing helped. I was ready to give up. I thought I'd have to accept the fact.

Then something struck me—something I never would have known if my husband hadn't owned and managed a mink farm where we lived.

One day I was serving coffee to three of the men who handle the mink pelts. These men had worked for my husband about 25 years. As I gave them their coffee, I couldn't help but notice their hands. How smooth and soft they were!

I thought about them all that day. I believed there must be something in the body or skin of the mink that made their hands so smooth and soft. And if it was good for hands, then it must be good for the face and throat. Could this be the answer to the signs that alarm every woman?

I told my husband what was on my mind and asked if he could possibly extract some of the oil from the mink pelts. At first he laughed at me, but then agreed I might have a point. He consulted a chemist friend, and together they compounded the mink oil with a pure balm base. It was a costly process, but what it produced I believed was priceless.

After I'd used the mink oil three weeks, I could see a change in my complexion. It was fresher, clearer, smoother looking. Two months later there was no doubt about it. My formerly dull, dry skin now had a glowing, dewy look. I was really thrilled! The little lines had been eased away. Even my throat seemed petal-smooth and more firm looking. I could hardly believe it.

My friends and relatives were astonished at the change in my appearance. When I told them what I'd been using, of course they wanted to try it. Without exception, they had wonderful results.

They urged me to make my product available to all women. They said I'd be doing a real service since these problems can be terribly disturbing.

So I gave my precious mink oil a name and put it on the market. It's called Emlin® Mink Oil Essential Creme. It contains no hormones, estrogens or steroids—only the pure oil and balm. Already I've received hundreds of letters from delighted users. Many said the effects were beyond anything they had hoped for.

And, mind you, there's nothing complicated about the application. (Who has time for elaborate beauty rituals? I'll bet you don't.) Just apply Emlin® Mink Oil Essential Creme at bedtime and leave it on while you sleep. That's when it works its wonders, helping to penetrate below the surface of your skin replacing lost natural oils, restoring moisture balance, leaving a beautifully lovely skin you never dreamed possible.

I'm so confident my Mink Oil cream can do marvelous things for your skin, I offer it to you with an unconditional guarantee. Just try it. See for yourself, in your own mirror, how it helps ease away unwanted dreadful lines. Many women wrote of gratifying results after only two weeks. Some take longer. But I want you to understand this. If, for any reason, you are not pleased with Emlin® Mink Oil Essential Creme, just return the unused portion to me, and I'll mail you a full refund, plus postage with no questions asked.

Now it's up to you. Here is your chance to have beautiful, attractive skin —at no risk. Fill out the coupon and mail today.

A.A.R.P.
The new Social Security.

AARP is a short way of saying the American Association of Retired Persons.

It's a non-profit organization of almost 4 million people working to help all older people, retired or not—all 38 million Americans over 55. AARP takes up where the government's Social Security leaves off. To help older people find purpose and security in their lives.

AARP helps them get everything from meaningful leisure to meaningful part-time work. From worthwhile health insurance to companionship through local chapters activities. From representation of their interest in Washington to reasonably priced over-the-counter and prescription drugs.

Through many concrete programs, AARP helps make the golden years more than a cliche.

Legislative Activities

AARP works in state capitols and in Washington for legislation to help older people.

Its 33-point program represents a Bill of Rights for America's forgotten minority. And the greater AARP's membership, the greater its chance of achieving its goal.

Pharmacy Service

Because of the buying power represented by nearly four million AARP members, AARP makes it possible for you to get over-the-counter and prescription medicines and supplies at realistic prices and have them delivered to your home, postage paid.

Health Insurance to Supplement Medicare

When you're retired, you just can't afford to be sick. But being human, that's hard to avoid. And because Medicare doesn't cover everything, you wind up with extra expenses.

As a member of AARP, you won't need to worry quite so much that a cold might lead to the flu. You can enroll in our reasonably priced group health plans that provide benefits for extra expenses.

Adult Education

Everyone wants to continue growing and learning.

That's why AARP founded the Institutes of Lifetime Learning. To give people an opportunity to find out about everything from music to history. Even if they haven't been to school for years.

Travel

It's sad to think you may never get to see more of the world. Especially if retirement has finally given you the time to do it.

AARP can give you the chance to travel. By making you eligible to join special tour groups to just about everywhere. With luxurious accommodations. At reasonable rates.

More Than 1,000 Local Chapters

Just sitting around can be the most disturbing problem of all.

But at local AARP chapter meetings, you can do something more important than listen to the minutes of the last meeting. Because AARP people get involved in their communities. Doing things to help other people.

*Automobile Insurance

Retired people don't find too many insurance companies willing to renew their auto insurance either.

But members in AARP learn about auto insurance with guaranteed renewable and limited cancellation features.

And it probably won't cost as much.

Part-Time or Temporary Work Through Mature Temps

Even though you are retired, you don't lose the need to be a useful and productive member of society.

Mature Temps, an AARP recommended service, has assisted thousands of mature persons to supplement their retirement income in a number of major metropolitan areas across the country.

Life Insurance

At a time when older people need it most, life insurance becomes a luxury they often can't afford. And even if they can, insurance companies often aren't willing to sell it to them. Because of their age.

Members, in most states, receive information about individual life insurance designed for mature persons and recommended by AARP. Generally without even having to take a physical, or answer questions about their health.

Guides to Retirement

AARP provides its members with a series of booklets that guide retired people through areas of particular concern to them.

The booklets cover everything from how to get legal advice to planning a proper diet. From how to go about moving to taking care of your health.

Subscriptions to Modern Maturity and the AARP News Bulletin

AARP publishes and sends to you, as a member, Modern Maturity Magazine and The AARP News Bulletin—which contain news and features of special interest to older people.

To help cover the cost of these publications, AARP has annual membership dues of $2. Which covers both husband and wife.

That makes our brand of social security rather inexpensive.

*Available in all states except Massachusetts and Texas. Only statutory coverage available in North Carolina.

John Varick Tunney

Democratic Senator From California

He Even Talks Like JFK

Eastern wealth, Ivy League schools, a law degree and a famous father combined, among other things, to produce the junior Senator from California. The son of ex-heavyweight champ Gene Tunney is tall, wiry, toothy and, at 38, bouncy as a tennis ball. His "liberal" political views spill out in staccato accents reminiscent of the late President John Kennedy. But don't mention the likeness. Tunney's tired of hearing about it.

Man-Killing Schedule. During his first two Senate years Democrat Tunney has worked 12 to 15 hours a day to erase a "lightweight" image. His major achievement, and a triumph for a freshman Senator, is a law to reduce airport noise, signed in October by President Nixon. Passage of his bill cost him more than 300 hours of work, he estimates, and a knock-down, drag-out fight with the airlines, who opposed it.

Tunney's man-killing schedule, plus his work-and-play relationship with old friend Ted Kennedy, may have almost destroyed Tunney's marriage to the former Mieke Sprengers, a lovely Dutch-born blonde he met while studying at The Hague in the late fifties. After 13 years of marriage and three children, Mieke filed for divorce recently, but at this writing the couple is reconciled.

What's in a Name? Tunney's first taste of politics came in 1958, when he and Ted helped in John Kennedy's senatorial campaign. Tunney became "hooked." Since then he has served in the Air Force, practiced law, won three terms in the U.S. House of Representatives, and made it to the Senate in 1970 by 619,000 votes, the largest plurality given a Democratic candidate in California in this century.

Along the way he dropped "Varick," the given name used for years by his family and friends. The name was dropped because John Kennedy said it sounded too foreign for politics, even faintly Communistic.

In 1973, Tunney will push to reform the nation's antitrust laws, an urge that hit him last summer as he sat through hearings in the Judiciary Committee on the ITT case. Some said the Justice Department settled a suit against ITT in exchange for a fat political gift to the Republicans. Tunney wants to tear the veil off this kind of backstage maneuvering.

Poetry in Motion. Some say much of Tunney's output can be traced to his staff, reportedly one of the ablest on Capitol Hill. About 30 aides, seven of whom are lawyers, keep him well briefed on matters affecting the largest state in the Union. All try to avoid a repetition of an early booboo, when Tunney shifted position twice on the controversial supersonic transport plane, finally voting against it.

"I've learned a great deal," he says. "A Senator is better informed than a House member, but there are more pressures and pitfalls. It can be unbelievably fatiguing."

While driving to the Capitol, Tunney enjoys reciting the poetry he memorizes for relaxation. "Never have I lit on a friend to take my fancy like the wind, that nobody can buy or bind," are favorite lines from Yeats.

Prognosis: Upbeat, Tunney's good friend, Ted Kennedy, is touted as the most likely 1976 Democratic Presidential nominee. Tunney comes up for reelection that year and is sure to be on Ted's bandwagon, benefiting in a state known as Kennedy country. If Ted makes it to the White House, Tunney will be in the inner circle.

Can your child read these words?

napkin fuzzy liquid whisper misty chicken velvet zigzag punch camel

Your child will learn how to read these and more than 300 other words after working with the very first record of The Sound Way to Easy Reading.

Try out this Phonics Course FREE FOR TWO WEEKS with your child in your own home—without risking a penny. Mail the coupon below.

If your child is a poor reader, if he has not been able to keep up with his class in school—here is a way that you can help him. Many parents have seen their poor readers gain up to a full year's grade in reading skill in just six weeks with the Sound Way to Easy Reading.

As soon as your child starts playing the records and using the charts of The Sound Way to Easy Reading you will know why it works so well. It takes the mystery out of learning to read because it teaches your child by the phonics method (the method by which most parents learned to read years ago).

Teaches with records

With this course your child discovers that letters have sounds. When he starts sounding out the letters he hears himself saying the word. He's reading.

The records drill him in the sounds of the 26 letters of the alphabet and their blends. By the time he completes the first record (about two weeks for the average child) he can read 300 words. After finishing all four records he has been taught 123 basic phonics sounds.

Once he knows these sounds he can read up to 85% of the words in the English Language. It works for children of all ages—in the earliest grades and even in high school. Its records tell your child exactly what to do, so he can teach himself without any help from you.

Tested and Proved

In a pilot study by university psychologists, children gained up to a full year's grade in oral reading skill after only 30 lessons with The Sound Way to Easy Reading.

A semester-long study involving 214 pupils in four Chicago schools proved that the classes given The Sound Way to Easy Reading showed marked improvement in reading and spelling over the control groups.

Don't think it's all your child's fault if he hasn't learned to read. Many of our brightest children are not able to grasp some of the current methods taught in most schools today. Yet, many educators insist that at least 40% of our children must have formal training in phonics—that they will never master reading without it!

Help Your Child Now

So don't wait for your poor reader to reach high school before coming to his aid. By starting your child on The Sound Way to Easy Reading now, you can change his entire attitude toward school—turn his sense of failure into the joy of success. Try it free for two weeks. You send no money—just mail coupon.

USED BY 150,000 PARENTS who send many letters like these:

Better marks—"At the end of his first semester in fourth grade, Gerald's highest mark was a D-minus. After working 6 weeks with the records his lowest mark was C."
Mrs. William Leger, Buffalo, S. Dak.

Four sons—"In twelve weeks, two of our boys brought up their reading grades from D to B. And our other two came up from D to C. I'll never get more for my money than I already have with your course."
Mr. John Gehde, Jr., Cassville, Wis.

IN 20,000 SCHOOLS
Teachers are highly enthusiastic

Recommends to parents—"We are using your course for remedial work in reading and phonics instruction. The children have been greatly helped. I recommend it to parents as a home-tutoring course for poor readers."
R. E. Pinson, Principal, Augusta, Ga.

A pleasure to hear my class read—"I am just delighted. In the last twelve weeks 22 of my 29 fourth grade pupils brought up their scores in silent reading. Their oral reading is so improved it's a pleasure to hear them now."

The staggering figures are beginning to emerge.
Here are some eye-opening facts about modern warfare.

The $95 Bullet and Other Shockers: What the War Really Costs Us

By Max Gunther

Nobody needs to be told that the Vietnam war, like all wars, has been costly. Politicians have done a lot of generalized blustering about this fact in recent years. But there is one question few have tried to answer in a specific way: How costly?

The answers depend partly on who is doing the arithmetic. The figures are so hard to verify that they can be used to support any political viewpoint. They can be rigged to show that (1) the Vietnam war has been stunningly expensive; (2) the Vietnam war has been no more expensive than any other recent war; or (3) that Vietnam has been cheap, all things considered.

Here are some figures that seem to be among the best documented. Perhaps we should keep them in mind—if and when the next "Vietnam" comes along:

● The Senate Foreign Relations Committee calculates that the Vietnam war's total budgeted cost from mid-1964 to mid-1972 has been about $133 billion. The Defense Department says this figure is misleading because it includes certain ship and aircraft purchases, personnel paychecks and other costs that the nation would have had to pay with or without a war. Excluding these normal expenses, says the Defense Department, the cost of the war itself through the end of the 1972 fiscal year has been some $105 billion. America's total bill for World War II, according to a generally accepted estimate by an American University study group, came to $318 billion.

● The Vietnam war has been costing $8 billion to $10 billion a year. This means we have been spending between $22 million and $28 million a day: roughly a million dollars every hour, $167,000 every minute.

● According to the Indochina Resource Center in Washington, D.C., one B-52 sortie—that is, one round-trip bombing run by one plane—costs about $41,000. In late 1972, B-52 sorties averaged 81 a day. An average fighter-bomber sortie over North Vietnam costs about $8,500. Late 1972 average: some 200 per day. The cost of a week's fighter-bomber sorties would take care of a year's teachers salaries in a medium-sized city.

● Sen. J. William Fulbright, Arkansas Democrat, says 3,529 American planes and helicopters were lost in Southeast Asia during the past four years. A B-52D bomber costs about $6.5 million; an F-4E fighter-bomber, $2.1 million; and a UH-1H medium helicopter, $315,000.

● The office of the Army Chief of Staff reports that a single round (shell) for a 105-millimeter howitzer costs $25.79; for a 155-mm. howitzer, $54.67; and for an 8-inch howitzer, $94.54. The average 27-ton bomb drop of a B-52 costs $22,500. A single laser-guided 500-pound bomb costs $3,324, and a laser-guided 3,000-pound bomb costs $4,900. The most expensive munitions item used in Vietnam has been the television-guided 3,000-pound bomb. According to "Aviation Week," just one of these "smart bombs" sets the taxpayers back $16,800. That is more than four times the per capita income of Americans in 1970.

● The Veterans' Administration says about 5.9 million servicemen from the Vietnam era were eligible for educational assistance as of mid-1972. The average veteran takes half a year of schooling under the GI Bill, and the average cost per half-year is $507. If all those eligible make use of the benefit, the cost will be some $30 billion. In addition, there will be other postwar costs over the next 100 years: compensation payments to veterans and survivors, pensions, and the like. There is no way to estimate these costs accurately. Guesses range from $60 billion to $200 billion from now to the year 2072.

● In terms of total dollar costs, the Vietnam war ranks as the second most expensive war in U.S. history (first: World War II). Here is how the wars rank in terms of other criteria.

American combat deaths: World War II ranks as the worst, with 291,557 deaths. World War I ranks second, with 53,402; Vietnam third, with about 45,000; the Korean War fourth, with 33,629.

Bomb tonnage delivered by U.S. planes: Vietnam ranks first, with nearly six million tons; then comes World War II, with a little over two million; and the Korean War, with one million.

U.S. planes lost: World War II is far in the lead, with 45,800. Vietnam ranks second, with about 8,000; Korea is third, with 3,300.

● As for the war's impact on our economy—"Business Week" estimates that, at the height of escalation in the late 1960's, the war directly supported 14 percent of all draftsmen, 25 percent of sheet-metal workers, 13 percent of electricians, 20 percent of engineers and more than half of all airplane mechanics in the nation.

● Antiwar groups have been fond of pointing out what could have been bought with the money if we didn't have to pay for the war. The Pentagon argues that such comparisons are foolish and are unfair propaganda. "Whenever you buy one thing, it follows that you can't buy something else," says an Air Force officer. "No matter what the Government buys, there's always somebody saying we should have bought something else." Still, for the record:

SANE, an antiwar group in Washington, says one Main battle tank costs $600,000, which would provide full-time psychotherapy for 171 drug addicts for one year.

One B-1 giant bomber costs $25 million, which SANE says would build fifteen 50-bed hospitals.

One aircraft carrier costs about a billion dollars, which could build 67,000 low-cost housing units with two bedrooms each.

● On the other hand, it is useful to see the war's costs in perspective against the wealth of the United States. The Internal Revenue Service collects nearly $200 billion in taxes every year. War costs are currently running slightly below $10 billion a year. If the war stopped tomorrow and the Government decided not to spend the saved money on anything else, the best we could hope for would be a five percent cut in taxes.

Don't give up on ACNE! Now you can follow a terrific home program that is now helping thousands of acne sufferers get beautiful results! Developed at the Edith Serei Institute, this complete professional program works with unique esthetic methods of super deep-cleansing. (This doesn't mean that your skin is "dirty" if you now have acne.) This deep-cleansing method softens the crusty surface of acne skin, cleans out blocked pores, un-clogs oily plugs of grease, releases ugly blackheads while it soothes the itching, diminishes redness and smoothes your complexion for a totally new look!

ALL-NATURAL CLEANS BEST!

Obviously this program is not a cover-up! (Why put-on impurities when what you really want is to eliminate the trouble?) Naturally, this program is not an overnight wonder. But "natural" it is! An all-natural, biologic method that takes only a few minutes each day. You'll love it because day-by-day you'll see gradual improvement until your look changes all the way to beautiful.

POSITIVE RESULTS AT HOME!

When you can get results like this, why wait? Proper care does help. Just look at the photos above! Nicole and Pierre had tried all kinds of acne remedies before they began Edith Serei's esthetic home treatment program. (What they were doing only made acne worse!) Harsh soaps are too alkaline; drying agents only trap acne under a crusty surface layer; so-called "medicated" make-up foundation leaves its tell-tale residue, very irritating and difficult to remove from "bumpy" acne skin. What's more, without following a hygienic skin care program, you can actually re-infect your skin by improper squeezing and rubbing. All very bad for acne skin!

FREE INFORMATION

With Edith Serei's new esthetic program for acne, you'll discover how simple proper care can be. You'll learn how to protect your skin from germ invasion during the day and how to soothe it at night. You'll discover the unique professional method followed by highly-trained estheticians at the Edith Serei Institute. Yes, professional skin care for acne is now available to you at home! What could be easier? At last, there is something positive you can do about acne (and it's backed by the professional name that is respected by thousands of beauty specialists in Europe, Canada and now here "at home"). For FREE INFORMATION about the "miracle" you've been hoping for, just clip and mail the no-obligation coupon. We'll rush free details on how to beautify your complexion with all-natural esthetic skin care by EDITH SEREI.

NOTE: EDITH SEREI doesn't stop at ACNE! When your skin is clear, we'll show you how to give it the proper maintenance care it needs to stay beautiful. Send us the coupon, we'll mail you a "miracle".

This is not a starvation diet. You will enjoy a rich variety of hearty foods. You won't go away from your meals hungry. You won't feel deprived or depressed. The concentrated power of your "MEGA-VITAMIN" Diet will enable you to eat steaks, chicken, hamburgers (including the buns), plus delicious desserts.

ANSWERS TO THREE VITAL QUESTIONS!

1. What happens if the Mega-Vitamin Diet does not work as effectively on me as it does on others?

The Mega-Vitamins are fully guaranteed. Try them at our risk. If you are not fully satisfied—return what is left and you will receive a prompt refund of the entire purchase price.

2. How do the Mega-Vitamins compare with the Standard Minimum Daily Requirements?

Here are two examples that typify the tremendous potency of your Mega-Vitamins. You will be taking about 800% more Vitamin C than the Standard Daily Minimum. Your Ultra-Iron tablet contains about 1000% more than the daily minimum. You would not want your Mega-Vitamins to be any more powerful.

3 Will I experience that "starved to death" feeling?

No, it is not necessary for you to feel hungry. Your Mega-Vitamins contain Laboratory-Tested ingredients that will help appease your appetite, counter-act hunger and provide a whole spectrum of vitamins and minerals to help prevent nutritional deficiencies.

NO WAITING! THIS INTER-DEPENDENT "MEGA-VITAMIN" TEAM ATTACKS IMMEDIATELY!

Here's how your excess pounds will disappear... faster than you ever dreamed possible . . . even while you sleep!

Your SUPREME "MEGA-C" tablet contains more natural Vitamin C than a full-size supermarket grapefruit. Right away, you are getting all the citrus bioflavinoids to make this part of your diet tremendously effective.

POWERFULLY POTENT FORMULA

A newly developed SUPER PROTEIN TABLET, CREATED ESPECIALLY FOR THIS DIET, contains a whopping 570 milligrams of solid natural protein. Each tiny milligram zeros-in on fatty tissues to break down and burn-off many, many times its equivalent weight. A dozen T-bone steaks could not provide as much undiluted, fat-free, natural protein as this one, tiny, super protein tablet.

The quarterback of this super-successful team, "ULTRA-IRON" contains the exact and required dosages of Manganese to activate your enzymes and maintain good glandular functions, Betaine to prevent any accumulation of fat, Zinc...the essential ingredient related to carbohydrate metabolism and Copper, to provide continual body energy: PLUS, 25 micrograms of the highly desirable B-12 complex. This "piece de resistance" tablet makes it all work together by supplementing the diet regimen plan, which, of course, plays the weight-loss role.

TWO YEARS IN THE MAKING—YOUR MEGA-VITAMINS ARE GUARANTEED SAFE, BUT EXTREMELY EFFECTIVE!

Each of the twelve compounded ingredients are guaranteed to be free of any side-effects when taken as directed. Any normal, healthy adult may enjoy the Mega-Vitamins with absolute confidence.

A demanding quality-control program guaranteeing freshness makes it necessary to order Mega-Vitamin Diet Regimen directly from the Vitamin Education Institute. The Mega-Vitamins are not available over-the-counter.

HERE'S WHY IT WORKS FASTER & FASTER!

Your "Mega-Vitamin" team taps nature's ultimate resources. These natural products assimilate into your body faster...working on your body while the more common synthetic, chemically manufactured products would still be lying fallow, waiting for your body to accept the foreign object.

YOU WILL LEARN HOW TO STAY SLIM & TRIM AND STILL EAT THE DELICIOUS, NUTRITIOUS FOODS YOU NOW ENJOY!

To obtain your "MEGA-VITAMIN" Diet Regimen with the 10-day trial supply of "MEGA-VITAMINS," plus FREE "STAY SLIM FOREVER PLAN," send $4.95 (or $9.95 for the 30 day supply) to Vitamin Education Institute at the address below.

You must lose a minimum of 10 pounds in just 10 days. If you're not absolutely delighted with your new shape, return the Diet Regimen and you'll get back every penny. All you can lose are those ugly pounds. Do it now!

A Special Message For Physicians:

The Mega-Vitamin Diet Regimen has been formulated to satisfy the demands of many weight-loss patients without sacrificing nutritional benefits. Sample Mega-Vitamins and Diet Regimen will be sent to you, without charge when requested on your stationery.

Sports Mini-Profile

Now Pitching Against Spahn And Roberts:

Whitey Ford, Age 43

Wide World

Whitey Ford: The Hall of Fame Reports on Tuesday.

How does one of baseball's all-time greats pass the time as he awaits possible enshrinement in the Baseball Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y.? In the case of Whitey Ford, former pitching ace of the New York Yankees, it's easy. "I'm in the restaurant business now," smiles the light-haired left-hander. "I manage the Colonie Hill Restaurant in Hauppauge, Long Island. I get a chance to play a lot of golf, I raise horses, and I have a great life. In February each year, I go down to spring training with the Yankees and pitch a little batting practice and work with the young pitchers."... The Baseball Writers Association of America will name the latest additions to baseball's shrine on January 23. As much as Ford would like to be among those selected, he feels his chances aren't good this this year, the first in which he is eligible. . . . "There are two great pitchers ahead of me in the voting," says Whitey. "Warren Spahn and Robin Roberts. In order for me to get in this year, I'd have to take away a lot of votes from one of those guys, and I don't think that's going to happen. Then there are some other players, like Ralph Kiner, who almost got in last year, who may get enough votes this time." But there seems little doubt of Whitey's ultimate selection to the Hall. . . . Whitey, who joined the Yankees as a 21-year-old off the streets of Queens, N.Y., in 1950, took charge of New York mound fortunes for more than 15 years. Despite spending the entire 1951 and 1952 seasons in the Army, he won 236 games, more than any other Yankee hurler, and lost only 106. His winning percentage of .690 is the best ever compiled in major-league baseball. Ford pitched on 11 Yankee pennant-winning teams and won ten games in World Series competition, a record. Also, in the 1960 and 1961 World Series, against the Pittsburgh Pirates and Cincinnati Reds, Whitey established a record streak for consecutive shutout innings in post-season competition. . . . Ford's decline coincided with that of the Yankees. "I had my first operation on my elbow after the 1964 season," he recalls, "to correct a calcium deposit in my left elbow. My arm held up in 1965, and I had a decent season. I could hardly do anything in 1966. Then I had another operation. The arm gave out again in 1967, after I thought everything would be all right. I started a game on Memorial Day and had to come out, the pain was so bad. That was my last game. I could have had another operation, but I was going on 39 by then, so I just decided to quit."... Whitey now leaves the ball playing in the family to his two sons, Eddie, 19, and Tommy, 18. Eddie is an infielder at the University of South Carolina, where he is coached by Ford's former Yankee teammate, Bobby Richardson. Tommy, like his dad, is a left-handed pitcher—at Broward Junior College in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. . . . Whitey and Joan, his wife of 22 years, also have a daughter, Sally Ann, 20, who attends Chestnut Hill College, a girl's school in Pennsylvania. —By Larry Bortstein once you learn how to de-sensitize them, this doctor's ingenious new way...

If You Suffer From A Single One Of These Torturous Symptoms Of Nerves, Tension Or Chronic Anxiety, THEN THE FACTS BELOW MAY BE THE MOST IMPORTANT YOU HAVE EVER READ IN YOUR LIFE!

Because they reveal, for the first time, how your nerves have tricked you into the following mental symptoms:

constant nervousness and over-irritation... indecision... depression ...loss of confidence in yourself and others... feelings of unreality... overwhelming obsession with one or two horrible thoughts...

a hopeless feeling that your entire personality is coming apart... that your identity is dissolving... or that you may be helplessly drifting into a nervous breakdown!

And—equally as bad—how your nerves have tricked you into the following physical symptoms:

chronic fatigue, that starts in the morning, and grows worse as the day goes on...

sweating hands—or "pins and needles" in either your hands or your legs...

"churning" stomach... nausea... choking feeling in the throat... inability to take a deep breath... tight band of pain around the head..."ready to jump out of your skin"... strange tricks of vision ...weak spells... insomnia, that goes on night after night after night...

hand shaking... panic spasms... knots in your chest... dizziness... difficulty in swallowing... vomiting... and all the other physical tortures that turn your life into one continuous hell!

And Every One Of These Nervous Symptoms Can Be Controlled... And Then Diminished ...And Then Eliminated—OFTEN BY AS LITTLE AS THIS ONE SINGLE INSIGHT INTO THEIR HIDDEN CAUSE!

And that insight is this:

If you suffer from any of the nervous symptoms listed above, then you must understand at once that your nerves are not ill... they have not deteriorated... they have not lost their true physical health in any way! What has happened to them instead is that they have simply become OVER-SENSITIZED..."rubbed raw" by too much outside irritation ...and are now ready to discharge the emotional and physical symptoms of panic at even the slightest thing that goes wrong!

Thus, the depression... indecision... loss of confidence and all the other emotional symptoms you feel are all caused by OVER-SENSITIZED nerves! And the churning stomach... palpitating heart... never-ending headaches and all the other physical nervous-symptoms you feel are—again—all caused by OVER-SENSITIZED nerves!

And therefore the way to treat ALL these symptoms is NOT with drugs... NOT with shock... NOT with medical formulations or hospitalizations at all! The way to treat these nerves is to change the poisonous-thoughts that are rubbing them raw!

And this is done (as proven by this internationally-famed physician on thousands of patients) in four simple steps! The first of which stops nervous symptoms (both physical and emotional) from multiplying from that moment on! The second of which serves to tranquilize and quiet down those over-sensitized nerves far more powerfully (and permanently) than any drug a pharmacist could ever give you!

The third of which lets you stop fighting those symptoms (which only intensifies them in an ever-increasing spiral of sheer torment), and—instead—leave them alone in an ingenious way that lets them start healing themselves!

And the fourth of which—the great reward—brings you slowly-but-surely back to the person you used to be! With a new, enduring feeling of control and confidence that nothing can destroy! So much so that this doctor actually comes right out and states bluntly: "The advice given here will definitely cure you, if you only follow it"!

In Fact, Case History After Case History Proves That Cure May Be So Dramatically Quick That Your Friends And Family Will Beg You To Tell Them Your Secret!

Once again, it doesn't matter what physical or emotional symptoms you are now suffering from... how "deeply entrenched" they are... how long you have been plagued by them... how "old" or "weak" or "out-of-control" you may feel today! Here is specific, step-by-immediate-step advice that will (again to quote directly from the doctor) "banish every unwelcome sensation and regain peace of mind and body"!

For example:

The two-minute self-treatment (you perform one ingenious little action with your chest) that ends sudden panic seizures on the spot—including all their side effects such as dizziness, pins and needles, involuntary stiffening of the joints, inability to breathe, and all the rest.

That "lump in the throat that won't go away"—how to banish it in minutes... and enjoy eating any food you wish to once again!

Physical weakness—perhaps the most dreaded of all symptoms—and (surprisingly) perhaps the fastest of all to banish!

How to deal with the twin monsters of fatigue and guilt! And leave behind emotional exhaustion... morning depression... thoughts that once raced around and around in your mind without cessation! (And leave them all behind—for good!)

Why so many patients who tried these simple techniques actually came out of their nervous sicknesses as far finer and stronger people than they ever were before!

How to recover from chronic tension caused by an insoluable problem! The only sane way to overcome it! How to avoid unnecessary suffering, for both yourself and others! And, perhaps, actually turn your worst defeat into crowning success!

The surest and most permanent way to cure obsessions!

How to tap the forces of Nature, every morning, that are just waiting to cure you!

How to bring happiness back into your everyday life! Not by waiting for some great event or reward... but simply by developing the eyes to see joy in the little things all around you!

How to beat insomnia! Again, specific, proven step-by-step instructions! Ten different aids that may have you waking up tomorrow morning as fresh as a baby, with eight full hours of blissful sleep replenishing every cell in your body!

And—the final goal: How to develop the kind of nervous control that automatically turns panic off the instant it starts! That frees you forever from "nerve-crutches" such as drugs or alcohol! That lets you pick up your life again from the point where over-sensitized nerves forced you to abandon it, with absolute confidence that you now have the poise and self-possession to accomplish the goals you have always wanted!

No Wonder This Great Self-Help Volume Is Already A Best-Seller In Nine Foreign Nations, As Well As The United States! And It Is Yours To Read From Cover To Cover—Entirely At Our Risk!

The choice is yours. This is a book for people who mean business. It costs you nothing! We take all the risk! Fair enough? Why not send in the coupon—TODAY!

WHAT OTHERS SAY:

"...helped me so much and released me from the particular hell I have been living in since my breakdown six years ago."

"I think of Dr. Weekes with admiration and deep gratitude, as I am sure thousands of other people are doing."

"Looking back now I am amazed at the progress I have made in such a comparatively short time."

"It would be no exaggeration to add that your book saved my life."

"The method you give for cure of nervous conditions is so effective—and so simple—I cannot think why, out of all the professional people I have seen and all the books I have read in an effort to find a cure, nothing remotely like your system has been suggested to me.

"The great reassurance you give about the distressing physical symptoms of a disturbed nervous system is one of the greatest benefits to be derived from your book."

"You cannot possibly imagine what a relief it is to be able to view life normally again, instead of fear-panic all the while."

"I cannot describe the emotion I felt to find, at last, someone who really understood the problem, and to hear her say the condition can be cured.... If only this understanding person had the time to take all sufferers under her wing."

"I would like you to know that my nervous condition has so greatly improved through the advice gleaned from your most precious and invaluable book... that all symptoms have now disappeared and I rarely need Librium or sleeping capsules."

"My physician is amazed at my progress and of course I showed him your book which he borrowed and read thoroughly and is now recommending to other patients in like circumstances."

"My wife has made a vast improvement since using your book and now feels for the first time like getting away from the hospital altogether. I'm sure if she had had your treatment in earlier years she would never have had to go into the hospital at all."

WHAT THE PUBLISHER SAYS:

HOPE AND HELP FOR YOUR NERVES has sold over 250,000 copies and has been endorsed by medical and mental-health associations throughout the world. Millions of Americans have heard Dr. Weekes on television and radio shows and have read excerpts from the book which recently appeared in Reader's Digest. If you are one of the many whose nerves are on edge and who sometimes feel panic and don't know why, this remarkable book was written for you. The reader discovers the simple treatment the author recommends for the dreaded and mystifying experiences known as "nerves"—indecision, suggestibility, feelings of panic, sleeplessness, loss of confidence, unreality, depression, and countless other recognized feelings of ill health.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Dr. Weekes is Consulting Physician to the Rachel Forster Hospital in Sydney, Australia. She has written articles for popular magazines in England and has appeared widely on English television.

Dr. Weekes has appeared with Mike Douglas, Arlene Francis, Barry Farber and many other U.S. radio and TV shows.

"Daisy has a sense of humor and she loves to play. The only thing is, you have to play her way."

Message from a Young Reader:

Boy's Best Friend Is a Skunk!

Jeff feeds Daisy a blueberry on the floor of their Lakewood, Ohio, home.

We've had a lot of pets in our home, but my favorite is Daisy. She's a skunk. I got her when she was a few weeks old.

Sometimes Daisy gets into trouble. She's curious. She's forever tipping over wastebaskets. And I'm forever picking them up. I don't mind that, except when they are full, and then, well, my mother says it's good training for a 14-year-old.

Daisy has a mind of her own. When she wants a door open, she wants it open. So, she's likely to try digging through or under the door, if she can't push it open. To save the floors we open the door as soon as we hear her scratching.

Daisy has a sense of humor and she loves to play. The only thing is, you have to play her way. It goes like this:

I get on my hands and knees on the floor. She pretends to be vicious and charges toward me with her tail straight up. If I don't flee in terror, she goes into Act II. She stomps her front feet. If that doesn't do it, she does a sort of reverse Ali shuffle—backing away three or four steps dragging her front paws.

At this point, I lunge at her, and she goes into the final act, which would be the curtain-dropper, if she wasn't de-scented. She twists her body U-shape, so the business-end is heading my way. Then she struts off—the victor.

Daisy's always dragging things off. Like my brothers' blankets. We've found socks under dressers and in closet corners, along with towels and T-shirts. She loves to drag away Mom's fluffy house slippers.

Yes, Daisy is housebroken—at least to the extent she finds newspapers I put in certain places. As long as I keep the papers clean—and skunks are very clean animals—she seldom lets me down.

Daisy is as independent as a cat, and as friendly as a dog. But she's really her own self. I'm not sure every home should have a skunk, but I'm glad ours does.

—By Jeff Ott (Age 14), Lakewood, Ohio

Daisy at her feeding dish. She's like a cat, like a dog—but mostly, says the young author, she's herself.

MICE ARE ACTUALLY HARDER TO KILL THAN RATS.

Special Formula kills Mice More Effectively Than Even A Rat Killer

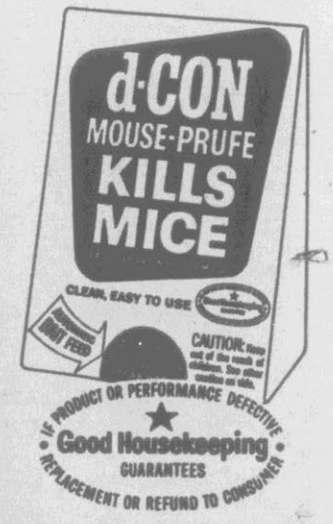

It's a scientific fact that a mouse is actually more difficult to kill than his bigger, stronger cousin—the rat.

While rats devour huge amounts of rat-killing bait, mice are small eaters . . . and nest in tiny, inaccessible locations. So mouse-killing bait must be more effective to do the job.

To overcome this problem, d-CON®, maker of America's most successful rat-killing product, developed a special formula to kill mice. It's called MOUSE-PRUFE® and it's concentrated with twice as much mouse-killing power than other leading brands. What's more, the killing ingredient in MOUSE-PRUFE is recommended by the U.S. Government.

CONVENIENT, EASY TO USE —NO VIOLENT POISONS

MOUSE-PRUFE feeds out of the package automatically. When mice eat enough, they go away and die. It's easier and cleaner than mouse traps—you don't have to handle traps or touch mice. There's no disposal problem! And it contains no violent poisons, so it's safe when used as directed, even around children and pets.

The "two-together" laxative!

(It's made with smaller doses of two laxatives.)

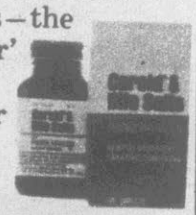

Some single ingredient laxatives work on the "Sunday punch" theory. One big dose of a strong laxative that can knock your system for a loop.

Caroid & Bile Salts Tablets are made up of two separate laxatives that combine the surety of a strong laxative with the gentleness of a mild one.

Together they help ease you to regularity without sudden urgency upset.

And because the dosage is pre-measured, Caroid & Bile Salts Tablets are thorough and so predictable you can almost set your watch by them. Take two tablets at bedtime. Get a good night's sleep. And you can expect to be back on schedule in the morning.

Gentle Caroid & Bile Salts Tablets—the 'two-together' laxative—to help put your system back on schedule.

Elizabeth Taylor

Raquel Welch

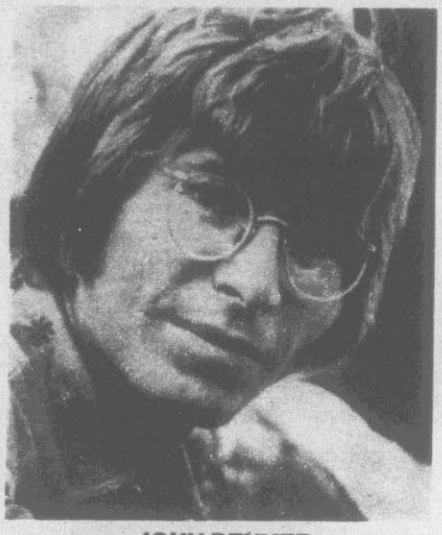

Cher Bono

Jackie Onassis

What advice would you give a celebrity? Here's a sample of comments from suggestion boxes in 1,000 Kinney shoe stores across the U.S.—To Elizabeth Taylor: "Buy more diamonds, lose weight, wear less makeup and wear sneakers—the better to sneak around after Richard." To Raquel Welch: "Live it up, stop being such a sexpot and learn to act." To Cher (of Sonny & Cher): "Keep your great personality, figure and fashion coming on strong!" To Superman: "Find a Superwoman, settle down and get married." To Bobby Fischer: "Go to Russia and beat Boris Spassky to prove that Americans are the greatest chess players." To Jackie Onassis: "Hide from photographers by wearing old clothes, no jewelry and shoes much smaller than your size 10's." To Archie Bunker (Carroll O'Connor): "If I were in your shoes, I'd give a pair to my father, who's a bigot just like you!"

The Fear of Not Working: Dr. William Boniface of the University of Cincinnati says we are afraid not to work because unemployment makes us helpless in the area of personal relations. Our craving for work aggravates the anguish of aging, too. Says Dr. Boniface: "In primitive societies, the work children perform may be needed, but in affluent communities, adults are more apt to say, 'I'm bigger than you and I can make you do what I want you to do!' Then, as adults ourselves, we ignore our parents, acquire children and play the other role, while the only reality we have to adapt to is whatever job we have." When we've aged, the children we didn't indulge don't indulge us. "They may indulge us with things, as we indulged them, but not by designing something useful for us to do, within our limited capacities. They find it so much simpler to do it themselves or to ignore. Mixed-up though our lives are, we learn to like working!"

JOHN DENVER
"I can only be me"

QUOTE: Folk singer John Denver is slender, sinewy, sincere. He also writes songs, good ones. "But once people label you a singer-songwriter," he says, "then you have to stick to that label for them. It's not fair to get out of the genre and sing other people's songs. But I don't consider myself primarily a songwriter. I'm an entertainer—and songs come very, very hard for me. They're slow and far between and very personal. I'd love to be a Bob Dylan or a Kris Kristofferson or a Cat Stevens. But I'm not. I can only be me. I can write 'Goodbye Again,' but I haven't written 'Readjustment Blues' by Bill Danoff or 'Jimmy Newman' by Tom Paxton. I'd much rather do a pretty obscure or relatively unknown song that touches me—and if it touches me, then I can make it touch other people—than do some mediocre song of my own that I just wouldn't do in front of other people." UNQUOTE

ANNIVERSARIES: Sir Winston Churchill died 8 years ago Wednesday. Alexander Graham Bell inaugurated transcontinental telephone service 58 years ago Thursday.

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour

RELATIVELY SPEAKING

I've relatives living near me,
I've others who live afar.
I've relatives I'm at peace with
And others with whom I war.

I've relatives who are wealthy
And some who are very poor.
There are those who are fairly decent
And others I can't endure.

Two kinds of relatives please me,
But few of either I've known:
The kind who leave me money
And the kind who leave me alone.

When I visited my husband's office with our five-year-old son and two-year-old daughter, they were overwhelmed by the size of it.

Looking down a long corridor for their dad, my son remarked that all the offices looked alike. I told him each man had his name on the door to make things easier.

Scotty smiled at Sherry and said, "All we have to do is find the door that says 'DADDY.'"

Our Story: BOLTARSON WILL NOT BE able TO PROVISION HIS SHIP AT THIS RAVISHED TOWN ON THE IRISH COAST. FOR TWO HIBERNIAN CLANS HAD BEEN AT WAR AND ONE SIDE HAD PAID THESE VIKINGS TO HELP THEM TO VICTORY. THEY DID, THEN TURNED ON THEIR HOSTS TO PLUNDER AND LAY WASTE THEIR LANDS.

THEIR RIOTOUS FEAST USED UP THE LAST OF THEIR SCANTY PROVISIONS AND NOW THEY MUST RESUME THEIR SUMMER RAIDS.

THEY INVITE BOLTARSON TO JOIN THEM AND HE IS EAGER. "SHALL WE, ARN? THERE WILL BE ADVENTURE, WILD FIGHTING AND RICH PLUNDER!" BUT ARN SHAKES HIS HEAD: "I HAVE LARGER AFFAIRS AWAITING ME IN THULE. I MUST HOLD YOU TO YOUR PROMISE."

BOLTARSON CAN NOT UNDERSTAND WHY ANY YOUNG WARRIOR WOULD NOT WELCOME SUCH AN ADVENTURE. COULD IT BE THAT THE SON OF PRINCE VALIANT IS A COWARD?

THEY SAIL ACROSS TO SCOTLAND, HOME OF THE WILD PICTS, BUT FIND NO VILLAGES TO RAID FOR BADLY NEEDED SUPPLIES.
