

Captured Enemy Papers Signal Cease-Fire Accord By Midweek

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — As captured enemy documents signaled a midweek initialing of a cease-fire accord, Henry A. Kissinger flew back to Paris today to join allied and Communist officials in the last steps toward ending the Vietnam war.

Officially, the White House continued to portray the purpose of Kissinger's return to the French capital as "completing the text of an agreement" to end the fight. But a flurry of developments Sunday bolstered the belief that an agreement soon will be signed, calling for a cease-fire, the return of prisoners of war, and machinery to reshape the South Vietnamese government. The major developments: —Senior South Vietnamese officials said captured documents from the Communist high command stated that an agreement will be initiated at 8 a.m. EST Wednesday, that it will be formally signed on Saturday and that a cease-fire will go into effect on Sunday, Jan. 28. —While shying away from specific dates, Washington sources indicated that Nixon has set a goal of wrapping up the Vietnam agreement this week and that, barring unexpected snags, the President is confident of hitting that target. —Congressional sources reported that Nixon plans a meeting with Capitol Hill leaders within the next few days, providing him a forum to brief

Paris that Vice President Spiro T. Agnew will be in Saigon on Jan. 28, presumably to demonstrate that Washington and Saigon were entering the post-war era shoulder-to-shoulder. —Agnew himself said he couldn't answer when asked whether he will be heading for Saigon, saying the President would have to make "that announcement." —Congressional sources reported that Nixon plans a meeting with Capitol Hill leaders within the next few days, providing him a forum to brief them on details of a peace accord. —The Viet Cong foreign minister, Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, arrived in Paris and said the Communists are ready to "do everything possible to achieve a quick settlement." —Kissinger and Hanoi Politburo member Le Duc Tho interrupted their talks on Jan. 13, when the U.S. negotiator returned to Washington for consultation with Nixon. The next day, Nixon dispatched Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., his chief liaison officer with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu, to Saigon and four other Asian capitals to outline terms of a tentative agreement. Haig returned from his mission Sunday and went immediately into meetings with Kissinger and Nixon. They met for more than two hours in two separate sessions before and after private inaugural-weekend receptions for the President's relatives and political supporters. Indications were that Haig brought Nixon a personal message from Thieu confirming the South Vietnamese leader's acceptance of major points of the tentative agreement negotiated by Kissinger and Tho. There were signs too, that Nixon immediately dispatched a response to Thieu. U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker paid an unusual late-night call on Thieu Sunday, staying at the presidential palace 10 minutes—just enough time perhaps to deliver a cable from Nixon.

UP TO THE U.S. — Viet Cong foreign minister Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh reads statement to newsmen Sunday at Paris Orly airport. She said the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese would "do everything possible" to achieve a quick settlement in peace negotiations. "But everything depends on the United States", she said. ## Justices Say Up To Woman And Her Doctor

Abortion Role Barred States

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today barred the states from interfering with the decision of a woman and her doctor to end pregnancies within the first three months. In the 7-2 decision striking down the Texas abortion law, Justice Harry A. Blackmun said medical data indicates abortion in the first three months, "although not without its risk, is now relatively safe." Therefore, he said, "any interest of the state in protecting the woman from an inherently hazardous procedure ... has largely disappeared." The ruling followed two years of deliberations by the justices. It was based predominantly on what Blackmun called a right of privacy. He said the right "is broad enough to encompass a woman's decision whether or not to terminate her pregnancy." Justices Byron R. White and William H. Rehnquist dissented, White said he could "find nothing in the language or history of the Constitution to support the court's judgment." Rehnquist, meanwhile, said "the court's sweeping invalidation of any restrictions on abortion during the first trimester is impossible to justify..." In a second 7 to 2 ruling, the court struck down Georgia's abortion law, finding three provisions to be unconstitutional. They were that in the first three months the operation be performed in an accredited hospital, that a medical committee must give its approval and that two physicians must concur with the woman's own physician that the pregnancy should be terminated. Blackmun said the "interposition of a hospital abortion committee is unduly restrictive of the patients' rights." Summarized, the court held: 1. The states are barred from restricting abortions within the first three months. 2. In this period the abortion decision must be left to the medical judgment of the pregnant woman's own physician. 3. After the first three months the state, if it chooses, may regulate abortion procedures "in ways that are reasonably related to maternal health." 4. In approximately the last three months of pregnancy, the state may if it chooses, regulate and even prohibit abortions to preserve the expectant mother's life of health. 5. The state may allow only licensed physicians to perform abortions and may prohibit abortions by nonphysicians. Blackmun wound up his 51-page opinion with these remarks: "This holding, we feel, is consistent with the relative weights of the respective interests involved, with the lessons and example of medical and legal history, with the lenity of the common law, and with the demands of the profound problems of the present day." "The decision leaves the states free to place increasing restrictions on abortion as the period of pregnancy lengthens, so long as those restrictions are tailored to the recognized state interests." "The decision vindicates the right of the physician to administer medical treatment according to his professional judgment up to the points where important state interests provide compelling justifications for intervention." "Up to those points the abortion decision in all its aspects is inherently, and primarily, a medical decision, and basic responsibility for it must rest with the physician." Some states prohibit abortions without the consent of the father. Since the Georgia and Texas laws do not have such provisions, the court's action today did not deal with that question.

Pending before the court are cases dealing with the abortion laws of Missouri, Illinois, North Carolina, Louisiana, Virginia, New Jersey, Utah, Ohio, Kentucky, Connecticut, South Dakota and New York. The court took no immediate action on them. Blackmun's opinion rejected the theory pressed by abortion foes that a fetus is a "person" within constitutional terms and must be protected by the state.

Legislator To Propose Allowing Joint Income Tax Return For N.C.

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — A veteran Wake County legislator said today he plans to introduce a bill this week which would permit a man and wife to file a joint state income tax return in North Carolina. "They would file a joint return like they do on their federal return when both husband and wife are working, but the deductions would be under present state law," said Democratic Rep. Sam Johnson. "It would save a lot of headaches for families," he said, "and the tax loss to the state wouldn't be but about $3 million a year. Look at the amount it would save in processing and preparing returns. I feel the people will support it or I wouldn't introduce it." Johnson, serving his fifth term in the House, said, "A joint return is something we ought to have."

Meanwhile, opponents of a proposed $190 million tax reduction are firmly in the saddle as the General Assembly moves into its third week. House Speaker Jim Ramsey said he had discussed the issue with several legislators and "I don't see any softening of their attitude on it. There is considerable opposition to the proposed tax reductions." The Advisory Budget Commission recommended the tax changes, including repeal of the tobacco and soft drink taxes. The main argument of "hold the line" forces is that the reductions might jeopardize the state's tax base two years from now in event of an economic slide. Former House Speaker Phil Godwin, now a member of the Senate, said he feels the "hold the line" forces are definitely in command in the Senate. "I haven't heard any clamoring from the people for tax reductions," said Godwin. "The only thing I've heard them clamoring for are better roads, improved services at mental institutions and things of that type." There were reports that legislation will be introduced, possibly tonight, to repeal the two-cent-per-pack state tax on cigarettes. Freshman Sen. Michael Mullins, R-Mecklenburg, introduced a bill Friday to repeal the one-cent soft drink tax. The measure drew immediate criticism from Sen. Charles Taylor, R-Transylvania, Senate minority leader. He said, "It's not the feeling of our delegation to recommend tax cuts at this time." The only tax reduction proposed by Gov. Jim Holshouser in his combined legislative-budget message to the General Assembly was removal of the state sales tax on medicine. This was one of his campaign planks.

Spilman said that the purging of the books, which is authorized every four years, necessitates the notification of everyone who has not voted in the county since 1968 but were on the books that year and prior to that time. The chairman, pointing out that some of the notifications have already been mailed, asked that persons receiving letters from the Board of Elections notify the board if they wish to have their names kept on registration books. He added that notifying the board of the person's wish to have his name kept on the books is all that is necessary but failure to do so will result in his name being removed from the records. Spilman said that the process does not disqualify a person from registering again for future elections.

Heavy Agenda Awaiting Planning-Zoning Meet

With three items on the joint commission and eight on the city commission agendas, the meetings scheduled for Wednesday night of the Joint City-County and the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commissions at 8:00 p.m. in city hall is one of the fullest agendas to face the commissions in some months. In the first part of the meeting, the joint one, three requests for rezoning are to be considered. These are: a request by David A. Evans, Sr. for rezoning three tracts from RA-20 to RA-9 and RA-6 for two tracts, respectively for property located east of State Road 1419 and south of Greenfield Terrace; a request by J.

Leo Hawkins for rezoning of two tracts from RA-20 to R-6 and Shopping Center respectively for property located west of North River Estates; and a request for rezoning from R-29 to nonoffensive industry for the Nelson Hopkins property. At the second part of the meeting, the Greenville portion, the eight agenda items to be considered are: A request by E. L. Harrington, Jr. for rezoning from RA-20 to neighborhood commercial for property located in the southeast quadrant of the intersection of Hooker Road and Arlington Boulevard; a request by David A. Evans, Sr. for annexation of Tracts No. 1 and 2 of North River Estates; presentation of a final plat for Lake Ellsworth Subdivision, to be made by W. E. Dansey; a preliminary plat to be presented by Philip E. Carroll for Section II of Arlington Plaza Subdivision; a preliminary plat for Section I, Cambridge Subdivision, located east of Hooker Road and opposite Fairlane Subdivision; a proposed extension of Graydon Jackson Mobile Home Park, located on the north side of White Road; presentation of a plan for the Southside Urban Renewal Area; and proposed amendments to Chapter 32 of the City Code, relative to zoning.

store. One patrolman was killed and two others wounded in a flurry of gunfire. After the initial shootout subsided to a standoff, police ringed John & Al's Sports, Inc., in Brooklyn's Williamsburg section with sharpshooters. But fear for the hostages prevented any forced showdown and police concentrated on keeping communications with the gunmen. The break came shortly before 1 p.m. Sunday when the hostages, led by a co-owner of the store, broke through plasterboard to a sealed off stairway and escaped to the roof while the gunmen were diverted. Four hours later, following more negotiations with police and pleas from some relatives, the gunmen walked out. Two carried a stretcher with a third who was wounded and the fourth walked ahead. Police said preliminary reports indicated their marksmen had not fired a shot since the original gunbattle, although the gunmen had fired volleys from time to time. Brooklyn Dist. Atty. Eugene Gold said he would go before a grand jury today with charges against the four that probably would include the murder of Patrolman Stephen R. Gilroy, the attempted murder of Patrolmen Jose Adorno and Frank Carpenter, kidnaping and weapons possession. Police said they were searching for a fifth man who was said to have been driving a getaway car when the robbery began about 5:45 p.m. Friday. They said the motive for the robbery was to obtain guns, not money. In a hand-written letter carried out by a doctor who attended the wounded gunman, the four described themselves as "servants of Allah" and said they were "expressing solidarity with all Muslims and oppressed people of the world."

NEW YORK (AP) — Four gunmen who had vowed to die for Muslim paradise in a hail of police bullets have surrendered peacefully after their nine remaining hostages made a dramatic escape to signal the end of a two-day siege in a Brooklyn sporting goods store. The end came late Sunday afternoon, over 47 hours after a silent robbery alarm alerted police who surprised the young gunmen in the store. One patrolman was killed and two others wounded in a flurry of gunfire. ## Social Services Commissioner

RALEIGH (AP)—Dr. Jacqueline Renee Westcott, a native of Goldsboro, was named today as commissioner of social services to succeed Clifton Craig. She will join Dr. Lonnie Horton, an aide to Gov. Jim Holshouser, gubernatorial aide, as the highest ranking blacks in his administration. In announcing her appointment, Human Resources Secretary David Flaherty said Dr. Westcott was "charged with the awesome responsibility of turning the state's welfare and social services program around so it is, once again, responsive to the needs of its citizens." Dr. Westcott has been coordinator for instruction at the National Laboratory for Higher Education in Durham since July, 1970.

'Purge' Warning

J. B. Spilman, chairman of the Pitt County Board of Elections, reported that the board has been authorized to purge or clear registration books of the names of all persons who were registered during 1968 or prior and who have not voted since 1968. Spilman said that the purging of the books, which is authorized every four years, necessitates the notification of everyone who has not voted in the county since 1968 but were on the books that year and prior to that time. ## Holdup Attempt Proved A Flop

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A robbery attempt by two youths here fizzled completely when the trigger of their .22-caliber revolver fell off, they made the mistake of leaving their victim with a dime and their getaway car failed to start. Police said the pair took $6 from a man in a telephone booth Sunday night and then tried to start their car. Meanwhile, the man, Willie Patterson, used his remaining dime to telephone police, and officers responded quickly enough to nab the youths in their car.

Jetliner Toll Yet Unknown

KANO, Nigeria (AP) — A Jordanian jetliner bringing 202 Moslems home from a pilgrimage to Mecca crashed on landing in a fog here today and burst into flames. Officials said most were aboard killed. The death toll was variously given as 162 and 191 as rescue teams went through the burned wreckage. Radio Nigeria reported about 40 survivors. Officials here said they have recovered 11 persons alive. A witness said the plane was engulfed in flames after it crashed on the runway at about 10 a.m. The world's worst air disaster took the lives of 176 persons in the crash of a Soviet Aeroflot jet near Moscow last Oct. 14. Mecca, the holiest place of Moslems, is in Saudi Arabia. The Royal Jordanian Airlines Boeing 707 left Saudi Arabia from Jidda, near Mecca, on the 2,100-mile flight to Kano.

Nixon 'Test' Yet To Come

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate takes up more of President Nixon's Cabinet nominations this week while the Democratic-controlled Congress awaits the two presidential messages expected to fill in details of his second-term program. Nixon's 17-minute inaugural speech Saturday to a chilled crowd of 35,000 outside the Capitol and millions watching on television drew generally favorable congressional reaction. But many Democrats echoed the reaction of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., that "the real test will be in the policies and programs yet to come," in the State of the Union message expected later this week and the budget due on Jan. 29. With reports of widespread budget reductions in domestic programs already rampant, Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., cautioned that, "if he intends to dismantle all the federal programs, there will be a major clash." With two Cabinet choices already approved, the Senate plans to act Thursday on Nixon's nomination of Elliot L. Richardson as the new secretary of defense. Action is due Tuesday on William P. Clements, who is slated to become deputy defense secretary, and James Schlesinger, to be director of the Central Intelligence Agency. James Lynn's nomination as secretary of housing and urban development may be acted on also during the week as may the choice of New York union leader Peter Brennan to be secretary of labor. Only one nomination, that of Caspar Weinberger to be secretary of health, education and welfare, faces any major delay.

Some Democrats are vowing to hold it up until they find out the size of anticipated budget cuts in its programs. Most of the generally muted criticism of Nixon's second inaugural address fell on the domestic section. House Speaker Carl Albert, noting Nixon's statement that America was built by work, not welfare, said no one believes welfare can solve everyone's problem but that "we do have people who can't do it all for themselves." Sens. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, and William Hathaway, D-Maine, all focused on the lack of specifics in the President's inaugural. "It was appropriate to re-stress our commitment to peace and to a better America," Muskie said, "but he didn't tell us how to do it." Hathaway called it "a nice speech" but added "we're still waiting for details."

Pitt Tax Take

G.A. Jones Jr., State Department of Revenue Commissioner, reported that one per cent sales tax collections in Pitt County for December amounted to $123,609.11. Neighboring net totals. Jones announced, included: Beaufort, $56,984.72; Greene, $8,812.46; Lenoir, $97,419.73; Martin, $29,998.04; Wayne, $130,024.28; and Wilson, $101,161.44. Jones reported that total net collections for the 79 participating counties amounted to $6,808,381.57.

Galifianakis Still In Process Of Making Change

RETURNS TO LAW PRACTICE — Nick Galifianakis, former N.C. congressman, has resumed law practice in Durham. Here he and partner Roger Upchurch (left) survey the firm's library. (AP Wirephoto)

DURHAM (AP) — Nick Galifianakis waved to an old acquaintance from a restaurant booth, then interrupted his meal to shake a hand.

"I'm glad you're back; we need a good lawyer," he was told.

Galifianakis replied, "I'm glad to be back."

The former congressman had not planned to reopen his Durham law practice, of course; North Carolina voters made that decision for him Nov. 7 by giving Republican Jesse Helms a smashing victory in their race for the U.S. Senate.

Occasionally puffing on a pipe, the stocly 44-year-old explained that his plans for the future haven't been made yet. Specifically asked about politics, he said, "I don't want to make a decision now."

He added, "I have been keenly interested in what's going on in government and will continue (that interest)."

Besides engaging in general law practice in his hometown Galifianakis said he may establish an office in Washington where he could be a "sort of lawyers' lawyer" for North Carolinians needing legal advice there. He has had no firm offer but he said he possibly will resume teaching law at Duke University, where he was on the faculty before being elected to Congress 6½ years ago.

But he said he would not have a regular class. "I may do a special seminar type thing, lecturing."

He has been asked to do television news commentary since his return but he has made no decision on that.

One of the problems he has encountered since becoming a private citizen again is handling mail and telephone calls from persons who want him to do something for them in Washington. "I tell them I'm no longer a congressman and give them the name of the man who is, but sometimes they say, 'I want you to handle it.' What can I do?" he wondered aloud.

Some of the mail he's received is being forwarded to Rep. Ike Adress, D-N.C., Galifianakis's successor in the 4th District. "I may ask Ike to borrow one of his secretaries for a while to handle it," Galifianakis said.

The former lawmaker gets free postage privileges for six months to take care of official matters. There are no other privileges for ex-congressmen.

Galifianakis said his last days in Washington were busy. His staff bought his desk and chair as farewell presents to him, then scattered to new jobs. Margaret Sugg, his administrative assistant, joined Andrews's staff.

On the congressman's final day, he said, "A workman told me to move out so he could pain in there. 'Vinegar Bend' (Rep. Wilmer Mizell, R-N.C.) got my old office."

Not all the material he accumulated on Capitol Hill has arrived in Durham yet, but Galifianakis said, "My attic may collapse from the weight of the boxes stored there. I get exercise every morning helping the mailman bring boxes from Washington."

In addition, he said his dining room table "is stacked high. I tell my wife she may have to become a secretary to answer letters."

Louise Galifianakis, he quickly noted, is happy he is back at home. "She makes lists of things for me to do on week-ends, and I haven't been around much to fix things around the house," Galifianakis said.

His wife "took it pretty rough" when Helms won, he said, adding that she had campaigned hard on his behalf. After the election, the couple went to the Caribbean for a vacation to relax.

Galifianakis remembers the day after his defeat was his daughter's ninth birthday. "She had a party, and the house was full of flowers. I felt like issuing a statement saying, 'Don't send flowers, send money.'"

Reporters who traveled with Galifianakis in the closing week of the campaign noted he was relaxed though very active, while his staff seemed to be tense and frantic. In retrospect, the former congressman said his approach "of seeing people is outmoded" in a race covering as big a state as North Carolina, and if he could have done it differently, he would have.

Galifianakis cited the roughly $400,000 he spent in winning nomination over Sen. B. Everett Jordan and running against Helms, and Helms' expenses of about $700,000 in winning the GOP primary against weak opponents and facing the congressman.

But Galifianakis stressed, "The easy way (to explain his loss) is to say it was a fluke. It wasn't. With a little unity we could have won the thing, the same as Nixon did," he said.

Galifianakis, noting "I don't want to get into a rehash, it would be sour grapes and I don't feel like sour grapes," nevertheless pointed out that the lack of coordination between his effort and that of Democratic gubernatorial nominee Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles hurt both men. Bowles lost to Jim Holshouser.

"I said just before the election there was no way Bowles could win and I could lose," Galifianakis recalled. He said he intends to prepare an analysis of the Senate race that will bring all his thoughts together. "It's one that will be dissected for years, particularly because of the interplay between the governor's race and mine," he said.

In the meantime, Galifianakis feels "a great sense of freedom now. There's a mantle of responsibility with holding public office, and I don't feel the burden of that."

"As a lawyer you are an advocate for your client. You are not responsible for looking at everything in the public interest. That's a much more direct, much simpler task."

"When you go into politics you have to know there's a very real possibility of losing," said the man who lost only one of 12 elections.

Fourteen Known Dead In N.C. Weekend's Traffic

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The North Carolina Highway Patrol reported today that weekend traffic accidents killed at least 14 persons in the Tar Heel state.

The fatalities raised the toll for this year to 72, which is 31 fewer than had died in the same period of last year on the state's roads.

Gary Thomas Balilen, 19, of Gastonia, died when he lost control of his car on a rural paved road in Lincoln County and hit an embankment.

Lonnie Robert Shore, 22, of Rural Hall, was killed when the car he was driving failed to stop at a railroad crossing on N.C. 66 a half mile north of Rural Hall in Forsyth County and was struck by a train.

Edward Samuel Kiser, 20, of Forest City, died when the car he was a passenger in ran off a rural paved road in Rutherford County and hit an embankment at high speed, troopers said.

Johnny Mack Mazoo Jr., 26, of Lumberton, was fatally injured when the car he was in went out of control at high speed, ran off a rural paved road in a curve and overturned just east of Lumberton.

Claude Nunn Bell, 56, of Rt. 1, Bunnlevel, was killed when he was struck by a car on a rural unpaved road two miles southwest of Bunnlevel in Harnett County.

Roy Clay Hensley, three months old, was killed when he was thrown from a car which had hit a guard rail and overturned on a rural paved road 2.8 miles north of Lexington in Davidson County.

Bynum Hartman, 46, of Rt. 1, Cherryville, was killed in a truck train accident at Bessemer City. The patrol said the truck pulled onto the railroad crossing and collided with the train.

Lee McMillan, 21, of Rt. 1, Winnabow, was killed when his car, traveling at high speed, ran off N.C. 133 about 18 miles north of Southport and struck several trees, the patrol said.

James William Gwynn, 5, of Rt. 3, Sanford, died when he was struck by a vehicle on N.C. 42 four miles west of Sanford.

Joe Henry Alston, 60, of Chapel Hill, was killed when the vehicle in which he was riding ran off a street and struck a building in Durham.

Marion L. Sellers, 35, of Kannapolis, was killed when he apparently lost control of his car and plunged into the Swananoa River in Asheville, the patrol said.

Dale Buck, 19, of Tabor City, was killed when his car ran into a car which was backing onto the road about 16 miles east of Tabor City. Troopers said Buck's vehicle was operating without lights at the time of early morning accident.

Earl C. Sherrill, 86, of Mooresville, a pedestrian, was killed Friday night six miles west of Mooresville in Iredell County, when he was hit by an oncoming vehicle while walking in the road. Troopers said the driver of the car claimed he was blinded by the lights of an oncoming vehicle.

David Bunch, 42, of Pantego, died when the car he was driving sideswiped another car on U.S. 264 in Beaufort County.

The Associated Press counts weekend traffic fatalities from 6 p.m. Friday through midnight Sunday.

Teacher Strike Hits St. Louis

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A strike by public school teachers in St. Louis — the first in the city's history — was called for today as similar walkouts continued in Philadelphia and Chicago.

Members of St. Louis Teachers Union Local 420 and the St. Louis Teachers Association, with both groups representing 2,800 members, authorized the strike in separate votes Sunday.

Despite a walkout, a spokesman for the school board said classes would be held for the system's 103,000 pupils attending 165 elementary and high schools.

In all three cities, pay raises are a key issue.

The St. Louis teachers have been demanding raises in bargaining sessions which have been under way since November. Their demands include a raise in the starting salary from $7,200 to $8,200. They also want a paid hospitalization program and a collective bargaining agreement.

Elsewhere, court proceedings were to begin today against 24 officials of the Philadelphia Federation of Teachers, the group leading a walkout which has started into its third week.

The union officials were named in criminal contempt proceedings for refusing to obey a court order to end the walkout.

Negotiators for teachers in Chicago, who have been on strike since Jan. 10, say three major issues remain unsettled in that walkout and that the school board can not "buy us off with a salary increase alone."

The Chicago Teachers Union rejected a 2½ per cent pay increase because the board's latest offer did not include demands for smaller class size, more preparation periods for elementary instructors and a shorter school year with no cut in pay.

Once Pesthouse For Servicemen

CHICAGO (UPI) — The first secular hospital in what is now the United States was for servicemen, but those who were admitted perhaps would have been better off somewhere else.

It was established on Manhattan Island in 1658, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica, by the Dutch West India Company as a pesthouse for soldiers and sailors. It later became a combination poorhouse, orphan asylum, penitentiary and clinic for the pauper sick and insane. Much later, it became Bellevue Hospital.

The first secular hospital without workhouse characteristics was the Pennsylvania Hospital, founded in Philadelphia in 1751.

His Life Once Was Time Of Disguises

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patrick Wolfe wears a conservative suit and tie now and spends most day behind a desk.

But there was a time when his life was a parade of disguises — from the frenzied appearance of a long-haired heroin addict, to the leather costume of a tough motorcyclist, to the slick garb of an out-of-town cocaine dealer.

"People used to talk to me about me," said Wolfe, for three years an undercover San Francisco narcotics officer.

"I sat in a restaurant one day with a guy who spent an hour warning me about Pat Wolfe. He even gave me a perfect description of myself.

"I thought he was trying to tell me he knew who I was, and I was getting pretty nervous. But when he left, he sold me two balloons of heroin," Wolfe, now an assistant police inspector, said.

At various times, Wolfe, 33, used at least six different identities. He wore long hair, grew a beard and learned the language of the street.

Told Stay Away From Women

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP) — Confidence man David Te Huia has been forbidden to marry for three years under terms of probation imposed by a magistrate here.

Te Huia admitted three charges of theft totalling $6,993 from a 70-year-old widow. He told her he would invest her savings at a higher rate of interest than paid by her bank.

Te Huia used most of the money on autos, one of which he wrecked.

Stipendiary magistrate John H. Murray imposed fines of $360 and forbade Te Huia marrying or having responsibility for the maintenance or support of any women or children while on probation.

High Designers Still Favor Pleated Skirts, Shirdresses

By PEGGY POLK
ROME (UPI) — Pleated skirts and shirdresses just won't go out of style.

Almost every high fashion designer in Italy included them in his, or her, collection for spring and summer shown this week to an international audience of buyers and fashion writers.

And most designers combined the two styles in a shirt dress with released pleats and a soft bow at the neck. Some made tucked bodices, others bloused them or fitted them snugly over the midriff.

The dresses, of silk or linen for day, georgette or chiffon for evening, usually had a jacket in a solid color to go with them.

Valentino did shirtdress jackets with boules sleeves. Renato Balestra used long raw linen jackets with self belts. The sleeves of Galitzines shirdresses showed below her short box jackets with sleeves turned back at mid-forearm.

Dresses at Midknee
Andre Laug gave his shirdresses a look of tunics with a longer underskirts in a narrower pleat or larger version of the same pattern.

The dresses, which stopped at midknee or just above the knee, were worn with 3 or 3 1/2-inch heels—Mary Janes, oxfords, plain pumps or pumps with strap trim.

In jewelry, beads replaced chains. Laug showed ivory and amber, valentine discs or gold and white enamel for day, gold and diamonds for evening.

The models had their hair cropped at the neck and cut in layers on the sides or wore page boys just to the neck. Hats ranged from Tiziani's wide brimmed straws to Bergin Usberk's turbans.

Tiziani showed cocktail dresses which fell from a modified empire an inch or so below the knee. Valentino, Capucci and Fabiani also joined in the revival of the cocktail dress but kept theirs at street length.

Capucci's long evening dresses were strapless or had halter tops or sharply plunging necklines while Mila Schoen also showed halters and plunging necklines and used openwork to make braless semi-transparent shirts even more revealing.

Valentino and Balestra both chose the violet as their signature flower for silk, linen, organza and chiffon prints.

Trousers Out?
And both eliminated pants suits from their collections.

Dozens of women in Valentino's audience were wearing pants Thursday night and he acknowledged their popularity but said they belonged in boutiques. "Trousers are completely finished for high fashion," he said.

Tiziani, Mila Schoen and Galitzine obviously disagreed. Tiziani paired looser, cuffs trousers with print blouses and long sleeveless pullovers, jackets and coats. Mila Schoen experimented with white linen

Household Hints

A care tip for upholstery fabrics: wipe up spills at once. Remove any remaining stain as soon as possible. Before removing any stains always test the fabric for colorfastness and shrinkage in an inconspicuous location.

To remove urine stains from upholstery, sponge with white vinegar and water, then with detergent and cool water.

To remove ballpoint pen ink from upholstery, sponge with acetone or nail polish remover. Repeat as necessary.

Daughter Takes Parents For All She Can Get

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter and her fiance told us they would rather have $1,000 in cash than a big wedding. Our stipulation was that she would tell us when it was to occur and we would give her the money.

They were married on a Saturday and we were not told until the following Monday [they sent us a brief note]. Altho they didn't honor their part of the agreement, we honored ours.

At Christmastime we gave our son a new car. He's a college student and needed reliable transportation. Our daughter immediately asked us where "her" car was. In other words, she felt that since we gave her brother a car for Christmas, she had one coming, too. Her husband makes a good living, but as an appeasement gesture, we told our daughter that when she was ready to buy a home, we would give her the price of the automobile toward a down payment.

These are the only children we have, but how much do you think parents owe their grown children?

BAFFLED IN BALTIMORE

DEAR BAFFLED: They don't "owe" their grown children anything. I don't know much about your son, but your daughter appears to be taking you for all she can get, and she's getting plenty.

DEAR ABBY: That dentist who said the reason people lose their teeth is because of carelessness and neglect ought to meet my husband. He is 95 years old and he still has all his own teeth, and never had a filling in any one of them. He never had a toothbrush in his mouth and never even heard of dental floss. Besides that, his teeth are so white and pretty folks keep asking him what dentist made 'em. He must have kept his mouth sterilized with some of the hottest words a man could release between his teeth.

NO JOKE IN NORTH CAROLINA

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are in our twenties. We have been married for almost a year and a half. We have no children. Our sex life is nil. We haven't slept in the same bed for nine months. In as many months we have not even eaten a meal together, nor have we held hands, watched TV together, or spent one evening together. We spoke to each other a month ago, and that was on the telephone.

Still, with our limited communication we have grown to love and appreciate each other more every day. You see, my husband is one of the thousands of men who is serving his country overseas. God willing, he will be home in three months, and then I will thank my lucky stars every day for having my husband near me. Every wife should follow suit. Courage to those who are separated from their loved ones.

MRS. RONALD M. HAYES

DEAR MRS. HAYES: Thank you for a beautiful reminder. Many of us casually take for granted the blessings others are denied.

DEAR ABBY: That woman who wrote to you about having a mad crush on her doctor has the same problem I had, only I didn't have sense enough to ask anybody's advice. I plunged right into a stupid affair with mine. All I can say is, if a woman has to have an affair, she should find herself a nice salesman. The last man in the world to pick is a doctor. He just doesn't have the time to carry on a decent affair. He has a hundred built-in excuses for not showing up, or canceling out, or running away early.

Mine never did call me by my first name, or last name. Or even the number on my chart. Sign me . . .

CURED IN ALBANY

DEAR CURED: According to my mail, [with few exceptions], the only woman a doctor has time for other than his wife is his nurse.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is with my husband, age 32, and his two nieces, ages 16 and 17. [They are sisters.] We went to an all-night roadhouse inn to have breakfast at 2 a. m., and my husband disappeared with the 17-year-old for two hours. They said they were upstairs looking at the view.

When they came back I didn't say anything, but I was plenty mad. Whenever my husband and I take these two nieces out, he takes turns dancing with them and leaves me sitting. It's gotten so he never takes me out alone, he's always got these girls with us. He has fixed them up with dates with some of his friends who are his age, and for all I know my husband could be seeing them himself. He has disappeared for whole nights and comes home with lipstick on his shirts.

I have told the girls' mother about this and she says I am silly to worry, but I don't think I am because there was a lot of talk about incest in their family between my husband's younger brother and his older sister.

When my husband says goodbye to these nieces, he kisses them on the mouth. My question? Is this healthy?

JEALOUS IN COLORADO

DEAR JEALOUS: It's not healthy, and neither is the relationship between your husband and his young nieces. Set this swinger down and talk to him like a Dutch Uncle, or that uncle will be in Dutch for fooling around with minors.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Peach Sauce Enhances Pudding

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
Cooks who like to give a new twist to packaged gingerbread may be interested in the following recipe. Here the gingerbread mix is made with mincemeat and the desert is served with canned cling peach sauce that also uses mincemeat.

GINGERBREAD PUDDING
1 package (14 1/2 ounces) gingerbread mix
1/2 cup ready-to-use mincemeat

Peach Sauce, see below
Prepare gingerbread according to directions on package. Before turning into pan, gently fold in mincemeat. Bake according to directions. Serve hot with warm Peach Sauce.

PEACH SAUCE
1 can (1 pound, 13 ounces) cling peach slices
1/4 cup sugar
1 1/2 tablespoons cornstarch
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons butter
1/2 cup ready-to-use mincemeat
drain peaches, reserving syrup. In a medium saucepan thoroughly stir in served peach, syrup, keeping smooth. Cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until clear and thickened. Add lemon rind, lemon juice and butter. Fold in peach slices and mincemeat. Serve warm over gingerbread.

GINGERBREAD PUDDING — It's prepared with a mix, the easy way, and has a sauce of canned cling peach slices. Mincemeat is added to both pudding and sauce.

Mrs. Spangler Is Speaker On Thursday

Mrs. Evelyn Spangler presented the program Thursday afternoon at the meeting of the Sweet Gum Grove Extension Homemakers.

"Take A Look At Youth And You" was the program topic for the afternoon.

Mrs. Howard Briley gave the devotional for the meeting. Two leader reports were given, Mrs. Mae Briley, family life, reported on "Prize Your Blessings," and Mrs. Mayo J. Rogers, citizenship, presented a new, United States flag to the community building.

Speaking on "The American Flag," Mrs. Rogers said that a flag is more than just a brightly colored piece of cloth. It is a symbol or a sign, that stands for an idea, a cause, or a purpose.

"Every country has a national flag as its chief symbol. Some countries have more than one flag to represent them. A country may have a national flag, an ensign, flown by naval vessels, a merchant flag flown by merchant ships and a battle flag carried by the armed forces," she continued.

Mrs. Rogers discussed the history of the flag and told of several legends concerning the flag. The program was concluded with the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag.

After the business meeting, Mrs. Margaret Tetterton served refreshments.

Department Members Hear Guest Speaker

Durwood Harris was guest speaker at the meeting of the Home Life Department of the Woman's Club of Greenville Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Frank Brown.

Local co-owner of Harris Super Markets, Harris spoke on food trends and prices. He explained why prices continued to rise and why certain favorite items could no longer be found on the shelves.

He showed how weather, labor shortage, crop failure and other things caused fluctuations in food prices.

Mrs. Ed Ricks presided at the meeting.

Assisting hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. Kelly Wallace and Mrs. Henry Andrews.

Bienvenue Club To Meet Tuesday

A group program will be held at the Tuesday meeting of the Bienvenue Book Club.

Members will discuss "Madame Bovary" by Gustave Flaubert. They are asked to bring their copies of the book to the meeting.

The meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Gene D. Easterling beginning at 1 p.m.

Makes 9 to 12 servings.
NOTE: A topping of whipped cream may be added if desired.

Proper To Air Disappointment

Robert Morgan, state attorney general and chairman of the ECU board of trustees, was perfectly proper in expressing his extreme disappointment in the board of governor's failure to expand the ECU School of Medicine.

The board has offered the "same old remedy" to the shortage of physicians, he said.

"The people of this state do not need another study," Morgan declared. "This question of whether or not a second state-supported medical school is needed has been studied, debated and discussed for more than eight years.

"The only question that really faced the Board of Governors was how to best expand the initial steps already taken toward this second state-supported School of Medicine. The legislation passed by the 1971 General Assembly clearly states that the current East Carolina program is 'a step in development of an expanded medical school'."

How right Robert Morgan is. Reginald McCoy, a member of the board's study committee, said he participated in the majority decision "because the board wouldn't go any further in any other direction." He too, felt that no further study is needed and he pointed out that 12 have been made in the eight years.

Perhaps consultants can help North Carolina developing a new medical school at East Carolina University, but no group of experts anywhere is in a position to tell us whether we should develop the school. That is a decision that the people of the state have already made speaking through their elected representatives. The board of governor's duty is to plan for sound expansion of a program which is already underway.

If the board of governor needs to spend $50,000 for guidance in how to best develop the East Carolina University School of Medicine, then the board ought to say that is what it is doing.

But if the board is spending $50,000 of our money on a study of a question which has already been decided and should now be history, we taxpayers should be told that our money is being squandered in this way.

Our nation would be in a constant uproar if one body were allowed to undo what previous ones had done. And in our state, we will see a collapse of government if boards and commission can undo what the General Assembly has done.

Many Rewards In Farm Life

By BRYAN HAISLIP
MOCKSVILLE, N.C. — "When you put a seed in the earth and see it grow, you have a small part in working with Mother Nature. It's a good feeling."

That's one of the intangible rewards, James A. Eaton explained, of life on the farm.

When neighbors join hands in cooperation, he added, they work together for a better community.

Nature and community kept Eaton on the farm when many of his generation went off to jobs in the city. Now 27, the father of two small daughters, he still has faith in the future of agriculture, which is his heritage.

Farm life is a good living, he said. A family operation, run with a close eye on sound business practices, can be profitable. Conveniences and services once enjoyed only in the city now are as available in rural areas.

Mechanization has reduced labor demands, leaving the farmer more leisure and time to get involved in his community.

Service Is His Hobby
Labor-saving equipment gives some farmers time to hunt and fish. Eaton uses his in community service.

"That's his leisure," Brenda said.

He is president of the North Davie Ruritan Club, on the county Agricultural Advisory Committee, active in PTA, a board member of the Dairy Herd Improvement Association, and a past president of the Piedmont Chapter of Young Dairymen. He's a church leader and an active Democrat, running twice for county commissioner. He lost, but by margins closer than customary in predominantly Republican Davie.

"I like the idea of trying to do what I can to make a better community," he said. "It's our responsibility to the next generation to leave things better than we found them."

Heritage and tradition color their life style, which revolves around the farm, church and community.

Heritage In The Land
The land has been in the Eaton family at least four generations. They worship at Eaton's Baptist Church, whose origin goes back before the nation's founding. Last year, the church observed its bicentennial with Eaton as chairman for the celebration.

The past sheds lights for the future, as Eaton sees it. "I like the idea of listening to those who are older, learning from their experience," he said. "Let them advise and help plan what needs to be done. Let the young do the leg work. That way, both share the credit."

Change has come to the countryside. Rural doesn't mean only farms any more. Many of their neighbors commute to nearby towns and cities for employment. The Ruritan Club he heads, Eaton remarked, has 27 members and 24 of them are not farmers.

The trend may help develop a better understanding between farmers and city dwellers. Too often, Eaton said, the consumer places blame for rising food costs on the farmer without recognizing that the economic squeeze is just as tight on the farm as at the supermarket.

It he'd had to live as his father lived, he might not have stayed on the farm, Eaton admitted. Cooperatives brought electric power and telephone service to the area, and assist in purchasing and marketing for an improved standard of living.

"I truly feel that cooperatives help us in many ways to raise the quality of rural life," he said. The Eatons were sponsored for the award by Dairymen Inc., one of the cooperatives with membership in the council.

BRYAN HAISLIP

Honored For Leadership

Eaton and his wife, Brenda, have done so with an enthusiasm which earned them recognition as the year's Outstanding Young Family for Rural Leadership and Development.

They went to Raleigh last week to accept the award, given by the Farmers Cooperative Council of North Carolina, at the council's 38th annual meeting.

Gov. Jim Holshouser, other top state officials, and member of the 1973 General Assembly were guests at the banquet as the Eatons were lauded for their role in improvements achieved in the Clarksville community of Davie County.

Eaton is in partnership with his father, Paul, and younger brother, Charles, on a dairy farm of some 350 acres about 12 miles from Mocksville. They milk 130 cows, raise their own herd replacements, have a small beef operation, and produce all hay and silage.

It's a twice-a-day routine, 365 days a year. The family does the work, with one full-time employe.

Aside from the typical farm wife's chores of housekeeping, gardening, and canning, Brenda serves as secretary for the partnership. Accurate and complete records are as essential on the farm, Eaton noted, as in any other business.

Allies In The Energy Crisis

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Capitalizing on popular concern over the heavily-publicized energy crisis, the oil and gas industry has begun its first serious campaign in 17 years to stop federal regulation of natural gas prices—as witness these two backstage developments:

The decision has been made at the White House that President Nixon this year will ask Congress to pass legislation decontrolling the price of natural gas at the wellhead.

At the same time, arrangements are nearly complete for one of the administration's most effective congressional lobbyists—Dr. Charles (cq) Walker, resigning as deputy secretary of the Treasury to become a private Washington consultant—to work for natural gas deregulation on Capitol Hill.

The two developments are interrelated in the eyes of jubilant oil state congressmen. Walker will be working closely with the White House on many projects as a private citizen. His involvement buttresses the seriousness of the President's commitment to deregulation of gas.

All this means the deregulators are off to a big jump against their enemies. Common Cause, the liberal activist lobby and a bitter foe of oil-gas interests, has been unaware that natural gas legislation was at hand. Anti-oil congressmen have been similarly caught off guard, ignorant that the old issue has been revived.

Indeed, natural gas legislation has been dead ever since a 1956 deregulation bill was vetoed by President Eisenhower after the revelation that an oil lobbyist had solicited a Republican

Senator's vote with an offered "campaign contribution."

What has revived the dormant issue is the energy crisis, threatening natural gas shortages which will be bad this winter and much worse next year. The industry's argument: to increase production, the government must permit artificially low prices at the wellhead to rise. In the forthcoming congressional fight, the consumer will be given the choice of no natural gas at a low rate or an adequate supply that costs more.

The Nixon administration's new energy program is being shaped to stimulate additional oil-gas exploration. One version of the deregulation bill being studied at the White House would remove controls only for new production, keeping present production regulated — a distinction fiercely opposed by the industry.

Similarly, a tax incentive scheme for exploration, gathering dust at the Treasury since 1969, is being reexamined. It would require that the tax savings realized from the oil depletion allowance be used to finance exploration. Whether or not this is actually proposed, further reductions in the depletion allowance can now be ruled out of this year's tax reform bill.

All this adds up to the energy crisis suddenly reversing what had been the oil-gas industry's steadily deteriorating power position with an increasingly more liberal Congress. Politically unpopular though it is, the industry—backed by Mr. Nixon—can now take the legislative offensive and even hope for support from old enemies.

Consider Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, chairman of the Senate In-

Strength For Today

CRIME
Can it actually be true that one would not dare to walk down the streets of some of our large cities after dark? The word "mugging" has become familiar to us all. Purses are snatched. An elderly man and a young man, after receiving a cruel beating from an assailant, had their eyes gouged out so that they would not be able to pick out the offender (or offenders) in a lineup.

Crime will not cure itself. Policemen — brave and committed as most of them are — cannot entirely handle the crime problem. Juvenile delinquents are increasing at a terrific rate. We draft men to go to the ends of the earth to conduct war, yet we have a war situation right on our hands with the crime problem. Once it was the pirate. Now it is the hijacker. Habit-forming drugs have come in to make the situation indescribably terrifying. When one of our state governors can be shot at point blank by a would-be assassin things have indeed reached about the limit.

What is the cure? There is no complete cure. But certainly we can make the world in which we live not only a better but a safer place in which to live.

We daily with crime to our undoing. For the sake of our children, our country, our moral ideals let us not do it. We love our country, but we may not have a country to love unless the crime problem is handled effectively.

Fire-Thyself Solution

WASHINGTON — President Nixon has vowed to cut the bureaucracy in Washington. This is a noble endeavor which every other President in the history of this nation attempted — and failed.

Now comes a plan devised by a friend, John Rogers of Alexandria, Va. It is worth serious consideration and I don't think President Nixon's super-Cabinet should reject it out of hand.

The Rogers Plan is to make bureaucracy reduction an incentive for government employees rather than a punishment. Anyone who can figure out how to do away with his own job gets to retire at full pay for the rest of his life.

An administrator who can figure out a way to abolish his entire agency would not only receive his own salary for the rest of his life but would get a bonus of 10 per cent of the agency's budget for the next five years.

"I don't understand where the financial saving would be," I said to Rogers in a bar where he laid out the idea.

"Salaries are only a small part of the cost of a bureaucracy," he said. "The big savings would come from shutting down offices, parking lots, electricity, heat and saving money on file cabinets, typewriters, Xerox machines and paper clips. Eliminate the job, pay the man his full salary and you'll still save 90 per cent of the cost of running the government."

ART BUCHWALD

"It sounds good on paper, Rogers but a lot of bureaucrats like their work. If you retire them at full salary, they'll go nuts."

"They will not be prohibited from working in the private sector. Private enterprise needs as many bureaucrats as the government."

"They could work for AT&T, American Express, Sears & Roebuck or the insurance company of their choice."

"That's true," I agreed. "As long as they can shuffle paper I guess they don't care whom they shuffle it for."

"The important thing," Rogers said, "is that we make it a challenge for bureaucrats to do away with their own jobs. They have to come up with good, solid reasons why they're expendable. We would set up a review board to go over each case. If a man can't justify a reason for firing himself, he will be sent back to his department."

"In spite of what people think, bureaucrats like a challenge, and what could be more challenging than coming up with a reason why your job isn't necessary to the running of the government."

"But there are some

Other Editors Say A Meaningful Law

(Durham Morning Herald)

It should be high on the list of priorities for this General Assembly to enact a meaningful and comprehensive code of ethics law for itself and other public officials, something previous sessions have neglected to do.

Such a measure had been introduced by Sen. B. L. Barker, D-Wake. The bill, drawn up with the assistance of the staff of Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt, who had proposed a code of ethics during his campaign, covers elected and appointed officials and employees of the state.

And it authorizes counties and municipalities to enact conflict of interest ordinances as they deem necessary and desirable. The Barker measure provides that "no public official shall use his official position of office to obtain financial gain for himself, any member of his household or for any business with which he, a member of his household, or near relative is associated."

It bars public officials from soliciting or receiving anything of value, including a promise of future employment, based upon any understanding, or where it reasonably could be inferred, that such would influence the discharge of duties.

Among the numerous other requirements, it sets up a system for disclosing financial interests and establishes a State Ethics Commission as a police agency for enforcement of the law.

Through the years, it has been disappointing that legislature after legislature has avoided action on a comprehensive code of ethics bill.

The issues have been avoided far too long, and certainly this legislature should not add to that record of neglect.

A Shortcut To Becoming Rich?

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — When you first meet him, you probably won't guess what sets Tyler Hicks apart from so many others. He has just crossed 50, has a wife, children, suburban home and a good job to which he commutes five days a week.

Hicks will tell you himself that except perhaps for such qualities as motivation and mental attitude he is like most other people. But he isn't.

Probably the most startling difference between Hicks and you is that consistently, year after year, he makes more than $100,000 — sometimes much more — in his spare time, and that means only 15 hours a week at work he enjoys.

9-5-type job as a publishing executive because he finds the discipline seems essential to his way of life. He also heads a $2-million financial institution. The rest of the time is spent on small ventures.

Recently he bought a $100,000 yacht. And while he is an expert on using cash intensively, so much has been coming in lately that he is for the time being unable to invest it quickly. He paid cash for the yacht.

Yes, he is different, but he maintains that almost anyone else can earn $5,000 to $50,000 clear profit each year for no more than 10 to 15 hours of work a week.

Hicks does it by writing, — 32 books to date—but also through ownership of rental property, consulting, mail-order, business education by mail, a pool room managed by a relative and a small marine equipment company.

You can make extra income, he maintains, in stores, rental property or services, particularly in what he calls "paper" businesses that require only a pencil, paper and telephone.

Most small retail enterprises can be absentee owned at a profit he says, "but you've got to use your head." Poor training and preparation is a major reason for failures. "Too often the managers don't look ahead; they fail to plan their expenses for a year and bump from one crisis to another."

Rental property, he believes, is one of the best methods for building riches. Always buy multiple units, he insists, and try to pay no more than three to seven

Boyle Views Life

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Sidewalk comments by a Pavement Plato:

How many things are you owned by?

The question is not an idle one. It is, in a way, a test of how wise you have come.

HAL BOYLE

Many people like to brag about their possessions and how valuable they are. When they get an expensive new car or finer house, they trumpet it aloud as if it were as important as the Second Coming of deity.

What they fail to realize is that usually they don't possess their possessions; their possessions possess them.

The great philosophers throughout history have advised that the best life is one lived simply, that the fewer things you want, the fewer things you need. You are more content if you appreciate the realities of life than if you are swept or swayed by its trappings.

There is much truth in the saying "There is nothing more cowardly than a million dollars." Show me an ordinary, easygoing run-of-the-mill guy who is made unexpectedly rich, and in three months I'll show you a man changed — not for the better but for the worse. He'll be avaricious, apprehensive, suspicious, and afraid to buy a friend a drink at the bar for fear that he will be made a sucker.

He will think everybody is after his money — he'll be only half right there — and he will have become a peon, vassal, and slave of it.

In the society of thieves and robbers we dwell in — and thieves infest every human society as fleas do dogs—what pleasure lies in owning great jewels or vast art collections? Mere vanity alone. To keep them safe you have to put them in a bank vault or donate them to a museum.

Yes, a life of money is often a life of fear. The more you admire money, the less value do you put on people — and therefore the greater fool you become. Because the greatest wealth a human being can have lies in the wealth of human relationships he has. We make each other rich by whom we are and what we do for one another.

All a man needs to be happy is a job he likes, a small home with a front porch he can sit on during a summer evening with his shoes off, a sweet wife who hums in the kitchen, and a child or two glad to call him father.

Naturally, it would be nice if he also had a barrel of bourbon aging in the basement. It wouldn't wreck his character, and few thieves would try to rob him of it. Happiness is always a simple thing.

Assassinations, Terror Tactics Seen

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. military officers predict Communist forces in South Vietnam will revert to guerrilla tactics, terror and assassination after a cease-fire.

Influenced by intelligence reports and past history, these American officers expect a cease-fire at best to be only a pause in the long war between the Vietnamese for control of the South.

They doubt that an international supervisory organization will be able to prevent this happening, even with a policing force of thousands.

Henry Kissinger, who will return to Paris today in hopes of completing a peace agreement with North Vietnamese diplomats, said recently that the United States aims to avoid ending the war "in such a way that it is just a beginning of another round of conflict."

But outgoing Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird sounded pessimistic about a lasting peace in Vietnam when he told his final news conference last Friday:

"I hope and pray there will not be any killing in Vietnam, or Laos, or Cambodia, or in Southeast Asia, but as a practical man I cannot assure you of that...."

"I am not promising anybody that, under any kind of agreement, because I know the history of Southeast Asia... I am talking about every possible kind of agreement," Laird said.

In private, American military officers are even more skeptical. They view the continued presence of North Vietnamese troops in South Vietnam during the formal cease-fire as potentially fatal to peace.

There is nagging worry too about the quality of some South Vietnamese leadership, particularly in certain divisional and regimental commands. And there is no way of telling how the South Vietnamese army will stand up without the support of U.S. air power and American advisers.

While these doubts about the South Vietnamese persist, American military officers say they have no doubts the Communists are preparing for a long-haul military effort, probably involving a switch in tactics from large-unit battles to guerrilla-type warfare.

As recently as last week, these officers learned of orders from the Central Office for South Vietnam, which directs Viet Cong activities, calling for increased efforts to interfere with pacification and to develop underground agents in government-controlled hamlets.

In recent weeks, the North Vietnamese were said to be moving to set up a logistics command and headquarters in northern Tay Ninh Province from which Saigon and the heavily populated area around the capital could be threatened.

South Vietnamese troops in recent days appear to have been attempting to checkmate this move by driving North Vietnamese regiments back from the base area.

House Is Seeing More Activity

By SAM D. BUNDY
The weather warmed up a bit in Raleigh this week and in like manner things began to warm up a little in the General Assembly. In the House of Representatives approximately 65 bills have been introduced. Many of these are local in nature; however, some of them are statewide and will bring much debate, both in committees and finally on the Floor of the House. Some of the main ones are:

- 1) Restoration of the death penalty
- 2) Driving under the influence
- 3) Whiskey-by-the-drink
- 4) Reorganization and restructuring the Highway Commission
- 5) Equal Rights Amendment
- 6) Changing Primary date to August or September, and
- 7) State assumption of the total financial obligation in the operation of public schools.

These and other bills will, as the session progresses, cause many a Henry Clay or Patrick Henry to arise and orate to some length.

The two major items of the week, however, were the Governor's Legislative and Budget Message to a Joint Session of the Senate and House and the unveiling of the proposed budget for the 1973-1975 biennium. Let's take the Message first. It is safe to say that Governor James E. Holshouser must have felt an immense satisfaction, both political and personal. Political satisfaction because he walked down the aisle of the House as the first Republican Governor of the 20th Century. Personal satisfaction because, as he said, he was returning home. He was referring to the fact that he has served several terms in the General Assembly as a member of the House of Representatives. He was well received and his message was delivered in a sincere manner. Reactions to his message were all the way from bold and far reaching, a responsible message, farsighted and ambitious to let's wait and study it (the message) and to a very prominent Democrat saying, "He has outliberalized us".

Now, let's look at the Budget. The Advisory Budget Commission estimates for the 1973-75 biennium that there will be available for use in the General Fund, the amount of 3.16 billion dollars and recommends a total expenditure of 2.83 billion dollars, which would leave an estimated remaining availability of 325 million dollars. The advisory Budget Commission further recommend that a total tax cut of 190 million dollars be granted leaving a workable surplus of 134 million dollars. Gov. Holshouser in his Budget Message recommends expenditures of an additional 313 million dollars, which would increase the total expenditures in the General Fund to 3.15 billion dollars, which would leave an estimated remaining availability of 11 million dollars. Further, he has recommended a proposed repeal of the tax on medicine, which would amount to 8 million dollars, thus leaving a net remaining availability of 3.1 million dollars. Counting the Highway Fund and matching funds from the Federal Government, if they continue, the total budget for 1973-75 will be approximately 5.3 billion dollars on the basis of the Advisory Budget Commission recommendations and 5.6 billion on the basis of Governor Holshouser's recommendation, or a difference of approximately 300 million dollars. The question then develops to the point of cutting taxes or providing necessary services. The sentiment I hear most expressed is to provide the services first. The final answer will be given sometime in May.

Finally, I am attending classes conducted by Secretary of State Thad Eure, in which he discusses the rights, immunities, and responsibilities of a legislator, along with parliamentary procedure, rules and regulations.

Bettie and I, along with Vernon and Louise White, attended the banquet of the North Carolina Farmer's Council Cooperative on Wednesday night at the Sir Walter and we had the good fortune to sit and talk with Sam Winchester, former Pitt County Extension Agent. See you next week.

Road Brings 20th Century To Indians

NAZKO, B.C. (AP) — Progress is only a few miles away from the isolated Nazko Indian people of the Chilcotin district, about 400 miles north of Vancouver.

A two-lane gravel road from Quesnel is to replace the barely passable dirt trail that is the only link with the outside world for the Nazkos and the even more remote Kluskos Indians.

Brendan Kennedy, 25, a community development worker for the British Columbia Union of Indian Chiefs, has been monitoring the road-building project and says there is not much time left to prepare the Indians to meet the 20th century.

Kennedy said the Nazko and Kluskos people, mostly hunters, fishermen and trappers, have led isolated and unchanged lives in their hilly jackpine country since before 1900.

The largest community is Nazko, about 65 miles from Quesnel, with a population of 100. It's the only place with running water — cold. Many are on welfare and have inadequate diets, health and housing standards, said Kennedy. Total population of the Nazko and Kluskos is 230 in a 400-square-mile area. Supplies are brought in twice a week to Nazko by truck over the dirt road.

Kennedy was hired by the union last May to help the Indians to organize. He had been living and working among them for five years, supporting himself by odd jobs and through the hospitality of the Indians.

"The kids, who go away to school, are the major carriers of information and communication, and many of the parents live vicariously through their kids."

Kennedy says the area is to be opened up, first for logging and then for tourism, and he hopes the Indian people will be able to cash in without having to pay too high a price.

As he travels from settlement to settlement, he acts as a sort of ombudsman or information officer to let the Indians know how to take advantage of what outside help is available.

terior Committee Representing a non-oil-producing state, he voted against deregulation in 1966; now he suggests the need for deregulation.

Even more worrisome to consumer lobbyists was the Dec. 23 editorial advocating deregulation by the Washington Post, scarcely a mouthpiece for the oil barons. "There is a tendency in our part of the country to assume that whatever is good for the oil-and-gas lobby must be disastrously bad for the rest of us," said the Post. "Deregulation of gas is an exception to the rule."

To counteract the industry's new allies, the consumer lobbyists count heavily on Rep. Torbert Macdonald of Massachusetts, chairman of the House Commerce subcommittee that handles natural gas legislation. Macdonald voted against deregulation as a young, second-term congressman 17 years ago. He has not basically changed his views and now has the power to do something about it.

His and the consumer lobby's problem will be the reality of fuel shortages, whose menace is obliterating old ideological battlelines. That's why the oil and gas industry this time is going to Congress with not only unusually solid support from the White House but with an unusually divided opposition.

bureaucrats who might never think of a good reason." "That's why we offer bonuses to their administrators. If the administrator can conceive of a reason why his department should be abolished, then the bureaucrat will be automatically fired though he, too, will receive his full pay."

"That makes sense; it could be a team effort."

"Exactly," Robers continued. "Agencies would be competing with each other to see how fast they could close themselves down. In six months, 80 per cent of all government employees will be on retirement at no financial loss to themselves."

"But can we run the government with only 20 per cent of the labor force?"

"No sweat," said Rogers. "Essential services can be maintained by a skeleton task force of government employees who couldn't come up with any good reasons why their jobs should be eliminated. It they're too dumb not to figure out how to take advantage of the reduction incentive plan, then they can keep working until they do."

"It's an idea whose time has come," I said. "All we need is to get the President to fund a new agency to get the plan under way," Rogers said.

"But that means hiring more bureaucrats," I protested.

"That's the government's problem — not mine."

Schedule 3 Irish Plays

WINSTON-SALEM. — Three one-act plays are scheduled for the Dome Theatre at the School of the Arts at 8:15 p.m. on January 24-27 and January 31-February 3. Riders to the Sea by J. W. Synge and Purgatory by W. B. Yeats will share the bill with Dark Lady of the Sonnets by the Irish-born playwright G. B. Shaw.

The triple bill has been directed by Paul Meier, Instructor in Speech, Ernest Foster, a Kenan scholar in design, has designed a non-representational set which uses the configuration of the geodesic dome which houses the School's workshop theatre.

One of the best known of Synge's works, Riders to the Sea is set in a fishing village and centers on a family who has already lost five men to the sea. Essentially a poetic ghost story, Purgatory involves an old peddler, his bastard son and a pattern of repeated murder. The third piece, Dark Lady of the Sonnets is a light-hearted comedy, written by Shaw to help raise funds for a National Theatre as a memorial to Shakespeare.

When Lady Aerobat Takes Off For A Spin, She Really Spins

THE FLYING WIDOW—57-year-old widow Jeanne Munns prepares for a spin in her biplane; not just a routine flight, but a real spin. (AP Wirephoto)

By BILL WINTER
Associated Press Writer
OXFORD, Ohio (AP)

When 57-year-old Jeanne Munns feels restless, she jumps in her tiny open-cockpit airplane, roars into the sky and does a few turns and rolls.

"My hair's getting some gray in it, but I'm not lookin' for a rocking chair," said Mrs. Munns, a devoted aerobat.

Mrs. Munns, widowed in 1954, grew up afraid of flying. But she set aside that fear when she had to hurry to the side of her sick mother in Georgia eight years ago.

Flown to Georgia by a friend in a private plane, she instantly fell in love with air travel.

She enrolled for flying lessons and earned a license.

In 1971, an acquaintance introduced her to the tiny Pitts Special, a 1,500-pound dual-wing aerobatic plane which Mrs. Munns says "looks like you could put it in the palm of your hand."

"The first time I rode that plane I just flipped," said the 5-foot-4, 140-pound pilot. "I just had to have it."

Mrs. Munns shelled out $26,000 for one of the tiny two-seat planes and traveled to Wyoming to pick it up at the manufacturer's plant.

"Boy, that was something to get the call that it was ready," she said. "But when I got out there and saw those mountains, I had other ideas."

"About all I could do (flying home) was follow the roads through the mountains. It got a wee bit cold up there."

Mrs. Munns, who'll travel to Miami, Fla., this week for advanced instruction in aerobatics, recalls with laughter her introduction to the sport three years ago.

She cringed, she said, when the pilot announced he would "do a couple of spins."

"I told him to wait, that I was in no hurry," she said.

"But six months later, I could do 19 turns at a time in a spin. I was scared at first, but I wanted to do it."

"I don't get dizzy and I don't get sick, if you know what I mean."

Mrs. Munns, a Tulsa, Okla., native who's been a part-time show in several air shows, recommends aerobatic flying to any healthy 57-year-old woman, or man.

"It's probably the safest flying in the world," she claimed.

"You're on top of it. You're with it. You don't just sit back and let things happen."

Speech-Change In Early Hours

By PEGGY SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — In the early hours of Inauguration Day, President Nixon revised his inaugural address to include thoughts his younger daughter said "came to him in the night" about other presidents' dreams for America.

What he added amounted to a recognition that a president alone can't carry out his dreams.

He appealed for the prayers of the people for God's guidance and for their help so that, together, "we may be worthy of our challenge."

Julie Nixon Eisenhower said this was one of her favorite parts of the 1,800-word, 17-minute inaugural speech. The family had not read the text in advance, she told a reporter at a reception following Sunday's White House worship service.

At about 6 p.m. on the eve of the inauguration, she said, the President made some minor adjustments in the address, most of which he wrote himself over a period of weeks. He even revised it while driving to the Capitol to deliver it, she added.

The addition of two paragraphs near the end incorporated thoughts that Julie said "came to him in the middle of the night" after a

Princess Anne Spent Weekend With 'Friend'

LONDON (AP) — Princess Anne spent the weekend fox hunting with the man who some gossips report she will marry.

Lt. Mark Phillips, the army officer who is serving with the Queen's Dragoon Guards in Germany, took a weekend furlough to join the 22-year-old princess at the southern England estate of Comte Guy de Plete.

The princess and Phillips rode to the hounds with the Blackmore and Sparksford Vale Hunt in Somerset.

Phillips later caught a car ferry across the English Channel to drive back to his regiment in North Germany.

Speculation that Queen Elizabeth's daughter and Phillips are soon to be engaged reached a climax earlier this month when the two were seen kissing in public before he went off to join his regiment.

Nonfarm Jobs In N.C. Sees Rise

RALEIGH (AP) — Nonfarm employment in North Carolina increased 14,100 in December, Labor Commissioner Billy Creel said today.

The increase pushed total nonfarm employment to 1.9 million, a rise of 61,500 above the total for December 1971. Most of the December increase—13,300 jobs—came in retail trade.

Creel said only four employment groups reported job decreases last month—construction, tobacco stemmeries, wholesale trade and schools.

Witchweed Still Fought

ATLANTA (AP)—Thirteen areas in North Carolina have been released from quarantine for witchweed, a plant parasite, by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) and 11 other properties in North Carolina and South Carolina have been added to the quarantine.

The 13 areas released from quarantine are located in Jones, Moore, Richmond and Wayne counties in North Carolina. The action takes after surveys conducted by USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) disclosed that no witchweed had been found in these areas since 1970.

Conversely, witchweed infestations were found on 11 other properties, located in Jones, Lenoir, Richmond and Wayne counties, N.C., and Chesterfield County, S.C. These have been added to the quarantine list, the USDA said.

APHIS officials said the quarantine restricts the movement of soil, plants, certain agricultural crops, farm and construction equipment and other items which can spread the parasitic plant.

Properties are released from regulation only after treatments succeed in eradicating the plant and no evidence of infestation can be found for a 3-year period.

Early Saturday, in his tuxedo in the White House sitting room, he added these two paragraphs:

"As I stand in this place, so hallowed by history, I think of others who have stood here before me. I think of the dreams they had for America and I think of how each recognized that he needed help far beyond himself in order to make those dreams come true."

"Today, I ask your prayers that in the years ahead I may have God's help in making decisions that are right for America. And I pray for your help so that together we may be worthy of our challenge."

Report Hughes Apparent Heart Attack Victim

LONDON (AP) — Billionaire Howard Hughes has suffered an apparent heart attack, the Daily Mirror reported today.

The mass-circulation tabloid said the 68-year-old Hughes has been confined to bed in his ninth-floor suite at the plush "Inn at the Park" hotel and ordered to stop work.

The paper reported Hughes aides as believing the American had suffered a heart attack, but also quoted a spokesman as saying: "It is true that Mr. Hughes has not been too well. But he is now fit and well. During the past week Mr. Hughes has been confined to bed."

The Mirror, which also reported that an American heart specialist had been called in last week, reported that special smooth plastic-coated matting had been laid over the thick carpets in Hughes' suite so he could move around more easily in a wheelchair which was delivered last week.

Meanwhile, the hotel still insisted that Hughes was not in the hotel.

Work Begun On ECU Building

Piles are being driven to support the first section of the new East Carolina University School of Art building.

ECU business manager Cliff Moore said work began late last week at the site, located on the main campus where the now demolished Wilson Dormitory was.

This first phase is expected to cost about $2,010,000 and the two-story structure should be completed in about a year. Odell and Associates of Charlotte, the architects retained for the project have designed the building, so it can easily be doubled in size when funds become available, Moore said.

A Marriage Of Activists

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jane Fonda, the actress and antiwar activist, has married Tom Hayden, one of the Chicago 7 defendants.

A spokesman said Sunday that they were married Friday night at ceremonies which included Vietnamese songs and Irish jigs. He said they plan to work together for the Medical Aid Fund for Indochina.

About 100 well-wishers attended the wedding ceremony at Miss Fonda's Laurel Canyon home. On hand were Vietnamese students, her actor father, Henry Fonda, and brother Peter.

Miss Fonda, who was recently divorced, said she wanted to have a baby and that both she and Hayden agreed it would be better to be married "rather than hassle with criticism that would drain our energies from our real work."

Miss Fonda was married to French film director Roger Vadim. Her 4-year-old daughter, Vanessa Vadim, was at the ceremony.

The free-form wedding was performed by the Rev. Richard York, an Episcopal priest from Berkeley.

From Camel To Computer

NEW YORK (UPI) — From camels to computers in less than a decade.

That's the story of the sheikdom of Abu Dhabi in the Trucial States.

As late as 10 years ago the principal occupations in the Trucial States were fishing and pearling. And the camel was the major form of transportation.

But in the early 1960s oil was discovered. That brought revolutionary changes to the 50,000 residents of Abu Dhabi and their 85,000 neighbors in the other five sheikdoms along the Persian Gulf. Progress and development came with a rush.

Today the annual government revenue from oil in Abu Dhabi alone is $378 million, or over $7,000 a year for every man, woman and child. The automobile is king and camel-driving has almost become extinct.

When the oil and the money started flowing, the Finance Ministry of Abu Dhabi installed a small NCR 500 computer to help keep track of the sheikdom's growing affluence.

As the government discovered the values of electronic data processing, other computer applications were added—payroll preparation, census and statistical reports, and general accounting for various government departments. The 500 was replaced by the larger Century 100 computer in 1970.

Progress caught up with Abu Dhabi in a hurry. One of the operators of the computer is a former camel driver. And today the number of computers per capita in the former British Protected States equals or exceeds that of most western countries.

Three Recording Artists Tapped Four Times For Grammy Awards

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Music Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Three recording artists—Aretha Franklin, Curtis Mayfield and Don McLean—each have four nominations for Grammy Awards.

The Grammys will be presented in 47 categories during a televised ceremony March 3 in Nashville, Tenn., it was announced Sunday night.

Grammy Awards—to the recording industry what Oscars are to the film world—are voted on by 3,000 members of the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences.

Records eligible for the upcoming awards were released between Oct. 16, 1971, and Oct. 15, 1972.

Miss Franklin's nominations come in three categories: pop singing, for "Day Dreaming;" rhythm and blues singing, for "Young, Gifted and Black;" and soul gospel singing, for "Amazing Grace" and "Precious Memories," the latter a duet with James Cleveland.

Mayfield is nominated for rhythm and blues singing, "Freddie's Dead;" for rhythm and blues instrumental performance, "Junkie Chase;" for rhythm and blues songwriting, "Freddie's Dead," and motion picture or TV score writing, "Superfly."

Don McLean's four nominations are for "American Pie." They are in the categories of record of the year, album of the year, song of the year (a writer's award) and pop singing.

Record of the year, considered the big prize, will be one of: "Alone Again (Naturally)," sung by Gilbert O'Sullivan, "The First Time Ever I Saw Your Face" by Roberta Flack, "Song Sung Blue" by Neil Diamond, "Without You" by Nilsson or "American Pie" by McLean.

Album of the Year nominees are "The Concert for Bangladesh," performed by George Harrison and Friends; "Jesus Christ Superstar," the original Broadway cast; "Moods," by Neil Diamond; "Nilsson Schmilsson," by Nilsson, and "American Pie."

Public's Interest In Sports Is Gaining Momentum

PRINCETON, N.J., Jan. 20 — One of the most remarkable trends of the last decade and a half — a trend which appears to be gaining momentum — is the growth in interest in sports, in terms of both participation and attendance at sports events.

The sharpest increases in terms of participation since the 1959 survey have been recorded for swimming, bowling, tennis and baseball (including softball). But considerable growth in the percentage of participants has also been noted for volleyball, golf, horseback riding, skiing and ice skating.

At the same time, however, participation in the traditional outdoor activities of hunting and fishing appears to have levelled off or declined.

Following is the question asked to measure sports participation, and the comparison showing the trend:

"Which of these sports and activities have you, yourself, participated in within the past 12 months?"

PARTICIPATED IN AT LEAST ONCE DURING LAST 12 MONTHS

	1959	Latest	Point Change
Swimming	33%	42%	+9
Fishing	32	24	-8
Bowling	18	28	+10
Hunting	16	14	-2
Baseball-softball	11	19	+8
Golf	8	14	+6
Ice Skating	6	9	+3
Horseback riding	5	10	+5
Roller skating	4	5	+1
Tennis	4	12	+8
Volleyball	4	11	+7
Skiing	3	5	+2

Several factors can be cited for the sharp growth in sports participation, including growing affluence, increased leisure time, the desire to escape crowded living conditions and the continued stress on the importance of exercise for health.

8 MILLION 'JOGGERS'

Doctors and other health authorities in recent years have urged that Americans take up "jogging" (running at a slow pace).

The latest Gallup audit of sports participation reveals that 6 per cent of adults 18 and older have jogged during the previous 12-month period, or a projected 8 million Americans.

SPORTS ATTENDANCE ALSO UP SINCE '59

The growth in sports participation has been paralleled by an increase in sports attendance, particularly in the case of soccer, football, boxing, hockey and basketball.

Here is the question asked and the table showing the comparison between the 1959 and latest surveys:

"Which of the sports on this card have you, yourself, attended in person within the last 12 months — that is, since this time last year?"

SPORTS ATTENDED AT LEAST ONCE DURING LAST 12 MONTHS

	1959	Latest	Point Change
Baseball	28%	30%	+2
Football	23	33	+10
Basketball	18	23	+5
Stock car racing	9	2	-7
Horse racing	9	10	+1
Wrestling	6	7	+1
Boxing	4	14	+10
Hockey (ice)	4	7	+3
Dog racing	2	4	+2
Tennis	2	2	—
Track & field	2	6	+4
Soccer	1	13	+12

It is important to bear in mind that the above figures include attendance at high school and college as well as professional games.

FOOTBALL TOP SPECTATOR SPORT

Football is currently America's No. 1 spectator sport. The latest results show 32 per cent of all American adults naming football as their favorite sport to watch, compared to 24 per cent who named baseball. Next is basketball, named by 9 per cent.

In 1937, in the first sports poll ever taken, baseball was named as the favorite sport by 36 per cent of people interviewed, while football was named by 26 per cent. Basketball was third, named by 11 per cent.

By 1948, baseball was even more entrenched as the nation's favorite spectator sport. However, from that point on football started to gain in appeal, while baseball declined in appeal.

The latest survey shows a slight drop-off in football's appeal and a gain for baseball since an early 1972 survey. Seasonable differences, however, may account for this slight change in preferences, since this year's survey was conducted shortly after the end of the baseball season, while the previous measurement was taken just prior to the 1972 Super Bowl.

The following table gives the 36-year trend:

	FAVORITE SPORT TO WATCH
	Latest	'72	'61	'48	'37
Football	32%	36%	21%	17%	26%
Baseball	24	21	34	39	36
Basketball	9	8	9	10	11

Seek A Market For Indian Handicrafts

TAHOLA, Wash. (AP) — If Gilbert Jake and Benny Charley have anything to do with it, the Quinault Indians are going to develop into big business the wood carving and other tribal art handed down through generations.

Jake is in charge of the tribe's handicraft shop, and Charley, a former amateur heavyweight boxer noted for his skill in shaping wood, was one of the originators of the project, which is about three years old.

There are 10 persons, including one woman, Betty Capoeman, at work in the shop now, and the tribe has a man looking for markets for their goods.

A concessionaire in Death Valley National Monument has ordered some totem poles and face masks, the tribal representative, Kenneth Grover, says, and a hardware chain in the Northwest is carrying small roughed out do-it-yourself bears for the youngster or grownup who wants to try his prowess at wood carving.

A leading wholesaler in Indian art and artifacts recently put in an order for wooden masks, and the Olympic Hotel in Seattle handles eye-catching, poster-sized pieces of colored burlap on which are laid, through the silk-screen process, various Indian designs, such as the thunderbird.

Among others in the shop are Percy Heath, a fisherman who changed his way of life when he found he could make a living through art, and wood carvers Leonard Lewis and Glenn Dan.

Among their products are models of the canoes the Northwest Indians used in ancient days and still use for fishing and racing, decorated paddles, wall plaques, ceremonial rattles and models of whales, an important part of their ancestors' lives.

The basic design of each object is from an ancient source, but the result depends on the individual art of the person doing the work. Some of the carvings are comparatively simple, but on many others so much time is spent that little money is made on their sales.

If you're in the mood for something big, the shop can turn out a large totem pole for about $100 per foot.

NEW YORK (AP)—Stock prices rose today as investors apparently took heart from administration reassurances about a tough anti-inflationary stance for economic Phase 3 and from reports that a peace settlement for Vietnam might be signed soon.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 3.01 to 1029.20, and advances held sway over declines 639 to 499 among the 1,544 issues changing hands in quiet trading at the New York Stock Exchange.

The NYSE's index of some 1,400 common stocks was up 0.10 to 64.61. At the American Stock Exchange, the price change index was up 0.02 to 26.33.

Meanwhile price rises for at least one commodity—fuel oil—were boosting the fortunes of oil stocks. The price increases were brought on by a national shortage of fuel oil.

Exxon Corp. was up 1/4 to 94 3/4, eclipsing its 1972 high. Standard Oil of California was up 1/8 to 87; Standard of Indiana up 1/2 to 89 3/4; and Texaco up 1/2 to 42 3/4.

Gulf Oil, the Big Board's most active issue, was down 1/4 to 28 3/4, but was within 1/4 points of its 1972 high of 30.

Control Data, which last week announced what many considered a favorable settlement of its private antitrust suit against IBM, was up 3/4 to 57 1/2.

IBM was down 1 to 438. Friday it had gained 10 1/4 points after it was reported Control Data had destroyed certain computer tapes which could have been vital to the government's antitrust case against IBM.

Four Arrested On Marijuana Counts
Four men were arrested on marijuana possession charges early Sunday morning following raids on two local dwellings by Greenville Police and Pitt County ABC officers.

According to Chief Glenn Cannon, Michael Burnette, 19, of Tarboro, and Samuel Thomas Hicks, 20, and Edward Frank O'Brien, 24 both of 200 N. Summit St., were charged with possessing marijuana after a quantity of "grass" was found in the Summit Street residence during the 1:15 a.m. search.

According to Cannon, about three-fourths of a pound of marijuana, contained in 10 bags (valued at about $10 each) were confiscated along with $2,080 dollars in cash belonging to O'Brien and $85 in cash belonging to Hicks. A set of scales and a number of "roaches" (marijuana cigarettes) were also found in the home.

Bond for O'Brien and Hicks was set at $5,000 each while bond for Burnette was placed at $500.

High Court To Study Parochial School Aid
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court today agreed to review a 1972 New York law providing various forms of assistance to parochial schools and the parents of children attending them.

Two provisions of the law were struck down as constitutionally invalid last October by a federal district court in New York City. A third provision was upheld by the panel.

The Supreme Court, acting on appeals, agreed to consider all three provisions beginning with a hearing in April.

The high court already has under consideration a 1970 state law appropriating $28 million a year for record-keeping, testing and other services in the non-public schools.

Taylor
Mr. Bryant Taylor died Saturday in Pitt Memorial Hospital after a lingering illness. Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. at Cornerstone Baptist Church with the Rev. W. B. Moore officiating. Burial will follow in the Brown Hill Cemetery.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary Taylor of the home; four daughters, Mrs. Gladys Foster of Brooklyn, N.Y., Mrs. Erma L. Kennedy, Miss Myrtle Taylor and Mrs. Delores Gardner, all of Greenville; two sons, Rev. J. B. Taylor of Greenville and Andrew Taylor of Shelby, Ky.; 12 grandchildren; two great grandchildren.

The family will receive friends at Phillips Brothers Mortuary Tuesday from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Architectural Firms To Meet On New School
The three out of town architectural firms scheduled to meet tonight with the Greenville City School Board are Ferree, Walters and Associated of Charlotte; Hayes and Howell, AIA of Southern Pines; and Jesse M. Page and Associates of Raleigh.

A representative from each of the firms will meet with board members at 8:00 p.m. in the library of E. B. Aycocock Junior High School.

At 8:00 p.m. on Monday, January 29, three local architectural firms will have representatives at a similar meeting. The three local firms to be represented are Dudley and Shoe, AIA; William E. Friend, AIA; and Smart-Woodall-Isley and Herring, Inc.

The purpose of the firms meeting with school board members is to talk about guidelines and present information relative to architectural planning for the proposed new middle-junior high school in Greenville.

Baldwin testified last week that he was hired by James W. McCord Jr., security coordinator for Nixon's re-election campaign and one of the two men

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—As the Watergate political espionage trial entered its third week today, Time magazine said it learned that one of the original seven defendants, E. Howard Hunt Jr., offered money to four other defendants as an inducement to plead guilty.

The government's key witness, Alfred C. Baldwin III, a former FBI agent, faced cross-examination from defense lawyers today.

Only two of an original seven defendants remained on trial in U.S. District Court here in connection with the break-in and alleged bugging of Democratic party headquarters at the Watergate last summer. Hunt and four others have pleaded guilty in the case.

Time magazine said Hunt offered the other four $1,000 a month apiece for each month they spend in jail. It said the admissions of guilt by Hunt and the others "staved off" testimony that the operation had been approved by other persons.

Hunt's lawyer, William O. Bittman, said Hunt "categorically and emphatically denies" the magazine story.

Time magazine said Hunt recruited the four to bug the Democratic offices saying: "It's got to be done. Because Colson wants it. Mitchell wants it."

The magazine said this was a reference to former Atty. Gen. John Mitchell, who was also Nixon's campaign manager for a time, and to Charles Colson, a special counsel to President Nixon.

It didn't say where it obtained the information.

"The Time magazine report as it concerns me is an absolute flasehood," Mitchell said in a statement today. "Never at any time have I said anything that could have been construed as condoning the Watergate incident. On the contrary, I have said many times that I deplore and condemn it."

Colson's office issued a statement saying Colson "unequivocally denies what Hunt is quoted as saying and points out that he (Colson) had already denied it under oath."

Baldwin testified last week that he was hired by James W. McCord Jr., security coordinator for Nixon's re-election campaign and one of the two men still on trial, to work as a security agents for the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

G. Gordon Liddy, former White House and treasury aide and counsel to Nixon's campaign finance committee, was also identified by Baldwin as being present in a motel room where Baldwin said he monitored calls from a telephone which had been tapped inside the Democratic offices. Liddy is also on trial.

The government has presented only about one-third of its witnesses in the first two weeks, indicating a long trial despite the departure of five defendants.

Dr. Dingman To Address Meet
Dr. Raleigh Dingman of the office of the State Department of Public Instruction in Raleigh is to be guest speaker Tuesday evening at the January meeting of the Citizens Advisory Committee.

Sam Sewall, president of the committee, has announced that at the 8:00 p.m. meeting, new members of the advisory committee will be presented to older members and to the public.

The meeting, to be held in the cafeteria at Rose High School, is open to the public. The January meeting was originally scheduled for January 9, but was postponed due to the snow storm.

Pirates Head South To Play Jacksonville Dolphins

Late Starter Ange Leads Area Scorers

Williamston's Dwight Ange leads the Pitt-Martin-Greene area scoring so far this season with a 17.0 average, through Thursday's games.

The late-starting 6-4 senior is pacing the area's Top 20 after missing the first couple of games for the Tigers due to an injury in the playoffs of the State Football Championship.

But he's recovered now and that has been bad news so far for Williamston opposition.

Closest to him in the scoring race is McCoy Williams of Farmville Central with a 16.5 average. Next comes Ernest Crandall of Robersonville with a 15.6 average.

In the girls' division, Sylvia Jones of Oak City is taking over where she left off last year, rolling them in at a 16.6 clip. She's not getting much competition, however, as the 10 area teams boast only six girls in double figures.

Second to Miss Jones is Minnie Hollis of North Pitt with a 12.8 average, followed closely by Elaine Forrest of Robersonville at 12.5.

D.H. Conley's Vikings lead the way in team scoring with a 64.0 average, while Jamesville is second with a 62.1 mark. Ayden-Grifton is currently third with a 61.2 mark.

The Chargers top the defensive mark with a 46.2 average, while North Pitt is second at 47.6, Greene Central takes third place with a 48.1 average.

The Chargers of Ayden-Grifton also stand first in winning margin, beating their opponents by an average of 15.0 points a game. Far behind in second place is Greene Central with an 8.1 average, while Conley is third at 6.8.

The Chargers also have the best record to date, a 10-2 mark. The Rams of Greene Central are next at 9-3, while Conley is 8-3.

North Pitt's girls, with an 11-0 mark pace the area in win-loss and in offense. The Pant-HERS are averaging 49.7 points per game. They also stand second in defense with a 27.5 points allowed per game average. And they lead in scoring margin, outthrusting their opponents by 22.2 per game.

Ayden-Grifton is second in offense at 47.5, followed by Williamston at 43.0.

Williamston tops the defensive list, giving up 27.4 per game, while the Chargerettes are third at 33.7.

Only two other teams besides North Pitt can lay claim to outthrusting their opponents. They are Williamston, 15.6 per game and Ayden-Grifton, 13.8.

Following the Big Orange Machine in records are Williamston at 10-1 and Ayden-Grifton, 8-3.

The complete list follows, through Thursday's games:

East Carolina University's Pirates, fresh from two last minute victories during the past week are headed south to do battle with one of the nation's top-ranked teams tonight.

They'll be in Jacksonville, Fla., to meet the Jacksonville Dolphins, ranked in the top 20 most of the year.

The Pirates will be shooting for their eight victory of the season. They are currently 7-6 on the year. But they'll have their work cut out for them against the Dolphins, who have won their previous three games with the Pirates.

The Pirates should be quite familiar with the personnel of the Dolphins, however, since assistant coach Art Tolis is a former assistant at Jacksonville, and recruited many of the players on the team.

Last season's game was a cliffhanger that Jacksonville won only in the final minutes of play, 77-68.

Leading the Dolphins this year is sophomore Henry Williams, averaging better than 20 points a game. Guard Leon Benbow has hit at over 18 a game, while Abe Stewart and Butch Taylor follow with 15 and 14 point averages, respectively.

Taylor has been the leading rebounder, pulling down 10.2 a game.

Jacksonville has only lost twice this season, to Duquesne, 82-73, and to nationally ranked Long Beach State, 97-70. To their credit, they have beaten highly regarded Southwest Louisiana. Jacksonville dumped Dwight Lamar and his teammates, 120-78.

The Bucs go into the game following at 59-58 victory over George Washington on Wednesday night, and a come-from-behind 73-68 win over William & Mary on Saturday.

Each Title Bout A Crisis For Frazier

By WILL GRIMSLEY

AP Special Correspondent

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) —

Joe Frazier makes the fifth defense of his world heavyweight ring title tonight against young, bull-strong George Foreman with the shadow of Muhammad Ali still haunting him from the wins.

It is a definite crisis in the three-year reign of the savage, swarming champion, who was born on a South Carolina plantation, reared in a Philadelphia ghetto and prepared for his profession by work as a butcher in a slaughterhouse.

Should Frazier lose, the heavyweight division could be thrown into temporary turmoil and all the wind would be knocked out of the awaited Frazier-Ali rematch, which has promoters dreaming of a $20 million or $30 million extravaganza.

"Don't worry, I'm not gonna lose," the bearded Frazier says grimly. "I have never been more ready than I am for this fight. Then I'll talk about Clay."

The day before the show-down, Foreman appeared loose and confident, saying: "Look at the records. Most heavyweight champions don't last more than two or three years. Frazier has had his day. Now it's my turn. I will win."

Las Vegas oddsmakers have made the 29-year-old champion a 3½-1 favorite over the 24-year-old challenger, who, like Frazier, is a former Olympic gold medalist and is unbeaten in his pro career.

Still, nobody knows for sure. Foreman is an enigma. As a pro, he has never been floored and ringsiders wonder if he has the fiber to come off the deck and keep fighting.

It's certain to be a rough-and-tumble physical brawl, unlikely to go the 15-round limit. Frazier is a punishing, bore-in slugger, a black Rocky Marciano, who disdains personal injury to mete out punishment to his foes. Foreman is a powerful giant with none of Ali's grace and speed. He doesn't swing arms, he swings wagon tongues.

Fight time is 10:15 p.m., EST, and the place is the outdoor National Stadium, an oval built for soccer and cycling.

The fight will not be on home television but will be beamed by cable to 225 sites in the United States and Canada and by satellite to special theaters in Britain, France, Japan and a half-dozen other countries.

Son of a railroad construction worker, Foreman, at 24 is five years younger than Frazier, yet has more pro fights under his belt. His record is 37-0, with 34 knockout victims. Frazier has had 29 pro fights and won them all, 25 by knockout.

A strapping, handsome athlete, Foreman is 6-foot-3, has a 6½-inch-longer reach than Frazier and probably will carry a 10-pound weight advantage into the ring. He is expected to weigh in at around 220 pounds, with Frazier between 208 and 210.

Crampton Feels Tournery Strain

By BOB GREEN

Associated Press Golf Writer

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) —

Bruce Crampton has taken two in a row, but the Australian veteran harbors no illusions about winning three consecutive events on the tough

American pro golf tour.

"No, I don't think so," Crampton said with an almost sad smile when asked if he planned to make this week's Bing Crosby National Pro-Am his third successive triumph.

"This one took a lot out of me," Crampton said Sunday after his easy, front-running victory in the Dean Martin-Tucson

Open, a decision that was tarnished just a trifle by a meaningless triple bogey seven on Crampton's finishing hole.

"I'm pretty tired," he said. "I didn't sleep very well all week. I came in here knowing I was playing well. I was keyed up, ready to get on with it.

"Now that it's over, I'm really tired."

Crampton's victory, following his triumph at the Phoenix

Open just the week before, made him the first man to win consecutive American tournaments since Arnold Palmer took the last two events of the 1969 season. Palmer also is the last player to win three in a row, in 1962. Crampton opened the final day's play—the start was delayed 1½ hours by frozen greens and biting, 20-degree temperatures—with a three-stroke lead, eagled the second hole and wasn't threatened as he breezed home with a 71 for 277, 11 under par on the 7,200-yard Tucson National Golf Club course.

George Archer, who lost to Miller Barber in a playoff for the Tucson title a year ago, Labron Harris and Gay Brewer tied for second at 282. Archer had a 72 while Harris and Brewer matched 70s in the weather that changed from bitter cold to mild and sunny.

Rod Funseth, winner of the Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open three weeks ago, Bobby Nichols and Richie Karl were next at 283. Nichols shot 72, Karl 73 and Funseth 74.

Lee Trevino, a two-time Tucson champion and the pre-tourney favorite, really was never in it. He had a final round 70 for 285.

Crampton, winner of 12 titles in his 17 years on the American tour, picked up $30,000 from the total purse of $150,000 and pushed his earnings to $60,000 for just two weeks.

TRADE UNITAS

BALTIMORE (AP)—Veteran quarterback John Unitas of the Baltimore Colts was traded to the San Diego Chargers. Colt General Manager Joe Thomas said today.

The trade was "for future considerations," Thomas said.

No present players or draft choices were involved in the trade, the Colts said. The Chargers will assume Unitas' standard player contract and the Colts will meet all future obligations accrued by Unitas during his playing career with the Colts, the NFL club said.

Furman Expected Pad Southern Conf. Lead Tonight

Mark Donohue Drives Matador To An Easy Victory At Riverside

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer
RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Mark Donohue, a member of Philadelphia's social set, has officially joined the exclusive club that belongs to the "good old boys" of Southern stock car racing.

He acquired his membership Sunday when he drove a box-like American Motors Matador to an easy victory in the $100,000 Winston-Western 500 at Riverside International Raceway.

The race opened a 31-event schedule for the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing and it drew 51,000 persons into the sprawling road course grounds.

Donohue, 35, who lives in the Philadelphia suburb of Newtown Square, Pa., didn't become involved in NASCAR doings until last year, when he made his debut in Roger Penske's untried Matador in the traditional Riverside opener.

His Matador wasn't reliable or strong enough to cause the stock car boys even mild concern last year, but the moon-faced Pennsylvanian was hot as a pistol elsewhere. He won the Indianapolis 500, among other racing plums.

This year he came back to Riverside and qualified the red, white and blue machine fourth fastest among 40 starters—just slightly behind front-row sitters David Pearson in a Mercury and Bobby Allison in a Chevrolet. Next to Donohue in the second row was Hershel McGriff, third fastest qualifier, in a Dodge.

But when the race got under way, it became evident that the combination of Donohue's road course ability and the Matador's handling qualities would become a major factor over the 500-mile distance.

He raced strongly with early leaders Pearson, Allison and Richard Petty, stock car racing's all-time champion.

When Pearson was forced out by mechanical woes, to be followed a short time later by Petty's Dodge, Donohue had things pretty much his own way.

Allison drove the final miles with a sick engine and was almost two laps behind at the finish.

Third place went to Ray Elder, Caruthers, Calif., in a Dodge, fourth to Bobby Unser of Albuquerque in a Ford and fifth to Jimmy Insolo, Mission Hills, Calif., in a Chevrolet.

DONOHUE WINS — Mark Donohue celebrates first victory ever for American Motors in stock car racing after winning Winston Western 500 at Riverside Raceway in a Matador. With him are members of pit crew and inevitable lovelies, one of whom is giving Donohue a victory kiss. (AP Wirephoto)

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Furman's Paladins will be heavily favored to pad their Southern Conference basketball lead when they play host tonight to Appalachian State, but you can bet Coach Joe Williams will try to throw a defensive net around the Mountaineers' Stan Davis.

The Paladins upped their league record to 5-0 with a 62-46 romp Saturday night over The Citadel's Bulldogs behind the scoring of 7-foot-1 sophomore Fessor "Moose" Leonard.

At the same time, Davis was scorching the nets for 41 points as the Mountaineers recorded a 94-90 nonleague victory over Georgia Southern, only Appalachian's third triumph in 14 starts.

Two other conference encounters saw Davidson's Wildcats build their league mark to 4-0 with an 89-77 decision over Richmond, despite 39 points and 18 rebounds by the Spiders' Aron Stewart, and East Carolina's Pirates turn back William and Mary's Indians 73-68. Virginia Military's Keydets, who held Davis to 16 points—his second lowest total of the season—in an 82-68 victory over Appalachian earlier this month, made it an all-winning league night against outside foes by trouncing West Virginia Tech 87-60.

The Mountaineers take a 2-4 league record into tonight's game at Furman, which is 10-4 over-all to the Mountaineers' 3-11 log.

Two nonconference games tonight have The Citadel, 5-8, playing host to Georgia State and East Carolina, 7-6, at 15th-ranked Jacksonville, which has beaten Furman twice and William and Mary once.

Leonard hit seven straight shots in the last 10 minutes in Furman's victory at The Citadel after the Bulldogs had pulled to within four points. The big Furman ace finished with 12 of 17 from the floor and 24 points, the only Paladin in double figures.

Steve Fishel scored 20 points and Chuck Cordell 16 for The Citadel, but the Bulldogs shot only 44 per cent from the floor to 53 per cent accuracy for the Paladins.

Davidson led Richmond by as much as 17 points in the first half before the Spiders, behind Stewart, cut the gap to 41-32 at intermission. But the Wildcats hit 20 of 30 shots from the floor in the second half to keep the Spiders at bay.

The Wildcats had four players in double figures with John Falconi scoring 18 points and Mike Sorrentino 16.

"I thought our boys hung in there real tough," said Richmond Coach Lewis Mills. "There were some times in the game when we could have folded, but we didn't. We were never out of it."

The scoreboard didn't say so, but as far as William and Mary Coach Ed Ashnault was concerned, "we won the ball game" at East Carolina.

Ashnault referred to a pair of what he thought were questionable calls early in the first half, player control fouls on which baskets by Tom Pfingst and Mark Ritter were not allowed. A technical on Ashnault in the first instance which resulted in a free throw and a later foul on which the Pirates converted again meant a difference of six points to Ashnault's way of thinking.

As it was, layups in the last 27 seconds by Roger Atkinson and Nicky White gave the defending champion Pirates the victory. ECU Coach Tom Quinn said "we made a tremendous adjustment the second half. We began jamming the lanes and our defense got better."

Atkinson got all his 10 points in the second half, but White led the Pirates with 20 points and Dave Franklin added 13. Ritter led the Indians with 17 and freshman Paul Arizin had 11.

Appalachian trailed Georgia Southern by three points at halftime but rallied after intermission behind Davis.

Five players, led by David Lester with 14 points and Gordy Rawlyk and Tim Gundlach with 12 each, scored in double figures as VMI shot 58.6 per cent from the floor and pulled away in the second half.

Owed Favor, He Pays Off

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Steve Smith owed a favor and he paid it off in a big way.

Smith, the brawny pole vaulter from Long Beach State, soared to a world record of 17 feet, 11 inches Saturday night in the Sunkist Invitational indoor track meet at Los Angeles and then explained later that he owed the performance to meet promoter Al Franken.

"He's been very good to me," said Smith, "allowing me to compete when I wasn't always at my best."

He was at his best Saturday, chopping one-half inch off the old mark set by Kjell Isaksson last year. Another world mark toppled in the shot put where Al Feuerbach reached 69 feet, 4 1/4 inches, breaking his own mark by four inches. Feuerbach, representing the Pacific Coast Club, also predicted that the 70-foot indoor plateau would be reached soon.

"Yes, 70 feet is possible soon," said Feuerbach, "but there is no use planning on it or predicting it. There is no reason to put any more pressure on myself."

Other big winners in the Sunkist meet included Steve Prefontaine of Oregon, timed in 8 minutes, 27.4 seconds to beat Marty Liquori in the two-mile test.

Dave Wottle took the mile in 4:06.1, nipping Kenya's Kip Keino at the tape. "I wasn't sure I had won until we hit the tape," said Wottle, who took the Olympic 800 in a photo finish over Russia's Yevgeniy Arzhanov. "I was more sure at Munich," he added.

In the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics championships at Kansas City, Mike Boit of Eastern New Mexico was the lone double winner. Boit took the mile in 4:12.3 and captured the 800 in 1:57.4.

North Pitt Pins Ahsoskie

AHOSKIE — North Pitt's grapplers flattened the wrestlers of Ahsoskie Saturday night, 63-6. Earlier in the week the Panthers had beaten Southern Wayne by 55-18.

Eleven of the wins the Panthers came away with, ten of them by pins. The fastest was by Steve Fuchs who won by a fall over Andy Muse in 49 seconds. The two Panthers that lost, lost on points.

Summary:

AFC Takes Pro Bowl By 33-28

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
DALLAS (AP) — The American Football Conference, formed in a fiery merger with the old National Football League, had every right to be chesty today—at least for a year.

The AFC made it a historic clean sweep over the National Football Conference on Sunday's 33-28 Pro Bowl victory.

Previously, the AFC had captured the exhibition season 27-25-4 and the regular season 20-19-1 from their older rivals and Miami dropped NFC member Washington 14-7 in the Super Bowl.

Sunday was the clincher in a collision of All-Stars between the two leagues.

"Last year the NFC got the most ink—we wanted to prove something," said running back O.J. Simpson of Buffalo, the game's Most Valuable Player.

Simpson, who led the NFL in rushing with 1,251 yards, scored one touchdown, rushed for 112 yards and caught three passes for 58 yards.

The victory before 47,879 chilled fans in Texas Stadium gave the AFC a 2-1 lead over the NFC in the series.

Simpson said offensive linemen Gene Upshaw of Oakland, Walt Sweeney of San Diego, Larry Little of Miami and Winston Hill of the New York Jets had him wide-eyed because they were so fired up for the game.

"These guys talked all week about how they were going to kill their man," Simpson said. Otis Taylor of Kansas City, who caught a five-yard touchdown pass from Oakland's Daryle Lamonia, said there was much more at stake than the difference between $2,000 and $1,500 for the winners and losers.

"The rivalry still exists ... It may not be as intense as the old days, but it's there," Taylor said. "Coach (Chuck) Noll (of Pittsburgh) told us the first day we were here to win and that was the attitude of the entire team all week."

John Brockington of Green Bay scored three touchdowns and quarterback Norm Snead of the New York Giants hit tight end Ted Kwalick of San Francisco with a 12-yard scoring pass but it wasn't enough.

Marv Hubbard of Oakland scored on an 11-yard run, Bobby Bell of Kansas City intercepted a Snead pass and returned it 12 yards for a touchdown and Pittsburgh's Roy Royela kicked field goals of 18 and 22 yards for the AFC which overcame a 14-0 first-quarter deficit.

Catfish Hunter Signs Contract

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Jim "Catfish" Hunter, the ace right-hander of the world champion Oakland Athletics, says he'd "like to get $165,000" like pitcher Steve Carlton of the Philadelphia Phillies.

Instead, Hunter said Sunday, he's signed a 1973 contract at a "substantial salary boost."

The winner of two World Series games, including the decisive encounter, was asked if he got $100,000.

"No," he said, "but it was close to it."

Hunter, who won 21 games for the Athletics, spoke to a banquet here. He said he thought he might have gotten more money through more bargaining with Oakland owner Charles O. Finley, but "I was happy with the raise I got."

The New York Mets will open their spring training exhibition season March 3 in a game against the Boston Red Sox at Al Lang Field, St. Petersburg, Fla.

Balked Over Safety Helmets

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WATERVILLE VALLEY, N.H. (AP) — The giant slalom in the seventh Corcoran Cup races was canceled Sunday when the U.S. and Canadian teams in the Can-Am ski series rebelled at wearing safety helmets.

The teams withdrew after race officials refused to waive the U.S. Ski Association rule requiring that helmets be worn. The rule often is waived in major events.

Tim Skalling, 20, of Stratton, Maine, a member of the U.S. National team, won the slalom Saturday. Switzerland's Jean-Francois Copt picked up 20 points as runnerup, moving to within one point of Can-Am leader Cary Adgate of Boyne City, Mich. Adgate fell in the slalom.

Player Swap in Hockey League

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Kings announced Sunday night they had traded defenseman Paul Curtis to the St. Louis Blues for forward Frank St. Marseille in an evens-up National Hockey League player swap.

Marseille, 33, a native of Le-Vack, Ont., has scored seven goals and added 18 assists for the Blues this season. He scored 52 and 51 points in his two previous seasons with St. Louis.

Curtis has played in 27 games this season. He missed 10 games with an eye injury.

Millions Of Supertrees Being Planted In South

FORESTRY HAS SUPPLANTED COTTON as kingpin of southern agriculture, and the product is the Supertree. This photo shows a cross section of two 11-year-old pines of the same species. The larger cross-section is of the Supertree. (UPI Telphoto)

ALLEDALE, S.C. (UPI) — Is it a longleaf? Is it a loblolly? No, it's Supertree.

Supertree is the name forest scientists have given to a genetically superior new variety of pine they have developed in recent years.

Now being planted by the millions on tree farms here and throughout the South, Supertrees grow faster and bigger than other pines, and yield more board-feet of timber per acre per year than any other type of forest in America.

Forestry has supplanted cotton as kingpin of Southern agriculture. The Southern Forest Institute in Atlanta reports there now are 198 million acres of forests in the 13 states of the South. Additional acres of scrub oak and cropped-out cottonland are being converted to tree farming every year. Nearly half a billion pine seedlings were planted in the South during the past year.

Most of these were conventional loblollies, longleaves, shortleaves and slash pines. But 63 million were Supertrees. Forest products companies such as Georgia-Pacific, Kimberley-Clark, International Paper and Weyerhaeuser are setting out Supertrees as fast as seedlings can be grown in their tree nurseries. Thousands of individuals who tree-farm on a smaller scale are buying Supertree seedlings from state-owned nurseries, at a bargain price of about $5 per 1,000, to improve their timber stands.

Pines Grow Faster

All pines are fast growers compared to most hardwoods. In the steady loam of the South, a carefully cultivated pine tree farm, in which young trees initially are set very close together, may be ready for its first thinning in about 15 years. The immature pines harvested at this time are sold for pulpwood and made into paper.

Southern forests are now yielding more than $1 billion worth of pulpwood a year. That is about two-thirds of the nation's total supply. The chances are two to one that any paper product you use—from the newspaper you're now reading to the carton from which you poured the cream for your breakfast coffee—was made from southern pine.

To maintain our high standard of living, Americans use a prodigious quantity of wood. We use it to build homes (about 13,000 feet of lumber is required for the average house or apartment); in paper of all kinds; and in 5,000 other products, including alcohol, anti-freeze, furniture polish, soap, glue, clothing, and soil conditioners.

Despite the enormous demand, we still are growing slightly more wood than we consume. Timber, our only renewable natural resource, is being produced at a rate that currently exceeds use by eight per cent.

But the U.S. Department of Agriculture, on the basis of a recent nationwide survey, forecasts that demand for wood products will rise by 60 per cent over the remainder of this century, while production, under present plans, will increase by only 20 per cent.

This forecast has spurred a drive by the Southern Forest Resource Council for more intensive cultivation of forest lands owned by individuals. Of the South's 198 million acres of forest, 40 million acres are owned by large companies which use scientific forestry methods to obtain maximum yields.

Another 17 million are in national forests or parks. The rest—141 million acres—belongs to nearly 1 million private owners, mostly in small, poorly-managed tracts.

Plans Are Afoot

Various plans are afoot to stimulate better forest practices—and bigger yields—on these private holdings. In some areas, small landowners are joining together in cooperative associations to share the cost of professional forest management. State forestry agencies are offering many kinds of help—from dirt-cheap seedlings to low-rental planting and harvesting equipment—to encourage small-scale tree farmers to make the most of their timberlands. Some states are offering tax incentives for putting land into long-term timber development.

But the brightest hopes center on the Supertree.

Because it grows to maturity faster than ordinary species, it promises a speed-up in timber production of about 20 per cent. Robert M. Nonnemacher of Mobile, Ala., an International Paper Company executive who heads the non-profit Southern Forest Resource Council, says the goal is to "double current productivity" of the South's existing 198 million acres of forests through more intensive tree farming, and to add "another 30 million acres" of Supertrees.

"This is the largest, most comprehensive tree planting and forest land improvement program ever undertaken," Nonnemacher said. "The size of the task is awesome."

Grow Faster, Better

The results also are awesome—even at this early stage.

Supertree seedlings, growing row upon row in a big Georgia-Pacific tree farm along the Savannah River near here, not only are bigger at a given age than other types of pine. They also are healthier, more resistant to insects and plant diseases. They waste less of their energy growing limbs (which are, useless for timber or pulp) and concentrate on tall, straight trunks.

The south's fast-growing forests not only are a valuable natural resource. They also provide new recreational areas for camping, picnicking, and hunting. They create new habitats for birds and other wildlife. To cite just one example: thanks to tree farms, the deer population of the South has increased by 800 per cent in the past 30 years.

In an era of widespread concern about degradation of the environment, Southern forests and their Supertrees constitute a great ecological success story.

D.H. Conley HIGHLIGHTS

By MARY L. BRANCH

Hi friends! I'm glad to be back in school after one week of snow vacation days. I had fun and so did many other students, but its time to settle down again and begin studying for exams. It's a long tiresome time but if we study we shall succeed.

Ron Braxton's physical science students are becoming curious scientists. This week they worked with ink in art and the components of ink. Student of the week was Donna Meeks and the most improved student is Robin Hudson. Ron Braxton was chosen last time as teacher of the month and students really enjoy having him as their teacher.

The IPS Allstars gave a dance, Saturday in the D.H. Conley cafeteria.

Evon Jones and Miss Tripp from Lamont, talked about hairstyling and grooming, keeping one's job, her personal training experiences, and getting a job. She talked to the young ladies in Mrs. Betty Langston's class.

Marie Arnaud, public health nurse, talked and gave demonstrations on pulse rate, respiration, heart beat and health emergencies.

Parent's Day will be Feb. 2, and is sponsored by Mrs. Paine and Mrs. Little. It is a discussion of school related topics where parents can visit our school and speak with students and teachers.

ROTC

LTC Applewhite and SGM Avery are preparing for a unit training program made up of history and objectives of the ROTC, hygiene, and fundamental military knowledge of procedure to be offered this semester. Presently, LTC Applewhite and SGM Avery are circulating a paper in the vocational section, aspiring to get underway a program, where any student with high school mechanical training might possibly qualify to take a test that can save him two to four years in rank should he decide to go to the army.

The outstanding young man of ROTC is A company commander, Artis Strong. In company B is Commander Prince Bunting, Cadet Adjutant and first platoon leader is Melvin Edwards. Mike McClanahan is second platoon leader, Kervin Hawkins is third, Calvin Hawkins is fourth and Willie Stephenson is fifth.

Horticulture to be or not to be? Joyce Taft and Lorretta Freeman, seniors here at Conley take quite an interest in horticulture. They especially like working with their fine instructor, Sutton Austin. Horticulture is garden cultivation. There are seven divisions of horticulture including fruit growing, ornamental horticulture, seed production, landscaping, nursery production, and processing and storage.

This is an interesting class and Joyce and Loretta hope to accomplish many things in their horticulture class before they leave Conley.

Our basketball team is great! J.V.'s have lost only one game. We played Greene-Central Friday and Saturday we played Eastern-Wayne. Vikings are the best.

Strain Ends For Soviets, Czechs

By JOHN LAWTON

PRAGUE (UPI) — Their hands clasped firmly and faces wreathed in smiles, Leonid I. Brezhnev and Gustav Husak, the Communist Party leaders of Russia and Czechoslovakia, dominate the facade of the Soviet exhibition in Prague.

The Kremlin, for the moment at least, is content with Husak. And so, by and large, are the Czechs and Slovaks.

"We have regained the confidence of our allies," a Czechoslovak Communist Party spokesman said.

Asked what they think, the Prague residents' standard reply is: "Things could have been far worse."

Husak, a wispy-haired Slovak lawyer, came to power in the wake of the Soviet-led invasion that, in August, 1968, crushed his country's brief attempt at liberalism.

Salvaged Some Reforms
A shrewd, moderate politician, he has led Czechoslovakia out of the post-invasion chaos, improved the economy and, within the framework of orthodox communism reimposed by the Russians, salvaged some of the '68 reforms.

With 60,000 Soviet troops still on Czechoslovak soil and hardliners straining for a crack at the top spot, why Husak? "The Russians are pragmatists. They know that to clamp down the lid completely would lead to another blowup later on," a Czech journalist explained.

Husak, too, although by no means a devotee of the Kremlin, knows that cooperation with the Russians is the only way.

"He knows just how far he can go," a Western diplomat said.

Alexander Dubcek, former party leader and architect of the 1968 reformist "Prague Spring," did not.

Steers The Tiger

"Dubcek tried to ride the tiger and brought the Russians down on our neck. Husak tries to steer the tiger and keep the Russians off our backs," a Prague student said.

Husak, 59, sought to compensate for the loss of short-lived political and cultural freedom with more consumer goods and stable prices.

He has thoroughly purged the Party, government, industry and arts of Dubcek followers. But, himself a former political prisoner, Husak has, with a few exceptions resisted pressure from the right to put on trial the country's fallen idols.

Thirty-eight Dubcek followers, including former party school chief Milan Hueble, were tried for anti-state activities recently and sentenced to prison terms ranging from six months to seven years.

"But even they got off lightly by Communist standards," a Western diplomat said. "They were warned against openly opposing the regime. When they persisted, Husak had no option but to slap them down."

Query Need Of Central Cities

NEW YORK (AP) — A thousand of the nation's legislators, educators, businessmen and government officials soon will be asked "Is there a need for central cities in America's future?"

It is part of an attempt "to contribute a permanent record of today's thoughts on today's issues," according to John Galup, president of the Cotton Fiber Paper Council Inc. Responses to that question will be printed as "Thoughts of Man—1973," the first of a series sponsored by the council.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JANUARY 23, 1973

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A beautiful day to make sure you find out what others expect of you. Then you are able to let them know what is on your mind. Everyone is in a truly cooperative frame of mind and will coordinate their efforts with you for mutual benefits.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) If you and associates have had any misunderstandings, this is a good day to reconcile. A civic annoyance can also be handled properly now and with ease. Entertain friends at home tonight.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) There is some special work you want to do and this is a fine day for such. This can be done with precision and flourish. Gain the cooperation of co-workers. State clearly what you have in mind.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have an opportunity now to get into the amusements you have missed out on recently and really enjoy yourself. Closest tie is very cooperative. Show your finest qualities to this person.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Home and family are your best bet today, so plan some entertainment at home and make this a delightful day. Plan how to improve your business operations. Steer clear of one who downgrades you.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Make sure you keep any professional appointments and be on time for best results. Write a letter to one who means a great deal to you and mutual benefits follow. Avoid one who is not dependable.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) See what you can do to make your assets more valuable via modern methods. Get the cooperation of an expert. You are fully capable of handling an emergency in a quiet and efficient way.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You can come to a true understanding with others now by using your charm and make real headway. Do some entertaining or accept invitations extended to you. Show that you have poise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you investigate whatever has been puzzling you of late, you find you can get the right answers and make your life easier. In the evening enjoy the company of the one you love.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Take time to be with friends who understand you and regain that composure you usually have. Getting into group activities can now be to your advantage. Try not to get to bed too late.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Doing whatever will improve your image with the public is wise now. You are able to gain the favor of bigwigs now. You can advance easily by engaging in the civic work you like. Be happy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You have fine ideas that should be discussed with those who have been successful with such and then you can also profit from them. Be sure to stand up for your rights, but don't argue.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Use more charm with debtors and creditors instead of being so belligerent. Your hunches can be most helpful if you follow them. Arrive on time for an important appointment you have tonight.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those charming young people who others may want to spoil. Teach to work for whatever is wanted or needed and then this becomes a most successful chart instead of an unfortunate one. There are many talents here that require a good education to bring them out. The field of entertainment is fine as well as work dealing with the public. A sociable and happy person here.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

An aristocrat of one of the world's oldest breeds: purebred Arabian horse.

Sheikhs and stable boys gallop Amir of Bahrain's Arabian horses, near royal palace at Awali.

Horses wander in grounds of abandoned palace of present Amir's father, at Awali.

Arabian stallion shows his spirit, in the Amir's stables.

Pride of Arabia

Gallop over desert sands, or roaming the silent courtyards of dusty palaces, these Arabians are aristocrats among horses. They belong to the Amir of Bahrain, Sheikh Isa bin Sulman Al-Khalifa, who owns the largest collection of purebred Arabian horses in the world.

The royal stud consists of over 500 horses, ranging in color from white and speckled gray to dark brown and rich, red bay. Each stallion lives with his harem of 40 mares in the royal stables under the care of the Master of Horse. The horses are exercised by stable boys, ridden for pleasure by members of the Amir's family and friends, or allowed to wander freely through courtyards, deserts, and along the shores of the Persian Gulf.

The Worry Clinic Insurance In A Good Neurosis

Harlan is typical of millions of neurotics! They engage in various forms of flight. Some flee into abnormal worry about their "innards." Others seek unconsciousness via dope or liquor. Relax, for a neurosis is good insurance against insanity!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

CASE W-504: Harlan B., aged 20, is a brilliant college senior. "But Dr. Crane," he protested, "I am a nervous wreck!"

"For I've become a chronic pill-taker."

"For something is always wrong with me."

"If I don't have pains in my stomach, then they will be in my chest or my colon or gall bladder."

"The college physician finally told me I am a neurotic."

"So now I am more scared than ever."

"For will I ultimately be sent to a mental institution?"

"Don't neurotics lose their minds?"

Going Crazy?
Harlan is lucky!

For there is an old medical axiom that states:

"Once a neurotic, never a psychotic!"

And a psychotic is the patient sent to a state mental institution.

A neurotic thus can feel relieved, for a neurosis is usually good insurance that you are sane and will remain that way!

Fright usually starts the neurotic process.

Then the victim has two choices: flight or fight!

For example, if a person feels guilty in some manner and then begins to worry lest God punish him via illness, then his flight may be into hypochondria.

That word "hypochondria" means you are focussing too much on the organs under the ribs (your "innards").

So a hypochondriac may soon develop peptic ulcer, indigestion, angina pectoris, colitis, imagined appendicitis, uterine problems or a cancer phobia.

He may also flee into a chronic dread of a coronary attack, inability to get his breath, choking sensations, insomnia or worry about venereal infection.

Alcoholism, drug addiction and bagabondage also are symptoms of the neurotic.

The psychotic patient, however, is like the Army private who told his commanding officer:

"Everybody in this Army is out of step but me!"

Where the neurotic imagines maybe a dozen things are wrong with him, the psychotic thinks he is O.K. but the world is at fault!

Encourage your children to fight their bugaboos instead of indulging in flight!

And remind them that a firm religious faith beats all our medical tranquilizers!

So get your kiddies squared away concerning the proper relationship between God and mankind.

Tell them that God is a loving father, who doesn't expect the impossible from us erring human children.

He is always ready to be our Senior Partner in all good undertakings.

If afflicted with insomnia at night, you should employ the following medical prescription:

(1) Lift your hand high above the covers as if to place it in the hand of God; then whisper:

(2) "Lord, I'm trying to do my job on your team down here on Earth, but I have a heavy schedule tomorrow and need 8 hours of sound sleep; so will you please take over the night shift for me?"

(3) Then simply let your upraised arm and hand fall back upon the bed covers and close your eyes in peace.

For God never refuses to help the members of His team!

And you'll drop off into a contented slumber faster than by doping yourself with chemicals (which always add more work for your kidneys, liver, and heart).

Send for my booklet "How to Avoid Nervous Breakdowns," enclosing a long stamped envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Office of the President

Mr. W.M. Scales, Jr.
Professional Building
Greenville, N.C. 27834

Dear Booger,

All of the people at Integon congratulate you on your twentieth consecutive million dollar year in the insurance business. With this remarkable record, you have earned the top spot in our field force for two decades with more permanent life insurance in force than any agent in our company's 53 year history.

It seems like only yesterday when you first helped protect Greenville citizens with over $1,000,000 of permanent life insurance in 1953. That year began your membership in the life insurance industry's Million Dollar Round Table, of which you are now a Life Member. Do you remember when you received this first honor?

For the next twelve years, from 1953 to 1964 you topped the $1,000,000 mark each year. On one occasion your daughters, Ginger and Margaret, were on hand along with Vice President Bob Blair when you were honored as the company's top producer.

In 1965, you wrote over $2,000,000 of permanent Integon insurance, and have matched that mark for eight consecutive years. In fact, for the last three years, you have topped three million dollars each year. Your production in 1972 once again has made you the number one producer in the entire company, an enviable record of being the company's top producer for 13 of the past 20 years. Your son Waighly; daughter, Ginger; and wife, Virginia assisted you in accepting Integon's top award.

Along with this sales record, you can be proud that your clients remain clients—your overall persistency record of 98 per cent clearly indicates outstanding service to the people of Greenville. Burney S. Warren (right) was the first Greenville resident to purchase a policy from you on November 30, 1948. John F. Minges (left) is not only your largest client, but is also the largest single policy owner of Integon life insurance.

Booger, thank you. On behalf of everyone here at Integon, we wish you and your many clients a prosperous and joyous 1973.

Cordially,

J. Edwin Collette,
President
