Consumers Warned Food Costs Continuing Climb

By BILL NEIKIRK Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — Higher prices for eggs, fresh vegetables and household services pushed up the cost of living by 0.3 per cent last month, giving the nation a 3.4 per cent rate of inflation in 1972, the same as 1971.

The Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics reported today the consumer price index went up to 127.3 per cent of the 1967 average, meaning that it cost consumers $12.73 to buy the same basket of goods that $10 bought in 1967.

But the December increase was figured at only 0.2 per cent when the department subtracted the usual seasonal influences from the statistics. On a seasonally adjusted basis, food prices showed no change over November. But they went up by a sharp 0.5 per cent on an unadjusted basis.

The BLS issued an indirect warning that the January index will show sharply higher food prices. Wholesale prices of food went up sharply in December, but not all of the impact was reflected in the December Consumer Price Index.

The BLS said price information for two indices is collected at different times of the month, adding that there is generally a time lag between wholesale price increases and their reflection at the retail level. In addition, it said, not all wholesale price increases are passed on to the consumer.

The report showed the Nixon administration went over its 1973 target of trying to cut the rate of inflation to three per cent or below at the end of the year. During Phase 1 and Phase 2 economic controls, which were abandoned by President Nixon early in January, consumer prices went up 3.2 per cent, the report said.

The report said that prices of food purchased at grocery stores climbed by a sharp 0.6 per cent, but this is a usual increase for December, the BLS said.

Non-food commodities rose by 0.1 per cent on an unadjusted basis and 0.2 per cent on a seasonally adjusted basis.

The main reason for the rise was new car price increases put into effect in early December on an order approved by the Price Commission.

The price of services went up by 0.4 per cent in December, the report said.

In Phase 3, the Nixon administration has retained wage-price controls in the food, construction and health industries. Most of the rest of the economy was freed from direct mandatory controls. The administration said it will challenge any price increase out of line with voluntary standards.

In another report, the department said average weekly earnings of workers went up by 2.7 per cent last year. The increase for December was 0.1 per cent.

Average gross weekly earnings rose 7 per cent last year to $135.78. The average in 1971 was $126.91.

Report?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Indications mounted today that President Nixon was preparing to go on nationwide television to give the American people details of a Vietnam peace settlement.

The White House refused to confirm reports from Saigon that a televised presidential address was scheduled for Tuesday night.

But with U.S. negotiator Henry A. Kissinger returning from Paris after displaying public handshakes and smiles with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho, it appeared that Nixon was poised to break his month-long silence on the peace negotiations.

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH Associated Press Writer PARIS (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger conferred with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho for 3 hours and 45 minutes today and then flew back to Washington, ending a negotiating session that the White House said was to complete a Vietnam peace agreement.

Kissinger and Tho emerged from their secret meeting and posed shaking hands in front of the International Conference Center on Avenue Kleber in sight of the Arc de Triomphe.

But they gave no indication whether the cease-fire agreement was now complete or whether further decisions were required from President Nixon or President Nguyen Vanthu of South Vietnam.

It was noted, however, that official U.S. and North Vietnamese photographers were admitted to part of the session.

Neither South Vietnam nor the Viet Cong took part in the meeting.

But shortly before the meeting, Kissinger conferred for the second time in 10 hours with South Vietnam's foreign minister, Tram Van Lam, who flew in from Saigon to be on hand for what many expect to be the final negotiations. The two also lunched together later.

Kissinger, President Nixon's top foreign affairs adviser, arrived four minutes after his North Vietnamese opposite number at the conference center, the former Hotel Majestic where the long-deadlocked semipublic talks have been held. Both wore smiling.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler also announced a short time later that Kissinger was returning to Washington. He made the announcement through an unusual telephone conference call to The Associated Press, United Press International and Reuters.

The announcement of Kissinger's return came amid reports of a possible final peace settlement but Ziegler would not comment on the substance of the talks. Neither would he say what progress, if any, had been made.

PTI Board Reaffirms Continuation Of 23 Curriculum Programs

The trustees of Pitt Technical Institute, last night, reviewed and reaffirmed the continuation of the current 23 curriculum programs. The board also granted authority to the PTI administration to activate inactive approved programs or deactivate current programs, as the need arises.

Curriculum programs approved by the board and currently being offered by Pitt Tech include: Technical Two-Year Programs: Accounting, Agricultural Business Technology, Agricultural Chemicals Technology, Agricultural Science & Mechanization, Veterans' Farm Cooperative Program, Architectural Technology, Business Administration, Commercial Art & Graphic Design, Electronic Data Processing, Electronics Engineering Technology, Environmental Science Technology, Mental Health Associate, Police Science, Secretarial (Executive, Medical, Legal), Surveying (Technical Specialty) and General Office Technology.

Vocational Programs: Air Conditioning & Refrigeration, Automotive Mechanics, Drafting (Mechanical), Electrical Installation & Maintenance, Electronic Servicing, Farriering, Machinist, Masonry, Practical Nursing, Teacher Assistant, and Operating Room Assistant (2-Quarters only). Inactive Approved Programs: Mechanical Drafting & Design Technology, Basic Electrical Installation, Building Maintenance (Factory or Mill), and Carpentry.

The Carpentry program will be activated and offered by the Institute, beginning in March, 1973.

During the session, several current status reports were heard. The reports included a resume concerning a Pitt Tech Foundation, Alumni Association and Grants, by Jim Young, PTI Administrative Assistant. Board chairman Vernon E. White appointed C. W. Everett, Sr. Joseph M. Taft, and R. E. Davenport, Jr. to work with Young.

James W. Brewer, personnel committee chairman, told the board that Mrs. Marion Bunting, math instructor at PTI, had resigned. The committee recommended the appointment of Larry Thomas Ward to fill the position which was approved. Ward has a B.S. degree from the University of Arizona, and a masters degree in physics from East Carolina University.

Senate Moves

RALEIGH (AP) — With little discussion, the Senate Monday night quickly adopted a resolution endorsing a comprehensive study of the controversial retirement system for legislators. Just as quickly, the senators approved a resolution endorsing the enactment of a code of ethics for public officials and calling for the General Assembly to consider the possibility of setting off standing committees.

The Senate put off until today consideration of a resolution endorsing the concept of annual legislative sessions. The House has already overwhelmingly adopted a similar resolution.

New legislation included a bill in the House by Rep. Sam Johnson, D-Wake, chairman of the House Committee on Courts and Judicial Districts. The bill would amend the North Carolina Constitution to provide for nonpartisan appointment of judges in North Carolina. The bill would require the governor to fill vacancies among the judges from lists of nominees supplied by a judicial nominating committee.

Rep. Jon R. Gamble Jr., D-Lincoln, introduced a bill that would provide up to $50,000 in death benefits to the dependents of law enforcement officers and firemen killed in the line of duty.

Rep. Margaret Keese, R-Guilford, sponsored a bill to designate the emerald as the precious stone of North Carolina.

Islanders Flee Volcano In Small Boats, Planes

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — An armada of fishing boats and planes evacuated 5,000 Icelanders early today from a small island off the southeast coast after a volcano on the island erupted for the first time in history.

By dawn the lava had reached the outskirts of Vestmannaeyjar, the only town on the island of Heymaey. But by then only 300 of the 5,300 islanders remained to be taken off.

The sea around Heymaey was lit up like a busy street by the lights of the hundreds of fishing boats the government rushed to the island 75 miles southeast of Reykjavik.

Ashore the lava had not reached the houses of Vestmannaeyjar yet, but several were ablaze from the heat of the flow.

The islanders drove their livestock and pets to the harbor and the airstrip in hopes of getting them away. There were no casualties reported and no panic.

One islander, Jon Stefansson, said he was getting up to go fishing at 2 a.m. when he heard "terrible noises."

"Then I heard a siren from the fire station and thought there must be a fire somewhere in town," he continued. "The volcano just didn't enter my mind. But when I looked out of the window, it was plain what had happened."

Women, children and hospital patients were flown out despite a rain of hot ash falling on the airstrip. The other residents left by boat. Officials for a time feared the harbor at Vestmannaeyjar might be closed by the oozing lava, but this danger did not materialize.

Vestmannaeyjar is only 150 yards from Heigafell, the volcano that had not erupted since the Vikings discovered Iceland in 864 A.D. But the first outpouring of lava flowed away from the town and into the Atlantic, and it was some time before the flow moved toward the houses.

Ships of Iceland's large fishing fleet and its five coastal patrol boats were sent to the island. All buses in Reykjavik were commandeered and dispatched to Thorlakshofn, on the southern coast where the rescue armada was to land the evacuees.

The eruption was preceded by a small earthquake Monday. Then during the RALEIGH — Two Pitt County men were honored during the 30th annual meeting of the North Carolina Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts here Sunday through Wednesday.

Arch J. Flanagan of Farmville was presented the President's Award and Robert G. Little of Rt. 1, Grimesland, was awarded a 10-year service certificate.

"I dedicate myself to the task of helping my fellow man realize his own personal responsibility in conserving the earth for generations which follow so states the Creed of Soil Conservationist," said A. W. Bunch, president of the NCASWCD, "and so must be the creed of the man who is recipient of the President's Award for 1972."

With regard to the contribution of this man, as a supervisor, to the betterment of his community, his country, and his state; and the growing list of awards and recognition. . . it is a privilege and honor to present this year's president Award to Arch J. Flanagan," added Bunch.

Athletics Committee Organizes Wednesday

The organizational meeting of the Interscholastic Athletics Committee of the Greenville City Schools will take place Wednesday night at 8:00 p.m. in the board room of the city schools office.

The committee, established earlier this month by Board of Education Chairman Dr. Badger Clark, is one to provide an in-depth study of interscholastic athletics and physical education in all levels of the Greenville City Schools.

In forming the committee, Dr. Clark named as co-chairmen board members Lester Turnage and J. Edward Waldrop, and Mrs. Lucille Gorham and Mrs. Theresa Shank as committee members.

Following the initial appointment of the four school board members, Dr. Clark has also named the following to the committee: Charles Vincent, representing the Greenville Recreation Department; Bud Phillips, Director of Athletics, Greenville City Schools; Dr. Floyd E. Mattheis, former president of the Booster Club; and Harry Allen, member at large.

At the Wednesday meeting, the eight members already appointed are expected to name a few additional at-large members to assist in the long-range plans and studies.

When the committee members have the organizational meeting on Wednesday night, they will have already had an opportunity to study a report on the status of Interscholastic Athletics of the city schools. Some of the facts about the current program noted include:

—In kindergarten through grade six, physical fitness programs are basically carried out by the classroom teacher with the help and supervision of two coordinators of elementary physical education. These two serve seven elementary schools and approximately 3,000 pupils.

—When students reach the junior high school level, the program expands and extends to encompass alternate-day activity for pupils in grades seven and eight, with three days per week activity for ninth grade students.

—At the senior high school level, physical education is required two of the three years, unless a student carries a full academic schedule. In addition, advanced physical education is offered as an elective subject.

—Eight full time physical education teachers are required

New Teaching Methods Spur Learning In Kids

NEW YORK (WNS) — Concern everywhere over the inability of young children to read is causing many school systems to experiment with unconventional teaching methods. Some of them are producing promising results.

At an Indian reservation at Cherokee, N.C., the kids until recently "had no initiative, therefore no problems and no ambition," reports Avon Kirkland.

"But a new method of learning to read English got them excited. Then we added a Cherokee alphabet so they could learn to speak and read their own language and build up their pride. In a half-year of school the average kid gained one year in reading skills. Many gained two or three years."

Much the same is happening in school districts in more than 100 cities from New York to San Francisco, reports Kirkland. He is vice president in charge of operations for Behavioral Research Laboratories (BRL) of Palo Alto, Calif., which develops and sells educational systems and materials.

Contract Hassle
BRL first came to national attention in 1970 when it agreed to take over total management of a Gary, Indiana, inner city elementary school. The contract, due to expire next June, was abruptly canceled last December because, school officials said, the experimnt was not working.

This conclusion was disputed by the BRL chairman, Dr. Allen Calvin, who said, "We anticipated in the contract turning the program back to the school system, and we're just doing it a few months early."

Although the management contract was canceled, school officials said they were going to follow the BRL methods, including individualized instruction, ungraded classes and use of BRL materials. A company spokesman said this is evidence that the school system is satisfied with the reading program.

A year and a half ago in Philadelphia, 58,000 elementary grade school children in one school district were introduced to the new system. BRL guaranteed that each would measure up at least to the average national reading score for his grade — or the school district would get its money back.

BRL Gamble
It was a gamble, even though BRL doubles its $20 per pupil cost when it guarantees results. The average Philadelphia student lagged two or three years behind the national skills.

The school district ranked sixth out of eight in the city and is overwhelmingly black.

"And it's located in the middle of high-rise apartments where the kids have nothing to do but fight," said Kirkland, a mod-dressed, Afro-topped, tall, slim man of 35 with a doctorate in chemistry from Washington University in St. Louis.

"The first thing that happened is that a seldom used neighborhood branch of the library got an influx of 500 kids per week. The majority of the students made good month-to-month progress, and we would up the year with 65 per cent of the eligible students achieving or exceeding the guaranteed results. Some 15,000 lost eligibility for the guarantee because they attended less than the required 150 days.

"In the second year of the program, the district played it cool. They paid the guarantee rate only for the 2,500 slowest kids. The audit figures on this group aren't complete, but we made out well. I think we earned as much on this difficult group as we would have without the guarantee," he said.

Kindergarten Success
Before that BRL scored a success at San Francisco when nearly 90 percent of the kindergarten kids, using their materials, scored at or above the national average for the first time. The company's systems and materials have spread rapidly through the state, and to higher grades, since then.

The company offers two major programs for elementary schools, Project Read and the more comprehensive SILAS, which stands for the Sullivan Individualized Language Arts System. It is named for the linguist Dr. M. W. Sullivan who, with behavioral psychologist Dr. Allen D. Calvin, developed the programmed instructions and helped to found Behavioral Research Laboratories.

A key to the success of both systems is precise testing of each student to select the proper starting point in the course, based on his current ability. Then he sets his own pace, measures his own progress, competes only with himself, and experiences one small success after another.

Familiarizing teachers with the system is also important, Kirkland stressed. Instead of directing classes as such, they become tutors, circulating in the room and helping students individually.

"Some resist this at first, but most become enthusiastic — especially at inner-city schools where so many are now frustrated."

Students are stimulated by educational games, plays and group interaction. In the course of a year they may consume as many as 20 kinds of material — textbooks, spelling or handwriting books, audio tapes, worksheets, and the like.

Nobody has yet claimed that these or any of the other new teaching materials and methods have brought Utopia to the schools. Yet more and more administrators are experimenting with the BRL and other systems, and reporting real progress in reading.

If a few Johnnies can't read yet, there's a chance they will be learning soon.

No Redress For School Dress Code

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Man, do we have a problem! About 100 junior and senior high school students in Oklahoma need your help. Ours is a small-town school and the school board is so old fashioned it isn't even funny. They set up a dress code for girls saying we can't wear our dresses any shorter than three inches above our kneecaps. And they even tell the boys how long to wear their hair. They can't have it any longer than their collars.

Abby, everyone is so uptight here they are failing in their work. Do you honestly believe that a person's dress affects his behavior? IN JAIL IN MULDRON, OKLA.

DEAR IN: I hate to let you down, but serious studies show that a person's dress DOES affect his behavior. Kids who dress like they're going to a hay ride are more inclined to horse around.

DEAR ABBY: I came up with what I thought was a brilliant idea in the way of New Year's resolutions for married folks.

The husband should make up a list of resolutions for his wife to follow, and the wife should make up a list of resolutions for her husband to follow. For example, he might have me resolve never to ask him to stop on his way home and pick up something from the store, because that's my job and I have all day to do it. And I might have him resolve always to call me and tell me if he knows he'll be late getting home.

My husband told me he thought it was a very foolish idea and I should forget it.

Personally, I can't see what anyone would have to lose except some bad habits that irritated the spouse. On Jan. 1, both parties would sit down together, exchange lists, and bargain. You know, "Okay, I'll agree to Number One on your list, if you'll agree to Number Two on mine."

What do you think of this idea, Abby? MRS. T. IN JOPLIN, MO.

DEAR MRS. T.: I think it's so good, since it missed New Year's, any Monday morning would be a good starting date.

DEAR ABBY: You wrote, "You will always be your mother's daughter regardless of WHO your father's wife is." You are wrong. It should be "WHOM" because the entire phrase "who your father's wife is," is the object of the preposition "of."

Should your experts on English language prove me incorrect, I bow to the fact that language usage is a living thing, and as such is always changing. WIFE AND TEACHER

DEAR WIFE AND TEACHER: Don't teach the above, because you are wrong. "Who" is correct, because it is the subject of the clause, not the object.

DEAR ABBY: With all the publicity about breast cancer, I have yet to read one line stating that it's possible for men to have breast cancer. They can. I should know because I did.

I discovered two lumps in the region of my right breast. I went to a doctor and found that, indeed, I had breast cancer.

It's been a year since my surgery, and I continue to be "clean" simply because I saw the doctor in time. I am 48. T. J., HOLLYWOOD, CAL.

DEAR T. J.: I, for one, learned something new today. Thanks for writing.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Exercise And Proper Eating Can Retard Aging Process

By VIVIAN BROWN

AP Newsfeature Writer
Senility can't be reversed, but people can be helped to avoid the traps of aging. That's the message from Dr. William Goldwag, who is working on the problem.

Goldwag gave up a 17-year family medical practice in Ossining, N.Y., where his elderly patients provided him with the impetus to pursue his interest in aging. He has done research in Europe and for 18 months has been associated with the revitalization therapies of Dr. Ivan Popov, medical director of Renaissance at Nassau, who is well-known abroad.

There is a big difference between chronological science and physiological genetics, Goldwag observed. The psychology of aging also is important because how you visualize yourself determines many things in a society that regards aging as horrible. Eighty-year-olds who ignore the calendar can function like 40-year-olds, but he has observed 40-year-olds who act like octogenarians.

Many aspects of aging are elusive to medical science, including the big one — what really causes aging — but great inroads are being made and you can stay younger far beyond your chronological years with knowledge elicited in recent years.

What are the things that can keep us from aging prematurely?

Eating living foods, exercising to stress muscles, learning new things to sharpen our memories, avoiding stresses and ultra-violet rays of the sun, and developing an inner something (they can't pin it down) that involves optimism, hope and faith puts one in control of his body. Dr. Goldwag says:

"In observing the elderly in nursing homes, I saw brilliant minds of engineers, lawyers, others, vegetating within a short time, even though the people were in their prime. Society persuades people they are finished at a certain point ... and they are psyched into believing it, a tremendous waste of brain power and creative thinking. Young people cannot replace them because a great benefit of age is experience and the ability to apply what has been learned to new things."

"Nursing homes concentrate on distracting patients from the fact they are slowly dying. It is sad because it isn't necessary that our memories deteriorate. Recent memories suffer when new things aren't being learned. The normal thing should be to look forward to new activity at retirement and to consider ourselves functional to the end."

The whole system needs changing, he comments, but where do you start? In addition to having their lifelines cut, the indigent can bankrupt young people. Then, too, millions are spent by governments to regenerate the elderly; whereas the money might be spent on preventive medicine. It should begin in one's prime, preferably by age 30, but it is never too late to begin.

Here are some ideas you might put into practice in your own life, he advises:

Eat living foods — yeast, fruits, vegetables, meat, fish, poultry, cheese. Eat young forms of life that are still developing and have growth substances in them. As soon as you sever the source of life, the food begins to die. Fish can be eaten fresher than meat, which often is eaten long after it has begun to deteriorate. If one can't get fresh vegetables one should grow some at home in pots — radishes, onions, etc.

Choose whole foods rather than segments. Whole wheat is preferable to white flour, which discards the wheat germ.

"It is conceit to feel we can extract out of a plant or anything else what nature provided in the entirety," Goldwag commented. Medical science has even gone back to using the whole plant rather than the extract for digitals.

Natural foods should be preferred to vitamin pills unless they are medically prescribed, he observed. Present the body with natural substances and it will throw off what it doesn't want. Load it with vitamin pills and it may be forced to accept what it doesn't need. If one were to eat the large amount of food represented by the concentration in the pill, one might be warned by becoming ill.

The cheapest yeast food is bread, he pointed out. A cake of yeast (the kind used for baking) is the best natural source of vitamins, in his opinion. (For palatability Renaissance puts it in beer.) Keep it in the refrigerator and chip off a piece a couple of times a week.

Vitamin C and E foods are thought to be antistress and antioxidant and may play a definite role in slowing the aging process, he explained.

"C" foods include citrus fruits, peppers, turnip greens, broccoli, kale. Raw fruit is a good source because cooking destroys some of the vitamin.

"E" is in green lettuce, other green leaves, wheat germ, the oils of seeds (corn, etc.)

Our aim should be to improve the body's ability to resist stress that we are exposed to physically, mentally, bacterially. Smoke pollution, radiation, food additives increase the rate of oxidation reactions creating stress on our bodies. Over the years he has often noticed that the faces of heavy smokers are deeply wrinkled.

Avoid ultra-violet radiation, which is aging, by avoing sun between 10 and 3 in climates where the sun is strong, unless you are completely covered or coated with a sun screen substance which will help filter the rays.

"Discover your inner powers. Goldwag is not religious but he commented "we are using the bare minimum of our capacities." He has seen great physical disability overcome "by plain people" who have ascribed the healing to God. He believes they have called upon a capacity within themselves that everybody has.

"Doctors are trying to tape it electronically, teaching people how to control inner functions — heart rate, intestinal activity, blood pressure. Almost anybody can do this, but we don't even know how to train people to find the answers."

Minimal Brain Dysfunction Not One Disease

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Every child diagnosed as having minimal brain dysfunction is different and must be considered as an individual, according to Dr. John E. Peters, an Arkansas child psychiatrist.

Minimal brain dysfunction (MBD) is a family of diagnoses rather than a single entity, Dr. Peters recently told an audience of physicians in private practice. The three groups into which he divides the problem are the child with pure hyperactivity, the one with pure learning disability and the mixed types who have both.

Mixed and hyperactive children have in common short attention span, distractibility and impulsivity. The two pure types are relatively few in number. The largest number of MBC children fall into the mixed category.

Dr. Peters is head of the division of child and adolescent psychiatry at the University of Arkansas school of medicine.

He said that most children are diagnosed as having MBD and their parents are seen at least initially by a physician in private practice.

"In every group of 100 school children, there are likely to be 5 to 10 who have a learning disability or are so hyperactive they require special help. The physician has an important role in helping to identify and manage these children to prevent psychiatric maladjustments and to increase the child's chances for a productive life," Dr. Peters said.

Unstable emotions, mercurial behavior, poor motor integration, space movement perception deficit and disorders in language processing are also characteristic of MBD children.

The seminar on diagnosis and management of the child with MBD was sponsored as part of a medical horizons program by CIBA Pharmaceutical Co.

To make your own upholstery cleaner, beat a mild detergent into a thick foam. Sponge the fabric with the foam only. Do not soak the fabric with water. This may cause shrinkage, especially with some cottons and rayons. Wipe with a clean cloth and allow to dry. Always pretest before doing this. Try it out on the back of the sofa or on the underside of a seat cushion to see if the particular fabric on your furniture can be cleaned this way without damaging it.

Budget Benefits ECU Campus

North Carolina's biennial budget for 1973-75 included a number of projects which could make facilities on the local campus far more usable.

For the first time this year, the budget was submitted on a unified basis by the University Board of Governors. It included base funds for individual campuses to continue present services. In this category ECU would receive $23.2 million for the two-year period.

A lump sum change budget was also included which would be distributed among the various universities by the Board of Governors for expanded and improved programs. ECU would share in this, although amounts would be determined by the board. Finally, the budget, prepared by the Advisory Budget Commission, recommended approximately $60 million for capital improvements. This was done on the basis of priority items submitted by the board.

While the amounts could change, or presumably could be changed by the board after the total appropriation is made, most observers feel that the first priority items in the budget would be reasonably certain.

In this category, ECU was listed for an addition to the Humanities building costing $2.1 million; library renovation, $720,000; heating plant expansion, $1.8 million; utilities $38,000; roads, walks and parking $55,000 and storm drainage, $40,000.

These first priority items total $4,753,000, but the addition to the humanities building would complete a building now getting under construction and for which $2 million is already on hand.

Library renovations at $720,000 would remodel the present library building to make it compatible with a new structure costing $3.1 million, which is already funded and should be under construction soon.

The heating plant expansion at $1.8 million would provide an addition to the new plant on 14th Street and thus phase out the old plant on the main campus.

New lighting for Ficklen Stadium at $300,000 would be self-liquidating and seems assured.

Unfortunately renovation of the old Wahl-Coates School building, now used for dramatics, costing $1.4 million was dropped to second priority, as was an administration building at $700,000. The future of these projects seems less assured.

A third priority was given to the planetarium appropriation of $500,000.

The first priority items seem well thought out to give the best possible use of present facilities on the campus. The humanities building, for instance will free other space for use by the School of Business and other departments.

It will be regrettable, indeed however, if funds are not found for the old Wahl-Coates renovation, since this building, which already stands, can be made more usable at a relatively low cost.

The Roadblock Colored Green

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — North Carolina blacks are gaining a sophistication in politics that has large implications for campaigns of the future.

"You can no longer categorize the black vote. It's impossible to predict where it will go in 1974 or 1976," said Rep. H. M. Michaux, Jr. of Durham.

"Blacks are not taking things at face value in politics any more. They are delving into the why, how and when before they commit their support."

BRYAN HAISLIP

What that will mean for the destiny of the Democratic and Republican parties, the ambitions of particular candidates, or for blacks themselves, will be answered in elections yet to come. The present certainty, he said, is a new and growing awareness of the ballot's potential to change social and economic conditions.

Michaux, an attorney, came to the 1973 General Assembly as the third of his race to serve in recent years. Rep. Henry Frye of Guilford in 1969 cracked the color barrier intact since Reconstruction. He was joined in 1971 by Rep. Joy Johnson of Robeson. Joy returned for the current session.

Imbalanced Representation
Three lawmakers out of 170 for an ethnic group composing some one-fourth of the state's population is hardly balanced representation, ichaux observed.

The problem isn't just getting blacks elected, difficult as that remains, but getting them to run. The three who won were among only seven black candidates in legislative races for last fall's general election.

A major roadblock has more to do with the color green than black or white. It's money, said Michaux.

The token pay for legislative work keeps many good citizens of modest income from offering themselves for the job, he said. Serving in the legislature takes several months away from regular employment. "Most people just can't afford to do it," he said.

Serving Costs Him
"Yes, it will definitely be a financial sacrifice for me." He gave up the post of assistant solicitor, with a good salary, to come to Raleigh. His private practice of law is necessarily limited during the session. If it wasn't for family-owned corporations which keep him on the payroll, he said, he couldn't make it.

Raising legislative salaries runs into the objection to professional legislators. While there is merit in the concept of citizen lawmakers, Michaux agreed, there also is danger in restricting access to the legislature to those of higher economic station.

If the alternative is a leisure class legislature, he argued, then a case can be made for professionals.

In any case, fair legislative pay is a goal endorsed by the freshman Representative.

Three-Time Preparation
Although it is his first term, Michaux said he got his feet on the ground early. He ran three times before getting elected, each time preparing himself for the office so he knew what to expect.

The service of Frye and Johnson before him smoothed the way, and they have helped him get oriented, he added.

The reception from all members was uniform in courtesy and helpfulness, he said. Color created no hint of problems.

There's no doubt that blacks in the system enhance the legislative process, Michaux said. "We contribute the point of view of people who have an interest in the issues being dealt with," he explained.

"After all, we're all here to enrich the life of the state, to make a better life for all its people."

The last election gave evidence of two-party politics developing among blacks as well as the general electorate. Republicans appeared to score some success in breaking traditional black loyalty to the Democratic party.

Michaux, a Democrat, has mixed emotions on the prospect. If it serves to dilute black unity along partisan lines, it could delay the achievement of common objectives, he said.

"I'd like to see blacks maintain their independence as a united body politically. I don't want us to be hog-bound to one party or the other," he added.

"I'm a Democrat. I've crossed party lines. I'll probably always be a Democrat. I just don't want the Democrats to take me for granted."

Blacks have made gains in the Democratic party, he said, but there is still a long way to go.

Agnew's Small Staff Reduced

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The White House has decreed an important reduction in Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's tiny personal staff which will strip him of long-time aides J. Roy Goodearle and Herbert Thompson — a move certain to be interpreted as a sign of Agnew's political decline.

Agnew has had at least two conversations with President Nixon since the election, but the staff reductions ordered by White House major domo H. R. (Bob) Haldeman and former personnel chief Frederick Malek apparently were not discussed.

Rather, the Vice President's staff was "routinely" ordered to be trimmed down as part of Mr. Nixon's overall staff reduction inside the White House. Many key White House staffers, however, were promoted to high jobs in cabinet-level departments and remain closely linked to the White House operation. That is not true of Goodearle, who has been Agnew's political liaison chief, and Thompson, a speechwriter who was Agnew's press secretary as governor of Maryland. They will stay in government, but in non-political jobs.

These involuntary staff reductions coincide with the voluntary departure of press secretary Vic Gold, who is quitting to write a book. Agnew's political staff, never one of his strengths, is now weaker than ever at a moment ripe for building a national operation aiming toward the 1976 presidential nomination.

More important, all this casts new doubts on the President's congeniality toward Agnew. Republican politicians aware of the staff reductions say privately Mr. Nixon would have demonstrated normal courtesy toward Agnew by exempting the Vice President's small staff from personnel cuts in the overblown White House staff.

They quickly add Mr. Nixon himself may not even know about the cuts. The mere fact they were ordered by Haldeman, however, is evidence that Agnew's standing with the White House palace guard is chilly at the very least.

Wall Street Cowboys
A major House Ways and Means Committee investigation which may tie booming cattle operations of "Wall Street cowboys" to soaring beef prices is being quietly planned by chairman Wilbur Mills.

Mills worries that tax benefits originally written for low-bracket farmers are being used by high-bracket city slickers in a way that bids up beef prices. Therefore in his tax reform hearings, Mills will dig into the law now permitting enormous tax deductions — sometimes exceeding 100 per cent — covering the entire cost of feed for feeder cattle fattened on the range or in feeder lots. For Wall Street farmers, these deductions produce large and immediate tax savings.

Mills is concerned that the growing capital now moving

Opportunism Prevails

WASHINGTON — Politics, they say, makes strange bedfellows, and rarely have stranger fellows been found under the same blanket than the American Farm Bureau and the Teamsters Union. They are cuddled up this month in a joint effort to promote the extension of Federal labor law to farm workers across the nation. The Teamsters are doing what comes naturally: They are acting out of a fine sense of opportunism. The Farm Bureau, by contrast, is acting from a deep sense of panic.

Both of them see at the window the spectre of Cesar Chavez, head of the AFL-CIO farm workers' union. They may not love each other, but they look at Chavez with the same gelid eye: They cannot abide the fellow.

For the Teamsters, the pending legislation presents a rich opportunity to play their own game under rules they long ago mastered. At present, none of the provisions of the National Labor Relations Act applies to farm workers. Where small armies of hand labor are required to produce a crop, as in California and Florida, the workers are ripe grapes for the plucking.

Chavez, the soft-spoken hero of the limousine liberals, is an intellectual quadron: one-fourth mystic, three-fourths boss. The mysticism overwhelms the Ethel Kennedy types, and the bossism plucks the grapes. In the four years since he began swinging his magic whip, Chavez has corralled thousands of farm workers who must join his union or be denied the only living they know.

The Teamsters understandably want a piece of this action. With dues of $3.50 per head per month, plus initiation fees, a thousand farm workers represent half a million dollars a year. A million such workers may be eligible. The mind boggles. But the Teamsters, famed for their own razzle-dazzle, thus far have proved no match for Chavez. If the rules were changed, they would find themselves in fat city down on the farm.

The motivations of the Farm Bureau are quite different. They may not regard Frank Fitzsimmons as an angel of light, but they look upon Chavez as the devil incarnate. Frustrated, bewildered, out-maneuvered, the growers have been put through a miserable time. They have suffered the grape boycott and the lettuce boycott; they have surren-

Other Editors Say Support For System

(The Raleigh Times)

The talk of money and tax cuts got the big headlines on Governor Holshouser's address to the General Assembly. But, it would be impossible to over-emphasize the importance of some of the other points he covered.

He supported completely the concept of the University of North Carolina system, restructured by the 1971 General Assembly. Under this system, a Board of Governors oversees the finances of the 16 campuses, recommending to the Assembly what should be funded. Partisans of East Carolina University, which has never been eager to work in any sort of harness, already are talking about asking the legislature to go over the heads of the Board of Governors and give it another leg up on a medical school.

Holshouser didn't call ECU by name in his address, but what he said about the University system is clear and pointed:

"But, ladies and gentlemen, our history books may well say that the most lasting result of the 1973 legislature was your determination to protect the concept of our new university system. This new system was carefully molded in 1971 by a General Assembly which set aside all secondary considerations in its finest hour of statesmanship. I urge you to defend the new university system and its Board of Governors and prove to the people of North Carolina that we will stand behind the commitment we made here in 1971."

The Assembly should heed this wise advice. Holshouser endorsed in principle reforms which could make the legislative a more effective body — electric voting machines, committee research assistance, ethics legislation and annual sessions — but pointedly noted that he wouldn't propose legislation in that area "because I believe legislative reforms is your prerogative."

He made it plain that he will seek reforms and reorganization in the executive branch, including the Highway Commission, and that he would ask an ethics bill for the executive departments.

He came out strong for a tighter drunken driving law. Holshouser favors removing the loopholes in the implied consent statute, providing for mandatory license revocation for refusal to take the Breathalyzer test. This would be a long step in helping rid our highways of the drunken driver.

Other major recommendations include: A comprehensive new program for health services, aimed at delivery of medical care to our rural areas across the state.

A campaign spending limit for statewide campaigns. The equal rights amendment.

The veto power for the governor, with a 1977 effective date. The address was a far-ranging one. It covered many points and covered them well.

Words That Wound

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks a television comedian gets tired of hearing:
"I've heard that joke before — but the other guy told it better."

HAL BOYLE

"So you're Jimmy Pratt, the television comedian. Well, I'll tell you one thing you did for me — you drove me back to radio."

"If you were in a cat and dog act, Jimmy, you'd still be the one getting second billing."

"Who will you steal your material from, Jimmy, if both Milton Berle and Henry Youngman retire?"

"I know some comedians can't be funny without being dirty, but when you tell a blue joke it just makes the audience turn purple and see red."

"Jimmy's first sponsor was a firm that makes an insomnia cure, but they dropped his program because he put all the viewers to sleep before he got to the first commercial."

"Jimmy, as your mother-in-law, I am getting sick and tired of all your motheaten crude mother-in-law jokes. Unless you drop them, I'm afraid I'm going to have to foreclose the mortgage on your home."

"The biggest laugh Jimmy Pratt ever got was when he asked a publisher if he didn't want to put out a book on the story of his life."

"Maybe you're in the wrong side of the business, Pratt. You've tried for 30 years to make people laugh and all you do is bore them to tears. But people like to cry even more than they like to laugh. Why don't you see if you can make them cry. It might make you

40 Years Ago Today

By GWYN COGHILL
January 23, 1933

John H. Small, prominent Washington City attorney and former Representative of the United States Congress, championed the cause of the farmer in a speech delivered at the court house today at the noon recess of the Superior Court. Discussing the farm relief legislation recently passed by the Federal House of Representatives, the speaker expressed the hope that it would be enacted into law and serve the increase the market price for principal farm products.

An attempt to rob the Home Grocery Store on Dickinson Avenue was nipped in the bud last night by officers but the lone would-be robber escaped. The robber observed the police car patrolling the street in close vicinity to the store and beat a hasty retreat in spite of the fact that he had already broken open the front door.

Strength For Today

IT'S UP TO US

War. Is there any sense in it? None whatsoever. To say this is not to advocate pacifism for the world being as it is we have to keep ourselves armed against nations that could overwhelm us and would not hesitate to do so. But the present necessity for armament and war does not make war right. The issues that we try to settle by war could be settled much more effectively by confrontation and counsel. The world's great battles are won not on the battlefield but around the council table. The First World War had to be fought, for the Kaiser was getting too big for his britches. The Second World War had to be fought. We could not live in the world with the monster Hitler. But this does not make war right. War never had been and never will be the most effective way to settle international differences.

There has never been such a wonderful period in which to live as this last half of the twentieth century. Our problems are big ones, but as we look into the future it ought to be perfectly clear to us that wars and continued wars will in the end settle nothing.

All honor to the brave men who have stood between ourselves and extinction in the past and stand ready to do the same thing today. They are to be praised and thanked for their service. But their courage and consecration do not make war right. There can be peace on earth and good will toward men (all men) if we want to make it that way.

Sign Of A Vigorous Economy

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — It is predictable as the phases of the year: When the economy is vigorous lenders are amiable. They might even plot little schemes to encourage you to borrow.

Most families don't need a great deal of encouragement to borrow when times are good and the future looks even better. It is then that they have the confidence to go into debt.

And while the debts build up, the rapidly expanding economy packs more income into the wallets of borrowers, who though pressed from time to time — that is, every month — are therefore able to pay the bills.

But then comes another predictable phase: Some borrowers and lenders begin to have a few financial scrapes. This is decidedly more fighting to the lender, and he begins to have doubts.

Shortly thereafter some lenders begin to raise questions about "the quality of debt." High quality debt is when bills are repaid on time. The ratio of delinquencies and failures reduces that quality.

The debt quality is lowered, for instance, when a businessman delays paying a bill within the allotted 30 days or whatever it may be, so that he can use his creditor's money interest-free.

This is one tipoff that a boom might be developing strains, that buyers and borrowers might be exceeding their capacity to pay. The reason the businessman can't pay his bills might be that his customers aren't paying theirs.

In the consumer area, the signs of deterioration show up as mortgage delinquencies and foreclosures, and slowness in repayment of installment loans at department stores and other retail outlets.

One of the first expressions of concern came at the annual convention this month of the National Association of Home Builders in Houston. "The quality of personal credit," said a banker, "may already have suffered some deterioration."

The latest data on mortgage delinquency, said Ira O. Scott, Jr., executive vice president of the Savings Bank Association of New York, "are not so serious as to indicate a crisis, but they do signal that credit quality is becoming more heavily strained."

Mortgage delinquency, he noted, rose to 3.82 per cent of the 4.5 million mortgages studied by the Mortgage Bankers Association, a figure he said was higher than at any other time in at least 10 years.

Scott maintains that early warnings seem to be flashing in the installment loan area. In a recession, he explained, it is typical for delinquencies of 30 days and over to rise sharply to around 2 per cent.

As economic conditions improve, he adds, the delinquency rate should drop to that which existed before the recession. Since the recession of 1970, however, the improvement has been halting and marked by relapses, he said.

"At latest reading, installment loan delinquencies, at 1.92 per cent, were higher than at any time during the last recession," he said.

It may be a little early to say whether the signs result from long-term pressures or are a temporary short circuit that can be fixed.

Mixed Reaction To High Court Abortion Ruling

Onetime Critics Join In Tribute To Lyndon Johnson's Endeavours

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Led by President Nixon, the nation paid tribute today to Lyndon B. Johnson as the president whose domestic achievements were overshadowed until his death by the war he couldn't end.

"No man had greater dreams for America than Lyndon Johnson," said Nixon of his predecessor in the White House. "Even as we mourn his death, we are grateful for his life, which did so much to make those dreams into realities."

Johnson's deeds matched his dreams of civil-rights and social progress, said others in appraising the five-year administration of the president whose death stunned the capital Monday night.

In a refrain echoing through the appraisals by many of Johnson's associates, Sen. Ed ward M. Kennedy said: "As President, his brilliant leadership on the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Voting Rights Act of 1965 have earned him a place in the history of civil rights alongside Abraham Lincoln.

"And his efforts to help the poor, the sick and the oppressed stand out as landmarks of America's concern for those too weak to help themselves."

Thrust into office by tragedy, Johnson coped first with the mounting racial turmoil of the mid-1960s, but watched the nation become more deeply rent by American soldiers died by the thousands in Vietnam.

Former Sen. Eugene McCarthy, who coalesced anti-war forces behind his surprisingly strong challenge to Johnson's expected bid for renomination by the Democratic party in 1968, said of the dead president:

"If he was to be faulted, it was not for lack of dedication or lack of commitment, but for taking upon himself or to himself too much of the burden and of the responsibilities of government."

On March 31, 1968, Johnson shocked the nation with the announcement that he would neither seek nor accept renomination.

Johnson's vice president, Hubert H. Humphrey, reflected on that day:

"He and Lady Bird, Luci and her husband came up to our apartment. He said 'could I talk to you alone?' Then he told me what he was going to do. He said 'I've done everything. I could try and end the war. I've tried the Pope, I've tried the Russians, I've tried the Poles, the French ... I'm going to make another supreme effort. Hubert, I want peace in Vietnam more than anything.'"

But Humphrey recalled that Johnson believed he could not bring the warring parties into peace negotiations unless he withdrew from the campaign and purged the bid of any political taint.

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Roman Catholic church leaders have deplored the Supreme Court decision guaranteeing American women the right to have medical abortions during the first six months of pregnancy.

Otherwise, there was mixed reaction to the court's 7-2 ruling Monday that the states may interfere with this "right of privacy" only in about the last three months of pregnancy, when the unborn child is developed enough to live outside the mother.

In North Carolina, there were predictions that a suit challenging the state law on abortions would be remanded to a three-judge federal panel. The case is now pending before the Supreme Court.

North Carolina Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan said that at first blush the high court ruling would tend to abolish North Carolina's relatively liberal abortion law. But he added that he would not want to say anything definitive until he had studied the ruling.

In South Carolina, Asst. Atty. Gen. Tim Quinn also declined a definite statement. He did say the ruling might reduce from three to one the number of doctors required under state law to certify the need for an abortion.

John Cardinal Krol of Philadelphia, the highest-ranking Catholic prelate in the United States, called the decision "an unspeakable tragedy" and said "it is hard to think of any decision in the 200 years of our history which has had more disastrous implications for our stability as a civilized society."

Patrick Cardinal O'Boyle of Washington, D.C., called the decision a catastrophe for America. "It is a shocking display of a few men arrogating to themselves the judgment at what stage the life of an unborn child may be terminated," he said.

Gov. David Hall of Oklahoma said the issue is one for state legislatures. "I deeply regret this additional intrusion by the federal government into matters the state should resolve," he said.

On the other hand, the leading proponent of liberalized abortions in the California legislature said the decision makes "abortion on request" available throughout the nation.

"The state has no overriding interest which would permit it to interfere in this very private decision," said State Sen. Anthony Beilenson, a Beverly Hills Democrat.

State Rep. Sarah Weddington of Texas, a leading figure in the lawsuit that led to Monday's ruling, said in Austin she was "very pleased because of the impact this decision will have on the lives of the many women who in the past have suffered ..."

The ruling struck down a Texas law that had made it a crime for doctors to terminate pregnancies except "for the purpose of saving the life of the mother."

The court also disapproved by a 7-2 vote provisions of a Georgia law. These required advance approval of a hospital committee and concurrence of two additional physicians before a woman could have an abortion recommended by her doctor.

Thirty other states have laws similar to the Texas statute. Thirteen additional states have laws like Georgia's. Since the handful of remaining states already permitted medical abortions virtually upon demand, the ruling will have nationwide impact.

The court's majority opinion, by Justice Harry A. Blackmun, rested largely on the "right of privacy" and the medical view that in the early stages of pregnancy an abortion is no more of a risk than birth itself.

Local Moose At New Bern

Twelve members of the Greenville Moose Lodge attended the mid-winter ceremonial of the Legion of the Moose in New Bern over the weekend.

One member of the Greenville Moose Lodge, Chester Lijja, was enrolled in the second degree of the fraternity. A banquet and dance were included in the entertainment portion of the ceremonial which brought together members from the lodges east of Raleigh.

Those attending from Greenville included Ed Campbell, James Harris, Lloyd Wilson, Jaspert Anderson, Tom Jamieson, John Simonowich, Carlton McCollom, Max Pollard, Francis Tyson, Ed Baldree and Andrew Walker.

Secretary Baldree reminded the Moose last night that Supreme Governor Phillip Morse, of Corning, N.Y., will be making his only stop in eastern North Carolina during his tour of the states on February 9, at Kinston.

Enrollment of new members into the Greenville lodge is being deferred until that date for participation in a class of candidates being gathered in the visitor's honor.

Onasis' Son Is Critically Hurt

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Alexandros Onassis, 24, the only son of the Greek shipping magnate, struggled for life today after being critically injured in an airplane crash.

The Ministry of Press and Information issued an announcement on his condition after reports from sources in the hospital said that he had died. The ministry said it made the announcement on the basis of information from Paraskevas Ionnides, director of Olympic Airways, the Greek national airline owned by Aristotle Onassis.

The announcement came about one hour after Aristotle Onassis and his wife Jacqueline were seen leaving the hospital, heads bowed and tears streaming down their faces.

A source close to the Onassis family said Alexandros was in desperate condition with a severe concussion and brain damage he suffered when his private plane crash-landed at Athens Airport Monday.

Alexandros' mother is now Mrs. Stavros Niarchos, whose husband also is a shipping millionaire.

Doctors said they had done everything possible for Alexandros, and that his survival depended on his youth and physical resistance. He was piloting the plane when it crashed shortly after taking off from the Athens airport. Airport officials reported the amphibious craft developed mechanical trouble.

Two copilots, Donald MacGregor, a Briton, and Donald MacCusker, an American, were seriously injured. But the doctors reported them out of danger today and improving.

dered their workers to Chavez without free elections among the workers; and the desperate prospect confronts them of strikes, boycotts, and closed shop conditions with none of the protections of Federal labor law.

John Davenport, one of the nation's most respected writers on economic affairs, said bluntly in Barron's Weekly early this month that the Farm Bureau is buying "a pig in a poke." The protections imagined by the Bureau are likely to prove ineffective protections. It is one thing to regulate labor-management relations in a factory, where the bargaining unit is fixed; it is something else entirely to extend the law to migrant workers who may be in Bakersfield today and Fresno tomorrow.

One of the unfortunate aspects of this affair is the abandonment of principle by the Farm Bureau. A few years ago the Bureau stoutly defended the principle of voluntary unionism. It as strongly opposed compulsion. Yet to advocate the extension of Taft-Hartley is implicitly to accept extension of the union shop. The Bureau invites a situation, a few years hence, when large farmers would be caught like so many fish in a net of NLRB regulations. They would encounter the "unfair labor practice," the skilled labor lawyer, the experienced union negotiator. They might be worse off than they are now.

The pending bill cannot pass without the support of the Farm Bureau and other farm organizations. If they would throw their influence behind the principle of voluntarism instead, and seek positive guarantees of a farm worker's right to work without joining a union, they could solve their problems. Denied the power of a union shop, Chavez and Fitzsimmons alike could then be pruned to manageable size.

Greek Tragedy
The State Department, notorious in ignoring excesses of the Greek military dictatorship, has been privately asked by a senior member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee to intervene in behalf of a threatened Greek politician.

Rep. Ben Rosenthal of New York, chairman of the subcommittee handling Greek affairs, has personally asked Secretary of State William Rogers to make an extraordinary intervention to save John Zigdis (a cabinet minister in parliamentary days) from going back to jail.

The disgraceful Zigdis case began in April 1970, with an interview he gave to "Ethnos," the highly esteemed Athens newspaper. Because the article was critical of the military junta, the newspaper was shut down and Zigdis and its editors thrown in jail.

After 22 months, Zigdis was released because of deteriorating health. But he is now threatened with a return to jail on Jan. 23. A new, highly-publicized decree promising review of verdicts by Extraordinary Courts Martial specifically excluded Zigdis.

Thus, barring high-level U.S. intervention, Zigdis faces prison again this week. In a letter to Greek exile leader Elias Demetropoulos, Rosenthal said that since the U.S. "has offered material and moral support to the present Greek government, it bears the responsibility with that government for the status of political prisoners like Mr. Zigdis."

Lauds N.C. Litter Care

CHARLOTTE (AP)—A Keep America Beautiful official has praised North Carolina for doing a better job of litter control than most other states in the southeast.

But, William Nash, southeastern regional director of Keep America Beautiful, stressed a need for citizens to become more aware of the litter problem.

Nash spoke Monday at the final session of the quarterly meeting of Keep North Carolina Beautiful, an outgrowth of former Gov. Bob Scott's beautification committee.

Litter and its control were emphasized at the meeting. Nash stated that it costs about $1 billion yearly to clean up public and private property and more than half the funds used come from taxpayers.

Nash added that some states spend nearly $3 million a year on litter control.

CP&L Reports Better Earnings

RALEIGH (AP) — An improved earnings picture in 1972 has been reported by Carolina Power & Light Co.

The company said its earnings per share in 1972 amounted to $2.86. This compared with $1.97 in 1971, $1.56 in 1970 and $2.05 in 1969.

CP&L President Shearon Harris said the company's 1972 earnings were "influenced favorably by operation of the Robinson nuclear plant with its lower fuel costs, by favorable weather conditions which made it possible to provide service and perform scheduled maintenance without requiring operation of the company's less efficient generating facilities, and by rate increases granted during the year."

CP&L's 700,000 kilowatt nuclear unit at its H. B. Robinson plant near Hartsville, S. C., was put into service in 1971.

NEW YORK (AP)—As reports hit Wall Street that a Vietnam peace agreement had been initiated, stock prices rose from a bed of lethargy and slowly began to climb.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down 2.63 to 1016.18. Earlier it had been down 3.91 on reports of an impending prime rate increase and a drop in the dollar's exchange value on foreign markets today.

"The market has started to rally on the Vietnam news," said Charles M. Lewis of Winkler, Cantor, Pomboy & Co. "I would imagine once its official, we'll see something quite favorable."

Fruehauf was the most-active issue on the New York Stock Exchange, down 3/4 to 31 1/4 after a block trade of 104,000 shares at 30 3/4.

Oil stocks, which have risen sharply recently in response to a national fuel oil shortage, ran into some cashing in of profits by investors. Standard Oil of California was off 1/2 to 86 3/4, Texaco was off 1/2 to 42;

Gulf was off 1/2 to 28; and Mobil was down 3/8 to 74.

Gerber Products, which reported a quarterly earnings dip from 57 cents a share to 32 cents a share, was down 2 1/4 to 22 3/4.

On the Big Board declining stocks held a 7-4 lead enjoyed by decliners. At 11 a.m. the New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,400 common stocks was down 0.13 to 64.05, and the price-change index at the American Stock Exchange was down 0.04 to 26.20.

Nab Suspect In Boy's Abduction

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP)—A man sought on charges of abducting and sexually assaulting a 13-year-old boy who was held prisoner in a buried box for eight days was arrested today by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

An FBI spokesman said Richard W. Ausley, 32, was arrested about 2:30 a.m. at his mother's home in Portsmouth on an unlawful flight to avoid prosecution warrant, the FBI said.

Ausley was arrested without incident. Ausley was being held temporarily in the Norfolk city jail, pending an identity hearing before the U.S. magistrate later this morning.

The FBI explained the hearing was to determine that the man arrested was Ausley. An FBI spokesman said following the hearing the unlawful flight charge would be dropped and Ausley would be turned over to local authorities for prosecution on abduction, sodomy and kidnapping charges.

—From kindergarten through senior high efforts are made to provide intramural sports. This program is limited in scope.

—Athletics are built into the program of the junior and senior high schools, with the idea that it is important that athletics not be given priority over other educational activities.

—A contradiction exists in financing athletics. Though emphasis has been placed on athletics as an integral part of the total program, it has been traditionally necessary that athletics be operationally self-supporting.

These and other factors are ones the committee will deal with in formulating present and long-range goals to enrich the current interscholastic athletics program in all levels of the city schools. Attention will also be given to physical education as an element in the total picture of physical activities for students.

Youth Said Tied, Robbed

Greenville police are continuing their investigation today into a report by a 15-year-old boy that he was tied to a bush on the bank of the Tar River and robbed by two men yesterday morning.

Chief Cannon said Marvin E. Carr of 415 East Second St. told officers he was walking to meet a school bus when two men forced him into their car at the intersection of Second and Summit Streets about 7:45 a.m. The two abductors, Cannon continued, allegedly took young Carr to a spot on the Tar River on Willow Street between the intersection of Woodlawn and Rotary Avenues, took about 50 cents in change from him and tied him to a bush.

Carr was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for examination by the Greenville Rescue Squad about 11:50 a.m. when a resident of the area heard him calling for help and found him on the river bank.

The youth, was not injured, said his abductors wore ski masks.

Institutes Post Of Ombudsman

RALEIGH (AP)—Natural and Economic Resources Secretary James Harrington announced several changes in the reorganization of his department today, including the creation of an ombudsman's post and appointment of a new assistant secretary.

Harrington also disclosed he had asked for—and obtained—the resignation of Orville Woodhouse of Grandy as director of fisheries and wildlife. Woodhouse was involved initially in an aborted move last month to fire Wildlife Resources Director Clyde Patton.

Harrington said he was making Victor Barfield, formerly a deputy secretary, his top aide for internal organization. Barfield will join Dr. Art Cooper, who will be retained, as assistant secretaries.

Barfield will act as "chief of staff" for the department, Harrington said.

George W. Little of Southern Pines, finance director for Gov. Jim Holshouser's successful campaign last year, was named deputy secretary. Barfield said Little would serve as the department's liaison with other agencies, industry and the public.

Harrington named James E. Godfrey, 22, of Goldsboro as a special assistant to fill the experimental ombudsman's post.

"The purpose of this position is...to test the idea of an ombudsman or citizens representative, and to expedite the processing of inquiries and requests that come into the department," Harrington said.

Harrington named James C. Hastings, 29, of Boone, a former field representative for the Committee to Re-Elect the President, as state director of travel and promotion.

Harrington said he was retaining Steve Conrad as director of the Office of Earth Resources, Ralph Winkworth as director of forest resources, Bob Leak as director of industrial, tourist and community resources, Jim Stevens as director of recreation resources and George Pickett as director of water and air resources.

Dollar Tumbles

LONDON AP—Major money holders rushed to sell off their dollars in Europe today and the U.S. currency weakened on the Continent's exchange markets.

One reason was Switzerland's refusal to buy dollars with Swiss francs.

"An avalanche of several hundred million dollars" was offered for sale in Switzerland, a senior Swiss Nation Bank official said.

The dollars came mainly from big banks and international companies.

The Swiss decision amounted to a floating of the franc. The franc has already been revalued upwards twice in the past two years.

The Swiss acted after market pressure sent the dollar to its bottom price of 3.7535 Swiss francs at the close Monday night. This was in reaction to rumors that the Swiss franc would be unpegged and to Italy's introduction of a two-year lira market.

In London, the Swiss franc was quoted at 369-3705 to the dollar soon after trading opened. The pound was quoted at $2.3595-$23605 compared with $23534-$237 late Monday.

In Frankfurt, the dollar opened $3.18 marks, down from 3.1930 at the close Monday, and then declined to $3.1650.

Fond Memories Of Winning Teams Highlight Pardee Talk To Bucs

Jack Pardee, linebacker for the Washington Redskins, told the East Carolina University Pirates to enjoy every minute they were on the football field, and to never forget the experiences they share with their fellow players and coaches.

Pardee was speaking to the annual East Carolina University football banquet, sponsored this year by North Carolina National Bank.

Open to the team members and special guests, the banquet was held at the Candlewick Inn.

Pardee, who's team lost, 14-7, in the recent Super Bowl to the Miami Dolphins, said that he has many pleasant memories of the two Redskin teams he has played on.

"I still enjoy football," he told the group. "I enjoy meeting the people I've met through football, and I wouldn't trade it for anything. After 16 years in the pros, you might figure that I've been a great football player all my life."

But this wasn't so, Pardee explained. He recalled his first football team. "I don't even know what position I played," he said. That was in a small Texas high school that had only seven players. He recalled that he didn't play much, but sat mostly on the bench.

"I didn't get to the top right away. I was just fortunate enough to outlast a lot of

Pardee Unsure Whether To Quit

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Jack Pardee, veteran linebacker for the Washington Redskins, was reported retiring immediately after Washington's 14-7 loss to the Miami Dolphins in the Super Bowl.

But Pardee, here yesterday to speak to the East Carolina Football Banquet, said rumors of his retirement may have been premature.

"I haven't retired yet for sure," he said. "I have no big reason to decide today or even next week. If I don't play, I'll stay with the Redskins as a coach. I'll be doing the same thing in the meantime." During the off-season Pardee functions as a coach with the Redskins and will be working with the defense.

Of course, the natural question that falls to any member of the Washington team right now is, what happened in the Super Bowl?

"We're still asking ourselves that," Pardee replied. "For one thing we were playing a fine football team. Their 17-0 record speaks for itself. We're known as a team that is opportunistic. We take advantage of the other team's mistakes. We didn't make any breaks against Miami, and they didn't make any mistakes."

"You have to give them credit. They just didn't make any bad mistakes," he said.

Pardee said that the Dolphins had the consistency to win. "I don't know what the probability of going 17-0 is, but you have to be good to do something like that. They are the type team that you look at and get lulled to sleep. They mess around and pick up a few yards on you for a few plays, then hit (Paul) Warfield for a touchdown when you're not looking. They don't do anything bad. We really play the same type game, but interceptions hurt us and we got no big plays."

Some critics said that the people," he said.

Thinking back over the year, Pardee said he had many fond memories of football. He learned that there were people on the field that he could learn to trust and depend on. "I remember those championship teams I've been with," he said. Such a team was his 1953 football team that won the Texas state championship.

Two years later, his Texas A&M team lost every game but one. That was when Bear Bryant was first coaching there. "But he brought us together and the next year we lost our opener and then won the rest. My senior year, we won them all. But it was only because we all stuck together after that first bad year. We didn't quit so we have good memories."

Another team Pardee can't forget is last year's Redskins. "Not this year's, but the first one under George Allen. He came to Washington to build a defense that would lift them out of the bottom of the league. Many doubted that he could do it. In the preseason games we didn't do very good and then Sonny Jurgeson got hurt. And Billy Kilmer had to come in."

Rams, Panthers Split Two Games

BETHEL — Greene Central and North Pitt High Schools split a pair of games last night. The Rams took the boys' game, 49-39, while the Big Orange Machine chewed up the Ewes, 49-14.

In the girls contest, North Pitt put the game on ice after just a few minutes. By the end of the first period, the Big Orange had run up a 19-4 lead. They continued to pull away in the second quarter, opening up a 9-4 margin to up the lead to 28-8.

In the third quarter, they again outscored Greene Central, 13-0, and boosted the lead to 41-8. They finished up with an 8-6 margin in the final period to finish it off.

Minnie Holis led North Pitt with 19 points.

In the boys' game, it was a little different. The two teams swapped points in the first period, which ended in a 12-12 deadlock. In the second, it remained close, but the Rams managed to outscore the Panthers, 11-10, and take a slim 23-22 lead into the dressing rooms.

In the third quarter, it stayed the same, with the Rams finally getting an 8-7 advantage. That JACKSONVILLE — The Jacksonville Dolphins, ranked 13th in this week's Associated Press Basketball Poll, proved to be the East Carolina University Pirates, that Jacksonville isn't a nice place to visit last night.

It wasn't quite as bad as it was two years ago, however. This time, the Bucs went down to defeat, 100-61. Two years ago, on a similar trip, when the Dolphins were closing out the career of their first All-American, Artis Gilmore, the Pirates were thrashed, 127-69.

The Dolphins were red hot all night long, burning the nets for 70 per cent of their shots in the first half of play. In the second half, they made a mere 21 of 32 for 65.6 to finish with 42 of 62 for the night, a 66.7 percentage.

James Sprunt Downs Paladins

Pitt Technical Institute fell to James Sprunt last night, 70-65, suffering its first loss in the Eastern Carolina Community College League.

The loss was only the first in the loop for the Paladins, who had won their first two outings. They are 4-4 overall.

Sprunt grabbed the lead with the first basket, and never trailed the entire evening in the nip-and-tuck game. They were tied on a couple of occasions early, but soon pulled out into a three-point spread. By halftime, they had increased it to five, 37-32, although they never led by more than that the rest of the evening.

Most of the time, the lead fluctuated between one and five, but Pitt Tech was never able to take the lead.

Coach Bob Turner said the game was a hard-fought one of

Furman Wins Despite Davis

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Furman's Paladins didn't exactly stop Stan Davis, but they slowed him down enough to set up a Thursday night showdown with Davidson's Wildcats for the Southern Conference basketball lead.

The Paladins overcame a 31-point performance Monday night by Davis for a 103-83 victory over Appalachian State's Mountaineers that boosted them to a one-game lead over Davidson. Furman is 6-0 in league play, the Wildcats 4-0.

Two other conference teams had mixed success Monday night against outside opposition.

The Citadel's Bulldogs trounced Georgia State 73-59, but East Carolina's defending champion Pirates were bombed 100-61 by Jacksonville's 15th-ranked Dolphins, who now hold four victories over conference teams.

All conference clubs are idle tonight.

Furman ran up a 13-point lead in the first 11 minutes against Appalachian, but the Mountaineers—now 2-5 in league play and 3-12 over-all to Furman's 11-4 record—bounced back with an 11-point run and trailed by only 41-39 at intermission.

Davis scored six points in the first 20 seconds of the second half to send the Mountaineers in front, but Furman then ran off 15 points in a row to pull safely away.

The Paladins, shooting 57.1 per cent from the floor to 41.9 per cent for the Mountaineers, put five players in double figures with 7-foot-1 sophomore Fessor "Moose" Leonard scoring 27 points and All-Southern seniors Roy Simpson and Russ Hunt adding 22 and 18.

Jacksonville shot 68 per cent from the floor in overpowering East Carolina, dropping the Pirates' over-all record to 7-7. The Dolphins ran up a 24-point halftime lead and never were threatened.

Abbe Steward and Butch Taylor had 16 points each as Jacksonville put five players in double figures. The Pirates were led by Jerome Owens and Roger Atkinson with 10 points apiece.

The Citadel's Steve Fishel poured in 30 points over Georgia State's zone defense in leading the Bulldogs to their sixth victory in 14 starts over-all. The Bulldogs moved in front for good midway the first half.

with the Pirates, although never leading, sticking with the highly-regarded Dolphins. It was tied at 2-2 and 4-4 before Jacksonville began to pull away from the Bucs. They moved out by as much as nine during the next few minutes, but never made a pull away until late in the half.

Then, over a four-minute period near the end, the Dolphins outbit the Pirates, 16-0 and opened up a 23-point lead at 41-18. They pushed through seven more during the remaining minutes of the half, while the Bucs finally broke the ice for six more, for a 48-24 lead at intermission.

Abbe Steward, held scoreless in the first half, came alive in the second, and led the Dolphins through that period, hitting 16 points. Butch Taylor, the Dolphins' 6-10 center, hit 11 of his eventual 16 in the first half to be the spark for them in that half.

However, the Dolphins all hit well in the half, with balanced scoring right down the line.

East Carolina hit only three of 10 shots from the foul line, but it really didn't have any effect on the game, Jacksonville made 16 of 21, but has 13 more field goals than did the Pirates.

George Foreman's Flying Fists Devastate Frazier In 2 Rounds

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — The boxing world woke up today with a new heavyweight champion, a 24-year-old former delinquent whose mild manners and tender heart belie a pair of the most devastating fists the game has seen.

George Foreman sent Joe Frazier spinning to the ice blue canvas six times Monday night and stopped the fierce, hard-punching defending champ in 1:35 of the second round in a staggering upset.

Foreman appeared almost of the verge of tears moments afterward when newsmen swooped down on him in his tight little dressing room in the catacombs of Kingston's National Stadium.

"I didn't want to hurt him any more," he said. "I kept begging Yancey Durham (Frazier's trainer and manager) to stop it."

The swiftness of the turnover of boxing's most prized crown was almost unbelievable.

Frazier, a brawling ex-slaughterhouse butcher, had flailed his way through 29 opponents as a pro, knocking out 25 of them, and 22 months ago had beaten Muhammad Ali in the so-called Fight of the Century.

Matched against the untested Foreman on this sultry tropical island in a bizarre atmosphere, Frazier had been installed a 3½ to 1 favorite.

Certainly, he and his supporters had no idea that he would lose the title under such circumstances and thus forfeit what promoters had said would be a $20 million extravaganza between Frazier and Ali in June, probably in Houston's Astrodome.

Now the heavyweight division is in disarray. Foreman is the new king and will call the shots. Neither Frazier, who insists he wants a rematch, nor Ali, who is waiting in the wings, is in his immediate future. "I am not thinking about any big fights now," he said afterward. "I want a long rest. I want to go home and see my new daughter."

"After that, I want to go all around the country—to Houston and cities like that—and talk to kids. I want to tell them they can do anything they want if they try. I am an example."

The new champion received $375,000 against 20 per cent of the fight's gross while Frazier was guaranteed $850,000 against 42½ per cent, but it is Foreman who now is in a position to talk to promoters in million-dollar terms.

"I saw him before the fight," said Angelo Dundee of Miami, trainer for Ali. "I said, 'George, we want to talk to you after you win' and he smiled and said, 'you know, Angie, you're one of my favorite people.'"

Dundee was one of the few experts who predicted a victory for the young giant who grew up in a disadvantaged background in Texas, once played hide-and-seek with the cops and had his life turned around by joining the Job Corps.

A blow to boxing's big manipulators, who now must completely redesign their future plans, Foreman's triumph was heady wine for the Jamaican majority in the surprise crowd of 36,000 who almost filled the combination soccer field and cycling drome that is Kingston's National Stadium.

When the battered and bleeding Frazier was led to his corner and referee Arthur Mercante raised the right arm of the new champion, the crowd went wild.

Jamaicans had made Foreman their personal hero during the last week of his training. They even cheered him when he shadow-boxed.

Earlier in the day, Frazier had attempted to outstare the challenger at the weigh-in, at which the champion tipped the scales at 214 and Foreman at 217½.

"I'm going to sit you on the ground, George," Frazier warned his rival, but Foreman didn't scare easily.

Frazier, a renowned aggressor, who has whipped his opponents into submission with a head-bowed, bore-in attack that resembles a berserk pile-driver, came out swinging. But Foreman didn't back up an inch. His 6-foot-3 inch frame erect in his familiar stand-up style, he lashed out with twisting left hooks.

Snap. Frazier's head went back but the champion continued to move forward, swinging. Snap, snap.

Midway through the first round, Foreman caught the champion flush on his bearded chin with a thundering uppercut. Frazier crumbled to the floor but bounced up, taking the regulation eight-count.

Frazier hung on gamely but moments later, a pair of thudding rights dropped the champion a second time. Before the end of the round, a third smashing blow sent Frazier spinning underneath the bottom strand of red rope.

The champion's eyes were glazed and his legs were like jelly when he staggered to his corner at the end of the round.

As the bell for the second round sounded, Frazier came out courageously, throwing left hooks. A crashing right to the jaw sent him to the canvas for the fourth time. The referee had trouble getting Foreman to a neutral corner. Foreman walked toward Frazier's corner and began looking at Yancey Durham, the champion's manager, as if asking him to intercede and stop the fight. But Yancey didn't interfere.

Frazier rose unsteadily to his feet and then—boom, boom—two left hooks by Foreman sent the champion reeling to the floor again. For the second time, Foreman pleaded with Frazier's corner to throw in the towel but there was no response. Frazier rose again and again a fustillade sent him into the ropes and down to the floor.

This time Durham jumped into the ring. The time was 1:35 of the second. It was over. There was a new champion.

Buc Runners Shine In Meet

East Carolina University's track team again shone during the Cornell Invitational Indoor Track meet held over the weekend.

The Bucs finished with two individual winners and had 14 to a place overall. One man set a new school record.

Officially, no team totals were kept, but unofficial totals gave hosting Cornell the team championship with 48 points. East Carolina finished second with 39. A total of 17 teams participated in the meet.

Walter Davenport won the triple jump with a leap of 49 feet, 9 inches, good enough to qualify him for the nationals to be held later this year. Lawrence Wilkerson finished second with a jump of 48-7½.

The other first was taken by Larry Malone, who won the long jump with a leap of 22 feet, 8 inches.

The new school record came in the two-mile run, where Jerry Klas finished sixth in 9:13.2. The old record, set by Ken Voss, was 9:17.

counted for, inasmuch as the jack was established, and one small club can be ruffed in dummy and the other discarded on the ace of diamonds. He, therefore, proceeded to cash the ace, king of spades in the expectation that trumps would divide three-two, in which case he would lose only the one spade trick on the deal.
 When East showed out on the second spade, West appeared to have two sure trump tricks, and South was mad at himself for not playing the spade suit differently. Observe that if he does not cash any high spades, but instead leads a low card towards North's jack—he can thereby limit West to one trick in the suit.
 Declarer recovered from his disappointment and continued to play in the vague hope that something might yet develop. A heart to the king put dummy in to cash the ace of diamonds on which a club was discarded, followed by a diamond ruff. Another heart to the ace permitted declarer to trump a fourth round of diamonds as West followed suit each time.
 The jack of clubs was played and when this card lived also, South was virtually home. He had taken the first 11 tricks—two spades, three hearts, the ace, king of diamonds and two diamond ruffs in his hand and two clubs. When he now led the nine of clubs, West was left with the queen-ten of spades, while North retained the jack behind him. If West ruffed with the ten, dummy would overruff, whereas, if West puts up the queen of spades, North's jack becomes established for the fulfilling trick.

 A never-say-die spirit enabled South to salvage a six spade contract that he had apparently consigned to defeat by an impulsive play in the trump suit.
 North's jump rebid of two no trump shows 19 or 20 high card points. Inasmuch as South's hand was worth 15 points, his thoughts turned to slam. When his three club call elicited a spade preference, he made his try by overbidding the game since he had no controls to show himself. North holding all gill-edged values, accepted the invitation and proceeded to six spades.
 West opened the queen of diamonds and the king was played from dummy. A heart was led to the ten in the closed hand and the queen of clubs was put thru for a finesse. West covered with the king and North played the ace.
 South's problems in the club suit were now fully accounted for, inasmuch as the jack was established, and one small club can be ruffed in dummy and the other discarded on the ace of diamonds. He, therefore, proceeded to cash the ace, king of spades in the expectation that trumps would divide three-two, in which case he would lose only the one spade trick on the deal.

 When East showed out on the second spade, West appeared to have two sure trump tricks, and South was mad at himself for not playing the spade suit differently. Observe that if he does not cash any high spades, but instead leads a low card towards North's jack—he can thereby limit West to one trick in the suit.
 Declarer recovered from his disappointment and continued to play in the vague hope that something might yet develop. A heart to the king put dummy in to cash the ace of diamonds on which a club was discarded, followed by a diamond ruff. Another heart to the ace permitted declarer to trump a fourth round of diamonds as West followed suit each time.
 The jack of clubs was played and when this card lived also, South was virtually home. He had taken the first 11 tricks—two spades, three hearts, the ace, king of diamonds and two diamond ruffs in his hand and two clubs. When he now led the nine of clubs, West was left with the queen-ten of spades, while North retained the jack behind him. If West ruffed with the ten, dummy would overruff, whereas, if West puts up the queen of spades, North's jack becomes established for the fulfilling trick.

'Dixie Mafia' Killings Said To Be Indicated

RALEIGH (AP) — Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan says the slaying of two men and a woman here recently apparently was the work of the so-called Dixie Mafia.
 "Everything I have seen indicates to me that it is the work of the loosely knit organization we know as the Dixie Mafia," Morgan told newsmen.
 The trio who were found bound and taped in mummy fashion, were identified as Michael Collins, 33, of Bunn; Grover Broadwell, 54, and Della Murray, 20, both of Raleigh.
 Morgan said he believed the killings might have resulted from a professional effort to kill Collins.
 Atlanta authorities aid Sunday that Collins had been indicted in Georgia last year for forgery but no effort had been made to extradite him.

HEARINGS SET WASHINGTON (AP) — A House subcommittee plans hearings Thursday on legislation to protect the confidentiality of newsmen's sources and notes, Rep. Bob Kastenmeier said today.

Report Recapture Of 5 N.C. Prison Escapees

CRESWELL, N.C. (AP) — Correction official this morning said five escapees from the medium-security prison unit at Creswell, N.C. have been recaptured, reported an Office of of Baltimore, was caught at 11:30 p.m. last night one mile from the prison unit. The other four were recaptured at 8:30 a.m. this morning in an abandoned house in the woods several miles from the unit.

The prisoners caught this morning included Alonzo Watts, 25, an honor-grade prisoner who started the escape by lifting a guard's gun out of his holster. Watts was serving an 8-10 year sentence for assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill.

The others are Ira L. Davis, 32, of Apopka, Fla., serving five years for robbery; William F. Ryder, 24, of Pontiac, Mich., serving ten years for robbery; and Clifton E. Speight, 22, of Snow Hill, serving two years for forgery. McBride was serving 5-7 years for assault with intent to rape.

The five escaped at 4 p.m. Monday by disarming the guards, tying them up, and climbing over a wire fence.

Bailey said the capture was the result of "splendid cooperation" between the Washington County Sheriff's Department, the Highway Patrol Office of Corrections officials, and enforcement officers of the Department of Natural and Economic Resources.

Officers discovered the four remaining escapees this morning in an abandoned house and told them to throw out their guns. Bailey said the four offered no resistance.

Faster Sobriety Systems Tried

NEW YORK (UPI) — In "The Sciences," journal of the New York Academy of Sciences, there's a bright outlook for problem drinkers. It appears that painless sobriety may be in the offing.

This prospect is based on research at Tucson's Veterans Administration Hospital. Scientists have reduced the alcoholic intoxication time of rats by injections of vitamins B3 and B5. New tests indicate that sodium acetate may be even more effective in speeding up alcohol metabolism and lowering the alcohol level of blood. Human oral administration tests are under way.

Relate Diseases To Addiction

NEW YORK (UPI) — Heroin addicts may suffer from alcoholic liver disease as well as hepatitis, Dr. Barry Stimmel and associates at Mount Sinai School of Medicine, New York, report.

Their study of addicts in a methadone maintenance program in New York shows that alcohol may be taking a place of its own in the roster of addiction-related diseases. Some addicts were found to drink around 25 ounces of wine a day in an attempt to boost the effects of poor quality street heroin.

Bowles Favors Campaign Curb

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina election campaigns should be shortened, the runoff primary setup should be changed and a limit should be placed on campaign spending, says Democrat Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles.

Bowles, who spent a record $1.3 million in his attempt to win the governorship, said, "We need limits on spending." "We need more access to the media for those candidates who can't afford the high cost of campaigning," he said. "We need to make sure that incumbents don't have an unfair advantage with the media."

SONGWRITER DIES

Sees Organized Crime Foothold

RALEIGH (AP) — Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan says he doesn't want to help northern states collect tobacco taxes, but he might have to in order to prevent organized crime from getting a lucrative foothold in North Carolina.

Morgan told a news conference Monday that the growing incidence of cigarette smuggling from North Carolina to high-levy markets in the north is "luring criminals of the worst kind" to the state.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Howard Satisky, who headed a year-long study of cigarette sales to northern points, mostly in New York City, said organized crime was attracted by the high profits and low risks in cigarette smuggling.

North Carolina taxes cigarettes at two cents per pack, while New York charges between 19 and 23 cents per pack. Satisky said most cigarettes are purchased legitimately from roadside stands, mail-order houses and distributorships. But he said there were "many indications" that at least one large wholesale company was controlled by northern criminals.

One Hallmark Of LBJ: A Concern For Civil Rights

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — "We Shall Overcome." The words of the civil-rights anthem rolled out across the nation in the distinct tones of the South. Lyndon Johnson of Texas was telling America to live up to its promise of equality.

The commitment to civil rights for blacks came late to Johnson—he had once voted against an antilynching law. But, when it came, it came with all the strength, cleverness and stubbornness that was in him, and there was plenty of all three.

And it stayed. When he stood before Congress and in front of television cameras in 1965 to say "we shall overcome," he was not spouting rhetoric convenient for a Democratic party leader.

In one of his last public acts, former President Lyndon Johnson stood on the steps of the library he had built as a monument to himself in Austin, Tex., to say America still owed its blacks what they deserved as a birthright—equality.

"To be black is not to stand on level ground," he said last Dec. 12, nearly four years past the time he needed to be concerned about acceptance.

But he was concerned; enough to spend an exhausting day trying to retie the strands of a tattered civil-rights coalition that had come apart from age and inner doubt.

It was this concern, and the record he built as 38th president, that was in the memories of many who mourned after hearing of Johnson's death Monday night.

The Rev. David Abernathy, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and Organizer of the Poor People's March in Washington during Johnson's administration, said "the nation, the world, black people and poor people in particular lost one of the greatest friends of democracy."

But, Abernathy went on, "I think his greatest contribution rests in the fact that he could lift himself beyond the barrier of sectionalism, refusing to be a Southerner clinging to a dead and unjust society."

Thurgood Marshall could speak as one who knew firsthand of Johnson's commitment to blacks. Johnson named him the first black to serve as a justice on the Supreme Court. Marshall said:

"In his private and official acts, President Johnson will go down in history as the one president who did all in his power to promote humanitarianism—the equalitarian principle of the equality of man."

Johnson's desire to move into the vanguard for racial equality first was evident in 1957 when, as Senate Democratic leader, he turned his back on his colleagues from the South and engineered passage of the nation's first civil-rights law since Reconstruction.

Johnson took another step, and pushed the country with him, in 1964 when, as President, he convinced Congress to go along with another, much stronger civil-rights bill.

Johnson got his bill, but he got it partly because he cloaked its passage in the memory of the murdered John F. Kennedy.

In 1965 another, even stronger, bill to protect and further the rights of blacks and other minorities came to Congress, and Johnson used all his magical charm, and the credits owed him from more than a quarter century in Congress, to get passage. And the victory was his, without qualification.

It was then, 1965, that Johnson stood on the mountain, hailed as the rightful successor to the man who had taken blacks out of bondage a century before—Abraham Lincoln.

But the fate that was spared Lincoln by an assassin's bullet hit Johnson full in the face—disillusionment by blacks who felt rightfully or not that the share of the Great Society delivered them was really short change.

First came Watts, then Detroit and Bedford-Stuyvesant and Newark—blacks in a rage against whites and that included the white resident of the big white house at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. in Washington, D.C.

Johnson ordered a federal investigation of the riots, but when the reports came in blaming the national government for not doing enough he reacted defensively.

Then, on April 4, 1968, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was assassinated and the nation's capital city erupted in riot, with whole blocks turned into infernos only 10 blocks from the White House.

Here, with machine-gun-equipped soldiers guarding the executive mansion and as smoke drifted over the city, Johnson rededicated himself to his commitment.

Speaking over national television and radio, he said: "The dream of Martin Luther King has not died with him.

"Men who are white, men who are black, must and will join together now as never in the past to let all the forces of division know that America shall not be ruled by the bullet but by the ballot of free and just men."

By now, Johnson was already a lame duck, hounded by the dissent and frustration of a failing Vietnam policy into re-nouncing any attempt at re-election.

And with his hopes for another term in the White House went his dreams of entering history as the man who delivered to all Americans the promise of the Declaration of Independence, dreams he expressed in the same 1965 speech in which he pledged "we shall overcome."

"I want," he said that day, "to be the president who helped to end hatred among his fellow men and who promoted love among the people of all races."

Final Tribute . . .

an autopsy on Johnson's body late Monday night and listed the official cause of death as coronary thrombosis.

Hiegar's autopsy showed that the former president had severe coronary artery disease, with complete occlusion — closure — of two of three major arteries to the heart. A third artery was about 60 per cent occluded.

The former President had a history of heart trouble dating to 1955. He suffered what was termed as a major heart attack in April 1972 and was hospitalized with chest pains last July.

With him at death were three Secret Service agents, Dr. David J. Abbott of Johnson City, the plane's pilot and the wife of the foreman of the sprawling LBJ ranch, to which he retired after leaving the White House.

As Johnson was flown to San Antonio, his wife, Lady Bird, was contacted by radio telephone in a car about a block from the LBJ Library, about 80 miles from the family ranch. She immediately went by helicopter to San Antonio, arriving at Brooke hospital before her husband's body. A family spokesman said Mrs. Johnson had prepared breakfast for the former president before going to Austin on business. The spokesman quoted her as saying, "His health seemed no different than it had been recently. He seemed a bit quieter but was in good spirits."

After spending more than an hour in San Antonio, Mrs. Johnson returned to Austin and joined her daughter, Luci, and son-in-law, Patrick J. Nugent, for the return to the family ranch to discuss funeral arrangements.

The Johnson's other daughter, Lynda, and her husband, Charles S. Robb, made plans to fly to Texas from Charlottesville, Va., where Robb is a third-year law student at the University of Virginia. A plane was provided by President Nixon.

The news of Johnson's death drew immediate tributes from the White House, the halls of Congress and the streets of America.

"No man had greater dreams for America," said Nixon, leading the nation in tribute. "Even as we mourn his death, we are grateful for his life, which did so much to make those dreams into realities."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, the vice president under Johnson, termed the Texan "a strong man who cared for the weak.

"No man gave more to the struggle for human rights nor asked more of us in the battle against racism and discrimination," said Humphrey.

In Los Angeles, Willis Edwards, the 26-year-old black student body president of Cal

State University who went to Vietnam as a draftee, said:

"I don't blame Lyndon Johnson for being sent to Vietnam. He came in at a trying time.... I think history will show him to be one of the greatest presidents ever in the field of civil rights and social legislation."

Johnson's death came 28 days after that of former President Harry S. Truman, leaving the nation without a living former chief executive. Nixon ordered flags on all federal buildings, already lowered to mark Truman's death, flown at half staff for 30 days following Johnson's death.

At a news conference in Austin several hours after Johnson's death, Tom Johnson, a former business associate and news secretary not related to the family, gave this account of the seizure:

At 4:50 p.m. EST, Johnson, who routinely took a nap after lunch, called the ranch switchboard and asked that a Secret Service agent be sent to his bedroom. Agents Ed Nowland and Harry Harris dashed 100 yards from their quarters with a portable resuscitator. They arrived in about two minutes and began to treat the former president. The third agent, Mike Howard, arrived within minutes and the trio attempted mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and external heart massage.

"They found Johnson lying on his back, on the floor next to his bed," Tom Johnson said. "They said it appeared he was dead."

Unable to revive Johnson, the agents summoned Abbott and with Mrs. Dave Malacheck and pilot Barney Hewlitt, they set out for San Antonio in the Johnson plane.

Abbott pronounced Johnson dead after the aircraft landed at San Antonio. The finding was confirmed aboard the plane by Dr. George McGranahan, who took over as Johnson's personal physician last July.

It was aboard a plane in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963 that Vice President Johnson was sworn in as 36th President of the United States after Kennedy was gunned down during a motorcade through city streets. Johnson, who was riding in the motorcade behind Kennedy, was not injured.

Five days after the assassination of Kennedy, which cast a pall of despair across the nation, Johnson went before a joint session of Congress and in a speech interrupted 30 times by applause, the Democrat from Texas declared:

"An assassin's bullet has thrust upon me the awesome burden of the presidency. I am here today to say that I need your help. I cannot bear this burden alone. I need the help of all Americans and all America."
