

Sunday Proclaimed Day Of Thanksgiving In N.C.

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Houlshouser today called on North Carolinians to celebrate the end of the Vietnam war at 7 p.m. Saturday either "by the ringing of church bells throughout the state, the blowing of whistles at our factories or the sounding of car horns."

Houlshouser also proclaimed Sunday as "A day of Thanksgiving for Peace in North Carolina."

"I would like to ask the people of North Carolina in their churches and homes to draw together as one community, lifting thanks to God for the end of this long and costly ordeal and to pray that peace will endure in all the world," Houlshouser said in a statement.

Houlshouser said the end of the war "is cause for rejoicing and sober reflection."

"We should rejoice that our country's longest and most divisive war is at last coming to an end," he said.

"We should give sober reflection to the price that has been paid by many of our North Carolina families and families throughout the United States during this long and bitter conflict," he added.

"We should be grateful to our nation's leaders for the efforts which have achieved an honorable peace for the United States and her allies," Houlshouser stated.

"We should give thanks for those who died and suffered because of the war and did not do so in vain.

"We should dedicate ourselves to providing help, understanding and appreciation to the men who are coming home from the conflict, especially those who have suffered wounds or have endured prolonged imprisonment by the enemy."

Battle Flurry Peaks Again

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — Two Americans and nearly 400 North and South Vietnamese were reported killed today and Thursday in a storm of attacks across South Vietnam matched by the heaviest American air strikes in eight months.

"The war's still on," the commander of a U.S. Marine air wing commented after the death of one of his young security guards during a rocket attack on the Bien Hoa Air Base 15 miles northeast of Saigon.

Seven and a half hours after the predawn attack at Bien Hoa, a second American serviceman was killed when his observation helicopter crashed in flames near Phan Thiet, on the coast 100 miles east of Saigon. U.S. officials said the helicopter apparently was shot down. A second crewman rescued suffered slight wounds, the U.S. Command said.

The Command also reported that 13 U.S. servicemen and 12 American civilian advisers and technicians working with the South Vietnamese air force were wounded in the rocket attack at Bien Hoa and another at the Da Nang Air Base.

The South Vietnamese command said there were 112 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong attacks during the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m., equaling the number reported during the previous 24-hour period when the United States and North Vietnam announced that fighting would stop at 8 a.m. Saigon time on Sunday, or 7 p.m. EST Saturday.

Rogers Departs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers left for Paris today to sign a historic Vietnam agreement which he said would "usher in an era of peace."

"Very soon, as a result of these agreements, the world will be in peace for the first time in a long time," Rogers said.

Rogers spoke to newsmen briefly at Andrews Air Base in nearby Maryland before setting off for the French capital.

Saturday, Rogers will join his counterparts from North Vietnam, South Vietnam and Vietcong's provisional revolutionary government in signing the pact to end the lengthy Vietnam conflict. The cease-fire is slated to go into effect at 7 p.m. EST Saturday.

"We hope and expect shortly thereafter that a cease-fire will take effect in Laos and Cambodia, too," Rogers said, adding: "So finally this long and difficult war will come to an end."

First POWs Due Home In 2 Weeks

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said today operations for bringing out U.S. prisoners of war from Hanoi "will start this next week," with more than 100 to be home within two weeks.

Laird said the POWs will be flown nonstop from Hanoi to Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines over a roundabout route that will first take them over Vietnam in Laos.

But he said there would be no landing in Vientiane as indictated Wednesday by presidential advisor, Henry A. Kissinger, in outlining terms of the peace agreement. "Present plans do not call for a stop in Vientiane," Laird said.

North Vietnam will provide American officials in Paris with a list of POWs on Saturday. A spokesman for the U.S. delegation in Paris said the list will not be made public in Paris, however.

In a taped interview on the NBC Today show, Laird gave no specific date for the landing of U.S. planes in Hanoi and left unclear when the first prisoners would be given their freedom. U.S. officials working on the POW release plan said this was likely to occur sometime near the end of the two-week period following the signing of the peace agreement.

Asked in the interview, "When can we expect the first American prisoners to return home?" Laird replied, "The operation will start—it's Project Homecoming—the operation will start this next week."

But later in the program, when questioned specifically as to when the POWs can be expected back in this country, he refused to give a specific date, saying only that "more than 100 prisoners will be back in the United States within the first two weeks."

The start of Project Homecoming, referred to by Laird, could mean the arrival of a small group of Americans, including specialists to set up communication links from Hanoi to U.S. installations. These men are expected to arrive in the North Vietnamese capital in about a week.

Service Award Is Presented Dansey

By TOM BAINES

William E. Dansey, Jr., Greenville businessman and City Councilman, was recognized for his community service and leadership Thursday night as he was named recipient of the Jaycees' Distinguished Service Award.

Dansey's selection as winner of the cherished award was revealed during the Jaycees 27th annual Distinguished Service Award and Bosses Night banquet.

Guest speaker R. B. Owens, in presenting the award, commented, "The DSA winner will stand tall tonight, not just because you chose to honor him, but because he will be a symbol of what this community and nation has to be to survive; dedicated, committed, energetic..."

Dansey, who has been successful as a building contractor since moving to Greenville, was born in Hampton, Va. in 1938. He earned his accounting degree at East Carolina University.

Instrumental in forming the Young Republican's Party of Pitt County, he rose through its ranks as president to the position he currently holds as chairman of the sprawling, 21-county First Congressional District. He was named by the State Republican Party to serve as chairman for the "Victory-72" post-inaugural celebration in Raleigh.

The recipient was further recognized by the GOP party in 1972 when he was chosen a member of the advance staff for the re-election of Vice President Spiro Agnew.

Struck By Car
CHOCOWINITY — A Greenville man was killed last night at 9:35 when he was struck by a car one-tenth of a mile north of here on Highway U.S. 17.

Investigating officer, Trooper Carol Heath, termed the death of Roy Jones Jr., of 1507 Dickinson Avenue, Greenville "unavoidable." No charges were filed against the driver of the car which hit him, a Rt. 1, Chocowinity man identified as John Taylor Carrow.

Trooper Heath said Jones was walking on the pavement with his back to traffic and was wearing dark clothing. He quoted Carrow as saying he did not see the pedestrian until it was too late to avoid hitting him.

In addition to his position in city government as councilman, Dansey has been appointed to the Recreation Commission and the Plumbing Examiners Board. He was also named by the mayor to help head up plans for one of Greenville's largest up-coming projects, a Bicentennial Celebration.

During the year, he completed a $6 million apartment complex here and started a $13 million sub-division. He is currently in the process of completing a $2 million apartment complex in Rocky Mount and has started a $7 million sub-division in that city.

Dansey is credited with being one of the key citizens responsible for raising funds and support for an Amateur Boxing Association in Greenville.

Concerned with the need for upgrading economic standards, he supported a program which would help prepare migrant and seasonal farm workers for other jobs and he became involved in securing an Office of Economic Opportunity grant of $927,633 to the Choanoke Area Development Association which would provide funding for the program in a four-county area.

And, as First District chairman, he was instrumental in (Continued on page 8)

Anthropologist, Stone Age Tribal Chief Wed

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Wyn Sargent, an American anthropologist studying the sex life of Stone Age tribes in West Irian, has married the chief of one of the tribes, the West Irian military command said today.

Maj. Amin Sudjono said the 42-year-old divorcee from Huntington Beach, Calif., married Chief Obaharok Jan. 8 in a tribal ceremony, giving him 11 pigs and 5 headaddresses as a dowry. Miss Sargent had been doing research for four months in the Baliem Valley, a jungle area in the heart of West Irian.

Reports that she announced she would shed her Western clothes and dress only in the strings and straps of the natives created a stir.

Authorities in the town of Wamena, the district headquarters, said they would make a strong protest if she did, fearing that could upset their plans to "civilize" the tribespeople in a program called Operation Koteka.

The aim of the two-year program is to put clothes on the natives, introduce them to a money economy and teach them to speak, read and write the Indonesian language.

Miss Sargent did research work in a jungle region of West Kalimantan in 1968. She found a Dyak village in difficulties, returned to the United States to get help for them and in 1970 was reported to have brought the village six tons of medicine, three motorboats, a vehicle, agricultural equipment and livestock.

Coastal Plain Developers Meet To Formulate Plans For 1973

By JERRY RAYNOR

ROCKY MOUNT — More than 100 people, board of director members, committee chairmen and members, and other interested persons met in Rocky Mount Thursday night for the annual planning meeting of the Coastal Plain Development Association.

"Our primary purpose," 1973 president Hilton Carlton told the assembled group, "is to provide all our citizens a chance to participate in developing educational programs."

Carlton and others making brief speeches emphasized a basic need of getting across to the residents of the ten county area comprising the Coastal Plain Development Association, through direct approach and news media programs, more information on a whole spectrum of services available to them.

It was pointed out that there are large numbers of people who are not aware of public and private services in health, land use, housing, environmental, recreational and cultural fields.

One of the continuing objectives of the association is the development of human and natural resources of the area, including a well-planned and controlled program of industrial development.

committee meetings within the next few weeks. At these meetings members will bring concrete recommendations dealing with ideas suggested at the brief committee sessions held Thursday night.

Board meetings, to be held monthly, will be in Tarboro unless some other meeting place is specifically requested by a group from one of the ten counties.

Carlton announced that the $1,000 from association funds which had been contributed to the establishment of The Near East magazine had been replaced in the association's fund by a gift from Mack Pearsall, Jr. of Rocky Mount.

The ten counties forming the Coastal Plain Development Association comprise the counties of State Regions L and Q. These are Pitt, Bertie, Halifax, Hertford, Northampton, Beaufort, Edgecombe, Martin, Nash and Wilson Counties.

Following the general meeting, members met with their respective committees to formulate plans for 1973. The association is divided into six communities—agriculture, community development, home economics, industrial development, travel and recreation, and youth and education.

Each of the committees, because of the limited time for discussion at the annual planning meeting, have scheduled

FBI Cites Extremists As Of 'Public Concern'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Extremist groups—both black and white—continued to try to stir up racial unrest in 1972, acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray III says.

In an annual report issued Thursday, Gray said "organizations, both black and white, continued to be aimed at fomenting racial discord and represented a problem of grave concern."

Gray cited the Ku Klux Klan, the Secret Army Organization, the Black Panther Party, Black Liberation Army, the Weathermen, Students for a Democratic Society and Stokely Carmichael, former head of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee.

Gray, who replaced J. Edgar Hoover after his death last May, said the FBI's concerted drive against crime led to a record of more than 1,000 convictions of hoodlum, gambling and racket figures.

Also, Gray said the cases of approximately 3,000 other individuals, including syndicate leaders with organized crime, were in various stages of prosecution as of Jan. 1.

Gray added that the percentage of successful hijackings in 1972 was 29 per cent compared with 87 per cent in 1969.

In the area of civil rights, Gray said investigations increased in 1972. He gave as examples the probes in the wounding of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and the killing of two students and the wounding of others at Southern University at Baton Rouge, La., Nov. 16, 1972.

Wedding Still Counts For Their Parents

By MITSUO KIMURA
TOKYO (AP) — Kiyoko Sato, 23, wasn't as happy as a bride-to-be should be as her wedding day approached. The reason: parental insistence that she and Keiichi Nakajima, her 24-year-old fiance, don formal kimono and go through a traditional Shinto wedding ceremony.

The young couple said all they wanted was a small, western-style wedding with only a few of their close friends as guests, not a big "two-family" affair.

Although Kiyoko and Keiichi have been courting for five years, the fiance had to take his parents and a matchmaker to Kiyoko's home a few months ago to give her an engagement ring and 300,000 yen (about $1,000). Kiyoko termed that another compromise with old fashioned wedding ways.

The problem faced by the couple is still a common one in economically booming Japan, a country that has swung into some western ways with enthusiasm.

Bunji Ioki, a marriage counselor-researcher in Tokyo, said about 80 per cent of the one million couples expected to marry in Japan this year will have chosen their mates on the basis of their own feelings rather than through the old matchmaker system.

But many of them will find themselves going through the age old ceremonies on their wedding day.

"It will take a long time for this country to institute wedding ceremonies free of traditional bonds which the youth of today dislike," Ioki said. "Last year, 73 per cent of all married couples had to choose a Shinto wedding ritual because their parents insisted on tradition."

A Switch—He's A Soap Opera Widower

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: You get lots of letters from "football widows." How about putting in a good word for "soap opera widowers?"

Julia and I have been married three years. I used to call her every day on my lunch hour, and on my days off we used to go around and see the sights. On workdays I'd get off at 5 p. m. and come home to a clean house, smiling wife, and a good supper. Not anymore.

For the last five months I've been coming home to a messy house, a TV dinner and wife with a tear-stained face. The reason being she watches soap operas on TV all day long.

I can't even call her on my lunch hour because she's in the middle of one of those shows and she doesn't want to miss even two minutes of it to talk to me.

I still love my wife, but it's getting to the point where I hate to come home. Please print this. Maybe Julia will see it and realize how I feel.

SOAP OPERA WIDOWER

DEAR WIDOWER: And what if she doesn't see it? A message as important as this should be telegraphed right over the home plate. Tell Julia how you feel, Mister, and the sooner the better or you'll be starring in "Divorce Court" in real life together.

DEAR ABBY: Since your reading audience is vast, may I pass on some advice that is valuable, yet possibly not well known? It is regarding burns.

Not too many years ago, a physician burned his hand, and immediately immersed it in ice water. He found that the pain left while it was in the ice water, but what surprised him even more was that there was no blistering, redness, ulceration, or scarring. He reported the incident, and now many doctors order immediate ice baths until they can get there. The results have been amazing.

Check this out with your medical experts if you have any doubts.

IOWA DOCTOR

DEAR DOCTOR: I've been aware of the above discovery concerning burns for some time. But it won't hurt to remind folks to reach for an ice cube instead of the greasy stuff.

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to comment on the letter signed "Right or Wrong" from the wife who was mad at her husband because he was too tired to mow the lawn then he went next door and worked on the roof of a neighbor's house. This neighbor was a cute young widow whom the wife described as a woman who never paid for anything "in cash."

When the wife saw her husband working on her neighbor's roof she went over and hit him a good one with the dust mop, and you said it was a draw between which one was right or wrong.

I don't think so. A woman should never hit a man unless she is prepared to be hit back. I have never hit my wife, but then she's never hit me, either.

Also, that wife should find out what it is the widow pays with and do likewise. After all, they both have the same equipment in the dark.

Navy Mom's Letter Got Result At The Top

By LARRY CARROLL
Associated Press Writer
LEMOORE NAVAL AIR STATION, Calif. (AP) — Six months ago Kathleen Jensen decided to do something about changing Navy policy and went right to the top.

She wrote a letter to Navy Chief of Staff Adm. Elmo Zumwalt and now she's become one of the first women to be allowed to re-enlist in the Navy after becoming a mother.

An aviation administration apprentice, Mrs. Jensen now is awaiting orders to attend aviation maintenance school after which she will keep logs and records of aircraft and work in the technical library.

Airman Jensen, 24, and her husband, Greg, 25, an aviation mechanic, met at Memphis Naval Air Station in 1966 and were married soon after. She became pregnant and her Navy career came to an end.

Things went along smoothly and Greg was discharged in 1969. However, he found civilian life unchallenging and re-enlisted last year.

This turn of events set the wheels spinning in Kathleen's head. If the Navy now allows women on ships, why couldn't they let women with children serve on active duty, she thought.

Not wasting any time, she sat down and wrote a letter to Zumwalt.

Can Be Heroes In Real Life

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Two members of the "Streets of San Francisco" television series have proved they are capable of heroic deeds in real-life situations, the American Red Cross says.

The organization said it would award a Red Cross Certificate of Merit — its highest honor — today to costar Mike Douglas, the son of movie actor Kirk Douglas, and assistant director Kenneth Swor for saving the life of a fellow actor.

The two jumped fully clothed into chilly San Francisco Bay last Nov. 21 to aid stunt man Dick Butler, who was accidentally hit by a passing boat, a spokesman for Quinn-Martin Productions, the show's producers, said Thursday.

The Red Cross said Douglas and Swor kept the injured actor afloat until a rescue boat arrived. Butler, who was hospitalized with head, back, chest and leg injuries, has fully recovered, the producers said.

A week later the phone rang and the Bureau of Navy Personnel told her that she would be part of a pilot program to establish the feasibility of women with children serving in the Navy.

By last November she was back in uniform and about to drop a big bomb on her unknown husband, who was on duty at sea.

"Greg didn't even know I was back on active duty. I sent him papers to sign but he still didn't believe they would ever let me back in. I had nagged and complained so much he finally said, 'Go ahead and try if you really want to, but if they turn you down, I don't want to hear another word,'" Kathleen said.

Butz Sees A Decline In Food Prices

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz predicted today that food prices, currently at a record high, will begin declining by the end of the year.

But he said if public outcries continue over the use of farm chemicals such as DES, the cattle-growth booster, farmers will become less efficient and, as a result, consumers will have to pay much more for what they eat.

"We can expect to see declines in the prices of some foods by the end of the year," Butz said in a speech to the National Canners Association.

The Agriculture Department has predicted that food prices will continue rising at last year's pace of about 4.5 per cent through next summer. Butz, however, believes prices will begin to drop shortly thereafter.

Butz said, "There's still a great deal of confusion in the public mind and news media about the difference between farm prices and housewives pay in supermarkets."

However, he said, food prices are up and part of the reason is that farmers are getting more for things they produce.

"The President's goal and my goal has been to increase farm income from the marketplace," Butz said. "It's plain wrong for consumers to expect farm-food producers to work for 20 per cent less than the rest of the population."

LONG-LIVED
WALLA WALLA, Wash. (AP) — Anna Seeber Green, 110, whose tenacity to life brought greetings from three presidents, died this week in the valley of her pioneer parents where she spent her entire life.

By JERRY RAYNOR

Tomorrow is going to be a busy day for about 100 AFROTC cadets and 20 of the feminine counterparts, girls of the Angel Flight.

For the 19th consecutive year, the boys and girls in blue from East Carolina University will be on street intersections in Greenville, Ayden, Farmville, Winterville and Bethel for the annual March of Dimes Marchathon.

For the 1973 event, Cadet Captain Thomas Shubert, a native of Hicksville, New York, and Cadet 1st Lt. Ron Lipe of Asheville are co-chairmen for the Marchathon.

"Hopefully, we will also be joined by representatives from the fraternities," Cadet Captain Shubert commented.

Shubert is also drill master for the AFROTC Drill Team, a select group of a dozen cadets who will again this year furnish the highlight Marchathon attraction for the entertainment of the public.

"The drill team will perform in two locations during the morning in Greenville," Shubert said. "We'll be at the Pitt County Courthouse from nine till about ten-thirty, then go to Pitt Plaza where we'll perform until noon time."

"In the afternoon," the drill commander pointed out, "we will make routines the team will perform."

"In the afternoon," the drill commander pointed out, "we will make appearances in Farmville and Bethel." He said that some of the drill routines the team will perform will include the Queen Anne, Salute, Black Out, and the 13, 16 and 20 count manual. "We'll also do the In-A-Squad-Halt," he added. All of these are elaborate military drills designed to display the dexterity and discipline of military march and drill exercises.

Shubert explained that the local Army Reserve unit will be giving assistance to the AFROTC unit. "They are supplying us with a two and a half ton truck with driver, and will in addition supply us a food truck," he stated.

The 1973 Marchathon begins tomorrow morning at nine o'clock and lasts until five in the afternoon.

"Our people will be on just about all of the major intersections in Greenville," Shubert said, "and will be at main points in the other towns we're covering."

He mentioned also that when a person contributes he would be given a piece of identification paper to place in his windshield to show that he already made his contribution.

As the collection progresses during the day, plans are to periodically post the results. Shubert said this would be done at one central point, at Wachovia Bank at Fifth and Greene Street.

Shubert said "we are all hoping this is a successful drive and that we'll reach our goal of $4,000. Our group feels this is a very worthy cause, and we're happy to do our bit to collect as much as we can to help out."

Colonel Earl D. Bruton, AFROTC Commanding Officer at ECU, expressed his pride in the efforts of the young people giving their time to this activity. "They're doing an excellent job," he said. "All of us are hoping they'll have a fine day of sunshine on Saturday to help them in making this a highly successful day."

Funds raised in the March of Dimes campaign are used in research and in treatment of children born with birth defects.

Nixon Offered A Good Approach

President Nixon's inaugural address will not be appreciated by all, but it outlines a good approach to life in America.

The president promised a stern self-reliance for U.S. citizens and this will be substituted for "con- descending policies of paternalism" at home and abroad.

"America was built not by government, but by people—not by welfare, but by work—Not by shirking, responsibility, but by seeking respon- sibility," Pres. Nixon declared.

"Let each of us ask—not just what will government do for me, but what can I do for myself?"

He said he would "encourage individuals at home and nations abroad to do more for themselves and decide for themselves." This means, he continued. "Government must learn to take less from people, so people can do more for them- selves."

He called on Americans to "renew our faith in ourselves."

There was a time when we Americans were almost universally proud of our country and, in- terestingly, this pride was prevalent when it was

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Through a tortured decade, America's political dialogue in Congress, in election cam- paigns—and at times in the streets—has been shadowed by the issue of war in Viet- nam.

It has been a factor in the making, and the unmaking, of presidents.

It has etched upon Congress divisions at times sharper than those of party affiliation. Hawk and dove sometimes became labels more meaningful than Re- publican and Democrat.

It was behind what came to be called the credibility gap between government and the people.

It was the stated reason that thousands upon thousands of demonstrators paraded in Washington, wrought turmoil at the Democratic National Con- vention in Chicago five years ago, rallied almost on the eve of settlement as President Nixon was inaugurated to a second term.

In a sense, it was the issue that shaped all the others, from the dispute over whether a nation could afford the guns of war and the butter of the late Lyndon B. John- son's Great Society to the current controversy over the powers and prerogatives of the White House and of Congress.

With the settlement that is to be signed in Paris Sat- urday, the issue of war appears to be done, but the disputes it spawned will not go away.

There is likely to be lingering debate about the terms and the timing of peace. There is some talk in Congress of legislation to bar any re-entry of American forces. And there is legisla- tion, supported by a majority of the Senate, to define specifically the conditions under which a president can in the future commit American forces abroad.

It is clear that Congress will not again, as in the 1964 Gulf of Tonkin resolution, vote with near unanimity to empower any president to take all measures he deems necessary in a situation such as that in Vietnam.

The continuing controversy over priorities, and the allocation of U.S. resources between defense and domestic programs, has been intensified by the war.

Like the war itself, the issue escalated gradually over the course of the decade. It was a topic in three presidential campaigns, and may have been the pivotal one in 1968, when President Nixon was first elected.

Nixon campaigned in 1968 with a pledge to end the war and win the peace in the Pacific—without saying how he would do so. He won narrowly over Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, then vice president. Not until the waning days of the campaign had Humphrey begun to pry himself away from the bit- terly disputed war policy of the Johnson administration.

The Democratic party was divided over the war and the turmoil of its Chicago con- vention.

President Johnson, chal- lenged for renomination on the war issue, had renounced candidacy for a second full term.

Only four years before, he had won the greatest of popu- lar-vote landslides over Re- publican presidential nominee Barry Goldwater. In that campaign, Johnson had said he was not about to send American boys "to do what Asian boys ought to be doing for themselves."

That produced a bitter Re- publican joke: "They told me if I voted for Goldwater we'd have a half million men in Vietnam. I did and we do."

Sen. George McGovern, the Democratic presidential nominee Nixon defeated in 1972, was a man who first came to prominence as an advocate of U.S. withdrawal from Indochina.

Johnson died Monday night, on the eve of Nixon's settlement announcement. And in Wednesday's eulogies at the Capitol there was still another reminder of the great debate.

Sen. John C. Stennis, D- Miss., said Johnson had been the victim of erroneous ad- vice that "led to grave errors" in Vietnam. Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., said Johnson's Vietnam course saved the world from events that could have led to nuclear war.

accepted that hard work was the way to develop a nation that would mean a better life for all us.

We will recapture that spirit only when all of us are working once again to build the better life for all our citizens. It may not be the same kind of back- breaking work that our forefathers knew, but it will require each of us to lend our full efforts to building a better nation.

Somewhere along the way the notion has slipped into our country that it was not necessary for everyone to contribute their part to building a better society. When that happened our national respect for ourselves and our country began to slip.

So if we become a self-reliant people again we will become a self-reliant society. We can restore our national pride and Nixon's inaugural address should signal the beginning of this worthwhile task.

Frustration Of 'Young Turks'

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A series of smashing defeats for pragmatic young Republican Congressmen behind closed doors of the old guard-dominated House Republican Caucus has gravely deepened the depression brought on by haughty and inattentive treatment from President Nixon's Oval Office.

Those caucus decisions systematically cut off new blood from flowing into critical power slots, both on the Ways and Means Com- mittee and as ranking Republican members on other committees. With the old guard in iron-fisted control of the Republican cloak-room, the most powerful figure shaping the party's posture there is almost unknown away from the Capitol's inner sanctum: 78-year-old Rep. Les Arends of Illinois, House minority whip since the third term of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The consequence is less ideological than tactical. Arends-style Republicanism, through indisputably con- servative, is most concerned with maintaining the in- stitutional status quo, especially the rigid seniority system. It seeks ac- commodations with the Democratic leadership and avoids confrontations with the White House after a few terms of frustration.

Arends's dominance stems from control of the House Republican Committee on Committees, and unwieldy 46-member body which determines the party makeup on legislative committees. As a Congressman from Wisconsin and chairman of the House Republican Caucus, Melvin R. Laird championed the Republican Young Turks before moving to the Pentagon in 1969. Since then, Arends has been un- challenged.

In this year's secret sessions of the Committee on Committees, Arends disagreed with minority leader Gerald Ford of Michigan on some committee assignments and won out each time. But there was no opposition from Ford on the committee's biggest issue: a hotly contested vacancy on Ways and Means, the most important legislative com- mittee in Congress.

The Young Turks were pushing Rep. William Steiger, 35, a moderate liberal from Wisconsin with a reputation for aggressiveness and skill during six years in the House. As Secretary of Defense, Laird vainly in- tervened in Steiger's behalf with old friends in Congress and even attempted, un- successfully, to break the White House neutrality.

Oil interests, generous contributors to Republicans, wanted a Texan (Rep. Bill Archer of Houston) and not Steiger. Arends rammed Archer home, privately suggesting that young Bill Steiger had moved a bit too much to the left since coming here.

Nobody could accuse Ohio's Rep. Clarence (Bud) Brown, Jr., 46, of left-wing deviationism, but he lost a bid for another opening on Ways and Means. Whatever their ideological disagreements, Steiger and Brown are both hard-hitting partisans who would challenge back- scratching accommodations within the committee be- tween Republicans and the masterful Democratic chairman, Wilbur D. Mills.

The same players struggled last week in the House Republican Caucus. Steiger, representing the Young Turks, argued that Rep. John Erlenborn, 46, of Illinois should jump one notch in seniority over New York's Rep. Frank Horton as ranking Republican on the Government Operations Committee. Erlenborn is a moderate conservative and Horton a pure Eastern liberal, but again ideology was not the issue.

Arends and the old guard guaranteed Horton's easy victory by arguing that conservative philosophical annoyance with Horton should be ignored because the seniority system must not be splintered. Left unsaid was Arends's distaste for the bumptious style of Erlenborn in refusing to cozy up to old- line Democratic leaders across the aisle.

In seeking support, Horton had underlined his intimate collaboration with the Government Operations chairman: Rep. Chet Holifield of California, a pillar of the Democratic establishment. Erlenborn made just the opposite argument: he would give Holifield hell, challenging the lopsided ratio of 50 Democrats and 4 Republicans on the com- mittee's staff.

Foxy, silver-haired Les Arends has not challenged such inequities during 38 years in the House (34 under Democratic leadership). Instead, he has worked quietly for old guard control, making sure this year that, while reform seeps in elsewhere on Capitol Hill, iron seniority still governs House Republicans.

No wonder it is a depressing time for the Young Turks. They have lacked a patron in leadership ranks since Laird's departure and their own ranks are steadily depleted by frustrated young Congressmen running for the Senate or entering the ad- ministration. Worst of all, Mr. Nixon has made it abundantly clear that he could not care less.

Strength For Today

LOOK UP

There may be all sorts of definitions of religion but this one thing holds true of them all—they put their final trust in divine support. They look to the divine for guidance. They look to the divine for perfection. They consign their children into God's hands. They believe that their country is either going up or down depending on the extent to which it relies on divine support.

Many people confess to be greatly disturbed over the fact that there are so many different varieties of religion. As a matter of fact, there is only one religion, namely, a belief that God made the world, is still in his creation, can be depended upon to guide and sustain it.

Why is it that we seldom turn to God and to the support of divine powers until we are up against it? Some people never think about religious matters until they get sick, or some member of their family gets sick, or they find financial ruin staring them in the face. If divine support is real it is something we have to live with and depend upon day by day. We cannot keep out of trouble because of the kind of persons we are and the kind of world in which we live, but we can look to an overarching power for support and be confident that it will be forthcoming.

Look up, not down—not over the horde of persons as weak as ourselves. Again—look up.

Remember To 'Ask Not'

WASHINGTON — I was sitting with Helmut Strudel, president of Strudel Industries, at President Nixon's inauguration last Saturday. Strudel had donated $1 million to the Committee for the Re- Election of the President and had flown all the way into Washington in his private plane to see what he had gotten for his money.

As the President spoke about international affairs Strudel applauded loudly. But when Mr. Nixon started to talk about domestic matters my friend became quite upset. The President said: "Let each of us remember that America was built not by government, but by people—not by welfare, but by work—not by shirking respon- sibility, buy by seeking responsibility."

Strudel began to perspire. "It sounds like he's not going to bail my company out of bankruptcy," he said worriedly.

"Don't be silly," I told Strudel. "When he speaks of people on welfare, the President's talking about the little guy who's freeloading in the government. He is not talking about companies that get large government sub- sidies."

The President said, "In the challenges we face together let each of ask not just how government can help, but how can I help?"

"You know, of course," Strudel whispered to me, "That my company has a contract to build 4,000 gazebos for the U.S. Air Force at $8 million each. Well since we got the order, gazebos have gone up to $10 million, and unless the government helps us we won't be able to deliver them."

"Of course, the govern- ment will help you," I assured Strudel. "When the President said 'Ask not what the government will do for me but what can I do for myself,' he was talking about teachers and farmers and old people on Social Security who are always at the government trough. Contractors are not in that category."

"I hope not," Strudel said, "because I bought a $1,000 box at the Inauguration Ball tonight, and I'd hate for it to be empty."

The President seemed to look at us as he said, "I pledge to you that where this government should act, we will act boldly and lead boldly. But just as important is the role that each and every one of us must play as an in- dividual and member of the community."

Strudel said, "They promised me when I made my political contribution that the White House would

NEW YORK (AP) — Manhat- tan conversations:

"If you inherited a lot of money, would you leave it all to me when you go?"

"No, I'd take you with me — and leave all the money to the guy you'd like to spend it on. Then he'd have two reasons to be grateful to me."

"You're looking out the win- dow. What do you see?"

"I see mankind in torment and sadness. I see woe and wonder, wounds and weeping. I see people acting bad and looking glad. Shall I take another look?"

"Why? The view never changes."

"You never loved me in the first place."

"Yes. That probably explains why all the other places never mattered much either."

"Won't you ever quit asking questions, child? Don't you know that curiosity killed the cat?"

"What was the cat trying to find out, Mommy?"

"Sometimes I wish I could do it all over again."

"To someone else, I trust — not me."

Two stenographers at a drug store luncheon counter:

"Well, let's just suppose there really is such a thing as reincarnation in a later life. What do you suppose you'll come back as?"

"I don't know about myself, but I know what my boss will look like. He'll be creepy, like he is now, but next time he'll crawl on four feet and have a long tail."

"Well, no matter how bad things may get, there's one thing I'll never consider, and that is a divorce."

"Why not?"

"Because we don't divorce in our family."

"But your family is all dead except you."

"Dead, yes — divorced, no. I simply couldn't sleep in the same graveyard with my fami- ly if they knew I was di- vorced."

"I thought myself he was pretty interesting. Where did you get the idea he's a terrible braggart?"

"Just from some talk I heard."

"That could be unfair. Who was doing the talking?"

"He was."

Tornado-Watchers Are Looking For Rough Spring

By R. F. HARVISON
Associated Press Writer
KANSAS CITY (AP) — Last year was "the year of the runt" along the nation's Tornado Alley, "But we know the giants will be back," Allen Pearson, the weather service's top tornado expert, said today.

Pearson, director of the National Severe Storms Forecast Center here, said although there was an above-average number of tornadoes during 1972, fatalities were at a record low of 27.

Incidence was high, with 741 twisters occurring over the year in most of the 50 states and Puerto Rico, but most were small. Generally, the few larger twisters didn't hit anything. The average for the past 20 years is 659 tornadoes a year.

The forecast center here is responsible for watching trouble spots over the entire nation around the clock, on the lookout for all types of severe weather. Tornadoes are their biggest business.

"This year already is off to a hectic start," Pearson said in an interview. "We already have had 38 tornadoes since Jan. 1. But, gratefully, again fatalities are down (with only one in Louisiana)."

Is there any sort of trend in intensity of tornadoes?

"I don't know," the forecaster said. "We know that not every year has blockbusters and 1972 was a year largely without them."

"It all seems to tie in with deep disturbances along the West Coast. If we don't have deep troughs of low pressure, chances are we won't have a lot of severe weather. Last year was without these. This year has started off with a lot of them."

"If the pattern holds," Pearson said, "we're in for a rough spring."

"I can't tell you how long this pattern will hold," he added. "We don't fully understand why we get dramatic shifts in weather. In the first part of January the whole country was freezing. All of a sudden in mid-January, we're in the 60s — and we don't know quite why."

Most tornadoes occur between March and June.

"There is an element of luck in tornado occurrence," he said, "in that 1972 produced some really big tornadoes, but they stayed away from big towns."

"One went across Iowa 65 miles on the ground without killing anyone. Another was over 50 miles on the ground in northern Wisconsin without a fatality."

Most of 1972's twisters occurred in the Southern states. Over-all, the year's total of 741 was 82 more than the 659 average over the past 20 years.

The tornado of the year occurred April 5 at Vancouver, Wash., just across the Columbia River from Portland, Ore. It was the first fatal tornado ever recorded in Washington. It took six lives, the most in any state for the year, injured 300 and caused $5.5 million in damage.

Only three other big twisters occurred during the year in populated areas. These were at Atlanta, Ga.; Joliet, Ill., and Newton, Mass., a Boston suburb. Each produced one fatality.

Over the nation, 986 persons were injured in tornadoes, which is about average, Pearson said. Property damage totaled $143 million. Only eight states recorded no tornadoes during the year.

Oklahoma and Illinois had five deaths each, Texas two and one each occurred in Florida, Georgia, Massachusetts, New York and Ohio.

The center of tornado activity, traditionally along Tornado Alley from Texas northeast to the Great Lakes, seems to be shifting to the Deep South, below the Mason Dixon line, Pearson said.

"The trend has been developing over the past five years. Granted, a lot of these are small ones, but there definitely is a shift in incidence to the South."

He added that twisters can and have occurred in any of the 50 states in any month of the year. They are most likely on a warm, sultry day between 4 and 6 p.m., but can strike any hour of the day or night.

Little is known of the cause or actual composition of a tornado.

"It's hard to look at one under a microscope," he said.

"The thing I'd like to know more about is why we have some fairly skinny but intense tornadoes that may be only a couple of blocks wide, then sometimes have huge fat ones that don't pack as much punch."

"It's important from the warning and forecasting standpoint to be able to say you're going to have this kind or the other. But such information is hard to get at."

personally pay for the overruns on my gazebos. But now the President seems to be hedging on it."

"That's just for the public," I assured Strudel. "Everyone knows big business is dependent on Washington, and no administration is going to turn its back on your just because you're losing money on your gazebos."

The President read on, "Let us pledge together to make these next four years the best four years in American's history, so that on its 200th birthday, American will be as young and vital as when it began, and as bright a beacon of hope for all the world."

Strudel applauded as the President finished. Then he recognized Kalus Engelfinger of the National Milk Producers League. "What did you think of it?" Strudel asked him.

"I think he could have exempted dairymen when he was talking about people doing more for themselves," Engelfinger said.

"And Grumman Aircraft," the man behind us yelled.

"And Penn Central," a man in a homburg shouted.

"Why leave out Lockheed?" another distinguished guest yelled.

"Or Litton Industries," a guest chimed in.

Strudel seemed to feel better. "See all you guys at the ball."

Jews Still Count Dead From Nazi Holocaust

By KENNETH L. LUCOFF
JERUSALEM (UPI) — Twenty-seven years after the end of World War II, the Jews are still counting and identifying their dead from the Nazi holocaust.

The number of black volumes filled with the lists of victims has outgrown the small, darkened library of death at the Israeli memorial to those who perished.

More than 2.5 million dead have been documented by the Yad Vashem ("The Martyrs' Foundation") Center, but a new hall is to be built soon to accommodate millions more.

"It will be impossible to reach the six million figure, since whole communities were wiped out and we'll never know the number of people lost or their names," Yitzhak Arad, the director of Yad Vashem, said.

"But, I hope we can get to four million."

The effort is a renewed campaign to count the exact number of Jews killed in gas chambers, in front of firing squads or in mass graves during the Nazi reign.

Arad said the count had been stopped after the 1967 Middle East war in deference to the dead of that campaign.

"Now," he said, "the holocaust isn't that painful to remember."

Names, birthplaces and death sites of Jews murdered in World War II are being collected on one-page testimony sheets filled in by relatives or witnesses of friends.

Testimony sheets in English, Hebrew, Yiddish, Russian, French and Portuguese are being distributed to Jewish communities around the world for completion.

Arad said the campaign was meeting resistance from people who think it will strengthen the claims of extremist Germans and Arabs that the six million figure is the work of Jewish propagandists.

"When we started collecting the names, people said it was impossible to get them all and that this will support arguments that not really six million were killed," he said.

"But we know how many Jews lived in Europe before the Nazis came and we know how many lived through the holocaust. We just don't know exactly who they all were."

Arad, a former brigadier general in the Israeli army who fought with resistance movements in Eastern Europe during World War II, said not all Jews went passively to the death chambers of concentration camps.

"We'll never know, again, exactly how many Jews took part in the armed resistance," he said. "Many of these fighters were themselves exterminated and we'll never know about them."

One group of partisan fighters that survived is heading the testimony sheet collection in the United States. The American Federation of Jewish Fighters, Camp Inmates and Nazi Victims is distributing the sheets through synagogues, Jewish community centers and newspapers.

Lobbying By Equal Rights Foes

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Women opposed to passage of the Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution have been lobbying in the North Carolina legislature with increasing intensity.

They were much in evidence Thursday as the Senate Constitution Committee scheduled public hearings on the proposed amendment, which would bar discrimination by either federal or state governments on account of sex.

Wearing bright red, octagonal "Stop ERA" buttons, the women crowded the committee room. Like most of the anti-ERA lobbyists who have visited the legislature this week, they appeared to be plainly dressed, middle-aged women from rural areas.

Their leader was Miss Dorothy Slade of Reidsville, the state coordinator of the national "Stop ERA" movement, a group directed by an Illinois woman, Phyllis Schlafly.

Miss Slade, a stout, grey-haired woman, said she had met Miss Schlafly in September at a conference sponsored by a group called "Pro-America."

She and her group sat quietly at the edge of the committee room as Sen. Fred Folger announced a series of public hearings on the amendment, to be held jointly with the House Constitution Committee.

On Feb. 1, Folger said, he has invited John Saunders of the Institute of Government in Chapel Hill and Dr. Robert E. Lee of Wake Forest Law School to discuss the legal ramifications of the amendment.

On Feb. 8, he said, a public hearing would be held at which interested women's groups could testify.

Sen. Charles Deane, D-Richmond, objected that Lee, whom he said had been his law professor at Wake Forest, was an opponent of the ERA. Folger said Deane was free to ask his own experts to testify.

That brought a few murmurs of approval from the pro-ERA men who were on the opposite side of the room from Miss Slade's group.

They were a sharp contrast to those with Stop ERA buttons. Most were young, wore more jewelry, and their hair was straight and long. A few had small children in their laps.

But their numbers were small compared to the groups which have been lobbying against the amendment this week.

On Tuesday, for example, a group of about 40 women from the Diamond Hill Baptist Church in rural Iredell County marched through the halls, button-holing legislators at random.

One of them, Mrs. Charles Campbell told a reporter she opposed the ERA because, "It would destroy marriage if the public accepts this. If it passes, we might as well pile our Bibles out because it goes against everything in the Bible."

"I was raised on a farm with 14 children," she said, "and I know what life's about. Women aren't meant by the Lord to be equal."

"It's professional women who envy men who are behind this," Mrs. Campbell added. "Quite a few women would give their eyeteeth to be President, but I wouldn't want to be."

Chicago Teachers Back After 11-Day Walkout

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
CHICAGO (AP) — It was back to the blackboard today for Chicago's 21,000 public school teachers who have ended an 11-day strike, the longest in the city's history.

Members of the Chicago Teachers Union ratified a new contract Thursday night, gaining major concessions from the Board of Education on wages, class size, additional preparation time and a shorter work year.

The vote was 8,145 in favor of the school board offer to 1,012 against.

The walkout, which began Jan. 10, had idled 660 schools and kept 550,000 pupils out of classes.

But in two other major U.S. cities, teacher strikes dragged on.

In Philadelphia, the 15th day of a walkout by 13,000 public school teachers continued to curtail classes for 285,000 children in 280 schools. And in St. Louis, a strike by 3,000 teachers went into its fifth day.

Salaries under the old contract ranged from $9,796 to $16,716.

In Philadelphia, two officials of the Federation of Teachers were convicted Thursday of contempt of court charges for defying an injunction to end the walkout. But the judge deferred sentencing of PFT President Frank Sullivan and chief union negotiator John Ryan for seven days.

Meanwhile, several hundred demonstrators were held back by police from entering the City Council chambers where the legislative body met with Mayor Frank Rizzo to discuss the possibility of increasing taxes to finance teacher raises.

The Council, however, agreed to take no immediate action.

In St. Louis, Circuit Court Judge Thomas McGuire continued today to consider a request for a permanent injunction against that strike.

Find Two Dead In Motel Room

LENOIR, N.C. (AP) — The bodies of two young men from Abingdon, Va., were found on the floor on opposite sides of an undisturbed bed in their motel room Thursday.

They had started work at a furniture factory in Lenoir the day before.

They were identified as Joe Goodson, 22, and Danny Cuddy, 21. Authorities said papers in their wallets indicated Goodson was a Vietnam veteran and that Cuddy had been Marine.

Authorities said there were no signs of violence in the room. They sent blood samples to a state laboratory in Raleigh to help determine the cause of death.

The hostess organization is the Greenville Business and Professional Women's Club. Contact Miss Alya Ray Taylor, 758-1481, to preregister for the seminar.

The seminar will be conducted by Dr. Frances Dawson, noted author and lecturer from Elon College. The seminar is one of 10 being conducted across the state and is one of the state-wide projects of the Council, which is made up of 40 affiliated state-wide organizations.

Rose High Honor Soc. Inducts New Members

In a unique nighttime ceremony, the Haskett Chapter of the National Honor Society held annual inductions at the Rose High Gymnasium last evening.

After a procession of present members into the gymnasium, chapter president Maurice Sheppard offered a welcome to the gathering of parents and guests. He later explained the new procedure of admission into the society. Sheppard noted that the inductees were given a form to fill out and return to a selection committee, to be considered for a place.

Highlighting the ceremony was a brief address by the Rev. Tommy Payne. He related the new members' induction to the conquering of a mountain.

"You in a real sense have climbed to the top of the mountain. This is something you can be proud of. We share this pride with you."

After Rev. Payne's remarks, president Sheppard asked the present members to light the candles of the incoming members. He then administered the oath of membership.

The new Senior class members include: Lynn Briley, Chris Colcord, Helen Cox, Donna Edwards, Karen Faser, Bridget Finch, Debbie Gilchrist, Shiela Godley, Gail Jones, Amy Leggett, Jerry Leggett, Nancy Martin, Kathryn Rowlett, Sandra Taylor, Edith Trotman, Fred Vultee, Gary Warren, and Stephen Wooten.

Thirty-two junior members were inducted. They include: Cindy Allen, Charles Barlow, Anna Bass, Robert Brinkley, Sheryl Buck, Lynn Cargile, Jonathan Caspar, Gary Cayton, Myrla Cox, Carolyn Cline, Cathy Cunningham.

Le Duc Tho Leaves Paris

PARIS (AP) — Le Duc Tho, Hanoi's chief peace negotiator, left Paris today on the eve of the peace signing ceremony with a word of tribute to his fellow negotiator, Henry A. Kissinger.

Asked as he boarded the plane for Moscow to describe the atmosphere in his four years of secret negotiations with Kissinger, Tho replied, "We were both negotiators. We worked together and had an attitude that was correct and courteous at all times."

In a departure statement, Tho said North Vietnam looked forward to a period of friendship "with the peoples of the entire world, including the American people."

"Tomorrow the guns will be silenced and peace will return to Vietnam. Our people are preparing to enter a new era with the determination to raise high the banner of peace and national concord and to carry out strictly the clauses of the agreement."

Nixon Reorganization Plans Submitted To Congress Today

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, who has promised to make the White House staff an example for economy in government, is submitting to Congress today a reorganization plan that would pare down his executive office but, apparently, have no effect on the White House staff.

Indications are that the Office of Emergency Planning, unless either house of Congress exercises veto powers within 60 days, will become a part of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

OEP, as it has been known, hires more than 200 people and its consignment to other precincts presumably would help Nixon meet his stated objective of making the deepest personnel cuts close to home.

Although not directly a subject of Nixon's first reorganization message of the year, the National Aeronautics and Space Council, with a budget approaching half a billion dollars and created while the President served as vice president, also seems doomed for extinction as a separate entity. This is not to be confused with NASA, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Just where the pieces of the council would land was not clear. But, sources said, it would not figure in Nixon's reorganization message.

Neither, said White House officials, would the Office of Economic Opportunity figure in the first Nixon reorganization plan. However, the White House was not denying reports that OEO's activities will be taken up by line departments and agencies.

Thus, apparently, will die an agency created by the late President Lyndon B. Johnson, who saw it as the spearhead of a war against poverty.

Another presidential office destined for extinction is that of Science and Technology. With a budget barely topping $2 million a year, it also will be absorbed elsewhere in the bureaucracy, perhaps by the National Science Foundation.

The Office of Management and Budget, the agency that prepares each year's spending blueprint, presumably will not suffer greatly budgetwise.

Sources said another offshoot of Nixon's executive office hat may be spared a budget hatchet is the Office of Consumer Affairs.

Ceasefire Will End Long List

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The impending Vietnam ceasefire brings what probably will be the end to a list on a stone monument outside a Catholic high school here.

The 8-foot-high war memorial lists the names of 27 alumni of Father Judge High School, which school official say has had more of its former students killed in the war than any other Catholic high school in the country. Twenty-three of the 27 were killed in combat.

The last name on the memorial, which bears a relief of the Pieta, was inscribed in 1968.

Sudan Plot Is Uncovered

CAIRO (AP) — A plot to assassinate President Jaafar el-Numairi of Sudan has been foiled and 12 army officers were arrested Thursday night, the Middle East News Agency reported today.

The Egyptian agency said the Sudanese radio reported the plotters were headed by a retired army brigadier, Mohamed Kheir Salam. Interior Minister Mohamed Abdel Bakr said Salam and his 11 associates would be tried by a state security court when the investigation is completed.

A statement from Bakr read over Omdurman Radio said security authorities had kept a close watch on a series of meetings held at Salam's residence in Shajara, a suburb of Khartoum, the Sudanese capital. The 12 men were rounded up there Thursday night.

Bakr said they planned to assassinate Numairi and a number of high-ranking civilian and military officials.

It was the second reported attempt to overthrow the 42-year-old president since he survived an attempted Communist coup that ousted him from power for 74 hours in July 1971.

Numairi himself came to power in a coup in 1969.

Waldheims Have Housewarming

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim and his wife gave a housewarming party Thursday night at the $1.1 million townhouse on New York's Sutton Place that they moved into last October.

Among 700 invitees present were former Secretary-General U Thant, Mayor John V. Lindsay, film producer Otto Preminger, singer Lotte Lenya, and many U.N. ambassadors and their wives.

The house was a gift to the U.N. from Arthur A. Houghton Jr., president of Steuben Glass.

securing a grant of $260,000 to the town of Columbia to fund the repair of sewer lines that had collapsed as the result of damage from Hurricane Ginger.

As a member of the Recreation Commission, Dansey was involved in negotiating an agreement between the City School Board and the commission for the use of the Old Eppes High School Gym and property and helped to obtain an $18,000 operational grant. He was also credited with being instrumental in speeding up the process for the commission to receive $13,073 from the Department of Housing and Urban Development in development funds.

A member of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, the recipient is married to the former Bonnie Lynn Phillips of Huntington, W. Va., and they have a two-year-old son, Trey.

In addition to the recognition of Dansey as DSA winner, a number of bosses of Jaycee members were on hand for the dinner meeting and were recognized by president Don Brady for their "patience and support" of Jaycee programs in Greenville.

Five past DSA winners of other communities were recognized. They were: Tommy Payne, recipient of the Robersonville award; Andy Warren, Robersonville; Dick Paul, Washington; Garland Beddard, Washington; and Hugh Bazemore, Ahoskie.

Several past DSA winners from the Greenville chapter attended as guests, as well as eight past presidents.

David Whichard, Jr., 1950 DSA winner and 1955 chapter president, installed five new Jaycees during the meeting. Officially joining the chapter last night were Bob Jackson, Joe Babb, Banks Cozart, Ken Meyers, and Mike Hill.

Whichard told the new members that "most of the worthwhile things that are in Greenville, both tangible and intangible, are here because of men like you."

Owens, a Pitt County native of Fountain, advised Jaycees to be aware of the "three L's" in their everyday lives. He urged them to listen to all the facts, then make a decision. After making the decision, he urged them to labor, and then to love.

He noted that while local Jaycee efforts are directed primarily to Greenville, the work of the chapter reaches to many other areas of the state. Owens cited the work with Boys' Home at Lake Waccamaw as an example.

The speaker, who is executive director of the North Carolina chapter, National Cystic Fibrosis Foundation, pointed out that "the character of the President May Greet Returnees

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House aides are discussing the possibility of a California trip by President Nixon to meet the first freed U.S. prisoners of war on their way home from North Vietnam, The Washington Post reported today.

The newspaper said there has been no final decision for the President to make the trip to Travis Air Force Base.

Fatally Shot In Scuffle

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — Larry Robbins, 19, a former Gaston Community College student, was fatally shot Thursday night in a scuffle with Gastonia policeman R. D. Hamrick, who was attempting to arrest Robbins.

Hamrick said Robbins' car ran a red light about 11:30 p.m. and he refused to stop when signaled. The patrolman said he pursued Robbins at high speeds for about 1 1/4 miles before the youth's car ran off the road and hit an embankment.

Hamrick said Robbins jumped from his car and started running. The patrolman pulled his pistol and ordered Robbins to stop, which he did. But, Hamrick said, when Robbins returned to the patrol car, he tried to grab the patrolman's gun. In the scuffle which followed, the weapon discharged. Robbins was dead on arrival at Gaston Memorial Hospital.

Maj. M. R. Short, the assistant chief of police who is investigating the incident, said an autopsy has been ordered. He said no charges have been filed against Hamrick, but he "has been told not to report to work until the investigation is complete."

On a total of six public hearing agenda items before the City-County and Greenville Boards of Adjustments, two items were withdrawn, one tabled, one denied, and two approved. The two boards met at City Hall on Thursday night.

On the one item before the City-County board, a decision was reached to table the request for special use permit sought by Mrs. and Mrs. Mayhue A. Cannon.

They were seeking a permit to place a mobile home on property on the south side of Washington Highway east of the city limits. In tabling the request, members noted that the Pitt County Health Department had not approved a sewer for the site because of conditions on the property. The matter can be considered again when the property meets health standards.

The one denial, an item before the city board, was a request for special use permit and for a variance sought by Delta Sigma Phi Fraternity. In disapproving the dual request, it was noted this was on the basis of the property, at 612 East Tenth Street, having only one half of the 14,000 square feet needed. There was no objection voiced on the part of adjacent residents to establishing a fraternity house at that site.

Items withdrawn prior to hearing were a request for special use permit by Mrs. Lillian Hendrix to place a mobile home at 705 Hooker Road; and a request for special use permit by T. Ed. Bailey to install self-service gasoline pumps at 1922 East Greenville Boulevard.

The two items approved at the city board meeting were a request for special use permit by T. Ed. Bailey and a request for variance by the Calvary Baptist Church.

Bailey's request involved the installation of self-service gasoline pumps at 2520 East Tenth Street. The property is zoned shopping center.

On approval for the variance by Calvary Baptist Church, located at 1412 Holbert Street, one member cast a no vote. The variance covers alteration of the church which is located in an unoffensive industry zoned area.

Pirates Close Long Road Trip At VMI

Wolfpack Dunks Buc Swimmers

RALEIGH — N. C. State's powerful swimming team gained a 70-43 victory over the East Carolina Pirates yesterday.

State jumped into the lead with the opening relay, held off a brief East Carolina rally in the 1,000-yard freestyle, and built from there.

Overall, State captured first place in eight individual events, while East Carolina won three. They split the two relays.

The lone double winner for the Pirates was Larry Green, who won the 1,000 and 500 freestyles. In the 500, he snapped the East Carolina varsity record of 4:57.1 set by Jim Griffin, winning the event in 4:56.9. The other individual winner for the Bucs Paul Trevisan, also shared a leg on the winning freestyle relay team.

Tom Duke was the lone double winner for the Wolfpack, gaining the 200 individual medley and the 200 breaststroke.

Virginia Pulls Upset Victory Over Carolina

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Coach Dean Smith, whose third-ranked North Carolina basketball team was upset 84-78 by Virginia Thursday night, says, "I am not going to say we were looking ahead to Maryland, because that would take away from Virginia's great victory."

"Virginia played a tremendous game. I don't remember anyone hitting so many 15-foot jumpers."

"They spread out their offense and took away our height advantage. We had big men chasing smaller, quicker men."

Bill Gibson, coach of the Virginia Cavaliers, said, "The exam break rally helped us. The team was really down after losses to N.C. State and Maryland."

It was the first loss in their home Carmichael Auditorium for the North Carolina Tar Heels in 24 games dating back to the tail end of the 1969-70 season, when South Carolina beat them. It also broke a string of nine victories for the Tar Heels, who now are 3-1 in the Atlantic Coast Conference and 15-2 in all games. And it was the first time Virginia had beat them on their home court.

Virginia is 7-4 in all games and 3-2 in the conference, having beaten Duke and Wake Forest earlier in the season and lost to second-ranked N.C. State and fourth-ranked Maryland just before the two-week examination break.

Barry Parkhill, the ACC Player of the Year last season, got only two points against Maryland. But he got 23 against North Carolina, and Gibson said, "A lot of people have written Parkhill off, but the way he played tonight, he is still the best until he is proven otherwise."

Parkhill, freshman Wally Walker and Jim Hobgood combined for 70 points. Walker had 25 points and Hobgood 22.

"What can you say of a freshman who hits 12 of 13 shots from the floor?" Gibson said of Walker, a 6-foot-6 forward.

East Carolina University takes to the road for one last time in January Saturday night, traveling to Lexington, Va., to meet the Keydets of Virginia Military Institute.

The VMI court is never an easy place to play, despite the fact that for a number of years, VMI has been the doormat of the conference. The mere presence of the corps of cadets is enough to shake the courage of many more talented teams.

And this season, the VMI team is no longer the doormat of the league. Beating them is getting tougher all the time, and this is especially true of their home court.

East Carolina, too, might be in a position where a brief look at the schedule might get their minds elsewhere, although Coach Tom Quinn doubts that this will happen. Next week, the Pirates play both Davidson and Furman at Minges Coliseum, and these are the two biggest games the Bucs have left at home.

Earlier this year, the Pirates rolled to an 81-63 victory over the Keydets in Minges Coliseum, but the game didn't open up until very late in the contest. VMI was in there battling almost right up to the end.

The Pirates will be getting full speed out of center Al Faber for the first time in over a week. The big center is recovering from a sprained toe, and hasn't practiced since two days before the George Washington game, a week ago last Wednesday, although he has played in every game, scoring 12 against GW, 10 against William & Mary, and eight against Jacksonville.

For the Pirates, it is more or less the start of the "second round" of Southern Conference play. They are currently 3-4 in the league, having played a everyone once. "The players were discussing this the other day," Quinn said, "and they're getting up about it. They have some things they want to make amends for, and this next week can go a long way toward that goal. But we can't be looking ahead of VMI because we know that it'll be a hard game."

Quinn added that the players felt that they have an opportunity to play better in this second round than they did before. "We lost to both Davidson and Furman badly on the road last year too," Quinn recalls. "But we beat both of them at home." He and his charges are hoping for a repeat performance this year.

Another big factor in the series is that both are at home, where the Pirates haven't lost this year. The Furman game will also be shown on regional television.

But the Pirates must have their minds on VMI first. "The first game didn't break until late," Quinn recalls. "But we didn't play particularly well in that one."

Quinn said that the Pirates have become a much more physical team since then, and praised the way junior Nicky White has come around in this fashion. "We're playing a much more physical defense now, and we're taking the ball to the boards a little harder. We still need to be a little more aggressive around the basket, but it's improving."

VMI, meanwhile, goes with a good matchup defense and keepings changing the defensive patterns to keep the offense off-stride. "They did this in the first game, and I see no reason for them to change. Offensively, they'll probably go with their disciplined shuffle and they are a fairly good shooting team."

The Keydets come into the game with a 2-2 Southern Conference record and a 5-9 overall mark. They really have no individual star, although Charlie Tyler and David Lester are considered the top ones.

The Keydets are seventh in offense in the conference with a 65.9 point per game average. The Bucs are scoring 71.6 a game. Defensively, the Keydets are allowing 71.9, while the Bucs are giving up 76.0.

VMI is hitting only 41.7 per cent from the floor and 61.3 from the line, as compared to 45.5 and 70.5 for the Pirates. East Carolina is pulling down 54.5 per cent of the loose balls, while the VMI team is letting 50.1.

The Keydets, however, can be tough. In their last outing, they upset Virginia Tech, 81-60.

East Carolina, by winning, could move into third place in the standings with a 4-4 record, ahead of The Citadel and VMI, which currently occupy that spot, assuming Richmond tops the Bulldogs.

Roanoke-Chowan Rallies By Pitt

AHOSKIE — Roanoke-Chowan Technical Institute roared back from behind in the second half to move out by 15 points. Then held off Pitt Technical Institute to take a 98-93 victory last night.

The Paladins of Pitt Tech pushed out into the lead, and for the first few minutes appeared headed for an easy victory. They shot out to an 8-2 lead in the first minutes, then increased that to 16-8, and finally to as much as 32-15.

But after that, the Paladins chilled, and Roanoke-Chowan put on a comeback. They finally caught up at 37-37, but then they also went into a freeze and could hit only two more points the rest of the way. Pitt Tech came up with 13 more and moved out to a 50-39 lead at the half.

For the first 10 minutes of the second half, the two teams more or less swapped baskets, with Pitt maintaining its lead. Then, in the closing minutes Roanoke-Chowan put on a full court press and it rattled the Paladins, and cost them the lead. R-C pushed ahead and built up as much as a 77-62 lead before the press by the Paladins shook them two and cut the lead back to as little as four points with two minutes to play. But Pitt Tech couldn't regain the lead in the time left, and finally bowed.

Frank Brown led Pitt Tech with 25 points, while Charles Jordan had 24 and Richard Harrison had 16. For Roanoke-Chowan, James Veal had 22, Willie Owens and John Powell each had 19, Wayne Russell had 16 and Leo Walton had 14.

The Paladins are now 2-2 in the conference and 4-5 overall. They play host to Fayetteville on Monday.

IT'S A GRIM BUSINESS — A stern-faced Jack Nicklaus knocks a wedge from the rough to the second green at Pebble Beach during Thursday's opening round of the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am. Nicklaus left it six feet short and missed the putt for a birdie, but birdied three of the next five holes. Billy Casper took the first round lead however. (AP Wirephoto)

Casper Captures First Round Lead In Crosby

By BOB GREEN Associated Press Sports Writer PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Billy Casper surveyed the wreckage of his dismal, frustrating 1972 season and spoke in characteristic fashion. "Everything was on a downward ebb," he said. "I was playing bad, swinging bad, thinking bad. But it will probably make me a better individual."

"Now everything is on the upswing."

The 41-year-old Casper, who suffered the poorest season of his brilliant career last year, had just slogged slowly through rain and mud and wind "and maybe a little sleet—just about everything except snow," to a 66 and the first round lead Thursday in the prestige-laden Bing Crosby National Pro-Am Golf Tournament, offering $205,000 in total prize money.

"I didn't expect to play this well at all, he said, "I played very well and putted extremely well."

Casper, who said he benefited greatly from traditional "Crosby weather" that had other players talking to themselves—Arnold Palmer called it "miserable as hell"—had a two-stroke lead over Tom Weiskopf after his six-under-par effort.

Weiskopf at 68, was followed by veteran Don Massengale, now a club pro in New York's Westchester County, alone at 69. The group at 70, two under par, were big Bobby Nichols, Hubert Green and Bob Eastwood.

All the leaders were at Cypress Point, one of three Monterey peninsula courses being played under the unique format for this event. It's generally considered to be the easiest of the three and is the most sheltered from the weather.

Jack Nicklaus, who won this tournament and the U.S. Open at Pebble Beach last year, was disappointed and obviously unhappy after he could do no better than a rain-interrupted 71 on that layout. He was one of more than a dozen at that figure.

The 43-year-old Palmer matched par 72 at Cypress. British Open champ Lee Trevino, who has a notorious dislike for cold, wet weather, went to 74 at Spyglass Hill. Australian Bruce Crampton, winner of the last two tour events who has a chance to become the first man in more than a decade to win three in a row, blew to a 77 at Pebble Beach.

Oakmont Gets Win

Oakmont pulled into a tie for first place in the Church Basketball League with a 58-48 victory over St. James last night.

Oakmont and Immanuel are now tied for the league lead with 6-1 records.

Oakmont jumped into the lead in the first half and built up a 34-20 cushion by halftime. In the second half, St. James tried to put together a rally, outscoring Oakmont, 28-24, but it wasn't enough.

Bob Hall led Oakmont with 19 points while Doyle Daughtry had 14. For St. James, Mike Boars had 13 and Si Seymour had 12.

Furman Outlasts 'Cats In Wild Game, 102-94

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Furman has held fast to its lead in the Southern Conference after defeating its closest challenger Thursday night, but the battle was a long and sometimes tense one.

As a matter of fact, the game was so tense that 79 fouls were called, plus 69 turnovers, before Furman's Paladins finally surpassed Davidson 102-94.

The referees' whistles were blown so much that the game took 2 hours and 12 minutes to complete, against a normal playing time of about 1 hour and 40 minutes.

The scoring came hot and heavy, with Furman crossing the 100-point mark for the fourth time this season. The Paladins had six men in double figures to five for Davidson.

Furman's Fessor "Moose" Leonard, that 7-foot-1 sophomore who until Thursday night averaged 20.7 points per game, was held to 12 points in the endeavor.

And his teammate, Clyde Mayes, with a 14.7-point average before the game, was held to only nine points.

In the only other game involving a Southern Conference team Thursday night, Wake Forest downed William & Mary 93-79.

William & Mary was plagued with foul trouble throughout the game and argued vigorously with many calls, which resulted in four technical fouls.

The Richmond Spiders' Aron Steward, a junior college transfer who became a shot in the arm for the sagging team, still holds the scoring lead in the Southern Conference with an average of 29.5 points per game.

Steward has scored a total of 236 points in eight starts.

The 6-foot-5 Steward hit for 29 points Wednesday night against Duke and was the backbone of the Spiders' scoring attack. The second highest scorer for Richmond in that game had only nine points.

Still commanding second place in the scoring race is Appalachian State's 6-foot-2 junior Stan Davis.

Davis now averages 25.3 points per game after scoring a total of 405 points in 16 starts.

He hit for 20 points Wednesday night as Appalachian downed UNC-Ashville 90-87 in a nonconference game.

No conference games are scheduled for tonight, but two games are on tap for Saturday night.

E. Carolina travels to Lexington, Va., to do battle with the Keydets, and The Citadel invades Richmond to meet the Spiders.

The Citadel, with an even 2-2 record in the conference, could be in for trouble against the Spiders, even though Richmond sports a dismal 2-4 record in the conference.

VMI is 2-2 and E. Carolina 3-4 in the conference, with VMI one notch above E. Carolina in the standings. The Keydets hold fourth place.

L. Mint Near Title

The Little Mint gained a 36-19 victory over Azalea last night in the Ladies Basketball League and clinched no worse than a tie for the league championship. In the other game, R. B. Jr. Fleetway nipped Beltone, 22-20.

The Little Mint is now 4-0 in the league with two games left to play. Beltone and R. B. Jr. Fleetway are both 2-2, while Azalea is 0-4. An earlier victory by Azalea was forfeited after an ineligible player was used. The Little Mint needs only one more win to wrap up the championship.

In the opening game last night, it was close all the way. Both R. B. Jr. and Beltone tossed in 10 points in the first half. Then, in the second half, R. B. Jr. managed to outthit Beltone, 12-10, to take the victory.

Teresa Drewry led R. B. Jr. with eight points, while Vivian Deans had a similar score to pace Beltone.

In the second game, the Little Mint eased out into a 13-11 lead in the first half. But in the second, they outscored Azalea, 23-8 to win going away.

Judy Peele led the winners with 10 points, while Jan Hicks had five to pace Azalea.

Virginia . . .

79-78 with 44 seconds left.

ACC teams are idle tonight. On Saturday, North Carolina will play at Maryland in a nationally televised game which will begin at noon, Eastern Standard Time. That night, Virginia will be at Clemson, Duke at Georgia Tech, N.C. Stae will play Furman in the Greensboro, N.C., Coliseum, and Wake Forest will play Davidson in the Charlotte, N.C., Coliseum.

Wake Forest took a 93-79 home victory from William and Mary of the Southern Conference Thursday night. Wake Forest again relied on its backcourt duo, Eddie Payne getting 25 points and Tony Byers 23.

Wake Forest is 9-6, and now has won more games so far this season than it did all last season. William and Mary is 4-11.

Wachovia Gets First Defeat

Prepshirt surprised Wachovia Bank last night, 41-30, in the Industrial Basketball League, and knocked the previously unbeaten Bankers off the top of the loop. In the other games, Union Carbide downed the Post Office, 57-55, and Empire Brush beat Vermont American, 80-55.

State Highway moved into the lead in the standings with a 6-1 record, while Wachovia dropped to 5-1.

In the opening game, Empire Brush came on to move into a 37-33 lead at halftime. Then, in the second half, they streaked away, outscoring Vermont American, 43-22, to win going away.

E. Coburn led Empire Brush with 25 points, while O. Nichols had 24, and J. Parker had 15. For Vermont American, G. Warren had 30 and B. Evans had 12.

In the second contest, Wachovia appealed heading for and easy win, gaining a 20-12 lead at halftime. But in the second half, Wachovia went cold, hitting only 10 points, while Prepshirt came back with 29 to push ahead and gain the win.

W. Johnson led Prepshirt with 12 and C. Grey added 11. Baggett had 12 to lead Wachovia.

Winding up the evening, Union Carbide built up a 27-19 lead in the first half of play. The Post Office tried to rally, out-scoring Union Carbide, 36-30, but it just fell short. Larry Daniels led Union Carbide with 23, while Lewis Boyd had 22. Donny Taylor had 18 and Doug Teel had 12 for the Post Office.

Hard To Be Writer In Town Of The Losers

Editors Note: Ralph Bernstein has been reporting on sports in Philadelphia for almost 30 years. That's longer than anybody lasted in the City of Losers since Connie Mack, but the strain is beginning to tell.

By RALPH BERNSTEIN Associated Press Sports Writer PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Confessions of a losing sports writer:

Joe Frazier was the last straw for my town. Philadelphia the city of losers, has nothing. The only winner in town is the guy who moves.

Writers covering the Philadelphia sports beat hold the National Collegiate Athletic Association, National Football League, National Basketball Association and National League records for covering losers. My fingers freeze at the typewriter when the home team wins. The only thing the City of Brotherly Love leads in is firings.

The Philadelphia Phillies last won a pennant in 1950 ... the Eagles in 1960 ... the 76ers in 1967, and then they traded and bungled their way to becoming the laughing stock of pro basketball ... the Flyers have never won a title, and were bounced in the first round the two times they stumbled into the playoffs ... the Blazers are new, but in the Philadelphia tradition—last.

The town even blew the bi-centennial celebrations for 1976, and the country was born here. Everywhere you travel, sports fans make jokes about Philadelphia sports teams: "The 76ers played the Milwaukee Bucks and all the Bucks fouled out in the first quarter. Philadelphia won in two overtimes."

The one thing we had was Frazier, the heavyweight champion of the world. He was the city's pride and joy.

Then it happened. Smokin' Joe had his flame extinguished by George Foreman. Each of those six times Joe went down, the statue of William Penn atop City Hall shuddered and groaned. Move over Phillies, 76ers, Eagles, Blazers. The city has another sports casualty.

The problem in this corner is that the losing syndrome appears to have rubbed off on my private life.

For example, my youngest son is the star of his junior high school basketball team. It hasn't won a game. He's barred the proud father from even being a spectator.

This ruboff even has affected my writing:

—Book on former pitcher Bobby Shantz. He broke his wrist, never had another good season.

—The Phillies of 1964 led the pennant race by 6½ games with 12 left. I signed to write a book on ace pitcher Jim Bunning. Team lost next 10 and blew the flag.

—Co-authored a book with college basketball coaching great Ken Loeffler. He left a national champion to coach at Texas A&M, developed ulcers, had his stomach removed, quit coaching.

—Suggested an article to Curt Simmons. Next day he sliced off a toe with his power mower.

—Suggested a book to Robin Roberts. He never had another winning season.

—Wrote an article on Eagles coach Jerry Williams. He was fired a week later.

—Wrote an article on Phillies' pitcher Rick Wise. He was traded before it hit the street.

It's been a strange life, covering the Philadelphia sports beat. Last summer, I covered two Phillies' games in which I didn't see the winning run scored. As a matter of fact, in true Philadelphia tradition, none of the men covering the game knew how it was won. In the first game, Phillie owner Bob Carpenter called a news conference in the top of the 10th inning to announce he'd fired general manager John Quinn. The winning run scored while the reporters were in Carpenter's office. The next day, new general manager Paul Owens held a press conference that started the same time as the game. Yep, the only run was scored in the top of the first inning. None of us saw it.

That's the way it goes in the Philadelphia press boxes. There is a saying among the boys—"Only in Philadelphia."

The past 10 days have produced a succession of typical Philadelphia stories. Derek Sanderson was given $1 million to leave town by the Blazers of the WHA ... The Phillies handed Steve Carlton $165,000 to remain ... Roy Rubin got fired because he couldn't make the worst team in pro basketball a winner ... They gave Kevin Loughery, a guy who has never coached a minute in his life a 2½-year contract to guide the 76ers ... Owner Leonard Tose, a trucking magnate made himself general manager with-

New Commercial Banks Approved

RALEIGH (AP) — Four new commercial banks in North Carolina were approved by the state Banking Commission Thursday, and state Banking Commissioner Frank Harrelson said it was the most he could remember in one day.

"Usually it has been one at a time," Harrelson said. "Perhaps as many as two have been approved in a day."

The new banks are the LaFayette Bank & Trust Co. and the Cumberland Bank, both at Fayetteville, and the Forsyth Bank and Trust Co. and United Citizens Bank, both of Winston-Salem.

Harrelson had originally recommended approval of LaFayette, Forsyth and United Citizens but had recommended against Cumberland. This was because under the original proposal the stock would have been closely held. However, Cumberland amended its proposal to broaden the bank's ownership and won commission approval.

The banks' spokesmen told the commission that their initial stock offerings of 250,000 shares each were over-subscribed. Forsyth said it will have 1,600 stockholders; United Citizens 1,807; LaFayette nearly 3,000 and Cumberland 1,890.

The commission went into executive session to consider the applications and then voted in public and gave each of the new banks unanimous approval.

Some concern was indicated about the banking situation in Fayetteville since a new national bank was authorized for the city a few days ago. This means there will be three banks opening there almost simultaneously.

However, the Cumberland Bank offered the testimony of Robert M. Leary of Raleigh, an urban and regional planning consultant. He testified that Fayetteville's economy is "vibrant, diversified and growing" and can support new banking facilities.

Similar testimony was presented in behalf of the other three banks by expert witnesses.

Says Exploitation Killing Creativity

By BILL SAUL
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Song-writer-performer Don McLean, whose "American Pie" recording leads the list of Grammy Award nominees, says excessive exploitation has killed much of the creativity in popular music.

"That's one of the things I tried to say in 'American Pie,'" says McLean. "The spoilers are taking over everywhere. In the song, I just said goodbye to the America I dug."

His goodbye, the object of controversy because of the many interpretations applied to the lyrics, has sold 3.5 million singles and 1.5 million albums in this country.

The Grammy balloting put the hit up for best album, single record, song and male vocal. The winners will be announced March 3 in Nashville.

McLean, 27, describes himself as a pro with an amateur attitude, and says he's wary of full-blown, slick professionalism because of what he has seen it do.

"Lots of today's music isn't root music," McLean said in an interview. "To me it sounds like Tin Pan Alley — it's a slick trend folk music is in."

"In the song, I was trying to say what we're into now," he said. "It is a very mediocre time with few enlightened people and little genius. The pros are taking over and that stifles spontaneity."

This year, McLean has released another LP. It's called simply "Don McLean" and contains a cut called "Dreidel", which is getting much air play.

A Dreidel is a small top, and the songwriter says it tells the story of what happened to his life when "Pie" became well known.

"Dreidel is about the speed of my life, fragmented for awhile," he said. "I was twirling and whirling in a whirlpool of experience."

"I'm telling people to slow down."

Report Hirohito Likely To Visit United States

TOKYO (AP) — Emperor Hirohito and Empress Nagako are likely to visit the United States, Canada and Mexico for a goodwill tour this fall, according to a newspaper report published today.

The Imperial Household Agency and the foreign ministry, however, refused to confirm or deny the report today in the mass-circulation Mainichi Shimbun.

But an official of the agency said that the report "could be highly accurate" and that it would be a two-week visit if the Imperial couple is to cover all three North American countries.

The 72-year-old emperor has long been known to be hoping to visit the United States.

Not The Answer To Cold Starts

FINDLAY, Ohio (UPI) — Switching to premium grade gasoline is not the answer to the cold-weather starting problem for users of the regular grade, according to an oil company official.

Both grades are similarly "seasonized" at the refinery and capable of giving quick engine starts in cold weather, says W.E. (Mac) MacDonald, technical services manager for Marathon Oil Company. The major factors in hard starting in wintertime, he says, are motor oil viscosity and battery condition.

THE BOSS SAID: CHEW AND BLOW

LONDON (AP) — The chief inspector of weights and measures at Hounslow, a west London suburb, told his staff, "Blow bubbles at me."

He was investigating a small boy's complaint that his bubble gum didn't bubble and therefore contravened the Trade Descriptions Act.

The inspector sent out for a dozen packs of the same brand of gum, and after the chewing and blowing, decided that the gum did bubble.

Abortion 'Religious Dynamite'

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Despite the U.S. Supreme Court decision removing legal restrictions on early abortions, the question of their morality still remains dynamite in American religious convictions.

It is not simply a difference between religious groups, but runs explosively through all of them, Protestant, Jewish and Roman Catholic.

The official position of many Protestant denominations, along with that of the Roman Catholic Church, is strongly anti-abortion, despite exceptions of some theologians in both groups and some Protestant bodies.

Eastern Orthodox churches and orthodox Judaism also sharply oppose abortion, while reform and conservative Judaism have favored easing laws against it.

So sharp and sensitive are the differences over the matter that a cooperative organization of most major Protestant and Orthodox bodies, the National Council of Churches, has been unable — in four years of trying — to formulate a modern stand on it.

"The new permissiveness of the law confronts the churches with a greater, more urgent responsibility than before," Dr. R. H. Edwin Espy, general secretary of the council, said of the high court ruling.

"With the legal restraints removed, it is more essential that the religious dimensions be brought to bear to help people make a responsible decision, not only the pregnant woman, but doctors and all those involved."

Other religious leaders also said the court decision, although striking out legal barriers to abortions in the first three months, does not resolve the religious-ethical issue.

This simply is left up to the individuals, their consciences and the influence of their religious guides.

"One trusts in the decency and good sense of the American people not to let an illogical court decision dictate to them on...morality and human life," said John Cardinal Krol, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

While the matter now is left to individual choice, the conflict over it rolls on in religious circles, and among ethicists in biological sciences.

"Changing of laws does not change people's convictions about a practice," says Methodist theologian J. Robert Nelson, of Boston University.

The question has produced one of the keenest moral battles of the century. In numerous Protestant and Jewish bodies, it has brought about revisions of their former antiabortion stands.

At the heart of the struggle has been question of just when a human life begins.

Judeo-Christianity, emphasizing the sacred worth of each person, originally held that life began at conception and that a developing fetus thus constituted life as precious as after birth.

Modern genetics reinforced his view, contends Protestant moral theologian Paul Ramsey of Princeton University. "Genetics teaches us that we were from the beginning what we essentially still are in every cell."

Early Christianity and Judaism condemned abortion along with infanticide, both of which were permitted in ancient pagan societies.

But in modern times, amid rising concern for population control and women's rights, numerous Protestant groups have urged removal of legal prohibitions on abortion, leaving it to individual choice in early stages.

This position, taken by the Supreme Court, has been officially endorsed by the United Church of Christ, the United Presbyterian Church, the Lutheran Church in America and the United Methodist Church.

Other Protestants insist abortion be limited to cases endangering the mother's life or in cases of rape, incest or fetal deformity. Versions of this position have taken by Southern Baptists, the Episcopal Church, the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, the National Association of Evangelicals and the National Baptist Convention, a black denomination.

Blacks and other minorities in the churches generally have fought liberalized abortion policies, calling them genocidal.

Visitations Are Part Of Key 73

The churches of Greenville will send several hundred workers out into the community Sunday afternoon and next week in an effort to visit every family and give a Christian witness, according to John A. Moore of the Greenville Ministerial Association.

As they go, they will try to discover those families and individuals who are not members of any local church, or not enrolled in any Sunday School.

This visitation is part of a nationwide call to evangelism called Key 73. Some 140 Christian denominations in North America are participating together in this call to evangelism.

Plans for the Church Community Survey were outlined to the workers at an instructional meeting at Immanuel Baptist Church Thursday night by the Survey Committee appointed by the Greenville Ministerial Association.

A copy of the books of Luke and Acts from Good News for Modern Man will be given to each family by the survey worker. These books are the background scriptures that the National Committee of Key 73 has suggested for study this spring.

This is the first city-wide survey the Greenville churches have made in six years and it is the largest single visitation effort they have ever made. More than 1,000 people will have helped by the time the program is completed, Rev. Moore said.

LBJ Burial Reflected Things He Cared About

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer

STONEWALL, Tex. (AP) — The burial of former President Lyndon B. Johnson reflected the things he cared about: religious solemnity, military pagantry, deep-felt oratory and the gathering of good friends.

In near-freezing weather Thursday afternoon, a crowd estimated at 10,000 gathered outside a waist-high stone fence to get a better look at the 50-minute ceremony which took place in the family cemetery on the LBJ Ranch.

Hundreds of others stood across the Pedernales River to listen as the amplified eulogies of evangelist Billy Graham and former Texas Gov. John B. Connally echoed across the rain dampened pasture.

"He loved this hill country," said the Rev. Dr. Graham, resplendent in a dark robe edged near the neck in red.

The evangelist quoted the former president as saying, "I love this country where people know when you are sick, love you while you are alive, and miss you when you die."

Johnson, 64, was fatally stricken with a heart attack at the ranch Monday afternoon. He had had major heart attacks in 1955 and 1972.

His grave, filled at dark after the crowd had dispersed on foot and in buses and cars, was guarded throughout the night by four military policemen and two Secret Service agents, who sat in a car to avoid the cold.

Mrs. Johnson and the families of her two married daughters, Lynda and Luci, visited with friends afterwards at the ranch house, just up a narrow park road from the cemetery.

Johnson's body was borne back to the family cemetery after funeral services at the National City Christian Church in Washington, the capital's last farewell to the man who had served in the U.S. House and U.S. Senate and as vice president and president.

Johnson's body was flown back from Washington to Bergstrom Air Force Base, near Austin, aboard the big White House jet on which Johnson was sworn in as president Nov. 22, 1963, shortly after John F. Kennedy was assassinated.

Finally Gets A Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The man who was fired from his Air Force cost-cutting job after testifying about a $2-billion cost overrun on a huge transport plane today gets the public hearing he has sought for nearly four years.

F. Ernest Fitzgerald's hearing before the U.S. Civil Service Commission comes after Fitzgerald appealed his 1969 dismissal through the federal courts.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., views the firing of Fitzgerald from his more than $30,000-a-year job as "reprisal" for his testimony before the congressional Joint Economic Committee in November 1969.

In that testimony, Fitzgerald said he had discovered the giant C5A transport being built by Lockheed Aircraft Corp. would cost at least $2 billion more than Lockheed's contract stipulated.

Shortly after testifying, Fitzgerald was told he no longer had career tenure, a finding the Air Force later blamed on a computer error. Fitzgerald then was transferred away from giant weapons systems. Then Fitzgerald said he found cost overruns in an Air Force bowling alley in Thailand.

Eventually, through what the Air Force called a "reduction in force," Fitzgerald was removed entirely from federal employment. He has been seeking reinstatement and back pay through government channels and the federal courts ever since.

Osteoarthritis For Millions

NEW YORK (UPI) —About 10 million Americans have osteoarthritis severe enough to cause painful problems. Osteoarthritis is associated with aging and degeneration of joint tissues. It usually develops more slowly and is milder and less painful than rheumatoid arthritis, although it can end up producing pain and disability in some victims.

Medical authorities say this form of disease must be managed by the control of symptoms and the relief of strains on the affected joints.

IN THE OPINION OF THE COURT

Scriptures selected by the American Bible Society

Crime, drug abuse, sexual license, contempt for society — on all counts the situation is worse, not better. Why do we no longer hear much about juvenile and parental delinquency?

First, the more common evil becomes, the less it is called delinquency. Lower standards enough and there are no delinquents!

Second, it wasn't juvenile or parental delinquency that caused our plight. It was spiritual delinquency. Millions in our society set their spiritual standards at a level where such delinquency became custom.

The thing to do with an opinion like this is to REVERSE it. That can be done by a Higher Court — such as an aroused citizenry, seeking every spiritual opportunity and fulfilling every religious responsibility that its churches provide and teach.

The 'Worry Clinic' Avoid Raising Former 'Equal'

Dr. Dee's puzzle explains why many corporations bring in outsiders to fill top managerial positions! Those clergymen SHOULD have elected experienced pulpit preachers as bishops! But they didn't! Jesus was likewise ignored by his Nazareth neighbors!

By GEORGE W. CRANE,
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE W-510: Dr. Dee is a talented clergyman.

He attended the recent jurisdictional conference at Indianapolis of the United Methodist Church.

Two new bishops were elected at that 9-state session.

"But, Dr. Crane," he grumbled, "the active pastors wouldn't elect a man with wide parish experience.

"Instead, they promoted a college president to the bishopric and also a bureaucrat from the Home Office.

"Dr. Crane, you once described the active dental surgeon as a 'wet finger dentist,' meaning he actually handles a private practice instead of merely teaching or doing office work in a Board of Health Department.

"Well, why shouldn't the 'wet finger' preachers, who perform baptisms, funerals, weddings, build new churches, preach the Bible, and do other things that are the responsibility of a pastor, be elected bishops?"

Dr. Dee said that he was not a pastor, but a theologian, and that he was not a theologian, but a philosopher.

over their own heads.

For by contrast, it would then make them look either lazy or stupid, else why wouldn't they, too, be superior?

Thus, the 10 brothers of biblical Joseph of the "Old Testament" disliked him so intensely because of his egotism, plus the fact he was the favorite son, that they first plotted to kill him.

His jealous brothers finally sold him to the Egyptian slave traders and then stained his coat in blood, so they could make their father think a lion or bear had killed Joseph.

A tall young clergyman in Florida recently expressed disdain to Mrs. Crane and me over the fact people often told him he looked like Billy Graham!

And I have likewise heard priests verbally knife Bishop Sheen in the back, just because he was a superb TV clergyman.

Same holds true of Dr. Peale, Oral Roberts and other national revivalists who inspire tens of thousands.

"Bishop Sheen has stooped to sensationalism," is one of the typical barbs used by envious prelates.

Don't be discouraged, therefore, when your own colleagues damn you by faint praise or blackball you via a secret ballot!

It is only the trees that bear the big, ripe apples that are bombarded by sticks and stones!

So those clergymen at Indianapolis (who really should have elected experienced pulpit preachers as bishop) refused to elevate one of their own kind to that high office, because they feared thereafter they would be regarded as playing "second fiddle" to a former equal!

Bought Church Due Childhood Memories

ALLEGAN, Mich. (AP) — One of the fondest memories of her childhood, Gay Hayes says, was skipping across a dirt road every Sunday to worship in a small, white church.

She enjoyed it so much, Mrs. Hayes, 57, says that last year when her congregation deserted the 89-year-old building for a new structure, she bought the church.

"I want to maintain and preserve it as a shrine. That little church has a lot of memories," says Mrs. Hayes, who belongs

The church is nestled amid crumbling farmhouses and tall trees. It seats about 100 and has "very hard" pews. It was built in 1883 when Swedish settlers moved into the area to till Western Michigan's rich farm land. It cost the Swedes $1,000 to build and another $25 for the land.

The tiny sanctuary shows its age. But it doesn't matter to Mrs. Hayes. "I'm not going to renovate it or anything. Just clean it and keep it up."

Christ's Diagnosis

Jesus gave the answer when he stated that a prophet is not without honor, save in his own country and in his own house!

Christ uttered that diagnosis when his jealous neighbors in Nazareth ridiculed his ability.

The Bible says Jesus could perform no miracles in Nazareth because of their disbelief!

For they derided him as being one of their own sort, reared in a local carpenter's home.

What means what? Merely that your peers resent promoting one of their own kind

Opening lead: Queen of ♠
When South responded with two clubs over North's opening one heart bid, the latter was alerted to slam possibilities inasmuch as he held all the controls in every other suit. He accordingly made a jump shift to three diamonds which is unconditionally forcing to game and sets the stage for a relaxed investigation for bigger things.

South temporized by showing his secondary suit—spades and North indicated his mild fit by taking a preference for clubs. South took charge at this point and proceeded directly to six clubs inasmuch as he held the top controls in both black suits.

West opened the queen of spades and declarer ruffed in dummy. The five of clubs was led at trick two and East played the king. South put up the ace, however, he was not happy to see the high club honor appear; it seemed likely that West held all the missing trumps which meant that declarer was in danger of losing two trump tricks on the deal.

The ace and king of diamonds were cashed, followed by a small diamond which South ruffed with the seven of clubs as the opponents followed suit. The ace of spades came next and then a spade was trumped with the six of clubs. A small heart was led to the jack and then back to the ace and king which permitted declarer to dispose of his remaining spade, and both West and South were down to nothing but trumps.

A heart was led from dummy and declarer who was left with the Q-9-8 of clubs, trumped with the eight. West still retained the J-10-4 of clubs and tho he could overruff with the ten, on the return he was obliged to surrender the last two tricks to his opponent.

South's only loser on the deal was the ten of clubs.

Artist Couple Is Preparing Medical Wax Museum

By PAULINE WALLE
Post-Bulletin Writer
ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) — Medical figures from Hippocrates to the Mayos are being molded in wax by a young self-taught artist and his wife, who will display them in a downtown Rochester building.

The goal of Henry and Andrea Geving is to put the 36 figures together by May 1, and with enough 18-hour days, they may make it. Geving, 26, uses the couple's home in nearby Byron as a studio, and that means the basement and garage. A native of New Richmond, Wis., Geving was a cinematographer in Hollywood when he took up art as a hobby. He'd had no formal college or art education. "I got the bug for doing realistic things and began to wonder about a museum," he recalls. Three years ago, after the two married, he adds, "we gave up the money and glory of Hollywood" and moved to the Midwest. While working at a television station in Waterloo, Iowa, Geving made frequent trips to a Springfield, Ill., museum to fashion a wax scenario of Abraham Lincoln's life.

The idea for a medical museum struck him nearly a year ago, when he was an outpatient at Mayo Clinic. He got the blessings of the clinic, so long as he didn't commercialize the city's rich medical history. The medical greets the Geving's are molding and piecing together will appear in groups of two or three. Even props are carefully researched, and Geving is building a pegged oak trunk to make one setting more authentic. Geving learned how to create heads from clay, making a mask of molding compound. He applies plaster of paris and pours hot wax into that for lifelike expressions. Andrea finishes the heads, poking two or three hairs at a time into the scalp with a fine tool and sealing the pores. Each "coiffure" takes 40 hours. Ball-and-socket limbs will make for more natural poses when figures are clothed by Twin Cities costumers. Geving's brother Mark painstakingly lays piece after piece of special paper, building up papier mache torsos. Geving gets some money from the Lincoln museum and is in a partnership with an investor who will return a percentage of the gate. Among those who will appear in the new museum are Charles and Will Mayo, co-founders of the clinic. Geving has also done a bust of Dr. Charles Roland, chairman of the clinic's department of biomedical communications, who is consultant for the project. Roland says he is amazed at Geving's talent. Andrea, who has been a part-time nurse at St. Mary's Hospital, is quitting soon, "because no way can I be a nurse, housewife and artist's assistant if we're going to finish in time." Geving has long-range plans, too, like about 10 more museums in various places in the next 25 years.

Surgery For Geo. Wallace

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace was scheduled to undergo surgery early today to improve abdominal drainage impaired by a bullet which injured his spinal cord in an assassination attempt last May.

Elvin Stanton, a Wallace aide, said the surgery was not mandatory but was aimed at relieving some discomfort experienced by the partially paralyzed governor.

Dr. George H. Myers Jr., professor and director of urology at the University of Alabama Medical Center here, was to perform the operation, the sixth for Wallace since he was shot while campaigning for the presidential nomination in Laurel, Md., May 15.

Wallace, who is paralyzed from the waist down, was admitted to University Hospital Thursday after returning from Washington where he attended funeral services for former President Lyndon Johnson, who died Monday.

The operation was recommended about three months ago to correct a problem with Wallace's prostate gland.

"The operation is being done to improve urinary drainage, which has been hampered as a result of his spinal cord injury," Stanton said.

Wallace's doctors said the operation could have been necessary even if the governor had not been shot. They said it was not considered a serious operation.

Will Request Clinic Funds

RALEIGH (AP) — Human Resources Secretary David Flaherty says he plans to ask the General Assembly for increased funds to help finance local mental health clinics.

Flaherty told the House Mental Health Committee Thursday that the "local programs are the future of mental health."

During an appearance before the committee, Flaherty also commented that there had been "tremendous improvements" recently at Cherry Hospital at Goldsboro which came under fire last year as the result of a State Bureau of Investigation probe.

Flaherty made the observation after Rep. Nancy Chase, D-Wayne, praise Cherry Hospital's handling of geriatric patients.

"I have never seen a happier group of people in my life," Mrs. Chase said of the patients.

The human resources secretary also promised the legislators that some of the doctors in the state Mental Health Department's state headquarters soon are going to be moved "out into the institutions where they can be of service."

He made the comment after being asked about charges made in the election campaign last year that the department's Raleigh staff is top heavy.

Asks Disclosure Of Finances

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert Byrd today introduced a bill to require everyone on the federal payroll making more than $24,000 a year to detail their finances for the public.

The West Virginia Democrat said the bill is necessary "to eliminate the public climate of skepticism surrounding the integrity and performance of our national leaders."

Byrd cosponsored a similar measure last year. But his attempt to get the measure out of the Senate Rules Committee to the full Senate was defeated.

Byrd's bill would require a detailed, public disclosure for everyone in government paid at the comparable level of GS16 or higher. This would apply to some 66,000 employees from the Supreme Court to the Congress to the military.
