With Treaty Signing, Cease-Fire Saturday

Vietnam War Officially Ends

By GERARD LOUGHRAN

PARIS (UPI) — The United States, North and South Vietnam and the Viet Cong signed the treaty Saturday bringing an uncertain peace to Vietnam after a generation of war which killed 2.3 million persons and divided the United States as no other issue in its history except its own Civil War, a century earlier.

The guns were ordered to fall silent in Vietnam at 8 a.m. Sunday (7 p.m. EST Saturday).

While Communist demonstrators on the Avenue Kleber outside Paris' baroque International Conference Center shouted in triumph, the four signatories signed the peace settlement, toasted it with champagne and then hurried away without public handshakes.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers signed for the United States. The signing was in two sessions, morning and afternoon. Half a world away, the war went on the Vietnam battlefields until virtually the moment of the cease-fire, hours later.

At Orly Airport after the signing and minutes before taking off for home, Rogers noted the cease-fire was to take place during his flight, "and very soon thereafter we have every reason to hope, and we do expect, that the cease-fire will extend to all Indochina. Then, there will be no major fighting in any part of the world."

Provides A Fragile Peace

The settlement provides a fragile peace and international control machinery intended to build a lasting peace. The last 23,700 American soldiers in Vietnam will be withdrawn within 60 days and 591 American military men held prisoner by North Vietnam— some for up to eight years—will be released in the same period.

The Communists handed over a list of the 591 POWS to the U. S., and in Washington, the Pentagon started preparations to notify their families.

The treaty called for internationally supervised free elections in South Vietnam and for no more North Vietnamese men and arms to enter South Vietnam.

Rogers, Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam of South Vietnam and the Communist foreign ministers, Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh of the Viet Cong and Nguyen Duy Trinh of North Vietnam, penned their names a total of 212 times on the inchhigh wad of leather-bound documents making up the "Agreement On Ending War And Restoring Peace."

All four signed in the morning session lasting 19 minutes. Only Rogers and the North Vietnamese signed a second set of documents in the 10-minute afternoon session. They included an agreement by which the United States will lift its naval blockade and demine North Vietnam's harbors.

They did not speak to each other in the International Conference Center, nor were there any handshakes for the cameramen. Rogers' remarks at the airport were his only public statement during his 18 hours in Paris.

The first session, lasted from 11:08 a.m. to 11.27 a.m. (5:08 a.m. to 5:27 a.m. EST). Rogers smiled slightly; at his side of the round table, 26 feet in diameter, Trinh grinned, and Mrs. Binh signed and then looked down, plucking at her traditional Vietnamese anklelength dress. Lam dropped his signing pen quickly when he finished.

The public diplomacy was warmed only by a wave when Rogers and Trinh alone met for the second signing of more peace papers in the afternoon.

After the morning signing session, the leaders and their aides walked into a sideroom of the Center, used during the World War II Nazi occupation of Paris as a Gestapo headuarters. Beaming French hosts— who made their own peace with Vietnam 19 years ago—poured out Piper Heidsieck champagne for the four parties.

First Time Together

It marked the first time since Vietnam peace talks opened here four years and 11 days ago that Communist and nonCommunist sides drank together, the French said.

There was no fanfare, no band, no victory statement in the Avenue Kleber outside the Center. From across the avenue, massed behind police who used their white gloves as if they were velvet, a crowd of some 3,000 —backed by a Communist pep squad — chanted Communist slogans ("Nixon has given way").

The pep squad booed and nissed Rogers' arrival for the first session. They cheered Trinh and Mrs. Binh as "victors."

Trinh and Mrs. Binh, in Communist style at any such occasion, waved back. They even waved at each other going from the morning signing into the champagne toasting.

Watching Rogers at the afternoon signing was his wife, who unexpecteldy arrived at her husband's side. Outside, with the Communist chanters gone, Rogers and his wife paused 30 seconds to wave at photographers.

At the ceremony, beginning at 3:48 P.M. (9:48 a.m. EST), Rogers and Trinh exchanged not a single word before affixing their signatures. They nodded and began signing with the six pens provided by the French hosts.

Rogers signed 40 times with no evident emotion. Across the table, the short Trinh smiled between signatures. Several times he chatted with aides. Both men signed their names a total of 72 times in the two ceremonies.

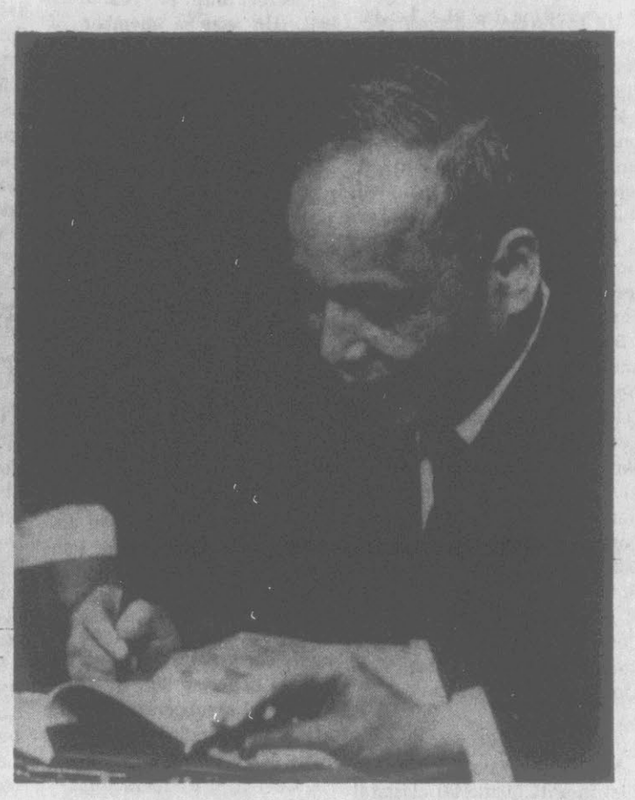

Smiled Together

Afterwards, Trinh clasped his hands on the table, pursed his lips and looked directly across the stretch of green felt at Rogers. They stared at each other for eight seconds. Then they rose, waved once at each other and smiled slightly, then walked out.

Minutes minutes later the grand salon where peace was made was empty. Rogers left by one door. Trinh walked out another.

Rogers, who before the morning signing spent an hour behind closed doors in Elysee Palace with President Georges Pompidou of France, left the Center for the airport.

Draft Halt Is Announced

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A few hours after the Vietnam cease-fire was signed in Paris, Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird announced Saturday an immediate halt in the draft — except for doctors and dentists —and future reliance on volunteers to fill the ranks of the armed forces.

"The all-volunteer era — which our commander-in-chief, President Nixon, has promised the American people —is upon us," Laird said in a message to high Defense Department officials five months before Nixon's June 30 deadline for zero draft calls.

"With the signing of the peace agreement in Paris today, and after receiving a report from the secretary of the Army that he foresees no need for further inductions, I wish to inform you that the armed forces henceforth will depend exclusively on volunteer soldiers, sailors, airmen and Marines," he said. "Use of the draft has ended."

Laird's order cancelled his earlier plan to order draft calls for 5,000 men in the four months of March through June. There were no draft calls for January or February.

The indefinite suspension of the draft, barring a national emergency, means that the last draftees apparently will be the 2,500 who were inducted in December for two years of active duty. They were the last of 51,800 who were drafted last year.

At the height of the Vietnam War buildup in 1966, draft calls reached a peak of 364,000 men. Except for a 13-month lapse after World War II, the draft has been a continuing and worrisome fact of life for millions of American young men since 1940.

The President's conscription authority under the Selective Service Act expires anyway on June 30, his target date for conversion to an all-volunteer armed force. But because the law itself is permanent, local draft boards will continue to operate, and 18-year-olds still will be required to register for the draft and to report for preinduction physical examinations.

Pentagon sources said there was no plan to ask Congress to extend the President's draft authority past June 30, an idea that got a cool reception at the Capitol last year. The annual draft lottery to establish the order of call will continue, however, in the event there is a national emergency and Congress again authorizes a draft.

Pentagon officials said there were no plans now to draft medical personnel, but Laird retained that option because of the traditional difficulty in attracting highly paid health professionals into uniform without the draft.

Shooting Up To Last Minute

By KENNETH F. ENGLADE

SAIGON, (UPI) — The Vietnam war, which cost the United States nearly 46,000 combat deaths and 12 years of turmoil at home and abroad, came to an official end Sunday at 8 a.m. Saigon time (7 p.m. EST Saturday).

A cease-fire accord signed in Paris Saturday by the United States, South Vietnam, North Vietnam and the Viet Cong went into effect on a bright and sunny morning.

But the shooting went on right up to the last minute. It was likely to be ignored on some battlefields. And though American combat involvement in Vietnam was supposedly at an end, observers predicted civil war in Vietnam was not.

U.S. fighter-bombers and helicopters flew their final missions Saturday. U.S. military advisers with Vietnamese units were ordered to avoid combat.

There are 23,700 U.S. troops still in Vietnam, where 45,933 Americans have been killed in action since 1961.

Communists infiltrated nine villages in the Central Highlands Saturday night, field reports said.

Fighting raged throughout the night around Tay Ninh, 50 miles northwest of Saigon, which the Communists seized briefly Saturday and the lost again at nightfall.

Barely two hours before the cease-fire was to go into effect, 20 rounds of Soviet-built 122mm rockets hit in and around the big allied air base at Tan Son Nhut on the outkskirts of Saigon. First reports said one South Vietnamese civilian was killed and 20 injured.

There were no immediate reports of American casualties.

President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam went on nationwide television at 8 a.m. and said, "Today the Communists are forced to accept a cease-fire on the way to peace."

By Thieu's order, bells, drums, gongs and cymbals rang throughout South Vietnam at the moment of the cease-fire to mark "this historic day." But there were few other signs of celebration.

Two likely spots for continued shooting despite the cease-fire were the district (county) town of Cai Lay, 46 miles south of Saigon, and the provincial capital of Tay Ninh, 50 miles northwest of the capital.

Tay Ninh had long been coveted by the Communists as a regional capital following a cease-fire. They made an all-out attempt to take it Saturday but the province chief said they were driven out at nightfall.

While the Communists made a last-minute push around the country, American troops rushed toward disarmament, flying their last tactical air strikes of the war and taking the guns off their fighter helicopters.

Huge B52 bombers roared up from Guam Saturday night into the skies on their last missions to over South Vietnam. Nine B52s in formations of three took off from the base at 6 p.m. (8 a.m. EST) for their last mission of the day. At about the same time, another 27 were coming in apparently from missions in South Vietnam.

Lt. Col. Delbert G. Ranney, 40, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, made the last Marine tactical air strike on the war, dropping a specially painted red, white and blue 500-pound bomb against a suspected Communist position.

At Bien Hoa, rocket hardened Marines dived for the floor, spilling coffee and overturning chairs, when a B52 strike hit nearby.

Also at Bien Hoa, Marine fighter pilots showed exceptional enthusiasm for flying their last bombing strikes against the Communists despite the chances of being shot down on the last day of the war.

"We are still socking it to 'em," said Capt. Steve Sunderman, 29, of Long Beach, Calif., soon after he dropped 16 500-pound bombs on the Communists.

Families Get Word First

By EDWARD K. DELONG

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. military officers, dressed in crisp uniforms, began visiting the families of American servicemen missing in Southeast Asia late Saturday to tell them if their sons, husbands and brothers had been identified by the Communists as prisoners of war.

Pentagon officials said North Vietnam and the Viet Cong handed over "several lists" of prisoners in Paris, roughly six hours after signing of the Vietnam cease-fire agreement early Saturday.

For the families of the missing in action it was the moment of judgment, long coming for many, of the fate of their loved ones.

The first word that the lists had been given to U.S. diplomats was flashed to the Pentagon at 2:13 p.m. EST in a telephone call from U.S. Air Force Brig. Gen. Russell Ogan, deputy director of the "Project Homecoming" prisoner return program, over a direct line from Paris.

"The call said we have the list and then he began to read us the names," said Defense Department spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim. "It was a phone call of almost three hours duration."

A few minutes later, a teletype machine in the Pentagon War Room where the Project Homecoming command post is located, began printing out the same list of names. The teletype message from Paris ended shortly before 5:30 p.m. EST.

The word to the first of the families was dispatched almost immediately.

None of the names was made public. Officials said they probably would not be before Sunday at the earliest.

The anxiety of the moment for MIA and POW families was summed up by Mrs. Elizabeth E. Bedinger of Philadelphia, whose son, Navy Lt. Henry J. Bedinger has been thought to be a prisoner: "This is the most trying time for all of us who have been waiting so long."

It was not known how many names were on the Communists' lists.

Then the notification started. Friedheim said the first family got its good news about 5:30 p.m.

'Have It In Writing'

The Consumer's Best Protection

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

A local couple purchased a used mobile home in November with the understanding that the dealer would make any repairs needed by the time they were ready to occupy it.

On Dec. 1, they moved in even though the repairs had not been completed, because the lease on their apartment had expired. No repairs have been made since, despite repeated telephoned requests to the dealer, the couple says.

This case brings up the question: what possible recourse does the local consumer have when he feels he has been unfairly treated on any business transaction?

Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association manager Harold Creech confirms that there is no Better Business Bureau here, with no hope in the foreseeable future for getting one started.

What will the Chamber of Commerce itself do for a complainant? "If the merchant in question is a Chamber member, we'll go to him and try to straighten out the situation," Creech said. "If not, there's nothing we can do."

Of course, the matter can be taken to court, but the complainant must be willing to pay the cost of his attorney plus court costs if the court does not find in his favor.

A complaint that would be involved in interstate commerce, such as one against a traveling salesman who works in more than one state, could be dealt with through the Federal Trade Commission. A disagreement over an item purchased because of mail solicitation might be turned over to the U.S. Postal Inspector's office. The federal Office of Consumer Affairs, headed by Virginia Knauer, can also deal with individual complaints.

Probably the most easily accessible aid for the consumer who feels he has a valid case against a merchant (whether it's a local dealer of a huge corporation) is to contact the Consumer Protection Division of the North Carolina Attorney General's Office.

Eugene Hafer of the Consumer Protection division gave in a telephone interview the following advice to anyone wishing to avail himself of the Division's services:

"Know you have a valid case.

"Bring us everything you have in writing. If there is any kind of written contract, we need a copy of it.

"Usually," he went on, "there is nothing in writing and this is why the situation has developed. If I had one bit of advice to any consumer, it would be—Find out the cost ahead of time. Find out what is being done or what is being promised. And be sure you have it in writing. No matter how 'peculiar' it makes you look at the time to demand it in writing, do it."

"Be sure you have made adequate effort to communicate with the merchant yourself. And be sure you have dealt directly with the manager or the head of the department that should offer the service you are requesting. Otherwise, it may be that you request has been lost or misdirected.

"Keep a record of all communications concerning your complaints—duplicates of letters and written notation of phone calls and visits."

For the person who has nothing in writing at the point he decides he'd like to use Consumer Protection's services, Hafer suggests:

"Write a letter and send it by Registered Mail to the merchant, stating exactly what it is you feel should be done and referring to your previous attempts to communicate with him. You may want to tell him that understand the Consumer Protection Division will look into any case in which such a request is made. State a length of time in which you would like some response. If noe is forthcoming after the allotted time has elapsed, write another letter to him saying virtually the same thing, but telling him that a duplicate letter is being sent to the Consumer Protectio Division. The Division will then send you forms on which to state your complaint and subsequently will contact the merchant."

Asked whether a letter, a phone call, or a visit would be most effective in obtaining Consumer Protection's services, Hafer said, "We can respond most easily to a letter, either one directed to us but to no specific member of our staff or a copy of one sent to the merchant in question like the one I just outlined.

"Of course, our doors are always open to visitors. We suggest that if you are coming to Raleigh to see us you come armed with all the written material you have on the subject.

"We cannot do much during a phone call, except suggest that you either write or visit us.

"If a person honestly feels he has exhausted every avenue of communication and has got nowhere, we hope he will contact us," Hafer said. "Usually we can obtain the desired result or we can find out from the merchant a reason for the delay or failure to provide the promised service or if indeed it was promised.

"We have not had the money in our budget so far to do much to remind the public we're here," he said, "but we hope to do more in the future. We are here to be a channel of communication for the consumer as well as to initiate judicial action when the public is being treated dishonestly."

Actor Robinson Dead At Age 79

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor Edward G. Robinson, famous for his tough-guy film roles and expensive art collections, is dead at 79.

A family spokesman said the veteran of more than 40 plays and 112 films died Friday of cancer at Mt. Sinai Hospital. His wife, Jane, was with him.

Edward G. Robinson

Funeral services are scheduled for 2 p.m. Sunday at Temple Israel, with burial in New York on Monday. The family spokesman said actor Charlton Heston, who costarred in Robinson's most recent film, "Soylent Green," will deliver the eulogy during services here.

Though famous for his sinister gangster portrayals, Robinson played that role in only about 10 of his films.

His portrayal of a mobster in the film "Little Caesar" made him a star, but other memorable roles were the patient scientist in "Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet" and the hard-driving managing editor in "Five Star Final."

Off the screen, he was known as a quiet art collector and political liberal who could converse in six languages.

In 1962, he suffered a heart attack on an African movie location and was hospitalized for three weeks. The stumpy, thick-lipped actor dismissed the seizure as a "heart episode" and said of it:

"It was a rude affront. It's one of those stumbling blocks that you encounter along the way. The only thing to do is to kick it aside and keep on going."

Born of Romanian-Jewish parents in Bucharest as Emanuel Goldenberg, Robinson came to the United States at age 10 in 1903.

The actor was educated in New York, studying at the American Academy of Dramatics Arts and taking courses in arts, languages and philosophy at Columbia University and New York City College.

In the late 1920's, he appeared in his first movie, a silent film called "The Bright Shawl."

He came to Hollywood in 1930 and appeared in hits such as "The Hatchet Man," "Barbary Coast," "Kid Galahad," "The Last Gangster," "Tampico," "Night Has a Thousand Eyes" and "The Stranger."

Robinson and actress Gladys Lloyd were married in 1927. Their son, Edward G. "Manny" Robinson Jr., was born in 1933.

They were divorced in 1956, and the actor married New York dress designer Jane Adler two years later.

Naish Is Dead

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — J. Carroll Naish, an Irishman who played roles ranging from Mexicans to Charlie Chan in a film career of more than 30 years, is dead at 76.

Naish, bedridden with emphysema for most of the last two years, died Wednesday in Scripps Memorial Hospital, a family member said.

He acted in more than 250 movies and twice was nominated for Academy Awards, but perhaps he was best known as the excitable Italian in the 1950s television comedy series "Life with Luigi."

J. Carrol Naish

"When I walk down the street, the people who stop me are the ones who remember Luigi," he once said.

Naish, who was born in New York, played a potpourri of characters, mostly villains, from foreign lands — Japan, South America, Arabia, Poland, India.

He played every dialect role "except my own," he once told an interviewer. "When the part of an Irishman comes along, nobody ever thinks of me."

Naish's films included "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," "The Crusaders," "Anthony Adverse," "Joan of Arc," "Beau Geste," "Black Fury" and "That Night in Rio." His Oscar nominations, both as best supporting actor, were for "Sahara" in 1943 and "Medal for Benny" in 1945.

Texaco Begins Rationing Oil

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texaco, Inc., the nation's largest marketer of oil products, has started rationing heating oil in four states—the first time oil has been rationed in the country since World War II—The Washington Post reported today.

Texaco either cut off or sharply reduced deliveried of No. 6 heating oil to customers in New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware and the Philadelphia region of Pennsylvania, the newspaper said.

The Post said Texaco also told its customers it would begin today to "allocate" heating oils in Massachusetts, where the company supplies 35 per cent of all heating oil sold in the state.

"I am appalled by these shocking developments," Massachusetts Gov. Francis W. Sargent said Friday, the Post reported.

The newspaper said that, while Texaco's action is hard to appraise, factories supplied only by Texaco might have to close down when their oil supplies run out.

The Post quoted an oil-industry spokesman as saying other suppliers cannot make up for the Texaco cutbacks. "Everybody is short of heating oil," the spokesman said.

The states most seriously affected by Texaco's action are New Jersey and Massachusetts, mainly because the company is a very large supplier in those states, the newspaper said.

Lejeune Hospital To House Viet POWs

CAMP LEJEUNE, N. C. (AP)—The U. S. Naval Hospital at the Camp Lejeune Marine Base, one of 31 facilities to receive returning American prisoners of war from Southeast Asia, has set aside an 18 bed ward.

Lt. Col. Lee Preble, base information officer, said Friday the hospital is trying to make available one room per man.

"Everything is new — beds, night stands, and lounges," said Preble. "They're as nice as anything you'll find at a military hospital."

Each room also has a color television set.

Preble said it is hoped families will be on hand to greet the returnees when they arrive, and he added that the base will do all in its power to accommodate relatives.

He said one of the first duties will be to arrange a private reunion.

It is not known as yet how many former POWs will be received at Camp Lejeune or when they will be arriving. Preble said Defense Department plans are to let returnees go to a hospital of their branch of service nearest to their home, or possibly to a hospital of their choice.

Preble said one other Marine base hospital has been chosen to receive the returning former prisoners. This one is at Pendleton, Calif.

Last To Die

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department said Saturday the last American serviceman to die in the Vietnam war probably would be Air Force Sgt. John O'Neal Rucker, of Linden, Texas. He was killed hours earlier during Viet Cong shelling at the Da Nang air base.

Unless another serviceman was killed before the cease-fire took effect at 7 p.m. EST Saturday, Rucker would be the final combat casualty in the war that has taken almost 46,000 American lives.

Rucker died of multiple fragmentation wounds, the Pentagon reported. Officials said no other details were immediately available.

Marijuana Smell?

OAKTON, Va. (AP) — Fairfax County police said Friday they pulled off a successful drug raid here, and came away with 20 pounds of marijuana, a "shovelful" of horse manure used to "cut" the marijuana, and a toaster oven apparently used to dry out the substance.

Commonwealth's Atty. Robert F. Horan Jr. said that dealers "usually use tea...when they cut marijuana, but in this day of consumer fraud, nothing surprises me anymore."

"Cutting" refers to adding another substance to the marijuana to increase the bulk amount available to sell.

A police spokesman said that in addition to the marijuana and the manure found in the raid Thursday night, about 1800 amphetamine tablets were recovered. Horan said it was the first time he had heard of manure being used to cut marijuana in this area, although he had heard of the substance being used in New York City.

Police said three men, all aged 21, were arrested in the raid, but their names were not disclosed because the investigation was continuing.

$200,000 Savings

RALEIGH (AP) — Human Resources Secretary David Flaherty says he hopes to save the state nearly $200,000 every two years by cutting in half the number of public information officers in his department.

"By reducing the number of public information officers by 50 per cent and centralizing the information program," Flaherty said, "we will not only make substantial savings but also have a more effective program."

Flaherty said efforts were being made to find other state jobs for the workers being displaced.

Veto Is Unconstitutional

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Supreme Court has ruled unconstitutional a law which empowered the state Medical Care Commission to veto new hospital facilities in North Carolina.

The ruling came in a case in which the Medical Care Commission denied the Aston Park Hospital at Asheville a certificate of need for a new 200-bed hospital.

The commission appealed to the high court from a ruling by Superior Court Judge Lacy Thornburg that the certificate of need provision was unconstitutional.

In its ruling, the commission had found that the Asheville area had adequate hospital facilities. It also said there was a possibility the new hospital would not be able to find sufficient personnel to man it.

The Supreme Court held that the certificate of need provision is unconstitutional because it "establshes a monopoly in the existing hospitals" and grants them "exclusive privileges" forbidden by the constitution.

In commenting on the commission's finding that the new hospital might not be a financial success, the Supreme Court said the constitution does not "permit the legislature to confer upon the Medical Care Commission the power of guardian to protect Aston Park from possible bad financial judgment.

To Protect Sources

RALEIGH (AP) — A bill introduced in the North Carolina House Friday is designed to enable reporters to keep their news sources confidential.

The bill was sponsored by Rep. A. Hartwell Campbell, D-Wilson, who operates a radio station at Wilson.

The bill provides that no newspaper, radio or television reporter "shall be competent to testify in any legal proceeding or trial, before any court or before a grand jury, or before any committee of the legislature or elsewhere the sources of any information procured or obtained by him ..."

Recuperating

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Gov. George C. Wallace, sitting in his wheelchair, rested Saturday as he recuperated from surgery at the University of Alabama Medical Center.

The surgery, Wallace's sixth operation since he was shot and partially paralyzed last May, was to correct an enlarged prostate gland and improve urinary drainage, doctors said.

"Gov. Wallace spent a restful night and continues in satisfactory condition," said Billy Joe Camp, Wallace's press secretary. He said Wallace was placed on a regular diet Saturday.

Wallace was allowed visits only from his immediate family and staff. It is not certain how soon he will go home.

Interchange Of People Discussed At ECU

John Lang, East Carolina University's vice chancellor of External Affairs and Dr. Kermit King, director of the ECU Office of International Studies met with two U.S. State Department officials here Wednesday to discuss the government's Inter-governmental Personnel Program.

The program provided by the recently enacted "Inter-governmental Personnel Act" permits the interchange of people between federal, state and local governments and institutions of higher education.

Dr. King, the former president of the University of Liberia came to ECU a year ago to direct international studies under this government sponsored program.

Sam Simpson, coordinator of the Agency for International Development's Participation in the "Inter-governmental Personnel Act" and Robert Wartholowitz, assistant coordinator for the agency toured the ECU campus. Simpson later explained that he hoped his agency can assist in other areas of activity at ECU.

"The program provides a vehicle for us to lend a variety of development expertise," he said.

No Political Motives

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Holshouser has told business executives that the management study of North Carolina state government they will make for him must be "free of political interference and with no political motives."

Holshouser made the statement at a meeting in Raleigh to which he called about 200 businessmen Friday to solicit their support in the study.

He asked them to donate between $1,000 and $5,000 to pay for the study and loan some of their top men to the study teams being organized by Winston-Salem banker Archie Davis.

Davis said the study would need $200,000 for consultant expenses and 68 executives to help analyze operations in government departments.

The consultant hired for the study is Warren King and Associates of Chicago. King told the group that his experience with similar studies in other states indicates that a savings of two to three per cent of the state budget would be realized if all the eventual recommendations are implemented.

In North Carolina, that would amount to about $100 million.

Davis, however, warned that it would be a mistake to think that state government can be run as a business, or that results will come overnight. He said it might take two years to fully implement the study's recommendations.

He said also that certain "inefficiencies" are built into state government as part of the system of checks and balances.

Navy Looks At Refuge For Sub Base Site

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Navy is considering a scenic wildlife refuge near here as a site for America's largest submarine base — but environmentalists vow strong opposition, claiming it would destroy one of Florida's last wilderness areas.

Battle lines were drawn last week when it was reported that the refuge in North Brevard County is one of three places being considered for the East Coast home port of the missilefiring Trident submarine fleet. The sites under study are Charleston, S.C., and St. Mary's, Ga.

The nuclear-powered Trident submarines, scheduled to be operational late in this decade, will be the largest in the world, more than twice the size of the Polaris and Poseidon submarines. Their nuclear-tipped missiles will be able to strike targets more than 5,000 miles away, nearly twice the range of the Poseidon.

The port selected would be home base to 25 Trident submarines, cover 7,000 acres and employ about 10,000 persons, according to Rep. Lou Frey Jr., who represents this area in Congress. Frey said the Navy expects to make a decision within a month or two. A West Coast port also will be selected.

Port Canaveral, adjacent to Cape Kennedy, already has been chosen as the staging area for Trident submarine test-launchings of the new missile, but is too small to be the home base for the fleet.

The site being considered in Brevard County is the Merritt Island Wild Life Refuge at the north end of the Kennedy Space Center and the adjacent Mosquito Lagoon, a large, picturesque body of water that is part of the Intercoastal Waterway.

The refuge already is owned by the federal government and is under jurisdiction of the Interior Department's Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife.

Extensive dredging and land clearing would be necessary if the Florida site were picked by the Navy.

Many political and business leaders and chamber of commerce officials have pitched in to help win the Trident port for the area. Environmentalists and some politicians are opposed

Karl Echhorn, president of the Indian River Audubon Society, said Mosquito Lagoon is the winter home to "tens of thousands" of waterfowl, and a port would "change the entire biosystem of the area."

Allan Cruickshank, a nationally known environmental expert, said "it would be a disgrace if one of the few remaining rich wilderness areas of Florida were destroyed."

Brevard Concerned Democrats, a liberal political organization, started a petition drive against a Brevard Trident port. It plans to send the signatures to the Pentagon, the Department of Interior and the Florida congressional delegation.

State Sen. William Gillespie of New Smyrna Beach, located just north of the proposed site, said he opposed it because it would endanger a National Seashore park proposal for the area and threaten the ecology of the region.

Scott Back To Work

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Former Gov. Bob Scott, who has been easing into civilian life for the past three weeks, goes back to work Thursday when the North Carolina Agribusiness Council Inc. opens its offices here.

His title, executive vice president, will be on the door of the council's offices in an executive park complex in northwest Raleigh. Scott says the title won't be meaningless.

"There's plenty to do," he said in an interview with Woodrow Price of the Raleigh News and Observer.

Scott says he's sure of two things: He won't be doing any lobbying, at least in the sense of frequenting the state Legislative Building, where the General Assembly is in session; and he won't be keeping any regular hours at the office. It'll be open, though, from 8 to 5 each day, Monday's through Fridays, with Mrs. Betsy Hinton in charge.

Mrs. Hinton has been working with Scott for more than 10 years. She became his secretary in 1962, when he was master of the State Grange, and stayed with him through two political campaigns and service as lieutenant-governor and governor of the state.

The Agribusiness Council was formed in 1969 but has not been very active up to this point. Wayne Corpening, a senior vice president of Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. and the chief organizer of the council, now serves as its president.

The council, he said, strives to represent agriculture, business and industrial groups on matters of common interest, to coordinate the efforts of these groups and "to help increase each group's awareness that a common interest does exist.

Viet Cease-Fire May Bring Solution To Deep Mystery

By RICHARD PYLE
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — A cease-fire across Indochina may bring the solution to one of the deeper mysteries of the war — the fate of a score of newsmen who vanished while covering the fighting.

Concerning 39 others, there is no mystery. They are dead, the victims of a mean war where a front seldom existed and the end could come in an aerial ball of flame or, just as easily, with the next step in a rice paddy or the next kilometer on a Cambodian highway.

The toll seems high; but perhaps is not, considering that 1,500 or more newsmen came from all over the world in the past decade to look at the Indochina war, some staying only a few weeks and some for years. The count of wounded among them has long since been lost, but it is in the hundreds.

The chief interest in this casualty list now centers on the missing — 19 in Cambodia since hostilities spread there in the spring of 1970 and one who disappeared in South Vietnam last year during the battle of Quang Tri.

Despite numerous private investigations and repeated appeals to the Communist side for information concerning the journalists, it is not known if any are alive; and some are regarded as almost certainly dead.

The Vietnam peace accord provides for the return of all foreign civilian, as well as military, prisoners and for a mutual effort to account for all of the missing and dead and, in the latter case, to recover bodies.

Hanoi always has denied any knowledge of the missing newsmen, possibly because to acknowledge their deaths or capture would be to admit the presence of its forces in Cambodia and South Vietnam. The North Vietnamese call it a problem for the local guerrillas.

There has been no result from a variety of approaches that included an official appeal by U Thant, then secretary-general of the United Nations; a U.N. General Assembly resolution expressing "grave concern" about the newsmen's fate, and a petition by more than 1,000 French journalists asking exiled Cambodian chief of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk to free those in captivity.

The missing include five Americans, the one in Vietnam and four others in Cambodia. The others are seven Japanese, four Frenchmen, a German, a Swiss, an Austrian and an Australian.

Most vanished in the chaotic early days of war in Cambodia after Sihanouk was overthrown in March 1970 and the Communist-led forces abandoned their tacit understanding with the Cambodians and seized large areas of the country.

The best known of those who vanished were Welles Hangen, a veteran NBC correspondent on special assignment; Sean Flynn, son of the late actor Errol Flynn, on freelance photo a signment for Time-Life; Dana Stone, a field-wise combat photographer filming the war for CBS, and Gilles Caron, a French photographer working for the Gamma Agency of Paris.

The disappearance of these men and the others has been surrounded by a variety of rumors, including reports — for which there is no conclusive proof — that they are dead. In some cases, interviews with farmers and other witnesses indicate the newsmen survived capture, and there are reports from defectors and others of some having been seen alive later.

The list of journalists killed in Indochina includes 14 Americans, seven French, four Japanese, three British, three Singaporeans, three Australians, two Vietnamese, a Canadian, an Indian and an Argentine.

The first to die was a naturalized American of Dutch birth, Peter R. Van Thie, a freelancer murdered by the Viet Cong in the Mekong Delta in 1965.

Four others died that same year, the year of the big American buildup; but the toll hit its yearly peak in 1968, when nine were killed.

George Syvertsen and Gerald Miller, American correspondent and producer respectively for CBS, were killed in a highway ambush in Cambodia with their Indian cameraman. Hangen vanished in the same incident, as did his soundman and two other CBS technicians.

Syvertsen was the first and only television reporter to be killed in the Indochina war — in some ways an amazing statistic considering the demands of the video medium for exposure to danger.

The last journalist to disappear in the war was Alex Shimkin, a Newsweek staffer who got caught in an enemy-held area of Quang Tri on July 12, 1972. He is presumed, but not known, to be dead.

The last known killed was William H. J. Cattell, alias James Gill, a British Marine deserter working as a freelance photographer whose body was found a month after he vanished during fighting near Quang Tri last June.

Nude Dancers In Teen Bar

By RICHARD SALTUS
Associated Press Writer

GARDENA, Calif. (AP) — At a newly opened bar being promoted as a gathering place for teen-agers, the strongest drink is raspberry juice — and the dancers are young, sexy and nude.

Because The Party serves no liquor, it is possible for a high school pupil (if he is over 18) to drop in for a glass of fruit juice on his way home and watch a naked girl his own age doing bumps and grinds.

It's perfectly legal. And, as manager Rocky Dugard, 25, puts it, "If that's what society wants, that's OK with me."

The Party is one of the first clubs to use this format to circumvent a recent state Supreme Court decision giving the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Board authority to limit nude or seminude entertainment in establishments holding state liquor licenses.

If no liquor is served, the ABC board is not involved, and nudity — unless it is found by a court to be lewd — can flourish.

Moreover, a youth who can't buy a drink in an ordinary bar until he is 21 can visit a juice-and-nudity place when he's 18.

The Party is a dimly lit, red-carpeted lounge dominated by a stage that projects among the tables. A bar runs along its edge, where customers can sit and watch the dancers, separated from them only by a low railing.

A prominent sign warns, "Refrain from putting your hands on the girls or you will be thrown out."

On a recent afternoon shortly after the club's opening, a few customers — ranging in age from the early 20s to the 50s — paid the $1 daytime cover charge and 75 cents apiece for a juice drink.

Two girls alternated between serving customers and go-go dancing to juke-box records.

Robin, a 19-year-old who declined to identify herself further "because my parents are what you'd call straight and they'd be freaked out," said she had been dancing nude only since the previous week.

"I was really scared the first night," she said. "My boyfriend came and watched all evening — I wouldn't have had the courage to do it if he hadn't been here."

A customer named Al, who said he was 28 and in the building business, said he liked looking at the dancers because he got married at 18 and "I like to see what other girls look like."

Although the club's advertising is aimed at 18-to-21-year-olds, Al said he believed the club would appeal most to older, married men.

"With all the free sex today, I don't think kids in high school or college would spend much time in here," he said.

Nixon's Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has told congressional leaders that his fiscal 1974 budget will total $268.7 billion, an increase of about $19 billion over spending for the current fiscal year which ends June 30.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield told newsmen of the fiscal 1974 budget after he emerged from a White House meeting Friday called to brief congressional leaders. The budget goes to Congress Monday.

Mansfield said the new budget would carry a deficit of about $12 billion, less than half of the current year's projected red-ink total of $25 billion.

The White House announced that Nixon would make a nationwide radio address Sunday at 6 p.m. to discuss the new budget and "its impact on the nation's economy and economic stability."

Official confirmation also was made Friday of White House plans to dismantle the White House offices of Economic Opportunity, Emergency Preparedness, Science and Technology and the National Aeronautics and Space Council in an effort to cut costs. Other agencies are to take up their duties.

Confirmation of the cutbacks, taken alongside Nixon's scheduled radio speech, heightened speculation that the White House is anticipating a battle in Congress this year over the budget.

That was supported further in a Nixon talk Friday to directors of the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia.

The Power Is In Lentz's Hands

It is a sure thing that if Gov. Holshouser's orders are followed, the Highway Commission will be operated considerably different from the past.

At a gathering of division and district engineers last week, the governor told them not to "take orders from anyone" but the Secretary of Transportation Bruce Lentz.

"If I hear anything to the contrary, heads will roll," the governor warned, "and it probably will be yours."

"As long as you're taking orders from him (Lentz) don't worry about your job. It's when you stop that you should worry."

Lentz, who is going to be a mighty powerful man under the new system, indicated that there would be changes in how the commission operates.

The major change was that highway commissioners would be serving primarily as an advisory group, providing input to the secretary and liaison with engineers.

"The commissioners have no authority over you," he said. "For the most part they understand this at this time. Your responsibility to these commissioners is to keep them informed. Everything is going to be above the table, and I expect all engineers to be professionals."

He also assured the career people that they did not have to fear for their jobs as long as they do their duties.

"I'm not interested in a person's political registration. I'm interested in whether a man can do a job."

This professional approach to highway planning and building is refreshing. It will take some time to determine how well it is working, however. If roads continue to be constructed where the most votes are to be garnered then we will have a pretty good idea that the political forces which have always dominated the allocation of road funds are still dominent.

If, on the other hand, the available funds are used creatively as a tool for development of our entire state we will know that the broad view of highway construction has prevailed.

The east has suffered for years from inadequate highways. We will be watching with interest this new concept of highway planning and construction.

A Risk In The Sudden Wealth

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — Imagine you've won the Irish Sweepstakes. What would you do with all that unexpected extra cash?

Go on a wild spending binge? Raise your standard of living? Reduce your debts and salt some away against the possibility of hard times ahead?

BRYAN HAISLIP

The current General Assembly is in a position somewhat analogous to a lottery winner. Tax collections beyond estimates, funds budgeted but unspent, and federal revenue sharing have piled up millions. What to do with the hoard presents the overriding issue for the session.

On the one hand, Gov. Jim Holshouser and key legislative leaders have proposed to use it for new and improved services.

On the other hand, the Advisory Budget Commission has recommended that a major share be dispersed in substantial tax cuts.

The fiscal questions are fraught with dangers greater than any other session in recent history has confronted, said Sen Thomas Strickland of Wayne.

Double-Barreled Hazard

He sees a double-edged peril:

1. Flush with money, the legislature could launch programs whose demands on the budget in coming years would exceed revenues and lead to tax increases or curtailed services.

2. Diverting what amounts to surplus funds to tax cuts would erode the state's revenue structure, weaken its ability to meet future needs, and leave it vulnerable in the event of a downward shift in the economy.

Like the lottery winner, the General Assembly must spend as wisely from a fat purse as from a lean one or face the reckoning of the future, Strickland observed. I hope we can act responsibly in meeting the issue of preserving North Carolina's traditional sound financial position," he said.

Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt and House Speaker Jim Ramsey, presiding officers from the legislature firmly in the hands of Democrats, have added their voices to caution against whacking away at taxes. How the lawmakers respond poses a crucial test of leadership.

Holshouser Asked Spending

Gov. Holshouser, the state's first Republican chief executive in 72 years, proposed new spending of some $313 million. He turned away from the easy choice of tax cuts, Holshouser told lawmakers, for the path of expanded services to citizens.

The governor's requests are likely to get critical attention, as the legislature ponders the unaccustomed dilemma of what to do with plentiful resources.

At the crux is the choice between tax reductions on one side, and enlarged spending (and for what purposes) on the other.

Some two weeks into the session is too early for a nose-count to gauge how lines are forming. Most vocal sentiment from legislators has seemed to oppose the total package of tax cuts offered by the budget commission, but many say privately the outcome is far from settled.

Lobbying Efforts Fueled

The budget commission's recommendations included repeal of the soft drink and cigarette taxes imposed by the 1969 legislature. That has served to fuel lobbying efforts by the affected industries.

Tom White, Kinston attorney and commission chairman when the recommendations were adopted, has made the legislative scene as representatives for the Tobacco Tax Council. White resigned from the budget group before the session convened.

As a further irony, White served as legislative liaison for Gov. Bob Scott for the session when the taxes were levied.

Another frequent visitor to the legislative halls is Sam L. Whitehurst, executive director of the N. C. Soft Drink Association. His group has engaged in a determined drive for repeal almost from the day the tax was enacted.

A number of lawmakers report they had calls from soft drink people back before the primaries. How many commitments for repeal before they came to Raleigh, and as a means of getting here, will have a bearing on the final decision. A large crop of freshmen makes it difficult to see what the line up will be.

The move to annual sessions may help the legislature find a way out of the money dilemma. Traditionally, the budget covers revenue and spending for two fiscal years.

Should the legislature decide to meet again in 1974, it could adopt a one-year budget and postpone the decision on spending some of the anticipated revenue.

Another alternative discussed would be to use cash, rather than a bond issue, to aid local units in school construction.

Peace Makes This A Much Brighter Day

Today is a far brighter day because the ceasefire has been signed halting hostilities in Vietnam. It is something that we have all waited for and prayed for over so many years.

It should mean a new era in the United States and we certainly hope that it is a new beginning for Southeast Asia.

We have had more than enough war for a decade. Now let us give peace a chance.

Credit Nixon's Overall Policy

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The Vietnam ceasefire was far more due to President Nixon's overall foreign policy, including his skillful exploitation of the Moscow-Peking schism, than to any sudden change either on the battlefield or in the Communist politburo of North Vietnam.

Whether the ceasefire now becomes a durable peace, as Mr. Nixon hopes, is open to very large questions indeed. Not open to question, however, is that the President's four-year effort to contrive an "honorable" exit for the U. S. was specifically made a part—and only one part—of his global grand strategy.

Thus, the Nixon handling of the Vietnam was in dramatic conflict with the late President Johnson's courageous but clumsy conduct of the war. In a burst of exuberance while visiting South Vietnam, Mr. Johnson talked of "nailing the coonskin on the wall." In contrast, Mr. Nixon from the start carefully limited the U. S. objective to a goal easily understood in Moscow and Peking: not the victory that the Johnson rhetoric seemed to glorify, but self-determination for South Vietnam.

Mr. Johnson's advisers, it is true, talked of "de-Americanizing" the war. But Mr. Nixon's men, particularly Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird, went much further with an immediate start toward "Vietnamization." In countless ways, the Nixon men advertised their policy as one certain to eliminate U. S. participation in the war. With the first withdrawal of U. S. troops in 1969, the fear that the U. S. was in Asia to stay began to disappear in Moscow and Peking.

Coupled with this was the President's insistence of what he called a policy of "linkage"—his threat that detente with the U. S. desired by both Moscow and Peking was out of the question without parallel progress toward an end of the war in Vietnam. That threat was pounded home by Dr. Henry Kissinger and other Nixon men on every conceivable occasion.

In the Soviet Union, it coincided with frightening economic problems at home and a desire to liquidate the results of World War II in Europe. In China, it coincided with a cataclysmic struggle for power between a faction headed by Prime Minister Chou En-lai, wanting detente with the U. S. out of fear of Moscow, and a pro-Soviet military faction headed by Lin Piao.

The quiet pressure on beleaguered Hanoi to stop its military conquest of South Vietnam grew more insistent when the full impact of the President's "Nixon Doctrine" reached the Communist capitals. The doctrine meant that Mrs. Nixon accepted the theory of ideological competition with Communism in Asia, Latin America and Africa, without

Strength For Today

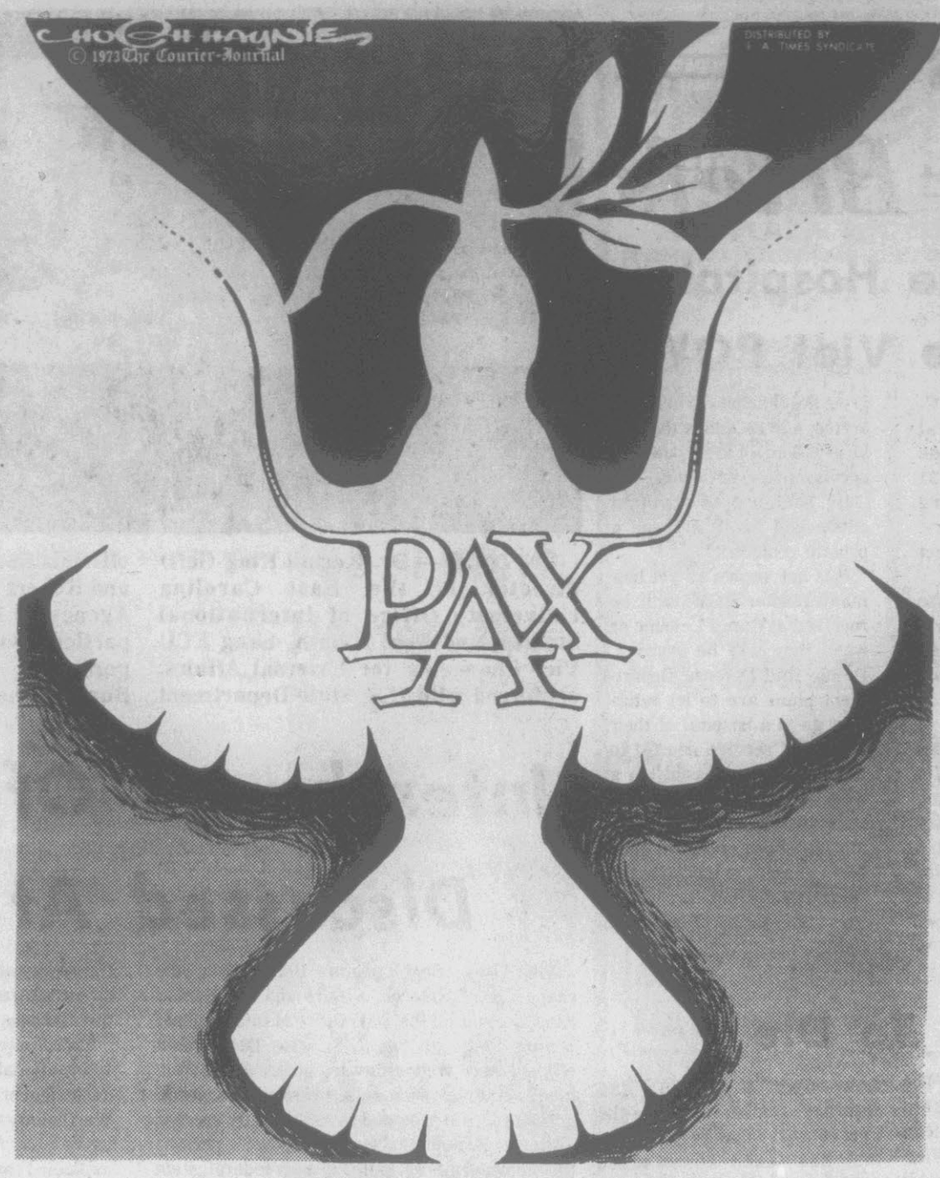

HE WOULDN'T BUDGE

A man who had reached his one hundreth birthday was being interviewed by a newspaper reporter. "You've seen a lot of changes take place in these years, I suppose," said the reporter. "Yep," said the old man, "I have, and I've opposed every one of them."

In a day of so many new things we can have a bit of sympathy for the crotchety old chap who planted himself in the pathway of progress and refused to budge. A lot of the new ideas are simply old fallacies revived. But there are a few new things suggested which are really worthy of our attention. All the principles which lie at the basis of life are precisely the same as they have always been, but new days make new adaptations necessary.

One of the failings of the present day is the fact that we have a lot of dead wood from the past cluttering up our techniques of government, business, education, church administration and theology. The people who refuse to budge an inch, who oppose everything new, are simply living in awed admiration of a past which never existed. The good old days of yore are an illusion. New situations demand new adaptations of old truths. We can't be "anti" all our lives and be happy. We can't oppose everything without opposing a lot of much needed progress.

Sunday Morning Notes

Tommy Snowden of Greenville was dining in a Howard Johnson's restaurant in Orlando, Fla. when he spotted a familiar face.

He soon realized that it was Charles Kuralt, the wandering correspondent for CBS news.

Being an old hand at the broadcast business, Snowden went over and introduced himself to Kuralt explaining that he was from Greenville, N. C.

"I'm from Charlotte," Kuralt said. "My mother went to East Carolina University when it was ECTC, but I suppose those are fighting words now."

Well coming from anybody but Charles Kuralt, they could be.

"Where have you been?" one man asked another in a local restaurant.

"Sick," the man replied.

"Flu?" the first man asked.

"Bird fever," the second man answered.

"That'll get you every time," the first man laughed.

ALVIN TAYLOR

For a lot of other people who were sick recently, it truly was the flu. The bug has been going around and striking anyone down who got in the way.

One fellow I know was looking pretty bad toward the middle of the day. Asked how he felt, he replied, "Terrible. I just wish I could go home and start the day again."

Oh well, it would probably be the same thing all over again.

An two pretty coeds were discussing how the flu bug had affected their social lives.

"After all that effort he finally asked me for a date," one lamented. Then with a pout. "He came down with the flu."

This area of the United States has been trying to increase its tobacco exports for a long time and we have made progress. Only recently we increased our foreign tobacco exports to the point we have reduced the surplus of tobacco in Stabilization.

In a letter, Senators Sam. J. Ervin Jr. and Jesse A. Helms and Rep. L.H. Fountain, from this the Second Congressional District, requested that the United State representatives to the association oppose the loan when it comes up for final consideration. The same treatment is to be given any future similar requests for loan.

The letter says: "We do not feel that the resources of the United States which are involved in the I.D.A. loans should be used to bring about new competition for the vitally important American tobacco export trade.

"American tobacco exports are important in terms of the foreign exchange generated and, of course, in terms of thousands of North Carolina farm families who depend on tobacco production for their livelihoods."

Our representatives in Congress took the proper steps in trying to cut off a loan which would be used to undercut North Carolina tobacco farmers, and this holds for other tobacco-raising states.

No topic or product has ever had such contradictory treatment. You cannot advertise cigarettes over television, you must put on the cigarette package that cigarettes are dangerous to health. Cigarettes are made of tobacco, and now there is a proposed $12 million loan from the International Development Association to be used by Zambia to increase its flue-cured tobacco exports.

You recall we taught Canada how to raise and cure tobacco. Now you are reading of another proposed loan to another nation. And it is all competition to American tobacco.

Dracula Is For Tourist

By GEOFFREY MILLER
Associated Press Writer

BUCHAREST (AP) — Feel like a blood-curdling holiday? The Romanians are planning to put on a show in the dungeons of Dracula's castles and make you shriek with terror.

It is this Communist country's latest idea for earning dollars and bolstering the economy.

"American tourists would like to be terrified," said the pleasant, smiling official of the Romanian Tourist Ministry. "They like going to the movies to be frightened by Dracula, so they would enjoy it even more in the castles."

Strangely enough the project comes just when Romanian historians are making a big effort to prove that Dracula, or Vlad Tepes, was not really such a bad guy after all. They say Vlad, who ruled the southern Romanian principality of Walachia between 1455 and 1477, did a lot for Romanian unity by fighting Turkish invaders, and they insist the popular story of the vampire who fed on the blood of his victims is all stuff and nonsense.

But hard currency is hard currency. So the Romanians will tell tourists the truth about Dracula but will also make capital out of the legend.

Nobody will suck your blood in Dracula's castles, but they will do their best to suck your dollars.

Foreign tourists visiting Romania are increasing by 400,000 per year, totaling an estimated three million in 1972. More than two million of them come from the Communist countries. But about 20,000 Americans come each year and the Romanians hope to push this up to 50,000 in 1973.

Tourism accounts for about 4 per cent of Romania's hard currency earnings. Tourist officials reckon that if Dracula gets into the act he'll push the percentage up.

Two of his castles, at Poenari and Tirgoviste, are partly in ruins but are being restored. The Romanians plan to use them as settings for sound and light shows, which have become popular tourist features in Europe's historic buildings ranging from St. Paul's Cathedral in London to the Colos-

40 Years Ago Today

Tobacco plants for next season's crop were beginning to make their appearance today in various sections of the county, according to reports of Greenville tobacconists. First of the plants emerged from the ground the first of the week and others were expected to follow under the impetus rain which visited the section today.

Loss to the county through sinking fund investments was called to the attention of the county commissioners today in the report of the grand jury. The report also contained information relative to the conduct of other phases of county government and called attention especially to the danger by school buses taking on or discharging passengers.

Doubt Peace-Keeping Ability

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — "If we couldn't keep track of North Vietnamese infiltration with all the people and equipment we used, how is the international commission going to do it with so much less?"

The Army officer asking this question expressed the disbelief of many U.S. military professionals about the effectiveness of the machinery being set up to supervise the Vietnam cease-fire.

Behind them are years of frustration trying to cope with a flow of North Vietnamese infiltrators into South Vietnam.

Some officers recall there were 54 Green Beret camps spread all along the border; there were various kinds of exotic sensors and night-vision devices, and still the Americans never really could control infiltration.

The new International Control Commission, made up of Canadians, Poles, Hungarians and Indonesians, will have six teams posted at wide intervals along the hundreds of miles of South Vietnam's border with Cambodia and Laos and the Demilitarized Zone separating North and South Vietnam.

Another seven teams will be tabbed for duty at additional inland points of entry to be chosen later. Still another seven teams, which will be concerned with return of prisoners for the first 60 days of the cease-fire, could be reassigned after that time to inland border surveillance.

That would add up to a possible 20 teams, most of them numbering eight men each, to watch over a long inland border masked to a large extent by deep jungle.

The plan also calls for 26 other teams of the same size to be based throughout South Vietnam to prevent troops already in the country from violating the cease-fire.

Over-all, the international commission will number 1,160 officers and men. But about half will be at headquarters keeping records.

Supplementing the international group will be a temporary joint military commission made up of representatives of the United States, North Vietnam, the South Vietnamese and the Viet Cong.

After U.S. troops are withdrawn and all prisoners exchanged within 60 days, this four-party group will disappear and a smaller commission composed only of military men from the rival Vietnamese sides will replace it.

This joint-Vietnamese military commission, which is supposed to conduct preliminary investigations of truce violations, will also have 26 small teams spread throughout South Vietnam.

The peace agreement and its many implementing documents are silent on any enforcement authority for the international commission or the joint military commission.

Their powers are "to deter and detect violations ... to carry out necessary observations and investigations," and to be "a forum to settle differences."

Observations From Editorial Columns

The Press And Justice

As a result of a Supreme Court ruling last summer that newsmen must answer a grand jury's questions even if it means revealing confidential information and sources of that information, three newsmen have recently gone to jail for refusing to testify. This has dramatized the question of just what balance there should be between freedom of the press on one hand and the full working of the law on the other.

Among those seeking to establish that balance, it is gratifying to see Sen. Sam Ervin in the forefront. Certainly no one, in Congress or out, has a firmer dedication that he has to our constitutional freedoms—as they apply to both the individual and to the public at large. Sen. Ervin has proposed legislation listing three conditions which must be met before a newsman could be compelled to testify in a criminal case.

First, the newsman must have personal, first-hand knowledge of pertinent facts in the case. Second, his information must be of the kind that will help prove or disprove the alleged crime. And third, it must be information that cannot readily be obtained from any other sources.

It is only with the words "readily obtained" that we might disagree with the Tar Heel senator. There should be no qualification whatever. A newsman should be exempt if the information can be obtained elsewhere—period. Except for this Sen. Ervin's proposal strikes the right balance. In most cases, a newsman would not have first-hand knowledge of the crime. But if he did, and if his was the only testimony that could prove guilt or innocence, it is inconceivable that it should be withheld.—Rocky Mount (N.C.) Telegram

Open Meetings

The executive branch of government under Richard Nixon has become ever more secretive and withdrawn from public scrutiny, but there is a growing willingness on the part of Congress to open its actions to full view. The House has already gone a long way toward full accountability by requiring that votes be recorded, so that each congressman's constituents can know how he stand on amendments as well as final passage.

A recent Common Cause survey indicates that a majority of the new House of Representatives is also committed to doing away with most closed committee meetings. How important that can be to the public's right to know is illustrated by one set of statistics and one statement of fact.

In 1971, some 36 per cent of all congressional committee meetings were closed. Almost all of those held by the House Ways and Means Committe, which dictates tax policy for the House, were closed. The fact is that Congress's most important work takes place in committee and not on the floor.

According to John Gardner, the chairman of Common Cause, 229 congressmen are in favor of holding open meetings except in cases involving national security or personal privacy. That is 11 more congressmen than a amjority. Gardner's figures are based on a congressman-by-congressman survey, and each is named in the Common Cause study.

"These commitments in support of reform are redeeemable now," Gardner said. "If the issue comes to a record vote, we believe the votes are there to end secrecy in the Congress of the United States." If Gardner is right the issue must be forced to a vote. The light of publicity and disclosure usually hurts only the corrupt and inefficient; it helps the political process and the body politic alike.—Greenville (Miss.) Delta Democrat-Times

Postal Service Tested

This may be a year of decision for the new business-oriented U.S. Postal Service. If it doesn't do a better job, watch for a move in Congress to restore the "gold old days " of mail delivery by a Government-operated Post Office.

How well the new system is working is a matter of debate. Its managers say it is doing well as can be expected considering the drastic changes now under way to correct the evils of the old Civil Service set-up.

The semi-public corporation has been criticized for such practices as regional handling of mail which means letters often go to a regional center miles from the point of origin only to be returned to a destination just blocks away. But the experts insist this cuts down the number of times the mail must be handled and sorted and is, therefore, quicker and cheaper.

"It is fun to take pot shots at us with charts showing how much farther the mail is going to be moved for sorting under the new system," says an ex-postal corporation official. "But people won't think it out, that we can move this stuff faster to one of our 'factories,' sort it, and then send it back again, than we can handling it to death."

That sounds reasonable enough. But in the end, only results count. If the new corporation can provide reasonably fast and economical postal service, Congress will go along with it. If the results are negative, we can expect a return to the old ways.—Tulsa (Okla.) World

The Greenville Jayceetes, on our 20th anniversary, would like to commemorate the occasion by thanking the citizens of Greenville in a special way.

Through the last few years, we have watched with interest and pleasure, the progress of the Town Common project. We would like to become a part of this work by contributing to it financially.

Therefore, the Greenville Jaycettes would like to pledge $150 to the City of Greenville. We would like this money to be used for the landscaping of the Town Common. As the planting is done, it is understood that the city will notify us in writing, at which time the pledge will be fulfilled.

We hope that this money, however small, might help in speeding the completion of the Town Common, as we are sure that this project will become an asset to the city and a pleasure for her citizens.

Once again we'd like to thank the City of Greenville and her people for their warm generosity and assistance to us as an organization for these past 20 years. We hope that the next 20 years will prove to be even more fulfilling and bright in progress, love, and understanding for us all.

The LBJ Brand Is Burned Deep In Our History

By J. J. KILPATRICK

HOUSTON, Tex. — The big jet tucks up its wheels, soars into a sunset sky above Dallas and flies 600 miles west to El Paso. The next morning a wandering reporter catches an eastbound plane, and flies 600 miles back across Texas to Houston. Lyndon Johnson, he muses, left something out.

"I am a free man, an American, a United States senator, and a Democrat." That was Johnson's own epitaph, composed before he became vice president and later president. What he left out was this: He was also, in his very heart and soul, a Texan.

It may be that since his death Monday evening, just about everything that could be said already has been said about LBJ. Yet here was a man, a a singular man, a man of Texas dimensions; he left his initials burned into the history of our land like a brand on a longhorn steer. It is impossible for a newsman, musing upon his life, not to write one word more of LBJ.

The image of Texas comes insistently to mind. This is soft country in the east and hard country in the west. Texas is noise, confusion, wild action: cattle running, oil bursting, great fortunes soaring and falling. And Texas also is brooding silence. Lyndon Johnson was all of this. He was sand, cactus, and Spanish moss; he was high water and dry gulch. In a span of 24 hours, he could be hot, cold, profane, courtly, somber, and hilarious; he could be compassionate and vindictive, stubborn and beguilding, furious and friendly. And this was no particular 24 hours: this was every 24 hours.

More than most states, Texas cherishes its own place in history. It has known the flags of Spain, France, Mexico, the Confederacy, its own Lone Star. Alone among the states, it enjoyed the status of independent republic. This sense of history was part of the essence of Lyndon Johnson. Living, he saw himself dead. Incessantly he brooded on how history would see him. A visitor to tthe LBJ Library in Austin is stunned by the magnitude of the photographs and records he kept. The library is a monument, in its way, to the vanity of the man preserved inside.

Yet Johnson's vanity was marble on adobe. Beneath the facade was a human being whose second hunger was to be remembered. His first hunger was simply to be loved. If he had a Texas hide, he had a Texas heart as well. In that great bear hug, he embraced the whole human race — blacks, whites, Pakistani, Koreans, those he fought yesterday, those he might be at war with tomorrow.

Unhappily, he was often at his worst when he wanted most to be seen at his best. These were the embarrassing moments, when his voice turned to sorghum molasses, when he affected every poor device of a schoolboy mastering elocution, when men were repelled by his yearning.

We see him now, in the amber light of these hungerings, as a tragic figure. Johnson rode the horse of history with roweled spurs. He was everywhere at once, twisting and cajoling, commanding and pleading, racing his herd to fame. In the bleeding flanks of Vietnam it all collapsed. He left office reviled and ridiculed; worse still, he left office unloved. By the time of this past summer's Democratic convention at Miami Beach, he had become an un-person within his own party.

One flies the breadth of Texas, and understands that Texas is not one state, but many. History will see Lyndon Johnson in the same way, through different prisms. The Johnson City of his youth was as racially segregated as South Africa today; his voting record for many years was straight from Dixie. But he grew, as great Southerners have grown before him; he put that behind him. Out of the breathtaking sweep of Texas, he drew a breathtaking vision — a vision of brotherhood and peace and glory. He rode after this mirage till he dropped.

History, they say, is mostly biography; and much of the history of our mid-century will be found in the biography of this tall and homely man with the big ears and the riverboat eyes, Lyndon Johnson: free man, American, United States senator, Democrat, and Texan.

A DREAM REPLACES THE LONG NIGHTMARE!

Wished On A Star In Africa; It Came True In North Carolina Zoo

By BOB WILLIAMS
(Asheboro Courier-Tribune)

ASHEBORO, N. C. — Lynn Hoff wished on a star over Africa, and the wish came true in North Carolina.

Her husband, William Hoff, then director of the St. Louis Zoo, got the assignment to plan and direct the N. C. Zoological Park at Purgatory Mountain near here.

The Hoffs were on an African safari last year when Mrs. Hoff made the secret wish. She didn't tell her husband about it until recently when he was offered the job here by a special committee of the N. C. Zoological Authority.

At the time, Mr. and Mrs. Hoff were not unacquainted with the Africa-like terrain of Purgatory Mountain.

Hoff in 1968 helped the state conduct a zoo feasibility study and in 1969 and 1970 was one of three nationally known zoo directors who were retained to advise the Asheboro Chamber of Commerce on Randolph County's chances of being selected as the zoo site.

Ideal Zoo Site

"WE TALKED ABOUT Purgatory Mountain so much during that time," Hoff said. "The thing that struck me was that Purgatory was by far the best site for a zoo I had ever seen."

Hoff was quick to accept the offer to come to North Carolina. It has been his lifelong ambition to build a zoo "from the ground up." Earlier, the N. C. Zoo position had been turned down by George Speidel, director of the Milwaukee Zoo.

"It's always been my dream to do something like this, Hoff said. "It was a once in a lifetime opportunity that I could not turn down."

After it became public knowledge that Speidel had turned down the N. C. Zoo post, Hoff said he assumed he might be offered the job. Although he would not speculate if pressures were brought to bear on Speidel to keep him in Milwaukee, Hoff did say he believes other things entered into Speidel's decision.

Hoff admitted he had a "wrestling match" with his own conscience on whether to leave the St. Louis Zoo where he has been executive director since 1968.

Irresistible Challenge

"The St. Louis Zoo is undergoing a large-scale rehabilitation, but it is not being built from the ground up like the N. C. Zoo," Hoff pointed out. The challenge of constructing and managing a major zoo was irresistible, he admitted.

A love of animals has sustained Hoff throughout his life and career. During his childhood in Illinois his family had a summer home near a large farm. Hoff spent all of his free time working on the farm at whatever work was available involving animals.

He said the rumor was true that he had as many as 100 snakes in his mother's home at one time. His mother also loved animals, and had a sympathetic knack for rounding up unusual pets.

From such beginnings, Hoff's love for animals eventually led him to a kindred spirit, Marlin Perkins of "Wild Kingdom" fame. They met in 1951 when Perkins was director of the Lincoln Park Zoo in Chicago and Hoff was a young draftsman for the park district.

Worked His Way Up

Influenced by Perkins, Hoff worked his way through the Lincoln Park's chain of command from animal keeper to general curator.

Hoff was named director of the Cincinnati Zoo in 1961. He was again associated with Perkins when he came to the St. Louis Zoo in 1968 where Perkins retired as zoo director in 1970.

Hoff said he has some "novel ideas" he would like to see implemented at the N. C. Zoo but they will require further study. His first job, he said, will be development of the zoo's master plan, then overseeing construction of the first phase of the zoo, still slated for opening in 1975.

Hoff said one of the first questions asked is 'where will the animals come from." Many will be purchased from already established zoos, but some will be gathered from what was once one of Hoff's "novel ideas" —expeditions to the African bush.

On hand is $2 million from a state bond issue for actual planning and construction, and Hoff hopes that if more money is needed it will come from the N. C. Zoo Society fund drive that is now swinging into gear.

seum in Rome.

With lights flashing and amplified screams and groans assailing you from loudspeakers, you will be able to persuade yourself that Dracula has you in his clutches.

If he really did, it wouldn't be very pleasant. He may not have been a vampire but he was a tough customer. He was called Vlad Tepes, or Vlad the Imapaler, from his habit of sticking people on spikes and hoisting them aloft.

"He was cruel, but only to those who deserved it," said the man at the Tourist Ministry. "He punished thieves, and rich people who plundered the poor."

Vlad Tepes is reputed to have killed 10,000 in a night on one occasion. So there must have been an awful lot of thieves and rich people in 15th century Romania.

It was the Romanian people themselves who gave him the name Dracula, or Devil. But German writers of the 19th century first presented him as a vampire, paving the way for a best-selling novel by the Irish writer Bram Stoker.

A vampire? Well, he was certainly not squeamish. There is a story that he was wounded in battle and immobilized by loss of blood, so he steeled himself to drink the blood of warriors who were dying around him and regained his strength. A kind of self-operated blood transfusion, in fact.

One Romanian historian who has done a lot to sift the truth from the Dracula legend is Professor Andrei Florescu, who now lectures in the United States. Other historians at home in Romania are busy researching into his life and times. Rehabilitating Dracula is a favorite pastime among Romanian intellectuals right now.

But for the tourist industry the image of Dracula will be preserved as a monster — impaler, vampire and all.

Guest Speaker Shaken By Death Of Johnson

By JOHN KILGO

RALEIGH — Ramsey Clark, the attorney general in the Lyndon Johnson administration, learned of the former President's death when he arrived at Davidson College Monday night to make a speech.

Clark was visibly shaken by the news. He delayed his speech a few minutes to get himself together.

With tears in his eyes, Clark told the students: "Lyndon Johnson was a driven man. I remember driving past his house on Sundays when we were both young, and he'd be working like fury.

"He was completely dedicated to improving the lot of the poor in education, in housing, in medical care and in voting rights. I really feel like we've lost a great and compassionate human being."

Clark asked the students to join with him in a moment of silence in memory of Johnson.

It's strange the way the wets and the drys seem to be willing to take Rep. Sam Johnson's liquor-by-the-drink bill and go with it. It would call for a statewide vote.

The drys, led by Marse Grant and Coy Privette, are fully confident they could win. They also have tremendous financial resources they could call on, and plenty of volunteer help.

The wets feel this is the best bill they'll get—and they're leaking word that statewide polls show they could win.

If you think you've seen a fight on the campaign trail, you ain't seen nothing yet.

They've written songs about San Francisco, Chicago and other places—so why not Grandfather Mountain?

Hugh Morton, the fellow who owns the mountain, tells us that Arthur Smith, a longtime Morton friend from Charlotte, has recorded a record about the mountain.

"Maybe it'll at least become a hit in this area," Morton told me.

State Sen. Mike Mullins of Mecklenburg, a rookie Republican, ruffled some feathers last week when he introduced a bill that would repeal the tax on soft drinks.

Gov. Jim Holshouser does not want that to happen, and some Republican legislators are going to great extremes to make it known that Mullins' bill is not a Republican-sponsored measure.

Mullins says he promised in his campaign that he would ask for repeal of the soft drink tax.

Some Democrats in the Legilsture are saying Holshouser has taken an about face in the fight over taxes. They say he made a long speech in 1969 when Gov. Bob Scott recommended the tobacco and soft-drink taxes, opposing both of them.

Now Gov. Holshouser is against taking those taxes off. As we warned you several weeks ago, it took only a week of the Legislature being in town for Holshouser's honeymoon to end.

Now it's politics.

American troops. Underwriting the doctrine is the pledge of the American nuclear umbrella and aid (military and economic)—but not U. S. troops.

There is no doubt that Moscow began to pressure Hanoi to end its invasion of South Vietnam in a fashion that must have infuriated the Hanoi politburo.

One example of this, not published until now: the Russians denied Hanoi all but the most primative SAM-2 (surface-to-air) antiaircraft missiles with an early-model C-band electronic aiming device. At the same time, Moscow was sending Egypt highly-sophisticated S-band SAM-2s plus the advanced SAM-3 and SAM-6.

While the President was building his political credibility with China and the Soviet Union, he was enforcing his military credibility with Hanoi—first in Cambodia and Laos; later by mining the ports of North Vietnam. Acceptance of these military offensives by Moscow and Peking dramatized Hanoi's isolation.

Critics Confuse Change In Nixon Tactics With Policy Change

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

Richard Nixon's ever eager critics frequently misread a change in tactics as a change in policy and rush out to proclaim that the President "has blown it, again."

This has been conspicious in the foreign field --Vietnam and the dealings with Russia and China. And it hasn't been restrained on the home front either, especially where economic policy is concerned. It ignores Nixon persistence.

It was only recently that the unfolding of Phase III of wage and price controls provoked a critical clamor. The President, it was said, had gone to a voluntary system, clearly weakening his fight to restrain inflation. Post election politics just had to be involved.

What this overlooked was that compliance with the price and wage standards is "voluntary" in the same way that payment of your income taxes is "voluntary". In other words, so long as you follow the regulations, there's no problems.

Also; there are other features of the inflation battle which are of basic importance. It is more than probable that Nixon's persistence in these areas will more than offset any "leakage" through the wage and price ceilings. Critics have pretty much overlooked this.

A key field is federal spending. Democrats in Congress are making an issue of Nixon's refusal to spend all funds which have been voted. But so far; there is no sign that the President is about to accept bigger inflation-making deficits as the price for improved political relations with "The Hill."

The other major area of anti-inflation effort is credit. Here, money rates are being allowed to rise. Thus far, there is no real shotrage of loanable funds. In fact, for the past few months Federal Reserve policy has been to keep the money supply a bit on the "easy" side. But recent indications are of a coming tightening.

The purpose of fiscal and monetary policy will be to reduce the demand for goods and services --demand by government and business and individuals; too. The idea is to restrain demand and thus keep pressure under prices from becoming excessive.

Even Nixon's severest critics on economic matters now give him credit for reducing the rate of price increase and of accepting a considerable political risk over the past four years.

When the first anti-inflation moves were taken early in the first Nixon term, the antis complained that the curbing of spending and tightening of credit would lead to disaster — a sharp recession or even depression.

The overall economy did stagnate. Expansion came to an end and there was a mild but brief dip. And while this was happening, prices continued to push on up, with the annual rate of increase hitting as much as 10 percent in some months.

Then Nixon changed tactics. He introduced wage and price controls in August of 1971. What's called Phase 1 was a freeze. It was replaced in a matter of months with Phase II, which set a control formula for both wages and prices.

The result of all the actions was to check the rate of price increase and then turn it down. The rate for 1972 was an average rise of 3.4 percent in the cost of living, or level with 1971. The earlier annual peak had been near 6 percent.

Whether the rate can be reduced for this year remains in doubt. As the general economic recovery has picked up steam, confidence has improved, with the result that both business and individual consumers again are big, open-handed spenders.

It is this spending mood which causes much concern about the next year or so. Some shortages in basic commodities have developed, which means that climbing demand could bring on a spate of cost increases which later would be translated into higher prices to consumers.

A solid growth rate will be highly important this year, if the ranks of the unemployed is to be further reduced. So-called good times tend to bring out job seekers, especially among women and young people inclined to give up school and go to work.

This should be the best year for business. But keep in mind: Nixon is a determined and persistent man. He doesn't plan to lose the inflation battle and will do what he has to do.

Belgium May Have Only Woman's Political Party

ADELE HAUWELL, a founder of the Parti Feministe Unifie, is a veteran of women's rights organizations. (UPI Telephoto)

By RICHARD C. LONGWORTH

BRUSSELS (UPI) — A political party for women—maybe the only one in the world —has been formed in Belgium.

Its idea is to get more women into parliament and, with luck, to win a place in a government coalition, so that some of Belgium's particularly demeaning laws on women's rights can be changed.

"Why shouldn't we try?" said Adele Hauwel, a founder of the Parti Feministe Unifie (PFU). "We don't say it is the only way to improve women's rights. But it's one new way that has never been used."

The party was founded in September by Ms. Hauwel, an intense, grayhaired veteran of women's rights organizations, and three friends, Nina Ariel, Claire Bihin-Jourdain and Renee Waty-Fosseprez.

The aim now is to build the party's strength so it can enter candidates in as many districts as possible in the next parliamentary election, which could come any time in the next three years. According to Ms. Bihin-Jourdain, there already are "several hundred" members in 50 branches—most of them in Brussels —with "new members coming in every day."

Parliamentary elections, however, can come at any time. If held now, the PFU believes it could field candidates in most Brussels districts. In two years, Ms. Bihin-Jourdain said, it could have a candidate in "most" of the nation's districts.

Ms. Hauwel said that as far as she knew, the only other women's party was in the Netherlands "and they're only a pressure group, not a real party because they had no candidates in the general election in November."

Seek High Positions

Ms. Hauwel said she helped start the PFU because "women here feel like a minority group even though the majority in Belgium are women. To make real changes, women must actually get into high political office. When you are not in the government, you can only try to influence those who really have the power."

What the party wants is "the standard feminist platform," she said—equal rights, equal opportunities, equal pay, legalized abortion (a touchy issue in this Roman Catholic nation) and dissemination of family planning information.

It also wants the repeal of "laws discriminating against women." In Belgium, women cannot open bank accounts, get a loan or dispose of their own property without their husbands' written permission. A divorced woman cannot remarry for 300 days and the law gives husbands the right to make major decisions, such as the education of children, while women have only the right to appeal these decisions to a court.

"We want it equal," Ms. Hauwel said. "We want women to be able to decide, too, with the husband also having the right of appeal."

Flinty Founders

So far, women play little role in Belgian politics. Of the 390 members of Parliament, only 12 are women. None sits in the cabinet. Women also are short of power in major pressure groups, such as trade unions.

The founders are flinty about personal questions, which they consider patronizing. There are eight children among the four, Ms. Hauwel said, but she refused to say which ones were married.

"We also refuse to answer questions like, 'Does your husband agree with you?'" she said. "Such questions are never put to men in politics, so we don't answer if they are put to us."

Only Ms. Hauwel among the four never worked with a political party. But only one — Ms. Waty-Fosseprez —currently holds an office. A city councillor in the Brussels suburb of Etterbeck, she recently renounced her party and claims now that her seat is the first to be held by the PFU.

Belgian governments are always coalitions of parties, and the PFU's chance for power lies in joining such a coalition. On this, Ms. Hauwel says that "we must wait and see"—first, whether its candidates are elected, and then, whether any established party will win the PFU's support by pledging itself to women's rights.

French and Flemish Feminists

The PFU concentrates solely on women's rights and takes no stand on other issues such as defense, the economy or pollution—even on the acrimonious split between Belgium's French -speakers and Flemish speakers.

"We are strictly feminist," Ms. Hauwel said. "We don't care if a woman is young or old, Catholic or Protestant, socialist or con Parliament face no challenge from the PFU. Ms. Hauwel said it will neither run candidates against them nor try to lure them into the womene 12 women already i's party, "because we don't want them to risk losing their place in Parliament. We know they are doing their best."

The party finances itself by a membership fee of 100 francs ($2.27) plus donations. It anticipates no problems getting on the ballot.

"We need only 500 signatures to get on a list," Ms. Hauwel said, smiling, mentally eyeing Belgium's 5 million women, "and that's not exactly impossible."

BRIGHTON, England (UPI) — Dr. D.J. Urquhart, president of Britain's Library Association, told its annual conference the world will produce as many books in the next 15 to 20 years as in the whole previous history of mankind.

Anne Will Ride Despite Outcry

By MARGARET SAVILLE

LONDON (UPI) — The Queen doesn't like it. A highly vocal section of the public is against it. But Princess Anne couldn't care less and is determined to ride to the hounds as often as she can this winter, according to sources close to her. She has a reason.

Queen Elizabeth's strong-willed daughter, isn't interested in killing foxes, or even in finding them. What she wants is success in the competitive business of riding horses as a sport.

The princess, her friends say, is "firmly determined" to be in the next British equestrian team to compete abroad. One goes later this year to Kiev, Russia, and Anne, 22, wants to be on it.

Beyond that, she has her sights set on the 1976 Olympics. She was a favorite for inclusion in the British team which went to Munich last year, but pulled out early when her favorite mount went lame.

What she wants out of fox hunting, the sources say, is intensive experience in cross-country riding with the jumping, general maneuvering and expert horsemanship it demands. Experts agree there is no better training in winter, when there are few horse shows.

So despite the queen's displeasure, despite the vocal protests of those in this country who deplore the cruelty involved in hunting a fox to death with a pack of hounds, Princess Anne will ride again.

Often, her companion has been Lt. Mark Phillips, a member of the British gold medal team at Munich. He has ridden to hounds with her regularly to give her expert coaching and help. Their companionship of course has brought on rumors of romance and speculation they will marry. On this, there has been nothing the least official but when Princess Anne kissed Phillips goodbye publicly, when he left for duty with the Queen's Dragoon Guards in Germany, there were those who almost began to hear wedding bells.

Queen Elizabeth, a keen horsewoman and an expert on racing blood lines, understands Anne's reasons for hunting often, and does not frown on the hunt. But she is unhappy about the public criticism which has been heaped on Anne and the royal family—some of it outspoken in the extreme—because of the princess' patronage of blood sports.

The Queen, court sources said, may have advised Anne to do less hunting. But Anne is free to do what she likes away from royal duties. She is 22 and most definitely has a mind of her own.

And when it comes to riding, a friend said, "she doesn't care a damn about anything else but getting to the top."

'Floss And Jiggle'—New In Dental Health

OPEN WIDE ... "Clean Teeth Taste Good," a calendar on the wall proclaims, as dental hygienist, Mrs. Ginny Hill prepares to scale teeth of a patient during a check-up.

MAKING THEM SHINE ... as part of her duties as dental hygienist, Mrs. Hill polishes teeth and applies fluoride during a routine visit by patient.

By JANE KELLER

"Clean Teeth Taste Good" proclaims the 1973 calendar on the wall.

"The New Move—Floss and Jiggle" is announced in an illustrative drawing on another section of the calendar.

The calendar is about eye level for a 10 year old and it hangs in the office of Mrs. Ginny Hill, dental hygienist.

"The big thing in the dental field now is home care and prevention," says the petite blonde.

"With proper care of the teeth at home, there will be no need for much dental work in the office," she continued.

"We are changing the old idea about dental health from 'drill, fill and pull' to the idea of 'prevention'," explained Mrs. Hill.

Training

Mrs. Hill works in the office of Dr. Donald Patrick on East Tenth Street. She has been a dental hygienist for almost 12 years but has lived in Greenville only since August.

"A dental hygienist must have formal training in a recognized program and pass tests by the state just the same as dentists, doctors and nurses," she noted.

"Dental hygienists must have a license in order to practice and the license must be renewed yearly. The dental assistant does not have a license and may be trained by the dentists under whom she is working.

"I think there are only two dental hygienists practicing in Greenville now.

"The dental hygienist is trained to scale, polish, curretage (deep scaling on roots of the teeth), give home care instruction to patients such as brushing and flossing techniques. She is trained to assist the dentist, take x-rays and apply fluoride applications," continued Mrs. Hill.

Mrs. Hill, who was trained at UNC, said that there are about six programs in the state where one can be trained as a dental hygienist.

"Wayne Community College in Goldsboro is probably the nearest," she said.

Duties

Mrs. Hill has regular duties in Dr. Patrick's office. She sees all recall or regular patients when they come for check-ups and cleans their teeth after which the dentist checks the teeth.

She also sees all new patients, takes the x-rays and prepares them for checking by the dentist.

Have the duties of the dental hugienist changed recently?

"No, not really," said Mrs. Hill.

"There has been a great deal of talk about expanding the duties of the dental hygienist, but it is only talk.

"Our duties are exactly those things we are trained to do. Some of the girls complain about how boring it is to clean teeth all day. I don't find that to be the case. Of course, I am busy telling and showing people how to care for their teeth at home.

"There is talk that the duties of the dental hygienist may be changed in the future to include giving injections and taking over many duties of the dentist. Our training will have to change as well as our licensing for that. The state legislature will have to approve it. I think it is all just talk.

"I am happy with my job as it now is. If I had wanted to do all of those other things, I would have gone to school for the DDS," she explained.

Brush-In

Mrs. Hill belongs to the Hygienist Study Club, a regional branch of the statewide organization of dental hygienists. The Study Club is composed of registered dental hygienists. from the eastern North Carolina towns of New Bern, Kinston, Rocky Mount, Tarboro, Goldsboro, Greenville and surrounding communities. The club meets monthly.

"We discuss problems within our offices and new concepts in our own offices and throughout our field," said Mrs. Hill.

"One of our group's projects is table clinics for the state meeting each year. Table clinics are the presentation and demonstration of new ideas in the field of dental hygienics.

"This year, however, we are most excited about our Brush-In which will take place at Pitt Plaza on Saturday, Feb. 3.

"Our organization of dental hygienists will have a booth set up between the hours of 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. for the purpose of showing children what plaque is, how it grows on the teeth and what can happen if it isn't cleaned off.

"We will give free toothbrush kits to each child who comes by and show him how to use it. We will also demonstrate the proper method of using dental floss.

"We really want all of those children between the ages of three and 12 to come," she said.

Mrs. Hill, who is the mother of two boys, believes that if children are taught the proper care of their teeth, they will become adults without dental worries.

Mrs. Hill works only part time—on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays.

"I feel that is the only way I can combine a career with my duties at home," she said.

Her husband, Spencer Hill, is with Wachovia Bank.

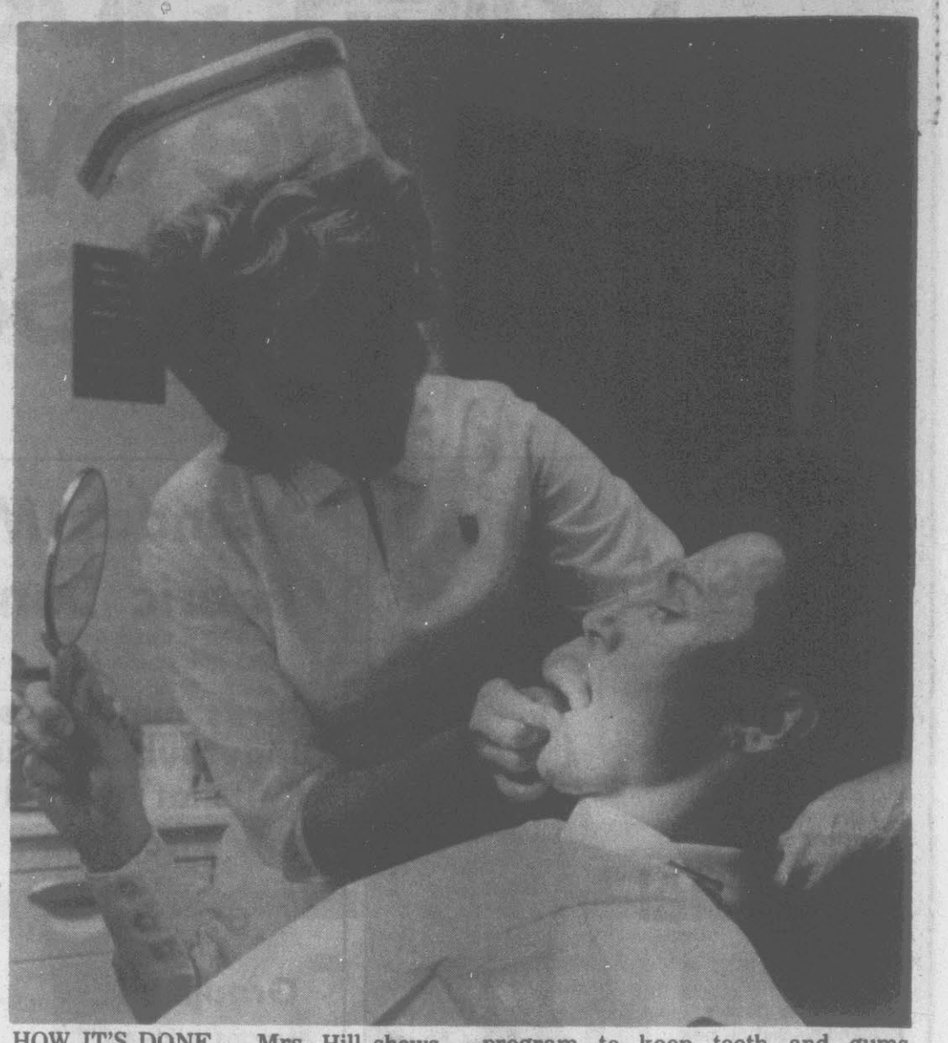

Her busy personal life does not prohibit her from continuing her interest in promoting good dental health, however.

"On Feb. 2, the day before the Brush-In, I will be talking to the homeroom classes of my children at South Greenville," she continued.

"There are, I believe, only three dental hygienists hired by the State of North Carolina. They help as much as they can by talking at schools and helping as many as they can.

"School nurses cover as much material as they can, but many times I have had the school nurses to call me to ask what they should say about dental hygiene. After all, I would certainly have to call on them if I was responsible for the total health of the school age child," Mrs. Hill noted.

Mrs. Hill believes that good teeth contribute to good health and that good clean teeth are a result of education in home care.

HOW IT'S DONE ... Mrs. Hill shows the proper method of using dental floss as part of a regular home care program to keep teeth and gums healthy.

With The Women

Hypo-Allergenic Cosmetics—A Growing Controversy

By FLORENCE DESANTIS

NEW YORK (WNS) — The woman's lips were itching and blistering, so she consulted her physician. The doctor tested her skin for reaction and discovered that she was allergic to nickel. Then his patient recalled that she was in the habit of holding bobby pins between her lips when doing her hair. The bobby pins proved to be nickel-plated.

Another woman began to have red, puffed-up eyelids, which then scaled at the edges. She used eye makeup, but tests proved the makeup had nothing to do with it. Further testing of all her cosmetics turned up her nail polish as the culprit.

Both these cases are examples of true allergies, reactions to specific substances which cause the majority of users no trouble. When the victim stops using the substance, the symptoms disappear.

It's important to know what an allergy is because at this moment the "hypo-allergenic" label is being put on more cosmetics than ever before. What does it mean? Does it have any value for the average cosmetics user? How is a "hypo-allergenic" cosmetic formulated?

The very term "hypo-allergenic" is confusing. Recently, a radio announcer called such cosmetics "hyper-allergenic." He was unknowingly saying the very opposite of what he meant. "Hyper" means "stepped up," usually beyond the normal. A "Hyper-active" person is one who is abnormally active. So if a cosmetic were to be "hyper-allergenic" it would be one which causes more allergies than is normal!

FDA Forbids Claim

"Hypo-allergenic" means "low in causing allergies." Why not say "non-allergic?" Federal Food and Drug Administration rules forbid this claim. The reason? There is NO substance to which somebody isn't allergic. Common household dust is an allergen, as allergy-causing substances are called.

Allergies can also be temporary. A woman who had a contact dermatitis on her hands suddenly became allergic to perfume during that period, although she had never before had such an allergy and never had one again afterward. This phenomenon is known as "sensitizing," in which a person becomes allergic to a substance through another substance.

All this means that no cosmetic can claim to be anything but "hypo-allergenic," that is, low in substances known to cause allergies in a fairly wide number of people.

How many people are really allergic to one or more of the ingredients commonly used in cosmetics? Nobody knows, since estimates have varied from about one million to seven million. It's probably impossible to get an accurate figure, because many people don't see a doctor about an allergy, and many have those temporary allergies spoken of above.

However, it has been easier, over the years, to determine some of the substances which most commonly cause allergies.

Way back in the 1930's, when the Food, Drug and Cosmetics Act of 1938 first brought cosmetics under regulation, little was known about allergies. The act was concerened with "dangerous ingredients," such as poisons, acids and other chemicals which have a direct reaction with almost any user.

At around the same time, the phenomenon of allergies was beginning to engage the interest of both the medical profession and the chemists who studied cosmetic formulation. One of the earliest substances to be eliminated from general use was orris root, which, in powdered form, had been a common ingredient of face powder. Although not a "dangerous ingredient," it proved to cause enough allergies that the cosmetics industry stopped using it.

Research Too Extensive

However, the research needed into allergens (substances which cause allergies) was too extensive for most cosmetics companies to add onto all the other work they did in their laboratories. As a result, specializing firms in this field grew up. The first one, Ar-Ex, was founded in 1935, and first published a professional formulary an early as 1940 for physicians, pharmacists, cosmeticians and consumers.

The term "hypo-allergenic" was first suggested by the American Medical Association in 1939, and adopted by Ar-Ex, Almay, Marcelle and Allercreme, the firms which specialize in this field. Ar-Ex, probably the leading firm, gradually increased its list of allergy-causing ingredients to over 60. Among them are such common substances as lanolin, cocoa butter, corn starch, quinine, rice starch, turpentine, wheat starch and many of the oils used to make perfumes.

Note that many of these substances are "natural," and thereby hangs a tale particularly interesting right now, when so many natural ingredients are being widely touted as cosmetic boons. Just because an ingredient is natural or "organic" means nothing in terms of allergies. One can easily think of such naturals as strawberries, tomatoes, eggs and citrus fruits which some people cannot eat, and in many cases cannot even come near without breaking out in rashes or worse.

Why are so many cosmetics firms suddenly claiming "hypo-allergenic" about their cosmetics? Are they perpertrating fraud? Not necessarily. Even the American Medical Association has allowed itself to become confused. In 1963, the AMA publicly recommended dropping the term "hypo-allergenic" on the ground that all cosmetics today must be made of "pure" materials and are therefore safe for use by allergic persons.

No FDA Regulations

As it happens, the FDA has never issued any regulations or standards for the claim of "hypo-allergenic." Therefore, the unfortunate AMA statement opened the door for any and all cosmetics firms to make the claim.

Some firms think they've attained "hypo-allergenic" if they eliminate perfume. Although probably the most common cause of allergies, it is far from the only one. As for purity of ingredients, that means nothing. It's not the purity that counts, but the lack of a specific substance causing the allergy. A cream containing "pure" lanolin, for instance, will cause an allergy in anyone who is allergic to lanolin, no matter how pure it is.

Another misconception concern so-called medicated cosmetics. These are the ones generally used by youngsters with acne. They also have nothing to do with hypo-allergenic, since many of the drugs they contain, such as resorcinol, are on the list of the 60 ingredients routinely eliminated by such houses as Ar-Ex.

Some cosmetics claiming to fight the effects of pollution also carry the hypo-allergenic claim. Again, one had nothing to do with the other.

Julius B. Kahn, president of Ar-Ex, sums up the entire matter this way, "Hypo-allergenic is hypo-allergenic. It is not equal to something else."

Mr. Kahn has been angry for some time at the rise in hypo-allergenic claims by cosmetics firms which never had anything to do before with this specialized field. For ten years he has been fighting to get the FDA to formulate official standards for the use of the claim — so far, without success. In 1971 he submitted all Ar-Ex formularies to the FDA, and last year he placed at the point of purchase the ingredients booklet which Ar-Ex has always supplied consumers, on request.

It's no accident that truly hypo-allergenic cosmetics such as the Air-Ex products have always been distrubuted primarily through drug stores. Other points which distinguish a true hypo-allergenic firm include: formula data is always available to physicians, a patch testing kit is supplied to physicians, and the manufacturer will formulate a product ON PRESCRIPTION when one of its regular low-allergy products proves, after all, to have some ingredient bothersome to a particular person.

Firms Not Doctors

In other words, allergies are a medical field, and the firm which makes products for women with cosmetic allergies has to be medically oriented. It can produce a standard line of products eliminating allergens, but it must also work on individual cases. No general cosmetics firm can do any such thing. In addition, firms such as Ar-Ex DO NOT MAKE products which they have not yet been able to formulate in a low-allergy manner. For instance, it was a number of years before they wre able to bring out hypo-allergenic hair sprays, or nail polishes or certain kinds of eye makeup such as mascara.

Why does it take so long? First of all, it is often very difficult to create a satisfactory formula which eliminates the common ingredients that regular cosmetics companies are using. (Plese note, again, that these ingredients are perfectly all right for the vast majority of women.) Second, when a substitute formula has been found, it must be widely tested on women known to be allergic to the regular products. The tests have to go on for some time, as allergies often don't appear the minute something is used. It's more usual for an allergy to pop up after considerable use, so the hypo-allergenic formula itself must be given sufficient time to prove out.

Most such testing is carried on through dermatologists and allergiests, medical specialists in these fields, not on the general population, as is done with most other cosmetics. Medical literature is constantly studied, too. The Ar-Ex Professional Formulary lists well over a hundred articles from medical publications.

What You Can Do

What conclusions should the consumer draw from all this information?

1. You do not have an allergy unless a doctor says you do.

2. Persistent symptoms, such as a rash, drying and cracking of the skin anywhere, redness and swelling of the skin anywhere, nasal or respiratory difficulties, should all be referred to a physician for diagnosis.

3. A "hypo-allergenic" cosmetic refers only to specific substances which cause some people trouble, but not to the general population.

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

St. James United Methodist Church will be the scene of the April 7 wedding ceremony of Linda Jefferson and Ed. Glenn.

Linda met Ed while they were students at Converse College, Spartanburg, S. C., where she graduated with a B. A. in French. She is presently employed at the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C., as coordinator of the control center.

Ed is now working on his Master's degree at Catholic University, Washington, while serving military with the U. S. Navy Band as a featured soloist.

He graduated with a B. M. in music performance, Converse, with intermittent study at Brevard Music Center, Brevard, for four years.

A thought-provoking new education program called "Role Identity: Who's Who?" provides the theme for J C Penney's spring 1973 program for local and state home economists and consumer educators.

Approximately 250 educators from the Raleigh, Greenville and Goldsboro area are expected to attend the program on Tuesday, Feb. 20. The program will be held at Jones Auditorium, Meredith College.

Miss Libby Harrison of New York City, J C Penney field home economist, will give the presentation. As part of the presentation, new teaching materials developed by the company's Educational and Consumer Relations Department will be previewed.

She will involve the educators attending in communication techniques which would be particularly applicate to teaching role identity. She will also indicate ways educators can help students to identify their roles and to define new methods of communicating concepts about roles which meet the needs of today's young people.

The program will begin at 4 p.m. and continue until 7:45 p.m. and will include dinner.

Navy Women Live As Civilians And 'Like It'

By KATHEY CLAREY
Fresno Bee Writer

LEMOORE, Calif. (AP) — While some women may be starting to go down to the sea in ships, the WAVES at Lemoore Naval Air Station are staying on land in jobs they could be doing as civilians.

"It's more like normal life than I thought it would be," said Carolyn Kropp, an airplane parts supply clerk for NAS Lemoore. "I do the same job a person would do on the outside except I wear a uniform and I'm on 24-hour call."

So why did she join the service? The reason is the old one of joining the Navy and seeing the world, at least the world away from her native Kansas.

Other reasons a modern young woman might join the service could be cited by other WAVES: better opportunities, better pay and a desire to serve their country.

What they find may or may not be what they expected. The stereotype of everyone rising at the same early hour, standing in a long barracks for inspection and marching around in formation is not true. Most WAVES get out of bed the same time as their civilian counterparts to be on a job that starts between 8 and 9 a.m. They leave the job after eight hours and are free unless they have to stand watch.

"I feel I'm very independent," said Miss Kropp. "The Navy is paying me to do a job so I do it, but it is still my life."

RM2 Mickie Dutton, a recruit from Missouri, serves as master at arms. Her duties include setting up fire watches and general supervision of the barracks. However, she prefers her duty as teletype operator in communications and hopes to return there as soon as a new master-at-arms is assigned.

Although she likes the service, she does not believe it is for every woman. "If she's going to get out and get a job for herself, she will get a better deal in the Navy," she explained. "But if she's not a little independent, she won't make it in the service."

"You can get ahead but it isn't easy. You have to work for it," said Lt. (j.g.) Lillian Williams, legal officer for her squadron. Her job, that of counseling enlisted personnel on various matters of discipline, is not an exclusively male or female one.

"It depends on who's qualified and who's interested," Lt. Williams explained, in a voice that reflects her Mississippi background.

"I was head of public affairs and educational services but I wanted legal services so I went to school in San Diego for three weeks to become qualified. In this job you administer law, you don't practice it."

The young officer is now looking into the intelligence and human relations programs and with the new ruling allowing women on ships, she is turning her attention seaward. But she does not forsee any overnight changes in the status of WAVES.

"I don't think women will be really used on ships until five or 10 years from now," she said. "I think the Navy did it now to get ready for the equal rights amendment."

Equal rights is something Personnel Chief LaDonna Walsh believes can be found more often in the service than in civilian life. She noted that the most important change she has seen during her 18-year career has been the opening of many more occupational fields and positions to women. WAVE air traffic controllers and firefighters and women serving in squadrons were unheard of when she joined the service in the mid-50s.

"You have more opportunity here than as a civilian," she said.

She has no plans to run away to sea for she will be retiring in two years and she does not see anything "major" in women being on ships. "We've had WAVES on hospital ships before," she said. "I don't know about combat ships, but I don't see any reason why women can't fill these billets."

Asked if the new opportunity for women to be on ships would encourage more to join the service, Lt. Lavonne De Laere, station personnel officer, replied she believes it will be "a hindrance rather than an asset" to recruiting.

"It's an added detriment because women on ships are still thought of as 'ho, ho, what a morale booster.' Everyone will think they're joining just to be on ships with all those men," she said.

Members Hear Mrs. Derrick

"A Family Reunion in Europe" was the program Tuesday when the Seira Book Club held its first meeting of the new year at the home of Mrs. Gretchen W. Goodwin.

Mrs. J.O. Derrick presented the program. She explained that the motivation for the reunion was that Lt. Jack H. Derrick was stationed in Germany. Each of the Derrick children traveled with friends across Europe to meet their parents for reunions in England, Germany, and Scandinavia.

In Copenhagen, Denmark, the five Derricks were the guests of the family of Svend Eric Plum, a former exchange student at Rose High School. While in Greenville, he lived with the W.W. Smileys.

Mrs. Derrick illustrated her talk with slides showing scenes from 14 countries.

Mrs. John Reynolds, President of the club, presided over the business session and welcomed the guests, Mrs. Nell Willard, mother of the hostess, and Mrs. R.E. Corbett.

Egg whites coagulate at a lower temperature than yolks; so, when whole eggs are used in custard, greater care to prevent curdling is needed than when the custard is made only with yolks.

Mrs. Roberson Gives Program Tuesday Night

"Public Relations and Action" was given by Mary Roberson at the Tuesday night meeting of the Greenville Credit Women International.

She stated that the public relations is a phenomenon and a necessity of the times. Public relations for business today involves complete analysis and understanding of all the factors which influence people's attitudes toward a company.

That is one reason why it is so important for a business to have the ability to attract the best personnel or people which have the personalities to deal with the public.

In summing up her program, Mrs. Roberson stated, the great goal of business is to achieve customers, not just sales. Anything can be sold but an organization becomes successful as it develops customers who come back again and again. Good public relations is the key.

It was announced by President Clara Seago that the Greenville, Kinston and Rocky Mount Clubs would meet at the Baron and Beef in Kinston March 15 for a group program on "Unity."

Two new club members recognized were Lynne Brown and Janey Beaman.

Plans for a $100 scholarship to be given to an ECU business student were discussed and will be decided by the first of February.

Plans are being made for the club's annual "birthday night" which will be held March 20.

On The Young Side

By MARY CHARLES STEVENS

Planning field trips and striving for a better SGA have kept Rose High students busy this week.

Several Spanish students are going to Spain for the Easter holidays. They will fly from New York on April 15 and return April 23. Most of their time will be spent in Madrid watching bull fights, touring the Prada Museum of Art, seeing Bernabeu Stadium and finding they don't know as much Spanish as they thought they did.

Going on this trip are Kate Welch, Charetta Reid, Jackie Roberson, Shirley Jones, Lou White, Betty Bartlett, Carey Condra, and Myrna Sawyers.

The Art Club is planning a field trip to the East Carolina School of Art tomorrow afternoon right after school. They will observe the college students working on printing, ceramics, painting, etc. and will notice the amount of space and type of equipment used. This trip will especially help those who are planning to major in art.

Art Club members are responsible for arranging the show case in the student commons.

Active members include Chairman-John Leggett; Co-chairman-Margot Schall; Secretaries-Linn Winbourne and Carletta Merritt; Publicity Chairman-Carol Ostrow; Program Chairman-Karen Buck; Members of the Poster Committee-Carol Cline, William Taft, and James FDavis.

Other members include Debi Massey, Doreen Duff, Ann Brown, Myrna Sawyers, Beverly Joyner, Linn Briley, John Leggett, and Lynn Bullock.

Advisors are Mr. Parker, Miss Boone, and Mrs. Privette.

Art Shows

There are three art shows coming up soon concerning high school students. The first of these is the Junior Woman's Club Art Festival, Feb. 7 at the Junior Woman's Club Building. The exhibit will only be opened one day.

The Woman's Club Art Festival is March 2 and 3 in the Woman's Club building. The Greenville Art Center will have a big showing March 4 in the Art Center. The public is urged to attend.

The Health Careers Club is planning to visit Duke Hospital soon to view the excellent facilities. Many of the members work as either Candy Stripers or hospital aides at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Peggy Shea, Denette Penny, LuAnn Snowden, Kathy McConnell, Debra Manning, Layne Clark, Wanda Stancil, Marjorie Paramore, Cathy Daughtery, Brenda Heath, Kim Phelps, Linda Blackwell, Bunny Davis, Robin Smith, Faith Enthistle, Vickie Saulter, Frances Doyle and Mike Indorf.

Advisor is Leroy Foster.

SGA Meeting

Gail Molic and Gail Shaw have started taking notes during SGA meetings to be mimeographed and sent to teachers to read during home-room. This was started to make SGA members feel free to participate in discussions, since they will not have to worry about taking notes themselves. It takes teamwork and speed writing but the girls enjoy it.

Stuart Wells has begun giving a report concerning the SGA meetings once a week over the intercom. He feels all students should be kept well informed on all school activities.

Stuart is also the chairman of the Humanities Week Planning Committee. He writes a Teacher's Tele Guide twice a week to keep teachers informed when educational specials will be. Students may also receive copies if they ask their English teacher.

New Methods Aid Learning Spanish

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Spanish is fast becoming America's second language and "hablo espanol" may become a more familiar response than "I don't speak Spanish."

The need to communicate with a growing population of Spanish-speaking people and the importance of other languages in travel and business are providing impetus for many Americans to attend language schools where new methods of teaching are helping to simplify learning.

In fact, a language school explosion has resulted. So says Irene E. Gorman of Palo Alto, Calif., former security analyst and school teacher, in explaining the rapid growth of the 26 language schools she heads as president — all directed by women — and the plans to open 10 additional schools this winter. The schools use a system based on one devised by linguist Maurice Sullivan when he was charged with training American officers in German for the Nuremberg trials.

"People are studying Spanish for a variety of needs," she observed. "Doctors, attorneys, professors, nurses, pilots, stewardesses, real estate operators are using Spanish in their work."

Policemen and government agency people in California are studying it to deal with Spanish-speaking people. Rudy Vallee studied it to incorporate Spanish songs into his act. Even the Japanese are learning Spanish to cope in bilingual areas. Kathy Crosby studied Spanish because she has a house in Mexico — and she went on to learn German in two months before she went to the Olympic games. For his role in "The Cop," Richard Crenna studied French.

Many business firms are enrolling employes, Miss Gorman explained. Sears Roebuck has begun projects in Spanish and French for buyers and management people who work with foreign nations. Some businesses are giving language breaks for study instead of coffee breaks. And apparently one is never too old to learn — there are many septuagenarians in the classes.

Languages taught at the Sullivan Language Schools are limited to Spanish, French, German or English, which satisfy the needs of 90 per cent of applicants. The scientific approach used to develop the courses — now being introduced in some public schools — takes many years of evaluation.

Sullivan's original method of teaching during the trials was with wire recorders, forerunners of today's tape recorders. In 1958, with a grant from the Carnegie Foundation, he engaged in a pilot study to relate his method to teaching machines which are now used at the schools.

"The system requires nothing to be memorized, no conjugation of verbs, no lists of vocabulary," Miss Gorman explained. "All four language skills — reading, writing, listening, understanding — are taught simultaneously. It is based on a theory that a person learns by responding to questions which are put to him on tape in a native language. Parts of speech are learned by the construction of sentences which break down the language to the simplest components of sound and structure."

In a little room with a console and a book at his side, a student is asked questions that are either on tape in the native language or in the book. Answers are given orally or written in the book. The tape also provides answers. The student is expected to be conversant after 30 hours, but he proceeds at his own pace. The theory is a person's learning takes place in responses, and that he becomes encouraged as he becomes aware of his ability to learn.

In public schools where the method, "Project Speak," has been introduced, schools rent cassettes, headsets and portable audio equipment. Teachers are taught how to let an entire classroom proceed at each individual's pace, Miss Gorman explained.

Television Chef Turns To Design

By EVE SHARBUTT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — What it boils down to is whether or not people believe that a man who leaps over chairs can make good lobster bisque.

Even expert chef Graham Kerr, who was television's galloping gourmet from 1961-1970, cannot leap over chairs forever. The cook-turned-kitchen designer has recently published a collection of every recipe he ever cooked on television and says this will be his last major cookbook.

"I never had the luxury to do the same dish twice in 200 shows," said Kerr. "Now I have begun a designing career and I believe it will be more successful than anything I've ever done before. And I'll have time to do some cooking for my family."

His family — wife Treena, who produced his television show, and three children — figure largely in his new life-style.

A planned sabbatical became an enforced leave early this year when doctors discovered that Treena Kerr had tuberculosis.

"At first they thought it might be cancer, that she might have only 15 months to live. In two weeks, I changed substantially. The fact that she was worn down enough to have even TB, from all the pressures of our activities, fairly well assured that we would change our way of living," Kerr said.

He was lucky. He had something else he really enjoyed — sailing.

"We own a sporty sail boat, an ocean racer, and I've built a kitchen and a workroom aboard. I'll be developing new kitchen designs and testing them, starting right at the bottom of the barrel again but without deadlines or compromise."

The Kerr family will begin their new way of living next year, sailing around the world, touching at various ports when the whim strikes. And, if all goes well and they like it, Kerr has already begun designing a new concrete sail boat.

The handsome Englishman has already marketed cookwear, cutting boards, knives and other kitchen implements of his design.

"The cookwear was, I think, too expensive. But we've developed a new method of manufacture and we will market a new kind of cookwear. I'm especially proud of my chopping board, which will last generations. It took us two and a half years to find the right tree to make our spurtles from. It's a Formosan hay natural hardwood from Taiwan."

Kerr is into 117 new projects, among them kitchen appliances. A design dear to his heart is a round dining table with a pedestal base through which electric wires would warm a lazy susan type server.

Have Problems Sent To Dear Abby Changed?

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1973 By Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR READERS: I am frequently asked, "Has your mail changed much over the years since you've become Dear Abby?"

Yes. And one of the greatest changes is the increasing number of letters I receive asking, "Shall I put my elderly parent in a nursing home?"

Recently, I read an impressive editorial in a medical bulletin concerning that problem. It was written by Dr. Graham Gilmer, Jr., an Orange, Cal., physician. With his permission [and my minor editing,] I want to share it with you.

[From the diary of a woman we shall call Jane]

July 5, 1972

DEAR DIARY: Today, my 80-year-old father, Henry, came to live with us. Not that it's such a big deal, it's only that I should have known it wouldn't work out. When Mother died suddenly two years ago, Dad insisted that he could live alone in the home he and mother had built for their retirement. He seemed to be managing nicely until one day I found him sick in bed with the flu, alone with nothing to eat.

My husband agreed that we should build an apartment for Dad over our garage, adjoining our house. That way we could look after Dad and he would have a little place of his own.

July 15, 1972

DEAR DIARY: I don't know how much of this I can take! Dad comes over here at least 40 times a day asking me what day it is, and when is Mother coming home? Today he put his arm around me and called me "Mildred," —thinking I was my own mother.

He babbles constantly and sometimes he makes no sense at all. He wets his pants and even messes in his bed and his trousers. What a chore! Why didn't I put him in a nursing home? It would have made life so much easier for us. Meanwhile, my brothers and sisters keep telling me what a "saint" I am, but they don't offer to take him off my hands. I have my own life to live and Dad is 80. Dear God, help me!

July 24, 1972

DEAR DIARY: I am so ashamed, I can hardly write this. Today I unpacked a trunk Dad stored in my attic after Mother died. Among the things Mother had saved was a packet of letters Dad had written to her over 50 years ago when Mother left Daddy and me to return to her hometown to help her own mother care for her ailing father.

I will quote parts of Dad's letters to Mother:

My Darling Mildred, January 19, 1920

You'll never know how much I miss you. It seems I've done nothing but change Jane's diapers since you left. She babbles constantly, but is completely unintelligible. Hope you'll be back soon. — Your Loving Henry

January 26, 1920

My Darling Mildred,

Jane is progressing some, but sometimes think she's retarded. At 19 months shouldn't she be toilet trained? Sure hope you'll be home soon. By the way, where do you keep the extra diapers? Jane soils them faster than I can launder them. — Lovingly, Henry.

August 5, 1920

My Precious Mildred,

It was so wonderful to have you home for those few days. Maybe if we had brought your father here to live with us he would have lasted longer. Even tho he was senile you seemed to calm him down. Maybe the "Poor Farm" was not the place for him to have gone.

In your absence, my biggest problem is Jane. She jabbers constantly at two years old, asking the same questions over and over. She still soils her pants. I am counting the days until you come home to stay. I need you desperately to help me care for our "problem" child. — Devotedly, Henry

DEAR DIARY: I have a confession to make. Shakespeare's "Cycle of Life" was right. "From the cradle to the grave." How could I have missed the fact that the diaper

"And I feel great. I eat 3 well-balanced, satisfying meals every day plus snacks. I'm never hungry.

"Let it rain. I've got too much going for me at Weight Watchers."

Truk Lagoon Holds Ruins Of Big Fleet

By ROBERT C. MILLER

MOEN, Truk (UPI) — The military power of pre-war Japan lies entombed in the cobalt waters of Truk Lagoon and buried in the jungle of tiny Etan Island.

More than 60 Japanese ships were sunk insidehhe 40-mile-wide atoll which for 30 years was Japan's secret Pearl Harbor and South Pacific bastion. From here were launched the attacks on Midway, Guadalcanal and New Guinea. Once this anchorage housed the most powerful armada ever assembled by man.

Today there is little surface evidence that Truk, its 12 volcanic islands, strategic location in the eastern Carolines and nerve center of Japan's pacific fleet was once an impregnable fortress housing some 40,000 Japanese.

But just below waters of Truk Lagoon lie the coral-encrusted wrecks of destroyers, tankers, submarines and cargo ships, most of them sunk in the massive American carrier strikes of Feb. 17 and 18, 1944. There is the submarine tender Rio de Janeiro Maru lying 50 feet below the surface off Uman Island, the 300-foot-long freighter Gosei Maru only six feet under water, and the armed aircraft ferry Fujikawa Maru—still loaded with Zero fighter planes—whose two rusty masts stick out of the water as tethering posts for sports divers.

Most tragic of the sinkings that February dawn was the submarine I-169 which purposely dived to the bottom to escape the American attack. But an unclosed valve crippled the big sub and she was unable to surface when the raid ended. For three days Japanese divers listened in anguish to the coded messages beat out with hammers by the doomed crew. The last faltering ping came on Feb. 20. Three months later salvage crews found 64 bodies trapped inside the sunken hull.

Two Bombers

Two Japanese bombers lie in the clear 30-foot waters off Etan Island, belts of ammunition still in the machine guns and bombs under the wings. They were part of the estimated 265 planes destroyed on the airfields at Etan, Moen and Para, or trying to take off during the surprise attack.

Truk's newest hotel, the 56-room Truk Continental, was built on the former seaplane base at Moen Island whose fighter strip now handles international jets. The shrub-covered air raid shelters on the hotel grounds were jammed with masses of sweating humanity during the two days and a night that the big raid lasted, and were in continual use throughout the last 18 months of the war when Truk became a besieged Japanese fortress in the middle of an Allied-owned ocean.

Lino Nedlic, who fled into the hills when the first bombs hit, said only Japanese were allowed in the shelters and the scores of caves which pock-marked the main islands.

"None of us Trukese were ever allowed on Etan after the war began," Nedlic said. "Even though it was my home island."

Barefooted, Lino led the way ashore at Etan up what's left of the Japanese seaplane ramp. He points to the meticulously squared blocks of rock which the Japanese and Korean laborers built into six-foot-high walls to hold the filled-in coral for their airfields. Coconut trees now grow out of what was the fighter strip, and off to the left lies the ghostly wreckage of a Zero entangled in vines and undergrowth. Part of the oxidized metal was put to good use—to build a makeshift pig pen on what was once the asphalted tarmac.

Stole Sweet Potatoes

"We stole the sweet potatoes from the Japanese gardens at night," Lino confessed with a soft chuckle. "Only way we keep alive. We also eat noburs which Japanese never find out was good eating," he added, reaching up to a small tree and picking off a soft, squashy fruit. "Tastes bad, but it kept us alive."

The stocky Trukese plunged into the mass of greenery and found a trail that threaded inland past an overgrown bunker that the visitor nearly stumbled over before realizing what it was.

Around another bend the huge concrete navy headquarters looked out of the jungle like a lost Mayan temple. Trees and bushes grow out of the blasted three-foot-thick walls. A rusting stove pipe protrudes from an adjoining massive blockhouse, the exhaust pipe for the disel generators once housed here in what was the command's power plant.

Farther along the trail is the two-story barracks, storehouse and mess all with immense square pillars of concrete supporting the reinforced concrete ceiling. Armor-piercing bombs have blasted holes in the meter-thick walls, exposing a web of rusty, tangled reinforcing rods now intertwined with morning glorys. The carnage, the blood, the torn bodies and the agony that filled these supposedly impregnable rooms when the bombs hit can only be imagined by those not there, and never forgotten by those who were there and survived. An unvarnished table with a vase full of wilted flowers seems weirdly out of place in this massive concrete shell.

Camellia Blooms From Far East

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Senior Editor

CHARLESTON, S.C. (UPI) — The camellia, an Oriental flower named for a Jesuit missionary who never saw one, now is in full bloom in southern gardens.

Many gardeners and florists think the camellia's delicate blossoms surpass even orchids and roses in beauty.

It is a member of the same botanical family as the tea bush, and the first specimens were brought to America from the Orient in the 18th century by traders who hoped to establish tea plantations in coastal Carolina.

There is evidence that wily Chinese, determined to keep their lucrative tea monopoly, sold the ornamental floral species of the plant to traders who thought they were buying the kind of tea plant whose leaves, infused in hot water, produced the world's favorite beverage.

If this story is true, it was a most felicitous swindle. When the "tea plants" were set out in Occidental gardens, they yielded, instead of tea leaves, a profusion of white, pink and red flowers of exquisite beauty.

The Swedish botanist Carolus Linnaeus, who never laid eyes on a Camellia, named the flowering plant in honor of George Joseph Kamel, a Jesuit missionary to the Philippines, who never saw one either.

The first camellias brought to the United States were planted in 1787 in the gardens of Middleton Place Plantation near Charleston. Three of the original plants—now the size of trees—still flourish and may be seen by visitors to the gardens, which are open to the public. The nearby Magnolia Gardens also have more than 1,000 varieties of camellias.

Winter Bloomers

Although the first camellia importations came from China, the opening of U.S. trade with Japan in 1859 marked the beginning of a new era of camellia culture in America. The Japanese, who call the plant Tsubaki, had developed scores of magnificent varieties, ranging in color from white through shades of pink to deep red. These flowers, known collectively as Camellia Japonicas, or Japanese camellias, now are the dominant varieties in U.S. gardens.

Unlike many floral plants, camellias bloom in the winter.

The flowering season begins before Christmas, reaches its peak in January or February, and ends by early spring.

Camellias can be grown in greenhouses in almost any part of America. They grow in outdoor gardens mainly in the South and in the warmer sections of California. In protected situations, camellias may survive as far north as Long Island. But they rarely produce many blooms above the Mason-Dixon line. And they still thrive best in the area where they first were planted in America —coastal Carolina.

Cultivate Camellias' Colors

For years, flower breeders have tried to develop new varieties of camellias that would extend their natural color range into the blue and yellow portions of the spectrum. These efforts so far have produced only spotty and uncertain results. If a yellow camellia were to bloom in any U.S. garden this year, it would be sensational news throughout the flower world.

But breeders have been successful in turning out scores of new varieties of camellias bearing white, pink, salmon-colored, red or combined red-and-white or pink-and-white blossoms.

Another perennial favorite is Pink Perfection, a prolific bearer of small pink blossoms.

Create Camellia Corsages

Other widely-favored camellias include Lady Kay, which produces red-and-white blooms; Jennie Mills, a silvery pink which verges on lavender and comes about as close to the long-sought blue tone as horticulturists have managed to get; and Lady Clare, a hardy bloomer with a long season. Its semi-double red blossoms are often used by florists in corsages.

Dear Abby . . .

of the infant is a prelude to the diaper of senility?

Until I found Dad's letters to Mother, I regretted not having put Dad in a nursing home. Not that that's so bad, but what he really needs more than anything else is a family's love and care. It's inconvenient, and extra work, but now it's my turn to repay him at the end of his life for what he did for me at the beginning of mine.

Someday, he may yet best fit into some nursing home, and when [and if] that day comes, I will consider his own best interests. Until then, his letters to Mother will haunt my innermost soul.

Hotel Okura In Tokyo Famed For Hospitality

By ROBERT CRABBE

TOKYO (UPI) — In the mid-1960s, a New York lawyer whose work often took him to Tokyo used to visit the Oak Room Bar of the Hotel Okura for an after-work drink.

"Mr. Nixon asked for beer," recalls an Okura executive. "We gave him Japanese Kirin, and he said he liked it very much."

President Richard M. Nixon hasn't sipped beer at the Okura since he changed jobs in 1968. Before that, he stayed at the Okura four times. The hospitality of the elegant hotel is an experience Nixon has in common with Prince Juan Carlos of Spain, Henry Ford II, Princess Shams Pahlavi of Iran, author Eric (Love Story) Segal, Princess Margaret of Britain and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, among others.

The Hotel Okura is the personal monument of the late Baron Kisichiro Okura, a Cambridge-educated Japanese aristocrat who liked to hobnob with the people at the top. He opened his hotel 10 years ago with the aim of catering to the mighty when they were in Japan. He succeeded.

No One Dominates

Before 1962, the historic Imperial Hotel, with its famous original building by architect Frank Lloyd Wright, had a monopoly on what the Japanese call "tonosama shobai," or "doing business with the lords."

In the last decade, elegant hotels have shot up all over the Japanese capital. Today, no single one of them dominates the carriage trade.

Reporters covering the visits of VIPs now go most often to the Okura and the Imperial in quest of news. To a lesser degree, they visit the New Otani and Hilton, built on hilltops in the Akasaka night club district, or the New Keio Plaza, whose 47 stories make it the tallest building in Asia.

Ironically, Baron Okura was a founder and until 1945, president of the Imperial Hotel, of which he later became the chief competitor. After the war, his many-sided business interests got him in trouble with American occupation officials, who were breaking up Japan's big financial families.

In the post-war reshuffle, Okura lost the Imperial, and the Baron retired to a golf course until the Americans left. After losing a bid to regain control of the Imperial, he devoted his final years to creating the Okura.

Although the Okura is a Western hotel—only 11 of its 500 rooms are Japanese style—it makes extensive use of Japanese art themes in its interior decoration.

Fifth Floor Lobby

The Okura is a hillside hotel, built on a slope so steep that the main lobby is on the fifth floor. Choicest of its 500 rooms are two "Imperial Suites" on the eighth and 10th floors for visiting royalty or the non-royal wealthy.

Some guests rent not only an Imperial suite, but the entire floor of the wing on which it is located. The price of this arrangement is 400,000 yen or $1,333 a night.

Henry Ford II rented one floor in this way, and so have New York banker David Rockefeller and members of the Onassis family. Nixon's security adviser, Dr. Henry Kissinger, also was housed the past summer at the Okura under these conditions, but his Japanese hosts footed the bill.

Okura employes remember Kissinger as the most tightly guarded guest they ever served, with "more guards than Princess Margaret or Vice President Agnew."

To serve its sophisticated diners, the Okura has a kitchen staff of 300. They operate six different restaurants specializing in French, Continental European, Japanese and Chinese food, along with a garden restaurant for snacks. There are 30 different banquet rooms and a convention hall.

Despite its willingness to cater, the Okura has one rigid rule: no pets. The hotel has bent the rule only once, for blind American pianist George Shearing, who was allowed to bring his guide dog.

'Fat Albert' Designed By Pilots, And For Pilots

Editor's Note: The C5 Galaxy has been "flying the line" in the U.S. Military Airlift Command slightly more than two years. The world's largest aircraft, nicknamed "Fat Albert," it long ago proved itself a political and financial disaster. But how does it do its job? To find out, UPI Pentagon correspondent Edward K. DeLong recently became the first newsman to fly with operational C5 cargo missions to the Pacific. He spoke with pilots in the air and on the ground; he visited the Oklahoma Air Base where C5 pilots train. Here is his report.

By EDWARD K. DeLONG
United Press International

The world's largest airplane, whining like a mammoth vacuum cleaner, lumbered down the 10,000-foot main runway at Elmendorf Air Force Base in Alaska and climbed ponderously into heavy gray clouds.

The fast-approaching Alaskan twilight carried a threat of snow.

"It's about time we got off," muttered Lt. Col. Donald Bernard, the aircraft commander, as his gray-and-white C5 pointed its huge nose south toward Japan.

Then, handing over the controls to Capt. Frank Jones in the left-hand pilot's seat, Bernard relaxed with a cup of hot coffee in the copilot's seat and talked about what it is like to fly the plane the pilots call "Fat Albert."

"When this bird flies right—and that's most of the time—it's a beauty. It was designed by pilots, for pilots. When everything is working, there's not another plane that can touch it," he said.

"But when you're out on the line and break down, you've got real problems. There aren't enough spare parts, and the maintenance crews haven't really learned how to work on it yet. Too often you have to cannibalize parts off another C5, or wait for them to ship parts from somewhere back in the States."

Bernard spoke from personal experience. His C5 had been broken down at Elmendorf for the past day and a half.

The wiry, dark-haired pilot from Dover, Del., was making his final Air Force flight before he retired—a run to South Vietnam with aircraft engines and a mixed load of cargo. He also was hauling 29 passengers in the cabin over the rear of the cargo hold.

Computer Switched

Bernard got away from Elmendorf by getting one of his plane's two broken auxiliary power units repaired with the only spare one in stock at the Alaskan base, and by swapping one of his two bad navigation computers for the only good computer aboard another C5 broken down there.

The other C5, piloted by Capt. Gary Hoff of Charleston, S.C., had arrived at Elmendorf just a few hours before Bernard and was grounded by a broken hydraulic line.

Elmendorf had no spare C5 hydraulic lines, so a replacement had to be ordered fr m the continental United States and shipped aboard the next plane to Alaska. Since Hoff had to wait for this, maintenance crews took the good computer from his plane and ordered a replacement shipped along with the hydraulic line.

Bernard's comments were typical of those from other C5 pilots in the Military Airlift Command—a mixture of pride in the plane's performance and exasperation at its failures.

During the airlift the C5 carried its heaviest payload, two M48 battle tanks weighing 196,000 pounds, in each of three flights from Yokota, Japan, to Da Nang, South Vietnam.

Mission Is Proved

"There was a lot of sweating about taking that $55 million airplane up to Da Nang, where there was a possibility it could be hit by mortar fire," he told UPI. "But not one C5 was damaged.

"The craft accomplished its mission of getting in and out in minimum time. For the first time, the airplane really proved its mission."

Air Force statistics show that between March 30 and the end of July last year, C5s carrying outsize cargo and heavy equipment, augmented by C141s hauling troops and smaller cargo, flew more than 3,000 special airlift missions to South Vietnam. This was three times the normal rate.

Among the C5 loads in November were about 100 F5 jet fighters, carried three at a time aboard the big transports. No other transport plane could have handled this job.

Almost the same day the C5 began hauling supplies into South Vietnam to combat the spring Communist offensive a published General Accounting Office (GAO) study harshly critical of the big plane was released by Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., one of the Pentagon's toughest critics.

The report noted some problems that have been well publicized and are being fixed—wing cracks, landing gear difficulties, trouble with the pylons that attach the engines to the wings.

But it also said reliability and maintenance may emerge as "major problem areas." The experiences of Bernard and other pilots seem to bear this out.

The Air Force says the picture has improved greatly since the time covered by the GAO report because of aircraft modifications and increased maintenance experience.

Officials estimate the total cost of the C5 program will run $4.45 billion —$1 billion more than the original contract, which called for 120 planes. Some Congressmen have expressed concern that additional modifications may drive the price tag even higher."

Need for Lift Capacity

The complex and often controversial history of the C5 Galaxy goes back to the 1960s, when the U.S. Air Force concluded that it needed a jet airlift capacity that none of its existing planes could provide even with modifications.

The design called for a drive-through cargo compartment, with loading ramps at front and rear for the fastest possible loading and unloading. It also called for passenger space for 70 troops, so drivers could travel in the same airplane their vehicles went in.

The plane had to land on short, 4,000-foot runways close to the front. It had to be able to air-drop troops and equipment.

Lockheed, on Oct. 1, 1965, won the contract to build the world's largest plane. The Georgia company beat out Boeing of Seattle, which commercialized its losing design and came up with the 747 passenger and freighter planes being used by many of the world's airlines.

The C5 looks like an overstuffed version of the C141, which Lockheed also built. But despite their exterior resemblances, the two planes are vastly different—as Lockheed engineers found to their sorrow.

Lockheed's contract was issued under the now-discredited total package procurement policies of former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara. That meant development and production went hand in hand, and that there were no test aircraft on which to find and solve problems.

In 1967, with production already under way, Lockheed had to start a major weight reduction program to make the C5 meet its requirements. To achieve this, structural members in the wings were etched thinner with acid and parts such as hydraulic lines and fittings were made with lighter —and weaker—materials.

The result, Air Force Secretary Robert C. Seamans now says, was that the plane was built "right on the knife's edge" between structural integrity and failure. Beefing up the structure has been a major factor in the climbing price of the plane, as were the weight-reducing changes.

Cost Overrun Reported

Politics entered the C5 picture in 1968, when then-Air Force management expert A.E. Fitzgerald told Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., about the C5 cost overrun problem.

The Air Force vigorously denied the problem at first, and fired Fitzgerald. But it later admitted costs had gotten out of hand and cut its planned buy back from 120 planes to 81.

These and a host of other problems—an engine that broke off just before takeoff, tires that blew out repeatedly, landing gear that would not "kneel," wings that cracked—have given the C5 a bad name in public and in the Congress. Most of these problems have been solved.

Gen. Jack J. Catton, until recently head of the Military Airlift Command, believes "none of these problems associated with the C5 can overshadow the true accomplishments of performance and flexibility offered by this weapons system."

The Air Force works many of the "bugs" out of the C5—and teaches pilots how to fly the craft—at Altus AFB, Okla., in flat farm country just north of the Red River and the Oklahoma-Texas border.

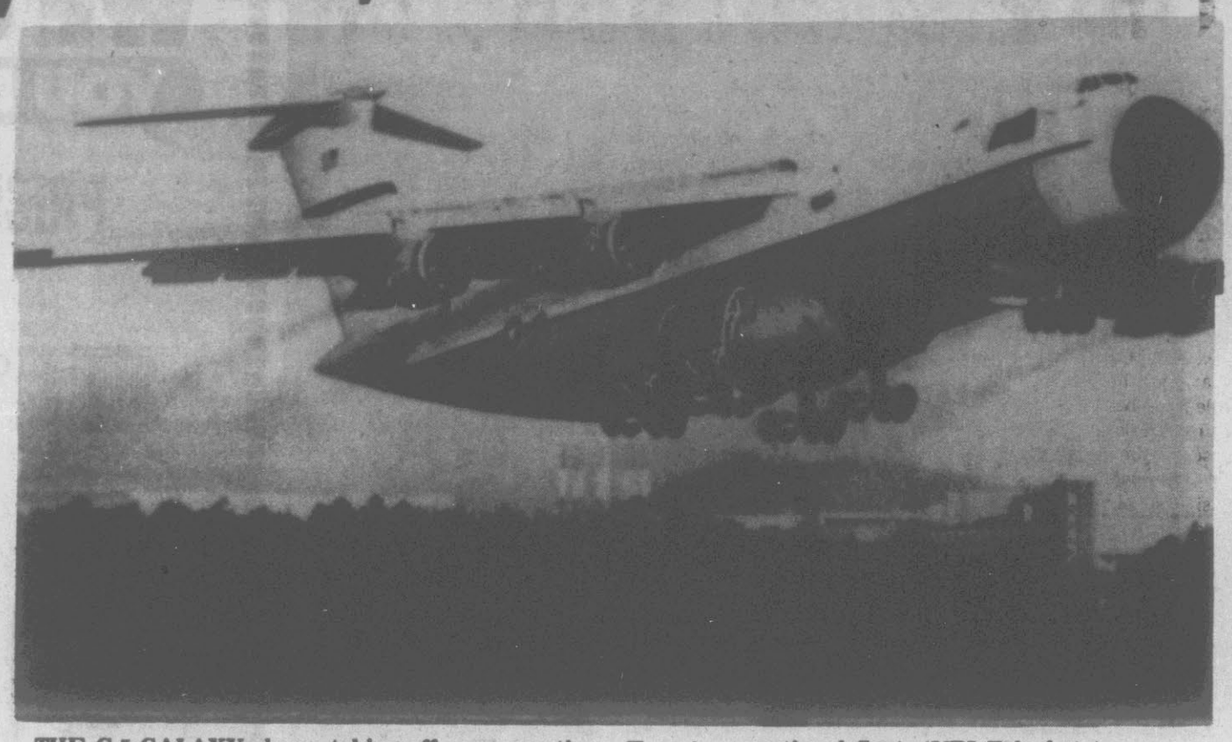

Instructors say the hardest part of C5 training is getting pilots used to the size of the plane.

Its cockpit stands three stories off the ground. Its wings have a span of 223 feet. Its cargo compartment is 121 feet long—longer than the Wright brothers' first flight—and 19 feet wide. The black oval radome on its nose is the size of a swimming pool. The tail soars 63 feet above the runway.

It is at Altus that the maintenance and spare parts problems come to a head.

Maintenance men there, echoing the experience of pilots out on the line, say electronic parts are the hardest to keep up—particularly the two navigation computers on each plane.

Explaining why pilots report they rarely find more than one of the computers operational when they fly, one maintenance man said: "There are just no spares available. When one breaks we have to pull it out, take it to the shop and fix it. Unless we cannibalize another plane, we rarely have a replacement to plug in."

THE C-5 GALAXY shown taking off on a practice mission in Dec. 1969, was the first to join the Air Force's operational fleet. (UPI Telephoto)

Child's Responsibility Should Be Left Up To Child

By DR. HAIM GINOTT

Note to readers: The encounters depicted in my column are designed to serve as a practical guide to improved communication. They are not to be taken literally. They should be adapted to individual situations and individual ways of speaking.

MANY CLASSROOM comedies and tragedies revolve around homework. Children learn to lie about it, copy it from friends, lost it on the way to school, or forget it at home.

Homework is the responsibility of the child and his teachers. Parents should not become passionately involved with homework or grades. Nagging and checking interfere with a child's autonomy. He may fail intentionally, just to demonstrate independence.

In the following case, a teacher helped a mother get her child to assume his responsibility:

Andrew and his mother came rushing into the classroom. Mother said to the teacher, "I'm sorry, Andrew didn't do his homework. I was busy last night."

"Mrs. B.," the teacher said, "homework is between Andrew and me. You're not responsible for his homework."

"But he won't do it if I don't sit there with him," Mother complained.

"Andrew, we've got a problem," the teacher acknowledged, "your mother says you won't do your work if she doesn't sit with you."

"Sometimes I don't know what to do," Andrew defended himself.

"That's a lie," Mother shouted. "You know what to do, you just don't do it."

Teacher nodded at Mother, and said to Andrew, "Oh, you're saying that you don't always know how to go about doing your work. Let's find a solution to this problem."

Andrew was quiet. Mother said, "Ask your teacher when you don't understand."

"Mrs. B.," the teacher said, "That's a wonderful idea. Andrew can ask me to clarify directions anytime he thinks it's necessary."

"O. K.," Andrew agreed.

At the door, the teacher said quietly, "Mrs. B., thank you for letting Andrew assume full responsibility for his homework."

THIS EPISODE illustrates an effective approach to homework:

One morning, at the beginning of the term, 9-year-old Celia came to class with her older brother, a former pupil of her teacher. He said, "Celia forgot to do her homework and was afraid to come to school. I told her you wouldn't be mad. You'd just give her the form to fill out."

"You remembered our procedure," the teacher said, as she handed Celia a form which stated:

Dear Teacher,

I do not have the homework for (Date) to hand in.

It will be ready on (Date).

Sincerely yours,

(Name

"Is this all you do?" asked Celia, "No punishment?" The teacher replied, "Even responsible children, like yourself, sometimes forget to do their homework. I give them a chance to make it up."

The teacher related: I intentionally do not ask children to give reasons for not having their homework on time. I don't push them to make up believable excuses and convincing lies. I take it for granted that they have their reasons, and I give them an opportunity to make up."

A TEACHER'S ROLE is to call childlren to responsibility without doing damage to their self-esteem. This teacher achieved this noble goal.

One Friday, the teacher sent Carla, 10, a note:

Dear Carla:

It has come to my attention that your homework has not been handed in all week. When will it be ready? Please respond in writing. Thank you.

Sincerely yours,
Miss Blank

On Tuesday, two notes were on the teacher's desk.

Dear Miss Blank,

My homework will be ready on Thursday. This week's homework will be ready Friday or next Monday. O. K.?

Love,
Carla

The other note was from Carla's mother.

Dear Teacher,

Many blessings. For the first time, Carla didn't do her homework and I wasn't involved. I don't have to tell you what the other teachers made me do. Thank you very much. This is a pleasure.

Sincerely,
Carla's Mother

Mother's interference in a child's responsibility embarrasses him and destroys his autonomy.

Age Seems To Help Most People's IQ

By ROBERT STRAND

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Nearly everyone's IQ seems to get higher as he gets older, at least until middle age--except that of above-average girls. They barely get smarter at all.

That fascinating set of facts is the work of Dr. Katherine Bradway, a San Francisco psychologist, who did a follow-up IQ study showing the median IQs of a group of 48 youngsters tested in 1931 have steadily and dramatically risen ever since.

The youngsters were among the original group used as a basis for standards devised for the Stanford-Binet intelligence quotient test.

Male subjects with IQs around 100 as children leaped 27 points. Girls starting with slightly below 100 IQs jumped 26 points. Other groups went ahead almost as much—but girls with above-average IQs only picked up 7 points.

The psychologist thinks she may know why the bright girls did not get much brighter. Perhaps they decided—unconsciously—it was not a good idea to be too bright.

"Perhaps they didn't have the things they really wanted out of life, such as dating and popularity," Dr. Bradway said.

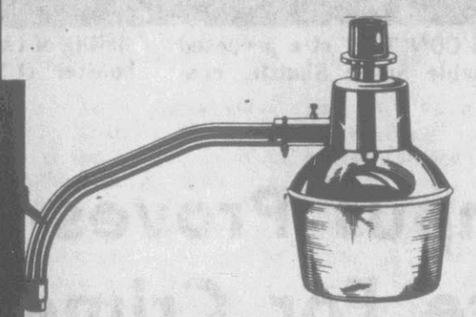

"It's possible that they unconsciously began inhibiting their intellectual growth, and this became a pattern enduring in later life."

Another possibility may be that the bright girl, now middle-aged, did not get enough stimulation on the job, or as a housewife.

"For women, salvation didn't depend on being bright. For men, it often does."

A housewife's biggest challenge may be her task as a nice hostess, Dr. Bradway said.

Space Shuttle Economies May Permit Lunar Base

ARTIST'S CONCEPT of a proposed NASA reusable Space Shuttle, consisting of two stages, an orbiter and a booster. (UPI Telephoto)

By JOSEPH ST. AMANT

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Used car lots were an outgrowth of mass production and built-in longevity in the early days of the automobile. Now, with space age progress will we see used moon buggy lots?

A new and different course has been taken by the United States in its aerospace program with the space shuttle project developing reusable vehicles which will save millions, perhaps billions of dollars.

The shuttle will use a primary spacecraft that can return to earth and land under its own power, be serviced and blasted into orbit again. Landing vehicles which descend to the moon or planets will be retrievable and reusable. The moon buggies, worth $2 million each, will be brought back to earth, get a lube job and a change of oil and go back into service.

With the space shuttle, there will be no more litter bugs on the moon or the planets—at least as far as the United States is concerned.

The Apollo 17 expedition, last in the line, left $98.6 million worth of equipment on the moon. The entire Apollo program, which cost $25 billion, left $517.28 million worth of gear on the lunar surface.

Moon Shuttle Service

Wernher Von Braun, the German-born missile expert and key figure in planning America's space explorations, recently discussed the concept of reusable spacecraft. He said Americans going to the moon will take off in the space shuttle, go into low orbit and change ships—to a two-stage reusable tug—and go into lunar orbit. They will descend to the lunar surface in a reusable tug equipped with landing legs and capable of reascent to lunar orbit.

"With the introduction of reusable vehicles," he said, "the cost of transporting people and payload to the moon will be so drastically reduced that it will become feasible to establish semi-permanent bases on the moon, somewhat on the Antarctica model.

"Lunar surface vehicles will not be limited to a radius of action of a dozen miles, but will be used on long traverses across the entire face of the moon."

The layman may wonder why explore space any further? Haven't we spent enough? Haven't we learned enough?

Space scientists reply that we go into space to take a look at earth, a constantly reptitive look, to detect changes visible from no other vantage point.

Three Billion Astronauts

The space shuttle, scientists say, will give man a good look at water resources, land use, water and air pollution, oil and mineral deposits.

Wernher Von Braun says:

"Earth resources surveys is another expanding goal for space applications. It has been said that earth is a spaceship with three and one-half billion astronauts and no captain, coasting through the universe with an unknown destination. We could add that the survival of these astronauts depends on an extremely sensitive life support system that they are polluting and abusing at a rate that one could think they are planning to kill themselves.

"And while they are rapidly depleting their limited supplies, they are multiplying like rabbits... It should be obvious that a systematic survey of the earth's resources is one of the most pressing tasks of our time.

"In space jargon, we call 'resources' everything man needs for his survival: food crops, timber to build houses, fresh water, wildlife and marine life—to hunt and fish, minerals, fossil fuel and last but not least, remaining unused land for his future use. ERTS-A, the world's first operational resource survey satellite, is presently swamping the data centers with a wealth of new information, and it will probably take quite a while before the wheat has been separated from the chaff and we fully understand how to put the maze of new resources data to full use."

Sensors located on space platforms will be able to provide more accurate and up-to-date information on natural changes than that provided by satellites such as ERTS, said officials at North American Rockwell, which has a $2.6 billion contract to get the space shuttle started and to operate it for six years.

Inflight operation of space platforms provides the opportunity for maneuverability and investigation of specific areas.

Seats Ten Plus Payola

A brochure prepared by North American Rockwell says:

"Manned participation will add new dimensions to useful application of space technology. The space shuttle can safely and comfortably transport up to 10 scientists, technicians, and astronauts into orbit while delivering payloads. This permits the direct participation in space experiments and observations by the top men and women in their fields, no longer limiting space flight to intensively trained, physically trained astronauts."

Manned service and maintenance of satellites on-orbit will be possible for the first time with the space shuttle.

The time schedule calls for the first horizontal flight of the orbiter in 1976.

In 1977, unmanned vertical flight tests will be made. The first manned orbital test flight will be made in early 1978. The first operational flight will be made in 1979 and the full schedule of 60 shuttle flights per year will go into effect by the end of 1982.

The cost over a 10-year period is expected to be about $1 billion a year—but aerospace experts believe it is a low price to help man survive in the environment he seems to be destroying.

Campus Proves Fertile Place For Crime Wave

By PATRICIA MC CORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Joe and Jane College, trusting souls, think everyone on campus is straight as a straight pin.

As a result, Joe and Jane lose valuables to thieves who find the academic scene fertile for hockable items — typewriters, cameras, watches, musical instruments, sports equipment, jewelry.

Says a police chief in one college town:

"College students, especially those who have matriculated at large universities and who are living away from home for the first time in an atmosphere of reduced restraints are extremely vulnerable to the criminal element stalking this type of environment in search of easy prey."

Chief Thomas J. Sardino of Syracuse, N.Y., does his saying in a college "Security and Safety" guide.

"Do not believe 'it can't happen to me,'" Sardino tells readers of the guide at Syracuse University. His advice applies to college students everywhere. The problem of thefts on campus is nationwide.

Protecting Health and Welfare

What students can do to reduce their chances of becoming a crime statistic is outlined by R.D. Flaherty, director of Safety and Security at Syracuse. Crime Control Teams under his direction share with the police department a concern for the "welfare and life safety of students."

The safety precautions of use to students anywhere:

—Self Protection. When alone in an office or room after hours or in the evening keep doors locked. If you leave office or room for only a few minutes, close and lock the door. This way, you will be sure no one is inside waiting for you when you return. Never prop open a door for someone who will be joining you later. A propped open door destroys the best security plans and is an open invitation to undesirables.

—At night, walk where there is plenty of light and traffic.

Avoid the dark vacant areas on campus. Never walk alone. Do not hitchhike. It is illegal and dangerous.

—Protecting personal property. Record serial numbers, model and brand name and description of valuable items. Keep a duplicate copy in a separate location. Never leave a wallet or purse lying on top of a desk or dresser. Keep a record of credit card numbers. Require identification and authorization from service men wanting to do work in your room or office or wanting to remove items for servicing. Never lend equipment or keys to strangers. Keep your car locked and take the keys. Don't leave packages and personal items in full view inside.

"Be Security-Conscious"

How else students can help? By being alert and observant. "Make notes of persons committing suspicious acts, and notify your supervisor (or proper authority)," the guide suggests.

"Report all locks, windows and doors in need of repair, and lights which are out. Be security-conscious at all times."

At Syracuse, as at many college campuses, the anti-theft program includes engraving your social security number on items likely to attract thieves.

Knowing the school's modus operandi for reporting a fire and also governing one's conduct in the event of a fire is something else every Joe and Jane College ought to tuck inside the cranium.

This is part of the "personal safety" plan in the Syracuse guide and includes fire reporting procedure, fire drills, suggestions for safety in case of fire.

The Syracuse guide also contains something that would have been considered a curiosity in safety guides of a generation ago. That is—a few words about bail procedure.

"Any SU student who is in need of borrowing bail monies in the Syracuse area should contact the Student Association ... which has a limited bail fund available..."

Bible Is In Blue Denim

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Blue Denim Bible, hip pocket size, is true to its title. It has an authentic cotton denim cover—just right to capture the hip pockets of all jean wearers in the youth market. That's everyone.

Published by World Arts Foundation in New York, the Blue Denim Bible's text is the popular American Bible Society's new English translation—Good News for Modern Man. This version is a favorite with Jesus Freaks and others in the youth culture.

The denim covers fit with the new informality accompanying the resurgence of interest in religion — an informality marked by carrying, reading and living with the Holy Bible.

From their pre-teen years through adulthood, potential readers dressed in blue denim jeans or similar casual attire can carry these Bibles wherever they go, stuff them into their pockets, read them as casually as younger children read comic books or older ones, "Mad" magazine.

Illustrated, the Bible in tune with contemporary styles and attitudes is not an ornament to lie around on a table to impress visitors and gather dust. Rather, it is to be referred to and carried about. It makes "Good News" portable.

UCLA Bops Irish For 61st Victory

By JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Writer

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Top-ranked UCLA, led by Bill Walton's rugged all-around play and Keith Wilkes' second-half shooting, set a collegiate basketball record of 61 consecutive victories, relentlessly pounding to a 82-63 triumph over Notre Dame's scrappy Fighting Irish Saturday.

Before a loudly jeering crowd, the Bruins, now 16-0, broke the old record of 60 straight victories set by the University of San Francisco in the mid-1950s in a roughly contested game at the scene of UCLA's last loss, Jan. 23, 1971,

The action in the nationaly-televised game became so tense that usually calm UCLA Coach John Wooden went over to the Notre Dame bench for a finger-shaking conversation with Irish Coach Digger Phelps.

The play under the boards was especially rough, but the 6-foot-11 Walton dominated the inside play with his sky-scraping rebounds and shot-blocking.

After Walton and Larry Farmer set the scoring pace in the first half with 12 points apiece, against Notre Dame's tight zone defense, Wilkes caught fire in the second half for the Bruins with six baskets and wound up the top UCLA scorer with 20 points.

The Bruins hung up their record-breaking feat before a jammed Convention Center crowd of 11,343, which was hostile from the opening, when each Bruins player was booed as he was introduced. Several times, small objects were tossed on the floor at official decisions against the Irish.

Walton did most of the early Bruin scoring, but it was a pair of quick baskets by Farmer which broke UCLA ahead for good at 11 points, 34-23, five minutes before halftime.

Although Walton scored only two field goals in the second half, Wilkes got hot and his pair of baskets midway in the half gave UCLA its biggest margin 61-39.

It was at Notre Dame, that the Bruins were last beaten two years ago when Austin Carr's 46-point spree led the Irish to an 89-82 upset of the Sidney Wicks-led UCLA team.

Notre Dame's 6-9, 235-pound sophomore, John Shumate, led both teams with 21 points, but five field goals came in the second half when Walton let up in his octopus-like defense under the Notre Dame basket and Wooden began substituting with about five minutes left.

San Francisco's Bill Russell-led Dons had established the old 60-game record winning streak through Dec. 15, 1956. The Dons won No. 60 against Chicago Loyola on that date at Chicago Stadium, where UCLA Thursday night also beat Loyola for its 60th in a row.

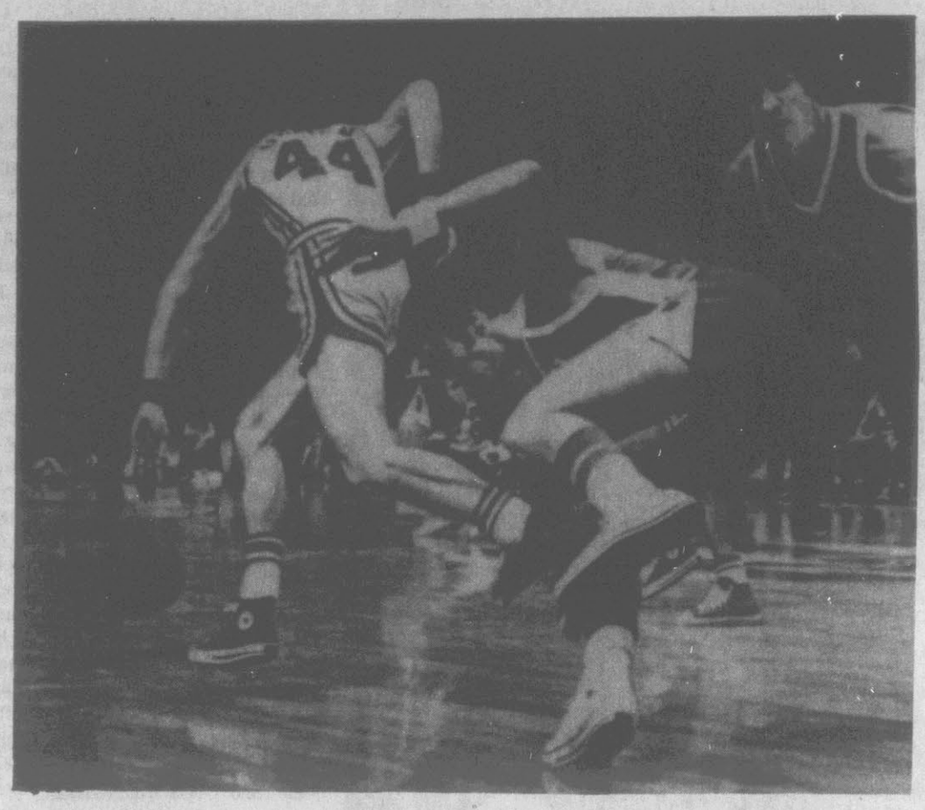

The Dons winning streak was broken two nights later by the University of Illinois at Champaign.

LEXINGTON, Va. — East Carolina University blasted apart the Virginia Military Institute zone defense in the early minutes to run out to a 16-point first half lead, and rolled to a 71-45 victory over the Keydets last night.

The win evened the East Carolina Southern Conference record at 4-4 and could have moved them into third place, depending on the outcome of the Richmond-Citadel game. The Bucs are now 8-7 overall.

The Pirates, battling neck-and-neck with the Keydets for the first few minutes of play, eased out into a 10-8 lead. Then, they exploded with 12 straight points to run out by 14 at 22-8 before the VMI five could find the range again.

The Pirates kept the Keydets on the ropes all evening. VMI, not trying to slow it down, nevertheless had to take its time trying to get inside the Bucs. And when they did get the shot away, it went they did get the shot away, it went in with decreasing regularity.

In the first half, the Keydets hit on only 7 of 25 shots, a miserable 28 per cent. But the worst was yet to come. They made only 12 of 43 in the second stanza, 27.9 per cent.

On the boards, the Bucs held reign, 34-29. Jerome Owens and Nicky White led that battle, getting eight each.

From the floor, the Bucs had one of their better nights, canning 52.3 per cent, 33 of 63.

VMI, after finding its zone unsuccessful, tried moving to a man-to-man and a press. But the Pirates, after some initial problems that saw their lead shrink back to as little as seven, got going again to run out by as much as 28 before it was over.

VMI led only once, at 2-0 on a shot by Steve Wolf. Owens tied it up and Dave Franklin put them into a 4-2 lead. VMI tied it at 4-4 and 6-6 before the Bucs broke out to lead 10-6 on baskets by Al Faber and White. Chapin followed with a basket to make it 10-8, and there the VMI bubble burst.

During the next three minutes, the Bucs outhit them 12-0 and powered into the 22-8 lead. Faber and Franklin started it out with two baskets each, then Quash hit. Franklin finished it off with 10:18.

After Quash hit again, White and Faber each hit one shot from the line to up the lead to 26-10. But then, Charlie Tyler and Rawlyk sparked a rally that cut the lead to nine.

Tyler opened it with a free throw, and Rawlyk hit a jumper. Tyler got two more at the line, and Rawlyk finished with another jumper. Faber hit with 58 seconds left, however, to end the first half scoring with the Bucs out 28-17.

In the second half, after Owens opened with a jumper, David Lester came up with two shots to cut it to nine. Then, Wolf hit to bring it back down to seven, 30-23. But that was as close as they got.

Franklin and Quash each hit to run it back to 12, 39-27. After two trips up and down the court for scores, the Bucs broke it open, hitting 10 points to open up a 20-point lead.

White opened it, hitting from underneath, and getting fouled in the process. He missed his extra shot, but picked off the rebound and tossed it in for a four-point play instead. Quash followed with a jumper and Owens got two from the stripe. Quash followed with a jumper and Owens got two from the stripe. Quash then scores on a drive to make it 51-31, and for all purposes, it was over.

The Bucs extended it, however, picking up four more points as Owens and Quash both hit to make it 61-37. After two more baskets, Kenny Edmonds hit to run it out to 26, 65-39. Finally Roger Atkinson and Dave McNeill both scored to up it to 69-41, the widest margin.

Quash led the scoring, hitting 15, 11 of them coming in the second half. Franklin had 14, 10 in the first half. White added 11 while Owens had 10.

The lone scorer in double figures for the Keydets was Chapin with 12.

The Pirates return home now for a long stand, playing four straight in Minges Coliseum, where they are unbeaten this year. But this week they'll get two tough test from Davidson (Wednesday) and Furman (Saturday), the two teams ahead of them in the Southern standings.

Pirate Runners Sweep Meet From Heels, Pack

CHAPEL HILL — East Carolina University's track team went through its finest hour yesterday, whipping teams from the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill and N.C. State University.

The Bucs piled up 49½ points in the meet, winning four events. North Carolina won six, but could gather in only 44½ points. State, winner of two events, finished further back with 32.

The Pirates lost ground in a hotly-contested mile relay disqualification. Carolina won the event, and both East Carolina and State were disqualified in the event. The Pirates surpassed the school record in the event, but for naught.

Two new school records were set, one in a victory. Ivey Peacock tossed the shot 51 feet, 1½ inches to win the event. Gerald Klas finished second in the mile in 4:14.8, the other school mark.

The Pirates got their real boost in the triple jump, nearly sweeping the event. Walter Davenport won it with a jump of 48 feet, 11 inches, and was followed by teammates Larry Malone, and Willie Harvey.

The Bucs, in addition to the shot and triple jump, also won the 60 yard high hurdles and the hig jump. Ron Smith took the hurdle victory in 7.6 seconds, while Quick leaped 6-8 to win the high jump.

Coach Bill Carson praised the members of their team for "an outstanding effort," and said that it was true team victory.

The Pirates, enjoying one of their best seasons ever, travel to Lesington, Va. to take part in the VMI Winter Relays next Saturday.

Cougars Topple Memphis Five

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP)— Mack Calvin scored 31 points and pulled down eight rebounds as he led the Carolina Cougars to a come-from-behind victory over the Memphis Tams, 117-113, in an American Basketball Association game at the Charlotte Coliseum Saturday afternoon.

The six-foot Cougar guard collected 25 of his points in the second half and his 12 for 12 free throws left him with a string of 40 out of his last 40.

Johnny Neumann and George Lehmann each had 24 points and Randy Denton 14 for the Tams, who led 31-18 at the end of the first quarter and enjoyed a 61-52 halftime margin. Lehmann, a former Cougar, included four three-point goals in his total.

Carolina caught up in the third period and moved ahead at 81-80 on a Calvin free throw. With 2:47 remaining, Memphis was back in the lead at 113-108 only to have Carolina rip off nine straight points for its fifth consecutive victory and 18th in its last 20 games.

Calvin began the last streak with a three-pointer that moved the Cougars within 113-111. Bily Cunningham, who had 26 points, tied the count with two free throws and it was down hill as Steve Jones and Calvin also added a pair of free throws each.

Davidson Tops Wake

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (UPI)— Sophomore Larry Horowitz came off the bench to score 21 points as Davidson built an early lead and held on to defeat Wake Forest 86-82 in a nonconference game here Saturday night.

The Wildcats appeared as if they might run away with the game as they mounted a 15-point lead, 38-23, with 3:56 left in the first half.

But Wake Forest fought back, narrowed the margin to 46-38 at the half.

Chapel Hill Nips Rampants

Chapel Hill High School's swimmers nipped Rose High School here yesterday afternoon, gaining a 49-46 vicotry.

Chapel Hill won the opening relay, and charged into the lead. They were never caught by the Rampants the rest of the afternoon. The winners, who finished third in the state last year, rolled up five individual titles, while Rose won four. The Rampants picked up the closing relay also.

Mont Wooten was a double winner for the Rampants, the only one taking the 200 and 400-yard freestyles. Chapel Hill had two double winners, Smock in the 50 freestyle and 100 backstroke and Kirkman in the 100 butterfly and 100 breaststroke.

The Rampants next outing will be Friday, February 9, when they entertain Hampton High School. The following day, they will take part in the annual East Carolina High School Invitational.

Thompson Leads State By Furman

GREENSBORO,N.C. (AP)- Unbeaten North Carolina State's speed and sharper shooting prevailed over Furman's size as the Wolfpack, No. 2 basketball team in the nation, routed the Paladins 98-73 Saturday night in a meeting of conference leaders.

Sophomore David Thompson's 27 points led the winners who broke a five-game Furman winning streak.

N.C. State, Atlantic Coast Conference leader, romped to its 14th victory while sending Furman of the Southern Conference down to its fifth loss against 12 victories.

The Wolfpack broke ahead to stay at 8-6 after three early ties and piled up a 51-29 halftime lead on 60 per cent shooting to 33 for Furman and a 26-14 edge.

N.C. State, the nation's top scoring major college team, pushed its margin to 30 points at 74-44 after 10 minutes of the second half and later led by 37 points.

Joe Cafferky and Tim Stoddaard, with 12 points each and Tommy Burleson, with 11, were other N.C. State scoring leaders.

Sophomore Fessor Leonard of Furman led all scorers with 28 points, but the next Paladin, Craig Lynch, had only 10 points, eight on free throws.

Clemente Vote Set

NEW YORK (AP) — The Baseball Writers Association of America announced Saturday it will hold a special election to consider the immediate induction of the late Roberto Clemente, Pittsburgh Pirates star outfielder, into Baseball's Hall of Fame.

Joe Heiling of the Houston Post, president of the BBWAA, empowered secretary-treasurer Jack Lang of the Long Island Press to mail ballots to all eligible voting members. The Board of Directors of the Hall of Fame, located at Cooperstown, N.Y., recently granted the BBWAA permission to waive the normal five-year waiting period on Clemente and hold a special election at its discretion.

Normally, it takes one-month to conduct a mail vote among members of the BBWAA. The results will be announced shortly afterward.

Clemente, who played 18 years with the Pirates and had a lifetime batting average of .317, died in an airplane crash near San Juan, Puerto Rico New Year's Eve while he was on a mercy mission to help the victims of the recent Nicaraguan earthquake.

Trevisan Among Best

East Carolina University's Paul Trevisan currently stands sixth among swimmers in the NCAA's University Division in the 50-yard freestyle.

According to figures released this week by the College Swimming Coaches Association and Swimming World magazine, Trevisan has submitted a best time of 21.6 seconds in the event, tieing him with five other swimmers for sixth place.

Rex Hand of Navy leads the parade with a time of 21.2.

The Pirates, 5-2, on the season, will be seeking their sixth victory Monday in Minges Natatorium, when they play host to the University of Virginia. The meet is set to get underway at 7:30 p.m.

O'Brien Stars In Maryland Win

By GORDON BEARD
Associated Press Sports Writer

COLLEGE PARK, Md.(AP)— Senior Jim O'Brien scored 38 points, including four free throws in the closing minute, as fourth-ranked Maryland rallied in the second half to defeat third-ranked North Carolina 94-88 in a basketball game Saturday.

O'Brien sank 13 of 20 shots from the floor and converted all but one of 13 foul shots for the Terps, who are now 14-1 including 4-1 in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

North Carolina, 3-2 in league play, and 15-3 over-all, led 48-44 at halftime and trailed just 72-71 before a Maryland streak upped the Terps' margin to 82-73.

Two baskets by John O'Donnell and a free throw by Bobby Jones cut Maryland's lead to 82-78 with 2:39 remaining before the Terps converted five consecutive one-and-one free throw situations.

O'Brien and Bob Bodell each made of the final free throws, Len Elmore scored Maryland's only field goal in the final four minutes, and Tom McMillen converted the final two foul shots for the Terps.

McMillen, Maryland's scoring leader with a 23.7 average, attempted only eight field goals and finished with 13 points.

John Lucas, Maryland's freshman guard, had 14 points and eight assists, and Elmore grabbed 13 rebounds although the Tar Heels held a 42-34 edge off the boards.

Maryland shot 58 per cent in the second half and both teams shot 50 per cent for the game.

Ed Stahl led North Carolina with 24 points, including eight of his team's last 10 points. George Karl scored 15 and Don Washington, in his first start since being injured early in the season, had 14.

Rampants Pull Upset Of Jacksonville

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

In the 13 games Rose High School's Rampants had played prior to Friday night, they had led only once at halftime. They liked it, but they weren't able to hold onto it.

Friday night, for the first time this year, they were ahead at the end of the third period. They like it. And as the seconds ticked into minutes in the fourth period, they continued to like it.

In fact, they liked it so much, they held it right on through until the clock read 0:00. And when it did, it also read Rose 53, Jacksonville 47.

It was almost unbelievable. Rose High School had met Jacksonville once before this season, on the Cardinal home court. In that game, the Cards had little trouble in disposing of the Rampants, 90-59.

And perhaps that was in the back of the minds of the Cards as they prepared for the game. They were not up to their usual par, missing a large percentage of their shots, both from the floor and from the line.

They also didn't go to the boards the way they did in the first game, and the Rampants controlled the rebounding.

Rose also cut way down on its turnovers, and played a much more disciplined game once they opened a lead. Even when Jacksonville began to gnaw away at the lead after fouling the Rampants, who had poor success at the line, the Rose cagers kept their cool.

About the only disappointing thing about the game was the free throw shooting of the Rampants. They hit on only nine of 28, and just a little better percentage would have made the victory a rout.

Jacksonville enjoyed little better success, sinking only 11 of 26.

But all-in-all, it was a combination of Jacksonville being unready to play and Rose being ready to end its 13-game losing streak for the season. Actually the string was 15, going back into last year.

Jacksonville grabbed the opening lead in the game, 2-0 on a hook by Romeo Brown. Al Hunter tied it up, and after Jacksonville went out again, 4-2, Jackie Savage again tied it with a jumper in the lane.

Herb Bynum then put the Rampants into the lead with a jumper with 3:57 left, making it 6-4. Rose was never caught again.

Hunter followed with a basket from underneath to up the lead to four. The Cards cut it back to two twice, then to three at 12-9. George Price followed that with a basket and Savage hit on the fast break to run the Rampants out by seven, 16-9 with 27 seconds left in the period. The Cardinals managed one more basket, with 13 seconds showing to cut it to 16-11 at the horn.

In the second frame, Jacksonville trimmed it to three on a goal-tending call, and then Jeff Kinlaw hit to pull them within one at 15-14. But the Rampants were not to be caught. Phil Ragazzo hit a jumper and Hunter scored from the foul line opening the lead back to four.

Then, leading 19-17, Rose scored on a free throw by Savage, and when he missed the second shot, Bynum got the rebound and tossed it back in. Dennis Taylor then canned a with 2:11 to go to raise the score to seven again, 24-17. Jacksonville cut it back to four, however, and settled for that deficit at halftime, 27-23.

Jacksonville hit first to open the third period, as Brown threw back in a missed shot, cutting the lead to 27-25. But Rose again came up with the needed points, getting a basket on a drive by Savage. Then, before a minute had gone, a steal and a fast break gave Taylor a basket and Rose a 31-25 lead.

Rose began to get a little deliberate after that, working for the good shot and taking their time getting it. Jacksonville cut it back to four on them, 32-28, but Rose pulled away again. Taylor hit on another fast break, and after two minutes, Ragazzo hit with 53 seconds left to make it 36-28. Jacksonville scored on two free throws by Terry Burner, but Rose got one more basket on a goal-tending call and led, 38-30 at the start of the final period.

Rose got even more cautious in that one, working to protect the lead and burn the clock. But the foul line almost caught up with them. Jacksonville cut the lead back to four, hitting the first two buckets of the period as Carnell Williams and Kinlaw connected.

Rose, still playing its game, however, came back with a baseline jumper by Bynum. Hunter then drove the baseline to put the Rampants back out by eight with 5:39 left. Bynum followed that with two free throws with 4:05 showing and upped the lead to 10, 44-34.

Jacksonville cut it back to eight twice, and then to seven at 46-39. But time wasn't on their side. They got it to five with 21 seconds to go as Burner hit a rebound to make it 50-45. But Hunter hit from underneath and was fouled. He missed the charity toss, but Savage got it and was fouled with seven seconds left. He scored once, to run the lead back to seven, 53-45, and Rose just stood aside and let the Cards score the final baskets uncontested.

Then, pandemonium broke loose as the fans celebrated the long-awaited victory.

Hunter led the Rampant scoring with 16, while Bynum added 13 and Savage had 10. The Cardinals failed to place a man in double figures.

A 46-37 victory by the Baby Cardinals in the junior varsity game kept the night from being a complete Rampant success.

Jacksonville moved into an early lead and built up a 16-12 lead by the end of the period. They were never headed after the first couple of baskets. By halftime, they had run their margin out to 29-20 by outhitting the Cubs, 13-8 in the second period.

The action slowed in the third period as Jacksonville hit eight to seven for Rose. The score climbed to 37-27 with that. Rose trimmed a point off the lead with a 10-9 advantage in the final period.

Lindberg Morris led Rose with 12, while Drew Franks had 16 for Jacksonville and Jimmy Woods added 14.

The Rampants travel to Rocky Mount on Tuesday.

Cougars Stop Indiana Pacers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

George Gervin made his debut Friday night. And if his performance, albeit in a losing cause, is any indication of his future play, he'll be around the American Basketball Association for quite a while.

The Virginia rookie, signed just eight days ago, tossed in 20 points, including a couple of three-point bombs in the final 23 seconds, but was unable to keep the Squires from falling to the Utah Stars 127-121.

"Considering the circumstances—that he could only feel his way around out there, not having worked out with us—I thought he did a good job," said Coach Al Bianchi.

Firepower was the Squires' forte. Roland Taylor had a career-high 30 points and Julius Erving added 27. But balance was the Stars' ace and that's what made the difference.

They had eight men in double figures, headed by James Beasley with 17 points, Cincy Powell with 16 and James Jones and Ron Boone with 15 each.

In other ABA games, the New York Nets downed Dallas 112-95, the Memphis Tams tamed Denver 114-107 and the Carolina Cougars beat Indiana 114-108.

In the National Basketball Association it was Cleveland 105, Philadelphia 100; Chicago 110, Baltimore 100; Atlanta 118, Buffalo 82; Boston 139, Houston 126; Milwaukee 117, Detroit 105; Los Angeles 100, Golden State 84 and Phoenix 120, Portland 116.

John Roche scored 17 of his 33 points in the third quarter to propel New York to only its fifth road victory of the season. George Carter added 20 points for the Nets.

The Tams were sagging under the weight of a 10-game tailspin but Johnny Neuman gave them the lift they needed with 29 points and George Lehmann chipped in with 21. Memphis led by as many as 18 points in the fourth quarter before the Rockets put on a futile late drive.

The Cougars, opening a four-game East Division lead over idle Kentucky, had to withstand a 45-point onslaught by George McGinnis to hold off the Pacers, who slipped 4½ games back of the front-running Stars in the West.

Smith Clears 18-Foot Mark

By BERT ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — How high is up for Stever Smith, the first pole vaulter to clear 18 feet indoors?

"I will do 18-8 before the end of the indoor season," predicted the 21-year-old Long Beach State student after clearing 18-0¼ at the Wanamaker Millrose Games Friday night.

Prior to his record-smashing jump, the ebullient Smith had said he eventually would break the 19-foot barrier outdoors, where the world mark is 18-5¾, held by his 1972 Olympic teammate, Bob Seagren.

Smith, Seagren and Jan Johnson, the three American entries in the Munich Olympics, all failed to clear 16 feet in the Games after a last-minute ruling prevented them from using the new fiberglass model pole that had carried them to 18-foot jumps in the U.S. Trials at Eugene, Ore.

The 6-foot-1½, 184-pound smith, who competes for the Pacific Coast Club in Long Beach, Calif., jumped only four times in the Millrose Games. He didn't begin jumping until the bar reached 17 feet. He cleared that on his first jump.

Nobody else passed that height, so Smith went for the meet record of 17-5. After missing once, he surpassed Seagren's Millrose mark of 17-3¾, set five years ago.

Then, he asked the bar to be raised to 18-0¼, an inch and a quarter higher than the world indoor mark he had set last Saturday at Los Angeles.

"I asked that it be 18-0¼ in case the measurement was off a little bit," he explained. "I wanted to be sure it was going to be an 18-footer."

There was no doubt about it being an 18-footer. Smith sped down the vaulting ramp, his confidence evident to all in the Madison Square Garden crowd of 15,043. He planted his bar into the pit, and leaped over the bar easily.

As the fans hailed his magnificent effort, Smith bounced off the mat, his hands raised high in triumph, and jogged around the track to huge cheers from the crowd.

Smith's performance, which earned the award as the meet's outstanding athlete, overshadowed several other notable victories, including those by Rod Milburn and Herb Washington.

Milburn, the Olympic champion who lost his first two starts this season but redeemed himself with a triumph in last week's NAIA meet, made it two in a row, taking the 60-yard high hurdles in 7.0 seconds. He beat a field that included 1968 Olympic champion Willie Davenport, 1972 Olympic bronze medalist Tom Hill and Louisiana State University freshman Larry Shipp.

Washington, the Big Ten Conference spring champion from Michigan State, swept to victory over a powerful field in the 60-yard dash in 6.0 seconds. His opposition included defending champion Mel Pender, Dr. Delano Meriwether, Olympic silver medalist Robert Taylor and Olympian Hasley Crawford of Trinidad-Tobago.

Philadelphia Falls As New Coach Makes Debut

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was close—but not close enough. It was a night like any other night. It was Philadelphia's 48th loss in its 52nd game of the season—and it was Kevin Loughery's first setback as head coach of what is likely the worst team in the history of the National Basketball Association.

"It wasn't a successful debut, but how can you complain about an effort like that," Loughery said after the 76ers bowed 105-100 to the Cleveland Cavaliers Friday night.

The Sixers, who seem to have made a habit of losing games by maybe 20 points or so, were really in this one before Lenny Wilkens took matters into his own hands.

With Philadelphia trailing just 82-78 in the final quarter, Wilkens, who finished with a game-high 28 points, reeled off six straight points, giving Cleveland the cushion it needed to withstand a last-minute rush by the 76ers.

In Friday night's other NBA games, Los Angeles whipped Golden State 100-84, Boston ripped Houston 139-126, Phoenix edged Portland 120-116, Chicago beat Baltimore 110-100, Atlanta bombed Buffalo 118-82 and Milwaukee defeated Detroit 117-105.

In American Basketball Association action, New York downed Dallas 112-95, Utah topped Virginia 127-121, Carolina beat Indiana 114-108 and Memphis turned back Denver 114-107.

The Lakers, widening their Pacific Division lead over Golden State to 5½ games, got 22 points from Jerry West—but it was what they didn't get from Rick Barry that made a big difference. They held the Warriors' star to just 13 points, about 10 below his average.

The Celtics, reeling off their 10th straight victory to open a 2½-game Atlantic Division edge over idle New York, ran up a 56-27 lead in the second period, then counted on balanced scoring to carry them the rest of the way.

The Trail Blazers, who have never beaten Phoenix in their three years in tne NBA, trailed the Suns by just one point in the fourth quarter. Then Charlie Scott, en route to a 33-point game, led a fast break that enabled Phoenix to outscore Portland 12-4 in a four-minute span.

Baltimore had won seven straight games and, with a couple of quick baskets midway in the fourth period, were within a bucket of tying Chicago. But they were unable to cope with the driving layups of Norm Van Lier and Bobby Weiss, who poured in 19 points in that decisive quarter for the Bulls.

Lou Hudson had 22 of his game-high 31 points in the second half for Atlanta—but by that time the outcome of the game against Buffalo was hardly in doubt. The 36-point margin of defeat matched the Braves' worst setback of the season.

Detroit took a brief 23-20 lead, then Milwaukee blew the Pistons off the court with a 15-2 spurt that assured the Bucks of their ninth victory in 10 games. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar paced the Bucks with 35 points.

McCaffertyHeads For Lions Den

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Everybody figured Don McCafferty would wind up as head coach of the Los Angeles Rams this year. So look who's the No. 1 Lion in Detroit.

Everybody figured Chuck Fairbanks was nicely snuggled in as head coach of college football's Oklahoma Sooners. So look who's in New England as a million-dollar Patriot.

And look who's in Florida. It's Baltimore General Manager Joe Thomas—reportedly trying to lure Miami assistant coach Howard Schnellenberger away from the Dolphins to take over the reins of the Colts.

And look whose trying to get out of Los Angeles. It's quarterback Roman Gabriel, who says he wants to be traded to the Washington Redskins, now that the Rams have acquired John Hadl from the San Diego Chargers.

A year ago, the Rams and Colts in effect swapped owners—Carroll Rosenbloom taking over in Los Angeles and Robert Irsay doing the same in Baltimore. And early in the National Football League season, McCafferty, the Colts' head coach, considered one of Rosenbloom's favorites when he'd been in Baltimore, was fired.

Then, when the Rams slumped under the coaching of Tommy Prothro, the guess was that Prothro would soon be out of a job and McCafferty would be in it. The guess was half right.

Prothro was fired earlier in the week—but at the same time, Rosenbloom picked former Detroit offensive line coach Chuck Knox as his successor. Knox and the rest of the Lions' assistant coaches had been fired after Head Coach Joe Schmidt quit on Jan. 12.

That left McCafferty still without a job—until Friday, when he got Schmidt's. He signed a three-year contract for an undisclosed sum.

Lions' owner William Clay Ford said the 51-year-old McCafferty "was my first choice" of about a dozen candidates. He wouldn't name the others who might have gotten the job which brought Schmidt a reported $70,000 last year.

If the reports are true, Fairbanks will be getting about $200,000 for each of his five years in the contract he signed Friday with New England—perhaps five times what he was making at Oklahoma.

The contract, Fairbanks said, is "long enough that if I can't get the job done, then something's wrong." The job? "The goal, of course, is to win the Super Bowl," he explained.

"I realize there are many things about professional football I have to learn," he acknowledged, "but I do know something about winning." Then, getting more specific about his plans for the Pats, he added: "Defense keeps you from losing ... so I think we'll have to take a long look at defense."

Casper Fades; Sarge Moody Grabs The Lead

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Billy Casper refused to use an ailing back as an excuse as he tumbled out of first place with a horrendous 78 Saturday and Ol' Sarge Orville Moody barged into a four-stroke lead after the third round of Bing Crosby's National Pro-Am Golf Tournament.

Moody, whose only official tour victory came in his 1969 U.S. Open triumph, fashioned a solid three-under-par 69 for 54 hole total of 206.

That put the long-haired ex-U.S. Army sergeant 10 under par going into Sunday's final round at Pebble Beach in this event offering total prize money of $205,000.

Lanny Watkins, the rookie sensation of 1972, moved into second position with a 68—210, four strokes back.

The 41-year-old Casper, who held a four-stroke lead starting play on the cool and cloudy day, made six bogeys in a row at one stretch as he drifted back to a tie for third at 211.

Jack Nicklaus, who won two of his seven 1972 titles at Pebble Beach, also was at 211 after a 71.

Former PGA champion Dave Marr was next, taking a 70 for 212. Moody played at Cypress Point, Casper at Pebble Beach and Wadkins, Nicklaus and Marr at Spyglass Hill. The pros played one round on each of the three courses the first three days of the tournament and the finals will be held on Pebble Beach.

"I have no excuses," Casper said. "My back wasn't a factor. "I just couldn't get the ball in the hole. Actually, I didn't play all that badly. I really hit only two bad shots. But I had a string there were I started missing the green, then missing those short putts."

Casper, winner of more than 40 titles, has been in a lengthy slump and has been sidelined this season by a torn muscle in his back. He carried a folding, portable stool with him and used it to rest periodically during his round.

He'd had rounds of 66 and 67 for the first two days and held a commanding lead until his collapse.

Moody, winner of only $13,000 last season—his poorest as a pro—used Capser's slide as a spur in his leap into first place.

"I'm playing much better than I did the first two days," said Moody, who spent 14 years in the U.S. Army before hitting the tour in the late 1960s.

"Today, I think I hit the ball as well as I was hitting it in 1969—and I'm putting better now than I did then."

He missed birdie putts of less than six feet on the second and third holes, then took his only bogey on the fourth when he missed the green and chipped to five feet—only to miss again.

Moody reeled off a string of three consecutive birdies, starting on the eighth. He used a pitching wedge for a second shot there, and hit it within four feet of the cup. He put his approach three feet from the cup on the next one and on the par five 10th reached the green with a mid-iron second shot and two-putted for a birdie.

Presbyter. Ties Top

Presbyterian pulled into a three-way tie with Immanuel and Oakmont for first place in the Church Basketball League Friday night, downing Black Jack, 55-49. In the other games, Piney Grove beat Grace, 79-56, and St. Paul's won its first game, 71-41, over winless Trinity.

Presbyterian is now 6-1, while Black Jack falls off to 5-2.

In the opener, Presbyterian eased out into a 24-22 lead in the first half. It stayed close, but Presbyterian slowly pulled away, outhitting Black Jack, 31-27, to win it.

Frank Freuler led Presbyterian with 16, while Ron Barnes had 10. Black Jack was paced by Tal Adams with 21, while Phillip Smith added 10.

In the second game, Piney Grove built up a 28-19 advantage in the first half. Then, in the second frame, they ran away from Grace, 51-37, to win handily.

Jimmy Mills led Piney Grove with 16, while Buddy Allen and Ricky Langley each ahd 13 and William Nichols and Wayne Avery both hit 12. D.R. Daniels led Grace with 21, with Steve Wise and Curtis Sutton each had 13.

St. Paul's jumped off to a 31-14 lead in the first period of the game, and rolled through the second half. They outhit Trinity, 40-27, for the win.

Bill Tripp and Hal Daniel each had 21, while Jack Wall had 18 for St. Paul's. Trinity was led by Danny Norris with 17, and Jim Adams with 12.

When it came to double plays by second basemen in the American League last season Horace Clark of the New York Yankees was the leader. He took part in 104. Sandy Alomar of the California Angels was second with 92.

North Lenoir Edges Past Jaguars, 44-42

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central's girl basketball players have done it again. They won their second game of the year Friday night as they rode a second half rally to a slim 26-25 win over the North Lenoir Lady Hawks.

The Jaguar varsity did not fare as well, however, as they were edged out, 44-42. The lead was something neither team could quite seem to get hold of, changing hands 11 times. The factor in the Hawk win was the foul line. Out of ten trips, the Hawks sank six while in six chances, the Jags made four. The two extra free shots made by the Hawks were the difference as both teams connected on 19 field goals each.

After seeing their J.V.'s set down roughly 70-35, the Lady Jaguars started heading the same way. But then in the closing moments of the third quarter, a pair of field goals by Farmville Centtral tied it at 14-14. A free throw by Linda Anderson with 5:52 to play gave the girls the lead which they managed to keep.

North Lenoir's Pam Nobles put her team on the boards first as she hit a long jumper from the corner before a minute had gone by. A charity shot by Nedra Burney and another bucket by Nobles made it 5-0. The Lady Jaguars finally scratched when Anderson sank a free shot. Kathy Suggs canned another one but the Lady Hawks struck back with a pair of baskets from Burney to make it 9-2 at the end of the quarter.

Both teams got a lone bucket apiece in the second quarter but the North Lenoir girls added a free shot to take a 12-4 lead into the dressing room at intermission.

Farmville Central connected first to open the third period with Anderson scoring from underneath. She scored again with 4:43 to go in the frame and Cynthia Barrett put one through on a fast break to cut the gap to 13-10. Doris Lee made a free throw for North Lenoir for a four-point lead but a Farmville bucket narrowed it to two and the Lady Jaguars tied it up as Barrett scored on a steal with 57 seconds to go, 14-14.

The Lady Hawks got it right back as Kathy Merritt sank a free shot. Farmville Central got it right back, on a turn-around jumper by Darlene Joyner. She made a free throw for a three point play to put the Lady Jags out by two, 17-15.

Lee retied the game at 17-17 hitting from outside but a flurry of Farmville Central points gave the Lady Jags a five point spread. Anderson contributed a free throw and a field goal and Barrett hit from the corner to make it 22-17 with 4:21 left.

The Farmville Central girls held off the Lady Hawks the rest of the way to take their win.

Burney had 13 points to lead all the scorers while Anderson had ten for Farmville Central.

The boys' game was more a spectator's game than a players' game. The Jaguars took a first quarter advantage but had to fight to go in at halftime with a 28-24 lead. North Lenoir struggled back to tie it up at the end of three and slipped ahead in the fourth while Farmville Central's big gun, McCoy Williams was on the bench with a slight injury. The Jags could not make up the difference when he came back in.

The Hawks took the opening lead but the Jaguars quickly tied it on a jumper by Willie Jones. After flopping back and forth a few times the lead settled into the hands of Farmville Central at 8-6 on a basket by Williams. The Jags controlled it for the remainder of the period and led by three, 14-11.

The Hawks got two quick buckets, one each by Johnny Atkinson and Mike Miller, to slip in front, 15-14. FC got it right back on a basket by Melvin Bunch and James Cobb added another one for an 18-15 lead with 4:57 to go in the period.

After swapping baskets, the Hawks caught up and went ahead on a shot by Miller, 21-20. Farmville Central came alive briefly and hit two to go back in front, 24-22 and after the score was tied again, Jones and Bunch each scored giving the Jaguars a 28-24 lead at the buzzer.

North Lenoir outscored the Jags, 12-8 in the third period to tie it at 36-36. After a minute had gone by in the fourth, Jones scored to put Farmville Central back in the lead. About this time Williams was hurt and was forced to leave the game temporarily. That gave the Hawks a chance to get seven points, and build up a five point lead, 43-38.

The Jaguars could not make up the difference even though Williams came back in and scored with five seconds to play cutting the lead to 44-42 but time ran out too fast.

Jones had 12 for the Jags while Phil Lewis had 10. Roy Jones led the Hawks with 15, Miller had 13 and David Hardy 11.

Firebirds Nip Conley, 69-68

SPRING HOPE — Southern Nash High School gained a pair of victories over D.H. Conley Friday night. They downed the boys, 69-68, on a controversial basket, and won the girls' game, 40-29.

In the boys' game, Conley had led most of the way, entering the last period with a 14-point lead. Southern Nash fought back, however, and slowly trimmed the lead. With 2:54 to go, the Firebirds were still down by nine, but managed to pull within one finally, 68-67 on baskets by Melvin Crawley and Larry Burgess. Then, with five seconds left, Randall Baker shot, but missed, The rebound bounced off Crawley into the hands of Burgess, who put it back in. Conley argued that the horn had already sounded by the time the basket had scored, but that the noise of the crowd had prevented the officials from hearing it.

But the officials ruled in favor of Southern Nash, and they had the win.

Conley had moved out into a 17-12 lead in the first period of the game, and outshot Southern Nash, 18-11, in the second period. That left the Vikings in a 35-23 lead at halftime. Conley again out-scored the Firebirds, 20-18, in the third period to build up their 14-point edge, 55-41, which they carried into the fateful final frame.

Burgess led the Southern scoring with 25, while Glenn Wood had 16, and Baker had 13. For Conley, Buddy Phillips had 16, Larry Daniels had 15, and Kervin Hawkins had 14.

In the girls game, Southern Nash moved out into a 12-5 lead in the first period, and then outhit the Valkyries, 14-10, in the second. That left Southern ahead at the half, 26-15.

In the second half, they again outhit Conley, 8-4, in the third period, moving their lead to 34-19. Conley came back with a 10-6 advantage in the final period, but it was too little.

Gloria Pope led Southern with 17 points, while Juanita Hall added 10. Linda Loyd had 11 to lead Conley.

Following a meeting last night with Ayden-Grifton, Conley travels to North Lenoir on Tuesday.

Eastern Wayne Downs Panthers

NEW HOPE — Eastern Wayne rode a first quarter, 12-point lead to a 66-60 win over the North Pitt Panthers Friday night. The Big Orange chalked up number 69 as they dumped the Squaws, 39-29.

The Pant-HERS shut out Eastern Wayne's girls in the first quarter as they moved out to a 6-0 lead. North Pitt doubled its score in the second quarter getting 12 points. The Squaws got on the boards with six points, trailing at the half by 18-6.

Eastern Wayne surprised the Pant-HERS by taking the third period, 14-12, but the outcome had already been decided. Both teams added nine in the last frame.

Minnie Hollis led the Big Orange with 12 points.

In the first period of the boys' game, the Warriors rolled out to a 21-9 advantage as the Panthers could not get going. They warmed up some in the second quarter besting Eastern Wayne, 18-16, but were still well behind, 37-27.

The Panthers cut the Warrior lead by one in the third quarter 14-13 but they ran out of time in the fourth period as they cut it still further with a 19-16 quarter score. The rally came up six points short.

Reed led the Warriors with 19 points. Bobby Body and Lynn Best each had 17. Phillip Brown paced the Panthers with 16 and Joe Wright added 11.

Aycock In Third Win

KINSTON — E.B. Aycock Junior High School took the lead in the second period Friday night and gained a 54-41 victory over Kinston Junior High.

The Phantoms eased into a 10-8 margin after the first period, then began to pull away. They dumped in 18 points in the second frame, limiting Kinston to just seven. That raised the Aycock lead to 28-15 at halftime.

In the third period, Kinston and Aycock fought on nearly even terms, with Kinston holding a 12-11 advantage, and cutting the lead to 39-27. Aycock finished up with a 15-14 scoring edge in the final period to insure the victory, their second straight.

Donnie Shields led Aycock with 16 points, while Dennis Walston had 12. Fisher had 20 to lead Kinston.

Aycock, now 3-4 overall, goes to Wilson on Tuesday.

Greene Central Tops Chargers

SNOW HILL — Ayden-Grifton's Chargers were slapped out of first place in the Eastern Carolina Conference Friday night as they were handed a 54-47 loss by the Rams of Greene Central. The win puts the Warriors of Eastern Wayne back on top.

The A-G girls won to keep the Chargers from being swept as their J.V.'s had gone down earlier, 50-43. The Chargerettes moved out into the lead in the first period as they skunked the Ewes, 9-0. Both teams matched points in the second quarter, 6-6. A-G still had its nine point lead at halftime.

The Chargerettes won the game in the third quarter as they burned the nets with 20 points while the Ewes could only manage eight. Greene Central took the last period, 10-4, but by then it did not matter.

Nancy Sugg led the scorers with 11 and Greene Central's Keith Gay had 10 to lead the Ewes.

In the boys' game, the Chargers inched in front, 10-9 in the opening period but Greene Central commandeered it in the second after tieing it at 12-12, as they outscored A-G, 15-10 for a four-point, 24-20 spread at intermission.

Ayden-Grifton struggled to pull within two at the end of the third period as they got 13 points. Going into the last frame, the Rams led, 35-33.

After swapping points, the Chargers took the lead with 4:40 left to play. The Rams took it right back but with 2:06 left, the lead went to the Chargers again. Stevie Williamson came alive and after the Rams regained the lead by a point, scored on a pair of fast breaks and added two free throws to put his team well on their way to the win. Williamson had 12 of his 20 points in the last period.

Besides Williamson's 20, Ervin Spivey had 15 for the Rams. Sam Stewart led the Charger attack with 19, Travis Wood had 12, and Milton Brown added 10.

Robersonville Upsets Bullets

JAMESVILLE — On-charging Robersonville rallied in the final period of play Friday night to take a 57-53 victory over Jamesville's Bullets. It was the first loss for Jamesville in the Martin County Conference, leaving them with a 3-1 record.

The Robersonville girls also chalked up a victory, downing Jamesville, 43-20. Jamesville's slim hopes in the league may have gone down the drain as leading scorer Donna Williams suffered a knee injury in the game and could be lost for the season.

In the girls' game, Robersonville wasted little time in shooting into the lead. By the end of the first quarter they had run up a 17-4 lead. During the second quarter, Jamesville got a little closer in scoring, 11-7, but still fell further behind and trailed, 28-11 at intermission.

In the third period, Robersonville continued to pull away, 8-4, and the Eaglettes held a 36-15 advantage with one frame left. They again outhit the Lady Bullets, 7-5 to wrap up their fourth loop win in five games.

Elaine Forrest led Robersonville with 18 points, while Miss Williams had seven to pace Jamesville.

In the boys game, it looked as if the Bullets were going to pick up their fourth straight Martin win, but in the second half, the Eagles finally got going. Jamesville pushed out into an early lead and held a 14-8 edge after a quarter. In the second period, they continued to pull away, outscoring the Eagles, 17-12. That left the Bullets in a 31-20 lead by the end of the half.

But in the third period, Robersonville began to come to life, and swapped baskets with Jamesville all the way. Both pushed through 16 in the frame, which ended with the Bullets ahead, 47-36.

Then, in the final quarter, the Robersonville defenses also jelled, as they limited Jamesville to only six points while pouring through 21 themselves. It was enough, and they pulled out the victory.

Masonic Stokes led the Eagle victory with 24 points, while Jeffrey Spruill added 14. For Jamesville, Horace Hall had 17 and Larry Modlin added 16.

Robersonville travels to Swansboro on Tuesday, while Jamesville meets Bear Grass in another Martin County Conference game.

DU Sends MuchMoney

North Carolina Ducks Unlimited Sponsor Chairman, Herman A. Moore, announced today that Tar Heel Waterfowlers had contributed more than $73,000 to this Conservation organization which concerns itself with the preservation of migratory waterfowl. Senator Moore said that these funds will be sent to Canada to further stabalize the water levels in areas where duck and geese rear their young.

Senator Moore also reminded Ducks Unlimited members and interested sportsmen that the Raleigh Ducks Unlimited Dinner will be held on February 12th, and that tickets may be obtained by writing or calling Bob Blades or Frank R. Liggett, III, of Raleigh.

Oak City Takes Two

BEAR GRASS — Oak City High School took a pair of games from Bear Grass last night. The Trojans won the boys' game, 64-59, and took the girls' contest, 42-28.

The win tied the Trojans for first place in the boys' standings with a 3-1 Martin County record. Bear Grass is now 0-5. The Oak City girls are now 2-2, while the Bear girls are 1-4.

Details of the game were not made available to The Daily Reflector.

Williamston Downs Weldon

WELDON — Williamston High School took a pair of games from Weldon Friday night. They rallied to take the boys' game, 66-63, and rolled to a 53-37 win in the girls' contest.

In the opener, Williamston moved out into a 9-4 lead in the first period. Weldon fought back, however, outhitting them, 12-9, in the second to trim the lead to 18-16 at halftime.

In the second half, however, the Tigerettes found themselves in trouble. Weldon outhit them, 14-8 in the third quarter and pushed into a 30-26 lead. But the Williamston five came charging back in the third period, outscoring Weldon, 27-7, to take the lead quickly and pull away.

Sissy Taylor led the Williamston scoring with 24 points, while Bet Brandon had 14. Jackie Williams had 16 for Weldon.

In the boys' game, Williamston and Weldon battled closely in the first period, with the Tigers taking a 16-15 lead. In the second period, however, it stayed just as close, with Weldon outhitting Williamston, 13-12, to tie it at 28-28 at halftime.

Weldon eased into a slim lead during the third period, outscoring the Tigers, 21-19, for a 49-47 edge. But the Tigers came back with a 19-14 advantage in the final period to claim the win.

Turkeys Make Comeback

By JIN DEAN

This an unabashed success story which concerns both the return of the wild turkey to many parts of North Carolina, and the biologists and hunters who made it possible.

It wasn't easy, and at least one man "kissed" a turkey to get it to cooperate—but more on that and other strange events later.

Until recently, the wild turkey population in the state was at an all-time low and declining rapidly except along the Roanoke River basin. The reason was primarily because of the loss of suitable habitat, but overharvest by hunters during the fall and winter hunts also played a part.

About three years ago, the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission decided to try some new methods of turkey management using funds provided by license buying sportsmen.

Since other states had been able to restore turkey populations be eliminating fall and winter hunting and substituting a spring gobbler season only, the Commission tried the same tactics in this state.

It has worked very well, mostly because during the spring, hens are usually busy with nesting activities and only gobblers answer the hunter's call. With more hens surviving, and still plenty of gobblers to tend them, the turkey population began to rise.

At the same time, the Wildlife Commission hired Wayne Bailey, the foremost wild turkey expert in the country. When Bailey arrived from West Virginia, he began a highly successful trapping and restocking program, particularly in western North Carolina. Already, the wild turkey has been restored in huntable numbers in six western areas, and more is expected.

One reason for the success is that western turkey range, largely destroyed by unwise timber practices years ago, has been restored to a considerable degree by time and better logging practices under the U.S. Forest Service. When Bailey restocked the turkeys, they thrived, and for the first time in this century, the noblest bird in the land is no longer endangered in this state.

The success has not been achieved without hardship and unusual happenings. Bailey has traveled at least 40,000 miles a year for the past three years, and has spent a long and lonely night hauling live turkeys from Camp Lejeune to the mountains.

In one case, he and his assistant Sam Bradley were trapped accidentally in their own cannon net, no doubt to the glee of any wild turkeys that might have been watching from the nearby woods.

Cannon nets are not the only means used to trap turkeys. Drugged bait is also effective. On one occasion, Bradley captured a bird that refused to shake off the effects of the drug.

Bradley rejected any notion that the bird—a big gobbler—might die. He did what anyone would do. He took the bird home and kept him for two days trying various remedies. He finally brought the gobbler around by force feeding him black coffee and aspirin.

Dick Hamilton, who is in charge of field surveys for the Commission's Division of Game, became even more desperate when confronted with a large gobbler that had taken too hefty a toke on the drugged corn.

When the bird failed to revive, Dick gave it "mouth to beak" resuscitation and the big 20 pound gobbler was eventually saved and restocked. Actually, Dick says that injections of caffine were used to bring the turkey around, and that this modern technique is far more effective than coffe and aspirin—or for that matter, love.

At any rate, the turkeys are back, and their numbers are increasing because hunters and their hired biologists care.

Beginning Boatmen Should Learn Rules

By JACK WOLISTON

NEW YORK (UPI) —One of the biggest concerns of the people who supervise recreational boating is how to improve safety-on-the-water for the 46 million persons who participate in the sport.

Their primary program is concerned with educating the beginning boatman. This is based on the premise that a trained operator is more likely to avoid a mishap than the person who takes to the water with no knowledge whatsoever of piloting, navigation, fueling practices, "Rules of the Road," etc.

Taking one of these educational courses, offered free of charge at various times of the year in most of the 50 states by such organizations as the U.S. Power Squadrons, the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary and the Red Cross, always has been voluntary on the part of the beginning boatman.

As a result, boating officials say, too many first-timers avoid it.

In a recent statement, the U.S. Coast Guard reported that a survey of its 5th District showed that only 20 per cent of the boating public was reached through voluntary education channels.

The situation has brought from some safety-promoting groups the proposal that education of beginning boaters be made mandatory, a move which many in the sport believe could lead to general licensing of all pleasure boat operators.

The controversy prompted the Boating Safety Advisory Council, a 21-member group set up by the Federal Safe Boating Act of 1971, to appoint a committee to study and evaluate the effectiveness of existing educational programs as opposed to mandatory education.

Preliminary Report

In a preliminary report to the recent conference of the National Association of State Boating Law Administrators (NASBLA), Mrs. Florence B. Wade of Virginia, committee chairman, said state boating agencies overwhelmingly back voluntary education.

She said 29 of 38 states replying to a committee questionnaire said voluntary education efforts would be effective in reaching the majority of boatmen in their respective states.

In response to another facet of the survey, most of the state agencies reported that booklets and pamphlets were the most popular means of reaching boatmen with an education message.

At the same NASBLA conference, Lt. John Ebersole, chief of the Coast Guard's Training Branch, indicated that his group, which previously has hinted that operator licensing may be in the offing, was willing to give voluntary education a chance to prove it works.

In an effort to aid, he said the Coast Guard essentially has moved into three areas:

—Direct public education via home study and classroom instruction.

—Enforcement training to give personnel a strong foundation in law enforcement substantively and procedurally that will gain the respect and good will of the boating public.

—The broadest possible informational dissemination, for example, publicity about courses.

RCALLS 73-0 GAME

WASHINGTON (AP) — Edward Bennett Williams, president of the Washington Redskins, was visibly nervous before his team's playoff game against the Dallas Cowboys.

"Don't be nervous," said Bill MacPhail, CBS sports vice-president. "George Preston Marshall lost one of these (playoff games) by 73 to nothing." Washington won and went to the Super Bowl.

Ducks Unlimited (Canada)

MASKED RAIDER — The raccoon has earned itself a very shady reputation in duck marshes. Clever and adaptable, this animal has become a major predator of duck nests in many areas. Largely a night hunter, the raccoon is an expert climber and good swimmer. Favored haunts are the vicinity of wet areas such as lakes, rivers, marshes and swamps. A fully grown adult will weigh 15 lbs. or more. In Canada the raccoon ranges from British Columbia east-ward into the Maritimes.

Shad Festival Now Underway

Calling all fishermen — the shad are on the way!

American shad have been reported caught above New Bern and will soon be traveling upstream toward Grifton. The hickory shad will not be far behind.

Officials of the Grifton Shad Festival opened the 1973 shad fishing contest this week. Any hickory shad caught on rod and reel in the Grifton area may be entered in the contest. All catches entered must be weighed at the Sport Shop in Grifton and prizes of fishing tackle will be given winners in each of three categories, adult division, junior division, and for the fisherman who travels the farthest to fish in the Grifton area. Prizes will be given during intermission at the Shad Queen beauty pageant Friday evening, April 13.

The Third Annual Shad Festival is being expanded to three days, April 13-15, with all popular features of the past two Festivals, plus a Queen's Ball, a two-day golf tournament, and extending the Arts and Crafts Show for two days.

The pageant and ball will be on Friday evening, a horse show, golf tournament, and arts and crafts on Sunday, and the other features on Saturday. Parade, speakers, fish fry and stew, games, pancake supper, golf, arts and crafts, flea market, and street dance are Saturday events. Recreational vehicles will also be on display and a 14-ft. fiberglass bass boat with trailer will be given away.

Dean Gets Third Ace

Robert Dean recently fired a hole-in-one at the Brook Valley Country Club.

The ace, the first of the year at the club, came on the 231-yard fifth hole. Dean used a four-wood to make the shot. The ace was the third of his career.

Playing with him at the time were Gene Ward, John Lautares, Willard Wilson and Al Ward.

Brothers Retire From Barbecue Business

For 38 years, local people, noted personalities and food-lovers in many distant points have enjoyed the flavorful pit-cooked barbecue prepared by the Respess Brothers.

Text and Photograph by Tom Baines

Smug and Ronald Respess of Respess Brothers Barbecue retired recently with 38 years in the restaurant business and a pit full of memories to look back on.

But, had health reasons not prompted their retirement, they say they probably would have continued the business that was, for years and years, the hub of barbecue activity in this area.

"It was a hard pill to swallow, a tough decision to make," commented Smug, as he is known by most, or Clement M. Respess. "It was something that was forced on us by our health and if it hadn't been for that, we'd still be there. I would."

Smug and Ronald moved from their home at Pantego to Rocky Mount around 1930, he related, and then came to Greenville in 1934 with their older brother, V. A. Respess, who had worked at Bob Melton's Barbecue for several years before deciding to try the business on his own.

Respess Barbecue opened on June 24, 1934, a Thursday, he remembered, "because that was the day we got cleaned up and set up" for business. It was a big day. "I remember that Thursday, all right."

"We were...all working together but really and truly we were working for him (V. A. Respess). He was the boss," Respess continued, noting that he looked up to his older brother as a second daddy.

He said that the building, located on N. Greene Street had been built in 1928 and had housed several cafe and night spot ventures before the brothers turned it into a restaurant, specializing in barbecue and brunswick stew.

The reputations of other businesses at the location shadowed the early weeks at Respess Barbecue and he recalled, "the first Sunday we were there we took in $12.

Then, during the second week in July of 1934, "Mr. John Clark of Sinclair Oil Co. gave us a party out there and I never will forget it. I thought it was the biggest thing to ever happen in Greenville. We had about 40 to 50 people out there. And from that day on it looked like it just started up. He gave us our first party . . ."

Barbecue was popular in those days, Respess continued, "but that place had a bad name. You may not believe it, but the first 60 days we were there we ran away more people than we seated because people would come in and throw their liquor on the table...and we just didn't have that kind of thing there. We had to do some straightening out and it took a long time."

"We had to let the people know what to expect out there and what you were going to do and what you weren't going to do."

From the start, the brothers maintained a seven-day a week schedule and began to make a name for their restaurant and their barbecue, made from their own recipe.

Commenting on the famous pit-cooked pork, Respess noted that "it's not but one true way to cook a pig and that's to cook him by oak wood on an open fire. Now people have got to the place where they cook with gas and anything else they can get because you can't get any more oak wood. You can tell it, it (barbecue) will be right spongy."

He said that the restaurant used oak or other hardwoods until recently when it became almost impossible to get it. "We didn't have any trouble up to about a year ago," he added.

V. A. Respess died in 1946 and the two younger brothers bought out the entire operation. A new dining room was added to the north end of the building and business boomed as Respess Brothers became the top spot in the area for parties and banquets.

During the years that followed, Respess Brothers catered barbecue to a variety of places. "President Roosevelt used to eat our barbecue before he died," Respess said. "We used to ship it to him. The train would leave out of here for Weldon and you could get on another train there and go on to Washington."

"They had a House Restaurant, that's what it used to be, and then it was the White House Cafeteria. Pat Johnson ran it and we used to ship him 25 to 50 pounds of barbecue every Monday afternoon and they had it on the menu on Tuesday up there. And they say President Roosevelt used to eat it."

Respess said that the restaurant also catered a Congressional picnic every year for several years, serving members of Congress and other officials in July. Food was cooked and packed up in containers here and taken to Washington, he continued. He added that it usually took about two days to prepare for the trip. North Carolina Day in Washington was another event that Respess Brothers catered, he pointed out.

Here in Greenville, a banquet was catered for the late Sam Rayburn, Speaker of the House from Texas, at East Carolina College. Mickey Rooney also stopped in for barbecue when he came through Greenville.

Respess said that many people from out of town ate here and asked him to send them barbecue and, among other places, he sent packages of various amounts of barbecue to Richmond, Washington, D. C., Norfolk, Lexington, Salisbury, Asheville, Raleigh, Fayetteville, Goldsboro, Las Vegas, New York, Philadelphia, London and Frankfurt, Germany.

"I sent 20 pounds to Asheville two days before Christmas," he said. It takes longer to get it to Asheville than it does to California. You can fly it to California but you have to send it on the bus to Asheville. People in Greenville would be surprised to know how many pounds of barbecue we have shipped out of here from California to Lakeland, Fla., Iowa, Detroit, Mich., all over."

Respess said that no one ever failed to pay for barbecue he shipped. "I never lost an account yet on one, not the first one. You send them a bill for it and they send you a check, pre-paid here in Greenville, no trouble."

He added, "I've always trusted a man the first time. You can look at somebody and tell. I guess that's the reason I got as many friends as I have and I wouldn't give up all my friends for all the money there is in Pitt County today.

He related how Respess Brothers used to serve the football team from East Carolina, coached by Jack Boone, when they got back in from road trips. "Jack would call and ask me, 'Smug, I've got so and so and so and so and only so much money to feed them, can you handle it? Sometimes he'd have a third of it, sometimes half of it, sometimes he wouldn't have none of it. I'd say, 'Jack, bring them on.' "

"We were the first ones to ever put a banquet on for the high school," he noted, "to ever give them anything in Greenville.

Respess said that as far as he knew, his restaurant was the oldest in Greenville at the time of the brothers' retirement.

"You meet a lot of people in a business like this and I know I'm going to miss 'em. But there was nothing I could do about it," he asserted. "There comes a time in every man's life that you got to go..."

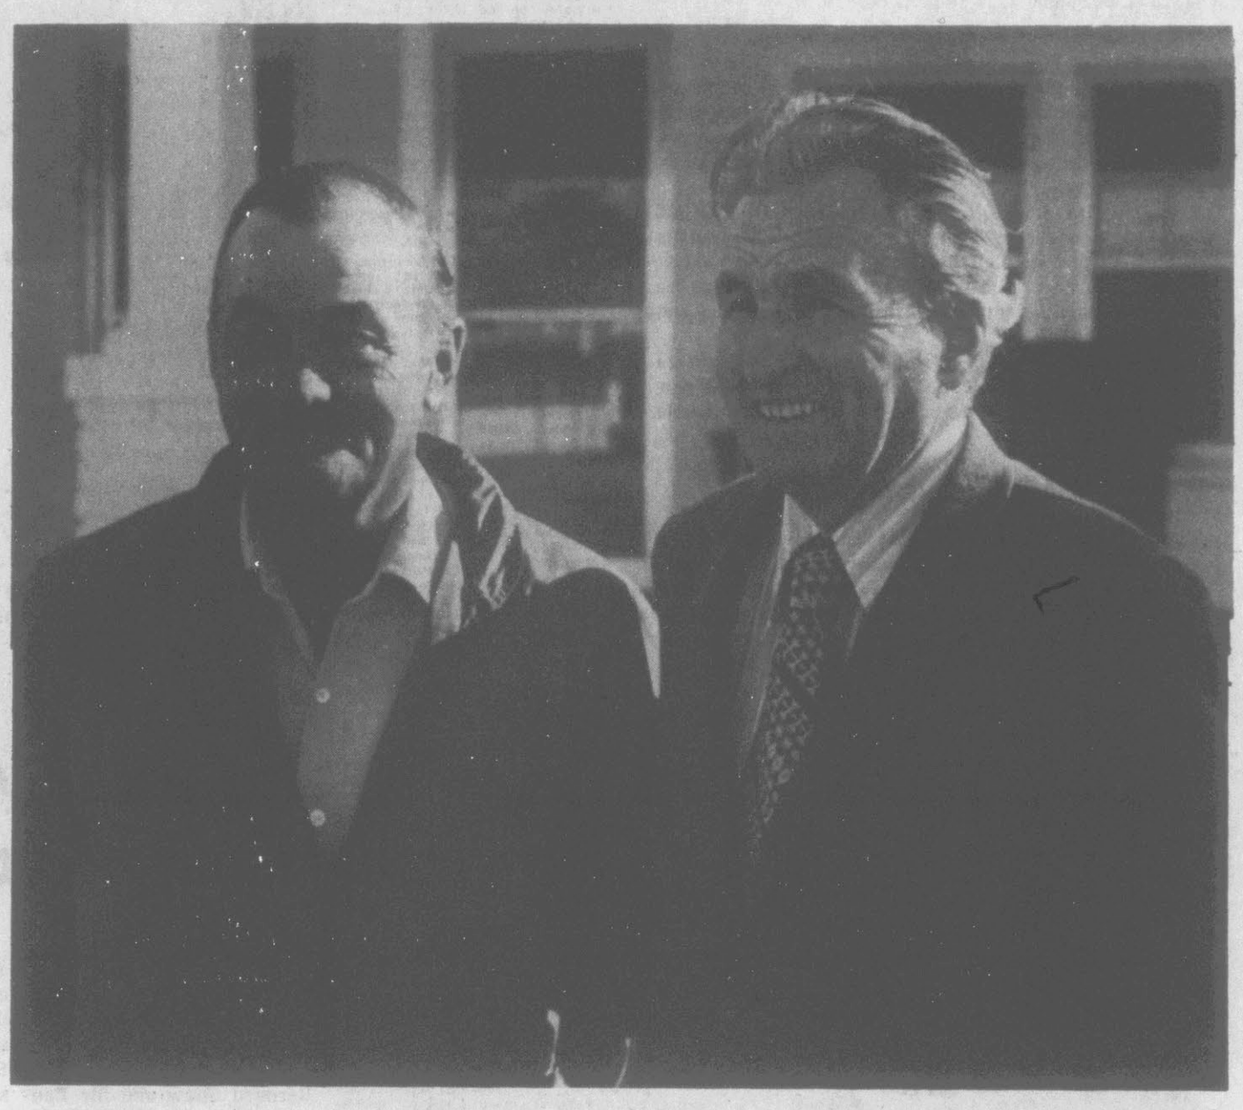

Respess gave his wife, Elizabeth, credit for helping keep the business going. "In fact, after I had my first heart attack, she ran the business for me the last four years."

"I don't have any regrets," he said. "We made a good living."

Respess said that the entire operation, including land, building and equipment, was sold to Sam Price and Angelo Maurakis, both of Greenville. "I wanted to sell it to somebody local," he added. He concluded his last day as owner of the restaurant on Dec. 29 and the new owners took over on Jan. 2.

Respess said that he and his brother like to fish and he hopes to do that some now. Golf is also a favorite hobby and doctors, he noted, said it would be good for for him to play.

He concluded, "I hope I'm going to enjoy my retirement but I know I'll miss that restaurant."

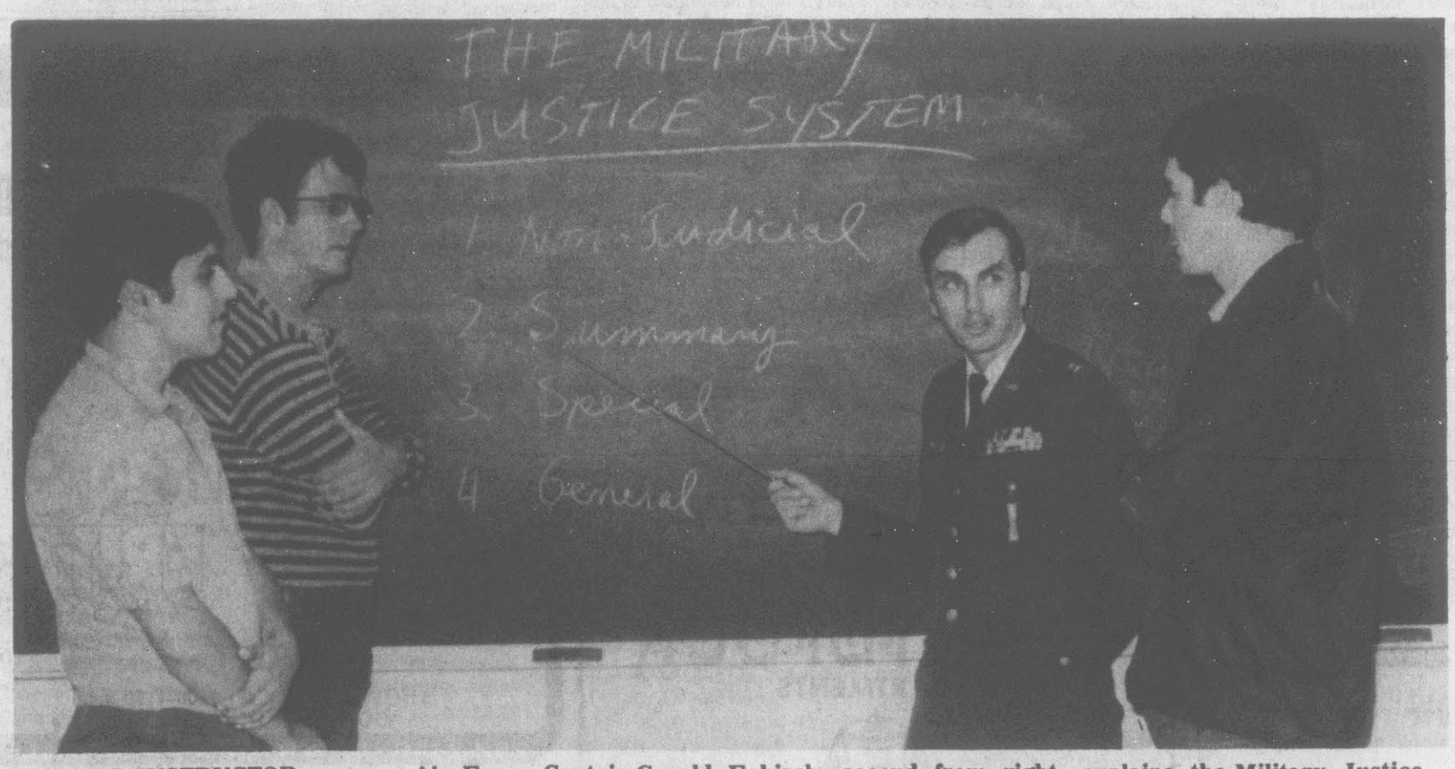

RETIREMENT . . . from the barbecue business after 38 years was not an easy decision for Smug (Right) and Ronald Respess to make, but they followed the advice of their doctors and sold their interests in Respess Brothers Barbecue recently. They are shown here in front of the N. Greene Street Restaurant.

A Military Officer Serving In The Greenville Community

Air Force Captain Gerald, an instructor in the ECU AFROTC program, is a young officer whose duties include being a teacher. He is also active in local community affairs. Captain Fabisch outlines the high points of assignments in the nine years he has been a military man.

Text and Photograph by Jerry Raynor

Air Force Captain Gerald Fabisch in many respects is like thousands of young military officers. As a career military man, he keeps abreast of developments in his field; he finds time to insure a maximum degree of physical fitness; and mentally, he keeps himself disciplined to be prepared at a moment's notice to pack and be on his way to a distant post anywhere in the world.

Currently an instructor in the Aerospace Studies program of the Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps (AFROTC) at East Carolina University, Captain Fabisch is in an assignment that only a relatively handful of military men experience in their career, that of a military man serving in a civilian community.

"This is my first assignment in an AFROTC unit," Captain Fabisch said. "My permanent duty station is Det. 600, AFROTC. I'm attached to the administrative program at Maxwell Air Force Base in Montgomery, Alabama, and my records are kept at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base in Goldsboro."

According to Fabisch, "more than 180 detachments serve the U.S., Puerto Rico and Hawaii. Our job is to teach services, Air Force management, leadership, military justice and other subjects to cadets in preparation for active duty."

This year at ECU, Fabisch noted, "there are about 110 cadets. These men have a three year assignment in the AFROTC program."

The ECU detachment is commanded by Aerospace Professor Colonel Earl D. Bruton, Jr. There are a total of four officers and three enlisted men actively engaged in the ECU AFROTC program, either in teaching or in administrative positions.

"I'm also," Fabisch said, "commandant of the cadets. One of my duties is to monitor the drill team." Fabisch admits that teaching is something he enjoys, and that a good portion of his military career in one way or another has involved teaching.

But all is not a self-enclosed world in the halls of Whichard Building for this Air Force career officer. Along with the cadets, who have an enviable local reputation for being willing workers in various community projects, Captain Fabisch is now in the midst of carrying the ball as campaign chairman for the 1973 March of Dimes. In this extensive campaign, he is working closely with Greenville citizens, men and women. Under his supervision, six major events from January 19 through February 17 have been planned and coordinated.

"I'm excited about the possibilities of this campaign," Fabisch remarked. The people in Greenville have traditionally gone all out in support of campaigns for worthy causes. I hope this drive will raise $10,000. I think it's possible, as last year more than $8,000 was raised."

Gerald Fabisch and his wife, the former Ruth Wilhelm, are both natives of New Jersey. Their home town is Hackensack. Both are descendants of German ancestors.

Fabisch's early interest in the Air Force began in his college days. "I was in the Air Force Reserve program from October 1959 to December 1963," he said. After attending the Stevens Institute of Technology, Fabisch next attended Fairleigh Dickinson University and then Montclair State College. He received the masters degree at Montclair.

1963 was an eventful year for Fabisch. "I was married in June of 1963, received my masters degree in September, and in December reported to the Officer Training School in Lackland Air Force Base at San Antonio, Texas," Fabisch commented.

After Lackland, the next step in his Air Force career was a six months study course at the Munitions School at Lowry Air Force Base in Colorado. "This course was to train new officers as Munitions Officer," Fabisch said. "When I completed the course, I was kept on for two years as an instructor."

"In May 1966," Fabisch said, "I received orders for Okinawa, my first overseas assignment. When I arrived at Kadena, I found my job was to get munition flight lines in readiness for B-52s. That was a 14 hours a day job."

Okinawa, the main island of the Ryukuy Island group, administered for more than 20 years by the U. S. before reverting to Japan, has been home base for many thousands of U. S. servicemen. Fabisch's opinions about duty on Okinawa reflect those of many of the men who have served there over the years.

"I really liked it, the island and the people," he remarked. "At first, we lived off base. We bought a house, an American style one. We lived seven miles from the base."

The years Fabisch and his family lived in Okinawa, first in an off-base house and later in government housing, were calm years. "We left just prior to the agitation over of the reversion of Okinawa back to Japan," Fabisch remarked. "I mingled freely with the Okinawans and was delighted with the work they performed, and their outlook on life.

"There were about 150 Okinawans working for me, young and old, men and women," he said. "We enjoyed our association. And I was a teacher there also teaching a safety program for our people inter-related with a program for the Okinawans."

Some of the things Fabisch remembers about Okinawa with pleasure are the "festivities, the boat races, and traveling the back roads. At certain vantage points, you can see both the East China Sea and the Pacific Ocean."

While they lived there, Mrs. Fabisch's parents visited them.

Though their tour terminated before the problems of reversion, there were moments of danger in which Fabisch was involved. "A KC-135 crashed into the munitions storage area," he said, "and the week before we left, a B-52 crashed into the same area. This set off an explosion that formed a crater thirty feet deep and sixty feet wide."

Typhoons, a common occurrence on this Pacific island, put in an appearance while the Fabisch family lived there.

In January 1970 Fabisch was back again in the U.S., this time a little further west than on previous assignments. "I was Wing Explosive Safety Officer of the 4453rd Combat Crew Training Wing," he said. "This wing trained pilots for the F-4 aircraft, most of whom were due for a tour in Southeast Asia."

After a little more than one year of teaching, orders came in March 1971 for Fabisch to do his bit in Viet-Nam.

"My assignment was at Cam Ranh Bay," Fabisch remarked. At this huge U.S. built harbor-supply complex, the major American supply point, Fabisch was Safety Officer for the 483rd Tactical Airlift Wing.

"As safety officer, I had the duty of carrying out and programming safety measures for about 20 different types of aircraft from the largest to the C-7A Caribou, a small twin engine aircraft that can land on a dirt strip only a 1,000 feet long."

When time came for five days of rest and relaxation given each military man during his Viet-Nam tour, Fabisch chose Hawaii. "My wife and daughter were there to greet me," Fabisch said. Their daughter, Deidra, is now five. The second Fabisch child is a son, one year old Jason Peter.

In addition to his R and R Hawaii trip, Fabisch also had an opportunity to visit the beach resort town of Vung Tau and Da Nang, in the foothills of Viet Nam. "I had one moment of excitement," he explained. "On the trip to Vung Tau I drove in a jeep and was shot at."

In March 1972, having completed his tour in Viet-Nam, Fabisch had a one month leave, spent in New Jersey.

"Then in May 1972, I came to Greenville for the AFROTC assignemtnt," he said.

For both Captain and Mrs. Fabisch, living in a predominately civilian community poses some adjustments from their accustomed life style. "I miss living in a community with military wives," Mrs. Fabisch smiled. "But even here in this community (Red Oak Sub-division) we have military people. In addition to my husband, there 's a Marine captain, and two army reserve officers, all active duty people. I also like being this near home, it's only about 500 miles to our part of New Jersey," she said.

Despite his schedule of teaching duties and involvement in the March of Dimes campaign, Captain Fabisch still finds time to keep up personal physical training and free moments now and then to devote to hobbies.

"I use to play varsity tennis," Fabisch said. "Right now I manage to jog about one and a half miles almost every day and I ride a bicycle as much as possible.

"For hobbies I enjoy building model airplanes, and" he smiled, "I'm afraid I crash them with regularity." He has managed also to rebuild a small car, a Sprite.

Eventually, as things go with the military, Captain Gerry Fabisch will receive orders that will take him away from ECU to a new assignemnt.

"I want to go to Germany," Fabisch said. "It's a country I want to see, to visit, especially since both our families came from there.

For now, however, Fabisch says he's happy teaching at ECU. "The cadets are good students. There's always pleasure in teaching students who are serious about their studies. They're a fine group of young men."

Donna Fargo Has Own Success 'Recipe'

JUST HAPPY — Donna Fargo has become the first female to ever have back-to-back million selling singles on both country and pop western charts. (AP Wirephoto)

By ALAN WILSON
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — If you're looking for that recipe of success in the music world, Donna Fargo will be happy to reveal the ingredients: a little truck driving, an insistent brother and a lot of soul searching.

Then again, if you're not Doona Fargo, the whole affair could be a bust.

Donna's career is a perplexing study, but not because she lacks talent. Here is a celebrity who several years ago was teaching hig school in Los Angeles without any burning desire to be a star.

Today, she's the only female country singer to ever produce back-to-back million selling singles on both the country and pop music charts—"Happiest Girl in the Whole USA" and "Funny Face." As if that's not enough, she's one of only a handful of female country singer writing most of her material.

Donna's next single, released last Friday, is called "Superman."

"It's a novelty tune about a guy with a superman ego," she said. "It's not negative. It just sorta puts him in his place."

Donna's father, a North Carolina farmer, tossed her behind the wheel of his truck when she was nine years old and told her to drive. In front of her lay nine clear acres in which to learn.

She promptly drove the truck into a river.

"I wasn't hurt," she said, "and I learned mighty fast how to drive. I found out where the brakes were, the accelerator was and the steering wheel and I never forgot. That's kind of how I've learned to write songs."

As for her brother, he was the type who had more faith in Donna than she did.

"I never told anyone I wanted to be a singer," said the striking brunette, "because I was bashful and lacked confidence. It was easier to be a teacher."

But about five years ago, her brother "made me to to an an audition in Hollywood"—the starting point of her career. And, when Donna was 16, he made arrangements for her to be sneaked into a nightclub in Mertle Beach, N.C.—knowing full well that his sister was unaware she would be called upon to perform.

Trying to explain her rapid clib to stardom, Donna said:

"Maybe it was because I finally discovered myself. I feel a unity with the world.

"I had security as a teacher but I also saw the light within myself. I learned something from songs that wasn't there before—how to love, give and receive. I've reached the point where I welcome each experience."

Donn's music is typical of that being written by a new, younger breed of country music artists—tunes that are highly commercial and offer something for virtually everyone. Expanding on the traditions of country music—both lyrically and melodically—also is becoming a trademark of her musical colleagues.

"The younger generation," she said, "is more concerned with freedom of the individual. They're saying just because something happens to be a tradition, man, that doesn't mean a thing. They have to live with themselves."

But, in accounting for her broad appeal, the explanation goes beyond that.

"I never did learn what country or pop progression was. I guess a lack of certain knowledge about the business can allow for individuality."

"I didn't know anything about songs when I first started. I had to go back through the whole discovery thing, like when I drove that truck into the water."

Donna readily concedes she hasn't quite tuned in to all the ins and outs of her budding career.

"I'm still trying to figure out what I can give the people that will be me," she said. "At times I'm reluctant and I don't know what all of me is."

That can't be too unusual, coming from someone who says "I love to explore the heart and some of anything."

As for her advice to those wanting to make it big? Stick with the soul searching.

"If you can overcome those things that hurt and accept those that aren't always good, you can make it.

"I don't have all the answers, but I'm ready to accept them.

There's An Album For Those Fans Of Groucho

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Woody Allen thinks that Groucho Marx is the greatest comedian America has ever produced.

And if you believe everything you read, so did George Bernard Shaw and Sir Laurence Olivier.

No matter whether you are willing to go along with these thoughts or not, Groucho Marx has been a source of great amusement since he first appeared with his brothers in "The Coconuts" through his long-running television show, "You Bet Your Life."

Marx recalls the early days of his career and the years of success in "An Evening With Groucho" (A&M SP3515), a two-LP album based on his appearance at Carnegie Hall.

Occasionally he bursts into song but the narration is what makes Groucho's story a memorable experience. He is a master of timing and almost every line brings a laugh, especially the one about the Chicago critic who panned World War I.

"An Evening With Groucho" moves so well that, despite its length, it invites many replays.

George Burns is another comedian of great stature. Like Groucho, Burns is a master of the ad-lib line.

Back in the 1930s, when George served as a foil for the never-to-be-forgotten Gracie Allen in the movies and on radio, he would occasionally sing a few bars in the Bing Crosby crooning style that was popular at that time.

But nobody took George's singing seriously.

Gets Last Laugh

Now, more than a quarter of a century later, George Burns can enjoy a gentle last laugh at those who snickered when he sang. Several months ago Burns staged a one-man singing show on television that got good reviews.

The success of the TV show made it possible for Burns to record "An Evening With George Burns" (Buddah BDS5127). It should be a sleeper.

Burns is not going to make Engelbert Humperdinck or Richard Harris or Robert Goulet run for the hills because his vocal range is limited. But he does know how to tailor lyrics to meet his unique requirements.

The highlight of the album perhaps is "Ain't Misbehaving," the old Fats Waller standby which Burns handles beautifully. Other good numbers are "I'll Buy the Ring," "With a Little Help From My Friends" by John Lennon and Paul McCartney and "You Made Me Love You."

Among the new comedians, Carroll O'Connor must be considered in the same niche with Groucho Marx and George Burns.

Even though the character he portrays so ably is not an ideal American, nobody seems to hold a grudge against O'Connor. His first "All in the Family" album was a best-selling LP and the current one, "All in the Family, 2nd Album" (Atlantic SD7232) is even better because it includes the classic episode involving Sammy Davis Jr. and his visit to Archie Bunker's home.

Something of a disappointment is "The Age of Television, A Chronicle of the First 25 Years" (Warner Bros. BS2670). The idea was great but there are only fleeting moments of shows by Milton Berle, Jackie Gleason and others and too much talk by Hugh Downs and Arlene Francis. Television owes much to Downs and Miss Francis but it would have been better had this project been developed into a two-LP album with more substance.

TV Notes

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bill Bixby, who has had his share of success in television series—three years in "My Favorite Martian" and two with "The Courtship of Eddie's Father" — will try again. NBC and Paramount Television are combining on a 90-minute film for video, "The Magician," that is a pilot for a series. Bixby plays a modern Merlin with a Robin Hood complex.

Dennis Weaver took time out from his NBC "McCloud" series to make a movie-for-video, "Female Artillery," for Universal which will be seen on ABC's "Movie of the Week" series.

This is one I can't wait to miss—a musical version of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," with Kirk Douglas as the split personality. But I'll have to wait until March 7. The 90-minute special will be on NBC. Well, just about everything else has been done to the Stevenson classic...

Carl Reiner and Dick Van Dyke, long allied in the two successful Van Dyke series, collaborated on a pilot for a pissible CBS series, "Nancy Clancy," co-starring Nancy Dussault and comedian Rip Taylor. Reiner wrote the script, Van Dyke directed.

Feb. 25 is the date for this year's television preview of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus on NBC. Lorne Greene is the host.

"NBC Children's Theater" will present five Saturday specials early in 1973, with the last scheduled for March 17.

From Sheppard Memorial Library

by KAY TAYLOR

Stepping to the microphone to announce the special activity for early evening, the boy's summer camp director cheerfully boomed, "Today we have a very special treat, something that I'm sure each and every one of you will thoroughly enjoy. In thirty minutes Harry Krents is going to thrill you will an incredible display of water-skiing."

"Hey, Harry, I didn't know that you knew how to water-ski," said Bob from the other end of the table.

"Neither did I," I gasped.

With these words, Harold Krents begins one of many interesting anecdotes in his autobiography TO RACE THE WIND. Born with severely limited eyesight, Harold became completely blind at the age of nine. Still just a boy, he found himself faced with a momentous decision, one which every handicapped person must make: would he live a life of dependence on others, wallowing in their pity, or would he keep his independence, bravely fighting an uphill battle for acceptance in the world of the "normal." Even at his tender age he realized that once he made his choice, he could never turn back. Harold Krents made his decision for independence, a stand which his parents had encouranged in his early childhood by allowing him to do the things other children do - ride bikes play football and baseball, run unrestrained. They refused to let his handicap rule his life.

In TO RACE THE WIND Harold Krents recounts his life story. With tenderness he shown a very lonely little boy; yet he does not allow the reader to become steeped in pity. He dwells not on the sad parts but on humorous, courageous incidents that shown the strength of his character.

With determination he stayed in public schools, and, upon completion of high school, he graduated from Harvard and Harvard Law School. He is now married and employed in a law firm.

The popular Broadway play and movie BUTTERFLIES ARE FREE was inspired by Harold Krent's life.

RACE THE WIND is highly recommended both for adults and children. It is truly a book the whole family can enjoy.

ECU'S MIMI. . . .Miss June Laine, will sing the leading feminine role in the ECU Playhouse production of Puccini's "La Boheme" which opens Tuesday night at 8:15 in McGinnis Auditorium. Two other performances will be given on Thursday and on Saturday. (Reflector Staff Photo)

Old Favorite 'La Boheme' Is Playhouse Production

A colorfully staged, lavishly costumed production of Giacomo Puccini's most beloved opera, La Boheme, is opening in McGinnis Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday for a total of three performances.

For this Playhouse production, performances will be given on an every-other night basis — with Tuesday's opening to be followed by performances on Thursday and Saturday evenings, all at 8:15 p.m.

La Boheme, premiered on February 1, 1896 in Turin, Italy, was first produced in the U.S. in Los Angeles on October 14, 1897. In the three quarters of a century that has followed, La Boheme has become an all-time favorite with audiences in all corners of the world.

It is not only the lyrical music, but the very human, believable story that has caught and held the imagination of lovers of music as well as theater patrons.

Basically the story of four young Bohemians in search of happiness and love, there is a predominance of lighthearted, comic situations.

This youthful, innocent happiness is marred by the tradedy of Mimi's incurable illness. Around this universally appealing story line, Puccinni has woven some of the most singable music in opera repertoire, including Musetta's Waltz.

In the East Carolina University Playhouse production, Miss June Laine sings the role of the ill-starred Mimi. Charles Moore has the principal male role, that of Rudolfo. Charles Smith, David Faber and Robert Beard are Marcello, Colline and Schaunard, respectively, and Rosalyn Barlowe is Musetta. Rounding out the cast of principals are Martin Thompson, doubling in the roles of the landlord and the statesman, and James Powers as Parpignol.

In addition to the principal singers, the Playhouse production of LaBoheme has a chorus of 20 members, nine children in the children's chorus, and a marching band of five members.

Performers are all drawn from faculty and student bodies at the university, and from townspeople, to make this gala event a truly local affair.

Michael Hardy is stage director, and Robert Hause, conductor of the ECU Symphony Orchestra, is musical director and is also responsible for musical preparation.

Miss Carol H. Beule has designed the wardrobe for the production, using authentic period costumes of the 1880s in Paris. Robert T. Williams is stage designer.

The production is in English, using the basic standard Thompson translation.

"La Boheme," director Hardy notes, "is the first joint School of Music and Drama Department production attempted in about six years here at ECU. I feel it will be one of the finest things we've done in a long time."

Tickets, priced at $2.50 each, are now on sale at the McGinnis ticket office. Holders of season tickets for the five Playhouse productions are asked to present their tickers at the door.

La Boheme is the third Playhouse production of the 72-73 season, following Fiddler On The Roof and Galileo. The two remaining productions are The Hostage in late March; and Day In The Death of Joe Egg coming in May. Jerry Raynor

First One-Man Show For Bill Donnan

It will be one of the briefest exhibits to be seen around Greenville for some time when Bill Donnan's show of sculptures and paintings opens Friday at The Mushroom for a one week viewing.

Donnan, native of Chapel Hill and a senior majoring in sculpture in the East Carolina University School of Art, will be given a public reception from 7 to 9 p.m. Friday at The Mushroom.

In this first one-man show, the young artists is showing about a dozen pieces of sculpture—bronzes, welded steel, wood and fiberglass. "Most of the pieces are bronze or sculptured steel," Donnan commented. He mentioned that he had waited to have a one-man show as he felt he was not ready for this event until now.

"I'm moving to organic forms in my sculpture," he said. "Before, most of what I was doing was geometric or a combination of organic and geometric. I'm finding a stronger attraction to the organic form, especially to attenuated, drawn out forms."

One very recent piece, carved from a block of local white oak, is an example of the attenuated form carried out to an almost baroque statement. On a self-contained base, Donnan has carved free-form arabesques that give a feeling of airiness contrasting to the solidity of the base. The light color of the new oak adds to the effectiveness of this work.

"Some of the bronzes," Donnan revealed, "were cast last summer in Cortona, Italy.'" Donnan spent three months with artists from the Georgia university sytems in Italy. "Being able to have them cast was a big help to us, as we were pressed for time," he said. "We made a number of two, three and four day tours, and spent one of our weeks in Florence."

After graduation, which is due this quarter, the bachelor artist plans to enter graduate school at East Carolina

It's unfortunate that this excellent first one-man show for Donnan has only one week on view at The Mushroom. (It has to make way for a scheduled six man group show opening there on February 11). Hopefully, Donnan will be able to find another point in Greenville at which the sculpture and paintings can be seen for an additional period. This small collection, especially the sculptures, deserves a wide showing. There's some fine things here. Jerry Raynor

The concert, to be given in the museum's Golden Circle Theatre, will have on the program works by Besozzi, Fiocco, Vivaldi, Schuman, Debussy, Schmidt, Cunningham, Stringfield, Wyman, Lamb and Glick.

Three ECU Student Shows Last Week

Three senior students in the East Carolina University School of Art showed examples of their work this past week in campus exhibitions.

The students, Elaine Davis Spruill, Phyllis Bailey Ayers and Jean White, are all candidates for the BS degree in art, and plan to teach art upon graduation.

Miss Spruill and Miss Ayers displayed their work in the gallery of third floor Rawl Building.

Miss Spruill's show included oil and acrylic paintings, water color paintings, drawings and woodcuts. A transfer student from Meredith College, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Duke Spruill II of Windsor.

Miss Ayers showed a selection of paintings and craft designs. She has a studio major in painting and is a student of ECU Artist-in-Residence Edward Reep. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Bailey of Route 4, Williamston.

Miss White's Student Union gallery show included oil and acrylic paintings and charcoal drawings. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce White Sr. of Lewiston.

COMMEMORATION

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's Post Office issued a commemorative cover to mark the 400th anniversary of the death of John Knox, the Scottish religious reformer. The cover shows a bust of Knox superimposed on a drawing of his house in Edinburgh.

Music On Campus

Because of the scheduled performances of La Boheme opening on Tuesday evening in McGinnis Auditorium only one other event is scheduled in music on campus in the coming week.

Charles J. Mercavich, a graduate composition student in electronic music, will have a recital beginning at 8:15 p.m. Monday in the Recital Hall.

A native of Painesville, Ohio, Mercavich will be assisted by Miss Donna Grose, piano and the East Carolina University Percussion Ensemble, conducted by Danny Tindall, with Gray Barrier, Peyton Becton, John Floyd, Butch Sievers and Earl Taylor.

Mercavich has listed for his program Creme de Yvette (Moog Synthesiser); Two Pieces for Piano; Two Pieces for Magnetic Tape; Descriptions for Moog Synthesizer: Abstract Reality (Moog); Off the Track (Moog); and Transition for Percussion.

The public is invited to attend and the recital is free.

Purchase Funds Authorized

A total of $5,000 in accumulated interest from the Rachel Maxwell Moore Foundation has been authorized to be spent for works of art during calendar year 1973.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors on Wednesday, Board of Directors members Marvin K. Blount, Sr., chairman, Charles Howard, and ex- officio members Mrs. William W. Fore and Mrs. Edith Walker approved the decision.

As a first purchase idea, an amount of $200 has been earmarked for a purchase award for a work of art from the forthcoming First Annual North Carolina Watercolor Society exhibit to be held in Wilmington in March.

The Acquisition Committee of the East Carolina Art Society is charged with the responsibility for selecting, approving and purchasing works of art for the permanent collection of the Greenville Art Center.

Dr. Donald Tucker is currently the chairman of the committee. Other members are Mrs. James Ficklen, Jr., James Graham and Dr. Alfred Yongue. Mrs. William Fore, president of the East Carolina Art Society and Mrs. Edith Walker, director of the Greenville Art Center, are ex-officio members of the Acquisitions Committee.

In addition to the action taken on funds authorized for use by the Acquisitions Committee, the Rachel Maxwell Moore Foundation directors approved sending a resolution of respect and appreciation to the family of the late Robert Jeffrey Maxwell, who died in 1972. The late Mr. Maxwell, together with his brother, Grover Maxwell, Sr., both of Augusta, Georgia, have contributed in excess of $50,000 to the fund established by their late sister, Mrs. Moore.

The directors further approved investment of the capital of the fund in the manner recommended by officials of the North Carolina National Bank, which is acting in an official capacity as advisor to the investment of the fund, which now totals almost $100,000.

Earnings from the fund are earmarked annually for purchase of works of art for the Greenville Art Center, as stipulated in the original agreement of the fund established by the late Mrs. Moore.

Ft. Carlson, Colo., was established in 1942 to train the 4th Infantry Division and other units for combat, a mission it retains.

Music Scholarships Revealed

Details of the 1973 Eastern Music Festival Scholarship Competition and General Auditions have been announced.

In mid-February, at four locations in North Carolina, Dr. Joseph Thayer, Director of Admission for the Eastern usic Festival, will hold auditions for young musicians between the ages of 12 and 20.

Following the initial auditions, a small number of outstanding performers will be invited to compete in a scholarship competition, with the winner to receive full scholarships to the annual festival. Full scholarships will include tuition, room and board, but will not include the cost of private study.

The times, dates and places of the four North Carolina audition sites are given below. The first time and date is for general audition for acceptance; the second time and date is for the scholarship competition which is by invitation only.

—February 13, 3:30-9:30 p.m—Greensboro, UNC-G Music Building Annex, Room 206. (Invitation: 7:00-9:00 p.m., 18 February)

—February 14, 6:00-10:00 p.m.—Winston-Salem, N.C. School of the Arts, Main Building, Room 113. (Invitation: 7:30-9:30 p.m., February 19).

—February 15, 12 noon-6:00 p.m.—Raleigh, Stephenson's Music Company, 101 West Peace Street. (Invitation: 4:00-6:00 p.m., February 20).

—February 17, 10:00 a.m.-4:00 p.m., Chapel Hill, University Methodist Church, Choir Room. (Invitation: 7:30-9:30 p.m., February 20).

Audition for admission consists of a short prepared piece, scales and sightreading and will last approximately 15 minutes. For the scholarship competition, the student should be prepared to perform a full movement of a large-scale work. For this music need not be memorized and accompaniment is optional

Previously accepted students need not re-audition for acceptance; however, they must attend the audition for admission to qualify for the scholarship competition.

Music students wanting additional information are asked to write to Eastern Music Festival, 721 Summit Avenue, Greensboro, N.C. 27405; or to telephone (919) 274-3444. To insure an audition time, the student should contact the festival office no later than February 3.

Spanish Ranch Has Own Appeal

FAMILY ROOM LINKED TO TERRACE — In the Quesada, designed by Associated House Plans, a sunken family room is linked to an outside terrace by sliding glass doors. Beamed ceiling and a fireplace are other family room features. This Spanish ranch also has three bedrooms, two baths, a foyer, living room, large kitchen with dinette, double garage, laundry alcove and partial basement.

By GERRY BISHOP

Clean lines and modern comfort — that describes the Quesada, a one-story designed by Associated House Plans.

As the name suggests, the styling is Spanish. Brick veneer is specified for the garage and bedroom facades. The rest of the exterior walls are stucco.

The sunken family room that opens onto a terrace is another appealing feature.

There are many reasons why this three-bedroom ranch fits the needs of a modern family. It also has a large living room, formal dining room, modern kitchen with dinette, foyer, laundry room, double garage and partial basement.

The arched main entrance and low-pitched roof contribute to the Spanish lines. The sheltered front porch is decorative and practical.

The traffic pattern begins at the foyer which provides access to all parts of the Quesada.

The sleeping quarters are to the right, the kitchen is centrally located and the family room is in the left rear corner. The double garage contains a storage area. A partial basement provides space for storage and future expansion.

The family room has been given special attention. It is sunken about six inches below the main level of the house. It has exposed cedar beams running across the room. And there is a wood-burning fireplace and sliding-glass doors which open onto a large concrete terrace at the rear. The family room floor is vinyl tile over concrete.

The master bedroom is large — 17 feet by 14 feet — and has a dressing area and two walk-in closets in addition to the private bath.

The other two bedrooms are just a step away from the main bath. One bedroom measures approximately 12 feet square; the other is 12 feet by 14 feet.

The front-central location of the large kitchen is convenient for the housewife, putting all areas of the house within a minimum of steps. There are the usual built-ins plus a lot of work area and dining space.

Laundry equipment is located in the front alcove. It has a small hexagonal window which admits natural light.

The formal dining room has sliding-glass doors which open onto the terrace. They provide lots of natural light and ventilation.

The terrace is concrete with scored lines that produce an ornamental diamond pattern.

The plans call for drywall on the interior walls and ceilings and standard-size wood double-hung windows.

There is a basement under all but the family room and garage. If it were preferable, concrete slab or crawl space construction could be used. The stairway space could be converted to a large utility room.

The exterior dimensions are 82 feet by 42 feet. Living area totals 2,381 square feet on the first floor, 1,992 square feet in the basement and 540 square feet in the garage.

Garden Clinic

N. C. State University Answers Timely Gardening Questions

Q. We have a shady porch with a trellis on which I'd like to grow a Paul's Scarlet or Blaze Climber rose. Would either of these thrive here. If not, what would? (Mrs. E. Y., Wilson)

A. These climbing roses grow very well in situations where they get full sun for half a day. Hall's Honeysuckle (Lonicera halliana) should grow well in the shade, and might be better for your situation. You also could try Virginia Creeper, Clematis virgininiana. (Henry J. Smith, extenstion horticulturist)

Q. When is the best time to set out strawberry plants? (Mrs. G. L., Fayetteville)

A. February is the best month in Eastern North Carolina. The best months in the Piedmont and Mountains are March and April. (Joe Brooks, extension horticulturist)

Q. When should garden peas be planted? (Mrs. G. L., Randleman)

A. Late January or February in Eastern North Carolina about 30 days later in Western North Carolina. (George Hughes, extension horticulturist)

Q. Are there any tomato varieties that are resistant to bacterial wilt? (R. B., Oxford)

A. Yes. N. C. State University introduced two varieties, Venus and Saturn, which are resistant to both bacterial wilt and fusarium wilt.

Here's How To Do It

Q. — The faucet in one of our sinks has leaked for some time. I shut off the water and took out the faucet stem. In attempting to unscrew the screw at the end of the stem, I chewed off the head with the screwdriver and now it is impossible to turn it. Disgusted with myself, I replaced the stem. The faucet still leaks, no more, no less than before. Can you tell me if there is any special way to get out the screw so that I can replace the washer?

A. — You shouldn't be disgusted. It happens every so often. The solution is to dig out the old washer, then remove the screw by turning it with pliers. Note that I said to turn it with the pliers in the same direction — counterclockwise — as you were trying to do with the screwdriver. If you make the mistake of pulling out the screw, rather than turning it, you will ruin the threads and make the entire stem useless.

Dig out the old washer with the point of an awl. However, you risk injury to your fingers if you hold the faucet stem in one hand and the awl in the other. Instead, place the stem in a vice and then pick away with the awl. It may take you some time, as a washer can become very hard over a period of time, but if you are patient and careful, it finally will yield.

Q. — I sold my house two months ago. The closing took place three weeks after my 65th birthday. Someone told me that I don't have to pay any federal income tax on the profit I made because I am 65 years old. Is this true?

A. — Every case is individual and you should get a ruling from a local income tax office before you fill out your tax form. But I can tell you what are the regulations that apply to nearly everyone 65 years of age and older. If you sold the property for $20,000 or less and it was used by you as your principal residence for at least five of the past eight years, any gain on the sale need not be included in your income. If the property sold for more than $20,000, part of the gain must be included in your income.

Thus, even if you are entitled to a tax benefit — and apparently you are — you still will have to ask an Internal Revenue office how to compute the tax on a sale of more than $20,000. There is no charge for this service, but don't wait until the last week or two to get the information.

Q. — I made several patches in an unfinished bookcase, using plastic wood, the kind that doesn't have to be mixed with anything before using. It hardened fine and I sanded it down until it was even with the surface around the patches. But somewhere in the operation I spilled some of the plastic wood on one part of the bookcase and it has resisted all my efforts to get it off. Can you tell me what will remove it?

A. — Go to your local hardware store — preferably where you bought the plastic wood — and ask for the particular solvent for the brand you purchased. It's made especially for plastic wood.

What's new on the market?

The product — A line of deeply sculptured decorator hinges.

Manufacturer's claim — That there are no visible screws, barrel or pin ... that a special diecasting process casts the two hinge halves together in one automatic operation ... that the engraved designs on the hinge leaf, mounted on the door face, are unbroken by the barrel and screw heads ... that all mechanical parts are encased beneath the sculptured hinge leaf ... and that the hinges come in antiqued brass and antiqued silver finishes.

The product — Small-scaled track lights, similar to those used in stores, showrooms and art galleries, made especially for residential use.

Manufacturer's claim — That the lights can be moved to any position along the track to highlight a painting on the wall, an ornament on a table or a collection of interesting books in a bookcase ... that each light switches on and off individually ... that the track comes in 4- and 8-foot prewired sections which can be mounted on ceilings or walls in a variety of patterns ... that the lights come in a choice of cylinder, step cylinder or spherical shapes, with high intensity or regular bulbs and with chrome, white or black finishes.

The product — A torpedo level that is shock resistant and holds fast to steel surfaces.

Manufacturer's claim — That the level is made of a tough plastic that does not conduct electricity ... that a 7-inch magnetic strip on the bottom of the level holds it against a steel surface, leaving the hands free to work with other tools ... that a V-groove on the top is for leveling pipes or curved surfaces ... and that there are three dials for easy readings.

The product — An acrylic mirror for folding closet doors.

Manufacturer's claim — That the mirror can be mounted on bi fold doors with an adhesive ... that it is made of a plastic sheeting more resistant to breakage than regular glass ... that it is only about 45 per cent as heavy as an ordinary glass mirror ... and that it comes in three sizes.

(Sweating windows and walls, plaster and concrete patching, and stubborn doors and windows are among the 35 topics in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1 to this newspaper in care of Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

(The hinges are manufactured by Gries Reproducer Co., 400 Beechwood Ave., New Rochelle, N.Y. 10802; the track lights by Progress Lighting, Erie Ave., and G Street, Philadelphia, Pa. 19134; the torpedo level by The Stanley Works, 195 Lake St., New Britain, Conn. 06050; and the acrylic mirror by Ledco, Inc., Akron, Ohio.

OPPORTUNITY

We're Talking About A Big Money Opportunity

We don't have a miracle gimmick. We don't have a pie-in-the-sky scheme.

We have a solid, publicly held company with a proven record of success—and we're offering one businessman in this area a great opportunity. The opportunity for a partnership-in-profits with our company.

American Training Services is one of the major business success stories of the decade. In the 13 states where we're currently doing business, we'll have sales of about $13 million this year alone. And we'll have over 20 times the profits we had in 1968.

Our business is training men—through correspondence and on-site training—for the tractor-trailer and heavy-equipment industries. This year we're opening an additional training center that could mean a 40% increase in enrollments. We're approved by the VA and recognized by the National Home Study Council. Our product sells! Our graduates get work! It's as simple as the law of supply and demand. There's a great demand for trained people in this field—and we supply the people.

Now, where do you come in? We want a keen businessman to represent us in this area. The geography will include a million people. If you're selected, you won't need a big capital investment.

You won't make a big investment in real estate or equipment. You need no special training or educational background—and your financial requirement would be between $15-$20,000, plus sufficient working capital to get a business moving.

We want your energy. We want your enthusiasm. We'll back you, guide you, help you in every way we can. We'll make a considerable investment in you—that's why we need special men, men with drive and confidence, men who like the idea of making big money through their own hard work.

If this sounds like we're talking to you, talk to us now. Call us collect. Call us quickly. We haven't built our business to its present size by standing still. If you think we're talking your language, call collect (609) 424-1717. Ask for Karl Friedrichs. He's the head man.

We mean business.

Fiat Dealer For Five Years

TO A EUROPEAN, GETTING HIS MONEY'S WORTH ON A CAR IS MORE THAN A NICE THING. IT'S A FINANCIAL NECESSITY.

Most people, at one time or another, have owned a lemon. If not a real lemon, a semi-lemon.

Fortunately, many Americans can afford to swallow the loss and merely chalk the whole experience up to experience.

The average European is not so fortunate.

For him a car can cost more than a whole year's salary. And a lemon would be a financial disaster.

It's this economic fact of life that makes Europeans the toughest car buyers in the world.

And makes particularly interesting the fact that, in Europe, with 50 different kinds of cars to choose from, they buy more Fiats than anything else.

And one of the Fiats they buy most is the Fiat 128.

This choice is not based solely on how much it costs. There are 27 other small family cars in Europe that cost approximately the same as the Fiat 128. (Volkswagens, Renaults, Toyotas, and Datsuns, to name a few.)

Nor is it based solely on how strong the Fiat is built or how long it will last.

The simple fact is that the Fiat 128—whether it's the 2-door or the 4-door or the station wagon—has an extraordinary number of the things people want in a car.

WHAT THE AVERAGE EUROPEAN MAKES A YEAR.

AUSTRIA	$1,466
BELGIUM	$2,372
DENMARK	$2,702
FINLAND	$1,700
FRANCE	$2,783
GREECE	$811
ITALY	$1,525
LUXEMBOURG	$2,210
NETHERLANDS	$1,797
NORWAY	$1,933
PORTUGAL	$423
SPAIN	$818
SWEDEN	$3,553
SWITZERLAND	$2,020
W. GERMANY	$2,520

It has front-wheel drive. It has self-adjusting front disc brakes. It has rack-and-pinion steering. And it has radial tires as standard equipment.

Furthermore, it has an extraordinary amount of room for people. More room than an Oldsmobile Cutlass—despite the fact that it's 8.8 inches shorter than a Volkswagen Super Beetle.

Now, if you've been looking around for a small European-type car, it would pay you to take a look at the Fiat 128.

For you, getting your money's worth in a car may not be a financial necessity. But it would be a nice thing.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, JANUARY 28, 1973

CARROLL RIGHTER'S horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A beautiful day to increase whatever talents or urges you have in spiritual, religious and/or scientific directions. Be sure to engage in such studies that help you to expand this phase of your nature and character. A fine day for planning a trip.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have excellent ideas that should be studied well so that your style of living can be improved. Discuss them with bigwigs and gain their support. Find the right allies who will cooperate with you.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Use your fine hunches and new associates will cooperate with your ideas for mutual benefit. Give more attention to mate and get fine results. Stop spending money foolishly. Show that you have wisdom.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Meet with associates leisurely and come to a better understanding so that the future will be more successful for all of you. Tackle a civic task from a new angle. Then quick results will follow.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Attend to special work early and labor steadfastly so that you can get the right benefits from it. Do some window shopping for the new wardrobe you want. Take mate along for good ideas.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You are able to get into the kinds of amusements that you enjoy and make this a most happy day, for yourself and others. More affection for mate is important now. Try not to lose your temper.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You can improve conditions around you easily now so get busy and do just that. Do some entertaining at home that can add to the harmony and happiness there. Make constructive plans for the future.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Engage in studies of a philosophical nature that can make your future brighter and more satisfying. Come to a far better understanding with others. Take steps to learn to communicate better.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Elevate your consciousness so that you know how to become more affluent in the future. Study your budget well and make the necessary improvements. Show that you have your feet on the ground.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You know now how to handle personal affairs but it would be well to discuss them with an adviser who is a good friend as well. The social side of life can be of benefit to you at this time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Plan what it is you want to do in the future and then discuss with advisers for best course of action. Do some studying that is helpful. Make yourself as charming and interesting as you can.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You are your gregarious self today and should make a special effort to see the right people who can aid you in your objectives. Group activities are fine since you can make new allies that way.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan how to please kin and business allies so that they will back you in whatever your aims are in the future. See what changes are necessary to make and do so quietly. Don't lose your temper with anyone.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those delightful young people who can apeak well and able to put points across. Teach to study all facts and figures well before speaking, otherwise your progeny could get into unexpected trouble. Education should be directed towards foreign exchange, imports and international law. There is ability to learn several languages here. Give religious training early in life.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, JANUARY 29, 1973

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Many upsets are apt to occur today and tonight and you are all too apt, as well as everyone else, to feel you have been taken advantage of and to spout off and really get yourself in an obnoxious position. Quiet study of all factors of difficult conditions in your life show silence momentarily the best.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You are tempted to get rid of present set-up and go after the new and untried and this could cost you a good deal, get you into big trouble. Keep busy improving routines instead. Study something worthwhile in p.m.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You want to go off on some tangent that could really get you into trouble, so refrain from doing so and stick to the conservative. Try to understand how a close tie is thinking. Do not force your own will.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be content with some associate who does not think as you do, since it is this very difference in ideas that makes the partnership work. One who opposes you is not telling the truth. Keep silent and all is well.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get busy on that work as you had planned and don't make radical changes now that could spoil it for you. Don't overtax your nerves. Once your work is done, get a fine rest in p.m. Forget the social for now.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You want to have fun now, but don't take chances with the unknown and unfamiliar, or you could get into real big trouble. Your mate's ideas may not be good for you at all. Be like Caesar's wife — above reproach.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't criticize kin so mercilessly, or you start a big battle at home that is uncalled for. Use diplomatic means and increase the harmony there instead. Evening is then fine for entertaining at home.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make sure you use care in motion of all kinds and don't do anything that can harm others in any way. Shop carefully also and don't lose your wallet, purse. Think before you speak or you can get into trouble.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Not the right day to take a chance on some new venture you don't know enough about, or it could prove to be very costly. Get into something sure that will add to present security instead of taking away from it. Think logically, constructively.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Important you are wise as the owl but calm as the lamb today if you are to win over others now. Take some time to make yourself more attractive and charming. Don't just jump into your clothing, dress carefully.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Others around you can seem quite a drawback to you, but this is only to test your mettle and help you advance despite opposition, or because of it. Delve into that important work with a vengeance. Drive with care.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Ideal day to forget dashing around here and there and to get into the work that awaits your personal attention. The social should be put aside if you feel nervous. Await a better day for such.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get busy at routines with more efficiency instead of jumping into the new and untried which could get you into some kind of trouble. Investigate whatever interests you for the future. Avoid one who is a drawback to your progress.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those fascinating young people whose mind is always buzzing with all kinds of thoughts, who literally has to be made to shut up early in life so that there can be more harmony with others, until religious training and ethical methods teach to speak with care and wisdom. The habit of criticizing others mercilessly should be curbed early, also. A fine problem-solver here, so give a good education. Sports a must.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Although the frilled lizard is normally four-footed, if pressed by an enemy it can make surprisingly good time on its two rear feet alone.

FOR EVA GABOR

When you were little, did your mother ever show any favoritism to any one of you three girls—Zsa Zsa, Magda or you?—A. Lambert, Kingsport, Tenn.

● Not to me! She adored Zsa Zsa. In Europe, the concierge is considered the lowest form of human being, and I was like the concierge in our house. Mother always said I looked like a Hungarian peasant. I was skinny, had anemia and black eyes. My father adored Zsa Zsa too. I was the third child and always felt unwanted. But in the long run it paid off because I learned to manage my own affairs. And in spite of it, Zsa Zsa and I are the closest friends in the world. And mother really loves all of us. She's the kind of mother who is never around unless there is a tragedy, then she's there when we need her.

FOR GARY PLAYER, pro golfer

Are you as well known in your native country, South Africa, as you are in the U.S.?—Albert McKee, Midwest City, Okla.

● I am proud to say that I am indeed. In fact, just recently I was named South Africa's "Athlete of the Year" and "Athlete of the Decade."

FOR ERMA BOMBECK, columnist

To what do you attribute your marvelous sense of humor and wit?—Mary Ellen Wallace, Los Angeles, Calif.

● What you charitably call my sense of humor is in fact a low threshold of pain. Before I was able to vent my hostilities through my column, I used to sit in the corner in a fetal position and hum a lot.

FOR JACQUELINE BISSET

How do you pronounce your last name?—M. O. T., Owensboro, Ky.

● One of the most annoying things about my career is that no one seems to be able to pronounce my name correctly. The emphasis is on the last syllable—it is pronounced Bis-SAY. Most people say BIS-set. And even when I tell people, they keep forgetting. I recently went on a tour and when I was introduced, one emcee turned to me and said, "What's your name?"

FOR CONNIE STEVENS

Do you feel that people ever took advantage of you?—B. J., Rock Springs, Wyo.

● Yes, a number of times. I am usually aware of it and let them do it, hoping that they will sort it out themselves when they see what they did. If I can't handle a situation, I simply back off—disappear—and become unavailable for further discussions.

FOR ANDY WILLIAMS

What was the worst experience you ever had in a night-club performance?—C. L. N., Albany, Ga.

● Back in 1947 when I was 17. I was part of "Kay Thompson and The Williams Brothers." One night there was a guy in the audience who kept heckling us. My brother Dick, who was then 18, could take it only so long. Then he went into the audience and hit the guy. They kept fighting until we finally pulled them apart.

FOR SEN. GAYLORD NELSON of Wisconsin

The drug industry keeps taking it in the neck from critics who complain about the price of prescription drugs. Don't they know that medical research costs money?—F. P., Nyack, N. Y.

● According to the latest figures, the prescription drug industry in 1971 spent more than $1 billion on advertising and promotion—about 25 percent of sales. The drug industry's expenditures on research and development amount to roughly 6.2 percent of sales.

FOR SEN. BARRY GOLDWATER of Arizona

Under the seniority system, longevity in office is the only way to real power in Congress. Don't you think merit ought to count for more?—M. Allen, San Antonio, Texas.

● I would certainly find a replacement for the seniority system. Frankly, the only thing that I can come up with at present would be for each party to elect its chairmen at the beginning of each Congress, and have these elections based on ability rather than age or seniority.

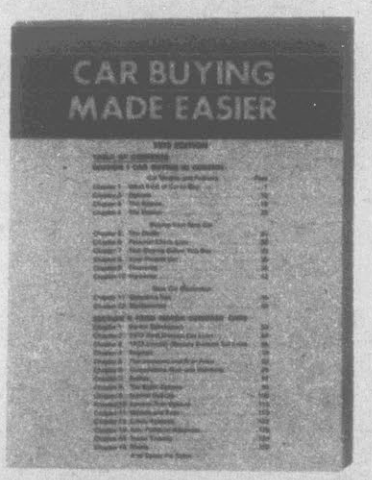

FOR FAYE DUNAWAY

I read that your father was an Army officer and you grew up in Army camps all over the world. True?—B. Austin, Little Rock, Ark.

● Yes—and it got me used to constant change in places and friends. Now I find it hard to hold on to people for long. Change has become my way of life. Luckily I have a few friends from whom I can be separated for months at a time and yet we still remain friends. Actually, I don't think separation from friends or the men in my life is a bad thing.

Jeane Dixon Answers Our Readers' 20 Most-Asked Questions

By Jeane Dixon

She does not see "honorable peace" in Vietnam before early 1974.

In our issue of September 10, 1972, by special arrangement with seeress Jeane Dixon, FAMILY WEEKLY invited readers to send us the questions they would most like answered. After weeks of tabulating and mulling over the hundreds of queries that came in, Miss Dixon sent us these replies.

1 One of the most frequently asked questions was about the war in Vietnam. . . . When will it be over? When will the POW's be returned home? Will there be a cease-fire soon? What about all the MIA's in Laos and Cambodia?

A: The hostilities in Vietnam will continue. There will be a cease-fire peace, but the world must remember that our opposing forces consider a cease-fire as a means to an end, not an end in itself. As I have stated many times before, the key to the return of our POW's lies in Moscow – not in Hanoi or Laos. I do see and feel that peace will be negotiated in the early part of 1974—that is, the kind of honorable peace that America is working toward. Then most of our POW's will be returned, as well as some of those missing in action in Laos and Cambodia.

2 Many write in to ask about the prognosis of American economy. Will it improve? Will taxes rise? Will there be another major depression any time soon?

A: The economy of our nation will continue to improve. There will be no appreciable tax rise, and I do not see any major depression for quite a long time. Our Government will make wonderful strides in economic affairs, which will benefit all.

3 Many also asked about outer space. Will we do more exploring? Can our scientists and astronauts bring back germs or harmful bacteria of any kind from outer space?

A: I get that our explorations in outer space will continue—it is our destiny. It is possible for astronauts and scientists to bring back foreign matter, but not from inside their capsules—only when they leave them.

4 In connection with questions about outer space, many wrote in asking about UFO's.

A: Since I am writing a book on UFO's and life in other universes, I will tell all about that in my forthcoming book.

5 Will America ever have an all-volunteer Army?

A: Yes, I see that America will have an all-volunteer Army in the near future.

6 Will the United States ever have a really socialistic type of government?

A: No, we will never have a truly socialistic government, nor will Communism ever win out internationally in the long run.

7 What about the future of the Olympic Games, I was asked: Will American athletes continue to participate in them?

A: Politics will not be left out entirely in planning future American participation in the Olympic Games, and extra-special security precautions will have to be taken to avoid further tragedies; but yes, the Games will go on and American athletes will continue to participate in them. These international competitions have their place in the overall scheme of things, and authorities and athletes together will somehow work it all out.

8 What about the moral future of the United States? Will there ever be an end to the promiscuous immorality we see today, and a return to religion?

A: The year 1975 is going to see quite a change where promiscuity and immoral behavior are concerned. There will be a substantial return to basic concepts of religion, and more and more people will strive to follow the teachings of Jesus.

However, herein lies a pitfall—when Jesus walked about the country preaching and healing He was doing His Father's work. Some people today seem to want to get out of the "work" part; they spend their time only in prayer and meditation. But the Bible tells us that we must work and use our talents, and we must make those talents productive to truly emulate the life of Jesus.

So, non-workers take heed—work is love in action!

9 What about the Arab-Israeli conflict? How long will it continue?

A: I wish I could feel vibrations indicating that things will be settled soon in the Middle East, but I see no end to the fighting and upheavals in that area soon. Eventually there will be peace—but it will be brought about by divine intervention and not by victory on the battlefield or peace treaties.

10 What does the future hold for the Roman Catholic Church? When will the last Pope reign?

A: I see much more dissension in the Catholic Church, as well as in all churches. This is sad, because although the church gets the blame, it is not the church per se, but the people, the public, who are at fault.

There is a plateau of equality for mankind—and that is God's love for all His people. All men are created unequal as far as talents are concerned, not equal! There seems to be some misconception that we are all created equal. Abraham Lincoln once quoted Thomas Jefferson, saying, "we were all created equal." I believe that both Thomas Jefferson and Abraham Lincoln meant that we were to have equal opportunity to develop our divinely granted talents; so let us have vision to see and understand that our Government was created as "one nation under God," so that we would have equal opportunity as individuals. Let us not waste our time thinking that we are equal to one another as far as our talents are concerned, but know that each and every one of us has equal opportunity under our form of government! . . . and work at it!

We all arrive in this world on different individual spiritual plateaus. Awareness of our individual plateau is absolutely essential. Members of the clergy, both men and women, should help all of us on the ever-upward spiral of spiritual as well as human progress. That is the primary purpose of life upon this earth. Unfortunately, many members of the clergy, both men and women, defeat the basic spiritual concept of the organized religion they have vowed to uphold; and further, by their digressions, they break their sacred vows and rob those of their flock who seek and need spiritual help.

The Catholic Church will always have the Pope's chair, but the authority of the Roman Catholic Church will someday be governed by dedicated cardinals and their efficient aides.

11 Many of the people who asked about the future of the Catholic Church also asked: Will priests ever be allowed to marry?

A: I do see the day coming when particular sects of priests will be permitted to marry; however, there will always be some who are born holy and they will stay holy. This holiness

A frank discussion about the limitations of bathroom tissue.

Bathroom tissue is basic to our personal cleanliness. Yet it does have its limitations—because it is dry. And anything that's dry just can't cleanse as well as something that's wet. Which is why WET ONES™ towelettes take personal cleanliness a step further. Use WET ONES after you use bathroom tissue. They cleanse thoroughly and effectively because each towelette is pre-moistened with a mild, freshly-scented cleansing solution. They are gentle enough for a baby and have been clinically tested for mildness. WET ONES are strong and completely flushable, too.

Keep WET ONES in your bathroom right along with the tissue as a final step in personal cleanliness. You will find them helpful in keeping yourself as clean as you would like to be. They're ideal for young children who may not be as careful as they should. Older people with cleansing problems will find them helpful, too.

One final point for you women and your daughters. WET ONES have a pleasant, fresh scent. So they not only make you feel clean.

12 How do you know if you have ESP? How do you develop it?

A: All of us have a degree of extrasensory perception and feel some vibrations; otherwise, there would be no human life as we know it. Some people, however, have a greater degree of ESP than others. To develop your ESP, whether it be your talent or not, you need a great deal of faith in your Creator, and much of your leisure time must be spent in meditation and fervent prayer.

All of our talents are foreordained—we have no choice. We do, however, have a free will to make decisions, to find, develop, and use our talents. Again, it is not the talent God has foreordained for you as an individual—it is what you do with your talent that determines your peace and growth.

13 How do you determine your own divinely granted talent? How do you find it in the first place?

A: It is and it is not easy—you have to work! You discover your divinely granted talent by working at things that truly interest you, that give you satisfaction and pleasure.

14 How do you explain the fact that you are a Catholic, yet practice astrology?

A: First of all, I do not feel that any explanation is really necessary, for I am using my divinely granted talents as I feel our Lord wants me to for constructive purposes.

Also, the phrase "practice astrology" is inapplicable. I do not "practice" astrology. God gave the heavenly bodies to all of us alike—for our benefit and use. Studying positions of the sun, moon and stars designates both astrology and astronomy. Indeed, the three wise men used their knowledge of astrology—the positions of the heavenly bodies—to guide them to the Christchild's manger in Bethlehem on that long ago winter's night!

God gave us the sun, the moon and the stars to help us guide our lives also. We are born as individuals for a specific reason and purpose at the precise right time in history the Lord needs us in His universal plan.

Astrology cannot change any of the foregoing, but it can show us and help us to follow the will of God—and I believe that is what astrology is for.

15 Many people wanted to know about crystal balls—where they can be obtained, and how they are used.

A: I do not know where crystal balls can be obtained; mine was given to me. Genuine crystal balls are made from mined crystal, and are very expensive.

The crystal ball is used as a focal point for meditation by the person who is seeking advice. When the individual concentrates deeply and gazes into a crystal ball (or any other object) he can clear his mind so other thoughts will not penetrate his consciousness.

This is how I am able to pick up a person's subconscious and conscious mind, tuning in to his or her channel, and in turn give the necessary guidance for the individual involved. May I make clear that a crystal ball is not a necessity for a psychic, it is merely a tool to help the seeker clear his or her thoughts. And it is work, for I, too, must completely clear my mind of anything and anybody except the person sitting before me, and this is a matter of habit and long-term discipline.

16 What about the Women's Liberation Movement, I was asked: Is it on the increase, or decrease?

A: Women's Lib is excellent for those who qualify and are talented in that direction, but not for all women. Certain women in the Women's Lib Movement should be active in it—but others who should not be, unfortunately are. It is this overall intergrouping that will ultimately keep the Women's Lib Movement from being too successful—as it could be.

I do not see the Women's Lib Movement increasing very much in popularity, because there are many, many millions of women who accept their femininity and appreciate masculinity in males. The truth is that many women do not understand what Women's Lib is all about, and many fear it may threaten their happiness and contentment as women, because the majority still covet their natural role as "homemaker"—wife, and mother.

Sen. Thomas Eagleton: a man of destiny?

I do not see it as a "constant" for all—for a few women, yes; but they will come and go.

A: There's a true Women's Libber—she knows how to handle her husband!

18 One lady wrote me as follows: "I am from St. Louis and am a good Democrat. I think Senator Eagleton has served us well, and would like to know if the Senator will ever be able to overcome the recent stigma placed on him by his dismissal from the Democratic presidential ticket?"

A: Thank you for asking about Senator Eagleton, Mrs. E.W.S. of St. Louis. Yes, for the Senator it was a blessing in disguise. Senator Eagleton will rise above his present peers; he will run for the Senate again in 1974, and will win. And one day he will be considered for the Presidency of the United States. Senator McGovern opened the magic door for him. Senator Eagleton is a man of destiny—his political acumen and success were preordained thousands of years ago.

19 Why are so many rumors laid at your doorstep?

A: For one thing, I do make some forecasts in my many lectures around the country and, too, my forecasts are published semiannually. So when people hear a rumor to which my name is attached, they immediately think that if I said it, it has to be true, and then the rumor spreads like wildfire!

We have had one rumor about a "mass murder in a dormitory of a girls' college" going back and forth on the campuses of this country for over two years now, and of course no such ridiculous forecast was ever made by me.

I have never made a forecast one way or another about "a mass murder" in a girls' college . . . or about "disasters" at shopping centers or malls . . . or about 65-inch snowfalls that will kill hundreds of people . . . or about stands collapsing at football stadiums – to name just a few of the "disaster" rumors that reach me constantly.

So all of you who hear these rumors, please tell your friends Jeane Dixon does not make such "disaster" predictions. And if a 65-inch snowfall occurs in your area, blame the weatherman!

20 Lastly, I'd like to answer one individual's question. It reads: In the Christian faith we are taught that we will be reunited with our loved ones after death. Personally I believe in reincarnation, but wonder how this could be if the souls of our dead successively return to earth in new forms of bodies, or rebirth in a human form? (This question came from Mrs. H. C. Shank of Lake Villa, Ill.)

A: Because in my opinion, based on the Holy Scriptures, it is not the soul that is reincarnated, but the spirit. There is a reincarnation of purposes and missions assigned to individuals in particular times and places, and this gives continuity to the flow of God's plan in the history of men.

When Christ said, "Elijah has already come, but they knew him not," he meant that the people did not recognize the spirit of Elijah was carrying on its mission in the person of John the Baptist (Matthew 17:11-13). Christ was teaching us that John the Baptist had a particular purpose assigned to him by Almighty God—a continuation and fulfillment of the purpose that the prophet Elijah did not complete in his life upon this earth, although he carried on his purpose in a manner proper to his time and in accordance with his mission in the unfolding of God's plan.

People Quiz

The Mystery of Your Aches and Pains: What Really Makes You Say "Ouch!"?

True or False: Headaches, toothaches, hitting your thumb with a hammer, etc., hurt much less if you happen to be an "only child." (See number 3.)

By John E. Gibson

Pain is a silent, formless thing. You can't see it, hear it, or smell it. The only acquaintance people have with it is that they can feel it. In this True-or-False quiz we take a look at what has been termed mankind's Number One enemy–but which can also sometimes be a good friend.

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Nobody actually knows what pain is.

2. Sometimes pain hurts in the wrong place.

3. Headaches, toothaches, hitting your thumb with a hammer, etc., hurt much less if you happen to be an "only child."

4. Children who lack the ability to feel pain are hard to discipline.

5. Pain will make your blood pressure go up.

6. Pain hurts least when you're happy, most when you're depressed.

ANSWERS

1. True. In addition to being an unpleasant sensation, pain ranks among the most puzzling mysteries. As one authority recently observed after evaluating the findings of leading studies: "Though every man can describe it, scientists have been unable to offer a successful definition of pain." Suffice it to say that it's as far from pleasure as you can get, and the body is capable of producing it in unlimited amounts.

2. True. Not infrequently a pain will hurt in the "wrong" place. To further increase the complexity of the pain experience, some pains are the "referral" type–where pain in one part of the body will surface in another area. For example, pain may seem to come from a tooth that has nothing wrong with it whatever–the pain being referred from another source. On the other hand, a "bad" tooth may sometimes not hurt at all, or refer the pain elsewhere. This can and does occur in various other areas of the body.

3. False. Studies conducted by the U.S. Army Research Institute of Environmental Medicine show children from larger families to be appreciably less sensitive to pain. The tests showed that "subjects from smaller families (one to three children) exhibited significantly higher pain reactivity than subjects from larger families (four or more children)."

4. True. Such cases, which fortunately do not occur too often, certainly do present disciplinary problems. To illustrate, a leading researcher cites a study of the case history of a precocious boy who went through life "feeling no pain." "He liked to play with fire, received frequent blisters and burns, but laughed at them, liked to hit with his head, pulled out his teeth, etc. His parents discovered that the only way to punish him was to douse him with very cold water, even a few drops often sufficing." Though leading a painless existence obviously increases physical hazards, studies show it seldom interferes with the development of a normal, well-balanced personality.

5. True. Stanford University studies show that a person's blood pressure tends to rise, corresponding with the amount of pain felt. The more the pain hurts, the higher the blood pressure is likely to go. It's also noted, however, that "blood pressure may rise in a stressful situation independent of the amount of experienced pain."

6. True. Psychiatric studies have shown that whether we feel much or little pain from a given cause is affected by our state of mind. In a happy mood, pain hurts much less than it ordinarily would. But when you're depressed, pain sensations are amplified, the pain threshold being significantly lowered.

Studies at the Psychological Laboratories, University of Stockholm, show marked differences in pain sensitivity in different personality types. The same injury that causes one person little discomfort, may cause another to feel extreme pain. It's also pointed out that there is much individual variance in the extent to which emotional conflict or assorted feelings of guilt find physical expression in aches and pains in various parts of the body. Needless to say, pain of this nature is often the most difficult to diagnose and the most resistant to treatment.

Sports Extra:

The "Little Man" As Sports Magician: A Special Report

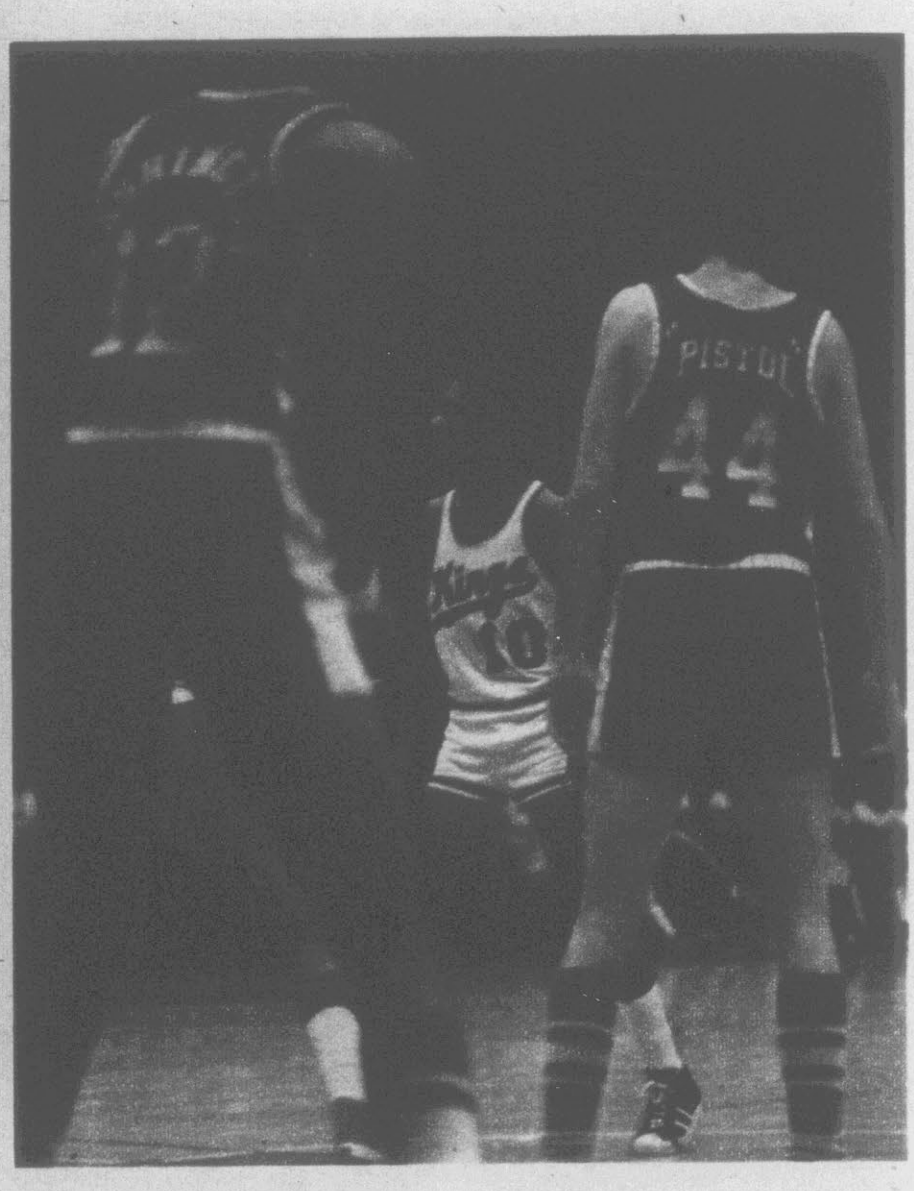

By Larry Bortstein

Today's athletes are larger than ever. Some are giants, big men who are still able to move with quickness and grace. Yet, amazingly enough, there are outstanding small players in virtually every sport. Even basketball, which has become more and more the domain of the outsized (players who stand 6-4 or 6-5 are labeled "small men"), has seen, in recent seasons, a great influx of outstanding performers who are less than gigantic.

Dominant among these is the incredible Nate Archibald, otherwise known as "Tiny," of the Kansas City-Omaha Kings. Formerly the Cincinnati Royals, the club moved this year and has flourished in its new dual homes. And no King has flourished more than

The little man shows how it's done: When Nate Archibald, No. 10, leaps high (above) to shoot against Atlanta's Pete Maravich, the difference in their heights shows beneath his feet, not over his head. At right: Archibald (allegedly 6-1, but probably shorter) stands between Jim Washington (6-7) and Maravich (6-5).

Archibald, a product of the New York City ghetto, who has set the world of basketball ablaze with his all-round play.

And what about Jeff Bennett, 5-8 and 150 pounds, who represented Uncle Sam in the Munich Games in, of all things, the decathlon, the supreme test of athletic skill? Though he did not win a medal, Bennett, by qualifying with one of the highest point totals in the history of the ten-event competition, demonstrated that no level of athletic accomplishment was beyond the small man.

Little men were conspicuous in college football in 1972. Johnny Rodgers of Nebraska, who won the Heisman Trophy as the best college player in the nation, is only 5-9 and considered a doubtful prospect for professional ball. But at Nebraska, Rodgers was one of the most explosive offensive weapons in gridiron history. In three varsity seasons, he scored 45 touchdowns, from an average distance of 30.3 yards. He averaged 13.8 yards every time he had the ball.

Howard Stevens of Louisville is only 5-5, yet he concluded his collegiate football career as a national record holder in both rushing and scoring. In both 1971 and 1972, he was the shortest player in modern college history to carry the ball more than 1,000 yards. Wisconsin's Rufus "Roadrunner" Ferguson was also a 1,000-yard runner each of the last two seasons. He's 5-6.

Another small man turned in the single most impressive performance of the 1972 college football season. Anthony Davis, a 5-9 sophomore at the University of Southern California, scored six touchdowns against Notre Dame, two on runbacks of 97 and 96 yards.

Here are the ranking little men of the sports world:

Pro Basketball

NATE ARCHIBALD (6-1, 150)
CALVIN MURPHY (5-9, 165)

Above is the way Nate Archibald's height and weight appear in the official guide of the National Basketball Association. Don't believe it. Opposing players in the NBA don't. Many swear that Nate couldn't possibly be more than 5-10. His boyish expression, though he is almost 25 years old, makes him seem even younger.

But there is nothing boyish about the way Archibald has assumed command in the NBA this season, his third as a pro after a collegiate career at the University of Texas at El Paso. Nearing the halfway mark of the campaign, "Tiny" was averaging more than 33 points and 11 assists per game—both league-leading figures. Should he complete the season on top in these departments, he would become the first player in the history of pro basketball to do so.

Archibald, a soft-voiced father of four, plays for coach Bob Cousy, one of basketball's foremost small men during his playing days with the Boston Celtics. When questioned about the effect his size has on his ability to withstand the physical pressures of facing athletes much bigger than himself, Archibald replied with a question of his own. "You've seen me play," he said. "Do you think I'm at a disadvantage?"

Other little men making big impressions in the giant's world of pro basketball are Calvin Murphy of the Houston Rockets and Mack Calvin of the Carolina Cougars of the ABA. The 5-9 Murphy, in his third NBA season out of Niagara University, is a former baton-twirling champion who confounds opponents with his ball-handling wizardry and his variety of shifty moves close to the basket. Calvin, who played collegiate ball at the University of Southern California, is 6′ and the floor leader of the Cougars.

College Basketball

VIC KELLEY (5-6)

Vic Kelley is one of the smallest players to start for a major college basketball team in many years. A junior at the University of Southern California this season, Kelley was weaned on basketball in the New York City playgrounds, where he was on a team coached by Nate Archibald.

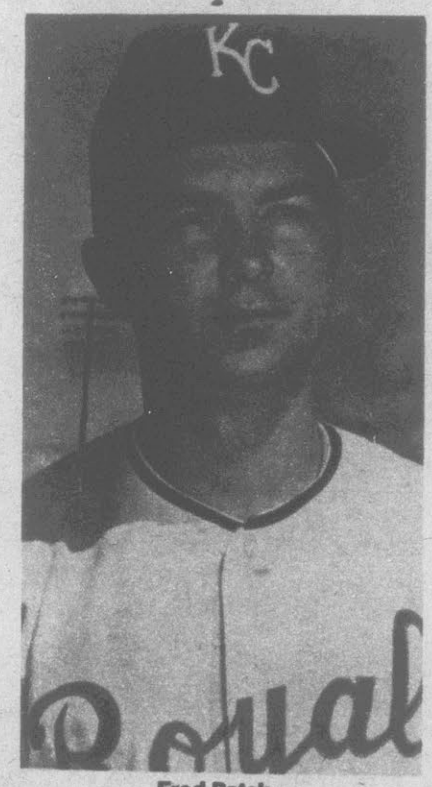

Vic's forte is his lightning speed. In last year's national junior college tournament, he was the leading scorer, averaging more than 30 points per game.

Baseball

FRED PATEK (5-4, 140)
JOE MORGAN (5-7, 155)

The big guys love to tease Fred Patek, the 5-4, 140-pound spark plug shortstop of the Kansas City Royals. But he takes it in stride. "What if I am the smallest player in the big leagues, now or ever?" he asks. "That beats being the smallest guy in the minor leagues."

The 28-year-old Patek may well be the smallest player ever to appear in the major leagues—with the exception of a 3-7 midget hired by Bill Veeck to make one plate appearance as a publicity stunt in 1951. Patek definitely is the smallest full-time regular on any modern major-league team.

Fred Patek

Patek was too small for his high school team in Seguin, Texas, but he played American Legion ball. He then went into the service and played baseball at Randolph Air Force Base. There he was noticed by a scout named Larry DeHaven, who was impressed by Fred's desire and hustle and recommended him to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"I used to get forms from a lot of teams," recalls Patek, "who were impressed with my record in service ball. But every time I filled out a form and put my size down on it, I never heard from anybody again."

In his second year in the Pirate chain, Patek played at Columbus, where his manager was Johnny Pesky. As a fine shortstop with the Boston Red Sox in the forties, Pesky stood just 5-7, but was one of the American League's best hitters.

"Johnny and I spent most of our mornings practicing at the ball park," recalls Fred. "He was a great inspiration to me. He showed me that a small man could make it."

Patek came up to Pittsburgh in 1968, was traded to Kansas City in 1970, and enjoyed a great 1971 season. He stole 49 bases, led the American League in triples with 11, and finished sixth in the Most Valuable Player voting.

Patek, who makes his home in Blue Springs, Mo., has long, strong legs. "I worked in construction when I was young," he says, "and developed myself physically. I'm not a strong batter, obviously. I had to fight to learn to keep my bat on top of the ball. I have a tendency to swing up. When I do, I'm an easy out."

In 1972, Fred, a right-handed batter, tailed off to a .212 average, but still was the object of nearly as much fan mail as any of baseball's superstars. "Lots of small kids want me to tell them they can make it to the major leagues," smiles Patek. "I tell them sure, everything is possible if they've got bat control and are willing to work about twice as hard as anybody else."

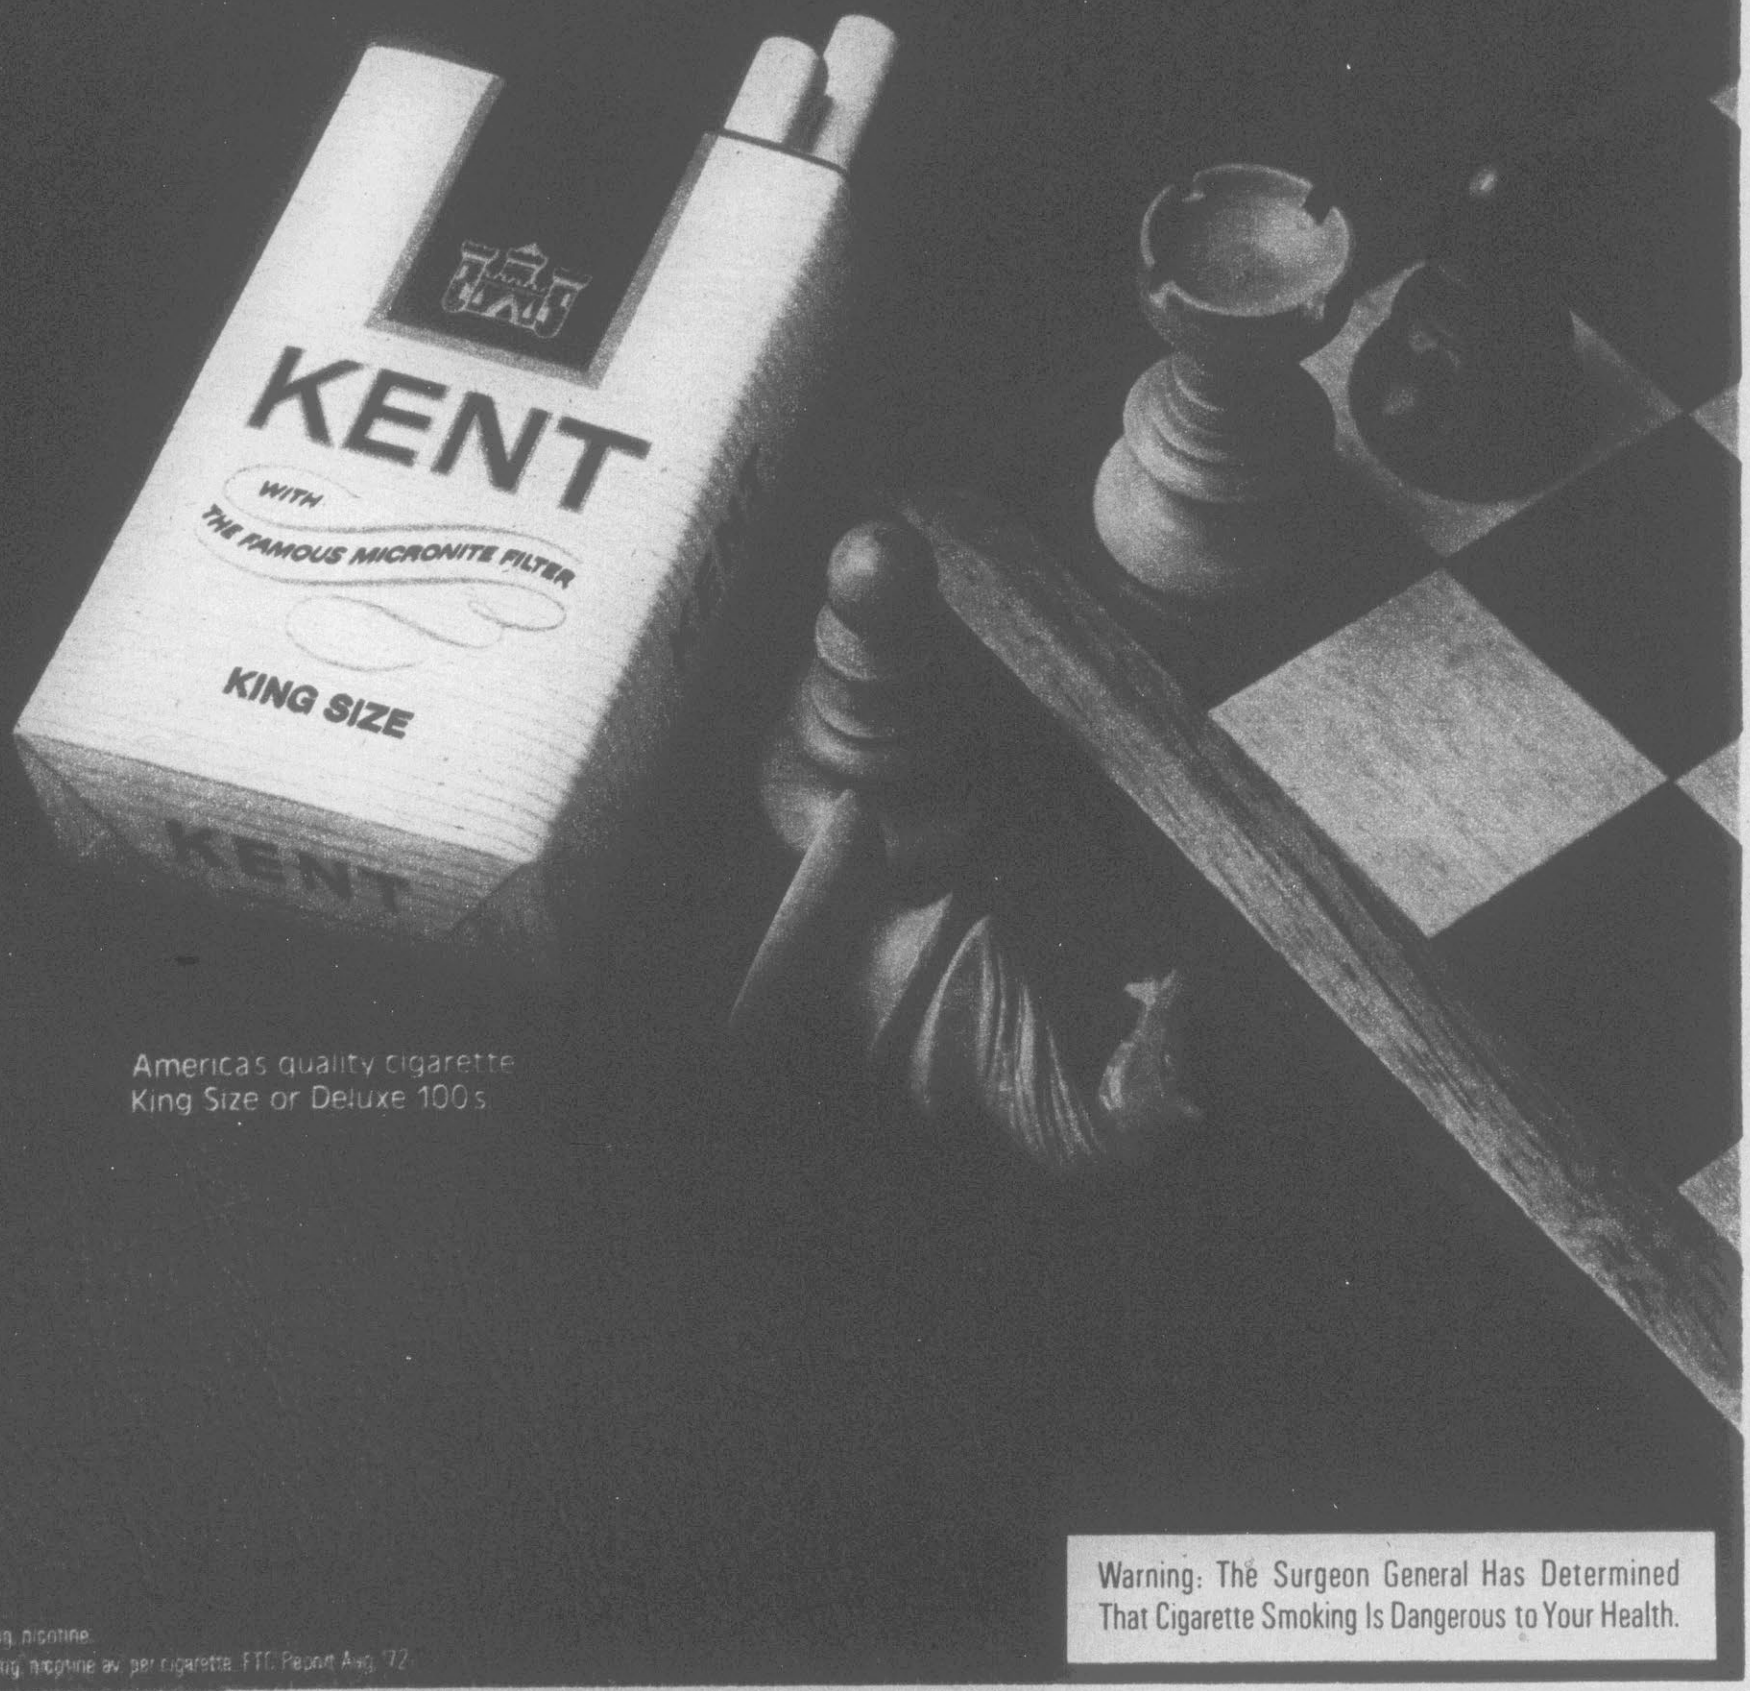

Joe Morgan of the Cincinnati Reds struck the biggest blow for little men in baseball in 1972. The left-handed-batting second baseman, who stands only 5-7, was one of the key figures in the Reds' drive to the National League championship. In his first season in Cincinnati after being acquired from Houston, Morgan led the league in walks, with 115; in runs, with 122; stole 58 bases; and batted .291. He finished fourth in the balloting for Most Valuable Player, an award won by his teammate, slugging catcher Johnny Bench.

Harry Walker, who used to manage Morgan when both were with Houston, once said of the 29-year-old from Bonham, Texas: "He's like all little guys. He's got the little man's complex. He's had to fight for everything all his life. He's got to push and shove to produce."

Pro Football

RANDY VATAHA (5-11, 165)
EDDIE BELL (5-10, 160)

"The biggest problem in playing a game where nearly everybody else is so much bigger," says Randy Vataha, wide receiver of the New England Patriots, "is the psychological factor. You look around and all you see are giants. You really have to believe in yourself."

In two seasons in the National Football League, Vataha, a 24-year-old from Santa Maria, Calif., has made believers of those who claim football is the exclusive province of 250-pounders. With his former Stanford University battery-mate Jim Plunkett doing the throwing, Randy forms one of the most potent passing combinations in the pros. Plunkett had to suggest the Patriots give Vataha a tryout before Randy could be assured of a chance to play professional ball.

Once given the opportunity, Vataha cashed in and was one of the leading receivers in the NFL the past two seasons. In 1971, one of his receptions went for an 88-yard touchdown.

Randy always has been youthful-looking as well as small. While he was attending Stanford, he had a summer job working at Disneyland, where he portrayed "Bashful," one of Snow White's seven dwarfs. Shortly after he reported to the Patriots in 1971, he was mistaken as an office boy by a club executive, who ordered him to "stop sitting around and get to work."

Randy Vataha

Eddie Bell

Vataha admits he has difficulty reaching for passes that are thrown away from him. "But there are advantages to being a small wide receiver, too," he says. "I can get position on a defender by just cutting inside of him when he thinks there isn't enough room."

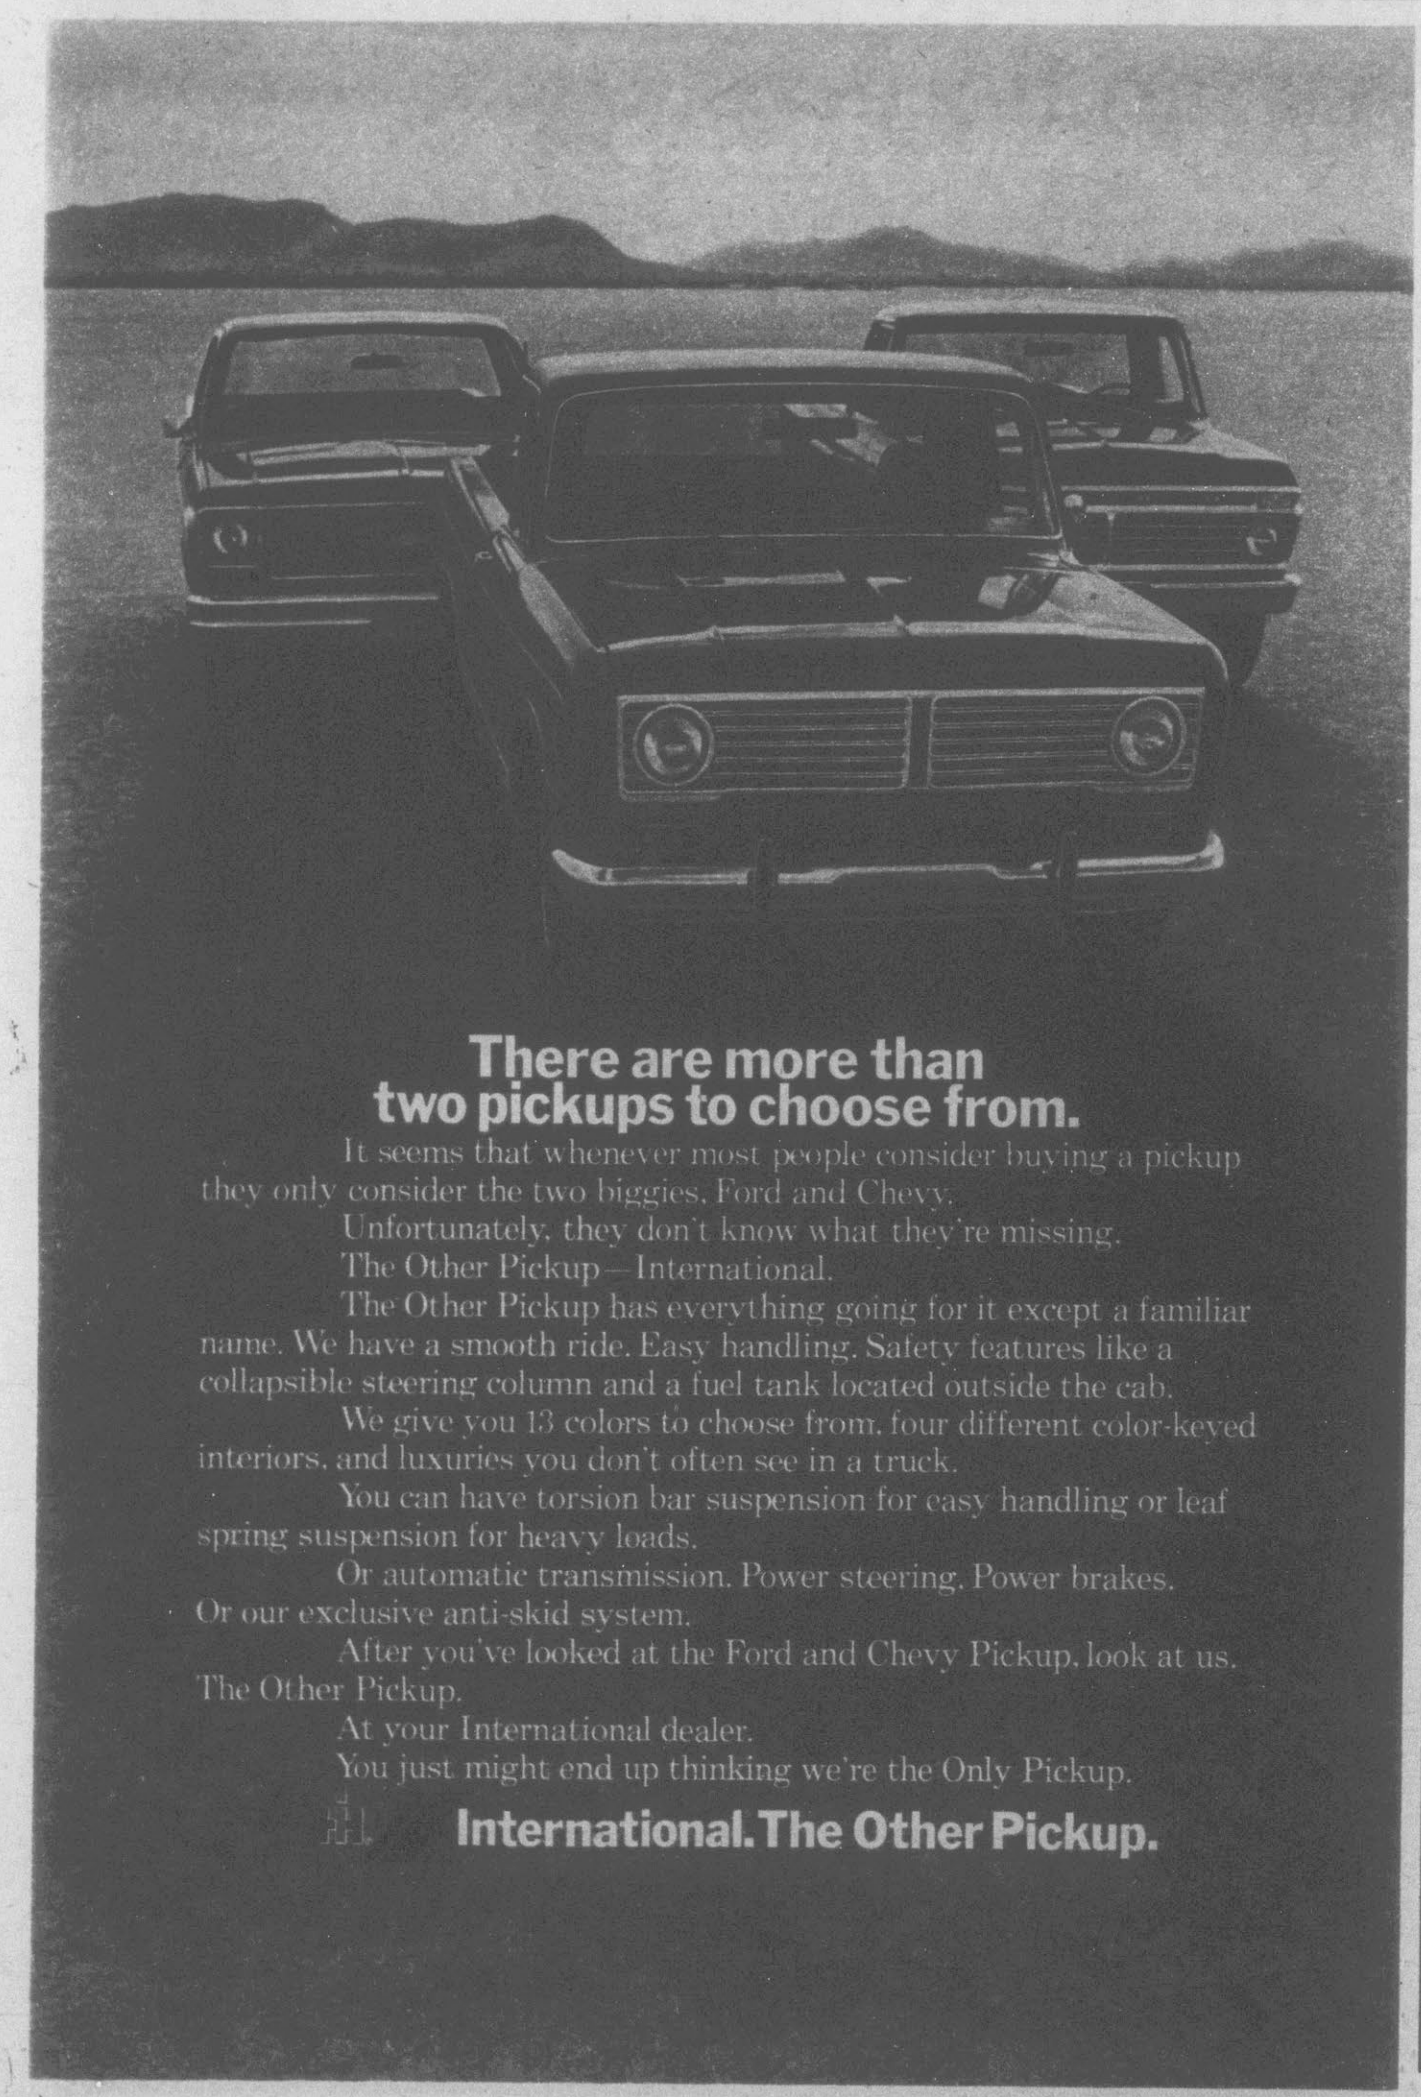

In his third season with the New York Jets, Eddie Bell, at 5-10 another unusually small wide receiver, had a banner year. He was one of Joe Namath's primary targets, averaging 18 yards for each of his 35 catches and receiving the longest touchdown pass (83 yards) of the entire AFC campaign. Bell, 25, is from Waco, Texas, and attended Idaho State University.

Hockey

YVAN COURNOYER (5-7, 165)
KEITH CHRISTIANSEN (5-5, 153)

It is odd that, in hockey, one of the most bruising and fatiguing of sports, outstanding big men have been rare. Instead, small athletes, relatively rare in the other major team sports played in North America, are the rule in hockey. There are few players in professional hockey who stand over six feet.

But even by hockey standards, Yvan Cournoyer, the high-scoring right wing of the Montreal Canadiens, is pretty puny. He's only 5-7 and weighs 165 pounds. Cournoyer is well aware of the cruel punishment meted out to many players in professional hockey. He chooses to avoid it as much as possible.

"I realized back in junior hockey that my size would be a handicap," recalls Yvan, a 29-year-old native of Drummondville, Quebec. "I worked on my skating. I became as good and as fast a skater as I possibly could." Today, Cournoyer is recognized as one of the finest skaters in the history of the NHL. "They can't hit you if they can't catch you," he points out.

Currently in his ninth season with the Canadiens, Yvan has been among the league's highest goal scorers the past seven years. Last season he scored 47 goals, his one-season high and the fourth-best goal total in the NHL.

The brand-new World Hockey Association now boasts the smallest player in big-time hockey — Keith "Huffer" Christiansen, a center for the Minnesota Fighting Saints.

Wide World

Keith Christiansen

He's 5-5 and 153 pounds, and was a member of the United States Olympic team that won the silver medal for second place at the 1972 Winter Olympics in Sapporo, Japan.

Christiansen, who is 27 and lives in International Falls, Minn., confesses he never attempted pro hockey before this year, "because I thought my size would rule me out. Then when the new league started out, I decided if I didn't try now, I never would get another chance."

Golf

DEANE BEMAN (5-7)

When Deane Beman entered the world of professional golf in 1967, few observers felt he would leave an impact on the pro game. Deane, a 5-7, 155-pounder from Bethesda, Md., does not have the physical abilities to send a golf ball whistling great distances. Hence, his galleries aren't enormous.

"I understand why the fans like to watch Jack Nicklaus and Lee Trevino," says the 35-year-old Beman. "They're great players and exciting to watch. But if the people come out to a golf tournament to learn something about the game, they should be watching players like me."

Deane isn't being egotistical. He simply feels that the average weekend golfer never will be able to hit the ball the way the big, powerful PGA players do. Therefore, there is relatively little the duffer can learn by watching them.

But Beman has compensated for lack of size by developing deadly accuracy. He long has been regarded as one of the greatest fairway wood players in the game, and is also an exceptional putter. He has been one of the most successful touring golfers the past two seasons, recording his highest money-winning total in 1972, of more than $87,000. This included the $20,000 first prize in the $100,000 Quad Cities Open at Bettendorf, Iowa. He also finished second to Lee Trevino in the Greater St. Louis Golf Classic.

Tennis

CLIFF RICHEY (5-5)
HAROLD SOLOMON (5-5)

Both Cliff Richey and Harold Solomon are former American Davis Cup standouts who have invaded the world of professional tennis with success. The 26-year-old Richey and 19-year-old Solomon are rated among the finest ground-stroke artists in tennis. Since neither is big enough to indulge in the powerful serve-and-volley game that is favored by stronger players, Richey and Solomon have become masters of the spinning return and placement shot.

Richey, from San Angelo, Texas, whose father, George, raised both him and his sister, Nancy, to be topflight tennis players, was ranked first in the U.S. in 1971. In 1970 he was first in the Grand Prix professional-tournament circuit and earned more than $100,000 in prizes.

Solomon, from Silver Spring, Md., turned pro in 1972 after winning four of five Davis Cup matches for the U.S. He recalls that he was "extremely sensitive about my size" as an adolescent. "I used to take growth shots," says Solomon, "but they didn't work. Finally I started learning to adjust to it."

Harold, considered by many expert observers to have a virtually boundless future as a tennis star, evaluates his technique this way: "I try to play smart tennis. I stick in there and fight all the time. That makes up for my lack of height."

"What can we do about it?" Richey philosophizes. "If Harold and I started worrying about our height all the time, we'd go psycho!"

Auto Racing

MARIO ANDRETTI (5-5)

Mario Andretti grew up in a displaced persons camp near Trieste, Italy. Despite a difficult and struggling childhood, he managed to prepare himself for his future career by entering the world of auto racing at the age of 13. He was reasonably skilled as a driver of race cars when he came to the U.S. with his family in 1958 at the age of 18, and by 1964 was an established competitor in feature events of the U.S. Auto Club.

Drivers of Indianapolis-style cars cannot be too big because they won't be able to climb into the small cockpits. But Mario, who has called Nazareth, Pa., home since he first came to the U.S., has been by far the most successful driver among the small—under 5-10—competitors. He won the national driving championship in 1965, 1966 and 1969, capturing the Indianapolis 500, America's most important race, en route to the '69 national crown. He has won 31 USAC championship races, more than any other driver in history except A. J. Foyt, who finished the 1972 season with 43 victories in championship events.

Andretti also has competed on the Formula One international circuit of Grand Prix races. He won the South African Grand Prix in 1971, his most noteworthy performance outside the U.S.

An Important Message

To Every Man And Woman In America Losing His Or Her Hair

If you are troubled by thinning hair, dandruff, itchy scalp, if you fear approaching baldness, read the rest of this statement carefully. It may mean the difference to you between saving your hair and losing the rest of it to eventual baldness.

Baldness is simply a matter of subtraction. When the number of new hairs fail to equal the number of falling hair, you end up minus your head of hair (bald). Why not avoid baldness by preventing unnecessary loss of hair? Why not turn the tide of battle on your head by eliminating needless causes of hair loss and give Nature a chance to grow more hair for you? Many of the country's dermatologists and other foremost hair and scalp specialists believe that seborrhea, a common scalp disorder, causes hair loss. What is seborrhea? It is a bacterial infection of the scalp that can eventually cause permanent damage to the hair follicles. Its visible evidence is "thinning" hair. Its end result is baldness. Its symptoms are dry, itchy scalp, dandruff, oily hair, head scales, and progressive hair loss.

So, if you are beginning to notice that your forehead is getting larger, beginning to notice that there is too much hair on your comb, beginning to be worried about the dryness of your hair, the itchyness of your scalp, the ugly dandruff — these are Nature's Red Flags warning you of impending baldness. Even if you have been losing your hair for some time, don't let seborrhea rob you of the rest of your hair.

HOW COMATE WORKS ON YOUR SCALP

The development of an amazing new hair and scalp medicine called Comate is specifically designed to control seborrhea and stop the hair loss it causes. It offers the opportunity to thousands of men and women losing their hair to bacterial infection to reverse the battle they are now losing on their scalps. By stopping this impediment to normal hair growth, new hairs can grow as Nature intended.

This is how Comate works: (1) It combines in a single scalp treatment the essential corrective factors for normal hair growth. By its rubifacient action it stimulates blood circulation to the scalp, thereby supplying more nutrition to still-alive hair follicles. (2) As a highly effective antiseptic, Comate kills on contact the seborrhea-causing scalp bacteria believed to be a cause of baldness. (3) By its keratolitic action it dissolves ugly dandruff. By tending to normalize the lubrication of the hair shaft it corrects excessively dry and oily hair. It eliminates head scales and scalp itch.

In short, Comate offers you in a single treatment the best that modern medicine has developed for the preservation of your hair. There is no excuse today except ignorance for any man or woman to neglect seborrhea and pay the penalty of hair loss.

Note To Doctors
Doctors, clinics and hospitals interested in scalp disorders can obtain professional samples and literature on written request.

Male pattern baldness is the cause of the great majority of cases of baldness and excessive hair loss. In such cases neither the Comate treatment nor any other treatment is effective.

COMATE IS UNCONDITIONALLY GUARANTEED

To you we offer this UNCONDITIONAL GUARANTEE. Treat your scalp to Comate in your own home, following the simple directions. See for yourself in your own mirror how after a few treatments, Comate makes your hair look thicker and alive. How Comate ends your dandruff, stops your scalp itch. How Comate gives your hair a chance to grow. Most men and women report results after the first treatment, some take longer. But we say this to you. Can you spot the Camel Filters smoker?

©1972 R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, N.C.

In this picture everybody has a gimmick... almost everybody. Try picking the one who doesn't go along.

1. Nope. He's Alfonso Cliggitt, divorce lawyer. Gimmick: far out dress to intimidate the opposition. Smokes cigarettes made of dried tundra. 2. Harold A. Baer, rare book expert. ("Books Old and Rare from Harry Baer.") Thinks rolling his own makes him look younger. A real dingbat. 3. If she's the Camel Filters smoker, the guy with the beard is Jean Harlow. 4. Gene Harlow. 5. Right! He's just himself. And he sees through all the gimmicks. That's why he smokes an honest, no-nonsense cigarette. Camel Filters. Easy and good tasting. Made from fine tobacco. 6. A. Boswell Farquar. Gimmick: a white (not green) parrot. Hasn't seen a movie in years. They won't let his parrot in. 6a. Parrot. Smokes a meerchaum pipe but has trouble keeping it lit.

Camel Filters.
They're not for everybody
(but they could be for you).

Smart Cooking

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen steps aside in favor of Graham Kerr. She says: "When I heard Graham had brought out a giant new cookbook,* containing the cream of all his 850 TV shows, I knew our readers would like to hear about it. I chatted with Graham and found out about these two favorites of his."

Graham Kerr Says: "I Love These Two Recipes"

SPRING SUNSHINE

2 lbs. fresh boneless shoulder of pork, cut in 2x½-inch cubes*
¼ cup all-purpose flour
Freshly ground salt (1 teaspoon coarse salt or regular salt)
Freshly ground black pepper (several twists)
2 tablespoons sultana (golden) raisins
Water
4 tablespoons clarified butter
1 cup thickly sliced onions
1 clove garlic, smashed
20 fluid ozs. beef stock (1 can—10½ ozs.—beef bouillon, diluted)
2 sprigs parsley or 1 tablespoon parsley flakes
1 sprig thyme or ¼ teaspoon thyme leaves
1 bay leaf
2 medium green peppers, cored, seeded and cut into 2-inch strips
1 medium-large Granny Smith apple (Rome Beauty or Greening) cored, unpeeled and diced
2 teaspoons arrowroot or 1¼ tablespoons flour

1. Toss pork cubes in brown-paper bag with flour, salt and pepper. Soak sultanas in ½ cup water.
2. Melt clarified butter in large skillet with a lid. Brown pork cubes in butter over high heat. Remove meat.
3. Add onion to pan and cook until golden brown, 5-8 minutes, stirring from time to time. Return pork to pan, add garlic, stock and herbs. Bring to boiling, reduce heat, cover, and simmer 1 hour and 15 minutes.
4. Add pepper strips to mixture and cook 20 minutes longer, covered.
5. Skim fat from surface if necessary, remove herb sprigs and bay leaf. Add apple cubes and cook covered 10 minutes.
6. Immediately before serving stir in drained sultanas. Stir arrowroot into ½ cup water and add to sauce, cooking until it comes to a boil.

Makes 4-5 servings

*If boneless pork shoulder is not available buy a 4-lb. pork shoulder and bone and cube meat yourself.

To clarify butter: Slowly melt 7 tablespoons butter in small saucepan. Skim off surface foam. Spoon off the golden butter oil; discard remaining milky liquids.

To smash garlic: Whack garlic clove smartly with flat side of heavy French knife, remove skin.

BAKED MAPLE MERINGUE

1½ cups 100% maple syrup
3 tablespoons brandy
1 tablespoon butter, cubed
4 large egg whites, room temperature
1 cup plus 2 tablespoons sifted confectioners' sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder

1. In small saucepan boil 1 cup syrup approximately 5 minutes, or until reduced to ⅔ cup. Cool.
2. Preheat oven to 300°F. Pour remaining ½ cup syrup into 2½-qt. soufflé dish; add brandy and butter. Tie 3-inch-wide strip of buttered waxed paper around dish, set aside.
3. In large bowl with electric mixer at high speed, beat egg whites until stiff. Slowly add confectioners' sugar and baking powder, beating until stiff and glossy.
4. Slowly beat in cooled syrup. Scrape side of bowl frequently.
5. Spoon maple meringue over maple syrup, brandy and butter in soufflé dish. Set dish in pan of hot water 1 inch deep and bake for 1 hour.
6. Remove collar and serve warm.

Makes 6-8 servings

AMAZING $1 OFFER

HARVEST UP TO 40 LBS.—HUNDREDS OF TOMATOES YEARLY (THOUSANDS OF TOMATOES OVER 10 YEARS) FROM ONE SINGLE TOMATO TREE INDOORS OR OUTDOORS

New Zealand Amazing Exotic

TREE TOMATO

(Cyphomandra Betacea)

Grows Huge Hanging Clusters of Succulent, Red Tree Tomatoes Borne in Successive Waves Month After Month

- Grows As A Tree — Outdoors!
- Grows With Tropic Ease — Indoors!
- Foot-Long Exotic-Shaped Leaves Add Unique Decor to House
- Produces Fruit Up to 10 Years
- Bears a Colorful Array of Flowers from Spring to Fall, Followed by Hundreds of Plump, Juicy Red Tomatoes

FROM NEW ZEALAND'S FAMOUS HORTICULTURE RESEARCH GROWERS COMES AMAZING NEWS! WELLINGTON'S RARE — EXOTIC — ASTONISHING TREE TOMATO is now available in the U.S.A.!

And in a newly-developed super-hybrid variety that harvests up to 40 lbs. (hundreds of tomatoes) year — thousands of tomatoes up to 10 years — FROM ONE TOMATO TREE!

An astonishing South American tomato fruiting tree that gives stunning blossoms for months, blooms yearly even in the North, grows as a tree outdoors and with tropic ease indoors, now is perfected and made available by New Zealand plant scientists, to you in the U.S.A.

What Happened In Palliser Bay!

The growing fields of Southern Auckland are located in Palliser Bay and there New Zealand's Horticulture Experts married Brazil's tree tomato to the fertile rain forests of New Zealand.

South America's luscious tree tomato was discovered by Brazilian Indians; brought to richest, fullest flavor and lushness by Portuguese missionaries; and hybridized to a super-resistant super-easy-to-grow variety.

There are 30 different varieties of tree tomatoes in South America but only one is the lushest, most delicious and easiest-to-grow of them all! And that one was made over after four years of hybridizing at Palliser Bay — working with various universities — discarding weaker, keeping stronger strains — until the final super variety was ready for you.

Who Put All Those Tomatoes In That Itty Bitty Seed

Imagine one seed does produce over 400 lbs. of tomatoes in one lifetime.

And New Zealand's super Tree Tomato is so easy to raise that 80% of normally-planted seeds take. So easy it will grow inside anyplace a philodendron will grow! So easy that outside in actual tests seeds thrown at random in plowed fields, it grew naturally with no human care.

Each seedling grows to 3 or 4 ft. indoors or up to 8 ft. outdoors or you can stop the growth of the tree at any height you wish between 3 and 8 feet. It is super disease-resistant.

Imagine stunning exotic-shaped leaves up to one foot long! Imagine the constant changing show. First the lovely leaves — then a shower of delicate, fragrant flowers — and finally a beautiful array of juicy luscious tomatoes.

And so prolific that as one crop ripens, Mother Nature sees to it that another crop is taking it's place, and this fruiting period goes on for five months.

A Family Delight

Show your children nature's mysterious way of bringing a New Zealand fruit-bearing season right into your own home and reversing the U.S. season. Surprise and delight your friends.

Enjoy delicious, mouth-watering salads, freshest sauces, special jams and deserts — all winter long. See huge hanging clusters of succulent red and plump and juicy tree tomatoes in successive waves month after month.

Grow indoors. Pluck your dinner tomato from the tree. Grow on the patio or in the garden. Indoors or outdoors, see a colorful array of flowers from Spring to Fall.

Each Tomato Costs Tiny Fraction of a Cent!

Accept our introductory offer. Frankly we want everyone who enjoys delicious fresh tomatoes and gorgeous beautiful blooms and blossoms to enjoy this super-hybrid Tree Tomato.

And we are shipping you a full season's supply of these super seeds for $1. But the Tree Tomato, up-to-now too rare and difficult to obtain, is in demand. It's first come, first served. Rush your order before midnight tonight as specified below and receive as a FREE gift special recipe booklet, yours to keep FREE even if you return seeds on our money back guarantee.

A Candid Talk with Twiggy:

"Do I Think I'm Sexy? Blimey, No!"

By Helen Dorsey

Leslie Hornby, better known as Twiggy. She'll get married—but only when she wants a family.

As a model, top fashion photographers called Leslie Hornby "perfectly pure and clear, like fresh water." As star of the movie "Boy Friend," she got the Hollywood treatment, complete with flashing cameras, sleek limousines and a caravan of press agents. Who and what is the real Twiggy? Certainly she's not the Cockney waif with bony knees and a Svengali boyfriend that some writers have made her out to be. Recently we talked, over tea with milk, in her plush Pierre Hotel suite. "Blimeys" punctuated her speech like vinegar on fish and chips, and she whooped with joy when she was amused. She was poised, happy and much brighter than a lot of people would imagine. Hers is a pretty, natural beauty that includes a sprinkling of freckles across her nose and cheeks. She wears no makeup, or almost none.

ON BEAUTY & SELF-IMAGES: I like a natural kind of beauty. Do I like myself? I've never thought about it. I don't feel that I've got a good body. I like the tops of my legs and I hate the bottom of my legs. And I wish I had a bigger bust. I think my face is all right. I mean, I don't think it is an unusual face. I know what to do with it and I don't hate it. Do I think I'm sexy? Blimey, no! I think I'm very together. I feel very good and I'm very happy, which is the most important thing.

HER FEARS: What frightens me? I'm frightened of my mum's sheep dog. And flying! My mum won't fly either. She's a bit nervous. But when I'm going to the States, it's the only way to go, isn't it? I try to think about it logically. There are less accidents in airplanes than in driving cars or falling down stairs. But there's still that awful feeling when you take off. I think, "My God, how does this great big weight stay up there." It amazes me.

I'm also frightened of crowds. I don't mean for myself, but for the people who get hurt when crowds get out of hand. There was that awful riot at the football game in Scotland. A crowd of people were going down some steps. One person tripped and 12 people were killed because the people in back began to push.

Wars frighten me the most. I don't understand them. I hate them. I always wish people could be friends. They're going to destroy everything one day, aren't they? I mean they keep inventing more dangerous weapons. One day they're all going to go off and there just won't be anything left. It must be particularly frightening to be a young man of 18, or whatever the draft age is.

ON SUCCESS: Obviously, having money is nice, but the nicest thing for me is to be independent. I mean, I'm not saying I'm unhappy having money, but I don't think money is the answer to all problems.

Pictorial Parade

Success is mostly being happy and doing the things you like to do when you want to and being with the people you love and enjoy.

A year ago I laughed at people who said, "You should make a film." I really wasn't interested. Also, I totally didn't want to model anymore. So I literally stopped for 18 months. If the right film hadn't come up, we could have been in a bit of trouble, but I just didn't care what I did as long as I didn't model. I suppose I'm a bit of a gambler. We stopped the dress business, too, largely because the dress people said, "You can't stop modeling. You won't be written about. We won't be able to sell the dresses!" What an awful way to think. I was so sick I couldn't bear to be photographed. If that's all they care about, it's not important at all.

Marilyn Monroe's a good example of what I mean about having money and success and not really finding happiness. I don't know. I presume she had money. She was incredible to look at and so talented. And look what happened to her. It's very sad.

I think I've been very lucky. I've been happy all my life. My family's very important to me, me mum and dad, we're very close. I'm also close to my two sisters. I've got Justin [her boyfriend-agent, Justin De Villeneuve], who's very important to me. Happiness is success.

HER DISLIKES: I don't like some of the things the press has done to me, but I'm not afraid to talk with journalists. I always think of it as part of the job. But some of their quotes! Where do they come from? The only thing that really upsets me is when journalists write terrible things about me when they haven't even met me. I don't think that's fair. If they meet or talk with me or have lunch with me and they still feel that way, that's okay.

Other dislikes? I don't like personal questions. They're rude. When people ask me very personal questions, I just don't answer. No one can force you. My personal life is my own affair.

HER FAMILY: I bought a small house in Twickenham on the River Thames. It's only me mum and daddy and me at home, so we don't need a huge place. But it's very pretty—lovely, really. We've got a garden that goes down to the river. My dad likes gardening and he still works—he's a carpenter by trade—and he does TV commercials now. He worked for MGM years ago.

HER FUTURE: Eventually I'll get married. I'm just not ready yet. I think when I want a family, I'll get married. I don't put down other people who have children outside of marriage, but I think if I had children I'd like to be married because it can sometimes be cruel the other way, not to the grown-ups, but to the kids. Children tease each other at school and it can upset a child if someone gets on to the fact that Mum and Dad aren't married.

Careerwise, at this moment in time, I want to make another film, so that's what we're going to do. Maybe in two year's time I'll never want to make another film. And, who knows, maybe I won't be given a chance.

How to Outfox a Calorie-Pushing Hostess

What to do when you're invited to dinner and the meal your hostess serves is fattening? It appears the dieter has no choice except to do the obvious: to eat the fattening meal. Or does he? There's a story that Douglas Campbell, the British actor, who is a vegetarian, was once asked what he would do if he were shipwrecked on a desert island where there were only rabbits. Would he eat a rabbit? Campbell's answer: "No. I would eat what the rabbit eats." The point is you always have some choice, even in a fattening meal. If the meat has an astronomical number of calories, concentrate on the vegetables; if the vegetables are calorically high, concentrate on the salad. Saying "I never eat desserts" can't possibly offend a hostess. (Tip: Sometimes it's smart to ask for something not on the table, such as club soda or ice water. She'll then feel happily that she has provided something you want, and she's less likely to anxiously press food on you!)

PETER AND CAROLE
How much love?

"If you don't have to feed me you can take Peter to Lourdes to get him better," said the note 11-year-old Carole Sinclair left before running away from her home in England. Two-year-old Peter, her stepbrother, suffers from spinal atrophy, will never be able to walk, and probably won't live more than a few years. The Sinclairs had thoughts about taking him to Lourdes, hoping for a miracle, but the expense stopped them. It was a "creepy" cemetery that stopped Carole in her runaway flight, and a policeman who found her sobbing brought her home. Said her mother: "What Carole did has filled my husband and me with more love than it's possible to describe."

Bored with your job? Amazingly, nine out of ten people are. Why? Many companies have built boredom into jobs in misguided attempts to achieve efficiency, says management consultant Roy Walters. They've structured jobs so rigidly and unimaginatively that all initiative to work harder disappears. The bored worker reasons: "If you're going to keep me in a stupid situation, I'm going to make you pay, and pay plenty." This feeling has led to more and more union demands, as well as lateness, absenteeism due to alcoholism, and dope addiction. The answer, Walters says in "The Executive Voice," is to give workers more responsibility and decision-making power.

Three Hours to a Life of Glory: Recently a whole tableful of celebrities—about three dozen of them—were introduced to a mammoth crowd at a New York banquet. The only one who got a standing ovation was—Jack Dempsey! Here's Dempsey talking, in Nat Fleisher's new book: "The station I enjoy in life may be traced to about three hours of appearances in the ring. That, I figure, is the total of actual time spent in my major ring battles. Those include the knockouts of Jess Willard, Georges Carpentier, Luis Firpo, Jack Sharkey and the two fights I had with Gene Tunney. Those contests eventually transformed me from a drifter to a person who is welcomed wherever he goes."—From "Jack Dempsey," by Nat Fleischer (Arlington House, $8.95).

JAMES COCO
Who wants to be a Robert Taylor?

QUOTE: Actor James Coco talking: "I've been an actor for 23 years, and even when I was a kid I was a character actor, because of the way I'm built and look. It would have been fun to be a handsome leading man like Robert Taylor, but then those actors have to worry about their looks fading and about aging. We character actors don't have those worries, and there's always work available. Most character actors enjoy their work—I think it's super being just what I am." UNQUOTE.

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour

ON TIME

"Time is money," I have heard,
A statement that I thought absurd.
But something happened just today
That made me change my mind and say,
"Yes, time is money, that is true,
And quite a lot of money, too."
And this is how the truth was bared:
I had to have my watch repaired.

On returning from the dentist's I told my two young children I'd have to have a bridge in my mouth. My ten-year-old asked, "Why?" Before I had time to answer, my seven-year-old spoke up: "It's so the cavities can go from one tooth to the other."

JULIET LOWELL'S CELEBRITY LETTERS

Juliet Lowell, author of the all-time best-seller "Dear Sir," collects unintentionally humorous letters to and from people in all walks of life.

To Roller Derby Queen Joan Weston

Dear Joan:

How often do you get new skates?

I would like very much to get the next pair of skates that you discard. I don't skate and I would never let anyone use them and I would always treasure them. What I want to do is decorate my living room with them. I want to put them on my mantelpiece with a flower vase in between.

Looking forward to hearing from you favorably.

Now! With the simple method of Foot Reflexology!

"You Can Get Almost Immediate Relief from Aches and Pains All Over the Body!"

"I have brought relief to countless suffering people with this method—and have watched their joy of regained health and vitality—when all hope had seemingly been lost!"
"Let me show you how it can bring about the normal function of a specific location or organ..."
Says MILDRED CARTER, Professional Reflexologist

Dear Friend:

My name is Mildred Carter. I am not a doctor, but for over 14 years, I have been helping people receive remarkable relief from seemingly hopeless aches and pains all over the body, with a method which you can use, too — called Foot Reflexology.

Foot Reflexology is a method for healing the whole body. If you've ever suffered from foot trouble, you know that it's the feet that make the whole body ache. By rubbing and pressing gently on certain areas of your feet, I can show you how you may get almost immediate relief IN OTHER PARTS OF THE BODY!

Why? Because the feet contain Reflexes, which lead like telephone lines to all parts of the body. By pressing them, you help restore normal circulation and health to congested areas. No one can guarantee a cure, nor is it a medical substitute, but:

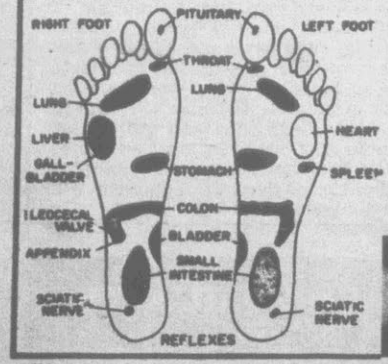

- I have seen it relieve crippled hands and feet, caused by painful arthritis, straighten whole bodies and bring them back to normal!
- It can stop the pain of hemorrhoids almost immediately!
- Most headaches vanish immediately with this method!
- I have seen it relieve liver and gall bladder trouble!
- I have seen it clear up stuffed sinuses almost immediately!
- I have seen it relieve back troubles, in a matter of seconds!
- I have seen it bring fast relief to stomach troubles!
- I have brought lasting relief to sufferers of varicose veins with this method. This is also true with cramps or pains in the legs!
- I have seen it relieve bladder trouble quickly, with great relief after the very first treatment—all sensation of burning or itching seems to disappear completely!
- This simple method can bring women blessed relief from many disorders which may have been troubling them for years!
- I have brought relief to men, in every case of prostate trouble I have ever treated with this method!

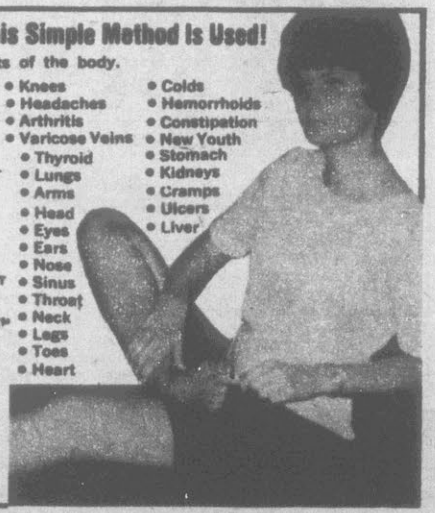

...And still that's just the beginning! You'll find the full details of this amazing method of healing in a new book which I have written, called HELPING YOURSELF WITH FOOT REFLEXOLOGY. I'll tell you how to get it in just a moment, but first I want to tell you more about it!

Many Healings Reported!

Foot Reflexology is a safe, natural, and inexpensive way to help restore healthful circulation to every area of your body.

Did you ever notice how quickly water freshens when good water is poured into muddy water? Foot Reflexology does the same for circulation in your body. Blood flow slows over the years. Naturally, glands and organs become sluggish. Stimulating a new flow of blood to these "tired" places brings new life, clears glands and organs of years of accumulated waste.

Healings and relief from discomfort of all sorts are reported, by the dozen, in the pages of my book. All were obtained with the help of Foot Reflexology.

Here's What I Say In This Book:

Gall Bladder Healing "There are many cases where Reflex Massage of the liver and gall bladder has saved people from having an operation, with the stones seeming to vanish after a few treatments."—Quoted from Chapter 12

Anemic Conditions "Anyone who is anemic will find . . . improvement can be so rapid it is amazing. With pernicious anemia, results will be slower, but Nature will be there, changing new blood cells for old."—Quoted from Chapter 11

Helping the Heart "No matter what the nature of the trouble is, the heart can be aided with this method. . . . I can give you many case histories of wonderful results from this scientific massage of the reflexes on heart patients."—Quoted from Chapter 13

Relief for Leg Pains "I believe I have treated more cases of leg aches than any other malady, and most were caused by the sciatic nerve. Many people suffer for years without any relief. Yet it is so amazingly simple to banish all inflammation from this nerve in an unbelievably short time. In many cases this method has brought relief in one treatment."—Quoted from Chapter 22

Varicose Veins "I have brought lasting relief to sufferers of varicose veins by starting the proper circulation with Reflex Massage, thus causing congestion to disappear. This is also true with cramps or pains of any kind in the legs."—Quoted from Chapter 16

Relief for Hemorrhoids "Hemorrhoids are nothing more than a congested vein (known as piles). This is actually a varicose vein in the rectum. These can become so large as to protrude, causing inconvenience, much suffering, and in many cases bleeding. Though painful, they are usually suffered in silence by those who have them. Yet with Reflex Massage they are one of the quickest to respond to treatment. Here we will learn how to use the Reflexology method to bring you prompt relief!"—Quoted from Chapter 21

How to Make Reflexology Your Rejuvenator "Would you like to be young again? Would you like to walk expectantly into the future, to enjoy new experiences, with a revitalized body? We do not have to be old . . . Reflexology rejuvenates the entire body, giving new life to glands and cells. Blood flow slows over the years. Naturally, glands and cells become sluggish. Reflexology stimulates a new flow of blood to these tired places, clears glands and cells of accumulated waste, brings them new life!"—Quoted from Chapters 3 and 24

You'll Discover...

- How Reflexology relieved a man's stuffed sinuses. "After the first treatment, he could suddenly breathe through both sides of his nose" and he felt well again.
- How a woman who had hurt her spine, and was in so much pain that she called a bone specialist to take x-rays, received so much relief with Reflexology—after a single treatment—that she was able to get up and do her work. She felt so much better, in fact, that she cancelled her appointment for x-rays, and claims she is fully recovered.
- How a man with a hunchback—a huge, ugly bulge—received a complete healing with Reflexology. He was freed of pain, and "he was able to stand straight." The hump disappeared. "He was not deformed at all," I reported!
- How a man who suffered from ulcers, kidney trouble, hay fever, and constipation, received complete relief with Reflexology. "The symptoms of each illness disappeared one by one," and today he sleeps like a baby every night!
- How a man with a heart condition was healed with Reflexology. Doctors had always warned him he couldn't do the things other men did.

My name is Mildred Carter. I am not a doctor, but I have been helping people receive remarkable relief from seemingly hopeless aches and pains!

What A Physiotherapist Says:

"During my forty-eight years as a Physiotherapist in my own Treatment Centers... I have had every opportunity to observe the amazing benefits of manual massage. As a means of rehabilitation where physical trauma is involved, it ranks high in the annals of Medicine.

"The techniques described in Mrs. Carter's book have been developed by experts in the field of reflex massage, and we have no hesitation in recommending them. . . . For the relief of pain, we know of no other means short of opiates to achieve this objective."

— CLARENCE R. MUNROE
Registered Technician, Physiotherapy

With this method, "his heart returned to normal enough to allow him to do anything he wanted, without any trouble. Today, after more than 10 years, he is a strong and well man."

AMAZING TRUE Experiences!

"Reflexology will free you from sickness and suffering, and fear of pain, when used correctly."

"There are so many personal experiences which I could recount, stories of illnesses which were relieved by reflex massage, that I find myself wanting to tell all of them at once. I have seen it do marvelous things that surprised me many times when doctors said it couldn't be done.

"If it can do this for others, it can do this for you! I have proven that this method of healing works, in my own experience. Try it on yourself and FEEL the results!"

Safe To Use!

What's more, Foot Reflexology is absolutely safe. It is the "drugless" way to better health, and requires no exercise, no expensive equipment of any kind. It is so simple, and natural, that it is safe to use on anyone, from the youngest baby to the oldest person. In fact, it is a Rejuvenator that can actually win you many years of new youth!

"YOU SAVED MY LIFE, ARN. HOW DID YOU KNOW THERE WAS DANGER?"
"WE DID NOT FRIGHTEN THE DEER, FOR THEY RACED TOWARD OUR HIDING PLACE, PANICKED BY SOMEONE BEYOND."

IT IS PLAIN THAT NO SUPPLIES CAN BE OBTAINED ON THESE INHOSPITABLE SHORES, SO THE SHIP IS LAUNCHED TO SEARCH FOR A VILLAGE TO RAID OR A TOWN WHERE THEY CAN TRADE.

NEXT WEEK—The Storm

DRAT THOSE GIRLS HANGING AROUND!

THEY WANT US TO PLAY HOPSCOTCH.

OR JACKS.

I'VE GOT AN IDEA!

IF IT'S TO GET RID OF THEM, LET'S TRY IT.

REMEMBER THE RHYME: "GEORGIE PORGIE, PUDDING AND PIE, KISSED THE GIRLS AND MADE THEM CRY"?

WHO'S GOING TO DO THE KISSING?

YOU!

HIDE BEHIND THE FENCE AND WHEN THEY GO BY, JUMP OUT AND SMACK!

SMACK!

EEK!

DID HE ACTUALLY?

HE DID!

BUT YOU'RE SUPPOSED TO CRY.

PAL, YOU HAVE A SURPRISE COMING!
