

Sen. Stennis Shot By Duo In Holdup

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John C. Stennis, a power in the Senate's Southern bloc and an ardent supporter of a strong U.S. military, was in "very serious" condition today after being shot twice during a hold-up in front of his home here.

A spokesman at Walter Reed Army Medical Center said at 6 a.m., EST, today that chances were "guarded" that the 71-year-old Mississippi Democrat would recover. Stennis is chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

However, the spokesman said Stennis was "conscious and resting comfortably." The next briefing on the senator's condition was scheduled for 4 p.m., EST.

Stennis underwent 6½ hours of surgery Tuesday night and early today for bullet wounds in the lower rib cage—the most serious wound—and in the left thigh.

Hospital spokesman Maj. Frank Garland said Stennis awoke 10 minutes after the operation ended at 3:20 a.m., EST.

The senator's vital signs—heart rate, pulse, blood pressure and respiration—were all described as "stable."

Asked about the length of the surgery, Maj. Garland said it was "consistent with the extent of the wounds."

The hospital's "very serious" classification is the most serious classification it has.

Stennis was shot at 7:40 p.m. Tuesday as he alighted from his car after returning to his home. Police were looking for two teen-agers in connection with the shooting.

One of the youths reportedly demanded money, saying "Get

Autopsy 2,000 Years Late

DETROIT (AP) — An autopsy — delayed some 2,000 years — will be performed Thursday by Wayne State University scientists.

Undergoing the belated surgery will be the mummified remains of an Egyptian who died about the time of Christ's birth. Scientists hope the autopsy will provide clues to the diseases which afflict modern man.

Kissinger To Visit Hanoi Feb. 10-13

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential assistant Henry A. Kissinger will visit Hanoi Feb. 10-13 to discuss postwar relationships between the United States and North Vietnam, the White House announced today.

The brief announcement was made simultaneously in Washington and Hanoi and came four days after the two countries joined in signing an agreement to end the long and costly Vietnam war.

The announcement, read to newsmen by White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, said.

"The United States and the Democratic Republic of Vietnam have agreed that Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, assistant to the President of the United States, will visit Hanoi from Feb. 10-13, 1973, to discuss with the government of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam the postwar relationship between the two countries and other matters of mutual concern."

A Kissinger visit to the North Vietnamese capital had been rumored since he and Hanoi politburo member Le Duc Tho initiated eight days ago the Vietnam peace agreement. But official had adopted a no-comment stance, apparently while working out details for the journey.

A major item on Kissinger's agenda is certain to be reparations for war damage suffered by North Vietnam—aid vaguely promised in the peace agreement.

A major item on Kissinger's agenda is certain to be North Vietnam's share of the Indochina-wide postwar assistance program promised in the peace agreement.

Kissinger will be the first top-level U.S. official to visit Hanoi during the past decade while the United States was involved in the war.

Already in Hanoi are medical evacuation teams prepared to receive the first American POWs to be released. Although there was no official indication that he would do so, it appeared possible Kissinger himself would be the first American official to greet the prisoners upon their release.

The President's assistant for National Security Affairs said at a news conference a week ago that he expected the first of the prisoners to be released within 15 days after signing of the peace accord—or before Feb. 11.

The Hanoi trip adds another feather to Kissinger's hat as Nixon's chief foreign policy operative. The German-born former Harvard professor made a secret trip to China in 1971 to arrange for the President's subsequent visit there.

Kissinger also conducted 30 months of secret negotiations with the North Vietnamese before his Paris talks became public about a year ago.

Federal Fund Cutbacks Apparently Won't Be Blocking Local Work

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
Domestic cut backs in the national budget, while darkening future hopes for new federally funded endeavors in Greenville, apparently will not block the completion of most projects already underway here.

But the tight rein the president has asked Congress to impose on federal spending will be felt in some areas locally very soon and in several cases as early as July 1 when the new fiscal year begins.

Perhaps the biggest disappointment in the proposals, according to local officials, is the loss of roughly $1.5 million in Hill-Burton money that was counted on to help fund the county's new hospital. The loss of Hill-Burton funds locally is part of a phasing out plan of all federal hospital by construction money under the Hill-Burton Act and acquiescence by Congress would mean the end, for now, of a program that has poured some $170 million into the state in the last 25 years.

"We were warned back in December that no residual funds would be granted," commented Pitt Memorial Hospital administrator Jack Richardson. He explained that local officials are meeting next week with representatives of the state Medical Care Commission "to see what alternatives" are available for providing funds to supplement the voter-approved hospital bond program.

Richardson said the loss of Hill-Burton funds comes at a time when preliminary plans and pre-construction details have almost been ironed out, but he noted that the possible loss of the anticipated funds "has been a cloud hanging over our heads for some time. We've been hoping that it wouldn't happen."

The administrator added that more details concerning alternatives to the problem should be available following the meeting with the commission.

County manager Reginald Gray termed the hospital money loss "a real big disappointment."

Gray said that another area affected by the cutback in federal spending is the job status of some 26 persons in the county who are working under the Emergency Employment Act. He noted that some programs under the act have been eliminated, as of the June 30 or the end of the current fiscal year.

Pitt County was allocated $231,038 under the act and as of Oct. 26, there were 37 jobs approved and 32 filled with 25 persons on payrolls on that date.

A breakdown of the number of persons employed throughout the county included: Grifton, one person; Farmville, four; Bethel, three; Ayden, four; Greenville Board of Education, two; City of Greenville, two; Regional Development Institute, two; Pitt Technical Institute, one; Pitt Soil and Water Conservation District, two; Social Services, three; Pitt Health Department, one; Pitt Board of Education, two; county offices, three. He added that some of the positions would probably be funded through other sources but there is no way of knowing now which will be dissipated.

The manager said that other county programs could be affected if Congress approves the 1974 version of the budget but "it's impossible for me to know at this time" what they will be.

The city's urban renewal and housing programs appear to be in good shape, according to Joe Laney, executive director of the Greenville Housing Authority and Redevelopment Commission.

Laney said that the freeze on housing and urban renewal money, as proposed by Nixon, would not affect projects that are already contracted for, particularly the Central Business District project. He added that Newtown is also in no danger and the Southside project is under an accelerated schedule

THREATENED — N. C. Sen. Bette Anne Wilkie, of Fletcher, is uncommitted on the Equal Rights Amendment. Mrs. Wilkie says she has received threatening phone calls and letters telling her to vote against the amendment—or else. (AP Wirephoto)

No 'Fun' In Equal Rights

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Sen. Bette Wilkie, R-Henderson, is finding that being the only female in the North Carolina legislature who is not committed to support the Equal Rights Amendment is no fun.

In fact, Sen. Wilkie says she wishes the General Assembly could dispose of the problem by letting the people decide in a referendum, rather than forcing her to make a decision for or against the bill.

Mrs. Wilkie's district, the 27th, consists of 10 rural counties in the mountainous western tip of North Carolina. Spurred, she said, by church opposition, 2,000 of her constituents have written her or signed petitions saying they oppose the controversial ERA.

Only 100 have written in favor of the amendment. Thus, she is caught between her personal feeling that women should be equal and her political feeling that voting for the amendment might be suicidal at the polls.

Not all the letters, she said, have been polite. Feminists have threatened an organized drive to unseat her if she opposes the amendment. Some male callers have told her to "vote against it—or else," she said.

Tuesday, Mrs. Wilkie gave a statement to newsmen in which she asked her constituents to at least permit her to attend public hearings on the amendment before she commits herself one way or the other. "When over 2,000 people take time, in one district, to petition against a bill, then that bill deserves further study," she said.

Health Care Has Become A Political Matter, Says Guest

"Dr. May is a prophet to have planned this talk on 'Transitions in Health Care' just after Nixon's proposed budget has been announced," said Dr. Paul Corneley in speaking to East Carolina University School of Medicine and Allied Health students yesterday.

Dr. Corneley is a professor of public health at Howard University in Washington, D.C. and is a past president of the American Public Health Association. He and several other leaders in public health made a widely publicized tour of the United States recently, visiting areas of special concern in public health.

Dr. Corneley expressed his disdain for Nixon's cutting the Health, Education, and Welfare appropriation $7 billion, while he

Would Equalize Inheritance Tax Raiders Forgot Just One Thing

RALEIGH (AP)—The House Finance Committee struck a blow for men's lib today.

This came when it unanimously approved a bill to allow both men and women a $10,000 inheritance tax exemption when a spouse dies.

The law now allows a widow a $10,000 inheritance tax deduction upon the death of a spouse and allows a widower only $2,000.

Rep. Robert Farmer, D-Wake, said his bill to equalize inheritance taxes between men and women would cost the state only $175,000 a year.

When police completed their task of raiding a cock fight in Williamson County Saturday night, they forgot one thing—one of their fellow officers.

State Trooper Henry E. Oliver, one of 12 troopers participating in the raid, was left stranded at the site nine miles west of Franklin after the other officers drove away.

Oliver hitched a ride with one of the 127 persons who were cited for attending a cock fight during the raid.

Return Ring To Disturbed Aunt At Once

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have an aunt who always called me her "favorite niece," and she is getting on in years. She told me many times she wanted me to have her diamond ring, which is valued at $10,000. She said she wanted me to have it while she is still living and can see me enjoy wearing it. [I am 33 and married.]

Well, a few weeks ago she got this ring out of her safety deposit box and asked me to come to her house so she could give it to me.

I came, and she told me how much she loved me and she gave it to me. We both cried, and I kissed her and she put it on my finger.

The next day she called my mother raving and screaming that her ring was "missing" and she said I had visited her the day before and she "showed me" the ring, and she is sure I took it!

My mother called her lawyer and asked him what to do, and he said that he would have to "study" the case because he had never had anything like this in his practice before.

In the meantime, I'm afraid I'll be arrested if I keep the ring, and can't prove she gave it to me. It's my word against my aunt's. Please tell me what to do. I like the ring—but not that much. BEWILDERED IN TEXAS

DEAR BEWILDERED: If I were you I would return the ring at once. Your aunt is obviously disturbed. Should she have a change of heart, and want to give you the ring, don't accept it unless she provides you with written proof that she has GIVEN it to you.

DEAR ABBY: I am 19, and am pregnant nearly five months. I am not trying to make excuses for myself because I know I was foolish, but I really thought I was in love.

I dropped out of college because I was so worried I wasn't eating or sleeping, and I couldn't make my grades. I can't tell my parents what's wrong with me because it would kill my mother. My father thinks I am lazy, and he beat me twice last week with a belt. My legs are all black and blue.

I have been living on tea and coffee and know I should be seeing a doctor, but I can't go to our family doctor because he would tell my parents.

I don't have a penny to my name and don't know where to turn. Please tell me if there is a home for unwed mothers near here. I'll walk there if I have to. IN TERRIBLE TROUBLE

DEAR IN: Please send me your name and address at once. I am sure I can help you.

DEAR ABBY: I sure hope that lady who said she and her husband didn't have any sex relations for more than 12 years doesn't find out (like I did) that SHE was going without, but her husband wasn't. My husband was being "served" by a waitress for six years, and all the time I felt so sorry for him. I thought he lost his manhood because he had had a prostate operation. We're divorced now, so it doesn't matter anymore, but some wives can be too trusting. DUMMY IN DETROIT

DEAR ABBY: This concerns the husband who disturbed the entire neighborhood by honking his horn early every morning as a farewell signal to his wife.

My husband and I have a little farewell routine when he leaves for work every morning at 3:31 a. m. I flip the porch lights off and on a few times, and he in turn flashes his headlights off and on. That way we don't bother anybody. W. 5TH ST., SIOUX CITY, IA.

DEAR W. 5TH: That's nice. I hope you don't have any nosy neighbors who figure it's a signal that your husband just left and the coast is clear.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Loopholes Bound To Remain

A workable method of placing realistic curbs on political campaign spending is something that is difficult to come by. If any group is qualified to do it in North Carolina, it should be the legislators who got where they are by understanding how political campaigns are operated.

In a resolution the House of Representatives has directed its Committee on Elections and Election Laws to draft legislation placing limits on campaign spending for state offices. While the committee has yet to get down to the brass tacks of its assignment, it is obvious from the outset that it has been assigned a difficult task.

The election year of 1972 and the magnitude of spending for political campaigns in this state was shocking to rank and file citizens as well as to the seasoned politicians. The costs of the campaigns ran far beyond what most people would have predicted... and the dollars that flowed into the campaigns staggered the imagination of most Tar Heels. It is not surprising then, that the legislature is now interested in some method of putting a curb on campaign spending.

Being politicians themselves, the legislators know it is not reasonable to expect that they can pass a law which will guarantee that no more than a specified amount will be spent in any campaign for any office. A law that would cover all the possible loopholes would be so involved and require so much checking on the part of the state that rigid enforcement probably would cost more than even the present-day high priced campaigns.

The recently passed federal law designed to limit spending in campaigns for federal offices may have had some effect in holding spending down, but it was obvious in the campaigns from president on down that countless methods were used to circumvent the ultimate goal: putting a ceiling on spending. Many of the ideas for getting around the law and getting more campaign dollars were devised by those closest to the officials who wrote the new law, the campaign and financial managers, if not the officials themselves.

Limiting campaign spending in North Carolina is a worthy goal. This year's legislative attempt probably will not offer any guarantees that campaign spending will be rigidly controlled. Even so, the very fact that the legislature makes an effort to write a law that will put realistic curbs on campaign spending is a step in the right direction.

The real test of the effectiveness of such legislation will come next year when those who are now in Raleigh writing the laws get back home and begin to scramble for votes in another election. If they abide by the spirit as well as the letter of the new law they enact, North Carolina will have taken a giant step toward limiting campaign spending.

Talking Break In Traditions

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — Only three weeks into the current session, Tar Heel legislators are caught up in discussion on when they will meet again. They are talking about returning next year, moving to annual sessions and breaking with the long tradition of a biennial (every other year) schedule.

to annual legislative sessions. Opening up the budget each year, he said, could simply double spending pressures on lawmakers with the added hazard of unwise expenditures.

Instituting an annual budget this year could be cumbersome, agreed Rep. Carl Stewart of Gaston, House Appropriations Committee chairman. Adopting a two-year budget, with the option for review in 1974, is the approach he favors in the transition to annual sessions.

"There is so much more rapid development in our society, particularly in the areas of social legislation, than in the past. We need to respond to changing times more promptly than we have been able to," said Stewart in citing the case for annual sessions.

He looked on the extra cost as a worthwhile investment. Even if doubled he noted, legislative expenses would amount to less than one-half of one per cent of the state budget.

Rep. Nancy Chase of Wayne said she is less certain about the balance between cost and benefits. "That is one of the reservations I have about annual sessions," she said.

Experience will tell whether increased efficiency gained will off-set the expense of meeting yearly, he said.

Time Limit Advocated

While she's ready to try it, Rep. Chase attached a condition to her support for annual sessions. A fixed time limit, preferably no more than three months, should be set for sessions she said.

There are dissenting voices in the rush for annual sessions, which got impetus from the election of Gov. Jim Holshouser, a Republican, while the General Assembly remained firmly in Democratic hands.

"I'm opposed to annual sessions until we have tried the other things we need to do to make an effective legislature," said Rep. W.S. Harris Jr. of Alamance. He said he had in mind standing committees, adequate research staff, continuity of leadership as the means to raise the quality of legislative work. Annual session should come through a process of evolution, geared to the total legislative operation, and not as an instant solution, he added.

Flexibility, already inherent in the legislature's ability to fix its date for meeting and to call itself into session, is better than a rigid requirement for annual sessions, said Sen. Julian Allbrook of Halifax.

"I feel we've done too well in North Carolina under our own method of operation," he said. "We don't need to copy any other state in the union."

BRYAN HAISLIP

More than the time and convenience of members is involved in the prospect for change. Political and economic consequences, with a widespread impact for the state and its citizens, could flow from the transition.

Annual sessions of the General Assembly would influence who the people elect to represent them, how they are elected, and what it costs to run the legislative branch as well as general government.

Some citizens who now serve would have second thoughts about coming to Raleigh every year. A trend to professional legislators, paid and serving full-time, could bring out a new crop of candidates.

The political element in the lawmaking process would be heightened by a legislative session in an election year, avoided by the present practice.

Primary dates would have to be shifted to avoid conflict with campaigning.

Many Questions Involved
Meeting every year might enable the legislature to budget more closely for state agencies, with some saving in the cost of government operation. At the same time, it would at least double the spending for legislative purposes.

Resolutions endorsing the annual session concept have been adopted by both the House and the Senate. That expression of sentiment indicates that what remains is not whether to do it, but how to go about it.

The issue is one of many facets, balancing benefits and disadvantages. A random interviewing of legislators turned up qualms and qualifications, even among advocates.

"We ought not to sacrifice deliberation for efficiency," cautioned Rep. Jay Huskins of Iredell, one of the proponents.

The goal of the legislative process is the thoughtful examination of alternatives in arriving at a wise course of action, he explained, and not merely the efficient production of plastic legislation.

Two-Year Budget Favored
That view persuaded him the state should stick to a biennial budget, while going Who's To Run The Pentagon?

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Whether Elliot Richardson will really run the Pentagon as Secretary of Defense will be partially answered soon in a potentially stormy confrontation between him and the White House staff over a major appointment.

The question: whom will President Nixon appoint as assistant secretary of Defense for International Security Affairs (ISA)? Richardson wants Jonathan Moore, his aide and intimate political adviser, regarded by the influential defense community as too dovish. The White House wants Helmut Sonnenfeldt, senior staffer under Dr. Henry Kissinger and the National Security Council (NSC) and a medium hard-liner on foreign and defense policy.

Although the choice between Moore and Sonnenfeldt surely involves ideology and personality, at bottom it represents a classic power struggle between Richardson and the White House — the most important test of the White House palace guard's grand design to absolutely control the federal government during Mr. Nixon's second term.

That design calls for all appointments at the assistant secretary level by the White House not cabinet members — a major break with tradition. Richardson, a liberal Republican, did not publicly complain when the White House itself picked his deputy secretary — conservative Dallas oil man William Clements, considered much harder on national security questions than Richardson.

Nearly two months ago, Richardson started talking privately about Moore for the ISA post. But when hard-liners on Capitol Hill and in the White House protested, it was believed Richardson would quietly retreat. In fact, however, Richardson has been continuing his purposeful campaign for Moore in order to assert his own rights.

"I don't regard it as the kind of question where my prestige or Jonathan's person interest are involved," Richardson told us. Onlookers at the Pentagon and White House disagree, feeling Richardson has deliberately made this a test case. Richardson's power-savvy predecessor, Melvin R. Laird, had specifically warned him no Secretary of Defense can function properly without subordinates personally loyal to him.

Complicating this power struggle are ideological considerations. Although Richardson contends that Moore is no dove, he is so regarded by influential figures in the Senate and the White House. Liberal Republican Moore was an early doubter on Vietnam — as a Defense and State Department aide in Kennedy-Johnson days, as a campaign foreign policy adviser to Govs. George Romney and Nelson Rockefeller and as assistant to under secretary Richardson at the State Department four years ago. Oh, What A Lousy War

WASHINGTON — When President Nixon announced the cease-fire in Vietnam last week there was little rejoicing in the land. The trouble is that Vietnam has given all wars a bad name.

Howard Sufferman and a small group of concerned citizens in this country have started a War Anti-Defamation League which hopes to dispel the prejudices against war caused by our adventure in Indochina. Sufferman told me, "I don't think people should judge all wars by Vietnam. Of course there are always a few rotten ones in any barrel, but the majority of wars are up-standing, patriotic events that most Americans can be proud of."

"What do you think went wrong with this war?" I asked Sufferman. "For one thing," he replied, "the good guys and the bad guys looked alike. You really can't have a good war when both your enemies and your allies have slanted eyes."

"But the bad guys did wear black pajamas," I pointed out. "No matter," Sufferman said, "it was hard for Americans watching TV every night to get steamed up about a bunch of little runts who were five feet tall and weighed 65 pounds. What the hell kind of enemy is that?"

"Terrible casting," I agreed. "I knew the war could never work," Sufferman said, "when no one on Tin Pan Alley wrote a war song to get the blood boiling and the juices flowing."

"It's hard to make anything rhyme with 'protective reaction strike,'" I said. "And Hollywood let us down miserably," Sufferman added. "In order to have a good war you have to have dozens of motion pictures showing our brave American boys with their backs to the wall wiping out hundreds and hundreds of the ruthless yellow enemy. If you want to know the truth, what we missed more than anything was Errol Flynn. Perhaps if he were alive and we had put him on the Ho Chi Minh Trail with a machine gun and five hand grenades the entire attitude toward Vietnam might have been different."

"Americans are more sophisticated now," he replied. "One film on the Green Berets is not enough to sell the people on a war."

"What else went wrong in your opinion?" "We didn't have rationing," Sufferman said. "The American people like to make sacrifices during a war — they want to be part of it. We had no scrap drives, no blackout curtains, no posters warning the enemy was listening. War is no fun if you don't feel a part of it. Even if the U.S. government didn't need it, they should have asked people to contribute string and tinfoil."

Sufferman continued, "There were so many mistakes I can't even list them all. A good war requires armies to fight for real estate. When the Pentagon decided to make enemy body counts the standard of whether we were winning or not, the American people lost interest. We wanted names of hills and valleys, towns and hamlets that our boys had valiantly fought for. And all

To the editor: I am so grateful for this space to let the citizens of Greenville know what a great job the Greenville Rescue Squad is doing for the people.

On Tuesday, Jan. 16, my husband became very ill at his office at Gostobac Warehouse on Highway 11. He was alone and realized he could not look up the number to call the Squad for help. The telephone was near so he dialed the operator on the telephone. Mrs. Jenette Lilley took the information and quickly and efficiently gave it to the Rescue Squad, getting help almost immediately. He had a severe heart attack and two more after arriving at Pitt Memorial Hospital. He was well taken care of and today he is alive and still not completely out of danger—but alive.

I am confident the quick, efficient way the Squad and the telephone operator handled the situation is the reason my husband is still alive. I feel that I owe both so very much—I want everyone to know about the good service these people are doing. Greenville can well be proud of both.

I shall forever be grateful to every man on the Squad even though I don't know any of them personally. This is my small way of saying I will never forget the fine job they have done. Greenville, be proud of them. Support and stand by them for they are the greatest people in the world.

Thank you so much for allowing me to write this letter.

Double Talk Is For All

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — How can you win a reputation for common sense when you never mean anything you say? That's easy — by using double talk.

Double talk is the saying of one thing when you are thinking just the opposite. It is the most widespread language on earth, for everyone alive employs it more often than he does any other form of communication.

Here are some examples of double talk from daily life. The quoted line is what the speaker said. The unquoted line that follows is what he actually was thinking.

"Yes, I see the one you mean. Do you really think he's all that attractive?" — Just because you saw him first doesn't mean that he's yours.

"Of course, I'll be glad to marry you, darling, but first you'll have to win my father's permission." — That shouldn't be too hard. Papa would be glad to see me elope with a orangutan.

"Pardon me. Don't tell me that I stepped on both your feet." — Maybe that'll teach you to keep them out of the aisle, you clod!

"I would enjoy going on walking like this for miles and miles — except that I seem to have gotten something in my shoe." — Grab us a cab, stupid. Can't you see I've had enough fresh air to last me a lifetime.

"We all feel the same way about it, Frank. The old office won't be the same without you." — It'll be better.

"I'm glad you're feeling so good tonight, Jake. You really were the life of the party last time." — Oh, God — there goes the rest of the furniture!

"No, I won't be bored at all. I enjoy playing any kind of game with you." — Why don't we throw the cards away and just play house?

"Yes, my husband does have some kind of title in his firm, but I never can remember just what it is." — After 25 years, I can't tell people he's still just a junior executive.

"Now Madge, your house isn't really mused. It's always so neat and clean, you'd think you could eat off the floor." — And maybe you just have. It does look like a pigsty today.

Strength For Today

TURN UP YOUR HEARING AID

Yes,—turn it up and listen.

In this broad world of ours, teeming with resources, there are millions of people who lie down hungry every night. In a world where we ought to have peace we are having constant threats of war. No matter what officials in high places do there are millions to say they are wrong. Let us not get the idea in our minds that politicians are a lot of crooks. There are crooks among them as there are crooks among all groups. Let us never think that situations will right themselves. Nothing is ever righted unless there is someone on hand to right it. Hungry mouths are not going to be filled by exclamations of sympathy. Wars are not going to be avoided unless there are brave and courageous people at the heads of government who say that they must be avoided. The world is always in a bad state because we are the kind of people we are. We do what we ought not to do and we fail to do what we ought to do.

So turn up that hearing aid and listen. You won't like all you hear, but it will be good to take it in.

Above everything, don't get the idea that we've solved most problems and been crowned with triumph. Hunger, threat of war, injustice, prejudice. Turn the hearing aid up higher—and listen.

Who Can Explain The Market?

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — There is no limit to the number and variety of theories to explain the stock market, because there is no limit to the imagination and ambition of stock market people.

In recent days the market has been falling rather regularly, and so the explainers have been at work. They attribute the decline to the threat of more inflation, rising interest rates, a weak dollar, institutional idleness, etc.

No need to list all the reasons. Most of the time the analyses are impressively complex. But there are exceptions, and the remarkably simple January signal is one.

If you check through the records, you will find that the first month of the year often sets the course for the months to follow. This has been the case in most of the past 20 years.

The significance at the moment is the timing. The month is coming to a close and the averages will show limited changes from their openings. For those who believe that January leads the way, it suggests a mediocre year on average. Should credence be placed in such omens? Or are they mere chance happenings — relationships and correlations and designs such as can be found in any set of figures or objects if you study them long enough?

An observer is entitled to doubt their forecasting value. Any study of the market is essentially a study in mass psychology as well as economics, business conditions and the like. And no matter how it is masked, the masses have changed greatly over the years.

In the 1950s, the ordinary American hadn't discovered Wall Street. In the 1960s, there was a great influx of "little guys," along with the growth of institutions such as mutual and pension funds. In the '70s, it appears, these institutions will dominate the market.

Not only has the composition of the market changed, but there has been a change in the thinking. The 1960s were characterized by performance. Today, performance is a dirty word.

Replacing the performance game has been a return to fundamentals — to analyses of management, the economy, the profit outlook and the like. It has always been so; fads are always followed by fundamentals.

Predicts Very Good Year Ahead

By STERLING F. GREEN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon today predicted a very good year, perhaps a great one, for the American economy and called on Congress and the country to prepare for the end of wage and price controls.

Nixon said this means supporting his foremost economic policy, the restraint of federal spending, so that big deficits do not turn "a healthy expansion into a feverish boom followed by a recession."

In the second of the major presidential messages to the new Congress, the annual Economic Report, Nixon hammered on the cost-cutting theme as insistently as he did in Monday's budget message. "We must develop more reliable and responsible attitudes and methods for dealing with the federal budget," he told Congress, "so that it is not perpetually on the margin of an inflationary explosion."

"We must prepare for the end of wage and price controls, and be willing to show the same courage in taking them off as was shown in imposing them."

The need to moderate a potentially runaway boom was stressed both by Nixon and, in an accompanying 300-page report, by his three-member Council of Economic Advisers. A rise of about 9 per cent in gross national output would be appropriate instead of 1972's 11 per cent rate, said the council headed by Dr. Herbert Stein.

Such an increase, the council said, would reduce the unemployment rate to about 4.5 per cent by the end of 1973. The generally accepted goal for full employment is to reduce joblessness to 4 per cent; the present rate is 5.2 per cent.

The advisers said they were not implying that 4.5 per cent was necessarily the floor to the unemployment rate, but went on:

"It does imply a belief that a more rapid expansion of the economy within 1973 would endanger the further reduction of the inflation rate that is desirable, and would do so despite the continuing price-and wage-controls program."

Nixon noted that the 1972 increase in national output, one of the largest in 25 years, was achieved despite a decline in military spending and without rising prices. The cost of living went up slightly more than 3 per cent, he said, "a far cry from the runaway inflation rate of 6 per cent that confronted us in 1969."

He set these immediate goals: "Output and incomes should expand. Both the unemployment rate and the rate of inflation should be reduced further, and realistic confidence must be created that neither need rise again."

Despite the success of the Phase 2 wage-price control machinery, Nixon said, "it is not the best system for 1973." The need now is to establish a pattern of management, labor, and consumer behavior consistent with reasonable price stability, he said.

The self-administering system of Phase 3 was adopted, he said, because the more rigid ceilings bring dangers and distortions. "As controls continue," he said, "red tape multiplies, inequities increase, interferences with production and productivity become more severe, and the possibility is enhanced that prices will explode when controls are lifted."

In the problem areas like food, construction and medical-care costs, Nixon said, "special efforts at restraint are needed, in some cases more intense than last year."

they gave us numbers of enemy killed. The whole thing became a bloody bore. "Maybe the next war will be better," I said.

"I hope so," Sufferman said. "A couple more lousy ones like Vietnam and you're going to get the American people turned off on war for good."

Evans-Novak

In contrast, Sonnenfeldt, an abrasively brilliant foreign service officer of 20 years' experience who joined the NSC staff in 1969, is viewed by Capitol Hill hard-liners as one of their own. They regard him as a conservative influence on Kissinger in arms limitations talks with Moscow.

Then, too, there are personal factors. Top White House domestic staffers feel Kissinger took a dislike to Moore during the old Rockefeller campaign. But Moore has one powerful friend inside the palace guard in Nixon political aide Charles Colson, who worked with him in the office of then Sen. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts. Sonnenfeldt's supporters argue that since anti-Kissinger forces at the State Department will not accept him back, his high talents should be put to work at the Pentagon.

The ISA appointment is symbolically critical to Richardson considering his overall difficulty taking control at the Pentagon. Busy winding up as Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, he has been only a sporadic visitor at Defense. Moore, his transition officer, has also been in-and-out. However, Clements, confirmed by the Senate as deputy secretary, has been putting in routine 12-hour days at his Pentagon desk. "He's learning the building," says one Defense Department veteran who is amazed at Richardson's absence.

But Richardson, a shrewd, experienced bureaucratic operative, is not to be underestimated. Realizing he must reassure the defense community, he took a relatively hard line during his confirmation hearings.

Testifying with an American flag emblem in his lapel, Richardson satisfied most hawkish members of the Armed Services Committee, including Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington.

Against that backdrop, the defense community is left with mixed emotions. It is totally sympathetic with Richardson's battle against unworkable White House control of the Pentagon bureaucracy. These advocates of strong national defense only wish he had not selected Joanthan Moore as a test case.

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until shortly after midday strange, unexpected situations exist so it is necessary to be wary of changes and follow through formally on what you have already started. However, p.m. is excellent for social and general prosperity and for doing things differently from in the past. Be active.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Act circumspectly so you do not spoil your good reputation. Then do whatever will improve the goodwill of public and bigwigs. Handle credit matters satisfactorily. Those civic duties are a cinch now.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Morning is best for putting new ideas in operation, then get information you need from right sources. Later you can do work required of you by others. Take it easy in p.m.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Morning excellent for duties, then get into civic matters with a flair. Morning hunches are not good, however, though later they are accurate. Mate is grumpy early, but toward evening manner sweetens.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Study early how to improve certain relationships you are not sure of. Evening is the best time to get wheels rolling. Don't try to settle that outside matter just yet. Sleep on it.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Impress bigwigs with your fine ability in a.m., but be modest about it; then cheer up co-workers. Labor at a measured pace and safeguard your health. Being overly deliberate is just as bad, though. Relax in p.m.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) If you finish your work early, you can enjoy recreations later with congenials. Evening is best time to talk over problems with mate. Keep your temper controlled.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Morning is best time to repair or embellish dwelling for more comfort, beauty, value. Then you can invite friends to visit in p.m. Show you have good taste and good sense. Do not neglect important correspondence.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Much care in motion is vital today especially in the morning, then you can handle business matters wisely and well. Do not criticize others. Relegate the romantic to p.m. Then use finesse.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Finances seem depressing in a.m., but by diligent thinking and acting, all works out just fine before evening. Listen to advice which a clever business expert gives you early. Follow to the best of your ability.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) If you think others are not treating you right, study your appearance and improve it, and watch the good results. Do some entertaining that will bring goodwill. Show others you do like them, are willing to do favors.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you make the changes necessary, you can reorganize your future so all moves more efficiently and successfully. That secret anxiety can be gotten rid of quickly. Take it easy in p.m.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan to see good friends for whom you have had little time of late and good things can come of this. You want to dash off on a tangent early, but control this errant impulse and then the rest of the day and evening are fine.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those steady but slow plodders early in life, who will learn lessons thoroughly, however, so that when mature can be most successful because of the combination of charm and sureness. Bigwigs and the general public are easily impressed by your youngster. Business is the forte here, whether man or woman, and the education should be slanted along such lines. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Siege Of Cold Could Tip Scales In Energy Crisis

New Primary Election Date Offered Assembly

RALEIGH (AP) — Legislation to move the date of North Carolina's primary elections from early May to the third Saturday in June and to amend the state's presidential primary law are now before the General Assembly.

Rep. Thomas Gilmore, D-Guilford, sponsored the two measures.

One of them would make the results of the presidential primary binding on North Carolina's national convention delegates for three ballots. Present law binds the delegates for only one ballot.

In explaining his bill to shift primary elections from early May to the third Saturday in June, Gilmore told newsmen "Something has to be done about the high cost of campaigning in North Carolina." He noted his bill would reduce costs by cutting down the length of primary campaigns by several weeks.

Gilmore said his presidential primary bill would make the primaries come nearer to expressing the wishes of North Carolina's voters.

Gilmore noted that Alabama Gov. George Wallace received a majority of the votes cast in the state's first presidential primary last May but Democratic national convention delegates were required to vote for him for only one ballot. Gilmore expressed the opinion that only one or two of the North Carolina delegates would have voted for Wallace on a second or third ballot. If his bill had been in effect, Gilmore pointed out the delegates would have been bound to vote for Wallace for three ballots.

"I was not a Wallace supporter," Gilmore said, "but I am doing this out of fairness so that wishes of a majority of the people of North Carolina will be followed."

A dangerous shortage of oil and gas has caused scattered high pricing of diesel oil, the shutdown of some schools and pleas to consumers in cold regions to lower their thermostats in favor of more clothes. But the nation is getting by.

A mild January in the Northeast has eased the crisis somewhat, but any siege of cold weather in the Northern states could tip the delicate balance between the dwindling fuel supply and the gradually lengthening days. The resulting competition for available fuel could plunge the nation into a new crisis almost overnight.

The Cost of Living Council, meanwhile, has scheduled a hearing next week to check into price rises for heating oil put into effect recently by several oil companies.

Refineries have been blamed for a late start in producing fuel oil for heating and for trucks, but oil men insist the real problem is a shortage of crude oil.

"There's a very critical shortage, and from the looks of things it's going to get worse," says Forrest N. Shumway, president of The Signal Companies, "because discoveries are not keeping pace with demand."

In a nation where 6 per cent of the world's population consumes 35 per cent of its energy, even mild shortages in prime fuel show up quickly.

Some truck stop operators admit to paying higher prices for diesel fuel — sometimes three times as much as normal — on the open market when their regular supplies went dry. But an Associated Press survey shows no real black market in fuel as yet.

Snow still grips hard-hit areas in the Midwest. Homeowners from Wisconsin to Rhode Island have been asked to turn down their thermostats. In the East, governments grudgingly set aside antipollution rules to allow burning of some plentiful, if dirtier, fuels. The effects are widespread but not uniform:

—The state of Iowa has bought up fuel oil and begun rationing it on the basis of need.

—New York City is allowing distributors who run out of low sulfur fuel to sell lower grades that don't meet antipollution standards.

—In San Antonio, Tex., a Southern city with large natural gas supplies, city utilities burned fuel oil to produce electricity because of cuts in natural gas and are now running out of fuel oil.

—In Denver, Colo., seven schools closed or limited schedules.

—One school district in Maryland turned its thermostats down to 60 degrees and kept operating.

—In Boston, officials warned that generating plants, schools, industrial plants and many homes would run out of low sulfur fuel required by antipollution laws by midweek.

—Farmers in the Midwest from Nebraska to Michigan had a late harvest because of a wet fall. When they took their soybean and corn crops to grain elevators, they ran into trouble because there was a shortage of fuel to operate the grain dryers. Emergency fuel was trucked into some areas.

Truckers and truck stop operators throughout the Midwest are scrounging for diesel fuel. One Minneapolis firm sent a tank truck to Chicago to buy all the diesel fuel available. Other truck outfits are reported to be leasing gasoline powered vehicles to stay in business.

Officials and oil men are concentrating on meeting the current fuel shortage crisis, but some oil men see the possibility of another fuel shortage this summer: gasoline. Refineries may have to work into the spring to build up fuel oil reserves and gasoline supplies may suffer.

May Intervene In CP&L Case

RALEIGH (AP) — The Conservation Council of North Carolina can proceed with its plans to intervene in forthcoming public hearings on Carolina Power & Light Co.'s proposal to build a nuclear power plant in Wake County.

The conservation group, which has about 2,000 members, was granted permission Tuesday by the Atomic Energy Commission Safety and Licensing Board to intervene in the case. The action came at a special pre-hearing conference in Raleigh.

Another pre-hearing conference will be held in March at which time public hearing dates will be announced.

CP&L announced in 1971 its intentions to build the $1.1 billion, four-reactor plant 20 miles southwest of Raleigh.

At Tuesday's conference, two citizens—Shaw University student John Speights and Thomas T. Ragland of Holly Springs—were barred from formally intervening. But they will be allowed to make brief statements during the hearings.

The conservation group contends that CP&L has not proposed adequate monitoring and surveillance programs to protect the health and safety of the public.

The hearings will be divided between health and safety concerns and environmental considerations.

GLASS MAGIC — Owen Kingsbury, East Carolina University's resident glassblower and a "Mr. Wizard" to those that have seen his demonstrations in the area's schools, magically changes glass tubing into works of art for these members of the Greenville Boys Club. Jeff Marsh, president of the Circle K Club and Alice Keene of the Greenville Boys Club accompanied these youngsters during a recent visit to Kingsbury's lab.

On Honor Roll At Shaw Univ.

RALEIGH — Miss Rhonda Banks of Greenville has been named to the honor roll for the first trimester at Shaw University here.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Banks of 303 Paige Dr. and a 1971 graduate of Rose High School.

The honor roll is for students who have a 2.0 grade average or better.

The coldest weather ever recorded in Atlanta was 8 below zero on Feb. 13, 1899.

Four Named To Pitt Heart Drive Posts

Buff Chalk, Fund Raising Chairman for the Pitt County Heart Association, today named four persons to head key positions during the February Heart Fund campaign.

Walter Faulkner, personnel manager for Empire Brush Company, will serve as Corporations and Industries Chairman. Mrs. Alice Barrett of Greenville was named Special Gifts Chairman. Jim Mallory, associate Dean of Student Affairs at East Carolina University is college chairman. And Dave Gordon, manager of Tar River Estates is Special Events Chairman.

In making the appointments

Chalk said, "It will take a concerted effort by these chairman, their volunteers, and the people of Pitt County to reach the 1973 Heart Fund goal of $18,985."

"That amount is about $6,000 over what Pitt County raised last year but we are planning numerous activities during February that should help us reach our goal," he said.

The activities include the sale of Heart Fund balloons and tags; Business Days Feb. 6; a bicycle race Feb. 13; a regional Heart Fund Telethon on WCTI-TV Feb. 24 and 25; and Heart Sunday on February 25.

Postal Workers Forwarded Egg
 RIVERTON, Wyo. (AP) — Postmaster Dick Hays said his employes didn't quite know what to do when they discovered an unusual package in a collection box.
 The "package" was an egg — unwrapped but with a stamp and address on it.
 Hays said the egg, which had no return address, couldn't be sent as was because it wasn't packaged properly. But he said postal workers wrapped the egg and sent it on its way.
 Hays said he wasn't sure if the egg was raw or hard-boiled.

Modern Science In Moonshining
 ILLA, Ga. (UPI) — Moonshining has entered the age of technology. When federal agents uncovered a still near here, they were surprised to discover how complicated the operation was.
 "It takes a guy with an engineering degree to know how to set up one of these things," said one. "There can't be more than 20 persons anywhere in the area who could operate this thing, and half of them already are in jail."

Limitations Failed To Detract From Opera Production

The most remarkable thing about the East Carolina University Playhouse production of La Boheme. Puccini's opera that opened in McGinnis Auditorium Tuesday night, is the success of the venture despite some almost overwhelming limitations.

Eventually, all the dedicated people — actors, directors, singers, musicians, stage hands, etc., who work so hard to entertain us will perhaps have adequate theater facilities to let them show the public what they could do under the right circumstances.

When musicals plays or operas are staged in McGinnis, the most damaging drawback is that created by the singers having to work with the orchestra almost in their lap due to lack of an orchestra pit. Seeing the heads of musicians visually distracts, and of course even the singers with the strongest voices have to keep in mind the necessity to project more than would be required under better conditions.

With that complaint registered, it's time to turn to the positive achievements of La Boheme — and there are many.

Bartone Charles M. Smith, in the role of Marcello, the artist, made his most exciting role in this production. Smith is an associate pastor at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, his is a voice that is rich, strong and full textured.

As Mimi, Miss June Laine is convincing as the working girl beset with illness. Her singing is beautiful in the lower registers. Miss Rosalyn Barlowe, this production's Musetta, comes across splendidly as the lovely, hot-tempered girl who lets love get the upper hand over her desire for worldly goods.

In the lead male role, Charles Moore wisely sings within his limitations — with the result that his Rodolfo is a warm, sincere poet in love that gains the sympathy of the listener.

Robert Beard and David Faber, both veterans of music on campus rolls in recent years, add immeasurably to the pleasures of this production.

From any viewpoint, the support given by the East Carolina University Symphony Orchestra could hardly be bettered. Puccini's score for this opera is rich in subtle shadings and tones and Conductor Robert Haus: has his ear attuned to catch every change in mood and poetry. Haus is to be commended for his sensitive interpretation that brings out the full flavor of the score under what must be very trying circumstances in keeping the volume constantly muted.

Director Michael Hardy has succeeded in coordinating the singers, musicians and story line to give us a La Boheme that sparkles with wit, tenderness and old-fashioned romance. He is ably assisted in the Parisian scenery designed by Robert Williams and Carol Beule's carefully researched, colorful period costumes.

Limitations aside, La Boheme will surely be remembered as one of the bright spots of the current Playhouse season. It's good to have on stage again a joint production of the School of Music and the Drama Department after a five year absence of such a joint effort. La Boheme will be presented again on Thursday and on Saturday night at 8:15 p.m.

Married Chief Just For Book

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The reason his mother married a cannibal chieftain in Indonesia was to gain material for a book on primitive customs, says the son of explorer Wyn Sargent.

"My mom knows what she's doing," Jmy Sargent, 17, said Tuesday. "Mom is writing a book. It's all about customs and things. And the best way to get the material..."

Health Care...

(Continued from page 1) read a statement of the health policy of the Soviet Union. Some of its major points are that the health of the individual is the responsibility of the government and that emphasis should be placed on the prevention of disease and on education of the population on health care. "There is little in the statement we couldn't agree on, other than individual health's being the responsibility of the government," he said.

"Health care has become a political matter," he said, "with priorities being set by the president and his veto power, by what he happens to say in his political speeches, and by his withholding of funds. It's also affected by Congress and its lobbyists, and by the Supreme Court, an example of the latter being its decision on abortion last week.

He said medical education needs to become better oriented to social needs and that paraprofessional fields should be more greatly developed. He also said he does not feel that physician supply and good health care should be equated, since paraprofessionals can be used. Distribution may need to be different, both in geographic and specialization areas, however, he said.

Farmville family physician, Dr. Dan Heizer, took issue with Dr. Corneley on whether a doctor should delegate duties to paraprofessionals in his office. Dr. Heizer said he feels his rapport with a patient while he's taking his blood pressure is sometimes as important as the medication he might prescribe for that high blood pressure. Dr. Corneley said this rapport could just as well be developed with a nurse or aide capable of handling the same procedures.

Dr. Billy Jones, a Greenville dermatologist who said he was an Army doctor for nine years, agreed with Dr. Heizer, saying he knew very few military men and their dependents who felt they receive good health care, even though everything was free and the team approach was used.

Environmental health should receive greater emphasis, Dr. Corneley said. "There's no need to keep treating lead poisoning in ghetto children till we do something about the places they live. There's no need to keep treating hypertension in poor people till we can educate them and enable them to feed themselves the protein they need to reduce, rather than the carbohydrates they now consume."

Dr. Corneley said he believes there will be some form of national health insurance by 1976. If so, he said, the billions already being spent each year on health care — mostly Medicare and Medicaid — could be better used. He said any program would have to be planned for each community and yet be uniform for all segments of society. "We're now spending $83 billion a year and we just cannot continue to pour money into a system as inefficient as this," he said.

Cigarette Tax Repeal Offered In Both Houses

RALEIGH (AP)—Legislation to repeal North Carolina's two-cent cigarette tax, the lowest in the nation, has now been introduced in both houses of the General Assembly.

Sen. Vernon White, a Democrat from Pitt County in the heart of the eastern tobacco belt, introduced the repeal bill in the Senate Tuesday, matching a similar measure in the House.

White said he had pledged to hold the line on taxes and meet the needs of the state first. But, he said, legislation has been introduced to repeal the soft drink tax. "If one goes, so should the other," he said.

Leaders of both parties have expressed opposition to repeal of either tax in the current legislative session.

His 42-year-old mother, twice-divorced, has become one of the wives to Chief Obaharok in the Indonesian province of West Irian.

Jmy — pronounced Jimmy — said he doesn't expect the marriage to last — "Mom needed the material for the book. When she's done with the book, that will be it."

Police Victim Of Flim-Flam

BALTIMORE (AP) — Police who arrested a 24-year-old man on larceny by trick charges last week have re-arrested the man and added another charge, "the flim-flam of us".
Detectives said after Ricardo G. Palen was re-arrested Tuesday that after his first arrest last Wednesday he had offered to stage a heroin purchase for them.
The officers agreed and handed Palen $150 for the drug purchase, police reported.
Palen led policemen to a private social club and entered, leaving the officers outside, Capt. Theodore Weintraub said.
Palen didn't return, Weintraub said.

Funds

to get underway by Feb. 15. Proposed Northside and Westside projects would be caught in the freeze, however, Laney continued. He added that no new programs have been funded since last April.

Laney said that he agrees with the president's proposal to implement special revenue-sharing programs as a means of federal aid whereby funds would be channeled to communities and earmarked to take care of renewal, housing, open-space programs and others and with less federal control and government red tape.

He said that under such a community development program, responsibility would be placed more on local spending priorities and "here in Greenville, we have enough planning done already to know where our priorities are, we would be in good shape."

The director, pointing out that a year has already been lost in Congress' failure to pass the measure last time around, said that he hopes Congress will not waste time and go ahead and approve the community development program.

City manager Bill Carstarphen noted also that the federal limits on spending should not have any immediate effect on programs in the city. "The indications are that he is going to cut down on urban renewal and housing programs but those that are already contracted for would not be affected."

"I feel fairly sure that the president is trying to curtail categorical spending and encourage community funding," Carstarphen said. "I can't help but agree with him. Our job now is to try to handle our responsibility and do a better job with it."

He added that the urban renewal programs are the main interest in relation to the budget cutbacks but as it stands now, no other effects on Greenville programs are evident.

Utilities director Charles Horne expressed concern about the proposed freeze on federal water and sewer grants and pointed out that the city has applied for roughly $1 million to replace mains and add new outfalls to several areas, including the new hospital vicinity.

He said that he has received tentative approval from the state's Department of Water and Air Resources for the money but that final approval must come from the Federal Environmental Protection Agency. Horne said that the federal funds are "absolutely necessary" for the replacements and additions to the city's sewer and water network.

"We have had no specific information on any program being cut off but if I understand it right, the cut backs would seriously hinder our growth and progress, particularly in the area of sewer replacement and expansion," he said.

Clifton Moore, business manager at East Carolina University, said that the only area affected by the budget cut backs at ECU would be the federal grant sought for the proposed planetarium. He noted that the application has already been submitted and although there were no funds available for any loan or grants for construction of academic buildings "we are hoping that if Congress does appropriate some money we will already have our name in the pot."

Tom Willis, director of the Regional Development Institute at ECU, said that money for the new RDI building is already assured. He said that the money comes from the state, the Economic Development Administration, and the Coastal Plains Regional Commission.

According to Stacy Evans, manager of the Agricultural Stabilization & Conservation Service office here, the effects of federal limits have already been felt, particularly in the termination of the Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP) which, he noted, has been paying some $100,000 to Pitt farmers each year to implement pollution measures, cover crops and tile drainage systems.

Under the proposal to end REAP, there would be approximately 15 per cent loss in personnel, Evans said, as well as a probably closing of offices in smaller counties or combining of smaller offices into one in some areas.

"We have not been able to buy any new equipment, our employment is frozen, we can't hire or do anything," he asserted. Evans said that the main concern now is trying to retain the personnel now employed.

Roy Beck, district conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service, said that it is

NASA Announces U.S. Space Crew For Soviet Linkup

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The American crew of the first joint Soviet-American space flight will be commanded by veteran Thomas P. Stafford and will include Donald K. Slayton, chief of the astronaut corps.

It will be fourth space flight for Stafford, an Air Force brigadier general, and the first for Slayton, the 48-year-old chief of the space agency's flight crew operations. The third American crewman will be Vance D. Brand, 41, a civilian astronaut who has never flown in space. The space agency also announced Tuesday that the American crew and their Soviet counterparts, as yet unnamed, will have their first joint crew training session this summer in the United States. Stafford and his crew will go to the Soviet Union in the fall for more training.

The joint U.S.-Soviet space flight is scheduled as a 10-day mission with launch set for July 15, 1975. The mission will begin with the launch of a Soyuz spacecraft, with two men aboard, from the Soviet Union.

The American Apollo spacecraft, with three men aboard, will be launched later from the United States. The Apollo spacecraft will rendezvous in earth orbit and dock with the Soyuz, using a new compatible docking system now under development.

Astronauts and cosmonauts will then exchange visits aboard the two spacecraft. The selection of Stafford has been an open secret for some weeks. The 42-year-old pilot, who flew on Gemini 7 and 9 and commanded Apollo 10, has devoted much time during the last year on the study of Russian and in coordinating efforts to prepare for the joint spaceflight.

Ed Yancey, Pitt County extension chairman, said that he did not think the limitations on federal spending would have any direct effect on programs here under his office. He explained that funds reach his office through North Carolina State University "so I don't really recognize our funds as being federal."

He said that the main cut back could be in new programs and innovations but that it is too early to tell just what areas any possible alterations would involve.

Arrested For Drug Possession

John Robert Miller, 18 of Bridgetown, N.J. was arrested by police here yesterday on charges of possessing marijuana and possessing LSD.

According to Chief Glenn Cannon, warrants were issued for Miller's arrest following a 1:20 a.m. raid on a Jones Dormitory room at East Carolina University which resulted in the arrest of Miller's roommate immediately following the search. Miller was not at his room when the search was conducted, Cannon explained.

The chief said Miller surrendered himself to police at 3:20 p.m. and was placed under $7,500 bond pending hearing of the case in District Court.

Rocky Mount Blasts Rampants By 80-40

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
ROCKY MOUNT—The Rocky Mount Gryphons must have heard from Jacksonville. After the high-flying Cardinals were shot down last Friday by Rose

High School's previously winless Rampants, the Gryphons took the hint. They were ready. And when they were through, there was no repeat of the Friday night upset for the Rampants last night. Instead, they went back to Greenville, dragging an 80-40 loss behind them. Rocky Mount came out in a zone press defense, and it didn't seem to phase the Rampants at all. Except for a few times during the game, they were able to get the ball into the forecourt without a great deal of trouble. But there, it didn't seem to matter what defense the Gryphons used, it would have been effective. The Rampants, without the same spark of Friday night, just couldn't seem to get anything going for them. They missed on at least a dozen layups during the game. And even though they got a number of offensive rebounds, they seldom were able to put the ball through the hoop, although on several occasions, they took as many as six shots before finally getting a score.

And at the opposite end of the court, the Rampant defense was riddled like screen wire. The Gryphons, if they couldn't get a drive down the lane, simply bombed away from 20 to 30 feet away, and all they hit was the bottom of the net.

The Rocky Mount reserves got plenty of action, too, moving in during every period to play the last four or five minutes, as the regulars actually played less than half of the game. Cleveland Howard got the ball rolling for the Gryphons, hitting after 25 seconds. Randy Warrick followed that up with a jumper from the lane and James Hart hit on a follow-shot with just over a minute gone, giving them a 6-0 lead. Al Hunter finally hit the first Rose basket after 1:39. After an exchange of baskets, Rose cut the lead to two as Phil Ragazzo hit after grabbing off a rebound, 8-6, but that was as close as the Rampants came. Phil Ford hit two free throws, then came back with a jumper with 3:59 left to run it back to six, 12-6. After another exchange of baskets, Howard hit to push it out to eight.

The reserves came in after another Rose basket, and Joe Jones promptly hit three straight jumpers from far out to run the lead out to 12, 22-10 with 10 seconds left. A pair of free throws by Dennis Taylor after the quarter ended cut it to 22-12.

But the Gryphons were in firm command. Back came the regulars to hit three straight, with Howard, Ford and Warrick doing the honors for a 16-point spread before Rose could score again. They, after then, Warrick hit on a fast break and Howard scored on a turnaround jumper to make it 32-14. Again the bench came in, and Jones started it again, hitting to run it to 38-18 with 1:45 left. Gerald Costen scored on a drive and Carlton Alston followed with a steal with 1:05 left to put the Gryphons into a 24-point edge, but two free throws by Jackie Savage cut it to 42-20 at halftime.

The third period turning into the Phil Ford Show. He pushed through five straight baskets during the first half of the period, helping the Gryphons to extend their lead to 52-22. But in the time after he left the game, Rocky Mount and Rose each scored four points, and it was 56-26 as the final period opened.

Rocky Mount quickly pushed through six more points to up the lead to 62-26 before Rose scored. Then, two fast break baskets with Ford feeding Warrick ran it to 40, at 68-28 with 5:19 left. Warrick was fouled on the last shot, but when he missed his bonus shot, Howard was there to grab it and toss it in for the widest Gryphon lead, 70-28, a 42-point bulge.

Rose outthit them, 12-10, the rest of the way to finally end the massacre. Ford finished the game with 20 points, while Jones and Howard each had 18 and Warrick had 12.

The Rampants were led by Hunter, who hit 10. The Rampant Cubs also suffered a loss, although they led most of the game. They bowed, 57-54.

Rose moved out into a slim 14-13 lead in the first period, and matched the Baby Gryphons, 19-19 in the second frame. That left Rose up, 33-32, at halftime.

In the third quarter, Rose outthit Rocky Mount 10-1 during the first part of the period to open a 43-33 lead. But the host team fought back and closed the gap, finally trailing 45-43, as the period ended. Then, in the final quarter, Rocky Mount pushed ahead to oust Rose, 14-9, and just squeeze out the win.

Earl Lawrence led Rocky Mount with 17, while Doug Henley had 12. For Rose, William Taylor had 14, and Ronnie Barrett and Lindberg Morris each had 12.

Greene Central Pulls Upset Of Eastern Wayne

NEW HOPE—Greene Central rolled to a 71-57 upset of Eastern Wayne last night, and set up an interesting prospect for the final week and a half of the season.

In the girls' contest, Greene Central fell to Eastern, 60-19.

The Rams, by winning, boosted their record to 10-4 in the league, just a game behind Eastern Wayne, 11-3. Ayden-Grifton is 11-4, and Conley is too. Ayden-Grifton hosts Eastern Wayne on Friday, and should the Chargers win it, the possibility of a four-way tie for first place is exceedingly good, looking down the rest of the schedule.

In the girls' contest, Eastern Wayne eased into a 15-11 lead in the first period of the game. The Ewes, however, ran completely out of gas in the frame, and didn't score again until the final frame.

Eastern dumped in 26 points in the second quarter and led, 41-11 at halftime. They added 12 more to that for a 53-11 edge going into the final period. Greene Central outthit them, 8-7 in that one.

Pat Smith led the victory for Eastern, pouring in 29 points.

In the boys' game, the Rams slipped out in front of the Warriors, 14-13 after a period of play. But Eastern eased back into the lead after the second frame, outscoring Greene, 17-14, for a 30-28 margin at halftime.

The Rams stuck with them in the third quarter, ending up with a 14-12 margin and a 42-42 deadlock.

Then, in the final quarter, Ervin Spivey broke loose, hitting 12 of his 17 points in the period to guide the Rams to a 29-15 margin and the upset victory.

Besides Spivey's 17, Stevie Williamson added a like amount and Moses Barron had 16. Eastern, Henry Reed had 18 and Lynn Best got 17.

The Rams play host to Southern Nash on Thursday.

Williamston Dumps Plymouth

WILLIAMSTON—Williamston's Tigers clawed their way to a pair of victories at the expense of Plymouth last night in the Albemarle Conference. The boys won their game, 54-42, while the girls took a 41-38 decision.

In the opener, the Williamston girls pushed away to gain an 8-3 lead in the first period. Plymouth refused to let them turn it into a rout, however, coming back to outthit the Tigerettes, 9-8. That left Williamston ahead at halftime, 16-12.

In the third quarter, however, Williamston did threaten a rout, hitting 16 points, while Plymouth got only seven. That ran the Tigerette lead out to 32-19. But in the last frame, Plymouth put on a rally that nearly pulled things out. They dumped in 19 to just nine for the Tigerettes, but fell three short of catching up.

Sherry Roberson led Williamston with 20 points. Yvonne Cox had 18 and Theresa Gurganus had 12 for Plymouth.

In the boys' contest, Williamston ran away with the lead early, building up a 19-6 lead in the first period of the game. They were outthit, however, 9-8, in the second frame of the game, and settled for a 27-15 lead at the half.

In the third period, Plymouth continued to chop away at the Tiger lead, outscoring Williamston, 13-10. That trimmed the lead back to 37-28. But in the last frame, the Tigers pulled away again, 17-14, to claim the win.

Dwight Ange led Williamston with 15 points, while Henry Wiggins added 13 and Joe Savage needed 10. E. Bell was high for Plymouth with 15 points.

Williamston goes to Northwest on Friday.

Conley Downs North Lenoir

WHEAT SWAMP—D. H. Conley and North Lenoir split a pair of games last night as the Vikings pulled into a tie for second place in the boys' standings. The Vikes won, 59-48, while the North Lenoir girls' took their game, 25-21, when the game was forfeited to them with four minutes left.

In the boys' contest, Conley had to struggle most of the way to gain the victory. Both teams tipped in 10 points in the first period, but the Vikings opened some daylight in the second frame with a 16-10 advantage. That left Conley in the lead, 26-20 at halftime.

In the third period, it remained close as the two teams swapped baskets, 12-12. That raised the score to 28-22. In the final period, it was still tight with two minutes to go as North Lenoir cut the lead to two, but Conley outthit them from there to pull out to the 11-point victory spread.

Larry Daniels led Conley with 22 points, while Kervin Hawkins had 11 and Mike Sutton had 10. For North Lenoir, Roy Jones hit 24, and Mike Miller had 12.

In the girls' game, Conley and North Lenoir were also deadlocked after a quarter, 6-6. But North Lenoir outthit them, 9-8, in the second period and held a slim 15-14 edge at the break.

In the third period, Conley fell further behind as the Lady Hawks outthit them, 9-3, to move ahead, 24-17. Conley had rallied to within three, however, when in the middle of the period, a technical foul was called on the Conley bench. After that an argument erupted, and the official forfeited the game to North Lenoir.

Southern Wayne Downs Chargers

DUDLEY—Southern Wayne High School rolled to a 55-8 victory over Ayden-Grifton wrestling team here last night.

Southern Wayne captured all but two of the matches, winning 10. One weight class, the 140-pound level, did not have a match. Of the Southern victories, four came on pins and three were forfeits.

Ayden-Grifton got only one victory, a forfeit. The other match ended in a draw.

Matlock Quits ECU Post; Ragazzo May

One, and possibly two members of the East Carolina University football coaching staff, will be leaving shortly to take new positions. The Daily Reflector has learned.

John Matlock, a two-year veteran of the Pirate staff, has resigned to join the coaching staff of the University of Louisville. He is expected to finish out this quarter of the school year before reporting.

Vito Ragazzo, also in his second year on the Pirate crew, is expected to accept a position with the University of North Carolina. A decision on whether he will move or not is expected within the next 24 hours. North Carolina begins spring football practice next week, so if Ragazzo does join the Tar Heels, it would be immediately. Matlock, a Georgia Tech graduate, won three letters as a center under Coach Bobby Dodd. Following his graduation, he coached in high schools in Georgia before moving to Staunton Military Academy in Virginia as head coach there. He spent two seasons as line coach at Randolph-Macon before coming to East Carolina.

Here, Matlock served as defensive line coach, helping to build the "Wild Dog" defense that led the nation much of last season.

The 32-year-old native of Greensboro is married to the former Elizabeth Chapman of Atlanta, and they have one daughter.

Ragazzo, rated one of the top offensive coaches in the country, will be going home if he returns to Carolina. A native of Aflex, Ky., Ragazzo was a star for William & Mary during his collegiate days. He also played in the Canadian Football League.

Once on the North Carolina staff, he served for five years as head football coach at Virginia Military Institute before joining the Pirates as offensive coordinator. This year's Pirate team under him piled up more yards rushing and more points than any other team in ECU history.

Ragazzo, 45, is married to the former Betty Roberts of Roanoke Va., and they have two children, Jo Ann, a college student, and Phil, an All-Star center for Rose High School, who will be a senior next year.

Panthers Fall In Overtime

PIKEVILLE — Charles B. Aycock High School nipped North Pitt, 60-57, in an overtime last night. The Big Orange Machine kept grinding out victories, 60-28, to make it 70 in a row.

The win boosted the girls' record to 14-0 on the season in the conference, and moved them within three games of winning the title. Details of the game, however, were not made available to The Daily Reflector.

In the boys' game, Aycock shot away to gain a 14-18 lead in the first period. North Pitt tried to close the gap in the second frame, but were just headed, 13-12, and settled for a 27-20 score at halftime.

In the third quarter, however, the Panthers came up with a 14-10 advantage and trimmed the lead to 37-34. Then, in the final quarter, they cut the lead away, 17-14, and pulled out a tie at the end of regulation play, 51-51.

But Aycock came back with a 9-6 advantage in the extra period winning the game.

Philip Brown led the North Pitt try, hitting 28 points, while David Brown had 14. Ace Stafford led Aycock with 29, while Applewhite had 10.

Swansboro Nips Robersonville

SWANSBORO — Swansboro rallied to tie Robersonville in the last minute of play and force an overtime last night, and that carried the host team to a 68-63 victory over the Golden Eagles.

Earlier, the Robersonville junior varsity took a 38-36 win in the preliminary. There was no girls game.

In the varsity encounter, Robersonville shot away to an 18-10 lead in the first period of the game. Swansboro increased its total to 18 in the second period, but the Eagles maintained the lead with a 19-point effort. That left the Eagles ahead at intermission, 37-28.

In the third quarter, however, Swansboro began its comeback. They held the Eagles to 11 and dumped in 18 of their own. That cut the lead to 48-46.

Swansboro kept up the pressure in the final period. Robersonville held a one point lead with about a minute left, and was fouled. The shooter made only one of the two shots, however, giving the Eagles a two-shot advantage. Swansboro's Odom then hit with 19 seconds left to tie it at 63-63. The Eagles got off another shot in the time remaining, but missed.

In the overtime, it was all Swansboro, as they scored five points, while holding the Eagles scoreless.

White and Foye led Swansboro with 16 points each, while Odom had 13 and Speight had 10. For Robersonville, Jeffrey Spruill had 21, Ernest Crandall had 17 and Clarence Wilson had 15.

Pirates To See If They're Ready

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Coach Tom Quinn says defending champion East Carolina is beginning to gain the form to contend for the Southern Conference basketball title, and he'll find out tonight just how right he is.

The Pirates, now lodged in a three-way tie for third place with a 4-4 record, play host to Davidson's second-place Wildcats, 4-1 in league play, in one of two conference games on the schedule.

Davidson and East Carolina both come into the game with 10-7 records against all opposition. When the two played earlier at Davidson, the Wildcats posted a 100-80 victory.

Tonight's other scrap has Virginia Military's Keydets, 2-4 in the league and 5-11 over-all, at William and Mary to meet the last-place Indians, 1-5 and 4-13.

It will be the first meeting of the two teams.

All conference teams were idle Tuesday night.

Meanwhile, Richmond's Aron Stewart, who set school single-game records with 20 field goals and 42 points Monday night against Appalachian State, has moved out to an almost insurmountable lead in the conference scoring race.

The 6-foot-5 junior college transfer now has 306 points in the 10 games in which he's played for a 30.6-point average.

Stan Davis of Appalachian is still second, but his grip is less firm since he scored just two points against Richmond while playing only the first 12 minutes. Davis has scored 424 points in 18 games for a 23.6-point average.

Furman's 7-foot-1 sophomore, Fessor "Moose" Leonard, is reigning ground on Davis with 370 points in 17 games for a 21.2 average—the only other over-20-point mark in the conference.

Steve Fishel of The Citadel is fourth with 275 points in 16 games for a 17.2 average, while freshman Mike Arizin of William and Mary is fifth with 291 points in 17 starts for a 17.1 mark.

All-Southern John Falconi of Davidson has 283 points in 17 games for a 16.6 average, but there's another dropoff after that to Chuck Cordell of The Citadel at 14.4 on 245 points in 17 games.

Greg Dunn of Davidson and Earl Quash of East Carolina are tied for eighth with 13.8-point averages, and sophomore Clyde Mayes and senior Roy Simpson—both of Furman—are tied for 10th with 13.7 averages.

Cougar Rise Hurting Off-Campus Contests

By KEN ALYTA

Associated Press Sports Writer

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The rise of the Carolina Cougars from also-ran to American Basketball Association Eastern Division leaders is dandy for the Cougars, but apparently is hurting off-campus attendance of the state's Big Four colleges.

Two of them are nationally ranked and have no home-court ticket sales problems. North Carolina State, unbeaten and No. 2 nationally, announced last fall that all 12,400 seats were sold for the season at its William Neal Reynolds Coliseum.

North Carolina, which slipped from third to eighth place in the Associated Press poll this week after losing two games, regularly fills its Carmichael Auditorium to its 8,800 capacity.

But when they and Duke and Wake Forest, their chief state rivals, have moved to the big city coliseums at Charlotte and Greensboro, there has been a sharp attendance dip this season.

The Cougars, sparked by NBA acquisition Billy Cunningham and other new blood directed by dynamic young Coach Larry Brown, are thriving—at Charlotte and Greensboro their two home bases in the Tar Heel State.

The ABA team has led its division since the opening game of the season. It leads runnerup Kentucky by three games. Several times the margin was only a half game and on seven occasions the Cougars were faced with the necessity of winning or dropping to second.

Kentucky once won 16 of 17 games, yet picked up only a half game on the Carolina team, which reeled off 11 straight victories and has won 20 of their last 24.

All this has resulted in a steady parade of customers. The average for the first 26 home games was 7,007. A year ago for the same number it was 5,010.

Greensboro averaged 5,920 for 16 games, including a club record 14,126 on Dec. 30. Charlotte has averaged 5,920 for its first eight games. Two Raleigh games averaged 6,650.

Meanwhile, the collegians, packing them in at home, have noted sharp declines when they play at the coliseums. Playing off campus has proved beneficial to alumni relations and recruiting programs in the past.

Greensboro's Coliseum, enlarged to more than 15,000 capacity, drew a two-night total of 28,000 for the annual Big Four tournament Dec. 15-16.

But after that it's been mostly downhill. Three one-game college programs drew only 25,098. The Wake Forest-North Carolina game accounted for over half—12,827.

Nebraska and North Carolina drew only 6,418 and Furman against N.C. State last Saturday attracted only 5,853.

The 11,666-seat Charlotte Coliseum has had five single games involving the Big Four schools and averaged about 8,200. The Dec. 19 N.C. State-Davidson game was a sellout and the Jan. 4 Furman-North Carolina game was watched by 9,671. But Virginia Tech against North Carolina drew only 6,688 and two Davidson games, against Duke and Wake Forest, drew about 6,500 each.

Jim Oshust, who manages the Greensboro Coliseum, has some answers for his building. He figures $5 was too high a price for the Furman-N.C. State game. The host school, N.C. State, in this case, sets the price.

The night before that game drew only 5,853. The ABA Cougars played Indiana at Greensboro and drew 7,701. Ticket prices ranged from $5 to $2, with two prices in between. And there was a High Point-Guilford college preliminary game.

Oshust says that the Cougar success has created competition for the sports fans' dollars and availability of many college games on home television is another factor.

LITTLEFIELD — Ayden-Grifton's Chargers, starting to look like they did a few weeks ago before tumbling from the unbeaten ranks, bashed Farmville Central 61-44 last night as the Jaguars continued their nose-dive that has seen them lose five of their last six games.

The Chargers took control of the affair in the first quarter as they jumped out to an 11-point lead. Farmville Central struggled to keep pace and only in the last two minutes of the game did they fall apart.

The Chargerettes added another win to their credit as they demolished the Lady Jags, 50-22. The Farmville Central J.V.'s won, however, as they edged A-G by 71-65.

The lead changed hands twice before the Chargers finally got it. McCoy Williams put the Jaguars on the boards first hitting from 20 feet for a quick, 2-0 lead. A-G tied it at 2-2, before a minute has passed as Milton Brown scored on a drive. Jessie Brown put the Chargers ahead for the first time as he scored on an in-bounds play, 4-2. The Jags countered with a bucket by Melvin Bunch as he tapped in a rebound making it 4-4 with an even 5:00 to go in the period.

That proved to be as close as Farmville Central got. After running up and down the court with out a score, A-G finally went in front to stay, 6-4, on a swish from the stripe by Travis Wood.

Milton Brown hit for a four-point margin and Sam Stewart added a pair of free throws to make it 10-4. A-G added three more on a free shot by Jessie Brown and a field goal by Melvin Stewart before the Jaguars scored again, a tap-in by Phil Lewis. At the end of the period, A-G led, 17-6, after two additional buckets.

Bunch cut the lead below ten as he scored to open the second quarter. It was matched by two charity shots by Sam Stewart. The Chargers stuck it to Farmville Central for the next three minutes to run out to a 26-12 spread. Then the Jags rallied and cut the lead to seven at the half.

Ed Wells started it off with a jumper from outside that was good. Bunch hit next to narrow the lead to 26-16 and Williams followed with a score on a steal, 26-18, with 2:14 left in the half.

Milton Brown scored for A-G only the Jags came back with a three-point play as Lewis made a free shot and Willie Jones a bucket from the lane as the half ended.

Farmville Central pulled within five in the third quarter as they outscored the Chargers, 12-10. Bunch had six points in the period as the Jaguars cut the score to 38-33.

But by this time the Jaguars had begun to get tired and it began to show. A-G reeled off nine points to Farmville Central's two baskets by Williams to slip out to a 47-37 lead. Lewis connected on a three point play cutting the score to 47-40 and after Danny Garris scored for A-G, Williams added two free throws. After those points, Farmville Central fell apart. The Chargers blasted the nets with 12 points in the last 2 minutes and 20 seconds to build up a 61-44 lead. The last Farmville Central bucket was made by Bunch.

For the Jaguars, Bunch and Williams each had 14. Melvin Stewart led the game with 16, Milton Brown had 12, Sam Stewart 13, and Woods 10.

The girls' game was even less of a contest. A-G took the lead on the opening basket by Nancy Sugg and rolled away from there. The Chargerettes were on their way as they took a 12-4 advantage in the frame. Both teams matched points in the second period, 8 to 8, to keep the margin the same, eight points.

A-G struck for 30 points in the

Jamesville In Win Over Bears

JAMESVILLE — Jamesville's Bullets split a pair of games with the Bears of Bear Grass last night. The Bullets won the boys' game, 84-71, while the Lady Bears took their contest, 37-30.

The Jamesville boys' victory, coupled with the Bear Grass loss eliminated the Bears from any chance at the Martin County title. Jamesville is now 4-1 in league play, while the Bears are 0-6.

In the girls' contest, Jamesville eased out into a 6-5 lead after the first period of play, but they couldn't contain the Bears in the second quarter. Bear Grass rushed through 12 points, while the Lady Bullets got only half that many, and fell behind at intermission, 17-12.

In the third period of play, the Bears continued to pull away, outscoring their hosts, 8-3. That ran the lead out to 25-15. The Bullets tried for a rally in the final period, ouitting Bear Grass, 15-12, but it wasn't enough.

Vickie Beach led Bear Grass with 10 points, while Donna Williams hit 11 for Jamesville.

In the boys' contest, it was a different story. Jamesville shot away from the Bears early and never was in any real trouble. By the end of the first period, Jamesville had blazed its way to a 26-16 lead. They outth the Bears again in the second quarter, 20-12, and built up a 46-28 halftime advantage.

In the third quarter, the Bears tried to get back into the game; hitting 19-14 for the Bullets, and that cut the lead back to 60-47. But Jamesville matched points with Bear Grass in the final period, 24-24, as the game drew to a close.

Horace Hall led Jamesville with 23 points, while Steve James had 13, Tommy Mizelle had 11, and Larry Modlin and Gurkin Martin each had 10. For the Bears, Hilton Armstrong dumped in 28, with Nathaniel Armstrong adding 18 and Gary Shaw hitting 10.

The Bears travel to Oak City tonight, while Jamesville visits Robersonville.

State, Maryland Clash In Key Contest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Second-ranked North Carolina State and third-ranked Maryland play a basketball rematch tonight, this time in the State Wolfpack's Reynolds Coliseum in Raleigh. Wolfpack Coach Norm Sloan predicts it will be in the same fast-tempo style as their match at Maryland two weeks ago which his team won 87-85 on a follow shot by David Thompson with three seconds left.

"They won't make many changes and neither will we," he says. "You don't make many big changes this time of year. I do anticipate them using a little more zone defense against us this time." The game will begin at 9 p.m. and will be televised regionally.

In the first game, State wasn't bothered by the Maryland Terps' pressure. The Wolfpack, undefeated in its 14 games this year, quickly worked the ball upcourt to the open man.

The Wolfpack is quicker and has more pure shooters. Both teams have excellent depth and both crash the boards, where Maryland has a height advantage.

The loss to N.C. State has been Maryland's only loss in its 15 games this season.

"That was our best game of the season," Sloan says. "And since then we've become a better team. Our passing has gotten sharper and our receiving better. We're helping out more on defense. We are smoothing out."

"I'm not as concerned about what Maryland does as what we do. Our guys are ready for this game. Each player feels a sense of urgency."

Sloan plans to use a man-to-man defense again, with basically the same matchups. They are 6-4 Thompson vs. 6-9 Len Elmore; 7-4 Tommy Burleson vs 6-11 Tom McMillen; 6-6 Rick Holdt vs. 6-8 Jim O'Brien; 5-7 Monte Towe vs. 6-4 John Lucas; and 6-1 Joe Cafferky vs. 6-4 Bob Bodell.

In the first game, Thompson scored 37 points and McMillen 29. Burleson had 20 points and 15 rebounds.

Lineman Stars In NFL Draft

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The Houston Oilers couldn't "unload" their No. 1 draft pick, so their used it to start a trend. And when they did, the Baltimore Colts sighed with relief.

The Oilers, who had tried vainly for weeks to swap their prime choice in Tuesday's National Football League draft in exchange for a few proven veterans, began this big "Year of the Lineman" by grabbing one of the biggest, Tampa's defensive end John Matuszak.

Across the cavernous ballroom of the Americana Hotel, the representatives of the Colts spoke excitedly into their phone. They had been afraid their choice might also be Houston's—but it hadn't been.

On the other end of the line, General Manager Joe Thomas, back in Baltimore, gave the order and the men at the table complied, filling out the index card that was delivered to Pete Rozelle at the microphone. "The Baltimore Colts take Bert Jones, quarterback, Louisiana State," the NFL commissioner intoned.

And thus began the annual absorption of college football's 442 best prospects into the violent world of the pros.

Jones was the only quarterback picked until selection No. 33, when the Chicago Bears used their second-round slot to take Florida State's Gary Huff. Long before then, the trend for this first day had been set.

Third to pick in the first of Tuesday's seven rounds was Philadelphia, and the Eagles resumed the behemoth parade by taking offensive tackle Jerry Sisemore of Texas.

Friday night, the Chargers go up against the Warriors of Eastern Wayne while the Jaguars play host to D.H. Conley in Farmville.

advantage at Reynolds Coliseum, where the noise from fans sounds like 12,000 lions. Sloan said, "I don't necessarily think the noise will hurt Maryland, but I believe it will help get us going."

How about the 14-0 record, the only perfect major-college record besides top-ranked UCLA's 16-0?

"It's a pleasurable pressure," Sloan said. "You are constantly saying you want this team or that team to be the one to beat you. You know its foolish to think you can go through a season undefeated, but..."

There will be two other games for Atlantic Coast Conference teams tonight. North Carolina, 15-3, which has lost its last two games, to Virginia and Maryland, is home to Wake Forest, 9-7. And Virginia, 7-5, is home to West Virginia.

Don Washington, a sophomore who averages 21.3 points for North Carolina before breaking a bone in his left foot Dec. 9 in the fifth game of the season, may return to near full-time duty tonight.

North Carolina defeated Wake Forest 99-80 in the Greensboro Coliseum, with freshman Mitch Kupchak scoring 24 points. He is one of the many big Tar Heels the Wake Forest Deacons cannot match man-for-man.

George Karl leads North Carolina in scoring with a 17-point average. He needs only 13 assists to pass Charlie Scott, who holds the school career record with 310. Three other North Carolina players are averaging in double figures. They are Donald Washington, 16.8, Bobby Jones 15.5, and Ed Stahl, 13.8.

Tony Byers, who is averaging 24.9, and Eddie Payne, 14.8, lead Wake Forest from their backcourt spots.

Warns Food Prices To Go Up If Farm Taxes Stay

By WOODY DOSTER
Associated Press Writer

If taxes on North Carolina's farmlands don't go down, food prices in the state are going to go up, according to Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham.

Graham explained that the state's almost 14.5 million acres of agricultural land is presently valued for tax purposes according to what it could bring on the open market. But, he said, "A farm near a shopping center won't grow corn any better than one in a rural area."

Spokesmen for farm groups in North Carolina said they want tax laws changed so that farmland is classified separately and valued according to how much it can produce under cultivation.

The Association of County Commissioners has opposed such changes in the past and may do so again when the North Carolina Farm Bureau proposes a bill in the current General Assembly that would classify farmland separately for tax purposes. A spokesman for the commissioners said, "Property tax is the main support for local government. We feel that erosion of the property tax base would dump additional tax burdens onto other taxpayers."

North Carolina's farmers paid about $27 million in real estate taxes in 1971, according to the state Department of Agriculture. It is this figure, says Graham, that makes farming unprofitable.

"Take a man with a 400-acre farm, valued at $500 per acre because it's near a shopping center. He could sell that land for $200,000 and put the money in a savings account earning 5 per cent interest annually. That comes to $10,000 a year from the interest. There's no way that man could clear $10,000 farming the land because of the property taxes. If we want to keep people in agriculture we're going to have to set up a tax system on the basis of productivity rather than on how much the land is worth as a shopping center," he said.

The Agriculture Department said there were 140,000 farms in the state in 1972, a drop of about 5,000 from 1971. Graham added that he believes there is more farmland for sale now than ever before, and most of it is priced too high for other farmers to buy it. If the present trend continues, he said, food prices in the state will go up because agricultural products now supplied locally will have to be shipped into North Carolina, adding transportation costs.

Farm groups also see two other problems in the present system. State Grange Master Mrs. Harry Caldwell said she is "alarmed" at the rate farmland is being sold. She said North Carolina has traditionally been a state of small farmers and "if farming should ever rest in the hands of a few, they could price food and fiber at will."

John Sledge, assistant to the president of the North Carolina Farm Bureau, said he is concerned that the present tax system is changing the quality of farm life. He said farmers with 35 to 40 acres "just can't make a go of it anymore" and are being forced to take second jobs.

The bill being prepared for the General Assembly by the Farm Bureau would classify land for property tax purposes according to its use. A bill having the same effect was introduced into the legislature last year. It passed the House but was extensively amended in the Senate and died in a conference committee.

The bill would establish a lower property tax rate for land in bona fide agricultural use. It would not change the tax rate on farmland held by speculators. And farmers who want to take their land out of agricultural use and sell it to a developer would have to pay a deferred tax.

Sledge explained that the deferred tax provision would actually establish two tax valuations for farmland—one for agricultural uses and one for its value as real estate. If a farmer wanted to sell his land to a nonfarmer, he would have to pay the difference between the two tax rates for as many years as his land had been classified as agricultural.

"North Carolina prides itself as a progressive Southern state," Sledge said. "But we need to protect our farmers if we wish to continue."

The Connecticut legislature passed a land use classification law in 1963 and deputy state agriculture commissioner Fenton Futtner believes the statute has been productive. "If it hadn't been for that law, we wouldn't have any farms left in Connecticut," he said.

counties have reported findings with sentiment about evenly divided. A series of association district meetings is scheduled around the state, ending Jan. 30 at Hickory. By then the association will know what stand it will take on the legislation.

The Farm Bureau promises to have its bill ready for the legislature "sometime soon." It will almost certainly be supported by farm, environmental and conservation groups and is given a good chance of passing. If the legislators again reject the tax change, warns Mrs. Caldwell, they may find all the state's farmland "covered with concrete."

"MOBILE HARVEST"
MOSCOW (UPI) — More than 150,000 trucks were used around the clock to harvest the grain crop in northern Kazakhstan in central Asia, the Tass News agency said.

Has Son After 11 Abortions

KIDDERMINSTER, England (AP) — To find their angling champion, 200 national ambulance servicemen fished a stretch of canal in Worcestershire in a competition. But after five hours, nobody had caught anything. Later, a local fisherman reported all the canal's fish had been moved to other waters three weeks earlier. Another contest has been arranged.

Fish Removed, Contest Halted

HUNDESTED, Denmark (UPI) — Birgit Gregersen, 40, always wanted a baby but had to undergo 11 forced abortions during her 14 years of marriage before a son, Kurt, came along. "I'm the happiest mother in Denmark," Mrs. Gregersen said.

Neel Honors Friend Who Made HST Visit Possible

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A local man who has been on the art scene here for 25 years as a teacher at East Carolina University recently paid homage to an old friend and teacher who made it possible for him to visit the late President Harry S. Truman and Mrs. Truman several years ago.

Francis Lee Neel this past week made a donation to the Greenville Art Center honoring 88 year old Mrs. Mary Paxton Keeley, native of Independence, Missouri and childhood and lifelong friend of Harry Truman and Bess Wallace Truman, two other natives of Independence.

"Mrs. Keeley is a most remarkable woman," Neel stated. "She became a friend and advisor to me when I was at Christian College in Columbia, Missouri studying for my master's degree after the close of World War II.

"To the best of my knowledge,

Neel said, "she is also the first woman ever to graduate with a degree in journalism anywhere in the world. She graduated from the Journalism School of the University of Missouri. For a while, she worked on a large Kansas City newspaper, but mostly she taught at Christian College.

"As a long time friend of the Trumans," Neel remarked, "she was godmother to their daughter, Margaret."

Neel recalled how Mrs. Keeley had opened the way for him to have an opportunity to visit the Trumans in Independence in the summer of 1964. "Mr. Truman already had in the Truman Library a small etching I had made in the Pacific during World War II," Neel said. "I mentioned to Mrs. Keeley that I had some maps, I had been keeping that I believed would be of interest for the Truman Library.

"To my surprise she suggested she make arrangements for me to present the maps personally," he remarked.

Neel said the maps were some he had been keeping for years as personal mementoes. "I was a member of the 11th Airborne Division, assigned to division headquarters as draftsman in the G-3 Section.

"We were stationed in Okinawa. Our division was instructed to prepare original field orders to go into the Philippines. After I had prepared the maps, General Douglas McArthur, General Joseph (Vinegar) Stilwell, General R. L. Eichelberger and our own division leaders met in a briefing session. They made notations on the maps indicating their thoughts about the plans," Neel explained.

"Later, the maps were given to me as I had been the draftsman to prepare them. I had heard the former President Truman was interested in material for his library that related to his days as president, and felt these maps would possibly be the type of thing he would need.

"When we arrived at the Truman Library," Neel said, "Mr. Truman expressed his pleasure in receiving the maps. I explained that I had no idea of which of the generals had made which marks and notes on the maps."

"Don't worry about that," the former president told me, "we have all sorts of hand writing experts who can figure that out."

Neel said Mr. Truman had insisted on taking him on a complete tour of the library, explaining what had been done and what he hoped to accomplish. "I hope to live another ten years," Neel quoted the late president as saying. "If I can't believe I can finish the work here."

"He almost made it," Neel commented, "as that was eight and a half years ago."

At the end of the library tour, Mr. Truman invited Mrs. Keeley to take Neel to his house to meet Mrs. Truman.

"Their home is a very gracious place," Neel said, "one of warmth. Old fashioned and charming. The president came in while we were visiting Mrs. Truman and we had another wonderful talk."

Returning to the subject of his friend Mrs. Keeley, Neel said she had not long ago finished a book on the boyhood years of Truman. "Its now in manuscript form in the hands of publishers," he said, "and will appear under the title Man of Independence."

"The most recent word I had from her," Neel said, "is that with the Truman book completed, she's now at work on a mystery novel. I'd say that is pretty good for an 88 year old woman."

Lang Talks At YDC Meeting

General John Lang, Vice Chancellor of External Affairs for East Carolina University, was guest speaker at the first 1973 meeting of the Pitt County Young Democrats Club, (YDC) which met Monday night.

Speaking on the topic of national, state and local political affairs, General Lang told the young people "it is time for a regrouping and reassessing period in our lives."

He also called on the Young Democrats to give their full support to the medical school at ECU.

At the meeting, some new officers were elected for the calendar year. These included Bob Jackson, first vice-president, who will chair the Membership Committee; and committee members Miss Cynthia Wisenart, a faculty member at ECU; Bill Moore, principal of Falkland Elementary School; and Don Brady, president of the Greenville Jaycees.

In addition, ECU senior Perry Walton was named publicity chairman. Jackson last year was coordinator of the Pitt County Nick Galifianakis campaign.

Greg Singletary, past president of the Columbus

County YDC, and now a sophomore at ECU, was named chairman of a project titled "What can the Pitt County Young Democrat Club do to help the ECU Medical program?" For this program, public interest will be the guiding criteria to its development.

Carl Darden, president of the Pitt County Young Democrats Club, has announced that General Lang has been named the first associate member in Pitt County.

The next meeting of the club is scheduled for February 26 at 7:45 p.m. It will be held at the Baptist Student Center on East Tenth Street.

All interested persons who desire to become active in community political affairs are encouraged to attend the February meeting.

That POW Bracelet Is Coming Off

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent
CLARK AIR BASE, The Philippines (AP) — The bracelets are nickel-plated copper bands inscribed with a name, rank and date. They are worn by scores of thousands of Americans who treasure those named as next of kin even though they have never met them.

But now the time for wearing them has almost past.

The names on the bracelets are of Americans imprisoned or missing in Indochina, and the dates show when they disappeared or were captured. To the wearers, the thin metal bands were a bond of sympathy with the imprisoned men, a way to show that they cared. The California-based Voices in a Vital America organized the campaign several years ago and mailed out thousands.

With the POWs coming home, the bonds will be cut.

"I'm going to take mine off and break it in two," said 14-year-old Connie Schell, the daughter of a noncommissioned Air Force officer. "When he gets out he won't need me anymore," she said.

An estimated 3,000 bracelets are being worn on Clark Air Base, the first stop for the released American POWs on their way to the United States. The whole family of one noncommissioned officer is wearing them.

Kids playing with model aircraft on the grassy lots at Clark have the bright metal bands on their wrists. Nurses at the camp hospital, fighter pilots' wives and red cross workers wear them.

S.Sgt. Vicki Graham who works for the base newspaper, pored over the lists of POW names released by Hanoi and being printed on a news ticker. "He's just gotta be on the list, he has to be," she said.

She was looking for the name of S.Sgt. Steven Adams, captured Oct. 18, 1966. She has been wearing a bracelet with his name for two years. "If he is finally on the list, and comes through Clark, then I'll do all I can to find him and give the bracelet," she said.

Tight security restrictions probably will prevent many bracelet-wearers from getting too close to the POWs at Clark. But camp authorities are considering a proposal to collect all the bracelets and give them to the returning men.

Set District Meet Sunday

SNOW HILL — The Greenville District Conference of the United Methodist Church, which is composed of 76 churches in eight counties, will be held at Rainbow Church six miles south of here on N.C. Highway 58 Sunday.

The Rev. H.M. McLamb, district superintendent, will preside at the 2:30 p.m. meeting.

The closing feature of the conference will be a worship service with the sermon by Rev. H.F. Leatherman, pastor of Queen Street Church, Kinston, and special music by the Rainbow Choir.

The business of the Conference will include evangelism—the Rev. Leatherman; missions—Rev. Troy J. Barrett, Greenville; Christian education—Rev. Christian White, Greenville; Woman's Society of Christian Service—Mrs. Harold F. Leatherman, Kinston; District board of trustees—Ed Mann, Washington; and lay work—Frank Steinbeck, Greenville.

The Rev. McLamb will report for the District Committee on the ministry. Several candidates for the ministry will be licensed.

The counties are Lenoir, Greene, Pitt, Craven, Edgecombe, Martin, Beaufort and Hyde. All Methodists of the area are invited.

Good At Chess Computer Not

EDINBURGH (AP) — When it comes to playing chess, the computer is not better than a modest amateur, says a university expert. Prof. Donald Michie of Edinburgh University suggests "the task of producing a good computer chess player is far more difficult than some early optimists supposed."

Writing in New Scientist magazine, Michie said big changes are needed in machine intelligence before computers can achieve the status of chess grand masters.

Independent Agency For News On TV

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Next April, an independent television news agency hopes to begin servicing stations in the U.S. with a daily hour of news — without an anchorman and without commercials.

Hersey? Not really. The service is being offered as a supplement to local TV news operations, providing filmed news and sports reports the stations can include in their own newscasts.

The agency is TVN, Inc., temporarily based here and so new — it was incorporated Jan. 11 — that its executives haven't yet decided where to set up their permanent corporate headquarters. They say it will probably be located in New York.

They plan to set up fully staffed news bureaus here and in Washington, D.C., Chicago and Los Angeles to start with, and may establish other domestic bureaus if things go well.

The company will collect and send out their reports by leased lines for taping by client stations. The major networks feed their regular evening news broadcasts to stations the same way.

TVN officials say the company will offer international as well as national news, getting its overseas film stories from Visnews, Inc., a London-based TV news cooperative.

Visnews, which owns a small percentage of TVN, is a non-profit trust owned jointly by the British Broadcasting Corp., Reuters, the Australian Broadcasting Corp. and the New Zealand Broadcasting Corp.

Starting a full-scale news operation from scratch won't come cheaply. It'll cost about $4 million, according to TVN's president, John O. Gilbert, a veteran broadcasting industry executive.

He says TVN's news crews in the U.S. initially will number about 60, including cameramen and technicians.

He declined for competitive reasons to say how many stations — independent and network-affiliated — have shown an interest in TVN's proposed operation.

He emphasizes that the operation isn't competing with the news programs offered by the ABC, NBC and CBS television networks, which now have a total of 584 affiliated stations.

"However, we do feel that we can be a great supplemental service for the stations," said Gilbert, a former ABC vice president for affiliate relations. "That's our basic thrust — as a supplemental service for local newscasts."

'Stop Thief' Action Urged

"Discourage thefts in your home," police chief Glenn Cannon urged today. "and participate in operation 'Stop-Thief', being sponsored by the local police department and the Greenville Jaycees.

The project, which became operational just over a week ago, Cannon said, allows local residents to borrow electric engraving pencils from the Police Department to engrave identifying numbers of other marks on personal property in an effort to discourage thefts, and to identify the owners of stolen property. The engraving pencils were donated by the Jaycees.

Cannon said, "Etch your driver's license number or social security number on property such as cameras, power tools, guns, television sets and other portable items of value.

"This makes it possible to establish positive identification and can lead to the arrest of the thief if the article is stolen."

The engraving pencils are available from the Police Department's Records and Identification Bureau.

Cholera Takes Growing Toll Of Africans Today

By RAYMOND WILKINSON
NAIROBI (UPI) — The African continent, already plagued by most diseases known to man, has been struck by another killer.

This time it is cholera which, during the last two years, has cut a deadly swath through North and West Africa and Ethiopia and East Africa.

Until this particular outbreak, Africa had been relatively free of cholera but as one public health official here said: "Now it's here to stay."

Malaria and tuberculosis still rank as more deadly killers, but during the last two years, some 80,000 persons in Africa contracted cholera and 20,000 of them died, according to the World Health Organization (WHO).

The actual number of cases is likely to be much higher. WHO releases figures exactly as they are supplied by individual countries, which often falsify charts or fail to report the presence of the disease at all.

"We have an interesting situation right now," a local health official said. "Cholera has been reported all the way down the west coast of Africa as far as Cameroon where it apparently stops. But then we have another outbreak farther south in Angola.

"It seems reasonable to assume that cholera is also present in the countries in between Angola and Cameroon but for unknown reasons it hasn't been reported."

Cholera's penetration into Africa is linked with the current worldwide pandemic — the seventh in the last couple of centuries.

The disease — the El Tor strain — spread rapidly westwards from Indonesia into Eastern Europe and the Middle East. In late 1969, cholera spread from the Arabian Peninsula into Ethiopia and East African countries, but for the moment that particular outbreak seems to be under control.

A more serious penetration took place from Eastern Europe, into North Africa, across the Sahara into West Africa, an ideal area for cholera with its humid climate, polluted waters and unsanitary conditions.

"A remarkable thing is that it has taken so long for cholera to be so widely recorded in Africa," the health official said. "And realistically, given the favorable types of conditions in many parts of Africa for the disease, it should be more dangerous than it has been thus far."

It may get worse. Scientists still have not discovered an effective anti-cholera vaccine and given the unsanitary and unhygienic conditions prevailing throughout most of the continent, health officials believe cholera will continue to spread.

The 'Worry Clinic' Sales Pitch Is No Real Guide

Judy follows the printed manual for servicing her car. But manuals are academic and often studied with exaggerated sales malarky. So it is always wise to modify "drawing board" engineering with a lot of "horse sense."

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE W-514: Last July our daughter Judy sent one of her sons to a week at a boy's camp in northern Michigan.

She drove her minibus up there to pick up Peter when the week had ended. "Daddy," she told me, "I decided to drive back to Chicago via Wisconsin and visit Betty Lippert (her cousin) at Hortenville."

"Just as we left the main highway about 4 miles from Betty's, it sounded like the engine in my car had fallen apart."

"Peter and I got out and just then a courteous highway policeman named Karr, drove up."

"He summoned a tow truck for us; sent us to a reputable garage, and also notified Betty, who soon drove over to pick us up."

"The garage mechanic told me he services an average of 2 cars per week which burn out, just like mine."

"For he says the wrong oil was used in it. "When I protested that I follow the instructions manual and have the car checked and serviced always on schedule, he said that manual is wrong. "For he informed me the oil gets too low when owners try to go 3,000 miles or more without a check-up."

"And he says the manufacturers often deluded customers by their glib sales arguments about the long-lasting oil and grease records."

"My minibus has only 45,000 miles on it and you know I bought it brand new, so do you think this garage mechanic is correct?"

"For I have followed the book to the letter and had it serviced right on schedule!"

"Auto Horse Sense" The oil gauge on your motor is a better index of what it needs than a blib sales pitch in the printed manual!

For manuals are often produced to help sell cars.

And their writers are often brainstrusters instead of engineers with "horse sense."

Many of our college engineers are "drawing board" experts but lack practical experience. This same criticism often applies to physicians, who are called "textbook doctors" but lack the quick "know-how" for handling emergency medical crises.

For example, when I was interning in obstetrics at Wesley Memorial Hospital in Chicago, one of our professors had a young wife on the delivery table. But a ruptured artery started spurting blood.

This professor (whose famous textbook had been adopted by various medical schools for teaching Obstetrics) couldn't face up to practical medicine! So he paced the floor, wringing his hands in bewilderment!

And this same type of "brainstruster" expert has often cluttered up the automotive field, as well as the manufacture of many other household conveniences.

"You must cut the cloth to fit the figure; not the pattern," thus runs a trisum well known to you housewives.

For textbook theories don't always solve the specific needs of human beings or automobiles.

If the oil stick shows you need more oil in the crankcase, you better follow the reading on that stick; not your theoretical manual!

Autos are mechanical "horses" and the oldtime farmers knew that humidity, heat and the traction required to pull the wagon or plow, determined the feeding, watering and rest demanded by a farm team.

Would that all modern motorists had grown up in the "horse and buggy" era!

Boyle's Pension Sharply Reduced

WASHINGTON (AP) — W.A. "Tony" Boyle's annual pension as former president of the United Mine Workers has been cut from $50,000 to $16,000 by the union's International Executive Board.

Boyle's successor, Arnold Miller, said the pension cut was effected by abolishing a special $2 million pension fund set up for union officers in 1960.

Under the action, former Secretary-Treasurer John Owens' annual pension was trimmed from $40,000 to $13,000.

Miller said the board also reduced salaries for eight union staff positions by an average of 40 per cent and eliminated special medical benefits for UMW international officers.

Opening lead: King of ♣

The blind lead of a king from an unguarded doubleton is a desperation maneuver that seldom pays off, unless the player holds a control in the trump suit or else has some reason to place his partner with strength in the suit. It should be avoided on any occasion where the opposition may have stretched their values to reach the final contract.

Against the confidently bid game of his opponents, West reasoned that a passive defense was not apt to be productive. In an attempt to make an attacking lead, he chose to open the king of clubs against South's four heart bid. If East by some chance held the ace, then a third round ruff might be obtained. Or, if the latter had the queen, West might still develop a delayed ruff inasmuch as he held a control in the trump suit.

The lead proved to be devastating. South, having no reason to diagnose West's actual holding, played the latter for the queen as well as the king, and, therefore, ducked to retain control of the suit. West continued with the six and declarer played the seven from dummy, fully expecting to win the trick with his jack. To his surprise, East put up the queen and returned a third round of clubs which West ruffed with the seven of hearts.

The defense had their book in and, after West exited with the five of diamonds, South was obliged to lose two more tricks when both the spade and heart finesse failed. West's deadly assault produced a 200 point profit on the deal for his side.

South could have saved a trick by putting up the ace of clubs at trick one, however, there was no way to prevent the ruff and avert the setback, altogether. With another opening, however, declarer has time to develop dummy's spade suit and eventually obtain a discard for his tenth trick.

Hudson Canyon TV Log Considered As Waste-Carrier

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Hudson Canyon, gashing the continental shelf margin south east of New York City, is being considered as a means of carrying pollutants into the ocean depths. New Jersey is reported here to be studying such plans.

Before that is done, says a scientific team led by Dr. George H. Keller of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, more should be known about the dynamic processes in the canyon itself. The team's studies, conducted from a small research submarine, have shown that pollutants dumped in shallow water are being carried already into the canyon by currents of more than half a mile an hour. The canyon is like an extension of the Hudson River valley into the ocean depths.

They have discovered also in the course of 15 dives last year that there is a commercially significant deep water crab and fish population in some of the area.

'IF' AND 'AS'
WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of American airmen and planes based in Thailand will be reduced in proportion to the progress made in securing an effective Indochina-wide ceasefire, according to the Thai ambassador to the United States.

Equal Rights Held Focus Of Interest

By SAM D. BUNDY

I returned to Raleigh on Monday morning of this week to speak to the luncheon meeting of the Raleigh Lions Club which, incidentally, is the largest civic club in North Carolina (300 members) and the 18th largest club is Lions International. The week was an uneventful one so far as action on the floor of the House was concerned. Only eight bills were on the calendar and these were either resolutions or local bills; however, about 100 bills were introduced making a total of 160 to date. Committees are now going over these bills and arranging public hearings on some of them. My prediction is that it will be about the week of February 12th before many bills will be returned to the floor of the House for debate and voting. The main thing taking the center of interest this week has been lobbying for and against the Equal Rights Amendment. A group of women from Durham spent two days calling on legislators voicing their reasons for its passage, while a group of women from Statesville wearing "Stop ERA" tags spent three days visiting legislators and offering their reasons for the rejection of the Equal Rights Amendment. Two dates for public hearings on this proposed legislation have been set for Thursday, February 1st and tentatively Thursday, February 8th. On February 1st the public is invited but not to participate however, on February 8th the public will participate with proponents and opponents being given time to voice their reasons for or against this amendment.

On Tuesday night the North Carolina Soil & Water Conservation Association held its annual banquet in connection with their state convention. All members of the General Assembly were invited and it was a pleasure to attend and to meet and chat with Arch Flanagan, Robert Little and Ralph Tucker from Pitt County and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Lang and Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Taylor from Greene County. On Wednesday morning the House Committee on Agriculture met at 7:30 a.m. at the Farmer's Market and while discussing farm legislation we enjoyed a bountiful breakfast of ham and eggs. On Wednesday night the President of Kiwanis International, Lorin Bradsky, stopped off in Raleigh on his way to Sanford and Bettie and I were privileged to be among twenty people at a dinner in his honor. To top the week off on Thursday night, Mrs. Bundy and I attended a program of Opera Excerpts at St. Mary's College. This program was under the direction of Mr. Wilson Nichols, Jr., a former student of mine as well as having charge of music in the Sam D. Bundy School the last year I served as its principal. Sarita Hardy of Farmville was one of the characters and it was nice to see her perform so well. Also, it was nice to have a chat with Miss Beebe Aycock, who is a student there.

See you next week.

Taylor Submits GOP Ethics Bill

RALEIGH (AP)—A governmental ethics bill which would create a six-member board of moral overseers for legislators and state officials has been introduced in the North Carolina Senate.

Sen. Charles Taylor, R-Transylvania, the minority leader, introduced the bill Tuesday, with the support of several other Republicans.

Taylor's bill would make it a crime punishable by a $500 fine for a legislator to lobby for compensation; or for a partner of a legislator to lobby without the legislator making public disclosure of the fact; or for a legislator to accept money for performing legislative services.

It also establishes a non-criminal code of conduct enjoining legislators from accepting valuable gifts and inducements, attempting to influence state decisions for financial gain. It urges them not allow themselves to be placed in situations where a conflict of interest might arise.

The bill also would require legislators to make a full disclosure of their financial holdings to the proposed Board of Ethics.

That board, consisting of three Republicans and three Democrats, would have little enforcement power. It could investigate charges of violations of legislative ethics and make its findings public. In cases of criminal violations it could turn its findings over to the attorney general.

Prison Term For Bandits

GREENSBORO (AP)—Twenty-five-year state prison sentences have been imposed on two men who admitted robbing a Greensboro bank of $76,000 last November, and taking along six hostages on a wild ride in an unsuccessful attempt to escape.

Superior Court Judge Harvey Lupton sentenced the two men Tuesday to 25 years on each of six counts of kidnaping, but specified that the sentences run concurrently.

In addition, the judge specified that the state sentences against the two men, Stanley Eugene Crawford, 24, of Greensboro, and Robert Wilford Pratt, 30, of Atlanta, run concurrently with federal sentences of life imprisonment for taking hostages and 20 years for bank robbery.

The two men pleaded guilty to the charges growing out of the robbery last Nov. 14 of the Lawdale branch of the Wachovia Bank and Trust Co.

The bank robbers were accused of taking their hostages first to the Greensboro airport, then to Winston-Salem and then back past Greensboro toward the Raleigh-Durham airport, before surrendering at a roadblock between Burlington and Durham.

Needs A Home

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—No Name, a dark puppy, has been saved from destruction in the dog pound after capturing the heart of a police secretary. She would like to keep him, but she already has a pet poodle. So she is looking for a family to adopt him and give him a name for the tag on his little red collar.

No Name, about seven weeks old, had trotted along to police headquarters with his master, who had been charged with a criminal offense. The secretary, Miss Nancy O'Hare, took care of him for a week, and then had him rescued from the pound and cleaned up by a veterinarian.

"He'll be completely healthy and all the medical bills and boarding need will be paid for at the vet's," she assures anyone who will adopt him.
