

Should Benefit Consumer, Workingman

U.S. Devalues The Dollar

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has devalued the dollar by 10 per cent in a dramatic move to calm troubled world money markets and restore confidence in the battered U.S. currency.

Nixon's decision, announced at a late Monday night news conference by Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz, marked the second dollar devaluation in 14 months. It swept aside a world currency agreement reached in December 1971.

Although the devaluation was widely expected as a result of tumultuous monetary disruptions on money-exchange markets in the past few weeks, few thought it would be so large.

Shultz told newsmen that the move, combined with two other key trade and monetary actions, would benefit the U.S. consumer, workingman and businessman.

The immediate impact of a devaluation is to raise the price of imports from foreign countries. But, because the dollar is now cheaper in relation to other currencies, prices of U.S. exports will be less.

The devaluation will be achieved formally by raising the official price of gold. Although this will take an act of Congress, the dollar depreciation will take place immediately in foreign money markets.

Shultz also announced that Japan's currency, the yen, will float, meaning that it will find its own value in the marketplace. He said the expectation is that the yen will rise in value even more than 10 per cent.

In Tokyo, the Japanese government announced its currency market will be reopened Wednesday. The Finance Ministry said the Bank of Japan might intervene if the yen floats to an overvalued level.

Although West Germany was the focal point of the dollar crisis that forced closing of foreign exchanges in several countries, there was no immediate change in the value of the mark, and probably won't be. The French franc also is expected to keep its present par value.

Shultz said that other countries now floating their currencies, notably Canada and Great Britain, probably will continue the practice. The devaluation has meaning only for nations with fixed values for their currencies.

Canadian Finance Minister John Turner confirmed the Canadian dollar will continue to float.

The International Monetary Fund issued a statement saying the U.S. action will help bring better balance to world payments, improve confidence in the dollar and bring about monetary reform.

Final 'Southside' Application Ready

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
The final application for a federal loan and grant contract for the Southside Project will be hand-delivered to the Greensboro office of Housing and Urban Development by the end of the week or the first of next week.

Joe Laney, executive director of the Redevelopment Commission, noted last night that with the plan now fully approved locally through a series of public hearings, the application only lacks HUD approval to insure the federal grant of $2,481,660.

Laney told commissioners that by delivering the application now, HUD will have around six weeks to review the paperwork and approve the grant in time to meet the March 31 deadline set for the project to be in execution here.

He pointed out that under the guideline set by HUD, the urban renewal project must be underway by March 31 in order to be fully funded. The commission has accelerated preparations for the project and actually, with the submission of the loan and grant application now, a schedule originally projected to take 12 months has been reduced to nine months.

The director expressed his optimism that the loan and grant will be approved by HUD.

Commission deputy director T. I. Wagner reported that a conference involving the city manager, city attorney, and engineer and Redevelopment staff members will be held Feb. 23 to discuss the dedication of alleyways in the central business district.

Wagner said that none of the alleyways in the uptown area have ever been legally dedicated to the city and this situation prevents the

Happiest Families In Area After Long Vigil

By Carol Tyer
Reflector Staff Writer
The two happiest families in Pitt and Martin Counties yesterday were those of former prisoners of war,

Army Major William H. Hardy and Air Force M. Sgt. William A. Robinson.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Robinson of Robersonville saw their son first. He was a passenger on the second plane of POWs from Hanoi that arrived at Clarke Air Force Base. Their vigil during the early hours of Monday paid off when they spotted their Billy about 3:30 a.m.

"He looked great," both his parents said. From then on they waited for his call.

"William looked thin," Mrs. Delphia Hardy of Rt. 1, Winterville said of her son released by the Viet Cong in South Vietnam. "He walked off that plane though, so I know my prayers for his safety have been answered."

Mrs. Hardy said her son's wife, Theola, who lives in Fayetteville, called her immediately after Maj. Hardy's arrival at Clarke was televised about 10:15 a.m. yesterday. The two of

Heavy Damage For Outer Banks From Winds, High Tides

MANTEO, N.C. (AP) — Fierce winds and high tides caused by the weekend storm extensively damaged cottages and motels on North Carolina's Outer Banks.

Dare County Deputy Sheriff Claude Duval said that, "during the height of the storm, we had winds of 70 to 75 miles per hour and, as they were coming in off the ocean, probably higher than that on the beach."

The hurricane-force winds were the result of a storm which dumped several inches of snow along the northern coast and as much as 15 inches in the South.

Duval said the high sea water temporarily blocked the only land access to the southern outer Banks and smashed cottage and three motels near Cape Hatteras.

In Manteo Sarah Owens of the Dare County Tourist Bureau said the three motels at Buxton "reported damages of about one million dollars." Three cottages were also reported destroyed.

A Kitty Hawk hotel, The Arlington lost its dining wing when water tore it from the main building. Mrs. Owens said 10 Kitty Hawk cottages also were undermined and collapsed.

"Several other cottages had heavy damage. All but those on high stilts were damaged to some extent," she said.

VEPCO Plans Effect New Rate Increases Mar. 1

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Virginia Electric & Power Co. said today it will put proposed new rate increases into effect March 1 in North Carolina, pending their approval by the North Carolina Utilities Commission.

Vepco President T. Justin Moore said refunds will be made to the firm's 59,500 customers in northeastern North Carolina if the utilities commission does not approve the full rate boost request.

Moore said the increases will be limited to 20 per cent in accordance with North Carolina law.

North Carolina statutes permit utilities to place new rates into effect if there has been no action by the utilities commission six months after the increase has been requested.

Vepco asked for approval of the rate increases July 27 last year, with the request they become effective Sept. 1.

Testimony on the request was offered at a four-day hearing Jan. 23 this year. The second phase of the hearing is set for Feb. 20.

Moore said Vepco badly needs a higher return from its business in North Carolina to offset rising costs.

Included in the rates being placed in effect March 1 will be a fuel adjustment clause, under which each customer's bill will be adjusted monthly to reflect his share of the rise or fall in the cost of fossil fuel.

Similar fuel adjustment clauses already have been approved for Vepco in Virginia and West Virginia.

Vepco said a residential customer in North Carolina using 750 kilowatt hours of electricity during the winter — November through June — and now receiving a monthly bill of $15.72, would pay an additional $1.89 under the proposed rates, not including fuel adjustment.

The same customer, using 750 kilowatt hours during the summer months — July through October — and now receiving a monthly bill of $16.62, would pay an additional $2.37, also exclusive of fuel adjustment.

POW Returnees Said Generally In Good Condition

By FRANK N. HAWKINS
Associated Press Writer
CLARK AIR BASE, Philippines (AP) — The United States' newly released prisoners of war were signing valentines today, swapping war stories and enjoying hot showers and American food as officials worked to prepare them for a quick trip home.

The 142 men who arrived here Monday following their release in Hanoi and the jungles of South Vietnam woke just after dawn to begin their first full day of freedom.

The day was filled with medical checks, administrative processing, phone calls home and measuring for new uniforms to get ready for a flight, possibly Thursday or Friday, to Travis Air Force Base in California.

Medical officers at Clark's 250-bed hospital — where the men, dressed in blue pajamas, were being processed — said the returnees were in high spirits and in generally good physical condition.

Despite the routine of processing, the wards were described as scenes of exuberance with the men enjoying the heady feeling of being back among their own after years in confinement. One senior officer described the men as "tigers."

Despite previous warnings the men would not want to talk about their prison experiences, medical officers said many stayed up until 4 a.m. exchanging tales about their confinement and joking about it.

In at least one prison camp, it became traditional to have a party on the anniversary of a man's capture. Rations were saved, and such affairs became a special occasion. One returnee pretended he was disappointed because he missed his.

"Eight more days and it would have been my seventh anniversary," he said.

Burned To Death

FARMVILLE — A Farmville woman was burned to death along with her home here early this morning.

The victim was identified as Mrs. Julia Abbott Rives Davis, 47, of 406 Bynum Drive, according to Pitt County Coroner E. W. Harvey.

Harvey said Mrs. Davis' next door neighbor, Streeter Tugwell, awoke about 3:30 a.m. and heard crackling and popping. He looked out to see the house ablaze. The Farmville Fire Department extinguished the fire after some time, and the body was found about 9 a.m.

Mrs. Davis' son, Sidney, 12, was spending the night with a friend a few houses down, Coroner Harvey said. She was a widow and only she and Sidney lived in the house.

Coroner Harvey termed the death accidental and said the house was a total loss.

His friends booed, and one shouted: "Wanna go back? There's a plane leaving for Hanoi tomorrow." A roar of laughter swept the ward.

Some of the men had not had a hot shower in nearly nine years, and doctors reported the men going back into the showers three or four times to lather up with perfumed American soap.

At lunch Monday, they heaped their plates with servings of tenderloin steak, beef stroganoff, spiced apple sauce, mashed potatoes, buttered noodles, salad, apple strudel and chocolate cake.

A returnee said he knew of no American POWs wounded by the massive B52 bombing raids on Hanoi last December but said one time "concussion knocked a big hunk of plaster from a ceiling and it hit one guy on the head."

Two of the returnees underwent special processing and left for home tonight because of critical illness in their families. Maj. Glendon W. Perkins of Orlando, Fla., and Cmdr. Brian Woods of San Diego, Calif., were due in San Diego about 9 p.m. PST.

N.C. University Board Requests Larger Funding

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — The General Assembly's Joint Appropriations Committee was asked today to approve $87.3 million above the amount proposed in the state budget for the University of North Carolina System the next biennium.

"We come to you not with a padded budget, but a hard-rock budget," said William Dees, chairman of the Board of Governors of the 16 state-supported institutions of higher learning.

The Advisory Budget Commission recommended to the legislature $420.3 million in appropriations for the UNC system during the next two fiscal years. The institutions had requested $574.5 million, but this was pared by $79.5 million by the Board of Governors.

University of North Carolina President William Friday broke down the $87.3 million in six requests:

- $45.9 million for university-wide capital improvements.
- $19.5 million for university-wide program expansions and improvements.
- $13.7 million for medical education expansion.
- $6.7 million for academic salary increases.
- $841,438 for medical and educational services at Eastern

North Carolina Sanatorium. —$702,500 for the removal of architectural barriers to the handicapped.

Friday said the Board of Governors had voted unanimously last Friday to give top priority to $19.5 million for university-wide program expansions and improvements; priority 2 to $45.9 million for capital improvements and priority three to the $13.7 million for medical education expansion.

Rep. J. P. Huskins, D-Iredell, chairman of the Board of Governor's Budget Committee, said the 1971 legislature appropriated $1,020,000 for state aid to private colleges and universities. The board voted Friday, he said, to ask that the amount be increased to $3.5 million during the next biennium. It would be paid out on a per capita basis of about $75 per student.

The $6.7 million requested for academic salary increases, Friday said, would provide a 10 per cent pay raise the second year of the biennium instead of 5 per cent. Gov. Jim Holshouser has recommended 10 per cent. The amount also would provide a $500,000 special fund for faculty upgrading.

The budget commission proposed 5 per cent each for a pay raise for state employees each year of the biennium.

CBD Briefing

A series of briefings for the public on the Central Business District renewal program will be held Thursday by the Redevelopment Commission at the Evans Street CBD office.

Joe Laney, executive director, said that the meetings, scheduled for 10 a.m., 2 p.m., and 4 p.m., will hopefully afford businessmen and property owners to an opportunity to become more acquainted with the program and ask questions they may have.

Laney said that the three different times are being scheduled for the convenience of the public in hopes that one of the three times will be suitable. The status report and question and answer period should take no more than 30 minutes, he noted.

"I hope we get a good turnout," Laney said. "I would really enjoy the opportunity to meet the general public and explain or answer questions on the program and bring them up to date on our progress."

Ford Motor Co. Is Fined For Test-Tampering

By TOM SEPPY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford Motor Co. was fined $7 million today on charges that its employees illegally tampered with 1973 Ford cars undergoing antipollution tests, the Justice Department said.

Ford filed a no contest plea to a 350-count criminal information, filed in the U.S. District Court in Detroit by the Justice Department, and signed a consent decree concluding a civil suit. The court proposed the maximum fine of $3.5 million in the criminal case. It also approved a $3.5 million penalty agreed to by Ford and the government in the civil case.

In addition, Ford was enjoined from committing similar violations in the future. The matter goes back to last April and May when Ford submitted its antipollution test data required for federal certification of its 1973 cars.

On May 16, the firm withdrew its applications and told the Environmental Protection Agency they had been based on tests which included unauthorized and previously unreported maintenance.

Ford resubmitted its applications and repeated the testing. The EPA turned over to the Justice Department its evidence and asked Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst to take appropriate action. The EPA said the fact that Ford executives voluntarily reported the problem did not excuse the alleged violations.

The Clean Air Act and EPA regulations make it a criminal offense knowingly to submit false information on testing and reporting of maintenance on prototype engines.

Sculpture Commission Is Awarded By NCNB

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. — An English-born artist now teaching in Florida has won a $30,000 sculpture commission by NCNB Plaza Associates for their downtown development here.

John G. (Jeff) Naylor, associate professor of art at the University of Florida, Gainesville, won a competition entered by 54 sculptors from 11 Southeastern states. His work, a water sculpture, will be installed later this year as the visual focal point of NCNB Plaza, which includes the new 14-story Winston-Salem main office of North Carolina National Bank and associated retail and office structures.

William C. Covington, senior vice president of NCNB, said Naylor's proposal was selected by a jury from those of the five finalists in the regional competition. Other finalists were Ben Berns of Greensboro, Robert Costellowe of Winston-Salem, Doris Leeper of Eldora, Fla., and Victor Pickett of Norfolk, Va.

The $30,000 commission is the largest ever awarded for a North Carolina sculpture, Covington said.

"Naylor describes his winning proposal variously as a sculpture, a fountain and a waterfall... and all would be correct," said Covington, a member of the jury.

His materials will be stainless steel and concrete. The sculpture will feature water cascading across six corrugated surfaces of polished steel. The steel is mounted in a base of concrete. The superstructure will be surrounded by a reflecting pool.

"The quality of sound in the plaza will be enhanced by the sound of running water," Naylor said. "It will provide a welcome respite from the sound of city traffic."

The sculpture will be about eight feet in height, 12 to 15 feet in width and 25 to 30 feet in length.

Refinery To Be Studied

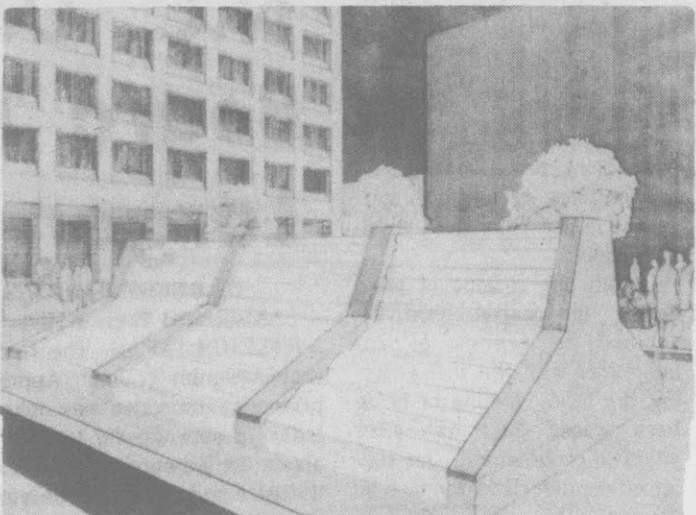

RALEIGH (AP) — A state official says North Carolina may join a study to determine the feasibility of constructing an oil refinery and docking dock off the state's coast.

Robert E. Leak, director of the State Office of Industrial, Tourist and Community Resources, said state officials will make a recommendation soon to Gov. Jim Holshouser on the advisability of joining in the study being conducted by the Coastal Plains Regional Commission.

Being considered would be the location of a 15,000-acre oil refinery and docking station 30 to 50 miles offshore. The station would be capable of handling supertankers carrying oil from the Middle East.

Leak said he firmly believes a study would show North Carolina is the best location for a refinery. Asked what it would do for the state, Leak said it would be "almost like discovering oil off our coast."

Leak said Georgia and South Carolina, the other two members of the Coastal Plains Regional Commission, also are considering whether to join the study.

NCNB PLAZA SCULPTURE... for the North Carolina National Bank Plaza in Winston-Salem will look somewhat the artist's conception when completed. A design by John G. Naylor of the University of Florida, the $30,000 commission work is the largest ever awarded for a North Carolina sculpture.

Big Oil Supply Move To Unlock

By STEVE WEINER

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Alaska will ask the U.S. Supreme Court to review a lower court ruling that has blocked construction of the trans-Alaska oil pipeline, Gov. William Egan says.

Construction was sidetracked last Friday by a ruling of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.

The state also will ask the Interior Department to shift to Alaska control of the 789-mile pipeline corridor from the arctic North Slope to the southern port of Valdez, Egan said Monday.

Meanwhile, Alaska Sens. Ted Stevens and Mike Gravel said they planned to introduce legislation to permit construction of the line.

The lower court ruled that the proposed 150-foot right of way for the line violated the Minerals Leasing Act of 1920. Under the act, rights of way must be no wider than 50 feet.

A spokesman for Gravel said the senator is considering three legislative approaches to undo the bonds holding down construction of the line to pipe crude oil from the new fields of the North Slope.

One would be to amend the 1920 law. The second would be to authorize a specific exception for Alyeska, a consortium of oil firms. The third would give the secretary of Interior authority to grant a wide right of way.

Judge Will Be Church Speaker

Judge J. Phillip Carlton, chief district judge of the seventh North Carolina judicial district, will be the featured speaker for the mission study at St. James United Methodist Church Sunday at 7 p.m.

Judge Carlton will discuss the volunteer program conducted recently in the seventh judicial district which utilized non-professional citizen volunteers in the operation of the courts and the judicial system.

The program was coordinated by Miss Johnnie Coughlan of Rocky Mount.

Wants Trials In Sixty Days

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — In an effort to grease the slowly turning wheels of justice, Rep. Gerald Arnold, D-Harnett, has introduced a bill requiring North Carolina to try criminal defendants no more than 60 days after they are charged.

The bill does, however, provide several exceptions to the 60-day rule. One of them allows judges to grant delays at the request of attorneys for either the defense of the prosecution if the judge believes a delay to be in the best interest of the public or the defendant.

Arnold said that exception was written in to give the bill enough flexibility to cover the many contingencies that might arise in a criminal prosecution. He said he felt judges would respect "the spirit of the bill" and not grant an unnecessary delay.

The bill also provides for judges to fine attorneys who knowingly ask for needless delays and to suspend their right to practice in court.

Also in the House Monday night, a resolution asking the Nixon administration to reconsider its termination of funding of the Rural Environmental Assistance Program was passed.

The motion, opposed by a handful of Republicans, was described as a non-partisan favor to farmers by its sponsors.

Rep. Claude DeBruhl, D-Buncombe, introduced a bill which would appropriate $5 million to purchase 40,000 acres of woodland in Jackson County for a state park.

That land was recently purchased by a Florida developer from the Mead Corporation for about $5 million.

DeBruhl said his bill would force the State Parks Department to use $5 million on its appropriation this year to buy

Arson In Prison Is Unexplained

WALPOLE, Mass. (AP) — Authorities say they do not know what touched off a second night of arson by maximum security inmates at Walpole state prison but a month-long lockup which ended last week might have been a factor.

Correction officers from Walpole and three other correctional institutions used tear gas to restore order after about three hours in the latest episode Monday night during which several fires were set. Officials said tear gas was used and there were no reported injuries.

Some 100 riot-equipped state police were called to the scene, but they were not sent inside the walls, officials said.

Until last week, the 580 inmates of the prison had been locked up for a month in a shakedown that Supt. Raymond E. Porelle said had turned up weapons, drugs and evidence of inmate-run rackets such as prostitution and gambling.

A spokesman for the state Corrections Department said the lockup might have been involved in the two nights of violence but "we don't know what the precise incident is that triggered this."

The latest trouble broke out at about 5 p.m., when an estimated 300 inmates refused lockup in prison maximum security sections and some started setting fires.

"The inmates set fire to anything that was combustible," said Corrections Department spokesman John MacLean. "Anything that would burn. Damage appears to be mostly smoke damage."

On Sunday night, approximately 150 inmates refused lockup and set fires in the maximum security cell blocks. Corrections officers in riot gear and carrying shotguns forced the inmates back into the cells. There were no reports of injuries.

Proposing Free School Lunches More Available

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Free school lunches, already accounting for one out of three served each day, will be made available to more needy children regardless of family income under a new Agriculture Department proposal.

The rule change, ordered by Congress in liberalized child-feeding legislation last summer, will give discretionary authority to local school administrators for determining individual hardship cases among pupils.

A child from a family of four currently must be served free or reduced-price lunches if the family's income does not exceed $4,110 a year. States may set income eligibility as much as 25 per cent higher for free meals and up to 50 per cent more for reduced-price servings.

Under the proposed regulation, a child could be eligible for free meals when income is more than the guidelines if there is undue financial burden on the family.

The department said the proposed regulations will be open for public comment until March 16, and set July 1 as the deadline for putting them into effect.

That means the new authority for giving special attention to hardship cases would not be in effect generally until school begins next fall.

The Nixon budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1 calls for free-lunch spending of $663 million, an increase of $43 million from the current year.

The department's Food and Nutrition Service said it has no estimate on how many additional children might be brought into the free-lunch program because of the rule change. About 8.5 million now receive free or cut-price meals out of a total of 25.2 million children eating school lunches.

"When schools determine whether children are eligible for free or reduced-price meals, they would not count that portion of family income spent for unusually high medical expenses, shelter costs in excess of 30 per cent of income, special education expense due to the mental or physical condition of a child or disaster and casualty losses."

Romantic Happenings— Both Near And Far

By Paul Steiner
Women's News Service
For St. Valentine's Day, a quick roundup of recent developments in the Romance Department from both near and far:

In Shipton, England, 5-year-old Jennifer Munton, after rescuing 3-year-old Peter Fort from a pond near their kindergarten school, shrugged off her brave deed with the remark: "I had to save him because he is my boy friend."

Tim Galliard and Janet Kendall first met in a parking lot in downtown New Haven, Conn., by a large billboard. When Tim decided to suggest marriage he used the billboard to do it. He had a sign put up picturing a small boy holding flowers and the caption: "Janet, will you marry me?" — Hopefully, Tim. Janet agreed.

In Munich, Germany, the Bavarian State Justice Ministry announced that it will permit single prisoners to advertise for brides — with the exception of inmates convicted of breach of marriage promises.

In Paris, sweethearts are showing their affection by holding back pockets. Mademoiselle puts her left hand in monsieur's left pocket and vice versa.

A switchboard operator in Bilston, England, dialed a wrong number, but was fascinated by the voice of the man who answered and made small talk with him for a while before signing off. Several dates followed and they soon tied the nuptial knot.

After finally getting a divorce, a man in Budapest, Hungary, figured a matchmaking computer might be the best method to guide him towards a new love. When data of his likes, dislikes and preferences were fed into the computer, it promptly came up with the name of the guy's just-divorced wife.

A 36-year-old Londoner decided to tell all the world how wonderful his wife, is, by means of a TV commercial on Valentine's Day. The 7-second message, which cost $75, will include a picture of the honored spouse and a thank-you message from the husband and children "for being such a wonderful wife and mother."

A suave Rhode Island man sent a girl friend flowers, not just from one florist, but from three different ones. A few days later he went to jail for five days when it developed that he had charged the bouquets to a rival suitor.

A Monterey, California, guy, jilted by his girlfriend, was arrested after he decided to keep an eye on his rival, cut a hole in the girl's living room wall, a bigger one in her bedroom floor.

Like everything else the cost of love is also going up. Five to 10 years ago the average American girl received a quarter-carat diamond ring from her fiancé. Now, more than 80 per cent of men in the 18 to 25-year age bracket buy an average half-carat, according to industry figures.

More husbands than ever before are giving their wives sexy lingerie for Valentine's Day, according to a national survey. Mark Gindi, designer of sexy lingerie for Exotique, who conducted the poll, adds that the most popular slogan on the lingerie, "Love Me Or Leave Me."

Manhattan hairpiece maker Charles Alfieri reports that a pretty young woman came into his establishment to order a $350 toupee as an engagement present for her near-bald fiancé.

Olga Springel, a 28-year-old of Liege, Belgium, pleaded with Charles Brucke not to call the police after she backed her car into the headlights of Brucke's Volkswagen. Promising that her insurance company would pay for the damage, Olga, invited Brucke to a cafe for a drink while necessary papers were filled out. Lunch followed, and then a visit to the insurance agent. After that came restaurant supper and nightclub dancing at Brucke's expense. Promptly at midnight, he proposed marriage, and she accepted.

A Valentine's Gift Will Rising Food Prices Aid America's Eating Habits?

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been having the same disagreement for the last six years, and I hope you can settle it.

My husband believes that he should give me a gift on three occasions: my birthday, Christmas, and Mother's Day.

I think he should add one more, St. Valentine's Day, since that is the day above all others when one expresses love. I wouldn't expect an expensive gift. A single flower would do.

My husband feels that a few unexpected gifts brought home during the year mean more than those he is expected to give just because of the date on the calendar. I agree, but he does this very infrequently.

Shouldn't he give me a gift on St. Valentine's Day just because he knows it would make me happy, and I am hurt when he doesn't?

MRS. A.

DEAR MRS. A.: He should, but if he doesn't, you should accept his decision with grace and maturity. A gift which has been asked for loses all of its loving sentiments. And if you have been arguing over this for six years, your husband is stubborn and you are a nagger. Get off his back about it, and one of these days you will come up smelling like a rose.

DEAR ABBY: I am 28 years old and have three children. The baby at six weeks old developed a serious bronchial ailment and had to be hospitalized, so I got a room at the hospital to be with him nights. I was gone a week.

In my absence, my husband got very chummy with our housekeeper, who is only 32 years old. He admitted that this young woman had spent her nights in MY bed. My husband thought I should take it calmly. As he explained it, "I am hiring someone to take care of the children and do your work for you, and I will also have a live-in mistress, so you don't have to worry about my tomcatting around!"

Abby, I don't want anyone to do my work for me, or look after my children, and I don't want my husband to have a mistress.

After a very ugly scene, he let this young woman go, but now I discovered that he has rented an apartment for her near here and he sees her anyway. He insists that he loves me but that he needs her, too.

What should I do? I love my children and don't want to be just another lonesome divorcee.

BETWIXT

DEAR BETWIXT: Better to be a divorcee [who said you had to be lonesome?] than to consent to the arrangement your husband has offered you. The role of a wife and mother is to look after the needs of her husband and children. Don't compromise! If he loves you he will agree to see a marriage counselor.

DEAR ABBY: A Mrs. F. S. wrote to say that she was disgusted with some of the petty things some people found to complain about. She said she found all her answers in prayer and God, and took all her problems to the Lord, but she did have one problem maybe you could help her with. Birds kept nesting in her drainpipe. I think I can help her.

Birds are deathly afraid of snakes. If that lady will get a toy rubber snake and place it where the birds are nesting, they will cease to nest there.

Birds love elderberries, and as soon as my elderberries are ripe and I go to pick them, the birds have beat me to it.

Last year I went to the children's toy department in a variety store and bought a couple of rubber snakes. I placed them on the branches of my elder bush, and not one berry was touched by the birds.

MRS. E. H., ELKHART, IND.

DEAR MRS. H.: Your advice is the berries. And it's not for the birds. Muchas gracias!

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — Rising food prices unintentionally may help accomplish what doctors' and nutritionists' warnings have so far failed to do—improve American eating habits.

This surprising development is emerging from homemakers' efforts to save money on their food budgets in the wake of a record high price of $1,338 a year for a typical family food market basket.

A better balanced diet apparently is being consumed as shoppers buy less beef and eggs and more chicken, fish and vegetables.

One woman questioned in a UPI survey said she sometimes serves meatless meals.

Others said they were looking for recipes without a lot of expensive ingredients and were finding new ways to use beans and other vegetables. Dried beans, including peanuts, are excellent inexpensive sources of protein. Most are about 22 per cent protein and peanuts are 25 per cent protein.

Along with chicken, fish, fruit and vegetables, beans are recommended as part of a diet low in the saturated fats which many doctors think contribute to heart and vascular ailments.

Money-saving Tips

There are many other ways in which a money-saving diet can build good nutrition. For instance:

Use margarine instead of butter, and choose spreads made with mostly liquid vegetable oils.

Reserve liquid milk for drinking and use nonfat dried milk and evaporated skimmed milk for cooking. It's also cheaper to make your own fortified skimmed milk by adding nonfat dried milk to the liquid skimmed variety instead of paying a few cents more per quart for the dairy-fortified product.

Make your own frozen prepared foods. If you first chill low-cost main dishes such as stews, fat rises to the surface and congeals so it can be removed before you divide the food into meal-size or individual servings for freezer storage.

"Cream" vegetables with sauces made with evaporated skimmed milk instead of more expensive, higher calorie cream or whole milk.

Watch newspapers and magazines for recipes that use beans and other vegetables in unusual ways—in Italian pasta con fagioli, or pasta and beans, in French cassoulet, or baked beans, and in Caribbean beans and rice. Check cookbooks in your public library for other ideas.

Dried beans also are good in salads, soups and combination dishes such as stews. In an oil and vinegar dressing, they make a good high-protein appetizer or salad.

Buy fruit juices instead of fruit drinks. The former are more nutritious because they contain only juice, some fruit flesh and sometimes, preservatives, but juice drinks, punches, nectars and cocktails may contain only 10 to 50 per cent juice. The remainder is water, sugar, flavorings and sometimes, vitamin fortification.

Fruit Unflavored Gelatin' Packaged fruit-flavored gelatin is inexpensive, but for only a few pennies more you can have more nutritious home-made jelled real fruit juice desserts made with canned or frozen reconstituted juices, unflavored gelatin and either sugar or sugar substitute. If you mix the unflavored gelatin first with the sugar, it can be prepared exactly as you would the other kind, by dissolving the dry mixture in boiling liquid.

An appetizer course can also save money if it leads to smaller servings of a main course made with high ticket items such as meat. A few peanuts, other beans, nut or cheese add protein to appetizers or salads. Ground nuts can be used to thicken sauces and soups and to add flavor and filler to meat loaves and hamburgers.

If you serve a lot of turkey and prefer self-basting ones, it pays to spend three or four dollars on the type of bulb baster that comes with an injector needle. This permits you to inject a homemade basting solution instead of paying turkey prices for the basting fluid represented in the extra weight of commercially prepared birds.

When you buy fresh cauliflower and broccoli, use the whole thing. Cook the flowerets for a vegetable course and serve the raw stems, cut into sticks, as an appetizer with seasoned salt or a dip.

Buy in quantity only those foods you serve often and can store without loss of quality. Big family size boxes and cans of food are no bargain if you have to throw out unused portions.

Day-old bread is an often overlooked bargain. Unsliced loaves taste as good as fresh if you reheat them for five minutes in a damp paper bag in a preheated 350-degree oven. Day-old sliced bread makes excellent toast and can be held almost indefinitely in a freezer when wrapped in airtight material.

One last tip: don't shop when you're hungry. Studies show you're more apt to make unnecessary impulse purchases under these circumstances.

Don't Clutter The Law Books

In its effort to provide additional meaningful protection for law enforcement officers carrying out their assigned duties, care must be taken by the legislature not to clutter the law books with new regulations which have less than practical value.

One such proposal, in our judgment, is the bill that would require any motorist stopped by a law enforcement officer to emerge from his vehicle, at the request of the officer, with both hands "clearly visible."

Committed To Ethics Effort

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — Ethics legislation, a red-headed stepchild at past sessions, may be accepted at the family reunion in the current General Assembly.

It has friends at the head table. Gov. Jim Holshouser and Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt both have given their commitment to the goal of setting standards of conduct to avoid conflicts of interest for those who hold public office.

The House and Senate have adopted resolutions, originating from policy committees for the Democratic majority, directing the preparation of bills by an April 1 deadline.

"I feel this time something will be done," said Rep. Robert A. Jones of Rutherford. A warrior in previous defeats for the cause, he is now a general in the fight as chairman of the powerful House Rules Committee.

The objective he has in sight is a code which would require disclosure of financial interests of those trusted with public office, bringing into the open areas of potential conflict of interest, and which would offer the public some guarantee of honesty in government.

Reasonable Standard Sought

"We want to pass a law which will establish a reasonable standard all can live by, with penalties for infractions, and provide for the appointment of an ethics council to administer and police it," Jones explained.

From philosophy to mechanics is the tricky path to be negotiated. While a majority of legislators may embrace the principle, few yet have clear ideas on how to put it into practice.

It's difficult terrain, thorny with questions that call for careful study, Jones admitted. He has created a rules subcommittee to clear the way. Hopefully, it will work jointly with a similar Senate group, he said, to produce one bill with acceptance in both chambers.

An assortment of bills already have been introduced, dealing with ethics for those in judicial, executive and legislative branches of state government. The mandate of the resolutions adopted, Jones noted, calls for a broad and comprehensive approach.

"It's the only way to go," he added.

From these and other proposals, the subcommittee will attempt to fashion legislation which will merit support. The task will be time consuming, Jones agreed.

Study Interim Possible

He mentioned the possibility the issue may go over to next year, as the legislature shifts to annual sessions, with consideration in committee for the interim.

"I don't advocate it, but I see merit in it," he said.

In any event, delay would not be a ploy to kill the idea but a device to resolve its complexities, he added.

No one talks against ethics legislation, no more than motherhood or apple pie. Even so, considerable latent resistance remains in legislative circles.

The cynical are inclined to call it window-dressing, appealing to the public but lacking political relevance. Like any moralizing, they argue, the saints don't need it and the sinners won't heed it.

There are sincere reservations. "I will vote for ethics legislation," said Sen. Tom Strickland of Wayne. "But frankly, I don't know that it is necessary."

Ballot Box Ethics

The ballot box is more effective than any legislation as a safeguard for honesty in public officials, he said. "As members of the legislature, we have to answer to the people every two years," he said. "They aren't going to stand for it if our conduct shows we have yielded to conflicts with our private interests."

A widening gap between the voter and elected officials is exactly why ethics legislation is needed, said Rep. John S. Stevens of Buncomb. It's not so easy today as in the past for a citizen to know the background of those he elects, Stevens said.

Financial disclosure at the time of running would enable citizens to compare candidates and identify interests which might influence their performance, he explained.

Stevens served as chairman for a subcommittee last session which produced an ethics bill killed in the rules committee. "I sense a lot more support this time," he reported.

Excellent prospects also are seen by Sen. Charles Taylor of Transylvania, leader of the Republican minority and a three-term advocate for the cause.

Now that the ideal is within realization the challenge is to avoid a naive approach and create a sound, workable structure, he said.

The fine line for legislative ethics, he noted, lies between access to expertise of individual members on the one hand and conflicts of interest on the other. "Our goal ought not be to entrap the unwary, but to provide guidelines for ethical conduct," he added.

The idea may be good, but its practical application, it seems to us, leaves much to be desired.

If the measure is written into law it may provide an additional charge to bring against someone who seeks to injure or kill an officer, but it does little to protect the officer who is carrying out his duties. There is little likelihood the existence of such a law would deter anyone who has in mind harming a law enforcement officer. The proposal does little to protect the officer from exposure to harm. Whether it would really afford an officer greater protection in carrying out his duties is highly questionable.

Law enforcement officers need greater protection in carrying out their duties, make no mistake about that. If the legislature can take action to provide such additional protection it should by all means do so.

Rather than enacting new laws of questionable value, we would much prefer to see the legislature order meaningful steps that would provide better training, better equipment and a greater number of law enforcement officers which would minimize their exposure to possibly injury or death.

Gov. Holshouser's first "People's Day" was a success if it is measured by the variety of problems which ordinary citizens presented to him.

In morning and afternoon sessions last Friday, the governor allowed five minutes per visit and he heard a multitude of problems.

Some of the individual problems cannot be solved by the governor or anyone else. However, the fact that the state's highest elective officer was listening must at least have had therapeutic value for many of these people.

We hope "People's Day" will continue.

That Whiff Of Protectionism

By ROWLANDE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Treasury Secretary George Shultz, President Nixon's taciturn economics czar, is dropping hints of a move toward protectionism in foreign trade to help cement the administration's new alliance with organized labor.

In typically guarded fashion, Shultz sounded a protectionist note in recent private conversations with senior Democrats on the House Ways and Means Committee (scheduled to take up foreign trade legislation following tax reform.) In return, Shultz was warned not to move too far and too fast.

The occasion was a social evening when Shultz and two other Treasury officials—Deputy Secretary William Simon and Assistant Secretary William Gifford—were hosts for dinner and a professional basketball game in Baltimore to two key Ways and Means members: Rep. Al Ullman of Oregon, the committee's No. 2 Democrat, and Rep. Joe Waggoner of Louisiana, a Southern conservative leader.

During the evening, Shultz disclosed that the administration is working on trade legislation intended to satisfy all schools of thought. Without giving details, Shultz implied the legislation would reduce tariffs while also moving in the direction of highly protectionist import restrictions in the Burke-Hartke bill so vigorously backed by AFL-CIO.

In response, Ullman reiterated to Shultz what he had told the White House previously: don't go overboard on protectionism.

Ullman has allies in the White House who fear the President and Shultz might sell out the working man in their courtship of AFL-CIO president George Meany. According to this view, blue-collar workers would suffer more than anyone from protectionist walls that raise consumer prices.

Mel's Bell

Having developed the strategy of Vietnamization and shepherded the Vietnam war to the verge of the Jan. 27 ceasefire, Melvin Laird was understandably reluctant to leave office Jan. 20 before the ceasefire took effect.

It was then, not mere chance that found his successor, Elliot Richardson, waiting nine days after the inauguration for the Senate to confirm him on Jan. 29. While Richardson's No. 2 man, Deputy Secretary William Clements, was routinely confirmed Jan. 23, Laird's friends on the Senate Armed Services Committee arranged things so that Secretary Laird could make the first announcements on the return of prisoners of war, the withdrawal of American troops and other headline news.

A canny Capitol Hill power broker, former Rep. Laird knew exactly how to peel his bell in the climax of his four years' effort to get the U.S. out of Vietnam.

TROUBLE APLENTY

Alcohol and habit-forming drugs are two factors in modern life that spell trouble aplenty. In one half of all highway fatalities liquor is in some way involved. It loosens the brakes and sometimes completely disconnects them. This situation linked to the international scandal of hijacking (modern piracy) frequently makes travel a dangerous hazard.

Drugs do not have the same effect upon the nervous system as does alcohol but their effects are ruinous nonetheless. They tear the personality of addicts completely apart. After a person becomes an addict he lives for nothing but to satisfy his craving. He will steal or kill to get money to buy habit-forming drugs. He seeks a more comfortable and soothing life but he gets nothing but increased longings and the handicap of a habit that has to be fed whether or not.

Alcohol addiction and the burden of the drug habit are two factors that go far in the blighting of many modern lives. It is inconceivable that there should be as many drug addicts as there are in this country today. One out of every ten persons who starts to drink ends up an alcoholic or a problem drinker.

The way to get the most out of our life is to live it to its fullest. We have to confront plenty of problems every day, but these problems do not necessarily blight our lives or destroy them. Alcohol addiction and drug addiction do destroy lives. We should face this fact and hold them at arm's length. They both spell trouble and plenty of it.

Not Vengeful But Just

WASHINGTON — With Mr. Nixon's icy blast the other day, a budding amnesty movement in Congress has curled up and died. There will be no amnesty, conditional or otherwise, for quite some time.

Outside the halls of Congress, amnesty appears likely to become The Movement for the next several years. After all, the war is effectively over, so far as the U.S. is concerned. The draft has ended. Cesar Chavez is old hat; ecology is hard work; black studies are a bore. The country is tired of women's rights, Bangladesh, apartheid, LSD and smog. For those whose lives are empty without a Movement, amnesty offers a perfect cause: All the Good People, such as Ramsey Clark, are on one side, and all the Bad People, such as Richard Nixon, are on the other.

If that sounds adolous, it is meant to sound that way. No one seems to know precisely how many "evaders of military service," in the encompassing term, are still alive and ducking. The term embraces those young men who never registered for the draft, those who registered but feld when the summons came, and those who took the oath to serve and then deserted. The number appears to lie at about 100,000.

That number does not include those young men who truly had the courage of their convictions—those who sought classification as conscientious objectors and served as such, and those who openly defied induction and went to prison as a witness to their faith. These men have earned respect; they have earned the kind of admiration that Martin Luther King won from his bitterest foes. And when the last prisoner is returned from Vietnam, few persons would object to honorable discharges and executive pardons for them.

What of the others? Many of the evaders, it is understood, are still in the United States. They live a fugitive life, often under assumed names. My mail brought a letter the other day, anonymous but authentic, from a youth in trouble. He was in Butte, Mont., about as far as he could get from his native Atlanta. He was afraid to go home, and afraid to stay where he was. "You don't know what it's like to stay on the move."

More than 50,000 evaders' it is said, are in Canada, another large group in Sweden, still others in Europe. They are interviewed now and then in the news magazines. It is difficult to generalize about them. Some profess contentment in exile; some, according to Time, are "anxious to settle up with their Government, but not at the price Nixon wants them to pay." Many of them exude a pietistic arrogance that curdles the cream of com-

Other Editors Say Some Progress

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Legislation against drunken drivers is making some progress in the North Carolina General Assembly. The Senate Highway Safety Committee has given a favorable report to a bill which would force a motorist to lose his driver's license for a year if he refuses to take a roadside breathalyzer test.

The roadside test could not be used as evidence in a drunken driver case but would be an indicator to the police officer that a full-scale breathalyzer should or should not be given. But if the officer chose to administer the roadside test and the suspect refused, he would lose his license pending a Motor Vehicles Department hearing.

Such a procedure could not help but serve as a deterrent to those drivers who tend to imbibe while driving. It might help cut down on the accident and death rate.

Meanwhile, solicitors across the state plan a campaign to secure legislative approval aimed at tightening the state's drunken driving laws. They will ask the General Assembly to set a standard of .10 per cent of alcohol in the blood, at which a person would be judged guilty.

Such a reading on the breathalyzer test is now considered only a presumption of being under the influence if there is "an appreciable impairment" of his faculties.

We believe the people of North Carolina strongly favor tough laws against drunken drivers. The only reason we do not already have such laws on the books is the reluctance of legislators to adopt such measures.

One has to wonder how much longer the public is going to put up with the footdragging tactics of the politicians, while the death rate, the injury totals, and the number of accidents continue to pile up on our highways.

The discrepancy between what the people want done and what the politicians refuse to do is disturbing.

Golden Key To Enjoy

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Memory is a golden key.

It opens the portal to the past where, row on row, all our yesterdays are stored. Some are lovely, some are drab — but all of them are there.

There is a release and refreshment of the soul in revisiting, now and then, the days that were. The wise man keeps the golden key of memory bright not rusty.

I'd say your key is still pretty bright if you can look back and remember when —

A boy and a girl in love could carve their initials in a tree without upsetting the woodland ecology.

Childhood was more innocent. You could have a fine time chasing cabbage butterflies in a meadow or squinting the hot dust of a rural road between your bare toes on a beautiful summer day.

The only ones absent from church on Sunday were those too sick to go.

If you told your mother you were too ill to go to school, you inevitably had to stay in bed and take a big dose of castor oil. Before anyone in the family ever went to see a doctor about any ailment, he had to give castor oil a chance to work its miracles. The only exception was a broken arm.

No girl who valued her reputation would let herself be seen sitting in the last row of seats in the movie with her beau's arm around her.

A man had a cushy job if he didn't work up a sweat on it six days a week.

Women who prided themselves on never having tasted a drop of liquor in their life sometimes got mildly tipsy in the afternoon drinking a female tonic that contained more alcohol than they knew.

When the lord of the house raised his voice in anger, the cat ran and hid under the bed and the dog tried to paw his way out the back door. But despite this, everyone in the family knew that Mama was the real boss most days.

40 Years Ago Today

Charles Boettcher II, friend of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, today was held by kidnappers for $50,000 ransom. Two masked men accosted the 31-year-old heir to a fortune and his wife at a garage as they were returning from a party at midnight. They herded them in an upstairs room of their Denver, Colorado home, remained several minutes, handed the wife a ransom note and departed with Boettcher in a car.

Plans were being rapidly whipped into shape for semi-annual "Dollar Day" to be held in Greenville Thursday. Twenty merchants, representing every field of merchandise, will be represented in the trade event this year.

Devaluation And Competition

By BILL NEIKIRK

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 10-per-cent dollar devaluation will mean higher U.S. prices for such popular items as Japanese tape recorders, German automobiles and French wines.

And, if it works out, U.S. businessmen will find their products more competitive in foreign countries.

The effect of a devaluation is to make the cost of foreign goods more expensive, since the dollar will buy less internationally, and the price of U.S. goods cheaper in foreign markets.

But this won't necessarily be universal. Monday's devaluation may not have that impact on Canadian and British goods, since both these countries have floating currencies, meaning their values are dependent on the market from day to day.

The prices in these instances depend on what happens to the dollar face-to-face with the values of those currencies.

But West Germany and France are keeping a fixed rate of value for their currencies. Thus, a $2,000 German car theoretically should cost $200 more, and a $5 bottle of French wine, 50 cents more.

It's not always this simple, however. Some companies find ways to cut their profits to hold down prices and maintain a share of the U.S. market.

Most Americans won't notice that a devaluation has taken place unless they're planning a foreign trip and are ready to trade in their dollars for foreign currency.

But a devaluation will have its domestic impact just the same. It contributes to the rate of inflation by raising import prices.

How much impact on inflation is hard to measure. Imports make up about 6 per cent of total domestic economic output, however.

The effect on U.S. jobs, a long-range factor, is even harder to measure. If the U.S. move proves successful, imports would be slowed and exports stimulated. The slowing of imports presumably would save some industries having a hard time competing against foreign goods. Export stimulation means more business, and thus more jobs.

But devaluations always take a long time to show a favorable impact in this way. It may be a year, two years or longer.

What the United States is hoping for is a turnaround in the big deficit in its balance of trade, which rose to a record $6.5 billion in 1972.

The latest devaluation also could speed up the process of reforming the shattered world monetary system, as well as worldwide trade negotiations.

Gifts Proposed For Returnees

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new car, a vacation in the Bahamas and free advice from a psychic who reads the future are among the grab bag of gifts proposed for the returning prisoners of war.

Dozens of offers from private industry, organizations, groups and individuals are flowing into the Pentagon. Each is being screened for "appropriateness and legitimacy," says Capt. A. R. Hawkins, head of the Pen-tagon's Office of Community Relations. Defense Department regulations prohibit members of the armed forces from accepting gifts from a person or firm doing business with the Pentagon, but beyond that the men will be free to accept what they want.

Hawkins says the chief concern is that the repatriated prisoners not be exploited or be used in endorsements for products.

Each man will be informed of the offers after leaving the military hospital to which he will be shipped, and "it will then become a personal matter between the man, his family and the person or organization making the offer," Hawkins said in an interview.

In addition to these gifts, the 31 stateside hospitals at which the freed POWs will be treated have received numerous offers of assistance.

A bottling company wants to provide free soda machines at one hospital. At another, free television sets were offered.

The commanding officer in each of these hospitals will decide whether to accept these offers.

Hawkins would not disclose names of the prospective donors or discuss in detail the gifts being offered returning servicemen.

But, in general, he cited these examples:
—An airline wanting to provide free transportation.
—An offer of lifetime passes to major-league baseball games.

—A one-week expense-paid vacation by a national motel chain at any one of its facilities across the country.
—In the Bahamas, a millionaire is offering his estate as a vacation place.

—A private organization would give each man a new wardrobe.

Not all of the gifts are so large. A group of third graders sent in $1.93.

The Pentagon is working closely with the National League of Families, an organization composed of relatives of prisoners and missing servicemen, and will follow its wishes on how the offers are handled.

"Their concern is that it be a personal matter between the man and the donor," Hawkins said.

passion: They are willing to come home when the country "apologizes" for the wrong it has done them.

Those who oppose a blanket, unconditional amnesty are accused of seeking "vengeance." Nonsense. The object is not to be vengeful; the object is simply to be just. Because these 100,000 men evaded their lawful obligation, others had to serve in their place; and some of these others died or were wounded. The most elementary justice demands that evasion and obdience not be regarded as equal at law.

There is more. Unconditional amnesty would condone desertion. It would give official approval to the destructive notion that citizens can pick and choose the wars they approve. By extension, we move to an anarchistic society in which men obey or disobey as they please, without the risk of punishment. The rule of law, thus eroded, would disappear.

Many of the evaders, we may believe, are among the nation's best and brightest. They are possessed of an idealism that, put to constructive channels, could be of great value. As individuals, in our human relationships, they deserve love, compassion, an attempt at understanding. But as evaders of the law, in the governmental relationship, they have nothing coming to them but justice. And justice, though tempered with mercy, must first be just.

KINSTON (AP) — Chairman of the State Board of Mental Health Joe K. Byrd said Monday that North Carolina is not providing adequate or equal mental health care for its citizens.

"In the allocation of funds and personnel to care for the mentally retarded throughout the state, North Carolina has not dealt fairly with the retarded children of eastern North Carolina," said Byrd.

Byrd said Caswell center for the mentally retarded in Kinston received less money than the other three centers on a per patient basis. "Many retarded children are the victim of this lack of regional balance," he added.

Byrd also criticized the Advisory Budget Commission's recommendations for the two "out-lying" mental hospitals, Cherry Hospital in Goldsboro and Broughton hospital in Morganton.

He pointed out, in a speech to a civic club here, that Dorothea Dix Hospital in Raleigh and Umstead Hospital in Butner have "greatly benefited" from psychiatric residency training programs, which train medical students and use them to treat patients.

"Although the Advisory Budget Commission granted a portion of the requested funds to expand the program at the other two hospitals (Dorothea Dix and Umstead), it dealt out a big, fat zero for Cherry and Broughton," said Byrd.

Byrd urged the general assembly to fund the program, terming it "vital and essential to these two hospitals who by necessity operate at a substantial disadvantage due to their great distance from the medical schools."

LPN Ass'n To Meet Thursday

The Pitt County Licensed Practical Association will meet in the Educational Building of Pitt Memorial Hospital Thursday at 8 p.m.

Dr. Jack Welch, an anesthesiologist, will speak on "Post Operative Care of Surgical Patients." There will be time allotted for him to answer questions.

This is an important meeting and all LPNs are urged to support their local organization, an LPN spokesman said.

Drama Producers Set For Membership Drive

MANTEO, N. C. — Mrs. L. Richardson Preyer of Greensboro has been named general membership chairman of the Roanoke Island Historical Association (RIHA) for 1973. The announcement was made by Mrs. William C. Friday, chairman of the association.

RIHA is a non-profit organization dedicated to an active and continuing program of education preservation and entertainment in commemoration of the first English settlement in America.

The most outstanding activity of the association is the production of The Lost Colony, presented each summer near here in Waterside Theatre at Fort Raleigh on the Outer Banks' Roanoke Island. The association also has been instrumental in developing Fort Raleigh as a national historic site along with the National Park Service.

Sir Walter Raleigh's colonies on Roanoke Island were the first attempts by the English at colonizing the New World about 20 years before Jamestown in Virginia and 30 years before Plymouth Rock.

Mrs. Preyer is the wife of N. C.'s Sixth District Representative L. Richardson Preyer. She has taught in Charlotte and Greensboro high schools, worked for The New Yorker magazine and served on various committees, boards and campaigns throughout the state.

RIHA's membership campaign begins March 1, and county and area chairmen will be announced soon. Membership contributions provide a necessary income, enabling the association to continue its historical and theatrical programs.

Snow Cleanup Cost N.C. More Than $3 Million

RALEIGH (AP) — A state Highway Commission official said Monday that clean-up operations after the winter's two big snowstorms will cost more than $3 million.

Paul Dupre, state maintenance engineers, said the early January storm cost $1.5 million, and the cost of snow removal for Saturday's storm will total $1.5 million or higher. Dupre said most of the clean-up costs were for overtime for Highway Commission employees and such items as the hundreds of tons of salt used on the roads.

Dupre said 3,000 employees worked to clear the roads, hundreds of them working around the clock.

He said the major problem now as with rural secondary roads, but said that barring any more inclement weather all roads should be clear by Thursday.

The drive for memberships is scheduled at this time of the year to provide the funds necessary for preparing and opening The Lost Colony, since no income is available until the sale of tickets has reached a peak later in the season.

The cost of producing the large production with a cast and crew of 150 and its technical and production requirements are not covered by income from ticket sales. Ticket prices are kept as low as possible in keeping with the historical, educational purpose of the association.

Seasonal memberships are available in denominations of $5, $10, $25 and $50, in return for which the members receive a membership card entitling them to one reserved seat admission for each $5 value of the membership and a copy of the souvenir program.

Life memberships are available at $100 and each contributor receives a lifetime pass to the production; donor members at $250 receive two lifetime passes; benefactor members at $500 receive two lifetime passes and their names are inscribed on the Benefactor's Panel in the Lost Colony Building at Fort Raleigh. These members receive the souvenir program for life. All members who join prior to May 1 are listed in the annual program.

Remembers 5-Year-Old Bet

BOSTON (AP) — A few years ago, Boston Bruins' teammates Bobby Orr and Derek Sanderson made a bet: each wagered $1,000 that he'd be the first to walk down the aisle to matrimony.

Sanderson lost and Orr, engaged to be married at the end of the National Hockey League season, reminded Sanderson of the five-year-old bet this week when Sanderson returned to the Bruins after a short, but rewarding, stint with the Philadelphia Blazers.

So Sanderson had his attorney Bob Woolf draw out 990 single dollar bills and 1,000 pennies which he plans to present to Orr today.

STRANDED — Cars and trucks are lined up on Highway 378 where it crosses I-95 about 19 miles from Sumter, S.C., as record snowfall hit the central area of the state stranding thousands of motorists. (AP Wirephoto)

Perhaps your next new car shouldn't be a new car at all.

It may make more sense for you to spend $5000 for a previously owned Continental than for an average new car!

1970 CONTINENTAL MARK III

1971 LINCOLN CONTINENTAL 4-DOOR SEDAN

If you're going to spend the kind of money that can put you in an immaculate, fully equipped, late-model Continental . . . don't settle for less. Move up to the prestige, luxury and pride of ownership that is uniquely Continental.

There's no better time than now. Unprecedented sales of 1973 Continentals have resulted in an outstanding selection of previously owned models. You'll be impressed with the cars and the relative cost of moving up.

However you look at it, a nearly new classic Continental makes good sense. Think it over, then talk it over with the dealer nearest you . . . before you buy a lesser car.

The typical previously owned Continental has a full range of luxury and convenience features. Air conditioning, full power and leather-with-vinyl upholstery are common.

them will be flown to Georgia to meet him, she said. Army Capt. William Spaulding of Fort Bragg has promised to come for her and take her to Fayetteville for the trip. "I just hope it's this week. I've never flown before, but I'll do most anything to see my boy after so long."

The Robinsons received a phone call from Billy about 11:30 a.m. yesterday.

"He sounded just wonderful," Mrs. Robinson said. "His voice came through just as clear as could be. Bill was on one phone and I was on the other."

"Billy said his health is good and there are no complications, that he's looking forward to getting home and just living again. He said he weighed 219 pounds this morning, which means he's almost exactly the same size as when he left."

Mrs. Robinson said he did not find out from Billy how long in advance he knew he was being released. "He just said they 'closed up shop' Sunday afternoon. He said the welcome at Clarke has been unbelievably warm."

"Mom and Dad," he said, "I'm smiling now, but it won't be complete until all the MIAs are accounted for."

At the time of the interview, Billy's father had gone to Roanoke Rapids to share a tape of the phone conversation with Billy's paternal grandparents. His sister, Jackie, was to be there to hear it also.

Billy assured his parents he would see them at Andrews Air Force Base near Washington, D. C. in a few days. The Air Force is to let them know the detailed plans for the meeting. If possible, they plan to take their daughters, Jackie and Ginger, both married and living in Weldon and Roanoke Rapids, to meet their brother. They don't know whether they'll be bringing him home or whether he'll be sent to a hospital, possibly Cherry Point, or whether he'll have to stay there for more debriefing. "Regardless, we'll see him for the first time in seven and a half years," Mrs. Robinson said. "We're just so thankful."

M. Sgt. (E-7) Robinson, 29, was captured Sept. 20, 1965, while on a helicopter rescue mission. He was an Airman First Class at the time, having just reenlisted and been sent to Thailand for temporary duty. Now he has almost 12 years in the Air Force and has had four promotions during his captivity. Of course, his parents know nothing of whether he will stay in service or of any future plans.

Hardy, now about 40, then an Army Captain and an advisor, reportedly was on a trip when he and interpreter were captured during the summer of 1967. He will have 20 years' service in 1974 and now has the rank of major.

Giving Returnee POW Bracelet

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace has worn a POW bracelet bearing the name of Col. Robinson Risner of Oklahoma City, Okla., since 1971.

Risner was one of the Americans released from prisoner of war camps in North and South Vietnam Monday, and Wallace watched on television for a glimpse of the returning POW.

Wallace said he plans to present the bracelet to Risner personally some time soon.

That 'Garbage'

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Viewers flooded a local television station with telephone complaints after a rerun of the show "The Virginian" was cut short to show prisoners of war returning.

At least 75 calls from irate viewers were received after the show was cut off five minutes before its conclusion early Monday, a spokesman for KNTV said.

"They are you cutting off our good program to show this kind of garbage that we're not interested in?" an answering service operator quoted one male caller as asking.

Another, who identified himself as a Vietnam veteran, claimed he was "sick and tired of the whole thing," the spokesman said. Almost all the complainers were men.

Offer Meal And Training

A nutrition education program is held each Wednesday for senior citizens in the Greenville area.

Sponsored by the School of Home Economics and the Department of Continuing Education at East Carolina University and the Pitt County Department of Social Services, a hot meal is served each Wednesday at Moyewood Center.

Brenda Brantley, Cathy Lipsak and Gay Haigwood of the "Problems in Nutrition Education Course" of the Department of Foods and Nutrition and Institutional Management, ECU plan, prepare and serve the meals to participating senior citizens.

The senior citizens are chosen by Social Service workers and are transported to and from the center to participate in the program.

In addition to the meal, the program provides nutrition and consumer education. Recipes of the meal served are given to participants and informal discussions of proper food choices, simple in nature and utilizing low-cost ingredient found in most kitchens, are also presented.

Obituary

Adams

Mr. Isreal Adams of 515 Hudson St. died Saturday in Pitt Memorial Hospital after a lingering illness.

The son of the late Andre and Mona Jenkins Adams, he was born in Pitt County and spent his entire life in the Greenville area.

Funeral services will be conducted Thursday at 3:30 p.m. at St. Peter's Baptist Church by the Rev. Nahon Harris. Burial will be in Brown Hill Cemetery.

Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Bettie Carney Adams of the home; a daughter, Mrs. Evangeline Hill of Danbury, Conn.; 13 grandchildren; and three sisters, Mrs. Winnie Roberson of Kinston, Mrs. Pennie Smith and Mrs. Sadie Peterson, both of Portsmouth, Va.; Samuel Adams of Greenville, Joseph and Arthur Adams, both of Portsmouth, Va.

The family will receive friends at Phillips Mortuary Wednesday from 8 to 9 p.m.

Agenda

Four items of business are scheduled on the agenda of the Greenville Recreation Commission, to meet on Wednesday at 8:00 p.m.

Under old business, a report will be made on the area and facilities presentation that was made to the City Council.

New items of business will include consideration of a horse show at Guy Smith Stadium; a report on basketball league play; and a proposal to name the Hardee property.

The Recreation Commission last met in November, and did not hold a meeting in December and January.

The site of the meeting is to the TV room at Elm Street Gymnasium.

new charges of cease-fire violations.

U.S. C130 transports from Thailand ferried the prisoners between Bien Hoa, 15 miles northeast of Saigon, and Loc Ninh, 60 miles farther north.

By midafternoon, the Saigon command said it had received more than 600 government prisoners from the Viet Cong at Loc Ninh since Monday and released 500 Communist soldiers in return. It said the exchange was continuing.

Other releases, in Pleiku Province in the central highlands and Quang Tri Province just below the demilitarized zone, have been delayed.

About 100 disabled North Vietnamese POWs were flown from Bien Hoa to Hue Monday for release in Communist territory in Quang Tri Province, but the release was not carried out.

U.S. military sources said the North Vietnamese reported they were not prepared to receive the prisoners because they lacked transportation and facilities. Tentative plans were made to try the release again Wednesday.

Three hundred South Vietnamese prisoners also were scheduled for release Monday in Pleiku, but Communist delegates to the four-party Joint Military Commission were reported to have told the commission there was some difficulty in communications with field commanders arranging the release.

The Saigon command said many of the South Vietnamese prisoners freed were suffering from malaria and skin infections.

Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, chief spokesman for the command, said most of the South Vietnamese returnees were captured in Hanoi's invasion last spring. He said the highest ranking was a major, among 35 officers.

The Saigon command also claimed 168 more Communist cease-fire violations during the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m., including heavy artillery attacks in Quang Tri Province below the DMZ and infantry assaults on government outposts across the country.

The reported violations and casualties have been running about the same for the past several days.

Hien said that, since the cease-fire officially began Jan. 28, the command has logged 2,880 Communist violations.

He gave these total casualties:

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong — 5,946 killed and 176 captured.

South Vietnamese military — 1,008 killed, 4,547 wounded and 875 missing.

Civilians — 48 killed, 265 wounded.

Meanwhile, the North Vietnamese Foreign Ministry charged the Saigon government with violating the agreement over 2,000 times.

Ocean Pollution Is 'Widespread'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government scientists say oil and other pollutants have spread in massive proportions in the Atlantic Ocean from Cape Cod to the Caribbean.

In a report Monday, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration said its ships found the pollution covering almost 700,000 square miles of the Atlantic off the U.S. coast, the Sargasso Sea and the Gulf of Mexico.

NOAA scientists estimated the contamination covered about 50 per cent of the survey area off the East Coast from Massachusetts to Florida; 80 per cent in the Caribbean and Gulf of Mexico; and 90 per cent surrounding the Bahamas and the West Indies.

NOAA said analysis of samples of the microscopic organisms that form the basis of the ocean's food chain showed that "more than half the plankton samples (young fish and their food) collected from surface waters were oil contaminated."

The oil was so thick, NOAA reported, that the three research ships which cruised the Atlantic last summer had trouble collecting samples at all.

"One of the survey ships, Albatros IV, reported that 75 per cent of the time its nets were befouled by oil clumps so thick they extruded through the mesh 'like spaghetti,'" the agency said.

It said the oil appeared to have been formed from bunker oil jetisonned from ships.

NOAA also said its researchers found bits of plastic in the open sea in the form of small disks or balls of polystyrene, the plastic foam widely used as packing and insulating material.

NOAA said other researchers at the Woods Hole, Mass., Oceanographic Institution found bits of the indigestible plastic in the larvae of fish.

The Woods Hole scientists feared the plastic might threaten the survival of the fish larvae.

For the past several years, oil pollution of the oceans has been recognized as a serious problem, and has resulted in domestic legislation and international agreements aimed at curbing it.

Some scientific studies have suggested that oil may contain cancer-causing agents which could endanger human health if they found their way into the ocean's food chain.

But the full effects of pollution upon the ocean's life forms or human health remain undetermined.

Pirates Take On Tough State Tonight

Eastern Carolina Tourney Opens

The Eastern Carolina Conference Basketball Tournament gets underway tonight, a day late, but with the field intact.

The schedule underwent a little rearranging to fit in all 18 games, including those which were to have panned the field down to eight in each division, originally scheduled for Saturday.

Snow forced the postponement of those, and kept things up in the air most of yesterday. It wasn't until after noon that the conference finally got the okay from the state to go ahead with the tournament under its revised plan.

A total of seven games will be played today, three of them at Ayden-Grifton High School, and four at outlying sites.

The latter four will be those originally set for Saturday, to rim the bottom four teams in the boys and girls field to two. In the boys' division, North Pitt will play host to Southern Nash at 4 p.m., and Farmville Central visits North Lenoir at 4 p.m., while Conley plays host to Greene Central at the same time.

In other games on Tuesday, at Ayden-Grifton, the Charles B.

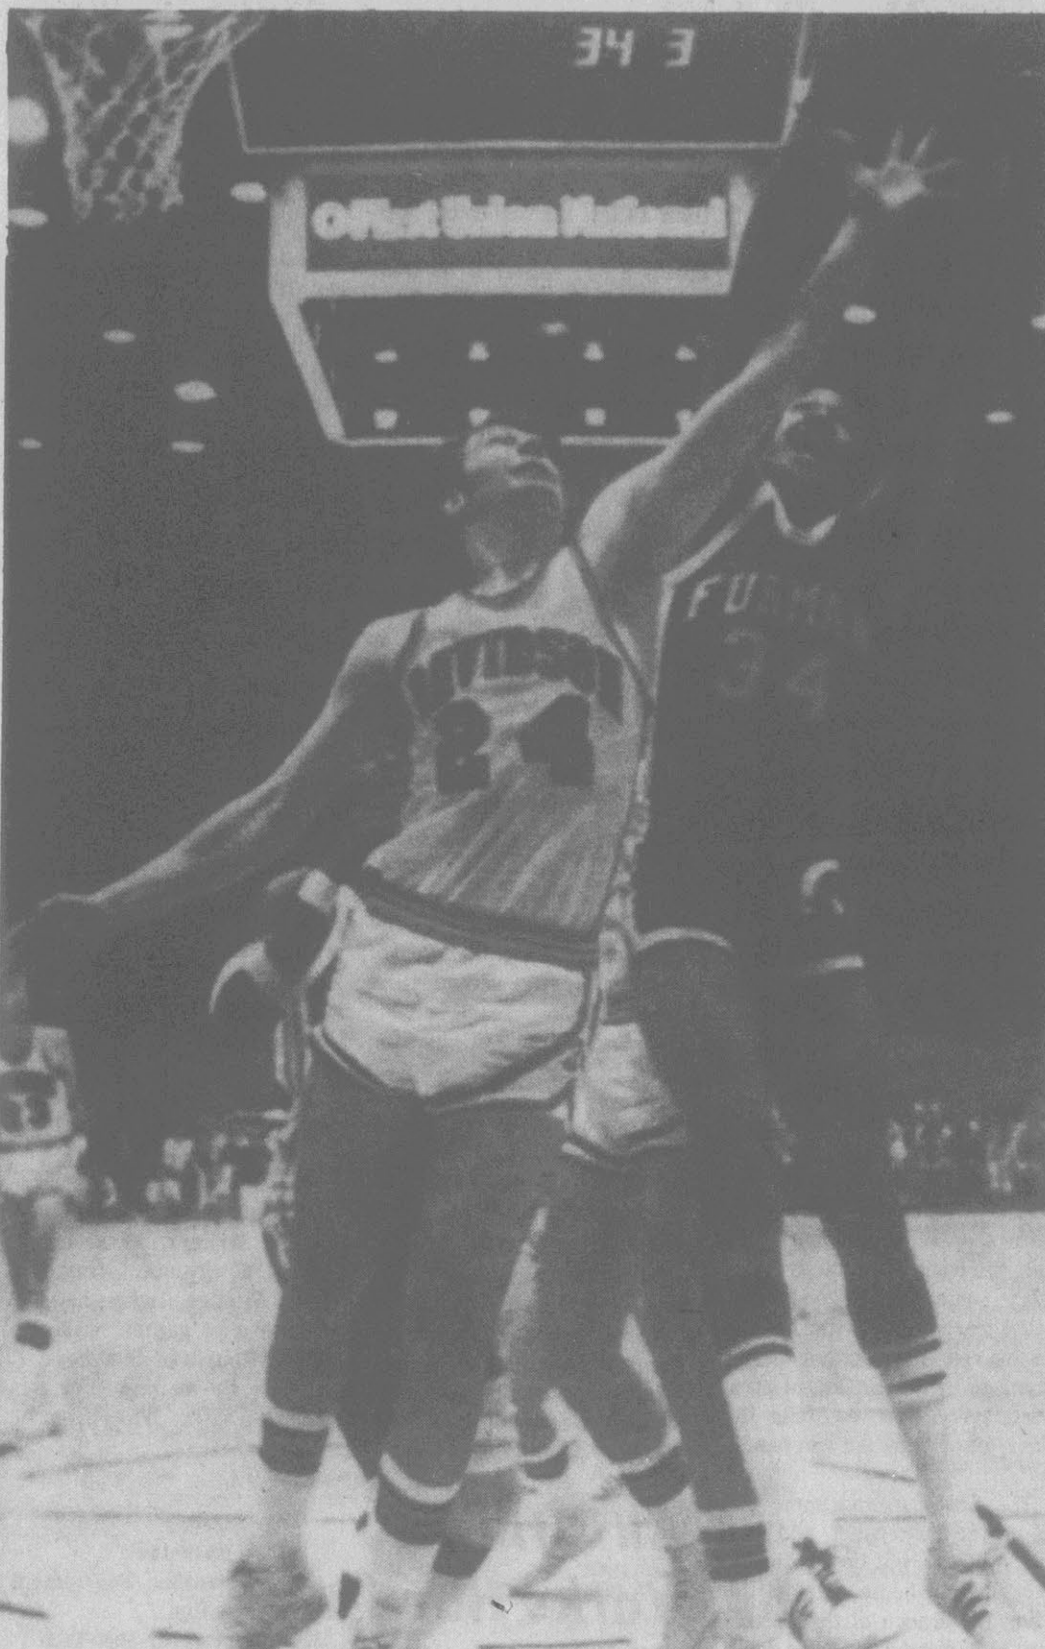

Aycock girls play Eastern Wayne at 6 p.m., followed by the Ayden-Grifton boys and the Aycock Falcons. Closing out the evening will be the Southern Wayne and Southern Nash girls.

Wednesday, Eastern Wayne and North Lenoir's boys open the tournament at 6 p.m., with the North Pitt girls playing the winner of the North Lenoir-Farmville Central game. Conley's boys then take on the North Pitt-Southern Nash survivor.

Thursday, the first game has the Ayden-Grifton girls meeting the Conley-Greene Central winner, and the Greene Central boys facing the Farmville Central-Southern Wayne winner. The upper bracket girls close out Thursday's play.

Friday, the remaining three semi-final games will be played, two boys and one girls game, with the two final game on Saturday, starting at 7 p.m. that day only.

The top five regular season finishers have qualified for the boys' district tournament, to be played next week. The only way any of them could be knocked out of this would be for some other team to make it to the finals of the tournament.

Davidson Tops Furman To Take Southern Top

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Davidson's Wildcats, picked by the coaches in a preseason poll to finish second, have all but nailed down the top-seeded berth in the Southern Conference's championship basketball tournament March 1-3 in Richmond, Va.

The Wildcats took over the league lead Monday night with an 89-84 victory over Furman's Paladins and need only to beat Appalachian State's sixth-place Mountaineers at home Thursday night in their final league game to finish on top for the regular season.

Davidson, in avenging an earlier defeat at Furman, upped its conference record to 8-1 and dropped the Paladins to 9-2 with two conference encounters remaining.

In Monday night's only other action, The Citadel's Bulldogs boosted their record to 5-5 and pulled into a tie for third with East Carolina's defending champion Pirates with a 75-62 victory over Virginia Military that pushed the Keydets deeper into the cellar.

A pair of nonconference scraps are on the schedule tonight.

Richmond's Spiders, 5-13 over-all, invade former league member West Virginia and East Carolina, 11-9, has the dubious pleasure of playing at unbeaten second-ranked North Carolina State of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Sophomore Larry Horowitz scored 31 points, a season high for a Davidson player, as the Wildcats boosted their over-all record to 14-8 and dropped Furman to the same record.

The Paladins were hurt when 7-foot-1 sophomore Fessor "Moose" Leonard picked up four fouls in the first 14 minutes, then fouled out with 4:43 left after playing just seven minutes in the second half.

Horowitz, who also grabbed seven rebounds, got 17-point help from All-Southern junior John Falconi and 16 points from sophomore Greg Dunn in rallying from a 50-49 halftime deficit.

The Paladins were led by 6-foot-9 sophomore Clyde Mayes, who scored 19 points and had a game-high 13 rebounds.

There were 17 lead changes and six ties before Greg Weber and Steve Fishel combined for a field goal and two free throws that sent The Citadel ahead of VMI for good at 59-56 with four minutes left. Seven free throws helped the Bulldogs build a 12-point lead.

Rampants Postponed

NEW BERN — Rose High Schools' basketball game with New Bern, scheduled for tonight in New Bern, has been postponed. New Bern schools remained closed today due to weather conditions.

The game has been rescheduled for Wednesday night, with the junior varsity game starting at 6 p.m. The varsity contest will follow at approximately 7:30 p.m.

Rose has one last game remaining, against Goldsboro there on Friday.

East Carolina University's Pirates, after suffering an upset on Saturday at the hands of Appalachian State University, turn their eyes tonight to the toughest opponent of the season for them—the N. C. State University Wolfpack.

The second-ranked 'Pack, will be going for its 20th straight victory of the season tonight against the Pirates, and they are one of two major unbeaten in the country.

The other unbeaten is top-ranked UCLA, a team State won't meet this year. They are on NCAA probation, and can't play in the NCAA field.

"We're just point to go over there and relax," Coach Tom Quinn of the Pirates said. "I'm not going to say we're going to have fun, but we're certainly not uptight about it."

Quinn added that the Pirates were over the emotional peak they experienced over the weekend due to the death and funeral of former Buc Jim Fairley. Seven members of the team served as pallbearers at the funeral Friday, while the rest were all in attendance. Quinn said this had an effect on the play of the Pirates Saturday night against Appalachian.

But now it's State. "We don't anticipate doing anything unusual," Quinn said. "We know it's an opportunity for us to do something no one else has done this year, stop 7-4 Tommy Burleson, and All-American Candidate David Thompson."

Thompson comes into the game with a 25.3 average, while Burleson is hitting at an 18.2 clip. He's also pulling down 10.2 rebounds a game, while Thompson is getting 8.5 loose balls.

Quinn noted that both of them could turn pro right now if they wanted to, even though Thompson is just a sophomore. "Personnel-wise, they're great," Quinn said. "They have quality depth."

But Quinn feels that against the super-teams, the Bucs are due a great game. They've played Duke, Jacksonville and Furman on their home courts and have been slaughtered on each of them. They feel maybe it could be the time to turn things around.

"I know we'll be pressed," Quinn said. "And Burleson's height makes him unstoppable. And Thompson is just loaded with talent."

But those aren't all. "Monte Towe's height, 5-7, makes him a problem to guard," the coach added. The shortest man in the ACC is averaging 11.6 points a game, and is a superb ballhandler.

Quinn also likes the play of Joe Cafferky, averaging 7.2 points a game, and Rick Holdt, averaging 9.0. "They are steady players and they are hard to stop also."

Quinn liked the attack that Duke and North Carolina used against State, but agrees that East Carolina doesn't have the same personnel to use against them. "We may try and control the tempo of the game. Certainly we don't want to get into a run-and-shoot type game with the likes of Thompson."

Perhaps one of the biggest things the Bucs have going for them against State is their record. Quinn is hoping that they might be looking ahead, past the Pirates to two other ACC opponents, Wake Forest and Duke.

But he emphasized that the Bucs are not and cannot be uptight about the game. "It's not an all or nothing situation for us," he said. "It would be nice to come up with the great upset and we're going with that in mind. I think we can go to the boards with them."

Race Set Saturday

BETHEL — The Bethel Rotary Road Run, originally scheduled for last Saturday, has been rescheduled for this Saturday, Feb. 17.

Registration for the race will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 11 at Bethel Middle School. The 10-mile race will start at 12 noon. A special 1 and two mile race will get underway there-after.

Further information on the event can be obtained from Clem Williams of Bethel, 825-9431.

Randle Says He Won't Leave EC

East Carolina University Head Football Coach Sonny Randle won't be going to the Washington Redskins as an assistant.

Randle, in Washington recently to discuss that possibility, said that he has decided to stay on in Greenville, to finish the job he started two years ago. The former All-Pro receiver for the St. Louis Cardinals, was under consideration by Coach George Allen as the new receiver coach for the Redskins.

Reportedly, Allen made his choice Monday, but it has not been announced as yet. It is believed that the new coach is someone currently in the NFL ranks.

East Carolina soared to a 9-2 record under Randle this past fall, earning the Pirates the Southern Conference championship and Randle Southern Conference Coach of the Year honors.

Since the end of the season, two members of the Pirate grid staff have resigned to take other positions, defensive line coach John Matlock, who went to Louisville, and offensive coordinator Vita Ragazzo, who accepted a position at North Carolina.

Warren Klawiter, a defensive line coach at Southern Illinois, is expected to be approved shortly as one of the new assistants on the East Carolina staff.

Pitt Tech Falls In Final Contest

WINTERVILLE — Roanoke-Chowan Technical Institute broke open a control game by Pitt Technical Institute midway through the first half last night and rolled to a 70-54 victory in the closing game of the season.

The Paladins, missing two of their starters when the game opened, moved into a controlled tempo game in the first few minutes of the half and were successful for about the first 10 minutes, working up a 10-10 tie.

But after that, Roanoke-Chowan began to hawk the ball away from them, and pulled away. They kept it up, building up a 36-21 lead in the first period of the game.

In the second half, Roanoke-Chowan hit the first two baskets of the second half to take a 19-point lead, and they coasted in from there.

"It was the worst game of the year for us," Coach Bob Turner said. "They didn't play well either, but we seemed to just give up after falling so far behind."

The loss left Pitt Tech with a 3-3 conference record and 5-9 overall mark.

Wednesday, Pitt will play host to the first round of the East Carolina Community College Conference tournament, playing James Sprunt at 7:30 p.m. in Winterville. The winner will meet Roanoke-Chowan for the title on Thursday, also at 7:30 p.m. in Winterville.

Maylen Builds Charger Strength

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The San Diego Chargers don't lead the National Football League in much else, but they're way ahead in characters.

There's Tim Rossovich, the linebacker who eats glass. Duane Thomas. And then there's Maylen.

"Maylen who?" strangers ask the imposing, shaven-headed man who serves as the Chargers' strength coach.

"Just plain Maylen."

Just plain, as his friends call him, was once a poverty-stricken youngster in the central California town of Salinas, stealing milk off neighbors' porches "so we'd have something to eat."

The resourcefulness also extended to other areas. At Salinas High they awarded letters to all football players who got injured, regardless of playing time. Maylen ran out on the field before a game, tripped over a teammate's heels, knocked out five front teeth, and won a letter. Or so he says.

Police reports back up another story of a recent trip Maylen and a friend took into the lobby of a San Diego hotel. In a dune buggy.

"There were no parking places," he explains. "So I unhinged a door and drove in. I can't go back there any more."

But in the gym Maylen, now 42, has been all business from the time he arrived here in the early 1960s, with experience as a gym instructor and $38 in his bank account.

He persuaded a dance instructor to open a small gym in his studio, and waited.

Soon people, some of them football players, started dropping in and discovering Maylen knew plenty about weight training and could teach them to multiply their strength.

One player, Charger line-backer Bob Babich, increased his bench press from 210 to 420 pounds and his weight from 200 to 243. Others were impressed enough to recommend Maylen to Coach Sid Gillman in 1966, when the Chargers fired their first strength coach, Alvin Roy.

It's been mostly a success story since then for Maylen, if not for the Chargers. He owns two gyms and has a flourishing business as a personal physical fitness coach, regularly flying to Los Angeles to make "house calls" to the Dodgers' Willie Crawford and others.

This week all the Chargers will get training programs in the mail, courtesy of Maylen. "I give them six weeks off after the season," he says.

"He gets the players to work for him," explains former tight end Jacques MacKinnon.

How? "It's my parties," Maylen says with a grin. Example: At a recent Maylen party, attendance 250, fellow free spirit Rossovich complained of a lull. "Okay, do something for me," Maylen told him.

"Then he went and chewed a few ping-pong balls. Lived things up considerably."

Regrets His Acts

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Cavaliers' Coach Bill Fitch has indicated he regrets a Sunday night temper tantrum that included chair throwing and that he'll take his punishment without further ado.

The punishment, expected to include at least a $100 fine, may be meted out today. NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy received a report on the incident Monday but opted not to act immediately.

"I don't know what's to come of it," Fitch said. "But there's only one guy going to pay for it—me."

But "this bull-headed Irishman will take what's coming. I'm the last guy in the world to want any kids to have that as an example."

Fitch erupted in the first quarter of the Cavs' game with the Atlanta Hawks. Irrate over a technical foul, he heaved a chair some 20 feet out onto the court and then stormed out himself, taking off his coat as he charged.

Cavs' guard Lenny Wilkens wrapped Fitch up in a bearhug until the coach cooled somewhat. The some 7,000 fans gave him a standing ovation as he stalked off the floor.

The Cavs lost the game, 115-107.

UCLA, State Continue To Pace College Basketball's Top Teams

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
College basketball purists would love an eventual showdown between UCLA and North Carolina State, both unbeaten and running 1-2 in The Associated Press weekly poll. But it won't happen.

UCLA, with 63 straight victories dating back to 1971, is headed for the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament to defend its national championship. N.C. State won't compete there since the NCAA suspended the school because of alleged recruiting violations.

UCLA, 18-0 this season, retained its No. 1 ranking in The AP poll with 34 of the 35 ballots cast. The holdout vote went to N.C. State's Wolfpack, 19-0 for the season.

Third place belongs to Long Beach State, sporting a 20-1 record, while Minnesota, 15-2, moved up to No. 4.

Marquette, 18-2, picked up a couple of places, moving into the No. 5 slot and North Carolina, 18-4, remained No. 6 despite dropping a three-point decision to N.C. State.

Three new clubs cracked the Top Ten, with Houston and Providence each jumping four spots to No. 7 and No. 8 respectively, and St. John's of New York picking up five notches from No. 14 to No. 9.

Maryland slipped one notch from ninth to No. 10.
Two losses last week tumbled Indiana from fourth to No. 11. Missouri slipped from eighth to

No. 12. Jacksonville, Southwestern Louisiana, Kansas State, Memphis State, Alabama, New Mexico, Virginia Tech and Brigham Young complete the Top Twenty.

The Top Twenty, with first-place votes in parentheses, season records and total points. Points tabulated on basis of 20-18-16-14-12-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1:

Virginia-Duke May Be Preview

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Virginia at Duke basketball game tonight for fourth place in the Atlantic Coast Conference could be a preview of their meeting in the league's championship tournament next month.

Virginia now holds the fourth spot at 4-4 compared with Duke's 3-4. In all games, Virginia is 10-6 and Duke is 10-9. The fourth and fifth-place teams play each other in the tournament beginning March 8 in the Greensboro, N. C., Coliseum.

Duke has won its last 15 games in its Cameron Indoor Stadium. Virginia is the last team to have beaten Duke there, 86-77 last season.

Five weeks ago, Virginia beat Duke 80-74 in overtime at Virginia.

Their return game could turn into a battle of guards, Duke's Gary Melchionni against Virginia's Barry Parkhill.

But if the Duke Blue Devils try a zone defense, the Cavalier's Jim Hobgood and Wally Walker could be dangerous. Duke's top scorer, Chris Redding, averaging 18.8, has been held to six points in two of his last four games.

The North Carolina State Wolfpack, second ranked nationally and undefeated in its 19 games this season, needs eight more victories in the ACC. East Carolina, 11-9, of the Southern Conference will try to be the spoiler tonight. N. C. State defeated East Carolina 92-57 last season.

Joe Cafferkey, one of two seniors on the North Carolina State guard, admits he and his teammates are beginning to feel the pressure of the undefeated streak, which is only four games shy of the school record. But the backcourt starter says, "It's something a good team must learn to live with. As long as we remain unbeaten there's going to be a little added pressure every time we take the floor. But I think we can handle it."

The East Carolina game will be on the State court, and then the Wolfpack will have two other games at home, against the Charlotte branch of the University of North Carolina and against Duke.

ACC teams were idle last night.

Cougars Whip Dallas, 118-111

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Indiana Coach Bob Leonard says Darnell Hillman "is becoming one of the best defensive forwards in the game," but the Pacers' second-year man had it at the other end of the court when it counted.

Hillman, who had scored eight points in the first 48 minutes of Monday night's American Basketball Association game against Virginia, got another eight in the five-minute overtime period, outscoring the entire Squires squad, to lead the Pacers to a 127-119 victory.

In the night's two other ABA games, the Utah Stars defeated Denver 119-107 and the Carolina Cougars downed Dallas 118-111. There was no action in the National Basketball Association.

The Squires led by about 10 points through most of the early going until George McGinnis began hitting to lead an Indiana surge that put the Pacers ahead in the fourth quarter. And his tip-in tied the game at 112-112 and sent it into the extra period.

"We got real good play from our guards," Leonard said. "Our four guards got 50 points and 14 assists and played a good aggressive game. Hillman did a great job. He played 51 minutes, got 16 points, 15 rebounds and did an excellent job on Julius Erving," Leonard said.

Erving led all scorers with 35 points while McGinnis topped the Pacers with 28.

Despite the victory, Indiana remained 2½ games behind West Division front-runner Utah, which got 48 points from the team of Ron Boone and Willie Wise against Denver.

Boone had 25 and Wise 23 and they both had the hot hands to turn a one-point first-quarter lead into a 60-55 halftime margin. But it was Zelmo Beaty and James Jones, finishing with 17 apiece, who turned it on in the third period to widen the spread to 95-79 going into the final 12 minutes. The balanced attack countered Ralph Simpson's game-high 28 points for the Rockets.

Dallas went through the first five minutes against the Cougars without a field goal and fell behind by as many as 16 points shortly after the half. But the Chaps charged back to tie the game 83-83.

Then it was Billy Cunningham to the rescue. The Carolina star, who wound up with 26 points, got 10 of them in the fourth quarter to enable the Cougars to widen their lead in the East to five games over idle Kentucky.

Walton Continues To Dominate As UCLA Sweeps To 64th In Row

By ALEX SACHARE
Associated Press Sports Writer
Lars Hansen received a rather rude introduction to big-time college basketball Monday night.

Hansen, a 6-foot-11 freshman from Coquitlam, British Columbia, was given his first starting assignment by Washington Coach Marv Harshman. The Huskies' opponent? None other than UCLA, the unbeaten, top-ranked powerhouse which boasts a 6-11 center of its own named Bill Walton, college basketball's player-of-the-year last season.

It started out okay for Hansen, a lean 18-year-old who once scored 69 points in a high school game in Canada. He drew a foul on Walton with his first field goal attempt, then sank his next two tries.

Then Walton took over. Final score: UCLA 76, Washington 67. And it wasn't even that close.

Walton scored 29 points, grabbed 21 rebounds and was his usual dominating presence on the court as UCLA racked up its 64th consecutive victory and raised its season record to 19-0. The Bruins put the game away in the last five minutes of the first half, outscoring the host Huskies 20-7 to take a 44-26 lead at the half.

"Walton is always the controlling factor in any game we play," observed Bruin Coach John Wooden afterwards. "Our defense was excellent, as it has been all season, until the game was in hand."

For the record, Hansen scored nine points. Senior Louie Nelson was Washington's high scorer with 16, while Keith Wilkes and Larry Farmer each scored 13 for the Bruins.

Southern Cal kept its Pac-8 hopes alive by erasing a 28-25 halftime deficit and pulling away to an 80-63 victory over Washington State.

In the only other game involving a Top Ten team, eighth-rated Providence overpowered Cleveland State 113-79 behind Ernie DiGregorio's 23 points and Marvin Barnes' 20 points and 22 rebounds.

After Cleveland State managed to stay close for about 10 minutes, the Friars broke the game open with a 30-16 burst to take a 53-36 lead at intermission. Providence, 17-2, used reserves much of the second half.

Steve Downing, a 6-9 senior center, poured in 41 points and grabbed 14 rebounds to lead 11th-ranked Indiana to an 87-66 victory over Big Ten rival Illinois.

Orv Salmon sank a pair of free throws with nine seconds to play as 12th-ranked Missouri defeated Oklahoma 64-62 in Big Eight play. The free throws gave Missouri, 17-3 a four-point lead and made a last-second lay-up by Oklahoma's Tom Holland meaningless.

Dwight Lamar and Roy Ebron scored 35 points apiece as 14th-ranked Southwestern Louisiana boosted its record to 19-2 with a 111-96 romp over Texas-Arlington.

Wendell Hudson scored 22 points and grabbed 12 rebounds as No. 17 Alabama beat Georgia 78-67 in a Southeastern Conference battle.

Thompson Gets ACC Laurels

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Sophomore David Thompson of North Carolina State, who scored 88 points in sparking the unbeaten Wolfpack to three victories last week, has been picked as the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball Player of the Week for the second time this season.

Thompson, the ACC leading scorer, had 22 points in the 76-73 win over North Carolina early in the week. In the North-South Doubleheader at Charlotte, he scored 30 points in the 68-61 victory over Clemson and 36 in the 118-84 triumph over Georgia Tech.

The 6-foot-4 native of Shelby, N.C., had one of his top performances against Clemson. With five minutes remaining in the game, Clemson had the second-ranked Wolfpack down by 57-50. Then State outscored Clemson 18-4, and Thompson accounted for 12 of those points.

Against Clemson, he made 14 of 20 shots from the floor and grabbed 13 rebounds. For the week, he hit on 34 of 56 field goal attempts, 20 of 24 free throws, and hauled down 28 rebounds.

Thompson leads ACC scorers with 496 points in 19 games for a 26.1 average.

His selection was by a committee of the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association. Earlier, Virginia freshman Wally Walker, who had 42 points in two games, was chosen the Rookie of the Week. It also was the second time this season Walker had captured the honor.

Ali Still Works Hard

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Muhammad Ali might be somewhat worried since he sparred 10 full rounds just two days before he is slated to fight Great Britain's Joe Bugner and has scheduled another workout today.

Trainer Angelo Dundee, however, scoffed at anything like that and declared Ali usually works out right up to his matches.

Bugner, a 22-year-old Hungarian-born fighter, has tapered off his workouts and wasn't as energetic Monday as his manager, Andy Smith.

At a meeting of the Nevada Athletic Commission at Cesar's Palace, Smith objected strenuously to the American-made boxing gloves chosen for the 12-round match apparently because the promoters were getting a stipend to use them.

The 31-year-old Ali and his younger foe were scheduled to undergo physical examinations today and will weigh in Wednesday morning at 11 a.m. before climbing into the ring at approximately 7:15 p.m., PST.

Although there has been little or no betting action, Ali rates at least an 8-1 choice to whip the European champion.

GOLDSBORO — The Division II Wrestling tournament, originally set for Saturday in Goldsboro, will be held Wednesday instead.

The tournament was delayed due to the heavy snowstorm in the area on Saturday.

Taking part in the tournament are the six teams in the Division, Rose, Goldsboro, Wilson, Rocky Mount, Kinston and New Bern. All six will also take part in the Sectional Wrestling Tournament, to be held Friday and Saturday at Rose High School.

Robbins Back In Gear Again

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer
DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Marty Robbins, the country and western singer, has put aside his blue stripe coat, white pants and shiny boots and donned his driving uniform again.

The 47-year-old Grand Ole Opry star from Nashville, Tenn., victim of open heart surgery twice in the last 10 years, got his 1972 Dodge on the Daytona International Speedway Monday, aiming for a berth in Sunday's $200,000 Daytona 500 stock car race.

"Shucks, driving a race car is easier than yodeling," the shock-haired singer said after tooling around the 2½ mile layout at 160 m.p.h.

"But I yodel for a living and race for fun," he added. "I have a lot of friends in the racing business, like Richard Petty and Bobby Allison, and this is one of the opportunities I have of being around them."

Robbins raced with the "big boys" of the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing (NASCAR) 12 times since 1966 and has won a total of $17,787—all of which he divided equally among his crew members. His best finish was seventh in the Southern 500 at Darlington, S.C., in 1971.

The singer said he planned to qualify his black and gold Dodge in time trials either today or Wednesday, hoping for a spot in one of two 125-mile races Thursday that will determine the remaining 38 positions in the 500-mile line-up.

Meantime, drivers took advantage of Monday's clear, mild weather to put in a full day of practice.

Jackie Rogers of Wilmington, N.C., qualified a 1966 Chevelle at 172.937 m.p.h. to win the pole starting position for Saturday's permatex 300 for older model sportsman machines. The other front row spot went to Dewayne "Tiny" Lund of Cross, S.C., who was clocked at 170.897 m.p.h. in a 1968 Chevelle.

The first 15 spots in the permatex were filled, leaving 30 more starters to be selected in time trials today and Wednesday.

On tap today was first practice for grand touring cars entered in Friday's Citrus 200 mile race to be staged over the speedway's 3.81 mile track-road course.

Some of Robbins' friends, including Petty, Allison, Bobby Isaac, A. J. Foyt and Buddy Baker, continued their warm-ups for the 500 and, with better weather, there was noticeable improvement in speeds.

Isaac, the 38-year-old veteran from Catawba, N.C., and NASCAR's Grand National Champion in 1971, qualified his Ford Torino at 180.255 miles per hour for one of Thursday's 125 milers.

Isaac had been among drivers who posted qualifying times in cold, blustery weather last Saturday, when Baker won the pole position in a Dodge at 185.662 m.p.h. But Isaac, among others, wasn't satisfied with his first effort and came back to try again—with excellent results. His speed was 174.757 m.p.h.

Petty, who was Saturday's third fastest behind Baker and Pete Hamilton, who gained a front row spot in a Plymouth, improved by three miles an hour and was elated.

Robbins, fresh from a tidy financial engagement at Las Vegas, trailed Petty around the speedway during practice runs and commented:

"Sometimes I wonder why I ever picked up a guitar in the first place. This is fun."

Player Reps Meeting Friday

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball's labor problems move into the next inning Friday when the 24 player representatives take a close-up, detailed look at the latest offer of the owners.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, said Monday that the offer would probably be turned over to the entire membership—a procedure that could take three weeks and delay the scheduled March 1 opening of training camps.

"In my conversations with many of the player representatives the last few days," said Miller, "there was the feeling expressed that this matter is of sufficient importance to be taken to the entire membership."

Baseball's latest offer came last Thursday and was accompanied by a directive to all clubs to postpone the early opening of camps scheduled for this week. Traditionally, pitchers and catchers are invited to start training in mid-February with remaining players usually reporting on or about March 1.

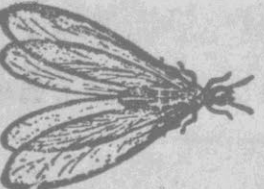

Miller called the cancellation of the early opening, "illegal threat of a lockout," and denounced management for the step.

The owners had termed the postponement of the early camps as "a matter of logistics."

Miller was highly critical of the owners' recommendation to settle individual salary disputes by arbitration, an offer described as "a landmark proposal," by John Gaherin, negotiator for management.

Arbitration is only one of the issues in negotiations between the players and owners. Also involved are minimum salaries, the reserve clause binding a player to a club until he is traded, released or retired, and the pension-benefit plan over which the players struck last spring.

Humans Unable To Comprehend

Brilliant Joe is no more puzzled than 3-year-old Junior. Both lack the extra mental age necessary to understand their problems. The Bible says we are a little lower than the angels. Our comprehension may increase in the Hereafter!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, P.H.D., M.D.
CASE W-524: Joe W., aged 28, is a science teacher.

"Dr. Crane," he confessed, "I have been reared in the church and believe in God.

"I fact, I am superintendent of the Sunday School in my community.

"But I am such a logical thinker that I sometimes get a panicky feeling when I wonder how God could ALWAYS have been in existence!

"All our scientific concepts here on Earth are based on a definite starting point.

"But how could God have his wooden blocks. Mama sees the havoc and screams:

"Junior, did you break this goldfish bowl?"

"No, Mama," fibs the 40 pound toddler as he views this irate giantess (equivalent to an 11-foot female, weighing maybe 800 pounds if we adults were now in Junior's dilemma).

"Yes, you did!" affirms the giantess.

"But how did you know," Junior feebly inquires, "for you didn't see me?"

"Oh, a little bird tells Mother when you are naughty," Mama replies.

Sometimes a boy like Junior will tramp around the house and yard with his bow and arrows, trying to shoot that "little bird."

For Junior lacks enough mental age to make that simple logical deduction so evident to all of us adults, to wit:

(1) Junior was the only freely moving object in the house during mamma's absence; —

(2) The goldfish bowl was intact when she left;

(3) There was no earthquake or similar physical upheaval of Nature in the meantime;

(4) Ergo, Junior had to be guilty!

With a mental age of 3 or 4 years, Junior is unable to perform such logic.

And we brilliant human adults may likewise lack a few more years of mental age required to understand the present incomprehensible idea that God has ALWAYS existed.

So quit fretting about it, since that idea requires far more mental age than any human being possesses!

TV Discussions To Highlight Series On 'Great Decisions'

The 1973 "Great Decisions" program, sponsored in eastern North Carolina by the East Carolina University Division of Continuing Education, will be highlighted this year by an eight-week educational television series.

TV appearances by leading experts on world affairs will be scheduled weekly by the Public Broadcasting System, to coincide with the discussion topics of the "Great Decisions" program.

Approximately 30 groups of eastern North Carolina participants will be active in the 1973 program which begins the week of Feb. 11.

Among the programs in the series are:

"The Mass Media and Foreign Policy," a panel discussion by Martin Agronski, Howard K. Smith, Herbert Klein, James Reston, Dean Rusk and Arthur Schlesinger; and "The Sino-Soviet-American Triangle," discussed by George F. Kennan, former U.S. Ambassador to the Soviet Union and U.S. Alexis Johnson, former U.S. Ambassador to Japan and current Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs.

NURSING DEGREE

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) — The University of Missouri offers a Bachelor of Science Degree in nursing, under a program started in 1950.

Other programs in the series will include appearances by Rep. Andrew Young, former aide to Dr. Martin Luther King; Sen. Jacob Javits of New York; Walt Rostow, President Johnson's National Security Affairs advisor; and, possibly, Dr. Henry Kissinger.

Moderator for the eight programs will be Reg Murphy, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, who is currently touring China.

Eastern North Carolina participants in the "Great Decisions" series will meet weekly at community colleges, technical institutes, high schools or club meetings.

MARTIN COUNTY, Williamston — Martin Technical Institute, PITT COUNTY, Greenville — Pitt Technical Institute, the American Association of University Women and the Elm Street Senior Citizens Club.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1973

CARROLL RICHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Richter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A very confusing influence prevails today and tonight and each of us doubtless thinks that by making some changes we will be able to get out of this morass of illuniveness, but it is better to hold the fort and let others see you have character and consistency than to haul down the flag and go trotting off to the new.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Open your eyes to whatever is going on at home instead of thinking all is okay; conditions can be easily improved now. Making sure that foods you eat are fresh is important. Safeguard health.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Keep an eye on your purse or wallet and do not take chances with other things as well today and tonight. Drive with more than usual care and avoid accidents. Make sure you pay those bills that are important.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Why not hire an accountant to handle your finances if you are not quite sure of what you are doing? Don't neglect to give the one you love the nicest Valentine you can find. Get back into this person's good graces.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Although you feel others are pressing you, just count your blessings and all will be fine. Dress with care and really charm others today and tonight. Get into the real spirit of this day.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) That big candy Valentine could do much to pave your way back into the good graces of one you love today. Remember shut-ins and show you are a thoughtful and charming person. Get your routine work done early and out of the way quickly.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Do your utmost to help a good friend who is having real problems and needs your assistance. Ideal day to show your humanitarian qualities. Get that business deal well handled and feel happy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You can get into that civic work today with much success following as a result of your efforts. Handle that business affair well also so that you can forget about it and all works out fine for you. Think.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Secure that data you need so you can get into the higher aspects of your present activities and be more successful. Out-of-towners have ideas that are not good for you at all. Listen politely, but forget them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Your intuitive faculties are not working up to par today or in p.m., so use your good judgment solely. Mate may have complaints to voice, but pay little attention to them. Do only what you can.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get out with friends and follow along with their ideas provided they are within reason. Tomorrow is a better time to sit down with a partner and iron out problems together. Use tact then and all is fine.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Give a deaf ear to complaints of others and get busy handling all those important duties ahead of you, as you had planned. That wardrobe matter can be taken care of best tomorrow. Relax in p.m. and renew your energy.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to May 20) Your mate may not be feeling well and could be acting strangely, so take this into consideration instead of flying off the handle. Show courtesy to others but act in an objective fashion. Do some reading tonight.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those delightfully warm and sympathetic young people who will have to be taught to be more objective while young. Otherwise your progeny could get lost in the shuffle owing to hypersensitivity. Affection is important to this child, but sports are also necessary so the rather frail body can be built up and good sportsmanship learned early in life. Give chores to do so the habit of work is acquired early.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: King of ♥
West drove his opponents into a game after they had settled comfortably in a part score contract, and then he failed to find the killing defense.

South opened the bidding with one spade. West overcalled with two hearts and North freely raised his partner to two spades. South chose to pass at this point, and West would have been well advised to let sleeping dogs lie—particularly in view of the fact that East had not acted when he had the opportunity.

When West stubbornly refused to sell out and reopened the auction with three hearts, North persisted to three spades and South had a change of mind and went on to game. East, having two aces and a singleton in West's suit, had visions of a tidy profit and doubled.

West opened the king of hearts and South played the ace. The North hand was entered with the ace of clubs to lead a diamond. East reasoned that there was little to be gained by putting up the ace inasmuch as he had no quick entry to his partner's hand. His only hope was that West had a high diamond. East, therefore, followed with the deuce and declarer's queen won the trick.

South proceeded to cross-ruff the next five tricks in the minor suits, trumping three diamonds in dummy and two clubs in his hand. With eight tricks in, he led the queen of spades which drove out East's ace and established declarer's king and ten to fulfill the doubled contract.

If East puts up the ace of diamonds when that suit is led, South can discard two hearts from dummy on the king and queen of diamonds and then obtain at least two ruffs in the North hand.

A trump lead from West originally will hold South to nine tricks. East plays the ace and another spade. When he gets in with the ace of diamonds, a third round of trumps complete the damage. South is held to one club, two diamonds, one heart, one ruff in dummy and four spade tricks.

Much Catching-Up To Await Tar Heel POWs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Capt. Jeremiah A. Denton Jr., the first returning American prisoner of war to get off the plane at Clark Air Base in the Philippines Monday, has never seen any of his seven children graduate from high school or college. But the Navy pilot, who was captured more than seven years ago, will get to see his son Jim graduate this spring from Elon College in North Carolina, where he is president of the student body.

The son suggested that a "Day of Recollection" be held at the college in the spring. Students would stop to give thanks for the men who returned, remember those who died, and express hope that the "fragile peace" will endure. Jim said he was glad to hear his father, speaking for all the prisoners, say "God Bless America" as the scene was recorded on television at Clark Field. The family is from Virginia Beach, Va.

Families of 11 POWs from North Carolina stayed up until after 3 a.m. to see their men get off the plane as the first batch of prisoners returned. Then, after the families either stayed up all night or got some fitful sleep, they got phone calls from their men.

Mrs. and Mrs. W.J. Robinson, of Robersonville, heard from their son, Air Force T. Sgt. William Andrew Robinson before noon.

Robinson told his mother he had an appendix operation in prison, but that he had recovered completely and was in good health. "He said he didn't have a scratch," Mrs. Robinson said, her voice breaking.

Lt. Cmdr. Paul Galanti called his wife, Phyllis, in Richmond, Va., and she relayed the happy news to his parents, Col. (Ret.) and Mrs. Philip Galanti, of Gastonia.

"She said he sounds tremendous," Mrs. Galanti said. "He's really happy and he's ready to go around the world."

Galanti told his wife, "I think I'll be out of here in a day or so." The couple lived together only two years before Galanti was sent to Vietnam. He was taken prisoner in June, 1966.

His wife has been chairman of the board of the National League of Families of Prisoners of War and Missing in Action and Galanti expressed pride in the work she was doing.

Air Force Maj. Herschel Scott Morgan, a Candler native, spoke to his youngest son for the first time when he telephoned his family. The seven-and-a-half year old boy has never seen his dad, who was taken captive in 1965.

Mrs. Morgan, her two sons, and Morgan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Morgan, have moved from Candler to Sumter, S.C.

Lt. Col. J. Quincy Collins Jr., formerly of Concord, was spotted quickly on television by his mother, Mrs. James Quincy Collins Sr., now of Atlanta.

Collins, captured in October, 1965 had reportedly suffered a broken leg and undergone two operations, but his mother said.

"I thought he looked real good." "I was expecting him to come down the steps of the plane on crutches, but he didn't even have a cane."

Mrs. Ann Schrupp of Fayetteville saw her husband get off the plane and said, "He's great, he's beautiful." Army Maj. Raymond C. Shrum, a prisoner since 1968, was the first man off the last plane. He was one of 27 prisoners flown out of South Vietnam. The other 116 in the first contingent of released men were from prisons in North Vietnam.

Mrs. Marty Halyburton waited by her telephone in Tucker, Ga. for a call from her husband, Navy Lt. Cmdr. Porter A. Halyburton, of Davidson. Halyburton was reported killed in 1965 when his Phantom jet was shot down. But he was listed as a prisoner of war in 1968 and was among the first group of prisoners released by Hanoi.

Mrs. Halyburton saw her husband get off the plane and said he looked wonderful. "My little girl even recognized him and she's hardly ever even seen him, except in pictures."

Fifteen-year-old Gene Utecht of Fayetteville talked to his father Richard W. Utecht, who was working for the Agency for International Development in Saigon when he was captured in 1968 during the Tet offensive. So did his 12-year-old brother, Michael, and their mother, Mrs. Luana Utecht. "He sounded different," Gene said. Mon was real happy to hear from him." Schools in Fayetteville were closed Monday due to heavy snow, but Gene said he and his brother would probably have stayed home anyway to hear from their father.

Mrs. Willodene Hatcher of Mount Airy said she saw the TV film of her husband's arrival three times and reported happily, "He looks better every time." He is Air Force Lt. Col. David Hatcher, a prisoner since May, 1966.

Business Administrating, Secretarial Science, Automobile Mechanics, Carpentry, Electrical Installation and Maintenance, Electronics Servicing, Heating, Refrigeration and Air Conditioning, Machinist Trade, Mechanical Drafting, Surveying, Teacher Assistant and Veterans Farm Cooperative Program.

All courses and programs are open to new or beginning students. The tuition for any program is $32.00 for the entire quarter. A student may take either a part-time load or a full load.

For further information concerning admission to the Institute, telephone 756-3130 and ask for the admissions office.

Airport Operators Fight Guard Order

WASHINGTON (AP) — Airport operators planned to go into court today for another try at blocking a government order to immediately post security guards at all airplane boarding gates in the fight against hijackers.

Although the order is effective at once, the Federal Aviation Administration indicated it would allow airports several days to carry it out.

Judge John Lewis Smith of the U.S. District Court in Washington lifted a previous restraining order Monday, ruling that an emergency situation justifies putting the order into effect without the notice and hearing required under normal circumstances.

He said the safety of air travelers "would be substantially jeopardized by a failure to implement the regulations."

But the Airport Operators Council International (AOCI) said it would file an appeal with a three-judge panel of the Court of Appeals. It said it also would ask for an order to delay the regulations until the panel can hear its appeal on Wednesday.

The AOCI represents 132 of the nation's 531 commercial airports. It says its members' airports handle 90 per cent of all domestic commercial air traffic.

AOCI President James K. Carr said airport operators believe air travelers can best be protected from airplane hijacking with a uniform federal program, rather than under locally administered programs at each airport.

"Our concern is effectiveness," said council Vice President Jack Corbett.
