Biggest Food Price Rise In Generation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Food prices took their biggest monthly leap in a generation last month, the Labor Department said today. But lower prices for clothing and used cars kept the overall rise in the cost of living to a relatively modest 0.3 per cent.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said overall food prices rose 2.1 per cent in January, the largest one-month increase since January 1951, when they rose 2.5 per cent.

The increase was even steeper for food purchased in grocery stores, which went up 2.5 per cent, the biggest monthly jump since the Labor Department began tabulating home food prices in 1952.

Because food prices usually go up this time of year, the increase in all good prices was 1.9 per cent when adjusted for seasonal variations. Still, this was the biggest seasonally adjusted monthly gain since March 1958, when they also rose 1.9 per cent.

Prices for commodities other than food dropped 0.5 per cent. Such a decrease is normal for this time of year, and so, on a seasonally adjusted basis, these prices showed no change at all.

The Consumer Prince Index figures released today shed no light on the effect of President Nixon's Phase 3 price controls because the period for which the prices were taken overlaps the transition from stricter Phase 2 controls.

The general trend of consumer prices in recent months has been for food to climb faster and faster and for other prices to taper off.

The BLS said food prices have gone up at a yearly rate of 12.7 per cent in the last three months, more than double the 5.3 per cent yearly clip of the three months before that. By comparison, goods other than food have gone up at only a 1.3 per cent yearly rate in the last three months, less tha half the 2.7 per cent rate in the previous three months.

Services, however, have climbed steadly at a yearly rate of 3.3 per cent in both three-month periods.

Among individual groups of food prices, the biggest jump in January was shown by meats, poultry and fish, which went up 3.7 per cent.

Other big increases were fresh fruits and vegetables at 2.5 per cent and dairy products at 0.7 per cent.

Restaurant meals went up only 0.4 per cent.

Soaring food prices were offset somewhat by declines in the prices of clothing and used cars, toth of which went down 1.9 per cent.

January's increase in the CPI puts it at 127.7, which means it cost $12.77 last month to buy what $10 did in 1958.

Over the past year, food prices have gone up 6.9 per cent, while prices of all consumer items toether have risen 3.7 per cent.

Meats, poultry and fish are up 12.8 per cent in the past 12 months. Fruits and vegetables are up 7.9 per cent, dairy products 2.3 and cereals and bakery products 2.3. Altogether food from grocery stores is up 7.6 per cent and restaurant meals are up 4.4 per cent.

Last month's rise in food prices came as no surprise because Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz, in a departure from tradition, gave advance notice of the figures two days ago during a conference on the outlook for the farm industry.

Butz said retail food prices probably had gone up between two and three per cent in January, correctly labeled it the biggest rise in the past 20 to 25 years, criticized "the urban press" in advance for what he predicted would be unfair treatment, and suggested that the American public might respond to soaring food prices by substituting cheese for meat as a main dish one day a week.

Claim Backstage Med School Plan

RALEIGH (AP)—Some eastern legislators are preparing legislation that would establish a four-year medical school at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte in exchange for a full medical school at East Carolina University, the Charlotte Observer reported in today's editions.

"The bill is just in the talking stages right now," said one unnamed eastern legislator to the newspaper. "But some people are definitely wanting to go with a medical school bill for East Carolina."

According to the Observer, the bill would provide appropriations for four-year medical school facilities at both East Carolina and UNC Charlotte.

The newspaper speculated that providing a medical school at UNC Charlotte is an attempt by eastern lawmakers to gain votes among their Piedmont colleagues for expanding the one-year medical school at Greenville, N.C.

Supporters of giving East Carolina regional university status used a similar strategy in 1967. When it appeared they would have difficulty getting enough votes to declare the school a regional university, they included Western Carolina University, Appalachian State, North Carolina Central and North Carolina A&T in their bill.

The legislation is apparently being drawn up without the knowledge or approval of members of the Mecklenburg County legislative delegation. Sen. Eddie Knox, the delgation chairman, said he had heard rumors about the bill but said no eastern legislator had come to him to discuss such a proposal.

When asked about the bill, Rep. Horton Roundtree, D-Pitt, a House spokesman for East Carolina, said he couldn't discuss the bill at the present time.

The Board of Governors of the University of North Carolina system recently approved more study of the ECU program. The board has authority to make higher education decisions in the state.

To Speed Normalizing Relations

Liaison Offices In U.S. And China Set

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and China announced today they will establish official governmental liason offices in Washington and Peking to speed up normalization of relations between the two countries.

The development was announced in a joint communique issued in Washington and Peking.

Presidential aide Henry A. Kissinger said the offices will serve as the principal contact points on the expansion of trade "as well as all other matters except the strictly formal diplomatic aspects" of ties between the countries.

Kissinger said the liason offices will have full diplomatic privileges but will in no way imply establishment of formal diplomatic relations.

Kissinger, who returned Tuesday from four days of extensive talks in Peking with Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung and Premier Chou En-lai, also disclosed that:

—Two American airmen held prisoner by China since being shot down over Chinese territory will be released in the next few weeks. They are Air Force Maj. Philip E. Smith, a prisoner since Sept. 20, 1965, and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Robert J. Flynn, held since Aug. 21, 1967.

—The life sentence of John Thomas Downey, a Central Intelligence Agency employe held since the Korean War, will be reviewed in the last half of the year. Kissinger said he had been told Downey's sentence could be shortened for good behavior and that he was informed Downey's conduct as a prisoner had been exemplary.

—The United States has no immediate plans to withdraw its remaining military forces from the Chinese Nationalist island of Taiwan but the subject will be reviewed periodically, with decisions based principally on Washington's assessment of the danger of war in the area.

—Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Chinese Foreign Minister Chi Peng-fei will begin discussions in Paris next week on settlement of private American claims against China, totalling some $250 million, and some $78 million of blocked Chinese assets in the United States. The aim will be to resolve the issues quickly through negotiations.

The agreement to establish liaison offices in each other's capitals apparently was the most significant development to come out of Kissinger's Peking talks. He said the two governments felt the existing formal channel for contact through their Paris embassies "was inadequate."

While the heads of the two offices will not hold formal diplomatic titles, Kissinger said they will enjoy full diplomatic privileges, including the right to communicate with their home governments by code.

The communique said Kissinger and the Chinese "agreed that the time was appropriate for accelerating the normalization of relations."

"To this end, they undertook to broaden their contacts in all fields. They agreed on a concrete program of expanding trade as well as scientific, cultural and other exchanges.

"To facilitate this process, and to improve communications, it was agreed that in the near future each side will establish a liaison office in the capital of the other. Details will be worked out through existing channels."

Kissinger reported that, as part of the exchange effort, China will send to the United States next year its priceless exhibit of archeological artifacts housed in Peking's Forbidden City. In addition, three scientific groups and a gymnastics team will visit the United States this year.

The United States, he said, will send the Philadelphia Symphony, groups of doctors, scientists and elementary school teachers, Congress members and athletic teams to China during 1973.

'Investment'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential advisor Henry Kissinger said today construction aid to North Vietnam "is not a kind of ransom we are paying...to maintain the peace" but rather is a "long-term investment" toward peace in Indochina.

Reporting on his four days of talks in Hanoi, Kissinger said the major focus was on establishing more normal relations and not on the postwar economic aid.

The goal, he told a White House briefing, is to enable the leaders of North Vietnam to work together with other countries "in a more constructive relationship" and to provide incentives for peaceful evolution.

Gold Soars

LONDON (AP) — The price of gold hit record highs in Europe for the fourth straight day today jumping $3.63 at the opening in London to an alltime peak of $83 an ounce.

The price of the metal has now soared nearly $15 an ounce here since the U.S. currency was devalued just over a week ago. Normally the gold price changes only a few cents in a week.

Dealers said the main reason for the soaring gold price was continued uncertainty over the value of paper money.

The dollar was weaker in early trading on most European money markets, including London, Zurich, Frankfurt, Paris and Amsterdam, but it strengthened in Tokyo.

Ponder Waste Disposal

The Pitt County Planning Board on Wednesday met to consider Solid Waste Disposal problem facing citizens of Pitt County. Regulations of the State Board of Health require that all municipalities currently collecting garbage must dispose of their wastes in a sanitary manner approved by the State Board of Health. Municipalities not currently using a sanitary method of disposal must have an approved method in operation by July 1, 1974, according to the State Health Regulations.

In most eastern North Carolina municipalities the most feasible method of disposing of Solid Waste is a sanitary landfill.

The planning boards notes that basically requirements for a sanitary-landfill—(1) Solid waste put in a landfill must be covered daily with six inches of compacted earth; (2) The bottom of the trench into which solid waste is dumped cannot be in the water table; (3) There must be a gatekeeper to direct the haulers of solid waste to the trench they are to use and; (4) The landfill cannot be open unless supervisory personnel are present.

Phillip Micahels, County Planner, reported that there are three sanitary landfills in Pitt County. One is in Greenville, one in Farmville, and one at Littlefield Cross Roads. The latter is used by Winterville, Ayden, and Grifton.

There are also four municipal dumps, in Grimesland, Bethel, Falkland and Fountain.

Michaels reported that extensive study has shown that if the present landfills and

Absent Seven And A Half Years, 'Billy' Has Changed, Says Mother

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

"When he left us he was a boy; now he's a mature, posied, courteous young," Mrs. William J. Robinson said of her son home from seven and a half years in a North Vietnamese prison.

Mr. and Mrs. Robinson and their daughters, Mrs. Jackie Robertson and Mrs. Ginger Hux, met M. Sgt. William A. Robinson about 4 a.m. last Thursday.

"We broke rank," Mrs. Robinson said. "We were supposed to wait till he saluted the colors, was greeted by the general, and so on. As soon as we spotted him comining off the plane we were running out to meet him. So was a Mrs. Black, greeting Art Black, a close friend of Billy's who has been with him the whole time since both were captured when their helicopter was shot down. The lights were in Billy's eyes, he said later, but he spotted us and grabbed me, his sisters, and Mrs. Black all in one bear hug. Mrs. Black, of course, was protesting, since she was trying to get to her son. Bill, of course was right behind his womenfolk."

"We went to Billy's suite in the hospital and talked till late in the morning. Then we let Billy get a little sleep, though all of us were too excited. Then we went out to eat."

The Robinsons and their daughters stayed with Sgt. Robinson until this past Tuesday. He was allowed to go to their quarters and was even provided a room there. He also had time to spend with his former POW friends also billeted there. "You just can't imagine how close these men have become," Mrs. Robinson said. "Also, two buddies of Billy's at his base in Thailand came to see him. Such a reunion you've never seen."

"We were gratified to know that these men really knew a lot more about the outside than we had expected. All the prisoners going in have kept the others up to date on everything from politics to the miniskirt.

"Billy has done a lot to improve himself while he's been there. He's read extensively and has studied diction, vocabulary, and the like. He says he wants to go to college now, though whether he'll do it in or out of the service we don't know yet.

"He didn't tell us anything about what went on in the prison, nothing of his treatment. He only related amusing incidents, like the men's attempt to make a birthday cake with and Kool-Aid."

"He says he's not bitter toward the Vietnamese. He just feels sorry for them.

"The prisoners knew of the letter-writing campaigns and all the other efforts on their behalf made by the American people. And they appreciate it. When Billy's plane landed in Illinois, he was televised hugging and kissing strangers in the crowd. He said he and his friends were so overwhelmed by the number of people out late at night just to greet them. Capt. Jeremiah Denton said, 'Come on, we've got to show these people some response.' He was out the plane's door and Billy was right behind him.

"This whole experience has been too unbelievable to express in words," Mrs. Robinson said, "Bill and I are just so thankful to have our son home. And hope later on to be able to contact per-

Beatings Charged

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (AP) — Two Marine Corps noncommissioned officers face court-martial trials on charges that they ordered a detail of seven Marines to beat two privates.

A Camp Pendleton spokesman said gunnery Sgt. Miquel H. Tostado, 41, of Oceanside, Calif., and Cpl. Garry G. Hutton, 22, of San Clemente, Calif., have been charged with conspiring to commit assault.

A general court-martial trial for Tostado was to begin today.

The spokesman said Hutton is accused of forming a working party of seven black Marines last October, at Tostado's order, to beat two white privates, Alan L. Forgueson and H. E. Bradley, on two occasions. The privates reportedly had gotten into some sort of trouble at the base, the spokesman said.

The seven members of the working party testified at a pretrial hearing that they administered the beatings on Hutton's order. They were not charged.

Hutton told the hearing he formed the working party without knowing its purpose, and later was too afraid of Tostado to disband it.

Mass Violation Of Ceasefire In Laos Reported

By PETER O'LOUGHLIN
Associated Press Writer

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao troops captured two towns in southern Laos today after the cease-fire began at noon and made heavy attacks on government positions south of the Plain of Jars, informed sources reported.

"There have been massive violations," said one source.

Laotian military sources gave guarded confirmation of the cease-fire violations and the size of the attacks.

Reports from the south said government troops were in full retreat toward the Mekong River from the town of Paksong. The reports said they evacuated the town at 12:15 p.m., 15 minutes after the cease-fire, in the face of heavy shelling and ground attacks by units of the North Vietnamese 8th Regiment.

Paksong, which has been captured and lost twice in recent weeks, is 30 miles east of Pakse, an important Mekong River town and the headquarters of the rightist political faction.

The sources said the North Vietnamese also drove government troops out of Muong Phalane, 36 miles northeast of Savannakhet, another important Mekong River town halfway between Vientiane and Pakse.

North Vietnamese units also were reported to have continued heavy attacks against Gen. Vang Pao's CIA-supported army of Meo tribesmen on the southern edge of the Plain of Jars.

U.S. air attacks on the North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao stopped several hours before noon, and there was no expectation they would be resumed because of the reported Communist violations of the cease-fire. America's South Vietnamese allies in Saigon have charged the Communists there with thousands of ceasefire violations, but there has been no resumption of U.S. air raids.

Depart Haiphong

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ten of 26 communist ships trapped in Haiphong harbor since the mining of North Vietnamese ports last May have left the harbor after the United States provided charts of the mine field, the Pentagon has announced.

"In our view, the map of the mine field was not enough in itself to guarantee safe passage," Pentagon press spokesman Jerry Friedheim said Wednesday. "Apparently, one of the ship captains decided it was worth the risk and the others followed after the first ship got safely through."

Pentagon sources said the ships, which left during the last 11 days, apparently were empty. This, the spokesman said, enabled them to ride high in the water and hug the shallower edge of the channel to avoid the mines.

ERA Sponsors Win Their First Major Battle In N.C. Legislature

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Proponents of the Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution have won their first major battle in the North Carolina legislature and are ready to push for ratification of the controversial proposal.

By an 83-32 roll call vote Wednesday, the House defeated an attempt by opponents of the ERA to put the bill on a statewide referendum.

ERA's sponsor in the House, Rep. Willis Whichard, D-Durham, said afterwards he was "surprised" by the strength his side had shown, but cautioned there was no way of telling whether ERA supporters could hold on to all those votes in a clash over the amendment itself.

In the back of the House chamber, Sen. Charles Deane, D-Richmond, who introduced the bill in the upper chamber, smiled as he looked over his vote tally sheet.

Deane said he would push for an immediate vote on the ratification measure when the Senate Constitution Committee meets this afternoon.

Both sides had predicted a close vote on the referendum bill Wednesday. But Whichard pointed out that many legislators who voted against the referendum might also vote against ratification.

Debate on the House floor reflected the fact that Wednesday's vote was perhaps not an indicator of the feelings of the House on the ERA, which has been the stormiest issue of the early weeks of the session.

Few legislators spoke to the merits of the amendment. The debate centered on whether the legislature would be passing the buck if it failed to settle the question itself.

Whichard quoted Harry Truman's dictum "If you can't stand the heat, get out of the kitchen." He said the people elected legislators to make important decisions for them.

"To pass the buck on this issue will be a clear-cut evasion of our responsibilities," he said. "If we cannot absorb the heat that has been created by this issue, we have no business being here."

Rep. C. Kitchin Josey, D-Halifax, presented the main argument in favor of the referendum, which was introduced by Rep. Thomas Sawyer, D-Guilford.

Josey said there were many unanswered questions about what the ERA—which forbids governmental discrimination on account of sex—would do to the military draft, marriage laws, and a host of other issues.

The U.S. Congress, he said, gave the states seven years to decide on those issues, and he criticised the ERA proponents for wanting to decide them in "seven weeks."

Josey said the opponents of the referendum were afraid to air the issues before the public and said he was confident the people would make a fair choice.

How To Get Rid Of A Lazy 'Elephant'

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: How can parents get rid of a fat, 20-year-old daughter who refuses to look for a job? She says that we gave birth to her for reasons of our own, so we can keep her for the rest of her life.

Eating, sleeping, reading, listening to the radio and doing volunteer work at the local animal shelter, and urging her little brother to hang himself, is all she has done since graduating from high school 2½ years ago.

Her skill with animals has brought her many good job offers from veterinarians, but she says she refuses to work for money as long as her brother is alive, as she fiercely resents not being an only child.

The police say they cannot help us because she is neither a criminal nor a lunatic. Two doctors have told us they cannot help us because they can't find anything "wrong" with her. So where do we go from here? We aren't millionaires, and we're fed up with . . .

FEEDING AN ELEPHANT

DEAR FEEDING: Go to another doctor! This time find a competent psychiatrist. You certainly have enough clues to conclude that the girl has serious emotional problems. She desperately needs help in getting her head together. And the cost will be "peanuts" compared with feeding an elephant.

DEAR ABBY: I am in the Marine Corps, stationed in Nam Phong, Thailand. There is no female personnel on this base at night. It is very hot and we live in huts. I prefer to remain in the nude when we return from showering because it is much ccoler. This seems to annoy one guy in the hut. Do I have a problem? Or has he?

NUDE IN NAM PHONG

DEAR NUDE: If HE has one, why are YOU writing?

DEAR ABBY: Can you get VD from kissing somebody? If you can, maybe I've had it for a year and have already given it to three people.

I didn't even know about this disease until six months ago, and the kid I think might have given it to me moved out of town a year ago.

I am so worried. I am only 15, and I'm not a slut or anything like that. Please don't tell me to talk to my parents. They would never understand. Also our family doctor is a good friend of theirs, so I can't go to him.

I have to know right away, Abby, as my grades are falling off because I'm worried instead of studying. Thank you, and hurry your answer, please. WORRIED SICK

DEAR WORRIED: The chances of contracting VD from kissing are very very slim, but if you have gone in for heavy petting, you could be in trouble.

Call your Department of Public Health. Tell them I suggested that you call, and ask for a physical examination to ease your mind. You do not need your parents' consent, and if you need treatment, you'll receive it on a confidential [and free] basis. Please do this today, and good luck.

DEAR ABBY: How long should a couple wait to get married following a divorce? I have been divorced for three years, but the man I am going to marry has been divorced only a few months. We have known each other for a very long time and are both over forty. I am not talking about the amount of time it is considered "legal" to get married again, I mean how long should we wait to avoid gossip? FLORIDIAN

DEAR FLORIDIAN: Go ahead and marry the man and don't worry about gossip. After all, a divorce isn't the same as a death. There is no "mourning" period when one loses a mate in the divorce court.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Keep Whole Picture In Focus

We're strong for safeguarding the ecology; make no mistake about that.

Reports of vast contamination of our oceans and the loss of swamplands, crystalline streams, clean air and "safe" lakes. . .the scarring of the land by mining operations and shortsighted agricultural projects. . .all make us shudder. As for litter, it frankly horrifies.

These sins against Earth and its habitants are part of the many facets of an over-all picture environmentalists get worked up about; and well they might.

Most of us today see environmentalists as the "good guys". They all wear white hats; at least it seems that way.

Of late we've been wondering if some baddies aren't wearing white hats, too.

We know, for instance, that in order to preserve our precious water supplies dams must be built. We know that to prevent flooding, canals and dams are necessary.

We know that in order to heat homes, schools, businesses, factories and such, we must have fuel and the shipment of fuel (whether by pipelines, trucks, or ships or by train), and there must be collection points, refining centers and distributing points for fuels.

Atomic energy plants are an obvious need; so too are our transportation systems. They are all needed for the benefit of mankind whose ancestors since the beginning of history fought the forces of nature to assure themselves and their descendants security and comfort in an inhospitable world. Today's men and women are still fighting for that most justifiable of causes.

In one sense, a very real sense, mankind is shaping the evolution of his environment.

But the dominant voices objecting to many specific needs wear the white hats of the environmentalists. It is by no means inconceivable that on occasion the wearer of the "white hat" is using his guise as a means of attaining goals unrelated to protecting the ecology. (Call him the "forked-tongue crusader".)

Public concern about the environment is still more rooted in emotionalism than knowledge and a reasonably balanced approach to social needs.

It seems to us that often the courts and governmental officials are panicked by the righteous protests of environmentalists and give less than the proper weight to such factors as benefits, needs and the involved costs.

A week does not go by when there is not a report of opposition to a necessary adjunct to filling human needs at costs humans can afford. Sometimes it seems the more vociferous crusaders would send mankind back to the caves.

That is foolishness.

There is a rapidly growing need for sanity in our approach to filling human needs as well as in safeguarding the resources of nature.

A very communicable disease, known as hysteria, could very well return the world to the stone age. The idea does not appeal to us at all.

Critical Issue In Tax Reform

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — Tax reform, aimed for a system with fine tuning to ability to pay, could turn out to be the next critical issue in a Tar Heel political campaign.

Examples in neighboring states point in that direction for the wave of the future, said State AFL-CIO Chief Wilbur Hobby.

"What it will take is an outstanding leader to step forward and rally the troops," said Hobby, who is convinced the strain of populism which has colored North Carolina politics is still strong at the grassroots.

BRYAN HAISLIP

A sounding board for tax reform may come in the 1973 General Assembly. Sen. McNeill Smith of Guilford has taken the lead in getting it on the agenda by sponsoring bills to repeal the sales tax on food and revise state income tax rates to fall heavier on those in upper brackets.

An intensive effort will be launched, Hobby told a news confernce this week, to mobilize public opinion on behalf of the legislation.

Wide Campaign Planned

Local unions will be asked to circulate petitions, billboards will be raised as money is available, and other organizations will be invited to join the crusade, he said. A hearing will be requested before committees considering the bills, Hobby said, in order to create a public forum for the debate.

"We believe we can generate a show of support," he said. "Our chances this session will depend on the response we get from the people in urgining them to contact their legislators."

If the fight in the legislature is unsuccessful, the issue will carry over into legislative races next year and the 1976 campaign for governor, he predicted.

It may not be obvious on the surface, but there is a mood of resentment among rank-and-file citizens at tax inequities favoring those at higher economic levels, Hobby asserted.

Political repercussions resulted in Kentucky last year, he observed. An obscure state senator introduced the successful bill to remove the sales tax from food, then won election the the U.S.Senate. He was Democrat Dee Middleton, who pulled an upset by beating Louis Nunn, Republican former governor.

Most Dynamic Issue

Henry Howell, the insurgent elected lieutenant governor in Virginia, described tax reform as the single most dynamic political issue in that state, Hobby reported.

He borrowed a campaign slogan, "Keep the Big Boys Honest," and gave a trial run to the tax reform theme in last year's Democratic primary for governor. His poor showing may have been due, Hobby conceded, to his close identification with labor as a special interest group.

While he doesn't contemplate carrying the standard again, he'd be prepared to give fervent support to the candidate who does, he added.

Part of the strategy of those who advocate tax reform is to head off efforts for tax repeal. Hobby drew a particular bead on by the drive by the soft drink industry to rid itself of the levy imposed in 1969.

"It would be a partial victory if we could defeat repeal of the soft drink tax," he agreed, "but not the great victory we are aiming for"

The AFL-CIO opposed the soft drink tax when it was imposed. It is now adamant against repeal, he added, because it is convinced no benefit will accrue to consumers.

A hearing on the soft drink tax repeal is scheduled March 7. An industry spokesman said L. P. McLendon Jr. of Greensboro, a former state senator, has been engaged as a lobbyist for the cause.

It is coincidence that Sen. Smith, sponsor of the tax reform measures, serves the same district which McLendon represented las session.

Slow Down Repealers

His package, Smith sai, "will slow up other tax repealers, thus preventing erosion of the tax base. It is on the right track for tax reform."

He added, "the sales tax on food is the most objectionable tax according to some polling I have seen, and (its repeal) will give everyone in the state some tax relief and it will increase the take-home pay of the vast majority of our citizens."

To off-set revenue loss from removing the sales tax on food, Smith proposed that income tax rates be raised for upper brackets. He suggested a rate of 8 per cent for net taxable income from $14,000 to $18,000; 9 per cent, from $18,000 to $22,000; and 10 per cent over $22,000.

Less than 3 per cent of the state's taxpapers would be affected, he said. They would get a form of revenue-sharing, he added, since state income tax paid is deductible in figuring federal income tax.

Hobby welcomed the Smith bills, and pledged support. The AFL-CIO, he said, has been a solo voice calling for "an end to tax favoritism for the 'Big Boys' and the well-to-do in this state. We have called for a tax system based on fairness, justice and ability to pay."

Until the call is answered, he prophesied, it will continue to stir currents in the state's politics.

Elections Bd. A Battleground

By JOHN KILGO

RALEIGH — Control of the election machinery in North Carolina is very likely to develop into one of the most partisan fights during the current session of the General Assembly.

Storm clouds are already on the horizon and Democrats know the issue is full of explosives.

The Democratic Party has controlled the State Elections Board and all of the boards in the 100 counties for as long as elections boards have been in the state, which was the year 1926.

Unless the current state law is changed by the Legislature, Republican Gov. Jim Holshouser will install a Republican-dominated State Board of Elections this spring.

Five members serve on the State Board and their terms are up May 1 of this year.

If no changes are made in the law, you can bet all of your money, that Gov. Holshouser will appoint three Republicans and two Democrats to the Elections Board come May.

Meanwhile, terms for election board members in the 100 counties all under Democratic control at this time, expire March 1, 1974.

The State Elections Board makes appointments to the local boards, and obviously a Republican State Board would appoint two Republicans and a Democrat to those local boards.

The issue is very deep and the thought of losing control of the election machinery for the first time ever has to make the Democrats look for an alternative.

For instance, nearly every precinct in North Carolina today has a Democratic registrar, a Democratic judge and a Republican judge. Those figures would be reversed under Republican rule.

Also, there likely would be many changes made in the executive secretaries who run the local elections boards on a day-to-day basis.

One high-ranking Republican told me: "Putting it bluntly, control of the election machinery means 100,000 votes in a state-wide race."

Some Democratic leaders in the Legislature have in-

Strength For Today

Are you about ready to retire? Have you made the requirements for retirement which your company sets up? Are you all ready to lean back in your chair, put your feet on a stool and take things easy?

If so, you are in a dangerous position. The people who regard retirement as something they have looked forward to for a number of decades are in for trouble. There is a sign which apppears along many highways and which reads "Bumps ahead." Retiring today, getting up late tomorrow morning, bathing and shaving, eating a hearty midday meal and napping for an hour or two after lunch—this may—and usually does—spell trouble.

Vast mental and physical readjustments take place when we change our way of living. Retirement is often a disappointing experience.

Are we going to take a trip—perhaps around the world? We will be sick and tired of travel before we have gone a thousand miles. We shall experience a sickly type of disappointment when we awake to the realization that the things we had looked forward to when we retired are not so wonderful after all.

It would seem that the way to make retirement pleasant is not to break off with duties and responsibilities all at once. Do it gradually. The very fact that you are ready to retire means that you have attained some age. If you think you can go back to Jack Benny's thirty-nine and do this in the twinkling of an eye, you are mistaken.

Taper off gradually as regards activity. Don't expect too much out of leisure for experience shows that it doesn't pay off as we hoped and expected that it would. Easy does it.

THE DEVIL AND THE DEEP BLUE SEA!

By J.J. KILPATRICK

Bafflement Is The Game

If you have formed an impression in recent weeks that official Washington is running in circles, your impression is precisely right. Since the first of the year, Congress has been baying like a pack of hounds on this matter of "impoundment." At this writing, the House and Senate are dizzy; the White House hasn't even begun to work up a sweat.

Mr. Nixon will win this contest. His people know every fence row, briar patch, and groundhog hole in the budget. Like smart foxes, they can wade upstream; they can leap from tree to tree; they can run across ploughed ground. Every time the House takes a befuddled look around, the Speaker sees John Ehrilchman snickering in a hollow log.

The question ought not to be who will win, but who ought to win. Here one runs in circles, too. The President is at once both right and wrong; and so is the Congress.

The President is right in trying to keep a lid on Federal spending. He is right politically and he is right as a matter of public policy. In assuming a role as Protector of the People, fighting off the reckless money-slingers on the Hill, Mr. Nixon is playing the part of Matt Dillon. This is the good guy's role, and Speaker Carl Albert can sputter all night without making Mr. Nixon the villain.

On a more serious note, the President again is plainly right in terms of fiscal policy. As last week's devaluation of the dollar made clear (if it hadn't been clear before), our nation is in serious trouble. The devaluation was brought on chiefly by forces beyond the President's control, but that is beside the point. Federal spending has to be suppressed. He is right in trying to suppress it.

On the constitutional issue, the President is just as plainly wrong. In his news conference on January 31, Mr. Nixon, who happened to be full of vinegar that day, flatly asserted that "the constitutional right for the President of the United States to impound funds is absolutely clear." Nonsense! The right, if it exists at all, is exceedingly obscure. What the Preisdent is demanding—and getting—is a power of item veto. This the Constitution denies him, and members of the Congress are rightly outraged at Mr. Nixon's Olympian disdain for congressional powers.

But what is the Congress to do? Critics in the House could introduce a resolution of impeachment, but so feeble a gesture would be universally regarded as absurd. There was talk of delaying confirmation of his Cabinet, but this was idle talk. The Congress could pass various new appropriation bills, inviting a veto, but such a course merely takes the chase once more around the barn.

The unpalatable and disturbing truth is that Congress is just about helpless. It could double the debt limit, thus denying Mr. Nixon the convenient excuse that any particular expenditure would carry the Treasury past the statutory limitation, but the President has other excuses. His constitutional duty to "take care that the laws be faithfully executed" has been buttressed in times past by laws directing a President "to effect savings whenever savings are possible," and to see that funds are spent in "the most effective and economical" fashion.

In its present condition of baffled anger, the Congress cannot even pick a nice strategic field for battle. On February 7, the House voted 251 to 142 to reinstate the Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP), which the President in December had marked for extinction. If the Senate concurs, Mr. Nixon surely will veto the bill, and the votes to override are not in sight. The REAP subsidies, amounting to a proposed $225 million in this fiscal year, are mildly useful but surely not vital. The money ought to be

To the editor;

The day approaches when our legislature decides whether or not to expand the Medical School at East Carolina University. We desperately need this expansion and should prepare ourselves to work for it. The Board of Governors has come out against this expansion, but this board is Chapel Hill—dominated and is jealous of any progress our region makes.

The people of the East, with the help of Dr. Leo Jenkins, president of ECU, have become much more concerned with health improvement. There are thousands of people in small Eastern North Carolina towns who cannot get proper health care. This problem is not getting better. There should be no arguing as to the fact that we need more doctors. Only by expanding the medical school at ECU in Greenville can this need be met.

When people cannot get to see a doctor in time when they are ill and at the same time they are hard-working, tax-paying citizens, something has got to be done.

Doctor shortage is not our only problem. We don't have enough dentist, nurses, or hospital lab or x-ray workers. No matter what category of health personnel need you name — we need it.

The time to do something about this problem is now. The whole situation has been "studied" enough.

Supreme Court Signals Change

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Earl Warren considered the "oneman, one-vote" rulings the most important in his 16 years as chief justice.

On Wednesday its lineup changed, the Supreme Court signaled a readiness to cut back, as it has on the rights of criminal defendants and other Warren landmarks.

Approved by a 5-3 vote was an apportionment plan for the Virginia House of delegates in which the population spread from the smallest to the largest district is at least 16.4 per cent.

The author of the majority opinion was Justice William H. Rehnquist, the most dogmatic of the four conservatives named to the court by President Nixon. He said absolute equality could get in the way of the normal functioning of state and local governments.

Rehnquist and the principal dissenter, Justice William J. Brennan Jr., clashed over whether the court was breaking precedent.

Rehnquist insisted that even in 1964, when the court first applied "one-man, one-vote" to state legislatures, it permitted greater leeway than in drawing U.S. congressional districts.

Brennan, on the other hand, said the court had never applied two different constitutional standards and that any deviation from equality had to be justified.

Whatever, the decision is likely to serve as a clear signal to the states that they can apportion their legislatures without breaking up city and county lines so long as the mathematical deviation is not much larger than 16.4 per cent.

Rehnquist indicated, however, that going much further may not be permissible. He said the Virginia deviation "may well approach tolerable limits."

Rehnquist's majority opinion championed the policy of maintaining the integrity of political subdivisions. Evidently, other states would have similar success in the high court with that explanation.

Some lower federal and state courts could find the ruling puzzling. As Brennan pointed out, apportionment plans for Connecticut, Iowa, Texas, Louisiana, Illinois, Kansas and Alabama had been invalidated even though the deviations were much smaller than the 16.4 per cent in the Virginia plan.

The liberal justice said the Northern Virginia suburbs of Washington will be underrepresented. Discrimination against voters in one area, he suggested, should concern the court more than county lines.

But the time Brennan and the justices who agreed with him, William O. Douglas and Thurgood Marshall, were in the minority.

A new majority had formed around Justices Potter Stewart and Byron R. White, who had reservations about the old "one-man, one-vote" decisions, and three Nixon appointees — Rehnquist, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justice Harry A. Blackmun.

The fourth, Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr., did not participate, apparently because of past association with one of the lawyers in the case.

Words That Weary

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks any man gets tired of hearing on any of his birthdays after the age of 39:

"So you're a year older. Well, that happens even to nice guys. Cheer up."

"Did you ever stop to think that after 35 every birthday makes it that much more unlikely that you will ever be a success in life?"

"Please accept my congratulations. I'm too cheap to buy you a get-well card."

HAL BOYLE

"It makes me think of when you first came to work here. You used to have a boyish grin then. What happened to it?"

"So, you're a year older. Well, hurrah, hullaballoo, and hello to Aunt Mabel."

"I suppose this makes you think about retirement plans. I don't know what you have in mind but — as a hedge against inflation — I just bought my wife and me a cemetery plot. It's kind of nice to know that when you've got to go at least you've got a place to go to where the climate ain't too bad."

"Now that you're a year older, don't you think you ought to start trying to make sense? You can't do it any younger."

"I knew you wouldn't want to eat at home on your birthday — no human being does. So, I reserved us a table at — oh, shut up, Henry, it isn't all that expensive, and anyway, you only have a birthday once a year — now and then."

"Fortunately, you're one of those people who can wear wrinkles fairly gracefully."

"Ha, Ha! That's good for a laugh. But now let's get down to the truth. How old are you really?"

"Don't let it get you down. There's a fair chance you'll survive to see another one."

"So, you're a year older. Do you ever get the feeling you're living on borrowed time?"

vestigated to see if changes could be made in the law, which would keep control of the State Elections Board in their Party's hands.

Such a move could arouse the ire of the voters, however, and no decisions to amend the law have been made.

Also, a study commission on Election Law and Reform, appointed by the 1971 Legislature, will recommend that the Legislature stagger terms of State Elections Board members, so all five wouldn't go off the board at the same time. These members serve four-year terms.

Alex Brock, executive secretary of the State Elections Board, endorsed the recommendation to stagger terms of board members.

"It takes about a year and a half for a new member to learn what he's doing," Brock said. "It seems to me it would be better if we kept some old-heads on the board while the incoming members were learning."

The Study Commission's recommendations are due to go to the Legislature this week. When they get there, look for some interesting debate on how the State Board members are appointed.

It could wind up the most important political wuestion of the year.

Conservatives, watching this chase, are likely to find their sympathies divided. They resent the President's seizure of a power that effectively could nullify the most important function of the legislative branch. They equally resent the abdiction of fiscal responsibility on the Hill. Right is wrong, and wrong is right, but if you're betting: Bet on the executive foxes.

Bicycle Race On Saturday

A ten-mile bicycle race will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday as a Heart Fund Benefit. All ages are invited to participate, and will be broken down into classes for those under 18 and 18 and over.

The race will start at the intersection of Highway 903 and Nelson Warren Road on the Stokes Highway. The course will be through Stokes and then to John L. Gray Road and return to the finish line on Nelson Warren Road.

Racers may register before the race and are asked to seek sponsors who will make donations for the Heart Fund. Prizes will be awarded for the winners in the two classes.

The race is planned in conjunction with the local Heart Fund campaign. For futher information call Bill Hunt, 752-4080.

Marshal Petain's Body Is Returned To Island

By PAUL TREUTHARDT
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — A military plane returned the flag-draped coffin of Marshal Philippe Petain to his traitor's tomb on a lonely island off the Atlantic Coast today even though it may cost the French government rightist votes in the National Assembly elections next month.

The coffin was found Wednesday night in a garage in a northern suburb of Paris. It had been left there by a group of rightists who stole it from the Ile d'Yeu Sunday, hoping to force the government to bury it in the national military cemetery at Douaumont with the other defenders in the World War I Battle of Verdun.

Police are holding at least six men suspected of complicity in the plot, including Herbert Massol, an ultrarightist candidate for the assembly, and Francois Boux de Cassan, a minister of information in Petain's Vichy government.

Jacques Isorni, Petain's lawyer at his treason trial, accused President Georges Pompidou's government of getting the old marshal's remains back by duplicity. He said the government had intimated to Petainist circles that, when the coffin was found, "it would be placed in a location of honor while the family decided on the location of the grave. It was a deliberately false indication."

Although Petain was convicted of treason for his collaboration with the Nazis after the French surrender in World War II, the sizable rightist faction has for years demanded that his body be transferred from the island of exile where he died and that he lie among the men he led at Verdun. But a burial with honors for Petain would antagonize the many Frenchmen for whom the wounds of the Vichy era are still very much open.

In returning the body to the island, the Gaullist government probably chose the lesser evil. The Petainists it angered are not likely to vote for the Communist-Socialist coalition that is the government's biggest threat in the election. But concessions to the Petainists might have driven some of the anti-Petain voters to the leftists.

Massol, 36, claimed that he organized the theft of the body.

Police said the zinc-lined, oak coffin, weighing more than 1,750 pounds, was put in a rented truck after it was taken from the tomb on the island, ferried to the mainland early Monday morning and transported to Paris. The newspaper France-Soir said it was to have been taken to Douaumont but "political arguments and logistics" intervened.

Vows Are Repeated By POW And Wife

By JOHN LUMPKIN
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Army Capt. Johnnie Ray and his wife have rededicated their marriage because, as Dorothy Ray puts it, it was as though the former POW "were dead and now he's alive."

Mrs. Ray, the mother of three, said she felt she might not see her husband again when the Army listed him as missing in action after the South Vietnamse unit he was advising was overrun April 8, 1972, in Tay Ninh Province.

But the 25-year-old Ray, from Pauls Valley, Okla., was freed from a Viet Cong prison camp last week and was flown to Brooke Army Medical Center here to be reunited with his family.

Mrs. Ray said the brief ceremony on Tuesday in the Ft. Sam Houston chapel was mostly her idea.

And Mrs. Ray, 22, bought a new white wedding dress for it, said Army Chaplain Robert Howerton of Mountain Home, Ark.

Mrs. Ray said she was as nervous as she was when she and Ray were first married 4½ years ago, the chaplain said.

Ray also appeared as nervous but smiled when his slender brunette wife appeared at the chapel door. And she was smiling when she looked into his face and began to repeat her vows.

"She said it was as though he was dead and now he's alive. She even used the word 'resurrection,'" said the chaplain, who counseled the Baptist couple beforehand.

"She was anxious for God to bless their reunion."

Asked if the couple plan a second honeymoon, the chaplain replied: "I'm sure they do."

Israel Widely Denounced For Downing Of Airliner

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israel was widely denounced today for shooting down a Libyan airliner in which more than 100 persons died.

President Nixon sent condolences to Libya and Egypt, a pointed rebuke to the Israelis. But a Lebanese newspaper charged him with hypocrisy, likening him to "a murderer who attends the funeral of his victims."

Israel said its fighters fired on the Boeing 727 Wednesday because the airliner's French pilot refused to heed orders to land after flying over Israeli military installations along the Suez Canal.

The death toll today apparently stood at 105. The Libyan airline said there were 112 persons aboard the plane, including nine crew members, and Israel said nine survivors were pulled from the wreckage. But two of the survivors—both women —died during the night.

The Israeli military command said 90 bodies had been recovered. The search for the rest was hampered by a sandstorm during the night.

The Libyan airline said five of the crew were French, two of the passengers were German and the others aboard were Libyans, Egyptians, Jordanians, Lebanese Palestinians and Sudanese. Two Frenchmen were among the survivors, the first officer and a steward.

The nonaligned group of countries at the United Nations in New York expressed "solidarity with the countries which have been the victims of the Israeli aggression" and called upon "the international community to put an end to the policy of Israel."

U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim expressed "shock and condolences" to Libya and "regret and concern" to Israel.

The London Times charged the Israelis with "at the least a reckless act of killing of civilians and, as such, inexcusable even if, in contrast to the murders of which Israel has been the victim, it was not wholly premeditated."

The airliner was downed 12 hours after Israeli commandos raided Arab guerrilla bases at the northern end of Lebanon. Israel said the raiders killed 50 guerrillas, but Arab guerrilla sources put the death toll between 15 and 26.

Arab radio and newspaper commentators said the incidents were "barbaric atrocities that the Arabs cannot afford to let go unpunished."

Damascus Radio said the attacks were a "brutal reminder to all Arab countries that they must pool all their resources for a confrontation with Israel."

The Beirut newspaper L'Orient-Le Jour said: "Israel has just proved in a most striking manner that it has only one objective—to torpedo peace efforts now under way, especially the mission of Hafez Ismail to the United States." Ismail is Egyptian president Anwar Sadat's closest adviser.

An Egyptian government spokesman said the downing of the plane was "willful, deliberate murder of unarmed civilians" and Israel will "pay dearly at the hands of the

The plane was downed about 12 miles from the canal, which is approximately seven minutes' flying time from Cairo airport. More than 24 hours went by before the Israeli military command flew newsmen to the crash site.

The plane was downed about 12 miles from the canal, which is approximately seven minutes' flying time from Cairo airport. Newsmen still were barred from the crash site 24 hours afterward.

The plane's first officer, who was slightly injured and suffering from shock, was quoted by the Israeli newspaper Maariv as telling his interrogators:

"When we found we were in Israeli-held territory, we got very frightened; and we decided to try and get out of Israeli airspace without obeying the warnings."

The paper also claimed the pilot of the airliner tried to fool the Israelis by lowering his undercarriage and pretending to begin landing. Then he suddenly turned east, gained altitude and tried to get away, Maariv said.

The Israeli air force planes chased the Boeing and, after firing warning rounds, shot at the plane's wingtips, Maariv said.

"The Libyan plane continued on its way while ignoring the Israeli pilots' instructions. Only then was the aircraft forced down, and it crashed," the paper said.

It said that, at one stage, the pilot of the Boeing radioed to his pursuers: "We cannot obey your orders because of the political situation. This area does not belong to you."

Premier Golda Meir expressed the Israeli government's "deep sorrow at the loss of life" in the crash and regretted that the pilot "did not heed repeated warnings which were given in accordance with international procedures."

All Israeli newspapers called the incident "a tragedy" and regretted the loss of life. But editorials unanimously blamed the plane's crew for allegedly refusing to heed the instructions to land.

DISCUSS POLICIES. . .Wayne Stokes and Bill Upchurch discuss tentative projects of the Pitt County Young Farmers Organization.

Young Farmers Hear Upchurch

Bill Upchurch of Raleigh, director of the Young Farmers and Ranchers Program of the N. C. Farm Bureau Federation, was the principal speaker at the meeting of the Pitt County Young Farmers Organization, Tuesday night.

Forty young farmers and their wives attended the meeting.

Burney Baker, field representative, introduced the speaker.

Upchurch said that Farm Bureau is legislative in scope and farmers voices are being heard at the county, state and national level. "Policy development is our most important tool," he said, "and we must use this tool to get legislation to help farmers solve the many problems facing all farmers in this changing economy today."

Ed Yancey, Pitt County Agricultural Extension Agent, spoke briefly.

Mrs. Wilbur Worthington told of the necessity of farm women being well informed and enthusiastically involved in all phases of the organization.

Wayne Stokes presided during the business session. Reports were heard and plans were made for the second meeting of the year to be held in April.

Selvie James, chairman of the Washington County Young Farmers, and Mack Snell from Washington were special guests.

May Get No Repairs Aid

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Residents of the coastal city of Oxnard, hardest hit by a a rolling, rumbling earthquake, face the prospect today of repairing property damage without state aid.

The earthquake struck Southern California Wednesday, shattering windows, cracking plaster, toppling dishes and bottles from shelves and causing other property damage. Five persons were reported injured; two had broken legs.

Skyscrapers swayed in Los Angeles, but no damage was reported.

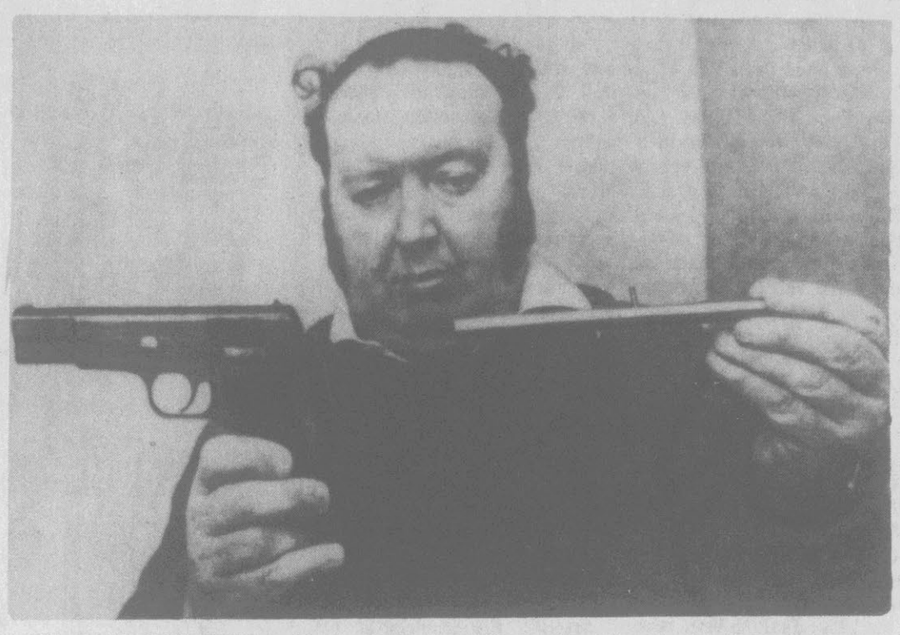

In the Oxnard-Camarillo area of southern Ventura County, 13 Southern California Edison power circuits were disrupted, cutting off electricity to at least 7,000 customers. Telephone service also was interrupted.

A rock slide blocked all lanes of the Pacific Coast Highway for more than an hour and a half.

Oxnard, a coastal city of 70,000 persons 60 miles northwest of Los Angeles, absorbed the heaviest damage.

A spokesman for city, county and state officials who toured the city said a preliminary survey indicated the loss could reach $1 million.

The quake jolted some 200 miles of the California coast from Santa Barbara to San Diego and was felt as far inland as the desert resort of Palm Springs, 65 miles east of Los Angeles.

Legalizing Of Marijuana Sees Heavy Opposition

PRINCETON, N.J., Feb. 21—Marijuana use among American adults is no longer on the increase, with the percentage of adults who have tried marijuana virtually the same today (12 per cent) as one year aog (11 per cent).

Between last year's survey and a 1969 survey, however, the percentage nearly tripled—from 4 per cent to 11 per cent.

The latest survey also shows that opposition to the legalization of the use of marijuana remains overwhelming, despite the efforts of the pro-legalization forces.

Eight in ten Americans (78 per cent) express opposition to the legalization of the use of marijuana, compared to 81 per cent a year ago and 84 per cent in 1969.

Those most in favor of legilazation are younger adults (34 per cent) and persons with a college background (29 per cent). Among marijuana users, the weight of opinion is heavily in favor of legalization, 64 to 25 per cent.

Earlier Gallup surveys offer evidence that some of the opposition to the legilization of the use of marijuana can be traced to attitudes on the part of the public that marijuana is physically and psychologically harmful, is addictive and leads to the use of other drugs.

To determine the percentage of adults who have tried marijuana at least once; the following question was asked of a national sample of 1,508 persons, 18 and older, in more than 300 scientifically selected localities during the period Jan. 26-29.

"Have you, yourself, ever happened to have tried marijuana?"

Following are the latest national results and trend:

Use Is Highest Among Young Adults

Current use marijuana is highest in the 18-29 age group, with more than a third (36 per cent) stating that they have used the drug at least once. Men are twice as likely to have tried marijuana as women. Persons with a college background are much more likely to have used the drug at some point than are those with less formal education.

Persons living in the far West are more likely to have tried marijuana than are persons in other regions of the country.

Fully half (50 per cent) of all persons in the current survey who favor the legalization of marijuana say they have tried marijuana. In sharp contrast, only 4 per cent of those who oppose legalization have tried marijuana.

This question was asked next in the survey:

"Do you think the use of marijuana should be made legal, or not?"

Course On Handicapped

Pitt Technical Institute will offer a non-credit course in Children's Exceptionalities, for parents of handicapped children.

The course, scheduled to begin March 22 at 7 p.m., at the institute, is planned to help parents deal with the special problems they have in rearing children with handicapping conditions.

Discussion of topics include areas of exceptionality, community resources available for exceptional children, methods of discipline, and ways for teaching the child at home.

Miss Jayne A. Owen, special education teacher at the ECU Evaluation Clinic, will be the instructor.

The class will meet for 30 hours, meeting each Thursday from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m.

Applications are presently being received an an indication of the necessary sections to schedule.

For further information, interested persons may contact the Extension Division at Pitt Tech.

Overdressing Invites A Cold

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Mothers who overdress their children for outdoor play may cause them to get more colds, says Marilyn Brown, consumer education-clothing specialist with the Texas Agriculture Extension Service.

"Since he is very active, a child can overheat if dressed too warmly," Miss Brlown says. "If then chilled suddenly, his resistance to colds, chapped skin and sore throat may be lowered.

BRITONS BUILD REPLICA

LONDON (UPI) — The National Maritime Museum is building a replica of a 9th century Viking boat, a museum spokesman said.

Work has been going on in a Thames River boat shop since June, 1972, to construct a replica of a faeringen, a four-oared boat, excavated from a burial mound on the Oslo Fjord in Norway in 1880.

Electronic Voting In Assembly Termed 'Essential

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt says he feels it is "absolutely essential" that North Carolina's General Assembly install electronic voting equipment.

"Not only would it save time," Hunt said in an interview, "but it would make us more accountable to the people back home."

Hunt, presiding officer of the Senate, regards electronic voting as part of a modern legislature. The system would be wired to each legislator's desk and the vote in the House or Senate could be recorded almost instantly.

Print-outs of the vote would be available for lawmakers and the press.

House Speaker Jim Ramsey says he is not "unalterably opposed" to electronic voting, but prefers the present method.

"I must profess I like the roll call system," Ramsey said. "I don't see where electronic voting would save a great deal of time. We don't have that many bills."

Sen. Tom Strickland, D-Wayne, has been trying since 1969 to get electronic voting installed. He introduced bills calling for it in 1969 and again in 1971.

The 1971 General Assembly endorsed the idea and authorized the Legislative Services Commission to look into the matter. A subcommittee made an in-depath study and recommended last year that the state should hold off on plans because of changes being made in the electronics industry. The changes would tie electronic voting into computers, and small TV-like sets would be availabe for desks of legislators.

At the push of a button, a legislation could call up on the TV screen a bill he wanted. He could also obtain information on the progress of the bill.

Strickland said he has been informed the changes have now been made by the industry and are embraced in the latest equipment.

Strickland introduced a legislative reform measure earlier this session in which he called for annual sessions of the General Assembly, standing committees to serve between sessions and installation of electronic voting.

The state has about $80,000 available for purchase of the equipment. Strickland's bill calls for an appropriation of $120,000 to supplement the fund.

The Wayne senator said a study made of state legislatures which have electronic voting shows it saves time and can reduce sessions from four to five days or more.

"We're out of step by not having it," he added.

With the legislature moving to annual sessions, Strickland said this will enhance the need for electronic voting.

Electricity Now No. 1 Hazard

NEW YORK (UPI) — Faulty wiring and electrical equipment have replaced causes related to smoking or heating as the No. 1 fire hazard in the United States, says the Insurance Information Institute.

Fires attributable to cigarettes or matches, once a leading cause, dropped to a new low of 12.9 per cent of all accidental fires.

Urged To Buy Fertilizer Early

RALEIGH (AP) — State Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham urged North Carolina farmers to buy fertilizer as soon as possible.

"Fertilizer prices are high and they are expected to get higher," said Graham. "But that is not the worst of it. It appears that there simply will not be enough fertilizer to meet the demand for the 1973 crops."

Five Art Students Are Exhibiting This Week

This week five East Carolina University School of Art have exhibits on view; four on campus and one off campus.

At the Baptist Student Center on East 10th Street, sculptor student Ronald Perkinsons of Baltimore is showing several pieces of sculpture—in terra cotta, stone, wood and other materials. Perkinsons also has a couple of prints in this show.

The one girls showing this week, Miss Krista Cipriana, has three distinct type of ceramics in the show cases on the ground floor in Rawl Building. These are cream or light colored glazed ware with subtle decoration, crackled glazes in solid colors, and dark brown utilitarian ceramic ware. There is also one large sculptured piece. Miss Cipriana is the daughter of Co. V.C. Cipriana of Clyde, N.Y.

Two seniors share the gallery of the third floor of Rawl building. Jerry W. Harris of Henderson shows small pen and ink and pencil drawings highlighting details of nature and buildings. Donald Smith has for his exhibit a group of black and white photographs, drawings, and small enameled pieces.

In the show case on the ground floor at Student Union, Jim Wade of Rocky Mount shows mostly pieces of ceramics, but also includes a couple of paintings and a few pieces of craft.

The work of the five students will be on view for the remainder of the week and can be seen by the public during normal university hours.

Visualizes A Bigger Role

RALEIGH (AP) — Human Resources Secretary David Flaherty told the state Board of Mental Health Wednesday that it and other individual boards such as the state Board of Health will play "a more significant role" in his streamlined department.

"In the reorganization, there are many fears that the boards are going to have a lesser role," Flaherty said. But he added the department would look to them for evaluation of programs. "We feel this is the citizens' input into the department of mental health," he said.

The board deferred action on a proposed plan to abolish the Geographic Unit system of mental hospitals and mental retardation centers, and replace it with Special Patient Care Units.

Under the Geographic Unit system, patients are assigned to facilities in their region of the state, regardless of their ailment. The new plan would create specialized units for various types of cases.

Pants Industry Seeing Records

NEW YORK (UPI) — Women's Lib notwithstanding, the men's pants industry is breaking all sales records. Manufacturers expect 1972 sales to show a total of 560 million pairs and the outlook for 1973 is estimated sales to surpass 590 million pairs in the nation.

The long-range outlook through the decade is for increased spending for clothing, according to Ted Houghton, marketing vice president for Farah Manufacturing Co., maker of dress and casual slacks and jeans for men, young men and boys.

Heavy Outlays In Puerto Rico

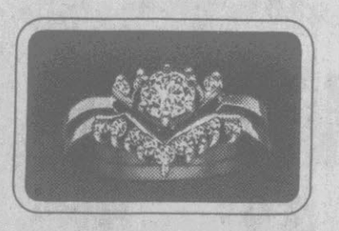

SAN JUAN (UPI) — U.S. Armed Forces expenditures in Puerto Rico during fiscal year 1972 totaled $105.4 million, according to Rear Admiral Norvell G. Ward, chief of the Antilles Defense Command. The largest outlay was for civilian and military salaries, amounting to more than $58.6 million.

For Some, Oil Found In Trees

CHICAGO (UPI) — For some oil men the stuff just grows on trees.

The oil palm, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica, produces the highest oil yield of any crop—ranging to 2,880 pounds per year per acre. An acre of castor beans can give up to 2,000 pounds of oil, about 7 times more than a soybean crop.

Ovation Wasn't For His Songs

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Singer Elvis Presley got a standing ovation during a show here—but it wasn't for his singing.

Presley was on stage at the Las Vegas Hilton when four men climbed out of the crowd of 1,750, interrupting his act. A hotel spokesman said Presley used a karate-like chop to knock one of the men from the stage. A band member tackled another, and the remaining two left quickly. The crowd gave Presley a big ovation Monday night.

The men were booked for investigation of drunkeness, but Clark County sheriff's deputies said Presley did not press charges. No injuries were reported.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices slumped today for the second day in a row as investors turned gloomy over economic troubles. The pace of trading was moderate.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 6.78 to 967.56, and on the New York Stock Exchange declining stocks had a lead of about 5 to 2 over gaining stocks.

General Mills was the most-active issue on the Big Board, down 1⅝ to 57¼.

Gulf Oil was on the active list, ahead ⅝ to 25⅞. Gulf announced plans for a tender offer for 10 million shares at $26 a share.

Several airline issues were among the retreating stocks. Continental was down 1 to 13¼, and American was off ¼ to 18⅜. Texaco dipped ⅛ to 39¾.

Gold Stocks were at the top of the active list at the American Stock Exchange. Wright-Hargreaves was the volume leader, up 1-16 to 1 5-16 followed by Day Mines, ahead ⅜ at 9⅝.

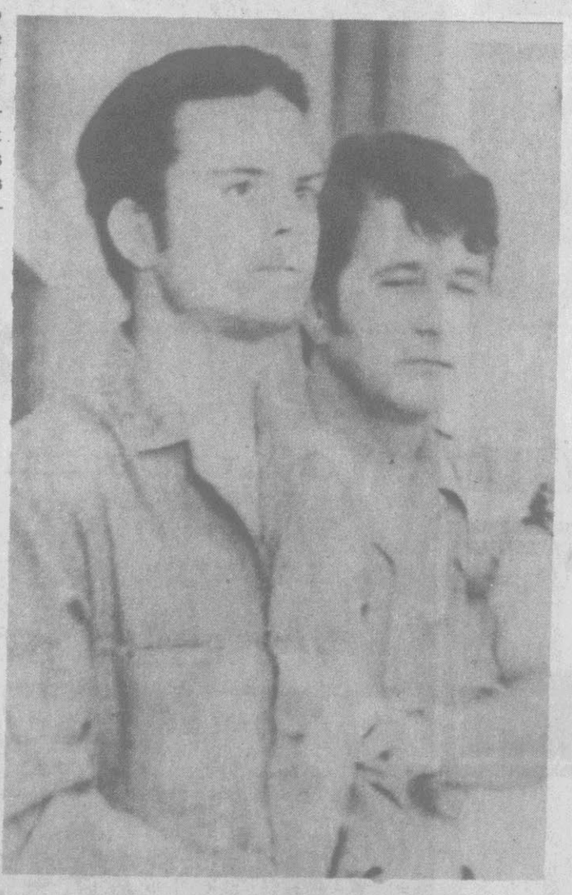

Houston Oil & Mineral was off ⅞ to 29¾.

At 11 a.m. the New York Stock Exchange index was down .36 to 61.33.

The price-change index at the Amex was off .05 to 25.19.

..ACCUSED SLAYER OF 10 — Hubert Mullin, 25, (left) shown leaving court after being arraigned on charges of killing six persons now faces new charges. Santa Cruz (Calif.) District Atty. Peter Chang says he will ask for a grand jury indictment against Mullin in collection with the shooting to death of four young men found in a forest area shack, each shot through the head. There have been 13 slayings in the area for the past six weeks. (AP Wirephoto)

Plant Repair Progresses

Work is progressing on reconstruction at the Union Carbide plant here damaged in an early morning explosion January 14, according to plant manager F. T. Motsinger.

No firm estimate has yet been made of the damage to the building and equipment, Motsinger noted. He added, however, "it is not as bad as originally estimated, but it's still extensive."

About 80 feet of an outside concrete wall was ripped out and heavy damage caused to the interior of the plant when a buidup of gas in a boiler room on the south-side of the facility exploded.

According to Motsinger, the plant returned to "about 90 to 95 per cent or our normal production level" within a week after the explosion and has "maintained that level since."

The manager noted, "without the cooperation of a lot of people in the area, we would not have been able to get back into production as fast as we did ... we're very appreciative."

Reconstruction and renovation at the plant is expected to be completed, "we hope by April 1," Motsinger explained.

Waste . . .

dumps were replaced with one centrally located landfills, substantial savings would result. Since several of the towns will have to replace their open dumps with landfills, and there is a possibility that one or more of the present landfills will have to be relocated in order to meet the ground water requirements of the new state regulations, Michaels indicated substantial savings could be realized if local governments worked together to use one landfill site instead of several.

One way of reducing the cost is to provide more service to rural areas and to industries through the County Government offering exclusive franchise for the collection of waste.

The Pitt Planning Board passed a resolution recommending the plan proposed to the Pitt County Board of County Commissioners for consideration as a method of solid waste disposal for towns, industries, and rural residents of Pitt County.

In addition, the Board directed the county planner to arrange a meeting of the Pitt Planning Board, Pitt County Commissioners, and the town councilmen and mayors of the towns in Pitt County.

This is expected to be held early next week.

Lumber Cost To Level Off

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Spiraling costs of lumber over the last six months are expected to level off in time for the traditional spring and summer housing boom, a forestry institute official claims.

Jack E. Meadows, newly elected president of the Southern Forest Institute Inc., said lumber prices that have risen as much as $50 a thousand square feet to about $175 during the last six months are expected to taper off.

Meadows said the current wide range in prices to wholesalers will continue because many producers, such as his own firm, Georgia-Pacific Corp., continue to operate under agreements reached with the government in Phase 2 of Nixon's economic program.

Outgoing president Fred C. Gragg of International Paper Co., told industry representatives at the association's annual convention that the Third Forest Program has not produced necessary results.

The program attempts to encourage small private land owners to use their land for tree farming.

Driver Charged After Accident In Early Hours

A Greenville man was charged with driving under the influence early today following a wreck that resulted in damages to his car, a utility pole and a house.

Police charged Arnold Taft Jr. of 1013 Fairfax Avenue following investigation of the 1:05 a.m. accident that occurred near the White Street-Colonial Avenue intersection.

Investigating officers, who reported that a passenger in the car, Arvin Smith of 1013 Farifax Avenue, was injured, said that the car driven by Taft left the street and hit a utility pole before running into a house owned by Mrs. Bessie Rountree, 1016 Colonial Avenue.

Officers estimated damages to the vehicle at $800 and $300 to the pole and house.

Network Movie Won't Be Viewed On Channel 9

WNCT-TV Channel 9 will not show the movie "Whose Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" tonight, Program Director Ed Fields said today.

"Our decision was strictly our own," Fields said.

"We felt the editing job CBS did on the film left in what would be brutally offensive language to the vast majority of our viewers."

The film is being carried by the CBS television network, but Fields said a local movie will be telecast instead.

WNCT-TV officials are also concerned about reports that CBS will carry X rated movies.

"The management (of WNCT-TV) has gone on record that it will not televise any movie that has been rated either X or R by the Motion Picture Code Office," Fields said. "The statement of this policy was prompted by a recent move by some to chastise the CBS television network for an alleged announcement that CBS planned to televise X rated movies.

"WNCT-TV is affiliated with CBS. Management of WNCT-TV has been repeatedly assured by CBS officials that the network has no intention of televising X rated movies."

Thomas J. Swafford, vice president of CBS program practices was quoted as saying, "The CBS television network has made no announcement that it plans to run X rated movies. I cannot be too emphatic in stressing that CBS has no intention of broadcasting X rated movies nor has it ever had any such intention."

Fields said the policy of not televising X or R rated movies has been in effect for many years.

Resolutions Adopted By Winterville's Town Bd.

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville Board of Aldermen passed a number of resolutions to correspond with the new municipal election laws in a special board meeting Tuesday.

The town adopted a resolution stating that it would conduct its own municipal election and that the town would hold its own registration under Method C. (Under this method the registrar for the town of Winterville will copy the Pitt County registration books for registered voters who live in Winterville and are registered voters who live in Winterville and are registered in the county book only).

According to Elwood Nobles, Winterville town clerk, if a resident of Winterville registers with the county board, he is automatically registered with the town of Winterville. This eliminates the need to register in both places.

Also approved was a resolution extending the mayor's term of service from a two-year period to a four-year period. The town aldermen will serve four-year-terms instead of the current three-year-terms.

Under the new law, municipal elections will be held on odd years instead of each year as Winterville as done in the past.

Also approved last night was an ordinance prohibiting dogs to run at large within the town limits, to become effective March 1.

According to Nobles, at-large means off the owner's premise and not under control by cord, chain or leash.

Copies of the ordinance will be distributed throughout the town and dog owners who fail to comply with the ordinance will be fined.

The town has built its own dog pound which will be placed in different sections of the town at various times.

Two Carriers Ordered Home

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy has ordered two aircraft carriers home from Asian waters, the first significant cutback in U.S. air-sea power there since the Vietnam ceasefire.

The Midway is due back at Alameda, Calif., in early March and the America at Norfolk, Va., late in March.

Departure of the carriers reduces the number of U.S. bombers and attack planes deployed near Indochina by approximately 100.

Four other carriers, with a total complement of about 200 strike planes, remain with the 7th Fleet in the Far East. But further reductions are expected in the fleet of nearly 60 U.S. fighting ships mustered off Vietnam nearly a year ago when President Nixon reopened the air and naval war against North Vietnam.

Meanwhile, there is no word of any imminent scaledown of the more than 600 Air Force bombers and fighter-bombers stationed in Thailand and on Guam.

Although there is a cease-fire in Vietnam and Laos, Pentagon sources discount the possibility of any substantial pullout of U.S. Air Force planes from Southeast Asia before all U.S. war prisoners are home and the remaining American troops are out of South Vietnam in late March.

The Navy, with a shrinking fleet, has had to strain its ship and manpower resources to maintain a large force on extended deployment off Vietnam and simultaneously to meet its commitments in the Mediterranean and elsewhere.

The normal deployment of a carrier abroad is about six months. The Midway has been in the Far East nearly 10 months, the America will have spent nine months.

Comedian Wins Paternity Suit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian Flip Wilson is not the father of a baby boy, as alleged by dancer Mabel Robinson, a Superior Court judge here has ruled.

Judge Harry L. Hupp ruled Wednesday against the woman, who had contended that Wilson was the father of her 8½-month-old son. The judge did not explain the reasons for his ruling other than to say it was based "on the evidence submitted to me."

On Tuesday, Rosylin "Roz" Taylor said she and Wilson planned to marry in about six months. Wilson and Miss Taylor were in Redding to visit her parents.

Ayden-Grifton, Greene Central Winners

THERE IT GOES — Ayden-Grifton's Willie Stewart, right, watches the basketball sail after a shot had been blocked by West Craven's Jerry Jones (43). Lorenzo Jones (41) watches from the left, and Ayden-Grifton's Travis Woods is behind at right. Ayden-Grifton romped to victory in the quarter-final round of the District II, 3-A Tournament, 67-43. WHEAT SWAMP — Ayden-Grifton and Greene Central easily vaulted into the semi-finals of the District II, 3-A Basketball Tournament last night with runaway victories.

The wins eliminated the last two entries of the Coastal Conference, making it an all-Eastern Carolina Conference finale. The Chargers ripped West Craven, 67-43, while Green Central rolled to a 74-49 win over Havelock.

On Tuesday night, Eastern Wayne had eliminated the third Coastal team, West Cartaret, while North Lenoir knocked off family member D.H. Conley.

Tonight, in the semi-finals, Ayden-Grifton faces North Lenoir, while Greene Central takes on Eastern Wayne. The finals will be held on Friday night.

Ayden-Grifton had little trouble in disposing of the Eagles of West Cartaret, although the game was fairly close until the final seconds of the half. In the second half, West Craven forgot where the basket was, and the Chargers zipped to as much as a 30-point lead in the win.

West Craven, going 9-for-40 in the second half, including a 3-for-20 third period, shot only 26.4 per cent for the game. Ayden-Grifton, meanwhile, burned the nets for 9-of-16 in the third period and ended up with a fine 49.1 percentage for the game, despite playing the reserves for most of the final period.

The margin of victory may have been even greater had not the Chargers been guilty of 28 turnovers in the contest, 10 more than West Craven.

The Chargers led from the start. Melvin Stewart who sparked the first half with 16 of his 21 points, hit from underneath in the first minute of play, then added two free throws for a 4-0 lead before West Craven could score. The Eagles cut it back to one with a basket by Jerry Jones and a free throw by Lorenzo Jones, but Jesse Brown got two charity shots and Milton Brown hit a basket to run it back to five for the Chargers. They held that until Brown hit a jumper with 1:30 left to up it to seven, 14-7. Stewart added another jumper with 32 seconds left for a 16-7 lead, but Mark Best hit a baseline shot with 15 seconds left to trim it to 16-9.

Early in the second period, the Eagles put on a brief rally to cut it to four points. After Ayden-Grifton scored the first basket, Best hit off a fast break and Clay Jordan hit a jumper. Best scored from the line and the lead was cut to 18-14. But the Chargers pulled away again after that. Stewart got it going with a jumper and a basket by Travis Woods and a free throw by Jesse Brown upped it to 23-14 with 5:17 left. The two teams exchanged shots for most of the rest of the period, but Willie Stewart drove in to shoot right at the horn, scoring and drawing a foul. He hit the third point to run the lead to 34-22 at halftime.

The third quarter saw the Chargers put the game on ice. Melvin Stewart and Milton Brown both hit to open the period, and after a West Craven free throw, Woods hit to up it to 17. After another Eagle bucket, Brown and Willie Stewart hit and Brown added a three-point play to run the lead to 24, 49-25. They eventually upped it to 27, 56-29, the score at the end of the period.

The final quarter merely set the final margin. The lead climbed to as much as 30, 64-34 when Stewart scored on a fast break with 4:37 left. That brought the starters to the sidelines for the rest of the game.

While Stewart's 21 led the Chargers, Brown added 14 and Woods had 12. Jerry Jones and Best led West Craven with 13 each.

The second game was almost a repeat of the first. Greene Central outhit Havelock, 45.8 per cent to 39.6, although the turnover situation was to Greene Central's benefit, 20-14.

They broke the game open a little earlier too, but never got their lead past 27 points.

Havelock did hold the lead, but only briefly, at 2-0. That came on the opening basket by Eric Brown. Kenny Williams tied it up for the Rams and Ervin Spivey put them into the lead with a jumper with 6:18 left. They were never caught again. Williams upped the lead to four, and it seldom fell below that for most of the period. The two exchanged baskets for most of the period, with Greene finally getting a six-point edge on Jackie Sherrill's drive with 54 seconds left to make it 16-10. They held an 18-12 lead at the end of the period.

Moses Barron hit to open the second period, and after an exchange of baskets, Spivey popped in a jumper to up the lead to 10, 24-14. He added two free throws with not quite three minutes gone and the lead went to 12. After another exchange of baskets, Spivey hit on a follow shot and Williams added two free throws to run the lead out to 16 points, 32-15 with 2:14 left.

Havelock cut it back to 12 on baskets by Eddie Handford and Jacob Dove, but a three-point play pushed the lead back to 15 before the half ended with the Rams ahead, 37-24.

Havelock got the first basket of the second half, and the two traded shots until Stevie Williamson hit a free throw to up the lead to 14 again, 44-30. A minute later, Sherrill scored off the fast break to run the lead to 16, and he added a free throw in the final minute to make it 17. Lonnie Artis was fouled at the horn, making one shot to run the lead to 52-34, an 18-point spread.

In the final period, Spivey made it 20 with a score off the tap, and although a three-point play by Handford and a pair of free throws by Brown cut it back to as little as 14, the Rams pulled away again. Curtis Bryant started the pull away with a free shot, and Barron hit from underneath. Williamson made a free throw and Bryant made a basket. Lefon Forbes got one from the line and Lonnie Artis and Tim Butts both scored from the floor. Two more free throws, by Jerome Sheppard ran the lead back to 27 points before Havelock could score again, 69-52 with 2:38 left, and that put the game away.

Spivey led the Greene Central scoring with 21 points, while Williams added 14. For Havelock, Buddy Andrews was the only player to hit double figures with 10.

The eventual winner of the tournament will represent the district in the State 3-A Tournament next week.

Ready For Wrestling

Eleven wrestlers from high schools in Pitt County will take part in the North Carolina High School Championships in Winston-Salem Friday and Saturday.

D. H. Conley, winner of the Northeastern Sectional, held last week, provides the largest group. The Vikings send six to the tournament. They include Dyke Hatch, Billy Justice, Jimmy Swinson, Alton Nicholson, Barry Purser and Eddie McGowan.

Farmville Central and North Pitt each had two in the competition. From Farmville Central come Ronald House and James Gorham, while North Pitt will enter David Brown and Johnny Dixon.

Rounding out the 11-man group is Rose High School's James Randolph.

The top two wrestlers from each of the weight classes in the eight districts are eligible to compete in the state tournament.

Williamston In Girls Finale

EDENTON — Williamston High School's girls rolled to a 41-31 victory over Chowan last night to gain the finals of the District I Girls Tournament.

The victory sent Williamston into the finals of the tournament against Edenton, the host team, tonight at 8 p.m. The winner will advance into the eight-team field for the state tournament next week.

Williamston edged into the lead in the first period, gaining a 10-6 lead by the first horn. They continued to pull away in the second quarter, with a 12-7 advantage. That left the Tigerettes ahead at intermission, 22-13.

Two more points went onto the Williamston lead in the third quarter as they outscored the Lady Bulldogs, 9-7, to up their margin to 31-20. Chowan came back with an 11-10 edge in the final period, but couldn't really put on a rally.

Sissy Taylor led the Williamston scoring with 17 points, while Sherry Roberson had 13. No one hit double figures for Chowan.

Chowan—Brown 6, Goodwin 9, Layton 1, Barham 9, Harrell 1, Bass, Coefield 5.
Williamston—F. Hardison 5, Brandon 2, Taylor 17, Roberson 13, Williams 2, Godard 2.

Oak City, Jamesville Eliminated From Field

PLYMOUTH — Oak City and Jamesville both came out on the shortends of scores last night in the District I, 1-A Basketball Tournament. Oak City fell to Aurora, 70-49, while Chowan beat Jamesville, 59-54. The losses ended the year for both teams, while the winners advance to the semi-finals of the tournament.

The winner in the field will advance to the state tournament next week.

In the opener, Aurora and Oak City matched baskets for a 12-12 deadlock at the end of the first quarter. But in the second, Aurora burned the nets for 21 points, while limiting the Trojans to only 14. That ran Aurora out into a 33-26 lead at the half.

They continued to pull away from Oak City in the third quarter of play, with an 18-9 advantage in the scoring. That left Aurora in command, 51-35. They polished the game off with a 19-14 edge in the final period to set the Trojans down.

Tim Coffee and Alvin Guion each hit 18 points in leading Aurora the win, while Richard Fulford added 13. For Oak City. Billy Green dumped in 22 points and Russell Cotten had 12.

In the second game, Jamesville jumped on top in the first period,moving into at 19-9 lead. But they couldn't hold it. Chowan came back to outhit them, 19-8, in the second quarter, moving into a 28-22 halftime lead.

The Bulldogs outhit Jamesville, 15-14, in the third

Seeded Teams Win In City

Happy Store, Proctor's and Coca-Cola joined the Skillet in the semi-finals of the City Basketball League Tournament with victories last night. Happy Store downed Piggly-Wiggly, 66-64 in an overtime, while Proctor's rolled to a 73-47 win over Book Exchange, and Coca-Cola beat Buccaneer Club, 63-44.

The Skillet, top seeded, drew a bye into the semifinals. They now meet the Happy Store on Monday, while Proctor's and Coke play on Wednesday. The finals will be March 5.

In the opening game, Happy Store eased out into a 39-34 lead in the first half of play, but Piggly Wiggly came back in the second half. They pushed through 28 points, while Happy Store got 23 to tie it at 62-62 at the end of regulation time. But Ray Peszko put through two baskets in the overtime, while Piggly Wiggly got only two free throws to give Happy Store the win.

Peszko led Happy Store with 30 points, while Greg Crouse had 14 and Tommy Jordan had 12. Piggly Wiggly was led by Lonnie Payton with 20, while Robert Pettus had 12 and William Ward had 11.

In the second game, Proctor's rolled up a 31-20 lead by the end of the first half, and were on their way to the win. They outhit Book Exchange, 42-27 in the second half to win handily.

Gene Rackley led Proctor's with 19 points, while Wayne King had 14, and Gary Hess, Mike Phillips and Kenny Rander each had 12. For the Exchange, Jack Hodge had 16 and Mike Jackson had 10.

Coca-Cola had little trouble in disposing of the Buccaneer Club, rolling up a 34-19 lead in the first half. They came back with a 29-25 edge in the final half for the win.

Jim Modlin led Coke with 29, while Bob Cargill had 11 and Jack Warner had 10. Kyle Toothman led Buccaneer with 16, while James Mayo had 12.

Highway Wins 1st

State Highway captured its opening game in the Industrial Basketball League Tournament last night, rolling over Vermont American, 92-48.

The win moved State Highway into the semi-finals against the winner of the game between Greenville Utilities and Union Carbide. That game will be played tonight, along with Empire Brush vs. Prepshirt and Post Office vs. Wachovia. Semifinal games will be held on Monday, with the title game Wednesday.

The Highwaymen had little trouble in disposing of winless Vermont American. They rushed out to a 43-15 lead in the first half of play. In the second, they outhit V-A, 49-33, to wrap up the easy win.

Bobby Edwards led State Highway with 24 points, while Clyde Elks and Fred Mills each had 19, and Phil Page and Leonard Jenkins each had 12. Ronnie Foster had 17, and Eddie Chance had 11 for Vermont American.

First Exhibition GamesCancelled

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Negotiations resumed today between baseball's owners and the Major League Players Association but the spring training exhibition game schedule has already been disrupted.

The Pittsburgh Pirates announced Wednesday that their three-game exhibition trip to Mexico City has been canceled and at least four other games—two apiece between the New York Mets and Boston Red Sox and Minnesota Twins and Detroit Tigers—will also be dropped.

An agreement between the players and owners calls for no exhibition games to be played until 10 days after teams report to training camp. If an agreement were reached today, the earliest players could report would be Friday. The 10-day period would then take teams to March 5 as the earliest date games could be played. The Mets-Red Sox and Tigers-Twins series were scheduled for March 3—4.

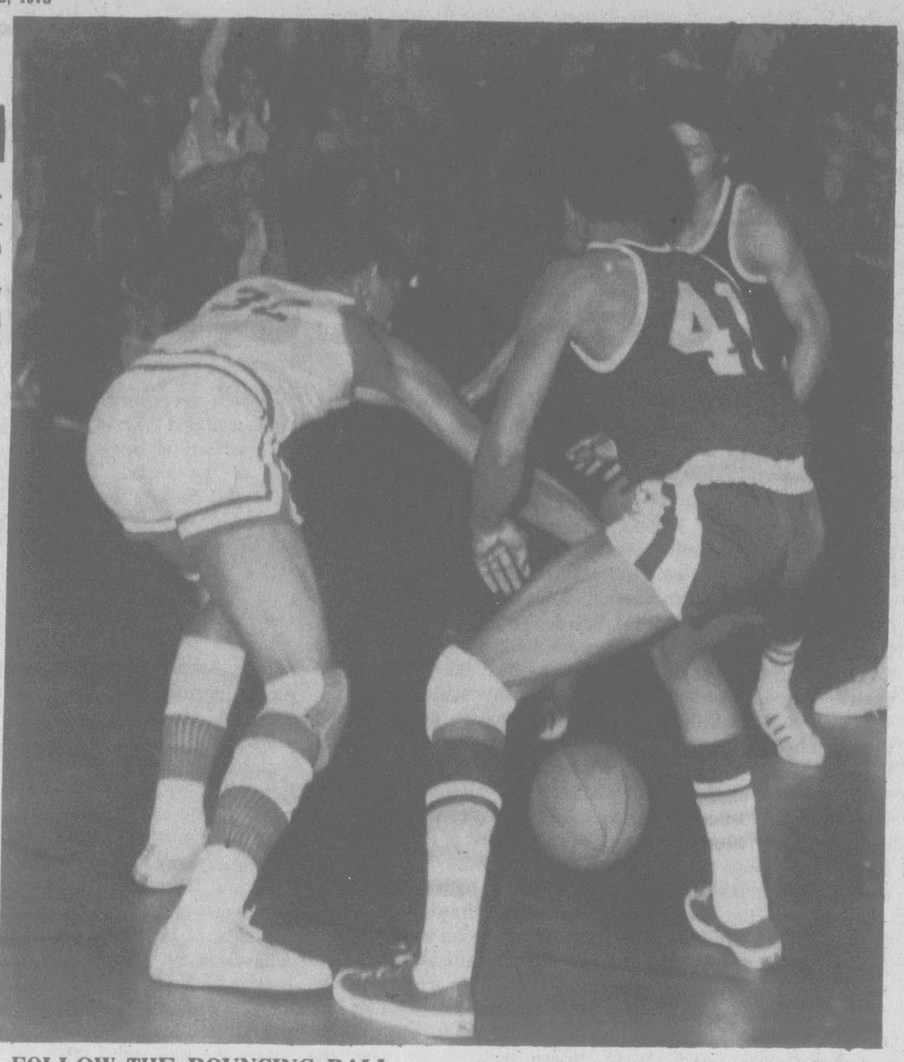

A two-game exhibition series by the New York Yankees in Nicaragua scheduled for March 3-4 had been canceled earlier because of the December earthquake in the Central American country.

Calvin Griffith, president of the Minnesota Twins, predicted that an agreement would be reached between the owners and players by March 1.

"I've got a feeling we will be back in business by then," said Griffith. "We have only eight days until then...something has to give."

Meanwhile, talks continued between Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association, and John Gaherin, chief negotiator for the owners. A shroud of secrecy hung over the discussions with both parties maintaining terse silence over any progress.

Several players came to terms with their clubs Wednesday. Willie Davis signed with the Los Angeles Dodgers for $100,000, becoming the fifth player in club history to hit that plateau. The New York Mets enrolled left-hander Jerry Koosman and outfielder Rich Chiles. Outfielder Jose Cardenal agreed to terms with the Chicago Cubs and pitchers Al Fitzmorris and Al Autry signed.

Lakers Beaten; Third In A Row

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Coach Bill Sharman says the slumping Los Angeles Lakers are still loose ... or did he mean lose?

Playing without Jerry West, Happy Hairston and Keith Erickson, the Lakers bowed to the Detroit Pistons 106-98 Wednesday night and lost more valuable ground to the idle Boston Celtics in the race for the best record in the National Basketball Association, which could prove important come playoff time.

It's only the second time all season the Lakers have dropped three in a row and it left them 3½ games behind Boston record-wise, although they still have a comfortable 9½-game bulge over Golden State in the Pacific Division chase.

"Despite the fact that we've lost three in a row," said Sharman, "our main job is to make the playoffs. We're still loose and we're not getting panicky."

Elsewhere, Phoenix snapped Baltimore's six-game winning streak 107-98 and Houston went on its biggest scoring binge of the season in walloping Seattle 139-107. The streaking Philadelphia 76ers were idle.

In the American Basketball Association, Kentucky trounced Memphis 125-109 and Denver edged San Diego 110-109.

With Bob Lanier scoring 15 of his 25 points in the first 10 minutes, the Pistons raced to an early 16-point lead. The Lakers chipped away and closed the gap to 84-83 early in the final period, but Curtis Rowe, John Mengelt and Don Adams combined for 12 straight points to break it open once more.

Rowe and David Bing added 19 points apiece to the Detroit attack while Gail Goodrich topped the Lakers with 29.

Charlie Scott and Dick Van Arsdale scored 27 and 26 points, respectively, as Phoenix broke a four-game losing streak by downing the Bullets in Baltimore for the first time in three years. The losers sliced a 17-point fourth-period deficit to three but could get no closer although Elvin Hayes matched his season high with 33 points.

Rudy Tomjanovich led Houston over Seattle with 27 points, while Cliff Meely added 22, Mike Newlin 20 and Jimmy Walker 19. Fred Brown and Bud Stallworth paced the Sonics with 27 and 23.

In the ABA, Kentucky zoomed to a 66-45 halftime spread against Memphis and then connected on 15 off 22 shots in the third quarter for a 94-65 margin. Dan Issel and Louie Dampier led a balanced attack with 23 and 20 points and George Thompson had 23 for Memphis.

Ralph Simpson scored 26 points, Warren Jabali 21 and Dave Robisch 20 for Denver but it took two free throws by Jabali with four seconds left to stave off a San Diego rally. Stew Johnson topped the Q's with 22 points.

Twins' Player Has Leukemia

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Danny Thompson, 26-year-old shortstop for the Minnesota Twins, has a form of leukemia. But he'll continue to man his position when the 1973 baseball season gets under way.

"I don't want sympathy," said Thompson. " I don't want people feeling sorry for me if I go 0-for-4 or make an error. I don't want this thing to become an alibi."

When Thompson left his suburban Minneapolis home Jan. 31 to take his annual physical for spring training, the Capron, Okla., native felt fatigued.

He wasn't concerned, though. After all, he had been working 66 hours a week as a car salesman and speaking three or four nights a week to groups of baseball fans in Minnesota.

The following day, his 26th birthday, he was asked to return to the office of Dr. Leonard Michienzi, a Twins' physician. The doctor had explained over the telephone that his white-cell count was high and another blood test was needed.

When a second test produced the same result, Michienzi told Thompson a bone marrow test would be required. That's when the Thompson became suspicious.

"I asked him what they thought was wrong," Thompson related. "Doc said, 'We suspect you have leukemia.'"

Well, that hit harder than being struck by one of Nolan Ryan's fastballs.

"They told me I had granulocytic leukemia and I couldn't bring myself to believe them," he said. "I felt great. They said I was in great condition. I kept thinking they had to be making a mistake in their diagnosis. I think I still feel that way."

Granulocytic leukemia was described to Thompson as a chronic blood disease, one that might not affect him five or six years, if ever.

"When I first heard the word leukemia, I thought of Ernie Davis," he said, a former Heisman Trophy winner from Syracuse who died from leukemia in the early 1960s. "But his wasn't diagnosed until it was acute. I'm not even receiving treatment now.

"Doctors told me that 10 years ago, when you mentioned leukemia they started getting the grave ready. Now, they are so close to a vaccine, one that would be similar to the polio vaccine, that they may develop it any day. They said they should have one at least within two years. So, I'm sure they'll have one by the time this starts affecting me, if it ever does."

After accepting his illness, Thompson's concern was for his baseball career.

"I asked the doctors if it would affect my playing, if I was going to be me on the field or someone else," he said. "They said it wouldn't affect me at all, that I was as healthy as anyone in the league.

Hot-Shooting Miami Bowls Over Tar Heels

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

North Carolina is the major-college field goal leader at .545 per cent, but the sixth-ranked Tar heels came up against a basketball team that shot 57 per cent and were upset 102-92 by Miami of Ohio Wednesday night.

"You simply can't beat shooting like that," said North Carolina Coach Dean Smith, whose team lost at home. "I don't want to say we were overlooking them, because that would take away from their great win. I feel they would have preferred a slower tempo, but we set the pace and they beat us at our own game."

It was the fifth loss for North Carolina against 20 victories.

For Miami of Ohio, leader of the Mid-America conference, it was victory No. 14 against eight defeats. The coach of the Redskins, Darrell Hendric, said, "It was a great win for us, probably our biggest ever. Hopefully, this will provide us with the impetus to go on and wrap up our conference title."

The Redskins were led by Rich Hampton with 25 points, Phil Lumpkin with 24, and Dave Elmer with 22. Elmer is a former Duke player who switched schools last year after Chris Redding beat him out for a starting post.

George Karl had 24 points and Bobby Jones 21 for the Tar Heels, who led only once in the game, by 48-47 with three minutes left in the half. The Tar Heels cut their deficit to only one point twice in the second half.

Second-ranked North Carolina State continued undefeated, winning game No. 22 easily, 74-50 over Duke, and clinched the Atlantic Coast Conference regular-season title. It was the first loss at home for the Blue Devils in 18 games. Duke had won three straight games in the ACC and also had won three straight games in the ACC and also had beaten Notre Dame since being beaten Jan. 27 at Georgia Tech.

David Thompson had 31 points for the State Wolfpack, which won its 10th conference game. Duke, which had a chance to tie Maryland for thrd place in the league, now is 4-6 in the conference and 12-10 in all games.

N. C. State Coach Norm Sloan said, "It was a great win for us. I thought we played extremely well, smart basketball and attacked the boards well. We got out of a foul trap in the first half. That's why we slowed it down some."

Duke Coach Bucky Waters said, "It's hard to explain why we were so flat, we wanted it badly. We needed an outstanding night night to win and we did not come close."

Eighth-ranked Maryland scored eight straight points soon after the opening of the second half to take a 46-40 lead, and went on to an 81-71 victory over Duquesne at Pittsburgh.

Tom McMillen scored 28 points for Maryland, which won its 18th game against four losses. Duquesne is 13-7.

Virginia ran off 10 straight points in the second half and defeated Pitt 79-66 in another game played in Pittsburgh. Virginia is 12-8 and Pitt is 11-13. The leading scorers with 30 points each were Gus Gerard of Virginia and Billy Knight of Pitt.

ACC teams nww are idle until Saturday. North Carolina will be at Virginia at 1:30 p.m. and Duke will be at Maryland at 3:30 in televised games. Clemson will be at Wake Forest, and the University of North Carolina Charlotte Branch will be at N.C. State in night games.

period of the game, holding off any hopes of a rally, for a 43-36 lead. The Bullets did outscore them, 18-16, in the final period, but couldn't quite get back into the game.

Richard Elliott led Chowan with 22 points, while Miles Roundtree had 12. Gurkin Martin led Jamesville with 20, while Horace Hall added 14.

CENTER FIELD OPEN

NEW YORK (AP) — The centerfield job on the New York Mets will be up for grabs during spring training. Manager Yogi Berra is figuring on Willie Mays for a spell but Mays will be 42 on May 6.

"We'll have to wait until late March to see how Willie's knees hold up and how he feels," says Berra.

General Manager Bob Scheffing lists five other players following the trading of former center fielder Tommy Agee to Houston. They are Dave Schneck, Don Hahn, Ted Martinez, Cleon Jones and Rich Chiles.

Pirate Wrestlers Set To Defend S.C. Title

East Carolina University's wrestling Pirates go out to defend their Southern Conference title Friday and Saturday at William & Mary in Williamsburg, Va.

The Southern Conference meet opens Friday and winds up Saturday night. The preliminaries will be held on Friday, along with the semi-finals. Consolations, wrestlebacks, and the finals will be held Saturday.

The Bucs, who were unbeaten this year in dual match competition, will be favored to retain their title, but Coach John Welborn notes that it will not be easy for the Bucs to do it.

"We've got to get some good breaks," he said. "From the indications of our regular season, you'd have to say that we are slight favorites.

"But I see a lot that other people don't. For instance, at some weights, we'll be doing good to finish third or fourth, while William & Mary will be finishing first. We'll lose ground here. And in the weights we win in, William & Mary will be finishing second. So it's going to be awfully difficult."

Welborn added that the Bucs must get the breaks to do well. "If we have good luck and wrestle to our potential, we might possibly have 10 finalists as we did last year. But I feel that that is almost impossible. I do feel that we have to put seven into the finals and then do well in them to win the title again."

Each individual champion in the Southern qualifies for one of the 32 berths in each weight class for the NCAA National Tournament.

In the 118-pound class, Glenn Baker of East Carolina is the defending champion, and Welborn feels he'll be seeded first in the field. He is expected to get his toughest competition from Appalachian's Phil Shulti.

Dan Monroe, another defending champion for the Bucs should be favored at 126-pounds. Ron Zediker of William & Mary will provide top competition.

At 134, the Pirates have another defending champion in Jim McCloe. He probably won't get the top seed, however, since he lost to William & Mary Mark Belknap in a dual meet. Welborn feels the top seeding could be up for grabs.

Milt Sherman, at 142, should be top seeded for the Bucs. But stiff competition will come from John Kaila of William & Mary, who is the defending champ.

Tom Marriott will probably be the first or second seed at the 150 mark. Tom O'Brian of William & Mary, and Del Midcliff of Appalachian will be his toughtest competition.

At 158, Burce Hall will be second or third seeded. Appalachian will send Chris Jacobson, while William & Mary's Bob Stark and VMI's Chris McGreer make this weight a real tossup.

Ron Whitcomb is expected to get the second or third seed at 167. Scott Moyer of William & Mary will be foavored, with Paulis Johnson of Appalachian and Bob Brooks of VMI adding to the challenge.

At 177, Bill Hill is the defending champion and will be seeded first. He'll get his toughest tests from William & Mary's Dick Whitakers and Appalachian's Pete Godfrey.

Mike Radford will be the Buc entry at 190. He could be seeded anywhere from first to third. "There are five in this class about equal," Welborn said. They include Mike Furiness of William & Mary, Citadel's Sam Clark and Appalachian's Fred Snipes.

Mark Pohren will carry the Pirate colors in the heavyweight class. Gregg Freany of William & Mary returns to defend his title, and Appalachian's Harry Hilewitz, Furman's Dan Bench, and VMI's Dan Barr add competition.

The National League baseball season next year will end in Shea Stadium with a day game on Wednesday Sept 26 with the Mets facing Montreal's Expos.

Presbyter. Gets Win

Presbyterian rolled to a 59-38 victory over St. Paul's last night in the Church Basketball League. The win raised Presbyterian's record to 9-4 for the year, while St. Paul's fell off to 2-11.

Presbyterian had to struggle through the first period, however, seeking out a 24-21 lead after the period. But in the second half, Presbyterian shot away, pushing through 35 points while St. Paul's managed only 17.

Larry Graham led Presbyterian with 23 points, while Lawton Nesbitt had 12. For St. Paul's, Jack Wall had 11.

Seek Joint Session On Promoting 'Carowinds'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Mecklenburg County delegation in their North Carolina General Assembly wants to have the General Assembly meet in a joint session with South Carolina legislators to publicise an amusement park.

Sen. Eddie Knox, D-Mecklenburg, introduced a resolution Wednesday calling for the General Assembly to meet on Friday, March 16, at Carowinds, a $26 million tourist attraction stradding the border between the two states about 20 miles south of Charlotte.

The South Carolina House approved Wednesday a concurrent resolution to meet with the North Carolina legislature at Carowinds on March 16th. The measure now is in the hands of the Senate Invitations Committee, which must decide whether to send it on to the full Senate. The meeting would not be financed by the state of South Carolina. It would be in the nature of a family outing for legislators.

Knox said the trip would constitute "quasi-official" session of the General Assembly and suggested that the legislators could debate whether North or South Carolina is the true birthplace of former President Andrew Jackson.

His resolution was passed by the Senate and sent to the House. Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt, an avowed opponent of "junkets" and parties, had told a press conference Wednesday that Knox's idea was all right with him because the trip would be made after the normal legislative week ends.

It had been announced that House Speaker James Ramsey would also be at the press conference, but he did not attend. Ramsey was later seen to be meeting in his office with most of the Democratic leaders of the House.

One of the legislators at that meeting said the proposed Carowinds trip had been on the agenda. Ramsey would only say there were Details to be worked out," on the proposal and he would have no comment on whether he favored it.

Newsmen at the Knox-Hunt press conference bombarded the pair with questions about the propriety of the General Assembly promoting a private commercial venture.

Hunt said "I can see that it might be looked upon as that, but I think it is legitimate for the legislature to be interested in something that will provide jobs."

Knox said the "theme park" would attract 1.5 million visitors in its first year of operation and create 1,300 jobs.

Knox acknowledged that Carowinds would be dependent on the state for aid with roads and other public services, but said the amusement park would not pay for the transportation or lodging costs of any legislators.

Narcotics Traffickers Making Mexico Key Source Of Drugs

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two congressmen say that narcotics traffickers, aided by widespread official corruption at all but the highest levels, have turned Mexico into one of the most important sources of illicit drugs entering the United States.

They quoted U.S. narcotics enforcement agents as describing Mexico as "a major producer, transshipment point and marketplace of drugs entering the United States. In relation to our drug problem, it is probably second only to France in significance."

Rep. Robert H. Steele, R-Conn., said that before Mexico's emergence as the key transit country for overseas heroin entering the United States, Argentina had been the center for Latin American narcotics smugglers. In recent years, he said, Argentine police have effectively cracked down on the French-Corsican rings that had operated out of Buenos Aires.

Steele and Rep. Morgan F. Murphy, D-Ill., said in an interview that Mexican President Luis Echeverria Alvarez and Pedro Ojeda Paullada, his attorney general, are "sincerely concerned, sincerely interested in providing cooperation" in halting drug trafficking through their country.

But after that level of commitment to stemming the narcotics trade, "there's a hell of a big drop," Steele said.

The congressmen said U.S. agents in Latin-America told them that "in a practical sense, corruption in Mexico is so imbedded that any solution to the narcotics problem would be difficult."

Still, Steele said, the Mexican attorney general conferred with U.S. officials last Thursday, then three days ago moved police and Army troops into the state of Sonora near San Luis, arrested 15 persons and confiscated 9.5 tons of marijuana and one kilogram (2.2 pounds) of heroin.

Murphy and Steele visited five Latin American countries early this year to study U.S. drug-control assistance for the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

They said U.S. agents told them that so-called brown heroin, produced from Mexican opium, has begun to appear in U.S. East Coast cities where U.S. efforts in the Middle East created a shortage of Turkish heroin.

Previously, they said Mexican heroin had been found only in the Midwest and West Coast.

The two congressmen also said they were told that Mexico is a major transit point for cocaine, most of which is produced in Peru, Ecuador and Bolivia.

Murphy and Steele quoted U.S. enforcement officials as giving the following picture of official corruption in Mexico:

"In general terms, corruption in the Mexican Federal Judicial Police can exist in any situation where the opportunity arises. The salaries paid to these men breed corruption ...

"Every federal agent of any caliber knows that through his active participation in narcotics investigations, he will find substantial sums of money ...

Angry Controversy On Wallace Stirs Alabama

By REX THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — A Pulitzer Prize-winning newsman's statement that Gov. George C. Wallace is physically unable to govern Alabama has touched off a sometimes-angry controversy over Wallace's health.

An effort may be made in the legislature this summer to make the governor eligible for a pension while still in office. It could be a major issue in the 1974 governor's race, with Wallace likely to run for a third term.

Harold E. Martin, publisher-editor of The Montgomery Advertiser-Alabama Journal, said in a speech three weeks ago that the governor "is physically unable to serve" and, for his own good as well as the state's, he should retire.

"Or, short of that," he said, Wallace should appoint a select committee of businessmen "to share the burden of state government for the duration of his term."

Actually, Alabama has no law permitting a governor to retire from office; he would have to resign outright. Martin acknowledged that and recommended passage of legislation providing a lifetime pension at full salary for any governor disabled in service to the state.

Wallace has been paralyzed in both legs since he was wounded in an assassination attempt at Laurel, Md., last May 15 while campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"Alabama citizens are crushed emotionally by the appearance of the once-vivacious Wallace in a wheelchair, suffering constant pain," the newspaper publisher said.

"But more and more Alabamians are facing up to the reality that the state can't continue without leadership...."

Wallace, who was in a Birmingham hospital recovering from surgery when Martin spoke Jan. 31, has had nothing to say about it publicly.

The speech brought hostile letters to the editors of the two newspapers. But the publisher says it brought even more letters of approval.

One writer who commended Martin was state Sen. Richard C. Shelby of Tuscaloosa, who said: "It has been obvious to thousands of people for some time that this state is leaderless."

But, he said, "no one, including myself, spoke out and said so."

Another legislator, House Speaker Pro Tem Joe McCorquodale of Clarke County, defended the governor. McCorquodale said shortly after Martin's speech that the governor still is alert mentally and knows what is going on.

Even before Martin's speech, there was talk of legislation which would enable Wallace to step aside and draw a pension immediately. Alabama now pays former governors $750 a month after they have reached 60. Wallace is 53.

Award Custody To Tony Curtis

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Actor Tony Curtis has been awarded custody of a teen-aged daughter from actress Janet Leigh, his first wife.

Superior Court Judge Charles H. Woodmansee signed the order Wednesday after Miss Leigh consented to the change for their daughter, Kelly Lee, 16.

Curtis last year received custody of his daughters, Allegra, 6, and Alexandra, 8, both by his second marriage to German actress Christine Kaufmann.

He now is married to the former Leslie Allen of Boston. They have a son, Nicholas, 2.

Sentenced For Counterfeiting

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Lee Edward Prevette, 48, of Kannapolis, N. C., has been sentenced to four years imprisonment after pleading guilty to counterfeiting. He and other defendants were arrested Jan. 4 in a raid during which Secret Service agents seized $7 million in bogus $20 bills, the largest seizure in the history of the service.

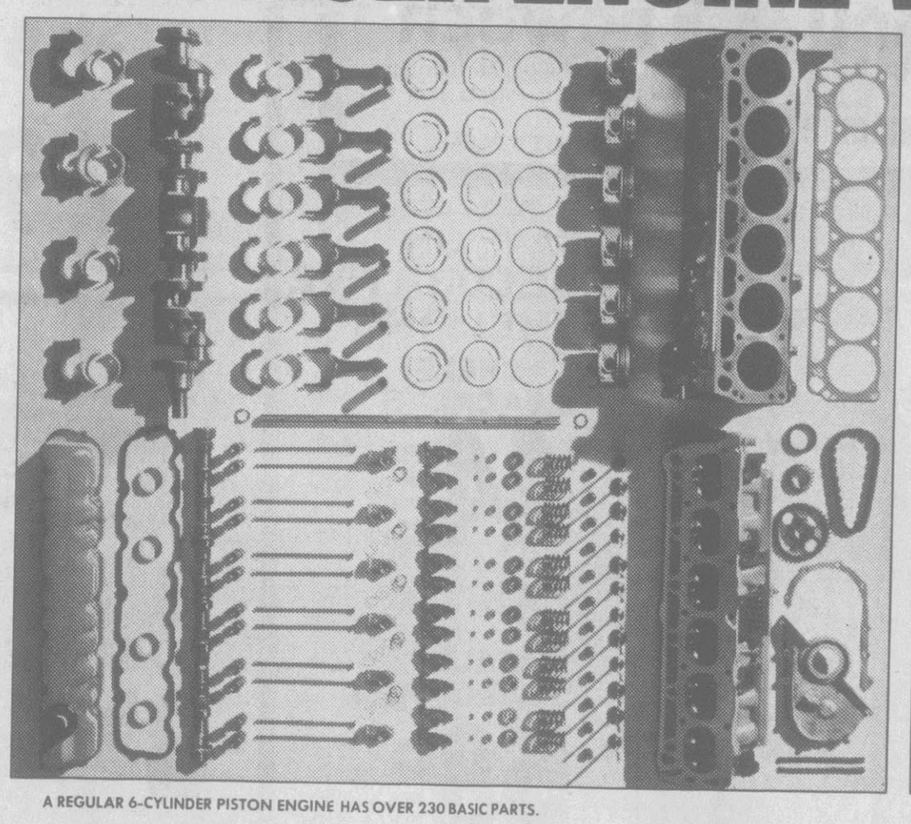

An undercover agent testified that Prevette had bought high-quality rag-stock paper in Charlotte, N. C.

Prevette was sentenced Wednesday to four years on each of four counts, the sentences to run concurrently.

A REGULAR 6-CYLINDER PISTON ENGINE HAS OVER 230 BASIC PARTS.

MAZDA'S SIMPLE ROTARY ENGINE HAS ABOUT 70 BASIC PARTS.

Mazda's rotary is so much simpler.
No pistons. No valves. No rods. No lifters. No camshaft.
And no up-and-down motion to translate into rotary motion to turn the car wheels. Mazda's engine has a rotary motion like a wheel. It doesn't have to change directions.
So there's less to go wrong with Mazda's rotary engine. It's so dependable, Mazda now gives you a two-year, 24,000-mile rotary engine warranty.

Mazda warrants the basic engine block and its internal parts to be free of defects, with normal use and maintenance, for two years or 24,000 miles, whichever occurs first, or Mazda will fix it for free. Mazda warrants the rest of the vehicle for one year, or 12,000 miles, whichever occurs first.
A simpler, more dependable car. Isn't that what you've been looking for? Mazda has it now.

N.C. House Bars New Use Of Gasoline Tax Funds

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina House has defeated a bill that would have, for the first time, made state gasoline tax funds available for mass transit as well as highways.

The House divided sharply on the bill, defeating it by a 59-52 standing vote in favor of a motion to table. Republicans and some urban Democrats voted to keep the bill alive, but a predominantly rural Democratic majority was enough to kill it.

The bill had been endorsed earlier this week by Republican Gov. Jim Holshouser andd Secretary of Transportation bruce Lentz.

It was introduced by Rep. Ward Purrington, R-Wake. it would have allowed cities to use their Powell bill funds for mass transit or streets and highways.

The Powell bill, passed in 1949, allocates one cent from the nine cent state gasoline tax for municipal aid, but it stipulates that the money can be used only for roads.

Purrington said it was time for the legislature to recognize that urban areas have critical transportation needs, "and streets and roads are not the only answer to this problem."

In fact, he said, streets and more cars are often aggravating the problem by destroying neighborhoods and contributing to air pollution and the energy crisis.

Purrington also offered an amendment to the bill which would have removed the possibility that Powell bill funds could be used to subsidize city bus systems.

The amendment was adopted, but that made little difference to bill's opponents. They argued that past statutes made it illegal for even a penny of gasoline tax money to be spent on mass transit.

Rep. William Watkins, the House majority leader from rural Granville County, said "rapid transit is not important enough" to justify what he considered an abrogation of the assembly's wishes in the 1965 highway bond bill.

In passing the $300 million issue, Watkins pointed out, the legislature stipulated that until the bonds were paid off, gasoline tax revenues could not be diverted to any new uses.

Purrington pointed out that in 1965, Powell bill funds were already earmarked for "aid to municipalities" and said his bill would not violate the 1965 stipulation, since the mass transit funds would still be budgeted as "aid to municipalities."

But a majority apparently agreed with Rep. Herbert Hyde, D-Buncombe, who said the legislature would be violating a "sacred trust" by passing the Purrington bill.

The 'Worry Clinic'

Parental Job To Enrich Mind

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph. D., M. D.

CASE W-534: Natty Bo, aged 16 months, is a recent grandson.

To tease Daniel and Judy about their offspring, I tell them their boy is remarkable in communication skills.

"For he already has a vocabulary of at least 1,000 words!" I exclaimed.

"But every one of them is 'Da'".

Since I believe in offering mental stimulation to diddies, I started carrying Natty Bo (Nathaniel), around the house, letting him look at various objects.

He would gingering touch each one with his index finger, while I would give its name.

But he still ignores my use of names for when we come to the stuffed fish on the wall, he says "Da."

And a carved wooden elephant on the mantle also evokes "Da."

So does the TV and telephone.

He insists that I always carry him around, as per our original routine, while he points to all the items on our earlier itinerary.

"When will he really talk?" his worried mother inquires.

For she feels a little embarrassed because another grandson, 3 months younger than Natty Bo, uses polysyllables.

They are "Da da."

Many children may begin to utter "Dada and Mama" even at 12 months.

Yet other highly intelligent kiddies may not speak till they are 24 months old.

Our daughter Judy thus refused to utter a word til she was 2 years of age.

Then, after a fishing trip we had made to her maternal grandparents, she startled Mrs. Crane one day by saying:

"Mamma eat fish, Daddy eat fish, Philip eat fish, George eat fish."

And from that time onward she spoke in sentences, having skipped entirely the use of single words.

Our popular American singer, Kate Smith, once stated that she didn't talk till she was 4 years old.

Some children learn to get what they want, merely by point and using a single syllable such as "Da."

Appararently, if they can get by with this type of communication, they resist the effort of acquiring more complicated speech.

You can often trick such a child into using language, as by saying:

"Junior, go over and tell your little sister to put that book back on the table."

In this manner, you may bypass such a child's refusal to employ normal words or phrases.

And many kiddies who refuse to speak, still can understand hundreds of words and commands.

So their "understanding" vocabulary may be excellent though they may react like the Sphinx regarding their own use of spoken language.

If parents or older children are talkative and thus surround the new baby with thousands of extra repetitions of words, such a young child may thus become more word-minded.

That may help explain why the Prodigal Son and the usual 2nd child are more likely to become salesmen than the quiet oldest child.

Don't fret unduly about a child's slowness of speaking (if he isn't deaf) but enrich his mind by plenty of language and good storybook tales.

So send for my booklet "How to Raise Your Child's School Marks," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Best Of Sid Caesar Is Being Tried In Theater

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It sounds a bit weird; but, as of Friday, a movie house here will charge people money to see 10 selections from a television variety show of 1952-53 vintage.

Who'd pay for that? A lot of Sid Caesar fans. The 90-minute collection represents the best of the comedian's "Show of Shows," which ran four years on NBC in the early black-and-white 1950s.

Modern one-hour versions of Caesar's special brand of lunacy also soon may appear on television. He and his partner, Max Liebman, are working on outlines of three TV specials they hope to sell to one of the networks.

Younger viewers who've never seen Caesar's early shows should be advised they divided the American audience into two parts: those who came to praise Caesar and those who gave him the raspberry.

The latter folks generally were dismissed by the pro-Caesar faction as the sort of people who'd boo a funeral.

The man they debated approached comedy then somewhat differently than other stars. Among other things, he portrayed an accident-prone mountain climber, a larcenous penny gum dispenser that hoped to hit it big as a rigged slot machine in Las Vegas and a jazz musician who was not of this world.

He called the musician Progress Hornsby. Progress played tenor sax and featured a radar operator in his far-out band "to keep track of the melody, man."

Caesar, now 50, has been making sporadic movie, television and nightclub appearances and working in the theater. His biggest stage hit came in 1962 in "Little Me" on Broadway.

The movie house revival of "Show of Shows" stems from an Esquire magazine cover story on him last May. It led to a reunion with Liebman, the program's producer and creator. Then came a six-month collaboration in which they chose the 10 best skits from "Show of Shows" and pared it all down to 90 minutes.

After that, they went to work sketching the TV specials. One would feature a Caesar speciality — satirized movies. The victims would be silent, Italian, French, British and American films.

If the networks buy the shows — and if they get high ratings — would Caesar like to go back to television on a full-time basis?

"Not in a series every week," he said. "It's hard to turn out quality every week. I'm not putting down any (weekly) show, but I think it would be very limiting for me.

"I'd much prefer to do two, three specials a year and a movie."

Making Up 4 Lost Days

Information on the make up schedule for lost school days, carried Tuesday within the school board story, was incomplete.

There are four instead of three lost days to be made up in the current school calendar.

The schedule of make-up days approved by the board is as follows:

Thursday, April 19 and Tuesday, April 24, formerly scheduled as part of the Easter holiday, will be school days. Easter Friday and Easter Monday will remain student holidays.

The third make up day is Wednesday, May 23, originally scheduled as a teacher work day and a student holiday.

The fourth of the make up days will be met by extending the originally schedued final pupil day by one day, so that now the final school day will be on Friday, June 1.

Because of lost time, teacher workdays have been rescheduled for the end of the school year. The final teacher day will now be June 6.

Because of inadequate rainfall, the Caribbean islands of Curacao, Aruba and Bonaire must distill their fresh water from the sea, says National Geographic.

Students Help Parent-Teacher Council Drive

A special drive for membership and an open house for the Ayden Grammar School Parent Teacher Council has been announced.

A membership drive that started Monday is being undertaken by students of the school and will continue through next Monday.

At 7:30 p.m. Monday, in the school's auditorium, a special open house program will take place. The purpose of this Parent Teacher Council program is to give the school staff an opportunity to have parents learn more about school goals, programs, services and needs. It is also hoped to serve the purpose of establishing a closer home-school relationship.

Membership in the council is 50 cents per person. Parents and other interested citizens are being asked to participate in the membership drive being conducted by the students.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North

Opening lead: Nine of ◇ South had ample values to make a takeout double after East opened the bidding with one diamond. However, there seemed little point in inviting his partner to bid a suit when South was interested only in a spade contract. Inasmuch as he required only a few trumps from partner with which to ruff out his losing diamonds, South chose to gamble it out for game by leaping directly to four spades. There was the further consideration that his direct action might inhibit the opposition from taking advantage of the favorable vulnerability conditions to uncover a good fit in one of the unbid suits.

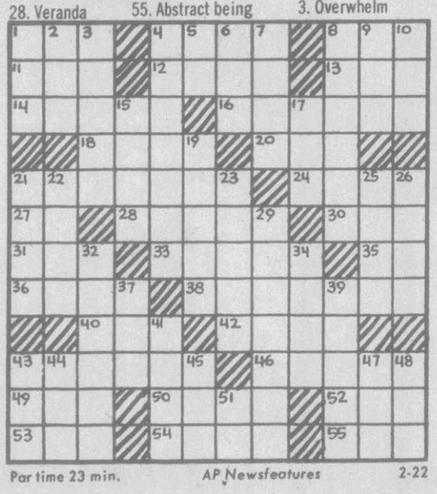

West opened the nine of diamonds against four spades and South won the trick in his hand with the queen. He promptly led a small trump to the ten in dummy so that he might discard one of his losing hearts on the ace of clubs. A diamond was returned and East played the ten. South covered with the ace and West ruffed in with the nine of spades.

West returned a heart and East's king felled declarer's queen. A spade was returned to remove dummy's last trump and South was unable subsequently to avoid losing three diamonds to suffer a two trick deficit on the deal.

In his haste to obtain an immediate discard on the ace of clubs, declarer had neglected the more important consideration of counting up to ten tricks. The opening lead gives South two diamond tricks which together with six spades and one club, brings his total up to nine. The tenth trick may be obtained by trumping a diamond with North's high spade. In order to protect his ace of diamonds from an adverse ruff, however, declarer should concede one of his losers early by leading a small diamond from his hand at trick two.

East will be in, and the defense is in position to cash two heart tricks, but then they are finished. If East shifts to a trump, South can play the jack and then ruff the five of diamonds with the ten of spades and discard the eight of diamonds on North's ace of clubs. He reenters his hand by ruffing a club, draws trump and cashes his ace of diamonds which has been carefully preserved.

Reservists Prepare For Civil Problems

Representatives of the 303rd Civial Affairs Group, an Army reserve unit from Kearny, N. J., were here Tuesday to confer with local officials and gain an understanding of civil problems in the community.

The Group's public information officer, 1Lt. Michael Adams, said that the reserve unit has developed a series of simulated problems which will be solved by another civil affairs unit, scheduled to be stationed in Greenville later this spring during the Army's "Operation Exotic Dancer."

The simulated "problems," Adams explained, were reviewed by city officials to determine their practicality. The community's maneuvers that will take place some 60 miles southwest of here.

Members of the visiting group, which was comprised of approximately 20 officers and five enlisted personnel, met briefly with Bill Carstarphen, city manager; Glenn Cannon, chief of police; J. Ray Smith, fire chief; Dr. Robert May, director of the Pitt County Community Health Department; Miss Dorothy Bolton, director of the Pitt Department of Social Services;

W. N. Moore, city clerk and treasurer; Sheriff Ralph Tyson; H. L. Lewis, Clerk of Court; Mayo Allen, director of Public Works; Charles Horne, director of the Greenville Utilities Commission; James Horne; executive director of the Pitt Development Commission; and Harold Creech, manager of the Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association.

The 303rd is currently stationed at Fort Bragg, it was pointed out, and is under the command of Col. Thomas P. Fitzpatrick. In civilian life, according to Adams, Fitzpatrick is chief of police of West Ney York, N. J., the most densely populated city in the nation with a population of 40,000 contained in an area of less than one square mile.

The unit is made up of 85 officers and 100 enlisted men. Most of the officers are professionals in civilian life and are "able to lend their education and experience to the various civic teams," the PIO commented.

"For example," he added, "tthe public health team is comprised of medical doctors; the public education team is made up of school principals and teachers; the legal team has six attorneys; the finance team is staffed by Wall Street bankers; and the public safety team has a police chief, patrolmen and federal agents."

The 303rd Civil Affairs Group spent three days in Greenville last May when they participated in the "Operation Exotic Dancer."

Completed Drugs Study

Pitt County deputies Wayne Nobles and David Garrison have completed a two-week course on drugs conducted by the Federal Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs in Greensboro.

The school, taught Feb. 5-16 at Guilford Technical Institute, covered a variety of subjects including national international and state drug traffic, lab procedures and tests, drug identification, drug laws, drug arrest techniques, search and seizure, addictions, organized crime, and drug raids and surveillance.

Students attending the regional training session also participated in field problems involving various drug related situations.

Sen. Thomas E. Strickland of Wayne County and Rep. Lamar Gudger of Buncombe County addressed the group during Friday's graduating session.

Nobles and Garrison, according to Pitt Sheriff Ralph Tyson, are the first local deputies to undergo drug training on a federal level.

Too Much Honey For Beekeepers

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli bee-keepers say they've been stung. And the land of milk and honey may be a little less sweet for a while because of it.

The problem isn't a lack of honey. Just the opposite — there's too much. So bee-keepers took their produce off the market to drive up prices.

In the past the bee-keepers produced a surplus of honey, and prices were frozen by government controls at the 1969 level of 40 cents a pound.

The bee-keeprs say it costs them almost twice as much to produce honey now, and some went out of business because they couldn't raise their prices.

Diary Covers 94 Volumes

MANCHESTER, England (AP) — Clifford Baskerville began his diary in August 1939, spending an hour or two every night to record the important happenings of the day at home and abroad.

Today, 94 volumes later, Clifford Baskerville is still jotting down the news. The 94 large notebooks fill about 20 feet of bookcases at his home in Chorlton-cum-Hardy.

"There's always a war on somewhere," says Baskerville, whose records range from detailed accounts of World War II air raids on Manchester to Vietnam.

City Once At End Of A Line

ATLANTA (UPI) — The first name for the present city of Atlanta was Terminus, because it was at the end of a rail line.

In 1843 the name was changed to Marthasville, in honr of Martha Lumpkin, daughter of a former governor. In 1845 the name was changed to Atlanta, a coined word which was believed to be the feminine version of Atlantic.

Prof Advocates Personal Killing

NEW YORK (AP)—Phyllis Chesler, an assistant professor of psychology at Richmond College, has her own ideas about making the punishment fit the crime of rape.

"I'm in favor of death," she said in a recent interview. "Not capital punishment though. I don't think that's very humane. The killing should be done hand to hand with fury and passion and not by anonymous bureaucracy of the legal system. Women ought to kill men while they are being raped."

SCUFFLING PAL— William Daley, 4, of New York City, finds a lovable friend in this new rag doll version of Charlie Chaplain in his famous role as "The Tramp". The maker ssys the doll, complete with hat, cane and outrageous shoes, does a little shuffling walk like the real Chaplin when pressure is applied to its waist. (AP Wirephoto)

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1973

CARROLL RIGHTER'S horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You can experience intuitive perception with solid results now. You can easily understand the conditions facing you and what to do to make them more in accord with your desires. Fine for whatever has to do with making out reports.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get together with higher-ups and see if you can get more support for your constructive ideas. Being more magnetic with mate gets right results. Accept an invitation that is extended to you.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be sure to keep agreements and then work with associates so that you gain your finest mutual aims. New situations arise that give you a better awareness of your financial worth.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) This can be a most productive day at your regular work since fellow workers are most cooperative and respect your ability. Use that energy which the planets are generating now.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Ideal day to engage in activities that appeal to you. It is also a good time to take health treatments. Take mate out for entertainment. Do everything with a flair.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Talk over financial affairs with kin for mutual benefit. Show much cooperation and gain a feeling of confidence. Take care of civic duties. Make plans for greater income in the future.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A day for much shopping and getting outside matters well handled. Be sure not to take any unnecessary risks. Meet with allies and formulate better plans for the future. Be wise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Study the monetary side of your life and try to cut down expenses wherever you can. If you have any doubts, confer with an expert. Use right psychology and attain person aims.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Plan what you most want to do from a recreational standpoint after you have done important work. Make your appointments early. Dress in good style and make the right impression.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Take time to analyze your position in life and then go out to the big social events and make headway. You receive confidential advice and ideas that can be of great assistance to you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You like to work alone but this is a good day to get together with others, either in business or social activities and make big advances. New contacts are valuable. Impress others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You have to work harder if you are to improve your image with the public in general. Make a more important name for yourself as you deserve. Maintain credit by paying bills wisely.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) There are fine opportunities for advancement, so be sure you seize them. Talk over with an associate how to operate on a loftier plane. Accept an invitation that is extended to you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . he or she will be one of those delightful young people with a pronounced intuitive perception. Teach ethics early in life so that this powerful mind will be used in right direction. The success here can be tremendous. Direct the education along political lines for best results. Much exercise is good here.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!
