

Communists Prepare To Free Another 142 POWs

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — The United States announced tonight that the North Vietnamese had handed over a list of 106 American prisoners and two Thais to be released over the weekend. But it said the Viet Cong has yet to turn over a list of 34 U.S. prisoners the Communists said they would release in South Vietnam.

The U.S. announcement said: "The Democratic Republic of Vietnam representative on the POW subcommittee, four-party Joint Military Commission, presented to the U.S. representative a list containing the names of 106 U.S. POWs and two Thai POWs. The United States has not been advised of the time and place of release. No new information has been received on the detained personnel held by the Provisional Revolutionary Government."

This is the government of the Viet Cong in South Vietnam.

The chief spokesman for the North Vietnamese delegation, Bui Tin, said the POWs would be freed over the weekend.

Immediately after the list was turned over to the American delegation, it was transmitted to Washington so that relatives of the American prisoners could be immediately notified of their impending release.

Once the next of kin are notified, Washington will make the list public.

There were no names released in Saigon either by the U.S. or North Vietnamese delegations.

The U.S. side said it was told that the 34 prisoners to be freed by the Viet Cong included 26 U.S. military personnel and eight American civilians.

The Communists released 143 American prisoners on Feb. 12 and 20 more on Feb. 18. The release of "another 142 will leave 280 Americans still held in North and South Vietnam and Laos, according to Hanoi. They are scheduled to be released in two more groups, with March 28 the deadline for the repatriation of the last ones.

The United States had expected the release of the second big group on Tuesday, 15 days after the first big group was handed over. But the Communists balked, demanding that the United States and South Vietnam come to terms on the release of civilians held by the Saigon government and guarantees to end harassment of the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong representatives to the peacekeeping commissions in Saigon and other South Viet-name cities. The United States retaliated by suspending the withdrawal of American troops and the sweeping of mines in North Vietnamese waters. President Nixon also ordered Secretary of State William P. Rogers to boycott the activities of the Paris conference on Vietnam until the POW issue was cleared up.

Rogers met Wednesday with Foreign Minister Nguyen Duy Trinh of North Vietnam, and a U.S. spokesman said Trinh assured him the POWs would be released soon.

Advise End Street Work In Tuckahoe Subdivision

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A recommendation that street work in the Tuckahoe Subdivision be discontinued, and if necessary, that utilities to the area be withheld, was approved by members of the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission on Wednesday night.

The recommendation will now go to the City Council.

City Engineer Charles A. Holliday told commission members that street developments in Tuckahoe did not comply with the city ordinance covering sub-divisions.

The regulations, adopted in 1966, call for developers to inform the city engineer of any construction or improvements to streets, so that each stage of work can be inspected for construction standard requirements.

Holliday said in the case of Tuckahoe, streets have been paved without him being informed. The first he knew of the matter, he noted, was last week.

On inspecting the development, the city engineer said he discovered the "center grade is six inches above yard elevations. Apparently, when ditch lines were dug the material was piled in the center of the street.

"There is no curb and gutter installed," Holliday added. Curb and gutter is required in the regulations, as is the type of base used in street construction. He pointed out that although the plat for Tuckahoe did not delineate curb and gutter, this did not relieve developers of the responsibility to meet requirements set forth in the ordinance governing subdivisions.

One commissioner suggested that since Tuckahoe is outside the city limits, there may have been confusion on the part of the developers, Hoover Taft and Grady Nichols. Rivers and Associates is the firm handling engineering. Holliday referred to the prefatory clause of the ordinance, which states the ordinance is applicable to all subdivisions within the city and within one-mile outside the city limits, which falls under city jurisdiction.

A final plat for Section II of Arlington Plaza, being developed by Philip E. Carroll, received approval following questions by a delegation from adjacent Brentwood Sub-Division. Section II of the area, lying between Elm Street and Memorial Drive south of Arlington Boulevard, consists of 17 R-19 zoned residential lots and office and institutional lots north of the residential area bordering Arlington Boulevard.

The question raised was whether or not Carroll could alter the lot boundaries of the residential lots so that apartment complexes could be erected.

In this connection, it was noted that R-9 zoned areas permits erection of apartment complexes, provided the 13,500 foot minimum space requirement is met.

One of the spokesmen, Herman Phelps, said the group had no objection to approval as long as lot sizes on the final plat were the same as on the preliminary plat. Holliday explained that although actual footages between preliminary and final plats might vary slightly, the actual differences permitted between the two is insignificant, never more than a measurement of four or five feet per lot.

Two preliminary plats received zoning commission approval.

The first, Oakmont Professional Plaza located on the west side of highway N.C. 43 opposite Carriage House Apartments, is being developed by Carroll.

For this plat, Greenville Utilities Commission proposes an easement of about 25 feet on the southern boundary of the property running along a creek.

Utilities director Charles Horn said future plans were to install a gravity sewer line along this stream, and that it would be feasible to plan for the easement at this point.

Carroll said the recommendation would seriously affect the value of lots bordering the stream, and asked that further consideration be given to easement in a different part of the property. The original plan calls for a sewer lift station within the professional plaza.

Approval of the plat carried a stipulation that approval is contingent on satisfactorily working out arrangements with Greenville Utilities Commission on the point of required easements.

The second preliminary plat approved was that of a ten lot subdivision located adjacent to Oakgrove Estates north of the river.

Van Lewis, representing the developer, Lonnie Staton, was asked to have Staton consider letting the area be known as part of Oakgrove Estates rather than the proposed name of Staton Acres Subdivision, because of its small size. Efforts are being made to prevent a large number of small areas in Greenville each bearing different names.

One request for rezoning, made by Dallas McPherson for property located adjacent to Minges property on Tenth Street, was approved. The change in zoning is from office and institutional to shopping center.

The small area involved is designed to create a rectangular area for a shopping center zone which previously included a triangular wedge of office and institutional zoned land.

A Pitt County Health Department request, one calling on submission to that department of subdivision plats not served by municipal sanitary systems, was approved.

With this approval, two copies of the plat will be provided the health department which can then make a health evaluation where on-site (or septic type) sewage disposal systems are to be installed.

The perennial subject of Green Mill Run again entered the picture Wednesday night when Holliday gave a report on progress of plans to have aerial photography and maps made in order to establish the stream's true flood plain areas.

Holliday said by having this service performed at the same time aerial maps are being made for another project, the city can save about $300.

The total estimate for the proposed work amounts to $11,563. Commission members voiced a recommendation of approval to the proposal, which goes to City Council for final action.

...AND STOP IT THEY DID — Solemn-faced during the ERA debate these women wearing STOP ERA badges packed the North Carolina Senate gallery. When the final vote, 27-23 against the amendment was announced, the gallery reacted with applause. (AP Wirephoto)

ERA Arguments Fail Sway Senate

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Equal Rights Amendment appears dead in the North Carolina legislature at least until 1975.

After Wednesday's 27-23 defeat of the amendment in the Senate, the ERA's only opportunity would be for the Senate to reconsider its vote in today's session, and that appears unlikely.

Sen. Charles Deane, D-Richmond, who sponsored the amendment, said after the vote was in, "God could visit three of my colleagues overnight and change their minds, but unless that happens I don't see how we could do anything."

Through a technical error in parliamentary procedure, ERA opponents left a slim opening for divine intervention as the Senate session ended Wednesday.

The usual practice after a controversial proposal is defeated is to apply a "clinch" — a parliamentary motion that bars reconsideration. Sen. Hamilton Horton, R-Forsyth, attempted that.

But Horton inadvertently made his motion applicable to the House version of the "clinch" rather than the slightly different Senate version; his motion was ruled out of order, and the Senate adjourned.

No legislators, however, expect the ERA to be resurrected, Horton is confident that it will never pass.

"I think this has taken the wind out of their sails for good," he said. "I don't think it will have much of a chance in 1975."

Failure of the ERA in North Carolina casts doubt on whether the amendment will ever be included in the U.S. Constitution. Congress, when it enacted the amendment in 1971, gave the states seven years to ratify it. Thus far, 28 states have done so.

It is difficult to specify how many states have rejected it, since a state can reconsider at any time up to 1978. Vermont, which rejected the amendment in 1972, passed it this year.

However, at least 11 states, including North Carolina, have taken some form of legislative action against the amendment.

The Senate did so only after three hours of emotional debate in which references to mothers, daughters, and "what I was taught when I was a boy," were as common as legal arguments about the ERA's effect on the draft, marriage laws and protective legislation.

Agree On 9-Point Accord

PARIS (AP) — The United States and North Vietnam agreed today on a nine-point declaration to back up the Vietnam peace agreement, and the document was to be approved this afternoon at a plenary session of the international conference on Vietnam, officials from both Communist and non-Communist delegations reported.

Both sides made significant concessions to achieve the compromise, the sources reported. North Vietnam and its Communist allies abandoned their previous insistence that the conference could only be recalled by a majority of the 12 delegations. This would have given each side a veto.

In return, the United States and its allies agreed to mention the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government as a full-fledged conference participant. To appease the Saigon government, the final article of the declaration states that the signatories do not necessarily recognize each other. The compromise was approved by drafting committee representing the 12 foreign ministers attending the conference.

Two of the articles deal with detailed procedure for reporting cease-fire violations and reconvening the conference in emergencies. The conference can be called back together by the United States and North Vietnam developers, Hoover Taft and jointly or by any six conference participants.

The only major OEO program for which termination of federal funding is recommended in my budget is community action," he said.

With $2.8 billion of federal funds having been spent since the program was launched in 1965, Nixon said further funding "no longer seems necessary or desirable."

After stating that "I am irrevocably committed ... to fulfilling the American dream for all Americans," Nixon promised:

—Resubmission of federal health insurance legislation, the channeling of manpower training money through manpower revenue sharing rather than categorical grants.

—New moves to give greater decision making powers to tribal governments on Indian reservations.

—Support for the equal rights amendment to the Constitution aimed at improving the legal standing of women.

—Increased funds for direct assistance to college students.

—Legislation, long espoused by the administration, "to provide a tax credit for tuition payments made by parents of children who attend nonpublic elementary and secondary schools."

Nixon Cites Increased Sums Allotted 'Human Resources'; A Record

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, observing that his revamped social welfare program already has aroused "intense controversy and considerable misunderstanding," defended his changes today in a special message to Congress.

The lengthy message itself contained no surprises and confirmed expectations that Nixon would back away from his 1969 welfare reform program, that would have, in effect, guaranteed a minimum annual income for poor families.

Much of the emphasis was on justifying the reorganization and in some cases, scrapping of past federal activities in the area of human resources.

Pledging that he will display "compassion that works—not simply compassion that means well," Nixon took credit for a record human resources budget he put at $125 billion—"nearly twice the amount that was being spent on such programs when I took office in 1969.

"The overall effect of these reforms will be the elimination of programs that are wasteful so that we can concentrate on programs that work."

Nixon, who said "the welfare mess cannot be permitted to continue," acknowledged he was abandoning broad welfare reform "since the legislative outlook seems to preclude passage ... in the immediate future."

However, he said he is ordering vigorous steps to strengthen the management of aid to families with dependent children—a program he described as "inequitable, inefficient and inadequate"—through administrative measures and unspecified legislative proposals.

As he had promised, Nixon again said he would ask Congress for a new law "for alleviating the often crushing burdens which property taxes place on many older Americans," but he did not spell out what he had in mind.

Discussing his controversial dismantling of the Office of Economic Opportunity, Nixon pictured the move as strengthening antipoverty programs by moving them into Cabinet departments directly concerned.

"The only major OEO program for which termination of federal funding is recommended in my budget is community action," he said.

With $2.8 billion of federal funds having been spent since the program was launched in 1965, Nixon said further funding "no longer seems necessary or desirable."

After stating that "I am irrevocably committed ... to fulfilling the American dream for all Americans," Nixon promised:

—Resubmission of federal health insurance legislation, the channeling of manpower training money through manpower revenue sharing rather than categorical grants.

—New moves to give greater decision making powers to tribal governments on Indian reservations.

—Support for the equal rights amendment to the Constitution aimed at improving the legal standing of women.

—Increased funds for direct assistance to college students.

—Legislation, long espoused by the administration, "to provide a tax credit for tuition payments made by parents of children who attend nonpublic elementary and secondary schools."

Survived Arctic By Cannibalism

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (AP) — After 23 days alongside his wrecked airplane in the Arctic wilderness, an injured bush pilot ate the flesh of one of his three dead passengers to stay alive.

MARTIN HARTWELL

"There was no way out but to eat human flesh and this I did," Martin Hartwell said in a statement he read at a news conference Wednesday night in Edmonton after his action was revealed at an inquest in Yellowknife for the three persons killed in the crash.

Hartwell was flying three persons, a British nurse, a pregnant Eskimo woman and a 14-year-old Eskimo boy, to a hospital at Yellowknife when his plane crashed on Nov. 8.

Hartwell, who broke both ankles and a kneecap in the crash, said he ate the flesh of the nurse, Judith Hill, after the boy died and he had no one to forage for him.

"It distresses me and probably others to talk more about this," said Hartwell. "After David Kootook died, I realized that I, too, would soon be dead because I was too weak and injured to move around."

The nurse and the Eskimo woman died within hours of the crash, according to testimony at the inquest, but the boy remained alive for 23 days.

Senators Fly To Siege Of Wounded Knee

By JOHN LUNDQUIST
Associated Press Writer

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (AP) — South Dakota's two senators were flying to this tiny community today in an effort to end a two-day siege by militant Indians holding 11 residents. Sen. James Abourezk said he had been assured that one and possibly two of the captives held since the takeover Tuesday night would be freed when the plane carrying him and fellow Democrat George McGovern arrived in South Dakota.

The senators first planned to land at nearby Pine Ridge, the closest town with an airport, but Abourezk's office in Washington said later their plane would arrive at Ellsworth Air Force Base near Rapid City. They were then to helicopter directly to Wounded Knee.

Their plane was expected to touch down around midmorning.

The 200 Indians have demanded a Senate probe of the Bureau of Indian Affairs in return for freeing the hostages. Aside from one brief meeting with an FBI agent, the Indians have kept law enforcement officers at a distance, and there was an exchange of gunfire Wednesday morning.

Smallpox Fatal To Thousands

DACCA, Bangladesh (AP) — A two-month smallpox epidemic has killed thousands of persons in Bangladesh, including 2,500 in Dacca alone, the Dacca Morning News reported today.

The newspaper said 60 to 70 persons are dying daily from the disease, which health authorities report widespread across the fledgling nation.

Municipal authorities put the two-month death toll in Dacca at 1,500 and said they feared more than 5,000 persons have smallpox in the city.

Dollar Besieged

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar came under siege again today on European foreign exchange markets. The West German central bank bought more than a billion dollars to support it at the floor price.

The dollar dropped sharply also in London, Zurich, Brussels and Milan.

Sources in the Bundesbank described the situation as "alarming." The dollar opened in Frankfurt at its floor price of 283.50 marks and the bank intervened in hectic trading.

The dollar was also on the floor in Brussels, and dealers estimated the Belgian central bank bought at least $40 million in the first hour.

On the free Belgian market, the dollar was quoted at 38.50-38.80 francs, well below the floor of 39.425.

In London, the pound was up more than a cent at $2.4940 from Wednesday's close of $2.48275.

In Zurich the dollar dropped from 3.1575 Swiss francs to 3.125. In Milan it plunged from 566.55 to 559.5 commercial lire.

In Paris, the Bank of France stepped in to support the dollar at its floor price of 4.5005 francs. The financial franc, which the bank does not support in the two-tier system, slipped to around 4.4925.

Noted Authorities To Speak At ECU's Tryon Palace Symposium

NEW BERN — Four noted authorities on the decorative arts of the 18th century will be among the speakers at East Carolina University's fifth annual Tryon Palace Symposium in New Bern March 11-13.

They include: Herbert C. Darbee, associate director of the Connecticut Historical Commission, on early lighting devices; James Lowry Cogar, president of the Shaker Community at Pleasant Hill, Kentucky, on Shaker furniture and interiors; ceramics curator at the Mint Museum, on English and colonial American ceramics; and Henry D. Green, St. Simons Island, Ga. antiques collector, on the furniture of the Southern Piedmont.

M. Mellanay Delhom,

Persons interested in attending the Symposium should write the ECU Division of Continuing Education, Greenville, for further information. Darbee will discuss several types of early lighting devices, including torchlike materials, candles and supports, lanterns, grease lamps, whale oil lamps and patent lamps.

Before assuming duties with the Connecticut Historical Commission, he was curator of mechanical arts at Old Sturbridge Village, Mass.

Darbee holds degrees from Williams College and Yale University and is a member of several professional curators organizations. His articles have appeared in a number of historical journals.

Cogar is president of Cogar, Lewis and Geiger, Inc. of Williamsburg, Va., a firm dealing in 18th century furniture, as well as president of the Shaker community.

He lectured on the social life of 18th century America at the College of William and Mary from 1933 until 1962, and has served as consultant to restorations in Virginia, Kentucky and Washington, D. C.

He also designed the interiors of a number of privately owned colonial houses and the Florida Governor's Mansion, two residences of Nelson A. Rockefeller and the Texas Company's executive offices.

In 1971 Cogar was given a special award from the National Trust for Historic Preservation for significant achievement.

Miss Delhom is curator of the Delhom Gallery and Institute for Study and Research in Ceramics at Charlotte's Mint Museum of Art.

In addition to her work with ceramics, she has been involved in restaurant management and real estate.

Active in many ceramics organizations, Miss Delhom has been first vice president of the Wedgwood International Seminar, a fellow of the Royal Society of Arts and a member of the Museums Association of Great Britain. She is also a member of more than a dozen American, British and international historical and ceramics interest societies.

She has published articles in Antiques and Time magazines and numerous descriptive catalogues. Her ceramics collection has been illustrated in several publications and books.

Last year Miss Delhom was awarded the Ruth Coltrane Cannon Cup for achievement in historical research and preservation in North Carolina.

Henry D. Green has been an avid collector and student of antique furniture for more than 35 years. His restoration of Greenoaks Plantation near Madison, Ga. was featured in Antiques magazine and in the book "Living with Antiques" by Alice Winchester.

Herbert C. Darbee

James Lowry Cogar

M. Mellanay Delhom

His special interest is furniture made in the Southern Piedmont, particularly the Georgia Piedmont.

Green has assisted with several important restorations and has written for Antiques and other periodicals.

He is a member of the Board of Advisors of the National Trust for Historic Preservation.

Average American Workers Can't Afford Average House

By SIDNEY MARGOLIUS
NEW YORK (WNS) — The fastest-rising component of the cost of living is the price tags on new homes. They have been leaping by the thousands recently. Analysis of the U.S. Commerce Department's construction reports shows that in 1972 alone the median price of new houses sold in the U.S. jumped a startling $3,000 to a new high of $28,700. This compares with a national median of $18,000 in 1963, which seemed awesomely high then.

Prices have gotten to the point where the average U.S. worker can't afford to buy the average new house. While some people have an exaggerated notion of how much working people earn, often based on the hourly rates commanded by a relatively few highly-skilled craftsmen, the national average wage currently really is a little under $14 a week or about $7,200 a year.

If you use the traditional rule of thumb that a family usually can afford to pay only two or two and a half times its annual income for a house, then the average working family could afford only $14,000 to $18,000 about half a house at current prices.

Interestingly, the actual price tag on new homes in the past ten years has gone up somewhat more — 60 per cent — than the 46 per cent rise in the construction cost index. That disparity occurs because builders have turned to putting up larger houses with more amenities. In the past ten years only in 1970 did the average price actually go down while the price index went up. In that year government subsidy programs had encouraged the building of smaller and less-expensive houses but these programs have now been largely discontinued.

Estimating Costs
While the estimate of two to two and a half times income provides a rough rule of thumb for judging how much house a family can afford, a more exact yardstick is that a family's total monthly housing expense should not exceed one fourth of its after-tax monthly income (not including temporary overtime earnings). You can estimate total expense of owning a house this way:

First estimate your potential mortgage payment from this table showing the monthly payment for every $1,000 of mortgage at different rates and terms:

Mortgage Term	Interest Rate 6 1/2%	Interest Rate 7%	Interest Rate 7 1/2%
20 years	$6.46	$7.75	$8.06
25 years	6.75	7.07	7.49
30 years	6.32	6.65	6.99
35 years	6.04	6.39	6.74

You need to add to the monthly mortgage payment the probable taxes, insurance, and maintenance. Usually you can estimate that the annual expenses for these items will run 4 to 5 per cent of the value of the house. For example, in suburban areas, property taxes often are 2 to 3 per cent of the property's current market value (not the appraised value which usually is lower). Maintenance can be estimated at 1 1/2 per cent, or less for a relatively new house.

Effect On Young Families
Young families, of course, are most affected by the lofty prices of houses. How do they cope?

Mobile homes have become one answer, although a controversial one in many communities. Mobile homes usually cost $7,500 to $12,000 exclusive of land. Both the FHA and VA now include mobile home loans and sites in the loan guaranty programs.

Young families also now tend to living in apartments for a longer time, and their first home is more likely to be a "town house," really a row house but more varied in appearance and in smaller clusters. Town houses do make more economical use of land, and land costs have been the fastest-rising component in building costs.

More young families also have turned to older houses. They have not gone up as much in price as the new ones and provided an opportunity to invest "seat equity" in the form of owner labor in modernizing them.

Wives Lose Money At Bingo Parlor

HUNTINGDON, England (WNS) — Town clerk Norman Rudd has recommended door-to-door rent collections during weekends when husbands are apt to be home. According to Rudd, wives are $18,000 behind on rent bills because they are losing their household budgets at bingo parlors. His figures on government housing show that "63 percent of the collectable rents were unpaid in a single week by 1200 tenants." A typical housewife called in for owing $250 said that she would go to more bingo games and quickly settle the debt with her winnings. "I have not seen the lady since," said the town clerk.

Chicken pieces or quarters may be wrapped in foil and baked along with onion rings, sliced celery and green pepper. Unwrap the foil about the last 20 minutes of baking to brown chicken.

Drinking Problems At Costume Balls

INNSBRUCK, Austria (WNS) — Now that the Fasching carnival season has begun in the Tyrol, men are having more drinking problems at the nightly costume balls than usual. As college senior Adolph Bergmann explained in behalf of his drunken pals at the police station, "In the old elegant days of our parents, gentlemen drank champagne from ladies slippers. Today coeds wear boots that hold a half-gallon of beer. It's a hard problem for romantic suitors."

It's important to use the correct amount of salt in a yeast bread because too much salt will retard the yeast action.

Chances Of Gaining Custody Of Grandson Slim

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My 29-year-old daughter recently divorced her husband. Bernice has a four-year-old son who is staying with me while his mother is off on a weekend trip.

I just found out Bernice went on this trip with her boy friend, which is something I do not approve of. She has always been a respectable girl, and if this gets around, I'm afraid it will ruin her reputation and spoil her chances for marrying a nice man.

I am a 63-year-old widow. I own my own home and enjoy cooking and keeping house. More than anything else, I love my grandson and he loves staying with "Grandma." I could give him a wonderful home.

If I can obtain proof of my daughter's immoral conduct and prove her to be an unfit mother, what are my chances for gaining custody of my grandson?

CONCERNED GRANDMOTHER

DEAR CONCERNED: Are you concerned for your grandson or for yourself? I don't recommend pursuing your scheme. Your chances for gaining custody of your grandson are small, and should you lose, your daughter would probably never let you see him again.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a nice guy, but he has lousy grammar. My problem is that my oldest child is in the first grade, and even tho I've corrected her when she talks like her father, she has picked up some of his bad habits.

I hate to hurt my husband's feelings by correcting HIM in front of the kid, but if I don't, I'm afraid she will sound like he does, which is pretty bad. I would appreciate your advice.

STUCK MOMMY

DEAR MOMMY: Keep correcting HER, and don't worry about your husband. The good Lord seems to look after children in such circumstances. How else can we explain those who were reared in homes by parents with "lousy" grammar but speak beautifully?

DEAR ABBY: You had a letter in your column from a man who met an unwed mother. He said he had respect for her honesty and courage, and in his letter I found hope.

At this moment I am 18 years old, pregnant, and unmarried. My boy friend, also 18, pledged his undying love for me and told me if he got me pregnant, he would marry me. He was the first and only man who ever touched me, and we planned to be married in a year.

Well, when I told him I was pregnant, he found one reason after another to postpone our marriage. Then he said he wasn't sure he was the father, and he stopped calling and coming to see me. Now he's seeing another girl.

I'm too far along to do anything but have the baby now, but, thank God, my family is standing by me. I am praying for a healthy baby and I hope some day I'll meet a man who won't hold this mistake against me.

Abby, please warn other girls who think they are in love to tell the boy that real love is protecting the girl and caring for her.

I don't want child support, and I don't want to see my boy friend punished. Now I can see him for what he really is, and I want nothing more to do with him. After I have the baby I plan to finish my education and start a new life far from here.

I never thought this could happen to me. If you think it will help some other girl, you may print this, but sign it SHATTERED DREAMS

DEAR SHATTERED: Thank you for telling your story. I'm sure your letter will be read and remembered by many. God bless you and good luck.

Will She Marry For 100 Camels?

SOUSSE, Tunisia (WNS) — Sylvia Shean, a Boston housewife, was bargaining in the market place when the Arab shopkeeper made an offer she didn't expect: a gift of 100 camels if she would marry him. She said no, but he was at the airport to make the same offer when she departed the next day. "I'm blonde and plump, and he liked me that way," said Mrs. Shean. Her husband Tom added, "An interesting offer, but what can you do with a hundred camels in Boston?"

We Welcome A New Industry

Greenville and Pitt County welcome a new industry to its growing industrial family. Cooper U.S.A., Inc. has announced it will relocate its manufacturing facilities here. The firm makes animal health and pet care products and is affiliated with the Wellcome Foundation Ltd. of London.

It 66,000 square foot facility will be located on the Burroughs-Wellcome property on U.S. 13 N.C. 11 at the Eastern bypass intersection.

Where Do We Go From Here?

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — North Carolina is 39th among the states in per capita income, its sixth graders are behind the national average in learning, fewer doctors attend its citizens, and less of its natural areas are in keeping for posterity.

There are some indicators of the state of the state approaching the final quarter of the 20th century.

BRYAN HAISLIP

Where do we go from here? Answering that question is the charge and challenge for the State Council on Goals and Policy. Fifteen citizens from varied walks of life make up the council, a sort of think-tank for the expression of what Tar Heels want from the future and the espousal of ways to achieve their aims.

The state through public and private institutions has a duty "to expand the options of all citizens to pursue the good life as determined by their own needs and aspirations," said the council in its first annual report, prepared late last year and recently released.

Planning With, Not For

"Our desire is that the council and state government plan with the citizens, as opposed to planning for them."

Highlights among its recommendations, which concentrated on the economy, health care, education, and environment:

1. A more active state government role in shaping the economic future, with attention to equality of opportunity for blacks, Indians and other disadvantaged groups, strengthened efforts "to attract high wage, high technology industries that do not create an adverse environmental impact."

2. "North Carolina must have more doctors and other trained health care personnel." Emphasis was urged for better distribution of doctors and delivery of health care to reach rural areas, with attention to regional planning to improve the efficiency of facilities and services.

3. "Public kindergartens should be available to all North Carolina children qualified by age." More efficient use of physical facilities for learning, and opportunities for education beyond the high school were cited as critical needs.

4. "North Carolina should declare a State Land Use Policy that will facilitate orderly and well planned development across the state." Acquisition of land for park use, and preservation of scenic values, was recommended for high priority.

Issues Before Legislature

Many of the issues identified by the council in its initial report are the subject of legislation before the current General Assembly. How they fare at the hands of the lawmakers will have an impact on the council as a viable goal-setting instrument for state government.

Another crucial factor will be the in-put of Gov. Jim Holshouser. The council was created by the 1971 legislature, and organized by former Gov. Bob Scott who regarded it as a crowning accomplishment of his administration.

Holshouser has supported the concept, though it is not clear whether he will give it the same degree of personal attention his predecessor did. Phil Kirk of Salisbury, former Republican state senator and a top aide to the governor, is one of the council members.

Before the year is out, Gov. Holshouser will have the opportunity to appoint seven members of the council. As a continuing body, those on the council serve four-year terms, staggered to overlap administrations.

Future Above Partisanship

Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt looks to the goals council as a principal sphere for his office's exercise of leadership. No conflict of political interests is involved, said Hunt who is a Democrat while Holshouser is a Republican.

"Long range planning and goal-setting is an activity outside the political arena, per se," he observed. "Our concern for the future is above partisanship."

While drawing on expertise in many fields, the council said it does not intend to operate in a vacuum isolated from the citizenry whose future is at stake.

This year will be a time "for acquiring more information on conditions in North Carolina and refining and expanding our ideas on how to help shape the future," the report said.

"We plan to continue the Governor's regional conferences on at least an annual basis, in order to hear from a broad cross-section of our citizens. We plan additional conferences with state legislators for the cross-fertilization of ideas about the Company officials said around 50 local jobs will be created and approximately eight families will move from the present location in Chicago. The firm's employment in the Research Triangle will be approximately 21.

The firm makes Pulvex Pet Care Products and Cooper large animal health care products and the announcement said the plant will be engineered to provide all environmental safeguards necessary to the pollution-free production of the company's products.

"The prospects for our business as a result of our move to North Carolina are both promising and exciting," Nathan B. Carson, president of the company said in the announcement.

Certainly it is exciting to us that this outstanding company will produce its products in Pitt County. We think the company will find a friendly atmosphere here, just as other industries which are located here have done.

We'd Like To Believe Delay Is Not Serious

It seems almost inconceivable that after so much negotiation and after the first release of prisoners of war the Communist would place new demands of further releases.

The next group of prisoners was not released as expected Tuesday with Hanoi citing harassment of North Vietnam delegations in the south, clearing of the Haiphong mines, release of civilian prisoners in the south and cease-fire violations as reasons for holding up the releases.

We would like to believe that the delay is not serious and whatever is really bothering Hanoi will soon be solved. Hopefully the prisoner releases will be resumed shortly.

Helms Against Aid To Hanoi

By JOHN KILGO
U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms says he's delighted American prisoners are returning from Vietnam, but he still has concern about the war.

Sen. Helms also told me in an interview that he is against sending American money to North Vietnam, and he's tickled to death that President Nixon is cutting the federal budget.

Here's the way my talk with Sen. Helms went:

Question: Are you pleased and satisfied with the terms that ended the Vietnam War?

Answer: "I'm delighted our prisoners are coming home. My big apprehension is for the future state of the people of South Vietnam. If we're leaving them open for another bloodbath and another take over by the Communists, that's bad. I'm sure the President has had that in mind and he's as interested in that not happening as I am."

To the editor:

Is it asking too much to expect people to switch channels if they don't want to see "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf"? This movie is important and valuable to see—not because nasty people get to hear nasty words, but because it reveals real human emotion in great depth. There is no need to fear Virginia Woolf, but censorship is frightening.

NOW HOW DO YOU PLAY THAT ONE?

MORRIS

Compassion That Works

Several thousand poverty workers descended last week on Capitol Hill, there to lobby for their jobs and to publicize their cause. They had learned their catechism well.

What is Richard Nixon? Richard Nixon is an oppressor. Whom does Richard Nixon oppress? Richard Nixon oppresses the poor. Why does he oppress the poor? He oppresses the poor because he lacks compassion. What else does he lack? He lacks sensitivity also. How does he oppress the poor? He oppresses the poor by demanding that certain anti-poverty programs be dismantled. What do we call these demands? We call them brutal and savage.

Nixon replied to this malarkey on Saturday in a speech that crackled with common sense. A great many fed-up Americans, listening on the car radios, must have wanted to honk their horns in approbation. He took deadly aim on the "almost Utopian commitments" of the Great Society that "in case after case amounted to dismal failure."

"Those who make a profession out of poverty got fat," he said. "The taxpayers got stuck, and the disadvantaged themselves got little but broken promises."

For a telling example of what Nixon was talking about, consider the Neighborhood Youth Corps. This well-intentioned boondoggle was created under the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964. It is administered by the Department of Labor. One of its purposes is to provide meaningful employment and remedial education for potential dropouts, in order to keep them in school.

On February 20 the General Accounting Office released a report on the Neighborhood Youth Corps' operations in 1970-71 in Houston, Norfolk, and Washington, D. C. The report made dismal reading.

During the 1971 fiscal year, the Corps had a budget of $59 million for its in-school program. Nationwide, an estimated one million youths were eligible. Of these, only 95,000 got a taste of the gravy. In the three cities studied by the GAO, 2,367 youths shared in a program that cost $1,575,000.

The Labor Department had set up criteria for determining potential dropouts. Examination of a sample group indicated that probably 35 percent of the youths were ineligible: They never had thought of dropping out.

Did the program operate effectively for the other two-thirds? No, indeed. In Washington, for example, the GAO auditors compared Corps enrollees who had "identified dropout potential" with a similar group of non-enrolled youths. The actual dropout rate was 18.7 percent for those who were enrolled. It was 11.8 for those who were not.

The program was intended to provide remedial education for poor students. Only 17 percent of them got it.

The program also was to provide "meaningful" job

Learn It All By Mail

NEW YORK AP — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail: The hippety-hop life of a cottontail rabbit is a short tale. Out of every 1,000 bunnies born, only a third will live long enough to leave the nest. They are killed by cold or rain or raiding skunks, weasels or cats. Slightly more than three years after birth, all 1,000 rabbits will probably be dead.

A young brave in the Guajira Indian tribe in Colombia who wants an attractive bride may have to pay his prospective mother-in-law as many as 300 goats. Compared to the prices brides fetch in other native tribes around the world, this may seem exorbitant — but it has a built-in guarantee. If the bride proves unfaithful to her husband, he can return her and collect a fine from his mother-in-law also payable in goats.

Cut-rate: What did his traitorism pay Benedict Arnold, America's most famous turncoat? He asked 20,000 pounds from the British to relay them the secret plans of West Point. They actually paid him only 6,000 pounds — worth less than $15,000 today. Later, however, the British voted his pretty young wife, Peggy, the instigator of his traitorous deed, an annual pension of 500 pounds — $1,235 a year.

Inauguration of Franklin Delano Roosevelt as President of the United States and John Nance Garner as Vice-President is the pivot about which have revolved plans for the colorful Washington ceremonies marking installation of a new administration Saturday, March 4th. The incoming President follows a busy program on Inauguration Day, taking the oath of office at noon on the east front of the Capitol, following the Senate chamber ceremonies inducting the new Vice-President. The inaugural parade is timed to follow these ceremonies. Time-honored custom brings the great parade from its starting point near the Capitol, along Pennsylvania Avenue, past the reviewing stand near the White House, with seats of honor reserved for the Roosevelts and the Garners and other notables. General John J. Pershing was accorded the honor of leading this year's procession along its historic route.

Strength For Today

OUR JUDICIAL SYSTEM

Our judicial system on the whole is something we can be proud of as a nation. Judges are almost invariably men of high character, intent on serving their country. Our judicial system provides that every accused person can have a just trial. The official might indeed complain that he was too harshly dealt with, but when a person walks up to another person and deliberately shoots him that person is a murderer whether the victim dies or not.

We can carry our cases to the Supreme Court. The fact that these justices are appointed for life and have liberal retirement allowances makes for just decisions and a courageous handling of cases. From the village magistrate to the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court things are so arranged as to give every individual a fair trial.

We may not agree with all decisions reached and sentences inflicted, but we must acknowledge that in all types of court procedure over ninety-nine per cent of our judges are honest and conscientious.

It is a terrible thing to be deprived of one's liberty. To realize that justice is in the hands of honest men committed to the faithful carrying out of legal requirements is matter of real assurance.

Let us strengthen the hands of our judges and thank God that they are the fine lot of people they appear to be, intent on doing the right thing.

Pocketbook Problems To Grow

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Pocketbook problems are going to be big news in coming months, and don't be surprised if some tempers are tested beyond the breaking point. Yours, George Meany's or maybe even the President's temper.

The fact is that there is still a lot of inflationary thrust beneath consumer prices, especially for food, and there isn't much that can be done at the moment to prevent further rises in the next few weeks and months.

Administration spokesmen concede their inability to bring quick relief from rising food prices by increasing the supply. And it is unlikely that families will reduce the pressures by lowering their consumption.

The unhappy situation is directly at odds with the goal of price stability that President Nixon has sought through fundamental fiscal and monetary changes. Short of admitting failure, his only option is direct intervention.

More than once in recent days the President has reminded listeners that he can act directly — that he has a "big stick" in the closet. It is "totally wrong" to assume controls have ended, he said in a radio address.

There is the likelihood also that the family shopper will be tempted to take direct action, although her power is limited to boycotts, protests and the like. But voluntarily lower her family's standard of living? No.

Whereas a housewife can prepare her budget for clothing, transportation and entertainment, she can lower the quantity or quality of food served to her family only with a great deal of anguish over their health.

The frustration will be made even less tolerable by the expectation that wages will be restrained, if only through psychology rather than controls. And this surely will test the temper of Meany, the AFL-CIO leader.

Meany already has warned that organized labor "will push wages up unless prices come down." Since there is little chance that prices will fall, a Meany-Nixon confrontation could put the big stick policy to its first big test.

About the only certain relief in sight for workers are the big refund checks from the Internal Revenue Service that are going out to hundreds of thousands of workers who failed to adjust their withholding forms last year.

These checks, however, are a one-time blessing and inflation is a continuing curse.

Could it be the farmer who will be most severely tested? While farm prices have been rising very sharply, the amount of the food dollar that goes to farmers is still well below what it was 25 years ago.

Still, because of the direction in which farm prices have been moving, it is likely that pressure will build for food price relief at the source, the farm, which is guaranteed to be viewed by the farmer as highly unjust.

Some trying days are ahead for budgeteers, and if there is any escape it isn't highly visible now. Meatless days, perhaps? Few families are likely to accept them if they can continue eating meat without borrowing money to do so.

World Day Of Prayer Services To Be Held Friday

The annual World Day of Prayer services will be held this Friday with Timothy R. Green and the Rev. J. J. Reece as guest speakers.

The morning service will be held at 10:30 at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, with Green, director of Christian Education at the First Presbyterian Church, as speaker.

The Rev. Reece, pastor of York Memorial A.M.E. Zion Church, will make the evening address at the Mt. Calvary Free Will Baptist Church service, to be held from 8 to 9 p.m.

The public is invited to the services which are sponsored by Church Women United. Mrs. Leroy T. Cherry is chairman of World Day of Prayer in Greenville.

Green's topic will be "Vision or Disillusionment: The Case for a New American Dream." A native of Florence, Ala., he received his B.A. degree in Chinese literature and English literature from the University of Michigan. He graduated from the Presbyterian School of Education with the M.A. degree in Christian Education.

During his college years he was a professional entertainer, having worked in Chicago supper clubs and at one time with Steve Lawrence and Eydie Gorme.

A native of Bertie County, the Rev. Reece attended A&T and also Elizabeth City State Teachers College. He graduated from Shaw University with the A.B. and B.D. degrees. He and his wife, Hazel, have two children. Their son is a medical student at the University of Colorado Medical Center. Their daughter teaches music in Yonkers, N.Y.

Prior to coming to Greenville three months ago, the Rev. Reece served as pastor of St. Peter's A.M.E. Zion Church, New Bern.

Serving on the committee for World Day of Prayer are: Mrs. Cherry-Hooker Memorial Christian Church; Mrs. Don Bailey, co-chairman, First Presbyterian Church; Mrs. W.M. Myers and Mrs. Linwood Woodard, both of York Memorial A.M.E. Zion Church; Mrs. Charles H. Moore, Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church; and Mrs. Wyatt Brown, representing Church Women United.

Readers at the morning service will be Mrs. Robert Alligood, Mrs. Jack Edwards, Mrs. Myers and Mrs. Bob Holt. The Rev. Charles M. Smith will be soloist and Mrs. Paul Toll is organist. Mrs. Boley Farley Sr., president of Church Women United, will give the benediction. The Rev. Troy Barrett, pastor will give the prayer.

Readers at the Mt. Calvary service are: Mrs. Mary Mathews, leader; Mrs. Anthony Wilkes; Mrs. Thelma Lawrence; and Mrs. Patsy Smith. Soloist is Mrs. Marian Jones; organist, Johnny Wooten. The prayer will be given by Dr. W.L. Jones, pastor. Mrs. Farley will give the benediction.

Theme for World Day of Prayer this year is "Alert In Our Time, with the service prepared by the women of New Zealand. The annual event is observed in 168 countries under sponsorship of the International Committee for the World Day of Prayer.

The offering is used for new projects concerning American Indians; to help publish childrens books in five languages; to open a new program in Caribbean islands to assist women to discover and develop their potentialities; to provide fellowship and service for international students and guest in the U.S. and a pastoral ministry among Americans working abroad.

Church Women United also sponsor May Fellowship Day and World Community Day, held in the fall.

U.S. District Court Judge William Wayne Justice told an audience at Southern Methodist University the moves would help silence critics of today's long and often complex appeals procedures and cut the appeals load on federal dockets. Justice said most of the habeas corpus appeals filed with his court deal with alleged errors in guilty pleas taken by state court judges.

The bidding:

Opening lead: Deuce of ♠
South had a choice of plays to uncover a ninth trick in his three no trump contract. His final decision was based on an inference drawn from the evidence before him.

West reasoned that inasmuch as the opposition had made no attempt to probe for a major suit fit, an attack in that direction might prove profitable. He therefore opened the deuce of hearts. East put up the ace, felling declarer's queen and then when a small heart brought forth the king, West unblocked for his partner by playing the ten—thereby retaining the four to reach East subsequently.

South had seven top tricks—three spades, one heart, one diamond and two clubs—with several prospects for more. Since he could not afford to surrender the lead because the opposition was in position to cash out their hearts, he decided to concentrate on the club suit which might be expected to yield two additional tricks if the finesse succeeded.

A club was led to the king at trick three, however, on the return, East showed out discarding a diamond. Declarer put up the ace of clubs and switched his attention in another direction. A small diamond was led and when West followed with the nine, dummy covered with the queen. When the finesse succeeded, South had his eighth trick.

The king of spades was cashed and a small one returned to the ace as both opponents followed suit. The crucial moment had arrived. Declarer had a choice. He could try to split out the spade suit by cashing the queen, or he could cross over to the dummy to lead a spade and finesse the ten.

Before committing himself, South led a small diamond on the chance that West might have a doubleton king—for if that card succumbed to dummy's ace, then the jack would become established for the ninth trick.

West followed with the ten of diamonds, however, and North put up the ace. Declarer paused at this point to count his opponent's distribution. West was known to have started with four clubs, three diamonds and presumably four hearts. It appeared then, that he had been dealt a doubleton spade.

A small spade was led from dummy and when East followed with the eight, South played the ten. West showed out and declarer's queen of spades was cashed for the fulfilling trick.

powers up here. What I want to hear is Senators and Congressmen talk about the responsibility of Congress. I think Richard Nixon would dance a jig if Congress would step forward and say we're going to cut the budget ourselves and hold spending to reasonable levels. All we hear is carping and complaining because the President is doing it. If Congress isn't going to do it, I'm glad somebody is."

Q. Do you think some "people programs" are being slashed but the defense program is still a high cost?
Helms: "I'm strong national defense man. That doesn't mean I want to waste a penny in the Pentagon or any other agency. But our national defense is first and foremost."

Q. But do you think "people programs" have been cut out of proportion?
Helms: "Most people doing the complaining are the ones who have been direct beneficiaries of it. I was looking over some reports just this morning. It showed that 80 per cent of the money for the Office of Economic Opportunity had gone for salaries, to the tune of $8 billion or $10 billion. You're really talking about a bunch of people on a federal payroll.

These are people who're doing all the complaining. They don't want to lose their jobs. They don't want to get out into the private sector and go to work. They want to keep on feeding at the public trough. I don't buy that argument a'tall.

opportunities. On the average, enrollees worked out 10 hours a week and earned some $600 during the school year. Most of the participating girls were assigned to clerical work, and these benefited from the program.

It appeared, however, that some 54 percent of the boys were shuffled off to jobs as assistant janitors. In Washington, 40 percent of the boys in the sample group were assigned to a "courtesy patrol." Their duties were "to patrol neighborhoods and help residents carry groceries, help elderly people off buses, help remove litter, and maintain general surveillance over neighborhood streets."

The GAO auditors visited a courtesy patrol work station. In their observation, more than half the sampled youths were simply lounging around. "All the courtesy patrol members were assembled in the same room with no apparent work to perform. During the entire length of our visit, not one left the room to patrol the streets or serve residents."

To borrow from Nixon's speech, this doubtless was "compassion that meant well." If this kind of thing can be replaced by "compassion that works," Nixon and the Congress will have applause coming; and the catechism will be exposed as a lie.

"We will also try to answer questions raised by individuals or groups and provide the students an opportunity to express their views," Bright said.

In conjunction with the establishment of "The Paladin Press," the name of the PTI newspaper, six journalism classes have been added to the Pitt Tech curriculum. The courses are: introduction to journalism; essentials of news writing; newspaper layout and production; feature writing; editorial writing and policy; and special topics seminar.

Even though the courses are primarily for students working on the paper, they will be open to all students.

The school paper has received the endorsement of Dr. William E. Fulford Jr., PTI president.

"I firmly believe that there is not a more important element in the progress of a school than keeping the students, the staff and the public abreast of what is going on," Fulford said.

While expressing his desire to see more involvement by students, Fulford said the newspaper is a major step in this direction.

The first copies of "Paladin" were delivered to students this week. Larry G. Oakley, president of the PTI Student Government Association, reported a favorable response from the student body.

"I am proud that our SGA had the wisdom and foresight to authorize a student-operated newspaper," Oakley said. "The newspaper staff is to be commended for its outstanding efforts on behalf of the PTI student body."

Serving on the press staff, in addition to Bright, are Marlene Boyd, Josie Darden, W. E. Williams, Dennis Woodard, Nancy Cahoon, Carolyn Sladek, and Larry Oakley.

Jim Young, instructor of the new journalism courses, and Reese Helms are serving as advisors to the newspaper.

Young, assistant to the president at PTI, has an extensive background in newspaper, magazine, radio, television, and journalism. He edited both the newspaper and the yearbook while he was at East Carolina University.

The courses, to begin spring quarter, are divided into two parts — class and lab, and practicum. The class and lab section will provide instruction and practice in all phases of newspaper production. The practicum will be spent actually working on the "Paladin Press."

Students may earn two credit hours for each class and lab section taken and one credit hour for each quarter in the practicum.

Are Victory Gardens Next?

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shades of 30 years ago: Victory Gardens? What's next? Rosie the Riveter?

Nostalgia, the province of old folks and trivia buffs, is being weakened by the Nixon administration which prides itself on old-fashioned values. One of them is do-for-yourself.

In that vein, Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns started the consumer-guidance program by a suggestion that smacks of the "meatless Tuesdays" of World War II.

He took note last week of the high cost of meat and said, "I have nothing to suggest ... except possibly the American public will be just as well off if it spent less on meat and more on cheese. On a purely voluntary basis, I think we would be just as well off if we had one meatless day a week."

President Nixon took up the chant while in Florida, suggesting more fish on the dinner plate.

Then Wednesday came the latest round. At a news conference in New York, Secretary of Labor Peter J. Brennan suggested victory gardens would help drive down high food prices.

Brennan said he plans to advise his wife to start one at their Long Island home.

That should strike a chord in the over-40 generation that remembers victory gardens of World War II—the prideful vegetable plots that thrived in every other backyard and in the town park.

Children had their own plots, their crop a joy at many a show-and-tell. Grownups had theirs too, in boxes outside office windows, in backyards, in land especially leased to give the home farmer a break.

Old-timers remember pictures of a victory garden in back of the White House, on rooftops in the cities. All to augment the food supply.

They thought victory gardens had gone the way of other domestic hallmarks of the war— "A slip of the lip may sink a ship," Axis Sally and Tokyo Rose.

For those too young to remember, Rosie the Riveter was a housewife—before the days of women's liberation—who left home and hearth to work in defense plants.

And then went home to tend her victory garden, forsaking meat on Tuesday and eating such fish as her rationing stamps would buy.

Hung Jury In Trial Of Lincoln Deputy

LINCOLN, N.C. (AP) — A camp at Dallas in nearby Gaston County.

Sisk now works in a textile plant in Lincoln and, according to Sheriff Harven Crouse, has no desire to return to law enforcement work. Witnesses for Sisk said his pistol discharged accidentally when he raised it to hit Abernathy on the temple to subdue him when he attacked Sisk while resisting arrest. The state argued that the shooting was willful, and there were enough policemen present to restrain Abernathy without the use of a pistol.

Sisk resigned from the force last July 4 shortly after Randy Ray Abernathy, 20, was shot to death while being booked in the county jail on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill. Abernathy had got into a scrape with another man while out on July 4th holiday leave from the prison

Many Senators Had Second Thoughts About ERA

Patrolmen Gather For A Holshouser Message

Highway Patrolmen in Troop A met at troop headquarters here yesterday to hear a special message from Gov. Jim Holshouser.

Yesterday's session in Greenville was the first of seven scheduled showings of a personal message by Gov. Holshouser recorded on film for viewing by all members of the Highway Patrol.

In his message to the Highway Patrol, the governor said "I know it's unusual for a Governor to deliver this kind of message," but added, "I believe it is time well-spent — both for you and for me."

Gov. Holshouser, in the film, told the troopers, "You have a tremendous responsibility in keeping traffic moving efficiently and safely on our highway system.

"I want to assure you of my support in your efforts.

The governor emphasized, "there is no place in any traffic safety program for complacency or defeatism. This, applies to you individually and as a group. Your efforts have to dovetail with other agencies, but you are our first line of defense."

According to Holshouser's statement, a well-managed professional enforcement program is the key to the battle for highway safety.

"There is no room," he emphasized, "for outside political influence or internal cliques. The job of the Patrol is simply too important for that."

Holshouser encouraged the patrolmen not to waste time.

"Your efforts and the image of the Patrol can be seriously damaged if you are seen goofing off on the job.

"I'm sure you are aware, too, that the manner in which you exercise your authority will ultimately determine your effectiveness.

"You can win strong supporters for our highway safety program or you can make enemies. It depends on you and your attitude."

Holshouser also told the Troopers of a comprehensive study of the Patrol and its activities now getting underway by Northwestern University traffic control and enforcement experts.

According to the governor, members of the study team "will be coming to men in the field as well as administrative personnel for first-hand information. The thoughts and suggestions of every member of the Patrol will be sought," he explained.

"This study, he said," is being conducted by professional law enforcement personnel," and its sole purpose, is to improve the efficiency of our organization so that it serves our State to its maximum potential."

Holshouser concluded, "you can be justly proud of the Patrol and you have my best support."

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) —

When all the debating was over, and the lobbyists were safely confined to the galleries, the decision on the Equal Rights Amendment found several North Carolina senators searching within themselves for the values instilled in their childhoods—conscience, integrity, the place of a woman, and the value of a promise. At least two senators found it within themselves to renege on their commitment to the amendment, and their votes were enough to send it down to a 27-23 defeat.

Sen. Gordon Allen, D-Person, says he did not make up his mind until shortly before the vote was taken. Then he decided, "in conscience, I just could not vote for it."

Allen left his seat and walked the few yards to where Sen. Charles Deane, D-Richmond, was sitting. Just 24 hours before, Allen had told Deane, the ERA sponsor in the Senate, that he would vote for the controversial amendment.

As he often does in his role as majority leader, Allen knelt beside Deane's seat and tapped him on the shoulder. Deane was ostensibly listening to the debate, but his mind was mulling over the list he had of senators who were committed to voting for the ERA—just enough for a majority.

"I asked him 'How's the vote?'" Allen recounted at a cocktail party later Wednesday evening. "He said it was tight and some boys were wavering."

"I told him that he was looking at one of those waverers and asked that he release me, and he did." Allen had told women voters during his campaign that he would probably vote for the ERA, and he had firmed that commitment Friday. A constituent, he said, had written to ask his position, and his secretary had typed the usual form letter saying Allen was "probably" going to vote for it.

"I crossed out the 'probably' and wrote 'will' in its place," Allen said. "But about noon today (Wednesday) I started to reconsider. I've been trying to figure out why I couldn't vote for it, and I guess it's because I just don't know what it will do and I'm afraid of the unknown."

Allen's defection meant that Deane's slim majority was in trouble. A few minutes later, Sen. Michael Mullins applied the clincher.

Mullins, a 32-year-old Republican attorney from Charlotte, had said in his campaign he would vote for the ERA, but "since the session started, I've learned more about it, and as a lawyer, I just didn't want to vote for it."

Nonetheless, the dapper Mullins had remained publicly committed. His race for the Senate was his first campaign and he took the promises he made seriously enough to introduce a bill to repeal the soft drink tax despite opposition from Republican leaders. But at the last minute he changed, and the strain of the decision showed when he told a reporter who asked him about it, "You're getting picky and it's getting on my nerves."

In the end, Mullins said, "When you find out you've made the wrong promise, you're morally obligated to change your mind and vote your conscience. I wish to God I didn't have to change my mind."

Others had reached the same conclusion earlier. Sen. Bette Wilkie, R-Henderson, had signed a pledge in her campaign to vote for the ERA, but changed her mind weeks ago.

Sen. George Rountree, R-New Hanover, however, said "When I was a kid, a promise from an adult was something special. Adults shouldn't make promises they don't know anything about."

Rountree had promised a Wilmington women's group during his campaign that he would vote for ERA. He, too, began to have doubts and he says he asked the women's group to release him from his promise. They refused.

"So I voted for it. I might have voted for it anyway, but to me, a promise is a promise," Rountree said, a few feet from where Allen was explaining his vote.

It was clear, as Allen said, that the ERA represented one of the most emotional issues for the state legislature since the question of liberalized abortion.

According to most senators, there was no logrolling in the cloak-rooms on the ERA. Members challenged each other, debated their beliefs, and urged their colleagues to do not what was politically expedient, but what they felt was right.

In the end, 27 senators decided they did not want to place women on an absolutely equal legal basis with men.

It was, as Allen said, a vote that was cast with Pollonius' advice to Laertes in the first act of Shakespeare's "Hamlet" in mind:

"This above all: to thine own self be true; and it must follow as the night the day thou canst not then be false to any man."

Feared Results Of Nixon Win

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — A former prisoner of war says one of his darkest days as a captive in South Vietnam was the day he heard Richard M. Nixon had been re-elected President.

"We knew that McGovern was going to win and that we would be coming home," Army Sgt. Gary Guggenberger said in an interview with the Minneapolis Tribune published today.

Radio Hanoi was virtually the only source of information for Americans held prisoner in the South, and the men believed the Communists' military gains during the 1972 offensive would defeat Nixon, Guggenberger told the Tribune.

"I thought we were dead—that we'd never last it out—after hearing that McGovern lost," said the 25-year-old Guggenberger, who spent four years as a POW.

He said his attitude toward Nixon hasn't changed despite his release, and he said some of the other 26 men released from prison camps in South Vietnam share his views.

There was tension between them and some of the men released in Hanoi, when they were together at Clark Air Base in the Philippines, Guggenberger told the newspaper.

"Nothing much was said, but one guy did talk about our lack of discipline and not saluting the general (who greeted them) or the colors (American flag)."

"Man, that was the last thing I was thinking about when I got off the plane. I was free. I didn't even know where the colors were and I wasn't interested in no general."

Hospitals Feel British Strike

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Hospitals became the latest victim today of British labor unions' strike-a-day campaign against the government's wage controls. Thousands of patients were sent home and many hospitals accepted emergency cases only.

"This will cause patients a lot of extra suffering," said one hospital chief, of the walkout and go-slow protest launched by nonmedical hospital staff.

The workers — porters, cleaners, cooks and laundry women — struck at more than 200 of Britain's 2,250 hospitals. They used a "noncooperation" campaign at most of the others.

Meals, laundry and cleaning services were immediately hit. A spokesman for the Merseyside hospital area warned that relatives of patients may be asked to wash sheets and blankets, as "unclean bedding could become a major health hazard."

The unions calling the strike pledged to maintain emergency services, but the Merseyside spokesman described their idea of essential staffing as "inadequate."

At least 750,000 workers, including gasmen, railmen, civil servants, teachers and Ford auto workers are taking industrial action to back their demands for special exemption from the government's ceiling on all pay raises. The government limit is $2.45 a week plus 4 per cent of base pay. The hospital workers want another $9.80 a week. They have been offered $5.40.

Herring Blocked English Road

BRISTOL, England (AP) — A shoal of herring blocked a road into Bristol today, causing a rush hour traffic jam.

More than a ton of the fish slithered off the back of a truck and scattered along two miles of road. Long lines of cars built up while the catch was re-caught.

The spoiled herring were fed later to sea lions and penguins at the Bristol Zoo.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic governors today voted unanimously to oppose President Nixon's plan to re-vamp federal domestic aid programs until they get more information on how it will affect their states.

At a breakfast meeting, the Democratic state executives decided to oppose the President's plan to switch many programs from direct aid to so-called "special revenue sharing."

"The Democratic governors are dissatisfied with the kind of information that has been given us," both about proposed budget cuts and the shape and size of special revenue sharing, Gov. John J. Gilligan of Ohio told reporters.

Tour Ended By Jenkins

Dr. Leo Jenkins, Chancellor of East Carolina University, returned to his desk Wednesday following 12,400 mile "Search for Excellence" tour of several areas of the United States.

Touring under the sponsorship of a Danforth Foundation grant, Dr. Jenkins made most of the trip by automobile, visiting areas of eastern United States and states from Florida to California including Louisiana and Texas.

The purpose of the foundation sponsored tour was to provide the chancellor an opportunity to see at first hand some of the cultural, economic and social conditions of various areas, and to talk to leaders in many fields about solutions they have found to such problems.

Dr. Jenkins plans to go to Richmond today where he will attend the Southern Conference Basketball Tournament which gets underway tonight.

Dog-Poisoning

The poisoning of dogs in the area of East Third and Fourth Streets near Greenwood Cemetery has been reported to the Pitt County Human Society, according to Miss Evelyn Beasley of the Humane Society.

Animal owners are urged to take their dogs to a veterinary clinic at the first sign of sudden illness, Miss Beasley said. She reminded that cruelty to animals carried up to $1,000 fine and imprisonment under North Carolina Criminal Law. Anyone with information relating to animal poisoning should report it at once.

MUSICAL PROGRAM

The Gospels of Pinetops will present a musical program at Grindle Creek Church of God, Rt. 5, Greenville, Saturday, 7:30 p.m.

The Rev. Wilbur Franks is pastor.

Approved Point Of Intersection

A recommendation that will provide for an intersection of the proposed Arlington Boulevard with N.C. Highway 43 at a point about 1200 yards south of the earlier proposed intersection point, was approved by members of the Joint County-City Planning and Zoning Commission meeting Wednesday night.

Three alternate plans for this future road construction were discussed. Alternate C, the one approved to be recommended to the City Council, would serve to eliminate a V-type intersection and would make it possible for Arlington Boulevard extended to come into N.C. 43 at a 45 degree angle instead.

It would also avoid having the proposed road going through a development now already in the planning stages, the Oakmont Professional Plaza.

Another rezoning request, that of the Simon Moye property located on N.C. 11 across from Pitt Plaza, was recommended for approval for rezoning from RA-20 to highway commercial. This land was about a year ago rezoned by Moye's request from highway commercial to RA-20.

A request for rezoning relative to the C.A. Langley heirs property, scheduled to be heard, was withdrawn by the requestors prior to the meeting.

Planning-Zoning...

If City Council approves the project, it will result in a complete topographic lay out of Green Mill Run on scale maps plotted 100 feet per inch with two feet contour intervals. This in turn will make it possible for the first time to accurately delineate the flood plain areas of the stream.

On a non-scheduled item, the commissioners heard the city engineer tell about problems of surface drainage at Red Oak Subdivision. Holliday said because of the lay of the land, water overflow was a chronic problem.

Commissioners asked that Holliday write the developer, asking his cooperation in providing adequate ditch drainage, which Holliday said was the only solution to the problem.

Declares Equal Rights Amendment 'Not Dead'

"The Equal Rights Amendment is not dead because the North Carolina Senate has defeated it," declared Mrs. Tennala Gross, Democratic coordinator for the Women's Political Caucus, this morning.

"We've been working for Equal Rights for all people too long to let it drop now. Unless enough states (38) ratify the amendment before the North Carolina General Assembly meets again, they will be dealing with it again.

"I plan to write letters of appreciation to all the senators who voted for the ratification. I won't write to all those who defeated it, though it makes me ill to think that our two senators, Sen. Vernon White and Sen. Julian Allsbrook could have brought the vote to a tie had they voted for it. And Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt had announced he would break a tie with a yes vote."

am now an active supporter of a day care center her in Greenville. But I know what it is to work and be discriminated against. I went to college by attending classes in the day time and working in a hosiery mill in Burlington at night. I am wholly for women's rights, but I am not a radical hater of men, marriage, and children and I do not appreciate his emotional lumping of all ERA supporters into this category."

"It's my sincere hope," Mrs. Gross concluded, "that before the General Assembly meets again, we can make the public understand what the amendment would do—that it would not take away any protection from women, and girls but would extend protection to men and boys, that it would increase opportunity for women, not harm them in any way."

"I just hope," said Mrs. Nelson Crisp, Republican coordinator of the Women's Political Caucus for the First District, "that North Carolina won't be the 50th state to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment.

"It will come up time and again," she declared. "I really regret that our Senators chose to drop the issue this time without any real study or debate."

Offices Visited By Girl Scouts

Girl Scout Junior Troop 234 visited The Daily Reflector office Wednesday afternoon.

Learning about the news media is another step in meeting requirements for earning their community badge.

Girl Scouts making the tour were Jill Cherry, Marjorie Crane, Mary Louise Crisp, Teresa Little, Deborah Lowder, Debbie Narron, Heather O'Neal, Becky Sullivan and Patricia Tugwell.

The scouts were accompanied by Mrs. Hoyt Narron and Mrs. John O'Neal.

Men have bred and domesticated pigeons for their homing ability since the days of King Solomon, says National Geographic.

One Team Is Alive; One Is Mourned

North Pitt Loses

HIGH POINT — Manfred Von Richtofen isn't exactly a household name in basketball circles, but German's World War I flying ace, better known as the Red Baron, shares one thing in common with North Pitt.

Both saw their victory streaks stopped at 80.

The Panthers fell to methodical West Stanly Wednesday night 39-32 in the opening round of the North Carolina Girls State Basketball Tournament at High Point Central gym, ending a phenomenal winning streak that spanned three years.

North Pitt never led in the contest, fell behind by as much as 10 points in the first half, but rallied to within four points with 4:11 to go in the final period only to fall back to a 10-point deficit two minutes later.

Tears broke out on the Panther bench with three minutes to go and the sadness spread to the starters as the clock ticked off the final seconds.

"I'm upset, obviously," coach Eldred Mauldin commented softly from his seat on a cold stairway in a darkened corner of the gym. "I thought we were ready to play but we were cold. The main difference was in the tempo of the game. All season we've controlled the tempo, but they got out in the lead and when they're hitting there's not much you can do to stop it."

West Stanly, now 21-5 for the year, shot 50 per cent for the game, connecting on 15 of 30 from the floor including a perfect five of five in the fourth period.

North Pitt, the defending state champion, hit on just 13 of 39 shots for a 33.3 percentage.

Minnie Hollis was the only Panther in double figures, scoring 11 points, right of those in the fourth quarter when North made a run at the Colts.

Down by 17-9 at the half, North Pitt came within four points, 27-23, on Debbie Pollard's 10-footer with 4:11 left in the game but that was the high water mark as West got two baskets from Rose Burnette and one from Phyllis Sturdivant in less than a minute to break it open.

Sturdivant finished with 14 points to pace the winners, backed by 10 point from Lydia Griffin.

North was content to play a 1-3-1 zone most of the way, but went to full and half-court presses in the second half to speed up the tempo. The move forced several West turnovers but also put the Panthers in foul trouble, forcing Mauldin to let up.

West Stanly coach Reginald Chance noted that his team has been a control club all season.

"Except for two times when we went away from our game," he added. "We got wiped out in both of them."

The Colt coach praised his team's rebounding performance as a key factor. "We knew we had to block their big girls away from the basket and we got the rebounds. That helped us keep things under control," he said.

West held a 26-17 rebound advantage for the game.

In Wednesday's other first round contest, East Lincoln outclassed South Johnston 51-41. East meets West Stanly in Friday's 7 p.m. semifinals game.

Final Games Set

Only four teams are left in the City and Industrial league tournaments after last night's games.

In the City League, Coke put down Proctor's, 74-69 and will meet The Happy Store in the finals. The championship game of the Industrial League will match State Highway with Wachovia, who beat Prep Shirt by 58-46 last night.

In the first game of the night, Coke moved out to a five-point lead, 46-41 and outlasted Proctor's in the second half for the win.

Jack Warner led Coke with 33 and Jim Modlin had 26. Wayne King had 18 for Proctor's while Joe Graddis added 15.

Wachovia had little trouble in disposing of Prep Shirt. They ran away to a 32-18 halftime lead and coasted into the finals.

Wachovia was paced by Bert Stephenson with 19 and Bill Baggett with 12. Jerry Smith added 10. Clyde Murcheson led the loser with 20 and William Johnson had 14.

Tonight's first round action sends Enka (24-1) against Benhaven (25-0) at 7 while Williamston (22-3) meets Ragsdale (23-2).

FIRST GAME
W. Stanly (39) — Burnette 9, Burris 1, Griffin 10, Smith 5, Sturdivant 14, Whitley, N. Pitt (32) — D. Pollard 5, L. James 2, W. Charles 2, Jenkins 4, Hollis 11, Manning 4, J. James 4.
West Stanly 7 10 7 15-37
North Pitt 5 4 8 15-32

TENNIS
LAKE FOREST, Ill. — Arthur Ashe, Richmond, Va., eliminated Roscoe Tanner, Lookout Mountain, Tenn., 7-6, 6-2 and advanced to the quarterfinals of the $50,000 Kemper Invitational Tennis Tourney.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. — Playing in the first professional match of her career, Chris Evert, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., defeated Michele Gurdal, Belgium, 6-1, 6-2 and advanced to the second round of the S&H Green Stamps Tennis Classic.

ALERT BLUE DEVILS — Duke's Alan Shaw (50) and Bob Fleischer (42) appear to be getting the best of the rebound against Clemson's Dave Angel (42) in their ACC game in Clemson, S.C. at Littlejohn Coliseum last night. (AP Wirephoto)

Richmond May Be Dark Horse

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Richmond's Spiders have to be considered the darkhorses of the Southern Conference championship basketball tournament opening today if only because of the presence of Aron Stewart, who led the league in scoring and rebounds.

Stewart and the Spiders wind up the first round at 9 o'clock tonight against East Carolina's third-ranked defending champion Pirates after Furman's second-seeded Paladins take on Appalachian State's Mountaineers two hours earlier.

The first two games this afternoon sent Davidson's No. 1-seeded Wildcats against Virginia Military Institute's Keydets and The Citadel's fourth-ranked Bulldogs against William and Mary's Indians, a young team who could be another darkhorse.

"Everybody knows the key to our chances is Stewart," says Richmond Coach Lewis Mills.

"He's super," says Quinn. "In fact, he's probably as good as anyone we've had in our league."

The problem posed by Stewart, who averaged 30.3 points and 11.6 rebounds per game since he became eligible after Richmond's first five starts, hasn't been lost on East Carolina Coach Tom Quinn.

A-G Manhandles W-B For Win

By BOB PRICE
Special To The Reflector
DURHAM — Demonstrating balance and power Ayden-Griffon's Chargers soundly thrashed Wadesboro-Bowman, 62-45, in the first round of the state III-A high schools tournament in Paul Sykes Gymnasium here Wednesday night.

The Chargers had a brilliant shooting night and dominated the backboards against the smaller Bearcats. Only a few a flurry of careless play kept it from being much worse.

A-G took the lead at 8-6 and were never seriously challenged. It was 27-22 at the half, and the Bearcats never got closer.

The Chargers hit an outstanding 56.8 from the floor (26 of 44) and had the edge off the glass, 31-25. The turnover total of 15 was the only negative stat for Coach Bob Murphrey's team now 22-5.

"We had some turnovers," Murphrey said, "but the easy baskets we got compensated for them. Our board play was clearly what won it for us."

Leading that dominance was 6-3 junior, Jessie Brown who had 12 rebounds and 6-1 Willie Stewart who had nine. Both used their football strength to great effect. 6-5 Travis Woods also grabbed eight.

Bowman's best man was 6-1 Nate Moore, a talented player with an 18-0 scoring average. But he hardly stood a chance inside and tallied only eight points.

The scoring was well balanced for A-G. Woods led with 16, Jessie Brown and Milton Brown had 13 each, and the Stewart brothers, Melvin and Willie, had 10 apiece. Murphrey played only five players the whole night.

Melvin Stewart, only 5-8, did a fine job directing the attack. He is the only pure guard in the Charger lineup.

Wadesboro, now 16-10 on the year, has the opposite kind of team, employing a three guard type of offense. They were thus able to press a A-G with some effectiveness.

Guards Willie Lee, with 14 points, and Anthony Little with 12 led the scoring for the Bearcats.

Melvin Stewart and Jessie Brown were the keys in the first quarter surge that put the Chargers in control. The Chargers hit eight of 14 in the quarter stretching the lead out to 16-8 before the press forced two turnovers and cut it to 18-12.

The second quarter was a much tighter defensive battle, with only Milton Brown doing much scoring for the Chargers. He had six of the nine A-G points. It was 27-22 at the half.

In the third period the defense did a better job on the Bearcat high scorer's, Lee and Little. Woods took over the extend the lead. A bucket by Milton Brown made it 37-25 with 4:42 left and forced a Wadesboro timeout.

The Bearcats struck with the press again and it was effective. They cut the lead to 38-33 and had the ball after a backcourt violation. But it never got closer.

Woods, hitting from the free throw line, was the key man in breaking it open late. Wadesboro, fighting for all it got, committed 17 personal fouls to only four for A-G.

"I hope we'll settle down more and be ready to play Friday," Murphrey said. They'll have to because they play Madison-Mayoden and its one-man gang, Jerry Moore, who beat Bertie 59-57, in the second game Wednesday.

Moore took a high half-court lob pass and flipped the ball in with three seconds left to give his M-M team the victory. The 6-4 senior star had 36 points to destroy Bertie single-handedly.

Bertie was a powerful team, with strength up front in 6-4 John Heckstall (20 points, 11 rebounds) and a talented floor leader in Kent Williford (16 points). But it's impossible to stop someone having the kind of night Moore had.

Moore hit ten of 15 in the first half for 21 of the Falcons 32 points. He was kept undercontrol in the second half until Bertie went up 51-48 with six minutes left. Moore scored six straight points, but Bertie fought back to go ahead, 55-54. Once again Moore hit a free throw and a tremendous tap to set the stage for his winning play.

In Thursday night's first round games, Herderson Vance (18-5) meets surprising Northeast Guilford (15-10), while defending champion Hendersonville (22-3) meets Fayetteville 71st (17-8).

Melchionni In The Middle

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
For Bill Melchionni, the good games have been few and far between. His performance Wednesday night was somewhere between far and few.

Melchionni scored 27 points and handed out 12 assists in leading the New York Nets to a 115-108 American Basketball victory over the Memphis Tams, giving the team a 3½ game lead over the Tams in the battle for the fourth playoff spot in the East Division.

Melchionni scored 20 points for the first time in 32 games and played his best game since December when he injured his ankle. He played despite a lot of pain.

“It killed me”, he said as he bated it in a tub of ice water. “If I had to play tomorrow night, there would be no way I could make it. The only reason I played tonight, was because I figured it couldn't get any worse.”

The Nets have the day off, and Melchionni couldn't be any happier.

“I need the rest, tomorrow I will spend the day in the whirlpool and lift some weights,” he said. In other ABA action, the Kentucky Colonels romped over the Virginia Squires 117-97, the Indiana Pacers edged the San Diego Conquistadors 109-106 and the Carolina Cougars beat the Denver Rockets 104-96.

The Nets never trailed, leading 28-22 at the end of the first quarter, 58-46 at the half and 84-74 going into the final quarter.

George Carter was the second highest scorer for New York with 23 points, while Bill Paultz had 18 points and 19 rebounds. Wilbert Jones had 21 points and Johnny Neumann added 18 for the Tams.

Wake Forest Surprises Weak Terps Coach Displeased With Defense

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Ninth ranked Maryland, playing without its injured rebounder, 6-foot-9 Len Elmore, was beaten 62-60 Wednesday night by Wake Forest, last in the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball standings, but Coach Left Driesell said, “We don't have any alibi.”

“We just got beat,” he said after the game at Wake Forest in which the Deacons, down six points at halftime, caught his Terps at 40-all with a little over four minutes gone in the second half. Maryland went ahead again, but Eddie Byers and Eddie Payne scored two goals each to spark a rally that put Wake Forest ahead at 55-54 with 5:47 left, and the Deacons never trailed.

“Wake Forest outthrust us and that's about it,” Driesell said. We couldn't stop them with our defense.”

The game had been designated as “Team Appreciation Night” for Coach Carl Tacy and his Deacons, and 7,100 fans turned out. “I don't know as I've ever seen a Wake Forest athletic team make a greater contribution to our total program said Dr. Gene Hooks, athletic director, in announcing last week that the game had been so designated.

Elmore broke a bone in his foot in the game against Duke last Saturday, and is doubtful for the conference championship tournament which starts a week from today.

Tacy said of his Deacons, “They got open they got the good shot, and they seemed confident they could hit it. Primarily, it was the same game plan we've used in a few other games. Our objective the last five minutes was to hold the ball; we didn't want to take any shot except layups.”

Each of the other six teams has one more game to play, on Saturday, before resting for the tournament in the Greensboro Coliseum. Games which will end the regular season Saturday are North Carolina at Duke, Maryland at Virginia, and Wake Forest at North Carolina State.

Jeff Reisinger with 29 points led the Clemson victory at home. Duke is 4-7 in the ACC and 12-12 in overall.

Calvin Wade, who entered the game midway in the first half, scored 23 points to lead Virginia Tech past Virginia. Dan Gerard had 30 points for Virginia, but ace Barry Parkhill managed just eight points. Virginia Tech is 17-5, and Virginia is 12-10.

Schramm Pushing Rule Change

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
When Seattle SuperSonics Coach Bucky Buckwalter was asked about his teams defense against the Milwaukee Bucks that sagged on Kareem Abdul-Jabbar Wednesday night and backfired, he said, “You give up and they take it somewhere else. They moved the ball well to get it to their strength.”

“Their strength,” better known as Abdul-Jabbar, scored 26 points and led the Bucks to a 124-110 National Basketball Association victory over the SuperSonics.

The Bucks also received 24 points from Bob Dandridge and Curtis Perry and Lucius Allen both added 21.

Perry, who had missed 10 games with a badly sprained ankle and returned to action Sunday, led the Bucks in rebounds with 13.

“We were concerned with his condition because he was out so long, but he was outstanding,” Coach Larry Costello said.

“My timing was off, especially on defense,” Perry said.

In other NBA action, Philadelphia beat Baltimore 102-96, Boston edged Golden State 118-111 and Kansas City-Omaha edged Phoenix 109-107. The SuperSonics opened a four-point lead in the third period before the Bucks pulled ahead to stay at 96-84 on two Oscar Robertson baskets with a minute remaining.

Spencer Haywood of Seattle led both clubs with 36 points. Teammate Fred Brown, with a 12.4 point per game average, added 25.

Don May and Fred Carter scored clutch baskets in the final period and helped the 76ers defeat the Bullets.

May scored 11 of his 15 points and Carter collected eight of the last 10 Philadelphia points in the final period as the 76ers won their ninth game of season against 60 defeats.

It was the fifth victory in the last seven games for the resurgent 76ers.

In the American Basketball Association, New York beat Memphis 115-108, Kentucky blasted Virginia 117-97, Carolina topped Denver 104-96 and Indiana beat San Diego 109-106.

Spring Training In Full Swing

By JOHN R. SKINNER
Associated Press Sports Writer
MIAMI (AP) — With the most freedom they've ever had guaranteed in a new three-year contract, major league baseball players checked into training camps today in Florida, Arizona and California for the start of spring training.

What little doubt there was that the players would accept the contract negotiated for them by Marvin Miller ended Wednesday in Miami when player representatives gave unanimous support to the new contract. Only simple majority approval is now needed from all major league players.

Players with two or more years in the majors won the right to call in a professional arbitrator when an impasse is reached with owners on salaries, starting in 1974.

The contract also gives them the right to refuse demotion to the minor leagues after five years in the majors and refuse to be traded or sold after 10 years in the majors, the last five with the same club.

And, according to Miller and player representative Jim Perry of the Minnesota Twins, the agreement was reached Sunday without the ill will surrounding last year's contract talks.

Players pulled out of training camps last year until negotiations were completed and delayed the start of regular season for 13 days.

The owners, who still have to give final approval to the work of their negotiators, gave up two-night doubleheaders on “getaway” days beginning next season, raised the minimum salary from $13,500 to $15,000.

for this season and 1974 and to $16,000 in 1975, and upped the minimum World Series winners share from $15,000 to $20,000.

Sto-Pac Splits Pair

Stokes-Pactolus Junior High split a pair of basketball games yesterday with the Farmville Junior High. Farmville took the girls game, 44-22, but the S-P boys came back in the second game to win in overtime, 52-40.

The Stokes girls were paced by Loretta Crandall with seven. Farmville was led by R. Parker with 13. J. Cammerman had 16 and J. Moye had 10.

After the regulation time had expired in the boys game, both teams found themselves with 38 points each. Stokes-Pactolus poured in 12 points in the extra period to a lone pair of points for Farmville to take the win. S-P was led by Kenneth Roberson with 19, Aubrey Winn with 17, and Virgil Pilgreen with 11. J. Ellie had 12 for Farmville, and S. McDaniel had 10.

Maryland is 6-5 in the conference and 19-5 in all games. Wake Forest is 3-8 and 11-13.

In two other games Wednesday involving ACC teams, Clemson scored 19 points to none for Duke in the late stages and crushed the Blue Devils 75-50, and Virginia lost to independent Virginia Tech 87-83.

Clemson has finished its regular season at 4-8 in the league and 12-13 in all games.

Schramm Pushing Rule Change

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
DALLAS (AP) — Tex Schramm, long an advocate of sudden death dramatics to decide tied National Football League games, believes the rule has a good chance of approval by owners at the spring meeting in Scottsdale, Ariz.

“We've got a better chance than we had last year and it came fairly close to passing,” said Schramm, the general manager of the Dallas Cowboys and chairman of the NFL competition committee.

Schramm said, “There is an attitude in the league that we do have to have progress.”

It takes 20 affirmative votes for a rule change and Schramm said that although the measure failed last year “I've felt somewhat of a switch in feelings of some. I feel we have a realistic chance of getting it.”

Schramm said “The best odds for a rule change would be sudden death as it now stands in postseason games ... a coin toss with the first team scoring the winner.”

He said other suggestions include both teams getting possession of the football and a specific length of time for the sudden death.

“With the latter suggestions it's more overtime than sudden death,” Schramm said. “And you get into complications when you try to decide whether a team had the ball or an opportunity to have the ball—for example a muffed punt or an onside kick.

“Pure sudden death will have the best chance.”

Oakland Is Choice

STATELINE, Nev. (AP) — The Oakland Athletics will defend their world championship against Pittsburgh next fall if the baseball pennant races follow the preseason odds of Harrah's Tahoe Racebook.

The A's are 3-5 favorites in odds given by Harrah's Wednesday to win the American League West over The Chicago White Sox, 2-1, with California and Minnesota next at 8-1.

The New York Yankees are installed as 9-5 favorites to win the AL East Division over the Boston Red Sox, quoted at 2-1. Detroit, defending East champion, is 7-2, the same as Baltimore.

For a playoff, the A's are 9-5 pennant choices over the Yankees on whom the odds are 3-1.

The odds are even for Cincinnati to take the National League West Division over Houston, 2-1 while Los Angeles at 7-2 and San Francisco at 5-1 are next ranked.

Pittsburgh is quoted at 6-5 to win the NL East, with the Chicago Cubs 5-2 and the New York Mets 4-1.

The Pirates are 5-2 and the Reds 3-1 to win the National League playoffs.

Trinity Wins

In the only church league game played last night, Trinity squeezed past St. Pauls 59-57.

Trinity had to come from a bucket down in the second half as they had been behind, 26-24. Jim Adams led the attack for Trinity with 27 points as Trinity managed to pull off the win.

John Banks added 12 for Trinity. Jeff Daniel kept St. Pauls in the game with his 38 but could not pull it out of the fire.

Napoles Takes KO Victory

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — World welterweight boxing champion Jose Napoles dispelled any thoughts he might be a candidate for a rocking chair when he smashed a wicked right uppercut to the head of Ernie “Indian Red” Lopez.

The challenger first went up into the air and then flat on his back for a full two minutes—a knockout victim of the Cuban refugee in one minute 36 seconds of the seventh round.

They had been ticketed for 15 before a Forum crowd of 17,176 which paid a gross $185,817.

Lopez had opened two cuts on the Napoles face but the man who soon will be 33 years old didn't worry. He had Angelo

Dundee, the trainer of Muhammad Ali, in his corner to treat the cuts and Angelo did his job.

In the seventh, Napoles exploded a left hook that put half of the Lopez face to sleep and then came on with two quick uppercuts.

“I never saw power like that,” marvelled Howie Steindler, the 68-year-old manager of the challenger.

Napoles now would like to meet Carlos Monzon of Argentina for the middleweight title but Monzon suffered a bullet wound recently so, says the naturalized Mexican citizen, “I don't know about that fight. I still want to keep the welterweight title.”

Brewers Determined To Make Things 'Fun'

By MIKE O'BRIEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
SUN CITY, Ariz. (AP) — The Milwaukee Brewers, alarmed when 1972 attendance plunged to a major league low of 600,440 in a city which 15 years earlier had called itself "baseball capital of the world," are determined to again make County Stadium "a fun place to be."

But despite elaborate promotion plans, a dramatic reversal at the gate is unlikely until the five-year-old franchise produces a winner on the field. And while President Bud Selig is confident the club at last has solidified its organization, the farm system seems another year or two away from supplying sufficient talent to make the Brewers competitive in the tough American League East.

The team's only genuine star is first baseman George Scott, an often spectacular fielder who drove in 88 runs, fourth highest in the league, last year despite a weak hitting line-up ahead of and behind him.

There is other talent, however, and the Brewers could escape the basement and possibly even reach the middle of the standings if their young pitching matures and Dave May and Don Money rebound from off years at the plate.

Much of the team's immediate future hinges on Money, who hit just .222 for Philadelphia last year and has had only one good average—.295 in 1970—in four major league seasons.

Money still is only 25, however, and his value in the marketplace is reflected in that the Brewers had to unload pitchers Jim Lonborg, Ken Sanders, Earl Stephenson and Ken Brett to get him. Lonborg, Cy Young Award winner in 1967, won 14 games for the last-place Brewers in 1972 and Sanders was AL Fireman of the Year in 1971.

Money, playing in a park larger than Milwaukee's last year, hit 15 home runs and set two National League records for third basemen, committing only 10 errors and fielding 162 consecutive chances without an error.

If Money hits, he and Scott could give the Brewers one of the league's best all-around combinations at the infield corners. Scott hit .266 last year, including .303 after the All-Star game, belted 20 homers contributed 19 game winning hits and stole a career high 16 bases.

Shortstop Rick Auerbach improved his range and throwing considerably last season, his first complete one in the majors. He gave the club badly needed speed with 24 stolen bases in 32 attempts, but lacks power and must hit more to right field to improve his .218 average.

The Brewers figure rookie Pedro Garcia, a .286 hitter with 14 homers at Evansville, is ready to take over at second base. If not, the job probably will return to Ron Theobald, a steady fielder whose batting average slipped to .220 last year from .276 as a rookie.

Key to the outfield is improved hitting from May, who batted .277 with 65 runs batted in in 1971 but skidded to .238 and 45, respectively, last year.

John Briggs is set in left field after one of the best of his 10 big league seasons—.286 average, 21 homers for a second successive year, 65 RBI and 190 total bases.

Right field probably will be split again by Joe Lahoud, who showed flashes of power with 12 homers but averaged only .237, and Ollie Brown, who hit .279 in 66 games after coming to Milwaukee from Oakland in late June.

Ellie Rodriguez, one of the league's better defensive catchers, hiked his average 75 points to .285 a year ago and was the team's only representative on the All-Star team.

The Brewers' top reserve is outfielder Brock Davis, who hit .318 in 154 times at bat but whose only extra base hits was a pair of doubles.

The pitching staff is headed by youngsters Bill Parsons and Skip Lockwood, two of the league's better prospects.

Parsons, 24, was 13-13 with a 3.91 earned run average but finished strong, allowing three or fewer runs in 13 of his last 15 starts. Lockwood, still learning his craft after starting his career as an infielder, was 8-15 with a 3.60 ERA and pitched two one-hitters.

One of the club's best arms belongs to Jim Slaton, 22, who was 10-8 as a rookie two years ago but spent most of last season at Evansville, posting an 11-2 mark.

The fourth spot in the rotation could go to Jerry Bell, 5-1 with a 1.65 ERA as a spot starter and long reliever after joining the parent club in May.

Jim Colborn (7-7), Gary Ryerson (3-8) and Billy Champion (4-14 at Philadelphia, are likely candidates to start, while Lloyd Gladden, 15-9 with a 2.71 ERA at Evansville, will get a long look.

The bullpen is thin after Frank Linzy, 2-2 with a 3.03 ERA and 12 saves.

SANTA BARBARA, Calif.
(AP) — Anne Ryun, wife of track star Jim Ryun, gave birth to twin boys Wednesday at Cottage Hospital here. Each weighed six pounds one ounce.

GENOA, Italy (AP) — Herb Washington won the 60-meter dash in six seconds flat and fellow American John Shipp dominated the 60-meter hurdles in 7.6 seconds Wednesday in the Genoa International Track and field meet.

JACKSONVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Jorge Ruano, coach of Guatemala's national basketball team, was named Wednesday winner of the 1973 Foreign Fellowship award of the National Association of Basketball Coaches.

Ruano, former coach at the University of Guatemala, in a few days will join Bill Wall, coach of MacMurray College here, for a basketball study tour of the United States ending March 22-26 in St. Louis with the NCAA tournament finals and NABC convention.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Chris Evert passed up $25,000 in one tournament alone last year to retain her amateur status, but she started to make up for it Wednesday by winning her first professional tennis match of her career.

The 18-year-old high school senior from Fort Lauderdale assured herself at least $2,000 in the S&H Green Stamps Tennis Classic here with a snappy 6-1, 6-2 victory over Michele Gurdal of Belgium.

She's expected to go home with much more money than that in this $50,000 event, first of the new tour of the United States Lawn Tennis Association. She's top-seeded ahead of 1971 Wimbledon winner Evonne Goolagong of Australia.

Domination Of South Vietnam At Stake

Results to date on the international Paris conference on Vietnam underscore the fragile nature of the cease-fire and the long distance remaining between truce and peace. The conference, in fact, already seems to have illustrated its lack of power to do what it is supposed to do.

In spite of North Vietnam's reneging on the prisoner release schedule, the cease-fire may prove effective enough to get the U.S. military out and perhaps even bring home all acknowledged American POWs. But from the look of things, the odds are that there can be no actual end to this war until either North or South is dominant. That can involve years.

Peace, as distinguished from truce, is stalled by frozen attitudes, and clearly the Paris conference can do little or nothing about it. The conference can hardly hope even to come close to carrying out its announced purpose, under the agreement, to "guarantee the ending of the war, the maintenance of peace in Vietnam and respect of the Vietnam peoples' fundamental right to self-determination."

The 12-party meeting can do little more than give formal approval to the cease-fire pact. Its even division between the Communists and non-Communists promises a repetition of what was produced by such arrangements in the past—paralysis.

The Americans and the North Vietnamese have agreed on how to reconvene the conference to deal with truce violations, but this requires seven votes. It is hardly likely, for example, that if Hanoi objects to a meeting there will be any break in the six-vote Communist side. No vote, no meeting.

The cease-fire pact supposedly guaranteed the "democratic liberties" of all and projected a democratic process to lead to peaceful reunification of Vietnam, but such terms have sharply different meanings for the two sides.

In the estimation of Communists, what they call the "bourgeoisie", no matter what its size and following, is something apart from "the people" and has no right to democratic liberties. In Hanoi's view, for a "democratic" process to produce a decision favoring anti-Communists would be unthinkable.

For its part, Saigon's government and its supporters guard against a possibility that the Communists will come out ahead. President Nguyen Van Thieu cannot see the Viet Cong or Communists as entitled to democratic processes.

As the two sides jockey for advantage and continue their land-grabbing thrusts, Hanoi may consider its possession of the U.S. prisoners a strong lever for indirect pressure on Saigon. The North's Politburo clings to the conviction that Saigon will do exactly as the Americans say, just as the Americans seek to apply pressure on Hanoi through Peking or Moscow.

That sort of pressure has its limitations. The Vietnamese have been clawing at each other a long time. Even if the huge allies of both genuinely wanted an equitable settlement, circumstances would make such an outcome just about impossible.

Henry Kissinger has said that after 25 years of war and revolution, the aging revolutionaries of the Hanoi Politburo are unlikely to surrender their long-time goal of taking over all of Vietnam. The age of the polit-buro, in fact, can make it all the more anxious. Weeks after the cease-fire was signed, Pham Van Dong, the North's premier, called the truce simply the beginning of a new phase in the "revolution" that began decades ago. The defense minister, Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, again referred publicly to the Viet Cong as "the only genuine representative of the South Vietnamese people." That Hanoi position from the outset of the Paris peace talks had been a main cause of five years of deadlock.

All this makes it seem hardly likely that the North wants to enter into commitments looking toward permanent division of authority in the South. It indicates, rather, an intention on both sides to continue fighting in the contestable areas.

Five years ago, when the Vietnam war was at its peak of intensity, some Americans on the scene predicted the conflict would probably fade gradually rather than ever come to an abrupt end.

Current developments make it appear that though the war may recede while the belligerents catch their breath, it is unlikely to fade away until the issue of domination is settled. By then Indochina may no longer be regarded by Americans as an issue of any great importance.

Military Life Is Not For David

WASHINGTON (AP) — Navy Lt. (j.g.) David Eisenhower, grandson of the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower and son-in-law of President Nixon, has decided the military life is not for him.

The White House announced Wednesday that young Eisenhower is one of 2,437 Naval officers who took advantage of an offer of early release.

The White House said he will be separated from the service on his 25th birthday, March 21.

Removed 3 Crash Dead

BURNSVILLE, N. C. (AP)—Three bodies were removed from a rugged mountainside in Yancey County Wednesday night after wreckage of a plane crash was spotted earlier in the day from a search plane.

The Yancey County Sheriff's Department said it was advised that the plane, a Cessna 172, had taken off at Dublin, Ga., about 4:30 p.m. Tuesday and was expected at the Tri-Cities Airport in northeast Tennessee at 8 p.m.

Victims of the crash, all from the Kingsport, Tenn., area, were identified as Michael Edward Keeter, 27, the pilot; James Edward Blakley, 25; and Anna Lou Phillips, 20.

Radar controllers at the Tennessee airport were said to have had contact with a small plane Tuesday night that was having trouble with icing. The tower said the pilot reported that ice was forming but he did not declare an emergency.

Radio contact with the plane was reported lost at 7:47 p.m. Lt. Ray Miller of the Civil Air Patrol's Mountain Wilderness Squadron based at Burnsville reported spotting the plane wreckage about 9:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Members of the Erwin, Tenn., Rescue Squad joined a Burnsville search party and they were guided to the densely wooded crash scene by a mountainside by the circling CAP plane.

Claims Carson Alimony Halted

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A former wife of television late night show personality Johnny Carson has gone to court to collect two past-due alimony payments.

Joanne Carson said in the suit filed Wednesday in Superior Court that she understood Carson stopped paying $6,250-a-month alimony because he felt she violated a divorce agreement.

The agreement stated "no party shall say or do anything which will hold the other party in public dispute, public scandal or public ridicule."

The first telegraph line in California opened in San Francisco on Sept. 22, 1853.

Low Bids For Pitt Projects

RALEIGH — Barrus Construction Co. of Kinston was the apparent low bidder in several road improvement projects in Pitt, Beaufort, Greene, Lenoir and Craven Counties.

The projects include: —12.25 miles of resurfacing in Beaufort-Pitt-Craven Counties of 12 sections of secondary roads. The low bids by Barrus was $149,793.75 and completion date for the project is Sept. 1, 1973.

—49 miles of resurfacing three sections of primary roads and 19 sections of secondary roads in Greene and Lenoir Counties. The low bid totaled $295,222.50 and final completion date is Sept. 14, 1973.

—45.51 miles of resurfacing of one section or primary road and 22 sections of secondary roads in Pitt and Beaufort. The low bid amounted to $197,593 and final completion date is August 1, 1973.

None of the bids will be accepted finally until they are approved by the State Highway Commission at its meeting in Raleigh on March 14.

Will Tell More When All Free

GREENSBORO (AP)—Air Force Maj. Norman A. McDaniel, who spent almost seven years as a prisoner in North Vietnam, says that after all the prisoners are released he hopes to "shed some more light on what it was like in prison. But I must hold off (for now) exposing too much because the Communists will use anything they can against the men who are still there."

He did tell crowds which welcomed him home Wednesday that life in the prisons around Hanoi was "pretty dismal," and that he led songfests in prison. "We used everything at our disposal to try to make existence bearable."

He told a hometown crowd: "The last 16 days have been among the happiest in my life, and I rank this one second only to the day I was released from the enemy and returned to freedom and, to a great extent, my life."

McDaniel, a black, also attended a ribbon-cutting for the new building of the Greensboro National Bank, first nationally chartered black-owned bank in North Carolina.

He told the home folks that their prayers and good wishes had sustained him while he was a prisoner.

The electronics officer told how he parachuted after his plane was shot down during a mission over North Vietnam. He said local peasants joined the militia in capturing him almost immediately after he landed.

He told greeters at the Greensboro Winston-Salem and High Point Regional Airport: "Together we stand, divided we fall. Let us all work together and make our country a great country, help it to be a shining example for other nations so that they will want to be like us."

Convicted Of Stealing Cow

SERULE, Botswana (AP) — Galetswelwe Mosei, 50, was convicted Wednesday of stealing a sacred cow.

The court ordered him to deliver four head of cattle to the president of Botswana, Sir Seretse Khama, for taking one of his herd.

Scott Reminds The Governor Is Not All-Powerful

An AP NEWS SPECIAL
 Editor's Note: Former North Carolina Gov. Bob Scott became a leader in the drive to reorganize state government during his four-year term that ended Jan. 5. At the request of The Associated Press, Scott has summarized his observations and beliefs about the governor's office. This is the fourth of a five-part series giving his

Bob Scott
 as Told to Associated Press
RALEIGH (AP) — I think there's a misunderstanding of the role of the Council of State. The constitution says that the Council of State shall advise with the governor on matters of the state. The truth of the matter is that the Council of State does not advise with the governor. He can ask their advice and accept it, but he doesn't—or rarely, I should say—ask their advice on broad statewide matters.

The governor runs his show and he gets enough advice without asking any more. If there was some emergency, yes, I think he probably would ask.
 The Council of State is really another built in check and balance in that any property transactions, buying or selling of land, leases, condemnations, rights of way and so forth must have the approval of the Council of State. Believe me, they look at every one of them, and sometimes the smaller the transaction the more debate it causes.

This is a very good thing because the governor does not have that authority. Therefore, the Department of Administration, which is under the governor's influence because he appoints the secretary, doesn't have the authority to wheel and deal. This cuts down tremendously on the opportunity for fraud, illegal or improper transactions in state government. This is a very good thing.

 In the present administration—and I really don't like to get into this because it's conjecture—I don't foresee any problem with the Council of State being Democratic and the governor being Republican.

The governor has no control whatsoever over the Council of State. There is influence which comes about as a result of the governor being director of the budget.
 The governor is required by the constitution to go before the legislature with recommendations, which means he presents his recommendation. No member of the Council of State does this. So, it's the governor's budget that is presented.

Therefore, the superintendent of public instruction, the commissioner of agriculture or the others are interested in having the governor's support for their requests, as they have much better chance of being enacted because the governor is going to defend his budget.

This is kind of a two-way relationship. They like to have the governor's ear, his friendship, his support for their budget requests. The governor in turn needs their support occasionally on matters in the Council of State meetings and, of course, their support for his budget requests and general operation of state government.

As an example, two years ago, when we had so much unrest in our public schools and there was obviously a need to try and do something about it, the superintendent of public instruction, Dr. Phillips, and I talked several times about what could be done to motivate public support for our public school system. Out of all this came the committee that I appointed, of approximately 100 people, on the public schools. They issued a report and we asked the budget commission for some money to put people to work full time on this. We kind of generated community support for this program. It helped us to get over the hump in what was almost a crisis period.

Here was a case where the superintendent of public instruction needed the governor's support to marshal public opinion, that probably only the governor could do with the prestige of his office. It looked like more than just something the public schools wanted to do themselves. It was of a broader interest to the state.

The governor, on the other hand, wanted this because he wanted to keep down the violence in the schools, to restore a period of calm to the educational program and the whole atmosphere of learning in our schools. It was a two-way thing.

I don't think the appointive department heads ought to have quite the standing the elected Council of State officials have. After all, they are responsible to the people of North Carolina and not to the governor, and that's the way it ought to be. A man who has to get out and obtain the confidence of people in a popular vote deserves more prestige than one who gets his position simply by appointment.

There is a question: Is it necessary to have the long ballot, as it is termed, in electing members of the Council of State?

I have mixed feelings about that. I really don't have an opinion about it. I don't think it's been a detriment to the administering of affairs of our state government.

I've said sometimes before a short ballot might be desirable, but I don't see it improving the mechanics of administering the programs of government.
 I guess it comes to this irreconcilable conflict as to whether or not you shall give the governor authority to administer the affairs of all sectors of government, or do you have a diffusion of power in the hands of individuals responsible to the electorate. It's a question of philosophy.

From my own experience, I have found that there was no real problem, no conflict between me as governor and the commissioner of agriculture and what he was doing. Perhaps their emphasis might have been a little different from what I would have done, but I don't see any real problem there.

The truth of the matter is, the governor has got enough to do in the areas he's responsible for now.
 There is this one drawback to it. The governor campaigns for office and his is expected, properly so, to express his views on how to improve public schools, salaries for teachers and programs that ought to be implemented, what he thinks ought to be done to improve the agricultural sector of our economy. He goes out before the electorate and talks about these things, about what he would like to see done and would recommend, when in effect he doesn't have any control over it except as he requests the legislature for funds to implement these programs.

The people look to the governor for something really that he doesn't have responsibility for. The average person has the feeling the governor is all powerful, that he can wave a magic wand and things happen. In truth it's not that way, and many people are disappointed because they don't get certain action from the governor or the governor's office, simply because he doesn't have the authority to do all of these things.

Tobacco Historical Research Institute Is Located At ECU

An Institute for Historical Research in Tobacco has been founded at East Carolina University under the auspices of the Department of History. Dr. John C. Ellen, historian, has been named director.

"The Institute is the result of the feeling by many persons that the historical approach to the study of tobacco has been badly neglected and that there is a genuine need to develop a major research center in the heart of the tobacco region," Dr. Ellen said.

Such a center, Dr. Ellen points out, will provide an opportunity "to study the extent of the impact of tobacco upon the lives of most North Carolinians and many other tobacco producing area Southerners.

"Historical research in tobacco will lead to a better appreciation and understanding of the society which has developed around this crop," he said. "Through research the strengths and weaknesses of a society resting upon a tobacco economy can be more readily ascertained, and those values most worthy of retention can be identified."

Integral to this program Ellen commented, "is the need to acquire by purchase or gift some of the basic works on the history and development of tobacco not readily available in the East Carolina University Library. These volumes will be made available through the library for reading and study by all interested in the tobacco region society."

"Most essential to the long range project," Ellen continued, "is the development of a center for the collection of manuscripts records of all aspects of the tobacco society. These records will include plantation and farm journals, marketing and warehouse records, personal correspondence of those who have been a part of the tobacco society, and records of tobacco manufacturing concerns."

The East Carolina Manuscript Collection will serve as the tobacco manuscript repository and will provide a center for the study of the tobacco society and the means of interpreting to that society its past and its present.

Dr. Ellen said "Only the New York Public Library's Arents Collection presently houses a large collection of tobacco history manuscripts materials."

The Institute's first major project will be a symposium on the history of tobacco and the North Carolina society slated for late March. Future undertakings may include the launching of a series of carefully researched and well written studies designed to tell the story of all aspects of the history of the tobacco society, the sponsorship of a magazine devoted to the interpretation of the tobacco society, and the establishment of a tobacco museum.

Dr. Herbert R. Paschal, chairman of the Department of History at East Carolina University, commented on plans for the tobacco institute. "We feel this institute offers a real opportunity to develop here in eastern North Carolina a major center for research in the history of tobacco," the chairman said. "We have every hope that we will be supported and helped by major components of the tobacco industry."

The lowlands of Southern California rank as one of the most populous areas in the world.

Pitt Pastor Is Honored

REV. STEPHEN JONES

The Rev. Stephen Jones has been named "pastor of the year" for the Northeast "B" Division of the Conference of the United American F.W.B. Church, it was announced recently by the Rev. Dr. W. L. Jones, Bishop of the conference.

The Northeast Division includes Pitt, Beaufort, Craven, Martin and Edgecombe Counties.

The Rev. Jones was chosen for his spiritual leadership and financial support of the conference. During the annual conference of the fall, two churches pastored by the Rev. Jones had first and second place winners in the year's financial drive which ended with a special rally involving churches in the Northeast Conference.

The Rev. Jones currently serves as pastor of the Haddock Chapel and Zion Chapel F.W.B. Churches in Pitt County. He is also president of the District Union No. 4 of the Northeast "B" Conference.

The 'Worry Clinic' Can Persuade If Understood

Tony's dad was a rational patient but needed the simple medical facts below. Alas, too many doctors enjoy "throwing their weight around" in long, jawbreaker terms. But the art of persuasion involves being fully understood by patients, prospects and parishioners.

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph. D., M. D.

CASE W-540: Tony G., aged 20, asks some shrewd medical questions.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "my father is 52 years old and a victim of heart attacks.

"So I have reminded him of your advice about rapid deep breathing whenever he feels pain in his chest.

"And our doctor has given him nitroglycerine tablets to take if he feels any symptoms of an oncoming seizure.

"But I find that he is swallowing the pills.

"Yet our physician told him to hold them under his tongue and thus let them be absorbed directly into the blood.

"Dad argues that it doesn't make any difference, so can you give me some specific facts to prove my point?"

Medical Psychology
Tony is wise in wanting specific medical facts.

For that's the best way to persuade his dad, or sell merchandise or teach or keep an audience fascinated.

If you place nitroglycerine tablets under the tongue and thus let them be absorbed directly into the blood, they go directly into the heart.

But if you swallow nitroglycerine pills, they first reach the stomach and intestines where they soon pass into the liver and are destroyed there.

This is also similar to what happens when you need a dose of insulin to control your diabetes.

Insulin is destroyed when taken by mouth, so it has little medical value.

But when injected under the skin, as with a hypodermic needle, the insulin thus bypasses the digestive juices and begins to enter the blood almost immediately.

If insulin were in tablet form and held under the tongue, it could also by-pass the destructive action of the digestive juices, and thus enter the blood by direct absorption.

R. Andrew C. Ivy's famous Carcelon for holding cancer in check, also is a hormone that is injected intramuscularly.

Thus, it by-passes the stomach and is carried around the body via the lymph vessels till it reaches all cancer cells, whether in the focal breast or prostate tumor.

It also reaches any seedlings (metastatic) cancer cells that may have floated elsewhere, as to the liver, lungs, brain, etc. And the main reason why cancer seedlings lodge in those 3 sites, is easy to explain.

For cancer cells are much larger than red blood cells.

Yet the tiny capillaries are so small, they may have the diameter of only the red blood cells.

Hence, the big cancer cells float along until they get stuck in a tiny capillary blood vessel.

And the big capillary beds are located in the liver, lungs and brain!

By chance alone, therefore, a seedling cancer cell that escapes from the original breast or prostate cancer, will be most likely to lodge either in the liver, lungs or brain.

Another helpful medical fact is your body's natural ability to turned after a 1910 airship.

Hval isn't sure how it is going to be built or even how to fly the thing.

"We'll feel it out as we go along," he said.

Plans call for the blimp to be powered by two propellers. It will be capable of going forward, backward or hovering.

The society has talked with the department of transport about licensing, building and safety. Hval says the actual testing will be done cautiously.

"It is so unique that you can't train anyone to fly it."

One of the difficulties the society faces is that there are no records of anyone in Canada attempting a similar project.

Cost of the airship is estimated at up to $15,000 and the society is looking for assistance in funding. An airship envelope or gas bag, has been donated by an enthusiast in Vancouver, and the society is looking for help with landing pad facilities.

Group Build Gas Balloon

CALGARY (AP) — Brian Hval isn't sure exactly what it will look like. But it will be big. Hval is president of the Alberta Free Balloonist Society which is attempting to build a two-man helium blimp that will be ready to fly by 1975, the city's centennial year.

The blimp, which will probably be about 80 feet long and 20 feet in diameter, will be pat-

North Pitt School News

By KITTIE NELSON
North Pitt is proud to have one of the four county finalists for the North Carolina Summer Leadership School to be held on the campus of Mars Hill College June 17 through July 20. Cindy Rook, a junior, was chosen as a finalist to represent the school, representing the school in the final interview were Delilah Perkins, Bruce Tripp, and Jessie Murchison, in addition to Cindy.

The school will involve 100 students throughout the state who show leadership potential. We are also proud to have a National Merit Scholarship finalist at our school. Robin McKee of North Pitt will be notified in late April or early May on whether or not she has been awarded a scholarship.

A Shakespearean production was presented at the school Monday to all second period English classes. David Brown and Johnny Dixon participated in the State Wrestling Finals in Winston-Salem. They were accompanied by their coach, Roger Ingalls. Dixon won third place in the tournament held Thursday and Friday.

The Big Orange Machine is heading for the state basketball tournament this week. We hope the girls will keep their undefeated record and come away from High Point Wednesday night with another trophy. Coach Mauldin and his team have done a great job and they deserve a lot of praise.

The baseball team began practicing last week. Kathy Taylor placed second in the two mile race held in Bethel on Feb. 17. Kathy, an AAU All-American, ran a good race in spite of the cold weather.

Jimmy Nelson, James Moore and Cleo Brown placed well in the two mile event also. Joey Nelson ran the 10-mile event. The races were sponsored by the Bethel Rotary Club.

The junior class will sponsor a bake sale March 10. The proceeds will go to pay for the junior-senior prom. Juniors are urged to contribute food for the bake sale. Juniors should contact Wanda Brown or Daphne Keel who are heading the bake sale.

Visitors to North Pitt last week included a team from Beaufort Tech. They visited all the vocational areas to tell students about the educational opportunities offered at Beaufort Tech.

Representatives from Methodist College and Louisburg college visited the guidance area.

Sgt. Smith, local Army recruiter, spent part of Thursday and Friday at the school. Also visiting was Jack Harkley, a graduate of North Pitt.

Electric Power Was Interrupted

Electric power was interrupted for about ten minutes in downtown Greenville and on the west side of the city Wednesday morning.

Assistant Supt. of Greenville Utilities Malcolm Green said the outage occurred when a breaker opened on a transformer at the main plant.

The breaker was re-set and no further trouble occurred. Green said the breaker would be dismantled in an attempt to determine what caused it to open.

The outage affected Pitt Memorial Hospital along with other building in that area.

Baby Forecast Wrong Again

LONDON (AP) — Young wives are keeping the British government's baby-forecasters guessing.

Their wish for smaller families has upset predictions of Britain's population by the end of the century for the second successive year.

The latest estimate by the government actuary is 62.8 million. This is 12 million fewer than was forecast eight years ago and 3.5 million below last year's figure.

Early Guide Spouse's Role

NEW YORK (UPI) — Any new husbands confused about the duties of the new state of life can be guided by words by John H. Young. The words were put down in the 19th century, appearing in prose titled "Our Department, or the Manners, Conduct and Dress of the Most Refined Society."

The man wrote: "It is the husband's duty and should be his pleasure to accompany her to church, to social gatherings, to lectures and such places of entertainment as they both mutually enjoy and appreciate. In fact, he ought not to attend a social gathering unless attended by his wife, nor go to an evening entertainment without her. If it is not a fit place for his wife to attend, neither is it fit for him."

Gun Control Is Wildlife Boon

MANILA (UPI) — The wildlife situation has taken a turn for the better since strict enforcement of gun control laws in the Philippines.

Since the proclamation of martial law last September, when unauthorized persons were prohibited from carrying guns outside their homes, birds have been enjoying a respite from hunters.
