

Time For Troop Withdrawal Needed
Delay Releasing Last POWs

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — The United States today repudiated an agreement with the Communists that would have freed the last American prisoners of war captured in North and South Vietnam by Sunday.

might be delayed several days. The U.S. delegation to the Joint Military Commission asked for the names of all Americans held in Laos and when and where they would be released.

until it got the information and until a first group of POWs was handed over. North Vietnam and the Viet Cong had proposed releasing 138 Americans captured in Vietnam at Hanoi's Gia Lam Airport Saturday and Sunday.

by then, three days ahead of the deadline set in the cease-fire agreement. The United States accepted this offer without any conditions in a letter Wednesday to the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong members of the joint commission.

States made its new demands concerning the POWs in Laos and gave its new conditions for continuing the troop withdrawal. Brig. Gen. John A. Wickham, the deputy chief of the U.S. delegation, also proposed that the first group of POWs be transferred on Sunday instead of Saturday and that the POW repatriation be completed on Wednesday instead of Sunday.

release by the Laotian Communists of the Pathet Lao. Capt. Phung Nam, the chief spokesman for the Viet Cong delegation, accused the Americans of "a 180-degree turn" that "eliminated all which had been agreed upon on the night of 21 March."

Drug Report At A Glance

- WASHINGTON (AP) — Here in brief are the major recommendations of the National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse:
—Create a new federal antidrug agency to take over virtually all antidrug law enforcement, treatment and prevention.
—Shift from punishing users to treating them.
—Improve federal and state law enforcement through better training, better coordination, better strategies and special precautions against police corruption.

$40,000,000 Plant For Wilson County's Future

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Jim Holshouser said today Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. will build a $40 million tire manufacturing plant near Wilson. Construction will begin shortly, Holshouser said at a news conference, and manufacture of steel-belted radial tires for passenger cars is expected to start in about one year.

Financing Additional Medical Students Is Urged In Subcommittee

RALEIGH (AP) — A legislator-surgeon said today North Carolina should immediately fund the admission of 100 additional prospective doctor students at the University of North Carolina and East Carolina University during the next biennium.

Gamble, a practicing surgeon at Lincolnton, told the committee "the prospect of producing an excess number of physicians is not in the foreseeable future. Enough doctors plan retirement soon to amount to a major drain-15 per cent by 1975 according to one survey."

cent of North Carolina's practicing physicians to be retirement age 65 by 1980. In addition, it is estimated that more than half the men under 40 expect to cut back before they are 60. Gamble said, "The statement that by increasing the number in the schools the standards of medical education and physicians will be lowered is hogwash."

Do Not Return!

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A recently returned prisoner of war says he and fellow POWs were told that if they ever returned to Indochina they would be shot, the Philadelphia Bulletin reports.

Propose Election Changes

RALEIGH (AP) — The chairman of an elections study commission told members of the General Assembly Wednesday the state needs more experienced elections personnel. Chairman Brian Scott of the state Board of Elections recommended that terms of state election board members be increased from four to five years and that terms be staggered so that only one member's term expires each year.

Ombudsman For People Of N.C.

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Jim Holshouser says his new people's man or ombudsman is going to help alleviate a belief by the average citizen that state government has grown remote and unfeeling. Holshouser announced Wednesday that Fred Gallagher, 31, former Charlotte stock broker, has been given the newly created position in the governor's office. The governor said Gallagher "will solve the dilemma of the average citizen who has a complaint but doesn't know where to complain. Of the person who has a problem but can't find the right agency to handle it...It will be his duty to make certain there is a follow-up on each matter brought to his attention." Gallagher will be paid $22,000 a year.

Suspect Mission

WASHINGTON (AP) — Official secrecy is raising suspicion that an unarmed U.S. Air Force C130 transport-type plane was on an electronic intelligence mission when attacked by Libyan jet fighters over the Mediterranean Wednesday.

Bricklayers To Take Pay Cut

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The 420 members of Bricklayers Union Local 7 have agreed to take a 20 per cent pay cut in an attempt to compete with nonunion workers and lower building costs.

As Gray prepared for a ninth day of committee testimony today, Sen. Edward J. Gurney said the nomination is in trouble. Gurney, R-Fla., told newsmen Wednesday the committee appears to be evenly divided. A tie vote would scuttle a motion to recommend confirmation.

Kennedy said Gray acted outside regular channels. But Gray said he responded to a request from the White House counsel "in the same way it has been handled in the past" under the late J. Edgar Hoover.

Amendment Is Now Halfway

RALEIGH (AP) — Legislation to amend the North Carolina Constitution to permit 18-year-olds to hold elective office is halfway through the General Assembly. The Senate passed the bill Wednesday and sent it to the House. If approved there, it will be submitted to a vote of the people in the next general election. The measure was sponsored by Sen. McNeill Smith, D-Guilford. The only exceptions for 18-year-olds under the amendment would be the offices of governor, lieutenant governor and state Senate.

Sees Deadlock On Nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nomination of L. Patrick Gray III to be FBI director may be doomed by a deadlock taking hold in the Senate Judiciary Committee, says a Republican member.

Ervin has said he will recommend to his committee that it subpoena Dean if he refuses to appear before it for questioning. However, Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., a Judiciary Committee member and chairman of the special Watergate panel, said he doesn't want to vote on Gray's nomination until after the Watergate probe.

power since "the state already has responsibility for those areas that will most likely be designated." He said local government's major role would be in the formulation of a comprehensive land use plan for the remaining areas. And he promised that the legislation, if passed, would streamline the present permit procedure for developers.

Modified No-Fault Plan Said 'Cheaper'

RALEIGH (AP) — The head of a study commission on auto insurance told a legislative committee Wednesday that a modified no fault auto liability insurance plan similar to the one used in Florida would cut North Carolina insurance rates by about 10 per cent. Former state Sen. O'Neil Jones of Wadesboro said the Florida plan, similar to one recommended for North Carolina by his commission, would be cheaper than the Delaware plan endorsed by the North Carolina Bar Association. The study commission would provide no fault benefits of up to $5,000 to auto accident victims for medical expenses, replacement of income and other benefits. The fight to sue for damages would be restricted. The North Carolina Bar Association plan would provide up to $1,500 in medical expenses for auto accident victims with no restrictions on the right to sue. State Insurance Commissioner John Ingram testified that the "people of North Carolina desperately need no fault medical and disability benefits," but criticized the bills under consideration by the legislature because they would "exclude coverage to the driver in a single car accident who injures himself." "The general public will wind up paying through rate making for the injury that this driver does to himself," Ingram said. "This is direct discrimination against the safe driver." Walter Brinkley of Lexington, chairman of the auto accident reparations committee of the state bar association, told the committee the study commission's bill "presents serious constitutional questions" and that chaos would result if a no fault law was ruled unconstitutional by the state Supreme Court.

New Obstacles Raised For Panama Treaty Parleys

By CHARLES GREEN
Associated Press Writer
PANAMA (AP) — U.S. negotiators now face the problem of trying to get a new Panama Canal treaty satisfactory to the U.S. Congress from a Panamanian government bolstered by a moral victory in the U.N. Security Council.

After a parade of diplomats at the council's special meeting in Panama berated Washington for its Latin American policy, U.S. Ambassador John Scali vetoed a resolution urging his government to sign a new canal treaty with Panama "without delay."

It was the third U.S. veto in the 27 years of U.N. history, and all of them were cast by the Nixon administration.

Only one council member—Britain—backed the United States by abstaining. The vote was 13-1.

"The United States vetoed the resolution supporting the Panamanian cause, but the whole world has vetoed Washington," Foreign Minister Juan Antonio Tack of Panama declared. He promised to take the issue to the 132-member General Assembly.

"I believe I did the right thing," Scali told newsmen. "Tomorrow is another day. We are prepared to continue negotiations when Panama is ready to return to the table. But this requires good will, trust and good faith on both sides."

Scali also said he did not believe there is any danger of violent demonstrations against the Canal Zone or Americans in Panama as a result of his veto.

From the outset the United States opposed holding the six-day meeting in Panama—the first in Latin America—because of the obvious purpose of the Panamanians was to focus world attention on their case against the United States. The U.S. took the position that any U.N. intervention in the bilateral negotiations between it and Panama was unwarranted.

The State Department also believed that the outpouring of anti-American oratory was certain to increase opposition in the U.S. Congress to any loosening of the U.S. hold on the canal.

Despite the failure of the resolution, Panama got what it wanted out of the meeting. It focused foreign attention on the treaty negotiations, brought delegates from 12 European, Asian and African nations down for a first-hand look at the Canal Zone and gave itself the appearance of an exploited underdog standing up to a giant.

The vetoed resolution urged the United States and Panama to continue negotiations "in a high spirit of friendship, mutual respect and cooperation and to conclude without delay a new treaty aimed at the prompt elimination of the causes of conflict between them."

The United States apparently found objectionable the preamble, which observed "that the Republic of Panama is sovereign over its territory and that the free and fruitful exercise of sovereignty by peoples and nations over their natural resources should be fostered ..."

The U.S. veto came as no surprise, Scali having threatened several times to use it as attempts to dilute the resolution failed to make it acceptable to Washington. Scali said in its final form it was "unbalanced and incomplete and is therefore subject to serious misinterpretation. Moreover, the resolution is cast in the form of sweeping generalities when we know that the real difficulties lie in the application of these generalities."

It was a frustrating debut for Scali, who was making his first major appearance as the chief U.S. delegate to the United Nations. He told the council repeatedly that the door was open for the negotiations between Panama and the United States to continue, and he emphasized that Washington was ready to replace promptly the 1903 treaty giving it control of the 550-square-mile Canal Zone "in perpetuity."

Panama's current military ruler, Brig Gen. Omar Torrijos, who took power in a coup four years ago, wants the United States to recognize Panama's sovereignty over the Canal Zone immediately and share the operation of the canal with Panama as a preliminary to giving it full control. The United States is prepared to recognize Panamanian sovereignty but wants to retain operational control of the canal and the right to defend it for a period of years to be decided in the negotiations.

POWs Kept Discipline

ANDREWS AFB, Md. (AP)—Lt. Col. Norman C. Gaddis of Winston-Salem, N.C., and Dandridge, Tenn., says American prisoners in the Hanoi Hilton maintained iron discipline which thwarted their North Vietnamese captors. The POWs tapped secret messages, tossed notes between cells, and yelled out commands.

Gaddis, 49-year-old Air Force man, one of the senior commanders in the prison, conceded in an interview Wednesday that "Our communication link was at times tenuous. But we did manage by tapping on the table, through the walls, by tossing notes and at times just yelling out vital information to the camp, so that we directed the activities of the wing."

"And it was, we believe, a very effective military organization. And because we were organized, we were able to thwart the efforts of the Vietnamese as they attempted to exploit us for propaganda purposes."

"We had problems of discipline. They were not major problems, I think the same kind of problems you would encounter in normal military organizations."

He said the moral force of several hundred tightly knit professional officers quickly pulled the strays back in line.

The Hanoi Hilton is the old French prison in the heart of North Vietnam's capital city.

Highway Planning Talk Here Next Wednesday

RALEIGH — A process to be followed in future highway planning will be discussed at a public meeting Wednesday, March 28, in the Courthouse at Greenville, the Department of Transportation has announced. The meeting will start at 7:00 p.m.

Department spokesman said that public participation is being sought for future procedures that will satisfy environmental, social and economic problems and urged the public to attend and present leads. The Highway people have named the project "Action Plan."

C.O. White, department planning engineer, said that the Federal Highway Administration is requiring that the state come up with an acceptable plan by June 15, and that is must be operational by November 1.

"We are actively seeking the public's advice as to how we should proceed with the development of the state's highway system," White said, "and we hope that we get a good attendance and some meaningful ideas at the March 28 meeting."

"We need to strike a balance that will reduce the conflict between the need for highways and the social, economic and environmental harm they may cause," White asserted.

The meeting, one of six to be held in the state, will be solely for the purpose of getting public opinion and suggestions.

It will be followed by a public hearing on April 25 at the Pitt County Courthouse at which time a plan will be presented.

Chou Suddenly Out Of Sight

By JOHN RODERICK
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — He may be taking a well-earned vacation, ill, or have decided to sharply cut back his activities. China isn't saying, but the fact remains that Premier Chou En-lai suddenly and inexplicably has dropped out of circulation.

The 75-year-old Chinese leader addressed a tea party on International Women's Day in Peking March 8. His name has not been mentioned by the official Hsinhua news agency or Peking Radio in the two weeks since then, except to say he sent a wreath on March 17 to a memorial service for a deceased former minister.

A premier's absence from the public eye might not be noticeable in some other countries, but in China it is unusual. Seemingly tireless, Chou generally crams into a day more intensive work and socializing than many statesman do in a week.

His capacity for sustained talk, lasting well into the morning hours, and his ability to bounce back after a few hours sleep and carry a full work load, were illustrated during his extensive conversations in 1971 and 1972 with Henry Kissinger and his summit meetings last year with President Nixon.

Since then, despite his age, he does not appear to have slowed down. Peking news accounts almost daily reported him meeting a visiting delegation, hosting a banquet in the Great Hall of the People, or attending a play or other cultural affair.

Policeman Left Motor Running

CARRBORO, N.C. (AP)—Policeman Bob Greene left his cruiser with the motor running while he stepped into the Carrboro Town Hall next to the police station on an errand Tuesday night.

When he returned five minutes later, the car was gone.

It was stopped at a roadblock on Interstate 40 at Winston-Salem three hours later. Police said the radiator had been dented and the rear window broken. The driver was booked as Ollie Lee Morgan Jr., 22, of Rt. 5, Chapel Hill.

Greene said he plans to "keep my keys in my pocket from now on."

A Review Yugoslav 'Frula' Is All Publicity Releases Said

Yugoslavia's Frula is all the things the press releases and advance publicity proclaim— which, simply stated, means the dance troupe and musicians were magnificent in their performance at Wright Auditorium Wednesday night.

With a historic diversity of ethnic groups making up Yugoslavia's population, the country is blessed with a wide variety of folk dances, songs, traditions, and regional costumes to draw from.

The individual flavor of each of these groups have been preserved by Dragoslav Džadzevic, who has brought together talented young people from Yugoslavia's six republics to form Frula.

One of the most fascinating achievements of this group is the continually changing array in dance patterns—from astonishing acrobatic leaps and whirls like those in the Shepherd Dance and Czaradas to the quiet, musically unaccompanied rhythmic whisper beat of feet in the Silent Glamotch dance.

Measured by standards of modern choreography, Frula is a match for any well-known dance group. It achieves this perfection, however, without once sacrificing the feel of spontaneous joy that gives folk dances their wide continuing appeal.

The boy-girl theme is dominant, in most dances reflected in the time honored Balkan manner where girls or boys first appear, are discovered by their opposites, with the theme developing into the ritual of getting together, with happy results. Sometimes the course of events are punctuated with elements of comedy or by the threat of jealousy.

One of the loveliest dances presented Wednesday night was an all-girl number, the Biljana, in which a beautiful bride-to-be is joined by friends in washing the girl's bridal linens. The ribbons of linen, used like streamers in a Maypole dance, afforded the girls an opportunity to create folding and unfolding patterns emphasized by a stunning play of colors from spotlights.

The small group of musicians shared with the dancers the enthusiastic response given the group by a smaller than usual Wright audience (due to the cold rain?).

Solos were performed by the violinist, the frula player (Frulaist?), and the wiry, energetic percussionist. Each fully justified the claim that Frula's musicians are drawn from "the nation's leading folk musicians."

Regional costumes, young dancers, a rich heritage of original material to draw from, excellent music, and professional teamwork makes Frula an entertainment that is colorful, flamboyant and continually exciting.

Frula deserves to be counted among the elite national dance companies of the world, such as Mexico's Fiesta Mexicana, Russia's Moiseyev or the Philippines Bayanihan.

The Dictionary Catches Up With Women's Lib

Sister Needs Help With 'Funny Uncle'

Womanspace Features Females

WASHINGTON (WNS) — "One dictionary is sold for every 25 bathtubs in the United States."

One out of every ten persons in the world speaks English as a first language. Of course, more speak Chinese.

"The Eskimos don't even have a word for war in their language but ten percent of the new words in the 1973 edition of the American Heritage Dictionary of the English Language have something to do with war or violence."

"The 1973 American Heritage Dictionary is the very first adult dictionary to include 'Ms.' as a form of address for women."

Such tidbits of information trip lightly from the tongue of Barbara Jean Trombley, an articulate 28-year-old former teacher of English at the University of Rochester in New York, who used to read dictionaries for fun even before she started doing it professionally.

"You might say I am word-happy and happy about it," she says. She is also something of a word-feminist.

"Personally, I can ride with either Miss or Ms.," she said in an interview here, "but it is important that language in reference books reflect our culture. That is why I am particularly glad the 1973 American Heritage Dictionary has updated itself to include for the first time words like 'spokeswoman'; 'sexist' and 'sexism'; 'machismo'; and a new usage for the chauvinism to pinpoint male chauvinism."

"Of course," she added with a smile, "you know that word chauvinism is male-loaded to start with. It comes from the French, from one Nicholas Chauvin, a legendary soldier extremely devoted to Napoleon." But of course.

Did she know that the bureaucrats who put out the style book for the Government Printing Office have just okayed the use of "Ms." for official federal correspondence?

"What is even more heart-warming," she said, "is the fact the Pentagon has included 'Ms.' and 'women's lib' in an 11-page dictionary they are sending to our returning POW's to acquaint them with what has been happening to our language while they were languishing in Hanoi jails."

"As a matter of fact, the woman's movement is here. I really don't believe we need more consciousness-raising sessions. We just need to communicate better. That is the real means of achieving equality."

NEW DICTIONARY... is promoted by Barbara Jean Trombley.

Consumer Consultant
As a consumer consultant for Houghton Mifflin Company, publisher of the American Heritage Dictionaries, Barbara Jean Trombley travels around the country talking about the importance of communicating in the right way. Following a whirlwind tour of campus visits in Oregon, Washington, Utah and Colorado, she forsores a return to use of more reference books and dictionaries in the classroom. "They were de-emphasized for a while but the trend is in the other direction now."

She also speaks to business groups, male and female, and participates in communications workshops for educators, airline hostesses, bankers and even policemen on the beat.

Because of her sex and teaching experience, she gets most calls to talk on "Sexist Abuses in School Materials," a subject she will explore before a statewide convention of educators in Indianapolis next month. But she is just as happy to look into her crystal ball to talk about "The Future Shock of Language" or "Putting All Our Egos in One Basket," a speech she has tailored especially for women audiences.

When the first edition of the American Heritage Dictionary was published in 1969 it was the first dictionary compiled by computer. This makes it easy to update, almost on a year-to-year basis. The 1973 volume is the 10th edition.

The large-sized volume, (8 by 11 by 2 inches), weighing over five pounds with over 3,500 half-tone illustrations in its 1,600 pages, outsold all other books published in 1969, including Love Story and Portnoy's Complaint.

But Barbara Trombley points out the American Heritage School Dictionary which came out in April 1972 may be just as revolutionary—especially in doing away with sexist definitions and illustrations.

The dictionary is based on a three-year study of school materials used in grades three to nine which identified words known to the students and also established a definite sex-stereotyping in school texts.

In the survey material, the words "boy" and "man" appeared more than twice as often as "girls" and "women." The word "he" appeared three times as often as "she."

The only female words which appeared more often than their male counterparts were "wife" and "mother"—our culture having placed emphasis on these roles for women," Ms. Trombley said. So, in compiling the school dictionary for 1972 release, the lexicographers used the words "person" or "human being" wherever possible to define terms.

As Barbara Trombley says: "We didn't do away with the pictures of little girls playing with dolls or women sewing or typing because that would not be an accurate reflection of our society either. But we did use illustrations and sample sentences also showing women as scientists and stockbrokers and girls diving

DEAR ABBY: I live 350 miles from my young sister who is 13. She wrote and told me she is being bothered by a "funny uncle." This same uncle tried the same thing with me and my two older sisters when we lived at home. My parents knew about it at the time, but they never seemed to care or think it was very serious. Anyway, this uncle is still allowed in our house.

I wrote to my sister and told her to tell a school counselor, a minister or a policeman about what's going on, but she says she feels so ashamed and guilty. I wish I could make her understand that it's not HER fault, and that there is no reason for her to feel guilty.

I feel so helpless and frustrated. Is there anything I can do from here?
BIG SISTER

DEAR SISTER: Persuade your young sister to report this "funny uncle" to the juvenile authorities immediately. And just to cover all the bases, she should tell her school counselor about him. I can't imagine your parents being so calm and unconcerned.

DEAR ABBY: My little brother is in the 5th grade and he can't read a 1st grade primer. He can't do his homework because he can't read the instructions.

My mother and I help him with his homework every night, but we end up doing it for him. We can't afford a private tutor, so don't suggest that.

We feel so helpless. Is there anything we can do? The teacher knows he can't read, but she doesn't know what to do either.
HELPLESS IN TEXAS

DEAR HELPLESS: Write to the Association for Children with Reading Disabilities, 2200 Brownsville Rd., Pittsburgh, Pa. 15201. Perhaps they can guide you. Good luck.

from high boards and chairing meetings.

"And we gave equal billing to Amelia Bloomer (who brought bloomers into our language) and Madame Curie (Curie is a unit of radioactivity) along with such male figures as the Earl of Sandwich and Jonas Salk."

The school dictionary even makes it okay for boys to cry. An illustration of one sense of the word "well" used as a verb is this sentence: "Tears welled up in his eyes." (Gloria Steinem, incidentally, is a recent addition to a panel of 100 persons distinguished in different fields who advise the American Heritage editors on usage.)

Men Better With Facts
But there are very real differences right now in the ways in which men and women communicate, Barbara Trombley says.

"Studies show men are better at communicating facts to mechanics, electricians and to executive committees. Women are better at verbalizing on a personal level—using subtlety, flattery, tact, emotion—all the result of the traditionally passive roles we have played.

"Now that we are moving out into responsible roles in business and industry, women must learn to communicate in precise, concrete, unemotional, factual ways."

With Mark Twain, Barbara believes "the difference between the right word and the almost right word is the difference between lightning and the lightning bug."

She has a final word of advice to dictionary buyers. "Don't judge a dictionary by the number of entries it has but how up-to-date it is and how it relates the words and their various senses. Remember, there are over one million words in the English language but no more than 600,000 of them have ever appeared in a dictionary anywhere at any time."

Fresh Daily ROLLS
Diener's Bakery
815 Dickinson Ave.

By KATHLEEN NEUMEYER
LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Above the door is a gigantic breast made of molded plastic foam, flesh-colored lace and sequins.

The place is Womanspace, a gallery run by women and exhibiting only the work of women artists.

Some of the nation's best-known female painters and sculptors — including Judy Chicago and Miriam Shapiro—took part in its creation in a ramshackle building that housed DuBarry's Hand Laundry for the past 20 years.

"About a year ago a group of women artists began talking about opening a cooperative gallery and meeting center," explained directress Gretchen Glickman.

"We figured we need about $25,000 to stay open for the first year, but we finally opened up anyway with only $3,500. We've collected double that in our first few weeks."

In late 1972, the women signed a six-month lease on the old laundry which featured a small front room and a huge, skylighted rear room with charming brick walls and a floor with drains for the washing machines.

The landlord poured new cement and then the women took over. About 150 took part in the renovation, with three male helpers to do the wiring and teach them how to nail up the wallboard.

It took five women to push up each 12-foot wallboard. The entire place was splashed with white paint, plants were hung from the ceiling, and a couple of hundred pillows lined the perimeters.

2,500 at Opening
Some 2,500 persons attended the grand opening of the first exhibit, which featured paintings by Miss Chicago and others, and a number of unusual sculptures, including one made of yarns and earth by Connie Zehr.

Just inside the front door was what appeared to be an elderly woman lying in state—the torso of a black-veiled and black-gowned corpse, sprayed with dust as though it had been there a very long time. Nancy Youldeman called the construction "Black Bodice."

The second exhibition featured all work by lesbians and the third, work of black women. Currently the gallery is showing abstract iconography dealing with female sexuality.

"I never belonged in the male art world," Miss Chicago wrote in Womanspace Journal.

"I was always on the outside of a world that men had wrought out of their own needs. I belonged nowhere, except maybe alone in my own studio."

She described Womanspace as "our own space, a space where we can come together, where our work will hang in a context that we ourselves have established, one that is relevant to women's struggles, women's subject matter, women's issues, women's values."

"We have made a space to house our spirit, to give form to our dreams, to share our ideas and hopes," she said.

The gallery is open free to the public in the afternoons and evenings. Every night there is a special program, free to members and at a small charge to the public.

Some 550 persons crowded into the "rap room" to hear essayist Anais Nin, and other programs have included films and poetry readings.

There are plans for a slide library of women's work and the gallery will put buyers in touch with the artists, although none of the work displayed is for direct sale.

Although interest in opening similar establishments has been expressed by women in San Francisco and Chicago, the Womanspace organizers have no current expansion plans.

"Our goal now is just to stay open for at least the length of our six-month lease," Miss Glickman said.

Dancing Winners Halted 'Til June

LIVERPOOL, England (WNS) — Kim Bygate, 14, and Nigel Tiffany, 16, have won more than one thousand dance prizes during the five years that they have been ballroom partners. But now their performances together have been cancelled until Kim has her 15th birthday in June. Officials ruled that Nigel at 16 is an adult while Kim at 14 is still a "junior." "It's a tragedy for both of us and very unfair," complained Kim. "We have both agreed that we shall not dance with anyone else."

Democrats Have Grief Enough

Ever since Gov. Holshouser was elected last fall as the first Republican governor of the century, there has been that thought in the air that the Democratic controlled Legislature could strip him of his appointive powers. With no veto power, of course, the governor could do nothing to halt this erosion of the governor's powers.

Responsibility Awes Flaherty

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH—David Flaherty came to Raleigh from Boston by way of the furniture industry and politics. He grew up poor, a kid of Irish immigrant stock in the Democratic bastion of the Massachusetts city. He acquired affluence and a key place in the administration of North Carolina's first Republican governor of the 20th century.

BRYAN HAISLIP

Flaherty, 44 and a package of good looks, energy and business acumen, holds the reins as Secretary of Human Resources over agencies employing 24,000 people and spending 22 per cent of the state's budget.

"It's an awesome responsibility," he said. The department embracing social services, public health and mental health, vocational rehabilitation and other people-oriented programs, is comparable to a major industry, he observed. The difference, added, is that its balance sheet must show human needs met instead of profits.

Impatience outweighs awe in the range of his reactions to three months as a corporate tiger in the thicket of state bureaucracy.

"The slowness in which government moves," said Flaherty, is the big contrast between the present job and his previous position as advertising and promotion executive for Broyhill Industries, a Lenoir furniture manufacturer.

Business Moves Faster
"In business, you can see a change that needs to be made, show the justification for it and—boom! It's in effect within a week," he said.

"The public and people in human resources are ready for change and know where changes need to be made. Even though all parties are willing, it's hard to bring about change."

He intends to implement business principles in government practice to take some of the rigidity out of the process. Management by objective, program accountability, personnel training and recruitment are some of the tools which can give businesslike efficiency to the department's operation, he said.

"We are not going to be guided by tradition," said Flaherty. The bureaucratic rules of play-it-safe and don't-rock-the-boat will be ignored, he said, in looking for ways to shape up agencies within his domain.

The result will be savings in tax dollars as well as a higher level of quality in services, he predicted.

More Savings Predicted Already. Secretary Flaherty has gone to the legislature's appropriations committee to cut the budget request for his department by some $4 million. The action, practically unheard of on the part of an administrative official, was made possible by economies achieved through management, he said.

Phase two of state government reorganization will give a handle to further mold a lean and responsive organization, he said. If enacted as proposed, it will allow the secretary to shift programs among agencies and eliminate overlapping and duplication.

"We can cluster programs now fragmented among several agencies so that they complement each other," Flaherty explained. In doing so, the administrative costs of delivering services can be reduced while enhancing the services to people, he said. It could mean another $5 to $7 million in savings when the next annual budget is presented to the General Assembly in 1974, he added.

Plunge Into Politics
Flaherty moved into GOP politics when he came to North Carolina with Broyhill Industries in the late '50s. He served as a state Senator in the 1969 and 1971 sessions. He formed a warm friendship with the Representative from Watauga County, James E. Holshouser Jr.

The friends election as governor brought the opportunity for the transition from businessman to bureaucrat. Flaherty took it, against his wife's advice and at a $10,000 cut in salary, because of his keen interest in the fields covered by the human resources department.

"I don't think I would have come for any other position," he said.

There are GOP-watchers who think they discern in Flaherty candidate timber for the 1976 campaign to pick Holshouser's successor. Some others question whether Tar Heels are quite ready to elect a governor with a Boston broad-A accent.

Flaherty turns the speculation aside with a disarming smile. "Do you know what you'll be doing in 1976? he parried the question. "If you'd asked me seven months ago, I wouldn't have thought I'd be where I am today."

Management has been foremost in his mind for the initial months as human resources secretary. Programs will have priority later in the year.

"We will take the initiative in developing new ways to meet the needs of people," he said. "I look for some exciting programs to be ready for the General Assembly when it meets next year."

More thoughtful leaders in the Democratic party have cautioned against any moves such as this. They recognized that Gov. Holshouser was, after all, elected by popular vote of the people—the same people who elect the legislators. The governor was elected to an office with its powers intact. Thus any move to strip Gov. Holshouser of the powers of office the previous Democratic governors had could result in a strong adverse reaction among the voters.

Certainly this would be of concern to Democratic party leaders who are trying to bring their party back closer to the people. The party is already saddled with power groups who have tenacious holds on certain boards and commissions and who seem in some cases bent on defying public need. Add to that a raw attempt to weaken the governor's office because a Republican now occupies it and the potential for disaster is obvious.

Well, along comes a bill in the General Assembly which would take away the governor's power to appoint the State Board of Elections. The bill provides instead that the state party with the highest registration would appoint the State Board of Elections. Since this is the Democratic Party, that would mean a state board controlled by Democrats. This would reflect on down to county boards where Democratic control would be maintained.

Of course, such a bill can be passed in the Democratic controlled Legislature, but we believe that the legislators should resist the pressure to vote for such a bill.

The Democratic Party has enough problems now convincing the public that it is responsive to the people's wishes. Anything that looks like an effort to strip away gubernatorial powers is just going to compound party problems.

Jim Hunt Sees Lots Of Work

By JOHN KILGO

RALEIGH — Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt says he's pleased with what the Tar Heel Legislature has accomplished thus far, but he adds: "Now we've got to start looking towards that May adjournment date and there's still a tremendous amount of work to be done."

Hunt also told me in an interview that most of the mail arriving at the Legislature is from people wanting the soft-drink and tobacco taxes to stay as they are; he thinks Gov. Jim Holshouser is doing a "commendable" job; and he feels the Democrats will once again control the Legislature in 1974.

Here's the way my talk with Hunt went:

Question: Are you pleased with the progress the Legislature has made thus far?
Hunt: "Yes. We've talked about having a good beginning and I think we did. But there's a tremendous amount of work yet to be done and we must be rigorous in our work habits. If we're going to annual sessions, and it appears we are, then in reality this is our first annual session. I've been told by people with legislative experience that this is the hardest working Legislature that has been in Raleigh."

Question: What is the Legislature going to do with the soft-drink and tobacco taxes?
Hunt: "It's hard to say what will happen. Most of the people writing legislators don't want those taxes repealed, strange as that may sound. There's some substantial commitment to taking off the soft-drink tax, but I don't think it's from the average person. But it may happen."

Question: I've heard the Democrats are upset about rumors that Gov. Jim Holshouser might go on a firing binge. Would the Democrats do anything to keep that from happening?
Hunt: "It depends on what the Governor does and whether he acts with some reason. If there are mass firings of capable people, for reasons none other than politics, then you might see the Legislature react, in accordance with the wishes of many North Carolinians. The Governor is expected to put his own people in policy-making positions, and he says he's eliminating some jobs. As long as he sticks to that, I foresee no problem."

Question: How do you think Gov. Holshouser is handling his job?
Hunt: "I think he's doing a commendable job in most respects. I haven't agreed with everything he's proposed. I'm concerned about the action of one of his secretaries for calling all the probation officers in the state in and berating them and greatly demoralizing them, in terms of attitude towards their work, because most of them are doing a very good job. Many of them were threatened with their jobs, if they didn't do this, that and the other. By and large, I think Gov. Holshouser is doing a commendable job. I think at this point he gets a good rating."

Question: "You're working with a Republican Governor and a Democratic Legislature. Any major problems in that regard?
Hunt: "The problems are there, but I've been gratified with my relationship with the Legislature. I had some new and fresh ideas when I came here and some of those are being implemented. I've had no major involvement in the executive branch of state government thus far. I might be more involved in that area when the Legislature adjourns."

Question: Do you see any major problems developing between the Democrats and Republicans?
Hunt: "Not as long as we act like mature adults. You get bad results when people act petty, for partisan purposes...when people get little, then we get into trouble. But these people up here want to

PEACE AND SACRIFICE
Peace is something which has to be made. We do not get it merely by talk, or by teaching, or by exhortation. Christ made peace by his final sacrifice, namely the cross.

What is true in the case of Christ is true in the case of ourselves. We have peace only when we make it, and we make it only through sacrifice. Peace always comes where we would least expect it to emerge, namely at the point of sacrifice. The world is ready to believe that the teachings of Christ will at last lead men into world peace. But this can take place only when these teachings are put into effect, and this requires sacrifice. We make peace when we deny our own inclinations and put ourselves aside. Peace will come among nations when men will sacrifice as much to keep peace as they now sacrifice to keep huge armaments and atomic weapons on hand for use in war.

World peace, like everything else of value, carries a high price tag. Just as Jesus made peace by the blood of his cross, so you and I will have to bear a cross in some manner.

SOME SECOND THOUGHTS?

By J.J. KILPATRICK

A Land Agamemnon Saw

PHAISTOS, Crete — Coming to Greece, for any Western man, is coming home. The journey is a pilgrimage, not of the heart, but of the mind, an intellectual experience at once humbling and exalting. Here in Crete, in the womb of these great mountains, the whole umbilical cord began.

We stand, silent, in the ruins. This was once a summer palace, we are told, used by the kings of Minoa as respite from the searing heat along the island's edge. It is a dark and brooding day, the clouds bruised, the wind keen. Among the stones, anemones are bravely bending — snow-white, blood-red, royal purple. As far as one can see, the terraced hills are garrisoned by olive trees, old men with silvered hair, and in between the trees the grapevines grow.

The imagination builds upon these mute, abiding stones. The very flowers spring to life. Eyes closed, one sees the court of Radamanthus, son of Zeus, a retinue of soldiers, servants, queens and maids and artisans. They once were here, 4,000 years ago, caparisoned in gold and crimson, and now they move again among the olive trees, up and down the stately steps, holding court, dispensing justice, worshipping their gods. A guide has picked some red anemones; he lays them on a wall: Slain princesses, with diadems of daisies in their hair. In silhouette against the sullen sky, the cypresses stand as sentinels have always stood.

The stage empties. Only the stones remain, only the wind and flowers. We hear, somewhere close at hand, the sad, sweet music of a shepherd's flute. It is an old man, with a bark-brown face and a bark-brown cap, come to sell a pipe as a tourist's souvenir. His nimble fingers form a plaintive shepherd's tune. Were these the songs that Radamanthus heard?

We go to ancient Knossos next, outside Heraklion, and spend a sunny morning recapturing the life of Minos, greatest of the kings. Here was a city, so the guidebooks say, of a hundred thousand persons and at least a thousand legends. Here in this palatial maze, Theseus slew the minotaur, and Daedalus, who built the maze, escaped on artificial wings.

The realities of Minoan are more impressive than the myths. This was a civilization, two thousand years before Christ, that valued beauty, grace and manners. The potters could have left their massive jars in common clay; they painted them in rich designs instead. The builders could have left the walls untouched, but not in Minoan; they summoned artists to the royal rooms, and left us frescoes of blue dolphins leaping.

We spend another day, back in mainland Greece, seeing the land that Agamemnon saw. It is raining this day, off and on, and the stone steps to the great lion gate are glistening wet, but the climb is worth the effort. One struggles up

To the Editor:

Much is being said about the prices of food today. Even though it takes only 16 per cent of our take home pay to feed our families a balanced diet, While the prices of cars, boats, and clothes have Gone out of sight. We could live without many of these things, But without food, with no food, even a bird can't sing.

People in America will never go hungry; I hear you say But it takes work to grow food, there's no other way. Congress may legislate a free loaf of bread For every American, oh yes! The people must be fed. But the wheat must be planted, harvested and milled into flour, And my friend, that takes work and workers must be paid by the hour.

Few angry housewives know the cost of the production of meat. They buy to feed their families week after week. And many of them insist that the government lower prices right now. But it can't be done. Farmers must have their share Of the National income, for the work that they do. Any thinking person knows this is true.

Someone has said, "AS AGRICULTURE GOES, SO GOES A NATION." Are we really aware of our situation. The average age of the American farmer is 58 years. We must wake up America and voice our fears. Very few young men are farming today, Other jobs are much better and so is the pay.

Nevertheless I would encourage young men of great zeal To learn to be farmers; it's a wide open field. There'll be plenty of work twelve months in the year, No forty hour weeks or paid vacations here. Then too you'll need to make your retirement plan. And to be a successful farmer you must be a man.

Consumer Behavior Is The Key

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — One of the more interesting revelations about American consumer behavior will be provided during the next few months of conflict between food shoppers and the rising cost of supplying the body with energy.

This is more than a passing test. It is a watershed in the affairs of consumers, who for more than 10 years have been feeling their muscles grow and who have been exerting their powers in a variety of ways.

Can they stop food price increases? Their President believes they can, and has declared such faith in them that he has declined to appear in person on the field of battle as he has in so many other economic conflicts. But faith alone won't win the battle. Aligned against the consumer are all the pressures of professional promotion, advertising, new product development and the like that have one message: Spend.

There is, moreover, the persistence of habit: Americans have been upgrading their diets since the Great Depression, adding more meat and using less starch. And they have been willing to pay dearly for conveniences, too.

Add to this the ideal of most Americans that life tomorrow will be better in regard to the basics of food, clothing, health and shelter. To lower standards is considered un-American, a violation of fundamental rights.

The consumer, therefore, is unlikely to respond affirmatively to Mrs. Virginia Knauer's suggestion that cheap cuts of meat can be turned into gourmet meals. But there is a change of rather recent vintage that does put the consumer in a more advantageous position than before. He is better educated, better informed, more aware than in the past.

This awareness, followed by action, already has brought great changes. The spirit is different. Caveat emptor is dated; caveat vinditor, or the seller beware, is widely accepted by regulators and legislators.

There is an attempt to bring the consumer up to the professional standards of the seller, to make him competent by providing him with the information needed for decision-making.

Where Angels Fear

By JEFFREY D. ALDERMAN

Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Wallace Hind is going ahead with the SST on his own.

"I got tired of waiting for the country to change its mind," Hind told this reporter during an interview in Hind's backyard in Sapawitchy, Vt. "So I took five hundred bucks outa my savings and voila..."

Hind was pointing proudly at a pile of scrap metal recently purchased from a local junk dealer.

"It was a tossup whether I would continue the Apollo program or this," declared Hind, a middle-aged brewery employe. "I finally decided the Apollo program was a bit too ambitious."

As far as I could tell Hind's SST — or Supersonic Transport — will look a bit different than the one canceled by Congress. A major variance is in the wings. Hind's version doesn't have any.

"Who needs 'em," says Hind contemptuously.

Unlike the French-English SST, the Concorde, Hind's jet will have a nose that points permanently upward and to the right.

"I did that for no particular reason other than style," Hind reveals.

Hind plans to call his SST simply "The Hind."

Asked if The Hind will produce the feared sonic booms that were predicted for the original SST, Hind says:

"I licked that problem early on. Dual exhausts from my '57 Impala and a little American ingenuity will take care of them sonic booms."

How does his wife, Henrietta Hind, feel about her hubby's project?

"I thought he was crazy when he wanted to start a buffalo farm," she says. "But that was sane compared to this. Yah want some buffalo cheese? It's not have half bad once you get used to the smell."

Is Hind building his SST all by himself?

"No sir," he says. "My son Wilbur has been with me on this right from the start. Was him that came up with the idea of using Farmer Jones broken thresher for the landing gear." What will Hind build after he completes his SST?
"I dunno for sure," he says. "Been thinking about trying a

East Carolina Teachers College has had many things to be proud of in recent years, but the latest object of pride is the museum setting forth some of the things to be found in North Carolina from the seashore to the mountains. The museum is located in the front hallway of the Science Building erected about three years ago. All of the things on display at this time, Dr. R. J. Slay head of the Department of Science stated, were collected by students in various parts of the state.

Playing this week at the State Theatre is "I am a Fugitive from a Chain Gang" starring Paul Muni.

Nixon Sends Revised Criminal Code To Congress

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon sent to Congress today his proposed blueprint for the first complete overhaul of federal criminal laws in the nation's history—a tough document that does away with insanity as a defense, tightens obscenity laws and hits at drug-pushers.

The proposed Criminal Reform Act of 1973 incorporates re-institution of the death penalty, grades offenses into nine categories and sets maximum sentences for each, provides mandatory conditions for probation and hits corporate offenders in the pocketbook.

In his message to Congress last week, the President promised his proposed legislation would do away with laws that "have become inadequate, clumsy or outdated." He called modification of the code, dating back to 1790, "not merely desirable but absolutely imperative."

Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark., already had submitted a similar code revision but hearings by his Judiciary subcommittee were postponed indefinitely because of the fight over the nomination of L. Patrick Gray III to be FBI director.

Nowhere is the administration's toughened stand more evident than in the sections on drug trafficking. For possession of more than four ounces of heroin, for example, the maximum sentence would be 30 years and a $100,000 fine. If there were a previous heroin-related felony conviction, the maximum would be life in prison.

A sentence also would be mandatory on conviction—not less than seven years in the first instance and 10 years in the second. Even trafficking in marijuana is covered: a conviction for distributing less than four ounces could bring a sentence of up to seven years.

The definition of obscenity, under the administration proposal, would no longer pivot around "redeeming social value" of the work. Under the proposed law obscene material would be forbidden unless it constituted "a minor portion of the whole product ... reasonably necessary and appropriate ... to fulfill an artistic, scientific or literary purpose." Maximum sentence and fine: three years and $25,000.

Nixon said the standard for insanity defense "has become so vague in some instances that it has led to unconscionable abuse by defendants."

His proposed code says "mental disease or defect" does not constitute a defense unless the defendant lacked the state of mind required as an element of the crime.

Experts say no general stiffening is planned in penalties for white-collar crimes, such as violation of antitrust laws.

But the Justice Department, in its transmittal letter to Congress, said "the fine levels have been substantially increased in order that they may be felt not just by defendants without major financial resources but by those defendants, corporate and individual, who for too long have tended to view criminal fines as an insignificant potential addition to the cost of doing business." Thus, the section on fines provides money sentences up to twice the gross gain or twice the gross loss caused by the offense.

Army, Police In Conflict

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — An uneasy truce prevailed today between the army and 40,000 striking provincial policemen after a battle in the port city of La Plata in which one soldier was reported killed and more than a dozen troops and police wounded.

The army evicted 5,000 strikers who seized the police headquarters in La Plata, 30 miles south of Buenos Aires, but made no immediate attempt to dislodge policemen who took over their headquarters in Mar del Plata, 220 miles farther south.

The government put the strikers in Rosario, Mendoza and other cities under military mobilization, subjecting them to army orders, and there were no reports of any trouble there.

The provincial police struck Wednesday in six of Argentina's 22 provinces, demanding that their pay be doubled to equal the $115 a month paid the federal police. The 4 million people of Buenos Aires, the capital district, were not affected because their area is under the federal police.

The strikers who seized the headquarters in La Plata demanded a meeting with Interior Minister Arturo Mor Roig, but instead the military government sent troops and 60 tanks to surround the four-story building.

and up, and up again, and suddenly the Iliad comes true. Shafts of sunlight flood the Argive plain below; far away the wine-dark sea holds sailing ships. Here Agamemnon summoned troops to fight in Troy. Here his faithless wife conspired his murder. These were the stones that looked upon the passions of kings and the vengeance of gods. No wonder the poets sang of arms and men!

Finally, we pursue our pilgrimage from Corinth back to Athens — to the Parthenon, to temples, forums, theaters, to paths that philosophers once walked along. And late of an afternoon, overwhelmed and inarticulate, we voice the same banalities that visitors to Greece have always voiced: How beautiful! How perfect!

And we ask ourselves the banal question: What of us? What is our civilization leaving to the archeologists who may excavate Chicago, Washington, and Denver 3,000 years from now? Minoan fell, and Agamemnon died; the golden age of Pericles yielded to grimy decay. Our turn will come. We ought to strive, it seems to me, to leave as much behind.

Hind excused himself from further questioning saying he had to get on with his work. He lumbered over to the pile of junk and began hammering away.

I started to leave and accidentally bumped into a man in a gray suit.

"Excuse me," said the man. "I represent the airline industry. Are you Wallace Hind?"

Death Sentence For Cop-Killer

SMITHFIELD, N.C. (AP)—James M. Cummings, convicted of first degree murder in the shooting of a policeman, has become the first North Carolinian sentenced to death since a recent state Supreme Court ruling revived the death penalty. Cummings, 33, showed no emotion as Johnston County Superior Court Judge E. Maurice Braswell pronounced the sentence Wednesday. The 33-year-old Lillington man appealed the sentence and the conviction, which was returned by a jury Tuesday.

Judge Braswell said the U.S. Supreme Court ruling which appeared to have struck down the death penalty, combined with a January state Supreme Court ruling, left him no other choice than to sentence Cummings to the gas chamber. Braswell said the U.S. Supreme Court ruling said the death penalty was invalid because juries applied it arbitrarily. The State Supreme Court said that decision did not invalidate the North Carolina capital punishment statute entirely.

The state court's decision, Braswell said, was that juries could no longer recommend life imprisonment. Death thus became mandatory upon conviction of first degree murder. "The (U.S. Supreme) Court ruled that you couldn't leave it up to the jury on what the sentence should be, but only that they could find for murder in the first degree, murder in the second degree, or not guilty," Braswell said. Cummings was convicted of the December 2 slaying of Clayton policeman Charles H. Lee. Two others who were charged in that slaying, Mary L. Chance and Dale T. Brown, were released from charges Wednesday after they testified against Cummings in his trial.

Amnesty Is Risk: Rusk

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—A general amnesty for draft evaders and deserters could set a dangerous precedent for future conflicts, former Secretary of State Dean Rusk has said. In Nashville for a speech at Vanderbilt University today, Rusk said the amnesty question is one that Congress should consider carefully. "This is basically a problem for Congress because it is the constitutional role of the Congress to raise the armed forces of the United States," he said. "If I were in Congress, I would want to give some thought as to how what we do now affects the ability of the Congress to call up men in some future contingency."

"Because, if they call and everyone says 'Thank you very much, but I'll have some of your amnesty instead,' then this nullifies the powers of Congress in this field." Now a professor of international law at the University of Georgia's School of Law, Rusk said he was willing to give the Vietnam peace agreements a chance to work. "But, we're not home yet. But I'm sure that we're out and we won't get back in," he said.

Price Rises Known In Advance

By R. GREGORY NOKES Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration knew in advance that the February Consumer Price Index would show the largest food-price jump in more than 20 years, and moved to pave the way for the bad news.

The day before Wednesday's announcement that food prices climbed 2.2 per cent in February, the administration issued a "white paper" and spokesmen forecast a gradually decreasing rise in food prices in the last half of the year. Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott, after meeting with President Nixon, had told newsmen the administration was waging "all-out war" on food prices. Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz continued to say that food prices were not as high as they would be if a general freeze on food were ordered. There were hints that the news probably would get worse before it got better. But no official dared solid forecast of declining food prices.

The closest attempt was a statement in the white paper that quite possibly the rate of increase would be near zero by the end of the year. That meant food costs could continue to rise through the year, and on Dec. 31 could be higher, possibly much higher, than now.

One ray of hope came from Chicago. The American Meat Institute said the wholesale price of beef dropped $3 per hundredweight since last week, a change attributed to a slight supply increase and a drop in consumer demand. An AMI spokesman said the decrease should be reflected in grocery stores within a week or so, but he would not predict how much food bills would be affected. Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said Wednesday that higher food costs will be reflected in consumer price indices for March and April, although he joined in the forecast of a decreasing increase in food prices after midyear.

Edgar R. Fielder, assistant Treasury Secretary for economic policy, cautioned: "The fight against inflation is far from over. Retail food prices will be especially troublesome in the next few months." Stein's and Fielder's were but two of several administration statements in the past week that stressed the same points:

—The government is doing all it can to halt the rising spiral of food prices by encouraging an increase in the food supply. —Anything the government is not doing, such as imposing a freeze on food prices or encouraging consumer boycotts, wouldn't work. —And really nobody is to blame for the increase in food prices, except perhaps the American consumer who is eating more because he's earning more and thus eating up all the food.

Patient Rights Bill Is Approved By N.C. House

By GRACE KUTKUS Associated Press Writer RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina House has approved legislation to guarantee patients in the state's mental hospitals fundamental civil rights. On a unanimous voice vote Wednesday the House passed a bill sponsored by Rep. Howard Twigg, D-Wake, protecting mental patients' rights to dignity, privacy and humane care and insuring that they receive medical treatment.

The bill now goes to the Senate for concurrence. Under the measure, patients would be guaranteed rights including the right to confer with a private physician and lawyer, the right to deed property and sign contracts, and the right to marry and divorce.

An amendment introduced by Rep. George Miller, D-Durham, provides, however, that such contracts would be void if the patients were later declared incompetent.

Twigg offered an amendment to allow the Motor Vehicles Department to hold hearings on taking the driver's licenses of persons involuntarily committed to mental institutions for treatment of alcohol or drug abuse or those who have been declared incompetent by the courts.

The amendment would remove the mentally ill from coverage under the existing statute, which allows the Motor Vehicles Department to remove driver's licenses of anyone involuntarily committed to a mental hospital.

Several legislators expressed concern that any patient's license could be taken. Rep. Claude DeBruhl, D-Buncombe, said fear of losing driving privileges "is one of the greatest deterrents to someone who wants to turn himself in for treatment." Twigg said everyone concerned with the amendment had been consulted and "everyone is very happy with it." The amendment passed 59-33. A final amendment by Rep. Willis Whichard, D-Durham, provides that the consent of a visitor be obtained before the patient can demand to see him. The original language of the bill stated a patient could see any person of his choice, and Whichard said his amendment merely clarified the bill's intent.

City Counts 2 Collisions

More than $1,200 property damage was reported by investigators in two collisions investigated her yesterday.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted when two cars collided about 2 p.m. at the intersection of U.S. 264 and Evans Street.

Drivers of the vehicles were identified as Richard Herman McLawhorn of Rt. 1, Winterville, and Bertha Hart Tripp of Winterville.

Damage was set at $300 to the McLawhorn car and $400 to the Tripp auto by officers who charged McLawhorn with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident.

John Dixon Jr., of Rt. 2, Grifton, was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 9:30 a.m. collision at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Chestnut Street.

Police reported the car driven by Dixon collided with a truck driven by J.T. O'Neal of Rt. 1, Greenville, causing an estimated $400 damage to the truck and about $120 damage to the Dixon car.

In 1972 Kentucky rehabilitated 10,534 persons to employment and independence at an average cost of $1,430 per person.

To Meet At Chapel Hill

The North Carolina Council of Women's Organizations will hold its annual meeting March 31 at 9:30 a.m. at the Carolina Inn in Chapel Hill. Mrs. Bert G. Tyson, president of the council, will head the meeting.

The luncheon speaker will be Dr. Juanita M. Kreps, James B. Duke Professor of Economics, Duke University. She will speak on the "Changing Patterns of Women's Work."

Dr. Kreps hold the Ph. D. Degree from Duke where she has served as Dean of the Women's College, Assistant Provost and Director of Undergraduate Studies in Economics. She has written extensively in the areas of labor and manpower and in the economics of aging.

She was elected a public member of the Board of Directors of the New York Stock Exchange in 1972. She is married and has three children.

The meeting will include registration at 9:30 a.m. followed by a meeting of the Board of Directors and then luncheon at 12:30 p.m. Reservations may be made by contacting Miss Margie Gilbert, Box 2851, Durham, N.C. 27705 and enclosing $4 for the luncheon.

Funds Given To 'Sunshine'

Operation Sunshine was the recipient recently of $250 from the Greenville Jaycees, according to chapter president Don Brady.

Brady commented, "Operation Sunshine has proven its worth by being of service to young girls in Greenville continuously for the past ten years." He added, "We are pleased to again support such a hard working organization and challenge other civic clubs to match our support."

The Sunshine Center, located at the corner of E. Third and Pitt Streets, is a haven for young girls after school and during the summer, he noted. Participants enjoy crafts, games, cooking, sewing, trips and fellowship. Operation Sunshine derives its support from contributions throughout the community, it was pointed out. Such gifts can be mailed to P.O. Box 3412.

Majority Of Public Opposes Union Featherbedding

By GEORGE GALLUP
Copyright 1973, Field Enterprises, Inc. All rights reserved. Republication in whole or part strictly prohibited, except with the written consent of the copyright holders.

PRINCETON, N. J., — A majority of Americans, 55 per cent, would like to see a law passed which would outlaw "feather-bedding"—that is, the practice of some labor unions of requiring more men than are actually needed to do a particular job.

The dispute between the Penn Central railroad and the United Transportation Union over the size of train crews was the issue that triggered the one-day strike on the Penn Central railroad last Feb. 8. Congress subsequently asked the administration to come up with a comprehensive plan in 45 days for preserving rail service throughout the Northeast.

While a majority of Americans, in surveys covering the last 20 years, have consistently favored legislation to outlaw feather-bedding or "make-work," the percentage opposed to such legislation has risen sharply since the early '60s, with a corresponding decline recorded in the "no opinion" category.

In the current survey, support for outlawing feather-bedding is greatest among persons with a college background, Republicans and persons working in business or the professions. However, among persons with a high school or grade school background, Democrats and manual workers, opinion is also decidedly against feather-bedding.

Labor Union Members Evenly Divided
Of particular interest are the views of persons in labor union families. The latest results show as many union people against feather-bedding as in favor of it. The heads of labor unions are understandably interested in providing constant employment for their men and to maintain or increase the size of their union membership. Union arguments for make-work, however, have apparently not been presented in a way to convince the public or a sizable percentage of the union rank-and-file.

Although a majority has favored laws against feather-bedding since the 1940s, the highest percentage recorded against the practice occurred during World War II, when 7 in 10 were opposed.

The make-work issue came to the foreground when war brought an acute shortage of industrial manpower. The typical American with no union affiliation was irritated by each new published report of feather-bedding when war plants desperately seeking additional manpower.

Seen As Barrier To Productivity Drive
The practice of feather-bedding is currently under fire from quarters since it runs head into the drive to increase productivity in the United States.

Criticism of feather-bedding may lie in part behind the recent downturn in approval of labor unions. A recent Gallup survey showed 59 per cent of the public saying they approve of labor unions, the lowest approval rate recorded since 1936.

Following is the question asked about feather-bedding: Some labor unions make jobs for their members by requiring employers to hire more than are actually needed to do a particular job. The unions say this is necessary in order to give work to all their members. Would you favor or oppose having a law passed which would stop this practice?

Following are the national findings:

Law To Stop 'Feather-Bedding'?		Non-Union People
Favor	55 percent	Favor	58 percent
Oppose	32 percent	Oppose	28 percent
No opinion	13 percent	No opinion	14 percent

Here is a comparison of the views of members of labor union families and non-union families:

Labor Union People
Favor	44 percent
Oppose	43 percent
No opinion	13 percent

The findings reported today are based on interviews with a total of 1,517 adults, 18 and older, who were interviewed in person in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation during the period Feb. 16-19.

Graphic Art To Be Sold

East Carolina University will sponsor an exhibition and sale of original graphic art by contemporary and old master artists Monday, March 26.

Arranged by the Ferdinand Roten Galleries of Baltimore, the exhibition will be on display in Room B-103 of the campus Social Sciences Building from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Included in the exhibition will be more than 1,000 original etchings, lithographs and woodcuts by artists such as Picasso, Chagal, Miro, Dali, Goya, Renoir, and Kollwitz, as well as contemporary American, European and Japanese print-makers.

Prices begin at $5 with the majority priced under $100.

Art Seniors Show Work

Two senior students in the East Carolina University School of Art are showing examples of their work in campus displays this week.

On exhibit are works by Doug Helms of Monroe and Michael Clark of Greensboro.

Helms' display on first floor Rawl Building includes pencil drawings, photographs, illumination in lettering, illustrations and pottery. He is a candidate for the BA degree in commercial art and ceramics and plans to enter graduate studies at ECU this summer.

Miss Clark's show, consisting of oil and water color paintings, sculpture and weaving, is on display at the Baptist Student Union gallery.

She is a candidate for the BS degree.

Before entering ECU, she studied dancing at the N.C. School of the Arts in Winston-Salem and plans a career in the performing arts.

Mission Work To Be Related

WINTERVILLE—The Rev. Joe Ingram will be at the Winterville Free Will Baptist Church Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

He will show slides of the mission work in the Philippines and his recent visit with missionary Harold Jones.

Fire Damaged Local Dwelling

An early-morning fire today damaged a wood-frame dwelling at 114 Ninth St. according to Greenville Fire Department officers.

Officials said a short circuit in an electric blanket apparently touched off the fire which burned a bedroom and its contents at the Ninth Street home about 1:50 a.m.

No injuries were reported.

Two Injured As Bus Wrecked

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP) — Two persons were injured today when a greyhound bus traveling from Henderson to Durham went out of control and struck an embankment three miles west of Henderson on U.S. 158-A, according to the Highway Patrol.

Witnesses said the driver — Emmett H. Pleasants, 52, of Durham and his only passenger — Richard Adams, 79, of Henderson — were thrown out of the windshield by the impact. They were taken to Maria Parham Hospital at Henderson.

The patrol said the mishap occurred on a section of highway still slippery from Wednesday night's snowfall.

Parental Conduct Said To Set Pattern Of Child's Drug View

WASHINGTON (AP) — What can parents do to discourage drug use by their children? Here is what the National Commission on Marihuana and Drug Abuse says on the subject:

"Among the guiding principles of parental conduct, the first should be recognition that their patterns of drug use (or non-use) serve as a model for their children. Repeated studies have indicated a strong correlation between the degree of responsibility exercised by the parents in using drugs and that exercised by the children.

"The second principle is that curiosity and the search for experience is a normal aspect of the adolescent growth process.

Will Try To Justify Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representatives of banks that raised their prime lending rate to 6 1/4 per cent planned to try to convince the Nixon administration today that the credit-tightening move is justified.

Seven banks, led by Manufacturers' Hanover Trust of New York, announced the half-point increase from 6 1/4 per cent Tuesday, saying it was necessary because of rising demand for loans.

Chairman Arthur F. Burns of the administration's Committee on Interest and Dividends promptly indicated displeasure at the increase and asked the banks to send representatives to a meeting today in his office.

Burns' response had the apparent effect of discouraging any other banks from immediately boosting their rates.

Burns, who also is chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, said the committee lacks authority to force a rollback in the interest rates, although the President does have that power.

The prime rate is the interest banks charge their best customers and is considered a barometer of the level of interest rate generally.

Twins Share In School Honors

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Ginny and Judy Long followed each other into the world 18 minutes apart. This spring, with an .18 difference in their soaring averages, they will follow one another to the podium to accept the top two academic honors of their high school graduating class.

Conforming to a family tradition, the 17-year-old Long twins of suburban McKownville will depart Guiderland Central Senior High school as valedictorian and salutatorian, Ginny a tiny step ahead of her sister.

The twins come from a lengthy line of cerebral two's. Both parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Long, were valedictorians of their respective high schools, and another pair of twins in the five-daughter family reaped academic honors in college.

Conducting Sports Medicine Session

High school athletic coaches and student trainers are invited to participate in a sports medicine conference at East Carolina University May 4-5.

The conference is sponsored by the ECU Division of Continuing Education and the ECU School of Allied Health and Social Professions.

Instructional staff includes Rod Compton, ECU's head trainer, ECU medical school faculty members, and physicians.

Purpose of the conference is to increase the participants' skills and ability to deal with injuries related to the head, neck and upper extremities, and with heat exhaustion and its causes, treatment and prevention.

Other subjects of study will be legal implications of injuries, sports medicine record keeping and rehabilitative methods.

Conference participants will also attend the ECU-Pembroke State baseball game.

Further information about the conference and registration materials are available from the ECU Division of Continuing Education, Box 2727, Greenville.

FBI In Charge Of Handling Terrorism

By QUANE KENYON
Associated Press Writer
GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — A State Department official says the FBI would have operational command if terrorists were to capture and threaten death to hostages in the United States.

Armin Meyer told a foreign policy briefing here Wednesday the United States has three objectives in dealing with terrorists who strike within the borders of the United States.

He said the first objective is to protect the lives of hostages. The second is to refuse to capitulate to blackmail demands. And the third is to see that terrorists are punished.

Meyer, special assistant to the secretary of state and coordinator for combatting terrorism, gave this outline of action for dealing with terrorists:

The FBI takes over complete operational control, with all other federal agencies obligated to supply needed personnel and equipment.

A special State Department task force gathers in Washington to plan strategy and make vital decisions. A communications center will link the task force with foreign governments and embassies. There's a direct line to the FBI.

The President would be asked to authorize the use of federal troops to storm a terrorist-held embassy, if such a move is deemed necessary.

Meyer said the State Department set up a committee to devise a complete plan to deal with major terrorism incidents shortly after Palestinian terrorists killed 11 Israelis at the Munich Olympics last year.

Some Driven To Rustle Cattle

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A sheriff in Utah's ranching country says the high cost of beef is driving some people to rustle.

Davis County Sheriff William L. Peters said he received a report from a rancher on Wednesday that rustlers killed a steer with a bow and arrow and dressed it in the pasture. It was the third incident of the year.

"Meat's $3.50 a pound for tenderloin," Peters said. "I suspect this year, with the price of beef the way it is, we're going to have an increase in rustling."

Math Teacher To Conference

Katye Sowell of East Carolina University will be among some 300 math educators throughout the state expected to attend the Central Region of the N. C. Council of Teachers of Mathematics conference Saturday.

The third annual spring conference will be held at Richmond Senior High School in Rockingham.

When this happens, any problems in family structure are only aggravated. Parents must serve as the treatment agency of first resort, and if they decide that referral to professional services is necessary, they must participate actively with the program or person which provides these services.

"In order to provide a basis for open discussions and interchanges between parent and child regarding use of psy-choactive substances, a climate of honesty, mutual respect and love must be fostered within the family. Since rational discussion about drugs is impossible without informed attitudes and perceptions, parents must learn to discuss drugs, their effects, and drug-related behavior without hysterical emotion. Parents should share information with their children, in order to provide a common factual basis. "Although such discussions may not always lead to a resolution satisfactory to both parent and child, they should continue nonetheless in order to avoid a breakdown in communications. At the minimum, the discussion can lead to mutual self-respect and prevent the kinds of misunderstanding, which only further cloud the central issues."

GETS BATTING TIP — Coach Dave Holton of Rose High School, left, gives Kim Withers, the first girl on the Rampant baseball team, some tips on

Something Different About Rose Baseball

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

A gentleman may offer a Tiparillo to a lady, but does he give her his baseball bat and glove?

The Rose High School Rampants may come up with the answer to that question before the 1973 baseball season is over. The reason for it is that there is a new look to the Rampants. She's Kim Withers, a senior who has become the first girl at Rose High to contest the boys for a position on the baseball team.

Earlier this year, four girls reported for the swimming team, and participated in that sport, but baseball is a little different.

"It's kind of a challenge," she smiled. "I was interested in getting more girls to come out for sports, and since baseball is THE sport in Greenville, it was just natural."

But no women's libber is she, according to Coach Dave Holton. "Any girl who comes out is going to make it on her own. She accepted these terms and she made it."

While some of her teammates do harbor some resentment, none of them will admit it publicly, and most are quite willing to accept her.

"It's something new, that's for sure," Co-Captain Stanley Cobb said. "I've never played with a girl on a team before, but I don't think it's hurting us. It kinda keeps the team together."

His fellow captain, Lee Cherry, feels that she has as much potential as anyone. "It hurt her that she didn't have the Little League and Babe Ruth background that most of the boys have," he said.

Currently, Greenville's Little League and Babe Ruth programs do not admit girls, and have no plans to do so.

Kim was born in nearby Rocky Mount, but spent most of her life in Columbia, a small town near the coast. While there, she played on the girls' basketball team. "I've always been athletically inclined," she said. "I really enjoyed basketball, but they don't have it (girl's basketball) yet at Rose High." (Tentative plans call for the sport to be started next year). Two years ago, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Withers, moved to Greenville. And it was just a question of time before she found she had to do something to get into sports here.

"My folks are crazy about the idea," she said, "especially Daddy. He really thinks it's great."

Is it just for being on the team, or does she really think she can play? "I don't have the confidence I need. But I've improved my batting and fielding. I was quite scared at first. I was afraid I was going to do something wrong, but then I saw the boys making mistakes too, so I haven't worried as much."

Kim is hoping that some of the other girls will follow her lead, but she hasn't actively sought any out, just set the example. "I know there are girls who could do it. And I feel that girls should have an athletic program to participate in. It helps you get along with other people."

So far though, no one has followed her lead, although head cheerleader Kate Welch feels that it is "great. It took a lot of nerve, but I'm glad she's doing it."

"There's always been some girl talking about how she's going to come out for this team or that," Coach Holton said, "but this is the first time any of them has done it instead of talking about it." Holton said at first he wondered about her sincerity. "I told her that if she was sincere about it, I would be too. And she stuck it out, asked no favors and gave no excuses. She went through a tough conditioning program with the boys, and she didn't quit."

He added that the boys were a little skeptical at first, and probably still are to a certain extent. "I won't call it resentment. But it's still entirely new to them. I think as the players get to know her more they'll consider her less a threat as a women's libber, and more just another player."

Easy Way To Run Is On Homer

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
For an old gaffer who didn't want to run hard, Frank Robinson knew the right way to pace himself.

Very simple. What the 37-year-old slugger did was hit the ball over the fence and then drag his wounded toe gingerly around the bases.

"It hurts when I have to go real quick ... when I have to get up on my toes and run," said Robinson, whose 400-foot home run Wednesday came on his first time at bat as a member of the California Angels and started them to a 14-4 exhibition baseball rout of the San Diego Padres.

"This felt especially good coming on my first at-bat with a new team," continued the veteran outfielder, who broke a toe in a freak accident while climbing into a broadcasting booth earlier in spring training. "If I don't have any more setbacks I should be 100 per cent by the start of the season. But I have to play. I don't think I can miss many more days."

Elsewhere on the medical front, there was some good news and some bad news for a couple of National League pitchers.

Gary Nolan, ace of the Cincinnati Reds' mound staff, was ruled out of action indefinitely with a sore arm and probably will not accompany the team north to open the season.

On the other hand, San Francisco's Sam McDowell said he felt "much more optimistic about my future" after a doctor examined his sore back and told him it would improve with medication and therapy. On Tuesday, McDowell had considered going home.

On the home run front, all-time National League slugger Hank Aaron and Willie Mays were back at their specialty...namely, hitting the ball over fences.

Aaron hit his first home run of the exhibition season off Al

Downing as the Atlanta Braves defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-2. Willie Crawford homered for the Dodgers.

A tie-breaking two-run homer by Thurman Munson in the sixth inning off relief ace Tug McGraw climaxed a 6-2 victory for the New York Yankees over the New York Mets despite Mays' second spring homer.

The longballing of Aaron, Mays and Robinson overshadowed the heroics of Larry Hisle and Gary Peters, both trying to make it back to the majors.

Hisle hit three homers—two off Tommy John and one off Jim Brewer—and knocked in five runs to pace the Minnesota Twins to a 10-7 victory over the Dodgers' 'B' team. Danny Thompson and Harmon Killebrew also connected for the Twins.

Hal McRae's two-run homer wiped out a 2-0 Houston lead on Bob Watson's two-run shot and the Kansas City Royals went on to beat the Astros 5-3.

Peters, a veteran non-roster lefty, worked four innings for the Royals, allowing three hits, two unearned runs and fanning six.

In other games Oakland shelled Milwaukee 7-1, Baltimore whipped Cincinnati 7-1, Pittsburgh beat Detroit 5-2, the Chicago Cubs defeated Cleveland 7-5, St. Louis trounced Philadelphia 9-1, Montreal topped the Texas Rangers 7-5, and the Chicago White Sox edged Boston 3-2.

Green Named ECU Cage Aide

Tom Quinn, head basketball coach at East Carolina University, announced today that Ed Green has joined the Pirate basketball staff.

Green will coordinate the recruiting, assist with the varsity and recruit in the Eastern United States. He succeeds Art Tolis at the position. Tolis resigned recently to accept a similar position at Western Kentucky.

A native of Dubois, Pa., Green comes to East Carolina from Brockway, Pa. He has been head basketball coach at Brockway High School for the past nine years. Under Green's leadership, Brockway went to the State Playoffs four times in the past five seasons.

Green received his bachelor degree in social studies at Clarion State in 1964 and 1968 he received his masters in education from Syracuse University.

The 29-year old Green, has a brother, Tom, who is on the basketball staff at Syracuse University.

Green is married to the former Nancy Smith and they have one child.

Bucs Announce 1973 Grid List

East Carolina University will meet seven Southern Conference foes and four tough outside teams on its 1973 football schedule, it was announced today.

Athletic Director Clarence Stasavich, in releasing the schedule for the coming season, said that the Pirates would be playing three extremely tough teams of national caliber, two of which won bowl games during the past year, North Carolina State, and the University of North Carolina.

The other two non-conference games will be with strong Southern Mississippi and with Southern Illinois. All four of these games are on the road.

The conference schedule includes a complete round-robin for the Pirates, and when will entertain five of those seven in Ficklen Stadium. Only Davidson and The Citadel will be conference road games.

Homecoming will be observed on November 10, when the Bucs entertain Richmond, with kickoff set for 1:30 p.m. All other home games will start at 8 p.m., a half-hour later than last year. The damage was felt wise by the Athletic Committee of the university.

The complete schedule:

Sept. 8, N. C. State University at Raleigh, 7:30 p.m.

Sept. 15, Southern Mississippi at Hattiesburg, Miss., 7:30 p.m. (Central time).

Sept. 22, Southern Illinois at Carbondale, Ill., 7:30 p.m. (Central time).

Sept. 29, Furman at Ficklen Stadium, 8 p.m. (Central time.)

Sept. 29, Furman at Ficklen Stadium, 8 p.m.

Oct. 6, Davidson at Davidson, 2 p.m.

Oct. 13, VMI at Ficklen Stadium, 8 p.m.

Oct. 20, The Citadel at Charleston, S. C., 1:30 p.m.

Oct. 27, North Carolina at Chapel Hill, 1:30 p.m.

Nov. 3, William & Mary at Ficklen Stadium, 8 p.m.

Nov. 10, Richmond at Ficklen Stadium, 1:30 p.m. (Homecoming).

Plans Fouled For Russell Ad

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — It won't go in the National Basketball Association record book, but Bill Russell probably never will forget the 25-foot shot he made from a swivel chair, a shot he was supposed to miss.

Telephone and Telegraph Company, for whom the commercial was made, related the interesting vignette today involving the all-time great of the Boston Celtics.

Sports personalities are not content with monopolizing the TV screens with their game exploits these days. They are also clogging the commercial breaks.

relatives via long distance. At the end, he was supposed to wheel, throw the ball at a basket 25 feet away and naturally miss since nobody could make a shot like that.

"Let's try that again," a director yelled. Cameras whirred. Russell gave his little speech, wheeled and threw the ball. Most of the time, the ball missed. When it hit, the former Celtics star was unnatural with his commentary.

NIT Action To Continue Tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — Pro basketball scouts were expected out in force again tonight for the National Invitation Tournament's quarter-final doubleheader at Madison Square Garden.

the season, figures to have its hands full with Minnesota's tough, pro-type club. "They are as powerful and physical as any basketball team I've ever seen," said Alabama's Coach C.M. Newton after watching Minnesota, 21-4, wipe out Rutgers 68-59.

"We wanted a basketball star to feature one of our commercials," Hutchins said. "Bill Russell was a natural—a great athlete, a good personality and possessed with a wonderful laugh."

Russell himself was momentarily stunned. So were the cameramen and agency people. "I can't miss," Bill quickly improvised, "and you can't miss, either, by using long distance..."

"It turned into our most successful commercial," Hutchins said.

Dodger-Like Quality To San Diego Padres

By BOB EGELKO
Associated Press Sports Writer
YUMA, Ariz. (AP) — There's a Los Angeles Dodgers' flavor about the San Diego Padres—not surprising, since the club president, Buzzie Bavasi, and both his managers, Preston Gomez and Don Zimmer, have come from the Dodgers.

The Padres, like the Dodgers, are long on pitching, youth and speed, short on power and experience. Only in San Diego's case, the pitching isn't quite as good, the youngsters not quite as dazzling, and the fast runners seldom on base.

The White Sox. Gary Ross and probably Romo will head the bullpen. The Padres are hoping rookie Mike Ivie can solve their catching problem, Ivie, 20, walked out of camp last spring after being ordered to catch, and showed up at Alexandria, La., of the Texas League, where he played first base and hit 24 homers. He attended a mind control institute after the season and emerged with belief in his psychic powers and a willingness to catch.

Tennis Shoes At Larry's AT 5 POINTS

Alabama takes on Minnesota in tonight's opener and Fairfield plays Virginia Tech in the second game. The winners meet Saturday in one of the semifinals contests. Fairfield and Virginia Tech weren't really expected to get past tough first round opponents. But George Groom's 23 points and 19 by Phil Rogers helped Fairfield to an 80-76 decision over Marshall and Tech took New Mexico 65-63 with 6-7 Allan Bristow scoring 26 points and grabbing 10 rebounds.

Wins Golf Tourney

Don White took first in a recent men's handicap tournament held at Greenville Golf and Country Club. Second place went to Molt Massey Jr., while Reid Hooper, Dr. Ed Monroe and Karl Faser tied for third place.

ROTC Event Scheduled Netters Are Rained Out

The East Carolina University detachment of the Air Force ROTC will play host to the fourth annual ECU 600 Basketball Tournament this weekend in Minges Coliseum. Along with the hosting East Carolina team, others will include Duke, The University of North Carolina, North Carolina A&T, Virginia, Fayetteville State and The Citadel. Teams competing are made up of ROTC cadets from the institutions.

NORFOLK, Va. — East Carolina University's tennis match with Old Dominion was rained out yesterday here. No new date for the match has been scheduled. The Bucs are slated to meet William & Mary in a match today, seeking their first win after an opening loss to Ohio University.

Memphis Nears Losing Record

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The American Basketball Association is nearing an end for the Memphis Tams...but the end may not come soon enough. For the Indiana Pacers, the end might be just right.

Memphis' loss was its 11th in a row on the road—five short of the league record established by the Floridians last season—and its 11th in 11 games against Kentucky this season.

In the girls' contest, Fran Dudley won the driving event, beating out Ann Haigwood. In the accuracy driving contest, Debbie Akin was first, followed by Ellen Longino. Elizabeth Whitehurst won the putting over Helen Whitehurst.

NOTICE OF SALE

NORTH CAROLINA PITT COUNTY

TAKE NOTICE that in accordance with Section 115-126 of the General Statutes of North Carolina, the Board of Education of Greenville City Schools, having decided that the school property described herein has become unnecessary for public school purposes, will sell upon receipt of sealed bids for CASH to the highest bidder at the site on Pennsylvania Avenue in Greenville, Pitt County, North Carolina at 11:00 a.m. on Thursday, March 29, 1973, the following described property, to-wit:

Three frame houses located on two adjacent lots, and being Lots Nos. 7 and 8 in Block "Z" as shown on that certain map, entitled "Greenville Property of E. B., J. W. and J. S. Higgs, Greenville, North Carolina," which map is recorded in Map Book 2 at page 180 in the Office of the Register of Deeds of Pitt County, North Carolina.

Bids will be received for each house on an individual basis, however, the Greenville City Board of Education will entertain and consider, if it be to their advantage, a total bid for all three houses as a single unit. Bid forms are available at the Greenville City Schools Administrative Office, 431 West Fifth Street, Greenville, NC.

This property will be offered for sale as is, and will be sold subject to removal from the present site within 30 days after sale is confirmed. The purchaser will be responsible for any fees in conjunction with utilities cutoff and moving permits. Purchaser agrees to remove from the lot any masonry left standing after the structure is removed. The land on which the structures rest is in no way included in the sale of these houses.

A ten percent (10) cash deposit will be required of the high bidder at the time bids are opened. The remainder of the bid price will be due at the time of acceptance of the bid. The Greenville City Board of Education reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

This 19th day of February, 1973.

Fully Trained Acupuncturist Makes A Difference

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

SHANGHAI (AP) — One of the numerous engaging attributes of Dr. Hsu Chia-yu is that he is a forthright man.

Trained in Western-style medicine as an internist, Dr. Hsu also believes in the efficacy of acupuncture for various ailments. But, as he once volunteered, "I'm not very good at it."

On a recent Sunday morning in Shanghai, Dr. Hsu proved his point.

He acupunctured the back of my right hand, in the "snuff box" near the webbing between thumb and forefinger, a hollow where snuff-sniffers used to place their snuff.

The ultra-thin needle did not hurt going through the skin. But when Dr. Hsu plunged it deeper and began twirling, the pain was sharp. And it went on.

Dr. Hsu was somewhat delighted. "You have a feeling of soreness, yes?" he asked in understatement. "That is good. It is teh chi!"

That meant he had hit a spot signaling that some anesthetic effect should soon begin. He said the needle felt "sticky" to him, as though the tissues in my hand were magnetically "pulling the needle in."

Dr. Hsu continued his twirling only a few minutes, as against the 15 or so usually taken to induce anesthesia for surgery. Some feeling of numbness crpt along my thumb, and two adjacent fingers, and they felt stiff for some hours later. There was a spot of blood when he withdrew the needle, and a slight internal hemorrhage occurred.

Three companions also visiting the People's Republic of China likewise felt pain from Dr. Hsu's needle. But Sister Irene Munoz, a public health nurse from Muscatine, Iowa, said it did not hurt, and her hand soon turned so numb she could not make a fist.

Some days later, a fully trained acupuncturist gave me the needle—Dr. Szutu Ling of the Kwangtung provincial Chinese traditional hospital in Canton. Deftly, he entered the inside of my right wrist, between two tendons at a point just above the spot where you can feel your puls.

This time, no pain, but a surprising blunt-collision feeling when the needle was suddenly pushed deeper and struck some kind of solid tissue, perhaps a tendon sheath. A mild kind of heavy feeling developed in the hand, with some numbness in fingers. Afterward, soreness persisted for a few hours, but there was no blood drawn, no internal hemorrhage.

Skillfulness in drawing blood samples, or giving inoculations varies among doctors and nurses, one recalls.

So two brief personal encounters with acupuncture could not shed much light on the fascinating puzzles about acupuncture anesthesia, which has impressed many foreign visitors as being something quite real, meriting further study, and perhaps adoption as a technique.

A strong distinction must be drawn between acupuncture for usual illnesses, and acupuncture to reduce or abolish pain during surgery.

Acupuncture to treat arthritis, stomach ulcers or a host of other disorders has been practiced here for 5,000 years.

While many Chinese and some other populations swear by it, numerous Western observers are skeptical. They class it with over-the-counter medicines that may help relieve symptoms, or which may have no real value at all. Psychological suggestion and the expectation of benefit may be influential.

But to see men and women fully conscious and showing little or no signs of discomfort during major surgery is something different.

Dr. Michael E. DeBakey, the renowned Houston, Texas, heart surgeon, watched the removal of the tuberculosis-infected left lung of a 25-year-old male farm worker, Tsai Jui-tien, at the TB hospital of the Peking Tuberculosis Research Institute. Tsai's only anesthetic was one needle stuck in his left arm between elbow and wrist.

Miss Liu Shu-chi tirelessly twirled the needle during most of the two-hour operation. She had learned acupuncture anesthesia some few years ago during a training period of about five months.

Of this anesthesia, Dr. DeBakey said, "It is fascinating. But I question its long-term significance." He likened it partly to a brief past minor vogue of major surgery, as in the chest, under local anesthetics such as novocaine.

Local anesthesia gave the surgeon more control over the operation, he said, and the patient could talk, cooperate, and walk away without the complications that can follow general, put-to-sleep anesthesia.

"But that was not so simple as it seemed then," Dr. DeBakey added. "Now we have well-trained anesthesiologists relieving the surgeon of any worry in case something starts to go wrong with vital signs. And a percentage of patients don't respond well to local anesthetics, or there isn't sufficient relaxation of muscles."

Before he could witness other aspects of acupuncture anesthesia, Dr. DeBakey's schedule took him home about midway through a 22-day visit of 11 physicians, nurses, medical teachers and writers to five Chinese cities—Peking, Nanking, Shanghai, Hangchow and Canton. He headed the delegation invited as guests of the China Medical Association under auspices of the China-America Relations Society in New York City.

The Chinese had solicited suggestions about what we would like to see, and in main these were fitted into the schedule.

Acupuncture anesthesia kept popping up. We were informed that some half million operations had been performed this way in the last eight to ten years.

Dr. Ho Mou, the gray-goated director of the Peking TB Research Institute, said some patients refuse acupuncture, others are "assessed as not temperamentally suited," or turned down for medical reasons. Some respond poorly. Tsai calmly ate pieces of a tangerine, and smiled through the whole affair.

So did Mrs. Chao Wen-yu, 30, a nurse, who had her second child delivered in a Caesarean operation at Peking Maternity Hospital.

Her legs twitched continuously from electrical stimulation of two acupuncture needles in each leg, vibrating at 180 to 200 times a minute. Two other needles in her abdomen, just above the incision line, were stimulated up to 2,000 times a minute at the beginning and sewing-up end of the operation.

Mrs. Chao munched on pieces of apple, smiled up at visitors watching from a glass-domed amphitheater, and beamed at the sight of a daughter being given an oil bath minutes after delivery.

Acupuncture works well for brain surgery, said officials of the Hua Shan teaching hospital of the First Shanghai Medical School. One man had the right front lobe of his brain removed, conscious and answering questions all the while, with one needle in his face below the cheek bone, and three in the top side of his right foot.

The effect of acupuncture can vary by sites chosen, said Dr. Chang Hsiang-tung of the Shanghai Institute of Physiology, where research is going on into the mechanisms of acupuncture anesthesia.

The patient's mental condition may influence results. "Results are poorer" if patients are anxious about it, and if there has not been adequate preparation of knowledge and explanation, which can take three to four days. Morphine may be given to reduce anxiety, but in amounts so small they lack a direct pain-relieving effect.

Witnesses At Weekend Session

Wilbur R. Nichols, presiding overseer of the Greenville congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses, said this morning that the county's Jehovah's Witnesses returned home Sunday evening after attending a weekend convention in Fayetteville.

The event held at the Cumberland County Memorial Auditorium drew 2,761 interested persons from more than 20 counties in eastern North Carolina.

A public Bible lecture was held Sunday afternoon. The subject under consideration was entitled "Decide Now For Divine Rulership."

The speaker was George Condillis, a native of Philadelphia, now traveling for Jehovah's Witnesses in the Carolinas, Georgia and Virginia.

The percentage of patients deemed suitable varies from 20 to 30 per cent, but may in time be increased, Dr. Chang said. One criterion is "what is deemed to be best for the individual patient." "We do not use it on people who don't believe in it," one

Chinese surgeon said. As for its effect being ascribed solely to psychological reasons, he said surgery under acupuncture had been performed on 300 horses, who hadn't complained.

Govm't Efforts 'Possibly Perpetuating Drug Use'

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal drug commission today said government efforts may be perpetuating drug use instead of discouraging it. The panel urged creation of a new federal antidrug agency with a limited lifespan and asked private citizens to assume the major burden of discouraging drug use.

Reporting to Congress and President Nixon on results of its two-year study, the National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse also said:

—Public notions about drug use are largely wrong.
—Private citizens rely too much on government to discourage drug use.
—America's worst drug problem is alcoholism. Heroin dependence runs second.

—Legal use of barbiturate "downers," especially by housewives, is "America's hidden drug problem."
—Marijuana is a minor problem compared with alcohol and other drugs. The commission reaffirmed its year-old recommendation to end criminal penalties for smoking marijuana.

The commission, relatively conservative in makeup, included nine members appointed by Nixon and two each by both houses of Congress. Its chairman is the former Republican governor of Pennsylvania, Raymond P. Shafer.

The commission's sharpest words were aimed at what it called a "drug-abuse industrial complex," the welter of federal bureaucracies that now spend nearly $1 billion a year on anti-drug programs.

"To justify ongoing programs, the drug bureaucracy must simultaneously demonstrate that the problem is being effectively attacked, and that it is not diminishing ... Throughout this process fundamental assumptions are not questioned, programs are not evaluated, and the problem is perpetuated from year to year."

The report recommended setting up a new federal agency that would take over virtually all antidrug law enforcement, treatment and prevention.

States were urged to set up similar agencies.

The agency would be dissolved automatically after five years, unless Congress extended it. Its functions would be re-assigned to other agencies.

The commission said that society should pay most attention to controlling the types of drug use that lead to crime or other behavior that damages society.

By this measure, it said, alcohol "is without question the most serious drug problem in this country today." It is strongly associated with violent crime, auto accidents, suicide and broken marriages.

However, it urged stricter controls on methaqualone, said cocaine use seems to be increasing and claimed doctors appear to be prescribing too many barbiturates.

The commission did not join Nixon's call for mandatory life sentences for heroin dealers. Rather, it called for better-trained police, less confusion and infighting among federal drug-law enforcers and efforts to prevent corruption of police by drug pushers.

It also said persons accused of simple heroin possession should be offered the option of treatment or counseling, either before trial or before sentencing.

The commission also urged states to set up treatment programs, which it said should be funded mainly by the federal government.

But it said neither improved law enforcement nor improved treatment can do much about the root causes of drug use.

These causes can only be attacked if government focuses on social, economic and cultural forces behind drug use and if private citizens take up most of the burden of discouraging drug use, the commission said.

Among its many detailed recommendations the commission urged a freeze on distribution of drug literature, most of which it found to be factually wrong. And it asked that educators consider a freeze on classroom drug instruction, which it said may merely stimulate youthful interest in drugs. The commission spent $1 million in its two-year study and visited 36 countries. Today's 482-page report is its second, following last year's recommendations on marijuana, which it found to be virtually harmless to the casual user and without significant links to crime or other drugs.

Campers Should Be Readied In Advance

DETROIT (UPI) — For many families who own recreational vehicles, the coming of spring means hit-the-road time is near. There are quite a few things to do before taking the vehicles on the road.

Here are some pointers for a start:

—Examine tires for excessive wear. Check inflation, wheel bearings, wheel balancing and alignment. Rotate the tires and have an expert check the brakes.

—Check the electrical system. Check the batteries and connections and all the lights. See that the vehicle is stocked with fuses, bulbs and heavy duty extension cord.

—Check the holding brackets on liquid propane gas tanks. Fill the tanks just short of full to allow room for expansion of the gas in warm weather. Examine the vents and orifices for damage and obstructions and tighten line connectors. Apply a soapy water solution around all connections; if a bubble forms, the connector is loose or faulty.

—Run one or two gallons of water into tank and pressurize it. If the plumbing system is faulty, water will be expelled. Check the faucet washers and get a supply of extras.

—Repair, if necessary, screens, doors, locks and fasteners. Check ventilators and disinfect toilet, bath, shower and sink.

—Clean the interior thoroughly. Wash the exterior and spray with silicone or liquid Teflon to facilitate later removal of insects, tree sap and road film.

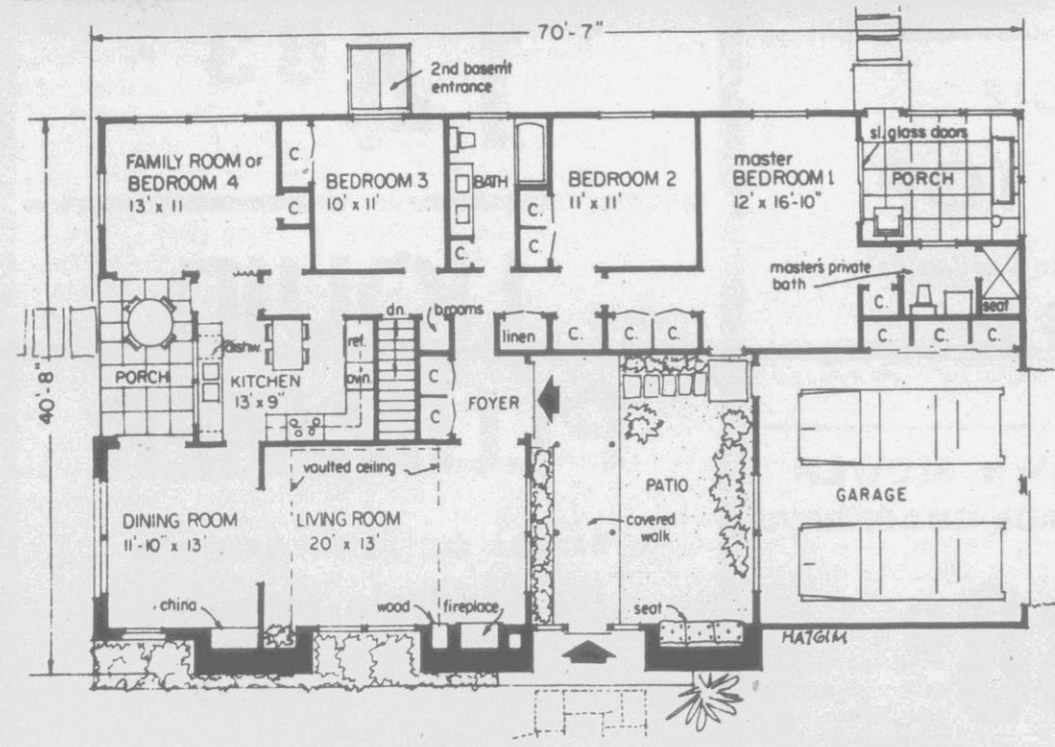

—If feasible, take a trial overnight run to discover any problems that might come up during a longer trip.

Most important of all if you own a travel trailer or camping trailer to tow, make sure the vehicle is in top shape and the hitching gear thoroughly checked and repaired if necessary.

GOOD SERVICE PAYS

MONTREAL (AP) — Taxi driver Wilbert Benoit believes everyone should enjoy the illusion of having a private chauffeur. Dressed in a private chauffeur's uniform and operating a gleaming car, he sets out each morning — providing first-class service. The customers tip well.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

THIS IS A BOLD and dramatic approach to the sleek, uncluttered contemporary house. Its three eight-foot-wide brick piers dominate the exterior. Their width and three-foot depth strongly suggest solidity. The horizontal roof line which runs the full 70-foot length of the house is interrupted dramatically between two piers by a slanted and flat-roofed minitower. It adds the touch of relief and interest required, creates a 14-foot-high vaulted ceiling in the living room and provides exceptional natural lighting. Inside the front entrance is a 20 by 17 foot open patio; a covered walk protects visitors. All bedrooms are located across the rear for privacy and quiet. A side porch is a nice quiet spot for warm weather breakfasts or snacks. Plan HA761M has 1,696 square feet. Anyone interested in learning the cost of the blueprint can write to architect Rudolph A. The 'Worry Clinic' Some Criteria For 'Success'

Luella has a fascinating problem that all young people should consider. She can't attain a 100 percent batting average but she will win far more often than she loses when she applies the yardstick below. You must plan ahead to get ahead!

By GEORGE W. CRANE Ph.D., M.D.
CASE W-558: Luella M., aged 17, is a high school senior.
"Dr. Crane," she began, "I am to write a theme on how to pick out my classmates who will be most likely to succeed in later life.

"What sort of a psychological yardstick should I employ to do this?"
"And is there a foolproof method for being 100 percent correct in such predictions?"

Success Indicators
No; we have no 100 percent foolproof diagnosis for future success.
"Never give a man up," said L. E. Lawes, "until he has failed at something he likes."
Thomas A. Edison was thus a grammar school dropout whose teacher considered him a dummy.
And Albert Einstein's parents were afraid he was subnormal in I.Q.

But here are a few criteria for making more accurate predictions:
(1) Try to pick those who focus on goals instead of personal adornment.
Most coeds spend more time at beauty parlors with manicure sets, plus cosmetic kits, than they do on music practice or touch typing!
And playboys, looking for "kicks" are not as likely to attain future success as the newspaper carriers or others who work for their own spending money.
(2) Select "finishers," meaning people who complete their jobs instead of leaving them half done.
You can indirectly detect these conscientious employees by seeing if they neatly put their tools away or clean off their desks and hand in their homework on schedule.

(3) Students with "A" and "B" marks are more likely to end in WHO'S WHO than their "C" and "D" classmates.
But sometimes a dental or medical student who drives a taxicab at night or works at other jobs to help pay his way through college, may rate only a "C" average, yet later be hiring his "A" classmates as assistants!
(4) For a keen understanding of people may offset a tactless Phi Beta Kappa's straight "A" grades.

So notice the classmates who smile, greet their associates cheerfully, and use my "Compliment Club" strategy.
(5) Give extra points to those with evidence of prolonged perseverance, such as musicians who have practiced at violin or piano for long hours, year after year.
Varsity athletes also deserve special credit here.
They have rugged stick-to-itiveness, which is often a sign of a "money player."
(6) Add some more points for Boy or Girl Scouts, since they have acquired a wide practical experience that gives them "Horse Sense."
(7) Look for proved leadership internships, so choose Sunday School teachers, Camp Counselors, Scout Patrol Leaders, Playground Directors, etc.
(8) Favor rugged individualist who don't stampee like sheep to follow every silly fad or fashion, such as use of cigarettes, marijuana, etc.
Topnotch leaders at age 50, are often somewhat paranoid, for they must be able to avoid seduction by easy life, Country Club, weekends, etc.
(9) Health and family longevity likewise are important, for you often must outlive your rivals in order to get to the top rung of success.
(10) Moral idealism rates very high, for honesty, integrity and a firm belief in the Almighty, not only insure you better health, but broaden your perspective so you look farther ahead, even in this life.

Send for my "Vocational Guidance" booklet, enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.
(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, MARCH 23, 1973

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are now able to venture into new areas and obtain valuable data, then make plans for the future which could bring you success and happiness in almost any direction you wish. The afternoon is good for planning a trip.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Know exactly what those who are important in your scheme of things expect of you and try to please them. Listening to the views of mate can be beneficial. Be more cooperative.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Discuss your affairs with associates and have a fine meeting of the minds. One will make a concession that really pleases you. Evening is fine for meeting friends and dining out.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Spend the day taking care of important duties. Try to understand fellow workers better and much can be accomplished. Speed is the keynote now. The evening should be relegated to pleasure.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make plans to entertain tonight and then make the right arrangements. Show more devotion to mate and be happier yourself. Buy a thoughtful gift that pleases loved one.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Make sure fundamental affairs are running smoothly. Buy needed items that will improve the interior of your home. Take kin out to amusements they enjoy in the early evening. Later relax at home.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Show your skill at work and impress associates. You can advance by making the right appointments. Later get in touch with persons you have not seen in a long time. Don't be too extravagant.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Study the monetary side of your life during the day so you can make plans to add to present abundance. Look to business experts and banking firms for best ideas. Attend the social tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Improve health and appearance early, and then attend the business or social affairs that bring the results you want. Avoid one who has an eye on your assets. Show that you have wisdom.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Daytime is fine for getting business data you need. You can easily find the right system to use in the future for greater success and happiness

Accept an invitation tonight.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Plan as much time as possible to be with good friends for mutual exchange of favors. You can get ahead by studying over the weekend. Keep up with news and be better informed.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Daytime is fine for furthering your career. Also, take care of your civic duties. Don't permit others to downgrade you in any way. Tonight you can enjoy the company of congenials.
PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Seek the advice of experts regarding ways to expand your interests. Then get busy making necessary plans. Evening is fine for further discussion with experts. Be wise.
IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those charming young people who early in life will have fixed ideas about which profession to follow, and will continue through in the field that is chosen. Success can come early in life. The latter part of life could be spent in philanthropic work. There can be much success in this life as well as happiness.
"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Opening lead: Ace of ♣
A substantial swing was in the offing when today's hand was dealt during an important National Team Championship. Yesterday we presented the result at one table where North and South ended up in a contract of six diamonds doubled. In an all-out effort to make his bid, declarer was unable to cope with the adverse distribution, and he ended up three tricks short, for an 800 point deficit.

East and West were pleased with the result, inasmuch as their opponents can fulfill a grand slam contract in clubs with the greatest of ease. They were in for a surprise when they compared results later with their teammates who held the North-South cards when the hand was replayed at the other table.

The bidding proceeded as depicted in the diagram, and it will be observed that neither North opened the bidding in second position—which proved to be a costly decision. If North opens with one club, the partnership can hardly fail to reach at least a game contract in the suit—if not a small slam—and thereby assure a profit on the deal.

East's two spade bid is a specialized convention employed by some partnerships to act as a mild preemptive measure against the opponents and at the same time announce possession of a good six card suit. It shows less high card strength than an opening one bid and is, of course, not forcing.

South's two trump overcall was made in an effort to compete—his hand is not suitable for a takeout double because of the shortage in hearts. West raised to three spades and North carried on to three trump, a decision open to question inasmuch as partner figures to have support for clubs and North's hand is highly unbalanced.

When West persisted to four spades, North had another opportunity to show his suit by bidding five clubs. He should not have passed the decision around to his partner and, even after South doubled, it is doubtful whether North should have let it stand.

South opened his singleton ace of hearts against the final contract, and then shifted to a small diamond in a desperate attempt to get his partner in for a heart ruff. North put up the ace of diamonds; however, he did not read South's purpose and continued with a diamond which East ruffed.

The king of spades was driven out and, when East regained the lead, he drew trump, ruffed one club in dummy and discarded the other two on West's long hearts. His losses consisted of one spade, one heart and one diamond. The doubled contract was worth 790 points and the net result on the deal was a mere 10 point swing—a virtual standoff.

More Baseball For TV-Viewers

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — One of the odd things about television here is that it tends to make you misplace seasons. For example, it was snowing here last Sunday, yet there was baseball on television.

No kidding. Two local stations were broadcasting New York Yankees and New York Mets exhibition games from the republic of Florida. The sun was shining there.

So was the ray of realization that it's time to face the baseball season again. For NBC, which has exclusive rights to major league games through 1975, the current baseball season starts on April 7 and expires in October.

This season may be disheartening for housewives who detected signs of life from their husbands when the football season — particularly ABC's Monday night football season — ended this year.

NBC says it's going to show more regular-season games than ever before — a total of 41 in addition to the All-Star, National and American League championships and the World Series games.

There's no increase in the number of Saturday daytime games. But the number of Monday night games on NBC will rise to 15, five more than were aired last year and 10 more than in 1971.

And in coming seasons, there may be even more night baseball shown on network television, according to Carl Lindemann Jr., a vice president at NBC Sports.

But won't this sharply reduce interest among evening viewers? "No, I don't think so at all," he said. "The indications are that we can get a very respectable rating with a major league network game at night.

"We see a discernible growth pattern there; whereas in the Saturday afternoon part of the (baseball) package, we seem to be stabilized," he said, referring to ratings figures.

"They aren't increasing or decreasing very much. It (Saturday baseball on NBC) seems to be just about holding its own now."

Okay, but there has been a lot written about supposedly decreasing fan interest in major league baseball, day or night. Doesn't this have any effect on the ability of NBC to attract sponsors for the games it broadcasts?

"Not at all," Lindemann said. "That may be a factor, but a much more significant factor is that there are many more dollars in the marketplace for sports broadcasting.

"There's been quite a tremendous improvement over last year and the year before.

"As far as our baseball coverage goes, right now the World Series is completely sold out; our night-time games are completely sold out; our All-Star game is sold out; our league championships are virtually sold out; and our Saturday afternoon games are in a far better sales position than they've ever been.

"So if there's some lack of interest or decreasing interest, we don't see it," he said. "The general sports economy is strong."

Parrot Family Has Variety In Makeup

CHICAGO (UPI) — The parrot, a name applied to a large group of gaudy, raucous birds, has begun the 23rd century of known association with his unfeathered friend—man.

The first parrots known to civilization, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica, were apparently those brought alive to Aristotle about 328 B.C. by his pupil, Alexander the Great.

They were among the more than 300 species of the order Psittaciformes, which include parakeets, lovebirds, macaws, lorics, cockatoos, Amazons and African grays. A group, parrots have generally been popular in many lands because of an astonishing ability to imitate sounds, including human speech.

The most familiar are the Amazons, frequently caricatured as screeching obscenities from a sailor's shoulder. These birds range through tropical Latin America.

But the African grays are known as the best talkers, although it may be a matter of opinion as to whether a parrot knows what he's talking about. Surpassing all others in mimetic and tonal qualities, the African grays were great favorites of the Romans, both for talking and eating.

How to dream with your eyes wide open.

Everybody likes to dream. But the chances of seeing a dream become reality are pretty slim. Unless you're crafty enough to figure out a smart way to save. One that's practical and painless. One that won't eat up your paycheck but will still give you a chance to salt something away.
If you're smart, you'll decide on U.S. Savings Bonds. They're one of the easiest ways to save. Just sign up for the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. Then an amount you specify will be automatically set aside from your paycheck and used to buy Bonds.
So, if you're not satisfied with just dreaming, buy U.S. Savings Bonds. Then you'll find out there's no such thing as an impossible dream.

Take stock in America.
Now Bonds mature in less than six years.

Article Says 'Fast Foods' Big Business

There is no room for "mom and pop" in the fast-food franchising business, says a prominent North Carolina businessman.

"The package in terms of land, building and equipment has become too expensive," said J. Leonard Rawls, who heads up Hardee's Food Systems in Rocky Mount. "In 1961, you could open a Hardee's for $45,000. Today it takes a quarter of a million."

Rawls is quoted in an article published in the current issue of The New East magazine which hits the newsstands Monday, March 26th.

Written by Henry Thorpe of Rocky Mount, the article explores the phenomenon of the fast-food business ranging from chicken to pizzas to burgers, and the cutthroat elements involved since 1969, when according to Thorpe "The Great Shakeout" occurred.

Money got tight, sales sagged, and "the doctor-turned-businessman who—clutching his golden franchise—had opened a dozen or more restaurants suddenly found himself with no operating capital, no management know-how, and no customers," Thorpe writes. "And the promised expertise which as a franchisee he had a right to expect, had gone defunct."

Today, fast-food franchising is big corporate business. Three of Hardee's franchisees are themselves corporations owning more than 40 restaurants apiece, says Thorpe. "No moms and pops here," he writes.

Other articles in the current March-April issue of The New East include the building of floating nuclear power plants to be stationed in the Atlantic Ocean; a current travel article on Portsmouth Village, the ghost town of the Outer Banks, and how to get there; and the art of wood-carving.

Served But 10 Days Of His One Year Sentence

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—

Records of the North Carolina Board of Paroles indicate that Mortimer R. Eisen, 53, convicted on gambling charges from an investigation of the Beachcomber Lounge in Kitty Hawk, served only ten days of his one-year sentence.

Eisen was the manager of the lounge and operated a blackjack game there. A State Alcoholic Beverage Control agent had said Tuesday that he was told to ignore the gambling he found going on there.

Eisen was charged and sentenced as a result of a State Bureau of Investigation undercover operation. He was given two concurrent one year sentences that began on Christmas, 1972.

Ten days later, he was given a "temporary" parole to Virginia, signed by former Parole Board chairman Robert Weinstein and current Board member John Baker. Eisen now lives in Norfolk. His parole is due to become permanent on March 25.

Parole Board records show that Weinstein ordered an investigation "looking toward" Eisen's parole on December 5, the day after an appeals court upheld his conviction and ten days before he started serving his sentence.

Normally, a North Carolina prisoner must serve one-fourth of his sentence before being eligible for parole.

The investigation was completed and the paperwork with Virginia done within ten days of its start. Baker said Wednesday that such a procedure normally takes 90 days.

Baker said Weinstein handled all the correspondence, and said he acquiesced because Virginia authorities were willing to take Eisen and because he was "53 (years old) and his family is dependent on him for support."

Weinstein, asked to comment Wednesday, said "I don't recall the Eisen case." Weinstein resigned as Parole Board chairman on March 1 after it was revealed that he and Baker had paroled a man convicted of 48 felonies after he served four years in prison.

The Eisen case came to light Tuesday, when ABC agent M.W. Coates said he had been told to "leave gambling alone" at the Beachcomber by former ABC Board chairman Charles Cohoon, despite ABC rules against gambling.

Coates said he reported the gambling to the SBI and the Dare County Sheriff, who made the investigation that resulted in Eisen's conviction and parole.

Learning Process Said Through Middle Years

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP)

A University of Santa Clara psychologist says a study started 42 years ago indicates that the learning process which contributes to a person's intelligence quotient continues at least through middle age.

Dr. John Kangas, 29, director of the Santa Clara counseling center, said the mean intelligence quotient of 48 persons went up about 20 points between the first time they were tested, at preschool ages, and tests four years ago.

"A lot of people feel as they grow older that they're going downhill. This study raises the hope that you can teach an old dog new tricks," Kangas said in an interview Wednesday.

He said the 48 persons in the study were from a group of 212 tested as preschoolers in the San Francisco Bay area in 1931. Given the Stanford-Binet IQ test, the group had a mean IQ of 110.7.

Dr. Katherine Bradway, a San Francisco psychologist, looked up as many of the original group as possible and tested them in 1941 and again in 1956. The scores were 113.3 and 124.1, respectively.

Kangas said he located the group again and tested them in 1968 and 1969. At the time of the latter test, the mean IQ had risen to 130.1, he said.

Kangas, whose findings were published in the Journal of Developmental Psychology, said the researchers who developed the Stanford-Binet test believed IQ did not increase after a person turned 16 or 18. In the 1940s, he said, the Weschler Adult Intelligence scale assumed IQ rose until a person turned 25, leveled and then declined after the age of 35.

"My study provides new hope for older people," Kangas said. "I think a lot of businesses tend to discriminate against older people on the basis that they are not able to learn new things.

"Maybe employers should take a second look and change their attitude toward hiring older people."

Kangas said his testing indicated that people in a stimulating environment are likely to increase their intelligence more rapidly than others.

For example, women with a higher preadult IQ rating gained less in later years, he said. He attributed this to the possibility that these women found being a housewife less stimulating than women with lower preadult testing scores.

Kangas said the opposite was observed among men. Those with higher preadult IQs gained more in later years, most likely because they entered more stimulating occupations than men with lower preadult scores, he said.

$30,000 Child Bride Is Being Returned

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) —

A 12-year-old girl who police said was sold for $30,000 to be a child bride was to be returned to Illinois today.

So was the 37-year-old man with whom she was arrested at a motel in Asheville Tuesday morning. Asheville police said the man, Harold Miller, and the girl, Rita Jackie Flynn, were en route to South Carolina to be married. However, the minimum age for marriage in South Carolina is 14, even with parent's consent.

Miller, a resident of Oak Park, a Chicago suburb, was described as a graduate art student and teacher aide at the Circle campus of the University of Illinois in Chicago. He is charged in Illinois with conspiracy to participate in child abandonment.

The girl's parents, Fred Michael Flynn, 43, and his wife, Rita, 33, of Bolingbrook, another Chicago suburb, were released in $10,000 bond in Illinois Tuesday, after being charged with conspiracy and child abandonment.

Ronald Johnson, police chief of Bolingbrook, said they had spent all but $230 of the $30,000 they allegedly received from Miller last week. Johnson said

Flynn is a metals salesman and part-time taxi driver.
