Home Ownership Soon Beyond Most

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The price for a home of your own is accelerating at a rate which threatens to leave much of middle-class America paying rent permanently.

Millions of families living on below-average incomes already cannot afford houses. New houses under $12,500 virtually disappeared for national Census figures in 1970 and under-$15,000 houses will join them soon. The $20,000-and-under houses, which accounted for nearly half of new houses a decade ago, now represent less than 10 per cent.

The causes for surging prices vary—easier money, higher labor costs, dwindling available land, bans on sewer hookups, spurring lumber costs and strong demands for bigger and better houses.

But the effect is illustrated by remembering Levittown, with its boxy, identical houses rolling like army columns over the hills and gullies of Pennsylvania and Long Island.

They absorbed their share of snide comments, but they cost $6,900 apiece—$100 down, $70 a month—and provided sanctuary for a housing-starved population coming out of World War II.

Levittown houses sell for $35,000 now.

The construction workers who built Levittown once moved right in themselves, but despite hefty raises, they now can't afford the houses they work on.

And the workers aren't the only ones.

"It's absolutely insulting to say to a man making $15,000 a year, 'you can't buy our least expensive house,'" said Peter Taylor, head of operations for Levitt and Sons' single-family-home division.

You must earn $18,000 a year now to qualify for a new Levitt house. "It's not low-income housing. It is not even middle-income housing," said Taylor. Our nation "is making decent housing something that's available only to an affluent few."

A home-seeker on a moderate income who wants to save his money a little longer can forget it, said Taylor. Houses are going up $3,000 a year. "If you can't afford it today, you can't afford it tomorrow."

If Levitt, one of the nation's pioneers in economical, mass-produced, prefabricated housing, is having trouble keeping housing costs down, consider what's happening across the country.

In Salt Lake City a family bought a house for $32,000 two years ago, made $2,000 in improvements and sold the house recently for $41,500.

In Milwaukee a builder is getting $49,900 for a four-bedroom house which brought $34,900 in 1970.

In Chicago, a family bought a suburban house for $34,000 in 1970 and sold it for $41,000 in 1971. Six months later the house sold again, this time for $44,000. In San Diego a couple paid $39,500 for their three-bedroom house 2½ years ago and sold it recently for $63,500.

Go to a realtor in Dallas and he'll tell you you can't buy into a "desirable" neighborhood for less than $30,000. If you want that desirable neighborhood in Baltimore, earn $12,000 a year. Don't try in Oklahoma City if you're earning less than $15,000 a year.

Away from the big cities are cheaper houses, but prices are rising fast everywhere. The three-bedroom house which sold for $22,850 in Boise, Idaho, in 1971 is $27,400 now.

Of 30 cities checked in an Associated Press survey, all reported rapidly rising prices for single-family homes, usually at a rate of at least 10 per cent.

The average price of a new house has jumped from $16,825 to $24,844 in seven years, according to the National Association of Home Builders. It took 15 years prior to 1965 for prices to increase that much.

In mid-1970 the average terms for buying a $30,000 house were $11,600 down and $231 a month for 25 years. Now, with easier down-payment requirements due to a federal ruling and relatively lower interest rates, the terms are $8,400 down and $228 a month for 28 years.

One result is that savings and loans closed $21.4 billion in mortgages in 1970 and $51.4

White House Moving To Trim Lumber Prices

By GREGG HERRINGTON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration announced today it is moving to check skyrocketing housing costs by increasing the nation's lumber supply and seeking voluntary agreement by the Japanese to hold down their purchase of U.S. timber.

Cost of Living Council Director John T. Dunlop, who announced the plan before a Senate subcommittee that is studying the lumber price problem, said the government also is acting to increase the availability of railroad freight cars, and he hinted at possible re-imposition of price controls on the forest products industry.

Dunlop, in his statement for a Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs subcommittee, did not take a direct position on the controversial bill by Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., to ban all log exports from the United States by Jan. 1, 1977. But Dunlop's announcement that the administration will seek voluntary restraints on Japanese log purchases apparently signaled that the administration opposes a legal ban.

Pressure has increased in recent weeks from Congress and nongovernment lumber and housing industry groups for the government to at least impose an export ban on logs cut from federal lands.

Dunlop said extra trees will be made available from national forests for commercial harvests this year.

He said the administration will sell 11.8 billion board feet of timber by the end of this calendar year, up from the 10 billion board feet originally planned.

It is hoped, Dunlop said in his statement, that the increased supply will work to drive down the cost of lumber, and, consequently, housing.

Dunlop said reimposition of wage and price controls "could be used to limit mark-ups on a uniformly equitable basis" throughout the logging, lumber and homebuilding industries.

Hanoi Announces Accord To Release Final POWs

SAIGON, (AP) — North Vietnam has announced an agreement to release the final 139 American prisoners held in Vietnam in exchange for withdrawal of the remaining American military forces beginning Tuesday and ending Thursday.

Bui Tin, chief spokesman for the North Vietnamese delegation in Saigon, said today the first group of 32 American prisoners captured in South Vietnam and contained on the Viet Cong list, will be turned over to U.S. authorities Tuesday at Hanoi's Gia Lam airport.

The United States suspended withdrawal of American troops last week until North Vietnam assumed responsibility for the release of the nine prisoners captured in Laos by furnishing the date and place they will be released. U.S. sources say some of the American POWs released earlier reported seeing the nine in Hanoi.

North Vietnam on Sunday provided a list of the last 107 prisoners it holds and said they would be released at Hanoi's Gia Lam airport on Tuesday and Wednesday if the troop withdrawal is resumed. The Viet Cong handed over a list of the last 32 Americans it is to free and said they could be delivered in Hanoi today. But the North Vietnamese said the men captured in Laos were not their responsibility.

The Florida White House announced on Sunday that "the President has ordered that U.S. forces will remain in Vietnam until all U.S. prisoners of war are released."

Maj. Gen. Gilbert H. Woodward, the senior U.S. member of the Joint Military Commission, called attention at the meeting today to this and said: "There will be no further withdrawals of U.S. forces until U.S. and Free World personnel are returned to us." The mention of "Free World personnel" apparently was a reference to a Canadian captured in Laos.

This presumably meant that no American troops would be withdrawn until all the POWs were released. But later a U.S. spokesman said Woodward meant there would be no further withdrawals until arrangements for release of all the prisoners were completed, including the receipt by the United States of the list of Americans captured in Laos and the date and place of their release.

A North Vietnamese spokesman, Bui Tin, said the North Vietnamese delegation told Woodward the Hanoi government was ready to help in "the release of U.S. prisoners held by the Communist Pathet Lao" by acting "as a middle man." But he said: "This matter concerning the release of prisoners from Laos should not violate the sovereignty of the Laotian government."

Senate Investigators Listen

McCord Telling His Story

WASHINGTON (AP) — Watergate defendant James W. McCord Jr., who says the public hasn't been told all about the bugging of Democratic national headquarters, has begun telling his story to Senate investigators.

Samuel Dash, chief counsel of the special Senate Watergate investigating committee, told a news conference Sunday that McCord had given him the names of others involved in the burglary and wiretapping and is to supply still more names later.

Dash declined to say if any of those named by McCord were "higher up" than the seven who pleaded guilty or were convicted at the trial here last January before U.S. Dist. Court

Judge John J. Sirica.

The Los Angeles Times said it learned that McCord told Dash John W. Dean III, counsel to the President, and Jeb Stuart Magruder, a former presidential aide and campaign official, had prior knowledge of the burglary.

Magruder denied knowing about the Watergate operation in advance. And in Key Biscayne, Fla., White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said of the Times story: "Mr. Dean had absolutely no prior knowledge or any awareness whatsoever of the Watergate incident. The story is flatly incorrect."

Sirica disclosed last Friday, when he was to impose sentences, that McCord had sent him a letter saying not only that others were involved but that perjury had been committed during the trial and that political pressures had been applied to the defendants to plead guilty and remain silent. Sirica urged McCord and the other six defendants to cooperate with Senate investigators.

McCord, an ex-FBI and -CIA agent who was security director for the Committee for the Re-election of the President at the time of the break-in, met in the office of one of his lawyers with Dash Friday afternoon and again Saturday afternoon.

No details of what McCord said were disclosed, but Dash said McCord is willing to testify fully and under oath at committee hearings to be held as soon as possible.

Just when that will be is uncertain. Dash said that before hearings are held the committee will have to check out McCord's statements and leads he supplied "to make certain we have the complete story."

A committee meeting has been called for later today, but its purpose primarily is to take up the protest of some members against being denied access to FBI files in the Watergate case.

Under an agreement reached with Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst, only Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., Vice Chairman Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., and the committee's chief counsel and minority counsel will be permitted access to the FBI files.

Dash said McCord got in touch with him last Friday, shortly after the court proceedings, and said he wanted to meet with him in response to Judge Sirica's urging that he cooperate fully with the Senate committee.

McCord could receive a maximum sentence of 40 years and a fine of $50,000. But the judge told him and others whom he delayed sentencing that he would take into account whether they decided to speak freely with the Senate committee and a federal grand jury convening here today.

Dash said his interviews with McCord were tape-recorded at McCord's request. He said McCord wanted a record made so that Sirica would know the extent of his cooperation.

Wiretap Review

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today agreed without comment to review a lower court decision tossing out evidence gathered from dozens of government wiretaps affecting more than 50 criminal prosecutions.

The U.S. Circuit Court in Richmond, Va., ruled last October that wiretap applications that were not signed by the attorney general or assistant attorney general were illegal.

It barred the government from using evidence obtained by wiretapping in a narcotics trial in Baltimore.

The case centers around the 1968 Crime Control Act and a provision legalizing wiretapping authorized by the attorney general and approved by a federal judge.

The question before the court is whether applications signed by Sol Lindenbaum, executive assistant to former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, are valid.

N.C. Budget Report Due

RALEIGH (AP) — Five subcommittees of the General Assembly's Joint Appropriations Committee are expected to report this week the results of two months deliberations on the state's proposed $5.3 billion biennial budget.

This is scheduled to come at a meeting of the appropriations committee Wednesday morning.

The full committee is expected to turn the reports over to another subcommittee which will put the finishing touches on the budget proposals.

Sen. Ralph Scott, D-Alamance, and Rep. Carl Stewart, D-Gaston, are expected to name still another joint subcommittee to study a number of separate appropriations measures.

Other items on the legislative agenda for this week include a public hearing on bills by Sen. William W. Staton, D-Lee, and Rep. Norwood Bryan, D-Cumberland to phase out the property tax on manufacturers' inventories over a five-year period. The manufacturers would be allowed to credit a portion of their inventory tax payments against their state income taxes. This would start at 20 per cent and increase 20 per cent a year for five years.

The House is expected to debate Tuesday a bill designed to crack down on drunk drivers. It would call for a six-month driver license suspension for any person who refused to take a breathalyzer test when asked to do so by an officer. The bill already has been approved by the Senate.

The House has on its calendar for Tuesday also a bill calling for location of a state are museum in the state government center in downtown Raleigh. The museum building committee has approved a site west of Raleigh.

The House State Government Committee voted to give the bill an unfavorable report. However, it was brought to the House floor by a minority report.

The Senate Committee on Natural and Economic Resources is expected to consider Wednesday a House-passed bill which would permit citizens of the state to sue state environmental agencies to see that they enforce environmental quality standards.

At another meeting Wednesday, the Senate Agriculture Committee plans to resume a hearing on a bill which would make it illegal to disclose to competitors milk prices filed with the North Carolina Milk Commission.

Six Carloads Of Supplies For Wounded Knee

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (AP) — Militant Indians occupying Wounded Knee have obtained a temporary court order permitting six carloads of supplies to pass into the village daily through federal roadblocks.

Also on Sunday, Russell Means, an Indian leader in the Pine Ridge Reservation village, said that a possible breakthrough in the 27-day-old confrontation with the federal government might be expected today.

Means, a leader of the American Indian Movement (AIM), said he could not elaborate. But he called it a major development and said it should be a positive one.

In nearby Pine Ridge, Interior Department spokesman James Harpster announced that U.S. District Court Judge Andrew Bogue had issued the temporary order that allows AIM attorneys to take the carloads of food, medical supplies and cooking fuel into Wounded Knee. The order is effective until noon Saturday.

AIM's chief legal counsel, Ramon Roubideaux of Rapid City, indicated that the restraining order was only one of several the lawyers would seek to prevent the government from restricting movement to and from Wounded Knee.

Indians in the village say they are holding out until the government reaffirms its 1868 treaty with the Sioux people.

Full Agenda For Planning-Zoning Meet

An unusually heavy schedule faces the Joint City-Council Planning and Zoning Commission and the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission at scheduled March meetings at 8:00 p.m. Wednesday in City Hall.

Two old items of business, both rezoning, are on the joint agenda. The first deals with tracts numbers 3 and 4 of North River Estates, which the City Council suggests the commission consider for R-9 instead of R-6 zoning. The second rezoning request is also a request by City Council to reconsider a rezoning request on tract number 2 of the J. Leo Hawkins Subdivision. The council is suggesting R-9 instead of R-6.

Under new business, five items listed are all rezoning requests. These are: Staton Acres Subdivision, adjacent to Oakgrove Estates, from unoffensive industry to R-9 residential; a portion of Weimer and Jones property in the northwest quadrant of the intersection of Greenville

Boulevard N.C. and State Road 1523, from RA-20 to highway commercial; Pinegrove Subdivision opposite Pinewood Forest Subdivision, from RA-20 to R-6; Knox Subdivision adjacent to Tuckahoe Subdivision, from RA-20 to R-6; and Red Banks Subdivision from RA-20 to R-15.

For the agenda of the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission, which will meet immediately following the joint meeting, eight items are listed for the agenda. The single old business item is revisions to the zoning checklist.

Under new business, two items are requests for rezoning. These are a request to rezone from R-15 to highway commercial the old fire tower property located on Greenville Boulevard; and to rezone from R-6 to office and institutional the Dr. James M. Williamson property at the southeast intersection of Red Banks Road and N. C. highway 43.

Three preliminary plats are listed: Pinegrove Subdivision opposite Pinewood Forest Subdivision; Knox Subdivision located behind and adjacent to Tuckahoe Subdivision; and Red Banks Subdivision, located on State Road 1704.

The remaining two items are: a final plat for Oakmont Professional Plaza, Section 1, on the west side of N. C. 43 opposite Carriage House Apartments; and revision of a final plat, Section V. of Stratford Subdivision.

Thieu's Foe Is Set Free

SAIGON (AP) — Truong Dinh Dzu, imprisoned by the Saigon government after he ran second to President Nguyen Van Thieu in the 1967 presidential election, was freed today after serving nearly five years.

Dzu was one of the chief political prisoners held by the South Vietnamese government.

Dzu's daughter said the 56-year-old lawyer was feeling tired and sick. She said because of a heart condition he did not want to talk to newsmen.

Dzu's release was viewed as an attempt by Thieu to improve his image prior to his visit to the United States next week to meet with President Nixon and leaders of the U.S. Congress.

Over the years, Thieu has come under harsh criticism from some members of the U.S. Congress for jailing political opponents, and Dzu has been one of those most frequently mentioned.

During his 1967 presidential race, Dzu advocated negotiations with the Viet Cong to set up some sort of a coalition government. Running as a peace candidate with a white dove for his symbol, Dzu polled 18 per cent of the votes.

In early 1968, he was arrested on a bad check charge and sentenced to a brief prison term and fine.

About 95 per cent of California's energy needs are now provided by oil and gas.

Uganda Set For Invasion

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — President Idi Amin of Uganda has ordered his 2nd Infantry Brigade to move up to the Tanzanian border "at once" to fight off another invasion, Radio Uganda has reported.

A senior Tanzanian spokesman in Dar es Salaam said Amin's claim Sunday night that an invasion force was preparing to strike were "absolute nonsense."

Tanzania's defense minister, Edward Sokoine, said the border was calm Sunday. He dismissed Ugandan claims that Tanzanian convoys were moving toward the border west of Lake Victoria.

Couple Exchanges Vows Don't Tell Boss About Wife's Visit On Sunday Afternoon

Miss Phyllis Kay Boyd of Winston-Salem and Eddie Echerd of Corpus Christi, Tex. were united in marriage Sunday at 3:00 p.m. at the Black Jack Free Will Baptist Church. The Rev. Bobby Bazen officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. James C. Boyd of Greenville. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Bill R. Echerd of Taylorsville.

Arrangements of white chrysanthemums, pon pons, baby's breath and lavender snapdragons decorated the church on each side of the altar cross. Brass candelabra, greenery and similar floral arrangements were used descending the altar. The couple knelt for prayer on a profile prie-dieu. At the close of the ceremony, the couple lighted one candle together, symbolic of their union. Pews were marked with white satin ribbon and stephanotis.

Mrs. Peggy Hardee, organist, presented a program of wedding music. Jimmy Page, soloist, sang "We've Only Just Begun." Prior to the wedding party's entering the church, the minister led the congregation in prayer and Page sang "O Perfect Love" as a response.

Steve Thompson was the trumpeter. "The Wedding Prayer" was sung for the benediction.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an original gown of white chiffon, designed with a high neckline, and square yoke trimmed with Venice lace and appliques. The long bishop sleeves were highlighted with wide cuffs and lace trim. The built-in back flowed into a chapel train.

Her fingertip mantilla was edged with matching lace. The bride carried her grandmother's Bible which was centered with a semi-cascade of pom-poms, stephanotis, baby's breath, and a white orchid.

Miss Susan Stafford of Winston-Salem was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Barbara Boyd and Mrs. Gaynor Mills, cousins of the bride, and Mrs. Judy Clark, all of Greenville, Mrs. Marianne Fay of Winston-Salem and Mrs. Deanne Bell of New York City.

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday my boss' wife came down to the office while he was out of town. She went into his private office and closed the door. I heard her opening and closing drawers and rummaging around in there. Whether she found what she was looking for or not I do not know.

She rarely comes to the office, and when she does she is very cold, abrupt, and unfriendly. She has asked me some questions about the business and also some personal questions about her husband's activities, but I am very careful not to give her any information. After all, my first loyalties are to my boss, and I am not about to give his wife any ammunition.

Now I wonder if I should tell my boss that his wife was down here rummaging around in his drawers. Would you?

LOYAL EMPLOYEE

DEAR LOYAL: I wouldn't.

DEAR ABBY: I may be the first 80-year-old man to ask you for advice, but I assure you I am sincere. After 57 years of a good marriage, my dear wife passed away last year. Now I would like to meet a sensible woman to invite out or invite to my home occasionally.

My friends want to fix me up with women who are much too young for me. [A man who has daughters 53 and 55 years old does not want to go out with a woman who is 40 or even 50. In fact, I don't want a woman who is under seventy!]

I'm not interested in any woman's money as I am retired with substantial income. I am in good health, play tennis three times a week, and walk no less than five miles every day, rain or shine. I enjoy traveling and can do anything a man half my age can do, but I don't go overboard on anything.

I would like a refined woman with a good sense of humor who doesn't run to doctors every day and preferably one who can play a good game of gin rummy. So where is she?

DEAR LOOKING: Have you looked in Florida and California? There are more women there who fit your description than in all the other states combined. But I warn you, if your identity ever becomes known, you'll have to give up walking and start RUNNING, or get a bicycle.

DEAR ABBY: I read your column every day and learn a lot from it, but I have a question for you. Where did the American Indians come from? Nobody I ask seems to know, and neither do I. Do you?

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: The Encyclopedia Britannica says that the North American Indians probably migrated to the Americas from Asia. Some 15,000 to 25,000 years ago they crossed from Northeast Asia at the Bering Strait. By the time the Europeans arrived in the 15th Century, waves of these Asiatic migrants had spread over the Americas.

There is much more on this subject in that book, and in many others. Look it up, if you're curious.

Groundwork Is Laid By EPIC

Citizens of Greenville, Farmville, Winterville, Ayden and the various Electric Membership Cooperatives had best get accustomed to the word EPIC—we are going to be seeing it for a long time.

EPIC stands for Electric Power in Carolina and it is an organization of municipally owned electric systems and Electric Membership Cooperatives who are studying the feasibility of establishing their own generating facilities.

EPIC's transmission lines would stretch across the state and it would build and operate two nuclear power plants and two conventional plants, if present

Confidence In Ballot Shaken

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH—Partisan struggle for control of North Carolina's election machinery is shaking citizen confidence in the integrity of the ballot.

Already cynicism is widespread as the result of one party's long hold on the process and its resistance to reform, said Rep. Thomas Harrelson, Brunswick Republican.

"The spectacle of Democrats trying every trick to keep their hands on the conduct of elections can't help but convince many people that what they have suspected is true," said Harrelson.

How elections are run is taking shape as an overriding issue in the current legislature, with potential for explosive political consequences. Bills are in the mill for a variety of changes, affecting everything from when to vote, how to vote, and who is selected to oversee the process.

The critical point for partisan confrontation, with its likely impact on future campaigns, is the method for appointing members of the state board of elections and boards in the 100 counties.

As the game was played while Democrats elected the state's governors, the boards were named with majority representation from the governor's party.

Rules Change Proposed

With Gov. Jim Hrnshouser in office as the first Republican this century, a move is afoot in the General Assembly dominated by Democrats to change the rules. A bill sponsored by Rep. Gerald Arnold of Harnett would relate the balance in board membership to voter registration.

The maneuver would assure continued Democratic control, since the party has an overwhelming edge in registration statewide and a majority in all but five small western counties.

Gov. Holschouser went before a legislative committee last week, a rare step for chief executive, to express his personal opposition.

Arnold insisted the bill, signed by 49 other House Democrats, was not aimed as an affront to Holschouser. Whatever impression might arise from timing, he argued, it represents a valid approach to more equitable system.

Arnold asked the house elections committee to delay its vote on the bill. To rush it through, he said, might appear to be unfair.

Party Line Vote Seen

When action is taken, in committee and on the floor, it seems certain to be along strict party lines. The only hope of the Republican minority to defeat it is that enough Democrats will defect and join their ranks in opposition.

The struggle makes clear the political advantage in controlling the elections machinery. It raises the implication that control has been exercised in the past to influence the outcome of elections.

Many Republicans think exactly that, said Harrelson. He came to his seat first in the 1971 session out of a contested race. He replaced another candidate who had been certified the winner after court action.

In that instance, Harrelson recalled, witnesses testified that their names were falsified as voting when they didn't even go to the polls. In one precinct, according to court testimony, an entire page had been removed from the poll book and a forged one substituted.

GOP Distrust Process

In the aftermath of his experience, Harrelson conducted a survey of Republican county chairmen and Republican members of county boards of election in all 100 counties. He asked if, in their opinion, elections were fraudulent in their county.

Responses received from 64 per cent of the counties, he said, showed that 16 per cent answered "Yes" and another 25 per cent said "In some cases."

In other words, he said, "an appalling 41 per cent of Republican county officials distrust the election process to some extent."

Thirty per cent said they felt fraud was serious enough to affect the outcome of elections. Harrelson reported, another indication of a low level of confidence in the election process.

The Republican approach to electoral reform is reflected in a quartet of bills introduced by Rep. Harrelson. The key one would require each voter to sign the poll book.

The requirement would take little time and demand no additional equipment or expense, Harrel said. "Yet this simple act—because of the subsequent availability of handwriting comparisons—will do more to restrain irregularities than perhaps any other thing," he explained.

Costs of the new generating system are staggering—estimated at $3.25 billion; however the potential savings to electrical customers are enticing. EPIC consultants estimate now that an average annual savings of $150 million could be realized. Seventy-three percent of the savings would be due to the non-profit aspect of the operation and 27 percent would be due to the fact that it is anticipated the bonds to be issued would be tax exempt.

The huge amounts of money needed to finance the system would come from the sale of bonds. These would be paid off from EPIC's revenues in selling power to the participating municipalities and Electric Membership Cooperatives. No general obligation bonds would be required of the municipalities; however their contracts with EPIC would require them to set electric rates high enough to make their payments to EPIC.

The municipalities and cooperatives would continue to operate as they do now; that is, they would purchase their power on a wholesale basis from EPIC for retail distribution on their own systems. The difference is that now the municipalities and cooperatives purchase their power from private companies.

At a district meeting of EPIC last week, representatives were told that test cases have been brought in the courts to decide legal questions and once these are settled it is anticipated that the bonds will be salable.

The participating municipalities and cooperatives will have to make the decision within the next three years as to whether to proceed with this tremendous undertaking. Development of the cooperative program is quite complicated, but if it is successful it can mean quite a savings for the various systems at a time of rapidly rising electric rates.

Anti-Terrorist Hopes Dwindle

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Frustration within the Nixon administration in trying to stamp out global terrorism against U. S. diplomats was deepened when Jordan's King Hussein commuted the sentence of 17 Palestinian terrorists two weeks ago.

Hussein is the intrepid leader of Arab moderation who conducted a bloody war to destroy the Palestinian guerrilla movement in his country. If he now refuses to carry out the death sentence, other Arab leaders will do no more.

Thus, the hope within the White House to put a crimp in the dangerous escalation of international terror by merciless example once again has failed. That example would have been sharply made if Hussein had insisted on the no-mercy policy being quietly preached by the Nixon administration to its Arab friends.

Among those rescued from the sentence of death in Jordan was a top leader of Al Fatah, the Palestinian nationalist movement, named Abu Daoud—a principal factor in the Black September murder of two U. S. diplomats and a Belgian in the Saudi Arabian embassy at Khartoum March 2. The Khartoum terrorists demanded that Daoud be released from jail in Amman, Jordan.

Worried American diplomats, to the contrary, were privately hoping that Hussein would respond to the Khartoum terrorists by threatening to execute Daoud and his 16 co-conspirators immediately if any of the diplomats held hostage in Khartoum were harmed.

Caught between these conflicting pressures, the Jordanian government decided to do nothing. Then, two weeks after the murder of the three Western diplomats, Hussein announced his decision to commute the death sentence of Daoud and his whole gang. That decision almost certainly rules out any chance Sudan will now actually carry out the death penalty against the Khartoum terrorists, no matter what sentence is finally imposed.

Thus, once again the hope within the Nixon administration that international terrorism can be stymied by example comes to naught, a grim postscript to a chilling statistical record. In the past five years, 10 U.S. diplomats have been brutally murdered, kidnap attempts have been made against 21, of which 14 were successfully carried out, 12 have been wounded and three have been intended victims of knife attacks.

In addition to being one of those three knife-attack targets, Secretary of State William P. Rogers was also target of a Black September plot during his tour last year of the Arab sheikhdoms. That plot was discovered and aborted.

The deadly hand of international violence being conducted by Black September—and other outlawed political extremists in many countries having nothing to do with the Middle East—threatened to strike again one day last week in the Black September murder of two U. S. diplomats and a Belgian in the Saudi Arabian embassy at Khartoum March 2. The Khartoum terrorists demanded that Daoud be released from jail in Amman, Jordan.

A high State Department diplomat arriving there for a weekend visit was stunned when two American police officers, each carrying a submachine gun, met him at the airplane and refused to leave his side for two days. The reason: a trip to the FBI that terrorists might be stalking him.

But while security officers can make a major effort to protect high-level diplomats and their families, nothing approaching complete protection is in sight—even for a diplomat spending a quiet weekend with his family.

To the contrary, security experts now believe that as principal U. S. diplomats in major embassies get heavier protection, terrorists will strike in more remote capitals, believing them

TIDES

On the seashore when the tide changes everything begins to move. The waters rise or ebb inexorably, beyond any human power to change their direction. So it is with the tides of life. There is an evil tide called hatred, and when it runs at flood we move rapidly toward destruction. There is also a tide called love, and when it begins to move as gently as the incoming tide of the sea, it fills up the secret places of the heart and changes the whole direction of life.

But best of all, there is a tide called salvation. It is a pure river of the water of life, bright as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God. When that tide begins to move, everything in life begins to move with it. The most secular pursuits in life become sacred when they are caught up in that tide. Salvation is a gracious stream which takes all of life's good and common things and points them toward a glorious end.

WASHINGTON — David Eisenhower has just revealed that when he gets out of the U.S. Navy he does not want to study law. He said he might want to pursue a career as a newspaperman and do investigative reporting.

I don't know how David's father-in-law, President Nixon, greeted this news, but it still is no crime to imagine what happened.

Other Editors Say Why Not Us

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

There seems to be some confusion about current proposed business inventory legislation in the General Assembly.

The confusion is natural, because actually there are two inventory bills. The manufacturers inventory bill (Senate Bill 201) is for the manufacturer only. The retailers inventory tax relief bill (House Bill 721) is something else, and this latter bill helps every business in the state that pays taxes on business inventories. This is particularly true of small businesses.

And one important point to remember is that this House bill would not take a cent from the city or county.

In simple terms, here is how the retailers inventory tax relief bill would work:

When a company files its state income tax next year, it would subtract from the tax 10 per cent of the amount paid the county in 1973 in inventory taxes.

This would save the average company a few dollars, and would cost the state only about $10 million.

Then in 1974 the company would deduct from its state income tax 20 per cent of the amount paid the county in ad valorem taxes on business inventories.

The following year, the figure would go to 30 per cent. By 1982 the deduction will be 100 per cent of what a company is paying the county in inventory taxes.

The state this year has a healthy surplus. It can afford to sacrifice a little to help little business people all across the state. The loss in income tax revenue would be very gradual as the state grows in the next decade.

Some 35 states and the District of Columbia either have no inventory tax or have phased it out, repealed it or reduced it in some other ways. Our bordering states of Tennessee, South Carolina and Virginia have made provisions whereby the financial burden of the inventory tax has been reduced or entirely eliminated. Why not in North Carolina?

Small Investors Are In Demand

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst.

NEW YORK (AP) — The securities industry is growing increasingly distressed about the decline in share ownership and trading activity by individual investors, whose numbers had doubled in the decade of the 1960s.

The people whose business is now being sought include small investors, the very ones that many brokers turned down in recent years because of heavy volume and the feeling that small accounts failed to pay their way.

As a result, many individual investors took their money elsewhere. For the 12-month period ended in mid-March, shareowner population declined by about 800,000, the first such drop since the mid-1940s.

The loss is being felt not only in brokers' pocketbooks but in the functioning of the markets, where activity on some days is made up largely of institutional trading. There exists a serious loss of liquidity.

A market is liquid when buy and sell orders are easily matched because there is an abundance of traders. In a liquid situation, buy and sell orders are matched without sharp price change.

Institutions, however, trade many thousands of shares at a time, and it is sometimes impossible to match buyer and sellers quickly without permitting prices to rise or drop sharply.

The evidence is seen daily in stock price listings.

James Needham, New York Stock Exchange chairman, concedes the liquidity problem. "The securities markets need the individual investor, both small and large," he said in commenting on declining share ownership.

Needham is among securities industry spokesmen who have testified, or plan to testify, before the House Ways and Means Committee, seeking legislation to make share ownership more attractive. While couching their

Unveil Secret Lives

By JOY STILLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Soap operas are all right if you're content with minor-league drama; but if you really want to know what's going on in the suburbs, a commuter bus is where it's at.

Not only does the same cast of characters appear every day, but you get a one-hour segment — uninterrupted by commercials.

Women under the hair dryer in the neighborhood beauty salon are reticent compared with the women — and men — who ride the 7:30 bus I take into Manhattan every weekday morning.

Without benefit of organ music, they go right into their dialogue, audibly reporting the details of their private lives to their seatmates. But if their favorite head-nodder or tisk-tisker hasn't managed to get a place nearby, they shout their confidences across the aisle.

Although our eyes may not be open that early in the morning, our ears unfortunately are, and when they tell all, we hear all.

Thus I have been able to follow the continuing saga of job troubles, in-laws problems, financial worries and love affairs through the humid days of summer and into the shivery days of winter, missing hardly an episode.

By the time the bus reaches my stop and I have to tune out, I have become so involved I can scarcely wait for the next installment.

Will the man in the third-row window seat get fired because the resentment he has been building up for months finally caused him to explode to his boss?

Will the blonde who still wears a beehive hairdo finally settle for the widower she met on a singles weekend in the Catskills?

Will the kids recover from the chicken pox in time for the family to go on the long-planned trip?

Will the aisle-seat financier who made a killing last week in the stock market be just as vocal about all the money he lost yesterday?

Will the son of the modishly dressed man whose ties out-dazzle the sunrise make it into one of those colleges that don't seem to appreciate his brilliance?

Will the loudest member of the back-seat coffee klatch forgive her husband for forgetting to take out the garbage last night?

Alas! I may never know how it all comes out — I missed the 7:30 this morning. But I have a feeling they'll all do a reprise tomorrow.

Hal Boyle is on vacation.

He's already spoken to Gordon Liddy, Charles Colson and Dwight Chapin, and they've told him some fantastic things about the Committee for the Re-Election of the President. David might even win a Pulitzer Prize when his story comes out."

"David, when you talked to these people, did you tell them you were working for The Washington Post?" the President asks.

"Of course not. The Post told me the very best way to get a story is not to tell your sources who you're working for. This thing is really interesting, Dad. It takes in Mexican bank accounts, ex-CIA employees, bugging equipment, FBI files. . ."

"I know what it takes in," the President says angrily. "But it also involves people in my Administration, and it could easily embarrass me."

"Don't worry, Dad," David says. "I checked into that with Ron Ziegler, and he assured me no one in the White House had anything to do with any of the committee's nefarious dealings. You have nothing to worry about."

"David," the President says, "I'm not worried about myself. I'm worried about you and also Julie. Suppose they call you in front of a grand jury and demand you reveal your sources?"

"I'll refuse—and go to jail," David says.

"Do you realize," Mr. Nixon says, "That would make me the first President in history to have a convict for a son-in-law?"

"Oh Daddy," says Julie. "You're ruining everything. David is a natural reporter and The Washington Post has greath faith in him. Don't spoil everything when we're both so happy."

"All right," the President says. "I don't know what your grandfather would say about this, but I'll give you my blessing."

Julie hugs her father, and David shakes his hand. "But," says the President, "I have one favor to ask of you."

"What's that?" David asks. "Don't tell your Uncle Spiro what you're doing. He takes these things to heart."

more vulnerable. That may explain recent terrorist attacks in such places as Thailand and the Sudan.

Moreover, while it is U. S. policy never to yield to blackmail, other countries play the game differently. Thus, the U. S. refused to pay a cent to ransom Ambassador Clinton Knox from anti-government Haitian rebels in January. But the Haitian government put up $70,000 and supplied an airplane (refused by the U. S.) to buy off the rebels.

Likewise, West Germany's policy has been to yield to terrorist demands—and hope terror won't return.

But to administration strategists, that induces more terror, not less. They believe the quickest way to cure this fatal disease is drastic escalation of the risks of attack and drastic reduction of rewards. Even if all countries agreed, the disease won't end any time soon.

Two Injured In Collision

Two persons were reported injured in one of two collisions investigated here yesterday that resulted in $2,600 property damage.

Police said heaviest damage resulted in a three-vehicle mishap about 8 p.m. on U. S. 264 about 481 feet east of the Arlington Boulevard intersection.

Drivers of the vehicles involved in the mishap were identified as Jackie Earl James of 2103 Southview Dr., Charles Jospeh Bunn Jr. of 207 S. Elm St., and Bruce Edward Serva of 1900 Charles St.

Damage was set by officers at $1,200 to the James car, $60 to the Bunn auto, $25 to the Serva vehicle, and $200 to a utility pole. James was charged with exceeding safe speed following investigation of the collision.

Elijah Brown of 1228 Davenport St. and a passenger in the car he was driving were reported injured in a 12:40 p.m. mishap at the intersection of N. C. 11 and the Belvoir Road.

Police reported the Brown car collided with an auto driven by Willie James Stancil of 507 McKinley Ave., causing an estimated $800 damage to the Brown car and $400 damage to the Stancil car.

Brown was charged with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices were higher today in what analysts described as a technical rally spurred by announcements by some banks that they would roll back the increases in the prime interest rates they had announced previously.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 1.51 to 924.22, in contrast to a slide in the Dow Jones which climaxed Friday with a five-month closing low. Advancing issues outdid decliners by more than 2 to 1 in moderately active trading.

Equity Funding was the Big Board's most-active, down 1 1/2 to 17 1/2. International Telephone was up 1/4 to 44 1/4. There was a block trade of 29,100 shares.

million last year. The new money created a demand which strained the housing market despite a 56-percent increase in housing starts over the past three years.

But increasing costs overtook the easier money. Labor costs rose an estimated 8 to 10 per cent a year. Property taxes, an important component of monthly house payments, went up 10 per cent nationwide last year. In the Boston suburbs, the taxes alone on a $31,000 house can cost over $100 a month.

Lumber costs, according to a National Association of Home Builders estimate, have added $1,200 to the price of a new home over the past six months.

The average land price for a home rose from $4,982 in 1970 to $5,507 last year, according to the builders.

Readies Measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Continuing that President Nixon's program of economic controls is impossible, House Banking Committee Chairman Wright Patman is introducing a bill to stabilize rents and freeze all prices and interest rates for 60 days.

"The bill is a recognition of the obvious: that Phase 3 isn't working and that immediate action is needed to halt the spiraling increases in prices, rents and interest rates," Patman said in a statement Sunday.

He said the bill, whose outlines were hammered out by Democratic members of the Banking Committee, would freeze prices and interest rates at March 16 levels, and give the president 60 days to develop a system of rollbacks.

After that period, said Patman, a Texas Democrat, the president would be required to impose mandatory economic controls when the inflation rate exceeded an annual rate of 3 per cent for any three months or 2 1/2 per cent over a year.

In addition, rents would be stabilized at Jan. 10 levels, subject only to specific cost increases, and the president could order even further rent rollbacks.

Under Phase 3 of Nixon's economic program, which started in January, there are no limits on rents or interest rates; no firm guidelines for price increases, and no mandatory wage-increase limits on most of the economy. However, the food, construction and health-care industries remain under mandatory controls.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., called Sunday for a six-month freeze on wages and prices in view of the large number of major labor contracts to be negotiated this year. The Senate defeated a similar proposal last week.

Christmas Will Be Waiting Him

MIAMI (AP) — Lt. Kevin Cheney was in a North Vietnamese prison camp last Dec. 25. But when he comes home, he will find that Christmas waited for him.

"All of Kevin's presents are still under the Christmas tree," said Rita Cheney, mother of the 27-year-old navigator who was shot down over North Vietnam last July.

"We all agreed last Christmas that we would buy our first artificial tree so we could keep it up until he gets home," Mrs. Cheney said Sunday night.

"I knew that this would be the one thing he'd probably really want—his own Christmas in his own living room."

"It will be Christmas for all of us, too, because his return will be the greatest gift any of us have ever received."

Cheney's name was among the 107 on the American prisoner list released by the North Vietnamese on Sunday.

Tony Awards To Theater's Best

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Broadway's rite of spring, the annual Tony awards, was capped with a selection of "A Little Night Music" as the best musical and "That Championship Season" as the best play of the 1972-73 theater year.

Top trophies for performance in melody shows went Sunday night to Glynis Johns in the winning production and to Ben Vereen of "Pippin," which ran a nip-and-tuck race with the victor for most awards. The final score: "Music," 6; "Pippin," 5.

The stellar-dramatic-acting silver medallions were taken by Julie Harris for her work in a long-departed exhibit, "The Last of Mrs. Lincoln," and to Alan Bates for his limited engagement appearance in "But-ley."

Bates, who like Miss Johns is British, broke a 26-year Tony awards tradition by being the first winner not present. He was absent because of a London commitment.

Winners were announced in 18 competitive categories on the star-studded program telecast nationally. Another tradition, running overtime, was kept intact, but by a mere six minutes this year beyond the two-hour scheduled slot.

Nominees in each category are picked by a committee representing the League of New York Theaters and voted by 439 representatives of theatrical crafts and the press.

The victory of "A Little Night Music" brought Producer Harold Prince his 11th Tony as either impresario or director, the most ever collected by one person.

Hunting Girls Who Lured Four Victims

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The British army distributed thousands of drawings today of two girls who lured four sergeants to an apartment where terrorists murdered three of them and gravely wounded the fourth.

The drawings were made from descriptions provided by the sergeant who survived the shooting and another one who at the last minute didn't accept the girls' invitation.

The two girls, called Jean and Pat, met the soldiers in a Belfast bar Friday night and invited them to a candlelight party at an apartment. Once there, one of the girls left, saying she would get another girl. But she returned with two men carrying machine guns.

The gunmen forced the unarmed soldiers to lie face down on a bed and then riddled them with bullets. The wounded soldier was left for dead but later managed to get away. Most of his jaw was shot away and a bullet was lodged in his spine.

The girl called Pat was reported to be 18 to 22 years old, about 5-foot-7, with thin features and shoulder-length hair that might have been a wig. Jean appeared to be about the same age, with dark wavy hair and a small upturned nose.

The girls and the gunmen are believed to be members of a splinter group of the Roman Catholic Irish Republican Army. The IRA itself has not claimed responsibility for the murders.

Meanwhile, Sunday night guerrillas fired rockets at an army patrol in Belleek and at a constabulary station at Rosslea.

Luck Of The Irish Ran Out As Gobblers Capture NIT

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Virginia Tech played "Follow the Leader," and he brought them to the brink of the National Invitation Tournament title.

Then Bobby Stevens pushed the Gobblers over the threshold and onto the throne with a mind-bending 92-91 overtime victory...and the luck of the Irish had run out.

"When the game is on the line," the little junior guard said as pandemonium still raged in Madison Square Garden, "I like the ball."

Craig Lieder, who had bombarded Notre Dame with 18 points in the first half of Sunday's nationally televised championship game, got only eight more in the second half. But it was the final two that gave the Gobblers a second life.

It was a 20-foot jump shot unleashed as the buzzer sounded the end of regulation time. It was a perfect shot, one which

Commissioner Receives Award

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Commissioner Walter Kennedy of the National Basketball Association became the first person from the professional end of the sport ever honored by the National Association of Basketball Coaches when they presented him the 1973 Achievement Award Sunday night at the group's annual banquet.

Kennedy received the award for "long and distinguished contributions to basketball." It was accepted by Lee Williams, executive director of the Naismith Basketball Hall of Fame, since the commissioner is still convalescing following illness.

minutes of regulation play.

But Notre Dame bounded out to a 91-87 lead with 55 seconds to go in the extra period. It seemed again that Virginia Tech's dreams were flickering out.

Twelve seconds later, though, the dream was very much alive as Stevens, fouled as he sank an off-balance one-hander from 10 feet away, completed the three-point play with a free throw.

The score was 91-90, Notre Dame had the ball—and Virginia, with 18 seconds to go, needed it desperately.

Virginia Coach Don DeVoe gestured as if to say, "Grab him!" and Charlie Thomas clutched Gary Brokaw. Two foul shots would lock it up for the Irish. But Brokaw missed the first of the one-and-one and Allan Bristow got the rebound. Virginia had the ball back and called time out with 12 seconds on the clock.

Stevens took the inbound pass and looked at Lieder—but Brokaw was swarming all over the intended target. Notre Dame had busted the play.

So Stevens improvised. He wheeled around one defender and, with nine seconds left, shot a 15-footer from the left side of the key.

The ball hit the rim and twisted out to the right side. And, as players fell all over themselves trying to get it, Stevens, at 5-foot-10 the shortest man on the court, saved it in the corner.

One second...He jumped and, from 10 feet away, flicked the ball softly toward the basket.

No seconds...The buzzer sounded...and the ball barely rippled the cords as it went through the hoop.

Madison Square Garden was bedlam!

"It was a hell of a way to lose," said Digger Phelps, the disconsolate Notre Dame coach. "It was the kind of thing where, if those last three seconds had disappeared, we would've been the winners and they would've been the losers."

"But there's no way I'm going to be ashamed of these guys. They played well and they played hard and, if a break here or there had gone the other way, it would've been different."

Memphis State Expected Depend On Run-And-Shoot

By ROBERT L. MOORE
Associated Press Sports Writer
ST. LOUIS Mo. (AP) — Memphis State probably will ignore its own intuition and try to play a run-and-shoot game against incomparable UCLA tonight for the National Collegiate Athletic Association Basketball championship.

The showdown battle for all of the marbles in college basketball begins at 9:10 p.m., EST.

It will be televised nationally by NBC.

Gene Bartow, the Memphis State coach, said he doesn't believe "anybody in the country can beat UCLA playing a run and-shoot game." Almost in the same breath, Bartow insisted his Missouri Valley Conference champion Tigers "can't completely change from what they have been doing for 29 games."

Well aware that UCLA, the most powerful dynasty in college basketball history, seeks its seventh straight national crown, Bartow said beating the Bruins is "a matter of playing a great basketball game. It possibly would help if they didn't play 100 per cent...if UCLA should be slightly down."

Memphis Coach Is Voted Honor

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Coach Gene Bartow of Memphis State University was named Coach of the Year here Sunday by the National Association of College Basketball Coaches.

Bartow, whose Tigers play UCLA here tonight for the NCAA championship, received the honor for the NCAA university division.

Bob Jones, coach at Kentucky Wesleyan, was named college division Coach of the year. His team captured the NCAA college division crown March 16 in Evansville, Ind.

Rescheduled

The track meet originally scheduled between East Carolina University and East Stroudsburg State College, Pennsylvania for Tuesday has now been rescheduled.

At 3:00 p.m. Wednesday, the teams will meet in a unofficial event at the ECU track site.

place.

Bartow, known as "Clean Gene," said he believes "in the positive thinking approach" in sending the Tigers against the jaunted Bruins. "I think we can win. We not only think it, we believe it."

John Wooden, now in his 25th year as boss of the amazing Bruins, seemed relaxed, almost regarding Memphis State as just another opponent.

Xavier U's Basketball Coach Decides To Quit

By BILL VALE
Associated Press Writer
CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Xavier University basketball Coach Dick Campbell, NAIA Coach of the Year in 1965, said today he has resigned because "I just didn't want to go on."

Campbell, 42, a 20-year veteran coach with a lifetime record of 448-175 in college competition, had Xavier's worst season in 1972-73 winning only three and losing 23 games.

Campbell insisted it was his own decision to leave after the second year of the three-year contract with the school operated by the Society of Jesus.

Campbell said he has no other job and is not sure whether he will stay in coaching or pursue a business career.

Campbell had winning records at North Greenville, Carson-Newman and at The Citadel. He was named Coach of the Year while at Carson-Newman.

"You reach a point where you decide you just don't want to go on," Campbell said. "You've got to decide what's best to do for you and for your family."

Campbell denied continued reports of animosity with the Xavier team through the season.

Dismay

GRIMACE AND BEAR IT—Golf's "Golden Bear", Jack Nicklaus, displayed this grimace after a missing putt that would have given him a victory on the 18th hole of the Greater New Orleans Open Sunday. However, a par on the hole gave him a tie with Miller Barber and Nicklaus went on to win a sudden-death playoff. (AP Wirephoto)

CONTRACT EXTENDED
INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The contract of Coach Bobby Knight of the University of Indiana was extended for five years, before the Hoosiers lost to the UCLA Bruins in the semifinals of the National Collegiate Athletic Association championships.

Jack Nicklaus won the 1972 Masters by three strokes after missing the 1971 title by two strokes.

Runner Says Took Money As 'Amateur'

By DAN BERGER
Associated Press Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lee Evans says he took money as an amateur runner and he's willing to tell the whole story of what he calls "the hypocrisy of amateur track."

The 26-year-old world record holder in the 400-meter dash has never minced his words and when he signed a contract with Mike O'Hara's International Track Association newsmen knew it wouldn't be long before he fired the first salvo.

It took only as long as Saturday night, the first pro track meet on the ITA circuit. A crowd of 12,280 saw Kip Keino beat Jim Ryun in the mile despite a miscount of the laps by officials, saw Bob Hayes return to his first love in a special 40 yard dash and Brian Oldfield uncork a fine throw in the shot put.

"I think pro track will go and I think it'll hurt the U.S. Olympic team," said the former San Jose State star who won two gold medals in the 1968 games. "We might be shallow on veterans at the Montreal Olympics. You could see how that hurt us against the Russians last week. I hope they make the Olympics open, though, because it's a big hypocrisy now. Everybody is taking money under the table. The first real money I ever made in track wasn't here with the ITA. It was in Europe when some German promoters gave me money."

Evans did more than talk, too. He came within one second of the world indoor amateur record for the 500, running 1:03.9.

Keino held a 20-yard lead over Ryun, the former Kansas flash, and barely hung on for the victory, worth $500. He was timed in 4:06 to Ryun's 4:07.1, good for $250.

Oldfield, the blythe spirit of shot putting, was credited with six fine throws, the best being 68-4¼.

Wins 3rd World Cup Skiing Title

SOUTH LAKE TAHOE, Calif. (AP) — "This is my lucky place," said Gustavo Thani of Italy after clinching his third straight World Cup skiing championship on the Heavenly Valley slopes that were also very good to American Bobby Cochran. Cochran, a member of America's first family of skiing, won his first World Cup race Saturday in the giant slalom here. One day, earlier, he placed second in the slalom.

"That's super," sister Marilyn told him after his victory the first on the international Alpine ski tour by a U.S. man since December, 1971.

Thani, 22, went into the event, the final race of the season, with just a four-point lead over David Zwilling of Austria. The Italian placed fourth behind Cochran and Zwilling was eighth. Thani ended the season with 166 points to Zwilling's 151.

Yarborough Was 'Whole Story'

BRISTOL, Tenn. (AP) — Cale Yarborough turned out to be the whole story of this year's Southeastern 500 Winston Cup Grand National stock car race at Bristol International Speedway.

On March 9, the Timmonsville, S.C., driver had gunned his Chevrolet to a track record in qualifying, hitting 107.608 miles per hour around the half-mile oval while winning the pole position.

Two days later, Yarborough led the first two laps of the actual race before rain forced its postponement for two weeks.

Sunday, the race was run to a completion, and Yarborough took up right where he had left off, leading all 500 laps and finishing two full laps ahead of Richard Petty and his Dodge.

Yarborough, averaging 88.952 m.p.h. before a turnout of 30,000 persons, took home prize money totaling $6,530. Petty won $3,865.

Bobby Allison, in a Chevrolet, was third; Dave Marcis, in a Dodge, took fourth and Benny Parsons, in a Mercury, finished fifth.

Rounding out the top 10 were Lennie Pond in a Chevrolet, Coo Coo Marlin, also in a Chevrolet; James Hylton in a Mercury; Vic Parsons in a Ford, and John Utsman in a Dodge.

Six caution flags marred the 500-lap race, but only one car went out because of a wreck.

Buddy Baker's Dodge hit the guard rail on the 225th lap and crashed into Marlin's Chevrolet. Baker's car was unable to continue, but Marlin went on to his seventh-place finish.

Elder Had Right Idea, But It Didn't Pan Out

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Lee Elder had the right idea. It just didn't turn out.

"I was playing Jack (Nicklaus)," he said. "I figured if I could stay close to him, if I could beat him, I'd be okay. Miller (Barber) and Lou (Graham) were up there close, but I was playing Jack."

And he lost. So did everyone else as Nicklaus conquered his nagging problems, came from behind on the final four holes, caught Barber at the end of regulation and won the Greater New Orleans Open with a birdie on the second sudden death playoff hole.

Eighty Face A New Start

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP)—Eighty drivers will start all over again from scratch here next Sunday in the race for $41,000 in prizes offered in the stock car doubleheader known as the Dogwood 500 Classic.

With 18,000 people looking on, rain washed out the show at Martinsville Speedway Sunday after only 84 laps of the curtain raiser, a 250-lap competition for Late Model Sportsman cars.

The second race of the double feature, a 250-lapper for Modified cars, never got started at all. Both races were reset for Sunday, April 1, with practice time available on Saturday.

Ray Hendrick of Richmond, a 14-time winner at Martinsville, held a narrow lead in his Chevrolet when the Late Model Sportsman competition was flagged to a stop on the 84th lap.

Nine other cars were on the same lap when the rains came. Hendrick had led 73 laps and Sam Ard of Asheboro, N. C., the other 11 laps before the race was halted.

Drivers will start in the same order in which they started Sunday when the races are run next Sunday afternoon — with Al Grinnan of Fredericksburg, Va., on the pole for the Late Model Sportsman event and Paul Radford of Ferrum, Va., on the pole for the Modified race.

Spring Drills At Appalachian U.

BOONE, N.C. (AP)—Some 80 varsity candidates were expected to report today as Appalachian State University of the Southern Conference opened its spring football drills.

Head coach Jim Brakefield says his main problem during spring practice will be finding a quarterback. He has three top candidates to replace the departed Steve Loflin, a two-year starter.

"We also hope to add to our depth on defense," Brakefield said. "We have some fine prospects from last year's freshman squad that we hope to get a look at."

The Mountaineers have 20 practice days scheduled through May 5, when the annual Black and Gold game will climax the spring drills.

The 33-year-old Elder led at the end of the first round, shared the top spot after two and remained there when Saturday's scheduled third round was washed out by a three-inch rain. It forced a double round of 36 holes on the 7,080-yard Lakewood Country Club course Sunday.

He needed a victory to become the first black to play on the famed Augusta National course but saw that dream die when he pumped his second shot into a lake on the 14th green in the morning round. He made double bogey six and wasn't a factor again.

"I gave it the best I could," Elder said. That's all I could do."

He finished in a tie for sixth. Nicklaus gained the playoffs with a final round 69 and tied the 41-year-old Barber at 280, eight under par. Barber had a 70, including a bogey five on the final hole where he missed the green.

Graham, tied for the lead most of the final round, went to a 73 and was third alone at 281. Next came Billy Casper and young Tom Watson, tied at 283. Casper had the best round of the cool, breezy day, a 67, and Watson closed with a final 69.

Elder's final two rounds of 75 and 70 put him at 284. Arnold Palmer wasn't a factor. He finished at 292, far back.

Farm Tips

By Dr. J. W. Pou
Agricultural Specialist
Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., N.A.

Last June Mrs. Leonard Williams stood on the front porch of her rural home and looked out over a field of thriving cucumbers.

"They're the best cucumbers we've ever had," Mrs. Williams said. "My boys say they would like to use the money to fix up this old house."

The Williams family according to Tom Byrd, North Carolina State University Agricultural Information Specialist, is one of about 80 small farm families in Cumberland, Lenoir, Greene and Jones counties who are taking part in a new venture by the Agricultural Extension Service.

Extension has employed a technician in each of these counties to work closely with the cooperating families in growing pickling cucumbers.

"Cucumbers were selected for the project because we have a good market and guaranteed price for them," said George Hughes, an extension horticulturist at North Carolina State University.

The project really has two objectives, Hughes continued. "We're trying to help the families increase their income, and we're trying to establish other avenues through which Extension may assist them."

Technicians for the project are employed from among the people they are now serving. For example, Joe Hoffman, the technician in Cumberland, has been a part-time farmer and an employee of the Veterans Hospital. He has known many of the families with whom he is working and has their confidence.

The project is still brand new and no one is making big claims about its success or failure. However, Cumberland Extension Chairman Bruce Woodward, Agricultural Agent B. T. McNeill, Hoffman and Hughes are cautiously optimistic.

They point to flourishing fields of cucumbers and enthusiastic families. Several of the farmers had all of their soil tested for the first time after having their cucumber land tested. Some farmers are beginning to seek extension information on tobacco and other crops.

There have been disappointments too. "One farmer told me he was 40 years old and didn't need anyone to tell him how to grow cucumbers," Hoffman said.

There is also the story of the widow in Lenoir County who had her heart set on growing enough cucumbers to pay her electricity bill. The crop was seriously damaged due to a combination of weather and mechanical problems. But she wants to try again in 1973.

The goal is to build up a close personal relationship with participating families so that they will accept recommended extension practices. These include soil testing, liming, fumigation, chemical weed control, and the use of bees for pollination.

Many families have grown pickling cucumbers before, but few of them have followed the best production practices.

Some families have only garden size cucumber patches—a quarter of an acre or less. Others have up to five acres. Experience has shown that an acre of good pickling cucumbers can be grown for about $100 in out-of-pocket costs and sold for $700 or $800. The big need in growing the cucumbers is labor and many small farmers have more labor than they have land or money.

Farm Scene

By EDWIN L. YANCEY

Land use planning was proposed as a major goal for Pitt County by the citizens who helped develop Impact '76, Extension's 5-year program. Recently several of the farm directed magazines have called for more planning in rural areas. State and national leaders have called for programs to spur land use plans on a state or regional basis. So, why all the fuss?

According to Dr. Paul Stone, Extension Economist at N. C. State University, an expanding economy, increases in total population, concentration of people around urban areas, and the increased demand for community facilities and services have brought about greater competition for fixed land resources. For example, our growing population and expanding economy have created greater demands for land suitable for houses, roads, parks, schools, recreational facilities and other community services.

Danielson listed Building Codes, Health regulations, subdivision regulations, and zoning and nuisance control ordinances as traditional approaches used to put a plan into effect. These can be effective tools alone or in combination as the situation dictates.

Where does Pitt County stand in relationship to planning? An active County Planning Board has been at work for almost 2 years. Fifteen citizens representing all geographic areas of the county make up the board. A full-time county planner works to develop materials needed by the Board and to help implement plans which are adopted. The Board only recommends plans to the County Commissioners who must adopt them before they can be put into effect. (Most of the incorporated towns in Pitt County have similar planning bodies. Except for Greenville, however, they do not employ a planner).

A land use plan is a guide which suggests how your community can be developed so that all people realize the best use from scarce land resources. Such a plan focuses on physical growth and development. It is a tool which can assist in arranging the pieces of a growing community—houses, factories, parks, stores—in an orderly fashion. It can also be used to guide development to protect and stimulate the types of economic growth which a community desires.

If a plan is to have value, it must be put into use. Dr. Leon Danielson, Extension Economist, cites several tools for implementing plans. Tax policy, location of public facilities, and land purchase, leasing, easements and deed restrictions are considered new approaches. Tax policy, for example, which allowed agricultural land near cities to be taxed at agricultural value rather than market value reduced development pressures and could help achieve a planning goal of maintaining greenbelts in urban areas.

NEEDED A TREE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Leonardo da Vinci was the first scientist to inject a chemical into a tree. The journal "Chemistry" reports he injected an arsenic compound into a fruit tree and came up with poisonous fruit.

The value of land is greatly dependant upon its nearness to public facilities—roads, schools, water and sewer systems, etc. In the past, developers have chosen the sites they develop, thereby placing city and county governments in the position of being forced to provide services to the development. Danielson proposes. With a plan, local governments can specify where public facilities are planned and use this announcement to guide the location of a development.

PUBLIC NOTICES

North Carolina
Pitt County
Whereas the undersigned, acting as Trustee, in a certain deed of trust, executed by Elias L. Avery and wife, Jewel M. Avery, dated the 14th day of December, 1963, and recorded in Book D 34, Page 690, in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pitt County, foreclosed and offered for sale the land hereinafter described; and whereas within the time allowed by law an advanced bid was filed with the Clerk of the Superior Court and an order issued directing the Trustee to resell said land upon an opening bid of Nine Thousand Eight Hundred Fifteen ($9,815.00) Dollars.

Now, therefore, under and by virtue of said order of the Clerk of the Superior Court of Pitt County, and the power of sale contained in said deed of trust, the undersigned Trustee will offer for sale upon said opening bid at public auction to the highest bidder for cash.

Pitt County has a subdivision ordinance, a mobile park ordinance and certain health and safety codes and ordinances. A plan for solid waste disposal has been developed and is now under consideration by county and municipal officials.

Several agencies and citizen groups have developed plans or specific areas of concern which relate to land use. At this point, however, a total land use plan has not been developed.

As planners begin to give serious thought to the subject of land use planning they will need your informed opinion about how Pitt County should grow and develop. It is important to you and your neighbors.

According to Dr. Stone, since North Carolina is more rural than many states, opportunities still exist for citizens to make choices which will prevent problems which more urban areas have experienced. The major choice, he proposes, is to develop comprehensive plans and to implement control measures necessary to attain orderly community development without stifling economic growth.

If you want to learn more about land use planning, contact the Agricultural Extension Service in Greenville-203 W. Third Street, P.O. Box 1427, Phone 758-1196.

Lasso® liquid can save you a trip through the corn fields.

Lasso comes in convenient liquid form (E.C.), so it can be readily mixed and applied with your liquid fertilizer.

What does all this mean to you? No matter whether you are applying your herbicide preemergence or preplant incorporated, Lasso lets you put your fertilizer and herbicide on at the same time in one pass through the field. Saves you a whole operation. No extra steps, no extra trips through the field.

Remember, you can also tank mix Lasso plus Atrazine for control of a broader spectrum of weeds; and this tank mix can also be applied with your liquid fertilizer.

TOBACCO TALK

By RAYMOND D. COLTRAIN

Where am I going to get my fertilizer is the main question on our minds now. If you have not gotten your fertilizer yet, it's time to make haste. We know there will be a shortage of 15-0-14 this year and that you will have to do some substituting with 15-0-0 and 16-0-0 as sidedressing, and if we have a lot of leaching rains, it will come to using these also. The tobacco plant beds should be checked every other day for diseases and insect damage. Blue mold and anthracnose are the main diseases to watch for right now, buy as you start working in and around the beds, watch out for mosaic, especially if you let anyone use any tobacco products. Zineb, Fermate, Maneb and Polvram are good
