School Lunchroom Rules Approved By Pitt Board

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

Members of the Pitt County Board of Education yesterday approved several procedures and approaches for the county lunchroom program.

Although the board does not feel that a centralized system for the entire county is feasible at this time, it was felt that certain procedures should be followed by all the lunchrooms.

According to the rules approved, each school will plan menus two weeks or so in advance; secure a minimum of two, with a desired three, bids on all food items; employ personnel and maintain personnel file; and prepare or work in conjunction with the central office in preparing job descriptions for all school lunch personnel.

The lunchroom operators must also report to the central office for approval of all equipment purchase orders: use portion control tools and pre-cost and pre-portion menus; order canned goods, staples, cleaning supplies, on monthly projection basis if space is available for storage; and see that all invoices are forwarded to the central office.

It was agreed that all lunchroom managers should be trained in USDA Type A pattern for school lunches; be able to use the USDA form buying guide; be able to complete and correct recording of the menu record to assure the nutritious adequacy of meals; be trained in equipment use and care; and be familiar with their duties and responsibilities as managers.

The principals will be required to use daily the Policy Guide of the School Food Service Division of the State Department of Instruction in the administration and operation of their lunchroom program.

The central office supervisory staff for the lunchroom program will be required to spend as much time as possible in the lunchroom working with lunchroom personnel and also develop a check sheet that is to be left with the school manager after every visit with markings to indicate any deficiencies noted.

The board agreed that principals, school lunch personnel, and the central office school lunch personnel and administrators are to work together in securing and maintaining an "A" rating for each lunchroom.

Further, the board recommended that all principals, lunchrooom managers and school food staff begin immediately to bring each school lunchroom program in compliance with these recommendations.

Arthur Alford, superintendent of Pitt County Schools, reported on information he received concerning the use of school facilities by local groups, including rental fees being charged.

After conducting a survey of principals and local advisory groups, Alford said the general feeling seemed to be that there was considerable use of school facilities, both elementary and high school. He explained the number of times facilities are used varied from six to eight times during the year to as many as three times weekly (during basketball season) The charge for use of the school facilities ranged from zero to $150 (for use of the Ayden-Grifton School gymnasium).

Alford said the local advisory groups felt the policy for use of these facilities should be kept on the local level and that revenue from the rental of these facilities be kept in the local community.

Board members agreed that policies on the use of these facilities should remain on the local level and that revenue from the rental fees should be handled by the local committees as long as the money is used for the betterment of the schools.

Alford mentioned a bill introduced in the North Carolina General Assembly on March 19 which would abolish all special tax districts in the county (with the exception of the Greenville City Schools unit) and create one district for special supplemental levies, with a supplemental tax rate not to exceed 25 cents per $100 valuation.

At present there are 12 districts in the county with special supplemental tax rates ranging from 19 cents to 40 cents. The Pactolus and Arthur school districts are not paying any district taxes now.

The bill was prepared and introduced at the request of the Pitt County Board of Education in an effort to equalize the supplemental levies.

In a resolution passed by the board, it was stated that the increase in school taxes is needed to face the compelling needs in the local school programs in order that the board may meet its obligations to students, teachers and parents.

"It is with reluctance in this year that we request our county commissioners through our legislators an increase in our county school taxes throughout the county school area. However, we are faced with a heavy loss of teachers, administrators and essential programs without such an increase," it was stated in the resolution.

Nixon's Veto Upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the psychological edge of victory in the first big veto showdown of the year, President Nixon's congressional allies are charging into new spending-strategy battles over power and the purse.

Federal policies involving billions of dollars, covering House debate over rural America's electric power and a Senate fight over a spending ceiling and impoundments, were at issue in plans for congressional action today.

"A resounding victory for the American taxpayer" is the way Nixon, in a statement from the Western White House, described the Senate's vote on Tuesday sustaining his veto of a $2.6-billion bill for rehabilitating the handicapped.

Although the Senate mustered a 60-36 majority favoring an override of the veto, the vote was four short of the two-thirds majority needed. This authorization measure, setting a ceiling subject to later appropriations, was "excessive and unwise," Nixon said.

Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., claiming Nixon's veto "slams the door in the face of handicapped Americans," denied the legislation was extravagant and said "Congress was not fiscally irresponsible in its approach to this legislation." Rep. John Brademas, D-Ind., chief House sponsor of the bill, said: "Clearly, what the President wants is a rubber-stamp Congress, going docilely along with everything he wants."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., called it "just a goddamned outrage, a national shame. I'm ashamed to be in the Congress. Mr. Nixon with his mandate has declared war on the maimed. It's a day of infamy for the White House."

But Nixon claimed the legislation would have "opened the dikes to a flood of irrational overspending bills." Now, he added, "because enough senators had enough courage to stand up against the big spenders, we have a chance to turn the tide."

Watergate 4 To The Grand Jury

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four Watergate defendants who chose to plead guilty rather than stand trial go before a federal grand jury today knowing the severity of their sentences depends on their cooperation with investigators.

U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica last month left open the final sentence for the four—all caught inside Democratic headquarters in a post-midnight foray—saying "should you speak freely, I would have to weigh that factor."

Bernard L. Barker, who admitted in court that he recruited the other three, was to be the first to testify before the jury probing the Watergate case, followed by Eugenio R. Martinez, Frank A. Sturgis and Virgilio R. Gonzalez.

Sirica showed his displeasure Tuesday with the refusal of G. Gordon Liddy to answer grand jury questions, adding up to 18 months to Liddy's prison term. Liddy invoked his right against self-incrimination at least 32 times in one of three sessions before the jury, even though he had been granted immunity from prosecution for anything he might say.

James W. McCord Jr., convicted with Liddy after a four-week trial, also refused to answer some questions while giving a deposition in three civil suits growing out of the Watergate affair.

Sources said, however, that McCord agreed to answer all questions in the civil suits.

2nd Blackout

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A massive power failure, more widespread than a six-hour outage that hit the area a day before, swept a 170-mile stretch of Florida's Gold Coast as power facilities were taxed by another day of 85-degree temperatures and heavy tourist crowds.

Traffic lights were off, elevators in high-rise apartment buildings stopped working, hairdressers sent customers outside to dry their hair in the sun and restaurants without emergency power supplies had to serve cold food.

A Florida Power & Light Co. spokesman said, "It's another widespread problem. We don't know the dimensions or the cause just yet."

The blackout today apparently reached as far north as White City, 50 miles north of Palm Beach. It also knocked out electricity in Islamorada, a Florida Keys city 70 miles south of Miami.

Homestead, a city 35 miles south of Miami which has a municipal generating plant, was not affected, and municipal plants kept the power humming in areas around West Palm Beach.

Tuesday's blackout affected an area from Boca Raton, about 25 miles south of Palm Beach, to Islamorada.

Will Seek Bids On Road Improvements For Pitt County

RALEIGH—The Department of Transportation of the North Carolina State Highway Commission is seeking bids this month for several road improvement projects in Pitt County.

The major project up for bid is the 1.15 miles of improvements on Cotanche and Charles Streets in Greenville from Tenth Street southeasterly to the U. S. 264 bypass.

That project includes the widening of Cotanche Street between 10th and 11th Streets, a relocation from Cotanche Street to Charles Street between 11th and 12th Streets and the widening of Charles Street from 12th Street to the U. S. 264 bypass.

The street will be widened to a 64-foot face-to-face of curb section. The right of way will be variable to contain the construction.

Surveys and plans have been completed appraisal work.

The Norfolk and Southern Railroad has been working on a new and wider overhead structure to permit the widening of the street.

Other projects include .17 miles of improvements on secondary road 1147 from secondary road 1131, southeasterly to N. C. 11 south of Greenville; and 14.2 miles of surfacing of three sections of secondary roads and resurfacing three sections of primary roads and one section of secondary road in Pitt and Beaufort Counties.

The bids will be opened on April 24 to determine the low bidders.

Farmville Board Told The Town May Be Sued

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE — Farmville Commissioners were given notice last night the Town may be sued for "breach of promise" concerning its changing all-electric customers over to a uniform electric rate scale that upped their bills considerably more than other electric users.

Stuart Hamm, spokesman for group, made the statement after a letter from L. E. Wooten Consulting Engineers, which set the rates, was read. It stated that the large users who qualify for the 1.2 cents-a-killowatt-hour rate pay only slightly more than the cost to the town.

Hamm charged, however, that he and "25 or more" other persons who have built homes in Farmville in the past two years were told that because of an all-electric rate, electric heat would be economical. "Had I known you would renege on your word I would never have installed an electrical heating system," he said. He also suggested that the town is penalizing the largest users of its largest source of revenue and that most of those affected are newcomers to Farmville.

A mobile home ordinance discussed for the past two months was adopted last night after a public hearing turned up no objections.

Also approved was the addition of septic tank requirements to the Town's

A 'Long, Hot Summer' Seen On ECU Medical School Front

A News Analysis

Daily News Raleigh Bureau

RALEIGH—A quick glance at the legislative scoreboard in the current General Assembly would leave the distinct impression that lawmakers have decided, despite past bitter feelings and subtle political threats, to allow the UNC Board of Governors to run the public university system as it was created to do.

The university administrators have, so far, received everything they asked for in supplemental budget requests. There have been no open attempts to tamper with the 1971 law which brought the new higher education system into being. There have been no bills for any individual campus program as was the case in past legislative years.

Could it be that the tax-supported, multi-million dollar university system which had been a political football for so long will be left alone by politicians?

The answer is a clear no, based on present thinking, when one looks beneath the unruffled surface, the 1971 law and repeated pleas by university partisans notwithstanding.

THERE ARE ILL winds blowing from more than a few academic halls to the legislative corridors, and back again.

The well-known sparring between forces at Chapel Hill, the heart of the university system, and East Carolina University is part of concern.

But there is more. The state Democratic Party, possibly looking for a solid peg on which to hang its desired rebirth, has joined the fight. And so, possibly having forces pushing for private colleges.

The focal point of the whole clandestine feuding is the legislative and university whipping boy, medical school expansion—at ECU or elsewhere. The final determination of just what is done and when it is to be done could hinge on the results of a $50,000 independent medical school expansion study commission which is just now beginning its work.

THAT COMMISSION is coming into North Carolina, probably aware of the political sensitivity of its chore and certainly aware of the doctor shortage in the state. It has until September to make its recommendation.

The Board of Governors late last year recommended against expansion at the present time of the one-year medical school at ECU in favor of expansion at the Chapel Hill medical complex and increased state aid to students at the private medical training institutions, Duke and Bowman Gray. But at the same time the governors agreed to let an outside commission made up of medical experts determine the best course for the future.

Despite the desires of ECU partisans in the General Assembly, and elsewhere, for immediate expansion at the Greenville campus, the mood of majority of the eastern legislators at present is to wait on the study commission to make its report. There still is a chance legislation calling for funds for ECU medical school expansion will come this legislative session, even though the votes probably aren't available to pass it, but the general thinking is to play a waiting game this year and get the skids greased for the downhill run in 1974.

REP. HORTON Rountree, D-Pitt, the home of ECU, acknowledged last week the lawmakers from his area were playing a "poker game" by keeping the threat of legislation alive. "I think we might be better off right where we are, keeping the issue alive until next year. But I don't want them (board of governors) to forget what has already been done," he said.

Rountree was referring to the legislative precedent for consideration of expansion at the ECU campus. Dating back to 1965, the General Assembly went on record as favoring the medical school complex at the Greenville school and has through legislative action poured thousands of dollars into the project already. And despite recent changes in state law, the 1965 statute calling for a full medical school at ECU is still on the books.

Sen. Vernon White, D-Pitt, said he was "confident" legislation directly asking for funds for the ECU medical school expansion would come in 1974 if the current study commission doesn't recommend in favor of a second full medical school—preferably at ECU. "If they (the commission) don't recommend another school I'll join anyone in introducing legislation next time," White said.

THAT WAIT-until-next-year theme runs through conversations with several eastern lawmakers. But Sen. Livingstone Stallings, D-Craven, may not wait. He admitted late last week he is "working" on a proposal for this session, but said he didn't know if it would be put in the legislative hopper or not. Stallings is working on a resolution, however, rather than a direct appropriations bill.

Stallings said he would have several cosponsors of the measure, if it comes. "But I don't want to say much about it right yet," he stressed. Stallings is a close political associate of Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt.

A move by Hunt, as the presiding officer of the senate, to push for an ECU bill this session could give any pending measure some clout. But Hunt has said no to requests for his influence.

"I don't think this issue (med school) should come up this legislative session," Hunt said Friday, "and when it does come

Party Just Another TV Show To Boys

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I just returned from an anniversary party given by a charming and interesting couple who live nearby. They had canapes, dips, and drinks plus a lovely buffet supper.

As the guests arrived, they greeted the anniversary couple, filled their trays, and then the men disappeared into the den to watch a ball game on TV. They paid no attention to the women [or to the host and hostess for that matter] and broke away from the TV only long enough to refill their glasses.

I wonder if this is the social pattern we may expect in the future? Of course family dinners on the Big Game days like Thanksgiving and New Year's are suffering more than parties. How do you feel about it? GRANBY, CONN.

DEAR GRANBY: The ideal host and hostess permit their guests to do what they want to do. If the men gravitate toward the TV, let them. But I wouldn't knock myself out preparing an elaborate dinner for them. I'd serve the TV crowd beer, pretzels, and frozen TV dinners.

DEAR ABBY: I wonder how much longer these girls will wear their hair long and straight as a horse's tail?

The other afternoon we went to a friend's home for a barbecue where the daughters served the food. It was a bright sunny day and I could see HAIR shining in the food. I assure you, I didn't eat a thing.

RATHER STARVE IN FLORIDA

DEAR RATHER: You should have eaten. It's what you CAN'T see that's risky.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to "Lonely Guy"—the 19-year-old who couldn't get a girl friend. I would like to tell this fellow what YOU told me when I wrote to you with the same problem eight years ago—when I was his age.

"Take a good, long, hard look at yourself and take inventory. Find out who you are, and get to like that person because you'll never be anybody else. If you have hangups, get professional counseling. Smile, and hold your head high. And get to know the Lord. He does wonders. Good Luck!"

Abby, it's people like you, reaching out to help others who make this a better world to live in. God bless you and keep you well. NOT LONELY ANYMORE

DEAR NOT: And it's letters like yours that make my day. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 35-year-old unmarried woman, living at home with my parents. They are semi-invalids and depend on me to keep house for them. I also work away from home from 7 a. m. to 3 p. m. so you know I have plenty to do.

I don't get many [really, I don't get ANY] invitations to date, but I am not lonely and I'm not complaining. My problem is that I am considered a convenient free baby sitter for the entire family.

I have three sisters and two brothers, all married with children. When they need a sitter they make it "easy" for me and bring the children to me. When the kiddies were infants, I enjoyed them, but now they are wild and hard-to-handle, and they wear me out.

Their parents no longer ask me, they call and say: "We are dropping the kids off tonight because we know you have no plans."

I've been such a good sport for so long, how can I suddenly say, "I would just like to relax and do nothing tonight"? DEAD TIRED

DEAR TIRED: You've already come up with the right combination of words, now all you need is the courage to say them. Practice in front of a mirror, and deliver them loudly and clearly at the first opportunity. [It gets easier with time.]

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Child's Learning Should Begin At Home

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Parents who do not develop their children's intellect during the critical pre-school years may be shortchanging them for life, according to a nationally known advocate of early education in the home.

"Most of a child's basic intelligence has been formed by the time he reaches school age," said Dr. Terrel H. Bell, former acting U.S. Commissioner of Education, "and too often parents allow this critical period of life to slip by without taking proper advantage of it.

"Parents should be using the pre-school years to increase their children's self-image, heighten their sensory perceptions and develop skills which will carry them through more than a decade of formal schooling."

Bell said the responsibility of helping children build a more powerful intelligence lies with parents—and timing is critical.

"The program should begin at birth," he said.

The nationally known educator, who now heads Salt Lake City's Granite School District, explains his entire pre-school home training program in "Your Child's Intellect," a new book in which Bell tells how to help children become quick of mind, able to grasp subtle meanings and understand complex ideas.

Bell said the pre-school child should begin school with his senses developed and his ability to use them to think sharpened as keenly as possible.

Sharpened Senses

"The child must be able to listen to sounds that are nearly the same and detect the differences," he said. "He might be able to look at objects and pictures that are almost identical and be able to see slight differences.

"He must be able to identify objects that he cannot see by touching and feeling them to form mental images of them."

Bell criticized parents for getting in the "no" and "don't" habit of communicating with children.

"This is sadly demonstrated by studies of vocabularly development in young children which indicate the word 'no' is one of the first words spoken by most children."

In addition, he said, parents are only adding to the learning burden of a child when they try to speak on what they believe is a child's level.

"The word 'dog' is much less confusing to a child than to teach him that a dog is a 'doggie' and later tell him that a 'doggie' is a dog.

"As parents learn to employ the reinforcement theory and observe the reactions to learning efforts," he said, "they will become keenly aware of the strengths and weaknesses of their children.

"We must teach our youngsters how to swim before they are turned loose in the deep waters of formal education."

The installation ceremony closed with a dedicatory prayer by Rev. Adrian Brown.

A reception followed in the dining room. The refreshment table was covered with a white organdy cloth over yellow and centered with an arragement of pastel flowers in a crystal bowl, flanked by crystal candlesticks holding golden tapers.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Eva Corbett, Mrs. Thelma Maxwell, Mrs. Elba Rowe, Mrs. Ethel Allen, Mrs. Nell Moore, and Mrs. Blanche Jackson.

Those attending were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. T.I. Moore and Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Rowe. Mrs. Ethel Ricks presided over the guest book.

Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell and Mr. and Mrs. J.B. Jackson.

Poppy Poster Contest Planned By Auxiliary

Unit No.39 of the American Legion Auxiliary in Greenville plans a "poppy poster contest" during the month of April.

Cash awards will be given to the first, second and third place winners.

Participants in the contest should be in grades seven through 12. Anyone wishing to enter the contest should contact Mrs. Eric Whichard, 752-6416, for further information on the rules.

All entries should be submitted by April 30 for judging and the winners will be announced the first part of May.

In discussing the poppy, Mrs. Whichard said, "The poppy is a memorial flower for American war dead and is a tradition which began in the years following the World War I. Veterans returning to their homes in this country remembered the wild poppies which lined the devasted battlefields of France and Flanders Field. Soldiers of all nations began to think of this flower as a living symbol of their dead comrades' sacrifice.

"Today, over 50 years later, that little flower continues to symbolize and pay tribute to those who made the supreme sacrifice in World Wars, I, II, the Korean War as well as the Vietnam Conflict."

She pointed out that the poppy is more than a symbol. It is a source of hope and aid to many in the United States. It is a handmade flower—made by disable veterans as a part of their therapy and to aid their rehabilitation. They also receive financial assistance for their work. Also, the funds from Poppy Day are used exclusively for assistance to veterans and their families in time of distress.

"To help tell the story of memorial tribute and of aid to someone who needs help, the auxiliary is sponsoring the poster contest," added Mrs. Whichard.

None Of It Can Be Tolerated

Whatever the political implications of the Watergate affair it is well to remember that the men who were tried in this case have been found guilty.

This burglary was wrong under the laws of our country and it is no less of an offense to look on what was done as political espionage. However glamorous that may sound, it is just as much burglary as one in which a criminal takes a television set from a store.

We hear that bugging is done in politics and in big business. If that is so, there is no reason why the American public should accept it. Bugging usually requires the unlawful entry of a building or offices and its result is the theft of information.

None of this should be tolerated in a free society and our courts should see to it anyone who aspires to a career in political or big business espionage recognizes that he may be breaking the law and can be punished for it.

Wet-Dry Issue Is Heating Up

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH, — Dry forces are rallying for a fight on liquor-by-the-drink legislation about ready to come to a vote in a House committee.

Their objections to changes made by a subcommittee in a statewide referendum bill promises to inject the volatile liquor issue into preceedings as the legislature heads into what leaders hope is the final month.

BRYAN HAISLIP

Theat could upset the schedule, and embroil lawmakers in emotional debate on the subject of sale and control of alcoholic beverages.

Early in the session it appeared a wet-dry confrontation would be avoided. The Christian Action League, principal spokesman for church groups and others united in the dry cause, announced it would not oppose a once-for-all vote by Tar Heels on the liquor-by-the-drink question.

That stance shifted when a subcommittee of the House Alchololic Beverage Control Committee worked over the measure. It altered the referendum proposal to make the statewide vote an initial step before local option elections in the counties.

Such an approach is completely unacceptable, said Rev. Coy Privette of Kannapolis, League president. "It's now a tactic for getting around the real issue—should mixed beverages be sold in North Carolina?" he contended.

Dry Claim Troops

Now prepared for battle, the League claims it has the troops. Based on a survey earlier this year, Privette said he could count 64 votes in the House.

"We're looking to our friends in the House," he said. "I think it's going to have rough sledding in the House ABC Committee and in the House, and I don't see how in the world it's going to get out of the Senate."

The first test of strength may come this week when the House ABC committee is expected to consider the amended bill from the sub-committee.

Optimism for its adoption and subsequent enactment was voiced by Rep. Robert Q. Beard of Catawba, subcommittee chairman. "I think the bill will pass," he said. "Many who opposed local option have said they would support a good referendum bill, and this is a good bill."

Beard, a Republican and a Lutheran minister, argued that changes made by the subcommittee got around some constitutions questions and actually strenghtened the bill introduced by Rep. Sam Johnson of Wake.

Confined To ABC System

In its orginal form, a favorable vote in the statewide referendum would have allowed local ABC boards to petition the state ABC board for liquor-by-the-drink sales. All counties would vote in the referendum, but those now dry would have to follow the usual route in setting up an ABC system before being eligible for by-the-drink sales.

As revised by the subcommittee, the statewide referendum would put before the voters the option for counties to decide the liquor-by-the-drink issue. If the proposition passed, then counties would be able to hold a local election on whether to adopt liquor-by-the-drink.

Another change made by the subcommittee would do away with the use of miniature bottles for by-the-drink sales.

Johnson said he accepts the subcommitte's amendments. "The second vote is about as democratic as you can get. It brings it right down to the counties," he said.

Local Option Objection

Drys will work for the defeat of liquor-by-the-drink in a statewide referendum, whatever the form in which the question is put. They oppose the local option feature as a device obscuring the central issue.

Not incidentially, it also could enhance the chances for a favorable vote in a statewide referendum.

The altered bill drew fire from Marse Grant, editor of The Biblical Recorder and a staunch liquor foe. "It's now a straw vote on whether to permit a local option vote," he insisted. "It's not a vote on the issue and that issue is liquor."

Grant said grassroots support is lacking for liquor-by-the-drink. As for the General Assembly, he said drys can count on substantial support against the bill. I don't know if it will pass the House," he said, "but I do know that the Senate ABC Committee and the Senate are more anti-liquor than the House.

Rep. Beard said he supports the concept of liquor-by-the-drink as an imporvement over the present brown-bagging system. "Most of our citizens don't realize that brown-bagging makes North Carolina one of the wettest states in the nation," he said.

"Now you can buy up to a gallon of liquor and consume it entirely in a restaurant. No one has control over this. I feel that liquor-by-the-drink would lead to more moderate alcohol consumption."

Jane Fonda Can Choose Most Unpopular Cause

Jane Fonda lived in comparatively luxury during all those years the American prisoners of war were in captivity in North Vietnam.

It is not for us to question her opposition to the war; it is after all, a free country.

If Miss Fonda wants to take up an unpopular cause, though, she sure could not have chosen a more unpopular one than to call returning POWs, who described their treatment at the hands of their captors, hypocrites and liars.

These men, after enduring so much for so long in the service of their country, returned with their heads held high and their faith in God and the nation undiminished. They received heroes' welcomes, as well they should.

As we read the remarks attributed to Jane Fonda we could think only of a flea on a lion's back.

Pressures For More Control

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Invoking meat controls with such controls with such typically Nixonian stealth that some high-ranking White House aides were not consulted in advance, President Nixon now confronts a major new political problem: a runaway Congress ready to enact mandatory wage-and-price controls far tougher than he wants.

In the candid words of one presidential assistant, the new ceilings on beef, lamb and pork may only further dramatize the issue of food inflation, "tossing gassoline" on congressional fires already burning furiously in favor of a stringent new controls law.

Thus, Rep.Wilbur Mills of Arkansas, a formidable critic of the premissive Phase III controls program, is now prepared to use his great influence as chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee to force House passage of an across-the board wage-and-price freeze similar to the historic freeze of Aug. 15, 1971.

Mills had strongly recommended a total retail food-price freeze to Secretary of the Treasury George Shultz. When Mr. Nixon Thursday night bowed to the angry public clamor against soaring food prices by imposingca ceiling severely limited to meat, Mills was both surprised and displeased. He had expected a much broader emergency program.

Accordingly, Mills is now prepared to take the floor of the House to fully support all aspects (except an interest rate ceiling) of an across-the-board freeze that Rep. Wright Patman of Texas, chairman of the House Banking Committee, will propose when he brings up the bill extending presidential wge-price controls authority.

Moreover, Mr. Nixon's bold appeal to the voters over the head of Congress to bakc him in the battle over vetoed spending bills which started last week is also likely to stimulate the same congressional demand, particularly among the Democratic majority, for a far tougher controls law than the White House wants. If such a bill went to the White House and were vetoed, the Democrats could use the veto as protection against voting for higher domestic spending.

Even worse for the President than these unwanted congressional repercussions is the mood widely shared among politicans that Mr. Nixon is just groping with, not coming to grips with, the inflation crisis.

Some leading outside economists, for example, were certain that Mr. Nixon shifted round and trimmed his emergency controls program at the last minute on Thursday. His economic advice still comes mainly from authors of the disastrous Phase II—led by economics czar Schultz, a doctrinaire free-marketeer who has always opposed controls. The Thursday decision is perceived by the outside economists as a sop to public demand—too little, too late—by an administration that isn't sure what to do.

This mood, moreover, may explain the dramatic contrast between Wall Street's tepid reaction Friday, the day after the meat decision, and the record rise in stock prices on Aug. 16, 1971, the day after Mr. Nixon's across-the-board freeze. The probable interpretation: Wall Street's money men, with vast interests at stake in the anti-inflation battle, were left wholly unconvinced that the President's meat decision will help much.

Likewise, if the President's new ceiling on meat was supposed to appease AFL-CIO president George Meany, as many Democrats believed, it was a failure. Meany's blast at the White House for putting a ceiling on meat at the highest prices in history means one thing: his potent lobby will be turned loose for a total effort to persuade the House to impose stringent price controls.

Nor is there any mathematical formula showing that the new meat controls will actually work. Packinghouse operators now cannot bid for choice cattle at higher prices, which means cattle feeders cannot raise their prices to compensate for rising, still uncontrolled feed costs. This could actually reduce the supply of beef to the market, while

Strength For Today

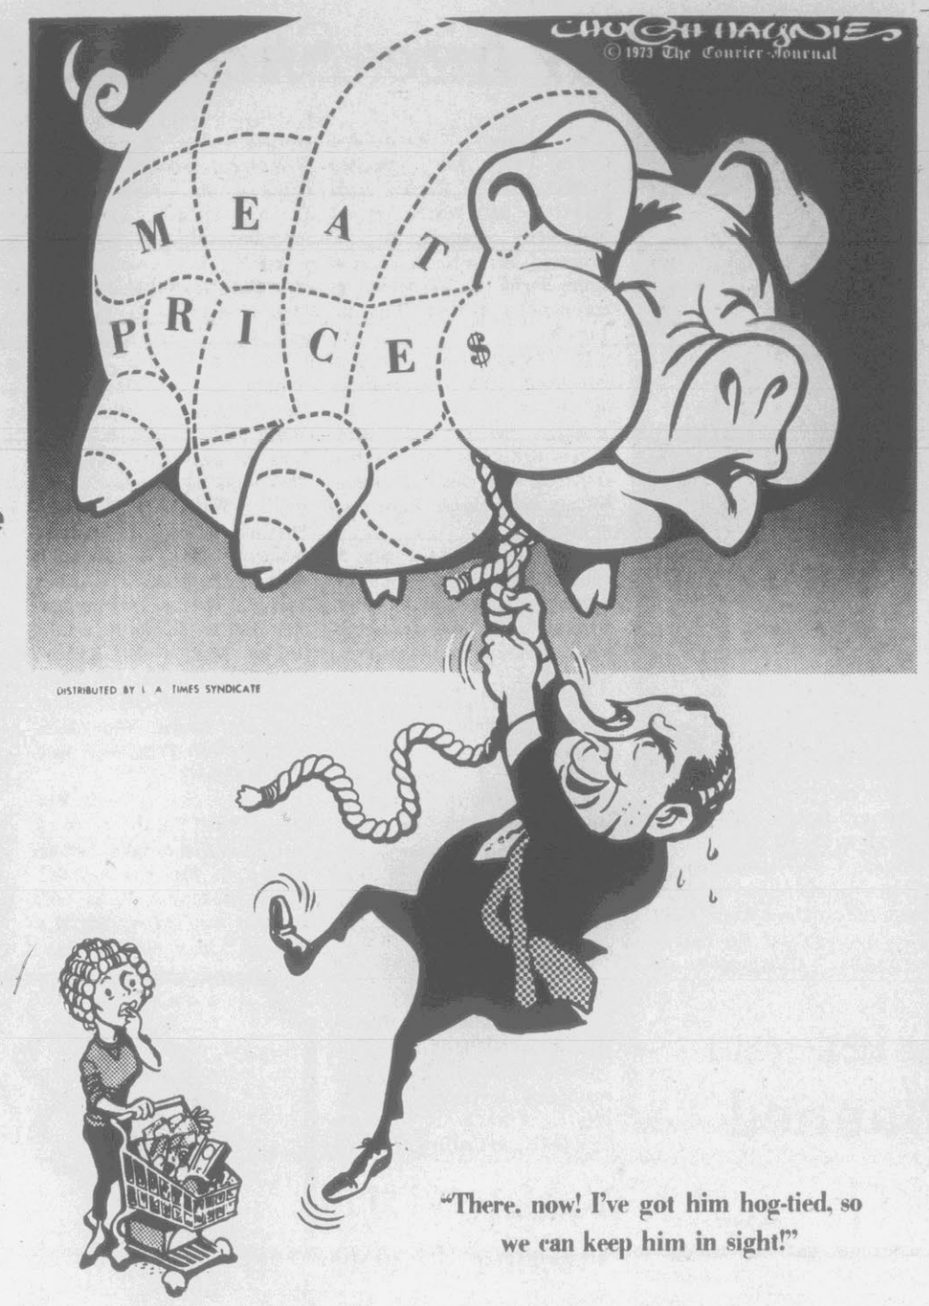

We'd Better Want To

"Tell Harry he can cut the grass today if he wants to," says the father to the mother as he leaves the house in the morning for work.' And when the father reaches his car he calls back good-naturedly to the mother, "And tell Harry he's better want to."

In some ways this little incident illustrates the attitude of our heavenly father toward his children. We are never compelled from on high to do anything. Everything is left ot our choice. God says in substance, "Here is the pathway of right; you can walk it if you wish to." And then through the mouth of prophet and seer He adds solemnly, "But you'd better want to."

If we fail to heed this divine injunction it does not mean that calamity will immediately befall us. But it does indicate plainly that if we close the door on good and chose evil instead, the day is hastening onward in which there will be only one choice left, and that the evil choice.

Certain Crimes Are Up

WASHINGTON — The good news in Washington last week was that crime had dropped in the capital by 50 per cent. There is some question about the figures released because certain crimes committed in Washington were not included in the statistics. Had they been, the optimism about the decline might be considered premature.

Here are some of the crimes not reported in Washington in 1972:

Housebreaking at the Watergate Hotel was up 100 per cent.

Illegal bugging of politicians increased 73 per cent. While officials explained the upsurge in this crime was due to a presidential election year, law-and-order advocates feel the rate of illegal bugging will continue because of the permissiveness of bleeding-heart Justice Department lawyers.

Acts of perjury in front of grand juries, Senate committees and in civil cases reached an all-time high, surpassing even the record made during the four years of the Harding Administration.

Attempts to intimidate witnesses and obstruct justice were up 23 per cent.

Destruction of subpoenaed documents and paper shredding of crucial evidence increased 33 per cent.

The rape of Public Television continued unabated and blackmail of TV station owners broke all previous records.

Administration assaults on the networks were up 43 per cent over 1971.

Crimes of passions against newspaper correspondents hit new record highs and the mugging of news sources tripled under the Nixon Administration.

Armed robbery of the American taxpayer by the military-industrial complex showed a 34 per cent rise over 1971—a previous record year for this type of crime. Because very few of the military-industrial complex holdups are reported, law-enforcement experts do not see any chance that type of crime will go down. (When one government employee reported that Lockheed was robbing the public blind, he was immediately fired.)

Although more police have been added in Washington, pollution violators have been getting away with murder. It is now estimated that there are 14,901 unsolved pollution crimes on the books, with an average of 75 being committed every day.

While street crime was Hooray, for not allowing "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf" to be shown on tv. Not only movies need to be screened, but even some of the regularly scheduled programs.

What used to be so personal, private and intimate has turned into a merchandising formula for wealth, would-be poets, and capitalistic could-not-be writers who "never have to say they're sorry."

"Love is universal and love is an easy thing to merchandise" says the merchandising director of Paramount Pictures. And not only are there multitudinous maudlin movies about the subject, but we are seeing these movies. We are not being taken by it. We are taking it in. We are allowing today's millionaire mod-prophets to perpetuate old romantic myths that dictate the meaning of, and worse yet, how we can find love. In order to find the meaning of love, you have to play hockey at Harvard, break away from your rich father and find a poor girlfriend who has leukemia.

You'll find it if you get rid of your bad breath, the frizzies, psoriasis, and a mild case of terminal acne. You'll find it if you buy a girl a coke. You'll find it if you live alone with a cat named Sloopy. They manipulate us into wanting to believe that love is easy. They lead us into a fantasy world, where life is a love story, where loneliness is a national pastime, exceeded only by leukemia and acne. And they laugh all the way through the bank and to the bank. So what does it all mean? In one of McKuen's own poems he says: "if you had listened hard enough-you might have heard-what I meant to say; Nothing."

But whatever they meant to say, they say it over and over and over again. Maybe love means. . . "you never have to say. . ."

Some Appearances Of Success

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — With Internal Revenue Service agents showing more interest than housewives in prices at the meat counter, the effort by consumers to drive down prices is bound to have the appearance of success.

The main reason that prices are likely to fall is that the law of supply and demand really does work. When demand is high and supplies relatively low, prices rise. These are precisely the conditions that led to those $4 steaks.

Per capita yearly beef consumption of about 118 pounds today is more than double what it was as recently as 1951. This alone isn't enough to drive up prices if production keeps pace, and until recently it had been. But demand now exceeds supply.

Veal, on the other hand, demonstrates how shrinking supplies also exert upward pressure on prices. In 1954, Americans ate about 10 pounds of veal per person per year, compared with 2.5 now. But production also has fallen.

While there is little question that a boycott can force prices down, there is doubt about the long-range impact. Lower prices most likely will discourage some producers from supplying the market.

If that happens, as Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz warns it could, price pressures later this year could be equally strong.

The dedication of the boycotters will also be a factor. To live without meat in a society that believes meat is a basic requirement for healthy families is apt to produce in the boycotter the feeling that she is sacrificing her youngsters in pursuit of a social cause.

These questions also must be considered: Are boycotters like the fat woman who resolves while standing on the scales never to eat another chocolate? Like the inebriate who resolves on New Year's morning never to touch another drop?

While these questions cannot be answered for a few weeks or months, they are simple in comparison to the complex and imponderable question of what government policy will be.

There was little uncertainty about policy during Phase 2. The letter and spirit of the law were understood, and many prices became relatively stable.

Phase 3 is another matter. Supposedly there is a club in the closet that might come down upon the head of any seller who dared endanger the economy through prices increases. But so far it looks more like a toothpick.

Moreover, great doubts are being expressed that the club ever can be of much use. Businessmen and others note that there are simply too many millions of sellers and products for government to watch all of them.

Business and economic literature is thus rife with discussions about another price freeze that would relieve government of responsibility for individual decisions.

In a democracy, the rule of law is a noble ideal — except when that law is the law of supply and demand, and especially when it is out of balance.

The U. S. Akron, the largest airship in the world, crashed in flames at sea early today with 77 men aboard. Ten hours later only four of those men had been found and one of them died later, making this apparently by far the greatest tragedy in the world history of lighter-than-air flight history which has dotted within many major tragedies. The Akron was caught in a violent electrical storm after midnight last night, twenty-five miles off the sand dunes of the New Jersey coast and crashed.

Committee Leans To Controls

By EDMOND Le BRETON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Banking Committee, after voting a food-price rollback to the level of May 1, 1972, turns today to considering stabilization of rents at the Jan. 10, 1973, level.

Democrats determined not to extend President Nixon's economic-control powers without holding him to specific price-reducing policies appeared firmly in control of the committee.

But some expressed doubt that requirements as strict as those they voted would be sustained when the legislation reaches the House.

"As usual, what comes out of this committee will be rewritten on the floor," Rep. Thomas M. Rees, D-Calif., told reporters.

The food-price rollback was proposed by a Democrat, Rep. Frank Annunzio of Illinois, but Republicans predominantly voted for it with the avowed strategy of "making an impossible bill more impossible."

A later effort to substitute a compromise date, Jan. 11, 1973, failed, 22 to 15.

Completing its work on the first major section of the bill, the committee also voted:

—A ceiling on all prices other than food, and of interest rates, as of the March 16, 1973, level, but with authority for the president to make exceptions to correct "gross inequities."

—A requirement that within 60 days the president roll back prices and interest rates even further, or explain why he had not done so.

—A trigger mechanism for invoking mandatory controls on prices, wages and salaries, if inflation continues at an annual rate of 3 per cent for three months or 2.5 per cent for a year.

—Requirements for hearings on orders and regulations, and public access to the data on which they were based.

The committee locked these requirements, along with the food-price rollback, into the bill by 22-15 vote, with Republicans this time predominantly in opposition.

It rejected proposals to exempt interest rates from an initial freeze or to exempt commercial interest rates, or to include wages, salaries, profits and dividends in the freeze.

An effort to limit the bill to the terms Nixon asked—a simple extension of his discretionary control powers—lost 25 to 15.

Other provisions still to be considered include extension of the basic control authority, which expires April 30.

California has had only two Democratic governors in the past 73 years—Culbert L. Olson, from 1938 to 1939, and Edmund G. Brown from 1959 to 1967.

down, crimes associated with executive privilege were up by 13 per cent.

Political fund-raising frauds also broke all records, but there have been no prosecutions by the government because of a shortage of watchdogs.

Illegal arrests of demonstrators were down, thanks to the end of the Vietnamese war, but unconstitutional surveillance of American citizens continued to rise.

Bribery in the form of campaign contributions doubled during 1972 and the smuggling of cash contributions for immoral purposes across state lines increased by 74 per cent.

Aggravated assaults on Congress by the President were up 54 per cent and premeditated vetoes of legislation broke all records.

While President Nixon has expressed concern with the increases in all types of crime, he still considers criticism of his Administration the No. 1 crime problem in the country today. It has become so serious that he is studying the possibility of bringing back capital punishment.

In short, Mr. Nixon has taken a high-risk political gamble with a meat-controls program that satisfied neither Congress, consumers nor most economists. If the President has restored credibility in his Phase III anti-inflation program, the evidence still lies somewhere off in the future.

Town Administrator Andy Martin told the Commissioners there is some question as to the legality of the Clean Water Bond Issue passed last spring. This would grossly affect Farmville's water system improvement now being planned, he said, but indicated that no action could be taken until there is a ruling in Raleigh.

Farmville will have to decide fairly soon whether it will use the county landfill now being planned or build another one for its own. The present one can be used only until July, 1974, Martin said, because of a problem concerning the water table on the site near Contentnea Creek where the town now landfills refuse.

The Commissioners approved the final plat of the new Marlboro Forest Subdivision on the edge of Farmville.

School requests for financial aid were tabled, with the suggestions that those involved present their request in time for the making up of the 1973-74 budget.

Eddie Joyner appeared asking for information about a piece of land deeded to the Calumet Masonic Lodge in 1911. It seems that the exact location is not definite because of boundaries no longer in existence referred to in the deed. The Board advised that the Lodge have an attorney determine exactly where the land is before any action on its part would be appropriate.

A public hearing on paving in the Crestwood Subdivision was scheduled for the May meeting. A petition bearing the names of more than 50 per cent of the homeowners was found in order.

The Commissioners agreed to study further the request from residents of the Rouse and May subdivisions to be annexed by the Town.

The town engineer Jack McDavid was asked to have a new extended city limits map ready for the next meeting.

The 'Worry Clinic'

The Male Has Two Appetites

Lita use the "Ad Hominem" fallacy of logic when she attacked me. For her toes had been stepped on via the marital advice often included in this column. Her husband had been straying. She said he was 100 percent to blame. But she was an erotic ascetic!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE W-569: Lita R., aged 38, is a hostile reader of this column.

"Dr. Crane's 'Worry Clinic' gives my husband and me our daily laugh!" she recently told her local editor.

"And as for pornography, Dr. Crane tops Playboy and all the other sexy magazines.

"All he does is prate about sex!

"And pick on us girls who beling to Women's Lib!

Ad Hominem

Do you suppose I have stepped on Lita's psychological corns?

If she thinks my use of such helpful euphemisms as "boudoir cheesecake" and "erotic calories" are "pornography," she must be very naive.

To avoid employing lewd 4-letter terms so common nowadays on the stage and in even the slick paper magazines, I often use the phrases mentioned above.

And also remind feuding married couples that:

"Divorce usually starts in the bedroom."

Lita's editor is a personal friend of mine, so he figured she was demonstrting Shakespeare's famous statement about "protesting too much."

What infuriated Lita, therefore, proved to be my statement that even the supposedly innocent wives are at least 50 percent to blame for their straying husbands.

"For it is their sins of omission in the boudoir," I chide them, "that drives virile males to seek erotic calories elsewhere."

And that is a medical axiom known also to millions of happy wives who realize that the normal male is geared to have a harem.

If you wish to keep your husband contented through your Golden Wedding Anniversary, then you women must function in lieu of Biblical Jacob's 4 wives.

A successful modern wife must be a 4-wife harem to her husband, or he may ultimately kick over the traces of monogamy and succumb to the wiles of outside sirens.

Wives, in such cases, it doesn't mean he may not love you!

For if you likewise reduce his gastric calories at the dinner table to 800 per day, when he craves 3,000, his patronage of a downtown restaurant will not indicate he doesn't love you.

No, indeed!

It will mean that you simply rationed him too stringently in his natural craving for stomach calories.

If you also try to restrict him to a semi-celibate role in the boudoir, and he finally is driven to seek outside erotic calories, then don't berate him unduly or attack the paramour!

For it is you stodgy wives who send him into the arms of that siren by your own boudoir sins of omission!

Get Hep!

Men have two vital appetites that are far greater than women's, and they are gastric as well as erotic.

You wives gladly urge him to eat more than his 3,000 dinner table calories.

Yet you renege on the boudoir variety.

It's a rare wife who urges her mate to take second helpings of boudoir cheesecake!

Remember, the woman who usually breaks up your marriage is the one who stares back at you from your own marrior!

Send for my booklet "Sex Problems in Marriage," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents and stop the primary cause of divorce! (Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get together with bigwigs today and make your life more interesting. Show that you have fine talents. Avoid one who is jealous of you and could put a crimp in your style. Relax tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Find new outlets that are profitable and fascinating. You can now gain the goodwill of higher-ups. There are clever ways of adding to present knowledge. Keep busy and you keep happy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Handle those affairs that are very important to you. If you have some matter to discuss with mate, this a good time for such. Don't praise one who doesn't deserve it. Attend social tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A good day to handle those tasks ahead of you with enthusiasm and get them behind you quickly. Plan time for improving your health. Make improvements to your wardrobe. Be wise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Engage in the hobbies and amusements that you enjoy. Get together with congenials and try to please them. Avoid a new situation that does not look very promising to you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Contacting persons you like and showing your affection for them is fine. Strive for more goodwill with associates. Avoid a dangerous situation that could lead to trouble.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those charming young people who can be most successful in business and cultural affairs. Direct the education along such lines. If your progeny feels things are going slowly, you can analyse the reasons why and do something constructive about them. Give as much academic training as your child desires.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Opening lead: Six of ◇

In order to maintain full control of the proceedings, South—the declarer at four spades—found it necessary at one stage to trump his own trick.

West opened the six of diamonds and South won the trick in his hand with the ace in order to lead a heart to the king. East was in with the ace and shifted to the queen of spades. South put up the king, cashed the queen of hearts and then led a third round. West discarded the five of clubs and North ruffed with the seven of spades. The ace of clubs was led which brought forth the queen from West.

South had intended to ruff himself in with a club but, with the appearance of an honor from his left-hand opponent, he decided to abandon his plan—since it appeared that he might be subject to an overruff followed by a spade return which would remove dummy's last trump.

The king and queen of diamonds were cashed instead and it was at this point that declarer made the key play of the deal. Instead of discarding a loser on the queen of diamonds, he ruffed dummy's good trick with a small spade.

A fourth round of hearts was led and West ruffed with the ten of spades and returned the jack of trumps. South played the ace and then led his last club which was now the master card in the suit. West trumped with the eight of spades which became the third and final trick for the defense.

If declarer fails to ruff the queen of diamonds but discards a heart instead, when he comes off dummy next time with a club—West will overruff and return the jack of spades to drive out South's ace. With two tricks in, West's ten of spades is now the master trump and East cannot be shut out of his ten of hearts since the dummy has no more spades.

Republicans Begin Pitt 'Recruiting'

Dick Greene, chairman of the Pitt County Republican Executive Committee, announced the official launching of "Operation Reassessment," a Republican program designed to re-register Democrats who have been supporting GOP candidates.

Green said that, beginning this week, volunteer workers will be going door-to-door in Pitt County visiting with Democrats and explaining how they can change their registration to Republicans.

"The result of last November's election leave no doubt that vast members of Democrats recognized the need for two-party politics," the chairman commented.

"As county chairman, it is my fervent hope that at the conclusion of this 45-day campaign North Carolina will truly be a two-party state. If North Carolina is to realize her potential, we must have a balanced government," he added.

Greene said that Bill Grantmeyer, Greenville attorney, will head the Pitt County "Operation Reassessment" program. Grantmeyer is a University of North Carolina Law School graduate. He and his wife, Ricki, have a young son.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices were down again today as Wall Street money managers continued to worry about inflation and the Nixon administration's approach toward controlling it.

At 11:30 a.m. the Dow-Jones average of 30 industrials was off .67 to 927.08. Declines piled up almost a 2-to-1 lead over advances in fairly light trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The broad-based NYSE index of some 1,400 common stocks was down .21 to 58.12 at 11 a.m., while the price-change index on the American Stock Exchange had dipped .03 to 24.18.

The Dow fell nearly 24 points during the last three sessions, in a selling spree set off by investor dissatisfaction with the President's approach to combating inflation, brokers said.

Loews Corp., the Big Board's most-active stock, was down ⅛ to 27⅝. The company disclosed Tuesday it had purchased a chunk of legally beset Equity Funding Corp.

International Telephone which has been on the skids because of the adverse publicity it is receiving in the congressional hearings on its earlier activities in Chile, recovered ¾ to 41½.

First National City Corp. was off 1⅞ to 74⅞ in the wake of the House Banking Committee's proposal to freeze interest rates.

Cameron West Is Offered Post

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Dr. Cameron P. West, chief architect of last year's reorganization of North Carolina's state university system, has confirmed he has been offered the post of executive director of the Illinois system of higher education.

West, 52, vice president for planning of the 16-campus University of North Carolina system, said he was interested, but would not decide for several days.

The North Carolina system includes six campuses of the Consolidated University of North Carolina, nine regional universities, and the North Carolina School of the Arts in Winston-Salem. Under the reorganization, all the schools were brought under a single administrative board which has strong powers over money, programs and growth.

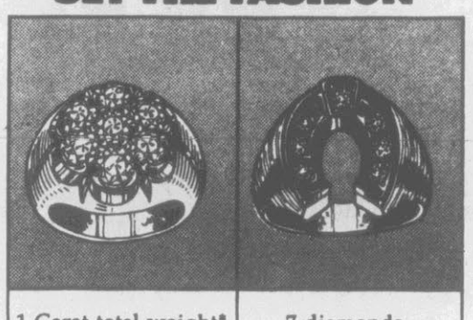

The state Board of Higher Education, of which West has been director since 1969, was merged with the new system, and West became the vice president for planning.

The Illinois board coordinates the activities of four multi-campus universities and the state's system of junior colleges.

Conley Stalls Hawks; Stays Unbeaten

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

HOLLYWOOD—After blanking the North Lenoir Hawks for six innings, D. H. Conley's Vikings saw a grand slam home run erase a 4-0 lead to tie their game up. Conley won it in the eighth, however, to remain undefeated after four games.

The win knocked the Hawks a game and a half back of the Vikings, who are sitting on top of the Eastern Carolina Conference. The Vikings travel to Farmville Central Friday seeking to keep the string going.

The Vikings finally scored in the third inning and added another pair of tallies in the fifth for a 4-0 lead going into the final frame. North Lenoir loaded them up and James Willis got a lucky bounce on his hit to left and by the time the Vikings had gotten to the ball Willis had crossed the plate with the tieing run.

The Vikings won it in the eighth on a Hawk miscue.

Bobby Bryant started for Conley and went seven innings. While he was on the mound, he fanned 13 Hawks and walked five. He gave up four hits. Vic Corey relieved him in the eighth and received credit for the win. Ronnie Sutton went all the way for the Hawks, striking out five and walking one Viking. He also scattered 10 hits.

North Lenoir put two on in the first inning but failed to score. Conley put a pair of runners on also as Clennel Streeter and Randy Adams both got hits. They were left stranded.

North Lenoir's Sutton reached base in the second when his swinging third strike got by Viking catcher, Prince Bunting. He tried to steal second and made it safely as Bunting's throw was wide. Lewis Wood walked and Pete Avery was hit by a pitch but Bryant out the last man to get out of the inning.

Bryant struck out the side and in the bottom of the frame saw his team inch out to a 2-0 lead. With one out, Willie Streeter doubled to center and tried to stretch it out. The throw to third was errored as Streeter slid in. Clennel Streeter followed with a double scoring Willie and the shortstop errored the throw to third letting Clennel take two more bases for the second Conley run.

North Lenoir threatened again to score in the fifth as Clif Sullivan singled and stole second but was caught in a fielder's choice at third on Gary Battle's grounder. The Vikings tried to pick Battle off but a bad throw let Battle move all the way to third. He died there as the next two batters were retired.

Conley added two more in the last half of the inning. Willie Streeter reached on an error and brother Clennel moved him to third with a base hit. Adams also got a hit, driving in Willie Streeter and advancing Clennel Streeter to third. On the throw from the Hawks' centerfielder to home, Adams headed for second. The ball was relayed to second and Streeter broke for home. The throw there was late and both runners were safe. That gave the Vikings a 4-0 lead.

Both teams went down in order in the sixth. Then in the seventh, North Lenoir began to get to Bryant. Steve Sasser led off with a walk but Bryant fanned the next man. Sasser stole up and Jones singled. The ball got by

Jaguars Top Ayden-Grifton

LITTLEFIELD — Farmville Central High School held off a late Ayden-Grifton rally to take a 6-3 victory yesterday.

The Jaguars pushed out to a 6-0 lead by the seventh inning, but a pair of homers by the Chargers threatened to get Ayden-Grifton back in the game before it was finally choked off.

Farmville Central pushed into the lead in the third inning, scoring a run. Ed Wells singled and stole second, then came around on Bobby Wooten's single.

In the fourth, Farmville added three more runs to work up a 4-0 lead. Glenn Dwyer walked and Phil Lewis singled. Gary Cowan walked, loading the bases. Jeff Cobb then followed with a double, driving in both Dwyer and Lewis. Wells grounded back to the infield, and Cowan was erased trying to score. The ball was then errored on the attempt to get Cobb at third, and he came on to score after the miscue.

Two more Jaguars crossed the plate in the fifth inning, as Farmville ran its lead to 6-0. Wooten opened witha double and Tony Cobb singled. The fielder kicked the ball trying to retrieve it and Wooten came home on that, while Cobb moved to second. A wild pitch pushed him to third, and he scored from there on Dwyer's sacrifice fly.

Ayden-Grifton erupted for three runs in the bottom of the seventh, avoiding a shutout. Paul Ricciarelli started things off with a solo homer. Tony Koonce walked and Don Phillips cracked out another round-tripper, making the final 6-3 margin.

Cobb, Wells, and Wooten each had two hits for Farmville, while Cobb had three. Phillips had two for Ayden-Grifton.

Aycock Rallies Past Panthers

PIKEVILLE — Charles B. Aycock spotted North Pitt's Panthers a 5-0 lead, then slowly pulled back to finally push over the winning run in the bottom of the seventh, 6-5.

North Pitt got only two hits, but took full advantage of every break they got. In the first, they pushed over three runs with only one of those hits. Linwood Brown was hit by a pitch and moved around to third on wild pitches. Linwood Brown was hit by a pitch and moved around to third on wild pitches. Ben Johnson then sacrificed him across. Steve Fuchs got it going again with a walk, and Dennis Bunn singled. Rick Harrell reached on an error, scoring Fuchs and moving Bunn to third. The two runners then worked a double steal for the third North Pitt run.

In the third, North Pitt pushed over two more runs. Ken Tetterton was hit by a pitch, and Johnson sacrificed him up. Fuchs then helped them along with a two-run homer, making it 5-0.

But that was to be it for the Panthers, as Aycock began its comeback in the fourth.

In the bottom of the fourth, the Falcons put together four runs to close the gap to one. Terry Durham singled and Parker Davis walked. David Pittman also walked, loading the bases. Durwin Hawley was hit by a pitch, scoring Durham, and Jay Edgerton tripled in the other three runners.

Aycock tied it up in the sixth. Pittman reached on an error and was sacrificed up. Hawley then singled him in to knot it at 5-5.

Then, in the seventh, the Falcons pushed over the winning run. Lancaster singled and stole second. Terry McFatter was hit by a pitch and Durham singled, ending the game as Lancaster scored.

Lancaster and Durham each had two hits for Aycock.

Eastern Wayne Runs Past Rams

NEW HOPE — Eastern Wayne jumped on Greene Central for four runs in the first inning and went on to record a 6-1 victory over the Rams in an Eastern Conference game yesterday.

The Rams had scored first, but couldn't hold off the Warriors who quickly stormed back into the lead. They went on to add single runs in the fourth and fifth innings to sew it up.

The loss was the third in eight starts overall for the Rams, and evened their league record at 3-3 for the season.

Greene Central pushed over a run in the first to take the lead. Stevie Williamson singled and stole second. Jerry Carraway then brought him home with a single.

Eastern came back quickly. Rhodes walked and Kough reached on a controversial error, bringing on an argument. No one called time, however, and in the meantime, while the Rams were trying in vain to reverse the call, Rhodes kept going and scored the tieing run. Kough also moved on to second.

When play resumed, Gurley singled and Long walked to load the bases. Robbie Price then reached on another error, scoring both Kough and Gurley. Sutton then singled in Long with the fourth run.

In the fourth, Rhodes again walked, and stole second. Kough followed with a triple, scoring him. The other run came in the fifth, when Price walked, stole second and scored on Stallings' hit.

Price hurled the victory, scattering three hits to the Rams. He fanned nine batters and walked two.

Reds Hoping For Better Beginning For Season Than End Of Last One

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

A sellout crowd of 52,000 is expected to pack Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium Thursday as the 1973 major league baseball season gets underway in the same ballpark where the 1972 campaign ended last October.

The host Reds hope for a happier ending this time.

Left-hander Don Gullett will open for Cincinnati, which lost the seventh and deciding game of last year's World Series against Oakland at home. Opposing him will be veteran Juan Marichal of the San Francisco Giants.

Both pitchers are hoping for comebacks from poor 1972 seasons. Gullett, troubled by mononucleosis, managed only a 9-10 log while Marichal, who had a variety of back and arm ailments, managed only 6-16.

Reggie Cleveland, Ross Grimsley Bob Moose and Jim "Catfish" Hunter had the right spin on the ball in Tuesday's exhibition games while Bob Robertson, Dick Allen, Reggie Jackson and John Stephenson had their bats on the ball.

In afternoon action, St. Louis blanked Boston 3-0, Cincinnati nosed out Detroit 1-0, Pittsburgh blitzed Philadelphia 8-1, the Chicago White Sox topped Texas 5-4, the Chicago Cubs edged Cleveland, California beat Milwaukee 5-4 and Oakland defeated San Diego 3-2. In night games, the New York Yankees upended the New York Mets 6-5, Minnesota silenced Houston 2-0 and Los Angeles downed San Francisco 6-2. Atlanta vs. Baltimore at Savannah, Ga., was rained out.

Cleveland hurled a three-hitter through eight innings for the Cardinals, limiting the Red Sox to Ben Ogilvie's second-inning single until Reggie Smith and Ogilvie hit two-out singles in the seventh. He also singled and doubled and drove in a run.

Grimsley of Cincinnati tossed four-hit ball for eight innings. The Reds got only four hits off the Tigers' Woodie Fryman and Tom Timmerman, but used two of them for their run in the first inning as Bobby Tolan singled, stole second, took third on catcher Bill Freehan's high throw and scored on Tony Perez' single.

Robertson drove in three runs with a single and a homer, leading an 18-hit attack, and Moose yielded five singles in seven scoreless innings as Pittsburgh shelled Philadelphia. Allen's first homer of the spring drove in two seventh-inning runs to lift the White Sox past the Rangers.

Jackson hit a wind-blown, two-run homer and Hunter retired all 12 batters he faced as Oakland downed the Padres.

Stephenson drove in the tying run in the seventh inning and hit a game-winning single in the ninth for the Angels.

Gene Hiser's steal of home in the eighth carried the Cubs over Cleveland.

Ron Blomberg's ninth-inning broken-bat single through a drawn-in infield scored Matty Alou with the winning run as the Yankees overcame the Mets 6-5.

Danny Thompson knocked in two runs and pitchers Bert Blyleven and Ray Corbin shared a five-hitter to lead the Twins past the Astros.

Andy Messersmith pitched the Dodgers past the Giants, giving up only one hit in six innings. Ron Bryant was whacked for nine of the 11 Los Angeles hits. He yielded four runs—two unearned—in the first inning.

Cunningham Sparks Cougars To 101-91 Victory Over New York

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — "We wouldn't be here without him," Carolina Coach Larry Brown said of Billy Cunningham.

The Cougars were without Cunningham for most of their American Basketball Association playoff game against New York Tuesday night.

But when they were with him—mainly midway in the fourth quarter—they ran away from the Nets to a 101-91 victory and a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven first-round East Division series.

"If we don't win here Thursday night," the Nets' Bill Melchionni said of game No. 4, "We might as well pack it in."

Cunningham pumped them in for the Cougars when it counted. He had to sit out most of the first half, getting only four points in those 24 minutes, after picking up three quick first-period fouls.

And after a brief appearance in the fourth period, he was benched again by Brown with 9:24 to go after getting hit with his fifth foul. "I wasn't trying to save him in the end," Brown explained. "I just thought he was getting tired. I'd made up my mind to go with him 'cause he's carried us all year. If he fouls out, well, he fouls out, that's all."

Three minutes later, with the score tied 79-79, the slightly-rested Cunningham returned. "Nobody wants to sit on the bench," he commented later.

Cunningham proceeded to break the tie and put the Cougars ahead to stay with 6:27 to play by slamming in a jumper from the top of the fouls circle, then came back moments later to give Carolina an 83-79 lead with a layup. He scored nine of the Cougars' final 20 points and finished with 17 for the game.

Mack Calvin, who led all scorers with 28 points, followed Cunningham's fourth-quarter spurt with a pair of free throws and a layup as the Cougars mushroomed the scored to 98-89. "Fouls hurt us," said Nets Coach Lou Carnesecca, specifically referring to the loss of Melchionni, the ABA assist leader who fouled out with 3:13 to go and the Cougars holding a narrow 90-87 lead. "There was nobody left to direct the club."

Williamston In RompByEdenton

WILLIAMSTON — The Williamston Tigers rolled to a 13-3 victory over Edenton's Aces in the Albemarle Conference yesterday.

The Tigers had little trouble in gaining their fourth straight Albemarle win to remain atop the conference standings. The Williamston team is 5-1 overall.

Williamston scored in every inning, starting off with two in the first. Mike Weaver reached on an error and Joe Roberson singled him to third. Roberson stole second and Keith Brown singled both in for a 2-0 lead.

In the second, the Tigers added another run. Phil Selby walked and stoke second. Tim Jackson walked and Bundy reached on an error to load the bases. Weaver then sacrificed Selby across.

The Tigers came back with four more in the third. Roberson led off with a walk and moved up on a passed ball. Brown singled him across and also got help from a passed ball. Ken Speller came on as a pinch-runner for him, and Vann Andrews walked. Hubert Smith then tripled to drive in both Speller and Andrews walked. Hubert Smith then tripled to drive in both Speller and Andrews. Smith then topped off the frame by stealing home with the fourth run.

Two more came over in the fourth, making it 9-0. Weaver singled and Ange doubled him to third. Passed balls allowed both to come around.

Williamston later added two runs in the fifth and another pair in the sixth. Edenton got all three of its runs in the fifth.

Brown led the Williamston hitting with three, while Weaver and Berwyn Barnhill each had two.

Williamston travels to Bertie on Friday.

Baltimore Has Deja Vu Feeling

By FRED ROTHENBERG
Associated Press Sports Writer

Deja vu is a sense of having seen something before. But for the Baltimore Bullets it means trouble.

The Bullets were eliminated from last season's National Basketball Association playoffs by the New York Knicks and are down 2-0 to the same team this year.

So it's understandable if Baltimore doesn't like what it sees—or saw.

"All I know is we have to win the next game," says Bullets' Coach Gene Shue, who sends his team against the Knicks tonight in Baltimore.

Meanwhile in the American Basketball Association playoffs Tuesday night the Carolina Cougars defeated the New York Nets 101-91, the Kentucky Colonels edged the Virginia Squires 115-113 in overtime and the Denver Rockets beat the Indiana Pacers 105-94. Carolina, Kentucky and Indiana all now have 2-1 leads in their respective best-of-7 divisional semi-final series.

In tonight's only other NBA playoff the Boston Celtics travel to Atlanta with a 1-0 lead in their best-of-7 series with the Hawks while the Utah Stars have the same series margin as they host the San Diego Conquistadors in the night's only ABA contest.

Atlanta Hawks' Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons is not seeing his past in his present, only because he wasn't around last year to see the Celtics erase Atlanta in six games. He's just seeing too much John Havlicek.

Havlicek led a personal march through Atlanta by scoring 54 points, a Celtic single-game scoring record, in Boston's 134-109 win.

The Kentucky Colonels lost a 10-point fourth-period lead, then came from behind in overtime Tuesday night for a 115-113 victory over the Virginia Squires and a 2-1 lead in their ABA playoff series.

Kentucky Coach Joe Mullaney said the Squires "played as aggressive a defense as I've ever seen them play."

The Eastern Division-winning Carolina Cougars also took a 2-1 edge in their playoff series with the New York Nets as Billy Cunningham came off the bench to score nine of his team's final 20 points in the 101-91 victory.

Cunningham, who played only eight minutes and scored just four points after picking up three fouls in the first period, entered the game midway through the final period and immediately snapped a 79-79 tie. He hit hit a jumper from the top of the key with 6:27 remaining, then conected on a layup to spark the Carolina surge.

Julius Keye scored a personal season-high of 19 points and grabbed 21 rebounds Tuesday to give the Denver Rockets a 105-94 triumph, its first after two losses, over the Indiana Pacers.

Keye, who had surgery eight days ago for a split tendon on the ring finger on his left hand, also blocked six shots and held Indiana's Roger Brown to just seven points.

Petty Crew Seeks Answer

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

NORTH WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP) — It isn't often that you have to go all the way down to 34th on the list to find Richard Petty's finishing position in a major stock car race.

And that's one of the reasons the midnight oil has been burning in the Petty shops at Level Cross, N.C.

The Petty crew inaugurated a crash program Monday to find the answer to two broken engines—one that put him out of action at Rockingham, N.C., March 18, with a 26th finishing spot, and the other at Atlanta, last Sunday, when he wound up 34th.

Not only did his trusty Dodge explode at Atlanta, but the king of the stock car road tore up considerable sheet metal in a violent collision with the guard rail.

"Something's wrong," the usually easy-going $1 million career winner said, "and we're going to find the answer. I think the record will show that our engines usually are reliable, otherwise we'd be back there in the fine print of the record book."

Petty's next outing will be in Sunday's Gwyn Staley 400, a 250-mile venture that has figured prominently in his 150 career triumphs and in four Grand National driving titles.

Petty long since should have been elected honorary chairman of North Wilkesboro Speedway's board of directors.

In 23 starts at the five-eighths of a mile oval, the 6-foot-3, 215 pounder has won nine times, finished in the top five on 14 occasions, was running at the finish 17 times and completed 7,413 of a possible 9,200 laps.

Not only that, he has won five of his last 14 Wilkesboro, including both races last year. At a track where the winner usually gets about $5,000, Petty has been paid $53,830 by Wilkesboro manager Enoch Staley, brother of the late driver for whom Sunday's race is named.

He'll have a bit of trouble making it this time around. The entry list includes the top 15 leaders in the Winston Cup Grand National point standings, and all of the top 12 money winners except David Pearson, this year's Carolina 500 and Atlanta 500 champion.

The track opens for practice Thursday.

RODE SIX WINNERS

NEW YORK (AP) — Only two apprentice jockeys have ridden six winners on one racing program at Aqueduct. They were Mike Venezia in 1964 and Rudy Turcotte in 1969. Venezia is competing in Florida this winter while Turcotte is riding in Maryland.

Robersonville Nips Saratoga

ROBERSONVILLE — Robersonville's Golden Eagles wrapped up in a pitching duel with Saratoga Central, but finally pulled it out with a run in the eighth, 1-0.

Saratoga's Jimmy Bryant and Robersonville's Doyle Farmer hurled all eight innings, and an error ended the Saratoga hopes in the bottom of the final frame. Farmer, in getting his fourth win in five decisions, lowered his ERA to 0.95. He scattered three hits, walked one and struck out five.

Bryant, in losing also tossed a three-hitter, struck out seven, but walked five.

Saratoga never threatened in the game, however, failing to put a man on second base. In fact, they left only one man aboard. Two who reached were thrown out stealing, while another was picked off. Still another fell in a double play

Robersonville offered four threats before finally scoring. In the first, Matt Wilson doubled and Doug Warren walked with two away , but nothing came of that. In the third, Ricky Brown walked and stole second, again with two away.

In the sixth, Loyall Corey reached on an error and was sacrificed up, with Doug Warren walking after him. Then in the seventh, Larry Jackson singled and moved up with a pickoff attempt was errored.

Finally, in the eighth, the Eagles pushed over the lone run of the game. Corey walked and Brown singled. Victor Hardison sacrificed both up, and Doug Warren was intentionally walked, setting up a play at all bases. Jimmy Stalls hit back - what looked like an easy grounder to third, that could have started a double play, but it was errored, and Corey scored the game-ending run.

The win upped the Robersonville record to 6-1 for the year. Saratoga's mark fell off to 5-3-1.

Field Watches Jack, Cloudy Skies

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Lee Trevino had a firm, succinct response when somebody asked him if Jack Nicklaus could be beaten in the Masters golf tournament, starting Thursday.

"Sure," replied the normally loquacious golfer, "if it rains."

Competitors had one eye on the heavy skies and the other on the game's Mr. Marvel as they completed tuneups today for the 72-hole, four-day test over the rain-saturated Augusta National course—an event which Nicklaus has won four times in 10 years and is heavily favored to take gain.

"Jack certainly is the man to beat," acknowledged Trevino, the season's leading money winner with more than $100,000, "But all of us will have a better chance if it stays damp like this.

"Jack's big advantage is that he drives so far that he is able to float higher shots to the greens. If the greens stay soft, it will be a big break for us guys who have to fire at them with longer clubs."

Nicklaus, who described his Tuesday practice round as "just fair," said normally wet conditions bring the field closer together. But that would not be true on a course as massive as Augusta.

"Personally, I like it to be dry and fast," he said. "But I don't care how it is as long as I'm playing well."

Nobody—not even Trevino—seemed ready to bell the cat—the big, blond cat from Columbus, Ohio, who is aiming for his 14th major title, one more than collected by the late Bob Jones.

"There's no doubt that Jack goes into the tournament with a tremendous edge," said Bill Casper, two-time U.S. Open champion and winner here in 1970. "The course is tailor-made for his game. He drives on the other side of the hills and he plays the par fives as if they were fours."

Casper's own ambitions took an adverse turn when he developed a painful pull in his right rib cage — a back ailment not connected with that which sidelined him at the start of the winter tour.

"I won't know until Thursday whether I'll tee up the ball or not," he said.

Other contenders in the 84-man field, including 18 foreigners and eight amateurs, were cautious in measuring their own chances against those of the relaxed, confident Nicklaus, generally acclaimed the greatest shotmaker in the world.

"You have to go with him—he does everything better than anyone else," said Sam Snead, a physical miracle at the age of 60.

"I think Jack's big edge is in his psychology," commented 20-year-old Ben Crenshaw, the national collegiate champion from Austin, Texas, being hailed as golf's golden boy of the future. "He has everybody scared of him and he's not scared of anything."

"This is a course that requires perfect placement of shots," said Deane Beman. "Nicklaus is the game's most perfect player."

"If I had to pick one man and make a bet," added Australia's Bruce Crampton, "I would pick Nicklaus. But that doesn't mean he's going to win. Remember, he has to sink all his putts."

Crampton, winner of consecutive tournaments during the past winter in Arizona, is rated one of the chief threats to an unprecedented fifth Masters title for Nicklaus.

Others include Tom Weiskopf, the thin, trigger-tempered Ohio belter who has come to within one to four shots of the crown three times in the last four years; Lou Graham, who has missed the last three tour tournaments by a single shot; Arnold Palmer, winner of four Masters seeking new youth at the age of 43; Chi Chi Rodriguez, winner at Greensboro on Monday; Tony Jacklin the former British and U.S. Open winner; Australians Bruce Devlin and Dave Graham; Trevino and Casper, if the latter plays.

Nicklaus is a 4-1 shot. Others range from 10-1 to 100-1.

Palmer, who ended a two-year victory drought by beating out Nicklaus in the Bob Hope Classic earlier this year, appears loose and confident.

"I've got a secret weapon," he whispers in the ears of friends. His army hopes so.

Rodriguez, the reed-thin Puerto Rican with the Babe Ruth wallop, hopes to capitalize on his Greensboro momentum.

"I take victory and defeat in the same stride," he says, borrowing a phrase from sports history. "Usually when one wins, he is inclined to celebrate. Me, I celebrated by playing two hands of gin rummy with my caddie. I surprised myself by hitting the ball so far."

The fabled Augusta course, a 6,980-yard par-72 test of broad fairways, few traps and massive subtle greens, is lush with grass fed by heavy spring rains. The layout took a drenching over the weekend when thunderstorms belted the area. Drizzling rain fell Tuesday and was to continue Wednesday.

"Shots are all carry," said Casper. "This will be an advantage for Nicklaus because he will be using lofted clubs to most greens while most of the rest of us will be swinging long irons and even woods. But it would help the rest of the field if the greens remain soft."

Former champion Charles Coody said changes made in the tees at the first, 10th and 14th holes were not intended to blunt the superiority of Nicklaus.

Conley . . .

the Viking leftfielder letting both runners move up a base and Battle walked to load the bases. Willis stepped in and rapped what looked to be like a routine single. The ball took a high hop as Eugene Forrest came in for it in left and it bounced over his head out into the open field. Willis streaked around the bases with the tieing run.

Willie Streeter slapped a one-out single in the bottom of the inning for Conley but failed to score.

Corey put the Hawks down in sequence in the top of the eighth. Clevie Averette got everyone standing up as he smashed a triple into right for the Vikings with none out in the bottom of the frame. Bryant lofted a high fly to right but it was not deep enough for Averette to score on. Corey drew a walk. Keith Gould won it for the Vikings as he slashed a grounder back to short that scored Averette with the fifth run. The play went to second to get Corey but it was errored.

Clennel Streeter led the hitting with three in four trips to the plate. Adams and Willie Streeter each had a pair of singles and Averette had a single along with his triple.

Gov. Holshouser Endorses Soft Drink Tax Repeal

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—North Carolina Gov. Jim Holshouser, a Republican, has endorsed repeal of the penny per bottle state soft drink tax and in the process created a dilemma for the Democrats in the General Assembly.

Holshouser, in a statement Tuesday, said the latest revenue estimates for the coming biennium indicate that an additional $80 million beyond what was expected in January will be available.

With the state's coffers overflowing, he said, the legislature could finance his mental health, education, parkland, and prison reform programs, repeal the $40 million per biennium soft drink tax, and still have $40 million left over.

Democrats reacted to his message with skepticism, and there was some evidence that the governor's action could be the catalyst necessary to bring their splintered party together for a unified alternative proposal on taxes and spending.

There were also indications that the soft drink bottlers may, by the governor's action, have lost as much Democratic support as they picked up from the Republicans.

"This is the best thing that could have happened to the Democratic party," said Sen. Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, who said the party had been "floundering" this year, the first in which it has not had a Democratic governor to provide leadership.

Rauch and other Democrats indicated that they hoped the soft-drink issue would provide a common ground for conservative easterners and more liberal Piedmont legislators.

Many easterners, led by Rep. James C. Green, D-Bladen, are opposing soft drink tax repeal because they fear it would eventually lead to an increased tax on tobacco, the chief cash crop of the east.

Some urban representatives, like Sen. McNeill Smith, D-Guilford, had opposed soft drink tax repeal because they favored "more progressive" tax reform like repeal of the sales tax on food combined with a change in the income tax structure.

Others, like Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt and Sen. Gordon Allen, D-Person, said they favored using the money to finance increased state services before considering a tax cut.

In the House, Rep. Carl Stewart, D-Gaston, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, said his committee was faced with the task of cutting out $180 million in requests above and beyond Holshouser's supplemental program.

Some tobacco county legislators, like Sen. J.J. Harrington, D Bertie, were ready to join them Tuesday. "Holshouser just made his first big mistake," said Harrington. "The people don't want this because they know the bottlers will get that $40 million."

Harrington said he would prefer to see reduction or repeal of the food tax.

So did Rep. Liston Ramsey, D-Madison, chairman of the House Finance Committee which is scheduled to vote on the soft drink tax repeal bill Thursday.

Ramsey said he thought the vote on the bill would be "very tight."

Sharp To Speak At Corrections Study

Preston Sharp, executive director of the American Correctional Association (ACA), will deliver the keynote address at the "New Frontiers in Corrections" workshop to be held at East Carolina University here April 13-14.

Dr. Sharp's talk, at 10:30 a.m. April 13, is open to the public.

Director of the ACA since 1965, Dr. Sharp has extensive experience in welfare and social rehabilitation, having worked with both the Maryland and the Pennsylvania Departments of Welfare. He has also served as the National Correspondent of the United States to the United Nations in the field of Social Defense, under appointements by Presidents Johnson and Nixon.

"New Frontiers in Corrections" is a public information workshop designed by the UNC Extension Division at Chapel Hill to promote understanding of the prison system. Using the keynote address and four position papers, the workshop will study problems facing the corrections system as well as innovative programs being used in the rehabilitation of the public offender.

Further information may be obtained by contacting Dr. Kenneth Taylor, East Carolina University, Greenville 27834.

Registration will begin at 8:00 a.m., April 13 in the Allied Health Building located at the intersection of Charles St. and Hwy. 264 By-Pass.

campus of the university, had decided to wait until next year, although not necessarily because of Hunt's refusal to back the plan.

AND EVEN though they may be willing to wait until 1974, some ECU partisans admit they don't trust the study commission—mostly because it was put together by the Board of Governors which they also don't trust. "I don't have any confidence in the commission," Roundtree freely acknowledged.

The commission, however, was formed with full agreement of some ECU backers on the board of governors. Members were, in fact, selected over the objections of one Chapel Hill oriented person on the selection committee.

The five-member commission is made up of two members who reportedly favor big city or establishment-type medical schools and two members who favor the "family practice" approach which ECU people prefer and one black member.

In the selection, however, Watts Hill Sr. of Chapel Hill was reportedly holding out for a third "big city" member against Reginald McCoy (former ECU trustee chairman) who pushed for a second "family practice" member. McCoy won.

THE STATE Democratic Party got into the medical school act recently when a delegation from that party's legislative policy committee voted unanimously that a second medical school was essential.

At a closed meeting two weeks ago, Democratic Party representatives from the state's congressional districts voted to recommend to their legislators that: "We will not be content with anything short of another medical school and the medical school expansion costs should take priority over any tax cuts."

That Democratic delegation is to meet April 9 with lawmakers to discuss the medical school recommendation.

Democrats in eastern North Carolina also recently spread a stack of 150 to 175 petitions across their end of the state seeking signatures in favor of ECU medical training facility expansion. The petition project, headed up by Plymouth Mayor Bill Flowers, was carried out through civic clubs and municipal government officials.

"I think the Democrats were onto one," one member of that party commented of the petition drive and party policy groups recommendation.

A POSSIBLE tie-in between proponents of an expanded ECU medical school and private college representatives has been mentioned by some Chapel Hill partisans as part of the whole debate. But a private college spokesman strongly denied any vote-swapping suggestions, saying he didn't "have to" resort to those tactics.

The board of governors recommended $75 per student in state aid for each Tar Heel student enrolled in a private college, based on need. The figure under present law is $25 per student.

Private colleges are seeking $200 per student. A legislative subcommittee rejected the governoring board's recommendation and voted for the $200 aid grant to go directly to the private schools. Of some significance is the fact that the man who made the motion in committee for the higher figure was Sen. White who wants ECU expanded and the fact that at present the student aid plan is in a top priority above all other university funding requests.

Virgil McBride, representative of the private colleges, denied any implication that White or other ECU backers were teaming up with private colleges by favoring higher state aid in exchange for future support for ECU. "I'd expect them (board of governors) to say that," McBride said, "but there's no truth to it."

THE AID TO private colleges proposed by the governing board would cost $1,025,000 a year. The aid requested by the private institutions would add another $3.7 million and if the higher figure is adopted, would mean that North Carolina is providing higher aid grants to private colleges than all other southeastern states except Georgia. And Georgia gives its aid of $400 per student to the student, not the institution as North Carolina would do under present legislation.

The political aspects of the medical school situation aside, from a practical standpoint the odds would seem to be in favor of a second four-year medical school at the Greenville campus.

With expansion at Chapel Hill as requested by the board of governors, medical experts say it would not be economically sound to go beyond a student body enrollment of 160, an increase of 50 from the present level.

AND WITH THAT expansion plan if it gets final legislative approval and the increase in state aid to students at the two private medical schools in this state (plus Meharry College in Nashville), the state would be spending in the range of the same amount of money as it would by putting a second four-year school at ECU—or some other location by some estimates.

Since ECU has a one-year school already in operation, the thought is that if the study commission comes up with a recommendation for another school, it will be suggested for Greenville.

"I wouldn't be at all surprised to see the commission recommend a second four-year school at Greenville," one member of the board of governors said. "From an economic standpoint and from need, the second school ought to go there."

So anyway one looks at the past and present, the focus from all sides right now is on the study commission.

Voice Honors Won By ECU Students

Nine voice students in the East Carolina University School of Music were winners in the Southeastern Student Auditions of the National Association of Teachers of Singing at Hollins College, Roanoke, Va., last weekend.

The students were among 172 student singers from the Carolinas and the Virginias who participated in the event. A total of $500 in awards were given.

ECU graduate students Betty Aldridge, Dianne Braak and [redacted] won the only three awards given in the graduate category of the audition finals.

ECU undergraduates Cheryl Berry and Debra Johnson won two of the final awards given in the junior-senior college women category.

Winners of preliminary awards also included ECU students Melissa Thrasher, Rosalyn Barlowe, Jacqueline Somers and Carolyn Ward.

The voice majors are students of Gladys White, Virginia Linn and Antonia Dalapas of the ECU voice faculty.

Oklahoma's first military post was Ft. Gibson, established in 1824.

Betty Friedan To Appear In Debate At ECU

Feminist Betty Friedan, author of the best-selling "The Feminine Mystique," will appear in a debate at East Carolina University April 10.

She will speak on behalf of the women's liberation movement in a lecture entitled "Human Liberation: A Two-Sex Revolution."

Speaking on the negative side will be Lucianne Goldberg, founder of the "Pussycat League," an anti-liberation organization. Her subject will be "The Female Identity Crisis."

The program, scheduled for 8 p.m. in Wright Audotorium, is a special added event to the 1972-73 Student Union Lecture Series.

Army Takes Cook Out Of Kitchen To Portray 'Popeye' For Children

By PRESTON McGRAW

FT. HOOD, Tex. (UPI) — Spec. 6 Robert D. Saling, a GI cook who looks so much like the comic strip character "Popeye" that he feels he has to publicly defend spinach, has been taken out of the kitchen by the Army and put to work entertaining kids.

Saling has spent most of his 22-year hitch in the Army slinging hash in messhalls in Vietnam, Germany and the United States. Recently the Army made him entertainment director for the Boy Scouts of America at Ft. Hood, changing his staff sergeant rank to specialist sixth class.

The Army does not restrict his work to Scouts whose fathers are in the Army. Saling also does shows for 4-H clubs, the Girl Scouts and other organizations for youngsters. In December, Saling did 25 shows in 24 days for the kids at Ft. Hood and Killeen, Tex., the nearest city.

Saling's two adopted sons, avid comic book readers, noticed his resemblance to Popeye seven years ago while he was brushing his teeth with his cook's cap on.

Hadn't Noticed Resemblance

Saling tried his face out in the mirror with a corncob pipe in his mouth and was surprised he had not noticed the resemblance before. He bought a couple of sailor suits and has been entertaining kids and soldiers ever since.

Sometimes Saling does a 10-minute act by himself. Sometimes his act is part of an hour show, which he puts together, using other performers. Saling usually comes out on roller skates, falls all over the place to get the laughs started and goes into a tap dance.

For especially young audiences, he holds spinach eating contests. Saling knocks off a bowl of steaming spinach himself and the kids follow his example.

"One kid ate a bowl with tears in his eyes," Saling said.

As for himself, Saling said: "I don't have to worry about being strong. I love spinach."

He also feels he has some qualifications as a sailor. His Army travels have taken him across the North Sea, the Atlantic, the Pacific, the South Sea and the South China Sea.

He also gets a good deal of mail from kids who have seen him.

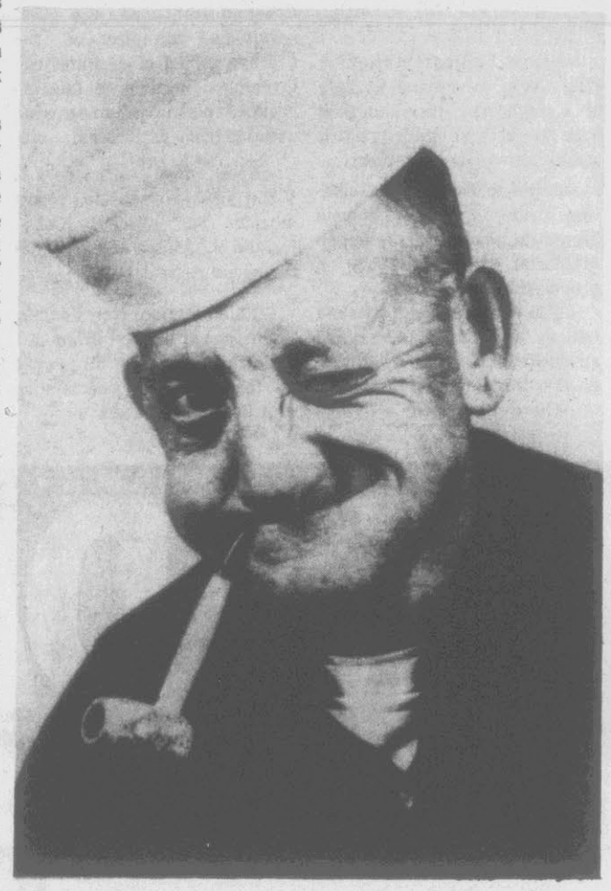

A little boy in a nursery in Killeen invited him home. "My daddy beat me up last night and now I want you to beat my daddy up," the boy said. Saling declined the invitation.

Would Like A Girl

Saling is a native of East Liverpool, Ohio. His adopted sons are Robert, 12, and David, 13. Saling and his wife, who does not look like Olive Oyl, the cartoon strip character's girl friend, would now like to adopt a girl.

With 22 years in the service, Saling could retire at the age of 49. But he is not considering retirement.

"A person getting out of the service at my age couldn't do anything else," he said. "What I'm doing is pleasant work, not too hard. One of these days I'll get out and have something to do."

ROBERT D. SALING, a cook who looks so much like "Popeye" that he feels he has to defend spinach, has been taken out of the kitchen by the Army and put to work entertaining kids. (UPI Telephoto)

Trend To Big Bills By Counterfeiters

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Mrs. Barbara Schulze, a grocery store cashier in Wichita Kan., can spot a counterfeit bill faster than you can say "bogus."

She has proven her skill twice in recent months, mainly because, she said, "I just don't want to get stuck with one."

Other persons in Midwestern cities where there has been a recent increase in the bad bill population have not been so fortunate. Some have lost the week's grocery money or carfare by being the last person to accept a bad bill before the Treasury Department seized it and stamped a big purple "Counterfeit" across the face.

"We notice an increase in counterfeit money when money's hard to come by, when people are hard up for jobs," said Lawrence Short, special agent in charge of the Secret Service's Kansas City office, which covers all of Kansas and most of Missouri.

Another factor, Short said, is "that when we make one counterfeiting case, it turns other people on to it. Somebody who hasn't given counterfeiting much thought, this kind of gives him the impetus."

The trend in counterfeiting has been toward printing more in bigger denominations.

Most of the gradual increase which the Service has noted over the past 10 years in counterfeiting activity can be attributed to the bigger stakes involved. Inflation plays a role too, by driving a counterfeiter's expenses higher so that he needs to print more bad money to make a profit.

Twenty years ago, Short explained, a counterfeiter was most likely to print $5 bills. Ten years ago it was $10 bills; now it is $20 bills.

According to the Secret Service, making and circulating bad bills often involves several distinct levels of operation: the men who set up the deal, hire the printer and sell the money to distributors, and the distributors who in turn recruit persons to pass the money to the usually unsuspecting public.

Spokesman Urges Preservation Of America's Past

By JOSEPH M. CHAPMAN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — America's greed is destroying its heritage, warns a leader of the effort to protect the nation's past.

"We Americans must decide if we want to preserve what we have or if we just want to pave it over, high-rise it and factory it," James Biddle, president of the National Trust for Historic Preservation, said in an interview.

"We've got to decide at what point your land ceases to be your land, at what point you must yield to over-all planning," Biddle said.

"It is the economic pressures that are the most destructive for preservation. Our philosophy at present seems to be that for land the best use is its highest development, the most profitable use, that there are not other values of equal importance.

"We find in the preservation business that our biggest problem is the belief that if it's good, it's got to make money."

Biddle said alternatives must be found to destroying remnants of America's past, that if a building no longer can be used for its original purpose, then new uses should be found.

Preservation efforts cover not only buildings, Biddle said, but such relics of bygone days as San Francisco's cable cars, the paddlewheel riverboat "Delta Queen," and covered bridges.

Founded in 1949 and chartered by Congress, the National Trust for Historic Preservation acts as a clearing house and center for efforts to save the fabric of the past.

Trusts Owns 12 Sites

The trust itself owns 12 historic estates and is in the process of closing the purchase of another. The organization not only gives moral support to preservation groups across the nation, but also loans and matching grants.

"It's amazing how a small amount of money from a national organization such as the Trust can generate so much enthusiasm in a community," Biddle said.

The problem of saving famous old estates is difficult, but Biddle says preservation of structures in central cities is even tougher, one reason being that developers go to great lengths to conceal plans to replace historic buildings.

Biddle sees some changes, but believes those changes are not coming fast enough to save much of the nation's past. One-third of the 16,000 buildings currently listed by the federal government as worthy of preservation already have been destroyed.

In many cities, historic buildings are endangered both by zoning and economic pressures. One example is the recently-razed Chicago Stock Exchange, a 13-story building designed by Louis Sullivan.

Biddle said the demolition of the Chicago Stock Exchange was inevitable because it was only 13 stories in an area where 40 stories are permitted.

Urban renewal often has produced "shining new skyscrapers and desolation all around," he said. In city after city, the results of poor planning and neglect are evident.

Housing Vacant

In St. Louis, much of the housing erected under an urban renewal plan is vacant because of poor planning, and many of the buildings will be torn down "so they can have more open space," Biddle said.

"In Detroit, it is incredible what was allowed to happen in the inner city area," he said. "There are bank buildings, parking lots and vacant lots. People live miles and miles out."

Detroit's waterfront was razed with no thought given to preservation and what many people consider a tasteless renewal project will be erected, he said. "There was little effort made to preserve buildings related to the human scale."

"Preservation is just as important to the individual as clean air and clean water," Biddle said. "After all, we spend 80 per cent of our lives in buildings and on streets."

He said many older buildings that are demolition targets are "perfectly usable" and give variety to the street scene, "rather than having every city look like a truncated New York City."

According to Biddle, "The property tax is the most destructive tax to preservation. It can force people out of their homes. The next step is to jam all of it together and put as much on the land as you can.

"Bulldozing is not the solution to anything."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Trust for Historic Preservation lists the following examples of danger to America's heritage:

—The U.S. Capitol, threatened by a proposal to extend the west front—the only remaining portion of the original exterior—to provide new congressional offices.

—Grand Central Station in New York, threatened by talk of a high-rise office building over the present station which would destroy its character.

—Potomac Park in Washington, site of the Lincoln Memorial and the Jefferson Memorial, threatened by a proposed highway route.

—The old Washington Post Office, a romanesque revival structure built in 1897, threatened with demolition.

—The Delta Queen, a Mississippi River paddlewheel boat, threatened because it cannot meet fire safety provisions.

—The Mission Inn, Riverside, Calif., a 19th Century hotel threatened although there is a proposal to save it by converting it into a cultural community with apartments, shops and theaters.

— The Reliance Building, Chicago, one of the last surviving examples of the Chicago school of architecture, threatened because it fails to produce the maximum revenue possible from its location.

—Hotel Del Coronado, a Victorian-style seaside resort outside San Diego, Calif., located on land so valuable that tax pressure threatens it.

—Union Station, New London, Conn., one of the last grand old-style rail terminals, threatened by the continued consolidation of American railroads.

Participated In NCSU Session

Charles E. Russell of Greenville participated recently in a session at N. C. State University aimed at strenghthening State's School of Education with private funds.

A director of the NCSU Education Foundation, Russell took part in the launching of a campaign to raise $100,000 in a short-term intensive drive. A long-range goal for millions was set.

According to State Chancellor John T. Caldwell, the NCSU Education Foundation is the tenth private foundation organized at NCSU since 1942. Total income of all 10 has passed the $23 million mark, he said, "making the difference between a modest land-grant university and an excellent university."

Tomorrow Is Today At Newest Engineering Center

By LES SEAGO
Associated Press Writer

TULLAHOMA, Tenn. (AP) — Tomorrow is today and next week may arrive any minute at the wind tunnels of the Air Force's Arnold Engineering Development Center.

Not far from where ancient Cherokee forts once stood, in a region now known for its production of Tennessee sippin' whisky, engineers armed with some $800 million in test equipment are continually peering deep into the aeronautical future.

In one of the center's 40 test facilities, a 35-ton assembly nicknamed the "Blue Max" has been hooked up to a prototype jet engine to give the engineers an accurate picture of its performance before it goes into service in the Air Force's new F15 Eagle Fighter.

Just across an equipment-cluttered aisle, in another engine test tunnel, hangs the advanced jet engine that will power the Air Force's still-on-the-drawing-board B1 bomber.

Other projects underway at the Arnold Center range from testing space hardware to work on air pollution problems.

Recently the Air Force let a $2.5 million contract for the initial design of another engine test facility big enough to handle jet engines expected after 1980. Nobody really knows how much the new facility will cost when — and if — completed, center officials say.

"A lot of people look at all the money we spend here and they ask, since we've been flying for what — 70 years? — are we still so ignorant that we've got to go on testing?" mused Col. Ward E. Protsman, commander of the 20-year-old test center.

"And the answer is, 'Yes.' We are still ignorant about a surprising lot ... and if we're to progress, we've got to go on testing before we fly," the lanky, greying ex-fighter pilot went on.

Air Force spokesmen and officials of Aro, Inc., the civilian firm that operates the center for the Air Force, point to accidents such as the recent explosion during an engine test as justification for their work.

A Pratt and Whitney F-100-PW-100 turbo fan engine, designed to power the F-15, destroyed itself while running at 1.2 times the speed of sound — about 900 mph — at a simulated altitude of 2,000 feet.

The accident, the second such failure of the same engine design in three weeks, has cast a pall over the entire F-15 program. The Eagle, now undergoing test flights in California, is supposed to be the Air Force's first-line jet fighter of the 1980s.

"Here we lost the engine," said Bob Boyles, a member of the Aro managing director's staff, last week after newsmen were permitted to inspect the accident site. "But if it had been in an aircraft, we'd have lost the aircraft and possibly the crew."

Even as Pratt and Whitney representatives and Air Force engineers were huddled around the blackened wreckage of the $2 million handmade engine last week, other engineers were continuing the F15 test program with a second prototype of the F-100 mounted on the "Blue Max."

The Blue Max — it comes by its name because of its color and size — is properly an engine inlet simulator.

Boyles, who accompanied newsmen on a visit to the Center's site of the engine mishap, lifted a corner of the tight security blanket that cloaks much of what goes on at the center and explained that the Max is a life-sized duplication of the Eagle's engine intake.

Once jet airplanes could operate satisfactorily with merely a simple airscoop to feed the jet engine's gaping maw. Higher speeds and the accompanying greater altitudes and tremendous heats made possible by the newer engines make design of the air scoop a critical part of the overall aircraft design. As jets increased in complexity, the engines have become more temperamental.

The ducts feeding the Eagle's twin 25,000 pound engines have moveable ramps and flaps, controlled by computers, to regulate the air to the engine.

In the Blue Max, Arnold Center engineers can duplicate the operation of the engine inlet while running the engine at speeds well above Mach (the speed of sound) under conditions the aircraft might not experience in years of flying.

In one brief test period, Boyles explains, the engine test tunnel can provide altitudes ranging from sea level to above 100,000 feet, arctic blasts and tropical heat, rain, snow or ice.

The Blue Max complex, Boyles said, is connected to one of the center's omnipresent computers which can overwhelm the engineers with data — some 1,500 items in one test run.

"In a test aircraft," Boyles said, "You'd be lucky to get 25. And we can do it cheaper and safer."

It costs about $2,400 an hour to test an engine in one of Arnold's wind tunnels. But, Boyles said, it would cost almost that much to fly a jet aircraft for an hour. The cost of test equipment, crew and auxiliary aircraft flying chase missions would run the cost much higher, he said.

Arnold Center, named for the late Gen. H. H. (Hap) Arnold, who commanded the Air Forces in World War II, went into operation with a single wind tunnel in 1953.

Since then, the center, with little fanfare, has been involved in virtually every step forward in the aerospace field. Arnold has conducted tests on ballistic missiles, new jet engines, giant transports such as the C5A, the Apollo series rockets and "quiet" jet engines. The center was about to begin testing on the supersonic transport when the project was killed by Congress.

Now, however, Arnold officials say they are about to reach the limit of their capabilities to stay ahead of the engineers.

"We've got an ongoing construction program devoted to improving the facilities themselves," Boyles said, "but we're limited to size ..."

The Center performed much of the pre-flight testing on the huge TF-39 bypass jet engine that powers the C5A.

"That was when we knew we were going to have to have the ASTF Aeropropulsion Systems Test Facility for which a design contract was recently let)," Boyles continued. "We're limited to testing about 30,000 to 40,000 pounds of thrust engines and they're talking about 50,000 to 60,000 pounds."

"We feel like this place has paid for itself many times over," Protsman added. "This is a national resource because probably half of what we have here doesn't exist anywhere else in the country. We think we're doing something important ... we know we are."

Real-Life Nightmare For Icelandic Island's People

STREAMS OF GLOWING LAVA from erupting Helgafjell Volcano roll into the harbor at Heimaey Island, Iceland. Today, the future of the islanders is uncertain. (UPI Telephoto)

By KARI JONASSON

VESTMANNAEYJAR, Heimaey Island, Iceland (UPI) — It was a mild night and most of the 5,200 residents of this island fishing town in the North Atlantic slept with their windows open.

At 1 a.m. the night turned to terror. Slumbering Helgafjell Volcano, dormant for 6,000 or 7,000 years, roared back to life —and fire poured down on the quiet homes.

"At first I thought it was just a fire somewhere nearby," Asta Theodorsdottir, 32, said. "But when I looked at the Helgafjell, I saw she was alive, spurting lava, exploding—a firework so fantastic that I had to pinch my arm to see if I was dreaming."

It was no dream, but the beginning of a real-life nightmare that has seen much of the town destroyed by fire and buried under tons of black volcanic ash and lava since the eruption Jan. 23.

And the Helgafjell is still erupting.

Officials in Vestmannaeyjar and in the Icelandic capital of Reykjavik, 73 miles to the northwest, had planned for the Helgafjell's possible return. So an evacuation plan was put into effect within hours.

Before the first day was over, most of the islanders had been shuttled to safety by a fleet of fishing trawlers and aircraft touching down and taking off from a tiny airstrip.

Taken to Capital

The islanders, who had to leave their belongings behind, were taken to Reykjavik where authorities provided schools and hotels as emergency centers for those who could not get lodging with relatives.

Today their future is uncertain.

The Icelandic government had promised to rebuild their homes as soon as the eruptions subside, but this project now seems unlikely.

Geologists say the Helgafjell will eventually stop erupting but they do not know when. The eruptions could conceivably go on for years, they say.

Sigurdur Thorarinsson, Iceland's leading geologist, said, "The lava production is so intense that the lava will threaten the town center if it starts flowing westward or toward the houses."

Other geologists say that even if the eruptions subside, people or animals cannot live on the island for several years for health reasons.

Haroun Tazieff of Belgium, a volcano expert who led a United Nations expedition to the island, said he thought the island would eventually disappear under volcanic ash, choke in its own gases or perish in a gigantic explosion.

However, many islanders cling to a faint hope that they will return to their homes.

Gyda Steingrimsdottir, a 38-year-old mother of three who now lives in Reykjavik with her family, said, "If possible, we will, of course, go back.

"But if we cannot return, I think the majority of the islanders wish to live in the same town or build up a new town where we can live together as before and under similar circumstances."

Economy Damaged

The Helgafjell's eruption has dealt a serious blow to Iceland's economy. Vestmannaeyjar was the capital of the country's fishing industry, which accounts for about 80 per cent of the nation's exports.

The government of Olafur Johannesson estimates the loss to the fishing industry as one billion kronur ($10 million). Recovery workers are anxious to save 400 million kronur ($4 million) in fishing industry equipment before the entire island is lost.

Sweden, Norway, Finland and Denmark have pledged at least 100 million Danish kronor ($16 million) in aid to the islanders. The United States sent volunteers from its base at Keflavik.

The once prosperous island is now only a smoking and shaking piece of land populated by a few hundred recovery workers.

They drive their bulldozers and trucks over makeshift roads on top of buried houses with chimneys sticking up here and there out of the black ash.

Last month, the western side of the Helgafjell collapsed and sent thousands of tons of rock, lava and mud tumbling toward the town. The debris filled a valley that served as a barrier between the volcano and the city center. It piled up into a hill 220 yards high just 160 yards from the center of town.

Should that hill begin moving again, the entire harbor area of Vestmannaeyjar and its fishing plants would be buried. The fate of the island would be sealed.
