Peacekeeping Helicopters Again Communist Target

By LYNN C. NEWLAND
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — Communist

forces shot at two more peacekeeping helicopters in the Mekong Delta today, the Saigon government reported, and the Canadians said they are thinking of quitting observer sites in Communist territory.

The South Vietnamese said six rounds of ground fire hit a South Vietnamese helicopter ferrying members of the Joint Military Commission, composed of the Viet Cong and South Vietnam. It was forced to land at Vi Thanh, a Viet Cong stronghold, but officials said nobody was hurt.

The other chopper, carrying representatives of the four-nation International Commission of Control and Supervision, was fired on near Can Tho but was not hit. The international commission is composed of Canada, Indonesia, Poland and Hungary.

Nine persons were killed Saturday when an Air America helicopter flying for the international commission was shot down in Communist territory in the northwestern part of the country. Another commission helicopter made an emergency landing nearby without injury to its occupants.

Those killed in the crash included the two American pilots, a Filipino crewman, a Canadian, an Indonesian, two Hungarians and two Viet Cong officers.

A Canadian official said today that his contingent to the peacekeeping group is considering withdrawing its truce observer teams from Viet Cong areas because of Saturday's deaths.

He said a decision would not be made until an investigation has been completed. But Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau said in Ottawa that it would not carry out its threat to quit the international commission because of one such incident.

The Viet Cong expressed "deep regret" for the deaths but claimed the helicopters strayed from their prescribed path "into an area where war activities exist."

Maj. Gen. Duncan A. McAlpine, chief of the Canadian military delegation denied the Viet Cong charge that the helicopters Saturday were off course. He said they were following a flight pattern approved by the Viet Cong, and the helicopter that was shot down was hit by a heat-seeking missile. Meanwhile, the Viet Cong said earlier reports that the aircraft was hit by a missile were "a distortion of the truth."

The Saigon government continued to charge the Communists with cease-fire violations.

Liquor Bill Debate Slated To Highlight Assembly

RALEIGH (AP) — A heated debate on the issue of liquor by the drink is expected to highlight North Carolina's legislative deliberations this week.

A showdown House vote is expected Tuesday or Wednesday on a liquor by the drink bill that won the approval of the House Alcoholic Beverage Control Committee last week.

The bill calls for a statewide referendum on liquor by the drink. If the people approve mixed drinks, counties which have ABC systems could vote on having liquor by the drink in restaurants.

The Senate, meanwhile, has on its calendar for Tuesday, a House-passed conservation measure. It would give North Carolina citizens the right to bring suits to force state environmental agencies to enforce their standards of environmental quality.

Senate Judiciary Committee may debate the issue of capital punishment this week. The committee has before it a House approved bill that would abolish the death penalty for all crimes except murder. Rape, arson and first degree burglary which are now punishable by death would be punished by life imprisonment.

A public hearing on a bill that would boost the state's minimum wage from $1.60 to $1.80 per hour will be held by the House and Senate Manufacturing and Labor committees Tuesday. The measure would not apply to part-time employees who work 16 hours or less per week if the establishment where they are employed has three or less full-time employees.

Up for House consideration during the week probably will be a bill to restore a minimum score of 950 on the National Teachers Examination or similar test as a requirement for teacher certification in North Carolina. The Senate-passed bill was approved by the House Education Committee Wednesday.

A bill to require motion pictures of drunken driving suspects is scheduled for consideration in the Senate.

Strain Eased On Big River Levees

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Part of the Mississippi River streamed into big Lake Pontchartrain today to ease the strain on levees protecting New Orleans from "one of the big floods of the century."

Will Air School Budget

The annual budget for the Greenville City Schools is to be given a public presentation on Thursday night at 8:00 p.m. in the library of Wahl-Coates Elementary School.

At that time, members of the school staff and members of the city Board of Education will be on hand to discuss the budget with interested persons.

Public presentation of the budget prior to adoption was started last year as a means of allowing citizens an opportunity to voice opinions prior to adoption of the annual budget.

At the public presentation, the results of workshop studies by the board relative to the budget will be made known and suggestions heard from persons in attendance.

Adoption of the budget will take place later in the spring.

Precipitation Expected Prolong Tar's Flooding

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
Saturday's rainfall should not have a significant effect on the level of the already-swollen Tar River here, according to a spokesman at the National Weather Service in Raleigh.

Larry Windt, station hydrologist, said that the river crested here on Saturday at around 14 feet or about one foot above flood stage.

Windt noted that the river, although higher than normal, will probably not rise a great deal more as a result of the weekend rain but he added that the heavy precipitation should tend more to prolong the situation than change it.

The flood forecaster, pointing out that "what we are having now is quite a bit of lowground flooding," said that his river level figures, supplied to him by a local observer, are different from those supplied by the Greenville Utilities Commission weather station due "probably to a difference in reference points" as well as the gauges used.

Lenwood Hudson, supervisor at the local station, noted that the river level here is measured according to sea level, rather than depth of the water. He explained that the river depth level, as measured by the National Weather Service, would probably give a different reading.

The weather station here reported this morning's river level, as of 10:15, at 11.7 feet, sea level, and falling. Windt said that he would guess, according to his gauges and references, that the level would be around 14 feet.

The spokesman at the station here noted that the river level at 8 a.m. today measured 11.8 feet and falling, noting the amount of drop in the two-hour period.

For the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m., the high temperature read 61 degrees while the low was recorded at 46. No measurable rainfall occurred during the period, he said.

For the 24 hour period that ended Sunday at 8 a.m., the high reached 68 degrees and the low was only 50 degrees. Rainfall for the period was measured at 1.35 inches and the river level stood at 12.1 and holding at 8 a.m. yesterday morning.

No rainfall was recorded for the period ending Saturday morning at 8 and the river level was 12 feet and rising. High temperature was 66 degrees and the low dipped to 49, he said.

Bombing, Hijack Try At Nicosia

By ALEX EFTY
Associated Press Writer
NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Arab guerrillas blew up the Israeli ambassador's residence in the heart of Nicosia today and tried to hijack an Israeli airliner at Nicosia International Airport.

The guerrillas engaged in running gun battles both outside the ambassador's residence and at the airport with Cypriot police and Israeli security guards.

A government spokesman said one Arab was killed and two were captured at the airport. A fourth Arab holed up somewhere in the airport terminal building and exchanged fire with police and troops after the incident.

One Cypriot policeman on guard outside the ambassador's residence was shot and seriously wounded by the guerrillas who planted a massive explosive charge at the front door of the three-story apartment building.

The facade collapsed. Ambassador Rahamim Timor and his family who were in their second-floor apartment escaped unhurt.

Witnesses at the airport said three Arab guerrillas in a gray car drove at high speed across the tarmac, through an open gate and, firing guns, headed toward an El Al Viscount about to take off for Israel.

The three men jumped out of their car and tried to seize the plane.

Israeli security guards inside the aircraft opened fire and killed one instantly.

Cypriot police also joined in the gun battle that ensued.

Within minutes the whole terminal building was cleared of passengers and staff, as bullets whizzed in all directions.

No Information On Missing GI

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon says it has no information to indicate that a missing American soldier is a captive in a Cambodian prison camp as claimed by his mother.

Mrs. Phyllis Allard of Chicago, in a copyrighted story in the New Hampshire Sunday News, said she saw her son in January 1972 for about two minutes. "I touched him and I talked to him," she said.

The Pentagon said her son, Spec. 4 Richard M. Allard, was listed Aug. 28, 1967, as missing, not as a result of hostile action. A spokesman said Allard's name has not appeared on lists of captives who were released or who died in captivity.

"We're not speculating on the possible," said the spokesman. "We're left with only one thing. We just don't know."

Mrs. Allard said she told her story after the Rev. Paul Lindstrom, chairman of the Remember the Pueblo Committee, claimed that 200 Americans missing in action were still held captive in Cambodia and Laos.

The Pueblo committee was organized during the North Korean captivity in the late 1960s of the crew of the U.S. Navy intelligence ship.

The State Department says no "credible information" has come to light to support Lindstrom's claim.

Mrs. Allard said that while at the prison camp to see her son, she saw a room filled with American prisoners.

The Pentagon claims all Americans held by the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese in Cambodia have been returned since the signing of the cease-fire agreement. Mrs. Allard says her son was held by the Pathet Lao.

Fuel For Cambodia

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — This capital's fuel shortage appeared to be nearing an end today. A second river convoy was steaming toward Phnom Penh and the government announced that its troops had reopened Highway 4, the city's only land link with the seaport of Kompong Som.

Two fuel tankers and a freighter were reported only miles from Phnom Penh at nightfall.

Three tankers and two freighters came into the capital Sunday, adding a week's supply of motor, cooking and lighting fuel to nearly empty reserves. Another two ships in Sunday's convoy were lost to Communist fire from along the Mekong River.

The two other tankers are expected to increase the reserves to nearly two weeks, and possibly end rationing.

McCord Said Ready To Involve Mitchell In Watergate Case

NEW YORK (AP) — Newsweek magazine says it has learned that a key Watergate witness is ready to announce that he was told John N. Mitchell's interest was piqued after he viewed documents photographed last May 30 at the Democratic National Committee headquarters.

Newsweek quoted an unnamed source Sunday as saying Watergate eavesdropper James W. McCord was prepared to tell a news conference that he had been told Mitchell ordered the June 17 raid after seeing the photographs.

McCord will say he was told by G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt, two others convicted in the Watergate breakin, that Mitchell cleared the plan for the intelligence operation and approved its $300,000 budget, Newsweek said.

Mitchell, then head of the Committee to Re-elect the President, has repeatedly denied having any part in the bugging and burglary at Watergate.

Newsweek's source quoted McCord as saying his assignments were to bug the Watergate headquarters, the headquarters of the Democratic party's presidential nominee, Sen. George McGovern; and party offices in Miami Beach's Fontainebleau Hotel during the Democratic National Convention.

1972 Said Worst Year Of Auto Recalls

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration said today 1972 was the worst year for defective automobile recalls, and then announced its own program of reporting on possible safety-related vehicle defects.

The agency said it would list each month new possible defects to "alert American consumers to vehicle safety problems at the earliest possible moment, just as soon as we believe they are serious enough to justify our formal investigation."

James E. Wilson, acting administrator of the federal safety agency, said, however, that an investigation of a problem did not mean a defect existed, "only that a safety-related problem has been reported with sufficient indications to justify a formal investigation."

The agency said nine investigations were started in January and February.

For January, the agency listed five investigations: into the deterioration of passenger-side seat belts in some Volkswagens because of contact with battery acid; a fire hazard in the 1972 Pontiac Grand Prix; an improperly torqued brake pedal shaft nut in 1972 Dodge light trucks; cracks in a rear suspension equalizer beam on various 1972 vehicles manufactured by the Hendrickson Manufacturing Co.; and an air brake hose problem in some 1972 vehicles made by Superior Coach Division.

February investigations were on a possible: steering lockup in Chevrolet Vegas, 1971 through 1973; clutch cable breakage in International Harvester Co. Scouts, 1970 through 1973; windshield wiper problems in Mercury Capris, 1970 through 1973, and gas tank leakage in some Harley Davidson motorcycles over an unspecified number of years.

Wilson said his agency would attempt to determine whether a vehicle defect caused the problems under investigation.

The agency said that, for 1972, automobile manufacturers recalled more than 12 million vehicles for correction of safety-related defects, the greatest number for any annual period.

Artists, Lectures, Travel Films 'Second To None'

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

For a decade, first under the name of the Fine Arts Program and in more recent years as the East Carolina Artists, Lecture and Travel-Film Series, the finest in music, dance, and lecturers, and travel films have been brought to the Greenville area under the sponsorship of the Student Union (formerly the Student Government).

Speaking about the program, and the direction it may take in future years, Rudolph Alexander explained several areas of ECU's major cultural undertaking.

"In quality," the Associate Dean of Student Affairs and Director of the ECU Union commented, "our program equals any in the country. Other colleges and universities may present more events each year, but none excels ours in quality."

Alexander, who has just returned from an international meeting on college and university entertainment held in San Francisco, said "a number of representatives from other universities told me personally they could not understand how we could assemble a program like ECU's for a $10 fee for five outstanding events."

Among major university representatives who Alexander said expressed amazement at ECU's scope of offering were those of the University of California at Berkeley, the University of Houston, the University of Michigan, and the University of Wisconsin at Madison.

The reason, as Alexander points out "is that students at ECU are subsidizing the series. The students not only pay a set activity fee, but in addition pay individually for tickets to events they attend."

Showing how the overall program works through student subsidy plus sale of tickets to the public, Dean Alexander cited the Artists Series—the major series of the three main categories—Artists, Lecture, and Travel-Adventure Films.

Cost Factor
"For example," Alexander said, "the booking costs of the five attractions scheduled for next year is approximately $30,000."

"The total seating capacity at Wright Auditorium, where these events are held," he continued, "is about 2,000 people."

"Each year, half the seats are reserved for students and faculty at ECU. The other 1,000 seats are allotted for the general public, with season tickets going on sale in advance."

Alexander emphasized the public ticket sale is not a profit-making proposition. "You can see, even if we sell every single seat (both those for ECU people and the general public), that the 2,000 seats at $10 each will only realize a total income of $20,000."

Alexander mentioned that in addition to contract costs, other expenses must be considered. "These include advertising costs, production costs, printing tickets. It works out that ticket sales only pay for about 50 per cent of the cost of the various programs."

Possible Change of Direction
Since the series, and particularly the more expensive Artists Series that include major orchestras, dance troupes and star individuals, are not designed as profit making ventures,

Alexander was asked what happens if the public failed to give support to the series.

"We've given a great deal of thought and consideration to what the Advisory Board feels the public prefers," Alexander answered. "If we don't have a capacity audience, this will necessitate phasing down the caliber of entertainment and the number of events we schedule."

"In short, if the public doesn't want to see the type of entertainment we're providing, not buying tickets, not attending, are ways to indicate their feelings."

Alexander indicated that the possibility of a change, a new direction, in programming might take place if the public is not responsive to the current programs.

"Instead of the programs such as we have now, we can instead change direction and make it solely what the students want," Alexander said.

Community Service
Over the years, the Artists, Lecture and Travel-Adventure Film Series have been. Alexander explained, one of the most vital services to the community made possible by the student body. "Especially for the past eight years, since we changed over to the Artists series with the finest entertainment available anywhere," Alexander stated, "this has given the people in the area an opportunity to hear and see top talent, not only from the U.S., but from throughout the world, without having to travel long distances."

Alexander said that although seating at Wright is not comparable to the best seats in a regular concert hall, it does equate to "reasonably good seats. Taken individually, it would be fair to say that tickets to only two of the five programs such as we have could not be had for anything less than $10 in most places."

Outstanding Fare
For the 1973-74 Artist Series, the program promises to be one of the most exciting ever held at ECU.

Our opener, on September 27, will be the famous Bayanihan Dance Company of the Philippines. In fact! Alexander mentioned, "their visit to Greenville will be their premiere appearance this year for their U.S. tour. They will be here a couple of days to practice and have agreed to press interviews. This is a beautiful company and one of the world's finest dance ensembles."

Another exceptional talent included in the forthcoming season will be an appearance by Marcel Marceau, the Frenchman acclaimed to be the greatest living pantomimist, "the genius of gesture." Marceau is scheduled here on March 7.

A major symphony orchestra, the Warsaw Philharmonic Orchestra, under the baton of Witold Rowicki, comes early in 1974, on January 17.

In addition to those three, there is also the pianist Philippe Entremont, one of the Europe's ranking virtuosi, who will be in concert on October 24; and the Paul Hill Chorale and Orchestra. Hill is noted for his presentation of music from America's past musical heritage. This event takes place on February 14, 1974.

Past Greats
A glance at some of the past programs at East Carolina University in the three series shows that a remarkable parade of individual personalities and groups have performed in Greenville.

A brief run-down in various entertainment fields shows:
—Symphony orchestras—Pittsburgh; Czech Philharmonic; Stockholm; London; Cleveland; and others.

—Dance Companies—Royal Winnipeg Ballet; Jose Greco; The National Ballet; Sierra Leone National Dance Troupe (ECU's first topless dancers); and others.
—Pianists—Arthur Rubinstein; Van Cliburn, Grant

Johannesen; Roger Williams, and others.

—Guitarists—Andres Segovia and Charlie Byrd.
—Vocalists—Jerome Hines; Robert Merrill; Beverly Wolff (several appearances) and Anna Moffo.
—Choral Groups—Vienna Choir Boys and Roger

Wright, such as The Beach Boys; Fred Waring (three times); Julie London; The Carpenters; The Smothers Brothers; and the Kingston Trio.

Among country attractions, Homer and Jethro; Roy Clark; Roy Acuff; Flatt and Scruggs) and the Earl Scruggs Revue have drawn enthusiastic crowds.

Lecturers have included Drew Pearson; Bennett Cerf; Harrison Salisbury; Julian Bond; Vincent Price; and a sizeable list of U.S. Senators—Barry Goldwater; Albert Gore; Karl Mundt; Peter Dominick, etc. Lecturers have also included journalists Hugh Sidey and Jack Anderson.

Alexander recalled a few memories of interesting behind-the-scenes events that inevitably occur as the famous and near famous come and go—Andres Segovia humming and practicing on his guitar on the ride from the airport; Duke Ellington arriving in a limousine from Greenville, South Carolina; men sitting down front for the Julie London show; Flip Wilson's Wagner Chorale.

—Big Bands—Louis Armstrong; Ray Charles; Duke Ellington, Count Basie; Lionel Hampton; and others.
—Violinists—Isaac Stern and cellist Leonard Rose.

Among special attractions who have been here are Flip Wilson and Pat Paulsen, comedians.
Popular attractions programs have accounted for many notables on stage at appearance here on his first college date; and Jose Greco firing a dancer backstage at Wright.

The reason some well-known performers have not performed here, Alexander pointed out, is usually one of finance.

Glenn Campbell, for example comes with a $50,000 fee tag—almost double the ECU annual budget and more expensive than a major symphony, a noted pianist, and a couple of other programs combined. Other acts that could not be brought to ECU because of budget limitations but that were considered include Bob Hope, Lawrence Welk, Andy Williams and Johnny Cash—all at $25,000 per performance except Welk, whose fee is $30,000.

Youthful Support
"We'd like to see more area young people support these series," Alexander said. "There is one outstanding example of such support that I feel is really admirable, worthy of citing."

"More than 60 high school students of Carteret County are season ticket holders," he remarked. "These young people have to travel from Morehead City and Beaufort to attend the programs here. I see this as a delightful indication of young people taking advantage of cultural outlets available to them." Alexander said the interest shown by this contingent of students had been stimulated by Larry Stith, head of the Music Education Department of Carteret County schools.

"I'd love to see some one in Pitt and surrounding counties take the lead with young people the way Larry has done," Alexander remarked. "I feel it would make a big difference."

Reserved Seating
To make possible choice of seats for ticket purchasers, the auditorium has been divided into nine sections. This will permit patrons to indicate their choice of sections (but not individual seats) either on the main floor or in the balconies.

Sale of season tickets at the $10 price will end on September 27, the opening date of the 1973-74 season. Thereafter, tickets to individual events will be: For the Bayanihan Dance Company and the Warsaw Philharmonic Orchestra, $5.00; Marcel Marceau, $4.00; and Philippe Entremont and the Paul Hill Chorale and Orchestra, $3.00.

Suggestions Welcome
"Another point I'd like to stress," Alexander said in conclusion, "is that we're always open to suggestions. Every one given us is taken into consideration."

He explained that before contracts are let, all ideas and suggestions are considered by the Advisory Board. "This board, while it has no authority," Alexander said, "is instrumental in giving us input from all sections of the public in the area."

The board is composed of persons from different towns and areas with Eastern North Carolina. "Our programming in the future," Alexander concluded, "will, as I said earlier, depend a great deal on the interest shown by the public. The entire program is carefully considered with an aim to present a well balanced, entertaining program of top talent. It's up to the public, whether it will remain as it is now, or take a new direction."

DEAR ABBY: My assets: I am 18, have long blonde hair, blue eyes, am 5 feet, 3, with measurements of 37-26-38. I graduated from high school with honors. I own over $700 worth of jewelry [gifts from my parents], a stereo, a color TV, and a closet full of beautiful clothes.

I got my driver's license and am given the use of the family car whenever I want it. I've gone steady six times, have received five class rings, a bracelet, a necklace, a sweetheart ring, five and a half dozen roses, two boxes of candy and many, many love letters.

Now, why am I miserable? I'll tell you why. Because I live in a small town, and I mean really small, and there is no one to date. I've gone through 40 boys in 2½ years! I found only one that I wanted to keep. And he didn't want ME!

I'm not stuck up, but I'm never satisfied with anything. As soon as I get it I don't want it. I'm proud of the fact that I've never gone all the way.

All my friends have dates, but I don't have anyone and I'm so jealous I could die. Please help me. WALLFLOWER

DEAR WALLFLOWER: [You sound more like a tiger lily to me.] Unless some new talent comes to town, you had better start redating some of your rejects. Perhaps when you look at them through more mature eyes, they'll look better to you. And you to them.

DEAR ABBY: My mother is a 46-year-old widow who has been seeing a very nice man her age for four months. My older brother thinks Mamma is being disloyal to Dad, who has been dead for a year. My brother says "Mamma's lived her life."

Abby, Mamma raised nine kids practically single-handed. Dad got sick seven years ago. The last three he hardly left his bed and Mamma nursed him like a baby, knowing it was just a matter of time and he'd die. The last year was awful, but Mamma never complained and she did all she could to make Dad happy and comfortable.

My brother says Mamma should have respected the memory of Dad enough to stay home for a whole year and wear black. I say Mamma is entitled to as much happiness as she can get now. How can I convince my brother that he is wrong?
ON MAMMA'S SIDE

DEAR ON: You may not be able to. But don't worry about it. Your mother did all she could for your father while he was alive, and any happiness she finds now she's earned.

DEAR ABBY: I just found out that a real neat guy I used to know in high school is stationed at a Naval base near here. [He's an officer.] I haven't been in touch with him for a couple of years, but I hear he's not married anymore. [Neither am I.]

I've always had a thing for this guy, and he liked me, too, but the timing was never right. Anyway, now that we're both free do you think it would be a good idea if I drove over to the base and surprised him?

I'm afraid if I called him up first he might think I was chasing him.
BROWNIE

DEAR BROWNIE: And if you just drove over to the base and "surprised" him what do you think he'd think? If I were you, I'd skip the surprise, and chase him on the telephone first.

Med School Issue Stirred Up

Things are swirling in the matter of the Carolina University School of Medicine and apparently most of the recent uproar is due to the inopportune resurrection of the N.C. Medical Society report recommending abolishment of the school.

The recommendation was prepared by the deans of the three existing medical schools and other officials.

The report brought a storm of protest.

Throughout much of the state, it was viewed as grossly unfair and provincial. Its effect was electric and indignation was quick to rise among citizens everywhere.

Dr. John R. Gamble, Jr. D-Lincoln, the only physician member of the Legislature, raised questions about many areas of the report. Included was the fact that Department of Labor statistics were years old and had been superseded by a report issued in the winter of 1972.

Dr. Gamble has also properly taken easterners to task for emphasizing regionalism in the quest for the school. We have been guilty of this, probably because we are here in the east and feelings on this matter run so high in the east. Certainly, however, the ECU medical school would serve the entire state and it is logical to assume that its graduates would spread throughout the state, including the east, to alleviate the physician shortage.

Finally the uproar raised the anger of a group of legislators to the point where a bill was introduced by Rep. Larry Eagles, D-Edgecombe, with a number of co-signers calling for a statewide referendum on a $50 million bond issue to finance the school.

Well, we are doubtful that the people should have to vote bonds for this essential project when there is adequate surplus on hand to finance it, but we certainly welcome this show of concern and enthusiasm on the part of these elected representatives in the face of the constant maneuverings to thwart the ECU medical school's development.

Someday, perhaps, the power structure is going to learn that the desire and determination to see the ECU medical school through to a successful conclusion is prevalent among the people of our state.

Power types operate best in government when there is an atmosphere of public apathy or ignorance. There is surely no atmosphere of apathy or ignorance on this particular issue and the power groups which have consistently fought the medical school would be well advised to recognized this.

Urges Church Political Role

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH—The church teaches concern for the poor and the imprisoned, but church members too seldom connect sermons from the pulpit with politics.

That linkage is vital to achieve goals of social and economic justice, said the Rev. Collins Kilburn.

"The legislature is the

From Pulpit To Politics

Kilburn, director of Social ministries for the council of churches, took on the lobbying role in the 1971 session. Previously, he was pastor of a Raleigh church. He still goes into the pulpit on occasion as a guest, and when he does the sermon is apt to deal with actions in the legislature.

That isn't meddling instead of preaching, he insisted. The responsibilities of citizenship, he said, are within the sphere of concern for religion. When he talks to lawmakers, Kilburn doesn't claim to speak with the combined voice of a million church people. There is a democratic process, offering participation from the ground up, through which the Council selects measures to support, he added.

Priorities are adopted at the Council's annual assembly. For this session, the package includes;

Package Reviewed

1. Penal reform, with particular attention to a community-based approach for juvenile corrections, and an incentive pay system for inmates.

2. Tax reform, looking to an equitable adjustment of the load according to ability to pay. If there is any tax repeal, Kilburn said, it should begin with the sales tax on food. Implicit in that position is opposition to removal of the soft drink tax, he added.

3. Social services, funding at 100 per cent of need for payments to families with dependent children, and supplemental state money to cover all recipients in the transfer to a federal program of aged and disabled.

4. Abolishment of the death penalty. Kilburn has counseled support for a compromise which would limit the crimes for which the death penalty could be imposed.

5. Migrant labor camps, raising standards for health and sanitation. Kilburn will report to the Council at its annual assembly in High Point on May 1. The record will show some success and some failure, he said.

A social order founded on justice and moral values is a long range goal, achieved only through sustained effort, he said. An awakening in the pew to political involvement is a first step, he added.

His presence on the legislative scene is evidence of a growing awareness in the churches of the need to address social and economic concerns with moral implications.

"Much more needs to be done," said Kilburn. "In many churches, the issues are never raised. We can be more effective as church members themselves become involved."

arena for decision. Church people must have in-pur with those who represent them if they are to exert any influence on decision-making," he explained.

Kilburn, an ordained minister, moves in the arena as a registered lobbyist. What distinguishes him from others of the breed prowling the State Legislative Building in his thin expense account and the North Carolina Council of Churches as his employer. His described his operation as the lobby for those who have no lobby—prisoners, welfare recipients, the elderly poor, the children of poverty.

On this behalf, he buttonholes lawmakers to urge votes for legislation given priority by the Council. He attends public hearings and committee meetings to follow the progress of bills. He reports to church leaders and encourages back-home contact with Representatives and Senators.

Troops Behind Him

The troops are behind him, although not so effectively mobilized. The Council includes 21 denominational groups, embracing some 5,000 congregations with total membership of more than one million.

Legislators receive a clergyman-lobbyist with courtesy and respect, Kilburn reported. He finds the job an exciting challenge, although the frustrations are sometimes enough to make a preacher curse.

"I have no illusions about our clout," said Kilburn. In practical terms, he acknowledged, politicians are not accustomed to listening seriously to spokesmen for the church on issues such as taxes, prison conditions, and social services.

"Traditionally, legislators have expected the church to be interested only when liquor and sex are involved. We have to overcome some of that attitude," he explained.

Changing View On Watergate?

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—The fact that H.R. (Bob) Haldeman, President Nixon's White House staff chief, went unannounced to Capitol Hill on March 28 and told a score of Republican Congressmen that he knew nothing whatever about the Watergate scandal may signal a long-overdue change in the White House Watergate game of unconcerned aloofness.

If so, the change will be praised by Republican politicians. The Republican party is in a growing mood of independence from the White House on the Watergate and attendant scandals, with minimum concern about political damage to President Nixon and maximum concern about its own skin.

Thus, the mere fact that the normally unapproachable Haldeman, heretofore remote from such mere mortals as Republican Congressmen, decided to venture into the chilly climate of the Capitol may be far more revealing of the inner Watergate fears now besetting the White House than the public pronouncements of Ron Ziegler, Mr. Nixon's press secretary.

The invitation to Haldeman from Rep. Howard W. Robison of New York, chairman of the liberal-leaning band of Republicans called the "Wednesday Group," went to the White House in January. It was accepted suddenly one week in advance of Haldeman's 5 p.m. appearance on March 28.

White House aides, who have been pushing a new policy of exposing key presidential assistants like Haldeman to informal congressional panels, say that the Watergate scandal had nothing to do with Haldeman's appearance. Perhaps But some of those present during Haldeman's session with the Wednesday Group sensed that Watergate was one reason the haughty Haldeman was extending a new hand of friendship.

The Congressmen learned nothing new about Watergate. As some of those present were starting to leave shortly before 6:30 that Wednesday evening, Haldeman was asked bluntly what he knew about it. In ten minutes' worth of reply, he said that it was difficult to deny something "that you aren't accused of" (presumably meaning that he himself has not been specifically accused of complicity in the Watergate break-in and bugging). He said even his wife has asked him about "secret funds" but that he never had a "secret fund."

The meeting broke up with some of those present feeling that, although Haldeman's appearance had been extremely welcome, far more was needed to end the dangerous split which is putting the White House on one side of the Watergate scandal and the rest of the Republican part on the other.

In short, Republican Congressmen who have to run for reelection in 1974 are thinking not about loyalty to their President in the enveloping scandal of the 1972 campaign but about their own political skins.

As one key conservative Republican Senator told us: "The only way for the Republican party to keep from getting badly hurt is for us to dig it all out."

That feeling, indeed, seems finally to be getting through to the White House. There are indications, for example, that White House counsel John W. Dean III has now forcefully proposed to Mr. Nixon that he and other White House aides who have been charged with complicity in Watergate should be permitted to testify before the Senate select committee headed by Sen. Sam Ervin, Jr., of North Carolina.

Dean's rationale: the President's claim of executive privilege, a claim

Strength For Today

IS JUSTICE ENOUGH? People often complain that they do not get their just deserts in life. This is true, and we can thank God that it is. Justice is a two-edged sword. If there were nothing but justice in the world, you and I would be in a sorry plight. If we received our just deserts on every occasion, we would be suffering punishment today for many evils which God in his mercy has overlooked. When we are disposed to complain and say that God has not given us as many blessings as we should have, we should look at the other side of the picture and become very conscious of the quality important reality, namely, that He has not held us fully accountable for all our mistakes and sins. Justice is no more perfect in this imperfect world than anything else. There is not as much justice in the world as we would desire, but there is infinitely more mercy than we deserve. Actually, the infallible working of strict justice in our lives could be more harmful to us than the presence of injustice. By Earl Douglass

The Meat Boycotters

WASHINGTON—It was the fifth day of our meat boycott and the family was sitting around the dining-room table wiping up the gravy from the cheese-and-turnip casserole that my wife had prepared for us. You could see the pride in the children's faces. They had survived almost a week without meat—and they knew they had struck a great blow for lower food prices. "I don't even miss meat," my daughter Jennifer said. "I don't even miss chicken," my daughter Connie agreed.

My son Joel said, "The voice of the consumer has been heard in the land." Then you all agree, I said, "that boycotts are the best way of showing our discontent over high prices." Everyone agreed. "The reason I raise the question," I said, "is that the telephone company is thinking of doubling the price of a call from 10 cents to 20 cents. This would be an increase of 100 per cent and I think if they do it we should boycott the telephone system. The family looked at me as if I had gone mad. "Boycott the telephone company?" Jennifer said. "But how could I talk to my friends?" "You could write them letters," I suggested. "No one writes anyone letters any more," Connie said. "Even if they did," Joel said, "they'd never be delivered."

My wife, who never knows when I'm kidding, said, "Are you serious about boycotting the phone company?" "Dead serious," I said. "We've got to bring them to their knees. We've got to bring the cost of a telephone call down, down, down."

"I won't do it," Jennifer shouted. "I won't give up the telephone." "You gave up meat," I said. "Meat is just food," she shouted. "The telephone is my life." Connie yelled, "We'd die without the telephone." Joel agreed. "Man has to communicate by phone or his ear will wither away." My wife said, "I'll give up one or the other but I won't give up both meat and the telephone."

"Nevertheless," I said, "if we're going to stick by our principles, we will have to boycott the telephone company, just as we will have to boycott the gasoline stations when they raise the price of gas."

"Raise the price of gas?" Joel said. "What am I going to do with my car?" "Keep it in the garage until the gasoline companies see the error of their ways."

"How do I get to school?" Connie said. "Take the bus."

"What's a bus?" Connie demanded. "Don't be smart," I said. "If we're going to give up meat because they raised the prices on us, we're going to give up the telephone and gasoline and, if they raise electricity, we'll give up air conditioning."

"But we have to have air conditioning," Jennifer said. "Look, prices are going up on everything. Why should we just sock it to the farmer? If we really want our voices heard, we've got to sock the phone company, the gasoline companies, the power companies and anyone else who thinks they can horse around with our household budget."

I say we're either in the boycott business for real or we get out of it altogether. Now what do you say?" My wife sighed, "I'll order a pork roast from the butcher tomorrow morning."

Going Up, Or Down?

By HAL BOYLE

Are you going up or down? Your status rarely if ever remains stationary. The main thing is, it is highly important to know which direction it is going.

corrective steps. How can you determine your real prestige in a society in which even your best friend won't tell you that you have had breath?

Well, there are ways. For example, you need worry no further about your status if — Your neighbors band together and throw a block party once a month in your honor.

Every time you drive up to your supermarket the manager rolls out a red carpet to your car door. The barbershop where you get your hair cut keeps a special chair with your name on it.

A genealogical society writes to tell you that they have discovered that you are the legitimate heir of a European royal family.

When you play golf at your club, the caddy asks you for your autograph.

You own your own pro football team, and sometimes the players let you play quarterback during practice sessions. Bartenders at two places have named drinks after you. Yes, big boy, if these things are true about you, you're in pretty solid.

But how do you tell when your prestige is slipping? Well, maybe it's about time you resigned from the human race if —

Quandary In Economic Policies

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — An economic enigma now presents the Nixon administration with a dilemma that seems to leave no way out except through a paradox.

That, neat as a knot, is the quandary in which the nation's economic leadership finds itself as prices and frustrations rise, as Congress grows impatient and critical, and as time runs out on pet economic theories.

The enigma is how an administration outspokenly dedicated to free enterprise has become so entangled in the economic machinery that the government, perhaps as much as supply-demand, has become a pricing determinant. There is growing evidence that the latest waves of inflation, the worst in two decades, are partly the result of price increases made in anticipation of stiffer economic controls or perhaps even a price freeze.

If this is so, an element may have been introduced into market decisions that could take years to remove. A freeze imposed now, for instance, could produce the same perplexing problems months later when removed.

Moreover, it might by then have distorted supply-demand ratios, since many producers might cease to expand production if they felt they couldn't obtain a fair price for their products. Very real shortages could result.

If the administration doesn't act now it faces the prospect of continued price increases by businessmen who, believing that it will eventually have to act, raise their prices in anticipation.

Either course causes problems. To impose controls would be a paradox of economic philosophy in which the belief remains in a market free of controls but the actions concedes the necessity of intervention.

To refrain from further restraints on prices presents the risk of being adjudged indifferent to the needs of the people, an unfair charge perhaps, but one that could stick in an emotional economic atmosphere. These are among the unhappiest options placed before any administration in a long time, but they cannot be avoided. Each wholesale and consumer price index report intensifies the urgency of action.

The Wholesale Price Index for March soared more than 26 per cent on an annual basis, and it wasn't food commodities alone that produced the high figure. Industrial raw materials leaped more than 14 per cent.

The decisions on how to fight those increases now appear to involve issues as basic as those encountered during the great depression of the 1930s, among them: presidential versus congressional power and traditional versus a new Republican economic philosophy.

Art Lovers Of The World Pay Tribute To Picasso

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH
Associated Press Writer
MOUGINS, France (AP) — Art lovers around the world today saluted the genius of Pablo Picasso, dead at 91 after one of the most notable and influential careers in the history of painting.

The Spanish-born revolutionary who changed the course of 20th century art died Sunday at his walled estate overlooking the Mediterranean. Death was attributed to a heart attack brought on by collection of fluid in the lungs.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been announced.

Picasso had been reported in good health and working with his usual zest despite recurrent attacks of gripe during the winter. He recently completed arrangements for the showing in Avignon next month of all his paintings produced since 1970, a total of 201 canvases.

Saturday night, the artist and his wife, Jacqueline, entertained friends at dinner. Picasso was reported in high spirits, eating heartily and entertaining his guest with stories. After the guests left, he went to his studio to work.

When he awakened Sunday morning, he complained of a pain and his wife called a doctor. But by the time he arrived 10 minutes later, Picasso was dead.

Picasso died among one of the greatest troves of 20th century art ever amassed in private hands.

He was the greatest collector of his own works, releasing only a small part of his prolific production for sale. Hundreds of these paintings and drawings were stacked away in a strong-room built onto his two-story home. He kept the key to the room himself, and only a few outsiders ever had a look at his hoard. What disposition he made of this collection in his will was not known yet.

Estimates of Picasso's wealth were considered the wildest sort of guesswork, but he was undoubtedly one of the richest artists who ever lived, and probably the richest. He was selling enough of his work to live comfortably in Paris by the time he was 30, and in the last 50 years his prices rose steadily.

Born in Malaga, on the south coast of Spain, Picasso was a child genius who seemed to never stop imagining new ways to present his universe. He mastered representational art, invented cubism to give a new dimension to painting, then turned to distortion, with the face and body taken apart and then reassembled in accordance with his own vision. Despite the wide appeal of his representational work in his Blue and Rose periods, it is the distortions that the public generally associates with his name.

"In my case a picture is a sum of destructions," Picasso said in an interview in 1935. "I make a picture — then I destroy it ... A picture is not thought out and settled beforehand. While it is being done it changes as one's thoughts change. And when it is finished it goes on changing according to the state of mind of whoever is looking at it."

Picasso's new view of his subjects led to vehement criticism and controversy. His paintings were called ugly and unworthy of the word art. The artist had an answer: "Every-one wants to understand art. Why not try to understand the song of birds? Why does one love the night, flowers, everything around one, without trying to understand them? But where art is concerned people think they must understand it."

In the end Picasso won the argument, a success with the critics, the general public and the museums and wealthy art buyers who could afford his prices.

Picasso first came to France in 1901 and settled in Paris in 1904. He made frequent visits to his native Spain until the end of the Spanish civil war, when he vowed never to return as long as Generalissimo Francisco Franco was in power.

However, he attested to his love of the Spanish people with the gift in 1970 of 900 of his works to a museum that had been founded in his honor in Barcelona. And he gave his antiwar masterpiece inspired by the Fascist bombing in the civil war, the mural "Guernica," to the people of Spain with the proviso that it should not be delivered "until civil liberties have been restored." Meanwhile, it remains in the Museum of Modern Art in New York, where it has been on loan since 1939.

Picasso joined the Communist party in 1944, but never participated actively in party affairs. He told an interviewer in 1947: "When I was a boy in Spain, I was very poor and very aware of how people had to live. I learned that the Communists were for the poor people. That was enough to know. So I became for the Communists."

Picasso's chief contribution to the Communist cause was probably the design that was adopted as the "dove of peace" by the Communists' world peace movement that flourished during the 1950's. It was an outstanding example of Picasso's skill in creating a work of beauty with a few simple lines.

Picasso was married twice and between his marriages had a series of well publicized liaisons. He married Olga Khoklova, a ballet dancer, in 1918. She bore him a son, Paulo, before they drifted apart in the late 1920s.

His wife was succeeded by Marie-Therese Walter, who bore him a daughter, Maya, in 1935. Dora Maar was the painter's next mistress, and she was succeeded in 1944 by Francoise Gilot. During their 11-year liaison she had a son and a daughter, Claude and Paloma.

Jacqueline Roque became Picasso's last mistress in 1955, the year his wife died, and he married her in 1961, when she was 35 and he was 79.

(Continued from page 4) ridiculed by leading legal scholars as going far beyond the reach of the Constitution, is making Mr. Nixon look as though he is afraid to have his White House aides testify because he has so much to conceal.

The political ramifications of Watergate can't yet be measured, but they can be sensed. Thus, Republican politicians and fat cats in California two months ago were giving serious thought to the possible candidacy of Jeb Stuart Magruder, former White House aide and deputy head of the Committee to Reelect the President, for California secretary of state. Magruder went to California with a "white paper" outlining his qualifications and going to great length to declare his innocence of any wrongdoing in the Watergate scandal.

Today those same pliticians and fat cats "wouldn't touch Magruder with a 10-foot pole," to quote one of them. That's only the leading edge of the political storm being kicked up by Watergate. The more the storm grows, the wider will become the breach between the President and the rest of his party.

Soft Drink Tax Repeal Opposed

By SAM D. BUNDY

Two shots out of the blue occurred on Thursday of this week. At a House Finance Committee in the morning a vote of 29 to 23 sent the soft drink tax repeal off to a sub-committee for further study along with all other tax repeal measures.

Many had expected a favorable report on the basis of Governor Holshouser's recommendation for repeal; however, it appears that it stiffened the resistance of the opponents and by some night time manipulations things were set by committee meeting time.

Finance Committee Chairman Liston B. Ramsey (no relation to the Speaker of the House), a Democrat and an ardent foe to the soft drink tax repeal is clearly in the driver's seat. He will appoint the sub-committee and can have the committee to report at his convenience. With adjournment due on May 11, Mr. Ramsey almost has it in his power to kill the proposed soft drink tax repeal by delay. The tobacco forces exerted great influence on this decision by the committee, for they feel that the repeal of the soft drink tax would leave open the possibility and probability of more tax on cigarettes. And they are right. The tobacco people feel that the soft drink tax and the tobacco tax went on as a package deal and should be treated as a package deal. I doubt seriously that Governor Holshouser has as many friends in the tobacco industry as he had a few months ago.

The second shot out of the blue was the introduction of a bill by Representative Larry Eagles of Tarboro calling for a statewide referendum on a $50 million bond issue to finance a medical school at East Carolina University. Mr. Eagles stated on the floor of the House that "I don't think that the General Assembly or the people need a committee to tell us whether or not we need more doctors and where they should be trained." Many others agree with him and believe that East is being given the cat and mouse play. The bill was referred to the Appropriations Committee.

It was my pleasure and privilege to conduct two school groups on a Legislative tour during the week. On Tuesday it was a group of students from Maury Junior High with Mrs. Carson Edwards as their teacher. On Thursday it was a group of students from St. Raphael's School in Greenville

GOP Fail Close Gap On Democrats In Affiliation

By GEORGE GALLUP

Copyright 1973, Field Enterprises, Inc. All rights reserved. Republication in whole or part strictly prohibited, except with the written consent of the copyright holders.

PRINCETON, N.J.—President Nixon's landslide victory last November has not helped the GOP close the gap on the Democrats in terms of party affiliation, as many Republican strategists had believed it would.

The GOP continues to be the minority party in American politics, as it has been for more than three decades. The latest surveys show 27 per cent of citizens, 18 and over, describing themselves as Republicans, compared to 42 per cent who call themselves Democrats and 31 per cent who classify themselves as independents.

The findings recorded in the latest series of five surveys, taken since the election in November, closely parallel the findings recorded in six successive surveys taken prior to the November election. In the earlier series of surveys, taken between June and October of last year, 28 per cent of persons interviewed said they were Republicans, 43 per cent Democrats, while 29 per cent described themselves as independents.

Minority Party For Three Decades

The GOP has had minority party status for more than three decades. Prior to the FDR era, Republicans for many years had enjoyed the same wide advantage that the Democrats hold today.

By 1940, just before World War II the Republican and Democratic parties were nearly equal in numerical strength, 38 per cent to 42 per cent respectively, with another 20 per cent of the adult population classified as independents.

The next 24 years, from 1940 to 1964, represented a long-term decline for the GOP, while the Democratic party made corresponding gains. The proportion of independents changed comparatively little over this period.

Since 1964, the proportion of independents has increased, while the Democrats have tended to lose ground. The proportion of Republicans increased slightly in the late '60's, but the enfranchisement in 1971 of 11 million Americans, 18 to 20 years old, contributed to a GOP decline in 1971 and 1972.

To provide the latest index of party strength, 7,540 adults were interviewed in person by Gallup Poll representatives in five nationwide surveys conducted since the presidential election in November. The following question has been asked regularly since 1940:

In politics, as of today, do you consider yourself a Republican, Democrat or independent?

Following is the 33-year trend:

TREND: 1940-1973

18 and Older		Rep.	Dem.	Ind.
LATEST		27%	42%	31%
June-Oct. '72		28	43	29
June-Sept. '71		25	44	31

21 and Older		Rep.	Dem.	Ind.

1950		33	45	22

The deaths brought the state's traffic toll for the year to 414, compared to 470 in the corresponding period last year.

Garry Ledbetter, 23, of Kings Mountain, was killed when his car ran off N.C. 216 and struck a utility pole near Kings Mountain.

Thirteen-year-old Rhonda Steele of Mt. Gilead was killed when the car in which she was riding skidded off N.C. 73 13 miles west of Ellerbe and hit a tree.

Illinois Tests Student Drivers After Dark

CHICAGO (AP)—High-level lighting systems at three driver test centers here have accomplished two beneficial results—efficiency of the stations is up and irritation associated with having a student driver in the family is down.

The system, consisting of 1,000-watt Metalarc lamps in Acre-of-Lite fixtures, made it possible for the state of Illinois to extend driver tests beyond daylight hours. Both the lamps and the massive fixtures, which spread an average of 5 foot-candles of light per acre of ground, are produced by GET Sylvania Inc.

The lights were installed to make it easier for working parents who found it inconvenient to accompany their student drivers to test centers during normal working hours. The longer operational hours also greatly increased the testing capacity of the centers. About 43 per cent of all tests are performed under lights.

Litter Hunted By Diving Clubs

SAN DIEGO (AP)—Pollution fighters along the nation's shores have discovered a new underwater sport—diving for litter.

Keep America Beautiful, Inc., the national environmental improvement organization, reports that diving clubs in California's San Diego County are enthusiastic participants in a broad-based program to clean up the area's many harbors, bays and beaches.

Thanks in part to the divers, KAB points out, tons of debris have been fished out and many underwater hazards have been eliminated.

Inflation And Short Beef Supply Largely Blamed

Editor's Note — Just before last week's beef boycott was to begin, one of its Louisiana organizers said, "Maybe beef prices should be this high. If so, we need to know why." AP writer Jerry Estill spent three days interviewing farmers, stockyard operators, agricultural marketing experts, wholesale meat packers and retailers in an effort to find out why. Here is his story.

prices to stay the same while everything else was shooting up, including her and her husband's salaries.

A New Orleans retailer who asked not to be identified said he wasn't too worried by light sales during the early days of the meat boycott last week because he believed the monthly issue of federal food stamps during the latter part of the week would result in higher weekend sales.

Everyone interviewed in the food chain from the farmers on up mentioned the food stamp situation as a contributor to high prices, but most were reluctant to be quoted.

McFatter said many farmers may be philosophically opposed to the food stamp idea but "aren't kicking" because those on food stamps are buying beef they previously couldn't afford.

"Why should the farmer complain?" added McFatter. "Even a five per cent change in the market demand over a sustained period will affect farm prices. These food stamp sales over the past four years have helped drain the supplies and drive prices up."

Similar rising demand in other nations inhibits the supply of imported beef that would be necessary to keep up with the American consumer's demand, said McFatter.

John Bankston, an LSU Agricultural Extension Service county agent based in Covington, La., says cows are not as plentiful in relation to the human population as they were in the 1960s for a simple reason—they make expensive pets.

"You had a lot of people raising beef back then who didn't operate efficiently," he said. "They didn't know what their costs were. Most of them were losing money steadily, but didn't realize it."

"Finally it got so bad they had to get out altogether," said Bankston. Those people were, in effect, subsidizing meat prices. They were in the business because they loved it. But they found out they couldn't live year after year on love."

Vivien, who said he has a virtual free rein to run the ranch he handles for a New Orleans investment broker, said his operation showed a profit in 1972 for the first time in 17 years.

Furthermore, he admits he probably would have been satisfied with a little lower profit margin, especially if the operation had not been losing for so many years and if there was a reasonable expectation of future profits.

Vivien, president of the St. Tammany Parish Cattleman's Association, said he suspects the beef industry is stabilizing and that he probably will begin to increase his herds.

McFatter agreed that farmers throughout the country do have some profit incentive now because of high prices and are beginning to build up their herds.

But he pointed out that increasing the supply of beef available for slaughter takes about three years.

"If let alone and allowed to flourish, cattle producers have the tools to supply red meat to everybody at a reasonable price," he said.

"We're not ever going back to a 75-cent per pound steak, but beef prices can go down in relation to other prices if supply and demand is allowed to take its course," said McFatter.

"There's a segment of our population that feels entitled to cheap meat. That's just not going to happen," he said. "It cost a lot of money to produce meat and from here on, meat is going to cost more."

"It's going to be in line with other prices, but it's not going to be lower than it should be any longer," McFatter said. "The cattle farmers in business now are just not going to subsidize the consumer."

Holding Man In Knifing Death

A 42-year-old man is being held in the Pitt County jail in connection with the early-morning death of Herman Hines, 42, of 1401 West Third St. today.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Hines died about 1:15 a.m. today, about 30 minutes after being cut on the leg with a knife.

Sam Wilkins of 1066 Fairfax Ave. has been charged in connection with the death, the chief explained.

Wilkins was taken into custody about 3:45 a.m.

The cutting occurred at 804 West Fifth St.

Investigation of the incident is continuing.

By JERRY ESTILL
Associated Press Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — "A few years ago the farmer would go to market and say, 'Here's what I've got. What will you pay me for it?'"

"Now when he takes his goods to market he says, 'Here is what I've got, this is how much it cost me to produce it and here is how much I have to sell it for to make a living.'"

"Farming is now in the hands of people who don't scare quite so easily," added H. E. McFatter, a Louisiana State University livestock marketing specialist.

"The farmers of today are efficient businessmen," he said. "They know exactly when they're losing money. And when they start losing money, they're going to cut back production."

The result, he continued, is that food prices in general and beef prices in particular never again will be the bargain they used to be.

This doesn't mean that beef prices can not drop in relation to other food prices as supply and demand fluctuates, he added.

In fact, said McFatter, beef prices appear on the verge of turning downward. But when they go down, they won't go as low as they used to be—even in relation to other prices.

"Let's not try to fool people," he said. "The consumer had just as well get used to the idea that he's going to have to spend a little more for food. And that includes beef."

McFatter and others closely associated with producing the nation's beef and getting it into the shopper's basket insist the housewife is getting a bargain even at today's prices.

The housewife is not so easily convinced.

She admits she doesn't know much about what a cow has gone through by the time it's reduced to a pan-sized chunk of meat in her grocer's display case.

But she's pretty sure that—so far as she is concerned—the final price is too high. And she's puzzled about why last week's much-publicized meat boycott had little effect on the price of beef.

Several interviews with farmers, stockyard operators, agricultural economists, wholesale meat packers and retailers over a week-long period evoked the consensus that general inflation and a short beef supply are the reasons.

The housewife meets inflation at every turn, and to an extent, has learned to live with it.

However, it's the complicated factor of the short beef supply—a mystery to her—that has caused meat prices to skyrocket in recent weeks at a faster clip than prices in general.

She can understand the demand: Her family wants steak or roast for Sunday dinner. They're used to having it and they crave it, high prices or not.

The short supply is not as simple.

Supply and demand work together, always connected by a chain of money. But as they apply to beef it's easier to look at them separately.

First the demand:

Lowell Walters, a member of the Oklahoma State University faculty who recently spoke at Louisiana State University, conducted a study which pointed to two key factors that have caused the domestic demand for beef to nearly double in 15 years:

—The rising affluence of the middle-class American.

—Widespread increases in welfare payments.

Charles Vivien, a college-educated St. Tammany Parish beef farmer, tells of a young middle-class housewife who complained that after making payments on a new house, two cars, a camper trailer and a boat she couldn't afford to feed her family.

Vivien admitted that his young middle-class friend's problem with priorities probably wouldn't be so great if food prices had stayed at the level they were when she bought the new car, the camper and the boat.

But, he said, it was unrealistic for her to expect food

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market inched ahead today in sluggish trading as investors continued the moderate rally that began Friday. The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 0.67 at 931.74.

Advancing issues on the New York Stock Exchange led declining issues 664 to 431.

Granby Mining Co. was the most-active up 3/4 at 21 1/2, followed by American Telephone, down 1/8 at 50 1/2.

Disney World, the third-most-active, was up 4/8 at 93 3/4, after a favorable earnings report released over the weekend.

The 11 a.m. road-based NYSE index of about 1,400 common stocks was up 0.09 at 58.32.

The 11 a.m. price-change index on the American Stock Exchange was up .02 at 24.08.

Foster Wheeler, in steam generating construction, was up 1/4 at 29 1/2 after a delayed opening on the NYSE. The current issues of Barron's financial weekly reports that the order pace was quickening at Foster Wheeler and sees this trend continuing upward for the next couple of years.

Resumption Not Barred

WASHINGTON (AP)—Despite the formal commitment of the U.S. to a cease-fire, President Nixon is not legally barred from resuming hostilities in Vietnam or Laos, a research report says.

The report, compiled by the Library of Congress for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, prompted Chairman J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., to urge Sunday that Congress formally declare an end to the undeclared Vietnam war.

Congress, said Fulbright, should "take the initiative at least in declaring that hostilities are now ended (and) prohibit continuation or renewal of our military activities in Indochina, as has been threatened by the President." Nixon said on television 10 days ago that the United States was not prepared to stand idly by while cease-fire violations by the North Vietnamese mount. Nixon's critics have argued that he lacks any legal basis to resume hostilities against North Vietnam now that U.S. prisoners of war have been released and American troops withdrawn.

Leaves

A festive crowd of about 4,000 gathered on the levee to watch Sen. Russell Long, D-La., raise the first of the spillway dam's 350 sections. The Army Corps of Engineers said all sections would be open by Wednesday.

The open sections send water 5.7 miles down a trough of low land from the river to the 25-mile-wide salt water lake, which empties into the Gulf of Mexico. When completely open, the spillway will divert about a sixth of the river's flow—estimated at 1.4 million cubic feet a second between the 30-foot-high levees on both banks at New Orleans.

The opening was expected to lower the latest prediction of a crest of 20.2 feet at New Orleans, where the river gauge registered 18.2 feet Sunday.

At Slidell, La., the weather bureau's River Forecasting Center said the diversion would stop the river's rise at New Orleans and probably drop the level to 17.5 by Wednesday.

Whether diversion of fresh water into the salty lake for the first time since 1950 would have adverse ecological consequences was disputed.

Marine biologists agree that, if the fresh water dilutes Lake Pontchartrain beyond a certain point for five days or more, the oysters, crabs and shrimps will be wiped out or greatly reduced.

However, Col. Richard L. Hunt, chief of the Corps of Engineers in New Orleans, said that, within months, the river water's nutrients would begin fertilizing the lake bottom and aquatic life could be greater than before.

About 7.3 million acres in seven states have been flooded, mostly due to overflow of tributary rivers backed up by the Mississippi, which drains 1.25 million square miles.

Backwater flood damage from St. Louis to the Gulf of Mexico totals at least $150 million, and the Corps of Engineers' extra flood work expenses were $8 million and heading up, Gen. Noble said.

He estimated 6,000 families have been displaced temporarily by the high water.

"In summary, one of the big floods of the century is being experienced in the lower Mississippi River Valley," Gen. Noble said.

Damaged By Early Fire

An early-morning fire caused extensive damage to a house under construction on Williamsburg Road here Sunday.

Fire units were called to the blaze about 1:50 a.m. and found the home—being built for Dr. Ray Evans—engulfed in flames.

Officers said the fire in the brick veneer dwelling apparently started in wood framing around the fire place. They said the wood was apparently ignited by a fire in the fire place, built Saturday by persons working in the home.

Most of the roof of the new home was burned away and the entire interior was scorched by the intense heat, officers reported.

The builder of the home told police and fire officials that damage to the building might run as high as $20,000 to $30,000.

Homemaker's Haven

By Evelyn Spangler
 Pitt Home Agent
 Confused about the fashion story for pants? Many women are. The styles seem to be constantly changing. But regardless of the current style in pants, the basic fit remains the same. And that's where the problem really begins—fit.

Because fitting pants seems to be so difficult for so many home sewers, Mrs. Alma Hobbs, Home Economics Extension Agent of Bertie County, selected it as the topic of her demonstration during the SEWING FESTIVAL. Mrs. Hobbs will show how to measure for pants and how to adjust patterns in order to achieve perfectly fitted pants. She will also give some tips on sewing pants. Be sure and stop by her booth anytime between 1:00 p.m. and 9:00 p.m. Tuesday, April 10, at the Greenville National Guard Armory.

In addition to the continuous sewing demonstrations, there will be special classes and fashion shows throughout the day. Quite a few Pitt Countians will be featured in the fashion shows. Modeling pants outfits will be Miss Donna Worthington, Mrs. R. J. Boswell, Mrs. Nathan Smith, Jr. and her son Nathan, and Selene, Jan and Beth Wheelers.

Mrs. Adelle Wall, Mrs. Curtis Worthington, Mrs. Herbert Taylor, Mrs. Helen Johnson, Mrs. Herbert Randolph, and Mrs. Hugh Jarrett will model dresses. Mrs. Lonnie Staton will model a coat and dress ensemble.

Long dresses will be shown by Mrs. Chester Don Worthington, Mrs. Kenneth Hathaway, and Mrs. Herbert Wheelers.

If you have any questions about the SEWING FESTIVAL, please call the Home Economics Extension Office at 758-1196.

Dark-Horse Briton Leads Way Into Masters' Final

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — A young 50-1 dark-horse from England, Peter Oosterhuis, carried the double advantage of a three-stroke lead and the prospect of blustery British weather today into the final round of the Masters—the golf tournament they're calling the Who's-He-Open.

"They say there's a strong chance of wind and rain Monday—that should be perfect weather for an Englishman," the towering golfing gypsy with the feathery putting touch said after breaking out of a logjam with a four-under-par 68 and taking charge at Augusta National with a score of 211.

Someone asked him in passing if he felt more confident because Jack Nicklaus is eight shots behind.

"I really don't know where Nicklaus stands," the 24-year-old Oosterhuis said, raising an eyebrow. "I really didn't notice."

The powerful Nicklaus, a 5-2 favorite at the start of the tournament to capture his fifth Masters, followed his putting collapse of Friday with a triple-bogey eight on the 15th hole in the third round Sunday and shot a 73 for 219.

There were 14 players in front of Nicklaus and three others, including amateur Ben Crenshaw, even with him as the field prepared for the final 18 holes over rain-drenched Augusta.

One of these was Gay Brewer, the snub-nosed battler who won here in 1967. Brewer was asked if he was happy that a bunch of lesser knowns were ahead of him instead of Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer or Lee Trevino.

"Yeah," Brewer replied. A pause. "Hell, yeah!"

Some of those in main contention for the 37th Masters green champion's jacket not only have unfamiliar names, such as Oosterhuis. They're almost unspellable and unpronounceable. What's Ozaki's first name? It's Masashi.

Is it Jamieson or Jameison? It's Jamieson.

Snead's in there. But it's not Sam. Here's how the leaders stack up going into the showdown round, to be telecast (CBS-TV) weather cooperating, between 4 p.m. and 6 p.m., EST, with a two-hour delay in the Pacific Zone:

211—Peter Oosterhuis, England.

214—Jimmy Jamieson, Bob Goalby, J.C. Snead.

215—Gay Brewer, John Miller, Tommy Aaron, Chi Chi Rodriguez.

216—Masashi Ozaki, Japan; Gardner Dickinson.

217—Bruce Devlin, Dave Stockton, Bob Dickson.

218—Bob Charles, New Zealand.

219—Jack Nicklaus, Frank Beard, Babe Hiskey and amateur Ben Crenshaw.

Out of range of Jack's big blunderbuss, some of the boys are feeling scrappy and talking big.

"I'm so relaxed, it scares me," commented Miller, the rangy cottontop from San Francisco. "I'm no more excited than if I were playing in the Hershey Bar Open. I know I can beat the guys ahead of me. I don't believe even Nicklaus can spot me three shots a round."

Pittsburgh Keeps Doing Their 'Thing': Winning

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
Aside from the loss of Roberto Clemente, the Pittsburgh Pirates haven't changed much. They keep doing things the hard way—which is the best way for them.

They won the National League's East pennant last year by pulling out almost half of their 96 victories with late rallies.

And Sunday, they continued to do what comes naturally with a 4-3, 5-3 doubleheader sweep over the St. Louis Cardinals fashioned on comebacks.

Losing 3-2 going into the ninth inning of the opener, they tied the game on Manny Sanguillen's sacrifice fly and won it on Bob Robertson's home run in the 10th. In the nightcap, the Cards held a 2-1 edge until the Pirates struck for three runs on circuit shots by Milt May and Gene Alley in the fifth.

In Sunday's other NL contests, the Los Angeles Dodgers blanked the San Diego Padres 4-0; the Cincinnati Reds defeated the San Francisco Giants 3-1; the Montreal Expos stopped the Chicago Cubs 5-2 and the Houston Astros beat the Atlanta Braves 10-3 in the first game of a doubleheader before losing the second game 4-3 in 10 innings. Rain washed out a game between Philadelphia and New York.

In the American League, the Boston Red Sox nipped the New York Yankees 4-3 in 10 innings; the Minnesota Twins defeated the Oakland A's 4-2; the Kansas City Royals tripped the California Angels 6-5 and the Detroit Tigers blanked the Cleveland Indians 4-0. Rain washed out two AL games—Milwaukee at Baltimore and Chicago at Texas.

Saturday's NL scores included: New York 3, Philadelphia 2; Chicago 3, Montreal 2 in 10 innings; San Francisco 7, Cincinnati 5 in 11 innings and San Diego 4, Los Angeles 3.

In the AL Saturday, it was Cleveland 2, Detroit 1; Boston 10, New York 5; Baltimore 8, Milwaukee 7 in 10 innings; Minnesota 5, Oakland 3; Kansas City 12, California 5 and Chicago 3, Texas 1.

Reliever George Culver choked off a bases-loaded threat in the eighth inning and Joe Ferguson contributed a two-run double as Los Angeles bested San Diego. Culver combined with Dodger starter Tommy John to pitch an eight-hitter. The pair stranded 10 Padre runners.

Cincinnati's Ross Grimsley whipped San Francisco for the fifth time in five career decisions. He needed last-out relief help from Pedro Borbon. The Reds got a pair of runs in the second off loser Tom Bradley, making his first start in the National League.

Rookie Pepe Mangual drove in three runs with his first major league homer and a single to power Montreal past Chicago. Mangual tagged a two-run shot in the first inning and then singled home the winning run in the second.

Cesar Geronimo clubbed a two-run homer and then added a pair of doubles in an eight-run Houston sixth inning to lead the Astros' opening-game triumph. Mike Lum was a one-man gang for Atlanta in the nightcap. He tied the game at 3-3 with a two-run homer in the ninth, then won it with a run-scoring single in the 10th.

Rained Out

BOONE—East Carolina University's doubleheader with Appalachian State University was rained out Sunday.

No new date has been set for the games.

East Carolina returns home to meet N. C. State University Wednesday at 3 p.m. at Harrington Field.

Esposito Has Knee Surgery

BOSTON (AP) — Phil Esposito, the Boston Bruins' All-Star center who has led the National Hockey League in scoring in four of the past five years, was resting comfortably today after undergoing knee surgery.

Esposito, injured in the Bruins' second game of the playoff with the New York Rangers, was operated upon Saturday for repair of torn cartilage in his right knee.

A club spokesman said that Esposito will be hospitalized for two weeks and then wear a cast for another six to eight weeks. He is not expected to be able to skate again until September.

Richard Petty Takes Another

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer
NORTH WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP) — Richard Petty had held his red and blue Dodge in front of the pack for 387 of the 400 laps that made up the Gwyn Staley Memorial Stock Car Race.

At the end, he appeared to be no more tired than any 36-year-old millionaire who had taken his yacht out for a Sunday afternoon cruise.

He was asked the usual questions about retirement, after 14 years of powering 3,800-pound stockers around big and little racing ovals, winning $1.41 million in prize and bonus money, four Grand National driving titles and just about every trophy available.

"Well, some people are saying it is time I started going down hill," he laughed off the question. "And I'll admit that I get a bigger kick out of winning now than I did several years ago."

Petty captured his 151st career Grand National victory in the easiest possible fashion—simply by getting the jump on his competition, building up a good lead, then coasting the rest of the way before a record 16,000 at the tightly-banked five-eighths of a mile North Wilkesboro Speedway.

He finished his Sunday afternoon ride in two hours, 34 minutes and 17 seconds for a speed of 97.224 miles per hour. And at the end he had an easily manageable lead of four laps over second-place Benny Parsons in a Chevrolet, five laps over third-place Buddy Baker in a Dodge and fourth-place Bobby Allison in a Chevrolet, and 10 over fifth-place Cecil Gordon in a Chevrolet.

Unser, Johncock Take Texas 200s

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Al Unser and Gordon Johncock have captured the Texas Twin 200s racing events at the high-banked Texas World Speedway track.

Unser, from Albuquerque, N.M., won the highlighted championship event for Indianapolis-type cars, while Johncock took the second 200-mile race for stock cars. Both races were on Saturday.

Unser outprinted Mike Mosley and Gary Bettenhausen off a late-race caution flag to secure a victory in the first U.S. Auto Club championship race of the year.

Johncock, of Mount Pleasant, Mich., who finished only 14 laps of the championship race because of engine trouble, came back to take the stock car event. He ran neck and neck with A. J. Foyt of Houston before Foyt's car blew its engine with 16 of the 100 laps to go.

Unless there's a definite improvement in the weather, Southern Conference baseball teams might still be playing for the championship as late as the opening of the football season.

Chris Evert Wins Again

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Chris Evert, who says she doesn't "have money signs" in her eyes, has tucked an additional $5,000 into her purse by winning the $20,000 First Federal of Sarasota USLTA Open Tennis Championship.

Miss Evert, 18, defeated Evonne Goolagong, 6-3, 6-2, Sunday to take the first prize. Miss Goolagong, 1971 Wimbledon champ from Australia won $2,500.

"It feels good," said the Fort Lauderdale tennis sensation of her winnings which now total $31,000. "But I don't have money signs in my eyes. When I go out on the court, I think only about winning."

It was her fourth victory in five tournaments on the USLTA tour. The doubles championship Sunday went to Patti Hogan of Lajolla, Calif., and Sharon Walsh of San Rafael, Calif., who defeated Prague's Maria Neumannova and Martina Natilova, 7-6, 5-4.

EBB HAIR CONSULTANT IN GREENVILLE, N.C. WEDNESDAY WILL EXPLAIN HAIR PROBLEMS FREE

Louisville, Ky. Apr. 9. Mr. R. W. Yarbrough will be back in Greenville, N.C. AGAIN Wednesday, Apr. 11. Now is the time to act on this great opportunity. Every man and woman now losing hair should take advantage of this FREE CONSULTATION.

GUARANTEED
You will be given a written guarantee on a pro-rated basis from the beginning to the end. Naturally we could not give you such a guarantee if it didn't work.

CAN'T HELP
Male pattern baldness is the cause of a great majority of cases of baldness and excessive hair loss, for which no method is effective. Ebb Hair Specialists cannot help those who are slick bald after years of gradual hair loss.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness seems to "run in the family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of your hair loss.

MANY CONDITIONS CAN CAUSE HAIR LOSS. No matter which one is causing your hair loss, if you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead you are beyond help. So, if you still have hair on top of your head, and would like to stop hair loss and grow more hair...now is the time to do something about it before it is too late.

FREE CONSULTATION
Just take a few minutes of your time on Wednesday, Apr. 11, and go to the Holiday Inn U.S. 13 Memorial Dr. in Greenville between 10 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. and ask the Desk Clerk for R. W. Yarbrough, room number.

Farm Tips

By Dr. J. W. Pou
Agricultural Specialist
Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., N.A.

Much has been written recently about the high cost of living, and much of this cost attributed to food. This has certainly not been the case with poultry meat and eggs. Poultry meat and eggs have been selling for just about the same as they did in the 1930's, according to Dr. W. C. Mills, Jr., extension poultry specialist at North Carolina State University.

Production costs have been constantly going up for the past thirty-five years; however, through increased efficiency, the poultry industry has been able to provide consumers with high quality, safe and wholesome meat and eggs at bargain prices.

Much of the credit for this amazing feat is due to the research efforts of the industry in cooperation with various state universities. This research has helped to reduce the time required to grow broilers from about 14 weeks to eight weeks. It has helped reduce the amount of feed required to produce a pound of broiler meat from over three pounds to under two pounds in many cases, and at the same time increase market weight almost 100 percent.

Research has helped discover methods of preventing and controlling many health problems, thus enabling the producer to grow more of the birds that he purchased.

The number of eggs that each hen produces has been increased substantially as well as the percentage of hatchability, thus making chick costs lower.

Many other mass production techniques have been developed that contribute to economical poultry production.

Another factor allowing for much progress in poultry production and marketing efficiency has been the widespread adoption of business organization structures that permit volume production including the development of vertically integrated poultry businesses.

Consumer acceptance of ready-to-cook poultry has permitted the development of a very efficient processing industry. The development of better packaging materials and systems have also contributed to the delivery of high protein poultry to the consumer.

Working in cooperation with the poultry industry, the United States government has developed quality standards designed to assure the consumer of wholesome meat of safe, high biological value. Government and industry are constantly working together to produce an even better product that is uniform in all sections of the country.

Putting all this technology together for the mutual benefit of the producer and the consumer, has been the strong point of the dynamic, innovative people making up the poultry industry. These people have taken the results of research, as well as trial and error, and welded them together under the free enterprise system, and made available to the consumer some of the highest quality, most economical food that money can buy.

A new tool is also being made available to North Carolina cattlemen to help them improve the selection and quality of their breeding stock. The end result should be an improved beef product for the consumer.

Beef producers now may receive carcass data on their cattle even though the cattle may be slaughtered at a distant point across the country and even months after the animal leaves the farm.

The beef Carcass Data Service, a cooperative federal-state program, is being coordinated in North Carolina by the N. C. Beef Cattle Improvement Program from the campus of N. C. State University.

Producers may obtain numbered ear tags to attach to their cattle when they leave the farm, whether they are sold as calves or slaughter animals.

When the animal is slaughtered, the tag is attached to the carcass. Official USDA carcass data is taken from the carcass, including such quality factors as conformation and quality grades, fat thickness, ribeye area, degree of marbling, yield, grade and carcass weight.

This information is returned to the breeder. From it, he can determine if his breeding animals are producing the kind of high quality meat animals he wants to market.

Tillam stops weeds, eases tobacco harvest

TOBACCO TALK

By RAYMOND D. COLTRAIN

Many farmers are wondering if they can improve their application of tobacco fertilizer. Well, if they are still putting in one band deep under the row they can improve by going to the two bands 6 inches deep, and 3-4 inches to the side of the row. If you have a transplanter that is getting worn out and you have to replace it, get one with the fertilizer applicators on it. Sowing the fertilizer at transplanting has shown greater yields and net profits over the last few years.

In getting ready to set out, make sure your equipment is all repaired and ready to go. The plants need to be toughened by removing the covers a few days before transplanting. This exposure gets them ready for the "shock" of transplanting. Watering the beds prior to pulling will soften the soil and decrease the number of broken plants and increase the number of roots remaining on the plant. After you finish pulling, wet your beds down to settle the dirt back around the plants. Of course, if the weather continues as it has the last few weeks, you will have plenty of water. Be sure to use good, stock plants, ones that are 5-6 inches tall and have a medium size stem. By using healthy plants you will reduce the likelihood of having to do any resetting.

If you have any questions, please call us at 758-1196.

Farm Scene

By STEVE RIDDICK
Americans love their beef; and indications are they are going to love it even more. Per capita consumption has gone from 62 pounds per person to 115. Consumption is predicted to rise another 22 to 27 pounds between now and 1980. Agricultural Economists say that some 8.5 million additional cattle will have to be fed in 1980 to match this increase in demand.

Supply and Demand are not the only factors in the price you pay for beef. For instance, today's modern-type 1000 lb. choice steer produces approximately 615 lbs. carcass, which the packer sells to a retailer who trims away 183 pounds of fat; bone and waste, ending up with only 432 lbs. of beef that he cuts, wraps and sells to customers. Of this 432 lbs., a surprisingly small amount is steak—80 lbs. on the average; the majority being roasts. These roasts often make the consumer the best buy.

Retail stores put a higher price on steak and a lower price on pot-roast and ground beef so that they can sell it all and end up with the less-in-demand cuts like pot-roast and short ribs left in the cooler.

Fertilizer Key to Increased Production

The utilization of soil test and proper fertilization will be the key to meeting the increased demand for beef in the years to come. Already some farmers have lowered the land-cow ration from 1½ acres per cow-calf to 1 acre through intensive fertility practices.

WAR GAMES—Cambodian youngsters, one carrying a rifle and the other a field radio, wade through grass during a recent sweep on top Kirirrom Mountain, 60 miles southwest of Phnom Penh. Soldiers in their early teens are found in most Khmer units. (AP Wirephoto)

Another advantage of increasing the competition of forages through adequate fertilization is weed control. Weeds come into pastures because existing vegetation is thin and low in vigor. Adequate fertilization will increase the density of forage grasses and legumes to the degree that annual weed infestations can be reduced.

'Trivia Freaks' Have New Tool

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Dear reader: In keeping with our policy of alerting the public to threatening developments, be advised that trivia freaks now have a new weapon with which to pester you.

It's a new paperback book called "The Television Years," written by Arthur Shulman and Roger Youman. It covers the top TV shows from 1947 to last year in ample and occasionally acerbic detail.

The authors are learned men; both worked years for TV Guide magazine. Youman still is at the magazine as managing editor. Shulman now is publisher of Seventeen magazine.

In the interest of helping innocents ward off the cries of the trivia freak, herewith are a few helpful questions and answers on TV history to tide you over until you either can purchase the book or hire someone to throttle the freak:

1947 — Q. Who was Kyle MacDonnell? A. A blonde singer the book says was the first "sweetheart" of TV viewers. It doesn't elaborate. It shows a picture of her preparing to smash an orthicon tube against the side of a DC4. She may have been the first woman TV critic.

1948 — Q. Who was the announcer on "The Original Amateur Hour"? A. Dennis James, seen in the book alongside host Ted Mack, who is holding an alto saxophone. The owner of the sax has vanished.

1949 — Q. Who played Captain Video and why? A. Al Hodge.

1950 — Q. Who and what happens on "The Continental"? A. As the book puts it, "suave actor Renzo Cesana murmurs sweet nothings to the females in the audience, thereby inducing sighs of rapture or uncontrollable laughter."

1951 — Q. How much did the DuMont Network pay for the

Electronic Console Speeds Ambulances

NEW YORK (UPI) — A new electronic ambulance dispatching complex is paying off in saving lives and money for New York City.

Formerly, any call for a New York City ambulance had to go through the Police Department, which was responsible for dispatching the emergency vehicle. Because of jammed switchboards, duplicate work by dispatchers and long periods of waiting time to get calls through, valuable minutes were lost before an ambulance could be sent.

With the new electronic console setup, designed especially for the New York City Department of Health and Hospitals by Designs Controls, Inc., of Hempstead, N.Y., it now takes less than a minute from the time a call is received until an ambulance is sent.

When a call for an ambulance in any of the city's five boroughs is placed, it automatically is channeled to the Department of Health and Hospitals central headquarters

There, it is automatically channeled to one of five electronic consoles—one for each borough. Through an illuminated color light assembly, the console's dispatcher has a visual record of the area where city ambulances are available for calls.

He sends the nearest available ambulance to the scene via radio, and at the same time inserts an IBM type punch card into the console, showing that that particular ambulance is on a call and currently not available.

A Free Press Protects Your Free Speech... But We Can't Protect You With Our Reporters In Jail!

Judges are jailing reporters with increasing frequency, because they refuse to reveal news sources. The result can only be a drying up of these sources of information and impede your right to know what's happening in your government.

Your free speech depends on a free press.

The First Amendment to our Constitution, which is your ultimate protection against your government's attempt to suppress information, says in part, "Congress shall pass no law abridging the freedom of speech or of the press."

From this you see that free speech and a free press are guaranteed the people generally — not to any individual or business. Consequently, when our freedom of the press is restricted, your free speech is restricted too. This also applies to everyone's right to know what's being offered in the Marketplace. The right of choice in all goods and services keeps the system of competition working for everyone's progress.

Keep this in mind the next time you get mad at a news story. Remember, a free press provides you with the information that keeps our country free.

The 'Worry Clinic' Learn To Smile And Say Hello

Clifton's remark to the waitress applies to all workers who "front" before their firm. School teachers also should greet all pupils with a smile. And learn how to say "Hello." For smiles are a form of sign language that will make you popular!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D. M.D.

CASE W-573: Clifton Hirschman and I dropped into a sandwich shop recently for a visit.

The waitress approached and asked:

"What'll you have?"
"A cup of coffee," Mr. Hirschman replied, "and a SMILE!"

For the waitress wore a poker face and irradiated no cordiality.

Even a superb chef in the kitchen will find that his culinary products don't taste as good if served by a waitress who wears a sourpuss expression!

And that is not an exaggeration.

For not only is the flavor of food dependent upon the tongue's 4 tastebud qualities of sweet, salt, sour and bitter.

Plus the many aromas we popularly include in the taste of food.

And touch, as well as temperature factors.

But our emotional state likewise colors this mosaic pattern we describe as taste!

If, for example, we are grieving over loss of a loved one, that depressed emotional condition make the food seem "flat."

Anger and fear, as well as loneliness and physical pain, will likewise depress the otherwise delicious flavor of food.

So a superb waitress (or waiter) should flash a cheery smile at every patron!

And inject more cordiality into her spoken greeting.

A waitress thus can buoy up the spirits of lonely widows or widowers, who formerly ate at a family table with their mates and children, but are now all alone.

She can reassure children from broken homes who are hungry for some evidence of parental love, which the smiling waitress thus can symbolize.

A waitress can thus restore some of the early dinner table happiness that most people originally linked with eating.

Remember, our first social event is usually brought to the family table in our high chair, even before we are one year old!

And at that table were probably both our parents, plus possibly one or two brothers and sisters.

This jolly family situation thus becomes linked with the act of eating, which is why a waitress can be a splendid "Applied Psychologist," in addition to which I have long urged upon Dental Assistants and Nurses.

This means, say "Hello" and rise to higher note on the "o" for then your greeting has more zest and friendliness.

Routinely, we teach movie actresses to smile even as they are singing for they will gain more applause thereby, since the audience subconsciously combines their friendly look with their musical notes until the "flavor" of their song zooms.

Same goes for waitresses (and all who "front" before the public).

So practice grinning at yourself, even as you brush your teeth each morning, for soon your face will feel normal, even while wreathed in smile.

At first, those facial muscles seem stiff and you become self-conscious about always grinning, but soon your face will habitually wear a smile.

Private Mail Companies Continue Rapid Growth

By DAVID BURKE
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The number of private mail companies in the nation has doubled in the past 18 months and backers say the growth will continue as magazine publishers and large bulk mailers seek ways to escape rising U.S. postal rate and service problems. "With each deterioration of mail service, these firms grow by leaps and bounds," says

James H. Rademacher, president of the National Association of Letter Carriers, which represents the nation's 220,000 mailmen, public and private.

By association count, there are now about 200 private firms in operation. But they remain relatively small and localized, hardly a dust speck in the Post Office's eye.

Forbidden by law from carrying first-class letter mail, largely lacking intercity service, most of them specialize in delivering advertising flyers, catalogues and occasionally magazines within a city.

Outfits delivering circulars on a door-to-door basis have been around for a long time. But the trend toward private mail delivery got a major boost in 1968 when an Oklahoma City firm won attention by putting mail into plastic bags and sticking it onto customers' doorknobs, says Rademacher. It is illegal for private firms to use mail boxes.

The firm, Independent Postal System of America, "got so much publicity that a lot of people got the idea to do the same thing," says Rademacher.

IPSA, which sells route franchises of about 400 houses to free-lance mailmen, often housewives, now has about 140 office in 31 states.

The company says its revenues have been doubling each year, in 1972 they amounted to a mere $3 million, compared with well over $2 billion for second-and third-class mail handled by the U.S. Postal Service.

Private mail delivery is often cheaper than the U.S. Postal Service's, says Richard Papinski, vice president of operations of Consumers Communications Services, a private mail service covering eight cities in Ohio, Indiana and Kansas.

He points out that a department store wanting to blanket an area with advertising flyers, for example, would have to pay CCS only $36 per 1,000 items, as compared with $48 with the U.S. Post Office.

Responding to the charges of slow delivery and high prices, a spokesman for the U.S. Postal Service says the service knows there are trouble spots, but "we're doing our best to overcome these problems and believe service is improving."

He noted that the postage charges were set by the independent Postal Rate Commission after lengthy hearings on what it cost the service to deliver mail.

BRIDGE QUIZ ANSWERS

Q. 1 — East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠KQ108 ♥7 ♦K173 ♣A954

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

1 ♠ Pass Pass ?

What do you bid?

A.—While we are normally disinclined to permit the opponents to play a hand at one, in this case we believe that a pass is clearly indicated. The opponents are playing at your best suit, and it may prove that if you give them another chance the opener might be in a position to show a second suit in hearts.

Q. 2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠QJ9764 ♥2 ♦53 ♣AKQ6

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♠ 2 ♥ 2 ♠ 3 ♥

What do you bid now?

A.—On the basis of values held, a four spade bid is indicated. However, for strategic purposes we recommend a bid of four clubs. This is to elicit the best opening lead from partner if the opponent should subsequently go to five hearts as a sacrifice bid.

Q. 3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠KJ102 ♥QJ ♦J9 ♣AKQJ2

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 ♥ Pass 2 ♠ Pass

2 ♥ Pass 2 ♠ Pass

3 NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Partner's rebid of two hearts is known to the trade as a "reverse bid" and designates a powerful holding for, after this bid, responder, if he wished to return to diamonds, would have to climb to the three level. When North subsequently jumped to three no trump, he indicated that his values were principally high cards, that he had more than a mere 18. You have 18 high card points, which means the opponents will be lucky to have as much as a queen, and a bid of seven no trump is in order.

Q. 4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠A ♥42 ♦QJ1043 ♣QJ742

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South

1 ♠ Dbie. ?

What do you bid?

A.—This is rather a good holding opposite an opening bid and contains sufficient high card values to warrant a redouble, but such a call is not the preferred strategy with this type of hand. My policy in all doubtful cases is to act at once. A pass amounts to burying your head in the sand. The suggested call is an immediate bid of two diamonds, and it is likely that you will have an opportunity to show the other suit at a reasonable level, giving a reasonably accurate description of your hand.

Q. 5 — Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠KQJ84 ♥KQ1063 ♦AQ ♣6

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♠ Pass 1 NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Despite the fact that partner may have a relatively weak hand, you should insist upon a game contract. The recommended call is three hearts. This hand has an original valuation of 20 points and partner has promised at least six in high cards, so that enough values are on hand for a game.

Q. 6 — Partner opens with heart and you hold:

♠Q8432 ♥A104 ♦K95 ♣83

What is your response?

A.—Two hearts. This hand is not strong enough to justify two forward moving bids. In support of hearts, it is worth only nine points and, therefore, comes within the limit of a single raise.

Q. 7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠102 ♥AK1084 ♦K94 ♣J83

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 ♦ Pass 1 ♥ 1 ♠

1 NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Three no trump. Partner's free bid of one no trump indicates a good hand which should normally measure 18 points. Your hand contains 11 which is sufficient for a game contract.

Q. 8—Both vulnerable, partner opens with one diamond and you hold:

♠K964 ♥AQ10 ♦1094 ♣AK4

What is your response?

A.—Our preference is for a complete descriptive bid all at one shot. Such a bid is three no trump. This hand is evenly balanced and contains 16 points in high cards. We would, therefore, choose to suppress the one-over-one response even if it happens to be a major suit. The reason is that, even if partner happens to have four spades, this hand with double stoppers in both the other suits might play just as well at no trump.

Kicking Tires Is Useless

AKRON, Ohio, (AP) — It's almost a tradition to kick the tires of the car you're thinking of buying. But why?

Experts at Goodyear think it all began back in the early 1900s when the "clincher" tire was used on cars. This tire was held tight against the rim by clamps, and you kicked it to see it was properly fastened and inflated.

Tires in those good old days lasted about 50 miles on average, Goodyear notes. By contrast the company's newest tires are guaranteed for 40,000 miles, so kicking them doesn't really make much sense... unless you're superstitious or frustrated, the experts say.

Ernest F. Boyce, Colonial president, said that sales for the 12-week quarter which ended March 24 were $175,443,611 compared with $166,365,975 in the comparable 12 weeks of 1972, and earnings were $1,890,821 for the first quarter compared with $2,017,361 in 1972.

Boyce said that despite a substantial rise since Jan. 1, retail prices have not kept pace with the rapid increase in wholesale prices and other costs.

Hot Data To Fight Fires
GLASGOW, Scotland (AP) — Computers are going to help fight fires here.

Small facsimile printers to be installed this summer in the cabs of 40 fire engines will receive by radio and print out detailed information on floor plans of the burning building and its known fire hazards while the firemen are on their way to battle the blaze. Two Honeywell computers make up the heart of the system which George Cooper, Glasgow's firemaster, believes is the most advanced fire-fighting system of its kind in the world.

The system will ultimately contain data on 10,000 properties, including building plans and layouts, known hazardous materials in the buildings and a special file of 1,000 hazardous substances and how to handle them in the case of fire. The city intends eventually to link 400 fire alarm boxes directly to the computer system so that when an alarm is signaled, the computer dispatches the nearest fire crew directly, without human intervention.

Al Fatah Is Back In Sudan

Sudan President Jaafar Numeiry, blaming the attack on Al Fatah, ordered the office closed and all Palestinian commando activities suspended in the Sudan on March 6.

Army Reserve Unit In 'Exotic Dancer' Ends Stay

Sergeants George L. Pleasant and Mark H. Tripp today were presented a certificate of appreciation from Col. K. V. Finnell, commander of the 358 Civil Affairs Area Headquarters "B", U. S. Army Reserve, Norristown, Pa. for their work with the reserve unit over the past several days.

The Army Reserve unit has been participating in a large-scale joint military exercise called "Exotic Dancer VI", involving some 42,000 military personnel from all branches of the armed forces, for the past two weeks.

According to Col. Finnell, the "green-uniformed officers and enlisted men that have been moving briskly through" Greenville over the past few days, are members of his unit.

During their stay in Greenville, the reservists have been meeting with government officials, municipal employees, and business and other community leaders "to solve problems which were injected for their solution as part of the exercise."

The 358th Civil Affairs Area Headquarters unit is capable of administering, in the event of hostilities, a middle-sized nation.

According to Col. Finnell, the experience in Greenville has been unique to the men of the 358th because the exercise provided them with the opportunity to meet and confer with people actively involved in running the business of a local government and community activities.

"In the past", according to Col. Finnell, "we solved our problems by referring to a written scenario or by working with other soldiers or officers who role-played government officials and community leaders.

"In Greenville, we had the experience of communicating directly with people who were involved with the everyday tasks of city life."

The 358th contains an array of professions, including business executives, doctors, lawyers, educators, religious leaders and social scientists. The specialists use their civilian backgrounds to meet the requirements of the four sections of Civil Affairs activities—including functions ranging from planning for the provision of public medical service to maintaining adequate levels of food and shelter for existence.

In addition to Greenville, 358th units were assigned to Washington and New Bern.

"We cannot say enough about the kindness, warmth and cooperation which has been extended to us by everyone in Greenville," Col Finnell said. "We also thank Sgt. Pleasant and Sgt. Tripp..." and the N. C. National Guard military police companies in Greenville, "whose cooperation made the stay of the reservists in the Greenville Armory a pleasant one."

RECEIVE CITATION ... Sgt. George L. Pleasant and Sgt. Mark H. Tripp receive certificate of appreciation from Col. K. V. Finnell for their assistance to visiting Army Reservists participating in exercise "Exotic Dancer VI".

Lenoir Rhyne, Catawba Win Debating Divisions

Lenoir Rhyne and Catawba Colleges carried away top honors at the state Collegiate Debate Championship Tournament at East Carolina University this weekend.

Lenoir Rhyne placed first in the tournament's varsity division, made up of rounds between experience debaters, and Catawba was first in the novice division, for first year debaters.

Other varsity winners were: UNC-Greensboro, second; Davidson College, third; Appalachian State University, fourth; and ECU, fifth.

In the novice division, Davidson College placed second; UNC-Asheville, third; Duke University, fourth; and Duke's second novice team, fifth.

Participating in the tournament were 19 teams from North Carolina colleges and universities. Besides the winners, competition included teams from Wake Forest University, UNC-Chapel Hill, Pfeiffer College and North Carolina State University. The teams were judged on the basis of number of rounds won or lost and on total accumulation of speaker points by individual team members.

Last year's varsity championship winner was Wake Forest, with ECU in second place.

ECU Debate Coach Nathan Weavil commented that the championship tournament results were unexpected, since some of the participating teams were from larger universities with established debate programs.

He added that the number and overall quality of the participating teams is an indication that there is increased interest in debate on North Carolina's campuses.

All rounds at the tournament focussed on this year's official debate query:

"Resolved: That the federal government should provide a program of comprehensive medical care for all U. S. citizens."

Arrest Trio For Arson

LUMBERTON (AP)—Several Indians have been arrested by Robeson County law enforcement officials for involvement in incidents of arson and shooting.

Deputy Sheriff Hubert Stone said Sunday three Pembroke Indians have been indicted for burning down a store in the community of Pates, on the western fringe of Pembroke.

Stone continued that the three men along with a fourth man have been charged for a shooting incident at the home of a local Indian leader.

Leon Locklear, Larry Blacksmith and Roy L. Deese have been charged with burning down Joe's Cash Store on March 18. Stone said the three had admitted to setting fire to the store by using a molotov cocktail.

They were also charged, along with David Y. Chief of Rapid City, S.D., with shooting into the home of Carnell Locklear March 16. Locklear is the head of the Eastern Carolina Indian Organization which has been in conflict with the Tuscarora Movement of chief Howard Brooks.

Chief is a Sioux Indian and a member of the American Indian Movement.

Stone said the incident at Locklear's home occurred after dark. Locklear told officers someone knocked on his door, but when he opened it, two shots were fired.
