

When The Power Failed

POWER OFF—A Greenville Utility worker, J. M. Ross, was slightly injured yesterday afternoon when the insulator that he was working on (see left photo) on a high voltage line shorted causing a flash fire. According to Malcom Green, assistant utilities director, the shortage caused the power in parts of the downtown area to be off about 20 minutes. Greene said that Ross sustained minor burns of the face. He also said that Ross was wearing protective clothing and this protected him from further serious injury. The pliers which Ross was using was burned into two pieces (right photo) (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Final House Vote Today On Drink Bill

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina House is scheduled to take a final vote today on a bill authorizing a statewide referendum on liquor by the drink. The measure was tentatively approved Wednesday by a 66-49 vote.

After three hours of debate, the House put North Carolina on the road to becoming the last state east of the Mississippi to make provisions for serving liquor by the drink. The state currently allows sales of beer and wine and brown bagging.

Before it voted on the bill, which was introduced by Rep. Sam Johnson, D-Wake, the House approved an amendment offered by Johnson and designed to undercut the opposition of fundamental Protestant groups represented in the Christian Action League.

Johnson's amendment would allow county commissioners to petition the state ABC board for mixed drinks if the statewide referendum passes.

When the bill came out of committee, it required a second, countywide vote before a county could authorize mixed drinks. This provision was opposed by the anti-liquor forces.

They felt it would allow pro-liquor groups to argue that the statewide referendum was not a vote on liquor itself, but on whether counties should be given the option to authorize it.

Despite the amendment, CAL

president Rev. Coy Privette said his group would oppose liquor by the drink "strenuously."

The debate was dominated by the anti-liquor forces, led by Rep. Dan Lilley, D-Denoir.

"Can you support a bill that could send you to your grave?" Lilley asked, arguing that liquor by the drink would increase drunken driving.

Lilley said he "wished that St. Paul was in this chamber today," to help him argue against the bill.

The leading spokesman for the bill was a Lutheran minister, Rep. Robert Beard, R-Catawba. Beard said the state with the lowest per capita consumption of liquor is Alabama, where mixed drinks have been served since 1937.

Demo Leaders Huddle On Economic Control Law

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Facing almost certain defeat in their drive for a tough price-rollback bill, House Democratic leaders huddle today to seek a compromise or a temporary extension of the existing economic control law.

Tentative agreement was reached Wednesday on a 60-day extension of the president's discretionary control powers which expire April 30.

That agreement was reached after a Banking Committee measure for stiff controls ran into heavy opposition in the House Rules Committee.

The Rules panel hearings were recessed until next week, leaving little time for final congressional action on the bill before the Easter recess starting April 19 and extending to April 30.

A 60-day extension of existing law could be passed by the House without Rules Committee clearance next Monday, but it could not be amended.

The extension was designed to give the Banking Committee time to draft a new bill to soften opposition from farmers, cattlemen and some business groups.

The original bill would roll back prices, interest rates and rents to Jan. 10, 1973, levels. It is opposed by the Nixon administration, which wants the existing law extended.

Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., of the Banking Committee balked at the proposed 60-day extension, which would be considered under procedure barring amendments.

Noting that his committee had approved the rollback measure by a 21-9 vote, Patman said all House members should be allowed to propose and debate amendments if they want to.

Without Rules Committee clearance, he complained, members "will be denied this right."

"Controls are never an easy solution," Patman said, citing rising living costs and "the averages of runaway inflation."

He blamed President Nixon for having "placed the nation in an economic condition where it must make such tough decisions."

Patman said "special conditions should not be allowed to rule congressional decisions. Congress must have the courage to rise above this."

Drug Roundup

Agents of the State Bureau of Investigation, with Greenville Police officers, Pitt County Sheriff deputies and East Carolina University police, began serving some 25 warrants on residents of Pitt County late this morning in connection with an undercover investigation of drug law violations by the SBI.

Twenty-five warrants charged 19 individuals with violations involving the sale and use of marijuana and other illegal narcotics. Half dozen of the warrants charged ECU students while other warrants charged persons living in Greenville and Pitt County with violations.

The charges stemmed from undercover investigations conducted by the SBI in Pitt County since Dec. 1.

Tax Refunds In 5 Weeks

GREENSBORO (AP) — Late filers will have to wait about five weeks for federal income tax refunds.

Robert LeBaube, acting director of the Greensboro district office of the Internal Revenue Service said Wednesday that more than 750,000 North Carolina returns have been processed, but 600,000 more are expected.

Health Clinics Sought

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Jim Holshouser planned to appear before a special joint session of the North Carolina House and Senate today to recommend development of regional health clinics in rural areas of North Carolina.

A resolution inviting the governor to appear at 3 p.m. was introduced in the Senate Wednesday by Sens. Charles Taylor, R-Transylvania, and Gordon Allen, D-Person. It was quickly approved and sent to the House where it also was approved.

At mid-morning, Holshouser was meeting with his press secretary, Jack Childes, apparently to put the finishing touches on his speech. The governor planned to hold a news briefing on his talk before going to the General Assembly.

Reports said the governor will propose an expansion of the community clinics concept.

Taylor, Senate minority leader, was quoted as saying Holshouser's plans are "designed to focus maximum effort on health care in rural areas."

Med School Fund Bill Introduced In General Assembly

RALEIGH (AP) — Legislation to set aside $25 million for a second state medical school was introduced in the General Assembly Wednesday.

The bill, sponsored by Sens. Livingstone Stallings, D-Craven, and Jim Garrison, D-Stanly, made no mention of East Carolina University, which has been seeking a medical school for many years.

It was introduced, Stallings said, to insure that money to start a medical school would be available should the University of North Carolina Board of Governors decide that one is needed.

The board has commissioned five consultants to prepare a recommendation on the issue by September.

Stallings said if the recommendation is favorable, $16 million would be available for buildings and $9 million for equipment.

If the recommendation is unfavorable, he said, "it will be a whole new ball game," and he predicted that eastern legislators would fight next year to override the board.

In other legislative business Wednesday, representatives for print and broadcast media organizations protested provisions in a pending bill that would make it illegal to publicize the names of welfare recipients.

The House Social Services Committee then voted 6-5 to refer the bill to a subcommittee for further study.

In the Senate, the Manufacturing and Labor Committee voted to delay action on a bill to raise the state minimum wage to $1.80 while an amendment was written to delay putting the bill into effect until the federal minimum wage is raised.

Can Still Cuss

RALEIGH (AP) — Thanks to Rep. Herbert Hyde, North Carolinians can still cuss legally in Swain County.

Hyde, a Buncombe County Democrat, had the state House convulsed with laughter and roaring in applause Wednesday as he inveighed against a bill that would have included Swain County with the 98 other counties in the state in which cussing is prohibited.

That would have left only Pitt County in eastern North Carolina as a sanctuary where a man can let off a little steam, Hyde said.

Hyde said he had considered introducing amendments that would have exempted people who ride steers, drive mules, or run for public office.

In the end, though, he concluded "this is an iniquitous bill and ought not to pass."

The House agreed in a voice vote.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. Bettie Wilkie, R-Henderson, had been passed by the Senate earlier in the session.

New Consumer Group Urging Meatless Days

By JANET STAIHAR
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The newest national consumer group wants Americans not to eat or buy meat on Tuesdays and Thursdays, and to prepare for a national day of protest against food prices next month.

The battle cry for continued meat boycotts was sounded Wednesday as 150 women, all boycott leaders, met on Capitol Hill as the National Consumers Congress.

"I really think the consumer movement started here today," said congress chairman Betty Furness, New York City's commissioner of consumer affairs. The group immediately called for two meatless days each week and designated May 5 as a national day of protest against high food prices with demonstrations scheduled across the country.

The women also called for the resignation of Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz and urged the administration to affect a "major rollback of food prices." In addition, they passed a resolution demanding that the President reduce exports of scarce foods and take action to spur domestic food production and food imports.

In Chicago, the president of the American Meat Institute said that a rollback in food prices would produce one of the worst meat shortages in the nation's history.

Herrell DeGraff said a rollback to the Jan. 10 level would cost the livestock and meat industries $1.25 billion, and would produce only short-term benefits for consumers.

But, he said, the industry's ability to provide meat would be curtailed resulting "in the most serious meat shortage ever, with a return to meat rationing and black markets."

The boycott leaders beat down a proposal to endorse a congressional bill which would roll back food and all other prices to Jan. 10, 1973, levels. One woman argued that the legislation does not go far enough to lower prices.

Picasso's Art Collection Given To France; Not His Own Works

PARIS (AP) — Pablo Picasso's family announced today that it is giving the artist's immensely valuable collection of paintings by his contemporaries to the French nation.

The gift, announced by the family's Paris attorney, Roland Dumas, does not include the enormous collection of works by Picasso which the artist never sold.

Art dealers are fearful that the market value of Picasso's work will collapse if the family is forced to sell off a substantial number of these paintings to pay inheritance taxes on the rest of his large fortune.

The collection being given to the nation is in the villa at Mougins, on the French Riviera, where Picasso died April 8 at the age of 91.

It includes paintings by Matisse, Modigliani, Dufy, Braque, Rousseau and others, and most have never been seen by the public.

"They are pictures which he had purchased since the beginning of the century and are works of the greatest painters of the modern period," Dumas said.

He added that the only condition attached to the donation was that the pictures should hang together on exhibit in the Louvre.

Picasso's legitimate son, Paulo, confirmed that his father left no will. In addition to his widow, Jacqueline, and Paulo, the artist is survived by two illegitimate daughters and an illegitimate son, and a legal battle may have to be fought through the French courts to determine the division of the estate.

Dowd-Jordan Vows Said Prepare Range-Top Casseroles For Summer

The marriage of Miss Della Faye Jordan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos H. Jordan of Greenville, and Robert Dowd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Dowd of Hickory, took place Saturday at 4:30 p.m.

The Rev. Johnnie H. Taylor performed the double ring ceremony held at the home of Mrs. Hallie Hardy.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown with white chiffon fashioned with a ruffle neckline and short sleeves. The empire waistline was accented with a satin band and bows. The hemline of the skirt featured a ruffle.

Her veil was attached to a white beaded headpiece and the bride carried a bouquet of white yellow carnations, daisies and lilies.

The honor attendant was Doris Cooper of Newark, N. J. She wore a maize yellow dotted swiss dress designed with a V-neckline, with white lace border and long sleeves. She carried a bouquet of yellow carnations and white daisies.

Miss Sudie Mae Sharpe of Greenville, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a yellow and white dotted swiss dress and carried a basket of yellow carnations.

The best man was Ron Beckett of Roanoke, Va.

The mother of the bride wore a blue dress, matching accessories and a white carnation corsage. The mother of the bridegroom chose a blue dress and accessories. She wore a corsage of white carnations.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Charlotte.

The bride and bridegroom attended Kings Business College, Charlotte.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony. Guests were received by Mrs. Jacqueline Shiver Stroud of Raleigh.

A rehearsal party was held at the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Hallie Hardy, for the bridal party and out-of-town guests. Mrs. Mahalia Shiver was hostess.

67 Year Old Was Brigitte Bardot

COURIAC, France (WNS) — Record crowds turned out for the annual carnival here because Brigitte Bardot and Sophia Loren were advertised as guest stars. But B. B. turned out to be 67 years old and Sophia only eight. "I've had the name much longer than the film star," said Mrs. Bardot, grandmother of a dozen teens.

Gentle Tears Said Most Effective

BRUSSELS, Belgium (WNS) — Olga de Bruyne, who celebrated her 100th birthday here, declared that her long, healthy life is due to the fact that she learned to "keep my mouth shut and my mind peaceful" at an early age. Mrs. de Bruyne has been widowed three times, "twice because of the World Wars." "The way to keep a man happy and a marriage solid is to keep quiet whenever argument threatens," she said. "Gentle tears are much more effective than harsh words."

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — Rising temperatures, like rising prices, pose one big problem for home cooks: How to cut kitchen time without increasing the cost of meals.

Come summer, nobody wants oven casseroles. While they're usually cheap to make, baking time often is in inverse ratio to price—and an overheated kitchen is inevitable.

One-pot, range-top casseroles make good alternatives. The homemade kind are just as easy to prepare as ready-mixes that cost more per serving. Rice or macaroni products provide the basis for some good ones.

Main dish salads that combine raw and cooked ingredients also can be inexpensive and quick and easy to make.

Quicker still are pressure cooked vegetable salads that in many cases take less than five minutes cooking time, such as dilled green beans vinaigrette.

By all means make your own salad dressings, barbecue sauces and marinades. They're cheaper than bottled ones or those made from dry mixes—and infinitely better tasting.

When Appetites Flag
When appetites flag during a heat wave, serve a cold soup and hot salad meal or a main dish salad containing fish, cheese, eggs or poultry in addition to raw and cooked vegetables.

You can stretch two cups of leftover cooked ham into four to six servings in quick stew containing high-protein canned beans and bargain-priced canned tomatoes.

Individual meat loaves cook in just 15 minutes in a preheated 400-degree oven if you bake them in muffin tins instead of the traditional loaf pan. If your meat mixture contains pork, be sure the juices no longer run pink when you serve the loaves.

For a cookout, serve barbecued chicken or turkey instead of more expensive meat and, to go with it, German-style potato salad.

Seasonal fresh fruit, alone or with cheese, makes a hard-to-beat summer dessert. But if your family demands something sweeter, make coffee jelly, with instant coffee, or real fruit gels based on unsweetened gelatine, sugar and fruit juice. Or make banana milk ice. It's low in calories as well as cost.

Now for some recipes:

Rice Casserole

—Spicy rice casserole: Place 1 cup of regular white rice in large saucepan with 2 cups of reconstituted frozen orange juice, 1 teaspoon of salt and 1 to 2 teaspoons of curry powder. Bring quickly to boil, stir once or twice with fork, cover tightly and boil over low heat about 15 minutes. Quickly stir in 1½ cups of diced, cooked chicken or turkey, ¼ cup each of chopped, unsalted nuts and fresh parsley. Cover and cook 3 to 5 minutes more over very low heat, or until chicken is heated through. Makes 4 servings.

—Picnic macaroni salad travels well because it's made without mayonnaise. Cook 2 cups (8 ounces) of elbow macaroni as label directs. Drain, rinse with cold water and drain again. Return it to saucepan, add ¼ cup of salad oil, 3 tablespoons of cider vinegar, 1 tablespoon of sugar, 1 green pepper, seeded and cut into thin strips, ½ cup of chopped radishes, 1-3 cup each of chopped onion and drained sweet pickle relish and 1 (13-ounce) can of tuna, drained and broken into chunks. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Chill several hours. Toss again before serving and garnish with wedges cut from two tomatoes. Makes 4 main dish servings.

Dilled Green Beans
—Dilled green beans vinaigrette: Snap ends from 1½ pounds of washed, drained green beans. Place ½ cup of water and the rack in a 4-quart pressure cooker (or 1 cup of water for a 6-quart cooker). Add beans and coat them with a well shaken mixture of 3 tablespoons of salad oil, 1 tablespoon of vinegar and 1 teaspoon of dried dill weed or 2 tablespoons of chopped fresh dill weed. Close cover of cooker and cook as manufacturer directs, but cut cooking time to about 2 minutes if you prefer a

Wife Spies Out Truth On Hubby's Business Trip

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Quite by accident I saw my husband's car parked in a strange place when he was supposed to be out of town on business. I hid and waited for him to return, and several hours later a young girl drove up with Bob in the car. He kissed her goodbye hurriedly, got into his own car, and drove off. I followed the girl home, rang her doorbell and told her who I was. She was shocked because she didn't know Bob was married. (She's 22, Bob is 41.)

I then drove home, and Bob acted glad to see me. He lied about the "business trip" and after giving him enough rope to hang himself, I told him what I had done. He was furious with me for "spying" on him, then he stormed out of the house. I immediately called his mother and told her the whole story. She very nonchalantly said: "What do you want ME to do, spank a 41-year old man?"

Bob moved his clothes out of the house and refuses to have anything to do with me. We have three children who need a father. I've begged him to forgive me, but he's still angry. Abby, why should I beg HIM to forgive ME? He should be begging ME to forgive HIM. How can I get him back?

RED EYES

DEAR RED: You may not be able to. Moral: A woman will forgive an unfaithful husband faster than a man will forgive an emasculating wife.

DEAR ABBY: I am an 18-year-old girl, recently graduated from high school, and now I have a steady job that pays well.

I recently moved out of my parents' home to assume full responsibility for myself and my life.

My problem is this: I am constantly approached by adults who ask me why I left my parents' home. When I reply: "Because my parents have done so much for me that I decided it was time I did something for them," they look at me like I'm crazy.

Abby, that's the way I feel. I think the best way for children to repay their parents for all they have done is to become self-supporting and self-sufficient as soon as possible, and relieve parents of the responsibility.

In this day and age people are so used to condemning the youth for doing something wrong, they condemn them even when they do something right. Or am I wrong?

INDEPENDENT IN OHIO

DEAR INDEPENDENT: Not every 18-year-old chick is able to leave the nest and become self-sufficient and self-supporting, but those who do deserve congratulations not criticism.

DEAR ABBY: I was taught that if you didn't have something, you did without it, but we have neighbors who borrow, borrow, borrow and never return anything, and I am sick of it.

When they moved in next door they asked if they could borrow our phone until they got theirs. Well, it has been five months and they still don't have their own phone, and I doubt if they even ordered one.

They started using our baby's stroller, and now they use it more than we do. It's a good one which I bought secondhand for $7 thru an ad in the newspaper, and they could get one the same way if they tried.

I won't even mention the light bulbs, cigarets, coffee, and other things they have borrowed and never returned.

What should we do? If we were as crude as they were we wouldn't have a problem. TAKEN ADVANTAGE OF

DEAR TAKEN: If you don't cut off the easy supply, they'll continue to take advantage of you indefinitely. Simply tell them you are not able to lend them anything anymore.

Anybody Up There Listening?

Robert Morgan, chairman of the ECU board of trustees, delivered a tough- no-nonsense, tell-it-like-it-is, speech on the ECU medical school issue before the UNC-Chapel Hill faculty club Tuesday.

The reason the school should be developed at ECU "Is so simple and obvious that I continue to be amazed when anyone raises the question," he said.

Not Only Goal For Education

By BRYAN HANSLIP
RALEIGH — "There are many things worth knowing which have little, if any, practical usefulness in the production of goods and services. Economic independence is a worthy goal of occupational education, but it is not education's only goal."

The quotation is from a policy statement adopted by the State Board of Education last week which may well make a significant turn to the debate over career education in the public schools.

Authoried by Chairman Dallas Herring, the policy's aim is to lay a secure foundation in basic academic skills under experimental programs to introduce students to the world of work and prepare them for a place in it.

Its unanimous adoption by the board makes it the touchstone to which school administrators must refer in constructing career education curriculum changes in the public schools. Programs already in operation must be given another look in light of the policy's guidelines.

In brief, these are: career education is experimental concept, not yet proven; courses in the area should be elective rather than compulsory; the primary focus in education must continue to be "development of the mind, in its ability to acquire knowledge and understanding and to make intelligent judgments..."

Spokesman For Scholarship
The board's action reaffirmed Herring's authoritative voice in educational policy for North Carolina, and reflected his conviction that scholarship is the cornerstone for the public schools.

He exerted leadership in stalling a new teacher certification plan eliminating a minimum score on a test for academic achievement. The Board reached an impasse on the issue, and it is now before the General Assembly.

Herring, a bachelor and a Rose Hill casket manufacturer has served on the state board of education since 1955. He is a scholar who teaches Greek to neighborhood children for the fun of it, and a craftsman who loves to work with his hands.

Academic excellence and occupational training are not in conflict, he insisted when education is set in its proper perspective. The goal of learning, he said, is making people live better, not simple to make a better living.

Subject For Debate
Promises and pitfalls of career education have been argued by both professionals and lay citizens in recent months. Advocates contend it is a route to relevancy, offering students practical exposure to the work world and training in the skills to make their way.

On the other hand, persistent fears have been expressed that it would limit opportunities for some students by tracking them into early career choices at the lower end of the economic scale.

Confusion has resulted from the absence of a clear state policy, Herring said. The risk of abuses can be avoided by an understanding of the policy adopted, and adherence to its principles, he added.

Career Education Defined
The policy statement spells out this definition of career education: "A system of study which emphasizes applied basic education experiences and relates them to occupational education in a sequence of elective courses which are offered in addition to, rather than in lieu of, the basic disciplines, so that students who desire (1) to become aware of, (2) to explore in a general way, or (3) to become skilled in certain occupations may acquire a better understanding of the importance of basic education to their occupational goals and may be motivated to increase their understanding of basic education in preparation for adult life."

At the time it adopted Herring's policy statement, the board accepted the report of a task force on career education as "a description of a concept which promotes comprehensive education." The policy and the task report differed at some points. For example, the task force recommended that career education courses be required in the elementary grades, while the policy statement said the courses should be elective at all levels.

"It is not a 180-degree turn from the task force report—but they were moving to the left, and the policy is to the right," Herring said.

The board, through the statement drafted by Herring, expressed support for "carefully conceived experiments" to test the validity of the career education concept. "We don't believe widespread changes in the curriculum should occur unless and until it is clearly established that the concept is sound," it added. Meanwhile, it asked that State Department of Public Instruction to continue its study of the subject and keep the board advised of its progress.

"What other institution has repeatedly moved to develop a medical school? Who else has continually pushed for expanded opportunities for North Carolina students?"

We believe it was the kind of speech that the Chapel Hill faculty club wanted to hear, not because all of the faculty there agrees with Robert Morgan but because as academicians they would respect a man who lays the facts before them without pulling any punches.

The talk immediately sent some establishment types scurrying to dredge up the same tired old arguments against development of the ECU medical school.

We would hope though, that the general reaction to this talk among those who are responsible for the direction state planning will take, will be to listen and at least reasonably consider the arguments Morgan made.

If they listen they will have to recognize that there was great frustration throughout the state when the matter of the ECU medical school's development was reopened by the board of governors.

The issue had been propelled forward by the results of studies done by some of the outstanding medical education consultants in the nation. The school had been established and funded by the State Legislature and is now in operation. Then along comes still another study which at its outset does not even recognize that the ECU medical school exists. If all state business were conducted like this, the result would be complete chaos.

Years ago, when Chapel Hill first proposed development of its medical school to a full four years, some thoughtful souls warned that the state would then have two major medical teaching hospitals within some 15 miles of each other. Since it is well known that development of a medical school has great benefit to improving health care for an area this seemed an untenable position.

Well, the arguments were quickly squelched. Now North Carolina finds itself in the indefensible position of requiring the tax payers to help support two medical schools almost sitting on top of each other.

We would not favor undoing all this, but building a new medical school here in the east, where the need is so great rather than continuing to expand two that nearly adjoin certainly has to be logical.

We just hope somebody up there is listening.

Jonas Surveys Senate Scene

By JOHN KILGO

Charles Jonas Jr., coming from a line of men who have served in Washington and feeling the Republican Party is riding high in North Carolina, is casting about to see if he could win a race for the U. S. Senate.

Jonas, of course, is a Republican and his father served for 20 years in the U. S. House.

"I can't quote you odds whether I'll run or not," Jonas told me. "I don't know if it's 50-50 or less than that. That's why I'm taking this close look so that I can make a firm decision by time fall arrives."

Jonas says he doesn't like the "tired, old exercises that many politicians go through" in seeking public office, namely saying that they're being pressured to run, but it's too early to make a decision.

"I don't think it's too early to make a decision," Jonas says, "but I've first got to see what my chances are. This is the truth. I get at least one phone call a day from people wanting to know what I'm going to do. When I travel, people inquire about my future political plans. Not all of them are encouraging, but most of them are at least inquisitive."

Jonas says for the first time, his father also seems interested in seeing him get into a political race. Jonas Jr. was campaign director for President Nixon in North Carolina during both the 1968 and 1972 campaigns.

He considers this a plus on his record, especially since he's only 32 years old and has never run for public office before.

"I guess my age would be a possible problem in some areas," Jonas says, "but I consider it a plus. I have the energy and the desire and in reality, I've been in statewide politics for six years. I've traveled in every section of the state. People seem surprised when they learn I'm only 32. Most people think I'm older than that."

Jonas feels politics rides on trends and he definitely believes the trend in North Carolina today is Republican. He says Sen. Jesse Helms has increased his strength and influence since arriving in Washington.

"And (Gov.) Jim Holshouser has been accepted in a tremendous way," Jonas says. "Those things will be to the benefit of the Republican candidate for the Senate in 1974, especially if President Nixon's popularity remains as high as it is now. I would say the Republican nominee for the Senate in North Carolina, whomever he or she may be, would stand at least a 50-50 chance of winning."

Jonas is having a professional survey made now to see how well known he is across North Carolina. This, he says, would help him get a handle on how much money it would take for him to run for the Senate.

After that, Jonas plans to travel the state extensively, talking with political leaders in all parts of North Carolina. Then it'll be a little crystal-ball gazing, to see who he would be stepping in against in the primary and even in the general election.

"I'm not sure how any of

The Question Is Power

The overriding questions in Washington this spring are questions of power: Where you vest it, how you restrain it. And because the struggle for power is the most fascinating of human conflicts, these are exciting times.

We see the problems of restraint most vividly in this matter of the bombing of Cambodia. In human terms, it is plainly a grave matter: The cost has to be reckoned in lives lost, and in lives risked. In strategic terms, it is a serious matter: A Communist takeover in Cambodia would jeopardize Thailand and once more imperil South Vietnam.

In terms of power, the bombing is a deeply controversial matter. The airplanes are taking off, and the bombs are dropping, at the direction of one man: "The President shall be Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy of the United States..." Nixon's sole authority lies in that sentence from Article II of the Constitution. Is he exceeding his power?

Assume for the moment that Nixon is not exceeding his power. The North Vietnamese pledged themselves, in the Paris agreement, to cease operations in Cambodia. Clearly they have not ceased operations there. If the agreement, won at such cost, is not to be reduced to a scrap of paper, this flagrant violation must be resisted. Resisted by whom? By the United States. Resisted how? By bombing. Who has the power to order the bombing? The President. So the argument runs.

Assume, on the other hand, that this argument will not wash. No U.S. troops remain to be protected. No treaty provisions can be invoked. The bombing is plainly an act of war, and the Congress, in the archaic language of Article I, "shall have power to declare War, grant Letters of Marque and Reprisal, and make Rules concerning Captures on Land and Water." Congress has made no such declaration as to Cambodia. It may be relevant, but it is scarcely material, that Presidents have committed our armed forces on a hundred other occasions over the past century and Congress has failed to declare war. Has this President, on this occasion, abused his power?

If so, how can his exercise of power be restrained? In the art of governance, no question holds greater meaning. The familiar answer is that Congress can check the President's power of the sword with its own power of the purse: "No Money shall be drawn from the Treasury, but in Consequence of Appropriations made by Law." The Congress, in theory, could ground these bombers by prohibiting the expenditure of funds to fly them.

Suppose the President refused to accept the prohibition? What then? One more restraint remains: "The President shall be removed from Office on Impeachment for, and Conviction of, Treason, Bribery, or high Crimes and Misdemeanors." A President takes oath that he will faithfully execute his office and preserve the Constitution. Violation of that oath surely would constitute a "high crime." But it takes a majority of the House to impeach and two-thirds of the

Boyle Views Life

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — There are times in life when a man should charge forward heedless of the cost. But there are really very few such occasions.

What a man really needs to know if he wants to live a long and reasonably content life is when he should back away rather than charge. And when is that? The answer to that must be—most times.

The trouble with man is that his common sense is at war with his human nature.

His nature is to try anything new, to agree with any proposal, to accept any invitation. This is because he is born with a curiosity 10 times as big as the one that killed the cat. Only his common sense—that slender reed—warns him: "Hold back," "Not so fast," "Let's wait and see what happens if we do nothing."

It would be ideal, of course, if these warring elements in man—his curiosity and his common sense—were properly balanced. Alas, such is not the case. Human common sense is usually the loser in a tug of war with human curiosity.

What can be done about it? Well, actually, quite a bit. All you have to do is to replace the unconscious habit of saying "yes" with the conscious habit of saying "no." You want some examples to practice on? Well, you'll add to your safety, peace of mind and probably your longevity if you learn to say "no!" to invitations that lead only to disaster such as these:

"If you put $5,000 into this proposition, I can probably double your money in a year. Put in $10,000 and I can practically guarantee to triple it."

"Go ahead and call his bluff. I'll lend you carfare home if

Public health workers will go to Chicod Friday for the holding of one of the series of adenoid and tonsil clinics which have been under way the last two months in an effort to improve the health condition school children. A clinic was held at Grifton yesterday and twenty children were operated on for adenoids and tonsils. This brought the total near the 250 mark. It was expected that over 300 would be operated on before the campaign comes to an end.

Strength For Today

THE INVISIBLE VERTICAL

Every building is built on the invisible vertical. You may not be able to see the line which runs from the roof to the foundation, but it is there. Every builder knows that he must reckon with that line and accommodate himself to it before he can build securely.

The invisible vertical runs through our lives also. Frequently we are not so wise in the building of our lives as the men who build with brick and stone. But God's plumb line runs from heaven to earth. It goes from the top to the bottom of every man's life. This invisible vertical is the divine purpose. It is God's unwavering determination that come what will, men must in the end abide by the divine laws and accommodate themselves to the divine plan.

Sin is an attempt to build in flagrant disregard of this invisible vertical. And just as a building constructed with no regard for the invisible vertical will in time sag and collapse, so a sinful life will bring unhappiness and a lack of fulfillment.

Offer Unnerving Conclusions

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Reflections on the American economy, particularly as they affect the air you breathe, the car you drive and the job you hold.

—You aren't supposed to think very long or profoundly about it, because to do so might fling before you some unnerving conclusions about the rationality of the human race. But the facts are that:

1. While the nation fights what is sometimes described as a life-and-death struggle against pollution and congestion from automobiles...

2. While industry and government officials work frantically in an effort to enlarge the producing and distribution facilities of the petroleum industry...
3. The automobile industry is selling gasoline-burning, pollutant-producing cars at a rate greater than ever before achieved, with sales of more than a million units in March bringing first-quarter totals to nearly three million.

But if the goals of more cars, less pollution and congestion, and adequate petroleum supplies appear to be in conflict, the situation isn't any more so than that produced by the lack of planning in a big city apartment house area, where:

1. The city issues a building permit for 150 apartments, with in-house parking spaces for 40 cars...
2. The state licenses 100 or more automobiles to residents at the address...
3. The city assigns able-bodied policemen to systematically fine those who are forced to park illegally, but makes no attempt before or after construction to remove the problem by enlarging parking facilities.

A job in our industrial society was once something the typical worker tried to forget in his leisure hours. For many workers it still is, but the much maligned 5-day, 40-hour week is probably more important than most people realize.

It is, in fact, the institution around which much of life is being structured. Take away the job and you may leave a person not just physically but sometimes mentally idle as well.

Anti-Smog Engine Was Ignored, Says Inventor

By MARK L. KAUTZ
Associated Press Writer
STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — "Detroit had the tools to look at smog 15 years ago and didn't do a damn thing with them," says a California inventor who claims American automakers ignored an antismog engine he developed in the 1950s.

Kilgo . . .

(Continued from page 4) that stack up at the present time," Jonas said. "It's the kind of thing I've got to explore before making any kind of final decision."

Jonas says he's talked his possible Senate candidacy over "only in a most casual kind of way with Sen. Helms a couple of months ago."

Jonas has often been mentioned as a possible candidate for Congress. He never ran and one reason was he felt his family situation wasn't ready for it.

"The fact that I'm interested in looking at the Senate race at this time," Jonas says, "is because my family is interested in it now. My father served in Washington and his father before him. I've been interested in government for many years. By the time fall comes, I'll be able to make a positive decision. People will know whether I'm going to run. There will be no hedging around."

Is there, then, no effective restraint upon the exercise by a President of his powers as Commander-in-Chief? Given circumstances such as those in the matter of Cambodia, I suspect there is none. But this is nothing novel. There is no effective restraint upon the abuse of power by the Supreme Court. In the end, there is little but self-restraint.

Restraining power is one problem: delegating power is another. Nixon's admirable "New Federalism" is an effort to relocate power—to return power to the states and cities. The struggle over presidential impoundment is an effort by the Congress to reclaim powers it long ago squandered. Nixon's invocation of executive privilege is at bottom one more battle over power.

Heintz says both he and Honda developed a "stratified charge" engine which, like diesel engines, employ pre-combustion chambers to burn fuel completely.

Gasoline is fed into a small chamber where it is ignited and then blown into the main firing chamber. Heintz said in an interview Wednesday. American autos, with only one carburetor, do not burn fuel as efficiently, thus causing smog, he added.

Heintz, 81, an inventor and engineer who operated an aircraft equipment firm during World War II, said he became interested in the stratified charge engine after visiting Los Angeles in 1955, where smog caused his eyes to water.

At his ranch laboratory near Stanford University, Heintz said he built five low-emission engines, the first successful

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — An

Environmental Protection Agency official says EPA's little-noticed desertion of 1976 nitrogen-oxide limits in automobile exhausts is far more significant than its delay in forcing abatement of two other pollutants.

If Congress accepts EPA's views, auto makers may have to provide little or no control of nitrogen oxide beyond that already applied to today's cars.

That would make it a lot easier for them to meet the tough carbon-monoxide and hydrocarbons limits which were postponed Wednesday from their original 1975 deadline to 1976.

In addition, EPA is questioning the more-general air-quality standards for nitrogen oxide, with the result that plans to control this pollutant in urban areas will be delayed at least another year, and strict nonvehicle controls may eventually become unnecessary in many areas that, until now, seemed to need them.

Environmental Protection Administrator William D. Ruckelshaus, in announcing suspension of 1975 standards and establishment of interim standards for automobile carbon monoxide and hydrocarbons, mentioned just briefly EPA's new position on the nitrogen-oxide limit. He urged that it be reviewed quickly.

In a later interview, however, Eric Stork, EPA director of mobile source controls, described the position more bluntly.

"We have said we're going to back off the nitrogen-oxide standard. That's the real story," Stork said.

Ruckelshaus, in a separate interview, said EPA had "badly overestimated" the nitrogen-oxide pollution problem, previously considered a serious source of smog.

"Instead of 47 regions with serious problems," he said, "we really only have two: Los Angeles and Chicago."

Ruckelshaus said he already has suggested to Congress that the 90-per cent nitrogen-oxide reduction now required by law for 1976 automobile should be reconsidered.

He said he would bring the subject up again in hearings next week, which were announced Wednesday by Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, chairman of a Senate air and water pollution subcommittee.

Ruckelshaus offered no estimate of a more reasonable nitrogen-oxide limit, but another EPA source said the agency would be willing to settle for the present level of control, or a little better. Present law requires the 1970 nitrogen-oxide auto emissions of about 4.0 grams per mile to be reduced 90 per cent, the 0.4

by 1976. At present, they have been reduced about 25 per cent. In his official decision Wednesday, Ruckelshaus allowed California to set a nitrogen-oxide standard of 2.0 grams per mile.

Most Americans Feel Income Taxes Too High

By GEORGE GALLUP

Copyright 1973, Field Enterprises, Inc. All rights reserved. Reproduction in whole or part strictly prohibited, except with the written consent of the copyright holders.

PRINCETON, N.J.—With the deadline for filing income taxes only days away, two out of every three Americans say that the amount of Federal income taxes they pay is "too high," with complaints found highest among the increasingly affluent "blue-collar" group.

The latest survey finding—of particular significance in view of the current debate in Congress over federal spending policies—represents a slight decline in the proportion saying income taxes are "too high" since a 1969 survey, the last time the question was asked.

This decline may be due in part to the end of the Vietnam war. The upsurge in tax complaints between 1966 and 1969 was undoubtedly due in some measure to widespread disillusionment over the Vietnam war. Surveys during that period showed increasing majorities of Americans believing that our involvement in Vietnam was a mistake.

In contrast, after the outbreak of war in Korea in 1950 the proportion of tax complainers actually decline—surveys had shown the public generally willing to accept higher taxes when they felt they were needed for the nation's defense. But by 1952—with Americans feeling that our entrance into the Korean war was a mistake—complaints about high taxes soared.

The views of Americans during the Korean and Vietnam conflicts contrast sharply with public opinion recorded in Gallup surveys during World War II when large majorities described the income tax they paid as "fair."

At a time when the nation's taxpayers were struggling with this year's tax forms, the Gallup Poll assigned its interviewers to ask a question which had been asked at tax time in most years since 1947:

Do you consider the amount of Federal income tax which you have to pay as too high, about right or too low?

Although the latest results show little difference between the views of men and women, those in the survey with a college background are less inclined to complain about high taxes than are those with a high school or grade school background.

Among occupation groups, manual workers include the percentage of those saying federal income taxes are "too high," farmers the smallest percentage.

Persons 30 to 49 years old are more likely to complain than are older taxpayers (50 and over) and new taxpayers, under 30 years old.

The percentage of those who feel the tax bite is too great is higher among Democrats and independents than among Republicans.

Following are the findings by all major population groups:

Catholic Church. Issues discussed were local and national trends in abortion, new techniques for performing abortions, counseling the abortion patient, and the moral, ethical, and social conflicts surrounding abortion.

During the business meeting, the fund-raising committee reported that a card party had been selected as a project for the coming year. Committees were appointed to plan parties in the Greenville and Williamston area. Mrs. Betty Bailey, Mrs. Helen Talbot, Mrs. Judith Garrison, and Mrs. Becky Jones compose the Greenville committee, while the Williamston one is made up of Mrs. Mary Taylor and Mrs. Mary Curtis. The next meeting will be held May 8 at the same place, it was announced.

In recognition of observances of National Boy's Club Week, the local Boys' Club of Greenville-Pitt County is this week and next conducting a competition tournament.

Graham Gutting, director of the local club, said that "about 50 boys are taking part in the tournament competition, which began Monday and will continue on into next week."

The tournaments are being held for boys in different age groups in ping-pong, checkers, pool, horse shoes, the 100 yard dash and physical fitness.

In addition, a creative competition event is the making of a poster on the theme "Brotherhood."

The results of the competition will be made known at the annual Boy's Club banquet scheduled for May 17. At that time trophies will be given to winners in each of the events, and the creator of the best poster will be named.

J. B. Kittrell Sr. was honored Wednesday night by Pitt County Post EE of the Traveler's Protective Association (TPA) for his services since 1927 when he became the local organization's first member.

Cars Collided At Intersection

An estimated $425 property damage resulted from a 3:35 p.m. mishap here yesterday at the intersection of Tenth and Washington Streets.

Police reported cars driven by Lee Roy Grimsley of Route 2, Washington and Ervin Augustus James Jr., of Route 1, Stokes collided causing an estimated $250 damage to the Grimsley car and about $175 damage to the James auto.

Grimsley was charged with failing to stop for a stop light following investigation of the mishap.

Some 167 local members attended the session honoring the charter member, Jimmy Harris, Post president, presided during the dinner meeting at the Winterville Fire Department.

Noan Raynor of Greenville introduced Kittrell and pointed out that after becoming the first member in 1927, he signed 67 new members to the Post during the first year. The first-year members are considered charter members, it was pointed out.

Raynor presented Kittrell a plaque in recognition of his service to the local association. Kittrell spoke to the members about his years with TPA.

In 1928, Kittrell signed up 103 new members; in 1929 some 111 members were added; in 1930 the 259 members signed represented the top figure in the United States; and in 1931 he added 105 members to the books.

The Post elected Leon Smith as the new president of the association and Bill Martin was selected vice president during the business session. Bill Williams will serve as secretary. Four new directors were elected to serve a year-term. They are Noah Raynor, J. H. Harris, J. D. Wilson, and Cecil Worthington.

N.C. State Runs Past Pirates, 11-3

By WOODY PEELE

N.C. State University spotted East Carolina University a 3-0 lead in the first inning, then stormed back to take an 11-3 victory at Harrington Field yesterday.

It was only the third game in 24 days for the Pirates who have been plagued by the schedule and the weather. They have had two doubleheaders rained out during that period, leaving them without a chance to work out their frustrations.

The loss was only the third of the year for the Pirates, but it was the second in a row, and their worst.

The Bucs used six pitchers to give them a chance to work out, and for the most part, State worked them over. They cracked out a total of 14 hits, getting six of them off loser Bill Godwin. The Bucs managed 10 hits of their own off two Wolf-pack hurlers, but couldn't do the damage State did with theirs.

The Pirates looked in a first inning as if they would be running State right out of Greenville, as they pushed in three runs on four hits.

Mike Bradshaw led off with a bunt single to third. Mike Hogan followed with a single into right and Ron Staggs walked to load them up. John Narron got a hit to right, scoring Bradshaw. Larry Walters followed with another hit to right, bringing in Hogan. Then, with one down, Ronnie Leggett hit a sacrifice fly to center, with Staggs scoring after the catch, making it 3-0.

But that was all the Pirates were to get, although they did offer threats in the second, third, sixth, eighth and ninth. And only in the final two frames did they get runners as far as third.

State, meanwhile, put its hitting shoes on from the second inning on, scoring in the second, third, fourth, sixth, and seventh. Starter Dave LaRussa was tagged for three runs in the second that tied it up. With one out, Pat Korsnick, who went four-for-five, doubled to right center off the fence. Bill Glad followed with a walk, and Carl Sawyer came on to run for him. Phil Blount, a former Jamesville High School player, also walked, loading them up. LaRussa delivered a wild pitch, scoring Korsnick, and Buddy Green walked to reload them. Kent Juday then singled to center, scoring Sawyer and Blount.

In the third, reliever Bill Godwin was tagged for two more runs. With one down, Wayne Currin singled to right, and Korsnick got a hit. Both advanced on a wild pitch, and Glad singled, scoring Currin. Danny Moore came on as Glad's courtesy runner and promptly stole second. Blount walked to load them up, and Randall Watts grounded to third, forcing Korsnick at home. Greenville walked, however, scoring Moore with the fifth State run.

Two more came over in the fourth. Ron Evans led off with an infield hit and Don Zagorski doubled down the left field line. Korsnick followed with a single, scoring Evans, and Glad walked to load them up. Blount then singled to drive in Zagorski, making it 7-3.

Reliever Russ Smith held State in check in the fifth without a runner, but he gave up a run in the sixth. With one down, Korsnick walked and came around

Southern Wayne Rips Chargers

DUDLEY—Southern Wayne High School romped to a 12-2 victory over Ayden-Grifton's Chargers yesterday in an Eastern Conference baseball game.

Southern pushed over three runs in the first inning to take the lead, for good. Billy Vernon singled and after a pop-up, he moved to third, when the pickoff attempt was thrown away. Tim Robbins reached on a fielder's choice as Vernon scored. Greg Carroll reached on an error, allowing Robbins to score, and C. Clark doubled in Carroll.

The Saints added two more in the third inning. Carroll was hit by a pitch, and came around to score on three successive wild pitches. Clark walked and stole second, and Neil Barlett reached on a fielder's choice Clark then scored on a double steal.

Southern, leading 5-0, went to score one in the fourth and then break it wide open with six more in the fifth.

Ayden-Grifton's only runs came in the sixth. Vernon Davenport reached on a fielder's choice and Don Phillips singled. Tony Koonce doubled in Davenport, but Phillips singled.

Ayden-Grifton's only runs came in the sixth. Vernon Davenport reached on a fielder's choice and Don Phillips singled. Tony Koonce doubled in Davenport, but Phillips was thrown out trying to score. Eddie Taylor reached on an error, as did Steve Tripp, scoring Koonce.

WILLIAMSTON—The Williamston Tigers held onto first place in the Albermarle Conference yesterday with a 3-0 victory over Perquimans.

The win was the fifth straight in the league for the Tigers, against no losses.

Mike Weaver hurled the victory, striking out 10 and walking none. He scattered four hits, and only one man for Perquimans reached as far as second base.

Williamston, which got only three hits, took advantage of Perquimans' mistakes to get their runs.

One came over in the first inning. Mike Bundy walked and was sacrificed up. He scored when Keith Brown reached on an error.

It stayed 1-0 until the sixth, when the Tigers added a couple of insurance runs. Vann Andrews reached on an error, as did Tim Jackson. Bundy doubled in Andrews, and Jackson scored when Dwight Ange grounded out.

Bundy had two of the three hits for Williamston, while Fields had two for Perquimans.

Colonels Take First Contest

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP)—A late scoring surge led by Wendell Ladner carried Kentucky to a 113-103 victory over the Carolina Cougars Wednesday night in the opening game of the American Basketball Association's East Division playoffs.

The second game of the best of seven series will be played Saturday afternoon at the Greensboro coliseum and will be nationally televised by CBS.

The series, which opened in the Charlotte Coliseum, leads to an ABA championship berth against either Utah or Indiana, playing for the western title.

In the opener, Kentucky trailed by a 95-89 margin with six minutes and 20 seconds remaining as the Colonels mounted a 24-8 scoring surge that turned the game around.

Ladner led the Kentucky scoring spree, hitting two of his three three-pointers for the night and scoring 10 of his 19 points.

He observed after the game, "We set up the threes and I hit 'em."

Ladner added, "When I take my time, I can hit from the outside."

Kentucky got 31 points from Rick Mount and Dan Issel added 24 points. But it was Ladner who powered the late surge.

Billy Cunningham led the Cougars with 25 points and he got 17 point help from Mack Calvin.

Ladner also had a post-game observation on Cunningham. "Billy C. is tough and they know they have to go to him. We just came up with the big defensive plays at the end."

Steve Jones gave Carolina its last lead at 98-97 after hitting two free throws. Then Walt Simon put Kentucky in front to stay at 99-98 with a pair of free throws of his own.

bay for most of the chilly afternoon. The only inning that he didn't face any difficulty was the sixth, the last one he pitched in the game.

Meanwhile, FC pitcher Gary Cowan was rocked early, quickly settled down, and then got himself in trouble again. Three errors, two of which were made by his catcher, proved to be of little help as the game progressed.

Cowan yielded five hits and struck out seven batters. He did, however, issue seven walks to make matters worse.

The Jaguars threatened early, as leadoff batter Glen Dwyer reached on a walk, and advanced to second when Bobby Wooten's ground ball was errored. Both men died on base after a strike out and a pop fly ended the frame.

Rose started early, also, as Gil Whitford reached on a walk, stole second and went to third as the catcher's throw was wide of the mark. With two down Stanley Cobb's rbi-single brought Whitford home with the initial run.

In the third frame, Farmville Central reached Deal for two runs and the lead. Bobby Wooten and Barry Johnson reached on successive singles, and Tommy Cobb was issued a walk to fill the bases. A deep fly to center field netted nothing, but a single by Gary Cowan and a walk to Tony Oakley went Wooten and Johnson home with a 2-1 lead.

Rose knotted the score at two in the third inning despite going without a hit. With one out, John Barwick and Cobb reached on consecutive bases-on-balls. The two then executed a double-steal to put themselves in scoring position. Greg Chapman whacked a ground ball to the shortstop, who promptly threw him out. Barwick scored from third base on the putout, but Cobb was nailed when he tried to advance from second.

North Pitt Nips Eastern Wayne

NEW HOPE — North Pitt High School gained their second victory of the year yesterday with a 5-2 win over Eastern Wayne High School.

The Panthers pushed over five runs in the fifth and sixth innings, then held off a final inning rally by the Warriors to collect the victory.

The game was a scoreless deadlock until the fifth when North Pitt gained a pair of runs. Clint Lewis led off with a walk, and Craig McLawhorn also got a free ticket. Ben Johnson reached on an error, as did Linwood Brown, with the second miscue scoring Lewis. Steve Fuchs then singled in McLawhorn for a 2-0 lead.

The Panthers picked up three more in the sixth. Jeff Price and McLawnhorn walked and Johnson singled to load them up. Ken Tetterton walked, forcing in Price, and Brown reached on an error, allowing McLawhorn and Johnson to come around.

Eastern Wayne tried to rally in the bottom of the seventh, coming up with a pair. Kem Kough singled and Tom Long walked. Chadwich followed with a single, scoring both runners, but the rally died there.

Ben Johnson led North Pitt at the plate with two hits, while Keith Rhodes had a pair for Eastern.

The Panthers play host to North Lenoir on Friday.

The Jaguars later had one mild threat when Bobby Daniels reached on an error and stole second, but he died there when the side was retired in order.

Tommy Payne started the fourth inning for Rose with a single. He reached second on a stolen base and went to third on another error. Deal then bought his own insurance policy by singling home Payne with a run. Deal himself was later picked off first.

The final tally came in the sixth. With one out, Ronnie Rasberry was struck by a pitch. Pinchhitters Harding Sugg and Robert Brinkley both received free passage to move Rasberry to third. One more walk, this one to Griff Garner, brought Rasberry home with the clincher.

No one in the game had more than one hit for either team.

Firebirds Hand Conley 1st Loss

SPRING HOPE — Southern Nash School handed the D.H. Conley Vikings their first loss of the season here yesterday, 3-1.

The win dropped the Conley record to 6-1 for the year, but failed to knock them out of first place in the Eastern Carolina Conference. Everyone else in the league has lost at least two games.

Conley pushed over its run first, in the fourth inning to take a brief lead. Randy Adams reached on a fielder's choice, and Cleve Averette reached on an error. Bobby Bryant also was safe on an error, scoring Adams.

But in the fifth, Southern Nash struck back to score two runs and take the lead. Ed Bass reached on an error and Hicks doubled. Kirk Bass singled in Ed

Bass, and Woods walked. Bissett also walked, forcing over Hicks with the go-ahead run.

The Firebirds added an insurance run in the sixth. Tim Perkerson singled and score when Perkerson singled.

Hicks led the Southern hitting with two.

Conley travels to Ayden-Grifton for its next game, Friday.

Plan Another Expansion Of WITN-TV Facilities

WASHINGTON, N.C. — At a special meeting of the Board of Directors of North Carolina Television, Inc. (WITN-TV), plans were approved for the expansion of existing studio and office facilities and the adoption of a profit sharing program for all employees, according to an announcement made by W.R. Roberson, Jr., President and General Manager.

In addition, there will be a new engineering shop areas, equipment storage rooms, scenic and set design shops, prop storage areas and rest room facilities. The present guyed microwave tower will be replaced by a 200 foot, free-standing tower that will be incorporated into the design of the new building.

This marks the third expansion of WITN-TV facilities, the original structure was built in 1955 and was expanded to its present size in 1963. The new addition will make WITN-TV one of the largest and most modern television facilities in the Southeast.

In commenting on the board's actions, Mr. Roberson stated, "We are pleased to announce these forward steps for WITN-TV."

"Through the new profit sharing program the directors have shown a genuine concern for the employees who contribute to our service and success and clearly demonstrates that we are most interested in the welfare and financial growth of our loyal staff. In the area of the building expansion program," he said, "we recognize the need for growth as our industry expands and the new technical advancements that are being made almost daily."

"We have," he asserted, "literally outgrown our present facilities and must move forward to plan for present and future expansion."

"WITN-TV is now service its largest television audience in the history of the station and this forward process will insure that we will continue to provide our viewers with the best possible television service as Eastern North Carolina continues to grow," he concluded.

Construction on the addition is expected to begin within the next two weeks and be completed by late fall.

Pitt Heart Ass'n Reviews '73 Plans

The Pitt County Heart Association met in Greenville Tuesday to review results of the 1973, and make plans for the coming year, according to Evelyn Perry, president of the voluntary organization.

At the meeting, the president thanked chairmen, officers, directors and volunteer workers for their work on behalf of the Heart Fund. She noted that news media, the business and professional community and the public also deserved thanks for their continuing support of the Heart Association's efforts to reduce death and disability from cardiovascular disease.

organization had raised a total to date of $10,545.00 for the 1973 Heart Fund. He said that $6,361 was collected through activities sponsored in Greenville.

Tax Money Is Banned For Private Hospitals

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina Supreme Court has declared unconstitutional the use of tax money to help build any hospitals which would be run by private organizations.

The ruling, handed down Wednesday, reversed a Wake County Superior Court decision.

Wednesday's decision declared unconstitutional a 1971 act that authorized the North Carolina Medical Care Commission to issue revenue bonds to finance construction of hospitals which would then be leased to public or nonprofit organizations.

The high court held that the "expenditure of public funds raised by taxpayers to finance, or facilitate the financing of, the construction of a hospital facility to be privately operated, managed and controlled is not an expenditure for a public purpose and is prohibited by the constitution of North Carolina."

The decision also said that the 1971 North Carolina Medical Care Hospital Finance Act was unconstitutional because it authorized local governmental units to incur debts without a vote of the people.

The act authorized the commission to build a hospital and lease it to an operating company until the bonds were paid off, at which time the facility would be deeded over to the operating agency.

Haldeman And Ehrlichman Guard Nixon Doors

Editor's Note—H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman are two of the most powerful of President Nixon's lieutenants. Here is a close look at the men and their duties by Frank Cormier, AP White House correspondent.

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Harry Robbins Haldeman and John Daniel Ehrlichman share an ample supply of critics—and a boss who considers both of them nearly indispensable. The boss is President Nixon, so the critics don't count for much at the White House.

No strangers to controversy, Haldeman and Ehrlichman also share with Henry A. Kissinger the distinction of being Nixon's most powerful assistants. Charter members of what some have called the "German Mafia," they regulate the flow of people, papers and proposals reaching the President's office. Haldeman—everyone calls him Bob—is chief of the White House staff, keeper of the gates and Nixon's nay-sayer. Ehrlichman has likened him to a lord chamberlain.

Soon after the President took his oath in 1969, Haldeman's office became known to critics as the "Berlin wall"—because members of the Cabinet and Congress found it blocking the path to Nixon's door.

More recently, Republican Sen. Lowell Weicker of Connecticut suggested Haldeman had advance knowledge of policies and personalities behind the Watergate conspiracy and should resign. The bipartisan leaders of the Senate select committee investigating campaign misdeeds stated publicly they had no evidence Haldeman was involved. Haldeman added a firm denial of his own.

Ehrlichman is the President's domestic policy assistant and, like Haldeman, he has been judged too aloof and inaccessible by some administration officials as well as senators and congressmen.

The two men, close friends since college days at UCLA, are Christian Scientists who neither smoke nor drink. As young men they were Eagle Scouts. Like Nixon, they display enameled American flags on their lapels and Haldeman even shares the President's enthusiasm for cottage cheese lunches.

Politically, Haldeman is a conservative generally regarded as standing somewhat to the right of Nixon. Ehrlichman is seen as more receptive to liberal thought. Both are intensely loyal to Nixon.

Ehrlichman, when interviewed by author Allen Drury for his book "Courage and Hesitation," said: "Part of our job is never to confront the President with a situation in which he has to disappoint someone or take a harsh action. For that reason we usually send memos to him for decision. He can then be perfectly free to turn ideas down without making his decisions personal."

Haldeman also gave Drury testimony to Nixon's detachment from argumentative hurly-burly, and to Haldeman's own reputation for barring the presidential door.

"Ehrlichman, Kissinger and I do our best to make sure that all points of view are placed before the President," he said. "We do act as a screen, because there is a real danger of some advocate of an idea rushing in to the President or some other decision-maker, if the person is allowed to do so, and actually managing to convince them in a burst of emotion or argument. We try to make sure that all arguments are presented calmly and fairly across the board."

In pre-election days, Haldeman made no secret of a conviction that the original builders of Washington wisely placed the White House and the Capitol at opposite ends of Pennsylvania Avenue.

"I don't think," he said, "Congress is supposed to work with the White House...There is a clearcut division of power which was intentional, and I think that a certain amount of distance is healthy."

Since November, Haldeman and Ehrlichman have been more accessible to Congress members, especially Republicans who argued they fared poorly in the election because of White House preoccupation with fashioning a Nixon landslide. Consultation and cooperation are off-used words and the President himself has found it desirable to expand the list of those invited to periodic breakfast sessions with GOP congressional leaders.

Haldeman, 46, married and the father of four, became a dedicated Nixon partisan more than 20 years ago, admiring his dogged pursuit of alleged Communist Alger Hiss. A volunteer whose responsibilities increased with each Nixon campaign starting in 1956, he enlisted Ehrlichman in the cause.

Haldeman looks like a chief of staff, erect and tall, his thinning crewcut showing ample scalp. His sense of humor tends to be rather sardonic.

He brought several proteges, among them press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, to the Nixon staff from his position as vice president and Los Angeles manager of the J. Walter Thompson advertising agency.

Haldeman's most visible avocation is taking home movies of Nixon, which he shows to friends. Tennis, chess and the guitar also lay claim to his leisure time, along with such plays as "Godspell" and "Jesus Christ—Superstar." Cocktail parties are not for him. Ehrlichman is the more affable of the two but is no devotee of the Georgetown party circuit either. A World War II air corps navigator and former Seattle zoning attorney, he is 48, stocky, round-faced and balding. He and his wife have five children. He and Haldeman have a zest for sunshine that keeps them tanned throughout much of the year as they follow their boss to Florida and Southern California.

Ehrlichman thinks of himself as an attorney with a single client, Richard Nixon.

His loyalty is unquestioned. So is Haldeman's.

Young girl holds scales ready to weigh fresh fruit she sells.

Snack sellers enjoy gossip over laden basket in Cholon market, Saigon.

CHOLON BIG MARKET

The market is the center of daily life in Cholon, the predominantly Chinese suburb of Saigon. The name Cholon itself is Vietnamese for "Big Market."

Cholon is mysterious, exotic, rich and poor. To the Western visitor it may look like a chaotic and dilapidated collection of self-employed venders. But to the Vietnamese and Chinese who shop there Cholon is a supermarket-extraordinary, a discount store, a maze of restaurants, marriage counselors, herbal doctors and fortune tellers. The market is the place to find the best bargains in meat, the freshest vegetables, the ripest fruit. It's a place to meet friends. A place to find diversion—and perhaps a good soothsayer.

The tangle of alleyways beneath the old clock tower displays an abundance of produce from the countryside. Countless pigs are slaughtered on the spot and sold in the course of a day's business. Even the pig's tail is saved for the right customer. But it has to be sold before closing time, because refrigeration is one amenity the market lacks.

The 'Worry Clinic' Horse Sense Is Best Guideline

Luther's brother is jeopardizing his children's happiness by a religious "fad." We need to use "Horse Sense" in religion, as well as in all fields of science. Beware, for "A little knowledge is a dangerous thing."

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M.D.

CASE W-576: Luther K., aged 20, is worried.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "I have an older brother, married and with 5 children, who has our entire family upset."

"For he refuses to eat any meat!"

"He is afraid he might thus be acting as a cannibal, for he believes he might be devouring our grandfather or other relatives who may have become reincarnated in such farm animals.

"So he is now a health fanatic. 'And dines on nothing but vegetables.'"

"He makes it embarrassing even for his children, too, for he will not let them consume school lunches, since the latter usually include some type of meat."

"Dr. Crane, how can I change him from this cannibal obsession?"

Transmigration
Aristotle and many other ancient philosophers likewise believed in transmigration of the soul.

This means they thought after death, our spirits might return and inhabit new human bodies, or even lodge in animals.

You Bible scholars will thus recall that when Christ cured the epileptic man (Mark 9:25) Jesus said:

"...Thou dumb and deaf spirit. I charge thee, come out of him and enter no more into him."

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This indeed can be a difficult day and evening, not because it is a Friday 13, but because the planetary vibrations bring the tendency for most all of us to be touchy, exasperated and intolerant. But if you control these impulses and use kindness and courtesy with others, you can have a fine day p.m.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have many duties ahead of you, so don't rush off on any tangents, but carry through conscientiously. Get away from some trap from persons who like to blame others for their misfortune. Sleep well tonight.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You are apt to look at yourself in a wrong light, so be kind to yourself instead. Don't spend too much money today. Make sure you do not lose your temper with anyone and get along better.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) If you get those duties handled at home early you can relieve the tensions there. The evening is not good for entertaining, so put it off until a better time. Avoid one who likes to argue.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Try not to make a mountain out of some molehill, to use the vernacular; think before you speak and avoid trouble. Particular care in driving and other activities saves some possible accident.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) If you improve your budget, you get rid of that feeling of lack of funds, can have security restored. Get your property in better condition, but stay within your budget. Use much ingenuity in so doing.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have to take better care of your health if you want to get ahead faster, have more goodwill from others. Improve your appearance. Not a good day for the social side of life. Rest tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have many small tasks to handle so get busy early on them in a conscientious and efficient manner. Not a good day for pleasure. Postpone fun until you have more leisure.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Try not to tease a good friend, or an unfortunate severance of connection could result. Have a serious, courteous manner. Put effort into gaining your finest aims, and they are yours.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) With fewer outside activities, you can now handle home affairs and improve your appearance, too. Steer clear of a higher-up who is looking for someone on whom to vent ire. It could be you otherwise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have a new friend who needs careful handling if you are to deepen the friendship instead of suddenly breaking it off. You have real tact and can now use it wisely. Get good results with everyone.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) With all that work ahead of you, get at it early and clear it up quickly and efficiently. Don't run off on any tangents. Take better care of your wardrobe and make sure you do not ruin it by careless action.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) This is a good day to have a good talk with an associate and get right results therefrom. Plan how to get agreements worked out more efficiently. A little astuteness can be most wise now.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY he or she will be one of those inordinately clean young people who has to have order around him or her, but teach early not to insult others by pointing out their lack in such matters, otherwise your offspring can become a recluse and not popular at all. This can be a good chart for a nurse, whether male or female, the teacher, or the secretary, the office worker, etc. Do not force sports on this person early. Care in diet.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Opening lead: Jack of ♠ Less reliance on strict percentage tables and more direct examination of the problem which confronted him might have proved highly refreshing to South, the declarer at four hearts.

West opened the jack of spades, which held the first trick when all hands played low. East overtook the next round with the king and continued with the ace, which South ruffed with the four of hearts.

A heart was led to the ace and the suit was returned. East played the nine, and South—after a brief moment of study—put up the king. When West showed out, declarer played a third round of trumps, putting East in with the queen. The latter shifted to a diamond, South put up the ace and tried to run the clubs by cashing the queen and then crossing over to dummy's king. He disposed of one diamond on the king of clubs, but when East showed out, West retained the jack as a stopper in the suit. South was obliged to concede a diamond at the end for the setting trick.

Declarer could have assured his contract against anything short of a very bad break in clubs by taking the heart finesse. The advantage of this play becomes obvious when all hands are exposed to view. There is a sound reason for not trying to drop the queen, however, despite and fact that declarer has nine trumps and the odds slightly favor that play.

Suppose, for example, that the heart finesse should lose to a doubleton queen in West's hand. Now both opponents are out of hearts, and North's seven becomes a late entry to dummy. If West shifts to a diamond, South wins the trick with the ace, cashes the three top clubs—discarding one diamond from his hand—and then ruffs a club to establish North's long card in that suit. Dummy is reentered by leading the six of hearts over to the seven, and South's remaining diamond goes on the nine of clubs.

as well as other animals, plus human beings of all succeeding generations.

Remember, all the chemicals, plus the water, in our human bodies are recycled automatically, and thus are used over and over, in millions of other creatures.

In fact, the very same water in our blood stream may thus have circulated 3,000 year ago in the blood of Moses and Abraham, or Hannibal and the Caesars, as well as in the veins and arteries of Jesus Himself.

For this recycling is a perpetual process! Human flesh, after death, ultimately returns to dust; thence dissolves and is picked up by vegetables and fruits, cereals and grass.

The vegetables then are eaten and changed back into flesh of animals or man, so use more "horse sense" in your religious fads!

Employment Survey Set

The Bureau of the Census will conduct a survey of employment and unemployment in this area during the week of April 16-20, Joseph R. Norwood, Director of the Bureau's Data Collection Center in Charlotte, announced today.

Mrs. Jean C. Wilson of Grimesland Rt. 1, will be the area interviewer in Pitt County.

The survey is conducted monthly by the Bureau for the U. S. Department of Labor. A scientifically selected sample of households throughout the entire United States is interviewed. The February survey showed that employment increased markedly while unemployment remained essentially unchanged. Total employment rose by 570,000 to 83.1 million on a seasonally adjusted basis, following a small decline in the previous month.

Cite Advances In Dental Field

NEW YORK (UPI) — "The Sciences," magazine of the New York Academy of Sciences, tells about an area of dental research promising to make "open wide" a much less frightening command.

On the drilling front, new tooth-filling materials under test in the United Kingdom could reduce or even eliminate the painful experience. A mixture of aluminosilicate glass powder and polyacrylic water solution produces hard, translucent cements which adhere directly to the enamel and dentine of teeth. That is according to Drs. Alan Wilson and Brian Kent of the United Kingdom's Laboratory of the Government Chemist in London. They figure the cements could be used to repair natural fissuring on molar-biting surfaces, and to treat tiny cavities at the gum line.

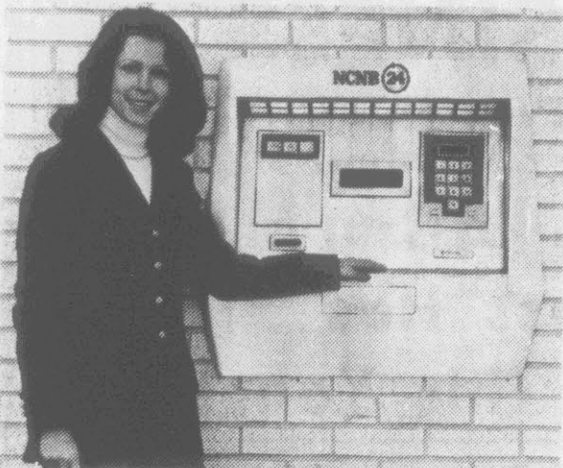

PREPAY

NEW YORK (UPI) — By last year, 16 million Americans were in some kind of dental prepayment plan (14 million more than in 1965), reports a newsletter "The Family Banker."
