Killer Tornadoes Strike 3 Communities In Texas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tornadoes slammed into three Texas communities, killing eight persons and injuring more than 35. Flash flooding took two other lives.

Property damage in nature's rampage Sunday was estimated at several millions of dollars. Thunderstorms, hail and strong winds hit almost every section of the state.

The first tornado hit before dawn in the north and west sections of Plainview, a city of about 20,000 persons.

A newsman, David Bryant, 30, of the Plainview Daily Herald, was killed while helping with civil defense efforts during the twister. Kevin Lewellen, about 2, died when his family tried to reach a storm cellar.

The third Plainview victim was not identified.

About an hour before sundown, another twister struck the South Texas town of Pearsall, killing five persons and injuring eight. Two of the injured were in serious condition.

"Four houses were demolished, the airport and about eight planes were destroyed," said state police patrolman Bill

Rowan.

He said the five killed there were believed to be from out of town. The five were found in a field, apparently blown off a highway.

The third tornado touched down Sunday night in Corsicana, about 56 miles south of Dallas. Three persons were injured. Police said the twister damaged homes, power and telephone lines and even ruptured some gas lines.

In San Antonio, two persons died in flash flooding caused by heavy rains. Roy Buerrero, 15, drowned when he was swept away by heavy currents of a creek. Dew Wertheim, described as being in her 20s, drowned when she slipped into flood waters. She and two companions were awaiting rescue from atop a stalled truck when she lost her grip.

The twister struck first in Plainview's affluent Westridge section, then hit another residential section before smashing into an industrial complex. Authorities estimated Plainview's damage at $4 million. None of the 26 persons injured there was believed to be in serious condition.

Helms Supports ECU Med School In Letter To State Republicans

U. S. Senator Jesse Helms has written members of the state Republican executive committee — including county chairman, officers, members of the State House and Senate and North Carolina congressmen — a letter supporting a four-year degree granting medical school at East Carolina University.

Dated April 5, the senator's letter began, "In all candor, I have hesitated to write this letter for fear that I might be misunderstood.

"I want to discuss," Helms continued, "what I have viewed, for years, as a critical human need — the need for a four-year medical school at East Carolina University.

"I am not suggesting the dissolution of the new system of higher education, the Board of Governors," the Republican said, "however, it is the feeling of many, many people across the state that the Board is not acting fairly and responsibly in this issue. I and my staff have studied the recent Report of the Board of Governors carefully and have gleaned from it some important facts that the major newspapers have ignored up to now."

Helms' letter then pointed out that the state lags far behind the rest of the nation in its production and supply of doctors ("The United States has one M.D. per 613 people; North Carolina has one per 1,063 people.") and that within the state, more than 80 counties are far below the statewide average of physicians to population ("Indeed, 43 per cent of our doctors are located in six counties; these six counties contain only 25 per cent of our people.")

And according to the letter, if the state had wanted to reach the national average of physicians to population ration in 1970, "we would have needed 1,950 more doctors than we had; today in 1973 even more would be needed."

According to Helms, "after clearly pinpointing this dismal situation, the Report makes several recommendations that have now been presented to the 1973 General Assembly for approval and for supplemental funding.

"One recommendation calls for virtual doubling of state funds to Duke and Bowman Gray medical school, in order to get them to accept more North Carolina students," Helms continued.

"In return for several million new dollars over the next seven years," Helms charged, "Duke will graduate three more North Carolinians annually beginning in 1980 than Duke is now committed to produce at the current level ($3,000 per N. C. student) of state funding; Bowman Gray will graduate seven more."

Another recommendation, Helms said, calls for expanding the medical school at Chapel Hill by 30 more students (10 in 1975 and 20 more in 1976) with "27 of these North Carolinians."

"In other words," Helms letter continued, "Chapel Hill will begin in 1980 to graduate 27 more North Carolinians than it now is programmed and budgeted to produce. This incredibly limited expansion in numbers will cost North Carolina taxpayers more than $25 million in construction alone, and this is in addition to the $6 million in medical school and hospital renovations already recommended, I understand, by the Advisory Budget Commission."

According to Helms, "the people of North Carolina deserve this information. They also deserve to know the fact that the Report of the Board of Governors very accurately points out that a new four-year medical school at East Carolina University can be developed for no more than $20 million in

Dr. Cameron West Accepts Offer Of Illinois Position

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—Dr. Cameron West, former director of North Carolina's Board of Higher Education, said today he has accepted appointment to head Illinois' system of higher education.

West became a vice president of the University of North Carolina system last year when the legislature placed all 16 state-supported institutions of higher education under one administration.

"I have accepted the job effective June 1," West said in an interview today. "It's an excellent opportunity for leadership and I'm looking forward to it."

Warn Reds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon warned North Vietnam today that because of new fighting in Laos, it may order U. S. planes to begin a new bombing campaign there.

Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim said North Vietnamese forces led by tanks had over-run a town defended by Royal Laotian forces near the Plaine de Jarres in Laos within the last several hours.

He described it as "a major violation of the cease-fire."

Nixon To Tour Europe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fastening his attention on Europe, President Nixon plans a fall visit to major NATO nations for discussions on trade, military aid and troop levels.

Nixon told reporters Sunday he is preparing for the autumn tour. Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said later that the President plans to visit Great Britain, France, Italy and West Germany, all of whose leaders will have visited the United States by fall.

The President said French President Georges Pompidou will visit the United States, but not necessarily Washington, for conferences before autumn.

British Prime Minister Edward Heath came to the United States in early February for talks with Nixon. Italy's Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti is due Tuesday and West German Chancellor Willy Brandt on May 1.

As he began his second term, Nixon called 1973 "the year of Europe" and indicated that he would devote more attention to soothing some European frustrations with recent U. S. economic and military policies.

Nixon told newsmen of his plans while standing in the receiving line after a Palm Sunday worship service in the White House.

More South Viets Move On Cambodia

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — More South Vietnamese troops were reported moving toward the Cambodian frontier today following the first incursion across the border that Saigon troops are known to have made since the Vietnam cease-fire.

Field reports indicated that the South Vietnamese operations along the border were defensive, aimed at driving Communist forces from the border rather than the start of a major offensive to lift the threat to Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital.

South Vietnamese air force gunships joined an armored column on the Cambodian side of the border, and new fighting was reported on the Vietnamese side of the frontier.

Field reports said the crossing was made last Friday from the Vietnamese town of Tinh Bien, 125 miles west of Saigon, after Communist troops burned out a village on the Cambodian side. About 500 refugees streamed into South Vietnam.

Associated Press photographer Neal Ulevich reported from Tinh Bien that two columns of South Vietnamese armored personnel carriers had penetrated about 500 yards into Cambodian territory.

No fighting was reported in the Tinh Bien region Monday, but 15 truckloads of troops were seen moving toward the border from Chau Doc, the provincial capital. Ulevich reported the South Vietnamese gunships were reconnoitering inside Cambodia.

Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, chief spokesman for the Saigon command, reported sharp fighting Sunday but said it was northwest of Hong Ngu, which is on the Mekong River 30 miles northeast of the point where the Saigon troops crossed the border. Hien said 22 Communist troops and three South Vietnamese were killed and 38 Saigon soldiers were wounded.

Nixon Seeks Sell Stockpiled Items

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon asked Congress today to permit him to sell $4.1 billion from the national stockpile of strategic materials no longer needed for security reasons, but vital in the fight against inflation.

He said greater demand for industrial commodities has increased prices in some cases more than 30 per cent in the past year.

"These increases will eventually be felt in higher prices for the American consumer if we do not act decisively now," Nixon said. "By disposing of unneeded items in the strategic stockpile we can strike a critical blow for the American consumer."

Nixon said he plans to take full advantage of the new stockpile surplus to stabilize prices in the metals market where prices for many commodities such as mercury, platinum, cadmium and silver have advanced more than 30 per cent over the past year and items such as copper, zinc and cobalt are up more than 20 per cent.

The present strategic stockpile of some 91 commodities, ranging from metals, minerals and rubber to industrial diamonds and iodine, was set up after World War II. The aim was to keep the nation ready for a possible conflict.

It now totals $6.7 billion worth of material. Under the current law, Nixon has the authority to sell about $1.9 billion from the stockpile. But he needs congressional authorization for the additional $4.1 billion he now wants to unload.

Nixon said the special message to Congress that his new proposals and guidelines for sale of 16 major commodities would still leave the nation with a stockpile sufficient "to cover our material requirements for the first year of a major conflict in Europe and Asia."

In the event of a longer conflict, the President said, these 12 months would give the nation enough time to mobilize "so that we could sustain our defense effort as long as necessary without placing an intolerable burden on the economy or the civilian population."

A White House fact sheet said the current market value of the stockpile with its 91 commodities is $6.7 billion and over half of that value is concentrated in seven items—aluminum, copper, lead, silver, tin, tungsten and zinc.

Bases To Be Reduced

By JANET STAIHAR
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon officials said today that 224 military installations will be closed and 21,172 civilian and 16,640 military jobs will be terminated, a reliable Senate source reported.

The disclosure came following meetings Pentagon officials had with various state congressional delegations on Capitol Hill.

Among those which will be closed are Hunter's Point Naval Yard at San Francisco and the Boston Naval Yard.

The Pentagon officials said a total of 274 bases will be affected in some way by the reductions.

The hospital and brig will definitely be shut down in Portsmouth, N.H., but there are some conflicting reports on whether or not the rest of the installation will remain.

There are approximately 480 military installations in the United States. They employ 2.3 million members of the Armed Forces and about 1.1 million civilians hired directly by the government.

The full list of bases was not immediately available.

However, Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., said one of the biggest bases, Ft. Dix in New Jersey, will remain open. He had just attended an Appropriations Committee meeting with Pentagon officials on Capitol Hill.

Grand Jury To Hear Report On Tripp Inquiry

District Solicitor Eli Bloom said today that he would present information regarding the sale of dirt by former State Highway Commissioner Arthur Tripp to a firm under contract to the Highway Commission, to the Pitt County Grand Jury tomorrow.

Bloom, who declined to make any additional comment on the case said the information is being presented in connection with the case.

Presumably, Bloom will present the grand jury with a copy of a State Bureau of Investigation report on the case with information secured from other sources.

Tripp, a Greenville tobacco warehouseman, resigned his Highway Commission post June 4, 1972 after being accused of violating the state's conflict of interest law by allegedly selling fill dirt to contractors working on the Eastern By-pass at Greenville.

The state statute makes it a felony for a commissioner or full-time Highway Commission employee to transact business with the commission.

A news story published in a Raleigh newspaper in March, 1972, accused Tripp of helping his brother June Tripp, negotiate the sale of $35,500 worth of fill dirt for use on highway projects in the Greenville area.

The grand jury at their discretion after investigating the case, could return a bill of indictment against Tripp, or could find there was no grounds for prosecution.

Murder Charged

George Raymond Worthington, 32, of 1002 Van Northwick St. was charged with murder last night in connection with the shooting death of his 37-year-old brother, Linwood Worthington of 1006 Van Northwick St. earlier in the evening.

Pitt County Coroner and Medical Examiner E. W. Harvey said Linwood Worthington died of a .12 gauge shotgun wound in his chest.

According to Chief Glenn Cannon, George Worthington told investigators he was asleep and was awakened by noises at the rear of his home that sounded like someone trying to break into his dwelling. He said he got a shotgun from a closet, shot the intruder when he came through the rear door, then went back to bed.

The shooting occurred between 6 and 8:25 p.m.

Investigation of the incident is continuing.

Martin Countian Dies In Fire

WILLIAMSTON—A 58 year old Martin County man, C. (Coach) Benjamin Harrison of the Bear Grass Community, died Sunday night in his home as a result of a fire in his bedroom.

Firemen, reporting to the scene, found Harrison in the bedroom. The county coroner has ruled that death resulted from suffocation and burns with no evidence of foul play.

Harrison's wife and a son were visiting another son a few hundred yards from the Harrison when the fire occurred. Damage to the home was confined to two rooms, mostly smoke damage.

Former IRA Leader Is Freed From Irish Jail

DUBLIN (AP) — Sean MacStiofain, former chief of staff of the Irish Republican Army, was freed from jail today still looking pale and drawn from a 59-day hunger strike he staged last December and January.

His future with the guerrilla army was uncertain.

"I remain an unrepentant republican separatist," said the 44-year-old Anglo-Irishman. "I'm not well physically but in good spirits."

His wife, Maire, picked him up at the jail at the Curragh army camp west of Dublin.

He refused to comment on his future with the IRA's Provisional wing. His abandonment of his hunger strike after much publicized vows to fast to the death reportedly did serious damage to his prestige within the underground army.

The Irish government jailed MacStiofain almost five months ago for being a member of the IRA. He swore he would take neither food nor liquids until he was freed, either by the government or by death.

He is reported to have been succeeded as chief of staff by David O'Connell, a former schoolmaster.

"Everyone in Ireland wants peace, but republicans want a peace that is going to last," said MacStiofain.

"A lasting peace will come when the British government accepts the terms that were put to them last summer—the right of the Irish people to determine their own destiny, amnesty for political prisoners and the withdrawal of troops."

In Northern Ireland, meanwhile, a 59-year-old Protestant housewife answering a knock at her door was killed about midnight Sunday by gunmen who didn't even see their victim.

Miss Patricia Starling Weds Sunday Afternoon

FARMVILLE — The wedding of Miss Patricia Ann Starling and Charles Junior Hudson was solemnized Sunday at 4:00 p.m. at the Marlboro Free Will Baptist Church.

The double ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Bruce Barrow. A program of wedding music was presented by D.J. Rasberry Jr. of Greenville, organist, and Donna Faye Potts of Snow Hill, soloist.

Parents of the bride are Mrs. Thelma Starling of Farmville, and Mr. Martin Starling. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. James R. Hudson of Rt. 2, Greenville, and the late Mr. Hudson.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of satin peau and peau d'ange lace featuring a sabrina neckline. The skirt had two rows of lace from the empire waistline to the hemline and extended into a chapel length train.

Her three tiered shoulder length veil of illusion was attached to a satin peau and peau d'ange bow. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and baby's breath.

Mrs. Frances Rasberry of Farmville, sister of the bride, was honor attendant. She was dressed in a formal gown of pink satin overlaid with pink and blue flowered organza and fashioned with an empire waist and portrait neckline.

She wore a wide brimmed hat with pink streamers and carried a cascade of pink and blue carnations and mums.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Nettie Starling of Farmville, sister-in-law of the bride, Mrs. Lou Stocks and Mrs. Peggy Phillips, sisters of the bridegroom, Mrs. Sue Hudson, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, and Miss Lynda Hardee, all of Greenville.

The bridegroom wore a formal suit of blue styled like that of the honor attendant. Their hats had blue streamers and they carried similar bouquets.

Miss Niki Rasberry of Farmville, niece of the bride, was flower girl. She was dressed like the bridesmaids and carried a blue basket of pink and blue carnations and mums.

Robbie Starling of Farmville, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

MRS. CHARLES JUNIOR HUDSON

The bridegroom's brother, Joe Hudson, of Greenville, was best man. Ushers were Robert Starling, brother of the bride, Robert Starling, brother-in-law of the bride, both of Farmville, Hyman Earl Hudson, cousin of the bridegroom, Gene Phillips, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, both of Greenville, and Billy McGhee of Gayettesville, cousin of the bride.

After a wedding trip to the coast, the couple will reside in Farmville.

The bride attended Farmville School and the bridegroom attended Chicod High School.

Immediately following the ceremony, the bride's mother entertained at a reception in the church fellowship hall.

A blue and pink motif was carried out in decorations.

After the bride and bridegroom had cut the traditional first slice of cake, guests were served.

An after-rehearsal party was given by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Rasberry and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Starling at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rasberry honoring the bride couple.

The bride and bridegroom remembered their attendants with gifts.

Smith-Sculley Vows Solemnized In Ceremony On Saturday

LANGLEY, AFB, Va. — Miss Sheila Jane Sculley became the bride of Capt. Daniel McLeod Smith in a military wedding performed in the Main Chapel here Saturday at 3:00 p.m.

The double ring ceremony was conducted by Chaplain Floyd A. Chambers. A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. David S. Osterhout, organist, and Mrs. John D. Ness, soloist.

Acolytes were Shawn Patrick Sculley, brother of the bride, and Henry Alan Barnes, both of Hampton, Va.

Parents of the couple are Lt. Col. (Ret.) and Mrs. Raymond Sculley of Hampton, Va., and Mrs. John Howard Smith of Greenville, and the late Mr. Smith.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of white crystal sata peau and reemboirdered lace. The gown had a high neckline and lantern sleeves enhanced by a demi-bell silhouette flowing into an attached chapel length train encircled by a crystal pleated border.

Her elbow length mantilla of white illusion was bordered in lace and was attached to a headpiece of reemboirdered lace. The bride carried a Spanish bridal cascade of white miniature carnations, majestic daisies, miniature daisies centered with a Royal Bouquet orchid with lavender and deep purple ribbon loops.

Mrs. Joseph A. Lawless of Newport News, Va., cousin of the bride, was the honor attendant. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Monroe B. Price of Seaford, Va., Mrs. Chesley McGinnis of Virginia Beach, Va., and Mrs. Robert A. Rudolph of Newport News, Va.

The attendants wore long gowns with short cap sleeves of lilac crepe trimmed with white lace and purple satin ribbon. They wore white straw picture hats with purple and white ribbon. They each carried Spanish cascades of deep purple asters, majestic daisies and miniature daisies with lavender matching ribbon.

Flower girls were Miss Sheryl Lynn Sculley and Miss Susan Lee Sculley of Mt. Top, Pa.

nieces of the bride. They wore long dotted swiss dresses lined with lavender satin. They carried white baskets of lavender asters, miniature daisies and baby's breath with matching lavender ribbons.

Scott Leonard Sculley of Mt. Top, Pa., nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

Groomsmen were Lt. Col. William L. Tucker of Alexandria, Va., cousin of the bridegroom, Maj. F. David Yoder, of Hampton, Va., and Capt. Arthur P. Martin of Arlington, Va.

The mother of the bride selected a street length ensemble of lime shantung in a princess style. The dress had short cap sleeves and a mandarin collar with Venise lace and the coat was adorned with matching lace.

The mother of the bridegroom chose an aqua polyester sata peau dress with an A-line skirt and long sleeves. The high neckline and sleeves were accented with matching cotton Venise lace. Both mothers wore corsages of white orchids.

After a wedding trip to Macuto, Venezuela, the couple will reside in Hampton, Va.

The bride received her B.S. from Old Dominion University, Norfolk, Va., and M. Ed. from the College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Va. She is employed by the York County Public Schools.

The bridegroom received a B.S.C.E. from North Carolina State University, Raleigh, and M.B.A. from the University of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh, Pa. He is now a captain in the United States Air Force.

The reception was held in the Chesapeake and Columbus Rooms of the Langley Officers Club.

Music was provided by pianist, Robert Spadafora. Mrs. Benjamin Inloes Jr. served as mistress of ceremonies and Mrs. Frank G. Barnes presided at the guest book.

Reader Writes Letter Of Thanks To Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I wrote to you about a year ago, telling you how depressed I was because I was dumped by a boy I thought I loved. I wanted to show him I could be "popular," so I threw away my self-respect and went all the way with three different guys on the first date. None of them ever called me back, and I felt so cheap I wanted to die. Then I wrote to you and you told me I would never get a decent boy friend by going all the way with him. You encouraged me to try to rebuild my self-esteem and to keep my morals high from then on, and it would pay off.

That's exactly what I did, and you were right. I am now going with this really great guy who respects me. We have a lot of fun together, and I am all through worrying and praying and feeling cheap.

If this letter convinces only one girl that premarital sex doesn't pay, it will be worth printing. I am no kid, I'm 22, and I've never been happier in my life. You wished me good luck, Abby, and it finally came my way. Thanks for saving my life.

HAPPY IN HARTFORD

DEAR HAPPY: No thanks due me. I only threw you a rope. You caught it.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a delivery man, and he keeps telling me how many opportunities he has to get something going with the women on his route.

I know it's true because Al is good-looking, well-built, and has a friendly easy-to-know way about him. He says the women keep telling him that their husbands are at work and their kids are in school all day, and wouldn't he like a cup of coffee "or something." Al says, "Of course I turn them all down because I'm true-blue."

Nevertheless it annoys me to be reminded of his loyalty nearly every day. I told my girl friend about it and she said: "Oh, he's just trying to make you jealous. Laugh it off and pretend you don't care what he does."

Somehow I'm not very good at pretending. I'm 35 and Al's 36, and I'm still slim and attractive. We have three school-age children. What do you advise?

HIGHLAND PARK HOUSEWIFE

DEAR HOUSEWIFE: Don't laugh it off. Let him know you care a lot. And ask him if it ever occurred to him that you are also a woman with a husband at work and kids in school all day. Then tell him you're "true-blue," too, but don't think you're entitled to a good conduct medal. He'll get the message.

DEAR ABBY: I don't wish to revive the controversy about how often a woman should bathe, but history records the fact that Cleopatra never took a bath in her life, and she seemed to get along O. K. with the boys.

J. IN PAULS VALLEY, OKLA.

DEAR J.: Where, pray, is this "fact" recorded? If it is indeed true, I'll bet the ASP died too.

Holy Week For 3 Of World's Major Faiths

By The Associated Press
The calendar today linked observances of three of the world's major faiths as Christians were in the second day of their pre-Easter Holy Week. Jews prepared to begin celebration of Passover at sundown and Moslems observed the anniversary of the birth of the Prophet Mohammed.

Christ's triumphal entry into Jerusalem five days before his crucifixion.
In Jerusalem, more than 5,000 pilgrims—including poor Arab villagers, high prelates in scarlet and monks in simple robes—retraced Christ's path into the Holy City in the sixth Palm Sunday under Israeli rule.

Peter's Basilica in Rome for the beginning of Holy Week. Millions more watched the two-hour service on television.
In a 15-minute homily, the Pope said the world's youth should look to Jesus Christ if they seek to transform society. "Contest and rebellion" are not ways to bring about change, he said.

The Pope blessed and distributed olive branches and palms—symbols of the branches spread before Christ on his entrance to Jerusalem—to scores of cardinals, prelates and youths.
After mass, the Pope delivered his noon blessing from his balcony as thousands of Easter Week tourists packed St. Peter's Square in the warm sunshine.
President and Mrs. Nixon observed Palm Sunday at a service at the White House conducted by the Rev. Edward Victor Hill of the Mount Zion Missionary Baptist Church in Los Angeles.

The Jewish celebration of Passover lasts eight days and was expected to be extra joyful this year because Israel is celebrating its 25th anniversary as a nation.
Thousands of Israelis flocked to the countryside and to the beaches. Many families gave their homes a thorough spring cleaning. Devout families burned all their leavened bread, replacing it for Passover with the unleavened matzoh eaten by the Israelites during their flight from Egypt through the desert 3,000 years ago.
Security precautions were extremely tight throughout Israel. Particular emphasis was placed on Lod International Airport, where some 20,000 visitors were expected in the next 24 hours.
In Moscow, daily Passover services were scheduled morning and evening in the Soviet capital's only active synagogue. Many Jews also planned private services in their homes.
Most of the Arab world celebrated Mohammed's birthday on Sunday; but in some areas with large Christian populations, such as Lebanon, the holiday was observed today because of Palm Sunday.

Government offices, schools, banks and some shops remained closed today in Lebanon, although most of the rest of the Arab world returned to work after a weekend of celebration.
Wealthy persons in Cairo set up special tents in several neighborhoods and in them sheiks or religious leaders recited verses from the Koran and recounted events from Mohammed's life. There were fireworks and bands marching through the streets Sunday night.

REV. JACK MAYO

BETHEL—Spring revival services will begin at the Hickory Grove Free Will Baptist Church beginning tonight. Services will continue through Saturday, April 21.
The guest evangelist will be the Rev. Jack Mayo, pastor of Gum Swamp Free Will Baptist Church.
Services will begin nightly at 7:30.
The pastor, Rev. Hubert Burrell, and congregation invites the public to attend.

High Degree Is Awarded

AYDEN—Wylie Stacy Christy of 407 W. Second Street here has been awarded the designation of Knight of the York Cross of Honour.

This honorary degree, highest in the York Rite of Freemasonry, is conferred only on those who have held the highest office in each of the four bodies of the rite. He is one of about 400 to qualify out of about 4,250,000 Freemasons in North America and the Philippines.

Mr. Christy served as Master of Crown Point Lodge in 1971, as High Priest of the Greenville Chapter of Royal Arch Masons in 1970, as Master of Hiram Council, Royal and Select Masters in 1971; and as Commander of Bethlehem Commandery, Knight Templar in 1972. He was elected to membership in Lily of the Valley Priory and his election was confirmed by Convent General of the Order on Apr. 11.

A busy highway and a mountainside stairway now cover the path Christ took. Boy Scouts kept back crowds of onlookers as the devout walked, singing in half a dozen languages, into the old walled city of Jerusalem. A group of American Baptists clapped as they sang "Michael, Row the Boat Ashore."

Chavez Sets New Boycott

INDIO, Calif. (AP)—Farm labor organizer Cesar Chavez says he plans a mass exodus from the fields and a renewed nationwide table grape boycott after an announcement that contracts won with growers in the Coachella Valley have been lost to the Teamsters Union.

Chavez' United Farm Workers Union, AFL-CIO, won the first farm labor contracts with grape growers in U.S. history in 1970 following a two-year boycott, strikes and some violence in the fields.

A Teamsters spokesman announced Sunday that his union had signed field worker contracts with 85 per cent of the table grape growers in this fertile southeastern California area, providing for an immediate pay hike from $2 to $2.30 an hour.

Two major growers said they renewed contracts with UFWU early Sunday, but a union spokesman said no final agreements have been reached. The UMWU's contract with the valley's 15 table grape producers expired at midnight Saturday after several weeks of negotiations. The union has been asking an initial raise to $2.70, the maximum provided in the Teamsters' four-year pact.

Martin Tech Team Picked

WILLIAMSTON—Martin Technical Institute has selected its Trouble Shooting team for the annual contest May 10, 1973 at Dorton Arena in Raleigh, according to Jimmy Revels, of the school's automotive shop department.

Team members are Jimmy Woolard, 23, of Williamston, and Clinton Coffield, 21, of Windsor. The team will be sponsored by Griffin Motor Company of Williamston, North Carolina.

The contest is one of 113 regional meets being held throughout the country this spring. Regional winners will win all-expense trips to Plymouth's National Trouble Shooting Championship at Boston June 25, 26, and 27, when they will compete for college scholarships and other prizes worth more than $90,000.

In Trouble Shooting, teams of two students work on a car in which a series of malfunctions have been placed to determine which team can most quickly and accurately find and fix all the problems.

Indira Is Again Invited To Talk

KARACHI (AP)—President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto has renewed an invitation to Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi to visit Pakistan to negotiate an end to problems between the two countries.

Bhutto said on Sunday that a visit by Mrs. Gandhi would "pave the way for peace on the subcontinent."

He recalled he went to Simla, India, last June to meet with Mrs. Gandhi and said: "It is now her turn to visit Pakistan to help in removing all misunderstandings and feelings of mistrust by mutual consultations."

Now Three Med School Bills

A worried, frustrated and unhappy Legislature now has three bills before it concerning the ECU medical school.

Rep. Larry Eagles of Edgecombe County and other legislators introduced a bill calling for a $50 million bond issue to support the ECU medical school. This was followed by a bill from Rep. John Gamble, D-Lincoln, Sen. Livingstone Stallings, D-Craven and Sen. James Garrison, D-Stanly which would set up a $25 million reserve for a new medical school. This bill did not say where the school would be but Rep. Gamble, a practicing physician himself, made it clear that ECU is a logical place to start.

Then last week Rep. Gerald Arnold, D-Harnett, introduced a resolution calling for a legislative commission to study the state's medical manpower needs.

All of this activity is an indication that the folks back home are exceedingly unhappy over the treatment that the ECU medical school matter is getting in the board of governors. Despite the assertions of fairness it is all too obvious that the board of governors recommendations would have all of the funds flowing to the existing medical schools with none for ECU. The present study hardly even recognizes that the ECU schools exists, even though it is actively in the process of training doctors.

It is becoming painfully clear that a mistake was made in creating the new board of governors without first settling in the State Legislature the matter of full funding for the ECU medical school.

Most legislators, Gov. Scott, who proposed the reorganization, and this newspaper felt the matter was settled when the one-year program was funded. Apparently, however, it was too much to expect that those who went on the board after years of fighting the ECU medical school would suddenly become acquiescent.

So after another year of fighting it appears to us the public has little confidence in the board of governors to fairly decide this issue and it still may fall back on the Legislature to see that the development of the ECU medical school is carried out.

We feel the board of governors can work in developing the state-wide system of universities—but the board cannot get on to things it needs to do until the infighting over the ECU medical school issue is favorably resolved.

Divided As To Primary Date

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH—Spring, summer or fall—which season is best of all for North Carolina to hold next year's primary elections?

Normally, Tar Heels go to the polls in May to choose party nominees. That springtime date in 1974 could conflict with the legislature in session, making a trial run to an annual schedule. Summer would catch many voters on vacation and might reduce the rural turnout with farm work at its peak. Fall would run close to the November general election, resulting in short and hectic campaigns.

The quandary is deep for legislators, hastening to recess the current session. The necessity for change is conceded but the solons are far from consensus on what it should be. It may take full-scale debate and wrangling on the floor to resolve the issue.

That's on the horizon this week when the House takes up a bill to fix the primary on the third Tuesday in July.

How it came out of the election laws committee illustrates the sharp division of opinion on the primary date. Members split, 8-to-8, and it took the vote of Rep. Ernest Messer to Haywood as the chairman to give the bill a favorable report.

Opinion Unsettled
"There has been absolutely no polarization," said Rep. R. Lane Brown of Stanly. An earlier session showed legislators scattered over the calendar in their choice, he said, and no coming together has since been apparent.

Brown headed a subcommittee which studied three separate proposals for June, July and September. It settled on the mid-summer date, amending the September bill sponsored by Rep. Roy Spoon of Mecklenburg, mainly out of a sense of obligation to get something to the floor, he said.

What has legislators so perplexed is the tangle of political factors involved in shifting the primary.

Not the least of these is the probable impact on General Assembly races. Incumbents running for another term would be at a disadvantage in time to campaign if the May date remained unchanged, and balloting followed on the heels of a session.

From a party perspective, on the other hand, healing wounds from primary infighting would be harder if it were moved closer to the fall general election.

Presidential Primary Involved

Another element in arriving at a decision is the fate of North Carolina's fledgling presidential preference primary. Some politicians didn't think it flew well in 1972, and there is sentiment in the legislature to wipe it off the books.

Its friends fear that moving the state election to summer or fall would amount to an indirect repealer of the presidential primary.

Democrats have talked in caucus about a primary date, without reaching any conclusion. The caucus will take up the subject again before the House vote, but whether it will achieve unanimity is debatable.

Favor for a late June primary was voiced by Rep. William T. Watkins of Granville, House Speaker pro-tem and a caucus leader.

"We should make it as late as we reasonably can, the third or fourth Tuesday in June," Watkins said. That would not be a hazard to the presidential primary, he added, since it would come before the summer national conventions.

Real Change Urged
Change worth anything should be a real change, said Rep. Gerald Arnold of Harnett.

"I'm in favor of leaving the primary right where it is, or moving it to August or September," he said. "It won't make any difference at all to move it back a few weeks to June. July would be a bad time, particularly for tobacco farmers in the east."

To shorten campaigns and reduce the costs, Arnold added, the primary should be held in early fall as a prelude to the general election. "I'm not convinced we couldn't hold the primary in September," he said.

Arnold serves as liaison between state Democratic headquarters and the legislative majority, but he said a partisan position is unlikely on the primary date issue. "I don't think the caucus will come to any consensus on this one," he remarked.

Party lines were muddled in the House committee acting on the primary date bill. Rep. Spoon, a GOP freshman, said a closer alignment of primary and general elections would pitch campaigns more on issues than personalities and reduce the expense of campaigning.

Rep. Joe H. Hege Jr. of Davidson, also a Republican, voted against the change. "My people like the presidential primary," he said. "A primary date in July would, to all intents and purposes, abolish it."

Japan's Rising Nationalism

By ROWLANE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

TOKYO—A clue to the new nationalism among Japan's emerging young leaders is quiet consideration by first-year Diet members belonging to the ruling conservative Liberal-Democratic Party (LDP) of a political unmentionable here: acquisition of long-range bombers.

This is scarcely a return of imperial militarism. In fact, the young Diet members' senior colleagues in the LDP are appalled by such talk. They believe public opinion polls showing the nation remains adamant against rearming.

But the fact that Japan's potential future leadership is talking about heavy hardware as a defensive deterrent could be prophetic. Not burdened with the doubts of an older generation touched by the trauma of losing a war, these younger Japanese are muscularly self-confident and simultaneously anxious that the West is ganging up on Japan—a combination that could produce a lethal nationalism.

None of this means foreseeable change in Tokyo's alliance with Washington. But Japan's future leaders simply will not accept continued junior partnership and will be seeking a new, still undefined role.

That is strongly suggested by twice-weekly meetings of a study group composed of the 38 freshman LDP Diet members. Studying national security problems, they quickly concluded Japan would last days—not weeks, as Japanese defense officials anticipate—if attacked, say, from Soviet Asia. Consequently, they have considered long-range bombers to strike back so that an attacker could not conquer Japan without severely suffering in his homeland.

But beyond deterrence, long-range jet bombers would be a nationalistic symbol of less than total dependence on the U. S. military umbrella. The same symbolism is found in private views by other LDP politicians outside the government that—in opposition to present public opinion as well as official policy—Japan must consider joining the nuclear club if Israel or India goes in.

This new nationalism is reflected by a 42-year-old freshman LDP Diet member named Tetsuro Kondo. Scarcely a sword-wielding romantic in the samurai style of the late Yukio Mishima, he is an economist by profession, once worked for the International Monetary Fund in Washington and recognizes that the U. S.—Japanese security treaty is essential. More comfortable with foreigners than old LDP leaders, Kondo is also less inhibited about national self-assertiveness.

In a distinct minority view even among his first-term colleagues, he wants a Japan producing first-class steel and autos also to produce first-class missiles and bombers. He would similarly give first-class status to the 285,000-man Japanese armed forces now using Korean war vintage equipment.

Kondo's military views cannot be separated from his feeling that Japan's reliance on U. S. military power enables Washington to crack the whip economically against his country. Indeed, we found pervasive resentment here outside the government that the U. S. and Western Europe ganged up during the currency crisis to penalize Japanese exports. Many put it in racist terms: a white coalition battling the "yellow peril."

This is regarded as popcock by government leaders such as Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ohira. In an interview with us, Ohira complained of emotionalism being a Japanese trait, adding: "In the currency crisis, one of the weaknesses of the Japanese people showed itself—that is, the Japanese people became paranoid." Furthermore, he contended, "We Japanese fail quite often to grasp the kind of impact

KEYS TO HAPPY LIVING

The Greek word for inherit is derived from the Greek word for "key." The people who inherit are the people who have the keys. And so when Jesus said, "Blessed are the meek for they shall inherit the earth," what he really meant was, blessed are the meek for they have the keys. For them ultimately the doors will be opened.

Seen in this light, Jesus's statement has renewed importance for our lives. We tend to think that the aggressive, grasping type of individual usually gets pretty much what he wants and that the meek have their consolation in other than material ways. To a certain extent this is true, but it is not the only interpretation we can place on Jesus's statement. True, the aggressive individual usually gets what he wants, but if he does so at the expense of the rights and welfare of others, over a period of time he will arouse such opposition from those he has injured that he will fail to achieve his goals. Then a larger share of the rewards will go to the people who have the keys.

Next Meeting In Hawaii

WASHINGTON—For a long time President Nixon complained that the Japanese were not buying enough from the United States and were causing a serious dent in our balance of payments.

He urged them to purchase more from us so he would not to impose tariffs on Japanese goods imported to the United States. It could have been one of the President's major mistakes. A secret meeting of the Japanese Imperial Economic Command was held in Tokyo last week.

The notorious Hoshi Hamamura, who is responsible for flooding the Western Hemisphere with tape recorders, told the gathering, "Honorable gentlemen, the glory of Japan is at stake. We have billions of dollars in our banks, and unless we spend them immediately we may be struck with worthless paper."

Tishi Tojo, the architect of the Greater Wankel Engine Plan, said, "We have bought up all the lumber in the United States, as well as America's soybean crop for the next four years. Our agent has also put in a bid for their entire 1974 beef production."

Okie Moto, chief economic war planner, said, "My people have contracted for all the coal and steel produced in 1974 in the United States, as well as cotton, eggs, butter, cheese and nylon stockings."

"This is all good," said the notorious Hoshi Hamamura, "but it is only a drop in the bucket. We must do more for the Empire."

Yushi Suzuki, the militant Minister of Color Television Sets, said, "My agents are buying radium, glass, aluminum and cardboard cartons. The prices have skyrocketed in the United States and we have been credited personally with causing the greatest inflation in the United States since the Korean war."

Nashi Namura, the cruel Director of Culture, reported, "We have bought every painting we can get our hands on in the United States. Next week we will make a bid for the Metropolitan Museum of Art."

"You mean all the works?" someone asked.

"I mean the museum and all the works. We're going to bring it here stone by stone and rebuild it next to the emperor's palace."

"Will they sell it?"

"Why not? The Met has sold everything else."

"Honorable gentlemen," said the notorious Hoshi Hamamura, "this accounts

Other Editors Say Save The Sea Oat

(Cartaret County News-Times)

If county commissioners approve, a bill proposed by the county Environmental Resources Commission, to stop the rape of the sea oat, will be introduced in this session of the legislature.

The proposed statewide bill allows an individual to have in his possession 12 flowering sea oat stems (fruit-bearing clumps, Uniola paniculata).

But if he wants more, he must get a permit from a shoreline protection officer. Violators would be subject to $100 fine for each dozen sea oats above the dozen allowed an individual. It would make confiscation of sea oats, in excess of that amount, mandatory upon conviction of the person charged with unlawfully possessing the sea oats.

Many Carteret residents were outraged this past year when a person was charged with unlawfully taking sea oats but was freed by the court because no one actually saw him take the highly-desirable decorative fronds. He had a truckload of them. The present law forbids taking; it does not say anything about possession. The sea oats were returned to the possessor, to sell as he originally intended, to a Florida firm.

Sea oats are abundant on the North Carolina coast. They are an extremely important plant in that they help anchor dunes. Dunes, held down by vegetation, help keep beaches in place. If not anchored, dunes wander, or are swept out to sea by an angry ocean.

We hope county commissioners will see fit to endorse the proposed legislation on sea oats. If taking of sea oats is not controlled, their abundance will be a thing of the past.

Allowing 12 fronds per person in possession should satisfy the desire of persons who want them for home beautification, but remove them from the grasp of those who wish to make a profit from them at the expense of coastal dwellers.

The County Environmental Resources Commission deserves thanks for taking the initiative in seeking such legislation.

Few Ever Forget Home-Buying

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Three out of four heads of household between ages 35 and 54 own their own homes today, and few will ever forget the day they signed the mortgage and closed the deal.

It was a day of ignorance, confusion and surprise compounded by legalese, of papers signed and checks slid across the table — all choreographed by legal and lending experts who had practiced the routine for years.

It was a day on which the buyer's naivete was exposed to the lender's expertise. Nobody prepared them adequately for the ordeal, and if they left the table happy to have a home they left with a bundle of insecurities too.

While the scene is still repeated every business day, the consumer movement has now provoked lenders and lawyer to better prepare their customers for what lies ahead, to offer help instead of maintaining the needless mystery.

One of the latest efforts at clarification, "Your Guide to a Savings and Loan Mortgage," is now being readied for distribution to the nation's savings and loan associations. It assumes that no question is too simple to answer.

For example, what are the kinds of mortgages?

There are three kinds, the booklet relates:

1. Conventional mortgages. The most common type. A private transaction between buyer and lender.
2. Mortgages insured by the Federal Housing Administration.
3. Mortgages guaranteed by the Veterans Administration. FHA and VA mortgages are government-backed, but are obtained through the lender, who is assured of reimbursement by the government if the borrower fails to pay.

Simple, of course, but how many present homeowners couldn't have benefitted from an ABC when they first began looking? And who wasn't surprised to some extent by the fees lumped under the heading of closing costs?

Among those that may or may not apply: property survey charge, title examination fee, title insurance premium, attorney fee, mortgage origination service fee, transfer taxes.

What is a "point?"

A point, according to the guide, is a charge equal to one per cent of the loan. If the lender charges three points

Another End To A War

By HAL BOYLE
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A war ends but once, but it dies 10,000 times — millions of times.

It dies with the death of anyone who was a part of it.

A portion of World War II called the Battle of the Bulge came to a kind of an end here last week in a flower-haunted room during funeral services for Lee Carson Reeves, a war correspondent.

HAL BOYLE

It seemed an irony that among the mourners at the brief and formal Episcopal ceremony only two of her legion of wartime comrades were present — the recently retired NBC newsman, Gordon J. Fraser, and myself.

The casket was closed and covered with ferns and multicolored blooms. We would like to have had a final glimpse of her, but each of us could close his eyes and see Lee's vibrant face again and hear her laugh ring through the pauses in the ceremony.

The passage of nearly 30 years has dimmed Lee Carson's renown perhaps, but the memory of her flaming, boisterous, exultant spirit cannot be erased from the mind of anyone who ever knew her.

It can be argued whether Lee, a reporter for the International News Service, was the greatest woman war correspondent of World War II. But there is no question that she was the best-liked news chick who ever beat a male reporter to a story — or the best seat in the jeep.

Miss Carson was built like a movie star, had great eyes that ranged from green to brown, and a mass of long brownish-red hair. She had a face as mobile as that of a rubber doll. She had the kind of a belly laugh that upsets kings. She had the mind of an imp. She had the soul of a tomboy.

She also had a quality men like in women but are usually surprised to find — human gallantry. And she had enough physical bravery to fill an army's quota.

Lee covered the war from Normandy to its close at the linkup with the Russians on the Elbe River. Her motto was "Never let the Articles of War or maidenly modesty stand in the way of the news."

Army press officers were always telling her when she turned up unexpectedly, "You can't be here." Lee's simple rebuttal: "But here I am."

If the Battle of the Bulge had a belle, that belle was Lee. During the frantic days when the Nazis tried a do-or-die breakthrough in Belgium in the waning weeks of 1944, Lee ranged hundreds of miles across icy roads from one beleaguered post to another.

Her scarf-wrapped face and deep laugh became familiar to thousands of officers and men. She took down their stories, looked at the pictures in their wallets, accepted little presents from them — and they loved her for being there.

Opines End Of An Era In North Carolina Politics

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Political pollster Walter DeVries believes that last fall's election in North Carolina of a Republican U.S. Senator and a GOP governor marked the end of an era in Tar Heel politics.

DeVries, a nationally-known political scientist who was the chief campaign strategist for defeated Democratic gubernatorial candidate Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles, says the GOP victories marked the end of a period of Democratic control that began around the turn of the century.

James Holshouser was elected governor and Jesse Helms won the U.S. Senate seat in the fall campaign.

DeVries' conclusions, based on an elaborate and unusual public opinion survey taken in the wake of the November elections, were released to The Charlotte Observer, which published them Sunday.

James Sugg, chairman of the North Carolina Democratic Party, disagrees with the pollster that the party is in trouble.

Sugg, a New Bern lawyer, said Sunday: "I have never seen such enthusiasm for the Democratic Party as exists now. There is not the least bit of pessimism."

Bowles, however, said he agreed with DeVries that he had lost in the elections because the people of North Carolina wanted a change in government.

"We went on the premise that they wanted a change," said Bowles, "and it worked for us in the primary. But once the primary was over, we switched roles, and I became in-group. I think that's basically the big reason for the loss."

DeVries sees far more significance in the election than simply a stunning upset of the Democrats.

The poll, commissioned by Bowles on behalf of the Democratic Party as a basic planning document for the future, found a fundamental shift in North Carolina politics.

DeVries, a former University of Michigan political science professor, believes the poll also provides insight into what has happened in other Deep South states where the Democratic Party has lost its old dominance.

He reached his conclusions by interviewing 807 persons.

chosen across the state by scientific random sample, who had voted for president in the 1972 election. Polling was done door-to-door by professional interviewers Nov. 17-26, two weeks after the election.

For the first time since a Populist-Republican coalition carried the state in 1896, a majority of Tar Heel voters abandoned the straight Democratic ticket for state and local candidates.

"Once people break long-held party ties to vote Republican," says DeVries, "they don't go back."

Among the pollster's findings was the President Nixon's majority in North Carolina had nothing to do with Holshouser's election. The strong race run by Helms for the Senate, however, probably helped Holshouser a great deal, he says.

DeVries also found that nearly twice as many 18-to-21-year-olds voted straight Republican as straight Democratic in 1972, the first time they went to the polls in a general election.

Among other findings: —Straight ticket Republican voters have become the largest political bloc in North Carolina.

—Straight Democratic voters are fast dwindling in North Carolina.

Bowles had an optimistic outlook for the Democrats.

"I'm predicting the biggest Democratic victory ever next year," he said, "because the Democratic Party is going to be organized for the first time. The party is a sleeping giant, and now it's waking up."

Another person who agreed with DeVries' findings was Gene Anderson, Holshouser's campaign manager last year and now an aide to the governor. "I feel that now the Republican Party is the majority party in North Carolina."

Anderson predicted sweeping GOP victories, especially in local and legislative races, in the next election.

Ervin Is On 'Time' Cover

MORGANTON, N.C. (AP)—Copies of Time magazine are selling like hotcakes in this western North Carolina community. After all, Morganton's most prominent resident—Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr.—is on the cover.

Mrs. Shirley Spring, who manages The Muses bookshop, ordered 60 extra copies of Time and sold them all. She asked the distributor to give her all the extra copies he can find.

"Senator Sam," as the Morganton folks call him, has been getting a lot of publicity lately as a result of his leadership of the Senate's special Watergate investigating committee.

Time calls him "...the most formidable senator that this proud body could choose to lead its cause."

But in Morganton, where Ervin, a Democrat, was born 76 years ago and where he practiced law as a young man and later sat as a county judge, people are taking all the national publicity in stride.

"He's sort of a fixture around here," says Ruby Sutton, who sometimes waits on Ervin when he comes to Cornwall Drugs to buy something—often a box of candy for a friend or relative.

Through almost everyone in Morganton respects Ervin, not all like his stance in leading the Watergate bugging investigation and his Congressional leadership role in the struggle between Congress and the Nixon Administration on other issues.

Frank Patton, an old friend of Ervin's who argued dozens of cases against the senator in the 1920s, says: "Sam is the most capable man in the Senate and he's basically conservative. But he's destroying his image."

Burke County, where Morganton is located, voted heavily for Nixon in the 1972 elections.

"Yes. It would make a marvelous rest and recreation center for our loyal and industrious Japanese workers. I have the plans here. Once we own Pearl Harbor, land values will fall and we can get the rest of Hawaii for a song."

"But will the Americans sell Pearl Harbor?"

"We will make our bid on Dec. 7, a Sunday morning when everyone is sleeping. Our kamikaze contractors will build their hotels before anyone is alerted. By then the President will have no choice but to accept our check in Washington. Are we all agreed?"

"Banzai!" everyone shouted. "Let us drink to our next meeting Hawaii at the Day of Infamy Hilton Hotel."

"You must be crazy to come up here, Lee," they said. "But come again."

And if she could she did. A visit from Lee was a better morale boost than a visit by two generals.

Fraser recalled how Lee once had to hit the floor when a buzz bomb exploded outside during a press briefing. The windows were blown out, and Lee got several glass splinters in the seat of her pants.

"There must have been a thousand guys who would rather have had the honor of pulling out one of those splinters than to win a Silver Star," I said. Gordon upped the figure to 2,000.

Life ran slowly downhill for Lee after the war, and illness troubled her last years. Death intervened as she faced a future of invalidism.

"That wouldn't have been her style," her brother Bill said. Her husband, Jay Reeves, former Central Intelligence Agency officer, agreed.

Across the street later, where Lee would have loved to join us, Gordon lifted his glass:

"She was a wonderful lady."

"She was, indeed."

And this, dear Lee, is my flower to thee.

Paranoiac or not, Japanese anxiety is cause for concern. One middle-level government official candidly compares it to the feeling here in the 1930s "of being driven, driven, driven by the Americans."

He quickly adds that offensive military warfare is ridiculously unthinkable for Japan. But what about offensive economic warfare?

So, older national leaders, such as Ohira, respond to incessant proddings from U. S. officials by determining to change the international image of the crass, cunning, unscrupulous Japanese merchant. But younger politicians dismiss Washington's public relation's advice, instead feeling anger, persecution and self-assertiveness.

Considering Japan's economic superpower status, this poses trouble ahead not easily solved by a state visit from President Nixon or a one-nighter by Henry A. Kissinger, but requiring the regular attention that Moscow and Peking, not Tokyo, have been getting.

Black September Wears Tight Cloak Of Secrecy

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

By HOLGER JENSEN
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT Lebanon (AP) — Fewer than 300 embittered young Palestinians are thought to make up the extremist Black September organization, the main target of Israeli assassination squads.

There have been cracks in its wall of secrecy.

The group has been linked with Al Fatah, largest of the Arab guerrilla movements.

One of three Fatah chieftains gunned down by Israeli commandos here last Tuesday was labeled a Black September leader by a self-confessed terrorist imprisoned in Jordan.

But Arab, Israeli and Western intelligence experts admit it is hard to separate fact from supposition about Black September's chain of command, its financing and its headquarters.

Beirut is a good guess for headquarters. Lebanon's attempts to promote tourism rather than terrorism have not prevented most Palestinian guerrilla organizations from establishing head offices in this sun-kissed Mediterranean capital.

Investigators have pieced together a picture of fanatical young men, educated mainly in Egypt and disillusioned by the ineffectiveness of such regular guerrilla groups as Fatah and the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine.

They are thought to be organized in loosely knit cells, based in the Middle East and several countries where they maintain close ties with other revolutionary groups. Some of their members are believed to be foreigners, such as the Japanese terrorists who massacred Christian pilgrims at Lydda Airport in Israel a year ago.

Munzer Suleiman Khalifah, a 29-year-old Palestinian who took part in Black September's first operation on Nov. 29, 1971 — the assassination in Cairo of Prime Minister Wasfi Tell of Jordan.

Khalifah and three other Septemberists were released from a Cairo jail on bail last spring. Egyptian authorities said there was insufficient evidence to hold them.

Tell's assassination was followed by an unsuccessful attempt to kill Jordan's ambassador in London. It was the first indication that the group intended to operate beyond the Middle East arena.

In April 1972, the group hijacked a Belgian airliner in an unsuccessful attempt to free 300 Palestinian guerrillas from Israeli jails. In October, it gunned down 11 Israeli athletes at the Munich Olympics.

In December, Black September seized the Israeli Embassy in Bangkok for 19 hours and in January this year it hijacked a West German airliner to win freedom for the three surviving Munich commandos.

In March, eight Black September guerrillas — some of whom later turned out to be Fatah members — stormed a diplomatic reception at the Saudi Arabian Embassy in Khartoum, seized five diplomats hostage and killed three of them before surrendering after a 60-hour siege.

The dead included U.S. Ambassador Cleo A. Noel, his charge d'affaires, Curtis Moore, and Belgian diplomat Guy Eid. An execution order radioed to the guerrillas in Khartoum reportedly used the code words "Cold River," the name of a Palestinian refugee camp in northern Lebanon previously hit by Israeli commandos.

Some informants claim the death message was transmitted from Beirut, and Al Fatah leader Yasir Arafat was in the radio room at the time. He has denied any involvement with Black September, without disavowing its existence.

The stated purpose of the Khartoum operation was to win the release of Abu Daoud, a member of Fatah's high command, and 16 other guerrillas imprisoned in Jordan on charges of plotting to seize government buildings.

An alleged confession broadcast by Amman's state-run radio quoted Daoud as saying: "Black September doesn't exist. It is merely a code name for Fatah operatives."

Later, in an interview with Britain's commercial television network, Daoud said Black September was actually a branch of Fatah, financed by the parent group and taking orders from the Fatah leadership.

He said he didn't know if Arafat himself was one of the leaders, but he named "Abu Iyyad and Abu Yussuf," code names for Fatah's No. 2 man, Salah Khalaf, and Mohammed Yussuf Majjar, the head of Fatah political section in charge of operations in the Israeli-occupied west bank of the Jordan.

The siege at Khartoum was the last known Black September operation.

So far, the group has not claimed responsibility for the

Beachbums Are Getting Richer

MOOREA, French Polynesia (AP) — Kelley, Muk and Jay, the millionaire beachbums from California, just opened their third Bali Hai, and they're already planning two more.

releasing vacations with entourage of a dozen Tahitian love-lies, guitar players and drink pourers.

Muk, noted for counting empty tin cans in the hotel kitchen at home, has been known on trips to order 75 screwdriver drinks before lunch for himself and everyone else within shouting distance.

But, in their remote tropical paradise, they hustle harder than they ever have.

Muk shambles bare-chested and barefoot through the dining room smiling at Ohio tourists, but he's up at dawn watering the lawn and it's after 8 p.m. before he gets home.

Kelley sneaks off to ride his motorcycle up Moorea's mind-boggling mountains but more frequently he is conjuring up glass-bottom bungalows and hauling cement.

It's almost like working, the hotelmen say.

"I love it," says Don McCallum, dispensing what he calls his Mukian philosophy. "Every person who gets off that boat is worth at least ten dollars, even day trippers. It's like Christmas every day."

Though Jay grins easily and leers at ladies, he spends hours in a cluttered backroom counting deliveries from their egg ranch—a side project—and worrying about exchange rates.

All of them, each around 40 now, clearly work hard at the gay bachelor approach.

Actually, added Hugh Kelley later, "we're not in this for the money — we had to stay in Tahiti some way...Yeah, you can say we're worth more than a million now."

Police said they found 141 grains of marijuana and 41 grains of hashish in the car that belongs to Mrs. King.

Kelley, McCallum and Jay Carlisle used to listen to Tahitian mandolins together in Newport Beach and work over the Great American Dream of a South Seas paradise.

"If he won't listen to what I tell him, then he has to do what the law says," King said. "The boy had to be punished and that's what we did."

One slow season Kelley left his law practice long enough to sail down. He came back and lasted a half a day in the office. Not long afterward, in 1960, all three were in Tahiti looking for work.

Will Talk Planned Clean-Up Program

Mrs. J. T. Manning Jr., chairman of Pitt County CLEAN SWEEP '73, announced that a noon luncheon is scheduled Thursday to discuss the upcoming beautification campaign.

meeting will be held at Parker's Barbecue, said that special discussions on junked cars, abandoned houses, roadside dumps and recycling efforts in the county will highlight the session.

Mrs. Manning, noting that the Special awards programs sponsored by Keep North Carolina Beautiful Inc. and The Coastal Plain Development Association will be announced, the chairman reported.

Trudeau Tried Drums At Party

OTTAWA (AP) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau apparently did a bang up job at a party for 1,200 provincial Liberals.

Edwin L. Yancey, Pitt County Extension chairman, and Mrs. Evelyn L. Spangler, Associate Home Economics Extension agent, urged civic, religious and business leaders of the county to "come and to hear what is presently being done in Pitt County and to participate in discussing needs and proposed action" for the county.

Trudeau was invited by the drummer of a rock group performing at the Saturday night affair to try his hands at the drums.

The luncheon is being sponsored by several Pitt businessmen, it was noted, "who feel a keen interest in keeping Pitt County beautiful."

"His left hand wasn't all that good, but then his right hand wasn't much, either," said Jean-Guy Morin, regular drummer of the rock group Renaissance.

The luncheon is being sponsored by several Pitt businessmen, it was noted, "who feel a keen interest in keeping Pitt County beautiful."

"Maybe if I practice I could be prime minister," Trudeau said.

China Archaeological Treasures Coming To U.S.

JADE CLOTHES sewn with solid gold thread—burial clothes of Liu Sheng (top) and his wife Tou Wan, who lived toward the end of the 2nd century BC. (UPI Telephoto)

NEW YORK (UPI) — The name of Prince Liu Sheng will become as familiar as that of King Tut when Peking sends abroad in May the fruits of its post-war archeological binge designed to give the New China a pride in its past.

The discovery of the rock-hewn tombs of Liu Sheng, brother of Han Dynasty Emperor Wu Ti (141-87 B.C.), and his consort, Tou Wan, in 1968 in Hopei province was only a rumor in Western scientific circles until last year. They were said to be the first Chinese imperial burials of antiquity to be found intact, just as Tutankhamen's tomb was the only undisturbed pharaonic burial found in Egypt.

The extent of the tombs' riches now has been disclosed in the first Chinese-published, English language art book to be distributed in the United States since World War II. "New Archeological Finds in China" (Great Wall Press, Hazelwood, Mo.) lists 2,800 funerary objects which were buried with the jade-encased bodies of Liu Sheng and Tou Wan.

Of Equal Merit

Color photographs of the Liu Sheng treasures indicate they are of equal artistic merit to the furnishings of Tut's tomb, but Western experts will get a chance to judge for themselves when an exhibit of 380 archeological finds spanning 5,000 years of Chinese cultural history opens next month in Paris.

The show travels later this year to London, then in 1974 to Washington, New York, and possibly several other American cities. Peking will send the prize nuggets of its recent digs including the dust of Princess Tou Wan herself shrouded in what looks like a modern apres-ski suit.

Since China's ambitious program of road, railroad and dam building began in 1949, all peasants, workers, and members of the People's Liberation Army (PLA) have been given rudimentary training in how to spot accidentally unearthed artifacts. This network of "spotters" has led to many important excavations by professional archaeologists, who enlist the aid of the masses, especially PLA personnel, in the heavy work involved.

Soldiers Notice Chips

PLA soldiers, who later received "Certificates of Commendation," noticed two piles of rock chips at the base of Lingshan Mountain, indications of old excavations farther up the rock face, and reported them to authorities. The Institute of Archeology authorized a dig. It took two months to break through stone walls and dynamite an iron wall that sealed the entrance to palatial underground tombs that make Tut's look like a walk-in closet.

A dozen chariots, neatly parked in rows, and the remains of sacrificed horses in ceremonial harness were a unique feature of Liu Sheng's tomb. Both tombs were furnished with hundreds of pieces of earthenware which had held food and wine, bronze vessels, gold and silver objects, furniture, lacquer, glass and exquisite silk fabrics in excellent state of preservation.

Lifelike pottery figurines portrayed courtiers, servants, dancers, singers and acrobats going about their business at Liu Sheng's lively court. In the inner chambers of his tomb rested the paunchy prince clothed from head to toe in some 2,500 wafers of pale jade held together by gold thread. Tou Wan was identically dressed in her tomb. Archeologists estimated each suit must have taken an expert jeweler more than 10 years to complete.

Serve as Evidence "These two specimens serve as evidence of the crimes committed by the feudal ruling class in cruelly exploiting the people and at the same time show the skill and hard work of the laboring people in such early times," according to the text of the book which repeatedly emphasizes the usefulness of archeology in providing "rich, vivid historical data for widespread, popular education in ideology, politics and class struggle."

The tombs, it adds, "have since become place for visitors to receive class education."

Whatever China's motivation, its "dig we must" campaign is turning up masterpieces—especially bronze ceremonial jars and sculpture. An Eastern Han Dynasty (25-220 A.D.) tomb in Wuwei Province in 1969 yielded up 100 miniature bronze chariots, chariot drivers, horses with riders, and a riderless horse that will now take its place with certain Golden Age Greek statues as one of man's supreme achievements in bronze.

The little horse is galloping with three hoofs in the air and the fourth—carrying the perfectly balanced weight of the whole work—is barely resting on a flying swallow as a symbol of speed and lightness. The artist, as in the case of all Chinese art except scroll paintings, is unknown but "New Archeological Finds" hastens to explain that he "demonstrated the ingenuity of the Chinese working people of that time."

One-Third Of Poland's Water Polluted, Unfit

By HOWARD A. TYNER
WARSAW (UPI) — Clouds of choking, slate-gray dust mushroom from the factory's twin chimneys, then drift down to form a thick, chalky layer layer on nearby apartments, streets, lawns and people.

Inside the factory—a cement works not far from Warsaw—stands nearly a million dollars worth of dust elimination equipment, enough to reduce the noxious clouds almost to nothing.

Yet the anti-pollution devices remain idle. Plant officials are unwilling or unable to find someone to run them. Sometimes they just don't bother to switch them on.

Problems like that—lack of properly trained personnel, improper use of machinery, lack of interest outside specialist circles—torment Polish environmentalists who are trying to prod this country into the age of ecology.

Concepts Understood "The ideas, the concepts are understood, the equipment sometimes is even there," one Western expert told UPI. "But while Poland is ready for pollution control, it is not clear whether pollution control is ready for Poland."

Pollution is an immense problem here. One third of the country's water supply is too dirty for any use. The Odra and Nysa rivers are biologically dead. The Vistula is heavily contaminated.

Sewage disposal plants are in such short supply that neither Warsaw nor Lodz—Poland's two largest cities—have any at all. As a result, about 500,000 cubic meters of raw sewage from Warsaw alone is dumped into the Vistula every day.

Factories in the populous Silesian coal-steel region around Krakow, Katowice and Wroclaw spew tons of industrial waste into rivers and belch clouds of eye-stinging smoke into the air.

"Take the worst level of air pollution in the world and the Katowice area will be very close to it," was how Prof. Wlodzimierz Michajlow, an environmental expert at the Polish Academy of Sciences, described it.

So bad is the Katowice air that construction workers building a 300-foot high smokestack recently had to be brought down from their sooty perch every 40 minutes to breathe fresh oxygen.

Problems Not Ignored But Poland has not ignored environmental problems. Last year the government launched a pollution control program many Western experts said was the best in Eastern Europe.

A Ministry for Regional Planning and Environmental Protection was set up in April, 1972, and given a 17 billion zloty ($800 million) budget for the next five years. Only half that much money was spent on environment in the 1967-72 period.

The use of DDT was banned last summer. Plans were announced for construction of 800 sewage treatment plants by 1976. Parliament began action to codify and strengthen anti-pollution legislation. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) gave Poland a $2 million grant for the study of pollution problems.

But concrete results have been slow. Change often is anathema to Poland's sluggish bureaucracy. Production quotas must be met. Allocations for anti-pollution equipment are hard to come by.

"Anti-pollution devices still are not considered productive investments in Poland," said Karol Szyngielorz, a Warsaw journalist and environmental expert.

"Many directors do not want to risk the responsibility of spending money 'non-productively,'" he said. "For them it is easier just to pay their fines and write them off as administrative costs."

Coed Found Gagged, Bound And Stabbed

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Investigation continued today into the stabbing death of a 19-year-old University of North Carolina at Asheville coed whose bound and gagged body was found Sunday in a wooded area near the campus.

The victim, Virginia Olson of Lexington, N.C. was a sophomore dramatics major at the university. Known as "Ginger" to her friends, she was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Doswell Olson of Lexington.

Police said her body was found across the street from the Asheville Biltmore Botanical Gardens in a wooded hilltop area. Two high school students, Thomas Guthrie, 14, and Larry O'Kelly, 17, told police they found the body about 3:30 p.m. while walking through the woods.

Witnesses said Miss Olson was found lying face-up in the middle of a well-worn path with her hands tied behind her back, her feet tied and her mouth gagged. Police said she had been stabbed once in the chest, apparently with a knife, and her neck had been slashed. A search of the area failed to produce the murder weapon, they said.

Officers quoted other residents of Craig Dormitory, where Miss Olson lived, as saying the young woman was last seen between noon and 1 p.m.

They Pay Fines

Thus factories in the city of Raciborz on the Czechoslovak border have paid 18 million zloties ($900,000) in fines each year for the past several years.

Yet a study showed a sewage treatment plant large enough to accommodate the entire city would have cost only 36 million zloties.

Poland likewise has a severe shortage of trained people. The newspaper Glos Pracy reported about 9,000 environmental engineers and technicians were needed. Educational institutions turn out only 450 a year.

Perhaps the worst of all is an attitude among many officials that pollution control is not to be taken seriously.

Zycie i Nowoczesnosc, a Warsaw newspaper, said recently that a government inspection team toured 57 factories equipped with anti-pollution equipment. Of the total, 49 either were not using the equipment or were faking reports on their results.

"Everyone is for environmental protection, but too many people consider this protection an obstacle to development," journalist Iwona Jocyka wrote.

Sunday when she said she was going off into the woods for some quiet study. The students told police Miss Olson often would walk into the woods alone on sunny afternoons.

Witnesses said the body was only partially clothed, and articles of clothing were found scattered nearby. Police would not say whether there was evidence of sexual assault pending results of an autopsy.

Berlin Saves Croc's Sun Bath

BERLIN (AP) — Recently, an architect drew up plans for a 25-story addition to Berlin's swank Hotel Schweizer Hof. But the director of the zoo's aquarium complained. He said that the new hotel would be so high that it would cut off the sun in which the zoo's alligators and crocodiles bask.

Berlin's zoo is the largest in Europe, last year drawing two million people, and Berlin takes it seriously. So the city government changed the plans.

The new hotel will be 10 stories high, not 25.

Old Gold Mine Will Become Attraction

CONCORD, N.C. (AP)—Plans are being made to turn the old Reed Gold Mine in southeast Cabarrus County—site of the first documented gold discovery in America—into a top North Carolina historical attraction.

"It is now our top priority," says H.G. Jones, head of the state Department of Archives and History.

Jones said visitors and tourists, expected by the thousands, eventually will be able to go down into the deep shafts and through the underground tunnels which during the War of 1812 yielded enormous nuggets of one to 28 pounds.

There will eventually be a gold museum, welcome center, and replicas of the old stamp mill, cabins, offices and stables which went up during those teeming, gold-frantic days when prospectors hunted for the yellow metal.

Jones also said there will be trails and footbridges over quiet little Meadow Creek, where 12-year-old Conrad Reed saw gold in 1799.

The first active step toward restoration will come next month, culminating two years of planning. "We'll send in a caretaker," said Jones. He'll live at the mine in a mobile home until buildings go up.

"By summer, we hope to take down the no-trespassing signs we put up when the state bought the property and allow walk-through tourists. Not down the shafts or tunnels, however," Jones said.

A bill calling for a $330,000 state appropriation for developing the site is pending in the General Assembly.

NEW YORK (AP)—Stock market prices drifted lower today in moderate trading, with little in the news to spark either buying or selling, analysts said. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at 11:30 a.m. was off 1.43 at 957.93. Advances led declines on the New York Stock Exchange by a small margin. Occidental Petroleum, which recently signed a multi-billion dollar agreement with the Soviet Union, was up 1/4 at 12 1/2. Other Big Board issues included Chrysler, which reported a more than doubling of first-quarter income, up 1/4 to 14. Sperry Rand, up 1 1/4 to 40 1/4. Franklin Stores, down 2 1/4 to 24 1/4. Kresge, off 3/4 to 35 1/4; and Exxon, off 3/4 to 97 1/4.

Nixon Filed His Taxes On Time

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon's tax return has been filed by special delivery to the commissioner of the Internal Revenue Service. The White House said the hand delivery, traditional for presidents, was made last Thursday, well in advance of today's midnight filing deadline.

Wilson Is Selected All-America City

Wilson has been selected a winner in the 1972 All-America Cities Awards competition, according to an announcement by the National Municipal League and the Saturday Evening Post, sponsors. The sponsors noted that the annual awards program represents a casebook of community problem solving experience which in 1972 was highlighted by stories dealing with various aspects of rural revival, central city redevelopment, improved human relations and coping with the problems of the young and elderly. Wilson was described as a

"top agricultural and tobacco market in eastern North Carolina" whose "economy is being bolstered by new, industrially-based jobs." The city, it was pointed out, "has a long tradition of citizen involvement, and it is within this framework that problems connected with new physical growth and city services, mental health and expanded human relations activities received attention."

Among the accomplishments cited were a major cleanup effort by citizens and town officials, initiated at the request of residents in an adjoining unincorporated area, that was conducted to rid that section of potential health and accident hazards. Annexation of the 2,600-acre tract to the city resulted from the effort. Along with annexation an $8.5 million bond issued was approved and the job of developing services was started. The summary on Wilson also read, "In answer to a need for at-home treatment, citizens established a mental health treatment clinic in the late 1950s. Wilson applied for construction questions of police authority and situations which may involve racial problems." Wilson, along with the ten other winning cities, was chosen by a jury panel headed by George H. Gallup, chairman of the American Institute of Public Opinion. Other cities chosen included Hampton, Va.; St. Petersburg, Fla. Erie, Pa.; Johnstown, Pa.; Wilmington, Del.; Somerville, Mass.; Poplar Bluff, Mo.; Verdigr, Neb.; Modesto, Calif.; and Chelavah, Wash.

Tax Protestors Gear Up On Deadline Day

By LEE BYRD
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—With a midnight filing deadline only hours away, some Americans aimed disgust as well as dollars at the federal tax collector today. Demonstrations designed to spur sweeping tax reforms were slated in 31 cities. All were organized by the Tax Action Campaign headed by former Democratic Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma.

The Harris group, claiming 25,000 enlistees, and other reform advocates have yet to agree on precise proposals for tax change. But they agree on one thing: The working man pays too much, the corporate giants too little. Harris planned to illustrate that point by conferring a "Tax Avoider" award upon International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. during his scheduled speech to an afternoon taxpayers' rally in front of the New York Stock Exchange. ITT, said Harris, paid $20.2 million in federal taxes in 1971 while reporting profits that year of $413.9 million—for an effective tax rate of only 4.9 per cent. The statutory limit on corporations is 48 per cent. In Washington, ITT spokesman Bernie Goodrich said the firm would not comment on Harris' criticism. Activities elsewhere in the country included news conferences, speeches by sympathetic congressmen, marches, picketing of IRS buildings, pamphletting and the presentation of other "tax avoider" awards. Rallies were scheduled for Los Angeles, San Francisco, Chicago, Boston and Milwaukee. In Washington, Democratic Sens. Edmund S. Muskie and George McGovern planned to urge tax reforms before the House Ways and Means Committee even though Chairman Wilbur Mills has said chances are slim for major action this year. McGovern said in his prepared testimony that Congress

Holding 2nd In Planning Board Agenda Readied

The second in a series of four revival services will be conducted at The Memorial Baptist Church tonight at 7:30. The theme for this service will be "Worship Through Witnessing." Herman Phelps, chairman of the Board of Deacons, will conduct the service and he will be assisted by Mrs. John Spilman, Bruce Thompson and Stacy Evans. The adult choir under the direction of Danny Tindall will provide special music. The church nursery will open during the evening.

Passengers Pray Today

LONDON (AP)—Passengers aboard the liner Queen Elizabeth 2 prayed today for a safe voyage to Israel on a Passover cruise that defied the possibility of Arab terrorist attacks. As the vessel steamed to its initial port of call, Lisbon, Portugal, the passengers—almost all Jewish—began their first full day aboard with a religious service in a ballroom converted into a synagogue. Many of the passengers said they felt secure behind the protective screen set up by the Cunard Line and British officials, who put special guard units aboard. British navy and air force units are tracking the ship. News of activities on the ship reached London in reports to British newspapers and via ship-to-shore telephone. Among those taking the cruise were 20 to 30 British marine commandos, outfitted in civilian clothes. But reports from the ship said the husky young Britons, with close cropped haircuts, were easily distinguished from the largely middle-aged regular passengers. The general feeling on board was that no terrorist had penetrated the security, but rumors persisted that terrorists might try to smash an explosive-laden motorboat or airplane into the Queen. On Sunday, almost as soon as the vessel sailed there were the usual lifeboat and fire drills. But there were also bomb drills. On one occasion crew members were summoned by loudspeaker to a bomb search of all the cupboards, closets and cabins aboard. Loud bangs reverberated around the ship at another point, making some passengers think, for a moment, that fear of terrorist attack had become a reality. But the explosions were set off by security officers testing emergency procedures.

 construction costs and will graduate a minimum of 64 new doctors annually by 1980 at the latest. "I suggest to you that the Board of Governors' recommendations need to be thoroughly discussed so that the taxpaying citizens of the state can have and understanding of what is contemplated." Helms told the republican executive committee members, "Our friends, the Democrats, are caught in a dilemma. "They recognize some of this, but do not wish to appear critical of the Board since they and their Governor created it insofar as the public is concerned. On the other hand, they also claim the credit for starting the East Carolina Medical school. The East Carolina University School, too, is viewed by the public as an eventual four-year medical school. "Looking purely at the political situation—and, I repeat, this is not my motivation for supporting the ECU position," he emphasized, "I honestly do not see how our party could gain more support and strength now and in the years ahead than by seizing the initiative. Let us at least put all of these facts across to the people and let them make an informal judgment," Helms suggested. Helms said "though this letter is not politically motivated, I do suggest that the people of Eastern North Carolina are hopeful that the Republican Party will take the lead in giving that section of the state consideration which, ironically, it has so often been denied heretofore. "The hopes of building, in good faith and on sound principle, a two-party system in North Carolina rest in Eastern North Carolina," according to Helms. "A look at last year's election returns clearly shows that the tide was turned there—in Eastern North Carolina."

Holshouser To 'Ignore' Indians

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Jim Holshouser said today his administration has no plans to meet with or to take any other action against a small group of Robeson County Indians encamped since Saturday at a state office building near the executive mansion. Holshouser again challenged the motives behind the campers' vigil on the steps of a building housing the state Commission on Indian Affairs. "They're telling us nothing new..." Holshouser said. "There is no question in my mind that this group here in Raleigh simply represents a small splinter group that doesn't represent anyone but themselves."

A dozen or more Indians backed up by a few whites and blacks began the encampment Saturday after failing to obtain a meeting with the Indian Affairs Commission. A spokesman for the commission said an offer for a meeting was withdrawn because the Indians' leader, Howard Brooks of Pembroke, wanted to bring with him black civil rights leader Golden Frinks. Brooks has said he wanted the commission's help in obtaining federal recognition for his followers as Tuscaroras, and its aid in alleviating alleged discrimination in Robeson County. The county's 85,000 persons includes about 30,000 Indians. The Brooks group has been in Raleigh since April 8. It has succeeded only in meeting with Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt. Their encampment is only a few feet from the fence surrounding the governor's residence.

Mother's Group Sponsoring Sale

The mothers' group of East Carolina University's Remedial Education Activity Program is sponsoring a benefit sale Saturday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Roses at Pitt Plaza, at Brody's downtown, and at Overton's Supermarket. The proceeds from the sale will go to help buy a bus to transport handicapped children in Pitt County. Items for sale include homemade cakes, candy and stationery. Also, tickets may be purchased for the benefit square dance to be held Saturday, May 12 at Elm Street Gymnasium, featuring the Flatland Family Band and the Green Grass Cloggers. The price is $1.50 a ticket.

Billy Martin Fuming As Gaylord Uses Big Dipper

By KEN RAPPOPORT Associated Press Sports Writer It happens every spring—somebody notices Gaylord Perry's "Big Dipper". But nobody hits it. "If he was throwing legitimate fast balls, we'd be hitting them," said angered Detroit Manager Billy Martin after Perry pitched Cleveland to a 7-0 victory Sunday with a two-hitter.

somebody else, though." Mel Stottlemyre pitched a four-hitter and Horace Clark's two-run single keyed a six-run outburst in the fourth inning as the Yankees celebrated their 50th anniversary at Yankee Stadium with a victory over the Red Sox. "He didn't throw any grease balls to me," said Detroit's Bill Freehan, who was hit by a Perry pitch and caught the ball for a quick inspection. "He might have thrown one or two to ball.

"It's so frustrating to sit on the bench and watch hitters like ours missing balls by that much," said Martin, holding his hands more than a foot apart. "He makes our good hitters look like mediocre hitters." And what does Perry have to say about all this fuss? He denies malpractice, of course. "They still don't know I've got a fork ball, do they?" said Perry, pointing out that a fork ball has some movement, too.

In Sunday's other American League games, the New York Yankees defeated the Boston Red Sox 6-2; the Kansas City Royals trounced the Chicago White Sox 12-5 and the Milwaukee Brewers nipped the Baltimore Orioles 3-2 in 11 innings of the first game of a doubleheader before losing the second, 5-4. Rain washed out a doubleheader between California and Texas and also postponed the Oakland-Minnesota

Pearson Shows Old Form At Darlington; Runs 'Flat Out'

By BLOYS BRITT AP Auto Racing Writer DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — Like old wine, David Pearson seems to get better with age. The 38-year-old pro, who some thought was over the hill two years ago, won his third straight 500-mile race of the season Sunday. And he did it the way he likes—"running flat out and belly to the ground."

behind while his crew struggled to loosen the bolts holding a damaged wheel on. Fourth and fifth places went to drivers who normally look for a middle-of-the-track finish. Richard Childress was fourth in a Chevrolet, 21 laps or more than 30 miles in the rear. J.D. McDuffie was fifth, but his Chevy was almost 35 miles back.

Pearson had started the race in the pole position after qualifying at a near-record 153.463 m.p.h. His front-row mate was Cale Yarborough in a Chevrolet. Yarborough, who lives 10 miles away and first drove Darlington illegally at 17, also appeared to be a match for Pearson. But he never was the same he and 33-year-old rookie Lenny Pond collided and spun out early in the race. Pond also was involved earlier in a five-car mixup that almost put the whammy on 17-year-old fledgling driver Richie Panch. Both Pond and Panch continued racing, but neither was able to show his potential. Among the other favorites, Buddy Baker was the victim of steering problems that put him behind early, and Bobby Isaac had to park his Ford with a broken engine while running a close third.

"I don't know when I've ever worked harder," the compactly-built three-time national stock car champion said, running his fingers through dark hair that is beginning to show a liberal sprinkling of gray. "You go at such speed at Darlington where, when they built the track 23 years ago, they never expected cars to run 150 miles per hour, that you work every foot of the way. And if you don't stay mentally alert, you can get in trouble in a split second," he added. It was Pearson's fourth win in the last six years at the ancient miles and three-eighths Darlington International Raceway. Previously this season he had driven the same Glen Wood Mercury to victory in 500-mile races at Rockingham, N.C., and at Atlanta. "Age doesn't bother you as long as you keep fit," he said after his 4 hour, 5 minute, 13 second ride at 122.655 miles per hour. "I have 20-20 vision and I needed ever bit of it out there today."

It was a mild and wooly race. Most of Pearson's chief competitors were either felled by mechanical problems or were involved in wrecks that slowed the race 11 times for a total of 69 of the 367 laps. Pearson carefully avoided these mixups to lead 227 of the turns around the black-top course. Bobby Allison, who brushed the retaining wall several times trying to get around slower traffic, was in front 114 laps but wound up a distant third behind another Chevrolet driver, Benny Parson.

Allison might have made a race of it in the later stages had he not damaged a right front wheel during one of his brushes with disaster. He fell

Aaron's Countdown To New Homerun Record Improves All The Time

By HAL BOCK Associated Press Sports Writer Hank Aaron's countdown continues and the numbers are getting better all the time. With the 1973 baseball season nine games old for the Atlanta Braves, Aaron has managed only three hits which is not very good. But each of those hits are home runs and that's awfully good. That's 676 homers for Aaron's fabulous career and 38 away from his target—Babe Ruth's legendary 714.

Aaron's latest homer came Sunday in a losing cause as the Braves bowed to Los Angeles and Al Downing 6-2. In other National League games— Sunday, New York edged Philadelphia 2-1, Pittsburgh slugged Montreal 8-3, Chicago beat St. Louis 8-6, San Diego swept a doubleheader with Houston, winning the first game 5-1 and taking the second 4-0, and Cincinnati swept a pair with San Francisco, romping 11-0 in the first game and winning the second 7-3.

In the American League, Cleveland shut out Detroit 7-0, New York defeated Boston 6-2, Kansas City beat Chicago 12-5, and Milwaukee split a doubleheader with Baltimore, winning 3-2 in 11 innings before losing 5-4.

Aaron did not have a hit in the Braves' first four games this season. But sunny California changed all that for the Braves' slugger and he has reached the seats three times on Atlanta's West Coast trip. The club's next stop is San Francisco. No. 676 couldn't prevent the Braves from bowing to Downing and the Dodgers on a four-hitter. That's because Von Joshua, who had not hit a major league homer since 1970, tagged a three-run shot as Los Angeles exploded for six runs in the seventh inning to break open a tight game. Cincinnati softened up San Francisco's pitching for Aaron with 18 runs and 28 hits in the

It's Weird To Mickey

By KAROL STONGER Associated Press Sports Writer PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Mickey Wright, whose name was synonymous with women's golf in the 1960s, won her first tournament of the 1970s with a 25-foot birdie putt on the final hole of the $154,000 Colgate-Dinah Shore Winners Circle. Miss Wright didn't even need the pressure putt on the island green of the Mission Hills Golf Club course for the 82nd triumph of her career. Joyce Kazmierski, who started Sunday's round five strokes ahead of her but lost a battle of nerves to make them even after 17, three-putted the final hole and settled for a 286 and $15,000 as runner-up.

"It's weird," said Miss Wright, who won the $25,000 top prize by two strokes. "I started off the day and said, 'Just birdie the first five and play everything else in regulation.' That's what I said at 18. You just have to drop a thought to get rid of any fears."

Carol Mann finished the day with a 72 and a tie with Betty Burfiend, who had a final round 71, for third. Each collected $8,500. Earning $6,000 for fifth place with a 289 was Kathy Whitworth, the 32-year-old Texan who is the all-time money winner on the Ladies Professional Golf Association circuit. Miss Whitworth has won more than $440,000 since she joined the tour in 1959 while Miss Wright, two-time Associated Press athlete of the year, has won about $225,000.

Deacs Favored To Win 11th Golfing Title

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP)—Wake Forest was favored to win its 11th Atlantic Coast Conference golf tournament title as the 54-hole event opened today at the Foxfire Golf and Country Club at Pinehurst.

Coach Jesse Haddock's Deacons have won 10 titles, including six in a row. The Deacons lack the superstars that characterized its lineup in recent years, but strength is expected to come from several returning lettermen and some impressive freshmen.

The Deacons won the tournament last year by 39 shots over runner-up Maryland, with Duke five more back in third. Jim Simons of Wake Forest, now a pro, won the 1972 individual title.

Threats for the individual title include Duke Captain Bill Mallon, the New England amateur champion, and Vance Heafner, North Carolina State freshman, who finished 15th in last year's National Amateur.

Peter Gregg Wins First Trans-Am 500

By ED SHEARER Associated Press Sports Writer GAINESVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Peter Gregg, the auto racing Ivy Leaguer from Jacksonville, Fla., captured the season's first Trans-Am 500 series race Sunday when two faster cars left the race in an early smash-up. "We wouldn't have caught those cars," Gregg said after steering his Porsche Carrera to victory in the 315-mile event over Road Atlanta's 2.52-mile asphalt surface. "My history of the race was avoiding the accidents."

The caution flag enabled Gregg to move from fifth to second before the sixth lap was completed. He stayed on the heels of pole sitter Marshall Robbins' Corvette until moving into the lead on the sixth turn of the 21st lap. The 1961 graduate of Harvard then led the rest of the way.

Gregg, 33, owner of two automobile dealerships in Jacksonville, then dueled Al Holbert's Porsche-Audi to the wire, winning by about eight seconds with an average speed of 95.81 miles per hour.

"Al drove a superb race," Gregg said of the Warrington, Pa., driver who got his start in a car owned by Gregg. "You saw the emergence of a real new star today in Al. I'm impressed with his seriousness and character."

Holbert almost overtook Gregg with 50 laps to go when the leader finally made his only pit stop of the day. But Gregg came churning out of pit road and made it back on the track just in front of the Pennsylvanian.

"The two best cars crashed right at the beginning," he added. Gregg, winner of the Daytona 24-hour and Sebring 12-hour endurance runs earlier this year, had started eighth in the field but moved into contention when Tony DeLorenzo's Corvette and Warren Topes' Mustang tangled in the first turn of the sixth lap, knocking both Michigan drivers out of the race. Neither was injured.

Two Signed By Wake Forest North-South Play Slated

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP)—Wake Forest University has announced the signing of two 6-foot-8 forwards to basketball grants-in-aid. Head Coach Carl Tacy said Saturday that Cal Stamp, who played last year for Gulf Coast Junior College in Panama City, Fla., and Don Mulinix, who won all-state honors at North Glenn High School in Denver, Colo., have agreed to play with the Demon Deacons next year.

Tacy said the two players will add strength to Wake Forest's inside attack and that both players will have good opportunities to play for the varsity next year.

Mrs. Jane Bastanchury Booth of Palm Beach Gardens, Fla., will defend the title against a field including Beth Barry of Mobile, Ala., runnerup last spring and her teammate on last year's U.S. Curtis Cup team. An 18-hole qualifying round April 23 will determine the 31 players who will join Mrs. Booth in match play beginning the next day. Two match play rounds will be played Wednesday, April 25. The 18-hole final is set for April 27.

The 73rd men's North and South Amateur is scheduled at the Pinehurst Country Club April 30-May 5, with qualifying for non-exempt players April 28.

Homero Blancas Takes Monsanto Golf Honors

By BOB GREEN

Associated Press Golf Writer PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — It was the highest finish by a winner in at least three years on the pro tour, but happy Homero Blancas wasn't at all ashamed of it.

"I'll take a one stroke victory every time," Blancas said in gasping relief after he and Frank Beard took turns backing off in the final round of the $150,000 Monsanto Open Golf Tournament Sunday.

Blancas backed off just a little less. He bogeyed two of his last three holes. But Beard bogeyed three of his last five and Homero pulled down the $30,000 first prize with a fat, four-over-par 75 in the final round.

He scored his fifth victory in 10 years on the pro tour with a 277 total, seven-under-par on the cool and windy, 6,679 yard Pensacola Country Club course.

Beard, who made up a four stroke deficit over the first 10 holes, blew it with bogey on his last two holes. He finished with a 72 for 278—his best in more than two years.

"I'm a nervous wreck," Blancas said as he headed for the prestigious Tournament of Champions in La Costa, Calif., this week. It's his third consecutive trip to that event that brings together the winner of regular tour events for the last 12 months.

He gained entry on the last stop before the Tournament of Champions when the steady Beard missed a par-saving 10-foot putt on the final hole that could have tied it up and sent the tournament into a sudden death playoff.

"Of all the men on the tour, of all of them out here, he's the last man I want to see standing over a 10 or 12-foot putt under pressure," Homero said. "He's deadly—the best there is."

But Beard, long noted as one of the premier putters on the tour, missed it and Blancas had the victory.

Andy North, a lanky tour rookie, was third alone at 279 after a final 72. He was just two strokes back of Blancas, but didn't get close until Homero and Beard continued to back off down the stretch.

Dave Hill, the 1972 winner, veteran Miller Barber and New Zealand lefty Bob Charles were next at 281. Hill had a 69, Barber 71 and Charles 75.

"It was a kind of shaky finish," the paunchy, 35-year-old Blancas said. "But I'll take a win anyway I can get it."

He had a four-stroke advantage when play started but promptly bogeyed his first two holes. He missed the green badly on the first hole and three-putted the second.

Beard scrambled, but managed to match par figures over the front nine and turned just two behind. He made those up on the 10th. Homero bogeyed, missing the green, and Frank birdied to put them all even.

The close friends and sometimes roommates matched strokes over the next three holes—then seemed to take turns trying to give it away.

Blancas had to one-putt for par five on the 14th, but Beard made bogey six and Homero had a one-stroke advantage. He gave that away with a bogey from a bunker on the 16th and they were tied again.

Beard dropped one more back when he missed the green and bogeyed the 17th. That put Blancas in front by one.

Both chopped up the 18th. Both drove into the right rough. Beard hit his second into a bunker. Blancas almost shanked, hitting a tree on the right—"it entered my mind that it might be going out of bounds," he said—and was far short of the green in two. He pitched on the green but was far from the pin.

Beard exploded to 10 feet. Blancas missed his par putt and Beard missed his. That sent Blancas to California a winner and Beard down the road, still looking for his first triumph in more than two years.

Indians, Bulldogs Get In Scrap

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS William and Mary's Indians and The Citadel's Bulldogs have dealt themselves in on what had appeared until this past weekend to be a three-team scrap for the Southern Conference baseball championship.

The Indians knocked off Richmond's defending champion Spiders 4-2 in one of three conference games Saturday and the Bulldogs, after routing Furman's Paladins 10-1 Saturday, propelled themselves into contention Sunday with a 6-3 triumph over Davidson's Wildcats.

Davidson Easily Wins In Relays

DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP)—Berry College stormed to first place in five events to post 79 points and easily win over 13 other teams in the Davidson Relays.

West Georgia, with 55 points, finished second in the 14-team field. Wake Forest was third with 49 and Appalachian State was fourth with 47 in the Saturday event.

Chester Forsh paced the Berry Romp, running the 120 high hurdles in 14.4 seconds for a new meet record. Berry runners also took the shuttle hurdle relay, distance medley, 440 relay and mile relay.

A total of seven meet records fell during the day.

Team totals: Berry 79, West Georgia 55, Wake Forest 49, Appalachian State 47, Western Carolina 34, High Point 27, Catawba 20, Davidson 17, Cumberland 15, Sewanee 11, Carson-Newman 9½, Emory 6, Wofford 2, Campbell 0.

Appalachian State's Mountaineers took over the league lead Saturday with a 3-0 decision over Virginia Military's Keydets behind the two-hit pitching of Steve Anspaugh when Richmond fell from the ranks of the unbeaten inside the conference.

The weekend action left Appalachian with a 3-0 league record, with Richmond and East Carolina's Pirates right behind at 4-1. But William and Mary is now 3-2 and The Citadel 4-3 within easy range.

For the moment, Furman at 2-5, Davidson at 1-5 and VMI at 0-4 appear out of the running—but the race still has a long way to go if all teams are able to make up postponed games.

Appalachian will find out this week just how good its chances are. Following a single game today at Furman, the Mountaineers play host Wednesday to East Carolina for a double-header and have another twin bill scheduled Saturday at William and Mary.

Meanwhile, Richmond and East Carolina also were scheduled for action today with a chance to move into the lead if Appalachian slipped. The Spiders were scheduled for a single game at VMI and the Pirates were at home against William and Mary.

Appalachian scored a run in the first inning against VMI on an error, an infield out and the first of Butch Dziadul's two hits, a double. The Mountaineers added a pair of runs in the sixth on a hit, a walk and three Keydet errors.

Anspaugh pitched hitless ball for seven innings, then gave up a hit each in the eighth and ninth. He allowed only four baserunners.

William and Mary jumped on Richmond ace Roger Hatcher for two runs in the first inning on Paul Scolaro's double, a sacrifice, an error and singles by Hunter Robinson and Bill Harris.

The Indians added a run in the sixth on Scolaro's single, a stolen base and an error and another in the ninth on two walks, a passed ball and a wild pitch. Bob Mitchell's solo homer in the sixth was one of six Richmond hits off William and Mary pitcher John Mileson. Although he was touched for eight hits—three by Scolaro—in suffering his first loss against three victories, Hatcher gave up just one earned run—the only run that's been earned off him in the 32 innings he's pitched.

Rosewall Top-Seed In NCNB Classic

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Defending champion Ken Rosewall will be top seeded in the $50,000 North Carolina National Bank Tennis Classic, which starts here Tuesday.

Rosewall, 38, of Sydney, Australia, currently has a slim lead in the World Championship of Tennis "Group B" competition. He will face Premjit Lal of Calcutta, India in a first-round match.

The singles winner gets a $10,000 share of the purse. The NCNB Classic is the next to last stop on the WCT tour before the finals in Dallas.

The field also includes Australians Fred Stolle, Bob Carmichael, Dick Crealy, Ross Case and Tony Roche, who will be playing in his first tournament since undergoing an elbow operation last summer. American players participating include Arthur Ashe, Marty Riessen, Tom Gorman, Jeff Borowiak, Erik Van Dillen, Roscoe Tanner and Tom Leonard.

Championship matches are scheduled for Sunday. The tournament will be played in the stadium of Olde Providence Racquet and Swim Club, which has newly installed lights that will be utilized for night matches for the first time this week.

Offers Self-Help Retirement

By GEORGE J. MARDER
WASHINGTON (UPI) — If you could afford to put away up to $1,500 a year, you'd be able to accumulate a nice little retirement nest egg with government tax help, under President Nixon's new pension proposal.

The tax incentive retirement savings plan is part of the pension reform measure the President sent to Congress last week.

It would do nothing for the poor. The tax benefit also would mean nothing to lower income families finding it hard to make ends meet.

The biggest beneficiaries would be employed people, especially those in the middle and upper income brackets, who either are covered by inadequate private pension plans or have none at all except for Social Security.

The proposal would extend to them a form of tax privilege already available to the self-employed, like doctors, lawyers and independent businessmen.

The $1,500-a-year limit would have to include money being contributed by both a worker and his employer to an existing pension plan. If a worker did not know exactly what his employer was contributing for him, the Treasury would arbitrarily set a figure of 7 per cent of the individual's income.

Here's how the plan would work:

To get a tax break, an employee could create or join a retirement plan through a bank, savings-loan institution or mutual fund or with government bonds. It would have to be a bonafide retirement setup, but red tape would be held to a minimum. A separate account in a savings bank could qualify.

The government would allow as a tax deduction up to $1,500 a year deposited into that account. It also would forgive taxes which normally would have to be paid on interest the account accumulated, provided the interest is added to the fund and not withdrawn for current spending.

When the individual filed his tax report, he merely would list X number of dollars deducted for the retirement account, and that would be it.

If he withdrew money from the account before retirement, he would have to pay a penalty tax that would wipe out the benefits.

After retirement, he would have to pay taxes on his income from the pension fund, just as anyone else does.

There are two major advantages:

—In effect, the individual would have tax free money working for him to accumulate a nest egg after retirement.

—He would pay taxes on the nest egg only after retirement when his income would drop him into a lower tax bracket. Some might not have to pay any taxes at all.

The Treasury estimates that about 14 million taxpayers would take advantage of the retirement savings plan if Congress approved it.

Mushrooms Wins Competition Wall-To-Wall In Poster-Design

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — In this day and age, when television commercials tell you how to avoid ring around the collar, bad breath, upset stomachs and offer panaceas for a host of assorted ills, a Lexington family has a problem that American manufacturing ingenuity would be hard put to solve.

Mrs. Betsy Davis has mushrooms growing from the wall-to-wall carpeting of their bathroom here.

It seems that Mrs. Davis' son returned from a spelunking trip in Kentucky's widespread cave country and dropped his explorers' clothing on the carpet. Somehow, spores of underground mushrooms began to sprout.

Dr. Thomas Leonard, a mycologist at the University of Kentucky, inspected the mushrooms in the rug and took some samples for further inspection.

Mrs. Davis remains philosophical about the phenomenon. She said visitors to her home enliven conversation by frequent inspection tours of the mysterious mushrooms.

77th SALVAGE DRIVE
NEW YORK (AP) — The Volunteers of America is on its 77th annual Salvage Drive.

Americans are asked to donate used furniture, appliances and other household goods plus clothing, by telephoning the local VOA post and asking for a truck to pick up the donation.

The items will be sorted, cleaned and repaired and redistributed to people in need, through neighborhood outlets.

Miss Alta Cummings, of Greensboro, a junior in the School of Art, East Carolina University, is the winner of a poster design competition sponsored by the East Carolina Art Society.

The poster, to be used to publicize the Flea Market to be held at the Greenville Art Center on May 5, was selected by School of Art faculty member Mrs. Dorothy Satterfield from about 30 entrants.

Few Signs Of Royal Romance

BADMINTON, England (AP) — Princess Anne and her reported beau, Lt. Mark Phillips, appeared in four days of equestrian competition here. But for the romantically inclined, there were few indications of romance.

The 22-year-old daughter of Queen Elizabeth II and Phillips were rarely closer than 100 yards during competition. But they spent longer together than protocol demanded during a private cocktail party for competitors. They also were seen exercising their dogs together late one evening.

For the sporting record, Anne finished in eighth place out of 69 starters and probably earned a place on the short list for the British team in the European equestrian championships at Kiev in the Soviet Union in September.

chairman of the Flea Market, arranged the competition with the School of Art. He said Miss Cummings would receive a gift of art supplies provided by Jack Edwards.

ECU Political Scientists Play Convention Role

Several East Carolina University political scientists participated in the annual convention of the North Carolina Political Science Association at Duke University Friday and Saturday.

Dr. Oral Parks, out-going treasurer of the organization, was elected vice-president and program chairman for the coming year.

Based on the theme of the convention, "Political Science in a Changing Academic Climate", Thomas Eamon presented a paper entitled "Regional Activities and Possibilities."

Lawrence Hough chaired a panel on "Political Science at the Less Than Four-Year College". Also attending were ECU political science students Don Lundegard and Robert Stagg.

Legislative Week Saw Three Big Attractions

By SAM BUNDY
This week was filled with three main events. The first one was the introduction of identical bills in the House and Senate with respect to setting aside 25 million dollars in a reserve fund for the establishment of another degree granting medical school.

Significantly, the Senate Bill was introduced by Senator Jim Garrison of Albemarle with 30 signatures and the House Bill was introduced by Dr. John Gamble of Lincolnton with 40 signatures. Both of these men are from the Piedmont or West. Another significant feature is the General Assembly retaining control of the reserve fund. I think it will be included in the overall budget. The report of the special committee of the Board of Governors will come in September. I was privileged to be among signers of the bill.

A further bill to set up a Joint Legislative Commission on medical manpower has been introduced.

The second main event of the week was two days of discussion, debate and voting on Liquor By The Drink. After 2½ hours on Wednesday, the House passed its first Liquor-By-The-Drink Bill by a roll call vote of 66-49, and on Thursday, after 1½ hours, gave final approval on a roll call vote of 60-41. Both times I voted No because of three reasons. First, the state loses some control and, second, the state gives up its long policy of no profits to private groups in the sale of whiskey. My third reason was that I think the General Assembly should settle the issue and not call for a vote by the people on such an issue. The bill now goes to the Senate and, if passed there, will be up for a statewide vote in November of this year. This was clearly a victory of the big city vote with representatives from those areas giving it a 31-4 favorite vote.

The third main event was Governor Holshouser's address to a joint session of the House and Senate at which time he discussed Delivery of Medical Care to Rural Areas. He recommended two things which were (1) To establish a network of medical care clinics across our state such as the one recently established in Walstonburg, in Greene County, and (2) Area Health Education Centers.

Groups of students from Maury, Jr. High School, Rose High School, and Chicod Elementary School visited the Legislative Building this week. It is always good to meet and greet such groups. Joy Cayton of Farmville was a page in the Senate and it was nice to talk with her on several occasions.

Sign Holden For 'Blue Knight'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — NBC says it has signed Academy Award winner William Holden for the lead in "The Blue Knight," a four-part miniseries dramatization of the best-selling novel by Joseph Wambaugh.

It will be the first major dramatic television appearance for Holden, who won an Oscar for best actor in "Stalag 17" in 1953.

Holden will portray Bumper Morgan, a Los Angeles policeman nearing retirement.

Wambaugh, a member of the Los Angeles Police Department, also is the author of the "The New Centurions" and is the creator and story consultant for the new fall NBC series "Police Story."

Citizens Fled S. Viet Town

TAN CHAU, South Vietnam (AP) — The steel shutters are up and padlocked on nearly all the shops in this once-thriving Mekong Delta town near the Cambodian border.

Only an occasional motorbike passes. A few people wander through the deserted streets. About four-fifths of the town's 30,000 people have fled. More than 80 have been killed and 260 wounded.

Three weeks of shelling from Communist batteries near the border six miles to the north has smashed parts of Tan Chau and left its people in terror.

A U.S. official at the provincial capital, Chau Doc, says this area has had much more suffering since the start of the cease-fire on Jan. 28 than before.

"Tan Chau was peaceful and placid for many years," the official said.

Its misery started soon after the war officially ended. The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong started lobbing 122mm rockets into Tan Chau one or two at a time. Each one usually killed a few people.

Ten days ago, 15 persons perished and about 35 were wounded in a shelling that wrecked the riverfront fish market.

That bombardment broke the will of the people to stay in Tan Chau, he feels.

"Up until then, people were holding on. They'd closed the schools and sent some of the kids away, but most of them were staying in their homes," he said. "After the fish market rocket, a lot of the merchants packed up their goods, closed their stores and left."

The 5,000 or so people remaining are living near the edges of town. Some still work at dying silk. This and fishing were among the main industries of Tan Chau.

A four-day respite from the shelling ended on Saturday afternoon when a rocket crashed into the small backyard of a school. The school building was empty, but a man was killed and seven children playing nearby were wounded. The body of a puppy was found beside a tree.

Members of a team from the International Commission of Control and Supervision have investigated several of the shellings, the American official said, but they have been unable to stop it.

U.S. sources said the purpose of the shelling apparently is to harass South Vietnamese troops in the area prior to an attempt to occupy Hong Ngu District, on the South Vietnamese side of the border. But a South Vietnamese soldier stationed in the district said the shelling is a "pilot project to scare people out of the town."

Dismay Over Zoo Timing

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—The proposed North Carolina State Zoo near Asheboro may not be finished until two years after the spring, 1975 date that its planners have been talking about.

J. Hyatt Hammonds, who last week was selected as chief architect and engineer for the project, told the Zoological Authority at a Charlotte meeting Saturday that detailed planning alone may take two years.

That would mean the spring of 1975 before the first shovel of dirt is turned at the 1,400-acre site at Purgatory Mountain south of Asheboro in Randolph County.

Hammonds' statement seemed to dismay members of the authority, most of whom are longtime supporters of the zoo proposal and most of whose terms expire in 1975.

One member, Sam R. Rees of Siler City, urged zoo director William Hoff to set up some kind of animal exhibit, even a small, temporary one, in order to keep public interest alive in the project.

"People are tired of waiting," Rees said. "About 400 or 500 people come out there every weekend, and they've got nothing to see but the scenery. If we don't get something started, this whole thing is going to die."

Stan Kaplan of Charlotte said the attention span of the public and of state legislators is not unlimited. "There's a momentum to things in terms of raising money, and that momentum gets a boost when something is actually being done," he said.

Fellowship For ECU Professor

Dr. Eugene E. Ryan, associate professor of philosophy at East Carolina University, has been awarded a study fellowship by the National Endowment for the Humanities.

The award was given Dr. Ryan on the basis of his "promise as a teacher, scholar, and interpreter of the humanities."

He plans to research the philosophical relevance of Aristotle's treatise on rhetoric during the next academic year when he will be on leave from ECU.

Set 2-Week Workshop

A workshop on contemporary health and social issues for junior high school teachers has been scheduled by the East Carolina University Department of Health and Physical Education.

The workshop is a two-week course and carries three quarter hours credit for graduate work or certificate renewal.

Among the subjects to be considered are sex and family life education, drugs and drug education, values and value clarification, VD education and the use of literature in teaching social issues.

Instructors include Dr. Patricia Dunn and Dr. Lionel Kendrick of the ECU health education faculty, Emily Boyce of the ECU library science faculty, Robert Frye and George Shackelford, consultants with the state Department of Public Instruction and Dudley Flood of the Department's human relations division.

Additional information about the workshop and registration materials are available from Dr. Edgar Hooks or Dr. Patricia Dunn at the ECU Department of Health and Physical Education, Greenville.

The 'Worry Clinic' More Senility In Longer Life

Martha's "senile dementia" has reduced her to the level of a toddler. And many such oldsters become almost "vegetables," even losing their ability to handle their toilet functions! So compare this case with the startling report in Wednesday's column!

By GEORGE W. CRANE Ph.D., M.D.

CASE W-578: Martha F., aged 78, suddenly changed from a rational person to a severe problem case.

"Dr. Crane," her married daughter began, "she lived alone in her little cottage in a nearby village."

"One day she took down with severe vomiting attacks. They lasted all night and most of the next day."

"We don't know whether she was poisoned by taking too many doses of her various pills. "For she'd forget if she had taken her medicine and swallow a second or possibly even a 3rd dose before evening."

"Anyway, she became so agitated and active that she'd bob up and down every few minutes."

"For example, she'd sit on a chair; then go over to the davenport; then out to the kitchen, and back to the chair."

"The first day my sister and I went over to see her, she never fell asleep till 4 a.m. the next morning!"

"That night she made us almost nervous wrecks!"

"So I took her home with me for a week."

"But she began to collect all the perfume bottles and other small objects from our bedroom dressing tables."

"She was like a pack rat, for she'd stuff all such items into a big paper sack; then hide it."

"She'd also tear up the beds every morning as soon as I had made them."

"And take everything out of the refrigerator when my back was turned, placing frozen items on the table where they began to thaw."

"She'd get into our clothes closets and strip the shelves, after which she'd hide whatever she had found."

"One night she got down on the floor and hid behind a big upholstered chair."

"Another morning I found her playing in my flour bin."

"My husband is getting frantic because she keeps him awake till midnight and he must be on the job next day by 7 a.m."

"And I am developing a skin rash which my doctor says is due to my nervous tension."

"After one week, my sister took her and Sis is now almost ready to enter a mental institution herself."

"So we have decided we simply MUST place Mother in a Nursing Home, to insure her own safety and keep our marriages from going sour."

"Dr. Crane, Mother was always a nut about taking various types of medicine, so could she have grown deranged in such a short time just from too much medication?"

Senile Dementia
Yes, it is possible for drug addicts (even though young) and also for oldsters to damage their brains by dangerous drugs.

Martha's case also shows the problems that often confront dutiful children (usually daughters) when they try to keep an aged parent in the home with them.

For oldsters often experience what is called "senile dementia" and then act just like Martha.

In such a crisis, wherein the harmony of the entire family is thus threatened, then a good Nursing Home renders a double service.

For it prevents possible divorces, yet permits the aged and now senile parent to get proper food, plus nursing attention.

As we lengthen our American lifespan, we will see more cases like Martha's, so keep your brain alert as long as you can!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Restrictions Are Taken Off

CHARLOTTE (AP) — All restrictions against topless dancing have been taken off in Charlotte.

The ordinance, passed last October, had been in effect only 17 hours before U.S. District Court Judge James McMillan issued a temporary restraining order at the request of dancer Patsy Wood. He ruled last week that the ordinance is unenforceable.

Miss Wood's lawyer contended it was unconstitutional, endangered her way of earning a living, and was so broad it could apply in circumstances other than a night club, such as a patient in a doctor's office.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, APRIL 17, 1973,

CARROLL RICHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Richter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Poor judgment and the desire to argue are an integral part of today's aspects. Make an effort to place your thoughts under spiritual guidance to withstand the chance of negative actions. You can accomplish a great deal.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Associates may not be in a good mood and find fault over little things so plan how to have more harmony with them. A letter or phone call received can clarify your vision.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make sure you take care of your special job wisely and well today, or there could be trouble instead of advancement. Follow your intuition, which is good now. Show more finesse with mate.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Having pleasure is fine provided you don't run away from important duties you have to perform. Show more devotion to mate and have more harmony in the future. Steer clear of trouble tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make sure you give your home more attention now and increase harmony there. Conditions at work can improve considerably if you show more cooperation with co-worker.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Use that fine smile you have and please others more. Don't be so demanding with others. Take those personal health treatments that can make you feel much better. Avoid a person who gossips.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Analyze your present position and see how you can better it in some way. An adviser you consult with may not like your views at all. Listen to his and then use the best of both.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Fine day for depending upon a very generous friend who understands your ideas and will give you the support you need. Make an appointment with one who can help you in your line of endeavor.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you improve your position in the outside world, it will be because you have impressed higher-ups favorably. Show that you have ability. Patriotism can gain the approval of others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Even among much confusion you are able to use fine judgment and settle problems intelligently. Plan time to show good friends that

Library Grants Set Standards
CHICAGO (AP) — A grant of $12,000 to set up library standards in Canada has been awarded to two educational groups in that country by World Book-Childcraft of Canada Ltd., it was announced here.

The standards will serve as guidelines for the development of school library programs for librarians and educational administrators throughout the country.

BRIDGE QUIZ ANSWERS

Q. 1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠A106 ♠AKQJ10 ♠J4 ♠KJ6

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
3 ♥ Pass 5 ♠ Pass

What action do you take?

A.—Partner hardly can have less than a solid six or seven card diamond suit, which is all you need for a slam in hearts. You cannot contemplate a grand slam, for if partner had the ace of clubs he no doubt would have taken time out to show it. Because of your club holding it would be hazardous to permit partner to play the hand; therefore, your correct bid is six hearts.

Q. 2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠Q2 ♠J53 ♠10642 ♠10753

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West
1 ♠ 2 ♠ Pass Pass
Dbl. Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Two spades. We would decline to bid our "best suit" in the interest of economy. This is the cheapest action open to us. No remote thought is to be given to a pass.

Q. 3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠62 ♠5 ♠AQ7653 ♠7542

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South
1 ♠ 2 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Pass. There is no need to rescue partner. Inasmuch as he has not been doubled you are not to assume that he is in trouble. A bid by you is more apt to incite him to further action.

Q. 4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AJ10 ♠Q6 ♠KJ63 ♠K1084

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South
1 ♠ 2 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Three no trump. Obviously you wish to play for game with this powerful hand and no indirect methods are necessary.

Q. 5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠A ♠A852 ♠QJ97 ♠10642

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South
1 ♠ 2 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Five diamonds. This may turn out badly but we consider it was a well calculated risk. There is no scientific way to find out if you can make the game and the prospective profit is worth the risk.

New Electronic Giant Planned

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The most advanced audio-visual communications center in the nation is being created here.

The $2 million electronics forum will be used by all types of organizations for conventions, workshops, conferences, educational seminars, trade shows, concerts or theatrical performances. It will include seating for 450 and facilities for multi-screen slide and film presentations, closed-circuit color television, audio-video recording and a unique audience response system. The center, known as the Multimedia Forum, is scheduled to open in the fall in the heart of the $200 million Crown Center complex of office buildings, apartments, shops, restaurants and a new hotel.

N.C. Weekend Traffic Left At Least 18 Dead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Weekend traffic accidents in North Carolina killed at least 18 people, including five victims of a three-car wreck near Morganton, the state Highway Patrol said today.
The deaths raised the state's 1973 road death toll to 450, which the patrol said was 53 fewer than in the corresponding period of last year.
Melburn Alfred Simpson, 45, of Charlotte, was killed in a two-car collision in his hometown early Sunday morning.

Thomas S. Cook, 16, of Charlotte, died when the car he was driving at high speed hit a utility pole inside the city limits, city police said.

Emma Sutton Speight, 50, of Rt. 1, Lucama, was killed when she was struck by a car while walking across U.S. 301 Sunday night about two miles south of Lucama in Wilson County, troopers reported.

A 40-year-old Maryland man, Richard F. Ford of Tacoma Park, died when the car he was riding in veered off I-85 near Greensboro and hit a sign.

Esther B. Palmer, 48, of Longhurst, was killed when the car in which she was a passenger ran off a rural road six miles north of Roxboro and overturned.

Alan Hershel Sitton, 29, of Asheville, died Sunday of injuries received in a three-car collision at Asheville Saturday night. The patrol said the car driven by Sitton was on the wrong side of the road.

Norris Randolph, 27, of Rt. 1, Bolivia in Brunswick County, died when his car ran a stop sign at the intersection of a rural road and U.S. 17 south of Bolivia, the patrol said.

The five persons killed in the collision 12 miles from Morganton were identified as Allen Eckerd, 16, of Rt. 4, Hickory; Darrell Lee Wright, 15, of Rt. 1, Connelly Springs in Burke County; Billy Leroy Fortenberry, 15, of Rt. 4, Hickory; Delbert Dymun Hudson, 25, of Rt. 2, Connelly Springs, and Ronnie Howard Yancey, 17, also of Rt. 2, Connelly Springs.

The patrol said the car in which Fortenberry was riding pulled out of a service station onto N.C. 18 and collided with the two other cars.

Two men were killed in a head-on collision two miles south of Wilkesboro. They were 62-year-old Roby Landon Mitchell of Moravian Falls and 52-year-old Philo Miller of Rt. 3, Wilkesboro. Mitchell was in a pickup truck and Miller in a car.

Jerry Mitchell Manness, 24, of Robbins, was killed when his car rammed into a parked car near Southern Pines, slid down a road and caught fire. The patrol said a man living nearby got Manness out of the car before it caught fire.

Rufus P. Barnes, 69, of Rt. 2, Plymouth, was killed a mile east of Plymouth when his car ran off the road and overturned.

Isaac Nalley Jr., 37, of Lattimore, was killed near his home when he lost control of his speeding motorcycle and was thrown off, the patrol said.

James Bruce Moore, 32, of Hot Springs, died when his speeding car ran off U.S. 25 and hit a tree four miles south of Marshall in Madison County, the patrol said.

The Associated Press counts weekend traffic fatalities between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Sunday.

Business Notes

NAME CHANGED

Leon Smith Jr., sales representative in the Greenville area for Investors Diversified Services (IDS), announced that the company's life insurance subsidiary has changed its name.

Smith said that Investors Syndicate Life Insurance and Annuity Co. became IDS Life Insurance Co., effective April 2. He said that the new name should increase identification with the parent company—IDS. The insurance firm will continue to be a wholly-owned IDS subsidiary.

IDS Life currently has more than $4.5 billion of insurance in force and ranks among the nation's top four per cent in size. Its insurance volume increased more than 70 per cent the last five years, Smith reported, and its variable annuity assets rose almost 85 per cent in 1972 alone.

CCS PROGRAM

North Carolina National Bank has become the first bank in the state to participate in the Central Certificate Service (CCS) collateral loan program.

The affiliation, it was noted, allows NCNB to make loans to stock brokers without having physical possession of the brokers' collateral. Securities pledged as collateral will remain in New York in a central depository. The program includes 63 banks in 24 major U. S. cities.

North Carolina National Bank had deposits at year-end 1972 of $2.176 billion and ranks as the 35th largest bank in the nation, according to The American Banker. It is a subsidiary of NCNB Corp.

SECOND QUARTER REPORTS

The Black & Decker Manufacturing Co. achieved increases of 22 per cent in sales and 24 per cent in net earnings for the second quarter which ended March 25, according to Francis P. Lucier, president.

Lucier said that preliminary sales and net earnings results represent new highs for both the second quarter and first half. For the quarter, sales were $113.9 million, compared to $93.4 million last year. Net earnings reached $9.7 million, up from $7.8 million.

INCREASES CITED

Increased earnings, deposits, and total resources for the first three months of 1973 have been announced for Branch Banking and Trust Co. by Thorne Gregory, president.

Gregory said that income before securities gains and losses totaled $680,035 or 65 cents a share, an increase of 20.4 per cent over the $564,877 or 54 cents per share earned during the comparable period of 1972.

Net income after securities transactions amounted to $684,107 or 65 cents per share compared to $568,401 or 54 cents per share last year. The president reported loans outstanding on March 31 of $202,529,981, up from $179,885,174 and a gain in deposits from $252,047,207 to $270,523,152. Total assets were $316,966,205 on March 31, compared to $296,196,062 in 1972.

Advise Against Easter Animals

CHICAGO (UPI) — If the Easter Bunny at your house is toying with the notion of giving baby rabbits, chicks and ducks to your kiddies this Easter, tell him to forget it.

The American Veterinary Medical Association (AVMA) reminds parents that the "living presents" are not likely to survive in the home atmosphere. A young child's enthusiasm over the new pet often results in unknowing cruelty as legs are broken and wings crushed.

If the animal dies or is injured it's not just bad for the poor thing. It is also a traumatic experience for child. Now if the animal survives, the outlook isn't much brighter. Usually it will end up in an animal shelter.

The AVMA says because such a large number of rabbits, chicks and ducks are left at animal shelters during the post-Easter season, all can't be placed. Many have to be destroyed. But that's not all.

Even if the animal should reach maturity, many local ordinances would prohibit a family from keeping it.

These other points were made by the AVMA:

—Ducks, rabbits and chicks are outdoor animals. They cannot be housebroken and may cause serious housekeeping and health problems.

—Many of these Easter gifts are disease carriers. The National Center for Disease Control in Atlanta and other public health authorities warn that children and adults in close contact with these animals may be exposed to salmonellosis, a severe gastrointestinal infection. Salmonellosis is rarely fatal but often requires medical treatment, including hospitalization. In addition to the family, other pets in the household may become ill.

To keep the kiddies happy at Easter give stuffed toy animals or chocolate ones.

BIG BUSINESS

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — North Carolina's tourism industry, which transacts about $800 million in business every year, is one of the state's major commercial enterprises.

Farm Tips

By Dr. J. W. Pou
Agricultural Specialist
Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., N.A.

Scientists at North Carolina State University are working toward the day when they will be able to determine how many pounds of agricultural fertilizers are entering each river of the state.

So far, they know that some fertilizer, especially nitrogen, is getting into surface water. But no one can say how much of the total nitrogen found in North Carolina streams and estuaries comes from farming.

"We know that more nitrogen is being applied each year than is being used by crops," said Dr. James W. Gilliam, an NCSU soil scientist. "We don't know how much of this extra nitrogen is re-entering the atmosphere and how much of it is getting into our water as pollutant."

Gilliam explained that Tar Heel farmers apply about 400 million pounds of nitrogen annually, only about 250 million pounds of which are used by crops. The other 150 million pounds are lost — either to the air or water.

If scientists can find ways to reduce this loss, both the farmer and the environment would stand to gain.

In addition to the nitrogen applied by man, nitrogen comes from natural sources such as rainfall and legumes. An acre of soybeans, for example, will produce about 300 pounds of nitrogen annually, and about 40 pounds of this will not be harvested with the crop.

Dr. Gilliam explained that nitrogen does not accumulate in the soil except in swampy areas. Nitrogen that is not used by plants enters the air through a process called denitrification, or moves into the water to become a possible pollution problem.

Denitrification is beneficial from an ecological standpoint because the air is composed largely of nitrogen. Also, some nitrogen is desirable in surface water. The problem comes from too much nitrogen, which stimulates plant growth in the water to the extent that oxygen is used up and marine organisms die.

Rivers and streams also pick up nitrogen from factories, sewage plants, lawns and other sources as well as from agriculture. The result is a potential pollution problem which Dr. Gilliam feels could justify some changes in agricultural practices.

Gilliam cautioned farmers against over-fertilizing. For example research has shown that 150 pounds of nitrogen per acre provides maximum corn yields. Farmers who use more are wasting money and increasing the possibility of water pollution.

The NCSU studies are also focusing attention on cover crops, especially in the winter. Much of the nutrients that leaves land is carried away on soil particles. Anything that reduces erosion, therefore, reduces the possibility of nutrient pollution.

Also, Gilliam and his fellow soil scientists have found that more nitrogen leaches from both fertilized and unfertilized soil in winter than in summer. This is because more water passes through the soils of North Carolina during the winter months, and there are fewer growing plants at that time of year to use nitrogen.

While changes in agricultural practices may be needed in the future, Dr. Gilliam says that the continued use of nitrogen for crop production is "absolutely essential."

TOBACCO TALK

The rain has stopped for a few days but the cold weather isn't allowing the plants to get off to a fast growth. I wouldn't take the covers off the beds soon. If I did during the day, I would replace the covers before night as long as this cold weather continues.

There are a couple of precautions you can take to prevent Mosaic in your plants. Do not smoke or chew tobacco products while you are working around your beds or transplanting. Milk kills the virus germ that causes mosaic, so have a bucket with about a quart of skim, or dry powdered milk convenient for the droppers to dip their hands every 20-30 minutes.

Your plants would benefit from the use of clean water. Do not use any containers that have any chemicals in them to transplant water or plants. Use plenty of water when transplanting, and make sure the row leveler on the transplanter doesn't knock off too much dirt, especially where you have put the fertilizer in one band deep. After you finish pulling, wet the beds down to settle the dirt back around the plants.

We have had some calls from the farmers in the Border Belt stating that they have lost most of their plants due to the rains. If you find you will have more plants than you need, and will share them, please call us at the Agricultural Extension Office 758-1196, and leave your name, address and approximate number of plants, so we can pass this information on to needy growers.

If you have any questions, we will be glad to have you stop by the office, or call 758-1196.

Farm Scene

By RAYMOND D. COLTRAIN

Try mulching your garden this year ... you'll like it! The use of mulching can greatly hasten maturity and increase total and early yield of many vegetable crops. The use of mulches also results in cleaner fruit with fewer soil preparation prior to putting down the mulch, the kind of mulch and the time the seeds are planted. In the spring mulched soil warms up much faster than unmulched soil. This is especially true with plastic or paper films. The increased temperature under the mulch accounts for the faster growth and quicker start in the spring when soils are normally cool. Mulching Materials Until recent years mulches consisted largely of sawdust, leaves, wood chips, etc. These materials are still very effective and have some advantages. Generally they're lower incost, water penetrates them easily and they can be turned into the soil at the end of harvest. Several thicknesses of old newspapers work well for short periods but require special effort to avoid having it blown away. Another advantage is that newsprint is completely degradable.

Films of plastic or paper have become widely used for mulching in recent years. Commercially these materials are placed on preformed beds with high speed equipment. In the garden such equipment may not be practical and a bit more hand work will be needed. Some tips to follow if you use film mulches:

1. Moisture should be as high as possible and yet allow you to work the soil.
 2. A major portion of the fertilizer should be either mixed in the bed or banded in the row. Supplemental fertilization is more inconvenient.
 3. Rows or beds should be smooth and well prepared before putting down the film.
 4. Pull the film snugly over the row and cover the edges good.
 5. Seeding or transplanting can be made through holes punched in the film.
 6. Black films are preferred over clear plastic because of weed growth under the latter.
 7. Paper films are degradable and can be turned into the soil. Plastic must be removed by hand.
- Other Advantages from Mulching. Fertilizer leaching is greatly reduced. Less moisture loss — moisture supply is more uniform. Reduction in weeds (sometimes the exposed soil immediately around the plant can be a source of weed problems).

We have several good pieces of literature on gardening here in the Pitt County Extension Office located at 203 West Third Street that you are welcome to come and pick up, or, if you have any questions, you may call us at 758-1196.

A Picnic In Box Lunch

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lunch is a picnic for many students at Los Lunas High School in New Mexico.

Food and Nutrition, a publication of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, says the school reported a 50 per cent increase in student lunch program participation after box lunches were offered as an alternative to the regular cafeteria line.

The box lunch counter is self service, which is faster, and it allows students to eat wherever they wish. Outdoor eating is possible the year round in Las Lunas, 30 miles south of Albuquerque, so many students lunch under trees on campus or in their cars while listening to the radio.

School officials said they started the box lunch program after asking the Student Council what lunch skippers griped about. The answer was: Lack of choice in the cafeteria line, waiting to be served, the necessity for eating in school and being told to eat certain foods because they're good for you.

A typical box lunch contains a roast beef sandwich with barbecue sauce, potato salad, cherry tomatoes, celery sticks, fruit pie and a half pint of milk. The project proposal was generated by the Southwest Region School Food Service Seminar at Kansas State University in Manhattan, Kan.

Tax Refunds Set Records

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal income-tax refunds are being made in record amounts, says the Internal Revenue Service.

For the 38 million returns processed by April 4, refunds totaling more than $10.9 billion had been mailed to 31.8 taxpayers, IRS said. At the same halfway point a year ago, refunds totaled $8.4 billion.

The average refund through April 4 this year was $345.47, compared with $251.34 a year earlier.

Refunds are hefty this year because Congress changed the withholding tables to try to make the amount withheld more closely match the tax due. But in many cases, the change resulted in too much being withheld.

The IRS expects to process about 77 million tax returns this year.

Ervin To Talk At Davidson

DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP) — Sen. Sam Ervin will deliver a public lecture at Davidson College Wednesday night on the presidential impoundment of Congressional appropriations.

The North Carolina Democrat has called the impoundment unconstitutional. He also is chairman of the Senate committee investigating the Watergate bugging.

Can Uncover Explosives THORNSBY

by Fred McLaren

MENLO PARK, Calif. (UPI) — A scientist at Standard Research Institute has developed a method of detecting hidden explosives that could spot potential skyjackers without a physical search.

Dr. Sidney Benson, who was awarded a patent for the invention, said the suitcase-sized device could detect minute traces of explosives clinging to a small container or to the chamber of a gun that had once been discharged. It would also detect residues of explosives on a person's body or clothing many days after he had come in contact with the explosive.

Benson envisions his device being linked to a type of vacuum cleaning system to check boarding passengers. A vacuum hose would be passed over the clothes, skin and hair of each passenger and the air samples would be fed to a device to detect the presence of nitric oxides, common components of most explosives.

Luggage could be batch-processed in a similar manner, Benson said, either indirectly as it passed along a conveyor belt or by sampling the air of the baggage room before items were moved to the aircraft.

The scientist said the detection device would cost about $2,000 to mass produce.

BE SURE! Insure With Your OWN Company

Start with Lasso. Give yourself a chance of everything coming up soybeans.

Start with Lasso, and most of those pesky annual grasses and broadleaf weeds that usually come up with your beans, won't. And we mean a broad spectrum, too.

There are very few important annual grasses or broadleaf weeds in North Carolina that Lasso — alone or tank-mixed with another recommended herbicide — won't get. Early . . . before the weeds emerge.

Lasso is the preemergence herbicide by Monsanto that doesn't need incorporation and won't carry over to harm following crops. One trip through the fields at planting — and you've got a better chance of everything coming up soybeans.

Lasso by itself controls:

- | | |
|---------------|----------------|
| Grasses | Broadleaves |
| Barnyardgrass | Pigweed |
| Brachiaria | Carpentweed |
| Crabgrass | Florida Pusley |
| Fall Panicum | Purslane |
| The Foxtails | |
| Goosegrass | |
| Witchgrass | |

Lasso works effectively in minimum or heavy moisture and in a wide variety of soil types, from heavy buckshot to light sandy.

If you've got real, tough broadleaves to contend with in soybeans, tank mix Lasso with Lorox*. Together they get a much broader spectrum than either herbicide would get by itself.

In addition to those listed above . . . Lasso plus Lorox controls:

- | | |
|----------|----------------|
| Grasses: | Broadleaves: |
| Red Rice | Common Ragweed |
| | Teaweed |
| | Velvetleaf |
| | Lambsquarters |
| | Smartweed |

And if you're dealing with light sandy soil, get "cracking" with Lasso plus Premerge Dinoseb. In addition to those weeds listed above, Lasso plus Premerge will control:

- Broadleaves:
Annual Morningglory
Black Nightshade
Cocklebur
Jimsonweed
Mustard

Lasso. The preemergence herbicide by Monsanto. The mixable one. Sure control for grasses and weeds. No carryover. Start with Lasso. So everything comes up soybeans.
