White House Coverup In Watergate Case Alleged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Watergate scandal continues to boil after fresh reports of evidence that the White House tried to cover up the facts behind the wiretapping.

There were these new developments:

—Sources close to the Senate's Watergate investigation said President Nixon surely was aware of a coverup, and that evidence indicates top presidential aides H.R. Halde- man and John Ehrlichman participated in the coverup.

—A lawyer for Nixon's campaign finance committee gave court officials three cartons of secret campaign spending records which had been withheld in apparent violation of an agreement to furnish them last November. He said they include payroll records containing the names of two of the Watergate conspirators.

—Transcripts of testimony before the Watergate grand jury quoted convicted wiretapper James W. McCord Jr. as saying under oath that he had been offered executive clemency if he would remain silent about the conspiracy and serve more than a year in jail.

—White House spokesman Gerald Warren again denied that Nixon had advance knowledge of plans for wiretapping Democratic headquarters last June.

The Senate sources Monday declined to go into detail about evidence of a coverup, but said the operation included "attempts to pressure other officials in the government to go along."

The sources said these other officials included ranking members of the Justice Department and of the FBI.

Ehrlichman and Haldeman, whom the sources said appeared to be part of the coverup operation, have hired a lawyer to represent them in the Watergate case.

The sources said there are indications that Nixon found out about the raid on the Democrats' Watergate offices only after it took place, but was aware earlier that his campaign included a political-espionage operation.

Recently Haldeman told a group of Republican congressmen that he had set up such an operation, but that it was supposed to include purely legal tactics such as clipping newspapers and recording speeches by the other side.

Records that might shed some light on the size and purpose of this Haldeman operation were given to the clerk of the U.S. District Court Monday by Daniel Webster Coop.

No-Fault Auto Insurance Measure Passes Senate

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Confusion developed Monday night on a major amendment adopted by the Senate as legislation was passed and sent to the House to provide a modified no-fault auto insurance program in North Carolina.

The Senate approved by 25-20 an amendment by Sen. Phil Godwin, D-Gates, lowering the medical payment threshold from $1,000 to $500 and adding $500 property damages.

The confusion arose over the word "and." Some Senators interpreted the amendment to lower the threshold from $1,000 to $500 for medical or property damage.

At any rate, Sen. Lamar Gudger, D-Buncombe, said he and

Sen. Fred Folger, D-Surry, and Tom Strickland, D-Wayne, plan to ask the State Supreme Court for an advisory opinion on the constitutionality of the threshold provisions which take away the right of a person to sue up to the threshold level.

Under the amended bill, a policyholder could collect up to $500 for medical expenses and $500 for property damage and $5,000 for medical benefits and economic loss without bringing suit regardless of who was at fault in an accident.

After Godwin's amendment was approved, the Senate passed the measure on a voice vote.

The Senate rejected three amendments. One by Sen. A. B. Coleman Jr., D-Orange, would have given a policyholder the right to sue his company for pain and suffering. This was rejected by 27-18.

Sen. Lamar Gudger, D-Buncombe, proposed an amendment that the no-fault program would not be applicable to out-of-state motorists involved in a collision in North Carolina. This was turned down 25-21.

Sen. Robert Vance Somers, R-Rowan, sought to write into the bill a requirement that an insurance agent would have to sell no-fault insurance to a motorist who applied for it. This was defeated on a voice vote.

In supporting Godwin's amendment some senators argued that the $1,000 threshold would create fraud. Sen. Kennedy Sharpe, R-Alexander said, "With a $1,000 threshold you're going to see a lot of fraud."

Sees No Solution In '73

RALEIGH (AP)—House Majority Leader William Watkins said Monday he "would be delighted" for the Democratic party to take a stand on East Carolina University's effort to get a four-year medical school.

However, the Granville Democrat said he does not believe the med school question will be resolved by the current legislature, which is nearing the end of its session. Watkins said there had been no indication an effort would be made to act on the ECU proposal.

The Democratic party issued questionnaires last week to its 300 member state executive committee, asking their opinions about the ECU med school.

Watkins and other legislative leaders, asked about the poll Monday, said they thought it would have only slight impact on the legislature.

"This General Assembly has just about terminated its business," said House Speaker Jim Ramsey.

Ramsey has said previously that this session should not attempt to deal with the ECU matter, giving the state Board of Governors time to act.

The Board of Governors recently began a team study of the over-all medical situation in North Carolina, including the need for a new medical school and recommendations for its location.

Phnom Penh Shaken By Nearby B52 Bombings

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Waves of American B52 bombers made their heaviest attacks in weeks around Phnom Penh today in efforts to ease increasing Communist pressure on the Cambodian capital.

The giant bombers dropped their 30 tons of explosives a few hours before dawn, awakening the city's residents and rattling their windows.

The targets were Communist troop positions 11 to 20 miles southeast of Phnom Penh along Highway 30 and around Takeo, a besieged provincial capital 39 miles south of Phnom Penh.

The Cambodian military command said the Takeo garrison "repulsed many ground attacks by the enemy" and inflicted "serious losses." Several government troops were reported killed or wounded, but no figures were given.

In Bangkok, the government of Thailand said it will not send troops into Cambodia but will continue to support the government of President Lon Nol.

Lt. Gen. Kriangsak Cham- and, the Thai deputy chief of staff, made the statement in response to a report by Hanoi Radio that the United States intends to introduce Thai troops into the Cambodian fighting.

Kriangsak said nothing, however, about the possibility of Cambodia's being helped by Thai "volunteers" like the thousands of Thai troops the United States hired to fight for the Vietnamese government in Laos.

He said Premier Thanom Kittakorn assured President Nixon's special envoy, Gen. Alexander Haig Jr., during a recent visit that the Thai government would increase its assistance to Cambodia and support American policy toward the Phnom Penh government.

If Cambodia were overrun by the Communists, Kriangsak said, Thailand would be confronted by a more serious threat since it shares more than 300 miles of border with Cambodia.

In South Vietnam, the Saigon government today offered to release unilaterally 750 civilian Communist prisoners, but there was no indication immediately whether the Viet Cong would accept the offer.

The release of civilians has been bogged down in a dispute over how many prisoners each side holds. The Viet Cong on Sunday proposed to exchange 637 prisoners for 5,081 Saigon admits holding, but a Communist spokesman said the government insisted on first resolving the dispute.

The Saigon command reported 95 Communist truce violations in the 24 hours ending at dawn today, most of them shelling. It said there was action on the western defense perimeter of Hue.

Credit Cost Rule Upheld By Court

By VERNON A. GUIDRY Jr.
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a victory for consumers, the Supreme Court today upheld a federal regulation requiring disclosure of credit costs on items to be paid for in more than four installments.

The decision stemmed from a dispute over the costs of magazine subscriptions but its impact was likely to reach the entire $100-billion-plus consumer credit industry in a variety of areas.

Specifically, the court upheld the Federal Reserve Board's so-called four-installment rule. The board fashioned the rule under authority granted by Congress in the 1968 Truth-In-

Lending Act.

"Congress has determined that such purchasers are in need of protection," wrote Chief Justice Warren E. Burger for the majority. "The four-installment rule serves to insure that the protective disclosure mechanism chosen by Congress will not be circumvented."

Three other justices agreed with Burger's opinion. Justices William O. Douglas, Potter Stewart and William H. Rehnquist said they approved the four-installment rule, but would send the case to a lower court for more information on the facts involved. Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. dissented.

The case arose in 1969 when Leila Mourning, a widow living in Dade County, Fla., balked at paying the second installment on magazine subscriptions she had purchased from Family Publications Service Inc.

She won a victory in U.S. District Court but in 1971, the U.S. Circuit Court in New Orleans ruled that the Federal Reserve Board had overstepped its authority in formulating the four-installment rule and had violated due process guarantees of the Constitution.

The four-installment rule requires sellers to disclose the total purchase price, the balance due after the initial payment, all additional charges and other specific information.

Tribal Chief Balks At Removal Of Roadblock

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (AP) — Oglala Sioux Tribal President Richard Wilson said he and other Pine Ridge Reservation residents will re-establish a roadblock dismantled Monday night following the arrest of eight displaced residents of Wounded Knee.

Deputy Asst. U.S. Atty. Gen. Richard Hellstern, the government's chief negotiator at Wounded Knee, said the eight were arrested at the roadblock Monday night and charged with assaulting federal officers, including Wayne Colburn, chief of the U.S. Marshal Service. They were taken to Rapid City after being charged, he said.

"The roadblock no longer exists," Hellstern said. "They were interfering with the free access of federal officers, Community Relations Service (CRS) personnel. They suddenly decided to back off of their commitment to allow CRS people to pass through the roadblock, a point we thought had been straightened out."

Hellstern said Colburn and two of his men went out to the roadblock to talk to the Wounded Knee residents when they refused to let the CRS personnel pass.

Although no blows or gunfire were exchanged, Hellstern said,

Drug Smuggling Seen As 'Game'

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) — More than 1,300 pounds of marijuana and an estimated $1.4-million worth of cocaine has been seized by federal agents who waded through bilgewater and crawled through narrow pipes in a rusty Latin American freighter, authorities said.

The crewmen of the freighter "think it's a game," the agent in charge of the search said.

"We tear something up and they hide something in it," said Ira Morris, the senior U.S. Customs agent. "It's been like that since we started."

"These drugs were hidden by masters," said another agent, Bill Hunton. "They hid it in tubes deep in the bowels of the ship, under the engines and in fuel tanks that could be flooded if we got too close."

The customs agents said Monday that two of their men suffered chemical burns on their arms and legs when fuel poured in on them while they were crawling through shoulder-wide pipes searching for drugs in the oil tanks.

Morris and Hunton said the customs agents, aided by Savannah police, started searching the freighter last week. They said they found marijuana scattered throughout the ship and about five pounds of 88 per cent cocaine in a fire extinguisher.

One man, Chief Engineer Dionisio Madrazo, was arrested and charged with possessing marijuana with intent to import it. The rest of the 27-man crew have been confined to the ship by immigration authorities.

Officers said the Adriana is the third vessel of the Colombian International Devoeres. Line to be held recently in connection with drug traffic.

Minesweeper Lost Due Fire

SINKS—The U. S. Navy reports that this 750-ton minesweeper, the USS Force, sank in the Philippine Sea Monday, 820 miles west of Guam, after a fire could not be controlled. The vessel's 65-man crew made it safely to lifeboats before the 16 5-foot-long ship went down. They were rescued today by the Scottish freighter Spraynes. (AP Wirephoto)

Price Rollbacks On Auto Parts

GREENSBORO (AP)—The Internal Revenue Service said today it has ordered price rollbacks totaling $322,466 on auto parts and accessories sold by 427 auto dealers in North Carolina.

The IRS district office said all of the dealers involved were among 545 Ford and General Motors outlets checked as of April 17. Additional price rollbacks "are in prospect," the IRS said.

An IRS statement said the dealers were not in compliance with Phase II regulations dealing with price hikes granted to Ford effective Dec. 31, 1971, and to General Motors as of Jan. 3, 1972.

The increases were to be applied only to parts shipped after those dates, the IRS said.

"Dealers are not allowed to reprice existing inventory to reflect higher prices for new purchase," the IRS said. "Supplies in inventory are required to be sold before prices can be increased."

Price rollbacks such as those ordered by the IRS are not refunded to customers. Dealers are required to lower the prices on parts and accessories on hand until the overcharge has been erased.

Planning And Zoning Agendas Are Ready

Two items for the Joint City-County Planning and Zoning Commission and four items for the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission are on agendas for meetings to be held consecutively beginning at 8:00 p.m. Wednesday night in City Hall.

Meeting first, the county commission will consider a committee report on the overall development of Greenville Boulevard northeast; then take up a request for rezoning of a portion of the Weimar and Jones property. This property is located in the northwest quadrant of Greenville Boulevard northeast and State Road 1523. The request is to rezone from RA-20 to highway commercial.

The Greenville commission first will consider under old business a proposed revision to subdivision regulations.

Under new business, the commission will deal with two preliminary plats — Tuckahoe Subdivision, Section IV (formerly Knox Subdivision), and Tuckahoe Estates, located south of Red Banks Road and opposite Aycock Junior High. The final agenda item is a final plat on Westhaven Subdivision Section II.

'Walk For Development' Scheduled Here May 5

Walking, the most used of all man's natural motions, is to be highlighted in Greenville on Saturday, May 5, when the annual Walk for Development will take place.

"At this point," Mark Carpenter, chairman of the Young World Development sponsored program said, "I want to emphasize that now is the time for those planning to take part to make arrangements to get their sponsor cards lined up."

Following the policies established last year, Greenville walkers will again be getting sponsors to pledge to donate a certain amount per mile walked by the person being sponsored.

"I'd like to mention too," Carpenter continued, "that in this walk anyone can sponsor, an individual, a person's family, a club or church group, merchants, firms. There's a wide range of sponsors available."

Carpenter added that "we hope to have at least 500 people or more making the walk this year. It would be nice to have children, teenagers, middle-agers and senior citizens all represented. This is one time people can have lots of fun and help a fine cause at the same time."

Beginning next week, tables with pledge cards will be set up at Aycock and Junior High, at the Baptist Student Center and at Student Union on campus.

For the 25 mile long hike route, a total of 17 check points have been established. From the beginning point at Ficklen Stadium, the other 16 check points are: Methodist Student Center; Agnes Fullilove School; St. Gabriel's Catholic Rectory; the airport; Pitt Road; Prepshirts; Meadowbrook Day Care Center; Shore Drive Park; Kwik Pik; Greenville Boulevard; Pitt Plaza; Oakmont Baptist Church; York Road; Oxford Road exit; College View Apartments; and the final home stop, Baptist Student Center on East 10th Street.

Dave Hipp, Jr., one of the assistants to Carpenter, said "a hiker need not feel he will be able to complete the 25 miles in order to take part."

"In fact," he added, "most people will not have that much time even if they are physically capable. What we really hope for is a large number of people taking part for whatever time they can spare."

Last year, the first time Walk for Development was ever held in Greenville, a total of $3,200 was raised. Of that amount, 42.5 per cent, or approximately $1,345 went to the Meadowbrook Day Care Center.

This year, the local benefactor of money raised

(the 42.5 per cent kept for local usage) will be used for the VISTA program.

"VISTA," Carpenter explained, "is Volunteers In Service To America. The regional VISTA office is in Atlanta. This is a long range program, one in which people from Atlanta have already researched into the Greenville area. The local headquarters is the Wesleyan Foundation, under the direction of Rev. Dan Earhardt."

He said 50 or 60 Greenville people representing all segments of Greenville formed an advisory board to guide VISTA activities. "This is basically a program that will assist the unemployed and underemployed families in a number of areas, including that of encouraging job industry in Pitt County."

In addition to the local project, another 42.5 percent of funds raised as a result of the Walk for Development will go to a self-help program in the small African country of Cameroon. (The remaining 15 per cent goes to administrative programs.)

"Essentially Cameroon is a peanut raising country," Carpenter said. "The money realized from the funds will be earmarked for seeds and for small machinery. In the event Greenville's 42.5 per cent share amounts to more than $1,340," Carpenter said,

"the remainder will go to a project to dig water wells in Bangladesh. Of all the problems facing that strife-torn country," Carpenter commented, "water is one of the critical concerns."

In talking about plans being made to get everything in readiness for the big May 5 event, Carpenter said "one of the things we need most, other than participants in the walk, are people to prepare sandwiches and something to drink to place at the rest stops. This will be a big help to us."

Anyone who can assist in this way is asked to contact Carpenter at the Baptist Student Center, telephone 752-4646.

'Collaboration' By Some POWs Charged By Air Force Colonel

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Air Force colonel who commanded U.S. war prisoners in North Vietnam has bitterly denounced some POWs as cowards "who openly collaborated with the enemy" and even caused physical harm to some of their comrades.

Those who did collaborate with the enemy or went against the code of conduct will be identified by me and, after all the evidence is in, I will decide whether charges will be placed," Guy said.

The 44-year-old colonel, who spent five years in North Vietnamese hands, said he is in a mood to press charges but wants to be sure first that investigators come up with enough evidence to make the charges stick.

Meanwhile, Guy confirmed that he and other senior POWs are moving to enter black marks in the service records of men they regard as collaborators. A bad efficiency report can wreck a military career.

Guy said he was senior ranking officer at a Hanoi prison compound called "The Plantation" for 4½ years.

At first, he said, he commanded 50 pilots and later was senior officer over 108 men who had been captured by the Communists in South Vietnam and Laos. They ranged from private to colonel, he said.

"In the eyes of the majority of the American people, we are all heroes," Guy said. "This is not true. We had our good and our bad, our heroes and our cowards."

Shortly after he was shot down in Laos in March 1968, Guy said, "I made a personal code that I would resist until I was unable to resist any longer before I would do anything that would embarrass my country or my family."

However, Guy said, "I fully realize at this time that the Communists could get me to do things that I would not do freely." He said that he eventually did make statements after undergoing severe torture and beatings.

Villagers Flee Gas Eruptions

By QUANE KENYON
Associated Press Writer

WILLIAMSBURG, Mich. (AP) — Williamsburg is virtually a ghost town.

Amoco Production Co., the drilling subsidiary of Standard Oil of Indiana, has denied that its gas well 3½ miles southeast of Williamsburg has caused the trouble. Amoco says it will take at least three weeks to plug the 6,000-foot well.

The doors of empty houses stand open. Windows are raised. Laundry hung out to dry flaps unattended on a clothesline. The sounds of a community at work and at play have given way to silence.

Amoco also is drilling a second shaft 900 feet north of the well to determine if there is any gas in a limestone formation in the area. That is expected to take at least a week.

This village of 200 persons is deserted because of a sudden, inexplicable series of natural gas eruptions.

Several shallow relief holes are being drilled around Williamsburg to ease the underground gas pressure. Seismic drill rigs are expected to sink one relief hole a day.

Since Wednesday, natural gas has broken through the ground in hundreds of places and filled a mile-square area with fumes.

"We first told 'em it would be at least a week before they could get back," said Traverse County Sheriff Richard Weiler of the men, women and children who call Williamsburg home. "Now we're talking at least two weeks."

But other officials said it may be several months before life gets back to normal in Williamsburg. Nearly every structure in the town is over or near one of the many blowholes caused by gas eruptions.

Extensive damage already has been caused in the village. One blowhole erupted near the town hall, seriously undermining the structure, built in 1889. Another is eating away Michigan 72, and the highway probably will have to be rebuilt.

Several neatly trimmed front lawns in the village now feature ugly mud basins as much as 10 feet across and more than five feet deep.

The perimeter of the deserted village is heavily patrolled by sheriff's deputies, both to keep out looters and to prevent the possibility of an explosion set off by an accidental spark.

"We've been lucky so far. We haven't had anyone injured in this," said Weiler.

Meanwhile, efforts continued to plug a natural gas well which some state officials have blamed for causing the eruptions.

British Hairdresser Says Customer Always Right

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
In England the beauty customer is always right, hear, hear.

In fact a hairdresser cannot get her diploma unless she understands the psychology of her relationship with the client. So says pretty Sally Anne Welch, 22, of Southampton, England, who recently won the Student of the Year award in competition with 5,000 qualified girls from the United Kingdom. Sally was in the United States participating in the International Beauty Show in New York as one of her prizes. She was the guest of Roux. She had also received awards from all the hairdressing firms in the United Kingdom.

Parliament has now passed a law with stringent requirements for hairdressers who must attend a technical school for three years or serve a five-year apprenticeship with school training.

"And the tests are pretty rigid," Sally observed. "First you must write essays. For example, how would you cut the hair of a little child ... or how would you respond to a middle-age woman who might want her hair colored black?"

(Certainly not with William Shakespeare's quotation that "hair shall be what color pleases God ...")

The bright student knows you shouldn't use a razor on a child's hair — it might frighten her, and she should have learned in her schooling that she must be tactful in talking a woman out of a treatment that would not be good for her, Sally observed.

"You must be a diplomat in telling the woman that black would not be suitable for her. But you wouldn't argue. If she doesn't accept your advice readily, you would give her whatever she wanted. Black hair is hard to change once the deed is done," she explained.

As for styles and shapes, one must be extremely tactful, she insists. Whereas you might say "perhaps you would like to make your face look a bit fuller by pulling your hair out at the side," you wouldn't say "Your hair is too high for you long face."

Although in England the Hairdressing Council has the task of improving the course of training, arranging written examinations and the final oral quiz for the eight finalists in the United Kingdom, the judging by a prestigious panel is based on reception, inspection, discussion, action and courtesy (toward clients).

Even before Sally got to that stage, she had earned a diploma from the three-year Portsmouth Technical College where she studied biology, physics and French in addition to the science of hair. And she plans to study for another year so that she can teach.

The English make a big thing of the award she received — it really inflates your ego, said the pretty bride of nine weeks. At a reception attended by members of parliament and the Greater London Council, Sally was presented her trophy — in the shape of a curl of hair — by Sir Cyril English, Director General of the Guilds of London Institute.

Hair Styles Worn

By Young
English girls are similar to those now being worn by some in America, Sally remarked. Over there the short urchin cut and the page boy called the "Isadora" are very popular with girls who have cut their hair. And some young girls are wearing wigs. But she almost didn't get a chance to size up the situation. Her chaperone, Beverly Ritzen, 24, an executive with the Hair Dressing Council, had been instructed "to lock Sally in her room every night at six o'clock." New

Handicapped Can Be First-Class Citizens

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I cringed when I read the letter from a man who was looking for a nice lady with some sort of physical handicap. He should look for a nice psychiatrist (handicapped or otherwise) to help him get over the idea that he is superior to one who is physically handicapped. The poor man is obviously handicapped himself in that he is disturbed.

However sad, there are more people than most realize who share this man's sick point of view. It is this attitude which has made second-class citizens of physically handicapped people.

I know a lovely, bright young woman who has teaching credentials, but because she is blind she cannot get a teaching position. The reason is simple. An employer will not hire a handicapped person if he can get one who is "normal."

ANOTHER 2D CLASS CITIZEN

DEAR CITIZEN: Not ALL employers discriminate against the handicapped. Some [God bless 'em] give them preference. And one of the reasons I am such a rootin' tootin' booster of The Goodwill Industries is because they exist in order to give the physically handicapped an opportunity to be self-supporting, self-respecting first-class citizens.

DEAR ABBY: May I reply to "Dot in Chicago," the waitress who wondered why customers take their wraps to their tables instead of checking them in the checkroom?

My mink coat mysteriously disappeared from a restaurant checkroom. Our insurance did not cover theft of items in restaurants or theaters. The restaurant's insurance did not cover customers' belongings. The restaurant management refused to reimburse me on the grounds that the checkroom girl didn't remember me or my coat in spite of the fact that I had a claim check! My loss: $1,995.

Also, during a period of two and one-half years, five of my husband's hats disappeared from restaurant hat racks, with "not responsible for loss of personal property" signs. His loss: $185.

Try using these so-called "free" checkrooms. Any tip less than four bits results in a scream of "CHEAPSKATE!"

RLC

DEAR RLC: Offhand, I'd say you didn't have a very good insurance policy. And if you accepted these losses under the circumstances you describe without consulting a lawyer, you are naive.

DEAR ABBY: Shame, shame on you for giving out erroneous information. You told "All Partied Out," who wrote to complain about jewelry, kitchenware, and clothing parties, that some women appreciate being introduced to new products and enjoy the parties. Is that so?

After 25 phone calls, a little blackmail, and a lot of crying I finally got three to say maybe they would come, two perhaps, and one if the dog doesn't have puppies. I was the only one there. I almost had two. I let the air out of my daughter's tires, hid her car keys and held on to her hair until she was too tired to fight. But when the party lady came and I let go to answer the door, my daughter escaped out the back. I am convinced women who will submit to extortion are an extinct species. The next one that asks me to have a party will be in trouble.

Please run, don't walk, to the nearest mail box and send me air mail, special delivery, the name, address, and phone number of "All Partied Out." If she attended four of these parties in two weeks her name would sell for a fortune on the black market. Women the world over would trade the milk money for her phone number. It would bring enough to pay the national debt, restore the dollar, and send me and my jewels [recently purchased at a one-woman show] on a Caribbean cruise. ANXIOUSLY AWAITING GLASGOW, Scotland (WNS)—Jock, the killed tramp, played for two hours with Michelle Russell, the three-year-old daughter of camper Martin Russell. Before leaving, Jack gave Michelle a bag of candy.

Full Disclosures A Necessity

Watergate, Watergate, Watergate. If any one thing is on the minds of Washington officialdom it is this unfortunate and downright stupid attempt to bug the Democratic headquarters at Watergate during the presidential campaign of last year.

If there is one thing that any bureaucrat knows, it is that he must not ever get caught up in any brewing governmental scandal. Most of them spend their careers attempting to steer clear of situations which could potentially develop into adverse public disclosures. For that reason even Democrats can relate with White House staff members who suddenly find themselves suspect in the government shaking disclosures which are swirling about high administration officials.

Because of its political implications, it is difficult to protect individual rights in the Watergate investigations. Consequently almost daily new names crop up as being implicated in the break-in of the Democratic headquarters. It is not impossible to believe that some of the names are dropped vindictively as old enemies attempt to get at one another.

It is not exactly right to say that Watergate in itself is as bad as "Teapot Dome," for the two scandals are far different in nature. It is safe to say, however, that Watergate is as serious an interna crisis as any administration has ever faced. It affects so many people close to the president, himself. Questions have to arise as to exactly when the president learned about the involvement of his staff and also if he did not know until recently, what kind of control did he have over the advisors closest to him.

The credibility of the White House is severely threatened by the disclosures now coming out of the Watergate investigations. All this could have dire effects on presidential dealings with all phases of government. He could be weakened in his relations with Congress and a weakened president at home is a weakened president in dealing with heads of foreign governments.

The president must move swiftly in dealing with the Watergate mess. There will have to be a full disclosure of what went on and there will certainly have to be a number of changes in the personnel who surround the president. New man will have to be brought in who are completely clear of involvement in Watergate. Some may be unfairly dismissed, but such action is going to be necessary if confidence in the presidency is going to be rebuilt.

Improvement Is At The Roots

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH—Professionalizing local law enforcement is fundamental to winning the war against professional crime.

"The officer on the beat is the place to start improving law enforcement," said Sen. Thomas E. Strickland of Wayne.

"The badge he wears or the gun he carries doesn't make much difference if the man himself is unqualified, untrained, underpaid and unappreciated by the people whose lives and property it is his responsibility to protect."

"Law and Order" as a political slogan may have become a code word with negative overtones. As a concept, said Strickland, it remains basic to a society with freedom and justice as ideals. "It is the thing upon which our whole system is based," he said.

In that light, he added, no issue before the current General Assembly is more important than legislation to round out a system for minimum standards, expanded training, and minimum salaries for local law enforcement personnel.

Touches Every Citizen
Not so glamorous as the environment or education nor so controversial as no-fault insurance, the issue still touches every citizen in his daily life. "If we are to live under the rule of law," remained Strickland, an attorney and four-term lawmaker, "we must be concerned about the quality of personnel entrusted with enforcement of our laws."

In themselves, the bills are modest proposals. One would provide $2 million per year to assist local governments in establishing a $6,000 annual minimum salary. Another would appropriate $5 million to enhance retirement benefits.

A third, requiring no state funding, would create the North Carolina Criminal Justice Education and Training System to develop, coordinate and implement training programs.

Sen. Strickland took up the law enforcement cause in the 1971 legislature. He had a leading role in the enactment of legislation to formulate minimum standards in the hiring and training of officers.

Survey Showed Need

He followed up that experience with a survey of all local law enforcement departments in the state, asking the number of personnel employed, beginning salaries, and length of service.

Some of the findings: Local law enforcement represents a total force of some 7,300 officers in municipal and county police departments and sheriffs are as low as $3,600 annually.

Over one-half of officers performing non-administrative duties have less than three years service, reflecting a turn-over that affects performance.

Based on the survey, Strickland saw a need for measures to upgrade law enforcement at the local level. Those in law enforcement, he added, are eager for the means to attract, retain and effectively utilize manpower.

"They have recognized the need for years. We are just getting around to doing something about it," he explained.

Enactment of the pending legislation, said SBI Director Charles Dunn, "would give us for the first time the tools to work with in raising the quality of law enforcement."

It can't be painted as the answer to the crime problem, he cautioned, but it will result in an enhanced capability to deal with crime and criminals.

Personnel Is Key

Many areas of the state's criminal justice system demand attention, Dunn noted. Public encounter with the system begins with law enforcement, and the key there is personnel, he said.

"It is time to concentrate on law enforcement officers, on attracting bright young people, on training personnel for the jobs they actually do, on rewarding them for jobs well done, on providing career opportunities," he said.

"Dunn serves as coordinator for the North Carolina Law Enforcement Associations Council, representing 14 organizations in the field. The council and its member groups participated in the design of the legislation.

The 1971 legislature made a start in setting standards for law enforcement personnel with passage of the Criminal Justice Training and Standards Act. It authorized a council, representing all segments of the criminal justice system, to draw up minimum qualifications for entry to the field and to fix requirements for training.

What made that revolutionary was the time-honored practice of hiring as an officer whoever could be found for the job, and the lack of coordinated and readily available programs of training.

The council last month issued minimum standards for admission to law enforcement. That will be followed in the next few months by minimum standards for training for all new officers employed.

Greek 'Fraud' Against Agnew

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—In a flagrant falsehood, the semi-official Athens News Agency, which operates under the thumb of the Greek military dictatorship, misrepresented Vice President Spiro Agnew as delivering a paean of praise about strongman George Papadopoulos in a speech it said he made at Iowa's Drake University on April 13.

The Athens News Agency, in a story datelined Washington and headlined in the government-controlled Greek press, was actually quoting from a long question-and-answer exchange that the Vice President had with Drake students on March 15, 1972—more than a full year earlier.

At that time, the Nixon administration's regard for Papadopoulos was much higher than it is today, based on a belief no longer held that Papadopoulos was really moving toward a restoration of parliamentary government and constitutional rights. Agnew made precisely that claim for Papadopoulos in the 1972 Drake speech.

Even so, Agnew, a long-time favorite of the Greek junta which seized power exactly six years ago, carefully noted in his 1972 speech that not all was well with the Greek dictatorship.

"Let's admit," he said, "...that Greece is, to some extent, a repressive government." That careful criticism was carefully edited out of the Athens News Agency report of the alleged Agnew speech 13 months later.

Worse yet, the English language Athens newspaper, Athens News, added a box, under the headline "Indication," at the end of its story about the alleged April 13, 1973, Agnew speech that went much farther.

The "Indication" stated that the speech was a strong hint that Papadopoulos would soon be invited to make an official visit to Washington.

The crudeness of this government-inspired deceit has both puzzled and angered American diplomats here. It also infuriated Agnew's staff, and not for the first time. Agnew was similarly misled in September 1971, when a routine letter written to a Greek-American by an Agnew aide turned up eight days later in misleading headlines in the controlled press.

When informed by Elias Demetrapoulos of the deceitful April 13 Agnew speech, Agnew's press secretary, J. Marsh Thompson, issued a statement expressing "surprise" at the outrageous misuse of Agnew's 1972 talk.

Sorting out the dictatorship's rationale for the newest deceit at Agnew's expense, U. S. officials (with exile leader Elias Demetrapoulos agreeing) believe Papadopoulos is in far weaker political condition today than a year ago and needs to show that he still has 100 per cent American backing.

GETTING IMPORTANT ENOUGH TO WAG THE DOG!

By J.J. KILPATRICK

Big Daddy Isn't Needed

A considerable effort is being mounted on Capitol Hill in support of continued direct Federal aid to libraries. President Nixon has recommended that such aid be stopped at the end of this fiscal year, and the librarians understandably are upset. Dearly as I love libraries and librarians—and I love 'em all—Nixon's position is soundly based and merits support.

The liberal position in support of library aid was eloquently defended perhaps over-defended—in a recent article by Colman

McCarthy of the Washington Post. McCarthy is a topnotch prose stylist and an able exponent of the liberal view, but in common with many of his colleagues he tends to weep easy. In this piece he weeps about ten gallons.

Because of Nixon's proposal, he writes, librarians "are now on the endangered species list." He applauds a protest planned for May 8 by the American Library Association, when librarians across the country will dim their lights by way of accusing Nixon of "dimming the lights on the public's right to know."

"The Association speaks with precision," says McCarthy, "when it says the public's right to know is at stake." After all, people go to libraries to read magazines, newspapers, and other sources of information, and Nixon's goal is nothing less than "the smothering of information." He conjures up a vision of the President chortling with pleasure at the closing of libraries that spend money for publications critical of administration policies. "Can any other way of silencing critics be more effective than closing down libraries?"

Horsefeathers! The current program of Federal aid to libraries, like the recently halted program of Federal aid to small-town water and sewer systems, provides one more case history of Big Government come down with a bad case of bloat. It all started with the Rural Library Services Act of 1956, in Eisenhower's day, a modest little $7.5 million program to aid in providing library facilities in communities of less than 10,000 population. It seemed a happy idea.

One trouble with happy ideas is that in Congress they get to be hilarious ideas. In 1964, the program was extended to all public libraries under the Library Services and Construction Act. The following year brought further expansion, in the form of Federal aid to elementary and secondary school libraries. Still another act provided $5,000 grants for college and university libraries. The program now has swollen to $140 million a year.

Now, it would have been useful if Congress had paused, back in 1956, to consider a threshold question: Does Congress have power, under the Constitution, to appropriate public funds for rural libraries? It may be that South Carolina's Strom Thurmond and Iowa's H. R. Gross raised the question they are about the only ones who ever do—but theirs are voices crying in the wilderness. The answer, in my own strict-constructionist view, is no: Libraries, desirable as they are, even

Find A Fresh Worry

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—A man with too many worries is like a man with too much money. They can go to his head and give him trouble.

A man with too few worries is like a man with too little money. He doesn't get much sympathy or attention.

One way to keep your worrying in balance is to weed out periodically the worries you can't really do much about or don't feel excited about anyway.

For example, here are a few worries I have decided not to fret about—at least for the moment:

Scientists expect the climate to change slowly during the 21st century. But will it get colder or hotter? I'm going to let posterity handle this problem.

Why didn't anybody put his finger in the dike at Watergate?

Will women's skirts go higher or lower? When?

Isn't there some way to make professional athletes happy besides giving them more money than they know what to do with gracefully?

If the government puts a tax on breathing, will it do so at the source? Will we all have to wear tax meters on our noses? Well, then, will it be illegal to breathe through your mouth?

What new hobby will Frank Sinatra take up to cheer his golden years?

From what you have seen of it so far, when do you think the younger generation will pay off the national debt?

Why do psychiatrists, who have to think a lot, also tend to drink a lot?

Who was the bigger liar the guy who named near beer or the guy who named free love?

Isn't it really high time that somebody did something about it all, whatever it is?

To the editor:
As a concerned citizen I would like to express my surprise and dismay at the recent method of non-renewal of contract of our superintendent of Greenville City Schools.

Surely some public explanation is due from the Board of Education on the reasons behind the vote. I feel it is unfair to the community to focalize the issue as either racial or philosophical when the issue involves many facets over a period of time.

To whom does the Board of Education answer? Maybe we should have an elected Board of Education that answers to the voters. What about it, Board?

Respectfully,
Melinda Behr
Greenville, N.C.

To the editor:
The process by which a community conducts its affairs is as important as the policies the community approves. A benevolent dictator may be more efficient—and sometimes more humane—than the rule of the majority; yet most of us want to have a process in which the greatest majority of the citizens can be involved.

This democratic principle seems to have been overlooked by the recent action of the Greenville City School Board in refusing to renew the contract of Dr. C. Cleetwood, the School Superintendent. The action has the appearance of an effort to avoid the involvement of Greenville citizens. Two years ago a few members of the School Board sought to dismiss Dr. Cleetwood. At a well attended public meeting of the Board the great majority of those present urged the rehiring of Dr. Cleetwood. The board responded to that meeting by renewing his contract; this time no consultation of the citizens was sought and there was none available at the meeting when Dr. Cleetwood learned of his dismissal.

Dr. Cleetwood has been employed by the School System for more than ten years; in that time the school board has offered no serious criticism of his work.

There should be no question that those board members voting to dismiss Dr. Cleetwood acted from good motives and weighty reasons. There is serious question as to why these reasons should not be shared with the person they dismissed and the citizens they serve. I urge the Greenville City School Board to call a public meeting and share these reasons.

An advertisement appeared in today's paper announcing the opening of Wright's Ice Cream Parlor, "The Daddy of the Big Cone", next to the Proctor Hotel. Opening prices for ice cream was 25 cents per quart.

With legalization of beer in this state a week off today at midnight, prospective beer dealers in this community today had adopted an attitude of "watchful waiting" as result of the legislature's inability to straighten out regulatory features of the 3.2 per cent beer and wine measure passed several weeks ago. The office of city clerk revealed that five applications to handle beer have already been filed.

Strength For Today Securities Industry Picture

THE MEANING OF FAITH
People often speak of faith as if it were nothing more than a mere acknowledgement of belief. Actually, however, faith is life in action. Unless that belief we call faith has in it the element of vigorous, outgoing action, it is not faith at all. We may believe certain things yet not in the least possess any faith. Faith comes when we believe something and act vigorously and consistently on the basis of that belief.

The writer of the Epistle to the Hebrews speaks of faith as the giving of substance of things hoped for. Faith is always creative. It must always eventuate in achievement. Faith passively held is mere sentiment. All successful men are men of faith, because they have acted strongly and effectively upon convictions.

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—The predicament of the securities industry is shown in a dozen ways, in the reduced volume, in the layoffs, in the strained capital position of some brokers, in the absence of individual investors.

It is shown in the Dow Jones industrial average, which is no higher today than it was seven years ago, and in the gloomy predictions by so many brokers that prices can't rise until economic uncertainty is resolved.

But there is nothing that so starkly reveals the than the single numbers in that little column in many stock table listings called Price-Earnings ratios, or the number of times earnings per share at which stocks currently sell.

Single numbers in the P-E tables are nothing new, although they aren't altogether common either. What is remarkable is the length of the string of them, a string that includes some of the best known blue chip shares.

The Big Three automotive companies, for example, are among the most profitable companies in the world, are enjoying one of their best years, are selling a product that is considered a symbol of our times. But their P-Es are between 6 and 9.

same. The excesses, the failures, the scandals of the 1960s have left a much more tightly regulated market today.

Moreover, there are doubts about the very existence of the markets as we know them. The Securities and Exchange Commission intends to pursue its policy of just one central market instead of many.

While that might make a fairer, more just market place, there is little question but that it diminishes for the time being the enthusiasm of the ordinary investor who, like other investors, seeks

May Resort To Raising Taxes To Chill Economy

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration may consider raising some taxes if the country's booming economy can't be brought under control in other ways, says the President's top economic adviser.

"Something in the tax field would be a natural thing to consider and we do think about it," Herbert F. Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, told a news conference Monday.

Stein warned of the danger of a possible recession, saying the present rate of expansion of the economy "could generate forces that would cause more of a slow-down than we want."

He also said the administration has given up on its goal of holding inflation this year to three per cent. Some economists now say it could be as high as five per cent, he said, but declined to make his own estimate beyond saying it would be less than in recent months.

He said some tax increases have been studied as possible measures to check the economy, although no recommendation has been made to President Nixon and the study of tax increases has not been given high priority.

He said a decrease in the investment credit for business is one possibility, but declined to mention any specific tax increases. It appears increasingly unlikely, meanwhile, that the administration will impose comprehensive new wage-price controls at this time in its anti-inflation program.

Administration economists have stiffened their opposition since Congress refused to impose a price freeze or rollback on the administration.

Stein expressed this view when he said the administration has "escaped the danger" of being forced into rigorous and comprehensive wage-price controls. He said it still is studying ways to make the largely voluntary Phase 3 controls tougher.

Glaucoma Screening Tests Offered Free

The Pitt County Community Health Department offers free glaucoma screening tests to persons 35 years and older at the Moyewood Social Services Center Thursdays, at the Farmville Miniclinic Tuesdays, and at the Health Department the third Friday of each month.

The Moyewood hours are from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 4 p.m. Thursdays. The Farmville miniclinic, located in the old home economics building at the corner of Main Street and Horne Avenue, runs from 9:30 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 3 p.m. Tuesdays. The Health Department hours are from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 4 p.m. the third Friday.

This simple eye screening test for glaucoma can lead to a referral to an eye physician for evaluation and diagnosis.

Glaucoma is the second leading cause of blindness in adults. It is estimated that one out of 50 persons age 40 or over has this disease in one of its stages of development, according to Mrs. Cleo Wiley, the nurse in charge of the screening.

stability. Many investors, it seems, want to see how the New York Stock Exchange and Pacific Coast and Midwest and American Exchange and others work out their mutual problems before committing their funds to them.

But there is another big difference between now and 10 years ago, when investors were so enthusiastic. It is the economy itself. Just as investors are wary of market place uncertainties, they are unenthusiastic about today's economy.

Why? Again, it's that old bugaboo, uncertainty. Will inflation subside? Will there be a price or wage freeze? Will taxes be raised? Will there be enough gasoline?

Now translate these doubts into more specific personal questions: Can I afford the house I want, when will I be able to get a raise sufficient to really change my living standards, will I be able to take a summer automobile vacation?

It isn't so much that people are really being denied. Compared to 1960 they are living better. The middle class has spread to embrace many of the formerly poor. People have assets, and they have money to spend.

You could sustain an endless argument with the thesis that today's grumblings are the result of people having a taste of affluence, wanting more and stomping their feet when they can't get it immediately.

But that doesn't help the stock market. The time is still too brief to forget how the hope of the early 1960s was translated into booming stock prices that then collapsed and left despair in its place.

It takes a new generation to take the same chances in the market, they say, but even when that generation comes along it probably will ask for more stability, in both the market place and the economy.

Meanwhile, those single-number price earnings ratios.

essential as they are, are not the responsibility of the Federal government.

Put principle to one side, which is where principle often gets put. On the merits, it is nonsense to argue that termination of the $140 million aid will "close down libraries," or "smother information," or put the public's right to know at stake. Heavens to Betsy, McCarthy! Dry your eyes! About $54 million now is allocated for aid to public libraries. The sum represents roughly 5 per cent of their budgets. If an institution must "close down" because of a 5 per cent cut, it can't be much of an institution. And what is wrong with replacing the 5 per cent through local appropriations or local fund drives? Must we walk forever on Federal crutches?

Under Nixon's proposed Better Schools Act, intended to replace categorical grants with broad revenue-sharing, school libraries will have available the same potential aid they have enjoyed in recent years. They will have to compete for the money before, local governing bodies, but so what? They won't get "smothered."

Up the lights, you librarians! You can live without Big Daddy, if you try.

Watergate, moreover, President Nixon's former Secretary of the Treasury and architect of the highly successful Phase I and II of the economic controls program, is coming under heavy White House pressure to announce his switch. now.

The White House pitch goes as follows: as a turned Democrat, Connally would greatly reduce the level of suspicions from Republican party regulars if he joined their party at its time of greatest need, when it is embroiled in the messiest Republican scandal since Teapot Dome 50 years ago.

Conversely, the argument is being privately advanced that continuing Connally procrastination will infuriate these same Republican regulars, who will view the delay as Connally's effort to avoid contamination.

But such arguments are not having much impact on the charmingly arrogant former Democratic governor of Texas. To the contrary, Connally is coming under conflicting pressures from many old friends in his own Democratic party.

Moreover, the stench of some of the fund-raising techniques used by the Committee to Reelect the President (CREEP), including contributions "laundered" in Mexico, is particularly strong in Texas. Connally's Democratic cronies are using that to warn him the Republican party is just not for him.

Connally, who was always contemptuous of the caliber of Mr. Nixon's staff, is unlikely to be impressed by arguments on either side of the case. He will make his decision coldly, based on his own self-interest and his analysis of the long-range harm of Watergate to the Republican party.

THE STRAIGHT-UP MARTINI DRINKER. VICTIM OF THE ICE AGE.

It is a sad fact that the last of America's Straight-Up Martini Drinkers are disappearing in a glacier of ice cubes. Once again, expediency and convenience are destroying tradition and style.

We at Canada Dry are doing our bit to stem the tide. By making gin and vodka so dry and smooth that they give the Straight-Up Martini Drinker the courage to go on. And let the on-the-rocks crowd remember: gin and vodka good enough for the Straight-Up Man are good enough for any man.

If you know a Straight-Up Martini Drinker, tell him to take heart. And some Canada Dry Gin or Vodka. CANADA DRY GIN AND VODKA. Friends of the Straight-Up Martini Drinker.

House Is Paving Way To Adjournment

Garbage Power Tested At Experimental Plant

By JACK SCHREIBMAN
Associated Press Writer
MENLO PARK, Calif. (AP)—Electric power has been generated from ordinary domestic garbage in an experimental plant that Sen. Gale McGee says could help solve the world's waste disposal problems.

"This is going to revolutionize the whole problem of garbage disposal," said McGee after witnessing tests of the new plant on Monday with a group of government officials and urban engineers from Monaco and the Soviet Union.

The Wyoming Democrat is chairman of a Senate subcommittee on agricultural and environmental appropriations. The $6 million, five-year pilot project was carried out by the Combustion Power Co. under contract to the Environmental Protection Agency.

The plant is designed to consume 80 tons of garbage a day, with a "byproduct" of 1,000 kilowatts of electrical power. Monday's test generated 975 kilowatts. The trash used in the test was totally unsegregated, containing the usual domestic mishmash of metal, wood, glass and paper.

Combustion Power officials said that, if the pilot plant works out, it could be the forerunner of "CPU-400" garbage-power factories capable of producing 12,000 kilowatts on 400 tons of garbage a day, without air pollution.

The garbage-power plant is meant to yield salable commodities in the form of electrical power and the nonburned items found in trash—sand and ash, gravel, glass, ferrous metals, aluminum and other metals.

In operation, garbage trucks unload their cargoes in a reception area, then the trash is shredded and separated—metal and pulverized glass from the light, burnable materials. The heavy stuff drops into containers.

The burnable material is converted into hot gases in a combustion chamber, and the gas is then used to operate a turbine for the generation of electricity.

A materials-recovery module in the plant processes the heavy material removed from the garbage, separates the various components, cleans and size-sorts them ready for resale.

Ramsey said he intends to leave the Appropriations, Finance, Judiciary, Health, Insurance and Roads committees intact through the end of the 1973 session. The rest will be disbanded until the legislature reconvenes in January.

Ramsey and Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt, the Senate's presiding officer, are still feeling their way through this problem, since this is the first time the legislature has had the prospect of reconvening. The decision to go from biennial to annual sessions was made earlier this year.

Ramsey said the committees which do not disband this week will be designated as standing committees and will continue to meet until next January.

"They will be able to vote to give favorable reports to bills introduced this year. We ought to have a full calendar the day after we come back next year," he said.

One result of the standing committee system, Ramsey said, will likely be fewer drastic actions by the Calendar

Committee, to be chaired this year by Rep. Gerald Arnold, D-Harnett.

The Calendar Committee, he said, will be able to refer a bill to one of the standing committees for further action and study rather than to kill it outright.

The Speaker pointed out that legally, it will be the same General Assembly that meets next year. A bill which, for example, received favorable action by the House and no action by the Senate could become law next year with only Senate approval.

Ramsey said the working pace of the legislature is going to intensify in the next two weeks, and predicted that some major legislation will be enacted.

He said he was contemplating calling a night session for Thursday and would probably move the hour for beginning the daily sessions from 2:30 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. later this week.

A Greenville group of music makers, the "Flatland Family Band" won the third runner-up position in Old Time Band division in the World Championship competition held Easter weekend in Union Grove.

Led by Dr. Michael O'Connor, an associate professor in the Geology Department, East Carolina University, the Greenville musicians faced rugged competition in the big gathering that brought in over 200 music groups and individual players.

"This is a top-notch ensemble," J. Pierce Van Hoy, program director said of the Flatland Family.

Flatland Family followed the High Woods Strings Band of Alpine, New York, second runner up, and first runner-up Pine Ridge Boys led by Ernest East of Mt. Airy group. Smokey Valley Boys under Benton Flippen took top honors in the Old Time Band group.

In other categories — contestants vied for top and runner up spots for Bluegrass Band, fiddle, old time bango, bluegrass banjo, guitar, mandolin, dobro and bass.

Entrants in the big 49th annual came from North and South Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, New York, Tennessee and other states.

Confer About Beach Erosion

JACKSONVILLE BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The sand that came to Florida beaches from the Appalachian mountains over the centuries is steadily washing out to sea, eroding the oceanfront that is one of the state's chief assets.

A group of federal, state and regional officials met at the call of Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., Monday to talk of ways to tackle the problem.

While erosion is a problem on most Florida beaches, it is most severe along the Atlantic from the Georgia line south to Melbourne.

Most spokesmen at the meeting favored a regional organization by Nassau, Duval, St. Johns, Flagler, Volusia and Brevard counties as the most appropriate for finding a solution.

Those counties were left to get together later in such an organization.

Rep. William Chappell, D-Fla., suggested it follow the form of one set up last year to combat pollution in the St. Johns River. Some of the same counties are involved.

Florida's beach sand largely originated in the Appalachians, Col. Tommy L. Everhart of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in Atlanta told the group of about 350.

The sand washed through rivers and streams; then was deposited on the shores by ocean currents, he said.

But the supply of sand has virtually stopped, he added, because of modern farming methods and dams on mountain rivers.

Commented Chiles: "Man and his development in erecting sea walls, knocking down dunes and building groins (jetties) has caused much of the problem."

Rep. Charles Bennett, D-Fla., said Jacksonville had raised $600,000 in planning money for beach replenishment in this area but the project is stalled because $90,000 of it is in appropriated federal funds which President Nixon has frozen.

Bennett suggested a total statewide approach. He said it would cost at least $41 million to replenish the sand on 700 miles of beaches.

Randolph Hodges, secretary of the Florida Department of Natural Resources, said five to 15 million cubic yards of sand is being lost each year.

"We have a hodgepodge of erosion control districts, county

More To Farmers

WASHINGTON (AP)—The cost of enough U.S. farm-produced food to feed a typical family for a year increased another $49 in March, the Agriculture Department says.

The increase, sparked by a 6.8 per cent hike in the prices farmers receive, rose 3.5 per cent—from $1,409 in February to $1,458 in March.

The rise followed a 2.7 per cent increase in January and a 2.5 per cent increase in February.

USDA, which released the figures Monday, said a typical family was 3.2 persons. The agency said the price of the market basket has risen $120 in the past three months and $157 in the past year.

The price farmers receive increased from $607 to $648. The middleman's share went from $802 to $810.

Higher retail prices for beef and pork accounted for much of the increase. Beef retail prices averaged more than $1.35 a pound, a record high. The price was $1.30 in February and $1.22 in January.

Brezhnev Plans To Visit Bonn

BONN, West Germany (AP)—Soviet Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev's visit to Bonn is expected to take place May 18-22, the West German government announced today.

Chancellor Willy Brandt's Social Democratic party announced on April 4 that the top man in the Kremlin hierarchy would visit West Germany in the middle of May. It will be Brezhnev's first visit to West Germany.

COMMITTEE OKAY
RALEIGH (AP)—House-passed legislation to reduce license taxes paid by big transport trucks received the approval of the Senate Finance Committee today.

The speaker said that beginning Thursday the House's daily session will begin at 1:30 instead of 2:30 p.m.

The speaker said that with House committees curtailing their work, the "formal House sessions are becoming more important in order that we might meet the May 11 adjournment date."

WILMINGTON — The University of North Carolina choked off five scoring opportunities by the East Carolina University Pirates and then pushed over a run in the bottom of the ninth to take their second straight 4-3 win over the Bucs last night.

East Carolina led the game 3-0 after four innings, but Wilmington came back to get three in the fifth to tie it up. The Seahawks used three double plays to get out of trouble along the way...

Bill Godwin took the loss, going the distance. He scattered eight hits, walking one and striking out eight. Five errors behind him, however, cost the victory.

Bout Ends In A Draw

NEW YORK (AP) — Hal Carroll, a 32-year-old veteran making his New York debut, felt he did everything right in his fight against Mike Quarry...

"I'm a religious man. I don't get mad," Carroll said after the featured 10-round light heavyweight bout at Madison Square Garden's Felt Forum Monday night was declared a draw.

Carroll, an ironworker who has spent most of his ring career campaigning in his native Syracuse, N. Y., and Scranton, Pa., fought out of a crouch and carried the fight to Quarry with solid left hooks to the head and straight rights.

Quarry, ranked third by the World Boxing Association, was unable to use his usual quick footwork and was forced to fight in close order to avoid Carroll's accurate long-range punches.

East Carolina took the lead in the fourth after having chances in the second and third go by the board. In both innings, they had put runners on first and second, only to not score them.

But in the fourth, with one down, Larry Walters singled and Ron Leggett reached on an error. Rick McMahon hit back to the infield, but the ball was thrown away in the attempt to get the lead runner...

In the fifth, after another Pirate chance had gone by, leaving men at second and first, the Seahawks came back to tie it up. Bobby Schupp reached on an error, and Bill Hutchinson reached when his grounder was also thrown away.

Eric Higgins reached on the third error of the inning, loading them up. Greg Dalton singled in Schupp, and when the ball was booted on the relay in, Hutchinson came around. Bruce Cavanaugh's pop fly to left was also booted, and Higgins came in with the tying run.

In the seventh, the Pirates put a man as far as third, but in the eighth, they had their best chance, loading them up with two away. In that frame, McMahon walked and Godwin did too. Bradshaw reached on a fielder's choice that left everyone safe, but a popfly ended the threat.

Wilmington then came up with the game-ending run in the ninth. Hutchinson singled and Bob Ivey reached on an infield hit. With one down, Cavanaugh hit a single down the left field line, easily scoring Hutchinson to give the Seahawks the victory.

The loss knocked the Pirates down to 11-5 for the year, while Wilmington was winning its 20th against nine losses.

East Carolina continues its road trip tonight, going to Pembroke to meet the Indians in a night encounter.

NBA Still Not Sure About Draft

By BEN THOMAS
Associated Press sports writer
NEW YORK (AP) — To draft or not to draft. That was the question facing the National Basketball Association today in court—a court of law, not a playing floor for games.

Louis Nizer, the famed trial lawyer, was scheduled to go before the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals seeking a temporary restraining order stopping the NBA from holding its 1973 draft of collegiate players, scheduled to begin two hours later.

Nizer's court appearance was planned for 10 a.m., EST.

If Nizer, representing the disgruntled Philadelphia 76ers, succeeds it would be the third postponement of the draft. The league itself delayed the draft two other times as a result of the John Brisker case.

"We are in the process of hoping there will be no draft," said Irv Kosloff, owner of the 76ers.

If the NBA is forced to push its draft back again, the American Basketball Association, scheduled to pick on Wednesday, will do likewise. The ABA says it will draft after the NBA does, whenever that occurs.

The issue in the law courts is who will get draft pick No. 4—Philadelphia or Seattle.

Once that's decided, the issue of who'll draft No. 1 may be decided between Philadelphia and Chicago—or in a doctor's office.

Developments in the NBA Monday night resembled a three-ring circus performance. A sidelight, but not connected to the principal issue, was the sudden resignation of Kevin Loughery as coach of the 76ers to go to the rival ABA's New York Nets as head coach.

The 76ers disclosed a trade with Chicago for the No. 1 draft pick, which is not at issue in the court case, then hedged on it, admitting that it wasn't final.

Things started popping about sundown Monday, after a day of rumors, when the 76ers announced they had traded the No. 1 draft pick—rightfully theirs because of the worst record in the Eastern Conference and a successful coin flip with Portland, the Western Conference's worst team—to Chicago.

The trade announced had 6-foot-9 center Clifford Ray and other considerations going to Philadelphia in exchange for the No. 1 pick. The rub was that Ray had to pass a physical examination.

In Chicago, Bulls' General Manager Pat Williams said of the trade: "It's still a rumor. If a trade is consummated, we'll announce it. Every club in the league is wheeling and dealing, but so far there have been no trades."

The legal rub comes from Seattle's signing last summer of John Brisker, who was drafted in 1969 by the 76ers. The Philadelphia club complained and Kennedy punished Seattle by giving its No. 1 draft choice to the 76ers. Last Wednesday the NBA board of governors reversed Kennedy and gave Seattle its first-round pick back but awarded Philadelphia a bonus pick at the end of the first round and transferred Seattle's second-round choices this year and next to Philadelphia.

The guards hit only seven of 35 field goal tries. Gene Littles and Ted McLain tried 11 shots between them and missed on all. Calvin was only 3 for 13. At the same time, Kentucky's guards were able consistently to work the ball inside the big men Artis Gilmore and Dan Issel.

When the 7-foot-2 Gilmore sets up in the low post and goes to the basket, he is the added offensive weapon the Colonels need to complement Issel and Rick Mount.

Wendell Ladner, who came off the bench to spark the Colonels to victory with his fiery play and long-range bombing in the first and sixth games, needed 42 stitches after crashing over the Cougar bench and into a water cooler in Louisville Saturday. But he and the Kentucky doctor say he will play tonight. Kentucky substitutes Jimmy O'Brien and rookie Ron Thomas also have hurt Carolina on occasion.

First Quarter May Be Decisive In East

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — "The first quarter could well decide the game," says Carolina Cougar guard Mack Calvin of tonight's game with the Kentucky Colonels for the ABA East Division championship.

"The team that gains control early may be the winner in a game with this much pressure."

For the Cougars to assume early command, they must not experience another shooting drought such as they did Saturday night when the Colonels evened the American Basketball Association series at 3-3 with a 119-100 rout in Louisville.

"I didn't have any complaints with our shot selection," said Cougar Coach Larry Brown. We just missed too many easy ones."

Jim Ray Hart Sparks Yankee Victory

By HERSCHEL NISSENON
Associated Press Sports Writer
The New York Yankees used a Hart transplant and a would-be doctor to cure some of their ills Monday night.
Designated hitter Jim Ray

Hart continued his sensational hitting by driving in two runs with a single and double and rookie George "Doc" Medich, with relief help from old preacher Lindy McDaniel, posted his first major league victory as the Yankees ended a two-year skein of seven consecutive losses to Milwaukee by defeating the Brewers 5-2.

In the only other American League game, the California Angels whipped the Oakland A's 4-0 while the Houston Astros blanked the San Diego Padres 2-0 in the only National League action.

Still on a medical kick, the Astros ran their winning streak to five in a row, all since Manager Leo Durocher was confined to a Houston hospital with an inflammation of the colon. Dave Roberts and Jim York scattered eight hits and Doug Rader hit a two-run homer in the second inning. Loser Bill Greif had not allowed a run in 15 innings this season when he walked Jim Wynn with one out in the second and Rader, batting only .177, hammered his home run about halfway up the mezzanine section in left field.

The game was spiced by an apparent brushback duel between Roberts and Greif in the fifth inning. Members of both teams poured onto the field but no punches were thrown.

Rudy May pitched a five-hitter and Frank Robinson delivered a two-run single to lead the Angels over the floundering world champion A's.

Warriors Win To Stay Alive

OAKLAND (AP) — The Golden State Warriors had nowhere to hide and a lot of pride to regain.

game scheduled Wednesday night in Boston.
In the American Basketball Association, Kentucky and Carolina are tied 3-3 going into tonight's game in Greensboro, N.C. The winner will face Western champion, Indiana, for the league champions.

"We couldn't end it in humiliation," said Cazzie Russell, the man most responsible for the Warriors' being alive today in their National Basketball Association playoff series with Los Angeles.

No NBA team ever has been down 3-0 and rebounded to win a playoff series.
"It sounds silly, but we're still in it," said Russell. "We may make history."

Russell, playing only 28 minutes, scored 33 points Monday night as the Warriors registered a 117-109 victory over the Lakers, the team that beat them 126-70 two nights earlier to take a 3-0 lead in the best-of-7 Western Conference championship series.

While Medich, a third-year medical student at the University of Pittsburgh, is studying toward a career in orthopedics, Hart is taking a cram course in AL pitchers.

The upset at the Oakland Coliseum Arena came before many of the same home fans who walked out on the Warriors during Saturday night's game.

"In cold weather like this I get stiff not playing in the field," he said, "but I'm able to concentrate more on hitting. Being new to the league, it's helped me to be able to sit in the dugout and study the pitchers to learn something about them. It's helped my concentration on hitting, and maybe this (the designated hitter) rule can help me last three or four more years. I don't have to worry about fielding ground balls. I would like to play, naturally, but it would be kind of tough here with a hell of a player like (Graig) Nettles at third."

"We didn't want to be embarrassed again," said center Nate Thurmond, who scored 23 points and outbounded the Lakers' Wilt Chamberlain, 18-16.

Medich, a tall 24-year-old right-hander, held the Brewers to one hit and struck out six until the sixth inning, when Pedro Garcia and Bob Coluccio tagged him for solo homers. The 37-year-old McDaniel a lay

Walton Likes To Feel Good

By DAN BERGER
Associated Press Sports Writer
SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — College basketball's Player of the Year, called an enigma by some and a will o' the wisp by others, plays life by ear and sums his personal philosophy by saying:

"I like to do things that make me feel good."
Thus Bill Walton plays the game of basketball. He hasn't lost a game since he was a junior in high school, and he says he'll be back at UCLA next season in an attempt to extend the Bruins' all-time winning streak by 30 more games, to 105.

Walton has been criticized for his aloofness to the public and news media, for his anti-war stand—he was arrested for leading a demonstration on campus—and for his failure to compete on the 1972 U.S. Olympic team.

Expected to be chosen early in the NBA's annual grab-bag of college talent, whenever it is held, are guards Doug Collins, of Illinois State and Ernie DiGregorio of Providence; forward Ed Ratleff of Long Beach State and centers Jim Brewer of Minnesota and Kermit Washington of American University.

But he will play in an upcoming U.S.-Russian basketball series, and in an exclusive interview, he was at ease.

DiGregorio is a small, quick backcourtman in the Nate Archibald mold who was particularly impressive in the National Collegiate Athletic Association post-season tournament. Ratleff is a smooth 6-foot-6 athlete who could make it in the pros at either guard or forward.

Friendly and chatting without hesitation, he said the main reason he's been unavailable to the news media is because he feels questions directed at him after games try to make it seem that UCLA is a one-man team.

Brewer and Washington are strong rebounders who may be shifted to forward by the pros. Brewer averaged 13 points and 11 rebounds in the disciplined offense used by Minnesota Coach Bill Musselman, while Washington is one of only a handful of players ever to average 20 points and 20 rebounds for each game of their college careers.

"One thing that I've been saying all along, but it never seems to get into print," he

Richmond Case To Be Decided

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The question of whether court-ordered school integration must stop at city limits will be decided by the Supreme Court in a case that will influence desegregation efforts in predominantly black central cities ringed by white suburbs.

The specific case involves Richmond, Va., and was argued before the court Monday. Attorneys for the NAACP Legal Defense Fund and the Richmond school board claimed that schools will continue to reflect residential segregation if political boundaries block urban-suburban school consolidation.

The Virginia state school board and the federal government took the position that city and county lines should not be erased solely to bring more white pupils into largely black schools.

They argued that school officials cannot be blamed for the existence of segregated black and white neighborhoods.

Similar lawsuits are pending for 11 other U.S. cities.

Attorneys for the Richmond school board and the NAACP legal branch are asking the Supreme Court to overturn a U.S. Circuit Court ruling holding that the courts have no authority to sweep students across political boundaries in order to integrate schools.

The Circuit Court order struck down Dist. Judge Robert H. Merhige's ruling that Richmond schools should be consolidated with those of suburban Henrico County to the north and Chesterfield County to the south.

The pupil populations of the two counties are at least 90 percent white, while the Richmond pupil population is 70 percent black, according to the city school board.

The Merhige plan would require busing some 78,000 pupils across city and county lines, but both sides claimed in court arguments that busing is not the central issue.

The only legal issue, said NAACP lawyer William T. Coleman, is whether political boundaries can be breached.

They were breached in the past to promote segregation. said city school board lawyer George Little. "Thousands of blacks were involuntarily shoved across the so-called sacred line for the sole purpose of perpetuating segregation," he declared.

Deliberate, Systematic Truce Violations Cited

NEW YORK (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger has accused the North Vietnamese of systematically violating important clauses of the Vietnam cease-fire agreement, including commitments to withdraw troops from Cambodia and Laos.

appointed with the compliance by the North Vietnamese," President Nixon's foreign policy adviser told the annual Associated Press membership meeting Monday.

"The profound problem we face as a nation today is whether we should sign an agreement and, when it is totally violated, act as if the signature ... should simply be treated as irrelevant," he said.

Kissinger discussed East-West relations, Southeast Asia and the Watergate case during a question and answer session following a major policy address on plans by the United States to forge a new Atlantic charter with its European allies.

On the American government's dissatisfaction with North Vietnam, Kissinger said the Communists also have failed to abide by an unconditional commitment not to introduce troops or supplies into South Vietnam.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers, speaking later to an awards dinner of the Overseas

Press Club, said a lower level of activity has been reported in Indochina during the past few days.

Asked about the continuation of U.S. bombing in Cambodia and Laos, Kissinger replied: "If we are criticized for attempting to maintain the agreement by force and pressed not to provide the economic incentives which might be another motive for keeping the agreement, then we should ask ourselves where we will be if that was a very solemn agreement, which we made very major concessions, is simply disregarded."

Kissinger said the Watergate matter could have foreign policy ramifications, and he expressed confidence that President Nixon would insist on full disclosure of the facts.

On a lighter note, he was asked: "Where were you the night of Watergate?" His reply was: "I usually have excellent alibis for my evenings," and laughter rippled through the audience of 1,300.

Little said the three school systems should be consolidated as a "feasible alternative" to the "stark reality of black and white schools" despite recent implementation of a desegregation plan involving only the city of Richmond.

gin with, except for the question of recognition," Edwards said.

Robeson County's population of about 85,000 is split about equally among whites, Indians and blacks, but white voters have controlled elections. Brooks and other members of the minority groups contend they do not have adequate representation on county boards, such as those controlling public schools and the welfare system.

Brooks formed a coalition with black civil rights organizer Golden Frinks earlier this month for a march to Raleigh that ended Friday night when they met with the North Carolina Commission on Indian Affairs.

The commission has agreed to meet in Robeson County May 28, and to help Brooks and his followers win recognition as Tuscaroras. Brooks contends recognition will entitle his followers to federal aid for Indians and restore their cultural heritage.

Tuscarora Voter Drive Is Pushed

PEMBROKE, N.C. (AP)—Reversing his policy, Tuscarora Indian leader Howard Brooks called Monday for a voter registration drive aimed at adding 5,000 to 10,000 black and Indian voters to Robeson County's election books.

Brooks, who has been leading a drive for local reform and federal recognition of his followers, said in a statement that he intends "to see this county become a peoples' county, not one controlled and run by a handful of rich individuals and the people."

"If we can get the Indian people and our black brothers and sisters into a coalition with common goals, we can control the politics of this county...With the help of the grass roots people and interested people who don't live here, we can bring justice and fairness back to Robeson County," Brooks said.

In the past Brooks has repeatedly rejected any proposals that his movement seek its goals through the political process.

"Politics has no place here, not for my people. We will go after our goals through other ways, taking each one step by step," Brooks said in an interview in mid-March.

Brooks could not be contacted Monday but his white press aide, Joe Edwards, said the voter registration drive was begun as a matter of expediency.

"I think the reason is that the chief has seen that, by putting together the blacks and the Indians, he can accomplish more quickly exactly the same goals he was out to accomplish to be-

Child Bride Taken Away

JOLIET, Ill. (AP)—A 12-year-old girl arrested in Asheville, N.C., with a 37-year-old art instructor who wanted to marry her has been taken from the custody of her parents.

So have the two other children of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Flynn.

The parents and the art instructor, Harold Miller, who gave the Flynn's $26,000, are to be arraigned Wednesday on charges of conspiracy to participate in child abandonment.

Miller and Rita Jackie Flynn reportedly were on their way to South Carolina to get married when they were arrested in an Asheville motel two months ago.

During the child custody hearing Monday, defense attorneys presented a federal gift tax return. They said the return showed that Miller gave the money to the Flynn's "in appreciation for allowing him to marry their daughter," and not as a purchase price.

'Handful' Are Still Addicts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon has released results of a government-sponsored study that dispute what a spokesman called "the frightening estimates" that up to 200,000 Vietnam enlisted returnees are drug addicts.

Dr. Richard S. Wilbur, the Defense Department's health chief, said Monday a projection of results from a sample of about 900 former soldiers indicates that only between 2,000 and 3,000 Army returnees who served in Vietnam during the 1970-71 heroin epidemic still are dependent on drugs.

The health official said the study was limited to Army enlisted men because the problem was concentrated among that group. Wilbur said the figures represent 1.3 percent of the returnees, about the same as the 1.2 percent rate of drug abusers identified before entering military service.

The study, carried out by the Washington University Medical School, was based on interviews of 451 young men selected at random from among the September 1971 Army returnees and 469 who had been identified as users before leaving Vietnam the same month.

International Studies Symposium Set In May

By LEOW JENKINS
Chancellor
East Carolina University

The third in a series of Spring symposia on international studies at East Carolina University has been scheduled for early May and will feature a salute to ECU's foreign students and their native lands.

The Greenville community is cooperating with the university, the ECU Office of International Education and the students themselves in arranging an international bazaar and festival to be staged at a downtown Greenville church.

Pilkyu Kim of Korea, student representative of the Afro-Asian Symposium Studies committee, reports that the bazaar program will include short talks on international cooperation, a costume show featuring native dress, folk dances, songs and music, and a display of foods prepared by students using recipes of their homeland.

Between 40 and 50 foreign students will be involved in this part of the two-day symposium.

Other features being planned include visits and addresses by diplomats and representatives of a number of foreign embassies and other overseas interests, all stressing international cooperation, exchange and better understanding.

These programs, seeking community involvement, are under the overall sponsorship of the North Carolina Commission on International Cooperation.

This commission, of which I am chairman, is seeking to promote international cooperation through a statewide series of educational programs. It has awarded a number of financial grants to sponsoring groups for programs of this type. Although it is still in the early stages we are beginning to see positive results. For example, there was side interest and good participation in an earlier European Studies symposium conducted at East Carolina.

Since attaining university status by act of the legislature five years ago, East Carolina University has experienced a substantial growth in grants awarded for research, teaching and training programs. These range into the million of dollars.

The ECU Office of Sponsored Programs under the directorship of Dr. James L. White gave us a recent report showing that just since March 1 of this year twelve applications for pure research and educational research programs have been submitted from this institution, seeking a total of $574,808 in funds.

In the past we have had approximately 70 per cent of research grant applications approved.

Recent grant proposals were submitted for research, teaching and training programs in such fields as Allied Health, Business, Health and Physical Education, Library service, Music, Philosophy, Physics, Psychology and Sociology and Anthropology.

The university's annual Alumni Day featuring a luncheon and a meeting of the Alumni Association has been scheduled for Saturday, May 26.

Commencement is the next day. ECU alumni will hold class reunions going back as far as the class of 1913. Other reunions will be the classes of 1918, 1923, 1928, 1933, 1938, 1943, 1948, 1953, 1958, 1963 and 1968. This of course, is every fifth year since 1913.

business, on every street and across the countryside, is dependent upon this vast communication network, available to all our people the year round, at a cost everyone can afford."

One of the principal aims of Postal Week, Klassen explained in his special message, will be to promote the "informed understanding, cooperation, support and constructive suggestions of every citizen and community" for the benefit of the U. S. Postal Service, as well as call attention to the daily public services performed by postal employees.

Mrs. Peaden noted that all postal customers visiting the Falkland Post Office on April 30 will be given free souvenir envelopes printed with special cachets so long as a limited supply lasts.

If customers desire they may purchase First Day Covers featuring the 10 eight cent stamps, for the 80 cents face value of the stamps.

Free refreshments will be served to the local customers between the hours of 8:30 and 12:30.

TV Play Is For Mature Adults

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — We suggest you make certain the kids aren't with you tonight if you watch "The Lie" on CBS. And if frankness about adultery offends you, skip "The Lie" and find another channel.

This should be ample warning to viewers who might otherwise be caught unawares by this powerfully adult, original drama written by Ingmar Bergman, the Swedish film director and writer.

For those unfamiliar with Bergman, he may best be described as a brooding man who makes generally gloomy movies that cause critics to go bananas and leap about crying, "How profound! How profound!"

Well, critics have their own thing going. But they'd be right in the case of this 97-minute morality play, the first Bergman television effort ever broadcast on an American network.

It concerns the outwardly firm, inwardly collapsing marriage of a successful American architect and his wife, a professor of Romance languages. He's 40; she's 34; they've been married 11 years, have two kids and definitely are in the upper tax bracket.

But they currently sleep in separate bedrooms, and you can bet your bippy this means trouble. How much trouble we don't really see until about 30 minutes into the show.

"The Lie" starts off slowly, chronicling the setbacks of the architect, played by George Segal, at work and the personal travail of his wife, Shirley Knight Hopkins.

CBS wisely gives a warning that the play "deals with a mature subject in a mature manner."

We learn that she has been having an affair for the past eight years with an old boyfriend, played by Robert Culp, and that she comes alive only while in his arms.

And into his arms and bed she goes in a scene in which there is no frontal nudity, only a bare back on her part and a bare chest on his. The scene isn't a gratuitous shocker, but a valid, integral part of the play.

He finally has a one-night affair with a young nurse. When he confesses his guilt to his wife, she is outraged, partly because her lover since has left her to be with his wife. She angrily confesses her affair; he gets outraged and proceeds to beat the daylights out of her. The realism in this scene, which comes at the end, definitely is not for anyone with a weak stomach.

It's a brilliant show, with excellent production and fine acting throughout. When it ends, you'll probably feel as if you've undergone one of the most strenuous emotional experiences of your life.

Bill Requires A Signature

RALEIGH (AP)—Legislation forbidding daily newspapers from printing unsigned editorials has been introduced in the North Carolina General Assembly.

Sen. Herman Moore, a Democrat from Charlotte introduced the bill Monday night, and said the public had a right to know who was writing the editorials they read in their newspapers.

Moore's bill would make it a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of $100-500 to publish an unsigned editorial.

"Television and radio commentators are identified," he said. "I think newspaper readers should know who is writing the editorials so they can become familiar with the philosophies of the various editorialists."

Thesis Underlines Non-Negative Side

A thesis with emphasis on the non-negative aspects of busing school students has been developed by Mrs. Jean Huryn of New Bern, a graduate student in Sociology at East Carolina University.

The research thesis was based on extensive studies of the effects on busing of 788 white students and 687 black students in a predominantly rural eastern North Carolina school system.

The paper, recently read at the Alpha Kappa Delta national meeting in Richmond, received considerable attention in dealing with new aspects of a currently controversial topic. Mrs. Huryn's research asserts "The correlation of busing distance to academic achievement did not produce a significant negative correlation."

One surprising find the candidate for a master's degree says "is unexplainable at the present time" is the existence of "a positive relationship of academic achievement" in arithmetic.

Mrs. Huryn cited one teacher's suggestion that "maybe riding long enough on the bus gives the students a chance to let off steam so they can pay attention when they are in the classroom."

Mrs. Huryn's advisor is Yoon Hough Kim, associate professor of Sociology, ECU. He recently presented a paper "Social distance in a non-Western culture," at the 36th annual meeting of Southern Sociological Society in Atlanta.

Plan 'Postal Week' Observance Events

FALKLAND—Postmaster Katie Peaden announced plans today for "Postal Week" to be celebrated here April 29 through May 5.

On Monday, April 30, the Falkland Post Office will highlight the observance with activities which will dramatize the important roles performed by postal people as they move the mails.

In designating Postal Week, Postmaster General Klassen said, in part:

"Every community in the United States is linked to the nation and the world by our national mail service. The welfare of every citizen, every

Cites Danger Of Woodland Fires

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina Forest Service says there is an imminent danger of wildfires in the state's woodlands despite the heavy rains of the winter and spring.

A Forest Service spokesman said Monday that warm, gusty winds over the past ten days have dried many forests to the kindling point, especially in the eastern part of the state.

He said there have been a few small and scattered fires reported.

Now, for the first time ever, you can get a mortgage commitment before you even look for a home.

We're not saying we were the first to come up with the idea. No, anyone who's ever looked for a house has wished such a thing existed.

What we're saying is that we're the first financial institution around here with the courage to actually do it.

Give you a mortgage ahead of time.

That mortgage, The Early Mortgage, is our commitment on paper to reserve a certain sum for you. You don't have to use all the money. You don't even have to use any. But for three months, the term of The Early Mortgage, you have the certainty that if you need that money to buy a house, it's going to be there.

And, if interest rates should go up during that period, you are not affected at all. You get the exact rate of interest that we agreed upon when we first approved your Early Mortgage.

When you do find a house you want, we'll look it over and make sure it justifies your investment. That works for you, and is something we have to do on every mortgage in any case. And there'll still be "closing costs." We haven't found a way to do away with them yet. But that's about it.

House hunting just became a lot simpler. 🏠

The Early Mortgage. Only from First Federal.
