Says Israel Is Prepared For New War

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Syria was reported to have placed its army on special alert Saturday, and Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir said Israel is prepared for a new war in the Middle East.

Syrian President Hafez Assad put the army on special alert because of fears that an Israeli attack may be imminent, said press reports in the Lebanese capital of Beirut. They said Assad plans to fly to Cairo no later than Monday for urgent consultations with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

In Damascus, the Syrian capital, the government newspaper Al Thawra said there might be "savage attacks" by the Israelis on both the Syrian and Egyptian fronts within the next few months. It said the attacks would be aimed at liquidating the Arab powers which the United States considered "obstacles to a peaceful settlement."

Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir, in an interview on the armed forces radio, said Israel is prepared for a resumption of hostilities. She said another Mideast war "might well come about" because Sadat is "in distress."

"He is in distress and history can testify that Arab leaders have been in distress on more than one occasion in the past. The simplest thing is go to war," Mrs. Meir said in an interview marking her 75th birthday May 3 and Israel's 25th anniversary May 7.

The French-language Beirut newspaper L'Orient-Le Jour cited Arab diplomatic sources as saying the Syrian government has received "information indicating that Israeli aggression is imminent."

It noted that Israel's radio had been playing up the capture of five Arab guerrillas in the occupied Golan Heights Thursday and claiming the infiltration was carried out "with the complete agreement of Damascus authorities."

Israel has warned it would hold Arab governments responsible for guerrilla operations from their territory and has responded in the past with retaliatory strikes. Guerrilla attacks against Israelis abroad also have drawn Israeli military reprisals.

2 Million Pounds Of Bombs Explode In Rail Yard

By CARLINGRAM

ROSEVILLE, Calif. (UPI)

— A string of railroad boxcars carrying nearly two million pounds of bombs exploded one after another Saturday in a series of blasts felt 100 miles away, injuring dozens of persons and forcing the evacuation of up to 50,000 persons from their homes.

Fire engulfed the ammunition cars and sent vast clouds of smoke into the air as the bombs went off with the sounds of a battlefield for more than five hours from just after 8 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

The century-old State Capitol at Sacramento, 15 miles from the disaster scene, was closed to tourists because authorities feared its fragile dome may have been weakened by the shock waves.

As the bombs exploded, everything within a quarter of a mile of the boxcars was leveled, a spokesman for the State Office of Emergency Services said. A sheriff said the railroad yard where the blasts occurred looked as if it might have been struck by a hydrogen bomb.

Fragments of hot metal flew through the air as the blasts shattered windows a mile from the explosion site in a major railroad switching yard.

Hospitals in the area reported treating at least 30 persons, including two railroad employees and a sheriff's deputy. Several were admitted with serious injuries. Others in the area suffered injuries too slight for hospital treatment.

Despite the large number of injuries, no deaths were reported. Most of those hurt were hit by flying glass from shattered windows.

With the explosions continuing for hours, U.S. Forest Service bombers were called in to drop fire retardant chemicals on the giant fire 15 miles northeast of the state capital of Sacramento, which felt the shock waves of the blasts.

The first explosion in the Southern Pacific railroad yards occurred shortly after 8 a.m. in a string of 21 cars that only an hour earlier had arrived as part of a 102-car train. The ammunition cars carried a total of 7,056 bombs, each weighing 250 pounds, bound for Port Chicago, Calif., near San Francisco, for shipment to the Far East.

"The eye of the disaster looks like a hydrogen bomb might have been dropped on it," Sacramento County Sheriff Dwane Lowe told newsmen after completing a helicopter flight over the area.

"It would be foolish for any one to go in there to do anything."

He said it might take until Sunday before firefighters could get into the devastated freight yards.

A spokesman for the Hawthorne, Nev., Naval Depot where the cars were loaded, said the bombs, called Mark 81s, are composed of TNT mixed with aluminum powder. He added that they could not be easily detonated, but a spokesman for the Southern Pacific said fire from spontaneous combustion might have set off the blasts.

A yardmaster noticed smoke at the switching point, the largest in the Southern Pacific system, and called the fire department. The blasts began before the firemen could reach the scene.

Mark Goulard, 25, a veteran of fighting in Vietnam, snapped out of a sound sleep Saturday morning, hearing himself shouting, "Hit the floor."

"I was out of that bed in half a second," said Goulard after the initial blast from an exploding ammunition train rocked his nearby home. "I figured it wasn't no firecracker. The first thing I heard was, 'Hit the floor.'"

"We were there about two minutes and everybody hightailed it out," he said as blasts continued to ring from the 21-car, bomb-laden train.

Dean Mostad, 18, who lives about six miles from the Southern Pacific freight depot where the explosions occurred, said he and a friend drove within 300 yards of the flames.

He said shrapnel was whizzing through the air "all the time" with jagged, two-foot chunks of the smoldering metal landing only 10 feet from him.

A Department of Defense disaster relief command post was set up in a park two miles from the disaster site. Three Army helicopters, two from the Coast Guard and three from the Navy aided in battling the flames.

Aid was sent in from McClellan Air Force Base near Sacramento, Travis Air Force Base, Hamilton Air Force Base, Crissy Field in San Francisco and the Alameda Naval Air Station.

The state Office of Emergency Services said the total of persons removed from their homes to safer areas might reach 50,000.

'Carelessness'

William A. Dees Jr., chairman of the University of North Carolina Board of Governors, has called the leak of the report of the Liaison Committee on Medical Education "carelessness" in a letter to the Board, the Daily Reflector learned Saturday.

Dees expressed deep disappointment that the report was revealed to a Raleigh newspaper. He said that "copies of the report were released to members of the Board with the request that the document be treated as confidential until the document was discussed at a public meeting of the Board."

Dees, in his letter dated April 27, said that he and UNC President William C. Friday "refused to comment on the report except to say that the report was being studied by the parties concerned and the members of the Board, and the report would be released when the Board was prepared to take action on the recommendations advanced by the Committee."

A copy of the report was furnished to a staff member of the Attorney General to determine whether or not it was a public document. Dees said, "I was advised by his staff that the report was not a public document until the Board was prepared to take some public action as a result of the report."

Dees said he regretted the fact that "the reporter can sometimes badger until the victim releases information to obtain relief from the badgering." He felt it "inconceivable" that any of the 40 people who had copies of the report would "betray the confidence of the Board intentionally."

He said that he could only "speculate that someone has been careless with his confidential communications: I hope that such carelessness will be carefully eliminated in the future."

Dees concluded his letter to the Board by saying "we must be able to share confidential information well in advance of our meetings without fear that such information will be made public."

UNC Med School 'Responsible' For ECU Program

By SUSAN PRICE

Reflector Staff Writer
East Carolina University Chancellor Leo W. Jenkins and University of North Carolina President William C. Friday have agreed that the UNC Medical School must assume "direct responsibility" for the administration of ECU's one year medical school program.

The decision was made during a 90-minute private conference at the UNC General Administration Building in Chapel Hill Friday. The decision concurred with the accreditation report of the Liaison Committee on Medical Education that requires that the dean of the Chapel Hill School have supervision over the ECU program.

The report criticized the existing program as "seriously lacking in acceptable quality in its present form" and suggested that the UNC school have control over the ECU program before its students could be accepted at Chapel Hill.

Jenkins and Friday discussed the accreditation report which was prepared by a liaison committee representing the Association of Medical Colleges and the Council of Medical Education of the American Medical Association.

In a joint statement, Jenkins and Friday said that "every effort will be made to provide full cooperation and assistance as needed to carry forward this program in a spirit of helpfulness and good will."

In the report, the committee renewed the UNC medical school's accreditation for seven more years and said the school "must either have clear responsibility for and realistic control for quality assurance purposes of the medical education program at ECU or divest itself of the program."

Proposals to implement the agreement will be presented to the Board of Governors May 11.

UNC-Chapel Hill has agreed to hold 20 seats in its second year class for transfers from ECU next fall. Jenkins said that ECU has received 17 applicants for each seat of its new class which is restricted to 20 members.

Jenkins also said the premature release of the committee report and its handling by the press was "pretty shabby treatment." He said of the report that the ECU program was compared too much to the program at Chapel Hill. This was unfair, said Jenkins, because, "we were not compared to any other one year program."

In a statement issued Friday on efforts to expand ECU's medical school, and on the accrediting committee's report on the school, Dr. Jenkins said, "some of the people opposing the medical school program at ECU would make the "Godfather" look like a rover boy.

"Every vicious trick in the book has been used by these people in an effort to discredit, sabotage, and destroy the effort that we have undertaken."

Jenkins said that the "real victims, however, are the people of North Carolina who must go on living with insufficient medical care."

"The people know that the East Carolina Medical School program in its infancy needs nurture and care, as a newborn infant needs nourishment to survive, develop, and grow."

"They know that the program as it now exists cannot be compared with long-established, fully developed medical schools such as that at Chapel Hill. It must be strengthened and given the resources, atmosphere and the encouragement in which to grow and develop."

Jenkins also said that "the Liaison Report, which was to have been considered and discussed by the Board of Governors, before being made subject to misleading headlines and critical interpretation in the press, points out that despite difficulties, East Carolina has a good program in the embryonic state. The report recognizes, as we do, the need for additional physical facilities and resources—and most importantly—support and a spirit of cooperation in establishing a full four-year medical program."

"This latest report said that our medical students are highly motivated and that the faculty is competent yet they must work in an atmosphere of emotional stress and uncertainty. This we deplore."

"The people pay for medical programs and they suffer when these are insufficient. The time has come for them to insist on a fair shake."

"East Carolina does not seek a medical school for its own glorification. The program has been established at the direction of and through the wisdom of the General Assembly in order to fill an urgent need for more doctors. It is grossly unfair to allow this program to be undercut and sabotaged by those who are selfishly opposed."

The accreditation report specifically said that the Liaison Committee was not involved in the question of whether ECU should have a degree-granting medical school, but it urged the state to make that decision as rapidly as is consistent with a considered judgment.

Friday noted that the UNC Board of Governors has commissioned a study of that issue.

Jenkins said about the agreement, "I want this thing to work...I'm very optimistic this will clear the air."

Stop Bombing

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — U.S. warplanes Saturday abruptly stopped daylight bombing of Cambodian rebel positions on the east bank of the Mekong River opposite Phnom Penh.

The rebels, who already have established fronts south and east of Phnom Penh, opened a new one northwest of the capital by capturing two towns during the day.

Although U.S. Air Force F4 and F111 tactical jets had been raiding the rebel positions daily on the river's east bank and continued to do so as late as Friday night, there were no U.S. planes in evidence over the area during the day Saturday. There was no explanation for the halt in Phnom Penh.

(Military sources in Thailand, from where the American planes fly their Cambodian missions, said the raids on the river's east bank near Phnom Penh had been canceled because they were endangering populated areas. In Washington, however, a Pentagon spokesman said there has been no official change in U.S. bombing policy in Cambodia.)

There was no indication here that the United States had cut back bombing operations elsewhere in the country. Military sources said B52 heavy bombers struck Friday night and early Saturday against rebel positions 11 miles south of Phnom Penh, and the tactical jets conducted raids around the encircled provincial capital of Takeo, 55 miles south of Phnom Penh.

On the combat fronts, military sources said the rebels had become active about 15 miles northwest of the capital where they captured the towns of Ang Talek and Thmat Pong.

Tax Bill Could Provide Relief For Some

By STUART SAVAGE

Reflector Staff Writer

If Pitt Sen. Vernon White's bill, calling for tax relief for some farm-land owners in rapid development areas is approved by the General Assembly — and the Senate has already given its approval — a number of land owners in Pitt and other counties across the state will see a marked reduction in their ad valorem tax bill.

On the other hand, it is possible that others taxes might be a bit higher in order to make up for the difference in revenue lost through the tax-relief measure.

To see how much effect the passage of White's measure would have on the tax values of land, county officials here were asked to compare values of several parcels — selected at random — figured as to their true value (as now required by State law) and as figured according to their current use — and assuming the property would qualify for the special classification under the White proposal.

The current tract located in Pactolus township near the appraised value (tax value is one-half the appraised value) of one 42.29 acres new Eastern bypass but not adjoining that road, is listed as $12,690, while its approximate value as woods land under the special classification would be about $4,230. Another tract in Pactolus Township on the new road — 41.33 acres — is valued at $41,530 as opposed to the "farm" value of $19,680.

Values for a 32 acre tract on U. S. 264 just West of Greenville were set at $32,000 and $15,245, while a 30.93 acre tract within the city limits west of U. S. 264 by-pass, between Greenville and Brook Valley, is appraised at $219,510 and $15,430.

Appraised value and projected "farm" valuation for a 211.60 acre tract outside the city limits near the U. S. 264 by-pass — East Tenth Street intersection totaled $349,240 and $64,520; while similar values for a 22.83 acre tract within the city nearby amounted to $82,640 and $11,760.

Two other parcels owned by the same individual and side-by-side (but listed separately) vary greatly in value — both before and after being placed in the special classification.

A 12.77 acre tract fronting on the U. S. 264 by-pass, between Evans Street and N. C. 11 is currently appraised at $222,080 while "farm" value for the property is $6,560. next to this, but separated from the by-pass by the first parcel, is a 57.25 acre tract valued at $85,250 but with a "farm" value of $24,340.

Two other tracts checked at random include a 24 acre plot on Memorial Drive valued at $240,000 now, but with a "farm" price of $12,360 and a 48.20 acre site near Red Banks Church with an appraised value of $54,920 but with a projected "farm" value of $12,785. White's bill, introduced in the Senate in mid-March and signed by a number of other legislators, is designed to ease the tax burden on farm property located in urban or other areas where rapid development is occurring.

Currently, all property, under state law, has to be listed for tax purposes at its true value in money. And in many cases, the value of woods land or land used for farming is increased by commercial or residential developments near-by.

In some instances, according to White, owners of such property are forced to cease farming operations and sell their property because of the increased tax burden.

Under White's bill, such property would be treated as a special classification which would tend to "alleviate pressures which force the conversion of such real estate to more intensive uses and which are attributable in part to the assessment of such real estate at values incompatible with its use and preservation for agricultural, horticultural, forest or open space purposes."

Under the bill, owners of such property would be required to make application to have their land included in the special classification which would be "taxed according to its current use . . . regardless of its location within the boundaries of the local taxing unit," rather than on its true market value.

The measure also provides that property which qualifies under the bill be appraised or valued for both agricultural use and its true value in money for other uses.

Property so classified, the bill provides, shall be subject to additional taxes (deferred taxes) if the use and its true value in money for other uses.

Property so classified, the bill provides, shall be subject to additional taxes.

Under the plan, should such farm land be developed or sold for development during a year, owners of the parcel or tract would be required to pay an amount equal to the taxes for the current and two tax years immediately preceding — based on the normal valuation of the property. Owners would also pay interest on two prior years taxes, not to exceed seven per cent per annum.

An amendment approved by the Senate provides that land qualifying as "open spaces" shall be subject to taxes for "the year of change plus the six years immediately preceding."

In addition, another amendment requires that in order for a parcel to qualify for the special classification, it must contain a minimum of five acres or have produced gross sales of agricultural or horticultural products averaging $500 per year for each of the three years immediately preceding the tax year at issue. In addition, the amendment would require forest land, unless included as a contiguous part of land which otherwise qualifies, to consist of a minimum of 20 acres.

'Open House' At Greenville Post Office Tomorrow

Post Office Week will be observed both locally and nationally this week, according to Postmaster Lloyd Mills.

Highlighting the local activities will be open house at the Greenville Post Office Monday from 8 a.m. until 11 a.m.

Two local stamp collectors, Mrs. Elizabeth Savage and Mrs. L. A. Stroud, will have their stamp collections on display in the main lobby of the post office.

Refreshments will be served during the open house hours. Those attending the open house Monday morning will be able to see the postal employees at work.

Mayor S. Eugene West signed a proclamation stating that April 29-May 5 would be observed as Postal Week on the local level, as well as on both the state and national levels.

Mills has served as postmaster of the local facility since March 29, 1971. Prior to that time, he was officer-in-charge for about nine months. He has been employed by the Greenville Post Office for 27 years.

According to Mills, the observance is being held to honor postal employees as well as the observance of new commemorative stamps that will go on sale Monday.

Free envelopes will be offered to those attending. Also available for purchase will be first issue stamps for 80 cents.

All postal employees will be presented souvenir mementoes.

"We will join the nation's other 31,000 post offices in issuing 10 special stamps honoring postal employees," Mills said. "Ten new postal people stamps will be placed on sale Monday in conjunction with the observance.

"This week is an appropriate occasion for recognition of the vital responsibilities assigned to the mail service and a valid time to take stock of the challenges which must be jointly met by postal people and by the millions of citizens throughout America who depend upon the mail as an essential part of their personal and business lives," Mills explained.

The present postal facility, occupied in August, 1969, contains 26,500 square feet of space. The facility provides 40 off-street parking spaces for patrons as well as ample off-street parking for postal employees and mail vehicles.

New equipment in the building includes a self-service postal unit, bill change, and a scale for weighing packages. There are 1,350 mail boxes for patrons.

The local post office has 75 employees which amounts to 712 years of experience, according to Mills.

The rural route mileage per day is 511 miles and the number of pieces of mail delivered daily averages 65,000.

Revenue for the 1972 fiscal year totaled $1,012,422. A total of 65,000 people were served over a period of the last three years, including rural and city deliveries.

Watergate Poses Grave Problems For Pres. Nixon

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL, Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon was alone in the seclusion of his mountaintop retreat today, apparently to chart a course through the grave problems the Watergate revelations are bringing his administration.

He made the short-notice flight to Camp David, Md., late Friday a few hours after naming a temporary successor to L. Patrick Gray III, who resigned under fire as head of the FBI.

His embattled aides, domestic adviser John Ehrlichman and chief of staff H. R. Haldeman—frequent companion on such problem-solving trips—remained behind amidst reports they are fighting for their jobs.

In a freakish turn, the Watergate case threatened to disrupt the Pentagon Papers' trial of Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo in Los Angeles, with the disclosure by the Justice Department that it had received a report that two Watergate conspirators burglarized the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist for his files.

The appointment of William J. Ruckelshaus to serve as acting head of the FBI until a permanent successor can be found climaxed a day that saw these developments in the Watergate affair:

—Gray, the acting FBI director who had already withdrawn his nomination for permanent chief, quit "to preserve in both image and fact the reputation, the integrity and the effectiveness of the FBI." The resignation followed disclosure that he destroyed documents from the safe of convicted Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt.

—Ehrlichman admitted being present when the documents were handed to Gray, but denied he ordered their destruction.

—Ehrlichman also acknowledged that he met with representatives of financier Robert L. Vesco, who contributed $200,000 to the Nixon re-election campaign. But he said he took steps to keep Vesco associates from claiming White House support for a Lebanese bank deal.

—The secretary of commerce accepted "with regrets" the sudden resignation of Jeb Stuart Magruder, former deputy director of the Nixon campaign, who has become a central character in the Watergate probe.

Haldeman and Ehrlichman were along on the President's publicized trip Friday with Sen. John C. Stennis over the flood area in west Mississippi. Reporters asked to meet with them but they refused.

For the weekend the President was without his advisors in the Catoctin Mountains, a favorite retreat in times of crisis. He canceled a scheduled Saturday meeting with his economic advisers.

The New York Times reported that White House counsel John Dean III has told federal prosecutors he will not testify on alleged wrongdoing by Haldeman and Ehrlichman without being granted immunity from further prosecution.

The prosecutors and Dean were not reached for comment.

The Times, quoting associates, also said that Ehrlichman and Haldeman's battle to retain their positions has delayed the President's decision on what steps to take.

In a broadcast interview in Topeka, Kan., Sen. Robert F. Dole said the two aides should resign because of the embarrassment to the President and his administration. The former Republican National Committee chairman was one of many GOP congressmen clamoring for a quick resolution of the widening scandal.

In announcing his resignation, Gray called attention to "serious allegations concerning certain acts of my own during the ongoing Watergate investigation (that) are now a matter of public record."

Earlier, his homestate senator and friend, Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn., said Gray told him he destroyed two files given him by Dean and Ehrlichman, without knowing their contents.

Weicker said Gray was told by the men the files "should never see the light of day."

Ehrlichman confirmed the materials were from the White House safe of Hunt, opened after he became implicated in the burglary of Democratic party headquarters in Watergate last June 17, but denied asking their destruction.

Hunt, a CIA agent for 21 years, was given an office in the White House when he was hired as a consultant to work, among other things, on the leak of the Pentagon Papers.

G. Gordon Liddy, also convicted in the Watergate conspiracy, worked with him on some projects.

Their names surfaced in the Ellsberg-Russo trial of the Ellsberg-Russo trial when U.S. District Court Judge Matt Byrne read a memorandum from Watergate prosecutor Earl J. Silbert saying he had "received information that at a date unspecified Gordon Liddy and Howard Hunt burglarized the office of a psychiatrist of Daniel Ellsberg to obtain psychiatrist's files relating to Ellsberg."

In the Vesco matter, Ehrlichman said he told the embassy in Beirut that "there was no White House support for, nor interest, in the Vesco activities." A State Department spokesman, Charles Bray, said records bear out Ehrlichman's statements.

A source told the Washington Post, however, that Ehrlichman promised on at least two occasions, he would help Vesco buy the U.S. government's interest in a scandal-racked bank in Lebanon.

Vesco contributed $200,000 cash to the Nixon re-election drive but the money later was refunded. Vesco is accused of directing the looting of $224 million in assets of four foreign mutual funds. He has denied any wrongdoing.

The General Accounting office Friday referred $13,000 in alleged new campaign finance violations by President Nixon's re-election committee to the Justice Department—strongly recommending that Atty. Gen. Richard Kleindienst act on the report.

The GAO said the Justice Department had not yet responded to its report on March 12 concerning the Vesco contribution.

Acting FBI Director Watergate Victim

By MARGARET SCHERF, Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — L. Patrick Gray III, who resigned Friday as acting head of the FBI, was an early victim of the Watergate case.

His nomination to be permanent FBI chief was withdrawn at his request several weeks ago when Senate confirmation became unlikely because of criticism of the way he had handled the Watergate investigation.

Friday he resigned as acting FBI head after it was revealed that he had destroyed documents from the safe of E. Howard Hunt, a former White House aide convicted of conspiracy in the Watergate bugging.

A White House statement issued shortly after Gray's resignation announcement suggested President Nixon ousted him. He had been acting director for 11 months.

Opposition to his permanent appointment began mounting after his acknowledgement on Feb. 28 that he had given reports of the Watergate investigation to White House counsel John Dean.

Gray said he had supplied Dean with 82 of 186 FBI investigative reports in the case. He did so, he said, at the request of Dean, who was conducting a separate White House inquiry into the bugging.

Gray annoyed the Nixon administration during his confirmation hearings by supplying a summary of the FBI's investigation which said attorneys for the Committee for the Re-election of the President had hampered FBI efforts to question campaign officials.

And the administration countermanded Gray's offer to let members of the Senate inspect FBI reports on the Watergate investigation. At a news conference on March 15, Nixon expressed annoyance that Gray had given "raw files" of an FBI interview with the President's personal attorney, Herbert W. Kalmbach.

Actually, Gray had given the committee a written addition to previous testimony, not the FBI files themselves.

Perhaps the most distressing moment for the administration during Gray's hearing came when Gray acknowledged Dean had "probably lied" in telling FBI investigators he didn't know whether Hunt had an office at the White House.

The White House called that reference to Dean "reprehensible, unfortunate, unfair and incorrect."

On March 20, Gray told the senators he was under new orders from Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst not to discuss the Watergate affair at his confirmation hearings.

Couple To Sail Canoe To Portugal

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — With their 17-foot canoe lashed atop their car, a Utah woman and her male companion are heading for the East Coast and an attempt to sail across the Atlantic.

Mrs. Shirley Haycock, 40, and Bob Geedy, 38, left the relative safety and comfort of their rural Utah homes Friday for the Atlantic shores of North Carolina where they plan to hoist sails for their voyage to Lisbon, Portugal, against the advice of the Coast Guard.

The Coast Guard said it is worried that it may end up searching the ocean for the two and their tiny craft, which the Coast Guard described as "unsuitable."

Mrs. Haycock said she is making the trip as a fund-raising project for senior citizens' centers in rural Utah and to call attention to the needs of the elderly.

The canoe is of fiberglass and plastic foam and will be powered by oars and sails. It's fitted with an outrigger.

The two tested the craft during shakedown cruises on the Great Salt Lake and Mrs. Haycock, originator of the ocean voyage idea, said the craft performed beautifully.

She said they plan on departing the country about May 5 from Wilmington, N.C., instead of Washington, D.C., as originally planned because "from Wilmington I get into the gulf stream much faster."

She said she had written to the Coast Guard asking for maps and charts, but it replied that it wanted to "avoid all action that might be taken as advocating your trip."

"You evidently have no idea of the hundreds of manhunt hours at sea your adventure can precipitate," the Coast Guard replied. It also asked them to reconsider.

Mrs. Haycock, a survival training instructor, said she is not doing anything unique. She said the Pilgrims had a tougher problem with no charts and not knowing what to expect.

A farewell party was held in Price prior to her departure from Utah. She told well-wishers that she had no definite plans when she reached Portugal.

She has promised her two sons, Ray, 15, and Jesse, 13, that she will take them and a group of friends climbing on Mt. Ranier in June.

No Hike In Rate

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina Senate has decided not to allow small loan companies to raise their interest rates.

It did so Friday by amending a bill that would have raised the permissible loan limits, terms, and interest rates. As amended, the loan values and terms may go up, but the interest rates will not.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. William Mills, D-Onslow, had been tentatively approved Thursday. But on Friday, many Senators were absent, and Republicans managed to kill the interest rate hike.

They did it on an amendment by Sen. Hamilton Horton, R-Forsyth. Horton said the bill was a "special interest bill that would enrich the money lenders at the expense of the poor."

As amended the bill raises from $900 to $2,500 the limit on loans and from three years to four years the limit on the term for payment.

But it leaves intact the current interest rate ceiling of 18 per cent on small loans, decreasing to eight per cent on loans of $900 or more.

Adjustments Board Holds Hearings

The record was four requests granted and two denied at the Thursday night meeting of the Greenville Board of Adjustments; with approval given to the one request considered by the joint City-County Board of Adjustments.

All seven agenda items were public hearings.

At the joint meeting, the request for special use permit by Kenneth Morris Lloyd received approval, which will permit Lloyd to place a mobile home on property located on the east end of Church Street outside the city limits. The property is zoned RA-20.

The four request approved by the City Board of Adjustments are:

—A special use permit to A.B.

Stallworth to use a structure located at 2721 Memorial Drive as a fraternity. The property is zoned R-6;

—A special use permit to Perkins Oil Company to install more storage tanks on highway commercial property located at 111 West 14th Street;

—Special use permit to ABC Mobile Homes to place a mobile home as a residence for the Resident Manager on the sales lot located on U.S. 264 bypass. This property is highway commercial zoned.

—A variance to Moore-King-Sullivan Oil Company to construct a convenience store at the intersection of U.S. 264 bypass and N.C. 43. The property in the area is zoned shopping center.

Two denials to request were made at the public hearings.

The first denial was on a request for special use permit sought by Stop-N-Go to install self-service gas pumps at 810 East Tenth Street. A delegation of approximately 25 persons attending the public hearing opposed the request. Denial followed an executive session of the board on this item.

The second denial was on a request for variance asked for by persons from the Greenville Church of Christ. Petitioners were seeking to alter the church located on the southwest corner of Greenville Boulevard Southeast and Emerson Road. The church property is zoned R-9 residential.

Ruckelshaus Named Acting FBI Chief

By ROBERT L. CAMPBELL, Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — No stranger to controversy, William D. Ruckelshaus steps forward in perhaps the Nixon administration's most controversial hour as he becomes acting director of the FBI.

Ruckelshaus, 40, said Friday he would take the job for two months or so until Nixon finds a replacement for L. Patrick Gray III. Gray withdrew his name as permanent successor to J. Edgar Hoover after allegations of impropriety in the FBI probe of the Watergate affair and resigned as acting director after it was reported Friday he destroyed documents from the safe of a convicted Watergate conspirator.

As head of the EPA, the nation's first agency created especially to protect the environment, Ruckelshaus ran the gauntlet between environmentalists demanding protection of natural resources and industry leaders bent on increasing the nation's production.

Virtually all Ruckelshaus' decisions contained the seed of controversy: legal actions filed against city governments for water pollutions; prosecution of, and sometime settlements with, industrial polluters; a ban on the pesticide DDT; and most recently his compromise of 1975 automobile emission standards.

Ruckelshaus ran for the Senate as a Republican from Indiana in 1968. Democrat Birch Bayh whipped him by 72,000 votes.

Some feel the Indiana native, a Princeton University and Harvard Law School graduate, would like to try again. It's in the family.

His father was an Indiana state legislator, and Ruckelshaus followed in his footsteps in 1967, becoming the state House of Representatives' first freshman ever chosen majority leader.

After Ruckelshaus lost to Bayh, Nixon brought him to Washington in 1969 as an assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's Civil Division.

On Dec. 2, 1970, President Nixon created the Environmental Protection Agency by executive reorganization and Ruckelshaus became its first director.

His wife, Jill, is as outspoken as he is. Representing the nonpartisan National Women's Political Caucus last August, she urged the Republican National Convention to support the legalization of abortion, a view directly opposed by President Nixon.

Bill and Jill Ruckelshaus have five children, but the nation's first environmental guardian says population control will become a necessity if the environment is to be saved in the long run.

Commandos Meet

By TIM REITERMAN, Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Commandos who dropped into a North Vietnam prison camp 2½ years ago finally have rendezvoused with the captives who weren't there—for a gala weekend of ticker-tape, tours and talk about the rescue that never was.

"When we heard about your raid (in prison), our morale soared. We were bouncing off the walls," Navy Lt. Gary Thornton of Porterville, Calif., told a Green Beret who took part in the raid on North Vietnam's Son Tay prison camp. The raid came after the American POWs had been moved elsewhere.

"We were so proud of you guys and happy you did it," Thornton said after meeting Thornton Friday night at a cocktail party.

"We looked forward to meeting you that first night," replied Green Beret Sgt. John Rodriguez of Chandler, Ariz. "If you had been there, we would have brought you out, even if it cost lives.

"It's a hell of an experience, meeting this first time. I hope some day we'll see each other again in another port somewhere. I'd say in another war, except I don't think there will be another one," Rodriguez said.

Thornton was one of 66 prisoners of war from Son Tay and Rodriguez one of 85 Air Force and Green Beret raiders who tried to free them. They were united Friday in a parade through downtown San Francisco.

The rescue attempt Nov. 21, 1970, was unsuccessful because the American prisoners had been moved weeks earlier from the camp, located 30 miles from Hanoi.

Texas millionaire H. Ross

Perot picked up the $200,000-plus tab for the get-together. He said it was the least he could do.

"I was impressed by the fact that the prisoners wanted to honor the men who tried to rescue them," he said.

"It's one thing to simply say thanks to the men who made the raid and another to make this weekend possible," the crew-cut computer tycoon added.

"To the men held hostage in North Vietnam, this raid was not a failure," said Air Force Col. Robinson Risner, a former POW and a Korean War jet ace. "I think it was a great success. The North Vietnamese no longer felt impregnable to the long arm of Uncle Sam."

Thousands lined sidewalks as the military men and their wives waved "thank-yous" from motorized converted cable cars in a parade kicking off the affair.

Should Be Settled, And Soon

The Greensboro Daily News is among those big Piedmont newspapers which have opposed the ECU medical school from the day it was first mentioned. At the same time, however, we have found the Greensboro paper to be fair in its news columns as they reported on the long and agonizing climb of the ECU med school.

Last week the Greensboro Daily News was among the first to dig out the story of a medical study team report on the ECU one-year school and its relation with Chapel Hill. As most people know the one year school was created at ECU with the 20 students guaranteed admission to Chapel Hill if they completed the first year satisfactorily.

Some months ago an accrediting group from the Association of American Medical Schools and the American Association of Colleges of Podiatric Medicine slashed the normal accrediting period for Chapel Hill from seven years to two. In a subsequent report, however, which has not been released by the board of governors, the committee agreed to a full seven-year accreditation for both schools provided certain guidelines were met.

The Greensboro Daily News reports that the committee calls for strengthening of the ECU one year medical program by improving faculty, equipment and library facilities;

—Settlement of the controversy over whether a new medical school is needed and should go at ECU;

—Better cooperation between the two university medical schools;

—And continued limiting to 20 students the ECU program so long as it remains one-year.

According to the Greensboro paper, sharp criticism was aimed at Chapel Hill and ECU for not working with each other for the good of the state. Another source says the committee considers the report confidential, although the board of governors could make it public.

The report does appear to contain some plain common sense. Certainly we would agree that the question of development of the ECU school to a full four years should be settled and soon, if our state is not to tear itself apart. And the report makes it clear to the board of governors that the seven-year accreditation can be had for both schools, if the committee's recommendations are followed.

Of course, it would not be amiss to point out that the Chapel Hill School can go its merry way so far as accreditation is concerned once the ECU school is expanded to a full four-year school. Until that happens, however, Chapel Hill and the board of governors are going to have to stop treating the ECU program like a step-child and see that it develops in the state's best interest. That, after all, was the theory behind the creation of the board of governors and if the board can't deal fairly with the ECU medical school, there are many other problems in the far flung state wide system that it will not be able to cope with.

Running Against Time And Tide

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH—Time and a tide of legal objection is running against no-fault auto liability insurance in the North Carolina General Assembly.

BRYAN HAISLIP

The version being debated in the legislature was recommended by the Governor's Study Commission on Auto Liability Insurance and Rates after a two-year study. In the main, it was copied after the Florida plan.

Lawmakers came to the 1973 General Assembly aware that no-fault would be a prime issue. It was a campaign topic in a number of races, and opinion polls indicated a broad segment of the public anxious for it to be given a trial.

Bills Introduced Early

Bills were introduced early in the session in both Senate and House. While the measure moved along, against a tide of argument and opposition, through the Senate insurance committee and eventually to the floor, it was side-tracked to a subcommittee on the House side.

Now that the Senate has done its work, the fate of the legislation is up to the House insurance committee. Rep. Sneed High of Cumberland, the chairman, said it will proceed to the task without a sense of haste.

"A crash program has many pitfalls," he commented. High, an attorney, has expressed serious reservations on the subject of no-fault insurance.

The possibility that the committee will get a bill to the House floor in time for final disposition before the mid-May recess is not good, Rep. High agreed. "It would appear that time is a very critical factor," he added.

Go-Slow Attitude

The go-slow attitude also was reflected by Rep. Gerald Arnold of Harnett, chairman of the subcommittee handling the bill. "We're going to run anything through," he said.

Arnold said he anticipated a number of amendments would be proposed as the House group considers the bill.

Arnold brought before the subcommittee this week Henry Wood, president of the Arkansas Bar Association, as a spokesman in opposition to no-fault. Arkansas recently adopted a modified no-fault concept.

Wood, a former judge and law professor, argued that the no-fault bill contains a Constitutional flaw. He said the restriction on an in-

It reached the halfway point in a stormy legislative voyage early this week, passing the Senate after involved floor debate and a series of modifying amendments.

The outlook is for more rough sailing through the House before the bill makes the home port of final enactment, or sinks beneath the churning waters of opposition.

In fact, the schedule to recess in mid-May makes it almost certain the no-fault issue will go into drydock until the legislature comes back in session next year.

The no-fault concept as a means of treating auto insurance ills has gained wide favor with the public, and has general support from the insurance industry. The major thrust of opposition has come from the legal profession, based on the limits it would set on the right to sue to recover damages.

Court Action Limited

No-fault takes its name from the basic idea that a motorist would collect his claim from his own insurance company, eliminating the necessity for court action to determine who was to blame in an accident.

In other states, the resulting savings in legal fees has been a factor in premium reductions to the public. Whether that would come about in North Carolina is a debated point.

One of the amendments adopted in the Senate would mandate a 10 per cent reduction in auto liability rates.

Almost from the time it was pioneered by Massachusetts a few years ago, no-fault has been under consideration for North Carolina. So far, seven states have adopted the concept in a variety of forms.

SUGAR-COATED REALITY

A euphemism is a figure of speech by which a word or a phrase, more agreeable or less offensive, is substituted for one more accurately descriptive of what is really meant. In other words, it is an attempt to make an unpleasant truth appear pleasant.

We create euphemisms to shield us from disconcerting realities. We can always find something that will spare our feelings, save our faces, allow us to maintain our self-respect no matter how mean and unworthy our conduct may be. People lie and call it fact; they steal and call it shrewdness; they commit adultery and call it love; they act in an unscrupulous manner and call their actions ambition; they lose their tempers and call their uncontrolled passion righteous indignation; they storm at other men's religion and call it fidelity to their own faith.

When we sin, we avert our faces and try to think up some good, plausible euphemism. The ugly fact is too bitter to swallow without a thick sugar coating.

Other Editors Say Into Fonda's Hands

By ALVIN TAYLOR
It would be hard to make out a plausible case for Jane Fonda and her assorted anti-war activities.

She has been shrill instead of persuasive. She has seemed to be more interested in promoting activism for activism's sake alone than in seeking to really win friends and influence people. Some of her pronouncements, especially during and after her quickie trip to North Vietnam, emphasize the value of the advice that one should drink deep from the well of knowledge or not drink at all. Jane Fonda didn't present her statements as what the eager North Vietnamese propagandists had told, but presented them as actual facts.

But, you'll have to admit one thing: Jane Fonda got plenty of publicity. And, if she ever gets back to where she should have stayed all the time, which is the movie industry, all that publicity will help her.

A resolution by the North Carolina legislature denouncing Activist-Actress Fonda would simply be more publicity grist for her mill. The resolution, introduced in the Senate, urges theater owners not to show her movies, encourages not the people of the state to not allow her to appear for speaking engagements, and requests that state agencies not permit her to appear on state property.

This resolution, in addition to feeding the Fonda publicity mill, also makes the people of North Carolina seem to be weak in ability to withstand arguments. For, if we have to be protected from persuasion by Jane Fonda, we are indeed in a dreadful state. Yet, that is just what this resolution sets out to do.

Whether we like what Jane Fonda did and what she said, we will have to admit that the Bill of Rights says she can say what she wants and that she can petition the government for the redress of grievances. She was exercising those rights.

Should we pass a resolution which says in effect, that only those people we agree with should have the protection of the Bill of Rights?

The Private Pension Problems

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — American workers now have at least $137 billion in private pension assets. Of at least 30 million workers covered, 4.7 million are receiving annual benefits that exceed $7.4 billion a year.

These figures all are minimums, because they were compiled in 1970. Growth since then has been swift in many respects, and assets by 1980 are projected to exceed $250 billion. In 1940 they totaled $2.4 billion.

The consequences grow too, not only for workers covered but for the entire economy of the nation. Even in a trillion-dollar economy, a sum in the billions carries great power.

Banks depend upon it, the stock market needs it, corporations rely on it as a source of capital financing. Thousands of bankers, lawyers, trustees and other professionals, and many times that number of ancillary workers, earn their living from it.

And there is still another great consequence, perhaps more potential than real. That is the possibility of fraud, conspiracy or other misuse of funds by those who manage them.

In a comprehensive pension study just released, Bankers Trust describes how "the man on Main Street probably imagines a perpetual series of conspiracies for the control of corporations."

The ingredients of the "plot" are that billions of dollars of stock are held by pension funds, which are managed by banks. Other institutions, like investment trusts and insurers, hold billions more.

Now add to this recipe the fact that "the directors of these institutions know one another and work within the narrow radius of the lower end of Manhattan" and you have the makings of problems.

Despite these major national considerations it is the personal stake in pensions that concerns most workers and their families. And yet many workers know very little of their rights and expectations.

It is for reasons such as these that various congressional committees are studying many proposals to set standards for fiduciary responsibilities, vesting, disclosure of information and funding.

While the complexity of the subject matter and the many varieties of pension plans is slowing action, prospects are bright that Congress will be able to reach agreement on provisions this year and probably pass a bill in 1974.

So far the focus of three main proposals is on vesting.

—A bill submitted by Sens. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., proposes that after eight years of service a pension be 30 per cent vested.

That means a worker would have a nonforfeitable right to 30 per cent of benefits accrued under terms of the plan, even if he ceased to be an employee. The benefits

Where Title Is Free

By HILMI TOROS
Associated Press Writer
ROME (AP) — If you are not a "Dottore" in Italy, you are nobody.

But that doesn't cause much of a problem since just about everybody is called "dottore," or something better.

The word, used to designate a physician or someone with a doctorate degree in most countries, is said daily for many occasions.

It cannot actually be a misnomer because it is derived from the Latin "docere," to teach. Everybody is teaching somebody something in Italy.

Legally, however, the word is reserved for a university graduate, even if he has not gone through the doctorate stage.

But in everyday life it has become the chief word of flatterers hoping to get somewhere.

"Buona sera, dottore," a waiter would welcome you entering a restaurant you don't know. He expects a good tip.

"Avanti, dottore," a parking lot attendant would say guiding you to an illegal spot. He, too, expects a good tip.

A calling card without the prefix "Dott." doesn't impress anyone. Every journalist is a doctor even if he is a high school dropout. The third cameraman on a movie set carries the same title.

In the South, the exaggeration is upped a rung, with doctors becoming "professore." Anyone who knows something about geometry is an "ingegnere," the engineer.

Also in the South, particularly in Calabria and Sicily, a family man of distinction and influence is "don," from the Latin "dominus," the master.

In Naples, they will make you a "cavaliere," the knight.

And throughout the nation many a man in his 50s, with wealth and a pot belly, becomes "commendatore." But both cavaliere and commendatore titles can be bestowed only by the president of the republic.

"As far as I am concerned, every customer is a dottore," says a Rome garage attendant. "I called somebody signore and he gave me hell for it."

Want Ads are many things to many people, but essentially they comprise the Classified Section which is a market place for people provided by newspaper publishers. It is a place where people seek a new home, a new career, or an automobile. It is a place where people buy and sell to each other. It is a major medium of commerce in a free enterprise system.

The Want Ads, as we know them today, were born of a need of the people and a newspaper's response to that need. In 1666, when a fire destroyed a large section of London, England, families were separated and valuables were lost or destroyed. A newspaper of that city wanted to assist people in regrouping their families, finding new homes and purchasing household goods, and offered to publish small paid advertisements in their behalf. This was the beginning of the people's market place. While many changes have occurred during the intervening centuries, the Classified Section is still basically the same—a people-to-people advertising medium.

The week of April 8-16 is being observed as International Want Ad Week. The Journal takes this occasion to salute its want ad buyers and readers and invites all the people of the Ark-La-Tex to take advantage of the special want ad offer being featured this week in our Classified Section.—Shreveport (La.) ## Horse Cents Think your meat bills are going into orbit, ladies? Read on. Memphis Park Commission recently authorized purchase of 46,800 pounds of frozen horsemeat from a Nebraska packing firm to keep Overton Park Zoo in good supply.

The order consisted of 31,200 pounds of chopped boneless horsemeat at 40.5 cents a pound; 10,400 pounds of front quarters with bone at 33 cents a pound; 2,600 pounds of boneless chuck at 54.3 cents a pound, and 2,600 pounds of horse livers at 43 cents a pound. Total tab was $18,596.50.

The following statement was part of an address entitled "Don't Blame Caesar" by Ed W. Hiles. It was reprinted in "The Freeman" and carries a message that all of us should take to heart for the good of our character, not to mention the health of the nation. He said:

"Whenever one man gets something without earning it, some other man has to earn something without getting it. That is morally wrong and any nation built on that kind of philosophy is headed for trouble, because the real iron of this is that the man who pays nothing actually pays the highest price of all through the destruction of his character and self-respect."—Monroe (La.) dividual's right to sue to recover for injuries or property damage violates the guarantee for due process of law.

That point has been often raised by opponents in debate on the bill. Those favoring the measure have responded that courts in other states have ruled in favor of comparable statutes.

Major points in the no-fault bill passed by the Senate:

—It prohibits legal action for personal injuries of $750 or less, except for cases involving disabling injury or permanent disfigurement.

—It prohibits legal action for economic losses (such as wages) of $5,000 or less.

—It provides for settlement under no-fault to be made by the policy-holder's insurance company.

—It retains the right to sue for minors who would not normally be covered by the economic loss section.

A Conservative View

The National Energy Crisis Can Be Overcome

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

One of Mr. Webster's definitions for "crisis" goes this way: "a paroxysmal attack of pain, distress, or disordered function." So defined, our nation is indeed experiencing an energy crisis. The condition is serious, but not necessarily fatal. The crisis can be overcome. All that is required is that we pay the price to meet it.

A part of this price can be reckoned quite simply in dollars. Congress almost certainly will approve the President's recommendation for the "deregulation" of prices on new supplies of domestic natural gas. The price to gas consumers eventually will go up. The price of gasoline already is going up, and it will go much higher in coming months. We can look for higher rates on electric power as well. A massive program of research on new energy sources will have to be financed from public funds.

Another part of the price will have to be reckoned in discomfort, inconvenience, and immeasurable risk—and it is this part of the price that needs to be understood. It might be called, for shorthand purposes, the ecological price.

The Trans-Alaska Pipeline must be built. That statement, it seems to me, has passed beyond opinion and become simple fact. Alaska's North Slope contains an estimated 10 billion barrels of proven reserves. Once the pipeline is built, some 600,000 barrels a day can be moved; after five years, production will rise to an estimated 2 million barrels a day. We have to have that oil—and the ecological price, painful and distressing as it may be, will have to be paid.

A second example: For at least the next ten to twenty years, like it or not, we will have to put far greater reliance on coal than we have witnessed in recent years. Coal is by far the most abundant of our energy resources, yet it fills only 20 percent of our energy demands. The trend against coal has been spurred in recent years by environmentalists and by public health specialists who have complained—rightly and properly—against the ravaging of our land and the pollution of our cities. It is no necessary to retreat to the ugliness and grime of the old days, but there must be some retreat; and it will be painful.

The President has called for tripling the acreage leased on the Outer Continental Shelf for drilling for oil and gas. By 1985, according to industry projections, this accelerated leasing program could increase annual production by an estimated 1.5 billion barrels. We have to have it; and we will have to accept the added risk of spills and sea pollution.

At present, only 30 nuclear power plants are in operation; they produce barely 4 percent of our electricity requirements. The inescapable truth is that we must have many more such plants, and we must move ahead rapidly with research in both nuclear fission and nuclear fusion. If we are willing to pay the ecological price, we can obtain 25 percent of electrical energy requirements from nuclear plants by 1985, and 60 percent by the end of the century.

Now, none of these prospects is especially pleasant. Those who have fought so long for a better environment are bound to be dismayed at the thought of even a temporary retreat from the new standards they have won. Yet the alternatives, in my own view, are unrealistic or dangerous.

The principal alternatives are a drastic reordering of our whole way of life, or a foolhardy reliance upon other nations. A full-scale reordering, enforced by compulsions scarcely imaginable in a free society, would require a rationing of energy in the name of fuel conservation. Such a program might entail restrictions upon automobile use (or automobile horsepower), restrictions upon heating and air conditioning, and severe cutbacks in industrial production. Even greater dependence on foreign sources of energy would invite disaster.

The President's program provides too little for research, especially in the field of solar energy, but otherwise it is both prudent and necessary. It is also painful and distressing, but the pain and distress can be borne.

Tax Boost Is Potential Economic Tool To Cut Down Inflation's Wave

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

Back some 30-years ago, during World War II, the term "inflation gap" enjoyed a certain popularity as part of the language.

It was coined by Washington economists as a measure of what was called excessive spending power—the amount by which money in the hands of business and individual consumers exceeded the available supply of goods and services at controlled prices.

The theory was that if any substantial gap existed between limited supply and rising demand, inflation would take over, despite price ceilings and rationing. The way to deal with the situation, of course, was to "siphon off" excess demand by pushing taxes ever higher. Income tax rates become shocking, compared to prewar. But, they did a job, of sorts.

This bit of the past is given a certain currency by comments beginning to trickle out of Washington. Just this week, for instance, Chairman Herbert Stein of the President's Council of Economic Advisors mentioned a tax hike as a possible way of "colling" the inflationary boom.

A White House request to Congress for a general tax increase this year would be contrary to President Nixon's campaign position of last fall. At that time, he said any such move would not be necessary if Congress went along with his budget cuts.

But Nixon has reversed his field on economic policies before, when he finally became convinced they were failing. At the same press conference where he mentioned taxes, in reply to questions, Stein conceded that under phase III the price goal of a rise of no more than 3 per cent this year is down the drain.

While Stein's tax remark seemed offhand enough, there may well be some significance to it. In early

White House reports to Congress this year, suggestions were made to Congress that it would be desirable for the executive to have some standby tax powers.

One of these would permit a "variable" investment tax credit, in place of the present 7 per cent allowance to business for new plant and equipment. Some observers now feel that this inducement is causing business to invest at too rapid a rate.

In the annual report to Congress, the Council of Economic Advisors suggested consideration of what was called a "temporary, one-year positive or negative surcharge rate on personal and corporate income taxes."

This would be a new "economic tool" in the hands of the Executive. If a stimulant was needed, then taxes would be cut (negative) to increase consumer buying power. To combat inflation, taxes could be raised (positive) to reduce buying power.

At his press conference, Stein saw the first quarter surge in consumer buying and in prices as forces which "emphasize the need to prevent the rise in demand from becoming excessive."

Many comments out of Washington these days take the position that unless some drastic action is taken, and soon, to put a brake on the boom, the resulting inflationary whirl will lead to a recession or worse.

There have been some hints that if the White House should be forced to reimpose a wage and price freeze, it will be on a temporary basis to check inflation while other measures can be brought into play.

Thus, it is entirely possible that an income tax boost, which could lower spending power quickly by withholding, will be weighed against other measures, such as deeper cuts in federal spending and much tighter credit curbs

A sudden tax increase, if Congress should vote it, would come as a severe jolt. It would be the same as a wage and salary cut. And it would create hardship, especially among those who are heavily committed to installment debt of various kinds. But the same can be said for about any effective move against inflation.

In the end, though, the tax boost might be a low price to pay. A rise, say of 10 per cent to 15 per cent, in tax bills would be far less of a burden than an across-the-board price rise of 10 per cent or more, which is probable if nothing is done.

Now, however, he thinks it is time to leave. This is no ceasefire, he told us. This is war. By participating in the ICCS Canada participates in deception.

We found no Canadian here who disagrees, and Indonesians are coming to feel the same way. "The ICCS is an absurdity," one Indonesian colonel says. "We must go home."

A feeble joke circulating in diplomatic circles says the Swedes and the Indians will be the new ICCS members because only they are hypocritical enough to stomach Hungarian-Polish sophistry. In fact, the ICCS may be finished if Canada and Indonesia leave, testimony to the Kremlin's true attitude about international agreements and a dark omen for the future.

Mixed Reviews On Jim Hunt's Stand On ECU

By JOHN KILGO

RALEIGH—Gov. Jim Holshouser has stated clearly that he is against spending $500,000 for a new Governor's Mansion. But when a reporter asked the Governor the other day how his wife felt about it, Gov. Holshouser sort of smiled and said he'd better not say.

But just for the record, Mrs. Holshouser does have feelings about the controversy. Like her husband, she feels the present Mansion should be "restored," is the word she used. She feels the present Mansion would be adequate with the proper repairs.

Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt is getting mixed reviews in the North Carolina press about his stand on the ECU med school issue. Hunt believe ECU is the place for a four-year med school. As you know, people are split about that matter and the debate concerning it is most of the times bitter. Hunt has said he feels the ECU battle is concerned with more than education. He says it also deals with the state's health needs and therefore is a legislative concern.

House Speaker Jim Ramsey might have been a prophet when he told this column in January: "I don't look for any reduction in the food, soft-drink or tobacco taxes during this session." Most Legislative leaders now believe Ramsey's forecast was accurate. Ramsey has maintained there is no grassroots movement to abolish these taxes. He says the people want state services instead.

The Long polling service out of Greensboro recently conducted a survey that reportedly showed that a large number of North Carolinians thought it was about time for Sam Ervin to retire from the U.S. Senate. The Long survey, I am glad, also indicated that Attorney General Robert Morgan would be a very hard man for Ervin to defeat in a primary for the Senate seat, which comes up for grabs next year.

Ervin, of course, is in the headlines daily over the Watergate investigation—and the national TV hearings on the probe haven't begun. He won't lack for publicity. Morgan also has a dash for keeping his name in print. His most recent headline-role was his speech at the UNC Faculty Club when he alleged that studies made of the feasibility of putting a med school at ECU were prejudiced against the Greenville institution.

It's too early to tell what is going to happen in the Senate campaign. But if it gets down to Morgan vs. Ervin, the earth will shake. Those two have ways of making news every time they open their mouth.

Toros Col . . . (Continued From Page A-4) Luigi Scialpi, publisher of the periodical Vini d'Italia (Wines of Italy). "And I say so when they call me with that title."

Yet such titles seem insufficient. Il Messaggero, Rome's morning daily, said in its lead story recently: "Italy is a country of presidents, no less than of doctors."

The newspaper found out that about 100,000 Italians list themselves as "president," most of them of state-owned or state controlled business enterprises. That would be a president for every 550 Italians. Tax-paying non-presidents are expected to complain.

Women's lib may not like it but Italians don't have similar titles for women, except for unusual cases. One is "Donna Victoria," whose husband often is introduced as "president of the republic, senator and professor Giovanni Leone."

Speaking of what might happen, folks are still whispering that Skipper Bowles is not through with politics. They talk about him going for Governor again in 1976, or for the Senate next year. Bowles smiles a lot when he hears the speculation, but he isn't saying much of anything to shed light on what future plans he might have.

Agnew, Reagan, Connally And Rocky Top GOP Choices In '76

By GEORGE GALLUP

Copyright 1973, Field Enterprises, Inc. All rights reserved. Republican in whole or part strictly prohibited, except with the written consent of the copyright holders.

PRINCETON, N. J.—Vice President Spiro Agnew is currently the top choice of Republican voters for the GOP presidential nomination in 1976. Agnew leads with 35 per cent of the votes of Republicans, followed by Gov. Ronald Reagan of California with 20 per cent and former Secretary of the Treasury John Connally with 15 per cent.

Close behind Connally are Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York with 11 per cent and Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois with 8 per cent.

To obtain these findings, all Republicans in the survey were asked to indicate their first and second choices from a list of 10 men who have been prominently mentioned as possible GOP presidential candidates. It should be noted that Connally, although a registered Democrat, is among those who have been considered as possible candidates on the Republican ticket.

When first and second choices are combined, the same order emerges, with Agnew holding a wide lead over the field, followed by Reagan, Connally, Rockefeller and Percy.

The following table shows the first and second choices and the combined vote of Republicans interviewed in the survey:

	1976 Nomination Choices of GOP Voters
	First Choice	Second Choice	Combined Total
Spiro Agnew	35	21	56
Ronald Reagan	20	21	41
John Connally	15	12	27
Nelson Rockefeller	11	14	25
Charles Percy	8	9	17
James Buckley	2	5	7
Edward Brooke	1	3	4

Daniel Evans	1	*	1
William Brock	*	1	1
No preference	6	12	18
No answer	100	100	200

Less than 1 per cent

The above table is based on the choices of 798 persons in the survey who classify themselves as Republicans out of a total sample of 3,052 persons, 18 and older, who were interviewed in person in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation during the period March 30-April 2. The questions asked were:

"Here is a list of people who have been mentioned as possible presidential candidates for the Republican party in 1976. Which ONE would you like to see nominated as the Republican candidate for President in 1976? And who would be your SECOND choice?"

The Battle For Name Awareness Conservative Republicans currently dominate the choices of the GOP rank-and-file. While this is so, part of their advantage is due to the fact that they are well-known to the American people. Best known is Agnew, with 90 per cent of all persons interviewed indicating awareness of the Vice President. Agnew is followed by Reagan and Rockefeller, each known to 85 per cent of the public.

Somewhat lower on the list in terms of name awareness is Connally with 71 per cent, followed by James Buckley with 55 per cent and Percy with 54 per cent.

The first hurdle faced by presidential hopefuls is becoming known to the electorate—a process that usually takes a number of years. As a general rule of thumb, a person known to three-quarters or more of the electorate can be considered to have a high awareness score.

The following table shows the awareness score of each of the 10 men on the candidate choice list. The question was, "Which of these people have you heard something about?" The findings are based on the total sample:

Name	Awareness Scores	Heard Something About
Agnew	90	90
Reagan	85	85
Rockefeller	85	85
Connally	71	71
Buckley	55	55
Percy	54	54

New Bald Head Pier?

CHARLOTTE (AP)—The president of the North Carolina Conservation Council charged Saturday that developers of Bald Head Island have constructed a new pier, citing a letter from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service as evidence.

The president of the developing company replied, "That's completely ludicrous."

Wally Kauffman of Chatham County, in Charlotte for a meeting of the council, said Carolina Cape Fear Corp. has built a "larger pier" than one previously at the island and has "also filled in marshland." Kauffman said the alleged pier is illegal under U.S. Army Corps of Engineers policy and that the state of North Carolina claims title to the island's marshes.

Two years ago the Army engineers heard evidence from the council and others about a pier on the semitropical island at the mouth of the Cape Fear River off Southport. Later the secretary of the Army told developers to tear it down.

William R. Henderson of Wilmington, president of Carolina Cape Fear, told The Associated Press, "Please accept my invitation to come down at any time. Call the Corps of Engineers and the Environmental Protection Agency."

"I think you'll find it (the charges) completely fallacious."

Henderson said he hopes his statement "doesn't discredit the council. It has a lot of merit, can do a lot of things."

The council president, informed of Henderson's remarks, said he stood by his claim. He added he had a letter from Jack E. Hemphill of Atlanta, an official of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, stating that the pier exists.

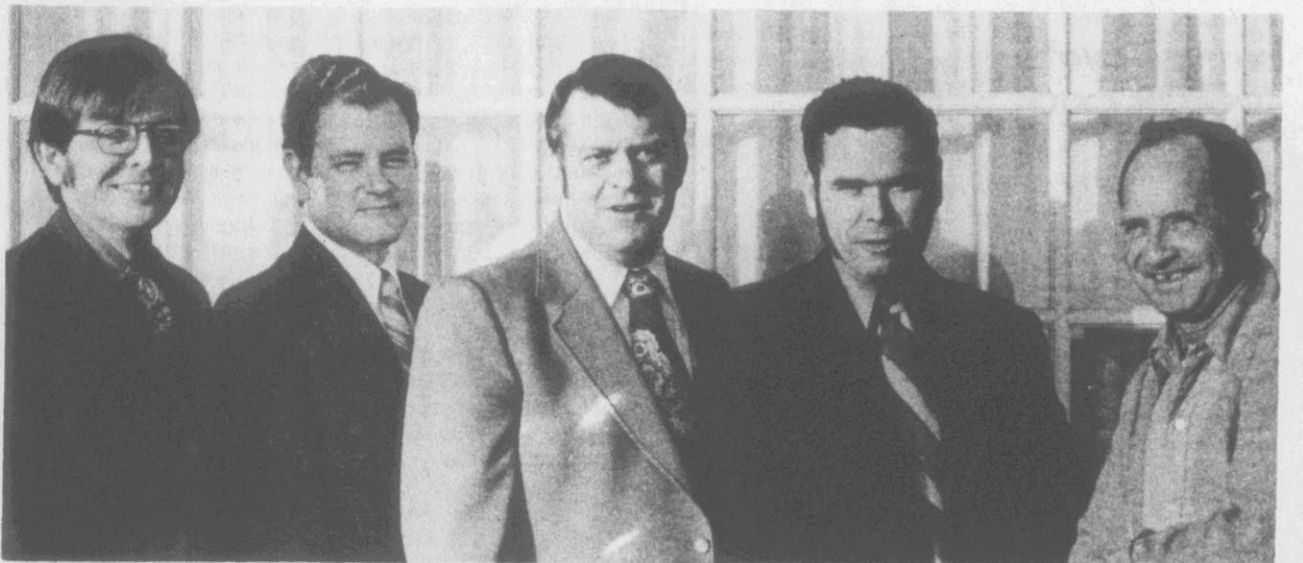

Hemphill said by telephone from Atlanta he did write the letter April 10 to the Army engineers.

The letter said, in part, "On March 14, representatives of this bureau, the National Marine Fisheries Service and the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission visited the Bald Head Island complex near Southport. The purpose of this trip was to inspect the L-shaped dock constructed by the Carolina Cape Fear Corp. on Bald Head Island.

"The dock is located at the site of the illegally constructed pier which your agency required to be removed. That dock is much more elaborate and functional than the highly publicized and previously constructed pier. Subsequent investigation and aerial photographs reveal that the Carolina Cape Fear Corp. has filled below the mean high water line at the location of the dock, apparently in violation of the Rivers and Harbors Act..."

Hemphill added he understands the dock is not the type with pilings but is instead a barge or barges anchored with cables.

To Stop Pollution

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina Senate has approved and sent to the House a complex and innovative bill aimed at stopping water pollution from soil runoff and other forms of sedimentation.

The bill was approved on a voice vote Friday as the upper chamber raced through a crowded calendar. There was little debate, and one senator said he didn't think most of the legislators had read what they were voting for.

The bill departs from most of North Carolina's anti-pollution statutes in that it sets no permit requirements. Instead, it establishes regulations that developers must follow.

Among them is a rule mandating a "buffer" of natural cover between any excavation and any body of water. The law would also require builders to replace ground cover within 30 days to prevent soil erosion.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. Gordon Allen, D-Person, sets criminal and civil penalties for failure to comply with the regulations. Violators would be liable to fines of $5,000 and jail terms of 90 days.

The bill's provisions include authority for any citizen to sue the state to enforce the laws.

The symposium is the third in a series of spring symposia on international studies held at ECU and will feature visits and addresses by African and Asian diplomats and representatives of a number of foreign embassies and other overseas interests.

All the activities are open to the public and free of charge.

Dr. Kermit King, director of the ECU Office of International Education said that the local community is cooperating with the University and the students in arranging an international festival planned for 7:30 p.m. Wednesday night at the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church in Greenville.

"Between 40 and 50 foreign students will be dressed in their native costumes for this part of the two day symposium and there will be folk dances, food, songs and music," he said.

The daytime portion of the symposium will be conducted Wednesday and Thursday in room 102B Social Studies Building on the ECU campus.

India, and Simon Gichuru, First Secretary for Commercial Matter of the Embassy of Kenya. The two diplomats will discuss social, political and economic progress in their countries.

represents a 5.6 per cent increase over the 54 cents per share or $7.93 million posted last year.

Wallington said that the corporation's consolidated net income was $8.232 million or 56 cents per share for the first quarter of this year, compared with $7.871 or 54 cents per share for the first quarter of 1972.

On March 31, assets of Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. N.A. totaled $2.721 billion, an increase of 36.5 per cent over the March 31, 1972 figure.

POLICIES EXPANDED

The Business Development Corporation of North Carolina announced that it is again expanding its policies for loans, and adopting one new program, to promote industrial employment in the state.

The BDCNC loan limit, for any one borrower, has been increased from $600,000 to $1,000,000, plus any amount guaranteed by a federal agency and the amount of any participation banks or savings and loan associations or insurance companies will take in a loan. The maximum term on real estate loans for industrial plants has been increased from 15 to 20 years.

Under the new program, BDCNC may now buy land and construct industrial plants, or purchase existing industrial plants for lease to manufacturing processing industries, if U.S. Small Business Administration will guarantee payment for the rentals called for under the lease. The new program, BDCNC reported, will provide the equivalent of 100 per cent financing for new or expanding industries in the state.

TRANSFER SERVICE

The board of directors of Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. approved a new stock transfer service for use by the Bank's Corporate Trust Department.

Called Rule 496 of the New York Exchange, the service authorizes Wachovia to act as sole transfer agent and transfer registrar for securities listed on either the New York or American Stock Exchange.

When using the new service, a company will no longer be required to have a transfer agent and registrar located in New York. Instead, Wachovia noted, the service provides a New York "drop" where dealers can deliver and pick up stock. Completed transfers are then processed and available for pickup within the maximum 48-hour limit imposed by the rule.

NEW APPOINTMENTS

Henry Flake, general manager and executive vice president of Florence-Mayo Co. of Farmville, announced several new appointments within the company, effective April 30.

The appointments include: James Everett, superintendent of electronics division, Bill Wood, superintendent of fabrication division; Henry Mills, superintendent of shipping and receiving; Robert Rouse, superintendent of welding and painting division; J. T. Nolen, accounting superintendent; and Frances Rackley, office manager.

ONE MILLION SOLD

The company produces sandwiches in three locations, which serve the firm's 22 sales centers in 15 states, the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico. Production takes place in Grand Rapids, Mich., San Diego, Calif., and Norfolk, Va.

CASH DIVIDEND

that the board of directors has declared a cash dividend of six cents per share on the common stock and 50 cents per share on the preferred stock. Both dividends are payable June 1 to shareholders or record May 15.

As of March 31, Sullivan said, the company and its subsidiaries were operating 175 drug stores, 15 dress shops in the Deb Shop division, and five office equipment locations in the Miller's division. Eight drug stores have been opened thus far in the current fiscal year, which began April 1, bringing the total currently being operated to 183.

RECORD HIGHS

Alonzo G. Decker Jr., chairman and chief executive officer of Black & Decker Manufacturing Co., reported that record highs were achieved for the second quarter and first half of fiscal 1973.

Decker said that for the second quarter, sales were $113.9 million, up 22 per cent from $93.4 million for the corresponding quarter of last year. Net earnings rose 24 per cent to $9.7 million from $7.8 million.

For the first six months, sales were up 21 per cent to $205.4 million from $168.7 million for the first half of fiscal 1972. Net earnings were $15.8 million, up 22 per cent from $13 million.

Distance Races Propel Indians To Title

By WOODY PEELE
and TOM FOREMAN

William & Mary piled up the points in the mile and three-mile runs, sweeping all five places in the latter, and took advantage of a crippling injury to the East Carolina University track team to win their eighth straight Southern Conference track title yesterday.

The Indians went into the final day's activity with only a two point lead, but by the time it was over, they had swelled it to over 20.

William & Mary finished the meet with a total of 118-5-6 points, while East Carolina was a strong second with 97-1-3. Furman was a distant third with 53, followed by Richmond with 18½, Appalachian with 16, VMI with 6, Davidson with 5-1-3, and The Citadel with five.

East Carolina's Maurice Huntley, favored to score high in the 100-yard dash and the 220-yard dash, pulled up with a hamstring injury in the first event, and was unable to place. He did not run in the second.

The Bucs also didn't do quite as well as expected in the hurdles although they did surprise in the 440, finishing first and second.

The most excited event of the afternoon turned out to be the 440-yard dash. In that, Charles Lovelace made up ground and nipped William & Mary's Charles Dobson at the wire to just nip the Indians.

Largely because of strong winds, only two more records were set in the final day's round. (See story on Page B-3—Friday's results.)

The first came in the triple jump when Walter Davenport broke the mark of 50 feet, 4½ inches he set last year with a leap of 50 feet, 5½. The All-American went on to win handily and become the only double winner for the Pirates.

Furman's Bill Dimitrouleas won the discus with a toss of 165 feet 9 inches, to break his former teammate's mark of 163-10, set by Rich Mohn in 1969.

Dimitrouleas also won the shot put on Friday, while Davenport took the long jump.

There was one other double winner in the meet, William & Mary's Charles Dobson, who took the 100-yard dash and the 120-yard high hurdles. He also ran a leg on the second place 440-relay team.

The Outstanding Athlete Award, however, ended in a draw between Dimitrouleas and William & Mary's Bill Louv. Dimitrouleas, in addition to winning the two events above also placed fourth in the hammer throw. Louv won the three-mile, finished second in the steeplechase, and was third in the mile run.

While East Carolina's Bill

Carson felt that Huntley's injury was the key to the Pirates' downfall, William & Mary's John Randolph felt that even had he run, the Indians would have won, although he admitted it would have been a lot closer.

As Carson had foretold, the distance events proved to be the difference. In Friday's six-mile run, William & Mary went 1-2-5, then were 1-2-3-4 in the steeplechase. They were 1-2-3 in the mile and swept all five places in the three mile. Those places alone accounted for nearly half of the Indian total, 55 points.

In the Saturday events, William & Mary came up with wins in six events, while East Carolina won four, and Furman took the remaining three.

Indian victories came in the mile, Mac Collins, 4:10.6; the 120-yard high hurdles, Dobson, :14.1; the 440-yard intermediate hurdles, Bob Ryan, :54.6; the 100-yard dash, Dobson, :9.8; the 880-yard run, Reggie Clark, 1:51.3; and the three-mile, Louv 14:20.5.

East Carolina won the 440-yard relay in :41.8; the 440-yard dash, Charlie Lovelace, :49.2; the triple jump, Davenport, 50-5½; and the pole vault, Rich McDuffie, 15-0.

Furman's wins came in the 220-yard dash, Dan Campbell, :22.2; the discus, Dimitrouleas, 165-9, and the mile relay, 3:19.4.

Citadel Shocks Pirates, 2-1

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

The Citadel dealt the East Carolina Pirates a double blow yesterday, downing the Bucs, 2-1, in a Southern Conference baseball game, and knocking their number two pitcher out for the rest of the season.

Hurler Dave LaRussa was hit on the thumb of his pitching hand by a line drive off the bat of Chuck Cordell in the second inning, fracturing it. He will be out for the remainder of the year scheduled to come to an end next week.

The loss tumbled the Bucs to a 6-1 Southern Conference mark, a full game behind league-leading Appalachian. The Pirates have one of the toughest grinds of the year ahead of them this week and without LaRussa the task seems insurmountable.

Monday, they must travel to Richmond to face the University of Richmond's Spiders in another key game. Then, on Wednesday, they are back here with VMI for a doubleheader.

Thursday they face William & Mary on the road then close out the season on Saturday in Boone against Appalachian. To win the Southern Conference title, they may have to win all six games.

The loss came just one week to the day after the Bucs had pounded The Citadel for 18 hits and rolled to a 16-1 victory over the Bulldogs. And the revenge was sweet for the South Carolina team.

Pitcher Rusty Booth, who went the first eight innings scattered four hits to the Pirates, walked four and struck out 10 on the way to the victory. The only run off him was a solo homer in the eighth by Mike Hogan.

Both of The Citadel's runs were unearned, coming in the fifth after a wild pitch and an error.

LaRussa seemed to be rolling right along after an inning and a third of perfect ball. But Cordell hit a line drive back at him, and the ball struck him in the left hand breaking his thumb. It bounced then into left field, enabling Cordell to reach safely.

But it knocked LaRussa out of the game, and Bill Godwin was called on for quick relief. He got the next batter to hit into a fielder's choice, but the next walked to give The Citadel its first threat. A ground ball to third ended that, however.

Godwin then cruised along with good luck until the fifth, although Hogan had to come up with a fine backhanded running catch to rob Paul Plunkett of a base hit in the fourth.

Then, in the fifth, disaster struck for the Pirates. With two down, Warren Compton singled into left. Booth helped his own cause with a single to right center, moving Compton to third. Godwin then unloaded a wild pitch, but Rick McMahon bounced back on it in time to make the play as Compton sped home. Godwin, however, in the rush to make the tag, dropped the ball and Compton was safe.

Ron Terry followed that by reaching on a walk, and Ken Feaster singled to right to score Booth with what proved to be the winning run for The Citadel.

They made only one more threat the rest of the way, in the seventh. Terry cracked out a two-out triple to center, but Russ Smith came on to put out the fire and prevent another Bulldog from reaching base the rest of the day.

The Pirates, meanwhile were having their troubles with Booth. Hogan reached on a fielder's choice in the first, and stole second, but he was the last runner until the fifth.

In that frame, Larry Walters walked and moved up on McMahon's bunt single. Jeff Beaston moved Walters to third, but McMahon was out at second on the fielder's choice. Beaston stole up to second, but a strike-out ended it.

In the sixth, The Citadel got a double play the hard way, getting the batter first, then the man going to second.

But the best chance for the Bucs came in the seventh. Walters reached on an error and Ronnie Leggett got an infield hit. McMahon walked to load them up, but a fielder's choice at the plate and a strikeout again got The Citadel out of the jam.

In that frame, the Bucs got their lone run, as Hogan cracked a one-out ball out of the park in right.

But no other Pirate reached second base as The Citadel hung on to win it.

Pacers Gain Win In Controversial Game

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) —

The Kentucky Colonels' fans protested one call and Coach Joe Mullaney another, but either way the Colonels felt they were robbed Saturday as the Indiana Pacers took a 1-0 lead in their series for the American Basketball Association championship.

After the two disputed plays the Pacers had a 111-107 overtime victory in the game.

The first dispute came in the third quarter as a basket by Kentucky center Artis Gilmore was nullified for a three-second violation on an in-bounds play.

"There's no question about it, it was a bad call," Mullaney said. "We've run that play 20 times this year and it's never taken three seconds to run before."

On the play, Gilmore charged into the lane, took the in-bounds pass and put the ball in the basket, but the score was disallowed.

Kentucky announced it was playing the game under protest after referees Norm Drucker and Ed Middleton refused to change their call even though only two seconds had ticked off the clock.

It was another disallowed Kentucky basket near the end of regulation that set off the row.

Jimmy O'Brien of the Colonels missed a shot in the final minute of the game and after a tussle for the rebound, shot again and connected with 35 seconds left.

However, the referees ruled the 30-second clock had expired several seconds before the second attempt and took away the basket which would have given Kentucky a 102-100 win in regulation time.

Several of the Colonels argued the first shot had hit the rim which should have started the 30-second clock anew.

A television replay backed up the officials' call by showing that the shot hit the backboard but not the rim. Mullaney never protested the call.

ers broke out after the game. Pacer Coach Bob Leonard credited his center Mel Daniels and guard Freddie Lewis with "super ballgames."

Lewis finished with 29 points, including a driving jump shot with 17 left in the overtime that won the game. After a Kentucky miss, Lewis sank two free throws for the final margin.

"We had our good quarter and they had their good quarter," Leonard said, referring to Indiana's first-period surge and a Colonel rally in the third stanza.

"Then we got down by six near the end and we came back. That's a gutsy way to win," he said.

Dan Issel of Kentucky led all scorers with 33 points.

Indiana zoomed to a 38-19 lead in the first quarter of the nationally televised game by outscoring the Colonels 18-2 in the last five minutes of the period.

Issel was the only effective Kentucky scorer in the early going, hitting 15 of his team's first 24 points. The Colonels narrowed the gap to 44-37 midway in the second quarter but Indiana came back to widen their halftime margin to 65-51.

Kentucky scored the first 17 points of the third period to take a 68-65 lead. The Colonels, Eastern Division champions, held the lead just about all the way until Roger Brown boomed in a three-point basket with 1:09 left in regulation time to lift the Pacers into the 100-100 tie.

Indiana never trailed in overtime.

Indiana pivotman Mel Daniels had 20 points and 14 rebounds while Issel topped the rebounders with 20.

Gilmore contributed 16 rebounds while Louie Dampier had 19 points for Kentucky.

each by Bruce Gray and Wayne Vincent.

Parkers went on to add four in the third, three in the fifth and one in the sixth. Union Carbide got two in the third.

Pirates Handed Third Loss In A Row; Cubs Plank Padres, 2-0

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Los Angeles scored single runs in the third, fifth and sixth innings and Don Sutton scattered six hits as the Dodgers handed the Pittsburgh Pirates their third consecutive National League baseball setback 3-2 Saturday.

The Pirates scored in the first on Dave Cash's single and two Los Angeles errors but the Dodgers tied in against Nelson Briles in the third when Dave Lopes singled, stole second and came around on an error by shortstop Gene Alley.

Los Angeles went in front in the fifth on singles by Ron Cey, Lopes and Bill Russell and pushed across the decisive run an inning later when Willie Davis singled, stole second, continued to third on catcher Mill May's throwing error and scored on Joe Ferguson's single.

Sutton held the Pirates in check after the first except for an eighth-inning run on singles by Cash and Manny Sanguillen and Al Oliver's infield grounder.

CHICAGO (AP) — Rick Reuschel and Jack Aker scattered seven hits Saturday in pitching the Chicago Cubs to a 2-0 victory over the San Diego Padres.

Rick Monday opened the Chicago first inning by driving his fourth home run into the right field bleachers. Monday doubled to open the Cubs' third and scored a second time on Jim Hickman's two-out single.

Reuschel pitched out of trouble twice. The Padres collected two singles in the fourth before Clarence Gaston grounded into the third out. Leron Lee doubled to open the seventh, and took third on Nate Colbert's single. Reuschel retired the next three batters to leave the two Padres stranded.

Aker entered the game in the eighth and earned his third save.

reliever Tug McGraw in the eighth.

New York opened the scoring in the third when Staub slashed a double down the left field line, scoring Ted Martinez, who had singled.

Atlanta went in front 2-1 in the seventh on Dave Johnson's second homer of the year and Jackson's run-scoring single.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Willie Montanez singled home the game's only run and Dick Ruthven, Billy Wilson and Ed Sacer limited Cincinnati to two hits as the Philadelphia Phillies downed the Reds 1-0 Saturday night.

Terry Harmon started the Phillies winning rally in the eighth with a single and moved to second on pinch-hitter Cesar Tovar's infield single.

Larry Bowa forced Harmon at third and but the Phils loaded the bases on a walk to Del Unser, setting the stage for Montanez' game-winner.

Tovar had Pinch-hit for Ruthven after the rookie right-hander appeared to suffer an injury to his shoulder while pitching to Tony Perez in the seventh.

Prior to that, Ruthven had permitted Cincinnati only a Pete Rose third-inning single while striking out eight and walking two.

The rally gave the victory to Jon Matlack, 2-3, who fanned nine batters before leaving for

Mercer Leads Yankees To 11-3 Victory Over Minnesota Twins

NEW YORK (AP) — Bobby Murcer drove in five runs with a pair of two-run homers and a single and Matty Alou and Craig Nettles also homered with a man on as the New York Yankees trounced the Minnesota Twins 11-3 Saturday in an American League baseball game.

Alou, who also had two doubles and a single, drilled his first two-base hit with two away in the opening inning off loser Jim Kaat, 3-1, and Murcer walloped his second home run of the season into the Yankee bullpen in right-center field. It was the Yankees' first home run in 53 innings.

They doubled the margin in the third when Roy White singled and Alou lined his first home run as a Yankee into the right field seats.

Rookie George Medich, 2-0, pitched a six-hitter for his first complete game in the majors. The Twins scored in the sixth on Larry Hisle's triple and Rod Carew's sacrifice fly but Nettles slammed his third home run deep into the right field stands off Joe Decker in the bottom of the inning with Jim Ray Hart aboard via a single.

Aycock Downs Panthers, 7-2

BETHEL — Charles B. Aycock High School moved closer to the Eastern Carolina Conference title with a 7-2 victory over North Pitt Saturday afternoon.

The Golden Falcons pushed over a run in the first to take the lead. David Pittman singled and scored on a hit by Terry Durham.

They added another in the second. Jay Edgerton singled and stole second. Pittman reached on an error, scoring him.

In the fourth, three more

Steve Braun homered in the seventh for Minnesota's second run but Alou singled and Murcer homered again in the Yankee half.

Forster pitched out of a bigger jam in the eighth inning when he loaded the bases with two out. The big left-hander struck out Danny Cater to end the threat and preserve the victory for Bahnen, 3-1.

Luis Tiant, 2-2, was the loser for the Red Sox, who left a total of 16 men on base.

Chisox, 2-1

BOSTON (AP) — Pat Kelly sparked two rallies with doubles and Terry Forster provided strong late-inning relief, leading the Chicago White Sox to a 2-1 victory over the Boston Red Sox Saturday.

Kelly doubled in the first inning of the nationally-televised game at Fenway Park and eventually scored on a Dick Allen bounce to give the White Sox a 1-0 lead.

The Chicago outfielder drilled another double in the third inning and rode home with Chicago's winning run on a two-base hit by Bill Melton.

Boston scored its only run of the game in the bottom of the third on Carlton Fisk's RBI double and then chased Chicago starter Stan Bahnen with a seventh-inning threat.

After Orlando Cepeda singled with one out, Forster came into the game and gave up a single to Fisk before striking out the next two batters to end the threat.

DETROIT (AP) — Lou Piniella's two-out, bases-loaded double in the seventh inning off reliever Fred Scherman scored three runs to snap a 4-4 tie and give the Kansas City Royals a 7-4 American League baseball victory over the Detroit Tigers Saturday.

The drive came after Tom Timmerman had gotten Amos Otis to hit into a force out at the plate and John Mayberry took a third strike from Scherman.

Phils, 1-0

CINCINNATI (AP) — Willie Montanez singled home the game's only run and Dick Ruthven, Billy Wilson and Ed Sacer limited Cincinnati to two hits as the Philadelphia Phillies downed the Reds 1-0 Saturday night.

Terry Harmon started the Phillies winning rally in the eighth with a single and moved to second on pinch-hitter Cesar Tovar's infield single.

Larry Bowa forced Harmon at third and but the Phils loaded the bases on a walk to Del Unser, setting the stage for Montanez' game-winner.

Tovar had Pinch-hit for Ruthven after the rookie right-hander appeared to suffer an injury to his shoulder while pitching to Tony Perez in the seventh.

Mets, 4-2

ATLANTA (AP) — Ed Kranepool's two-run single highlighted a three-run eighth inning Saturday night as the New York Mets beat the Atlanta Braves 4-2 in National League baseball.

Felix Millan opened the inning with a bad hop single off shortstop Sonny Jackson's chest and Willie Mays followed with a double, chasing starter Ron Reed, whose record is now 0-4.

Rusty Staub then drew an intentional pass from reliever Roric Harrison before Kranepool delivered a ground ball single past second baseman Dave Johnson. Jerry Grote then singled home Staub.

The rally gave the victory to Jon Matlack, 2-3, who fanned nine batters before leaving for

White Captures Maryland Game Tournament ...

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Ben Kinard, a sophomore quarterback from Baltimore, led his white team to a 27-22 victory in Maryland' annual spring football game Saturday.

Over 4,000 fans turned out on a cold, windy afternoon in Byrd Stadium and saw what appeared to be the one-sided contest turn into a good game as the red squad came from a 27-8 deficit and had the ball on the white 28-yard line. But a fourth down pass by Bob Avellini was overthrown.

Louis Carter, a junior tailback, recorded the first score of the afternoon for the white team on a one-yard plunge but the red came back for a 8-7 lead on an Avellini pass for 13 yards to John Fiedor and Avellini's run for two points.

Carter picked up 114 yards rushing and another touchdown as the white team scored twice in added field goals of 33 and 39 yards by Steve Mike-Mayer. The other touchdown was a two-yard run by Kinard who also ran for the two-point conversion.

Kinard completed seven of eight passes for 92 yards and gained 38 on the ground. Avellini completed 15 of 30 passes for 170 yards and had one interception. Al Nevile completed one of four passes for the red team before suffering a hip pointer and sitting out nearly three-quarters of the game.

Leroy Hughes, a freshman tailback, gained 63 yards rushing and sophomore Jamie Franklin added 44 yards for the red squad. Coach Jerry Claiborne watched the game from the press box with a recruit, Kenny Roy of nearby DeMatha High, and afterwards said he was pleased with the big plays by Kinard and the way he moved the team.

Claiborne also expressed his pleasure with the defensive play of Paul Vellano, Randy White, and Ken Scott, along with the running of Carter and Hughes. He said, "The Terps have come a long way this spring, but still have to eliminate the mistakes that set up most of today's touchdowns."

Avellini with a 3-yard run and Franklin with an 8-yard run scored the final touchdowns of the game as the red team's rally failed.

Indians Held Slim Edge After 1st Day

Surprising East Carolina, with an eye bent toward an upset, held its own with William & Mary's strong Indians through the first day of the Southern Conference Track and Field Championships being held here. The meet was to wind up Saturday afternoon. (See story on Page B-1.)

Through the first day's events, the Pirates trailed the perennial champions by only two points after picking up 10 points in the final event of the day.

That event, the hammer throw, saw the only record of the day set over the windy field. Ivey Peacock of East Carolina won the event with a heave of 152 feet, 2 inches, nearly 20 feet better than the old record set by Furman's Dan Utley last year. That mark was 133 feet, 5 inches.

Second place finisher LaBaron Caruthers of East Carolina also surpassed the old mark with a toss of 143-9.

Overall, a total of seven events were completed on Friday, the hammer toss, the six-mile run, the shot put, the javelin, the long jump, the high jump and the 3,000-meter steeplechase.

By the time it was over, William & Mary had put together 41 points, but East Carolina was right on their heels with 39. Furman was in third place with 13, while Richmond had seven, The Citadel, Ivey Peacock of East Carolina won the event with a heave of 152 feet, 2 inches, nearly 20 feet place in four of the seven events completed, while East Carolina won two and Furman took the other.

A surprise for the Pirates came in the opening event, the six-mile, when Ed Rigby finished third in a time of 30:39.9. William & Mary was expected to finish one-two-three in the event.

Besides Peacock, East Carolina's other winner was Walter Davenport, who won the long jump with a leap of 23 feet, 6 inches.

Going into Saturday's finals, which included the pole vault, the triple jump and the discus, all three of which are strong East Carolina events, East Carolina had qualified 12 runners in Friday's trials. Both Furman and William & Mary advanced 11, while Davidson had three, Richmond had seven, Appalachian had six and VMI had four.

Trials were held Friday in the 120-yard high hurdles, the 440, the 100, the 880, the 440 intermediate hurdles, and the 220.

All these were to be completed on Saturday, in addition to the 440 relay, the mile run, the three-mile run and the mile relay.

William & Mary's Friday winners included Tim Cook in the six-mile run, David Ruch in the javelin, Fred Toepeke in the high jump and Jay Gesell in the steeplechase.

Furman's lone winner was Bill Dimitrouleas, who took the shot put.

Aaron Cracks Another Homer

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

When you're pitching for the New York Mets, baseball's latest hitless wonders, one bad pitch is usually one more than you can afford, so it was bad news when Tom Seaver doubled his limit Friday night.

Philadelphia's Steve Carlton checked Cincinnati on four hits for his fourth victory. The Phillies quickly got Carlton all the runs he needed by jumping on Ross Grimsley for two in the first inning on singles by Larry Bowa, Mike Anderson and Willie Montanez and an error.

Jose Cardenal drove in four runs with a double and single as Chicago whipped San Diego. Two-run doubles by Cardenal and Rick Monday paced a six-run explosion in the second inning. Milt Pappas became the Cubs' ninth onegame winner.

Houston rallied for three runs in the eighth inning to tie Montreal and edged the Expos in the 10th.

Celtics Win Again To Even Series; Final Game Is Today

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Momentum. Does Boston have that edge now over the New York Knicks? "I'm not going to say anything about it," the Celtics' Jo Jo White said, grinning. "But we got them in Boston last time—and we got 'em back there again."

"Don't ask me about Los Angeles," Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn sighed. "We can't afford to think about that. All we can think about is Sunday."

That's what the Knicks have to think about too. Two games ago, they seemed to have the National Basketball Association's Eastern Conference finals neatly wrapped up. They led the Celtics 3-1 in the best-of-seven series, and Boston's captain and scoring leader, John Havlicek, could barely raise his right arm because of torn shoulder muscles.

It looked like a cinch that the Knicks would finish off the Celtics and advance to the finals for a rematch of last year's championship series, when the Los Angeles Lakers swept to the title in five games.

Now it's a dogfight again. On Wednesday night in Boston, the Celtics watched a big lead shrivel and die, then scrambled for a 98-97 victory. And Friday night in New York's Madison Square Garden, they played the Knicks evenly for 43 minutes, then ran away behind Dave Cowens, White and Havlicek for a 110-100 triumph that deadlocked the best-of-seven series at three games apiece.

On Sunday in Boston the Celtics have a chance to relive a bit of history: in the 1968 playoffs they trailed Philadelphia 3-1 in the Eastern finals, but won the last three games and then beat Los Angeles in six for the NBA crown.

The Knicks have no thoughts of crumbling.

"There's no doubt in my mind that we're the best ball club," said New York's Earl Monroe, who scored 22 points to support teammate Walt Frazier's game-high 29. "We just have to go out and prove it. We have to go up there and win."

Just about everybody on and off the court agreed that Cowens, who led Boston with 26 points and triggered a run of a dozen straight points in the closing minutes, made the difference Friday night.

Everybody but Cowens, that is.

"I was pleased with the way I played...but not especially satisfied," said the 6-foot-9 Cowens, the NBA's Most Valuable Player, who hit from inside, outside end everywhere in between, and hauled in 14 rebounds, repeatedly muscling the Knicks out from under the boards.

Busby Continues To Nix Tigers

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Steve Busby is a no-no for the Detroit Tigers.

The Tigers couldn't get a hit off the Kansas City rookie in spring training—and continued that frustrating inefficiency in the regular season Friday night.

The 3-0 no-hitter, first in the American League since 1970, was called the "greatest thrill of my life" by the 23-year-old righthander. He used a different strategy than in spring training, when he and Doug Bird combined for a no-hitter against Detroit. "Down there at Fort Myers, Fla., I tried to hit spots," explained the blond Busby, a one-time University of Southern California student. "Tonight I threw 75 per cent fastballs and nearly all the rest sliders."

In the other American League games, the Texas Rangers defeated the Milwaukee Brewers 4-2, the Cleveland Indians downed the California Angels 6-2 and the Oakland A's nipped the Baltimore Orioles 4-3 in 12 innings. Two games were rained out—Minnesota at New York and Chicago at Boston.

In the National League, the Chicago Cubs trounced the San Diego Padres 10-2, the Atlanta Braves beat the New York Mets 2-0; the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the Cincinnati Reds 3-1; the Houston Astros nipped the Montreal Expos 6-5 in 10 innings, and the San Francisco Giants trimmed the St. Louis Cardinals 5-0.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Before the Pittsburgh Pirates opened the 1973 baseball season, sports editor Al Abrams of the Post-Gazette predicted that third baseman Rich Hebner could lead the Bucs in hitting. It was the spot often occupied by the late Roberto Clemente who hit above .300 in 13 of his 18 seasons in the national League.

In the 7-5 opening-game victory over the St. Louis Cardinals, Hebner cracked out three hits in four efforts and drove in three runs. He hit a home run, a double and a single.

Goldsboro Nips Rose For Track Title

Robersonville Tops Bullets

ROBERSONVILLE The Robersonville Golden Eagles won their third stright Martin County Conference baseball game Friday, taking a 6-0 decision over Jamesville.

Robersonville's Matt Wilson threw a three-hitter at Jamesville. He struck out 14 and walked six on the way to the victory.

Robersonville scored first in the second-inning, getting two runs. Neno Hayes singled and stole second. Kim Knox walked and Jeff Warren reached when his third strike went by the catcher, loading the bases. Ricky Brown then singled to drive in both Hayes and Knox.

In the third, the Eagles came up with two more runs. Wilson walked and Larry Jackson reached on an error. Wilson advanced on a fly out, and the two runners pulled a double steal, with Wilson scoring. Hayes then doubled to drive in Jackson.

In the sixth, the final two Robersonville runs came in. Jeff Warren walked and Ricky Brown reached on an error. Doug Warren hit into a fielder's choice that got Brown. Wilson then singled, driving in both runners.

Hayes led the Robersonville hitting with two.

The Eagles were to travel to Bertie on Saturday night.

NEW BERN — A key injury in the first running event of the day cost Rose High School its Division II track title here Friday night.

Hurdler Matthew Clark tripped over the first hurdle in the 120-yard high hurdles, and was unable to continue over the rainswept course. He also was unable to compete in the low hurdles later in the evening, and he was favored to win both events. That would have added 12 points to the Rampant total.

Rose finished with 69 points, seven behind winning Goldsboro which collected 76. New Bern was third with 57, followed by Wilson with 42. Rocky Mount put together only eight points, and Kinston did not participate in the meet.

The Rampant team was also hampered by several members of the team choosing not to run but to attend the Junior-Senior Dance held by the school Friday night.

Rose captured first place in six events during the meet, while Goldsboro won five individual events, plus one of the relays. New Bern won two individual events, and the other relay, while Wilson took first in only one event.

Al Hunter of Rose was the meet's lone triple winner, capturing the discus, the 100 and the 220. His winning time in the 100, 9.8 seconds, was a new divisional record.

The only other double winner was Goldsboro's Carl Foskey, who won the 440 and the high hurdles.

One other record was set in the meet, as Goldsboro's Riddle threw the shot 53 feet, one-quarter inch.

The Rampants will join other teams from the Northeastern part of the State in the High School Sectional meet to be held at East Carolina University on Friday.

McKeon Felt It Was Inevitable

By LARRY PALADINO Associated Press Sports Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Kansas City Manager Jack McKeon figured it was inevitable that Steve Busby would pitch a no-hitter.

He told him so last year, when the young right-hander was pitching for him at Omaha, the Royals' Triple-A farm club.

"He was pitching a no-hitter against Tulsa," related McKeon. "Then he gave up a single in the ninth inning. I went out there and told him, 'Don't worry about it. You'll pitch a no-hitter in the big leagues.'"

"He'll pitch a couple more, too," the first-year Royals field boss added, after the 23-year-old rookie pitched a 3-0 no-hit victory over the Detroit Tigers Friday night.

Busby walked six and struck out four in becoming the first American League hurler to pitch a no-hitter since Oakland's Vida Blue against Minnesota Sept. 21, 1970.

"I'm just flabbergasted. I don't know what to say," the 6-foot-2, 205-pounder from Fullerton, Calif., said between "thank you's" to the hoard of teammates who flocked to him offering congratulations.

"This is the greatest thrill in my life," he added, somehow sounding less excited than his fellow Royals, who were yelling with joy at his effort. It was the first no-hitter in Kansas City's 18 years of major league baseball, including 13 years the Oakland Athletics franchise was in K.C.

Busby had combined with a three-inning relief job by Doug Bird to pitch a no-hit exhibition game against Detroit in Florida this year. Busby later no-hit St. Louis for seven innings and earned the starting nod in the Royals' opening game.

He lost 3-2, then beat Chicago 12-5 and was clobbered by the White Sox 16-2. His earned-run average entering the Tiger game was 8.04. He had given up 26 hits and 14 earned runs in 15 2-3 innings.

"He skipped his last turn," McKeon said. "People were saying I lost faith in the guy. But he just had a stiff shoulder."

Busby got behind many batters, yet got the right pitches when he needed them.

"I had to change my grip in the fourth inning because my ball was sinking and running away from the batters," he said. "I wanted it to go into them."

McKeon, who had relievers warming up several times and went out once to talk to Busby late in the game, said he had no intention of removing him unless Detroit got some hits.

"If he walked the bases loaded or walked a run in I wouldn't have taken him out," McKeon insisted.

It was the first no-hitter at Tiger Stadium since Detroit's Virgil Trucks had one May 15, 1952, in a 1-0 triumph over Washington.

The last time one was thrown against the Tigers at home was June 30, 1948—Bob Lemon's 2-0 game for Cleveland.

Detroit's last game without a hit was Sept. 10, 1967 in Chicago, when Joe Horlen blanked the Tigers 6-0.

Pearson Named Driver Of Year

NEW YORK AP—David Pearson, winner of the last three 500-mile races on the South's big stock car ovals, has been voted the outstanding performer in the first phase of the Martini and Rossi driver of the year contest for 1973.

A panel of automotive sports writers selected Pearson as the top man by a margin of nine points, 90 to 81, over Peter Gregg, a Jacksonville, Fla., sports car driver.

Pearson, driving the Wood Brothers Mercury, has three wins in five starts this year, while Gregg was codriver with Hurley Haywood in the swing car in the Daytona 24-hour and the Sebring 12-hour races. He also captured the first Trans-Am sedan race of the season at Atlanta two weeks ago.

Third place went to stock car ace Richard Petty, who wound up only 21 points behind Pearson. Al Unser, Mario Andretti and A. J. Foyt, crack drivers on the United States Auto Club championship circuit, placed fourth, fifth and sixth, respectively.

Also receiving votes were Bobby Unser and 1972 Indianapolis winner Mark Donohue.

Two other ballots, in July and November, will determine the year's over-all winner. The award pays a $7,500 cash bonus and the M&R Golden Eagles trophy. Three runners-up receive $1,000 each.

WINNERS IN EACH EVENT WERE: 100, Green (V) 11.5; 220, Anderson (B) 27.0; 440, Tripp (V) 1:04.6; 880, Hathaway (B) 2:38.4; 880 relay, Belvoir, 1:51.8; mile relay, Belvoir 4:35; long jump, Green (V) 16-5; high jump, Pettaway (B) 5-1; discus, Brown (B) 107-5; Shot put, Vines (B) 41-8.

North Lenior Nips Jaguars

WHEAT SWAMP North Lenior nipped Farmville Central, 3-2, in an 11-inning Eastern Carolina Conference game Friday afternoon.

Farmville pushed into the lead in the first inning of play, scoring a pair of runs. Glenn Dwyer singled and Phil Lewis got a hit. Tommy Cobb singled, driving in Dwyer, and Bobby Wooten reached on an error, loading the bases. Tony Oakley hit into a fielder's choice that got Lewis at the plate, but on the attempt for the double play, an error allowed Cobb to come around.

North Lenior pushed over a run in the second. Gary Battle singled and stole second. He moved to third on an out and scored when Ronnie Sutton reached on an error.

In the fifth, North Lenior pushed over the tying run. Ronnie Dawson walked and Sutton doubled. Pete Avery walked, and Mike Eubanks also walked, forcing in Dawson.

It stayed at 2-2 until the 11th inning when North Lenior got the winning run. Sutton walked and Avery was hit by a pitch. Eubanks reached on an error, and another error on the relay allowed Sutton to score, ending the game.

Dwyer had two hits to lead Farmville, while Avery had three for North Lenior.

The average Navy Pilot isn't.

No man who has mastered the flying skills it takes to fly and land on a ship at sea can be called an average pilot. And the sense of accomplishment and satisfaction that he enjoys are also above average. Which is only right. For the man who would go places as a Naval Aviator must pass through the most challenging and demanding training program to be found anywhere.

From Aviation Officer Candidate School through Flight Training to the day his golden Navy Wings are awarded, he is tested, driven, pushed and tested again. And for good reason. The Navy has learned that without the will to succeed, no man can be successful.

The benefits aren't average either. A Naval Aviator can earn up to $10,000 upon completion of flight school. The pay after three years is up to $14,500. There is also a program for obtaining a masters degree at no cost. The Navy gives its Aviators the best. Which brings us to you. Do you have what it takes to fly Navy? Send in this coupon and find out. Or talk with your local Navy recruiter.

Gentlemen: I like it. Please send more information on what it takes to be a Naval Aviator.

Wildlife Afield: No Solo Fishing

By JIM DEAN
I know people—and so do you—who are driven to absolute panic when faced with the prospect of spending as much as five minutes alone.

I've even had angling acquaintances who refused to go fishing when it became apparent that there was no one available to go with them.

"Are you sure you can't go with me this afternoon," pleaded one friend recently.

"Absolutely," I said. "Much as I'd like to, there's just no way I can make it."

"But you're my last chance," came the soulful answer. I've tried everybody, and nobody I know can go. I guess I'll just have to skip it until another day."

Now I'll admit that there have been days when I felt sorta like that, but I can't remember many. The fact is that fishing alone is one of life's most underrated pleasures. For instance, when I am alone, I get along with myself very well. I rarely disagree with myself, and I feel no guilt when I am selfish.

If I want to drift with my hands folded behind my head, I can do so without irking any companions who might be otherwise inclined. I never argue politics, religion or sex with myself because I already know what I think about all these things, and I am comfortable with my prejudices.

If I want to diddle away the afternoon fishing for bluegills so small you could mail 'em with an eight-cent stamp, I do it. If I want to fish solely for largemouth bass using glass-eyed wooden minnows, I do it. If I go trout fishing, I don't have to be a polite hypocrite and offer the best stretch of water to my companion.

It is, as I have said, a form of enjoyment that is probably born in selfishness, but there's more to it than that. As much as I love camaraderie—and some trips are lost without it—I find that fishing alone restores the spirit more than any other single thing I do. Give me an occasional day when time runs free, and I can no more pass it up than a kid can pass a pile of leaves without jack-knifing into their midst.

I had such a day one recent weekend. The week's work was over, the lawn was mowed and the family was busy with projects.

I gathered my fishing gear, loaded it into the car and drove slowly out to the country toward a nearby lake that I suspected would be deserted because it is one of those old millponds that have been forgotten in the competitive rush to larger, newer impoundments.

I rode with the windows open and the radio turned off, feeling the cool breeze sliding through the windows and hearing the chorus of spring peepers in every creek bottom. Lavender swatches of spring were in the farmyards, and the hardwoods were a pale, hazy green.

Had I not been alone, I would have missed it all while talking about the inexplicable affairs of confused mankind—at topic that profits no one.

At the lake, I loaded the boat and spent the first couple of hours plugging the black water along the stumpy banks for bass. Then, I ate a bag of peanuts and drank a warm soft drink. I arranged the boat cushions and stretched out in the boat. A green heron stalked the muddy bank only a few feet away, and a beaver swam across the head of the pond, close enough for me to get a good look.

Turtles, unalarmed by the quietly drifting boat, climbed out on logs and stacked themselves on top of one another like poker chips. After a while, I fell asleep. When I awoke, the shadows stretched across the lake and feeding fish dimpled the surface.

I splashed water on my face, paddled to a nearby bank and quickly caught and released three scrappy bass. By then it was dark and the owls were hooting on the ridge.

"But I can't see how you can enjoy fishing alone," my friend would say. Well, who said I was really alone. I was only by myself.

Fiberglass Boats Do Need To Be Maintained; Given Paint Job

By JACK WOLISTON
NEW YORK (UPI) — If a fiberglass boat is well-maintained, it should be years before the owner needs to wield a paint brush on her hull, cabin top and deck surfaces.

But fiberglass boats have to be painted occasionally to restore their showroom appearance when the outside gel coat begins to grow dull from extended exposure to sun and sea water and to keep the bottom free of barnacles and algae growth.

"Crazing," or hairline cracks, of the gel coat from stresses or other causes, abrasions and scratches from dockside rubbing and other superficial damage also may require partial or complete painting of the boat.

The secret to a successful paint job is a well-prepared surface.

The first step is a good scrubbing with warm water and detergent followed by a hosing down to remove all dirt. When the surface is dry, power sand away all sheen to a "matte" finish with 80-120 grit paper. Above the waterline sand again with finer paper (240-320) to eliminate minute scratches.

Step is important
Dust thoroughly, then wipe down the surface with a fiberglass solvent. This step is particularly important with newer boats to get rid of the waxy release agent used in construction to prevent the hull from adhering to its mold. It could have the same effect on paint.

Next repair gashes and deep scratches. For this purpose there are any number of fillers, glazing compounds or fiberglass putties on the market. Probably the best are those with an epoxy resin base because this type gives a better chemical bond with the old surface.

After filling-in, these areas should be hand-sanded flush with the surface, starting with coarse grit paper and working up to 320 or 400 grit paper.

Is an undercoat required above the waterline? Most paint manufacturers concede that it is to provide the proper chemical bonding of the final coat, especially if there are numerous scratches or repairs. But when the old coating is in good condition, some paints, which are so advertised, can be applied without primer.

Use Anti-Fouling Paint
Remembering that algae and barnacles can slow the speed of the boat and that barnacles can cause pits in the hull up to 1/4 inch deep, don't forget to use a good anti-fouling paint on the bottom. Usually your marine paint shop can recommend the most suitable anti-fouling paint for your boating area.

Here are some tips for painting:
—Don't paint when moisture—fog, rain, mist, dew or frost—will affect the surface. For example, if you paint late into the afternoon, the surface will not be dry when the evening dew forms.

—Don't paint when the sun is at its strongest. Laps will appear and the surface may wrinkle. Work in the early morning as soon as the dew is gone and the surface is dry. Avoid painting in direct, hot sunlight, trying instead to work in shaded areas.

—Select a paint compatible with the existing finish—no hard paint over an elastic surface; no paint with strong solvents over normal oxidizing surfaces. It's best to consult an authority.

Remove Sag
—If you spot a sag, remove it with a virtually dry brush. Finish with vertical brush strokes, if possible.

—Thin paint only when necessary; that is, when it is quite difficult to apply.

—If you cannot push your thumbnail through a newly painted surface, or only with the greatest difficulty, the surface is sufficiently dry for a second coat.

—Follow directions put on the can by the manufacturer. Different paints dry differently—by evaporation, oxidation, chemical reaction or evaporation coupled with binding of paint particles. Not following directions may inhibit drying and even ruin the finish.

Most important probably is surface preparation. If this is done correctly and paint is applied in the manner recommended by the manufacturer, a workmanlike job should result.

United States, Russians Collide In Six-Game Basketball Series

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The United States and Russia collide in a six-game basketball series starting Sunday, but it won't be a replay of the controversial gold medal game of last summer's Olympics.

"If we felt we had to prove ourselves," says Soviet Coach Vladimir Kandraschin, whose Olympic team won a disputed 51-50 decision over the Americans at Munich, "we would have brought along our most experienced team."

Still, the USSR national team bears greater resemblance to its Olympic squad than does the Bob Cousy-coached collection of U.S. collegiate stars.

Cousy's team, which plays the 13th. It was the third time in five matches she had closed out an opponent on the 13th green.

Mrs. Booth said she "just couldn't get it going and Beth played very well, making no mistakes."

There were those who called the U.S. Olympic team less than representative, especially without Walton, and Cousy, responding to the question of how well he expected his team to do, said:

"I think we'll have a very representative team. If we don't hold our own, you have the coach to blame."

The Russians won seven out of eight games in a 1971 tour of the United States but Coach Kandraschin says he is pessimistic this time.

"We left three of our Olympic players at home because we wanted to give younger players a chance," he said. "This is the height of the American basketball season. Your team should be better."

Cousy, ex-Boston Celtic great who coaches the Kansas City-Omaha team in the National Basketball Association, said the U.S. Olympic team was beaten when it played a deliberate game against Russia, but the Americans will accelerate play as well as press on defense.

"Good—perhaps we will learn something," Kandraschin said. His assistant, Sergei Bashkin, said the Soviets understand the distress of the Americans last summer "but we do not think there is a taint on our victory at all."

Walton, a junior who has been national collegiate player of the year the past two seasons for the champion Bruins, has said he intends to play in only the first two games.

Besides Walton's skills, Cousy has Providence's All-American guard, Ernie DiGregorio, and two Olympic veterans, 6-3 guard Tom Henderson from Hawaii and 6-9 forward Bobby Jones from North Carolina. Olympians Jim Brewer, 6-9, Minnesota, and Doug Collins, Illinois State All-American guard, were picked for the team but won't play. Brewer said he doesn't want to miss classes and Collins has an ankle injury.

High game, Margaret Evans 208; High series, Pat Hardison 533.

Beth Barry Is N-S Golf Champ

By KEN ALYTA
Associated Press Sports Writer
PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — In two years Beth Barry has moved from North and South Amateur Golf Tournament semifinals loser, to runnerup, to champion.

The 24-year-old from Mobile, Ala., completed her march to the top with a surprisingly easy 6 and 5 conquest of Mrs. Jane Booth in the finals Friday, then had this comment:

"Jane has been super for so many years, it just makes you feel great to be able to beat her. It's just like Lee Trevino has said about Jack Nicklaus—it's great to be able to beat her once in a while."

Miss Barry, who last month received her master's degree in physical education from the University of South Alabama, then hopped down to Mexico City to win the Mexican Amateur, may have another chance soon to test her skills against those of Mrs. Booth, her Curtis Cup teammate last summer.

Both are entered in the Southern Amateur at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., starting May 7. Miss Barry has won the tournament the last two years.

Mrs. Booth, a 25-year-old California native who now lives in Palm Beach Gardens, Fla., will be making her first appearance in the southern. She has won more than a dozen prestige events since 1967.

Their match Friday under darkened skies was played in a blustery wind after more than an inch of rain had fallen during the night on the No. 2 course at the Pinehurst Country Club.

Miss Barry won with astonishing ease. She took the first hole with a par four as her opponent three-putted, and never relinquished the lead. Beth went on to one-putt six greens for a total of 13 in two days.

She was two under par for the 13 holes, leaving her with a net of three-over for five winning matches on the course which was shortened to 5,900 yards.

Beth made the turn five up with a front-nine 34, three under women's par.

Her putter repeatedly asserted itself. She saved a par four with a 10-footer on the 11th hole after her second shot had landed on the side of a bunker.

The match ended, characteristically, with her seven-foot putt for a winning par four on

Good Vacation In Touring America

By PAUL R. ALLERUP
United Press International

Europe and the Orient and other far places undoubtedly have lures for vacation planners, but it is the undiscriminating American who doesn't give thought to seeing America first. There is so much to see and do in these United States, in fact, that it would take several lifetimes of vacations to encompass it all.

And this might be just the year for it, since in the rest of the world the American dollar has been cheapened by devaluation—a devaluation that has no effect on the dollars you spend in this country. Prices are high to be sure, but there are bargains to be found if you shop for them.

Where to go? What to do? No tour guide can do more than simply suggest the possibilities. Florida and Walt Disney World? Or California and Disneyland? That most awesome of natural wonders anywhere in the world, the Grand Canyon? Yosemite? The Painted Desert? The California redwood forests? Utah and the Great Salt Lake? New Orleans and its French Quarter? New York and the United Nations; or its theater? Niagara Falls? Hawaii and hula girls? The old ports of New England? Washington, D.C.? Atlanta and the Old South? The Rocky Mountains or the Great Smokies? Texas and the Alamo?

Package Tours
Wherever you are, whatever interests you, the United States offers the vacationer a variety unmatched anywhere in the world. There are no royal guards saluting a monarch, but neither are there waiters who don't speak your language or shopkeepers talking in money terms you can't understand. No customs agents, either, to bedevil you as you move from place to place.

Probably never before have so many been trying so hard to point up the attractions of holidays in America. Package tours of every description abound, whether you travel by car, plane, bus or ship. Almost every major carrier now offers package trips that include lodging and meals if desired, or lodging and meals and car. You can fly from just about anywhere in the United States to just about anywhere else and find a car waiting. You can fly-and-sail in combination plane and cruise trips. You can board trains that will take you on a wide variety of sightseeing trips. The combinations are almost without end and every travel agent can tell you about them.

For many, nothing beats the vacation in the family car. Nowhere in the world has auto travel been made easier or more comfortable. American roads are the world's best. American motels and hotels are the finest and most of them offer services, food and accommodations that only the luxury hotels afford in foreign lands. Travel by car is not cheap, however, and the gasoline shortage may pose problems. A family of three, covering perhaps 350 miles a day, probably would have to budget in the vicinity of $50 a day for food, rooms and car maintenance. It can be done for less and it can cost more; it's all a matter of personal preference. A room can cost $8-$12 a night or it can run to $25-$40. Breakfasts can run from $1 to $5 or more per person, but can be controlled. Lunches the same. Most road travelers save their "best meal" of the day for dinner, but here again a good dinner can cost anywhere from $3-$5 per person to $10-$15 or more. Depends on your pocketbook. In choice of a motel, if you aren't carrying a motel guide, appearance is generally a good clue to the sort of place it is. One tip: the multilaned interstate highways are great for covering distance, especially early in the trip when your main aim is to get a-w-a-y. But get off them from time to time, both to rest yourselves and to see the country.

Combination Trips
All the airlines are all-out to serve the vacationer with special-interest and packaged trips. Prices among the various airlines vary little and recently have been undergoing revisions and need to be checked with your airlines or travel agent. The competition comes mainly in combination trips and services offered. They cover a wide range. Some examples: American Airlines offers an "American Experience" package trip to California for a week that includes six nights at a first class motel, a car for a full week and unlimited mileage. TWA has a "U.S.A." package that includes roundtrip between most cities, three nights paid accommodations, and a car for a week. United Airlines calls its fly-drive special "Wings and Wheels." Braniff has packaged a Texas trip that includes roundtrip flight and motel-hotel accommodations. National Airlines features a "Florida Sailaway" that combines plane trip with a Caribbean cruise. Every airline has its own thing and they'll be only too happy to explain it if you travel agent can't.

The major bus lines sell all sorts of trip tickets for long or short journeys and if you haven't been on a longhaul bus lately you have a surprise coming. Snacks enroute. Stewardesses on the deluxe trips. Toilets. Lounging seats. Other than driving your own car there are few better ways to really see the country than by bus; it's people-to-people traveling all the way.

Train travel has gone somewhat out of fashion in recent years and some of America's finest and most famous trains have disappeared. Yet train buffs need not despair. Travel agents or, in large cities, Amtrak offices, have on tap many organized train tours, some of them two or more hotel-motel accommodations, food and sightseeing itineraries. There are tours, for instance, to Walt Disney World, to Yosemite and other national parks, to New Orleans, the Pacific Northwest, San Francisco, New England. Train lovers still do have some inducements to stick to the rails.

So, if this is your year to see America, you've got a lot going for you. The country waits.

Before We Talk Money...

A Few Words About Us: We're in vocational training. It's our only business — and we're good at it. Our Tractor-Trailer Driver and Heavy Equipment Schools are among the biggest in the nation. Recognized and accredited by NHSC and approved for Veterans Training. Our equipment is modern and complete: our training methods are the most advanced in the field. That's why our graduates get jobs. A.T.S. is listed on the AMEX; fast moving and fast growing. Our people are young, dedicated to perfection.

Now A Few Words About You: Are you one of the men we're going to choose to become our partners in clearly defined, protected areas of about three-quarters of a million people? If you are, you will head an organization responsible for student enrollment. You'll be in business for yourself, so you'll have to be a good businessman. You'll have to understand that it takes hard work to make money. And you'll want to make a lot — quickly!

What's Involved: Surprisingly little. No building. No site. No fixtures. No inventory. You'll need about $15,000 to get started depending on the territory.

The Rewards: Big. Big Money. Our average enrollment agent, and we have 30, clears better than $25,000 annually. Big prestige. You will be the president of an important business in this city. Big future. It's a business that can only grow — and with it a future that's very secure for you.

What's Next: Now you make us back up our claims. Now you decide if we should be partners. Now we talk. (I'm Karl Friedrichs, and I'm the head man).

Girls Learn Crochet By Making Garments

The craft of crochet is alive and flourishing in Greenville.

Interest in crochet for the younger citizens, especially one group of young ladies, is the result of the efforts of Mrs. Evelyn Spangler, Associate Home Economics Extension Agent for Pitt County.

Mrs. Spangler began the class in crochet as an experiment. She wanted to find answers to two questions: how long does it take young girls to learn to crochet and can beginners learn to crochet by making something useful instead of following the older method of making rows and rows or practice stitches.

Having worked with 4-H clubs and other groups of young people, Mrs. Spangler felt that ages 10 to 14 were good ages with which to begin.

"I know Betty and Elaine Yancey and asked them if they were interested in learning to crochet. They were.

"I asked them if they thought others their age might be interested and the results were exciting.

"Jane Johnson, Catherine Harper, Lou Ormond, Carolyn Hill, Anne Sugg and Dorsey Sanderson joined them for the Friday afternoon class at the Yancey home," continued Mrs. Spangler.

Mrs. Spangler admitted that she had apprehensions about a four o'clock Friday afternoon meeting time, thinking that perhaps the girls would not be as eager to learn after having spent a full week at school. Her fears were immediately dismissed.

Also, these eight girls were very much involved in school and outside activities and Friday afternoon was just the only day available.

Patterns

Mrs. Spangler guided each girl to select the pattern she wanted to follow. Each girl selected her own yarn.

She insisted that each girl learn to read and follow her own pattern.

"Too many people do not seem to be interested enough to learn to read a pattern," Mrs. Spangler commented.

By the end of the third month of meeting once weekly (twelve classes), Mrs. Spangler had the answers to both questions which were raised in the beginning—each of the girls had completed one garment or was far enough along that she could finish it at home.

Age No Factor

"I was very pleased with the interest and effort these girls put forth. Their results also show that age is not an important factor in learning to crochet," she explained.

Mrs. Spangler, who only learned to crochet in the fall, through a course taught at Pitt Tech, also wanted to reach that age group which has no other learning facility available.

"Needlecrafts are taught at Pitt Tech and at the Greenville Recreation Center, but neither is open to those younger than sixteen.

"I also wanted to reach that group which is unable to work Home Economics into their curriculum at school," she added.

Mrs. Spangler also noted that it was not as fashionable to learn crafts such as crochet and knitting when the mothers of these young ladies were in their teens. However, many grandmothers know how to do the needlecrafts.

Classes

"I would like to see grandmothers help in rekindling interest in crochet and other needlecrafts. I can easily foresee a group of Senior Citizens teaching the young people," she said.

"As a matter of fact, we find that this has been a good way to bridge the generation gap between the older ladies and teenagers.

"One grandmother exclaimed happily a few weeks ago, that finally, she and her granddaughter had something in common—they both loved to crochet!

"You don't have to be well experienced in crochet to teach it," Mrs. Spangler continued, "but you do need to be able to read direction."

Mrs. Spangler hopes to have the opportunity to try the same thing with knitting.

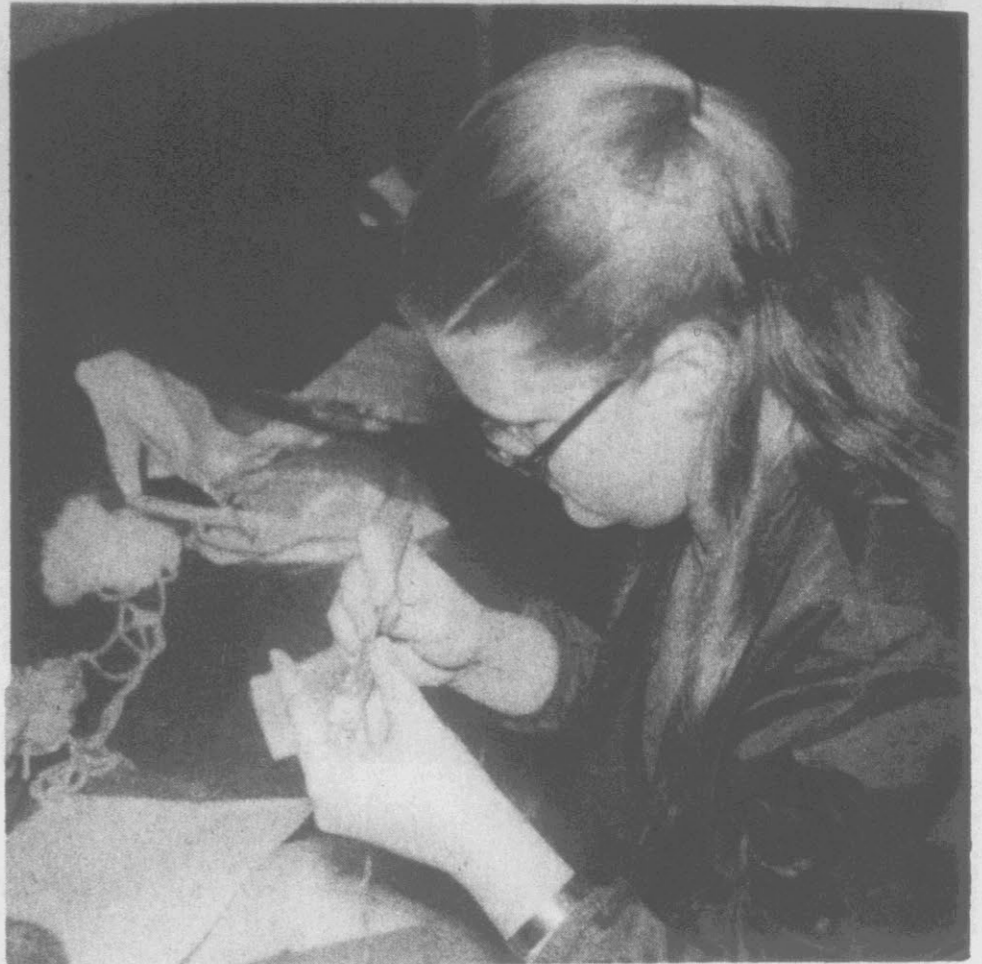

She also hopes to have the opportunity to work with some adults in setting up classes in Greenville and Pitt County for all ages.

"If any adults are interested in teaching crochet, I will be most happy to work with them.

"If I could get eight adults and teach them how to begin teaching, then perhaps they could start this kind of class in their neighborhoods or communities," Mrs. Spangler added.

Was the experiment in teaching crochet successful?

"Beyond my hopes, most certainly yes," she exclaimed.

Lively MD Plugs Her Book On Birth Defects

By EDWARD J. DOHERTY
NEW YORK (WNS) — If you think you're busy, consider Dr. Virginia Apgar.

At 63 she is attending Johns Hopkins medical school at Baltimore fulltime, working toward her fourth academic degree, Master of Health Science, which is the specialty of epidemiology and genetics.

Simultaneously she is holding down her fulltime job as vice president for medical affairs of the National Foundation-March of Dimes in New York by putting her nights, weekends and days-off to good use.

And in her spare time she is flying around the United States to take part in tightly scheduled radio and television shows to plug a new book of which she is co-author with Joan Beck — "Is My Baby All Right?"

Yet on the day she was interviewed over a hearty lunch she was as frisky as a kitten with catnip, and forthright — even racy — in speech.

Book Something New
Her book (she refers to it casually as IMBAR, an acronym of the title) is something new under the sun. It is a frank and complete revelation of everything you've always wanted to know about birth defects, but were afraid to ask.

Dr. Apgar and Joan Beck, a columnist and writer for the Chicago Tribune, were more than six years collaborating on this 492-page volume, with the doctor providing the expertise and Mrs. Beck, the unsentimental writing approach that makes it readable.

"Is My Baby All Right?" is an informative, if grim, book for people who have had the misimpression all their lives that birth defects are simply unavoidable accidents. Some are, of course, but one of the big points Dr. Apgar tries to get across is that other defects can be foreseen and prepared for, or avoided, or corrected.

Her knowledge of the subject comes mainly from her experience in treating 17,000 newborn babies during nearly 30 years as a practicing physician and as professor of anesthesiology at Columbia College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Few others have had such extensive experience in the field. Dr. Apgar was the 50th physician-anesthesiologist ever qualified in the U.S., and is now one of the acknowledged leaders of the 6,000 practitioners of this branch of medicine. She has also served as clinical professor of pediatrics at Cornell University Medical College in New York City.

Seven In Every Hundred
How does an anesthesiologist get to be an expert on birth defects? "From default," she explained. "The obstetrician is so busy looking after the mother following a birth that the anesthesiologist almost automatically takes over care of the baby. That makes good sense, since problems of the airway and breathing belong to the anesthesiologist.

"Years ago we didn't know much about birth defects. I missed a lot of them, but I found a lot, too. The subject so interested me that at the age of 50 I earned a degree as Master of Public Health at Johns Hopkins."

The generally accepted incidence of babies with birth defects is seven in every 1000 births. But, say the authors, in IMBAR, "In fact, some recent studies in which babies have been examined carefully at birth and during the first year of life suggest that the incidence is almost twice as high as this estimate."

On the more conservative basis, some 250,000 children are born with defects in this country every year, and the authors estimate that 1.4 million are born annually throughout the world with one or more significant defects. "Hundreds of different birth defects are known to occur because there is a mistake in the blueprint contained in the genes which provide the set of instructions for a baby's prenatal growth," notes IMBAR.

"This error can be so small that it involves only one of tens of thousands of genes in the egg or sperm that combined to start the infant — a mistake comparable to misspelled word in a whole book.

"Or the abnormality may be caused by an entire chromosome — almost as in there were an extra chapter or some misplaced pages in a book of directions for making a baby."

There are many other causes of defects that range from birthmarks to mongoloidism. They are meticulously explored in "Is My Baby All Right?" — a title that derives from the first question most women ask immediately after delivery.

And the defects themselves, with their impact on the lives of the children and parents, are described in great details.

Does Dr. Apgar think pregnant women and others of childbearing age should read this book? Her eyebrows arch in amazement at such a foolish question. "Of course, I do! Everybody should know about these hazards. Why there are 2,000 birth defects which are genetic in origin, so that many couples ought to have genetic counseling."

Doctor A Victim

The doctor herself is a victim of a birth defect that resulted in the removal of her stomach two years ago, but her only comment about it was, "It's a wonderful way to lose weight."

Nor has it slowed down this energetic woman who, though her hair is gray, looks much younger than her age, laughs loud and often, and is an enthusiastic booster for the work her March of Dimes organization is doing in the field of birth defects.

She has expressive blue eyes behind clear glasses. She wore a suit of fire engine red, the skirt falling to the knees, and calf-length leather boots. The combination gave her trim, five-foot-nine figure a girlish look.

Asked about her pearl earrings, she unclipped them and tossed them in the interviewer to show that they were held together with glue.

"I have no interest in jewelry," she explained. "Any I've ever had came from patients — and I haven't had patients for 13 years. That tells you how ancient

A Pilot Too

But she does have other interests. She is learning to fly a single-engine Cessna. "I waited until my mother died at 96 before taking lessons," she said. "I love flying, and I think I like tail spins best of all."

But her conversation always returns to medicine and The Book. "Several years ago at the March of Dimes we published a compendium on birth defects. We never could sell it to laymen, although it's had big distribution within the profession," she said ruefully.

"The problem of birth defects is a big one — ten times as great as polio ever was. And people ought to know what the facts are, ought to know about genetic counseling and many other precautions they can take to avoid having defective babies."

The authors believe much can be done. "Reading a book like this, so full of things that can go wrong during pregnancy, can be frightening to a man and woman who want to have a child," they point out. "It should, instead, be enormously encouraging."

Prenatal Advice

The section of the book titled "How to Prevent Birth Defects" cites great progress made in recent years and says "Probably more than half of the birth defects which now occur could be prevented."

The book sets forth 17 recommendations to increase the likelihood that prospective parents will have babies healthy at birth. Among them are suggestions for who needs genetic counseling, the safest ages for child-bearing and procreation, the safest spacing of pregnancies, the importance of adequate prenatal care, and others.

We asked Dr. Apgar if she had any children of her own. "I've never married," she replied. "I haven't had time yet." Then she flashed one of her frequent grins. "When I find a fellow without whom I can't live, I'll get married that night."

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

An antique lawn show and sale and a home tour is being held today in Kinston for the benefit of Southwood Christian Church. Beginning at 11 this morning, the event will continue until dusk.

The antique show is being held on the grounds of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Stroud, 111 Tyree Rd.

The federal style home of Mr. and Mrs. Stroud will be open to the public beginning at noon and continuing until dusk. This will also be a benefit for the church.

Dealer from Eastern North Carolina will be on hand for the show and sale.

Chinqua-Penn Plantation House, which attracted a record number of visitors last year, has been reopened to the public for the new season.

Located in Reidsville, Chinqua-Penn was constructed in 1925 by the late Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson Penn. In 1959, Mrs. Penn gave the Chinqua-Penn to the University of North Carolina.

UNC-G has charge of the operation of the mansion and 36 acres of surrounding grounds and has opened the house to the public in order that the beautiful gardens, art treasures and furnishings may be enjoyed.

A priceless collection of furnishings and art objects fill the many rooms at Chinqua-Penn House. The furniture is primarily from the European countries. Although the objects of art are predominantly Oriental, there are also many pieces of religious art.

The collection includes temple altar pieces from Nepal covered with semi-precious stones, rare Chinese terra cotta sculptures, Flemish tapestries, a 15th century Byzantine mosaic, two life-size Chinese statues circa 700 A.D., and many other unique treasures collected by Mr. and Mrs. Penn in their travels over the world.

Fashionable Men Will Cut It Close, Short

By ALISON LERRICK PARIS (AP) — Would George Washington have followed fashion? Men who do will soon be parting with long hair and ponytails.

All of a sudden, women are tired of that primeval look in men's hair. The Syndicat de la Haute Coiffure Masculine Francais has shown its new styles.

The name is "Masculine Plural," which brings to mind a hard day translating Caesar. But the translation is simple enough: short hair is back with a vengeance for men.

The four French hair styles of the year range from long to short. But "long" just brushes the collar. All four are good for the office and will bring joy to the hearts of mothers everywhere.

With the new layered hair-cuts, men won't look as if they have just — or should have — taken out their rollers.

The "short" look is well off the face and exposes the ears. The new short hair is for men who, experts say, "carry their ideas through to the end." You need regular features to carry it off.

In between are half-short and half-long styles. The difference is subtle. In the first, the forehead is half-bare and so are the ears. The half-long is sort of straggly and shapeless looking, which most men seem to favor these days. It goes with current fashions like the checked shirt and polkadot bow tie.

Most men, at any rate, may be dashing off to their hair-dresser soon. Statistics show

Tea And Topics Officers Named

Family Filmings Show A Lot Of Talking

By ROBERT STRAND SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — With the aid of movie cameras, scientists seeking to learn what makes the American family tick have found a lot of talk, not much laughter and little special zest for living.

The filming has been done by the Family Study station of the University of California Medical Center. Dr. Henry L. Lennard, director of the project, was consulted by the Public Broadcasting System before it made the American Family television series with Pat and Bill Lord.

About 50 families have been filmed by Lennard's staff seeking patterns of family interaction—a subject on which little is known. From the studies, the scientists hope to learn more about how human beings interact in general.

"There has been a theory that people don't talk much in a family setting," says Lennard, a sociologist. "Our data show there is a lot of talk, a lot of interaction."

Not Much Laughter "But not much laughter is going on in the family setting. There aren't many belly laughs. Our most joyful family was all deaf."

Lennard also finds very little physical contact between American family members, including children, in sharp contrast with southern Europeans, for example. In only two of the 50 families was "touching" observed, and Lennard notes "a general lack of intimacy and closeness."

In families including a mental patient to whom tranquilizers are administered, a pattern is developing with worrisome implications for the psychiatrists who prescribe drugs.

The drugs interfere with communication. The patient attempts ineffectively "to be a part of the family action," but tends to be ignored.

If, as family therapists theorize, the patient's basic problem is that he cannot communicate with the family, tranquilizers may be the wrong medicine.

Lennard concedes that the presence of a camera can alter a family's action, but notes that every investigative technique becomes a factor in the situation. Interviewing family members is a method with just another set of research pitfalls.

Most People Forget "Most people almost forget they are being filmed in the first 15 minutes," says Lennard's associate, Dr. Steven Allen.

The filming takes place in a combination living-dining room and kitchen in which a camera is built in. Each family brings its own groceries, for which it is reimbursed, and spends the dinner hours.

"We tell them to stay as long as they want," Allen says, "and it would be nice if they clean up."

In Lennard's project, a film is reviewed as many as 30 times, to catch the subtle body movements, bits of family shorthand and little ways people are ignored.

In some families, a person does not talk unless he is looking at the other person. If so, it is thought the relationship is unsettled, and the speaker always needs clues about the reaction.

In only two families was any notable zest, any special joy in living, evident.

Among social scientists, Lennard says, great debate is developing over whether the family as an institution remains viable.

He does not know the answer.

Couple Speaks Vows In Candlelight Ceremony

Miss Delphia Heath and Steve Douglas Barrington exchanged wedding vows Friday night in a candlelight ceremony at 7:30 at Shelmardine Missionary Baptist Church. The Rev. J. Travis Smith officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Lee Heath of Greenville are parents of the bride. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Willie E. Brame of Grimesland.

The church was decorated by using single lighted candles in each window. In the center of the chancel was a matching 15 branched pyramidal candelabra flanked with baby's breath and palms. On either side of the chancel was an eight branched tree candelabra flanked with baby's breath and palms. A three branched candelabra was used during the ceremony with the bride and bridegroom lighting the two outside candles as they entered the chancel after the bride and bridegroom had spoken their vows they snuffed out the two outside candles after lighting the center one together.

The couple knelt for the benediction on a white satin prie-dieu. The pews were marked with white satin bows.

Mrs. O. J. McLawhorn presented a program of wedding music.

Given in marriage by her brother, Earl Heath of Ayden, the bride wore a formal length white organza gown designed with a high neckline encircled with miniature Venice lace flowers. The sheer yoke was accented by Venice lace and ribbon organza. The bishop sleeves featured deep cuffs of ribbed organza and lace. A matching border of organza and lace edged the hemline and extended around the attached chapel train.

Her elbow length veil of nylon tulle was attached to a crown of pearls accented with tear drops. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of yellow daisies and white miniature carnations tied with streamers of satin and tulle.

Mrs. J. C. Bowen of Winterville, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. She wore a full length gown of yellow dotted swiss flopped with pastel orange blossoms. Ruffles accented the neckline and long puff sleeves. A yellow ribbon accented the empire waistline in the back. The headpiece was a matching bow with yellow illusion. She carried a bouquet of yellow daisies accented with orange streamers.

James Brame, cousin of the bridegroom, served as best man. Ushers were Johnny Flynn of Greenville, and Albert Heath, brother of the bride.

The mothers wore blue street length dresses with matching accessories. Both mothers were presented corsages of white carnations.

The couple will reside in Grimesland.

The bride and bridegroom are both graduates of Winterville High School and attended Pitt Technical Institute. She is employed by Garris-Evans Lumber Co. The bridegroom is self-employed in farming.

Immediately following the ceremony, Mrs. David A. Evans Jr. and Mrs. Willie Beacham, both of Greenville, entertained at a reception at the Winterville Community Building.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bowen of Winterville, brother-in-law and sister of the bridegroom, greeted guests. Mrs. Wilbur Perry presided at the guest register.

The refreshment table was covered with a lace cloth garlanded with ivy and centered with a floral arrangement of spring flowers flanked by silver candleholders on either side.

The bride's table held a three-tiered wedding cake and portrait of the bride. Ivy was garlanded around a white satin cloth.

After the traditional first slice of cake had been cut, Mrs. Evans served cake while Mrs. Beacham poured punch.

Kathy and Angela Brame, cousins of the bridegroom distributed yellow rice bags to the guests.

On Wednesday evening following the rehearsal, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Brame, parents of the bridegroom, entertained members of the wedding party at their home.

Her capacious figure and jolly countenance are recognized by people everywhere. They visit her, too, at Stowe, Vt., at the Trapp Family Lodge. The chalet-like structure with 200 window boxes can accommodate 140 people, she says, and is now run by her son Johannes.

It was a long hard decision for Maria to decide to give up the reins to Johannes, she admits. She had guided the destiny of the family for so long that it was difficult to take a step back. But it was the only thing to do. She was far too generous, they told her, the lodge needed someone to put it on a business basis. Now she is content to wander through the inn greeting guests and to shop abroad for the handicrafts sold in their gift shop. And she has just written another book, "Maria," her fifth.

"I dictated it in two weeks," she says, "pacing back and forth across the floor..."

She is fond of recounting the story of how the lodge began — everybody working with their hands, and then how relatives of the people who were studying at their music camp were accommodated at their own homes. And how soon their own house grew too small and they built wing after wing.

In winter at Stowe she has been doing what comes naturally for her — falling down and getting up, only this time the rainbow is lined with snow.

"For a long while there was no business even though it was so beautiful in the hills," she remarked. "We always had to wait until all the hotels were sold out below before we could get ski business. People just didn't want to come up the hillside to ski..."

"But then God was good...cross country skiing caught on, and we were ideally prepared for it. It had become too expensive for families to outfit children for downhill skiing. Cross country equipment and gear is less costly..."

Even in spring there is skiing with picnics under trees in the warm sunshine. It has become popular with youthful ecologists who like to follow animal footprints through the early morning snow.

The sixty miles of trails were cleared by Johannes, who studied forestry at Yale. Maria broke her back one day while skiing downhill on the four-mile toll road. She then took up cross-country skiing, and she makes an hour-long ski-tour on Johannes' trails each morning.

"Cross country has become a major attraction, too, because it is said to be so good for the health," she said.

Starting out in life as a disbeliever, Maria later became a religious crusader and studied to be a nun, leaving the convent to marry Baron von Trapp and care for his seven children. When he lost his money, her tenacity and strength organized the family into a musical unit. The Trapp Family Choir became a European hit after winning a contest at the Salzburg Festival.

In America, after Austria fell to the Nazis, they concertized for 15 years as the Trapp Family Singers and their popularity on the concert stage is said to be still unsurpassed.

After listening to Maria's spiritual reflections, one may be amazed at her confession of a weakness: weight worrying.

"I have 34 'sweet tooth's' and that is my big problem. At Christmas I blew up like a noodle, and I have been on every kind of diet without success until now. But I have lost four inches in one week around my equator," she quipped, "but wouldn't you know there would be a hitch? My doctor doesn't approve of the diet. He says it is bad for my high blood pressure!"

Woman Governs Prison of Men

LONDON (WNS) — Sue McCormick, 28, has been appointed governor of Askham Grange, the women's prison. She is the youngest prison governess in English history, more than 20 years younger than the women she succeeds. "I think inmates like to see someone young about the place," said the slim, pretty governess. "We should get away from the image of women prison officer as grim, masculine types." Miss McCormick has a Cambridge diploma in criminology and an Oxford degree in psychology and philosophy, plus six years of prison service. "If I am governor any length of time, changes will take place," she promised. One possible change that she did not mention: she will earn only $9600 a year, exactly one half the pay of some male governors of male prisons.

Send Both Parents A Letter Of 'Love And Appreciation'

DEAR ABBY: I want to thank you for an idea I got from reading your column some time ago. It was to send flowers to my mother on my own birthday.

On my 18th birthday I sent my mom a dozen roses expressing my love and appreciation for putting up with me all these years. Dad said when she got the flowers she was so touched she broke right down and cried.

Please mention it again, Abby. Some of your readers might have missed it. TRIED IT AND LIKED IT

DEAR TRIED: It's mentioned. Not to put down flower power, but a letter of "love and appreciation" to both parents anytime would be sufficient to move them to tears.

DEAR ABBY: While I was being examined by my doctor, he received a phone call which he said he would take in the next room.

He left the phone off the hook which enabled me to hear the entire conversation. It was of a very personal nature.

Should I have replaced the phone on the hook as soon as I realized what was happening?

HEARD EVERYTHING IN STATEN ISLAND

DEAR HEARD: Not if it involved any inconvenience on your part. I hope you told the doctor you overheard the call so he won't be so careless in the future.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married to this man for 32 years. We have four grown children, and let me tell you right off the bat, my husband has no feminine tendencies whatsoever. He is ALL man, but he likes to wear my lingerie.

First he asked if he could borrow my pantyhose. I could understand that because it was wintertime and pantyhose do help to keep the legs and body warm. Then he started wearing my nylon nighties, and it was still winter. That puzzled me.

Twice when I was hospitalized, I looked for my long, satin-quilted housecoat and found it in HIS clothes closet, so he has been wearing that, too.

Does he have a problem? DON'T USE MY NAME

DEAR DON'T: Your husband may be a transvestite, which means he is just like any other male but he likes to wear women's clothes. And he won't have a problem unless you give him one at home, or he tries to masquerade in public where it is against the law.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married 52 years, but the last year, since my husband's 77th birthday, he has been acting funny. For one thing, he thinks every lady who looks at him is trying to vamp him. [Not only elderly widows, but young married women.]

He also has been giving things away. For instance, I looked high and low for the bottom to my double boiler, and then he told me he gave it away. Also, I made 22 quarts of matzo ball soup and put them in the freezer, and he has already given away 12 quarts.

He gives things to neighbors, friends, and strangers when I am out playing cards. Now I lock my jewelry when I leave the house. I don't know what he is going to give away next.

I can't divorce him because I think he is sick. Don't send me a personal reply because he sometimes throws away all the mail without even opening it.

I told my son [he is a lawyer] about his father's actions, and he said: "It's his age, Ma. You'll have to watch him."

Must I stay home 24 hours a day and watch him? I'm a nervous wreck wondering what he will do next. HIS WIFE IN PHILADELPHIA

DEAR WIFE: Your husband is obviously not well. Yes, either you or someone else must watch him 24 hours a day; it's clear that he should not be left alone.

Her House Reflects Ability—Carpentry, Plumbing, Wiring

By VIVIAN BROWN AP Newsfeatures writer Judy Allan hasn't built a house — yet. But she's built just about everything that goes into one.

Lithe, pretty, petite, she is an example of the new look in do-it-yourselfers. After all, you can't always find a workman. And if you do there is the little problem of the high cost of labor.

"But I learned to be a do-it-yourselfer watching my father enjoy his hobby of remodeling—even though I am very highly mechanical, I guess..."

The Allan house in Wilton, Conn., reflects her skills at carpentry, plumbing, cabinet making, floor laying, wiring, furniture building, as well as upholstery. A home economist, she is a graduate of Cornell University where she specialized in textiles.

"As a child in Rochester, N.Y., she was always on hand, she says, when her stockbroker father called "wrench ... pliers ... elbows ..." as he repaired plumbing, and she was always the one who could locate hammer, saw and slide rule in an emergency.

The do-it-yourself acumen learned at her father's side has paid off. She sawed out seven feet of the side of her house and put in a large bay window using two existing windows and building the two side bay windows, crowning it inside with fluorescent lighting which she built into the cornice above the bay.

And she didn't much like the red brick fireplace she came with the house. Ripping off the mantle, she built the brick up to the ceiling, and put ceiling-height bookcases on either side of it. The architectural trim that tops the bookcases was made on her saber saw.

The handsome slate floor at the entrance was "installed easily," she explained. But before building it she tore out a few encumbrances.

"I cemented it, let it dry and grouted it in between ... the real trick is to acquire the right kind of saw blade to cut it." She used a carbide blade with fine teeth.

Mrs. Allan's tools include a 10-inch table saw, an electric sander, a hand drill and a router. The table saw and saber saw are indispensable, in her opinion. She rented a power handsaw to cut the hole out of the wall, but as used the saber on just about everything else.

And she has been able to do something that should make her the envy of every woman — she not only designed her own kitchen, but she built it just the way she wants it.

"I really hadn't liked the kitchen arrangement anyway and after a fondue fire that destroyed some cabinets, I had the opportunity to rebuild it ... the way I want it. There were a few things I couldn't change, but for the most part, it is great ..."

In addition to building new cupboards, with sliding shelves, cabinets and a corner storage area, she installed tile on the wall behind the range and built new counter tops of plastic (formica).

Plumbing and such? Putty to her touch. She disconnected pipes, reconnected them, installed faucets. She also puts in her own dishwasher parts and has changed the thermostat in her oven. And she can change wiring at the drop of a watt.

"In fact there is a little booklet one can buy for 50 cents that will teach you how to wire anything ..." she explained.

And that may be one thing about do-it-yourself. Read directions and you will not be intimidated by the job. Women could be helped, too, in making their own repairs by learning to read schematic charts that come with appliances, she commented.

She usually works in the garage or in one of two play and work areas she has remodeled downstairs. Her husband, Bob, and her youngsters, 6 and 8, do not interrupt her projects because they benefit by her interest. In her son's room she has installed rough sawn cedar on walls, and she has built him a roomy, handsome, bunk bed with a climb-up ladder.

Recipes Salute Cocoa Bean

By TOM HOGE AP Newsfeatures Writer

When the Spanish conquistadores marched into the halls of Montezuma more than four centuries ago, they found the Mexican emperor breakfasting on a goblet of dark liquid. One Spaniard took a taste and found it to be "of a very exciting nature."

It was chocolate that Montezuma was quaffing, chilled with bits of snow from the nearby mountains and flavored with the contents of a little wild orchid pod which we know as vanilla.

Intrigued by the cocoa bean, the 16th century explorer, Hernando Cortes, took a supply of crude chocolate back to Europe. It caught on after an imaginative cook thought of sweetening the bitter chocolate with sugar. Soon chocolate houses were springing up all over the place and chocolate became a key ingredient in western cuisines.

Cooking with chocolate has enabled us to make a vast variety of dishes, from the customary desserts and sweet drinks to the spicy sauces Mexican cooks use to dress up pork, chicken and turkey. Composed of ground chili peppers, peanuts, almonds, garlic, tomatoes, raisins and a wide range of herbs these sauces have one ingredient that gives them a haunting flavor: ground, bitter chocolate.

It is hard to get used to the idea of putting chocolate into anything but desserts, but the French have created a few main course dishes, including rabbit with a chocolate and almond sauce. And the late Michael Field said that grating bitter chocolate over beef stew produces a fine effect.

Until the last century, chocolate was grainy in texture and very costly. Today, with the invention of special processing machinery and new refining techniques, chocolate is readily available in just about any degree of richness and sweetness you could wish.

A prime ingredient in candy and ice cream, chocolate is at its best in cakes, from brownies to devil's food. One dessert I like especially is a combination of cake and souffle invented by the late Dionne Lucas.

Miss Lucas used to make this delightful dessert when she was chief cook in the kitchens of the Ginger Man, a colorful restaurant operated in midtown Manhattan by actor Patrick O'Neal and his brother, Michael. The place specializes in many of the dishes created by Miss Lucas and bequeathed to the O'Neals. Here is her recipe for chocolate roll.

- 5 large eggs
- 1 cup sugar
- 6 ounces dark sweet chocolate
- 1 cup cream
- Vanilla

3 tablespoons cold water
A little grated chocolate or cocoa

Separate eggs. Beat into yolks 1/2 cup of sugar; beat to light, creamy consistency. Break up chocolate into pieces and put in a pan with 3 table-spoon cold water. Stir over slow fire till it dissolves, but don't let it get too hot. Cool chocolate and mix into sugared egg yolks. Stir in stiffly beaten egg whites, mix well. Butter a cookie sheet, cover with waxed paper and butter again. Spread mixture evenly on top. Bake 10 minutes in moderate oven and then 5 more minutes in slightly cooler oven. Remove and cover top with a cloth that has been wrung out in cold water. Cool and place in refrigerator for 1 hour. Remove cloth and loosen roll from tin. Dust top with grated chocolate or cocoa. Turn out on piece of waxed paper and carefully peel paper off top.

Car-Buyer Interest Surges In Small Economy Cars

By RICK SCOTT
Associated Press Writer

New car buyers in North Carolina seem to have their eyes on the headlines as well as the advertisements.

They apparently are heeding reports of an impending gasoline shortage and predictions that fuel prices will rise this summer.

"The publicity about a gasoline shortage has had a tremendous effect on the traffic in our dealership," said Ronnie Mann, sales manager at Toyota-Charlotte.

Automobile dealers interviewed by The Associated Press said there is a new surge of interest and an increase in sales of small, economy cars. Consumers are more interested in potential gasoline mileage than ever before, dealers report.

Small car sales were up at all dealerships checked, and though spring is traditionally a big selling time in the business, dealers said the gasoline crunch is definitely on the mind of consumers.

Ralph Centers, sales manager at Wiygul-Sanders Ford in Raleigh, said the rush for small cars has depleted his inventory of the economy sized Pinto, with stocks down to 25 or 30 from a normal inventory of about 65.

Chevrolet dealers reported a run on their subcompact Vega and stronger sales for the small Nova.

Both the Pinto and Vega, like most imports, are equipped with four cylinder engines.

Mike McBrayer, sales manager at LaPointe Chevrolet in Charlotte, said, "We're selling more Vegas, Novas and Hon-das. In fact, we're almost completely out of Vegas. We can't get enough. I think we have about 10 Vegas now. Normally, I like to have at least 50."

McBrayer said there has been an increase in the number of customers who purchased large cars last year and are trading now for smaller engine vehicles.

"The publicity about a gasoline shortage has had a definite effect," he said. "People that before wouldn't even look at a small car are starting to give the idea at least a thought."

At Bob Dunn Ford in Greensboro, sales manager Joe Parker said the small cars are beginning to sell better than ever, both Pintos and the larger Marverick.

"We sell all the Pintos we can get," Parker said. "You hear a lot of conversation from customers about gasoline prices and mileage. More people are trading big cars in on little ones this spring."

At Appletree Chevrolet in Enka near Asheville, sales manager Bob Salmon said, "People are much more concerned with mileage and economy than ever before."

Two months ago, Salmon said, Chevrolet was seeking dealer orders for Vegas. "But now, Vegas are scarce. Everybody's having a hard time getting them. I only have about half the stock I want."

At Toyota-Charlotte, sales manager Mann said the number of "lookers" in the showroom has jumped from one-third to one-half over last year. "The gasoline shortage has generated a new interest in economy cars. Even with the price increase on Toyotas because of the dollar devaluation, sales are booming. My only problem is I can't get enough cars."

People want to know how many miles to the gallon they will get, Mann said.

One Charlotte dealer, Ray Skidmore American, reported that more people are buying cars with six-cylinder engines and fewer are buying the big eight-cylinder engines. Sales manager Don Jolly says sales of eight-cylinder cars are dropping every month.

In March, Jolly said, the dealership sold 15 cars with eight cylinder engines and 85 with six-cylinder engines. In April, only two of 74 cars sold have had eight-cylinder engines.

"It's the overall economy. Not just with the mileage," said Jolly. "but the maintenance. A six-cylinder engine is cheaper to keep running and it's more trouble-free. Of course, people are interested in the gasoline mileage they're going to get. The pollution control devices have had a more detrimental effect on the performance of the eight-cylinder engines than on the sixes," he said.

At Carolina Chrysler-Plymouth in Charlotte, sales manager Rodney Freeman said he, too, had detected the new interest in gasoline mileage.

The demand for small, economy cars also has carried over into used car sales, dealers said. "A good, clean economy car is a hot item these days. They're bringing top dollar. A clean economy car is hard to find and if you find it, it's not going to be a real bargain.

There's just too much demand for them," one dealer said.

Several dealers interviewed said if gasoline prices rise—as some officials have predicted—to 50 cents a gallon this summer, it may be hard to find small cars in stock, new or used.

In a move designed to help car buyers determine the kind of mileage they can expect from some of the new cars, the Environmental Protection Agency this week released mileage figures from some 450 different 1973 cars models. EPA said it plans to release the figures annually.

In EPA tests, lighter cars like the Pinto, Vega and Toyota all got about 20 miles per gallon when equipped with manual transmissions. The three models each weighed about 2,000 Models weighing about 5,000 pounds and equipped with automatic transmissions got only eight or nine miles to the gallon. These included the Chrysler Imperial, the Mercury and the Oldsmobile.

Air conditioning and other power options would lower the mileage figures even further.

About Moods: Little Child Shall Not Lead Them

BETWEEN US
By DR. HAIM GINOTT
Note to readers: The encounters depicted in my columns are designed to serve as a practical guide to improved communication. They are not to be taken literally. They should be adapted to individual situations and individual ways of speaking.

THIS VIGNETTE illustrates how Mother determined the atmosphere of the home and the mood of the moment, by refusing to be blackmailed by a guilt-giving daughter:

On Sunday, Carla, 12, said to her mother, "What a beautiful day for the beach! Do you think you can take me there today?" Mother answered, "That sounds like fun but there are many chores that need to be done before I can leave the house." Carla responded, "I'm always doing things for you and you never do things for me." Mother said, "Carla, let me tell you something about myself. When I feel that I'm being manipulated or that someone is trying to trade on my guilt, I get angry." Carla: Thanks for telling me. I understand what you mean. May I start again, Mom? Is there some way that I can help you so it would be possible for us to go to the beach?

Mother: Your approach now makes me feel like being with you this afternoon! Here are the chores that need to be done.
Mother and daughter shared the household tasks and then spent a lovely afternoon at the beach.

Mother remained the master of her mood, by sharing her feelings authoritatively. She not only maintained her cool but she gave significant insights to her daughter.
IT TAKES GREAT SKILL to let a child have his moods, without our being infected by them. In many a home a young child practically decides the mood of the family. If he wants to, he'll get Mother angry and yelling, or upset and guilty. This is giving too much power to a child. The mood of the home should be determined by adults, not by a child. Here, for example, is how it can be accomplished: Ronda, 6, asked her mother, "What are we having for dinner?" Mother answered, "Tonight we are having a special treat. You have a choice—chicken or meat loaf. 'I hate them both,'" Ronda cried. "I'm not eating." "Crying is disturbing to us, right now," Mother said. "If you want to cry, your room is available or you can have dinner with us. The choice is yours."

Ronda went to her room and the family continued with dinner. After a few minutes Ronda returned and said, "Could I have some chicken, please?"
Mother related, "In the past, Ronda's crying would have precipitated a bitter quarrel. I would have berated her, scolded her, and made her feel guilty. Father would have gotten into the act, and the whole mood of the evening would have been spoiled. Today, for the first time, I did not attack my daughter, I attacked the problem. I gave Ronda choices. Thus, I allowed her to have her mood without spoiling ours."

and left it on a chair. The puppy chewed it up. Paul was heart-broken.
Paul: Look what you let that stupid dog do. She ruined my design.
Mother: Ohhhh....
Paul: I liked it so much.
Mother: I know. What a pity!
Paul: Now I'll have to look for another design.
Mother related: "This was the first time I used my new communication skills to avoid a lengthy battle. In the past, I'd have said, 'It's your own fault. If you leave something on a chair you know the dog will chew it up. Why don't you ever learn from experience? You are so stupid sometimes.' My son would respond in kind and the war would be on. I realized that to a large extent I possess the power to set the emotional climate of my house."

A 2-scene sequence: Daughter shares Mother's chores BEFORE sharing the beach.

Waite Is Advisor On Weight-Losing

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — A man who's lost 85 pounds himself says most people trying to lose weight go about it the wrong way.
"A woman might say, 'Well, my problem is that I've got to lose 50 pounds,'" says David G. Waite. "But if they don't look at their internal needs, the real reasons they overeat, they're not going to solve their problems."

Waite, who has a master's degree in rehabilitation, has been offering counseling services for weight-losing programs at Western Michigan colleges. He got into the field after peeling off his own poundage.
Waite says he has devised a "total" program for weight reduction. "Through counseling, persons gradually come to see why they overeat, and to get new meaning and purpose in life. They are better able to handle their problems, problems they might not have been aware of."

Her House . . .

Outside her handiwork is up a tree 8 a beautiful pie-shape house with two cots — and "we've all taken turns sleeping in it," she remarked.

In her spare time she teaches women to apply wallpaper and to re-upholster their furniture. She is just winding up her second course of upholstery classes for eight members of the Wilton Women's Club who have met for several hours a week for six weeks to learn how to do it themselves.

"These days we need outside help only for the furnace and television . . . and I'm going to investigate the possibilities of television. One day soon I plan to buy a kit and build my own set," she said.

But when she returns from a well-earned r and r (rest and relaxation) trip to Hong Kong, Japan and other Far Eastern points, she may well be on another building slant.

"One thing I want to do while I'm over there is see how they build their houses in Japan," she remarked.

WHAT HELPS MOST in moments of crisis is an inner determination not to teach lessons. The temptation is great—but the rewards of restraint are greater, as seen in the following illustration:
Paul, 9, loves arts and crafts. One day he brought home a design made from weaving wool,

Doctor Develops Home Treatment that RINSES AWAY BLACKHEADS HELPS DRY UP ACNE-PIMPLES In 15 Minutes or Your Money Back!

Queen Helene Mint Julep Masque 15 Minute Treatment Must Show Immediate Improvement or — YOUR MONEY BACK!

A New York Doctor, working with a cosmetic laboratory, has developed a simple home-treatment that rinses away blackheads in a matter of minutes. It was demonstrated recently on five teen-age girls and three boys.

The results were breath-taking. Blackheads really rinsed away. In fact, many could be seen on the cloth used to wash off the Masque. But this wasn't all! Acne-pimples improved after one application, enlarged pores reduced, and rough complexions became cleaner, clearer and smoother looking. These results certainly indicate why teen-agers are now saying "this is one product that really works" . . . and why mothers of teen-agers have endorsed its use.

The Masque-Cream Treatment is indeed a remarkable discovery, not only for clear healthy skins, but also for the self-confidence, poise and self-esteem a fine complexion brings to teen-agers!

Anyone Can Use It

If you suffer the agony of teen-age blackheads, acne-pimples and rough unsightly complexions, give yourself this home treatment at our risk. Apply this delightfully Mint-Scented Cream and within 2 or 3 minutes an absorbing agent, called Argilla, dries and turns this cream into a plastic-like masque. You will now feel as though hundreds of "tiny fingers" were softly kneading the skin, loosening pore-caked dirt, blackheads and foreign impurities.

As it firms and hardens, its suction-action draws out waste matter from the pores. . . . In 15 minutes you simply rinse the masque away with lukewarm water which dissolves it immediately. When you wipe your face, you can see that blackheads and other pore "filler" actually come off on your towel. And your skin feels clean . . . really clean . . . refreshed, smooth like velvet!

Attention! MOTHERS of Teen-Agers

Queen Helene Mint Julep Masque is a MUST for you, too! It will help tighten sagging skin on face and throat, relax tired face muscles and stimulate a fresher, cleaner, more youthful complexion. Try a medicated Mint Julep Masque Treatment YOURSELF. You'll be delighted with the skin-tightening experience and more alive feeling that comes with every treatment.

Queen Helene Mint Masque is only $3.00 for the six ounce jar, enough for over 3 months of daily home treatments. Buy it today! Start using it immediately! Prove it to yourself at our risk, for one full month. If, at any time during the month, you are not completely satisfied, simply return the unused portion and you will get back every penny of your purchase price.

Photographs
by Jerry Raynor

"DRESS-RIGHT, DRESS!" .... the Conley High School Junior ROTC students respond snappily to the order that lines the ranks up for an inspection by their commander.

The D. H. Conley Junior ROTC program is popular in its first year.

Junior ROTC, A Progressive Program at Conley

Started last September without fanfare, eastern North Carolina's only Junior Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) at D.H. Conley High School has turned out to be a successful beginning venture.

"We have 128 students enrolled," Lt. Colonel Allen Applewhite, commander of the program said. "The first year program in Junior ROTC is known as MT-1. That's for military training one, or the first year level," he explained.

"Students from the ninth through the twelfth grades are eligible. There's a few requirements that must be met," Applewhite said, "ROTC students must be U.S. citizens, be physically fit and have a certificate of permission from parents or guardians."

Basic Courses
Colonel Applewhite's assistant, Sgt. Major Robert A. Avery, said in the first year program basic courses are taught. "First aid, principles of leadership, military history and drills and ceremonies are what we're teaching this year." The sergeant major added that a certain amount of show and ceremonial drills are also being taught. "They really love that," he said.

"Next year," Colonel Applewhite pointed out, "the courses will go deeper into all these subjects. Basically, what we have here is a four year course. A student enrolling as a freshman in high school can complete the maximum four years."

"In the second year," he said, "we begin to teach students methods of instruction. In other words, we will teach them to teach. This, you might say, is the heart of the matter."

"On graduating from high school, if the student wants to enter the Army, he can enter as a corporal provided he passes skill tests in various field. The military has need of many skills."

No Recruiting
"There's one condition I think the public should be aware of," Colonel Applewhite said. "We're not allowed to do any recruiting. In fact, we can't allow recruiters to talk to the students here at school. Our purpose is to provide basic ROTC training, and to encourage students to go on to a college or university and to enter the ROTC program there."

"The good thing about a program such as this," he continued, "is that it gives a young man or woman an opportunity to decide before graduating from high school whether they're really interested in the possibility of considering a military career. That's why it's important they not be persuaded, but find out for themselves."

Girls To Enroll
Asked about having mentioned "a young man or woman", the colonel revealed that next year the Junior ROTC program "will include a number of high school girls."

"Our pre-enrollment for the coming school year is 188 students," Sergeant Avery said. "Fifty-nine are girls. They will receive the same type of instruction as that given the boys except that drill for them is an elective."

Minimum Cost
Students are furnished uniforms, insignia, textbooks, manuals and everything needed for the courses, Colonel Applewhite explained. "The only item that a student must provide for himself is his shoes."

Each student is assigned a standard M-14 rifle that has had the firing mechanism altered so that it cannot be fired. Uniforms are the regular Army green, shade 344. Collar and cap brass is the Torch of Knowledge, and a student's rank is indicated by rank insignia on the epuletets.

Unit Structure
In the present structure, the Junior ROTC is divided into two companies superimposed over two platoons. The two companies make up a battalion.

"We're a rank heavy outfit," Sergeant Avery commented. "This makes it possible to give each man more practice in taking on leadership roles. The 128 students are divided into five groups studying at different periods of the day, with each group considered a platoon."

With this arrangement, there's a good range of positions with responsibility. "Altogether," Sergeant Avery said, "we have a battalion commander, his executive, four primary staff members, two company commanders, two executive officers, two first sergeants, five platoon leaders and the squad leaders."

Colonel Applewhite added "The students are rotated in the different ranks. The students themselves generally select their own leaders, with promotions made through a boards process."

Varied Support
To operate a Junior ROTC program in a high school, support is necessary from regular military units.

"Our support is furnished by varied sources," Colonel Applewhite said. "Basically, we're responsible to Headquarters Third Army at Ft. McPherson, Georgia. Our supply records are maintained at Headquarters 3rd Logistical Support, Ft. Bragg, and the local Army Reserve Center takes care of our maintenance support."

He added that weapons support comes from Raleigh. Annual formal inspections (AFT's) are conducted. (The one for this year was conducted on April 25). "There are two other inspections we received," Applewhite said. "in supply records and security."

Other Roles
The two instructors double as commander and assistant. The five hours spent in instructing and conducting drills are not, however, the only roles served by Colonel Applewhite and Sergeant Avery.

"I'm also coordinator for northeastern North Carolina applicants for West Point Military Academy," he said. "I work with cadets who have applied for non-appointee openings, helping them get everything lined up."

Retired Military
Colonel Applewhite and Sergeant Major Avery are both retired from the Regular Army of the United States. A native of Sacramento, California, Applewhite rose through Officer Candidate School from private to lieutenant colonel. He retired in 1971.

While on active duty, Colonel Applewhite served for a total of six years in Germany, one year in Korea, and another in Vietnam. Among his duties, he has been a battalion commander.

Sergeant Major Avery is a native of Apalachicola, Florida. Retiring in 1971 after 26 years of service, he served 17 years in foreign countries, including Germany, France, Belgium, Turkey, Korea, Vietnam and Laos.

The two have in common the fact both are the father of four children. Colonel Applewhite has located his family in Greenville, and Sgt. Avery plans to move his family here in the near future.

"Sergeant Avery is quite a linguist," Colonel Applewhite remarked, "he's fluent in Turkish and good in German."

Program Praised
A couple of teachers not involved with the Junior ROTC volunteered words of praise about the program. They said they can see worthwhile results in a much better team spirit being fostered in other school activities. Some of the participants, they claim, had not shown appreciative interest in other established activities, but since becoming part of the Junior ROTC, have broadened their entire viewpoint.

POINTERS .... on the correct way of dressing off in ranks is given student David Pope, right, by Sgt. Major Robert A. Avery.

A GOOD SHOWING .... though not yet executed with precision, student members of one of the companies perform a right-shoulder-arms movement while marching in ranks.

Rail Travel Is Still Adventure To Be Enjoyed

By DON PHILLIPS
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — Train travel can still be an adventure for those who like to look at the country from ground level without concentrating on a highway center line.

In many cases, especially in the West, trains roll through canyons and over mountains that tourists will never see from a car. Within 40 miles of downtown Baltimore, a train daily runs for miles along stretches of the Susquehanna River valley that few other than fishermen see.

Amtrak and private tour operators offer numerous organized summertime and fall tours, concentrating on the West and Florida. These tours are generally two to three weeks long and include hotels and sightseeing, and sometimes meals.

A word of caution in seeking information or reservations for train tours: Don't go to your local railroad ticket agent. Instead, see a travel agent or a downtown Amtrak ticket office in large cities. Amtrak has not yet taken over all rail passenger employees, and most ticket agents do not have any tour information.

A Typical Tour
 Amtrak-operated tours — called the "adventure" series — originate in Chicago although Amtrak or your travel agent can easily arrange the necessary transportation to Chicago.

The Golden State adventure is a typical tour. For $444 per person plus train fare ($179 coach from Chicago), tourists travel for two weeks to Los Angeles, Yosemite Park, San Francisco, and Reno. Cheaper tours also are available such as an eight-day $182 tour to Glacier Park.

There also are Amtrak tours to New Orleans, the Grand Canyon and other parks, and to Chicago itself.

Private groups also run tours to Walt Disney World and other parts of Florida. One group even provides a camper for moving around after reaching Florida to save on hotel bills.

June A Good Month
 Reservations must be made at least two weeks in advance for most tours, and they are sold out even earlier in July and August. June is a good month to go because trains and tour groups are less crowded.

It is not, of course, necessary to go in an organized group to see the country by train. Some of the most spectacular and beautiful scenery in the country is traversed by passenger train.

Here are a few tips for individual train travelers on which trains to take, what to look for and how to get along on a mode of travel that is not yet up to airline standards.

—When going from the East to the Pacific Northwest, insist on going at least one way via the North Coast Hiawatha, the three-times-a-week train through southern Montana. Amtrak agents generally will route you by the daily Empire Builder through northern Montana, but the Empire Builder cannot compete with the scenery along the southern route as it follows the Yellowstone River, crosses the Rockies over spectacular Homestake Pass and plunges into the Bitterroot Mountain range and later the Cascades.

—If you have an extra day to spend in Denver or Ogden or Salt Lake City, make part of your trip on the non-Amtrak Rio Grande Zephyr, which runs three times a week between Denver and Salt Lake City, with a limousine connection to Ogden to meet the Amtrak San Francisco train. It is easily the most spectacular train ride in the country.

—Want a low-cost night in New Orleans? The Southern Railway and Amtrak operate a New York-Los Angeles sleeper that lays over one night in New Orleans. You can use your sleeper as a hotel. It is best to make this trip westbound because the Southern's on-time record is better than Amtrak's Los Angeles-New Orleans Sunset Limited.

—Eating. Despite the horror stories of past years, Amtrak has brought prices down to reasonable levels. And although diner menus are standardized, food is good.

—Make your reservations as far as possible in advance. Amtrak has made some progress, but its reservations system is still not up to standard.

Hawaii Still Popular Lure

HONOLULU (UPI) — Hawaii, "The Land of Aloha," is an increasingly popular vacation lure for mainland Americans.

One of the most popular ways to travel to Hawaii is with a tour group and for those who make the trip that way the Aloha spirit is immediately apparent when they step off their plane at Honolulu International Airport.

Girls in grass skirts and lithe young men in native garb greet the tourists with kisses and flower leis.

The top attraction on the island of Oahu is Waikiki, which abounds with hotels ranging from the luxurious to modest at prices ranging from $20 a day to $100 or more.

The beach at Waikiki is almost always crowded with fellow tourists, many of them just lounging around in the sand and taking an occasional dip in the Pacific for refreshment.

The night life along Waikiki is fast-paced and varied. Any one of a number of nightclubs offers a Polynesian review and many of them have name performers to entertain the mainland visitor.

Stunt Men Complain Unnecessary Risk Taken

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — How safe is working in the movies? "Safer than the construction industry," says the producers' safety expert, "but not as safe as working in an office."

The Screen Actors Guild says that work in the major studios is less hazardous than it used to be, but less safe in the independents.

And stunt men complain that unnecessary risks are still being taken.

John G. Degenkolb, in charge of safety for the Association of Motion Picture and Television Producers, reports that casualty insurance rates for the major studios have decreased steadily.

"This has been the result of a concerted campaign in the past six years," said Degenkolb. "It started when the crafts unions realized that more safety work was being done in other industries."

"In 1972, the studios had no head injuries from falling objects. This was the result of our campaign to use hard hats when there is work overhead. Three years ago we bought 8,000 of them, and we insist that they be worn by everyone except actors in scenes."

James Nissen, safety representative of the Screen Actors Guild, agreed that the major studios had made improvement in safety. But he added: "The independents aren't privy to the precautions that have been taken by the majors, and they are inclined to cut corners. That can create hazards for actors."

The most hazardous of film work, of course, is done by stunt men and women. They're still willing to perform their daring deeds, but they object to unnecessary chances.

Says veteran stunt man Paul Stater: "A lot of the new directors don't know what they're doing, and they ask for stunts that are dangerous. Stunt men don't want to lose the job, so they try to please the directors. That's how accidents happen."

Another veteran, George Robotham, agreed: "There are fewer jobs for stunt men and more guys to fill them. Some of the guys are on ego trips and they try to outdo each other in daring. That's stupid."

Safety will always be a problem in the movie industry, Degenkolb observed, because of its very nature.

"Film makers have to accomplish realism, and you can't photograph hazardous scenes merely by speeding up the camera."

ECU Orchestra To Perform In Norfolk

The East Carolina Symphony Orchestra, Robert Hause, conductor, will perform at the Southern Division Convention of the Music Educators National Conference (MENC) to be held in Norfolk, Va., May 2-5.

The performance is scheduled for 3:45 p.m., May 3, in the Holiday Inn-SCOPE Ballroom. The program selections will be Academic Festival Overture by Brahms, Suite from the Water Music by Handel-Harty, and Estancia Dances by Ginastera.

The orchestra was selected by a panel of judges who auditioned tapes submitted by performing organizations from the entire Southern region of the United States. In order to insure impartiality tapes heard by the judges had no identifying marks, nor contained spoken or written material which could identify the group, except in terms of age level. To be selected in this manner is one of the highest honors which can come to a collegiate musical organization.

The East Carolina

Orchestra has been further honored by having its performance scheduled for a "Concert Hour" at the convention.

Robert Hause, conductor, said, "We are extremely pleased to have been selected to play at the MENC Convention. This is the first time we have submitted a tape to the audition committee and will be the first time the ECU Orchestra had performed for a regional convention. It will mean a great deal to our students, the orchestral program, and the prestige of the university. Our orchestra will be the only college orchestra heard at the convention."

Ceramics, Photographs, Spider Paintings In New Mushroom Show

Ceramics, photographs and spider paintings form the current fare at the Mushroom Gallery in downtown Greenville.

Krista Cipriano, ceramist, Judi Bradford, photographer, and Danny Hill, painter are sharing the gallery space in a show that has nice contrasts within an overall harmony of small scale.

Krista, a native of Holyoke, Massachusetts, is a recent graduate of East Carolina University with a major in ceramics. "Most of my pieces are high fired porcelain," she said, "with several pieces representing various techniques from the same glaze." Deftly painted designs on several items give a lovely watercolor effect—sheer, almost transparent, that have a poetic atmosphere. Other designs are of rich, deep hues that are like brilliant rock crystals polished and exposed on the surface of the clay.

Judi Bradford's photographs represent a range of several different techniques. Of especial interest is a series based on one photograph, a young man playing an accordion. "In some of these I have manipulated treatment directly on the prints; on some, manipulation took place on the negative," Judi said. This series is like the memory of a person recalled at different times of day, each varying texture of light providing its own evocation of mood. Judi is from Columbia, S.C. and is a graduate student at ECU.

Danny Hill says "I'm not a spider fancier." Despite that statement, he has imaginatively interpreted the spider. Danny has six paintings of spiders in formal arrangements. "I chose to show the cruelty of the spider against fragile pastel colors symbolic of stars," Danny said. In fact, he has given the paintings titles that in several instances include the word stars.

TWO SPIDERS .... a symphony in legs and shared hearts, by Danny Hill.

These are meticulously drawn, hairy legs crisply delineated in black and white; the spider's bodies depicted in smooth pastel colors—blue, light ruby, young green. The overall design conforms to formal star shaped or other geometric patterns. Certainly his way of looking at spiders is different, and despite the realism of the hairy legs, these are not frightening creatures.

Danny, from Denton, N.C. is a graduate student at ECU. He is one of the ECU artists who will spend this summer at Cape Hatteras doing water colors for the National Parks project.

Again, the Mushroom has scored with a fine small show that is just right for the gallery. The exhibit by the three now showing affords a refreshing idea of what can be effective in different subject matter and media.

Enjoyment Keynote in Conley Poetry

From assignments made to 31 students of one of Mrs. Jane Davis' 12th grade English classes at Conley High School has grown two handmade booklets of short verse. Illustrated copies of the two booklets were recently presented to the school's principal, James R. Carraway. Both booklets are titled, Wake Up and Read.

Students in this class, Mrs. Davis said, "are ones who expect to go from high school into the world of work. Very likely their formal and trade education will end when they graduate this year."

Seventeen boys and 14 girls make up this class. They say they have received a great deal of enjoyment in writing these poems.

The first booklets of their joint venture are Poems That Spell Their Names. An often used poetic device device, poetry in this form presents a special challenge because of the structural limitation.

A couple of poems quoted below reveal, however, the students have succeeded in expressing poetic feeling despite the obvious restrictions.

--	---

Not all the students chose their own name as a framework. Some used names of friends, others titles like "teacher," "president," or "policeman." One student used the name of her school as subject matter.

D.H. Conley

Do you really want to help me?
Have you thought of what I need?

Caring for me is all that I need Only you can give it to me, but Not unless you want to.
Let's sit down and talk this thing over
Even if you think that your problem is bigger You see, my whole life is in your hands when you prepare me for the future.

Dora Wright

The second booklet consists of five line stanzas based on the cinquain form. This form also poses tight restrictions on the poet. In this, as in the name from poems, the Conley students have been successful in projecting poetic images in terse form. Two examples from this group follow:

People People Usually happy Talking, joking, laughing Getting the best things out of life People Thomas Hopkins	Babies Babies Soft, sweet Crying, yelling, wetting Still I love them Babies Alice Elks

Mrs. Davis emphasized that in teaching poetry, she tries to instill in students that writing poetry "is an awareness and appreciation for the use of leisure time."

Whatever the motives that have inspired these seniors to try their hand at poetry, the result is a collection of small poems of promise, poems that express a big range of emotions with economy, warmth, wit and a flair for saying a lot about life from the vantage point of being young.

The two booklets presented the principal are further enhanced by well chosen colored illustrations clipped from magazines.

It's unfortunate this enjoyable collection of bagatelles in poetry will not be available to the public. There's some fine thoughts in these two small booklets.

Josef Albers Honored On 85th Birthday Year

To celebrate the 85th birthday anniversary year of Josef Albers, the North Carolina Museum of Art in Raleigh is exhibiting a selection of silkscreen prints from his double portfolio, "Formulation: Articulation, 1972. Opening on April 22, the exhibit will remain on view through May 20.

The prints are from the portfolio Albers presented NCMA in memory of Black Mountain College (near Asheville) where Albers was one of the foremost teachers for many years. He came to Black Mountain in 1933 after the German Nazis closed the Bauhaus in Germany.

As an artist, Albers has been called "one of the dominant figures of the second half of our century, although his name and his work are as yet relatively little known to the general public."

The NCMA anniversary exhibition is an accompaniment to a large and comprehensive show of his paintings, graphics and constructions being held in Basel, Switzerland. The Swiss exhibition will later be shown in Paris.

Since coming to the U.S. with his wife, Anni, a weaver, Albers has been honored with many one-man shows. The North Carolina Museum of Art gave him a one-man show in 1949 he resigned from the Black Mountain faculty and became chairman of the department of design at Yale University, a post he held until 1958.

He has received a Ford Foundation grant, two fellowships to the Tamarind Lithography Workshop in Los Angeles and the medal of the American Institute of Graphic Art.

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By CYNTHIA TIMM

The following books are recommended for the high school age group:

WE WERE HOOKED by Harold Flender is a series of interviews with thirteen young people from the ages of 13 to 27, who have kicked the drug habit. These ex-addicts relate their experiences in the drug world and describe the growing problems and frustrations which led them to seek help. When talking about ways of getting off drugs, the thirteen do not always agree. Some favor strict procedures, while others believe in a relaxed environment. Getting hooked is easy, but getting unhooked is a long and difficult struggle. However, these interviews prove that giving up drugs is not impossible.

Tracing the history of Black Americans from slavery to the present time, STRUGGLE FOR FREEDOM by Daniel S. Davis is a probing analysis of events and attitudes. Placing special emphasis on the Civil War, the Reconstruction, and today's civil rights movement, the author includes moving eyewitness accounts of the Black man's struggle to be free. Frederick Douglass, Booker T. Washington, Malcolm X, and Martin Luther King, Jr. are only a few of the leaders whose lives are examined in this comprehensive history. "Rarely has the story of Black Americans been presented for young people with the candor and integrity that characterize this stirring account of people facing oppression and injustice."

In TILL THE BREAK DAY, Maia Wojciechowska, a Newberry Medal-winning author, describes her experiences as an adolescent during World War II. When the Germans invaded Poland in 1939, the author fled with her family to the west coast of France. There Maia and her brother carried out their own campaign against the Nazis—stealing bicycles and slashing tires. "This is a story of the painful and exciting process of growing up in a time of confusion when nothing is certain and independence is both necessary and dangerous."

Current Mint Exhibits

"Porch People" artist A. B. Jackson of Norfolk will be showing sculpture for the first time in an exhibition of his work opening today at the Mint Museum of Art in Charlotte.

Another show now on view at the Mint opened on April 22 and will be on view through May 27.

In the Garden Gallery of the Mint, John Daughtry has a one-man exhibit of his photographs, including two studies of "The Housewife as a Family Landress."

Currently a staff photographer with the Charlotte Observer, Daughtry was formerly a photographer for the U. S. Postal Service and a reporter-photographer for the Greensboro Daily News Record.

Put A Rug On Your Floor—With Paint?

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
Paint a rug on your screened-in porch, den or foyer floor.

The idea provides a good project for restless do-it-yourselfers who can't wait to get to those outdoor chores.

The idea is not unique — decorators do it all the time. But you don't want to experiment with good floors. The porch floor is ideal. Usually it is old. A foyer is another area where you might risk such artistry. But if you decide to go into the living area of the home to paint floors, be sure you are up to it emotionally and artistically. In addition to being conversational pieces perhaps while rugs are being cleaned and stored, painted rugs may be cared for easily — just mop up footprints.

Decorators usually make a design on paper, gradually transferring the pattern to the floor. It works well if you don't become too ambitious. One decorator likes a simple big circle with dots, squares and smaller circles within the area. But another decorator likes involved all-over-the-floor designs, and that becomes a big project with plumb lines, cord, chalk and so on. Better to keep it simple, if one is an amateur. And the design should be inspired by the place where it will go.

Floor painting isn't a job to be sluffed off. Paint experts advise using good bristle brushes in sizes needed for the job and they suggest letting one color dry for 24 hours before another is added. And if you use a stencil, you must be especially wary. It might smear. Free-hand is likely to be easier and more pleasing to the eye because of its randomness. The design need not be perfect.

If you actually want a rug look with nappiness and all that, the paint people suggest stippling after the background color is painted. Dip a real sponge into a shade of paint slightly darker than the background color and after squeezing it dry, lightly pat the sponge onto the area of the same basic color. In fact it is suggested that several shades of paint lighter and darker than the background may be used to give the rug an even happier appearance.

And if you want to carry the real-rug look even further, put a fringe around the design by using a thin brush and applying one fine stroke at a time. (A good back pays off in such a project.) Depth might be given to the rug by adding faded yellow and black strokes to give the illusion of deep fringe, they explain.

Decorators usually avoid the real rug look, preferring to use a pretty design that takes the place of a rug. But they often use designs even when they use rugs. One decorator likes to use paint borders — stripes, checkerboard designs or swirls — around rugs.

The designs for screened-in or open porches can be fun. One handsome design on old floor boards was really worth the effort. A dark green background was covered with little white flowers that resemble dogwood.

That conservative design was chosen because that second-floor porch which opened off a bedroom, was decorated with wrought iron furnishings that blended extremely well with it.

On a bright orange floor, one might paint daisies or large red poppy-like flowers. Any flower can be stylized to provide a pretty effect. Or you might use a forsythia or bridal wreath bush as a pattern — use great swirls of limbs or one limb laden with the little yellow or white flowers which might be easily dabbed on with a sponge.

A floral theme may be used in a foyer of an apartment or house. A rose forms the entranceway of one such place with its wide curving stem with green leaves leading to the dining and living areas.

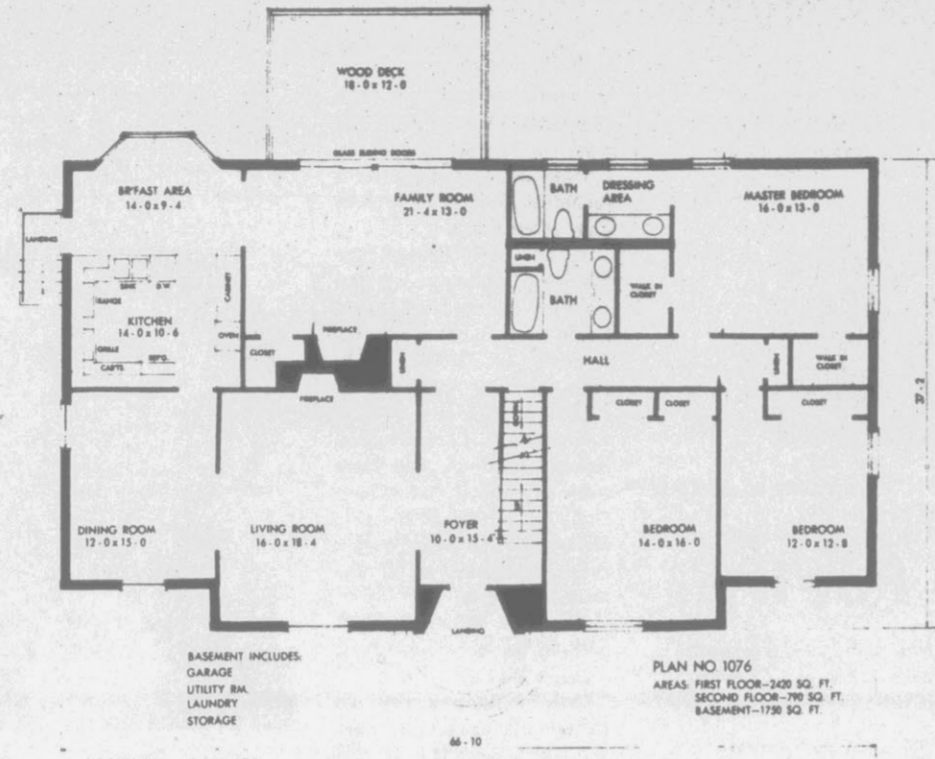

Other foyer ideas include: on a white floor, a large (six-foot diameter) black circular stripe, two inches wide, with radiating strokes from center to perimeter...a large black square in the middle of a red-painted floor...a handsome large (24 inch) checkerboard design in blue and white covering the entire foyer floor. This latter design is often used in living rooms or other rooms by decorators. Sometimes it is put on very good floors, but more often it is used as a cover-up of old floors in an old house.

The rug or other design should be thoroughly dry before you walk on it, and paint experts advise using top coats over the design and applying many coats of varnish to further its life. If the basic floor cover is unusual — dark brown, black, white or one of the other modern color paints or stains — check with the person who refinshed the floors to see whether varnish is the proper finish.

Area And Space In French Provincial

FAIRHOPE 4/29/73

FAIRHOPE 4/29/73

SECOND FLOOR

By GERRY BISHOP
"Luxurious and practical" is the best way to describe the Fairhope, a five-bedroom home with all the comforts a large, active family needs.

Among the high points of this two-story are an impressive foyer balcony, back-to-back fireplaces in the living room and family room, a built-in charcoal grill in the kitchen, an outside redwood deck and handsome French provincial lines.

To enhance everyday living, Associated House Plans provides three large bathrooms, three walk-in closets, a large basement that includes a double garage, utility room, laundry and storage area and a floor plan that provides quick access to all living areas from a central hallway.

The fine detail in the exterior design is exceptional. Shutters, special patterns in the brick or stone above the windows and on the corners and a cupola atop the roof are some of the distinguishing features.

Semi-circular steps form a landing at the main entrance, which is recessed. It opens into the foyer which has the redeeming features of a two-story high ceiling and overlooking balcony. There also are stairs to the basement.

Immediately to the left is the living room, which has large dimensions and adjoins the dining room. This would be a convenient arrangement for entertaining.

The dining room, kitchen and breakfast area are tied together, with the working area—a U-shaped layout of cabinets and appliances—in the center. A bay window overlooking the backyard adds cheer to the breakfast area. At this point, outside stairs lead to the cellar-garage area.

Informal activities would reign in the family room which has all the comforts needed for relaxation. Sliding glass doors connect with the wood deck, providing outside exposure. Exposed beams in the ceiling are another charming factor.

Three of the bedroom, including the master suite, are on the first floor. The master has a private bath with twin vanities and a walk-in closet. A rear-corner location assures privacy and seclusion.

The other two bedrooms on the main level have good dimensions and are near the main bath which also has twin vanities.

The two upstairs bedrooms share a compartmented bath. Each has large dimensions and a large walk-in closet.

The exterior dimensions of the Fairhope are approximately 67 by 37 feet. The first floor contains 2,430 square feet of living area, the second floor has 790 square feet and there are 1,750 square feet in the basement.

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Go through a community whose houses have exterior walls of wood shingles and you will find a considerable difference of opinion on how such walls should be treated.

On some houses, the shingles or shakes (a rougher, machine-grooved variety of shingles) are untouched, it having been decided to allow them to weather naturally. On others, the shingles have been stained or, at the least, been covered with a colorless wood preservative. And on still others, the shingles have been painted in various colors.

Since the shingles are usually one of the weather-resistant woods, they can be left natural, sometimes turning grayish, sometimes getting considerably darker. More often, especially in certain areas of the country, the shingles are stained, not only to give them color but to add to the wood's natural resistance to decay and insect attack.

Paint was seldom used on shingles and shakes over hundreds of years, generally because there was a tendency for the paint to develop cracks more when applied over the rough texture of the wood than when over smooth boards. In recent years, more and more shingled houses are being painted, principally because of the development of shingle-and-shake paint less likely to crack and peel.

These paints also are specially formulated to prevent either stain or the wood's natural dyes from bleeding through. But some of these paints require that a primer be used under the paint, so it is well that the purchaser check to determine the recommendation of the manufacturer as detailed on the label.

In most cases, the builder of a house with shingled exterior walls will prep the shingles in a preservative unless the buyer specifies that he doesn't want this done. This prepping is to be recommended, but if the home owner wants to paint the house, he should wait about seven or eight months before undertaking the project. Again, more and more buyers are asking for shingles painted to the color of their choice.

One thing the home owner should keep in mind, whether he buys a new house with painted shingles or decides at some later time to paint shingles. He has made an irrevocable decision. You can paint over stain, providing you take the necessary precautions and use the proper paint, but you can't use stain over paint, since the principal characteristic of stain is that it sinks into the pores of the wood and must therefore be used on unfinished surfaces.

N. C. State University
Answers Timely Gardening Questions

Q. Will white birch grow in the Durham-Raleigh area? (Mrs. L. M. Zebulon)

A. As a general rule no. White birch (Betula papyrifera) is a tree of the cold climates. It does best in Northern New England, but is found as far south as Pennsylvania and occasionally the mountains of North Carolina. Use our native river birch (Betula nigra). (Fred Whitfield, extension forester)

Q. My domestic strawberries are being overrun by wild strawberries and wild violets. How can I control them? (Mrs. G. L. Kannapolis)

A. Use a hoe. There are no chemical means to control these weeds in your strawberries. (W. M. Lewis, extension agronomist)

Q. How do you control the jelly-like substance on the limbs of peach trees? (J. P. Wake Forest)

A. The substance is caused by peach tree borers. Borers establish themselves during winter. The tunnels they make fill with jelly-like substance when sap beings flowing in spring. If you have only a few infested trees you can destroy the borers in the larve stage by punching in the tunnels with a long wire. Commercial peach growers control borers by spraying with endosulfan (Thiodan) during the first week of September. Or some small orchardists with available labor place moth crystals around infested trees and then cover the crystals with soil. (K. A. Sorensen, extension entomologist)

Q. Where can I get sea oats to plant on a sand dune at Long Beach? Should it be fertilized? If so, with what? Also, should I water it with fresh water? (A. M. Lumberton)

A. Unless you own the dune area, you would be violating state law to harvest sea oats seed or dig or pull sea oats plants. However, if you have access (legally) to sea oats plants, you should plant them according to suggestions contained in a leaflet, "Vegetative Dune Stabilization in North Carolina," prepared by the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service.

Mobile Home Loans Seeing Rapid Growth

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mobile home loans represented the fastest growing segment of bank installment loan business in 1972, the American Bankers Association reports.

Nearly 10 per cent of the $60 billion in commercial bank installment loans outstanding at the end of 1972 was in mobile home loans, according to association statistics.

Reason for the growth is the lower cost per square foot of mobile homes—$8 to $9 per square foot versus $18 to $19 for conventional housing, the ABA says.

Mobile homes presently account for 20 per cent of all single family housing in the nation and 75 per cent of all single family housing costing less than $20,000, according to association figures.

The association predicts the number of Americans living in mobile homes will jump from 7 million to 20 million in the next decade.

Some States Plan To Phase Out Mental Hospitals

EDITOR'S NOTE — Many states are planning to phase out their mental hospitals, releasing their patients to community facilities and, often, their homes. California has set the pace for the nation. Here is an examination of their progress and problems.

By RICHARD SALTUS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — For a century or more the customary way of dealing with the mentally disturbed has been to lock them away from society in state institutions.

But most mental health specialists now concede that such patients, rather than returning to society cured, are likely to deteriorate into a lifelong hopelessness.

And sometimes, as one writer found in state hospitals in the mid-1940s, conditions have been reminiscent of "the Nazi concentration camps — hundreds of mental patients herded into huge, barn-like, filth-infested wards, in all degrees of deterioration, untended and untreated ... many in stages of semi-starvation."

Currently, however, there is a nationwide movement to reform mental health care by closing state hospitals and treating the mentally ill in facilities in their own communities.

California, in the vanguard of this movement for the past 25 years, plans to shut down all state hospitals for the mentally ill in the next two to four years.

Although 38 states are moving toward community care of their mentally ill, California is "moving more rapidly in this direction than any other state," says Harry Schnibbe, executive director of the National Association of State Mental Health Program Directors in Washington, D.C.

But the very speed of California's transition has evoked outcries from some mental health specialists who contend there are not yet enough good local facilities to care for patients discharged from the hospitals.

Likewise, a related plan for closing state hospitals for the mentally retarded in California has become a sensitive political issue.

State officials had said they would seek to close these institutions within five or 10 years, transferring the inmates to community facilities.

But groups of angry parents who feared their mentally retarded children would be thrown out of hospitals into inadequate local facilities forced state health officials to backpedal somewhat. They now say the closures are just "something we have been thinking about," and that no institutions for the retarded will be closed until there are adequate local services to treat the patients.

State mental hospitals in the United States originated in the mid-19th century, when mental disturbance was equated with criminal violence.

These large, drab institutions thus became dumping grounds for people society considered dangerous, or were unwanted because of their eccentric behavior.

The number of patients being treated in the nation's state mental hospitals reached a peak of 558,922 in the mid-1950s.

At that time, about 2 out of every 5 hospital beds in the country were located in state and county mental hospitals. In 1955 alone, states had to appropriate more than $600 million to maintain this state hospital system.

Even at their best, the de-personalized surroundings of state psychiatric institutions have been found to induce a dependency and alienation that actually prevents the recovery of long-term patients. Most mental health specialists now agree that personalized, homelike care in community centers is far more likely to return disturbed persons to useful lives.

The controversy about closing state mental hospitals has come up in just the past few years, but the trend toward community mental health care in California goes back much further — at least back to the late 1940s.

One important breakthrough is probably responsible for the movement having gotten this far this fast. That milestone was the development of powerful new tranquilizers and antidepressants in the past decade.

These drugs, although they do not cure mental illness, can keep severe symptoms under control.

Patients with disabling anxiety or bizarre behavior patterns can now take pills that allow them to live reasonably normal lives outside hospitals and make them more receptive to psychotherapy.

Even before the new drugs were available — since the mid-1940s, in fact — California had been developing community mental health clinics while other states were still shoring up state hospital programs.

In the past 15 years the California Legislature has passed two measures that put the state on the road to community mental health care.

The Short-Doyle Act of 1957 gave counties the main responsibility for treating mental illness, under a system of matching state and county funds. The ratio is currently 90 per cent state, 10 per cent local.

The Lanterman-Petris-Short Act, which took effect in 1969, strictly limited the circumstances in which a person can be held for treatment against his will.

Besides making involuntary commitment very difficult, the LPS Act established a bill of rights for patients, which includes the right to make and receive phone calls, retain personal property, refuse shock treatment and demand court hearings during involuntary custody.

A similar measure affecting retarded persons, the Lanterman Mental Retardation Services Act, was passed in 1969. It provided that mental retardation in itself was not sufficient reason for judicial commitment to a state hospital.

The LPS act was a critical milestone not only because it made psychiatric treatment voluntary, but also because it signaled a change in public attitude toward mental illness. Once people began to feel that mental patients were not necessarily dangerous lunatics who should be put away for society's protection, the path was cleared for returning the mentally disturbed to their communities for treatment.

And so the population of California's mental-hospitals began declining after 1959, when it peaked at about 37,000. By early this year the number of resident mentally ill patients had dropped to fewer than 5,000. Three mental hospitals and part of a fourth have been shut down out of a total of 11 that were operating in the 1960s.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Instead of showing dissatisfaction at work, get busy and think of new ways to do a better job. Nervousness at this time could be injurious to your health. Show more courtesy to loved one.

constructive about them. Take care of routine tasks and make plans for entertaining friends tonight.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) If you first attend to vital work, you can later engage in your favorite recreation. You have excellent ideas, but make sure you don't let others try to discourage you. Use your willpower.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A ruckus could result if you don't handle those obligations well today, whether at home or in business. Try not to criticize so much what mate is doing. Strive for more harmony.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You want to waste time deliberating how to get an associate to do what you want, but this would be wrong. Engage in the fun things you like. Show more devotion to loved one.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You are able to get much accomplished today and still have time to work on hobby. Be sure to schedule your time well. Use patience with a fellow worker and don't criticize. Relax tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make sure you don't lose your temper with a good friend if an argument arises. You have creative ideas but test them well for practicality. Take it easy tonight. Be kind with mate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Show kin that you appreciate your home and family and be more devoted at this time. Then you get the backing you need. A good day for renovating something. Save time for fun tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You feel angered with others but be sure you maintain proper equilibrium. Travel with utmost care or you could get into a costly accident. Avoid one who has a negative approach.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make sure you don't jump into a monetary matter that needs more thought or you could lose out. New talks with a business expert brings out the right ideas for expansion. Be alert.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those interesting young people who will want to act impulsively, so teach to be more deliberate before going ahead with anything. The right religious training can raise the level of consciousness here. There is a happy marriage in this chart. Make sure the playmates are quiet and charming.

Tavern Tippling Goes Down Hill

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Americans are drinking more, but your friendly neighborhood bar is losing out to do-it-yourself cocktails made at home.

"Business has been very bad," said a suburban tavern owner in Lakewood, Ohio.

"About as bad as I've ever seen it," said a liquor salesman who has been making the rounds for 15 years.

"If it weren't for the family operation," said another bar owner, "we wouldn't be making it."

An informal survey showed bar owners blamed several things — tax-paying time, post-Christmas bills, fear of robbery, prepared cocktail mixes and the growing variety of wines.

"More people are drinking at home," said John Vinegard, an official of the bartenders union. "As a result, the bartender's role has been cut in half."

Americans drank a record 400 million gallons of distilled spirits last year, averaging out about three gallons for each adult.

Ohio and its largest city, Cleveland, followed the trend. Back in the 1940s, about 70 per cent of all alcoholic beverages were downed in bars. In the 1970s, 70 per cent of all alcoholic drink is consumed at home. That spells trouble for the bars.

Industry spokesmen report that fancy lounges near interstate highways, some suburban cocktail bars, those in shopping centers and downtown drink spots catering to traveling businessmen on expense accounts are pouring and prospering.

And pop spots near campuses are "a very profitable business," said Peter L. Provost, 25-year-old treasurer of one such club. The owner plans to open more of them.

It's the neighborhood bar that's in trouble, industry officials said.

"Food now is a major part of our business, although it wasn't always that way," said Sam Alexander, owner of a Cleveland bar.

He thinks "people are scared to come downtown."

"Places that have no extras to offer are really getting hurt," said the liquor salesman.

But, a suburban tavern owner said he "can't do enough business to pay for the band" that might boost his business.

"Tips are forgotten things," said Alexander.

Seniors Go To School

NEW YORK (AP) — Julius Roth, retired textile salesman, is going to Brooklyn College to implement his plan to become a financial columnist. He is 68.

Thomas Gray, retired railroad waiter, and his wife, a registered nurse, are starting work at LaGuardia Community College to become accountants. Gray is 73, his wife 66. Mrs. Sara Gold, a grandmother and retired English teacher, is studying Greek at Hunter College because "I dreamed of the day I could read the Greek plays in the original language." She is over 65.

Roth, the Grays and Mrs. Gold are enrolled in colleges of City University under a policy of tuition-free enrollment for city residents over the age of 65.

The senior citizens attend daytime classes with teen-age collegians and earn the same undergraduate credits that lead to regular college degrees.

About 150 senior citizens have enrolled at City University colleges for the spring semester.

Fewer Hunters, A Smaller Bag

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — The number of duck hunters in California last season showed a big drop compared with the previous year, and so did the birds they bagged.

The state Fish and Game Department reports that 107,546 hunters used the 15 state and federal areas designated for shooting, a decrease of 3 per cent from the preceding year. And they bagged 197,917 birds, an average of 1.8 birds per hunter, compared with well over 225,000 birds in 1971-72.

Five Robberies Were Enough

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — A resident who had been repeatedly robbed inserted the following in a local newspaper:

"I would like to appeal to those people who have broken into this property five times in the last four months.

"Please try somewhere else as we feel we have made our contribution. I am seriously considering putting a notice in the garden with the words 'We Gave' on it."

"Home Improvement Time"

*Ideas To Remodel Your Home
For Better Living In An Improved Community Environment*

It's time to make those home improvements you've been wanting. For ideas check the Pages of this Home Improvement Edition. Find practical suggestions to help you modernize and improve home comfort. Advertisers, too, present their products and services for your selection.

Improving home seen as better way to modern living

The national concept of home ownership appears to have achieved a maturity over the years that opens the way to a better life for more families through improvement of their existing properties.

Or, as Edgar V. Hall, Executive Director of the National Home Improvement Council, an organization with chapters almost everywhere in the United States, puts it:

"The home owner of not so many years ago parted begrudgingly with a few hundred dollars to keep his home in good repair."

"But now, home owners look upon outlays of moneys which may amount to much more, as an investment in better living."

In addition, it is generally recognized that money spent for home improvements in the modern sense — which means up-dating their appearance and their facilities for living — can contribute substantially to the value of a property.

Thus, should a time come when the owner may want to or have to dispose of the home, it is going to be a lot more marketable than it might have been without improvements.

Impressive total
All this accounts for the fact that an estimated $17 million a year is now being put into home improvements by more owners of existing homes.

Their objectives are made easier to achieve by an industry that has innovated new materials, by contractors who have extended their capacities and skills beyond the basic "fix-up paint-up" jobs into the creative areas of home improvement in terms of planning and installing modern new kitchens, luxurious bathrooms.

Yet more assistance is available to the home owner who has the opportunity through the development of an exciting variety of power tools to actively engage in making many home improvements himself.

Advancing skills
In fact, the advancing skills of many do-it-yourselfers, further assisted by the new materials now on the market, have graduated them from making bird houses and installing storage shelves, to artisans in their own right, able to execute their own original ideas.

The considerable variety of easily handled wall-board decorative panelling and tiles available from building supply stores, come to mind here.

Yes, the day is here when the home without its "workshop" fitted out with basic tools for use by the head of the house may no longer be considered completely equipped.

Apartment department

The advancing skills of the do-it-yourselfers — and they now include many women as well as men — spill over into the apartment house. Whether the apartments are condominiums, cooperatives or just rented, there are many opportunities for improvements the do-it-yourselfer can accomplish to reflect the personality and enhance the way of life for the occupants.

For the individual home owner there are overwhelming reasons why home improvement should go beyond the essential need for maintaining the property in good condition by making repairs as required by wear and tear and the weather.

Among these reasons is one that is social in its significance, economic in its importance.

Not at all unique is the widespread interest on the part of many people in good homes that have been "lived in" — that have stood the test of family life. The only other requirement of these people is that such homes be "up to date" in appearance and in built-in facilities that are in step with modern living.

Keep pace
Obviously the home that has kept pace with this trend is going to be a lot more marketable.

Among such homes are the ones that come on the market when the children have grown up and moved away, to make a home of their own.

Similarly the mobility of young couples with one or more children — young couples on the way up who find it necessary to move from city to city as they advance in their careers — constitutes a market for "lived in" homes. They will want the

Wide variety of sinks calls for pre-planning

When you select your kitchen sink you will be confronted with a variety of colors, sizes and number of bowls and materials from which to choose.

Because of its relative low cost, porcelain enamel on steel has long been the most widely used. The heavier, stain-resistant porcelain enamel on cast iron sink has generally been found only in more expensive kitchens.

Stainless steel sinks, which are easier to install because they are lighter and have a self-rim, are quite popular these days (even though there have been reports that they are noisy, scratch easily and show finger marks).

Realistic Remodeling

The National Home Improvement Council cautions the homeowner who expects to recover his investment in home improvement when he sells his present home not to put more money into the remodeling project than he can realistically hope to retrieve.

For example, if a homeowner's house is presently worth $50,000 on the market and his remodeling investment is $25,000, he will most likely not find a buyer for $75,000.

The Council also provides a rule of thumb estimate for various remodeling projects. Naturally, costs vary from region to region. Also, the variety of work done under the various classifications and the size of the space affected will influence costs.

Kitchen Remodeling	$2,500 to $6,500
Bathroom Modernizing	$1,500 to $4,000
Adding a Room	$20 to $40 per square foot
Finishing Basement Recreation Room	$1,000 to $4,500
Residing, Aluminum, Wood	$75 to $150 per 100 square feet
Adding an Outdoor Swimming Pool	$5,000 to $9,000

most modern up-dated homes they can find.

And in reverse, these same young couples, who no doubt have already acquired a home in the city from which they are moving, will be better off when it comes to disposing of it, if the home they are leaving has been improved, up-dated to the moment of their departure.

The concept of home improvement opens wide the opportunity for a new and improved way of life for all families — to serve some practical need, some internal urge toward bettering one's way of life, to enhance one's economic security.

Home water fountains cool idea

With the first signs of spring — young Americans think of baseball, and with spring and summer sports comes a steady stream of traffic around the kitchen sink.

To serve the needs of your thirsty moppets, consider installation of an Elkey water cooler designed for home use. Featuring an all stainless steel cabinet, it can be installed on the patio or any convenient outside location where there's suitable overhead shelter. Fan-cooled unit has a capacity to serve 5 to 8 gallons per hour of chilled drinking water. Freeze proof protection is available for installations where temperatures occasionally fall below freezing. Available from your local plumbing dealer.

It's as simple as measuring for a pattern, so explains Joyce Hartwell, the Lady Carpenter, as she instructs one of her apt pupils in the art of measuring for wall paneling. In the above photo, they prepare to panel a mini-kitchen area using U.S. Plywood's new Surfwood pattern. Autumn Smoke.

Beauty of Peruvian stone in easy press-on panels

A luxury wall in minutes! The classic look of Peruvian Stone is easily and inexpensively achieved with these new self-adhesive press-on panels by Decro-wall.

The carved design of Peruvian Stone is centuries old, but it is now possible to achieve this classic look easily and inexpensively with new self-adhesive wall panels.

Made of durable dimensional vinyl, these non-porous "stone" panels are washable, grease and stain resistant... wipe clean with a damp cloth.

Applied simply by peeling off the backing paper and pressing on wall, Peruvian Stone panels cover up drab walls... or cracked "trouble" walls... with instant beauty!

In less than an hour, the average homemaker can change the total appearance of her living room, dining room, kitchen, bedroom, hallway, playroom or any room in her home.

Lighting plays an important role in the visual effect of Peruvian Stone. Soft lights turn it into a subtle, neutral wall decor. Bright, angled lights turn it into a shadow-play of excitement!

In keeping with the times . . .

The carpenter may be a lady!

As more and more of today's modern women, formerly adept at wielding a crochet hook, knitting needles and sewing machines, discover that the same skills and techniques can be readily adapted to using small hand power tools, their enthusiasm for home renovation projects grows, according to Joyce Hartwell, known professionally as the Lady Carpenter.

Carpentry teacher

Mrs. Hartwell recently initiated a series of carpentry classes in New York City. "If registration for the course is a sample of the ladies' interest, they are even more enthusiastic to learn carpentry than they were to jump in the family car and head for the department store or shopping center on 'daisy sale' days."

The Lady Carpenter commented that those enrolling in the course do not seem to be content with plans for "puttering projects." Most of them have a definite interest in carpentry.

The interest is partly because of their own creative urge and also the problem of hiring a professional carpenter for the home projects they want done.

The ladies are interested in learning to build, to panel, to decorate a wall, to handle a partition.

They want to learn how to create dividers, customize closets and how to assemble furniture. They want to know how to seal, stain, varnish and paint their finished products, too.

They are tackling these projects with the same gusto and verve that they once used on the mound of baby diapers, the family lunch boxes, the draperies and bedspreads that they whipped up on the trusty family sewing machine.

Mrs. Hartwell, whose appearance is a constant surprise to people with a preconceived idea of what a carpenter should look like, is a statuesque, striking brunette usually attired in a flowing feminine maxi skirt with turtle necked sweater.

Her long, jet black hair hangs midway down her back and is normally held back with a colorful headband.

She, herself, has had a most interesting and diversified career in carpentry. As early as grammar school she took shop courses usually confined to the boys in school.

Early start
Because of a family illness, Joyce was forced to go to work earlier than usual and found herself in a series of boring, unexciting jobs that rarely utilized her natural creative talent and ability for carpentry.

At one point, as a photographer's assistant, she discovered that she could build better props for photography than she could buy.

She then decided to open her own shop where she both designed and sold furniture. Before long, however, the customers began to look more at her custom carpentry and cabinet work than at the furniture for sale. And so, ten years ago, The Lady Carpenter was born.

In discussing the role of women in the field of carpentry, Joyce feels very strongly that many women only need the right opportunity and the chance to become acquainted with the tools.

Lady genius
She insists that many show real genius once they learn to master power tools, which in her opinion are as easy to operate as the electric machine and the electric knife in the kitchen.

Although the Lady Carpenter's scrapbook is filled with photographs of rooms she has created and built, although she handles the tools of her trade with ease and great efficiency, Joyce ruefully admits that some customers are reluctant to hire women for major projects.

In the classroom, The Lady Carpenter moves easily from student to student calling out advice and suggestions. Seeing her manipulating the power tools almost effortlessly, the students gain confidence. Once that happens, the ladies are ready.

In the event women feel that the world of carpentry might damage their winsome feminine appeal in the eyes of their menfolk, they can take note the tall, striking brunette with flashing eyes and classic profile is indeed a Mrs., a carpenter — and, a lady!

SAFETY FACTOR
The most important ingredient of any home improvement project should be safety, especially when power tools are used.

Lady renovators give home constructive touch

Many seen skirting stereotype roles to become wife, mother and do-it-yourselfer

There's a new breed of "do it yourselfers" nailing, hammering and sawing their way through everything from knick-knack shelves to complete home renovations. They're career women, mothers, grandmothers, the lady down the street—virtually any woman can join this group, many already have. Today, "do it yourselfers" have their own motto. "If it doesn't look good—paint it, saw it, change it."

This seems to reflect the growing trend on the part of today's women—either married or single—who have approached renovating seriously. The reason: partly because of the high cost of hiring professional carpenters—and partly because they find a great sense of satisfaction in creating and then building beautiful, functional things.

Renovating barnlike studio

One mature career gal recently discovered she had an innate talent for renovating. Faced with the unappealing prospect of paying exorbitant rent for a larger city apartment with extra room and modern facilities, she decided instead to rent a barnlike studio—with possibilities—and renovate it herself.

Unmovable column solvable problem

The major problem facing the budding about-to-be-renovator, was the open six foot kitchen area. The space and problem were complicated by a Lally column, that could not be removed, set plunk in the middle of the kitchen doorway. There were only 36" of space on either side of the column and only 28" from the back of the column to the kitchen sink wall.

The ingenious amateur carpenter/designer renovated the kitchen, as shown in the accompanying photos.

The trick was to turn the Lally column—a cylindrical metal pole—into an asset rather than a liability, and to maneuver the space for a dishwasher, refrigerator, trash compactor and stove in order to retain her original life style, one in which she formerly had entertained graciously both for business and personal pleasure and in larger quarters.

Two-way sink

One answer was to turn the kitchen sink lengthwise between the kitchen wall and the Lally column making it accessible from both sides of the kitchen area. The other was to utilize the new General Electric mini-appliances, uniquely designed for compact living, that could be fitted into the mini space and allow maxi work area.

Since the rest of the studio apartment was being paneled to hide unsightly wall defects, she decided to panel the kitchen area too. U. S. Plywood's Surfwood in Autumn Smoke shade seemed to fit her decorating style.

Because the paneling was light and easy for a woman to handle and covered the wall imperfections, it was an excellent start for the renovation project.

To the left of the sink, in the deeper open area, she built a frame that consisted of four 2 x 4 columns (pre-cut by the lumber yard along with the plywood for two shelves).

These she covered with colorful Cling self-stick adhesive vinyl in the Early American pattern that was also used on the wall in back of the sink. She fitted two shelves to the frame.

The GE mini-refrigerator, was light enough and compact enough, so in this case it was relegated to the top shelf of the frame where it can be reached without too much difficulty.

This left the floor area open so that a dishwasher could be slipped in under the first shelf. Now, the first shelf was wide enough and open enough to house a new microwave oven.

By simply building a frame, instead of closing in the area, she allowed space and air around both the microwave oven and the refrigerator.

The food can be taken directly from the refrigerator overhead and placed in the microwave oven on the shelf.

Mini appliances for maxi space

Where to put the stove and what kind to get seemed to be the other major problem. Using a GE Microwave Oven, and with a General Electric Toast-R-Oven, a small two unit cooktop stove seemed to fill the needs adequately and the space beneath the stove could now be utilized for a trash compactor.

The results, as shown in the photograph, are functional as well as attractive despite the mini-space. The pegboard, sprayed with Krylon Gold spray paint and trimmed with green Mystik tape now holds general cooking utensils as well as an old time "grocery grabber."

Old-time grocery grabber

Because the space was small, but ceilings were high, she put shelves in the upper recesses and the grocery grabber now becomes a vital necessity for storage in the mini-kitchen.

With this setup, the cook can utilize the small stove area in the right hand recessed corner of the kitchen and still be able to reach the sink from the right side.

Our amateur lady do it yourselfer devised a unique space saving feature for under the sink, too. She created and built a small, three-shelf cart and put it on wheels.

It is open on the front and the back is pegboard. The cart, with shelves covered in Cling self-stick adhesive wood grain effect holds clean-up supplies. The pegboard back covered with Cling's Early American Pattern holds the dishtowels, scouring pads, etc.

The cart can be pushed through under the sink to be used from either side of the sink area.

Colorful hidden storage. Finally, what to do about extra silverware, kitchen supplies, cookbooks, spices and some food? The lady renovator dis-

Other regulations

Other strengthened requirements of the new standard include a limited blade stopping time—with in 7 seconds, a splash shield or deflector to keep spilled gasoline from the muffler area, and restricted noise level—92 decibels for walk-behind mowers and 95 for riding vehicles.

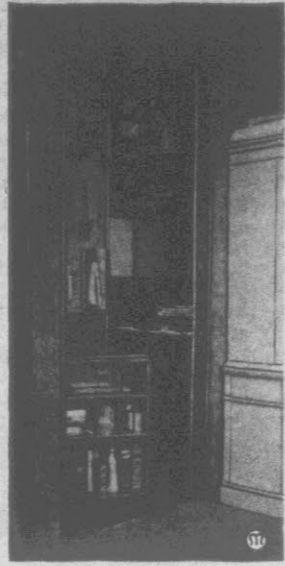

Standardized and easily identified engine controls also are required with forward movement for "fast" and rearward for "slow" or "stop."

The revised standard also covers grass catchers when they are a part of the mower housing when in place. The catcher must meet the same tests as the mower itself for containment of thrown objects.

For riding mowers and lawn and garden tractors, the revised power mower standard requires anti-jacking steering, interlocks to prevent inadvertent start up of the engine or powered attachments, and both service and parking brakes.

The riding vehicles, besides meeting the mower tests for strength, durability and protection, must also comply with tests for stability and braking.

STRIPPING KITS. Stripping furniture can be tricky, but complete kits are available at hardware stores.

Right view of transformed apartment "problem kitchenette" shows future spot for General Electric two unit cooktop. A trash compactor fits snugly beneath the stove. The small, three-shelf wheeled cart pulls out from beneath the sink. The "grocery grabber" on pegboard is for reaching high recessed shelves. Cling, self-adhesive vinyl trims the back wall. An old pegboard was revived when sprayed with Krylon gold spray paint and trimmed with green Mystik tape. Paneled walls are U.S. Plywood's Surfwood in Autumn Smoke shade.

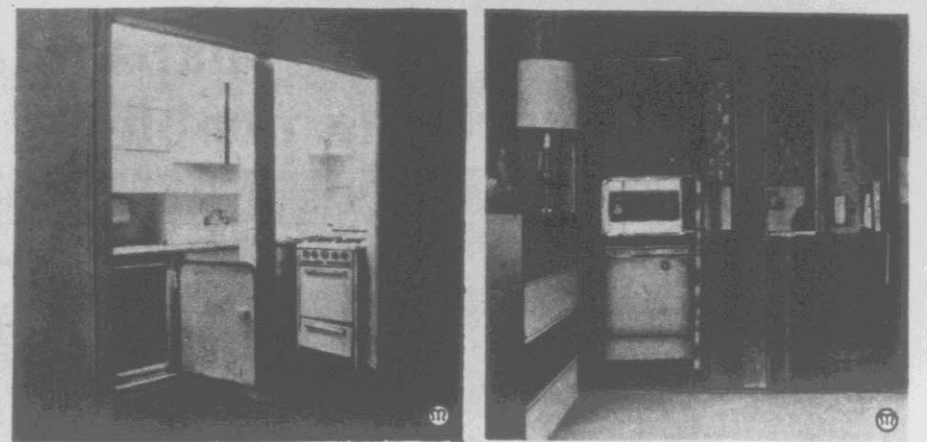

How to hide kitchen storage items in living room area? Supreme Equipment's Thin Line Conserv-A File offers one solution. The ten inch high, 36" wide metal tiers can be stacked neatly. They have individual Uni-boxes for compartmentalized storage. Available in a variety of decorator colors, with or without doors, the files are ideal for storing cookbooks, silverware, spices and even extra canned goods. When doors are closed, it fits any living room decorating theme.

Unusual sink treatment solves space problem in mini-apartment kitchen. By placing sink lengthwise from back wall to the edge of a cumbersome Lally column, and by utilizing wall faucets with extra long nozzle, it permits the cook to use sink from either side of the small divider.

Much remains to be done before the lady renovator can schedule her first Open House but when she does, she will be able to graciously cook and serve a delightful meal in minutes with the microwave oven, and dispose of the garbage gracefully with the trash compactor. She can even make the

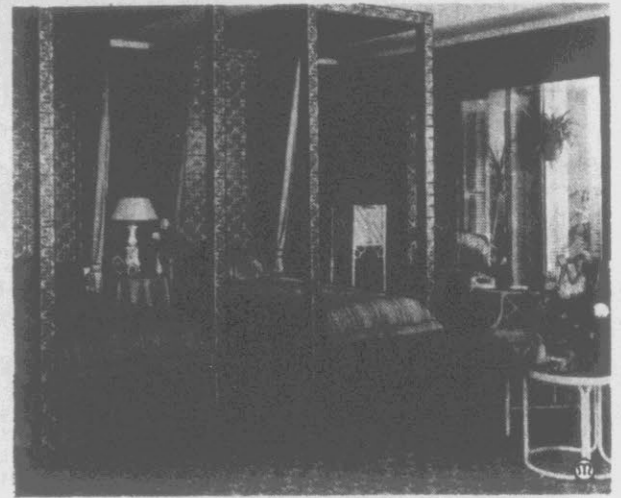

This six foot problem kitchen, with unsightly Lally column, was magically transformed by a lady do it yourselfer. With the help of local lumber yard, some helping hands and lots of imagination, she turned the problem area into a renovator's delight. U.S. Plywood Surfwood, in Autumn Smoke, fir paneling was used on walls, with Cling, self-adhesive vinyl for colorful highlight trim. Clever space-making ideas, unusual sink treatment, plus General Electric mini appliances provide maximum convenience for mini space.

Notice posted: vinyl coverings go beyond enhancing just floors

Probably no other floor creates as much color and design excitement as vinyl. A far cry from yesterday's drab linoleum, today's cushioned sheet vinyl floor coverings by GAF Corporation offer a range of patterns from Early American to Mediterranean or Oriental. Home remodelers looking for easy and economical ways to redecorate any room of the house should think about making floors their focal point.

Cushioned vinyl can provide the detailed pattern and rich colors needed to perk up a room. Flooring patterned to match by accessories and furniture in solid colors can transform rooms into cheerful living areas.

Designer Virginia Frankel captured a teenager's dream when she planned this ro-

Floor as focal point—today's cushioned sheet vinyl floor coverings offer a wide range of color and design excitement. A homeowner transformed this bedroom by extending GAF Sintra ceramic tile motif in Foamcraft sheet vinyl beyond the floor for a romantic and carefree environment.

manic bedroom for two sisters. The hand-painted Sintra Portuguese tile motif of GAF Foamcraft sheet vinyl is extended beyond the floor.

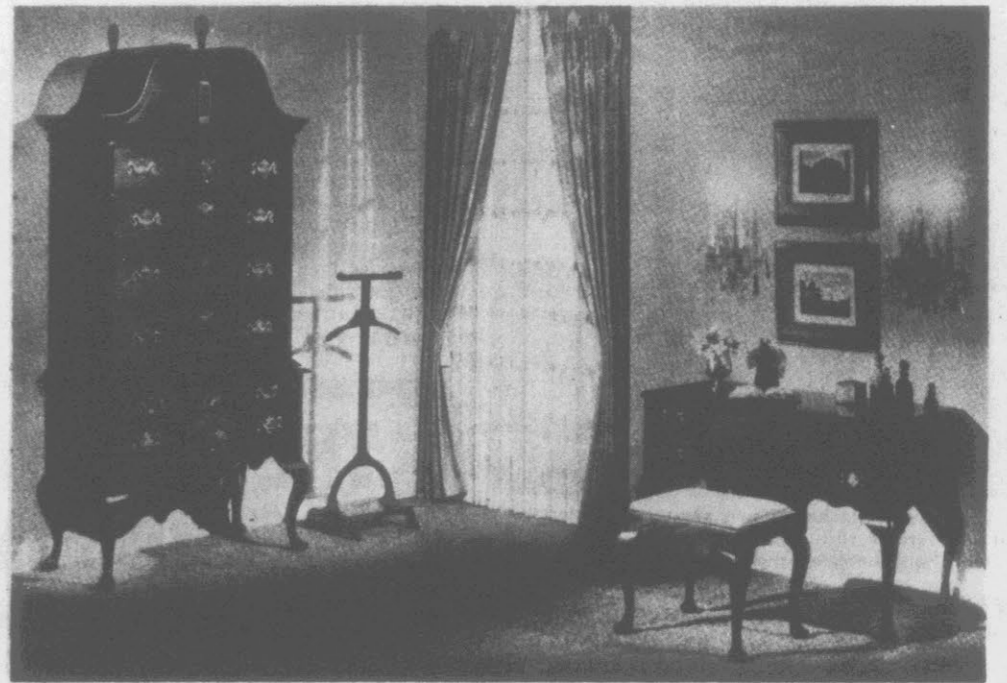

Plywood posts and walls behind beds were covered with the flexible Foamcraft sheet vinyl to create 16th century four-posters. Striped linen sheets make pretty bedspreads and curtains surrounding the four-poster beds. Crisp white louvered shutters stand out against the flooring motif in an inviting window seat area to complete the all-in-one Sintra tile.

Power mower standards revised for safety

A new revised Safety Standard for power mowers—the most sweeping revision in the standard's 12-year history—will be in evidence on many 1973 power mowers.

The Standard's official designation, "ANS B71.1-1972", appears on the new triangular safety seal issued by OPEI, the sponsor of an independent laboratory testing program for conformance to the standard. Models of mowers bearing this seal have been tested under this program and found to comply with the standard.

The new revision covers all types of power mowers including rotaries, reels, riding mowers, lawn and garden tractors, and mowing attachments.

For the consumer, the revised standard means more protection from flying objects and less opportunity for contact with mower blades and moving parts.

Safety for operator. The standard requires that discharged material be kept from the operator's zone and calls for protective guarding at the rear of the mower deck, which also helps to prevent the operator's feet from slipping under the machine.

In addition, the updated standard also calls for protection at the mouth of the discharge chute and requires a test where a probe, shaped like a boot, is moved about in the discharge chute without entering the blade path.

Scrapbook of color snapshots eases redecorating problems

Ever daydream about being an interior decorator? Wouldn't it be fun to spend other people's money to make their homes look lovely?

But somehow it's a different story when it's time to redecorate your own home. Where to start? What to keep? What to change? How to describe what you want to salespeople and your decorator?

One excellent way to start is with a camera—a handy little easy-to-use one like the Kodak pocket Instamatic camera that can be slipped into a pocket or purse. Of the five pocket camera models, four (models 30, 40, 50 and 60) are able to take time exposures automatically.

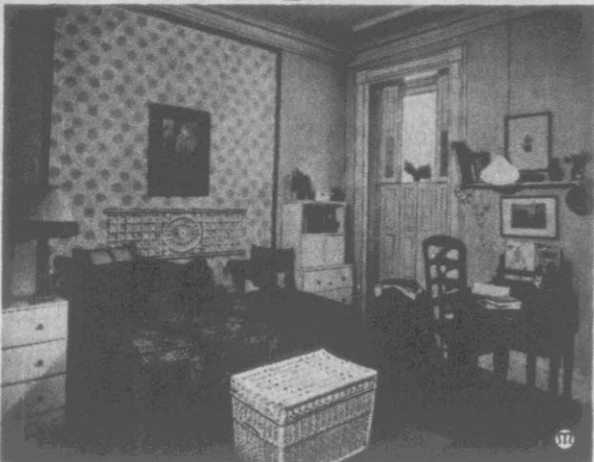

This makes it possible to stand back and get the full length of a room in one picture. Or you can snap from as close as two feet with some models to get details.

First take color snapshots all around the rooms you plan to decorate—a window you want changed; a bare corner that needs a new treatment; a closet that cries out to be rearranged. Then start a room-by-room scrapbook of the snapshots.

Although the new pocket cameras are small, they take big 3½ x 4½-inch pictures, so choose a generous-size scrapbook with plenty of pages.

You'll want to add magazine clippings of things you like, paint chips, wallpaper samples, fabric swatches and notes. And flatter your friends by taking snapshots of things you like best in their homes — furniture, window treatments and fabric patterns, for example.

If a light shows in the viewfinder when you start to depress the shutter release, it means the camera is going to take a time exposure. You must then set it on something to prevent movement that would blur the picture. The top of a stepladder works well, and the ladder can be moved around the house. Or you can set the camera on a tripod or some books stacked on a table, stool or other flat surface.

This bedroom for a ten-year-old is the result of a do-it-yourself decorating project that began with a camera. To begin, Mother took snapshots of the room and put them in a scrapbook along with fabric, paint and paper samples — a perfect shopping guide.

Mrs. Velma Johnson, left, sets her Kodak pocket Instamatic 30 camera firmly on the edge of a stepladder top to take indoor snapshots without flash. The "before" snapshot, right, of the bedroom shown above became part of her decorating scrapbook.

A small camera stand made for Kodak pocket Instamatic cameras is helpful, too: it provides a firm base and tilts to any angle. A cable release that comes with it is another aid when taking snapshots by available light.

When your scrapbook has been assembled room by room, decide on a budget. If it's limited, use the priority system, allotting your funds to the important goals first. Once you've done your "homework," you'll be ready to start shopping, with your scrapbook — or pages from it — in hand. This professional approach will be a great help in getting exactly what you want.

But don't stop taking pictures when the work is done. A set of "after" snapshots will complete your scrapbook. They will be nice to have, handy to send to out of town friends to show what you've done and, in addition will come in very handy in a few years, when the freshness has faded and it's time to change your decor again.

Light room with... Glass doors

With sliding glass doors off the bedroom, den, kitchen — on the ground level or on a deck — all the beautiful scenery of the outdoors becomes a part of the room. The changing seasons offer a panoramic view to highlight the seasonal accessories inside and delight all who enter the room.

In effect, there is a living fourth wall that requires no painting yet looks constantly fresh as the outdoors.

Tempered safety glass, usually professionally installed, or installed by advanced do-it-yourselfers makes the sliding doors practical, economical and safe.

The advantage of tempered safety glass is that, should it ever break, it crumbles harmlessly into small rounded pieces that reduce the chance of serious injury.

When teamed-up with a mirror on facing walls, sliding glass doors offer more light than conventional sources.

Updating insurance falls right into home improvement plans

How much thought did you give to that new recreation room or bedroom you finally got around to adding to your home to keep pace with the needs of your growing family?

In most cases, plenty! Cost was a main consideration, and coupled with that was finding a means to finance the addition.

Not done yet. But now that it's built, and your children are happily playing ping-pong in the new rec room or your older daughter is feeling more like a woman since she no longer has to share a bedroom with her kid sister, have you written a final to the project? If you have, you could be sorry. Too many people stop thinking about their new living space after the last brick is laid or the last nail driven into a wall.

What you may not realize is that even before the project is started you should notify your insurance company of your plans in order to avoid falling into what's known as the homeowner's coverage insurance gap.

All too often a policyholder may put a $5,000 or $6,000 addition onto his home but not tell his insurance company. The oversight can be costly in two ways. First, if the home is destroyed by fire it will not be covered for the full loss.

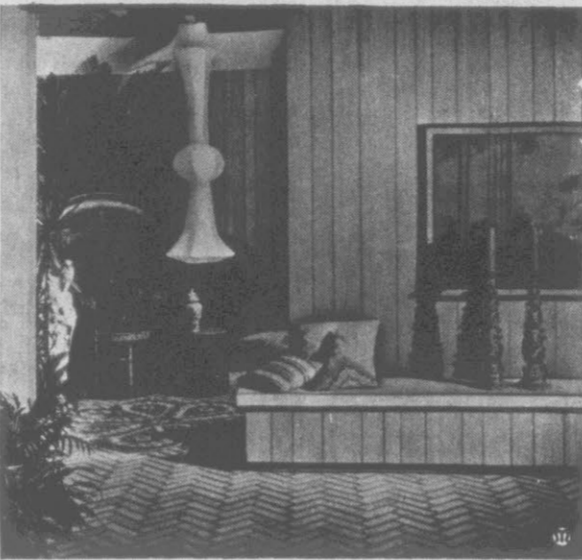

Protection level important. And, secondly, if the home is not covered for at least 80 percent of its replacement value, the policyholder will lose out on a special feature included in the homeowner's policy: waiver of the usual deduction for depreciation when the amount of insurance on the home is kept above the 80 percent level. Not only is it important to make sure that a home is adequately covered when an addition is put on, but periodically it may be necessary to increase the amount of coverage in order to counteract the crippling effects of inflation.

For instance, a home bought 20 years ago for $15,000 probably would cost twice that amount to replace today, considering the rise in construction costs. "It's a known fact that today more than one-half of all the nation's single-family homes are underinsured," says Stephen P. Janko of Continental Casualty Co., a subsidiary of CNA Financial Corp.

Janko's advice is this: 1. When the homeowner's policy is renewed, double check coverage to be sure it represents the home's current value. 2. Whenever there is a major change in the home, such as substantial remodeling or a room addition, have the family's insurance agent visit the house so he can accurately assess the insurance needs. Adds Janko: "An underinsured home in today's inflationary world is simply a case of playing with fire."

Lovely as these furnishings are, it's the walls that make the room. The paneling is prefinished hardboard in a light-toned woodgrain design — a perfect backdrop for the exotic room decor. Despite their delicate look, the panels are sturdy and dent-resistant, and can be damp-wiped clean.

Paneled walls can add up to more beautiful rooms

A wall is a wall is a wall. Put four of them together and you have a room.

After all, that's what a room is — space that has been "walled-in." For that reason, when it comes to lightening, brightening, beautifying or simply redoing a room, it's a good idea to start with the walls.

One way to begin is with paneling. Modern wall panels of prefinished hardboard offer a variety of designs, easy installation, and low maintenance. They make ordinary walls "come alive" in a number of ways.

Home highlight. A highlight for today's homes are walls of beauty. Panels in natural woodgrain finishes add a warm glow to any room. They range from pale ash and pecan to deep tones of rosewood and walnut.

If you prefer walls of color — bright or subdued hues that fit any setting — consider panels in decorator colors. They can be used in family rooms, bathrooms, bedrooms or kitchens to great visual advantage. Like all hardboard paneling, they are easy to keep clean with an occasional damp-wiping, won't dent, mar or scuff and are tough and durable.

For every room. Prefinished panels in colors, woodgrain finishes, patterns and textured designs are ideal for areas such as kitchens, baths and laundry areas.

Running out of space? Then you will need walls that can multiply present storage space. Perforated hardboard panels, which accept hooks and shelf brackets, can create a convenient storage wall in virtually any room: in a child's bedroom for getting those clothes off the floor; in a kitchen for hanging extra pots and pans; in family rooms to provide storage for books, games and hobby materials.

With sound-resistant hardboard paneling you can also have walls of silence — especially suitable for families with noisy youngsters around the house.

Living rooms, playrooms and other noisy areas can be quieted down with the installation of prefinished hardboard wall panels. Tests show that when used as facing materials over partition walls built of recommended backup materials, the paneling has a high resistance to noise transmission.

Easy installation. Hardboard panels are easily installed over furring strips, and in some cases right on the existing wall. Matching moldings, color-matched nails and special adhesive for nail-less applications are available to simplify installation.

More information on building rooms around paneled walls is contained in an illustrated color brochure, "New Dimensions in Living." It's available for 25 cents from the American Hardboard Assn., 20 N. Wacker Drive, Chicago, Illinois 60606.

Finishing touch to room

It's never too late to give a Lane Sweetheart Chest. When remodeling a room, think of adding a special accent with fine furniture. Lane Sweetheart Chests are available in styles to match any decor.

Cold weather cool time to install air conditioning

If you're thinking of installing central air-conditioning, you'll be ahead of the game if you call your contractor well before hot weather. The Air-Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute says that most installing contractors are busiest during the hot weather months.

The two keys to obtaining a good cooling system, says ARI, are: (1) purchasing "certified" equipment and (2) using a qualified contractor.

Certified central air-conditioning equipment gives the consumer an assurance that his equipment is accurately rated, will operate accurately, and has been sound rated. Certified equipment, says ARI, displays the blue and white ARI "Seals" for unitary and sound certification.

But certified equipment should be properly installed, and this is where the qualifications of the installing contractor come into play. To calculate the size and kind of air-conditioning that will serve you best, an expert contractor will study your house carefully.

He will consider a long list of facts: its orientation to the sun, its size, floor plan, construction, amount of glass area, landscaping and the size of your family.

Shade bordered with ruffles adds appeal

Using a fancy ruffled valance or cafe curtains with a window shade can be coordinated into a full-fledged window treatment by adding a narrow, shirred-fabric border to the shade with special, snap-on tape.

The ruffle can be easily removed for washing — and the vinyl-coated shade will need only a wipe-over with a damp cloth.

Decorative improvement

That old, favorite chair looks like new when reupholstered in a colorful and durable vinyl. The pattern here is "Gala" by Masland Duran in a flowering of red, white and blue.

Reupholstering in vinyl gives new life to chair

That old chair. Father's favorite. Mother's pet peeve. Don't throw it out. Do it over.

As near as your nearest upholstery shop, there's an expert who can rejuvenate that sad sack. Give it a new look — and add a lift to your living room — by giving it a new cover.

Here's a hint: choose a vinyl reupholstery fabric — for durability, for color.

Masland Duran supplies most of the country's leading upholstery shops with their most popular covers. Not slipcovers, but permanent make-over materials that are long for this world. Long on style, long on wear.

There are tweeds, checks, solids, textures. Elegant traditional patterns and bright modern florals. Plus vinyls that look like silk, linen, matelasse, tapestry or brocade.

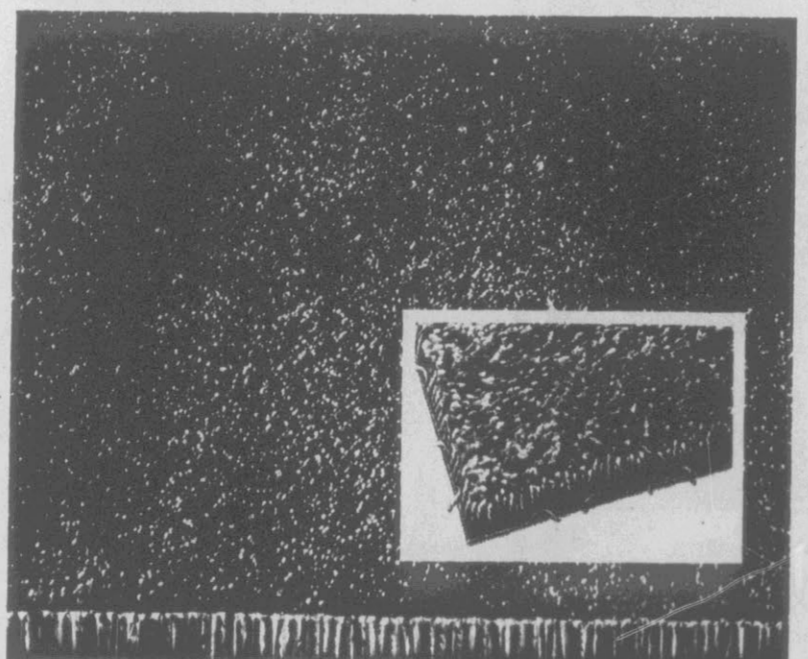

People used to think of vinyl as plastic, and sometimes felt they had to apologize for its use. Not so today! Now people would rather use vinyl that wipes clean and withstands wear than to select a more delicate fabric you can't sit on for fear it will soil.

So, home improvers, unite! While you're adding on, building in, and otherwise focussing attention on more spacious living, give some thought to the decorative aspects of improving your environment, too.

Water is as good as you make it

It's bad enough when pollutants are in a lake or river. When they are on your skin or hair, it's worse.

This happens when your water is hard, or is loaded with iron and other contaminants. Soap combines with these impurities and they end up as an unpleasant residue on you.

The importance of water quality in the care of skin and hair was emphasized at a recent symposium in Washington, D.C. A water softener was declared essential for proper skin and hair care in hard water areas which, according to the Culligan Water Institute, include nearly 85% of the United States and Canada.

Beauty, a renowned dermatologist told the symposium, often is largely determined by how we care for skin and hair. Soft water is essential for their proper cleansing.

"A scalp that is not cleansed properly is more likely to develop bacterial infections and aggravations of pre-existing skin disease, especially a dandruff condition," said Dr. Peter N. Horvath, Chairman, Department of Dermatology, Georgetown University.

"In addition, such hair and scalp may look and smell unattractive," he continued. "On the other hand, properly cleansed scalp and hair is less prone to skin problems and such cleansing measures can improve the individual's appearance. Such improvement would include cleanliness, lustrous hair, pleasant odor, and easy manageability."

When cosmetic measures are contemplated, such as hair coloring or permanent waving, these must be preceded by thorough washing with soft water, said Ruth Aitken—for two years President of the 65,000 member National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association which represents beauty salons around the country. "I have been a practicing hairdresser for years," she told the symposium, "and I cannot envision operating a beauty salon without soft water."

The role of soft water in bathing was also explored. Soft water is easier and more economical to heat, and its kindness to the skin is especially important during long periods of immersion.

A bath is more than pleasure. It is also an important therapeutic medium, said Dr. Anna Kara, a specialist in hydrotherapy. She told the symposium she recommended water therapy for hypertension, muscle and joint problems, including arthritis.

Fortunately, the best quality of water for washing and bathing is now within easy reach of all.

Baby's skin stays silky-smooth and healthy in a bath of soft water. Soft water leaves no gummy residues on skin and hair to cause roughness, irritation or an unpleasant sticky feeling. Baby's bath, dad's shaving, mother's beauty care — all benefit from soft water. Photo courtesy of Culligan.

Mechanical water softeners have become standard equipment in homes. Further, they are better than ever.

In addition to softening, they eliminate up to three parts per million of iron. Units, such as the new "Filtr-Soft," also do an improved job of purifying the water, removing turbidity, so that it tastes as good as it looks and feels. The secret? Activated carbon. It absorbs unwanted tastes and odors, including that of chlorine.

Though buying a water softener outright is usually the most economical, you can learn about soft water benefits without buying your own equipment. It can be done by subscribing to "soft water service."

A softening unit is installed on your water line and monthly payment is made on the basis of how much soft water you use.

Modern heating systems become decor accessory

Are you planning any home improvement projects? If so, advises the National Better Heating-Cooling Council, don't overlook the heating system.

Heating is necessary in 90 percent of all home modernization work, and you'll be dollars ahead if you include it with the rest of the plans. Also, if it's a new room, it will be useful all year long.

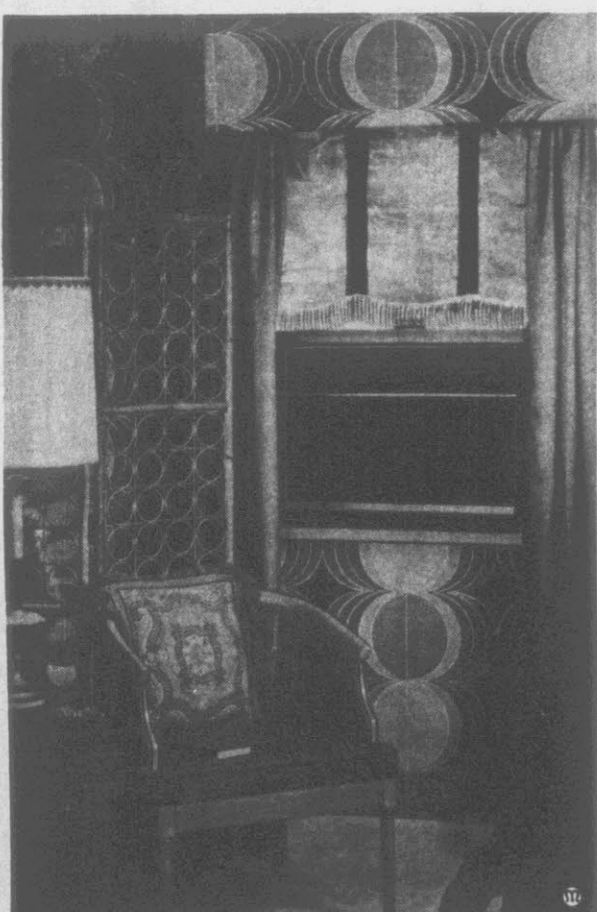

If your home is equipped with hydronic (modern hot water) home heating, you'll have an easy time extending it to the new addition. Because modern hydronics uses finger size tubing, you'll be able to snake it from room to room without tearing down walls or ripping floors. Many home decorators have been hampered by large radiators. Replace them with ankle-high hydronic baseboard panels. In addition to the more uniform heat, baseboard heating permits the use of floor-length draperies and wall-to-wall carpeting. The new hydronic boilers are appliance-styled and many of them have a wood-panel finish. Smaller but more efficient than the older, larger boilers, they will save up to 25 percent in fuel costs, and make the new finished play or work area in the basement more attractive.

First impression made by the home counts, too

Entranceways, especially, give house character; offer welcome to visitors

Add a patio and gain the whole outdoors. Here, Andersen low-maintenance Perma-Shield patio doors open up two sections of the house, and provide easy access outside. The vinyl-clad wood doors require no painting and have the convenience of insulating glass. Tempered safety glass is standard.

Adding patio takes family to outdoors

Expanding your home? With a patio or deck, you can "add on" the whole outdoors.

Patios are one of the most pleasurable home improvements possible. They give visual spaciousness to the home interior, provide ready access outside, and encompass the splendors of seasonally-changing landscapes.

But, says the Andersen Corporation of Bayport, Minn., a leading window manufacturer, patios must be carefully planned to provide maximum enjoyment. They offer these suggestions for getting the best from a patio:

- Don't be limited in patio design. Square-shaped flagstone patios are fine. But rectangular, triangular, circular or freeforming patios of concrete, gravel or bricks, may suit your homesite better.

- To assure year-round comfort and enough leisure time for patio enjoyment, use low-maintenance patio doors. In Andersen's Perma-Shield patio doors, vinyl-clad sash and frames don't need painting, and won't pit, rust or corrode. They have insulating glass (tempered for safety) that reduces heat loss and eliminates the need for storm sash.

- Consider using the patio to expand more than one room. For example, run it the length of the house, or extend it round a corner. Then use gliding patio doors to open each room to the outdoors and provide access to a host of backyard activities — all fresco dining, sunbathing, entertaining, or just relaxing.

- If the patio faces west or south, shade can be provided by an awning — although this may darken the interior and obstruct the view. A popular alternative is using gliding patio doors with special glazing to reduce glare and heat.

- Provide the patio with whatever extras will make it more fun for the family.

Trophy shelf displays family achievements

Planning on redoing the basement into a family room, but worried what to use to give it that sporty look? Why not include a trophy shelf.

Almost everyone has a trophy or two packed away in the attic. If the kids are on school sports teams or cheerleading, chances are they will be adding their own to the collection.

Ever think about what people notice most when driving by or entering your house? Would you be surprised to learn that it is the entranceway that creates the biggest impression?

Just look around the next time you're out for a drive. You'll immediately notice it's the entranceway — the door and decorative entranceway designs — that provides color relief, and gives the house its character.

Yet when it comes to remodeling, many people completely overlook the entranceway in their planning. Often they spend thousands on new siding, paint, and landscaping, but the same old wood door and unattractive aluminum storm door remain behind.

Remodeled door
A new remodeling door designed to replace existing entranceways without major housing structure alterations should help the remodeler facing this problem.

How improvements increase resale value

If you are a dedicated home improver, you are probably in for a pleasant surprise when you come to sell your present home.

Perhaps you will want more space because your family is larger. Or maybe you and your wife would like a smaller house to take care of once the children are grown and off on their own.

Whatever reason you may have for putting your house on the market, the chances are when you do, you will find it is worth considerably more today than when you originally purchased it.

Just about anywhere in the country, a well maintained home in an attractive neighborhood should fetch an appreciably higher price today than when it was originally purchased.

This holds true even if you have made no improvements on either the house or the land since you purchased the property. However, as Robert W. Johnson, president of J. I. Kislak Mortgage Corporation, points out, most people have made changes in the house they bought in line with their family's own needs and, quite often, these improvements also add to the value of the house when it is placed on the market. The Kislak executive's view is worth noting since the company he heads is one of the nation's largest mortgage bankers and a leader in arranging for FHA and VA home mortgage loans.

Cautions seller
At the same time, Johnson cautions the prospective home seller against expecting a dollar-for-dollar return on every improvement which has been made. For example, changes that you made to add to the convenience or comfort of your family may not be so highly thought of by every prospective buyer.

A recreation room converted from basement space, however, or a family room added on to the original house represents an important addition and the homeowner who has made this improvement should expect that 70% to 80% of his cost can be recovered in the selling price.

Regional difference will also affect the "return" value of the improvement. A case in point is the outdoor patio, practically taken for granted in southern states where the climate makes it a useful addition to family living space nearly all year long.

In contrast, a patio area in New England, Michigan or Minnesota, even though it may enhance the overall appearance of the plot and setting of the house, can only be put to full use from late spring to early fall. In this case, perhaps no more than half the cost can be added to the asking price of the home.

Additions which the Kislak executive points out as having a high percentage of recovery are: a second bathroom in a three or four bedroom house, a lavatory addition on the ground floor of a two-story house, the addition of a third bedroom to what was formerly a two bedroom house (if the third bedroom is of comparable size to the others) and a fully modernized kitchen.

But don't expect to recapture very much of the cost of landscaping and other cosmetic changes, Johnson warns. Tastes differ, and the flocked wallpaper for which you paid $17 a roll may strike another person as a terrible waste of money. Other prospects may not be impressed by wall-to-wall carpeting and the same may be true of expensive and unusual lighting fixtures. A new exterior paint job may make the house look more attractive to prospects but the cost should be considered a normal maintenance expense.

Improve for family
Is this any reason to hold back on home improve-# choose the heating system that's right for you...

Selecting the heating system for your new home may be one of the most important decisions you will make. Heating system selection is often the key to the comfort, convenience and resale value of your home. Future fuel supplies should also be carefully considered.

Before making the final selection, you should get as much information as possible about operating costs, installation costs, servicing and care and maintenance needed. Shop around, ask questions and do a little research. You can obtain literature from dealers, manufacturers and the U.S. Government.*

Whatever heating system you select we recommend good insulation for future operating economy.

Cause for alarm about burglary increases security system use

If you have cause for alarm about burglary, Magnavox may have just the product for your problem.

With the number of burglaries in America up 113 per cent in the decade of the 1960's alone, Magnavox is introducing a full line of low cost and easily installed alarm systems.

After research which included contacting everyone from the police to a burglar, Magnavox alarm systems have been designed within the price range of the average homeowner and are aimed at frightening the burglar away.

Lights, alarm

As soon as the burglar is detected, each of the three Magnavox alarm systems automatically turns on a lamp in the house. About 15 seconds later, a loud blaring alarm begins to sound.

Unlike other alarms, Magnavox systems require no connecting wires between the magnetic sensors and the master alarm unit. Anyone with a screwdriver can install the sensors in minutes, and the master control unit itself is completely installed just by simply plugging it into any electrical outlet.

There are three basic systems, two of which protect entranceways and a third which automatically detects any movement inside a room through the use of ultrasonic waves.

The sensors are actually small magnetic contacts which are mounted on doors and windows. When the contacts are broken by Attaching two magnetic contacts to any door or window with four screws is the only installation required by the new Magnavox Home Security Systems. When the contacts are separated by the opening of the protected door or window a signal is instantly transmitted to an alarm which can be located anywhere in the house. The alarm immediately turns on a table lamp and, 15 seconds later, activates an 85-decibel horn.

System is installed by simply plugging it into a common AC outlet and placing it on a shelf or table top in the room to be protected.

It then constantly emits an ultrasonic sound wave

(not audible to the human ear) which, when disturbed by an intruder, immediately turns on any lamp and, soon afterwards, a loud horn.

The products are available at all Magnavox dealers.

the door or window being opened, a signal is immediately transmitted to the alarm's master control unit.

Where most systems require unsightly wires (and expensive installation), the Magnavox systems don't.

Easy installation

One of the systems — called the AC Alarm System — connects the master control to the sensor-transmitter by using ordinary house wiring — in other words, plugging the transmitter in-

With the second system, called the RF Alarm System, a cigarette-pack sized radio transmitter located inconspicuously near the opening (door or window) transmits the alarm-activating signal from the sensors to the master control.

Exterior of home reflects owner's inner pride

The Bird & Son Architect 70 asphalt roofing shingle is a massive heavy-weight shingle made with two surface layers. It offers superior fire protection and resists hurricane-force winds. Virtually every style of architecture and type of building material is complemented by this roofing shingle.

Asphalt shingles lend safety factor to home

The construction and color variations of asphalt roofing shingles have become a dominant factor in the architectural styling of the home. Bold, rustic and the natural "shake" look give character and charm that is becoming and adds to gracious living. It is equally at home on broad roof expanses or on small, angular areas.

Asphalt roofing shingles provide rustic charm and elegance, and yet maintain their envied low maintenance and fire-resistant qualities.

That's the word from building materials manufacturer Bird & Son, Inc., East Walpole, Mass., where even the styles and colors of asphalt roofing shingles are a significant factor in the general design and architectural styling of the home.

Added to this new aesthetic appeal in roofing is the well known, long time endurance and safety record of asphalt roofing shingles to wind and fire — a combination hard to beat when it comes to providing protection and bold sweeping roof lines.

The wind and fire resistant capabilities of asphalt roofing are measured by Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc., a non-profit organization set up for the purpose of testing the safety of many varieties of materials and equipment. Asphalt roofing shingles must meet specific testing standards in order to earn the C, B or A Classes of Labels issued by the testing firms.

Passes rigid tests

In turn, the homeowner is assured that the shingles have passed tests for flame spread, flame exposure, and ignition by burning brands, and their inability to emit burning brands or embers.

Bird & Son, a pioneer in shingle design and construction, is also the developer of the well known Wind Seal feature which bonds shingles together on the roof and helps prevent them from tearing off in strong winds, thus giving roofs high resistance to all wind and climatic conditions.

The self-sealing feature is acquired during the manufacturing process, when spots of thermoplastic cement are applied to the shingle. Once these shingles are installed on the roof, heat from the sun activates the cement and bonds the shingles in place, providing a solid and durable roof cover highly resistant to strong winds and nature's torturing elements.

Broad product line

A number of years ago, Bird & Son introduced its line of Solid Vinyl Building Products, which is now recognized as the most extensive and varied in the home improvement and construction industry. The line now includes sidings, gutters and downspouts, shutters, and fascia and soffit systems.

For more than 60 years, Bird & Son has been a major producer of building products. The multi-line company, whose history dates back 178 years, has major plants and sales offices in Charleston, S.C.; Norwood, Mass.; Bardonia, N.Y.; Perth Amboy, N.J.; Shreveport, La.; Portland, Ore.; and San Mateo, Calif. Bird & Son was founded in 1795, and since that time has expanded and diversified into paper products, felt, machinery, roofing and roofing supplies, and solid vinyl building materials.

TAPE IT!

When painting windows and doors, use masking tape to keep paint off glass and walls. Any accidents should be wiped off quickly to make clean-up easier.

Adding wooden decks to side or yard offers exciting outdoor family living

Biggest room of the house for many families can be an outdoor room, simply by adding a wood deck to side or back yard, plus a privacy screen or sun shade if needed.

Happy new experiences await the family with an added deck, such as outdoor dining and entertaining, sunning or just relaxing with a good book.

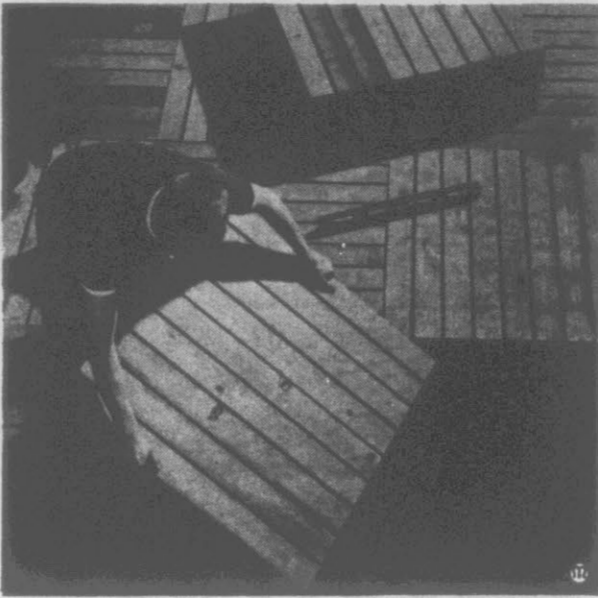

A deck of western wood with built-in benches or patio furniture opens the way to discovering the joys of outdoor living in pleasant months, and it dries quickly for a play area between stormy spells.

A deck fits almost anywhere, enhancing any site, flat or sloping. It can be placed over a garage or driveway, off a second story or just one step off the ground.

Decks, of course, come in many styles, sizes and shapes. One popular pattern, especially suited for a flat lot, is a parquet deck, with three-foot square sections placed over a bed of gravel and sand.

A 12-foot square version of this deck can be installed by the home handyman over a weekend. The 16 modules are nailed together in a jig, using 178 three-foot lengths of 2 x 4-inch Douglas fir or western cedar.

The site is excavated to hold three inches of sand

Creating an exciting outdoor living area over a weekend, handyman places three-foot modules of 2 x 4-inch western wood in alternating directions over bed of sand and gravel to form parquet-pattern deck. Wood in direct contact with ground should be preservative-treated.

over three inches of gravel. The modules are placed in alternate directions in a checkerboard pattern.

Wood members that come in direct contact with the ground should be treated with a preservative for longer life. Galvanized or non-ferrous nails are recommended.

It's also wise to check local building codes when a deck is to be attached to the house, and determining exactly where property lines run could prevent future problems.

For a plans booklet on parquet, hexagonal and raised decks, plus an eight-page color booklet of deck ideas, send 25 cents in coin to Western Wood Products Assn., Dept. 502-13M, Yeon Bldg., Portland, Ore. 97204.

Tips that will help homeowner save money in buying water softener

With awareness growing of the importance of soft water, more and more homeowners are taking the plunge. As for any major appliance purchase, a knowledge of what to look for will help you avoid pitfalls and get the most for your money.

Unlike other appliances, good indication that your home needs insulation.

You also may be losing heat from openings in your home. Light a candle and hold it near the edges of windows and doors. If it flickers, you probably need caulking, weather-stripping, or storm windows and doors. They can cut your fuel costs by as much as 10 percent.

Furnaces should be checked and adjusted at the start of each heating season.

Air filters should be replaced at least 3 times a season.

water conditioning equipment is not bought in a store. Though you may see models on display there, many factors are involved that require the visit of a salesman to your home. He must test the water, determine usage, decide where equipment can be installed. Only then are you ready to buy.

Don't be deceived by a very low price. Be sure the price quoted includes installation. Get cost of equipment and cost of installation before you buy. Verify that the installation includes a free initial salt fill. This could be worth $10 or more.

Buy from a reputable dealer. Buy equipment made by a basic manufacturer, rather than a company that merely assembles parts.

If the water conditioner is a well-known nationally advertised brand of a leading manufacturer, you have the assurance of satisfactory after-sales service and such other benefits as automatic salt delivery. Buying an unknown or little-known make may leave you stuck with an orphan, and unable to get parts or service.

Buy the equipment of a national rather than a regional manufacturer. A national manufacturer will have a large network of dealers, so that you can take your equipment with you if you move, with assurance that you'll find service wherever you are going.

Most water conditioners come in two styles—a cabinet model and a two-tank model. Cabinet models are especially attractive and are space savers. Salt storage is included within the cabinet.

If you are not concerned about space, and the installation is to be made in the utility area, you are better off with a two-tank model.

Keep attic cool, house comfortable with automatic roof ventilators

Tests by the home building industry show that proper ventilation can reduce attic air temperatures by as much as 50-degrees from levels commonly reaching 120 and higher.

To the homeowner, this means cooler living areas, and more efficient and less costly air conditioning.

A new high capacity power roof ventilator by Leigh offers the additional advantage of automatic operation, thermostatically controlled within the attic temperature range desired.

Automatic control features of earlier units were restricted to the extremes pre-set by the manufacturer, and frequently were not the most efficient for actual climate variations.

Installation of a Leigh ventilator is well within the capabilities of the average home handyman using the instructions provided. An 11-inch square cut through the roofing surface between rafters, mounting of the power unit and vent, a little roofing cement to insure against possible leakage, two jiffy wire connections, setting of the thermostat, and the job's done. The new Leigh model 409, consisting of a low silhouette dual baffle aluminum ventilator and the power unit, is now available.

This home has a cool attic! Leigh power roof ventilators exhaust trapped hot air, keeping living areas comfortably cooler and cutting air conditioning costs with automatic control of attic temperatures. Installation is easy, operation economical and quiet.

Man-made bedroom furniture copies nature beautifully

Furnishing a bedroom—depending on your pocketbook and taste—can be a piece-by-piece proposition or an all-at-once purchase. For those who prefer the latter course, but are appalled at the thought of the cost—take heart!

There are many bedroom collections that don't require the outlay of a government debt to own. Some of the best and most technologically advanced manufacturers have found new methods of producing furniture that looks hand-carved, but is priced within the range of almost any family budget.

Budget made
The reason is the development of furniture that is all man-made. In one of science's more constructive achievements, manufacturers have developed techniques for laminating vinyl film onto a particle board base and applying ornamentation that looks hand-carved, but is, in reality, molded polystyrene.

Sierra Permaneer, a division of Permaneer Corporation, even has an invention called a mitre-fold that cuts into the base in such a way that the sides can be folded right into the desired furniture shape.

Furniture produced this way can be a simple, unadorned contemporary fashion or elaborately decorated in favored traditional styles.

More durable
Veneers reproduce the best segments of wood so accurately that it is almost impossible to tell the real from the simulated, but the man-made has many assets. It is more durable.

Damp or steam-heated rooms won't cause warping. Perfume and cosmetics won't stain or mar surfaces.

According to Sierra Permaneer designers, the newest look in bedroom furniture is lighter colored finishes. New collections introduced for 1973 feature soft, medium toned wood veneers such as pecan, and more antique whites to achieve this lightened effect.

It was pointed out that these finishes are elegant and allow considerable decorating lee-way. They can blend equally easily with many different decorating schemes.

Storage considerations have been given top priority, too, company spokesmen pointed out, and dressers and armoires have greater capacity and better engineered details than ever before. The conventional high chest has almost completely given way to the European-styled armoire because of the armoire's greater and more flexible interior space.

Modest price
All this attention to detail, to styling and to function would seem to cost more, but Sierra Permaneer executives indicate that it comes budget-priced with five piece bedroom groupings ranging from $249 to $499. At those prices, there's no longer any excuse for an odds-and-ends furnished bedroom!

Clean lines and architectural detailing distinguish a new transitional bedroom grouping from Sierra Permaneer. Its restrained shadow box moldings and warm pecan vinyl finish make it equally at-home with contemporary, Oriental or traditional accessories. Completely man-made, the furniture is particle board laminated with a vinyl film. Decorative elements are molded polystyrene. Drawer pulls are satin brass. A five-piece group will retail for under $300.

Now you see them . . . Now you don't. With some creative ideas, inexpensive materials and a little handwork you can turn this General Electric compact washer and dryer pair in their stack rack into a decorative and practical addition to an apartment kitchen or bathroom. An easy way to do this is to construct two inexpensive plywood panels to fit across the front of the stack rack when the laundry pair is not in use. The panels can be attractively decorated with corkboard, contact paper, wallpaper or paint matching the room. The washer and dryer both have a 5 pound load capacity and operate on standard household current. The washer rolls to the sink for hookup like a portable dishwasher and features automatic washing cycles from 2 to 12 minutes, two rinses and spin drying, plus high and low water settings. The dryer, which offers up to 2½ hours of drying time, has Normal and Fluff drying cycles, and a special Permanent Press cycle.

'Showplace' bathroom practical

As their families expand, many young marrieds find themselves moving out of modern apartments into older homes in the suburbs. Often the bathrooms in these older homes appear to be out of the dark ages in contrast to the modern facilities in most newer apartment buildings. They need not remain so. Because of its small area and because of a renewed interest in remodeling bathrooms you may find it considerably less costly to renovate the bathroom today as compared with just a few years ago. Judging from the variety of colors available for the permanent fixtures, boldness seems to be the key for a dramatic "showplace" bathroom. But it's not just decor that recommends remodeling the bath. Some practical advantages are to be reaped.

Renovations answer 'where to put it' problem

Food preparing-serving-eating area saves space; created on small budget

Additional country casual charm is achieved with the use of a mock-chandelier made from recycled tin milkcan containers, here used as an eye appealing place to store and dry fresh herbs.

The storage-serving area is eye-appealing but even more important it works!

By placing heavy electrical appliances, trivets and serving pieces on bottom shelves, casserole or heavy pots on middle shelves, the storage squeeze is eased. The top shelf contains a workable turntable that gives finger tip convenience to salt and pepper shakers, cream and sugar set or even table top centerpieces. This low cabinet also provides space to serve food from.

Useful cabinet

Equally useful is the tall cabinet that stands alongside the serving island. On the bottom shelf a lid rack catches everything from large pot lids to platters or occasional serving pieces. Slide out drawers in the middle portion provide double the storage space to hold linens, hand and dish towels or even cans and boxes.

The divider keeps everything within fingertip reach yet provides an attractive way to keep the dining area a little apart from the hustle of the kitchen. Pulling the area together is easy with the use of standard plywood, cut to fit the low cabinet tops. This can be left in the natural wood state or stained with a walnut color.

No matter what decorating trip you take you can lead the gypsy life without sacrificing storage space with the use of Rubbermaid storage and organizer pieces to triple the space you have.

Create an atmosphere-filled eating area without sacrificing valuable storage by following our picture's lead. No matter what your budget Rubbermaid allows you to make more out of less by increasing the storage serving space you have and providing an attractive kitchen focal point.

Compact job

Compact refrigerators can be small on the outside, but now one is extraordinarily large on the inside. This General Electric no frost, refrigerator/freezer (model TBF21CN) was designed to fit the area occupied by older refrigerators, yet provide an attractive 20.7 cubic foot capacity.

Small refrigerators feature big capacity

"BUT IF I REMODEL MY KITCHEN, WILL A NEW BIG CAPACITY REFRIGERATOR FIT?"

This is an important question that can be solved by planning for a space 30 1/2 inches wide and 66 inches high (in all probability, you have the space right now where your old refrigerator is) and choosing a new General Electric 20.7 cubic foot, no frost refrigerator/freezer. (Model TBF21CN). You'll get that capacity and some advanced features.

Engineering achievements such as thin wall construction and improved insulation processes provide a freezer section that holds up to 242 pounds of food. This huge capacity—almost seven cubic feet—is larger than some chest freezers alone.

In the fresh food section, split cantilever shelves and Porta-bins allow convenient food storage in ways never before possible. Porta-bins are adjustable door shelves and are easily positioned according to the size of foods and bottles being stored. They also can be conveniently removed and brought to a kitchen work area.

Other features of this GE refrigerator/freezer are two large dairy compartments, twin vegetable bins and a meat storage pan. Also, GE's Ice 'n Easy Service for ice making is standard equipment. If desired, an optional automatic ice maker can be installed at the time of purchase or later.

The TBF21CN rolls out on big wheels for easy cleaning behind the unit. It is available in Avocado, Coppertone, Harvest and White colors and is the perfect complement for that kitchen remodeling you've been talking about.

Homeowners' brick wall an economical investment.

Brick walls may not only be an attractive choice for your home, they could save you a pocketful of money.

Because the walls represent only a small part (five to 10 per cent) of the cost of your home, the choice of fireproof brick or brick veneer over another siding material increases monthly mortgage payments by just a few dollars, according to the Brick Institute of America.

Five years later, however, the brick homeowner will find himself merely washing his brick walls with a few pennies worth of water, while his neighbor spends $750 to $1,000 having his home repainted.

These and other considerations are discussed in the new full color BIA booklet, "Home Buyers Guide to Brick." For a copy of the 16-page booklet, send 25 cents in coin to the Brick Institute of America, 1750 Old Meadow Road, McLean, Virginia 22101.

Put kitchen remodeling in the hands of a professional

Home improvement isn't necessarily spelled do-it-yourself.

Let's face it, some of us have four thumbs. We'd rather do the planning, and let someone else do the work — especially when a room so complicated as a kitchen with all its built-ins and hook-ups is the room to improve.

Help is at hand, in the form of a professional whose sole business is the design, supply and installation of residential kitchens and baths. Look under Kitchen Cabinets & Equipment in your phone book, and the chances are you'll find more than one listed.

Any firm identified with the American Institute of Kitchen Dealers trademark is a good bet, because to belong to this national trade association, a kitchen firm has to meet certain standards.

One of these is to maintain a showroom with at least two complete display kitchens, and another is to have at least one competent designer on staff.

Any individual identified by the initials CKD is a Certified Kitchen Designer. This means he or she has qualified by examination and affidavits of performance for accreditation by the AIKD's Council of Certified Kitchen Designers, and is a real pro.

Assuming you'll be in good hands with whoever you ultimately retain on the basis of professional qualifications, references and preliminary conversations, what services will this kitchen planner perform?

Just about everything, from ideas to installation. Working from your answers to a long list of questions, he'll develop a floor plan; help you select cabinets and appliances; figure how much and what type of lighting you need; order all the components; supervise construction and installation; make sure all of the equipment operates as it should.

Built-ins that hide, slide, pop up and glide — in other words lazy susans, a mixer lift, bread box, cutlery partitions and other space-savers — are part and parcel of this kitchen work corner planned by a pro. Handy, too, is the breakfast bar at a lower level. By Riviera Products, Inc., the handsome oak cabinets have avocado counters to blend with the yellow-orange-avocado mix of the practical, easy-clean kitchen carpet.

The great advantage to working with a pro is that he offers one-stop shopping. Whatever price you and he agree on, it's all-inclusive if that's the way your contract is written. If you prefer to combine the professional with the personal, he'll handle the functional and technical aspects of kitchen design and installation, and leave the decorative to you.

There are different ways to work with a kitchen specialist and, obviously, many prices you can pay for a kitchen. Don't think, just because yours is a VW instead of a Cadillac job, you can't enjoy the services of a specialist.

You can — and it's likely to cost you less than remodeling your kitchen yourself, unless you're a practicing do-it-yourselfer with a well equipped workshop and a handyman husband.

For one thing, the pro eliminates trial-and-error costs. He knows what's new, what's best for your budget, and what is most practical for your family's way of living. He also knows where and when to cut corners, without sacrificing quality or appearance.

You're paying for experience when you entrust a kitchen remodeling to a professional who does it day in, day out. Compare this with your once or twice in a lifetime, and don't apologize if you don't want to do it yourself!

Durable vinyl siding still smiles through all of weather's trials

What can the roof of your family car have in common with the siding on your home?

Well, if both are made of vinyl, then both are built to stand up to the most severe conditions of weather and wear.

While vinyl tops on automobiles have been available for some time, the use of solid vinyl as a siding material for the home has only been a fairly recent development, introduced in 1964.

More and more homeowners, however, are now shifting to vinyl siding because of its many inherent advantages.

Siding supplier

Representative of the products on the market today is Vanguard vinyl siding from GAF Corporation, one of America's leading suppliers of building materials including both vinyl and mineral fiber sidings.

The Vanguard siding is available in four colors — white, yellow, gray, and green — and can be purchased with complimentary vinyl shutters.

Ends annual painting

To the homeowner, the most important advantage of this particular type of siding is probably the fact that vinyl siding's color goes clear through the material, thus eliminating the need for periodic painting.

The color is an integral Vinyl siding shifts into high gear — today more and more homeowners are switching to vinyl siding because of its durability and ease of maintenance. This home, for example, is sided with Vanguard vinyl siding from GAF Corporation.

part of the material during its manufacture and is "built-in" to the siding and not just "surface-applied." The color, therefore, doesn't mar or show scratches and doesn't peel, blister, flake, scrape or wear off.

In addition to its maintenance-free features, vinyl siding offers homeowners other benefits as well. Vinyl siding, for example, is self-extinguishing and fire-resistant and, unlike metal sidings, will not conduct electricity.

It is also immune to termites and vermin and won't rot or rust. Finally, any surface soiling can be easily removed with just water and a detergent.

Overall, the popularity of vinyl siding is increasing mainly because the siding is durable and should last as long as the house itself. For this reason alone, it's pretty hard to get a lemon when you buy vinyl siding, which can't always be said about the family car.

No-tile wall panel system offers dramatic new look for updating existing bathrooms

If you are tired of seeing the same old look in your bathroom and want something really new in design, here's a suggestion you might heed for remodeling: Take a look at Formica Corporation's No-Tile Bath wall panel system for high-moisture areas.

First, it's a dramatic change from the typical bathroom remodel with walls of paint, wallpaper or tile. Most of your friends don't have it yet, so that makes you a trend-setter. But, best of all, it can make a dingy, colorless, tired bathroom come to sparkling life.

Made waterproof

The No-Tile Bath is surfaced with Formica® brand laminate, but with some additions to make it water-tight at the panel joints and easy to use over old surfaces including tile.

Formica offers a selection of 22 patterns and colors keyed to coordinate with Formica® laminate for bathroom cabinets and tops as well as other bathroom materials. Samples of selections can be obtained from Formica distributors, Formica sales offices and qualified No-Tile Bath dealers.

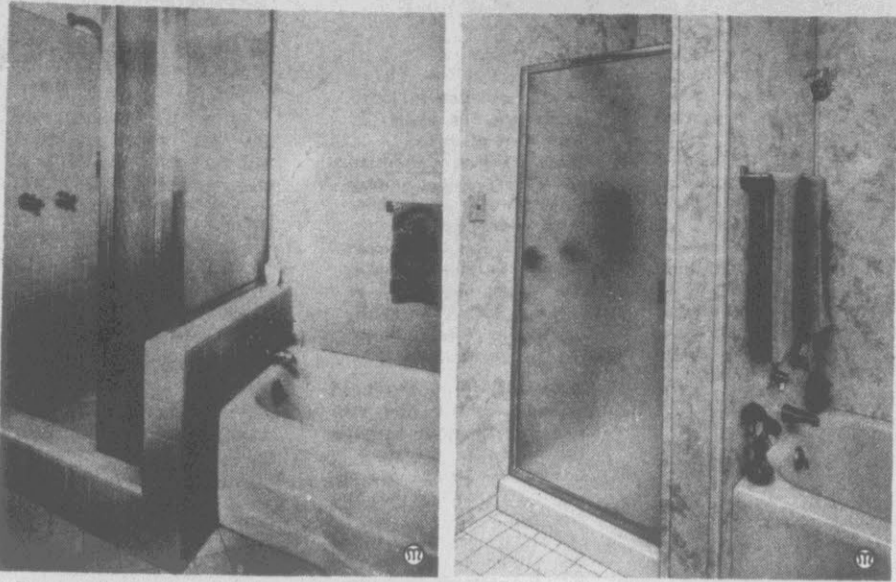

Among the patterns and colors are: Classic Crema Marble, Starflower Blue, Starflower Gold, Portuguese Lioz Marble, Spring Pastoral, Ice White, Avocado Ondine, and three new designs for 1973: Regal Jade, Golden Heather and Gold Ondine.

Formica recommends that this wall system be installed by a dealer who knows the product and installation technique. Names of these companies can be obtained from Formica sales offices and distributors.

No extra cost

An average installation will cost no more than ceramic tile, the manufacturer reports, but without the added cost of removing the old surface first.

Walls are the largest surface area in the bathroom. Besides the room itself,

Before (left) — old fashioned bathroom was difficult to keep clean and attractive. After (right) — updated bathroom now has all walls including shower and tub surround surfaced with laminated plastic. Pattern is Autumn Pastoral, one of 22 colors and patterns available in Formica's No-Tile Bath wall panel system.

Before (left) — new homeowner considered this bathroom uninviting for guests. After (right) — single basin vanity was replaced with twin basins in contemporary-styled cabinets and top surfaced in Formica® laminate. New lighting, mirror and windows are also functional and decorative.

there's usually a tub surround, a shower stall, or both. This total area can be a challenge in a remodeling or decorating plan. Fortunately, there are many good materials to use, and one of the newest is suggested here.

If you are familiar with laminate surfaces, you know they are practically indestructible and clean quickly and easily with just a damp cloth. That makes living a whole lot easier. And isn't that what remodeling is all about?

Expand tiny, crowded bathroom with 'stack-on' storage units

MORE STORAGE SPACE, PLEASE!

That's something nearly every homemaker has in mind when she has in mind home improvement.

New from Rutt-Williams is a simple answer to the "more storage space" plea if the bathroom is where it is needed. The answer is a stack-on storage unit to provide hideaway space for towels, bottles, spray cans, paper products and cleaning supplies.

The stack-ons come in two widths — 12 and 18 inches — and are 53 inches high to stack on either drawer base or hamper unit. The depth is 17 3/4 inches, which the average existing base or a new one will accommodate.

Styled with either paneled or louvered doors, and beautifully crafted, the stack-ons are decorative as well as functional additions — thus definite improvements — to the bath. Each unit has two separate doors, to provide a kind of "fling

End space needs use wall valet

Space! No home ever seems to have enough of this precious commodity, so you have to look for and find it.

Finding storage space in a bathroom is a particular problem, since this is one room it's generally difficult to add-onto.

Rutt-Williams offers an answer in a new wall valet to mount over the toilet, where wall space is often wasted. Styled with louvered or paneled doors above an open shelf, the compact and attractive unit is only 22 inches wide, 9 inches deep and 24 inches high.

A brass or pewter gallery rail in effect adds a top shelf for decorative accessories such as colorful boxes and bottles.

The wall valet is a fine example of easy improvement for an existing bathroom; a unit to keep in mind also if you're planning to carve a half-bath out of a closet or tuck one under the eaves.

Ultra bathing center features beamed ceilings, rococo mirrors, soaking tub in sheer elegance

Beamed ceilings and rococo mirrors, previously found in the drawing-room, are now brought into the bath of the future. Fashionable fixture colors, ranging from subtle bone to warm regency blue and rich bayberry, add to the over-all theme.

Along with the soaking tub, the Avalon china lavatory with Ultra-Front faucet, completes the picture.

Modern woman — and man — expect and demand not only practicality and value in their baths but beauty and warmth as well, as this setting from American-Standard depicts. A fabulous oriental soaking tub with low seat that allows almost total immersion sets off this idea.

To move heavy furniture across carpet, put pads of wrapping paper under the feet and slide it.

An old-fashioned sun porch up-dates home for one family

There's something to be said for the good old days, even when you're modernizing.

One family, for example, decided to update its home by adding an old-fashioned sun porch. The decision wasn't based on nostalgia, but on the need for a bright, sunny room with multiple year-round uses.

First step was to find the right place for expansion. The answer lay right around the corner — of the dining room. An L-shaped concrete block foundation was laid adjoining the dining area. It added 150 square feet of space to the house.

a series of large, sliding, wood sash windows gave just the right effect. Eight 6-foot-high stock units of ponderosa pine were used to surround the newly-formed "ell."

The window choice was based on a number of practical reasons. The wide expanse of sliding windows provides maximum sunlight, views and excellent ventilation. The natural insulation of wood sash, combined with insulating glass and tight weatherstripping, cut heat loss and help keep the room comfortable in all seasons. Use of insulating glass also eliminates the need for bothersome storm sash.

Existing windows in the original exterior wall were replaced with a double door entrance to the new addition. Finally, a new pitched roof was designed to tie in with the existing roof.

Finishing touches were added inside. Walls feature vertical moulding strips, and the floor is "done" in matting squares. The total impression is soft, natural and sunny.

Closed against the winter cold, or open to fresh air and sunshine, the new porch is used for dining, entertaining, reading, studying, and watching TV. Not such an old-fashioned idea after all.

PURE PLANT
Plants in a home do more than just look pretty. They also help purify the air.

Exterior home re-decoration starts with new breed of shingles

You're redecorating the house. You want the results to be beautiful. Would you:

- Paint the walls and leave the ceiling dirty?
- Place the new furniture on worn carpeting?
- Put battered old shades on new lamps?

Of course not. Anyone who has ever done interior remodeling knows that neglecting one design element can ruin the whole effect. Yet these same people — when remodeling the outside of a house — often do only half the job. They'll re-side exterior walls, paint the trim — and overlook the advisability of reroofing.

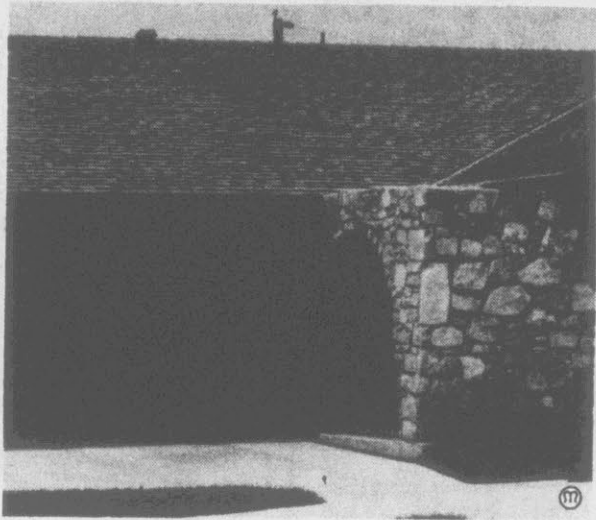

When roofs are overlooked in this fashion, it's generally because:

- They're regarded solely as protective rather than decorative house features.
- Reroofing is thought to cost more than it actually does.

Good exterior decorating starts with the roof. The decorative potential has been greatly increased with the introduction of modern roofing materials. The new breed of premium asphalt shingles, for example, makes reroofing an opportunity to update and beautify the entire house exterior.

These shingles offer the basic elements of good design: texture and color. They also emphasize the "natural look," one of the strongest trends in modern architectural styling.

The shingles come in new rustic colors called "earth-tones" — deep browns, muted greens and slate grays that reflect a home's natural environment and seem to tie together house and home-site. The bold new "textured look" is achieved with various rugged designs: double or triple laminating, staggered buttlines and random embossing.

Because of their wide expanse, roofs are essential to a home's architectural decor. Modern roofing materials offer a decorative bonus. Here, premium-quality asphalt shingles with a bold "textured look" blend beautifully with the rugged house design. The shingles are designed to last up to 25 years and carry a UL label for fire-resistance.

The new shingles maintain all the protective elements that have made heavyweight asphalt shingles popular for new homes and remodeling. They are designed to last up to 25 years, and carry an Underwriters' Laboratories label for fire-resistance. The self-sealing variety also bear a UL wind-resistance label.

In most instances, asphalt shingles can be installed right over the old roof. This saves the time and cost of removing old materials. Labor installation costs are generally the same for standard and premium grades; and the higher materials cost of the top-grade shingles can usually be amortized over their longer design life.

Such an investment can pay off in upgraded home appearance — and higher resale value. That's the most successful remodeling result possible.

Room planner shows decor arrangement

For those who long to be do-it-yourself decorators, trying to plan and arrange furniture has been like driving country roads without a map — hit or miss all the way. At last there's a solution: a new large scale magnetic room planner which can be found in furniture department stores and is used by many apartment and home builders around the country.

The new system, called TRYON ROOM PLANNER, was created by Jan Brown, a former interior decorator, who has researched consumer buying problems for the past 4 years.

She found that most people have trouble picturing how the room will look. They don't know what size furniture to buy or how to lay it out.

Room arrangement and furniture sizes account for a great portion of all decorating mistakes.

The large scale (1 inch equals 1 foot) is 16 times the size of conventional room planners and you don't have to be a decorator or drafting engineer or fumble with little pieces of paper to professionally plan your room.

You can really visualize how it'll look finished as it doesn't look like little circles and squares viewed from an airplane as old type planners.

There are 187 plastic magnetic forms representing furniture of all shapes and sizes. Simply bring your room measurements to the store, draw it on the planning board and "try on" furniture instead of guessing.

Some decorating advice

1. Don't make enemies with your best friend by letting her help you unless she's been successful as an amateur decorator with a few others than just herself. Better to go to the store and seek the advice of a professional sales person or decorator (they really don't bite and are usually free).
2. Never measure the room with a cloth tape, use a folding rule, yard stick or steel tape.
3. Indicate location and measure heat vents, built-ins, window and door openings.
4. Having someone help you measure makes the job easier and more accurate.
5. Check depth of base molding, it can make the difference between "tight squeeze" and "not at all."

There's more to beautiful room than four walls
Decorative illumination sheds light on ideas for remodeling projects

The correct lighting plan for safety and efficiency often is overlooked by the remodeler.

Yet lighting is probably the least expensive part of the remodeling project, offering lasting rewards to the home owner or apartment dweller.

Safety, function and fashion — these are the big three words to remember when approaching lighting problems. A minor consideration is ease of cleaning and maintenance. Dirt and dust can cut light by as much as 50 per cent.

Fashion is highly important because your lighting fixtures and lamps should harmonize with and complement the other furnishings of the room.

Thomas Industries, leading producer of residential lighting fixtures and lamps, suggests this checklist for evaluating your lighting needs.

LIVING ROOM — Overhead fixtures are being used increasingly for decorative accent. A chandelier or ceiling fixture should be considered for general lighting. Lamps provide illumination for specific areas.

For subtle, decorative illumination, downlights may be used. Reflector bulbs may be recessed into the ceiling along one wall, bathing light on a particularly dramatic wall, such as brick or stone, or emphasizing an arrangement of paintings or a prized piece of sculpture.

Track lighting offers complete decorating freedom, providing endless opportunities to achieve function and accent lighting. Track lighting is a concept of accent light that can be as flexible as the imagination.

Recessed, surface mounted or suspended by pendant stems, Thomas' movable, adjustable track systems can be swiveled, angled and pointed in any direction, or grouped for every functional design effect.

They have applications for every room in the house.

KITCHEN — There should be one general lighting fixture for every 50 square feet of space.

Task lighting should include wall or cabinet-mounted fixtures for every three feet of counter space.

The sink and range areas should be lit by wall-mounted brackets, located 14 to 22 inches above the appliance to direct light downward on work areas.

BEDROOM — Overhead lighting fixture and wall switch by the door. Grouping for lamps in the dark is hazardous. Lamps are appropriate for accent and reading.

Larger bedrooms may use either a large ceiling fixture or an off-center suspended fixture, plus recessed wall lighting.

RECREATION ROOM — A pull down fixture or lamp is advised over a game table or conversation center. Recessed lighting with dimmer switch is another idea.

All of the lighting suggestions discussed here may be viewed at Thomas lighting and decorating centers where a lighting consultant is available to make specific recommendations for your remodeling project.

An ice cream soda every day for your youngster? Not very good motherly advice, unless the ice cream soda is your child's bedroom theme.

You and your youngster can easily create a new, lively and colorful bedroom with do-it-yourself Con-Tact self-adhesive vinyl wall covering pattern Caboose.

Featuring stylized antique wagon cars carrying fountain treats of ice cream sodas, cup cakes and peppermint sticks in cherry red, strawberry pink and lime green.

Caboose is just the right gay wall covering to revitalize your child's room. The yummy design is printed on white, washable vinyl.

And in this room, one imaginative mother applied Con-Tact to the window shutters and a do-it-yourself counter to create a cozy "soda shop" corner that children love. Behind the "soda bar" the walls are covered with coordinating Con-Tact Polished Patent self-adhesive vinyl in shiny red.

To complete the new decorating scheme, black, white and red Polished Patent Con-Tact patterns were used to decorate old wooden boxes that now serve as pretty toy shelves.

Let a pattern like Caboose suggest new ideas for you. There are lots of self-adhesive patterns from which you with your child together can choose. Directions are on every yard of this instant-decorating product.

For best results, apply Con-Tact to a smooth, rigid surface. So seal your wall with shellac for best results and peel off the backing paper a little at a time. Happy decorating.

FOR DR. BENJAMIN SPOCK

Do you feel that your views on permissiveness have contributed to today's generally lower moral standards, drug abuse and disrespect for law and order?—Jerry W. Komarek, Little Ferry, N.J.

● I, and most parents, don't consider my book at all permissive. It advocates firm parental leadership and respectful children. Those who claim it's permissive usually say, "Thank God I never used it!" They are looking for a scapegoat and jump on me because they've resented my opposition to the Vietnam war. They forget that all the conservative young people, as well as the liberals and radicals, were raised by my book, too.

FOR CHARLES SCHULZ, creator of "Peanuts"

What character in your comic strip has the easiest head to draw? The most difficult?—Linda Garrard, Hobart, Ind.

● Snoopy is probably the easiest character to draw because of the flexibility in his appearance. Charley Brown's head is probably the most difficult, because if I slip just a little, it spoils the shape.

FOR MRS. GEORGE C. WALLACE

Is it true that your husband worked his way through law school by boxing professionally?—William M. Histed, Crestline, Ohio

● No. The Governor boxed on his collegiate team as an amateur, but never as a professional.

FOR RICHARD BENJAMIN

Why did you grow a moustache?—Mat Parks, Lancaster, Pa.

● It was director Herb Ross' idea before we started "The Last of Sheila." He felt I would look older and different. I think he was right in both respects.

FOR RICARDO MONTALBAN

Doesn't a show-business career keep you separated from your wife?—D. N., Thousand Oaks, Calif.

● Georgiana and I recently added up all the weeks and months that we had been apart. We figured that during the 27 years we have been married, we had been separated about seven years. The longest separation was three months. But whenever possible I take my wife along on location trips.

FOR SHELLEY WINTERS

Do you believe a woman should have a man's child if she isn't married to him?—Ann Lowry, Troy, N.Y.

● Definitely not. I think children need a father and a mother when they grow up. I know because I've raised my daughter Vittoria by myself. [Editor's note: Shelley Winters was married to actor Vittorio Gassman.] Sure I believe in Women's Lib, but I also believe that a man has equal rights and responsibilities. It takes two people to make a child. In my opinion, it takes two people to raise a child.

FOR SEN. GAYLORD A. NELSON (D-Wis.), chairman of the Senate subcommittee on monopoly

What justification is there for your proposal to make portions of the biggest corporations' tax returns public? Aren't they entitled to privacy, too?—H. H., Elgin, Ill.

● Corporate secrecy—not corporate disclosure—is the great enemy of a market economy in a free society. To treat large corporations with millions of dollars in assets as though they were like an individual or the pizza parlor around the corner is absurd.

FOR BOB NEWHART

Is it true that you worked for an unemployment office at one time?—Larry Morton, Allentown, Pa.

● It sure is—the Illinois State Unemployment Compensation Board, and it taught me quite a lesson. I used to get $55 a week for working six days a week, and the guys collecting unemployment got $50 a week just for coming in once a week! I didn't have to be an accounting major (but I was) to realize they were better off on their side of the counter than I was on mine.

FOR BEATRICE ARTHUR, star of TV's "Maude"

Why do you always wear the same style—mostly pantsuits with a long jacket or coat—when you play Maude?—Ruth Dunham, Largo, Fla.

● It's a style I prefer, and since Maude is based somewhat on me—why not?

Ask For Them At Your Bank

By Fred MacMurray:

We Find Peace in the Great Outdoors on Our California Ranch

Fred and June MacMurray and their daughters Laurie and Katie at their ranch home.

"The girls told us that after saying good-night to their horses, they were coming into the house and noticed us through the window, sitting by the fireplace and laughing. They told each other they must remember that sight."

Our family, like a lot of other families today, enjoys recapturing that spark of rural robustness, clean air and simple living that we never want to lose. We want some place to get away from crowds and civilization, to find peace and quiet. We've learned that one of man's basic needs is privacy, some time to be alone with his thoughts.

I've felt a need for these things all my life. Raised in a little town called Beaver Dam, Wis., I grew up with a love of green trees, sparkling lakes, fishing and hunting. These things were important to me in my boyhood—and they still are today.

Even when I left Beaver Dam to strike out on my own, playing the saxophone and later making movies, I always wanted a place where I could enjoy the outdoor experiences of my earlier life.

After a lot of looking, I was lucky enough to find 2,300 acres of rough-hewn property for sale north of San Francisco, near Santa Rosa. I fell instantly in love with the oak trees, the redwood grove, the creeks, and the Russian River that bisects the land. I made arrangements to buy the place—and that was 30 years ago.

We call it Twin Valley Ranch because it's comprised of two small valleys. And that ranch has become a second home to my wife, June, and our 17-year-old twins, Laurie and Katie.

Staying at that ranch has brought our family closer together. Up there we find time to communicate, to speak to each other and look each other in the eye. To really get to know each other.

There's no television, so in the evenings we go for walks in the country, carrying flashlights; it's scary and wonderful, listening to the sounds of the wild animals, the crickets and the rushing water. Or we'll sit around the living room together, discussing our thoughts and experiences. We'll play games, work puzzles or read. Sometimes I'll even get out my guitar!

We head up there every chance we get. Our last trip came right after I finished "Charley and the Angel," a new Disney picture in which I play a small businessman in the 1930's who finds out that an angel has come to deliver him for the final judgment. In the picture, I learn to live my last few months fully, to love my family more and to be considerate of them. And I learn to appreciate the simple, basic things in life. By learning to "live" anew, I win a reprieve from the angel.

Well, that movie expresses the very values that June and I hold dear—and that we've taught the girls out at the ranch.

Off by ourselves up there, we share everything. When the wild blackberries are ready for picking, we all take baskets and pick them, then return to the ranch house to make jams and jellies. There's a vegetable garden with tomatoes, string beans, corn, radishes, carrots. Katie loves to walk barefoot in the garden and pick corn for dinner with me, while Laurie and June prepare the meal inside. We all cook and make bread together, and we all do the dishes and other chores together.

The girls have their own horses, which they dearly love. They often pack lunches in their saddlebags and ride out across the ranch all day.

The last time we were up there, June told me that she remembers looking out the picture window and seeing the girls learning to ride at age three. Then, not too long ago, she looked out the same window and saw them learning to drive our jeep. It seems to have happened overnight.

As a little girl, Laurie once hugged June's robe and smelled it and said, "I'm making memories, Mommy." Well, that ranch is the perfect place to make them! This last trip the girls told us that after saying good-night to their horses, they were coming into the house and noticed us through the window, sitting by the fireplace and laughing. They told each other they must remember that sight. It made them feel warm and secure.

Ranch life has also been like a second education for them. We raise cows now and pasteurize their milk ourselves in a pasteurizing machine. We used to raise purebred Angus show cattle, and even won a few ribbons. The girls learned to care for them, to brush and curry them. They learned about the birds and bees when they saw our Guernsey cow give birth to her calves.

Although we've taken the girls all over the world, including Hawaii, France and England, they always prefer to end their vacations at the ranch.

Katie and Laurie are now preparing to graduate from high school and will soon be off to college. Both of them, I'm glad to say, have the outdoors in their blood, just as June and I do. In fact, Katie plans to attend Cal-Poly, which specializes in agricultural vocations. Laurie is caught up in the same passion that spurred both June and me into motion pictures. She wants to study acting at the Royal Academy in London.

But no matter what happens in the coming years, the girls will always have Twin Valley Ranch as their haven and escape hatch from the pressures and tensions of life "in town." We look forward to as many new memories as we have old ones.

Lost in Our Attics: Stock Worth $15 Billion!

By Martin Abramson

This kind of stock certificate may look worthless. But is it really?

It's a rainy Sunday afternoon and you have finally decided to end your procrastinating and clean all the old junk out of your attic. As you rummage through piles and piles of papers, you come across a yellowed stock certificate for 100 shares of Chalmers Motor Corporation. You remember it was left with your late father's effects and was presumed worthless since Chalmers Motors has been dead and gone for decades.

The sensible thing to do with a certificate that is only a memento of a sour investment is to dump it with the rest of the garbage. Right?

Wrong!

Chalmers Motors, it turns out, didn't die in the conventional sense. Its name disappeared when it became part of another company over 45 years ago. And the successor company was eventually sold to Chrysler Corporation. That yellow certificate can still be exchanged for Chrysler securities worth about $9,000!

Abandoned stock and bond holdings form the largest portion of America's forgotten fortune. The fortune, according to an estimate by the "Wall Street Journal," comes to a staggering $15 billion. Some of this stockpile of wealth has been building up for generations. In certain cases, the holdings are enough to make the original owner or his heirs into instant millionaires. For instance, a trust certificate issued by a Southwestern railroad 65 years ago and never redeemed is now worth a cool $2.1 million. Since it was issued to "Bearer," rather than to a specific individual, anybody who finds it can collect on it.

Why do people consign securities that still have value to the rubbish heap? Primarily, it's due to the way corporations have been changing their identities. Tracers Company of America, which is headquartered in New York City and is the largest agency in the country that searches for missing stockholders and evaluates old stocks and bonds, says that 50,000 corporations have changed their identities in the last 25 years.

"The corporations may enter into mergers, become part of conglomerates, sell out, or reorganize and then resume operations under another name," says Edward Goldfader, president of the Tracers Company. "When shareholders of a corporation no longer see the firm's name in newspaper stock listings, they frequently jump to the conclusion that the company has gone broke and that their stock has become worthless."

Some corporations go through so many changes of identity that tracing them is like exploring a labyrinth. For instance, there was a Pressed Metals of America, Inc., which was exchanged for stock in H. L. Klion, Inc., which in turn was acquired by E. J. Korvette, Inc., which in its turn was merged with Spartan Industries, Inc. Even that wasn't the end of it. In 1971, Spartan was merged into Arlen Realty and Development Corp.

Then there was Lewis and Kaufman Electronics Corp., whose name was changed to Cascade Research Corporation in November, 1962. Cascade changed its name to Evergreen Western two years later, and two years after that, Evergreen Western merged into S.O. Systems, Inc. In 1968, S.O. Systems was acquired by the Kalver Corporation.

People who read about firms going into bankruptcy are too quick to assume that all their assets have been squeezed dry. "These companies may become profitable later when they reorganize," Goldfader points out. "Even when companies are

Could You Be a Forgotten Heir?

In the February 7, 1971, issue of FAMILY WEEKLY, we published an article about abandoned property. Over 100,000 letters from our readers were sent to the Tracers Company of America, requesting evaluation of old stocks and bonds in their possession. Over 20 percent of these were found to have a value totaling over $10 million!

Now to help people (or their heirs) take the initiative to get what is rightfully theirs, a fascinating book has been published. It contains:

- A list currently circulated by banks, trustees and corporations of 2,500 missing heirs and missing stockholders (heirs to over $20 million), along with their last known addresses.
- And names of some 3,000 corporations that have changed their names but have continued to exist and prosper. Their original stock shares are still valuable—with an estimated worth in the millions!

Separate and apart from names listed in the book, there are 3,000,000 names on file with claims to $15 billion. The book tells you how to go about checking this list.

If you wish a copy of "Forgotten Fortunes," containing over 5,000 of these names, just send $1.95 to Family Weekly, Dept. 3357, 4500 N.W. 135th Street, Miami, Fla. 33054.

Some of the securities that have been filed and forgotten were bought by secretive purchasers who neglected to tell their spouses what they bought. These people may lose their memories or die unexpectedly without revealing where they've stashed the certificates. They may be lying in old shoeboxes, packing crates, forgotten safe-deposit boxes as well as in the attics and cellars where they gather house dust instead of gold dust. Goldfader estimates there are five million such pieces of paper floating around and that 20 percent of them have value. Tracers maintains a list of three million names of registered owners of outstanding stock certificates that date as far back as a hundred years and are still worth money.

The abandoned-treasure trove of $15 billion also includes bank accounts, legacies and proceeds of insurance settlements. Many people tend to be careless about bank books, lists of safe-deposit holdings, records of trust funds, etc. As the years go by, they misplace them, lose them or forget them. Others move around a great deal and neglect to leave forwarding addresses with brokerage houses, corporations, banks or insurance companies. Simply leaving a forwarding address with the post office isn't enough; local postmasters tend to stop forwarding after a reasonable time has elapsed.

Foreign bonds represent another share of the abandoned fortune. When foreign countries default on their bonds, many Americans who have bought these bonds decide that they have become worthless and that their investment has gone down the drain. However, the foreign situation is constantly changing, and when new governments come in they may resume payments on bonds previously defaulted. Among the governments who have agreed to pay off on bonds that they once defaulted are Japan, Bolivia, Greece, Germany and Yugoslavia.

Many foreign bonds held by Americans were issued by countries that later went under the control of the Communists. The Communist governments long ago renounced obligations incurred before they took power. However, with relations now improved between the United States on the one hand and the Communist governments of the Soviet Union and China on the other, there is a slim possibility that these governments may yet pay off on the old bonds.

Ways to Protect Your Holdings

Banking and brokerage authorities offer these suggestions to protect you and your family from forfeiting valuable holdings:

- Never destroy stock certificates. Even if you think the corporation you invested in has gone broke, write to the company for information and don't take anything for granted.
- Search your home or your parents' home from attic to basement for certificates that might have been stashed away years ago.
- Never move without leaving a forwarding address with your bank, brokerage house, insurance companies and Government agencies.
- Don't take a chance of theft, fire or forgetfulness. Put your valuables in a safe-deposit box, along with a record of when, through whom and at what price you bought them. Keep a duplicate of this record at home and let your executor know about it.
- Keep your bank account active by periodically mailing in your passbook to have interest credited. In some states, savings accounts that have been inactive for years can be taken into state custody.

Does Your Voice Reveal Hidden Personality Secrets?

TRUE OR FALSE

1. Whether you habitually speak in a voice that is loud or soft, fast or slow, tells a lot about your personality.
2. A person's speech is a reliable indicator of his social status—even when he attempts to disguise his voice qualities.
3. When a man tells a girl he loves her, she can tell by the tone of his voice whether he means it or not.
4. Introverts use their voices to better advantage than extroverts, and are better at expressing their thoughts and feelings.
5. A person's speech pattern is related to his IQ.
6. Whether you impress people as kind and benevolent or selfish and uncharitable depends to a large extent on whether your voice sounds melodious or monotonous.

ANSWERS

1. True. In studies conducted by investigators from two universities, more than one hundred college students were given a standard personality test. Their voices were then evaluated as to loudness and tempo, and divided into four Voice Quality Profile groups: loud-fast, loud-slow, soft-fast and soft-slow. It was found that the people in the loud-fast category tended to be self-sufficient and resourceful, to take the responsibility for their own failures or disappointments rather than blaming them on circumstances or others. The loud-slow speaker tended to be aggressive, competitive and competent, with an inclination to rebel against tradition and rules. The soft-fast speaker's tendencies included a liking for adventure and an optimistic, happy-go-lucky attitude toward life. People with soft-slow voices tended to share most of the personality characteristics of the soft-fast people. But the study showed that this voice type "is likely to be reckless and carefree in relatively controlled situations. However, when he encounters stress, he is likely to withdraw and become introspective."

2. True. A study sponsored by the National Science Foundation cites findings that show that even when subjects "were told to use their very best grammar and voice quality, and try to fake their voices to make them sound more upper class, listeners were able to identify the speakers' social status." As one investigator concluded: A major part of the clues upon which the speakers' social status was rated comes from the way individual words are spoken. The clues may be in the pronunciation of the words or in tonal qualities of the speakers' voices.

3. False—according to a university study in which students were asked to judge emotions (anger, grief, contempt, love, indifference, etc.) from the voices of various speakers. Findings: Love was one of the most difficult emotions to distinguish by the sound of the voice. (This could be why a girl has difficulty telling whether a man really loves her when he professes to.)

4. False. Psychological studies of persons of various ages and walks of life have shown that "extroverts possess better capacity for vocal expression than the introverted." Though an introvert is likely to have better insight into his thoughts and inner feelings, he tends to be more reticent—or inhibited—when it comes to expressing himself.

5. True—according to research at London's Institute of Psychiatry, which cites findings showing that women of higher intelligence tend to be more fluid in their speech than others, employing longer phrases and sentences; and men in the higher IQ bracket are apt to spend less time in speaking, confining themselves to shorter utterances, and spending more time in silence.

6. True. University studies have demonstrated that when a person's voice has a varied intonation—which is defined as "a melodic curve with changes of pitch giving added shades of meaning and feeling behind the speaker's words"—he tends to be judged as kind and benevolent, generous, and sympathetic to others. But people whose voices were characterized by sameness—who spoke in a monotone—tended to be judged as lacking in goodwill.

The Day I Met The Real Bonnie and Clyde

I was a warm Sunday afternoon in 1934, an afternoon I will never forget. I had just taken another look at Clyde Barrow's photograph on Page One of the San Antonio "Express." The headline story told all about the latest violent escapade of Bonnie and Clyde.

This notorious couple, said the news story, now were at large somewhere in the Hill Country of Texas. And I read about it on our South Llano Ranch, 17 miles from the peaceful West Texas town of Junction, right in the heart of the Hill Country.

Mrs. Livingston today.

The list of their murdered victims may have reached 15, said the story, and I read it and shuddered. My eyes crept back to the outlaw's face as I laid the paper face up on the coffee table.

And at that very moment a car drove up to our ranch house.

My husband, J.M., answered the knock at the front porch door. I tiptoed and looked over J. M.'s shoulder at this unexpected Sunday guest. With a heart-stopping gasp, I recognized the man standing in our doorway. He was the man in the paper, Clyde Barrow, whose picture I had just looked at again and again.

Now, my heart pounding, I turned my eyes toward our barking sheep dog, who had edged his way nearer the stranger's automobile. Sitting inside the auto, with her eyes focused on Clyde, was Bonnie Parker. In her arms she held what resembled a violin case.

Clyde Barrow entered our front porch with all the charm of a country gentleman. He began to speak to us, calling us "Mr. and Mrs. Livingston," since he had just read our name on the mailbox. He addressed my husband, who didn't recognize him at all:

"Mr. Livingston, we have been told that you have some river bottomland ideal for camping. We'll pay you a sizable sum if you'll allow us the privilege of spending the night on your land."

My wary husband sized up the stranger carefully. Then he told him politely: "I'm terrible sorry, but we allow only relatives and close friends to camp on our grounds. You may find a camping spot just up the river from here that suits your needs perfectly." And he told him where to drive.

For a moment there was silence. Then, apparently realizing that he was facing a man whose "no" meant "no,"

The real Bonnie Parker and Clyde Barrow clown for a picture along the roadside in Texas. A few weeks later, they were both gunned down in Arcadia, La.

Clyde Barrow thanked my husband and turned his attention to me.

"Mrs. Livingston, do you sell butter and eggs?" he asked.

My knees had been quivering. Now they began to shake vigorously. But, thinking that our lives might depend on my composure, I replied, "I have butter and eggs we were going to use for a picnic this afternoon, but I'll get them for you."

quested items without breaking a single shell. I took them carefully back to our visitor.

Clyde Barrow reached deep into his pocket and with a great deal of effort produced a huge roll of bills that would have had trouble fitting into a safe-deposit box. With a kindly but stern look, he peered deep into my worried eyes and asked, "Mrs. Livingston, what do I owe you?" As he searched my eyes I realized that he knew I had recognized him.

I didn't show my desperation; but I held his stare and said, "You don't owe me anything. This is my gift to you."

As if struck dumb by this act, Clyde Barrow stepped closer to me. I could see tears forming in his eyes. Then he said quietly: "Mrs. Livingston, not many people in my lifetime have ever been this kind to me."

For that brief moment I saw a look of surprising tenderness in his eyes, and there was a special understanding between Clyde Barrow and me.

Then, without turning his back to us, he kept right on talking as he backed out the doorway and down the walkway. Very quickly he opened the car door, got in, started the motor, and sped away.

"J. M.," I said, "do you have any idea who that was?"

I handed him the newspaper and pointed to the front-page photograph.

"Well, I'll be damned!" he said.

There wasn't a telephone at our ranch in 1934, so J. M. jumped in our car and raced to town to tell the sheriff's department. I went with him and we told our tale to an officer who fidgeted nervously and assured us that this was a task to be handled by Federal authorities and Texas Rangers.

This assurance didn't mean much to J. M. Very much against my wishes, we drove to the spot my husband had recommended to Clyde Barrow. And sure enough, there was his car near the campsite. The fugitives had taken great pains to conceal both license plates. A card table was pushed against the front plate, and a tea towel was hung carefully over the rear plate. There was a campfire, but no one was in sight.

J. M. drove to his brother's home and told him the story. The brothers left, again against my protests, and raced back to the camping area. This time there was no car, only a smoldering campfire.

It was only three weeks later that the newspapers told us what finally happened to Bonnie and Clyde. When the ambush caught them in Louisiana, their car was riddled by 107 bullets. Their end had been no more violent than their lives. But, as I read about it, I could not contain my tears.

In spite of my 78 years, I recall this event as if it had happened yesterday. But, more importantly, I remember that for one brief moment (and that was all it was) two people from different worlds somehow understood each other.

—Mrs. J. M. Livingston

Smart Cooking

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen prepares a delicious Layered Macaroni Casserole. "Like most cooks these days," says Marilyn, "I've been searching for ways to stretch meat. This Italian recipe—in Rome they call it Pasticcio di Maccheroni—has been a huge success at my house. And what my budget loves about it is that you can divide the recipe to make two separate meals!"

Macaroni Casserole You Make Ahead

Italian Layered Macaroni Casserole makes a delicious, relatively inexpensive main-dish meal.

- 2 tablespoons instant minced onion
- ¼ teaspoon nutmeg
- ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
- 4 cups milk
- ¾ cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 1 container (15 oz.) ricotta cheese**
- 1 pkg. (8 oz.) mozzarella cheese, thinly sliced

1. Pierce sausage here and there with fork, place in medium saucepan and cover with water. Bring to boiling. Reduce heat and simmer 10 minutes; drain. Slice sausage thinly, set aside.
2. Sprinkle eggplant lightly with salt. In large skillet, heat ¼ cup olive oil and fry eggplant until lightly browned, stirring frequently. Add remaining ¼ cup olive oil to skillet as needed. Drain eggplant on paper towels.
3. Turn sausage into skillet and fry until browned, stirring frequently. Drain on paper towels; combine with eggplant, set aside.
4. Bring 4 qts. water to a rapid boil. Add 2 tablespoons salt and ziti. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander.
5. Meanwhile, make sauce: In 2-qt. saucepan heat butter until melted. Remove from heat, blend in flour smoothly. Add parsley flakes, instant

- minced onion, nutmeg and pepper.
6. Gradually add milk, beating with wire whisk. Bring to boiling, stirring constantly. Reduce heat and boil gently 1 minute. Cover, keep warm.
7. Preheat oven to 375°F. Lightly grease a 13x9x2-inch baking pan.
8. Layer half the ziti, meat-eggplant mixture, sauce, Parmesan and ricotta cheeses. Repeat layers. Top with mozzarella cheese.
9. Bake 40-45 minutes, until mozzarella is lightly browned and casserole is bubbly throughout.

Makes 10 servings (Recipe may be halved, making 5 servings)

*Or use pork-sausage links or Polish sausage.

**Or use one container (1 lb.) cottage cheese.

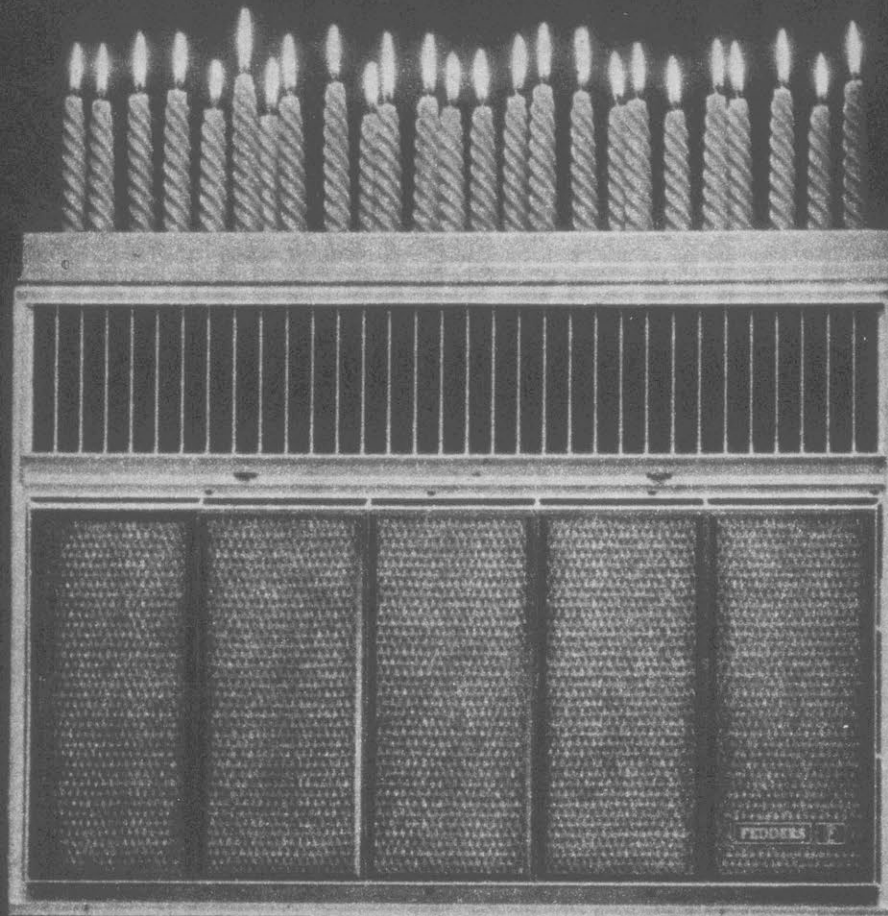

Make-ahead note: This casserole may be made ahead and frozen. Cover tightly with foil, label, date and freeze. When ready to serve let stand at room temperature 3-5 hours to partially thaw. Bake in preheated oven as above for 50-60 minutes.

"I Strive Out of My Hungry Stomach"

Letters Kids Send To CARE

A while back, little Taleese Walsh (right) of Gibson City, Iowa, sent a letter to President Nixon. Carefully taped to the letter was a nickel—"for the poor people." The White House dutifully sent it on to CARE. Taleese's nickel has bought two bricks for a cyclone-resistant house in devastated Bangladesh.

CARE has been giving international aid for over 25 years. These letters were sent to CARE by American kids, with their donations:

Dear CARE,

This is a check for 32 dollars. We made this at are junk sale, me, Antea, my sister Gay and my coussin. We has so much junk in our house. We didnt no what to do with all so we said why dont we have a junk sale. So we did and this is how we got to have the junk.

Gay and Antea Von Itenneberg Cambridge, Mass.

Dear Sirs,

I have given to CARE before and have faith in it. Although this check is made by my parents, the money's from me, and from T.V. I have seen tragic scenes when food is needed very much. I do wish to help the scenes. Love, peace and joy.

*Kate Harrison

Dear CARE:

I eat daily soyabean and wheat rice which I like very much. I am very poor and so I study only by taking this nutritious food. Had I not received [it] I could not have continued my studies. My teacher has made me a pant with the empty wheat sack.

Joydeb Ch. Jana Jalpai Guri, India

Dear CARE:

I go to school mostly without eating anything from the house. It is with the CARE food that is served at the school I strive out of my hungry stomach. I will be ever grateful.

M. Sankaran India

Dear friends at CARE,

I make Christmas cards and sell them. I give the money to you for people who are starving and dying. It makes you feel good that you are saving someones life out there in that great big world of ours. I will do this as long as I live and teach my own children to do this and give to CARE.

Tove Christine Forgo, 11, North Haven, Conn.

Dear CARE,

I am sending this money because I think CARE is a wonderful project, helping the poor all over the world. I won the money at a fair. I'm a brownie Girl Scout. Happynis is loving each other.

*Deborah H. Sussman, 8,

Dear Sirs,

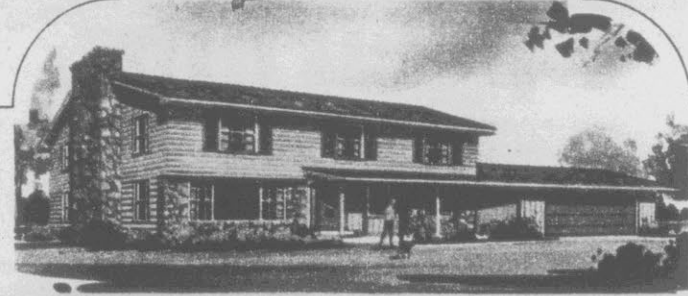

I want to thank the people of the United States for the ungrudging kindness with which they give us huge amount of American grown food products. But for their generosity, . . . many young people like me would starve.

P. Chenghmalam, IV Grade A Attur, Tamil Nadu, India

Dear American Brothers and Sisters,

Please accept my love.

Sports Mini-Profile

DICK ALLEN:
Why He's a Superstar,
But "Richie" Allen Wasn't

"What's in a name?" Shakespeare once asked. "Plenty," Dick Allen of the Chicago White Sox might reply. When he was called Richie Allen, he was known as a temperamental "problem child" who kept getting traded from club to club. But when he was traded to Chicago, his manager, Chuck Tanner—who had known him as a youngster in the tiny town of Wampum, Pa.—began to call him "Dick." "He hated the name 'Richie,'" Tanner explains. "That name gave him the feeling he was being treated like a child." As "Dick," Allen has proved to be quite a man, batting .308, leading the American League with 37 home runs, and being chosen the AL's "Most Valuable Player" in a landslide vote. He has also become the nation's highest-paid baseball player, with a contract estimated at $225,000 a year. . . . It was Dick's mother who convinced him not to quit baseball when he was traded to the White Sox. "Dick and his mother are very close," Tanner explains. "Although she was very poor and alone with eight children, Mrs. Allen did an excellent job in bringing them all up." When Dick was given a bonus contract with the Philadelphia Phillies, he used the money to buy her a new home—high up on a hill above her old home, and with huge picture windows to give her a view of the country. . . . Allen, who's 5-11, is "the strongest hitter I ever saw," says Met pitcher Tom Seaver. "Some of his drives can decapitate you."—By Barry Abramson

The Doctor Lets You In

Don't Play "Medicine Roulette"
With Your Doctor

Do you tell your doctor all the simple over-the-counter medicines you're taking when he gives you a prescription? You should. Why? Because there's a phenomenon called drug interaction. This means that two medicines that may be perfectly fine when taken separately can cause problems when taken together. Not that they become poisonous, but one medicine may interfere with the effect of the other. This interference may make the second medicine stronger or weaker, or may cancel its effect. For example: Suppose you are taking bicarbonate of soda as an antacid. If your doctor prescribes an antihistaminic or amphetamine or one of the anti-depressants like imipramine, you will get a much stronger or unlooked-for effect. Similarly, you may be taking aspirin. But tell your doctor about it when he prescribes a drug for you, because even aspirin can interact with a few drugs, like anticoagulants, which are given to make blood less thick in certain heart conditions or in phlebitis. The effect of anticoagulants can also be changed by antacids. There are hundreds of such drug interactions. So play safe—always tell your doctor what other medicines you are taking.

Poignant Letter From a Reader:

"I Want to Be Someone"

John and Karen Landoll

Here's a letter that wasn't written to be published in FAMILY WEEKLY — or anywhere else. It's a letter full of the yearning To Be Somebody, but perhaps, more significantly, with the yearning simply To Be. Karen Landoll of Galion, Ohio, wrote FAMILY WEEKLY in the almost desperate hope that she might find someone to help her achieve her ambition to be a singer. It was only after we thought of the incredible odds she faces, and how little we could do to help, that we realized how poignant and widespread her unrealized yearnings must be.

Dear Family Weekly,

I suppose I'm writing to the wrong place but I feel that a person in your position could at least advise me on my problem anyway. If I don't hear from you, I'll understand because I wrote to Dan Rowan and Dick Martin and I never heard from them. I also tried getting through to Mike Douglas in Philadelphia two years ago and because I wasn't someone big, I couldn't get through. I can't blame them though because they made it big and they don't have time to help a little person. I would write Vikki Carr but I don't know her address, but I believe she would help me because she has a heart.

Ever since I was five years old, I've wanted to be a professional singer. I sang in the church choir from age five to age 17. I also sang in school choirs and school plays. I love singing and I'm very good at it. This is not just my opinion but everyone's opinion who has heard me sing.

How does a person get a chance when they don't have the money? I just need someone big to hear me so I can prove what I'm saying. It's hard for me to be married, work a secretarial job, and not be doing what I really want. It's like my husband and I have a big secret that would surprise the world but we don't know how to let them know. My husband wants me to be a singer because he knows that it means the world to me. I'm tired of singing in my house. I want to sing to the world. I have been praying for this dream to come true for so many years but no one hears, because no one cares.

I'm 23 and my husband is 25. I work for a car dealer and my husband is an insurance man. You can tell by that that we don't have much money. We've been married four years and we don't have any kids.

I just need someone to listen and someone to care. I want to be a singer so bad that I dream of it, pray for it and cry over it. I'm tired of going through life and always wanting to do this but never achieving it. Please advise me what someone can do when they know they can do it but they need someone to listen! Who do I go to? Who would listen to me? I'm no one! I do want to be someone!

Sincerely,

Karen J. Landoll

What in the World!

SEN. HARRISON WILLIAMS
Handicapped kids denied rights?

QUOTE: Sen. Harrison A. Williams of New Jersey asks: "Did you know that most laws requiring a free public education have a clause that exempts handicapped children? Presently there are seven million handicapped children in the United States. Close to 60 percent of these children are denied the educational programs they need. One million of these children have been excluded entirely from public schools.... It is impossible to justify these figures."

TINY TRUCK DRIVER SUZANNE
Can 91 pounds move 15 tons?

At five feet two and 91 pounds Suzanne Parkhouse may not be your idea of a truck driver, but for the last six months she's been neatly maneuvering 15-ton trucks—without power steering—for a British contracting company. She applied for the job when she found being a typist was boring. The petite brunette gets the same pay and bonuses as her male co-workers, and is always treated the same as they are. "They love her," says her boss. "They say she's a little wonder!"

What makes employees unhappy? Poor office surroundings can cause more harm than poor salaries, says Matthew Goodfellow of University Research Center. When office equipment and furniture are antiquated or poorly maintained, or working space crowded, employees feel that their employers don't care about them, no matter how well paid they are. He cites one company where two-thirds of the employees felt they were adequately paid, but only one in four was satisfied with health-care benefits. "They preferred a good benefits package to which they had to contribute, to a skimpy one financed by the employer."

An Evanston, Ill., grade school teacher recalls two of her former pupils—Marlon Brando (then known as "Bud") and the late Wally Cox: "I had the two of them in the fourth grade. And neither one was a boy you'd be likely to forget. Wally was very bright, always had his hand up, always had the right answers. But the Brando boy—well, he was smart enough, it was just that he didn't apply himself. He had trouble with math, as I remember. He just didn't finish his papers... kept them stuffed in his desk and forgot to turn them in. And he was a bit of a discipline problem. Not really a bad boy, but he talked a lot—in fact, all the time. I remember once I had to send him and a Greek boy out into the hall to stand because they were disrupting the class. The principal came by and saw them out there and took them both home to their parents. It straightened the Greek boy out right away. But it didn't change Bud Brando." ## ARMOUR'S ARMOURY By Richard Armour

TO TELL THE TOOTH

This is a time of crux and gravity:
I think perhaps I have a cavity.
The dentist probes, the dentist looks,
He uses things with points and hooks.
He pokes, he scrapes, he tugs a little.
He tries to find a part that's brittle.

I also help. I point at sections.
As best I can, I grunt directions.
I mumble somehow, "Getting closer."
I answer meekly, "Yes sir. No sir."
The dentist jabs before, behind it...
I halfway hope he doesn't find it.

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR
By HAL FOSTER

Our Story: WHEN, UNDER THE WRECKAGE OF THE CORNICE, THE PRESUMED BODY OF PRINCE HEIDMAR IS FOUND, THERE IS GREAT CONSTERNATION.

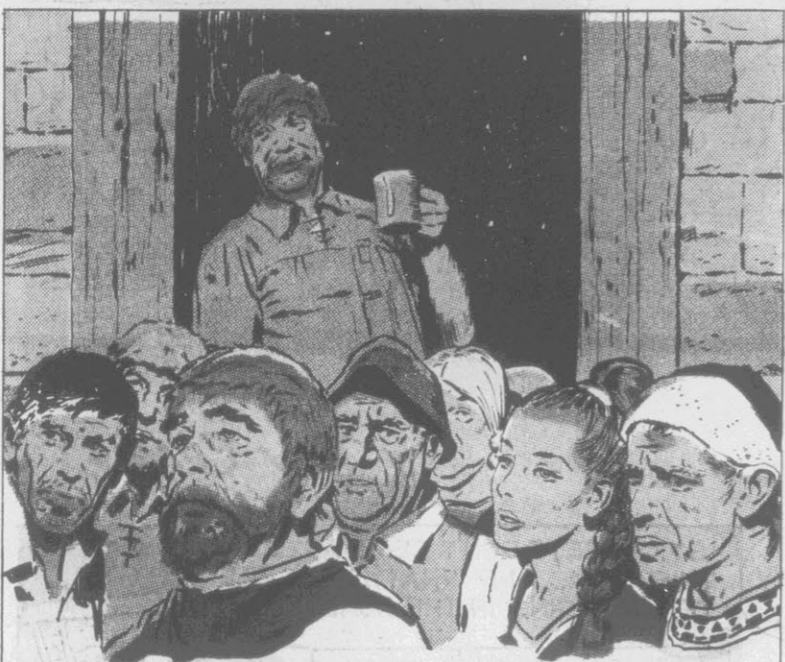

WHEN GRIMMER HEARS THE TRAGIC NEWS HIS "GRIEF" IS SO GREAT HE CAN HARDLY SUPPRESS A GRIN.

BUT HE PROVES HE HAS THE QUALITIES OF KINGSHIP BY ORDERING THE IMMEDIATE EXECUTION OF THE WORKMEN WHO REPAIRED THE CORNICE. THEY ALONE KNOW THE CORNICE WOULD NOT HAVE FALLEN WITHOUT AID.

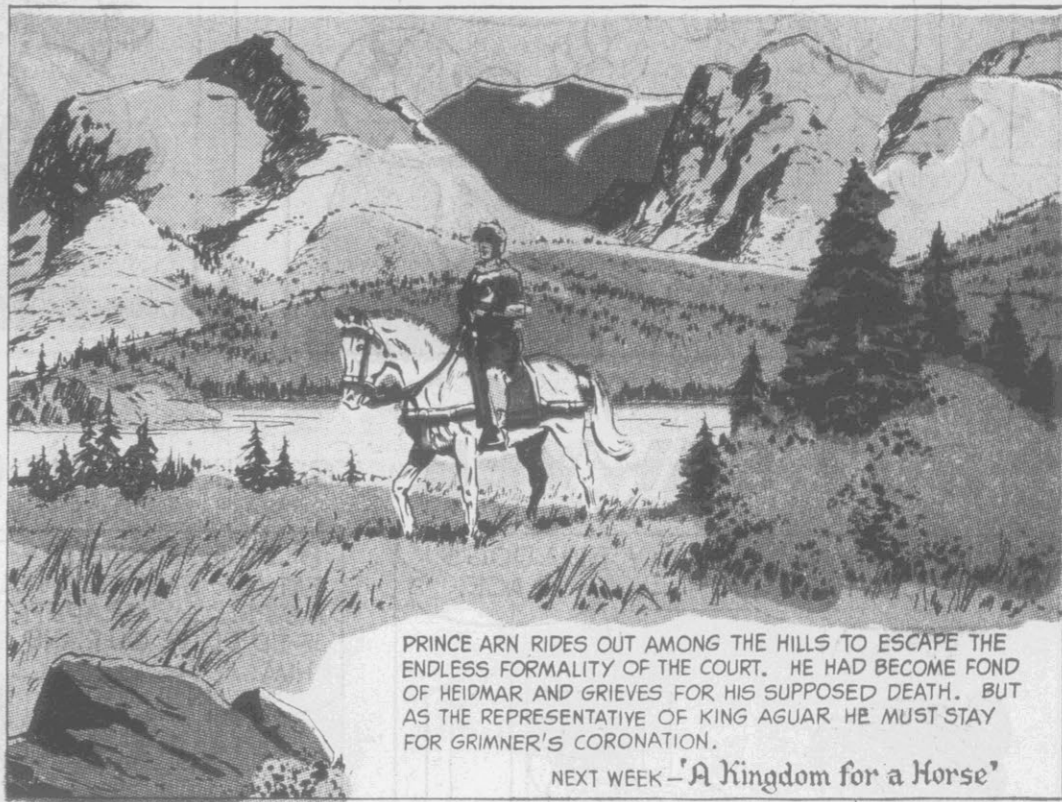

FRIEDA, HIS BRIDE-TO-BE, APPROVES THE DEED: "IT IS FOR THE GOOD OF THE KINGDOM THAT ANY SOURCE OF SCANDAL BE SUPPRESSED IMMEDIATELY," SHE AFFIRMS.

FROM THE STEPS OF A TAVERN, HEIDMAR VIEWS HIS OWN FUNERAL WITH SATISFACTION. EVERY DETAIL IS EFFICIENTLY CARRIED OUT, EXCEPT THAT THE SHATTERED BODY IN THE COFFIN IS NOT HIS.

THE PRINCESS FRIEDA, DRESSED BECOMINGLY IN BLACK, RIDES BESIDE GRIMMER, THE HEIR APPARENT. BY HER POISE AND THE SET OF HER CHIN IT IS EASY TO GUESS WHO WILL EVENTUALLY RULE THE KINGDOM OF HOLVIK.

PRINCE ARN RIDES OUT AMONG THE HILLS TO ESCAPE THE ENDLESS FORMALITY OF THE COURT. HE HAD BECOME FOND OF HEIDMAR AND GRIEVES FOR HIS SUPPOSED DEATH. BUT AS THE REPRESENTATIVE OF KING AGUAR HE MUST STAY FOR GRIMMER'S CORONATION.
