

Mexican President Intervenes

U. S. Diplomat Is Kidnapped In Mexico

By STEPHEN DOWNER

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — President Luis Echeverria personally intervened Saturday in an effort to save the life of kidnaped U.S. Consul-General Terrence G. Leonhardy in Guadalajara, ordering fulfillment of all ransom demands issued by the political terrorists who abducted him at gunpoint.

The Cuban government already had confirmed a request from the Foreign Ministry that the 30 Mexican prisoners be admitted at Havana, a ministry spokesman said.

A list containing the names of the prisoners to be released was found in a mail box in downtown Guadalajara after a newspaper there, El Informador, had been advised of its location by an anonymous telephone call. The names on the list were relayed to federal authorities in the capital, and Echeverria ordered their immediate release.

Among them were seven convicted bank robbers in Chihuahua, 900 miles north of Mexico City and 150 miles south of the U.S. border city of El Paso, Tex.

Included in the list was Jose Luis Rhi Sausi, accused of leading a group of Mexican guerrillas trained in North Korea. Another was Jose Bracho Campos, top aide to Genaro Vazquez Rojas, a leftist guerrilla leader killed last year.

The list also included five women. The kidnapers warned in their initial communique that Leonhardy would be "executed" unless their demands were met.

Echeverria agreed to all the kidnapers demands, including the release of 30 political prisoners and transportation for them to Cuba.

"The Mexican government will accede to the demands of the kidnapers of the U.S. consul-general because the essential thing is to protect his life," Echeverria said in a statement released by his office.

The kidnapers, who identified themselves as members of a political extremist organization, said in a communique issued after the abduction Friday night that Leonhardy would be executed unless the government released the prisoners and flew them to Cuba by 6 p.m. EDT Sunday.

Their arrival in Cuba, the communique said, must be confirmed by the Cuban ambassador to Mexico in a statement broadcast nationwide on Mexican television.

They also issued several other demands about publication and broadcast of their communique, which already were being fulfilled.

An Interior Ministry spokesman said the kidnapers did not identify the prisoners whom they want released, and as of midday there had been no further word from them.

"As soon as we know the names of the prisoners, we shall release them," said an Interior Ministry spokesman.

Echeverria said he had ordered Foreign Minister Emilio O. Rabasa to ask the Cuban government to approve the entry of the 30 Mexican prisoners by plane to Havana.

The president also ordered police and army troops to make no move toward tracking down the kidnapers until Leonhardy was released.

Leonhardy, 58, is a career diplomat and has served in diplomatic posts throughout Latin America and Europe. He and his wife, Lee, have two daughters.

Investigation Of The Watergate Investigation Seen

By WESLEY G. PIPPERT WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government's chief Watergate prosecutor said Saturday he would not resist a Senate investigation into allegations that the Justice Department failed to pursue early indications of a coverup of high-level involvement in the bugging.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Earl J. Silbert commented on a report in The Washington Post that prosecutors received some evidence last year before the Watergate trial in January suggesting a "coverup of high-level involvement in the bugging of Democratic headquarters" at the Watergate.

Silbert said he would have "no objection" if the select Senate Watergate committee — now scheduled to begin public hearings in about two weeks — investigated the possibility of an unaggressive prosecution of the case.

Silbert and other government prosecutors maintained throughout the Watergate trial that there was no evidence of higher involvement or a wider campaign of political espionage and sabotage last year than that carried out by the seven bugging defendants who subsequently were convicted.

The Post quoted government sources and others familiar with the investigation as saying a prime example of the department's lethargy was the fact that neither the government nor the FBI questioned former White House chief of staff H. R. Haldeman, now implicated in the new Watergate inquiry. The Post said the Senate committee headed by Sen. Sam

Dean Said To Link Nixon

NEW YORK (UPI) — Newsweek magazine said Saturday former White House counsel John W. Dean is ready to testify that he can link President Nixon with the effort to cover up the Watergate bugging scandal.

The magazine said Dean has told investigators Nixon indicated to him on two occasions that he knew about the effort to hide the administration's connection with the burglary and bugging of the Democratic party's national headquarters.

The magazine said in its May 14 issue that Dean told investigators he was called into the Oval Office in the White House by then-chief of staff H.R. "Bob" Haldeman shortly after the first seven indictments in the Watergate burglaries were returned last September. In the office, he found Haldeman and the President "all grins."

The magazine reported Dean said that Haldeman and Nixon were pleased at the success of Dean's effort "to keep the lid on," and because no one higher up in the administration had been indicted. Dean quoted Nixon as saying "Good job, John. Bob told me what a great job you've been doing," Newsweek said.

In December, Dean said, a lawyer for Watergate defendant E. Howard Hunt approached White House aide Charles Colson to say that "something had to be done" to avoid a long jail term for Hunt, according to Newsweek.

The magazine said Colson passed on the request to Dean and to John Ehrlichman, Nixon's domestic affairs chief who resigned Monday, along with Haldeman.

Dean said Ehrlichman answered "I'll check," and according to Newsweek, then walked into the Oval Office and returned with what he said was a promise by Nixon of executive clemency for Hunt. Ehrlichman told Colson to tell Hunt's lawyer that "everything is okay" but not to be "too specific," Newsweek reported Dean as saying.

A high administration source has denied both stories, Newsweek said.

Bruce Leaves For Peking

By NICHOLAS DANILOFF WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ambassador David K. E. Bruce leaves "with the greatest anticipation" Sunday for Peking, where he will open a U.S. liaison office and a new chapter in Chinese-American relations.

"I'm not an expert on China and I don't want to comment on my mission," the respected, 75-year-old diplomat said Saturday in a telephone interview. "But I'm looking forward to this assignment with the greatest anticipation."

Bruce, his wife and his chief deputy, Alfred Jenkins, will fly to Hong Kong via Tokyo aboard a commercial airliner. After a brief visit to the U.S. consulate general in Hong Kong, the principal China-watching post of the United States, Bruce travels on to Peking a week later, and is to open the liaison office for official business about May 14.

It was not known when Bruce's Chinese counterpart, Huang Chen, Peking's former ambassador to France, will arrive in Washington to open the Chinese liaison office.

An advance party headed by Chinese envoy Han Hsu is operating out of temporary quarters at the Mayflower Hotel. The Chinese have set up teletype communications with the Chinese foreign ministry in Peking, where Han formerly served, and are seeking permanent offices in Washington.

Arrest Reported

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP)—Leroy Gibson, an unsuccessful candidate for the North Carolina Republican gubernatorial nomination in 1972, was arrested late Friday and charged with the bombing of a Jacksonville, N.C., book store, according to Myrtle Beach authorities.

Gibson, national president of the Rights of White People organization, was placed under $50,000 bond and charged in a federal warrant with malicious damage using an explosive device.

The "United We Stand" underground book store in Jacksonville was extensively damaged by an explosion May 2. No injuries were reported.

A hearing for the ex-Marine before a magistrate has been scheduled for May 8 at Wilmington. His arrest culminates an investigation of the incident by the State Bureau of Investigation, U.S. Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms division agents, Jacksonville police, the Onslow County Sheriff's office and Camp Lejeune authorities.

Medical Study Commission Consultant Steps Down

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—Dr. Robert S. Stone of the University of New Mexico has resigned from a team of five consultants studying the medical education needs of the University of North Carolina system, UNC president William Friday said Saturday.

Stone, dean of the medical school at UNM, is going to take a high position in the federal government, reportedly with the National Institute of Health, Friday said.

"He called me Thursday night and said he did not think he could take the federal post and remain on the consulting panel," Friday said, indicating Stone feared the potential for conflicts of interest.

Stone's resignation brought an aggrieved reaction Saturday from Dr. Edward Munroe, director of health affairs at East Carolina University, who spoke to the meeting of the Eastern North Carolina Press Association in Goldsboro.

Munroe said he learned of Stone's resignation Friday when only four of the consultants showed up for a scheduled tour of the ECU one-year medical education facility.

Munroe said Stone's resignation "destroyed the balance" on the five-member board. He indicated, and Friday confirmed, that the five consultants had been chosen by quotas.

Two were to represent "established" medical schools, two to have worked in fledgling medical schools and one, Dr. Lloyd C. Elam of Meharry Medical College, was considered aligned with neither group.

Stone was one of the two "fledgling" representatives, and as such, Munroe said, might have been more receptive to ECU's desire to develop a full four-year medical school. Friday said he agreed that the consultants' balance had been upset. He said a replacement for Stone would be named and that the new consultant would have a background in new medical schools. Beside Elam, the other consultants are Dr. Kenneth Crispell of the University of Virginia; Dr. Kurt Deuschle of Mt. Sinai School of Medicine in New York; and Dr. Ivan Bennett Jr. of New York University.

News Briefings Are Discontinued

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — The U.S. Embassy discontinued its daily news briefings for Western correspondents Saturday, and a spokesman said the action was taken because of Cambodian government complaints about recent disclosures.

The embassy spokesman told newsmen the government of President Lon Nol had complained about recent information issued to newsmen by U.S. officials as factual accounts of developments in the Cambodian military situation. As a result, the spokesman said, the embassy under Ambassador Emory C. Swank "had second thoughts" about the advisability of briefing American and other journalists on either the military or political situation here.

"It is the consensus of this embassy we will not have (further) briefings," he said, adding that the embassy believes that all future briefings should be given "by the Khmer (Cambodian) government."

Missile Sites Seen At Khe Sanh

By BARNEY SEIBERT SAIGON (UPI) — The Communists have five or six new SAM2 anti-aircraft missile sites under construction near the old U.S. Marine base at Khe Sanh and in the nearby A Shau Valley in northern South Vietnam, in addition to two sites already built and manned, intelligence sources said Saturday.

At least four missile sites appear to be under construction around Khe Sanh, where the Communists also have improved the old Marine air strip, the sources said. These are in addition to two sites reported in the area late in March.

At least one additional missile site is apparently under construction in the A Shau Valley, 375 miles northeast of Saigon, the sources said. The A Shau Valley was the site of fierce fighting in 1969 at a spot known as Hamburger Hill. It also was the route of the Ho Chi Minh trail complex until 1968 when a joint U.S.-South Vietnamese operation forced the Communist to move it westward into Laos.

In March, the United States protested to the Joint Military Commission that the two existing missile sites were a violation of the Paris peace agreement. The Communists said they were already in place when the truce began on Jan. 28. The issue was never wholly resolved.

The proximity of the missile sites to the ancient imperial capital of Hue was considered significant, the sources indicated.

Eastern Press Ass'n Wants 'Serious Consideration' Of ECU Med School

By MELVIN LANG Associated Press Writer

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The Eastern North Carolina Press Association adopted a resolution Saturday supporting "serious consideration" of East Carolina University as the location for a second four-year state medical school.

The resolution, introduced by Joe Parker of the Ahsoskie Herald, was adopted by a 15-8 vote with several members abstaining.

Seconds before the association had rejected 20-8 a substitute motion by Frank Daniels Jr., publisher of the News and Observer of Raleigh, that would have stricken any reference to East Carolina from the resolution.

Daniels said he could support a portion of the resolution realizing the concept that more physicians are needed but "we ought not to get into an argument at this point on the geographic location."

Aberdeen publisher Cliff Blue, a former state House speaker, opposed Daniels' view. "I can't see anything wrong in saying we should give serious consideration to East Carolina ... and I think everyone would support it," he said.

Daniels, who said, "There's no secret where our paper stands" on the ECU medical school issue, said he could "endorse the point that we need more doctors, but 'I'm not thoroughly convinced that the best way to do it is with another medical school. I just don't know."

Turning to Parker, Daniels asked to whom the resolution was addressed.

"The public," Parker said. Daniels responded, "I was under the impression the public had delegated that authority to the Legislature and from there to the board of governors."

The resolution caused confusion among the 60-some people attending the association's luncheon and raised inquiries from some members as to whether the action was proper. One such member Elizabeth Swindell, publisher of the Wilson Daily Times who asked, "is it proper for this organization to get into this?"

Mrs. Paul Dickerman, wife of the associate publisher of the Wilson newspaper, said, "some of us aren't taking a stand against ECU, but against us getting into this at this time. Albert Strowd of the Kinston Daily Free Press agreed, saying, "that's right."

Parker introduced the resolution after a brief presentation of East Carolina's efforts for a full medical school by Dr. Wallace Wooles, dean of the one-year medical training facilities at East Carolina.

Wooles told the luncheon audience he represented "an institution and chancellor who have been cursed at, vilified, castigated and otherwise spit on for the last two years."

Letter Passed To Indians

By JAMES R. QUINN
PINE RIDGE, S.D. (UPI) — A letter from the White House was handed across a barbed wire fence Saturday to an Indian mediator in feathered headdress speaking for the besieged occupiers of Wounded Knee. It promised a meeting with White House representatives if the militants agreed to lay down their arms.

Frank Fools Crow, one of the traditional chiefs of the Oglala Sioux tribe, wore buckskins and a colorful long headdress of white, black and red tipped feathers as he accepted the letter from Hank Adams, Washington lawyer and veteran Indian affairs negotiator.

The letter, signed by presidential consultant Leonard Garment, promised five White House representatives would fly

Press Group Marks Its Founding

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP)—A monument was unveiled Saturday marking the founding 100 years ago this month of the North Carolina Press Association.

Dedication of the roadside marker, which was erected by the State Office of Archives and History, came during a convention of the Eastern North Carolina Press Association.

Tom Boney of the Alamance News of Graham, acting president of the Eastern Association and Mrs. J.D. Fitz, wife of the publisher of the Morganton News Herald, pulled a string, removing a cover from the monument. Fitz, current president of the state association, spoke briefly before the unveiling.

The marker reads: "North Carolina Press Association. Organized May 14, 1873. J.A. Engelhard elected first president at meeting held near this spot."

The monument was erected on the lawn of the Wayne County courthouse.

Boney was elected president of the eastern association for the next year.

Jack Whichard of the Greenville Daily Reflector was named first vice president and Clyde Simmons Jr. of the Grifton Times second vice president. Ruth Grady of Warsaw was reelected secretary-treasurer.

of the Journal-Sentinel in 1963. He is a member of the Pulitzer Prizes advisory committee and a trustee for the N.C. School of the Arts.

Carroll will receive an honorary doctor of letters degree; Hanes, a doctor of laws; Finlator, an honorary doctor of divinity; and Griffiths, an honorary doctor of science.

to the Pine Ridge reservation the third week of May to discuss treaty issues with supporters of the American Indian Movement (AIM) who have occupied Wounded Knee 67 days.

But the offer, obtained Friday by Interior Department solicitor Kent Frizzell, was contingent upon the occupiers laying down their arms and leaving the village by May 11, with those for whom warrants are outstanding submitting to arrest.

About 100 Indians watched the presentation.

Frizzell, the government's chief negotiator on the Pine Ridge reservation, said the White House letter confirming the Friday offer was a demonstration of the government's good faith efforts to end the siege without further bloodshed.

Mark Spitz To Be Married

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Olympic swim star Mark Spitz and Susan Weiner, daughter of a Los Angeles industrialist, will be married Sunday in the Beverly Hills Hotel.

The families of the couple announced the wedding and said Rabbi Isaiah Zeldin will perform the ceremony. Spitz won seven gold medals at the Munich Olympics last year; and Miss Weiner, a former English major at the University of California at Los Angeles, has done modeling and television commercials.

Some 350 friends and relatives, including Spitz's swim coach, Sherman Chavoor, are expected to attend the ceremony and a reception in the hotel later.

Telling Truth

MEXICO, Mo. (UPI) — Helen Dunlop, secretary and companion to former Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo., was telling the truth when she said Long told her shortly before his death that he had been poisoned by candy, according to results of a lie detector test released Saturday.

The test results were released by Miss Dunlop's attorney, Jerome W. Siegfried, with her permission.

Mental Institutions Underlined At Annual Meet

Dave Flaherty, Secretary of the Department of Human Resources, called on those attending the Pitt County Mental Association annual dinner meeting Thursday night here to "humanize the wards of our mental institutions."

He said the state mental health program is going a new direction. This is an area mental health program, he said.

"We are at a critical stage in state government. Gov. Scott recognized that we had to do something if we were going to make this government as responsive to the needs of the people as it had to be if we were going to truly provide more services, and at the same time, not add to the ever-increasing cost of taxes."

The third phase of reorganization, which is the responsibility for programs and preventing duplications of programs, he described as a must. He predicted duplications of programs, he described as a must. He predicted that if we get complete reorganization, the Department of Human Resources will save a minimum of between five and seven million dollars. He said the major objective of the state administration is to develop a total program. Saying he is a strong believer in the regional concept, he said he envisions county commissioners seeing this as a way of operation in total programs, i. e. several counties combining their mental health activities under regional administration.

Flaherty complimented the local Mental Health Association for trying to meet the needs of those we are serving. He said the N. C. Department of Mental Health will give this month the first annual banquet where four of the state's outstanding mental health volunteers will be recognized.

Dr. Ray Evans of Greenville was installed as president of the County Association by Mrs. Sylvia Newell, N. C. M. H. A. Regional Vice President. Other officers and board members installed are Mrs. John Howard, vice president; Mrs. Paul Haggard, secretary; Leland Moore, treasurer; and Frank K. Allen of Farmville, Mrs. Beverly Congleton Jr. of Stokes, Lt. R. B. Elks of Greenville, Mrs. William Johnson of Bethel, Raymond Reddrick of Grimesland, Mrs. Thermond Mills of Ayden, and Lt. R. B. Elks, Mrs. Charles Kavanaugh, Mrs. James Mallory, and Gene T. Skinner, all of Greenville, Board members.

Dr. Edwin Monroe, Dean of Health Affairs at ECU, introduced Flaherty and reported that Flaherty voted for the ECU Medical School when he was in the N. C. Senate. He described the speaker's present position as "heading probably the most complex bag of professional agencies and people's programs possible to imagine—like a little HEW in North Carolina."

Presentation of awards was made by Mrs. Kay Wichard and Dave Reid. The recipients were Mrs. Cecil Rand, for her volunteer hours as a contact mother for the tutoring program at Elmhurst School; to Mrs. Charles Ross, for the same work at Eastern School; to Mrs. Walter C. Gray for her tutoring of four Junior High School students; and to Mrs. Richard Gammon for her tutoring of a junior high school student. Reid presented an award to Troop 635 of Farmville for making the largest single cash donation to Operation Santa Claus, $75. Laura Carr and Carol Ann Brady accepted the award. Reid then recognized Mrs. Kay Wichard, calling her "the

State Budget Would Add 8,275 To Payroll

An AP News Special By ROBERT B. CULLEN Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — If the General Assembly goes ahead and adopts the state budget for fiscal 1973 as it is now written, a total of 8,275 new employees will be added to the state payroll.

That is roughly the equivalent of putting every man, woman and child in the city of Dunn to work for the taxpayers.

It will also mean that the total state payroll will exceed 138,000 employees—more than the population of Durham County, the state's eighth largest.

The jobs created range from one "complaint analyst" in the Department of Insurance at $10,824 per year to 46 "house-keeping assistants"—the term used for maids at the University of North Carolina. The 46 maids will cost the state $189,529 next year.

But most of them are teachers. With a $350 million surplus to allocate and strong backing from Gov. Jim Holshouser, the General Assembly Joint Appropriations Subcommittee has decid to go all out next year to hire teachers.

The Advisory Budget Commission recommended adding 658 new teachers during the year. The legislature has added to that by tentative decision to reduce public school classroom size with 2,079 new teaching positions; start the statewide kindergarten program with 872 new teachers; expand the community college system with 632 new positions; and beef up occupational education in the public schools with 346 new positions.

All of this has been tentatively funded despite the fact that the Department of Public Instruction recently reported the fifth straight year of declining public school enrollments and said the trend is likely to continue.

Is it extravagant? Sen. John Henley, D-Cumberland, who was on the Advisory Budget Commission, said last week, "Things are getting out of hand. Henley noted that the state has usually raised its payroll by about 2,000 jobs per year during his time in the General Assembly.

Others, like Rep. Carl Stewart, D-Gaston, point out that hiring was frozen in the last years of the Scott administration, making a sudden increase inevitable when the policy was relaxed.

"We've approved some extraordinary requests this year, like the 2,000 new classroom teachers," Stewart said. "Next year it should be much less." Stewart is chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

The state's superintendent of public instruction, A. Craig Phillips, is also a strong supporter of the move to expand the teachers' ranks.

Phillips told the Associated Press that he's convinced that in the classroom, more is going to be better.

"The basic approach to teaching is moving toward individual instruction," Phillips said. He noted that the money added to the school budget will not be used to reduce every classroom by a certain number of pupils.

Schlitz Workers Return

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Workers at the Jos Schlitz Brewing Co. in Winston-Salem have returned to work after an interim agreement between union and management officials.

The striking employees, who walked off the job after their contract expired at midnight Monday, voted to return to work Friday while negotiations continue for a new contract.

"We voted to return to work until an agreement can be reached on a new contract," said R. V. Durham, president of Teamsters Local 391. "Our representatives are meeting with Schlitz management to iron everything out as quickly as possible." The union had termed the walkout illegal because of an extension clause in the old contract.

Bike-A-Thon Set Saturday

Everyone who enjoys bicycling should start practicing for the Bike-A-Thon to be held Saturday, May 19 for the Eastern Carolina Diabetes Association, according to Miss Mary Bryan Matney, the Bike-A-Thon chairman.

Bicyclists of all ages are invited to participate, she said. Riders will assemble at the starting point, which is the WNCT-TV Station on Evans Street Extension, any time between 9:30 and 11 a.m. to register. Participants will pedal to Ayden Elementary School, where they may stop for picnic lunches packed by themselves with donated soft drinks. They will then return to WNCT, making the total trip 20 miles. The route will be marked and there will be manned check points at each mile along the way. The Greenville and Ayden City Managers have approved the project and police coverage will be provided for the safety of the riders, Miss Matney said.

All interested persons may obtain registration blanks at local businesses or by phoning 752-2775. These forms should try to get as many sponsors as possible who will pledge a donation per mile that he rides. Businesses, clubs, churches, or friends may serve as sponsors. The goal for this fund-raising project is $15,000. The money earned will be used to establish an emergency fund for diabetics in this area; to provide educational material and help support state research; to provide a diabetics screen program for this area; and to increase public knowledge of diabetes and its treatment.

The Bike-A-Thon will involve all the surrounding communities where there are Eastern Carolina Diabetes Association members. If it rains, the event will be postponed until the following Saturday, May 26. "Offer your support by joining the fun and sun of bicycling," Miss Matney said. "Diabetics are stuck for life. Help unstick them."

Three Accidents Reported

Traffic accidents caused an estimated $1,010 in damages and left two persons slightly injured, according to Greenville police Friday.

The first of the three accidents occurred near the intersection of Trade and Dexter Streets at 1:36 p.m. Vehicles being driven by Hazel Hardee Whitehurst of 205 Patrick St. and Lila Ruth Wingate of 798 W. Sixth St. in Ayden collided at the intersection. Police made no charges.

Damage to the Whitehurst auto totaled $350, while damage to the Wingate auto was $150.

The second accident occurred at the intersection of the 264 Bypass and Charles Street at 7:15 p.m. Police charge William Earl Moseley of 504 E. Gum Rd. with failure to reduce speed after his car collided with an auto being driven by Charles Duffy of New Bern. Moseley was injured in the mishap, and was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of his injuries.

Damage to the Moseley auto was $160, while damage to the Duffy vehicle was $100.

The latest of the three accidents occurred at the intersection of Pamlico and Alley Street at 8:45 p.m. Police reported that a vehicle being driven by Ronnie Lee Gardner of 600 Vance St. collided with an auto being driven by Leroy Bess of Rt. 2, Farmville. A passenger in the Gardner car, James Earl Corbett of 902-A Bancroft St. was slightly injured.

Police charged Gardner with failure to yield right of way. Damage to his car totaled $130, while damages to the Bess auto totaled $120.

Swansboro Shooting Occurs

SWANSBORO, N.C. (AP)—A 23-year-old Onslow County man was held in jail without bond Saturday, charged with murdering his brother and another man and with assaulting two deputies. One deputy was wounded.

The suspect was identified by the Onslow County Sheriff's Department as Glenn Glancy of Rt. 1, Swansboro.

The charges grew out of an incident Friday night in which authorities charge that Glancy shot his brother, kidnapped his brother's wife and another woman, led authorities on a chase, and then shot another man and wounded a deputy at his father's house.

The sheriff's department said later that Glancy was armed with a shotgun and two pistols. Deputies said Glancy shot his brother, 38-year-old Billy Glancy, who lived nearby, and then took Billy's wife as a hostage and fled in a car.

Ayden Man Dies In Wreck

SNOW HILL, N.C. (AP)—Charlie Edwards Jr., 22, of Rt. 1, Ayden, was killed early today when his speeding car ran off a rural paved road and crashed into a tree near Snow Hill in Greene County, the Highway Patrol said.

Troopers said Edwards was alone in the car.

Student Plan Is Discussed

Dr. Leo Jenkins, chancellor of East Carolina University, will go to Washington Monday to discuss proposals for a cultural student exchange program involving North Carolina colleges, universities and high schools with the ambassador of Japan.

Japan has indicated a strong interest in implementing such a program through grants funded by the Japan Foundation which has set up a $30 million international cultural exchange fund of which half of the proceeds are earmarked for the United States.

Grants will be used for study and research scholarships in Japan and visits to Japan by influential Americans for observation and consultation purposes.

Jenkins, as chairman of the N.C. Commission on International Cooperation, will represent all colleges, universities and the N.C. Department of Public Instruction in his conference with Nobuhito Ushiba, Japan's Ambassador Extraordinary Plenipotentiary to the United States. The meeting with the ambassador will culminate several months of preliminary discussions conducted by Jenkins and ECU officials through officials of the Department of State, members of Congress and the Japanese Embassy.

Chancellor Jenkins will carry with him formal proposals by East Carolina University and the state superintendent of Public Instruction, A. Craig Phillips, and letters of endorsement from Gov. James Holshouser and other officials.

The ECU proposal calls for 25 exchange students and 10 professors from the Greenville campus to study and do research in Japan on grants of $3,000 per student and $4,500 per professor.

Two Officers Join Force

Two officers have been added to the Greenville Police Department's Uniformed Division, according to Chief Glenn Cannon.

Larry Ebron, a Greenville native and a graduate of Bethel Union High School, joined the department effective May 3, Cannon said.

Ebron served as a member of the Greenville Fire Department from 1969 until his transfer to the Police Department.

The new officer is married to the former Shirley Smith of Greenville and the couple has two children. Ebron is a member of the Cherry Lane Chapel Church, Route 5, Greenville. Hugh J. Benson, a Middletown, N. Y. native and a veteran of 21 years in the U. S. Navy, is the second new officer. Cannon noted.

Benson, a retired chief hospital corpsman, served a number of duty stations including Korea and Vietnam before retiring from the military at the U. S. Naval Hospital, Camp Lejeune, March 1971. For the past two years Benson has served as district scout executive for the East Carolina Council, Boy Scouts of America.

He is married to the former Lillian Blasingame form Atlanta, Ga. and is a member of the Optimist Club, the Greenville Moose Lodge and Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

Sum Presented To Assist Band

The Greenville Jaycees have presented $200 to the Rose High School Band to fund the printing of handbooks for band members.

Jaycee project chairman Bob Jackson, who made the presentation Friday to band director James Rodgers, noted that the money was given by the Jaycees to help the band obtain the needed handbooks and also to show the club's appreciation of band participation in numerous Jaycee events.

Jackson said that the handbooks, which will contain information needed by band members at Rose Rose, as well as data parents of band members need to know, will be circulated to band personnel at the beginning of each year and taken up at the end of the session. The chairman asserted that the band guidelines would be considered current for at least six years. He noted that the band has not had handbooks before.

The handbooks, which outline general information and include pictures, descriptions and activities of the band, are expected to be ready for distribution by next school year, it was pointed out.

Acting On Physician Shortage

Last week was a significant one for those who are vitally concerned with the physician shortage in North Carolina.

The Joint Appropriations Subcommittee gave tentative approval to a bill setting aside $25 million as a reserve fund for establishing a new four-year medical school in North Carolina.

As the Associated Press reported, although the bill does not say so specifically, it was generally understood that if a new four-year medical school is created it would be at East Carolina University.

Rep. John R. Gamble, Jr. D-Lincoln, a physician who introduced the bill, explained that the state's shortage of physicians will become more serious unless a new medical school is established.

The decision by the subcommittee is a sound one, indeed. Members of the Legislature recognize the need for building the new four-year school at ECU and they are well aware that the project has tremendous public support.

There is a real fear, though, that the matter could be studied to death by the University Board of Governors. Certainly at this stage the legislators want to do all they can to avoid undercutting the board, giving it the chance to mature and begin thinking in state-wide terms insofar as higher education is concerned.

The subcommittee has provided the funds for a very obvious public need and at the same time given the board of governors every opportunity to act positively in this matter.

It cannot be argued that the reserve fund interferes with the study currently underway by an out-of-state committee since previous study groups have first wanted assurances that the commitment of adequate funds for development of the ECU school was assured. The study committee would have to welcome this information as it goes about its business of advising the state on development of a new medical school.

The joint Appropriations Subcommittee has made a wise decision on this matter. We are confident the medical school reserve fund will be a part of the final budget and we fully expect the long sought goal of a four-year medical school at East Carolina University to become reality.

GOP Leaders Not Satisfied

By ROWLANE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—President Nixon's belated purge of top White House staffers who betrayed him in the Watergate bugging and cover-up was an "adequate" start, in the word of a long-time associate, but major power centers in his own party are not jumping with new-found joy.

To the contrary, most of the men of real power inside the Republican party—as contrasted to the buttoned-down Nixon apparatchiks now purged from the White House—feel that the President was pushed into action against his will. They fear he is still dealing with Watergate by a series of tactical expedients, not by the grand strategy of full disclosure they want.

Moreover, Mr. Nixon is under private but harsh criticism by powerful Republicans for the clumsy way he handled certain aspects of the two most important new assignments he has made: that of Elliot Richardson as Attorney General and William Ruckelshaus as acting director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Ruckelshaus, a young political activist with charm, shrewdness and a bright future in national Republican politics, has now been effectively barred from running for the Senate next year or perhaps ever by the President's sudden, ill-considered decision to put him in charge of the FBI. Not wanting the job and feeling not fit for it, Ruckelshaus, nevertheless, was sent there for a few months as "acting" director (forcing him to remove himself from all possibility of re-entering elective politics in Indiana in 1974).

Far worse, the President's quick decision to put "Mr. Clean" at the FBI—a tactical decision that fits into no discernible long-term strategy—has now guaranteed still another period of dangerous uncertainty for the harassed FBI, already clubbed into a semi-comatose state during the hapless reign of the unfortunate L. Patrick Gray II.

Far more revealing of the President's inability to deal decisively and come sharply to grips with his worst crisis was his inexplicable refusal to name a special Watergate prosecutor, but to leave that presidential decision up to Richardson.

Given the long and ugly Watergate cover-up by Mr. Nixon's closest aides in the White House, it is understandable that such Republican establishmentarians as Sen. Barry Goldwater, former Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, the Senate minority leader, and many, many more are insisting that only an outside prosecutor can clear the air of scandal—and clear Mr. Nixon of public suspicion.

It was, in the word of one such Republican, "shocking" that Mr. Nixon hung this decision on Richardson. Again, the President's refusal to meet the demand of a vast, perhaps unanimous, majority in his own party in the matter of a special prosecutor smacked of cute tactics, not the grand strategy required to bring his administration and the country back from the brink.

Finally, what has failed to give Mr. Nixon a fully clean bill of health inside the power structure of his own party is the continued secretiveness of the decision-making which culminated in his commendable Monday morning purge and his "adequate" Monday evening report to the people.

Thus, Mr. Nixon has not once (as we write this) asked for political advice from the men best equipped to give it to him. Laird, Goldwater, former White House counsel Bryce Harlow, Scott, Rep. Gerald Ford of Michigan, the House Republican leader—all these have been kept in the dark.

Both Ford and Goldwater, tortured by worry that the Watergate disclosures had become a constitutional and psychological crisis spiraling beyond reach, had to beg Laird to take the Republican party's case to the President. But, uninvited, he never did.

Moreover, Mr. Nixon is known to be furious at Goldwater for his April 11 public demand that the President stop pretending Watergate would go away. It is that set of Mr. Nixon's mind which, in spite of the laudable and hard decisions he made on Monday, deeply worries party elders who want his clean-up to succeed, both for their sake as well as his.

For they see as yet no sure signals that the President is finally ready to open up his office and his mind to the outside opinion—most particularly the opinion of politicians in his own party—that might have saved him much of his and the country's present grief.

Strength For Today

FACING OUR FEARS
A certain woman, speaking of her husband who had recently died, said, "He walked up to all his fears."

He faced them. He did not cross to the other side when he saw them coming down the street. He did not allow himself to be tortured by them as they came before his mind in times of relaxation. When there was something in life he feared, he went right up to it and dealt with it as a situation required.

There are few types of bondage more dreadful than the bondage of fear. To be sure there are things in life of which we should be afraid. But the proper response here is to do everything we can to obviate the danger. The taking of precautions is something quite different than the knowing emotion of fear. After the precautions have been taken and we have done everything we can to give ourselves reasonable safety, then — forget fears. The worst might happen, true, but our fearing it will neither hasten it nor prevent it.

Sunday Morning Notes

A taxpayer came to R. S. Moye, Pitt tax supervisor's office, one day recently.

"I've got a complaint," he said.

"Well, I take them all the time," Moye said. "Fire away."

"You take so much of my money in taxes, that I can't afford a wrist watch," the taxpayer said. "I wish you would see that the court house clock keeps good time so I'll be able to tell what time it is."

Moye checked on the clock and, sure enough, it wasn't being truthful about the time, so he saw it that the clock was fixed.

Then he called up the taxpayer. He told him he couldn't do anything about taking his money, but he could assure him the court house clock was showing the correct time.

John Roney of Interstate Securities has recently acquired a five foot high pendulum clock which once was a control for bells and clocks at ECU.

Blue prints with the clock show a date of Dec. 6, 1929. John says he acquired the clock from a collector in Williamston and it had been owned by an individual in Louisburg for 15 years. It apparently was the control clock in the old Wahl-Coates school (now the drama and speech building).

Other Editors Say Nature's Wrath

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Like the song says, the mighty Mississippi just keeps rolling along, and those states along the 1,500-mile course of the mighty river have over the past generations learned to live with its tempestuous tantrums.

But the recently flooding has, according to the experts, surpassed anything yet in terms of widespread damage and acreage covered by flood waters.

Arkansas, Louisiana, Ohio and Wisconsin were declared disaster areas last Friday by President Nixon as flooding continued. The states of Missouri, Illinois and Mississippi had already been declared disaster areas as floodwaters covered millions of acres of land from the river's upper reaches in Illinois to the Gulf of Mexico.

President Nixon went on a flying inspection trip over some of the flooded areas last week.

By declaring the stricken states as disaster areas, he made them eligible for federal assistance.

Surely, these stricken areas, with their millions of people and millions of valuable acres, will need all the help they can get.

Crops face ruin and thousands have been made homeless. The cost of repairing damaged property will run into millions—some $150 million at last estimate, for eight states.

That's for property damage alone, and does not include lost farm time and crops, lost hours from other jobs, lost school days and other valuable assets destroyed by the floodwaters.

Agriculture areas were particularly hit hard. The situation is expected to remain serious through mid-June, particularly in Louisiana and Mississippi.

And so man with all his technology and his civilized veneer finds that he still cannot cope with Nature when it embarks upon one of its frequent rampages.

There are earthquakes, tornadoes, hurricanes, typhoons, blizzards and droughts—and the ever-present threat of flood, to remind man that he's a pretty helpless little creature sitting here on earth, and that without God he's nothing.

The pendulum contains mercury for weight and accuracy. There are 20 pounds of mercury in the pendulum which would have a market value today of $150.

Weights drove the clock mechanism and they were pulled up daily by an electric motor.

H. P. Markham, retired college engineer, says there were two such clocks on campus. One was in the old Wahl-Coates school. The other, which controlled college clocks and bells, was located in Graham building.

John now has mounted the big clock on the wall of his home. He says he bought it for personal enjoyment and has no plans to sell it, even at a profit.

Well it's a beautiful clock, but John has no idea how many kids hated its call to classes every morning. Your columnist was one of them.

Your Energy Crisis

By RICHARD L. STERN

Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — All you people out there with your air conditioners humming, vacuum cleaners roaring, electric can openers gnashing, broilers sizzling, toasters popping and garbage disposals grinding, don't blame me for the energy crisis. It's your fault.

I mean I'd really like to help. I'd love to be able to take some of the blame. I mean, what should I expect for the $300 a month I pay for a five-room apartment in Manhattan? It's a darn good price in the city, right?

Should I complain because we have to turn out the lights when we use the dishwasher? We light a few candles and tell our dinner guests we're creating a little atmosphere.

Should I be annoyed on a hot, summer night when we have to go to bed when it gets dark because we blow fuses when the lights and the air-conditioner are on at the same time? Thank God for Daylight Saving Time.

I'm not complaining, you understand. There are thousands of New Yorkers in similar situations — living in pre-World War I and pre-World War II buildings that often have not been rewired since they were built.

I tell myself that it's healthy to go to bed early. I admit I shouldn't have gotten angry and cursed at the landlord because I have to disconnect the refrigerator to use the electric boiler.

After all, the apartment is a find. A lot of people pay $300 a month for studio apartments. As for the gasoline crisis, don't blame me.

It costs $75 a month to garage a car in Manhattan. Who can afford a car? And as for parking on the street, if the car's not stolen or wrecked, there's a good chance the city will tow it away.

But that's another story.

Wind, lightning, hail and a downpour of rain was the weather for this community last night. While residents of this city believed from the intensity of the wind that great damage was being done, a check-up of the city this morning revealed a few broken trees, blown down fences and signs, and slight damage to very small buildings.

Tomorrow will be a big day for Methodists here as members of the local church go about the celebration of their hundredth anniversary of their church. Morning and evening services are now being planned at Jarvis Memorial Church.

Business Unwilling To Respond

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — For the past decade American business has been urged from many directions, including from within, to be more aggressive in stating its position on national matters, especially in countering almost constant criticism.

It is debatable whether the challenge has been accepted. Every so often an irate corporate chairman explodes against what he considers an unjust criticism. But a persistent pattern seems not to have evolved.

Asked why he failed to respond to what he considered unjust and politically motivated attacks on his industry, the head of a multibillion-dollar insurance company replied in frustration: "We aren't able to play that game. We don't know how to."

Judging by some evidence, however, you would never believe that business wasn't stating its case clearly, or participating as a responsible member of the community or involving itself in matters where its skills could be used for the general good.

Annual reports, speeches and ghost-written articles all proclaim that the corporate citizen is effectively communicating its acceptance of an enlarged social role in life. One of the most recent speeches was presented May 1 to a university alumni group here by James J. Needham, chairman of the New York Stock Exchange, which seeks a dominant role in the forthcoming central market place.

"It seems to me," he said, "that the New York Stock Exchange, as the securities industry's principal spokesman, must involve itself in economic issues of national importance."

He noted that "government has never been bashful about giving us suggestions for change and improvement," and he added, "I have made it clear that we regard this as a two-way street."

The finished speech was in the hands of newsmen Monday, the day before delivery. That same day Needham was asked, as were many other business leaders, for a comment on the impact of the continuing Watergate affair on business and the economy.

Through a spokesman, he declined comment. So did the American Stock Exchange, whose prices also are severely depressed and its members financially pressed, conceivably to some degree because of Watergate.

So did the economist for the National Association of Manufacturers, because it was "a political matter."

Observations From Editorial Columns

A.M. Tax Due

Part of the reason that high taxes go unnoticed, by and large, is the disguised manner which they are collected. The federal income tax is deducted from most people's pay checks; the sales tax is part of the purchase price, the property tax is "hidden" in the monthly house payment, etc.

But Tax Foundation Inc., which publishes monthly facts and features about taxes in the United States, has computed how long the average person works in an eight-hour day to pay his 1973 federal, state and local taxes. The average person works longer to meet his tax bill than he does to pay for food, clothing and shelter combined, Tax Foundation says. Its computations show this breakdown for an eight-hour day.

Taxes—2 hours, 39 minutes
Housing and household operation—1 hour
Food and beverages—58 minutes
Transportation—40 minutes
Clothing and shoes—25 minutes
Medical care—23 minutes Recreation—18 minutes
All other—1 hour, 37 minutes

So for those people who start to work at 8 a.m., it's after 10:30 before they start making anything they can take home.

No wonder so many people are late for work.—Nashville (Tenn.) Banner.

Enough's Enough

Confronted by two major propositions—the administration's complex trade bill and the difficult matter of tax reform—the House Ways and Means Committee had to make a choice of tackling on or the other.

So Chairman Wilbur Mills, after a conference with the administration, decided to take on the trade bill and abandon for this year tax reform.

Perhaps it's well enough. Most taxpayers feel burdened enough and feel about tax reform as they do the postal system—any more "improvements" would be unbearable.—Anniston (Ala.) Star.

Sob

One of the horrors of modern living that we think we may be able to put up with is the fantastic rise in the price of onions.

Since last year the price of onions has quadrupled. You could buy two pounds last year for around 29 cents. This year one pound would cost you nearly twice that. A crop ruined by Hurricane Agnes is blamed.

For most Americans, it already takes about all their money to buy a hamburger for lunch. Now they'll have to say, "Hold the onions!" We have a feeling that not too many tears will be shed.—Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution

In Canada, plastic coffins soon will be production. The Wall Street Journal quotes developers as saying the product "looks and feels like expensive hardwood coffins," but the plastic ones are lighter and potentially cheaper than wood or some steel models. ## Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Sunday, May 6, the 126th day of 1973. There are 239 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1942, in the Pacific war, the exhausted American and Philippine garrison at Corregidor surrendered to the Japanese after resisting 150 days.

On this date: In 1818, the German social philosopher, Karl Marx, was born in Prussia.

In 1861, Arkansas withdrew from the Union.

In 1882, the United States banned Chinese immigration for 10 years.

In 1889, the Eiffel Tower in Paris was officially opened.

In 1960, Britain's Princess Margaret was married to Antony Armstrong Jones in Westminster Abbey in London.

Ten years ago: About 1,000 blacks were arrested in Birmingham, Ala., on the fifth day of demonstrations for racial equality.

Five years ago: An explosion followed by fire destroyed three tankers in the harbor at La Plata, Argentina.

One year ago: An airplane hijacker who extorted $300,000 from Eastern Air Lines parachuted into a jungle in Honduras after a stop-and-go flight that began in Pennsylvania.

Today's birthdays: Baseball star Willie Mays is 42 years old. Actor and director Orson Welles is 58.

May Yet Emerge Toughened And Strengthened

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

By this time most Americans are as sick of the Watergate story as small-town residents are sick of the smell of the local paper mill, but some things have to be lived with. We will be living with the Watergate for months and years to come.

As the charges, revelations and rumors have piled up, one great question has hung like a mushroom cloud in the sky: Did he know? Did Nixon know of the plot to bug Democratic National Headquarters? Did he know of the several secret funds? Did he know of the "Department of Dirty Tricks"? Did he know of the cover-up?

In his emotional speech Monday night, Nixon implicitly answered the question: He did not know. One has to say "implicitly," because his denial was not direct and comprehensive, and perhaps it could not have been. "Watergate" has become a generic noun, gathering in its poisonous connotation everything from the bugging of the Democrats to the stuffing of a TV poll. He could not have denied everything, because "everything" is not defined. But the thrust of his speech was clear. He was "appalled" and "shocked" by the break-in itself, and he is now determined to get to the bottom of "this whole sordid affair."

I may be naive, though I am getting pretty old to be naive, but I accept the President's assertion of his own non-involvement. It is entirely plausible, given the personal political situation that obtained 16 months ago, that Nixon did indeed delegate his whole campaign operation to John Mitchell, Maurice Stans, Jeb Magruder and others, so that he could free his mind for the total concentration demanded by his job.

All right. This gives us a picture of a President so far ahead in the spring and summer polls that his re-election is never in doubt. Now and then he asks about the campaign organization, how it is going. "Fine, chief, fine." In June he reads of the Watergate burglary, and alarms go off in his head. He orders an investigation, but repeatedly he is assured by trusted aides (principally, we may assume, by John Dean) that he has nothing to worry about. As September slides into October, the Washington Post is crackling with sensational disclosures, but he "discounts" these newspaper stories. The Post has hated him since the days of Alger Hiss. It is not until the middle of March, 1973, nine months after the break-in, that he at last is persuaded of the "real possibility that some of these charges were true." Painfully but decisively, he acts.

Very well. But, alas, one mushroom cloud yields to another. A second question, not so plausibly answerable, takes shape: Why didn't he know?

One answer is that the persons to whom he had delegated campaign responsibility were themselves ignorant of what was going on. The answer strains credulity to the breaking point. On this hypothesis, we must assume that John Ehrlichman, H. R. Haldeman, John Mitchell, Maurice Stans, Jeb Magruder, John Dean, Charles Colson, Herbert Kalmbach, Dwight Chapin — The list goes on and on — that all of them were deaf, dumb and blind. We are asked to believe that none of them knew or suspected that anything unscrupulous was afoot. This I cannot believe.

What then? We are driven inexorably to an alternative answer, and it is the saddest answer of all. We are driven to the surmise that these dedicated and loyal servants did not report to Nixon because they assume they were doing what the boss wanted done.

"I know that it can be very easy," said the President, "under the intensive pressure of a campaign, for even well-intentioned people to fall into shady tactics." The bitter, galling truth is that Nixon's own record, in the campaigns he personally directed, is not free of "shady tactics." He himself, on the record, has known times when his zeal exceeded his judgment. His Monday night speech was flawed by forensic excesses. He is a fighter, blood-up, deaf to the bell.

Given so aggressive a master — a master now so preoccupied with great affairs of state — what would these loyal aides say to one another? "Don't bother him with that...He doesn't need to know...It's better not to tell him...If he asks, say things are fine, chief, fine..." In time, as the situation gets out of hand, confession and disclosure become more difficult. Panic sets in, and bad judgments turn to disastrous judgments. Nixon, ill-served and long-deceived, looks up at last, and is appalled.

"The man at the top," he said, "must bear the responsibility. I accept it." That responsibility may be the heaviest Nixon ever has assumed; but if he now carries it bravely and honorably, he and his high office may yet emerge from his ordeal tempered and strengthened by the fire.

U.S. Institutions Are Not In Danger; The System Is Working

By GEORGE BRYANT JR.

Over its 200-year history this nation has weathered crisis after crisis. And its foundations have remained much intact, despite the often predicted crumbling.

It's a pretty good bet that after the Watergate story, messy as it is, has become a footnote at the bottom of a page the basic structure will still be with us.

What we are seeing is a small group of men who, somehow, felt they could and should disregard the laws of the land, get what's coming to them—justice. That's a far cry from institutions in danger. The system is working, if slowly.

The worst that can be imagined is that President Nixon, himself, was involved (1) in the planning and (2) the attempted cover-up of the crimes. Of course, there has been no evidence that Nixon was involved and what he had to say this week deserves belief.

At this stage of things, the Watergate affair appears to have the brainchild of the "palace guard." The question of "why?" remains unanswered. Nixon's reelection was already as "sure" as such things can be. What gain could possibly result which would justify such a risk?

No matter what answers may come to still unanswered questions, Nixon is hurt. The affair can't help but irritate a, ready rough relations with Congress. It's easy to overstate the possible damage to Nixon in dealings with foreign governments. But there is no denying that domestic troubles can make foreign relations more difficult.

At this distance from 1976, it's difficult to see how the still badly divided Democratic party can make a White House comeback, suiting Watergate as the key issue. This holds, even if you make the extreme assumption that Nixon is involved. The trouble lies with the number one candidate in the Democratic ranks, Senator Ted Kennedy: Watergate involves a matter of morals. And it will not be forgotten that Kennedy is in no position to wage a campaign keyed to this issue.

For the moment, at least, the primary beneficiary of Nixon's misfortune may well be Senator Jackson of Washington. Jackson got himself known nationally in the last campaign, but doesn't present the shop-worn picture of either a Humphrey or a Muskie.

Nixon, of course, cannot run for re-election when this term is over. But, as events develop, he may well remain the strong personality of his party. He has survived a lot of ups and downs, both before and after he was elected President. One commentator calculated Watergate to be Nixon's seventh popularity crisis.

One of the great dangers of Watergate is that it will divert Washington from problems crying for attention. The Vietnam peace, shaky from the start, is threatening to come unstuck. Major trade negotiations are coming up. Improving relations with Russia and China should not be neglected.

On the homefront, time may tell us that the real danger to the foundations of our system was not scandal, but inflation.

You can rest assured that Morgan will not take offense to this column, because while he might not be talking publicly about the Senate, he is thinking about it.

Morgan has requested in his new budget funds for a public relations man for the Justice Department. Deep inside his heart he doesn't believe the Legislature will bookmark money for that position, because he knows some politicians feel such a person would be employed to help Morgan with the Senate battle.

The Attorney General from Lillington has always had a knack for making the front page. He's beginning to stir now... a Concord speech where Watergate was mentioned, and a great deal of hustling around in his office by staff personnel.

Morgan knows full well that if Sen. Ervin runs again, he would have a tough battle. Ervin is making headlines by sitting alone in his Morgantown den. Just wait until they turn on the TV cameras and Ervin's Committee really gets into Watergate. That's exposure.

But those close to Morgan... forever loyal to him... believe he could whip Sen. Ervin on the stump. For one thing, they cite the age factor, where Morgan is 32 years Ervin's junior. That could be important.

Morgan has not absolutely decided to run for the Senate. But he's thinking on it and this reporter would be surprised if he isn't in that race. You don't however, forecast political races and feel safe about it. Doing it like the weatherman. I'd say there's a 60 per cent chance Morgan will run. But don't go knocking on his door with the question. It's too early for him to answer the question.

He wrote me a personal letter a week or two back which began: "Put it in your book. Morgan is going to run for the Senate."

If Rob't Morgan Knows, He Still Won't Tell You

By JOHN KILGO

RALEIGH—Don't go knocking on Attorney General Robert Morgan's door and expect him to say: "Yes. No doubt. I'm going to run for the U. S. Senate."

You would more likely get a nice smile, a slight shaking of the head and something like: "I've heard it talked. Everybody knows I've considered it but it's too early to decide."

Is Morgan going to run for the Senate next year? Would he risk the chance of opposing Sen. Sam Ervin, if indeed Ervin decides to run again?

John Burney, a former state senator with considerable clout, has had close ties with Morgan since law school days. I asked Burney the other day if Morgan was going to run for the Senate.

How Do You Separate The Bad From The Mad In A Courtroom?

By JOHN BARBOUR

AP Newsfeatures Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — "Not guilty by reason of insanity."

Does that verdict turn murderers loose on society?

Would the lack of it send sick people to prison to get sicker?

Under the melange of laws and regulations in a modern society, just who is bad? And who is mad?

These are some of the sorest points in the American system of crime and punishment, the roots of a dilemma that has plagued the courts for 130 years.

Now President Nixon would alter the federal criminal code to tighten, but not eliminate, the insanity defense. He would provide the courts by statute with a uniform measure of who is temporarily mad and not responsible for his crimes. The proposal is essentially for a bifurcated trial — a trial in two parts. The first would judge guilt or innocence on the facts, allowing a plea of not guilty by reason of insanity only if the nature of the act did not dawn on the perpetrator at the time it was committed.

The second, should guilt be established, would consider psychiatric testimony as an aid in determining sentence.

As the President told Congress, "My new formulation would provide an insanity defense only if the defendant did not know what he was doing... the only question considered germane in a murder case, for example, would be whether the defendant knew whether he was pulling the trigger of a gun. Questions such as the existence of a mental disease or defect would be reserved for consideration at the time of sentencing."

Would that change things much? Would it halt what many experts say is the abuse of the insanity plea?

It would seem that the President's proposal would limit the number of insanity pleas, by limiting the question to that one moment when the trigger is pulled. Any sign of premeditation could conceivably rule out insanity.

But then who can measure that one moment when the trigger was pulled? A psychiatrist who sees the killer weeks or months later?

One thing the President's proposal would do is fix blame first and appraise gross mental disease later.

But the crux of any measure of insanity has come when a rule is put into practice. It may look good on paper, but it may not work in court.

Almost all federal courts today rely on the American Law Institute's model for a test of insanity: "A person is not responsible for criminal conduct if, at the time of such conduct, as a result of mental disease or defect, he lacks substantial capacity either to appreciate the criminality (wrongfulness) of his conduct or to conform his conduct to the requirements of law."

That phrasing backs away from a more liberal experiment that failed. Even the architect of the experiment, Chief Judge David Bazelon of the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington, agrees that it failed. It was conceived in good faith, to give psychiatric testimony freer range, to better inform the jury of the mental nature of the defendant, so that the jury could weigh his responsibility.

"What some of us are trying to do is to get all the information we can about the human being and the community, and make some kind of judgment as to whether or not a man really had a choice in the deep sense of the word," Bazelon says.

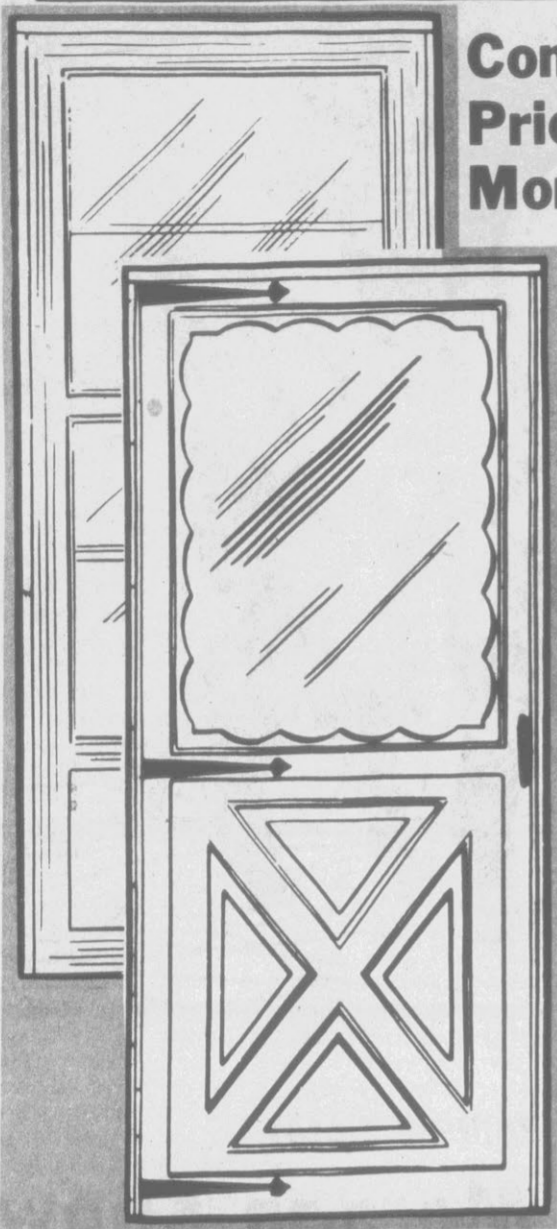

"I suppose most people in the community, if they believed that a man's choices were severely limited, might as a moral proposition say you can't condemn him."

But there are others, Bazelon says, who will say they can't be

Women In The ROTC Raise The Scholastic Trend

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) — A campus beauty queen showed up at her first military formation with an ice cream cone. One girl appeared in the Army office wearing a fatigue jacket and short shorts. And three of 45 women students have dropped out of the program completely.

Otherwise, the men in charge of the new women's Army ROTC program at Pennsylvania State University say the five-year test project is off to a smooth start.

"We're finding the girls are setting a high academic trend," said Maj. John Riddiford. He organized Penn State's program which the Army started last fall for freshmen women in 10 campuses.

"All of the scholarship winners had higher Scholastic Aptitude Test scores than any of the men ever had," Riddiford said.

Women at Penn State hold six of 20 new Army ROTC scholarships for coeds. Each is valued at about $11,000.

According to Army spokesmen, the women's ROTC program has several purposes: to determine if it will be expanded to the more than 290 schools now offering ROTC to men, to offer equal military opportunities to women and to catch up with the Air Force and Navy which already have opened their ROTC ranks to women.

The purpose of ROTC is to train a sufficient number of active duty and reserve Army officers.

The Air Force program started in 1970, has 1,426 women ranging from freshmen to seniors. "It's been going extremely well," said Maj. John Duemmel, an Air Force spokesman. "The program will continue."

The Navy first began including women in its ROTC program in March 1972, but they could apply only for 16 openings in a scholarship program.

"Next year, 100 women will be eligible to join the non-scholarship program as well," said Lt. Cmdr. Dale Pearson, head of the Navy's college recruiting. "From an interest standpoint, it's been very successful."

So far, 212 women participate in the Army ROTC program nationally. Of these, 42 are at Penn State.

Why do they join? "It offers an opportunity to be more than an office girl when you graduate," said Martha Lower, 19, of Altoona, Pa. "There seem to be greater opportunities in terms of responsibility."

"I like being the first of a new breed," said Susan Rodems, an 18-year-old liberal arts major from Syracuse, N.Y., and ROTC scholarship winner.

"The starting salary is better for second lieutenants than for school teachers," said a third girl. "And besides, it's a good way to meet men."

Capt. Stephen Linthwaite, the freshmen's 25-year-old instructor, said the women's presence in ROTC has not posed many problems. "Except for little things," he said, "like deciding the length of uniform hems—a good two inches above the knee is acceptable—and finding shoes that weren't thick rubber-soled clunkers, it's gone pretty smoothly."

"Some of the men were skeptical at first, but now the seniors are wondering why this didn't happen three years ago."

Except for not teaching weapons' handling and flying, the women ROTC curriculum doesn't differ from the men's training.

Coeds are expected to drill with the men, attend summer camp between their junior and senior years and receive commissions as second lieutenants after graduating.

Army regulations stipulate that women cannot participate in flight instruction, airborne training, field combat training and activities "beyond the normal physical strength of women." They are not required to bear arms or participate in marksmanship training.

Most of the women interviewed said they didn't care about the restriction—"I'm gun-shy" was a common response.

One of the women's chief complaints is that their friends sometimes tease them about joining ROTC.

"The guys you go out with think you're either a nymphomaniac or a lesbian if you want to join the Army," said one indignant woman. "I don't hate men. I have a boy friend."

Besides Penn State, the other schools participating in the program are Eastern Kentucky University, Richmond, Ky.;

Florida State University, Tallahassee, Fla.; South Carolina State College, Orangeburg, S.C.; Indiana University, Bloomington, Ind.; Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge, La.; Texas A & I University, Kingville, Tex.; South Dakota State University, Brookings, S.D.; Arizona State University, Tempe, Ariz.; and University of Hawaii, Honolulu.

Kiwanians Held Ladies' Night

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville Kiwanis Club held its annual Ladies' Night Thursday night.

Special guests were the widows of deceased members, Mrs. Vernon Cox, Mrs. Poe Worthington, and Mrs. Herbert Forrest. Sparky McGaskill paid tribute to all the Kiwanians' wives, who help the Club so much with every project.

Entertainment was arranged by E.C. Averette, who presented Miss Mary Ann Ippock and Miss Lisa Heller, ECU music majors, who sang and played guitar solos.

The Mad . . . Day In The Life Of Joe Highway Could Be A Fast Boobytrap

In a recent speech Judge Bazelon stated the case for the law: "Challenging an expert and questioning his expertise is the lifeblood of our legal system whether it is a psychiatrist discussing mental disturbance; a physicist testifying on the environmental impact of a nuclear power plant, or a General Motors executive insisting on the impossibility of meeting Federal auto pollution standards by 1975. It is the only way a judge or a jury can decide whom to trust."

"I have always believed that the process of testing expert opinion must start from within," Bazelon told a meeting of psychiatrists in Los Angeles. "First — open up your decisions and make them public, if only to your colleagues. Record your staff conferences, keep your files. Like judicial precedents, these criteria will be flexible if they are out in the open. They will be useful if they are tested. They will approach wisdom if they are incorporated into the learning process."

pulse, some momentary devil within yourself.

Consider this case: A man has a life insurance policy which pays double indemnity for other than accidental or natural death. His wife kills him.

She collects once right off the bat, whether she is charged with the crime or not. "They're the beneficiary of the insurance," explains Dr. Strawinsky. "Then they get charged and they're found not guilty by reason of insanity, and here comes another check."

There are other aberrations under the insanity plea. The federal courts provide that a person can make the insanity plea. But the federal code has no provision for the person who is found not guilty by reason of insanity. There is no authorization to send them to a mental institution. Dr. Strawinsky says.

In the District of Columbia, there is authorization under the District code of laws, but elsewhere, federal authorities must go to the states in which the acquitted reside and ask for civil commitments.

Under the old rules for insanity, psychiatrists at St. Elizabeth conducted 780 pre-trial mental examinations in a one-year span.

In 403 cases they were asked only to answer whether the defendants were capable of standing trial and understanding the charges brought against them. These were all misdemeanors, and all were found competent.

The remaining 377 cases were almost all felonies — carnal knowledge, murder 1, and murder 2, armed robbery, rape, assault with a deadly weapon, and so forth.

Of these, 26 were found incompetent to stand trial. Only 17 were found to have no mental disorder whatsoever.

In 142 cases the defendants were found competent to stand trial, but without any connection between their crimes and any possible mental disease.

In 92 cases, defendants were found competent to stand trial, but with mental disease from which their criminal acts likely rose. These are candidates for the insanity defense.

There are decisions regarding insanity that go back to what the courts saw as "wild beast behavior." But the first real confrontation with insanity came in 1843.

It was the case of Daniel McNaghton who was tried in that year for the murder of Edward Drummond, then secretary of British Prime Minister Sir Edward Peel. Actually McNaghton shot Drummond by mistake. He really wanted to get Sir Edward, who he thought was persecuting him.

In trial, the question arose as to whether McNaghton knew the nature of his act when he committed it. The jury found he did not, and acquitted him.

In the public outcry that followed, all of England's top judges were impaneled to review the decision. They formulated what became known as the McNaghton rules. Those rules say, "It must be clearly proved that at the time of committing the act, the accused was labouring under such a defect of reason as not to know the nature of the act or that he was doing wrong."

In short, as Bazelon says, the ALI rule is only "warned over McNaghton." In 130 years the insanity test has come full circle.

In between there was the collision between psychiatry, an inexact science, and the law, an imperfect system of deterrents.

If he didn't know he was pulling the trigger of a gun. That is a temporary condition. Temporary insanity? Or hysterical neurosis with dissociative action?

A woman kills her husband. She found him out, and did it in one blazing moment of passion with a gun he kept in his desk drawer. She is found not guilty by reason of insanity. After a year in a mental hospital she is returned to society, finds a job and begins life again.

Did she know right from wrong? Did she realize what she was doing? Or did she black out that judgment afterward?

The psychiatrist asks these questions, and comes up with various answers.

Consider the case of the woman who killed her husband, a case only mildly fictionalized. "I think this was a justified insanity defense," Dr. Strawinsky says, "and I think justice was well served. This woman was not responsible at the time of the act she committed."

"She responded to treatment, and nothing would be gained by keeping her locked up in a hospital."

But there is something that irks in that charge, not guilty by reason of insanity. It is a stipulation that indeed you did kill, but that indeed you were driven by some irresistible im-

AN ACTOR'S PREPARATION . . . Russell Chesson, who will play the role of Brian, the father, in the Playhouse production of "Day In The Death Of Joe Egg," has been working with children at REAP. The play opens Wednesday evening at McGinnis Auditorium for a four day run through Saturday. (Reflector Staff Photo).

"I think it will give us a clearer feeling of what it would be like to have a retarded child and to know the problems of a parent in this situation," John Cannon, who is directing Day In The Death of Joe Egg, said.

As a matter of concern in trying to understand the day by day problems of parents in dealing with a retarded child, actors and actresses in the play have been visiting the Remedial Education Activities Program (REAP), where they have worked with the children there.

"Without this kind of contact, I think it would be more difficult to project a sincere understanding," Cannon said.

Among those who have been working with the children, in addition to Cannon, are Russell Chesson, Janice Vertucci and Jennifer Applewhite.

Russell has the role of Brian, the father of the child Joe Egg. Janice is portraying Sheila, the child's mother; and Jennifer is cast as Joe Egg.

Mike Hardy, General Manager of the Playhouse, said that "we hope by working with the children, we will be able to achieve an added dimension of reality in this play."

Peter Nichol's highly acclaimed play, Day In The Death of Joe Egg opens at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday in McGinnis Auditorium for a four day run through

NEW YORK (UPI) — Warning: The highway you travel may be dangerous to your health.

Most likely it's booby-trapped — and even more likely the hazards were put there by man himself.

At least 75 per cent of the vehicles in fatal accidents strike one or more fixed objects on the sides of roads, the U.S. Department of Transportation has found in a survey of the Interstate Highway System. The federal agency estimates that such hazards as light poles, sign posts, trees and guardrails take a toll of more than 4,500 lives annually and cause thousands of serious accidents.

Revival Begins Monday Night

Revival services will be held at Mount Calvary Free Will Baptist Church Monday through Friday at 7:30 each evening.

The Rev. C.R. Mosley, a former pastor of Sycamore Hill Baptist Church; Tuesday, Cornerstone Baptist Church; Wednesday, Holy Trinity Holiness Church; Thursday, Philippi Disciples' Church; and Friday, Selvia Chapel Church.

The public is invited, according to the pastor, Dr. W.L. Jones.

Saturday. This is the final offering of the current season of the ECU Playhouse.

Tickets are on sale at $2.00 each for the general public and are available at the McGinnis box office.

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Sunday, May 6, 1973—A-9 Mutual, auto insurer.

He says breakaway sign posts and light poles, better guardrails and cushioning devices have been available for some time.

Even grimmer statistics were uncovered by Pennsylvania's Department of Transportation. During the first half of 1972, state investigators attributed 357 deaths to roadside objects struck by cars. By comparison, 290 people died in crashes involving cars.

"Roadside death traps can be eliminated simply and economically," says Thomas C. Morrill, vice president of State Farm

"A government study has shown that dollars spent to remove highway hazards have five times the life-saving value of dollars spent on new roads," Morrill says.

"However, we'll begin to see lethal booby traps disappear from our roads only if individuals and concerned organizations urge state and local officials to take appropriate action."

TV 'Eye' Will Watch Boardwalk At Atlantic City

By EWART ROUSE
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTIC CITY (AP) — The "eyes" will have it this summer on the city's famous boardwalk.

In addition to the regular conclave of girl watchers, "Big Brother" will be getting an eyeful of the bikini-clad lassies who wander from the beach onto the wooden way.

Cloaked in anonymity, and secreted behind the locked doors of Room 409 at City Hall, "Big Brother" will watch not only the girls, but everyone and everything that passes through the main tourist artery of the boardwalk.

"He" will zoom in for close-ups of those whose actions arouse suspicion. A flick of a switch and offenders may find themselves under arrest faster than they can say "salt water taffy."

Sound like something from George Orwell's 1984? A modified version of it, anyway.

"Big Brother" in this instance is the police communications network. The medium through which boardwalk activities will be monitored is a closed-circuit television system that the city plans to have in operation by June 1.

The $60,000 municipally-owned system will cover from Virginia to Montpelier Avenues, a 22-block, two-mile stretch that includes the central tourist district of the seven-mile-long boardwalk.

Initial plans call for installation of six cameras atop poles four blocks apart. Controlled by switches on monitor consoles at City Hall, the cameras will rotate so that as a moving object or person passes out of the range of one camera he's automatically picked up by another.

"In this way a person fleeing a crime can be picked up from one camera to another," explains Charles Lipka, assistant communications engineer. "By flicking a switch on the console we'll be able to talk directly to a police radio car, giving a description of the suspect and his precise location at any given time."

While its main objective is to act as a deterrent to crime and to enable the police to effect speedy arrests when crimes are committed, the city acknowledges that there are misgivings in certain quarters that the plan does, in fact, represent 1984.

"The people who fear public surveillance of their actions are probably anticipating this would intrude in their private lives," says Mrs. Claire Ordile, deputy public safety director. "But the protection of lives and property and, more so, the protection of the innocent, takes precedence over whatever misgivings any individual may have."

Closed circuit television cameras on the boardwalk is merely Step 1 in a much bigger plan to bring large areas of the city under constant police surveillance by remote control.

The city plans to expand the system to Atlantic Avenue — from Virginia to Florida Avenues — by September. This one-and-a-half-mile stretch covers the city's main business center.

After that, plans call for installation of cameras in the city's inlet section, where the crime rate is highest, then on to other residential and "secondary" areas. A city totally covered with mechanized eyes?

"There are certain sections of the city where crime is so minimal, it would be a waste of money to put them in there," says Mrs. Ordile.

"We have less crime here than most cities our size," concedes Public Safety Director

Mario Floriani. "But whenever something bad happens in Atlantic City it gets national play. We need projects like these so we can tell people with assurance that Atlantic City is a safe place."

"When it's considered that the boardwalk is traversed by more than a quarter of a million people on any summer weekend, it's our feeling that if even one major crime is prevented, the system would have proven itself," says Mrs. Ordile.

Recognition To Mrs. Gay

Greenville native, Mrs. Helen Kemp Gay, is the 1973 recipient of the Honors of the Association of the N.C. Speech and Hearing Association.

The Honors of the Association, the highest distinction of the Speech and Hearing Association, is awarded in recognition of outstanding services, clinical excellence, and leadership in the organization.

Now a doctoral student at UNC-Chapel Hill, Mrs. Gay was speech therapist for the Raleigh Public Schools for a number of years prior to resuming graduate study in special education and speech pathology under Delta Kappa Gamma International and University scholarships in 1971.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P.C. Kemp of Greenville, she received her B.S. and M.A. degrees from East Carolina University.

Set Behavior Soc. Session

Plans for the N.C. Group Behavior Society's spring meeting in Hendersonville have been announced by Mrs. Henrietta S. Franklin, president-elect.

The dates are May 25-27. The Society is an organization of professional disciplines interested in group therapy, encounter groups, group research and group behavior. The spring meeting will offer programs on Gestalt therapy, transactional analysis, behavior modification, group dynamics, existential therapy, psychodrama, dance therapy, and leadership and group simulations for business and education.

Dr. Tom Long of East Carolina University is a past president of the Society and Joseph Bennett is a member-at-large.

Inquiries about the spring meeting may be made to Henrietta S. Franklin, A.C.S.W. 1024 Professional Village, Greensboro, N.C. 27401.

Greenville School Menu

Lunchroom menus for the coming week at Greenville elementary schools have been announced as follows:

Monday—fried chicken, rice and gravy, turnip greens, corn rolls, milk;

Tuesday—hot dogs in buns with chili, baked beans, cole slaw, gingerbread with orange sauce, milk;

Wednesday—turkey on rice, glazed sweet potatoes, green beans, rolls, cake, milk;

Thursday—spaghetti with meat sauce, tossed salad, buttered french bread, orange juice, brownie, milk;

Friday—beef stew with vegetables, broccoli, cornbread, gelatin, milk.

Will Dim Lights Over Library Subsidy Cutback

By GEORGETTE WAGNER
CHICAGO (UPI) — Librarians will demonstrate on May 8 —quietly, of course—by dimming their lights to protest the Nixon administration's decision to cut back library subsidies from $140 million to zero.

A nationwide campaign, sponsored by the American Library Association (ALA), will dramatize the financial plight of libraries to prevent the symbol of darkened libraries from becoming reality.

From coast to coast book-filled rooms will fall into shadows. Rural, urban, public, academic and school libraries have been asked to join the mini-brownout, the ALA said. Librarians will place a lighted candle on their desks and hand out pamphlets on "Dimming the Lights to the Public's Right to Know."

"People tend to take libraries for granted," ALA executive director Robert Wedgeworth said in an interview here.

"People don't realize their libraries are endangered."

The Library Services and Construction Act will receive no funding in 1974. This affects school and academic libraries as well as public libraries. And there are 30,000 schools still without libraries.

While library systems won't go broke, Wedgeworth said, some libraries may close and others may cut back services. Pratt Library in Baltimore and the New York (City) Public Library already have cut back hours. States such as Ohio and Louisiana, which depend heavily on federal funds are under a "severe and immediate burden," he said. Zero federal funding will tighten the financial squeeze on state and local governments who may not or cannot make up the deficit.

"The (Nixon) administration thought the public didn't care (about libraries) and librarians were too timid to protest," Wedgeworth said.

Libraries are a national resource, he continued. Their costs should be shared by local, state and federal governments.

"President Nixon put a priority on the right to read education program, but he is cutting off funds in the place where books are read. Equal educational opportunity for all people without substantial support for information resources, in a variety of forms, is an unrealistic goal," Wedgeworth said.

If equal education is a national priority, the federal government must pay its share of library costs, he said. The trend toward open classrooms, independent study and adult education increases demands on quality libraries.

Equally important to the ALA campaign is making the public aware of library services. Libraries have added records, films and art prints to their collections. Bookmobiles serve rural and urban neighborhoods.

Urban "out reach" programs try to reach the handicapped, the homebound, the culturally deprived, and the persons usually unresponsive to libraries.

These programs strain budgets already taxed by raising labor, material and maintenance costs. The average price of a book has increased $8.43 in 1967 to $12.99 in 1973, ALA said.

Singapore's population is 2.2 million.

New Cattle Brands Boom In Colorado

By CARL HILLIARD
Associated Press Writer
DENVER (AP) — Colorado's cattle country is shrinking, but the number of new cattle brands being registered is skyrocketing.

"I don't know what they're doing with them, unless they're putting them on the family linen," said Earl Brown, state brand commissioner for the past 13 years.

He said the number of new brands registered is running at least 100 a month, so many that his office has had to add new characters to avoid duplication. Coloradans pay $10 per brand for registration and then $10 each five years to keep them logged in the huge, circular file at the 60-year-old Livestock Exchange Building.

Brown says the new brand owner may be a young business executive, lawyer, doctor or anyone with enough land to support one horse or a cow. Or he may own no animals at all and just wants the brand to put above his fireplace or over the gate of his summer home.

Colorado's brand history goes back to the territorial days of the 1860s.

There are dozens of brands that extend back to the 1890s registered with the department, but the quartercircle K, owned by the Richard Klett family of rural Bent County, is the oldest continuously registered brand on state records.

Brown said there's not as much brand alteration or rustling on the range as there used to be, but it still happens occasionally.

"As a matter of fact, someone must be in some kind of trouble now," Brown said, nodding toward a man carefully examining thick ledgers in the corner of the office.

"That guy's an FBI agent checking on somebody who may have too many cattle — or too few."

Brown's department, with 56 fulltime employees and 20 part-time, is hard pressed to take care of its duties not only because of an increase in the number of brands, but also because of more cattle, more sales rings and more movement of cattle.

Nevertheless, the department is able to get by on its registration and renewal and inspection revenue. It funded its $800,000 budget the last fiscal year with no money from the state's general fund.

"We're straining right now, because we held the line for three years without adding any new fulltime employees," he said. "But in those three years we find we're working a half-million more cattle with the same personnel."

Every animal that's shown or sold or moved must have its brand registered on a bill of sale.

Ate 83 Burgers In 2 1/2 Hours

KINGSTON, R.I. (AP) — Robert Materne certainly isn't boycotting meat.

The 21-year-old student devoured 83 hamburgers — without buns — in a 2 1/2-hour period Thursday night to set what was billed as a world record.

A spokesman for New England Food Management, Inc., which sponsored the spree at the University of Rhode Island, said the Guinness Book of Records lists the old world hamburger-eating king as Philip Yazdizik, who put away 77 patties in 1955 in Chicago.

LOTS OF VISITORS
MANILA, (UPI) — A total of 68,979 tourists visited the Philippines during a five-month period from October, 1972, to February, 1973, of whom 24,590 were Americans. A government statement said the tourists spent $15.3 million here.

Running Out Of Young Persons 'Sit' House And Pets The Ape Movies

PRODUCER Arthur P. Jacobs, who made five "Planet of the Apes" movies, says he has other films he wants to make. (AP Wirephoto)

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Arthur P. Jacobs, a man who has made millions with talking apes, is saying farewell to the creatures with a mixture of relief and regret.

Relief, because his five "Planet of the Apes" movies have been complex productions requiring more ingenuity with each one. Regret, because the films have been the producer's biggest successes.

"Naturally, I'm fond of the apes," said Jacobs, 51, "but it has become harder to find new plots that will work. Besides, I have other films I want to make. I don't want to keep turning out apes pictures like Charlie Chans or Tarzans.

"In both those cases, the first five or so of the series were excellent. Then, as the series fell into other hands, they became routine and not so good. I'd Live house security is the best kind and this should be a big summer for house sitters. Young people, in particular, should find house servicing a lucrative new work market.

In some areas high school students have been working as house sleepers through the winter caring for animals, plants and homes while people were away. It can be done while attending school.

It usually works like this: A prospective vacationer calls a local high school and asks a guidance counselor to suggest a student who would be a likely candidate for such a job. Some guidance counselors have the task of putting students in touch with jobs so that money can be earned toward college educations. The principal or counselors may still be available after school closes in spring to supply names.

Some young people advertise for the jobs and are checked out easily by a request for references, names of teachers, counselors and so on.

During the school season especially, such jobs are like found money. A high school senior may want to find better rather quit while we're ahead."

The producer has been finishing up "The Battle for the Planets of the Apes," which will be in the theaters this summer. That doesn't mean that doesn't mean the end of the "apes." They'll be re-released in theaters for years to come. And Jacobs has given 20th Century-Fox rights to develop a television series.

"Planet of the Apes" was a big hit, earning $26 million. "Beneath the Planet ..." cost $4.6 million and made $16.5 million. "Escape from ..." cost only $2 million because it was filmed in Los Angeles with only three apes. It earned $9½ million.

"Conquest of ..." and "Battle for ..." was made for about $1.8 apiece, and each is expected to bring in between $9 and $10 million.

Why have the "apes" been so popular? Jacobs' opinion:

"Because they are adventure-fantasy. And because they can be viewed on another level as social satire."

paying employment if he can during summer months, but meanwhile he can sit or sleep in someone else's house. And he may even be able to combine the work with another job.

One high school senior took care of two dogs, a bird, a cat and some plants for the exact fee that would have been charged for boarding the animals. The animals were far happier in their own home and the vacationers were happy with the arrangement. Other pluses were — they didn't need to stash the silver with relatives or worry about the family antiques.

Each morning this sitter fed and aired the animals, ate his breakfast and went to school.

Danube's Gold Washer Quits

By ANDREW SUEMEGHI
ACS, Hungary, (UPI) — Hungary's last Danube gold washer has retired. The only thing in the mighty river these days is fish, he says.

Antal Szakolczai spent 40 years looking for gold in the Danube—the east European waterway made famous by the waltzes of Johann Strauss.

"I was a gold washer for 40 years," said Szakolczai, 70, speaking in his old house on the Danube shore. "I've given it up now. I don't think there's any gold left, but the fishing is still good."

Szakolczai started and finished his gold panning career in this tony village in Kamarom county, the place where the Danube enters Hungary from Czechoslovakia.

"The Romans first started looking for gold here," Szakolczai said. "This part of the river was wide and the current moved slowly, just the type of conditions needed for finding gold."

"Now, the river moves much too quickly, reducing the chances of finding gold to practically nil."

Szakolczai, a white-bearded, robust father of five and grandfather of 12, got his first taste of gold washing from his father.

"My father and I went out in a little rowboat. We were often away for weeks. We took along some bacon, bread and plenty of wine," said the old man who still drinks a daily bottle of heavy Hungarian red wine called "Bulls Blood."

The outings with Szakolczai's father were just for fun. He took it up professionally at a time when money and work were scarce.

In the late afternoon he returned to feed and air the animals again. After that his time was his own until he returned to sleep the house, when he aired the animals again. A student who likes animals will also play with them, an extra dividend.

The family had specified that they wanted a high school student with good habits. They particularly didn't want one who smoked as they feared fire, they told the counselor, and they didn't want a person who would feel inclined to entertain his friends in their home. The guidance counselor came up with the name of a student who had been accepted by a select college, and who had a very good extra-curricular activity record (considered an indication of character).

In some communities it may not be necessary for a sitter to spend the night. Animals may be aired and fed at appointed hours and visited from time to time.

With a sitter supervising the house, it can continue to tick as it always has. Mail and newspapers can be picked up and milk can be used for the sitter's own purposes. For people interested in security, it might be as risky to stop milk, mail, papers and other deliveries in some neighborhoods as it is to forget to stop them in other neighborhoods. Discontinuance may call attention to one's departure (unless it is done casually, well in advance of the trip.)

If a young person attends school or works at another job during the day, a dog can be the house alarm. If there is no dog, a radio might be left on.

If one hires a house sitter or sleeper, complete instructions should be written out.

Among phone numbers to be left are those of immediate neighbors, relatives, local veterinarian (in the event animals become ill), fuel company, plumber and a vacation telephone number or address where one can be reached in an emergency. Complete instructions on the care and feeding of the animals should be left.

Little things should be mentioned, such as the importance of leaving water in an animal's bowl.

Some young house sitters have other skills that may be utilized while people are away. One sitter is a good painter and wallpaperer. Another likes to care for gardens. For additional money, conscientious boys would not have to work at other day jobs and could devote all their interest to a home. It's a good way for many families to get some messy chores done in their absence.

Suspicious people should take an inventory of their valuables before they leave so they do not accuse an innocent house sitter of absconding with an ash tray or whatever when they return.

One woman insisted a day worker must have filched her furs only to be reminded by her dry cleaner some months later that she had stored them. She had already fired the maid and collected insurance.

Young people with house-sitting experience or those who hope to take on such jobs should get their advertisements in newspapers early, listing any special qualifications or skills. Even if one's summer employment goals are higher, the possibilities of house sitting should not be overlooked.

East Carolina Splits With Appalachian

BOONE—Appalachian State University assured itself of no worse than a tie for the Southern Conference baseball championship yesterday by bombing East Carolina University, 9-1, in the second game of a doubleheader yesterday.

The Pirates had kept their hopes alive with a 5-4 victory over the Mountaineers in the first game of the twin-bill.

East Carolina now must wait and see what happens in a doubleheader between Appalachian and Richmond, set for Tuesday. A sweep or a split by Appalachian will give them the championship, while a sweep by the Spiders would through the finish into a three-way tie.

The Pirates closed out their season with the split, ending with a 10-4 Southern Conference record. Appalachian is now 10-2.

with the doubleheader left with Richmond. The Spiders are 7-4. They also have a single game left with Davidson, the seventh place team in the conference.

East Carolina had to battle for nine innings before winning the first one, and it may have been the cause of their downfall. The Pirates originally planned to use Tommy Toms as long as possible, but he had to go the limit in the first and wasn't able to work again.

The Pirates also found that the time of the game worked against them somewhat. They were informed late Friday night that FCU athletic director Clarence Stasavich had approved a 10 a.m. starting time for the game, but no one on the ECU baseball team had been informed about it. Coach Jim Mallory pressed for a different time, but only got an hour's delay. He expected the games to begin at 1:30 p.m.

East Carolina jumped into the lead in the first game with a run in the second inning. With one down, Ron Leggett doubled to left and after another out, Greg Fulghum's short fly to left was dropped by the Appalachian shortstop, allowing Leggett to score.

Appalachian came back with four runs in the third after stopping the Bucs on a leadoff double by Mike Bradshaw. After the Pirates had retired one, Mike Ramsey and Steve Anspaugh both singled to right. Butch Dziadul followed with another to right, scoring Ramsey. The ball got by Larry Walters, however, and Anspaugh also came in a Dziadul rushed on to third. Robbie Williams doubled down the left field line, scoring him, and Fred Whitt was intentionally walked. Mack Clark reached on an error, the second of the inning on Walters, scoring Williams for a 4-1 lead.

East Carolina came back with three in the fourth. Walters made up for his problems in the third with a triple to center. Leggett doubled him in and Jeff Beaton hit another triple, scoring Leggett. Toms then laid down a perfect squeeze bunt to score Beaton with the tying run.

Appalachian and East Carolina each had several chances along the way, as the innings mounted. Ramsey singled in the bottom of the fourth for the Mounties, stole second and took third on an error, but died there. Two walks put men in scoring position for Appalachian in the fifth.

Bradshaw and Ron Staggs both had hits in the seventh but nothing came of it.

In the eighth, Walters doubled, but was cut down at third on an attempted sacrifice by Leggett. Beaton then hit what appeared to be a home run to left, but the umpire ruled it foul. He later admitted that he was mistaken, but would not change his ruling.

Finally, in the ninth, the Bucs got the winning run. Jimmy Paige led off with a triple, but hurt himself sliding into the base and Jack Elkins came on to run for him, scoring on a wild pitch.

Appalachian nearly tied it up when Dziadul doubled and took third on a passed ball, but the Bucs retired the side with no damage.

The second game turned into a nightmare for the Pirates, as they got only four hits off

Anspaugh, their ace.

And the Mounties hopped on the Pirates for seven big runs in the first inning. Ramsey led off with a single to right, and Anspaugh followed with another. Dziadul attempted to sacrifice, but the ball was played to third, but badly thrown, and all arrived safely. Starter Russ Smith then walked Robbie Williams and Fred Whitt to force in Ramsey and Anspaugh.

Bill Godwin was brought in then, but got off to a poor start too. He walked Mack Clark, scoring Dziadul. Mike Dean then doubled to clear the bases, and he scored on a double by Ramsey with the seventh run.

East Carolina's only run came in the fifth. Leggett doubled, and moved to third on an error. Beaton reached on another error and Rick McMahon grounded to third. The ball was played to second and on to first for the double play, but was too late as Leggett scored.

The final two Appalachian runs came in the bottom of the fifth. Lenny Brockmeier doubled and was sacrificed up. Dean singled him in and moved up on Bernhardt's hit. Mike Ramsey singled in Dean with the final run.

The conference title rides on the outcome of Tuesday's games with the champion getting a bid to participate in the NCAA District Tournament at Mississippi State later this month.

Secretariat Leads Sham To Derby's Finish Line.

Secretariat Captures Derby In Record Time; Sham Second

By BOB COOPER
Associated Press Sports Writer
LOUISVILLE (AP) — Secretariat set a new Kentucky Derby record Saturday as he charged from behind to win the 99th running of the Churchill Downs classic.

Sham, Sigmund Sommer's Santa Anita Derby winner, was second, with Our Native third and Forego fourth.

Secretariat was 2 1/2 lengths in front at the wire with another eight lengths back to Our Native, the Flamingo winner earlier this year for Mrs. M.J. Pritchard, Dr. E.W. Thomas and trainer Bill Ressegue Jr.

As expected, Shecky Greene set the early pace, going the first quarter in 23 2/5 seconds, the half in 47 2/5 and six furlongs in 1:11 4/5.

With Sham going to the front in the turn for home, the field was timed in 1:36 1/5 for the mile.

Finishing behind the leaders were Forego, Restless Jet, Shecky Greene, Navajo, Royal and Regal, My Gallant, Angle Light, Gold Bag, Twice a Prince and Warbucks, in that order.

The victory for Secretariat marked the first time in Derby history that the same owner, trainer and rider have won the most famed race in the land two years in succession.

Lucien Laurin was the trainer and Ron Turcotte was the jockey on both Riva Ridge last year and Secretariat this time.

As the solid favorite, Secretariat paid $5, $3.20 and $3 while Sham returned $3.20 and $3 and Our Native tickets were worth $4.20.

Secretariat, the big chestnut son of Bold Ruler, made his move almost without effort and Turcotte had only to tap him lightly with the whip as he charged down the long Churchill Downs stretch for the victory.

Laffit Pincay Jr., aboard Sham, said he felt the colt was improving and that "maybe we'll get them next time. Next time I'll wait a little longer before making my move."

Pincay said he made his move early because "the horse in front of me started to move then."

Turcotte said he had been sure that Secretariat hadn't run his own kind of race when he was handed a solid defeat in the Wood Memorial two weeks ago at Aqueduct in New York.

"He was last at the first part of the race and I just dropped my hand on him and let him run his own race," Turcotte said. "He was doing fine on his own."

Turcotte said a horse ducked out from the rail at the turn for home "and I took advantage of it. He was running easy and I just let him go," he said.

The victory was Secretariat's third in four starts this season. His loss in the Wood Memorial was the only time he hasn't finished first since his debut as a 2-year-old. He was disqualified after finishing first in the Champagne Stakes as a 2-year-old.

In the winners' circle, with the traditional blanket of American Beauty roses on his withers, Secretariat danced around to let everybody know he had plenty of energy left.

Although he has been syndicated for more than $6 million for stud purposes, Secretariat still races for the Meadow Stable managed by Mrs. John Tweedy of Doswell, Va.

Pincay said that when Secretariat moved along side him, "I still had a lot of horse left, but that other horse was just too much."

Mrs. Tweedy, glowing in the winner's circle, said, "there are a lot of happy co-owners here today."

"It's been tough with a lot of pressure. He knows he's had a race, but doesn't he look marvelous."

Laurin, relieved that the pre-Derby pressure was off, said he had "never heard so many rumors. Someone came up today and said he was sorry for me. I asked why and he said because we had to scratch Secretariat."

The rumors persisted almost until the 5:40 p.m., EDT, post time that Secretariat would be scratched. Repeated checks proved them more than false.

Indiana Defeats Kentucky To Even ABA Series At Two Each

By MIKE HARRIS
Associated Press Sports Writer
INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Second-year pros George McGinnis and Darnell Hillman led Indiana to a 90-86 victory over the Kentucky Colonels Saturday, tying the American Basketball Association championship playoff series at two games apiece.

McGinnis scored 20 points, 12 in the first half, and Hillman added 17, seven in the critical fourth period.

Dan Issel led Kentucky with 21 points but contributed only two in the fourth period. Artis Gilmore and Louis Dampier each added 18 for the Colonels.

Indiana jumped off to a quick lead and built it to eight points, 26-18 with one minute remaining in the first period. The Pacers remained ahead, by a margin of eight points, the rest of the first half but led only 48-45 at the intermission.

Veteran Gus Johnson served as player-coach for Indiana in the second half after Coach Bob Leonard drew his second technical foul and was removed by referee Wally Rooney at the half.

Leonard drew a technical in the first quarter for coming off the bench on a disputed call, then drew his second as he walked off the floor at the end of the half. Rooney hit Leonard with the second technical for something Leonard said.

The physical contest was spiced in the first half by a bench-clearing wrestling match between Kentucky's Rick Mount and Indiana's Donnie Freeman. The two were given a double foul but remained in the game.

The 7-foot-2 Gilmore, who was a dominant factor in Kentucky's two victories in the seven-game series, was hampered by fouls throughout the fourth game. He wound up playing only 36 minutes in Saturday's nationally televised game, pulling down only eight rebounds.

The game was tied eight times in the second half before Indiana took control late in the third period.

The Pacers led 74-70 going into the final quarter and built that margin to 79-72 with 10:46 remaining. The closest the Colonels got the rest of the way was 82-80 with 4:48 remaining, but Hillman hit a long jumper and a pair of free throws to push Indiana ahead 86-80 and the Pacers held on.

Indiana won the rebounding battle 63-49 with Hillman pulling down 18, McGinnis 13 and center Mel Daniels adding 12. Daniels also hampered by fouls in the second half, added 15 points.

Issel led Kentucky with 15 rebounds.

Indiana, which shot only 34 per cent Thursday night in losing 92-88, hit 37 of 85 from the floor Saturday for 45 per cent, while Kentucky hit 40 per cent on 34 of 91.

The fifth game will be played at Louisville Tuesday night, with the sixth back here Thursday night.

If necessary, the seventh game would be Saturday at Louisville.

Tigers, 2-0

DETROIT (AP) — Joe Coleman became baseball's second six-game winner this season when he and John Hiller handcuffed the Texas Rangers with five hits Saturday in a 2-0 American League victory for the Detroit Tigers.

Al Kaline hit his third home run, 250-pound Frank Howard thundered around the bases with a rare triple and Mickey Stanley doubled as Detroit scored twice in the fourth inning to hand Mike Paul his first defeat after three victories.

Kaline opened the fourth inning with a home run into the upper left field stands. With two out, Howard tripled, Duke Sims walked and Stanley doubled for the other run.

Indiana jumped off to a quick lead and built it to eight points, 26-18 with one minute remaining in the first period. The Pacers remained ahead, by a margin of eight points, the rest of the first half but led only 48-45 at the intermission.

Veteran Gus Johnson served as player-coach for Indiana in the second half after Coach Bob Leonard drew his second technical foul and was removed by referee Wally Rooney at the half.

Leonard drew a technical in the first quarter for coming off the bench on a disputed call, then drew his second as he walked off the floor at the end of the half. Rooney hit Leonard with the second technical for something Leonard said.

The physical contest was spiced in the first half by a bench-clearing wrestling match between Kentucky's Rick Mount and Indiana's Donnie Freeman. The two were given a double foul but remained in the game.

Expos, 8-6

MONTREAL (AP) — Tim Foli knocked in the winning run with a two-out double as the Montreal Expos scored twice in the eighth inning to beat the Cincinnati Reds 8-6 Saturday.

Foli's hit into the right field corner off Cincinnati reliever Clay Carroll, 0-3, scored Ron Hunt from first base and gave the Expos a 7-6 lead. Hunt was on base with a single.

Ron Woods then followed with another double off Cincinnati's ace reliever for an insurance run.

The Reds had tied the game in the top of the eighth on Richie Scheinblum's run-scoring single.

Pat Jarvis, 1-0, was the winner for Montreal.

Cubs, 7-4

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Burt Hooton hurled a one-hitter for seven innings, but needed relief help to pitch the Chicago Cubs to a 7-4 baseball victory over the San Francisco Giants Saturday.

Hooton, 3-2, held the Giants hitless for five and two-thirds innings before Tito Fuentes lined a 2-2 pitch to left for a single. Left fielder Jim Hickman made a diving attempt to catch the ball, but it was ruled a trap by second base umpire Bob Engel, drawing protests from the Cubs.

The Cubs scored their first run off Ron Bryant on Randy Hundley's sacrifice fly in the second. They scored four in an eighth-inning rally capped by Hooton's run-scoring single and two more in the ninth on Ron Santo's homer.

The Giants rallied for four runs in the bottom of the eighth, Fuentes chasing Hooton with a two-run single and Chris Speier greeting reliever Bob Locker with a two-run double. Reliever Dave LaRoche retired pinch-hitter Chris Arnold, ending the threat.

Indians Top Bucs

The East Carolina lacrosse team finished off the season Saturday, bowing to William & Mary, 15-4.

William & Mary scored in the first minute of play and later moved out to a 2-0 lead before the Pirates came back to tie it up. The Indians again took the lead late in the period, and never trailed again. They outthrew the Pirates, 4-0 in the second quarter, and led 7-2 at the half. They again shut out the Bucs, 3-0, in the third period, and outthrew them 5-2 in the final frame.

Kahm and Metcalf led the Indian scoring with three goals and one assist each. Gum had two goals.

East Carolina's scoring was led by Danny Mannix with a goal and two assists. Jeff Hansen had one goal, as did Larry Hayes and Bill Harrington. Chuck Maxwell had one assist.

Hansen closed the year out as the number one scorer in Pirate history. Twice during the year, he tied the record for single game scores, and broke the single game mark for points.

The Bucs closed out the year at 5-6.

Babe Ruth Wins

College View, North Carolina National Bank and Pepsi-Cola each picked up victories in the Babe Ruth League Saturday.

College View downed Home Builders, 5-2, while NCNB beat Carolina Dairy, 11-7, and Pepsi topped Planters Bank, 4-2.

The three winners are tied for first in the league with 2-0 records. The losers are all 0-2.

In the first game, College View got all it needed in the first, scoring three runs. Keith Jones walked and stole second. He scored when Connor Merritt reached on an error. Merritt stole second and scored on Lee Shearin's hit. He stole second, moved to third on a wild pitch, and after Jay Chenier walked, the two runners pulled a double steal, scoring Shearin for a 3-0 lead.

College View added two more in the fifth, while Home Builders picked up one in the fifth and one more in the sixth.

In the second game, NCNB picked up four in the second to

Royals, 9-7

MILWAUKEE (AP) — John Mayberry's two-run pinch single keyed a six-run seventh inning Saturday, rallying the Kansas City Royals to a 9-7 American League baseball victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

George Scott and Darrell Porter singled in two runs apiece as Milwaukee jumped to a 6-1 lead before Kansas City retired a batter in the first inning. Bruce Dal Canton, the Royals' third pitcher, checked the Brewers on four hits and one unearned run the rest of the way.

Fred Patek's two-run single in the second made the score 6-3. After a throwing error by Paul Schaal let in Milwaukee's final run in the sixth, Cookie Rojas triggered the Royals' rally with a triple and scored on a sacrifice fly by Amos Otis. Successive singles by Gail Hopkins, Ed Kirkpatrick, Lou Piniella and Hal McRae and a walk produced two more runs and loaded the bases for Mayberry, whose single off Ray Newman, third pitcher of the inning, made it 8-7. Patek singled home the final run of the inning.

Netters Take Win

East Carolina University's tennis team closed the 1973 season with a 6-3 victory over Pembroke State University Saturday.

The victory left the Pirates with a 7-11 record for the season.) Pembroke captured the number one and number six singles and the number one doubles, but the Pirates gained the rest to gain the victory and finish with a win.

Summary:

Doug Eller (P) defeated Fraysure Sultan, 6-0, 6-3.

Ed Spiegel (EC) defeated Sonny Garner, 6-3, 7-5.

Mel Vest (EC) defeated Joe Allen, 6-1, 3-6, 6-3.

Wray Gillette (EC) defeated Sledge-Lilew, 6-2, 6-3.

Astros, 7-4

NEW YORK (AP) — Don Wilson pitched a four-hitter and socked a three-run double Saturday and Johnny Edwards and Cesar Cedeno added home runs as the Houston Astros bombed the New York Mets 9-2 in a nationally televised baseball game.

Wilson, 2-3, had a perfect game going until Ed Kranepool lashed a double down the right field line with one out in the fifth inning. The big Houston right-hander struck out eight batters and walked two as the Astros won their 13th game in the last 15.

Bosox, 5-1

BLOOMINGTON (AP) — Bob Veale bailed Bill Lee out of a bases-loaded situation in the eighth inning, preserving a 5-1 baseball victory for the Boston Red Sox over the Minnesota Twins Saturday.

Lee, 2-0, attempting to complete a game for the first time in the majors after 10 unsuccessful starts, had allowed the Twins seven hits before running into trouble in the eighth. The Boston left-hander filled the bases with two out on two singles and a walk before giving way to Veale, who induced Larry Hisle to hit into a rally-killing force-out.

The Red Sox had built their lead with two runs in the first inning on Reggie Smith's double, one in the third on Luis Aparicio's sacrifice fly, one in the fifth on Orlando Cepeda's RBI grounder and another in the eighth on Carlton Fisk's double.

Bertie Nips Rose For Sectional Title

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Surprising Bertie Central High School gained the Northeastern Sectional Track Championship here Friday, nipping Rose High School with a victory in the mile relay.

Bertie, a 3-A school this year, which will join Rose in a 4-A conference next season, put together 45 points to win the meet. The Ramblants finished in second place with 40 points, while Jacksonville was a distant third with 23 2-3.

Bertie and Rose each qualified for 10 places in the regional meet, which will be held here next Friday at East Carolina University, site of the sectionals.

The Falcons won three individual events, while Tarboro won a similar number. Rose, Jones Senior and Greene Central each won two events, while Jacksonville, New Bern, Farmville Central, and South Lenoir each picked up one victory.

There were three double winners in the meet. Greene Central's Lafon Forbes won the shot put and the discus, while Jones Senior's Herbert Mattocks won the long and triple jumps.

The other double winner also shared in a third victory, setting three new sectional records in each. Carter Suggs of Tarboro. A nemesis of Rose High School's Al Hunter for the past two years, the junior speedster won both the 100 and 220-yard dashes from Hunter and anchored the 880-yard relay team.

Both Suggs and Hunter were timed at a record 9.3 seconds in the 100-yard dash. Suggs leaped ahead of Hunter in the final yard of that event to win it at the tape.

His time in the 220 was 21.5 seconds as compared to 21.8 for Hunter. In the 880-yard relay team, the Tarboro runners finished in a record time of 1:29.7, again nipping Rose, clocked at 1:30.3.

The first four finishers in each event qualified for next week's regional event. The top four in that meet advance to the state meet.

Area people qualifying for the meet included Jesse Brown of Ayden-Grifton, second in the high jump; Matthew Clark of Rose, first in the 120-yard high hurdles and third in the 180 low hurdles; Jackie Sherrill of Greene Central, fourth in the high hurdles; Forbes, first in the shot and discus; Hunter, second in the 100 and 220; James Davis and Gary Walton, both of Rose, third and fourth, respectively, in the mile; Ronnie Wilkes of Farmville Central, and Calvin Moore of Rose, second and third, respectively, in the long jump; Rusty Purser of Rose and Stevie Williamson of Greene Central, first and fourth in the pole vault, respectively; the Rose and Williamson 880-yard relay teams, second and fourth, respectively; David Smith of Farmville Central, first in the 880-yard run; Reggie Perkins of Rose, fourth in the 220.

Following Jacksonville in the standings came Tarboro with 22, West Cartaret with 17, Greene Central with 16, Edenton 13, Jones Senior 12, New Bern and Farmville Central, 11 each; Wilson and South Lenoir, nine each; South Edgecombe 5, Murfreesboro and Ayden-Grifton, four each; Saratoga 3, Williamston 2 1-3; Pamlico, North Pitt, Washington and Roanoke Rapids, 2 each; and West Craven 1.

Summary:
High jump: Allen White (B) 6-2; Jesse Brown (AG) 6-2; Tillion Armstrong (B) 6-2; Ralph Moore (Wilson) 5-10; Elbert Smith (Wmst) and Jeff Mills (J) and Harvey Jennings (J), tie for fifth, 5-8.

Basketball Tourney Returned To Richmond

The 1974 Southern Conference Basketball Tournament will be held in Richmond, it was announced Friday afternoon.

The announcement was made at the conclusion of the spring meeting of the conference, held here with East Carolina University as host.

The tournament will be played in the Virginia capital for the second straight year. Greenville, South Carolina, had also made a bid for the tournament.

Dr. Francis Bonner, of Furman University, the conference president, said that a new format would be used for this year's tournament. Instead of playing four games the first day, and running a three-day tournament, the plan this coming year will four nights of play starting Wednesday, Feb. 27, and continuing through Saturday, March 2. Two games will be played each night except for the last, when only the championship game will be played.

Dr. Bonner said that pairings for the tournament have not been established, but that the first and second seeded teams would not play on the same night of the first round.

The tournament was continued in Richmond by a recommendation of the basketball committee, headed by Lyles Alley of Furman. He said that financial reasons played a big role in the decision, which he added was not unanimous.

While the conference officials refused to discuss those finances, reliable sources, said that Richmond offered the conference a guarantee of $40,000 plus 90 per cent of all income over $50,000. Greenville's offer supposedly was for 85 per cent of the profits.

The conference also head a progress report on the committee working to find a new commissioner for the conference. Dr. Bonner said that there was nothing definite to report at this time. The present commissioner, Lloyd Jordan, has a contract with the Southern which expires on December 31, 1973, and Dr. Bonner said that the committee had been directed to have a replacement ready to take over on January 1, 1974.

The conference however, is not scheduled to meet again until mid-December, but Bonner said that a special meeting could be called at any time, if necessary.

Jordan said that he expects to fulfill his contract, "to the letter," and remain in full control throughout this period. "When the committee is ready, I will accept what they propose," he said.

The conference also heard reports on the upcoming meeting of the NCAA, when reorganization into three divisions will be discussed; approved the extension of the baseball season to allow a champion to be selected; and approved the dates of the Football Rouser for August 12-14 at the Grove Park Inn in Asheville, the same site as last year.

The conference also approved an award for the Outstanding Track Athlete to be awarded in Memory of VMI track coach Walter Cormack.

College View, Pepsi In Wins

College View and Pepsi-Cola picked up victories in the Babe Ruth League Friday night. College View downed Planters Bank, 8-2, while Pepsi bested Carolina Dairy, 13-2.

In the opening game, College View pushed over a run in the first. Connor Merritt reached on a fielder's choice and Jimmy Averette singled. Lee Shearin got a hit to score Merritt.

In the third, Planters tied it up. Greg Lassiter singled and Max Nunn singled. A wild pitch scored Lassiter.

College View went back out in the bottom of the inning. Averette walked and stole second. He moved to third on an out and scored on Jay Chenier's out.

In the fourth, College View put the game on ice with four runs. Jeff Aldridge walked and moved to second when a pickoff attempt was muffed. Keith Jones walked and Greg Sasser was hit by a pitch. Merritt singled, scoring Aldridge and Jones. Averette reached on a single and an error on the play let Sasser score. Shearin hit a sacrifice fly to score Merritt.

Planters got one more in the fifth, while College View added two in the sixth.

In the second game, Pepsi pushed over two in the first. David Dixon walked and stole second. Curtis Keyes was hit by a pitch and passed balls moved Dixon across and Keyes to third. He scored when Mike Brewington singled.

Carolina Dairy got one in the second. Danny Borman walked and took second on a wild pitch. John Coffman singled him in.

They tied it up with one more in the third. Leonard Williams reached on a two-base error. He moved to third on an out and scored on a passed ball.

Pepsi went out with one in the third. Brewington doubled and moved to third on an out. He scored on a wild pitch.

Pepsi picked up four more in the fourth. Jack Bratton walked and took second on a balk. Dixon walked and Keyes did too, loading them up. Macon Moye doubled in Bratton and Dixon, and Brewington reached on an error, scoring both Keyes and Moye.

Pepsi then picked up six more in the fifth to wrap it up.

Rams Inch To Victory

SNOWHILL—Greene Central recorded a 1-0 decision over the Jaguars of Farmville Central, Friday. The win put the Rams above the .500 mark with a record of 6-5. Farmville Central is 6-6.

The only run of the game came over in the fourth. Ram Jeff Letchworth walked and was sacrificed to second. Bobby Suple doubled moving Letchworth to third and after Donnie Blizzard walked, Phil Harrison sacrificed in Letchworth.

Farmville Central had put a man on in the second as Glen Dwyer singled and stole up but died at second. Suple had moved around to third in the bottom of the inning for Greene Central getting on by a walk and advancing on an out and a steal.

The Jags put men in scoring position two other times. In the fifth, Ed Wells singled and stole second but could not score. Bobby Wooten walked for Farmville Central in the sixth and was sacrificed to second. HE failed to come in.

The first batters for the Jaguars in the seventh walked but the next three struck out giving the Rams the win.

Southern Wayne Tops Chargers

LITTLEFIELD — Southern Wayne High School gained a 6-2 victory over Ayden-Grifton Friday night.

The Saints pushed over four runs before allowing Ayden-Grifton to score a pair in the final two frames of the game.

The first two Southern Wayne runs came in the third. Brooks Vickeroy singled and stole second. Tim Robbins singled and both moved up on an out. Greg Carroll hit a sacrifice fly to score Vickeroy and Greg Gardner reached on an error, allowing Robbins to score.

In the fourth, Southern Wayne picked up another. Bill Vernon walked and stole second. An error let him move on to third and he scored on a wild pitch.

Southern added another run in the fifth. Carroll tripled and Neil Bartlett walked. The two pulled off a double steal, with Carroll scoring while Bartlett was in a rundown.

Ayden-Grifton finally broke the ice in the sixth, scoring a run. Horace Tripp reached on an error and moved to second on a balk. Tom Craft followed with a single, scoring him to make it 4-1.

Southern picked up two more in the seventh. Gardner walked and Vernon reached on a two-base error. A wild pitch scored Gardner and Tim Burroughs walked. Another double steal scored Vernon.

The Chargers added their last in the bottom of the seventh. Tony Koonce walked and stole both second and third. An error on the last let him come on in.

Ronnie Salmon picked up two hits for the Chargers, while Robbins had two for Southern Wayne.

The average Navy Pilot isn't.

No man who has mastered the flying skills it takes to fly and land on a ship at sea can be called an average pilot. And the sense of accomplishment and satisfaction that he enjoys are also above average. Which is only right. For the man who would go places as a Naval Aviator must pass through the most challenging and demanding training program to be found anywhere.

From Aviation Officer Candidate School through Flight Training to the day his golden Navy Wings are awarded, he is tested; driven; pushed and tested again. And for good reason. The Navy has learned that without the will to succeed, no man can be successful.

The benefits aren't average either. A Naval Aviator can earn up to $10,000 upon completion of flight school. The pay after three years is up to $14,500. There is also a program for obtaining a masters degree at no cost. The Navy gives its Aviators the best. Which brings us to you. Do you have what it takes to fly Navy? Send in this coupon and find out. Or talk with your local Navy recruiter.

Rampants Rally To Slip By Goldsboro

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

Jerry Narron's passed ball on a squeeze bunt attempt, let Bobby Dough score the winning seventh run Friday and help the Rose High Rampants edge out the Cougars of Goldsboro 7-6. Dough had walked earlier in the frame loading the bases. He letting Dugh win the game for Rose. Rose is now 5-3 in the loop while Goldsboro drops off to 1-7. The Rampants used a pair of pitchers in the game. Chris Manning started striking out four and walking as many as well as giving up the same number of hits. He was relieved by Cherry in the fifth and Cherry was promptly welcomed to the mound by John Narron's homer to right. Cherry went on to get the win as he fanned two and walked two. Goldsboro used three different pitchers. Earl Crumpler, who had lost a 1-0 decision to Rose earlier this year started and went five frames before howing to Alan Hollowell. Hollowell lasted a little over an inning and walked four in his stint. Mark Knight replaced Hollowell but faced only one batter, giving him a walk. Crumpler came back in to pitch the rest of the game and ended up absorbing the loss. The Rampants went on the boards in the first but the Cougars slipped in front in the top of the second 2-1 on two earned runs. They moved out by 6-1 in the fifth, getting two of four runs off Narron's homer to right. Rose, however, recovered in the bottom of the frame to cut the lead to 6-3 as they pushed over two runs. The Rampants got out of a bases-loaded jam in the sixth and set the Cougars down in order in the seventh. Then Rose rallied for enough to win it. Dwight Franks was the first batter to reach base for Goldsboro and that was by an error. He could not advance. The Rampants then struck for the first score of the game in the bottom of the first frame. Al Heath walked and after an out, John Barwick also walked. Cobb rapped a hit to center to score Heath and move Barwick to third. Grif Garner lofted a fly ball to left on which Barwick tried to score. Barwick, Narron, and the ball all met at the plate at the same time. Barwick was called out for the double play but he was injured and eventually had to come out of the game. Goldsboro had seen how to score and they pushed over two in the top of the next inning to take the lead. Crumpler walked as did Paul Baddour. Jim Farmer singled to right scoring Crumpler but Baddour was caught off second and was tagged out. Craig Johnson walked and he and Farmer moved up on an out. A hit by Hollowell drove in Farmer with the go-ahead run. Neither team threatened until the fifth. Hollowell led off the Goldsboro half with a hit to left. He stole second and came in on Perky Perkins' double to left. Narron followed with his shot, off a hanging curve, to put the Cougars out by 5-1. That was not all yet as they came up with one more. Baddour slapped a two-out double to right center and came around on a hit by Farmer. The Rampants fought back in their half of the inning to narrow the gap by two runs. A single to deep second base and a walk put Gil Whitford on second and Mike Wallace on first. Robert Brinkley also walked to load the bases. Barwick banged a hit into right to drive in Whitford and Wallace. Goldsboro looked as if they were going to put up some more runs in the sixth. Cherry, still

Golfing Winners

Jim Ward captured the Greenville Golf and Country Club's championship tournament, completed last week. Harriette White took first place in the women's division. Ward beat out Lee Ball for the title in the championship flight. Ed Warren took the handicap championship, while Bob Messner was the runner-up. Frell Webb won the senior championship, while Reynolds May was the second-place finisher.

Robersonville Wins Martin Championship

ROBERSONVILLE — Eagles pushed over five in the second, two in the third and three in the fourth. Robersonville's Doyle Farmer went the distance for the Eagles fanning ten, walking one (Farmer picked him off) and allowing one hit. The Eagles got all they needed for the win in the second. Matt Wilson singled and stole up. Larry Jackson reached on an error that moved Wilson to third and after Jackson stole second

Neno Hayes walked. A double by Jeff Warren drove in Wilson and Jackson and a walk to Mike Matthews filled the bases again. Farmer hit into a fielder's choice that got Matthews but scored Hayes. Loyal Corey grounded out scoring Warren and moving Farmer to third. A wild pitch brought in Farmer. Two more came across in the third. Wilson reached on an error and stole second and third. Jackson walked and a ground-out scored Wilson. Jackson stole second and scored when Warren's grounder was errored. Farmer led off the fourth with a double and Corey moved him to third with a single. Ricky Brown was safe on an error scoring Farmer and Jackson drove in Corey and Brown with a single to left. Robersonville is now 5-0 with one game left. Bear Grass 000 00 — 0 1 5 Robersonville 052 3X — 10 5 0 Williams, and Wynne; Farmer and Jackson

Conley Defeats North Pitt, 8-3

BETHEL—D.H. Conley snapped its losing streak with an 8-3 victory over North Pitt High School Friday. The Panthers scored first in the game, getting a run in the first. Ben Johnson singled and was sacrificed up. Linwood Brown then singled him in for a 1-0 lead. Conley came back in the top of the second to score four runs and take the lead for good. Randy Adams tripled and Vic Corey reached on an error. William Carmon sacrificed, scoring Adams. Corey was picked off and Eugene Forrest and Randy Dowdy both walked. Ricky Phillips was hit by a pitch, loading the bases. Clennell Streeter then doubled, driving in all three runners. North Pitt came back with a run in the bottom of the second. Craig McLawhorn walked, then scored when Johnson tripled. The Vikings added two more in the third. Keith Gould singled and Adams walked. Corey reached on a fielder's choice and Carmon hit a sacrifice fly that scored both Gould and Adams. In the fifth, the Vikings picked up two more. Gould singled and Adams doubled. Corey sacrificed in Gould, and Carmon walked. Forrest then hit another sacrifice fly to score Adams. In the seventh, North Pitt got its other run. Brown singled and Clint Lewis got a hit. Steve Fuchs singled to score Brown. Brown led North Pitt with three hits, while Johnson and Lewis each had two. Streeter, Gould and Adams each had two for Conley. North Pitt hosts Farmville Central on Tuesday, while Conley entertains Southern Wayne. Conley 042 020 0—8 8 1 North Pitt 110 000 1—3 8 2 Corey and Forrest; Harrell, Fuchs (3) and Brown.

Wildlife Afield: Top Bass Months

KARATE AWARDS — Bill McDonald of Greenville instructor for the ECU Karate Club, has been selected Southern Coast Instructor of the Year by the other instructors throughout the south. He has also been named Instructor of the Year nationally by the Korean-American Karate Association Board of Directors. He received the awards for his work with the Karate club which has amassed outstanding record, plus his work with youths.

By JIM DEAN
The months of May and June are peak fishing months for largemouth bass in sprawling Currituck Sound in northeastern North Carolina. No body of water in North Carolina has achieved a wider measure of fame as a bass hotspot than this 40-mile-long body of brackish water behind the Outer Banks.

Our grandpappies fished Currituck from 16-foot juniper skiffs poled by guides, and they used stiff casting rods with Johnson Silver Minnows and pork rinds. Some of them fished the sound with fly rods and popping bugs.

Increasingly, development threatens Currituck, but the place has more in good common with the past than the present.

In a world constantly changing, Currituck has remained remarkably untouched because anglers still fish the sound in those old juniper boats poled by guides. And the fly rod and the casting are still popular, though the spinning rod has made inroads. The favorite lure, however, is still probably the Johnson Silver Minnow and pork rind.

The bass in Currituck Sound have never been as big as those dredged out of farm ponds and lakes back "upstate". Most Currituck bass run from about a pound and half to two pounds. A three-pounder is better than average, and a four-pounder is worth mentioning around the table that evening.

Still, I have personally seen one bass that lacked an ounce hitting eight pounds, and on that same day, several other anglers brought in fish that weighed from five to six pounds. The late Joe Brooks—author of many fine fishing books and outdoor editor of OUTDOOR LIFE magazine—reportedly holds the informal record for the largest Currituck bass. Joe once caught an 11-pounder—on a fly rod at that. But what the Currituck bass lack in maximum size, they more than make up for in scrappiness and abundance. On a spring day, when the wind is gently blowing from southerly directions, it is not unusual to catch a limit of bass.

Because Currituck is large—and potentially dangerous to the first-time fisherman—it is wise to fish with a guide. In fact, the favorite method for years at Currituck has been to take a "packaged" fishing trip. You stay in a lodge, eat home-made meals and also have a guide and a boat ready and waiting for you. I know the Currituck well enough to fish some of it alone, having been there many times, but I still prefer to eat and sleep at one of the comfortable lodges where "home sweet home" is the practiced motto.

Of course, you can certainly fish Currituck without a guide, but your chances of success are much slimmer. If you have your boat, you can launch out of several areas, perhaps the best being the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission's free boating access area at Poplar Branch on the west shore.

No matter how you plan to fish, take along some topwater plugs like the Devil's Horse, Jitterbug or Dalton Special. For underwater use, a weedless John Silver Minnow and pork rind or a weedless plastic worm will work fine. Other underwater lures are virtually worthless because of the dense growth of Eurasian milfoil that covers much of the sound. The milfoil also makes running an outboard a problem—another reason for getting a guide—but it apparently hasn't hurt the fishing. For a list of lodges and guides at Currituck, write the Travel and Promotion Division, Department of Natural and Economic Resources, Raleigh, North Carolina, 27611. Although it may be hard to find reservations at a lodge for this month, it's still worth a try, and you can also keep the list for an earlier start next year.

Large Numbers Take Coast Guard Course

By JACK WOLISTON
NEW YORK (UPI) — From the ditty bag:

—A total of 311,563 persons took the public education courses offered by the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary last year, a 32.2 per cent increase over the number who enrolled for the free instruction in 1971. Most popular course continued to be the one-lesson program, which was offered in two versions—a general outboard boating course and one designed specifically for the hunter-fisherman.

—Miami's Palm Bay Club, which last January pioneered the world's first major ocean race for stock boats and engines, on May 20 will stage the first powerboat race to be run under the new American Power Boat Association's off-shore production boat racing rules. The inaugural event is expected to attract about 40 and Brinkley loaded them up. Knight came in to pitch and promptly walked Dough to force in Wallace making it a 6-4 ball game. Cobb greeted Crumpler back to the mound with a single to right driving in Heath and Brinkley to tie it up.

After Hunt's unsuccessful sacrifice attempt, Cherry tried to bunt Dough in and as Cherry pulled up, the ball got away from Narron in the shuffle letting Dough score.

Cobb had two hits and three RBI's to lead the Rampants. Hollowell and Baddour each had a pair for Goldsboro.

Cherry set the Cougars down one-two-three in the seventh and in their last chance, Rose came through to win it. Wallace led off with a walk and walks to Heath high performance pleasure boats, both inboard and outboard. The course for the 92-mile event is along the Florida Keys.

—Ron Stone, government relations director of the Outboard Boating Club of America, told a recent meeting of the National Water Safety Congress that federal, state and local government are increasing taxes and fees on boating while simultaneously placing further restrictions on the sport. As an example, he pointed to increased boat registration fees in Wisconsin, accompanied by local regulations barring use of motorboats on an increasing number of lakes.

The firm's Greenville offices are located at 308 Evans Street and are managed by Lawton H. Nisbet.

BILL INTRODUCED

The National Paint and Coatings Association has presented testimony to the House Committee on Ways and Means in support of a bill introduced in the House which would allow home owners to deduct their home improvement costs from their income tax.

The Home Repair Bill, H.R. 1997, would allow a $750 deduction for repairs or improvements of an individual's home. It also provides for rapid amortization over a five-year period for such improvements to rental property. The bill, it was noted, states that repairs or improvements will include "painting, papering, carpentry work, plumbing, electrical work, roofing, and glazing, and other similar items."

The association reported that its testimony indicated that tax deductions for home owners and landlords would provide a needed incentive to maintain or repair old housing.

Street Improvement Policies Approved

What City Manager William M. Carstarphen terms a "complex arrangement," relative to new Greenville requirements for special assessments for street improvement policies was approved at the Thursday night meeting of City Council.

Carstarphen said the resolution for Greenville was made necessary by policies set forth for municipal administrations in North Carolina General Statutes.

Committee Studies Bill

RALEIGH (AP)—A six-member joint conference committee has been named to try to break a General Assembly deadlock on reorganization of the State Highway Department.

The House Friday precipitated the impasse when it agreed with Rep. Jimmy Green, D-Bladen, that several Senate amendments to the bill had gutted it and refused to concur in them.

Green, chairman of the House roads committee, was named to head the House delegation to the conference, which includes Liston Ramsey, D-Madison and J.P. Huskins, D-Iredell.

The Senate delegation is headed by J.J. "Monk" Harrington, D-Bertie, and includes Herman Moore, D-Mecklenburg and Harold Davidson, D-Lenoir.

Green specifically objected to Senate changes that had been written by Moore and Sen. Hamilton Horton, the Republican joint caucus leader.

Horton had praised the changes as contributing to making the bill a non-partisan reform effort, they had also allied the opposition of Howard Jim Holshouser.

Among the disputed provisions are:

1. The Greenville policies will comply with state requirements;

2. Lineal front footage will be the only basis employed for figuring costs of improvements;

3. The city managers will program an annual estimated cost to recommend for the appropriations budget, showing the city's cost for intersection improvements—which is a city responsibility.

Carstarphen said he believes it may also be that the city will be responsible for storm drainage cost).

4. Priority of street improvements will be based on dates of petition and the availability of project funds. (In this connection, property owners first providing their share of funds will take precedence over petitions for which funds have not been raised from property owners).

5. A minimum of 51 per cent of estimated cost must be received from property owners before construction on improvement work begins; and

6. Installation payment plans must have a five year time limit from date of completion of project.

Carstarphen said the new state law is tougher, and poses a number of requirements that must be established as policy guidelines by municipal administrations.

Among requirements involved are four public hearings by the City Council on any assessment project; and the use of a total of 14 different forms in the various procedures of assessment policies.

Report Received Dealer Law Pitt Recreation Coming Up

RECEIVING RECREATION REPORT ... B. Alton Gardner, chairman of the board of County Commissioners receives a copy of the "Potential for Outdoor Recreation in Pitt County," from Robert Little, chairman of the Pitt Soil and Water Conservation District. (SCS Photo by Roy Beck)

A 59-page report on the Potential for Outdoor Recreation in Pitt County, has been published by the Pitt Soil and Water Conservation District.

Robert G. Little, chairman of the conservation district presented a copy of the report to B. Alton Gardner, chairman of the board of County Commissioners Thursday night.

The report was prepared by the Soil Conservation Service in the county with assistance from 15 other agencies and groups.

The Livestock Dealers' Licensing Law, which was recently passed by the Legislature, will become effective May 16, according to Dr. F. Zweigart, State Veterinarian.

Zweigart said that basically, the law requires livestock dealers to be licensed and keep certain records. A copy of the new law and license application forms are available at the Agricultural Extension Office here, assistant agent Steve according to Roy Beck, a conservationist with the Pitt SCS. Eleven kinds of outdoor recreation and their appraised potential—ranging from items of medium potential such as vacation cabins and fishing waters and items of low potential such as hunting and fishing areas and field sports areas—are included in the publication.

Included in the report are: the Pitt County general soil map with interpretations; a list of existing lakes (five acres and larger) and a list of potential lake sites; a list of all streams and their location; a list of historical sites, scenic areas and natural areas; and major tourist routes. Copies of the recreation report are available from the Soil Conservation Service.

Riddick said. Riddick pointed out that the term "livestock dealer" refers to any person who buys livestock for his own account for the purpose of resale, or for the account of others.

The term "livestock," it was noted, refers to cattle, sheep, goats, swine, horses and mules. Riddick said that further information on the new law may be obtained from the N. C. Department of Agriculture or from the Extension Office at 203 W. Third Street. He added that persons may call 758-1196.

SALES WITH A TWO-WAY FUTURE

The sales representative for National Chemsearch has the best of two worlds. If you are the kind of person who really loves to sell, and chooses to remain in a territory, your future is economically unlimited. You will remain in your original territory; your accounts are protected for you, and your earnings can increase substantially each year. If, on the other hand, your goal is to reach the management level through sales, this can also be achieved. National Chemsearch has grown from $8 Million to almost $82 Million in the last eleven years, and this rate of stable growth should continue for a long time to come. Because of this growth, we have an increasing need for promotable sales representatives whose future development can parallel that of the company. If you have selling talent, with the drive and desire to use it to your best advantage, we will provide...

PLAN YOUR HOME

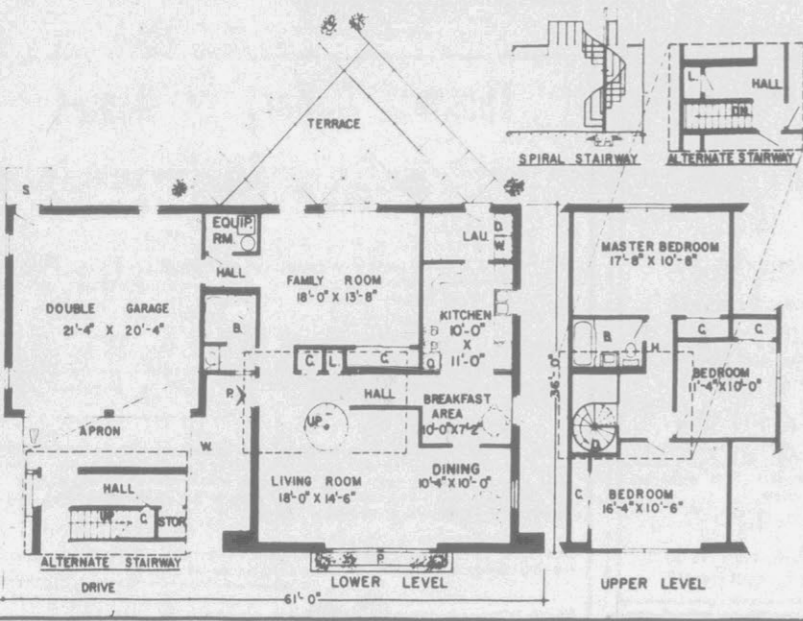

SPACE, INDIVIDUALITY ACCENTED IN HOME

PLAN YOUR HOME

Size: 1,185 sq. ft. first floor; 549 sq. ft. second floor; 484 sq. ft. garage.
Over-all dimensions: 61 ft. by 36 ft.

By Gerry Bishop

Layered with exquisite stone and highlighted with diamond light windows, the unique exterior of the Aylesbury is matched by a combination of open space and originality on the inside. A one and one half story home, the Aylesbury design incorporates a distinctive spiral stairway, a triangular terrace, and an extensive kitchen and dining complex.

Entry is at the left side of the home, leaving a front view that calls attention to the exceptional design. Inside, the living room is to your right, and the family room to your left. Because of the undivided living and dining room and the spiral staircase, much of the first floor is open, giving an impression of spaciousness. The living and dining area is, in fact, sizable, spanning the front of the home. The dining room then connects to a breakfast room, which leads to the kitchen, forming a highly functional unit. The kitchen sports ample cabinet space and adjoins a laundry room with built in counter space.

The large family room, to the left of the entry, connects to a triangular terrace via sliding glass doors. One appealing feature of the family room is that, should you wish to leave the upstairs temporarily unfinished, it would make a lovely master bedroom. The family room houses a long closet and is handy to a full compartmented bath. Also included on this level are a coat closet and linen closet.

Three spacious, well-closeted bedrooms comprise the second level and another full bath is provided. A large double garage with room for storage is also included in the Aylesbury.

Program Helps American Image

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — Texas Christian University has a new degree program which its administrators say will help dispel any "ugly American" image overseas. The program offers a major in "comparative studies." TCU Professor Dan Heldman says it will teach students patterns of life in foreign countries and their cultures, politics, economics and social structures.

per cent with denatured alcohol. If it seems all right, let it stay. If it is too glossy — more so than the surrounding surface — sand it down very lightly. All of this is going to require a careful touch to get a good match, but there isn't much choice.

Q. — I am going to paint three rooms in my house soon. I used paint brushes all my life but tried a roller a couple of years ago. After using it, I left it in a pan of turpentine because I had used an oil paint. When I went back to use it some days later, the turpentine had evaporated and the roller was very hard. How can I avoid that this time?

A. — A roller or, for that matter, a paint brush, should be left in a solvent only if you are going to use the painting tool the following day. The solvent will not evaporate in one day, but it surely will evaporate in time. How long it lasts depends on how much solvent there is.

Q. — Our dining room floor was finished with shellac a couple of years ago. Recently, when we had guests, someone spilled alcohol on the floor. We didn't discover it until later and didn't do anything about it because we believed it would not stain. We were misinformed by a neighbor who said anything with alcohol in it doesn't stain.

Anyway, there is now an ugly stain on the floor in a small area. Is it possible to get rid of the stain without redoing the entire floor?

A. — You sure were misinformed, although it is probable that there would have been no stain if the spillage had been wiped instantly. What you can do now is to steel wool the stain lightly, then rub the area with a cloth saturated in denatured alcohol. This will almost certainly eliminate the stain, but it may take off some of the shellac and thus present a conspicuous appearance.

You'll have to do the best you can to refinish the area with a new coat of shellac thinned 50

Q. My iris did poorly last year. On digging the roots last fall, I noted areas chewed out as if by a mouse or grub. What may have caused the damage, and should I take any precautions with the old or new beds this year? (H. Y. Raleigh)

A. The damage was caused by the iris borer. No damage should occur this year if clean roots are put in new beds. The iris borers overwinter as eggs around debris at the base of the plant. Upon hatching early in the spring, the borers climb the leaves and begin feeding. The holes are quite small at first, but then the borers tunnel down through the leaves and begin feeding on the roots. Treat at the first sign of damage with domethoate (cygon, De-Fend). H. E. Scott, extension entomologist horticulturist)

Q. Is it safe to eat vegetables that have been grown in soil fertilized with sludge? (G. C., Mount Airy)

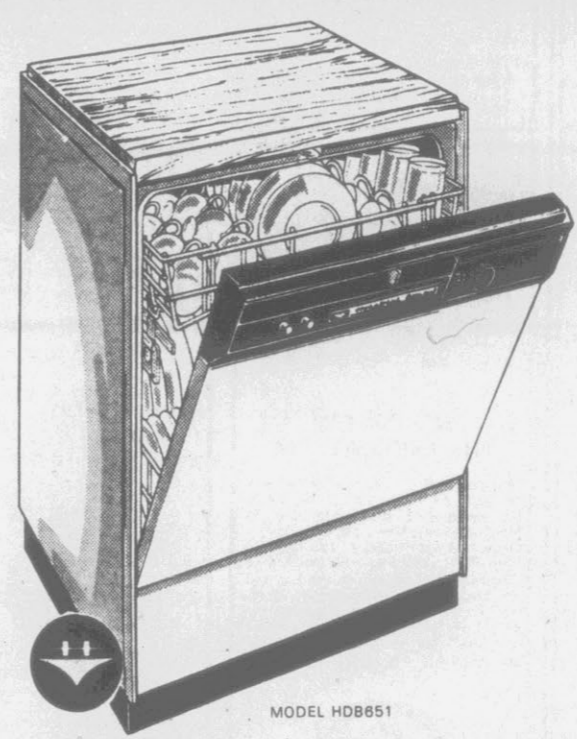

A. Yes, under certain conditions. Sludge, the by-product of sewage processing and treatment, can be used in vegetable gardens if it has been heat treated. Sludge that has not been heat treated may be used in the garden if it is incorporated in the soil at least six months before the vegetables are planted. (A. A. Banadyga, extension horticulturist)

Dr. Audrey V. Dempsey

Her Work Here Done, She's Colorado-Bound

After 33 years with the East Carolina business education faculty, Professor Audrey V. Dempsey of the East Carolina University School of Technology will retire this May.

When she came to the Greenville campus in 1940 at the invitation of Dr. Elmer Browning, East Carolina was a teachers' college with an enrollment of 1,100 students. Three decades of growth have seen the small teachers' college become a university with eight professional schools, a college of arts and sciences, and a campus enrollment of 10,200 students.

Now chairman of the Department of Business Education and Office Administration, Dr. Dempsey has recognized changes in her students with the intervening years as well as changes in the size and organization of ECU as a whole.

"Students now are much better prepared for college," she says. "When I first came here, business education was just beginning to be offered by the high schools, so many entering freshmen had no previous skills in the field."

"Now students come with the basic skills already mastered from their high school business education programs."

Throughout her teaching career, Dr. Dempsey has been in a position to notice the important developments in her field, and in fact has been instrumental in bringing about many of these developments.

She founded ECU's chapter of Pi Omega Pi honor society in business education soon after joining the faculty here, and has been a sponsor ever since. ECU's Beta Kappa chapter has always been in the top ten chapters in the nation, and in recent years has often been number one among the 135 campus chapters throughout the U.S.

Dr. Dempsey is also active in professional circles. She has published articles in three major business education journals, and her "Transcription Home WORKbook," a shorthand manual, has been through two editions in the last 12 years.

Because of her outstanding contributions to business education, she is cited in Who's Who in American Education, Who's Who of American Women and in six other directories.

In addition to her undergraduate and graduate degrees from the University of Northern Colorado, Dr. Dempsey has a diploma from Gregg College in Chicago, where she studied shorthand with John Robert Gregg, originator of the modern Gregg system of shorthand. And while maintaining a full-time position on the ECU faculty, she has been visiting lecturer at colleges in Washington and Kansas.

Her achievements have frequently been recognized with honors from professional organizations and student groups. In 1961 the national yearbook of Pi Omega Pi was dedicated to her as a living "symbol of the ideals" of the society. Last year she was her alma mater's Outstanding Woman Educator among the honored alumni.

Audrey Virginia Dempsey was born in Greeley, Colo., the daughter of Pennsylvanians. Greeley, a city with a current population of about 40,000, was founded by the agricultural editor of Horace Greeley's New York Tribune and began as a colony of Easterners who literally followed Greeley's famous exhortation to "Go West."

Though higher education for women was uncommon in her youth, she and her two sisters, as well as her brother, attended college.

"Our father particularly encouraged us to pursue higher education," she recalls. "He gave us all the support we needed."

Despite the demands of her profession, Dr. Dempsey has kept interests outside the classroom. She has traveled extensively through North America, visiting Canada, Mexico, and every state in the Union except Alaska, Hawaii and some of the New England states. Her plans for retirement include tours through the countries of Europe.

Traveling has provided various opportunities for adding to her notable collection of butterfly brooches. The collection began when she acquired an heirloom butterfly pin set with garnets which had belonged to her mother.

This pin, and a gift brooch with real butterfly wings encased in silver, are the featured items in her collection of more than a hundred brooches.

But her real love, besides teaching, is needlework.

Dr. Dempsey is an expert in crewel embroidery and needlepoint, and estimates that she spent about 4,400 hours embroidering enough crewel work to upholster two Queen Anne wing chairs, a four-panel folding screen and several long draperies.

One of her sisters, an advertising journalist in Colorado, worked out the designs and she did the sewing. Her other accomplishments in needlecraft include a number of cross-stitch samplers and some needlepoint chair seat covers.

"My interest in needlework began at five years of age, when I did cross-stitch embroidery on checked gingham," she noted. "I have really been doing needlework since I knew which end of the needle the thread goes through."

"Skill is not the only requirement for success in this kind of work; you need plenty of patience. You have to be able to work for several hours and regard a few square inches of completed embroidery as an accomplishment."

Her grasp of the finer points of needlecraft is in some measure due to a correspondence study from the Nantucket School of Needlework. She is also a member of the North Carolina Embroiderers' Guild.

Her major pieces of embroidery are at her family home back in Colorado, where she plans to reside upon retirement.

Reminiscing about her first years in Greenville, Dr. Dempsey recalls that during World War II, East Carolina had only 40 male students.

Social life hinged on the influx of soldiers from the nearby camps. We had campus dances on Friday and Saturday nights, which drew numbers of the GI's stationed in eastern North Carolina.

"Wartime rationing did not greatly affect the food served in the campus dining hall, but gasoline rationing caused our students to stay on campus when they otherwise would have gone home for weekend or holiday visits. So the students made their own leisure recreation here."

Campus activity during the 40's included a good deal of war work, she remembers. "Both students and faculty members rolled bandages for the Red Cross in the basement of Old Austin Building."

Dr. Dempsey attributes much of East Carolina's present diversity to the rapid admission of male veterans after the war. To meet the educational needs of a varied student body, more degree programs were added to the available curriculum.

Business education at ECU has undergone great developments. From a program of courses in typing, shorthand, accounting and some work with business machines, the curriculum now includes data processing, advanced dictation, office practice laboratory work, and courses in the operation of highly complex electronic machines.

Dr. Dempsey's students have become teachers and office professionals. A number of them have taken and passed the qualifying examinations for the title Certified Public Secretary, which is for secretaries what the title CPA is for accountants.

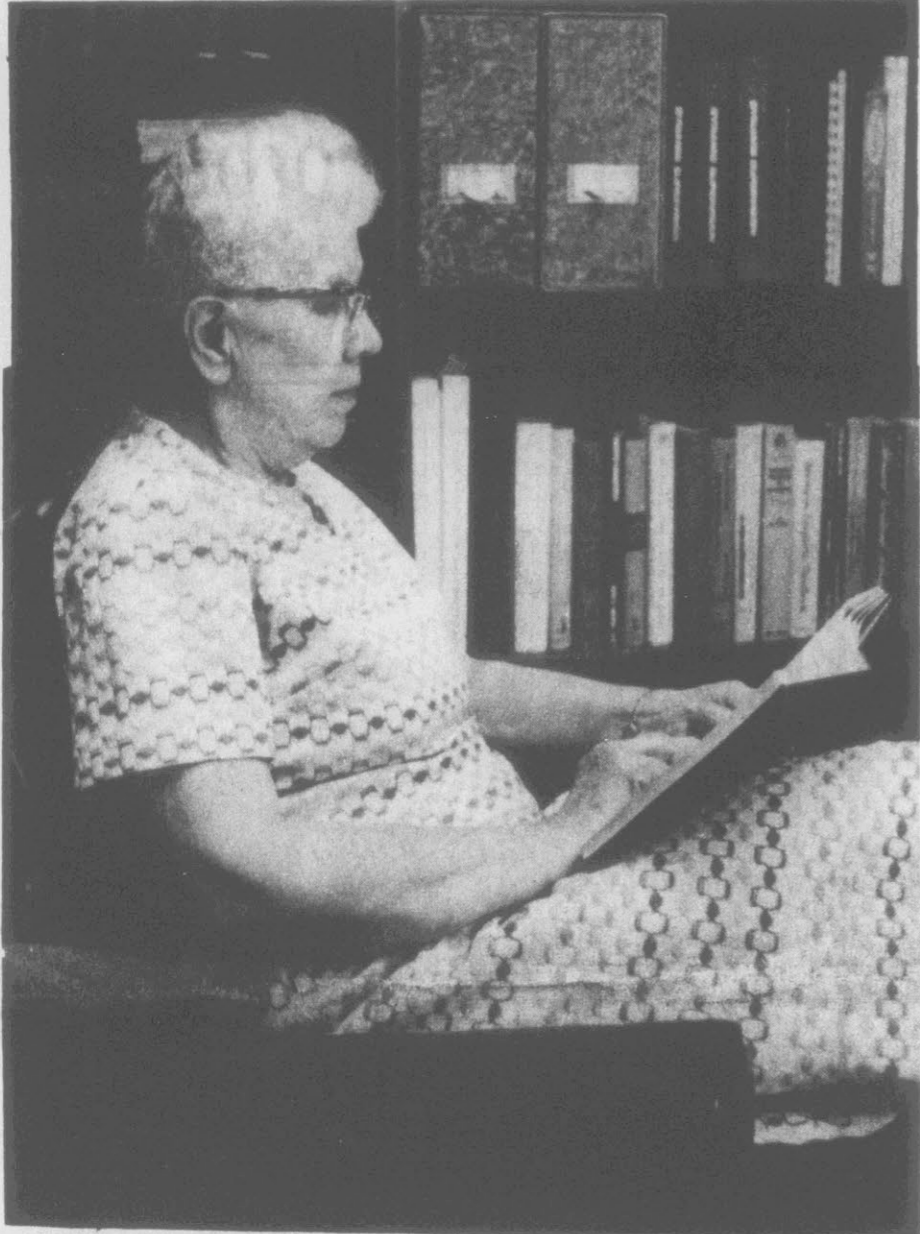

Since she has served on the Institute for Certifying Secretaries, Dr. Dempsey can personally vouch for the high standard of CPS requirements.

"The philosophy of office practice has become more complex along with the machines we use," she said. "I try to motivate my students to achieve more."

"My belief is that students will do what they are expected to do. If the standards are high enough, an instructor can accomplish anything."

"I once heard Dr. Jenkins, (Chancellor Leo W. Jenkins) tell a faculty conference that 'all students are teachable; it is up to you, the instructor, to make them learn.' This is the challenge that those of us who teach college students must try to accept."

DR. AUDREY DEMPSEY, is chairman of the ECU Department of Business Education and Office Administration she was instrumental in developing. (ECU News Bureau Photo by Marianne Baines)

Turning On To Learning Is P-VAC's Purpose

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
P-VAC is a special project within the Greenville City Schools designed to turn disinterested students on to learning, says Mrs. Ann Harrison, who directs the program.

Sixty-four Aycock Junior High School were selected each semester this year to participate in the Pre-Vocational Adjustment Center, which includes many "hands-on" projects than the ordinary junior high school curriculum, plus incentive-teaching in related academic and vocational fields.

Thirty-two each morning and 32 each afternoon leave their regular classes at Aycock School and are bussed to the P-VAC class area at Third Street School.

Each student is given a computer card. As he goes through the class routine, he is given scores on each phase of his response to the program. Good behavior on the bus rates so many points, as does being in his place and ready to work when the class begins.

All academic work is related to the "hands-on" work he is doing during any particular period. The student is given a certain length of time to his work, whether it's in language arts or mathematics or whatever field, and he gains so many points for doing it well. Bonus points may be earned by doing extra projects after the regular work is completed.

Points for each student are computed each day at the East Carolina University Computer Center. Thus, teachers have an accurate up-to-date record, not only of the academic progress of each student, but also of his behavioral changes.

Job-Related

The curriculum is occupationally oriented. "We have 16 occupational clusters during the semester," Mrs. Harrison said. "Thus, along with the academic knowledge needed in a certain area, we hope to give the students some of the skills needed for the jobs to acquaint them with the duties involved, as well as with the opportunities in the community in each field."

"For example, recently we studied consumer homemaking and construction. We studied costs and words related to this field, learned to identify tools, learned about measuring, and visited a mobile home lot and the Industrial Arts Department of East Carolina University. A.B. Whitley came and showed us a film on house painting, and we shampooed rugs, made pillows and picture frames, and studied the basic rules of furniture selection."

"Each student was asked to research one particular job within the homemaking and home construction cluster that he or she found appealing."

"Every Wednesday is reserved for field trips,

More Freedom

"There is much more freedom in this program than there is in the regular classroom," she said. "The child has to show that he can be responsible. Achievement has to be earned. There is no passing along with the class, because everything is done on an individual basis. We don't suspend anybody. We use no physical punishment, though we do use isolation at times."

"Our point system is the reason we don't need too much negative reinforcement. The points really mean something. At our class store, each point is worth five cents. Now admittedly, our prices are greatly inflated, but the students can use their points to purchase refreshments, grooming items, jewelry, and knitting, crochet, and macrame supplies."

"Also, we foster competition by dividing the groups into teams and having them vie for the most overall points each week."

Ask To Join

Students in this year's program were referred mostly by teachers, but as many as 59 students asked themselves to be in next year's program, according to Miss Ann Bennett, director of the Aycock Learning Center, which screens for the program. "We entered these volunteers' names along with names given us by teachers and now are developing next year's list," Miss Bennett said. "We do all the pre- and post-testing on the project here at the Learning Center. The post-testing is just beginning and will be used to measure the progress of the students both in skills and attitudes."

"We must have this measurement of progress because the program is being federally funded for three years as an 'innovative and experimental project,'" Mrs. Harrison said.

"We feel encouraged about its ultimate success, though, because we can see the improvement in our students and the splendid support we have had from the Greenville community and from various departments at East Carolina University and other agencies.

"Our goal now is to try to develop some part-time jobs for these students, so they can benefit themselves and their families, as well as see tangible results of their learning here," she said.

Springtime Recipe For Italian Fritters

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

When it's springtime in Italy cooks are likely to make yeast fritters that hail from Milan. For grownups the fritters may be served with coffee or muscatel; for youngsters the fritters may be offered with milk or hot chocolate. Sprinkled with powdered sugar and served warm, these fritters have a breadlike texture that's chewy. They remind us of a Georgia specialty called, of all things, Tough Bread!

MILANESE FRITTERS
4 cups unsifted flour
1-3rd cup sugar
2 packages active dry yeast
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind

1 cup milk
1/2 cup water
2 eggs, at room temperature
1 teaspoon rum extract
Peanut oil
Confectioners' sugar

In a large mixing bowl thoroughly stir together 1 and 1-3 cups flour, sugar, undissolved yeast and grated lemon rind.

In a small saucepan over low heat, heat the milk and water until warm. Gradually add to flour mixture and at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally, beat for 2 minutes, add eggs, rum extract and 1/2 cup flour or enough flour to make a thick batter. Beat at high speed, scraping bowl occasionally, for 2 minutes. Stir in enough additional flour to make a stiff batter. Cover and let stand at room temperature for 15 minutes.

meanwhile in a large heavy pot, heat peanut oil (enough for deep-fat frying) to 375 degrees. Stir batter before using. Drop by heaping tablespoonfuls into hot oil and fry until golden-brown on both sides — about 3 minutes. Drain on absorbent paper.

Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar and serve warm. Makes 3 dozen.

400 recipes are given in the illustrated "Cecily Brownstone's Associated Press Cookbook" available by sending $4.95 (check or money order made payable to "The Associated Press") to this newspaper in care of AP COOKBOOK, Box G4, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.

Use Psychology And Arithmetic

we invited from our side, we couldn't all get into the church. This whole thing is making me very nervous. Please send me some advice before I elope and settle the matter.
NERVOUS BRIDE

DEAR NERVOUS: Use a little psychology and suggest that your mother use a little arithmetic! How many people will the church accommodate? The groom's side is entitled to half those seats. Naturally, the "immediate" relatives are on the top of the list. Lop off the list at the bottom. Now, wasn't that simple?

DEAR ABBY: I am beginning to plan my wedding. Mother and I disagree on the list of wedding guests.

Mother says I must ask all my aunts, uncles, and cousins. This includes all my PARENTS' aunts, uncles, and cousins, too. And all their children! I could stumble over most of my parents' aunts, uncles, and cousins and not even know them. Why must I ask them to my wedding?

It is a small church and I have to consider the groom's family. If they were to invite as many from their side as DEAR ABBY: My brother and his wife have six lovely children. The three eldest are young men, all over 21. The other three are girls in their teens.

My sister in law reminds me of some kind of insect I have read about. They eat their young.

She is constantly subjecting her children to the third degree. She even demands to know exactly what was said and done when any of her adult sons have been in the company of a female from 14 to 70 years of age. She goes thru their mail, wallets, purses, and she even listens in on their telephone conversations. [She brags about it.]

Don't say her husband should take a stand. He is afraid to open his mouth to her.

It is painful for me to see this possessive and dominating woman emasculate her sons and drive her daughters away from her. Is there anything I can do?
CONCERNED UNCLE

DEAR UNCLE: If she won't listen to her husband, she won't listen to you. But do offer your friendship and understanding to your nieces and nephews. They need someone they can trust and respect.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

Men, Again, Entering Nursing Field

By AP NEWSFEATURES
NEW YORK (AP) — When most people think of the stars of the nursing profession they think of Florence Nightingale.

School of Nursing in New York City, the experimental nursing program trains such safety personnel for a second career after retirement.

The American Journal of Care Practitioners was suggested as a new title for nurses and School of Health Care Practice was the name suggested for schools of nursing.

Few recall that during the Crusades of the 11th century, the celebrated knights of the Middle Ages banded together in military nursing orders to build hospitals to care for the sick and wounded.

Somewhere along the line, they released their foothold and nursing became a women's profession.

But times are again changing. Men see nursing as a new frontier profession. Enrollment in schools of nursing across the country reflect this new attitude. Such schools and professional associations are recruiting men on a massive scale, pointing out veterans' benefits for education and scholarship assistance.

In 1953, total male enrollment in nursing schools in Ohio was 18. In 1971, the fall enrollment in just one according to the National Student Nurses Association.

Shortages of nurses in hospitals across the country is one factor in the increase of men in student nursing programs.

Former military medical corpsmen are being hired by hospitals to supplement professional nursing staff and encouraged to continue their training to enter the nursing field.

Many men in safety professions, such as police and firemen, are studying in evenings. At Hunter College-Bellevue

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

The observance of Women's Awareness Week will begin Monday at East Carolina University and will be highlighted by several events.

The four days of WAW is being sponsored by the Women's Residence Council in conjunction with Panhellenic, Angel Flight, Gamma Sigma Sigma service sorority, Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority, faculty and staff.

The WAW is not an outgrowth of the Women's Liberation Movement and is in on way political. It is a focus on the contributions, changing status, education and new horizons for the women of North Carolina and the United States.

A panel discussion by active women in the community, on how and why women become active in community leadership has been set for Monday at 8 p.m. in room 201, Wright Building.

Participants will be Betty Speir, Governor's Commission on the Status of Women, Millie McGrath, Greenville city councilwoman, Myra Cain, League of Women Voters, and Fanny Jackson, Meadowbrook Daycare Center director.

Greenville attorneys Deborah Henderson and Nelson Crisp will lead a discussion on the "Legal Rights of Women" beginning at 2 pm. Tuesday in the Sociology Building Auditorium.

A show of synchronized swimming and water ballet will be given by the Aquanymphs at 8 p.m. at the Memorial Gym pool.

Dr. David Knox will speak Wednesday at 2 p.m. in the Biology Building Auditorium on "Marriage and Its Alternatives," and for the banquet at 6 p.m., Dean Diane Del Pizzo of Queen's College, Charlotte, will give an address.

The activities will be concluded Thursday at noon with the WAW Wind-Up Rally.

A Greenville student, Debra Ann Stancill, flew to Spain several days ago with 30 other N.C. Wesleyan College students to participate in a special four-week May Term study project.

The tour climaxes a year-long classroom study of Western civilization which includes political, literary, economic, religious, artistic and historical examination. This year's emphasis was on Latin Europe and culminates the study tour to Spain, Italy, France and Switzerland during May Term.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.R. Stancill, of Rt. 4, Debra is a freshman at Wesleyan. She is a member of the Wesleyan Singers and Chi Beta Phi, science fraternity.

Pilgrimage Plans Are Finalized

The St. Peter's Woman's Club held its final meeting for the season Wednesday evening.

Final preparations were made by Miss Ada Jones regarding the pilgrimage to the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, Washington, D. C. The bus will leave on Friday, May 11, between 5-5:30 p.m.

Mrs. Yvonne Kiernan, president, reminded the members of the annual spring church picnic to be held Sunday, June 3, with a rain date of June 10. All parishioners are to bring a covered dish.

The women signed "The Human Life Amendment," a petition in protest of abortion.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Lud Sherwood, Mrs. Fanny Flower and Mrs. Jill Valerio. A "May flowers" theme was carried out in decorations.

Regional Conference Held For Registered Nurses

A regional conference for the campus of East Carolina registration nurses in North University, Carolina was held Thursday on . . . The conference was one of three held throughout the state and was conducted to explore the NCSNA survey results and to formulate guidelines for future action.

Registered nurses in N.C. participated in a 1971-72 survey conducted by the NCSNA to find out their continuing education needs, interest in formal education problems encountered in obtaining desired education, feelings about their practice and what their professional association should be doing for nursing.

The sessions were planned by Dr. Eloise Lewis and Audrey Booth, co-chairmen of the "Operation Input" Steering Committee, Rose George, project co-investigator, Mrs. Doris Taylor, president of District Two, Mrs. Betty Pikula, president of District Three, and Phyllis Nichols, president of District 30.

Beginning at 10 a.m., the welcome was given by the host district president, Phyllis Nichols. Topics discussed were "What 'Operation Input' Is All About" led by Audrey Booth and "What 'Operation Input' Told Us—An Overview" led by Rose George.

Group sessions during the afternoon included: Continuing Education; Degree Oriented Education; and Priorities for NCSNA.

Partnership Agreement Prior To The Wedding

SEATTLE (AP) — On the day after Thanksgiving, Harvey Sadis and Harriett Cody signed a partnership agreement — that is, a contract to become partners in marriage.

It calls for separate bank accounts, independent management and control of all financial assets and a division of space in a large old frame house they're buying.

Birth control is listed as a mutual obligation and an unwanted pregnancy as unacceptable.

To resolve serious conflicts, a third-party mediator is specified. And the entire 10-article document is subject to amendment and mandatory reevaluation each year.

Sadis, 26, a schoolteacher, and Cody, a 27-year-old law student at the University of Puget Sound, say it took six months of negotiations to work out the contract.

"It's not a guarantee of anything. We recognize that," she said. "The pledges made in the contract call for emotional support and mutual consent to share household tasks, make independent friendships, pursue our separate careers and even live apart if necessary."

"But we wanted to go through a process whereby our expectations were articulated. We didn't want marriage to be a big crisis experience.

"I used to throw up my hands and say permanent relationships never work out," she said. "But that's just a cop out."

They admit it was a difficult task. Sadis is Jewish, the first man in his family to marry outside the faith. Cody is Protestant. Their contract allows Harvey to practice his religion and Harriett to remain non-Jewish.

He says he wants children. She says she doesn't want to become a mother yet. The contract declares the partners will not be "unfulfilled if they choose not to have children."

Luverne Reike, a family law specialist at the University of Washington Law School and head of the State Judicial Council, says most provisions of the document will stand up in court.

Ironically, he said, one provision which appeared invalid would permit dissolution of the marriage under certain conditions and determine how property would be assigned. "Only the judge may decide the interpretation of the legal grounds for divorce," Reike said.

Lasting Quality In Church Name

JUST FOR LOOKS
 SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — Most business executives who carry home attache cases are just trying to impress you, according to a survey conducted by the University of New South Wales.

The survey said 66 per cent of the executives who take home the impressive looking cases never open them.

ROME (UPI) — Names in Italy seem to have a lasting quality.

A Rome church built in 1577 is still known popularly as the Chiesa Nuova (New Church). Turin's "New Jail" dates from 1857.

Skylab, Mankind's Bridge To The Future In Space

By AL ROSSITER JR.
UPI Science Writer
CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — Take a three bedroom apartment and a multi-purpose laboratory, put them inside a huge rocket fuel tank, add an observatory and provisions for three men for 20 weeks and you have America's soon-to-be-launched Skylab space station.

to work for man on Earth. The 168,578-pound assembly, fashioned out of a Saturn rocket stage, is set for launch into orbit around Earth at 1:30 P.M. EDT Monday, May 14, to open America's fourth man-in-space project.

Skylab over the next eight months will house three crews of three men each. The first three astronauts will stay up a record 28 days and the next two crews each will occupy the orbiting lab 56 days, and possibly longer on the final mission.

Medical Area
The current space endurance record is held by three Soyuz 11 Soviet cosmonauts who died because of a hatch leak after nearly 24 days in orbit two years ago.

The two-level Skylab is much larger than the Salyut that the cosmonauts occupied, and the American lab is more like a ship than a spacecraft. It has three little bedrooms, a ward room complete with freezers, and food heaters, a bathroom, a well-equipped medical area and barn-like work areas.

Skylab will be launched with stores for 420 man days of spaceflight. There are more than 20,000 items on the inventory, including 2,100 pounds of canned, frozen and dried food, 1,200 aspirin, 199 T-shirts, four decks of playing cards, 150 rolls of teleprinter paper and 60 pounds of tools.

The food will be better than Americans have ever had in space. Included on the menu are such favorites as filet mignon, lobster Newburg, roast beef, spaghetti and even strawberries and ice cream.

States and 75 per cent of the world's surface. The space station is so big, 118 feet long and 90 feet wide, that at sunrise and sunset it will resemble a large star streaking southeast or northeast.

The object of the Skylab project is to see if man can withstand the peculiarities of weightless space for long periods and to experiment with a broad variety of practical applications to see what he can do in orbit that he can't on Earth.

of man," said Dr. Charles A. Berry, NASA's chief of life sciences.

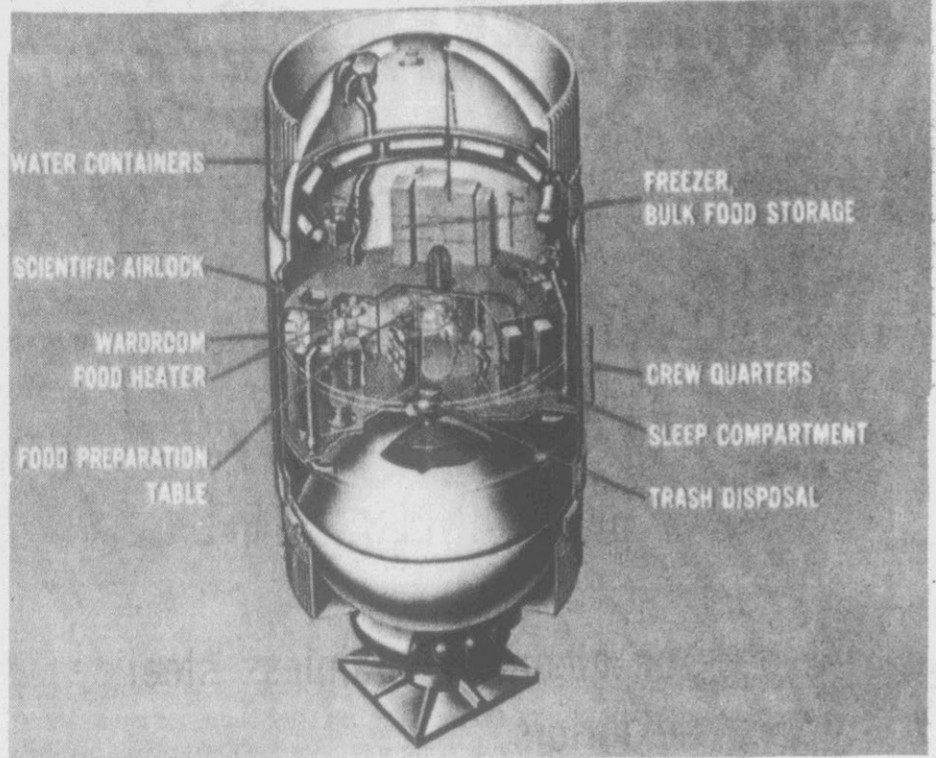

Berry has watched U.S. astronauts increase their exposure to the lack of gravity from five minutes to 14 days without serious difficulty and he personally doesn't agree with most of the doubts that have been raised in this country and abroad. But he said "We do have some serious questions and we need data to prove it."

A similar loss of bone material is seen in patients on earth who spend long periods in bed.

"I wonder about the bones," Kerwin said. "I cannot make a valid argument to myself why the bones should not continue losing calcium for quite a long period of time." Doctors fear that a steady calcium loss for many months would weaken bones to the extent that they might eventually break under strains they normally could withstand.

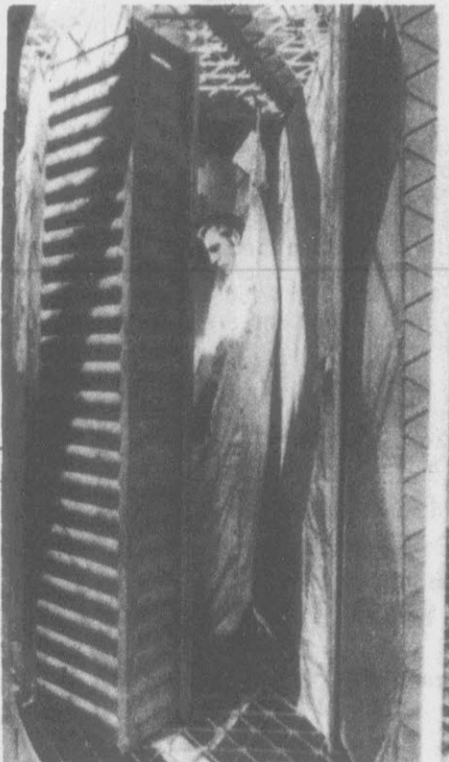

knowledge," Conrad said. "Some day we should be routinely using space as we use the air today to fly airplanes and get people around and do various things."

Skylab's solar studies are primarily basic research, but even they may have a practical payoff. Some of the solar phenomena physicists are most interested in are the occasional great outbursts of radiation that affect Earth's weather, disrupt radio communications and sometimes event result in electromagnetic disturbances that cause power blackouts.

CONVENIENCES — The bicycle type exerciser and sleeping bag hung vertically on a wall, will be provided

Skylab astronauts who are scheduled to orbit the Earth for eight months. (UPI Telephoto)

Serve as Ferry
Veteran moon pilot Charles "Pete" Conrad, 42, Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin, 41-year-old physician, and Paul J. Weitz, 40, an aeronautical engineer, will visit Skylab first. They are scheduled to take off at 1 P.M. May 15, a day after the lab is launched, and fly a modified Apollo command ship to a rendezvous and hook up with Skylab 7 hours and 40 minutes later.

The Apollo will serve as a ferry for Skylab. The command ship, almost identical to those that shuttled men to and from the moon, will remain docked to Skylab for 28 days. Then Conrad, Kerwin and Weitz will return to earth in the Apollo, leaving Skylab in orbit to be visited by the next crew two months later.

Alan L. Bean, who flew to the moon with Conrad on Apollo 12, will command the second Skylab mission, set to start Aug. 8. He will be accompanied by Dr. Owen K. Garriott, an electrical engineer, and Jack R. Lousma, an aeronautical engineer.

The third crew, to be launched Nov. 9 to spend 56 days in orbit, will be commanded by Gerald P. Carr, an aeronautical engineer who has not yet flown in space. His crewmen also are both rookies — Dr. Edward G. Gibson, a physicist, and William R. Pogue, who has a master's degree in mathematics.

Five Miles a Second
Skylab will circle earth at 5 miles a second in a 270-mile high orbit canted 50 degrees to the Equator. That path will take it farther north and south, 3,450 miles in each direction, than any American manned spaceship and will come very close to the tracks followed by Soviet manned spaceships.

During its eight months of service, Skylab will crisscross every section of the United States and 75 per cent of the world's surface. The space station is so big, 118 feet long and 90 feet wide, that at sunrise and sunset it will resemble a large star streaking southeast or northeast.

Bridge to Future
"We believe that there is only one way to learn about man's capabilities in space, and that is to let him live and work in space on real tasks, on tasks that are of first importance to him and his colleagues back on Earth," said associate NASA administrator George M. Low.

"Skylab is a bridge to the future," said program director William C. Schneider. It is the first step toward large, semi-permanent space stations that NASA expects someday will house dozens of scientists and engineers, perhaps of different nationalities, for months at a time. Such orbiting platforms will be serviced by winged shuttle ships, like ferry boats supply islands at sea.

The space planners envision such man-made islands in space to exploit the uniqueness of space for a wide variety of applications and eventually to serve as way stations for flights to the moon and planets.

Weather Stations
Among the jobs foreseen now for space stations are manufacturing plants for goods that can't be made in earth's gravity—such as perfect ball bearings, foam steel and some vaccines. Planners also expect such manned orbiting platforms to serve as astronomical observatories, weather watching stations, research labs and the like.

But before such dreams can be made a reality, scientists must prove that man can live in weightless space for long periods without harmful physiological effects.

"I think it's important for us to realize that we have real questions about the limitations of man," said Dr. Charles A. Berry, NASA's chief of life sciences.

Berry has watched U.S. astronauts increase their exposure to the lack of gravity from five minutes to 14 days without serious difficulty and he personally doesn't agree with most of the doubts that have been raised in this country and abroad. But he said "We do have some serious questions and we need data to prove it."

Seventeen different medical experiments will be conducted aboard Skylab during the 20 weeks it is manned, to monitor its pilots and see how their bodies are affected by weightlessness. The space station is equipped as well as—or better than—a general practitioner's office on earth and doctors on the ground will be able to watch the astronauts' condition daily.

There are two particularly important pieces of medical gear aboard Skylab. One is a cylindrical chamber that simulates the effects of gravity on the body's circulatory system by reducing the oxygen pressure on the lower part of the body. The effect is the same as it is on earth when one suddenly stands after a period of rest.

Heart Rate
The other is a bicycle exerciser and associated electronic equipment to measure a crewman's heart rate and oxygen consumption for a given amount of work. Kerwin said the bicycle will let doctors see how well men can work, peddling the stationary bike, after living in weightless space at different intervals.

"If he quits early, is it because his legs got too tired? That's a mechanical problem most likely because it's harder to ride a bike up there than it is on the ground," Kerwin said in an interview. "Or does he quit because he's exhausted, with a high heart rate and a high blood pressure? That's a different story. You really have to think about that."

Kerwin said his biggest concern was not the heart, but the loss of calcium that apparently occurs for some reason when the body is exposed to the lack of gravity.

Corning has solved the great meal robbery!

Did you ever have a special meal stolen right in front of your eyes? In spite of the double boiler, a Hollandaise sauce mysteriously curdled. Or a boeuf Bourguignonne scorched. Or a puffy omelette fell flat on its face.

Now Corning has the smoothtop Gourmet Counterange™ electric range or The Counter That Cooks® cooktop to help.

The secret is precise heat control.

Your first clue is the beautiful Cookmates® cookware with smooth bottoms to sit flat on the cooking surface. Then you'll discover continuous heat settings from "LO" to "HI." What you can't see are the thermostatic sensors beneath each cooking area that pot-watch for you. They keep the heat precisely where you set it. Just like your oven thermostat maintains the oven temperature.

Speaking of ovens, our range has the pyrolytic (high-heat) self-cleaning feature which gets the oven thoroughly clean. All you do is turn two knobs. Other controls let you start and stop cooking even if you're busy elsewhere. And the oven is large; three 8" cakepans can fit on one rack.

Don't take chances with your great meals. Get cooking with a Corning range or cooktop today.

Between Us

Parents Must Adjust To The Adolescent Period

By DR. HAIM GINOTT guide to improved communication. Note to readers: The encounters depicted in my column are taken literally. They should be designed to serve as a practical adapted to individual situations and individual ways of speaking.

THE ADOLESCENCE of their children is a difficult period for parents. In many homes, parents and teenagers engage in daily skirmishes. Life becomes a series of irritations, with quarrels and quibbles poisoning the atmosphere. This column describes conditions which diminish friction between parent and teenager.

IN THIS INCIDENT, for example, a mother's competence and good will averted what could have been an explosive problem:

Bob, 17, was watching TV. Suddenly, he jumped up and shouted angrily, "Hey, Mom, why didn't you tell me it was three o'clock? NOW I'm late for my appointment? Why didn't you change before you sat down to watch TV? Don't you dare go out looking like that!" And other such remarks.

But Mother remembered: In a crisis, don't teach, help! Mother said, "Would you like me to phone your friend and tell her you will be a little late in arriving?" Would you?" answered Bob, in surprise. Mother did. The crisis was over.

Mother related, "This incident contained enough dynamite to cause a real blow-up. It was my skill and good will that saved the situation."

JOEL, 15, STORMED home from school, complaining, "I hate school."

Mother: Ohhh. Joel: Yes. I have the worst teachers in school. I have two hours of homework in each subject.

Mother: And this just the first week of school!

Joel: Yeah. None of the teachers know what the other teachers give. I have to prepare a talk in social studies, and another one in speech.

Mother nodded her head sympathetically. Joel went to the kitchen for a drink. When he returned he said: "Hey, Mom, do you want to hear my talk on Pygmies?"

He proceeded to give a well-prepared lecture on the subject.

Mother related: "Before I acquired competence in communication, I would have turned this brief incident into a three-act drama. I'd have lectured my son about the importance of school work, I'd have told him, for the thousandth time, how hard I worked in high school and reminded him how many children his age—in Asia and Africa—would gladly change places with him. He would have gotten involved, and had his say. The whole afternoon and evening would have been ruined.

Now I see my role differently: I LISTEN ATTENTIVELY AND COMMENT BRIEFLY. INDICATING THAT I understand his predicament. Above all, I refrain from giving unsolicited advice. My respectful understanding of my son's condition encourages him to cope with his problems and come up with solutions."

HERE IS another example, where a mother's statement of understanding of her daughter's inner feeling put an end to her bad mood and won her cooperation:

Pat, 14, her younger sisters and Mother went to the local swimming pool. None of Pat's friends was at the pool. She was so disappointed that she didn't even go into the water. She sat next to Mother, disgruntled and grouchy.

Her sisters kept asking her to swim with them but she refused adamantly.

Mother was tempted to rebuke. Instead, she spoke to her sisters. "Pat's friends aren't here and she's disappointed and wishes she'd stayed home. I wish it weren't so far. I'd take her home."

Mother related: "It was as if I waved a magic wand. Pat went into the pool to swim with her sisters."

Bob unjustly blames Mom; she offers no defense, she offers to help.

Set Record In Flying A Kite

By PATRICK A. MALONE KANSAS CITY, Kan. (UPI) — What prompts two husky young brothers to spend their evenings standing on a hill energetically letting out string to a kite they can't even see?

World records, for one. And fresh air, arm exercise, and just a good, cheap hobby.

There aren't many other activities that, with a 59-cent investment plus a little time and perseverance, can earn you a place, however small, in the record books, says John Settich.

Settich, 26, and his brother, Rob 24, tossed a box kite into the air on a recent Friday evening. Two and a half hours later, they had played out 10½ miles of special polyester string. The string finally snapped; the kite was lost, but John and Rob Settich had something to write to the Guinness Book of World Records about.

Ten and a half miles is probably more than Charlie Brown's famous kite-eating tree has ever seen, much less snagged. How did the Settiches do it? Here, for aspiring long-distance kite fliers, are a few tips.

—Shun all diamonds and their various modifications. Box kites are what you want.

—Reinforce the kite and varnish it, so going through a cloud won't make it fall into tatters. The Settiches are vague on exactly how to reinforce the kite and what to paint it with.

—"We can't give everything away." John said with a grin. "We have to protect the record."

—Go down the list of local twine dealers until you find one who carries extra-large spools. The Settiches found that polyester was strong and light. The fewer knots you have to tie, the stronger your line will be.

—Wear gloves, which you may want to coat with paraffin to cut friction.

—The Settiches found that truly memorable flights are a two-man effort. The night they set the record, one actually flew the kite and the other tended the string. John said, "It's just flying by the seat of your pants. It's really important how you tend the string. Too much slack and it will develop a snap, and many times the string will break. The tension will regulate the altitude and the distance, but it's pretty much by feel. There aren't any set rules."

"Once you're up to about 500 feet, you'll be above surface winds and into prevailing winds, so it won't be quite so erratic."

Rob said, "We like to look on it as a art, not a science. Even when you're not going for a record, it's just a lot of fun to go out and put it up and have a good time."

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are likely to feel that others are imposing upon you today, but if you make up your mind you can use this day to be helpful to others. You are able to see things in a cheerful light and can aid those in distress.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Matters at home need your full attention so that more harmony can reign there in the future. Handle important matters wisely and improve conditions considerably. Show that you have poise.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Attend the services you like and much benefit can come from this State your views and ideas to others. Late afternoon is fine for visiting old friends and relatives. Relax tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan how you can add to what you have in the bank now and get out of that insure feeling. Listen to good suggestions from one who is an expert in business. Don't forget someone's birthday.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Instead of concentrating so much on yourself, get out and be with persons you like and brighten up your life. First, get your appearance at its best. Don't be too talkative.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Become better prepared for the future by analyzing the plans you already have working and know where to make improvements on such. Try to cheer up your mate more. Show that you really care.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Contact those friends you have neglected lately and much good can come of this. Join an interesting group that is very friendly. A fine exchange of conversation can bring good results.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Strive to have more prestige in the future by contacting bigwigs for advice and support you need. Take active part in philanthropic work and feel fulfilled. Attend the social tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Find the right lofty outlets through which to express yourself in the future. Make contacts with experts for best results. The evening is best spend entertaining friends and kin at home.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Listening to what others have to say brings you more respect in the days ahead. Follow your hunches since they are good now. Don't disappoint your mate who is expecting a great deal from you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Discussing a misunderstanding with a friend and cementing far better relations is fine today. Use reason. Later go to the amusements you enjoy. Try not to spend too much money.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Although you may be busy, be sure you do something very nice for one who has always been loyal and helpful to you. Get your wardrobe ready so you can be well dressed in the days ahead.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Attend the recreations that are most delightful to you, and show mate a good time. Express that talent which you have almost forgotten about lately. Make new, worthwhile friends.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those fascinating young people who understands whatever is of an emotional nature and can help others with their problems. The education should be directed along such lines as psychiatry, psychology, nursing and medicine. Teach to think objectively. The fine smile here should be used more to charm others.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, MAY 7, 1973

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Daytime finds dramatic and unexpected situations developing that seem to make some major mistakes a reality, but if you take them in your stride, the evening finds all works out much more to your satisfaction. Don't commit self during day.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Associates can be somewhat trying to you in a.m., but later influential ones give you a big boost. Make sure you go through with decisions you reach during day. Ask advice of higher-ups in p.m.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) If you act hastily in a.m., you begin the new week improperly, but later a good friend can be most helpful to you. Day hours are not good for shopping, but marketing is fine later in day. Home is best bet tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't reach important financial decisions during day when you make big errors, but get advice from experts in early evening. Make arrangements to pay debts. Think constructively.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Conditions are hectic early in day, so don't handle important matters until later in day when all quiets down. See what you can do to increase your charm. Straighten surroundings.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You want to rush out of any limitations, but it requires careful and slow handling for best results now. Advice given you during day is not good, but tonight's suggestions are fine. Strive for more happiness.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't rely on friends during day since they are busy with own affairs. Tonight use your own good judgment. Be tactful; avoid one who is trying to outwit you in some way.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Curb your worldly activities now since others are apt to interfere with your progress, or criticize. Evening is fine for analyzing your position. Repair appliances. Work.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Plan to place yourself above the average in the near future, but don't put anything in action until tonight. You make new acquaintances, but wait awhile before making them your friends as you are too busy now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You make so many promises now that you can scarcely see how you can keep them all, but you will find that all works out well in time. Mate is in a bad mood, so ignore. By p.m. all is fine.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Try to understand the policies of your partners better and cooperate with them more. Don't argue with an expert, or you can get yourself into much trouble. Show more kindness to mate in p.m.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Put aside fun things and get at all that work that awaits your attention. Use more modern methods for best results. Take health treatments in p.m. Make sure they are the right ones.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Think over the activities that most appeal to you and get into them quickly, ironing out wrinkles. Show mate how truly devoted you are. Avoid one who is strong-willed and high-tempered.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those charming young people who will require much explanation of whatever you want him or her to do early in life; then it will be easy to do the work required in school and outside world. A highly sensitive individual here who requires careful handling. Merchandising is fine as a career, as well as whatever has to do with the emotions. The less strenuous sports are good.

Emergency 'Copter Flight Saves Twins

COLUMBIA, S. C.—Orville Lee McDaniel, originally of Winterville, and his wife, Ella Mae, have their infant twin daughters safely at home here because of an emergency Army helicopter flight to the Medical University of South Carolina, where baby Sheila's life was saved by heart surgery.

Sheila and Josie were born March 23 to the young couple, both graduated of the North Carolina School for the Deaf in Morganton. Josie was fine, but Sheila got bluer and bluer and finally was rushed to Richland Memorial Hospital, where it was recognized that she had a heart defect. Only surgery at the Medical University could save her life, the pediatrician, Dr. Thomas L. Austin said, and he arranged for the Army Air Ambulance Company at Fort Jackson to make the emergency trip.

At the Medical University, a procedure known as balloon atrial septostomy was performed. It corrected a transposition of the main arteries from the heart by creating a new channel to allow more blood with a higher oxygen content to flow to the body tissues. The procedure will allow Sheila to live until an age when further

SMALL PART

MENLO PARK, Calif. (UPI)—Even if all the lights in the United States were turned out, only about 1 to 1.5 per cent of the nation's energy consumption would be saved, says the Stanford Research Institute.

corrective heart surgery can be done, according to Dr. Arno R. Hohn, director of the Medical University's Division of Pediatric Cardiology.

See Longevity In The Apricot

NEW YORK (UPI)— Instead of searching for a "fountain" of youth perhaps Ponce De Leon ought to have hunted for an apricot orchard.

Some evidence exists that apricots have something to do with longevity. You can accept it as is—or with a grain or two of salt. Nevertheless, the apricot's link to longer life is found in Hunza.

This is a small, high-valleyed state in northwest Pakistan. It has what authorities consider an unusually high number of active 80, 90 and 100-year olds. All have eaten apricots, loaded with vitamin A, every day of their lives. Apricot trees are considered important enough to will to a loved one upon death.

Those who have been there say it is not uncommon to see an 80-year-old working side by side in the fields with 50 and 60-year-olds. Or playing volleyball, riding horseback or walking 10 miles a day.

Longevity First Noticed

The long life of the Hunzakuts was first noticed by Dr. Robert C. McCarrison, an English physician, in the 1920s. He was astounded to find the absence of diseases such as cancer, ulcers, heart conditions and tooth decay.

In a series of experiments he fed laboratory animals a Hunza diet and compared them to rats fed diets common in India, England and other countries. The Hunza diet won.

Apricots are a staple, eaten fresh during summer and dried for eating during winter. Juice made from soaked and squeezed dried apricots is used as a laxative.

Now here's where the grain of salt comes in: Important as the apricot is, it is only one key to long life spans in Hunzakutland. Isolated from the rest of the world, much like Shangri-La in James Hilton's "Lost Horizon," Hunza is almost immune from communicable diseases such as chicken pox, small pox, measles and venereal disease.

High Altitude Helps

The high altitude of the valley helps, too, in preventing heart disease. The thinner air promotes better lung development and increases the supply of blood to the heart.

Diet habits also are important. There is little salt and relatively no processed sugar available in Hunza. Combine this with a scarcity of meat and plenty of vegetables and fruit, and you have what modern science calls the ideal diet to prevent heart problems, water retention difficulties, arteriosclerosis and dental decay.

But that's not all. Even water contributes to Hunzakut health. It comes from glaciers on towering 20,000 foot peaks surrounding Hunza. It is cloudy and rich with mineral deposits. So what's that most important factor in the Hunzakut health equation? The elevation? The lack of urban tension? The diet, taken as a unit? Or apricots alone?

New Radar For Area Lawmen

WITH NEW RADAR. . . Winterville police chief W.E. Whitehurst and Richard Chadwick, director of the field division of the Office of Transportation Safety discuss new radar unit.

Speeders in three Pitt County municipalities and in the Greene county seat are facing new speed detection devices now, since the towns were given radar units as part of the Governor's Highway Safety Program.

New radar units were given to Greenville, Winterville, Grifton and Snow Hill at a meeting in Greenville Tuesday.

The new equipment has greater range and flexibility than older radar speed detection units.

It was given to the departments in an effort to help cut down on speeders in municipalities.

Presentation of the units to officials of the departments was made by Richard Chadwick, director of the field division of the Office of Transportation Safety, North Carolina Department of Transportation.

No Law Covers Bawdy Jeans

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Police can't do anything about obscene words and figures on blue jeans, if all the owner is doing is having them cleaned.

The aldermen's public safety committee was told by police attorney George Cleland that unless the obscenities were displayed in public, no law was being broken.

A dry cleaner brought a girl's jeans to the full Board of Aldermen. He complained that two patches sewn on the seat offended him. Could the city do something about it?

Cleland said the girl's "purpose was not to offend — her purpose was to get her jeans cleaned."

The dry cleaner cleaned the pants and gave them back to the owner.

Alumni Banquet Planned May 11

VANCEBORO — The Vanceboro Farm Life School Alumni Association will have its 53rd annual banquet and dance Friday, May 11, at 7 p.m. in the school cafeteria.

The program is being planned by Mrs. Ethleen Butler and Mrs. Patsy Townsend.

Special tables will be set up for the various graduating classes. Music for the dance, which will begin at 9 p.m., will be provided by the Castaways.

TV Notes

NEW YORK (UPI) — Six one-hour dramas based on the Book of Exodus will be presented next season on the CBS network, with Burt Lancaster cast in the role of Moses. The title of the series is "The Lawgiver," and it will be filmed in Israel and other areas in the Middle East.

The annual Coaches All-America Football Game will be telecast by ABC from Lubbock, Tex., at 8:30 p.m. Saturday, June 23. East and West seniors of the 1972 season play in the game.

Producer Norman Rosemont is preparing for NBC-TV a special musical version of Charles Dickens' novel, "Great Expectations." Plans call for production in Europe with an internationally famous cast. Mel Mandel and Norman Sachs will supply the songs.

Hollywood's Oscar Awards ceremonies will be seen for five years on the ABC network beginning in 1976. The network had the annual program for 10 years through 1970, then it was switched to NBC where it will continue through 1975.

Rose High Show Opens Thursday

New 'Oklahoma' Production Ready

Thirty years have passed since Oklahoma first burst upon the American scene, delighting a nation with its lilting tunes, and its captivating reenactment of a homespun story of the Midwest in the 19th century. The success story of Rodgers-Hammerstein musical was a happy diversion from the dark news in that crucial 1943 spring of World War II. Critics unanimously acclaimed Oklahoma as an American classic. This high praise has been justified in three decades that have seen Oklahoma become one of the most enduring musicals in American theater. On Thursday evening at 8:00 p.m., a new production of Oklahoma will open at Rose High School for a three day performance on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings.

will have an opportunity to delight their audiences in two outstanding dance numbers, "Out Of My Dreams" and a sprightly square dance based ballet, "Farmer and The Corn." The all-student cast is being directed by Mark Ramsey. Christina Williams is choreographer. Stephan Koch, music teacher for the city schools, is overall production supervisor, and will also conduct the Rose High band in providing orchestral support. This first attempt by Rose High School student to bring local music lovers a full scale production will be a good opportunity to renew acquaintance with "Oklahoma," or in the case of many younger people, to see this grand American musical for the first time. Tickets are now on sale at $1.50 for adults and $1.00 for students.

Don Franklin Schliez has the lead male role of Curley, the idol of Laurey, played by Terry Leggett. These two will be singing the unforgettable ballad of shy love, "People Will Say We're In Love." Other lead roles are Jud, with John Manning filling the villain's role; Jennifer Schaal as shrewd Aunt Ella; Marc Walter in the role of Will Parker; Charlene Vines as Ado Annie Carnes; and Mickey Terry as Ali Hakim. A supporting cast of some 60 high school boys and girls will be singing and dancing to the score, which contains favorites such as "Oh! What A Beautiful Morning," "Many A New Day," "Surrey With The Fringe On Top," and the rousing title song, "Oklahoma." The young student dancers production will be a good opportunity to renew acquaintance with "Oklahoma," or in the case of many younger people, to see this grand American musical for the first time. Tickets are now on sale at $1.50 for adults and $1.00 for students.

Graduate Thesis Exhibition On View

This year's annual Graduate Thesis Exhibition, on view at three places—Greenville Art Center, at the Kate Lewis Gallery in the Whitchard Building, ECU, and in front of the North Cafeteria on campus, is one with a strong showing by women artists.

Of this year's nine graduate students, six are women—five are receiving the masters degrees in painting, and one in crafts design. The three men are all sculpture majors.

Dean Leary's thesis sculpture on the strip of grass in front of the North Cafeteria has been in the public eye for several months. It has been something of a campus ritual to watch the transformation of the large limestone block into Leary's finished sculpture. Now that it's completed, it becomes obvious the work needs a better home with more open space to show it off effectively.

It's unfortunate that Annette Williams' paintings and Meredith S. Luck Jr.'s sculpture had only a few days to be on view at Kate Lewis Gallery. Miss Williams shows large sensuous paintings, in soft pastel colors—pale pinks, blues, greens, grays and ivories. In most of these paintings, fruits become billowy female forms (or vice versa). These are glorified landscapes of woman, bringing to mind ethereal qualities of Botticelli and the artfulness of Mae West.

Luck's sculptures, in particular the four of sturdy seasoned wood and black steel, are formal constructions of arresting beauty. In one, "Front Porch," vinyl cloth that looks like leather and small ropes are in harmony with wood and metal.

The third sculptor, Ron Williams, works with plywood, plexiglass and formica for three large constructions on view at the Art Center. Two of these are upright rectangular Totem like sculptures, with frosted glass covered openings through which a soft light is emitted from inside lighting. The design of the cut out spaces give the impression of illuminated music notes. "Anaphase II", a wall mounted horizontal construction, is reminiscent of a stylized butterfly minus that insect's patterning.

Eugenia Hibbs, the only crafts design major in the group, is exhibiting seven fine examples of dyed fabrics. Miss Hibbs uses the block print technique—batik, cut film silk screen, glue silk screen, tie-dye and gadget print. Basic materials are organdy, batiste, linen, velveteen, China silk and denim.

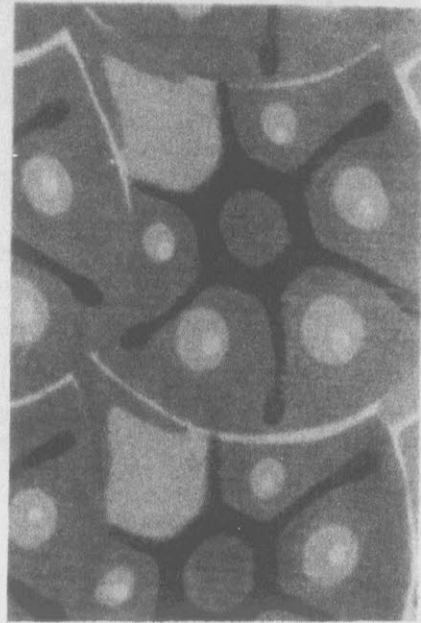

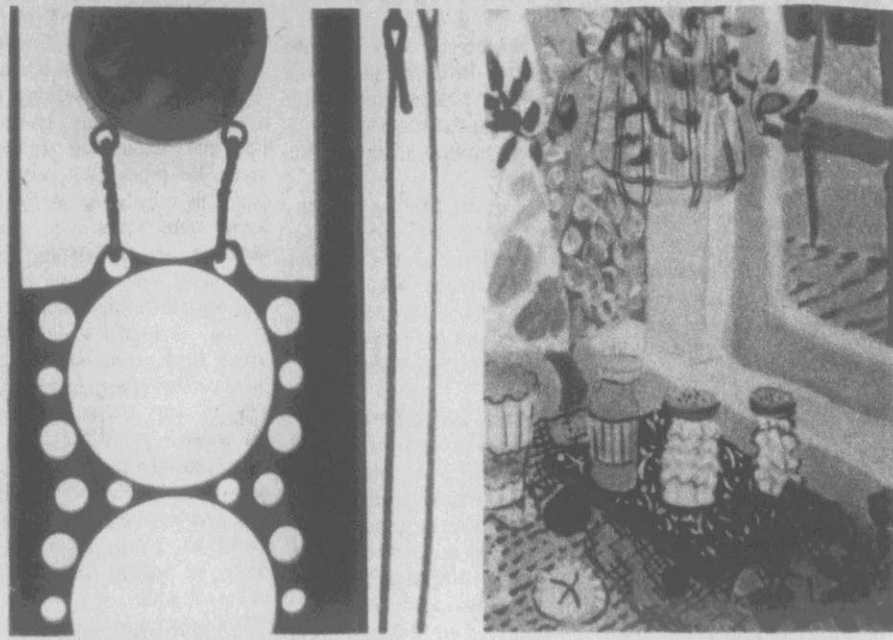

Of the quartet of women painters exhibiting at the Art Center, Sandy Smith's work summons a total evocation of summer. Her paintings, all of interiors, are filled with brilliantly colored objects. Each room becomes a landscape of furniture, brought to full flower in an implied flood of sunlight.

Jenny Barone's works are all a repetition on squares within squares, some hung separately, others displayed in clusters. These works are a play on colors—blue, green, red, orange-yellows. "Grays," the one painting in which Miss Barone leaves alternate strips of raw canvas exposed and juxtaposed with strips painted in grays and tans is for me the most appealing of the group. Thin ridges of paint formed by the palette knife in these paintings gives the effect of damask.

In a series of ten landscapes, Robin Rust resorts to a wide range of colors in loosely abstracted works. The colors seem soaked into the canvas, giving an atmosphere of softness. She uses boxed canvases that project from the wall, with a dark band of paint forming the frame in each painting.

Patricia Harrell's paintings reflect nature in abstracted forms that are strong in concept, gaining power in the use of dark colors pitted against lighter colors. Miss Harrell makes good use of tension in the placement of vertical and horizontal lines and areas of colors, with a definite juncture point tying the structures together.

The portion of the Graduate Thesis Show at the Art Center will remain on view through May 16. Jerry Raynor

Joint Concert By Glee Clubs On Thursday

At 8:15 p.m. Thursday, a program of music combining the talents of the Women's Glee Club and the Men's Glee Club of the East Carolina University School of Music will be presented at Wright Auditorium.

Beatrice Chauncey directs the Women's Glee Club, with Faye Burton as accompanist. The Men's Glee Club is being directed by Richard Foley, with Tom Hawley and Wes Letchworth, accompanists.

On this Thursday night concert, the program has been divided into three parts. Part I—Four songs from Daniel Pinkham's Wedding Cantata and selections from The Fantasticks by Harvey Schmidt. These two groups of song will be performed by the combined glee clubs.

Part II will be selections sung by the Women's Glee Club, and will include five Edna S. Vincent Millay poems set to music by Michael Fink in From A Very Little Sphinx; the aria O Pastorelle. Addio from Giordano's opera Andrea Chénier; John Quinn's arrangement of Sometimes I Feel Like A Motherless Child; and Schubert's Serenade, with Carolyn Greene, soloist.

Part III are selections by the Men's Glee Club. The works listed are Gregorio Allegri's Miserere; Tschenkoff's Let Thy Holy Presence, with Talmadge Fautleroy conducting; Goodbye, Fare You Well, the Norman Luboff arrangements; and two selections from Bernstein's West Side Story. This concert is free and the public is invited to attend.

Interior Design Special Opening Announced

A special opening is planned for Saturday in connection with an interior design project located at 504 East Ninth Street.

Mel Stanforth, chairman of the Interior Design Department of the School of Art, East Carolina University, says the project is similar to the one carried out last year, but that the current project is larger and involves more students.

Following the special opening, a general open house will be held beginning Sunday, May 13 and will continue through May 19. The public is invited to visit the project at 504 East Ninth Street during that one week period.

N.C. Craft Show Extended

The "North Carolina Craftsmen, 1973" exhibition at the North Carolina Museum of Art has been held over through Sunday, May 20.

The exhibition originally was to have closed on Sunday, May 6.

The closing date has been extended because of the great popularity of the show, Moussa M. Domit, acting director, said. On opening day more than 850 people attended, one of the highest opening day figures recorded by the museum.

Faculty Artists In National Show

Works by Tran Gordley and Melvin Stanforth, faculty members of the East Carolina University have been accepted for a National Exhibition in Muncie, Indiana.

Both artists are showing drawings in the show, which opens today and closes June 30. The exhibition is Ball's State 19th annual Drawing and Small Sculpture Show.

John Mizell Sculpture Show On Campus

Senior sculpture art student John Mizell has a showing of several steel sculptures going on view today in the courtyard of the North Cafeteria on campus at East Carolina University.

The pieces, all of welded steel, can be seen at this location.

The pieces, all of welded steel, can be seen at this location through May 12. Mizell, a native of the Westover Community near Plymouth, is considering the possibility of serving in Afghanistan with the Peace Corps this summer following graduation. He says he

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By Willie Mae Hibbs

To the more than six million Americans who this year will be victims of serious crimes, Mel Mandell has dedicated his timely and informative book called BEING SAFE. Apartment dwellers and homeowners concerned about the safety of themselves and their property, and concerned also about the expense or unavailability of insurance, will appreciate this book which stresses simple procedures rather than costly and fraudulent devices. In BEING SAFE, Mel Mandell explains how doors and windows can be protected, gives practical advice on coping with muggers and obscene phone calls, and adds a special feature a list of criteria for making a house safe. The common-sense measures outlined in this handy, up-to-date, and reliable reference will go a long way toward controlling the increasing crime rate in America.

Husbands, child specialists, and those in women's liberation express conflicting views on the subject of working mothers. Can these views be reconciled? Sidney Cornelia Callahan, herself a mother of six, thinks they can. In THE WORKING MOTHER she points the way by offering creative solutions to the problem of combining motherhood and work. After her introductory chapters, Mrs. Callahan presents the experiences of sixteen women, both black and white and from varied backgrounds, who have successfully combined careers and child rearing. Their comments, given in response to a questionnaire prepared by Mrs. Callahan, include the why's and how's of being a working mother—their reasons for deciding to work full or part time, their arrangements of household and working routines so that their children get adequate attention, and the amount of emotional support they get from their families. The experiences of these women, which are as diverse as their careers, will encourage, and enlighten those who have mixed feelings concerning working mothers.

When William Barclay, Professor of Divinity and Biblical Criticism at Glasgow University, delivered his highly respected Baird Lectures, he asked if there was a place for the Christian ethic in a society as permissive as ours. Now in ETHICS IN A PERMISSIVE SOCIETY, he combines these lectures, supplements them with new material, and presents an indepth analysis of the situation. His approach to this difficult and vexed question - which includes careful consideration of Biblical teachings, the ethics of self-determination, and Christian views on work and pleasure—leads him to an interesting proposal for responsible Christian action.

Gary H. Ross, a BFA graduate of the School of Art, East Carolina University, now teaching art in the Raleigh City Schools, has a one-man show opening Monday at the Mushroom Gallery at the Georgetown Shopping Center in downtown Greenville.

In this exhibit, Ross will be showing a series of black and white pen and ink drawings.

Petteway President

Miss Betty E. Petteway, Associate Professor in the School of Art at East Carolina University has been recently elected President-Elect of the North Carolina Art Education Association.

Miss Petteway will assume her duties next month at the Association's annual meeting in Roanoke, Va., and will hold the post until 1975. The North Carolina Art Education Association is an affiliate of the National Art Education Association.

Miss Kay Currie, hostess for the program, says Hines gives some insights into his new concept of math. The popular singer spent last week as a guest teacher at East Carolina University in the Math Department. He also talks about the Metropolitan Opera, his roles in stage musicals and his personal beliefs.

Others on Sunday's Hospitality House will include representatives of the East Carolina University Summer Theater; a yarn art craftsman from Camp Lejeune; representatives of noted gardens in North Carolina; and spokesmen for National Hospital Week.

MUSIC ON CAMPUS

Five individual recitals, an ensemble recital and a concert are scheduled for a busy week in music on campus at East Carolina University.

Beginning today and continuing through next Sunday, the events scheduled are:

Today—8:15 p.m., Recital Hall—Master's Recital, Danny Tindal, percussion. Tallahassee, Florida native Tindal will be assisted by Ron Parelo, tenor saxophone in his master's recital that will feature four compositions. These are Jan Williams' Theme and Variations for Solo Kettledrums; Suite for Marimba by A. Fissinger; Harleinz Stockhausen's Zyklus Number 9; and Frieze by T. Frazeur.

Monday—7:30 p.m., Recital Hall—Junior piano recital, Miss Donna Grose. Miss Grose, a native of Marion, has listed four compositions for her program...Beethoven's Sonata, Opus 81a; Three etudes by Scriabin; three preludes from Book II by Debussy; and Chopin's Ballade in G Minor, Opus 23.

Monday—9:00 p.m., Recital Hall—Graduate Recital, Ronald Robert Parelo. For his graduate recital, South Plainfield, N.J. native Parelo has chosen seven works. He will be accompanied by Kathy Rountree and assisted by Claudia Carmone on violoncello; and James Houlik and Diana Love, saxophonists. His selections are: Intrada by Desplantes; Leclair's, Gigue; Sonata in G Minor, Vivaldi; Goodman's Saxophone Trio; Turkin's Sonata; Aria and Pulcinella by Bozza; and Duo for Saxophone and Piano, Hartley.

Thursday—7:30 p.m., Recital Hall—Graduate Recital, Miss Diana Bonham Love, saxophone. Miss Love will be accompanied by Dale Tucker and assisted by James Houlik and Ronald Parelo, both saxophone; and Ronald Rudkin, flute. A native of Pulaski, Va., Miss Love will perform Fasch's Sonata; Sonata by Jacob; William Grant Still's Romance; Ibert's Le Petit Ane Blanc; Creston's Sonata, Opus 12; and Solitude, Cecil Effinger. She will also perform three pieces by William Byrd transcribed for saxophone trio and Epitaph de Jean Harlow by Charles Koechlin for alto saxophone and flute.

Thursday—8:15 p.m., Wright Auditorium — Women's and Men's Glee Club concert. (See separate article this page).

Friday—8:15 p.m., Recital Hall — Senior Recital, Michael Parker, piano. A Virginia Beach, Va., native, Parker has listed four works to be performed in his senior recital program. These are Bach's Adagio in G Major; Sonata in E Flat, Opus 31, Number 3; by Beethoven; Ravel's Olseaux Tristes; and Schumann's Kreisleriana.

Sunday (May 13)—8:15 p.m., Recital Hall — Recital, faculty and students, Music for Winds and Piano — Two major works will be featured in this recital, Quintet for Winds, Opus 43 by Carl Nielson; and Francis Poulenc's Sextour for Piano and Winds. Performers are pianist Ellen Reithmaier, a member of the piano faculty in the School of Music; and a student quintet with Nancy Neidlinger, flute; John Goodall, oboe; Ronald Rudkin, clarinet; Craig Mills, bassoon; and Steve Skillman, horn.

All the events listed in this column are free and the public is invited to attend.

Billy Preston Headlines Big Stadium Show

Billy Preston, star of the Concert for Bangladesh, will headline a major outdoor concert Friday, May 11 at Ficklen Stadium at 8 p.m. Also appearing will be McKendree Spring and Elf.

The concert is the first Spring outdoors concert, and is sponsored by the Popular Entertainment Committee of East Carolina University. ECU student tickets are $3.00 and public tickets are $5.00.

Preston's most historic appearance was in Madison Square Garden for the Bangladesh concert. His backup band consisted of the finest in rock history.

The back up band? It included George Harrison, Ringo Starr, Leon Russell, Eric Clapton and Rob Dylan.

Previously a recording artist for the Beatles' Apple label, Preston has the distinction of being the first black man to record with the Beatles, and also have two solo albums to his credit under the producership of George Harrison.

Elf, one of two bands to be playing in the concert, consists of a quartet who has been compared to early Rolling Stones music. The group has produced an album under the Epic label that was produced by two Deep Purple members.

McKendree Spring, another quartet, will also be featured in the concert. The quartet has three albums on the Decca label, including their recently released "McKendree Spring 3." It formed over four years ago and three members are part of the original quartet.

They began on the cross country Coffee House Circuit. The music they play is written by the group for the most part, but they also use music from Bob Dylan, Arlo Guthrie, Neil Young and others.

Plan New Model City Near Rio

By LORAL GRAHAM RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — The architects who planned Brasilia, Brazil's 13-year-old capital in the hinterland, have designed another model city — this time on the outskirts of Rio de Janeiro.

By the year 2000 the new city promises "a new way of life" for 2 million of Rio's anticipated 10 million residents — a life free from the congestion, pollution and noise that plague Rio's present population of 4.3 million.

The site, called Barra da Tijuca, is 10 miles from Copacabana, which was considered a seaside paradise until the late '50s but now is three square miles of concrete housing 250,000 people. Barra da Tijuca is an unspoiled area flanked by mountains and dotted with lakes. It stretches for 14 miles along one of the most beautiful beaches in the world.

When the federal government announced plans in 1964 to build a highway through the area to connect Rio with the port of Santos, 250 miles to the southwest, urban development of Barra da Tijuca was inevitable.

"If urban growth had been left uncontrolled, Barra would have become another Copacabana within a few years, with a conglomeration of high-rise buildings lining the highway and the beach, preventing free circulation of air and blocking a view of the sea," said Almir Machado, coordinator of the team of architects that is planning the area's development.

In 1969, Lucio Costa — author of the master plan of Brasilia presented an ambitious project to the government of the state of Guanabara (Greater Rio) to urbanize Barra while at the same time preserving the area's natural beauty, tranquility, and unpolluted environment. He proposed to concentrate the population of the 75-square-mile area in self-sufficient urban islands each containing about 12,000 people and separated from one another by five-block-wide green areas. Each urban island would have its own shopping area and school, and other essential services.

At opposite ends of the beach, sandwiched between the highway and the ocean, two super nuclei are being planned with projected populations of 80,000 to 100,000 each.

The larger of the two, called the Barra Center, is already under construction. It will be opened in 1974 and fully completed by 1980. Oscar Niemeyer, who designed the major public buildings in Brasilia, is chief architect.

The Barra Center will contain 70 cylindrical, 34-story apartment towers. Seventy-five per cent of the center's 127 acres will consist of parkland, playgrounds, squares, walkways, and tropical gardens. There will be six office buildings, five schools, four yacht clubs, two movies and one legitimate theater, as well as supermarkets, gas stations and churches.

Niemeyer's idealistic plan separates pedestrians and traffic, residential and shopping areas.

The residential towers will be interlaced with walkways. Pedestrians will cross the main traffic arteries through underpasses. There will be two floors of underground parking in each tower.

No stores will be allowed in the residential area. Instead noise and activity will be concentrated in a commercial center that cuts diagonally through the development. Parking will be behind the shops and the area in front will be a mall for pedestrians only.

Many of Costa's and Niemeyer's idealistic designs for Brasilia did not work out. A typical main street has sprouted in the capital, despite plans that called for the city to be made up of self-contained living nuclei.

The Barra's Commercial Center will contain about 1,000 stores as well as supermarkets, restaurants, bars, banks, boutiques, cinemas, beauty salons and doctor's offices.

Prices range from $10,000 for a one-bedroom apartment to $30,000 for a deluxe three-bedroom apartment to $138,000 for a penthouse. If you pay cash the price is 18.5 per cent less.

The Barra area forms a triangle with two sides backed by mountains and one facing the sea. In the apex of the triangle there will be four non-polluting industries, the state government civic center, and a 2½-square-mile metropolitan center, expected to be the nerve center of Rio within 30 years. In the center of the triangle there will be 11 residential nuclei, a heliport, and executive airport, an autódromo, a golf course, a biological reserve, a university, and an agricultural area, interspersed throughout with parks and woodland.

BILLY PRESTON, star of the Concert For Bangladesh, will headline the May 11 Spring outdoor concert at Ficklen Stadium at 8 p.m.

FOR JEANE DIXON, prophet

Have you ever had "vibrations" of events about to happen to you personally and/or to your personal family? If so, was the experience upsetting?—Mrs. J. B., Walla Walla, Wash.

● Yes, I have many times picked up vibrations of events that were going to happen to me or members of my family. (One such outstanding incident that concerned a plane trip my husband had planned to take is related in "A Gift of Prophecy.") Because of my faith I have learned to accept the things I see and cannot change. But I do pray and try to change what can be changed, and to prevent what can be prevented. I often repeat, too, the "Serenity Prayer," asking for "courage to accept the things I cannot change." There are times I have wept bitter tears because of things I see that need not be, but that, because of lack of vision and understanding, are unchangeable.

FOR LORNA LUFT, singer

You've followed your late mother, Judy Garland, into show business. Did you ever have another career in mind?—V. G., Ft. Thomas, Ky.

● When I was 12 years old I wanted to be a nurse for retarded children. That was after seeing my mother's movie, "A Child Is Waiting," which really impressed me. Even today, if I ever make a lot of money, I'd like to build a great big school for retarded children out in the countryside.

FOR ANTHONY QUINN

Isn't acting enough? Why do you get involved in writing books and in painting and sculpting?—J. R. Wallsack, Chicago, Ill.

● I never want to feel like I've "made it." I'm terrified of that "fat" feeling. I value freedom, and part of freedom is to remain "hungry," to not fall into a mold. This means you have to give yourself challenges from time to time.

FOR SEN. STROM THURMOND (D-S.C.)

You recently became a father again at age 69. Are you starting on your second family, or is this your first?—Thomas R. Mullins, Tyler, Texas

● My first wife, who died in 1960, and I had no children. Since remarrying in 1968, I have become the father of two children: a daughter who was born March 30, 1971, and a son who was born October 18, 1972.

FOR ALLEN FUNT

Are you often recognized on the street?—B. U., Flint, Mich.

● The smaller a place is, the more likely a show business person is to be recognized. I once vacationed on one of the smallest, most remote, Hawaiian islands, traveling by plane, boat and jeep to get there. When I arrived, this little girl ran up and said, "Hi, Allen." You're recognized where you least expect it. But when you try to cash a check, no one knows you.

FOR CARROLL O'CONNOR, star of "All in the Family"

Is it true you were a Shakespearean actor before joining "All in the Family"?—Kim Lemak, Ramsey, N.J.

● I admire Shakespeare, but I can hardly be considered a Shakespearean actor. I have an extensive background in the theater, especially in Ireland. Prior to "All in the Family," I had done many dramatic roles in both theater and motion pictures.

FOR SALLY KELLERMAN

What's your greatest problem?—F.R. Lincoln, Elgin, Ill.

● I've been in analysis for 600 years trying to learn how to be on time. Someday I hope I'll lick it.

FOR ARNOLD PALMER

I notice you're wearing glasses. Have they helped your game?—John Morrissey, Bloomington, Ind.

● Yes. Golf is tough enough without the handicap of not seeing the ball clearly. The glasses help me, especially on judging short distances to the green. Some of the other players on the tour might do well to wear them, but they don't because of pride.

FOR JULIAN BOND of the Georgia House of Representatives

I understand you have voiced displeasure with the way black entertainers and athletes "clustered around President Nixon like fleas on a dog." Why?—John Marlowe, Bloomington, Ind.

● My feeling is that competence in one area does not mean you can do anything else. I can neither sing nor dance nor play football, but I can think.

A Family Weekly Leadership Survey

Compiled by George Lardner

In the last election, 62 million eligible American voters did not cast a ballot. This is more than the population of most countries in the world.

Should Americans actually be required to vote? (That's what they do in some countries—fine voters who don't show up at the polls.) Or is the problem simply our antiquated system of registration? (Voter registration was unknown in the U.S. before 1876, and in those days 80 percent of eligible Americans voted.)

This spring, Congress is examining a number of solutions. Most notable is the so-called "postcard registration bill," cosponsored by Sens. Gale McGee and George McGovern, which would allow people to mail in their registration on a postcard. But some people feel even this is not enough.

FAMILY WEEKLY wanted to know where the nation's leaders stand. So we put the question to them baldly—

"DO YOU THINK AMERICANS SHOULD BE REQUIRED TO VOTE?"

Here is what they replied:

SEN. JAMES O. EASTLAND (D-Miss.), Chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee

"In my judgment, voting should not be made mandatory. Citizens should be given every opportunity by the candidates and the mass media to know the issues and personalities involved in political campaigns, but they should not be fined or otherwise punished for failing to cast a ballot. If Congress were to enact such legislation, there would just have to be another level of Federal bureaucracy to administer the law. If the penalties were levied by Federal judges, it would further clog the courts. If the penalties were levied by Federal bureaucrats, the right of the citizen not to have his property taken without due process of law would be destroyed."

eligible vote. All other democracies accept the burden of registering their citizens to vote, and 70 to 90 percent vote. The United States alone puts the burden of registering to vote on its citizens, and here 45 to 55 percent vote. The question is not 'Should we make Americans vote?' but 'Shall we allow Americans to vote?'

"Before the United States adopted voter registration, more than 80 percent voted. When North Dakota removed the burden of voter registration from its citizens in 1951, voter participation jumped 14 percent.

"Ninety percent of the American citizens who register to vote make it to the polls on Election Day. Obviously, once they get past the registration obstacle, they have little difficulty voting.

"Before we begin consideration of mandatory voting, let's first make ours a truly voluntary system and see how we do. The Voter Registration Bill now before the Congress would help accomplish this goal."

SEN. GALE MCGEE (D-Wyo.),

sponsor of a bill that would allow voters to register by postcard

"America, the greatest democracy the world has known, has the world's lowest voter participation. Only about half the voting-age Americans actually vote.

"In Australia, voting is mandatory, with a $10 fine for not voting, and 95 percent of those

SEN. EDWARD M. KENNEDY (D-Mass.)

"No, I do not favor compelling people to vote. But I do think there are many ways in which we can encourage more people to vote. I have introduced in Congress this year legislation that would help reform the archaic and obsolete voter-registration system that operates in many states. We should consider such advances as postcard registration, door-to-door canvassing of voters, and computerized statewide registration. If we can modernize our system of registration, we can raise dramatically the number of people who vote."

RALPH NADER, consumer advocate

"Yes, absolutely. A host of legal technicalities, intimidations, and forced inconveniences have served deliberately to discourage citizens from voting. Over decades, protest, litigation and legislation to reform these outrages have largely failed. The only comprehensive solution is to put the law on the side of voting by making it universal—as Australia, Belgium and Austria have done.

"Under one proposal, a voter could vote the printed ballot, write in his choice, or mark down that he abstains. Penalties for not voting should be mild and educational, like working a day at the polls or attending voter-education school. When voting is a duty, it will become a documentable crime for officials to create obstructions, and all the harassing laws now on the books will have to be repealed. Officialdom would be required to actively facilitate voting—providing things like more convenient hours, needed transportation and ballot boxes in hospitals.

"Citizens in a democracy must do many things—pay taxes, go to war, perform jury duty. To help insure that our laws are responsive to all the people, people should be made to vote. When voting is universal, politicians will respond to all people, not just certain classes of people. And active citizens can organize around issues and policies instead of trying to get out the vote in the face of legal and illegal obstacles."

SEN. THOMAS F. EAGLETON (D-Mo.)

"The voter turnout last fall was appallingly low. Two or three weeks later, I was in Germany during the election of Willy Brandt. Our turnout was 56 percent. Theirs was 95-plus percent! So no one can defend the present turnout here. However, I would not favor compulsory voting. I would favor Senator McGee's proposal for postcard registration, making voting more convenient and expeditious, but not compulsory."

SEN. GEORGE MCGOVERN (D-S. D.)

"No, I don't favor a forced vote. Voting should be regarded as a privilege and a right—not a legal requirement. But, yes, we should remove needless obstacles to registration and voting.

"In 19th-century America, when registration was still a simple process, the vote in Presidential elections averaged

"When we found out what AARP does for people over 55, my wife didn't mind telling her age."

"After a friend of ours told us about the American Association of Retired Persons, I said to my wife, 'Irma, Everybody's having fun but us. Lots of people out there are having a marvelous time and we're sitting home counting the years.' So I picked myself right up and filled out an AARP coupon just like the one on this page. I want to tell you it was the best thing we ever did."

WHAT'S AARP?

AARP is the American Association of Retired Persons or as we like to think of ourselves—The new social security. Nonprofit. Non-partisan. Anybody who's over 55 can belong. And all it costs to be a member is $2 a year. Which is almost like buying a whole new life for a few cents a week. You can stay home and enjoy it. You can be rich. Poor. Healthy. Not so healthy. It's probably one of the few organizations in the world that demands so little of you, but has so much to give. Simply because its one purpose is to help you continue to feel vital, important and involved in every part of life.

WHAT YOU GET

To begin with, you can continue your education. You can fill your leisure time with hundreds of new meaningful activities. At home. Or outside. You can get help in finding part-time work. Be assured of reasonable prices on medicines, travel, on many of the necessities of life including health and life insurance. You can meet new people. Make your voice heard in government. You'll receive two fine publications written just for you. In other words, you're going to have fun again and find that life is more than just a way to pass time.

DON'T STOP LEARNING

AARP's Institute of Lifetime Learning offers a full program of education courses in music appreciation, psychology, creative writing, literature, government, and a variety of other subjects. There are home study courses or you can attend lectures at regional centers around the country.

BE REPRESENTED IN GOVERNMENT

AARP's legislative program represents you in your state legislature and Congress. Its 33-point program is a Bill of Rights to all older persons retired or not. We let you know what's happening. So that you can know about all of the legislation put through on your behalf.

FEEL BETTER WITH HEALTH INSURANCE

Medicare doesn't cover everything. So some of AARP's most important services are special supplementary Group Health Insurance Plans. They enable you to pay for the best medical and surgical treatment, and include a unique Nursing Home and Home-Nursing Care Plan. You'll feel better just having this kind of protection.

PHARMACY SERVICE

Because of the buying power represented by over 4½ million AARP members, AARP makes it possible for you to get over-the-counter and prescription medicine and supplies at realistic prices and have them delivered to your home, postage paid.

GO PLACES

Where would you like to travel? Around the world? Across the country? AARP's travel service can help you do it. You can participate in our quality tours at all-inclusive prices. And you'll be fully escorted by AARP's special tour directors. The world is there. All you have to do is go into it.

FEEL LIKE WORKING?

Just because you're retired doesn't mean you can't work. Mature Temps, an AARP recommended service, can help you supplement your retirement income with part-time or temporary employment. There are offices in a number of major metropolitan areas across the country. Just call. Their service is free.

Irma and Peter McNulty

PARTICIPATE IN CHAPTER ACTIVITIES

Chances are there's an AARP Chapter near you. (There are 1300 of them around the United States). If you'd like to go to a meeting and find out about the inside workings of AARP, just come on over. It's a great way to make our association grow stronger and a fine opportunity for you to meet dozens of vital people your own age.

WANT TO GET INVOLVED?

At Local Chapters you'll have the opportunity to find out about community services in which you can lend a helping hand. You can learn more about the Defensive Driving Courses, the Consumer Information Desk or participate in the Tax Aid Program.

NEED ADVICE?

AARP provides its members with a series of booklets that guide retired people through areas of particular concern. They cover everything from how to get personal help, to health advice, moving, diet, and all the little problems that trouble you from time to time.

WORRIED ABOUT AUTO INSURANCE*?

If you're an AARP member, you will receive information about how you may be able to actually save money on your auto insurance with a policy that has guaranteed renewable and limited-cancellation features.

LIKE TO READ?

When you join AARP you automatically receive subscriptions to AARP's official publications, Modern Maturity and the AARP News Bulletin, two publications filled with news and features of special interest to you.

Your annual membership dues of $2 help cover the cost of these publications, which means for as long as you're a member of AARP your magazines will keep coming.

There's so much more to AARP than we have room to tell you here. And really, the best way to find out is to join. The coupon below will enroll you so that you can take advantage of all the AARP benefits and services. There's only one requirement. You have to be 55 or over. We don't think you'll mind telling us if you are.

*Available in all states except Massachusetts and Texas. Only statutory coverage available in North Carolina.

Professional Japanese Chefs' HOCHO KNIVES

- Each knife has its own specific kitchen task
- Individually water ground by hand for sharpest swiftest cutting edge known
- Amazing magnolia-wood handles actually conform to shape of your hand
- FULL FIVE YEAR GUARANTEE on performance, sharpness, reliability

Three hundred years ago, Japan's master craftsmen created the most unusual culinary instruments in all the world... the knives every Japanese chef uses. Simply called HOCHO, they are now available for the first time in the U.S. as the most reliable, versatile and sharpest culinary instruments you can own. One of the reasons is...

The Permanence of Water-Ground Blades

Each HOCHO is individually hand-honed using water for the sharpest cutting edge possible. The blades have been forged from stainless steel and permanently bonded to magnolia-wood handles. They won't dull, bend, rust, stain... ever!

Here's something else you won't find in any other knife set: handles that gradually take on the shape of your own hand. And they darken handsomely with use.

Remember, HOCHO are the best chef's knives you'll ever own. Order yours today!

FIVE YEAR GUARANTEE!
We guarantee HOCHO knives to be free of defects in quality and workmanship and that they will hold their razor-sharp edge for FIVE FULL YEARS or an immediate replacement will be made.

Frederic Lewis

"The question is not 'Should we make Americans vote?' but 'Shall we allow Americans to vote?'"

15 percent higher than it has during the 20th century. During the last two Presidential elections, the number of persons who did not vote exceeded the number of votes the winner received! I've co-sponsored legislation with Senator McGee to make registration easier. Under our proposal, eligible voters would be able to register for national elections by mail, instead of taking time from work to travel to a registration office that may be open only in the daytime during a few weeks every year or two. Other voting restrictions need to be reconsidered with the objective of increasing voter participation."

REP. PETER RODINO (D-N. J.), chairman of the House Judiciary Committee

"Such a suggestion is hardly in keeping with the tenets of our democratic society here in America. That doesn't mean, however, that we shouldn't do everything possible to encourage people to vote. We can do better—and we should."

SEN. WILLIAM PROXMIRE (D-Wis.)

"No, I'm not in favor of mandatory voting, but I do think we should make it easier for Americans to vote by providing for automatic and permanent registration.

"In the United States, all kinds of barriers have been erected to prevent people from voting.

In some states, a year's residence is required, plus 90 days in the county and 30 days in the precinct. Then, one must go to the courthouse, often miles away, to register. And often one's name is purged from the rolls without one's knowledge.

"The reason the British always have a much higher proportion of voters is that about every six months their post office makes up an official registration list of everyone in the country.

"If we had permanent registration, our voting turnout would be equal to or better than the turnout abroad."

SEN. BARRY GOLDWATER (R-Ariz.)

"I'm absolutely against it. I can't see how it squares at all with individual freedom. The right of franchise is a precious right, but I don't think it should be jammed down anyone's throat."

SEN. BIRCH BAYH (D-Ind.)

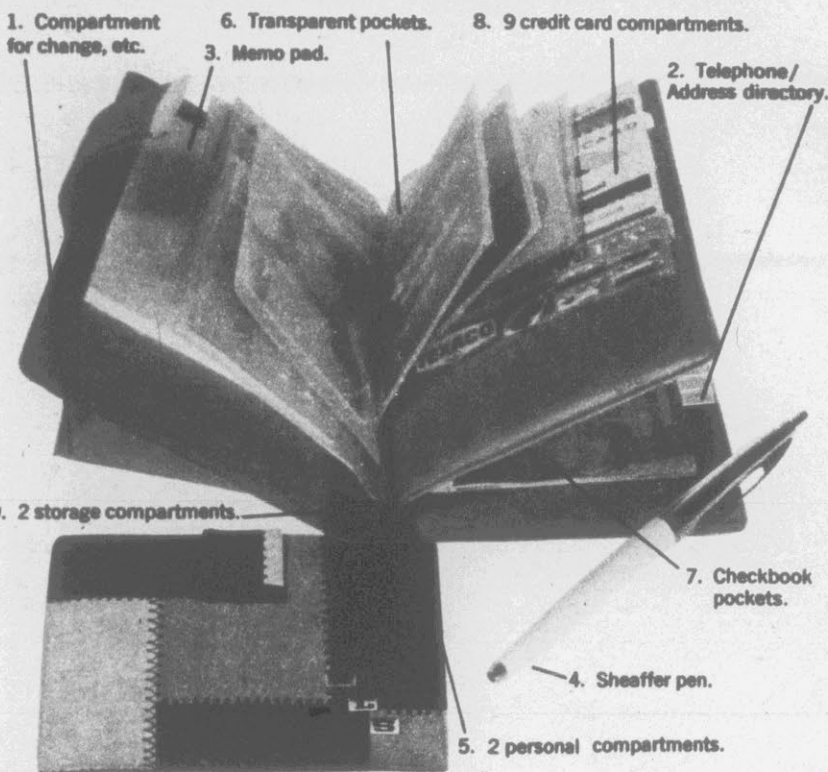

"I don't think compulsory voting's a very good idea. The voting process should reflect a citizen's interest and concern and knowledge about the issues and the candidates. Forcing people to vote would be no real improvement. It would increase the quantity of the vote, but not the quality. Uninformed voting would simply make the process unrepresentative."

Tent the Old Front Porch

This grand old porch has been updated for modern living by a wall of glass, yellow trelliswork, carpeting, tented ceiling and white plastic furnishings. The designer is Annette Mally, who is home-furnishings editor of the Atlantic City "Press." She created this transformation in her own home by using the latest furniture concept: molded ABS plastic. The dining/game table in the corner has a tempered-glass table top and three-legged chairs with pleasing curves. The sofa is a series of four pieces based on the single modular design of the armchair, so seating can be in any length from a loveseat to a whole-wall banquette. Its tufted cushions are covered in Pylpel, and need only to be wiped to keep them dirt free. The coffee table is an outdoor chaise minus its cushion. The mattress-ticking tent ceiling was swagged and then staple-gunned in place. The trellis frame was purchased at the local lumberyard. Carpeting is latex foam-backed. Furniture collection by Syroco, a division of Dart Industries Inc.

Ernie Silva

This is a far cry from the old porch it used to be. The glass enclosure and draped ceiling were the main ingredients of change.

Color a Country Kitchen

Subject to the needs and whims of many owners in its 104-year history, this rambling farmhouse kitchen acquired a motley assortment of doors, windows and wall treatments. To unify it, a bright Popcorn Yellow enamel was applied to the walls, and antique glaze was used to conceal defects in cabinets and woodwork. Stenciled designs bring harmony to cabinets and doorframes, while glued-on labels of cans form a decoupage* on cupboards that are overlaid with chicken wire. Furniture divides the room into several areas and augments counter and storage space. A reclaimed barn ladder, treated with oak varnish, accommodates plants and utensils. Also reclaimed are four Victorian chairs, brightened with paint and teamed up with a new, ready-to-finish pedestal table. Counters were resurfaced with ceramic tile, while Armstrong's resilient flooring in a Spanish-tile design replaced the old linoleum. Designed by Patricia Plaxico, A.I.D. Paint, antiquing kit and furniture-to-finish, available, Sherwin-Williams stores. *For free how-to instructions, send request to: The Sherwin-Williams Co., Box F. ## Bath and Kitchen Ideas

Accessories can make a bathroom sing. Shutters, a newelpost and wall covering were the only expenses involved here.

Create a "Natural" Habitat

An ordinary bathroom can be made extraordinary with the right wall covering and a good dose of imagination. In this updated bathroom, the colors of the fancifully designed wall covering are picked up for the trim, ceiling and accessories. Instead of curtains, the window is fitted with shutters, painted aqua and set in a yellow frame. Other aqua accents include a newelpost adapted as a towel rack and the water closet's painted lid.

Other clever, easy-to-adapt decorating devices include the inverted wicker wastepaper-basket light shade, space-saving chain-suspended baskets for plants and magazines, and the plywood sink vanity and tub enclosure, which are covered in the same nostalgic wall-covering pattern—"Meandering Stream," from General Tire. Towels and shower curtains by Fieldcrest.

The U-Shaped Kitchen

One of the most popular plans, this remodeled horse-shoe-shaped kitchen, in a 40-year-old suburban-Philadelphia house, provides a short distance between work centers, adequate counter and storage space, ventilation through an exhaust fan in the copper hood, and good overhead and under-cabinet lighting. The kitchen carpeting, "Efficiency" by Lees, is a tight all-loop pile construction of Antron II, which holds spills on its surface until they can be cleaned up. Decorative notes: the Portuguese-tile-pattern wallpaper on ceiling, the Plexiglas shelves to hold plants at the window.

This kitchen cuts down on steps among work centers.

"Buy any one of our Potscrubber* dishwashers with a Power Scrub Cycle from a participating GE dealer before December 31, 1973.

If you're not fully satisfied with its performance (and you'll be the judge) notify the dealer within 30 days of your purchase. He'll take back the dishwasher and refund your money. No questions asked."

In addition to pots and pans, you can also safely wash fine china and crystal.

We make a line of Potscrubber models to fit into a lot of different kitchens. Three built-ins. Three front-load convertibles, portable now, can be built in later.

These are some of the reasons why more people use GE dishwashers than any others.

We also have a quality feature just as dependable as our Potscrubber.

Customer Care... Service Everywhere."

This is our pledge that wherever you are, or go, in the U.S.A., you'll find a qualified GE serviceman nearby. Should you ever need him. The incredible Potscrubber dishwasher... another reason why GE is America's #1 major appliance value.

Rooms That Work:

The kitchen has come a long way since it was the private domain of "the cook." Now it alternately serves as a snack bar, meeting room, fix-it center, Laundromat, coffee shop or office. But how do you get it to operate efficiently?

What Makes A Good Kitchen?

If you're planning to remodel your kitchen, smooth work flow should be one of the key elements considered in the design. Work revolves around three centers of activity—refrigeration, cleanup and cooking—and it should flow among them in an unobstructed work triangle. The entire triangle should measure no more than 22 feet and no less than 13. Suggested distances between appliances: from refrigerator to sink, four to seven feet; sink to range, four to six feet; range to refrigerator, four to nine feet. Traffic flow in the kitchen should not pass through the triangle.

The sequence of work in a kitchen moves from storage to preparation to cooking and then to serving. The logical arrangement has the refrigerator near the outside entrance of the house, followed by the sink center, then the cook-and-serve area—located as conveniently to the dining room or breakfast nook as possible.

Studies have shown that more than half the work done in the kitchen is performed at the sink. In the ideal situation, the clean-up center should be between the refrigerator and the cooking center.

Kitchen planners recommend that each major-appliance center have some working counter available. It's desirable for the refrigerator to have a minimum of 15 inches of counter top at the opening side for loading

Paulus Lesser

The Eat-In Kitchen

An 18-foot-square kitchen is divided into cooking and dining areas by a center island, with a cooktop and plenty of counter space. On the kitchen side, additional counter space tops off the sink/dishwasher area—with a and unloading, and the range serves best if counter space is available on both sides. The sink should have at least three feet of counter space on the right and left.

Basic Kitchen Shapes—Which One Is Yours?

There are four basic kitchen-floor plans: U-shape, L-shape, corridor and one-wall. The popular U-shape plan, with appliance centers in a horseshoe arrangement, adapts nicely to large and small kitchens and provides short distances among work centers. The next most desirable plan is the L-shape kitchen. Adaptable to almost any space, it lends itself to an efficient work triangle by using two walls whose continuity is unbroken by doorways. The corridor kitchen uses a minimum area for a maximum of counter space and appliances. Its major drawback is its unavoidable poor traffic pattern, which from necessity crosses the work triangle. And also there's usually room for only one person at a time to be in motion. The one-wall kitchen plan adapts well to a family room or open-plan arrangement, is often used in small houses and apartments. Because it's difficult to get enough counter space with this arrangement, a mobile cart or two can supplement the work surface, as can a portable dishwasher, with perhaps a butcher-block top.

Can't Afford a Complete Remodeling?

Unightly cabinets, lack of storage space, outdated appliances, inadequate work surfaces—these are the problems that spark kitchen remodeling. But if you want to hold off on a major overhaul and simply want to redecorate your kitchen, here are some ideas to consider:

Walls. Establish a color scheme with an attractive wall covering. Today's vinyls are immensely practical, and many are resistant to moisture and grease. Paint gives you an infinite variety of colors. For the kitchen you should use either semigloss or gloss. Paneled HANDYCAN is new aerosol troubleshooter. Unsticks doors, windows, locks, drawers. Lubricates bikes, toys, sewing machines, electric appliances. De-rusts tools, sporting goods. Loosens rusted bolts. Even starts wet engines! It's clean, non-greasy. Works anywhere and at any temperature.

ABRACADABRA! — IT'S DONE!
PUT A LITTLE Magic' IN YOUR LIFE!

PANEL MAGIC cleans and beautifies wood paneling, woodwork and furniture with natural oils. Hides scratches, scuffs and stains. Contains no wax—no wax buildup. Also use CABINET MAGIC with extra power for wood kitchen cabinets.

TILE 'N GROUT MAGIC cleans, whitens even the dirtiest stained grout lines between tile. A powerful disinfectant formula and Brush 'n Sponge cap make it easy. Brightens color. Removes grime, hard water stains, mold, mildew.

$1.98 each at hardware, discount, building supply and paint stores. Write for free booklet. Magic American Chemical Corporation, Cleveland, Ohio 44122.

walls are another choice. They come in prefinished and unfinished wood, hardboard with baked-on finishes, plastic laminates, lacquer finishes—to name a few varieties. Most are easy to care for and are available in stone, leather, tile or barn-wood effects that are hardly discernible from the real thing.

Floors. Carpeting the kitchen continues to be a trend. Its advantages are many—greater comfort underfoot, quiet, elimination of the waxing chore, less danger of breakage. But be prepared to wipe up spills promptly and to vacuum frequently. A dense, short-looped carpet is a good choice. According to Milo Winter, designer for Lees Carpets, you should select (1) any of the improved, third-generation nylons, which have soil-hiding properties; (2) darker colors or small-scale designs rather than big, bold patterns;

Rustic Elegance

Rich dark cabinets and walls are the pivotal points of this kitchen, featuring a handy island range. Smokehouse Cedar paneling by Evans. Vinyl flooring: Congoleum.

(3) carpet with a dense foam backing that is actually a part of the carpet, rather than one with a loose sponge backing. New resilient floorings, many with no-wax surfaces, come in a wide range of colors and patterns. You'll still find the less-expensive linoleum, vinyl asbestos and vinyl, which are available in tiles or rolls. Vinyl is more expensive than vinyl asbestos, and prices vary with the thickness of the material and the pattern. Many of the newer styles are three-dimensional, with the look of terrazzo or stone. They have cushioned backings for greater quiet and comfort. The cost of installation is a factor to be considered along with the price of the material. There is also flooring suitable for do-it-yourself installation, including peel-and-stick tiles.

Professional Planners—How to Pick a Good One

You might turn to a kitchen planner to help you choose among the multiple options of kitchen design. How do you know whom to choose? The reputable specialist, listed in your yellow pages or discovered through recommendation, is likely to be an AIKD member (American Institute of Kitchen Dealers)—which means he has a showroom with at least two complete kitchens, has been in the retail kitchen business for a minimum of two years and is financially sound.

For ideas in remodeling as well as decorating, a visit to a nearby kitchen center is worthwhile. There you can ask questions, see component parts in complete settings, and develop a recipe for a kitchen that is very personally yours.

More Ideas for the Bath

Paneling old bathtubs is becoming a popular idea. Here, a four-poster bed was used.

Bath—With Homespun Charm

Why does a bathroom have to look like one? This transformation was effected with a four-poster frame (from a secondhand shop), a random-planked pine floor and swirl-trowled rough-plaster walls. The base of the tub, equipped with safety rails, is a plywood frame of 2x4's, topped with pinewood shelves. Tub fittings are horizontally mounted on the shelf surface. The self-rimmed lavatory does not need any metal framing ring. It comes with a pattern that can be traced in chalk over any vanity and cut out with a saber or jigsaw. Calico sheets for canopy, curtains and cushions complete the charming setting. Bathroom fixtures by the Kohler-Co.

One advantage to solid-component shower stalls is that they avoid tile installation.

Oriental Bath

A sophisticated Eastern theme is set with understated colors of orange and beige, a tile floor that simulates grass matting, and shoji screens flanking a sleek Fibreglas stall shower. The stall features sculptured shelves to hold toiletries and a slip-resistant surface. Installation is easy because the unit comes in four components. Bath Systems 4 from Owens-Corning Fibreglas.

The Great Pickup Mystery.

When most people think about buying a pickup they usually think about just two makes—Ford and Chevy.

Which is precisely why we call INTERNATIONAL "The Other Pickup."

But just because we're not exactly a household word doesn't mean we don't make a great pickup truck. We do.

And if we could just get people to look at us they'd make some surprising discoveries.

First, we have a really smooth ride. And we handle beautifully. And you can select an economical six or any one of three powerful V-8's. Or choose between torsion bar or leaf spring suspension. Or have automatic transmission, power steering and power brakes.

And there's important safety features like a collapsible steering column, a fuel tank located outside the cab and an anti-skid system, available on two models.

So before you buy a pickup, try ours.

The Other Pickup. At your International dealer.

Some people come away saying it's not The Other Pickup.

It's the only pickup.

The Basement and How to Handle It

We usually think of walls to divide. But using louvered doors allows more flexibility.

A Room for All Purposes

Handsome paneling and folding doors transform a characterless 24x48-foot basement into attractive functional living space for the entire family. White-stained paneling with deep, wide grooves was installed over furring strips, to level uneven jogged walls. The same paneling, stained brown, was used to box in lally columns, heat ducts and exposed pipes. Louvered doors separate play area from adults' TV room or open up for entertaining. Additional doors close off a laundry center and home office. Designer Michael Love, NSID. Roughtex paneling by U.S. Plywood. Flooring of Amtico vinyl.

This basement is a children's study, sewing center, workshop, bedroom and playroom!

Five-Rooms-in-One

A Chicago suburban family converted a 20x30-foot basement into a children's study, sewing center, workshop, boy's bedroom and a playroom. Tables, used for studying or dining, slide under serving counter when not in use. A closet with a built-in fold-down table behind its doors (at left) allows for sewing-machine storage. The bedroom, set off by sliding doors, can be seen at right. Next to it is the workshop. Walls were covered with Masonite's Coach House paneling, resembling weathered barn wood. Cabinets are of waterproof, easy-to-clean Royaltile paneling.

Before you spend a couple of thousand on new siding, spend a couple of minutes to learn about Bird Solid Vinyl.

Low maintenance for your lifetime

Buy siding for your lifetime. Siding you can forget about once it's on your home. Siding you'll never have to paint. (Have you had a painting estimate lately?)

Your choices in siding

You can buy a metal siding. A plywood or hardboard type with a plastic finish. A siding of inorganic mineral fibre compounds with a surface coating.

Or, you can buy solid vinyl.

With the exception of solid vinyl, the sidings mentioned here require upkeep—the one thing you don't want in a siding. Metal sidings were among the first introduced. But they leave much to be desired. When scratched, the scratches show because the paint is only a surface layer. They dent easily. Remember, any painted product will eventually require repainting.

Wood Siding

Metal Siding

Mineral Fibre

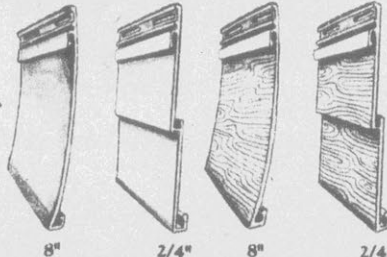

which PVC is extruded as solid siding. It embodies the beauty of wood, but with none of the recurring headaches.

Bird solid vinyl never needs paint. An occasional hosing down keeps it clean, fresh, beautiful. Stubborn smudges are easily removed with a mild detergent.

It can't show scratches because the color goes all the way through, from front to back. It can't dent, rust or make noise like metal. Can't peel, flake, blister, rot or burn like wood. Can't attract electricity or ruin TV reception.

Choose the style you want

Smooth Bird vinyl clapboard comes in an 8" width for a contemporary look, or the Double 4" style for a more Colonial appearance. New Bird BRANDED™ Vinyl Siding has a handsome 3-D woodgrain texture with subtle vinyl-on-vinyl color accents.

Bird vertical vinyl siding dramatizes doorways and gables as well as entire exteriors. All come in White, Gray, Green and Yellow.

Bird matching accessories

Bird also makes all necessary accessories—Bird Vinyl shutters in many sizes and wide range of custom colors; gutters and downspouts; soffit and fascia board systems. With color-coordinated accessories, your home will have a harmoniously-finished look.

Great Indoor/Outdoor Tips For Do-It-Yourselfers

Wally and Natalie Bruner co-host "Wally's Workshop," a TV show for do-it-yourselfers.

By Wally Bruner

Shortcuts and product ideas that can save you a lot of work!

Every do-it-yourselfer is always looking for an easier way to get things done, and often an "easier way" means using some sort of household product instead of running back and forth to the paint store or the hardware store. I've sometimes wasted more time on needless trips than it would have taken to do the job. Here is some of what I've learned over the years. Perhaps you'll find it useful, too.

INDOOR TIPS

Antiquing Furniture

The big craze lately is buying new unfinished furniture and using an antique kit to get what is called an "antique finish." You can make the piece of "new" furniture look more the part by giving it a little wear. Rub it down with a piece of rusty chain. (Seriously!) Take a darned needle and make some "wormholes." Find an old-fashioned fountain pen, the kind that slurps up ink, and flick the pen so you leave helter-skelter ink spots on the piece of furniture. If you're doing a small piece like a cricket stool, take it outside and rub the ends of the four legs on the concrete sidewalk until you roughen them up. Next, lightly sand the piece and proceed with your antiquing. In fact, you might even want to forgo the painting procedure and give it a coat of stain instead. Either way, your antique job will look more authentic.

Ceramic-Tile Repairs

A cracked ceramic tile can easily be removed if you apply a propane torch. Old-time tile may not succumb to this treatment, but tile applied with a mastic will. Heat the tile for two or three minutes by applying the flame from the torch directly onto its surface. Pry the broken tile out with a chisel or screwdriver. Next, remove the old mastic with a putty knife, which should be soft and pliable. Take your replacement tile, butter the back with new "stickum," then press into place. You'll also have to replace the white stuff, called tile grout, in the cracks. (You can get both mastic and grout at most hardware stores. Follow package directions.)

Aging Wood

The Spanish have been doing this for centuries, and it works! Char the surface of the piece of wood with a propane torch. Next, using a wire brush, brush hard, with the grain, and remove all of the black char. If the wood is soft, like pine, the torch will have burned away the softer pulp area, leaving a raised grain. The wood will also take on a rich brown color. If you want it darker, you can add stain, but surprisingly, no sanding is needed and the wood looks ancient. (This process is especially good for aging "new" wood ceiling beams.)

Decorative Window Shades

Window shades that match or contrast with the wallpaper can be an interesting complement to a room, and you can make them yourself. Buy laminating backing in a fabric store. This material is similar to hot-press patches used on blue jeans. Next, select the fabric that you prefer. Using a hot iron, press the material to the backing. An extra-creative approach: Add appliques of cutout flowers and trees. Complete kits are available from good stores, including the window-shade roller, brackets, etc. Tools needed include scissors, hammer and iron.

OUTDOOR TIPS

Easy Screen Repair

Damaged screens a problem? Major rips and tears mean replacing the entire screen, but small holes can be sealed over with simulated plastic screen patching material. Buy the patches at hardware or building-supply stores. The adhesive

Let This Expert Tell You the Right Way to Paint Your Home

By Leon H. Albert

A guide to today's exterior paints . . . which paint is right for what

You can't put it off any longer—the house has just got to be painted this summer. And you're worried. What if, after all the time and effort you put into the job the paint begins to peel?

So you ask the local "experts." One tells you to use latex paint—"It just never comes off." Another says, "Stick to oil-base paint, you can't go wrong."

Who to believe? The truth is, neither. For there has never been a paint made that can stick indefinitely to all surfaces under all conditions.

Latex paint. Latex paint has just about taken over the world of house paint. The main reasons are that it's easier to apply than oil-base paint and it's easier to clean up (the brushes can simply be dunked in hot soapy water). Also, the colors stay brighter. Even pastels retain their tones longer, and white stays whiter and brighter. Scientific weather tests prove that many of the better latex paints are also long-lasting. Finally, since latex paints are not affected by alkali, they can be used on surfaces such as brick, cement-block and stucco, which would break down most oil paint.

Oil-Base Paint. Although

most paint companies have all but phased out oil paint, many painting professionals still use it. I don't recommend oil-base paint as a general, all-over house paint because (1) it can be trickier to apply, and (2) it is no longer available in a wide range of types and colors. So even if your house is presently coated in an oil-base paint, I'd recommend scraping it down, priming it with an oil-base or universal primer, then painting it with latex.

One place I would recommend oil paint, however, is on exterior trim. Many companies provide an oil-base trim paint in all standard colors. Trim paint is different from regular house paint in that it can take extra wear from sun and water, and will not get as dirty when used around doors and windows.

Remember that oil-base paint is always a little glossier than latex paint. This can be a plus in areas you want to keep especially free of dirt.

Stain. If yours is a new house with raw clapboard or shingle siding, by all means consider staining instead of painting. Stains come in a wide variety of colors nowadays—with the added advantage that they never chip or peel.

Whereas paint is opaque, dye coats or stains have some pigment, but usually not enough to obscure the wood grain. With stain, you avoid having to use a primer; however, since you will have to use two coats of stain to do a good job, it all balances out.

The Leading Cause of Paint Deterioration. The question still remains: Why do you see so many newly painted houses with the paint peeling? Of course, it could be cheap paint (for latex, the price varies according to the amount of actual latex in the paint, rather than just water). Or it could be that the paint was applied during bad weather and moisture was trapped under the paint, causing it to blister. But in most cases, improper surface preparation is the biggest reason for paint failure.

If the old paint on your house shows the slightest evidence of cracking, you've got to remove it. Otherwise, the old-paint layer will become so brittle and decomposed that new paint won't adhere to it.

A good way to remove these blighted areas is with a combination electric paint softener and scraper. Then use a wire brush to remove any remaining dirt and paint scale.

is already on the patch, so just peel off the paper backing and press the patch in place. It's invisible and simple to do.

Storm-Door Warning

Give some thought to replacing the glass inserts in your storm doors while they're in summer storage. Federal law requires manufacturers to use other than breakable glass in new doors. Too many children have been injured by the glass breaking. Many manufacturers have switched to a Plexiglas-type material. It's a good idea to have your old glass doors replaced also.

Leaky Basement?

Most basement moisture problems are caused by stopped up gutters and downspouts instead of faulty basement walls. Clean out those gutters, getting rid of last year's leaves and bird nests. Water that is not carried away from foundation walls will seep through almost any construction. It's only a half-hour job to solve the problem.

Faucet Improvement

Tired of a one-outlet outside faucet? New on the market is a "Y" type faucet adapter (about 69¢) that makes the single outside faucet into a double outlet. Hook the garden hose to one side of the adapter and the other side performs unhampered. A small valve permits you to use either side individually or together. Beats looking for the other end of the garden hose when all you want is a bucket of water!

Gutter Repair

If your home has built-in gutters, don't let them rot away. They're really the best type to have if you will just give them a little attention. Clean them thoroughly each spring. Then, use a cold asphalt mix that is available in gallon or five-gallon cans. Coat the gutters with the asphalt to reseal any cracks that may have occurred over the past winter. Leaky built-in gutters can cause a big repair job on soffits.

Patio Lights

Spruce up a patio with attractive outdoor copper lights or lanterns. Copper is expensive, but I think its charm is worth it. Simple rules for working with copper: Wear gloves, because the edges are sharp.

Thoroughly clean all parts before soldering. When soldering, use acid core solder. Let the heat of the copper melt the solder and you'll get a good joint. Designs? Antique books, catalogs, etc., show a host of them. To form the lantern

Sports Mini-Profile

HARNESS RACING'S
HERVE FILION:
The $350,000 Superstar
No One Knows

Not counting the bonus babies and walking conglomerates like Arnold Palmer, which U.S. athlete made the most money last year? Surprisingly, it was a harness-racing driver with the unheard of name of Herve Filion. During the last racing season, he won a record total of 605 races (the old record was 312), which is equivalent to a baseball pitcher winning about 45 games. He earned more than $2.5 million in purses, and his own earnings came to better than $350,000. . . .

Filion sometimes drives in as many as 20 races a day. He competes in daytime racing on New Jersey tracks, then flies by helicopter to Roosevelt Raceway, Long Island, N.Y., where he participates in night racing. . . . Born in the farm country of Angers, Quebec, Filion has been hooked on harness racing ever since he first saw it at a country fair when he was nine. He became a race driver at the tender age of 12, and won his first race when he was 13 (his purse was $5). What makes him so good? "It's because I truly love horses," he says. "I have confidence in them and leave them free to express themselves. They return this confident spirit. I never mistreat a horse." . . .

Filion, who is 33, is frequently called the "Iron Man" because of his day-and-night racing schedule. "I hate the name because it implies I put racing ahead of everything else, but the truth is my family comes first." ## What Kind of "Vibes" Are You Sending Your Child?

By Helen DeRosis, M.D.

Know what parental "vibes" are? Hint for beginners: "Vibes" is short for "vibrations" in the lexicon of the young. So vibes are communications of a sort. Nowadays, young people are trying to get away from parental vibes. Let me explain about them.

If you have ever been on board any ocean liner, you probably know that steady throb of the engines and the vibrations they generate. After several days at sea, you want to shout, "Will you stop a minute!" There is a quality of pervasiveness and intrusiveness in the vibrations. After a while you may learn to live with them, but there is always a certain sense of intrusiveness. We might call it a form of sensory pollution.

It's an unkindness, perhaps, to say that parental vibes are a kind of pollutant. But they are pollutants, at least when they have an adverse effect upon the youngster. After all, let's call a spade a spade. If parents have the power to influence their offspring constructively, they also have the power to do so adversely—by gentle, invisible, inexorable, unknowing destructiveness over many years. If this is so, wouldn't you as a parent want to know about it, recognize it, understand it, and hopefully change it for something else?

Youngsters tend to view adults' evaluation of their behavior as either good or bad, liked or disliked. They tend not to see this evaluation on a spectrum—from one end, good, to the other end, bad. Adults will argue that offspring behavior is sometimes excellent; very good, not so good, fair, and so on all the way to very poor and impossible. Yet if you ask a parent point-blank about any one piece of behavior—"How do you feel about it? Was it good or bad?"—he will equivocate, generalize and go into a series

Dr. DeRosis, a psychoanalyst, is associated with Roosevelt Hospital and Columbia University in New York. She is also editor of the "American Journal of Psychoanalysis."

"If parents have the power to influence their offspring constructively, they also have the power to do so adversely."

of ifs. "That's bad if I feel tired or if I feel rushed." "No, no," you insist. "Good or bad?" Finally, if he can be honest, he will choose one alternative or the other. The rest are mostly a lot of intellectualization, with which the child is unconcerned but by which he may be confused. The child does, however, have the ability to cut through the embellishments and get down to the good-or-bad of the evaluation.

So the question is: What kind of messages do you send out to your children when you respond to them? Let me give one brief example: A young woman was walking along the street with her four-year-old tagging along a few steps behind her. She turned around and saw that he had picked up a colorful candy wrapper from the sidewalk. She advanced toward him with an expression of utter disgust on her face, "Where did you get that!" she snarled. Her manner and tone left no doubt that he was a bad boy who had picked up something that was going to do him inestimable harm. Ostensibly, she is concerned for his health. But—why all the ugliness? Why does she pounce on him with such desperation?

There are many reasons Mommy gets angry when her child does something she considers wrong. For one thing, she gets angry with herself for not having trained her child properly. (What kind of a Mommy are you, that your child picks up garbage?) Her belief is that a really "good mother" would have a child who never did anything wrong. This is a reflection on her own shortcomings for the world to see. She cannot stand to look at it. So the little one gets the flak, and a lot of bad vibes.

The rage she feels toward him is actually rage she feels toward herself for being "a poor parent." The intensity of the rage points to the intensity of the standard of parenthood she holds up for herself. The parent who does not have such strangling standards can be more relaxed about the quality of his parenting, and does not therefore feel the rage that this mother does.

A Reader's Remembrance

The Day I Met Paul Newman

I may be the only woman in the world to be embraced by Paul Newman and be upset by it. To explain: In my stagestruck youth, I used to haunt theaters, sometimes seeking interviews with actors for our high school newspaper, sometimes with sketch pad in hand, sometimes just to absorb the atmosphere.

"He smiled and shouted, 'Hi, honey, how are you?'"

One day a kindly stage doorman arranged for me to watch and sketch an understudy rehearsal of the then-current smash hit, "Picnic." The star was Ralph Meeker, but the second male lead was also his understudy: a young unknown named Paul Newman. Since it was an understudy rehearsal, Mr. Newman was playing the starring role that afternoon.

I was intent on the play, doing my best to sketch in the darkness, when someone plunked into a seat beside me. Paul Newman peered at my drawings and said, "I don't know how you can see anything from way back here. Come on!" The next thing I knew, I was being led by the hand up the aisle and on to the brilliantly lit Kansas-front-yard set. While the cast took a break, Mr. Newman showed me around. Finally he seated me on a canvas-and-wood tree stump.

"I certainly do admire people that are artistic," he said. This was a line from "Picnic," spoken by the hero to the kid sister, Milly. Without thinking, I reacted to the cue with the proper response. He fed me another line and there we were, ad-libbing together—Paul Newman, the handsome transient; I, the awkward teenager. Talk about typecasting!

Blushing and feeling terribly self-conscious, I thanked Mr. Newman for showing me around, and retreated to my dark seat in the orchestra to resume sketching. It was no use; my hands were shaking so that I gave it up in a few minutes and slipped away.

Two or three years passed. I became a secretary and Paul Newman became a STAR—the hottest star in Hollywood. One evening after work I went to meet a boyfriend in the lobby of the RCA Building in New York. If you've never been in the RCA Building at 5 p.m. it's hard to imagine the rushing, swirling mob of humanity that pours in a constant stream from elevators to exits. A bit of the flood eddied in front of me. I looked up and there stood Paul Newman, studying me with a "Where have I seen you before?" expression. I smiled. He smiled and shouted, "Hi, honey, how are you?" then threw his arms around me in a bear hug. At that precise moment, my date came out of the elevator to see me being embraced by The Hottest Star in Hollywood. I pulled back; Mr. Newman pulled back; and a moment later he had disappeared into the tide, leaving me with one heck of a lot of explaining to do!

I didn't marry that boyfriend, I found someone much nicer, two thousand miles away from the RCA Building. But sometimes I wonder if Paul Newman ever figured out where he had seen me before.

Smart Cooking

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen prepares Honey Drizzle Cake, Miss Alex Andrea Allard's $5,000 grand prizewinner in the microwave division of the Pillsbury General Electric Bake-Off. "Alex," says Marilyn, "is a cute-as-a-button 19-year-old who's majoring in journalism at Trinity University in San Antonio, Texas. Honey Drizzle Cake was inspired by the Greek dessert Baklava."

A Prizewinning "Honey Drizzle Cake"

HONEY DRIZZLE CAKE

- 5 eggs, separated
  - Sugar
  - 1/2 teaspoon salt
  - 1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
  - 1 1/2 cups chopped pecans
  - 1 1/2 cups fine vanilla-wafer crumbs
  - 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
  - 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- Honey syrup, recipe below

1. Lightly grease an 8-inch-square 2-qt. glass baking pan.
2. In large bowl with electric mixer at high speed, beat egg whites until foamy throughout. Gradually beat in 1/4 cup sugar and salt. Continue beating until stiff peaks form, set aside.
3. In small bowl with mixer at high speed, beat yolks with 1/2 cup sugar and vanilla. Beat about 3-5 minutes, until very thick and pale in color.
4. On large sheet of waxed paper combine rest of ingredients except syrup.
5. Pour yolk mixture over egg whites, fold in with a light hand until evenly blended. Add pecan-crumble mixture and fold gently until well combined. Pour batter into prepared pan.
6. To cook in conventional oven, bake cake in preheated 350°F. oven for 45 minutes, or until cake tester poked in center comes out clean. If using microwave oven, cook 5 minutes, then give cake 1/2 turn. Cook 6 more minutes.
7. Remove from oven and pour hot syrup over hot cake.

HONEY SYRUP

- 1 1/2 cups sugar
- 2/3 cup honey
- 1 1/2 cups water

1. Combine all ingredients in 2-qt. glass baking dish. To cook on conventional range, place all ingredients in medium saucepan. Heat, stirring constantly, until sugar dissolves. Continue cooking to boiling point. To cook in microwave oven, cook 3 minutes, stir; cook 3 minutes, stir; cook 5 minutes longer.

ALEX'S FIESTA CHICKEN FUN FARE

- 1 2 1/2-3-lb. chicken, cut up
- 1 cup buttermilk
- 3/4 cup flour
- 1/4 cup yellow cornmeal
- 1 teaspoon garlic salt
- 1 teaspoon chili powder
- 1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine

1. Preheat oven to 375°F.
2. Rinse chicken in cold water, pat dry with paper towels.
3. Dip chicken pieces in buttermilk, then in mixture of flour, cornmeal, garlic salt, chili powder and Parmesan cheese.
4. Melt butter in large shallow baking pan. Add chicken, placing skin side down.
5. Bake 20 minutes. Turn chicken and bake 20-25 minutes longer, until done. Makes 4 servings

Honey Drizzle Cake takes 45 minutes in a conventional oven, 11 minutes in a microwave oven.

Another loser three years later: Gay Jepertinger Cakanic

By Ruth L. McCarthy

SHE's really a two-time loser. I know. I recently saw Gay Jepertinger Cakanic and she was even thinner than she'd been after her 37-pound weight loss, three years ago.

That's when I interviewed her for the first time and wrote her story. The experience of a teenager who grew sideways almost as fast as she inched upwards. And she'd had plenty of exercise, too. Every kind of dancing lesson a girl could want: ballet, hula, tap, even tumbling. But it was to no avail, because of her appetite. Milk shakes, potato chips, hamburgers smothered with fried onions and served on buttered buns, candy, ice cream, cream puffs—these were just some of the schoolgirl goodies that pushed her to 175 pounds and a lot of dateless days.

Lucky for Gay that her mother had known about those reducing-plan candies, Ayds®. Her mother picked up a box at the drugstore and if she hadn't, maybe Gay wouldn't be married today. Those vanilla caramel Ayds were just what Gay needed to satisfy her sweet tooth. She took one or two before each meal, like the directions say, and Ayds really helped her cut back on what she ate. Safely, too. You see, Ayds contains vitamins and minerals, no drugs.

The result? On the Ayds plan she lost 37 pounds, lost her nickname, "Tubs", and found a husband. For slim, 18-year old Gay became a hostess at a USO Canteen in Milwaukee and the boys all thought she was a living doll. One, however, fell harder than the others. Steve Cakanic. When she kissed him goodbye, he left a ring on her finger and the promise of marriage after his return from Viet Nam.

Steve kept that promise too. He came back and whisked her off to a Hawaiian honeymoon. Unfortunately, I can't say that they lived happily ever after. At least, not for the next year.

For after the cake and orange blossoms became a photo album memory, Steve had another 12 months in the Service. So Gay and he drove down to his base in California and faced a number of nitty-gritty problems. Their car konked out. Their apartment was overpriced. The promised air conditioner never appeared. And Steve's paycheck got caught up in red tape. Finally, Gay let pizzas and tacos take over for economy's sake. And as you'd guess, her weight started to climb and her clothes began to get tight. That's when Gay had to decide whether to buy a new wardrobe or Ayds.

After At 138 lbs., I had something to skip about.

No question about what she did. I know because I met Gay and Steve in New York a short while ago and she looked simply great. By following the Ayds plan again, she dropped down to 134 smiling pounds. One other thing she told me was that she did a lot of walking to firm up her body—and it sure showed.

Actually, I wound up with a storybook ending for the interview. Today, life is bright once again for Gay Jepertinger Cakanic. Both Steve and she have interesting jobs and they're buying a home in Milwaukee, Wis. Plus smaller-size clothes for Gay, including a bikini which Steve says looks like a bottom and two Band-Aids. But she's got the figure for it, now. In fact, her new motto is: "Look good enough so Steve won't ever look away." Quite a tribute to the Ayds plan, wouldn't you say?

BARRIS AND PRETTY MODEL GO FOR A SPIN
The car designer's designer drives his 3-wheel "Sidewinder"

Back in the early 1940's George Barris was just another crazy hot rodder looking for trouble. Today, as president of Barris Kustom Industries, North Hollywood, Calif., George Barris is lionized by car experts everywhere as one of the leading automotive designers in the world. It was he who designed TV's Batmobile and the car from "Chitty Chitty Bang Bang." Among the celebrities who have commissioned Barris to design their cars are Lionel Hampton, Liberace, Keenan Wynn, Dean Martin, Frank Sinatra, Elvis Presley and Barry Goldwater. Bing Crosby and Bob Hope retained Barris to customize their golf carts to look like their faces. When "Laugh-In's" Dick Martin bought an Italian-made Stutz, he paid George $35,000 to lacquer it his own custom color and line it with mink. Of a more practical nature, John Wayne simply has the roof of his annual new station wagon raised six inches to make it easier for him to climb in and out.

Does solitary confinement make a prisoner repent? If he's aggressive or antisocial, isolation only makes him more so, say Dr. Francis DeFuedis and other researchers at the Indiana University School of Medicine. Studying mice, they found that the animals' brain chemistry actually changed when they were placed in isolation—although they had ample food and water — and gradually eased back to normal when they rejoined their colonies. But they were violent and aggressive to their fellow mice. The researchers haven't yet experimented with humans, but they speculate that it doesn't make sense to punish aggressive prisoners by isolating them, because they come out "with even-less ability to control their behavior."

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY

By Richard Armour

BAD TRIP

Say you and your wife take a trip with friends,
Old friends and the dearest of dear.
Two weeks or a month, from morning till night,
You're always together or near.

The first day is fine. The second's so-so.
The third, things begin to go sour.
By the end of a week you are thinking of mayhem
And counting each passing hour.

At last you get home. Oh, that happy day
When you stand on your Welcome mat.

Your trip is finished at last, but your friendship
Was finished some time before that.

DAGWOOD, WILL YOU WATCH RONALD FOR MARTHA WHILE WE DO SOME SHOPPING?

SURE

STAY RIGHT THERE, RONALD -- AND I'LL GET YOU SOME MILK AND COOKIES

RONALD?

RONALD -- WHERE ARE YOU?

RONALD?

I'VE SEARCHED EVERY ROOM IN THE HOUSE -- HE MUST HAVE GONE OUTSIDE

RONALD

I COMBED THE WHOLE NEIGHBORHOOD AND THERE'S NOT A TRACE OF HIM

WHERE COULD HE BE? WHAT SHOULD I DO?

MARTHA -- I ... MOMMY

IT SURE WOULD BE INTERESTING TO KNOW WHERE HE WAS ALL THAT TIME

The use of a SEER in POLICE WORK

- IS AN INDICTMENT OF THE DIRECTING OFFICER'S INTELLIGENCE AND DEGRADES HIS DEPARTMENT AND THOSE HE COMMANDS.

NO, B.O. AND HIS WIFE DIDN'T ABDUCT ME! IN FACT, HE BUYS RETREADED TIRES FROM FROM ME. HE'S MY CUSTOMER.

YOU DAD-BURNED RIGHT.

WHAR'S BRACY? TRACY'S NOT HERE BUT THEY'VE RECOVERED YOUR TRUCK.

APPARENTLY STRIPPERS WERE GOING TO WORK ON IT, BUT THEY CHANGED THEIR MINDS.

SEEMS THEY FOUND EVERYTHING SO OLD AND WORN AND OUT OF DATE THERE WAS NO MARKET FOR THE PARTS.

SWEET BABY.

MEANWHILE, TRACY'S EFFORTS TO APPREHEND "BUTTON" HAVE LED HIM TO THE HEALTH CLUB.

I'VE CANCELLED ALL CABINET BATHS FOR THE REST OF THE MORNING.

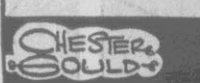

"BUTTON" IS IN THE SAUNA NOW. YOU'RE SURE HE'LL HAVE TO PASS THIS WAY TO COME OUT?

NOT NECESSARILY, BUT HE USUALLY DOES.

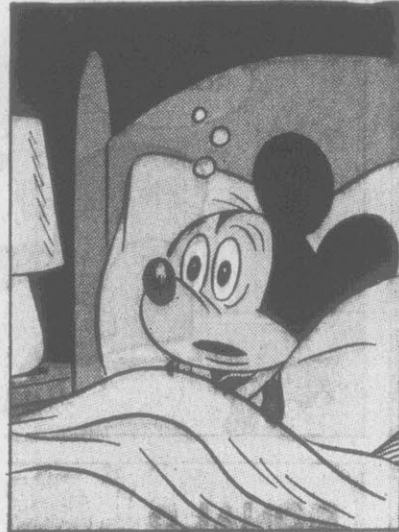

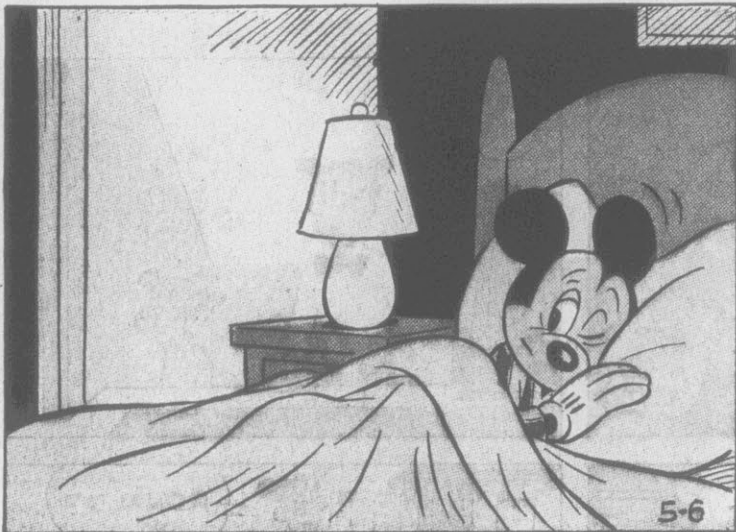

OKAY, WILFRED, LET'S MAKE IT LOOK REAL.

NOW, WITH WET TOWELS AROUND THE HEAD AND THE HEAT TURNED ON --

NOW WHAT, MR. TRACY? WILFRED, I SUGGEST YOU SCRAM.

Our Story: THE CORONATION IS HELD IN ALL POMP AND CEREMONY AND GRIMNER BECOMES KING OF HOLVIK. BUT IT IS THE NEXT CEREMONY THAT INTERESTS THE PRINCESS FRIEDA. HER MARRIAGE TO GRIMNER WILL JOIN TWO SMALL FIEFS WITH BLOOD TIES AND SHE INTENDS TO RULE BOTH.

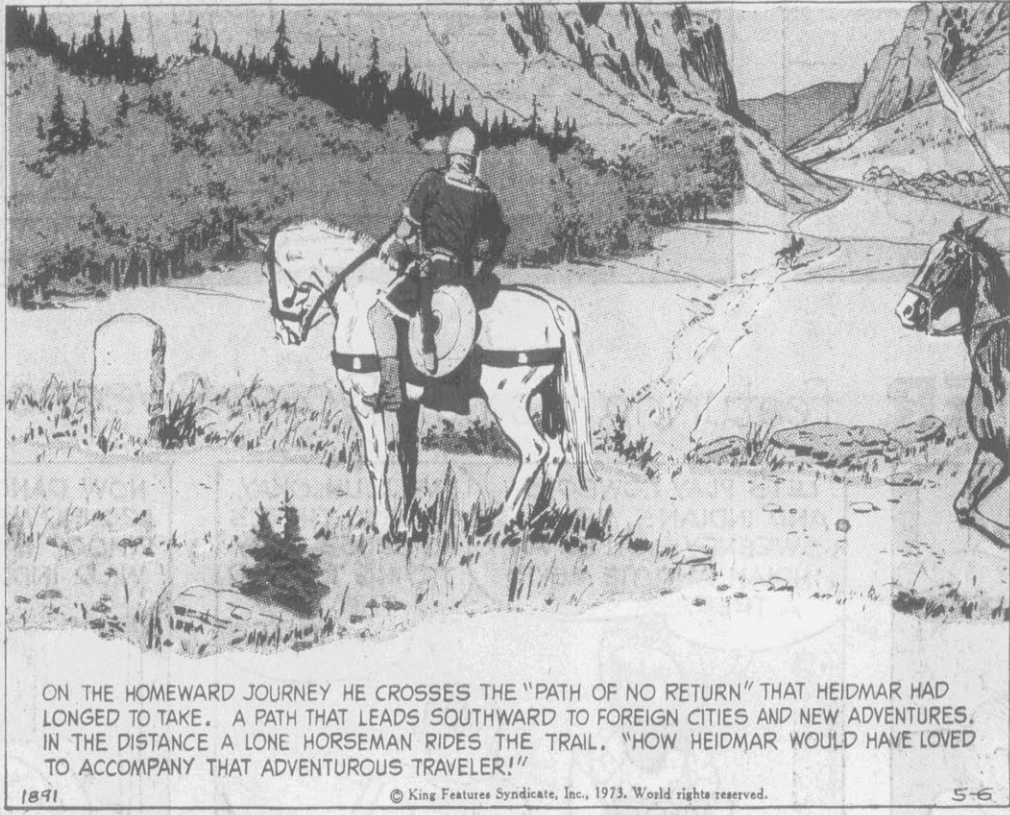

NOW THE NEWLY CROWNED KING MUST TAKE THE OATH OF FEALTY TO KING AGUAR OF THULE. PRINCE ARN, AS REPRESENTATIVE OF THE GREAT KING, TAKES GRIMNER'S HANDS BETWEEN HIS OWN AS HE SWEARS LOYALTY.

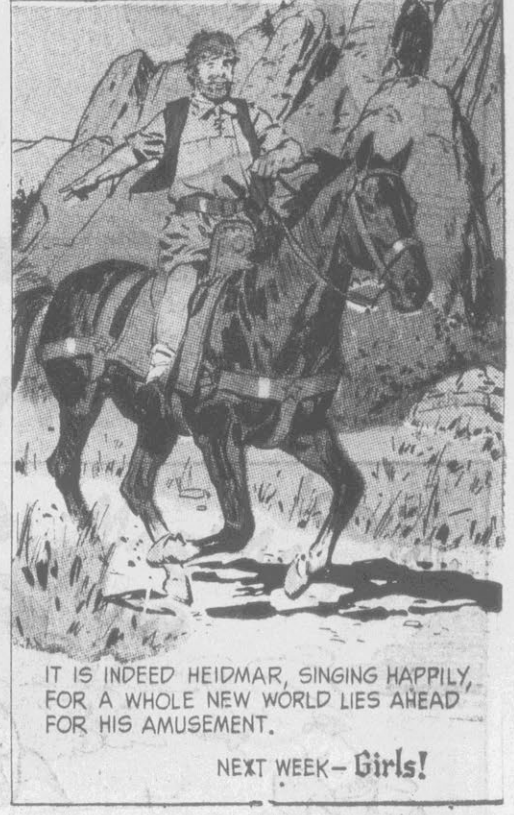

FROM THE PUBLIC GALLERY HEIDMAR NODS APPROVAL. THE CORONATION HAS BEEN FLAWLESS. EVERY TEDIOUS DETAIL CARRIED OUT TO ITS BORING END.

PRINCE ARN IS NOW FREE TO RETURN, GRIEVING FOR THE LOSS OF HIS FRIEND, HEIDMAR, AND SUSPECTING HIS DEATH TO HAVE BEEN PROMPTED.

ON THE HOMEWARD JOURNEY HE CROSSES THE "PATH OF NO RETURN" THAT HEIDMAR HAD LONGED TO TAKE. A PATH THAT LEADS SOUTHWARD TO FOREIGN CITIES AND NEW ADVENTURES. IN THE DISTANCE A LONE HORSEMAN RIDES THE TRAIL. "HOW HEIDMAR WOULD HAVE LOVED TO ACCOMPANY THAT ADVENTUROUS TRAVELER!"

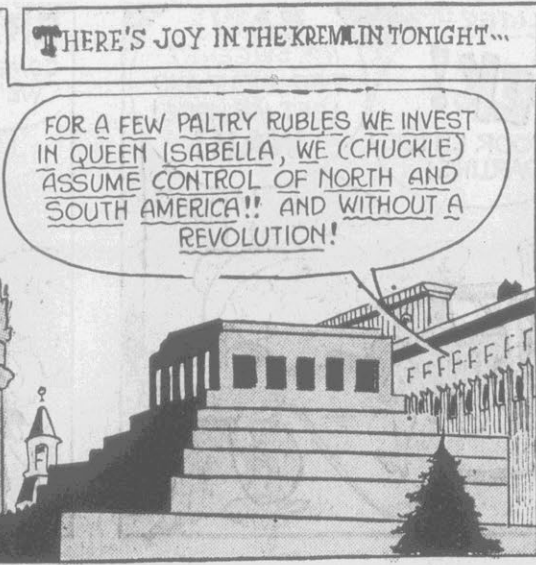

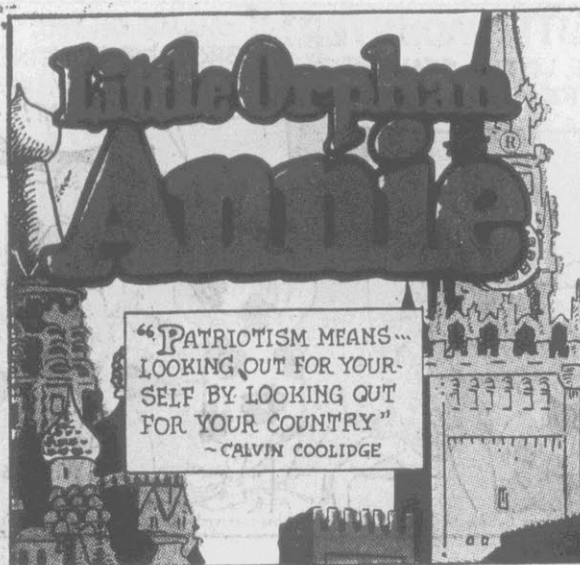

IT IS INDEED HEIDMAR, SINGING HAPPILY, FOR A WHOLE NEW WORLD LIES AHEAD FOR HIS AMUSEMENT.

THERE'S JOY IN THE KREMLIN TONIGHT...

FOR A FEW PALTRY RUBLES WE INVEST IN QUEEN ISABELLA, WE (CHUCKLE) ASSUME CONTROL OF NORTH AND SOUTH AMERICA!! AND WITHOUT A REVOLUTION!

"PATRIOTISM MEANS... LOOKING OUT FOR YOURSELF BY LOOKING OUT FOR YOUR COUNTRY" - CALVIN COOLIDGE

IS HE ALMOST FINISHED READIN' IT, MR. PRESIDENT?

I THINK SO, ANNIE! PROFESSOR QUINCY....?

IT'S THE MOST AMAZING DOCUMENT, MR. PRESIDENT! THERE IS NO DOUBT IN MY MIND THAT IT IS ABSOLUTELY AUTHENTIC!

AND CAN YOU PUT A DATE ON IT?

AS NEAR AS I CAN MAKE OUT, THIS CONCH SHELL WAS WRITTEN IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD OF 1300 B.C.

THAT'S A PRETTY COMFORTING NEIGHBORHOOD, PROFESSOR!

WHAT HIM SAYING?

I'M NOT SURE, CHIEF... BUT I THINK HE'S SCORIN' FOR OUR SIDE!

LATER... THE QUEEN ARRIVES AND GIVES HER FIRST ROYAL COMMAND...

LOP OFF THAT WRETCHED CHILD'S HEAD! THAT OUGHT TO TEACH HER WHO'S BOSS AROUND NORTH AND SOUTH AMERICA!!

THERE ARE A FEW ROUTINE MATTERS THAT HAVE TO BE SETTLED BEFORE I'M READY TO RETIRE, QUEEN ISABELLA...

ARE YOU QUESTIONING THE AUTHENTICITY OF THE DOCUMENT THAT MADE MY ANCESTOR, THE ORIGINAL QUEEN ISABELLA, SOLE PROPRIETOR OF THE TWO WESTERN CONTINENTS? AND ME HER LEGITIMATE HEIR??

WE'VE SATISFIED OURSELVES THAT YOUR PARCHMENT IS GENUINE, QUEEN ISABELLA...

THEN WHAT'RE WE WAITING FOR? YOU'RE ASKING FOR TROUBLE, MR. EX-PRESIDENT, WHEN YOU TRY MY PATIENCE!!

HAVE PROF. QUINCY COME IN... WITH THE INDIAN CONCH SHELL, PLEASE!

YES, SIR!

WHAT'S GOING ON HERE? WHO IS THIS CLOWN AND WHAT'S THAT KING-SIZED CLAM HAVE TO DO WITH MY RIGHT TO RULE?

EVERYTHING, YOUR HIGHNESS! YOU MAY PROCEED, PROFESSOR!

BUT OUR DEAL WITH THE QUEEN WAS TO RECEIVE NEW YORK, CALIFORNIA, ARIZONA AND BRAZIL FOR FINANCING HER CLAIM, COMRADE!

WHAT WE DID NOT INFORM HER ROYAL HIGHNESS, WAS THAT... THOSE WERE FOR OPENERS!!
