Says He Was Told Nixon Knew Of Clemency Offer

McCord Testifying In Watergate Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Watergate burglar James W. McCord Jr. testified today he was told President Nixon was aware of offers of clemency made to him.

He told the Senate Watergate committee that he was told by John Caulfield, a White House aide, that the President was aware of the offers of clemency and "the results of the meeting would be conveyed to the President."

He also said "at a future meeting there would likely be a personal message from the President himself."

"The President's ability to govern is at stake," McCord said Caulfield told him at one of their meetings—"Another Teapot Dome scandal is possible and the government may fall."

McCord said he repeatedly told Caulfield he would not accept the offer.

Caulfield told him the others arrested were going along by pleading guilty or keeping silent but "you are not following the game plan," McCord said.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., chairman of the committee, repeated throughout McCord's testimony that hearsay testimony would not be accepted in a court of law and that the references to Nixon were such second-hand evidence.

McCord said the offer "was conveyed to me in 1973 by John Caulfield to remain silent, take executive clemency by going off to jail quietly and I was told there, I would receive financial aid and later rehabilitation."

Then, McCord said, Caulfield assured him of the President's interest.

The meeting in January was during the time McCord and G. Gordon Liddy were on trial for the June 17, 1972, breakin at Democratic Party headquarters.

McCord and Liddy were the only two of seven persons charged who stood trial. The other five pleaded guilty to charges of conspiracy, burglary and illegal wiretapping.

McCord did not say where the meeting took place. He made his statement when committee counsel Sam Dash asked about political pressure applied to the defendants.

McCord told about the meeting with Caulfield and said:

"I was further told at a January meeting in 1973 that the President of the United States was aware of our meeting, that the results of the meeting would be conveyed to the President and at a future meeting there would likely be a personal message from the President himself."

McCord said he got mixed up in the Watergate affair because he was told Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, presidential counsel John W. Dean III and Nixon campaign deputy Jeb S. Magruder had approved it.

McCord, taking the stand in the second day of televised hearings, said he was sorry he mad been involved in the affair. He repeated that he had received money after his burglary arrest, and that he was told it came from the Committee for the Re-election of the President and was given in return for his silence.

Speaking slowly, in a husky low voice, the retired Central Intelligence Agency employe said the CIA had in no way been involved in the wiretapping. "Quite the contrary," he said.

The committee's chief counsel, Sam Dash, asked McCord, "Why, after a lifetime of work as a law enforcement officer, without a blemish on your career, did you engage ... in a program of burglary and breakin?"

McCord said there were a number of reasons, but "a very important" one was that "the attorney general himself, Mr. John Mitchell, at his office had considered and approved the operation, according to Mr. Liddy." He referred to G. Gordon Liddy, the alleged mastermind of the Watergate raid and one of seven men already convicted for it.

McCord, convicted of burglary, wiretapping and conspiracy in the case, promised to testify fully, although he said his memory may have faded about some of the events from a year or more ago.

And he said he is sorry he'd ever been mixed up in the affair.

"Whatever reasons I may have had at the time, whatever rationale I may have had at the time, was in error, was a mistake, a very grave mistake, which I regret," he said.

Before McCord began his testimony the Senate select Watergate committee heard 23 minutes of testimony from police officer Carl Shoffler, one of three casual-clothes policemen who arrested McCord and four other men inside the headquarters of the Democratic Party in the Watergate building in the early hours of last June 17.

Shoffler, saying nothing that hadn't been made public before, related how he had spotted a man, who later turned out to be Alfred C. Baldwin, on a balcony of the Howard Johnson motel across the street from the Watergate building that morning.

Two members of the seven-man Senate committee, Republicans Lowell P. Weicker of Connecticut and Howard Baker of Tennessee, predicted that McCord's testimony would produce some new disclosures.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon was not watching the televised hearings.

Tuesday New Adjournment Goal

Senate Enacts Minimum Wage Increase

RALEIGH (AP) — The Senate enacted a bill increasing North Carolina's legal minimum wage from $1.60 to $1.80 per hour Thursday as a host of other measures were acted on in the drive for adjournment now tentatively set for next Tuesday.

Other actions included:

—A bill aimed at helping farmers who live near municipalities by taxing their land at its value for farm land instead of its actual value cleared the House and headed for the Senate.

—The Senate amended and then passed a measure which would replace the assigned risk auto insurance plan with a reinsurance system for high-risk drivers. The bill goes back to the House for approval of the Senate amendment.

—The House put off until at least next year a legislative ethics measure, by referring the Senate-passed bill to its Rules Committee. Rep. Bob Jones, D-Rutherford, told the House the measure was full of loopholes.

—The House accepted a recommendation of a conference committee on a bill that would make it possible for students in state universities to qualify for in-state tuition rates if they can prove they have been domiciled in the state for a year. Senate approval would enact the measure into law.

—The House approved and held for final action Friday a measure that would prevent a person convicted of a felony with a deadly weapon from being paroled until he had served at least three-fourths of his sentence. A prisoner can now be considered for parole when he has served one-fourth of his sentence.

—The Senate passed a measure to revise the Teacher Employment and Dismissal Act of 1971 after amending it to delay the act's effect until July 1, 1974. The bill will go back to the House for approval of the Senate amendment.

—The House tentatively approved and held for further action Friday a bill that says vacancies in elective office shall be filled by members of the party of the person who created the vacancy.

The bill on filling vacancies was amended by Rep. Herbert Hyde, D-Buncombe so that it would not apply to members of the Council of State, judges or U.S. senators. This meant that the bill would apply only to local officials. Republicans strongly objected to the measure.

The Senate voted 25-20 to adopt an amendment to the reinsurance facility bill offered by Sen. Jack Rhyne, D-Gaston. Rhyne said his amendment would ensure that a good driver with no points for violations would not be required to pay surcharges for his auto collision insurance.

Under the reinsurance proposal, a motorist would go to his own insurance agent to buy his auto liability coverage. He would be given immediate coverage with the company of his choice, but the company could later reinsure the policy if it considered the motorist a poor risk.

In enacting the minimum wage measure, the Senate beat down amendments to change its effective day until next Feb. 3 and to Sept. 3.

Edenton Arrests Mount

EDENTON, N.C. (AP)—Law enforcement officials have arrested more than 100 persons in the coastal community of Edenton since the beginning of protests four days ago over the dismissal of a high school band director.

Sixty-six were arrested Wednesday night for failing to dispurse when police ordered them to break up sit-ins at Holmes High School and the Chowan County Office Building. Ten were arrested Thursday at another sit-in at the high school.

Thursday afternoon Highway Patrolmen took about 35 more black demonstrators into custody, after halting a march.

Patol Capt. Ed Williamson of Greenville, commander of the more than 30 troopers temporarily assigned to Edenton, said those arrested would be charged with parading without a permit and blocking traffic.

Troopers in riot gear forcibly carried many of the kicking, protesting marchers to a prison bus and physically threw some of the young blacks into the bus.

Golden Frinks, state field secretary of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and an organizer of the Edenton demonstrations, was among those arrested Thursday afternoon. He and all others over the age of 16 were being held under $500 bond each. Officers said all juveniles were released to their parents.

Montague Williams, sophomore of Rose High School, and Austin Britt, president of the Boys' Club of Pitt County, were recipients of two major awards at the annual Boys' Club Awards Banquet held at the Moose Lodge Thursday night.

Williams, cited for outstanding work in the Boys' Club as well as excellence in academic achievement and faithfulness in church work, received the Dave Wilcox Memorial Award.

This award for character and leadership was established in memory of the late David Wilcox, who died in a boating accident near Washington on June 17, 1972. Wilcox was executive director of the club at the time of his death.

The award was presented to Williams by Mrs. Glenn Swisher, mother of the late director. The ceremony was also attended by Mr. Swisher, Wilcox's stepfather, and by Wilcox's sisters. The Swishers traveled from Virginia Beach, Virginia to attend the awards banquet.

The Boys' Club Medallion was presented Board of Director president Austin Britt by David Henshaw of Atlanta, Regional Director, Boys' Clubs of America. Henshaw praised Britt for his tireless efforts in fund raising and in devotion of time and energy in getting the local Boys' Club established.

"On behalf of the directors and all the citizens of Greenville who have supported the club, I accept this honor," Britt said after receiving the highest award of the Boys' Club.

Hospital Study Offer Declined

The Pitt Memorial Hospital Trustees' Executive Committee last night turned down an offer by the George S. May International Company to conduct an efficiency study at the hospital for $24,300.

The group met with a representative of the May Company, but said after the hour and a half session that they did not feel he could offer enough concrete evidence of how a substantial enough savings could result from the study to warrant the large expenditure. Findings were presented in Tuesday night's regular Board of Trustees' meeting by Dr. John Baker of the May Comapny.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Florida's Lt. Gov. Tom Adams has been censured by the House of Representatives for allegedly sending state employes on personal erands.

Registrar Will Be At City Hall

Beginning Monday, a registrar will be available at the Greenville City Hall to accept applications for registration to vote and applications for precinct address changes.

Miss Alya Taylor, County Precinct Registrar, has been appointed by the Pitt County Board of Elections to man the City Hall Registration Office through September 7, 1973.

The Greenville City Council, at its April meeting, requested that a full-time registration office be opened at the City Hall for the convenience of the voters until the County Election Office is moved from its present third-floor Courthouse location.

Under the provisions of the 1971 Uniform Municipal Election Law, the County registration records are the official records for all towns with the County. Residents now need to register only one time to be eligible to vote in all elections—City, County, State and Federal. Greenville residents may register at either the City Hall OR County Courthouse offices from 8:30 A.M. to 5:00 P.M., Monday through Friday.

Mrs. Myra Cain, chairman of the Greenville Board of Elections, said that any voter who has made a move of residence within Greenville that results in a change of precinct is required to appear before the registrar to have the change recorded. This applies also to voters who have had a name change due to marriage or for other reasons.

Plans For Farmville Shopping Center Announced

FARMVILLE—Plans for construction of a shopping center here have been announced by Horton and Associates, Inc. which will develop Paul Jones Mall on US. Highway 264 Bypass on part of the Dr. Paul E. Jones property located across the highway from the new A.C. Monk Factory.

The shopping center will include more than 140,000 square feet of space on the 12-acre site. Paved parking for more than 750 cars will be provided in addition to separate employee parking. Efforts will be made to preserve the natural beauty of the area by retaining groupings of native trees.

Marvin Horton, president of the developer, said, "In this 101st year of Farmville's History we are proud to announce plans for construction of a centennial shopping center. It has been in the planning stages for a ling time and we believe it will be of great benefit to the town and surrounding trade area. Its location was approved many months ago by the Town of Farmville Planning Board and fits in perfectly with the long range development of the greater Farmville Community,".

Plans for the center call for a partially enclosed mall which will contain a major food store, department store, variety store, drug store, bank, shoe store, ladies' and mens' clothing store with several other shops and stores. Horton said that negotiations are continuing on leases and that several major tenants have made commitments to locate in the center.

Leasing and development is being handled by Blue Ribbon Properties, Inc. and directly with the developer.

The shopping center will be constructed of structural steel, brick and masonry. Horton pointed out that it is his company's intention to have a design that is inviting to the public and in keeping with the progress now being made in the Farmville area. He also noted that the center's plan will allow easy access to the site by residents of Farmville as well as the surrounding trade area.

Three Sought In Killing Alday Family Captured

By ROGER PETTERSON
Associated Press Writer

WELCH, W.Va. (AP) — Three men sought in the killings of six members of a Georgia family were captured today near this southern West Virginia town, state police said.

No details on the capture were immediately available.

A fourth man sought in the case was captured Thursday at a police roadblock near here.

George Wangee, a 35-year-old escaped convict, was arrested Thursday at a police roadblock set up after four men robbed a grocery store across the border in Virginia.

Dungee was held in the McDowell County jail in Welch after making a statement to local authorities.

He was arrested Thursday after four men robbed a grocery store in Slate Creek, Va., of $3,000 and several pistols and rifles.

Police said Dungee's three companions fled into a remote mountainous area after Dungee was captured. FBI agents had joined West Virginia and Virginia police in the search.

search.

At Donalsonville, Ga., Sheriff Dan White said a Georgia Department of Investigation plane had left for West Virginia with warrants charging the four persons with six counts of murder each.

White said he is requesting immediate extradition of the four to Georgia, but that they would not be jailed in Seminole County because of the ill feeling among the residents of the rural community.

"They will be jailed outside of Seminole County," the sheriff said. "I have an obligation to protect everybody. I want them brought to court. I want them brought to justice."

The four were wanted in connection with the slaying of six members of a Reynoldsville, Ga., family Monday night. The bodies of Ned Alday, 62, his brother, Aubrey, 57, and sons Jerry, 35, Chester, 32, and Jimmy, 25, were found early Tuesday in the mobile home in which Jerry lived. Police described the killings as similar to executions.

Police later found the nude body of Jerry's wife, Mary, 26, nearby. She had been raped and shot.

The four men crossed the border into West Virginia after allegedly robbing a grocery store in Slate Creek, Va., of $3,000 in cash and several pistols and rifles. The men were armed with pistols, police said, but there were no injuries.

Police said they were travelling in a car stolen from one of the victims in Georgia.

Dungee and two of the at-large suspects — Carl Isaacs Jr., 19, and Wayne Coleman, 26 — are escapees from a work camp in Maryland. The fourth suspect is Isaacs' half-brother William, 16.

In Reynoldsville Thursday, some 2,500 persons turned out for the funerals of the six victims. An estimated 200 of them were either directly or indirectly related to the family.

DONALSONVILLE, Ga. (AP) — The mother of Mary Alday, one of six of the Alday family killed in a massacre near this farming community last Monday, died of a heart attack Thursday night, authorities reported today.

Mrs. Idus Campbell of the Colquitt community was stricken Thursday and was unable to attend services for her daughter and the other five members of the family.

She was taken to a hospital where she died during the night, authorities said.

Big Nuclear Shot Fired

RIO BLANCO, Colo. (AP) — A nuclear device four times greater than the bomb that destroyed Hiroshima exploded a mile beneath the Colorado Rockies in an effort to free natural gas trapped in underground rocks.

But the powerful explosion produced only a slight jar on the ground.

The blast, called Project Rio Blanco, involved detonation of three 30-kiloton nuclear mechanisms with a force equal to 90,000 tons of TNT. The detonation took place Thursday about 22 miles from here in northwest Colorado.

Rio Blanco is designed to help ease the energy crisis by providing inexpensive quality gas to the nation. If test results prove favorable, planners hope for hundreds and perhaps thousands of other nuclear detonations to develop the vast gas resources in the Rocky Mountain region.

Many of the 500 spectators at the observation point 12 miles from ground zero seemed disappointed the blast was not more exciting.

They learned the cost of living in these homes, and the different modeling styles. Also they learned where they could borrow money to buy a house. The classes went to the Three Steers for dinner.

Mrs. Austin notes that feeder pigs and breeding animals still have to be inspected according to the government regulations. A permit will have to be issued before they can be moved from farm to farm. This permit is good for ten days. Please call him in order to have time to make commitments. He can be reached at 756-3440 or 752-4734.

Tornado Strikes Mobile Homes In Raleigh Area

RALEIGH (AP)—A mobile home lot in Raleigh suffered an estimated $100,000 in damages Thursday when a small tornado struck, destroying eight mobile homes and damaging about 12 others.

No injuries were reported.

B.W. Cotton, owner of the Southwestern Mobile Home lot, said most of the damage would be covered by insurance.

Cotton's brother, Curtis Cotton, said he saw "this black funnel twisting toward me." He told a reporter he was in one of the mobile homes "30 seconds before it hit, and I'm tickled to death to be here to tell you about it."

Curtis Cotton said the twister "seemed to bounce and kept getting higher" until it went over a line of nearby trees.

Authorities had no other reports of damages in the area.

Tom Swift and his gasoline-powered lot-spotting machine

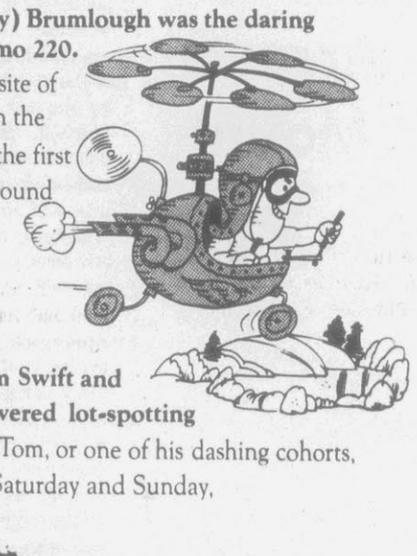

. . . WILL BE AT LAKE SAGAMORE MAY 19TH AND 20TH FROM 1 P.M. to 6 P.M.

This complicated flying machine, the invention of Helsmore Freeby, an early aeronaut, is shown as it flew over the site of what is now Lake Sagamore, in the early years of the century. The machine reportedly flew at an unprecedented height of 22 feet, and at an air speed estimated to be in excess of 14 MPH. You will not find this machine in the Smithsonian Institution.

Here we have a later model of the early "whirly bird", piloted by that dauntless fellow, Henry Smeltness, the Wright Brothers' barber. In this rare picture, we see Smeltness as he flew over what is now called Bonadelle Private Campsites, a beautiful section of Lake Sagamore 'specially chosen for campers only. We see Smeltness with a devil-may-care grin on his lips, just prior to his successful forced landing, near Hagen's barn.

Leopold (Speedy) Brumlough was the daring pilot of this Gizmo 220. He flew over the site of Lake Sagamore in the forties, while on the first leg of his daring round the world flight. He got as far as Pittsburg.

And, here is Tom Swift and his gas oline-powered lot-spotting machine today. Tom, or one of his dashing cohorts, will be on hand Saturday and Sunday,

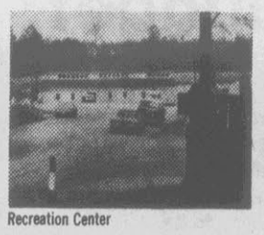

May 19th and 20th, to show you Lake Sagamore by air. After a property presentation, you and your wife may have a free 'copter ride over the lake. There are many choice lakefront and wooded lake-view properties available at Lake Sagamore, and here's your chance to view your future homesite or campsite from the air. Come on out and see the lake, now under construction, from all views, including birds-eye . . . and we promise you won't end up in Pittsburg! Thumbs up!

Currently available to all members: Recreation Center • Country store • Nature trails • Greenways. Now under construction: 345 acre lake (Under Construction) • 2 beaches • Recreation and picnic areas • Marina • Tennis and shuffleboard courts • Bridle paths. Loss Of Friend Causes Her To Feel Guilty

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I recently lost a very good friend, and the world lost a beautiful, sensitive woman of 31 who, after separating from her husband, did away with herself and her two precious children.

She confided her unhappiness to me a few years ago, and I let her unburden herself by the hour. It seemed to help her. However, in the last few months I had gotten out of close touch with her because, like so many, I was too busy to have her over.

The last time we talked on the phone, she said: "Let's get together soon." Then I put it off until it was too late.

She needed my friendship more desperately than I knew. So many people attended her funeral. But where were they when she needed them? And where was I? Wrapped up in my own little world with my own petty problems.

This has been a hard-earned lesson from which I hope to profit in the future. Abby, please tell your readers that tomorrow might be too late to offer friendly help. Had I not been so selfish I might have saved the lives of two innocent children, and their mother who must have felt that no one really cared if she lived or died. SAD AND GUILTY

DEAR GUILTY: While listening to a friend unburden herself may be an act of friendship, it doesn't provide the therapy a deeply disturbed person requires. You don't say whether your friend sought psychiatric help, but if she had not, you might have helped her more by pointing out how desperately she needed it. Your friend was more than "unhappy," she was mentally ill. Sad? Yes. Guilty? No.

DEAR ABBY: I just received an offer from a gentleman. He wants me to move into his apartment and pay half the rent. All I would have to do would be the housekeeping. He thinks it's a good deal for me because he has a color TV, a waterbed, and a microwave oven. What do you think of his offer? MITZIE

DEAR MITZIE: As I see it, in exchange for your bed and board you'd have to pay half his rent and do all the housekeeping. If you want a color TV, waterbed, and microwave oven, you'd be ahead to buy them. He doesn't mention the sleeping arrangements, but if he plans on doubling up, ask him if he considers that an incentive for you—or him.

DEAR ABBY: My husband divorced me last December, and now he says he wants his rings back. Should I return the rings, or am I entitled to keep them? I once heard that possession is nine points of the law. Does that still hold true? NEEDS TO KNOW

DEAR NEEDS: I made a deal with the legal profession: They won't write advice columns, and I won't practice law. Ring up your lawyer and ask him what to do about your rings.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Greenville Will Be Better Off

Congressman Walter B. Jones recently announced a $2,481,660 grant from the Department of Housing and Urban Development for the Southside Urban Renewal project.

The obligation was made to the Greenville Redevelopment Commission. The funds will be used for a $3 million project to rehabilitate an area in South Greenville. The city will provide $786,000 in the form of street and utilities improvements in the project area.

Four years is the estimated time for completing the project and it will involve rehabilitation of a residential area, as opposed to mass clearance of the 180 acres of land.

There is the possibility that this could be one of the last development projects funded by the federal government, where emphasis has shifted to revenue sharing rather than direct grants for specific project. There was some concern that the Southside project would not be among those to be funded.

We understand that considerable effort was made by Mayor Gene West, Congressman Jones and others to move this project through the many channels of federal government to culminate in its approval.

The result can be the rehabilitation of a neighborhood that is currently residential and the city cannot help but be better off for this.

End Of A Long Trail In Sight

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH—Like a slow train to Dullsville, the 1973 General Assembly finally is coming to a halt.

BRYAN HAISLIP

Passengers on board agreed it has been a tedious journey, lacking in excitement and emotional confrontation, even though it passed historic milestones along the way.

For the first time this centry, a legislature with Democrats in the driver's seat rode with a Republican governor. Partisan fireworks sputtered but never really exploded.

An overhaul of legislative machinery, including the switch to annual sessions, was engineered by concensus after years of debate and delay.

And while the session produced significant achievements, it left a load of freight to haul next year in unresolved issues.

"This has been a time of transition," said Rep. John S. Stevens of Buncome. Evaluation of the session, he noted, must rate as a landmark changes in legislative operation and the shift to an annual format.

"We are moving from a part-time legislature to the forerunner of almost a full-time legislature," he explained. "Of necessity, we have been feeling our way along."

Frustration Level High

That has been a factor, Stevens suggesested, in the frustration and confusion many lawmakers have encountered. They complained they worked harder on a tighter schedule, and saw less results for their labor.

Some items carried over to 1974 will benefit from the the time for study Stevens said. A disappointment, he added, was the failure to act on the no-fault concept for auto liability insurance.

Restraint has been a session keynote, said Rep. Sam Johnson of Wake. That may seem dull to the public, but it can brighten the legislation that gets enacted for the public good, he added.

Johnson cited instances where restraint guided legislative policy.

"We worked together in the altered politics of a Republican governor and a Democratic legislature. We supported the Board of Governors to make decisions for higher education, against serious threats to overturn it. We resisted the temptation to cut taxes, in spite of recommendations by the former and incumbent governors, in order to fund needed programs," he pointed out.

Budget Marked Achievement

Most legislators looked to the budget as the session's memorable accomplishment.

"What we have done for education will be long remembered," predicted Rep. Lura Tally of Cumberland. Kindergarten expansion, extended school term, and reduction in class size are forward steps for the public schools unmatched in more than a decade, she said.

A school teacher and a freshman legislator, Rep. Tally found it very exciting on the inside. "There hasn't been a dull moment," she said.

Spending for education will make the '73 session reputation, agreed Rep. Horton Rountree of Pitt.

Long term fiscal significance will come, he continued, from annual budgeting that will go along with annual sessions. "I see 1974 as an auditing session. We have spent a lot of money this time. Next year we can analyze how it has been used, and make wiser decisions for the future," he explained.

Democratic Dissension

In politics, dissension among Democrats in the two chambers over-shadowed party differences with Gov. Jim Holshouser, Rountree observed. "I've never seen more discord between the House and Senate," he said.

Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt, the state's top elective Democrat, exerted strong leadership as Senate presiding officer. Some bills backed by the House party caucus ran to a dead end when they reached the Senate.

The prize example was a state personnel measure.Its Democratic sponsors said its aim was to prevent political firings in state government. Republicans charged it would limit the governor's power to make bureaucracy respond to change.

Sen. Donald R. Kincaid, Catawba Republican, included Hunt in praising Senate Democrats "who have shown they put the interest of the state first, and political party second."

What the session proved, Kincaid said, is that two-party rule can be harmonious. "We've had as much harmony between the parties as any session I can rember. There hasn't been the political bickering you might have thought, " he said.

The highlight in legislative action, Kincaid recalled, was "stopping ERA." He referred to the Senate defeat of the equal rights for women amendment, the one occasion that produced rousing rhetroic, agitated lobbying, and a close decision.

Major Contributions Are Being Recognized

East Carolina University's new humanities building will be named for Dr. Leo Jenkins, chancellor of the institution.

The present board of trustees in one of its final acts also named the education building for Mr. and Mrs. J. Brantley Speight and the Social Science building for Dr. Lawrence Brewster.

The honors are appropriate each case. All of those honored have made exceptional contributions to East Carolina University.

Laos Uncertain After Godley

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

LONG TIENG, Laos—When G. McMurtrie Godley bid farewell to this embattled stronghold after four praiseworthy years as U. S. ambassador to Laos, the assembled Lao generals and politicians heard him promise continued U. S. protection with smiles on their lips but fear in their hearts.

Godley, promoted to Assistant Secretary of State for Far Eastern affairs, pledged U. S. bombers would respond to "flagrant and violent" Communist violations of the Feb. 22 Laos ceasefire. Later, Laos leaders wondered privately how long U. S. support, essential to keep Laos independent of its ferocious North Vietnamese neighbors, really shall continue.

Similar doubts exist within the U. S. embassy. Fatigued by America's long Indochinese burden, Congress is pressuring to end U. S. operations in Laos. Whether a Watergate-weakened President Nixon can withstand that pressure is questionable.

That would be truly ironic. In contrast with Vietnam a modest U. S. investment has reaped great benefits here. Some 1,200 U. S. officials, including several hundred military advisers from the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) have helped keep a non—communist Lao government and tie up four North Vietnamese regular divisions.

The U. S. operation has not been dismantled yet. Contrary to published reports, highly effective irregular Lao light infantry trained by the CIA remains intact though now technically integrated into the feeble Royal Lao army. Irregular units still get special pay, and CIA paramilitary experts remain assigned to them. Moreover, the two major Communist violations of the Laos ceasefire met prompt, though brief, retaliation from B-52 bombers.

Lao officials fear, however, what follows tough, determined Mac Godley, particularly during the present interregnum with John Dean, Godley's deputy, temporarily in charge. They see Dean, a skilled diplomat with extensive Asian experience, as less the cold warrior than Godley. "Dean is a dove," a Lao cabinet member told us. "We wonder whether he will ask for B-52s."

That does Dean an injustice. All government-held towns long have been non-Communist, and Dean certainly would request heavy air support if they were attacked. But doubts about the future transcend Dean's intentions. Godley's permanent successor, Charles Whitehouse, built an intelligently hard-nosed record in Vietnam (most recently as deputy ambassador) yet could be overwhelmed by Washington's mad race to disengage from Asia.

There is fear that Congress, beguiled by the lull here while Hanoi concentrates on conquering Cambodia and its massive buildup in South Vietnam, may beghin disengagement by abruptly stopping U.S. payments to over 15,000 regular army troops from Thailand necessary to bolster shredded Lao forces.

Even inside the U. S. embassy, there is informal consideration of unilaterally removing some Thai troops and CIA military advisers to prod North Vietnamese withdrawal of its 80,000 troops here. "There is no hope at all in that," Prime Minister Souvanna Phouma told us. "It will not work."

Nowhere is the dependence of Laos clearer than at Long Tieng, the often besieged but never captured bastion of Meo tribesmen. The Meos, commanded by Maj. Gen. Vang Pao, are excellent guerrilla fighters but not suited to fixed defense. Only Royal Thai army troops and massive U. S. bombing of North Vietnamese attackers last year saved Long Tieng—and with it, perhaps, Lao independence.

Van Pao is a realist. While armchair Lao generals denounce the Feb. 22 ceasefire, Vang Pao has defended it ever since Godley assured him of U.S. support against a new Communist offensive.

ONCE YOU STUMBLE IT'S A LONG CRAWL BACK!

Rejected Movie Script

WASHINGTON — It's getting harder and harder to sell fiction to the movies these days. The other day a friend of mine went to see the producers at Magna Cum Laude Productions.

"Hi, Fletch. What have you got for us this time?"

"I think I've got a fantastic yarn. It concerns a President of the United States at some time in the future."

"Go ahead, Fletch. Your President stories are always good."

"Well, you see there is this President, and he's up for re-election, and his party has to raise $15 million because the opposition party has a chance of beating him. So a committee is set up to collect the money and spend it. Now this committee decides to allocate a large sum of money for dirty tricks, sabotage, bugging and that sort of stuff."

"It's pretty farfetched so far, Fletch, but go ahead."

"The White House hires a former FBI agent and a former CIA agent...."

"Wait a minute, Fletch. Did you say the White House hires them?"

"Right. They're paid by the committee, but they work right in the White House. Their jobs are to get the goods on the opposition by bugging, forgery and burglary."

"In the script, Fletch, does the President know about all hits?"

"We don't find out until later. That's where the suspense comes in. Anyhow, the dirty tricks team made up of Cubans..."

"Hold it, Fletch. Did you say Cubans?"

"Right, the Cubans think they're working to overthrow Castro. Anyway they try to plant a bug in the opposition party's headquarters, but they're caught. Now this is where the picture gets good. The White House is afraid the whole operation will be blown, so they work out a fantastic coverup with the CIA, the FBI, and the Justice Department."

"God grief, Fletch," a producer says. "You're talking about the White House,the Justice Department, the FBI and the CIA. Do you expect the public to buy all that?"

"It gets better, " Fletch says. "One of the guys, a ex-CIA man, talks and implicates the former attorney general of the United States."

"Holy smoke," a producer says. "What have you been drinking?"

"Then," continued Fletch, "the thing really unravels. Everyone on the committee is out to save his own skin and they implicate the President's own legal counsel and half the White House staff including his two highest aides. The President goes on the air and says he is going to get to the bottom of the coverup no matter where it leads. He fires his attorney general and appoints the secretary of defense to head up the investigation."

"Thanks a lot, Fletch," a producer says. "Don't call us, we'll call you."

"Wait," cries Fletch, "I'm not finished. The White House legal counsel not only confesses to the whole thing but says the President knew about it all along."

"You have two minutes, Fletch."

"The President then goes on nationwide television says that he has just received startling new information that he is involved in the whole affair and because of this new development he is going to resign. The picture ends with the Vice President taking the Oath of Office and Frank Sinatra singing 'God Bless America.' "

There is dead silence in the room.

Finally one of the producers speaks. "Get the hell out of here, Fletch. And if you ever bring us a cockamamie script like this again we'll ban you from the studio for life."

Other Editors Say Need Reorganizing

(Chapel Hill Newspaper)

The Associated Press this week examined the upper echelon of the state payroll and, as might be expected, the salary scale makes about as much sense as President Nixon's explanation of Watergate.

You would think that the top state employee, the governor, would command the top dollar. Far from it. At $38,500 a year, the governor ranks 26th in salary.

The 25 ahead of him all are in education or the medical field.

Even within education, as a professional world unto itself, the salary scale is askew. The dean of the University Medical School, for example, is paid a couple of thousand a year more than the Chancellor to whom he is at least nominally responsible. The Medical School dean gets $1,100 more than the president of the whole University system. The president of the University system is responsible for 16 individual institutions, yet his salary is only $68 a year more than the chancellor's at one of those campuses.

Obviously, the salaries have no relation whatever to authority and responsbility.

A case can be made that the dean of the Medical School must be paid more than the governor, the president of the University system and the Chapel Hill Chancellor simply because it would be impossible to recruit a qualified man for less money. No one will deny that medical men come high. But sense could be lent to the salary scale simply by raising the lower salaries so that they would be somewhat more commensurate with responsibility.

In the business world, North Carolina's state salary scale would make as much sense as paying an assistant vice president more than the chairman of the board, an outlandish situation that wouldn't be tolerated.

It ought not to be tolerated instate employment either.

NEW YORK (AP)—There is no picture book quite like memory.

Time has drawn the lines in it and made the colors clear and unfading. And the pictures aren't made up; the artist was life itself.

HAL BOYLE

The things shown happening are real. They happened to real people in a time before this time. They were real leaves that grew on that tree. This house once stood; it warmed a whole family. This child shown laughing may not laugh like that anymore — but he once did. The grief you see in this woman's eyes never left them till death closed them.

Yes, all that is in memory's picture book stays as it was, timeless and true. And your own memory book is pretty good if you can look back and remember when —

People could still get pretty excited playing pennyante poker.

A family was getting up in the world if it could afford two radios. The next step was a second bathroom, then a second car, and then —

When you took a walk in a city at night, you could often hear the echo of a policeman plodding his beat.

Women were about as afraid of bats as they were of mice, for fear the flying beasties would become entangled in their long hair. That's why it made many ladies nervous to sit on the front porch swing and cool off in the twilight of a hot summer day.

Young lovers usually had a favorite tree with a hole or cleft in it where they could hide scribbled notes to each other containing mighty messages.

Kids thought that grownups had more fun out of life than they did because grownups had more freedoms — but grownups themselves knew it was the other way around.

DOWNHILL OR UP?

Sins go by families. Every sin is related to every other sin. Every mistake is a distant relative to a crime. Bad temper is the first cousin to murder. Evil thoughts are the kinfolks of impurity.

Furthermore, when a person gives himself any leeway regarding one moral weakness, all the brothers, sisters, aunts, uncles, and cousins of that weakness begin to drop in now and again for a cup of tea, and at last establish themselves as members of the household.

Someone has said that when a man stops trying, he starts lying. And worst of all, he begins to lie to himself about the decline in his moral stature.

Virtues are related also, and the relationship they maintain one with another is beautiful to behold. If we practice one virtue, we predispose heart and mind to practice another virtue. It depends on our ideals and will power whether habit will work toward our triumph or our undoing.

Home Study Courses Popular

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Today's home study student is "more aware and responsible and has a greater intention of finishing his courses than the student of 10 years ago," said the director of the National Home Study Council.

And matching him in each respect, contends the director, William Fowler, are the sellers of home study courses. For one thing, he said, "the schools are more responsible in the students they enroll."

Thus, according to NHSC, whose membership consists of 188 accredited schools with 1.5 million students, some of the most serious probl[illegible] perhaps better described as defects, are being ameliorated.

As a result, Fowler said, "The students are learning more and completing more." The completion ratio of about one in four compares favorably with many colleges and exceeds the ratio of some open admission community colleges.

There has always been a great number of very highly motivated students in such courses, which go by the name of home study or extension or correspondence or independent study courses. But a lot of dreamers too.

The typical abuse was to enroll an individual possessed of more hope than dedication, more ambition than abil[illegible] And in fact, many home study courses advertised, and some still do, the dream rather than the details.

But efforts of the Federal Trade Commission and the Veterans Administration and other government agencies have probably reduced the instances.

But the council also claims credit, having withdrawn accreditation from about 20 members since it took on the job 18 years ago, although some of those dropped from membership quickly regained their status.

Counting courses offered by universities, professional organizations, business, religiois groups and governments, it is estimated that more than five million Americans are studying at home.

Fowler can list many reasons for their popularity, among them:

—The school comes to the student, the student learns at his own pace, he can fit study time around jobs and other activities, he can emphasize what he wants, he pays only for wanted courses, he has the instructor's complete attention, he has constant feedback.

Rapid technological changes also require skilled workers to continue their education on the job.

A Carnegie Corp. study shows that craftsmen and foremen make more extensive use of correspondence courses than any other nonmilitary groups, followed in order by professional and technical workers, and high school diploma seekers.

Those Gold Traders Not Always Easy To Identify

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Worldwide attention turned this past week to the esoteric community that deals in a bright and corrosion-resistant metal with the atomic number 79.

A monetary milestone was being marked: The price of that metal, gold, surpassed $100 U.S. dollars an ounce.

But what are the workings of the marketplace in which the landmark was passed? Who buys and sells gold? Where, and how? And, perhaps most important, why?

From conversations with government officials, dealers in precious metals and businessmen who make their living distributing gold and shaping it into commercial forms like rings and dental fillings emerges the picture that follows:

Dealing in gold dates back to the earliest recorded civilizations, which worked it with enthusiasm into everything from ornaments and arrowheads to chalices, crowns and coins.

Gold was bought and sold in auction markets as early as the fairs of the 12th and 13th centuries.

Today's basic system of gold markets, centered in London and Zurich but extending to many other places, has been in existence about 50 years.

"You'd probably get an argument from the Swiss on this, but London is the 'bell cow,'" one gold man says.

It is there that representatives of five leading bullion merchants meet twice a day. Consulting their lists of buy and sell orders, they arrive at the "fixing"—a price which at least theoretically balances demand and supply at that moment.

The price is not truly "fixed." The market is said to be a very free one, subject to shifting pressures at any moment. But the London fixing is transmitted around the world on financial news wires, and it has a major influence.

In most countries except the United States, anyone can buy or sell gold from anyone else. But the London merchants and a group of three Swiss banks in Zurich are the centers of activity.

As in any other commodities-trading arena, there are two basic types of buyers: those who seek gold for commercial purposes and the speculators.

Most observers agree it is impossible to tell how many fall into each group. They point out that the commercial buyers by their very participation in the market are putting themselves in a position of speculating. If they believe the price will come down, they are likely to buy sparingly and operate on their inventories. If they believe the price will rise, they probably will "stock up" like a housewife at a sale.

If the traders in gold are difficult to identify, the sources of supply are much more easily discerned. According to U.S. Bureau of Mines figures for 1971, the latest data available, South Africa produces two-thirds of the world output of close to 50 million troy ounces per year.

The Soviet Union, second on the list, was estimated to have accounted for about 14 per cent; Canada, five per cent; and the United States, three per cent.

The major source, South Africa, keeps some of its gold in reserve and sells the remainder in the free market. One observer says it was keeping about a third of its production as of a few months ago but lately has been holding on to a much smaller amount.

Observers report that the gold sold by South Africa customarily is shipped to London by sea, to some other points by air. The big dealers buying it "stash it all over the world," in the words of one observer.

The United States does a lot of the buying. Even though its citizens and institutions are legally barred from dealing in gold for investment purposes, the legal commercial use of some seven million ounces annually makes the United States the world's biggest gold customer.

Kindergarten Law Enacted

RALEIGH (AP) — Legislation calling for a state-wide system of kindergartens was enacted into law by the Senate Thursday.

The Senate also enacted a measure setting aside $7.5 million as a reserve to be used if the state decides to set up a new four-year medical school.

There was no debate and little opposition as the Senate approved the two bills.

The kindergarten measure calls for the phasing in of the program beginning next September with 16 per cent of the five-year-olds. The number in kindergarten would be increased each year until 1978 when 100 per cent of the five-year-olds would be covered.

The 1973-74 budget provides $12.3 million for the first phase of this program. Approximately 15,000 children will be in public kindergartens this year.

When we last talked to Vang Pao in 1971, he was proposing guerrilla sweeps to recapture Communist-held territory; otherwise, he warned, the Meos might migrate to Thailand. Both possibilities now are out of the question. "We must stay here," Vang Pao told us this time. "We have no other land." But to stay, he added, "We need your support."

That support will be essential whether Hanoi assaults Laos as part of a general offensive in South Vietnam or turns again to Laos only after Cambodia and South Vietnam are conquered. Even CIA-advised irregulars, Thai troops and U. S. airpower may be unable to stop North Vietnamese regulars, heavy artillery and antiaircraft rockets. Without such help, however, this sleepy, misty little country will surely lose its independence, unmourned by the rest of the world.

Must Report On Emission

RALEIGH (AP)—More than 1,000 industries and municipalities in North Carolina will soon have to report their discharges and emissions into the environment to the state, the Board of Water and Air Resources decided Thursday.

The board approved regulations which would also require the industries and municipalities to monitor their environmental effects regularly. The regulations become effective July 1.

According to Darwin Coburn, chief of the water quality division, no industry or town in the state currently supplies all the information which will be required under the new law.

Earl Hubbard, assistant director of water and air resources, said representatives of the textile industry were the only group affected by the regulations who continued to oppose them after the board held a public hearing in February.

In other action, the board assigned higher use classifications to 1,681 streams or stream segments in all areas of the state.

A spokesman said the action will protect the some 7,000 miles of affected water at higher standards of quality.

Plans Set For 'String Camp'

Plans for the two week String Camp for 1973 have been announced by Dr. Rodney Schmidt, Director of the East Carolina University String Project.

From July 2 through July 13, young student musicians of the joint ECU-Greenville City Schools project will have classes in music literature, music theory, piano, Suzuki literature, orchestra, and lessons in their own applied instruments.

Schmidt says the summer String Camp will also be an excellent opportunity for Greenville parents to begin a young child in musical study on a string instrument, and then continue next school year in the String Project. For those already enrolled, he said, it will be a good opportunity for the student to advance during the two week of concentrated study.

The camp is open to all school-age young people. Classes will begin at 9:00 daily and continue until noon, with half-hour lessons. Teachers will be selected from the School of Music faculty and students, with three community teachers participating—Mrs. Joanne Bath, Mrs. Jan Kittrell and Mrs. Nancy Kosteck.

Enrollment is due by June 1. Parents may either make a deposit of $5.00 or pay the entire amount of $30.00 for the two week course on registration. Interested persons are asked to contact the School of Music ECU for forms to complete in registering a child for the camp.

Ruritan Club Told Of Kidney Machine

WINTERVILLE—Miss Agnes Whichard and Mrs. Shelby Brannon of Greenville spoke to the Winterville Ruritan Club Tuesday night about the Kidney Machine Unit, which is located in Greenville.

Miss Whichard, a student nurse at East Carolina University in the School of Nursing, described the function of the kidneys in filtering and purifying the blood. She stated that each kidney has one million nephrons which filter out waste from the body. According to Miss Whichard, the kidney also helps regulate the blood pressure. She used drawings to illustrate her talk.

Miss Whichard warned against the use of drugs, which she said place a heavy strain on the kidneys.

Mrs. Brannon, head nurse in charge of the local unit, which has eight machines, said that each patient stays on the machine for six hours, on a twice a week schedule.

Mrs. Brannon said that a person must have access to a kidney machine for life, unless a transplant operation is performed. The speaker also pointed out that the cost per patient is about $500 per week. The Greenville unit is privately owned.

The club agreed to donate $300 to the Winterville Recreation Commission. Winterville is planning a summer recreation program for both boys and girls at the A. G. Cox Grammar School. William Kelly, teacher at the school, will be in charge.

The meeting was presided over by president Gurvass Vincent.

Dr. McGee is widely known in this particular field, having spent much time in family counseling as a part of his responsibility at Baptist Hospital.

For some years he served churches in Virginia, Kentucky and North Carolina. Following his pastoral experience, Dr. McGee became a certified chaplain supervisor for Clinical Pastoral Education and served as a member of the Chaplains Commission of the Home Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention. In 1964, he joined the staff at the Baptist Hospital.

The special group meetings of the conference begin at 8 a.m. on Sunday, at 10 a.m. Monday and at 7 a.m. Tuesday.

The public is invited to attend the meetings during the three-day period.

Seven Killed In N. Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Seven persons were killed during the night in the worst upsurge of violence in Northern Ireland in nine months.

The dead included four British soldiers, two civilian men and a 14-year-old girl.

A booby-trapped car blew the soldiers to pieces after they left a dance at a hotel near their barracks at Omagh. The blast left a crater two feet deep in the parking lot and sent fragments of the bodies into an adjoining field.

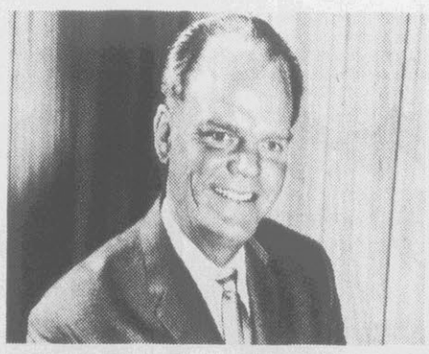

Two other soldiers were injured seriously.

Two other men died in separate shootings. One was killed as he played darts in a pub.

The girl died of bullet wounds when guerrillas opened fire on a British armored car in Belfast. Another 14-year-old girl was injured seriously.

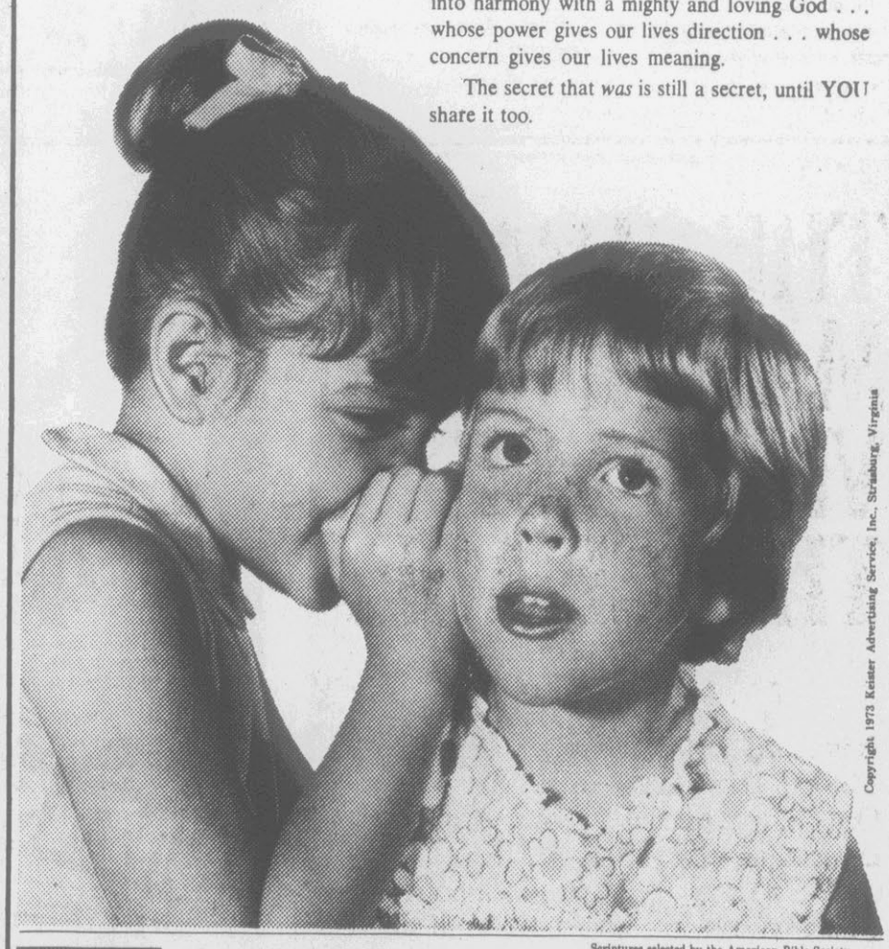

It was the highest toll in one night since Aug. 2, when a bomb killed eight persons in Newry.

The Secret That Was
When someone shares a secret, it's on its way to becoming no secret at all. And yet it doesn't cease to be a secret until you have shared it.
When Jesus preached in the wilderness, hundreds came miles to hear Him. They wanted to share His secret . . . the secret of God . . . the secret of Man and God.
So right there in the wilderness, it was on its way to becoming no secret at all. Except that, even today, not everyone has shared it.
Academically every intelligent person knows what Christianity is all about. But each Sunday all over this world someone is finding in church a new strength, a new purpose, a new faith. For the heart of Christ's message brings a human soul into harmony with a mighty and loving God . . . whose power gives our lives direction . . . whose concern gives our lives meaning.
The secret that was is still a secret, until YOU share it too.

POSSIBLE SKYLAB SHADES — Two schematic drawings illustrate the two approaches Skylab astronauts will be prepared to use when they rendezvous with the orbiting laboratory and assess the best method to repair its sun shield damage. The sun shade method, top, would call for an astronaut to leave the hatch of the docked Command Module, to stretch a 20-foot square shade over the critical workshop area. At bottom, the astronauts while orbiting parallel with Skylab would rig a sail to three points on the craft. (AP Wirephoto Sketch)

Keep Eyes On Ervin Eyebrows

By LEE BYRD

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just keep your eye on old Sam Ervin's eyebrows.

An occasional twitch, and he's probably bored. But if they start bobbing like cottontails on the run, he's boring in.

To the lament of the bloodthirsty and the drain upon network advertising revenues, the venerable senator from North Carolina obviously is not going to be rushed—even though he's promised some "new and startling" revelations as his Watergate hearings try peeling away the layers of scandal with the deliberate patience of a mountain whittler.

Today, in fact, had the potential for considerably more excitement than Thursday's opener. The day-long telecast was expected to focus exclusively upon James W. McCord, the quiet, church-going CIA retiree who was stripped of his surgical gloves and got caught redhanded.

McCord, of all the convicted Watergate conspirators, has shown the strongest will to date to blow the whistle—and he reportedly had some surprises left. "If you can figure out what he'll say from one day to the next," said one of Ervin's colleagues on the panel, "you're a better man than I."

But the early exchanges beneath the Caucus Room's ornate, vaulted ceilings did little to hearten those who expected an Ellery Queen script come to life.

Instead of accusatory dazzle, there was the methodical but elementary questioning of counsel Samuel Dash. Instead of the hotblooded witnesses seen in this room in times past, there were Robert Odle and Bruce Kehrli, each the typical Nixon man: young, clean-cut, polite, and, with a few lighthearted exceptions, bland. Both, it may be noted, came armed with that favored weapon, an organizational chart.

And for that, the puffy-jowled Ervin was content to lean back, taking in the white glare of the television lights as if it were sunshine on the beach. When he did speak, the words were muffled and, at times, downright clumsy, leaving the uninitiated viewer wondering if the man could ever get it together.

But he is—after all—the acknowledged master at leading the unsuspecting witness into the lion's den, usually charming him along with down-home aphorisms, a grandfatherly smile, and an old habit that borders on the hypnotic: Keep your eye on those eyebrows.

No Eighteen-Year-Old State Senators Wanted

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carlina's state senators emphatically don't want any 18-year-olds serving with them.

They showed this Thursday as they voted 39-8 to refuse to agree to House changes in a measure to amend the North Carolina Constitution.

The proposed constitutional amendment, which would be submitted to a vote of the people next Nov. 6, would make 18-year-olds eligible to run for any state office except governor and lieutenant governor. This would include the state House of Representatives where the minimum age is now 21 and the state Senate where 25 is the minimum.

After Sen. McNeill Smith, D-Guilford, had moved that the Senate accept the House proposal to lower the minimum age for senator to 18, the sparks began to fly.

"I believe this body should be a little more mature," objected Sen. Reid Poovey, R-Catawba. "We need some maturity along the line."

Sen. I. C. Crawford, D-Buncombe, agreed with Poovey. He said some people nowadays seem bent on "destroying the customs and traditions that made this country great."

"If there is any reason for this amendment, I don't see it," Crawford added. "I wish somebody would tell me."

Sen. A. B. Coleman Jr., D-Orange, however, put in a word for the 18-year-olds.

Coleman pointed out that all the bill did was let the people vote on whether 18-year-olds should be eligiible to run for public office.

"I personally believe you people would come up here not nearly as tainted by special interest groups," Coleman said.

A conference committee now will be appointed to see if the Senate-House differences can be reconciled.

Rep. Thomas Gilmore, D-Guilford, a strong supporter of the measure, was not optimistic.

Gilmore said the House changed the measure because it objected to lowering eligibility for the House to 18 while it remained at 25 for the Senate.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined broadly and steeply today as the dollar weakened abroad, the Senate hearings into the Watergate scandal pushed into their second day, and an article in The Wall Street Journal reported signs of a recession were coming into view.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 11.89 points at 899.83. It was the second session this week in which the Dow fell through the 900 barrier.

Declining issues on the New York Stock Exchange outran advances 972 to 197.

The article in the Journal was based on a report of some analysts who specialize in deciphering economic statistics that normally foreshadow business slumps.

Richmond Corp. was the most-active on the Big Board, down ½ at 37⅛. A 122,100-share block was traded at 37.

Seaboard Coast Line Industries was second-most-active, up ⅛ at 24. The issue dropped 10 Thursday after a report of lower first-quarter earnings and anticipation that trend would continue through the second quarter because of floods in the southeast and increasing operating costs.

American Telephone warrants were the third-most-active, down ¼ at 6¼.

The 11 a.m. broad-based NYSE index of some 1,500 common stocks was off 0.54 at 55.42. On the American Stock Exchange, the 11 a.m. price-change index was down .08 at 23.00. Trans World Airlines warrants were the most-active issue on the Amex, down ⅞ at

Student-Built House To Be On Display

ROSE HIGH LIVE PROJECT ... house, recently completed by students at Rose High School, will be on public view at an open house Saturday from ten in the morning until seven in the evening. The house is on Arlington Drive just off Hooker Road. (Reflector Staff Photo).

Tomorrow from ten in the morning until seven in the evening, open house will be held at the Occupational Education house built by Rose High School students.

The three bedroom brick home is located on Arlington Drive, one block west off Hooker Road. Of brick construction with wood trim, the house features in addition to the three bedrooms—a living room, kitchen, dining area, two baths, a carport with utility room and a mudroom. There is approximately 1,200 square foot of living space in the single story home, which as a paved drive leading into the carport.

Under construction for the past two school years, about 40 students have been involved in the project, generally known as the "Live Project."

Participating students have been working under the guidance of John Mallow, carpentry; Jesse Dawkins, masonry; James Vernelson, architectural drafting; and Jack Moye, cabinet making. Claude West, head of Rose High Occupational Education, has had overall supervision of the project.

Members of the Rose High Home Economics Department are responsible for arranging furnishings and accessories, which have been loaned for the open house by various merchants in Greenville.

Mrs. Irma Carr, occupational education teacher at Rose, is in charge of the Saturday open house.

The Live Project house will be sold at public auction at 11:00 a.m. on Thursday, May 31.

The public is invited to attend the open house and to inspect this project completed by Rose High's occupational students.

Mattress Fire In County Jail

Greenville firemen were called to the Pitt County Jail about 9 p.m. yesterday when fire erupted in one of the cells normally used to house juvenile girls. Fire officers reported only minor damage resulted, but said a deputy sheriff was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of smoke inhalation.

Fire Department officers said when they arrived they found fire burning in three bunks in the cell, located near the front section of the jail. Prisoners had been removed from several cells in the front portion of the jail near the fire and smoke, and a trusty was applying water to the fire.

Deputy Ronald Paige was taken to the hospital by the fire department's Rescue Unit for treatment after inhaling smoke from the burning mattresses.

Several Greenville Police Department units also responded to the fire call to assist in removing prisoners from the jail. None of the inmates was injured.

Fire officials said the mattress fires were apparently intentionally set.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said this morning that the cell was unoccupied at the time the fire erupted. However, he said two female prisoners in an adjoining cell in the block had access to the room where the fire was found.

He estimated damage to the cell, which had just been painted, at about $100. "There was more smoke than anything else," he said.

Investigation of the fire is underway, Tyson explained.

Med School Supported

MOREHEAD CITY—A resolution endorsing a four-year medical school at East Carolina University was passed at a meeting of the Carteret County Medical Society earlier this week.

The resolution endorsing the expansion of the school also requests that the ECU program orient its curriculum towards family practice.

Dr. Richard W. Borden, who introduced the resolution, said the endorsement will be sent to Dr. John Glasson, chairman of the sub-committee on Medical Students and Manpower of the N. C. Joint Conference Committee on Medical Care — a committee of the North Carolina Medical Society.

The Carteret County resolution said "we wish to express our objections to the report of the sub-committee of the Joint Conference Committee, as expressed in the March 1973 Medical Journal regarding a four-year medical school at East Carolina University.

"It is our firm opinion that there currently exists a dire need of a medical center located in eastern North Carolina. We further feel that this medical center should offer its students a complete medical curriculum, hopefully oriented toward family practice..."

Loses Shutout, But Gets Win

By FRED ROTHENBERG
Associated Press Sports Writer

Baltimore pitcher Jim Palmer's search for his third straight shutout ended 450 feet from home plate.

But when the mammoth ninth-inning home run hit by Cleveland catcher Dave Duncan stopped rolling, Palmer still had his third victory in a row and the memory of 26 1-3 scoreless innings.

"It's a good way to ruin a shutout, a quick way," Palmer said of his "450-foot mistake" after he had handled the Indians on three hits, 4-1.

"It was a fastball that I didn't throw in the right spot," he added. "I tried to keep it away from him but it went down the middle. At least it wasn't a cheap home run."

In the other American League games, New York overcame Milwaukee 4-2; Detroit blanked Boston 1-0; Kansas City topped Texas 6-1; Chicago edged Minnesota 5-4 and Oakland shut out California 4-0.

In the National League, Los Angeles defeated Cincinnati 3-1, St. Louis outscored Chicago 6-4, Houston nipped Atlanta 2-1 and Pittsburgh beat Philadelphia 5-2. The twi-light game between New York and Montreal was postponed due to rain and cold.

Palmer, who posted a 21-10 record last year, got off to a rough start in 1973. The hard-throwing righthander didn't gain his first victory until the Orioles' 18th game.

But now Palmer, 4-2, is making it rough on opposing hitters as evidenced by his last three outings, a five-hit blanking of California, a three-hit shutout of New York and Thursday night's hree-hitter over Cleveland.

Kansas City broke back into the victory column after four straight losses, including Nolan Ryan's no-hitter, on John Mayberry's soft swinging and the combination of Wayne Simpson and Gene Garber's hard throwing.

At Bloomington, knuckleballer Wilbur Wood won his ninth game of the season as Dick Allen's two-run homer and Rich Reichardt's three runs-batted-in accounted for all the Chicago scoring.

The Detroit Tigers scored only one run on Tony Taylor's home run but that was all they neeed as Jim Perry shut out the Red Sox on six hits.

Things looked desperate at Yankee Stadium for the home team as Milwaukee's Jim Colborn had a four-hit shutout with two outs in the bottom of the ninth.

But unfortunately for Colborn, 27 outs are required before he can accept his teammates' handshakes. In quick succession, Bobby Murcer homered, Ron Blomberg doubled and Graig Nettles singled to send the game into extra innings.

Two innings later, Nettles was accepting Yankee congratulations for his two-run homer that gave New York the victory.

In anaheim, Dick Green hit a three-run homer and Jim "Catfish" Hunter pitched a five-hit shutout against the Angels, who lost more than the game.

They lost the services of outfielder Bobby Valentine who smashed into the center field fence while pursuing Green's home run and suffered a broken right leg. He is expected to be sidelined for at least three months.

Black Jack Pulls Off Second Straight Upset

Black Jack has taken on the role of the giant killer in the Church Softball League, knocking off two unbeatens in as many games. Monday night they handed Immanuel their first loss, and last night, they took a 14-10 win over previously unbeaten Grace.

The lone unbeaten team in the league now is Oakmont, a 9-4 winner over Presbyterian last night. St. James also claimed a victory, taking a forfeit over St. Gambriel.

Games between Memorial and Trinity, Immanuel and Maranatha and Arlington Street and Salvation Army were rained out and rescheduled for June 1. The latter game was in the fifth inning when washed out.

Black Jack spotted Grace three runs in the first, then came back with three of their own. Grace picked up two more in the second on B. Peede's homer, but Black Jack came back with five in the second to take an 8-5 margin. They added five more in the third to wrap it up. B. Elks singled as did R. McCarter. C. Padgett got a hit and R. Dixon singled. H. Hardee singled and scored on J. T. Mills' triple, making it 13-5. Black Jack added one more in the sixth, while Grace picked up one in the fourth, three in the fifth and one in the seventh.

Presbyterian socred a run in the first, but Oakmont came back with four in the second to take the lead, which was not overcome. Don Parrott reached on a two-base error and came around on Danny Singleton's single. Oakmont picked up four more in the fourth to finish off the scoring. Presbyterian added one in the sixth and two in the seventh for their four-run total.

R.C.-Kiwanis Rained Out

The North State Little League game between the Kiwanis and R. C. Cola was halted by rain in the fourth inning yesterday with a 7-7 tie score.

The game will be resumed at that point and played to a conclusion Saturday at noon at Elm Street Park.

Two-time National League batting champion Tommy Davis is with the Baltimore Orioles.

Bethel In Game Win

BETHEL—Bethel Junior High gained a 10-3 victory over G.R. Whitfield yesterday.

Ken Perry aided his own cause, slapping a grand slam homer in the third inning for Bethel. Julian Nelson and Taylor Carson each had two hits for Bethel, while Daniels had two for Whitfield.

Bethel is now 2-7, while Whitfield is 0-6.

Exchange Nips Moose By 5-4

The Exchange nipped the Moose, 5-4, yesterday for their first Tar Heel Little League victory.

The loss knocked the Moose down to 2-2, while the Exchange is now 1-3.

The Moose took the lead in the top of the first with one run. David Carroll singled and moved up on a fielder's choice when a previous runner was caught in a rundown. An error that resulted in the attempt to get Carroll after the first out let him come the rest of the way.

The Exchange came right back to tie it up with one run. Pep Cox singled and Cliff Fearington singled. Al Shackleford flew out, but Cox advanced after the catch. An error followed, allowing them to come the rest of the way.

In the second, the Moose pushed over two more, regaining the lead. Leslie Robinson singled and Scott Peele got a hit. Dean Wilson singled, loading the bases. Ashley Taylor hit into a fielder's choice, scoring Robinson, and Peele scored on a passed ball.

In the bottom of the inning, the Exchange came back again, tieing it at 3-3. Allan Clark reached on a fielder's choice, as did Gordon Douglas. Cox also reached on a fielders choice, and an error on Fearington's grounder let Clark score. Douglas scored on Shackleford's single.

In the fourth, the Exchange took the lead with a run. Mark Douglas walked as did Cox. Fearington reached on a fielder's choice and Shackleford sacrificed in Douglas.

The Moose tied it up in the fifth. Paul Lemmond reached on an error and moved to third on passed balls. He scored on an error as Danny Wood reached.

But the Exchange came back in the bottom of the sixth to win it. Mark Douglas reached on a fielder's choice as did Cox. Fearington singled to load them up, but the next batter lined out. An error on the attempt to double a man off allowed Douglas to score the game-ending run.

Old Walter Still Hasn't Lost His Marbles; Works His Magic

By ALEX SACHARE
Associated Press Sports Writer

For a second—just one second—pitcher Don Sutton thought the years might have caught up with Walter Alston, the 61-year-old skipper of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Reds had loaded the bases off Sutton in the first inning on a double by Pete Rose, a walk, a wild pitch and another walk.

Alston then marched out to the mound.

"How many innings do you want to go today?" Alston asked his pitcher, with a straight face.

"I thought he'd lost the ace of spades for a minute and wasn't working with a full deck," Sutton said later.

"Then I got the message."

That he did. Sutton pitched his way out of the jam by getting Richie Scheinblum on a fly ball, then settled down to hurl a five-hitter—retiring 16 consecutive batters in one stretch—before leaving the game for a pinch hitter in the ninth inning, when the Dodgers rallied for three runs to defeat the Cincinnati Reds 3-1 Thursday afternoon.

Elsewhere in the National League, St. Louis topped Chicago 6-4 in another day game, Pittsburgh beat Philadelphia 5-4 and Houston edged Atlanta 2-1 in night action. The New York Mets' game at Montreal was postponed because of rain and cold weather and San Diego and San Francisco were not scheduled.

In the American League, it was: Baltimore 4, Cleveland 1; New York Yankees 4, Milwaukee 2 in 11 innings; Detroit 1, Boston 0; Kansas City 6, Texas 1; Chicago White Sox 5, Minnesota 4, and Oakland 4, California 0.

It was the second straight game in which the Dodgers rallied in the late going to beat Cincinnati. They topped the Reds 8-6 in 11 innings Wednesday night.

Alston called the comeback victory "as morale-boosting as a 15-0 win," then observed, "We don't have too many easy ones."

Run-scoring singles by pinch hitter Ed Crosby and Luis Melendez in the ninth inning lifted the Cards over the Cubs.

"Finally we were able to put some hitting and pitching together," said St. Louis Manager Red Schoendienst. "It's a good feeling."

The Pirates sent Steve Carlton to his fourth consecutive defeat by scoring three runs in the seventh inning to break a 2-2 tie. One came in on an error by Philadelphia's rookie third baseman, Mike Schmidt, and two scored on Dave Cash's double.

Carlton, who won 27 games and the Cy Young Award last year, is now 4-6 on the season.

Ken Forsch stopped the Braves on four hits and struck out eight for Houston, which got both its runs in the fourth on singles by Cesar Cedeno and Bob Watson, a sacrifice fly and Tommy Helms' double.

Atlanta's Hank Aaron got his 11,000th official time at bat in the fourth inning, second only to Ty Cobb's 11,429. He struck out.

New Category Of Exemptions Is Greeted With Mixed Pro Feelings

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

MEMPHIS (AP) — A new category of exemptions—all players on the list of the career top 50 money winners—has been added on the pro golf tour.

Predictably, the action got a divided reaction from the players.

Most of the older, established players, applauded.

"I think it's very fair," said 42-year-old Dan Sikes. "I think the people on that list have earned an exemption."

Most of the younger, struggling players, were considerably less than enthusiastic.

"You're just putting more old guys in the field and taking away qualifying spots," said one young player, who asked that his name not be used.

"Otto Graham used to be a great football player, but that doesn't mean he can still play," said another, also asking that he remain anonymous.

In effect, the action by the Policy Board of the Tournament Players Division of the Professional Golfers Association early this week means that all players who rank among the top 50 all-time money winners will be exempt from qualifying for regular tour events. The rule goes into effect next Jan. 1.

All but a handful already hold exemptions of one type or another.

An exempt player—and that status is one of the most prized possessions on the tour—can enter any tournament he wants and be assured of a spot in the field.

A non-exempt player—and that includes most newcomers—must fight for a spot in the tournament field in Monday qualifying rounds. Usually, there are in excess of 100 players competing for about 25 spots in the field.

By creating the new exempt category, more places in the tournament field will be filled by exempt players. There will be fewer spots open for the qualifiers. And that's the source of the young players' displeasure.

And they're not alone.

"We've got enough exempt players," said veteran Dave Hill, the No. 16 man on the all-time money list. "I don't think it's fair to the young players.

"I guess I have to like it, though. It's good for me."

Players can gain an exemption through a variety of means. The top 60 money winners from the previous year are exempt. So are former U.S. Open and PGA champions, along with members of the last named U.S. Ryder Cup team. The top 25 finishers in a particular tournament are exempt for that tournament the next year. Winners of a particular tournament have lifetime exemptions for that event. And all players who made the cut—finished 72 holes—in the last previous tournament are exempt for the next one.

The new rule would effect only five players now on the top 50 all-time list: Art Wall, Dale Douglass, Billy Maxwell, Johnny Pott and Sikes.

Sikes is not exempt this year for the first time in more than a decade. But, he said, the rule wouldn't have a great effect on him.

"I've played in 10 tournaments this year, and I've only been in the position of needing to qualify one time. I've been exempt for other reasons.

"But I think it's a good rule. It means that someone like Art Wall won't have to be out there qualifying on Monday. I think he's earned it."

Wall, 49, is in his 25th year on the tour. He's a former Masters champion, former leading money winner and was the 1959 Player of the Year.

"Obviously this is going to help me," he said. "I sure don't want to be just cluttering up the field when I know I can't play. But this certainly will help me to play a little longer."

Secretariat In Second Attempt

By GORDON BEARD
Associated Press Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — Secretariat, the Triple Crown contender seemingly back on the form which earned him the "super horse" tag, takes on a slim field of five opponents in Saturday's 98th running of the $150,000-added Preakness Stakes.

A record turnout is expected at Pimlico, drawn by the magnetism of the Meadow Stable colt and given an added boost by an infield farewell for former Baltimore Colts' quarterback Johnny Unitas.

Chick Lang, the Pimlico general manager, predicted today that the track's record crowd of 48,721 set last year will be easily surpassed.

"We should have between 55,000 and 60,000 people," Lang said, and he estimated that about 3,500 of them would attend chiefly because of the ceremonies honoring Unitas—who was traded to the San Diego Chargers after the 1972 National Football League season.

Most of the fans, however, will be out to see if Secretariat, the Meadow Stable colt who the Kentucky Derby in record time after being upset in the Wood Memorial, can take another step toward becoming the first Triple Crown winner since Citation in 1948.

"No one will beat Secretariat if he runs his race," said Buddy Delp, the trainer of Ecole Etage.

"I backed off on Secretariat after the Wood," Delp conceded. "But since the Derby, I have to think he's great. He went the final quarter in 23 1-5. Horses just don't do that. And after watching him here for 10 days, I have no reason to think otherwise."

But despite the presence of Secretariat, and Derby runner-up Sham who also broke the old Derby record while finishing 2½ lengths behind the winner's 1:59 2-5 for the 1¼ miles, Delp is hoping for a miracle.

"They'll have to catch us," Delp said, "and if Secretariat and Sham worry about each other, we might make it interesting.

Lucien Laurin, the trainer of Secretariat, noted however: "I worry about everyone, and that jock of mine had better worry, too."

Secretariat is the early 2-5 choice to win the race which is scheduled to go off at 5:40, EDT. Television coverage is scheduled for 5-6 p.m. and radio 5:25-5:45, both by CBS.

Sigmund Sommer's Sham, again ridden by Laffit Pincay Jr., is rated at 2-1. Our Native, third in the Derby, will have Don Brumfield in the saddle for owners Mrs. M.J. Pritchard, Dr. E.W. Thomas and trainer Bill Resseguet Jr.

Junior Olympics Set Saturday

The Eastern Carolina North Carolina sectional of the Junior Olympics will be held Saturday at East Carolina University.

Registration for the event will be held from 8:30 a.m. until 10 a.m. with field events beginning at 10. Trials in the running events will begin at 10:30 a.m., and the event will continue through the afternoon.

Five different age group classifications will be held, with further division by sex.

Boys and girls in the 9 and under age group will compete in only one event, the 880-yard run.

Those 10 and 11 will be eligible to take part in the 100-yard dash, the 440-yard dash, the 880-yard run, the mile-run, the high jump or the long jump.

The same events will also apply to 12 and 13-year-olds.

The 14-15 age groups will include the same events, but will add the shot put, the discus throw and the 880-yard relay event.

Finally, 16-17 year-olds, will participate in these, plus the two-mile, the pole vault and the mile relay.

The top three finishers in each event will qualify for the State Meet, to be held June 2 at Raleigh, Winners there move on to the regionals, the last hurdle before the nationals.

Little League Supper Is Set

The annual Greenville Little League Chicken Supper will be held on Wednesday. Plates may be picked up at Elm Street Park from noon until 1 p.m. and from 5 p.m. until 7 p.m. The price this year is $1.50 per plate.

For patrons who have not been able to purchase their tickets from a Little Leagure, a special cash sale will begin at 6 p.m.

The supper is an important source of income for Little League. The success of the supper takes the combined cooperation of the boys, their parents, and the community. It is in this light that parents are reminded of their part.

Fathers have the responsiblity of helping to "bag" the plates and get them ready for sale. They also man the trucks where the sales take place. The mothers of boys playing the North State League have been contacted by their team representatives to make four dozen cup cakes. When the cup cakes are delivered on Wednesday morning they should be individually wrapped in clear plastic wrap or in plastic bags. The Tar Heel league mothers have accepted the responsiblilty for making the potato salad this year. Although it sometimes seems like a lot of potato salad, it is essential that at least 12 pounds of potatoes be used. Both cup cakes and the potato salad should be delievered to the Elm Street Gym on Wednesday between 7:30 and 9:30 a.m. Please wait for the containers to be returned to the doner.

The officers of Little League and the supper committee are gratified with the unselfish willingness of everyone who helps in his own way, and of course the real reason for it all is that 180 young boys have the opportunity to play ball.

Dan Sikes Fires 67 To Take First Round Lead At Memphis

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

MEMPHIS (AP) — "It was just a nice easy round, the kind you like to play," Dan Sikes said after he scored a five-under-par 67 for his little walk in the sun.

"Very pleasant," added the 42-year-old veteran Thursday after he had established a one-stroke margin in the first round of the $175,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis Golf Classic.

"I was lucky enough to have the ball close to the hole a lot. I didn't have too many long putts and I made all the short ones."

That's been a problem with the husky, slope-shouldered lawyer from Jacksonville, Fla. this season.

Just three weeks ago he missed from less than two feet to lose a playoff at Dallas. And a month before that he'd missed from about the same distance and failed by one stroke to get into a playoff at his hometown in the Greater Jacksonville Open.

But Sikes, who scored the last of his six tour triumphs in 1968, let none of the little ones get away as he moved one stroke in front of Ron Cerrudo and Dave Hill, tied at 68.

Hill, a three-time Memphis champion, needed only 11 putts on the first nine holes as he established a record for the 7,193-yard, par 36-36 Colonial Country Club course with a front-nine 31. He appeared ready to run away with it but bogeyed three times in a five-hole stretch on the back nine.

Mike Hill, Dave's brother, headed a quartet another two strokes back at 70. Also at that figure were Doug Sanders, Dale Douglass and Allen Miller.

Defending champion Lee Trevino wasn't overly disappointed with a 71.

That left him four strokes off the pace.

"This is the kind of course you've got to bide your time on," Trevino said. "Try to rush it and it'll eat you alive."

Kermit Zarley played the course in 71 but was stuck with a 73 total. He was assessed two strokes for slow play. He was the fourth player so penalized this year.

Sikes dropped out of an exempt status last year for the first time in a decade when he failed to make the list of the top 60 money winners. But he's rebounded strongly this year with two-runner-up finishes and more than $40,000 in winnings.

"I've had a lot of good tournaments this year," he said. "I'm particularly pleased with my putting. It's so important to us. You see, we're operating on a margin of one stroke a round.

"Last year I had a scoring average of about 71.5. If I could have improved it just a half stroke a round, I'd have made all kinds of money."

He made his round with his domination of the par five holes. He played them four under par, making birdie on all of them. The first two came after he'd chipped two about six feet. And he was even closer on the last two, about two or three feet.

He almost made eagle-two on the second hole. His four iron second shot came to rest less than an inch from the cup. He also made a 12-foot birdie putt on the back nine, saved par from one bunker and three-putted for his only bogey, missing from eight feet. The rest were all two-putts.

Battle Of The Sexes May Turn Into Biggest Bundle Of 'Em All

By KAROL STONGER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Jerry Perenchio thought he had a good thing going when he put Muhammad Ali and Joe Frazier in the ring at Madison Square Garden two years ago. But the promoter of that heavyweight title fight looks like a lightweight compared with little Bobby Riggs.

Riggs, a hustler to the hilt who probably would take bets on a crab race in the Caribbean, is drumming up winner-take-all matches with some of the world's top women tennis professionals.

Buoyed by his 6-2, 6-1 Mother's Day victory over Margaret Court, worth $12,500, the 55-year-old Californian now is sailing toward a $50,000 winner-take-all match against 18-year-old Chris Evert Sept. 22.

He also is pondering whether to meet Billie Jean King, the No. 1 women's liberationist of the sports world. But he may play hard to get for awhile since she spurned his initial attempt to woo her to the courts.

"The women's lib movement is in tennis is working quickly to match me with someone who might be tougher than Mrs. Court," Riggs said before the pact was signed Thursday. "Chris would be the toughest."

Such a statement about Miss Evert, the top money winner on the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association pro tour this year with more than $40,000, was just enough to bait Mrs. King, a member of the rival Virginia Slims circuit which Mrs. Court dominated with 10 triumphs worth $82,000.

So she offered to ante up $5,000 of her own money, matched by the Hilton Head, S.C., Racket Club, for a $10,000 winner-take-all duel.

"There was no point in this in the beginning, but now I think there is since Margaret really got waxed," said Mrs. King, the defending Wimbledon and U.S. Open champion who became the first sportswoman ever to win more than $100,000 in a single season. "I feel I've got something to prove now. I think I really owe it to my fans and to women's tennis. I think I can beat him."

Women often have thought they could beat men at their own game, but most of battles of the sexes have been fiascos.

Three years ago, Carol Mann, the leading money winner on the Ladies' Professional Golf Association tour in 1969 with nearly $50,000 and eight triumphs, did head-to-head battle with Doug Sanders.

Miss Mann fell apart amid all of the publicity and pressure and was soundly beaten when Sanders shot a 73 to her 85.

"I felt that I let the women down," said Miss Mann, dejected by such a stunning defeat but relieved that it was over. "I can't remember when I last shot an 85."

But Sanders saved the day by recalling a match in Baltimore in 1967 in which Carol and Kathy Whitworth tied Sanders and Jack Nicklaus in an exhibition round.

"We had to play like hell and Nicklaus had to birdie the last hole to keep us from getting beat," he said.

MAUCH ON CLEMENTE

NEW YORK (AP) — Manager Gene Mauch of the Montreal Expos says he never saw a baseball player do all the things Roberto Clemente could do. "And you know," said Mauch, "they never can make a movie about Clemente because nobody around is good enough to play his part."

Clemente, who lost his life with four other men in a plane crash off San Juan on New Year's Eve, will be inducted posthumously into baseball's Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y., on Monday, Aug. 6.

No One Likes To Be On Bubble

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — One place that no one wants to be at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway is "on the bubble."

It can make strong race drivers quiver and weak race drivers cry.

The driver on the bubble is the guy whose car turned in the slowest qualifying time during qualifications for the Indianapolis 500-mile race. He's the guy, who once the 33-car field is filled, will be the first to be bumped if someone can cough up a faster clocking.

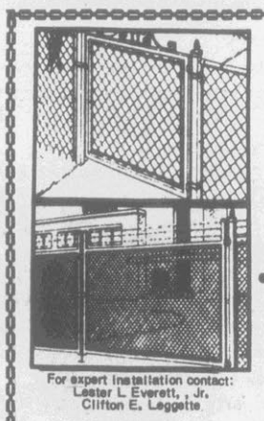

During the first weekend of trials, 30 cars qualified for the May 28 U.S. Auto Club classic. No. 30 is Sam Posey, who averaged only 187.921 miles per hour for the 10-mile run in his Offenhauser-powered Eagle.

Posey, a former sports car and Formula I driver now living in San Juan Capistrano, Calif., is in a tenuous position. If, after the field is filled this weekend, his is still the slowest speed, a faster time by any previously unqualified car can knock Posey out of the lineup.

The 33 fastest cars at the end of four days of qualifying will start the race.

The sandy-haired 29-year-old bachelor doesn't have any illusions about his previous speed making the lineup. The first 30 qualifiers averaged 192.572 m.p.h.

"Forget it ... we didn't do anything except learn some bitter lessons and use up one race car. We concentrated too much on preparing the car for the race and we took the qualifying speed for granted," Posey said.

Play For District

GREENSBORO, N. C. (AP)—High Point and Elon square off tonight to determine the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics District 26 baseball champion.

Two games Friday night set the stage as Elon downed High Point, 6-1, to remain undefeated in the double elimination play, and High Point eliminated Pfeiffer, 4-3, in 12 innings to gain the other finals berth.

Game time is 7 p.m. and should High Point win, a second and deciding game will follow.

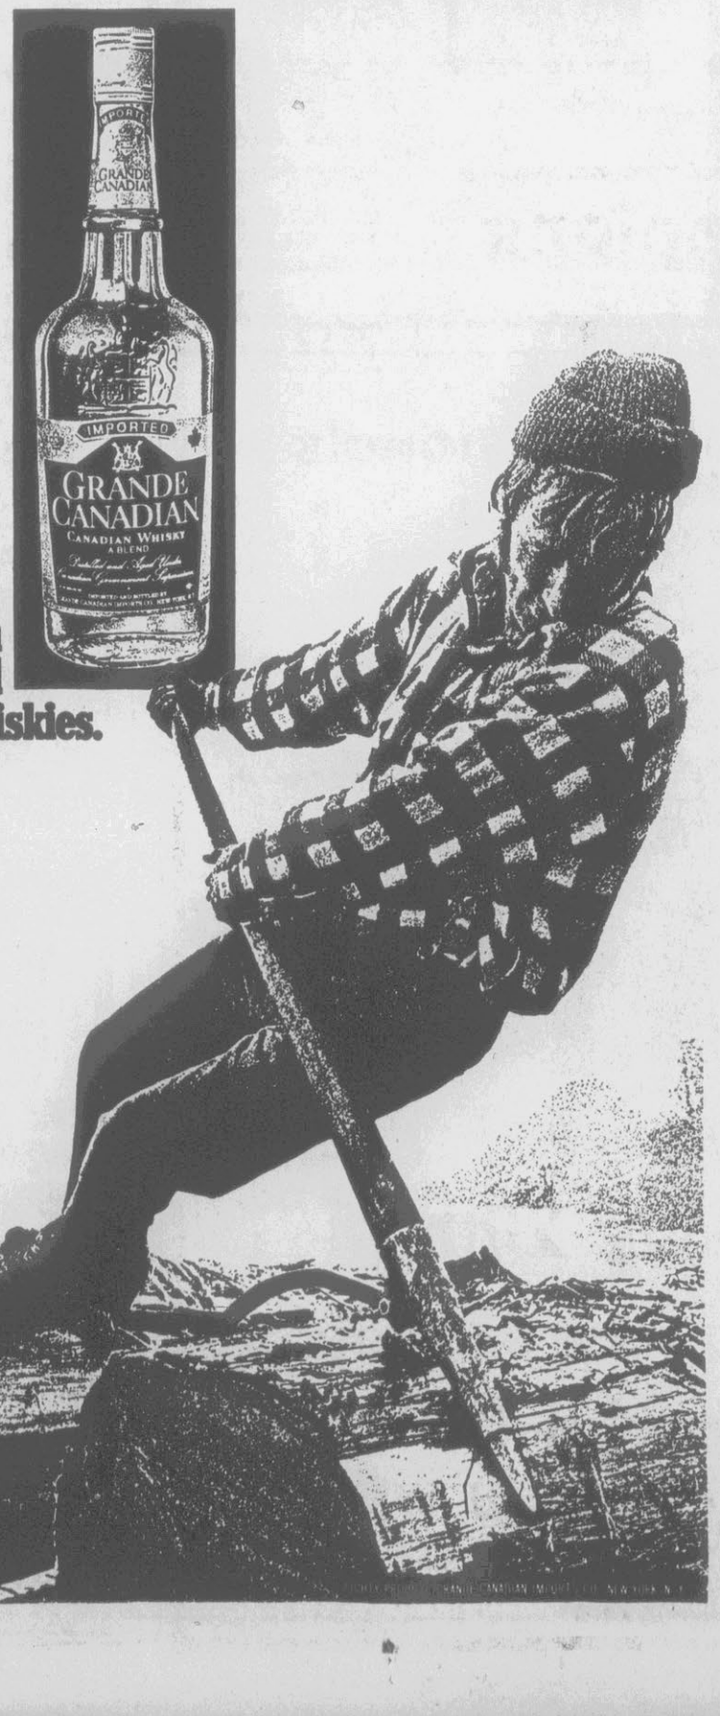

The winner of the district title will move on to the NAIA Area 7 competition at Pembroke State. The three-day area tournament opens Tuesday afternoon with the District 26 champion going against West Liberty State of West Virginia, winner of the District 28 title.

Host Pembroke State, District 29 champion, meets Erskine, District 6 winner, Tuesday night. Three games are scheduled Wednesday to set up Thursday's championship round.

The area winner goes to the eight-team national tournament starting May 31 at Phoenix, Ariz.

In Friday night's first game, home runs by Wayne Ellington, designated hitter Turner Revels and Bill Dunn accounted for five of Elon's six runs in overcoming the Panthers.

Alan Brumfield's pop fly double in the top of the 12th inning gave High Point its victory over Pfeiffer.

Children Need To Whet Wits

Natty Bo is typical of other children, so note the changes in his outlook. Resolve to give your youngsters some new ideas everyday! For they grow bored by the same environemnt. So ration his new toys, one by one, to give him a new one each day. You can thus boost his I.Q.

By GEROGE W. CRANE
Ph.D, M.D.

CASE X-512: Natty Bo, aged 18 months, is one of our recent grandchildren.

Three months ago he relished having me carry him around our summer home so he could touch dozens of objects on the mantel and in the cabinets.

Everytime he arrived, he'd toddle over to me, lift his arms so I'd pick him up, and then point to objects that he wanted to touch.

Now, however, he has added 3 months more age, so he is no longer content to be chiefly a spectator.

Instead, he wishes to do things and minipulate objects.

Thus, he insists that I stop and let him push the button for the lights as we enter a room.

He also asks to ring a row of bells, for Mrs. Crane has a number of the latter on top of a bookcase.

Natty Bo had a wastebasket full of odds and ends, such as box tops and empty plastic perfume bottles.

But they didn't lend themselves to much original activity on his part.

So now he prefers things that he can manipulate.

At pressent, his favorite toy is a plastic 2-wheeled cylinder that he can roll along the floor by use of a long wooden handle.

Menawhile, it makes a few musical sounds as it revolved.

He has also developed a desire to imitate people, so he will take a dust cloth and diligently try to dust the tbales and chairs in his daddy's suite of dental offices.

Or he will take a mop and try to mop his mother's kitchen.

At the table, too he dislikes his highchair, for he is obviously eager to pattern after adults.

So he demands an ordinary adult chair, though we must prop him up with a small stool or telephone directories.

And he prefers to try to use an adult knife and fork, instead of his spoon when he eats.

Please notice this different outlook of a child which even 3 months will produce!

At the start, a youngster tends to passively react to his environment. Then he may diffidently touch things. But finally he wishes to manipulate, as by ringing bells, turning on the lights, dusting and mopping, and building houses or towers with blocks.

So keep ahead of your youngsters I.Q. though basically determined at birth, has a certain leeway of possibly 10 to 20 points.

If he grows up in a dull, nonstimulating environment, the normal youngster (100 I.Q.) may function at only a 90 I.Q.

But if you whet his wits by new experiences, plus entrance into Sunday School and Nursery School, the same inherited I.Q. may attain 110.

So read him good children's stores, amply illustrated. Get those "Classics, Illustrated" versions of the famous tales of "Goldilocks and the 3 Bears," or the "Three Little Pigs," etc.

Give him crayons and ample scratch paper of his own.

But never let him tear up old magazines! For then he loses respect for you new magazines and tears them, since he can't read and thus is unable to distinguish the "old" vs. the "new."

And send for my Booklet "How to Raise a Child's School Marks," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

West doubled South's four heart bid in the expectation of obtaining a spade ruff: He held control of the trump suit and East was the opening bidder, so a profit appeared to be in the offing. Altho the dummy's distribution prevented West from getting his partner in, the appearance of the club void should have alerted him to the desirability of reducing North's ruffing power.

West opened the seven of diamonds and the ace was played from dummy. Declarer promptly concluded that West was void in spades, for he surely would have led the suit in which his partner had opened the bidding if he had a singleton. In an effort to avert the spade ruff, or—at least dislodge the ace of trumps—South decided to play a round of hearts first and he led the four of that suit from dummy and put up the jack from his hand.

West was in with the ace of hearts. A trump continuation would have been an effective return at this point, since it leaves the declarer with too many losing clubs to handle. However, West exited with the king of diamonds in the vague hope that he might subsequently score his low heart by ruffing a spade.

South trumped the diamond and proceeded to crossruff the next four tricks by ruffing the five and seven of clubs in dummy and two diamonds in his hand. The king of hearts drew the remaining trump and South continued by exiting with the king of clubs.

East was down to the lone ace of clubs and his five spades, for all the other cards had been stripped from his hand. After he cashed the ace of spades which completed the defensive book, he was obliged to surrender the fulfilling trick to North's king of spades.

Tax Cut Poised For New Yorkers

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — New York State taxpayers would get their first tax cut in 12 years under a bill approved by the legislature and sent to Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

The Assembly and Senate voted overwhelmingly Wednesday to suspend for one year a 2½ per cent income tax surcharge the state imposed during a budget crisis in 1971.

The cut would save the average taxpayer with two children and a $10,000 annual income $5 a year, according to the state Budget Division. Revenues would be reduced by about $80 million.

Forbid Dumping Of Eight Substances In The Ocean

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency has banned the dumping of eight substances in the ocean and listed dozens more that may be dumped only with "special care."

At the same time, EPA approved 118 ocean-dumping locations including three approved for disposal of toxic materials; one for wastes containing arsenic; and a dozen for disposal of "conventional munitions."

All three types of hazardous waste — toxics, arsenic and munitions — may be dumped in a large area of the Atlantic, more than 6,000 feet deep, off Delaware Bay.

Toxic materials may also be dumped off Massachusetts, and off Los Angeles.

Conventional, meaning nonatomic, munitions may be dumped in the Atlantic off Delaware Bay, off South Carolina and Georgia, in mid-ocean far to the southeast of Florida, and at a location off the coast of Morocco.

In the Pacific, munitions may be dumped in areas off Seattle, San Francisco, central California, San Diego, and Hawaii, as well as a location between Los Angeles and Hawaii, another far off the coast of Mexico and one in the South Pacific.

The EPA designated approved locations and categories of wastes in a Federal Register notice Wednesday, establishing the criteria for issuance of ocean-dumping permits under an antipollution law passed last year.

As required by the law, EPA said no ocean dumping permit would be issued "under any circumstances" for disposal of: high-level radioactive wastes; radiological, chemical or biological warfare materials; substances whose environmental impact is unknown; or persistent, inert materials which would float or remain suspended in the water.

In addition, EPA prohibited the dumping of materials containing "more than trace concentrations" of mercury and its compounds; cadmium and its compounds; oils; and organic compounds containing chlorine (organohalogens), a class including the pesticide DDT and the related chemical PCB, both suspected of widespread environmental damage.

EPA said "special care" must be used in the ocean disposal of a wide variety of substances including all forms of arsenic, lead, copper, zinc, selenium, vanadium, beryllium, chromium and nickel.

Also in the "special care" category were: organosilicon compounds; inorganic wastes including cyanides, fluorides, titanium dioxides and chlorine; petrochemicals and organic chemicals including "detergents"; commercial poisons; oxygen-consuming wastes; and radioactive wastes in general, which should be kept in leakproof containers.

Most of the 118 approved ocean-dumping locations were designated for disposal of such materials as dredging wastes, mud, sand and chemical wastes.

EPA said sewage sludge would be banned from ocean dumping if it would introduce new organisms to an area or extend the range of "biological pests" or disease-inducing organisms.

Even otherwise-harmless waste materials could be dumped in large quantities only if the dumping is controlled to prevent environmental damage, EPA said.

Charge 10 With Torture Slaying

DELAND, Fla. (AP)—Ten young people have been named in murder indictments returned by a grand jury in connection with the April 17 torture-slaying of a California teen-ager in nearby Daytona Beach.

All of those named Thursday by the the Volusia County grand jury were already in custody on murder charges in the slaying of Ross Michael Cochran, 17, of Fresno, Calif.

The jury also returned a sealed indictment on an 11th person, not yet in custody. And Asst. State Atty. Horace Smith Jr. said Cindy Black, 16, of Rexdale, Ontario, who was also charged by Daytona Beach police with murder, would be turned over to juvenile authorities.

Circuit Court Judge Uriel Blount ordered that those indicted be held without bail.

Cochran was killed by a blow from a club after being tied to a table, flogged with chains and slashed with broken glass, police said.

First reports indicated that Cochran was a human sacrifice by a Devil-worshipping, witchcraft-practicing cult. Police said the table on which Cochran was tied was in an altar room of the cult.

However, police now say the witchcraft angle has been overemphasized. Instead, investigators say, Cochran was probably killed because someone thought he was a police drug informant.

Those named in the indictments are:

Charles M. Paige, 21, Charles J. Dunn, 21, and John J. Colbert, 18, all of Daytona Beach; David O. Hester, 17, of Greenville, S.C.; Kenneth M. Francis, 17, of Pope AFB, N.C.; Nicholas E. Frazee, 23, of Dayton, Ohio; Howard E. Waellus, 19, of Detroit; Steven A. Skaggs, 21, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Deborah A. Shook, 22, of Washington, N.J., and John J. Carpenter, 18, of Santecca, Calif.
