

Suspect Dean Or Ehrlichman Source Of Offers To McCord

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former White House aide John J. Caulfield was operating on orders from presidential counsel John W. Dean and possibly presidential adviser John D. Ehrlichman when he carried an offer of executive clemency to Watergate conspirator James W. McCord Jr., Senate sources said Saturday.

It was not known positively who directed Dean to make the offer, the sources said. But according to widely known information about the way Dean functioned, the sources said, he probably had conferred with Ehrlichman, then one of President Nixon's top two aides.

Caulfield has been subpoenaed before the Senate Watergate committee Tuesday to corroborate or discredit McCord's startling testimony about the offer.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler has denied that Nixon had any knowledge of meetings at which Caulfield is alleged to have made the offer last January. And the Washington Star-News said Saturday that Caulfield claims he did not invoke Nixon's name when he carried the offer to McCord.

McCord said in a carefully worded statement before the Senate committee Friday that he had met with Caulfield and that Caulfield told him he would get cash, executive clemency after 10 or 11 months, and a job later if he kept silent about Watergate.

McCord also said Caulfield told him Nixon was aware of the meeting and would be informed of its results. McCord did not specifically say that he was told Nixon was aware of the offer of clemency.

Caulfield confirmed in a statement Friday night that he had met with McCord three times and "conveyed to him certain messages from a White House official." Caulfield did not elaborate, but sources said he told committee investigators a few days ago that the offer of clemency came from Dean.

Nixon fired Dean April 30 and at the same time accepted the resignations of Ehrlichman and White House chief of staff H. R. Haldeman. Caulfield took leave last Sunday from his job at the Treasury Department.

In other developments:

—The General Accounting Office (GAO) reported that Herbert W. Kalmbach, Nixon's personal lawyer, received more than $500,000 in unreported campaign funds in 1972, at least half of which went to Watergate defendants.

—Ziegler denied providing any assistance last fall to Donald H. Segretti, who is under indictment on charges involving alleged political sabotage. Deputy White House counsel Fred F. Fielding said in a sworn deposition made public Friday that Ziegler was among several top presidential aides attending a meeting in October at which a press release drafted by Segretti about his activities was discussed.

Former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, already indicted by a federal grand jury in New York and frequently mentioned in testimony this week before the Senate's Watergate investigating committee, told UPI that "somebody has tried to make me the fall guy" in the scandal, "but it isn't going to work." Mitchell said, "the only thing I did was to try to get the President re-elected. I never did anything mentally or morally wrong."

By NORMAN KEMPSTER

NORFOLK, VA. (UPI) — President Nixon said Saturday it would be a crime against the memory of the nation's war dead if the United States slackened its efforts to force North Vietnam into scrupulous adherence to the cease-fire agreement.

"A peace agreement that is only a piece of paper is not something we are interested in," Nixon told an Armed Forces Day crowd estimated at more than 15,000 at the Norfolk naval station. "We want a peace agreement that is adhered to. We are adhering to it and we expect the other side to do the same."

The President, in apparent response to critics of his bombing policy in Cambodia and moves in Congress to stop it, said the United States is "continuing to take the necessary measures to insist that all parties to the agreement keep their word and live up to their obligations."

He also accused North Vietnam of failing to abide by its "promise, pledge and solemn agreement" to help account for Americans missing in action in Indochina while breaking the peace accords by maintaining troops in Laos and Cambodia and infiltrating military equipment into South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos.

Nixon, in one of his few public appearances since the Watergate scandal began to reach deeply into his administration, stressed his determination to continue with the tasks he has set for himself in his second term. He virtually echoed the point made by White House staff members who have declared that Nixon will not resign and he repeatedly referred to himself as the President and commander-in-chief.

Twice he gestured with an outstretched right arm toward the American flag snapping briskly in the breeze from the fantail of a nearby cruiser as he vowed the American colors "are not going to start running now — not in Southeast Asia, not anywhere around the globe."

Smiling frequently when he was interrupted by applause, the President ended his visit with a thumbs up sign.

The President also took the occasion to tell his audience of soldiers, sailors, airmen and Marines assembled alongside the carrier Independence:

"Your courage and your steadfastness are the backbone of America's influence for peace around the world. I speak for all your fellow Americans when I say that we owe you a debt of gratitude we can never fully repay."

In his prepared text, the President did not mention the continued American bombing in Cambodia, for which he is under heavy fire in both Houses of Congress. But he obviously alluded to that in saying:

"North Vietnam...has persisted in violations of the Paris agreements. They have, for example, refused to withdraw the thousands of troops which they still maintain in Laos and Cambodia. They have poured huge amounts of military equipment into these areas and into South Vietnam.

"It would be a crime against the memory of those Americans who made the ultimate sacrifice for peace in Indochina, and a serious blow to this country's ability to lead constructively elsewhere in the world, for us to stand by and permit the settlement reached in Paris to be systematically destroyed by violations such as these.

"That is why we are continuing to take the necessary measures to insist that all parties to the agreements keep their word and live up to their obligations. It should be clearly understood by everyone concerned, in this country and abroad, that our policy is not aimed at continuing or renewing the war. Rather it is aimed solely at preserving and strengthening the peace—a peace which we achieved at such cost in the past, and which holds such promise for the future."

Aware Viewpoints Of A Dissident Minority Among Indians Heard

By TERRY WOSTER

Associated Press Writer
PIERRE, S. D. (AP) — The leader of a White House delegation that met with Sioux Indians on the Pine Ridge Reservation this week says his group knows that the people they talked with represent a minority viewpoint.

Bradley Patterson, executive assistant to acting White House counsel Leonard Garment, told the United Sioux Tribes of South Dakota in Pierre Saturday, "We are under no illusion. We met with various chiefs, members of a reservation civil rights group and American Indian Movement supporters."

"We understood that the people we were listening to were a dissident, minority group," he said. "They are articulate and outspoken, but they represent only one point of view."

Patterson and four other White House representatives spent two days on the reservation as part of the agreement that ended the 70-day occupation of historic Wounded Knee by AIM-led forces earlier this month. The talks were with so-called traditional headmen and chiefs of the Sioux to discuss a presidential treaty commission that would review the 1868 treaty between the Sioux and the U.S. government.

Saturday's meeting was with representatives of the nine elected tribal governments in South Dakota.

"We heard a great deal about the 1868 treaty," Patterson told the United Sioux tribal group. "But, under that umbrella, I think I detected a more immediate concern. That was for fairness of judicial processes and public administration on reservations."

"We made it clear that we were not here as judges," he said. "We did get a sense from a certain number of people of a real concern about fairness of tribal governments."

"I can tell you that the effectiveness of the President's policies in Indian affairs depends on the effectiveness of tribal governments. We have a common cause."

"Unless Indian people are involved in developing their programs, implementation will come slow,"

Webster Two Hawk, chairman of the Rosebud Sioux Tribe, told Patterson. "We need technical assistance, we don't have the resources we need, but compliance with policies is done reluctantly if the Indians are not involved in making the policies."

C. V. Nelson of the Pine Ridge Reservation said, "The only way to make the money spent on Indian reservations effective is to give it to the tribal councils. If you want accountability, the money must go directly from Congress to the tribes. We will make our own mistakes. The government has made plenty of mistakes for us."

Bloodmobile

Billy Ross, Pitt blood chairman, reminded area residents of two upcoming visits of the Bloodmobile to Greenville and Farmville.

Ross said that the Bloodmobile will be at the First Christian Church in Farmville tomorrow from 11:30 a.m. until 6 p.m. The Farmville visit is being sponsored by the Jacycess, Lions Club and Rescue Squad of Farmville, he said.

On Tuesday, the Bloodmobile will be at the Greenville Moose Lodge from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. under the sponsorship of the local Optimist Club.

The blood chairman, noting that the county is some 269 pints behind in its quota for this year, said that the current fiscal year ends on June 30 and everyone is asked to help bring the quota up by the end of the fiscal period.

Ross explained that this year's quota was set at 2,360 pints of blood and it has been increased to 2,900 for next year. A quota of 160 units has been established for each visit of the Bloodmobile to the county, it was pointed out.

Some 16 visits were scheduled for Pitt County this year and next year at least 22 visits will be made, he added.

Lethal Gas Suspected In Skylab

HOUSTON (UPI) — Dealing with a new Skylab snag, mission control Saturday began to purge suspected lethal gas from the cabin of America's first earth-orbiting space station.

The problem, caused by overheating of foam plastic insulation in the unmanned craft, was not viewed as immediately serious. But it was another complication to salvage efforts by flight controllers and the first Skylab astronauts.

Astronauts Charles "Pete" Conrad, Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz, wearing sport clothes, worked in simulators at the Johnson Space Center in Houston to perfect emergency techniques for shading Skylab with an awning and boosting its inadequate power supply.

Around-the-clock efforts to ready the repair kit and train the astronauts in its use were going smoothly enough for the crew to plan a half day off Sunday. They were to fly to Huntsville, Ala., late in the day and resume their intense training scheduled Monday.

Space agency officials said they hoped to pack the hastily assembled repair tools and at least two versions of the silver and white awning inside the crew's Apollo command ship at Cape Kennedy by Tuesday night. The astronauts were aiming toward a blastoff time of 9 a.m. EDT Friday.

Physicians at the Houston space center determined through tests that temperatures on Skylab's skin, which reached some 230 degrees Fahrenheit shortly after the vehicle was launched Monday, might have driven a gas called Toluene Diisocyanate (TDI) from thick foam polyurethane insulation lining the cabin's interior walls.

Corrections Workers Finish ECU Study

Nineteen staff members of the North Carolina Department of Corrections were honored in ceremonies which marked the conclusion of the seventh Institute of Correctional Administration at East Carolina University.

The Corrections employees who were selected on a statewide basis completed courses related to Correctional Institutions, Community Corrections, Correctional Law,

The Criminal Offender and Administration. The course offerings were made available by the Department of Social Work and Correctional Services in cooperation with the University's Department of Continuing Education.

The Seventh Institute marks the first occasion in which full-time Criminal Justice employees were in residence at the University for an entire college quarter of ten weeks. On administrative leave from their regular assignments, they participated in classes with full-time University students, many of whom are preparing for criminal justice careers. "The venture" reported H.G. Moeller, Coordinator of Correctional Services at the University and a State Correctional Agency. We look toward a continuing opportunity to expand such services to other criminal justice agencies in North Carolina. The opportunity for undergraduate students and experienced correctional personnel to exchange ideas has been one which has been enriching for both and has added an important dimension to work in the classroom."

Headlining the participants in the recognition ceremony were Secretary David Jones, of the North Carolina Department of Social Rehabilitation and Control, and Chancellor Leo W.

Jenkins, East Carolina University, who presented certificates to participants. Commissioner L.V. Bounds of the North Carolina Department of Correction addressed the group and expressed his satisfaction and pride in their accomplishments.

"At no time in history," he stated, "has the field of Corrections faced a more serious challenge than it does at

"Somebody is siphoning off the funds," he said. "You talk of $37 million spent for South Dakota tribes. By the time that money got down to the reservation level, there wasn't enough left to do the job."

Earlier, at a meeting on the Pine Ridge Reservation, Robert Burnette, former tribal officer of the Rosebud tribe, said he feared a second Wounded Knee could occur on his reservation.

He said Indians at Rosebud are unhappy with tribal government, and conditions similar to those on the Pine Ridge Reservation, location of Wounded Knee, could lead to another confrontation.

Patterson warned that another Wounded Knee would not be looked on with favor by the government.

"That isn't the way Indians or any other group should get results," he said. "It creates enmity, makes the public mad and makes the residents mad without getting results."

Patterson said the White House group would return to Washington, D. C., Sunday to report results of their reservation meetings.

Program For Young Girls

A program of varied coordinative exercises for young girls will be conducted in the summer months if sufficient interest is shown, according to information received from Mrs. Linda Asbell.

Mrs. Asbell for the past eight weeks has been holding classes from 10:00 a.m. until 11:00 at the Elm Street Recreation Center each Saturday morning. This session will end after another week.

"The girls have been having exercises, a little marching and other activities to help them coordinate their movements," Mrs. Asbell said. "This is designed for girls from the third through the seventh grade. Those who have taken part in it so have seemed to benefit from the exercises, and they certainly enjoy it."

Parents interested in having their young girls enrolled for a similar summer program are asked to contact the Elm Street Recreation Department, telephone 752-2355.

Mrs. Asbell said tentative plans for the summer are to conduct the program on some day other than Saturday.

The extent to which the Correctional scene must change if it is to meet the expectations of society and truly meet the needs of the men and women for whom we are responsible has never been more clear. Activities such as this Institute, and the others held over the past two years will strengthen the Department's ability better to meet its responsibilities. Correctional Systems have no greater need than for dedicated employees who have been trained to perform their tasks and with a background of knowledge and understanding which enables them to contribute to the modification of behavior and attitudes of the offender."

Other participants in the ceremony included Dr. David Middleton, Dean, Department of Continuing Education, Dr. John R. Ball, Chairman of the Department of Social Work and Correctional Services, and H.G. Moeller, all of the University.

The members of the faculty who assumed primary responsibility for the Institute included Dr. William C. Smith, Dr. Kenneth E. Taylor, H.G. Moeller, and Adjunct Professors, D.T. Phillips, Donald Street and Robert Crosswhite.

The latter are members of the Department of Correction headquarters staff in Raleigh. Participants in the Institute who were awarded certificates of accomplishment included B.N. Stalls of Greenville.

Military Academy, bringing the total number of cadets accused in the cheating scandal to 21, a West Point spokesman said Saturday.

He said all of the cadets were accused of cheating during physics examinations in early April.

Seven of the cadets have submitted their resignations and 12 others have requested that a board of officers review the decision of the Cadet Honor Committee, the spokesman said.

The officers' board has found that one cadet violated the code. The superintendent of the academy must rule on the board's finding and, if he finds the cadet guilty, then send his opinion to the Department of Army for a final decision.

All of the cadets involved are members of this year's junior and senior classes, the spokesman said.

Cows Killed By Arsenic

RALEIGH (UPI)—The State Agriculture Department said Saturday arsenic poisoning was diagnosed as the cause of death of 29 cows in North Carolina within the last week.

"Tests run at the Rollins Animal Disease Diagnostic Laboratory from Franklin and Pasquotank counties turned up the deadly poison," said commissioner Jim Graham.

Graham said they appeared to be isolated cases, "but they do indicate the problem which exists unless extreme care is taken in the disposal of pesticide containers and old material."

One Franklin farmer lost 22 of his 103 cows after they had eaten a white powder from a drum on a trash heap in the pasture.

The Pasquotank cows died after licking ashes of burned sacks which had become contaminated with an insecticide containing arsenic.

"I urge farm owners to check buildings and trash piles for substances which may contain arsenic or other toxic chemicals, said Graham.

Brezhnev Activities In West Germany Curbed By Big Demonstrations

By DAVID NAGY
 BONN (UPI) — Club-swinging police battled thousands of pro-Chinese demonstrators in Dortmund Saturday and Soviet party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev called off a prospective visit to the Ruhr industrial city.

In Bonn, about 1,000 Germans marched silently in protest against alleged persecution of Christians and Jews in the Soviet Union while pro-Soviet German Communists staged a much larger rally to welcome the Kremlin leader.

In the Foreign Ministry, about half a mile from the competing Bonn rallies, Brezhnev capped the second day of his five-day visit by signing a 10-year economic pact with West Germany. He then posed for television cameras with a smile on his face and a glass of champagne in his hand. Chancellor Willy Brandt signed for the Bonn government.

The largest security force ever deployed by West Germany—27,000 men—was on the alert to keep order during Brezhnev's visit. The rival demonstrations in Bonn were peaceful.

In Dortmund, however, police spokesmen said about 4,000 police cleared about 2,000 German Maoist radicals off downtown squares with repeated baton charges. Officers took more than 300 demonstrators off to "temporary custody," some of them dragged off in strangleholds.

The Soviet Union is holding a cultural festival in Dortmund, in the Ruhr 78 miles north of Bonn, and Brezhnev had scheduled a visit there Monday.

Dortmund is also headquarters of the pro-Chinese German Communist wing and members had promised protest actions.

Saturday, however, spokesman Leonid Zamyatin told newsmen Brezhnev had canceled his visit in order to continue "intensive talks" with West German leaders.

Some of the anti-Soviet demonstrators wore mock prison garb with placards reading "Free Soviet Christians."

Brezhnev and Brandt signed a broadly-worded pact on economic cooperation and looked on while subordinates signed agreements on cultural relations and airline routes.

The trade agreement sets up long term exchanges of German industrial equipment for Soviet raw materials and production items.

Designer Views Student Project

By JERRY RAYNOR
 Reflector Staff Writer

"Ten years ago I opened my firm, Jack Cartwright, Incorporated," the man by the name of his firm said in a Friday afternoon interview.

Cartwright, a native of the former furniture capital of the world, Grand Rapids, Michigan, now calls High Point, the new center of furniture production, home.

The designer and producer of upholstered chairs and sofas primarily for office and institutional use was in Greenville as a guest of the seniors ready to graduate from the Interior Design department of the School of Art, East Carolina University.

Both Cartwright and his wife Mary are trained designers, "although Mary doesn't work now," Cartwright said. "We attended the Kendall School of Design in Grand Rapids."

Melvin Stanforth, chairman of the Interior Design Department at ECU, said that though small, the Cartwright firm stood on an 80 acre site and employed about 50 people in its operation.

Cartwright, speaking about the interior design project completed by 14 seniors at the house at 504 East Ninth Street, said "Apparently with limited resources they are putting a lot of effort out and have displayed talent. It's easy enough," he added "to decorate when you have adequate means, but to make a good showing with no money shows real imagination and talent."

Asked about his preferences for interior design, Cartwright said "I work only in modern designs. This is what I've always liked. I do however, admire fine craftsmanship whatever the period."

The Cartwright firm, he said, "Works with wood, metal and steel in producing designs. Much of production goes to office and institutional buildings. We also provide items and work with universities and colleges."

He said it "is always a pleasure to see the work of students such as displayed at this project. "And," he smiled, "who knows, we're dealing with people who may very well be future customers."

Stanforth remarked that through Friday "about 500 people have visited the displays of interior designs created by the students."

This is the second year Interior Design majors have decorated a house, then opened it for public viewing.

The project at 504 East Ninth Street this year is considerably larger than the initial effort on Greene Street across from the Main Fire Station. This time there are six rooms, two baths and a back porch. Furniture and accessories have been loaned by a number of local merchants and firms.

"Some have also contributed materials used by the students to do basic work," Stanforth said. This includes paint, wallpaper and other interior construction items.

The seniors taking part in the current project are Gary Hulin, Patti Gaston, Gaye Rosental, Becky Engelman, Janice Johnstone, Alice Fowler, Pamela Stevens, Ora Shaw, Stephanie Scarborough, Donna Gates, Camille Davis, Cara Sechrest, Bob Vickery and Karen Robins.

Gary Hulin is at present the president of the ECU chapter of the National Society of Interior Designers (NSID). "Next year, Stanforth said, "a student now a junior, David Williams, will be NSID president."

The Cartwrights were guests of senior and junior Interior Design students at a cook-out held in the back yard of the Interior Design house during their visit in Greenville.

Skyjackers Fly On To Cuba; Demands Unmet

BY H. DENNY DAVIS
 MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Four armed left-wing terrorists demanding the release of 79 Venezuelan "political prisoners" forced a hijacked Venezuelan airliner with 38 hostages aboard to take off for Cuba Saturday after threatening to blow the plane up.

The airliner, with the hijackers, five crew members, 32 passengers and a Mexican policeman aboard, took off at noon CST (2 p.m. EDT).

"The government cannot accept the request of the hijackers," Luis Alberto Machado, secretary general of the Venezuelan presidency, told newsmen following the emergency meeting in the presidential palace.

The terrorists, all with hand grenades and two with pistols, made Mexico City their fourth stop since the hijacking Friday night over western Venezuela.

They had said they would destroy the twin-engine Convair 580 of Venezuela's state-run Avensa Airlines unless Mexican and Venezuelan officials came to the plane to negotiate their demands.

The guerrillas were identified by the Venezuelan police as members of the left-wing "Point Zero" group.

Humberto Rumbos, Venezuelan Embassy spokesman in Mexico City, went to the airport, saying the hijackers were demanding that the 79 "political prisoners" be landed at Jose Marti airport in Havana, Cuba, within 48 hours.

"I will not go aboard," Rumbos said after conferring with Mexican authorities at the airport. "My government will not accede to the cowardly demands of the terrorists. In Venezuela we don't have political prisoners; those men are held for common crimes. We have full confidence in the steps the Mexican government will take."

"There's little the Mexican government can do," Mexican Transport Minister Eugenio Mendez Docurro said.

"The demands are directed to the Venezuelan government, not Mexico. The situation is extremely tense," he said.

The plane landed at Mexico City's International Airport

Saturday morning with 32 passengers and a crew of five after a three-hour flight from Merida, the capital of the Yucatan Peninsula in eastern Mexico. The plane had previously stopped in Curacao, in the Netherlands Antilles; and Panama City, Panama, after being commandeered over the Andes.

Soviet Pledges Of Military Aid Said Helped End Fight

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A usually well-informed Beirut newspaper said Saturday that Soviet pledges of "all possible military and economic assistance," including military training of a "large number of commandos" for the struggle against Israel, helped end the Lebanon-Palestinian dispute.

At the same time, other Beirut newspapers reported that the last of the 4,000 to 5,000 Palestinian guerrilla reinforcements who crossed into Lebanon from Syria at the height of the bloody fighting between guerrillas and Lebanese troops have pulled back to their Syrian bases.

The reports said the withdrawal was the first step taken by guerrilla leaders to meet the terms of the new secret agreement reached with the Lebanese authorities Thursday. The withdrawal was completed Friday night, the newspapers said.

On the political front, Beirut Radio reported that Premier Amin Hafez has withdrawn his resignation at the request of President Suleiman Franjeh. Hafez submitted his government's resignation on May 8, soon after declaring a state of emergency which is still in force.

Political sources said Hafez' decision to stay on was another indication that the crisis was easing.

The newspaper An Nahar's weekly Arab Report said that the Soviet Union, through Ambassador Sarvar Azimov in Beirut, had helped to bring about the cooperation of the Palestinian leaders with the Lebanese.

It said in a meeting with guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat last week, Azimov delivered a message from Kremlin leaders promising continued support for the guerrillas. It quoted guerrilla sources as saying the Russians promised "all possible military and economic assistance" and "offered to accept a large number of commandos for military training" for the struggle against Israel.

The guerrillas from Syria—reported to be the 4,000 to 5,000 man Yarmouk brigade of the Palestine Liberation Army (PLA)—first crossed the border shortly after the army-guerrilla fighting broke out in Beirut May 2.

They withdrew after three days, but returned again after guerrillas in Beirut resumed the fighting May 7.

More than 300 civilians, soldiers and guerrillas were killed in the fighting in the Lebanese capital and along the northeast and southeastern borders with Syria.

Three People Hurt In Two Accidents

Two traffic accidents Saturday, resulted in three injuries, and an estimated $600 in damages according to Greenville police.

Heaviest damages occurred at a mishap at the intersection of 264-Bypass and Highland Avenue at 1:05 p.m. yesterday. Louis Umphlett Sutton of 505-A E. Wilson St. in Farmville was charged with failure to reduce speed after the car he was driving collided with an auto being driven by Benjamin Guilford Prescott II of 1704 E. 6th St.

Katherine Prescott, a passenger in the Prescott auto, along with Prescott and Sutton, were taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of their injuries.

Damage to the Prescott vehicle totaled $140, while damage to the Sutton auto was $240.

Another accident occurred at the intersection of Fifth and Tenth Streets at 2:15 p.m. Inez Norris Martinez of 1707 Rosewood Drive was charged with failure to see safe movement when the car she was driving collided with an auto being driven by Willie Mack Thomas of Rt. 1, Simpson.

Damage to the Thomas auto was $100, while damage to the Martinez vehicle was $120.

Asked if he would still be in Paris, Kissinger told newsmen: "Yes, I plan to be here."

Saturday's meeting between the U.S. presidential adviser and North Vietnam's chief negotiator took place at an American-owned villa in suburban Saint-Nom-La-Bretheche. It was the third meeting in three days and brought the total negotiating time to date to more than 13 hours.

Again the atmosphere was friendly. Tho made a point after the meeting of approaching all nine members of the American side and shaking hands with each one.

Midway through the talks, Kissinger, Sullivan and Thach strolled through the garden, talking and gesturing animatedly.

One Injured As Pickup, School Bus Collided

GRIFTON — One person was slightly injured Friday when a school bus and a pickup truck collided near here.

According to Ptl. G.L. Swanson, a pickup truck being driven by John F. Gresham of Rt. 3, Ayden was headed south on N.C. 11 when a school bus, being driven by Charles Floyd Nash of Rt. 1, Grifton, pulled out from a side road and struck the truck. Nash was charged with failure to yield right of way.

Only two children were on the bus at the time of the accident, neither of them injured. Gresham, however, was charged and released from Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Time of the accident was listed as 2:10 p.m.

Traffic Fatality
 DRIVER KILLED — The driver of the car shown above, identified as Jasper Sherwood Smith of Route 3, Ayden, was killed Saturday afternoon when the automobile went out of control on a curve and overturned several times in a roadside ditch on N.C. 43 north of Shelmerdine. Two passengers in the car, George King, 20 of Winterville and Calvin Cherry, 18, of Washington, were thrown clear of the wreckage. They were admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of head and neck injuries.

Emphasizing Change Is Needed

Whatever else comes out of the Watergate scandals, we hope the situation will bring home to everyone that there needs to be major changes in our ways of conducting and financing political campaigns.

It has, first of all, become far too costly to seek elective office—and the higher the office the more it costs. The money has to come from someone and often it comes from those who have the most to gain from government. Thus, even though there might be no specific agreement to buy favors, there is a possible obligation every time a politician accepts a major contribution from big business or a wealthy individual.

Ways have to be found to wrest this control from those comparatively few who have the financial means to make big political contributions.

There also needs to be a code of ethics for politicians and in some cases it needs to be backed up by law. Many of the revelations in the Watergate matter are bad, but false documents and campaign espionage have happened many times before in politics. There have been more cases than we like to remember of scurrilous documents without attribution being circulated in North Carolina camaigns and we are sure it happens in every other state.

All candidates should be morally bound to denounce such tactics and, if it is done, candidates and legal authorities should make an active effort to see that those who circulate such material are exposed.

There has to be a revival of morality in American politics and those who seek to become active politically should take the leadership in seeing that campaigns are conducted on a high plane.

President Has Remained Aloof

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — President Nixon's continued aloofness from the crisis that has carried him to the brink of ruin was brought home this week by his amazing non-reaction to the newspaper reports linking a high administration official to one aspect of the Watergate scandal for the first time.

Mr. Nixon did not summon the officials to ask him about it, nor did he seek to find out the truth for himself. Nor did the development stimulate any Oval Office conversation at all.

Beyond this incident, the President is simply not available for the long serious analysis of Watergate and its explosive dangers that many associates believe is imperative. Although he has seen a few Republican Congressmen lately, they have left his office deeply disturbed by Nixonian detachment from the Watergate wreckage.

Thus, while stunned Republican politicians are beginning to talk of the real possibility of impeachment, Mr. Nixon seems unable to wrench himself out of the habit of business as usual. In the judgment of key officials both inside and outside the White House, Mr. Nixon is confiding in nobody. That he did not discuss those headlines with the high administration officials who was involved neatly fits that pattern.

Similarly, he has resisted the changes being pushed by three top White House officials—Gen. Alexander Haig as "interim" chief of staff, counsel Leonard Garment and press secretary Ron Ziegler. They want frequent and intimate presidential talks with his Cabinet and Republican members of Congress, fresh faces in the White House and the bureaucracy and, most important, exposure to the press.

But in fact, Mr. Nixon's presidential life has changed very little, leading to doubts by both his supporters and his enemies that he means to keep his promises of a new open-door policy. The symbol of Mr. Nixon's refusal, as he write this, to hold even one press conference—much less regular meetings with reporters which his new top aides feel is imperative.

Mr. Nixon's most fervent backers are now saying that his refusal to meet the press and do it soon will undermine their claims that the Oval Office has been opened up to bureaucrats and politicians as never before.

In addition, the President still seems so far removed from everyday government operations that even White House aides themselves know little about what the future holds. One obvious example is the case of Gen. Haig as "interim" staff chief.

Haig wants to get out of politics and back to his job as vice chief of staff in the Army within a few weeks, or even sooner. Yet, on top White House aide sees two years as the proper tenure for Haig. Another believes he will be kept on for two months. In all probability, Mr. Nixon does not know.

Under military discipline, Haig has no choice in the matter and must accept the risk of watching his brilliant Army career dirtied or even destroyed if he is kept in an essentially political job at the White House. Although Haig tells intimates he wants to open up the White House and restore bipartisan civility, he is totally subject to orders of the Commander-in-Chief. Some Republican critics see that as a possibly sinister reason the President chose him.

Finally, Mr. Nixon's sudden decision to bring John B. Connally into the White House added still more confusion. Top White House aides were lead to understand Connally would have no voice in major policy decisions. Yet he is now preparing to draft a new anti-inflation policy in effect repudiating Secretary of the Treasury George Shultz's disastrous Phase III.

It is very much like earlier years of the Nixon administration: confusion, uncertainty, presidential aloofness. The shock is that so little seems to have changed in the face of a crisis of historic proportions which has far from run its full course.

"There, now! I have you on a much tighter rein!"

Your columnist called Utilities Director Charles Horne the other day.

"I'm about to go crazy," were his first words. "What's the problem," I asked.

"The utilities crews are cutting up the streets outside with a jack hammer," he explained. I listened, and sure enough, I could hear the rat-tat-tat of the air hammer.

"I'm sitting here with a bottle of aspirin," Horne lamented.

Well there won't be much sympathy from the citizenry who have dodged utilities street work locally.

Other Editors Say Leaders Speak Out

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

In the heat of a scandal-plagued controversy brought about by the Watergate case, it is encouraging to note that leaders in Congress are rising to the occasion as real statesmen as contrasted to politicians.

For proof, one needs only to examine an issue of the Congressional Record, where some real Americans are putting it on the line.

Admitting it to be "a bad day at credibility gap," Senator Scott, the minority leader, declared on the floor of the Senate. "I believe that all those who honor the profession of politics will feel that what has been done was correctly done by the Chief Executive. The disgraceful episode of the Watergate, which represented a nexus of crimes founded upon stupidity and lacking to this day clear motivation, was bad, in itself, but not as damaging to our confidence in others as the subsequent cover-up—a coverup not known to the President on the 20th of March, as I am certain in my own knowledge... since that is the day I talked to him at length, and confidentially..."

"But this whole shabby, disgraceful episode is not the action of men schooled or grounded in the art of politics. It has been condemned by every Republican who has spoken out and by every Democrat, so far as I am aware..."

Then there was the comment by Senator Mansfield. "I wish to commend the President for the action he has taken... The Watergate affair and all its ramifications... is not a Republican tragedy but is, in essence, an American tragedy because what it struck at were the roots of a democratic government, a constitutional government, a government based on a two-party system... The President, acting as he did, displayed a greater loyalty to the American people, as he should, than to those around him..."

And from Senator Hatfield "... I also commend the President of the United States for the action that has just been reported..."

With such outspoken men in both parties rushing to defend democracy itself, those who have expressed fears lest the American system itself was in jeopardy may take new hope.

Evil men, small men, men interested in personal gain always have and probably always will try to undermine the democratic processes, but as long as Americans in high places are able to separate the good from the bad and uphold the principles upon which America was founded, our democracy will continue to thrive and prosper, despite the efforts of those who seek to tear it apart.

To The Editor:

As a practicing physician in North Carolina since 1949, I wish to share with you my concern for the many tactical obstacles being used against the East Carolina University Medical School concept. There is a shortage of physicians in North Carolina today and the 166 North Carolina students in the three existing medical schools are not going to supply the needs of today or the future. I believe that the answer to the doctor shortage is for the State of North Carolina to build another State-supported degree-granting school to produce high quality physicians trained primarily for family medical care.

The Board of Governors repeatedly calls attention to the so called objective studies they have launched. Out-of-State consultants have been called in to North Carolina to spend a few hours or a few days and they are supposed to tell us what we need better than we can decide for our-

COURAGE

The bravest people are not those who have no fear, but those who have conquered their fears. Some of the greatest military commanders have been men who hated battles, feared them and trembled through them but fought them to the end because they believed they were fighting for the right.

We should judge our courage, therefore, and the courage of our fellows not by the way we feel but by the way we act; not by what we want to do but what we make ourselves do in an hour when courage is required. Some people appear to like to do dangerous things. As often as not they have a neurotic need to attract attention to themselves or a more seriously neurotic death wish. The truly courageous person is the one who does dangerous acts only when there is an absolute necessity to do so, usually connected with the safety or welfare of someone else. The truly courageous man resolutely puts his own interests aside and does what he knows to be right, regardless of the consequences.

Army's Cooks Today

By KENNETH J. BRADDOCK
FORT ORD, Calif. (UPI) — The U.S. Army is marching on cup cakes and short orders these days.

It's part of what the Army hopes is a new approach to keeping volunteers it needs with the end of the draft, and to change the image of its cooks.

The Army figures that by next year it will need another 13,000 cooks to fill the jobs it has. It loses about one-third of its cooks and the outlook isn't bright, with growing demands for chefs in the burgeoning food service industry in civilian life where the pay and opportunities are better.

To help fill the demand, the Army is centralizing cook training at two bases, here on this Monterey Peninsula camp to handle West Coast recruits and at Fort Lee, Va., to cover the East.

Recruits go through basic training the same as all would-be soldiers before embarking on an eight-week cooking course that strives to make them budding gourmet chefs in the reality of preparing meals for hundreds of hungry troops on a weekend bivouac.

In learning how to prepare, cook and serve a wide range of foods, the trainee cooks—not all of them volunteers for the program despite Army recruiting claims—start learning how to prepare individual meals. Throughout the course, they learn how to make cakes, frosting, pastry and desserts and how to run a field mess.

For those who want to make a career in the kitchen, the Army has advanced courses that it describes as the "nice to know" but not essential things such as food management and nutrition.

Capt. Edward W. Phelan, of Fargo, N.D., chief of Fort Ord's Food Service Center, as the cooks' school is called, said that although much of the present kitchen gear is old fashioned, plans have been approved for a $228,000 remodeling of the training equipment. When remodeling is completed in several months the students will learn their skills in kitchens just like the one at home. Groups of eight will learn from one instructor instead of the usual classes of 25.

Already, Phelan said, experimental short order stands offering alternatives to the Professor Nemar thrilled thousands of people here yesterday afternoon in his sensational blindfold automobile drive over the principal business streets of the city. For forty minutes or more the "Australian Wizard" as he is known throughout the world drove up and down the crowded business streets distributing gifts to various people in the crowd and at last collapsed at the wheel on Evans Street between Fourth and Fifth Streets.

The East Carolina Council Boy Scouts of America is sponsoring a trip to the World's Fair in July. A large all-steel day coach has been provided for the train trip to Chicago.

ALVIN TAYLOR

The topic of conversation for some time now had been how the four lanes of street would make it through the area from Fifth Street to Cotanche.

It has a snaky appearance but the curb line clearly shows that the street is going to make it.

The little girl sitting at a table next to mine in Biggs Drug Store suddenly giggled. She couldn't have been more than three.

"Look at the old boy over there," she said to her older sister, who was probably seven or eight.

I glanced around. There was nobody there but me. I glared at the youngest one and she giggled even more. The older girl was studying me.

"Oh hush up," she told the young sister. "He's not old." Precious child, that older girl.

Led one ardent soap opera fan, left hanging in the middle of a plot, to comment, "If they just take somebody's appendix out in the middle of all this, it just might be worth it."

Greatest Fund Raisers Of All

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — It has been a postulate of the Securities and Exchange Commission in recent years that one of the few unique advantages left to the United States in an increasingly competitive world is its capital raising ability.

This view was described by William Casey, when he was chairman in 1972. And G. Bradford Cook, who succeeded him until his resignation Wednesday, expressed similar thoughts. Each felt the capital markets must be preserved.

These markets for savings, stocks, bonds and other securities are the biggest fund raisers known to man, bigger than the U.S. Internal Revenue Service or the Bank of England, a national treasure existing nowhere else.

They have financed war and peace and launched and kept supplied with fresh funds the expansive corporate machinery that for years has given the United States an industrial advantage over all other nations.

But the capital markets have been having troubles in recent years.

The old structure developed cracks. Some brokers failed to hold up their end, ethically or financially. The stock exchange machinery was found to be inadequate and self-serving.

Regulatory guidelines needed modernizing. Confidence needed to be restored.

There it is again, that word "confidence," synonymous with faith and trust.

In the hard world of money, it sounds too conceptual, too abstract to have reality, but that isn't so at all. Not only is it a hard term, it is the bedrock on which the unique capital markets are constructed.

Without confidence, people don't take risks, and that has been the case with millions of investors during the past few years. They might trust the companies in which they invest, but they've had doubts about the machinery of buying.

And so the SEC and the various exchanges and brokers are agreed, at least superficially, that a new order is needed. Its purpose: To restore confidence.

That is why the resignation of Cook, accused by a grand jury of having submitted to political pressure in deleting information from an SEC case, is considered so damaging. The timing could hardly have been worse.

Ironically, Cook was pushing ahead with the SEC suit in question, charging Robert Vesco, a financier, with having illegally transferred $241 million from mutual funds to his accounts and those of others.

But at the same time that he was pushing the case, the

Observations From Editorial Columns

Press Still Free

If there was ever doubt about the chilling effect that the U.S. Supreme Court might have had on a free press when it ruled that newsmen must answer grand jury subpoenas, the Watergate case has removed it. The news sources that were supposedly going to dry up are now gushing forth like Niagara Falls.

The implied censorship that some journalists were griping about has been obliterated by one disclosure after another. New developments in the Watergate story are being reported daily, all gathered by enterprising newsmen. So many, in fact, that it is getting to be a trifle boring.

But the news keeps coming as a sign that Washington still leaks like an Army pup tent. Supreme Court rulings notwithstanding, the news, however, sordid, is still being offered for public inspection.

There may be more occupational hazards, but the press is still free. —Tulsa (Okla.) Tribune

Gas Consumption

Secretary of the Interior Rogers C. D. Morton gave Americans reasonable advice the other day, saying that to conserve fuel, they should ride bicycles, take trains, but smaller cars, use less air conditioning in their cars and drive slower. Then newsmen asked the Secretary how he goes to work each day. In a chauffeur-driven, air conditioned, eight-cylinder Cadillac, he said. Mr. Morton is "making arrangements" to switch to a humbler vehicle more in tune with the energy crisis - Chattanooga (Tenn.) Times

Do As I Say

Every time - well, almost every time - it seems the world is headed somewhere in a handbasket, some good news comes along. A nick-of-time announcement by the Good Humor folks says that they have perfected an ice cream that will not drip.

Thus does humanity conquer its afflictions. Now if humanity can do something about drips in its own ranks. . . Miami (Fla.) Herald

Changing The Times

The Environmental Protection Agency has determined, at what cost we cannot tell, that heavier automobiles use more gasoline per mile than lighter automobiles. The agency also found that those quaint foreign autos consume less gas than their American peers. Question: How much gas did the agency use to arrive at these less than startling results? - Charleston (S.C.) News and Courier meal of the day are giving stiff competition to franchised food stands on base. With modernization of Army equipment for this line, the short order business is expected to grow even more rapidly.

No More KP

"One of the things we're trying to discourage is the kind of mammoth productions that we used to have of slab cakes to feed up to 100 men," Phelan said. "What we'd like to see is, say, eight or 10 regular size cakes."

A couple of scratch cakes with lemon-flavored frosting and blueberry muffins prepared by one cooking class were rated highly by a visitor to the school.

"We've always had problems with the cook's image," Phelan said of the traditional KP punishment meted out in the Army.

"Now there's no more KP. We hope this will improve the image by getting the cooks into the cooking business."

Pvt. Dan Pulos, 20, of Belmont, Calif., requested topographic surveying to be his specialty in the Army, but found out he was going to be a cook when his name was read from a list.

"At first I thought 'oh, no,'" he said. "But now I don't think it's so bad."

Looking up from his chore of learning to chop carrots, he grinned. "I should always be able to get a job," he said. "It's something I can always fall back on. At least I'll know how to cook."

selves. The latest list of consultants are 5 in number. The only one of these consultants who represented a new medical school in New Mexico has resigned from the committee. Another heads Meharry Medical School in Nashville, Tenn. that receives North Carolina dollars to admit black North Carolina students. Another member of the committee heads a State school in Virginia that has been a foe of a new medical school in the Norfolk area. Another member of this committee who I know personally, comes out of a New York private school and maintains a very close relationship with one of our private medical schools. Another is also from New York and is in charge of a community medical program running store from clinics in Harlem.

I don't believe that these men can tell the people of North Carolina, its Board of Governors, or its Legislature what is best for the people of North Carolina. I object to a committee of this type and I oppose their efforts to give us their answer that we do not need. The people of North Carolina know they need more doctors already and another State supported institution is the only way to fill this need.

Let's call for the Board of Governors to listen to the people of North Carolina and stop wasting time and money, but proceed to expand the East Carolina University Medical School to a full degree granting institution, adequately funded to turn out high quality practicing physicians. I believe that the Board of Governors is stalling and that the people must eventually turn to the General Assembly.

A Conservative View

Watergate May Produce Beneficial Results

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

In his essay on Compensation, Emerson asserted that "every sweet has its sour, every evil its good." The observation was not especially novel, and because of those "every's," not even demonstrably true. But the adage gives hope to mankind, without which we despair; and in the midst of the Watergate scandals, I think we must cling to it now.

The damaging consequences of Watergate need no review. Richard Nixon's own reputation in history is now forever tarnished. John Mitchell and Maurice Stans will be remembered, no matter how their trails turn out, as men who were indicated on charges that amount to corruption. A long roll could be called of other men now permanently branded by this shameful affair.

Beyond the damage done to individuals is the damage done to institutions and indeed to the nation. The credibility of the White House has become, in the mocking word, "inoperative." The Federal Bureau of Investigation has suffered. The Republican party may have lost whatever chance it had of holding the presidency in 1976. This past week the price of gold rocketed above $100 an ounce, with inevitable erosion of the dollar, and the explanation in the money markets was Watergate. Watergate! The very word rings like the drowned bells of a sunken cathedral.

Yet if every evil has its good, this disaster may yet produce beneficial effects. Let me sketch five areas of hope.

The first has to do with reform of the laws that govern our presidential campaigns. It is ridiculous — ridiculous and dangerous — to tolerate a system by which each of the major parties must raise some $30 to $40 million to wage its campaign. In the sober aftermath of Watergate, Congress may at last be persuaded to fix modest and enforceable limits on campaign contributions and campaign spending.

The drafting of such a law won't be easy. How, for example, can a limit be enforced on such collective efforts as those of the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education? If the making of a political contribution is a form of political expression, how do we get around the need to preserve First Amendment freedoms? But the mood is right for reform, and Watergate may compel it.

The calamity may produce not only reform of election laws, but also reform of election practices. It will be a long time, we may believe, before a presidential candidate closes his eyes to the "shady tactics," in Nixon's phrase, that both parties have condoned in the past. Just as "McCarthyism" passed into the language as a proper noun, embracing character assassination, so "Watergate" will become a generic word for political foul play. So long as man are less than angels, we can expect some devilry; but it should be less.

In a third area, the scandal already has produced a gratifying shakeup within the Nixon administration. John Ehrlichman and H. R. Haldeman are leaving the White House, and Washington is dry-eyed at the prospect. L. Patrick Gray's brief chapter in the annals of the FBI is closed. The president's new choices for Defense, Justice, and the CIA are widely acclaimed. Conservatives are bound to have reservations at the ascension of the liberal Len Garment to a new position of influence as presidential counsel, but taking one thing with another, the changes are altogether good.

The cathartic effect almost certainly will improve the relationship between the White House and Capitol Hill. It may even improve the relationship between the White House and the press. This event is like a death in the family. For a time, we can expect lower voices.

Finally, Watergate may produce in Nixon himself, and in persons in public life generally, a new understanding of what is meant by hubris—the insolence of office, the arrogance of power. This was the underlying evil of the whole affair, that men who should have been sobered by trust became drunk on power instead.

I do not mean to write of Watergate in the past tense. It will be months before the story drops from the news. But already we can see in this experience mixed good and ill — the staining of reputations, but in a curious way, the greening of a nation.

Sanford-Bennett Wing Has Decision To Make

By JOHN KILGO
RALEIGH—The Sanford-Bennett wing of the North Carolina Democratic Party could be put in a position of having to make a big decision when the 1976 gubernatorial primary rolls around.

Everyone with sense enough to walk around knows that Bert Bennett threw every ounce of his political muscle behind Jim Hunt last year, when Hunt was in the process of winning election as the state's first full-time lieutenant governor.

The Sanford-Bennett forces saw Hunt as a nice horse to ride to the Governor's Mansion in 1976. Hunt still plans to make that race. But at this point, one has to wonder about Skipper Bowles and the talk circulating about him running for Governor again in 1976.

Bowles is also thick with the Sanford-Bennett wing of the Party. There is no question that a Hunt-Bowles battle would split that organization into two camps.

It boils down to an interesting situation that might well develop.

Rep. Gerald Arnold of Harnett very definitely has his eye on the office of attorney general. Arnold is a former law partner of Attorney General Robert Morgan.

There's no way Arnold would oppose Morgan for that office, but the feeling is solid that Morgan will not seek it again. He'll run for the U.S. Senate next year, or for Governor in 1976. The Senate race appears the good bet as far as Morgan is concerned. But back to Rep. Arnold for a minute. The Justice Dept., under Morgan's direction, has presented a picture of being the champion of the consumer.

People will expect the next attorney general to continue along that line, whether or not the image is real or contrived. That is an issue for another column.

Arnold, as you probably know, was instrumental in holding up no-fault insurance in this year's session of the Legislature. The Tar Heel press has raked Arnold and Rep. Speed High over the coals for keeping the no-fault bill in committee, under the guise of studying it over the summer.

A Study Commission headed by former Sen. Neil Jones of Wadesboro studied no-fault for more than a year and traveled to all parts of the country to look at what other states had done in the field. The charge is being hurled—and the people back home will decide whether it's valid—that lawyer-legislators like Arnold don't want no-fault passed because it will dip into their pocket-books.

Such criticism won't hurt Arnold much in his present position. But if he realizes his dream of running for attorney general, it's an issue that he will be called upon to answer.

and who have demonstrated their willingness to invest if treated properly.

The institutions aren't likely to mind quite so much. A pension fund might invest even when the market is poor in order to avoid being swamped by incoming funds. To them it is a matter of necessity rather than of choice.

But the individual investor has been quietly waiting while the regulatory officials, to some extent with the cooperation of exchange officials and brokers, advanced these promises repeatedly in recent months: —To develop a central market that would assure him of the lowest prices to be found, not just on a particular exchange but on or off any market in the country.

—To give the individual investors equal access to information about corporations so that he wouldn't be at a disadvantage in trading alongside powerful institutions.

—To restore public confidence in the nation's unique marketplace.

now seems fairly well set, but a credit "crunch" is discounted.

A lot depends on the consumer, long considered one of the most unpredictable factors in the economy. He helped push the economy up rapidly, including prices, when he opened his purse and started using installment credit in a big way early this year. He can let demand drop simply by retreating from the market place.

In watching the consumer, however, it is good to have in mind what happened during the meat price strike. The consumer stayed out of the markets for a week. This produced a brief recession for meat cutters—any laid off. But it had no significant impact on prices, they have stayed up.

This, on a small scale, repeats the economic lesson of Nixon's first term. You can slow the economy to the point of creating unemployment, but it doesn't mean lower prices. The most to expect under any circumstances is simply a lower rate of rise. Historically, today's prices become bargains tomorrow.

jury claimed that, at the behest of Nixon fund raiser Maurice Stans, he had deleted reference to Vesco's $200,000 contribution to the Nixon presidential campaign.

And so, at a time when many scared investors were spending their hiatus from active investments to become spectators of the SEC's progress toward modernizing the markets, they are shaken again.

Those hurt worst are the mass of individual investors, many millions of them, who as a group have more money to invest in the expansion of the country than ever before.

Concern Over Economic Explosion Behind The Current Business Boom

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

In just a matter of weeks the books will close on the economy's performance during 1973's first half. There will be new records, aplenty.

Profits have never risen so sharply. The number of jobs has never been higher. The stream of personal income runs ever wider and deeper. Production, all kinds, can't keep up with orders. Consumers, individual and business, are spending, as never before. The cold statistics show the nation in the midst of an exceptional boom—good times.

But beneath it all there is a strong current of worry. It centers on prices, the result of inflation, and the threat they carry of an explosion which could change just about everything.

It is this threat which keeps the stock market in old familiar ground and threatens another dollar "crisis" in foreign exchange markets. These markets fear inflation will "run wild," and that the boom will become some kind of a bust.

The Administration, of course, doesn't like what is happening. It's obvious at the abandonment of Phase II early in the year, along with the upward rush of food prices, touched off an unexpected across-the-board rise which had not been anticipated.

This jump in prices touched off a sharp rise in consumer and business spending—a sort of let's-get-it-before-it-goes-higher psychology.

In a way, this amounted to a domestic "flight" from the dollar and on a tremendous scale. It tossed a new demand factor into an economy which was already tight. At least part of this "protective" buying will come out of demand later this year or next.

Analysts think this has been an important factor in the spurt in demand for automobiles, home appliances, furniture and furnishings. Some figure it accounted for something on the order of one out of every 10 sales of new cars.

From the way Washington has reacted thus far it would seem that no "emergency" steps are called for. Certainly, the Nixon Administration has passed over opportunities to return to a new wage-price freeze.

Herbert Stein, head of the Council of Economic Advisers, has given the impression at press conferences and in other comments that he feels the worst of the price news is behind us for this year.

Stein doesn't see any generally lower price level for food or other things. His position is that the rises of the past few months have flattened and that further increases will be more moderate.

He also feels that the rate of economic growth, as measured by the gross national product, is slowing. He concedes that if the 14 per cent rate of GNP rise in the first 1973 quarter should continue, then inflation would hit a dangerous pace.

Obviously, the Administration is counting on fiscal and monetary policy to play an increasingly important role in cutting the rate of inflation.

Stein sees the White House winning the budget battle with Congress. Deficit spending, in vogue for most of the past 40 years, has been the major influence leading on to the explosive inflationary danger. The spending slowdown which Nixon has commenced should have an impact along a broad front before year-end.

Credit is the other leg of this policy. The Federal Reserve is counted on to allow the supply of loan funds to tighten, even if it does force interest rates to a higher level. This direction

Large Segment Of Public Blames Middleman For High Prices

By GEORGE GALLUP

Copyright 1973, Field Enterprises, Inc. All rights reserved. Republication in whole or part strictly prohibited, except with the written consent of the copyright holders.

PRINCETON, N.J.—The middleman, who processes or distributes the food, comes in for the lion's share of the blame for the rise in meat prices. Six in ten (60 percent) of American consumers say the middleman is most to blame. Another 14 per cent say the store or retail outlet is primarily responsible for high prices, and only 8 per cent name the farmer.

Persons with less formal education and lower annual incomes are more likely to blame the store rather than the middleman or farmer for rising food prices. Eight per cent of those with a college background think the store is most to blame for the rise in meat prices, while 14 per cent of persons with a high school background agree. Eighteen per cent of those with a grade school education point the finger of blame at the store or retail outlet.

Only 7 per cent of persons whose income exceeds $15,000 per year think most of the blame for high meat prices rests with the retail outlet. In sharp contrast, almost four times as large a proportion among those with incomes under $3,000 blame the store.

Although women are the primary food shoppers, little difference is found between the view of men and women. Nor are those differences marked in terms of the occupation group of the respondent.

1 Person in 5 Participated in Boycott

The recent boycott to protest rising meat prices was remarkably effective considering its loose organization. Nearly six persons in ten in the survey say they have either made plans to eat less meat (or presently do so), or participated in the recent meat boycott.

Nationally, 30 per cent have made plans to eat less meat (or presently do so), while 26 per cent participated in the boycott. The boycott was most effective in the East where 36 per cent said they participated.

The U. S. Consumer Speaks

Here are some of the comments recorded in the survey: "We buy all our food at the commissary," said the 29-year-old wife of an Army captain. "But even the commissary has high prices. It's ridiculous to pay $8 for one roast that gets eaten in one meal."

A 46-year-old housewife from Atlanta commented: "I don't think we've bought any meat in the past week—prices are so high we can't even afford to look at meat in the market."

"I feel that I should participate in the boycott, there has been so much talk about it," said the wife of a barber from New York state, "but frankly I was able to find some meat at a pretty good price the other day, so I bought it."

A 29-year-old insurance agent from Maryland had this to say:

"I grew up on meat. The boycott is a contemporary and artificial thing of society. Farmers should be allowed to produce as much as they can—it's a matter of supply and demand."

Inflation Is Top Worry

Inflation is currently considered the most important problem facing the nation. In a survey conducted in early March, 6 in 10 persons named the high cost of living their top concern with many citing food and meat prices as the chief culprits in rising prices.

President Nixon recently said that soaring food prices remain the biggest obstacle to curbing inflation. He urges farmers to boost production as a means of delivering more food to the nation's supermarkets.

In reality, survey evidence indicates food costs today comprise a smaller share of the median amount the public says is needed per week to get along than was true 25 years ago.

In 1947, a Gallup survey revealed, food costs represented one-half of the median amount the public said was the minimum needed to make ends meet. At that time the public felt a family of four required $43 per week to get along, $21 of which they said was spent for food. The latest survey shows that food costs represent a far smaller proportion—one-fourth—of total costs. It should be kept in mind, though, that this is due to some extent to the larger number of "needs" than was the case in 1947, i.e., more vacations, two cars, more electrical appliances, etc.

As reported in March, the public's median estimate of what a family of four needs per week to make ends meet is a record high of $149 today. The same survey showed that the median food expenditure is a record $37 per week.

Following are the questions asked and the national results: "Has your family made any plans to eat less meat—that is, beef, pork and lamb—then you usually do, or have you participated in the meat boycott?"

Southern Presbyterians Vote Break-Off; Plan New Branch

ATLANTA (UPI) — Representatives of 261 churches from 14 Southern states voted Saturday to formally leave the Presbyterian Church in the U.S. and form a new conservative branch in 1973.

Fifty-eight of the churches had already severed connection with the Presbyterian Church in the U.S., a denomination representing 950,000 members in 15 Southern states.

The other 203 churches must still have formal votes by their congregations before leaving the Presbyterian Church in the U.S. and joining the new denomination.

10 in Asheville, N.C., to plan a formal constituting assembly, probably in December.

The Presbyterian Church in the U.S. was formed prior to the Civil War when the Southern Churches split from the northern group which became known as the Presbyterian Church USA. The northern denomination, which has three million members, is now the United Presbyterian Church.

There has been discussion of merging the Presbyterian Church in the U.S. and the United Presbyterian Church and the dissident churches oppose such a merger.

The convocation adopted a statement called "The Reaffirmation of 1973," which stated differences in belief with the old denomination on matters such as belief in the scriptures, the mission of the church, education in the church and the ecumenical movement.

Officials said the new denomination would not be limited to the South. "We are not prevented from working in any place anywhere in the United States," said the Rev. Ben Wilkinson of Decatur, Ga., chairman of a plan home missions for the new church.

Wilkinson also said there are "groups of people who need special attention in making certain they have the gospel," including blacks, Indians, people of the inner city, the especially poor or wealthy, drug addicts and others.

The convocation elected Jack Williamson, an attorney from Greenville, Ala., temporary chairman and Dr. Morton Smith of Jackson, Miss., temporary clerk.

Church Women To Hold Supper Meet

The United Methodist Women of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church will hold its spring covered-dish supper meeting Monday at 6:30 p.m. in the Fellowship hall of the church.

Mrs. Phil Goodson, Jr., is president of the United Methodist Women and will preside at the meeting. Mrs. Barney H. Barrett and Mrs. Bill Taft Jr., will give the spiritual growth program.

Mrs. Billy B. Cuthrell of Kinston, president of the District United Methodist Women, is the featured speaker. She will give a general program on United Methodist Women including its structure and function, program and resources, and responsibilities of the leadership.

Wife of the Rev. Billy B. Cuthrell of Woodington and Webb United Methodist Churches located near Kinston, Mrs. Cuthrell is the former Jean Smith of Greenville. She has studied at Wahl-Coates School and East Carolina University. She and Rev. Cuthrell are the parents of two girls, Catherine, six, and Lynn, eight.

Mrs. Cuthrell will be introduced at the meeting by the vice president, Mrs. Sally H. Klingenschmitt.

A nursery will be provided by Becky Smith for preschool children. All Methodist women are invited to attend and bring a dish for supper.

The vote at Saturday's convocation was 349-16 in favor of forming the new denomination, which would have 70,700 members, seven per cent of the total membership of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S., if all those at the meeting joined.

The first major split in the more than 100-year-old church was led over a 10-year period by conservative ministers and laymen. Representatives of the new group said the Presbyterian Church in the U.S. had drifted too far from the doctrinal position on such things as women's position in the church, abortion, premarital sex, and other social and political matters.

The dissident churches will be called "The Continuing Presbyterian Church" for the present. An advisory convention has been tentatively set for Aug. 8-

'Never On Sunday', According To Tonga Laws

EDITOR'S NOTE — Because of the International Dateline, Tonga is the first place in the world to observe Sunday. And Tongans do it right. It's against the law to water the lawn on Sunday, stoke a fire, shout in vain or beat on a tin can, and you need the mayor's permission to fire a gun.

By MORT ROSENBLUM
Associated Press Writer
NUKU'ALOFA, Tonga (AP) — You can kiss her on a Monday, a Tuesday, a Wednesday, etcetera. But try it on a Sunday in Tonga and you might end up in jail for two years.

It is against the law here to be frivolous on the Sabbath. Any form of work is strictly forbidden, even watering the lawn. And most Tongans wouldn't have it any other way.

Someone stole a goat one recent Sunday. He ate it and went to jail for it before sundown. But a judge turned him loose because police took his confession on Sunday, too, so it wasn't binding. When Wesleyan missionaries converted King George Tupou I in 1831, they did it well. Today virtually every Tongan is a Christian and most go to church at least twice on Sunday.

EMPLOYMENT UP

Not very much happens during the week, anyway, in these friendly, relaxed little South Sea islands, or in their Wild West Victorian capital of Nuku'alofa.

But on Sunday, nothing happens at all.

Townfolk and tourists crowd into the nondescript Century Free Wesleyan church of Tonga where some get to watch King Taufa'ahau Tupou IV dozing occasionally behind dark glasses.

Stirring Polynesian voices, helped along by a French horn and two trumpets, belt out a Tongan version of "Rock of Ages" from the choir loft located on straw matting on the main floor.

Meanwhile, other Tongans pray in 45 Mormon chapels scattered around the islands, all looking like they were transplanted moments before from Safford, Ariz.

And still others attend services in Catholic, Anglican and Seventh Day Adventist churches.

No one is required to be in church on Sunday, but everyone is bound by the constitution and some lesser statutes to keep Sunday holy.

Until recently the constitution ordered: "The Sabbath day shall be sacred forever and it shall not be lawful to do work or play games or trade on the Sabbath."

An amendment was added to allow the Cabinet discretion to bend the rules for such cases as the emergency landing of aircraft.

Legislators debated further changes, such as letting taxis take sick persons to the hospital, but it was decided enough was enough and Sunday should remain undefined.

There are clear lines on the books: You can call "sail-ho" but cannot shout in vain or beat on a tin can. You need permission from the mayor to fire your gun. You must make certain your stallion abstains from any procreative activity.

Another law — with an eye toward ecumenical calm — makes it illegal for rival churches less than 300 yards apart to hold services at the same time.

The Sunday laws had the Seventh Day Adventists on the spot for a while. They couldn't shut down Tonga a second day of each week, but they had their tenets to uphold.

Finally someone found the answer. The International Dateline is bent a bit to include Tonga in the Eastern Hemisphere. If it had been left as a straight line, Sunday would be Saturday.

Tonga — because of the dateline — is the first place in the world to observe Sunday.

Despite the strict Sabbath code, tourists at the International Dateline Hotel may ride with a retired police inspector in his new taxi to an isolated beach for a discreet 10-course Tongan feast.

Also, the ceremonial drinking of a mildly lethal and brackish liquid called kava — beloved in the South Pacific — falls within limits.

Strolling is permitted and great crowds are out in the early evening trying hard not to look happy when constables bicycle by.

Not everyone sticks to the rules. Visitors wandered on the wrong road recently and found an animated round of Tongan poker. Nearby, a youth slammed shut his February 1973 Playboy and grinned at an empty gin bottle.

Actually, Tongan elders say, that is a sign of the worst problem the easy-going islanders face.

"Here no hijacking, no rape, no murder, only young boys who get drunk on the streets," commented one father of many.

The trouble is that many youths, educated to secondary school level with a good look at how people live in other countries, don't want to farm taro and go to church on Sunday.

But in Tonga's carefully structured society, most have no choice.

The business of Christianity is the major industry on Tonga. The Mormons have been particularly successful missionaries in recent years and claim 25-30 per cent of all Tongans with 50 or 60 new baptisms every month.

Their high school at Lianona, with 950 students, is neo-Santa Barbara down to the doorknobs.

Mormon Mission President Charles Woodworth says direct and indirect payments by his church account for 75 per cent of the government's revenue.

Officials put the figure lower but agree it is a sizeable chunk. Much of the Mormons' annual expenditure of more than $2 million goes for salaries to Tongans doing construction and other projects.

Tongan and foreign critics say the money is distorting the traditional economy. Some add that mission education is turning out little American school-children instead of little Tongans.

But most Tongans, from the king on down, say the Mormons and other missionaries are making valuable contributions to the country in spite of their weak points.

All in all, people in Tonga worry about change. Six days a week.

Young People Keep Tradition Of Sail-Making

FRED BROUSSARD, a former Navy electronics engineer, now makes his living as a sail maker much as craftsmen did when the billowing white was a necessity. (UPI Telephoto)

By JIM MCGREGOR
PORTLAND, Maine (UPI) — In a rustic old building overlooking the harbor in this Maine city, skilled hands unroll reams of gleaming white material and cut and sew the pieces into delicate sails that propel majestic schooners and lesser boats on waters around the world.

Surprisingly, the hands that carry on the craft that has flourished in sail lofts along the Maine coast for 200 years do not belong to retired sea captains with weather-beaten faces.

They belong to about 50 young people, many of them sporting the beards and long hair that symbolize their generation.

They are producing sails in much the same manner that craftsmen did when the billowing white was a necessity rather than a sign of luxury.

The 33-year-old owner of Atlantic Sails Co. thinks his crew is turning out the same quality product and doing it faster and more efficiently.

Graham Stone, an Australian who once cut the sails for the racing yacht Gretel, says that in a few short years his firm has become the largest sail maker in the nation without sacrificing New England quality. He expects to cut 1,700,000 square feet of sail this year.

"All the people who work here are young," Graham said. "They feel like they are doing something a little different. Many of them have college degrees and didn't want to go to work for IBM. They wanted to get back to the basic crafts."

"Our process is essentially the same as it was more than a hundred years ago. We handle a greater volume because we train people to do one thing, where one man used to cut and sew the entire sail. We can train a person to cut or sew in about two weeks while it might have taken a man a hundred years ago several years to learn the entire craft."

Sail Fever
Terry Bragg, 23, a Maine

native, came to Atlantic Sails after three and one-half years at Maine Maritime Academy. "I knew I wanted to be around the ocean," he said. "Sailing is a tremendous aspect of living. There's nothing to compare with the excitement of getting out of sight of land, hoisting a sail, and seeing the wind fill it out."

In his off hours, Bragg is using company facilities to make the sails for a 47-foot boat his wife and friends are building. They plan a cruise around the world.

Bragg said most everyone who works at Atlantic Sails gets the fever. "Some kids just come here looking for a job, but they end up loving the job and sailing," he said. "It is an outlet from society. People are getting away from power boats just like they are getting away from other things in society."

Stone said the future looks bright for his small company. "America has simply gone sailing," he said. "It is no longer a rich man's sport. The average man can afford a sail boat and can enjoy the sport on weekends."

Types of Sail
Stone, who will soon be naturalized as an American citizen, has cut the sails for some of the world's most famous boats and is considered a leading authority on sailing.

He recently finished 4,000 square feet of sails for the Hudson river sloop, the Clearwater. The 92-foot boat sails the Hudson River as a floating ecology workshop.

In addition to his mass production, Stone makes custom sails for individual boats where expert knowledge of the sport is a must.

"There is a big difference in the type sail one needs to cross a harbor or cross an ocean," he said. "If one is going to race, attention must be given to the shape. The strong prevailing winds of San Francisco Bay require one type of sail, while the Long Island Sound, which usually has calmer winds, requires still another."

Cherokee Indian Village Is Open Again

CHEROKEE, N.C.—A glimpse of life as it was lived in an 18th century Cherokee Indian village awaits the visitor to Oconaluftee Indian Village in Cherokee, which opened May 17th for its 22nd consecutive season.

In an age burdened with ecological problems, a visit to Oconaluftee is a lesson in how man once used to live in harmony with his surroundings, as did the Cherokee Indians of the last century. The Village, which is an authentic replica of an 18th century Cherokee community, depicts the early primitive life of the peaceful, industrious, inventive Cherokees who made their home in the North Carolina mountains before being forced westward along the infamous "Trail of Tears" to Oklahoma.

At Oconaluftee, which is a part of the Cherokee reservation in the Great Smokies, ancient tribal ways are dramatically recreated and demonstrated by descendants of the original Appalachian highlanders. One may see typical log cabins plastered with clay and roofed with board shingles. Native craftsmen are busy making pottery, weaving baskets, tailing darts for blow guns, chipping flints and demonstrating the arts of finger weaving and beadwork, all without benefit of machine or the wheel. A visit to the seven-sided council house and the ceremonial square ground, which was the hub of ceremonial village life, are also included on the tour which take approximately one hour, longer if one wishes to linger and visit.

Oconaluftee Indian Village and the adjacent Cherokee Botanical Garden and Nature Trail, as well as the nearby Museum of the Cherokee and the internationally acclaimed outdoor drama "Unto These Hills" are all under the sponsorship of the non-profit Cherokee Historical Association, which seeks to preserve and perpetuate the culture and traditions of the Cherokee Indian.

Oconaluftee Indian Village, will be open from 9 until 5:30 daily through October 22.

The Museum, which houses an extensive and fascinating collection of Cherokee Indian artifacts and historical documents, will be open from 9 until 5 through June, then from 8 to 6 during July and August.

"Unto These Hills" this year will play nightly, except Sunday, from June 19 through August 28 at the Mountain side Theatre in Cherokee. Full information on all the Cherokee attractions and color brochures describing each may be obtained free of charge by writing to the Cherokee Historical Association, Cherokee, North Carolina 28719.

By LINDA M. STANCILL

Public and personal images of the sixties are interpreted by Joyce Maynard in LOOKING BACK. A gifted young writer, Maynard writes about fads and movements, space shots and SAT's, getting caught up in puberty and getting involved in politics. She records not only the events, but the experiences of a tumultuous decade, molding them into a consistently absorbing blend of insight, nostalgia, humor and humanity. Maynard speaks for and about the Younger Generation in her chronicle of growing old in the sixties.

The fascinating story of UCLA's brilliant basketball coach, John Wooden is revealed in THEY CALL ME COACH as told to Jack Tobin. Clues to Wooden the man and the coach are woven into the fabric of this life story—in childhood incidents, in the formative influences of high school and college years, in his high school coaching career, his World War II years as a Navy lieutenant, and on into his college coaching. Wooden talks candidly about his players from season to season—their talents and weaknesses, their temperament and behavior and his relationships with them. He discloses his basketball philosophy (built on a Pyramid of Success) and the strategy that has gone into his making of champions.

Memoirs of Washington, D.C. and the after-hours political scene are revealed by Barbara Howar, the eminent socialite of the capital city. As a hostess, journalist, and TV personality; she consorted with numerous political bigwigs and international celebrities from around the world. In LAUGHING ALL THE WAY she recounts the bizarre period of the 1960s and gives the inside scoop on the private goings-on during the Kennedy, Johnson and Nixon years.

The private lives of Franklin and Eleanor are exposed by Elliott Roosevelt and James Bough in AN UNTOLD STORY: THE ROOSEVELTS OF HYDE PARK. Their son reveals the trials and tribulations of forty storm-filled years of marriage. He tells all about his lonely, self-conscious mother and his father's relationships with other women. He contends that the idealized public image of his parents make them strangers to him. In his search for the ultimate truth, he presents an entirely different view of the 32d President of the U.S. and his wife.

Pitt County Schools Show On View

Spring continues to be celebrated at the Greenville Art Center as yet another colorful children's art show goes on the walls for people to see and enjoy.

Today it's the Annual Pitt County Schools Art Exhibit that opens with a public reception at the Art Center from 3:00 to 5:00 p.m.

For the reception, music will be provided by groups from Ayden-Grifton, Farmville Central, Farmville Junior High and there may also be a group on hand from Falkland Elementary.

Pitt County boys and girls, from diligent little kindergartners to graduating seniors, have the best of their art efforts for the school year gathered together. The county's lone art teacher, Freddie Outerbridge, has assembled a fine cross section of a variety of media in which the children work.

"Crafts are more widely represented this year than ever before," Outerbridge said. "I think this has been a fine outlet for the children's creative desire."

Outerbridge admitted that without the enthusiastic cooperation of classroom teachers in willingness to go far beyond what's required of them in the county's art program, it would have been impossible to accomplish what has been accomplished this year.

"It's difficult for me to get around to all 22 schools that have art programs," Outerbridge said. "I hold periodic workshops with classroom teachers and they pick up from there and put a tremendous amount of work into the art program."

At the high school level, three teachers have been instrumental in helping keep the art program active for the older students. Mrs. Myriam Harris of Ayden-Grifton; Mrs. Bessie Redden, Farmville Central; and Mrs. Rebecca Norcott at North Pitt. Outerbridge also named Mrs. Vivian Weatherly of Chicod Elementary School as a staunch worker in the program.

Although we can be grateful the 11,370 Pitt County School students have this once a year opportunity to show their best efforts, it's unfortunate these children must be limited to the restriction imposed by one show for such a large number. It would be good to see them on the same footing with the city school children, who have three shows annually for different age and grade levels.

This ideal will not be realized until the Pitt County School officials take positive action to provide for more than one art teacher per some 11,000 students. (In contrast, for example, there are 16 coaches for sports in the four high schools alone.)

RANDOM EXAMPLES... from the Pitt County Schools Annual Art Exhibit opening today at the Greenville Art Center.

The colorful annual will be on view for two weeks only, through June 1. This is the last student exhibit for the current year. Like its predecessors of youthful art, this delightful show should be put on your list of things to enjoy in the month of May.

To Use Area Talent

Outer Banks Theater Plan

An advertising executive who does theatrical productions on the side is planning to launch a summer repertory theatre company in the Outer Banks next year, it was disclosed this week.

The Chicago ad man and part-time producer and director and actor is William A. Ries of the Chicago suburb of Evanston. The Ries' are long-time visitors to Dare County.

"Just twenty years ago this month my wife and I visited the Outer Banks on our honeymoon," Ries said. "I had never heard of the area before, but when we left I said it would be a fine place to live some days."

"I think that the Outer Banks are ready for the right kind of real, live family entertainment," he added, "and we plan to produce highly professional theatre out here." Drama, light comedy and small scale musicals would be the major fare in the beginning. Later on, Ries said, he hopes to expand to include some experimental drama and theatre techniques and to be able to extend the season to a weekend schedule of small-cast plays during the spring and fall.

When asked where he planned to recruit his cast and staff, Ries replied that he expected to be able to cast the shows and staff the theatre using some local talent as well as college theatre arts majors and possibly even college faculty members. Initial plans call for the hiring of a part-time business manager and a summer director as well as a qualified technical director.

When asked about competition with The Lost Colony production at Fort Raleigh, Washington on Sundays from noon until 4 p.m., is now scheduled to go into a twice-weekly prime-time show for half hour periods beginning in early June.

"The change to the new time will be announced in the TV Guide for May 30," Miss Currie said in a brief interview.

"The first show to be seen at the new time will be an interview with Manager Janet Spencer and members of the North Carolina Dance Theater," Miss Currie said. The TV personality taped this show in McGinnis Auditorium several weeks ago during rehearsal for the company's dance concert in Greenville.

"This first new time show will be at 7:00 p.m. on Tuesday, June 5," Miss Currie pointed out. "After that, Hospitality House will be aired each Tuesday and Thursday from 7:00 to 7:30 p.m."

Today's Program

Miss Currie revealed that today's Hospitality House (Noon to one p.m.) will feature efforts being made in Greenville to establish a coffee house as the beginning phase of a new anti-drug program. Art Linkletter will be the special guest. Others on the show will include Harry Allen, Jr., and Herb Lee of Greenville, and specialists from Cherry Point Marine Base and Seymour Johnson Air Force Base.

Writer's Meet On Tuesday

The second meeting in May of the Greenville Writers Club will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Shires, 2109 Southview Drive, Greenville.

Persons interested in creative writing are invited to attend.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Enjoy amusements that are inexpensive but pleasurable, and get fine results. Forget that monetary worry for the time being. You can sleep on it tonight and the right solution will come to you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A fine day to further personal goals, but make sure you do not relax and jeopardize your reputation. Avoid that higher-up who likes to have a whipping boy for you could become that. Think more intelligently.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't run away to some far-off place, but handle those private and personal matters that are important. You have new ideas, but they need further study. Put all drudgeries behind you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You can get needed support and information from one who is conventional and serious. Then handle personal affairs. Study further before putting plans to work.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those clever young people who will understand how important it is to follow the ideas of those in high places, and should be taught to act in a conventional way so as not to lose the respect of such. # Toms Hogan Named To All-Southern

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Four players from Appalachian State's newly crowned champion Mountaineers and two repeaters from Richmond's dethroned champion Spiders were named Saturday to the All Southern Conference baseball team.

The 10-man team, selected by the league's eight coaches, also included two players from East Carolina's runner-up Pirates and one each from The Citadel, which tied Richmond for third place, and William and Mary.

The only repeaters of the four underclassmen named last year were pitcher Roger Hatcher, the only unanimous choice, and junior second baseman Marshall Owen, both of Richmond.

Named from Appalachian were four underclassmen—juniors Steve Anspaugh at first base, Frank "Butch" Dziadul at third base and Robbie Williams in the outfield and freshman Mike Ramsey at shortstop.

Junior Tommy Toms of East Carolina was named as the other pitcher with Hatcher, while the other East Carolina selection was junior outfielder Mike Hogan.

Only three seniors were selected—Hatcher, outfielder

Steve Arrington of The Citadel and catcher Bill Harris of William and Mary.

On the basis of two points for a first-team vote and one for a second-team vote, Arrington received 16 points like Hatcher—but he got 10 in the outfield and six as a pitcher. Anspaugh received 10 at first base and four as a pitcher.

Raymer received 14 points, Toms 13, Owen 11, Dziadul 10, Hogan and Williams 9 each and Harris 7.

Hatcher posted a 6-3 record and an earned run average of 0.69, lowest in the league, and also drove in 24 runs. Toms had a 7-2 won-lost record and an 0.93 ERA.

In hitting, Ramsey and Williams tied for third with .366 averages, while Owen hit .346. Hogan .337, Arrington .326, Dziadul .321 and Anspaugh .315.

Arrington, who had a 5-3 pitching record and an .096 ERA, led the league with 28 runs batted in and six home runs. Anspaugh had a 7-0 pitching record, an ERA of 0.79 and drove in 19 runs and hit four homers. Ramsey had 15 stolen bases for Appalachian.

The closest vote was at second base, where Owen edged Ken Feaster of The Citadel by one point.

Junior Olympics Held Saturday

Greenville qualified people in 29 places in the Junior Olympics Eastern Regional held at East Carolina University yesterday.

No team totals were kept in the meet, which qualified people for the state meet to be held in Raleigh on June 2. The top three finishers in each event qualified for that meet.

Bethel, among area teams, followed Greenville with 12 positions, while Conley, Greene Central and Williamston each had two and Ayden-Grifton had one.

Entrants into the meet were separated into sex and age groups for competition. Age groups included nine and under, 10-11, 12-13, 14-15 and 16-17.

The only area triple winners was Sharon Johnson of Greenville, who, won the 9-under girls, 100, 220 and long jump.

Tammy Jo Purvis of Bethel was a double winner in 10-11 girls, taking the 880 run and the long jump. James Murphy of Greenville was a double winner in 10-11 boys, taking the 100 and 440.

Carter Suggs of Tarboro, who set new state records Friday night in the 100 and 220, won both those events in the 16-17 age group, plus the long jump.

Stargell's HR Wins For Bucs

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie Stargell slammed a three-run homer off relief ace Tug McGraw with two out in the 10th inning Saturday, lifting the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 4-1 victory over the New York Mets.

The Pirates, who had lost four in a row to New York and tied their previous 22 games, tied the score in the ninth when Bob Robertson led off with a home run off McGraw, his seventh of the season.

Rennie Stennett opened the 10th with an infield hit and was sacrificed to second but was nailed at third on Dave Cash's smash off McGraw's glove. However, Cash took second on a wild pitch and Manny Sanguillen legged out an infield hit before Stargell unloaded his 11th home run into the right field bullpen.

Jon Matlack, making his first appearance since suffering a hairline skull fracture when struck by a line drive 10 days ago, pitched six shutout innings and was staked to a 1-0 lead on Rusty Staub's sixth-inning home run off Nelson Briles before going way to McGraw.

Royals, 5-2
OAKLAND (AP) — Kansas City exploded three home runs in the sixth inning against Vida Blue and defeated Oakland 5-2 Saturday.

Blue and Dick Drago were locked in a scoreless duel until the sixth when the Royals suddenly broke loose. Paul Schaal opened the inning with his second homer of the season.

After a two-out double by Kurt Bevaqua and a walk to John Mayberry, Amos Otis hit his seventh homer of the year. Lou Pinella then followed with his third homer of the season and Rollie Fingers replaced Blue.

Drago, 4-3, was working on a three-hitter until the ninth when the A's knocked him out. Doug Bird came on to preserve the victory. Blue is 3-2.

The A's scored their first run in the eighth inning on a single by Ray Fosse, a throwing error, an infield out and a sacrifice fly by Angel Mangual. They added another in the ninth on hits by Reggie Jackson and Deron Johnson.

Twins, 8-3
CHICAGO (AP) — Larry Hisle cracked out four hits, including a pair of doubles and Bert Blyleven hurled a five-hitter Saturday boosting the Minnesota Twins to an 8-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox in a nationally televised game.

Hisle drove in two runs and scored three times as the Twins made it two straight over the White Sox who now have lost six of their last eight games but still retain first place in the American League West.

Hisle started the rout when he singled in the first inning to trigger a two-run rally which included run-scoring singles by Tony Oliva and Steve Braun.

Rick Reichardt's two-run double in the fourth tied it but the Twins went ahead to stay in the sixth on Danny Thompson's run-scoring double after Bobby Darwin had reached second on a wind-blown double.

The Twins locked it up with four runs in the eighth on a bases-loaded double by Hisle and a two-run single by designated hitter Oliva. Reichardt homered for the White Sox in the ninth.

Blyleven, 4-6, struck out seven batters in the first three innings and finished with 13 strikeouts.

Tigers, 4-2
MILWAUKEE (AP) — Ed Brinkman's ninth inning triple scored two runs, lifting the Detroit Tigers to a 4-2 victory over Milwaukee Saturday.

Mickey Stanley singled with one out in the ninth and then Aurelio Rodriguez walked. Brinkman followed with his drive that went for three bases when Dave May attempted a shoestring catch and the ball got to the outfielder.

Detroit starter Joe Coleman was working on a four-hitter and second successive shutout until Pedro Garcia doubled with one out in the eighth when Tiger left fielder Duke Sims stumbled and fell while chasing his line drive.

One out later, Don Money belted his third home run of the year to tie the score at 2-2.

Detroit got its first run when Jim Northrup tagged his second home run in two days leading off the sixth.

Dick McAuliffe scored the Tigers' second run after walking to open the seventh. McAuliffe was picked off first but got back safely and then was sacrificed to second and scored on a single by Rodriguez.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Secretariat, the Kentucky Derby winner, turned in a sizzling, front-running performance Saturday and won the $182,400 Preakness Stakes at Pimlico.

Secretariat crossed the finish a daylight victor over Sham, who had also been the runnerup in the Derby. Our Native, third in the Derby, was third again.

Secretariat was last in the six horse field going into the clubhouse turn. Then jockey Ron Turcotte put the strapping Bold Ruler colt in gear and he took the lead entering the backstretch and easily kept it as he went on to win by 2½ lengths over Sham.

The margin of victory was the same as it had been in the Derby. Our Native was eight lengths back of Sham. Secretariat, who smashed the record for the 1¼ mile Derby when he was timed in 1:59 1/5, raced the 1 3-16-mile Preakness before a Maryland record crowd of 61,657 in 1:55 flat, a second off the stakes and track record set by Canonero II in 1971.

The victory sends Secretariat into the June 9 Belmont Stakes with a chance of becoming thoroughbred racing's ninth Triple Crown winner and the first since Citation did it in 1948. The victory also was sweet for Mrs. Helen Tweedy, operator of Meadow Stable, trainer Lucien Laurin and Turcotte, the same trio which had lost the 1972 Preakness with Derby winner and odds-on favorite Riva Ridge, who finished fourth.

Trio Of Homers Keys Optimists
The Optimists gained their first victory of the year yesterday with a 9-2 romp over the Jaycees. The Kiwanis took an 11-9 win over R.C. Cola in the conclusion of a rain-suspended game.

The Kiwanis and R.C. are both 2-2, while the Optimists and Jaycees are both 1-3 now.

In the opener, R.C. Cola had taken the lead in the first inning on Thursday with a run in the first. Reggie Selby singled and took second on a passed ball. An error on the play let him go on to third and he scored on Jay Phillips' ground out.

The Kiwanis came up with two in the bottom of the first. Brad Brown reached on a fielder's choice and Ben Miller homered, for a 2-1 lead.

R.C. came back with three in the second. Jeff Worthington was hit by a pitch and Bill Tugwell singled. Kenny Fisher walked and so did Chris Phillips, forcing in Worthington. Tugwell scored on Junior Hardee's ground out, and a base hit by Selby brought in Fisher.

Another R. C. runner in the third. Worthington singled and was awarded second on interference. A wild pitch moved him to third and he scored when Jay Wood reached on a fielder's choice.

In the second game, the Optimists pushed over two in the first. Patrick Wilson doubled and Mac Stokes slammed a homer for a 2-0 lead.

They got another in the second. John Garris singled and Liles Stott got one. An error on the play let Garris come around.

Two more scored in the third. Glenn Moore singled and Stokes did it again, hitting his second homer, for a 5-0 lead.

The Optimists finished off their scoring with four in the fourth. Wilson singled and Jim Kernen got a hit. Moore also singled, scoring Wilson and—for the third straight time—Stokes stepped in, hitting his third homer in a row, thus accounting for every run but one.

The Jaycees broke the ice in the fifth with a run. Mike Pollard walked and Jay Whitford singled. John Winstead reached on an error, scoring Pollard. The other run came in the sixth. Joey Mattheis reached on an error and moved up on a wild pitch. Ken Barnes was also safe on an error, scoring Mattheis.

A walk to Greg Lee forced in Hester. Moye also walked, after Brewington had scored on a passed ball, reloading the bases. Dixon was cut down trying to steal, but Franklin Davis reached on an error, scoring Lee. An error let Moye come in with what proved to be the winning run.

Local People Swimming To Gain Awards From President, Red Cross

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
There are no Olympic swimmers among them, but the men and women who use their lunch time to ply the waters of the Minges Coliseum pool each weekday at the noon hour are just as dedicated to their goals — physical fitness and a try for the Presidential Sports Award for swimming or the 50-mile badge given by the American Red Cross.

And the participants include a broad cross section of East Carolina University faculty members and staff — a librarian, people from chemistry and English, special education — all taking advantage of the noon-time faculty swimming period. A few housewives — their husbands on the ECU payroll — swim lap after lap in search of personal goals, too.

Mrs. Barbara Caspar, a housewife, finished her 25 miles Friday. She and her chemistry professor husband, Dr. Mike Caspar, began the sports award program January 22. Caspar will finish his "25" this week. Mrs. JoAnn Bell, a petite brunet who is an assistant professor and director of the Health Affairs Library was the first woman to complete her 25 miles (beating most of the men) and completed 50-miles May 4. She too, began January 22. Dr. John Richards, chairman of Special Education, and Ed Wolcott, who assists coaches in several sports on campus, both completed their 25 miles several weeks ago, while Bill King, a graduate assistant in the Department of Health and Physical Education has more than 72 miles to his credit. And he was the first to do the "25".

Dr. Bill Stephenson, an English Department associate professor will complete his distance this week, while Dr. Al King, an associate professor of Health and Physical Education is nearing his goal and hopes to finish before the pool closes at the end of the present quarter Wednesday.

Swimming coach Ray Scharf and Dr. Ralph Steele, another Health and Physical Education associate professor also hope to finish their distance, but it will be a little harder for them. Last week Scharf had 17 1/4 miles while Steele had reached 16. And there are other swimmers; Scharf's wife Freida, Mrs. Judy Randall (her husband coaches football), Dr. Ernest Schawarz, Mrs. Mary Byrne, John Lovstedt, Pete McGrain, all putting their mileage on the board.

The Presidential Sports Award in swimming requires the participant to swim a total of 25 miles (44,000 yards) during a four-month period, with no more than 3/4 of a mile daily (1,320 yards) counting toward the goal.

In all there are 31 sports listed in the sports award program, ranging from swimming and water skiing to alpine and nordic skiing, backpacking, golf, bicycling, bowling and tennis. The qualifying standards for each sport are designed to assure regular participation and an investment of time and effort which will result in physical fitness for persons 18 years old and older.

The basic principal for qualifying is 50 hours of participation spread over at least 50 sessions with the four-month period.

Coach Scharf said the faculty swim periods at the university's pools gives staff members a good opportunity to complete the requirements for the swimming award and for generally improving physical conditioning through recreation. Dr. Edgar Hooks, chairman of the Department of Health and Physical Education stressed the importance of physical activity to maintain "good physical and mental conditioning". He said participate in such programs as the Presidential Sports Award is a good way to maintain activity and fitness.

Qualifications for some sports include: golf, play minimum of 30 rounds with no more than one 18-hole round a day (no motorized carts, backpacking, pack for a minimum of 50 hours with no more than three hours in any one day; bicycling, a minimum of 650 miles (five or fewer gears, 1,000 miles if over five gears), with no more than 13 miles per day (five or fewer gears, 20 miles per day for over five); jogging, a minimum of 125 miles with no more than 2 1/2 miles per day; and tennis, a minimum of 50 hours, with at least 25 sets of singles and-or doubles and no more than 1 1/2 hours per day.

Persons who qualify for the sports award receive a certificate, pin and emblem. According to Hooks, detailed information on the program is available by writing to: Presidential Sports Award, P. O. Box 129, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Lea Quits ECU Post

Sonny Lea, Sports Information Director at East Carolina University, since September, has resigned.

Lea, who served as student assistant for four years, took over the position when Franc White resigned the position after only a short tenure.

A native of Rocky Mount, Lea was the sixth person to serve in the position at East Carolina during the past 10 years, since the position was first created when Clarence Stasovich came to East Carolina as head football coach.

Lea said his plans are to return to school and complete his education. A committee has been named to seek a successor in the position.

WILLIAMSTON — Last Tuesday, Williamston's Mike Weaver came one hit shy of a no-hitter. Friday night he got it as he beat Chatham Central, 9-0, although he walked two.

The game was the second win in the play-offs for the Tigers. They beat White Oak with Weaver on the mound, 7-0. In that game, the White Oak team was limited to only two baserunners.

Friday Weaver went the distance, fanning 16. Maness started for Chatham Central and struck out eight and walked six. He was relieved in the fifth by Leonard who went the rest of the game.

It took the Tigers four innings to finally get on the boards when they pushed into the lead with a pair of scores. Williamston added three in the fifth, one in the sixth, and three in the seventh. Chatham Central had men on in the first, second, fourth, and fifth by the two walks and a couple of errors.

Hubert Smith reached on a walk in the first and was sacrificed up but failed to score. In the second, the Tigers moved a man around to third as Joe Roberson was safe on an error that let him go to second. Berwyn Barnhill walked and both moved up on a ground out. Tim Jackson was hit by a pitch to load them up but nobody could come across. Two also reached in the third on a hit and a walk. Then in the fourth, Williamston broke through with two runs. Mike Bundy led off with a single and Vann Andrews was hit by a pitch. Both moved up on a wild pitch and Dwight Ange brought in Bundy with a sacrifice fly. Andrews went to third on the play and scored when Hubert Smith's grounder was errored.

Three more came over in the fifth. Roberson walked and went to second on a passed ball. Barnhill also walked as did Doug Selby. A wild pitch scored Roberson with the other two runners moving up. Andrews reached on an error that scored Barnhill and a second wild pitch forced in Selby. Smith got to first by an error in the fifth and Roberson brought him in with a double. That made it 6-0.

The last three runs came over in the seventh. Selby walked and stole second. Another walk, to Andrews, put two on and Smith batted out a double to drive in Selby and Andrews. Smith went down to third on the relay. Weaver put the finishing touch on the game with a single to score Smith with the ninth run.

Roberson led the hitting with two.

Carolina Dairy Gets First Babe Ruth Win

NCNB pulled into a three-way tie for first place Friday night in the Babe Ruth league prior to last night's games. Carolina Dairy finally broke into the winners column with their victory over Home Builders.

In the opening game, Carolina Dairy squeaked by The Builders, 5-4. NCNB followed that with a 15-0 rout of Planters Bank. The Dairymen forged into the lead in the first inning. Leonard Williams walked and stole second. Frank Manning also walked and a hit by Wayne Miller drove in Williams.

They added three more in the third to take a 4-0 edge. Miller walked and stole second. John Coffman reached on an error that scored Miller and Coffman stole up. A passed ball moved him to third but he was caught at home when Danny Bowman hit back to the pitcher. Mike Baker moved Bowman to second with a base hit and a walk to Clayton Brock filled the bases. Williams also walked forcing in Bowman. Chris Garrett singled in Baker. Home Builders cut the lead in half with two runs in the bottom of the third. Billy Glidewell was hit by a pitch, moved to second on an error, and another error let him come around to score. Wright Hooks reached on a fielder's choice and Jim Wilkerson walked. Mike Belton was walked and a ground out scored Hooks.

The winning run came over for Carolina Dairy in the fourth. Miller singled and stole second and third. Sid Ashby got a hit to drive him in. Mark Conway kept Home Builders in the game as he scored in the fourth after singling moving to second on a sacrifice and he was advanced to third when Glidewell reached on an error. Conway then stole home.

Home Builders closed the gap to one in the seventh as Thomas Bunch walked and went to second on a pass to Mike Adams. Both moved up on an error on Hooks' grounder and Wilkerson brought in Bunch as he hit into a fielder's choice. Miller had two hits for Carolina Dairy.

Collision Gives Inside Park HR

By FRED ROTHENBERG
Associated Press Sports Writer
When the Cincinnati Reds scheduled a "Teenage Night," they expected a crowd in the seats, but they didn't expect the youthful fans to make a difference on the field. But they did. With one out in the fifth inning and Pete Rose on first, the Reds' Joe Morgan lofted a routine fly ball to right center which attracted a crowd of two-right fielder Clarence Gaston and center fielder John Grubb.

The 28,109 spectators shouted a lot louder than the two San Diego players, who couldn't hear each other and ended up reaching the same spot at the same time.

After the collision, Gaston and Grubb remained on the ground while Morgan circled the bases. Grubb, who had the wind knocked out of him, finally retrieved the ball but Morgan was already in the dugout with an inside-the-park home run.

Cincinnati went on to score a 5-4 victory.

Elsewhere in the National League, Los Angeles overcame Atlanta 3-2, New York edged Pittsburgh 4-3, Houston defeated San Francisco 3-1 and Chicago beat Philadelphia 9-2. The game between St. Louis and Montreal was postponed due to rain and cold. In the American League it was: Milwaukee 6, New York 5; Detroit 5, Boston 4; Baltimore 6, Cleveland 2; Minnesota 3, Chicago 0; California 7, Texas 1, and Oakland 5, Kansas City 3.

Jack Billingham had to survive a three-run San Diego rally in the eighth before registering his seventh victory of the season, tops in the National League. Chicago's Glenn Beckert had a close call on a close call in Philadelphia but extended his hitting streak to 26 games as Ferguson Jenkins set back the Phils on six hits.

In the first inning, the Chicago second baseman hit a high chopper to shortstop Larry Bowa who made a good throw. Beckert was sure he was safe, umpire Augie Donatelli wasn't as certain. The first base umpire started to raise his hand to signal out, then changed his mind. Beckert went hitless the rest of the night. "It reminded me of the time in 1968 in San Francisco when my other hitting streak was stopped," Beckert said of a streak that went 27 games. "I was called out then on a close play at first base I thought I had beat."

The modern National League record is Tommy Holmes' 37 games, which is 19 games short of Joe Di Maggio's major league record.

The Kansas City Athletics are using Hal McRae as their "designated hitter" for pitchers. McRae hit well in two World Series for Cincinnati.

White Sox, Yankees Get Own Medicine

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
The Chicago White Sox and New York Yankees gagged on a taste of their own medicine Friday night while the Detroit Tigers continued to thrive on a new-fangled remedy known as the Boston Red Sox.

The White Sox, whose pitchers have spun six shutouts this season, were dealt a six-hit 3-0 dose by Jim Kaat of the Minnesota Twins.

The Yankees, who scored twice with two out in the ninth on Thursday night and went on to beat Milwaukee in extra innings, saw the Brewers tag relief ace Sparky Lyle for three runs...with two out in the ninth...and pull out a 6-5 victory.

But the Tigers had the right prescription once more as they beat the Red Sox for the seventh time in as many 1973 appointments, this time by a 5-4 count.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Oakland A's edged the Kansas City Royals 5-4, the Baltimore Orioles downed the Cleveland Indians 6-2 and the California Angels trounced the Texas Rangers 7-1.

National League scores: Houston 3, San Francisco 1; Cincinnati 5, San Diego 4; Los Angeles 3, Atlanta 2; Chicago 9, Philadelphia 2; New York 4, Pittsburgh 3. The St. Louis

Montreal game was postponed. Minnesota's Kaat ran his lifetime record against the White Sox to a sizzling 29-10 by limiting the hard-hitting Chicagoans to six singles. The Twins raked Rich Gossage for their three runs in the third inning on a single by George Mitterwald, Jim Holt's home run and singles by Larry Hisle and Tony Oliva with a stolen base in between.

It was the fifth loss in the last seven games for the White Sox, but Manager Chuck Tanner isn't panicking.

"I wouldn't say we're in any kind of slump," he insisted. "Remember, we were 2-4 at the start of the season and now we are 18-7 for our last 25 games. I'll take that kind of percentage all season long."

Hot-hitting Dave May's fourth single of the game, a two-run shot up the middle, capped Milwaukee's ninth-inning rally against New York. It also gave him 16 hits in his last 29 atbats, raising his batting average from .225 to .293, and was his sixth game-winning hit of the season.

The Yankees wasted home runs by Ron Blomberg and Jim Ray Hart.

Detroit got solo home runs from Mickey Stanley in the sixth inning and Jim Northrup in the seventh to take a 5-3 lead and hold off a Boston rally in the ninth that fell one run short. Carlton Fisk homered for the Red Sox in the second.

Luis Tiant pitched often in the Polo grounds and Yankee Stadium with the Cuban Stars. His son, Luis, is a star hurler with the Boston Red Sox.

Maybe the New York Yankees gave up too soon on Charley Spikes. He has been hitting home runs for Cleveland this spring.

The late Roberto Clemente made his 3,000th National League base hit with two days of the 1972 season remaining.

Hunter Second In Two Events

RALEIGH — Rose High School's Al Hunter continued to look at the back of Tarboro's Carter Suggs crossing the finish line first in the State High School Track Meet Friday.

Hunter finished second to Suggs in the 100 and 220 events in both the sectional and regional meets the previous weeks, and was again second to him in the state meet in both events.

Suggs set a new state record in the 100, timed in 9.3 seconds, tying the national high school record. Hunter, who finished about a yard behind Suggs was timed in 9.6 seconds.

In the 220, Suggs also set a new state mark of 21.1 seconds. Hunter was again second, timed in 21.4 seconds.

The Rose High School 880-yard relay team failed to place after a poor exchange on one of the handoffs. The team consisted of Hunter, Reggie Perkins, Keith Joyner and Ernest Fleming.

Ayden-Grifton's Jesse Brown finished second in the high jump with a leap of 6 feet, 4 inches. Rufus Crawford of Hunter Hass in Gastonia won the event with a 6-6 jump.

Ronnie Wilkes of Farmville Central, winner of the regional in the long jump, failed to place in the state meet.

Little Mint Wins Another

The Little Mint continued to roll along unbeaten in the Ladies Softball League Friday night, taking a 9-5 victory over Piggly Wiggly. In the other games, Dixie Sales rolled to a 25-8 win over Greenville Nursing and Belton won by forfeit over Azalea.

In the first game, Dixie Sales got all they need in the first inning scoring 11 runs. They spotted Greenville Nursing a 3-0 lead in the top of the frame, then bounced back. Ann Bissette led off with a home run and Becky Beland doubled. Beth Harrington and Sharon Dempsey both doubled and Sue Pinkston singled. Sally Mayo singled and Bissette got a hit. Beland singled and Harrington doubled. Dempsey finished it off with a home run.

Dixie went on to pick up 11 more in the second, including a homer by Dawn Fitts, and they got three more in the third. Greenville Nursing scored three in the third and two more in the fourth.

In the other game, Little Mint pushed over four runs in the first inning to take the lead. Linda Tripp homered in the frame. Piggly Wiggly came back with two in their half of the inning. Little Mint then got what proved to be the winning runs in the fourth. Dorcus Carter reached on a fielder's choice and Bobby Jones homered for a 6-2 lead.

The Little Mint picked up three more in the fifth, while Piggly Wiggly got one in the bottom of the fifth and two in the seventh.

straight hits and a walk. Doyle Farmer, who won the opening game on Tuesday, came in to put out the fire with a strikeout and a double play. He then struck out the side in the seventh to preserve the win.

The Eagles will now advance to the third round of the playoffs, but as of Saturday morning, Coach Noland Respass said he did not know who the next opponent would be. The next game, however, is scheduled for Tuesday.

Robersonville banged out nine hits and took advantage of seven Creswell errors to gain the victory. They got it all going with three runs in the first inning.

Loyall Corey got the game going with a walk, and moved up on a wild pitch. Ricky Brown followed that with a single, driving in Corey. Brown then stole second and Matt Wilson singled him to third, moving on to second on the relay. Larry Jackson came up with another hit, driving in Brown. Jeff Warren then laid down a bunt single, scoring Wilson for the 3-0 lead.

The Eagles came back with two more in the third inning. Jackson reached on a two-base error and moved to third on a passed ball. In the attempt to get him at third, the ball was thrown away, and Jackson came the rest of the way. Jeff Warren got it going again, reaching on the third error of the inning, and advanced on a wild pitch. Kim Knox singled and hit by Mike Matthews brought Warren over, upping the Robersonville lead to 5-0.

Creswell broke the ice without benefit of a hit in the bottom of the third. Gregory Hassell reached on an error and Donnie Webb came on to run for him. Webb stole second and advanced to third on an infield out. E.H. Phelps then grounded out, allowing Webb to score.

The Eagles got revenge for that by coming up with five runs in the fourth inning. Brown led off, reaching on a single. He moved up on an out and scored on Wilson's hit. Jackson reached on an error and both advanced on a passed ball. Jeff Warren then walked, loading the bases. Kim Knox reached on an error, scoring Wilson, and Matthews grounded out, allowing Jackson to score. Neno Hayes then singled, driving in both Warren and Knox. That left the Eagles in a 10-1 lead.

The final Eagle run came over in the sixth inning. Jackson reached on an error and stole second. A wild pitch moved him to third and he scored when Knox's grounder was errored.

Creswell finally got to Wilson in the bottom of the sixth. Phelps got the first hit off him and Neal Spears followed with another. An error on the play let both runners advance an extra base. Woodley then singled to drive in Phelps. Fred Jones followed with a walk to load them up with an out, and Farmer was brought in to quell the rally. He struck out the batter, and the following one hit into a double play ending the threat.

The victory boosted the Robersonville record to 18-4 for the season, while Creswell finished with a 13-5 mark.

Boaters Prepare For The Season

By JACK WOLISTON
NEW YORK (UPI) — Most of the nation's pleasure craft forced onto dry land by winter's chills are out of their cocoons now, many already in the water.

The gritty sound of sandpaper and the smell of paint are heavy on the spring air. The weekend boater shows up for his regular Monday job with a tinge of linament mixed with his shaving lotion.

Ahead is a beautiful boating season, and one way to keep it from becoming just a blurred memory is to record it on film from start to finish.

Get out the camera and start with those fitting-out chores, then the launch—and from there on the possibilities are unlimited.

Still pictures or movies?
Can Do a Good Job
Many persons prefer movies but boating is one place where still pictures or color slides, especially when taken in sequence, can do almost as good a job of picturing action as movies, simply because boating action is rarely continuous.

An adjustable camera that can be set for action-stopping fast shutter speeds is an asset. Stopping the action overcomes—at least partially—one of the difficulties of boating photography, camera movement resulting from the pitch and roll of the boat.

One important thing to remember: Water reflects and intensifies sunlight, causing over-exposure unless precautions are taken.

More expensive cameras are designed to set the correct lens opening automatically. Without this type of camera, a light meter to measure the intensity of the sunlight is a big help.

Lens filters are also inexpensive aids. They filter out certain light rays and improve the contrast and sharpness of photos. They aren't always necessary for color photography, but help considerably with black and white pictures.

Few real boating enthusiasts have any difficulty in thinking of things to picture—everything's exciting to them. Scenes like:

Some Suggestions

—Shoving off from the dock (a good opener for a sequence).

—A girl's hair streaming back as she revels in the breeze at the bow.

—The skier behind the boat, perhaps silhouetted by shooting toward the sun.

—Cocktail parties aboard (start with preparations, then follow with the arrival of the first guests).

—Nature shots such as seaweed, barnacles, clams, jellyfish, lobster beds, etc. (A polarizing filter helps here, since these shots are made mostly directly into the water.)

—Sailboat racing. (A telephoto lens helps here. Also, get shots of the starting line, course, and finishing point before the race begins.

And in a more practical sense, here are a couple of more reasons for keeping a camera in your boating picture:

—The Internal Revenue Service accepts photographic evidence to substantiate losses due to fire, theft, hurricane, etc. It also allows a reasonable cost of taking these supporting photographs as part of a justifiable claim.

—Pictures of the boat and such valuable equipment as compass, radio, depth finder, etc., help authorities track them down through pawn shops, second-hand dealers and fences, if they are stolen.

Elks Run Past Graniteer Nine

The Elks rolled to a 13-8 victory over the Graniteers Friday in the Tar Heel Little League. The win left the Elks with a 3-1 record, while the Graniteers are 1-3.

The Elks pushed over six runs in the top of the first to take the lead. Chris Ross singled and stole second. Jimmy Lee reached on an error, as did Jarvis Campbell, scoring Ross. William Sneed was safe on another error, scoring Lee and Campbell. Lenn Jackson walked, as did Mack Stocks, Gavin Ray and Ross, bringing in Sneed and Jackson. Lance Cain reached on an error, scoring Stocks.

In the bottom of the first, the Graniteers came up with three runs. Miccah Dixon reached on a fielder's choice and H.L. Austin slapped a home run. Stuart Satterthwaite singled and moved up on a wild pitch. Henry Wooten singled and a fielder's choice scored Satterthwaite.

The Elks added another in the second. Lee walked and Campbell singled. An error let them move up and a passed ball scored Lee.

The third saw another Elk score. Ray singled and was wild pitched to third. Cain singled him in, making it 8-3.

What proved to be the winning run came in the fourth. Jackson singled and moved up when Stocks reached on a fielder's choice. Ray reached on an error and a walk to Ross forced in Jackson.

The Graniteers came up with three in the bottom of the fourth. Mike Moye reached on a fielder's choice and Michael James singled. Garrett Young doubled in Moye and Wayne Stokes tripled to score both James and Young.

The Elks scored two more in the fifth. Lee doubled and Campbell reached on an error. Lee scored on White's out, and a single by Sneed brought in Campbell.

The final two Elk runs came in the sixth. Ray reached on an error and Ross singled. An error following a sacrifice scored Ray, and Lee singled in Ross.

The Graniteers closed out the scoring with two in the sixth. Moye walked and James doubled. Stokes doubled in Moye and a wild pitch scored James.

Wildlife Afield: Conservation Is Paying Off For North Carolinians

By JIM DEAN

Many people honestly believe that North Carolina's wildlife populations are declining so rapidly that there will soon be no squirrels, deer, quail, rabbits or any other form of free-running critter.

The notion is surprisingly widespread. Recently, a newspaperman was assigned the job of finding out the story on the state's wildlife populations. Naturally, the reporter came to the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission.

"I understand," he began solemnly, "that the bobwhite quail is rare and endangered in North Carolina. What can you tell me about it, and what is the Wildlife Commission planning to do about it?"

"Where did you get your information?" he was asked. "Oh, it's common knowledge that it's just a matter of a few short years before there won't be any wildlife left in the state," he said.

"You're going to find this hard to believe," we said, "but what if we told you that there are more bobwhite quail in North Carolina right now than at any time in recorded history?"

"You're kidding?" he said. "Nope, it's a fact," we said. "There are also more mourning doves in the nation than at any time in recent history, and there are probably more rabbits in the state now than in the past. The gray squirrel is at least holding his own, and the wild turkey is making a comeback. In fact, the black bear is the only major game animal currently in trouble in the state."

"What about deer?" the reporter asked. "They're about gone, aren't they?"

"No, quite frankly, most of the state is lousy with deer," we said, "and the herds are growing and spreading all the time. There is reason to believe that there may be more deer here now than when Sir Walter Raleigh stepped off the boat on Roanoke Island. One thing is certain, from the mid-1800's until the late 1920's, deer were practically extinct in the Piedmont and western parts of the state, and decidedly rare even in the east. Since the creation of the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission in the late 1940's, the deer population has been built up until now they are found in every county in the state. In all but a few counties, they are numerous enough to support hunting, and in some areas, they are so abundant that they are considered pests by farmers."

Of course, such information was welcome news to the reporter, and it should be to anyone concerned with the future of wildlife in North Carolina. The overall picture looks quite good, and despite a few local areas where certain species may be undergoing natural low population cycles, wildlife populations in the state have never been in better shape.

The reason, of course, is the success of some 25 years of protection, research, management and habitat improvement under state and Federal wildlife programs paid for by hunting and fishing licenses. And game animals and birds are not the only creatures benefited by such programs. Every form of wildlife is important in nature's chain, and if you improve the habitat for game species, you also improve the habitat for such species as chipmunks, frogs, butterflies and the whole range of wild creatures.

It has been largely overlooked, but sportsmen who hunt and fish have paid the bill for this success story, and yet, many people wrongly believe that hunters and fishermen are to blame for many imagined losses.

That is not to say that some species are not in trouble. The black bear is having problems, but they are not caused by hunters. By and large, the black bear population is dwindling because prime habitat is dwindling. In the eastern part of the state, particularly, huge wilderness areas are being developed and the black bear has no place to go. Recently, the Wildlife Commission established over two dozen large bear sanctuaries of 50,000 acres or more to help protect the bears. If the black bear is saved in North Carolina, it will be through the efforts of hunters and fishermen.

That may seem ironic to you—especially if you're not a biologist or a hunter or fisherman—but it's true. Hunters and fishermen are doing more to preserve wildlife populations than anyone else.

You might keep that in mind the next time someone tells you about those "terrible" hunters who are depleting our wildlife resources.

Water Plants Open To Visitors Today

LAB FACILITIES...at the water plant complete water analysis as well as were expanded and now provide monitoring equipment.

Expansions and improvements at both the Water Treatment and Waste Water Treatment plants here are complete and the public is invited for a first-hand look today from 2-5 p.m.

Charles Horne, director of the Greenville Utilities Commission, said that plant personnel will be on hand during the open house hours to explain the operations to visitors.

At the water plant, Horne explained, changes in the filter media system were made and the plant's water capacity was increased from three million to six million gallons a day.

Under the new system, the constant monitoring of water and improved, automated methods of feeding chemicals into the water will serve to upgrade and increase the quality of water here, Horne asserted. "We have much more control (over quality) than we had in the past," he said.

Chemical distribution, handled manually in dry form in the past, is now accomplished automatically and the system now utilizes liquid chemicals. In changing from the dry, bagged form of chemicals, quite a manpower savings is expected, the director explained, since men are not required now to unload truckloads of chemicals. Now, the tanker truck hooks its pipes to the storage tank outlets and the operation is underway.

In order to handle the increased water load, a three-million-gallons-a-day finished water pump was installed and two, two-million clear well pumps were added to the system.

A new feature of the water plant operation, Horne continued, is the improved lab facility for water analysis that was incorporated in the plant revamping. Here, an operator has actual control over the chemicals and treatment of water as well as the control of water going through the plant. Five deep wells are in operation under the water system and they are also monitored and controlled from the lab control center at the plant.

Automation under the improved system is such that if a malfunction occurs, the plant shuts down until the problem is corrected.

Another feature of the water system is the presence of five elevated storage tanks that indicate water levels. By monitoring the levels, the supervisor knows the capacity he has in the system at a given time and pumping capacities can be increased or lowered according to need. Control over this aspect of the plant was limited under the old system, Horne related.

The important control center is manned on a 24-hour basis involving three shifts, it was noted.

Horne cited economic savings in purchasing and storing needed chemicals in large quantities rather than in smaller amounts. The use of liquid chemicals, while more expensive initially than dry forms, should still result in overall savings, he noted.

Improvements at the water plant have been accomplished with the idea of public inspection and tours in mind. A public parking area is now available to visitors and a new entrance for easier access to the plant has been included.

Horne pointed out that group tours are encouraged but visits by individuals are not since someone has to accompany all tours and it would not be practical to take visitors through individually. The plant's chief operator normally conducts tours.

In the expansion and improvement program, Horne said that "we have tried to obtain the quality of water that we feel is necessary." He said that the capacity of both the wells and water plant combined is approximately nine million gallons of water per day. Of that figure, the plant's capacity constitutes roughly 60 per cent.

Horne, stating that new wells will continue to be added as needed, predicted that the improved plant facilities should serve Greenville adequately for at least 20 years, depending on the growth of the city both industrially and population-wise.

Under normal water loads, he said, the city should have an excess water capacity of some three to four million gallons a day with the new system.

The waste water treatment facility, located behind the Fifth Street cemetery, was designed and completed in 1962 with a treatment capacity of four million gallons per day. The plant was designed with the idea of doubling the existing facilities when needed, Horne noted. This had been completed and the capacity there is now eight million gallons per day.

The Standard High Rate Tricking Filter Plant, the director explained, provides complete secondary sewage treatment and post chlorination treatment before the water is released into the river.

State requirements on the controls of water pumped into the river necessitated the installation of a lab when the plant was built and basically, the lab facility remains the same.

A new feature of the waste water treatment plant is the addition of a degritter. Horne explained that the new piece of equipment serves as a chamber which allows sand and grit to drop from the sewage while organic matter flows on through. The sand and grit, which remained in the line until the degritter was installed, is now removed from the system and disposed of.

The quality of the water treatment is well within the state's standards, Horne said, noting that a lab technician is now employed to monitor affluent materials as well as discharged water.

A control room located near the main water plant is manned on a three-shift basis and any malfunction at the waste treatment facility shows up on the control panel.

During the expansion program, a new 1,500 square foot maintenance building was built near the treatment plant and equipment repairs and other maintenance chores are performed there.

Horne emphasized that improvements at the waste treatment plant were carried out with the aim of establishing more quality control over the treatment system and upgrading the process.

Expansion of the waste treatment plant cost approximately $1 million while the water plant improvements and additions cost roughly $500,000. Of the $1.5 million, some 60 per cent was federally funded and the balance was financed through bond sales.

Horne said that the expansion program was discussed at a pre-planning conference in April of 1969 and bond sales were approved in December of that year. A federal grant was approved in 1970 and construction began in July of 1971.

Young Atlantans Restore Decaying Victorian Mansions

By DALLAS LEE
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A neighborhood of decaying Victorian mansions a mile from the center of this Southern city has been rescued from a ghetto fate by young Atlantans taking a gamble on inner-city restoration.

The towering, stately structures were built in the 1890s as the lawn-graced homes of the new city's first wealthy class, which included the founders of Coca Cola.

But after the turn of the century, bungalows crowded out the lush, magnolia-lined landscape and many original owners moved out of this first garden suburb to newer developments. By the 1950s, the houses were in the hands of absentee landlords who carved the once-handsome rooms into seedy, rent-by-the-week apartments.

A movement to reclaim the mansions from slum lords began three years ago when designer Robert Griggs bought a three-story house and then admittedly lied and begged for a year to get others to join him.

When Griggs "fell in love" with his house in 1969, more than 30 tenants were crowded into five apartments.

The front doors, which open onto an ornate foyer, had been nailed open. Tenants mounted a circular oak staircase or walked through doorways framed in hand-carved, bird-eye maple to enter rooms constructed by the craftsmen of the waning Victorian Era.

The city had filed six pages of code violations against the house. Junked cars and garbage filled the streets. Gunfire was heard nightly. Adding to the risk of investment, two expressway projects were aimed through the community.

"This restoration movement got started because I lied for a year," said Griggs, 35. "I told people that it was just wonderful out here. I did anything and everything to get people to move in, including renting trucks and using my back...Now it is wonderful."

Griggs knocked out the tenement walls, scrubbed his new mansion clean and staged an open house during Christmas 1970. Some 600 visitors turned out and a handful of them purchased houses that winter.

Now some 200 Atlantans—most of whom are potentially affluent professionals in their early 30s—have joined Inman Park Restoration Inc. and committed themselves to reclaiming the neighborhood from slum lords.

About 100 houses are in some stage of restoration, with the new owners living-in and doing most of the work themselves.

IPR has joined other community organizations in a successful fight to kill one expressway project and tie up another in litigation. It also has designed a land use plan for the 375-house neighborhood, which it hopes will persuade city hall to rezone the area residential. Currently Inman Park is zoned for light industry and apartments.

There are only a few of the huge, elaborate Victorian houses still to be reclaimed. But an active market has developed for the bungalows and even for the tiny row houses at the Fulton Cotton Mill in a poverty section called "Cabbage-town."

The fever of current interest in Inman Park arouses curiosity about why the Atlanta elite did not hold their Victorian prizes any longer.

Jim Whitnel, president of the Atlanta Victorian Society and an Inman Park resident, takes the harsh view that the Atlanta rich were too concerned about building more stately mansions, particularly copies of Italian villas, French Chateaux and 18 century plantation homes.

"Atlanta is ashamed of being a Victorian town," he said.

"There is a social movement in Atlanta, strictly northward (up Peachtree Street)," Whitnel said. "The rich moved from the West End to Washington Avenue to Inman Park to Druid Hills to Ansley Park, then to Buckhead and now Sandy Springs in the suburbs. In another generation or two they'll be in Chattanooga."

Franklin Garrett, director of the Atlanta Historical Society, said Atlanta was a "child of the Victorian Era." The railroad terminus around which the town grew was completed in 1837, the year of Queen Victoria's ascension to the throne, he said, and by the time she died in 1901, Atlanta had a population of nearly 100,000.

Although not a resident of Inman Park, Garrett is a member of IPR.

"With all the destruction from highways and freeways, we saw a lot of our heritage disappearing. We were winding up with pseudo-ranch houses in the suburbs and nothing in the city," he said. "Some of these people saw the intrinsic value of the houses...A renaissance has occurred."

The beauty and craftsmanship of the elegant old homes simply has to be uncovered.

In Griggs' mansion, which he purchased for $2,500, cheap varnish hid the ornate woodwork and curved wooden shutters. Grime disguised the silver hardware on doors and the brass toilet tissue standards in the bathrooms. The stench of poverty filled every room and was literally ground into the hardwood floors.

Graphic designer Ken Thompson spent a week atop a ladder using a blowtorch to sear away decades of paint from the ornate, sculptured moulding around his huge front porch.

"It's got a lot of craftsmanship, a lot of soul," said the bearded artist, who designed a butterfly-like flag for the houses under restoration. "You've just got to uncover it."

Susan Bridges, the 31-year-old wife of a urologist, spent weeks scrubbing paint and grime from moulding and wainscoting inside her house. She used hot water and ammonia.

"I lost 10 pounds immediately," the tall, slim brunette said.

The Bridges' home is particularly memorable for the four-inch wide, heart-of-pine floors throughout. The wood is now stained and polished, but the Bridges were discouraged for a time about restoration possibilities when several refinishing firms refused to take on the splintered, greasy floors.

There appears to be some danger of the restoration group becoming elite and detached from the lower income residents scratching to maintain homes in the adjacent neighborhoods.

But IPR so far has been a faithful participant in BOND, a coalition of neighborhood groups from five communities, and has coordinated its land use planning efforts with BOND's prime concerns.

"There's definitely a certain amount of snobbishness in IPR and definitely a bit of resentment in the rest of the community," said Charles Helms, a Presbyterian community minister and BOND volunteer.

"The surprising thing is that there has been so little resentment...It approaches being a miracle to me. Fortunately some people in IPR realize there's more than restoration of houses going on here. There's the matter of restoring the community."

Liz Brey, 32, and her husband Arden, a city planning consultant, bought a 10-room Inman Park home three years ago and promptly enrolled their two children in the public elementary school.

"If we were going to move, we wanted to become a part of the neighborhood," she said.

Mrs. Brey and several other IPR parents work as teacher aides and provide transportation services to the pupils. "We're interested in better education for all the children," she commented.

A number of the new residents, apalled at the $25 and $35 per week rents the tenants were paying for the grimy apartments, helped fine new housing for the displaced, most of whom were low-income, transient whites.

Neighborhood cleanup became a working part of the Inman Park Spring Festivals, a weekend of open house and street parades that attracted an estimated 10,000 visitors this spring.

"The neighborhood was filthy before that first festival," said Griggs. "Instead of asking big-daddy government to do it, we got out in the streets and cleaned it up ourselves. We gave American flags to everybody—the rednecks, the blacks, the old shut-in residents who were deciding whether or not to move. That was the bridge to involvement."

Similar but less organized restoration movements are beginning now to spring up in neighboring inner-city communities. The Inman Park restorers say Grant Park, a larger, predominantly black community south of downtown, may be the next target.

The expressway battle may be the most threatening challenge to the spirit of such projects. A state master plan calls for an inner loop of freeway interchanges that would subject the neighborhoods to elevated highways.

"The issue is the quality of in-town life," said Helms, who watched the expressway right-of-way take his church building several years ago. "Is it worth it to replace communities with 10-lane expressways? The question is whether the city can afford to destroy its own neighborhoods just so people from the suburbs can drive downtown, polluting the air while they go."

Business Notes

The company, which operated 127 stores at August 1972, expects to have 170 units in operation by the end of the current fiscal year, 220 by August 1974, and 300 by August of 1975, the president said.

APPOINTED REPRESENTATIVE

MacDorn Travel Agency, located at 530 S. Cotanche Street, has been appointed official representative of American Express Co. here, according to T.P. Turnbull, vice president of American Express Company's representation program.

J. E. Stoughton, MacDorn president, said that the agency will offer its clients the full line of American Express travel arrangements and travel-related services such as escorted, hosted and independent tours; hotel and rental car reservations; the purchase, refund and encashment of Travelers Checks, as well as honoring the American Express Card for travel arrangements and emergency personal check cashing.

VISITING PROFESSOR

Professor Eugene Braunwald, Hersey Professor of the Theory and Practice of Physic, Harvard Medical School, and Physician-in-Chief, Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, Boston, served last week as the 1973 Visiting Professor of Clinical Pharmacology at the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine.

Braunwald presented the second Sir Henry Hallett Dale Memorial Lecture in Clinical Pharmacology. He discussed "Protection of the Ischemic Myocardium."

The Dale Visiting Professorship honors the late Sir Henry Dale, British pharmacologist and Nobel Laureate. It is provided by the Burroughs Wellcome Fund through its endowment of the Wellcome Professorship of Clinical Pharmacology at John Hopkins. The Fund is a private, nonprofit foundation supported by Burroughs Wellcome Co.

SPECIAL TREATMENT TO LIVING ROOM, BEDROOMS

By Gerry Bishop

Bedrooms set at an angle and a living room that spans a full 22 feet to enjoy both a front and rear exposure are two of the features that contribute to the unique appearance of this moderate ranch plan in the "Fernridge".

Brick veneer and a gable roof with chimney add a warmth to the distinct exterior design. Inside, the design concentrates on spaciousness and privacy, with a generous use of windows and well-planned placement of rooms.

From the flagstone walk, the entryway leads directly into the living room, splashed with light from ample sections of windows that reach the height of the room. Enriched by a wood-burning fireplace, the living room opens to the rear terrace and borders the dining room and adjoining kitchen, a convenient arrangement for entertaining. ## The Garden Clinic

Q. What caused my tomato fruits to turn black on the blossom end just before they got ripe last year? (B. R., Goldsboro)

A. Probably blossom-end rot. To reduce this problem, be sure that you have your soil tested and properly limed before you plant. During the growing season, maintain a uniform soil moisture by using a mulch around the plants and by irrigating before the soil dries out. (Albert A. Bandayga, extension horticulturist)

Q. I have 20 muscadine grape vines. Some of them, such as Magnolia, are susceptible to angular leaf spot. What is a simple way for a person with a small vineyard to control this disease? (J.P., Mount Olive)

A. For control of angular leaf spot and rot diseases of muscadine grapes spray with Maneb fungicide one ounce plus wettable sulfur one ounce per three gallons of water at two-week intervals from early May to early August. You may also want to contact your County Agent for Plant Pathology Information Note No. 145, "Muscadine Grape Diseases and their Control." (C. N. Clayton, plant pathologist)

Q. What cures mildew on crepe myrtle? (G. L., Chapel Hill)

A. Use Karathane at rates suggested on the container. Begin the applications when the disease first appears and repeat at 10-day intervals. Copper or sulfur will also control powdery mildew, to which I assume you are referring when you say mildew. Powdery mildew is a fungus disease that shows up as white cottony growth on the surface of leaves. Affected parts may be dwarfed and curled. Leaves may yellow, wither and die prematurely. Mildew spots often enlarge until they eventually cover the whole leaf. The problem is common when cool nights follow warm days, or when plants are crowded in damp, shaded locations with poor air circulation. (H. E. Duncan, extension plant pathologist)

Q. I would like to grow mushrooms. Where can I get "spawn" and instructions for growing them? (B. L., Chapel Hill)

A. Try Carolina Supply Co., Burlington, N. C. 27215. (L. F. Grand, plant pathologist)

 What's new on the market?

THE PRODUCT — A jet "gun" for removing stoppages in toilet bowls, floor drains, wash basins and other piping complexes. Manufacturer's claim — That gas pressure is released from an aerosol-type cartridge when the tool is fired ... that the pressure strikes a single hammer-like blow to water in pipe or drain ... that this pressure is transmitted 250 feet down the line, dislodging the obstruction ... that the action of the tool will not damage piping ... and that, since the gun is fired in water, there is no loud noise.

THE PRODUCT — Plastic housing that makes an electric drill shockproof as well as unusually light in weight.

Manufacturer's claim — That the housing is made of polycarbonate and guaranteed for life against breakage ... that it will not crack from low temperatures nor warp from extreme heat ... that it is non-conductive and that the drills using it carry UL labels ... that the housing won't rust, dent, peel or corrode.

THE PRODUCT — A group of 16 garden hose connectors designed to allow the user to connect or disconnect house and water accessories without turning off the faucets.

Manufacturer's claim — That the line is composed of couplings, hose menders, regular nozzles, pistol-jet nozzles and area sprinklers ... that the connections and disconnections are made with a quick click ... that a special gripper ring is used so that the harder the hose is pulled, the tighter the connection becomes ... and that there are two sizes of replacement couplings to cover different sizes of garden hose.

THE PRODUCT — An add-on stairs for swimming pools that features a jet spray for water massage.

Manufacturer's claim — That the jet spray converts the well of the stairs to what is called "a private spa," since it massages the pool user with millions of tiny bubbles of air and water ... that the temperature can be adjusted as desired in heated pools ... and that the stairway comes in a one-piece fiber glass, vinyl-lined, nonskid unit that can be added to the wall of an old pool or installed in a new one.

(A helpful handbook for do-it-yourselfers is Andy Lang's "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

(The jet plumbing aid is manufactured by Debric Innovations Inc., 64-24 137th St., Flushing, N.Y. 11367; plastic by General Electric, 1 Plastics Ave., Pittsfield, Mass. 01201; the hose connectors by Black & Decker, Towson, Md. 21204; and the pool stairs by Cascade Industries Inc., Talmadge Road, Edison, N.J. 08817.)

Michael Has Blossomed In TEACCH

MICHAEL KARACHUN

With The Women

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Sunday, May 20, 1973—C-1

Mike and Kathy Karachun of Ayden believe they are in the right place at the right time to do the most of their son, Michael.

Michael, now four, is a brain-damaged child with autistic tendencies. He has needed specialized individual teaching in order to learn to relate to other people, to talk, and to help him slow down, since he was hyperkinetic.

His father, an insurance agent, who is president of the Greenville Unit of the N.C. Society for Autistic Children, explained why he and his wife feel they are so fortunate: "We understand," Karachun said, "that North Carolina is the only state in the nation that funds a program for diagnosing and working with autistic children. The doctors and therapists and teachers who have seen Michael tell us we have caught him at just the right age to be able to help him. This must be true, because he has improved so much after only a year in the TEACCH program."

TEACCH stands for Training and Education of Autistic and Related Communication Handicapped Children.

Michael is the oldest of the Karachuns' two sons. They began to suspect there was something wrong when he did not begin to talk as he neared two and they could see that his coordination was not developing as it should. Also, he was a severe behavior problem.

Hyperkinetic

"Michael was constantly moving," Mrs. Karachun recalls, "not sleeping nights yet going like a racehorse all day. And into everything—breaking things, spilling things, even setting his toys on fire on the range. Correcting him didn't seem to help. We couldn't keep his attention long enough to get a point across."

"When Marc was born when Michael was 19 months old, matters got even worse. The frequency of his tantrums increased and he never let us forget how jealous of Marc he was."

The Karachuns took Michael to the ECU Developmental Evaluation Clinic where his condition was diagnosed. They were told it would be difficult to determine his intelligence because his speech was so limited. It was determined that his attention span was only from 10 to 15 seconds long.

After some individual therapy, he entered the TEACCH program last September, and in three months had learned six words. It was not that he could say these words plainly, but that he would make the same sound every time for the same idea, showing that he had made the association.

Praise Works

His teacher, Mrs. Gaynor Mills said, "Michael was so obviously pleased with himself when he got something across, and his frustration grew less and less with the progress he made in communicating. We let him know we are pleased, too."

"For some children, a piece of candy or sweetened cereal is a good reward, but for Michael physical contact works best—a tickle, a hug, a pat on the head makes him beam."

"I think it was in October last year, we were working with all six children in the TEACCH classroom at Third Street School. He had done something he thought was praiseworthy and neither my assistant, Maxine Robinson, nor I happened to notice. 'Good Boy, Good Boy,' Michael said. Of course, the accomplishment thrilled us and his parents."

Michael's vocabulary now consists of more than 500 words. In addition, he has improved in relating to others—in eye contact, in greeting others, and in just playing well with other children. He now has a best friend, Gary McGowan. The two are inseparable.

Michael's spontaneous sentences are five words long; he asked for ones, three words. He does best when things are his own idea—he hates to be pushed.

Parents Involved

"The structured situation in our classroom is good for Michael, as it is for most children. His mother has learned to carry through at home and keep everything as routine as possible," Mrs. Mills said.

"We parents learn, too, that we have to be patient," Mrs. Karachun said. "We must allow Michael to dress himself, no matter how late for an appointment it makes us and to feed himself no matter how messy he is. He is now doing both of these things, plus he's toilet trained and can ride a tricycle and walk a balance beam, all evidence of improved motor control, his teachers say."

Parents and teachers discuss the children every day, so activities at school and at home are coordinated and the problems are ironed out before they have time to fully develop. Many of the mothers actually work in the classroom when they can, bringing their other children along if need be.

"We parents are a help to one another. This is why the Society for Autistic Children was formed," Karachun said. "In addition to being support for one another, though, we are working for increased public understanding and support for autistic children. Greenville's is one of only 11 TEACCH classrooms in North Carolina. Many more are needed. This summer there will be three weeks of Camp Chestnut near Efland, with 10 children going each week. Since there must be one therapist for every two children, the number that can be afforded the opportunity is limited. We're still accepting donations for the camp project."

"Costly as the TEACCH program is, these children will cost the state less to help us develop them than if they were placed in a residential center. Our centers for retarded children and mental hospitals have many, many wasted individuals who have been wards of the state practically all their lives, because no one knew they could be helped when they were small children like Michael."

"Kathy and I have reason to believe that because of this TEACCH training, Michael will eventually be able to go into the public school system, probably in special classes, and become a valuable citizen. You just can't know what this means to us who love him," Michael's father said.

Former Policeman Readers Urged To Use Public Libraries Writes About 'Cops'

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Books Editor
NEW YORK (AP) — The first thing most New Yorkers do when they hop on one of the city's subways is look for a seat. Not Dorothy Uhnak. She studied the other riders, looking for purse snatchers, bag openers and other assorted criminals.

A member of New York City's Transit Police for 14 years, Mrs. Uhnak spent a good bit of that time on plainclothes patrol of the city's subways and buses. When she wasn't policing, she wrote and published her first book, "Policewoman," while still on the force.

"I loved being a policewoman," Mrs. Uhnak, a cheerful, attractive woman, recalls, "but I left in 1967 to be a full-time writer. I needed the freedom."

After publishing three novels as well as getting her bachelor's degree, Mrs. Uhnak three years ago turned her attention to what she calls with a laugh, "The BIG novel." The book is titled "Law and Order," and it is, of course, about cops—three generations of them on the New York force.

"I wasn't trying to get on the cop bandwagon that has started rolling through contemporary literature," Mrs. Uhnak says. "I began my book before it got under way. But I did anticipate that there would be such a trend because of the prevalence of crime in the streets."

"With hardly a neighborhood left where people really feel at ease, it figured that there would be interest in just who policemen are and what they are like."

To get her book, which is largely Irish in cast, just right, Mrs. Uhnak says she "did a lot of research on the early history of the Irish in this country. 'I laid part of in the neighborhood I grew up in in New York, which was about half Irish and half Jewish, and I went to Ireland for three weeks," she said.

Mrs. Uhnak, who lives in Queens with her husband, 16-year-old daughter, three cats and a dog, says, "I've always written, ever since I was a kid. But there came a time when I wanted to write something other than my own thoughts. They can get pretty boring, you know."

"I wanted to get into something where I would be involved with other people. I was going to go into social work, but then the exams for the police came up. It sounded like the kind of career I was looking for, so I took the exams, passed and got appointed."

While a cop, Mrs. Uhnak was awarded her department's highest decoration, the Outstanding Police Duty Medal.

"You know, you can find any kind of thing on the subway," she says. "And I did. I got the medal for capturing a guy who'd been mugging women in the Wall Street area."

DEAR ABBY: Often people write to you for information which they can easily get by simply calling their public library (such as the recent inquiry about the origin of the American Indian). Most libraries are happy to serve the public with ready reference material by phone. Libraries are not just for "bookworms"—they are the storehouse of mankind's accumulated knowledge, historical as well as current.

Librarians are there to arrange this material in some logical manner, and guide people in their search for it. They can supply facts concerning the World Series, instructions on repairing a car, material for a term paper, a directory of addresses, back issues of a magazine.

Please urge people to USE their public libraries. We have no budget to advertise the many services we offer. Will you give us a small plug, Abby?

FORMER LIBRARIAN

DEAR FORMER: You've helped me for years. This is the least I can do for you. I hope this item doesn't swamp you.

DEAR ABBY: I've been married to an American serviceman for 16 years. We have two children, 13 and 9. Our marriage has been miserable. I am easy-going, and he is very temperamental. He was sent to Korea for 13 months, and I wanted to write and tell him we were finished because I had lost all love and desire for him. That's when I went to this lady who reads palms.

The lady told me that money is power, and power is the devil's curse, and if I had any money I would have to sacrifice it to drive the evil spirits from my body.

I told her all I had was $600 in cash and $2,800 in bonds. She told me to bring her the cash so she could take it to church and burn it as a sacrifice, then I would be free of the devil's curse.

I did as she asked, and I know it sounds weird, but like a miracle I started feeling love and desire for my husband again, even though we were separated. I wrote him love letters every day. The palm reader told me if I mentioned the miracle to my husband the spell would be broken.

I was very happy. Then this woman called and told me she had a message from God, who said if I wanted the spell to last after my husband got home I would have to cash in my bonds and sacrifice them, too, so I obeyed her.

My husband is coming home soon, and I don't know what to tell him about our savings and the bonds. I'm afraid he will kill me. Please help me.

WORRIED IN BALTIMORE

DEAR WORRIED: Your story should be told to the police.

If the problem is acid indigestion and you are on a camping trip, use baking soda this way: Mix one-half teaspoon in one-half glass water for temporary relief of mild indigestion.

Fence Holes End Sunbath

MALAGA, Spain (WNS)—Ricardo Thomas, 37, had a wooden fence built around his house so that his wife could sunbathe in the garden without being seen. Now he is demanding a new fence from the builder because the old one was full of knots, which fell out and became peepholes for inquisitive strangers. The builder claims that his wood was not full of knots and that the holes are handmade. Senora Paquita Thomas, 27, has given up sunbathing until the issue is settled.

The big, bright flowers of the tuberous begonia resemble roses or camellias, according to David Tatnall, extension garden specialist at the University of Delaware.

Log-Burning Stops Troubles

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (WNS)—Aphrodisiac logs from Abadan are the new status symbol for members of the jet set here. "These pines give off a strong aroma that has the most peculiar qualities," reported movie producer Cynthia Berek. "It makes businessmen and women feel entirely relaxed but, is so penetrating that nobody goes to sleep. My husband calls them the sweet smell of success." Most married couples agree that one log on the hearth is enough. "Burn three logs after a serious argument, and the divorce threat disappears," said Mrs. Berek.

DURHAM — In a double ring ceremony Saturday at 3:00 p.m., Miss Catherine Howard became the bride of Michael Lee Aiken in the Trinity United Methodist Church here.

So now she has written and published a guide of rude and slang sayings.

Theorize Limited Nuclear War

By JOHN HALL
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Is the 30-minute nuclear war an obsolete concept?

Nuclear planners formerly came up with one grim scenario for Armageddon: The blinding flash obliterating the cities of country A, followed by retaliation in kind to country B—with the time elapsed equal to the half hour from launch pad to explosion.

That was it—the balance of terror, stark and simple. Horrible as it was to contemplate, it has worked, till now. No nuclear weapons have been fired in anger since 1945 and Hiroshima-Nagasaki.

But technology and man's irrepressible need to find new ways to defend himself seem to be converging on a new theory of nuclear warfare as infinite in its sophistication as the type of weapons which could be developed to fight it.

The dominant hues running through the Nixon administration's strategic policies today form a picture of gradual, drawn-out and even "controlled" nuclear warfare.

In his foreign policy message May 3, President Nixon drew this picture more clearly than he has in the past.

"An aggressor, in the unlikely event of nuclear war, might choose to employ nuclear weapons selectively and in limited numbers for limited objectives," Nixon said. "No President should ever be in the position where his only option in meeting such aggression is an all-out nuclear response."

Furthermore, the President believes, the inability to respond with flexibility to a nuclear attack "could tempt an aggressor to use nuclear weapons in a limited way in a crisis. If the United States has the ability to use its forces in a controlled way, the likelihood of nuclear response would be more credible, thereby making deterrence more effective and the initial use of nuclear weapons by an opponent less likely."

The concept is not new. Nixon frequently has referred to the need for a flexible response to a nuclear attack—something short of committing the entire U.S. nuclear arsenal.

But the words "controlled" and "limited" in association with atomic warfare are new—and they will be hard to grasp for a generation of Americans that has been raised to adulthood in the age of overkill.

U.S. officials are vague about how a limited nuclear exchange could start. One possibility is an accidental launch. Another is that the Soviets—driven by some crisis such as the Middle East or Berlin—might be tempted to send a volley of their nuclear-tipped SS9 missiles not at American cities but U.S. missile silos, with the aim of disarming the country and then forcing terms.

But in the world of strategic gamesmanship, the scenario is not so important as security against all contingencies. It is a chessboard world where men have nightmares about waking up to confront an enemy saying, "Stick 'em up, I've got you covered" or words to that effect.

Fred Charles Ikle, the California sociologist chosen by Nixon to be his new arms control chief, says if the United States is willing to credit an enemy with being irrational enough to strike at U.S. cities, it also must give the enemy credit for being irrational enough to attempt to disarm the United States.

"In countries that tolerate a dictatorship, a leader might always rise to the top who deems it a virtue, perhaps part of his revolutionary creed, to live dangerously," Ikle wrote in "Foreign Affairs."

How do you go about protecting against—or responding to—a maniac who might decide a knockout punch against Minuteman missiles is the right thing to do in a crisis?

U.S. land-based Safeguard antiballistic missiles are being fixed—under a new process called the command data buffer system—so that they can be instantly retargeted by a computer. In the past, to change their targets, the missile silos had to be physically entered and their guidance systems redirected by hand.

This means that whatever proportion of its missiles the United States fires in retaliation could, on short notice, be aimed at military targets such as airfields and weapons.

To aim them at enemy missile silos themselves is not now possible, the Pentagon says. U.S. missiles do not have the required combination of accuracy and payload to knock out hardened missile silos. But, with the advance of technology, that capability is within the Pentagon's grasp. The accuracy of U.S. multiple, independently targeted re-entry vehicles (MIRV)—now being placed in the nose cones of the Minutemen—is measured in feet.

This creates a whole new set of problems—the main one being that the enemy might become convinced of an American capability to launch a disarming first strike.

Nixon's foreign policy message pledged no "drastic change in our nuclear programs" and said U.S. forces "are not designed to provide a capability for a disarming first strike."

Some military chiefs believe, however, that Nixon's theories on nuclear war are wide enough to encompass the capability to strike in retaliation at an enemy's missile silos, with the aim of "preventing further damage to the United States."

Lt. Gen. Otto J. Glasser, the Air Force deputy chief of staff for research and development, says "the ability to limit damage can well be seen as a form of additional deterrence and as a means to further discourage the other side from nuclear brinkmanship."

And Ikle, in his Foreign Affairs article, says "the potential accuracy of 'smart' bombs and missiles and current choices in weapons effects could enable both sides to avoid the killing of vast millions and yet to inflict assured destruction on military, industrial and transportation assets — the sinews and muscles of the regime initiating war."

Between Us The Way We Talk At Home Is Emulated By Children

By DR. HAIM GINOTT
Note to readers: The encounters depicted in my column are designed to serve as a practical guide to improved communication. They are not to be taken literally. They should be adapted to individual situations and individual ways of speaking.

DOES THE WAY WE TALK at home really have a basic influence on our children? There is evidence that it does: that our kindness is appreciated and emulated. For example:

FATHER WAS SICK and couldn't go to a conference. He was upset about it. At dinner he was glum. Four-year-old Fran said "You wish you could go to your conference, Daddy."

"I really do, Honey," answered Father.
"It's not fun to be sick when you want to go out," said Fran. "I'm feeling better about it now," said Father.

Father related: "The amazing thing is that I really picked up after this conversation."

DAVID, two and a half, is in a play group. It was mother's day to car-pool. When they picked up Jan, the same age, she started crying. David studied her for a moment, then patted her on the head. "You seem upset," he said, "you must miss your mommy." Again he patted her head and repeated his statements. Jan stopped crying. David's mother said, "It isn't easy to get into a car for the very first time without your mommy." Then she turned to her son and said, "Thank you, David, for helping Jan feel better."

When David's mother told me this episode, I asked her: "Did he really use these words? It seems incredible." Mother replied, "He has never heard any other response to tears. It's his native tongue."

NEW AMBASSADOR

AMMAN, Jordan (AP)—King Hussein has designated his former foreign minister, Abdallah Salah, as the new ambassador to the United States.

MARION, 6, SAID TO HER PIANO TEACHER, "I figured it out—what you are. You aren't a mother, because if you were you would be home with your children. You aren't a teacher—because if you were you would be angry with me for talking so much. And, I wouldn't have you all alone to myself. Teachers have many children at one time. So you must be a grandmother. Because grandmothers are nice with little children, even with pesty ones."

SHIRL, 7, SAW A MAN who had cerebral palsy. What's wrong with him," she asked her mother. "He's handicapped," Mother replied. "You mean he'll be that way forever?" asked Shirl. "Yes," Mother nodded her head sadly.

Shir: How awful it must feel to know you'll never get better. And, everyone staring and then turning away from you. Mother: It's a difficult life.

Shir: Yes, but you can't be too nice, like Mrs. Smith, our teacher, is to blacks, 'cause then he'd think you were being nice 'cause he is sick.

AFTER RONA'S ADENOID OPERATION, her parents received the following note: To the best parents in the world. When it comes to getting about it to it really helps a lot. Thanks for giving me all the love and attention I needed. Love, you adenoidless Daughter.

Doctor Shows How To Bathe Away "Corns"* and Calluses in Minutes

YESTERDAY at the offices of a foremost New York foot specialist, I experienced what may prove to be the answer to the foot problems of millions. I was shown a quick, easy way to relieve tired, aching, itching feet—even feet tortured with corns and calluses!

As a reporter, I'm on my own feet about 12 hours a day. For years I've suffered—not only from corns and calluses—but also from recurring athlete's foot, and that tired, aching feeling so familiar to salesmen, postmen, policemen, teachers and others who must stand on their feet for their livelihood... I tried everything from specially made $45 shoes to all kinds of foot powders, creams and salves—all to practically no avail. So I was naturally skeptical when I was assured, in a doctor's office that in a few minutes I would be relieved of all the foot miseries that had been plaguing me for years. I just couldn't believe it—but here is what actually happened!

In just 20 minutes, the itching misery of my athlete's foot had subsided. My corns were softened and dead skin washed away. So were my calluses! In fact, my feet felt simply wonderful—and that is why I am writing this article—so that others will be helped as I have been! For this doctor's simple method is now being made available to the public for home use!

PART 1. A Mineral Bath for Your Feet
For the first part of this 3-way method the doctor had me place my sore, tired feet in a basin of hot water. To this water he added a green powder containing Potassium, Iron, Magnesium, Lithium, Iodides and other minerals (similar to those found in the waters of famous natural Spas). Almost immediately I began to feel a new and wonderful sensation. All the pressure and the heavy feeling in my legs seemed to float away. My feet felt as though they had no weight at all. My foot and leg muscles seemed to relax. I could actually feel soreness and pain diminishing.
"The perspiration, the dirt and the odors so common to your feet is now being cleansed from your pores," the doctor informed me. "The hot mineral solution is easing surface tension, stimulating circulation and sending a fresh supply of new blood to your feet. This helps cleanse out the pores that soap and water cannot reach." I could see dry, dead, scaly tissue being flaked away. I touched the hardened surfaces of my feet and found that they were now soft and smooth. I could feel the dead dry skin of corns and calluses softened and loosened.

PART 2. Corns and Calluses
After about 15 minutes the doctor had me remove my feet from the bath. Then while they were still moist, he began to massage them with a special volcanic lava stone, which he had already soaked in the Foot-herapy bath. It felt as if my feet were being gently caressed with wool. In just 3 or 4 minutes this volcanic stone began to buff away the dead skin of corns and calluses that had bothered me for years. Best of all, one particularly painful corn on my little toe which I had to have cut off at least once a year was gradually being buffed away. It was as if I had grown a new pair of feet.

PART 3. Athlete's Foot, Unpleasant Odors
The third and final step of this doctor's treatment is a medicated cream designed to correct the condition of athlete's foot, prevent sweating and remove unpleasant foot odors. It contains a tested chemical which is now being used in hospitals, to help combat fungi, dangerous bacteria and relieve skin rashes. As the doctor rubbed this cream into my skin, I felt a cooling, mint-like sensation. Itching between the toes disappeared. A special combination of natural oils helps lubricate the entire skin surface leaving a soothing, protective, invisible film to help guard against reinfection of the area.
"Even though we have gotten such wonderful results with just one application," said the doctor, "you must remember that the secret of well being, pain-free feet is constant care and

Medical Center Crying For Doctor And Dentist

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer
PENNSBORO, W. Va. (AP)—"All I know," said Perle Hayhurst when asked about Pennsboro's last doctor, "is he drove into town in a junker that would hardly run and drove out in a new Cadillac."

Pacing the gray linoleum floor of the waiting room he added, "What we've got here is a medical center crying out for a doctor and dentist. I just don't understand it. You'd think a place like this would attract somebody."

A thriving community of 1,800 residents nestled among the wooded hills and family farm-lands of West Virginia's Ritchie Country, Pennsboro is like hundreds of other towns in the state and thousands more across the nation.

And like its sister towns, Pennsboro too must migrate to the city for its medical needs.

The medical center was to change all that. It hasn't. "We did everything you could imagine to raise money for it," Mrs. elsie Rinehart said. "This town has more than $65,000 sunk into this building."

The long and low brick structure, with office space for two doctors and a dentist, sits on a knoll in the middle of town. Inside are various "bargain buys" residents thought would be of value to its occupants.

Mrs. Rinehart smiled while remembering the effort invested in securing a mammoth X-ray machine from a Veterans Administration hospital in a city 150 miles away. "We heard they were purchasing a newer model and had no use for this perfectly good one," she explained. "So a group of our men drove down to Huntington in a truck a grocery wholesaler here in town had and worked all day and half the night tearing it down and hauling it back."

A $35,000 machine when new, the X-ray unit cost Pennsboro less than $9,000, including a complicated installation.

The center itself, said Hayhurst, a 70-year-old retired construction superintendent, is a bargain.

"I'd hate to say how much it would cost to replace this building," he said, admitting to claims by Mrs. Rinehart that he had contributed 2,200 volunteer man hours to its completion.

Aside from a $10,000 grant from the Benedum Foundation, the center was entirely locally funded.

Once a booming center for a rich petroleum industry, the town has remained at its current population level for the last 20 years and boasts a broad tax base from several local factories.

"We think we have everything here a doctor who likes the rural life could want," Mrs. Doris Davis, the town clerk, said. "We have nearby lakes and parks and if a person wants the excitement of a city, Parkersburg or Clarksburg

Frenchman Admits French Food Missing Great Wines Buys Not Best—Women Better Cooks

By ALINE MOSBY
PARIS (UPI) — France does not have the best food in the world. And women are better cooks than men.

Having dropped these two

ROBERT COURTINE, restaurant editor for Le Monde of Paris, says France does not have the best food in the world. (UPI Telephoto) bombshells, Robert Courtine settled back in his chair to order his 15,300th meal as France's No. 1 food critic.

Courtine is the restaurant editor for the newspaper Le Monde of Paris, the world's food capital. Yet, he said, "I do not consider French food the best in the world."

"It's the most varied, not the best," he said. "All countries have good dishes. Why, I even like English food, if it's made correctly. There are three or four good Italian dishes, some Portuguese. In Louisiana there is marvelous food."

The greatest cooks in all countries are women, he went on, because "they do natural cooking for love, for their husband, their children. When you do it for money it's not as good. Anything you do for love is better."

"The only real cuisine is the cuisine of the country, the traditional food of our grandmothers made with local products. Male chefs complicate things. The genius chefs such as Paul Bocuse in Lyon or the Troisgros brothers in Roanne are in a class apart. But in general, I prefer women cooks. They know how to hold back. Too much butter, sugar or alcohol destroys the taste."

Eating "Beat"
Courtine possibly has the world's most delicious job. To cover his "beat" this journalist eats lunch and dinner in the restaurants of France five days a week, 600 different restaurants a year ("although I ate twice in Maxim's last year").

In addition, he drops in on a dozen other restaurants each day to find out what is cooking. One night he ate two dinners. Each Saturday he visits the wholesale food market.

He eats alone, never with his wife because he's on the job, and at home "I never eat on weekends, just ham and a salad."

Courtine is not thin but has a trim, healthy figure. "I never have been sick," he said. "One must pay attention as to what to avoid. Never bread, never sugar, never desserts. A good meal ends with a good cheese."

Courtine, writing under the pen name La Reyniere, reviews restaurants with the fervor of a music critic lighting into a new opera.

"Still Timid"
In one review he roared, "the grated cheese dish does not exactly reach pinnacles..." In another restaurant he found "some dishes still are timid." He blasted one eatery for "a menu written in completely illegible handwriting" and another for being "too dark. I like to read my newspaper while I eat."

Courtine receives around 200 letters a week from readers who tip him to good restaurants or complain of bad meals. Occasionally in comes an outraged wail from some restaurateur he has wounded. One threatened to punch his nose, another said he would sue. But neither did.

When Courtine and I lunched for the purpose of this interview he advised "don't order the roast lamb, it's banal." We started with an estofinade de moru, or scrambled eggs, fish and potatoes cooked together. Then I had ris de veau (Calf's sweetbreads) which M. Courtine examined and concluded were fresh, not frozen. He had bouef a la ficelle (boiled beef in a sauce) followed by a salad and cheese. He ordered "a nice wine" from the Lyon region, sipped it, and pronounced it "well rounded."

Pay for Quality
Courtine began writing literary criticism in 1928 and was struck by how great French writers often wove food into their plots. Balzac wrote of his omelets, Flaubert of the wedding feast of Madame Bovary.

"I became interested in writing about food. My grandmother had been a great cook, and had taught me a lot."

Courtine began his food column for Le Monde 25 years ago and has written 30 books on cooking.

His final bombshell: "There's no such thing as the great cheap little restaurant (even in Paris) any more. To get quality you have to pay."

Term Shoes A Driving Hazard

SYDNEY (UPI) — The National Roads and Motorists Association (NRMA) has issued a warning to women who drive automobiles while wearing platform shoes.

The Chief Traffic Engineer of the NRMA, Ted Huxtable, said wearing the high heeled shoes could lead to accidents. "They are the most hazardous fashion since stiletto heels," he said. The platform shoes, some of which have heels up to six inches high, could easily be caught between the pedals and the floor of car. "Suppose a woman has to brake quickly with those heels on—anything could happen if she misjudges the pedal. They could prove fatal," Huxtable said.

FOR LARRY BROWN, NFL's Most Valuable Player
Did the late coach Vince Lombardi help you to be the great pro you are today?—Robert Shinizu, Los Angeles, Calif.

● When I reported to the Washington Redskins in the summer of 1970, I had a hearing problem in my right ear. It caused me to lose half a step getting off the ball because I had to wait for the other players to move before I could. Coach Lombardi came out one day and handed me a helmet designed just for me. It had a special hearing device in it, and from then on I was half a step faster. Without that helmet, I wouldn't have won the NFL Player of the Year Award in 1972.

FOR HELEN HAYES

Do you think there is such a thing as retirement age?—L. O. F., Chattanooga, Tenn.

● I think retirement has to do with the individual. If I had to set an arbitrary age, 65 comes to mind. But then I was 65 seven years ago, and I've built some beautiful memories of acting in those seven years. So obviously I am not ready to retire, and quite obviously this is true of a lot of other people at 65.

FOR MRS. PAT NIXON

Is it true that your given name is Thelma and Pat is just a nickname?—Mrs. Georgia P. Miller, Paradise, Calif.

● My given name was Thelma Catherine Ryan. But since I was born on St. Patrick's Eve (March 16), my father called me his "St. Patrick's Babe in the Morn." I've been called Pat ever since.

FOR SEN. SAM ERVIN (D-N.C.)

In setting up the Senate's Watergate investigation, why didn't you go along with the Republican proposal to inquire about chicanery in the 1964 and 1968 elections, too?—J. Drury, Bethesda, Md.

● That would have been about as foolish as the man who went bear hunting and stopped to chase rabbits.

FOR JOE NAMATH

Recently a quarterback from another team criticized your life-style. Do your own teammates get upset at the way you flout training rules?—J. J. Morrissey, Niagara Falls, N.Y.

● It's no secret that I like a good time, but I have never done anything that would interfere with my performance on the day of a game, and my teammates know that.

FOR CHER BONO

With Sonny always teasing you about your nose, would you ever have it bobbed?—Marianne Barone, Tuxedo, N.Y.

● No, Sonny really likes my nose; his teasing is just part of our act. I don't feel my nose distracts from my looks and I wouldn't think of having it changed—after all, it's been with me for many years.

FOR JULIA CHILD, French Chef on TV

How much time do you spend preparing the dishes for your TV show?—Mrs. Margaret Lewis, Dubuque, Iowa ● Depends on what it is. If I have to do something that takes a long time to cook, like a beef stew, and needs to be shown in several stages, I might have to cook four stews just for that one show. I'd have one or two left over from our rehearsal, and maybe one from the dress rehearsal, and then I'd have to have a standby stew in case something went wrong with the cameras or the sound.

FOR EMMETT KELLY, America's most famous clown

How many years have you been a clown? Is it true that your son is following in your footsteps?—F. Brown, Yuma, Ariz.

● I began my "Wearie Willie" clown character in 1921. I've been in the business for going-on 52 years—with no thought of retiring. I have a son, Emmett Kelly, Jr., who has copied my makeup. As far as I know, neither of his two sons has taken up clowning as a profession. Their names are Joseph and Paul.

FOR JOEY HEATHERTON

You were quoted a few years ago as saying that Hollywood was "Dullsville," that you would never live there. But I understand you do live in Hollywood now. Has it changed—or have you?—R. Beekman, Glendale, Calif.

● Hollywood is still Dullsville, but I have an apartment there because I do so much TV work in L.A. But I also have an apartment in New York, and even if I do spend more time in Hollywood, I consider New York my home. However, the place I would really like to live is London.

Don't change your summer plans

If you're going to spend a lot of this coming summer around the water—sailing and swimming—you'll want the protection of Tampax tampons.

Girls have frequently wondered about swimming during those difficult days. Old-fashioned napkins make swimming impossible, but with Tampax tampons the message has always been: "Go ahead and swim." You're dependably protected internally. And you never have to worry about anything showing under swimsuits because internal protection is invisible protection.

So don't change your summer plans just because your period might interfere. Tampax tampons let you sail, swim, water-ski, sunbathe—just like any other day of the month.

The internal protection more women trust

"I don't worry about death. Dying is something you do naturally; worrying about it is unnatural. I feel sorry for people who hold repugnant thoughts about death. They are afraid. I figure I'm privately special to God, Who feels I'm a person who can feel death and face it, showing warmth to others. . . ."

By T. K. Irwin

What do you say, what do you do, how do you keep going when you're young and doctors predict you don't have long to live?

When Marcia Strassman first heard this verdict, she adamantly refused to give up. "I'm having a love affair with life," she insisted. Stubbornly she continued to go endurance-riding on horseback; to paint; to write poetry, music and television plays; to sing and play drums with a musical group; and to work long hours as an advertising copywriter and artist in Portland, Ore.

Reddish-blonde, blue-eyed and plump, now 29, my friend Marcia is afflicted with chronic myelocytic leukemia, a generally fatal cancer of the blood-forming tissues.

Last January, cancer specialists in New York, where she went for new treatment, gravely broke the ultimate bad news: She could expect to live only six months more. "I believe them now," she told me, "but I'm not going to hold my breath waiting."

Optimism has clung to this multi-talented young woman despite a series of misfortunes. When she was 15, Marcia's parents were killed in an air disaster. Taken in by family friends in California, she worked her way through college and then took a master's degree. A freak accident resulted in back injuries and paralysis, which she overcame after extensive surgery. In another close call with death she survived a car crash. "With my share of bad luck," she says, "things just had to get better."

Perhaps the bitterest blow came just this last March 22, when Jim, Marcia's fiancé and childhood sweetheart—to whom she was to be married in April—was killed in a car crash while on an assignment for the State Department in Israel. Jim had been one of Marcia's mainstays.

His love had done much to comfort her in some of her darkest hours. When she received the terrible news—when she learned that even this love had been taken away from her—she broke down and cried all night. Next day, she told me, "It was the will of God, it was meant to be. . . . But deep inside it hurts so bad."

That day her leukemia was first diagnosed five years ago, Marcia also broke down and wept—then went to see her pastor. "If you have enough faith," he assured her, "you can survive as long as you have a mind to do it." Marcia has relentlessly kept that faith.

Potent drugs (as many as 14 during one period), radiation and blood transfusions have kept her going, and Marcia's earnings barely covered the huge medical bills. Relapses occurred more and more often; again and again she had to be hospitalized. At times the therapy—especially "those needles"—made her scream, to let off steam. The disease or the therapy brought on nosebleeds, internal hemorrhages, nausea, uremic poisoning, fever, swellings, utter fatigue. Her hair thinned out and she gained 38 pounds. Occasionally she blacked out, once in her boss's arms. Eventually Marcia became immune to certain drugs, and radiation no longer seemed effective.

Last fall her Portland doctor managed to get Marcia admitted to the world-famous Sloan-Kettering Institute for Cancer Research in New York as a patient in a special project on chronic leukemia. There she has received new experimental drugs. Recently, her doctors "found things in my system that can't be corrected." Incredibly, during brief remission periods out of the hospital, Marcia has been free-lancing for four major advertising agencies, writing TV commercials and advertising

Marcia Strassman: "I look upon life as an incurable disease that we battle from the moment we are born. The stronger we face it, the better people we are."

copy for them. Madison Avenue had been her dream; at last she has "made it."

To me, a trusted friend, Marcia has been extraordinarily candid about her illness. "Through you," she once said, "I can express my feelings to the world." So let Marcia do the talking now. This is her attitude, her credo:

"Am I scared? No, I'm not afraid of my illness. I understand it and accept it. I'm just damn mad that it comes when my work is finally falling into place. I don't feel self-pity. Sympathy from others was my worry. I don't care if the whole world knows I have leukemia, but pity bothers me, and the kind of people who treat you like the plague because you have a disease said to be fatal.

"I look upon life as an incurable disease that we battle from the moment we are born. The stronger we face it, the better people we are."

What sustains her?

"As long as I have people behind me with faith, I'll fight on. There are my foster family, my friends, my doctor, my pastor—when people believe in you and care about you, you believe in and care for yourself.

"Hope is a 'must' word in my vocabulary. Without it I wouldn't be here today. And through my doctor I try to raise the morale of other patients in the hospital, to convince them to hope and care.

"I find a lot of courage and hope in the people researching cancer. They've been trying new drugs on me. If I don't make it I want to let them learn why, to help others with the same problem. It would be selfish not to do so.

"Psychologically I find fulfillment in my work. It's important for me to feel needed and useful.

"What also keeps me going is my belief in predestination: The minute you're born, you are told what you'll be doing. Whenever I have finished my purpose in life, it's time to go. But I don't think I'm finished yet.

"I believe, too, in a psychic force, in reincarnation. There has to be a reason for all the differences on our planet. I believe I was a painter in my last life. Once, when I was with a friend who is a medium, she went into a trance and the artist Paul Gauguin came through to me. He said he was my spiritual guide, that he and I had been friends in my last life, late in the 19th century. He said that in this life I'm learning from the mistakes I made then."

How does Marcia feel about dying?

"Dying is an art. It has a lot to do with dignity and understanding. If I were told I'd be dead in two hours, I'd try to comfort those around me. I'd think of the wonderful times I've had and pray that the times to come would be even more wonderful. Then I'd go to sleep in peace.

"I don't worry about death. Dying is something you do naturally; worrying about it is unnatural. I feel sorry for people who hold repugnant thoughts about death. They are afraid. I figure I'm privately special to God, Who feels I'm a person who can feel death and face it, showing warmth to others...."

At lunch with me the other day, shortly before she was ordered back to the hospital when her white blood cell count soared dangerously, I asked Marcia if she really believed she would outlive her doctors' prediction.

"I'm going to give it one hell of a try," she said. Then after a moment, wistfully: "I'd like to be around to see this article in print."

I thought of a song Marcia had composed for a record, "Imagine That the Lights Have Gone Out." And the opening lines of a poem she wrote, entitled "Epitaph":

"All the colored shadows that lie before your eyes Fall in place before you when you realize

Life is more than taking,
More than dreams declare.
Now's the time for waking,
There's so much to share. . . ."

Now! With the simple method of Foot Reflexology! 'You Can Get Almost Immediate Relief from Aches and Pains All Over the Body!'

"I have brought relief to countless suffering people with this method—and have watched their joy of regained health and vitality—when all hope had seemingly been lost!"

"Let me show you how it can bring about the normal function of a specific location or organ..."
Says MILDRED CARTER, Professional Reflexologist

Dear Friend:

My name is Mildred Carter. I am not a doctor, but for over 14 years, I have been helping people receive remarkable relief from seemingly hopeless aches and pains all over the body, with a method—which you can use, too—called Foot Reflexology.

Foot Reflexology is a method for healing the whole body. If you've ever suffered from foot trouble, you know that it's the feet that make the whole body ache. By rubbing and pressing gently on certain areas of your feet, I can show you how you may get almost immediate relief IN OTHER PARTS OF THE BODY!

Why? Because the feet contain Reflexes, which lead like telephone lines to all parts of the body. By pressing them, you help restore normal circulation and health to congested areas. No one can guarantee a cure, nor is it a medical substitute, but:

- I have seen it relieve crippled hands and feet, caused by painful arthritis, straighten whole bodies and bring them back to normal!
  - The pain of hemorrhoids stop immediately!
  - Most headaches vanish immediately!
  - I have seen it relieve liver and gall bladder trouble!
  - I have seen it clear up stuffed sinuses almost immediately!
  - I have seen it relieve back troubles, in a matter of seconds!
  - I have seen it bring fast relief to stomach troubles!
  - I have brought lasting relief to sufferers of varicose veins with this method. This is also true with cramps or pains in the legs!
  - I have seen it relieve bladder trouble quickly, with great relief after the first treatment—burning or itching seems to disappear completely!
  - I have brought relief to men, in every case of prostate trouble I have ever treated!
- ... And still that's just the beginning! You'll find the full details of this amazing method of healing in a new book which I have written, called HELPING YOURSELF WITH FOOT REFLEXOLOGY.

Many Healings Reported!

Foot Reflexology is a safe, natural, and inexpensive way to help restore healthful circulation to every area of your body.

Did you ever notice how quickly water freshens when good water is poured into muddy water? Foot Reflexology does the same for circulation in your body. Blood flow slows over the years. Naturally, glands and organs become sluggish. Stimulating a new flow of blood to these "tired" places brings new life, clears glands and organs of years of accumulated waste.

Here's What I Say in This Book:

Gall Bladder Healing "There are many cases where Reflex Massage of the liver and gall bladder has saved people from having an operation, with the stones seeming to vanish after a few treatments."—Quoted from Chapter 12

Anemic Conditions "Anyone who is anemic will find . . . improvement can be so rapid it is amazing. With pernicious anemia, results will be slower, but Nature will be there, changing new blood cells for old."—Quoted from Chapter 11

Helping the Heart "No matter what the nature of the trouble is, the heart can be aided with this method. . . . I can give you many case histories of wonderful results from this scientific massage of the reflexes on heart patients."—Quoted from Chapter 13

Relief for Leg Pains "I believe I have treated more cases of leg aches than any other malady, and most were caused by the sciatic nerve. Many people suffer for years without any relief. Yet it is so amazingly simple to banish all inflammation from this nerve in an unbelievably short time. In many cases this method has brought relief in one treatment."—Quoted from Chapter 22

Varicose Veins "I have brought lasting relief to sufferers of varicose veins by starting the proper circulation with Reflex Massage, thus causing congestion to disappear. This is also true with cramps or pains of any kind in the legs."—Quoted from Chapter 16

Relief for Hemorrhoids "Hemorrhoids are nothing more than a congested vein (known as piles). This is actually a varicose vein in the rectum. These can become so large as to protrude, causing inconvenience, much suffering, and in many cases bleeding. Though painful, they are usually suffered in silence by those who have them. Yet with Reflex Massage they are one of the quickest to respond to treatment. Here we will learn how to use the Reflexology method to bring you prompt relief!"—Quoted from Chapter 21

How to Make Reflexology Your Rejuvenator "Would you like to be young again? Would you like to walk expectantly into the future, to enjoy new experiences, with a revitalized body? We do not have to be old. . . . Reflexology rejuvenates the entire body, giving new life to glands and cells. Blood flow slows over the years. Naturally, glands and cells become sluggish. Reflexology stimulates a new flow of blood to these tired places, clears glands and cells of accumulated waste, brings them new life!"—Quoted from Chapters 3 and 24

What A Physiotherapist Says:

"During my forty-eight years as a Physiotherapist in my own Treatment Centers . . . I have had every opportunity to observe the amazing benefits of manual massage. As a means of rehabilitation where physical trauma is involved, it ranks high in the annals of Medicine. "The techniques described in Mrs. Carter's book have been developed by experts in the field of reflex massage, and we have no hesitation in recommending them. . . . For the relief of pain, we know of no other means short of opiates to achieve this objective."

—CLARENCE R. MUNROE
Registered Technician, Physiotherapy

"After the first treatment, he could suddenly breathe through both sides of his nose" and he felt well again.

- How a woman who had hurt her spine, and was in so much pain that she called a bone specialist to take x-rays, received so much relief with Reflexology—after a single treatment—that she was able to get up and do her work. She felt so much better, in fact, that she cancelled her appointment for x-rays, and claims she is fully recovered.
- How a man with a hunchback—a huge, ugly bulge—received a complete healing with Reflexology. He was freed of pain, and "he was able to stand straight." The hump disappeared. "He was not deformed at all," I reported!
- How a man who suffered from ulcers, kidney trouble, hay fever, and constipation, received complete relief with Reflexology. "The symptoms of each illness disappeared one by one," and today he sleeps like a baby every night!
- How a man with a heart condition was healed with Reflexology. Doctors had always warned him he couldn't do the things other men did. With this method, "his heart returned to normal enough to allow him to do anything he wanted, without any trouble. Today, after more than 10 years, he is a strong and well man."

Safe To Use!

"Reflexology will free you from sickness and suffering, and fear of pain, when used correctly." What's more, Foot Reflexology is absolutely safe. It is the "drugless" way to better health, and requires no exercise, no expensive equipment of any kind. It is so simple, and natural, that it is safe to use on anyone, from the youngest baby to the oldest person. In fact, it is a Rejuvenator that can actually win you years of new youth!

Donny Osmond: Sometimes I Just Can't Believe We're on Top!

"We finally decided to go with me as a solo. There's no jealousy in the family about the decision. If I sing a solo record, the guys back me up. Now Merrill wants to sing a solo record, and it's fine with us."

By Loraine Alterman

Superstar at 14: "Oh, man, I dig the screams!"

S shrieks of teeny-bopper joy drown out the whoosh of the roulette wheel and the clunk of dice at a big hotel in Las Vegas. Onstage is the group that earned more gold records (12) in a single year than either the Beatles (nine) or Elvis (eight) did. The Osmonds, 15-year show-business veterans, are socking Las Vegas with a breathtaking kind of showmanship and sweet rock and roll music. It is this combination that has broken attendance records at stadiums all over the country and sold an incredible 19 million records in less than two years.

The Osmonds are Alan, 23; Wayne, 21; Merrill, 19; Jay, 17; and Donny, 14. And they are sons who would make any parent proud. Olive and George Osmond, married for 28 years, have watched these five of their nine children become stars—and Donny, the youngest of the five, has become a superstar. They started out by entertaining at Ogden, Utah, church functions, then moved effortlessly into regular appearances on the Andy Williams television show. Now they are emerging as this junior-miss generation's No. 1 idols. And fortunately, as Mormons who stress clean living and family unity, the Osmonds haven't let stardust spangle their egos.

Even though Donny Osmond manages to extricate himself from the too-passionate grasp of a front-row fan with the cool of a 30-year veteran, he still could be that kid next door. When I asked Donny what he'd be doing at age 30, his brother Alan piped up: "Shaving."

Like most boys his age, Donny is alternately shy and bubbling, but unlike his peers, Donny has to contend with a fame that has put his smiling face on the almost-life-size posters and garish fan magazines that clutter 13-year-old girls' bedrooms from coast to coast.

FAMILY WEEKLY: You started out recording only with your brothers. How did you become a "single" act, too?

DONNY: I think it started at our first MGM session, when we recorded "One Bad Apple." We tried each brother on the solo and I finally ended up with it. That was when I had a high voice. We put it on our first album and got a lot of mail from kids who said they'd like it as a single. So, it was a big decision whether I should sing by myself or whether that would look like I was breaking up the group. We finally decided to go with me as a solo. There's no jealousy in the family about the decision. If I sing a solo record, the guys back me up. Now Merrill wants to sing a solo record, and it's fine with us.

FW: When did you start singing with the group?

DONNY: I was singing when I was four and joined when I was about six or seven. When the group started, they were a quartet and I was doing then what my nine-year-old brother Jimmy is doing now. I'd come on by myself and sing a solo. I did a song called "You Are My Sunshine." That was the very first song I learned. Then a little later I became a member of the group and started playing organ when I was about 11. I made my first solo album about two years ago.

FW: What's your reaction to seeing your picture plastered on all those teen fan magazines?

DONNY: When I was young, I remember walking by a newsstand and, just for fun, looking at the magazines. It's sort of hard to realize that I'm in that position—that all of us are in that position. Sometimes I just can't believe it. It's great, and we owe it all to our fans, because they're the ones that make you.

FW: Does it bother you that the audience screams so loudly during your concerts that it's difficult to hear the music?

DONNY: Oh, man, I dig the screams! They give you that extra boost. I think of it this way: When people come to see you, they want to see you, not hear you, because they can go home and play your records. They want excitement at a concert, and I guess that's why they come.

FW: Do you get nervous before you go onstage?

DONNY: I don't actually get stage fright, but I always get butterflies. We all make mistakes sooner or later. That's why we have to get up mentally and physically before a show. That can be really hard, you know. We warm up our vocal cords, if we're not hoarse, and we even do a couple of football exercises.

FW: What's your biggest satisfaction as a singer?

DONNY: I like the performing aspects of it and the girls. I love getting out onstage and having a blast. The highest point for me so far, I guess, is my single, "Puppy Love." That was fun because it was the first time we recorded live together. Usually you record the track and the vocals and then sweeten it, but we did it all at the same time. I guess "Puppy Love" is the biggest record I ever had.

FW: What do you do about going to school?

DONNY: We take correspondence courses in all the usual subjects, and we have tutors, besides. I study a minimum of three hours a day year-round. Right now I'm going into tenth grade, taking electronics as one of my electives because I'm really into that. The only year I went to public school was the second grade.

FW: Do you ever wish you could go to high school like an average kid?

DONNY: Yes, but you have to make sacrifices and that's one of them. Of course, we have an advantage that most kids don't have. They study about a lot of exciting places in school but they don't get a chance to see them. We study about historical places, and then we get to travel around and see some of them. We don't have too much time, but sometimes we sneak out and go sightseeing.

FW: Tell us about the Lucille Ball show you did for this television season.

DONNY: That was my acting debut. Lucille Ball is very strict but she sure knows what she's talking about. And little Lucie is great. In the story, I play myself and I'm performing in a nightclub.

FW: Do you think you'll eventually leave the group to work as a solo entertainer?

DONNY: Oh, no! But, of course, I'll do solo records like I'm doing now. But we'll always be a group. One big happy family. I think when I get to be 30 we'll probably be together but not traveling as much as we do.

I never stopped eating yet I lost 107 pounds.

By Catherine Gutches — as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

At 235 pounds, I looked as wide as my stove. But it didn't stop me from stirring up another batch of calories.

One thing's for sure. I didn't get up to 235 pounds by eating TV dinners. It was my own calorie-heavy cooking that did it. Meals like cucumbers dipped in egg and breadcrumbs and fried in butter, served with homemade macaroni smothered in cheese and finally sweetened with a dessert like Bundt cake, rich-crusted cherry pie or my own date and nut roll. Believe me, when you eat like that, it's easy to get fat, especially when you start young.

I was raised on a produce farm in Paramus, N.J. where my father was one of the first settlers. He had 75 acres of land on which we grew vegetables and fruit for market, but kept chickens and cows for our own needs. Actually I grew up working side by side with the farm hands, so I learned to eat hearty as soon as I could lift and lick a cake spoon.

When I was in my teens, I'd get up at five in the morning, have breakfast of fried potatoes, ham, homemade bread, jam and coffee. Then I'd work in the fields until seven. That would give me just enough time to take a bath, eat another snack and go off to school. When I'd get home, I'd be hungry enough to eat the ice box bare.

Is it any wonder I weighed 165 pounds by the time I was 21, the year I married my husband Ted — a six-footer who weighed three pounds less than I did? It didn't seem to bother him though. He's Holland Dutch and with my German parentage, we both took to eating like it was the only reason for living.

Our friends were like that, too. They were all 200-pounds plus. Why, once, when I complained about the shape I was in, one of them said: "Don't worry, Catherine. Your skin is stretched to the limit. You can eat all you want now." And I did. But the bigger I grew, the shorter my breath got. Then my back began to ache. My feet started to hurt from carrying all that weight and my stomach continually got in my way. What a mess!

Finally, after a vacation at the Jersey shore, a friend of mine said: "Catherine, let's try those reducing-plan candies, Ayds®." Believe it or not, I'd never heard of the Ayds plan. Besides, I'd tried lots of times to reduce without success, so I didn't know what to think. But she insisted. She bought me a box of the vanilla caramel Ayds and we both started on the plan.

Unknown to her, however, I did one important thing. I read the label on the box to check out the ingredients and I found that Ayds contains vitamins and minerals, but no drugs — nothing harmful. That sure was good news to me. Then I remembered hearing once during a physical exam that a person can't expect to starve himself and stay healthy losing weight. That to burn up fat, you need to eat the right foods, like meat and salads and vegetables. To me it was like comparing the body to a furnace that needs proper stoking to get it to burn like it should.

Well, on the Ayds plan, I began to stoke mine good. Instead of stuffing myself with starches, sweets and junk, I ate like I should. Only I ate less, because I wanted less. That's because I took one or two Ayds like the directions say, with a hot drink, and those candies really helped curb my appetite as they satisfied my craving for sweets. And in six weeks time, I'd lost 13 pounds on the Ayds plan.

I'll tell you, when I saw the scales going down, I knew I was set from then on. There was no more eating just to fill up that cavity in front.

People didn't take much notice, though, until I'd lost 50 pounds. That's when my clothes looked like they were designed by Omar, the Tent Maker, and everybody began remarking.

Sometimes, it's hard even for me to believe what's happened. Me, a grandmother, who gained a girlish figure at age 55. But the best thing, of course, is how it happened. Thanks to the Ayds plan, I lost 107 pounds, yet I never stopped eating. And I've never felt better.

Now that I'm down to 128 pounds, I still like to cook and bake, but I've given up tasting what's in the pot and licking what's on the spoon.

The Lazy Man's Way to Riches

'Most People Are Too Busy Earning a Living to Make Any Money'

Fun & Nonsense

By Carter Smith and Sara Stein

MAZE

This mole has forgotten the way to the dandelion he's been saving for his dinner. Can you help him?

WEIRD PEPPER TRICK

Before you do this trick, scratch your index finger along a bar of soap until there is some soap under your fingernail. Now sprinkle pepper over a bowl of water until it forms a film. Let another person dip a finger in the bowl to see that nothing very amazing happens. Now say you have a magic finger that will make the pepper move away. Dip your soapy finger into the bowl—watch the pepper spring away!

THE HARDEST TONGUE TWISTER IN THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE

(CAN YOU SAY IT?)

The sixth sick sheik's sixth sheep's sick.

I used to work hard. The 18-hour days. The 7-day weeks.

But I didn't start making big money until I did less—a lot less.

For example, this ad took about 2 hours to write. With a little luck, it should earn me 50, maybe a hundred thousand dollars.

What's more, I'm going to ask you to send me 10 dollars for something that'll cost me no more than 50 cents. And I'll try to make it so irresistible that you'd be a darned fool not to do it.

After all, why should you care if I make $9.50 profit if I can show you how to make a lot more.

What if I'm so sure that you will make money my Lazy Man's Way that I'll make you the world's most unusual guarantee?

And here it is: I won't even cash your check or money order for 31 days after I've sent you my material.

That'll give you plenty of time to get it, look it over, try it out.

If you don't agree that it's worth at least a hundred times what you invested, send it back. Your uncashed check or money order will be put in the return mail.

The only reason I won't send it to you and bill you or send it C.O.D. is because both these methods involve more time and money.

And I'm already going to give you the biggest bargain of your life.

Because I'm going to tell you what it took me 11 years to perfect: How to make money the Lazy Man's Way.

O.K.—now I have to brag a little. I don't mind it. And it's necessary—to prove that sending me the 10 dollars... which I'll keep "in escrow" until you're satisfied... is the smartest thing you ever did.

I live in a home that's worth $100,000. I know it is, because I turned down an offer for that much. My mortgage is less than half that, and the only reason I haven't paid it off is because my Tax Accountant says I'd be an idiot.

My "office," about a mile and a half from my home, is right on the beach. My view is so breathtaking that most people comment that they don't see how I get any work done. But I do enough. About 6 hours a day, 8 or 9 months a year.

The rest of the time we spend at our mountain "cabin." I paid $30,000 for it—cash.

I have 2 boats and a Cadillac. All paid for.

We have stocks, bonds, investments, cash in the bank. But the most important thing I have is priceless: time with my family.

And I'll show you just how I did it—the Lazy Man's Way—a secret that I've shared with just a few friends 'til now.

It doesn't require "education." I'm a high school graduate.

It doesn't require "capital." When I started out, I was so deep in debt that a lawyer friend advised bankruptcy as the only way out. He was wrong. We paid off our debts and, outside of the mortgage, don't owe a cent to any man.

It doesn't require "luck." I've had more than my share, but I'm not promising you that you'll make as much money as I have. And you may do better; I personally know one man who used these principles, worked hard, and made 11 million dollars in 8 years. But money isn't everything.

It doesn't require "talent." Just enough brains to know what to look for. And I'll tell you that.

It doesn't require "youth." One woman I worked with is over 70. She's travelled the world over, making all the money she needs, doing only what I taught her.

It doesn't require "experience." A widow in Chicago has been averaging $25,000 a year for the past 5 years, using my methods.

What does it require? Belief. Enough to take a chance. Enough to absorb what I'll send you. Enough to put the principles into action. If you do just that—nothing more, nothing less—the results will be hard to believe. Remember—I guarantee it.

You don't have to give up your job. But you may soon be making so much money that you'll be able to. Once again—I guarantee it.

The wisest man I ever knew told me something I never forgot: "Most people are too busy earning a living to make any money."

Don't take as long as I did to find out he was right.

I'll prove it to you, if you'll send in the coupon now. I'm not asking you to "believe" me. Just try it. If I'm wrong, all you've lost is a couple of minutes and an 8-cent stamp. But what if I'm right?

BILLY TUTEN, Age 11
He Beats the Grown-ups at Golf

They say Jack Nicklaus is the world's greatest golfer. Who will take his place in years to come?

It might be 11-year-old Billy Tuten of Palatka, Fla. Last fall, Billy won the International Pee Wee Championships at Orlando, Fla. To win, he had to play three rounds, or a total of 54 holes. On the last 18 holes, he shot an 83. That's a lot better than most adults can do!

Billy, who's 5-2 and weighs 105, calls himself a "long hitter off the tee. I can drive the ball about 225 yards. I learn a lot of stuff by watching golf on TV. I'd like to join the pro tour when I grow up."

Billy comes from a golfing family. His two brothers, his sister and his mother all play golf. His father is a golf coach at a college.

Who's the better golfer—Billy or his father? "It's Billy," both sides agree. "I play more and I'm in better practice," says Billy. "I play about 36 holes a day."

TOMMY MIREAULT, Age 9
This Hockey Champ's Been Skating Since Age 3!

In professional hockey, a player considers himself lucky if he scores three goals in a game. That is called a "hat trick." Well, young Tommy Mireault, from Rochester, N.H., celebrated his ninth birthday this year by scoring nine goals in one game! Playing center for the Mites in Rochester, Tommy scored an amazing 53 goals in his first 15 games!

How did he get so good? Well, in the first place, hockey is a very big sport in Tommy's area, and Tommy learned to ice skate when he was just three. He started playing hockey when he was six. "Saturday nights," he says, "I can stay up till ten and watch hockey on TV. My favorite team is the Boston Bruins. My favorite players are Ken Hodge of the Bruins and Brad Park of the New York Rangers. In fact, I wear Brad's number—number 2."

Does Tommy want to be a professional hockey player when he grows up? "Sure," he says. "But you can't be sure. Someday you might work in a grocery store—you can't tell what's going to happen to you."

If you don't smoke, show this ad to someone who does.

There are a lot of people in the world who don't smoke.

But since a lot of people who don't smoke know a lot of people who do, you might tell some of them about Vantage.

You could tell them that if they really enjoy the taste of their present cigarette but are concerned about the 'tar' and nicotine, they should understand that where there is taste there is smoke and where there is smoke there has to be some 'tar' and some nicotine.

You could also tell them that the thing that makes Vantage so special is that its filter is based on an innovative design concept that gives smokers flavor like a full-flavor cigarette without anywhere near the 'tar' or the nicotine.

Then you could let them know that while Vantage isn't the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette they can buy, it is the lowest one they'll really enjoy.

Because when people have to work so hard sucking smoke through a cigarette, they probably won't like it, and won't smoke it.

You could tell them that Vantage draws easy and tastes just fine.

You could tell them all this.

Or you could just show them this ad.

Thanks.

How to Have a Great Garden

(With the Least Amount of Work)

By Louis Sabin

If you're like me, you love your garden rainbowed with flowers and bursting with vegetables, while green things grow indoors all year round. Also, if you're like me, you're lazy. You want it all without having to work at it.

Well, I solved my problem by investing a couple of hours with Warner H. Thurlow, Middlesex County, N.J., agricultural agent.

"A lot of people don't think about how much time they really want to give a garden," Mr. Thurlow began. "Very ambitious at first, they'll roto-till half their backyard and create a monster. My advice is: Don't plant a garden bigger than your wife can weed. Instead, if you plot out a relatively small area, you won't be discouraged by too much to do."

Fruits & Vegetables

Mr. Thurlow strongly recommends growing tomatoes, although he adds, "If the soil is good, just about every vegetable is fine, from corn and green peppers to carrots and onions. And don't overlook asparagus and rhubarb—all you do is plant them and they keep going for 20-25 years."

Gardeners face two basic problems: weeds and insects. You can cut down on weeding by thoroughly mulching with shredded leaves, grass clippings, sawdust, wood chips, ground bark, shavings, or polyurethane. As for insects, healthy plants won't be too troubled by them.

Other outdoor plants that don't require spraying are the berries—strawberries, blueberries, dewberries, currants and gooseberries.

"And don't forget the herbs," Mr. Thurlow says. "They're ideal for lazy gardeners and, being perennials, they keep going. Just plant 'em and use em."

Outdoor Flowers

Nasturtiums, high on Mr. Thurlow's list, are both pretty and serve as distractions for insects that would otherwise head for your vegetable patch. He says, "Most flowers need no attention—simply sow the seeds and let nature do the rest." Just remember that some bloom early, others later in the season.

Flowering shrubs pay big dividends for little effort. Azaleas and rhododendrons, for example, seldom require pruning and aren't insect-prone. In this greatly varied category are the lovely forsythia, lilac, weigela and hydrangea. The only secret is to plant the shrubs that do best in your soil, as some like acid ground, some favor alkaline. Have your soil tested, plant the shrubs that suit it, and watch them bloom.

Indoor Flowers

Indoor plants are the easiest to maintain. "You can bring in outdoor plants, like geraniums or petunias," says Mr. Thurlow, "but you can't be sure what will happen. I don't think it's worth the risk when there are so many others that naturally grow indoors." Aspidistra, for one, can take all kinds of neglect and still live. Give it light and water, and it thrives. Water, light and an occasional addition of fresh soil are also basically all that are needed for other plants such as philodendron, coleus and ivy. Other indoor reliables are ferns—maidenhair, spider, bird's-nest, etc.—which just have to be protected from extreme chilling and too-low humidity. An easy way to grow houseplants is in a terrarium. Take any glass container that lets in light—globes, brandy snifters, fish tanks—and plant in it. Then cover the top with a piece of glass, plastic, or aluminum foil, creating a self-sustaining mini-rain forest. Don't overwater, do give it bright light (but not direct sunlight) and open it to air now and then.

Now you know some of the secrets of no-work gardening. Just one caution: Check with your local plant expert, florist or county agricultural agent for facts about soil, watering, growing conditions and seasons, pest and weed control, etc. Their experience will save you a lot of mental effort and worry, and help you create a truly no-work garden.

Handy List for Lazy Gardeners

Of the many indoor and outdoor plants that are easy to grow, these would head the list of most no-work gardeners in the U.S.:

Vegetables

 carrot radish
 bean

Shrubs

yew Japanese holly juniper hydrangea

Flowers

petunia zinnia
 marigold

Indoor plants

philodendron
 snake plant jade plant fern aspidistra
 Chinese evergreen

BILLY WILLIAMS:

Quiet Genius for the Price of a Bus Ticket

Billy Williams, left fielder for the Chicago Cubs, is the quietest success story in baseball. He led both leagues in hitting last season, was second in runs batted in and third in home runs. Yet Billy doesn't get the huzzahs that go to many players who aren't even in his class. Williams says that when he came into the majors, he was "branded" as having "no color." "When you break in, you're immediately given a classification that sticks with you for years," he explains. "Some guys are branded 'holler guys,' some are branded 'cutups,' and I was branded 'colorless.' I've been told to act more exciting when I play, but that's not my style. I just hit, catch and run the best way I can." In Chicago, Williams' best is known as very good indeed. He was Rookie of the Year when he came up in 1961, and he's been consistently good through the years, while piling up an "Iron Man" record of playing in 1,117 consecutive games. Owner Phil Wrigley recognized Williams' qualities by giving him a $150,000 contract for this year and the "Sporting News" named him Player of the Year. Several major-league scouts were impressed with Billy in high school and he could have secured a sizable bonus by playing one against another. But he was so anxious to break into pro ball he didn't ask for any money. He simply signed with the Cubs' organization for a bus ticket to Ponca City, Ala., one of the Cubs' farm teams. His father, a longshoreman, was given a cigar. —By Barry Abramson

The Doctor Lets You In

If a Bee's Sting Is Your Special Nemesis

Pollinating flowers and making honey are the tasks of bees, wasps and hornets. They have no interest in people—their stingers are designed to fight other insects—but when they feel threatened, they strike back. This usually means death for the bee and a painful small swelling for his victim. But a sensitized person may have an allergic reaction, ranging from hives to swelling of the affected area, shortness of breath, generalized flushing, wheezing, dizziness, profuse sweating, and even shock and death. If, after a bee sting, you develop a rash, or if you get any of the other symptoms listed above, see your doctor at once. More people die from flying-insect stings each year than from snake and spider bites combined. If you know of your allergy, tell your doctor, family and friends. You can also register with the Medic Alert Foundation, Turlock, Calif. 95380. They issue an emblem

The Diet Watch

The Pitfalls Of "Low-Calorie" Foods

Dieters often assume that a "low-calorie" or "imitation" version of a food automatically has far fewer calories than the real thing. But that's an assumption to be wary of. For instance, regular ice cream (about ten percent fat) has 255 calories per cup, and rich ice cream (about 16 percent fat) has 330. How much less is low-calorie ice milk? Hardened ice milk has 200 calories in a cup, and soft-serve ice cream has 265—ten calories more than regular ice cream! Many of us think that yogurt made with skimmed milk has a negligible number of calories compared to regular yogurt. But a cup of whole-milk yogurt is 150 calories, while a cup of yogurt made from partially skimmed milk has 125 calories. Small calorie savings do count, but beware of thinking that you can eat imitation or low-calorie versions of a food with absolute impunity. —By Harriet La Barre

Jobmanship

Want a Job? Why Not Offer a Reward?

The problem all job hunters face is to know where the right employer is. Many of the best jobs are never advertised. Soon after the openings develop, people who know about them tell friends, and the positions are quickly filled. A new way to tune in to this private job grapevine was developed in Southern Illinois. An ad was placed in the local paper, offering a monetary reward to anyone knowing of good jobs in a variety of fields. The reward would be paid only if someone was hired. Information poured in. In only one week, this ad with the reward produced ten times as many good job openings as the same ad without a reward had produced in two weeks. You don't need an agency to place the ad for you. You can do it yourself. Remember, you only have to pay the reward if you are hired.—By S. R. Redford

PATRICIA NEAL: You Wouldn't Believe How People Treat The Handicapped!

"I wish people would be more thoughtful in their reactions toward those who have handicaps. You wouldn't believe some of the things that happened to me," says actress Patricia Neal, who a few years back suffered a series of strokes. "In the village in England where I live, some people actually laughed meanly at me as I was limping along, learning to walk properly again. I think part of the problem is a nervousness about how to respond. My advice is to treat the other person as normally and naturally as possible." Miss Neal has recovered her health, apart from some impaired vision and partial difficulty in using her right arm and leg. She is currently starring in the movie "Baxter." —Interviewed by William Wolf

About the Incompetence Of Some Pedestrians

Like most drivers, you know you must be careful, but you also expect pedestrians to do their part by acting reasonably. Well, don't depend on it. Every experienced driver has had at least one nightmare close call when a pedestrian appeared in the road, seemingly from nowhere. When 180 pedestrian deaths were investigated recently, the result showed that the accidents were often the pedestrian's fault. Three-quarters of the fatally injured were not able to take normal pedestrian care of themselves. They were either under the influence of alcohol, were youngsters under the age of ten, or were people 65 or older with visual or other physical problems. To avoid these accidents, then, it seems that a driver must anticipate the dangerous, the improbable and the unexpected from every pedestrian he sees.—By Shirley Sloan Fader

Are You Tired of Being Tired?

True or False: If you are tired all the time, it may be due to a food allergy. (See number 2)

By John E. Gibson

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. People who work at night don't get as tired as those who work in the daytime.
2. If you are tired all the time, it may be due to a food allergy.
3. You begin to lose your sense of touch when you're tired.
4. Fatigue is caused mostly by one thing: hard work.
5. Many people feel more fatigued when they start the day's work than they do at the end of the day.

ANSWERS

1. False—according to the findings of a research institute's study of day- and night-shift workers who were engaged in the same type of work. Tests showed that workers who performed their duties at night were more fatigued after an eight-hour shift than those who performed similar duties in the daytime. The investigators noted that there were no differences in fatigue levels that could be attributed to variations in work stress.
2. True. Research at the University of California indicates that chronic tiredness and fatigue can be due to a daily diet of some food that the body cannot tolerate. It is noted that while such symptoms "may be due to a variety of other causes, most people are unaware that they may also be caused by food allergy."

3. True. If you're doing anything that requires a delicate sense of touch, you're more likely to botch the job when you're tired. You simply don't feel as good under those conditions. Studies show that "As fatigue grows, touch sensitivity diminishes."

4. False. Investigators at a leading university conducted a psychological study to determine what makes people tired, and why they are tired so much of the time. Findings: "The sensation of fatigue is mostly caused by (a) monotonous activity and tedium, (b) conflict situations (which sap physical and nervous energy), and (c) having to work with or for someone with an unpleasant personality."

5. True. A team of University of Alberta psychologists cite studies showing that "Many people are more tired immediately after beginning work than at any other time. And that tiredness is a transient state more closely tied to attitude than energy expenditure, for many persons."

Johnny Mathis: My Ten Favorite Records

Ella Fitzgerald and Lena Horne are among those singers who influenced Johnny Mathis' own romantic-ballad style, so it's natural that their records appear on his ten-favorites list.

1. Vocalise by Anna Moffo (RCA)
2. Honky Chateau by Elton John (UNI)
3. At the Waldorf by Lena Horne (RCA)
4. Samba de Uma Nota by Joao Gilberto (Capitol)
5. Any album by Leontyne Price
6. Chairmen of the Board (Invictus)
7. Count Basie (MGM)
8. Big Band Bossa Nova by Stan Getz (Verve)
9. The Lamp Is Low by Miles Davis (Blue Note)

It's Barbecue Time Again

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen barbecues a Chuck Roast and serves it with Zesty Kraut Relish. She says: "I'm always looking for new barbecue recipes. In this one, you take ordinary sauerkraut and make a meat marinade from the juice, and a relish from the kraut. Grill the meat to the rare stage, slice it thinly; serve on Italian or rye bread, accompanied by Zesty Kraut Relish."

MARILYN'S MENU

- Vegetable Sticks with Curry Mayonnaise
- Barbecued Chuck Roast
- Zesty Kraut Relish
- Assorted Breads
- Delicious Bean Casserole
- Snackin' Cookies
- Fruit Bowl
- Beer Iced Tea
- Milk

BARBECUED CHUCK ROAST WITH ZESTY KRAUT RELISH

- 2 lbs. sauerkraut, undrained
- ¼ cup vegetable oil
- ¼ cup wine vinegar
- ¼ cup soy sauce
- 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
- ½ cup sliced onion
- 2 cloves garlic, crushed
- 1 teaspoon coarsely ground black pepper
- 1 teaspoon dry mustard
- 5-6 lb. rolled chuck or rump roast
- ¼ cup vinegar
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 1 cup chopped celery
- 1 cup chopped green pepper
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 jar (4 ozs.) pimientos, drained and chopped

1. Prepare marinade: Drain kraut, reserving liquid, set kraut aside.
2. Combine kraut liquid, ½ cup vegetable oil, wine vinegar, soy sauce, Worcestershire, sliced onion, garlic, ground black pepper and mustard in heavy-duty plastic bag.
3. Add chuck roast and turn until coated on all sides. Close bag with twister and set in pan (in case of bag breakage). Refrigerate for 1 or 2 days, turning occasionally.
4. Meanwhile, make Zesty Kraut Relish: Combine drained kraut, vinegar, ¼ cup vegetable oil, sugar, chopped onion, celery, green pepper, salt and pimientos. Toss lightly; cover and refrigerate until ready to serve.

5. Remove meat from marinade and skewer securely on rotisserie spit. Insert meat thermometer parallel to spit and roast meat to desired degree of doneness, following manufacturer's directions for rotisserie. Brush meat occasionally with marinade. (If you do not have a rotisserie, roast meat to desired doneness in a 325° F. oven, allowing 25 minutes per pound.)

6. To serve: Slice meat thinly, serve with Zesty Kraut Relish.

Makes 8-10 servings

What in the World!

SEN. ALAN CRANSTON
Hitler sued him—and won

What U.S. senator was sued by Adolph Hitler in the American courts—and lost the case? Answer: Sen. Alan Cranston of California, who in 1939 was dragged into court in New York for the illegal publication of "Mein Kampf." Here's the story, as Cranston tells it: "As a foreign correspondent in the thirties, I was familiar with 'Mein Kampf' and the impact it was having in Germany. When I got back to New York in '39, I found 'Mein Kampf' was also selling well in the U.S.—with Hitler collecting 40 cents royalty from every book sold. Thumbing through the U.S. version, I discovered that it had been heavily edited. Most of Hitler's most vicious statements about conquering the world had been taken out. Why not, I thought, let the world know the truth? So another New York newsman and I translated the original German version and had it published for ten cents a copy. We sold half a million within ten days." Hitler's agents promptly sued Cranston in the New York courts for violation of copyright and won hands down. "A beautiful example of democracy in action," says Cranston. "After all, I had violated his legal rights."

Teenage drivers: Here are some interesting facts psychologists have found about accident-prone young drivers: (1) They tend to be males. Teenage boys have five times as many accidents as girls. (2) Males aged 18-20 have 50 percent more accidents than males 21-24. (3) Teenagers with lower grades tend to have more accidents. (4) The accident-prone teenager is likely to be the one who acts impulsively, ignores others' feelings and sees himself as being held down. What kind of accidents do these young drivers have? Accidents in which only one car is involved. This car is going straight on a clearly marked road with nothing to obscure the driver's vision. The accident occurs when the car suddenly veers, overturns or collides with a fixed object. Excessive speed, say experts, is usually the reason.

LESLIE UGGAMS
What's in a name?

How'd you like to be named Uggams? Says singer Leslie Uggams, who was anything but happy about her name as a youngster: "I am part Indian, and Uggams is an Indian name meaning 'sweet one.' I used to hate it when I was little because I was always teased. The other kids would call me all sorts of funny names, mostly Uggam-Buggam. I suppose I could have changed it or taken a nickname, but after a while I became defiant, and now I'm glad I kept it."

Quips & Quotes

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY By Richard Armour

STEP RIGHT IN

We have a step that guests don't see,
Arriving in our yard.
They often trip, they sometimes fall,
They've come down pretty hard.

That step has caused some bruises, cuts,
And rather nasty sprains.
Some guests who didn't see that step
Are walking, now, with canes.

But, after years, it's being fixed,
That tricky little shelf.
What made me have it done at last?
Today I fell myself.

THROUGH A CHILD'S EYES

Kids see life differently. Send original contributions to "Child," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10022. $10 if used—none returned.

As my three-year-old son and I were frolicking on the floor one day, I playfully tossed him a question that by now had become standard. "How much do you love me?" I asked. "I love you that much," he replied, extending his little arms as far above his head as they would reach. "Is that all?" I mock-dejectedly inquired. Although momentarily chagrined, he thought a second and smilingly responded: "That's all the much I have!"

JULIET LOWELL'S CELEBRITY LETTERS

Juliet Lowell, author of the all-time best-seller "Dear Sir," collects unintentionally humorous letters to and from people in all walks of life.

To Joe Namath

Dear Joe:

I'm going to have a baby in about 6 months and if it isn't a girl, I want to name it JOE after YOU.

I have an Uncle and a cousin and they're both called Joe. But I wouldn't be naming the Baby after them—I want that clearly understood, but after YOU, if you don't object.

With high esteem,
Julia C.

P.S. I know how dreadfully busy you are so don't bother to write me. If I don't hear from you, I shall assume that you are satisfied to have my Baby named JOE.

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

By HAL FOSTER

Our Story: PRINCE ARN WAITS THE RETURN OF LYDIA..... WAITS WHILE THE SUN GOES DOWN AND THE TWILIGHT COMES. HE HAS NEVER GIVEN MUCH THOUGHT TO GIRLS UNTIL NOW. HE IS VAGUELY BUT PLEASANTLY DISTURBED.

HE GOES IN SEARCH OF HER. THE MIDSUMMER FESTIVAL CONTINUES AROUND A BONFIRE, BUT SHE IS NOT AMONG THE MERRYMAKERS.

DARK EYES, DARK HAIR AND THE NAME LYDIA ARE NOT OF NORTHERN ORIGIN. THEN HE RECALLS HER ONE ORNAMENT, A SCARAB ON A GOLDEN CHAIN.

AT DAWN ARN WANDERS DOWN TO THE SHORE. THE FJORD IS DOTTED WITH BOATS RETURNING HOMEWARD AFTER THE FESTIVAL. HE FINDS MANY WHO HAVE SEEN HER BUT NONE KNEW HER, FOR SHE HAD DANCED ONLY WITH HIM.

HAAKON, THE SEA-ROVER, WONDERS WHY HIS LITTLE DAUGHTER IS SO PENSIVE. CAN SHE HAVE FALLEN IN LOVE? HE SHRUGS, FOR THAT IS WHAT MIDSUMMER DAY IS ALL ABOUT.

SHE HAD RUN AWAY AND COAXED HER FATHER TO LEAVE BEFORE DAWN TO SAVE HERSELF FROM HEARTBREAK, FOR SHE KNEW FROM HIS BEARING, HIS COURTLY MANNERS, THAT HE COULD BE NOTHING LESS THAN A PRINCE. AND PRINCES ONLY MARRY ROYALTY.

BUT ARN HAS BEGUN A SEARCH AND HE IS NOT THE KIND WHO GIVES UP EASILY. HE SEEKS OUT GUNDAR HARL, THE SHIP BUILDER, AND GEOFFREY, THE KING'S HISTORIAN. BOTH MEN, CRIPPLED AND DENIED A WARRIOR'S LIFE, HAVE DEVELOPED THEIR INTELLECTS INSTEAD OF MUSCLES.
