

$157,884 Is Ruled 'Fair Price' For New School Site

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
Commissioners in the court case for condemnation proceedings of the school site off Hooker Road have ruled that $157,884 is a fair price for the 30 acre site.

Greenville City School Board member Lester (Les) Turnage revealed this information at the May meeting of the board on Monday night.

"This is $7,884 more than the $150,000 original asking price for the land," Turnage said. County commissioners last autumn ruled the price excessive. Since then the site was the subject of negotiations, terminating in a decision to initiate condemnation proceedings. To this increased amount must also be added legal fees and court costs involved in the proceedings.

Turnage said that Dr. Badger Clark, chairman of the school board, would get together with County Commissioners on the matter at an early date. Clark is currently out of town.

The consensus of the school board is that they feel the county commissioners should accept the recommended $157,884 purchase price. The recommendation by the commissioners has been filed in the office of the Clerk of the Superior Court where it must rest for ten days. At the end of ten days, the clerk, H. L. Lewis, will make a ruling. Following the clerk's ruling, the land owners and the city school board have a ten day period in which they can file an appeal to a higher court or accept the clerk's ruling.

In the absence of a retained attorney for the school board, attorney Louis Gaylord, Jr. handled the case for the city schools. Mrs. Lucille Gorham voiced an opinion that the city board should not delay further in selecting an attorney for the Greenville City Schools.

Relative to the sale of the Rose High Live Project house on May 31, Superintendent Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood informed that in setting the minimum bid at $14,000, it was hoped the purchase price would be considerably more than the minimum amount. "The actual material used in construction amounted to almost $14,000," Dr. Cleetwood said, "and does not take into account any labor involved."

Students of various branches of the vocational education program at Rose have spent two years on the project, working through site selection, approving house plans and construction.

Auction will take place at 11:00 a.m. at the site, Arlington Drive just off Hooker Road. It will be sold on the basis of holding the bid for a ten day period to accept an upset bid.

Pro-rata sharing of ESEA Title I funds allocated to Pitt County is the subject of an attempt to reach an agreement for sharing between the county and city school boards.

In the past, based on the 1960 census, Greenville City Schools received 15.7 per cent of ESEA Title I funds, with county schools receiving 84.3 per cent.

This percentage was based on 1960 figures showing 9,993

Pitt County families with an income of under $2,000, of which 1,572 of the families were in Greenville.

Based on 1970 figures, there are now 2,668 families in Pitt County with an income of less than $2,000, with 795 of these families in Greenville.

Using the same percentage formula, this would now give Greenville 29.8 per cent share of the ESEA Title I funds, and the county 70.2 per cent.

Charles Dickens, Greenville director of ESEA Title I funds, reported that county school board members had expressed unhappiness about the change in Greenville's increased share from the former 15.7 per cent to the proposed 29.8 per cent share.

Greenville school board members unanimously agreed that the pro rata formula used for the past eight years based on actual statistics is the only rational way to reach a percentage figure and that they can see no argument against keeping the same formula.

Dr. James Bearden's motion on the matter was "to follow the recommendation of the State Department of Public Instruction, to reassess using the same formula."

In other actions, the school board:

—Tabled for additional information a proposal by Rose High SGA to have an open lunch program for seniors for the 73-74 school year;

—Accepted the resignation at the end of the school year of five teachers; approved changing the status of six teachers from interim to contract basis; approved the resignation of one teacher due to illness; and approved the election of nine teachers for the coming school year. The latter is only a part of the total elections for the coming school year.

—Reported no change in status in seeking a new superintendent; Under a new state law, the school board will have to write a contract with a new superintendent and file it in the office of the State Department of Public Instruction.

—Heard reports on the status of the athletic field at Aycock Junior High, which has to be altered to correct an error in the track specifications; and on removal of houses from property acquired adjacent to Sadie Sauter. There are only four days left for the successful salvage bidder to remove the houses.

—Studied two major reports—the educational specifications for the proposed new middle-junior high school. The $300 million dollar school bond to be placed on the November referendum, if approved by voters, will result in $1,500,000 in school construction funds for Greenville. This approval would leave approximately $1,000,000 to be raised through other means for estimated construction costs of the proposed new school. The second major report is a comprehensive educational plan for Greenville City Schools, which will be studied by board members for later consideration.

Ethics Action Is Postponed By Committee

RALEIGH (AP) — The House Rules Committee voted today to defer legislative ethics legislation until 1974.

The committee agreed to recommend to the House that bills dealing with the issue, including one that has passed the Senate, be referred to the House State Government Committee for study during the interim before the General Assembly reconvenes next January.

As the committee prepared to vote, Rep. Robert Jones, D-Rutherford, the chairman, said he wanted "a positive step" toward enactment of a legislative ethics measure.

Members of the committee expressed the hope that the State government committee, would have recommendations on the subject when the General Assembly reconvenes.

The Senate-passed bill would set up an eight-member ethics committee which would be empowered to investigate violations. It could report its findings to the attorney general for possible prosecution or to the Senate and House which could censure, suspend or expel a member.

Farmville Marks Up Its Best Blood Donor Day

Farmville had possibly its best day ever Monday in blood collections as citizens there donated 146 units to the Bloodmobile, according to Pitt blood chairman Billy Ross.

Ross, in commending Farmville industry as well as the various city organizations and individual citizens for the success of the blood drive, said that in addition to the 146 pints collected there were 43 persons rejected.

The chairman pointed out that "we were back in our records four or five years and this is the best turnout that Farmville has had."

McCord 'Convinced' Of Strategy To Blame CIA

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Watergate conspirator James W. McCord Jr. today denied to Senate investigators that he had tried to persuade the White House to keep him out of jail.

He admitted sending an unsigned letter last December to former White House aide John J. Caulfield threatening that "every tree in the forest will fall, there will be a scorched desert ..."

But he said the threat was meant to apply only if the Central Intelligence Agency were falsely blamed for the Watergate wiretapping.

"The letter ... did not contain any message requesting any contact with Caulfield, nor any request for the White House to get me out of the case, or off the case. I in fact sought no such contact at any time," McCord testified.

McCord also conceded that he had deliberately made two telephone calls to foreign embassies in Washington in an attempt to be overheard on government wiretaps. But he denied that this was a ploy to undermine the government's case against him.

McCord said he made the calls to test the government's honesty. He was convinced his own telephone had been illegally wiretapped, he said, but believed the government would probably deny it if asked about it in court.

He said he tried to be overheard on other taps on embassy telephones to see if the government would admit overhearing him there. He said it didn't. News reports today identified the embassies as those of Israel and Chile.

McCord's credibility as a witness has been under discussion since last Friday, when he told the Senate Watergate investigating committee that Caulfield had pressured him with offers of executive clemency.

Caulfield was listed to follow McCord as a witness at today's televised hearings. He has admitted transmitting offers of executive clemency to McCord, but denied that he invoked President Nixon's name in doing it.

McCord said Caulfield told him the President was aware of the clemency offers and would be informed of McCord's reaction. The White House has repeatedly denied that the President authorized clemency offers to anyone in the Watergate case, or that he was aware of any attempt to cover up the scandal.

McCord today repeated his previously publicized account of how he came to believe that the White House was ruthlessly attempting to blame the CIA for the Watergate breakin, for which McCord and others were convicted of burglary, wiretapping and conspiracy.

He said he had been told through his lawyer, Gerald Alch, that others wanted him to contend at his trial that the CIA was behind the wiretapping and burglary.

McCord, who retired from the CIA after 19 years of service, refused to go along, he said. He said Alch indicated that the CIA's personnel records could be altered to make it appear that McCord had been recalled to service for the Watergate operation.

McCord said Alch persisted in efforts to blame the CIA. "By now, I was completely convinced that the White House was behind the idea...and that the White House was turning ruthless, and would do whatever was politically expedient," McCord said.

It was only then, he said, that he sent his letter to Caulfield. "The letter read in substance as follows, to the best of my memory," he said. "Dear Jack, I am sorry to have to write you this letter. If (CIA Director Richard) Helms goes, and the Watergate operation is laid at CIA's feet where it does not belong, every tree in the forest will fall, there will be a scorched desert. The whole matter is at the precipice right now. Pass the message that if they want it to blow, they're on exactly the right course. I'm sorry that you'll get hurt in the fallout."

On another matter McCord said he was told a plane owned by the mysterious billionaire Howard Hughes had been arranged for use in a plan, never carried out, to burglarize the safe of a Las Vegas newspaper publisher. The plane allegedly was to fly the burglars to a Latin American hideout after the breakin.

McCord said fellow conspirator G. Gordon Liddy had told him that then-Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell told him that "blackmail" information on a Democratic candidate was in the safe of Hank Greenspun, publisher of the Las Vegas Sun. McCord has previously identified the candidate as Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine.

Living Costs Up Again For April

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Cost of Living jumped sharply again in April with big increases in the cost of food, clothing, used cars and gasoline, the government reported today.

The jump in over-all consumer prices pushed the government's retail price index up at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 9.2 per cent over the past three months. The administration has set a goal of reducing inflation to 2.5 per cent by the end of the year.

The April consumer price index for all items showed a climb of 0.9 index points from March, up from 129.8 to 130.7.

In a separate report the bureau said average weekly wages in April rose four-tenths of a per cent, to $141.72. The rise resulted from increases of 0.5 per cent each in the average work week and in average hourly earnings which were partially offset by a seasonally adjusted 6-10ths of a per cent increase in consumer prices.

The administration has said it expects food prices to begin tapering off later this year and has resisted any further controls. April's figures, however, were gathered before the administration's ceiling on meat prices was put into effect and thus did not reflect its effects, the government said.

Tight Schedule For Astronauts

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — With temperatures both hot and cold causing concern, preparations for the Skylab salvage mission centered on Cape Kennedy today as the three astronauts fly here and the countdown begins for a hoped-for launch on Friday.

Before traveling here, the astronauts were to practice repair jobs in a huge Alabama water tank. Flight controllers, meanwhile, are walking what one called "a thermal tight-rope" in efforts to keep temperatures within reasonable limits.

There was fear that food and film might spoil in one end of the orbiting station where there are readings near 130 degrees, and that water might freeze and burst pipes at the other end where recordings plummeted to 34 degrees.

Officials hoped to bring temperatures today to develop temperatures into better balance and hold them steady until the astronauts can rocket up to the orbiting laboratory on man's first space salvage mission.

If the astronauts are unable to deploy a solar shield similar to one ripped from the craft during launching, they will have to abandon the $294 million station in space.

The timetable remained tight for a planned launching of astronauts Charles Conrad Jr., Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz at 9 a.m. EDT Friday. A decision on whether to proceed is expected Thursday from Skylab program director William C. Schneider.

Salvage preparations, which have been scattered at space centers and aerospace plants since the Skylab was launched eight days ago, now are converging here.

Awning-like sun shades designed to cool down the overheated lab and tools for releasing at least one jammed solar panel are to arrive here Wednesday for stowage aboard the astronauts' Apollo ferry ship.

Launch crews plan to start the countdown on the Saturn 1B rocket at 10:30 p.m. tonight, a few hours after Conrad, Kerwin, and Weitz fly here from NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center at Huntsville, Ala.

Rabbi Is Named Marine Chaplain

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Navy Capt. Samuel Sobel, 5th Naval District chaplain, received orders Monday to become chaplain of the Marine Corps, Marine officials said.

He will be the first rabbi to serve in that post. Sobel also is believed to be the first rabbi commissioned as a regular Navy chaplain.

While stationed here, he was instrumental in having the Norfolk Naval Station's Jewish chapel rebuilt.

Sobel earned a Purple Heart and Bronze Star in Korea.

'Progress' In Long Parleys Over Vietnam

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho met for the fifth time today after Kissinger reported "some progress" in their earlier talks to revitalize the Vietnam cease-fire agreement.

President Nixon's national security adviser and the North Vietnamese Politburo member conferred for a total of 18 hours in their first four meetings that began last Thursday. Their deputies held a marathon 12-hour meeting Sunday and conferred again Monday until nearly midnight.

There were no indications whether the two sides were preparing an interpretive annex to the January cease-fire agreement. But the atmosphere surrounding the talks seemed friendly.

Tho has not made public mention in recent days of the Viet Cong's allegations that U.S. warplanes are bombing in South Vietnam. Last week he threatened to walk out of the talks should any more such bombings occur. The United States has denied the charges.

The North Vietnamese also removed a plaque offensive to the Americans from their villa at Gif sur Yvette, where the talks are held on alternate days. The plaque described the cease-fire agreement as a "victory for the Vietnamese people over imperialism."

New N.C. Commissioner Of Revenue Is Selected

RALEIGH (AP)—J. Howard Coble of Greensboro was appointed Monday as North Carolina Commissioner of Revenue.

Gov. Jim Holshouser said Coble, 42, now assistant U.S. attorney for the Middle District of North Carolina, would assume his new duties June 4.

In announcing the appointment, Holshouser praised outgoing revenue commissioner G. Andrew Jones Jr., a former Gov. Bob Scott appointee.

"I want to express my deepest appreciation to Andy Jones, for whom I have the greatest respect. His service during the transition and through the early months of my administration have been of great assistance," Holshouser said. The governor said Coble would bring to the post an understanding of the state's fiscal structure learned in part from serving on the House Appropriations Committee during the 1969 General Assembly.

Coble resigned his House seat in August 1969 to accept the appointment as assistant U.S. attorney.

A native of Greensboro, Coble graduated from Guilford College in 1958 and earned his law degree from the University of North Carolina in 1962.

Coble's appointment completes the organization of Holshouser's new executive cabinet.

Identify Goals For Commission

The Governor's Advocacy Commission on Children and Youth spent a weekend planning conference identifying their goals for children and planning specific activities to attain those goals.

Established by the 1971 General Assembly, the 20-member Child Advocacy Commission's function is to coordinate children's services, eliminate waste and duplication, and aid agencies in providing for children's unmet needs. The Commission has already issued two reports on children's services to the Governor and General Assembly and is now finishing its third.

At the conference's conclusion, the Commission had listed 23 priorities which will be the major work of the Commission in the future.

The Commission listed the

Doctors Told About Drugs

PINEHURST, N. C. (AP) — North Carolina doctors today heard about the problems of marijuana, heroin and other drugs in the state.

The chief medical examiner, Dr. R. Page Hudson of Chapel Hill, moderated a panel on drug problems at the 119th annual convention of the North Carolina Medical Association. Panelists were the associate medical examiner, Dr. John T. Daly, and the chief toxicologist, Arthur John McBay, both also from Chapel Hill, and Charles J. Dunn of Raleigh, director of the State Bureau of Investigation.

Dunn also spoke on drug traffic in the state. McBay discussed marijuana and health, and Daly talked on heroin deaths in the state.

Dr. George G. Gilbert will be installed as president at a banquet tonight. He will give the presidential address at the concluding session Wednesday.

At the opening general session Monday, the society was told that 1973 could be a very bad year for U. S. medical schools. That's when an act which allocates federal money for the education of medical and allied health students is up for review and renewal. It is the 1971 Health Manpower Act. Dr. Christopher C. Fordham III, dean of the University of North Carolina Medical School, said the government was "vacillating" on fundings medical education while pressuring medical schools to increase enrollments.

The Greenville Jaycees received 12 awards, two of them citing individual achievements, during the recent State Jaycee Convention in Charlotte.

Bill Dansey received the prized Freedom Guard Award, one of only three presented in the state organization, for outstanding achievements in the areas of community, religious and governmental activities.

Dansey, a member of the Greenville City Council, is the first local Jaycee to receive the Freedom Guard honor.

An Outstanding Local President Award, one of ten awarded throughout the state

Jaycees, was presented to Don Brady, immediate past president of the local chapter. Brady is the first Greenville Jaycee to win the president's citation.

The local chapter also received a Sweepstakes Award for membership retention during the convention as well as nine certificates recognizing chapter performance.

Out of 17 project activity areas, the chapter received five first place certificates and four second place citations. First place awards were received for the chapter's work in the campaign against drug abuse, efforts involving membership retention and activation, publications, public relations, and inter-city activities (Fourth of July Celebration).

Second place certificates went to the club for outstanding performances in ways and means activities, youth assistance (Boys Club), governmental involvement, and chapter activities.

Project activity awards were based on city population guidelines while the individual honors were judged on chapter size. Greenville competed in division five in chapter competition with Greensboro, Raleigh, Hickory, Asheville, Winston-Salem and Charlotte, among other large cities of the state.

All of the awards were sponsored by the Carthage Jaycees.

Some 25 Jaycees attended from Greenville and were among 2,200 from all over the state. Local persons attending were Don Brady, Mr. and Mrs.

Bruce Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Reese, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Collins, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Peters, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Landon, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Creech, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Turner, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Hoot, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cox.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Gordon, Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Anthony, Mr. and Mrs. Don Fidler, Stan Morgan, Mark Meltzer, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Fisher, Mr. and Mrs.

Charles Hargett, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Wes Measamer, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Turcott, Mr. and Mrs. Joe DeLoach, Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Worthington, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Little, and Charles Smith.

Jim Hastings from Boone was elected state president for the coming year, succeeding Fred Morrison.

New Consumers Power Group Testing Legality

LINCOLNTON, N.C. (AP)—An association of municipalities and electric cooperatives which proposes to build a $3 billion system to compete with Duke Power Company in North Carolina is testing its legality.

It is North Carolina Consumers Power Inc. It plans to build, own and operate power plants that that would sell electricity to 45 municipalities and 28 cooperatives in the early 1980.

Consumers Power and the city of Shelby entered into a contract. Then they brought a class action suit against Duke Power and parties representing various classes of electric consumers that could be affected by development of the competing utility. These other parties include cities and industries.

Duke Power contended at a hearing Monday that the case should be dismissed because the Shelby contract hinges on similar contracts, not yet obtained, with the other municipalities and co-ops.

Robert C. Howison, a lawyer from Raleigh who represented Duke, said each participant in Consumers Power would be allocated a percentage of the financial responsibility. He said Consumers Power must have contracts with all participants before any single contract is meaningful.

J.O. Tally Jr. of Fayetteville, an attorney representing Consumers Power, said the legality of the Shelby contract had to be established to provide his client with the security that its development was legal and financially feasible.

Superior Court Judge John R. Friday said he would issue a decision within 30 days.

Phnom Penh Supply Route Reported Cut

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Antigovernment troops have cut an eight-mile stretch of Highway 4, Phnom Penh's supply route from the coast, the military command said today.

A battle on the road to Cambodia's only deep-water port, Kompong Som, forced cancellation of a large convoy of trucks that was to have left Phnom Penh before dawn to load up in Kompong Som for a return trip to Phnom Penh this weekend.

Cambodia's ailing president, Lon Nol, flew to Kompong Som

Sunday for a 10-day rest. But the insurgents cut the road 15 miles north of the port, and there was no danger to the town or the president.

Since late 1970, truck convoys traveling the 147-mile stretch from Kompong Som to Phnom Penh have kept the Cambodian capital supplied with food, ammunition, cement and other vital items.

Highway 4 has been the only one of five major roads leading to Phnom Penh open to commercial traffic since the insurgents launched an offensive in early April. It, too, was closed briefly on April 5 when antigovernment forces attacked Stung Chay, 95 miles southwest of the capital.

Helms Award Goes To New Bern ECU Senior

AWARD WINNER — Claude LeB. Hughes, outstanding senior in the ECU Dept. of Biology, receives the Helms award from R. M. Helms, professor emeritus in physics.

Claude LeBernian Hughes Jr., a senior student in the East Carolina University Department of Biology, is the winner of the 1973 Mary C. Helms Award, given annually to an outstanding graduating senior in biology at ECU.

Hughes, the son of Claude L. Hughes of Route 4, New Bern, formally received the award from Dr. Helms' husband, Professor R. M. Helms.

The winner of three undergraduate scholarships and awards, Hughes has twice presented reports of his research to the Association of Southeastern Biologists and published an article in the Journal of Chemical Education.

He has been a member of several campus organizations and honor societies and was elected to Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities.

He plans to enter the Duke University Medical School this fall as a candidate for the MD degree.

Collective Study Evolves Into Health Guide

By EVE SHARBUTT
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — It began as a course of study for women, telling about their bodies, their minds.

It evolved into a publication by the Boston Women's Health Book Collective, printed at the same time in hard and soft cover and available at a discount to health counseling services, provided they pass copies along for free.

Wilma Diskin and Ruth Bell, members of the Boston collective responsible for "Our Bodies, Ourselves," say the best thing about the book is the response they're getting from other women across the nation.

"They can read our book," Wilma said in an interview here, "and they say, 'Ah ha! That happened to me.' We're not celebrities. We're just people who learned a lot of new things and wanted to share them."

For 12 women to sit down and discuss health care and their own doctors and the shortcomings of available treatment is perhaps not unusual. But those 12 women did research as well as discussing problems and presenting papers. And all of them are responsible for the book, end product of three years of work and study.

The collective, according to two visiting authors, harbors no full-time writers, no nurses or doctors. It has historians, anthropologists, art historians and housewives.

"We are all fairly well educated and middle class," Ruth Bell added. "Writing wasn't all that foreign to us."

The book was first published as a pamphlet, available only upon request. It sold 250,000 copies without any advertising. That's when the collective began thinking of a wider audience for its studies of nutrition, exercise, venereal disease, birth control, childbearing and sexuality.

"We did everything ourselves," Wilma said. "We chose the cover, chose the photographs, did the sketches, even wrote the contract with the publisher. It took forever, but it was such a good experience. We worked in committee, so it took longer. But when we were finished, it was such a sense of accomplishment."

"Men say to us, 'Why don't you write another book about men?' but the answer is that they have to do it themselves," Wilma added. "We don't live in their bodies just as men don't live in women's bodies. That's why medical men have developed such stereotypes about women in their writing."

"And remember that young interns aren't trained in psychology. They're taught to believe misinformation about women."

Ruth added, "The most important thing in the book is preventive medicine. We think if you know more about yourself, you'll feel better. You'll take better care of your body with important things like breast examinations and Pap smears."

"We found that those things can be scary to a woman alone but when she knows other women worry about health problems, too, she isn't isolated."

The aim of the collective authors is to provide a reference book for all women at all times.

"It's to share with friends, to use as a resource and guide for whatever you need support in," Wilma added. "You don't have to read it cover to cover."

Women of the health book collective emphasize that they are not leaders.

"We didn't cover everything," Wilma added. "But other women can form their own study groups, and go on from there."

Spices Speak Softly With Proper Use

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — A little pinch of that and a dash of that can add a "something special" flavor to the most everyday type of meal.

But the real key, according to Ethel Diedrichsen, foods specialist at the University of Nebraska, is knowing how to use spices and herbs. And the main rule is to use them sparingly.

One rule of thumb is to add one-fourth teaspoon herbs or spice to four servings of food or to two cups of sauce or to one pound of meat. About one-fourth teaspoon dried herbs is equivalent to one tablespoon fresh herbs.

Miss Diedrichsen said whole spices are best in slow-cooking dishes like stew. She said they should be added at the beginning so the long simmering can extract their full flavor and aroma. The flavor of seeds like poppy and sesame is enhanced by toasting before being used.

A few special care rules should be followed to get the best flavor and aroma from spices.

First of all, she suggested keeping spices in a cool, clean dry place to prevent evaporation of oils and flavor. Another suggestion: Keep spice containers tightly closed after every use.

She said herbs tend to lose flavor a little faster than spices. Ground spices should be used up and replenished within a year's time for maximum flavor, she said, but whole spices keep their flavor almost indefinitely and may be purchased in larger amounts.

The one key point to remember, Miss Diedrichsen said, is that spices should speak softly, complementing rather than dominating a certain food dish.

Are Girl Friend's Messages Part Of Job?

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: If you feel that a private secretary should not sit in judgment of her boss' private affairs, then she should not be imposed upon to take insignificant, petty messages from his girl friend. After all, a secretary is employed to support the welfare of the business her boss represents.

No one should be asked to lie, and a secretary should feel remorse when she has to tell lies for her boss.

Your second offense was to inform that secretary that this is one of her secretarial duties. It is NOT!

OUT OF THE MIDDLE

DEAR OUT: And what if the boss owns his own business? A secretary is paid to convey messages to and from her boss, whatever they may be, and whether the message is from a business associate, his wife, or girl friend is none of her business. If she feels "remorse" when she tells a caller that her boss is "tied up" when he is not—or that he is "out" when he is busy, she has the privilege of finding a job that's more to her liking.

DEAR ABBY: I am having a fight with my girl friend. We wanted to go dutch treat to a drive-in movie and I was a little low on money, so I suggested that she drive my car and I would ride in the trunk of the car.

She agreed, took the wheel, and drove to the drive-in. When we got there she refused to let me out. I pounded and pounded but she wouldn't let me out. I finally gave up and had to stay cramped up in the trunk while she watched the movie. After the movie, she drove herself home and then she let me out.

She said she wanted to teach me a lesson because what I wanted to do was not only dishonest it was stingy, too. I say the theaters charge all they can get, which is way too much, and anybody who can get in for free deserves to.

Was she right, or was I?

CRAMPED

DEAR CRAMPED: She was. Your chintzy stunt backfired. But watch that girl friend. She's a tough teacher!

DEAR ABBY: I am 12 years old. My parents are considered nice people. My father makes a good living and Mom has never had to work. She has lots of friends and is always doing something for the church.

Now for my problem: My Mom shoplifts. I've known it for several months but she doesn't know that I know. I've seen her take stuff like cans of sardines, dress patterns, cosmetics—anything she can slip into her purse. We're not poor, Abby. Mom can buy just about anything she wants. What gets me is she is always lecturing me on the importance of being honest and truthful.

What should I do? I keep thinking I should tell my father, but I just hate to. I'm so afraid Mom will get caught and sent to jail and the reputation of our whole family will be ruined. I'm the oldest. I can't take a chance on getting a letter from you at home so please put your answer in the paper but leave out my city. Thank You.

WORRIED FOR MOM

DEAR WORRIED: First, tell your Mom what you've told me. [She could be suffering from "kleptomania"—an uncontrollable compulsion to steal.] With treatment, kleptomaniacs can be cured; if she doesn't stop shoplifting after that, tell your father.

'Fade Away' Your Gray

Time-lapse photographs show how gradual action of Grecian Formula 16 lets him control just how much gray he slowly gets rid of—some of it or all of it.

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y.—Thousands of men all over the country are discovering they don't have to dye their hair a solid dark color to look years younger. Grecian Formula 16 is not a dark messy dye. It is a colorless liquid as easy to use as hair tonic. Used every day, the gray slowly "fades away" and is replaced by natural-looking color. The change occurs so slowly over a period of time even closest associates don't notice it happening. The user has complete control of just how much gray he slowly gets rid of—some of it or all of it. Once the desired results are obtained weekly use thereafter is all that's necessary. The hair definitely does not have a dyed look. Grecian Formula 16 is available at all drug counters.

Combined But Not Blended

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH—America is a land of multiple cultures and traditions, combined but not blended into a common heritage.

"Our society can flourish as a collection of cultures. There should be no conflict. All can live and work together, if we always remember we are Americans first," said Henry Ward Oxendine.

His people were the first Americans, before the land was America.

The irony, he said, is that in the United States where citizens claim with pride their ancestry from other countries, Indians have been without a sense of cultural identity.

To restore a positive self-image and an awareness of Indian values, he added, is one of the goals for the current thrust towards full participation in political and economic life.

At least a footnote in North Carolina history books is reserved for Oxendine, a Robeson County Representative, as the first Indian to serve in the state's legislature.

What that means personally is less important to the young law student turned legislator that what it symbolizes for his people.

Doors For Others

"I am honored, not that much to be first, but to have the chance to do something about conditions for all Indians," Oxendine explained. "I am concerned with trying to open doors that others can pass through."

Oxendine, a Democrat, came to the General Assembly by appointment when death vacated one of Robeson's three House seats.

It plunged him, midway the session, into a crash course in the legislative process. At the same time, he was completing law school at North Carolina Central University in Durham.

Graduation and recess of the legislation came only a few days apart.

"It's been the most educational eight weeks of my life," he said. "Basically, in the legislature, I am trying to learn as much as possible so that next January I will be ready to jump in and go."

Oxendine grew up on the family farm in the Robeson community centered around Union Chapel Methodist Church, where his parents were lifetime members.

A Turning Point

He joined the Air Force after high school, a country boy in search of glamor. The dazzle quickly dimmed in the depersonalized military life. That marked a turning point for him, Oxendine said.

"I told myself there had to be something better than that," he said. "When I got out, I went to Pembroke State University and then taught school for six years."

Frustration in politics late in the 60's helped turn his thoughts to law. A criticism used against Indian candidates, he said, was that they were not qualified. A law degree, he figured, would center that contention.

"Law also will give me more independence than I felt I would have as a school teacher," he added.

For many years, Indians saw something was wrong with their situation in schools and job opportunities but they did not see what could be done about it, Oxendine observed. The civil rights movements by blacks in recent years helped awaken all minorities to the potential in political action he noted.

Change In The System

"I believe in bringing about change within the system," he said. "From where I sit, I can see definite improvement although it may not be as clear to others. And that doesn't mean things are so well now, but that they were so much worse in the past."

What a person thinks about himself has a lot to do with what he thinks he can become, Oxendine said. Not many years ago, he continued, young Indians accepted the stereotypes they saw on TV cowboy shows.

"A negative self-image can be a serious handicap, especially for young people," he said.

The rise of Indian aspirations across the country has brought an awareness of the worth of their past which gives them determination for a share in the future, he said.

"The biggest mistake that could be made would be to underestimate the determination of the Indian people to achieve equality," Rep. Oxendine declared.

"Personally, I am prepared to pay whatever the price is, if it takes every penny, all my time, and work to the limit of my ability. And there are many, many more who feel the same."

As a history major in college, Oxendine read about struggles for freedom. "Sometimes we say, 'I wish I could have been living then.' For Indians in 1973, I say our strength is as great as any movement in the history of man, trying to accomplish the same thing," he asserted.

program and Treatment of alcoholics.

It should be worthwhile to citizens of our area to visit and see the work being done at this unique facility. The ARC is one of three such centers in the state and it became a reality when Congressman Jones, then a member of the State Senate, guided through a bill to increase the price of liquor enough to provide funds for rehabilitation centers. Greenville was later chosen as the site for the eastern facility.

The Walter B. Jones Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center is now a reality and it is furnishing a major service to the people of North Carolina.

Carteret Medical Soc. Offers Good Support

The Carteret County Medical Society voted by an overwhelming majority last week to support a four year medical school at ECU.

The physicians suggested in their resolution that the facility be oriented toward family practice.

This represents excellent support for the ECU medical school and it is most pleasing that the Carteret Medical Society took this action.

Pressure For Stern Controls

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A scathing indictment of President Nixon's disastrous Phase III anti-inflation program, his economic advisers and his detachment from his own economic programs has been lying inside the President's Oval Office like a ticking time bomb for five weeks, bearing the signature of Mr. Nixon's chief economic spokesman during last year's presidential campaign.

The author is Canadian-born Dr. Pierre Rinfret, the noted New York-based private consulting economist who has intimate ties to both Mr. Nixon and his newest White House aide, John B. Connally. The April 12 attack on the "currently disastrous rate of inflation" was the result of a specific request from one-time chief domestic presidential aide John Ehrlichman.

In making the request, Ehrlichman spoke for Mr. Nixon himself. In answering it, Rinfret proposes a return to mandatory controls, sharp limits on profits and a temporary 15 per cent income tax boost for both corporations and individuals.

Rinfret, regarded by some establishment economists as an irrepressible Peck's bad boy of the occult art, was a key author of the highly praised Phase II, which Shultz abruptly terminated last January. Rinfret refused to discuss his secret report with us beyond admitting his advice had been requested. His proposals, summing up in pungent language what many other economists are now starting to say, were made available to us by sources close to the White House.

By coincidence, the disclosure of Rinfret's tough new anti-inflation proposals—essential, he said, to avoid other dollar crises, a probable recession and a loss of so much "credibility" that the economy could become "almost unmanageable"—parallels the reemergence of Connally as a temporary White House aide in the Watergate disaster.

One of Mr. Nixon's first assignments for Connally (who spent Tuesday afternoon with the President) was to stop the current 10 per cent inflation rate on an annual, compounded basis. Connally's own proposals, building on his glittering success as author of the August 1971 wage-price freeze, are also expected to clash head-on with Secretary of the Treasury George Shultz's free-market bias against tough inflation controls.

Thus, Rinfret's appeal for an immediate return to what he calls the "mandatory program" of Phase II is one more heady signal that the White House may be ready to dump Shultz's largely voluntary program.

The heart of Rinfret's plan is his novel 15 percent income tax scheme. Dubbed an "anti-inflation tax," it would be collected and immediately sequestered—not to be spent until inflation ended. Receipts from his tax would funnel into a special "escrow account," patterned after West Germany's anti-inflation tax system. Rinfret wrote the President: "The funds could be refunded...when adequate restraint on the economy had been exercised and when the refund would help expand economic activity."

In addition, Rinfret advised the President:

1. To grab the administration's economic reins in his own hands and not let anyone else get control (an obvious slap at Shultz).
2. To end the mishmash of phony forecasting which has come from Shultz, Herbert Stein, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, and Roy Ash, head of the Office of Management and Budget, whose apparent ignorance about the true force of today's roaring inflation had become a bad Washington joke.
3. To embargo the export of short-supply commodities, such as meat and chicken, logs and grains. Foreign buying, he told the President, is adding intolerably to the inflation spirals.
4. More conventionally, Rinfret wants even deeper spending cuts and a more interventionist policy by the Federal Reserve system to slow the supply of new money. He would limit price increases to 1.5 per cent and wage hikes to 5.5 per cent a year.

Now that the President is reeling from the hammer blows of Watergate and has Connally pressing from inside and Rinfret from outside

NOT FOR THE YOUNG ONLY

By J.J. KILPATRICK

A year or so ago, the Oliver Quayle pollsters sought to identify the one person in public life in whom Americans repose the greatest trust. At the head of the list was Walter Cronkite, veteran anchorman for CBS. To judge from a long interview in the current Playboy, that trust is well placed. Diogenes could put his lantern down: Behold, an honest man.

This is not to suggest that Cronkite's perceptions are perfect, or that his opinions are necessarily sound. His "conspiracy" theory of the Nixon administration and the press has the same grim looniness that one encounters in the John Birch Society. But on one of the most controversial questions in journalism today, Cronkite speaks with great candor and great truth.

Playnoy's interview was conducted by Ron Powers, TV critic for the Chicago Sun-Times. Powers noted the administration's conviction that "most newscasters are biased against conservatism," and asked Cronkite if there were "some truth in the view that television newsmen tend to be left to center."

"Well," said Cronkite, "certainly liberal, and possibly left of center as well. I would have to accept that."

Cronkite went on the define "liberal" in the classic sense of open-mindedness and non-commitment. By "left of center," he meant to suggest a political position. The nature of a newsmen's work much of it on "the seamier side of human endeavor," tends to draw reporters away from the establishment "and sort of pushes them to the left."

"But I don't think there are many who are far left," Cronkite added. "I think a little left of center probably is correct."

That judgment precisely confirms what a great many conservatives have been saying for years. There are exceptions, of course, for many broadcasters and newsmen have no more ideology than so many bullfrogs on a log. I grew up under a couple of managing editors who were not obsessed with politics; they were obsessed with golf. But Cronkite's generalization, in my own observation, is an honest appraisal.

Why is it so? Why is it that so few persons who are politically "right of center" make it to the highest level of the media? Part of the answer, I suspect, lies in the ideological influence of our institutions of higher learning; part lies in a built-in system of job inheritance; and part lies in the nature of the breed.

The young man or woman who aspires to a career in journalism almost certainly will get his education—indoctrination may be a better word—under professors who are themselves "a little left of center."

If these professors are attractive and persuasive teachers, and most of them are, the political coloration rubs off. Once the ambitious young journalist begins to climb within the profession, he finds rapport with fellow liberals on the next higher rung, and he becomes a natural inheritor to jobs that open up.

Beyond these tangible considerations is a quality of mind, or a cast of thinking. It is a fair generalization, I believe, that liberals tend to design houses, conservatives to build them. The liberal mind, by and large, moves more quickly than the conservative's to original thought. Those of us on the right tend to stand by tradition, precedent, and the old ways of doing things; those on the left are more

Home Cooked Meals

By PENNIE SUE THURMAN

Associated Press Writer

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Even with meat prices still up, a home-cooked meal costs half as much and tastes twice as good as a meal prepared from packaged food.

That's what I found out when I cooked the same meal twice—once from convenience foods and once from scratch.

What surprised me, though, was how difficult it was to get all those little tins unwrapped, into the oven and onto the table all at the same time while preparing the packaged meal. In a way, it was more work than mixing my own salad dressing, appetizers and soup.

To provide the four people to eat the four servings for which most recipes are written my husband, and I invited another couple to join us.

The menu: cheese puff appetizers, potato soup, lettuce salad with Thousand Island dressing, beef stroganoff, mashed potatoes, broccoli with cheese sauce, biscuits, brownies and coffee.

The cost for the packaged meal was $9.22. Most of it was discarded as waste cardboard and tin foil. From scratch, using butter and fresh vegetables and meat, the meal cost $5.81.

The project was inspired by a local newspaper item written during this spring's meat boycott. It noted that a check of neighborhood grocery stores showed that sales of TV dinners and other heat-and-eat foods swung upward as meat sales fell off.

"What happened," the article asked plaintively, "to home-made chicken soup swimming with noodles?"

The menu included more starch than nutritionists might advise, but packaged food tends to be starchy and I based the menu on what could be found packaged.

All the food was bought at the local Jewel Tea Co. supermarket where I ordinarily shop and, to my knowledge, none of the food was on sale that day.

The frozen beef stroganoff, $1.09 for an individual 8-ounce serving, probably contained no more than four ounces of beef, according to a butcher in the

RULES FOR PRAYING

There are few things concerning religion about which people speculate more often than about prayer. Everyone would like to know more about it. Even unbelievers are intrigued by its possibilities.

There are three things we should always bear in mind both when we think about prayer and when we pray. The first is that we never pray effectively until we deal with the sin in our lives. The second thing to remember is that prayer without faith is

World Trade Is A Deadly Game

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — This is World Trade Week, and as the United States observes it with speeches and dedications and the usual paraphernalia of official ceremony, it cannot forget that trade is also a deadly financial game.

Events of the past few weeks underscore the stakes: The dollar was again hit by a selling wave, speculators fled currencies for gold, the stock market slumped, and world commodity markets were said to be nervous.

All three troubles are related to trade, especially U.S. trade. A financially sound nation is generally thought to be a successful trader. The unsuccessful trader is financially suspect because he runs up deficits, or IOUs.

And so, when the United States, biggest trader of all, the biggest financial force in the world, fails to trade effectively or to keep its economy under control or otherwise convince the world of its strength, fear spreads.

The fact is that while the United States is by far the biggest trader, it has become, in some respects, a weaker trader than before.

It ran up its first trade deficit of the century last year, with imports exceeding exports by $2.7 billion. In the first quarter of 1973 it did manage to raise exports by $2.1 billion to $15.34 billion. But imports rose to $16.26 billion.

And for those who long have viewed U.S. industrial leadership as unassailable, consider this: The first-quarter rise in exports resulted mainly from agricultural shipments; the rise in imports mainly from industrial purchases.

A fact sheet produced for World Trade Week shows the U.S. automotive industry is dependent upon imports from 32 countries, that the telephones we use required 48 materials from 18 nations, that 75 per cent of newsprint is imported.

There are unique reasons for the problem. The United States assumed an enormous role in the security of much of the nonCommunist world in the past 30 years. Not only in Vietnam and Korea, but in Europe, too.

As a result, U.S. expenditures abroad have for almost two decades exceeded the input. The concern over this was lessened somewhat by the working thesis, however naive, that these expenditures were temporary.

The mood of the United States is that of the offended giant, discriminated against by nations that once were weak but which now, either from economic merger such as in Europe, or innovation and self-denial, as in Japan, have themselves become giants.

Nations are loath to forego privileges, and enthusiastic about claiming them.

That, say free trade advocates, is economic warfare. And judging from history, it is easier to wage war than to cooperate. The spirit of World Trade Week is to effect an historic change. No less a goal.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, MAY 23, 1973

CARROLL RICHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Richter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Certainly a most interesting day and evening to put some up-to-date expressions in action. Then you will be able to find the various persons who will support them and learn what opposition you can expect, so you are prepared for right action.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Talking over your aims with good pals can bring fine suggestions and backing you need. Get out to group meetings that are also helpful. You can have a good time as well, but be sure to dress appropriately.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Talk over some plan you have with a bigwig and gain both backing and good advice. Getting into some civic venture that can be beneficial to you and others is wise. Avoid one who is unfriendly.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have fine new ideas that should be put to work to further your aims and add muscle to your operations, give you more prestige. Ask questions of new friends you have recently made. They have the information you need.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Find some new methods of handling your present routines so you lop off time and energy and can look into new outlets as well. Attachment has a new plan that should be jointly pursued for good results.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You had better have a meeting with all partners and thresh out ticklish problems, then make wiser arrangements for the future. Any civic work you do can bring greater prestige. A wise person can give you the advice you need now.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Get into all that work ahead of you now since you have a liking for detail that is necessary to get it done correctly. Put your wardrobe in good order. Add the right touches that make an old outfit look new.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get together with congenials and put your fun-loving nature to work for a change. You will find that your mate will then be more attentive and all turns out fine. Stop being such a dog in the manger.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Doing whatever will bring greater pleasure to those dwelling with you is wise now for more harmony. Streamline your activities for greater accomplishments in the future. Tease mate some and have fun.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you get more support from a good friend you can advance more quickly in your career now. Don't forget to handle correspondence, either business or personal and get good results from it. Plan that trip carefully.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) If you put that modern idea to work, you find that you can add appreciably to present income. Get the assistance of one who knows best how to make changes. Think along happier lines.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You look charming today and others will extend favors quickly and generously, help you attain your finest aims. Make all the social contacts you can. Get out of that dull rut.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make plans for the future but do not confide in others or you lose out. Get into that social service work that is just your cup of tea. Showing compassion for others is right.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those modern-age products who can be very successful in life provided the education is slanted along lines of work with the government or working with the general public by and large. Anything of a humanitarian nature is also good. Encourage to have many friends early to come into the home for better understanding of human nature. Give as fine an education as you can afford, plus musical training.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Farm Scene

By STEVE C. RIDDICK

Plans have now been finalized for the Agricultural Tour through southern North Carolina for Pitt County families, on Thursday and Friday, June 7 and 8.

The tour has been developed so as to include stops that will be educational both to livestock and crop producers.

Among the main attractions for the swine producers will be visits with two of North Carolina's Pork All Americans. To receive this honor, the individual must have exhibited outstanding leadership in the swine industry, not only in the eyes of North Carolinians but Americans as well.

With the cost of protein increasing every day, more and more people are looking to soybeans as their main source of protein. Thus, the visit to Cargill's Soybean Processing Plant in Fayetteville should be a very educational and interesting stop.

A stop that will definitely be of interest to everyone will be the tour of McNair Farms near Laurinburg. Here we will visit seed plots comparing numerous varieties of tobacco, corn and cotton growing side by side.

We mentioned soybeans as a good source of protein, but Coastal Bermuda grass is also high in protein. Cattlemen will be interested in seeing McNair's pelletizing mill. Coastal Bermuda pellets have been very profitable in recent years in our North Carolina stocker cattle enterprises. Coastal Bermuda pellets work well during the winter months, but in the summer we are blessed with an excellent climate for forage production in the form of grass and grass-legume pastures. This is the focal point of our next stop, a grain on grass program for finishing steers.

Last but not least will be a visit with a commercial cow-calf operation, and possibly a visit with a producer who is utilizing Semmental bulls, one of the new exotic breeds from Europe, in an effort to develop his own purebred herd.

Transportation for this trip is being furnished free of charge aboard Southern Railway's Agricultural Bus. Each person, however, will be responsible for four meals and one night's lodging.

We hope that many of you will be interested in this trip and will contact the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office, 203 W. Third Street, Greenville, for further information.

LBJ Cattle Are Sold Off

STONEWALL, Tex. (AP) — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson has thrown what may have been one of the last of the big LBJ Ranch parties to sell off her husband's prize herd of Hereford cattle.

A total of 213 cattle were sold during the 4½-hour auction on Monday, bringing in $140,560. The highest price paid for a single head was $2,650 for a bull.

"This day is a mixture of sadness with, I hope, a touch of festivity," Mrs. Johnson told the approximately 700 would-be cattle buyers and spectators gathered under a bright red-and-yellow canvas tent. A barbecue picnic lunch was served in a second tent and two beer stands were set up under mesquite trees.

"Lyndon started buying cattle soon after we first moved here 20 years ago . . . This was Lyndon's love. But the time has come to sell," she said.

Sales workers said cattle buyers from 14 states, Puerto Rico and Mexico attended the sale of 33 Hereford bulls and 129 cows, 52 of them with calves.

N.C. Merchants Install Prexy

GREENSBORO (AP) — Russell E. Emerson of Salisbury was installed as president of the North Carolina Merchants Association Monday at the concluding session of the 71st annual convention.

Also indicted were John T. Beasley of Fayetteville, first vice president; William H. Sutton of Wilmington, second vice president, and Thompson Greenwood of Raleigh, re-elected executive vice president.

Malcolm Copeland, manager of the Belk-Tyler Department Store in Anoskie was named Retailer of the Year.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Burglaries and other illegal acts would have been used by the Central Intelligence Agency and Pentagon under a domestic spying plan proposed in secret White House documents, says Sen. Stuart Symington.

Symington, D-Mo., disclosed existence of the documents on Monday. He said the plans were never carried out.

Former White House aide Tom Charles Huston wrote the proposal, which "set no limits on the amount of burglary" the agencies could do, in 1970, Symington said.

The documents "appear on their face, to reflect recommendations and possibly decisions, to permit violations of the law in the domestic collection of intelligence on U.S. citizens," Symington said.

He disclosed the documents after Huston testified voluntarily for two hours before a closed session of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Huston, 32, confirmed that the documents were authentic and said they were marked to go to President Nixon and his chief of staff, H.R. Haldeman, according to Symington, acting committee chairman.

The plan did not specifically call for political spying, Symington said. However, he added, it did refer to the type of break-in that occurred at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. But he declined to say if the Sept. 3, 1971, burglary was mentioned in the documents.

In talking with newsmen, Symington did not rule out that the proposal contemplated burglaries of foreign embassies.

Responding to questions about the disclosure, Gerald L. Warren, White House deputy press secretary, told newsmen "a plan of this type was never implemented."

On the basis of news accounts, Warren said, there appeared to be inaccuracies in Huston's testimony before the committee.

A set of the documents was at one time locked in a bank safety deposit box in a Washington suburb by ousted White House Counsel John W. Dean III, Symington said. The papers have been released to the U.S. attorney in Washington and the Senate Watergate investigating committee.

Huston worked under Dean before leaving the White House in 1971, after 2½ years in the administration. He now practices law in Indianapolis.

The proposals met stiff resistance from J. Edgar Hoover, the late FBI director, Symington said. The FBI has the principal responsibility for internal security while the CIA is forbidden by law to gather domestic intelligence.

meat department. Actually, it looked like even less on the plate and contained quite a bit of gristle.

Twelve frozen cheese puff pastry appetizers, which I approximated with 15 cents worth of processed cheese, butter and flour from a "Joy of Cooking" recipe, cost 99 cents.

"I don't know where they found cheese that heavy," my husband said, lobbing the lump from one hand to the other.

The broccoli in the little plastic pouches wasn't bad. But the cost, 46 cents each for two packages, compared with 35 cents for a pound of fresh broccoli covered with 19 cents worth of cheese sauce.

Unlike the home-cooked meal, which left us all full nearly to discomfort, the packaged meal seemed to be mainly filler. The mashed potatoes had the consistency of wallpaper paste and sat like a rock in my stomach.

A consumer advocate's nightmare, they were little more than a powder which still had to be mixed with milk and butter.

After the second meal, we all agreed the difference in flavor was well worth the three hours spent in preparation.

But I'm a working woman, and the savings, which worked out to about $1.50 per hour, would not justify the time were it not for the quality.

impatient to get on with the job. It is natural and inevitable that restless innovative minds will find an outlet for their ideas and energies in the entrancing channels of the media.

Cronkite's candid acknowledgement of this "little left of center" should not be taken as any confession of deliberate bias in the production of network news. It is "absolutely mad," he says, to suggest that any such willful policy line exists. I agree. But Cronkite's limpid honesty supports my own conviction that editorial judgments on the great networks, because they are human judgments, subtly and unconsciously reflect the political liberalism of the men and women who make those judgments. And that's the way it is on TV in May, 1973.

Dollar Wavers

LONDON (AP) — The price of gold dropped slightly in early trading in London today but remained near its record high in Zurich. The U.S. dollar improved in some European centers but fell in others.

Dealers said the lack of any consistent trend indicated continued uncertainty in the European markets. They have blamed the switch from dollars to gold in the past two weeks on concern that the Watergate scandals will hamper President Nixon's efforts to check inflation in the United States and solve other economic problems.

The metal opened in Zurich today at $112.50 an ounce, 50 cents above the record closing price Monday and only 50 cents less than the all-time record of $113 earlier the same day.

In London, gold was down to $110.50 in morning trading, a drop of $1.50 from Monday's close.

The dollar was stronger in London and Zurich at the opening of the market but weaker in Paris and Frankfurt.

The latest gold-dollar rush is generating lots of talk in the United States and much fluctuation in prices. But it's a mini-rush as far as the volume of business is concerned.

'Smog Corps' Is Forming

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Hoping to clean up the dirty air that lingers over this city's famous bay, "smog cops" will soon patrol freeways and highways, issuing citations to motorists who add to pollution.

"If you have ever followed a smoky diesel truck you now it's not too pleasant, and we're going to do something about it," said Thomas Brennan, who is directing the project for the nine-county Bay Area Pollution Control District.

Dressed in gray slacks and navy blue blazers and riding in orange-and-white patrol cars, the smog cops will determine whether smoky diesel trucks and other vehicles are violating existing ordinances.

If a 1970 or later model vehicle emits exhaust fumes obscuring 20 per cent of the background for 10 seconds, it is a violation and offenders probably will be slapped with a $5 fine, Brennan said.

"If the situation isn't corrected, the next fine could be as high as $50," he added.

Earlier model vehicles will be cited if their emissions obscure 40 per cent of the background for over 20 seconds, Brennan said.

Named Marshal For Exercises

GOLDSBORO—Alfred P. Tetterton Jr. of 306 Lindell Dr., has been selected as a marshal for Wayne Community College's 1973 graduation exercises to be held Thursday night.

Camilla R. Cothren, coordinator of student activities at the school said the Greenville man was chosen as a marshal "in recognition" of his "excellent academic record."

Tetterton, the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Tetterton of Greenville, attended Rose High and served for three years in the U.S. Army before entering Wayne Community College.

Real Peace Closer: Brezhnev

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Asserting that the world is closer to durable peace than ever before, Leonid Brezhnev flew home to Moscow today to begin preparing for his visit to

President Nixon next month. "Auf wiedersehen," the Soviet Communist party chief told West German Chancellor Willy Brandt as he boarded his silver-blue Aeroflot jet in spring sunshine that bathed the Bonn-Cologne airport.

The departure of the Soviet Communist party chief on the basis for an expansion of trade, technical and scientific cooperation and cultural exchanges between their two countries.

Brezhnev said in a television address Monday night that improved U.S.-Soviet relations and other steps have brought peace closer. Vowing to bring the Soviet Union out of the Cold War and into ever closer cooperation with the West, the 66-year-old party chief said:

"The prospects for humanity are becoming increasingly more hopeful. The war in Vietnam is over. Soviet-American relations continue to develop favorably."

"By and large, one can say that our planet today has come closer than ever before to durable peace."

The highlight of Brezhnev's visit was his signing Saturday with Brandt of a 10-year economic cooperation pact providing a framework for West German investment to help boost the lagging Soviet economy.

In a joint declaration Monday, Brezhnev and Brandt gave their blessing to proposed deals including German help in building a Soviet steel mill, expanding Soviet production of chemicals, machine tools, motors and raw materials, and other exchanges of West German technology for Soviet raw materials.

Similar swaps of technology for raw materials are expected to be a main topic for Brezhnev's talks with Nixon.

On the minus side, Brandt and Brezhnev failed to resolve their differences over Bonn's attempt to tighten its ties with West Berlin and over the Kremlin's desire to make the coming 34-nation European Security Conference include a summit session of the nations' top leaders.

There were demonstrations both pro and anti during his visit, and the police arrested some 250 anti-Soviet Maoists. But there were no major incidents, and most observers agreed the visit went off well.

The House representatives offered to compromise at August 1, but that was rejected by the Senate.

Award Is Received By Mental Health Center

The Tideland Mental Health Center in Washington was the recipient of one of the 1973 Mental Health Awards of the Department of Mental Health of the N.C. Department of Human Resources.

The award was given for the Center's alcoholism and drug abuse prevention program in the schools of the area.

The program is in three distinct parts, any or all of which may be adjusted to fit a school's particular needs. Staff from the Center conduct the program.

In grades kindergarten through four, personality development is stressed, teaching the child about his own emotions and how to cope with his environment. It is a time to catch budding emotional problems. Play therapy, specifically puppets, are used as a medium. Drugs are mentioned only if the subject is brought up by the children.

Grades five through eight receive a general summary of alcohol and drug facts. Comic book type characters are used as a resource, as are movies. Discussion is foremost. Emphasis is placed on keeping to the very basic facts about alcohol and drugs.

Witnesses told police the first to die was an elderly junkman, John Aldridge, who was collecting pop bottles and tossing them into his two-wheel cart.

The victims were William Farmer, 73, a retired railroad man, Jessie Dooley, and Henrietta Watson, known as "Candy Girl" because she worked in an adjoining candy store.

"One of the ladies from down near the corner called me and told me somebody had gone crazy and just started shooting folks and that my husband was one of them," said Lendora Farmer, 60. Her 28-year-old son, William, said he and Sanders had been classmates together.

Police Chief Bill Price said officers arrived at the scene shortly before 4 p.m. EDT and were told by witnesses that the gunman had fled into a house down the street.

As one of the officers, Patrolman David Wayne Clark, 31, went to the rear of the house, the gunman jumped from behind the garage and fired a shot that struck the patrolman in the head. He then raced into another house.

With reinforcements on the scene, Price directed that tear gas be fired into the house and as Sanders appeared at the front door and brandished his rifle as if to fire, he was shot to death by a volley of shotgun and pistol fire.

Deadlock On Wages Date

RALEIGH (AP) — A heated conference among six irritated legislators today failed to resolve a House-Senate deadlock over the effective date for raising the minimum wage.

The conferees broke up the meeting without reaching agreement and said they would ask Senate and House leaders to appoint new representatives to seek an agreement.

At issue was a bill to raise the state's minimum wage from $1.60 to $1.80. As passed by the House, it would take effect on July 1.

The Senate, however, added an amendment delaying the effective date until September 2. The avowed purpose was to prevent a cutback in summer jobs because of the higher wage minimum.

The conferees were Reps. Howard Twigg, D-Wake, Claude DeBruhl, D-Buncombe, and Gerald Arnold, D-Harnett, and Sens. Phil Godwin, D-Gates, William Staton, D-Lee, and Michael Mullins, D-Mecklenburg.

The House representatives offered to compromise at August 1, but that was rejected by the Senate.

Shooting Spree Leaves 5 Dead

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — "I guess he just cracked," said William Edward Farmer Jr. "He knew my father — knew him well. We had been children together."

Farmer's father was one of four persons fatally wounded Monday by a gunman who sprayed rifle bullets without warning along a quiet Memphis street. The man also killed a police officer before he was forced from a house by tear gas and shot to death.

Authorities said the gunman, identified as David Sanders, 30, was sauntering down the street with a powerful rifle dangling in his hand when he suddenly whirled and shot to death four neighborhood residents. Four other people, including a federal parole officer, were wounded as the gunman fired at passing autos.

Witnesses told police the first to die was an elderly junkman, John Aldridge, who was collecting pop bottles and tossing them into his two-wheel cart.

The victims were William Farmer, 73, a retired railroad man, Jessie Dooley, and Henrietta Watson, known as "Candy Girl" because she worked in an adjoining candy store.

"One of the ladies from down near the corner called me and told me somebody had gone crazy and just started shooting folks and that my husband was one of them," said Lendora Farmer, 60. Her 28-year-old son, William, said he and Sanders had been classmates together.

Police Chief Bill Price said officers arrived at the scene shortly before 4 p.m. EDT and were told by witnesses that the gunman had fled into a house down the street.

As one of the officers, Patrolman David Wayne Clark, 31, went to the rear of the house, the gunman jumped from behind the garage and fired a shot that struck the patrolman in the head. He then raced into another house.

With reinforcements on the scene, Price directed that tear gas be fired into the house and as Sanders appeared at the front door and brandished his rifle as if to fire, he was shot to death by a volley of shotgun and pistol fire.</

Trio Tied For Purple's Lead

Proctor's, Hardee's, and Little Sluggers all posted victories last night to remain deadlocked for first place in the Purple Division of the City Softball League. Dainty Maid rolled to another victory in the Gold Division to remain as the league's only unbeaten.

In the opening game on Field One, Proctor's took a 2-2 romp over Union Carbide. Proctor's got all they needed in the first inning, scoring three. King singled and Kight tripled. Rose singled and scored on a hit by Belcher for the 3-0 lead. They went on to add four in the second, four in the third, five in the fourth, three in the fifth with Capper homering, and five in the sixth, with a homer by Belcher. Union Carbide picked up one each in the fourth and sixth innings.

In the second game, another rout was recorded as Little Sluggers took a 29-6 win over Greenville Utilities. The Sluggers scored two in the first, then picked up two more in the third. GUCo scored once in the third, but six by the Sluggers in the fourth put it out of reach. M. Roebuck led off with a triple and a single followed by M. Parrell, D. Taylor, W. Claybrook and G. Holland. L. Hardee doubled and later scored on an out with the sixth run, making it 10-1. The Sluggers picked up eight more in the fifth, plus 11 in the seventh. GUCo picked up two in the fourth and three in the seventh.

Hardee's took a 14-3 victory over Burger King in the final game. Hardee's scored twice in the first, while Burger King got one. In the third, Hardee's came up with five in the third to put it away. Miller singled and Mann doubled. Grant, Bolick and Sneed each followed with more doubles, and Lons singled. Morgan brought in Sneed with the final run for a 7-1 lead. Hardee's added four in the sixth, as Morgan and Byrd homered, and then added three more in the seventh.

seventh. Burger picked up two more in the bottom of the sixth.

Hallow's gained their first win of the year in the first game on Field Two, rolling to a 25-7 win over winless Daily Reflector. Hallow's scored five in the first, while the Reflector picked up one. Hallow's then came back with two in the second, while the Reflector closed the gap with four in their half of the inning as Willie Eakes homered. Hallow's got what proved to be the winning run in the third. Ralph Vincent singled and moved up on a passed ball. Bailey singled him in to make it 8-5. Hallow's added two in the fourth, three in the fifth and then broke it open with 12 in the sixth, with Gravatt homering. The Reflector scored one in the third, one in the fifth and one in the sixth.

In the second game, Four Seasons downed Parker's, 8-4. Parker's came up with three in the first, but Four Seasons matched that in their half of the frame. Each team also scored a run in the fourth for a 4-4 tie. Four Seasons pushed into the lead with a run in the fifth, however. Ronald Vincent singled and moved up on a hit by Charles Meeks. Tommy Jordan brought Vincent home with another hit, making it 5-4. Four Seasons then added three more in the sixth to close out the scoring.

The final game saw unbeaten Dainty Maid take an 18-9 win over Morgan Printers. Morgan scored first, with a run in the first, but Dainty Maid came back with three in their half of the frame. They added five more in the second, then wrapped it up with five more in the third. Wayne Nelson walked and Doug Bonds doubled. With two out, Smith Worthington singled and Bob Harris tripled. John Huber doubled and scored on a triple by Carl Powell to make it 13-1. Dainty Maid picked up one more in the fourth and four in the fifth. Morgan scored two in the fourth and six in the sixth.

Little Mint Wins Opener

NEW BERN—The Little Mint downed Quadrant, 4-3, in the opening Tri-County Senior Babe Ruth League game last night.

Quadrant moved into the lead in the game in the first, scoring a run. Heatherly singled and West reached on a fielder's choice. Heatherly then stole third and the ball was thrown away in the attempt to get him, allowing him to come the rest of the way and score.

It remained 1-0 until the fourth inning when Little Mint pushed over a run to tie it up. Bobby Wooten walked and moved up on a passed ball. Chuck Finklea then slammed a triple, scoring Wooten with the tying run.

Again, it remained deadlocked for several innings, until the first extra frame, the eighth, when Little Mint pushed over two runs. Jeff Cobb got the game's second triple, and Eddie Horn followed with another scoring Cobb. Gary Cowan followed with a two-out single, driving in Horn for a 3-1 lead.

Quadrant tried to come back in the bottom of the eighth, scoring a run. Hanen singled and West got a hit. Wiggins followed with a double scoring Hanen to cut the lead to 3-2, but Little Mint snuffed out the rally at that point.

Play continues tonight with two games. South Lenoir visits Moore-King-Sullivan at Guy Smith, while Taff Office is at Kinston.

American Women Defeat Chinese

NEW YORK (AP) — Janette Anderson was the sole casualty of the first-ever gymnastics meet between the United States and the People's Republic of China but was the biggest winner.

Miss Anderson, a 20-year-old from Seattle, Wash., who began competing four years ago, apparently sprained her ankle during her final event but won the all-around women's title and led the American women to a 111.90-109.40 victory Monday night at Madison Square Garden.

She won the uneven parallel bars event and then capped her performance with the highest score in the floor exercises.

Miss Anderson compiled 37.50 points for the all-around crown followed by Debbie Fike of Cypress, Calif., with 37.20 and Chiang Shao-yi with 37.15.

The Chinese men, led by all-around men's champion Yang Ming-ming, snapped a deadlock with a strong performance on the horizontal bars and edged the American men 164.4-164.2.

"I don't think they would have agreed to come if they weren't ready and had a strong team," Gene Wettstone of Penn State, the U.S. men's coach, said prior to the meet.

Yang led the men with 64.90 points followed by Marshall Avenier, a former Olympian and NCAA champion from Lehigh, N. Y., with 64.70. Tsai Huan-tsung and Jim Culhane, a former member of the U.S. Munich Olympics team from Penn State, shared third place with 64.50 points apiece.

Diane Dunbar, a 14-year-old sprite from Pleasanton, Calif., and the youngest athlete in the meet, received the highest single score when she garnered 9.6 in the vault. Miss Anderson had 9.5 on the bars and 9.3 for the floor exercises.

Richards Snaps Kiwanis Down State Record Lions By 9-5

RALEIGH—Two Greenville swimmers were among winner in the North Carolina AAU Short Course Age Group Championships held in Raleigh over the weekend—one of them setting a new state record in the 100-yard backstroke.

Kevin Richards, one of nine persons swimming for the Greenville Swim Club in the meet authored a new record in the boys ten-and-under 100 backstroke with a time of 1:16.2. The previous state record was 1:18.4.

Richards also finished second in the 50-yard butterfly in 33.3, bettering the meet record in that event, and placed fourth in the 200-yard individual medley with a time of 2:51.

Lance Timmons of Greenville set a new meet record in the 11-12 boys 100-yard backstroke in 1:05.3. He also placed second in the 200 yard freestyle in 2:06.5, took second in the 100-yard freestyle in 56.8, placed fourth in the 200 individual medley in 2:30.5, and came in fifth in the 100 breaststroke in 1:17.3.

John Dawson, swimming with the ten and under boys placed fifth in the 200 yard freestyle with 2:34.7 and fifth in the 200 yard individual medley with 2:35.

Another Greenville swimmer, Liza Taylor, took a fifth place in the 25-yard freestyle event for eighth and under girls with a time of 18.6 and placed seventh in the 25-yard freestyle event for eighth and under girls with a time of 18.6 and placed seventh in the 25 yard backstroke with a 21.6.

Other Greenville residents taking part in the championship meet included: Sheila Collier, Susan Tucker, John Richards, Guy Bradbury, and Laurie Walton.

The Greenville swimmer were coached by Thomas Adams and Robert St. Clair.

More than 600 swimmers from across North Carolina took part in the championship meet.

The Kiwanis gained a 9-5 victory over the Lions yesterday in the North State Little League.

The win boosted the Kiwanis record to 3-2, while the Lions fell to just the opposite, 2-3.

The Kiwanis jumped into the lead with five runs in the first inning. Skip Hill led off with a walk and Brad Brown reached on an error. Ben Miller followed with a three-run homer. Stuart Motsinger followed that with another homer. Tom Brown kept the inning alive with a walk and stole second. Steve Smart and Mitchell Brann both walked, loading the sacks. A walk to Hill force in Brown with the fifth run.

The Lions jumped onto the scoreboard in the third. Shelton Wilson reached on a fielder's choice, advancing on an error.

He scored on Marty Worthington's single.

The Kiwanis came back with a run in the bottom of the third. Brown walked and stole second, moving to third on an error on the play. Brann walked and Hill singled, scoring Brown.

In the fourth, the Lions scored again. Roger Williams singled and Allen Collier reached on a fielder's choice. Arthur Fletcher walked and a wild pitch scored Williams.

The bottom of the fourth saw the Kiwanis pick up three more. Motsinger walked and Michael Clemmons singled. Both moved up on a wild pitch and Brown singled in Motsinger. Smart walked to load them up and a walk to Sterling Ashby forced in Clemmons. Brann grounded out, scoring Brown.

The Lions came up with three more in the fifth. Jim Bearden walked, as did Worthington. They advanced with an out and scored on Mike Williams' double. Peter Pace reached on an error, allowing Williams to score the game's final run.

Black Managers Coming Slowly Moffitt Earns Eighth Wabash Cannonball Explodes Save For San Francisco Astrodome

By MIKE O'BRIEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
APPLETON, Wis. (AP) — College trained and well spoken, Grover "Deacon" Jones and Bernie Smith didn't need to endure the bigotry, loneliness and emotional scars they have known in what is called the Grand American Game.

Though the sport has become replete with black playing stars since Jackie Robinson lifted its lily white curtain after World War II, organized baseball has waited until this season to field two black managers—Jones and Smith—in the same league. Smith's Danville Brewers were here Monday night to play Jones' Appleton Foxes in the Class A Midwest League, which is light years from the major league status they had attained briefly as players and hope to regain as managers.

No black ever has managed in the majors and it is believed only two others, Gene Baker and Hector Lopez, have managed in the minors. Yet Jones and Smith speak affectionately of baseball and with understanding of its resilience to change.

"When we played at Danville earlier this year, I kidded Bernie that we were making history," Jones said. "Then the game started and we forgot all about it."

"Most assuredly things have changed in the last 10 years, but baseball is conservative and it's been slow," said Jones, whose 18 years in the Chicago White Sox' system have taken him on a wide tour of Southern towns.

The bruised feelings, along with an injury that cost him his throwing arm and with it any real chance at a major league career, frequently caused Jones to consider leaving baseball. But it remains a love affair.

"I have a bachelor's degree in physiotherapy, but I can turn to physiotherapy at 60," he said. "Baseball was my boyhood dream. It's a great game and I'll never knock it. The Sox organization has always been fair with me."

Smith, who spent parts of the 1970 and 1971 seasons with Danville's parent Milwaukee Brewers, said he believes at least a few major league owners finally are ready to hire managers regardless of color. But he doesn't want to be a token.

"I don't want to get there because I'm black," he said. "I have no personal goals because I'm black. I want to get there on my own."

When the San Francisco Giants bring in reliever Randy Moffitt, it's game, set, match. Moffitt, the second most successful athlete in his family...his sister is tennis star Billie Jean King...earned his eighth save of the baseball season Monday night, preserving San Francisco's 9-4 victory over Houston.

The young reliever allowed just two hits in 3 1-3 innings work nailing down the nationally televised victory.

The victory moved the Giants within five percentage points of first-place Houston in the National League West.

Elsewhere Monday night, Pittsburgh nipped Philadelphia 5-4 in the only other National League game played. Chicago at Montreal and St. Louis at New York were rained out.

In the only American League games scheduled, Boston defeated Baltimore 4-1, Cleveland battered the New York Yankees 10-5 and Oakland blanked Kansas City 5-0.

Pittsburgh wiped out a four-run deficit against Steve Carlton with homers by Willie Stargell and Manny Sanguillen and beat the Phillies on Richie Zisk's pinch single in the ninth. It was a distinctly un-Carlton performance for the 1972 27 game winner.

Carlton is 4-6 and has failed to hold leads in three of his last four starts.

Boston ended a four-game losing streak with Luis Tiant throttling Baltimore on four hits. Luis Aparicio drove in two runs with a two-out, bases-loaded single in the seventh inning and Carl Yastrzemski doubled home two more in the ninth.

New York roughed up Gaylord Perry for four runs on five hits in the second inning, but Cleveland's ace survived the rally and the Indians came from behind and beat the Yankees.

Buddy Bell contributed four singles and George Hendrick had two singles and a two-run homer for the Indians.

Jim "Catfish" Hunter scattered eight hits, pitching Oakland past Kansas City. Sal Bando had a pair of doubles, keying early rallies for the A's, and Deron Johnson added a single.

Has Second Best Time

BALTIMORE (AP) — Secretariat, the big chestnut colt with a shot at becoming the first horse in 25 years to win racing's Triple Crown, now owns the second fastest time in the long history of the Preakness Stakes.

Stewards at Pimlico Race Course announced Monday that Secretariat's winning time in Saturday's 98th Preakness had been officially set at 1:54 2-5 for the 1 1-16 miles.

The figure was three-fifths of a second below the original clocking of 1:55 shown on the Visumatic electric timer immediately after the race, but still off the record 1:54 set by Canero II in 1971.

Lucien Laurin, trainer of the Meadow Stable colt who previously had set a Kentucky Derby record, had said he would ask for a review of the times after two clockers for the Daily Racing Form said they had caught Secretariat in 1:53 2-5.

The stewards approved the change after viewing tapes of the race and being told that E.T. McLean Jr., Pimlico's official timer, had recorded the 1:54 2-5 with a stopwatch.

McLean serves as a backup for the electronic timer, and during the current Pimlico meeting the two sources have agreed on all but two occasions.

Secretariat will go after the Triple Crown in the 1 1-16-mile Belmont Stakes at Belmont Park June 9. No horse has won the Derby, Preakness and Belmont since Citation in 1948.

Two former Cincinnati Red players, Frank Robinson and Vada Pinson, are now outfielders with the California Angels in the American League.

NEW YORK (AP) — While the San Francisco Giants and Houston Astros went about the business of baseball, the television viewers got a taste of non-stop play-by-play, expertise, reminiscing and cornpone humor.

And the fans at home and the 24,186 at the game were treated, if that's the proper word, to an off-key, a cappella, gravelly, drawing version of The Wabash Cannonball.

It wasn't exactly Humble Howard, Dandy Don and Fearless Frank—but then, it wasn't a gridiron they were overlooking.

It was the diamond in the cavernous Houston AstroDome and it was the newest entry in show business-sports, Curt, Tony and ol' Diz.

Curt Gowdy and Tony Kubeck will be there every Monday night for NBC's Monday Night Game of the Week. The new addition is a weekly celebrity, in this case...YAHOO!...Dizzy Dean.

In weeks to come, it could range from baseball greats like Joe DiMaggio and Casey Stengel to other sports stars like basketball's Dave DeBusschere of the New York Knicks and tennis hustler Bobby Riggs...and ultimately to diverse personalities such as Dinah Shore, Woody Allen, Pearl Bailey, perhaps Tiny Tim, and others.

But for the premiere of the experiment—one which had been lambasted by hard-core baseball fans long before it ever got on the air—NBC went for the combination man, baseball star and personality in Dean, the premiere pitcher of the St. Louis Cardinals' "Gashouse Gang" of the 1930s.

The trio became a quartet in the sixth inning as Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn joined the act. At times, the airwaves seemed to be almost cluttered with commentary, occasionally related to what was happening on the AstroTurf, more often not.

It was going into the bottom of the third inning that Dean swung into The Wabash Cannonball. He did one verse, greeted with mild applause by the fans, then unexpectedly broke into a reprise.

Houston's Roger Metzger, stepping into the batter's box, glanced around and stepped out again as the second verse swung around the ballpark. Home plate umpire John McSherry turned to look up at the broadcasting booth, then flung out his arms as if to say, "Enough, already."

"I'm delighted with the guest celebrity program," Kuhn had said before the game. "It automatically draws a big audience of people who won't normally watch baseball." Whether that's true won't be known for a while—until the ratings come in and a trend can be discerned.

Belvoir In Loss

Williamston gained a 9-2 victory over the Belvoir Bombers in Semi-Pro baseball on Sunday.

Belvoir scored first, getting a run in the second, as Orlanda Little homered.

Williamston came back with three in the third to get all they would need. Joyner reached on an error and Hooks doubled. Bryant then finished it off with a home run.

Ben Johnson doubled for Belvoir in the fifth, scoring on Alton Sharpe's double, to cut the lead to 3-2, but that was as close as they got.

Williamston came back with six in the bottom of the fifth to wrap it up. Joyner reached on an error and Bryant doubled. Mobley singled and Rayner reached on an error. Cottrain walked, as did Leggett. Harper singled, scoring Leggett with the final run.

Seek Answers To Problems

By TOM SEPPY
Associated Press Sports Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate today began anew an attempt to solve the problems surrounding amateur sports in the United States, especially those of the Olympic games.

Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., said inadequate financial support, haphazard planning and jurisdictional wrangling between groups of what he called unresponsive bureaucrats severely undermine U.S. participation in events such as the Olympics.

"All these factors have contributed too frequently to the waste and overshadowing of the dedicated efforts of the people for whom sports are conducted—the individual athletes," he said. "Too often we have mounted a national effort unworthy of the individual excellence of these athletes."

Tunney, son of former heavyweight boxing champion Gene Tunney, made his remarks as the Senate Commerce Committee opened hearings on bills that would fundamentally alter the official structure of U.S. amateur sports.

Witnesses scheduled for the first of three days of hearings, to be chaired by Tunney, are Olympians Harold Connally, hammer throw; Willie Davenport, hurdler; Donna de Varona, swimmer; Suzie Chaffee, skier; Tom McMillen, basketball; and Bill Toomey, decathlon.

Other anticipated witnesses include sportscaster Howard Cosell; Rep. Ralph Metcalfe, former Olympic gold medal winner; David Riveness, new president of the Amateur Athletic Union, and Walter Byers, chief executive of the National Collegiate Athletic Association. The hearings are expected to address themselves to the Olympic program, the need for a national sports development fund and the practicality of a federal sports commission that might at last resolve disputes between the Amateur Athletic Union and the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Tunney said the athletes cannot be asked to dedicate themselves to competition, often at considerable cost and sacrifice, only to see their work frustrated by poor planning and inadequate support.

Tunney's bill would create a nine-member commission to review American Olympic participation and recommend legislation to reform and improve that program.

NAIA Sets Tourney

PEMBROKE, N.C. (AP)—The three-day, double elimination National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics Area 7 baseball tournament opens today with a berth in the national tournament at stake.

Two games scheduled today pit West Liberty State of West Virginia (11-4) against Elon of North Carolina (22-9) in the 4:30 p.m. opener and host Pembroke State (25-7) against Erskine of South Carolina (14-9) at 8 p.m.

Wednesday games will be played at 2:5, and 8 p.m. Thursday's finals are tentatively set for 5 p.m. and, if needed, a game at 8 p.m.

Each of the teams won a district championship earlier this month to qualify for the area competition. The winner of the area event advances to the eight-team national tournament opening May 31 at Phoenix, Ariz.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Ed Temple, coach of the women's track team at Tennessee State University, has again been selected on the U.S. Olympic Track Committee for the 1976 games.

Temple, who has coached several women's track teams for the Olympics, has been on the committee every Olympic year since 1956.

The 'Worry Clinic'

Home Tutoring Helps A Child

Freddy's case shows the ill effects of "nonsense" methods in many Teachers' Colleges! For young braintruster pros, lacking "Horse Sense," have violated the basic laws of educational psychology for an entire generation. But you alert parents can salvage your kiddies by home tutoring.

By GEORGE W. CRANE.
Ph. D., M. D.
CASE X 514: Freddy B., aged

13, is a slow reader.
"Dr. Crane," his worried mother began, "Freddy is due to enter Junior High next term.
"But he is hardly an average student.
"And my husband is appalled at his inability to read!
"What's wrong that modern children can't read fluently?
"So what can we parents do to offset the deficiencies of our public schools?

The same way Mrs. Crane and I did to supplement the stupid, "sight reading" methods in vogue in our Chicago schools a generation ago.

In previous years, the "phonetic" method had been employed to help a child dissect even totally strange words and pronounce all the syllables.
Nowadays, it isn't just the kiddies in grammar school who are woefully lacking in reading skills.

Last autumn the National Reading Center in Washington, D. C., made the shocking diagnosis that about "one-third of all freshmen entering college lack the basic reading skills needed to meet the minimum requirements for college study!"
One-third means 33 percent of all 18-year-olds!

And please note the use of that word "minimum," for if 33 percent can't even a "D" or "C," how few do you think can read well enough to rate a "B" grade or an "A," which are generally essential for entrance into medicine, law, engineering, dentistry and other graduate schools?
Even if you mothers haven't finished high school, you can easily surpass the public schools in zooming your slow readers to the top of the class. How?

By use of the "Classics, Illustrated," which are those 25 cent fascinating digests of over 150 of the world's famous novels. They are presented in colored comic book format, with dramatic, suspenseful pictures, above which are maybe only a dozen words of copy.

The illustrations intrigue a child's interest and the brief "balloons" or "blurbs" containing the words, don't rebuff him, as a full page of "dry" printed copy will do.
Mrs. Crane and I reared our 5 children on "Classics, Illustrated."
They are so enticing that even you adult college graduates can't resist them either

They cost only 25 cents apiece, postpaid, so send $.50 to 10 (or more) to Frawley Enterprises, Inc., 1901 Avenue of the Stars, Los Angeles, California, 90067, and ask that a varied assortment be mailed to you at once.
On auto trips or during vacation they are superb temptation to read instead of riot in the back seat of the auto.
And you can soon initiate slow readers into the delights of "Moby Dick," "Deerslayer,"

"Ivanhoe," plus 150 other world famous novels, by saying:
"Freddy, Mamma and Daddy will do the dishes for you if you will read aloud to us the rest of that story about 'Tom Sawyer.'"
Previously, I told you that our granddaughter Debby, age 10, read 42 of the world's famous novels in a week's vacation while visiting us at our farm home in Indiana.
She'd hide away and pore over those "Classics, Illustrated," devouring one after another.

Also, send for my booklet "How to Raise a Child's 'School Marks,'" enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.
(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

The bidding:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ 2 ♥
4 ♠ 5 ♠ Pass Pass
5 ♠ Pass Pass Pass
Mike Hoffman, Minneapolis, Minn., a 25-year-old computer operator playing in his first National Championship, combined with Jack Rhatigan, Cottage Grove, Minn., a 41-year-old pharmacist, to win the National Open Pair Championship held in St. Louis last March. A tremendous final session enabled them just to nose out Dan Rotman, Skokie, Ill., and Charles Peres, Chicago.

The hand above gave rise to considerable discussion when it was dealt in this event. The bidding almost invariably followed the pattern shown and several North-South pairs bought the contract for five spades after their opponents had competed up to five hearts.

Where West chose to open the king of hearts, declarer proceeded at a merry pace. Dummy ruffed with the king of spades, the closed hand was entered with the eight of spades and South's remaining heart was ruffed with the queen of spades. The ten of trumps was overtaken by the jack and declarer pulled West's last spade with the ace. He ran dummy's club suit next, discarding all of his diamonds in the process. He took all 13 tricks.

At a few tables, East refused to give up in the auction and persisted to six hearts. His attempted sacrifice was doubled and the opposition cashed two club tricks and one spade to administer a 500 point sting.

Ordinarily this penalty would provide ample compensation for a non-vulnerable game which—in tournament bridge—is awarded a 300 point bonus in addition to the trick score. However, those North-Souths who took all the tricks playing at spades scored 510 points [210 for the trick score plus the 300 game bonus]. The mere 10-point saving by sacrificing at six hearts represents a key margin at duplicate bridge, where the scoring is based solely on a pure point comparison of the results of every pair that played the deal.

The top score for East and West was obtained at a table where West devoted considerable attention to the selection of an opening lead against South's five spade contract. He despaired of the prospects of cashing many heart tricks, and it appeared to him that any hope for defeating the bid rested in uncovering some hidden strength in his partner's hand.

Since West had a high card in diamonds, he decided to launch his attack in that direction despite the fact that he held only a doubleton in that suit. Accordingly, he opened the king of diamonds. East overtook with the ace and continued with the queen and jack. After three tricks were cashed, the defense cheerfully conceded the balance to the declarer. When all the scores were in, it turned out that they were the only East-West pair to register a profit on the deal.

Two Additions To Police Dept.

Two new officers — E. D. Day Jr. and Robert G. McLaughlin Jr. — joined the Greenville Police Department last week, Chief Glenn Cannon said today.

According to Cannon, Day, a Kinston native and 1966 graduate of Grainger High School, spent three years in the U.S. Army in Vietnam, Korea and New Jersey, as a military policeman, before entering Lenoir Community College in 1971, where he remained until being employed by the police department.

Day is single and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Day, Shirley, Mass.

McLaughlin, according to the chief, is a Pittsburg, Pa., native who moved to Columbia, N.C. when he was two years old. He and his family moved to Greenville 13 years ago.

A member of St. Peter's Catholic Church, McLaughlin has been employed by East Carolina Maintenance company and the Greenville Utilities Commission over the past few years.

He is married to the former Brenda Lee Clough of Virginia Beach, Va., and the couple has a 14 months old daughter. McLaughlin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. McLaughlin of 117 North Woodlawn Ave.

Shipbuilding Boom Seen

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Rep. Leonor K. Sullivan, D-Va., chairman of the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, predicted Monday night a boom in shipbuilding for the country.

But she warned the Hampton Roads Maritime Association's 53rd annual banquet that "the task of putting this industry on its feet is far from accomplished."

A "fundamental issue," she said, is whether the U.S. Merchant Marine can be increased sufficiently "in a way which is fair and equitable to the largest single investor in our merchant marine, the American taxpayer."

Her committee, she said, cheered on by both labor and management of American flag ships, has fought for years for the allocation of half of government-aided export cargoes for these ships.

Yet, Mrs. Sullivan added, "U.S. flag ships have not even utilized their one-third allocation of the shipments of grain to Russia under the arrangement worked out with the Soviets."

"If the principle of a fair share for American ships is worth fighting for in legislation we pass, it seems to me that we should be able to count on American ships being made available to carry the cargoes for which special preference is provided," she added.

She called for closer coordination among all segments of the shipping industry in planning for future ships and cargoes.

Part-Time Jobs Slated

Alton B. Gardner, chairman of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners, announced that the federal government, through the North Carolina Manpower Council, has provided funds for part time summer jobs for youth living in Pitt County.

Gardner said that the jobs will start June 18 and last approximately nine weeks. Each person hired will work 26 hours a week and receive $1.60 per hour. The county has jobs available in office work, maintenance, and tutoring.

Any Pitt County resident who is on vacation from school, a Vietnam era veteran, or who is disadvantaged and under 21 is eligible.

Anyone interested should contact main offices in the towns of Grifton, Greenville, Farmville, Ayden, Winterville and Bethel, as well as the Pitt County Schools, Greenville Schools and the county manager's office.

Two Injured In Accidents

Two persons were reported injured and an estimated $1,775 property damage estimated in two collisions investigated here yesterday by Greenville police.

Officers reported two passengers in a car driven by Rosa Evans Forbes of 910 Imperial St. were hurt when the Forbes car collided with a vehicle driven by Joseph M. Carraher Jr., of Woodbridge Va. about 4:25 p.m. at the intersection of Tenth and Washington Streets.

Police, who charged Carraher with failing to stop for a red light, set damage to his vehicle at $75 and placed damage to the Forbes car at $300.

Marion Crocker Hart of Elkin was charged with failing to reduce her speed enough to avoid an accident following investigation of an 11:15 a.m. collision at the intersection of Fifth and Library Streets.

Investigators said the Hart car collided with an auto operated by Charles Ronald Lipe of Asheville.

Damage was set at $400 to the Lipe auto and $1,000 to the Hart car.

No injuries were reported in that accident.

Piano Students Present Recital

A joint piano recital was given Saturday night by students of Mrs. Geraldine Mitchell of 2205 S. Jefferson Drive, Greenville and Mrs. David Burns of Washington.

Students of Mrs. Mitchell performing were Sammy Wynne, Lori Jo Edwards, Lee Ellen Fleming, Lisa Hardee, Carol Lee, and Mrs. Helen Hite and Carl Landes, the last two adult students.

Roger and Sarah Nelson, students of Mrs. Burns, also participated in the recital.

Researchers Find Way To Predict Drug Users

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Researchers say they have developed a method to tell in advance which teenagers are likely to use marijuana, which ones will go on to hard drugs and which ones will remain nonusers.

In a report from the Department of Psychiatry at Massachusetts General Hospital, the researchers said today they analyzed data from 2,222 junior high and high school students in the Boston area.

In that computer analysis, drug use in 1971 was predicted from five nondrug-related factors — including academic performance and cigarette smoking — measured in 1969.

The researchers said the analysis was 68 per cent accurate in predicting the nondrug users who went on to marijuana alone and 77 per cent accurate in showing what nonusers went to both marijuana and hard drugs such as heroin, stimulants, depressants and hallucinogens.

The data were also 72 per cent accurate in predicting

Winners In Duplicate

Mrs. W. Z. Morton Jr. and Mrs. John Richards were first place winners in the Wednesday morning duplicate bridge game played at the Bank of North Carolina.

Others who placed were: Mrs. Jean Cox Jones and Mrs. W. J. Shaw, second; Mrs. William Dawson and Mrs. J. D. Mellon, third.

Winners in the afternoon game included: Mrs. L. D. Harris and David Proctor, first; Mrs. Clifton Toler and Mrs. William Parvin, second; Mrs. John Proctor and Mrs. J. M. Horton, third; tied for fourth were Mrs. F. W. A. Mills and Mrs. S. M. Woolfolk with Mrs. W. R. Harris and Stuart Shough.

Friday night winners at Planters Bank were: Mrs. George Martin and David Proctor, first; tied for second were: June Grainger and Stuart Shough with Mrs. Fred Sorensen and George Martin.

Mrs. L. D. Harris and Mrs. Clifton Toler were first place winners in the Saturday afternoon game played at First Federal Savings and Loan.

Others who placed were: Mrs. S. M. Woolfolk and Mrs. Fred Sorensen, second; Mrs. John Proctor and Claude Goodman, third.

The Friday night game at Planters Bank will be cancelled Friday, May 25, only.

MENLO PARK, Calif. (UPI) — Four out of five of the 32 million people who live in the nine Western states reside in urban areas, the Western Market Almanac reports.

what nonusers eventually used any type of drug and 67 per cent accurate in predicting which new marijuana users went to hard drugs.

The researchers said that in comparing data from nonusers and those already using drugs at the beginning of the study in 1969, the computer was able to sort out the two groups with 81 per cent accuracy using only nondrug-related information.

"We need to emphasize," Dr. Gene M. Smith of Massachusetts General said in an interview, "that we are talking about statistical probabilities in groups,

Next President Of Association

Mrs. Peggy H. Wood of Greenville was elected president-elect of the N.C. Medical Record Association at its 23rd annual meeting in Raleigh this week.

She was chosen as one of the group's delegates to a national meeting of medical record personnel, also. Mrs. Wood is chairman of the Department of Medical Record Science at East Carolina University.

The report was to be presented today at the National Research Council-National Academy of Sciences meeting of the Committee on Problems of Drug Dependence held at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill.

The study was compiled by Drs. Smith, Charles P. Fogg of Boston University, Herbert Greenwald of Bridgewater State College and Richard LaBrie, an independent consultant-statistician.

The five elements assessed in 1969 were rebelliousness against rules and authorities as measured by a questionnaire, ratings of obedience, grade average, cigarette smoking and unfavorable attitudes toward cigarette smoking.

The tendency toward rebellion and cigarette smoking increased progressively from the no-drug group to the marijuana-only group and was greatest with the hard-drug users, the report said.

Better school marks, greater obedience and negative attitudes toward cigarette smoking were highest with the nonuse group and decreased progressively toward the students who started drug use early.

DONALSONVILLE, Ga. (AP)—Two men and a juvenile accused in the slaughter of a farm family last week are confined at an undisclosed south Georgia jail today awaiting a hearing to enter pleas.

A third man also charged in the case is in Pennsylvania where authorities are searching for a McConnellsburg youth believed slain.

All four appeared before a justice of the peace in Donaldsonville Monday and heard six counts of murder read against each of them. They are accused of the execution-style murders one week ago of Ned Alday, 62; his three sons Jerry, 35, Chester, 32, and Jimmy, 25; his brother Aubrey, 57; and Jerry's wife Mary, 24.

Arrested in West Virginia late last week and charged with the Alday slayings were Wayne

Coleman, 26; George Dungee, 35; Carl Isaacs, 19, and his 16-year-old brother, William. Authorities said Dungee, Coleman and Carl Isaacs escaped from a Maryland prison farm May 5.

Coleman reportedly has admitted shooting 19-year-old Richard Wayne Miller of McConnellsburg. He agreed to return to Pennsylvania to help search for the body. Authorities believe Miller was slain May 10 as he attempted to chase down three men in a stolen pickup truck.

Meanwhile, officials in the extreme south Georgia community of Donaldsonville expect a hearing for the four persons accused of the Alday slayings to be held within 10 days. At that time, each will be asked to plead guilty or innocent.

The four appeared before Justice of the Peace J. B. Bowen of Iron City to hear the charges read against them. All were handcuffed and heavily guarded. Some 15 state troopers watched as about 100 spectators gathered outside the Seminole County courthouse.

Sheriff Dan White, describing his jail as inadequate, said the defendants would not be jailed at Donaldsonville. He declined to reveal where they would be held but reliable sources said they were taken to the Randolph County jail in Cuthbert, 40 miles north of Donaldsonville.

During the arraignment, the younger Isaacs waived his rights to an attorney and to a committal hearing. The other three requested court-appointed attorneys.

Coleman smirked and smiled when asked by Dist. Atty. Ralph Foster if he understood each of the charges against him. The older Isaacs stared straight ahead during his hearing while his younger brother stood with his head bowed.

Dungee showed no sign of emotion.

The four were rushed from the courthouse at a near run through a cordon of state troopers. There was no attempt by any of the spectators to get near the defendants.

A spokesman for the Alday family said former Georgia Lt. Gov. Peter Zack Geer of Albany had been hired to assist Foster in the prosecution of the case.

Geer said he had known the Alday family "for years. I hunted and fished with Ned and Aubrey."

The next regular term of court in Donaldsonville is in October but there was speculation a special term might be called.

MCCONNELLSBURG, Pa. (AP)—Authorities say one of four men charged in the slayings of a Georgia family has arrived in this area to help search for the body of a 19-year-old local youth believed murdered May 10.

State police said Wayne Coleman, 26, was flown by chartered plane Monday night to Hagerstown, Md., from Donaldsonville, Ga., where he and three other men were arraigned on six separate counts of murder.

Coleman was met at Hagerstown by plainclothes state police officers from Maryland and Pennsylvania, but authorities declined to say where he was being held.

Police said Coleman agreed to return to Pennsylvania to help in the search for Richard W. Miller. FBI agents, police and volunteers have been combing rural areas of southern Pennsylvania and northern Maryland since last Friday for Miller's body.

State police said Monday that more than 200 persons searched Fulton and Franklin counties over the weekend with the hunt extending as far south as Hancock, Md.

FBI authorities said last Friday that Coleman, under questioning in West Virginia, had told of the slaying of Miller, missing since May 10.

Coleman, stepbrothers Carl Isaacs, 18, and William Isaacs, 16, and George Dungee 35, have been charged with murder in what police said were the execution-style slayings of the Ned Alday family of Donaldsonville, Ga.

Dungee, Coleman and Carl Isaacs escaped from a Maryland minimum security prison May 5, authorities said.

Witnesses here told police of seeing Miller chasing three men in a pickup truck owned by one of Miller's friends. The truck was found abandoned May 11 along U.S. 30, about five miles west of here.

Miller's auto turned up six days later, parked in front of a house trailer on a farm near Reynoldsville, Ga., where the bodies of six members of the Alday family were found.

Later, police in Alabama found a car stolen from the Alday farm. Inside the vehicle, they said, were two jackets reportedly belonging to Miller.

Reinsurance Facility's Future Hangs In Doubt

RALEIGH (AP) — The possibility of a deadlock between the House and Senate loomed today on legislation to abolish the assigned risk auto insurance plan in North Carolina and replace it with a reinsurance facility for high-risk drivers.

The Senate, which recalled the measure Friday, approved a substitute amendment Monday night and passed the bill again. It goes back to the House for concurrence in this and other Senate amendments.

One of the amendments reipped out a provision in the House bill which said no company could refuse to provide immediate coverage to an applicant for collision coverage.

House Speaker Jim Ramsey

said the House will not accept it without collision coverage. This could result in no agreement being reached before the General Assembly adjourns this week to reconvene next January.

No-fault auto insurance legislation already has been carried over to the 1974 session and unless agreement can be reached on the reinsurance facility bill, it could wind up being held over until next year.

When the measure came up Monday night, Sen. Jack Rhyne, D-Gaston, sent up a substitute for his amendment adopted last Thursday.

Under his proposal, no company selling collision insurance could refuse to make it available to an applicant simply because he had obtained auto liability insurance through the facility plan.

The amendment also says the company could not levy a surcharge or increased rate for collision coverage solely on the grounds that the applicant obtain liability coverage through the facility. Violation of the amendment would be a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $500.

Rhyne's earlier amendment would have directed the company to study an applicant's driving record before selling him collision coverage. If his record was poor it would be grounds for placing a 250 per cent surcharge on him for collision coverage.

Sen. Gordon Allen, D-Person, told the Senate, "I'm not sure that Sen. Rhyne's amendment does really anything. It does give the insurance commissioner the authority to call people (companies) in and harass them."

Sen. Lamar Gudger, D-Buncombe, suggested that the bill be approved without the Rhyne amendment, saying: "We could come back here in January and consider the amendment as a new bill."

Sen. Donald Kincaid, R-Iredell, opposed the Rhyne amendment. He said, "We've taken physical damage (collision) out of the bill. You'll be creating an atmosphere in which harassment could occur with this amendment. I don't see how the amendment would help."

Hardee's Wins Food 'Oscar'

CHICAGO (AP)—Leonard Rawls of Rocky Mount, N.C., president of Hardee's Hamburgers, has won the highest award of the food service industry. It's the IFMA Golden Plate of the International Food Management Association.

He was awarded the Golden Plate Monday night at the 19th annual IFMA convention, the first representative of the fast-food industry to be so honored.

Police Union Not Recognized

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP)—The Gaston County Board of Commissioners told rural policemen and sheriff's deputies Monday that it will not recognize or deal with their union as collective bargaining agent.

It cited a what it called a state law making it unlawful for a governing body to make an agreement or contract with a labor organization as bargaining agent.

Detective Ralph Miller, president of the local chapter of the AFL CIO policemen's union, said every man but the chief on the 42-man Gaston Rural Force has joined. He also said 95 per cent of the deputies have joined.

Canoeists Plan A Second Try

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)—Two Utah canoeists whose planned month-long voyage across the Atlantic to Portugal ended May 15 when they accepted a tow to shore say they will try again.

Mrs. Shirley Haycock, 40, of Price and Bob Geedy, 38, of Manti, say they plan to leave today on a two-day trial run to determine how their sail-rigged 16-foot canoe responds.

They said the load has been lightened and other "problems" corrected to achieve lighter weight.

The two were towed ashore a week ago some 10 miles from the point where they had set out the day before.

TIPS FOR CORN GROWERS FROM JACK CULLIPHER

Second in a series

Weed and Feed Your Corn in One Operation

Many successful corn growers have found a way to control weeds and grasses and give their crop a fertilizer boost at the same time.

At layby these farmers spray their fields with LOROX* linuron weed killer plus Surfactant WK in combination with a non-presurized nitrogen solution.

Here are some tips on how to make this application work for you. Use at least 2 lbs. of LOROX per acre. Make sure there's sufficient water (30 to 40 gals.) to wet the weeds thoroughly. Do not spray over the top of the corn plants.

This weed-and-feed operation lets you do two jobs in one trip. Your corn will get that late-season fertilizer boost that can increase yields. The LOROX plus Surfactant

WK application burns down emerged weeds. Then LOROX moves into the soil to control weeds as they germinate. You get economical control of cocklebur, pigweed, annual morningglory and fall panicum. Then LOROX disappears from the soil so you can rotate to any crop without worry.

Get rid of weeds and feed your corn crop at the same time. Apply LOROX plus Surfactant WK in combination with a nitrogen solution and get higher profits at picking time.
