Dr. Fountain Addresses Pitt Tech Graduates In Friday Ceremonies

Pitt Tech graduates were told Friday night, during their 1973 graduation exercises, that "The time has now come for you to acknowledge as your high duty, the challenge of excellence in your work and responsible citizenship in your community."

Dr. Ben E. Fountain, Jr., president of the N.C. Community College system, in his remarks to the 103 graduates, said, "You are now reaching the point in your life where you can give of your knowledge and skills to others perhaps in even greater measure than you have been receiving from your teachers, parents, and friends for many years."

Characterizing today's students as representatives of a cosmopolitan student body, anxious to participate actively in seeking solutions to the many complex problems which face our society today, Fountain said that a different kind of institution of Higher Education is required to serve them. He called upon the graduates to contribute your talents and experience in arriving at better ways and means of improving the Institute's service to students.

"Each of you have assisted in attaining for Pitt Technical Institute, a national reputation for new learning approaches developed in your institution."

"Teaching, once structured for group participation exclusively, is now tailored to the progress of individual students—12-month day and night operation, and scheduling of training programs and courses for enrollment and exits throughout the year."

Prior to introducing the 1973 candidates for degrees and diplomas, Dr. William E. Fulford, Jr., Pitt Tech president, remarked "opportunity" is not geographic; it abounds everywhere. "Opportunity abounds within you," Fulford said. "To let your capabilities lay idle, to permit your talents and skills to stagnate, or to find complacency in mediocrity is to deny yourself and those around you the very essence of what you have to offer to your community, the state, and the world," Fulford commented.

Two-year curriculum programs in which the Pitt Tech graduates received Associate in Applied Science degrees were Agriculture Business, Agriculture Chemicals, Architectural Drafting, Accounting, Commercial Art and Graphic Design, Electronic Data Processing-business, Business Administration, Secretarial Science, Electronics, Mental Health, and Police Science. Diplomas were

Skylab Mission Proceeds Parasol Problem Is Seen

By EDWARD K. DeLONG UPI Space Writer
HOUSTON (UPI) — The Skylab 1 astronauts unfurled a huge orange-and-silver parasol over their crippled space station Saturday but the fabric of the crucial sunshade failed to unfold properly.

Veteran mission commander Charles "Pete" Conrad reported to mission control that the parasol was not providing the expected amount of vitally-needed shade over America's first space station.

The 22-by-24-foot sunshade was hastily constructed to replace Skylab's main shield against solar heat, lost during launch May 14. It had been selected as the prime method of salvaging the $2.6 billion Skylab program.

Conrad, Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz carried a pair of awnings into Earth-orbit Friday as backups to the parasol should it fail to work. But, unlike the lopsided umbrella, both awnings required spacewalks for deployment.

In a five-minute contact with mission controllers in Houston through a tracking station in Hawaii, Conrad passed the news about Skylab's latest problem. Engineers at the Johnson Space Center quickly huddled to see what advice they could pass to the space repairmen.

"OK, Houston, we had a (mechanically) clean deployment," Conrad said. "But it's not laid out as it should be. The problem seems to be that the folds in the material have taken too much of a set."

Until Conrad and Weitz extended the parasol on a 21-foot handle through an airlock in Skylab's heat-seared side, the shade had been tightly folded like a parachute in a box eight inches square and 53 inches long.

As Conrad described it, the wrinkles formed in the parasol's nylon-and-plastic fabric while it was folded were so strong they overpowered the four spring-powered ribs that were supposed to snap out like an automatic umbrella and hold it flat.

"It is more fully deployed in the front," Conrad said. "But there are two folds, three folds, emanating from the center. So in effect we have a trapezoid which has its smallest dimension toward the base of the vehicle (space station)."

"We're open for suggestions," Communications between the astronauts and the ground were sparse because Skylab was passing within range of tracking stations only occasionally.

Before they ran into their latest problem, the astronauts trained their color television camera on the exterior of the space station in an effort to show their progress. They reported the task was progressing "slowly but surely."

The orange exterior of the big parasol, still tightly furled, was barely visible against the white Skylab with the blue-and-white of the cloud-covered Pacific Ocean. The emergency sunshade was being slowly pushed into space through an eight-inch-square airlock in Skylab's side.

"We're taking a little cooling break," Conrad told flight controllers during the seven-minute telecast. "It's pretty warm down there (in the space station cabin)."

The astronauts' repair efforts were hampered at first by the need to repack some flaps on the box holding the tightly-folded umbrella. But in general, Conrad reported, the going was "great."

The lopsided orange and silver parasol was designed to replace Skylab's main shield against solar heat.

Authoritative Sources Report Tap Knowledge Denied

By WESLEY G. PIPPERT WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Presidential aide John D. Ehrlichman has sworn he learned some weeks ago that John N. Mitchell and other key officials secretly discussed a specific proposal for bugging the Democrats' Watergate offices early in 1972, authoritative sources said Saturday.

The sources said Ehrlichman testified that he was told the plan for electronic surveillance at the Watergate was brought up at the last of a series of three or four meetings arranged to discuss campaign intelligence gathering.

The first of these meetings was said to have taken place late in December, 1971, or early in January, 1972, and to have been attended by Mitchell, then attorney general; White House counsel John W. Dean; Jeb S. Magruder, the deputy manager of President Nixon's re-election campaign; and G. Gordon Liddy, a former White House aide.

Some or all of these four persons were said to have been present at the later meetings and Ehrlichman said he was told Mitchell definitely was at the one where the Watergate bugging proposal was discussed—in February or March of 1972.

The sources said they could not positively say who Ehrlichman had identified as the source for his information, but that they thought he said it had come mainly from Magruder.

The sources said H. R. Haldeman, who resigned April 30 as White House chief of staff, was said to have testified separately along the same lines, although with less specific information.

Both Haldeman and Ehrlichman, who also resigned his White House job April 30, were said to have provided their information in making pre-trial depositions this week in the Democrats' $6.4 million civil damage suit against the Committee for the Re-Election of the President.

For their part, Haldeman and Ehrlichman both denied that they themselves had any advance knowledge of the Watergate conspiracy, the sources said, adding however, that both former presidential aides refused to answer any questions about an alleged effort to cover up the June 17, 1972, incident.

Mitchell has acknowledged that he told a federal grand jury investigating the Watergate bugging and break-in that he attended about three meetings early in 1972 where bugging was discussed. But he said he rejected all eavesdropping proposals and did not specify whether he had been present for any discussion of the Watergate planning.

The sources said Ehrlichman testified that two other proposals for political intelligence were presented for consideration by Mitchell and the others early in 1972, but that they were rejected out of hand. The sources could not identify these other proposals.

The sources said Ehrlichman testified that he first was told about the secret meetings late last March or early in April.

Cease Fire Still Hoped For Talks 'Disappointment'

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Henry A. Kissinger's top assistant in negotiations with the North Vietnamese said Saturday last week's talks between Kissinger and Le Duc Tho were a disappointment, but said he hoped a cease-fire would come to Cambodia "soon."

Deputy Assistant Secretary of State William H. Sullivan accused North Vietnam of wanting to rule all of Indochina, an ambition Sullivan said was the major obstacle to peace in the region.

Sullivan met Saturday with Cambodian government leaders before flying to Vientiane, Laos and to Bangkok for discussions with Deputy Foreign Minister Chantchai Chhunhawan. Earlier he conferred with South Vietnamese leaders on the Kissinger and Tho talks, which are scheduled to resume in about two weeks.

Sullivan was asked about the talks in Paris between Kissinger and Tho.

"It was not as satisfactory as we hoped," he said. "That's why we have to renegotiate again. We expected the fighting will stop. We expected North Vietnam to go out of Cambodia and Laos. We are going back to make them do what they have agreed to do when they signed the agreement."

He did not say how the United States would "make" North Vietnam adhere to the Jan. 28 Paris peace agreement. Ground fighting in Cambodia and U.S. air strikes have continued since the agreement went into effect. North Vietnamese officials have confirmed that an end to the conflict here was among the subjects discussed by Kissinger and Tho.

Kissinger said in Paris the negotiations had made progress, but Sullivan said Saturday North Vietnamese ambition to rule Indochina was the principle obstacle to peace in the region.

"North Vietnam wants to take over Indochina, that's the obstacle," he said.

Asked about prospects for a Cambodian cease-fire, Sullivan said: "I don't know, but we hope it will happen soon."

Alumni Of Year Award Presented To Mays At Saturday Luncheon

The highest honor of the year bestowed by the East Carolina University Alumni Association was presented Saturday to Robert A. Mays Jr., a Greensboro insurance executive.

Mays accepted the 1973 Outstanding Alumni Award in ceremonies highlighting the ECU Alumni Day luncheon program attended by more than 225 alumni and ECU faculty and staff. Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan, outgoing chairman of the ECU Board of Trustees, made the presentation.

Morgan himself received a special alumni award presented by Chancellor Leo Jenkins in recognition of Morgan's service to the university. Morgan, class of '47, attorney general and former state legislator, has been chairman of the ECU trustees since 1963.

Mays, a native of Hopewell, Va., and a 1951 graduate in music established himself as a campus leader at ECU (then East Carolina Teachers College) shortly after enrolling in 1947. He became "a favorite of students and faculty alike," Morgan said.

"During the next four years, Bob Mays endeared himself to audiences with his beautiful singing voice. He starred in several productions of the Music department where he made a very convincing leading man.

"Not all former college stars go on to become successful businessmen, but Bob Mays applied his collegiate energies and skills to the insurance field and is today the owner and president of the Mays Insurance Agency in Greensboro," Morgan said.

Mays together with his wife, the former Lina Worthington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam O. Worthington of Greenville, established the Robert and Lina Mays Award for Teaching Excellence at East Carolina in

"This annual award given to a faculty member who has excelled in classroom teaching, in research and in service typifies the kind of appreciation we have come to expect from Bob and Lina Mays," Morgan said.

Mays is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mays of Prince George Ave. Hopewell, Va., and he and his wife are parents of two children.

In Greensboro, Mays is a former director of the Tuberculosis Association, a former director of the State Association of Mutual Insurance Agents, a member of several committees of the Greensboro Chamber of Commerce, a member of the Greensboro Mutual Insurance Agents Assn., a member of St. Francis Church, the Serma Club, Elks Lodge and Sedgfield Country Club. He is a former president of the Greensboro Oratoria Society and a member of the board of directors of the Lyric Theater. He has sung in several theater productions including leading roles in "Camelot" and "H.M.S. Pinafore."

The Outstanding Alumni award is made by a selection committee of the ECU Alumni Association.

CIA Agent Back As Inspector General

By JOHN HALL
WASHINGTON (UP) — William V. Broe, the CIA agent who acknowledged broaching to ITT officials a plan to create economic chaos in Chile, has become the intelligence agency's inspector general and recently combed its records for Watergate-related documents.

Broe was reported to have resigned after his covert connection with the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. (ITT) was disclosed in 1971 by syndicated columnist Jack Anderson and was explored in March in public Senate hearings.

But Rep. Lucien Nedzi, D-Mich., chairman of a House Appropriations subcommittee on intelligence which took testimony from Broe this week, said Broe became inspector general of the Central Intelligence Agency in January.

Since then, Nedzi said, Broe has supervised a sweep of CIA records to determine whether they contain any further evidence suggesting CIA links with the Watergate scandal. Broe's duties are to review operational plans and serve as an "ombudsman" for CIA employees' complaints against their superiors.

Broe "had absolutely no knowledge of anything" about the Watergate case, Nedzi said, but did turn up last week six anonymous telegrams the agency received between July and January warning that the White House was trying to blame the CIA for Watergate.

The telegrams were traced to Watergate conspirator James W. McCord Jr., a former CIA agent convicted of breaking into and bugging Democratic headquarters June 17.

The Senate Armed Services Committee has made public a confidential memorandum in which the deputy CIA director, Lt. Gen. Vernon A. Walters, quoted former White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman as saying on June 23 that it was "the President's wish" that the CIA try to block an FBI investigation of an important phase of the Watergate case.

Broe told Nedzi's subcommittee he found the telegrams only last week and immediately called them to the attention of CIA Director James R. Schlesinger, who notified congressional committees charged with overseeing the CIA.

Nedzi quoted CIA officials as saying they "forgot" about the telegrams until Broe uncovered them.

Broe was the CIA's chief of clandestine services in Latin America when, he testified in March, ITT President Harold Genee offered at a secret meeting in July, 1970, to funnel $1 million through the CIA to political opponents of Marxist presidential candidate Salvador Allende in Chile.

Later, Broe said, he suggested to ITT Vice President Edward Gerry that his company and others with interests in Chile band together to disrupt the country's economy in an effort to deny Allende majority support in the Chilean congress.

President Has Barked Up The Wrong Tree

By JANET STAIHAR
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Some Washington hostesses think

President Nixon barked up the wrong tree when he warned a bachelor to watch out for "some of those dogs" at Capital dinner parties. "I'd rather sit next to a dog than a bug," retorted one Washington party-giver.

LITTER OF FAST CATS—Three newborn cheetahs relax in their incubator at an animal reserve near Stockbridge, Ga. The family in captivity is an uncommon event, no more than eight having been reported in the U.S. Their mother, Jackie, a five year old native of Africa is doing well. (AP Wirephoto)

Nixon found himself in the doghouse Friday after he chatted in front of news photographers with Lt. Col. John Dramezi of Tacoma, Wash.

Dramezi, a former prisoner of war, went to the President's Oval Office to present him a flag Dramezi made from a handkerchief and a blanket while in a North Vietnam prison.

As Nixon received the flag, he quipped: "He doesn't look like 40 years old, does he," and advised Dramezi to take all the invitations to Washington dinner parties he can get.

Then Nixon said, "Watch out for some of those dogs they have you sit by." He quickly caught himself and added: "No, there are some very nice girls in Washington."

The Washington social circuit yelped in disbelief.

A prominent administration hostess reached by telephone said, "It's staggering! I'm agghast! I'm going to have a drink! Goodbye!" And she hung up.

When told about the dog remark, a well-known Johnson-era entertainer, who, as did others, asked not to be identified, shot back:

"At the Nixon White House, yeah, but not at my parties!"

The attractive wife of Rep. William J. Stanton, R-Ohio, commented, "In some cases there are many more male dogs than female dogs. Fortunately, the President never gets seated next to the male dogs, and probably has his choice of female partners."

"As a wife of a man who has to get seated next to dogs or dolls, I'd like to say there are far more dazzlers than dogs. "I'm awfully glad I was in in the Johnson administration so I don't get in Nixon's kennel," Mrs. Stanton said.

Mrs. Walter C. Louchheim Jr., who is listed in the city's social register, also took umbrage at the dog remark.

"Washington is a town with few of those. Most of the women who entertain are 50 points ahead of those in any other town. They have looks, brains, and are very hep," she boasted.

Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, daughter of President Theodore Roosevelt chuckled: "Leave me out of it. I'm just an old gray mare."

Creech Speaks To Society

Harold Creech, director of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association, challenged members of the Pitt County Historical Society to become more involved in preserving area historical shrines.

Speaking on the general topic of Greenville's Past, Present and Future, Creech cited the contributions of the Cotanche and Evans families in the early history of Martinborough, as Greenville was originally called. In 1771, Susanne C. Evans deeded 100 acres to the town which provided 161 lots for sale at 50 shillings. The price was later lowered to 40 shillings. Creech provided members with a list of persons purchasing the lots, including date of deed and lot number. A map of the city with lots indicated was also distributed.

Creech believes that "the present for Greenville and Pitt County is good and should get better." He cited figures to indicate a growing list of new business establishments but warned that inducements must be provided to stem the large exodus of young people from the area once they complete their education.

Pres. Jack Lewis of Farmville announced that new officers would be named at the first fall meeting. No meetings are scheduled during the summer months.

Dr. Ralph H. Rives, program chairman, introduced the speaker.

Opportunity Is Asked For ECU Development

Dr. Leo Jenkins, Chancellor of East Carolina University, expressed hope Saturday that the university Board of Governors will provide "opportunity" and the General Assembly the financial support to permit ECU "to grow and develop to meet the needs of the people of this state."

Speaking at the annual ECU Alumni Day luncheon, Jenkins cited "strong evidence" that East Carolina has responded to "legitimate demands" to meet educational needs during the more than 25 years he has been associated with the institution.

The annual alumni meeting, he said, "is the time and place for us to reaffirm our devotion to alma mater and to pledge our support to its mission. Our mission remains unchanged—to serve—and we will never be satisfied until we at least try to serve all of our people."

"All we need is the opportunity from the board of governors and the financial support of the General Assembly and East Carolina University will continue to grow and develop to meet the needs of the people of this state."

Jenkins said that "one of my overriding concerns has been the breadth and adequacy of programs designed to respond not only to the traditional needs of the university's constituency but also to contemporary demands."

"It is fortunate that my many associates here join with me in establishing programs that are both flexible and dynamic." He added that no institution can command resources that will enable it to meet all possible requests for service. Such demands, he said, "must be properly evaluated, priorities set and commitment of limited resources made in the most responsible and far-sighted manner."

Retiring members of the ECU faculty and staff with 15 or more years of service to East Carolina University were to be presented special awards by ECU Chancellor Leo W. Jenkins. Retiring faculty and administration included Ralph F.W. Brimley, Education; Norman H. Cameron, Accounting; Audrey V. Dempsey, Business Education; Rachel H. Kilpatrick, English; and Wendell S. During a business meeting three members of the Alumni Board of Directors were elected. They are S. Russell (Russ) Cotton, Jr., Max R. Joyner, and Mrs. Frances Bunn Phillips.

Holshouser Cites Open Door Policy

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Holshouser said Friday night his administration has "demonstrated that we intend to open our doors to the people—all the people."

"I think we are showing that we care about people—regardless of their race, age, sex, party membership, place of residence or status of income," Holshouser said.

He spoke to about 400 black Republicans who attended a $100-per-couple banquet sponsored by the North Carolina Committee for a Two-Party System.

The idea for the committee came from civil rights leader Floyd McKissick and Holshouser's staff aide for minority affairs, Dr. Larnie Horton.

Horton said the money raised at the banquet will be used in registration drives aimed at convincing blacks to change their registration from Democratic to Republican.

"I'm not going to stand before you tonight and say that after less than five months, we've done the job," Holshouser said. "But I will say that a beginning has been made."

Wreck Reported Here Friday

Lucy Jane Staton, of Rt. 3, Greenville, was charged by Greenville police with failure to see safe movement after investigation of an accident Friday afternoon.

According to police, the Staton vehicle collided with a car being driven by John Rodney Schmidt of 609 Elm Street. The mishap occurred at the intersection of the 264-Bypass and Fourteenth Street.

Mrs. Staton was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of rib injuries and a possible ankle fracture. Damage to her car totaled $250, while damage to the Schmidt vehicle was $1200.

Dr. Fountain . . .

The invocation and benediction were given by Rev. Roy L. Turnage, pastor, Holy Trinity Methodist Church.

In paying tribute to the students, faculty, administration, and board of trustees of Pitt Tech for their accomplishments and high level of achievement, Community College President Fountain stated, "All of this apparent success would not have been possible without the strong commitment of the County Commissioners and the people of Pitt County."

Referring to the total community college system, Fountain told the graduates and their guests that enrollment in the system has grown from 6,000 students in 1958-59 to a projected 400,000 full-time and part-time students this school year.

Jordan Premier Is Named

By United Press International
Jordan's King Hussein Saturday named Zayd Rifai, an arch enemy of the Palestinian guerrilla movement who survived an assassination attempt by Black September terrorists, as premier of a new 18-man cabinet. He succeeds Ahmed Lawzi who resigned for health reasons.

Observers said the appointment of the 38-year-old Rifai to head the government would further exacerbate relations between Amman and the Palestinian guerrillas who were driven out of Jordan by Hussein's troops in September, 1970.

A the time, Rifai was Secretary of the royal court and was attacked by guerrilla publications as one of their main enemies in Hussein's entourage.

In Beirut, government sources said representatives of the Lebanese government and the Palestinian guerrillas met Saturday under Premier Amin Hafez to study ways of consolidating the peace agreements reached last week.

Walks Are Built At Workshop

The Greenville Jaycees, in coordination with the Eastern Carolina Sheltered Workshop, recently undertook a fund raising project involving the construction of sidewalks for handicapped students enrolled at the institution.

Jaycee project co-chairmen Ken Kirby and Carl Darden headed the effort to raise money for the sidewalk project through donations from local merchants and industries in the Greenville area, it was noted.

Major contributors, they announced, were Pepsi Cola, Union Carbide, Empire Brushes, and Dunn's Concrete. W. A. Dunn, owner of Dunn's Concrete, handled the construction.

Other donations, the chairmen pointed out, came from the Sheltered Workshop and the Greenville Jaycees. Dunn Concrete Co. began laying the concrete walkways last Friday and the project was expected to be completed during the week.

Howard Dawkins, director of the Sheltered Workshop, expressed his gratitude to the Jaycees for their efforts in the project. In the past, it was pointed out, students at the institution could not get to and from classes without having to walk through mud and water during inclement weather.

The Jaycees announced that in the future they hope to aid the workshop in constructing a concrete recreational area for students. The area would accommodate students in sports such as basketball, volleyball and badminton.

Why Do ECU Surveys Differ?

“With North Carolina standing 46th among the 50 states in the proportion of medical students to population, there is a clear need to increase substantially the number of North Carolina students studying medicine.

“The establishment of a two-year medical school at East Carolina University may be expected to increase interest of North Carolina students in the study of medicine and, by increasing opportunities for such study, contribute to this desired increase in interest.

“The shortage of physicians in eastern North Carolina is severe. The establishment of a medical school at East Carolina University may be expected to contribute in some degree to alleviating this shortage, mainly through increasing the number of eastern Carolina students studying medicine.

“Dr. Edwin W. Monroe as Director of Health Affairs, and Dr. Wallace R. Woole as Director of Medical Sciences and presumed Dean of the new School of Medicine seem qualified for their positions.

“The qualifications of the faculty members now in residence seem adequate.”

East Carolina University propaganda? Actually the above is quoted directly from a survey report issued by the Liaison Committee on Medical Education, representing the AMA and the Association of American Medical Colleges. The study was done in 1970 as planning progressed for establishment of the medical school on the ECU campus. It reads somewhat differently from the more recent report issued by the same Liaison Committee, which was anonymously, of course made available to selected newspapers of the state a few weeks ago; however, we have no doubt that the survey teams in each case were sincere in their evaluations.

The difference is that the survey team in 1970 was dealing directly with the situation at ECU. This year the evaluation was filtered through the unfriendly atmosphere of the Chapel Hill medical school. The fledgling one-year school at ECU had to be compared with the fully developed four-year school at Chapel Hill, with all of its immense resources emanating from the state treasury.

The other difference is the the 1970 team was evaluating the ground work laid at ECU for a two-year school of medicine and based on a more realistic budget for developing the school.

It is also interesting to note that this 1970 report is one that is often cited by establishment press of the state rejecting the idea of an ECU medical school. How they arrive at that interpretation we will never understand.

It must be obvious that so much of the information provided by authorities on medical education for guidance in developing the ECU School of Medicine is being misused by opponents of the school.

Is it any wonder that Robert Morgan, Dr. John Gambel and other fair minded citizens have complained about this unfair treatment?

Assistant To 3 Congressmen

By LYLE EDWARDS (The Gastonia Gazette)

GASTONIA—Herbert Lineberger worked 23 years in Washington as administrative assistant to three Congressmen.

Only once did anyone “get his goat” during all those years in the nation’s capital.

“I was working for Congressman Basil Whitener,” he said, “and a constituent telephoned asking for help. He was a businessman who had been on a trip to Mexico. He bought a goat, and he needed to get some papers signed at the Mexican Embassy so he could bring the goat into this country.”

The mission took two days, several trips to the embassy, 15 or so different forms to get signed, and the permission of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

“I think it was the most frustrating experience I had during the years I work in Washington,” Lineberger said. “All that trouble just to bring one goat into this country. I think it would have been easier to bring 100 people across the border.”

Lineberger rubbed shoulders with some of the most powerful men in Washington. He knew many Senators, Representatives and cabinet members on a first-name basis. Two of the young Congressmen, Richard M. Nixon and John F. Kennedy, later became President of the United States.

“I remember seeing Nixon many times in the cafeteria in the House of Representatives and got to know him quite well,” he said.

A Wrong Prediction

“I remember Kennedy when he was a Congressman from Massachusetts. He was tall and thin and his back was hurting him. . . People were saying he was going to give up his seat in the House and run for the Senate.

“I said to myself, ‘That man will never make it.’”

Lineberger worked first for Congressman A.L. Bulwinkle of Gastonia, who served 14 terms. He joined Bulwinkle in 1946, and after the Congressman’s death in 1950 remained as administrative assistant to his successor, Congressman Woodrow Jones.

When Jones decided to retire in 1956, Lineberger stayed on with Congressman Basil Whitener. He remained with Whitener for 12 years. They both retired on Jan. 1, 1969, after Whitener lost his seat to Congressman Jim Boyhill, a Republican.

Congressman’s Detail Man “My job was to take care of details that Congressman couldn’t do himself,” Lineberger explained.

There were thousands of people asking for favors. It was Lineberger’s job to get them.

He took visitors on tours of the capitol. He helped war veterans get pensions. He helped widows collect their husband’s insurance. He was the link between a citizen and his government.

Lineberger still gets calls for help. He still helps when he can. “Some people for personal reasons prefer to ask me to help them rather than to ask Mr. Brodyhill,” he said, “and I consider it a privilege to do it. I have contacts in Washington. I know which agency to contact.”

He recalls with affection and respect the men he worked for. All three, he said, were public servants of integrity and dedication.

When Whitener lost the 1968 election, Lineberger started making plans to retire. He hated to leave Washington, and could have remained, but he felt he had a duty to return to Dallas and live with his mother. So at the age of 48 with 28 years of federal service, he came home to North Carolina and hasn’t been back since.

Watergate Observations Lineberger said he is disappointed that President Nixon has been dragged down by the Watergate episode. He doesn’t believe the President is personally involved, but he said Nixon must assume the responsibility for what his appointees did.

“This is an example of what happens when people in high office shut themselves off from the public and the news media,” he said. “President Nixon is in trouble because he surrounded himself with a group of people and let them take care of the details while he was off on trips to Russia and China.

“I’ve seen it happen to Congressmen. It can happen to a sheriff. The trouble is that the people assume the power to act. Power begets power, and power often becomes corrupt.”

Lineberger said the shocking thing about Watergate is that “so many people in high places would condone a third rate crime and then would perjure themselves and destroy the reputation of others to cover it up.”

He has no desire to run for office himself. “I’m not the kind to be a candidate myself,” he said. “I’d rather stay in the background and let someone else take the limelight.”

Ironic Dilemma For Kissinger

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—When the FBI last week revealed the existence of 17 or more telephone taps to uncover national security leaks, Dr. Henry Kissinger’s aides suspected one of those taps was on Kissinger’s own phone—reflecting the morbid suspicions between Kissinger’s National Security Council (NSC) staff and the Haldeman-Ehrlichman palace guard.

In fact, Kissinger’s White House telephone was spared an FBI tap, at least in that particular phase of the running investigations by the FBI and other federal investigators of the NSC staff, ordered by the suspicious Ehrlichman-Haldeman “Berlin wall.”

Whether Kissinger’s telephone was spared in all other probes of the NSC is still not absolutely certain. In mid-1971 domestic policy chief John Ehrlichman was ordered by President Nixon to take control from the FBI of a complete new probe of leaked military and foreign policy secrets regarded by both Mr. Nixon and Kissinger as dangerous to national security. At that point, Ehrlichman launched a second secret investigation of Kissinger’s NSC—without asking Kissinger’s approval.

Ehrlichman’s second probe, moreover, was completed and filed without Kissinger being informed what, if anything, turned up.

In addition, there are unproved indications that members of Kissinger’s staff were under occasional secret surveillance from non-civilians in the Pentagon security apparatus.

In the public mind, these security probes of Kissinger’s staff—and perhaps Kissinger himself—have falsely linked Kissinger to the Watergate scandal. In his latest statement issued Tuesday night, President Nixon sought to break this linkage.

One clear reason for this presidential statement: growing speculation that Kissinger, Mr. Nixon’s prize exhibit throughout his White House tenure, might simply resign as public opinion unfairly dragged him ever closer to the Watergate disgrace.

The relationship between the Kissinger operation, on the one hand, and the Berlin wall of Ehrlichman and chief of staff H.R. (Bob) Haldeman on the other was always strained, distant and suspicious. As we have reported, Haldeman denied Kissinger’s aides normal White House perquisites, such as access to the White House mess and transportation.

Beyond that, Kissinger and his staff were regarded as virtual enemies by the crewcut bully boys manning the Haldeman-Ehrlichman offices.

The reasons are obvious. Kissinger was the only top White House aide with powerful ties outside the White House, both to Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York and to Eastern establishment intellectuals. The direct reason for the repeated security probes was Kissinger’s deliberate selection of some Kennedy-Johnson holdovers for the NSC staff, including liberal intellectuals who had difficulty getting maximum security clearances long before Mr. Nixon became President.

Added to this was Kissinger’s love of the spotlight—and the spotlight’s love of him—and the fact that he, not Haldeman or Ehrlichman, share Time’s 1972 man of the year award with Mr. Nixon.

Sunday Morning Notes

Greenville Utilities is owned by the city but run by a commission which has the authority once its members are appointed by the City Council.

It’s sort of a running joke between the councilmen and the commission as to who should take blame when things go wrong.

Other Editors Say The Effete Athlete

(Greensboro Daily News)

How Alibi Ike would feel about it, we have no way of knowing, but big-time athletes are going show-biz with a vengeance. According to a story in The New York Times, “a head of healthy hair is almost as import to a professional athlete these days as a pair of healthy knees”—the reason being that more and more athletes are supplementing their income generously by appearing in commercials to endorse a variety of products.

Endorsements by athletes are nothing new. The aura of glamor and mystery that surrounds the big-name professional has always appealed to advertisers, and as far back as the days of Cobb and Mathewson baseball players were lending their names—for a fee—in the service of greater sales.

But in those days, and until fairly recently, they associated themselves with such predictable products as cigarettes, chewing tobacco, beer and soft drinks. Things surely changed: now the athletes are raking in endorsement cash (from $3,000 to as much as $65,000) for smiling on behalf of hair sprays, shaving creams, hair-waving processes, laxatives, deodorants, colognes and other, similarly effete, grooming and health aids.

The lure of lucre is such that athletes will go to somewhat extravagant lengths to cash in. Dave DeBussche of the New York Knicks dyed his graying hair brown, and now you can see him washing it on television. Richie Scheinblum of the Kansas City Royals had his balding pate fixed up with a waving job—and promptly got traded to the Cincinnati Reds. And Bobby Hull of the Winnipeg Jets laid out $900 for a hair transplant that quickly produced a good contract for a shampoo commercial.

There is, needless to say, a certain professional justification for all this: after all, there is nothing an athlete could use more after a good afternoon’s sweat on the field of play than a shave, an after-shave, a deodorant, a cologne and a hair spray. Still, we can’t help wonder what John J. McGraw and Knute Rockne would have to say about the new image of the athlete as perfumed dandy. We suspect that what they would have to say would be vivid, direct—and entirely unprintable.

ALVIN TAYLOR

“I want to make it clear that the mayor has nothing to do with the operation, if things give trouble,” he told the audience.

Even though the Utilities Commission annually turns over funds to the city, commission members like to point out that the charter requires the city to provide fund is the Utilities Commission shows a deficit.

Foreign Legion Builds

By MORT ROSENBLUM Associated Press Writer PAPEETE, Tahiti (AP) — The Beau Geste generation wouldn’t believe it...the French Foreign Legion in hammocks and sarongs, building roads in the South Seas. And not a camel in sight.

The legion just isn’t the same old last resort for romantics and misfits spoiling for a fight. The main task is helping build facilities to test the nuclear weapons to outmode the legion’s style of battle.

The Tahiti contingent, officers here say, is one of the six remaining legion regiments. Only a unit in French Somaliland and another farther down the east coast of Africa in Madagascar are based outside of France.

And camels went out years ago.

“Yes, there are men who miss a good scrap,” said Lt. Col. Henri Riou, a 26-year veteran and the top legion officer here. “Today we are motorized, modernized. There is no more folklore.”

In Tahiti and in neighboring Polynesian islands, about 600 legionnaires work with 300 regular army men in a mixed construction unit. Their 5th Regiment standard, strung with ribbons from Indochina in 1880 and later North Africa skirmishes, hangs in the office of their commander.

The legion left Indochina almost two decades ago, and independence in North Africa ended France’s role there.

“We don’t want war again, but if it’s necessary, we’ll be in the first row,” said Riou, second in command. “But if there’s no war, we’ve got other things to do.”

The old movies don’t show it, but the legion’s mission has always been to build as well as fight. The legion cut roads all over France’s now dwindling empire.

Unforeseen Events Is Blamed

By JOHN CUNIFF AP Business Analyst NEW YORK (AP) — Those who claim to see equilibrium returning to the economy later this year are saying that the furious surge in prices during the first quarter was the result of exceptional circumstances.

These same circumstances, we are advised, will exert progressively less pressure on prices as the year wears on, and the economy will resume the sane, normal course plotted for it by the nation’s leaders.

The blame, therefore, is placed on unforeseen events, on “temporary forces,” as it was put by Herbert Stein, chairman of the President’s Council of Economic Advisers. No policy changes are required, Stein said in congressional testimony.

And what were these temporary phenomena that wrecked the plans? First, a spurt in food prices, Stein indicated, curiously confusing cause and effect. Yes, prices rose because prices rose, but why did they rise?

One reason was the sale of grain to the Soviets. Another was a sharp downturn in Peruvian fishmeal production, which caused expensive feeds to be provided to livestock. And there was poor weather.

Another explanation is that there was a surge in economic activity, which again sounds more like the effect of shortsighted economic policy rather than an explanation of why a sound policy foundered.

If it is the job of the Council of Economic Advisers to analyze probabilities and adjust their planning, why wasn’t the surge foreseen and appropriate action taken? A temporary lapse?

Next on the list of explanations is the dollar devaluation, which caused an increase in the price of imports, and then the shift of wage-price controls from Phase 2 restraint to Phase 3 confusion.

into planning. But the shift from Phase 2 to Phase 3 is entirely the administration’s doing.

So also is the administration’s responsibility for allowing fears to grow among buyers that sent them on a spending spree to avoid higher prices and the tendency of sellers to mark up prices in fear of another freeze.

But as Stein argues, “Most of these phenomena were, we believe, temporary,” and that brings up the question of what temporary phenomena might possibly intrude in coming months.

One possibility is that workers will become more adamant about raises. One thing that typical Americans cannot abide is the feeling they have lost ground, are worse off than a year ago. But this is so for many workers.

Another is that consumer plans might be more extensive than foreseen. A Conference Board study released today shows that, while consumers have grown pessimistic about business, their purchase plans are up sharply.

Strong consumer spending could, in turn, cause manufacturers to raise their capital spending programs, putting further inflationary pressure on the nation’s ability to meet demands. Or perhaps business will overcompensate and be left with huge excess capacity that could lead to recession.

While the worst is said to be over in regard to the food-price rise, a forecast made before by Stein, is there any assurance that a late summer drought, a wet fall or an early winter won’t raise havoc with food prices?

And what of the delicate psychological factors that so often affect markets, such as world opinion and the value of the dollar, and thus force changes in the best-laid plans for the domestic economy?

In its broadest terms, the psychological uncertainties relate to the question: Will the President be able to rally opinion behind his plans and convince people of the financial stability of the U.S.A.?

Strength For Today

IS THE WORST ON ITS WAY?

Lying on his death bed in 1852, the Duke of Wellington, conqueror of Napoleon at Waterloo, said, “I am glad I shall not live to see the consummation of that ruin which is gathering about us all.”

Actually, Britain was entering the greatest period of expansion and prosperity in her history. The Duke’s state of mind is typical of a mood which strikes men in every age. In the writings of the past are numberless prophecies of doom, none of which, of course, have come true.

We have much to discourage us today. Warfare in parts of the world, the threat of atomic destruction—all of these things tend to give us a gloomy outlook. But we can look back also and see that progress is being made in solving some of the world’s most difficult problems. We can be too pessimistic about the future. Let us be on our guard, of course, but let us remember that in the past the worst has seldom happened.

The Professor And His Identity Crisis

By JOHN P. EAST
(Professor, Ph. D.)

As even the casual observer of the campus scene is aware, the American college and university are undergoing today a crisis of identity. An understanding of the role and authority of the professor is the vital first step in attempting to solve the problem, for it is elementary that the faculty is the foundation of the whole college structure.

In defining the role of the professor, we must examine first some basic principles concerning the function of the college or university. Traditionally that basic purpose has been twofold: effective and creative teaching, and the accumulation and dissemination of knowledge through scholarship. Teaching and scholarship were considered equal in importance, and it was the task of the professor to perform with competence in both areas.

In recent decades the harmony of function between teaching and scholarship has been disrupted by the downgrading of the teaching responsibility, and the emergence of the "research" role at the expense of scholarship. This "flight from teaching," as Jacques Barzun calls it in The American University, has been carried to such lengths that he notes, "College and university teaching is thus the only profession . . . for which no training is given or required." Traditionally, creative teaching has been considered indispensable to quality higher education. This atrophy of emphasis on effective teaching has contributed to student apathy and restlessness on the contemporary campus, and most importantly, it is part of the crisis of identity confronting the professor today, for too often he does not know what, if anything, is expected of him in this crucial area.

Even scholarship, which supposedly would enjoy the prime position with the downgrading of teaching, has been eclipsed by the "research" emphasis. In terms of what they connote on the modern campus, there are subtle but fundamental distinctions between scholarship and research. Research can be a tool of scholarship, but it is not coextensive with it. Scholarship suggests depth and comprehensiveness of study, coupled with productivity, regarding a particular academic discipline, while research can imply data collection regarding particular problems, and the seeking of solutions to those problems. In brief, "research" is a by-product of the "relevance" emphasis which dominates today in many areas of American culture, including the campus. Where research is oriented to problem solving of the moment, and is often better carried on in off-campus institutes and centers, scholarship is nourished by the vision of the accumulation of knowledge for its own sake over the long pull. Scholarship is entitled to top-priority claim on college resources, for scholarship, unlike research, can thrive best only on the campus.

Today scholarship often finds itself on the defensive. With its emphasis upon knowledge for its own sake and the value of the long term, it is charged with being "irrelevant." For example, it is better to be occupied with research in solving specific urban problems, than to be immersed in Shakespearean scholarship. Scholarship implies aloofness, elitism, and the ornamental. To its critics, scholarship at best suggests quaint elegance, and at its worst, to use the "unkindest cut of all," it is "irrelevant." In brief, modern leveling and egalitarianism with a vision of Truth found and the Past decreed irrelevant, prefer "research" to "scholarship."

It is indicative of the temper of our time that it is necessary to defend scholarship per se. More particularly, why should intellectual excellence be end in itself? For those with a religious bent, John Henry Newman provided a succinct answer in his unexcelled classic, The Idea of a University. Newman wrote, "Nature and Grace, Reason and Revelation, come from the same Divine Author, whose works cannot contradict each other." That is, to engage in scholarship is to learn more about the Divine Order of things—no mean accomplishment and certainly nothing to be defensive about. In justifying scholarship in secular terms, it seems appropriate to ask if, for example, excellence in health and athletic achievement are considered legitimate ends in themselves (which generally they are), why not intellectual excellence? Certainly the critic of scholarship per se places himself in an awkward position to contend that the pursuit of excellence is natural and desirable in man, except in the domain of scholarship. Hopefully, the cult of mediocrity has not brought us, at least as yet, to promoting such a perverse doctrine.

Nevertheless, in this age of utilitarianism and sometimes anti-intellectualism, it will be necessary to defend intellectual excellence as having immediate utility. It is a burden not forced upon athletes or entertainers, but be that as it may, it is a challenge that defenders of the traditional college or university education must meet. What then is the utility of a developed intellect? Is this not what colleges and universities are supposed to be about? Is this not the end product of the principal functions of teaching and scholarship?

To define the cultivation of intellectual excellence is to demonstrate its utility. Newman wrote, "I hold very strongly that the first step in intellectual training is to impress upon a boy's mind the idea of science, method, order, principle, and system; of the rule and exception of richness and harmony." He continued that development of the intellect, "Teachers (one) to see things as they are, to get right to the point, to disentangle a skein of thought, to detect what is sophistical, and to discard what is irrelevant." Concerning the general utility of this, Newman concluded:

"The general culture of mind is the best aid to professional and scientific study, and educated men can do what illiterate cannot; and the man who has learned to think and to reason and to compare and to discriminate and to analyze, who has refined his taste, and informed his judgement, and sharpened his mental vision, will not indeed at once be a lawyer, or a physician, or a man of business, or a soldier, or an engineer . . . but he will be placed in that state of intellect in which he can take up any one of the callings I have referred to . . . with an ease, a grace, a versatility, a success, to which another is a stranger. In this sense then . . . mental culture is emphatically useful."

There is little reason to attempt improvement on Newman's clarity and eloquence. In our age of short memories and vertiginous change, he reminds us that old truths frequently must be restated.

III

Today in our preoccupation with utility, the practical, and the "relevant" in education we may have unwittingly seriously undercut the great tradition of college or university education. The tides of the moment are in favor of the technical school where practical training can be obtained for immediate employment in a given trade or craft. It is not to question that there is a vital public need for this kind of education. Indeed, it was a necessary corrective to the tendency in the post World War II years of thinking of a college education as befitting everyone. However, there is some reason to fear we may have gone too far in this direction, for it is not uncommon today to find bright and talented young people, clearly possessing the intellectual capacity to undertake college education, who are eschewing it for immediate technical and vocational training. Why? One of the primary reasons is because the colleges and universities have defaulted on their time-honored mission, which is to provide for the cultivation of intellectual excellence through creative teaching and scholarship.

We have degraded teaching as a vital function of the university professor, and we have too often allowed research, oriented solely to practical problem solving, to be substituted for the riches, joys, and enduring rewards of genuine scholarship. For the moment, some young people sense that what we are doing on the campus is not particularly important. Until we return to our principal historical functions, they are probably correct.

If the faculty should reclaim its traditional functions of teaching and scholarship, its proper authority, role, and relationship vis-a-vis students, college administrators, and the public would be clarified, and we would be taking a significant step in solving the identity crisis of the contemporary campus.

IV

In the academic community today there is growing misunderstanding concerning the professor-student relationship. Recent trends and pressures have suggested academic equality of student and professor. This perspective, rooted in political theories of leveling and egalitarianism, sometimes travels under the label of "participatory democracy." It is an insidious concept, wholly wrong, and it should be unequivocally repudiated.

The academic community cannot function as a democratic institution—if by democratic is meant academic equality of student and teacher. Traditionally, to preserve its integrity and basic mission, the university has been unashamedly aristocratic in the relationship between students and faculty. Not aristocratic in the sense of inherited privilege or the fripperies of nobility, but aristocratic in the sense of a natural aristocracy, in the belief that the professor hopefully has superior knowledge about the subject he is teaching, and in that regard he is superior to the student. As Richard Weaver in his Language is Sermonic concisely stated it, "By what act of arrogance do we set ourselves up as teachers? There are two postulates basic to our profession: the first is that one man can know more than another, and the second is that such knowledge can be imparted. Whoever cannot accept both should retire from the profession and renounce the intention of teaching anyone anything." Or as Jacques Barzun has forthrightly put it, "A good teacher will tolerate a certain overconfidence in undergraduates—that is part of pedagogy—but to make believe that their knowledge and his are equal is an abdication and a lie."

Let me not be misunderstood. Assuming it ever existed, I am not calling for the restoration of an autocratic or dictatorial relationship between professor and student. Indeed, I would consider that as dysfunctional to an effective teaching role which is enhanced by mutual rapport and relaxed discourse. I am contending that as regards knowledge, the classroom, and related academic matters, the professor is the superior of the student. If we must put it in political terms, the professor-student relationship should be based upon Platonic justice, and not upon leftist egalitarianism. By Platonic justice I mean the harmony that emerges when each performs his natural function, and each receives his natural rewards. Within this framework the student is entitled to a professor who knows his material, who presents it evenhandedly, effectively, and interestingly, and who, in displaying genuine interest in his students, treats them with balance and fairness. Justice demands these things, but it does not demand equality with students in terms of course offering and content, curriculum design, grading, credit, granting of degrees, faculty hiring and retention, or any other matter reasonably related to the functions of teaching and scholarship.

Moreover, a firm understanding of our roles and authority as teachers and scholars will enable us to understand that campus is not a sitting service or a therapy center for the unsettled children of the affluent. It may well be in some cases these children need sitting and therapy services. I am simply contending that the campus, as historically conceived, is not the appropriate setting for the administration of these needs. In John Henry Newman's inimitable style, "Do not say, the people must be educated, when, after all, you only mean, amused, refreshed, soothed, put into good spirits and good humour, or kept from excesses . . . We must carefully distinguish, Gentlemen, between the mere diversion of the mind and its real education."

If my teaching experience is a valid index, I have confidence that the overwhelmingly majority of our college and university students will accept and respond accordingly to this concept of the professor's role. They accept it because intuitively they understand it is rooted in reality and the natural order of things. It is the professors, confused about their roles, and lacking in confidence, who have created the imbalances on the contemporary campus. When the faculty abandons its role of the superior in matters academic, it invites student intrusion into these vital and delicate areas. If the faculty will reassert its legitimate authority, there is reason to believe the students will respond favorably. To that small minority which will demand academic equality with their professors, we have that firm standard offered by Samuel Johnson in 1772 on the dismissal of six students from Oxford: "What have they to do at an university who are not willing to be taught, but will presume to teach? . . . I believe they might be good beings; but they were not fit to be at the University of Oxford."

V

Similarly, if the faculty should reclaim its teaching and scholarship functions, its relationship with college administrators would be clarified, and the end result would be positive and healthful. With the denigration of teaching, and the eclipse of scholarship by research, the professoriate became disoriented, and came to covet campus administrative posts as the prestige positions. This lusting after administrative power in itself was not particularly alarming (such proclivities are as old as the human condition), but it was a symptom of the malaise on our campuses resulting from the downplaying of teaching and scholarship.

Administration is a vital function. I am merely contending it is not the legitimate domain of the professor. Often by interest, talent, and temperament, the professor is ill-equipped to be an administrator. Initially, the professor came to his profession because of his love of knowledge in a particular discipline, and because of his commitment to teaching and scholarship. Often the professor looks unseemly and out of his element when he forsakes his original reasons for entering his chosen profession and hankers after bits and pieces of administrative power. Manifestly, he is confused and disoriented as to his legitimate function, and a result of his surge for administrative power is a disruption of his proper relationship with bona fide administrators.

Fear That Power May Be Won By Congress Hit Money Markets

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

The thing about Watergate that upsets the money markets, both here and abroad, is that the Democratic-run Congress might comeout as a big political winner.

If the exposures do cripple President Nixon's leadership, cost in public confidence and support beyond repair, then power will swing to Congress. Nixon will lose the thin veto margin he has counted on to get the budget under control. The big spenders, the inflation makers, will have won their battle.

This is the key reason for the spreading gloom over the outlook for an otherwise booming economy. It accounts, in large measure, for a sick stock market at a time when profits are soaring. Foreign holders of dollars try to get rid of them, so bid up gold.

The fact that the Watergate mess is involved in a deep and bitter struggle for power in Washington tends to be obscured as the drama unfolds on TV. The surface appearance is that of a careful investigation, non-partisan, searching out the truth of what has been called the scandal of the ages.

This is porper. The story belongs on the record, regardless of who gets hurt. And few could quibble with the way North Carolina's Senator Sam Ervin is running the investigation. His judicial approach keeps the politics muted-off stage.

But it should be remembered that the Democratic Congress, especially the Senate, had declared war on the President long before the 1972 political season. Spending was at the heart of the so-called "confrontation" battle, although the issue found expression in many ways. In fact, the nation witnessed a "if-we-can't-have-our-pork, you-can't-have-your-war" brand of statesmanship.

The November election was taken as public approval of Nixon efforts to get spending under control and move toward an end to the near 40-years of deficits which have now exploded by pushing buying power beyond the nation's ability to satisfy the swollen demand at stable

Thus, besides a genuine desire to cork security leaks, Kissinger acquiesced in wire taps on his own staff because he felt highly vulnerable to repeated Ehrlichman-Haldeman slurs that his staff was responsible for the leaks. Nevertheless, these security probes grew so onerous in 1971 that intimates say he considered quitting.

His dilemma now is far greater. Having lost the support of the liberal intellectuals who attack him today with indecent relish, he has no intention of trying to exonerate himself by a public proclamation of innocence. That, say Kissinger intimates, would indicate a sense of guilt he does not feel.

Kissinger could and did defend his suspect liberal aides, particularly Morton Halperin, whose nine-month stint as a top Kissinger aide ended in September 1969. But he may have too much pride to publicly defend himself.

The irony is painful. Kissinger, collaborator with the President in most of what is fruitful and valuable in the Nixon administration, is being smeared with the muck of Watergate, and affair with which he had no connection. If he should now reach the point where he loses his effectiveness, or decides to quit, Watergate will have devoured its first innocent victim.

Smart Money Still Says Senate Is Morgan Goal

decade ago, some Polynesians decided to keep the legionnaires away from their women. That was the last fighting the legion did here, and it didn't last long.

Now most legionnaires spend their leisure hours under the palms fishing, swimming and reminiscing about chasing guerrillas across deserts.

Some have retired early to settle here with their girlfriends and wives. Tahitian families consider legionnaires good catches because they build a good house and pay the bills.

As always since the legion was formed in 1831, only the officers can be Frenchmen. Legionnaires here have dozens of nationalities and background and, Riou says, the changed role around the world hasn't hurt recruitment.

Col. Alfred Baltzenjer, the regiment's commander, says he finds the legion admirably suited to its new role here.

"In Polynesia, at least, the legionnaire can still follow his dream. But, anyway, these men are professionals and they do what is required. We have no discipline problems here.

"To the legion, the word 'exceptional' is very, very important."

Morgan and The Charlotte News got their wires crossed.

A News reporter wrote last Monday that Morgan had told him that he was running for the U. S. Senate against Sam Ervin—and that he would not resign his position with the Justice Dept. to seek that Senate post.

When I saw the story I knew that a denial had to be forthcoming and quick. I don't know what Morgan told The News reporter, but I do know it's too early to announce for next year's political campaign.

Those announcements are given in very heavy press conferences, where radio, TV and newspapers from all parts of the state are represented. Politicians refer to it as their last free publicity before the election.

Anyhow, Morgan did deny The News' report, saying the reporter must have misinterpreted something that he had said. No matter what was said between Morgan and The News, the smart money still says Morgan is going for the U. S. Senate.

It will be interesting to see how Gov. Jim Holshouser and Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt, those two being from different and highly competitive political parties, get along now that the Legislature is out of session.

Hunt told this column earlier in the week that he hopes the Governor will allow him to work in areas where he should be working.

Gov. Holshouser will have to handle this situation with a touch of class. The members of his own Party, particularly those who might be interested in running for Governor in 1976, certainly don't want him to give Hunt much of a chance to be a hero.

Holshouser could get bad reaction from the public, however, if appearances are given that he is completely leaving Hunt out in the cold.

I look for Holshouser to remain on cordial relations with the lieutenant governor and be very careful not to offend him any more than you might suspect would be natural in this kind of situation.

Public Approval Of Nixon's Performance Hits New Low Point

By GEORGE GALLUP

Copyright 1973, Field Enterprises, Inc. All rights reserved. Republication in whole or part strictly prohibited, except with the written consent of the copyright holders.

PRINCETON, N.J.—The American public's approval of President Nixon's performance in office continues to plummet and now stands at his low point to date—45 per cent.

This nationwide Gallup survey was conducted shortly after the President's televised April 30 speech dealing with Watergate. Generally, an overt action such as this, by a President, serves to boost his popularity rating. But in this case it fails to check a three-and-one-half-month decline in Nixon's popularity. The current figure represents more than a 20 per cent point drop in Nixon's popularity since it peaked at 68 per cent following the announcement of the peace agreement with North Vietnam in late January.

Besieged by inflation, particularly of food prices, disapproval of his Southeast Asia strategies in Congress by groups who had previously proved receptive to his policies, and particularly the ubiquitous Watergate affair, Nixon still maintains his previous level of approval among his own party members. Three-fourths of those in the survey calling themselves Republicans (74 per cent) approve Nixon's handling of his job.

Among Democrats, though, only about one person in four (24 per cent) approves, and slightly less than half the independents (49 per cent) agree.

The Watergate affair, never an issue during last fall's presidential election campaign, is now high on the list of most important problems the public feels are facing the nation.

According to a Gallup survey, also taken after the President's speech and released earlier this week, the issue of corruption in government-Watergate ranks virtually equal with the problems of crime and drugs as important ones with which Nixon must deal. The high cost of living continued to easily top the list.

Nixon, never particularly popular with minorities, receives his lowest rating from non-whites with less than one in 10 approving. Others giving Nixon low marks include young people (41 per cent); manual laborers, both skilled and unskilled (41 per cent); those with less formal education (39 per cent); and persons at the low end of the income scale (38 per cent).

The President is most popular with those in the professions and business (54 per cent); other white-collar vocations (53 per cent); the college-educated (47 per cent); those in upper-income brackets (56 per cent); and older people (46 per cent).

Nixon's popularity, under 50 per cent only once since early 1972 and before Watergate became an issue, has now registered below that mark on two consecutive surveys. Interestingly, as the President's popularity declines, there has been no large corresponding rise in the per cent of people having no opinion. The percentage of those disapproving is up 17 per cent since late January to the present level of 42 per cent—the highest disapproval rate ever recorded for Nixon.

Nixon's current level is, however, not the lowest percentage ever recorded in continuing Gallup audits of presidential popularity. Both President Truman and Nixon's predecessor, Lyndon Johnson, recorded lower approval ratings from the public—23 and 35 per cent, respectively. These levels were recorded, however, when both the Truman and Johnson administrations were mired in highly unpopular, undeclared wars.

Here is the question asked in the current survey, as in all previous surveys on the subject since the late 1930s.

"Do you approve or disapprove of the way Nixon is handling his job as President?"

Following is the trend since the beginning of the current year:

	Approve	Disapprove	No Opinion
May 4-7	45%	42%	13%
April 27-30	48	40	12
April 6-9	54	36	10
March 30-April 2	59	32	9
Feb. 16-19	65	25	10

Jan. 26-29	68	25	7
Jan. 12-15	51	37	12

Nixon Popularity Index Per Cent Who Approve

Current	45%
Average in current year	56
Average since taking office	57
High since taking office (recorded Nov. '69 and Jan. '73)	68
Low since taking office (recorded May '73)	45

Other Presidents Per Cent Who Approve

	High	Average	Low
President Johnson	80%	35%	54%
President Kennedy	83	57	70
President Eisenhower	79	49	66
President Truman	87	23	46

QUESTION: Do you approve or disapprove of the way (name of incumbent) is handling his job as President?

The findings reported today are based on interviews with a total of 1,531 adults. In addition, interview in person in more than 300 scientifically selected localities during the period May 4-6.

A recent check on immunization levels in Pitt County school-age children has revealed dangerously low levels of

Director of Pitt County Community Health Department.

The check of the number of children with adequate protection against these diseases by a field representative of the Immunization Department of the N.C. State Board of Health showed that 20 per cent of school children surveyed have not received even two doses of oral polio vaccine. Approximately 35 per cent of preschool children, who are prone to getting polio, are also not adequately protected against this dread disease.

It is the recommendation of the Pitt County Community Health Department that any school age child who has not had an oral polio booster within a year (or has had fewer than five doses of polio vaccine by age six, be taken to the family physician for an immunization against polio in the next few months. While the parent is making this visit to the physician for this protective immunization, they should also make sure that the child or young adult has had adequate, recent protection against diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough (DTP shots), a regular measles and a German measles vaccine (which is requested by State Law before entry to school), as well as any other immunization deemed necessary by the family physician.

For those families who cannot afford this service, the Health Department will continue its immunization program for Pitt County residents at the Greenville Health Center from 9 a.m. to Noon and 1 to 5 p.m. daily, and at the five rural mini-clinics, whose dates and locations are as follows:

Griffton: Monday, 9:30 a.m. to noon; 1 to 4 p.m. Located across the street from City Hall.

Farmville: Tuesday, 9:30 a.m. to noon; 1 to 4 p.m. Located in the white house on the corner of the Junior High School grounds.

Bethel: Wednesday, 9:30 a.m. to noon; 1 to 4 p.m. Located on the old Bethel Union High School grounds in the old Home Economics building.

Ayden: Thursday, 9:30 a.m. to noon; 1 to 4 p.m. Located in the Community Building, East 2nd Street.

Grimesland: Friday, 9:30 a.m. to noon. Located in the Fire House in the City Hall Building. "It's imperative," said Dr. May, "that we keep our immunization levels up to date, and that these immunizations be posted on the child's school health record. This is the only way we can prevent polio diphtheria, tetanus, whooping cough, measles and German measles in Pitt County—and this we must do for our children's sake!"

Soil Stewardship Week's Theme Set

"Changing Challenges" is the theme of this year's Soil Stewardship Week," it was announced by Robert G. Little, chairman of the Pitt Soil and Water Conservation District.

Little said that in the U.S., the soil stewardship origin goes back to the Rogation Days which were first observed in the neighborhood of Vienne, France more than 1,500 years ago.

He explained that in 1946, the publishers of Farm and Ranch magazine suggested to religious leaders in a few southern states that one Sunday be set aside each year to remind their congregations of man's duty to be a good steward of the land.

Beginning in 1954, the National Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts accepted the responsibility of sponsoring Soil Stewardship Sunday, and undertook to encourage a nationwide observance, Little said. The observance was changed in 1956 to Soil Stewardship Week.

The observance this year is from May 27 through June 3, Little said. He commented, "The North Carolina Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts is very anxious to have as many churches as possible observe Soil Stewardship Week."

Salt Cellar Was The Barometer

RACINE, Wis. (AP) — In 17th-century England you always knew where you stood even when you were sitting down. The Goddard Co.'s James Thornton, consultant on silver care to the royal palace of Great Britain, points out that the salt cellar was the social barometer of the table. If you sat below it you were a nonentity; if you were seated between it and the head of the table your status was secure — and undoubtedly your credit rating as well.

Nowadays collecting old salts, especially silver ones, can be a costly hobby. Eighteenth-century examples go from $1,500 to $4,000 a pair.

A blasting ap contains enough explosive to blow off a hand or blind a person permanently.

D.H. Conley HIGHLIGHTS

By MARY L. BRANCH
It has been a great honor for me to write this column this year. Working for one's school is one way to represent it.

James Robert Carraway, principal, has been doing a fine job, along with his assistants, in keeping things orderly at school.

The annual staff worked hard under the direction of Mrs. Barbara McLawhorn in getting the 1973 Valkyrian published.

The journalism class, with the help of Mrs. Helen McCfanahan, has been busy with the school newspaper, "The Shield".

The cookout given by Ron Braxton's IPS class was very successful. Awards were presented to physical science allstars by Mr. Braxton.

Receiving awards were: Mike Clendenen, student of the year; Patty Mills, Mike Nobles, Donna Meeks, Eddie McLawhorn and Vernon Sherman, recognized for their hard work and good grades; Jo Ann Hines, medal of achievement; Jackie Costin, second place for achievement; Skipper Eure, most likely to succeed; Frank Nelson, service award medal; William Smith, most improved student.

The carpentry class has been making candle holders, cow feeders and chairs. They are currently drawing house plans.

Several speakers spoke to Mrs. Beverly Wilson's class this week on the subject of religion. They include: The Rev. Christian White of St. James Methodist Church; the Rev. Chester Phillips, Grace FWB Church; Capt. A.L. Smith, Salvation Army; Mrs. Cora Streep, Christian Science; the Rev. Mike Brooks, Church of Christ; the Rev. J.H. Taylor, Tabernacle Baptist; the Rev. Thomas Davis, general secretary of the Albemarle Presbytery office.

Mrs. Beulah Mebane and Mrs. Eva Rountree accompanied their classes on tours to the following places this week: Ameritogs, Inc., Ayden, Walter B. Jones Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center; Pitt Memorial Hospital; Pitt County Health Department.

The athletic banquet was held Thursday night when awards were presented to players, cheerleaders and the most dedicated student in basketball.

A spring choral concert was held Wednesday night at Conley, under the direction of Mrs. Betty West.

The Professor . . .

The cultivation of excellence in instruction and in scholarly pursuits requires seclusion and quiet. It requires freedom from excessive administrative duties. In our culture oriented to action and administrative power as the ultimate values, this setting will not be to the liking of most people. To those professors who cannot accept the vows of seclusion and quiet which are attendant upon quality teaching and scholarship, I would suggest, as did Samuel Johnson with his students at Oxford, that they seek satisfaction elsewhere—perhaps in the administrative and bureaucratized world of government and business. Russell Kirk has summed it up well: "The lover of wisdom must not drink deep from the cup of power."

VI

Finally, if the faculty would restore its teaching and scholarship functions, its badly deteriorated relationship functions, with the public would be improved. Robert Nisbet in The Degradation of the Academic Dogma refers to that vital "social contract" which exists between the public and the academic community. Under this contract the professor is granted academic freedom, which is the right to free intellectual inquiry in the pursuits of teaching and scholarship, and in return the faculty is expected to engage in the pursuit of excellence.

The public implicitly understood that academic freedom was just that—freedom, not license. In this regard, for example, the public is sound in its visceral rejection of the faculty contention that the use of obscenities by students in matters academic, such practices are obstacles to the pursuit of the university's prime mission because they destroy civility, an indispensable ingredient to genuine teaching and scholarship.

Moreover, the public did not consider academic freedom as a privileged sanctuary or launching pad for unrelenting and doctrinaire assaults upon society's established mores and institutions. Balanced, reasoned, and proportioned criticism, essential to teaching and scholarship, the public was more than prepared to accept, but it never understood its arrangement with the professoriate to be an installment contract whereby society was expected to finance its own dissolution, and thereby ironically the very setting which had afforded genuine academic freedom.

Undeniably, in some quarters the academic community has breached its part of this contract with the public. Some faculty made the strategic error of following those purist colleagues who contended that academic freedom was an unlimited invitation to license, and to doctrial and mindless attacks upon American society. The public correctly understands that these matters are not what the social contract involving academic freedom is about. Furthermore, and most embarrassing to professors who ought to be the experts in academic matters, the public perceives that license and doctrial fanaticism are antithetical to balance in teaching and excellence in scholarship.

This breach of contract on the part of some faculty is a matter of grave concern, for it erodes public confidence and support, indispensable elements to the survival of higher education. The professor can afford some estrangement from students or administrators, but to deliberately alienate the public is mischievous and tragic, and ultimately could be fatal. It has become an accepted part of American life for the public to regulate those institutions which have become abusive and disdainful of larger public interests. This has been true, for example, of government control and regulation of corporate and union excesses. Certainly, there is nothing sacrosanct about the campus, and if abuses and perversions of academic freedom continue, those with a grip on commonsense and reality will not be surprised if the public intervenes and attempts to restore academic freedom to its proper dimensions. It is a familiar theme; those who will not keep their own house in order often will find the public via government or other avenues asserting what it feels are its legitimate interests. In a democratic society, premised upon the idea of popular involvement, it cannot be otherwise.

In most societies academic freedom is at best limited and fragile, and often it is nonexistent (for example, look at the current plight of intellectuals in the Soviet Union). In America, academic freedom has been a treasured reality; something to be revered and jealously guarded. It is then lamentable to see the academic community, containing those very people benefiting the most from this earthly rarity, dissipating it through abuses and excesses.

If the American college and university are to recover from the crisis of identity, they will have to restore the faculty, the cornerstone of the academic community, to the basic tasks of teaching and scholarship. Teaching will have to be restored to its deserved place of eminence, and scholarship, where it has succumbed, will have to be reclaimed from the provincialism and narrowness of the type of "research" previously discussed. In sum, if the faculty rediscovers its proper role and authority, the campus identity crisis will resolve itself, for professors will turn to instruction and academic matters, administrators will address themselves to the pressing administrative problems of the modern campus, and hopefully the students will learn the ineffable and enduring rewards of developing their minds through the pursuit of intellectual excellence.

CIA Budget Said Under $1 Billion

LAMOURE, N.D. (AP) — A member of the Senate watchdog committee for the nation's spy agencies said Friday night that the budget for the Central Intelligence Agency is less than $1 billion a year.

Sen. Milton R. Young, R-N.D., said in an interview that the overall annual budget for the three top American intelligence agencies — the CIA, the Defense Intelligence Agency and the National Security Agency — is about $3 billion and the CIA receives the "smallest portion of that figure."

The $3 billion figure is about half the estimate used by some critics of the Defense Department and its related agencies.

Refuses To Taper Off Bob Hope Hits 70 This Week

I'm not announcing that," Hope said in an interview at his Toluca Lake home. "I'm going to do Jack Benny's routine, only I'm going to go to 49 and be very large about it."

Hope, whose birthdate is May 29, keeps busy with benefit shows and TV specials. He has two more years to go on his fifth five-year contract with NBC, which calls for a minimum of six specials a year. "We've been averaging eight," he said.

When the contract expires, will he taper off?
"It all depends on how I feel. You know, they make things so attractive, just like this Vegas deal. You sit around and say, 'Gee, I don't know. I'd like to get in on that.'

"I like the excitement, and when they come up with the offers they do, I've got to try a little of that."

MGM wants Hope to make his Las Vegas debut at the opening of its Grand hotel next fall. "It's very promising," Hope said. "They are very charitable-minded, and I think I can help the Eisenhower Medical Center."

The medical center named after the late former president, in Palm Springs, Calif., is Hope's pet philanthropy. "I've been asked to play over there for the last 25 years but I've never had time. If you ever went back over my schedule in the last 20, 25 years, well, 35 years since I started making pictures, I've just been too busy. I've never had two or three weeks open."

Of Leslie Townes "Bob" Hope, someone said, "if he had to live his life again, he wouldn't have time."

"Yeah," agrees Hope. "It's been a little hectic but I lined up the schedule so I can't blame anybody.

"But I've enjoyed it. I've enjoyed every bit of it. I don't suffer from nerves or anything, which is lucky. Otherwise, I couldn't keep that kind of a schedule. In fact, I think that schedule has kept me in pretty good shape."

Hope, from 1964, spent each Christmas in Vietnam entertaining U.S. servicemen. With the end of American troop involvement there, Christmas 1972 was his last such excursion for the USO.

But he's not turning in his passport. "My next show, I think, will be an international show. We have film from Japan and Korea and Paris, and now I think I might even take a fast trip for about a week and go to Russia and Yugoslavia and maybe London."

He is planning a "Christmas in America" trip which will involve shows at veterans and military hospitals.

Through the years, said Hope, he hasn't tried to change the brand of his humor, and he doesn't see any need to alter his style.

"We talk about topical events all the time," he said. "We're talking about the food prices and things that are hot today. As long as you can keep on top of them, I think that's been the success of our show. We've always dealt with headlines. My monologues have been an average of eight minutes long, and in the sketches we've always tried to do the thing that's hot."

He conceded that much of the news doesn't lend itself to comedy "but there's always stuff that you can use. For instance, I said, 'I may have to go back to Vietnam next year just to do a show for the fighting peace negotiators.'"

Is there anything Hope wants to accomplish?
He joked, "I'd like to invent a 28-hour day (pause) so I could get about four more hours of golf in."

"Seriously, I think where I'll go is in producing, producing and directing. I've been around the picture business for so long ...

"I think there's always room, and I think there will be more room for just good family-oriented pictures. There's got to be."

The No. 1 part-time resident of Palm Springs, in the desert about 100 miles southeast of Los Angeles, is looking forward to becoming a permanent resident at the place where his annual Desert classic golf tournament is played as a benefit for the Eisenhower Medical Center. Construction may take about 18 months to finish the 28,000-square-foot hilltop mansion, a huge concrete-domed structure.

"I have no plan to semiretire, but we might move down there and make it our permanent place.

The $2-million home "is a large joint," said Hope. "But actually I don't think it's any bigger than this place."

The Toluca Lake home is complete with a one-hole golf course.

He said his wife, Dolores, designed the new home "so I could have an audience. We could book the Shrine convention. We may have the Lions and the Christians for the opening ... nothing like having your own Astrodome, is there?"

TV Notes

NEW YORK (UPI) — Notes to sustain male chauvinist football nuts through the summer:
"NFL Monday Night Football" on ABC begins its fourth season Sept. 17 with a N.Y. Jets-Green Bay game in Milwaukee. Thirteen games at 9 p.m. Mondays through Dec. 9.
CBS will televise 83 NFL regular-season games beginning Sept. 16, but there will be three pre-season games aired at night on Aug. 31, Sept. 6 and Sept. 9.
NBC will telecast a total of 90 NFL games (mostly those of the AFC division of NFL), including pre-season and post-season contests. Pre-season games are at night, Aug. 18, Aug. 24 and Sept. 1.

The Public Broadcasting Service's New York outlet, WNCT-13, has been given a combined grant of $2 million by the Exxon Corporation and the Corporation for Public Broadcasting for presentation of a "Theater in America" series in the 1974-75 season. There will be 18 to 20 dramas broadcast nationally on the PBS network of some 200 stations. Various regional theater groups will contribute some of the plays. There also will be rebroadcasts of previous WNCT-13 plays.

ABC has three new weekly summer replacement series on tap. "Thicker Than Water," starring Julie Harris and Richard Long, begins June 13. Based on an English series, it deals with a sister and brother of contrasting outlooks who are forced to cooperate in running an inherited pickle factory. "Love Thy Neighbor," another borrowed British idea, begins June 1; a humorous look at what happens when a black couple moves into a white neighborhood. "The Burns and Schreiber Comedy Hour" bows June 30 with Jack Burns and Avery Schreiber engaged in contemporary comedy. A fourth summer series, due Aug. 3, is "The Corner Bar," a revised version of the program that ABC used as a summer fill-in in 1972.

JACK GAVER

Their First Special

COMICS Jack Burns and Avery Schreiber meet head-to-head in their first one hour special to be telecast June 22 over ABC-TV. This will be followed by the start of their first weekly series which makes its debut on the same network June 30. The duo will introduce a number of new characters they've created, including two monks plagued by strange vicissitudes; Jack as a would-be, but singularly unsuccessful Romeo, and both comics as two long-time Irish pub-crawlers.

Primitive Show In Washington Mall

Cadenza - 1973, Literary and Art Magazine, Mars Hill College, Mars Hill, N.C. 28754, 48 pps. illustrated (price not given); and Crucible, Spring 1973, No. 2 of Vol. 9, Atlantic Christian College, Wilson, N.C., 52 pps., $1.00

From two small North Carolina colleges come two excellent literary publications: Cadenza from the far hills of western North Carolina; and Crucible, published in coastal plain Wilson. Each have basic similarities in purpose and content to provide a vitally needed outlet for good regional short prose, poetry, and art work. Both also have provided incentive in the form of prize money. In the case of Cadenza, this totaled $100 divided among the three categories of material. For Crucible, because of assistance from the N.C. Arts Council, it was possible to offer prize money totaling $600, including a special award to a high school student.

Still dealing with general comparisons, Cadenza is the more dazzling visually, printed on colored papers—grays and blues in one section; golds and gold-greens in another, in a hinge-arrangement of two sections.

Crucible, more sophisticated and subdued in lay-out, is ultimately more satisfying and easier to read. Artiness and literature do not necessarily make the best of companions.

Getting into the heart of the matter, I find the material in Crucible tends to be, for the most part, representative of a more mature approach to writing, with Cadenza's best works praiseworthy in its freshness.

A lingering air of rural and small town North Carolina is a strong element in stories in both magazines chosen as the best among many stories offered by local writers.

This is not to say that nostalgia for a rapidly vanishing way of life is a criteria for the magazines. It does show, however, that good writers on the scene are writing about familiar things. Consequently, these stories register as authentic recreations of regional ways of life written by talented people who can transmute from the familiar into brief experiences that are alive and full of human interest.

This applies particularly to T.K. Ellmore's Hungry For Love in Cadenza and Tom Forbes' The Swinging Coons in Crucible, two award winners. Admittedly, both are written from a man's viewpoint, employ a masculine vernacular, and are more characteristically rural than other stories.

Ellmore's story, in which a lanky young suitor seeks to find answers to the bittersweet agonies of being in love, is pleasantly old fashioned, a modern relic of mountaineer conservatism.

Forbes' is a more earthy story, a probing into the reactions of a sensitive boy struggling to accept the reality that slaughtering wild animals can be a justifiable means by which an adored father makes a fight against the poverty of Depression Days.

Pat Outlaw Cooper, in Williamsburg Blues, offers a counterpoint in a very feminine outlook in her prize winning story. Again, as with the two previously cited stories, her story deals with youth. A young school girl, Caroline, finds reaching a decision to go or not to go with her class on a trip to historic Williamsburg a matter of shifting moods and impulses, part of growing up. Mrs. Cooper's solution to the girl's dilemma reveals a lot about the unsuspected side of an ordinary school girl. Ellmore surprises with a short story, Rich Man's Gold (A Dramatic Dialogue), that sets an entirely different tone from the gentleness of Hungry for Love. In a compacted dialogue between priest and penitent, an interplay reveals two forms of greed.

The author spares neither priest nor thief, unmasking a kindred hypocrisy basic to two men of divergent surface differences.

A number of the poems in these two magazines are rewarding. In three poems collectively entitled Itinerary appearing in Crucible, poet Ann Deagon creates rich imagery, breathing life into reflections on ancient sites and ruins of Italy—

"...Here poised the world at center, balance point between the suck of earth and soar of air. All tension is oracular. . ."; and "The crush of time against my flesh inflames a passion of want. Where shall I find you whole, land of the broken phallus, mutilated herm?..."

Larry Pike's first place poem in Cadenza, Mr. Klein, Having Passed On, is a quietly eloquent lament.

"...Small irrelevancies missing leave big holes..."

The third element, art, is handled altogether differently in each of the two magazines under review.

Crucible focuses on faculty work by Atlantic Christian College art faculty in a 14 page center spread of excellent black and white photographs of faculty work. Judging from the selections used, the faculty's preference is strictly in the more contemporary mode.

Art work in Cadenza, while collectively verging on over-use of line drawings that interferes and even obscures the printed word here and there, projects a refreshing warmth in the best works.

Richard Tumbleston's dry point etching of an old man with flowers and Fred McCormick's surrealistic drawing of a tree are, even in reproduction, things of beauty.

All things considered, Cadenza and Crucible are outstanding examples of how good small literary magazines can be when a great deal of obvious care is given to excellence and variety of content within a limited number of pages. Any reader who professes an interest in the best contemporary writing in North Carolina should get both and discover for himself that there is indeed some gifted writers within our borders, writers with the essential ability to entertain.

... A view of the Washington Mall

... primitive works by Mrs. Rubelle Thomas Gaskill

Mrs. Rubelle Thomas Gaskill's big show of primitive paintings at the Washington Mall is as bright as summer rainbows. Pots and vases of flowers, still lifes of tables covered with bowls of grapes, apples, and sliced watermelons, and children standing stiffly in fields of wild flowers are some of artist's favorite subjects.

The Bethel native, now living in Washington, also likes scenes showing boats on water, birds in branches, and picturesque foreign scenes of Japan, Holland and other tourist favored lands.

In all these, un-mixed colors spill over her canvases—pink, purple, lavender, green, yellow, red and blue.

Self-taught except for a stab or two at taking lessons—"both teachers I had told me not to take lessons, to keep on the way I was painting," Mrs. Gaskill said—she paints in a straightforward manner, not concerned with perspective or shadows.

The most effective of her works are those that are altogether "primitive," such as "8:00 p.m. at Stewart's Park, Washington."

In some, Mrs. Gaskill's imagination shines whimsically, as in "Footprints On The Sands of Time," a painting that is obviously Mt. Vernon. In the foreground path, four immense footprints appear in a dirt path... as if George and Martha had foreseen the 20th century fad of immortalizing notables by footprinting.

The 65 paintings are currently on view in the Mall of the Washington Park Shopping Center on U.S. 17 just north of Washington, and are due to be up for another week or ten days. The long mall, attractively planted with tubs and enclosures of greenery, makes a magnificent place to exhibit art.

Unfortunately, Mrs. Gaskill's show is hung far above eye level—intended, according to Mrs. Edith Duke, in charge of Mall exhibitions, to prevent children from handling the works. Eventually, the 18,500 square foot mall will have shops on all sides. As it is now, the fourth side of the mall is a high temporary wall in plain white that lends itself splendidly to exhibit purposes. The spacious arrangement, interspersed with islands of green, lighted from above by skylights, would lend itself equally well to a large sculpture show.

Mrs. Duke said the next exhibit was scheduled for 15-16 June. At that time a dual show will be held—ceramics by past and present students of Gladys's Ceramics, and some works by the owner-operator of the ceramic shop, and a display of antique cars.

North Carolinians are well aware of the ever increasing demands for developments which will rape our state of its swamps and marshland. Ours is not the only state faced with difficult decisions involving land use. All across the nation environmentalists and developers are at odds. For Charlie Jumper, an eighty-six old Seminole Indian living in Florida's Big Cypress Swamp, there was never any doubt that the land should belong to those who love it and wish to live in harmony with it. In an emotion-laden novel, FOREVER ISLAND, Patrick D. Smith tells of Charlie's struggle to preserve his home from land developers with their ruthless tactics.

Lives of famous people always hold a certain fascination for readers. Lawrence Schoonover has produced a biographical novel concerning a person of historical interest to all Tarheels since our capital city is named in his honor. Born to an obscure Westcountry family, Walter Raleigh rose to great prominence as a favorite of Elizabeth I, became a Member of Parliament, had knighthood bestowed upon him, yet eventually fell from grace. Despoised as a traitor, he died on the block.

In TO LOVE A QUEEN, Schoonover portrays the relationship between Sir Walter Raleigh and Queen Elizabeth. Set in the magnificence of the Elizabethan era, TO LOVE A QUEEN is certain to please readers who enjoy historical fiction.

What happens to the old in our society? Ellen Douglas addresses herself to their plight in APOSTLES OF LIGHT. The two old people of the story, a retired school teacher and a doctor discover that they have lost control of their lives. Their efforts to free themselves are in vain as their well-meaning relatives keep them trapped in a nursing home run by corrupt people.

All his excuses having failed him, Moses reluctantly agreed to undertake the seemingly impossible task God had chosen him for. To lead the children of Israel from their Egyptian bondage to the Promise Land was indeed an awesome responsibility. How alone Moses must have felt sometimes!

Samuel Sandmel, a distinguished Biblical scholar and Professor at Hebrew Union College, has written a novel based on Moses' mission. ALONE ATOP THE MOUNTAIN, written in the style of a memoir, recreates the story of Moses and the Exodus.

At The Gallery For The Blind Chamberlain Sand Castles Exhibit

... a Chamberlain sand castle ceramic

"Sand Castles and Tombstones," a sculpture exhibition by Charles F. Chamberlain of Greenville will open Wednesday in the Mary Duke Biddle Gallery for the Blind at the North Carolina Museum of Art.

Some of Chamberlain's sculptures are creations of fantasy that suggest sand castles. Other works have been inspired by tombstone inscriptions found in the burial grounds of his New England ancestors.

North Carolina National has lent one of the works in the exhibition from its permanent collection.

Chamberlain, an assistant professor in ceramics in the School of Art of East Carolina University, is particularly aware of the tactile awareness of the blind. He has a sister who attended the Perkins School for the Blind near Boston.

Chamberlain has exhibited literally from Maine to Florida and has won several honors and prizes in regional shows. Two of his sand castle-like works were in the "North Carolina Craftsmen, 1971" exhibition at the State Art Museum, while a tombstone-like piece was in the "North Carolina Craftsmen, 1973" exhibition.

He received his bachelor's degree in ceramic design from Massachusetts College of Art and his master's degree from the College of Ceramics at Alfred University.

The artist will be in the gallery from 3 to 4:30 p.m. Sunday, June 10.

Six Dances In Charlotte Today

Six dances are on tap today for the program of the Contemporary Dance Theatre at the Mint Museum of Art in Charlotte.

Two performances are scheduled; one at 3:00 p.m. and a second at 8:00 p.m., both in the museum's Golden Circle Theater. Tickets are $2.00 for the general public and $1.00 for Mint Museum members.

Washington Takes 2nd American Classic Title

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

Washington, the team which scored not a single point in last year's American Classic showed everybody else up yesterday and took the second annual event with 54 1/2 points including six first places.

There was one multi-event winner in the Belk Tyler-Buster Brown sponsored meet. In the 10-12 year old girls bracket, Cynthia Dudley of Williamston won three firsts. She took the 50 yard dash, the 440 yard dash and the standing long jump.

Behind Washington came last year's winner Elizabeth City with 35, Williamston with 33, and Greenville with 29. # Amazin' Jack Roars To Six-Stroke Lead

ATLANTA (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, playing with the awesome majesty of which only he seems capable, stretched his lead to record proportions with a six-under-par 66 Saturday in the third round of the $150,000 Atlanta Golf Classic.

Nicklaus, easily the dominant figure in the game today, posted a 199 total for 54 holes, 17-under-par on the hilly, 6,883-yard Atlanta Country Club course.

Nicklaus, seeking a fourth title of the season and second in as many starts, owned a bulging, six-stroke lead over Tom Weiskopf going into Sunday's final round in the chase for the $30,000 first prize, and appeared an almost certain winner.

His leading margin, was by two strokes, the largest 54-hole advantage on the pro golf tour this year and left the rest of the field admittedly thinking of the second prize.

"The rest of us are just playing for second place," said veteran Gary Brewer.

"It's just kind of discouraging," said former PGA champion Al Geiberger.

Nicklaus, who hadn't competed since winning the Tournament of Champions April 22, has led or shared the lead all the way in this event. He held a four-stroke advantage when play started on the mild, occasionally, cloudy day and quickly stretched it out.

He played the front nine in a brilliant 31-five-under-par—and coasted home in 35. For the second day in a row, he got away without making a bogey.

Weiskopf fashioned a four-under-par 68—he lost two strokes to Nicklaus with that good round—and was alone in second at 205.

The slender Geiberger also had a 68 and was in third at 207. Brewer, with a 65, and Hubert Green, with a 69, followed at 208, nine strokes off the pace.

South African Gary Player enjoyed his best round of the tournament, a 69, but was far back in the field with a 216. Masters champion Tommy Aaron failed to qualify for the last 36 holes, while leading money winner Bruce Crampton, Lee Trevino and Arnold Palmer are not competing.

Although all but out of it, Weiskopf continued to insist "he's human. He can be beaten."

"If you don't believe you can win, you're never going to win. I've got to look at it that way. "If I shot 64 in the last round and he's 72, where does that leave us?"

"I've shot 64 before and he's had 72—but it doesn't look very likely right now."

Nicklaus opened with a rush, taking birdies on three of his first five holes.

He made it from 12 feet on the first hole, punched a seven-iron to within four feet on the fourth and rolled in an 18-footer on the next one.

Nicklaus just missed on a 30-foot eagle putt on the par-five eighth, leaving it about a half-inch short. A six-iron shot to four feet on the ninth provided his fifth birdie on the front nine.

Then, he cooled off. He didn't make another birdie until he reached the par-five, 18th with a four-iron second shot and two-putted.

In between, he was in three bunkers and four times had to get down in two from about 35-40 feet.

"I didn't play as well as I did the first two rounds, but when you're in a big lead, you're not going to," Nicklaus said.

'Gentlemen, Start Your Engines' Doesn't Come Easy To Indy Boss

By KAROL STONGER
Associated Press Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Tony Hulman Jr. was practicing how not to say, "Gentleman, start your engines." That phrase was a legacy of the late Wilbur Shaw, a three-time Indianapolis 500 winner who talked Tony into buying the Indianapolis Motor Speedway after World War II.

"I kinda just inherited it, thinking nothing of it," said the 72-year-old millionaire sportsman-industrialist.

But a few years ago, a Terre Haute radio announcer, Luke Walton, decided those four words were worth a few goose bumps.

"He told me they should be on everyone's tongue in the country and really mean something," said Hulman, lord of the 555-acre manor that once a year draws more than 350,000 persons to the world's largest one day spectacle.

So each year, a couple of days before the race, Walton and the shy, soft-spoken Hulman sit behind closed doors with a tape recorder for a cram course in enunciation. "Oh, I'd just sound terrible," Hulman said of the early playbacks. "He'd have me saying it for an hour, the same damn words, telling me to watch the pronunciation and not to slur."

At noon, EDT, Monday, those words will electrify the fans and terrify the man who utters them because of the toll they might take once those 33 power-packed cars leave the pits.

"I always wonder if I can say them," said Hulman. "I just hate the start of that race. "I just despise it, to go through it. I know it's going to start and you can't stop it and there's no way it's going to start until you say it. It's like pushing a button to blow up the side of a mountain. But up to that moment, it's just as quiet as a mill pond.

"Then you wonder if they're going to get through that first turn. They're all hell bent for election. For the next 20 laps you just sit there. I do, I go down and sit on the grass by the creek on first turn there and just hold my breath."

For all practical purposes, that's the only time Tony Hulman sits down during the month of May.

From the moment the track opens a month before the race until it closes the day after, Hulman works 18 hours a day priming to perfection what he calls "the white elephant Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker was happy to unload on a loser from Indiana for $750,000 in 1945."

The first race with Hulman at the helm was run in 1946 on a brick surface with grass peeking through the cracks. The stands, unused for five years, were tinder boxes.

"We had 26 fires in the stands that first year," Hulman said, reflecting on the early days, "and terminates with their hands clasped together were about the only things holding them up."

"I remember Wilbur, two weeks, maybe a month before the race, took the fire hose to the stands every night. It took me a while to catch on to what he was doing. Then he said 'Well, if the stands burn down we won't have any place to put the fans. We'll have to refund all the money and still have to pay prize money.'"

Hulman, a tall, handsome graduate of Yale, makes it sound as though he and Shaw were operating on a shoestring. But that's his way.

His family of German extraction, settled in Terre Haute, 40 miles west of Indianapolis, in the 1850s and now they almost own it. Although he'd rather talk about what he does rather than what he has, his holdings include a soft drink bottling franchise, utilities, a bank, newspapers, radio, television, wholesale groceries, and recently 51 per cent interest in the Ontario Motor Speedway in California.

David Pearson Chasing Fifth Straight Super Speedway Win

By ED SHEARER
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — David Pearson, stock car racing's hottest driver, seeks a record fifth straight super-speedway victory with the Wood Brothers' Mercury Sunday in the World 600 at Charlotte Motor Speedway.

Pearson, recovered from a recent virus infection, heads a star-studded 40-car field that takes the green flag at 12:30 p.m. EDT in the longest event on the Grand National circuit, a gruelling 600-mile test.

Defending champion Buddy Baker, million dollar winner Richard Petty and veteran Cale Yarborough also earned first and second row qualifying spots and could pilot their cars down victory lane.

Baker, the pole sitter after touring the 1.5-mile asphalt oval at 158.051 miles per hour in qualifying Wednesday, is confident he can push his Dodge to victory again at his hometown track.

"I've just got that feeling," Baker said. "I'm gonna win it again."

Pearson, winner of the 1961 World 600 in a Pontiac, has recorded consecutive super-speedway victories at Rockingham, Atlanta, Darlington and Talladega. He also won a short track event at Martinsville during his current streak.

Pearson is easily the leading money winner on the 1973 tour with $87,580 and could add another $21,950 with a victory in this $175,000 event.

"The secret here is the secret anywhere," said Glen Wood. "That's being able to finish. The streak has nothing to do with it because every race is separate. It has to be. The car seems to be handling nicely."

Pearson will line up beside Baker in the front row after qualifying at 157.820 m.p.h.

Petty qualified his Dodge at 155.785. However, he faces a jinx at the Charlotte track where he's never won an event.

Yarborough, qualifying a Chevrolet at 155.431, has placed a new engine in his vehicle. He qualified with the engine he used to win the Nashville 420 two weeks ago.

There also will be considerable interest in the Grand National debut of Peter Gregg of Jacksonville, Fla., the sports car driver who won the 24 Hours of Daytona Beach and the 12 Hours of Sebring.

Gregg, a Harvard graduate, will be driving a Cotton Owens Dodge.

"He's gonna have to learn what drivers to respect, the ones that might wreck him," said Owens.

Gregg qualified the car at 153.955, starting in the seventh position.

Rigid inspections by race officials forced some of the top drivers out of a shot at the pole position when their cars failed to pass.

They had to come back the second day seeking berths 13-24. Included in that group are rookie ace Darrell Waltrip, starting 13th in a Mercury, and veteran Bobby Isaac, who will swing the Bud Moore Ford into action from the 15th position.

Another name driver, Donnie Allison of Hueytown, Ala., decided to forget the race when his car failed inspection. He loaded it on a truck and returned home, pulling out of the race. His brother, Bobby, is also missing the World 600 to make his debut in Monday's Indianapolis 500.

Anspaugh Hurls Apps Past State In NCAA

STARKVILLE, Miss. (AP)—Surprising Appalachian State snipped North Carolina State 4-3 in 10 innings Saturday in the NCAA District 3 baseball tournament here.

The loss eliminated NC State, the Atlantic Coast Conference champion, which lost earlier in the afternoon to Vanderbilt, 4-2 in 13 innings.

Tim Stoddard, the fourth NC State pitcher, walked pinch-hitter Jack Tompkins with the bases loaded forcing in Butch Dziadul with the Mountaineers' winning run.

Both teams scored three runs in the fifth inning to send the game into extra innings.

Steve Anspaugh, who went the route in an opening game 5-1 loss to NC State Thursday, came back to limit the Wolfpack to five hits and struck out seven in picking up his eighth victory against one loss.

Ron Evans had two of NC State's five hits while Dziadul and Evans Crocker each had a pair of hits for the Mountaineers. A handy man led Vanderbilt to its victory over NC State Saturday afternoon.

Jeff Peoples, who was called in from right field to take over the Vandy pitching in the 11th inning, was credited with his second tournament victory. He pitched the Commodores to a 6-2 victory over Georgia Southern Thursday night.

Peoples, now 12-1 for the season, gave up one hit in three innings of relief, a double by rightfielder Dan Moore in the 13th inning.

It was Moore's third hit of the game. He had a solo homer off Vandy starter John McLean in the second inning and a double in the fourth.

Leftfielder Pat Korsnick's fourth inning single drove in Dan Zagorski, who had singled and moved to third on Moore's two-bagger with NC State's second run of the game.

Vanderbilt jumped off to a 1-0 lead in the first inning on Dick Duncan's single to right field which drove in Ted Shipley, who had singled and stole second base.

Second baseman Robert Hendrickson drove in Duncan, who had walked and moved to second on a sacrifice, with the tying run for Vandy in the eighth.

Wolfpack relief ace Richard Phillips, who replaced starter Tim Stoddard in the seventh, walked Steve Tinsley, the first Vandy batter in the 13th. Powell then hit Phillips' first pitch over the leftfield fence to end the marathon 3 hour, 45 minute game.

McLean struck out 14 batters and gave up 11 of NC State's 15 hits during his nine innings. Wayne Palmore, who pitched one inning, gave up the other three hits.

Maddox Paces Giants To Win Over Montreal

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Garry Maddox laced a double and four singles, driving in four runs and taking over the National League batting lead with a .377 mark and pacing the San Francisco Giants to a 10-3 victory over the Montreal Expos Saturday.

Tom Bradley, 3-2, posted his first triumph since April 17 and Gary Matthews drove in two runs with a sacrifice fly and a grounder and scored another following a triple.

The Giants jumped on Balar Moore, 3-3, for two runs in the Matthews tripled and scored on Chris Speier's grounder in the fourth and the Giants added two runs in the fifth on Maddox' run-scoring single and Matthews' RBI grounder. Maddox delivered a three-run double as the Giants scored five times in the eighth.

Bradley was relieved by Elias Sosa in the seventh when the Expos scored all their runs on singles by Bob Bailey and Tim Lincecum and doubles by Hal Breeden and Ron Hunt.

Cubs, 2-0

CINCINNATI (AP) — Don Kessinger tripled home one run and scored another and Milt Pappas and Jack Aker stopped Cincinnati on four hits, leading the Chicago Cubs to a 2-0 victory over the Reds in a nationally televised baseball game.

Pappas, a former Red who holds a 6-3 edge over Cincinnati since being traded to Atlanta in 1968, gained his first victory since April 27.

Plagued with elbow problems this spring, Pappas, 2-3, permitted a first-inning double by Bobby Tolan and a single by Pete Rose in the third before leaving the game at the start of the seventh.

The Cubs, after threatening in the first two innings, got to Ross Grimsley, 4-4, for a pair of runs in the third. Pappas started the inning with his first hit of the year and was forced at second by Rick Monday. Monday scored on Kessinger's triple and Kessinger tallied on Billy Williams' single.

Aker was in trouble in the seventh when an error by first baseball Jim Hickman and Dave Concepcion's single put two runners aboard. But he got pinch hitter Larry Stahl to ground into an inning-ending double play.

Cincinnati's other hit was a one-out single by Tony Perez in the ninth.

Brewers, 9-0

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Once-beaten Jim Colborn pitched a four-hitter for his fifth successive victory and Tim Johnson drove in two runs with a pair of singles Saturday, leading the Milwaukee Brewers to a 9-0 victory over the California Angels.

A walk and hit batsman set up run-scoring singles by Gorman Thomas and Pedro Garcia in the second inning against loser Rudy May, 4-5. After a walk loaded the bases, Johnson's infield hit scored the third run of the inning.

A wild pitch and May's mental error led to another run in the fifth. Ellie Rodriguez singled, took second on the wild pitch, stole third as May took a full wind-up and scored on Dave May's sacrifice fly.

A double by Garcia and RBI singles by Johnson and Ollie Brown around a walk made it 6-0 in the sixth. Bob Coluccio doubled home a run in the seventh and the Brewers added two more in the eighth, with George Scott contributing an RBI double.

Moose Outlast Graniteer Nine

The Moose held off the Graniteers in the final two innings to take a 14-8 victory over them in the Tar Heel Little League Saturday afternoon.

The victory upped the Moose record to 3-3, while the Graniteers are now 1-5.

The Moose pushed over three in the first inning. Paul Lemmond reached on fielder's choice and Mitch Meeks was safe on an error. David Carroll then cracked out a three-run homer.

The Graniteers came back with one in the bottom of the frame. Wayne Stokes walked and moved to third on Wade Dean's double and was awarded home on interference.

The Moose scored another in the second. Leslie Robinson doubled and took third with Jason Garris reached on an error. Ashley Taylor was safe on another miscue, scoring Robinson.

Two came over for the Graniteers in the second. Henry Wooten singled and moved up on an error. Garrett Young was safe on another error and Wayne Stokes doubled to score both runners.

The Moose scored twice more in the third. Meeks doubled and took third on a passed ball, scoring on an error on the play. Carroll singled and Bob Gantt got a hit. Robinson singled and Garris walked to force in Carroll.

The Graniteers kept close with two more in the bottom of the inning. H.L. Austin singled and Mike Moyer homered.

Two more crossed for the Moose in the fourth. Meeks reached on a fielder's choice and Carroll slapped his second homer.

The Graniteers came back with three in the bottom of the fourth to tie it up. Stokes doubled and Dean reached on an error. Moyer doubled in both runners and scored on Wooten's hit.

The Moose pushed over four in the top of the fifth to regain the lead, this time for good. Danny Wood walked and was sacrificed up. Taylor singled him in and Lemmond reached on a two-base error. Meeks tripled to drive in both runners and then scored when Gantt reached on an error.

They added two more in the sixth. Scott Peele reached on a fielder's choice and Taylor singled. They moved up on a wild pitch and Lemmond grounded out, scoring Peele. Meeks singled to score Taylor with the final run.

Vikki Morrow

Trophy Given Vikki Morrow

Most of the people in Eastern North Carolina already know Vikki Morrow as being the first female black belt ever promoted by instructor Bill McDonald. Now people will know her as the Southern Female Competitor of the Year.

Miss Morrow won the honor at the Southern Coast Karate Tournament in Charlotte recently by vote of the black belt judges and referees of the Southern Coast.

The honor was not easily won because during her first full year as a female Black Belt, Vikki competed in every major tournament in the South. She has traveled near and far to compete, and in many instances entered the men's Black Belt form, because of so few female Black Belt competitors. In one tournament she entered the men's free fighting division, just to get a little exercise and to let the men know that she is to be respected.

With the combination of learning and teaching that Vikki practices, there is no wonder why she is 1972's Southern Coast Female Competitor of the Year.

Outside is parked this year's official 500 pace car, with No. 3 on the license plate. "I'm pretty far down on the list," Tony says. "I think the governor has No. 1 and the mayor No. 2."

But Hulman prefers to toodle around the track grounds in a smaller blue car of his own.

The former Ivy League track and football star and avid fisherman couldn't drive race cars because he was color blind. But he was cured of his long-time ambition in 1950.

"I had a tremendous desire to drive until 1950 then it all went out the window in a hurry," Hulman said. "I went around the track with Wilbur Shaw, taking motion pictures, in a seater and a half. I kinda had my arm around him. He wanted to show me the grandstand and he took his hand off the wheel and pointed up and I plunked it right back on the wheel. We went into the backstretch and boy, we went into that third turn and I jammed him in the stomach to slow the car down. We got to the first turn and I said 'Oh, my God,' and gave him another pop in the stomach. He just went faster. The next time around he let me out. My knees were just going like that."

Hulman waved his hand back and forth in gesture. The car was only going 125 miles an hour.

Detroit, winning its third game in a row, knotted it in the bottom of the fifth against Ken Holtzman, who was bidding for his seventh straight win. Northrup started the rally with a single, took second on a groundout and scored on Eddie Brinkman's single. Tony Taylor walked, the runners advanced on an infield out and came home on Bill Freehan's single.

The Tigers took a 5-3 lead in the seventh on a walk to Ike Brown, who eventually scored on a wild pitch, and a home run by Rodriguez.

Bucs, 7-2

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Al Oliver tripled home two runs, then scored another in a four-run Pittsburgh rally that helped the Pirates to a 7-2 victory over Houston Saturday night.

Nelson Briles earned the victory and helped his cause with a home run, his first since 1971. The Astros bunched three hits for a run off Briles in the first inning but the Pirates got that Atlanta Brave's baseball star, Hank Aaron, needs only 30 more homers to break Ruth's record.

Pepsi-Cola, NCNB Claim Wins; College View Knocked Off Top

Pepsi-Cola and North Carolina National Bank picked up victories Saturday afternoon to move into a two-way tie for first place in the Babe Ruth League.

Pepsi downed Home Builders, 9-3, while NCNB slipped past College View, 3-2. In the other game, Planters Bank won its first game of the year, 5-1, over Carolina Dairies.

In the opener, Planters pushed over two in the top of the first. Max Nun walked as did Eddie Connolly. Dennis Cristiano also walked, and Steve Manning hit a sacrifice fly, scoring Nun. A wild pitch brought Connolly in.

Three more Planters runs came over in the second, making it 5-0. Eric McCormick walked and so did Richard Nunn. Max Nun singled, loading the bases. A wild pitch scored McCormick, and Connolly singled to drive in both of the Nuns.

The lone Carolina Dairy run came in the fourth. Mike Baker walked and came around to score when Frank Manning reached on an error.

Cristiano hurled the victory, allowing only three hits by Carolina Dairies.

In the second contest, College View took the lead in the first. Keith Jones reached on an error and stole second. He moved to third when Connor Merritt and Lee Shearin both walked. A passed ball then scored Jones.

NCNB came up with all three of its runs in the fourth. Kelly Heath singled and Joey Cherry walked. Joel Clark also was given a free trip, loading them up.

Robert Bellesheim reached on an error, scoring Heath and another error brought in Cherry. Clark scored on a sacrifice fly by Jeff Smith. College View came up with its other run in the fifth. Jay Chenier walked, as did Merritt. Chenier stole third and scored on Ross Hawkins' single.

In the final contest, Pepsi broke the scoring ice in the fourth with a run. Macon Moyer reached on an error and Mike Brewington was hit by a pitch. Franklin Davis sacrificed them up, and Moyer scored on a sacrifice by Henry Baker.

Home Builders rallied for three in the bottom of the fourth. Mike Adams walked and Jim Wilkerson doubled. Joe Godette also doubled, scoring both runners. He stole third and scored on an error on the play.

Pepsi tied it up with two in the sixth. Moyer singled and Brewington reached on a fielder's choice played to second an error. Both advanced another base on the miscue. Davis grounded out, scoring Moyer and a wild pitch let Brewington in.

Pepsi then came up with six in the seventh to win it. Greg Lee walked and Curtis Keys was hit by a pitch. Moyer singled, loading the bases. Brewington doubled in both Lee and Keys and Davis reached on an error, scoring both Moyer and Brewington. A balk moved Davis up, and Baker singled. They worked a double steal, with Davis scoring. Billy Ellington finished things off, doubling to score Baker for the 9-3 lead that ended it.

He Made Same Mistake Twice

By KEN RAPPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer Bob Moose doesn't learn from his mistakes. He made the same mistake twice—and Lee May hit both of them out of the park.

"I threw two sliders that didn't slide, and that was the ball game," said Moose after serving up two home runs to May that helped the Houston Astros beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 7-2 Friday night.

Moose threw a waist-high slider to the Astro slugger in the fifth inning and May hit it over the center field fence at Three Rivers Stadium to give the Astros a 1-0 lead.

Then May teed off on another fat pitch from the Pirate right-hander for a two-run homer in the sixth.

"I knew I made a mistake the instant I let it go," said Moose. "So did May. You could see his eyes get big."

In the other National League games, the Chicago Cubs downed the Cincinnati Reds 7-2; the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Atlanta Braves 4-1; the Philadelphia Phillies trounced the San Diego Padres 8-1; the Los Angeles Dodgers topped the New York Mets 6-4 and the Montreal Expos turned back the San Francisco Giants 5-2.

In the American League, the New York Yankees trimmed the Texas Rangers 9-7; the Detroit Tigers beat the Oakland A's 1-0 in 13 innings; the California Angels stopped the Milwaukee Brewers 5-3; the Cleveland Indians whipped the Chicago White Sox 8-3 and the Kansas City Royals nudged the Minnesota Twins 5-4 in 10 innings.

Jerry Reuss pitched a five-hitter for Houston to record his sixth victory in seven decisions. Moose lost his fourth in seven.

Ron Santo hit a pair of run-scoring doubles and Rick Reuschel and Bob Locker combined on a four-hitter to lead Chicago over Cincinnati. Reuschel, who scored Chicago's second run, limited the Reds to two hits before he was forced to retire after five innings because of a blister on his pitching hand.

Jose Cruz doubled home the winning run and scored another, keying a three-run rally in the eighth that carried St. Louis past Atlanta.

Ken Brett fired a four-hitter and helped his cause with two RBI and Bill Robinson hit two homers to lead Philadelphia over San Diego. Robinson knocked in four runs with his blows.

Willie Crawford hit a grand slam homer in the fifth inning to propel Los Angeles over New York. It was Crawford's first career slam and the first for the Dodgers in two years.

Ron Hunt singled home Tim Foli with the winning run in the ninth and later scored on Ron Woods' double to help Montreal defeat San Francisco.

Pepsi, NCNB Win To Pull Into First Tie

North Carolina National Bank and Pepsi-Cola both pulled back into a three-way tie with College View for the lead in the Babe Ruth League Friday night. All three went into Saturday's games with 6-1 records.

NCNB topped Carolina Dairies, 9-3, in the opening game of the evening. The Bankers scored six runs, all they were to need in the opening frame. With two away, Joel Clark singled and Robert Bellesheim walked. David Middleton reached on an error, loading the bases. Jeff Smith was hit by a pitch, scoring Clark, and Ashley Bass walked to bring in Bellesheim. Jimmy Radford reached on an error, scoring both Middleton and Smith, and Bass scored on a passed ball. Doug Selby reached on a passed ball on the third strike and Kelly Heath walked. Joey Cherry was hit by a pitch, scoring Radford with the sixth run.

Carolina Dairies came up with one in the second. Danny Bowman walked and scored on a double by Mike Baker.

NCNB came back with one in the bottom of the frame. Middleton walked and Smith singled. Bass then singled in Middleton to make it 7-1.

The Dairy men came up with another in the third. Leonard Williams walked, stole second and went to third on a passed ball. He scored on Wayne Miller's ground out.

NCNB also got another in the third. Cherry singled, moved up on an out and scored on Bellesheim's single.

Carolina Dairy got their final

Elks Run By Integon, 11-8

At Guy Smith Park Friday, The Elks boosted their Tar Heel Little League record to 4-2 with an 11-8 win over Integon. The loss drops Integon off to 2-4.

The Elks started things off in the first inning pushing over the first four runs of the game. They added six in the second but all six were matched by Integon in the bottom of the frame. The tenth run came across in the fourth for the Elks. Integon added one in the fourth also and one in the sixth.

The Elks batted around in the first. Chris Ross walked but was forced at second when Jarvis Campbell hit into a fielder's choice. Lance Cain walked and a double by Mack Stocks drove in Campbell with the first run. Cain went to third on the play. William Sneed walked to load the bases and another walk, to Terry Skinner, brought in Cain.

Stocks scored on a wild pitch that sent Sneed to third and Skinner to second. Lenn Jackson also drew a walk and a pass to Don White scored Sneed.

The Elks picked up in the second where they left off in the first. Campbell walked as did Cain. Stocks hit into a force play that got a hit to drive in Cain and Stocks. Jackson walked to keep the bases loaded and a third run was forced in a White walked. Emmett Walsh cleared the sacks with a triple to give the Elks a 10-0 lead.

Integon came back in the bottom with a rally that cut the lead to four, 10-6. Todd Galloway was hit by a pitch and Howard Tucker was also struck. Both moved up when Blair Smith's grounder was errored. Junior Neal walked forcing in Galloway. William Bennett grounded to third but the ball was errored letting Tucker score and the other runners advance.

Drew Smith singled to bring in Blair Smith and a fielder's choice scored Neal. After Mark Barber walked, Galloway singled to drive in Drew Smith.

The last Elk run came over in the fourth. Jackson walked and went to second on a wild pitch. Walsh walked and a hit by Jimmy Lee scored Jackson from second.

Integon also got one in that inning. Barber walked and a hit by Mike Walker moved him to second. Barber went to third on an out but was nailed at home as Tucker hit into a fielder's choice. Blair Smith singled to load the bases and a walk to Neal forced in Walker.

Tucker scored for Integon in the sixth after walking, moving to second on a balk and to third on Neal's hit. Bennett grounded out to score Tucker.

Sneed led the hitting with three while Campbell, White, and Cain had two each. Drew Smith had two for Integon.

WILLIAMSTON — Mike Elks of Southern Guilford tossed a three-hit ball game at Williamston and survived eight errors behind him to come away with a 6-4 victory Friday night. The victory gave Southern Guilford the Eastern 2-A Championship.

They'll represent the east in the best-of-three series with the western winner this week for the state championship.

Elks scattered the three hits throughout the game, but his teammates' lack of ability to handle the ball nearly cost him the game. He struck out only three and walked five in going the distance.

Loser Mike Weaver didn't have the stuff he usually has. In the two previous outings, he tossed a no-hitter and a one-hitter in tournament play. But Friday night, he got away to a bad start, walking the first three batters he faced. He eventually walked eight, while striking out nine. He allowed seven hits, six of them coming in the two innings when Southern scored all of their runs.

Southern put Williamston into trouble in the first inning, and but for some fine defensive play, they might have scratched against the off-target Weaver. The leadoff batter, Larry McCuiston walked, but was cut down trying to steal by catcher Keith Brown. Ben Groome also walked and moved to second on Johnny East's walk. But Weaver calmly picked Groome off second, then got his first strikeout of the night to end the opening threat.

Southern's biggest non-scoring threat came in the third when they loaded the bases on three more Weaver walks, two coming after two were out. But a grounder to the infield ended the hopes for that frame.

Williamston, meanwhile, was making hay from the mistakes of the Indian fielders, picking up one run in the first and two in the second.

With one down, Dwight Ange hit a line drive down the third base line that went through the legs of the fielder, allowing him to go all the way to second. Weaver then aided his own cause with a double, driving in Ange for a 1-0 lead.

In the second inning, Joe Roberson led off, also reaching to third on wild pitches. Keys singled him in. Moyer singled and Mike Brewington doubled to drive both Keys and Moyer across.

The final run came in the fourth, Keys singled and Moyer walked. Brewington reached on an error, allowing Keys to come around to make it 8-0.

on an error. A pickoff attempt was also thrown away, and he moved on to second. Berwyn Barnhill walked and a passed ball advanced both of them. Vann Andrews also walked, loading the bases. Then, with one away, Phil Selby reached on the third error of the evening, scoring Roberson. Hubert Smith grounded to third, allowing Barnhill to score on the fielder's choice.

But, except for a run in the seventh, that was it for the Tigers despite four more Indian errors. They put a man on second in the third when Brown's fly to left was dropped, and he moved up after the next fly ball was caught, but the relay was thrown away.

The Tigers also had a chance in the sixth. Andrews walked and Tim Jackson got an infield hit, only the second off Elks.

Selby walked, loading the bases. Then, with one away, Ange lined to Mike Anthony at third. He had made four of the errors earlier, but made up for a lot of it by snagging the drive, then doubling off Andrews to get the Indians out of the inning.

Southern Guilford, down 3-0, had come back to tie it up in the fifth. With two down, Larry McCuiston hit a grounder into deep short that went through for a base hit. Ben Groome then hit a pop to right that fell in, putting two on. Johnny East hit back to Weaver, but he threw it away, allowing McCuiston to score. Barry McCuiston came on to run for East, who had advanced to second on the play. Glenn Brooks followed with a single to deep center, scoring both Groome and Barry McCuiston to tie it at 3-3.

They pushed over the winning runs in the sixth. Randy Babbs led off with a single to right and was sacrificed up. Kim Smith grounded back to the pitcher, who caught Dabbs off second and made the play there, but was just too late as Dabbs slid back in. Larry McCuiston then reached on a slow roller to third, loading the bases. Groome finished it off with a booming triple to center, driving in all three runners. The ball was overthrown at third and Groome headed on home, but Weaver's back up of the play let the Indians cut him down at home.

Williamston, trying to rally, came up with only one more run. Weaver led off the third with a triple to left, then came in when Roberson flew out to left for the second out. Elks then fanned the last batter to end the game, giving the Indians their title.

Williamston ended the season with a 20-4 record, while Southern will carry a 14-3 mark into the playoffs.

Rookie After Third Victory

by JACK WOLISTON
NEW YORK (UPI) — Art "Snapper" Norris, a rookie on the offshore powerboat racing circuit, is a big favorite to score his third major victory of the season on Friday, June 8, in the seventh annual Bahamas 500, billed by its promoters as "the most fabulous ocean race in the world."

And again his toughest competition is expected to come from Italian Vincenzo Bales-trieri, two-time world champion, who was second by three minutes to Norris in the May 5 Sam Griffith Memorial race at Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

The "500" also is expected to produce another "battle of the engines" between the Mercury Company and Kiekhaefer Aeromarine, the two major producers of the big power plants used in the offshore sport.

The Mercruisers, with a cubic inch capacity of 482 to 496 cubic inches, dominated the ocean racing events for years with horsepower ratings in excess of 550. But in late 1972, the Aeromarine Company brought out an engine of 468 cubic inches which produced in excess of 600 horsepower by incorporating fuel injected engines of a new design.

Mercury then modified its existing 482 engines with the fuel injection principle and has scored a group of impressive wins in recent events.

Norris, of Miami, Fla., a strapping 6-foot, 3-inch, 230-pound giant, used the new Mercruisers in his Sam Griffith triumph, while the fast-closing Bales-trieri was powered by Aeromarines. Both used the 36-foot Cigarette hulls which have dominated ocean racing in the past two years.

Race Is Unsanctioned
Dominic Visconti of Cleveland, Ohio, and Steve Tognoli of Oakland, Calif., who finished third and fourth, respectively, in the Sam Griffith, were powered by Mercruisers. Tognoli is entered for the Bahamas classic, but Visconti is passing it up, as are a number of other drivers, because it lacks American Power Boat Association sanction this year and thus any points scored will not count toward the 1973 U.S. title.

But the race has the approval of the Union of International Motorboating, the world governing body of powerboat racing, and points scored in the "500" will count toward the 1973 international crown.

At the present time, Bales-trieri and Tom Gentry of Honolulu, are one-two in the standings for the world championship. Gentry, who also uses Aeromarines, is entered for the Bahamas dash.

The "500," incidentally, failed to receive APBA sanction this year, according to officials, because it applied too late and the dozen races making up 1973 circuit already had been approved.

Silvera Favored
Current leaders for the U.S. title are Dr. Bob Magoon of Miami, Sandy Satullo of Cleveland, Norris, Tognoli and Visconti, in that order.

The Bahamas 500, actually run over a 540-mile course, starts and finishes directly in front of Nassau's Yacht Haven and in line with the Flagler Inn across the harbor on Paradise Island. Halfway point is Freeport-Lucaya on Grand Bahamas Island.

Among others highly rated in the fleet of about 20 expected for the race are Doug Silvera of the Bahamas, two-time winner of the race, and Bobby Rautbord of Miami, last year's world champion.

The "500" helps kickoff a summer-long "Goombay Festival" in the Bahamas and while it is being run the Nassau-Paradise Island Promotion Board, one of the race sponsors, will also conduct a "Round the Island" race for Production craft. The course is five laps around Paradise Island, or a total of 125 miles.

The catch included 11 of the greys, ranging from five to nine pounds each. They were caught on yellow and white bucktail. (Reflector Photo)

BASS Receives Safety Award

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—The National Water Safety Congress announced that it has presented its highest award, the "President's Citation," to Bass Anglers Sportsman Society, (B.A.S.S.) a 110,000-member sport-fishing and conservation group headquartered here.

The award was presented during the 23rd Annual Meeting of the Congress, in Tulsa, Okla. The citation noted that B.A.S.S. was selected for "its attention to the need for safety among fishermen, and its continued emphasis on safety in its publications," notably BASSMASTER Magazine, edited by Bobb Cobb.

B.A.S.S. president Ray Scott noted that improved safety will always be a major goal for his organization, and that great improvements are being accomplished in the areas of boat construction and personal flotation devices due to the efforts of B.A.S.S.

"We require every fisherman in our tournaments to wear a Coast Guard approved life vest or jacket any time the big engine is running," Scott said. "We enforce all the coast Guard boating safety rules, along with some our own that go even farther." He added that B.A.S.S. is continuing to press boat builders to produce only "sink-proof" boats which will float upright even if swamped.

"In this day and age, there is absolutely no reason anyone should drown as a result of boating or fishing activities," he said. "We have never had a fatality or a serious injury in one of our tournaments and we hope that by our example, our methods will spread to other boating and fishing enthusiasts across the country."

Final Hunting Regulations Are Given Approval By Commission

RALEIGH—The hunting regulations for the 1973-74 season received final approval by the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission in its regular monthly meeting here Monday.

Several of the originally proposed changes in the regulations, which were presented at a series of nine public hearings across the state early in April, were further changed or deleted to more closely conform to widespread public wishes learned during the hearings.

Following the hearings, a proposal for an either-sex deer hunt in the Uwharrie area was deleted from the final regulations. Also deleted was the deer season in the northern portion of Sampson County, while the deer season in the Butner area was extended to close on a later date. Proposals concerning the other season, the Santeetlah Game Lands and gun regulations on all Game Lands also were revised following the public hearings.

The final 1973-74 hunting and trapping regulations, as approved by the Commission, established three new bear sanctuaries where bears may not be hunted. These are located near New Lake in Hyde County, on the Jarrett Bay Game Land in Carteret County and on the Thurmond Chatham Game Land in Wilkes County. The size of the bear sanctuary in Dare County was also increased.

General statewide gun seasons for deer will remain basically the same as last year with the following exceptions:

—the deer season has been reduced from two weeks to one week in Ashe, Alleghany, Surry, Stokes, Yadkin and Davie Counties.

—the deer season has been reduced from five weeks to one week in Rockingham County.

—the deer season has been reduced from eleven weeks to five weeks in all of Harnett County; in that part of Cumberland County north of NC 24 east of Fayetteville and north of US 401 west of Fayetteville; in that part of Hoke County north of US 401 east of Raeford and north of NC 211 west of Raeford; and in that part of Moore County north of NC 211.

—the deer season will be closed in that part of Sampson County north of NC 24 west of Clinton and north of NC 403 east of Clinton.

—the deer season will be opened for one week in Alexander and Iredell Counties and those parts of Rowan and Davidson Counties west of I-85.

—the deer season will be opened for two weeks in the part of Cleveland County west of Polkville and north of SR 1361.

—the dividing line between northern Granville County, which has the long eastern season, and the southern part of the county, which has the shorter and later central season, will be US 158.

—the deer season in the Eno Township in Orange County will open to deer hunting for a six-week season.

—deer may be hunted with dogs in southeastern Anson County.

Basically, the gun seasons for deer will be two weeks in the western part of the state (Nov. 19-Dec. 1) and 11 weeks in the east and southeastern part of the state (Oct. 15-Jan. 1). Those counties under the northwestern season will have one week (Nov. 19-Nov. 24). The Uwharrie section will have a four week season (Nov. 19-Dec. 15), and the Sandhills Game Land and the section around Fort Bragg will have a five-week season (Oct. 15-Nov. 17). There will be a six-week season in the Butner section (Nov. 19-Jan. 1). The two hunting areas on the Outer Banks (Hatteras and Corolla) will have a five-week season (Oct. 15-Nov. 17).

The Wildlife Commission also slated the following either-sex deer seasons in North Carolina: —Gates County and northern Hertford County (Dec. 1-Jan. 1). Northampton County, Cherry Point Marine Air Station in Craven County, southern Hertford County and Camp Lejeune in Onslow County (Dec. 15-Jan. 1).

—Perquimans County, and portions of Bertie, Beaufort, Chowan, Edgecombe, Halifax, Hyde and Martin Counties (Dec. 15-Dec. 22).

—In those parts of Cumberland and Hoke Counties known as Fort Bragg (Dec. 15, 16, and 19).

In a part of Buncombe County (Nov. 19-Dec. 1).

—In those parts of Hyde and Washington Counties known as the Pungo National Waterfowl Refuge (Oct. 19, 20).

Deer hunters should check the 1973-74 North Carolina Hunting and Trapping Regulations, which will be available after July 1 at license agents, for complete details on boundaries, seasons and other applicable regulations.

The Wildlife Commission also established a uniform statewide season for taking deer with bow and arrow (Sept. 14-Oct. 13), and will also allow the taking of deer of either sex with bow and arrow during this entire season on all Commission-designated Game Lands and on areas designated for either-sex deer gun seasons.

Also, the wild turkey season will be split during the coming season with season being April 20-May 11 in the west of Stokes, Wilkes, Alexander, Caldwell, Burke and Cleveland Counties and April 13-May 4 in the rest of the state.

Lions Take Win Over Optimists

The Lions romped to a 15-2 victory over the Optimists Friday in the North State Little League. The victory boosted the Lions to a 3-3 mark, while the Optimists are now 2-4.

The Lions started it off with three in the first inning. Marty Worthington led off with a home run. Krage Gardiner kept it up with a walk and Mike Williams reached on an error. Both moved up on a passed ball, and Peter Pace was safe on a second error, scoring Gardiner. Shelton Wilson then sacrificed in Williams for a 3-0 lead.

They picked up two more in the second. Jim Bearden walked and moved up on a fielder's choice. Worthington walked and Gardiner reached on an error, loading the bases. Williams singled, scoring both Bearden and Worthington to put the lead to 5-0.

Two more came over in the fourth. Worthington and Gardiner both walked and stole up a base. Williams sacrificed in Worthington, and Pace grounded out to score Gardiner. That made it 7-0.

But the Optimists broke the ice with two in the bottom of the frame to avoid a shutout. Bernie Campbell walked and Patrick Wilson brought him over with a home run.

The Lions came back with four more in the fifth. Arthur Fletcher singled as did Allen Clollier. Scott Galloway was hit by a pitch and Worthington doubled to drive in both Fletcher and Collier. Gardiner walked and Pace reached on an error, scoring Galloway. Shelton Wilson walked to force in Worthington with the final run of the inning.

Four more scored in the sixth. Clollier and Galloway both walked and Worthington hit a homer. Gardiner walked, moved up on Williams' walk, took third with Roger Williams walk and scored on Wilson's sacrifice fly with the game's last run.

Keep Open Lake Mattamuskeet

RALEIGH—The North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission voted unanimously to recommend that the U.S. Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife keep Lake Mattamuskeet open to waterfowl hunting.

The action was taken after the Wildlife Commission polled sportsmen across the state during nine public hearings. Support was heavily in favor of keeping the lake open to hunting, particularly since duck hunting has been good.

The U.S. Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife earlier proposed that the lake be closed to hunting to help restore the lake's wild goose population to former levels. The goose population in the Atlantic Flyway is at an all-time high, but because of changing framing practices, most of the big Canadas have been spending recent winters in the DelMarVa Peninsula.

The N.C. Wildlife Commission proposed that a program to provide more food, reclaim marshes and manage the goose populations be worked out between the Commission, the Bureau and sportsmen in an effort of attract geese back to Mattamuskeet again.

In other action, the Wildlife Commission approved construction of tow new free boating access areas. One is a Griffon on Contentnea Creek, a popular hickory shade hotspot. The other is on the Little River near Micro.

TRADITIONAL RANCH STYLE, LUXURY FEATURES

PLAN YOUR HOME

By Gerry Bishop

Artistically placed diamond light windows accent the exterior of this three bedroom traditional ranch style, while such luxury features as boat storage, a compartmented bath and an expansive terrace create a desirable design.

On the exterior, basically simple lines are embellished diamond light windows and the contrast of vertical siding with horizontal brick. The bay window projecting from the dining room and the cupola add further interest.

Entering the foyer of the "Brighton", you find a coat closet on your left and formal dining room to your right. Adjoining the dining room is an efficient kitchen, accessible to the garage for convenience in transporting groceries. Behind the dining room is the expansive 25 foot living room, edged by a terrace of the same size. Large enough to entertain a group of people, the living room features a wood-burning fireplace and sliding glass doors to the terrace and is designed to eliminate any cross traffic through the room. The hallway to the left of the foyer leads to the three bedrooms, a large compartmented bath, storage closet, and niche for the washer and dryer. All three bedrooms enjoy plentiful closet space, and the master bedroom also boasts a private bath. One of the most outstanding features of the "Brighton" is its double garage, complete with boat storage and windows to allow plenty of light. Space is allowed for two cars and a sizable locked storage room.

Size: 1,643 sq. ft. first floor; 1,643 sq. ft. basement; 763 sq. ft. garage. Over-all dimensions: 80 ft. by 35 ft.

Anyone who works with wood or glue or both knows the value of clamps.

While contact cement and other fast-setting adhesives have reduced the usage of clamps to some extent, most bonding projects in wood-working still require clamps. There is a wide variety of clamps. The most common - that with which most of us are familiar - is the C clamp, so-called because its frame, including the jaws, is shaped roughly like the letter C. The sizes and variations of C clamps are almost endless, literally running into the hundreds. Because most of these clamps are made of metal, pieces of wood should be inserted between each jaw and the work to prevent damage to the surfaces.

pieces of wood that had to be glued together, a pipe clamp would span the surface and hold the lengths of wood in place until the adhesive had dried. The longer the pipe, the larger the area that can be handled by the clamp.

Professional woodworkers make frequent use of what are called toolmakers' clamps or hand screws, made of two wooden jaws and two adjusting screws. By manipulating one or both of the screws, the jaws can be made parallel or tilted at any desired angle. Since the jaws of this type of clamp are made of hardwood, one must be careful to use a soft pad between the jaws and any soft-wood being worked on.

With all kinds of clamps, there is an important principle. Tighten them only moderately. Tightening them too much will cause the work to twist or otherwise get out of line, ruining the gluing job.

The many varieties of clamps include some which are really straps or bands. And, of course, a vise is a form of clamp, too, except that it is stationary, while those discussed here are portable.

House Needs Periodic Check

By PAT MCCORMACK
UPI Family Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — To keep yourself healthy as possible, doctors advise annual physicals.

To keep the car running in top form, periodic inspections are suggested.

What do you need to do to keep the mortgaged cottage from all of a sudden falling down one day from neglect?

Make regular inspections. Have maintenance jobs done on a kind of schedule. Take care of little troubles before they become huge ones.

Guidelines are in the Consumers' newsletter from First National City Bank in New York. The issue is headlined: "What every new (or slightly used) homeowner should know about home maintenance."

Doing your own home check-ups regularly is a guaranteed way to avoid big repair bills.

Prevention Recommended
You can cut down your personal repair bills by using preventive maintenance, say the bank's tipsters on stretching the dollar.

"Don't let the roof leak before you repair it. Don't let a hairline crack in the mortar become a gap. And don't think that even a brand new house takes care of itself.

A checklist includes maintenance activities for each season. To wit:

—Spring. Storm windows — Clean, repair, paint and store. Put up screens. Treat window boxes for rust, and paint them. Clean and repair outside faucets. Hunt for termite traces; call exterminator if found. Inspect and repair: roof, chimney, outside walls, drains and downspouts, driveways, walks, terraces.

—Summer. Furnace, clean annually. Chimneys. Clean every third summer. Radiators —check for leaks, repair broken valves, check filters. Garage —put in order, and paint cement floor if needed. (Not so much to do in summer in view of grass chores and fun at the pool and golf course.)

Get Home Repair Manual —Fall. Paint the exterior every three-to-five years. May be done in spring or fall. Drain and turn off outside faucets. Clean and put away the screens. Put up storm windows. Clean, paint and store awnings. Inspect, repair or install weather stripping. Hunt for termite traces. Call exterminator if found. Repair and paint fences. Inspect and repair: roof, chimney outside walls; drains and downspouts; driveways, walks, terraces, outdoor stairs; foundation, crawlspace, cellar, attic; windows and doors.

—Winter. Work indoors. Paint interior as needed, every three years at least. Screens, clean and repair if not done in fall. Clean and paint outdoor furniture. Clean and repair hose if leaky. Clean tools for spring. Discard old chemicals; lock up poisons. Inspect and repair inside walls and floors, stairs.

Other tips: buy a practical manual of home improvement, maintenance and repairs. There are many excellent ones, some in paperback. Also: get on friendly terms with the folks at a well-stocked hardware store. They'll help you with special problems — giving advice and recommending repair plans or reliable help.

Q. — I intend to put down resilient floor tiles on our attic floor. There is nothing there now except a subfloor. I have been told that I must first put down a more permanent floor in order to cement the tiles to it. Is this so and what is meant by a more permanent floor?

A. — Forget about the term "more permanent" floor. What is needed is an underlayment, which can be either hardboard or plywood. First make sure that all lengths of the subfloor are securely attached. In buying the hardboard or plywood, specify that you want the underlayment grade. It costs less than hardboard or plywood intended for use where it will be seen. You will find that it is easier to work with the 4 by 4 size rather than the 4 by 8. In nailing the underlayment to the subfloor, leave a tiny space — about one-eighth of an inch — at the joints.

and therefore naturally cuts down on the high gloss of a finishing material. What you have to do now is to polish the finish to give it a satiny look. One of several ways to do this is to polish the surface of the table with rottenstone and oil.

Do a small area at a time, pouring a little oil on the wood, then sprinkling some rottenstone powder into the oil. Using a clean cloth, preferably something made of felt, rub the area vigorously. Then move on to the next area and repeat the procedure. When all parts of the top have been done this way, repeat the rubbing over the entire surface. The harder and longer you rub, the more you will be satisfied with the results.

Q. — The sink in our basement backs up whenever there is some kind of stoppage in the plumbing line. Why does it only happen there and not in any of the upstairs sinks?

A. — Because the basement sink is the lowest point in the line.

Answers Timely
Gardening Question

Q. I have heard that Nemagon could be applied to tomatoes after planting. When and how can it be applied? (H. B., Southern Pines)

A. DBCP, sold as Fumazone or Nemagon, can be used on tomatoes after they have become established—about two weeks after transplanting. The material should be soaked into the soil to a depth of 6 to 8 inches. A spading fork is a good implement to use before application. Holes cover quickly after treatment. The material should be used at the rate of 1.5 gallons per acre which is 4.5 fluid ounces per 1,000 feet of row. Apply as close to the plant as possible without severe root injury. (Harry Duncan, extension plant pathologist)

Q. How late in the fall can we plant gladiolus to have blooms before frost (J. A., Tarboro)

A. You can continue to plant them at two-week intervals until there is sufficient time between planting and frost for them to bloom. Some varieties vary in blooming periods from 60 to 90 days. Please obtain corms (bulbs) from a reliable source. Henry J. Smith, landscape horticulturist)

Q. All of my boxwoods have brown spots on the leaves. Could you guess at the problem and also a possible control? (H. R., Raleigh)

A. Without a specimen it would be difficult to be 100 percent correct; however, I would guess the problem to be boxwood leafminer. Control measures would be one and one half teaspoons of CYGON per gallon of water. The material to ask for is 25 per cent emulsifiable concentrate. One application should do the job. (H. E. Scott, extension entomology specialist)

Q. Are rose bushes growing in pots made of roofing material satisfactory for planting in the Raleigh area? (F. R., Cary)

A. They are very satisfactory. Remove the pot without disturbing the ball of earth. Plant at the same depth it was growing in the pot. (Henry J. Smith, landscape horticulturist)

East Carolina's 'First' Lady To Graduate

By JANE KELLER

When the doors of admission were opened for East Carolina Teacher Training School, Greenville, in 1909, Pattie Simmons Dowell of Williamston was the first to be admitted.

When time came for graduation of that first class on May 23, 1911, the first to receive her diploma was Pattie Simmons Dowell.

In between, there were quite a few firsts, including the job of organizing the first YWCA and serving as its first president.

Of that occasion Miss Dowell said:

"One evening Mrs. Beckwith (the lady principal) came up to me and said, 'Your father was a minister, you should do something on this campus to let your light shine. Think about it.'"

Miss Dowell said she thought and then went to each girl's room and asked who wanted to help form a YWCA.

"I think the literary societies were formed in the same way," she said.

First Enrollee

It was no accident that Miss Dowell was the first student at East Carolina.

Now retired and living in Raleigh, she said recently:

"I planned it that way. I wrote and asked if I could be the first to enroll. By being the first to enroll, many other firsts came my way."

"I was also the first to walk across the stage and get my diploma."

Those first steps across the stage to get her diploma from East Carolina began a long lone of trips across stages to receive diplomas and degrees.

She continued her education at George Peabody College for Teachers, Nashville, Tenn., where she received the Bachelor of Science degrees.

Miss Dowell received the Master of Science degree from North Carolina State College of Agriculture and Engineering and ultimately the doctorate from the University of North Carolina.

First Days

According to those present during the first days of 1909, every incoming train on Monday, October 4, brought students in and they were greeted by someone from the school.

One of the early students later said of the arrival:

"We got into a four-wheeled fringe-top phaeton at the station and rode through town in grand style! When we came to the campus, we drove over the rough driveway, crushing lime barrels and mortar boards as we went."

Vada Highsmith, historian for the first class, wrote:

"Despite the fact that we had no desks except benches borrowed from churches, no lights except small oil lamps, no maps and no blackboards, the work went straight ahead."

Miss Dowell described the beginning:

"Everything was crude when we first arrived. Building materials were still laying around the grounds. I don't even think we had window screens for a long time."

"We had to get curtains and pillows and water for the bowl and pitcher sets in our rooms," she recalled.

"Our whole problem was that we were first," Miss Dowell continued.

"Everything we did we had to keep in mind we were setting precedents. We were always reminded that the reputation of the college was at stake."

"There was not a single member of that first faculty that we did not totally respect. They were all the greatest people in the world and ready to help us anytime we wanted them to—and we always needed help."

First Graduation

When graduation time came, all the girls were responsible for obtaining their own graduation dresses of white organdy. Miss Dowell's dress was provided by her mother, cut just right, and decorated with blue ribbons.

She recalled: "First we had to go before Miss Mamie Jenkins for inspection."

"When she saw my dress, she yelled, 'Get the scissors!' I did, and she cut every one of those blue ribbons and bows off my dress."

"Somehow to this day, I cannot stand to wear blue ribbon."

Miss Dowell returned to East Carolina as a seventh-grade critic teacher in 1924 and again as a professor in the School of Education before retiring in 1960.

East Carolina is still among the "firsts" in the life of its first graduate. She continues to wear with pride her class ring, a small gold ring with pearls and daintily embossed with ECTTS.

Miss Dowell recently gave to the East Carolina Alumni Association, the Bible which was presented to her, as was the graduation custom, by the President when she received her diploma.

That Bible is currently on exhibit in the Joyner Library on the main campus.

East Carolina has not forgotten Miss Dowell, her firsts, and the years she gave as a professional in the education field. Several years ago she received the Outstanding Alumni Award, the highest award the school gives.

Many thousands since have received diplomas and degrees from East Carolina. The first was Pattie Simmons Dowell.

FIRST ALUMNA. . . Miss Dowell fondly recalls her days as East Carolina's "first."

The Lifestyle Of Farm Wives Is Changing

EDITOR'S NOTE — Fewer farmer's wives are milking the cows and gathering the eggs these days. Gardening? Canning? The little lady in gingham is more likely to be wearing a pants suit, studying, traveling, directing plays or frequently, working in town.

By DEE WEDEMEYER
Associated Press Writer
RUGBY, N.D. (AP) — Glory Monson shops in the grocery store, can't remember the last time she was up at dawn and smiles at talk about weather-beaten farm wives in gingham dresses slaving over hot stoves.

Gingham, in fact, is what this 36-year-old grain farmer's wife uses to cover her dining room walls. She wears smart, brightly-colored pants outfits, and she says her hours are no different than those of any mother of two small children.

Glory's mother cooked for 15 hired men, an all day chore. But because of mechanization, Glory has only one hired hand to feed. Her mother canned 500 to 600 quarts of meat and vegetables, enough to feed her family for a year. Glory makes jelly and freezes about 50 quarts of vegetables from her garden, but she wheels a cart once a week in a grocery store — just like her suburban and city counterparts. There are, of course, farm wives who still spend their time much like Glory Monson's mother did. But the Department of Agriculture reports that, on the whole, the lifestyle of farm wives is changing. Farm wives have more spare time. And women like Glory Monson are filling it with study, travel, the arts, volunteer work — and, frequently, off-the-farm jobs.

Reasons for the change, the Department of Agriculture says, can be found in both the women and the kinds of farm work they do.

Farm women, for instance, are becoming better educated. Those 25 years old and older average 12 years of schooling, the agriculture department says. As late as 1960, farm wives that old averaged only 9.2 years of schooling. Thirty-five per cent of farm women between 20 and 64 years old, the department says, seek and obtain jobs off the farm.

At the same time, the agriculture department says, fewer than 25 per cent of American farms have chickens or milk cows. That means fewer farm women milk, tend chickens or gather eggs. More farm women buy their milk, butter, eggs and chickens at the store. And many of the farms which still have milk, cows and chickens tend them mechanically.

Farm kitchens are becoming mechanized, too. A look around kitchens in Rugby, a farming community of 3,200, shows that dishwashers are fast taking their places beside freezers, clothes washers, dryers, blenders, mixers — and fondue pots. "There's room for creative things now," says Glory Monson, a former teacher who instructs a painting class, serves as secretary of the Village Arts Council and directs the community's annual musical production.

At first, Glory found it difficult to get participants in the musical. She had to play the lead and direct the first two productions, "My Fair Lady" and "The Sound of Music." Last year, however, she had no trouble recruiting performers, and 1,700 people attended the production. "Each year the musical gets a little more professional," she reflected. "In a way people here are more creative than the people on the West Coast. They had to be so creative to entertain themselves for so many years before television and radio."

A delicate woman who resembles Audrey Hepburn, she and her husband Bill, 34, a former University of North Dakota basketball star, lived in San Francisco and Sacramento, Calif., for six years. They returned to North Dakota to take over Glory's father's farm in 1967.

The Monsons' farm covers 1,500 acres of the black soil that has made North Dakota the nation's largest producer of durum wheat and flax. The family lives in the same modest, three-bedroom farm house where Glory grew up.

Homemaker clubs, once the only outside activity of farm wives besides the church, have begun to widen their choices from traditional cooking and sewing to lessons on interior decorating, candlemaking, flower arranging and a sure sign of new leisure — exercise classes.

Bicycles are in vogue. Ceramics, macrame and decoupage are popular hobbies. Though Mediterranean style furniture and crushed velvet couches are in style, antiques have been discovered. At some auctions local people say prices get higher than they do in Chicago. Oak organs are at a premium.

Some of the older women are amused at interest among city dwellers in natural childbirth, quilting, bread baking, canning and wine making.

"Out here we do not use kits," said Glory.

"When I was a little girl somehow you felt inferior because you lived on the farm. It's kind of the reverse now. My daughter is so proud of living on the farm. I know she will never feel what I did. All the farms were slower getting electric lights and bathrooms and telephones. Now more of them than not you find the biggest, fanciest homes on the farm."

Though some older farm women have gone to work to fill the leisure time after their children grew up, many women work to supplement farm income. At the local day care center, one third of the children are from farms. Most women abandon few of their domestic chores when they go to work. Hiring a cleaning woman is considered a sign of laziness or ostentation in some circles.

Bonnie Teigen, 36, works 4½ days a week as a girl Friday in a veterinarian's office, sometimes assisting in small animal operations.

In the summer, someone else takes the job so Bonnie can be at home with her three children. She took the job because, with the children in school and her husband Curtis, 35, raising beef cattle and hogs, she was home alone much of the day.

"I felt that going to coffee at someone's house was wasting their time and I felt this was more rewarding for my time," she said.

Bonnie still freezes chickens and vegetables and cans pickles. She no longer cans fruit because, with the price of sugar up, she says, it is not economical. Now that she works off the farm, she no longer sews during the winter and she has her hair done in a beauty salon once a week.

One of the young activists in the community is Diane Fritel, 32, who met her husband Bob, 28, traveling through France when she was a teacher in Germany and he was in the Army. A Cleveland native, Diane has a masters degree.

She spent her first summer in Rugby organizing tennis classes and held the first Rugby tennis tournament. Now she's city editor and only reporter for the Pierce County Tribune, a weekly newspaper.

Diane misses the company of women who can talk about politics as easily as pickles, but she has grown to respect the farm women tremendously.

"They are really much more talented than I am," said Diane.

She has decorated their modest three bedroom farm house with the purchases of her world travels — an Egyptian pouff, brass rubbings from England, a Moroccan blanket, African masks and the spear of a Masai farmer.

Ironically, at a time when store-bought conveniences are most available, some young farm women are going back to doing handwork.

Susan Jorgenson, 23, who became engaged to her husband Larry, 26, when they were attending Arizona State University, plans to sew by hand, not machine.

A pretty girl with long blonde hair, Susan has a degree in psychology and works as a secretary at the Heart of America Human Services Center in Rugby, a six-county agency. She hopes to move on to counseling but also is anxious to set up housekeeping.

The Jorgensons are living in a basement apartment in Leeds, about 30 miles east of Rugby, while Larry farms in partnership with his 71-year-old bachelor uncle.

Though many women are anxious to build new ranch-style homes, Susan wants an old farmhouse she can fill with old furniture. The one modern piece they will use is their king-size water bed, already a subject of curiosity in the community. Someday she would like to have a baby at home, instead of in a hospital.

Feminists are scarce in Rugby. Separate checking accounts are considered radical by some. The feminist movement, abortion and the Equal Rights Amendment have few sympathizers.

One young woman who lives like a traditional farm wife is Harriet Volk, 34, daughter of a Birmingham, Ala., pharmacist and a graduate of Auburn University and Northwestern University, where she earned a masters degree in speech therapy.

She has three children and a fourth on the way. Her work includes tending the yard and a large garden, freezing and canning a year's supply of vegetables, caring for hogs and chickens, handling eggs and delivering them to market.

A casual, practical woman, Harriet loaned her mother-in-law most of the 10 place settings of silver and 14 place settings of china she received at her fashionable Birmingham wedding.

She wanted to sell the silver, but Ed told her to keep it in case one of their boys brought home a city girl someday to meet his parents.

Miss Jane Jackson Weds Saturday To Receive College Of Regents Degree

Miss Jane Rowe Jackson and William Francis Leighton were united in marriage in a double ring ceremony at twelve o'clock noon Saturday in Immanuel Baptist Church.

The bride is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Irby Bruce Jackson of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Wilfred Orville Leighton of Waynesboro, Va., and the late Mr. Leighton.

Officiating at the ceremony was the bride's father.

A program of music was presented by Miss Donna Grose, organist, and Miss Jonnie Cassick, who sang "The Song Of Ruth" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The dimly lighted cross centered the background of the church. Beneath was a fifteen semi-circle candelabra flanked by a spiral candelabra intertwined with greenery and tall standards of emerald greenery. At the altar was a prie-dieu garland with greenery and white silk cord and seven-branched candelabra. Back of this was an arrangement of calla lilies and snapdragons. On the lower level were tiered candelabras. Pews were marked with satin bows and ivy. In the narthex, single candles were lighted in tall brass candleholders. In the center, an arrangement of summer foliage was used.

embroidered Belgian lace motifs with seed pearl accents. The skirt extended into a wattleau chapel train.

Her cathedral mantilla was edged and applied in matching lace motifs. She carried a semi-cascade bouquet of white orchids, garnet sweetheart roses, and baby's breath tied with a white and garnet bow with streamers.

Maid of honor was Miss Marilyn Shiplett of High Point. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Robert Clyde Jackson, Mrs. Irby Bruce Jackson Jr. of Greenville, sisters-in-law of the bride, Miss Jan Rowe of Wilmington, cousin of the bride, Miss Millie McGlohan and Miss Joanne Tice of Greenville, and Miss Becky Oliver of Smithfield.

They wore floor length gowns of blue voile and white cluny lace over silk taffeta. The dresses had a victorian neckline and sleeveless fitted bodice with lace encircling the neck. The skirt had a lace insert on top of the deep flounce hemline. The attendants carried loose hand bouquets of yellow and white daisies, garnet sweetheart roses, and baby's breath tied with blue velvet.

D.D. Macgregor III of Charlottesville, Va., served as the best man. Groomsmen were Mac Boxley of Raleigh, cousin of the bridegroom, Robert Clyde Jackson of Greenville, brother of the bride, John Luxton of Richmond, Va., Eddie Leavell of Waynesboro, Va., Treacy O'Hanlin Jr. of Bridgewater,

MRS. WILLIAM FRANCIS LEIGHTON

Va., Rowe Eckard Jr. of Danville, Va., Tom Martin of Danville, Va., and Reese Gordon of Pfofftown.

Reception

The parents of the bride entertained at a reception immediately following the ceremony in the church fellowship hall.

Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Mills Pruden and Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Chambliss of Greenville, the Rev. and Mrs. Clarence Godwin of Oxford, and Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert Ragland of Chapel Hill.

The refreshment tables were centered with arrangements of yellow and white snapdragons, garnet sweetheart roses, and baby's breath designed in a five branched silver candelabra.

will work second session, July 15-Aug. 17.

The St. James Senior MYF elected new officers Sunday. Sally Singleton was chosen president, Steve Jones, vice-president, Magot Schaal, secretary, and Marc Walter, treasurer.

On June 10, the MYF plans to visit the campsite, Green Acres, near Williamston. The group will swim, play golf and shoot archery that afternoon and hold services in the amphitheater that night. This outing was planned to bring upcoming sophomore into the youth group.

The bride's table was graced with a nosegay of yellow and white daisies and garnet roses tied with blue velvet. The punch bowls were encircled with greenery and single yellow and white daisies.

Assisting during the reception were Mrs. Joe Elliott of Oxford, and Miss Lynn Oliver of Princeton.

The bride attended Meredith College and is a student in the School of Nursing at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. The bridegroom attended Hargrave Military Academy and will be graduated from Elon College in August.

Mrs. Wilfred Orville Leighton, mother of the bridegroom, entertained at a rehearsal dinner for members of the wedding party and family at the Greenville Golf and Country Club on Friday night.

On Friday at noon, Mrs. William Mercer Rowe Jr. and Miss Jan Rowe of Wilmington honored the bride at a bridesmaid's luncheon at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

Couple Weds

FARMVILLE—The Farmville United Methodist Church provided the setting for the wedding vows of Miss Belinda Kilpatrick and Dr. Dempsey John Bailey, both of Chapel Hill, last Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The double ring ceremony, performed by the Rev. Kermit R. Wheeler, took place amid a setting featuring an altar arrangement of yellow roses and greenery and two fifteen branched brass spiral candelabra lighted with white cathedral tapers and entwined with sprays of fern.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. James H. Kilpatrick of Farmville, and the late Mr. Dempsey E. Bailey of Southern Pines.

Traditional wedding selections were presented by Miss Johnnie Clark of Greenville, organist, and Miss Mary J. Bailey of Columbia, S. C., sister of the bridegroom, who sang "The Call."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of organdy fashioned with a ruffled portrait neckline and empire waist with bodice accented with Irish lace and applied embroidered yellow rosebuds. The skirt featured a double flounced hemline below a border of the Irish lace. Long puffed sleeves with lace and ruffle trim and a chapel train adorned with ruffles and lace completed the styling.

She wore a Juliette cap from which fell a fingertip veil of organdy with lace border. Her only jewelry as a family heirloom, cameo brooch which had belonged to her great-great-grandmother and was given to the bride by her cousin, Virginia Joyner. She carried a bouquet of yellow rosebuds.

Pewter Gains In Popularity

CHICAGO (UPI)—Pewter, a household word throughout colonial America, has snapped back from a century of decline to establish new production records.

A tarnish-resistant alloy, pewter first was used nearly 2,000 years ago and played an important part in the development of civilization on several continents. But, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica, it began declining in popularity with the advent of cheap pottery.

Any renewal of interest in pewter was dampened during the World War II period by a shortage of tin. Restrictions on its use was not removed until 1953. But since then, Britannica says, the world production of pewter has exceeded the amount produced in any similar period in the history of the industry.

Working Women Help Support Their Families

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP)— Nearly four of every five working women today help support a family, according to a financial services expert.

W. Scane Bowler, chairman of the board of Pioneer Western Corp., said that "contrary to popular opinion, most working girls are not single."

"Of the total work force of 83.8 million persons in 1971, 31.6 million were women. Fewer than 23 per cent of the women were single — the others were married, divorced or widowed," he added.

The largest segment of working women are those who have husbands who are working or at home. More than 58 per cent, he said, are in this category.

"Divorced wives account for only 6 per cent of the women in the work force but they represent the fastest growing segment, up about 30 per cent since 1960," Bowler added.

There are 1.4 million more single women on the job today than there were in 1965.

undiluted
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon dried crushed thyme
1/2 teaspoon sugar
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1/4 cup peanut butter

Rub chicken with tabasco sauce. Roll each piece in flour; shake off excess.

In a large skillet over medium heat, heat oil. Add chicken and brown lightly on both sides — about 6 minutes. Remove chicken; drain briefly on paper toweling and place in a 2-quart oblong glass baking dish (11 1/2 by 7 1/2 by 1 3/4 inches) or similar utensil.

Pour off all but about 2 tablespoons fat in skillet. Add onion to skillet and cook, stirring often, until wilted. Add tomato sauce, chicken broth, lemon juice, thyme, sugar and nutmeg; stir to mix. Add peanut butter and stir until blended.

Pour sauce over chicken in baking dish. Bake, uncovered, in a preheated 350-degree oven until chicken is tender — 30 to 45 minutes. Serve with couscous (a traditional Moroccan wheat dish) or rice. Makes 4 servings.

Credit Women Hear Speaker Miss Griffin Entertained

The program topic for the Tuesday evening meeting of the Greenville Credit Women International was the "History of the Savings and Loan Association." Vick King told of the beginning of the savings and loan association in the early 1880's and the kind of loans which were first made available. "When they first opened for business, the only kind of loans granted were on the private dwellings. In 1932, for the first time, the government began to supervise the corporations and this was the FSLIC," he said. The different types of loans available include the conventional home loan, the insured loan by mortgage loan companies and construction loans.

PORTSMOUTH, Va.—Miss Elaine Harris Griffin, bride-elect of William Joseph Wiseman, was honored at the home of Mrs. Virginia Laguta Monday night. ## On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

A "Show and Tell" time can be conducted by Mrs. Paul Wygert by displaying her many talents—crocheted and knitted afghans, jewelry, pocketbooks trimmed with swiss straw flowers, pillow tatting, needlepoint, and Swedish embroidery.

Her newest hobby is making bread dough flowers which she uses in gold frames backed with black velvet as pictures or wall plaques, in paper weights and for artificial flower arrangements.

"Around the first of the year, one of my neighbors introduced me to the art of making the bread dough flowers," said Mrs. Wygert.

The flowers are molded from slices of white bread, glue, glycerin and white acrylic paint. "The mixture is colored with acrylic paint before the petals are formed," Mrs. Wygert pointed out.

Three slices of bread makes enough dough for five to six pictures and the prepared dough can be kept in the refrigerator, wrapped in plastic, for about two weeks.

After Mrs. Wygert finishes each flower, she places it on a toothpick to dry.

When asked what particular handwork she enjoyed most, Mrs. Wygert replied, "I enjoy everything I do—whenever I am sitting down, I am doing something with my hands, needlework or molding flowers."

Her other hobbies are any type of sport activity. She has been invited to participate in a yard sale in early June and will show her crafts. The event will also feature other crafts made by Greenville women.

Mrs. Wygert, who resides at 2403 Jefferson Dr., also plans to participate in other craft showings this summer.

NEWEST HOBBY. . . of Mrs. Paul Wygert, of Greenville, is making bread dough flowers, which she uses in paper weights or in gold picture frames.

Cyclist Pedals To Help Women

QUIBERON, France (WNS)

—Louison Bobet, 48, the former bike-racing champion who since retirement has been building French businessmen back to health, has now given official approval of Women's Lib and will concentrate on professional Frenchwomen this season. "Today's business woman is suffering from lack of oxygen, lack of exercise, too much sitting and too many business banquets," he said. Bobet intends to open a dietary hotel where men and women will exercise by farming their own healthy foods and getting to know each other as "social out of automobiles and onto people, not as business pawns." bicycles so that they will become His ambitions: "to get women naturally beautiful again."

In-flight Fashion Shows On Jamaican Lines

MONTEGO BAY, Jamaica (AP)—The in-flight fashion show is a new treat for passengers en route here from New York.

As models step down the aisle in beach and vacation styles, it could be Paris or Rome. It is, instead, 30,000 feet up on an Air Jamaica flight. Models are stewardesses, and the shows are regular features on all the airline's flights.

Marian Morales of the Jamaican Fashion Guild says the in-flight shows are a means of showcasing Jamaica's contribution to the world's fashion industry.

Jamaica is a small but growing influence in the fashion world. Last year, more than $9 million-worth of apparel was exported and 5,000 persons were employed in the clothing industry.

Miss Morales says Jamaican fashions reflect the mood of the island. "Designers here prefer an elegant and sophisticated look," she added. "They're very partial to hand-screened prints, bright colors and careful detailing."

Handiwork is an island tradition and it is important in fashion.

Miss Morales says Jamaican fashions are particularly well suited for spring and summer wear. She describes the collection now being marketed in the United States as "sophisticated with a simple, basic line." Sizes range from 6 to 20, she added. "Jamaican designers favor cotton and linen fabrics, but in recent years have been utilizing an increasing number of jerseys and polyester materials with a distinctly Jamaican look. Easy care makes them great for travel. However, I believe we'll be seeing a back-to-natural fabrics movement soon, because they're both handsome and comfortable," Miss Morales said.

The fashions range from evening gowns to hand-embroidered tennis dresses, from casual wear to suits and dresses suitable for business women.

While southern and western parts of the United States are important markets for Jamaican designers because their climates are warmer, the clothes are gaining popularity throughout North America, she said.

To Baby

How lonely the song
the night bird sings, touching my heart
like the refrain of a thousand strings.
I listen for your voice yearning for your touch.
But silence is all the darkness brings,
For you are gone and I miss you so much.

Falklanders Eat Mutton 365 Days Out Of Year

By ROBERT D. OHMAN
PORT STANLEY, Falkland Islands (AP) — Here on these isolated British islands not too far from the South Pole housewives call their menu "the 365."

It means the capable cook should have 365 ways to prepare mutton, since it is served nearly every day of the year—roasted, stewed, grilled, ground or curried.

There are no regular butcher shops in this small capital city, and about the only time the mutton diet changes is when a farmer friend butchers one of his own cattle or kills some chickens and sells part.

Frozen poultry is occasionally imported but the inexpensive, always available meat is mutton—understandable in islands where sheep outnumber the 2,000 inhabitants by a ratio of 300 to one.

Preparation of the meat course is not the housewife's only preoccupation. She also must raise her own vegetables and contend with cooking and heat from a peat stove.

Only potatoes are available commercially so each family has its zealously cared for garden patch.

Homeowners grow cabbages, potatoes, carrots, onions and lettuce, and the more determined cultivate the difficult peas and beans. A few green thumbs even raise their own tomatoes, started in small greenhouses or the glassed-in front porch. Imported fruit is scarce and costly.

Peat, collected from the hogs that ring the city, is the standard fuel. It is the husband's added chore during summer months to go the bogs after completing his day's work to cut peat and rickle it (place it in stacks for drying). The peat later has to be hauled into town and stored in the fuel shed.

Peat is a smudgy fuel, and there is a village chimney sweep who cleans the chimneys for $2.50 each.

Taxicabs in Athens, Greece, sometimes have lace curtains, vases of flowers, and icons.

Care for your car. Then follow these signs. For safe summer driving.

These new "symbol" road signs are replacing the conventional "word" signs that we've been familiar with throughout our driving careers. It's important for every driver to quickly recognize each sign—and understand its meaning. Just as it's important for every driver to take his car in for regular car care maintenance. For maximum performance, safety and operating economy. With minimum harmful exhaust emissions.

How to Assure a Joyful Vacation

Make Certain Your Car Is Ready for Safe Trouble-Free Motoring

Is your car in shape for the strenuous schedule of summer travel you have planned? Or, like too many in this country, is it a candidate for an exasperating, expensive and possibly dangerous breakdown?

It's a lamentable fact that too many motorists will expect a thoroughbred's performance from a car that is, in fact, more like a candidate for the Swayback Derby.

Study after study shows that in critical safety and performance areas, the average car is not equipped to handle the long, hard driving most vacation trips require.

Why is this so? Why do John and Jane Owner allow their cars to deteriorate?

Champion Spark Plug Company recently conducted a survey which sought to determine the reasons for tune-up neglect. While the survey concentrated on tune-up, it is probable that the rationalizations given for not buying needed tune-up apply to other maintenance musts as well.

The major reasons cited were:

My car is running fine just the way it is.

I don't have time.

I don't have the money.

As plausible as these reasons may have seemed to the motorists, they often defy either fact or logic (or both).

* * *

Consider these facts.

Are most cars running fine just the way they are? Not according to compulsory vehicle check lanes or private diagnostic clinics.

More than half the cars inspected at these facilities show dangerous safety and operational defects, many of them unknown to the car owner.

Is "I don't have time" a valid excuse?

Certainly, most people live busy, active lives. But a busy person soon learns that to accomplish what he must, he has to schedule activities.

It may be inconvenient to bring a car in for service but it's even more inconvenient to ruin a vacation trip by having an undermaintained car break down in a strange location.

Who said, "I don't have the money"?

Few of us have all the money we need. But a few dollars spent on preventive maintenance can save a lot of dollars spent on corrective maintenance. A squirt of lubricant often can forestall the breakdown of an expensive part.

* * *

Certainly, there are reasons and excuses for everything. But you've invested too much money in your car to allow it to deteriorate. And you'll be investing too much hard-earned time and money on your vacation to let it be spoiled by a malfunctioning car.

Bring your car in for a pre-vacation check at your favorite service outlet and really enjoy your summer driving.

LOTS OF AIR

An average automobile engine uses about 9,000 gallons of air for every gallon of gasoline. Have your air cleaner serviced regularly for top performance.

WIPE OUT NOISE

If you have car radio interference when your electric windshield wipers are on, check your wiring. Improperly-grounded two-speed wipers can cause the trouble.

Time to Summerize Recreational Vehicles

Removal of All Signs of Winter Recommended as First Step To Roadworthy Operation

"Before making extensive summer use of a recreational vehicle, owners should first make sure it is properly de-winterized," says Mike Radigan, National Director of the Recreational Vehicle Institute. He referred to the process of readying an RV for hot weather use as "summerizing" and said the first step in summerizing is to remove signs of winter.

"Anti-freeze should be drained from the radiator and fresh water should be back-flushed through the cooling system," the RVI head suggests.

"Engine oil should be changed and summer oil used — a new oil filter should be installed. At the same time, it is a good idea to have the entire chassis lubricated.

"It shouldn't be necessary to change transmission fluid or differential oil but these should at least be checked, as should the power steering oil.

Check Spark Plugs

"Master cylinder brake fluid should also be checked."

Other steps toward "summerizing," according to Radigan, include cleaning and gapping (or replacing) spark plugs and points, recharging battery condition), checking and replacing if necessary such items as light bulbs, windshield wiper blades, muffler and tail pipe, springs and shock absorbers.

Radigan also suggested front end alignment checks, inspection of tires and a general underneath check for damage of any kind.

"As for the living quarters, the water storage tank should be thoroughly flushed out to remove any anti-freeze you may have used and to clean out the tank and water lines. Thorough flushing should continue for at least 15 minutes," the RVI director advises.

Look for Leaks

"This is a good time to make sure your pump is working properly and that there are no leaks anywhere in your water system," Radigan advised, suggesting similar treatment for the holding tank.

He emphasized that special attention should be paid to appliances including range, furnace, refrigerator, water heater, etc., and said that gas appliances should be carefully tested for correct pilot flames, in accordance with manufacturers' instructions.

Remember These

"An additional check of all windows, doors, ventilators, cabinets, and a little oil or graphite on noisy or stiff hinges ... a final check of your interior lights, careful inspection of your hitch and safety chains, and you should be ready for a summer full of fun," Radigan concluded.

Adventuresome vacationers who want to take their camper trailers off the beaten path into scenic areas such as the above — with its magnificent view of the Grand Tetons — will do well to make sure their rigs are checked thoroughly before they consider off-road maneuvers.

SEE AND BE SEEN!

Among the most common reasons for rejection at vehicle inspection stations throughout the country are items affecting visibility. In some areas as high as a 50 percent rejection rate occurs on items such as lights and windshield wiper and washer systems.

Experts say that headlight aiming should be checked several times a year. Wiper blades should be replaced every six months.

Courses in Motoring Win Feminine Favor

*Thousands Flock to Classrooms
Even into Grease Pits to Learn More about Family Car*

If a recent survey by the Automotive Information Council is any indication, the day may be coming when the lady of the house knows as much about what makes the family car tick as her husband does.

The AIC survey shows that thousands of women across the country are flocking to the classroom and even the grease pit.

They're donning coveralls (at least in some classrooms, where they are provided free) and taking a cool, calculating look at that erstwhile mystery, the family car.

Finding Out What Makes It Go

They're finding out what makes it go, what illnesses it may be subject to, how some of these can be avoided, what to do if repairs have to be made, how to handle emergency situations and how to keep the family chariot in safe operating condition.

The classes, which may run from a single day-long session to once-a-week courses of several weeks, are being sponsored as a consumer service by an increasingly broad spectrum of the automotive industry, ranging from small independent repair shops to major car manufacturers, from franchised dealers to manufacturers of auto testing equipment and parts.

Surprisingly, though some are sponsored nationally by manufacturers and industry groups, many seem to have sprung up independently in response to the needs of women drivers.

Goal Is Same

Though formats and sponsorships vary, the courses all have the same goal: to aid the woman motorist in understanding her car — not necessarily to make her an expert mechanic, but to enable her to handle minor problems and to deal confidently and decisively with service technicians when their help is needed.

Almost all of the courses offer both classroom lectures and actual demonstrations in shops and service facilities.

Response has been terrific, sponsors report, with many classes enrolling two and three times the students originally expected — in turn resulting in more frequent scheduling of classes, often on a year-round basis.

Seven-Week Program

In Cedarhurst, N. Y., Mrs. Edna Freifeld, who has been an auto service technician since World War II and is the only female licensed state auto inspector in New York, has been conducting a seven-week program for women motorists. It includes such subjects as brake operation, battery care, tire changing and emission controls, as well as guest appearances by automotive experts from Bronx Community College and other institutions.

All shop personnel are on hand for demonstrations — which also cover some of the techniques used by fast buck artists — and she reports that many of her students taking the course have stayed on for an advance class she has just initiated.

Putting the car up the hoist at women's automotive class in Rock Island, Ill., conducted jointly by the YWCA and a leading manufacturer of auto testing and service equipment. The class is one of hundreds offered to women to help them understand how to maintain a car for safety and trouble-free performance.

Rotary Engines Still Require Maintenance

Some experts say the Wankel (rotary) engine is the automotive power source of the future. Other equally qualified authorities maintain that the present-day piston engine, although modified, will be with us for an indefinite period.

No matter who is correct, two facts are beyond dispute. The rotary engine is already an on-the-road reality. And this rotary engine, despite its simplified design, will continue to require regularly scheduled maintenance.

However, as different as the rotary engine is, there are still familiar basic maintenance needs. The rotary engine uses a conventional ignition system. So periodic tune-up is as important to the Wankel-type engine as it is to the piston engine.

The Mazda version of the rotary employs two rotors (combustion chambers) and each rotor uses two spark plugs, or four per engine. These plugs fire three times in each engine revolution and the combustion chamber environment in which they perform is much more demanding than in a conventional engine. As a result, service or replacement is recommended at 4,000 miles.

Since two plugs are used per rotor, two separate distributors are needed to fire the plugs in proper sequence. In other respects the Mazda ignition system is normal. Therefore, when tuning the engine, attention should be paid to:

- Cleaning, regapping or replacing spark plugs
- Compression check
- Carburetor check
- Idle and timing settings
- Condition of distributor components

- Spark plug wiring
- Air, oil and fuel filters
- Battery and electrical system

Other important maintenance checks on a rotary engine concern the cooling system and the oil supply.

Computer Helping Design Safer Highways

Ontario's highways are some of the most closely watched roads in the world. Since 1945, the province has built up an accident reporting system that gives Ministry of Transportation and Communications personnel an accurate picture of the accident rate and traffic volume for every 500 feet of the 13,000 miles of highway in the province.

One of the originators of the program, Tom Mahony, MTC's Administrator of Transportation Safety, worked closely with the Ontario Provincial Police to set up a key point system in 1947.

"The province is divided into 17 O.P.P. districts and we related our system to this division," he explains. "In each district we agreed to designate well-known points such as junctions of highways, district boundaries, or county lines as reference or key points.

"We also established the mileage between these points.

Accidents Noted

"If an accident occurred at one of these points or near them, the investigating officer was asked to note this on the collision report.

"Eventually, the key points were situated every 500 feet or 1/10th of a mile on the highway, and we gradually got a very detailed picture of what was happening on the road."

Mahony further explained that this knowledge greatly assisted highway engineers in the planning and design of highways. In addition, Traffic Engineers gain precise knowledge of the effect of lane markings or other physical aspects of the road on drivers.

When the system was first set up, copies of the accident report were sent to Mahony and processed by the former Department of Highways. Inevitably however, the computer began to play a large role in the program.

Paul de Valence, Computer Services Project Engineer, explained that in early 1968, accident data was fed into the computer.

"At that time," he said,

"we were using the old collision report form and since it was not designed for use by a computer, we set about codifying all the data. Of course, the O.P.P., local police, and at that time, the Department of Transport were also doing the same thing."

Close to Automation

One year ago, all police forces in Ontario began to use a new collision report form. Says de Valence, "This form has taken us one step closer to complete automation, which will no doubt come within five years and is a tremendous achievement when you consider we have to process approximately 150,000 collision reports annually."

But does this vast information gathering network affect the final design of highways?

"It certainly does," says Mahony. Out of all the data comes a book called Traffic Volumes and Collision Rates. "We watch the collision rates rather closely and if a particular stretch of road starts to record a collision rate higher than the provincial average, we identify it as a problem area and try to find out what's wrong.

"We base our collision rate on the number of accidents occurring per million vehicle miles of travel. The fatality or death rates, however, are based on 100 million vehicle miles of travel."

Mahony says that the difference in the method of computing collision and death rates is simply the result of a policy decision to follow the system set out by the U.S. National Safety Council. "The resulting figures are easier to handle and compare to U.S. figures," he says.

Liaison Important

Personal liaison with the O.P.P. officers in the province is important. Mahony, accompanied by Ministry of Transportation and Communications engineers, meets with O.P.P. officers on a regular annual basis to discuss traffic problems and methods of resolving these conflicts.

Mysteries of Single-Car Accidents May be Traced To Worn Out Shocks

One of the fastest growing and most mysterious fatal accident statistics is the single car accident. It results when, for some undetermined reason, a car leaves the road and strikes a fixed object.

Since victims of the single car accident cannot explain what happened, causes of the tragedy are difficult to determine.

According to some traffic experts, a possible reason for at least some of the single car fatalities could be worn shock absorbers. When shocks are worn, a panic stop, possibly caused by an animal darting onto the roadway, could result in the car's front wheels lifting off the road's surface. This action could result in loss of control by the driver.

Also, when shocks are defective, taking a curve at high speeds could mean loss of control.

The average effective life of shock absorbers is about two years or 24,000 miles of driving. Beyond that point, shocks generally lose effectiveness and pose a safety hazard.

Therefore, the motorist is advised to have the condition of the shocks checked routinely when the car is on the hoist for an oil change, lube job, wheel alignment or similar service.

Motorists are also advised to match up the replacement shocks with the type of driving they do. In over-the-road driving with normal loads, regular shocks generally suffice. However, with frequent driving over rough roads and at high speeds, a heavy duty shock may be needed. Motorists who frequently haul trailers or other heavy loads may need load leveler stabilizing units.

If front-end sag due to worn springs is evident, front end stabilizing units are recommended.

Signs of worn shock absorbers include a bobbing of the car after a stop, rough riding characteristics and instability on curves.

Changing Spark Plugs Can Save You Gas

Getting better gasoline mileage always has been an attractive proposition to the motorist. Who could argue with the proposition that when gasoline consumption goes down, the bank balance edges up?

Today being stingy with gasoline is more than a matter of dollars and cents. The same factors that affect gas economy also have a strong bearing on reducing exhaust emissions. And there's still another compelling reason to be concerned with gasoline conservation. The world is faced with an impending shortage of petroleum, the source of gasoline.

Key to Saving

According to David L. Walker, Champion Spark Plug Company automotive technical services director, engine condition is the key to gasoline consumption.

Walker, speaking to a group of technicians at Champion's new West Coast Technical Center in Santa Ana, California, reported that untuned engines are wasters of fuel.

He cited results of a three-nation Champion test program that showed an untuned engine (one that hasn't been tuned in more than 10,000 miles of operation) wastes between one and two gallons of gasoline per tankful. Merely replacing worn spark plugs with new ones can save better than a gallon per tankful the tests revealed.

Habits Have Bearing

Driving habits also have a bearing on good gasoline mileage, Walker said.

- Excessive speed is a notorious waster of fuel. Keeping within the posted speed limits will help save gasoline, not to mention reducing accident dangers.

- Keeping a light and steady foot on the gas pedal is also a fuel saver. Jack rabbit starts and sudden acceleration while driving require excessive fuel.

- Stay mentally ahead of traffic, "playing" traffic lights and avoiding situations such as tail-gating other cars. Sudden stopping and starting are major causes of wasted gasoline.

- Avoid prolonged idling. If you must wait in your car for more than a few seconds, such as at a railroad crossing or for someone to come out of a store, it's more economical to shut off the engine. It also helps cut down on pollution.

- Make sure your tire pressure is proper. Under-inflated tires, particularly, hurt gas economy.

Don't Pass Up Free Services At Outlets

May Cost You Money Later If You Do

Maybe the best things in life aren't really free, but if you pass up those free services offered by service outlets, it may cost you.

Take the simple precaution of checking battery water levels. It requires only a few seconds of time and absolutely no money. But if battery fluid levels are allowed to drop and the condition is not detected, it could mean premature deterioration of the battery. It could cause an inconvenient "can't start" as well.

During hot, dry periods of summer, battery water is more likely to evaporate. So, especially during warm weather months, have the battery checked every time you stop for gas.

In addition to water levels, have the battery checked for corrosion and soundness of the cables.

Another free service that can save you money is checking the tires for proper inflation. Both under-inflation and overinflation can be harmful to tires, wearing them out prematurely. For accurate readings, do not have the tires checked after you've driven more than a few miles.

Other free checks that will help prevent trouble include inspection of oil level and windshield washer fluid. Low levels of oil can lead to engine damage and no fluid in the washer reservoir could hamper visibility at a critical time.

DID YOU KNOW?

Did you know that if you drive a car an average of 10,000 miles per year its spark plugs have probably fired some 15 million times during that period? That's why they should be serviced at 5,000 miles and replaced at 10,000 miles.

Carbon on the distributor points can lead not only to spark plug misfiring but in some cases can cause complete ignition failure.

Tune-Ups Most Vital in Coping with Pollution

Progress in Fight for Cleaner Air Calls for Regular Car Maintenance

If you're adept at creating HC, CO and NOx, you may get a good grade in a chemistry class. But you'll be flunking in a more important area, helping protect the nation's environment.

The three chemical designations are the elements of the harmful emissions that are byproducts of fuels that power automobile engines. They are part of the air pollution problem.

HC (or hydrocarbons) is a scientific designation for fuel. The amount of fuel that is unburned and enters the atmosphere through exhaust or vaporization is one element that, when exposed to sunlight, creates smog.

Invisible Gas

Another smog-creating byproduct of combustion is NOx (nitrogen oxide). CO (carbon monoxide) does not create smog but enters the atmosphere as an odorless, tasteless and invisible gas. In enclosed areas, such as the interior of a car, CO can be lethal.

If automotive fuel were burned to 100 per cent efficiency, the byproducts would be H<sub>2</sub>O and CO<sub>2</sub>. H<sub>2</sub>O is water and CO<sub>2</sub> is carbon dioxide, both harmless to the atmosphere.

Fortunately, all signs point to the near-future time when the automobile will no longer be a significant part of the air pollution problem. One indication of this trend is that today, more than 85 per cent of automobile-caused pollution comes from cars built before 1968.

Later-model cars, incorporating anti-pollution devices, have become a minor part of the problem.

In fact cars built today create only 10% of the pollutants as did cars manufactured in the early 1960's.

As the older cars are scrapped, the pollution picture in this country is brightening significantly. And as devices such as after-burners or catalytic converters are introduced in a few years, cars will be virtually pollution-free, according to the car manufacturers.

Maintenance Needed

Despite all the efforts and money invested by the car makers, the fight against air pollution will not be totally successful unless the car owner adheres to a schedule of maintenance.

The service most vitally affecting emissions is tune-up.

According to tests conducted by the University of Michigan and the State of New Jersey, a tuned engine produces about 50 per cent fewer pollutants than the same engine in need of tune-up (at idle).

National Check Your Vehicle Emissions Month in April was established in the U.S.A. to remind motorists that engines in good condition do not pollute excessively. Many service facilities like this one offered clean engine checks to help combat air pollution. Mechanics perform a 15-minute check of vital engine components to see whether the car is a polluter or not.

Some Motor Accidents Traced to Missed Meal

Abnormally low blood-sugar levels, induced by missed meals, may be a direct cause of accidents.

This is the view of Miss M. S. Christian, Head of the Accident and Emergency Department at Wexham Park Hospital, Slough, England. In accident studies she found that several truck drivers who crashed for no apparent reason had extremely low blood-sugar levels.

In three cases, the drivers were either confused, faint or ill but each recovered after a shot of intravenous glucose and a meal. None of them was diabetic and all were young and healthy. The common factor was that each driver had at least 12 hours' starvation.

This new danger was discovered by Miss Christian during a survey she is undertaking of the "unknown factors" in road accidents.

The survey, which will also look into the effects of such factors as tranquilizers and diabetes, includes a question to establish the relationship between the time of the accident and the last meal.

Competency Exams Help Mechanics Earn Certification

If a car with an automatic transmission starts in all selector positions, what is the cause of the malfunction? What must be done to correct disc brakes that are overly sensitive to light pedal pressure?

In 165 cities throughout the country late this fall, mechanics will be answering similar questions contained in a four-part series of tests. Successful completion of the battery will demonstrate that an individual has the necessary competence and skills to be certified as a General Automobile Mechanic.

The voluntary mechanic certification program is the first project of the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence. Headquartered in Washington, D.C., the independent, non-profit body was organized by concerned segments of the vehicle service industry to improve the quality of automobile repairs through testing and educational projects.

The Institute will work with the public government and the service industry to create new approaches, new methods that will help bring into being improved automobile servicing standards and reliable measurements of service competency.

On four consecutive Tuesday evenings, mechanics will take an 80-question, multiple-choice examination on one of the four automobile areas in which a good mechanic should have knowledge.

Those passing all four tests and who have at least two years of automobile work experience will be certified. The recognition certificate will be valid for three years after which time a recertification test will be necessary.

Each test will cost $10 and if the mechanic so chooses he may spread out completion of the battery over a one or two year period. Although he is recognized for successfully completing each part, full certification will not be granted until all four tests have been passed.

The certification examinations were developed by Educational Testing Service, a nationally-known organization which will also administer and score the tests.

The questions do not relate to specific vehicle makes or models — domestic or imported, but focus instead on basic systems. The first covers power plants—a car's basic engine, fuel induction, ignition and exhaust systems. The second asks questions about transmissions, clutches, drive-lines and axles.

Test number three involves suspension steering and brake systems while the final test covers starting and charging systems, basic body, electrical and air-conditioning systems.

Those mechanics who do not pass the tests the first time, may retake an exam when it is again offered six months later. It was emphasized that mechanics who are competent in a given test area should pass the first time. Those who do not will find out in which areas skills are lacking so that they may prepare accordingly for eventual certification.

Complete details of the program are contained in a Bulletin of Information which may be requested by writing to: Certified Mechanic Program, Educational Testing Service, P.O. Box 2611, Princeton, New Jersey 08580.

Some ignition problems don't show themselves except in wet weather. That's when cracked insulation is most likely to fail. Avoid trouble by having boots and cables inspected when you buy new spark plugs.

How to Get Maximum Safe Miles Out of Tires, Told by Expert

By RODGER WARD

I've learned a lot about tires and what makes them last longer, perform better, thanks to my years as a race car driver and professional tire tester. Now that I have a performance safety tire on the market with my name on it I'm even more interested in seeing that motorists everywhere get the right facts on prolonging tire life.

The tricks to getting those extra miles of tire life aren't all connected solely with the condition or quality of the tires installed on a car however. Improved driving techniques will help extend tire life, as will taking care of your car's tires from time to time. I have a list of seven things to do that I know will prolong the life of your tires.

WATCH THAT INFLATION: Perhaps the greatest single determining factor in tire mileage is the air pressure at which tires are run. Check the owner's manual for your car — this is where the load range data will be useful — and follow the recommended air pressure for the tires you now use.

The Department of Transportation estimates that some 33 million tires a year are destroyed by underinflation. This represents a loss of some $750 million to car owners. So remember, the few minutes a simple tire pressure check takes will save you money.

If you get a tire that is larger than normally called for on a given car, this is all right — as long as the wheel rim will accept the larger tire. Undersized tires could fail you in a stress situation. An undersized tire will not safely carry the weight of your car and its payload.

sizes. Be sure that the same tire sizes are in service on the same axle.

CUTS, BRUISES AND BUBBLES: Tires that have sustained actual damage are a serious safety hazard. A sidewall cut can let go when it's least expected, sometimes with disastrous results. So for safety's sake check your tires for cuts, bruises and bubbles.

This kind of checking must be done with the tire free of the road, so that it can be spun and checked on the entire circumference of the tread as well as the sidewall that faces into the car. If the tire rubber is abraded over a considerable distance, and the tire looks as though it may be damaged, there's only one thing to do. Have the tire removed and the inside checked for possible cord damage.

Bubbles that indicate rubber layer separation are cause for immediate replacement also. A young tire with a sidewall bubble should be taken back to the point of purchase for warranty consideration.

SUSPENSION ADJUSTMENTS CRITICAL TOO: Proper alignment of a car's front-end will help to get more miles out of a set of tires. And if you rotate tires regularly, accurate front-end alignment will improve the wear of all road tires.

Another point to remember is that shock absorbers also should be checked regularly for effectiveness and correct operation. If the shocks are weak they won't keep those tires on the road and frequent bouncing impact will take its toll in shortened tire life.

High-mileage cars should have their ball joints checked since wear of these components also can lead to rapid tire wear. Maintaining regular wheel balance is another key to longer tire life. The wheels should be balanced according to the car maker's suggestions, or when you feel any unusual minor vibration in the chassis or steering.

STARTS, STOPS, CORNERS AND CURBS: Even if you're in a hurry, you should take your time when pulling away from a stop. On the other side of the coin, you should never as a habit use the panic stop, or other such hard-driving techniques as late breaking, unless you absolutely must as an evasive maneuver.

Winner of the Indianapolis '500' in 1959 and 1962, Rodger Ward knows how to get every safe mile possible out of tires. His advice to car owners is presented in the accompanying article. This photo was taken in 1966, Ward's last year in competitive racing.

at high speeds is one of the best ways I know to reduce tire mileage. When your car builds up a lot of forward momentum, and you ask the tires to absorb the sideways force of a quick turn, you're burning rubber.

Cleaner Engines Call For Better Cooling

In designing anti-emission systems to help reduce air pollution, car manufacturers are installing hotter-running engines in today's vehicles. Therefore, it has become even more critical that cooling systems be in top condition to handle the higher engine temperatures.

This means that the cooling system should be checked twice a year for the following:

Leak-free radiator; soundness of all hoses and connections; properly operating thermostat; radiator cap is sealing efficiently; water pump is working, and coolant levels are normal.

Proper mixture of coolant, for both summer and winter operation, is about 50 per cent ethylene glycol-type anti-freeze and 50 per cent water. This so-called permanent-type anti-freeze should be replaced every two years or 30,000 miles, whichever comes first.

While on the subject of anti-freeze, the "self-sealing" variety that claims it can stop radiator leaks offers only a temporary solution to a leak problem. Containing, generally, an asbestos-type compound, the "leak-proof" anti-freeze is effective only for a short time. Once revealed, the leak should be located and repaired by a competent auto service technician.

A scenic highway is a great place to enjoy life on a vacation trip. When a car is purring along the open road, the cares of the shop and the office seem as remote as the moon. That's why the smart car owner will make sure his vehicle is in shape for the trip — to keep those troubles remote. For, somehow, a beautiful stretch of highway can become a nightmare if your car is disabled along the shoulder. Care for Your Car to make sure every mile you travel is a joyous one.

HELPFUL HINTS

When an engine misses as the car is accelerated but runs fine at light load or idle, the probable reason is that a worn plug may mis-fire because of increased compression pressure at heavy load.

It costs not to tune every 10,000 miles.

Putting off a tune-up can cost you plenty. Costs that affect your wallet. Your safety. Your car's dependability. And your health.

Tests have shown that an untuned car wastes, on the average, a gallon of gas from every tankful . . . takes an average of 7½ car lengths longer to pass a vehicle moving 50 mph . . . has over twice as many "won't starts" . . . and spews substantially greater amounts of harmful pollutants into the air we breathe.

Consider the costs. We think you'll see why it's smart to take your car in for a tune-up every 10,000 miles—or once each year—with Champion spark plugs. The brand that's always right. For every engine.

FOR BEAR BRYANT, Alabama football coach
How did you get your nickname "Bear"?—Douglas Higgs, Santa Susana, Calif.

● I was a big farm kid living near Fordyce, Ark. We had walked into town to Mr. Smith's picture theater. They had some man there with a bear and they were offering a dollar a minute to anyone who would wrestle it. Well, I'd have wrestled King Kong for a dollar a minute! So they brought this bear out—my friends said it was scrawny but it looked 30 feet tall to me. It had a muzzle. I knew enough about wrestling to get the bear down, get a hold on him and keep my body away from him, which I did. That was easy. But then the bear started getting up. We went up and down a couple of times, and then I noticed the muzzle was off and I reached behind my neck and found some blood. I jumped off the stage and took off. When I went back to get my money the man and his bear were gone. All I got out of it was a nickname.

FOR MONTY HALL, MC of "Let's Make a Deal"

What happens to the articles that people give you in trade?—Mrs. Gary Durow, Saginaw, Mich.

● Cakes and other such goodies are eaten by the cast and crew. Toys and items that are salvageable are given to underprivileged children and Good Will Industries. Whatever nobody wants, we throw away.

FOR KITTY CARLISLE

I note that whenever athletes are on "To Tell the Truth" you seem to guess right. What's the key to your success?—D. L. McGregor, Atlantic City, N.J.

● Athletes are usually very poised. I study the faces of all three contestants when they give the same name at the beginning of their segment. The imposters usually give themselves away by the unsure way they give the name.

FOR GLORIA STEINEM

You always complain about job discrimination against women. How many men are employed at your "Ms." magazine?—Joe Zeloof, Edison, N.J.

● One requisite for editorial jobs at "Ms." is an understanding of what it's like to be a woman. Obviously, few men have this understanding. We'd employ them if they had it, and if they were better qualified than female applicants. We do hire non-chauvinist men for some non-editorial jobs. Currently the magazine has three full-time male employees.

FOR JIM PALMER, pitcher for the Baltimore Orioles

There has been talk that the new designated-hitter rule in the American League will lead to more beanballs because the pitcher, never having to bat, does not fear retaliation. What do you think?—John Jethro, Boston, Mass.

● It's true that the only way you'll be able to get back at a pitcher now is to throw into the dugout. But I think these fears are unfounded. In a war like that, both sides get hurt and no manager is going to allow it.

FOR A. J. FOYT, auto racer

When a racer comes into the pits he stays in his car and is given a drink at the end of a stick. Why?—N. G. Wimmer, Westminster, Calif.

● Indianapolis Speedway regulations provide that only seven crew members can work on the pit apron. These men usually are involved in the refueling or tire changing, so the driver relies on some other crew member behind the wall to provide him with a drink of water and a clean pair of goggles—by using a long stick.

FOR SEN. HERMAN TALMADGE (D-Ga.)

What do you think of the Supreme Court now that President Nixon has changed it a bit?—L. Gordon, Jonesboro, Ark.

● They have made a shambles out of our public school system. They have placed revolving doors on all the criminal courts of this country, and they have generally made a destructive nuisance of themselves. Sometimes I think the motto, "Equal Justice Under Law," should be removed from the front of the Supreme Court building and replaced with the statement, "We Know Best."

FOR JEANE DIXON, clairvoyant

What do you see in store for the United States dollar?—John Randolph, Durham, N.C.

● That the U.S.S.R. will help stabilize it, but I don't know how this will come about.

FOR SALLY KELLERMAN, starring in "Lost Horizon"

Do you think it is possible for an attractive woman to have men strictly as friends?—J. Lakey, North Chicago, Ill.

● I think it's a luxury and very difficult. If there is no love, he sees someone else. But I do think it is possible. I know I have friends who are men.

"You Never Listen to Me...."

Seven Ways to Correct This Most Common

"Youngsters in some schools nowadays are being taught the 'one L' along with the three R's. Dozens of corporations send executives (and their wives) to courses that will improve their listening skills. And family counselors are training thousands of husbands and wives, parents and children, to listen constructively to one another. Here are some of the experts' suggestions that can help you to be a better listener...."

By Norman Lobsenz

A few years ago a judge ruled that a husband does not have to listen to his wife's conversation. In these days of equal rights for both sexes, he'd probably grant a wife the same privilege. But most experts on family life would agree that the judge was missing the point, because listening properly to what other people are saying is one of the most important—and surprisingly difficult—things that any of us can do.

Recently, for example, a woman I know thought she'd please her husband by getting rid of the piles of old magazines and clothing that cluttered up their attic. "I told him about it during dinner," she said. "But though he'd been after me for weeks to get the junk cleared out, all he said now was, 'Uh-huh, uh-huh.' Then, about an hour later, he suddenly asked me when I was going to do something about the mess in the attic. I didn't know whether to laugh or to throw something. He hadn't heard a word I'd said!"

Today, most people are aware of the importance of full and frank communication between spouses, between parent and child, or indeed between any persons who want to share joys, discuss problems or make plans together. Yet all the talking in the world is useless unless those we are talking to know how to listen.

Listening seems like a simple thing to do well. But research shows that most of us are poor listeners. For instance, scientific studies indicate that the average person grasps only a third of the factual content of what he hears, and remembers accurately only about half of that third. More significantly, he's not any better at "listening with the third ear"—picking up the emotional overtones in what's being said. (How many times, for example, have you said, "But couldn't you tell that I was angry?" Or, "Didn't you realize I was joking?")

I wish you would be friendlier to your Mother-in-Law instead of being so friendly to all those people in your weekly Poker Game .... By the way, I need More Money for the kids' clothes....

One reason we have trouble listening effectively is that we learn to tune out much of what is said to us in self-defense. Speech expert Dr. Herbert Hildebrandt estimated that we spend half our time being talked to by teachers, bosses, salesmen, neighbors, and all those voices on radio and television. Little wonder we tend to screen out what we don't want to hear. In addition, the sheer volume of noise around us, from traffic to jets, hampers careful listening. One couple told me the first time they ever really listened to each other was when a snowstorm blanketed their town and muffled every outside sound.

Another reason for poor listening is, paradoxically, that we can listen five times as fast as we can speak. Psychologist Dr. Stuart Margulies has pointed out that during the time it takes for Z to speak 100 words, Y actually has "brain room" for 500 words. Thus, while Z talks, Y listens with a fraction of his capacity—and uses the rest to reminisce, plan, wool-gather or think about what he's going to say when Z stops.

But among friends and family—where good listening is most important—the biggest obstacles are bad listening habits.

One, surprisingly enough, is due to the fact that the people know each other well. A wife, say, hears her husband complain about his job. Business is off, pressure for sales is increasing. But she's heard this many times before, and says to herself, in effect, "There he goes about his job, again." This time, however, her husband really does have a problem. His sales quota has been upped sharply, and if he doesn't deliver he may be fired. He is not merely griping; he is looking to his wife for encouragement or advice. But he is not likely to get it. Bored by what she takes to be "the same old complaints," she is only half-listening.

Another bad listening habit is selective listening: picking out the bits and pieces of conversation that interest you and turning a deaf ear to the rest. A husband often does this while reading the paper or watching television. Without actually paying attention to what his wife is saying, he will put in his "yes, dears" when he senses that she is waiting for his reaction; but he may perk up and listen more attentively when she mentions that the attractive wife of their new neighbor likes to sunbathe in her bikini in the backyard.

Increasingly, experts in family life are recognizing the importance of good listening. By encouraging communication, it prevents the buildup of grudges and misunderstanding. By cutting through feelings of loneliness and isolation, it helps to do away with the idea that "no one understands me." And because a good listener can respond intelligently to what has been said to him, discussions don't get short-circuited or distorted. The continuity of communication is preserved.

As a result, youngsters in some schools nowadays are being taught the "one L" along with the three R's. Dozens of corporations send executives (and their wives) to courses that will improve their listening skills. And family counselors are training thousands of husbands and wives, parents and children, to listen constructively to one another. Here are some of the experts' suggestions that can help you to be a better listener:

1. Try to keep your own feelings—anxiety, worry, enthusiasm, anger—from interfering. Listen objectively.

2. Beware of "tune-out" words ("mother-in-law," "poker game," "more money") that raise emotional hackles and make you turn off on what's being said.

3. Listen for what the speaker is trying to accomplish by his remarks. "I suppose I should stay home today and paint the bedroom," your husband muses on a bright summer Saturday, waiting for your response. Does he want you to talk him out of the chore? Or does he want your encouragement that will help him tackle it?

4. Be alert to facial expressions, gestures, body positions. Prof. Ray Birdwhistell, University of Pennsylvania expert on body language, claims these are often more revealing than actual words. When you spot a furrowed brow or clenched fist, even when the words are mild, you are listening with your eyes as well as ears.

5. Concentrate on voice tones. Like gestures, they can indicate the emotional meanings behind words. The same sentence can mean many different things depending on how words are emphasized or the tones in which they are said.

6. Good listening is enhanced by choosing the proper time for important conversations. A man watching a football playoff on TV or a woman in the midst of following a complicated recipe is not willing or able to listen attentively to anything else at the moment.

7. Finally, to help others listen well to you, make it clear that you expect to be listened to. Say: "There's something important I want to tell you," or "There are three things I have to say." Such an approach usually guarantees that your listener will be all ears.

SERVICE CONVENIENCE CARD.

If you ever need help for your car, call this number. You can call anytime, 24 hours a day. And you can call toll-free from any point in the continental United States. The operator will tell you the name of the nearest Ford or Lincoln-Mercury dealer. If it's after business hours, the operator can usually give you the name of a local towing service, or suggest where to get minor repairs. If you want, the operator will even help you make a motel reservation. This free service is offered by Ford and Lincoln-Mercury dealers.

(Clip and save)

We listen. And because we do, we know that one thing that makes car owners unhappy is to have car trouble when they're far from home.

So we've done something about it. Announcing the Service Convenience Card. It's yours free for the clipping (or you can get a more substantial version at most Ford or Lincoln-Mercury dealers).

With its toll-free number you can call a central service information office anytime you have a problem with your car. It's open for business 24 hours a day, seven days a week. And you can call it from any point in the continental United States.

The operator will tell you the name and telephone number of the nearest Ford or Lincoln-Mercury dealer. If it's after business hours, the operator can usually give you the name of a local towing service, or suggest where to get minor repairs. If you want, the operator will even help you make a motel reservation.

This is just one of the ways our dealers are working toward a goal: No unhappy owners. Here are some others:

You'll get guaranteed service. Over 6,000

Ford and Lincoln-Mercury dealers now guarantee their service work for 4,000 miles or 90 days, whichever comes first. If repair or replacement fails in normal service within that period, they'll fix it free of charge. Parts and labor.

You can charge the work. Most of these same dealers honor five major credit cards for service work. Master Charge, BankAmericard, American Express, Carte Blanche and Diners Club. In the car repair business these dealers are the only new car dealers with a plan to accept all five nationally.

You'll get a service report card. Attached to your service bill, you'll find a report card. It asks you to comment on the dealer's service. It's his way of finding out what he's doing right and what might need improving. So far 583,000 cards have been returned. 95% say that the owners are satisfied with the service work done on their cars. The same toll-free number gets you the address of our nearest Customer Service District Office. You probably won't have to contact them. Most problems are solved right at these Ford and Lincoln-Mercury dealerships. But if you still have a problem, you or the dealer should contact the Ford Customer Service Division Office nearest you. Describe your problem. A Customer Service representative will contact you quickly. And he'll work with you and the dealer to try to straighten things out.

For any other information about our cars and trucks, or if you want to know where we stand on safety, emissions, quality control—anything—write: Ford Motor Company Listens, Box 1973, The American Road, Dearborn, Michigan 48121.

Let us know what's on your mind. We listen better. And we'd like to prove it to you.

How to Travel Light

This week, Women's Editor Rosalyn Abrevaya tells you how to stretch one suitcase into a whole vacation wardrobe. "In my business," she says, "I log thousands of miles in travel time every year. You can't do that without learning just a few tricks about what to take and what not to." She compiled the following hints, inspired by the techniques of time-management expert Alan Lakein.

TWO-WAY OUTFIT: Here's a zippy version of tennis whites by Leslie Fay in wrinkle-free Quintess polyester. Sight-seeing afterward? No need to return to your hotel. White tailored pants come with the outfit.

THE KIND OF CLOTHES TO BUY: Choose "convertibles" like this. Jack Winter does it all for vacation time-saving with a shirt jacket, worn either with a pleated skirt or cuffed dotted-check pants. (The skirt works equally well with the smashing plaid jacket on the cover.) Hat by Therese Ahrens. Luggage by Samsonite.

- and Still Dress Well

If you believe that "time is money" and should be managed efficiently, you're well on the way to reaping the reward of adding hours of "fun" and less "fuss" to your vacation with these tips:

1. Ruthlessly limit yourself and your family or companions to one suitcase each, carry-on size. If you're flying, you'll save hours while everyone else waits for luggage to unload. If you're driving and making overnight stops, you eliminate excessive repacking.

2. Plan your travel wardrobe (preferably separates) by dividing your choices into A, B and C categories. Eliminate the C group (least favorite), then re-sort the B's into either the A or C group. Here's a checklist to make this technique easier and to keep you within the one-suitcase limit.

1. Do you feel attractive in a particular outfit?
2. Does it fit well?
3. Does it color-coordinate; i.e., mix with at least two other pieces of clothing you plan to take?

Here are some other wardrobe hints: Cut down on shoes and accessories. Silver- or gold-kid pumps will go with any color for evening. Beige shoes with crepe soles (for walking comfort) are a good neutral for day. Accessories should do double-duty.

In lingerie, the drip-dry kind is your best choice. But look into disposables. Paper panties are comfortable, absorbent, can be rinsed out or discarded.

Don't forget rain gear—a plastic raincoat in a pouch, foldable galoshes and a telescopic umbrella. These will save you the time and expense of hunting for rainwear in case you're "rained in" on vacation.

Upon arrival at a hotel or motel, all items should be placed at their points of usage: toiletries in the bathroom, slippers and sleepwear at the bedside, your separates wardrobe (if you're following our advice) in the closet, with tops to one side, bottoms to the other. You save time by switching and mixing right at the closet area.

Even though the weather may be warm outside, remember that most hotels are air-conditioned. Save time. Take a wrap when dining or being entertained within the hotel. The same advice goes for touring from morning to sundown, when a chill

If you really want to enjoy your vacation, resist the tendency to take outfits you think you should be getting use out of, when you will probably wear only two or three favorites. And, if you are visiting several locales on vacation, remember that you won't be seeing the same people, which will reduce your wardrobe needs.

People Quiz

Is Lasting Love Really Just an Illusion?

By John E. Gibson

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Starry-eyed love is a concept that exists largely in the minds of teenagers and dating couples, and it tends to disappear after marriage sooner or later.
2. Where love and romance are concerned, a happy man tends to be attracted to good-looking girls, while unhappy men gravitate toward plainer lasses.
3. The best way to remain young is to fall in love with someone who loves you.
4. It's easy to tell if a couple is in love—and how deeply they are in love—if you know what to look for.
5. You are more likely to fall in love with someone who arouses feelings of strong anger within you than with someone who arouses only mild emotions or no emotions at all.
6. Love is so illusive and mysterious that no one can come close to defining it.

ANSWERS

1. False. At Florida State University, a sociological study was made of 100 persons before marriage, 100 persons who had been married less than five years, and 100 persons whose marriages had lasted 20 years. Each was tested on an 84-item scale designed to evaluate his concept of love—ranging from extreme romanticism (there is only one love; true love is eternal) to extreme realism, which defined love in more calm and less ecstatic terms. Findings: The concept of love of persons married less than five years tended toward the so-called "realistic" rather than the romantic end of the scale. But the couples whose marriages were still flourishing after 20 years tended to share the same extremely romantic, starry-eyed concept of love that was found among the group of yet-to-be-married persons.

2. True. Psychological studies show that the man who is relatively happy with himself and the world around him tends to be attracted to the best looking girls—and the lass he marries is likely to be much better looking than the average. However, the man who is less happy with himself and his life-style is apt to become romantically involved with the "plain Jane" type of girl.

3. True. Consensus of studies shows that people who love and are loved stay young longer, are more resistant to disease and infection, and more successful in their work than persons who lack a satisfying love relationship. It has been truly observed that "Those who love deeply never grow old; they may die of old age, but they die young."

4. True—as shown by the findings of a psychological study

King: 19 mg. "tar," 1.4 mg. nicotine; Super King: 19 mg. "tar," 1.5 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette, FTC Report (Feb. 73).

This...is the L&M moment.

RICH, RICH L&M

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

True or False: Starry-eyed love is a concept that exists largely in the minds of teenagers and dating couples, and it tends to disappear after marriage sooner or later.
(See number 1)

conducted at Harvard University, where couples were administered a 13-item love-scale questionnaire, designed to evaluate their affection for each other. Each couple's behavior toward one another when they were together was then carefully noted by the investigators. The most significant finding: The more deeply couples were in love—the higher they scored on the love-scale test—the more time they spent gazing into each other's eyes.

5. True—according to the findings of a team of social psychologists, which show that any strong emotional state—anger, fear, bliss, jealousy or whatever—can produce feelings of passionate love, if an appropriate target for the individual's emotions is present.

6. False. Dr. Judson T. Landis, Professor of Family Sociology at the University of California, offers one of the best and most succinct definitions: "To put it most simply, love is the concern of two people for each other. You love a person if his well-being, his growth toward his greatest potential in all facets of his personality, matters to you as much as your own."

Now, medical science has the power to say to you:

BEGIN YOUR "MIDDLE YEARS" AT 70, 80, EVEN 90!

Announcing — an incredibly simple, medically proven, overwhelmingly documented ANTI-AGING program that is designed to:

- give you the lean, glowing look of a youngster past sixty . . .
- retain the strength and grace and power of a trained athlete in your body beyond your seventies . . .
- and keep you in vibrant good health till ninety or more . . . even if you feel "rotten" today . . . even if your mother or father died far too young of diseases that are STILL carried in your bloodstream!

Yes, This Medical "Youth-Building Program" is so Strong That It Can Even Overcome Poor Heredity!

It is so strong, in fact, that it may actually make you look twenty or more years younger than your parents did at the same age . . . at the same exact time that it enables you to live thirty or forty years longer than they did!

We realize, of course, that these facts may seem virtually impossible to you at this moment . . . until you are shown the new medical techniques by which these goals are attained! They are:

1. The most powerful "age-reversing mechanism" known to man . . . which takes exactly six minutes per day . . . may be done by any man or woman, no matter how poor their health today . . . and which is bluntly recognized by one of the leading physicians in this book to give far better "youthifying" results — far faster — than even "cell therapy" treatments costing hundreds of dollars apiece!

2. A direct attack on the stored-up emotional poisons in your body that eat away strength and youth like internal acid, and replace them with never-flagging fatigue! This incredibly simple technique drains out those poisons, and that deadly fatigue, in approximately ten of the most revitalizing minutes you have ever spent!

And, finally —
3. A new way to lose weight — not a diet — designed to change your present suicidal eating habits in exactly 48 hours! And, to break at last the vicious fat-multiplying cycle inside your body, that causes you to put on more weight, from less food, than your thin friends.

Let Us Repeat Again: These Medical Techniques Are So Powerful That They Actually REVERSE THE AGING PROCESS — WITHOUT DRUGS!

They cause you, quite simply, to grow stronger and not weaker, as you grow older! And here is the medical documentation to prove it:

In tests conducted at a leading University and Medical School in Southern California, it was discovered that life-prolongation, accomplished this way, not only added decades to potential human life spans, but — even more important — also produced vastly increased vitality and vigor, as well as startlingly heightened resistance to dread "senile decline!" (Reported on page 129 of this thrilling new book.)

As a result of scientific observations and experiments conducted in several different locations in the United States (as well as in Europe and Soviet Russia), it was definitely established that these techniques will enable almost any individual to live beyond 90 . . . and even beyond 100 healthy, productive, thoroughly enjoyable years — even if he or she had tragically short-lived parents or grandparents! In other words, disastrous heredity can now be overcome! (See page 36.)

At a leading Gerontology Research Center on the Pacific Coast, its' president bluntly stated that a single one of the techniques given to you here had (in essence): ". . . reversed the aging process and over a period of time restored the characteristics of youth to the bodies of middle-aged men!" (See Page 129.)

And one of his colleagues, discussing the same simple procedure, went so far as to state that it: ". . . relieves joint stiffness, lowers the blood pressure, and reduces the amount of fat in the body tissues. It acts like a miracle drug, and it's free for the doing!" (Italics ours — see page 130.)

But All This Research Documentation Is Only The PROLOGUE To The Real Meat Of This Revolutionary New Book! FOR NOW THE YOUTH-RESTORING PRINCIPLES LEARNED ALL OVER THE WORLD ARE PUT TO WORK — INSTANTLY — FOR YOU!

How to lose weight without counting calories — by harnessing the same exact forces which made you overweight in the first place! (It is not unusual, with these methods, to lose 15 and more pounds the first week — up to 10 pounds the second week — and a good hundred pounds or more, in as little as 15 weeks. And the weight stays off — for decades!)

How to add 10 . . . 20 . . . perhaps even 30 glowing years to your life, simply by avoiding the everyday "Life-Traps" that make you grow old too fast!

How a careful examination of your eye can tell you, with unerring accuracy, if you've eaten the wrong foods that night for dinner . . .

and therefore have to give them up for a few days till your body's digestive powers restore themselves to the correct balance!

Little-known-stress-on-the-heart Number 1 . . . that kills unwary thousands every year . . . and can be prevented simply by reading a single sentence on page 70!

When you must eat . . . and eat . . . and eat if you really want to lose weight!

"Hungry enzymes" that now infest your body! They are the real reason all past attempts to peel off ugly fat have been such torture for you! And you can "command" your body to destroy them — for good — as simply as this! (See page 82.)

Why most people's muscles simply "melt away" as they grow older! (No wonder "old age" to them means ever-growing weakness!) And how you can stop that muscle-melting process overnight . . . and replace it with vibrant new strength!

And More! And More! And More! Like This —

What really causes vigor to drain out of the "aging" body! A simple fluid that if the body gives up too much of, it then dies of old age! And how you can "pump that vital cell-nourishing fluid" right back into your body . . . actually increase your body capacity to utilize by as much as 133% . . . in just a few thrilling minutes every day!

How to exercise your heart! Anyone — no matter what age — can do it! And prevent the greatest tragedy of all — premature heart attack!

Read the line in the middle of page 144 as though your life depended upon it! Because, if you've ever worried about killing your own heart through the worst possible error you can make — this one line will show you how to avoid it . . . forever!

World's easiest exercise program — for men and women who are pitifully out of shape!

How to avoid the man-made diseases! And save your body, and your nerves, at exactly the same time!

What your sleep, or lack of it, is really telling you! And how to ease yourself into a good night's rest again!

What your fingers tell you that can save your life! Listen to them . . . obey their command . . . and you may be able to out-run your own youngster!

World's most effective weapon against demolished nerves! Gets you back to loving life, instead of hating it, in just about ten blessed minutes!

No more nervous breakdowns! And no more un-necessary heart attacks (or strokes!) The technique shown to you on page 197 may banish them from your life — for good!

How to add ten years to your life, by avoiding one little fatal mistake — at night! Before you go to sleep!

How to laugh at old age — at least till you're ninety! A simple program so effective that it may actually cause strangers to think that you are your best friends' grown children!

And Yours To Prove — In Its Entirety — For 30 Days, Entirely At Our Risk!

The choice is yours. This is a book for people who mean business. It costs you nothing! We take all the risk! Fair enough? Why not send in the coupon — TODAY!

SPECIAL ADDED BONUS SECTION

Smart Cooking

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen prepares a picnic. She says: "It's the season when we all want to shed the cocoon of winter and spread our wings a little. Even if we can't travel to exotic places, we can enjoy the wonderful outdoors with some new flavor combinations in our picnic baskets."

New Ideas

For the Picnic Basket

CURRIED FRIED-RICE SALAD

- 1 teaspoon curry powder
- Crisp salad greens bite-sized

1. Cook rice mix as directed on package. Turn into serving bowl; cover and refrigerate.

2. To serve: Fluff rice with fork. Add scallions, mandarin oranges, celery, dressing and curry; mix well.

3. To transfer to picnic, spoon salad into wide-mouthed vacuum bottle, cover. Place greens in plastic bag, seal with twister. Surround edge of salad bowl with greens. Spoon in salad.

Makes 4 servings

NUTTY MOLASSES BARS

Crust:

Plus a FREE $10 Compatibility Report when you order your personalized horoscope.

You haven't seen a horoscope like this before, unless you have actually seen one of our in-depth personalized horoscopes. We invented computerized astrology 5 years ago when we learned that millions of people were interested in personal authentic astrology, not the short forecasts found in newspapers.

Many people could not afford the time and money required to have a personalized horoscope cast by a qualified astrologer. Such reports could cost up to $300.

Newspaper and magazine astrology is based on the twelve Sun Signs, so everyone in the world born during the same period gets the same horoscope — 12 possibilities in all. Authentic astrology is based on the month, day, year, time and place of birth, with the positions of all the planets taken into account — so the possibilities of variation are infinite. For instance, two people born on the same day in the same city, but at different times, get different horoscopes. Two people born on the same day at the same time, but in different places, get different horoscopes.

The Time Pattern horoscope is an individual, 20,000 word report all about you and you only. It describes your character as well as your potential in life, love and business. It also projects the trend of events you can expect during the next 12 months, giving highlights for each month and pinpointing individual days that are astrologically significant.

Time Pattern Research Institute was selected by the country's leading department stores as the most reliable astrological service available.

1. You receive your report within 10 days from receipt of your order.
2. You get the most comprehensive astrological report ever made available — now 20,000 words — completely updated with more detail than ever before.
3. If you are not pleased with the report for any reason whatsoever, you may return it any time within a whole year from the receipt of your report for a full refund.
4. We predict that you will be astounded by the accuracy of your report.

You are one in a million, not one in twelve. Get the horoscope that fits you and no one else. Get a Time Pattern Report® Get the Horoscope You Can Believe In.

YOUR FREE COMPATIBILITY REPORT

Is there a special gal or guy in your life? Would you like to know if you're really right for each other?

Until now, frankly, astrology's answers for couples were uncertain, at best. Most people were forced to depend on generalities: "Libras are attracted to Aquarians, but should avoid Cancerians" — that sort of thing. As you've doubtless observed, this method is highly uncertain — because your sun sign is only one of the many astrological factors in your personality. To get an accurate picture, you must know the influence of all your 10 planets. To evaluate any relationship, you also need the same information about the other person.

Now the computer, for the first time, can take all these factors into account!

TPRI's fascinating Compatibility Report compares astrological charts in intimate, probing, deeply personal detail. Do you share common interests? Pleasures? How can you stimulate even warmer love? What does the future hold in store for the two of you? Will you be happy? These are just a few of the things you can learn in your COMPATIBILITY REPORT. Send for yours without delay.

Jobmanship

Why Even Good Ideas Are Sometimes Rejected

You've thought of a way to improve efficiency or save money at your job. Now what? Probably the major mistake people make is to try to sell their new idea to the boss before they find out if the boss realizes the problem exists. Just because you're so aware of the difficulty doesn't mean your supervisor is. What possible interest can he have in making the changes you want, if he doubts there's a trouble situation? Once the boss agrees there's a problem, then you can present your ideas. Before approaching your supervisor, you should spend time preparing the facts. If you're suggesting a new piece of equipment, then you should have collected brochures and prices, talked to a few knowledgeable people, investigated how this equipment has functioned with similar businesses, and marshaled evidence that the purchase would benefit your concern. If it's a change in business routine, then you should have thought through why the change is needed, how it could be implemented, and how it would affect your co-workers. (No boss can accept your ideas for change if he feels the new system will hamper others.) If, after your best preparation, your idea is rejected, try to analyze why. Sometimes it's a necessary preparatory step you overlooked. Sometimes the idea wasn't really that good. And sometimes you will have stumbled onto a better understanding of your local office politics.

—By S. R. Redford

NAME CALLING

I've heard about a stalemate.
It is a word, I guess,
That most, no doubt, have spoken
Who play the game of chess.

But I have come to wonder,
A thought I rather hate,
If stalemate isn't something
Referring to a mate.

Not mine, not mine, I hasten
To say—not such as she.
My mate is fresh as ever,
As fresh as she can be.

And if my mate I sometimes
Call fresh, she shouldn't wail.
She'd have more cause for worry
If I should say, "You're stale."

My young son walked in as I was bleaching my hair for the first time and asked what I was doing. I simply said, "I'm shampooing my hair." The next morning he came into the kitchen and with a puzzled look on his face and asked, "What kind of shampoo did you use, Mom?" When I asked him why he wanted to know, he said, "Because you never washed your hair so clean before."

Congratulations that you have carried out your destiny.

This year, our family will have no more

WHY PLANT A GROUND COVER?

In many areas and situations, ground covers are more appropriate and more satisfactory than turf. They are able to grow and thrive in sun OR shade, and in poor soil.

On steep slopes where mowing is difficult, ground cover is much more effective and much less laborious to maintain than grass. Ground covers hold the soil as well as turf and the textures are far more interesting.

Small areas of grass are a continual chore to keep mown and trimmed but ground covers require almost no care. They are excellent protection and soil conditioners. They hold the fallen leaves from blowing away, thus helping to add annually to the humus content.

WHY CREEPING RED SEDUM?

One of Sedum's most valuable assets is its full time beauty. Lush foliage begins in early spring, and star-shaped wine red flowers delight the viewer from late June through September. The attractive semi-evergreen foliage lasts well into winter, maintaining its rich green and bronze color nearly all year round.

Besides being one of the loveliest of the ground covers, Sedum also rates high on the other requirements. It is hardy, grows well in sun or partial shade, in sandy soil, clay soil, or good soil.

Its thick foliage and root system hold the soil on slopes or banks. The neat 3-4" cover forms a dense perennial mat to bring green and wine red beauty to slopes, borders, rocky areas, anywhere beauty and durability are needed.

Each plant will easily and quickly spread to fill one sq. ft. Sedum spreads evenly, maintains its uniform smooth beauty at all stages of growth. Unlike some other ground covers, Sedum, also called "Dragon's Blood," stays where you put it—does not straggle out into places where it doesn't belong. Sedum is almost indestructible, enduring and persisting against heavy climatic and nutritional odds.

FULLY GUARANTEED

All items guaranteed to be of high quality, exactly as advertised and to arrive in good healthy condition or purchase price will be refunded. RETURN SHIPPING LABEL ONLY—you may keep the plants. (One year limit).

*Now is a Good Time to Order
RED SEDUM!*

Your young Sedum plants will establish themselves and begin to spread a few days after planting. In a month or so they will already be 3-4 inches in diameter. They may lose their foliage as the first winter progresses but will leaf out again in early spring. During a long growing season they may reach 12" in diameter, always maintaining their neat regulated shape.

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR
BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: "I AM SEARCHING" ARN SAYS, "FOR A MAIDEN WITH DARK EYES AND DARK HAIR, WEARING A JEWELLED SCARAB. SHE SPEAKS OUR LANGUAGE WITHOUT AN ACCENT, AND HER NAME IS LYDIA."
"THE SCARAB IS EGYPTIAN," SAYS GEOFFREY, "AND HER NAME AND COLORING TOO. LET US SEE WHAT THE ARCHIVES REVEAL."

GUNDAR HARL SPEAKS: "I KNOW HAAKON. I BUILT HIM A SHIP. HIS FIEF IS ON TOSENFJORD TO THE NORTH. THE KING MIGHT KNOW MORE ABOUT A WARRIOR SO LOYAL."

ARN GOES STRAIGHT TO THE KING. "SIRE, TELL ME WHAT YOU KNOW OF HAAKON OF TOSENFJORD." AGUAR LOOKS INTENTLY AT HIS GRANDSON. BY THE SET OF HIS CHIN AND THE EARNEST LOOK OF HIS EYES HE KNOWS ARN IS FACED BY SOME PROBLEM HE MEANS TO SOLVE.

"JARL HAAKON IS A HARDY WARRIOR AND LOYAL TO OUR THRONE. HIS LANDS ADJOIN THOSE OF KING GRIMMER, WHOSE LOYALTY IS, I FEAR, LESS THAN HIS AMBITIONS, AND I FORESEE TROUBLE IN THE FUTURE."

THE KING PROVIDES ARN WITH A BOAT AND ASKS NO QUESTIONS, FOR THE LAD IS LIKE HIS FATHER, VAL, AND WILL FOLLOW HIS OWN COURSE AGAINST ANY OBSTACLES.

PRINCE ARN SAILS FOR TOSENFJORD IN SEARCH OF A GIRL HE MET BUT ONCE AT A FESTIVAL. SHE HAD RUN AWAY FROM HIM, BUT WHY? AND WHY HE IS GOING TO ALL THIS TROUBLE HE DOES NOT KNOW.

NEXT WEEK - Haakon's Daughter

YOUR GOVERNMENT WILL BE EVERLASTINGLY GRATEFUL TO YOU, ANNIE! IS THERE ANYTHING YOU WANT?

"A MAN MUST INSULT HIMSELF BEFORE OTHERS WILL"
- CHINESE PROVERB

PUNJAB HAS BEEN SENT TO BRING ANNIE TO HER "DADDY" ... BUT THE PRIVATE PLANE DEVELOPS PROBLEMS MID-OCEAN ...

YOU'VE GOT A BETTER CHANCE OF SURVIVAL IF YOU HIT THE SILK ... BUT THE CHART SHOWS NO LAND IN THIS VICINITY ...

DOWN THERE ... LOOK ... IT'S AN ISLAND!!

PUNJAB'S IN TROUBLE, SANDY!! YOU O.K., PUNJAB?

ONLY MY DIGNITY IS BRUISED, ANNIE! I SHALL JOIN YOU AS SOON AS I DISENTANGLE MYSELF FROM THESE LINES!

YOU THINK THE PILOT'LL MAKE IT T' BASE, PUNJAB?

I HOPE SO ... NOT ONLY FOR HIS OWN SAKE, BUT FOR OURS, PRINCESS! HE IS THE SOLE PERSON WHO KNOWS THE LOCATION OF THIS DOT IN THE OCEAN!

IT SURE IS PRETTY SMALL AT THAT ...

HOW COME IT WASN'T ON ANY O' THE CHARTS IN THE PLANE?

I, TOO, AM CURIOUS! IT WAS MY IMPRESSION THAT EVEN THE TINIEST ATOLL WAS RECORDED ... AND ...

AN' WHAT? YOU WERE SAYIN' ... HEY, PUNJAB ... WHAT'S EATIN' YOU ...?

B-BUT THAT'S LOONY ... ISLANDS DON'T MOVE ... DO THEY ... PUNJAB?

NOT TO MY KNOWLEDGE, PRINCESS ... BUT MAN'S KNOWLEDGE IS KNOWN TO BE LIMITED BY HIS LEARNING AND HIS EXPERIENCE ...

... CAN IT BE THAT BECAUSE NO ONE HAS EVER REPORTED ON A FLOATING ISLAND IN THE MIDDLE OF THE OCEAN ... THAT IT CANNOT EXIST?
